CHAPTER ONE

INCORPORATION OF INSURANCE COMPANIES

Article 4711. [3034] Capital stock shall consist of what.

Issuing stock for note and trust deed.—Note of a subscriber to corporate stock in an insurance company, secured by valid first mortgage on real estate to which the subscriber has title, accepted by the corporation in payment for the stock, is "property actually received," within the meaning of Const. art. 12, § 6, so that Acts 1909, c. 108, authorizing the incorporation of insurance companies whose capital consists of first mortgages on unincumbered realty in Texas, is valid. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Moseley, 110 Tex. 529, 222 S. W. 961, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1031; Prudential Life Ins. Co. of Texas v. Pearson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 967, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 513; Mitchell v. Porter (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 197, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 981.

Where subscriber to stock in insurance company agreed to pay in cash or securities approved by insurance department, and on organization of company organizing company by proper transfer delivered to it subscription contract and subscriber's notes and deed of trust executed to secure such contract, on acceptance they became binding contracts between insurance company and subscriber, who became obligated to pay for his stock in cash or approved securities. Commonwealth Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Hollifield (Com. App.) 220 S. W. 322, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 776.

Stock subscription contracts, calling for payment in money or securities satisfactory to the insurance department of Texas, the corporation being a bonding and accident insurance company, held valid on their face. Mitchell v. Porter (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 197, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 981.

Article 4724. Terms defined.

Cited, Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 896.

Companies within act.—The mere fact that a casualty insurance company incorporated under arts. 4942a-4942z, was authorized by its charter to write health and accident insurance, did not make it a health or accident insurance company, within the meaning of this act, or make applicable to it any of the provisions of such act. American Indemnity Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 812.

Art. 4725. Who may incorporate.

Payment for stock subscribed.—Contract for purchase of increase of capital stock was not, where stock was not to be delivered until notes given therefor had been paid, an executed sale so as to be void under Const. art. 12, § 6, and Rev. St. 1911, art. 1146, and art. 4725, subd. "e," and arts. 4726, 4728, prohibiting issuance of stock except for money paid, etc.; "issue" meaning delivered. Zapp v. Spreckels (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 786.

Art. 4726. Charter to be approved by attorney general, etc.

See Zapp v. Spreckels (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 786.

Art. 4728. Examination by commissioner before commencing business.

Notes received for stock.—Note of a subscriber to corporate stock in an insurance company, secured by valid first mortgage on real estate to which the subscriber has title, accepted by the corporation in payment for the stock, is "property actually received," within the meaning of Const. art. 12, § 6, so that this Act, authorizing the incorporation of insurance companies whose capital consists of first mortgages on unincumbered realty in Texas, is valid. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Moseley, 110 Tex. 529, 222 S. W. 961, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1031; Prudential Life Ins. Co. of Texas v. Pearson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 967, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 513.

Contract for purchase of increase of capital stock was not, where stock was not to be delivered until notes given therefor had been paid, an executed sale so as to be void under Const. art. 12, § 6, and Rev. St. 1911, art. 1146, and art. 4725, subd. "e," and arts. 4726, 4728, prohibiting issuance of stock except for money paid, etc.; "issue" meaning delivered. Zapp v. Spreckels (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 786.

Stock subscription contracts, calling for payment in cash or in securities meeting the approval of the insurance department of Texas, meant such securities as constitute property, in contemplation of law, proper to be used in payment and satisfaction of a stock subscription. Mitchell v. Porter (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 197, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 981.

Art. 4730. Renewal certificates.

Cited, California State Life Ins. Co. v. Kring (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 372.

Art. 4733. Laws relating to corporations shall govern.

Cited, Western Indemnity Co. v. Free and Accepted Masons of Texas (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1092.

Art. 4734. May invest in what securities.

Securities.—Note of a subscriber to corporate stock in an insurance company, secured by valid first mortgage on real estate to which the subscriber has title, accepted by the corporation in payment for the stock, is "property actually received," within the meaning of Const. art. 12, § 6, so that this Act, authorizing the incorporation of insurance companies whose capital consists of first mortgages on unincumbered realty in Texas, is valid. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Moseley, 110 Tex. 529, 222 S. W. 961, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 174 S. W. 1031; Prudential Life Ins. Co. of Texas v. Pearson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 967, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 513.

Art. 4735. May hold real estate, etc.

Real estate.—The fact that a building acquired by an insurance company was equipped with a heating plant designed to heat an adjoining building also does not make the acquisition of such building an ultra vires act. Farmers' Life Ins. Co. v. Foster Building & Realty Co. (C. C. A.) 272 Fed. 864.

Art. 4737. May reinsure.

Construction in general.—Petition, in life insurance company's suit on premium note acquired by having taken over all assets and liabilities of another company, held not demurrable as showing that transaction whereby note was acquired was not authorized by this article, therefore repugnant to anti-trust statutes, arts. 7797, 7807. California State Life Ins. Co. v. Kring (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 372.

Art. 4741. Policies shall contain what.

Cited, Mitchell v. Southern Union Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 586.

Application.—The provisions requiring payment of premiums in advance and forbidding discrimination between insureds, relating to what an insurance policy should contain, do not have the effect of avoiding a policy issued in violation of their provisions. Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 254.

Statutory provisions as to what an insurance contract should contain cannot be waived by contract, and any attempt to do so, direct or indirect, is void. Id.

Fraternal benefit societies are not within the purview of this article, prescribing the provisions to be contained in insurance policy. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., v. Nigh (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 291.

Rev. St. 1911, art. 4741, forbidding issuance of a policy within the state unless it contains certain provisions, does not prevent suit within the state on a policy issued in another state, where the renewal premium was paid in still a third state in violation of one of the provisions of the policy required by the statute. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 709.

Payment of premiums.—An insurer cannot declare a forfeiture of a life policy until 30 days from default in payment of premium, even though the policy has been issued without the statutory clause inserted therein, requiring 30 days of grace. Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 254.

Where life policy allowed 30 days of grace for payment of premium without interest, but on date premium was due insurer executed a note for the amount thereof maturing eight months later, bearing interest and reciting that it was subject to the provisions of the policy, insured was entitled to 30 days' grace after maturity of the note to pay the same, although the note contained the words "without grace"; an extension of time upon an agreement to pay interest not being considered "grace" (citing Words and Phrases, Days of Grace; On Grace). Id.

Incontestability.—Subd. 3, providing for clauses of incontestability in life policies, does not change the public policy of the state, so as to permit recovery for death of insured by legal execution as punishment for crime. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Munson (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 937.

There is no law requiring fraternal benefit insurance societies to put incontestable clauses in their certificates, as is demanded of health, life, and accident companies, and consequently clauses of that kind in certificates of fraternal insurers derive their authority, not from statute, but from contract. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Wernette (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 669.

Policy issued by fraternal benefit society was not incontestable, unless so provided by the contract itself, since this article is not applicable to policy of a fraternal benefit society. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., v. Nigh (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 291.

Parties to a life insurance contract could not by contract put something into the policy repugnant to subd. 3, requiring policies to be made incontestable not later than two years from date except for nonpayment of premiums, etc., and thus destroy a benefit to insured which the statute was designed to guarantee, so that an attempted reservation by the insurer of right to interpose fraud by way of defense to a suit to enforce payment of the policy after it had been issued more than two years was void. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Tabor (Sup.) 230 S. W. 397.

Understatement of age.—A life insurance policy issued in Texas to one aged 64 years at the premium rate for one aged 48 years violates the provision of Rev. St. art. 4954, against discrimination between policy holders, but may be enforced by the beneficiary; insured not being regarded as in pari delicto with insurer, in view of art. 4741 and Pen. Code, art. 416c. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Tabor (Sup.) 230 S. W. 397.

Representations and warranties.—A misrepresentation in an application for life insurance is material, when knowledge of the truth by the insurer might reasonably have caused it to refuse to issue the policy. Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. King (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 348.

In action on life policy, whether declaration in application as to cause of death of insured's brother and as to insured's use of alcoholic or malt liquors, was material, held for jury. Id.

Conditions—Validity in general.—Stipulations in a life insurance policy that same is to be null and void unless delivered to the insured or his beneficiary during his lifetime and while in good health are valid and binding and conditions precedent to the liability of the insurer. Denton v. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 436.

— Suicide of insured.—A clause reinstating insured, who was in good health, to the effect that insurer would not be liable for more than the reserve of the policy if the insured should commit suicide within a year, was void for want of consideration, where the policy provided that the company would reinstate the policy at any time upon evidence of "insurability satisfactory to the company and payment of all arrears"; such reinstatement being no more than the performance of insurer's legal obligation. Missouri State Life Ins. Co. v. Hearne (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 789.

Waiver of conditions.—Provision in life policy exempting insurer from liability, except for amount of premiums paid, in case the insured should die while engaged in military service, authorized by subd. 3, could not be orally waived in view of further provision that the policy constituted the entire contract between the parties, required by article 4953, and provisions of art. 4954, that life insurance company or agent should make no agreement as to policy not expressed therein. Caldwell v. Illinois Bankers' Life Ass'n (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 747.

While it is not within the power of life insurance companies in placing policies in certain forms on the market materially to change or evade the obligations imposed on them by statute for the protection and advantage of insured and their beneficiaries, such companies are bound by modifications of the contract which they have voluntarily made, and which have no effect other than to leave clauses authorized for their own benefit somewhat less to their advantage than would be permissible under the statutes. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Tabor (Sup.) 230 S. W. 397.

Construction of policy.—Doubt as to meaning of statements in a short form of application, which was presented to insured filled out as signed, will be resolved in favor of enforcement of the policy. Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. King (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 348.

Where a note for a premium could have been given either for an illegal extension of time for payment of premium, or as a legal payment of the premium, the court will hold that it was given as payment of the premium in advance rather than a postponement. Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 254.

Art. 4742. Policies shall not contain what.

Construction in general.—The construction of subd. 3, as applied to a condition on the face of a life insurance policy reducing the amount of insurance in case of death from certain diseases beginning within one year, is not involved in such doubt as to make controlling the ruling of the insurance commissioner approving a form of the policy. First Texas State Ins. Co. v. Smalley (Sup.) 228 S. W. 550.

Invalid provisions—In general.—A condition on the face of a life insurance policy immediately following the statement of the amount of the insurance, providing for payment of one-half only of such amount for death from certain diseases having their beginning during the first 12 months of the policy, is void under subd. 3. First Texas State Ins. Co. v. Smalley (Sup.) 228 S. W. 550.

A policy cannot contain the prohibited provisions, though issued on the industrial plan in small amounts and for weekly or biweekly premiums. Id.

The provision of a life policy that it shall not take effect unless insured is in good health at the time of issuance is not prohibited by subd. 3, invalidating any provision for settlement for less than the amount insured on the face of the policy. Federal Life Ins. Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 793.

A condition in an insurance policy that, if insured's death occurred within six calendar months from its date, the beneficiary would receive only one-half of the amount mentioned therein, and the full amount if death occurred thereafter, contravened subd. 3. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Dixon (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 165.

Waiver of provisions.—The provision in an insurance policy for shortening the period of limitation, being one for the benefit of the insurer, may be waived, and is waived where the beneficiary in an accident policy wrote to the insurer within 90 days after death of insured, as provided by the policy, to furnish blanks required for proof, but insurer failed to furnish same. Simmons v. Western Indemnity Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 713.

Art. 4743a. Corporations, partnerships, etc., shall have insurable interest.—Any corporation, partnership, joint stock association or any trust estate doing business for profit, may be named beneficiary in any policy of insurance issued by a legal reserve life insurance company on the life of any officer or stockholder of said corporation, joint stock association or trust estate or any partnership or member thereof may be the beneficiary in any policy of insurance issued by a legal reserve life insurance company upon the life of any member of said partnership, or any religious, educational, eleemosynary, charitable or benevolent institution or undertaking may be named beneficiary in any policy of life insurance issued by any legal reserve life insurance company upon the life of any individual. The beneficiaries aforementioned shall have an insurable interest for the full face of the policy and shall be entitled to collect same. On all policies of life insurance heretofore issued by legal reserve companies in which any of the aforementioned shall have been designated beneficiaries in the policies, said beneficiaries shall have an insurable interest to the full extent of the face of the policy and be entitled to collect same. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 84, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Art. 4744. Venue of suits on policies.

Cited, International Travelers' Ass'n v. Branum, 109 Tex. 543, 212 S. W. 630.

Applicability.—Under art. 4798, this article does not apply to mutual accident insurance companies, so that such company could agree to be sued only in county named in certificate. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Votaw (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 237.

Cause of action against insurance company for return, in view of cancellation of policy, of money paid on first premium, is not a "suit upon an insurance policy" within this article. Reliance Life Ins. Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 354.

Venue.—Action was properly brought in county of policy holder's residence, notwithstanding contrary provision of certificate. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Powell (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 957.

Art. 4746. Losses shall be paid promptly.

See Southern Surety Co. v. Nelson (Sup.) 229 S. W. 1113.

Application to various kinds of insurance companies.—In view of art. 4793, and this article, in action against mutual accident insurance company, recovery of attorney's fees and damages or penalties held not authorized. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Votaw (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 237.

In view of this article, and Const. art. 3, § 35, held, that art. 4955 (originally Acts 31st Leg. c. 108, § 55), is void, so that a judgment awarding 12 per cent. penalty for failure to pay the loss on an indemnity bond was improper. Western Indemnity Co. v. Free and Accepted Masons of Texas (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1092.

Defendant held not a mutual assessment, health, and accident association, organized under arts. 4794-4808, but an accident insurance company, to which this article applies. Bankers' Health & Accident Ass'n v. Wilkes (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 230.

The fact that policies of accident insurance were issued under the Workmen's Compensation Act does not affect application of this article. Southern Surety Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 298.

This article does not apply to indemnity insurance contracts against liability to another as distinguished from life, health, or accident insurance. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation, Limited, of London, England, v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 212.

This article does not authorize the recovery of attorney's fees in an action on an accident policy against an association incorporated under art. 4793, since the former, although subsequent, does not repeal the later article. Pledger v. Business Men's Accident Ass'n of Texas (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 110.

This article is a part (section 35) of an act of the Thirty-First Legislature (Acts 1909, c. 108), authorizing the incorporation and providing for the regulation of life, health, and accident insurance companies of a certain character, and relates only to the corporations authorized and regulated by such act. Id.

Defendant fraternal insurance order, not having been permitted to transact business in Texas as a fraternal society, the statutes controlling life insurance policies apply to it, particularly this article, and the order will not be protected by the exception named in art. 4830, exempting such societies from all provisions of the insurance laws, but will be held liable for an attorney's fee for delay in payment. Independent Order of Puritans v. Brown (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 939.

Liability.—In general.—The survival of insured for the time limited in an endowment policy is a contingency involving a loss to the insurer, endowment insurance being life insurance, since the amount of loss depends on the duration of life, and the word "loss" being used in the statute as a synonym of liability. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 896.

Where insured asserted his claim and sued for the full amount of loss by fire under all his policies, it was not required of defendant insurers, one of whom admitted liability on a policy, to pay or tender any part of the loss in order to escape penalty for delay. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Boatner (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 1115.

Demand.—Before the penalty of 12 per cent. damages for failure to pay a claim can be imposed, a demand for payment must be made, and evidence of the furnishing of proofs of loss and a statement that the company refused to pay is not sufficient. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Powell (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 957.

Where the agent of an insurance company has authority to represent the company in respect to payment of claims when demand is made, a demand upon him as representative of the company for payment of policies is such a demand as to entitle beneficiary to recover the penalties and attorney's fees in case of refusal to pay. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 859.

Where the beneficiary under a life insurance policy makes demand on the insurer for the face amount of the policy, which is larger than the amount due, and recovers a less amount by suit, the insurance company is not liable to her for attorney's fees. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 487.

Insurer held liable for the 12 per cent. statutory penalty and attorney's fee for failure to pay amount due on policy on demand, notwithstanding that demand was for an amount in excess of that due. First Texas Prudential Ins. Co. v. Campos (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 244.

Tender.—Where on the maturity of a 15-year endowment policy, the amount due thereon was in dispute, company's act in sending to assignee of policy draft for its admitted liability thereon, payable, however, to both original insured and assignee, with payment further conditioned upon the execution by them both of a full release of any further claims or demands on account of the policy, was not such an unconditional tender of its admitted debts as assignee was entitled to, and the company was thus left liable for delay. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 896.

Where, on maturity of $5,000 endowment policy, assignee of the policy claimed about $1,200 extra dividends, while insurer admitted, in addition to the $5,000 face of policy, dividends due to extent only of $90, assignee was entitled to have penalty and attorney's fee for delay in payment predicated upon the $5,090, which was adopted by the court, rather than upon the $1,200 involved in dispute between the parties, where no unconditional tender was ever made of the $5,090, since, by reason of lack of unconditional tender of what was admittedly due, the assignee was forced into the courts in order to get, not only the disputed, but also the undisputed, portion of his claim. Id.

Excessive damages.—In action for $165, unpaid portion of insurance policy, with 12 per cent. damages and reasonable attorney's fees, allowance by trial court of $100 attorney's fees was excessive in sum of $50. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Blalock (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 185.

Art. 4749. Deposit of securities.

See Texas Fidelity & Bonding Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 818.

Application of act.—This act does not apply to casualty companies. American Indemnity Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 812.

Validity.—The provision that for taxation purposes the situs of the deposited securities shall be at the home office of the companies, is unconstitutional in view of Const. art. 8, § 11, fixing the situs of personal property for taxation in the county where situated. City of Austin v. Great Southern Life Ins. Co., 211 S. W. 482; American Indemnity Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 812.

Situs of property for purpose of taxation.—Where promissory notes were deposited by an insurance company domiciled in another county with the state treasurer, the situs of such notes for taxation purposes was in the county where deposited, and could not be rendered for taxation in any other county. City of Austin v. Great Southern Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 482.

Art. 4761. Must have certificate of authority.

Noncompliance with requirement.—Business done by a foreign insurance corporation prior to the issuance of a certificate of authority, cannot be validated by subsequent issuance of a certificate. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 781.

Right of action.—Where an insurance company entered into contracts insuring shippers of live stock against loss arising from damage to stock in transportation prior to issuance to the insurer of a certificate of authority, and loss resulted in the shipments by reason of negligence of the carrier, and under the conditions of the policy the insurer paid the amount of the losses to the shippers and took an assignment of their claims against the carriers, it cannot maintain an action against the carriers on such claims, in view of arts. 4900, 4972; the courts not lending their support to a claim founded upon the violation of express law. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 781.

Under art. 1319, an insurance company is not subject to arts. 1314 and 1319, prohibiting a foreign corporation without permit to do business in the state from maintaining a suit in any court in the state. Peerless Fire Ins. Co. v. Barcus (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 368.

Art. 4764. Taxation of domestic insurance companies.

See American Indemnity Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 812.

Cited, City of Austin v. Great Southern Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 482.

Ownership of lands.—Within the provision for deduction from remainder of the assets of a domestic insurance company, of the value of real estate owned by it, for determining the taxable value of its personal property, it is the owner of land on which it held vendor's liens, and which the purchaser, unable or unwilling to pay for, surrendered possession of to it; but not of land on which it held some other kind of lien, and which the landowner, failing or being unable to pay the debt secured, surrendered to it; title of the other party being divested by the surrender in the former case, but not in the latter. City of Waco v. Texas Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 245.

Deductions.—The word "entire" in the finding in a suit relative to taxation of a domestic insurance company, that the entire assets of the company amounted to a certain sum, indicates that no sort of assets was excluded, but that nontaxable Liberty Bonds, in which its capital stock was invested, were included. City of Waco v. Texas Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 245.

In rendering property for taxation, a life insurance company is entitled to deduct its reserve unconditionally, regardless of whether it includes exempt or unexempt securities, and it is also authorized to exclude exempt securities, such as Liberty Bonds, which do not form a part of the reserve. City of Waco v. Amicable Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 698.

Presumptions and burden of proof.—In an action by a life insurance company to enjoin city officers from collecting taxes on the ground that exempt property was assessed, burden of proof was upon the company to show that there had been an illegal assessment of its property and that the assessment was upon nontaxable securities as claimed. City of Waco v. Amicable Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 698.

It is not presumed that the legal reserve of a life insurance company is invested in nontaxable securities; such question being one of fact. Id.

Art. 4773. Shall file power of attorney.

Effect of repeal of statute.—In view of Acts 31st Leg. c. 108, requiring foreign insurance companies to appoint the commissioner of insurance as their agent for the service of legal process, act of 1909, repealing prior statutes as to the service of process, did not cancel outstanding powers of attorney authorizing a foreign insurance company's agent to receive service of process until such company in lieu thereof gave new powers of attorney to the insurance commissioner. Hagler v. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co. (D. C.) 244 Fed. 863.

If the Legislature intended to cancel such outstanding powers of attorney, the act was unconstitutional as divesting vested rights and impairing the obligation of contracts, since while the Legislature may make any change it sees fit pertaining to the remedy, the manner of obtaining service, or the procedure at the trial, it cannot deprive plaintiffs altogether of any remedy by divesting the courts of jurisdiction which they had at the time the policies were written. Id.

Acts Tex. 31st Leg. c. 108, regulating domestic and foreign insurance companies, and expressly repealing prior statutes relating to service of process, must be construed with the act of 1909, requiring all foreign insurance companies to appoint the commissioner of insurance as their agent for the service of legal process, where the two acts were pending at the same time, and the last-mentioned act, though approved a few days after the first one, went into immediate effect more than two months before the first act was effective. Id.

Revocation of power of attorney.—Under Rev. St. Tex. 1895, art. 3070, and Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1904, art. 3096ee, if a foreign insurance company's revocation of powers of attorney to its agents defeated service of process on them, then as it had no agent in the state, service by publication was valid, as a stipulation to this effect in the policy would have been binding, and the existing statutes must be read into the policy. Hagler v. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co. (D. C.) 244 Fed. 863.

Under Rev. St. Tex. 1895, art. 3064, requiring insurance companies desiring to do business in the state to file a power of attorney authorizing each agent to accept service of process, and consenting that such service shall be valid; art. 3070, providing that process might be served upon any person in the state holding a power of attorney, and that if no such person could be found process might be served by publication; and Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1904, art. 3096ee, making the two articles mentioned conditions upon which foreign insurance companies were permitted to do business in the state, and providing that any such company engaged in issuing policies should be held to have assented thereto as a condition precedent to its right to engage in such business—the revocation by a foreign insurance company of a power of attorney to one of its agents, without the appointment at the same time of any successor, was illegal, and service on such agent was good, especially where the power of attorney was revoked after suit was filed, and seemingly for the express purpose of preventing service on him. Id.

Under Rev. St. Tex. 1895, art. 3070, and Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1904, art. 3096ee, if a foreign insurance company's revocation of powers of attorney to its agents defeated service of process on them, then as it had no agent in the state, service by publication was valid, as a stipulation to this effect in the policy would have been binding, and the existing statutes must be read into the policy. Id.

Article 4794. Incorporation of.

Cited International Travelers' Ass'n v. Branum, 109 Tex. 543, 212 S. W. 630.

Applicability.—Defendant held not a mutual assessment, health, and accident association, organized under this chapter, but an accident insurance company, to which art. 4746, providing that failure to pay loss within 30 days shall subject insurer to additional damages and attorney's fees, applies. Bankers' Health & Accident Ass'n v. Wilkes (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 230.

Rev. St. 1911, art. 4746, does not authorize the recovery of attorney's fees in an action on an accident policy against an association incorporated under this act, since the former, although subsequent, does not repeal the later article. Pledger v. Business Men's Accident Ass'n of Texas (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 110.

Art. 4798. What constitutes business of mutual assessment companies.

Construction and effect in general.—In view of this article, and article 4746, in action against mutual accident insurance company, recovery of attorney's fees and damages or penalties held not authorized. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Votaw (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 237.

Under provisions of this article, article 4744 does not apply to mutual accident insurance companies, so that such company could agree to be sued only in county named in certificate. Id.

Amount to be paid.—Though by-laws provide that, if a member files claim before his disability ceased, he waives all right to future benefit, insurer cannot reduce its true liability by means of a mere unaccepted offer on the part of insured to receive in satisfaction of his demand less than amount to which he is entitled under this article. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Powell, 109 Tex. 550, 212 S. W. 931; affirming (Civ. App.) International Travelers' Ass'n v. Powell, 196 S. W. 957.

CHAPTER SIX

MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

Art.	Art.
4809. Articles of incorporation; commissioner shall examine.	4817. May transact business in other states; form of policy; limitation of amount of policy.
4810. Directors; officers; by-laws; annual meeting of policy-holders; bonds of officers.	4818. Medical examination.
4811. Investment of funds; deposit of funds in bank.	4819. No deduction of amount of policy where premium payable other than annually.
4812. Shall not borrow money or create debts, except.	4820. Policy shall contain table of guaranteed values.
4813. Policies to be valued by commissioner.	4821. Annual statements.
4814. Net premiums to be computed.	4822. Agents shall have certificates.
4815. May set aside reserve.	4823. Annual examination and certificate.
4816. Shall make apportionment of surplus.	4824. Advances to company; repayment; impairment of reserve; receiver; re-insurance.
	4825. Taxes, how calculated.
	4826. Other provisions applicable; repeal.

Article 4809. Articles of incorporation; commissioner shall examine.—Nine or more persons, residents of the State of Texas, may form a mutual life insurance company for the purpose of insuring the lives of individuals on the mutual, level premium, legal reserve plan, subject to the conditions and limitations prescribed in this chapter, by executing and acknowledging before some officer authorized to take acknowledgments to conveyances of real estate, articles of incorporation for that purpose. Such articles shall set forth:

1. The name and residence of each of the incorporators.
2. The name of the proposed company, which shall contain the words, "Mutual Life Insurance Company", as a part thereof, and which shall not be so similar to that of any other life insurance company or association now authorized to transact business in this State as to mislead the public.

3. The location of the principal office from which the business of the company is to be transacted.

4. The number of directors and the name and place of residence of each of those who are to serve until the first regular election of directors as provided by this chapter. Such articles of incorporation shall be filed with the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking, who shall immediately submit them to the Attorney General for his examination and approval as complying in all respects with the law. If the Attorney General approves them, he shall so certify thereon in writing, and return them to the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking, who shall file the same in his office and issue to the company a certificate of authority, to which shall be attached a certified copy of the articles of incorporation, authorizing it to receive applications for insurance as provided in this chapter, and to collect premiums thereon, and to issue receipts therefor; which certificate shall expressly state that such company is not authorized to issue policies of insurance or transact any business other than that specifically authorized therein until it has received bona fide applications for insurance on the lives of at least two hundred individuals for not less than five hundred dollars each, aggregating at least two hundred thousand dollars of insurance, on which the aggregate net premiums shall be at least equal to the largest net risk assumed on any one life, which applications have been approved by a competent physician and on which the first annual premiums at adequate rates have been paid to the company, nor until these facts shall have been fully shown to the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking, and he shall have issued to the company a certificate of authority to transact business as a mutual life insurance company. If this showing is not made within six months after the date upon which such articles of incorporation are filed with the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking, it shall be his duty to cancel the certificate of authority of such company to receive applications for insurance, and to notify each incorporator of such action. When the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking shall be notified that any such company has complied with all the foregoing provisions of this Article, he shall make, or cause to be made, at the expense of such company, an examination thereof; and if he shall find that the law has been in all respects fully complied with, it shall be his duty to issue to it a certificate of authority to transact the business of a mutual life insurance company, in accordance with the terms of this chapter. [Acts 1909, p. 285, § 1; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 77, § 1, amending art. 4809, Rev. Civ. St.]
Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Art. 4810. Directors; officers; by-laws; annual meeting of policyholders; bonds of officers.—The business of a mutual life insurance company shall be controlled and directed by a board of directors consisting of not less than five nor more than twenty-five members, who shall be elected annually as provided in this chapter, those to serve until the first annual election to be named in the charter, and who shall hold office until their successors shall be elected and qualified, or until they shall be removed for improper practices. Such board of directors shall elect the officers of the company, which shall be a president, and such number of vice-presidents as their by-laws may provide; a secretary, a treasurer, a medical director and such other officers as the by-laws may provide for, and shall fix the compensation of all such officers. The duties of all officers shall be prescribed by the by-laws. The by-laws governing the company until the date of its first annual meeting, as provided by this chapter, shall be adopted by the board of directors at their first meeting after the certificate of authority shall be issued authorizing the company to transact the business of a mutual life insurance company. There shall be an annual meeting of all the policy-holders of each mutual life insurance company at the home office of such company, or at such other place as may be properly announced to the policy-holders, on the second Tuesday in March after it shall have received a certificate of authority to transact the business of life insurance, and annually thereafter, at which the directors shall be elected for the succeeding year, and at which by-laws for the government of the company, not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter or with the laws of this State may be adopted, and at which the existing by-laws may be repealed or amended. At such annual meeting, every policy-holder shall be entitled to one vote for each five hundred dollars of insurance held by him; and any policy-holder may execute his proxy authorizing and entitling the holder to exercise his voting powers, unless such proxy shall be revoked previous to such annual meeting. The president, secretary and treasurer shall each give bond for the protection of the policy-holders in amount and with securities to be approved by the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking, conditioned for the faithful performance of their respective duties. [Acts 1909, p. 285, § 2; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 77, § 1, amending art. 4810, Rev. Civ. St.]

Art. 4811. Investment of funds; deposit of funds in bank.—Mutual life insurance companies shall invest their funds in accordance with the provisions of Articles 4734 and 4735, Chapter 2 of this Title, concerning investments of life insurance companies in this State; all moneys of mutual life insurance companies, coming into the hands of any officer or officers thereof, when not invested as prescribed in the above-named articles, shall be deposited in the name of such company or companies in some bank or banks which are subject to either State or national regulation and supervision, and which have been approved by the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking as depositories therefor. [Acts 1909, p. 285, § 3; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 77, § 1, amending art. 4811, Rev. Civ. St.]

Art. 4812. Shall not borrow money or create debts, except.—No mutual life insurance company shall have the power except as provided in this chapter, to borrow money for any purpose other than the payment of death losses. No such company shall have the power to incur any debt on any account except under policies issued by it or for money borrowed to pay death losses, for which any portion of its assets over and above that which may represent or be derived from the expense loading of the premiums collected by it, shall in any event be subject to execution upon a judgment therefor. [Acts 1909, p. 285, § 4; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 77, § 1, amending art. 4812, Rev. Civ. St.]

Art. 4813. Policies to be valued by commissioner.—The Commissioner of Insurance and Banking shall annually make valuations of all outstanding policies of mutual life insurance companies as of December 31, of each year, in accordance with the one year preliminary term method based upon the American Experience table of mortality and three and one-half per cent interest per annum, assuming an average risk exposure of six months on all new policies issued within each calendar year. [Acts 1909, p. 285, § 5; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 77, § 1, amending art. 4813, Rev. Civ. St.]

Art. 4814. Net premiums to be computed.—The net premiums upon all policies issued by any such company shall be computed in accordance with the provisions of Article 4813, this Chapter and Title, the net premiums on all new policies issued to be obtained by deducting from the total premium paid the amount of the preliminary term premium as above provided and allowing the remainder of the first annual premium as expense loading; no portion of such net premium collected upon any such policy shall ever be used or applied for the payment of any expenses of the company of any kind or character, or for any other purpose than the payment of death losses, surrender values, or lawful dividends to policyholders, loans on policies, or for the purposes of such investments of the company as are prescribed in the laws of this State. [Acts 1909, p. 285, § 5; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 77, § 1, amending art. 4814, Rev. Civ. St.]

Art. 4815. May set aside reserve.—Every mutual life insurance company may maintain and set aside, before declaring any dividends to policyholders, in addition to an amount equal to the net value of all its policies, computed as required by this Chapter, a contingency reserve not exceeding the following respective percentages of said net values, to wit: When said net values are less than one hundred thousand dollars, twenty per centum thereof, or the sum of ten thousand dollars, whichever is the greater; the percentage thereof measuring the contingency reserve shall decrease one-half of one per cent for each one hundred thousand dollars of said net values up to one million dollars, and thereafter, one-half of one per cent for each additional one million dollars of said net values; provided, that as the said net values of said policies increase, and as the maximum percentage measuring the contingency reserve decrease, such company may maintain the contingency reserve already accumulated hereunder, although for the time being it may exceed the maximum percentage herein prescribed, but may not add to the contingency reserve when the addition will bring it beyond the maximum percentage. [Acts 1909, p. 285, § 6; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 77, § 1, amending art. 4815, Rev. Civ. St.]

Art. 4816. Shall make apportionment of surplus.—Every mutual life insurance company organized under this Chapter shall make an annual accounting and apportionment of divisible surplus to each policyholder, beginning not later than the end of the second policy year on all policies issued; and each such policyholder shall be entitled to and credited with or paid, such a portion of the entire divisible surplus as has been contributed thereto by his policy. Upon the thirty-first day of December of each year, or as soon thereafter as may be practicable, every such company shall well and truly ascertain the surplus earned by it during such year; and, after setting aside from such surplus the contingency reserve provided in this Chapter, it shall apportion to each of its policies upon which all premiums due and payable for at least one year have been paid, the proportion of the remainder of such surplus which has been contributed by each such policy, and shall immediately submit a detailed report of such apportionment under oath of its president or secretary to the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking. If such Commissioner shall find such apportionment to be equitable and just to the policyholders and to be in accordance with the provisions of this Chapter, he shall approve the same, and it shall become effective; and, if he shall not approve such apportionment, he shall make such changes therein as he shall deem equitable and just and necessary to make the same comply with the provisions of this Chapter, and shall certify such changes to such company, whereupon such apportionment as changed by the Commissioner shall become effective. Each dividend declared as aforesaid shall be paid in cash, or in the equivalent of its cash value in any option stated in the policy and selected by the policy-holder, notice of which selection by the policy-holder shall be given to the company in writing. [Acts 1909, p. 285, § 7; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 77, § 1, amending art. 4816, Rev. Civ. St.]

Art. 4817. May transact business in other states; form of policy; limitation of amount of policy.—Mutual life insurance companies are authorized to transact business throughout the State of Texas, and in other States to which they may be admitted; they shall issue no policies except upon the participating plan with dividends payable annually as elsewhere provided in this Chapter; the forms of all policies issued by any such company shall be approved by the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking, and all such policies shall have plainly printed on both the face and the reverse sides thereof the words, "The form of this policy is approved by the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking of the State of Texas;" and it shall be the duty of the Commissioner to revoke the certificate of authority of any company which shall issue any policy except upon such form so approved. No such company shall issue any policy or policies by which, after deducting reinsurance, if any, it shall be bound for more than five thousand dollars upon any one life at any time when the total amount of its insurance in force is less than ten million dollars. [Acts 1909, p. 285, § 8; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 77, § 1, amending art. 4817, Rev. Civ. St.]

Art. 4818. Medical examination.—No mutual life insurance company shall enter into any contract of insurance amounting to $500.00 or more, upon the life of any person, without having previously made a medical examination, prescribed by its medical director and approved by its board of directors, of the insured, by a duly qualified and licensed practitioner, and without his certificate that the insured was in sound health at the date of examination. [Acts 1909, p. 285, § 9; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 77, § 1, amending art. 4818, Rev. Civ. St.]

Explanatory.—The latter part of this article imposes a criminal penalty and is set forth, post, as art. 686, Penal Code.

Art. 4819. No deduction of amount of policy where premium payable other than annually.—The policies issued by a mutual life insurance company shall provide, in the event that premiums are payable other than annually, that no deduction shall be made from the amount due on any policy in the event that the death of the policy-holder shall occur prior to the due date of any premium less than annual. [Acts 1909, p. 285, § 10; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 77, § 1, amending art. 4819, Rev. Civ. St.]

Art. 4820. Policy shall contain table of guaranteed values.—Each policy issued by a mutual life insurance company shall contain a table of guaranteed values, which shall become non-forfeitable not later than upon the payment of the third full annual premium; such tables of values shall be drawn in accordance with the provisions of Article 4741, Chapter 2, of this Title. [Acts 1909, p. 285, § 11; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 77, § 1, amending art. 4820, Rev. Civ. St.]

Art. 4821. Annual statements.—Mutual life insurance companies organized under the provisions of this Chapter shall file their annual statements with the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking, and receive from him their certificates of authority to transact the business of life insurance, in accordance with the provisions of Articles 4729 and

Art. 4822. Agents shall have certificates.—Any mutual life insurance company organized under the provisions of this Chapter, having received authority from the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking to transact business in this State shall receive from such Commissioner, upon written request therefor, a certificate of authority for each of its agents in this State. Contracts between such companies and such agents shall not provide for commissions or other compensation to such agents in excess of the expense loading in the premiums of policies issued upon the applications procured by such agents, collected therefor, and paid to the company in cash. [Acts 1909, p. 285, § 13; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 77, § 1, amending art. 4822, Rev. Civ. St.]

Art. 4823. Annual examination and certificate.—It shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking to have made, once in each calendar year, a thorough and full examination of the affairs of each mutual life insurance company, the report of which examination shall be made to such Commissioner under oath; and it shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking, if he shall approve the report of such examination, to furnish the company with certificate of approval. The expense of each such examination shall be borne by the company examined. [Acts 1909, p. 285, § 14; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 77, § 1, amending art. 4823, Rev. Civ. St.]

Art. 4824. Advances to company; repayment; impairment of reserve; receiver; re-insurance.—Any officer, director, or policy-holder of a mutual life insurance company, or any other person, may advance to such company any sum or sums of money for the purpose of promoting or conserving its business, or to enable it to comply with any requirements of the law; and such money, together with such interest thereon as may have been agreed upon, not exceeding ten per cent per annum, shall be payable only out of the surplus remaining after providing for all reserves and other liabilities, and shall not otherwise be a liability or claim against the company or any of its assets. No commission or promotion expenses shall be paid in connection with the advance of any such money to the company, and the amount of such advance shall be reported in each annual statement as provided in Article 4821, this Chapter and Title. At any time when the liabilities of any such company, computing its reserve liability upon the American Experience Table of Mortality and three and one-half per cent per annum interest, shall be in excess of its assets, the company shall cease the issuance of new policies until the impairment in its reserve shall be made good. Whenever the liabilities of any such company, computing its reserve liability upon the American Experience Table of Mortality and four and one-half per cent interest per annum, exceed its assets, the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking may request the Attorney General to file suit in the name of the State in the District Court of the county in which such company is located for the appointment of a receiver to terminate and liquidate the affairs of the company, and such action may be maintained. In any such action, such District Court, or judge thereof, in vacation, shall have the power, if in his opinion the interests of the policy-holders of the company require it, to enter an order for the re-insurance of all outstanding risks of such company in some other life insurance company authorized to do business in this State upon such terms and conditions as may be approved by the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking, and by such court, or the judge thereof, in vacation; and such court or judge may for that purpose direct the conveyance of the entire assets of any such company, or any portion thereof, to such re-insuring company in consideration of such re-insurance. [Acts 1909, p. 285, § 15; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 77, § 1, amending art. 4824, Rev. Civ. St.]

Art. 4825. Taxes, how calculated.—For the purposes of State, county and city taxation, the amount of the reserve and contingency reserve of all mutual life insurance companies shall be treated as debts due by them to their policy-holders; and the total value of their property for such purposes shall be ascertained by deducting from the total amount of their gross assets the amount of such reserves and contingency reserves. [Acts 1909, p. 285, § 16; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 77, § 1, amending art. 4825, Rev. Civ. St.]

Art. 4826. Other provisions applicable; repeal.—The provisions of Articles 4724 to 4774 inclusive, in Chapter 2 of this Title, when not in conflict with the several Articles of this Chapter, shall likewise apply to and govern mutual life insurance companies organized under the provisions of this Chapter. All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed; provided, that such repeals and the provisions of this Act shall not apply to or affect any company or association now organized and doing business under the laws of this State. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 448, § 8; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 77, § 1, amending art. 4826, Rev. Civ. St.]

CHAPTER SEVEN

FRATERNAL BENEFIT SOCIETIES

Art.	Art.
4827. Fraternal benefit societies defined.	4847. Waiver of the provisions of the laws—separate jurisdiction.
4830. Exemptions.	4848a. Benefit not attachable.
4831. Benefits.	4849. Constitution and laws—amendments.
4832. Beneficiaries.	4854. Revocation of license.
4834. Certificate.	4855. Examination of certain societies.
4835. Funds.	4859. Provisions not to apply to local mutual aid associations; annual statement by such associations, etc.
4839. Organization.
4841. Mergers and transfers.
4843. Admission of foreign society.
4844. Power of attorney and service of process.

Art. 4830. Exemptions.

See Gilmore v. Grand Temple & Tabernacle in State of Texas of Knights & Daughters of Tabor of International Order of Twelve (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 294.

Exemption from other statutes.—Art. 5714, enacted in 1907, providing that stipulations limiting the time for giving notice of claim for damages to less than 90 days are void, and, like article 5713, as to agreements shortening the time for suit, being applicable to all contracts, applies to fraternal benefit associations, this article enacted in 1913, being inapplicable as art. 5714 is a prior existing statute and not an insurance law. Independent Order of Puritans v. Lockhart (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 559.

Art. 4947, providing that misrepresentation in application shall not constitute any defense to suit on policy unless it was material to the risk, or actually contributed to the contingency or event on which the policy became due and payable, has no application to contracts of insurance made by fraternal benefit societies. Modern Woodmen of America v. Atcheson (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 537.

Defendant fraternal insurance order, not having been permitted to transact business in Texas as a fraternal society, the statutes controlling life insurance policies apply to it, particularly art. 4746, imposing penalty for failure or refusal to pay a policy when due under its terms, and the order will not be protected by the exception named in this article, but will be held liable for an attorney's fee for delay in payment. Independent Order of Puritans v. Brown (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 939.

Art. 4832. Beneficiaries.

Cited, Concho Camp No. 66, W. O. W., v. City of San Angelo (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 1106.

Law governing.—In a controversy to determine the right to the proceeds of a mutual insurance certificate, the laws of the state control, especially where the association was engaged in business in the state with its members. Phillips v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 477.

Beneficiaries in general.—An aged, infirm, and childless member, separated from his wife, and dependent on one not a relative for support, may designate the person supporting him as beneficiary. Jones v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 306.

If beneficiary of fraternal benefit certificate was eligible under statute at time he was designated, but not under statute in force at time of member's death he may not be deprived of rights acquired by him under certificate, where laws of association did not require that beneficiary belong to one of statutory classes at death of member. International Order of Twelve Knights and Daughters of Tabor v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 330.

A man named as beneficiary in wife's death benefit certificate will not be permitted after murdering wife to recover on the certificate. Grand Lodge, United Brothers of Friendship of Texas and Sisters of Mysterious Ten v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 394.

A beneficiary named in fraternal benefit certificate, providing for change of beneficiary, has no vested interest in the contract of insurance which will prevent the insured from changing any of the terms of the contract, but has a mere expectancy, which may be defeated by a change of beneficiary. Bills v. Bills (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 614.

A life insurance policy in favor of one who has no insurable interest in the insured's life is against public policy, and will not be enforced in such beneficiary's favor. Hand v. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 718.

Where a mutual benefit insurance certificate designates the beneficiary as insured's wife, but she is not so in fact, she has no interest in the proceeds of the certificate. Phillips v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 477.

In determining the right to proceeds of a mutual benefit insurance certificate, the rules prescribing the manner in which the names of the beneficiaries are to be inserted in the certificate must be strictly followed. Id.

Where the by-laws of a fraternal insurer provided that a defendant of a member might be named beneficiary, a "dependent" is one who is maintained by the member upon some merely legal or equitable ground, and a mere gratuitous maintenance does not satisfy the requirement; therefore, a child who was not legally adopted by the member cannot be a beneficiary, where it was removed by the member's wife on her leaving him and the member no longer contributed to its support. Royal Neighbors of America v. Fletcher (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 476.

Failure to make valid designation.—Where a man murders his wife, and commits suicide, the wife's death benefit certificate in which husband was beneficiary will be payable to her heirs, where policy contains no provision as to payment in the event of murder of insured by beneficiary. Grand Lodge, United Brothers of Friendship of Texas and Sisters of Mysterious Ten, v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 394.

Death benefit under fraternal certificate payable to estate of member who had received a prior certificate held payable to his sister as his sole residuary legatee, the others having renounced. Anderson v. Grand Lodge, United Brothers of Friendship of the State of Texas (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 237.

Under Rev. St. 1911, art. 4832, confining the payment of benefits by fraternal societies to the wife, husband, relatives by blood to the fourth degree, etc., and the laws of a fraternal order similarly providing, and also providing that, where the beneficiary died and there was no other designation, the benefit should be paid, first to the husband or wife, then to the children, etc., where a wife named as beneficiary obtained a divorce, and the husband remarried, and did not change the beneficiary, the second wife was entitled to the death benefit. Appleby v. Grand Lodge, Sons of Hermann (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 588.

The classes named in this article are entitled to benefits in the order named, when there is no beneficiary designated. Id.

In an interpleader to determine the right to proceeds of a mutual benefit insurance certificate, where it appeared that the original beneficiary, who was designated as insured's wife, was not entitled to take because she had another husband living, insured's children held entitled to the proceeds under the laws of the association, as well as under the laws of the state as against a claim by insured's mother that an oral gift of half the proceeds had been made to her. Phillips v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 477.

Oral appointment of beneficiaries.—Since the only interest a member in a mutual benefit insurance association has in the certificate is to designate in writing under the rules of the association which one of the class of persons named in the by-laws or recognized by statutory law is eligible to take, he cannot by parol assignment invest another than the named beneficiary with an interest in the proceeds of the certificate. Phillips v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 477.

Change of beneficiary.—Failure of a member to comply strictly with the laws of a fraternal benefit association in making change in the beneficiary of his certificate can be asserted only by the association. Jones v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 306; International Order of Twelve Knights and Daughters of Tabor v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 330; Bills v. Bills (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 614.

A change of beneficiary under a benefit insurance certificate, made at a time when the certificate holder was insane and without legal capacity to contract, was voidable at the instance of the original beneficiary. Turner v. Turner (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 326.

Where a member of a fraternal insurance order who had designated two beneficiaries attempted to displace one by causing his name to be erased from the certificate, held that the insurer by admitting its liability for the sum specified in the certificate, and paying the money into the registry of the court, ratified the certificate in its altered form; no new consideration being necessary. Bills v. Bills (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 614.

Evidence.—In action on life policy involving question of whether insured had authorized change of the beneficiary by substitution of his wife's name in place of that of his mother, evidence held insufficient to sustain judgment for the mother. Gardner v. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 215.

Art. 4834. Certificate.

See Celli v. Sanderson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 179; Gilmore v. Grand Temple & Tabernacle in State of Texas of Knights & Daughters of Tabor of International Order of Twelve (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 294.

Cited, Concho Camp, No. 66, W. O. W., v. City of San Angelo (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 1106.

Construction in general.—There is no law requiring fraternal benefit insurance societies to put incontestable clauses in their certificates, as is demanded by art. 4741, of health, life, and accident companies, and consequently clauses of that kind in certificates of fraternal insurers derive their authority, not from statute, but from contract. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Wernette (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 669; Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., v. Nigh (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 291.

In view of express repeal by Acts 33d Leg. c. 113 (arts. 4827-4859a), of Acts 31st Leg. (1st Called Sess.) c. 36, requiring false representations to be material in order to avoid policy in fraternal order, and construction of art. 4947, providing that misrepresentation, to avoid policy, must be material, so as to except fraternal orders, the common-law rule applies to fraternal policies. Modern Order of Prætorians v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 379.

Insurance certificate of member of fraternal association, being a written contract between him and association, fact he could not read or write is no excuse for his not knowing terms thereof, not having been prevented from having same read to him by any fraud or device of association. Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W., v. Schwartz (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 156.

It was not necessary that fraternal insurance association's prohibition against a member's engaging in saloon business should be stated in either member's application or certificate, being stated in by-laws of association, which were part of contract of insurance. Id.

The certificate of the medical examination by the physician of a fraternal insurance society is made part of the insurance contract, and as such may be received in evidence in an action thereon. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Martin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 270.

Where deceased from time of his application for membership until death was a member of a partnership engaged in the hotel and saloon business, deceased managing the hotel, and his partner the saloon, he was engaged in the saloon business within the by-laws of a fraternal insurer prohibiting the insuring of persons in such business, notwithstanding the clerk of the insurer construed the prohibition to extend only to those actively selling intoxicants, etc. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Wernette (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 669.

An incontestable clause added by the by-laws to a fraternal insurance certificate does not have a retroactive effect so as to make incontestable a certificate which had already been issued for a period of five years, after expiration of which time it was provided there should be no contest; hence, where the incontestable clause was, in less than the five years fixed, changed so as to allow contests when insured shall die while engaged in prohibited occupations, a certificate issued on deceased's false representation that he was not engaged in prohibited occupation may be contested, though it had been issued more than five years. Id.

Where deceased at the time of his application for membership in a fraternal insurer falsely represented that he was not engaged in the saloon business, whereupon he was admitted to membership and paid assessments until death, no recovery can be allowed on the certificate because of those provisions of by-laws of the insurer which, after forbidding the insuring of persons engaged in the saloon business, allowed members who thereafter entered such prohibited occupation to continue their insurance upon payment of an additional assessment. Id.

The word "disease," as used in an insurance contract, made by a fraternal order and application question as to previous medical attendance comprehended a cold and fever, being a morbid condition of body, and having as synonyms "disorder," "distemper," and "malady." Sovereign Camp of the Woodmen of the World v. Treanor (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 204.

Where fraternal benefit society member lost his original certificate, in which his mother was beneficiary, and applied for and was issued a new one in which his wife was made beneficiary, in an action by the wife on the second one it was not a sufficient defense to show that prior to the issue of the second certificate the member had forfeited the original by engaging in an extrahazardous occupation without notifying the clerk of the local camp and paying extra premiums, in the absence of a showing that the second certificate was procured by false representations or some form of deception, the member not having engaged in the prohibited occupation after the issuance of the second certificate. Sovereign Camp of Woodmen of the World v. Akins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 492.

Such a construction of a life certificate will not be adopted as will work a forfeiture, if there is any other reasonable one which may be applied. Id.

A fraternal benefit society member who was a fireman in the boiler room of a plant engaged in generating electricity and making ice was not employed "in electric works" or "in an electric current generating plant" within the meaning of a life certificate classifying such employments as extrahazardous, and providing that certificate should be suspended while a member is employed in such places unless he pays an extra premium, where the boiler room was separated from the electric current generating machinery by a partition, and the member was never required to go into the room where such machinery was located. Id.

Where application for readmission and for insurance were accepted by fraternal society and where applicant was accepted as a member and paid the money entitling him to issuance of the beneficiary certificate, the insurance went into effect upon his admission and payment of the dues for the current month, notwithstanding that certificate itself had not been issued or delivered, in absence of anything in the constitution or application for readmission or for insurance making the delivery of the certificate a condition to the taking effect of insurance, since such insurance contract is not required to be in writing. Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen v. Cook (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1049.

Forfeiture of certificate of membership.—Where the constitution of a fraternal insurance organization, made a part of the benefit certificate, provided that the certificate should be void and all payments thereunder forfeited if beneficiary murders insured, the certificate was void, where a man murdered his wife, in whose death benefit certificate he was named beneficiary. Grand Lodge, United Brothers of Friendship of Texas and Sisters of Mysterious Ten, v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 394.

Where a fraternal order's life policy provided that persons engaged in the business of selling malt or intoxicating liquors should not be admitted, and that the certificate of any member who should engage in any prohibited occupation should become void except on notice and payment of an additional assessment, and insured, without notice or payment of the additional assessment, engaged for three months in the business of selling intoxicants, his beneficiaries cannot recover on his death. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Lenhard (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 979.

Where fraternal benefit certificate provided that it would be suspended while the member was working in certain prohibited occupations, beneficiary cannot recover where the member was employed in a prohibited occupation at the time of his death, although his death was from natural causes, and not the result of exposure to dangers incident to such employment. Sovereign Camp of Woodmen of the World v. Akins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 492.

Whether or not member of fraternal benefit order was employed "in an electric current generating plant," within the meaning of his benefit certificate, is to be determined by the physical situation, and not by the identity of his employer. Id.

Where the by-laws of a fraternal benefit association provided that a beneficiary certificate should become null and void if insured engaged in the saloon business without giving notice to the clerk of the camp and paying an additional assessment, the failure of the beneficiary to give such notice after engaging in that business is an absolute defense to recovery on the certificate unless the association is estopped to rely thereon. Carter v. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 239.

Where the by-laws of a fraternal insurer named as prohibited occupations saloon keeping, bartending, retailing of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, and the making of intoxicants, such by-law does not extend to the wholesale distribution of intoxicants by one who did not personally handle the same save by construction, and hence is no basis for forfeiture of insurance on the ground the member had become a wholesaler, and did not pay the increased rate for engaging in prohibited occupation; for a forfeiture must be clear and definite. Sovereign Camp of Woodmen of the World v. Miller (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 635.

Where laws of fraternal benefit society required member to give the society 30 days' notice and to pay increased assessment on his engaging in any of specified hazardous occupations, a member who entered into one of the hazardous occupations and continued working therein for three months, without giving the necessary notice of the change in occupation or paying the increased assessment, and without such fact being known, by the society or any officer, forfeited the contract of insurance, notwithstanding acceptance of assessments by the clerk during such three months. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., v. Nigh (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 291.

Under fraternal organization's by-law providing: "If a member engages in any of the occupations or businesses mentioned in this section, he shall within 30 days notify the clerk of his camp of such change of occupation. * * * Any such member failing to notify the clerk * * * shall stand suspended"—a member who dies within 30 days after the change without having given the notice is in good standing at the time of his death; the suspension not taking effect until after the expiration of the 30-day period. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., v. James (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 435.

— Nonpayment of dues or assessments.—Where mutual benefit certificate stipulated society should not be liable unless insured when he died was in good standing with his tabernacle, endowment department, and grand temple and tabernacle, certificate accordingly was not binding on society when member died, not in good standing, but suspended for failure to pay endowment tax on certificate for a quarter. Gilmore v. Grand Temple & Tabernacle in State of Texas of Knights and Daughters of Tabor of International Order of Twelve (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 294.

The right to benefits is immediately lost on default of a member, where the laws of a fraternal benefit society provide that no affirmative action of the lodge is necessary to effect suspension for nonpayment of dues. Calhoun v. The Maccabees (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 95.

Under fraternal society's by-law requiring a member who changes his occupation to one of specified occupations or businesses to "pay on each monthly installment or assessment 30 cents for each $1,000 of his beneficiary certificate, in addition to the regular rate," the additional 30 cents did not become due at the time of the change, but at the time that the regular rate became due. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., v. James (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 435.

— False statements in application or examination.—Where insured made false representations in application for fraternal accident policy regarding previous sickness, etc., which he warranted to be true, a peremptory instruction for defendant should have been given. Modern Order of Pratorians v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 379.

A question in application, "Have you consulted or been under the care of a physician any time within the past ten years? (Explain fully giving cause of illness, dates and names and address of all physicians consulted)," required applicant to answer only as to consultation for illness, and sunburn resulting in peeling of skin was not an "illness"; that meaning more than a temporary and trivial indisposition not substantially impairing the health. The Homesteaders v. Stapp (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 743.

In action on benefit certificate, falsity of statement in application that applicant had not been treated by a physician for "liver disease" would not be established by showing that applicant had been treated for "biliousness" when he had a "bilious attack," as a "bilious attack" from which applicant completely recovered would not necessarily be a "liver disease," as that term was used in the application. Knights and Ladies of Security v. Russell (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 756.

Where a fraternal insurance certificate was void because of false representations made by the applicant in his application, it was never in force, and could not be validated by an incontestable clause. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Wermette (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 669.

Where an applicant for membership in a fraternal insurer which classed saloon keeping as a prohibited occupation falsely represented that he was not engaged in the saloon business, and thus procured a certificate, such certificate is null and void because of the misrepresentation, and recovery cannot be allowed, though the member paid assessments for long period. Id.

An insurance contract written by a fraternal order, making it the duty of the examining doctor to require answer to every question, and to explain to the applicant the meaning of terms used, does not give the doctor or the applicant the right not to require or give an answer to a question as to previous medical attendance, because he may not have thought the thing for which he previously prescribed and treated the applicant was a disease within the meaning of the term as used. Sovereign Camp of the Woodmen of the World v. Treanor (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 204.

A fraternal order had a right to a truthful answer from its applicant for membership as to whether he had consulted physicians prior to his application; and, failing to get such answer, the applicant in fact having consulted physicians for a cold and fever, coming within the term "disease" as used in the contract of insurance, though he represented he had not done so, the insurance was rendered void. Id.

The law that misrepresentations do not avoid a policy of life insurance unless material to the risk or actually contributing to the contingency has no reference, and does not apply, to fraternal benefit societies, such as the Woodmen of the World. Id.

In the absence of statute to the contrary, false representations in an application for insurance which the applicant warrants to be true will avoid the policy without reference to the materiality of such statements. Modern Woodmen of America v. Atcheson (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 537.

Where insured's statement, made in his application for the policy, with reference to previous consultation of physicians, was false, the falsity of such statement avoids the liability of defendant benefit association, unless the defense was waived, or defendant association is estopped from asserting it either by requiring additional proofs or in its statement of the grounds for rejection of the claim. Security Ben. Ass'n v. Webster (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 219.

Where there was no evidence of any falsity or intent to deceive in the assured's representations in her application for a life insurance policy as to her family history, an incorrect history did not vitiate the policy. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 828.

A misrepresentation or mistake as to family history will not vitiate a life insurance policy conditioned to be void on certain grounds, of which incorrectness of family history is not one. Id.

— Waiver.—A fraternal insurance association receiving the same dues after notice that insured had entered a more hazardous occupation waived payment of larger premiums and is estopped to claim forfeiture of the policy. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., v. Little (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 574; Sovereign Camp of Woodmen of the World v. Miller (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 635.

Where fraternal benefit society member lost his original certificate and applied for a new one, which was issued by the society with knowledge that prior thereto the member had engaged in a prohibited occupation, in which he was no longer engaged, and thereafter accepted payment of assessments, it was estopped to deny liability under the second certificate on the ground that the original certificate was forfeited by reason of the prohibited employment. Sovereign Camp of Woodmen of the World v. Akins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 492.

Where a medical examiner was notified that the applicant had suffered from influenza and such fact was noted in the report he made to the body having general authority over fraternal insurer, held, that the insurer was charged with knowledge of that fact, and cannot rely on the applicant's statement that he had not suffered from disease, etc. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Nash (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 235.

Where the by-laws of a benefit association provided for the expulsion or other punishment of a member engaging in the saloon business and required notice and payment of additional assessments to avoid nullification of the benefit certificate, the beneficiary cannot recover on the theory that the association was estopped to rely on the defense that insured engaged in such business without giving the required notice without showing reliance by insured upon his being expelled in accordance with the by-laws. Carter v. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 239.

In an action on a fraternal benefit certificate issued to plaintiff's wife, liability whereon was denied because of misrepresentations by insured as to her health, that insurer's medical examiner was advised of an operation for appendicitis performed upon insured and that he knew the circumstances thereof and nevertheless recommended her as a first-class risk held to constitute a waiver by insurer of any right to show that insured was not a safe risk because of such operation. Knights and Ladies of Security v. Shepherd (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 696.

On the certificate of a member of a fraternal society providing that the beneficiary would on the death of insured be paid $1,000 if insured had complied with all by-laws then existing or thereafter in force, such sum is recoverable, the monthly assessment provided by the certificate having been regularly paid and accepted without any knowledge by insured that it was insufficient to maintain that amount of insurance. Independent Order of Puritans v. Parker (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 363.

Provision in an insurance contract issued by a benefit association that a demand for proofs of loss or additional proofs should not be considered a waiver is valid and a requirement of additional proof of loss was not a waiver of misrepresentation by insured as to previous consultation of physicians, where the association had no knowledge at the time of calling for the additional proof that such representation in the application was false. Security Ben. Ass'n v. Webster (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 219.

Defendant benefit association sued on its policy of life insurance held not to have waived, and not to be estopped from asserting, the defense of misrepresentations by insured as to previous consultation of physicians, by statements made in its letter of rejection of claim. Id.

In a suit on a life insurance certificate issued by a fraternal benefit society, where plaintiff proved a parol waiver of a condition requiring delivery of the policy to the assured, and there was no allegation or testimony that a waiver in writing, signed by the commander or clerk, was not made, plaintiff could recover; a parol waiver being good, though required to be in writing. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 828.

Where under the terms of the constitution and laws of a fraternal benefit society a life insurance certificate issued by it was not valid unless delivered to the assured, the society was estopped to set up nondelivery as a defense where it delivered the certificate without protest or notice to the beneficiary, accepted payment of dues from him, and did not call his attention to the requirement. Id.

— Evidence.—In suit on benefit certificate, held, on the evidence, that insured, who stated in her application as a warranty that she was in robust health and free from disease, was not then suffering from pellagra. The Homesteaders v. Stapp (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 743.

In an action on a fraternal order's life policy, evidence held to show that insured sold liquor in violation of a clause of his policy every day for nearly three months, and that such selling was part of a service for which he was employed by a saloon keeper. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Lenhard (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 979.

In action on benefit certificate involving the issue of whether insured misrepresented the condition of his health in application for membership, evidence held insufficient to support judgment for beneficiary. Modern Woodmen of America v. Atcheson (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 537.

In an action on a benefit certificate, the jury's finding that insured was in good health at the time of the application and at the receipt of the certificate held warranted. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Nash (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 235.

In an action on a fraternal life policy, evidence that insured's agent was told that insured was working at a more hazardous occupation and that the agent and insured had corresponded, etc., held to sustain a jury's finding that the insurer knew of insured's change of occupation. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., v. Little (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 574.

Reinstatement.—Since applicant for readmission to membership is to a large extent dependent upon the officers of the lodge and the members thereof who are inducting him into the order for instructions as to what is necessary to be done in such matters, he has a right to rely on the fact that proceedings to which he submits himself are regular and in compliance with the order. Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen v. Cook (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1049.

Where by-laws of benefit society expressly provided that, if insured was not in good health when payment of a delinquent quarterly endowment tax on his certificate was made, payment should not operate to reinstate him, provision must be given effect, such facts existing, as barring the beneficiary. Gilmore v. Grand Temple & Tabernacle in State of Texas of Knights and Daughters of Tabor of International Order of Twelve (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 294.

Art. 4835. Funds.

Recovery of premiums paid.—A fraternal insurance association's certificate held by a member having been automatically canceled on the date when that member engaged in the saloon business, there was no consideration for his premium payments made thereafter, and he was entitled to recover them, except those barred by limitations. Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W., v. Schwartz (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 156.

Art. 4839. Organization.

Change in by-laws.—Fraternal insurance company's by-law that absence for seven years shall not be evidence of death until full term of life expectancy of insured has expired was unreasonable as to a policy already existing. Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 891.

If a subsequent by-law of a fraternal order is in conflict with its insurance certificate, and the contract of insurance legally entered into, the contract and certificate will control, since ordinarily there can be no change in the contract of insurance as made by a fraternal order except by consent of both parties. Independent Order of Puritans v. Brown (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 939.

Constitution, by-laws, and rules.—Member of a fraternal insurance society was chargeable with the full knowledge of the terms of his contract, of which the constitution and laws of the society were a part. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., v. Nigh (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 291; Carter v. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 239.

A by-law of a fraternal insurance company, providing that no action can be brought on a policy unless proof of death be furnished within one year, nor unless action is commenced within two years, does not apply, where plaintiff must rely upon art. 5707, relating to presumption of death, to establish death. Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 891.

The constitution and by-laws of a fraternal benefit association form part of the policy of insurance of one holding a benefit certificate therein. Carter v. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 239.

— Change of rates.—On the certificate of a member of a fraternal society providing that the beneficiary would on the death of insured be paid $1,000 if insured had complied with all by-laws then existing or thereafter in force, such sum is recoverable, the monthly assessment provided by the certificate having been regularly paid and accepted without any knowledge by insured that it was insufficient to maintain that amount of insurance, notwithstanding a by-law enacted after issuance of certificate providing that the amount of insurance payable on a certificate shall depend on and be fixed and determined by the amount of monthly premium payments at the age attained by the member at the rate on the basis of the American Mortality Experience Tables; it being impossible for any one other than an expert actuary to determine from the tables that any greater payment was required, and the by-law being therefore inoperative. Independent Order of Puritans v. Parker (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 363.

A fraternal benefit society may by by-law raise amount of assessments payable on an existing policy. Id.

Art. 4841. Mergers and transfers.

Application.—This article is inapplicable to a society of another state. Independent Order of Puritans v. Parker (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 363.

Validity of merger.—The presumption is in favor of the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking of the state having done his duty under this article. Independent Order of Puritans v. Brown (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 939.

In the absence of evidence showing that the supreme president and secretary of defendant fraternal order were not authorized to make the contract of merger with another order which they did make, the presumption should prevail that such officers of defendant order were acting within their authority, and were authorized to execute the contract, especially where the supreme ruling body of the order affirmed and ratified their acts. Id.

Liability of consolidated association in general.—Defendant fraternal order, which through its supreme president and secretary executed a contract of merger with the order originally joined by decedent, which contract was approved by the supreme governing body of defendant order, held estopped, as against the beneficiaries of decedent, to repudiate the part of the merger agreement, adopting the other order's certificates.

stipulating against change of rates or amount, though such stipulation was against the law of defendant order. Independent Order of Puritans v. Brown (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 939.

Evidence.—In an action on a beneficial certificate against a fraternal order which had assumed the insurance contracts of the order which decedent originally joined, under the facts tending to show that the original contract of merger between the two orders was executed in duplicate, and one copy filed with the Commissioner of Insurance, and defendant order at any rate having been notified to produce the original contract on trial, or that secondary evidence would be offered, the agreement of merger produced in court and certified to by the commissioner held admissible, as well as the agreement transcribed in the minutes of the order which decedent originally joined, which two instruments, together with certain oral testimony as to the adoption of the contract by the two orders, established it as made. Independent Order of Puritans v. Brown (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 939.

Art. 4843. Admission of foreign society.

See Independent Order of Puritans v. Brown (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 939.

Art. 4844. Power of attorney and service of process.

Service in general.—This article clearly requires service of citation upon the commissioner of insurance in all suits against fraternal benefit societies and no other service of citation is sufficient to authorize default judgment against the defendant. Haitian Tabernacle No. 604, International Order of Twelve Knights and Daughters of Tabor, v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 202.

Art. 4847. Waiver of the provisions of the laws—Separate jurisdiction.

Estoppel or waiver affecting right of forfeiture.—Where holder of certificate of fraternal insurance, relying on presumption arising from seven years' absence of insured, waited seven years before attempting to prove death, action of insurer, in refusing payment by reason of by-laws concerning proof of death of absentees, was of itself sufficient to justify finding that it would have been useless to attempt to furnish proof of death under a by-law requiring proof to be made within a year. Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 891.

If both insured and insurer's examiner and agent knew of falsity of statement in application and insured was not acting in good faith, and if agent acted in collusion with insured, the insured could not claim benefit of an estoppel on account of agent's knowledge. The Homesteaders v. Stapp (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 743.

Fraternal insurance association, acting through officers and local agents, is as much subject to operation of principle of estoppel, despite by-laws prohibiting any local clerk or organization from waiving provisions, as any other association, or as an individual. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Putnam (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 970.

Where the applicant for membership in a fraternal insurer falsely stated that he was not engaged in the saloon business, and the clerk issuing the certificate testified he did not know that the applicant was so engaged, the insurer cannot be estopped to rely on the false statement in the application because it was well known in the community that the applicant was engaged in the saloon business, which was one of the occupations prohibited by the by-laws of insurer, etc. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Wernette (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 669.

Provision in the by-laws of a fraternal insurer that no officer of the Sovereign Camp should have power of waiver is not authorized by this article. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Nash (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 235.

A fraternal insurer itself may with notice or knowledge of the facts waive compliance with the by-laws, although such by-laws take from the officials of the subordinate body, as a camp, general powers to create waiver. Sovereign Camp of Woodmen of the World v. Miller (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 635.

Waiver by local lodge or agent.—Knowledge acquired by an association's medical examiner and local agent in the discharge of their duty in connection with the application, and in reporting it to insurer for its information before its final action on application, was to be imputed to insurer. The Homesteaders v. Stapp (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 743.

Fraternal order may by by-law curtail and circumscribe right of local clerk or local organization of order to waive provisions of by-laws. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Putnam (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 970.

Where collector of fraternal order's local organization failed to demand higher assessments from member, who had notoriously entered occupation of retail liquor dealer, requiring, under by-laws, payment of higher assessments, his acts having misled member, order will not be permitted to take advantage of default by insisting on forfeiture after death. Id.

No estoppel can arise against a fraternal insurer because of the acts or knowledge of a subordinate officer, where the by-laws contain such prohibition against waiver, etc. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Wernette (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 669.

To estop a fraternal insurer to claim a forfeiture of the certificate because of the member's false statements that he was not engaged in a prohibited occupation, it must appear that the clerk had actual knowledge that deceased was engaged in the prohibited occupation, and such knowledge cannot be presumed. Id.

Where, at the time deceased became a member of a fraternal insurance society which included saloon keeping within the prohibited occupations, the clerk of the fraternal insurer knew that deceased was engaged in the business of a saloon keeper, the insurer, having accepted premiums paid, is estopped from asserting the invalidity of the certificate, although it was provided in the policy that an agent might not waive its conditions. Id.

Where applicant for readmission had submitted to the required medical examination, had been accepted and recognized as a member and elected as such by the subordinate lodge, and had paid subordinate lodge treasurer the necessary dues, his failure to sign the constitution even though the signing thereof was required by the constitution as a prerequisite to membership, did not preclude him from becoming a member and recovering insurance where he had no knowledge of such requirement, and where subordinate lodge did not require him to sign constitution; such requirement under the circumstances being waived, in view of arts. 4847, 4855. Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen v. Cook (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1049.

The grand body of a fraternal benefit society is not estopped to claim a suspension and consequent forfeiture, where the member fails to pay assessments within the time provided by the laws of the order, notwithstanding the fact that a belated payment thereof may have been made to and accepted by the local officers or tent. Calhoun v. The Maccabees (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 95.

Art. 4848a. Benefit not attachable.

Validity.—This article is not repugnant to Const. U. S. Amend. 14, providing that no state shall deny equal protection of its laws to persons within its jurisdiction, or Const. Tex. § 3, art. 1, prohibiting exclusive privileges, on the ground that such special benefits are not conferred on other insurance companies, which are separately classified in the statutes; such classification not being an arbitrary one, but based on sufficient reason. Supreme Lodge United Benev. Ass'n v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 661.

Art. 4849. Constitution and laws—Amendments.

See Merchants' Life Ins. Co. v. Lathrop (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 593; Same v. Hanks (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 596.

Amendments.—A fraternal benefit society may by by-law raise amount of assessments payable on an existing policy. Independent Order of Puritans v. Parker (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 363.

If a subsequent by-law of a fraternal order is in conflict with its insurance certificate, and the contract of insurance legally entered into, the contract and certificate will control. Independent Order of Puritans v. Brown (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 939.

Art. 4854. Revocation of license.

See Independent Order of Puritans v. Brown (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 939.

Art. 4855. Examination of certain societies.

Prior act.—Act May 12, 1899, relative to fraternal benefit associations, section 16 of which excludes from its provisions certain designated orders which issue policies of insurance or benefit certificates to their members, and are, as to their insurance provisions, substantially fraternal benefit orders, is repugnant to Const. U. S. Amend. 14, guarantying equal protection of the laws, and Const. Tex. § 3, art. 1, in that it imposes on fraternal benefit associations generally certain conditions for the transaction of business, and grants certain privileges, such as exemption from garnishment, from both of which the designated orders are excluded. Supreme Lodge United Benev. Ass'n v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 661.

Art. 4859. Provisions not to apply to local mutual aid associations; annual statement by such associations, etc.—The provisions of this chapter shall not apply to incorporated or unincorporated mutual relief or benefits, or burial associations, operating upon the assessment plan, whose business is confined to not more than one county in the State of Texas, or to a territory in two or more adjacent counties included within a radius of not more than 50 miles surrounding the city or town in which its principal office is to be located, which is designated in its charter and which at no time shall have a membership exceeding 2000 members which are hereby denominated local mutual aid associations, provided that such associations are in no manner directly or indirectly connected, federated or associated with any such association and do not directly or indirectly contribute to the expense or support of any other such association, or to the officers, promoters, or manager thereof, and provided that no person or officer shall receive from said association any payment on account of organization or other expenses or salaries who is not a bona fide resident of the county or area in which such association is domiciled. The association above mentioned shall annually, on or before March 1, file a statement with the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking, which shall be signed and sworn to by the president, Secretary and treasurer, or the officer holding positions corresponding thereto. Such statement shall show whether the association has, during the preceding year, done any business outside of the county or areas in which it is domiciled, and shall state whether or not said association is associated, federated or directly or indirectly connected with any other, and shall show what, if anything, has been contributed during the preceding year by said association or the members, to any person or officer, or director thereof for salaries, commissions or promotion expenses, and the name and residence of the party or parties receiving the same. The Commissioner of Insurance and Banking may, at his option and it shall be his duty, if not satisfied with said statement, to demand other and additional statements and examine the books, papers, and records of said association, either himself or by some other suitable person authorized by him. Should it appear to the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking that any such local mutual aid association is not carrying on business as set forth in this article, and is not entitled to the exemption therein set forth, such association shall be subject to and comply with all provisions of this chapter, as a fraternal beneficiary association. Every such local association claiming to be entitled to the benefit of the exemption created by this Article shall plainly state upon its certificates, applications and all advertising matter, in a conspicuous manner, that said association is a local mutual aid association, or same shall be deemed subject to all provisions of this chapter concerning fraternal beneficiary associations. [Acts 1913, p. 220, § 31; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 50, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 2 of the act repeals all laws in conflict. The act took effect March 13, 1919.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT

Agents of association.—The Grand Master of a lodge in the absence of pleading or evidence to show authority upon his part, held not authorized to bind the lodge in an application for fidelity insurance for the treasurer. Western Indemnity Co. v. Free and Accepted Masons of Texas (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1092.

Where the by-laws of a fraternal insurer directed a member on changing occupation to give notice to the clerk of the local camp, notice to such clerk is notice to the insurer itself. Sovereign Camp of Woodmen of the World v. Miller (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 635.

The subcommittee of a building commission of a fraternal organization held not to have ostensible authority sufficient to bind the organization by an oral contract with subcontractor for extras. Grand Lodge of Colored K. P. of Texas v. Allen (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 675.

Where a fraternal organization designated a building commission, consisting of several individuals, the authority will be deemed conferred on each of the commissioners as joint agents, and no one or more of the commissioners less than the whole has power to bind the organization. Id.

The order of which the grand lodge and its officers are the controlling body acts through the local lodge and its officers in the matter of the reception and readmission of members; the local lodge and its officers being the agents of the grand lodge in such matters. Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen v. Cook (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1049.

Contingency upon which benefits become payable.—Fraternal benefit society policy for $1,000 held to entitle beneficiary to only $200 where insured had suicided before proof of incurable insanity had been furnished the society or it had paid anything on account thereof. Eminent Household of Columbian Woodmen v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 186.

Where plaintiff was injured by dust blowing in his eyes while driving his wagon around a street corner on a spring day, during a high wind, prevalent in West Texas at such times, the cause of his injury was an "accident," being "an unusual effect of a known cause," and he was entitled to recover upon a benefit certificate carrying an accident clause. Independent Order of Puritans v. Lockhart (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 559.

A requirement that insured in a health insurance certificate should give notice of his claim within 7 days after his disability accrues, and within 30 days after recovery, is void. Independent Order of Puritans v. Manley (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 647.

— Evidence.—In an action on a death benefit certificate, circumstantial evidence held sufficient to show beneficiary killed insured, where same evidence would have sustained a conviction of murder in the first degree, with death penalty. Grand Lodge, United Brothers of Friendship of Texas and Sisters of Mysterious Ten, v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 394.

Amount recoverable.—In suit by widow of member of fraternal order, trial court, having held order estopped, by collection of assessments through local agent, to declare forfeiture on account of failure to pay higher assessments due after change in occupation, properly deducted, from amount due under certificate, amount of additional assessments member should have paid. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Putnam (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 970.

Actions for breach of contract.—Limitations do not begin to run against an action on the policy of a member of a mutual society who disappeared from home until the expiration of seven years from the disappearance, when the beneficiary's cause of action accrues under the presumption of death. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Piper (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 649.

CHAPTER EIGHT

FIRE AND MARINE INSURANCE COMPANIES

Art. 4874. Policy shall be considered a liquidated demand. 4874a. Breach or violation by insured of policy, etc., on personal property, not a defense, when.	Art. 4875a. Interest of mortgagee or trustee not invalidated.

Article 4874. [3089] Policy shall be considered a liquidated demand.

See Farmer v. State, 69 Tex. 561, 7 S. W. 220.

Construction and effect in general.—This article does not invalidate a clause forfeiting the policy in case the insured takes out additional insurance without the insurer's written consent. Home Ins. Co. v. Boatner (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1007.

Total loss.—Stipulation for arbitration in fire insurance policy is nullity where there is total loss. National Fire Ins. Co. v. House (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 476.

Liquidated demand.—A demand is "liquidated" to begin to carry interest when the amount due or to become due is fixed by law or by agreement between the parties. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Strayhorn (Com. App.) 211 S. W. 447.

Despite this article, in an action on a fire policy providing loss should be payable 60 days after furnishing proof of loss, interest on the amount of the policy from the date of loss was improperly allowed; the parties having contracted that 60 days should be allowed the insurer before liquidation of the demand. Id.

A demand of payment of loss and a refusal to pay was not necessary before bringing suit on fire insurance policy, where the loss was total, for the amount became a liquidated demand upon the total destruction of the building by fire, or as a direct result thereof. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co. v. Westmoreland (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 471.

Measure of recovery.—The parties to an insurance contract may agree upon the value of the property insured and the specific amount to be paid for its loss or damage, and, in the absence of fraud, such agreed valuations are conclusive. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Pipkin (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 360.

Despite art. 5714, an insurer of property which was not totally destroyed by fire, the policy providing that the loss should not become payable until 60 days after notice, ascertainment, and proof of loss, in the absence of denial of liability, was not liable for interest from the date of the loss. Delaware Underwriters v. Brock, 109 Tex. 425, 211 S. W. 779.

Where an insurer wrongfully refused to pay insurance proceeds to a mortgagee and for several years retained the money pending litigation, it should be made to pay the mortgagee the amount of his debt with attorney's fees as well as interest. Home Ins. Co. v. Boatner (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1097.

Art. 4874a. Breach or violation by insured of policy, etc., on personal property, not a defense, when.

See Springfield Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 365; Home Ins. Co. v. Flewellen (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 630; Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Boatner (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 1115.

Constitutionality.—This act entitled "An act to prevent fire insurance companies from avoiding liability for loss and damage to personal property under technical and immaterial provisions of the policy or contract of insurance where the act breaching such provision has not contributed to bring about the loss, and declaring an emergency," held not violative of Const. art. 3, § 35, providing that no bill shall contain more than one subject, to be expressed in its title; the statute having reference only to immaterial provisions. McPherson v. Camden Fire Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 211, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1055.

Construction in general.—This article being a remedial statute, should be liberally construed to effect its purpose. Allemania Fire Ins. Co. v. Angier (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 450.

Application.—This article is applicable only to those warranties and provisions the breach of which might have contributed to bring about the loss, but which in fact did not, and not to such provisions the violation of which could not have contributed to bring about the loss. McPherson v. Camden Fire Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 211, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1055; Ætna Ins. Co. v. Waco Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 217, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 315.

The taking out of additional insurance in excess of that allowed under a concurrent insurance clause, in violation of provision of fire policy making policy void if insured procured other insurance on the property covered by the policy, held a good defense in action on the policy, this article having no application to breach of such provision of policy; it being material to the risk. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Waco Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 217, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 315; Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Levy & Rosen (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 216, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1035.

This article includes all promissory warranties, and promissory warranties, breach whereof could in no event, contribute to or bring about loss under the policy, are not impliedly excluded from the effect of the statute. Merchants' & Mfrs.' Lloyd's Ins. Exch. v. Southern Trading Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 352.

By virtue of the agreement of a cotton gin owner embodied in his fire policy that each item of the insured property other than the buildings should be considered as personalty, the machinery and other property must be treated as personal property, as respects the application of this article; promissory warranties not contributing to the loss. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Roan (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 985.

This article is not applicable to the proof of loss clause of standard policy, the three-fourths value clause, the coinsurance clause, the incumbrance clause, the iron safe clause requiring inventory books, etc., to be kept in fireproof safe, or any other clauses, the breach of which could not bring about a loss by fire. McPherson v. Camden Fire Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 211, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1055.

The antitechnicality law does not affect the record warranty clause in a fire policy. Merchants' & Manufacturers' Lloyd's Ins. Exch. v. Southern Trading Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 312.

This article does not apply to any provision the breach of which could in no event contribute to loss, and hence does not apply to breach of condition that insured shall submit to examination after fire occurs, as such breach could not contribute to the fire. Humphrey et al. v. National Fire Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn. (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 750.

Effect of breach in general.—Where a policy insured a gin plant, including buildings and personal property, failure to operate gin during ginning season, as provided in a promissory warranty clause, voided policy as to buildings, but not as to personal property, unless the breach increased the hazard or contributed to the loss. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1170.

In a suit on a fire insurance policy, wherein defendant alleged the insured had failed to keep a set of books as provided for in the policy, such failure did not defeat the right to recover. Merchants' & Mfrs.' Lloyd's Ins. Exch. v. Southern Trading Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 352.

If as a matter of fact the removal of insured goods from one town to another did not contribute to bring about the destruction of such goods by fire, the insurer would be liable for loss in the latter town, although policy provided that goods were covered only while in place where they were when insured. Standard Fire Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn. v. Buckingham (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 531.

The owners of household goods, in storage, and insured against fire while on the particular premises, and not elsewhere, could recover for their destruction in premises to which the warehousemen removed the goods; such removal by insured through their agents being a breach of "condition," and not having caused the loss. Allemania Fire Ins. Co. v. Angier (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 450.

Insured could recover from his fire insurer for destruction of his cotton gin, personal property, in the absence of proof to show that his breach of warranty to operate the gin during the season brought about or contributed to its destruction. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Roan (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 985.

Art. 4875a. Interest of mortgagee or trustee not invalidated.—The interest of a mortgagee or trustee under any fire insurance contract hereafter issued covering any property situated in this state shall not be invalidated by any act or neglect of the mortgagor or owner of said described property or the happening of any condition beyond his control, and any stipulation in any contract in conflict herewith shall be null and void. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 15, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.
See note 122 at end of title.

STATE INSURANCE COMMISSION

Art. 4876. Companies deemed to have accepted provisions of law.	Art. 4896. Insurance companies not to do certain things.
4884. Action of fire marshal not to affect policies, etc.	4897. Unlawful to accept rebate.
4891. Commission to establish uniform policies, etc.	4900. Unlawful for company or agents to evade law.
4892. Certain provisions in policies void.	4902. Law not to apply to certain companies.
4893. Co-insurance clauses.	4903. Gross premiums tax; limitation on amount.

Article 4876. Companies deemed to have accepted provisions of law.

See McPherson v. Camden Fire Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 211.

Art. 4884. Action of fire marshal not to affect policies, etc.

Effect of investigation.—Examination of insured by state fire marshal held not to satisfy provision of policy for examination by person named by insurer. National Fire Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Humphrey (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 865.

Art. 4891. Commission to establish uniform policies, etc.

See Ginners' Mut. Underwriters' Ass'n v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 285.

Construction and application in general.—Breach of the "iron-safe clause," requiring inventory books, etc., to be kept in fireproof safe, required to be inserted in all policies covering stocks of merchandise by the Fire Commission Act, held a good defense in action on policy insuring stock of millinery, notwithstanding art. 4874a; such statute having no application to the iron-safe clause. McPherson v. Camden Fire Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 211, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1055.

Evidence.—In an action against a fire insurance company for loss sustained after the insurer had neglected to renew policies under an oral agreement, evidence held insufficient to prove that the fire insurance commission had made an order changing the form of policies, so as to make compliance with the verbal agreement unlawful. Austin Fire Ins. Co. v. Adams-Childers Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 339.

Art. 4892. Certain provisions in policies void.

See McPherson v. Camden Fire Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 211, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1055.

Art. 4893. Co-insurance clauses.

See McPherson v. Camden Fire Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 211, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1055.

Amount of recovery.—In an action on an insurance policy wherein defendant company claimed a reduction of the amount of loss because of a co-insurance clause, defendant was not entitled to such reduction, where it did not plead the clause nor prove facts showing it was entitled to the reduction. Camden Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Wandell (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 289.

Art. 4896. Insurance companies not to do certain things.

Effect of violation.—Where insurance agents suing for premiums due on fire policies were guilty of unjust discrimination, by agreeing to contribute their premiums to the cost of erection of the hotel insured, the party insured violated art. 4897 by accepting such rebate, all of the parties were in pari delicto, and the courts will leave them where found, and will extend no aid to the insurance agents to recover back the money paid under such an illegal contract. Wright v. Wight & Wight (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 381.

Art. 4897. Unlawful to accept rebate.

Rebate—Recovery of premiums.—Where insurance agents suing for premiums due on fire policies were guilty of unjust discrimination under art. 4896, by agreeing to contribute their premiums to the cost of erection of the hotel insured, the party insured violated art. 4897 by accepting such rebate, all of the parties were in pari delicto, and the courts will leave them where found, and will extend no aid to the insurance agents to recover back the money paid under such an illegal contract. Wright v. Wight & Wight (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 881.

Art. 4900. Unlawful for company or agents to evade law.

Effect of violation.—Where an insurance company entered into contracts insuring shippers of live stock against loss arising from damage to stock in transportation prior to issuance to the insurer of a certificate of authority, required by art. 4761, and loss resulted in the shipments by reason of negligence of the carrier, and under the conditions of the policy the insurer paid the amount of the losses to the shippers and took an assignment of their claims against the carriers, it cannot maintain an action against the carriers on such claims, the courts not lending their support to a claim founded upon the violation of express law. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 781.

Art. 4902. Law not to apply to certain companies.

See Ginners' Mut. Underwriters' Ass'n v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 285.

Art. 4903. Gross premiums tax; limitation on amount.—That there shall be assessed and collected by the State of Texas an additional one and one-fourth per cent. of the gross fire insurance premiums of all fire insurance companies doing business in this State, according to the reports made to the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking as required by law; and said taxes when collected shall be placed in a separate fund with the State Treasurer to be expended during the current year, or so much thereof as may be necessary in carrying out the provisions of this Act, provided that such expenditures, including the salaries of the members of the Commission, shall not exceed in the aggregate the sum of two hundred and twelve thousand five hundred dollars per annum; and should there be an unexpended balance at the end of any year, the State Fire Insurance Commission shall reduce the assessment for the succeeding year so that the amount produced and paid into the State Treasury, together with said unexpended balance in the Treasury, will not exceed the amount appropriated for the current year, to pay all necessary expenses of maintaining the Commission, which funds shall be paid out upon requisition made out and filed by a majority of the Commission, when the Comptroller shall issue warrants therefor. All funds collected from the fire insurance companies under this section, or so much thereof as may be necessary, are hereby appropriated to the State Fire Insurance Commission for the payment of all necessary expenses of maintaining the Commission for the remainder of the fiscal year ending August 31, 1920, and the fiscal year ending August 31, 1921, which appropriation is in lieu of the unexpended portion of the appropriation for such purpose for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1920, and the fiscal year ending August 31, 1921, as contained in Chapter 87 of the Acts of the Second Called Session of the Thirty-sixth Legislature, and the Commission is empowered to fix the salaries, compensation and expenses for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1920, in similar amounts and proportions to those fixed by this called session of the Legislature for the Commission for the fiscal year beginning September 1, 1920. [Acts 1913, p. 195, § 29; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 73, § 5; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 60, § 1 (§ 29).]

Took effect 90 days after June 18, 1920, date of adjournment.

MUTUAL FIRE, LIGHTNING, HAIL, AND STORM INSURANCE COMPANIES

Art.
4907k. Laws applicable.
4907n. Fees; taxes.

Art.
4908-4918. [Repealed.]

Article 4907k. Laws applicable.

See Ginners' Mut. Underwriters' Ass'n v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 285.

Art. 4907n. Fees; taxes.

Nature of tax.—This article provides for an occupation tax, and not an ad valorem tax on property, and the exemption or commutation of other taxes applies alone to occupation, and not to ad valorem, taxes. Millers' Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 825.

Arts. 4908-4918. [Repealed.] See Art. 4907p, Vernons Sayles Ann. Civ. St. 1914.

FIDELITY, GUARANTY AND SURETY COMPANIES

Art.		Art.
4928.	To act as trustee, etc., and do general fiduciary and depository business; to act as surety, etc.	4932.	Certificate to be surrendered, how.
4929.	Surety company's bond is a legal bond, when.	4935.	Defaulting company; claims paid how.
4930.	Requirements to be complied with; minimum capital; securities to be deposited.	4936.	Who are agents.

Article 4928. To act as trustee, etc., and do general fiduciary and depository business; to act as surety, etc.

See Simmons v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 338.
Cited, Texas Fidelity & Bonding Co. v. Rosenberg Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 366.

Contracts of indemnity.—A corporation, having the power in its charter to act as surety on any bond required in the course of any judicial proceeding may enter into an indemnity agreement to indemnify a surety on a bail bond, the character of the instrument by which the corporation binds itself being immaterial, where it in fact furnished security on the bond. Texas Fidelity & Bonding Co. v. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 216 S. W. 144.

Art. 4929. Surety company's bond is a legal bond, when.

Nature of contract.—Fidelity bonds issued by a surety company to a bank, in consideration of premiums paid, indemnifying the bank against defalcation of its cashier, are insurance contracts, though such bonds recite that the cashier is principal and the surety company surety, the bonds containing an express obligation running from the cashier to the surety company to reimburse the latter for any loss suffered. Southern Surety Co. v. Citizens' State Bank of Hempstead (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 556.

Art. 4930. Requirements to be complied with; minimum capital; securities to be deposited.—Such company, to be qualified to so act as surety or guarantor, must comply with the requirements of every law of this State applicable to such company doing business therein; must be authorized under the laws of the State where incorporated, and under its charter, to become surety upon such bond, undertaking, obligation, recognizance or guaranty; must have a fully paid up and safely invested and unimpaired capital of at least one hundred thousand dollars; must have good available assets exceeding its liabilities, which liabilities for the purpose of this Chapter shall be taken to be its capital stock, its outstanding debts and a premium reserve at the rate of fifty per centum of the current annual premiums on each outstanding bond, undertaking, recognizance and obligations of like character in force; must file with the Commissioner of Insurance, Statistics, History and Agriculture (Commissioner of Insurance and Banking), a certified copy of its certificate of incorporation, a written application to be authorized to do business under this Chapter, and also, with such application, and in each year thereafter, a statement verified under oath made up to December 31, preceding, stating the amount of its paid up cash capital, particularizing each item of investment, the amount of premiums upon existing bonds, undertakings, recognizances and obligations of like character in force upon which it is surety; the amount of liability for unearned portion thereof estimated at the rate of fifty per centum of the current annual premiums on each such bond, undertaking, recognizance and obligation in force, stating also the amount of its outstanding debts of all kinds, and such further facts as may be by the laws of this State required of such company in transacting business therein; and, if such company be organized under the laws of any other State than this State, it must, also have on deposit with a State officer of one of the states of the United States, not less than One Hundred Thousand Dollars in good securities, deposited with and held by such officer for the benefit of the holders of all its obligations wheresoever incurred; must also appoint an attorney in this State upon whom process of law can be served, which appointment shall continue until revoked or another attorney substituted, and must file with the Commissioner of Insurance, Statistics and History and Agriculture (Commissioner of Insurance and Banking), written evidence of such appointment, which shall state the residence and office of such attorney; and such service of process may also be made upon the Commissioner of Insurance of this State by virtue of his office, and shall be as effective as if made upon said attorney; and must, also, have on deposit with the Treasurer of this State at least Fifty Thousand Dollars in good securities worth at par and market value, at least that sum of the value of which securities the Commissioner of Insurance shall judge, held for the benefit of the holders of all the obligations of such company wheresoever incurred; said securities so deposited with said Treasurer to remain with him in trust to answer any default of said company as surety upon any such bond, undertaking, recognizance or other obligation established by final judgment in whatsoever court and wheresoever rendered upon which execution may lawfully be issued against said company; said Treasurer and his successors in office being hereby directed to so receive and hereafter retain such deposit under this Act in trust for the purposes hereof; such company, however, at all times to have the right to collect the interest, dividends and profits upon such securities, and, from time to time, to withdraw such securities, or portions thereof, substituting therefor others of equally good character and value, to the satisfaction of said Treasurer; and such securities and substitutes therefor shall be, at all times, exempt from and not subject to levy under writ or process of attachment; and, further, shall not be sold under any process against such company until after thirty days notice to said company, specifying the time, place, and manner of such sale, and the process under which and purposes for which it is to be made accompanied by a copy of such process; provided, however, that whenever any such company, domestic or foreign, has been engaged in this State in the business contemplated by this Act, has made deposit in this State, in trust or otherwise, of securities, to answer any default of such company upon any such bond, undertaking, recognizance, guaranty or stipulation, such securities so deposited shall be by the trustee or custodian thereof transferred and delivered to said Treasurer of this State in trust for the same purposes under and subject to all the rights and equities of all parties interested; and to the terms and provisions of this Act; and, thereupon, such deposit shall remain in trust under and subject to the terms and provisions of this Act; and, whenever such deposit has been made with a trustee by order of any court or other authority, it shall be the duty of the court or other authority, by order or otherwise, to direct such transfer to said Treasurer; and, in case such deposit is less than the sum of fifty thousand dollars, then said company must deposit with said Treasurer securities sufficient to increase said deposit to said sum of fifty thousand dollars as required by this chapter; provided, domestic corporations chartered for the purpose of doing business under this Chapter within this State alone shall be required to deposit securities as hereinbefore provided for to the amount of twenty-five thousand dollars. [Acts 1897, p. 244, § 2; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 4, § 1, amending art. 4930, Rev. Civ. St.]

Validity.—It was fully within the power of the state to prescribe the conditions on which a foreign corporation might pursue its business within the state, and it could require a special deposit from casualty company as a trust fund to protect its obligations arising under policies issued within the state. Phillips v. Perue (Sup.) 229 S. W. 849.

Art. 4932. Certificate to be surrendered, how.

Withdrawal without bond.—Where a foreign casualty insurance corporation had withdrawn from the state without giving a bond, but leaving money on deposit with the state treasurer, it was proper, at the instance of its creditors, for the district court to appoint a receiver to handle such fund and disburse it as directed by the court, rather than to handle it through the state treasurer. Phillips v. Perue (Sup.) 229 S. W. 849.

Where the corporation withdrew from the state without putting up the required bond, the deposit constituted a special trust fund for the protection of its policy obligations issued in the transaction of its business in Texas, and the right of the holders of such obligations to the fund was superior to that of its liquidator under the laws of another state. Id.

Art. 4935. Defaulting company; claims paid, how.—Should any company of the character named or enumerated in this chapter fail or refuse to pay any loss by it wheresoever incurred within sixty days after its liability thereupon shall have been finally determined by the judgment of any court of competent jurisdiction wheresoever rendered, upon satisfactory proof, to the treasurer of this State, of such liability and of its non-payment, said treasurer shall, out of the deposits so made with him, as by this chapter provided, pay said loss and, when he shall have done so, he shall at once certify to the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking the fact of such default on the part of said company; whereupon said Commissioner shall forthwith cancel and annul the certificate of authority of such company to do business in this State; provided, that such payment shall not operate to release the company from payment of any balance which it still may owe after such payment by the Treasurer of this State has been made. [Acts 1897, p. 244, § 7; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 4, § 2, amending art. 4935, Rev. Civ. St.]

Liability of deposit.—Where the corporation withdrew from the state without putting up such a bond, the deposit constituted a special trust fund for the protection of its policy obligations issued in the transaction of its business in Texas, and the right of the holders of such obligations to the fund was superior to that of its liquidator under the laws of another state. Phillips v. Perue (Sup.) 229 S. W. 849.

Art. 4936. Who are agents.

Compensation of agent.—Under contract providing that all interest of surety company's agent in any premium to accrue on business secured should cease on termination of contract, unpaid portion of premium on bond executed and in force at time contract was terminated was not premium which might "accrue." American Surety Co. v. Sheerin (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1120.

Where continuation certificate was unnecessary to continue liability of defendant surety company on bond, its local agents would be entitled to no commission for writing to and procuring from defendant's state agent such certificate, and in turn delivering it to principal on bond. Id.

Under contract by which surety company agreed to pay to those who succeeded its local agent 20 per cent. on all renewal business effected, successors would not be entitled to commissions on a bond procured by an insurance broker during employment of local agent, although premium therefor had not been paid. Id.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN A

CASUALTY AND OTHER INSURANCE COMPANIES, EXCEPT FIRE, MARINE AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

Art. 4942a. May be incorporated for what purposes. 4942aa. Incorporation; additional purpose.	Art. 4942e. Capital stock, amount of; how paid or invested; deposit of securities; certificate authorizing to do business, etc. 4942z. Provisions cumulative.

Article 4942a. May be incorporated for what purposes.

Construction and application in general.—The mere fact that a casualty insurance company incorporated under Acts 32d Leg. c. 117 (arts. 4942a-4942z), was authorized by its charter to write health and accident insurance, did not make it a health or accident insurance company, within the meaning of Acts 31st Leg. c. 108 (art. 4724), or make applicable to it any of the provisions of such act. American Indemnity Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 812.

A charter of an insurance company, authorizing it to "grant insurance against loss or damage which may be caused to all kinds of property by the elements, * * * including fire, * * * and against the hazards of inland navigation and transportation," authorized the company to insure shippers of live stock against the hazards of transportation with the agreement that upon the payment of losses, the shippers would assign their cause of action to insurer, which should be subrogated to all their rights in the premises. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 781.

Art. 4942aa. Incorporation; additional purpose.—Casualty insurance companies incorporated under Chapter 117 General Laws passed by the Regular Session of 32nd Legislature, shall hereafter have authority to write marine insurance in which may be included the hazards and perils incident to war. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 20, § 1.]

Took effect March 21, 1918.

Art. 4942e. Capital stock, amount of; how paid or invested; deposit of securities; certificate authorizing to do business, etc.

See American Indemnity Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 812.

Taxation of securities.—Under its charter the city of Austin had power to make, for a period of more than two years back, assessments of securities of a fidelity and bonding company, also doing a casualty insurance business, deposited with the state treasurer as required by this article, which had been omitted from taxation. Texas Fidelity & Bonding Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 818.

Art. 4942z. Provisions cumulative.

See American Indemnity Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 812.

--	---

Article 4946a. Consolidation of companies.—Any two or more insurance companies doing a similar line of business which are and have been substantially owned by same controlling stockholders and which have never been actually competing companies with each other, and where all of them have been previously organized under the laws of this State, may unite or consolidate upon a compliance with the terms of this Act; provided, that such consolidation shall not be effectuated in violation of the anti-trust and anti-monopoly laws of this State. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 57, § 1.]

Took effect March 13, 1919.

Art. 4946b. Same; meeting and voting.—Before any such consolidation shall take place the parties holding at least two-thirds of the capital stock of each of the companies shall vote in favor thereof at a separate meeting of the stockholders of each company called for such purpose. Such meeting may be called in the manner provided in the by-laws of the respective companies or the laws under which such companies are organized, for calling special meetings of stockholders, except that each stockholder shall be notified by mail of the time and place and object of such meeting. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 4946c. Same; name and stock of consolidated companies.—Such companies proposing to consolidate may unite their assets or any part thereof and become incorporated in one body under the name of any one or more of such companies or under any other name that may be agreed upon, and issue stock in such corporation to the stockholders of each of the companies consolidated, the actual value of which stock in the new company shall bear the same proportion to the actual value of the stock surrendered by such stockholder as the entire assets of the company surrendering such stock bears to the entire assets of the new company which value shall be agreed upon by the Board of Directors of each company; provided that said stockholders (holding two-thirds of the stock) may at the meeting provided for in Section 2 of this Act [Art. 4946b], delegate the valuation of assets to a committee of stockholders appointed by their respective Boards of Directors. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 4946d. Same; other method.—Instead of the method provided in Section 3 of this Act [Art. 4946c], one company may take over all the assets of the other companies proposing to consolidate and issue stock to their stockholders in proportion that the value of their stock bears to the entire value of the assets of the company in which they are stockholders, and for this purpose the capital stock of such purchasing company may be increased, as now or may be hereafter provided by law. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 4946e. Same; commissioner to deliver charter.—In case of consolidation under Section 3 of this Act [Art. 4946c] the Insurance Commissioner shall upon proof furnished of a compliance with the terms hereof and being satisfied that the proposed consolidation is for the best interests of the policy holders of the respective companies and made in accordance with law, and upon the filing of articles of incorporation and other due proceedings had as required by the laws of this State, issue and deliver a charter to such new company. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 4946f. Same; effect of consolidation.—Such consolidation shall work a dissolution of the companies absorbed but shall in no wise prejudice the right of any creditors of any such corporation to have payment of his debt out of the assets and property thereof, nor shall any creditor be thereby deprived of, nor prejudiced in any right of action then pending or existing or which may thereafter arise against said company, and service or summons of the proper officers or agents of such new or reorganized corporation shall be deemed sufficient as to all or any of such companies. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 4946g. Same; policies assumed by new company.—All policies of insurance outstanding against all such companies shall by reason of such consolidation be assumed by the reorganized company, and they shall carry out the terms of such policy on the part of the insurer and be entitled to all the rights and privileges thereof and the reserves accumulating on such policy prior to such consolidation. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 4947. Misrepresentation must be material to avoid contract.

Construction in general.—The law that misrepresentations do not avoid a policy of life insurance unless material to the risk or actually contributing to the contingency has no reference, and does not apply, to fraternal benefit societies, such as the Woodmen of the World. Sovereign Camp of the Woodmen of the World v. Treanor (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 204; Modern Woodmen of America v. Atcheson (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 537; Modern Order of Prætorians v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 379.

One who procures issuance of policy by intentional fraud cannot invoke benefits of statute. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Carnier (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 980.

Representations made by the owner of an oil mill seeking to bond an employé that such employé was to render a trial balance each month, etc., having been made a part of the contract with the surety company, and having been contained in questions asked and answers given thereto, were within article 4951, providing every contract of insurance shall be accompanied by a written photographic or printed copy of application as well as a copy of all questions asked and answers given thereto. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Hico Oil Mill (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 479.

Warranties.—This article does not invalidate a clause forfeiting a fire policy in case insured takes out additional insurance without the insurer's consent, since such an action would be material to the risk, and the provision as to additional insurance is a "promissory warranty" not within the statute. Home Ins. Co. v. Boatner (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1007.

Avoidance of policy for misrepresentation or breach of warranty or condition.—Where letter sent with policy asked for additional information, held response thereto by brokers with knowledge and consent of insured was essentially part of written application, and fraud perpetrated therein would avoid policy. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Garnier (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 980.

In absence of statute to contrary, false representations in application for insurance, which applicant warrants to be true, avoid policy, without reference to their materiality. Modern Order of Prætorians v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 379.

Insurer may avoid life policy where reinstatement was secured by fraudulent representations, though representations were made orally. State Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Rosenberry (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 242.

Where applicant for a life insurance policy makes no statement as to age, or imperfectly and incompletely states it, insurer, by issuing a policy, waives the information and is bound, notwithstanding that the age, if given, would have caused a refusal of insurance. Royal Neighbors of America v. Sims (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 240.

— Title or interest.—Under this article, and a provision in policy that it would be void if insured was not sole unconditional owner, it was question of fact whether such provision was material where insured was only a mortgagee. National Fire Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 507.

An application for hail insurance, requesting insurance "on all interest in" a specified number of acres of which applicant was tenant, was not an assertion that applicant owned all the interest in the insured property, but that he desired to insure all his interest, and hence was not a misrepresentation avoiding the policy. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Pipkin (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 360.

— Value of property.—Representations that barn was worth $5,000 and that another company would have insured it for $4,000 were material, where made with intent to induce insurer to consent to policy becoming effective, constituted fraud. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Garnier (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 980.

— Health and physical condition.—In action on insurance certificate involving the question whether insured's statement in application that he had never suffered from syphilis was misrepresentation, verdict for plaintiff held so manifestly contrary to the evidence as to justify reversal. Sovereign Camp of Woodmen of the World v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 550.

— Habits and age.—In an action on an insurance policy, wherein insurer pleaded that insured had misrepresented the date of her birth, evidence held to support a finding that the year of birth on the application had been left blank by insured, and subsequently erroneously filled in by some one else. Royal Neighbors of America v. Sims (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 240.

— Other insurance.—A short form application for additional insurance held susceptible of meaning only that declarations, concerning applications for insurance in other companies, in the original application, were true when made. Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. King (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 348.

Insured's false statement in application for reinstatement of lapsed policy that he had not applied for insurance in any other company which had not been issued was a material misrepresentation, constituting fraud. State Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Rosenberry (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 242.

Art. 4948. No defense based upon misrepresentation valid, unless, etc.

Construction and application in general.—This article applies to hail insurance. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Pipkin (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 360.

Representations made by the owner of an oil mill seeking to bond an employé that such employé was to render a trial balance each month, etc., having been made a part of the contract with the surety company, and having been contained in questions asked and answers given thereto, were within art. 4951, providing every contract of insurance shall be accompanied by a written photographic or printed copy of application as well as a copy of all questions asked and answers given thereto. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Hico Oil Mill (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 479.

Health and physical condition.—Where a life policy provided it should not take effect as a contract of insurance unless actually delivered to the applicant therefor while he was in good health, plaintiff beneficiary, suing after insured's death, having admitted in her pleadings and in open court at the trial that insured was afflicted with tuberculosis of the lungs when the policy was delivered to him, and that such disease caused his death, the policy by its terms never became an obligation of the insurer, and the beneficiary can recover only the amount of premiums paid, despite the failure of the insurer, in case of misrepresentations, to give notice to the insured or the beneficiary, within a reasonable time after discovery that insured had tuberculosis of the lungs, that it would not be bound by the policy. Federal Life Ins. Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 795.

Notice.—Where obligee on treasurer's bond at request of surety made up report, which was required more than four months after notice of the default and notice of the falsity of the statements in the application, the defense of falsity of such statements was waived. Western Indemnity Co. v. Free and Accepted Masons of Texas (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1092.

A surety company, upon being sued by a bank for breach of a fidelity bond, cannot interpose as a defense representations by the bank's president that the books of the cashier had been found correct, where it was not shown that the company ever notified the bank of refusal to be bound because thereof or set them up in defense at all until the filing of its amended answer, more than one year after commencement of suit. Southern Surety Co. v. Citizens' State Bank of Hempstead (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 556.

Art. 4949a. Forfeiture of interest of beneficiary in life policy.—The interest of a beneficiary in a life insurance policy or contract heretofore or hereafter issued shall be forfeited when the beneficiary is the principal or an accomplice in willfully bringing about the death of the insured. However, providing when such is the case, the nearest relative of insured shall receive said insurance. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 16, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Rule prior to enactment of statute.—Right of wife who killed husband to insurance on his life, see Murchison v. Murchison (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 423; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Mellott (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 887.

Art. 4951. Policies of insurance to be accompanied by copy of questions, etc.

Application to surety or fidelity bonds.—Representations made by the owner of an oil mill seeking to bond an employé that such employé was to render a trial balance each month, etc., having been made a part of the contract with the surety company, and having been contained in questions asked and answers given thereto, were within this article; but questions asked the owner as to whether the employé was to render a trial balance each month and be checked by an auditor once a year, etc., and the answers to such questions, were not; the application having been made by the employé. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Hico Oil Mill (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 479 affirming judgment Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Hico Oil Mill (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 137.

Failure to attack application, etc., to policy.—A written agreement and representations not complying with these requirements, made by the president of a bank contemporaneously with the issue of a fidelity bond to the bank by a surety company, is not a good defense in an action for breach of the bond. Southern Surety Co. v. Citizens' State Bank of Hempstead (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 556.

Defendant surety company, having failed to accompany the bond of an employé sued on by the employer with a copy of the questions asked the employer and his answers given thereto, cannot prove its defense of false answers or representations made by the employer, whether such misrepresentations were made to induce the issuance of the contract or were such as to form part of the contract. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Hico Oil Mill (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 479 affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Hico Oil Mill, 203 S. W. 137.

Art. 4953. Policies shall contain entire contract.

See Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Short (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 225.

Cited, Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 254.

Construction and application of statute in general.—This article is binding upon the insured as well as the insurer. Gause v. Security Life Ins. Co. of America (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 346.

Defendant, accident insurance company, which, under policy sued on, required premiums to be paid monthly, was not engaged in the insurance business upon the "annual premium plan," within art. 4957, providing that chapter does not apply to companies carrying on business upon such plan, and it was not exempt from arts. 4953 and 4955. North American Accident Ins. Co. v. Hodge (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 700.

Insurer can avoid policy issued prior to January 1, 1910, upon ground that reinstatement of policy subsequent to such date was procured by fraudulent statements; this statute not applying to policy originally issued prior to such date. State Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Rosenberry (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 242.

— Parol promise.—Policy held conclusive evidence of contract as to time of commencement of risk, unless impeached by fraud or mistake, though application was made with different understanding. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Patrick (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1050.

Oral evidence.—In action on accident policy, held, testimony as to agreement with company's agent not contained in policy or application should have been excluded. National Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Reams (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 332.

Evidence that insurance application was accepted under understanding that it would be effective 24 hours after being wired to state agency, held not to contradict the application. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Patrick (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1050.

Parol waiver.—Provision in life policy exempting insurer from liability, except for amount of premiums paid, in case the insured should die while engaged in military service, authorized by art. 4741, subd. 3, could not be orally waived, in view of further provision that the policy constituted the entire contract between the parties, required by art. 4953, and provisions of art. 4954, that life insurance company or agent should make no agreement as to policy not expressed therein. Caldwell v. Illinois Bankers' Life Ass'n (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 747.

Parts of policy.—Where accident company agreed to furnish a copy of its by-laws to the insured, but failed to do so, and the insured had no knowledge of a condition in the by-laws making a claim for partial disability final and precluding recovery of a greater amount, he was not bound thereby. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Powell (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 957.

Application for accident policy or certificate becomes part of it when issued. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Votaw (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 237.

Application, certificate, and by-laws are all parts of a contract of mutual insurance, and full effect must be given to each if there is no ambiguity or contradiction, although in case of contradiction certificate will prevail. Pledger v. Business Men's Acc. Ass'n of Texas (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 889.

Medical examiner's report not mentioned or referred to in policies, held no part of contract, and misrepresentation therein could not annul the policies. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 616.

Art. 4954. Companies shall not discriminate.

See Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Short (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 225.

Rebate in general.—An agreement of an insurance company to lend money to one at a low rate of interest if he would take out insurance, not being mentioned in the policy, was void. Morris v. Ft. Worth Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1114.

Provision in life policy exempting insurer from liability, except for amount of premiums paid, in case the insured should die while engaged in military service, authorized by art. 4741, subd. 3, could not be orally waived, in view of further provision that the policy constituted the entire contract between the parties, required by art. 4953, and of this article, that life insurance company or agent should make no agreement as to policy not expressed therein. Caldwell v. Illinois Bankers' Life Ass'n (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 747.

Effect of discrimination.—See Cause v. Security Life Ins. Co. of America (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 346.

A policy holder cannot claim rescission of policy, in that he was deceived by a promise to lend him money at a low rate of interest if he would take out a policy, being charged with a knowledge of its invalidity. Morris v. Ft. Worth Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1114.

An agreement of an insurance company to lend money to one at a low rate of interest if he would take out a certain amount of insurance, not being mentioned in the policy, was void, and the policy holder could not in an action on a note given as a premium set up the defense that the insurer refused to lend the money. Gause v. Security Life Ins. Co. of America (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 346.

Arts. 4741, 4954, as to payment of premiums in advance and forbidding discrimination between insureds, relating to what an insurance policy should contain, do not have the effect of avoiding a policy issued in violation of their provisions. Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 254.

Recovery of premiums.—A life insurance policy issued in Texas to one aged 64 years at the premium rate for one aged 48 years violates the provision of this article, against discrimination between policy holders, but may be enforced by the beneficiary; insured not being regarded as in pari delicto with insurer. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Tabor (Sup.) 230 S. W. 397.

Art. 4955. Shall apply to all companies.

See North American Accident Ins. Co. v. Hodge (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 700.

Constitutionality.—In view of art. 4746, and Const. art. 3, § 35, held, that this article is void, so that a judgment awarding 12 per cent. penalty for failure to pay the loss on an indemnity bond was improper. Western Indemnity Co. v. Free & Accepted Masons of Texas (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1092.

This article is null and void because not within the purview of the caption of the act of the Legislature adopting it. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation, Limited, of London, England, v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 212.

Art. 4957. Chapter does not apply to fraternal beneficiary companies.

Construction and application in general.—Defendant, accident insurance company, which, under policy sued on, required premiums to be paid monthly, was not engaged in the insurance business upon the "annual premium plan," within this article, and it was not exempt from arts. 4953 and 4955, requiring policy to contain all the terms of the contract, and providing that application may be made a part thereof. North American Accident Ins. Co. v. Hodge (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 700.

Rev. St. 1911 constitutes a mere codification and continuation of laws formerly enacted, and therefore this article, which was intended to be a codification of section 65, Acts 31st Leg. c. 108, is controlled thereby. Id.

Art. 4960. [3061] [2943] Insurance unlawful unless authorized by commissioner of insurance.

Cited, Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 781.

Application to agent of foreign insurance company.—One licensed to solicit insurance as agent under art. 4960, need not procure an additional license as agent of a particular company under art. 4970, requiring agents of foreign companies to be licensed. National Surety Co. v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 465.

Art. 4961. [3093] Who are agents.

Existence of agency.—E., who had been furnished by a foreign insurance company with blank applications for insurance, supplied some to A., who solicited insurance from plaintiff, took his application, and forwarded it to E., who sent it to the company. The company sent a policy to A. through E., and A. delivered it to plaintiff, and collected and paid over the premium. Held, that A. was the company's agent. Southern Ins. Co. of New Orleans v. Wolverton Hardware Co. (Sup.) 19 S. W. 615.

One who turns over an application for insurance from a third party to an agent of an insurance company and collects the premium thereon is an agent of the company. Camden Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Wandell (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 289.

Evidence held to warrant finding that insurance was solicited and obtained on soliciting agent's authority to wire in application, liability to commence 24 hours later, and that there was an agreement to this effect. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Patrick (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1050.

The fact that a fire insurance agent has the policies of an insurance company signed by its officials, to become effective when countersigned by an agent, is sufficient evidence of agency for such company. Standard Fire Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Buckingham (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 531.

Uncontradicted testimony by a witness that he knew the agent of an insurance company, that the agent stated he was such, and talked with witness about the policy, held sufficient to warrant a finding that the person named by the witness was the agent of the insurance company. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 823.

Authority of agent.—Uncommunicated understanding of representative of insurer's general agent that policy was in force and fact that after fire adjuster entered into negotiations looking to settlement held not delegation of authority by insurer's agent to brokers to deliver policy contrary to terms of letter sent therewith. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Garnier (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 980.

Evidence held to authorize finding that soliciting agent had authority to contract that insurance should be effective 24 hours after being wired to insurer's state agency. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Patrick (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1050.

Where insurer's agent in renewing policy promised insured that he would attend to insurance of insured's property, such promise did not bind insurer to renew upon expiration, in absence of showing that agent had been authorized to bind insurer by such agreement. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Richey (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 383.

Where one desiring tornado insurance expressed his wish to a general agent for several companies, the agent was authorized to substitute a binder in one insurance company in lieu of a binder in another insurance company, where the insured had not been advised that any company had been selected. Shippers' Compress Co. v. Northern Assur. Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 939.

In the absence of information that an agent has no authority to write fire insurance except at the place where his office is located, an insured may presume that he does have authority to cover property located elsewhere. Standard Fire Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Buckingham (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 531.

Where local fire insurance agents have agreed to keep a certain property insured and have entered a memorandum on their books binding one company, they may, prior to loss, upon the cancellation of the first agreement, bind another company by a subsequent binder entry. Dalton v. Norwich Union Fire Ins. Soc. (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 230.

Local insurance agents have authority, upon a request by an insured for further fire insurance, to obligate their principals by entering a binding memorandum for further insurance, where they would have had authority to place such insurance with the principal forthwith. Id.

— Restriction.—Where an insurance policy provided that only certain named officers had the power in behalf of the insurer to make or modify any contract of insurance, a promise of a general agent in consideration of an application of insurance to lend the insured money was not binding upon the company. Gause v. Security Life Ins. Co. of America (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 346.

Provisions of application and policy, limiting agent's authority, are binding upon both insurer and insured. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 598.

Where application and policy were expressly made the entire contract between insurer and insured, and application provided that insurer was not bound by any statements or representations of the agent, and where insured signed receipt stating that he had examined policy and found it as represented, neither insured nor beneficiary could legally claim that the policy, as issued, was not the contract between the parties. Id.

Where express limitation on agents' authority that no statements or promises by them, unless written on the application, shall bind the company, was contained in an endowment policy itself and the application therefor, assignee of the policy was bound thereby, and could not claim to have relied upon any apparent authority in agents to commit the insurer by their individual statements as to the amount of dividends there would be on the policy at its maturity, where no such statements appeared in application or policy. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 896.

Ratification of unauthorized acts.—Where an insurance adjuster had prevailed upon his own and other insurance companies to refuse to write insurance for an individual, the act of such companies in complying with his request did not constitute a ratification of his unauthorized act, so as to make them liable therefor. Palatine Ins. Co. v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1014.

Where fire insurance policy was canceled by agent under orders from company and property destroyed by fire after another policy had been written in another company, that ratification of such new policy taken out by agent who was instructed to keep up insurance did not occur until after the fire did not prevent ratification from being binding on insurer. National Fire Ins. Co. v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 367.

Where a contract is made by fire insurance agents to keep certain property insured, the owner need not subsequently ratify such insurance. Dalton v. Norwich Union Fire Ins. Soc. (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 230.

If insurer issued policy with knowledge that agent had represented that premiums paid on a canceled policy would be credited on the new policy, it would be bound by such representation. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 598.

Agent of insured or insurer.—Agent of fire insurance company held to be agent of owner of property insured for purpose of acquiescing in cancellation of policy, notwithstanding that five-day notice thereof was not given. National Fire Ins. Co. v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 367.

There is no inconsistency between the duties of an officer of a bank which was the collecting agent of an insurance company with reference to the collection of the premium and his acting as agent for the insured in paying the amount of the premium into the bank; for the collecting of premiums by an insurance agent and the payment of such premiums by an agent for insured are merely ministerial, not fiduciary, acts, so that they can both be performed by the same person. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 709.

Liability of agent.—A general agent for several insurance companies owes the duty, to one applying for insurance without naming a company, to use his discretion in securing a company that will carry the risk, and to furnish insurance about which there will be no question. Shippers' Compress Co. v. Northern Assur. Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 939.

It was not essential as a prerequisite to the right of the manager of insurance companies to recover on a bond given by a defendant appointed by him as agent, the other defendants being his sureties, to prove that he, the appointing manager, had paid the insurance companies on defendant agent's default or become liable to them. Chapman v. Gross R. Scruggs & Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 471.

Bond of agent.—The manager of insurance companies, who, as such, appointed a defendant agent for such companies, and took the bond sued on from defendant with other defendants as sureties to secure the payment to him of money coming into the agent's hands under such appointment, had a special property in the premiums charged for policies written by the agent in such companies, and was entitled to recover against a surety on the bond, where it was shown that default had been made by the agent in the payment of the money required by the terms of the bond; it being sufficient to authorize recovery by such insurance companies' manager to show that the conditions of the bond had been breached and the amount owing to him by reason thereof. Chapman v. Gross R. Scruggs & Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 471.

Liability of insurer.—Criminal acts of defendant fire insurance company's general agent, who reinsured fictitious dwelling with plaintiff fire insurance company as its agent, and collected insurance for himself, held to create no liability against plaintiff, which could recover amount paid on fraudulent proofs of loss. Rio Grande Fire Ins. Co. v. Concordia Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 824.

Where a fire insurance adjuster, without authority to write insurance, agreed to enter into conspiracy with other insurance companies to prevent an individual from obtaining insurance, his act did not bind his principal. Palatine Ins. Co. v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1014.

Where the agent and employé of insurance agents issued a policy of the principal, assurance company, on his own property in the face of an approaching tornado without the knowledge and consent of the insurance company and without the knowledge and consent of his principal, agents of such insurance company, he perpetrated a legal fraud against the defendant insurer and cannot recover his loss. Commercial Union Assur. Co. v. Winstead (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 955.

A parol contract of insurance, made with an insurance agent representing several companies, the company to take the risk not being specific, and the agent not designating any company before the fire, is unenforceable, especially against a company that had forbidden him to write any such risk. Grimes v. Virginia Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 810.

— Waiver and estoppel.—Where insurance agent at time of issuing or renewing policy had in mind fact that insured was not owner, but only a mortgagee, of insured property, company is estopped to deny that it waived provision in policy that policy would be void if insured was not unconditional owner. National Fire Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Carter (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 507.

Where a fire insurance company ratified acts of its agents and accepted the benefits, it could not deny their agency or avoid responsibility therefrom. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 229.

After receiving several notices that assessments on him had not been paid, the holder of a policy in a mutual assessment insurance association had no right to continue to rely on the agreement of the secretary of the association to collect assessments on the policy holder by checks on the bank account of a brother-in-law of the policy holder. Hobson v. Wise County Home Protective Ass'n (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 583.

Where the cashier of a bank which acted as agent of an insurance company to collect premiums deposited as agent for insured the amount of such premiums, his knowledge of the acts of the insurance company with reference to such premiums is imputed to insured so as to establish reliance thereon by insured essential to show estoppel of the insurance company to assert want of agency. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 709.

Condition of fire policy on the stock of an automobile dealer that he should report to the company each car owned by him and its location as soon as known, and have an entry thereof made in passbooks provided therefor, was waived, the policy being, in effect, in renewal of a like policy for the previous year, and the agent having agreed with insured at the time of issuing the prior policy that he would from time to time visit insured's place of business and check up cars on hand and make the necessary reports and entries, and a report having been made during the life of the first policy of all the cars which were burned during the life of the second policy, and the agent having attempted to make an entry thereof, in the passbook; and this though by mistake he failed to make entry therein of some of them, and though the policy provided that no agent could waive any provision thereof unless the waiver was written thereon. California Ins. Co. v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1010.

Commissions.—In suit for agent's commission on life policy alleged to have been procured through joint efforts of plaintiff and one who was vice president and general manager of defendant insurer, held, under evidence, that plaintiff was in no sense the procuring cause, and was not entitled to recover, conceding existence of custom that, where two or more agents were interested, commissions were to be divided. Wichita Southern Life Ins. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 728.

Insurance company's agreement with agent providing for continuous renewal commissions upon policies thereafter written, without any limitation with reference to agent's voluntarily ending his service or any other limitation, held not to supplant previous agreement providing for continuance to renewals so long as agent did not voluntarily sever his connections with company; there being no such inconsistency between the two agreements as to preclude agent's recovery on renewals upon policies written prior to the execution of the subsequent agreement. Hartford Life Ins. Co. v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 814.

Termination of agency.—Where the agent for life insurance company bound himself to engage in no other business during the life of his contract, traveled over his territory and spent both time and money in establishing agencies, which both parties contemplated would be done, and company did not quit doing business as provided in contract, but voluntarily amended its charter so that it could not thereafter continue the business under the contract of writing insurance on the assessment plan, and there could be no renewals or commissions thereon, it terminated the agency, and the company was liable for damages for breach. Merchants' Life Ins. Co. v. Griswold (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 807.

Where an insurance agent was under contract to sell insurance on the assessment plan, and the contract was breached by the company ceasing to sell such insurance and adopting the level premium plan, the agent was under no obligation to accept employment of an inferior quality under the latter plan until he had tried to obtain other satisfactory employment. Id.

An agreement on the part of the former secretary of a mutual assessment insurance association to collect assessments on a policy holder by check on his brother-in-law's account did not justify either the brother-in-law or the policy holder in relying on the arrangement after a new secretary had taken office and notified the policy holder that four assessments against him had not been paid. Hobson v. Wise County Home Protective Ass'n (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 583.

A contract between a life insurance company and its agent, consisting in part of writing and in part of oral agreements, the writing containing provisions that, upon resignation, dismissal, death, or other termination of the agency during the year, the salary or commission which the agent had received should be in full of all his claims and demands upon the company, construed as meaning what agent had received up to such time, and that he forfeited anything that might afterward accrue on business done subsequent to his retirement, and also to contemplate a full adjustment and settlement of accounts on termination of agency. Teague v. American Nat. Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 131.

Where a life insurance company gave its agent a contract terminable at will of either party, without cause or notice, the original terms of which were modified to provide additional reward for additional services, provisions that should the contract terminate by resignation, death, dismissal, or otherwise during the year, the salary or commission which the agent had received should be in full of all his claims and demands, were in the nature of forfeitures, not favored in law, and will not be enforced in the absence of clear proof that they were so intended. Id.

— Right of recovery in general.—Where an insurance company breached its contract with its agent by ceasing to write the kind of insurance embraced in the employment agreement, it became liable to him for all damages reasonably resulting from such breach. Merchants' Life Ins. Co. v. Griswold (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 807.

Where an insurance company breached its contract with an agent both as to commissions on assessment policies that might have been written, and as to renewals thereof which would otherwise have accrued, the agent's suit for damages was properly brought for the breach, although before the stipulated termination of the contract, and it was not error to submit that the company was indebted to the agent on renewal contracts. Id.

In an action by an insurance agent against the company for breach of an employment contract, where the amount of damages depended largely upon the number of policies written and which would have been written, and which would not have lapsed during the period of his contract, which amount in no case could have been reduced to a certainty, and which might have been most satisfactorily shown by experts, evidence held such that the jury's verdict for plaintiff cannot be said to be unsupported. Id.

In an action by an insurance agent against the company for breach of an employment contract, such profits as it reasonably appeared were a loss to the agent by reason of the company's breach of the contract were proper elements of damages. Id.

In an action against an insurance company for breach of an agency contract to write insurance on the assessment plan, by ceasing to write such insurance an offer to the agent of a contract to write on the level premium plan, is material only in so far as it tends to reduce the amount of recovery by showing what he could have earned during the life of his contract and after its breach. Id.

Waiver of terms of policy.—In action on accident policy, held, testimony as to agreement with company's agent not contained in policy or application should have been excluded. National Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Reams (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 332.

Art. 4970. Company to notify commissioner of appointment of general agent.

Construction and operation in general.—One licensed to solicit insurance as agent need not procure an additional license as agent of a particular company under this article. National Surety Co. v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 465.

Art. 4972. [3096ee] Foreign corporations held to accept provisions of this title.

Construction and operation in general.—Where an insurance company entered into contracts insuring shippers of live stock against loss arising from damage to stock in transportation prior to issuance to the insurer of a certificate of authority, required by art. 4761, and loss resulted in the shipments by reason of negligence of the carrier, and under the conditions of the policy the insurer paid the amount of the losses to the shippers and took an assignment of their claims against the carriers, it cannot maintain an action against the carriers on such claims, in view of arts. 4900, 4972; the courts not lending their support to a claim founded upon the violation of express law. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 781.

Revocation of power of attorney.—Under Rev. St. Tex. 1895, art. 3064, requiring insurance companies desiring to do business in the state to file a power of attorney authorizing each agent to accept service of process, and consenting that such service shall be valid; art. 3070, providing that process might be served upon any person in the state holding a power of attorney, and that if no such person could be found process might be served by publication; and Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1904, art. 3096ee, making the two articles mentioned conditions upon which foreign insurance companies were permitted to do business in the state, and providing that any such company engaged in issuing policies should be held to have assented thereto as a condition precedent to its right to engage in such business—the revocation by a foreign insurance company of a power of attorney to one of its agents, without the appointment at the same time of any successor, was illegal, and service on such agent was good, especially where the power of attorney was revoked after suit was filed, and seemingly for the express purpose of preventing service on him. Hagler v. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co. (D. C.) 244 Fed. 863.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

LLOYDS PLAN

Art.		Art.
4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ .	Articles of agreement.	4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ f.	Additional or substituted underwriters; deputy or substitute attorney.
4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ a.	Attorney in fact.	4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ g.	Limitation of risks.
4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ b.	Application for license.	4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ h.	Action on policy or contract; judgment; process; fee.
4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ c.	Issuance of license; fee; duration.	4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ hh.	Revocation of license.
4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ d.	Amount of assets; impairment.	4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ i.	Application of insurance law.
4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ e.	Examinations; revocation or suspension of license.

Article 4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ . Articles of agreement.—That individuals, partnerships or associations of individuals, hereby designated “underwriters,” are authorized to make any insurance, except life insurance, on the Lloyds plan, by executing articles of agreement expressing their purpose so to do and complying with the requirements set forth in this Act. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 127, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Art. 4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ a. Attorney in fact.—That policies of insurance may be executed by an attorney in fact or other representatives, hereby designated “attorneys” authorized by and acting for such underwriters under powers of attorney. The principal office of such attorney shall be maintained at such place as may be designated by the underwriters in their articles of agreement. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ b. Application for license.—The attorney shall file with the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking a verified application for license setting forth and accompanied by:

(a) The name of the attorney and the title under which the business is to be conducted, which title shall contain the name Lloyds and shall not be so similar to any name or title in use in this State as to be likely to confuse or deceive.

(b) The location of the principal office.

(c) The kind or kinds of insurance to be effected, which kinds of insurance may be as follows:

1. Fire insurance, which term shall be construed to include tornado, hail, crop and floater insurance.

2. Automobile insurance, which term shall be construed to include fire, theft, transportation, property damage, collision, liability and tornado.

3. Liability insurance.

4. Marine insurance.

5. Accident and health insurance.

6. Burglary and plate glass insurance.

7. Fidelity and surety bonds insurance.

8. Any other kind or kinds of insurance, not above specified, the making of which is not otherwise unlawful in this State, except life insurance.

(d) A copy of each form of policy or contract by which such insurance is to be effected.

(e) A copy of the form of power of attorney by virtue of which the attorney is to act for and bind the several underwriters and a copy of the articles of agreement entered into between the underwriters themselves and the attorney.

(f) The names and addresses of all underwriters, whose number shall not be less than ten.

(g) A financial statement showing in detail the assets and liabilities accumulated and incurred and the income and disbursements received and made by the attorney for the underwriters.

(h) An instrument executed by each and all of the underwriters specially empowering the attorney to accept service of process for each underwriters in any action on any policy or contract of insurance, and an instrument from the attorney to the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking delegating the attorney's powers in this respect to the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ c. Issuance of license; fee; duration.—That upon compliance with the requirements of this Act and upon a showing of assets as provided in Section Five hereof [Art. 4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ d] the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking shall, upon payment of a fee of Ten (\$10.00) Dollars issue a license to any attorney applying therefor specifying the kind or kinds of insurance which he is authorized to make and containing the name of the attorney, the location of his principal office, and the title under which such business of insurance is to be conducted. Such license shall continue in force until surrendered by the attorney or revoked or suspended by the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking as authorized by this Act. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ d. Amount of assets; impairment.—That no attorney shall be licensed for the underwriters at a Lloyds under this Act, unless the net assets, including the guarantee fund provided for in the articles of agreement, held by the attorney, committee of underwriters, trustee or other officer, as provided for in the articles of agreement, shall be at least Forty Thousand (\$40,000.00) Dollars in cash or convertible securities; nor shall any attorney be licensed for the underwriters at a Lloyds to transact more than two kinds of insurance as defined in Section Three hereof, unless the net assets as above defined and held shall be as much as Ten Thousand (\$10,000.00) Dollars additional for each additional kind of insurance designated in the application for license; provided that if the underwriters have net assets as above described in an amount equal to One Hundred Thousand (\$100,000.00) Dollars, they may write any kind of insurance that may be lawfully written in this State except life insurance. If the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking shall find upon any examination of a Lloyds that the net assets as above defined are less than the amount required, the impairment shall be made good within thirty days from the service of a requisition for that purpose by the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking upon the attorney for the underwriters. If any such attorney or other person shall make any advancement to make good any such impairment, the claim for the same against the assets of the underwriters shall be deferred to claims for losses under policies or contracts of insurance. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 4972 $\frac{1}{4}$ e. Examinations; revocation or suspension of license.—That the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking may make examinations of the books and affairs of any attorney for underwriters at a Lloyds, the expense of any such examinations to be borne by the underwriters and the attorney and his deputies shall facilitate such examinations and furnish all information which the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking may reasonably demand. The Commissioner of Insurance and Banking may revoke or suspend the license of any attorney in case of breach of any of the conditions imposed by this Act and upon reasonable notice in writing to the attorney so that he may appear and show cause why such license should not be revoked or suspended. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 4972<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>f. Additional or substituted underwriters; deputy or substitute attorney.—That additional or substituted underwriters shall be bound in the same manner and to the same extent as though they had been original subscribers to the articles of agreement and power of attorney on file with the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking; and that the acts of the duly appointed deputy or substitute attorney of any attorney licensed under this Act in accepting powers of attorney from underwriters and in making and issuing policies and contracts of insurance and in doing any additional acts incident thereto shall be deemed authorized by the license issued to the original attorney. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 4972<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>g. Limitation of risks.—That no attorney for underwriters at a Lloyds shall assume any one insurance risk exceeding one-fifth of the amount of the net assets of the underwriters as above defined and the additional liability assumed by the individual underwriters in the articles of agreement and in the policies or contracts of insurance, unless such excess shall be promptly reinsured. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 4972<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>h. Action on policy or contract; judgment; process; fee.—That action on any policy or contract of insurance made by the attorney for the underwriters may be brought against the attorney or against the attorney and the underwriters or any of them. In such action, summons and process shall be served on the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking or on the attorney in fact and when so served shall have the same force and effect as if served on the attorney and on each underwriter personally. A judgment in any such action against the attorney or against any of the underwriters shall be binding upon and be a judgment against each and all of the underwriters as their several liabilities may appear in the contract of insurance on which the action is brought.

Whenever any summons or other process is served on the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking the same shall be served in duplicate and the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking shall forthwith by registered mail send one copy of the summons or other process to the attorney for the underwriters at the principal office designated in the application for license or latest amendment thereof. The party commencing any action against the underwriters at a Lloyds and securing service of process in this manner shall at the time of such service pay to the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking for the use of the Department a fee of Two ($2.00) Dollars, which he shall be entitled to collect as taxable costs in the action if he shall prevail. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 4972<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>hh. Revocation of license.—That all such underwriters, their attorneys, agents, and representatives transacting the business of insurance in this State on the Lloyds plan shall be governed and regulated by the provisions of this Act and upon violation of any of the provisions hereof the Commissioner of Insurance and Banking may revoke or suspend any license or certificate of authority issued under the provisions of this Act and * * *. [Id., § 10.]

Explanatory.—The latter part of this article imposes a criminal penalty and is set forth, post, as art. 693*ll*, Penal Code.

Art. 4972½i. Application of insurance law.—That except as herein provided no other insurance law of this State shall apply to insurance on the Lloyds plan unless it is specifically so provided in such other law that the same shall be applicable. [Id., § 11.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO TITLE OF INSURANCE IN GENERAL

3. Insurable interest in property.—Any one deriving benefit from existence of property or who would suffer from its loss has an "insurable interest," though having only an equitable title or other qualified property. Rolater v. Rolater (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 391.

A tenant farming land under agreement with the owner to do the work, the owner to furnish the money, that whatever was made over living expenses was to be paid on a debt owing by the owner for half of the land, and that half of the land when so paid was to belong to the tenant, had an insurable interest in the grain growing thereon. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Pipkin (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 360.

4. Insurable interest in human life.—Where beneficiaries were grandnieces of insured, relationship was too remote to constitute insurable interest, unless they had reasonable ground to expect that she would have contributed to their welfare. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 859.

In an action on a life policy payable to plaintiff as guardian no recovery can be had unless plaintiff be the guardian of some person who had an insurable interest in the life of the insured or unless she herself had such interest. Id.

On divorce being decreed, wife's insurable interest in her husband's life ceases, and she ceases to be a beneficiary under a policy naming her as such. Whiteselle v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 575, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Whiteselle, 188 S. W. 22.

5. Existence of contracts.—Application for insurance must be accepted by the proposed insurer before it can become a contract of insurance, but if an application for hail insurance was accepted by soliciting agent with understanding that it should be effective 24 hours, after being wired to state agency, insurer could not accept the application and reject this condition. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Patrick (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1050.

6. Executory agreement to insure.—Where soliciting agent accepted application on understanding that insurance would be effective 24 hours later, policy commencing insurance more than 24 hours thereafter could not be corrected except for fraud or mutual mistake. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Patrick (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1050.

Contractor to erect church, and sureties, held liable for cost of insurance paid by church trustees for breach of contract obligation to keep building insured and to carry liability insurance. Garrett v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 675.

Where plaintiff made a "John Doe" application for life insurance and defendant instructed him to make formal application in his own name agreeing that the policy would be issued, there was a contract to insure for which the submission to examination was sufficient consideration. Capitol Life Ins. Co. of Denver, Colo., v. Driscoll (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 872.

Where one desiring insurance applied to a general agent for a number of companies for insurance, without naming any company, he was chargeable with knowledge of a general custom to the effect that, when a binder was made in one company and no notice of the name of the company was given to the insured, the agent placing the binder could substitute one company for another without communicating with the insured. Shippers' Compress Co. v. Northern Assur. Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 939.

A contract of fire insurance executed by the entry of a binder memorandum by local agents must be construed in accordance with the terms and subject to the conditions of the standard form of policy in use by the insurer at the time. Dalton v. Norwich Union Fire Ins. Soc. (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 230.

An action may be maintained upon a contract to renew a pre-existing policy. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 277.

7. Oral contracts.—Evidence in action on alleged oral contract of life insurance held to warrant finding that it was understood between the parties that the making of the contract of insurance would not be consummated till the policy should be issued, and that till then the company could, as it did, refuse the application in accordance with the stipulations in the receipt given to applicant. Magness v. Great Southern Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 280.

On proper allegations and proof, that provision was fraudulently omitted from the policy recovery could be had on insurance contract as it should have been without bringing an independent suit to reform the contract. National Union Fire Ins. Co. v. Patrick (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1050.

An insurance contract may be entirely oral and is not objectionable as varying the terms of the written application for insurance. Ginners' Mut. Underwriters' Ass'n v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 285.

8. Ratification of contract.—Uncommunicated understanding of insurer's agent that policy was in force and that after fire adjuster entered into negotiations for settlement held not ratification of unauthorized delivery of policy or waiver of rights to complain thereof. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Garnier (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 980.

9. Acceptance of application.—Where an applicant for fire insurance covering a cotton gin agreed with a soliciting agent that the company should distribute the insurance in the policy among various items of property particularly described therein, and the company did so and sent the policy to the applicant, such apportionment, if fairly made, could not, especially upon insurer's insistence, prevent the policy from being an acceptance instead of a counter offer to insure. Ginners' Mut. Underwriters' Ass'n v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 285.

Where an application for fire insurance covering a cotton gin did not directly specify that loss was to be payable to lienors as their interests might appear and the policy as written provided for payment of loss to such lienors, such fact did not make the policy a counter offer not binding until acceptance by insured; there being no variance in fact between the application and the policy, and the application not being presumed to contain all the details of the policy. Id.

Where an application for life insurance itself provided that the policy should be void unless delivered to applicant while in good health, there was no unconditional acceptance of the risk, so that the company was not liable to the applicant's beneficiary upon refusal of its local agent to deliver the policy to her after applicant's death, from a disease contracted after the application was signed. Denton v. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 436.

11. Policy.—In absence of a statute governing such contract, the parties to an insurance contract may stipulate ad libitum. Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 254.

13. — What law governs.—Where property in Oklahoma was insured by Oklahoma standard policy after negotiations in such state, the effect of policy provisions as to the right of insurer's agent to bind insurer by agreement to renew was governed by laws of Oklahoma. Gallagher v. Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 212.

Art. 4741, forbidding issuance of a policy within the state unless it contains certain provisions, does not prevent suit within the state on a policy issued in another state, where the renewal premium was paid in still a third state in violation of one of the provisions of the policy required by the statute. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 709.

14. — Construction in general.—An insurance policy will be construed strictly against the insurer, and in case of any doubt, ambiguity, or uncertainty in its terms, it will be resolved in favor of insured. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation, Limited, of London, England, v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 212; Hardin v. Continental Casualty Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 653; O'Leary v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 575; International Travelers' Ass'n v. Votaw (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 237; Pledger v. Business Men's Acc. Ass'n of Texas (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 889; Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 891; Merchants' & Mfrs.' Lloyd's Ins. Exch. v. Southern Trading Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 352; Western Indemnity Co. v. Murray (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 696; Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 254; Missouri State Life Ins. Co. v. Hearne (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 789.

A provision of accident policy insuring against loss of a hand by complete severance at or above the wrist is not uncertain or ambiguous. Hardin v. Continental Casualty Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 653.

In construing a policy of accident insurance in absence of evidence to the contrary, it should be assumed that duties of general manager and his assistant of railroad company were same. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Votaw (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 237.

The application, certificate and by-laws of a mutual association, constituting the contract, should, if possible, be so construed as to harmonize with each other. Pledger v. Business Men's Acc. Ass'n of Texas (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 810.

Where a certificate of a mutual association refers to the by-laws as part of the contract of insurance and a copy of the by-laws is furnished, the member is presumed to have read the same. Id.

A fidelity company guaranteeing honesty of persons holding places of trust and performance of contracts and undertakings is an insurance company, and the same rules of construction apply to its contracts as to other insurance contracts. Western Indemnity Co. v. Free and Accepted Masons of Texas (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1092.

The provision in an insurance policy for shortening the period of limitation, being one for the benefit of the insurer, may be waived, and will be construed strictly against the insurer and liberally in favor of the beneficiary. Simmons v. Western Indemnity Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 713.

That a policy is a poor one for the insured cannot alter or affect its provisions. Hartwig v. Southern Surety Co. (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 455.

Generally, in construing contracts of insurance as in construing other contracts, conditions are to be taken most strongly against the writer of the policy. Travelers' Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Scott (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 53.

Where life policy which is ambiguous admits of a construction favorable to the insured, such construction will be enforced. Mitchell v. Southern Union Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 586.

Parties to an insurance contract are conclusively presumed to have entered into their contract with full knowledge of existing laws upon the subject which may affect the validity, formation, performance, operation, discharge, interpretation, or enforcement thereof, and that such laws enter into and become a part of the contract, binding the parties. Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 254.

If one interpretation of an insurance policy, looking at the other provisions of the contract and to its general object and scope, would lead to an absurd conclusion, or a conclusion which violates the statute and renders the contract void, such interpretation must be abandoned, and that adopted which will be consistent with reason and the law. Id.

Where two interpretations of an insurance policy, equally fair, may be made, that which allows the greater indemnity must prevail. Id.

A rider appended to a policy of workmen's compensation insurance issued to an employer held not to have modified the short-rate cancellation clause which had been duly approved by the commissioner of banking and insurance, and hence, where the policy was canceled before expiration of the period it had to run, the premium must be computed according to the short-rate cancellation clause. Joseph Weaver & Son v. Home Life & Accident Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 299.

It is a rule of decision applicable to the construction of insurance policies that, in order to determine the extent of the risk insured against, the conditions existing at the time of their issuance may be looked to. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation, Limited, of London, England, v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 212.

Where an application for reinstatement and a note executed contemporaneously constituted a contract for reinstatement, and both instruments were prepared by insurer, inconsistent clauses, as well as all doubts or ambiguities arising upon the face of the contract, must be resolved against the insurer. Missouri State Life Ins. Co. v. Hearne (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 789.

16. — Delivery and acceptance.—If there was authorized delivery conditional to take effect after furnishing further information and additional information when furnished consisted of material misrepresentations made with fraudulent intent policy never became effective. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Garnier (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 980.

Where neither the application nor the policy made delivery by an agent of the insurer a condition precedent to liability, and the receipt for premium paid by the applicant for insurance, which declared that no obligation was incurred until the policy should be delivered, was not given to the applicant, the contract of insurance did not require delivery of the policy to the applicant as a condition to liability. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Blyard (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 162.

Contract of life insurance was not complete without delivery of policies to insured, and delivery to a bank was not a delivery to insured, unless they agreed to or instructed such delivery. Wittliff v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 751.

The rule is that fraudulent representations of the agent, to be available to insured, must take place at the time of the delivery of the policy, at which time the contract is consummated, and a preliminary representation of insurer's agent that the premium would be a certain amount, when in fact the premium on the policy as delivered was more, was not fraud. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Short (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 225.

Where a fire insurance policy was delivered to insured for his acceptance, as insurer claimed, and was retained by insured without objection beyond a reasonable time, such retention constituted an acceptance of the policy, even if the policy be construed to constitute a counter offer and not an acceptance of an offer contained in the application for insurance. Ginners' Mut. Underwriters' Ass'n v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 285.

Where a fire insurance policy was delivered to insured on condition that it should be promptly returned if not satisfactory, with bill for premium inclosed with request for remittance if the policy was satisfactory, the condition was not one of payment and did not have the effect of making the delivery of the policy conditional. Id.

Under a policy conditioned on delivery during applicant's good health, the company is not liable, though there was an implied delivery by placing the policy in the mails addressed to the company's agent for delivery to the insured, where neither the company nor its agents knew of the illness of the insured subsequent to the acceptance of the application. Denton v. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 231.

Manual delivery of an insurance policy is not necessary, where there has been an acceptance of the application and the policy has been issued and mailed to the assured or to an agent of the company for unconditional delivery to the assured. Denton v. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 436.

Where policy, conditioned on delivery during applicant's good health, was mailed to the company's agent to be delivered only after he had ascertained whether applicant had had any attack of grippe, Spanish influenza, or pneumonia since being examined, and applicant, on the day before the mailing of the policy to the agent, was taken with influenza, developing into pneumonia, of which he died before receipt of the policy by the agent, who then refused to deliver it, there was no issuance and transmission of the policy through the mails for unconditional delivery. Id.

An applicant for a life insurance policy, who contracted influenza on the day before the policy was placed in the mails, and, before the policy was received, died from pneumonia resulting from influenza, was affected with a serious and dangerous disease, which directly contributed to the immediate cause of his death, and therefore, at the time the policy was placed in the mails, was not in "good health" within a policy condition of delivery during applicant's "good health," for the quoted phrase, although not implying that the applicant is free from slight ailments, means that he is not suffering from any serious or fatal illness or disease. Id.

17. Validity of policy issued while another was in force.—The issuance of an exact duplicate of original policy because of mutilation of the original is not the issuance of a new policy, but simply the issuance of a duplicate, and does not affect the rights of the parties. State Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Rosenberry (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 242.

18. — Property covered.—That a hail insurance policy insured "growing" grain did not prevent recovery, where the grain when destroyed by hail was ripe, in view of other provisions in the policy insuring the grain up to a certain date and exempting the insurer from liability after the grain was cut. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Pipkin (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 360.

Fire policies, describing goods as a stock consisting of display woollens and clothing, do not include the clothing belonging to customers of the insured, a tailor, which was in his hands for repairing or pressing. Northern Assur. Co. v. Lawrence (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 430.

20. — Estoppel of insured as to objections.—Where insured made arrangements with the fire insurer's agent for his insurance and to get credit for the premium, and immediately after loss secured the policy and presented claim thereunder to the insurer under oath, and, failing to secure payment or recognition, sued on the policy and prosecuted the suit to judgment, he elected to stand on such policy, which was in fact void on account of other insurance, and is conclusively bound by his action and conduct. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Boatner (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 1115.

21. — Modification.—Acts of insured and insurer held not abandonment of negotiations for reduction of amount of policy but to constitute contract of insurance at reduced amount of risk.—National Life Ins. Co. of United States v. Eggleston (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 942.

Failure to have guardian of minor beneficiary consent to reduction of amount of ordinary life policy held of no effect upon negotiations for reduction. Id.

22. — Reformation.—If by mutual mistake or fraud property was omitted from the policy, the insured, to recover, must set up facts which would authorize reformation of the policy and seek recovery as if it were reformed. Northern Assur. Co. v. Lawrence (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 430.

23. — Renewal.—Where an indemnity bond issued by plaintiff provided it should remain in force for one year, unless canceled by plaintiff, the contract held, unilateral, and terminable at the will of either party, being enforceable only for the period for which plaintiff had received the premium. Thomas v. Western Indemnity Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 944.

Where a health and accident policy extended until February 1, 1908, and for such further periods as might be stated in renewal receipts, held that the insurer was authorized under the provision of the policy, declaring that acceptance of any renewal premium shall be optional, to terminate the policy by refusing to accept a renewal premium; it being immaterial that the insurer's agent, who gave notice of termination, referred to the policy having lapsed. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Ball (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 71.

An oral contract with an insurer's agent for the renewal of a fire policy at its expiration is binding on the insurer and sufficient, although it was not reduced to writing until after the fire. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 277.

The payment of a premium is not essential to the validity of a contract to renew a fire policy, and in ascertaining whether the premium has been paid or waived the habit, custom, and course of dealing between the insured and the insurer's agent may be considered. Id.

In an action on a fire policy, refusal of defendant's request, at close of plaintiff's testimony, to give a peremptory instruction for defendant because there was no evidence sufficient to support a judgment against it was not error, where the evidence justified the finding of the jury that before expiration of its first policy plaintiff had made a contract with defendant's agent for the renewal of such policy at its expiration. Id.

Without an agreement to the contrary, the presumption is that when a contract to renew a policy is made it contemplates that the same terms, time, and premium as formerly existed should apply to the contract of renewal. Id.

That a renewal policy differed from the original fire policy in the length of time it was to run and in the amount of the premium, etc., did not militate against a recovery, where the insurer's agent was empowered to write the insurance as it was written. Id.

Where an insurance company, through its agent, agreed with insured to renew a policy on expiration thereof, but neglected to do so, and a loss occurred, held, that the insurance company was liable for the amount of the loss as though the policy had been issued. Austin Fire Ins. Co. v. Adams-Childers Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 339.

Where, when defendant company issued its fourth insurance policy on plaintiff's cotton, its agent did not know that the cotton had been removed to the compress, and wrote the policy at a lesser rate than he would if he had so known, and the plaintiff, without reading it, put it away among his papers, and the cotton was destroyed, it was error to render a judgment against the defendant for the insurance, for, on renewal, the insurer may assume that the subject-matter and its location are as described in the former contract, and insured could not excuse his failure to notify the insurer of the change of location on the ground that he did not know a change of locations affected the risk, as that is matter too obvious to be overlooked by a person of ordinary prudence. National Liberty Ins. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 895.

24. — Loans on policies.—Assuming that an agreement of an insurance company to make a loan to be secured by certain real estate and the insurance taken out could be deemed the legal and inducing cause of the contract of insurance, it would not be equitable to require the insurance company to make a loan at some time subsequent to the period for which the premium had been paid by note and at a time when the insured was delinquent as to the payment of such note. Gause v. Security Life Ins. Co. of America (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 346.

25. Premiums.—Where a workmen's compensation insurance policy issued to a master was canceled in less than the year it had to run, premiums up to the date of cancellation should be computed on the basis of remuneration paid by the master up to time of cancellation, and cannot be diminished on theory that the pay roll computed on basis of an entire year would be less than the amounts paid up to the time of cancellation. Joseph Weaver & Son v. Home Life & Accident Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 299.

An acknowledgment of receipt of the first premium contained in a life policy is conclusive, and will prevent the insurer from asserting invalidity of the policy delivered on ground of nonpayment, although the rule does not go so far as to prevent the insurer from recovering the amount actually due for premiums. Dunken v. Ætna Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 691.

Unconditional delivery of a policy, by its terms requiring payment of the premium as a condition precedent to its taking effect, is sufficient to constitute a waiver of such term; it being presumed from such delivery that the insurer intended to extend at least a temporary credit to insured. Ginners' Mut. Underwriters' Ass'n v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 285.

26. — Authority of agent.—Where the agent writing a life policy was entitled to retain 60 per cent. of the first premium and the assured had paid with his application a sum sufficient to pay amount which the insurer was entitled to receive, held that, as the agent was authorized to make any arrangement with the assured he desired and the assured would have paid amount remaining due, a finding that the assured, who died before delivery of the policy, had paid the premium was warranted. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Blysard (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 162.

Insured, who accepted a policy containing provisions authorizing an agent to collect renewal premiums only upon receipt furnished and signed by the general officers, has notice of the limitation of the agent's authority, and, if he makes payment to an agent not holding the receipt, he in effect makes the agent his own, in the absence of agreement, waiver, or estoppel, and the payment must reach the insurer in time to satisfy the terms of the policy. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 709.

It is the duty of an insurance company to see that a license required of its agent was taken out by him, and it cannot rely on his failure to have such license, where payment was made to the authorized agent, so that it was not error to exclude evidence of a statute of the state where the payment was made requiring the agent to have such license. Id.

Art. 4960, prohibiting a corporation from soliciting, selling, or placing life insurance policies in the state, does not prohibit a bank from receiving the money due a life insurance company for premiums. Id.

There is no objection to an officer of a bank which was an agent to collect premiums for an insurance company, acting as agent for the insured in paying the amount of the premium into the bank. Id.

28. — Payment by check or note.—A note given "in lieu of" an insurance premium was one given instead of, in place of, or in substitution of, the premium, and a receipt which so stated tended strongly to show that insurer had accepted and considered the note as a payment and not an extension of time. Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 254.

The tender of a bank check or certificate of deposit in payment of a premium is not sufficient compliance with the requirement of the policy. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 709.

29. — Liability for premiums paid by creditor or insurance agent.—Where agents of a life insurance company had a physician who took out a policy appointed medical examiner for the insurer on his agreement to pay the note given for the premium advanced by such agents with funds received for examinations, such physician, who received some $485, but paid only $85 on the premium note of $258, while tenaciously holding the policy, is estopped to deny his liability on his premium note to the agents, despite partial breach on the agents' part through failure to give the physician enough examinations in the six months at the end of which the note became due to pay it, such provision having been waived by the physician's agreement to give the agents all he might make for six months more. Dobbs v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1035.

33. — Refunding or recovery of premiums paid.—Iowa life insurance association, conducted on mutual assessment plan, by its reorganization into legal reserve or level premium company, pursuant to right under one of its articles of incorporation and Code Supp. Iowa 1913, § 1798b, a right conditional on change not affecting any membership dated prior to it, held to have breached contract with member, who became such prior to change, in respect of repayment of fund created for protection of certificate, and the member was entitled to recover sums theretofore paid by him with interest. Merchants' Life Ins. Co. v. Lathrop (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 593; Same v. Hanks (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 596.

In an action upon a policy for loss, where judgment was rendered in favor of the insurer declaring the policy void for breach of an iron-safe clause, it was error not to render judgment for plaintiff for the amount of premium paid and tendered to plaintiff by insurer's answer. Walker v. National Union Fire Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 683.

Though agent represented to plaintiff that premium would be $270 and plaintiff did not know that policy provided for an annual premium of over $337, where no concealment or fraud was used when application was made and the policy followed the terms of the application, plaintiff, who could read, but who kept the policy and application for about a year before examining them, cannot recover from the company the amount paid; he having actually received protection under the policy. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Short (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 225.

34. Right to assign policy.—One holding a policy in a life insurance company or association, in the absence of any by-law or rule to prohibit, may assign or borrow money on it, or make it payable to his estate, or he may give it away by parol. Phillips v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 477.

41. Rights of assignee.—Under employer's liability insurance policy, where surety on insured's appeal bond paid judgment and took assignment of the judgment and the policy, held, that it succeeded to rights of insured, and could recover against the insurer. Home Life & Accident Co. v. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1064.

Assignee or beneficiary of insurance policy takes policy subject to all defenses available before assignment, and is in no better position than insured, either before or after events insured against; the policy not being a negotiable instrument. State Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Rosenberry (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 242.

45. Cancellation of policy.—A fire insurance policy could not be canceled without tender of unearned premiums. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 229.

Where a fire insurance policy provided for cancellation at any time upon notice by the company, unearned premiums to be returned on surrender of the policy, a tender of such premiums was unnecessary as a prerequisite to cancellation; notice of cancellation, when properly given, canceling the policy. Austin Fire Ins. Co. v. Polemanakos (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 922.

In an action on fire insurance policy, evidence held to show that the insured agreed to a cancellation of the policy and that he waived present repayment by the company of unearned premiums. Id.

Where a fire insurance policy was canceled by mutual agreement, a demand by the insurer's adjuster for an examination under oath as to liability thereunder, and submission thereto by insured, did not estop the company from asserting the cancellation where insured had obtained other insurance, and the expenses incurred by reason of the examination were but insignificant. Id.

The five-day cancellation notice in standard fire policy, being for the benefit of the insured, may be waived by him through agent who has contracted to keep him insured, by accepting notice of cancellation from the company and substituting other insurance before the expiration of the five days. Dalton v. Norwich Union Fire Ins. Soc. (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 230.

47. Rescission of policy by insured.—A policy holder cannot claim rescission of policy, in that he was deceived by a promise to lend him money at a low rate of interest if he would take out a policy, which violated art. 4954, being charged with a knowledge of its validity. Morris v. Ft. Worth Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1114.

48. Rescission of policy by agreement.—In action on life insurance policies, evidence held to show release and surrender of policies not induced by fraud or false representations of insurer. American Cent. Life Ins. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 398.

Where fire policy with standard cancellation clause was canceled by insurer, insured, who, upon receiving notice of cancellation, immediately acquiesced therein, and surrendered policy to agent without demanding refund of the old premium, depending upon agent's assurance, that he would procure other insurance and apply overpaid premium upon new policy, could not recover upon the old policy, though agent failed to procure new one; the policy having been canceled by mutual agreement, and insured having waived the tender or return of unearned premium as a condition precedent to cancellation. Insurance Co. of North America v. McWilliams (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 80.

51. Damages recoverable from insurer on cancellation or breach of contract.—Where applicant contracts for policy which is refused, and he can then only obtain a like policy at increased premium, the proper measure of damages is the difference between the premiums of the policy contracted for and the policy he can get. Capitol Life Ins. Co. of Denver, Colo., v. Driscoll (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 872.

The repudiation and attempted cancellation, without cause, by an insurer of its contract of life insurance, during life of insured, though after a claimed total and permanent disability of insured which, if such, would entitle him to certain benefits, not terminating or impairing the contract, but it being terminated only by the voluntary election of insured to acquiesce in the abandonment, his measure of recovery is not the value of the policy, but, at most, the premiums paid with interest. Grand Lodge Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen v. Martin (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 40.

52. Forfeiture of policy for breach of promissory warranty, covenants or condition subsequent.—Although there was authorized delivery where there was understanding that policy should not remain in force unless further good faith assurances were furnished, fraudulent misrepresentations furnished inducing insurer's agent to take no steps to cancel policy, avoided it. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Garnier (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 980.

Provisions making an insurance policy on a building void "if the interest of the insured be other than unconditional and sole ownership," or if the building be "on ground not owned by insured in fee simple," construed to avoid forfeiture, relate to time of issuance of policy, and subsequent sale of ground does not forfeit policy. Insurance Co. of North America v. O'Bannon, 109 Tex. 281, 206 S. W. 814, 1 A. L. R. 1407.

Warehousemen were the agents of the owners of insured goods for the purpose of storing the property, and the removal by them of the property was in law the act of the insured owners, in so far as the insurer is concerned. Allemania Fire Ins. Co. v. Angier (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 450.

A policy holder is bound by the printed conditions of the policy, though he failed to read them. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Ball (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 71.

The right of forfeiture must be expressly stated, and not by reference, and must be embodied in the contract in plain and unambiguous language. Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 254.

Provisions of forfeiture in fire policies will be construed with strictness, and clear and unambiguous language and acts plainly within such language are necessary before a forfeiture is enforced. Philadelphia Underwriters' Agency of Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Moore (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 490.

57. — Building becoming vacant.—Condition in fire policy avoiding liability if premises were vacant or unoccupied held not violated by mere temporary absence. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Redditt (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 334.

Provision invalidating fire policy if insured property became "vacant or unoccupied" for 10 days is breached where tenants moved from building expecting to return each week, but were prevented from doing so for several weeks by weather conditions. Liverpool & London Globe Ins. Co. v. Baker (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 632.

A clause, in a fire insurance policy covering a gin plant, that policy should be void if building described become vacant or unoccupied for ten days, could mean no more than that building should be used for purpose of ginning during ginning season. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1170.

Under a fire policy covering a gin plant, assured warranting to operate gin plant during ginning season, it was no defense, regarding failure to operate plant during a season, that crop was so short that plant could not have been operated without loss. Id.

58½. Removal of personal property.—Where insured moved the insured goods to another residence situated on a different lot, there was no contractual relation between him and the insurer, unless breach of warranty of location was waived by insurer. Camden Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Bond (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 220.

Where a fire insurance policy provides that goods are covered only while they remain in the place where they were when insured, in the absence of a statute, no recovery can be had if they are moved elsewhere without the consent of the insurer. Standard Fire Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Buckingham (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 531.

61. — Additional insurance.—The taking out of additional insurance in excess of that allowed under a concurrent insurance clause, in violation of provision of fire policy making policy void if insured procured other insurance on the property covered by the policy, held a good defense in action on the policy notwithstanding arts. 4874a, 4874b, making breach of an immaterial provision of policy not contributing to bring about the destruction of the property no defense in action on policy, such statute having no application to breach of such provision of policy; it being material to the risk. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Waco Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 217, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 315; Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Levy & Rosen (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 216, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 1035.

A fire policy clause permitting certain concurrent insurance held not to conflict with or set aside a provision invalidating the entire policy in case another contract of insurance was taken on the property without the insurer's written consent. Home Ins. Co. v. Boatner (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1097.

"Additional insurance" on a store building was another "contract of insurance on property covered in whole or in part by this policy," within the prohibition of a previous policy on the store and stock of goods in a warehouse. Id.

A fire policy clause, forfeiting the policy in case the insured takes out additional insurance without the insurer's consent, is not affected by the insured's good or bad intentions nor by his ignorance of the clause in the absence of fraud or mistake. Id.

Where a fire policy provided it should be void if insured had or should procure any other insurance valid or not on the property, and one day after such policy was secured insured secured another policy on the stock of goods covered, the first policy became void and subject to be forfeited on loss when the rights of the parties became fixed. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Boatner (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 1115.

62. — Taking inventory and keeping books and safe.—Where insured is "to keep a set of books showing a complete daily record of all cotton handled, the weight and classification of each bale, all purchases, sales, and shipments with the identity of each bale," etc., it is sufficient compliance therewith if the books are sufficient to enable the insurer with reasonable certainty to arrive at the amount of the loss, and whether the books so kept enable the insurer to determine the loss with reasonable certainty is an issue of fact. Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 736.

Insured under fire policy held to have substantially complied with clause requiring inventory to be taken at stated periods. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. McMinn (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 638.

In a suit on a fire insurance policy, which defendant alleged insured had breached by failing to keep a set of books containing a record of the property on the premises, as provided by the policy, evidence held sufficient to support a finding that insured did keep the requisite books, "premises" including not only buildings, but land upon which they are situated. Merchants' & Mfrs.' Lloyd's Ins. Exch. v. Southern Trading Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 352.

An inventory stating neither the value nor the grade of the grain on hand, but giving only the quantity, held not a substantial compliance with the portion of the iron-safe clause requiring taking inventory, since by it the value of the stock insured could not be ascertained. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Walker (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 682.

The proposition that, where a new business is begun within twelve months from the date of the fire insurance policy, with an entirely new stock, the original invoices preserved in such form as otherwise to comply with the iron-safe clause constitute a sufficient inventory, is without application, where the business is a continuation of an old business at a new place. Id.

The clause of a fire insurance policy requiring a complete itemized inventory of the stock insured constitutes a promissory warranty, and failure substantially to comply therewith avoids the policy. Camden Fire Ins. Co. v. Yarbrough (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 842.

Inventory of insured lumber furnishing data from which the number of feet of pine boards, oak boards, oak timber, and gum ties could be ascertained, but containing nothing to indicate the grades of any of the classes of lumber, or whether composed of different grades, held not a substantial compliance with the promissory warranty of the policy requiring a complete itemized inventory of the insured stock, though it appeared the lumber had a mill run value, and was sold by insured on such basis. Id.

That insured in preparing an inventory of stock omitted old, unsalable stock held not to avoid the fire policy, which required the taking of an inventory. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Biggs (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 274.

Where insured produced a memorandum of an inventory taken in July before the policies were issued, and a complete inventory taken in the following January, together with record of transactions occurring thereafter, held that the fact that the earlier inventory was burned, and so was not produced, would not defeat recovery, despite the requirements of the policy as to taking an inventory and keeping it in an iron safe. Id.

Where insured duly prepared an inventory and kept it in an iron safe, the fact that the inventory was removed from the safe shortly before the fire without the insured's knowledge, by one of those from whom he acquired the business, and, having been left in a desk, was destroyed, held not to avoid the policy. Id.

Provisions of an insurance policy on a stock of goods requiring insured to take, preserve, and produce inventories and to keep books are promissory warranties, and, unless the law has been changed by statute, a failure to comply with either will render the policy void, but a substantial compliance is sufficient. Home Ins. Co. v. Flewellen (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 630.

Under a provision of an insurance policy requiring insured to take inventories and preserve and produce them after a fire, the failure to produce an inventory which was left at the bank with which insured did business, and was misplaced by it, and could not be found, did not avoid the policy, where a later inventory was produced, and invoices and account sales showing purchases and sales before and after such inventories to the time of the fire were produced. Id.

Where insured kept accounts of certain sales on pad slips placed on a spindle and recorded each sale on the cash register and each day compared the slips with the sales as indicated by the cash register, and added the items on an adding machine, the pad slips, cash register items, and adding machine slips, when pinned together and preserved, satisfied a provision of an insurance policy requiring the keeping of books, though they were not technically "books of account." Id.

Where insured kept invoices in a bound invoice book and a record of certain purchases on the stubs of his bound check book, the invoice book and check book constituted a substantial compliance with the provision of the policy requiring the keeping of books of account. Id.

Breach of the "iron-safe clause," requiring inventory books, etc., to be kept in fire-proof safe, required to be inserted in all policies covering stocks of merchandise by the Fire Commission Act, arts. 4876a-4904, held a good defense in action on policy insuring stock of millinery, notwithstanding art. 4874a, making breach of immaterial provision in policy not contributing to loss no defense in action on policy; such statute having no application to the iron-safe clause. McPherson v. Camden Fire Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 211, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1055.

Failure to comply with record warranty clause in a fire policy did not affect the validity of the policy in so far as it insured the building, although the policy provided that a noncompliance with such clause would render the entire policy null and void. Merchants' & Manufacturers' Lloyd's Ins. Exch. v. Southern Trading Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 312.

The anti-technicality law does not affect the record warranty clause in a fire policy. Id.

Where personal property, going into two buildings covered by two separate fire policies in separate amounts, was entered in insured's books in such a manner that the books themselves furnished no data from which it could be said that any of the property insured was covered by one or the other of the policies, there was no compliance by insured with the record warranty clause requiring a complete record of business transacted. Id.

Under a record warranty clause in a fire policy, the books themselves must reasonably and fairly afford the data contracted for, and resort cannot be had to extraneous sources for supplying this data in respect to matters essential to a substantial compliance. Merchants' & Manufacturers' Lloyd's Ins. Exch. v. Southern Trading Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 312.

63. — Change of title, interest or possession.—Change of interest of insured within a provision avoiding a fire policy therefor did not result, from the execution of a deed and placing it in escrow with a bank, where the condition on which its delivery was to be made was unfilled, and the deed was not delivered by the bank at the time of the fire. Philadelphia Underwriters' Agency of Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Moore (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 490 affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Philadelphia Underwriters' Agency of Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Moore, 202 S. W. 990; Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co. v. Stockstill (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1036.

In action on fire policy requiring unconditional ownership, plaintiff having deeded the land in escrow, change in possession of property by tenants held immaterial, except so far as throwing light on issue as to change of title. Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co. v. Stockstill (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1036.

Stipulation in fire policy that it should be void on any change in title of insured premises was valid. Springfield Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 784.

If, when delivered from buyers of insured premises to vendor, their deed back became effective as conveyance, it passed title in buyers to vendor, and effected change in title, within policy stipulation avoiding it for such change. Id.

Agreement to sell insured goods, if insurance company would transfer insurance to purchaser, not carried out because insurance company refused to make transfer, is not change in interest or title or possession of the property, within meaning of policy provision avoiding policy in case of such change. Detroit Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Boren-Stewart Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 382.

Where the owner of an insured building conveyed the land, reserving title to the building, with right to remove by a certain date, there was prior to such date no change of interest or title in the property, to work a forfeiture under a change of interest forfeiture clause. Insurance Co. of North America v. O'Bannon, 109 Tex. 281, 206 S. W. 814, 1 A. L. R. 1407.

A fire insurance policy is not violated by a change of title not of a nature to increase the motive to burn, or diminish the motive to guard the property from loss by fire. Id.

Fire policy, insuring a dwelling, furniture, and wearing apparel, as well as a barn and the contents thereof, in separate amounts, must be deemed as to the furniture and apparel, so that, where the policy was not canceled by the insured or his agent, the insured may recover for the loss of the furniture and wearing apparel, notwithstanding his sale of the barn and dwelling, where the property, when destroyed, was still in the dwelling; insured not yet having surrendered possession thereof. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. of New York v. Looney (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 1116.

64. — Incumbrances.—A proceeding commenced with "knowledge of insured" within provision of fire policy, providing that it should be void if with knowledge of the insured foreclosure proceedings be commenced, etc., means foreclosure commenced with insured's knowledge, and not a foreclosure of which he gains knowledge after it is filed, but knowledge of immediate purpose to file is tantamount to knowledge of commencement. Philadelphia Underwriters' Agency of Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Moore (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 490, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Philadelphia Underwriters' Agency of Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Moore, 202 S. W. 990.

67. — Nonpayment of premiums or assessments.—Under accident policy providing for renewal, where renewal premium was not paid on 1st day of month when due but was tendered 7th day of month, policy was not in force on 4th. the day of accident. National Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Reams (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 332.

Under life policy containing nonforfeiture provisions, held that, where insured failed to pay third premium, which was paid from loan value, and he died after fourth premium became due, when loan value in excess of the indebtedness was not enough to pay fourth premium, there could be no recovery on the policy. Meserole v. Southwestern Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1161.

Under life policy, giving 30 days' grace in payment of premium and providing that if premium has not been paid within period of grace and policy has not been surrendered the insurance will automatically continue for such term as is stated below (for one month in the instant case), held that period of automatic continued insurance began at the end of the grace period, so that where insured, who had paid first premium only, died after the expiration of the grace period for payment of second premium, but within one month after expiration of grace period, the policy was in force at the time of his death. Mitchell v. Southern Union Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 586.

A "Five-Year Term Nonrenewable Policy," providing for the payment of five annual premiums, "the first payable in advance, and a like sum upon each 28th day of February thereafter during the continuance of this policy until five full years' premiums have been paid, or until the prior death of the insured," was not a contract of "term insurance" under which an insured has only the right upon payment of an annual premium to insurance upon his life for the term paid for and the right to continue the insurance from year to year or term to term at the same rate, and default in payment of an annual premium did not ipso facto forfeit the policy. Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 254.

When the conditions as to forfeiture for nonpayment on maturity of a note given for a premium are contained only in the note, the mere fact that the note is not paid at maturity does not, of itself, avoid the policy, such a provision being a condition subsequent, of which the insurer must avail itself by clear and unequivocal acts, and insurer must demand payment at proper time, and, if no payment is made, must declare the policy forfeited or void. Id.

Provision in a life policy to the effect that it is issued in consideration of the payment of premiums in advance annually, and that the policy and application constitutes the entire contract, which "shall be incontestable except for the payment of premiums," are far from being express provisions that upon default of payment of premiums the policy is ipso facto forfeited, and they merely give the insurer the right to plead failure of consideration or contest payment in an action to recover on the policy. Id.

In action on life policy claimed by insurer to have lapsed, evidence held sufficient to warrant a finding that insurer had unconditionally extended premium note to a date beyond that of insured's death. Roberts v. Wichita Southern Life Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 268, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Wichita Southern Life Ins. Co. v. Roberts, 186 S. W. 411.

Payment of a renewal premium is sufficient to prevent forfeiture of the policy if made to an agent of the insurance company authorized to accept such payment either expressly or by waiver or estoppel, even though the payment is not thereafter transmitted to the insurance company before the expiration of the time for payment of premiums or at all. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 709.

Where the beneficiary relied upon payment of a premium by a certificate of deposit sent to the insurance company, she must show that the certificate reached the company before the day of grace for payment expired, and was accepted by the company as a payment. Id.

Where an insurance application and policy contemplated the giving by insured of an order on his employer's paymaster for the premium and made such order a part thereof and the order given directed payment in installments, the first of which was to be paid from insured's wages for July, and the employer paid its employees' wages for the first part of the month on the 30th and for the last part of the month on the 15th of the following month, and insured died on August 7th, before the last of his July wages were payable, the premium was not overdue and the insurance had not lapsed. Continental Casualty Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 369.

68<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>. — Interests of mortgagee.—Where a mortgagee was made the owner of a fire policy as his interest might appear, with the provision that his interest should not be invalidated by any act or neglect of the mortgagor, the contract between the insurer and mortgagee is separate from that between the insurer and mortgagor, and the forfeiture of the mortgagor's rights by taking out additional insurance does not authorize the insurer to pay only three-fourths of the loss to the mortgagee under a clause restricting the recovery to such amount in case of other insurance. Home Ins. Co. v. Boatner (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1097.

69. — Reinstatement of lapsed policy.—Upon reinstatement of life policy, the policy as originally issued became as effective as if no forfeiture had been declared, unless the contract for reinstatement itself was tainted with such fraud as would justify the company in repudiating it. State Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Rosenberry (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 242.

Contract for reinstatement of life policy is not a new contract of insurance, but a waiver of the forfeiture restoring the policy and making it as effective as if no forfeiture had occurred, but reserving the right of the insurer to avoid the effect of reinstatement by showing reinstatement was induced by unfair and fraudulent means. Id.

Insurer, having reinstated lapsed life policy, can defeat liability thereon by asserting and proving that contract by which policy was reinstated was induced by material false representations or warranties. Id.

Under a life policy providing that, if premium is not paid on date when due, insurer will reinstate the policy as of said due date at any time thereafter upon "evidence of insurability satisfactory to the company, and payment of all arrears," etc., an insured who was admittedly in excellent health was entitled to reinstatement as a matter of right; the word "insurability," when used in life policies, being no more comprehensive than that of good health and an insurable interest, such being its ordinary and plain meaning and the popular sense in which it is understood. Missouri State Life Ins. Co. v. Hearne (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 789.

A clause in a note given upon reinstatement, that upon payment of the note "all rights under said policy shall thereupon be the same as if said premium had been paid when due," will not give way to a clause in the application for reinstatement providing that, in case of insured's death by suicide within one year, the company would be liable only for the reserve on the policy; the two clauses being inconsistent, and both instruments being prepared by the insurer. Id.

An application for reinstatement after lapse of policy and a note executed contemporaneously together constituted the contract of reinstatement. Id.

70. Estoppel or waiver of conditions or right of forfeiture.—Failure of insured to tender amount of premium notes on reduced policy held not to work forfeiture thereof, where insurer never accepted notes or made demand for payment. National Life Ins. Co. of United States v. Eggleston (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 942.

Where insurer in negotiations recognizes continuing validity of policy, after knowledge of conditions upon which claim of forfeiture is based, or requires insured by virtue thereof to do some act or incur some trouble or expense, the forfeiture is, as a matter of law, waived. Western Indemnity Co. v. Free and Accepted Masons of Texas (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1092.

Where, after damage to goods and removal to other location within knowledge of insurer, a duplicate receipt in sum of loss, providing "said policy is hereby reduced in said sum," and unearned premium was not returned, the insurer waived the right to avoid policy for removal of goods. Camden Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Bond (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 220.

Whenever there arises a condition under which an insurer has the right on account of any failure of the insured to comply with any condition or warranty contained in the policy, to forfeit the same, the doing of any act inconsistent with the claim of forfeiture, or any recognition of the existence of the policy waives the forfeiture if insurer had knowledge of the facts authorizing it. Austin Fire Ins. Co. v. Polemanakos (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 922.

Where insured sells and conveys property covered by policy to a third party, and with consent of insurer assigns policy, a new contract is entered into by insurer with purchaser which will not be affected by any previous breach on part of vendor. State Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Rosenberry (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 242.

That insurer on the day of insured's death treated the policy as being still in existence by sending insured a notice of the premium to become due, and the fact that nothing appeared on the books of insurer previous to such time showing that it had exercised its right of forfeiture for nonpayment of past-due premiums, held to show that insurer had not seen fit to exercise the right of forfeiture for nonpayment of premium. Roberts v. Wichita Southern Life Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 268, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Wichita Southern Life Ins. Co. v. Roberts, 186 S. W. 411.

As the law abhors forfeiture, it will seize on slight circumstances to show that an insurance company has waived compliance with the provisions requiring prompt payment of premiums, and in such case conduct with respect to other premiums than those the failure to pay which is relied on as constituting a forfeiture may be considered. Dunken v. Ætna Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 691.

Where it is claimed that an insurer waived a forfeiture, no act by the insured is necessary; the waiver being essentially unilateral in character, and depending only on the acts and conduct of the insurer since waiver of forfeiture of provisions in a life policy need not be supported by consideration or based on estoppel. Id.

Where an indemnity policy provided that the insurer at its own expense would settle or defend suits and that the insured should not assume any liability or interfere with any negotiation or proceedings, the insurer by assuming to defend an action against the insured was made unconditionally liable for any judgment rendered against the insured up to the amount of the indemnity, and insured was not compelled to pay the judgment in order to recover from the insurer, nor could the insurer escape on the contention that the cause of action was not within the scope of the policy. American Indemnity Co. v. Fellbaum (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 873.

One of several fire insurers, defendants, whose policy was void on account of other insurance effected by insured, held not estopped to make the defense of the invalidity of the policy on account of such other insurance, though counsel for all the insurers on trial did not contend the policy was void and should be annulled; it being set up by the insurers as the means to escape liability under provisions in other policies, etc. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Boatner (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 1115.

Courts are disposed to seize upon slight circumstances to prevent a forfeiture of an insurance policy, and, in the absence of fraud where insured made an effort to transmit his premium in time, trivial or technical objections to the manner of payment will not defeat it as a payment if there are acts or conduct on the part of the insurance company which would induce the insured to omit to follow the strict letter of the policy. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 709.

The conduct and dealings of an insurance company may be such as to estop the company from declaring a forfeiture because payment of premium was not made in the manner required by the policy, but the tender of a bank check or certificate of deposit in payment of a premium is not sufficient compliance with the requirement of the policy unless in the course of dealings between the parties similar payments have been received so as to estop the insurer from claiming that payment in that manner was insufficient. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 709.

Where the agent of insured notified the agent of the insurance company that he had the money and was ready and willing to pay the premium on the policy, the refusal of the company's agent to accept the payment unless an additional amount, unauthorized by the policy, was paid because the insured was then in France, waived tender of the premium by insured or his agent in money. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 823.

71. — What conditions may be waived.—Notwithstanding art. 4968, a life company may waive provision that a soliciting agent shall have no power or authority to waive or change the terms of a policy, and waiver may result by acts of such agents authorized or acquiesced in by the officers. Dunken v. Ætna Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 691.

The stipulation in an insurance policy for payment only to an agent having the receipt furnished and countersigned by the general officers of the company may be waived so that it does not necessarily render inadmissible any other kind of receipt or proof of payment. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 709.

73. — Effect of provisions in application or policy.—Insurer can avoid life policy more than a year after issuance thereof upon ground that reinstatement was procured by fraud, notwithstanding clause making policy incontestable after year from its date; such clause not applying to fraud inducing reinstatement. State Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Rosenberry (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 242.

Provision in life policy exempting insurer from liability, except for amount of premiums paid, in case the insured should die while engaged in military service, authorized by art. 4741, subd. 3, could not be orally waived, in view of further provision that the policy constituted the entire contract between the parties, required by art. 4953, and provisions of art. 4954, that life insurance company or agent should make no agreement as to policy not expressed therein. Caldwell v. Illinois Bankers' Life Ass'n (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 747.

In view of art. 4961, as to who are insurance agents, condition of fire policy on the stock of an automobile dealer that he should report to the company each car owned by him and its location as soon as known, and have an entry thereof made in passbooks provided therefor, was waived, the policy being, in effect, in renewal of a like policy for the previous year, and the agent having agreed with insured at the time of issuing the prior policy that he would from time to time visit insured's place of business and check up cars on hand and make the necessary reports and entries, and a report having been made during the life of the first policy of all the cars which were burned during the life of the second policy, and the agent having attempted to make an entry thereof, in the passbook; and this though by mistake he failed to make entry therein of some of them, and though the policy provided that no agent could waive any provision thereof unless the waiver was written thereon. California Ins. Co. v. Bishop (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1010.

74. — Knowledge or notice of facts.—Where the agent of an insurance company knew the facts in regard to the policy and caused it to be written with an erroneous ownership clause, the company is estopped from setting up such clause as a defense in an action on the policy. Camden Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Wandell (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 289.

Insurer, having reinstated lapsed life policy, was not estopped from asserting invalidity of reinstatement because of consent to assignment, where it was ignorant of the deception practiced at time of reinstatement, and immediately on discovery thereof gave notice that it would no longer be bound by the policy. State Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Rosenberry (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 242.

Clause of fire policy on cotton gin, whereby insured warranted under penalty of forfeiture that the property should be in active operation during the ginning season, held not waived by insurer because its soliciting agent was informed insured had not ginned any cotton during season preceding the policy year, while too little cotton was produced in the vicinity during the policy year to permit profitable operation. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Roan (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 985.

Where insured accepted a health policy, reserving to insurer the right to cancel the policy at any time on notice and return of unearned premiums, that insurer had knowledge that insured was ruptured prior to the execution of the policy did not constitute an estoppel on insurer to cancel the policy on that ground. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. v. Florence (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 471.

A bank, which was a mere collecting agent for an insurance company as to notes given for premiums, could make no agreement with an insured which would waive insurer's rights under its contract, and notice to the cashier of the bank was not notice to insurance company of an intent to accept an offer of the insurer to extend a note. Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 254.

Acceptance by an insurance company of payment of a premium before the expiration of the time for payment may waive the right to forfeit the policy for failure to pay in the manner required, though the insurance company, when it accepted the payment, was ignorant of the serious illness of insured. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 709.

75. — Delivering policy with knowledge of facts.—In a suit to reform an insurance policy erroneously stating the name of the owner of the property, defendant company was estopped to deny the validity of the policy when its agent, with knowledge of the true ownership, issued the policy in the name of the estate of a former owner and collected the premium therefor. Camden Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Wandell (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 289.

Conditions of forfeiture, because insured was not the unconditional owner, are waived where agents of insurer knew, at time of issuance of policy, that insured was not the unconditional owner. Northern Assur. Co. v. Lawrence (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 430.

Defendant fire insurer of a stock of lumber located on a railroad switch, which when plaintiff insured presented to its local agents the inventory required by the record warranty clause in the policy, did not, through such agents, object to the inventory as not a compliance with such clause, plaintiff insured believing he was meeting the requirements of the insurer, held to have waived the noncompliance with the record warranty clause, being estopped to set up the same as a defense to the suit after a loss, though the inventory was in part for the purpose of showing the value of the property to be insured. Camden Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Yarborough (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 336.

76. — Acceptance of premium.—Under accident policy providing for renewal after 1st day of month when premium was due, but that company was not liable for accidents occurring between 1st day of the month and date premium was paid, held, previous acceptance of renewal premiums after 1st day of month was not waiver of condition mentioned. National Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Reams (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 332.

Under policy on the life of her son in the army taken out by his mother, which stipulated that, if permit for military service was not obtained and additional premium paid, the company's liability would be restricted to the net reserve on the policy, the insurer had no right to declare it forfeited for failure to obtain the permit, and the mother, the beneficiary, had the right to continue payment of the premiums stipulated, and to preserve the life of the policy, subject to such restriction, and acceptance of the premiums by the insurer did not estop it to deny liability for the face of the policy. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 487.

Where a life insurance policy had been forfeited under its terms for nonpayment of a renewal premium, acceptance of payment of the premium by the insurance company without knowledge that the insured was then dead does not waive the forfeiture, since waiver presupposes a full knowledge of an existing right and an intentional surrender or relinquishment of that right. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 709.

Payment of a renewal premium on a policy containing the provision required by art. 4741, that payment shall be made to an agent on delivery of receipt signed by an officer of the company, if accepted by the company, though made to an unauthorized agent is not void so as to authorize forfeiture of the policy. Id.

77. — Demand for payment of premium.—Where a renewal policy was written up, and after being informed of the circumstances as to a loss and the renewal the insurer demanded of insured the payment of the premium thereon, which it received and retained, it was estopped from denying liability of the loss. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 277.

78. — Extension of time for payment of premium.—Insurer's proposal by letter that if insured would make partial payment of amount due on premium note the balance would be extended a reasonable time, although conditional, and not accepted by insured so as to become a binding contract, held to have waived forfeiture for nonpayment of the premium note at its maturity, under the principle of waiver of forfeiture by conduct leading insured to honestly believe premium would be received after the appointed day. Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 254.

An extension agreement was consummated when insured executed and returned to insurer a note given for a premium, and any attempt to ingraft further conditions or provisions upon it by a receipt sent him thereafter was without effect. Id.

If insurer on maturity of premium note offered to extend time for payment of insurance upon insured's making a new application and executing a new note, such offer, while not binding upon insurer until accepted by insured, would nevertheless constitute a waiver on the part of insurer of the right to enforce forfeiture. Roberts v. Wichita Southern Life Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 268, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Wichita Southern Life Ins. Co. v. Roberts, 186 S. W. 411.

86. — Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—In an action on a fire policy, evidence held to support a finding of the jury that the books of plaintiff were a substantial compliance with a warranty record clause in a policy requiring insured "to show a complete daily record of all cotton handled, the weight and classification of each bale, all purchases, sales, and shipments, with the identity of each bale." Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 736.

88. Risks and causes of loss—Marine insurance.—A loss or damage is not prevented from being one by perils of the sea by the co-operation of such other causes as acts or omissions of the owner or his agent amounting to negligence, but not amounting to fraud or design so that where a vessel listed and sank while in harbor because a watchman neglected to close a sea cock opened to take in water for use in boilers, the accident was one of the perils of the sea, and a marine insurance company was liable under its policy for the expense of raising and repairing the vessel. Charles Clarke & Co. v. Mannheim Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 528.

Any loss proximately caused by unseaworthiness of the vessel at the time of leaving port is not a loss by peril of the sea. Id.

Where the loss or damage is from causes independent of the sea or its action, or is not peculiar to navigation, it is not by a peril of the sea; in other words, the peril must be one "of the sea," and not merely one occurring "on the sea." Id.

Loss or damage occasioned by natural deterioration or decay, or by ordinary wear and tear of the vessel, are not within the term "perils of the sea." Id.

Generally, any loss or injury is occasioned by a peril of the sea which has for its proximate cause the fortuitous action of the sea, operating either singly or in conjunction with other elements or causes, or is peculiar to transportation by vessels supported by the sea or its buoyancy. Id.

89. — Insurance of property.—Under policy insuring automobile against collision, held, there could be no recovery for damages caused by second floor of garage falling upon it. O'Leary v. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 575.

Policy insuring carriages against fire, "all while contained in the one-story metal roof, iron-clad building," at a certain address, did not render the insurer liable for damage to a carriage while in different shop undergoing repairs. Home Ins. Co. of New York v. McClaran (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 718.

Where one leaving El Paso for Waco, Tex., had goods which he desired covered by fire insurance, and an agent in El Paso issued a policy to him to cover the goods in El Paso, and told him that the policy would cover the goods when moved from El Paso to Waco, which the policy did not in fact do, insured was entitled to recover for loss of the goods by fire in Waco, on the ground of mutual mistake, in that the policy did not express the real contract made, or on the ground that the same was the result of a mistake on the part of the insured and legal fraud on the part of the agent. Standard Fire Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Buckingham (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 531.

In an action on burglary and theft policy, evidence held sufficient to warrant a finding that articles disappearing from plaintiff's residence were taken by burglars or thieves without his consent. National Surety Co. v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 461.

Under a policy of fire insurance providing that the company should not be liable for loss caused directly or indirectly by explosion of any kind, if a building fell by reason of an explosion before fire broke out, the policy was terminated by the falling of the building. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co. v. Westmoreland (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 471.

In an action on a policy, insuring an automobile against sinking in conveyance by water, where the petition alleged that a ferry carrying the car sunk when the car was on it, which was proved, it is immaterial that by way of implication the petition also charged the ferry was held down at the bottom of the stream by the car, and proof of the mere averment of sinking would fasten liability on the insurer, though there was showing that after the first sinking with the car, the ferry, relieved of weight by the car's having slid off, rose again to the surface. American Automobile Ins. Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 92.

In an action on a policy insuring an automobile from fire, explosion, lightning, burning, derailment, collision, and stranding or sinking of any conveyance by land or water in which the car was being transported, the defense of unseaworthiness of the ferry in which the car was being carried when the ferry sunk was not applicable to the particular contract, in view of the nature of the risk. Id.

A policy insuring against damage by tornado, windstorm, or cyclone, expressly excepting damage through any tidal wave, high water, or overflow, and damage caused by water or rain, whether driven by wind or not, covered only losses resulting from wind and no other cause, and parties having stipulated it was impossible to determine to what extent wind and water were factors in causing a loss, it was excluded from indemnity provided. Coyle v. Palatine Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 973, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Palatine Ins. Co. v. Coyle, 196 S. W. 560.

Where fall of building was caused by an explosion upon which fire immediately ensued, the insurer was liable for the damage inflicted by the fire under provision of policy making insurer liable for damage caused by fire on an explosion, notwithstanding other provision providing for termination of the policy on the building or any part thereof falling, except as the result of fire, since the two clauses must be construed together. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co. v. Mims (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 738.

Under fire policy providing that insurer should not be liable directly or indirectly for damages caused by explosion, unless fire ensued, and in such case for fire damage only, insurer was not liable for explosion damages as distinguished from damages from fire following the explosion damage, where both resulted from an explosion in an adjoining building, which wrecked insured's building, which thereupon took fire; it being immaterial that the explosion in the adjoining building was caused by antecedent fire therein. Id.

If fire originated in insured building and spread to and caused explosion in adjoining building, insurer would have been liable for damage to insured building resulting from such explosion, notwithstanding clause in policy providing against liability for damage caused by explosion. Id.

90. — Indemnity Insurance.—A casualty insurance policy to cover all employes "legally employed" does not cover persons employed in violation of law as to age. Wartman Lumber Co. v. Beatty (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 448.

Liability policy agreeing to indemnify insured, dealers in paper bags, against loss from liability for injuries sustained within premises designated as "store and warehouse," in which insured was to conduct no business "except as store and warehouse," held to cover accident to operator of printing press upon the premises, where the printing of bags and paper was a necessary part of the business of the store and warehouse of insured. Continental Paper Bag Co. v. Bosworth (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 126.

Employe of pipe line contractor, hired in Texas, whose work took him into several states other than Texas, having been placed in charge of work in the Caddo oil field, including a part of Louisiana, and Marion and Panola counties, Tex., in view of such facts and others, held a Texas employe of the contractor when injured in Louisiana in his work of superintendence, and under the protection of the contractor's policy. Home Life & Accident Co. v. Orchard (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 705.

Under provisions of liability policy issued by insurer to firm of engineers, insurer held liable to traction company for whom firm of engineers undertook to do work for amount paid to injured servant of subcontractor if it could be said his injuries were caused by the performance of the work undertaken by the firm of engineers. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation, Limited, of London, England, v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 212.

A liability policy, issued to a firm of engineers which undertook to do paving work for a traction company, providing that the injury must have been caused by the performance of the work, meant substantially that injury to an employe (in the particular case the employe of a subcontractor) must have been sustained by reason of the performance of the work and as an incident thereto. Id.

Work of paving between and outside of its tracks required by the city as a franchise condition of plaintiff traction company suing the liability insurer of the firm of engineers which had undertaken the work on its (the traction company's) behalf, held being done and conducted by the traction company within the meaning of certain stipulations in one of the liability policies. Id.

Construed with a liability policy issued to an employer before enactment of Workmen's Compensation Law (arts. 5246h-5246zzzz), and binders thereafter attached, a subsequent policy, in which were merged all previous obligations, and which was made retroactive, held to cover master's liability at common law as well as under the Compensation Act. Trinity County Lumber Co. v. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 114.

91. — Life Insurance.—Clause in mutual benefit policy, avoiding liability for death if insured was killed while engaged in any illegal business, does not release from liability where insured was shot while resisting arrest or attempting to escape from an officer. American Mut. Benefit Ass'n v. Joshua (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 260.

An ordinary life policy, in the absence of provision regarding death of insured by legal execution as punishment for crime, does not insure against death by such means. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Munson (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 987.

In an action on a life insurance policy stipulating against suicide, evidence held to show conclusively that the insured committed suicide intentionally by the use of carbolic acid. Texas Life Ins. Co. v. Childress (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1035.

In a suit against an insurance company on a life policy, the death of insured may be established, like any other fact, by direct proof or circumstantial evidence. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Piper (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 649.

An insurance policy containing a suicide clause, is forfeited by the suicide of insured, notwithstanding that his mind was impaired to the extent that he was not morally responsible for his act. Illinois Bankers' Life Ass'n v. Floyd (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 967, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Floyd v. Illinois Bankers' Life Ass'n of Monmouth, Ill., 192 S. W. 607.

92. — Accident and health insurance.—In action on accident insurance policy, evidence held to sustain a finding that plaintiff's hand was not completely severed at the wrist within policy. Hardin v. Continental Casualty Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 653.

Where insured under accident policy when he applied for insurance stated his occupation to be general manager for a railroad company, a by-law, made a part of policy relieving company of liability for death due to voluntary and unnecessary exposure, etc., would have no application, where insured was killed while discharging his duties as manager, or same duties as assisting manager. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Votaw (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 237.

By-law made part of contract of accident insurance, exempting insurer from liability if insured was killed while riding a "motor inspection car," would not relieve insurer of liability for death of one insured as general manager of a railroad, which occurred while riding in a motor inspection car as part of his duties. Id.

By-law held ambiguous, so that fact that death was due to voluntary exposure to damage or obvious risk of injury or death did not warrant instruction for insurer. Id.

Where plaintiffs, suing on accident policy, proved insured's death was caused by external and violent means, to overcome this prima facie case by the defense that insured was killed in course of assault upon another, insurer must show that felonious assault was first made by insured upon other, and that he met death at hands of assaulted person in self-defense. Georgia Casualty Co. v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 316.

In suit on accident policy, evidence held to justify finding that insured who was shot in a difficulty, was not the aggressor. Id.

If death of insured under mutual insurance certificate was caused by his act intentionally done in lifting cotton bales in manner in which he intended, his death was not caused by accidental means. Pledger v. Business Men's Acc. Ass'n of Texas (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 889.

Where meaning of "accidental death" in legal terminology had been well settled before a certificate of mutual insurance was issued, insurer is presumed to have prepared such certificate with reference to such meaning. Id.

Accidental death is unintended and undesigned result arising from acts intentionally done, and death by accidental means is where the result arises from acts unintentionally done. Id.

A clause in by-laws of mutual association limiting liability to "death by accidental means" held not inconsistent with the policy allowing benefits for "accidental death." Pledger v. Business Men's Acc. Ass'n of Texas (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 810.

Evidence held to sustain verdict for insured on accident policy as against insurer's contention that he was injured as result of violation of law in assaulting another. Continental Casualty Co. v. Chase (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 779.

Under an accident insurance policy exempting the insurer from liability for indemnity for disability caused by cerebral hemorrhage, where insured accidentally fell, striking his head and rupturing a blood vessel in his brain, causing cerebral hemorrhage which caused partial paralysis and a total disability for eight weeks, he could not recover from the insurer. Order of United Commercial Travelers of America v. Dobbs (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 468.

Clause in accident policy providing that policy did not cover railroad employes while on duty near track is not inconsistent with caption providing insurance against accident "to the extent herein provided," and precluded recovery under policy for accident to flagman while on duty at railroad crossing. Southern Surety Co. v. Hartman (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 379.

Where an accident policy covering death through violent and external means expressly declared that it should not cover injuries intentionally inflicted upon the insured by himself or by any other person except by burglars and robbers, the company is not liable where one not a burglar or robber intentionally shot and killed the insured. National Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. De Lopez (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 160.

That insured voluntarily exposed himself to unnecessary danger would not defeat recovery, unless his act in so doing was the proximate cause of the accident. Bankers' Health & Accident Ass'n v. Wilkes (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 230.

A beneficiary can recover upon an accident policy for injury occurring during the period for which a premium was paid, though death from the injury took place after such period. Simmons v. Western Indemnity Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 713.

Under accident policy insuring against bodily injuries inflicted, "directly and independently of all other causes," through accidental means, if disease with which insured was suffering caused apoplexy resulting in insured's death, or if injury received by insured in a fall concurred with such disease in causing such apoplexy, the insurance company was not liable, but was liable if the injury from the fall was the sole cause of the apoplexy. Western Indemnity Co. v. MacKechnie (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 456.

Where accident policy provided for specific indemnity for loss of life "only when * * * sustained in the manner specified in section D, clause 1," which specified accidents while insured was traveling as a passenger, beneficiary could not recover thereon for death of insured, which occurred in a manner not specified in such clause, but in a manner specified in another clause of section D, even though there was no provision in policy for indemnity for death resulting from accidents sustained in manner specified in such other clause, where there was another section in policy referring to all clauses of section D. Hartwig v. Southern Surety Co. (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 455.

A health insurance policy, covering disability resulting from illness, embraces disability of an insured who, while suffering from a hernia, accidentally stepped into a hole in the street, displacing the truss, and causing the hernia to come down, whereby he was incapacitated for two months. Massachusetts Bonding & Ins. Co. v. Florence (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 471.

Within the terms of a health policy insuring against loss of time from disease or illness common to both sexes, a disease is common to both sexes unless one sex is immune therefrom, and the disease known as salpingitis, which is sort of an inflammation, is deemed a disease common to both sexes, as males are not immune, though it attacked insured, a woman, in her genital organs. National Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 754.

Under application, certificate, and by-laws providing for payment of $5,000 for the death of the member caused "solely and exclusively by external, violent, and accidental means," held that beneficiary was entitled to recover for accidental death, member dying from a rupture of heart vessels at the time of lifting a cotton bale, in view of art. 4807, although the policy provided that there would be no liability for death resulting from any accident when no visible mark was on the body. Pledger v. Business Men's Accident Ass'n of Texas (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 110.

92½. — Indemnity insurance.—Where liability indemnity policy required insurer to defend suit against insured and provided that no action could be brought on the policy until after judgment has been rendered against insured, insurer, after being impleaded in suit against insured upon its denial of liability and refusal to defend, could be held liable in such suit upon judgment being rendered against insured. Continental Paper Bag Co. v. Bosworth (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 126.

In an action on a policy of indemnity insurance where the administrator of the insured executed a note to pay a judgment rendered against the estate of the insured, a fact finding by the court that the note was executed in good faith to pay off the judgment held warranted. American Indemnity Co. v. Fellbaum (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 573.

93. Extent of loss and liability of insurer—Fire insurance.—In action on fire policy, recovery could not be had beyond actual cash value of property destroyed with deduction for depreciation. Security Ins. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 874.

Building was "total loss" after fire where reasonably prudent owner, uninsured, could not have used any substantial part of building left standing. National Fire Ins. Co. v. House (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 476.

In an action for insurance on cotton lost by fire, evidence held to support finding of the jury as to the number of bales and their value. Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 736.

Under fire policy provision that the company shall not be liable for more than three-fourths of actual cash value, company's liability is not affected by fact that insured had offered to sell the property for less than its actual value. Detroit Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Boren-Stewart Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 382.

A contract of insurance is one of indemnity, the property owner to be indemnified against loss of the thing insured, that is, in case of a building, the building as such, and not the materials composing it, so that, to constitute a "total loss," it is not necessary that all the materials be physically destroyed. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Strayhorn (Com. App.) 211 S. W. 447.

Whether the portion of a building remaining after a fire is reasonably adapted for use as a basis on which to restore the building to its old condition, so that it can be determined there is no total loss under a fire policy, depends on whether a reasonably prudent owner, uninsured, desiring such a structure as the old building, would in proceeding to restore it utilize the remnant as a basis. Id.

There can be no total loss of a building, within the meaning of a fire policy covering it, so long as a substantial remnant of the structure standing in place is reasonably adapted to use as a basis on which to restore the building to the condition in which it was before the injury. Id.

In action on fire policy on goods and fixtures in a store for partial loss by fire which covered an area of six feet square and did not burn through the floor, evidence held sufficient to support findings as to loss and damages sustained. Barnett v. Prussian Nat. Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 839.

Several underwriters issuing fire policies substantially under the Lloyd's insurance system could only be held bound severally for their proportion of a loss as designated in the policy. Merchants' & Manufacturers' Lloyd's Ins. Exch. v. Southern Trading Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 312.

93½. — Indemnity insurance.—See Trinity County Lumber Co. v. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 531.

If the treasurer against whose defalcation a surety bond was taken had made a defalcation before the bond was taken, and borrowed money to cover the shortage, and after the execution of the bond repaid the money borrowed with the funds of the lodge, there was a new defalcation, for which the surety was liable. Western Indemnity Co. v. Free and Accepted Masons of Texas (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1092.

Where indemnity company refused to defend suit as specifically agreed in separate paragraph in policy, and insured had to employ attorneys and others to defend, insured could recover obligations so incurred, although not yet paid, regardless of no action clause in policy, providing liability only for money actually expended. Western Indemnity Co. v. Walker-Smith Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 93.

Where the contract between the master and insurer is one of indemnity against actual loss from personal injury to servants, there can be no liability of insurer until the master has suffered loss by payment of judgment for such injuries. Owens v. Jackson-Hinton Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 762.

In an action on a policy insuring an automobile against sinking when in transport by water, the car having sunk with a ferry into salt water, evidence as to damages held sufficient to sustain the jury's finding of $1,300 in favor of insured. American Automobile Ins. Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 92.

Where an indemnity policy provided that the insurer at its own expense would settle or defend suits and that the insured should not assume any liability or interfere with any negotiation or proceedings, the insurer by assuming to defend an action against the insured was made unconditionally liable for any judgment rendered against the insured up to the amount of the indemnity, and insured was not compelled to pay the judgment in order to recover from the insurer. American Indemnity Co. v. Fellbaum (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 873.

Where a bank was under contract to deliver certain bonds to plaintiff, for which he had paid, and the defendant insurance company contracted to indemnify the bank from loss in transmitting them through registered mail, and they were lost, held, that the bank had sustained a loss entitling it to indemnity from the insurance company, and which the bank could lawfully assign to plaintiff together with the policy. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Charlton (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 862.

94. — Accident insurance.—Where by-laws provided that in making proof of partial loss the insured waived further claim, the insurer could not defeat an action for additional sums unless it had paid the initial claim and insured had waived the benefits. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Powell (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 957.

In a suit upon accident policy, evidence held to sustain a finding of injury resulting directly and exclusively in immediate, continuous, and total disability, rendering insured incapable of performing duties pertaining to his occupation as a grain man. Fidelity & Casualty Ins. Co. of New York v. Mountcastle (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 862.

Evidence held to sustain finding that insured, claiming total disability under accident policy, had received injury preventing performance of anything pertaining to his occupation from date of accident September 15, 1915, to February 9, 1916, notwithstanding he had received his salary for 15 months after accident. Id.

Total disability does not mean absolute physical inability to transact any kind of business pertaining to insured's occupation; it is sufficient if injury is such that common care and prudence require him to desist from business so long as it is reasonably necessary to effectuate a cure, and that for a few days insured did not discover seriousness of injury would not disprove that he was not wholly disabled within meaning of policy. Metropolitan Casualty Ins. Co. v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 856.

Self-destruction, inflicted purposely, is not classed as an "accident" within the meaning of a supplemental life insurance policy, providing for double liability in case of accidental death. Federal Life Ins. Co. v. Wilkes (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 591.

In an action by an attorney on an accident insurance policy for the indemnity provided therein for immediate, continuous, and total disability, evidence held to show that the disability of the insured resulting from the accident, while total within the meaning of the policy, was not immediate. Hefner v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York, 110 Tex. 596, 222 S. W. 966, answering questions certified to (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 330.

95. — Life insurance.—Beneficiary cannot recover on 15-year settlement policy giving insured share in profits upon maturity of 15-year period to be creditable to future premiums, where insured had defaulted in payment of premium, without proof of the value of policy at time of insured's death, either as to the cash surrender value or as to the amount of profits earned by policy and apportionable to it, or proof of whether such profits, when applied to payment of future premiums, were sufficient to keep insurance in force at date of insured's death. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 598.

Under art. 4742, forbidding provision for any mode of settlement at maturity of an insurance policy of less value than the face of the policy, except that a company may issue a policy "promising a benefit less than the full benefit" in case of insured's suicide, a policy provision was sufficient, as "promising a benefit," to validly reduce the amount payable under the policy, where the policy provided for payment "of the contribution to the mortuary fund," in case of suicide. Illinois Bankers' Life Ass'n v. Floyd (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 967, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Floyd v. Illinois Bankers' Life Ass'n of Monmouth, Ill., 192 S. W. 607.

Policy stipulating that, if permit for service in the army by insured after war began was not obtained and an additional premium paid, the insurer's liability would be restricted to the net reserve on the policy, rendered the insurer liable for its face amount.

if insured died from any cause other than the fact of service in actual war. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 487.

Under a policy providing that the insurer's liability should be limited to the premiums paid if insured engaged in military service in time of war without the insurer's written consent, where insured entered the military service in time of war, and committed suicide while insane during such service, the insurer's liability was limited to the premiums paid, though the policy also provided that after one year it should be incontestable except for specified causes. Field v. Western Life Indemnity Co. (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 530.

Where a life insurance policy did not understate the age of insured, though the premium was based on a lower age, there was nothing in its terms to authorize a reduction in the amount payable to the beneficiary, despite the policy provision that, if the age of insured was not correctly stated therein, no greater amount should be paid than the premium would have purchased at the true age. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Tabor (Sup.) 230 S. W. 397.

96. Notice and proof of loss.—Evidence held to warrant finding of jury that the Grand Master of the lodge, indemnified in a fidelity policy against defalcation by its treasurer, had no knowledge of previous defaults or irregularities in auditing the books. Western Indemnity Co. v. Free and Accepted Masons of Texas (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1092.

An action by the obligee, on a bond indemnifying it against default of its treasurer, for the amount of a defalcation, is a claim for damages within art. 5714, so that a condition of the policy requiring immediate notice was void. Id.

Art. 5714, applies to notice and proofs of loss under a hail insurance policy. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Pipkin (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 360.

Where fire policy provided for examination of insured under oath by insurer's representative and insured, upon being notified by insurer to appear for examination at office of insurer's agent, only a few city blocks distant from her residence, failed to appear and submit to examination, as required by policy, insured could not recover upon policy. National Fire Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn. v. Humphreys (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 811.

In absence of statutory inhibition, conditions in employers' liability policies requiring that immediate written notice of an accident be given to insurer with the fullest information obtainable are valid. Travelers' Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Scott (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 53.

Under employers' liability policy requiring "immediate written notice" of "accident" to insurer with the fullest information obtainable, recovery could not be had where notice was not given until 17 months after accident, though it was given at the time of service of citation in employe's action for damages and though employer had no personal knowledge of the accident and insured was not prejudiced by the delay; such stipulation requiring reasonably early notice after the accident, not after action for injuries has been instituted. Id.

The fact that physicians, who attended a person accidentally injured attributed his condition to disease, and not to the accident, does not excuse a failure to give the company notice of the accident as soon as reasonably possible, as required by the policy. Hefner v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. of New York, 110 Tex. 596, 222 S. W. 966, answering questions certified (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 330.

Art. 5714, making stipulation in contract fixing the time within which notice of claim for damages made a condition precedent to the right to sue thereon shall be given at a less period than 90 days void, held not applicable to provision in indemnity policy, requiring insured to give insurer notice of accident immediately on occurrence thereof. Texas Glass & Paint Co. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 811.

98. — Estoppel or waiver as to proofs.—Insurer, by declining to send blanks for making proofs of death, waived compliance with provision of policy, requiring such proofs of death. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 598; International Travelers' Ass'n v. Powell (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 957; Simmons v. Western Indemnity Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 713.

Condition of fidelity bond making it void if notice were not given within a stipulated period and which had not been complied with, held waived. Western Indemnity Co. v. Free and Accepted Masons of Texas (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1092.

That insurer was furnished sworn proof of loss and inventory, and that it made no objection and pointed out no defects, held not to excuse insured's failure to submit to examination as required by policy. National Fire Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Humphrey (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 865.

An insurer under a hail insurance policy, who, after having received an unsworn claim for damages, sent an adjuster who viewed the damage, admitted liability, presented a form of proof filling in only the percentage of loss, and subsequently tendered a settlement after the time limited for filing a formal proof of loss, thereby waived the formal proof, notwithstanding a provision in the policy that no denial of liability or other act by the company should be deemed to waive such proof. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Pipkin (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 366.

Where insurer denied all liability beyond the amount paid it, proof of death was not required, and would have been a useless formality. Illinois Bankers' Life Ass'n v. Floyd (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 967, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Floyd v. Illinois Bankers' Life Ass'n of Monmouth, Ill., 192 S. W. 607.

100. — Proofs of injury or loss.—The insured under an accident policy does not forfeit his right to additional insurance by filing claim for partial disability when the claim was prematurely filed, and the insurer was not lawfully bound to pay it until the full amount suffered had accrued and proof had been made. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Powell (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 957.

Plaintiff, who was in the room with insured, her husband, when he was shot, and who described minutely circumstances immediately preceding the occurrence, was an "eyewitness," within terms of policy requiring claimant to establish accidental character of injury by testimony of at least one eyewitness. Bankers' Health & Accident Ass'n v. Wilkes (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 230.

In action upon accident policy, evidence that insured had no hernia previous to his fall, while attempting to alight from an automobile, that a hernia developed just after the fall, and a doctor's opinion that in all probability it was due to the fall, justified jury in finding that accident was sole cause of injury, "exclusively and independently of all other causes," within a policy provision. Metropolitan Casualty Ins. Co. v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 856.

In action upon accident policy, evidence held to support jury's finding that insured was wholly disabled and prevented from performing any and every kind of duty pertaining to his occupation for six weeks. Id.

A fire insurance policy provision requiring insured to submit to examination after loss is a material one, and if breached the insurer would be deprived of a valuable right for which it had contracted. Humphrey v. National Fire Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn. (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 750.

A provision in a fire policy requiring insured to submit to examination after loss may be availed of by insurer only if it fixes a reasonable time and place for such examination, whether such qualification is expressed in the policy or not. Id.

Under a fire insurance policy requiring insured to submit to examination after loss, it is insured's right to have his or her attorney present at the examination. Id.

Insured, refusing to comply, even on reasonable notice, with a fire policy requirement of examination after loss could later recede from that position and offer to submit to such examination. Id.

102. Adjustment of loss.—Fire policy held to require selection of umpire by appraisers appointed by parties who should participate in award, and failure to select such umpire was an irregularity to be considered in determining whether award was fair. Security Ins. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 874.

Where fire policy required appointment, in case of disagreement, of two disinterested appraisers, who should choose a third, such clause being for the benefit of the insurer, it waived such benefit by appointing an appraiser, who was not disinterested, but was in its employment, and it was no defense that the insured also appointed an interested appraiser. Delaware Underwriters v. Brock (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 377.

Where fire policy provides for arbitration as to amount of loss in the event of a disagreement between the parties, such disagreement is prerequisite to right to demand such arbitration, and a mere arbitrary refusal to pay amount demanded and offering a less amount does not constitute such a disagreement. Springfield Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 365.

A stipulation in fire policy to submit issues as to amount of loss to arbitration, where policy does not provide that same shall be done before any suit is brought, is collateral to insurance contract and will not defeat a suit brought thereon without such award. Id.

Fire policy may legally provide for determination of amount of loss by arbitration and make determination condition precedent to suit on policy. Id.

Where, on the maturity of a 15-year endowment policy, the amount due thereon was in dispute, company's act in sending to assignee of policy draft for its admitted liability thereon, payable, however, to both original insured and assignee, with release of any further claims or demands on account of the policy, was not such an unconditional tender of its admitted debt as assignee was entitled to. Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 896.

103. — Demand of appraisal.—Where extent of loss under a fire policy was submitted to arbitration held that insured was within her rights in making a request to be heard before appraisers. Security Ins. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 874.

104. — Waiver as to adjustment.—Insurer under fire policy by standing on validity of award waived right to demand additional appraisal. Security Ins. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 874.

When a fire insurer has wrongfully occasioned a failure of arbitration of loss under the policy by insisting upon retention of its disqualified appraiser, it releases insured from his obligation to enter the arbitration. Delaware Underwriters v. Brock, 109 Tex. 425, 211 S. W. 779.

105. — Validity and effect of appraisal or award.—Failure to give notice and opportunity to parties to be present at investigation by appraisers to determine amount of loss under fire policy held not of itself to render award invalid. Security Ins. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 874.

In an action on a fire policy, finding of the jury that the appraiser chosen by the insurer on disagreement as to the loss as provided in the policy was not disinterested held supported by pleadings and evidence. Delaware Underwriters v. Brock, 109 Tex. 425, 211 S. W. 779.

An award of appraisers under a fire insurance policy and arbitration contract was not invalidated by their failure to give insured notice of their meeting, where there was no provision in the policy or the arbitration agreement for such notice, and no proof that insured requested permission to come before the appraisers and make any statement or offer any evidence. Home Ins. Co. v. Walter (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 723.

Where the arbitration clause of a fire insurance policy and an arbitration agreement between the parties did not require the umpire to continuously participate in the appraisal from the beginning, but provided that he was to act only in matters of difference between the appraisers, the fact that the umpire did not participate in the deliberations of the appraisers until after disagreement between them arose did not affect the validity of the award. Id.

The award of appraisers under an arbitration provision of a fire insurance policy may be set aside only upon clear evidence that it was the result of fraud, mistake, or accident, that is, that it was made by appraisers who were incompetent, interested, or partial. Id.

106. — Settlement between parties.—Receipt from insured of $14 in payment of claim for total disability under an accident insurance policy, including doctor's bills, etc., which amount paid was only the amount of doctor's bills, was not a settlement in full for injuries sustained. Fidelity & Casualty Ins. Co. of New York v. Mountcastle (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 862.

Where an insured under a hail policy signed a proof claim submitted by the adjuster specifying the amount of damages, but subsequently claimed larger damages in writing, the proof of claim was not conclusive on insured as a settlement; since it was a mere offer which had not been accepted by the insurer prior to withdrawal. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Pipkin (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 360.

Where there was no controversy between the parties as to amount due under life policy when release in full was given, the payment of a lesser amount than was due under the policy in compromise would not supply the necessary consideration for the release, and, where there was no other independent consideration released, would not bar recovery of the balance. First Texas Prudential Ins. Co. v. Connor (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 417.

Though by-laws provide that, if a member files claim before his disability ceased, he waives all right to future benefit, insurer cannot reduce its true liability by means of a mere unaccepted offer on the part of insured to receive in satisfaction of his demand less than amount to which he is entitled under Rev. St. art. 4807. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Powell, 109 Tex. 550, 212 S. W. 931.

Compromise and settlement of claim under fire policy cannot be avoided and recovery allowed on policy, because made on statement of insurer's adjuster to insured that the company was not liable on the policy, because the insured goods had, before the fire, without notice to or consent of insurer, been removed from the place where insured; this being but an expression of his opinion, and no fiduciary relation being shown between him and insured. National Fire Ins. Co. v. Plummer (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 250.

107. — Setting aside adjustment.—In action on policy of fire insurance, irregularities in award, together with its inadequacy, held to authorize finding that there was a mistake as to amount, or that the appraisers intentionally found less than necessary to restore building. Security Ins. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 874.

Where a mistake as to insured's right under a hail insurance policy inducing him to sign a compromise is mutual or induced by fraud, equity will not ordinarily refuse relief on the ground of negligence on plaintiff's part. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Pipkin (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 360.

In suit to set aside award of appraisers of loss under a fire insurance policy, evidence held not to show that the insurer's appraiser was incompetent, interested, or partial, as "competent," when generally applied to arbitrators, does not mean "expert." Home Ins. Co. v. Walter (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 723.

108. Right to proceeds.—In an action on an insurance policy wherein the name of the owner of the property insured was erroneously given, evidence held to support a finding that the contract of insurance was in fact entered into between plaintiff and defendant company. Camden Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Wandell (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 289.

That buyer of machinery, when he procured insurance, did not know of a stipulation for insurance in favor of the sellers in a chattel mortgage given by buyer for the purchase money, cannot be urged by a third lienholder, claiming proceeds of policy, as a reason why ordinary rule as to estoppel by contract should not apply. Walter Connelly & Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 656.

In absence of stipulation in the policy, a contract of fire insurance is personal to insured, and does not indemnify the holder of a lien on the property insured. Id.

A chattel mortgage gives the mortgagee no lien upon proceeds of a fire insurance policy upon the property, where the policy is taken by the debtor for his own protection. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Thomas Goggan & Bro. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 163.

Proceeds of life insurance policy is in nature of, and constitutes, personal property. Murchison v. Murchison (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 423.

Where the agent of an insurance company has authority to act for the company, he may waive the provisions of the policy prescribing the mode to be pursued in changing the beneficiary, and bind his principal by verbal contract changing the beneficiaries. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 859.

Where agreement by a grantee and assignee of judgment debtor corporation to advance money for composition with its unsecured creditors was primarily between the original lienholders and himself, rather than the corporation, whether the purchaser at judicial sale can deduct from the amount paid to redeem from liens on properties actually covered by his purchase the amount paid from insurance money received for destruction of property acquired depends upon whether the destruction of the property was before or after judicial sale. Houston v. Shear (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 976.

Where the insurance policy taken out by the master is not one providing specially for the benefit of injured employés, but is merely one indemnifying against liability, the employé is not in privity with the parties thereto, and is without right to sue thereon. Owens v. Jackson-Hinton Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 762.

110. — Policy payable to mortgagee.—In an action on an insurance policy, where in the defendant alleges that the policy is payable in case of loss to a mortgagee, a judgment for plaintiff was not erroneous, since the assured under the policy may maintain an action thereon in his own name, although the policy be payable to another. Camden Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Wandell (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 289.

As a general rule, if mortgagor is charged with duty of insuring for benefit of mortgagee, mortgagee will have equitable lien upon money due on policy taken out by mortgagor to extent of mortgagee's interest in property destroyed. Walter Connally & Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 656.

A vendor's lien claimant has no claim, because of stipulation in trust deed for insurance for his benefit, to insurance on machinery acquired after execution of such trust deed, for the price of which a chattel mortgage was given containing a stipulation for insurance in favor of the mortgagee, the seller of the machinery. Id.

Stipulations in contract and chattel mortgage requiring mortgagor to insure property in favor of mortgagee, held to create lien in favor of mortgagee on proceeds of policy, and not to transfer those proceeds to mortgagee. Id.

Where chattel mortgagee was entitled to lien on part of proceeds of insurance policy, if proceeds of policy had not been exempt from garnishment, service of writ on insurance company would have conferred on mortgagee right to such proceeds to extent of their lien superior to right of holder of vendor's lien. Id.

Under an agreement between mortgagee and mortgagor that the latter will insure the property for the benefit of the mortgagee, the latter has an equitable lien on the proceeds of the policy, even though the property itself was exempt from forced sale. Mosley v. Stratton (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 397.

111. — Trustee.—In action involving right to proceeds of insurance policy covering machinery, as between sellers who claimed equitable lien under stipulations in chattel mortgage for insurance in their favor, and a vendor's lien claimant in whose favor trust deed had been executed, evidence held not to sustain finding that trustee, who was also agent of insurance company, after issuing policy, instead of delivering it, retained possession in his capacity as trustee until after fire occurred. Walter Connally & Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 656.

113. — Assignment of claim.—Where the consideration for assignment of proceeds of insurance policy was then existing indebtedness of assignor to assignee, assignee is not entitled to protection as innocent purchaser of claim evidenced by policy. Walter Connally & Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 656.

Contract for sale of machinery and purchase-money chattel mortgage construed, and held that sellers had lien on proceeds of policy insuring machinery superior to one holding vendor's lien on land upon which machinery was situated, and who had an assignment indorsed on policy, after a loss occurred. Id.

114. Time for payment.—Under by-law made part of a policy of accident insurance, providing that payment shall become due and payable 90 days after receipt of proofs provided for, and in case of liability in excess of $1,000, insurer reserved right to pay such sum in five equal payments, where insurer did not exercise its option to pay in installments within such 90 days, judgment for bulk sum of policy was not erroneous. International Travelers' Ass'n v. Votaw (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 237.

117. Subrogation of insurer.—Where a fire policy was invalidated as to the mortgagor by his taking out additional insurance, but the insurer was required to pay the loss to the mortgagee under an independent contract contained in the mortgage clause of the policy after several years of litigation, held, that the insurance company was subrogated to the mortgagee's rights to the extent of the mortgage debt at the time the insurer should have paid the loss to the mortgagee. Home Ins. Co. v. Boatner (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1097.

Insurer of goods destroyed by fault of railroad company is subrogated to rights of assured to recover against railroad to extent to which insurer has been compelled to pay. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Triplett (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 305.

118. Interest.—A demand is "liquidated," to begin to carry interest, when the amount due or to become due is fixed by law or by agreement between the parties. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Strayhorn (Com. App.) 211 S. W. 447.

A fire insurer's denial of liability matures the demand for loss or damages and interest runs from the date of denial, regardless of whether 60 days has expired after proofs of loss were furnished, and regardless of whether proofs of loss were waived. Delaware Underwriters v. Brock, 109 Tex. 425, 211 S. W. 779.

121. Defenses in general.—Life insurance company's liability on policy is not canceled because beneficiary named in policy feloniously kills insured. Murchison v. Murchison (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 423.

A bank may maintain a suit against a surety company to recover upon fidelity bonds the amount of its cashier's defalcations, although the directors have already refunded the money to the bank, the bank still retaining legal title to the bonds, and the surety company claiming no defense under the bonds as against the directors, who are not complaining. Southern Surety Co. v. Citizens' State Bank of Hempstead (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 556.

122. Defenses against mortgagee.—Insurer of piano, having paid amount of loss on piano to insured after his notice to it to pay part to seller of piano, who retained mortgage on piano, and after garnishment by seller, could not avail itself of plea of exemption of such insurance proceeds, it having been waived by such debtor's notice. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Thomas Goggan & Bro. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 163.

124. Reinsurance.—Criminal acts of defendant fire insurance company's general agent, who reinsured fictitious dwelling with plaintiff fire insurance company as its agent, and collected insurance for himself, held to create no liability against plaintiff, which could recover amount paid on fraudulent proofs of loss. Rio Grande Fire Ins. Co. v. Concordia Fire Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 824.

Reinsurer's payment of amount of reinsurance to the insurer, upon proofs of loss fraudulently made by agent, held a mutual mistake not entitling the insurer to retain the money. Id.

The common acceptance of the term "reinsurance" is to assume the obligation imposed by a policy of insurance. California State Life Ins. Co. v. Kring (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 372.

A contract of one company assuming the liabilities of another company does not constitute an issuance of a new policy upon the life of one dead at the date of such contract, nor an extension of the period of limitation which had begun to run. Simmons v. Western Indemnity Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 713.

INTEREST

Art.	Art.
4973. Definition of "interest."	4980. Contracts for a greater per cent. void.
4974. Legal interest.	4981. Judgments to bear six per cent. when not otherwise stipulated.
4975. "Conventional interest."	4982. Double the amount of usurious interest recovered, when.
4976. Distinction between the two.	4983. Usury, how pleaded.
4977. Six per cent. the legal rate.
4978. Six per cent. on open accounts, when.
4979. Ten per cent. the conventional rate.

Article 4973. [3097] Definition of "interest."

Cited, Barker v. Torrey, 69 Tex. 7, 4 S. W. 646; Fisher v. Hoover, 3 Civ. App. 81, 21 S. W. 930.

1. "Interest."—"Interest" is of three kinds, conventional interest, fixed by parties in contract, legal interest, allowed by law when parties have not agreed upon rate, and interest which is allowed as damages for detention of money. Bell v. C. J. Gerlach & Bro. (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 470.

2, 3. Interest as damages—Indemnity for loss or injury.—If an injury to land is temporary, the measure of damages is the amount necessary to repair the injuries and place the land in the condition it was immediately preceding the injury, with interest. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 605.

Measure of damages for permanent injuries to land held the difference between the actual cash value immediately preceding and immediately after the injury with interest. Id.

In equity, interest is allowed in order to afford compensation, and is given or withheld as under the circumstances of the case appears just. Bexar County v. Linden (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 478.

In an action against one obtaining goods by false pretenses, by fraudulent statements as to his financial status, measure of damages is ordinarily the value of the goods obtained, with 6 per cent. interest. Sanger Bros. v. Barrett (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1087.

Interest from time of injury to abutting property from elevation of highway is allowable as part of the damages, though at time of action they are unliquidated. Dallas County v. Barr (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 453.

4. — Breach of contract.—Measure of damages for breach by purchaser of a contract to purchase land is difference between price seller was to receive and market value of land at date of breach, plus interest from date of such default. Runnells v. Pruitt (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1017.

Interest, as such, cannot be recovered upon fixed amount due under express parol contract, but is recoverable only as damages. Walker v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 713.

Where plaintiff and defendant, jointly interested in a fund placed in a bank, entered into a contract whereby one of them was given control thereof for the purpose of making payment of claims of certain third persons, such fund was a special fund, and, when defendant refused to apply it in accordance with the agreement, he did more than breach an ordinary contract for the payment of money in discharge of debt, and should be held liable for all loss directly occasioned by his breach of contract, and recovery should not be limited to the principal sum, with interest. Ferguson v. Mansfield (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 234.

In suit for unliquidated damages for a breach of contract, it was improper to add to the verdict interest from date of breach, since interest, when allowed in such contracts, is allowed as a part of the damages. Faulkner v. Reed (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 945.

Interest on damages caused by buyer's breach of an oil purchase contract are recoverable as an element of damages. Pierce Oil Corporation v. Gilmer Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1116.

Repudiation of an oil contract by the purchaser gave the seller the right to treat the contract as breached, and where the seller did this by selling the oil to other parties the seller had the right immediately to sue for the breach and recover damages as of that date, and interest on the difference between the resale and contract price was properly allowed from that date, although under the contract the seller would not have received payment for such oil until much later dates, the purchaser's acts having made necessary an antecedent ascertainment of the damages. Id.

5. — Breach of warranty.—In an action for damages for breach of covenant against incumbrances consisting of an outstanding lease of the granted property, interest was properly allowed on the amount found by the jury as the amount by which the value of the use and enjoyment of the land by the grantee was diminished by occupation of the premises by the lessee. Morriss v. Hesse (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 710.

Upon a breach of warranty of soundness of a mule sold, the measure of damages is the difference between the mule's value at the time of sale, with the defect or unsoundness constituting the breach, and what would have been its value without such defect, with interest thereon at 6 per cent. from date of sale. Fulwiler Electric Co. v. Jinks McGee & Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 480.

8. — Wrongful seizure under attachment or other writ.—See Hyway Motor Co. v. Saulsbury (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 322.

9. — Conversion.—See Garcia v. Hernandez (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1099.

Where a bailee of property, as security for money loaned, sold and converted it, interest could be allowed only upon the difference between the value of the property and the amount loaned, instead of upon the total value of the property. Early-Foster Co. v. Mid-Tex Oil Mills (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 224.

10. — Claim against carrier.—Amount of damage sustained by shipper of cattle from carrier's negligence in transit, plus 6 per cent. interest from date of loss, is correct measure of shipper's damage at date he recovers judgment against carrier. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reed (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 410.

11. — Rate and computation.—The only heir of deceased, as trustee, because concealing a will making bequests to others and naming him as executor, and using the property, became liable to them for the highest rate of interest allowed by law. Van Orden v. Pitts (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 830.

Liability as trustee for highest rate of interest of sole heir of deceased, who, concealing will naming other beneficiaries, used the property as his own, is limited to the period from his discovery of the will to his death; the principal and interest at his death becoming a claim against his estate. Id.

A demand is "liquidated" to begin to carry interest when the amount due or to become due is fixed by law or by agreement between the parties. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Strayhorn (Com. App.) 211 S. W. 447.

12. — Destruction of property.—If the value of land is totally destroyed by negligence or wrongful act, the owner is entitled to recover its actual cash value at the time its value was destroyed, with legal interest. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 605.

A party who recovers damages for destruction of property by fire is entitled to interest on value of property from time of destruction. Wiess v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 486.

Generally the measure of damages when a crop is totally destroyed, whether it is matured or growing, is its market value, if it has one, at the time and at the place it is destroyed, and legal interest thereon from the date of its destruction; and, when the crop is partially destroyed, it is the difference between its market value if it had one, as it stood immediately preceding and its market value immediately following the injury with legal interest on the amount of such difference. Bowman & Blatz v. Raley (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 723.

The amount recoverable from a railroad for stock killed does not include interest. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Post (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 129.

16. Interest on recovery of money paid.—In suit to rescind contract to purchase land and recover amount paid, measure of recovery is sum which plaintiff paid for land, with 6 per cent. interest from payment. Rascoe v. Myre (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 780.

Intervener's suit being on an implied contract for reimbursement for what he had paid, the interest to be recovered is the legal rate and not the rate stated in the notes sued on. Miller v. Guaranty Trust & Banking Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 642.

Where purchaser of an interest in oil, gas, and mineral lease recovered from the seller a sum paid in advance to the seller for the interest, which the seller could not convey, the purchaser was also entitled to interest on such sum from the date of its payment. Wilcox v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 1104.

19½. Interest on deposit with third person.—Where a vendor of land which was subdivided into many different parcels agreed to deposit $50,000 with trustees to be paid as bonus to the first railroad coming through the land, held that under the agreement the vendor or his heirs were entitled to the interest on the fund during the time it was held by the trustees, before a railroad was constructed. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. v. Matlock (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 937.

20. Interest on insurance, dividends and premiums.—See Home Life & Accident Co. v. Orchard (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 705.

A fire insurer's denial of liability matures the demand for loss or damages and interest runs from the date of denial, regardless of whether 60 days has expired after proofs of loss were furnished, and regardless of whether proofs of loss were waived. Delaware Underwriters v. Brock, 109 Tex. 425, 211 S. W. 779.

25. Interest on note.—Upon a promise to pay with interest at a specified rate, interest runs from the date of the instrument, and not maturity, as a matter of law. Wilson v. Beaty (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 524.

26. Interest on purchase price.—In action for purchase price of personalty, where there is nothing to indicate with reasonable certainty date upon which personalty was to be paid for, no interest should be allowed prior to judgment. Trevathan v. G. M. Hall & Son (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 447.

In action for purchase price of potatoes to be shipped by carrier, it was error to allow a recovery for interest for any period of time prior to actual shipment or prior to seller's compliance with contract. Id.

A contract providing for execution of notes by purchaser at the time the property was conveyed by warranty deed to her is not uncertain as to the date when interest begins, since upon a promise to pay with interest at a specified rate interest runs from the date of the instrument, and not of maturity, as a matter of law. Wilson v. Beaty (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 524.

Where a purchaser, who was induced by fraud to buy an oil lease in part payment for which he executed notes bearing interest at a stipulated rate, thereafter elected to ratify the contract by suing for damages for the deceit, he is liable for the interest on the purchase-money notes as well as the principal, against which he is entitled to set off the damages occasioned by the deceit. Pickrell v. Imperial Petroleum Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 412.

32. Tender of principal or interest.—See United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. Parsons (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 418.

If the maker of a promissory note tenders an amount insufficient to discharge it in full, he does not stop the running of interest even on the sum tendered; it being not a question of what he believes to be due, but of what is actually due. Barreda v. Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 726.

A tender of payment not accepted cannot reduce the amount of interest recoverable from the purchaser under an oil purchase contract, where the amount tendered was not the full amount then owing, so that the seller was not bound to accept it, and where it was not shown that the tender was kept good. Pierce Oil Corporation v. Gilmer Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1116.

Law not retroactive.—Act April 13, 1891, providing the rate of interest when none is specified, is not retrospective, so as to affect causes of action theretofore accrued, retroactive laws and laws impairing obligation of contracts being inhibited by Const. art. 1, § 16. Landa v. Obert, 5 Civ. App. 620, 25 S. W. 342.

Liquidated damages.—Under this article, interest, although prayed for, was not recoverable in suit for damages under contract providing for $500 liquidated damages for breach, and district court had no jurisdiction, amount in controversy being exactly $500. Escue v. Hartley (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 159.

Computation.—Where district attorney made payments of fees to county under duress, he was entitled to interest from time of the payment, and not merely from the time of demanding return of the money. Bexar County v. Linden (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 478.

In buyer's suit against seller for fraud, where considerable portion of sum paid by buyer for repairs was expended during summer of 1915, and some installments of price were paid as late as 1916, trial court improperly allowed buyer interest from January 1, 1915, on all sums paid seller on price, and also on all sums paid out for repairs. Texas Harvester Co. v. Wilson-Whaley Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 574.

Street paving certificate.—In judgment upon a street paving certificate a provision that the aggregate sum of principal and interest should bear interest from its date at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum and the attorney's fees at 6 per cent. per annum was erroneous so far as providing that interest should bear interest at 8 per cent., and not 6 per cent.; that certificate not providing that past due interest should bear interest at 8 per cent. Frankenstein v. Rushmore & Gowdy (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 189.

Liability of guardian.—Under art. 4150, a guardian who neglected to invest or loan surplus moneys in his hands belonging to his wards held liable for the principal and 10 per cent. interest as the highest legal rate thereon defined by art. 4977 not 4974, for the time he neglected to invest. Yates v. Watson (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 966, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 548.

"Open account."—Suit to recover real estate sale commissions is not one upon an "open account," within this article. Walker v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 713.

Computation.—Under this article, a judgment allowing interest in such case from the date of the account will be modified to conform to the statute, and the costs of the appeal taxed to the appellee. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. White (App.) 14 S. W. 1068.

Art. 4979. [3103] Ten per cent the conventional rate.

Cited, Fisher v. Hoover, 3 Civ. App. 81, 21 S. W. 930.

In general.—Under Const. art. 5, § 16, county court had no jurisdiction of suit by subscribers to corporate stock on defendant's agreement to take stock off their hands after year if not satisfied; interest in addition to $1,000 prayed for by plaintiffs being merely damages, and contract not coming within this article. Bell v. C. J. Gerlach & Bro. (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 470.

The mere fact that an agent had authority in writing to make such a contract would not make a written contract within this article. Id.

Alteration.—Where a duplicate contract for purchase of land reciting the purchase price to be "one thousand one hundred dollars, payable fifteen dollars cash in hand and monthly payments of ten dollars each, until the total amount of $1,100 has been paid," was altered by placing the words "including interest eight per cent.," after the words "ten dollars each," of which alteration the holder had notice, the instrument was in its legal effect a forgery and unenforceable in law. Forrest v. Tobin (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 466.

Art. 4980. [3104] Contracts for greater per cent void.

Cited, Bell v. C. J. Gerlach & Bro. (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 470.

1. In general.—Any advantage or benefit exacted, which, added to interest reserved, increases compensation received for loan to an amount in excess of the lawful interest, constitutes usury. C. C. Slaughter Co. v. Eller (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 704.

The right to lend money at interest is a creature of statute, and not an inherent right. Juhan v. State, 86 Cr. R. 63, 216 S. W. 873.

The taking of interest, or as it was then called usury, was looked upon in early times with great disfavor, and actually prohibited, not only by the old English law, but by the Mosaic law of the Jews, and to this day the calling of lending money at interest is subject to regulation. Id.

3. Intent.—A collateral transaction between borrower and lender, whereby lender takes profit, will not render loan usurious when entered into in good faith and without usurious intent. C. C. Slaughter Co. v. Eller (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 704.

In absence of express reservation of more than legal interest to establish usury, it must be shown that there was a corrupt agreement or device to cover usury, and that it was in full contemplation of parties. Id.

4. Loans in general.—A contract by which defendant, under the guise of purchase of wages to be earned by the borrower in the future, charged 30 per centum a month interest for a loan, is usurious, under Const. art. 16, § 1, fixing the maximum rate of interest at 10 per centum. Cotton v. Cooper (Com. App.) 209 S. W. 135.

If the amount paid by the borrower to the lender in excess of legal interest was intended as compensation for the use of money loaned, it is usury, regardless of what manner or form or under what pretense cloaked. Hudmon v. Foster (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 262.

5. Bills, notes and other instruments for the payment of money.—Under the provision that all contracts which directly or indirectly stipulate for a greater rate of interest than permitted shall be "void and of no effect for the whole rate of interest," a note for $1,380 bearing interest at 12 per cent., the then permissive rate, the only consideration received therefor by the maker being $1,200, is usurious. Gilder v. Hearne, 79 Tex. 120, 14 S. W. 1031.

Contract for extension of time of payment of note which provides means whereby payee might keep informed of condition of business of maker, held not necessarily usurious. C. C. Slaughter Co. v. Eller (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 704.

Payments of money or property made by an indorser upon notes of a corporation, he being a party to the notes, and to the corporation's suit against the lender, constituted usury, if thereby the lender obtained more than 10 per cent. per annum as compensation for the use of his money by the company. Sugg v. Smith (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 363.

A note for $1,800, secured by deed of trust, bearing interest at 6½ per cent. per annum, payable annually, on principal until due, and 10 per cent. interest on principal and interest after due until paid, together with an interest installment note for $148.80, secured by second deed of trust, reciting that it bore interest at 10 per cent. per annum after due until paid, such second note representing the interest on the principal sum of $1,800, calculated at 1½ per cent. per annum for five years, the period of loan, held not usurious. Shear Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 567.

6. — Renewal note.—Usury in a note is not purged by giving a new note for the balance due on the first, where the new note was not given in compromise or settlement of claim of usury in the first note. Dean v. Maxfield (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 466.

9. Extension of time on contract.—If, to compensate a vendor of land for giving time on the purchase price, a sum is added to the agreed price greater than the permitted rate of interest, though such sum is incorporated as principal in the purchase-money notes, the contract is usurious. Fisher v. Hoover, 3 Civ. App. 81, 21 S. W. 930.

If a transaction between a company, the indorser of its notes, and the payee, was intended as compensation for the use of the payee's money, and was more than 10 per cent. per annum, the transaction was usurious, but if it was compensation for the payee's agreement to extend time for payment of the notes, it was not usurious. Sugg v. Smith (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 363.

10. Compound interest.—A contract for the legal rate of interest during the time of forbearance, and for interest upon interest thereafter, is not usurious. Shear Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 567.

13. Payment of installments of principal.—Contract of loan company extending $1,400 loan, to be repaid at 6 per cent. interest in 34 monthly payments of $21.42, is not usurious on its face. Harrop v. National Loan & Investment Co. of Detroit, Mich. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 878.

14. Commissions.—Any usury in transaction by which parties arranging loan retained 10 per cent. thereof would not be eliminated merely because certain of lenders did not receive part of amount retained. Bomar v. Smith (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 964.

Loan out of which lender retained 10 per cent. in addition to interest is usurious. Id. Where one party to a written contract agreed to give $5,000 in stock of a corporation to be organized by him, for services to be rendered by the other party in finding some person who would make him a loan of $17,500, or a part thereof, and, if part, then to advance the remainder, such contract will be enforced as against a claim of usury; no fraud, accident, or mistake being alleged. Hudmon v. Foster (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 262.

Where defendants did not loan or advance to the borrower any money but secured other parties to do so, the amount paid them was not for the use or detention of money belonging to them, and was therefore not interest, so as to be usurious. Id.

17½. Purging contract of usury.—Contract may be purged of usury by subsequent agreement. And where borrower gave lenders option to purchase property, and later secured release from such agreement by giving his notes, any usurious element was eliminated by later contract providing for cancellation of such notes if the borrower did not redeem his property after foreclosure, and such property was not redeemed. Bomar v. Smith (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 964.

18. Rights and remedies of parties.—An agreement to extend the time of payment of a note bearing 12 per cent. interest, in consideration of the payment by the maker of the interest then due and 3 per cent. additional interest, discharges the liability of the sureties, without whose knowledge and consent it is made; the validity of the agreement not being affected by arts. 4979, 4980. Mann v. Brown, 71 Tex. 241, 9 S. W. 111.

The charging of usurious interest does not render unenforceable the agreement to pay the principal. Watson v. Evans (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1170.

That a contract is usurious does not entirely discharge sureties, but they are liable for principal. C. C. Slaughter Co. v. Eller (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 704.

19. — Application of payments.—Where notes, on their face, do not show usury, and there is nothing to show that any payment was made on usurious interest, payment will be applied to principal, and not to usury. Bowman v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 922.

Where a contract was usurious, amounts paid as interest are by law applied to the principal sum due. Cotton v. Cooper (Com. App.) 209 S. W. 135.

21. Rights and remedies of third persons—Assignees.—Where, at time claim for usury was assigned, maker assignor had not paid any amount as interest on notes, and amount paid did not exceed amount received from payee, lender, assignment amounted to nothing. Bowman v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 922.

22. — Party assuming to pay note or loan.—Plaintiff, who purchased automobile mortgaged to secure notes and assumed notes, is in no position to plead usury, since his liability arises from assumption of notes. Bowman v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 922.

25. Penalties and forfeiture.—A contract, by which defendant, under the guise of purchase of wages to be earned by the borrower in the future, charged 30 per centum a month interest for a loan, is usurious, under Const. art. 16, § 1, fixing the maximum rate of interest at 10 per centum, and under this article, is void as to the interest. Cotton v. Cooper (Com. App.) 209 S. W. 135.

26. Who may plead.—Where borrowing companies conveyed all their property to the lender to satisfy indebtedness, which was usurious, and the lender conveyed to a new company formed to unify business of borrowing companies, the new company could not avail itself of fact of usury in contract between lender and borrower companies, transaction not constituting an "amalgamation," "merger," or "consolidation" of borrower companies. Sugg v. Smith (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 363.

Plaintiffs not being parties to a usurious contract, and having acquired no rights based upon such contract, the contract affords them no grounds for relief against defendant, the lender under the contract. Id.

Where new company, as principal and stockholder, as surety, pursuant to transactions between the old companies and a lender to them, agreed to pay indebtedness of old companies to lender, new company and its stockholder, as against lender, are not entitled to plead usury as to transactions between lender and old dissolved corporations. Id.

27. Waiver and estoppel.—A claim founded upon usury may be compromised, settled, and released. Dean v. Maxfield (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 466.

Art. 4981. [3105] Judgments, rate of interest on.

In general.—In action for breach of covenant against incumbrances, consisting of retention of possession of the premises by a tenant of the vendor for several months after the conveyance, it was improper to allow interest on the amount specially found by the jury to be the value of the diminution of the use and enjoyment of the land by such occupancy from the date of the accrual of the cause of action therefor, there being no jury finding awarding such interest; but interest on such amount was recoverable only from the date of the judgment of the trial court on the finding. Morriss v. Hesse (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 317.

Judgment on contract.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 2980, providing that all judgments shall bear 8 per cent. interest, except when the contract upon which they are founded bears a specified rate greater than 8 per cent., but less than the highest rate allowed by law, in which case the judgment shall bear the rate specified in the contract, it is not error, when the contract provides for 5 per cent., to render judgment on such contract for 5 per cent. until date of judgment, and 8 per cent. thereafter. Sheldon v. Martin (Sup.) 8 S. W. 61.

Judgment on note.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 2980, providing that on contracts bearing interest at more than 8 per cent. the judgment shall bear the same rate from its date, a judgment on a note calling for 12 per cent. interest and 10 per cent. attorney's fees is properly entered for the sum of principal, interest, and attorney's fees, the whole to bear 12 per cent. interest from date. Liano Improvement Co. v. Watkins, 4 Civ. App. 428, 23 S. W. 612.

Where the note sued on provided for an interest rate of 10 per cent., the judgment thereon properly bore interest at that rate from the judgment date under this article. Stanton v. Security Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 854.

Judgment on certificate of assessment.—A judgment upon a certificate of assessment providing for 8 per cent. interest only bears 6 per cent. interest, in view of this article, and art. 1011. Elmendorf v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 631.

Judgment for broker's commission.—Under this article, all judgments not entered upon contracts ascertaining rate of interest shall bear 6 per cent. per annum from date, and a judgment for broker's commission, bearing 8 per cent. was erroneous. Hodde v. Malone Real Estate Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 347.

Art. 4982. May recover double usurious interest paid.

See Cotton v. Cooper (Com. App.) 209 S. W. 135.

In general.—In view of Const. art. 16, § 11, as to interest and usury, this article, authorizing recovery of double amount of usurious interest paid, did not abrogate existing rule concerning application to principal of payments made upon usurious interest. Sugg v. Smith (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 363.

Election of remedies.—Under Const. art. 16, § 11, as to interest and usury, and this article, authorizing recovery of double amount of usurious interest paid, in case of usury debtor has election to sue for penalty, or to have amount paid as usurious interest credited upon principal. Sugg v. Smith (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 363.

Usurious interest—Necessity of payment.—Where there was nothing to show that payments made were made on usurious interest, there could be no recovery of double amount of usurious interest paid, as provided by this article. Bowman v. Bailey (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 922.

The mere claim of usurious interest in an account which had not been paid does not subject the claimant to the statutory penalty for usury, which applies only where usury is collected or received. Driscoll v. Dennis (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 576.

— What is payment.—Under this article, taking by creditor under sale by virtue of a mortgage in satisfaction of the usurious portion of the debt, was a payment, entitling mortgagor to recover double interest. Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank of Ballinger v. Cameron (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1167.

Usury is paid and received, allowing recovery of double penalty under this article, where holder of usurious note secured by deed of trust, at trustee's sale thereunder bought for more than was due, excluding usury, and the full amount of the bid was credited on the note, and a deed was made by the trustee to the purchaser; the title to the property thereby passing to him. Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank of Ballinger v. Cameron (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 738.

— Necessity that payment be pursuant to contract for usury.—The inclusion in an account which had been paid of an amount representing interest above the legal rate does not subject the party receiving it to the penalty for usury, where the other party denied any contract to pay usurious interest, since the penalty can be recovered only on proof that the payment was received and accepted upon a contract for usurious interest. Driscoll v. Dennis (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 576.

Persons entitled to enforce penalties.—The maker of notes who has paid nothing thereon cannot sue the payee for the penalty for charging usury imposed by this article, where another has assumed payment of the notes; such action being maintainable only by the party paying the usurious interest or his legal representatives. Burch v. First Guaranty State Bank of Quanah (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 552.

Actions for penalties.—In action under this article, to recover a penalty for collection of usurious interest on notes, paid by plaintiff makers to defendant, since such payments did not inure to benefit of one who had signed notes as surety and paid nothing thereon, he was not a necessary party. Dean v. Maxfield (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 466.

In an action to recover statutory penalties for extorting usurious interest, under a contract whereby defendants were to obtain $5,000 worth of stock for themselves for providing, or finding others willing to provide, a loan of $17,500, evidence held to support a finding that the contract was not usurious. Hudmon v. Foster (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 262.

Evidence held not to establish payment of usurious interest so as to entitle plaintiff to recover penalty under this article. Gunter v. Merchant (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 604.

A petition held to allege that defendant loaned plaintiffs $6,800 for one year, and took their note for $8,000 incorporating therein $1,200 as interest for the use of $6,800, and that the supplemental petition admits that they only paid on the note $6,600, so that, usurious interest not having been actually paid, the petition does not show a cause of action for penalty for usury under this article. Id.

Art. 4983. [3107] Usury, how pleaded.

See Bexar Bldg. & Loan Ass'n v. Robinson, 78 Tex. 163, 14 S. W. 227, 9 L. R. A. 292, 22 Am. St. Rep. 36.

Necessity of pleading usury.—Under direct provisions of this article, defense of usury must be interposed by special plea under oath. Bomar v. Smith (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 964.

Usury being a defense which is required to be specifically pleaded, such issue cannot be raised for the first time in a suit to set aside the judgment on a note asserted to be usurious. Chandler v. Young (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 484.

Sufficiency of pleading.—Petition for statutory penalty for collecting and receiving usurious interest held not subject to general demurrer. Dean v. Maxfield (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 466.

Sufficiency of verification.—Under this article, a plea of usury set up by several co-defendants, but verified by one who refuses to join in it, or to avail himself of it, is bad. Cherryhomes v. Carter, 66 Tex. 166, 18 S. W. 443.

4993. Storage or diversion; vested rights not prejudiced.
4994. Purposes of appropriation.
4995. Priority of appropriation; who deemed an appropriator; this act not to work a forfeiture of rights acquired under declaration of appropriation duly acted upon; forfeiture.
- 4996c. Persons desiring to appropriate water shall make application to board of water engineers; requisites of application; map; no application required in certain cases.
- 4996f-4996s. [Repealed.]
- 4999a. Time limit for construction of reservoirs; extension; fee.
- 5001dd. Ascertainment of quantities of water required.
- 5001ff. Fees for permits.
- 5001fff. Fees, how paid.
- 5001W. Corporations may sell or lease water or water rights; lien; obligation under contracts; priority of appropriators not affected.
- 5001p. Injunction authorized.
5002. Formation of corporations authorized.
- 5002a. Same; sale or lease of water and water rights; compliance with statute.
- 5002b. Persons entitled to use water.

Art.

- 5002c. No discrimination against users.
- 5002e. Permanent water right and easement.
- 5002f. Regulation of rates; discrimination; complaint; deposit.
- 5002hh. Power to fix rates.
- 5002i. Appeal; supersedeas.
- 5002kk. Petition to district court from decision, etc., of board; appeal to appellate court.
- 5002kkk. Trials under preceding article.
- 5004a. Eminent domain; application to board; institution of proceedings by board.
- 5009, 5009a. [Repealed.]
- 5011e. Alienation of land required, etc.
- 5011ff. Preference lien upon crops raised on land irrigated.
- 5011ss. Construction of gates, breakwaters, dams or dikes in tide waters to prevent pollution of fresh water.
- 5011t. Diversion of surface waters; remedies; provisos.
- 5011½f. Board to determine relative rights of claimants to waters; taking testimony; transfer of cases from courts to board.
- 5011½g. Notice of completion of testimony; inspection by claimants.
- 5011½jj. Contest of claims; notice.
- 5011½k. Examination of stream or water supply; measurements; map.
- 5011½ll. Findings of fact and determination; rights determined; certified copy sent to counties through which stream flows.
- 5011½uu. Recognition of riparian rights.
- 5011½v. Not to affect vested rights.

Article 4991. [3115] Conservation and development of natural resources.—The conservation and development of all of the natural resources of this State, including the control, storing, preservation and distribution of its storm and flood waters, the waters of its rivers and streams for irrigation, power and all other useful purposes; the reclamation and irrigation of its arid, semi-arid and other lands needing irrigation; the reclamation and drainage of its overflowed lands, and other lands needing drainage; the conservation and development of its forest, water and hydro-electric power, the navigation of its inland and coastal waters, and the preservation and conservation of all such natural resources of the State are each and all hereby declared public rights and duties. [Acts 1895, p. 25; Acts 1913, p. 358, § 1; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 88, § 1; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 124, § 1.]

See Knight v. Oldham (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 567.

Art. 4992. [3116] Certain waters declared state property; purposes for which waters may be diverted; owner of mining land to have prior right on application therefor.—The waters of the ordinary flow and underflow and tides of every flowing river or natural stream, of all lakes, bays or arms of the Gulf of Mexico, and the storm, flood or rain waters of every river or natural stream, canyon, ravine, depression or watershed, within the State of Texas, are hereby declared to be the property of the State, and the right to the use thereof may be acquired by appropriation in the manner and for the uses and purposes hereinafter provided, and may be taken or diverted from its natural channel for any of the purposes expressed in this Act. Provided that when an application is made for appropriation of such water for mining purposes, the owner of the land through which the water flows and which is to be appropriated shall have the prior right to appropriate same, and shall be permitted to exercise such right although such owner may not have made application prior to such application by another, and such owner shall have only ten days after notice of application to appropriate such water in which to exercise his prior right to appropriate, which he shall do by written application filed with the Board of Water Engineers within such time. [Acts 1895, p. 25; Acts 1913, p. 358, § 2; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 88, § 2; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 124, § 2.]

Art. 4993. [3117] Storage or diversion; vested rights not prejudiced.—The waters described in the preceding section may be held or stored by dams, in lakes or reservoirs, or diverted by means of canals, ditches, intakes, pumping plants, or other works constructed by any person, corporation, association of persons, or irrigation district created under the Statutes, for the purpose of irrigation, mining, milling, manufacturing, the development of power, the construction and operation of waterworks for cities and towns, or for stock raising, the waters of any arm or inlet of the Gulf of Mexico, or of any salt water bay, may be changed from salt to sweet or fresh water, and held or stored by dams, dikes, or other structure, and taken or diverted for any of the purposes expressed in this chapter. Provided that nothing in this Act shall prejudice vested private rights. [Acts 1895, p. 25; Acts 1913, p. 358, § 3; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 88, § 3; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 124, § 3.]

In general.—The act of 1895 relative to the diversion of waters from streams does not preclude the acquisition of prescriptive rights in view of the express authorization of diversion by the consent of the owners, as the presumed grant necessarily includes consent. Martin v. Burr (Sup.) 228 S. W. 543.

The act of 1895 relative to the diversion of water from streams does not repeal the statute of limitations of four years as applied to suits involving the rights of private riparian owners. Id.

Art. 4994. [3118] Purposes of appropriation.

In general.—That federal government, under "McAdoo statute," was exercising supervision over defendant's line of railway, would not enlarge defendant's right to trespass upon plaintiff's land and take water from a stream thereon, since even sovereign cannot exercise right of eminent domain, except by condemnation under due process of law. King v. Schaff (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1039.

Art. 4995. [3119] Priority of appropriation; who deemed an appropriator; this act not to work a forfeiture of rights acquired under declaration of appropriation duly acted upon; forfeiture.

Prescriptive right.—Evidence held to show prior appropriation and use by defendants and their vendors of one head of water for irrigation for a period of more than 10 years. Kountz v. Carpenter (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 109.

An upper riparian proprietor may, by prescription for 10 years, acquire the right to use the waters of a running stream in a special way and in excess of the right arising from ownership of his land to the injury and detriment of lower riparian proprietors. Martin v. Burr (Sup.) 228 S. W. 543.

— Notice of claim.—Though prescription does not begin to run in favor of a riparian owner diverting water to the detriment of lower owner until the party against whom the prescriptive right is claimed has notice, constructive notice has the same effect as actual notice. Martin v. Burr (Sup.) 228 S. W. 543.

— Tacking.—Deeds to land, together with all rights and appurtenances thereto, connected the grantee with the grantor's claim of right to divert water from a stream, though the right was inchoate and had not ripened into a prescriptive right. Martin v. Burr (Sup.) 228 S. W. 543.

— Continuity of use.—The use of water from a stream whenever the user needs it from time to time will support a prescriptive right to divert the water, and the continuity of the use is not broken because of the omission to use the water when not needed by the user. Martin v. Burr (Sup.) 228 S. W. 543.

— Interruption.—Where, after defendants' use of water for irrigation purposes for 14 years, plaintiff began using the excess water running through defendants' ditches, such use did not destroy defendants' already acquired prescriptive title to all of such water, or prevent the continued running of the statute of limitations. Kountz v. Carpenter (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 109.

Limitations applicable.—The right to the use of water for irrigation runs with and is appurtenant to the land, and hence, like land, is subject to the 10-year statute of limitations. Kountz v. Carpenter (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 109.

Art. 4996c. Persons desiring to appropriate water shall make application to board of water engineers; requisites of application; map; no application required in certain cases.

Permit necessary.—A municipal corporation, owning a waterworks system, is not entitled to injunction restraining others from using water from a stream, unless it shows that it has that right as a riparian owner, or by limitations, or by permit, under arts. 5107—1 to 5107—105 with reference to use of public water. Miller v. City of Ballinger (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1173.

Arts. 4996f—4996s. [Repealed.]

Art. 4996m cited, United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. Lowry (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 222.

Art. 4999a. Time limit for construction of reservoirs; extension; fee.—Whenever the State Board of Water Engineers shall grant a permit for the use of water which use contemplates the construction of a storage reservoir, they shall fix the time actual construction work shall be commenced thereon not to exceed two years from the granting of such permit and such time limit may be extended by order of said Board upon the payment of such fees as the said Board may fix not to exceed the sum of one thousand dollars. [Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 46, § 3.]

Explanatory.—Took effect 90 days after June 13, 1920, date of adjournment. Sec. 4 repeals all laws in conflict.

Art. 5001dd. Ascertainment of quantities of water required.

Validity.—This article, empowering board of water engineers to determine the amount of irrigation water necessary for land, and to fix the rates to be charged for delivery, is not so lacking in mutuality of remedies, and does not so completely fail to make estoppel by judgment of the board mutual, as to be inoperative and without force. Knight v. Oldham (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 567.

Decree of board.—A decree of the board of water engineers that an irrigation company be not required to furnish any land with water which cannot be supplied by gravity flow from the canals of the company does not absolve the company from its duty of furnishing water to its canals, but does absolve it from again pumping the water from the canals onto the lands to be irrigated. Nueces Valley Irr. Co. v. Howard (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 575.

Art. 5001ff. Fees for permits.—That the fees to be paid for filing in the office of the State Board of Water Engineers of applications for permits for the storage, diversion and use of water shall not exceed the sum of six thousand dollars for any one such application, permit or project. [Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 46, § 1.]

Art. 5001fff. Fees, how paid.—The fees provided by law to be paid to the State Board of Water Engineers upon applications for permits for the storage, diversion and use of water for any and all statutory purposes when such fees exceed one thousand dollars shall be paid as follows:

One-tenth shall be paid when the application is filed.

One-tenth shall be paid within thirty days after notice is mailed the applicant that the permit is granted. The balance shall be paid before the use of water is commenced under the permit; and a failure to so pay same shall annul such permit. [Id., § 2.]

Explanatory.—Act took effect 90 days after June 18, 1920, date of adjournment. Sec. 4 repeals all laws in conflict.

Art. 5001ll. Corporations may sell or lease water or water rights; lien; obligation under contracts; priority of appropriators not affected.

Representations by lessee.—Plaintiff's representation to lessor when procuring lease of water rights that he would build a refinery near said land within a reasonable time, held not misrepresentation of fact, but contractual in its nature, and not of itself a basis for cancellation of lease, unless made to deceive and cheat lessor, and with no intention on plaintiff's part to perform. Osborn v. Texas Pac. Coal & Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 359.

Rights of purchaser of irrigated lands.—The fact that a water company actually and voluntarily delivered more water than was called for in a contract, without extra charge, had no binding effect on water company in favor of a subsequent purchaser of irrigated lands, who had knowledge thereof. Rowles v. Hadden (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 251.

Art. 5001p. Injunction authorized.

Right to injunction.—A municipal corporation, owning a waterworks system, is not entitled to injunction restraining others from using water from a stream, unless it shows that it has that right as a riparian owner, or by limitations, or by permit, under arts. 5107—1 to 5107—105, with reference to use of public water. Miller v. City of Ballinger (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1173.

Art. 5002. [3125] Formation of corporations authorized.

See Knight v. Oldham (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 567.

Obligations assumed.—The purpose of permitting incorporation under this article, is to enable the corporation to furnish water for irrigation to those entitled to the same; and while this can be done by contract, those owning or holding a possessory right or title to land adjoining or contiguous to canal, are entitled to water at a just and reasonable rate, regardless of contract. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 904.

Defendant irrigation company, organized under this article, was, without contract, obligated to deliver water to plaintiff for the purpose of irrigating the latter's lands adjacent or contiguous to defendant's canal upon reasonable demand, reasonable terms, and within the ability of defendant to supply the same by the exercise of reasonable diligence. Id.

Irrigation companies and those under whom they hold are quasi public service corporations, required to perform their duty to the public when paid therefor. Edinburg Irr. Co. v. Paschen (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 329.

Limitation of liability.—Defendant irrigation company, organized under this article, cannot by contract limit its liability for failure to furnish water to land adjacent to its canals to an arbitrary amount, regardless of damage. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 904.

Provision of contract of defendant irrigation company, organized under this article, that it should not be liable for more than $10 per acre for failure to supply water, was unreasonable and void. Id.

Art. 5002a. [3125] Same; sale or lease of water and water rights; compliance with statute.

See Knight v. Oldham (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 567.

Art. 5002b. [3125] Persons entitled to use water.

See Knight v. Oldham (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 567.

Right to water at reasonable rate.—In an action to compel a public water supply company to furnish water for irrigation purposes at a stated price, evidence held to show that plaintiff had acquired a right to receive water at a reasonable rate from the plant prior to a receiver's sale wherein plaintiff's easements were alleged to have been sold. McBride v. United Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 498.

Duty to supply water.—Since this article provides that all persons holding a possessory right to land adjoining an irrigation plant can compel the furnishing of water to irrigate crops, the duty to furnish water is statutory and can be enforced by mandamus. Dunbar v. Texas Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 614.

Public irrigation company's legal liability to furnish water for irrigable and cultivated lands contiguous to canals, when requested to do so by one in rightful possession, rendered it liable, for violation of duty, for damages proximately caused to landowner or possessor. Louisiana Rio Grande Canal Co. v. Frazier (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 210.

An irrigation company, being a quasi public concern, vested with the power of eminent domain and obligated to furnish water for irrigation, must, when water in its reservoir is so low as to prevent the flow to its canals by gravity, supply such water to its canals by pumping. Nueces Valley Irr. Co. v. Howard (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 575.

A notice to defendant irrigation company by plaintiff, entitled to be supplied with water, that it had about 100 acres of cabbage that would need irrigation, was not a due demand for water for a specific tract, as required by the rules of the company. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 904.

Substantial compliance with rule of defendant irrigation company, requiring applications for water to state the number of acres to be irrigated and the location of the same, was a condition precedent to the right to water. Id.

In a proceeding to compel an irrigation plant to supply water at reasonable rates for irrigation purposes, evidence held not to support a finding that the president and owner of the irrigation plant was an innocent purchaser without notice of plaintiff's rights. McBride v. United Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 498.

An irrigation company cannot defend suit for mandatory injunction to compel it to furnish water to landowners as contracted by setting up that it has sold and continues to sell more land than it can reasonably put water upon. Edinburg Irr. Co. v. Paschen (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 329.

Contracts to supply water.—Under contract of landowner to raise a rice crop, and water company to furnish water for irrigation, it to be owner of one-fifth of crop when threshed and sacked, it was the owner of a fifth interest, though landowner stored all in his name. Blair v. Colorado Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 176.

Landowners holding contracts of irrigation company to supply water to their lands were not affected by published notice in receivership proceedings against company to present claims, though such notices are binding on parties having claims against property of company in receivership, proceedings not having been instituted to affect rights of landowners. Edinburg Irr. Co. v. Paschen (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 329.

Liability for breach.—The proper basis for determination of damage for loss of crop of cabbage, due to failure to supply water for irrigation, was the value of the yield when matured and ready for sale. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 904.

Contract between landowner and water supply company, requiring the company to furnish irrigation contracts to purchasers of land from such owner, and providing that the owner was to sell stock of water company by adding the price of the stock to the purchase price of the land sold by it for a specified commission, held insufficient to make owner of land liable to purchaser for water company's breach of irrigation contract on the ground that they were so closely allied as to be jointly liable. Harper v. Lott Town & Improvement Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 188.

Art. 5002c. [3125] No discrimination against users.

Cited, Kohler v. United Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 337.

Right to water at reasonable rate.—Though public irrigation company is obligated by law to furnish owner of land contiguous to canal with water, this article exonerates company from liability if it is shown that landowner had no contract for water, and others had contracts, and all water was used for those holding contracts. Louisiana Rio Grande Canal Co. v. Frazier (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 210.

An irrigation company, by its contracts with landowners, having fixed rates for land, the court, in suit by other owners of like lands to compel the company to furnish water as its predecessor had contracted, could require it to comply with its obligations on the same terms as to rates as the other lands without invading rate-making power of Legislature. Edinburg Irr. Co. v. Paschen (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 329.

Appeal from decision of board fixing rates.—See note under art. 5002jj.

Art. 5002e. [3125] Permanent water right and easement.

See Kohler v. United Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 337.

Water rights are easements.—Water in canals for irrigation purposes is real estate, and landowner's right to the use of a portion thereof is a servitude upon such real estate. Mudge v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 819.

Water rights originally granted to landowners are easements carved out of the fee simple of an irrigation system, attached to the respective tracts, appurtenant thereto, and part thereof from execution and delivery of the deeds conveying the rights, under this article. Edinburg Irr. Co. v. Paschen (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 329.

Cited, Kohler v. United Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 337.

Pleading.—Where landowners intervened in receivership proceedings against irrigation company after sale of plant under order of court, and alleged water rights under contract with former owner, the court will not pass upon such question as against purchaser, where interveners did not plead an application to board of water engineers to fix water rates. McHenry v. Bankers' Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 560.

Jurisdiction of board.—State board of water engineers, by this article, has power and authority to determine the amount of irrigation water necessary for lands, and to fix the rates to be charged for delivery. Knight v. Oldham (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 567.

Irrigation company not organized under art. 5002, which privately acquired and owned its waters, lands, ditches, canals, etc., without invoking power of condemnation provided for in statute, held in view of arts. 5011½uu, 5011½v, not subject to control of state board of water engineers under this article, so that, if purchasers from the company had any rights against its successors, it was by virtue of their contracts, enforceable only by the courts. Id.

Appeal from decision of board fixing rates.—See note under art. 5002jj.

Art. 5002hh. Power to fix rates.—The said Board shall have power and authority and it shall be its duty to fix reasonable rates for the furnishing of water for the purposes or any purpose mentioned in this Chapter. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 55, § 1 (§ 61a).]

Added to Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 88, as § 61a.

Validity.—This article, empowering board of water engineers to determine the amount of irrigation water necessary for land, and to fix the rates to be charged for delivery, is not so lacking in mutuality of remedies and does not so completely fail to make estoppel by judgment of the board mutual as to be inoperative and without force. Knight v. Oldham (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 567.

Art. 5002i. Appeal; supersedeas.

Cited, Kohler v. United Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 337.

Appeal from decision of board fixing rates.—See note under art. 5002jj.

Art. 5002kk. Petition to district court from decision, etc., of board; appeal to appellate court.—If any person, firm, association of persons, or corporations engaged in furnishing water, or other persons at interest be dissatisfied with the decision of any rate, charge, order or Act of regulation adopted by the Board, such dissatisfied company or party may file a petition setting forth the particular cause or causes of objection to such decision, act, rule, rate, charge or order, or to either or all of them, in a District Court of Travis County, Texas, against said Board as defendant. Said Action shall have precedence over all other causes on the docket of a different nature, and shall be tried and determined as other civil causes in said Court. Any party to said action may appeal to the Appellate Court having jurisdiction of said cause; and said appeal shall be at once returnable to said Appellate Court at any term thereof; said action so appealed shall have precedence in said Appellate Court of all causes of a different character therein pending; provided that if the Court be in session at the time such right of action accrues, the suit may be filed during such term and stand ready for trial after ten days notice. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 55, § 1 (§ 64a).]

Appeal from decision of board fixing rates.—Landowners entitled to water rights under contract with irrigation company had no right to appeal from decision of board of water engineers fixing rates, to district court of county in which the irrigation system was located, art. 5002i having no application to such an appeal, in view of arts. 5002c, 5002f; their remedy, under this article, being a suit in district court of Travis county to set aside the rates so fixed. Kohler v. United Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 337.

Art. 5002kkk. Trials under preceding article.—In all trials under the foregoing article the burden of proof shall rest upon the plaintiff, who must show by clear and satisfactory evidence that the rates, regulations, acts, orders or charges complained of are unreasonable and unjust to it or them. [Id., (§ 64b).]

Added to Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 88, as § 64b.
Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Art. 5004a. Eminent domain; application to board; institution of proceedings by board.

Cited, Millhollon v. Stanton Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1109.

Arts. 5009, 5009a. [Repealed.]

Art. 5009 cited, American Type Founders' Co. v. Nichols, 110 Tex. 4, 214 S. W. 301.

Art. 5011e. Alienation of land required, etc.

Public policy as to acquisition of lands by irrigation companies.—The public policy of the state being determined by the enactments of the Legislature, it cannot be said, in view of this article, that it is against the public policy of the state for an irrigation company to acquire land. Westbrook v. Missouri-Texas Land & Irrigation Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1154.

Art. 1177, forbidding the acquisition of lands by corporations whose main purpose is the acquisition of land, and this article, as to incorporation of irrigation companies, permitting such companies to acquire land, are not irreconcilable, and art. 1177 does not impliedly repeal this article. Id.

Art. 5011ff. Preference lien upon crops raised on land irrigated.

Validity.—Statute giving priority to a lien created by tenant over lien of landlord held valid. Dunbar v. Texas Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 614.

Priority of lien.—Lien on crops given irrigation company furnishing water by this article, held superior to landlord's lien under art. 5475. Texas Bank & Trust Co. of Beaumont v. Smith (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 617; Dunbar v. Texas Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 614.

Since the landlord's lien is given by statute, the Legislature may restrict it as it deems best for the public interest or entirely abolish it, and no vested right of the landlord is invaded by a statute authorizing a tenant to create a lien upon a crop superior to any lien in favor of the landlord. Dunbar v. Texas Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 614.

This article gives a preferred lien to an irrigation company furnishing water to one entitled to compel it to furnish water, upon the crops raised under such irrigation and against all persons asserting a lien of any kind against the crop. Id.

Under this article, irrigation company furnishing water to tenant held to have lien superior to mortgagee who loaned money for purpose of producing crops. Texas Bank & Trust Co. of Beaumont v. Smith (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 617.

Lien for water furnished tenant.—Under the prior statute, a lien exists in favor of the irrigation company, though it furnishes the water under contract with the tenant, since the word "owner" includes a person having a possessory right to the land. Texas Bank & Trust Co. of Beaumont v. Smith (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 617; Dunbar v. Texas Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 614.

Art. 5011ss. Construction of gates, breakwaters, dams or dikes in tide waters to prevent pollution of fresh water.—Persons, associations of persons, corporations or districts, operating under the statutes of Texas relating to irrigation, are hereby authorized, (subject to the conditions and regulations which may be required or prescribed by the authorities of the United States Government in respect to navigation), to construct such gates or breakwaters, dams or dikes, with gates, as may be required in any waters wholly in the State of Texas where gulf tides ebb and flow to prevent the pollution of the fresh water of any stream, river or bayou, through ebb and flow of salt tides from the Gulf of Mexico and to conserve such fresh water in a condition fit for irrigation; provided that such work shall, in every case, be done so as not to obstruct navigation by any vessels operated on such waterway, and provided that in every case where gates are required to avoid obstruction of navigation, such persons, association, corporation or district responsible for the construction shall at all times keep a competent person at such gates to operate same when required for purposes of navigation; provided further that such dam, dike or breakwater hereby authorized shall not be placed at any point in such waters, except where the gulf tides ebb and flow, and not so as to obstruct the flow of fresh water to any appropriator or riparian owner below on the same stream. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 35, § 1.]

Took effect March 30, 1918.

Art. 5011t. Diversion of surface waters; remedies; provisos.

Cited, Wilkerson v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 666.

Right to repel surface water.—By express provision of this article, the natural flow of surface water may not be diverted in such manner as to damage the property of another. Bevers v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 651.

Common-law rule that owner of land may for his own protection divert natural surface water, although it results in injury to land of his neighbor, has been changed by this article. Hester v. McAdams (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 121.

— Incidental to erection of building.—That erection of building, or excavation therefor, may divert slightly water falling on lot or lots to be used in connection with building, does not constitute diversion of natural flow of surface water as prohibited by this article. Shamburger v. Scheurrer (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1069.

Art. 5011½f. Board to determine relative rights of claimants to waters; taking testimony; transfer of cases from courts to board.

Constitutionality.—This article, requiring the Board of Water Engineers to determine the relative rights of claimants to waters of any stream, art. 5011½jj, authorizing a contest of the rights of persons submitting evidence to the board, and art. 5011½ll, requiring the board to make an order of determination, undertake to empower the board to adjudicate vested water rights and to give its determination when not appealed from the effect of a judgment and violate Const. art. 2, § 1, dividing the powers of government into three departments, etc., and article 5, § 1, vesting the judicial power in the courts. Board of Water Engineers v. McKnight (Sup.) 229 S. W. 301; McKnight v. Pecos & Toyah Lake Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 599.

This article, authorizing the Board of Water Engineers to determine and adjudicate water rights, is not saved from invalidity by the provision that any person dissatisfied may appeal to the court for a trial de novo, nor by the provision of art. 5011½v that nothing therein shall affect, impair, or destroy vested rights, as the subject-matter of the determinations and orders provided for are vested rights. Board of Water Engineers v. McKnight (Sup.) 229 S. W. 301.

Art. 5011½i. Notice of completion of testimony; inspection by claimants.

See McKnight v. Pecos & Toyah Lake Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 599.

Art. 5011½jj. Contest of claims; notice.

Constitutionality.—Art. 5011½f, requiring the Board of Water Engineers to determine the relative rights of claimants to waters of any stream, this article, authorizing a contest of the rights of persons submitting evidence to the board, and art. 5011½ll, requiring the board to make an order of determination, undertake to empower the board to adjudicate vested water rights and to give its determination when not appealed from the effect of a judgment and violate Const. art. 2, § 1, dividing the powers of government into three departments, etc., and article 5, § 1, vesting the judicial power in the courts. Board of Water Engineers v. McKnight (Sup.) 229 S. W. 301.

Art. 5011½l. Examination of stream or water supply; measurements; map.

In general.—On the facts appearing in a proceeding by landowners to enjoin an irrigation company from interfering with their operation of the company's plant based on an agreement whereby they were to organize an irrigation district and buy the plant and water appropriations, held that contract was terminated when by this article, right to organize district was made certain and landowners failed to organize district. Porterville Irr. Co. v. Goodrich (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 745.

Art. 5011½ll. Findings of fact and determination; rights determined; certified copy sent to counties through which stream flows.

Constitutionality.—Art. 5011½f, requiring the Board of Water Engineers to determine the relative rights of claimants to waters of any stream, art. 5011½jj, authorizing a contest of the rights of persons submitting evidence to the board, and this article, requiring the board to make an order of determination, undertake to empower the board to adjudicate vested water rights and to give its determination when not appealed from the effect of a judgment and violate Const. art. 2, § 1, dividing the powers of government into three departments, etc., and article 5, § 1, vesting the judicial power in the courts. Board of Water Engineers v. McKnight (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 301; McKnight v. Pecos & Toyah Lake Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 599.

Art. 5011½uu. Recognition of riparian rights.

See Knight v. Oldham (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 567.

Art. 5011½v. Not to affect vested rights.

See Knight v. Oldham (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 567.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Liabilities of railroad companies, see notes under art. 6495.

Powers, rights and liabilities of cities, see notes under art. 865.

Rights of riparian owners.—Although plaintiff, who owned land on both sides of stream, had consented for a consideration to defendant's taking water through pipes on plaintiff's land, where consideration had failed, plaintiff would have the right to prevent defendant's use of pipes. King v. Schaff (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1039.

Water in canals for irrigation purposes is real estate and landowner's right to the use of a portion thereof is a servitude upon such real estate. Mudge v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 819.

A riparian proprietor cannot rightfully take water for the operation of a railroad in such quantities as to materially reduce the volume of a stream to the detriment of the lower riparian proprietors. Martin v. Burr (Sup.) 228 S. W. 543.

Upper riparian owners cannot lawfully use the waters of a flowing stream for irrigation when such use materially interferes with the supply required to meet the reasonable domestic needs of lower riparian owners, including water for stock. Id.

— Navigable waters.—Channel of navigable stream held in state so that riparian proprietor cannot complain that a municipality dammed such stream under authority of state. Moore v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 870.

Although stream running through plaintiff's land was navigable, defendant would not have the right to trespass upon plaintiff's land in order to take water from the stream, regardless of method employed. King v. Schaff (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1039.

Although stream running through plaintiff's land was navigable, plaintiff had the right to use water therefrom for domestic purposes or natural wants, so long as such use was reasonable, regardless of effect upon lower riparian owners. Id.

The general rule is that the right of a riparian owner to the use of the waters of a navigable stream for domestic purposes is superior to the right of a similar owner to use them for irrigation. Grogan v. City of Brownwood (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 532.

Accretion.—Where receding of river and consequent accretion of land are gradual and slow, added land becomes part of adjoining land. Rosetti v. Camille (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 526.

Rights under grants and conveyances.—Where a landowner who had operated a small waterworks system from a well on his property sold the well and surrounding land to plaintiff, agreeing that plaintiff might use the pipes so long as he would supply the landowner with water, held that, as the contract would expire upon plaintiff's failure to furnish the landowner with water, upon the wearing out of the pipes, or on the death of either party, it cannot be deemed invalid because it might continue indefinitely, at the option of plaintiff; for where a contract is not revocable at the will of either party, or otherwise limited, it is presumed to be permanent, etc. Foster v. Wright (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1090.

Actions to establish or protect rights.—Measure of plaintiff's damage by erection of dam impounding waters of a stream upon which his land abutted held difference between value of his land immediately before and after injury. Moore v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 870.

In action for diversion of surface water onto plaintiff's land, where there was no allegation that defendant had caused such diverted water to augment the flow of water from other land being drained by ditch between such land and plaintiff's land to such extent as to cause water to overflow onto plaintiff's land, defendant was entitled to have submitted to jury special issue as to whether jury was able to ascertain the proportion of the loss, if any, caused by surface water from such other land which had not flowed over defendant's land, since in such case defendant was liable only for the portion of the injury caused by the water diverted by it, and was entitled to judgment in its favor if the jury was unable to ascertain the amount of the proportion of injury. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 375.

In action for injuries from overflow of surface waters caused by defendant's obstruction of a natural waterway by his construction of an embankment and insufficient diverting ditch, an instruction that if, by plaintiffs' cleaning out and changing ditches on their land the natural flow of the water was narrowed or changed, and that such construction and diversion proximately caused "or contributed to" the accumulation of water and the overflowing and damage to plaintiffs' land and crops, to find for defendant, was error, as denying to plaintiffs a recovery, although their ditches and levees were not the proximate and sole producing cause of the overflow, for, although defendant was entitled to show in mitigation that his ditch and levee were not the cause of all the damages, he would be liable for all damages resulting from his acts. Frazier v. Rollins (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 874.

Right to repel surface water.—Company owning rice irrigation canal right of way was protected by the common-law immunity of a fee-simple owner from liability for damages in repelling surface water, and would be liable for obstructing the natural flow of surface water only if it did something in the construction or operation of its canal that amounted to an undue exercise of dominion. Old River Co. v. Barber (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 758.

In Texas the common-law rule obtains that, surface water being considered a common enemy, any owner of land has the right to protect himself against it and to do anything upon his own premises with that end in view, so long as what he does amounts to no more than a due exercise of dominion over his own premises. Id.

Where grant to rice irrigation canal company of right of way for canal did not require the company to construct drains or openings in its canal, its operation of the canal without doing so did not render it liable for damages for surface water impeded and backed upon the premises of another by the canal embankment; nor would the company be liable because it failed to cut its canal to allow escape of such surface water after being requested to do so by such landowner. Id.

A landowner is liable in compensatory damages for the construction of dams and ditches on his land so as to concentrate surface water and discharge it on the land of another. Wilkerson v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 666.

Where landowner by construction of dams and ditches on his land has concentrated surface water and discharged it on the land of another, the injured party is not only entitled to damages, but may abate the nuisance. Id.

Where a landowner built a dam on his land to obstruct the flow of waters from a hill diverting them from a former course, and opened a new ditch casting all the water which would have gone across his land into a drain that ran across plaintiff's land, such action constituted a flagrant invasion of the rights of plaintiff. Id.

While a landowner may use proper means to protect his land from water, he must not use his neighbor's land nor his own in such a manner as to destroy or deteriorate the property of another nor interfere with the lawful use or enjoyment thereof. Id.

Liability for injury to property.—All parties contributing to overflowing of land with surface water held liable jointly or severally when acts of different parties are concurrent and not plainly separable. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 605.

The fact that the dam constructed by defendants on their property and the ditch therefrom discharged more water and discharged it more rapidly on plaintiffs' land, over which the surface water from defendants' land naturally flowed, does not impose liability on plaintiffs. Isbell v. Lennox (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 524.

Where a landowner constructed a dam on his property concentrating surface water and discharging it on plaintiff's land, and thereafter sold the land to another, who built the dam higher, dug new ditches, and cleaned out the old ones, thus increasing the flow of surface water, such purchaser thereby made the nuisance his own and became liable for all damages caused by it after his connection therewith. Wilkerson v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 666.

Articles 5012—5107. [Repealed.]

Art. 5065, cited in State v. Settegast (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 253.

Constitutionality.—Acts 29th Leg. c. 122, §§ 34, 48, providing for assessments in irrigation districts organized under the act, in addition to bonds that may be issued, cannot be held invalid simply because limitations under Const. art. 3, § 52, as to amount of obligations that district may assume, are not stated in the sections; the constitutional limitations being binding, though not stated. These sections were not intended to authorize additional taxation within the constitutional sense of that term, but to authorize assessments based on property benefits, and are ineffectual in that they do not provide for any hearing for determination of benefits accruing to property upon which assessments are made. White v. Fahring (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 193.

Const. art. 3, § 52, authorizing the granting of credit by the district for the construction and maintenance of pools, lakes, reservoirs, dams, canals, and waterways for the purpose of irrigation, authorizes an act of the Legislature (Acts 29th Leg. c. 122) permitting irrigation districts to issue bonds for the purpose of constructing irrigation works, and acquiring the necessary property and rights therefor, and for the operation of an irrigation plant. Id.

The Legislature having by timely enactment (Acts 33d Leg. c. 172, § 72 [Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5107—72]) remedied the defect in Acts 29th Leg. c. 122, § 20, fixing terms of office of members of board of directors of irrigation districts at four years, contrary to Const. art. 16, § 30, before any of the directors of district in question had served two years, and having in express terms validated districts created under the act of 1905, and the acts of the directors and officers of such districts, no one can complain of section 20. Id.

The $2,000 indebtedness for organization purposes of irrigation districts authorized by Acts 29th Leg. c. 122, § 50, is to be paid out of assessments which can only be made after being authorized by two-thirds of the voters of the district, and the section, when so construed, is not in violation of Const. art. 3, § 52, as to two-thirds vote being required to lend credit of district. Id.

Forfeiture of corporate existence of district.—Evidence held to show due diligence on the part of an irrigation district organized under Acts 29th Leg. c. 122, to carry out the purpose of its organization, so that its legal existence had not been forfeited on that account. White v. Fahring (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 193.

Art. 5107—1. Commissioners' Court may establish districts; boundaries; powers; petition and proceedings therein.—The county commissioners' court of any county in this State at any regular or called session thereof may establish one or more water improvement districts in their respective counties, or parts of such districts therein, in the manner hereinafter provided. Such districts may or may not include within their boundaries villages, towns, cities and municipal corporations, or any part thereof, but no land shall be at the same time included within the boundaries of more than one water improvement district created under this Act. Such districts when so established may make improvements or may purchase improvements already existing, or may purchase improvements and make additions thereto, and may issue bonds in payment therefor, as herein provided. Such districts being authorized to provide for the irrigation of the land included therein, and when operating under Section 59 of Article 16 of the Constitution, furnish water for domestic, power and commercial purposes. Such districts may be formed for corporation with the United States under the Federal Reclamation Laws for the purpose of the construction of irrigation works, including drainage works, necessary to maintain the irrigability of the land for the purchase, extension operation or maintenance of constructed works or for the assumption, as principal or guarantor, of indebtedness to the United States on account of district lands.

The petition herein provided for to be presented to the county commissioners' court shall be signed by a majority in number of the holders of title to the lands situated within the proposed district and representing a majority in value of the lands therein as indicated by the county tax rolls; provided, however, that such petition shall be sufficient if same is signed by fifty holders of title or evidence of title to the land situated within the proposed district, in the event that the number of such land owners should be greater than fifty in number. Upon presentation to the Commissioners' court either at a regular or special session, of a petition as herein provided, praying for the establishment of a water improvement district, setting forth the boundaries thereof and designating a name for the district, the commissioners court shall set the same for hearing at some regular or special session to be held not less than fifteen days nor more than forty days from the presentation of said petition. The Clerk of said court shall issue a notice of the said hearing, giving the date and place of hearing, and a copy of the order of the court setting same for hearing. Said notice shall be directed to the sheriff of the county requiring him to serve the notice in the manner provided by law. Said notice shall be sufficient if it contains the matter herein provided, and all persons interested shall take notice of the boundaries of said district as set out in the petition and may inspect same by examining the same in the office of the clerk of said court.

The sheriff shall execute said notice by posting true copies thereof in three public places within said proposed district and one at the courthouse door of the county, or on the bulletin board used for public notices at the county courthouse. Said notices shall be posted for ten full days prior to the date of said hearing. Said notice shall also be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the county, if a newspaper is published therein, one time and at least five days prior to such hearing. The sheriff shall make due return of a true copy of said notice, showing the time when and the places where such notice was posted and published. The said return to be delivered to the clerk of the commissioners court, and to be recorded in the minutes of said court.

The duties herein imposed upon the clerk and sheriff may be performed by them acting by themselves or their deputies as provided by law for other similar duties. When conditions may make desirable, the petition herein provided for may be signed and presented to the court in several copies. When such petition is so presented in more than one copy the clerk shall file all such copies and shall make a true copy thereof, including a list of all those who have signed the several copies, and certify thereto and file same. Such certified copy shall be considered the petition in all other proceedings provided for by this Act.

Water improvement districts to be organized as provided herein are defined districts under the authority granted by Section 52 of Article 3 of the Constitution of the State. [Acts 1905, p. 235; Acts 1913, p. 380, § 1; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1, amends §§ 1, 7-10, 13, 17, 19, 23, 33, 53, 56, 57, 60, 65, 70, 80, and 108 of Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, and § 15 of said act, as amended by Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 53, § 1, and adds sections 118a, 119, 120, and 121.

See 1918 Supp., arts. 6016½-6016½c, as to newspaper publication instead of posting; Peyton Creek Irr. Dist. v. White (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1060.

Art. 5107—4. Appeal to district court; certification of result.—If at the hearing provided for in Section 3 of this Act [1918 Supp., Art. 5107—3], the court shall enter an order granting or refusing the petition for the organization of said district at the cost of petitioners, then in that event the petitioners, or any one or more of them, or any one owning land in such district, may appeal from said order to the District Court, provided, however, any such appeal shall only be taken in the event notice thereof is filed with said County Commissioners' Court at the time of said hearing, and that same is perfected by filing with the clerk of said court an appeal bond in a sum of not less than $2,000.00 or more than $5,000.00, to be fixed by said County Commissioners' Court, payable to the County Judge for the benefit of adverse parties, at the time notice of appeal is given, and said bond shall be filed with the clerk of said court within ten days thereafter. In the event of such appeal said cause shall be tried under the rules prescribed for practice in the District Court, and to be de novo, and the clerk of the Commissioners' Court shall transfer to the clerk of the District Court within ten days from the date of filing of an appeal bond such judgment and all records filed with the County Commissioners' Court, and it shall be unnecessary to file any other additional pleadings in said cause. The final judgment on appeal shall be certified to the Commissioners' Court for their action within ten days after same has become final. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 4; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 4; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. ch. 13, § 1 (§ 4).]

See 1918 Supp., arts. 6016½-6016¾c, as to newspaper publication instead of posting.

Art. 5107—7. Conduct of election; ballots.—The manner of conducting elections herein provided for shall be governed by the general election laws of the State, except as herein otherwise provided. At such elections none but resident property tax payers who are qualified voters under the laws of the State shall be entitled to vote. The county commissioners court shall at the time of ordering said first election by an order entered of record, create said proposed district, or the part thereof within said county, into one or more election precincts and shall name a polling place in each voting precinct, and shall appoint two judges and two clerks for each polling place, one of the judges to be designated as presiding judge. If said officers so selected fail to serve, his place shall be filled in the manner provided by the general election laws. The court shall order printed one and a half times as many ballots for said election as there are estimated to be qualified voters within such district. Said ballots for said first election shall have printed thereon substantially the following: "For Water Improvement District" and "Against Water Improvement District," and said ballot shall contain five blank lines on which to write names "of the persons voted for, for the office of director, with a heading "For Directors, five to be elected." No other matter shall be placed on said ballot except the heading "Official Ballot."

The election precincts herein provided to be created shall be and continue the election precincts of said district until changed by an order of the board of directors. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 7; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 7; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1 (§ 7).]

Art. 5107—8. List of property tax payers to be furnished for judges of election; oath of voters.—It shall be the duty of the tax collector of the county before a water improvement district is formed, and of the tax collector of the district after its organization, to make a certified list of the property tax payers of said district, or part thereof in the county, and to furnish same to the officers of the election of each polling place, and before any person is entitled to vote at any election under this Act his name must appear in said certified list of property tax payers; provided, however, that a qualified voter who is a property tax payer in said district or proposed district, and whose name does not appear upon said list, shall be entitled to vote if he shall first take the following oath, to be administered by an election judge and which the judges of the election are authorized to administer; "I do solemnly swear (Or affirm) that I am a qualified voter under the laws of the State of Texas, and that I am a resident property tax payer of _____ (inserting the name of the district) and I did not acquire such property prior to this election for the purpose of voting, but I am a bona fide property taxpayer." [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 8; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 8; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1 (§ 8).]

Art. 5107—9. Returns and canvass of election; directors.—The officers of the election shall make returns for each polling place in the same manner as provided by law for general elections, and the county commissioners court shall canvass said returns in the manner provided by law. If a majority of said votes be cast in favor of the organization of said district, then the court shall declare the result of said election in favor of the establishment of said district and shall enter same in the minutes of said court. The court shall also canvass the votes for directors and declare the election of the five persons receiving the highest number of votes for said office; provided, that should it be found that two or more persons had received the same number of votes so as to make it a tie for the office between them, then the said court shall select one of said persons to fill such position. In the event said district is composed of territory lying in two or more counties the said returns shall be canvassed and the result declared as hereinafter provided. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 9; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 9; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1 (§ 9).]

Art. 5107—10. Order for establishment of district; name and number of district; change of name; number created.—If the result of said election be in favor of the establishment of the district, the county commissioners court shall make and enter in the minutes of said court an order setting forth facts substantially as follows: "In the matter of the petition of ———, and others praying for the establishment of a water improvement district, as in said petition described, and named: ———, be it known that an election was called for that purpose in said district, and held on the ——— day ——— A. D. 19—, and a majority of the resident tax payers voting thereat voted in favor of the creation of said district. Now, therefore, it is declared that said district has been legally established under the name of ——— with the following metes and bounds: (here copy description of boundaries.)"

When a district is created including territory in two or more counties the officer charged with the duty of declaring result of said election shall use substantially the same form.

All districts lying wholly in one county shall include in its name the name of the county in which it is located as a part of its name, and shall be numbered consecutively as created and established. A district lying partly in two or more counties may include the names of said counties in its name or may adopt any appropriate name.

The numbers of districts created hereafter shall not conflict with the numbers of irrigation or water improvement districts heretofore created, but shall be consecutively continued, and when a district lying in two or more counties has adopted a number as part of its name such number shall not be the same as that of any other district in either of said counties, and the numbers of districts created in either of said counties shall not conflict therewith. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 10; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 10; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1 (§ 10).]

Art. 5107—13. Organization of directors; quorum.—The directors of such district shall organize by electing one of their number as president and one as secretary. The directors may elect a president pro tem, and a secretary pro tem, to act in the absence or inability of the president or secretary. Any three directors shall constitute a quorum at any meeting, and a concurrence of three shall be sufficient in all matters pertaining to the business of the district except the letting of construction contracts and the drawing of warrants on the depository, which shall require the concurrence of four of such directors; provided, however, warrants to pay the current expenses, salaries, and labor and material accounts, may be drawn by an officer or employee, designated by standing order of the directors, when such accounts have been contracted and ordered paid by the directors. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 13; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 13; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1 (§ 13).]

Concurrence in contracts.—In a contractor's action against an irrigation district for the balance due for construction work, a contention that the contract sued upon should not have been admitted in evidence because not signed by all five of the district's directors is untenable, because this article requires concurrence of but four members of the board of directors. Peyton Creek Irr. Dist. v. White (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1060.

Art. 5107—15. Assessor and collector; bond; qualifications; compensation; additional bond; duties; additional compensation; deputies.—The office of tax assessor and collector is one office to be filled by one person. The tax assessor and collector shall be appointed by the directors, or if the directors so order, may be elected by an election held for that purpose. He shall qualify by making and entering into a good and sufficient bond, signed also by at least two good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the board of directors, in the sum of five thousand dollars ($5,000.00), conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties as tax assessor and collector and for the paying over to the depository all funds or sums of money or other thing of value, coming into his hands as such collector. The directors may require additional bonds or a bond in a larger amount or additional security at any time that same may be advisable in their judgment. The assessor and collector shall be a resident of the district, or any town within the general boundaries of the district, and shall be a qualified voter in the county of his residence. The compensation to be paid to the tax assessor and collector, or deputy tax assessor and collector shall be fixed by the board of directors, but shall not exceed $3,000.00 per year. One or more deputies may be appointed by the board of directors to assist the tax assessor and collector for such time not to exceed one year as may be ordered by the board. Such deputies shall perform such duties as the board may order and may be discharged at any time by the board. The amount of bond given by such deputies shall be determined at the time of their appointment or as occasion may require. The board of directors may require the tax assessor and collector to perform other duties than those herein fixed and may fix his additional compensation if any therefor. In case any district organized hereunder is appointed fiscal agent of the United States, or by the United States is authorized to make collections of money for and on behalf of the United States in connection with any Federal reclamation project, such assessor and collector and each director, shall execute a further additional bond in such sum as the Secretary of the Interior may require, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his respective office and the faithful discharge by the district of its duties as fiscal or other agent of the United States under such appointment or authorization; such additional bonds to be approved, recorded and filed as herein provided for other official bonds, and any such additional bonds may be used on by the United States or by any person injured by the failure of such officer or the district, to fully, promptly and completely perform their respective duties. [Acts 1913, p. 380, §

Explanatory.—Acts 1915, 34th Leg., ch. 138, § 1, amends §§ 15, 21, 58, 59, 69, 70, 75, 83, 85, and 97 of chapter 172 of Acts 33d Leg., regular session. Acts 1915, 34th Leg., ch. 138, is expressly repealed by Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 107 (post, art. 5107—107).

Art. 5107—17. Exclusion of land from district; petition of owner.—

The owner or owners of the fee of any land constituting a portion of any district may file with the board of directors of such district a petition praying that certain lands owned by them be excluded from and taken out of said district. The petition shall describe the lands which the petitioners desire to have excluded by metes and bounds and such petition must be acknowledged in the same manner and form as is required by law for the conveyance of real estate. Such petition may be filed at any time prior to the issuance of bonds by such district. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 17; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 17; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1 (§ 17).]

Effect of failure to exclude nonirrigable lands.—Under arts. 5107—1 to 5107—117, relative to water improvement districts, which provide for a hearing and the exclusion of nonirrigable lands, it is not a defense to a delinquent tax suit after the organization of the district, the issuance and sale of bonds, and the making of tax assessments, that the lands are nonirrigable. Wheat v. Ward County Water Improvement Dist. No. 2 (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 713.

Art. 5107—18. Same; notice.

See 1918 Supp., acts 6016½-6016½c, as to newspaper publication instead of posting.

Art. 5107—19. Same; order excluding non-irrigable land; effect.

—The board of directors, at any time and place designated in such notice, or at such time and place as such hearing may from time to time be adjourned to, shall proceed to hear the petition and all objections thereto, and shall determine whether or not said lands, or any portion thereof, shall remain as a portion of said district or be excluded therefrom; and if upon such hearing the directors shall determine that the land desired to be withdrawn or any portion thereof is not susceptible to irrigation by gravity from the system to be provided, or for other reasons should be allowed to be withdrawn, then such lands shall be excluded by granting such petition in whole or in part, and such excluded lands and the owners thereof thereby waive all right to be served with water from such irrigation system or by said district. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 19; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 19; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1 (§ 19).]

Art. 5107—21. Powers of board of directors; employees; general manager; contracts; contracts with United States; levy of tax; district as federal fiscal agent.

See Miller v. City of Ballinger (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1173.
Cited, Peyton Creek Irr. Dist. v. White (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1060.

Art. 5107—23. District may sue and be sued; judicial notice of district; contracts.—All districts established under the provisions of this Act may sue and be used in any and all courts of this State in the name of such district, and all courts of this State shall take judicial knowledge and notice of the establishment of such district and the boundaries thereof, and such district shall contract and be contracted within the name of such districts. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 23; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 23; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1 (§ 23).]

In general.—In view of art. 1118, and articles 4991-5011, an irrigation district is a "public corporation," which cannot be dissolved or have its powers destroyed at the suit of any one except the state. J. C. Engleman Land Co. v. Donna Irr. Dist. No. 1 (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 428.

A water improvement district established by commissioners' court under arts. 5107—1 to 5107—117, while authorized to sue and be sued, and under arts. 5107—1, 5107—24, 5107—108 empowered to provide for irrigation of the land in the district, to own and construct reservoirs, etc., to acquire right of way, and to acquire water rights and privileges in any way that an individual or corporation may, cannot maintain action to adjudicate riparian water rights; it not having acquired them. Ward County Water Improvement Dist. No. 2 v. Ward County Irr. Dist. No. 1 (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 665.

Art. 5107—24. Construction of works; acquisition of right of way by condemnation or otherwise; purchase of established works; conveyance to United States.—Districts created under the provisions of this Act are hereby empowered to own and construct reservoirs, dams, wells, canals, etc., and to acquire the necessary rights-of-way for, and buy or construct all reservoirs, dams, wells, canals, laterals, sites for pumping plants and all other improvements required for the irrigation of the lands in such district by gift, grant, purchase or condemnation, and they may acquire the title to any and all lands necessary or incident to the successful operation thereof, in addition to any of the above, in the manner provided, including the authority by purchase or condemnation, to acquire rights-of-way for the enlargement, extension or improvement of any existing canals, or ditches for the purpose of raising such canals and ditches jointly with the owners thereof.

Any property acquired may be conveyed to the United States in so far as the same shall be necessary for the construction, operation and maintenance of works by the United States for the benefit of the district under any contract that may be entered into thereunder. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 24; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 24; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 77, § 1 (§ 24).]

Art. 5107—25. Duties of assessor and collector; assessment of lands; listing of lands not rendered by owners.

See White v. Fahring (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 193.

Taxing power strictly construed.—The grant of taxing power to any county or district by the Legislature should be construed with strictness, the presumption being that the Legislature has granted in clear terms all it intended to grant. State v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 820.

Art. 5107—33. Compensation of members of Board of Equalization and its secretary.—The members of the board of equalization and the secretary while acting as secretary of said board, shall receive such compensation for their services as may be fixed by the board of directors of the district, not to exceed, however, the sum of six dollars per day for the time actually engaged in the discharge of such duties. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 33; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 33; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1 (§ 33).]

Art. 5107—41. Lien for taxes delinquent; sale of land.—All lands and other property which have been returned delinquent, during the existence of such district, shall be subject to the provisions of this Act, and said taxes shall be and remain a lien upon said land, and upon all other property against which same were assessed, although the owner be unknown or though such land be listed in the name of a person not the actual owner, and though the ownership be changed the land may be sold under the judgment of the court for all taxes, interest, penalty, and costs shown to be due by such assessment for any preceding year or years, provided the record owner of such land or lands at the date of filing such suit be made a party to such suit and be properly cited, and such districts shall have authority to file suits for the collection of taxes due upon land and also personal property or property of any character. No law providing for a period of limitation on debt or actions shall apply to such taxes, accruing after the formation of such district. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 41; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 40; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. ch. 13, § 2 (§ 40); Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 46, § 1 (§ 40).]

Art. 5107—41a. District shall not become party to pre-existing contracts; statute of limitations; pre-existing liens.—No district created or existing or to be created under the provisions of this Chapter shall have the right to become a party to, or purchase, or hold under or assign or seek to enforce or receive the fruits or benefits from any contract between any land owner and private canal company or corporation made prior to the formation of such district, but all rights and privileges owned or possessed by such district are those arising or inherent in such district by virtue of this Chapter. The statutes of limitation of two years as well as the provisions hereof may be pleaded in bar of all actions for the recovery of water rents or other assessments accruing on land in such district prior to the formation of such district and cannot acquire or enforce any lien against such land fixed by any contract existing prior to the formation of such district, and cannot prosecute or cause to be prosecuted for it any suit or cause of action or claim of any character for its use for the recovery of any such water taxes or assessments accruing prior to the formation of such district and cannot foreclose any lien on such lands by reason of such unpaid water assessments and taxes accruing prior to the formation of such district and cannot avail itself of any rights under any private contracts made with reference to said lands prior to the formation of such districts, and cannot be held liable for the breach, of any such contract. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 46, § 2 (§ 40a).]

Explanatory.—The act adds section 40a to Acts 1917, 35th Leg. ch. 87.

Art. 5107—45. Suit for delinquent taxes; employment of attorney; petition; precedence over other cases.

Evidence making prima facie case.—In a water improvement district's suit for delinquent taxes, evidence that the lands were in the district, that defendants were record owners, and evidence showing a proper tax levy, the valuation of lands, and the tax rate, that the tax was uniform, the amount of the tax, interest, penalties, and costs, the time of the tax levy and year for which made, and demand and nonpayment, made a prima facie case. Wheat v. Ward County Water Improvement Dist. No. 2 (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 713.

Art. 5107—46. Same; parties and process; sale in parcels; disposition of proceeds.

Process.—Under this article, requiring the process in suits for delinquent taxes by water improvement districts to be served as provided for suits of like character, the citation is not governed by art. 1874, relative to suits in general, but by article 7698, relative to suits for delinquent taxes, which requires the citation to be directed to all persons owning, having, or claiming any interest instead of to the sheriff or constable. Wheat v. Ward County Water Improvement Dist. No. 2 (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 713.

The citation in a water improvement district's suit for delinquent taxes under this article, need not state the file number of the suit nor the date of filing suit. Id.

Explanatory.—This section was added to Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 25, as § 5a, by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 12, § 3. For the remainder of said Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 25, see post, arts. 5107-267 to 5107-276. It was repealed by Acts 1921, 37th Leg. ch. 13, § 136.

Art. 5107—53. Order for election to determine question of issuance of bonds and making of contract with United States.

Suit to cancel bonds.—A taxpayer cannot maintain a suit to cancel bonds of an irrigation district without alleging and proving that the board of directors of the district has refused to institute such suit. White v. Fahrning (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 193.

Art. 5107—54. Notice of election.—Notice of such election stating the maximum amount of bonds to be issued, which amount shall not exceed the engineers estimate, together with the amount of incidental expenses, organization expenses, and the cost of additional work which it may become necessary to add to the engineer's estimate by any change or modification made by the directors of the district in the proposed work; also stating the proposed maximum interest rate thereon, and the proposed maximum maturity date of said bonds; also stating the time and place or places of holding the election, shall be given by the secretary of the board of directors, as ordered by the directors, by posting notices thereof in four public places in such district and one at the courthouse door of the county or counties in which said district is situated. Such notice shall be posted for at least twenty days prior to the date of the election. Said notice shall also be published in the manner prescribed in Section 43 Chapter 87, Acts Thirty-fifth Legislature Regular Session.

The said notice shall contain substantially the proposition to be voted on as herein provided; provided, however, the bonds so voted upon may be issued to mature in serial form at any date not to exceed the maximum date stated in the notice and may be issued at any rate of interest not to exceed the rate of interest stated in such notice. Said notice shall also contain a summary of the engineer's estimate of the cost of construction of the proposed improvements, and estimate of cost of purchase of any existing improvements to be purchased, together with additions thereto as herein provided. If, however, contract with the United States is proposed for election, the notice shall state the maximum amount of money payable for construction purposes, exclusive of penalties and interest. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 54; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 53; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1 (§ 53).]

See 1918 Supp., arts. 6016½-6016¾c, as to newspaper publication instead of posting.

Art. 5107—57. Returns of election; canvass and declarations of result.—Immediately after the election the presiding judge at each polling place shall make return of the result in the same manner as provided by law in general elections, such return to be made to the Secretary of such district, who shall keep same in a safe place, and deliver them together with the returns from the several polling places to the directors of such district, who shall at a regular session or a special session called for that purpose, canvass said returns and declare the results thereof. In a district operating under authority of Section 59 of Article 16 of the Constitution a majority vote is required in favor of the issuance of bonds and in other districts a two-thirds majority is required. If said canvass of said returns shows said bond issue to have been adopted or said election to have been in favor of making contract with the United States, as the case may be, and the levy of tax, then said directors shall declare the result of said election to be in favor of the issuance of the bonds, or in favor of the making of contract with the United States, and the levy of tax and payment therefor, and shall cause the same to be entered in their minutes. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 57; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 56; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1 (§ 56).]

Art. 5107—58. Order for issuance of bonds; amount of bonds; additional bonds; election; notes.—After the canvass of the vote and declaring the result, as provided for in the preceding section, the directors for said district shall make, enter and order directing the issuance of bonds, or authorizing the execution of contract with the United States for such district, as the case may be, sufficient in amount to pay for such proposed improvements, together with all necessary incidental expense connected therewith, not to exceed the amount specified in the order for the election and the notice of election. In districts organized under the authority of Article 52 of Section 3 of the Constitution the amount of such bonds, or the amount of contract indebtedness with the United States, shall not exceed in amount one-fourth of the actual assessed value of the real property in such district, as shown by the assessment thereof made for the purpose of determining the value thereof, or at the last annual assessment as provided for in this Act. This limitation of indebtedness of one-fourth of the assessed value shall not apply to districts organized under the authority of Section 59 of Article 16 of the Constitution. Provided, however, that if, after an election has been held for the issuance of bonds or for contract with the United States, and the tax authorized and levied, and bonds have been authorized to be issued, or have been issued as provided for in this Act, or contract with the United States authorized or executed, as the case may be, the directors for said district shall consider it necessary to make any modifications in said district, or in any of the improvements thereof, or shall determine to purchase or construct any further or additional improvements therein and issue additional bonds upon the report of the engineers, or shall determine to make supplemental contract with the United States, or upon its own motion may find it necessary to make said additional improvements, or purchase additional property in order to carry out the purpose for which said district was organized, or to best serve the interests of said district, said finding shall be entered of record, and notice of an election for the issuance of said bonds, or for the authorization of contract with the United States, shall be given, and such election held within such times, and the returns of such election made as hereinbefore provided for in cases of original election, and the result thereof determined in the same manner. If the result of such election be declared to be in favor of the issuance of such bonds or the making of such contract with the United States, said directors may order such bonds to be issued, or may negotiate and execute supplemental contract with the United States as in the manner provided in this Act. And provided, that if a contract is made with the United States as in Section 21 [art. 5107—21] hereof provided, and bonds are not to be deposited with the United States in connection with said contract, bonds need not be issued, or if required to raise funds in addition to the amount of such contract, said bonds shall be issued only in the amount needed in addition thereto. Provided, further, that whenever such a district shall have constructed or purchased improvements and same shall be damaged so that it may be necessary to raise funds to repair such damage, such district may either issue bonds to secure such funds or may issue its notes to run not to exceed twenty years, and to bear interest at not to exceed six per cent per annum. Before such notes are issued, the board of directors shall order an election and give notice thereof as required in bond issues stating the purpose for which they are to be issued, the time they are to run, and the rate of interest they are to bear, and the time and place of said election. The ballots for such election shall have printed thereon "For Issuance of Notes" and "Against Issuance of Notes". The election shall be held and returns made and canvassed as provided for bond elections. If two-thirds majority of those voting at such election voted in favor of the issuance of such notes, the board of directors may issue same and sell same for the benefit of said district. Such notes shall not be issued in an amount of more than thirty thousand dollars. At the time such notes are issued or sold the board of directors shall levy a tax for the purpose of paying the interest thereon and creating a sinking fund sufficient to pay such interest and to pay said notes within the time of their maturity. Said notes may be issued in serial form to mature in installments as determined by the directors. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 58; Acts 1915, 34th Leg., ch. 138, § 1; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 57; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1 (§ 57).]

See White v. Fahrning (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 193.

Art. 5107—61. Validation of bonds; form of suit; notice.—Any such district in this State desiring to issue bonds in accordance with this Act shall, before such bonds are offered for sale, bring an action in the district court in any county of the judicial district in which said district, or any part thereof, may be situated or in the district court of Travis county, to determine the validity of any such bonds, or such district contracting with the United States in accordance with this Act, shall, if requested by the Secretary of the Interior, bring an action in said court to determine the validity of said contract. Such action shall be in the nature of a proceeding in rem, and jurisdiction of all parties interested may be had by publication of a general notice thereof once each week for at least two consecutive weeks in some paper of general circulation published in the county or counties in which such district is situated, and if no paper is published in the county then same shall be published in a paper in the nearest county thereto where a paper is published. Notice shall also be served upon the Attorney General of the State of Texas of the pendency of said action in the same manner as in civil suits. The Attorney General may waive service in such suits when furnished a full transcript of the proceedings had in the formation of such district and in connection with the issuance of said bonds, or in connection with the authorization of said contract with the United States and a copy of the contract. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 61; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 60; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1 (§ 60).]

Art. 5107—66. Record of bonds kept by county clerk.—The county commissioners court in the county in which such district may be situated, in whole or in part, shall provide a well bound book in which a list of said bonds shall be kept by the county clerk, showing their numbers, amount, rate of interest, date of issue, when due, where payable, and said book shall be a public record. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 66; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 65; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1 (§ 65).]

Art. 5107—67. Sale of bonds; exchange of bonds for property, work, etc.—After the issuance of said bonds, and after the registration by the Comptroller of Public Accounts for the State of Texas, as provided by this Act, the board of directors for such district shall offer for sale, and sell said bonds on the best terms and for the best possible price, but none of said bonds shall be sold for less than ninety per cent of their face value. When said bonds are sold, all money received therefrom shall immediately be paid over by the board of directors to the depository for said district, provided, however, that the board of directors may exchange bonds for property to be acquired by purchase under contract or in the payment of contract price for work to be done for the use and benefit of said district. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 67; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 66; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 13, § 3 (§ 66).]

In general.—Under this article, and arts. 5107—68, 5107—71, it is the duty of an irrigation district to provide a fund for the construction of improvements; and, in a contractor's action for balance due for construction of a dam, the court was not without authority to decree that the defendant pay plaintiff's judgment out of the funds provided and secured for the construction of such improvements; such being necessary to enforce the judgment. Peyton Creek Irr. Dist. v. White (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1060.

Validating sale for less than par.—Where sale of $40,000 of bonds of irrigation district for 90 per cent. of their face value was properly advertised and conducted, and the purchaser did not know that the statute prohibited sale for less than face value, the court did not err in validating the title to purchaser to $36,000 par value of said bonds, and requiring surrender of the $4,000 par value. White v. Fahring (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 193.

See White v. Fahring (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 193.

In general.—In a contractor's action against an irrigation district for balance due on contract, a counterclaim by the district for damages from plaintiff's failure to complete the system whereby the district lost by being unable to irrigate is not allowable, since under arts. 5107—69 to 5107—71, the irrigation district is a quasi public corporation, supported by direct taxation, and limited to raising funds for current expenses in connection with its plant for furnishing water to others. Peyton Creek Irr. Dist. v. White (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1060.

Art. 5107—70. Interest and sinking fund.—There is hereby created what shall be termed the "Interest and Sinking Fund" for such district, and all taxes collected under the provisions of this Act, for such fund, shall be credited to such fund, and shall never be paid out, except for the purpose of satisfying and discharging the interest on said bonds, or for the payment of such bonds, and to defray the expense of assessing and collecting such tax, and for the payment of principal and interest due or to become due to the United States under any contract between the district and the United States accompanying which bonds of the district have not been deposited with the United States, as in Section 21 hereof [1918 Supp. Art. 5107—21] provided, such fund shall be paid out upon order of the directors of such district upon warrants drawn therefor, as hereinbefore provided, and at the time of such payment the depository for such district shall receive and cancel any interest coupon so paid or any bond so paid, and when any such interest coupon or bond has been paid it shall be delivered to the directors and be cancelled and destroyed. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 70; Acts 1915, 34th Leg., ch. 138, § 1; Acts 1917, ch. 87, 35th Leg., § 69; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1 (§ 69).]

Art. 5107—71. Maintenance and operating fund.—There shall also be created a fund to be known as "Maintenance and Operating Fund" and such fund shall consist of all moneys collected by assessment or otherwise for the maintenance and operation of the properties owned or acquired by such district, or for temporary annual rental due to the United States, and out of this fund shall be paid all expenses of operation of every kind except the expenses of assessing and collecting taxes for the interest and sinking fund; and for the payment of any balance due on construction or for extensions and improvements, not otherwise provided for, such debts to be paid upon warrants executed as otherwise provided herein. #### Art. 5107—72. Terms of office of district officers.

Effect as remedying prior act.—The Legislature having by timely enactment of this article, remedied the defect in Acts 29th Leg. c. 122, § 20, fixing terms of office of members of board of directors of irrigation districts at four years, contrary to Const. art. 16, § 30, before any of the directors of district in question had served two years, and having in express terms validated districts created under the act of 1905, and the acts of the directors and officers of such districts, no one can complain of section 20. White v. Fahring (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 193.

Art. 5107—79. District, when and how dissolved; debts, how collected, etc.

Dissolution and receivership.—In view of art. 1118, and arts. 4991-5011, an irrigation district is a "public corporation," which cannot be dissolved or have its powers destroyed at the suit of any one except the state. J. S. Engleman Land Co. v. Donna Irr. Dist. No. 1 (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 428.

A receiver cannot be appointed at the instigation of creditors to take charge of the affairs of an irrigation district, and consequently no restraining orders against its directors can be issued. Id.

Art. 5107—80. Districts in two or more counties, how established.

—When any district proposed to be established embraces lands located in two or more counties the owners of title, or evidence of title of a majority of the acreage of the proposed district, or fifty property tax paying voters of the territory proposed to be embraced within a district may petition the State Board of Water Engineers for a hearing to determine the advisability of the creation of such district, and for an order of election creating such district, and for the election of five directors of the proposed district. Upon the filing of such petition the Board of Water Engineers shall set the same down for a hearing at a date not less than fifteen nor more than thirty days from the date of the filing of such petition, and shall cause notice to be given to the Commissioners' Courts of each county in which lands are located proposed to be embraced in the district, and stating the date and place of the hearing, and upon receipt of such notice by the Commissioners' Courts from the State Board of Water Engineers it shall be the duty of the clerk of the said Commissioners' Courts to post a notice at the courthouse door of the date and place of hearing. At such hearing on said petition to the Board of Water Engineers any person whose land would be affected by the organization of such district may appear before the Board of Water Engineers and protest against or contend for the creation of the proposed district, and may offer competent testimony to show that the said district, would or would not serve a beneficial purpose, and that the organization of such district would or would not be practicable or capable of accomplishing the purposes intended by its organization.

If upon hearing of such petition it shall appear to the Board of Water Engineers that the proposed plan of water conservation, irrigation and use presented in the petition praying for the organization of the district, is practicable and would present a public utility; then the said Board of Water Engineers shall so find and enter such finding in the records of the Board, and shall transmit a certified copy of such findings to the Commissioners' Court in each county in which lands proposed to be embraced within said district are situated, and naming a date on which an election shall be held in the territory to be comprised within the district to determine whether or not the proposed district shall be created in accordance with the provisions of this Act, and for the election of a board of five directors of such district. But should the Board of Water Engineers upon such hearing determine that said proposed district is not practicable and will not serve a beneficial purpose, and that it would not be possible to accomplish through its organization the purposes proposed, then it shall so find and enter its findings of record, and the petition shall be thereupon dismissed. Provided, that the boundary lines of the proposed district may be so changed in the course of such hearing as to meet objections urged to the practicability and feasibility of the district, in accordance with the findings of the Board of Water Engineers, if such changes will result in bringing the proposed district within the provisions of the statute, and will make such district serve a beneficial purpose.

Upon the receipt of a certified copy of the findings of the Board of Water Engineers authorizing an election to determine whether or not the proposed district shall be formed, the Commissioners' Court of each county and part of county which is embraced within the proposed district shall give notice of an election to be held on the date named in the finding and order of the Board of Water Engineers, which notice shall be posted as provided in this Act for other elections for not less than fifteen, nor more than thirty days before the date fixed for the election.

At the said election there shall be submitted for the decision of the voters the question whether or not the proposed district shall be created, and for the election of five directors for the district. Persons desiring to vote for the creation of such district and for the election of five directors for such district shall have written or printed on their ballots the words "For the District" and those desiring to vote against the creation of the district shall have written or printed on their ballots the words "Against the District." At such election the names of the directors may be written or printed upon said ballot, or a separate ballot may be used for such purpose. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 80; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 80; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1 (§ 80); Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 13, § 4 (§ 80).]

Art. 5107—81. Same; Board of Water Engineers shall designate county judge to canvass vote; returns, and certification of result to designated judge; certificate of election issued to directors.—In certifying the result of its findings upon the petition for an election to create a district, and for the election of the Board of Directors, the Board of Water Engineers shall designate the County Judge in one of the counties in the proposed district as a canvassing board to receive and canvass and declare the result of the election for the creation of the proposed district. When the election for the creation of the district has been held the officers named by the Commissioners' Court of the different counties to hold the elections in the proposed district shall make returns of the election to the Commissioners' Court of their respective counties and return all ballot boxes to the clerk of the Commissioners' Court of the county, and it shall be the duty of the Commissioners' Court of each county in the proposed district upon receiving returns of the election to canvass the same and certify the result of the election in the county to the County Judge of that county named by the Board of Water Engineers as the canvassing board in the election for the creation of the district, and for the election of the board of directors. Upon receipt of the returns of the election in the different counties of the district the County Judge designated to canvass the vote shall canvass such vote and certify the result to each county in the proposed district. If a majority of the votes cast in the district are in favor of the creation of the district, this finding shall be entered of record in the permanent records of the Commissioners' Court in each county embraced in whole or in part in the proposed district, and the County Judge of the county canvassing the vote of the district shall certify the result to the five persons receiving the highest number of votes for directors, and issue to them a certificate of election, and the said directors shall after having been notified proceed with the organization of the district as provided in this Act. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 81; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 81; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 13, § 5 (§ 81).]

Art. 5107—82. Same; Board of directors shall proceed as in districts composed of single county; district as body corporate.—The board of directors, as soon as they shall have qualified, shall proceed to the selection of all administrative officers and necessary employes for the direction of the affairs of the district in the manner provided in this Act for districts lying wholly in one county, except as may be specifically provided in these Sections. The board of directors elected for such district shall qualify and meet as hereinabove provided, and shall have charge of the affairs of the district in the same manner as herein provided for districts lying wholly within one county. All such districts shall be governmental agencies, and body politic and corporate, and be governed by and exercise all the rights, privileges and powers provided by law as pertaining to districts lying within one county, and as embodied in the provisions of this Act. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 82; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 82; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 13, § 6 (§ 82).]

Art. 5107—95. Person desiring to receive water to furnish statement; directors to estimate expense; expense, how paid; assessments; contracts with users; borrowing money; liens, interest; delinquents; contracts with United States.—Every person desiring to receive water during the course of the year, or at any time during the year, shall furnish to the secretary of the board of directors a statement in writing of the acreage intended by him to be put under irrigation, and for which water is to be used, and as near as may be, a statement of the several crops to be planted, with the acreage of each, and shall at the same time pay such proportion of the water charge or assessment therefor as may be prescribed by the board of directors. If such statement should not be furnished, or such payment should not be made before the date for fixing the assessments, there shall be no obligation upon the district to furnish such water to such person for that year. The board of directors, on or as soon as practicable after a date in each year to be fixed by a standing order of the board, shall carefully estimate the expense to be incurred during the course of the next succeeding twelve months for the maintenance and operation of the irrigation system. A proportionate part of the amount so estimated not less than one-third, nor more than two-thirds, to be determined from year to year, by the board of directors, shall be paid by assessment against all irrigable lands within the district, pro rata per acre; that is to say, against all lands to which the district is in condition to furnish water by its then system of canals and laterals, or through extensions thereto of then existing laterals, but without reference as to whether such land is to be actually irrigated or not; and the remainder of the amount so estimated shall be paid by the persons taking water; or applying for water as aforesaid. This remaining amount shall be equitably pro rated, as nearly as may be, among the applicants for water, and in pro rating same, the board of directors may take into consideration the acreage to be planted by each application for water, the crop to be grown by him, and the amount of water per acre to be used by him provided, however that each water user shall pay the same price per acre for use of upon the same class of crops. All assessments shall be paid in installments and at times to be fixed by the order of the board of directors, but if the crop for which such water was furnished shall be harvested prior to time fixed for the payment of any installment, the entire unpaid assessment shall at once become due and shall be paid within ten days after the harvesting of such crop and before the removal of same from the county or counties in which grown. The board of directors shall have power and authority from time to time to adopt, alter and rescind rules, regulations, standing orders and temporary orders, not in conflict with this Act, governing the methods, ways, terms and conditions of water service, applications for water, assessments for maintenance and operation and the payment and the enforcement of payment of such assessments, and the furnishing of water to persons who have not applied for same before the date of assessment, and to persons who desire to take water for irrigation in excess of their original applications, or for use on other lands than those covered by such applications. The board of directors may, at their discretion, require every person desiring water during the course of the year to enter into a contract with the district, which contract shall indicate the acreage to be watered, the crops to be planted, and the amount to become due and the terms of payment; and it may be further required that the water taker shall execute a negotiable note or notes for such amounts, or for parts thereof. The making of such contracts shall not constitute a waiver of the lien given by this Act upon the crops of the water taker for the service furnished to him. If the water taker shall water more land than is called for in his contract, he shall pay for the additional service rendered as and at the times hereinbefore indicated. To secure money for the operating and maintenance expense of the district, the board of directors shall have authority to borrow money with interest not exceeding ten per cent per annum, and may hypothecate any of its notes or contracts with water takers or accounts against them. The district shall have a first lien superior to all other liens upon all crops of whatsoever kind grown upon each tract of land in the district to secure the payment of the assessment herein provided for, and all such assessments shall bear interest from the time due and payable at the rate of ten per cent per annum. And if suit should be filed therefor, or the same should be collected by any legal proceedings, an additional amount of ten per cent on unpaid principal and interest shall be added to the same as collection or attorney's fees, which collection fees, as well as principal and interest of such assessments shall stand secured by the lien aforesaid. Suits for delinquent water assessments may be brought either in the county in which the irrigation district is situated or in the county in which the defendant resides. All land owners shall be personally liable for all assessments herein provided for, and if they shall fail or refuse to pay same when due the water supply shall be cut off and no water shall be furnished to the land until all back dues are fully paid. This provision shall bind all parties, persons and corporations owning or thereafter acquiring any interest in said lands; provided however, that each and every person, land owner and tenant holding, owning or possessing land in an irrigation or water improvement district shall be entitled to the use of his proportionate part of the available water supply and whenever he shall have paid or make a proper tender of the current annual dues or assessments under the rules of such districts due for the maintenance fund, he shall be supplied such water without discrimination, and such district shall be liable for a failure to furnish same or for any discrimination against him and his right thereto may be protected by the issuance of an injunction. The directors of all districts shall within ten days after any assessment is due post at a public place in said district a list of all delinquents and shall thereafter keep posted a correct list of all such delinquents; provided however, that if the parties owning such assessments shall have executed notes and contracts as hereinbefore provided they shall not be placed upon such delinquent list until after the maturity of such notes and contracts. In the event that contract shall be made with the United States, the remedies in this Section hereinbefore provided in favor of the district shall apply with regard to the operation and maintenance and rental charges which may become due to the United States. Provided, however, that the Federal reclamation laws and in particular the Reclamation Extension Act approved August 13, 1914, and any Acts amendatory thereof, shall be applicable. Moreover, all water the right to the use of which is acquired by the district under contract with the United States, shall be distributed and apportioned by the district in accordance with the Acts of Congress and rules and regulations of the Secretary of the Interior and the provisions of such contract in relation thereto. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 95; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 95; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 76, § 1 (§ 95).]

Curing defects in former act.—The presence in Acts 29th Leg. c. 122, of sections 34, 48, which are inoperative because they do not provide for any hearing for determinations of benefits, to property within irrigation districts, does not render the whole act violative of the Constitution, since the main purpose of the act can be given effect without regard to the sections, and must be upheld, this article having cured the defects. White v. Fahring (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 193.

See 1918 Supp. arts. 6016½-6016½c, as to newspaper publication instead of posting.

Art. 5107—100. District depositories.—The directors for such district shall select a depository for such district under the same provisions as are now or may hereafter be provided for the selection of the depository for the counties in this State. The duties of such depositories shall be the same as are now or may hereafter be prescribed by law for county depositories. However, in the selection of depositories the directors of such district shall act in the same capacity and perform the same duties as is incumbent upon the County Judge and members of the County Commissioners' Court in the selection of the county depository; provided, however, that in the event the highest and best bidder for the handling of such funds as the depository of such district should be a bank in which members of such board should be a stockholder or director, that then in that event such bank may be selected as such depository by the other directors being a majority of said board, and the bond given by such depository may be approved by them, but in such event before said order so selecting said such depository or approving such bonds shall be effective, the same shall be filed with and approved by the County Judge of the county in which such district is situated, and such approval by such County Judge shall make such action final, but in the event the County Judge of said county shall, for any reason, fail to approve said selection or to approve said bond, then said bank shall not be selected, but new bids shall be called for, and some other bank be selected. [Acts 1913, p. 380, § 100; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 100; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 13, § 7 (§ 100).]

Art. 5107—108. Power to construct works for irrigation of lands, etc.; authority of directors.—All districts organized under the provisions of this Act shall have full authority, acting by and through its board of directors, to construct all works and improvements necessary for the irrigation of lands in said districts, and to supply, deliver and sell water for domestic power, and commercial purposes when operating under the authority of Section 59 of Article 16 of the Constitution; and to fully carry out the purpose of its organization and the conservation and use of water for the several purposes authorized by the Constitution and laws of this State, and to acquire the right to the use of water in the manner provided by law, and the directors of such districts, subject only to the provisions hereof, shall have full authority to manage such districts and the business of such districts for the purpose of carrying out the intention and purposes of the organization. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, § 108; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 1 (§ 108).]

Art. 5107—118. Election in town, city or municipal corporation within district; separate canvass of result; district not to include town, etc., when.—Whenever a district proposed to be organized as herein provided contains within its boundaries as proposed and described in the petition for organization, a town, city or municipal corporation, or part thereof, when the county commissioners court calling the election to determine said question as herein provided shall constitute said territory within said town, city or municipal corporation, a separate election precinct, with one or more polling places, and the vote received for and against the proposition within said town, city or municipal corporation shall be separately canvassed by the court to determine whether or not a majority of those voting at said election within said town, city or municipal corporation voted for or against said proposition. If a majority of those voting at said election within such town, city or municipal corporation vote against the formation of such district the same shall not be formed including such town, city or municipal corporation, but if the majority of the votes therein is in favor of the formation of such district then such votes shall be canvassed with the votes of the balance of said entire district to determine the result of said election. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 2 (§ 118a).]

Explanatory.—This article, and arts. 5107—119, 5107—120, 5107—121, were added to Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87, as §§ 118a, 119, 120, and 121 thereof, by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 28, § 2.

Art. 5107—119. Maintenance charges, how fixed; measuring devices.—The maintenance charges may be fixed as provided in Section 95 of this Act [Art. 5107—95], or same may be determined upon the basis of the quantity of water used, and if based upon the use of water a fixed charge may be made on all lands or water connections entitled to receive and use water, and an additional charge may be made, or a graduated scale adopted, for the use of water in excess of that covered by the minimum charge. The district may install proper measuring devices. [Id. (§ 119).]

Art. 5107—120. Contract with city or town to supply water.—Where a district includes a city or town, or contracts with a city or town to supply it water, the charge for the use and delivery of such water, and the time and manner of payment therefor shall be determined by the board of directors and be specified in a standing order of said board. [Id. (§ 120).]

Art. 5107—121. Consolidation of districts; election; procedure; taxes; debts; officers.—Any two or more irrigation districts, or water improvement districts, governed by the provisions of this Act and amendments thereof, may be consolidated into one district in the following manner: The terms and conditions upon which such consolidation is to be effected shall be agreed upon by the board of directors of each district, and then the question shall be submitted to a vote in each district after giving notice thereof for at least twenty days in the manner provided by law for other elections. The election shall be held in such districts on the same day. The consolidation to be effected only in the event same is adopted by each and all such districts. When two or more districts are consolidated their obligations shall not be impaired but shall be protected and paid by taxes levied upon the property in the district creating said debt or by assessments in the same manner and extent as if said consolidation had not been effected. After consolidation such taxes shall be assessed and collected by the officers of the consolidated district and in the event they should fail or refuse to so assess and collect same, for such purpose, in due order and time, then same may be assessed and collected, and paid on such obligations, by a receiver appointed by and acting under the orders of a district court, in a proper suit which may be brought by a creditor or by five or more tax payers of such district. When two or more districts are consolidated into one district, same shall be governed as and be one district, except that the debts of each district created prior to such consolidation, shall be paid as herein provided; provided, however, such consolidated district may contribute to such payments upon the terms stated in the consolidated agreement. When two or more districts are consolidated the officers of said respective districts shall continue to act jointly as the officers of said district, and to wind up, the affairs of their respective districts as affected by said consolidation, for a period of ninety days after the date of the election, and they may continue to so act until the next general election if so provided by the consolidation agreement, or the consolidation agreement may provide who shall constitute the first board of directors to serve until the next general election if the officers then serving agree to resign. Said new officers shall within the period of ninety days after the election qualify as such officers of the consolidated district and assume such offices at the expiration of said period. All bonds of such officers will be approved by the then existing boards of directors. [Id. (§ 121).]

Art. 5107—122. Repeal.—Any and all Acts of the Legislature in conflict with the provisions hereof are repealed insofar as they conflict with the provisions hereof; provided this Act shall not in any manner affect or repeal other laws providing other methods of forming similar districts. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5107—122a. Mode of taxation in case of extension or consolidation of districts.—In the event land is admitted to an established district by petition provided for in Section 20 of Chapter 87, Acts of the Thirty-fifth Legislature [1918 Supp., Art. 5107—20], and such district to which same is added is or has been constituted a conservation and reclamation district, such land may be admitted upon the agreement that same will be taxed upon the assessment of benefit plan instead of upon the plan of the general ad valorem tax, and when two or more districts are consolidated by an agreement adopted by an election, and one of the districts has issued bonds, the property in the other districts, when so provided by agreement, shall be taxed for the payment thereof on the basis of taxation, the rate of taxation, and the period for which same are to be paid and other details prescribed in the consolidation agreement, and adopted at said election by a majority vote, and when said tax is levied on irrigated land or land to be irrigated, same may provide for a fixed acreage tax, if same is equitable. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 13, § 8 (§ 122).]

Explanatory.—This act adds sections 122 to 137, inclusive, to Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87.

Art. 5107—122b. Location of office of directors where towns are excluded from district.—Whenever a district is formed in such manner that the towns within or adjoining the territory included in the district are left out of said district, then in that event the directors for said district may establish the office in said district, as provided by law, or may establish the office of said district within any town adjoining, or close to said district within the same county or counties, which may be best suited as a location for the transaction of the business of said district, provided, however, such office shall not be removed from the proximity of said district, but shall be so located as to be accessible to the residents of said district. [Id., § 8 (§ 123).]

Art. 5107—122c. Mode of assessment for taxation in district constituted a conservation and reclamation district.—In the event that any irrigation or water improvement district, other than those operating under contract with the United States, have been or shall be constituted a conservation and reclamation district, and shall adopt the assessment for benefit plan of taxation instead of the ad valorem system of taxation, as authorized by the provisions of Chapter 12 of the General Laws of the Second Called Session of the Thirty-sixth Legislature [Arts. 5107—50a, 5107—272, 5107—273], or under the provisions of this Act, then in that event the levy, assessment, equalization of property values, and collection of taxes shall be made in the manner provided by Sections 125 to 130 inclusive [Art. 5107—122d et seq.] of this Act. [Id., § 8 (§ 124).]

Art. 5107—122d. Commissioners of appraisalment.—As soon as practicable, after the approval of the report of the engineer, and the adoption of the plan of improvements to be constructed, the board of directors shall appoint three disinterested commissioners, who shall be known as commissioners of appraisalment, but who shall be freeholders, but not owners of land within the district for which they are to act. [Id., § 8 (§ 125).]

Art. 5107—122e. Same; notice to and proceedings of Commissioners.—The secretary of the board of directors immediately following the appointment of the commissioners of appraisalment shall in writing notify each of his appointment, and in the notice designate a time and place for the first meeting of such commissioners. It shall be the duty of the commissioners to meet at the time and place specified or as soon thereafter as possible when they shall each take and subscribe an oath that they will faithfully and impartially discharge their duty as such commissioner, and make true report of the work done by them, and at such meeting the commissioners shall organize by electing one of their number chairman and one vice-chairman, and the secretary of the board of directors, or in his absence such person as the board of directors may appoint, shall be secretary of said commissioners during their continuance in office and shall furnish to them such information and such assistance as may be within his power and necessary to the performance of their duties. [Id., § 8 (§ 126).]

Art. 5107—122f. Same; assessment and report of commissioners; compensation.—Within thirty days after qualifying and organizing as above directed, the commissioners of appraisalment shall begin their duties, and they may at an time call upon the attorney of the district for legal advice and information relative to such duties, and may, if necessary, require the presence of the district engineer, or one of his assistants, as such times and for so long as may be necessary to the proper performance of their duties. Such commissioners shall proceed to view the lands within such district as will be affected by the plan of reclamation for such district as carried out, and all public roads, railroads, rights of way and other property or improvements located within such district, and shall assess the amounts of benefits and all damages, if any, that will accrue to any tract of land or other property within such district or to any public highway, railroad and other rights of way, roadways or other property from carrying out and putting into effect the improvements to be constructed by such district. The board shall prepare a report of their findings which shall show the owner of each piece of property examined, and on or concerning which any assessment is made, together with such description of said property as may identify the same, with the amount of damages and all benefits assessed for and on account of, or against the same, which said report shall be signed by at least a majority of the said commissioners and filed with the secretary of the board of directors of the district, and which report shall also show the number of days each commissioner has been employed and the actual expenses incurred by each during his service as commissioner, and each shall be paid by the district not to exceed $10.00 per day for his services, and all necessary expenses in addition thereto upon the approval of his account for such per diem and expenses by the board of directors. Said commissioners shall in their said report fix a time and place when and where they will hear objections thereto, and such date shall be not less than twenty days from the filing of such report. [Id., § 8 (§ 127).]

Art. 5107—122g. Same; proceedings on report; objections; notice of hearing.—When the report of the Commissioners shall have been filed with the secretary of the board of directors, he shall forthwith give notice by publication in a newspaper published in each county wherein any portion of the district is located, for at least once a week for two consecutive weeks prior to the date fixed for such hearing, of the time and place of such hearing, and he shall also mail a written notice to each person whose property will be in any wise affected by the carrying out of the plan of reclamation and improvement if his postoffice is known, stating the time and place of such meeting, which notice shall state in substance that the report of the commissioners to assess benefits and damages accruing to the land and other property by reason of the plan of reclamation and improvement for the district in question has been filed in his office, and that all persons interested may examine the same and make objections thereto in whole or in part, and that the commissioners will meet on the day and at the place named for the purpose of hearing and acting on objections to such report, and the secretary upon the day of the hearing shall file in his office the original notice with his affidavit thereto, showing the manner of publication and the names of all persons to whom notices have been mailed, and that postoffices of those to be affected to whom notices were not mailed were unknown to him, and could not be ascertained by reasonable diligence, and copies of such notice and affidavit shall be filed, one with the commissioners of appraisal and one with the clerk of the County Commissioners' Court. [Id., § 8 (§ 128).]

Art. 5107—122h. Same; exceptions; decision; costs; record.—At or before the hearing, upon the report of the commissioners of appraisal, any owner of land or other property affected by such report, or the plan of reclamation and improvements may file exceptions to any or all parts of such report, and said commissioners at the time and place specified in the notice shall proceed to hear and base opinion on such objections, and where such objections are sustained, in whole or in part, may make such changes and modifications from time to time as may be necessary to conform the report to their findings. When the commissioners shall have finally acted they shall make decrees confirming such report in so far as it is confirmed, and approving and confirming the same as modified or changed in so far as it may be modified or changed. The commissioners shall have power to adjudge and apportion costs incurred upon the hearing in such manner as may be deemed equitable. The findings of the commissioners as to benefits and damages to lands, railroads and other property within the district shall be final and conclusive. The final decree and judgment of the commissioners shall be entered of record in the minutes of the board of directors, and certified copies thereof shall be filed with the county clerk of each county in which any portion of the lands within such district are located, as a permanent record of such county, and such filings shall be notice to all persons of the contents and purpose of such decree. [Id., § 8 (§ 129).]

Art. 5107—122i. Same; basis for levy of tax; process for witnesses.—After the action of the commissioners of appraisal as aforesaid, their final findings, judgment and decree, until lawfully changed or modified, shall form the basis of taxation within and for the district for which they shall have acted, for all purposes for which taxes may be levied by, for or on behalf of such district and all taxes shall be apportioned and levied on each tract of land, railroad and other real property in the district, in proportion to the net benefits to the property named in such final judgment or decree as shown thereby. In all matters before the commissioners of appraisal, parties interested may not only appear in person or by attorney, but they shall be entitled to process for witnesses to be issued by the chairman of the commissioners of appraisal on demand, and such commissioners shall have the same power as a court of record to enforce the attendance of witnesses. [Id., § 8 (§ 130).]

Art. 5107—122j. Election to determine mode of assessment of tax.—Any water improvement district organized under authority of Section 59 of Article 16 of the Constitution, and Chapter 25 General Laws, Fourth Called Session, Thirty-fifth Legislature, [Arts. 5107—267 to 5107—276], as well as any water improvement district which may have been created prior to the adoption of such Constitutional amendment, and which shall have availed itself or may hereafter avail itself of the benefits of Section 59 of Article 16 of the Constitution, may at the time of its creation, or at any time thereafter before such district shall have issued bonds, submit to the qualified electors of such district the question whether the taxes to be levied therein, or any part thereof, shall be levied, assessed and collected upon an “equitable” basis in proportion to benefits to be conferred by the organization, operation and maintenance of such district and the work and improvements to be created thereby, or whether such taxation or any portion thereof shall be levied upon an ad valorem basis. Such question shall be submitted to the qualified voters of such district at any time and in any manner that the governing body of such water improvement district may select, and the ballots to be used shall have printed thereon in substance the following: “For the levy of taxes upon a benefit basis instead of an ad valorem basis,” and “Against the levy of taxes on a benefit basis instead of on an ad valorem basis.” And such election shall be governed by the provisions of Chapter 87 of the General Laws of the Thirty-fifth Legislature, Regular Session, and amendments thereof [1918 Supp., Art. 5107—1 et seq.] so far as applicable. If a majority of the votes cast at such election shall be in favor of the levy and collection of the taxes, or any part thereof, upon an equitable basis in proportion to benefits instead of upon an ad valorem basis, then taxes shall be so levied and collected. [Id., § 8 (§ 131).]

Art. 5107—122k. Apportionment and assessment of benefits in districts operating under contract with United States; notice and hearing.—In the event an irrigation or water improvement district shall have heretofore been operated or shall hereafter be operated under contract with the United States and such district shall have adopted or may adopt the plan of the levy and collection of taxes on a benefit basis instead of an ad valorem basis, then the directors of such district shall at some convenient time thereafter, and from time to time as may be necessary, sit as a board to apportion and assess the benefits conferred upon any and all property situated within such water improvement district and shall cause a record to be made, showing the amount and value of the benefits computed to accrue to all of the property situated within such district and subject to taxation, and the amount of taxes upon such basis to be levied against and collected from such property; provided, that no taxes so assessed or adjudged against such property shall be in excess of the benefit accruing and to accrue to such property from the organization, operation and maintenance of such district and the improvements to be acquired or constructed thereby. After such record shall have been made up, the board shall cause notice to be mailed to each property owner whose name appears upon such record, showing the amount of taxes to be levied against such property, and fixing a date and place at which such owner may appear and contest the correctness and equitableness of such tax. And after such hearing such board of directors or other governing body shall determine the inequitableness of the tax and sustain, reduce, or increase the same, as in their judgment shall be just and equitable; and the decision of such board shall be final. All of the provisions of Chapter 87, General Laws Thirty-fifth Legislature, Regular Session, and amendments thereto [1918 Supp., arts. 5107—1 to 5107—122], not inconsistent herewith, shall apply to the levy, assessment and collection of the taxes herein provided for. [Id., § 8 (§ 132).]

Art. 5107—122l. Contracts for sale of water power privileges; reserving supply for irrigation and other purposes.—Any irrigation or water improvement district may contract for the sale of water power privileges whenever it may be possible for power to be generated by the use of the water flowing from its reservoir, or in its canal system, provided, however, any such contract for the sale of water power privileges shall be subject to the obligation of the district to protect the lands embraced therein in an adequate supply of water for irrigation for which the district was organized, or for supplying water for municipal purposes in those districts supplying water for municipal purposes. [Id., § 8 (§ 133).]

Art. 5107—122m. Districts operating under ad valorem basis of taxation may adopt assessment and equalization plan; mode of assessment; compensation of tax collector; remedies of security holders; appeal; districts embracing two or more counties.—Irrigation and water improvement districts operating under the provisions of laws of this State, and assessing taxes on the ad valorem basis, may, if they find it to their advantage, adopt the assessment and equalization of values of the property authorized therein for taxation as made and equalized by the county officers and the County Commissioners' Court and base the levy and collection of taxes on such assessment and equalization, and they shall also have authority to secure from the County Tax Assessor a list of tax renditions as made to him covering the property within said district, and adopt same for the use and benefit of said district by causing the tax assessor and collector of the district to compile same as the tax roll of the district instead of making independent assessment thereof. In the event that the district tax assessor and collector and district directors should for any reason fail or refuse to properly assess, equalize tax values, and prepare a tax roll for said district, as provided by law, then in that event the taxes levied at the time of issuance of bonds or other valid obligations of said district shall be collected by the County Tax Collector by entering on his rolls the said tax as against all property situated within such district for the year or years which the said district officers may have so failed to perform their said duties. If the tax levy is not sufficient because of decreased valuations same shall be increased by order of the Commissioners Court.

The fund so collected by such County Tax Collector shall be deposited in the county depository as a special fund to be devoted to the payment of interest and sinking fund on such bonds or other obligations, and such fund shall be paid thereon upon order of the County Commissioners' Court. In the event any such County Tax Collector should fail or refuse to perform such duties then the holders of such securities, bonds or obligations, or any one or more of them, may compel him to do so by mandamus proceeding in the court of proper jurisdiction. The County Tax Collector shall be allowed, in addition to all other compensation now provided by law, reasonable fees for the performance of such duty, to be fixed by the County Commissioners' Court, not to exceed, however, the rate of compensation fixed by law for the performance of like duties in the collection of county funds. Whenever such district officers shall fail to perform and discharge their duty, in the assessment and valuation of the property and collection of taxes; as hereinabove provided, then any bond holder or other person interested in said district and the payment of their obligations may request the County Commissioners' Court to enter an order authorizing the County Tax Collector to perform the duties herein provided, and the County Commissioners' Court shall investigate said matter, and if they find said conditions to exist shall enter an order directing the County Tax Collector to proceed as herein provided, and no County Tax Collector shall undertake the collection of such taxes until so ordered by the County Commissioners' Court. The provisions of this Section are not intended to allow anyone to interfere with the duties of the district officers so long as they are in the active discharge of their duties, but such powers shall be exercised in the event such district officers shall not perform their duties, or in the event of a vacancy in said offices.

In the event of any dispute arising as to whether or not said officers are so performing their duties, said matter may be determined by an action against said officers in the District Court in the nature of a mandamus suit or in injunction proceedings restraining such officers from interfering with the collection of such taxes and the payment of said obligations by said County Tax Collector, and said County Commissioners' Court. Any such action of the District Court may be appealed to the Court of Civil Appeals and a judgment of the Court of Civil Appeals shall be final. In the event any such district embraces territory in two or more counties, the duties herein provided for the County Tax Collector and County Commissioners' Court shall be performed by such officers as to all such property lying within the county. [Id., § 8 (§ 134).]

Art. 5107—122n. Sale of surplus water.—Any irrigation or water improvement district may sell a surplus water they may have or have conserved to lands in the same vicinity for the purpose of irrigation, domestic or commercial uses. [Id., § 8 (§ 135).]

Explanatory.—Sec. 136 repeals all laws in conflict, and sec. 5a, ch. 12, Gen. Laws, 2d Called Sess. 35th Leg. Sec. 137 is the emergency clause. Act took effect March 2, 1921.

Art. 5107—122o. Water improvement district which is also a conservation and reclamation district may hold election to impose limitation on debt or bond issue; completion of works.—The Board of Directors of any Water Improvement District which has been or shall be constituted a Conservation and Reclamation District under the provisions of Section 59, of Article XVI, of the Constitution, may, for the benefit of the purchasers or holders of bonds to be issued, limit the power of the District to incur debt and issue bonds in the manner and to the extent hereinafter mentioned. Said Board may adopt a resolution declaring that during a period not exceeding ten years, the District shall not issue bonds in excess of twenty-five per cent of the assessed value of the taxable real property of the District according to the last assessment for District purposes, and shall give notices of the adoption of such resolution by publication once a week for two successive weeks in a newspaper published in the District, stating that such resolution shall take effect unless a petition signed by ten per cent. of the qualified property tax paying electors of the District shall be presented against the proposed limitation within thirty days after the date of the first publication of such notice. If such petition or remonstrance be filed within said period, said limitation shall not take effect unless it be approved at a general or special election held in the District in the same manner as other general or special elections are held. The ballot on the question at such election shall be in substantially the following form: "For limiting during the term of . . . . . years, the maximum debt of the District to twenty-five per cent. of the assessed valuation of the real property," and "Against limiting during the term of . . . . . years, the maximum debt of the District to twenty-five per cent of the assessed valuation of the real property." If such limitation shall be approved or if during said period no petition or remonstrance shall be filed, the District shall not issue bonds under any statute or constitutional provision during said term in excess of the amount so limited, except to complete works for constructing which bonds may be issued within said limitation, and shall only issue bonds exceeding said limitation for completing such works after the State Board of Water Engineers shall have approved the plans and specifications of the original and uncompleted works, together with the estimates of the cost thereof. If such plans and specifications and estimate be approved by said State Board of Water Engineers, notice of intention to issue said bonds to complete said works shall be given by publication once a week for three weeks, stating the amount of the proposed issue of bonds and the time when a hearing will be had, which shall be not less than thirty days from the date of the first publication. Any property taxpayer, bond holder or other creditor or person interested may appear and shall be heard. If the determination be in favor of the issuance of additional bonds to the amount stated in the notice, the question of issuing such bonds shall be submitted to the property taxpaying voters at an election held in the form and manner prescribed by law. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 6, § 1 (§ 138).]

Explanatory.—Took effect Aug. 13, 1921. The act adds sections 138 and 139 to Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 87.

Art. 5107—122p. Former proceedings validated.—All proceedings heretofore had and taken to organize a water improvement district under the Act to which this is an amendment, or to determine the manner in which taxes or assessments shall be levied and collected, or to bring any district organized hereunder, under the provisions of Section 59 of Article XVI of the Constitution of Texas, or to authorize the issuance of bonds of any District organized under the Act to which this is an amendment, whether such District shall or shall not have come under said Section 59 of Article XVI of the Constitution, shall be and are hereby in all respects ratified, validated, approved and confirmed, and such bonds may be issued and sold in the form and manner and at the price and under the conditions prescribed by law. [Id., § 1 (§ 139).]

Art. 5107—122pp. Districts may maintain suits.—All water improvement districts and irrigation districts heretofore or hereafter organized under the laws of the State being dependent upon their water rights and water supply to perform their public duties and to protect their bonds and other indebtedness created under the provisions of the law and to maintain their taxable values and assessable values shall have full authority to maintain any action or suit for such purposes. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 46, § 1 (§ 140).]

Explanatory.—Took effect Nov. 15, 1921. The act amends Acts 1917, 35th Leg. ch. 87, by adding thereto sections 140, 141, and 142.

Art. 5107—122q. Districts may sue to protect water supply.—The board of directors are hereby empowered to institute and maintain any suit or suits to protect the water supply of said district and to prevent any unlawful or unwarranted interference with or diversion of such water supply. All water improvement districts and irrigation districts shall have full power and right to protect its water supply and all other rights and property and by proper suit, to prevent any taking or interference with such water supply, of whatever nature or however acquired, necessary to the uses of such district or for the irrigation of the lands situated therein. [Id., § 1 (§ 141).]

Art. 5107—122qq. State Board of Water Engineers constituted a commission to investigate feasibility of projects involving issuance of bonds.—The State Board of Water Engineers shall be and is constituted a commission to investigate and report upon the organization and feasibility of all water improvement districts which shall issue bonds under the provisions of the law of this State. All such districts desiring to issue bonds for any purposes shall submit in writing to said board an application for investigation, together with a copy of the engineer's report, and a copy of all data, profiles, maps, plans and specifications prepared in connection therewith. Said Board of Water Engineers shall examine same and shall visit the project and carefully inspect the same and may call for and shall be applied with additional data and information requisite to a reasonable and careful investigation of the project and proposed improvements. They shall file in their office in writing their suggestions for changes and improvements, and furnish a copy thereof to the board of directors of the district. If said board shall finally approve or refuse to approve such project, or the issuance of bonds for any improvement, they shall make a full written report thereon, file same in their office, and furnish a copy of same to the board of directors of said district. [Id., § 1 (§ 142).]

Article 5107—123. Districts may be established; territory included; purposes of.—One or more Water Control and Preservation Districts may be established in the several counties, or a part of any county, of this State, or in two or more adjacent counties, or in parts of one or more adjacent counties, or in one county and part of an adjacent county or counties, in the manner herein after provided. Said districts may or may not include within their boundaries villages, towns and municipal corporations, or any part thereof but no land shall be at the same time included within more than one Water Control and Preservation District, created under this Act; the said districts, when so established, to be for the purpose of the control and preservation of the purity of the waters of any rivers, creeks, bayous, lakes, canals, streams or other waters of any kind and character situated or flowing, in whole or in part, through the said district, or any part thereof, by the prevention of the inflow of salt water or other deleterious substances, or by the changing of said waters from salt to fresh water, and the impounding of fresh water for the above mentioned purposes; such districts when so established being fully empowered to erect, construct, maintain, repair and reconstruct dams, bulkheads, jetties, locks, gates, or any other character of improvement, or construction necessary to the accomplishment of said purposes, or any of them, and such construction, or any part of same, may be without the boundaries of the district, where same may be deemed necessary to the preservation or the improvement of the purity and irrigable quality of the waters of any river, creek, bayou, lake, canal, stream or other waters, or any part thereof, situated or flowing, in whole or in part, through the said district, or any part thereof; and may issue bonds in payment thereof as hereinafter provided. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 43, § 1.]

Took effect April 2, 1918.

Art. 5107—124. Petition for establishment; contents; hearing by commissioners' court thereon; notice of.—Upon the presentation to the County Commissioners' Court of any county of this State of a petition, accompanied by the deposit as hereinafter provided, signed by twenty-five of the resident property taxpayers of any proposed Water Control and Preservation District, praying for the establishment of a Water Control and Preservation District within said county and setting forth the boundaries of the proposed district, accompanied by a map thereof, the general nature of the improvement, or improvements, proposed and an estimate of the probable cost thereof, and praying for the issuance of bonds and levy of a tax in payment thereof, and designing a name for such Water Control and Preservation District, which name shall include the name of the county; said petitioners shall make affidavit to accompany said petition of their said qualification; the said Commissioners' Court shall, at the same session when said petition is presented, enter an order setting same down for hearing at some regular term of said court or at some special session of said court called for the purpose, not less than thirty days nor more than sixty days from the presentation of said petition, and shall order the Clerk of said Court to give notice of the date and place of said hearing by posting, or causing to be posted, a copy of said petition and the order of the Court thereon in five public places in said county, one of which shall be at the Court House door of said county and the other four of which shall be within the limits of said proposed Water Control and Preservation District, which said notice shall be posted not less than twenty days prior to the time set for the hearing. The said Clerk shall receive as compensation for such services One Dollar for each such notice and five cents per mile for each mile necessarily traveled in posting such notices. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 5107—125. Duties and powers imposed on County Judges, Commissioners' Court, county clerk, etc., made part of regular duties.—The duties and powers herein conferred upon the County Judges and members of the Commissioners' Court, the County Clerk and other officers are made a part of the regular duties of said officials which they shall render and perform without additional compensation unless otherwise provided herein. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5107—126. Contest of establishment of district; hearing.—Upon the day set for the hearing of said petition before the County Commissioner's Court, any person who has taxable property within the proposed district, or who may be affected thereby, may appear before the said court and contest the creation of said district, or contend for the creation of said district, and may offer testimony in favor of or against the boundaries of said district to show that the proposed improvement or improvements would or would not be of any public utility and would or would not be feasible or practicable and the probable cost of such improvement or improvements, or as to any other matter pertaining to the proposed district. Said County Commissioners' Court shall have exclusive jurisdiction to hear and determine all contests and objections to the creation and establishment of the same, and shall have exclusive jurisdiction in all subsequent proceedings of any district when organized, except as herein otherwise provided, and may adjourn hearing on any matter connected therewith from day to day and all judgments, decrees or orders rendered or entered by said Court in relation thereto shall be final except as herein otherwise provided. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 5107—127. Order establishing or denying establishment of district; contents.—If at the hearing of said petition it shall appear to the Commissioners' Court that the organization of such district and the proposed improvement is feasible and practicable, that it would be a public benefit or public utility, then the Court shall so find and shall also find the amount of money necessary for said improvement or improvements, for all expenses incident thereto and the expenses necessarily incurred in connection with the creation and establishment of the district, and shall specify the amount of bonds to issue, the length of time the bonds shall run and the rate of interest said bonds shall bear, and cause its findings to be recorded in the records of the Commissioners' Court. If the Court shall find that the organization of such district and the proposed improvement is not feasible or practicable, or that it would not be a public benefit or public utility, then the Court shall enter such findings of record and dismiss the petition at the cost of petitioners; but the order dismissing said petition shall not prevent or conclude the presentation at any subsequent time of a similar petition with changed boundaries, but the presentation of a similar petition with identical boundaries shall not be permitted until the expiration of six months after such dismissal. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 5107—128. Appeal to District Court from order establishing, etc., district; notice of; bond of appellant; hearing and judgment.—If at the hearing of said petition, as herein provided for, the Commissioners' Court shall enter an order granting or dismissing the petition for the establishment of said district at the cost of petitioners, then and in that event the petitioners, or any one or more of them, or any taxpayer in such district, may appeal from said order to the District Court of said county which appeal shall be perfected in the following manner, to-wit: notice of appeal shall be given at the time of the entry of said order by announcement of same before said Court, which notice of appeal shall be entered on the minutes of said Court, or by giving written notice within two days after the entry of such order, said notice to be a simple statement in writing to the effect that the undersigned gives notice of appeal from the order entered on the date stated, which notice shall be filed with the Clerk of the County Court, and the appellant shall, within five days from the date of the entry of said order, file an appeal bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties in the sum of One Hundred Dollars, payable to the County Judge of the county, to be approved by the County Clerk; conditioned, upon the due prosecution of the appeal and payment of all costs incident thereto, and unless the appeal be thus perfected within five days after the rendition of the order, such order shall be final and conclusive and there shall be no extension of time granted for the filing of the appeal bond; the County Clerk shall, within five days after the filing of said appeal bond, transfer to the Clerk of such District Court all records filed with the County Commissioners' Court, pertaining to the establishment of said district, and it shall be unnecessary to file any other or additional pleadings in said court. The Court shall set the matter down for hearing, giving it precedence over all other cases, and the matters shall be tried and determined by the court, the hearing being de novo. The judgment of the District Court shall be final and conclusive, and the same shall be certified to the Commissioners' Court for its further action. The provisions of Section 5, hereof [art. 5107—127], as to the presentation of a subsequent petition or petitions, as the case may be, shall be applied in case of such appeal. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 5107—129. Election to determine establishment; propositions to be submitted.—After the hearing upon the petition, as herein provided, if the Commissioners' Court shall find in favor of the petitioners for the establishment of a Water Control and Preservation District according to the boundaries as set out in said petition, then the Commissioners' Court shall order an election, in which order provision shall be made for submitting to the qualified property tax paying voters, resident in said district, whether or not such Water Control and Preservation District shall be created and whether or not a tax shall be levied sufficient to pay the interest and provide a sinking fund sufficient to redeem said bonds at maturity, said order specifying the amount of bonds to be issued together with the length of time said bonds shall run and the rate of interest said bonds shall bear, as said matters have been determined by the Commissioners' Court under the provisions thereof; said election to be held within such proposed Water Control and Preservation District at the earliest legal time, at which election there shall be submitted the following propositions and none other: "For the Water Control and Preservation District and issuance of bonds and levy of tax in payment thereof." "Against the Water Control and Preservation District and issuance of bonds and levy of tax in payment thereof." Provided that said bonds shall not exceed in amount one-fourth of the assessed valuation of the real property of such district as made by last annual assessment thereof for state and county taxation. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 5107—130. Notice of election.—Notice of such election stating the time and place of holding the same shall be given by the Clerk of the County Court by posting, or causing to be posted, notices thereof in four public places in such Water Control and Preservation District and one at the Court House door of the county in which such district is situated for thirty days prior to the date of said election; such notices shall contain the proposition to be voted upon as set forth in Section 7, of this Act [art. 5107—129], and shall also specify the purpose for which said bonds are to be issued and the amount of such bonds, and shall contain a copy of the order of the court ordering the election. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 5107—131. Conduct of election; qualified voters; voting precincts; election officers; ballots.—The manner of conducting said election shall be governed by the election laws of the State of Texas, except as herein otherwise provided. None but resident property taxpayers, who are qualified voters of said proposed district shall be entitled to vote at any election on any question submitted to the voters thereof by the County Commissioner's Court at such election. The County Commissioner's Court shall create and define, by an order of the Court, the voting precincts in the proposed Water Control and Preservation District, and shall name a Polling place or places within said precincts, taking into consideration the convenience of the voters in the proposed district, and shall also select and appoint the judges and other necessary officers of the election, and shall provide one and one-half times as many ballots as there are qualified resident property tax paying voters within such Water Control and Preservation District; said ballots shall have printed thereon the words and none others: "For the Water Control and Preservation District, and issuance of bonds and levy of tax in payment thereof"; "Against the Water Control and Preservation District, and issuance of bonds and levy of tax in payment thereof." [Id., § 9.]

Art. 5107—132. Lists of property taxpayers for election judges; oath administered to voters.—It shall be the duty of the tax collectors of the county, wherein such proposed district is situated, prior to the day set for the election, to make a certified list of the property taxpayers of said district and to furnish to the presiding judge of each precinct a list of such voters in such precinct, and before any person is entitled to vote at any election under this Act his name must appear in said certified list of property taxpayers, unless such person acquired property in said district after the first day of January of the preceding year, and in such event before he shall be permitted to vote he must take the following oath to be administered by the presiding judge of the polling place where he offers to vote, and for such purpose the presiding judge is hereby authorized to administer the same; "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I am a qualified voter of . . . . . County and that I am a resident property taxpayer of the proposed district, that I was not subject to pay property tax in said district for the preceding year and have not voted before at this election"; or unless the person offering to vote is in fact a resident property taxpayer who has in fact paid his property tax for the preceding year but whose name was for some reason omitted from said list before being permitted to vote, such person shall take the same oath as hereinabove set out, except that in lieu of the Clause "That I was not subject to pay property tax in said district for the preceding year," there shall be substituted "that I was subject to and did pay property tax in said district for the preceding year," which oath shall be administered by the presiding judge. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 5107—133. Returns and declaration of result of election; form for.—Immediately after the election, the presiding judge at each polling place shall make return of the result in the same manner as provided for in elections for state and county officers, and return the ballot boxes to the County Clerk, who shall keep same in a safe place and deliver them, together with the returns from the several polling places, to the Commissioners' Court at its next regular session, or special session called for the purpose of canvassing the vote, and the County Commissioners shall, at such session, canvass the vote; and, if it be found that a two-thirds majority of those voting at such election shall have been cast in favor of the Water Control and Preservation District and the issuance of bonds and levy of tax, then the Court shall declare the result of said election to be in favor of said Water Control and Preservation District, and shall enter same in the minutes of the Court as follows:

“Commissioners’ Court of _____ County, Texas, _____ day of _____ A. D. _____ in the matter of petition of _____ and _____ others, praying for the establishment of a Water Control and Preservation District, and issuance of bonds and levy of taxes in said petition fully described and designated by the name of _____ Water Control and Preservation District _____. Be it known that at an election called for that purpose in said district, held on the _____ day of _____ A. D. _____, a two-thirds majority of the resident property tax-payers voting thereon voted in favor of the creation of said Water Control and Preservation District, and the issuance of bonds and levy of a tax. Now, therefore, it is considered and ordered by the Court that said Water Control and Preservation District be and the same is hereby established by the name of _____ Water Control and Preservation District _____, and that the bonds of said District in an amount not exceeding _____ Dollars be issued by the Directors of said Water Control and Preservation District, and that said Board of Directors levy a tax of _____ cents on the hundred dollars of valuation, or so much thereof as may be necessary, upon all property within said Water Control and Preservation District, whether real, personal, mixed or otherwise, sufficient in amount to pay the interest on such bonds and provide a sinking fund sufficient to redeem them at maturity, and that if said tax shall at any time become insufficient for such purpose, same shall be increased by the Directors of said district until same is sufficient. The metes and bounds of said district being as follows, to-wit: (Giving the metes and bounds).” [Id., § 11.]

Art. 5107—134. District board of directors; number; appointment; qualifications; compensation; terms of office; vacancies in office of.—After the establishment of any Water Control and Preservation District, as herein provided, the Commissioners’ Court, at the same meeting at which the result of said election is determined and declared, or at a meeting called for the purpose not more than five days after such first mentioned meeting, shall appoint a Board of Directors consisting of three members, all of whom shall be residents of the Water Control and Preservation District, who shall be freehold property taxpayers and legal voters of the county embraced, in whole or in part, within the district, and at the time of said election more than twenty-one years of age, whose duties shall be as hereinafter provided; they shall each receive as compensation for their services the sum of Three ($3.00) Dollars per day for each day necessarily taken in the discharge of their duties as such directors; said directors shall hold office for the term of two years and until their successors have qualified, unless sooner by a majority vote of the Commissioners Court. Upon the expiration of the term of office of said directors, the Commissioners’ Court shall appoint their successors by majority vote. Should any vacancy occur through death, resignation or otherwise, of any directors, the same shall be filled by the Commissioners’ Court. [Id., § 12.]

Art. 5107—135. Proposed district partly within two or more counties; petition, election, etc.—Where any such district proposed to be established lies partly within two or more counties, the petition provided for in this Act, shall be presented to the County Commissioners’ Court of each county in which a portion of said district shall lie, and all notices provided for in this Act, to be given in the formation of such district, shall be given in each and every county in which any portion of said territory proposed to be included in such district shall lie. The elections herein provided for, for the establishment of such district, shall be ordered as herein provided by the County Commissioners' Court of each County, in which any portion of said district may lie, for the portion of said district lying in said county. The election returns in such county shall be made to the Commissioners' Court and the said Commissioners' Court shall appoint all necessary officers, furnish all necessary supplies and give all necessary notice as herein provided in the same manner as if the territory lying in said county was, in itself, to be incorporated in such district, but stating that same is a part of such entire district. The said election shall be held in each county in the portion of the district therein situated and the returns of such election shall be made to the County Commissioners' Court, and shall be by it duly canvassed and the result duly declared. After canvassing, determining and declaring the result of said election, the County Judge or presiding officer of the Commissioners' Court shall certify and report the result of said election to the County Judge of the county in which the largest portion of any such district is situated and said County Judge shall canvass said vote and declare the result thereof, and if it be determined that at least two-thirds of the property tax payers, voting thereon, in said entire district have voted in favor of the creation of said district, the said County Judge shall declare the result thereof in the manner herein provided. Said County Judge shall make the order provided for in this Act, relating to districts wholly within one county, and shall cause copies of such order to be filed with the County Clerk of each county in which any portion of said district may lie, which shall be held to be a proclamation of the result of said election. [Id., § 13.]

Art. 5107—136. Same; hearing and determination by Commissioners Court; appeals.—When a petition praying the establishment of such district is filed in two or more counties, the Commissioners' Court of each county shall proceed to hear and determine the matters therein set forth with reference to the territory within their said county in the same manner as herein provided for districts wholly within one county and appeals may be taken for the order entered upon such petition, in the manner as herein provided where the district lies wholly within one county, and the District Court of any county in which any portion of said district is situated, shall have jurisdiction to hear and determine said appeal, the procedure of such appeal, the effect of the judgment entered and the certification thereof, shall be the same as herein provided for districts wholly within one county. [Id., § 14.]

Art. 5107—137. Same; board of directors.—Where the proposed district lies partly within two or more counties, the Board of Directors, instead of consisting of three members shall consist of five and instead of being appointed, as herein provided for, when districts lie wholly within one county, shall be elected at the same time that the question of the establishment of the district is submitted to the voters, and the ballot in addition to the words printed thereon, as provided in Section 9 hereof [art. 5107—131], may have printed the names of the candidates for director, or the voter may write upon his ballot the names of the persons voted for as directors; the five persons receiving the highest number of votes so cast shall be the directors of said district, and the vote for directors shall be canvassed and the result declared at the same time and in the same manner as herein provided for the establishment of the district. [Id., § 15.]

Art. 5107—138. Same; board of directors; election; terms of office; vacancies in office of.—The directors so elected shall hold their office for two years and until their successors are elected and qualified, provided however, that the directors elected at the time of the establishment of the district, shall hold office only until the next regular election to be held in said district for the election of directors, as hereinafter provided and until their successors are elected and qualified. All vacancies in the office of directors shall be filled by the Board of Directors, by appointment, and the director so appointed shall hold office until, the next regular election and until his successor has been elected and qualified. Where the number of directors shall have been reduced by death, resignation or otherwise, to less than three, an election shall be held in the manner provided in Section 75 of Chapter 87, Acts of the Thirty-fifth Legislature, Regular Session [Art. 5107—76], and all the provisions of said section shall apply. There shall be held on the second Tuesday in January, after the establishment of such district, and every two years thereafter, an election within the district, where the land in the district lies in two or more counties, at which time there shall be elected five directors for such district, said elections to be held in accordance with the election laws of the State of Texas, and the provisions of this Act for elections for the establishment of districts, provided however, the Board of Directors shall give notice of the election, appoint all necessary officers, name the polling places in the district, receive and canvass the election returns and do and perform all other duties necessary to the holding of said elections, canvassing the returns and declaring the result thereof. None but resident property taxpayers, who are qualified voters of such district, shall be entitled to vote at such election. [Id., § 16.]

Art. 5107—139. Board of directors; bonds and oath of office.—Within ten days after their appointment or election, or as soon as thereafter as practicable, the directors so appointed or elected, shall make and enter into a good and sufficient bond, in the sum of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars, each, payable to such district, conditioned upon the faithful performance of his duties, the said bond, when the district lies wholly within one county, to be approved by the Commissioners' Court and when said district includes lands within two or more counties the bonds of such directors shall be approved by the Commissioners' Court of the county in which they reside, a copy of the order approving the bond shall be filed with the County Clerk of the county in which the largest part of the district is situated, together with the bond, and such clerk shall record same in the deed records of the county and shall properly index the same in the manner provided for the recording and indexing of deeds; provided however, that after the organization of such district, all bonds required to be given by any director, officer or employé of such district, shall be approved by the directors of such district. The said directors shall take the oath of office prescribed by the Constitution for officers; the said oath of office, when the district is composed of land lying wholly within one county, to be taken before the County Clerk of such county; and where lands within the district lie partly within two or more counties, the oath of office shall be taken before the County Clerk of the County within the district in which such director resides, and the said bonds and oaths shall be delivered by said Clerks to the depository selected by such district under the provisions of this Act, and shall be by it safely kept and preserved for the said district. [Id., § 17.]

Art. 5107—140. Organization of board of directors; quorum.—The directors of such district shall, as soon as possible after their appointment or election and qualification, organize by electing one of their number as President and one as Secretary. When the board of directors consists of three members any two of said directors shall constitute a quorum, when the board of directors consists of five members any three of said directors shall constitute a quorum. [Id., § 18.]

Art. 5107—141. Bonds of district; order for issue; amount; tax levy.—The Board of Directors, as soon as practicable after their appointment, or election, qualification and organization, shall enter an order directing the issuance of water control and preservation bonds for such Water Control and Preservation District, in an amount sufficient to cover the cost of the proposed improvement or improvements, all of the expenses incident thereto and the expenses necessarily incurred in connection with the creation and establishment of the district, provided that the amount of the bonds shall not exceed the amount authorized by the election theretofore held; and the directors shall levy a tax upon all property, subject to taxation within such district, sufficient in amount to pay the interest on such bonds, together with an additional amount to be placed in the sinking fund sufficient to discharge and redeem said bonds at maturity; and said directors for such district shall annually levy and cause to be assessed taxes upon all property within said district sufficient in amount to pay for the expenses of assessing and collecting such taxes, and a tax sufficient for the expenses incident to the maintenance of the district; provided that the tax so levied in connection with any original issuance of bonds shall remain and shall be from year to year as a levy for that purpose until a new levy shall be made. The Board of Directors may from time to time increase or diminish such tax so as to adjust the same to the taxable value of the property subject to taxation by the district, and the directors shall certify to the Commissioners' Court or courts, as the case may be, the levy of such taxes. [Id., § 19.]

Art. 5107—142. Tax levy; books for tax officers; assessment of property; lien of tax; duties of tax officers.—When the lands embraced within such district shall be wholly within the boundaries of one county, the County Commissioners' Court shall provide all necessary additional books for the use of the assessor and collector of taxes for such water control and Preservation District and charge the cost of same to the said district. It shall be the duty of the Commissioners' Court, when the directors of the district certify any tax levy to order the county tax assessor to assess all property within such Water Control and Preservation District and list the same for taxation in the books or rolls furnished him by said Commissioners' Court for that purpose, and return said books or rolls at the same time when he returns the other books or rolls of the state and county taxes for correction and approval, and if the said Commissioners' Court shall find said books or rolls correct they shall approve the same, and all matters pertaining to the assessment of property for taxation in said district, the tax assessor and Board of Equalization of the County in which said district is located shall be authorized to act and shall be governed by the laws of Texas for assessing and equalizing property for state and county taxes, except as herein otherwise provided. In the event such district lies partly within two or more counties, the directors shall certify the tax levies to the Commissioners' Court of the respective counties, and it shall be the duty of such Com-

Commissioners' Courts to order the county tax assessor to assess all property in said county within said Water Control and Preservation District and list the same for taxation in the books or rolls furnished him by said Commissioners' Court for that purpose at the cost of said district, and return said books or rolls for approval of such Commissioners' Court, and said court shall examine and approve the same in the manner hereinabove provided; and in all matters pertaining to the assessment of property for taxation in the part of the county included within such district, the tax assessor and Board of Equalization of such county shall be authorized to act and shall be governed by the laws of Texas for assessing and equalizing property for state and county taxes, except as herein provided. All taxes authorized to be levied by this Act shall be a lien upon the property upon which said taxes are assessed, and said taxes shall mature and be paid at the time provided by the laws of this state for the payment of state and county taxes, and all penalties provided by the laws of this state for the non-payment of state and county taxes shall apply to all taxes authorized to be levied by this Act. The tax assessor, or assessors, as the case may be, shall receive for said service such compensation as the directors of the Water Control and Preservation District shall determine proper, provided that in no event shall they be allowed more than is now allowed by law for like services. Should any tax assessor fail or refuse to comply with the orders of the Commissioners' Court requiring him to assess and list for taxation all the property in the county within the boundaries of said district, as herein provided, he shall be suspended from the further discharge of his duties by the Commissioners' Court of his county, and he shall be removed from office in the mode prescribed by law for the removal of county officers. And any Commissioners' Court refusing or failing, upon being notified of the levy of such tax by the Board of Directors, to order the county tax assessor to make assessment as herein provided, shall be subject to mandamus by any court of competent jurisdiction on a petition in the name of the district, and the order of court upon such hearing may require the assessor to perform the duty without the intervention of an order of the Commissioners' Court. [Id., § 20.]

Art. 5107—143. Same; collection of tax; duties of tax collector.—The tax collector of the county in which said district is situated, and in each county wherein any part of the district may be situated, shall be charged by the Commissioners' Court of such county or counties with the assessment rolls of the Water Control and Preservation District, of that part of said district situated within the county, and it shall be his duty to collect the said taxes within his said county. He shall receive for his services such compensation as the directors of said district shall deem proper, but in no event shall he be allowed more than he is now allowed by law for like services. The county Commissioners' Court shall require the tax collector of the county or of their respective counties, as the case may be, to give an additional bond or security in such sum as they may deem proper and safe to secure the collection of said taxes, payable to the district, conditioned as provided by law for tax collectors' bonds, and in all matters pertaining to the collection of taxes levied under the provisions of this Act, the tax collector shall be authorized to act and shall be governed by the laws of Texas for the collection of state and county taxes, except as herein otherwise provided, and suits may be brought for the collection of said taxes and the enforcement of the tax liens created by this Act. Should any tax collector fail or refuse to give such additional bond or security as herein provided, when requested by the Commissioners' Court, within the time prescribed by law for such purposes, or shall fail or refuse to collect the taxes so levied on the property of said district within his county, he shall be suspended from office by the Commissioners' Court of his county and immediately thereafter be removed from office in the mode prescribed by law. [Id., § 21.]

Art. 5107—144. Same; delinquent property; sale; redemption from sale.—It shall be the duty of the county tax collector to make a certified list of all delinquent property upon which the water control and preservation tax has not been paid within his county and return the same to the Commissioners' Court of said county which shall proceed to have the same collected the sale of such delinquent property in the same manner, both by suit and otherwise, as is now provided for the sale of property for the collection of state and county taxes, and all the provisions of law with reference to delinquent state and county taxes, the collection thereof by suit or otherwise and the redemption of same from such sale, shall apply except as herein otherwise provided, such proceedings and suits to be in the name of the said district and be brought and prosecuted by the same officers as provided for state and county taxes, who shall receive the same fees for such services as provided for like proceedings for state and county taxes; in the sale of any property for delinquent taxes, the directors may become the purchasers of same for the benefit of the district. [Id., § 22.]

Art. 5107—145. Tax levy for maintenance, etc., of district; assessment, collection, etc.—The Board of Directors shall have authority from time to time, as occasion may require and demand, in its discretion, to levy a tax on all property within such district in an amount sufficient to pay for the proper maintenance, operation and repair of any dams, bulkheads, jetties, locks, gates or any other improvement constructed by said district, the directors shall certify to the Commissioners' Court, or courts, as the case may be, the levy of such tax as provided in Section 19 hereof [art. 5107—141], whereupon it shall be the duty of such Commissioners' Court or Courts, as the case may be, to order the tax assessor to assess the property, and same shall be assessed, as provided in Section 20 hereof [art. 5107—142], such tax shall be collected in the manner as provided in Section 21 hereof [art. 5107—143], and all the provisions of Sections 19, 20, 21 and 22 hereof [art. 5107—141 to 144] shall be applied to the tax hereby authorized. [Id., § 23.]

Art. 5107—146. District depository; selection; duties.—The directors for such district shall select a depository for such district in the same manner as now provided for the selection of depositories for the counties in this State, and the duties of such depository shall be the same as now prescribed by law for county depositories, except as herein otherwise provided. In the selection of depositories the directors of such district shall act in the same capacity and perform the same duties as are incumbent upon the county Judge and members of the Commissioners' Court in the selection of county depositories, and all the laws now in force, or hereafter to be enacted, for county depositories, shall apply and become a part of this Act is so far as the same be applicable. [Id., § 24.]

Art. 5107—147. Same; payment of money collected to.—The tax collector of the county or counties, as the case may be, in which said district is situated, shall pay all moneys collected by him or them for said district to the district depository monthly and as often as they may be directed so to do by the Board of Directors of said district, as now prescribed by law for payment by tax collectors to county and city treasurers. [Id., § 25.]

Art. 5107—148. Same; reports and vouchers.—The district depository shall make a report of all moneys received and of all moneys paid out at the end of each month, and shall file such reports with such vouchers among the records of said district in its own vault, and shall furnish a true copy thereof to the directors, and shall, when called upon, allow same to be inspected by any taxpayer or resident of such district; such records shall be preserved as the property of such district and shall be delivered to the successor of such depository. [Id., § 26.]

Art. 5107—149. Funds of district; payments from; accounts; audit.—All payments of any funds of the district shall be by voucher upon the district depository, and all vouchers issued for the payment of any funds of the district shall be signed by the President of the Board of Directors or any two of said directors; all vouchers shall be issued from a regular duplicate book containing a duplicate, which shall be preserved. The directors shall have kept complete books of accounts for such district, and shall on September 1st of each year select a permanent auditor who shall examine the accounts, books and reports of the depository, the assessors and collectors and the directors, and make a full report thereof, a copy of which shall be filed with the depository and a copy with the directors, and one with the County Clerk of the county in which the said district is situated; or if the district be composed of lands situated in two or more counties, then with the clerk of the county in which the largest portion of such district is situated; such report shall be filed by November 1st of each year. [Id., § 27.]

Art. 5107—150. Bonds of district; issue; denominations; interest; payment.—All bonds issued under the provisions of this Act shall be issued in the name of the Water Control and Preservation District, signed by the President and attested by the Secretary of the Board of Directors, with the seal of said District attached thereto, and such bonds shall be issued in denominations of not less than One Hundred Dollars nor more than One Thousand Dollars each, and such bonds shall bear interest at the rate of not to exceed six per cent per annum, payable annually or semi-annually; such bonds shall by their terms provide the term, place or places, manner and conditions of their payment and the interest thereon as may be determined and ordered by the directors for such district, and no bonds shall be made payable more than forty years after date thereof. [Id., § 28.]

Art. 5107—151. Suit to test validity of district or bonds issued thereby.—No suit shall be permitted to be brought in any court of this State, contesting or enjoining the validity of the formation of any district created under the provisions of this Act, or any bonds issued hereunder, or in anywise affecting the establishment of the district or issuance of bonds by such district, except in the name of the State of Texas by the Attorney General upon his own motion, or upon the motion of any party affected thereby, upon good cause shown, except as herein otherwise provided. [Id., § 29.]

Art. 5107—152. Action to determine validity of bond issue prior to sale thereof.—Any such district issuing bonds in accordance with this Act shall, before such bonds are offered for sale, bring an action in the District Court in any county of the judicial district in which said district may be situated, in whole or part, or in the District Court of Travis County, to determine the validity of any such bonds; such action shall be in the nature of a proceeding in rem and jurisdiction of all parties interested may be had by publication of a notice thereof once each week for at least three consecutive weeks in some paper of general circulation published in the county where the action is pending and in the county in which said district is situated, where all of the lands embraced within the district lie in one county, and where lands of two or more counties are situated within said district, then in the county in which the largest portion of any such district is situated. Notice shall also be served upon the Attorney General of the State of Texas of the term of court to which said suit is made returnable, such notice to the Attorney General shall contain a copy of all of the proceedings had in the formation of such district and in connection with the issuance of said bonds. The Attorney General may waive service when furnished a full transcript of such proceedings. [Id., § 30.]

Art. 5107—153. Same; duty of Attorney General.—It shall be the duty of the attorney general to make a careful examination of all such proceedings and require such further evidence and make such further investigation as may seem to him advisable. He shall then file an answer tendering the issue as to the due organization and the validity of the district and whether such bonds are legal and binding obligations upon such district. The issues thus made shall be tried and determined by the court and judgment entered upon such finding upon the trial of such cause. The court may permit any person having an interest in the issue to be determined to intervene and participate in the trial of the issue made. All suits brought under the provisions of this Act shall have preference over all other actions in order that a speedy determination as to the matters involved may be reached. [Id., § 31.]

Art. 5107—154. Same; judgment.—Upon the trial of the issues made under the preceding section of this Act, if the judgment of the court shall be favorable to the district, such judgment shall be so rendered; if the judgment of the court shall be adverse to the district, then such judgment may be by said district accepted, and the error pointed out in such proceedings may be corrected in the manner designated or directed by said court, and when so corrected the judgment of the District Court shall be rendered showing that said corrections had been made and that the bonds issued thereunder are binding obligations upon said district, and such judgment shall be final; and thereafter the judgment, when so finally made out and entered, shall be received as res adjudicata in all cases arising in connection with the collection of said bonds or any interest due thereon, and as to all matters pertaining to the organization and validity of said district or pertaining to the validity of said bonds. After the making and entry of the judgment of the District Court, as hereinabove provided, the Clerk of said court shall make a certified copy of such decree, and said court decree shall be filed with the Comptroller of Public Accounts and be by him recorded in a book kept for that purpose, and said certified copy, or a duly certified copy of said record made by the Comptroller, shall be received in evidence in all litigations thereafter arising which may affect the validity of said bonds or any matter pertaining to the organization and validity of said district, and shall be conclusive evidence of such validity. [Id., § 32.]

of the District Court as provided in the preceding section, the Comptroller shall register said bonds together with a certified copy of the judgment as herein provided for in a book to be provided for that purpose, and shall attach to each of said bonds a certificate of the fact that the decree of the District Court, as required by this Act, has been filed with him in his office, such certificate to be signed by him officially and the seal of his office attached thereto. The Board of Directors of the district shall provide a well bound book in which a record shall be kept by the County Clerk or Clerks of the county in which the largest portion of such district is situated, of all bonds issued with their numbers, amounts, rate of interest, date of issue, when due, where payable, and the annual rate per cent of tax levy made each year to pay the interest on said bonds and to provide a sinking fund for their payment. Said book shall be at all times open to the inspection of all parties interested in said district, either as taxpayers or bond holders, and upon the payment of any bond an entry shall be made in said books showing such payment, and the Secretary of such district shall furnish to the proper County Clerk a certified copy of all orders made in connection with the issuance and levy and assessment of taxes for the payment of interest and creating a sinking fund for the final payment of such bonds. The County Clerk or Clerks shall receive for their services in registering said bonds the sum of ten cents for each bond and a like sum for entering payment of each bond, and for recording any instruments of the district required to be recorded, the same fees as are provided by law for other like services. [Id., § 33.]

Art. 5107—156. Same; sale.—After the issuance of said bonds and after the registration by the Comptroller of Public Accounts for the State of Texas, as herein above provided, the Board of Directors for such district shall offer for sale and sell said bonds on the best terms and for the best price possible, but none of said bonds shall be sold for less than the face value thereof and the accrued interest thereon, and after said bonds are sold all moneys received therefrom shall be immediately paid over by the Board of Directors to the depository of said district; provided, however, that the Board of Directors may exchange bonds in payment of the contract price for work to be done for the use and benefit of said district. [Id., § 34.]

Art. 5107—157. Modification or change in proposed improvement; procedure; additional bonds; election to determine issue.—If after an election has been held for the issuance of bonds the Directors of said district shall consider it necessary to make any modifications or changes in any proposed improvements, they shall be authorized thereto, provided that any change or modification of any improvement or construction shall require the concurrence of four Directors.

In the event the Board of Directors shall determine to make additional improvements, works or constructions in order to carry out the purposes for which said district was organized, or to reconstruct any improvements theretofore made, and the amount derived from the bonds issued or authorized shall not be sufficient, a resolution to that effect shall be duly entered upon the minutes of the board, which said resolution shall set forth the modification or changes proposed, or the new improvements proposed, or the proposed reconstruction, as the case may be, the amount of bonds to be issued to pay for same, together with the length of time said bonds shall run and the rate of interest said bonds shall bear, and shall embody therein a request to the Commissioner's

Court of the County, if all the land of the district be embraced in one county, or to the Commissioners' Court of several counties in which any part of the lands embraced in the district is situated, to order an election to submit to the qualified property tax paying voters, resident in said district, at a day specified in said resolution, whether or not such Water Control and Preservation District shall issue additional bonds in the amount named and whether or not a tax shall be levied sufficient to pay the interest and provide a sinking fund to redeem said bonds at maturity; that a certified copy of said resolution shall be presented to the Commissioners' Court or the several Commissioners' Courts, as the case may be, and thereupon it shall be and become the duty of the Commissioners' Court of said county, if all of the lands within the district lies within one county, or of the Commissioners' Courts of the several counties in which any part of the lands of the district are situated, to order an election on the day specified in said resolution to be held in the county or such part of such respective counties embraced within the district, and notice of such election shall be given, returns made, result declared orders entered, tax levied, certified, assessed and collected in the same manner as herein provided in case of elections for original bonds, and all provisions as to the issuance, approval, validation, registration, recordation and sale of original bonds shall be applicable to such additional bonds, the calling of the election at the date specified in the resolution of said Board of Directors as certified to the Commissioners' Court or Commissioners' Courts, as the case may be, shall not be discretionary with such Commissioners' Court or Courts, but the same shall be and is hereby made mandatory, and all the provisions with reference to the election for the original bond issue, in so far as applicable, shall apply to any election for such additional bonds. The ballots shall have printed thereon the words and none other: "For the issuance of additional Water Control and Preservation bonds and levy of tax in payment thereof;" "Against the issuance of additional Water Control and Preservation bonds and levy of tax in payment thereof." [Id., § 35.]

Art. 5107—158. Construction and Maintenance Fund; how constituted; expenses of elections; how paid.—There is hereby created what shall be termed the "Construction and Maintenance Fund" of such district, which fund shall consist of all moneys received from the sale of bonds and all other amounts received by said district from whatever source, except the tax collections applied to the sinking fund and payment of interest on bonds. All expenses of any kind prior to and after the filing of the original petition, necessarily incurred in connection with the creation, establishment and maintenance of any district organized under the provisions of this Act and improvement or improvements, repairs, cost of maintenance, the salaries of all officers and of all employés of every kind whatsoever, and all expenditures for any purposes of the district, other than the payment of bonds or interest thereon shall be paid out of such "Construction and Maintenance Fund" of said district. Provided, that should the proposition of the creation of such district and issuance of bonds be defeated at the election called to vote upon same, then all expenses up to and including said election shall be paid in the following manner; when the original petition praying for the establishment of a Water Control and Preservation District is filed, as herein provided, it shall be accompanied by Five Hundred Dollars in cash, which shall be deposited with the Clerk of the County Commissioners' Court, if all the lands in the boundaries of the district are situated in one county, or, where the lands embraced in the district lie partly in two or more counties, then with the Clerk of the County Court of the county in which the largest portion of the proposed district is situated, and shall be held by such Clerk until after the result of the election for the creation of said district has been declared and entered of record as hereinbefore provided. Should the results of said election be in favor of the establishment of said district, then the said Five Hundred Dollars shall be by the said Clerk returned to the signers of said original petition, or their agent or attorney. But should the result of said election be against the establishment of said district, then the said Clerk shall pay out of said Five-Hundred Dollars, upon vouchers signed by the County Judge of the county wherein the district is situated, if all the lands are embraced in one county, or, if the lands embraced in the district lie in two or more counties, then by the County Judge of the county in which the largest portion of such proposed district is situated, all expenses and costs pertaining to the said proposed district up to and including the said election and shall return the balance, if any, of said Five Hundred dollars, to the signers of said original petition, or their agent or attorney. [Id., § 36.]

Art. 5107—159. Interest and Sinking Fund; how constituted; payments from.—There is hereby created what shall be termed the “Interest and Sinking Fund” for such district, and all taxes collected under the provisions of this Act for the payment of bonds and interest thereon, shall be credited to such fund and shall never be paid out except for the purpose of satisfying and discharging the interest on said bonds, or for the payment, cancellation and surrender of said bonds, and such fund shall be paid out upon vouchers drawn as hereinbefore provided, and at the time of such payment the depository for such district shall receive and cancel any interest coupon so paid or any bond so satisfied or discharged, and when such interest coupon or bond shall be turned over to the directors the account of such depository shall be credited with the amount thereof and such bond or interest coupon shall be canceled and destroyed. [Id., § 37.]

Art. 5107—160. Right of eminent domain conferred; procedure.—The right of eminent domain is hereby conferred upon all Water Control and Preservation Districts established under the provisions of this Act, for the purpose of condemning and acquiring the right of way over, and through all lands, private and public, except property used for cemetery purposes, necessary for making and maintaining dams, bulkheads, jetties, locks, gates and all other improvements necessary and proper for such construction, and to effectuate the purposes of such district, and the authority hereby conferred shall authorize and empower such district to condemn all lands, private and public, for the purposes herein designated, beyond the boundaries of such district and in any county within the State of Texas. All such condemnation proceedings shall be under the direction of the directors and in the name of the district. The assessment of all damages and all procedure with reference to condemnation, appeal and payment shall be in conformity with the statutes of the State for condemning and acquiring right of way by railroad companies, and all such compensation and damages adjudicated in such condemnation proceedings shall be paid out of the “Construction and Maintenance Fund. [Id., § 38.]

Art. 5107—161. Engineer; employment; duties; directors to cooperate with United States.—The directors of any such district shall have authority to employ a competent engineer whose term of office shall be at the will of said directors. It shall be the duty of the engineer to make all necessary surveys, examinations, investigations, maps, plans and drawings with reference to the proposed improvements. He shall make an estimate, or estimates, of the cost of same, shall supervise the work of improvements, and shall do and perform all such duties as may be required of him by the directors. If it be necessary to erect and maintain dams, bulkheads, jetties, locks, gates or any other character of improvement or construction, in order to the preservation of the purity and irrigable qualities of the waters of any rivers, creeks, bayous, lakes, canals or streams, or other waters of any kind or character, and the improvement proposed to be of such nature as requires the permission or consent of the Government of the United States, or any department or officer of the United States, the said directors shall have authority to obtain the required permission or consent, provided that in lieu of the employment of an engineer, as herein provided, or in addition thereto, the said directors shall have power to adopt any survey of any river, creek, canal, stream, bay, lake or other waters, theretofore made by the United States, or any department thereof, and to arrange for surveys, examination and investigation of the proposed improvement, and supervision of the work of improvement by the United States, or the proper department or officer thereof. And said directors shall have full power and authority to co-operate and act with the United States, or any officer or department thereof, in any and all matters pertaining or relating to the construction and maintenance of any improvement whether by survey, work or expenditure of money made, or to be made, either by said directors or by the United States, or any proper officer or department thereof, or by both; and to the end that the United States may aid in all such matters, the said directors shall have authority to agree and consent to the United States entering upon and taking management and control of said work of construction, repair or reconstruction and maintenance, in so far as it may be necessary or permissible under the laws of the United States and the regulations and orders of any department thereof. [Id., § 39.]

Art. 5107—162. Joinder of districts in construction of improvement; contracts; general manager.—Two or more districts may, in the discretion of the directors of the respective districts, join in the construction of any improvement or improvements and enter upon any work authorized under this Act as a joint project where in the judgment of the majority of the directors of each of said districts such improvements, works or constructions will be advantageous to the respective district. To this end a contract may be entered into between such districts by the respective directors, stipulating the pro rata amount to be paid by such district for such joint project and to provide for its maintenance, repair and reconstruction, and such joint projects may be undertaken whether the improvement or improvements, works or constructions are wholly within one district or partly in each of said districts, or partly in either said district and without the bounds of either district, or wholly without the bounds of either district, and such contracts may be enforced and specific performance compelled by any court of competent jurisdiction. When improvements are constructed by two or more districts, bids may be jointly called for and may be opened and considered at the designated office of either of said districts, and the directors of such districts shall approve the letting of the contract and contractor's bond, and may meet for that purpose and for all purposes concerning the joint project at a place outside the district, or at any office established for such joint project, and at which office all business of such joint project may be transacted. All bids, bonds, contracts, etc., of said project shall be in the name of said joint project districts, such districts being empowered and authorized to do all acts by joint action that one district may do, the action of each district being determined by its Board of Directors. A General Manager may be employed for such project, whose duties may be set forth in the joint ownership contract; such manager may be a director of either of such districts. [Id., § 40.]

Art. 5107—163. Contracts for improvements; letting; advertisement; several improvements.—If the improvement or improvements, works or constructions be not carried out and performed by the United States as herein provided, the contract or contracts for such improvement or improvements shall be let by the directors and the same shall be awarded to the lowest and best responsible bidder after giving notice by advertising the same in one or more newspapers of general circulation in the State of Texas once a week for four consecutive weeks, and by posting notices for at least thirty days at the Court House door of the county or counties in which the lands of the district may be situated. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the making of more than one improvement and where more than one improvement is to be made, the contract may be let separately for each or one contract for all such improvements. [Id., § 41.]

Art. 5107—164. Same; surveys, plans, etc., for bidders; acceptance or rejection of bids; contracts; requisites of.—Any person, firm or corporation desiring to bid on the construction of any work advertised for as provided in the preceding section of this Act, shall upon application to the Secretary of the district be furnished the surveys, plans for the said work, and all bids or offers for any such work shall be in the writing and sealed and delivered to the President or Secretary of the Board of Directors, together with a certified check for at least two per cent of the total amount bid, which shall be forfeited to the district in case the bidder refuses to enter into a proper contract and make the necessary bond, if his bid is accepted, or returned to the bidder if his bid is rejected. Any and all bids may be rejected at the discretion of the directors, all contracts made by the directors shall be reduced to writing and signed by the contractors and President of the Board of Directors and attested by the Secretary of the Board of Directors and a copy of same shall be filed with the County Clerk of said county, if the lands embraced in the district lie wholly within one county, or if in two or more counties, with the clerk of the county in which the largest portion of such district is situated. [Id., § 42.]

Art. 5107—165. Same; bond of contractor.—The person, firm or corporation to whom any such contract is let shall give bond, payable to the district, in such amount as may be determined by the directors not to exceed the contract price and not less than fifty per cent thereof, conditioned that he, they or it will faithfully perform the obligations, agreements and covenants of their contract and that in default thereof will pay to said district all damages sustained by reason thereof; and such other conditions as may be required by law of contractors for public work; said bond to be approved by the Board of Directors. [Id., § 43.]

Art. 5107—166. Supervision of work by district engineer.—All work contracted for by the Board of Directors, unless done under the supervision of the United States, or the proper department of officer thereof, as hereinbefore provided, shall be done under the supervision of the engineer of the district; and when the work is completed according to the contract, the engineer shall make a detailed report of the same to the Board of Directors showing whether the contract has been fully complied with according to its terms; and if not, in what particular it has not been so complied with. The directors, however, shall not be bound by such report, but may in addition thereto fully investigate such work and determine whether or not such contract has been complied with. [Id., § 44.]

Art. 5107—167. Inspection of work by directors; payments to contractors.—The directors shall have the right, and it is hereby made their duty, during the progress of work being done under contract, to inspect the same, and upon the completion of any contract they shall draw a voucher on the district depository for the amount of the contract price in favor of the contractor or his assignee, which voucher shall be drawn in the manner as hereinabove provided; said voucher to be paid out of the “Construction and Maintenance Fund” of such district; provided that if the directors shall deem it advisable they may contract for the work to be paid for in partial payments as the work progresses, but such partial payments shall not exceed in amount in the aggregate eighty per cent of the total amount to be paid under the contract the amount of work completed shall be shown by a certificate of the engineer; and provided further that nothing in this section shall effect the provision of this Act providing for the carrying out and performing of the improvement of improvements by the United States. [Id., § 45.]

Art. 5107—168. Report of work done by directors.—The directors shall make an annual report on the first day of January of each year showing in detail the kind, character and amount of work done in the district, the cost of same, the amount of each voucher drawn and to whom paid, and for what purpose paid, and other data necessary to show the condition of improvements made under the provisions of this Act, a copy of which report shall be filed in the office of the County Clerk of the county, where the lands embraced lie wholly within one county or where the district is composed of land lying in two or more counties, then with the clerk of the county in which the largest part of the lands of the district are situated, which report shall be opened to public inspection. [Id., § 46.]

Art. 5107—169. General powers and duties of directors; director may be general manager.—The Board of Directors shall have control over the management of all of the affairs of such district, shall make all contracts pertaining thereto and shall employ all necessary employés for the proper conduct and operation of such district; including engineers, bookkeepers and such other assistants and such other laborers as may be required, paying such compensation as the Directors may determine; and the directors are authorized to employ an attorney or attorneys to represent such district in the preparation of any contract or the conduct of any proceedings in or out of court, and to be the legal advisor or advisors of the directors on such terms and for such fees as may be agreed upon by them, provided that where the district lies wholly within one county the directors shall not, after the completion of the improvements, employ any attorneys as legal advisers of the district or an engineer as engineer of such district, or any other employés except with the concurrence and consent of the Commissioners' Court of such county and the compensation to be paid such attorney, engineer or employé, so employed after the completion of the improvements, shall be fixed by the directors subject to the approval of said Commissioners' Court. They may require bonds of any employés in any amount within their discretion. The directors may also employ a general manager to have general charge of the work, paying such compensation as may be agreed by the directors. A director may be appointed as general manager and at such compensation as may be fixed by the other directors, and when so employed he shall also perform the duties of a director but he shall not receive the compensation to be paid to the directors. The directors may also buy all necessary work animals, machinery and supplies and material of all description as may be required in the construction, operation or repairing of the improvements of the district, and may do and perform all things necessary and proper in carrying out the purposes of said district. [Id., § 47.]

Art. 5107—170. Director, etc., not to have pecuniary interest in contract, etc.; punishment for violation.—No director of any such district, engineer or other employé thereof, shall be directly or indirectly interested either for themselves or as agents for any one else, in any contract for the construction of any work or improvement, or repair or reconstruction of such improvements by said district, and if any such person shall directly or indirectly be or become interested in any such contract, he shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof be punished by confinement in the penitentiary for a term not less than one year nor more than five. [Id., § 48.]

Art. 5107—171. Suits by or against district; judicial notice of district; contracts with district; seal of district.—All districts established under the provisions of this Act are hereby declared to be defined districts within the meaning of Section 52, Article 3 of the Constitution, and may by and through its directors sue and be sued in the name of such district, and all courts of this State shall take judicial notice of the establishment of such districts; and said district shall contract and be contracted with in the name of such districts. Such districts shall have a seal, which shall be circular in form containing a five pointed star in the center and around the margin thereof the name of the district. [Id., § 49.]

Art. 5107—172. Acquisition by directors of rights of way, etc.; condemnation; conveyance of property to United States.—The directors of any district are hereby empowered to acquire the necessary right of way and property of any kind or character whatsoever for all necessary improvements contemplated by this Act, by gift, grant, purchase or condemnation proceedings, whether the same be within or without the boundaries of the district; and any property acquired may be conveyed to the United States in so far as the same shall be necessary for the construction, operation and maintenance of works by the United States under any contract that may be entered into between the district and the United States. [Id., § 50.]

Art. 5107—173. Right of entry by directors upon lands for examination thereof; interference with; punishment.—The directors of any district and the engineers and employés thereof are hereby authorized to go upon any land lying within said district for the purpose of examining same for locating dams, bulkheads, jetties, locks, gates or any other character of improvement or construction necessary to the accomplishment of the purposes of the district, to make maps and profiles thereof, and are hereby authorized to go upon lands beyond the boundaries of such districts for the purposes stated and for any other purposes necessarily connected therewith whether herein enumerated or not; and any person who shall wilfully prevent or prohibit any such officer or employé from entering upon such land for such purpose shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined One Hundred Dollars for each day he shall prevent or prohibit such officer or employé from entering upon any lands. [Id., § 51.]

Art. 5107—174. Investment of sinking fund.—The Board of Directors are authorized and empowered whenever they may deem it advisable to invest from time to time any sinking fund of the district, acquired for the redemption and payment of any of its outstanding bonds and interest thereon, in bonds of the United States or of the State of Texas, of any county of the State of Texas, any irrigation or water improvement or navigation bonds, or bonds or any other school district in the State of Texas authorized to issue bonds, provided that no bonds shall be so purchased that according to their terms mature at a date subsequent to the time of the maturity of the bonds for the payment of which such sinking fund was created. [Id., § 52.]

Art. 5107—175. Directors to keep accounts, and preserve contracts, records, etc.—The Board of Directors of such district, through the Secretary, shall keep a true account of all matters and proceedings of the board and shall preserve all contracts, records and notices, duplicate vouchers, duplicate receipts, and all accounts and records of whatsoever kind, and the same shall be the property of the district and shall be delivered to their successors in office. [Id., § 53.]

Art. 5107—176. Office to be maintained by directors; meetings.—The directors of each district shall, during the progress of the construction of any improvement under contract, have and maintain a regular office within such district and may in their discretion when deemed necessary have and maintain a regular office in the district during any other time or times. The directors shall hold an annual meeting on the first day of December of each year at ten o'clock A. M. and may provide for meetings at stated intervals by resolution duly passed, and the President or any two directors may call special meetings at any time that may be deemed proper or necessary. [Id., § 54.]

Art. 5107—177. Bonds of officers and employés of district.—All officers and employés of any district who may be required to give bond or security may furnish bonds of surety companies subject to the approval of the directors; all such bonds shall be preserved by directors as the property of said district. [Id., § 55.]

Art. 5107—178. Disposition of remainder of Construction and Maintenance Fund.—After the full and final completion of all of the improvements of such district, as herein provided for, and after payment of all expenses incurred under the provisions of this Act, the directors are authorized to use the funds remaining in the "Construction and Maintenance Fund" for the best interest of such district in the preservation, upkeep, repair and reconstruction of the works of such district. [Id., § 56.]

Art. 5107—179. Repeal.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed. Provided however, the provisions of this Act shall not repeal or affect any of the provisions of the law contained in Chapter 87 Acts of the Thirty-fifth Legislature, at its regular session 1917, or any amendment thereto, but are independent thereof. [Id., § 57.]

See chapter 2 of this title.

Article 5107—180. Purposes for which districts may be created.—There may be created within this state conservation districts to be known as Fresh Water Supply Districts, for the purpose of conserving, transporting and distributing Fresh Water from lakes, pools, reservoirs, wells, springs, creeks, and rivers for domestic and commercial purposes, as contemplated by Section 59, Article 16 of the Constitution of this State, which said districts shall have and may exercise all the rights, privileges and powers given by this Act and in accordance with its directions, limitations and provisions. Such districts may or may not include cities and towns. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., 2d C. S., ch. 48, § 1.]

Took effect July 28, 1919.

Art. 5107—181. Petition for establishment; contents; hearing; notice thereof.—When it is proposed to create a Fresh Water Supply District, there shall be presented to the Commissioners' Court in which the lands to be included in such district are located, or to the County Judge of the County, if the Commissioners' Court is not in session, a petition signed by fifty or by a majority of the qualified voters of such proposed district who shall own land within the District proposes, setting forth the proposed boundaries thereof, the general nature of the work proposed to be done, the necessity therefor, and the feasibility thereof and designating a name therefor, which shall include the name of the county in which it is situated and upon presentation of such petition it shall be the duty of the Commissioners' Court or the County Judge of such county if the court be not in session to forthwith fix a time and place at which said petition shall be heard before the Commissioners' Court of the County herein it is filed, which date shall be not less than fifteen nor more than thirty days from the date of the order, and to order and direct the County Clerk of such County, as ex-officio clerk of the Commissioners' Court thereof, to issue notice of such time and place of hearing, which notice shall inform all persons concerned of the time and place of hearing and their right to appear and contest the genuineness of such petition and the signature thereto and whether said petitioners are qualified voters of such proposed district, and owners of land therein and to deliver such notice to any adult who is willing to execute the same by posting as herein directed. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 5107—182. Posting copies of notice of hearing on petition.—Upon receipt of the notice above provided for by any adult person willing to receive and execute the same it shall be the duty of such person, or persons if more than one shall act, to post a copy of such notice at the door of the Court House of said County, and a copy at four different places within such proposed district. Such posting shall be for not less than ten days prior to the date fixed for the hearing and the person or persons so posting shall make affidavit, before some officer authorized by law to administer oaths of his or their action in respect to such posting, and such affidavit when so made shall be conclusive of the facts sworn to. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5107—183. Deposit to accompany petition.—A petition for the formation of such a district shall be accompanied by a deposit of One Hundred Dollars, which deposit shall be paid to the clerk of the County Court, who shall therefrom upon vouchers approved by the County Judge, pay all expenses incident to the hearing and the election for the creation of the District herein provided for, returning any excess to the petitioners or their attorney. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 5107—184. Determination of sufficiency of petition.—At the time and place set for the hearing of the petition or such subsequent date as may then be fixed the court shall proceed to examine such petition for the purpose of ascertaining the sufficiency thereof, and any person interested may appear before the court in person or by attorney and offer testimony touching the sufficiency of such petition. Such court shall have jurisdiction to determine all issues raised touching the sufficiency of such petition. Such hearing may be adjourned from day to day and from time to time as the facts may require. The court shall have power to make all incidental orders necessary in respect to the matters before it. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 5107—185. Election to determine establishment of district; order for; proposition to be submitted; election of supervisors, and assessor and collector.—If upon the hearing of such petition it be found that the same is signed by the requisite number of qualified voters of such proposed district, who own land therein and that such petition conforms to the provisions of Section 2 of this act [Art. 5107—181], then the court shall so find in favor of the petitioners for the establishment of a district according to the boundaries as set forth in said petition and the County Commissioners' Court hearing said petition shall order an election to be held within said proposed Fresh Water Supply District at a time not less than twenty nor more than thirty days from the date of such order. At which election there shall be submitted the following propositions: "For the Fresh Water Supply District," "Against the Fresh Water Supply District," and the election of five supervisors and an assessor and collector as hereinafter provided. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 5107—186. Same; notice; posting.—After the ordering of an election as provided in the preceding section, notice of such election shall be given stating the time and place or places of holding the election and showing the boundaries of said proposed district, and such notice shall also show the presiding officer or officers appointed for the holding of said election. Such notice shall be posted at the Court House door of the County in which said proposed district is situated, and shall be posted for twenty days previous to the day of the election and shall contain the proposition to be voted upon and names of officers to be filled at such election. [Id., § 7.]

tion shall be governed by the election laws of the State of Texas, except as herein provided, and at such election none but resident property tax payers who are qualified voters of such proposed district shall be entitled to vote on any question submitted to the voters thereof at such election. The County Commissioners' Court shall name a polling place or polling places for such election. Each and every Fresh Water Supply District is hereby constituted an election precinct for the purposes of the election above specified, and all other elections which may be ordered or held under any provisions of this Act. The Commissioners' Court ordering said election shall select and appoint two judges, one of whom shall be presiding judge, and two clerks at each polling place name, and shall provide the necessary ballots for such election. Said ballot shall have printed thereon the following: "For the Fresh Water Supply District," "Against the Fresh Water Supply District," and the names of the persons recommended for supervisors and officers in the petition presented to the Commissioners' Court. Said ballot shall also have five blank places after the name of those printed on which each voter may write the names of other persons supervisors and assessor and collector, and there shall be no other matter placed on said ballot. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 5107—188. Same; oath of voters.—Every person who offers to vote in any election held under the provisions of this Act shall take the following oath before the presiding judge of the polling place where he offers to vote and for such purpose the presiding judge is hereby authorized to administer the same:

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I am a qualified voter of _____ County and that I am a resident property tax payer of the proposed Fresh Water Supply District voted on at this election, and have not voted before in this election." [Id., § 9.]

Art. 5107—189. Same; returns; canvass; certificate of result.—Immediately after the election the presiding Judge at each polling place shall make returns of the result in the same manner as provided for in general elections for State and County Officers, and the Commissioners' Court shall forthwith at a regular Session, if said court be in regular session, or a special session called for that purpose if said Commissioners' Court be not in regular session, canvass such vote and if it be found that the votes of a majority of the resident property tax payers voting thereon shall have been cast in favor of the Fresh Water Supply District, then the court shall declare the result of said election in favor of the establishment of said district, and shall enter the same in the minutes of said court, and shall also canvass the vote for supervisors and assessor and collector and issue or cause to be issued to the five supervisors receiving the highest number of votes certificates of their election and to the person receiving the highest number of votes for assessor and collector a certificate of his election as provided under the general election law. Provided however, that should it be found that two or more persons had received the same number of votes for the position of fifth supervisor the said Commissioners' Court shall select one of said persons to fill said position. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 5107—190. Same; order establishing district; form and contents.—If the Commissioners' Court shall declare the result of said election to be in favor of the establishment of the Fresh Water Supply District, then said court shall cause to be made and entered in the minutes of said court an order setting forth substantially as follows: "In the matter of the petition of _____ and _____ others praying for the establishment of a Fresh Water Supply District as in said petition described and designated, as _____ County Fresh Water Supply District No. _____; be it known that an election was called for that purpose in said district and held on the _____ day of _____ Month, A. D. 19— and a majority of the resident tax payers voting thereat voted in favor of the creation of the said Fresh Water Supply District. Now, therefore, it is ordered by the Court that a Fresh Water Supply District be and the same is hereby established under the name of _____ County Fresh Water Supply District No. _____ with the following metes and bounds.” (Which field notes shall be copied in the record). The first district created under this Act in any county shall assume the number “ONE”, the second district created shall assume the number “TWO”, and so on consecutively. [Id., § 11.]

Art. 5107—191. Certified copy of order establishing district; filing and recording.—After the making and entering by the Commissioners Court of the order establishing a Fresh Water Supply District as herein provided, the court shall cause to be made a certified copy of such order, which shall be filed with the County Clerk of the county in which such district is situated, and the same shall be duly recorded in the deed records of said County, and such recordation shall have the same effect in so far as notice is concerned, as is provided for the record of deeds and all costs in connection with the making and recording of such copy shall be paid by the District. [Id., § 12.]

Art. 5107—192. Supervisors; bonds and oaths of office.—Within ten days after the making and entry of the order of the Commissioners' Court declaring the result of the election and the establishment of the Fresh Water Supply District as herein provided, or as soon thereafter as practicable, the supervisors elected at such election shall give and enter into a good and sufficient bond in the sum of $5,000.00 each payable to the Fresh Water Supply District, conditioned upon the faithful performance of their duties to be approved by the Commissioners' Court provided, however, that after the organization of such district all bonds required to be given by any supervisor, officer, or employé of such supply district shall be approved by the supervisors of such districts instead of the Commissioners' Court. The supervisors shall take the oath of office prescribed by the Statute for Commissioners' Court except that the name of the Supply District shall be substituted for the name of the county in said oath of office, and the bond and oath herein provided for shall be filed with the County Clerk of the County wherein the order was entered creating said district, and by him recorded in the official bond records of said County, and after it is recorded said bond shall be delivered by the County Clerk to the depository selected by such district under the provisions of this Act, and shall be by it safely kept as part of the records of said district. [Id., § 13.]

Art. 5107—193. Same; organization; quorum; secretary.—The supervisors of such Fresh Water Supply District shall organize by electing one of their number as President, and any three of whom shall constitute a quorum, and a concurrence of three shall be sufficient in all matters pertaining to the business of their district. They shall have power to appoint a secretary who shall receive such compensation as the Board of Supervisors may fix, not to exceed One Hundred Fifty ($150.00) Dollars per month. [Id., § 14.]

Art. 5107—194. Same; qualifications.—No person shall be elected as supervisor for any Fresh Water Supply District created under this Act unless he is a resident of said district and owns land subject to taxation within such district, and who at the time of such election shall be more than twenty-one years of age. [Id., § 15.]

Art. 5107—195. Same; powers and duties enumerated.—The Board of Supervisors herein provided for shall have control over and management of all the affairs of such Fresh Water Supply District, shall make all contracts pertaining thereto and such supervisors shall have control of the construction of all improvements and works within and without the boundaries of such district and the transportation and distribution of the water of such district, and shall prescribe the manner and terms upon which water shall be furnished, and shall be authorized to fix the rate to be charged users of water from such supply district, and shall promulgate rules and regulations governing the distribution and use of water and the revenue from the sale of such water shall be applied to operating expenses and the upkeep of the system of improvements installed in said district, and any surplus that may be left after paying such expenses shall be from year to year applied to the payment of interest on the bonds or other indebtedness that may be incurred by the district, and if there be more than enough to pay operating and upkeep expenses, and the interest on the indebtedness of the district, then such surplus shall be passed by the supervisors to the sinking fund provided in this act, and the board of supervisors shall employ all necessary employés for the proper handling and operation of such district, and especially may employ a general manager, attorneys, a bookkeeper and an engineer and such assistants and laborers as may be required, and they may also buy all necessary implements, machinery, work animals, equipment and supplies, as may be required for the construction, operation, and maintenance of the system of works and improvement of such Fresh Water Supply District. [Id., § 16.]

Art. 5107—196. Districts declared bodies corporate; general powers.—All Fresh Water Supply Districts created as herein specified shall be governmental agencies and bodies politic and corporate with such powers of government, and with authority to exercise such rights, privileges and functions concerning the purposes for which they are created, as may be conferred by this act, or any other law in this State, to the benefit of which they may become entitled, and such districts are hereby declared to be defined districts within the meaning of Section 59, Article 16 of the Constitution and may by and through their supervisors, sue and be sued in any and all courts of this state in the name of such fresh water supply districts, and all courts of this state shall take judicial notice of the establishment of such districts, and said districts shall contract and be contracted with in the name of such districts. And all such Fresh Water Supply Districts shall have full authority and right to acquire water rights and privileges in any way that any individual or corporation may acquire same, and to hold the same either by gift, purchase, device, appropriation or otherwise. [Id., § 17.]

Art. 5107—197. Construction, etc., of works and improvements; taking over existing plants and systems; power to issue bonds and incur indebtedness; election to determine issue of bonds, etc.—Fresh Water Supply Districts created under this Act are entitled to the benefits of this provision, and subject to the limitations of this act contained, shall have full power and authority to build, construct, complete, carry out, maintain and in case of necessity add to and re-build all works and improvements within and without such districts necessary to accomplish any plan of conservation, transportation and distribution of fresh water adopted for or on behalf of such districts and may make all necessary and proper contracts, and employ all persons and means necessary to that end, and such districts are authorized, if the governing bodies thereof shall deem it necessary, to take over in whole or in part by purchase or otherwise, any water plants or systems within such districts; and in the accomplishment of such purposes they may or may not issue bonds, and may or may not incur indebtedness, provided that no bonds by or on behalf of such district shall be issued nor shall any indebtedness against the same be incurred unless the proposition to issue such bonds or to incur such indebtedness, shall be first submitted to the qualified property tax paying voters of such district, and the proposition adopted by a majority vote of the property tax paying voters of the district voting at an election held to determine such question, and no enumeration of specific powers in this Act shall be held a limitation upon the general powers hereby conferred except as may be distinctly expressed. [Id., § 18.]

Art. 5107—198. Power of eminent domain conferred; procedure, etc.—The right of eminent domain is hereby expressly conferred on all Fresh Water Supply Districts established under the provisions of this act for the purpose of enabling such district to acquire the fee simple title, easement, or right-of-way over and through any and all lands, water, or lands under water, private or public (except lands and property used for parks, manufacturing industries and established and developed water powers existing at the time of the creation of such district, and cemetery purposes) within and without such districts necessary for making, constructing and maintaining all canals, conduits, aqueducts, pipe lines, pumping plants and other improvements necessary for the conservation, transportation and distribution of fresh water for the purpose herein named. In the event of the condemnation or taking, damaging or destroying of any property for such purposes, the Supply Districts shall pay to the owner thereof adequate compensation for the property taken, damaged or destroyed. All condemnation proceedings or suits in the exercise of eminent domain under this Act shall be instituted under the direction of the district supervisors, and in the name of the Fresh Water Supply District, and all suits or other proceedings for such purposes and for the assessing of damages, and all procedure with reference to condemnation, the assessment of and estimating of damages, payment, appeal, the entering upon the property pending the appeal, etc., shall be in conformity with the statutes of this state, for the condemning and acquiring of right of way by railroad company, and all such compensation and damages adjudicated in such condemnation proceedings and all damage which may be done to the property of any person or corporation in the construction and maintenance of canals, conduits, pipe lines, pumping plants and other improvements under the provisions of this Act shall be paid out of any funds or properties of the said Fresh Water Supply District, except taxes necessarily applied to the sinking fund and interest on the district bonds. [Id., § 19.]

Art. 5107—199. Rights of way; power to acquire.—The District Supervisors of any District are hereby empowered to acquire the necessary right of way for canals, conduits, pipe lines, pumping plants and other necessary improvements contemplated by this act, by gift, grant, purchase or condemnation proceedings as hereinbefore provided. [Id., § 20.]

Art. 5107—200. Power to enter upon lands for examination, etc.—The supervisors of any district, and the engineers and employes thereof are hereby authorized to go upon any lands lying within or without said district, for the purpose of examining the same with reference to the location of canals, conduits, pipe lines, pumping plants and all other kinds of improvements to be constructed for such district, and for any other lawful purpose connected with their plan of conservation, transportation and distribution of water, whether herein enumerated or not, and such necessary improvements may be constructed and maintained within and without such proposed districts upon lands acquired as herein authorized. [Id., § 21.]

Art. 5107—201. Levees, bridges, etc., across or under railroad tracks or public or private roads.—The said Fresh Water Supply Districts are hereby authorized and empowered to make all necessary levees, bridges and other improvements across or under any railroad embankments, tracks, or rights of way, or public or private roads or the rights of way thereof, or rivers or other public improvements of other districts, or other such improvements and the rights of way thereof, for the purpose of enabling the Fresh Water Supply necessary for said district; provided, however, that notice shall first be given by said Fresh Water Supply District to the proper railroad authorities or other authorities or persons relative to the additions or changes to result from the improvements contemplated by the said Fresh Water Supply District; and the said railroad authorities or other authorities, or persons shall be given thirty (30) days in which to agree to said work to be done in the manner proposed by said District, or to refuse to agree thereto, in case of refusal, they shall at their own expense, construct the said improvements in their own manner: provided such design or manner of construction shall be satisfactory to said Fresh Water Supply District. [Id., § 22.]

Art. 5107—202. Rights of way across public or county roads.—Fresh Water Supply Districts are hereby given the right of way across all public or county roads, but they shall restore such roads where crossed to their previous condition for use, as near as may be. [Id., § 23.]

Art. 5107—203. Joint action with other political subdivisions.—Fresh Water Supply Districts shall have authority to act jointly with each other with political subdivisions of the state, with other states, with cities and towns, and with the government of the United States, in performance of any of the things permitted by this act; such joint acts to be done upon such terms as may be agreed upon by their supervisors. [Id., § 24.]

Art. 5107—204. Assessor and collector; bond; qualifications; compensation.—The office of assessor and collector herein provided for shall be filled by the same person, and before entering upon his duties as such assessor and collector he shall qualify by making and entering into a good and sufficient bond in the sum of Five Thousand ($5,000)

Dollars conditioned upon the faithful performance of his duties as assessor, and collector and upon the paying over to the district depository of all sums of money coming into his hands as such collector; provided, however, that the supervisor shall require additional security in the event, in their judgment, the same may become necessary; and such assessor and collector shall be a resident of the district and a qualified voter in the district and shall receive such compensation for his services as may be provided by the board of supervisors, not to exceed $2,400.00 per annum, which salary shall be paid by the district upon vouchers issued by the Board of Supervisors. [Id., § 25.]

Art. 5107—205. Election to determine bond issue; proposition submitted.—After the establishment of any such Fresh Water Supply District, and the qualification of the Supervisors thereof, the Board of Supervisors may order an election to be held within such organized districts at a time not less than twenty nor more than thirty days from the date of said order, at which election, there shall be submitted this proposition and none other; “For the issuance of bonds and levy of taxes in payment thereof,” “Against the issuance of bonds and levy of taxes in payment thereof.” [Id., § 26.]

Art. 5107—206. Same; notice; conduct of; qualified voters; voting places; ballots.—Notice of such election, stating the amount of bonds as determined by the Board of Supervisors to be necessary to be issued, shall be given by the Board of Supervisors, by posting a copy of said notice in four public places in said Fresh Water Supply District, one at the court house door of the county in which said District is situated; copies of which notice shall be posted for twenty days previous to the date of the election, and shall contain the proposition to be voted upon as set forth in the preceding section, together with an estimate of the probable cost of construction of the proposed improvement, and incidental expenses connected therewith, and an estimate of the cost of the purchase of the improvements already existing, if the same is contemplated, or the purchase of said necessary improvements, and the construction of additions thereto as the case may be. The manner of conducting such election shall be governed by the election laws of the State of Texas, except as hereinbefore otherwise provided. None but resident property tax payers who are qualified voters of such proposed district shall be entitled to vote on any question submitted to the voters thereof by the board of supervisors for said Fresh Water Supply District. The Board of Supervisors for such district shall name a polling place, or places, in such district and shall also select and appoint two judges, one of whom shall be presiding judge, and two clerks for each voting place designated by them and shall provide the necessary ballots for said election. Said ballot shall have written or printed thereon the words and none other: “For the issuance of bonds and levy of taxes in payment thereof,” “Against the issuance of bonds and levy of taxes in payment thereof.” All expense incident to the calling and holding of such election or any other election authorized by this Act shall be paid out of any funds of said Fresh Water Supply District except interest and sinking fund provided for in this act upon vouchers drawn by the Board of Supervisors. [Id., § 27.]

Art. 5107—207. Same; oath of voters.—Every person who offers to vote in any such election shall first take the oath hereinbefore set forth in section No. 9 of this Act [art. 5107—188] before the presiding judge or any one of the judges of the polling place where he offers to vote, and the presiding judges are hereby authorized to administer said oath. [Id., § 28.]

Art. 5107—208. Same; returns; canvass; declaration of result.—Immediately after the election, the presiding judge of each polling place shall make return of the result in the same manner as provided for in general election for State and County officers, such return shall be made to the Board of Supervisors who shall at a regular or special session called for the purpose of canvassing said vote, canvass said vote and if it be found that the votes of a majority of the resident property tax paying voters voting therein shall have been cast in favor of the issuance of the bonds and levy of taxes, then said supervisors shall declare the result of said election to be in favor of the issuance of bonds and levy of taxes, then said supervisors shall declare the result of said election to be in favor of the issuance of bonds and levy taxes and in payment thereof and shall cause same to be entered in their minutes. [Id., § 29.]

Art. 5107—209. Bonds; order for issue of.—After the canvass of the vote and declaring the result as provided for in the preceding section, the supervisors for said Fresh Water Supply District shall make and enter an order in their minutes directing the issuance of bonds for such district sufficient in amount to pay for such purposed improvements together with all necessary actual and incidental expenses connected therewith, and not to exceed the amount specified in said order and notice of election. [Id., § 30.]

Art. 5107—210. Same; issue; denominations; interest; maturity.—The bonds issued under the provisions of this Act shall be issued in the name of the Fresh Water Supply District, signed by the president of the board of supervisors and attested by the secretary with the seal of said district affixed thereto and such bonds shall be issued in denominations of not less than one hundred (100.00) Dollars nor more than One Thousand (1000.00) Dollars each, and such bonds shall bear interest at the rate of not to exceed six (6) per cent., payable annually or semi-annually. Such bonds shall by their terms provide the time, place or places, manner and conditions of their payment and the purpose for which they are issued and the interest thereon as may be determined and ordered by the board of supervisors for such Supply District and none of such bonds shall be made payable more forty years after the date thereof. [Id., § 31.]

Art. 5107—211. Same; record of.—When bonds shall be [have] been issued by and on behalf of any Fresh Water Supply District, the supervisors of such district shall procure and deliver to the treasurer of the county in which such district is located, a well bound book in which a list shall be kept of all such bonds with their manner, amount, rate of interest, date of issuance, when due, where payable, amount received for same and the tax levy to pay interest on and to provide a sinking fund for their payment which book shall at all times be opened to the inspection of the parties interested, either as tax payers or bondholders; and upon the payment of any bond, an entry thereof shall be made on such book. The County Treasurer shall receive for his services in recording all these matters the same fees as may be allowed by law to the County Clerk for recording deeds. [Id., § 32.]

Art. 5107—212. Same; determination of validity by Attorney General.—Before any bonds issued by or on behalf of any Fresh Water Supply District are offered for sale there shall be forwarded to the Attorney General a certified copy of all proceedings had in the organization of the district and with reference to the issuance of such bonds in connection with the bonds themselves and such other information with respect thereto as may be required by the Attorney General shall be furnished; and it shall be the duty of the Attorney General to carefully examine said bonds in connection with the record and Constitution and laws of this State governing the issuance of such bonds, and, if, as a result of his examination, the Attorney General shall find that such bonds are issued in conformity with the Constitution and laws of the State and that they are valid and binding obligations upon the district by or on behalf of which they are issued, he shall so officially certify, and until he shall so officially certify, and until registered by the Comptroller as hereinafter required, the said bonds shall be without validity. [Id., § 33.]

Art. 5107—213. Same; registration by Comptroller.—When the bonds of any Fresh Water Supply District have been examined and approved by the Attorney General and his certificate thereto has been issued, they shall be registered by the State Comptroller in a book kept for that purpose and the certificate of the Attorney General as to the validity of such bonds shall be preserved of record. Such bonds after receiving the certificate of the Attorney General, and after having been registered in the Comptroller's Office, as herein provided, shall be held, in every action suit or proceeding in which their validity may be brought into question, prima facie valid; and in every action brought to enforce collection of such bonds and interest thereon, the only available defense against the validity of such bonds shall be forgery or fraud. [Id., § 34.]

Art. 5107—214. Same; sale.—When bonds shall have been issued, approved and registered as provided in this Act, the board of supervisors shall sell said bonds on the best terms and for the best price possible. The supervisors selling said bonds shall promptly pay over to the depository of said district the proceeds of said bonds to be placed to the credit of such district; but none of said bonds shall be sold for less than face value thereof and accrued interest. [Id., § 35.]

Art. 5107—215. Taxes; assessment; mode of.—Immediately after the voting of bonds in any Fresh Water Supply District as provided by this Act, the assessor and collector as hereinbefore provided, shall at once proceed to make an assessment of all of the taxable property, both real, personal and mixed in his district; and such assessment shall be made annually thereafter. Said assessment shall be made upon blanks to be provided by the supervisors for such district. Said assessment shall consist of a full statement of all property owned by the party rendering same in said district and subject to taxation therein and shall state the full value thereof. There shall be attached to each such assessment an affidavit made by the owner or his agent rendering said property for taxation to the effect that said assessment or rendition contains a true and complete statement of all property owned by the party for whom said rendition is made in said district and subject to state and county taxation therein; and in addition to all such assessments or rendition made by the owner or agents of such property, the tax assessor shall make out similar lists of all poerty [property] not rendered for taxation in such district that is subject to State and County taxation. Each and every person, partnership or corporation owning taxable property in such district shall render same for taxation to the assessor when called upon to do so, and if not called upon by the assessor, the owner shall on or before June first of each year, nevertheless, render for taxation all property owned by him in the district subject to taxation.

And all penal laws and penal statutes of this State providing for securing the rendition of property for state and county taxes, and providing penalties for the failure to render such properties shall apply to all persons, partnerships or corporations owning or holding property in any Fresh Water Supply District. The tax assessor shall have authority to administer oaths to fully carry out the provisions of this Section. [Id., § 36.]

Art. 5107—216. Same; levy, assessment and collection; sinking funds.—When the bonds shall have been issued by any Fresh Water Supply District, the board of supervisors of such district shall levy and cause to be assessed and collected taxes upon all property, real and personal and mixed, within such district based upon the full value of each piece of property, which taxes shall be sufficient in amount to pay the interest on such bonds as it shall fall due, and to raise an additional fund which shall create a sinking fund sufficient to redeem and discharge such bonds at maturity; and such taxes shall thereafter be levied annually so long as such bonds, or any of them, are outstanding, sufficient in amount to accomplish the purposes indicated. Sinking funds shall from time to time be invested in such county, municipal, district or other bonds as other sinking funds may by law be invested in, or in bonds of the series to which such funds apply if offered for redemption before maturity upon terms deemed advantageous to the district by its Supervisors. [Id., § 37.]

Art. 5107—217. Maintenance tax; election to determine; levy, assessment and collection.—If at any time it should be deemed necessary by the board of supervisors to vote a maintenance tax in such district, they shall call an election in such district, at which election shall be submitted the question “For a maintenance tax”, “Against a maintenance tax”; the supervisors calling said election shall state the amount of said maintenance tax proposed to be voted and such election shall be called and held and the votes returned and canvassed in the same manner as provided for the issuance of bonds in this act. And when a maintenance tax shall have been voted as herein provided, the supervisors of said district shall thereafter levy and cause to be assessed and collected upon all property, real, personal and mixed of such district based upon the full valuation of same, to an amount not exceeding the specific sum voted, and the vote in such cases may be for a specific sum, or not to exceed a specific sum. The proceeds of such taxes shall be used for the maintenance, upkeep, repairs and additions to the improvements, and the district, or other lawful expense incurred by and on behalf of such district and for no other purposes. The right to levy such taxes shall remain in force until abrogated in whole or in part by another election to be called and held in the same manner as the election for the voting of maintenance taxes; but elections upon the question of repeal or reduction of maintenance taxes shall not be held oftener than every five years; provided, however, that the supervisors of such district may, or may not, levy from time to time the maintenance tax voted if such taxes are not necessary. [Id., § 38.]

Art. 5107—218. Collection of taxes by assessor and collector of district.—All taxes provided for herein including the maintenance and operating taxes shall be collected under the direction of the supervisor by the assessor and collector for such district. He shall keep a true account of all moneys collected and deposit the same as collected in the district depository, and shall file with the secretary of the board of supervisors a true statement of all money collected once a week. He shall use a duplicate receipt book and shall give a true receipt for each collections made, retaining in such book a true copy thereof which shall be preserved as a record of the district. [Id., § 39.]

Art. 5107—219. Board of equalization; number; appointment; meetings; secretary; record; compensation.—The supervisors for each fresh water supply district created under the provisions of this act shall at their first meeting or as soon thereafter as practicable and annually thereafter, appoint three commissioners, each being a qualified voter and resident property owner of said district who shall be styled the "Board of Equalization" and at the same meeting the said Board of Supervisors shall fix the time for the meeting of such Board of Equalization for the first year; and said Board of Equalization shall convene at the time fixed by the Supervisors to receive all assessments, lists or books of the assessor for said District for examination, correction, equalization, appraisalment and approval and at all meetings of said board, the secretary shall keep a permanent record of all proceedings of said board of equalization, and such commissioners shall each receive as compensation for such service not to exceed Five (5) Dollars per day. [Id., § 40.]

Art. 5107—220. Same; oath of members.—Before entering upon the duties as such Board of Equalization, each of the members thereof shall take and subscribe to the following oath:

"I, —— do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will to the best of my ability make a full and complete examination, correction equalization and appraisalment of all property contained within said district, as shown by the assessment list or books of the assessor for said district." and said oath shall be spread upon the minutes to be kept by the secretary of said board. [Id., § 41.]

Art. 5107—221. Same; general powers.—The Board of equalization herein provided for shall cause the assessor to bring before them, at the time fixed for the convening of said board all the assessment lists or books of the assessor of said district for their examination, that they may see that each and every person has rendered his property at its full value; and said board shall have power to send for persons and papers, to swear and qualify persons who testify, to ascertain the value of such property and if they are satisfied it is too high, they shall lower it to its proper value, and if too low, they shall raise the value of such property to the proper figure. Said board shall have power to correct any and all errors that may appear on the assessors list or books and shall have further authority to add any and all property to said list or inventories that may have been omitted therefrom. [Id., § 42.]

Art. 5107—222. Equalization of taxes; complaints; witnesses.—The Board of Equalization shall equalize as near as possible the value of all the property situated within said district having reference to the location of said property and the improvements thereon situated, and any person may file with said board at any time before the final action of said board a complaint as to the assessment of his, or any other persons, property, and said board shall bear said complaint and said complaint shall have the right to have witnesses examined to sustain said complaint as to the assessment of said property, or as to failure to render any property owned by any person, partnership or corporation, situated within said district, subject to taxation which has not been properly assessed. [Id., § 43.]

Art. 5107—223. Same; list of tax payers refusing to make returns.—The assessor for such district, at the same time that he delivers to said board his lists and books shall also furnish to said board a certified list of the names of all persons who either refuse to swear to or to sign the oath or affirmation as required by this law, together with a list of the property of such persons situated within said district as made by him through other information, and said board shall examine the list and appraise the property so listed by the assessor. [Id., § 44.]

Art. 5107—224. Same; raising valuation.—In all cases where the Board of Equalization shall find it their duty to raise the value of any property appearing on the lists or books of the assessor, they shall, after having fully examined such lists or books and corrected all errors appearing thereon adjourn to a day not less than ten nor more than fifteen days from the date of adjournment, such day to be fixed in the order of adjournment, and shall cause the secretary of the board to give written notice to the owner of such property, or to the persons rendering same, of the time to which said board may have adjourned, and that such owner or person may at any time appear and show why the value of such property should not be raised, which notice may be served by depositing the same, properly addressed, and with necessary postage in any post office within the county. [Id., § 45.]

Art. 5107—225. Same; meetings of board; hearings; approval of lists and rolls.—The Board of Equalization shall meet at the time specified in said order of adjournment, and shall hear all persons the value of whose property has been raised, and if said board is satisfied they have raised the value of such property too high, they shall lower the same to its proper value; and said Board of Equalization, after they have finally examined and equalized the value of all the property on the assessor's lists or books, or that they may have been placed thereon by said board of equalization shall approve said lists or books and return them, together with the lists of unrendered property to the assessor, that he may make up therefrom his general rolls as required by this act; and when said general rolls are so made up, the board shall immediately reconvene to examine said rolls, and to approve the same if found correct, and the action of the board at the meeting last provided for in this article shall be final, and shall not be subject to revision by said board or by any other tribunal thereafter. [Id., § 46.]

Art. 5107—226. Compensation of members of board of equalization.—The members of the board of equalization and the secretary of said board, shall each receive such compensation for their services to be allowed by the supervisors of said district, as they may deem just and reasonable, not to exceed however the sum of Five (5) Dollars per day for the time actually engaged in the discharge of such duties. [Id., § 47.]

Art. 5107—227. Taxes; assessment rolls.—After the return to the assessor and collector of the assessment lists or books duly approved by the Board of Equalization, as hereinbefore provided for, the said assessor and collector shall make up the assessment of all taxable property situated in said district upon duplicate rolls, and after the approval of said rolls by the Board of Equalization, one of the same shall be delivered to the Supervisors of said Fresh Water Supply District, to be by them kept as a permanent record in their office, and all lists and books of said assessor shall be caused to be substantially bound and by him kept as a permanent record of his office and be delivered, together with all other records of his office, to his successor, upon his election and qualification or in case of a vacancy in such office to the supervisors of said Fresh Water Supply District. [Id., § 48.]

Art. 5107—228. Same; collection; payments to depository.—The assessor and collector shall collect all taxes due to said Fresh Water Supply District, and shall, at the expiration of each week, pay over to the depository selected by said district, all moneys by him collected, and shall report to the supervisors of such district on the fourth Saturday of every month all moneys so collected by him and paid over to the depository, as hereinbefore provided, and shall perform all such duties and in such manner and according to such rules and regulations as the board of supervisors may prescribe, and for the convenience of the persons, firms or corporations owing such tax, shall keep and maintain an office with the Board of Supervisors for such Fresh Water Supply District where all such taxes may be paid. [Id., § 49.]

Art. 5107—229. Same; charges against and credits to assessor and collector.—The assessor and collector shall be charged by the Supervisor for such Fresh Water Supply District, upon a permanent finance ledger, to be kept for said purpose by said District, with the total assessment as shown by the assessment rolls; and proper credit shall be given to the assessor and collector for all sums of money paid over to the depository as shown by his monthly reports as hereinbefore provided for, and upon the final annual settlement, the said assessor and collector shall make up a full complete report of all taxes that have not been collected, which said report shall be audited by said board of supervisors and proper credits given therefor, and such annual settlements shall be made on the first Monday in May of each year. [Id., § 50.]

Art. 5107—230. Term of office of assessor and collector.—The assessor and collector for said district shall hold office for the term of two years, and until his successor has been elected and qualified; provided, that the assessor and collector first elected to said office shall hold office only until the next general election to be held in said district for the election of officers as provided by this act. [Id., § 51.]

Art. 5107—231. Taxes; assessment; time of making.—The assessment provided for in this Act shall be made upon all property subject to taxation in said district on the first day of January of each year, and such assessment shall be completed and the lists and books ready to deliver on or before the first day of June of each year. [Id., § 52.]

Art. 5107—232. Same; meetings of board of equalization; completion of assessment rolls.—The Board of Equalization after the first year, shall convene annually on the first Monday in June in each year to receive all of the assessment lists or books of the assessor of said district for examination, correction, equalization, appraisal and approval, and for the addition thereto of any property found to be unrendered in said district, and shall complete the examination and equalization of said lists and rolls by the second Monday in June of said year, and shall complete and deliver said rolls to the assessor and collector by the second Monday in July of said year and the said assessment rolls shall be completed by the assessor and approved by the Board of Equalization, and returned to said assessor and collected by the first Monday in September of each year after the first assessment as hereinbefore provided. [Id., § 53.]

Art. 5107—233. Same; when due and payable.—All taxes provided for by this Act shall become due and payable on the first day of October of each year, and shall be paid on or before the 31st day of January thereafter. [Id., § 54.]

Art. 5107—234. Delinquent taxes; lien; sale of land.—All lands or other property which have been returned delinquent or which may hereafter be returned delinquent shall be subject to the provisions of this act, and said taxes shall remain a lien upon said land, although the owner be unknown, or though it be listed in the name of a person not the actual owner, and though the ownership be changed; the land may be sold under the judgment of the Court for all taxes, interest, penalty and costs shown to be due by such assessment for any preceding year. [Id., § 55.]

Art. 5107—235. Same; delinquent tax roll; making and delivery to secretary of district.—It shall be the duty of the Supervisors for such Fresh Water Supply District to cause to be prepared by the tax collector, at the expense of such district, a list of all lands upon which the taxes remain unpaid on the 31st day of January of each year, and such list of lands shall be known as the delinquent tax roll, and such tax roll shall be delivered to the secretary of such district to be by him safely kept as a part of the record to his office. Such delinquent record shall carry a sufficient description to properly identify the land shown to be delinquent therein. Such description may be made by reference to lot or block number. [Id., § 56.]

Art. 5107—236. Same; book record of delinquent tax roll.—Upon receipt of such delinquent tax roll by the Supervisors of said Fresh Water Supply District, the said Supervisors shall cause same to be recorded in a book which shall be labeled "The Delinquent Tax Record of _____ County. Fresh Water Supply District, No. _____" and shall be accompanied by an index showing the name of delinquents in alphabetical order. [Id., § 57.]

Art. 5107—237. Same; publication of delinquent tax record.—Upon the completion of said delinquent tax record by any Fresh Water Supply District, it shall be the duty of the Supervisors thereof to cause the same to be published in some newspaper published in the county in which said district is situated for three consecutive weeks, but if no newspaper is published in the county, such list may be published in a newspaper outside of the county to be designated by such Supervisor, by a contract duly entered into, and a publisher's fee of not to exceed twenty-five cents for each tract of land so advertised; and said publication and any other publication in a newspaper provided for in this Act may be proven by the affidavit of the proprietor of the newspaper in which the publication was made, his foreman or principal clerk, annexed to a copy of the publication, specifying the time when and the paper in which the publication was made. [Id., § 58.]

Art. 5107—238. Same; suit to collect; petition.—Twenty days after the publication of such notice, or as soon thereafter as practicable, the supervisors for such Fresh Water Supply District shall employ an attorney to bring suit in the name of the Fresh Water Supply District in the district court of said county for the purpose of collecting all taxes, interest, penalty and costs due upon said land. Said petition shall describe all lands upon which taxes and penalties shall remain unpaid and the total amount of taxes and penalties due thereon with interest computed thereon to the time fixed for the sale of said land at the rate of six per cent. per annum, and shall pray for a judgment for said amount, and for the fixing, establishing and foreclosing of the lien existing against said land; that said lands be sold to satisfy said judgment for all taxes, interest, penalty and costs, and for such other relief to which such district may be entitled under the law and facts. [Id., § 59.]

Art. 5107—239. Same; suit to collect; parties; process; order of sale.—The proper persons shall be made parties defendants in all such suits, and shall be served with process and other proceedings due therein as provided by law for suits of like character in the district court of this State, and in case of foreclosure, order of sale shall issue to the lands sold thereunder as in other cases for foreclosures; but if the defendant or his attorneys at any time before the sale, file with the sheriff or other officer in whose hands any such order of sale shall be placed, a written request that the property described therein shall be divided and sold in less tracts than whole, together with a description of such subdivision, then such officer shall sell the lands in said subdivision as the defendant may request, provided same are reasonable, and in such case, shall sell only as many subdivisions as may be necessary to satisfy the judgment, interest, and penalties and cost, and after the payment of the taxes, interest and penalties and costs adjudged against it, the remainder of the purchase price, if any, shall be paid by the sheriff, or other officer executing said order of sale, to the defendant, or his attorney of record. [Id., § 60.]

Art. 5107—240. Same; tax deed on sale.—In all cases in which lands may be sold for default, in the payment of taxes under the preceding section, it shall be lawful for the sheriff, or other officer, selling the same, or any of his successors in office, to make a deed or deeds to the purchaser, or to any other person to whom the purchaser may direct the deed to be made, and any such deed shall be held in any court of law or equity in this state to vest a good and perfect title in the purchaser thereof, subject to be impeached only for actual fraud. [Id., § 61.]

Art. 5107—241. Same; suit to collect; compensation of attorney, etc.—The attorney representing such district in all suits against delinquent tax payers that are provided for in this act shall receive for such service such compensation as may be allowed by the supervisors for such Fresh Water Supply District; provided, however, that in no event shall said fees exceed fifteen per cent. of the amount of the taxes so collected. The sheriffs, district clerks, and other officers executing any writ or performing any service in the foreclosure of delinquent taxes on any land situated in such Fresh Water Supply District, shall receive the same fees for such service as is provided by statute as fees for like services performed in connection with the discharge of the duty of their respective offices. [Id., § 62.]

Art. 5107—242. Same; penalty; collection.—If any person shall fail or refuse to pay the taxes imposed upon him or his property by this act until after the 31st day of January next succeeding the return of the assessment roll for said Fresh Water Supply District, a penalty of ten per cent. on the entire amount of such tax shall accrue, which penalty, when collected, shall be paid over to such District. And the collector of taxes shall by virtue of his tax roll seize and levy upon and sell so much personal property as shall be sufficient to make the amount of such taxes, together with the penalty above provided, interest thereon at the rate of six per cent. per annum, and all costs accruing thereon. If no personal property be found for seizure and sale as above provided, the collector shall make up and file with the Secretary of the District the delinquent tax list hereinbefore provided for, charging against same all taxes, penalties and interest assessed against the owner thereof. [Id., § 63.]

Art. 5107—243. Same; redemption from sale.—Any delinquent tax payer whose lands have been returned delinquent, or any one having an interest therein, may redeem the same at any time before his lands are sold, under the provisions of this act, by paying to the collector the taxes due thereon, with interest at the rate of six per cent, and all costs and the penalty of ten per cent. as provided for in this Act. [Id., § 64.]

Art. 5107—244. Accounts and records of supervisors.—The Supervisors of Fresh Water Supply Districts shall keep a true account of all their meetings and proceedings, and shall preserve all contracts, records of notices, duplicate vouchers, duplicate receipts, and all accounts and records of whatever kind, in a fire proof vault or safe, and same shall be the property of the district, and shall be delivered to their successors in office. [Id., § 65.]

Art. 5107—245. District depository; selection; laws applicable to.—The Supervisors of such Supply District shall select a depository for such district under the same provisions as now provided for the selection of the depositories for the counties within this State; and the duties of such depositories shall be the same as now prescribed by law for county depositories. In the selection of depositories, the Supervisors of such Supply District shall act in the same capacity and perform the same duties as are incumbent upon the county judge and members of the commissioners' court in the selection of the county depositories; and all laws now in force or hereinafter to be enacted for the government of county depositories, shall apply to and become a part of this Act. [Id., § 66.]

Art. 5107—246. Same; reports and vouchers.—The Fresh Water Supply District depository shall make a report of all moneys received and of all moneys paid out at the end of each month and file such reports with such vouchers among the records of such district in its own vault, and shall furnish a true copy thereof to the district supervisors and shall when called upon, allow same to be inspected by any tax payer, or resident of such district; such record shall be preserved as the property of such district and shall be delivered to the successor of such depository. [Id., § 67.]

Art. 5107—247. Office and meetings of supervisors.—The supervisors of each Fresh Water Supply District shall have and maintain a regular office suitable for conducting the affairs of such district within such Supply District and such supervisors shall hold regular meetings at said office, on the first Monday in February, May, August and November of each year, at ten o'clock A. M., and shall hold such regular and special meetings as they may see fit, any tax payer or resident or interested party may attend any such meeting, but shall not participate in same without the consent of the supervisors and may present to said supervisors such matters as they desire in an orderly manner. [Id., § 68.]

Art. 5107—248. Meetings of supervisors; vouchers; books of accounts.—All meetings of the supervisors shall be held at the regular office of the district. All vouchers issued for the payment of any funds of the district shall be signed by at least three supervisors and shall refer to the book and page of the minutes allowing such act. All vouchers shall be issued from a regular duplicate book, retaining a duplicate which shall be preserved. The supervisor shall have kept a complete book of accounts for such district, and shall on June 1st of each year select a competent auditor who shall examine the accounts, books and reports of the depository, the assessor and collector and supervisors, and make full report thereon, copy of which shall be filed with the depository, and a copy with the supervisors, and one with the county clerk of the county in which such district is situated. Such reports shall be filed by September 1st of each year, and such reports shall show in detail for what purposes the money from each fund has been expended. [Id., § 69.]

Art. 5107—249. Bonds of officers and employés of district.—The officers and employés of any Fresh Water Supply District who may be required to give bond or security, may furnish bonds of surety companies to be approved by the District Supervisors, provided, however, that when such a surety company bond is furnished by any such officer or employé, the surety company furnishing the same shall file for record in the office of the county clerk in the county wherein such district was created, a duly executed power of attorney showing the authority of the person signing such bond for such company to sign same, and said power of attorney shall be duly executed by the officers of said company and have attached the company's seal; and such power of attorney shall remain on file in said office. All such official bonds shall be deposited with the district depository and be preserved by it as the property of said district. [Id., § 70.]

Art. 5107—250. Vacancies in office of assessor and collector.—The supervisors for any district created under this act shall have authority to fill all vacancies in the office of assessor by appointment, and the person so appointed shall hold his office until the next regular election held under this act, and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. [Id., § 71.]

Art. 5107—251. Vacancies in office of supervisor; how filled.—All vacancies in the office of supervisors shall be filled by the Board of Supervisors by appointment, and the supervisor so appointed shall hold office until the next regular election, and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified; provided, however, that where the number of supervisors shall have been reduced by death or resignation, or other cause, to less than two, then such vacancies shall be filled by special election to be ordered by the remaining member of said board of supervisors, said election to be ordered and held after the giving of notice for the election of said officers as provided for the holding of general elections; and further provided that if said remaining member shall fail or refuse to order such election, or if there be no remaining member on said board, then said election shall be ordered by the county judge of the county within which such district is situated, upon a petition signed by five persons interested in the election of said supervisors, whether said interested persons be tax-payers or bond-holders and when so ordered, notice shall be given of said election, and such election held in the manner provided for the holding of general elections, and the supervisors elected at such election shall hold their office until the next general election, and until their successors shall have been elected and qualified. In the event that less than a quorum exists to approve the bonds of such elected supervisors, then such bonds shall be approved by the County Commissioners' Court of such county. [Id., § 72.]

Art. 5107—252. Terms of office of district officers.—The term of office of all officers elected for such district shall be for two years and until their successors are elected and qualified; provided, however, that all officers elected at the first election held under the provisions of this Act shall hold office only until the next regular election to be held in said district for the election of officers. [Id., § 73.]

Art. 5107—253. Election of supervisors and assessor and collector.—There shall be held on the first Tuesday in January, 1921, and every two years thereafter, a general election, at which time there shall be elected five supervisors for such districts and one assessor and collector who shall be the elective officers for such districts. [Id., § 74.]

Art. 5107—254. Compensation of supervisors.—The Supervisors provided for by this Act shall each receive as compensation for their services a sum not to exceed Ten ($10.00) Dollars for each and every day necessarily taken in the discharge of their duties as such supervisors, and said supervisors shall file with the secretary of such district a statement verified by their affidavit of the number of days actually taken by them in the service of said district, said statement to be filed on the last Saturday of each month, or as nearly thereafter as practicable, and before a warrant shall be issued for the payment of such service. [Id. § 75.]

Art. 5107—255. Compensation of other officers, etc.—For all service performed by any officer or individual under this act, the compensation for which is not expressly provided for, such officer or individual shall receive the same compensation as he would for like service if rendered as an officer for the county. Clerks recording orders hereunder shall receive the same compensation as would a county clerk for recording deeds, and persons posting notices hereunder shall receive the same compensation as would a sheriff for posting notices as would by law be required by him for posting notices officially. [Id., § 76.]

Art. 5107—256. Contracts for work; letting; notice of; making of contract.—Contracts for the making and construction of all improvements contemplated in this Act and all necessary work in connection with such improvement district, when the cost price exceeds $10,000.00 shall be let to the lowest responsible bidder furnishing satisfactory evidence of possessing equipment and facilities essential to the proper performance of such contract; after giving notice by advertising the same in one or more newspapers in general circulation in the State of Texas, which notice shall be published once a week for ten (10) days, and also by posting a notice for at least ten (10) days at the courthouse door of the county within which the district lies.

Such contract shall be reduced to writing and signed by the contractors and supervisors, and a copy of same so executed shall be filed with the District Depository subject to the inspection of all parties interested. [Id., § 77.]

Art. 5107—257. Bond of contractor.—The person, firm or corporation or association to whom such contract is let shall give bond to the district in such amount as the board of supervisors may determine, not to exceed the contract price conditioned that he, they, or it will faithfully perform the obligations, agreements and covenants of such contract, and that in default thereof they will pay the said District all damages sustained by reason thereof; such bond shall be approved by the supervisors and shall be deposited with the depository of the district, a true copy thereof being retained in the office of the secretary of the board of supervisors. [Id., § 78.]

Art. 5107—258. Work under contracts; how done; supervision.—All work included in the contract shall be done in accordance with the specifications under the supervision of the supervisors and district engineer. As the work progresses the engineer of such district shall make report to the supervisors showing in detail whether the contract is being complied with, and when the work is completed, he shall make a detailed report of same to the supervisors showing whether or not the contract has been fully complied with according to its terms, and if not in what particular it has not been complied with. [Id., § 79.]

Art. 5107—259. Inspection, etc., of work; partial payments on contracts.—The supervisors shall during the progress of the work under any contract, inspect the same, and upon the completion of any work in accordance with the contract, they shall draw a warrant on the depository of the district for the unpaid amount of the contract price, in favor of the contractor, and if the Supervisors shall deem it advisable, they may enter into a contract to be paid in partial payments as the work progresses; but such partial payments shall not exceed in the aggregate, eighty per cent of the amount of work done, the said amount of work completed to be shown by certified report of the engineer of the district. [Id., § 80.]

Art. 5107—260. Seal of districts.—Fresh Water Supply Districts created under this Act shall have a common seal which shall be circular in form, with the name of the District within the circle and a star of five points in the center. [Id., § 81.]

Art. 5107—261. Engineer; powers and duties.—After the establishment of any such Fresh Water Supply District, and after the qualification of the Board of Supervisors, the Board of Supervisors for such district may appoint an engineer whose duty shall be to make maps and profile of the several canals, reservoirs, aqueducts, conduits, pipe lines, pumping plants and all other works in such district and connected therewith, and shall also show any part of said canals, reservoirs, aqueducts, conduits, pipe lines, pumping plants or other works extending beyond the limits of such district. And to do such other and further work connected with such district as may be directed by the Board of Supervisors. Such engineer to receive a salary not to exceed Thirty-six Hundred ($3600.00) Dollars per year as may be fixed by the Board of Supervisors for such District; provided said engineer may adopt other maps, plats and surveys of the correctness of which he may be satisfied. [Id., § 82.]

Art. 5107—262. Interest and sinking fund; how constituted; payments from.—There is hereby created what shall be termed the “interest and Sinking Fund” for such district, and all taxes collected under the provisions of this Act shall be credited to such fund, and shall never be paid out, except for the purpose of satisfying and discharging the interest on said bonds or for the cancellation and surrender of such bonds and to defray the expenses of assessing and collecting such tax and such funds shall be paid out upon orders of the supervisors for such district upon warrants drawn therefor, as hereinbefore provided, and at the time of such payment the depository for said district shall receive and cancel any interest coupons so paid or any bonds so satisfied or discharged, and when such interest coupon or bond shall be turned over to the Supervisors, the account of such depository shall be credited with the amount thereof, and such bond or interest coupon shall be canceled and destroyed. [Id., § 83.]

Art. 5107—263. Maintenance and operating fund; how constituted; payments from.—There shall also be created a fund known as the “Maintenance and Operating Fund”, and such fund shall consist of all moneys collected by assessment or otherwise for the maintenance and operation of the properties purchased or constructed or otherwise acquired by such district and out of this fund shall be paid the salaries of all officers other than the assessor and collector and of all employés of every kind whatsoever, and all expenses of operation of every kind, such debts to be paid upon a warrant executed as otherwise provided herein. [Id., § 84.]

For section 85 of this act, see Penal Code, art. 122b.

Art. 5107—264. Depository to act as treasurer, when.—The Depository of each Fresh Water Supply District when designated as provided in this act, shall perform the services as treasurer of the district, and shall execute a bond as such treasurer as may be required by the supervisors. [Id., § 86.]

Art. 5107—265. Costs of creation of district.—The Board of Supervisors are hereby authorized to pay all necessary costs and expenses necessarily incurred in the creation and organization of any Fresh Water Supply District, and reimburse any person, corporation, or association for money advanced for such purposes, such payment to be made for money obtained from the sale of bonds. [Id., § 87.]

Art. 5107—266. Acts not affected.—Provided, however, this Act shall in no manner repeal or affect the several Acts of the Legislature, providing other or different methods of organization and operating, conservation districts; and provided further that nothing in this Act shall be construed as repealing or in any manner affecting any laws providing for the reclamation of the overflow and swamp lands of this state, and the duties and powers of the State Reclamation Engineer as heretofore provided by law. [Id., § 88.]

Improvement District or Levee Improvement District may become Conservation and Reclamation District. 5107—276. Laws governing districts.

Article 5107—267. Purposes of; manner of establishment.—Conservation and Reclamation Districts may be created and organized in any manner that Water Improvement districts, Drainage Districts, or Levee Improvement Districts are now authorized by the laws of this State to be created, and for the several purposes therein provided. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 25, § 1.]

Took effect March 21, 1918.

Constitutionality.—This act is not unconstitutional because permitting taxation of other than real property within levee district to pay cost of improvement, and is not violative of article 16, § 59, conservation amendment, requiring that taxes for district indebtedness authorized shall be equally distributed. Dallas County Levee Dist. No. 2 v. Looney, 109 Tex. 326, 207 S. W. 310.

This act is not unconstitutional as an attempt to amend Acts 34th Leg. c. 146 (Supp. 1918, art. 5530 et seq.), the levee improvement district act, by reference to its title. Id.

Repeal.—The Laney Act (Art. 5584½ et seq.) providing for creation of conservation districts under Const. art. 16, § 59, did not, by implication, repeal this act. Dallas County Levee Dist. No. 2 v. Looney, 109 Tex. 326, 207 S. W. 310.

Art. 5107—268. Water Improvement Districts, Drainage Districts, or Levee Improvement Districts may become.—Any Water Improvement District, Drainage District, or Levee Improvement District heretofore organized or hereafter organized or hereafter to be organized under the laws of this State, as Defined Districts, under Section 52 of article 3 of the Constitution, may avail itself of the benefits of Section 59 of Article 16 of the Constitution, and thereby become a Conservation and Reclamation District without change of name. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 5107—269. Incurring indebtedness and levy of taxes.—Any Conservation and Reclamation District hereafter organized under this Act, and any Water Improvement District, Drainage District or Levee Improvement District which may be constituted a Conservation and Reclamation District under this Act, may incur indebtedness and levy taxes to fully carry out each and all of the purposes of its organization, and for the payment of its obligations and the maintenance and operation of said district. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5107—270. Same; limitations removed.—All limitations of indebtedness authorized to be incurred and taxes to be levied, imposed by Section 52 of Article 3 of the Constitution, and any and all laws under which any such district has been or may be organized, are removed as to all districts which may become Conservation and Reclamation Districts under the terms of this Act. [Id., § 4.]

sult.—Any Water Improvement District, or Irrigation District heretofore or hereafter organized under the laws of this State may become and be made a Conservation and Reclamation District, as herein provided, in the following manner: When a petition signed by twenty per cent of the owners of land in such district, praying therefor, is presented to the Directors, they shall order an election to be held to determine such issue, such election to be conducted as provided for general elections in such districts. The ballots shall have printed thereon the following: "For Conservation and Reclamation." The Directors shall canvass the returns and declare the result of such election, and have recorded in the deed records of the county or counties in which such district is situated a full copy of the order declaring the result of such election; and when such order is in favor of so making such district a Conservation and Reclamation District, it shall become such district without change of name or impairment of its obligations, upon the result of such election being declared and recorded as herein provided. [Id., § 5.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 5a of this act, added by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 12, § 3, relating solely to Water Improvement Districts, was repealed by Acts 1921, 37th Leg. ch. 13, § 136. See ante, art. 5107—50a.

Art. 5107—272. Laws governing districts.—Any Conservation and Reclamation District organized for the purpose for which Water Improvement Districts and Irrigation Districts have heretofore been organized, or any Water Improvement District or Irrigation District becoming a Conservation and Reclamation District under the terms hereof, shall be governed and controlled by the provisions of Chapter 87, Acts of the Thirty-fifth Legislature, Regular Session, and amendments thereof, except as herein otherwise provided. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 25, § 6; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 12, § 1.]

Art. 5107—273. Drainage District may become Conservation and Reclamation District.—Any drainage district heretofore organized or hereafter to be organized under the laws of this State, may, by a petition in writing to the Commissioners' Court, on hearing before such Court, as provided for in Sections 2, 3, and 4, Chapter 118, Acts of the Thirty-second Legislature, passed at its regular session in 1911, and prior laws and amendments thereof, upon the order of said Court to that effect entered of record, become such conservation and reclamation district without change of name or impairment of its obligations. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 25, § 7; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 12, § 2.]

Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 5107—274. Laws governing districts.—Any Conservation and Reclamation District organized for the purpose for which Drainage Districts have heretofore been organized under Chapter 4, Title 47, of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911, and amendments thereof, and prior laws relating to the same subject, and any such Drainage Districts becoming a Conservation and Reclamation District under the terms of this law shall be governed and controlled by the provisions of Chapter 4 of Title 47 of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911 and amendments thereof, except as herein otherwise provided. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 25, § 8.]

Art. 5107—275. Improvement District or Levee Improvement District may become Conservation and Reclamation District.—Any Improvement District or Levee Improvement District heretofore organized or hereafter to be organized under the laws of this State, may, by a petition in writing to the Commissioners' Court, on hearing before such Court, as provided in Sections 2, 3, 5, and 6, of Chapter 146, Acts of the Thirty-fourth Legislature, upon order of said Court to that effect, entered of record, become such Conservation and Reclamation District without change of name or impairment of its obligation. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 5107—276. Laws governing districts.—Any Conservation and Reclamation District organized for the purposes for which levee improvement districts have heretofore been organized under Chapter 146, Acts of the Thirty-fourth Legislature, Regular Session, 1915, and prior laws relating to the same subject, or amendments thereof, or any levee improvement district becoming a Conservation and Reclamation District under the terms of this Act, shall be governed and controlled by the provisions of Chapter 146, Acts of the Thirty-fourth Legislature, Regular Session, and amendments thereof, except as herein otherwise provided. [Id., § 10.]

CHAPTER SIX

POWER PLANTS

Art.

5107—277. Districts operating under contract with United States may acquire, construct, lease or control power plants; issue of bonds.

Art.

5107—278. Co-operation with other districts obtaining water under laws of another state election; contract; construction of works; joint manager.

5107—279. Application of law.

Article 5107—277. Districts operating under contract with United States may acquire, construct, lease or control power plants; issue of bonds.—Any water improvement district or conservation and reclamation district operating under contract with the United States, may provide for the purchase, acquisition, construction, operation, lease or control of plants for the generation, distribution, sale and lease of electrical energy, including the sale to municipalities, corporations, firms or individuals of electrical power, generated within or without said district, or the sale or lease of power privileges incident to or forming a part of the reservoirs, canals or other works owned, constructed or operated by or for such district, and for the purpose of obtaining funds with which to construct or acquire the power plants, transmission lines and other works necessary or useful for the development, transmission, distribution, sale or lease of such power, may borrow money in the name of such district, and issue bonds therefor, which bonds shall be secured by a lien upon the water power or energy and power privileges incident to such irrigation and drainage project, and also by a lien upon the power plant, transmission lines, and all of the physical properties necessary for, or used in the creation, transmission, distribution and market of such power or energy, but such bonds shall not be a lien upon the lands or other property owned by individual irrigators or water users under such project. Such bonds may be issued in the manner and subject to all of the regulations, terms, conditions and provisions of other bonds authorized to be issued under the terms of Chapter 87 of the General Laws of the Regular Session of the Thirty-fifth Legislature [Art. 5107—1 et seq.], and of the acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, except as in this section otherwise provided. The board of directors of any such district shall estimate and determine the amount of money necessary to be raised, or the amount of indebtedness necessary to be assumed for such purpose or purposes, and may include in such amount a sum sufficient to pay the first four years' interest on such indebtedness. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 94, § 1.]

Art. 5107—278. Co-operation with other districts obtaining water under laws of another state; election; contract; construction of works; joint manager.—Whenever any water improvement or conservation and reclamation district in this State, operating under contract with the United States, shall obtain water from the same source from which water is obtained by any such district or similar district or districts, organized for irrigation or drainage purposes, under the laws of any other State, the water improvement district or conservation and reclamation district organized under the laws of this State shall be, and it is hereby authorized to jointly own, acquire, construct and operate irrigation works, reservoirs and drainage works, in cooperation with such district or districts obtaining water from the same source of supply, which may be located within another State, under the terms and conditions to be set out in a written contract, and the provisions of the preceding Section, relating to the development, transmission, distribution, sale and lease of electrical power and energy, in the manner in said Section provided, shall be applicable to any such district in this Section referred to. Any such contract shall not be binding until the same shall have been ratified by a majority vote of the legally qualified voters of such district, situated within this State. Such contract shall be printed or in writing, and a true copy thereof shall be filed in the office of such district in Texas fifteen (15) days prior to such election, and shall be subject to public inspection.

Whenever works or improvements are to be constructed or acquired, bids may be jointly called for and may be opened and considered at the designated office of either of such districts, and the officers of such district in Texas may execute such contract, and may hold meetings to consider the execution thereof, and the approval of the contractor's bond, and all matters pertaining to or incident to such contract, at any office established for such joint project, and at which office all business of such joint project may be transacted.

The action of each district being determined by its board of directors, a general manager may be employed for such joint enterprise, whose duties may be set forth in the joint ownership contract. The terms and conditions of such joint ownership or construction contracts shall not conflict with the provisions of the law providing for the organization and conduct of districts, except as herein provided, but may include provisions for joint construction and operation, and such contracts may be amended from time to time, in the same manner. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 5107—279. Application of law.—The provisions of this Act shall apply only to districts operating under contract with the United States. [Id., § 3.]

Article 5114. [3138] [3009] Who are competent jurors.

Cited, Boren v. State, 23 Tex. App. 28, 4 S. W. 463.

Art. 5115. [3139] [3010] Who are disqualified, in general.

See notes under arts. 692-695, Code Cr. Proc.

Cited, Hunter v. State, 30 Tex. App. 314, 17 S. W. 414.

Foreign birth.—Under this article, Code Crim. Proc. art. 687, and Const. art. 6, § 1, persons who have legally declared their intention of becoming citizens are not, by reason of their foreign birth, disqualified to act as jurors. Abrigo v. State, 29 Tex. App. 143, 15 S. W. 408.

Prior service.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 3010, disqualifying a juror who has served for six days within a certain time, one who has served five days is not disqualified, and it was prejudicial error to dismiss him on a challenge by the state for incompetency, though the defendant did not exhaust his peremptory challenges. Monk v. State, 27 Tex. App. 450, 11 S. W. 460.

Art. 5117. [3141] [3012] Jurors disqualified to try a particular case.

Cited, Couts v. Neer, 70 Tex. 468, 9 S. W. 40; Hunter v. State, 30 Tex. App. 314, 17 S. W. 414.

Discretion of court.—Rev. St. 1879, art. 3080, which authorizes the court to sustain a challenge to a juror when, in its opinion, he is unfit to sit in the case, clothes the trial judge with a discretion which will not be reviewed on appeal unless it is shown that the party complaining has been deprived of an impartial jury; and hence, where neither party exhausted its peremptory challenges the trial court's ruling excusing a juror because he is in defendant's employ will not be disturbed on appeal, though the relation of master and servant is not one of the grounds of disqualification specified in art. 3012. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Thornsberry (Sup.) 17 S. W. 521.

The question whether jurors were prejudiced against the defendant and concealed that fact is primarily within the sound discretion of the trial court, and its action in denying new trial for misconduct of jury will not be revised where it does not clearly appear that the rights of the parties have been disregarded. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Gonzales (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 162.

Complaint of action of trial court in compelling plaintiffs, after they had exhausted their peremptory challenges, to accept a juror, shown to be a customer of defendant bank for many years, will not be sustained; it not appearing that trial judge abused his discretion. Washington v. Austin Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 332.

Though the trial court has discretion to determine whether a juror is disqualified for a cause which the statute does not declare a disqualification, it has no discretion where the juror has a bias which under the statute disqualifies him. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 709.

Interest in litigation.—Juror who was one of sureties on garnishment bond executed by plaintiff had no such interest in litigation as to preclude him from serving, suit involving plaintiff, defendant, garnishee, and several interveners. Wise v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 977.

In action against city that veniremen are taxpayers of the city does not disqualify them; their interest being too remote. Moore v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 870.

In a personal injury suit that juror was engaged in preparing for injured persons their suits against railroads was not ground for challenge for cause when he stated that he had no interest in instant case and could decide case impartially, record not showing that he was interested in any suit against defendant. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Whatley (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 968.

Bias or prejudice.—The law exacts that a fair and impartial jury shall pass upon the merits of cases. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Gonzales (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 162.

Where a juror was an employé of a railroad which was a constituent of defendant railroad, and stated on his voir dire examination that a large verdict against defendant might affect his employment but that he could rise above such influence and render a fair verdict, held, that overruling of challenge for cause was not error; the juror not sitting in the case. Sellers v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 397.

A juror who stated on his examination that he had a bias for defendant is absolutely disqualified as a juror by this article, notwithstanding his further statement that he could disregard his feeling; "bias" being defined as a particular influential power which sways the judgment. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Elmore (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 709.

Formation and expression of opinion as to cause.—Where a juror stated he had an opinion which it would take evidence to remove, but record does not show whom the opinion favored, and juror said he would disregard the opinion, and appellant did not take advantage of a peremptory challenge, there was no error in refusing a challenge for cause. Horn v. Price (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 590.

Personal opinions and scruples.—See notes under art. 692, Code Cr. Proc.

Other disqualifications.—Act of juror in inspecting diamond, identity of which was in question, showing him to be possessed of superior knowledge of facts helpful in disclosing truth, cannot be held disqualification. Hall v. Collier (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 880.

Evidence.—Testimony of a juror who had been accepted and sat as a juror held to show that he was qualified. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Broughton (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 664.

Art. 5118. [3142] [3013] Who are liable to jury service; who are exempt from jury service.

See Owens v. State, 25 Tex. App. 552, 8 S. W. 658.

CHAPTER TWO

JURY COMMISSIONERS FOR THE DISTRICT COURT, APPOINTMENT, QUALIFICATION, ETC.

Art.
5127. Failure of commissioners, etc.

Art.
5131a. Compensation.

Article 5127. [3150] [3022] Failure of commissioners, etc.

See Daniel v. Bridges, 73 Tex. 149, 11 S. W. 121.

Appointment of commissioners on deficiency of jurors.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 3022, if in term of a district court there should be a deficiency of jurors, it is discretionary with the court to appoint jury commissioners to make selection of jurymen, and for this purpose it may utilize the services of the jury commissioners already appointed to select jurors for the next term. Williams v. State, 24 Tex. App. 32, 5 S. W. 658.

Ordering sheriff to summon jurors.—Under Rev. St. 1879, arts. 3027, 3029, and art. 3022, defendant cannot demand that jury commissioners be appointed to select the jury by which he is to be tried, merely because he believes the sheriff is prejudiced against him. Johnson v. State, 31 Cr. R. 456, 20 S. W. 985.

Art. 5131a. Compensation.—Each jury commissioner of either the district court or the county court shall receive as compensation for his services the sum of Three Dollars for each day and each fraction of a day that he may serve as a jury commissioner in said court. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 26, § 2.]

CHAPTER THREE

JURY COMMISSIONERS FOR THE COUNTY COURT, APPOINTMENT, QUALIFICATIONS, ETC.

Art. 5132. Jury commissioners for the county court, etc.	Art. 5134. To select jurors for six months.
---	--

Article 5132. [3155] [3027] Jury commissioners for the county court, etc.

Cited, Johnson v. State, 31 Cr. R. 456, 20 S. W. 985.

Same persons as jury commissioners for both county and district courts.—If they see fit for reasons of convenience or otherwise, the county and district judges may appoint the same persons to act as jury commissioners for both of those tribunals. Donegan v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 166.

Where for motives of convenience the county court, which did not ordinarily try cases at the April term, requested that jury commissioners appointed by the district judge draw a panel for the county court, but such commissioners were not sworn to act as jury commissioners for the county court, though they took a similar oath in the district court, the panel for the county court was illegal, and a conviction had on trial before such jury will not stand, although the defendant was not injured, for trial by jury stands on a higher plane than expediency, and a defendant is entitled to have the jury selected in the manner prescribed by law. Id.

Art. 5134. [3157] [3029] To select jurors for six months.

Cited, Johnson v. State, 31 Cr. R. 456, 20 S. W. 985.

CHAPTER FOUR

PROCEEDINGS OF THE JURY COMMISSIONERS IN THE SELECTION OF JURORS

Art. 5135. Selection of jurors, etc.	Art. 5137. Special venire list.
5136. Drawing of jurors, how conducted.	5138. Lists to be certified, etc.

Article 5135. [3158] [3030] Selection of jurors, etc.

See Taylor v. State, 87 Cr. R. 330, 221 S. W. 611.

In general.—That the jury in a prosecution in the county court heard in April was not drawn at the January term, as provided by statute, will not make the jury illegal. Donegan v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 166.

Art. 5136. [3159] [3031] Drawing of jurors, how conducted.

See Taylor v. State, 87 Cr. R. 330, 221 S. W. 611.

Art. 5137. [3159a] Special venire list.

See Taylor v. State, 87 Cr. R. 330, 221 S. W. 611; notes under arts. 655-672, Code Cr. Proc.

Art. 5138. [3160] [3032] Lists to be certified, etc.

Heading list incorrectly does not show envelope incorrectly indorsed.—Defendant's motion to quash the special venire was based upon the fact that the several lists were headed "Lists of Jurors for the April Term," instead of properly, the May term. The bill of exceptions did not show, nor did it otherwise appear, that the envelopes inclosing said lists were not properly indorsed. Held that, this article does not require the "headings of the lists" to be indorsed in like manner as the envelopes, the presumption obtained in favor of the proper return of the lists. Giebel v. State, 28 Tex. App. 151, 12 S. W. 591.

CHAPTER FIVE A

INTERCHANGEABLE JURIES

Art.
5158 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. Use of jurors impaneled; additional jurors.

5158 $\frac{1}{2}$ f. Placing names on the general panel.

Article 5158 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. Use of jurors impaneled; additional jurors.—Said jurors, when impaneled, shall constitute a general panel for the week, for service as jurors in all the county and district courts in said county, and shall be used interchangeably in all of the said courts. In the event of a deficiency of said jurors at any given time to meet the requirement of all said courts, the judge having control of said general panel for the week shall order such additional jurors to be drawn from the wheel as may be sufficient to meet such emergency, but such jurors shall act only as special jurors and shall be discharged as soon as their services are no further needed. Resort to the wheel shall be had in all cases to fill out the general panel, except where waived by the parties or their attorneys; provided that by written agreement entered into by all parties to any cause or suit, or the attorneys of record in such suit or cause filed therein, the sheriff or other officer in attendance upon said court, may summon the jury needed, or any part of same, in such cause or suit by talesmen, without resorting to the jury wheel, and in such cause or suit said jurors so selected shall be paid as if regularly drawn from the jury wheel. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 78, § 5; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 59, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The title of the act is as follows: "An act to amend section 5, chapter 78, page 147-148 and 149, passed at the regular session of the Thirty-fifth Legislature, known as the interchangeable jury law, so as to hereafter read as follows; and declaring an emergency." Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Art. 5158 $\frac{1}{2}$ f. Placing names on the general panel.—The names of the Jurors shall be placed upon the general panel in the order in which they are drawn from the wheel, and jurors shall be assigned for service from the top thereof in the order in which they shall be needed, and jurors returned to the general panel after service in any one of the Courts, shall be enrolled at the bottom of the list in the order of their respective return, provided however, that the trial judge, upon the demand of any party to any case reached for trial by jury, or of the attorney for any such party, shall cause the names of all the members of the general panel available for service as jurors in such case, to be placed in a hat or other receptacle and well shaken and said trial Judge shall draw therefrom the names of a sufficient number of jurors from which a jury may be selected to try such case, and such names shall be transcribed in the order drawn on the jury list from which the jury is to be selected to try such case. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 78, § 7; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 6, § 1.]

Art. 5164. [3178] [3050] Sheriff's return.

Time for objecting to return.—Objections to sheriff's return of service of jurors selected by jury commissioners, as not stating facts showing diligence, or reasons why certain jurors were not summoned, should be made in time to invoke the court's action, when it would not require discharge of a portion of a panel from which cases have been tried. Leahy v. Timon (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1029.

Article 5167. [3181] [3053] If practicable, to be of jurors selected by jury commissioners.

In general.—Where sheriff's return shows that, although he served some jurors selected by jury commissioners for certain week of court, he did not serve the remainder, because "not found after due diligence and search," the court, at the beginning of such week, on finding that sufficient number of jurors are not in attendance, is not required to try question of diligence of sheriff before causing sufficient jurors to be summoned to make up suitable panel for week, but may complete his panel as provided by this and the following article. Leahy v. Timon (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1029.

Art. 5168. [3182] [3054] May be filled up, how.

Art. 5170. [3184] [3056] Oath to be administered to the sheriff, etc.

Oath once taken during term is sufficient.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 3056, an oath once taken during the term is sufficient, and need not be repeated at each time it becomes his duty to so summon talesmen. Blanton v. Mayes, 72 Tex. 417, 10 S. W. 452.

Swearing deputy sheriff.—In a prosecution for aggravated assault, that a deputy sheriff was sent out after talesmen when the list of regular jurors was exhausted without then being sworn presented no error, when the only objection raised was that the officer was not sworn at the time he was sent out; it not appearing that he had not been sworn during the term and anterior to the trial. Knight v. State, 87 Cr. R. 134, 220 S. W. 333.

Article 5173. [3187] [3059] Right of trial by jury to remain inviolate, subject, etc.

Right to jury trial.—San Antonio ordinance of August 27, 1917, regulating automobiles used for hire, is not invalid as depriving any person of the right of trial by jury. Craddock v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 634.

Intervening landowners in receivership proceedings against an irrigation plant have no right to have their water rights determined by jury trial, the court which appointed receiver having right to fix rates, and landowners' remedy being appeal. McHenry v. Bankers' Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 560.

In a suit where relief by way of injunction is sought, the parties are entitled to jury trial on disputed fact issues, on regular assignment of the case, if demanded. Oil Lease & Royalty Syndicate v. Beeler (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1054.

In an action by a husband to set aside part of a judgment of divorce granted his wife, which required him to pay money to the wife, on the ground that he had never been served with notice of the suit or process, court was not authorized by article 1951, or otherwise, to hear testimony and require the plaintiff to introduce testimony for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not there was sufficient testimony contesting the service in the complaint to authorize the submission of such an issue to the jury; it being the duty of the court to pass on all matters of pleading without hearing evidence, and, if a good cause of action is pleaded, to empanel a jury and let plaintiff introduce his evidence. Becker v. Becker (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 542.

Where an injunction against keeping of a disorderly house by relator had been issued after trial by jury, imprisonment ordered in contempt proceedings without jury trial for violation of the injunction is not illegal, though the act complained of was also a crime. Ex parte Houston, 87 Cr. R. 8, 219 S. W. 826.

Farm laborer seeking to enforce lien was entitled to jury trial on issue of value of property, raised on plea to jurisdiction of county court, but where evidence was undisputed it would have been proper to direct verdict. Ball v. Beaty (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 552.

The Delinquent Child Law does not violate the right of trial by jury, in view of Code Cr. Proc. arts. 1198, 1200. Gordon v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 1095.

In habeas corpus hearings to determine the matter of custody of children subsequent to divorce proceedings, there is no constitutional right to a trial by jury. Foster v. Foster (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1064.

Action of trial court infringing right of trial by jury.—Action of a court, in peremptorily instructing a jury, held equivalent to a denial of the right of trial by jury and in violation of Const. art. 1, § 15. Buckholts State Bank v. Graf (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 858.

In view of Const. art. 1, § 15, preserving the right to jury trial, and Civ. St. art. 2024, limiting the number of new trials, it is the province of the jury to determine the credibility of witnesses and the weight of testimony, and the court may not assume its functions by deciding that testimony is entitled to no credit because overborne by contradictory testimony, or that it is so contradictory to circumstances and proof as to be improbable. Drew v. American Automobile Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 547.

Where judgment, reciting that upon hearing the court decided that there was no question to be submitted to the jury, is the only evidence before the court on appeal of what the actual proceedings were, the conclusive presumption arises that defendants waived any right to a jury trial; no exception having been taken to court's action. Andrie v. Fajkus (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 752.

Where defendants answered plea of intervention, at the same time demanding a jury and paying lawful fee therefor, though the jury for the week had been discharged, and only six days of the term remained after defendants' answer was filed, filing did not amount in law to announcement of ready for trial, nor waiver of right to trial by jury. Finkelstein v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 401.

Art. 5174. [3188] [3060] Must be demanded and jury fee be paid.

See Pate v. Woodville Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 916.

Art. 5175. [3189] [3061] Time of demand.

Appearance cases.—This article is merely directory and not mandatory as to appearance cases. Pate v. Woodville Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 916.

Failure to demand in time.—Substituted judge who presided after first day of term had power to grant application to have case placed on jury docket, so that, where parties failed to present such application, subsequent demand for jury trial came too late under this article, and art. 5180. Magee v. Snell (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 364.

In view of this article, requiring party desiring jury to apply therefor, in open court on first day of term, it was not error to refuse jury trial after jury had been discharged for week, where there was no demand as required and no excuse given for failure to call for a jury. Rusk County v. Hightower (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 802.

Where at the time the case had been called for trial the jury docket had been disposed of and the jury for the term discharged, a demand for jury then made will be denied. Blair v. Paggi (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 287.

Plaintiffs were not represented when their case was called for trial, and after two postponements the case, shortly after entering on the trial, was postponed until the following term; after commencement of that term, plaintiffs paid the jury fee and demanded jury trial, although such trial had been denied when the court commenced the trial of the case before the last postponement; held that, as plaintiffs did not object to discharge of jury for term, and failed to demand jury trial on first day of term, in accordance with this article, their negligence in allowing jury to be discharged, etc., was sufficient ground for denial of their demand for jury trial at second term. Id.

Art. 5178 et seq. relative to application for jury trials, are not mandatory, and failure of a party to make application at the time prescribed does not forfeit his constitutional right to have trial by jury when such failure does not operate unreasonably to delay trial or prejudice the adverse party. Watson v. Cloud (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 807.

In suit to cancel an oil lease, where, if plaintiffs' application for jury trial had been granted, the trial would not have been delayed, as a jury then in attendance on the court could have been used, and the rights of defendants would not have been prejudiced, the action of the trial court in denying plaintiffs trial by jury was erroneous, though the application was not made on the appearance day of the term as required by art. 5178. Id.

Time for depositing jury fee.—Rev. St. 1879, arts. 3064, 3066, directing that a demand for a jury shall be made and the jury fee paid upon the first day of the term, are not strictly mandatory; and where a plaintiff demands a jury on the first day of the term, it is error to try the case without a jury, although the jury fee is not paid until the next day, the jury docket not having at that time been disposed of; and it is immaterial that granting a jury trial will cause the case to be postponed until the next term. Allen v. Plummer, 71 Tex. 546, 9 S. W. 672.

Where defendants at a prior term demanded a jury, but failed to pay the fee, and the cause was continued on the nonjury docket, and plaintiffs did not ask jury until the day of trial, when they announced they would take advantage of defendants' demand, they had no right to a jury trial, in view of art. 5178 and this article. Arispe v. Clark (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 373.

Case transferred from county to district court.—Rev. St. 1879, art. 3066, does not require a defendant who pays the jury fee of three dollars in the county court to pay an additional fee when the case is removed to the district court because the county judge is related to one of the parties. Warner v. Crosby, 75 Tex. 295, 12 S. W. 745.

Article 5194. [3208] [3080] Challenge for cause.

Discretion of court.—Rev. St. 1879, art. 3080, which authorizes the court to sustain a challenge to a juror when, in its opinion, he is unfit to sit in the case, clothes the trial judge with a discretion which will not be reviewed on appeal unless it is shown that the party complaining has been deprived of an impartial jury; and hence, where neither party exhausted its peremptory challenges, the trial court's ruling excusing a juror because he is in defendant's employ will not be disturbed on appeal, though the relation of master and servant is not one of the grounds of disqualification specified in art. 3012. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Thornsberry (Sup.) 17 S. W. 521.

Art. 5195. [3209] [3081] On trial of challenge for cause, evidence to be heard.

Examination of juror.—The general rule that the utmost freedom on examination on voir dire should be permitted to discover any interest, bias, opinion, or other fact tending to disqualify or affect the impartiality of prospective jurors, is limited by the rule forbidding any examination the purpose of which is to have the juror indicate his views on certain facts, and thereby commit him to certain views or conclusions; so that in a will case, want of testamentary capacity being urged, it was proper to exclude a question whether jurors would be influenced by the fact that testator disinherited some members of his family. Campbell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 134.

Art. 5198. [3212] [3084] Number of peremptory challenges in district court.

More than one plaintiff or defendant.—This article does not entitle each defendant, where there are number of defendants against whom there is a general cause of action, but who have secondary and collateral issues among themselves, to six peremptory challenges; the word "party" not meaning a "person," and there being but two parties, notwithstanding the number of defendants, where the liability of each of the defendants depends on the same facts. Nueces County v. Gussett (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 125.

Art. 5206. [3220] [3092] Challenge for cause to be made, when.

Time for objection.—Under Rev. St. 1879, arts. 3091-3094, when 12 jurors are present, and their names have been drawn and entered on the slips, the parties may be required to exercise their peremptory challenges, and cannot require the entire panel to be placed in the box, and their names drawn by the clerk, nor that talesmen be summoned until the number is reduced by challenge. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Greenlee, 70 Tex. 553, 8 S. W. 129.

Disqualification of a juror, discovered after commencement of trial, but before its close, is waived by not being complained of till after verdict. Haynes v. Sosa (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 976.

In general.—Under Rev. St. 1879, arts. 3100, 3101, where a juror was excused by consent on account of sickness in his family, a verdict rendered by the remaining eleven, and signed by but one, as foreman, is valid. Tram Lumber Co. v. Hancock, 70 Tex. 312, 7 S. W. 724.

Art. 5217. [3231] [3103] Entire jury must concur in verdict.

Method of arriving at verdict.—When there was no agreement beforehand to adopt a quotient as the verdict, and it was to be used and was used merely as a working basis to reach the amount of verdict, no reversible error is shown. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 497.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN*COMPENSATION OF JURORS OF THE DISTRICT AND COUNTY COURTS IN CIVIL CASES

Article 5218a. Pay of jurors.—Each juror in the district or county court, except special veniremen, whose compensation is now fixed by law, shall receive Three Dollars for each day and for each fraction of a day that he may attend as such juror to be paid out of the jury fund of the county in which he may serve as a juror. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 26, § 1.]

JUVENILES

Chap.

1. State juvenile training school.
2. Girls' training school.

Chap.

4. State home for dependent and neglect-ed children.

CHAPTER ONE

THE STATE JUVENILE TRAINING SCHOOL

Art.

5221. Name of institution; board of trustees; tenure; qualifications; compensation; approval of accounts.

Art.

5229. Who to be confined; separation of races.

5231. Indeterminate sentence, etc.

Article 5221. [2941] Name of institution; board of trustees; tenure; qualifications; compensation; approval of accounts.

Name.—This article designates state institution for training of juveniles located at Gatesville as "the State Juvenile Training School," to be designated as "the Training School," and a judgment punishing a delinquent by designating such place of confinement and the term as an indeterminate period not to exceed five years or beyond the time when he shall have reached the age of 21, complies with the law requiring that the time and place of confinement be stated in the judgment. Guinn v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 233.

Art. 5229. [2949] Who to be confined; separation of races.

Validity.—This article is not in conflict with mandatory provisions of Code Cr. Proc. 1916, art. 1195, and requiring judge on a showing that a male person indicted for felony is under 17 to dismiss prosecution and try him as a juvenile delinquent. McLaren v. State, 82 Cr. R. 449, 199 S. W. 811.

Infants.—This article declares that boys under 17 years of age charged with felonies who do not claim the privilege of trial as juveniles, may be sent to the penitentiary where the conviction condemned them for a period greater than 5 years, but if for less penalty the confinement shall be in the juvenile school, but the statutes make no such exemption for girls and the discrimination between the two classes, boys and girls, if wrong, is for the Legislature, and not for the courts to remedy. Slade v. State, 85 Cr. R. 358, 212 S. W. 661.

In prosecution for homicide, defendant, a boy of 14½ years, under this article, and art. 5231, if convicted for a term of less than 5 years, was entitled to be sent to the reformatory instead of the penitentiary. Dill v. State, 87 Cr. R. 49, 219 S. W. 481.

Art. 5231. [2951] Indeterminate sentence, etc.

Cited. Dill v. State, 87 Cr. R. 49, 219 S. W. 481.

Infants.—In view of Code Cr. Proc. 1911, art. 1203, and this article, a judgment committing a juvenile should state the length of time he is to be detained, and that he is not to be detained beyond the time he reaches the age of 21. Ex parte Brooks, 85 Cr. R. 252, 211 S. W. 592.

In view of Code Cr. Proc. 1911, art. 1203, and this article, limiting term of commitment to five years, a judgment committing a juvenile until he became 21 years of age was absolutely void, where infant was only 13 years of age. Id.

This article, fixing a five-year limit for indeterminate sentence, refers only to male juveniles, and does not apply to a female juvenile. Ex parte Cain, 86 Cr. R. 509, 217 S. W. 386.

CHAPTER FOUR

STATE HOME FOR DEPENDENT AND NEGLECTED CHILDREN

Art. 5234¾. Establishment; board for selection of site, etc.	Art. 5234¾e. Same; transcript of proceedings.
5234¾a. Purpose of home.	5234¾f. Dismissal from home; adoption of inmates.
5234¾b. Board of control; members; appointment; terms of office.	5234¾g. Rules and regulations for home.
5234¾c. Superintendent; employment; qualifications; compensation; other officers.	5234¾h. Diplomas to inmates.
5234¾d. Commitment of children.	5234¾i. Persons who must and who may not be committed to home.
	5234¾j. Expenses of board of control.

Article 5234¾. Establishment; board for selection of site, etc.—

That there be established and maintained at some place in the State of Texas to be selected by the Lieutenant Governor, Comptroller and Superintendent of Public Instruction, where suitable farm lands may be secured, a home or homes upon the cottage plan for the proper care, education and training of dependent and neglected white children, to be known as the State Home for Dependent and Neglected Children. And the Lieutenant Governor, together with the Comptroller and State Superintendent of Public Instruction, shall constitute a Board for the purpose of selecting a site and having said buildings erected, and shall have full power and authority to do and perform the things necessary to carry out the purposes of this Act. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 159, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 33, § 1.] -

Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 5234¾a. Purpose of home.—It shall be the purpose of this Home and School to provide an institution of care, education and training for the dependent and neglected white children of this State, who by their unfavorably surroundings have become dependent or children who have become neglected from the want of care or attention of their parents or guardian and need the care and attention not heretofore provided and in the accomplishment of this Act the Board of Control shall provide wholesome and proper quarters, exercise and diversion and shall make provisions for training in all the useful arts and sciences to which such children are adapted and to prepare them for manhood and womanhood and independence. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 159, § 2.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 5234¾b. Board of control; members; appointment; terms of office.—The State Home for Dependent and Neglected White Children shall be under the control and management of a board of control composed of five persons, one of whom shall be the State Superintendent of Public Instruction of the State of Texas; another shall be the State Health Officer; the remaining three to be appointed by the Governor of Texas, at least one of whom shall be a woman. One of the three members to be selected by the Governor shall be appointed for a term to end January 1st, 1921, one of them for a term to end January 1, 1925. At the expiration of each term a successor shall be appointed by the Governor then in office for a term of six years. [Id., § 3.]

See art. 7150¾h, transferring the management and control of the state eleemosynary institutions to the State Board of Control.

Art. 5234¾c. Superintendent; employment; qualifications; compensation; other officers.—The Board of Control shall employ as superintendent of this Home a person of previous experience and training in a similar institution who shall have power to appoint and discharge all subordinate officials and teachers for said Home which may be necessary to employ, and said board shall fix the salary of Superintendent and all employes, and said board shall also, have full authority to remove the Superintendent on account of inefficiency, incompetency, inattention to the duties of a Superintendent, misconduct or malfeasance in office, and the decision of said board as to such inefficiency, inattention to the duties of a superintendent, misconduct or malfeasance in office shall be final. [Id., § 4.]

See art. 7085g, fixing salary of superintendent.

Art. 5234<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>d. Commitment of children.—Whenever any child, male or female, under the age of sixteen years shall be brought before any juvenile court within this State, upon petition of any person within this State, or the Humane Society, or any institution of a similar purpose or character, charged with being a dependent or neglected child as these terms are defined in the Statutes of this State the Court may, if in the opinion of the Judge, the Home for Dependent and Neglected Children is the proper place for said children, commit such child to said Home during its minority; provided that no child who is feeble-minded, epileptic or insane and that any child who is afflicted with a venereal, tubercular or other communicable disease shall not be assigned to this institution until cured of such disease or diseases. No child shall be admitted to the Home until he has been examined by the physician of the Home to be appointed by the Board of Control of same and such physician issuing certificate showing the exact state or condition in reference to said qualifications herein above enumerated. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 5234<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>e. Same; transcript of proceedings.—It shall be the duty of the Court committing any child to the State Home for Dependent and Neglected Children to prepare a transcript of all proceedings had and done in same and attach thereto a certificate of the County Health Officer of such County to said transcript. If it be a girl or baby or infant committed to said Home, the Judge of the Court shall designate some reputable woman to convey said girl, baby or infant to said Institution. The cost of conveying any child to said Institution shall be paid out of the general fund of the county from which they are committed and provided that no compensation shall be allowed beyond actual and necessary expenses of the party conveying and the child conveyed. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 5234<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>f. Dismissal from home; adoption of inmates.—No child shall be dismissed until some suitable home has been found for it or it has become able to be self-supporting and only then upon the written recommendation of the Superintendent to the Board of Control or when any ward committed to said Institution has become married with the consent of the Board of Control and Superintendent. Children shall be placed for adoption only in homes where proper support and training can and will be given. Any child above the age of ten years and not adopted, but who goes out from this Home, either under the custody of some adult or as self-supporting shall continue under the supervision and guidance of the Board of Control of said Institution who shall require that the person or persons under whose care the child is placed or the child himself or herself shall write bi-weekly letters to the Board of Control for first six months and then monthly thereafter. The Board of Control, the Superintendent of said Home or some other employe of said Home may visit the place where said child is adopted, living or employed and it shall be the duty of the person having said child in adoption or custody to answer all questions asked by said visiting committee concerning the conduct, employment, treatment or conditions of said child. If in the judgment of the Board of Control it should be to the best interests of said child that it be returned to said Home, the Board is hereby empowered to have it returned. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 5234<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>g. Rules and regulations for Home.—The Board of Control shall make all necessary rules and regulations for the proper government of said Home, and shall see to it that the time of children is properly distributed between the school of letters and the industrial and domestic pursuits according to what is deemed for their best interests and the facilities at hand, and the Superintendent shall from time to time make such recommendation to said Board as may to him or her seem to the best interests of all the children committed to said Home. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 5234<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>h. Diplomas to inmates.—It shall be the duty of the Board of Control to give diplomas or certificates of proficiency for grades of literary or any industrial school that may be established by the Board. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 5234<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>i. Persons who must and who may not be committed to Home.—It shall be the duty of all Juvenile Courts in this State to give preference to this Home to those children of tender years, and said courts shall not commit to said Home children under the age of sixteen years who are known to be habitual violators of the laws of this State or who have therefor been committed to any other institution of this State or to the State School for the Training of Juveniles at Gatesville and Gainesville, Texas, and the Board of Control is hereby authorized and empowered to refuse admittance to such juveniles or if, after they are committed to the State Home for Dependent and Neglected Children, their conduct should be of such nature and character as to contaminate the interests of other children in said Home, the Board of Control, upon proper application, shall have the authority and it shall be the duty of the Superintendent of the State School for the training of juveniles to accept said child in said institution. [Id., § 10.]

For sec. 11 of this act see Penal Code, art. 334b.

Art. 5234<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>j. Expenses of board of control.—If at the time this Act becomes effective there shall be no Board of Control and it becomes necessary for the Board herein authorized to be created to act they shall be paid such amounts as will be necessary to cover actual expenses incurred in the discharge of the duties of such Board. [Id., § 12.]

Sec. 13 makes an appropriation.

BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS

Article 5243. Salary and compensation of commissioner and employes.—The Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics shall receive a salary of $3,000.00 per annum, payable monthly, and he shall be allowed a secretary at a salary of $1800.00 per annum; an assistant secretary and stenographer at a salary of $1500. per annum, a chief deputy at a salary of $2,000.00 per annum; six deputies at a salary of $1800.00 each per annum; a chief of the Woman's Division at a salary of $2000.00 per annum, and two women inspectors at a salary of $1800.00 each per annum—each to be appointed by him—and such assistants and employes as the Legislature may at any time in the future authorize, within the limits of the appropriations made therefor. The Commissioner shall also be allowed necessary postage, stationery, printing, and other expenses to transact the business of the Bureau, within the limits of the appropriations made therefor, and the salary shall be paid as in the case of other State officers and employes. In addition to his salary, the Commissioner and any employe of the Bureau shall be allowed his actual necessary traveling expenses while in the performance of duties required by this Act, and within the limits of the appropriations made therefor. [Acts 1909, p. 59, § 12; Acts 1911, p. 17; Acts 1913, p. 237, amending art. 5243, Rev. St. 1911; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 106, § 1.]

CHAPTER ONE A

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION

Art.

- 5243 $\frac{1}{2}$ -5243 $\frac{1}{2}$ o. [Repealed.]
 5243 $\frac{3}{4}$ . Industrial commission created; appointment; tenure; compensation.
 5243 $\frac{3}{4}$ a. Chairman; stenographer and secretary, salary.
 5243 $\frac{3}{4}$ b. Labor controversies submitted to commission.

Art.

- 5253 $\frac{3}{4}$ c. Investigation and recommendation to Governor.
 5243 $\frac{3}{4}$ d. Hearings to be public.
 5243 $\frac{3}{4}$ e. Report to legislature.
 5243 $\frac{3}{4}$ f. Summoning and attendance of witnesses.

Articles 5243 $\frac{1}{2}$ -5243 $\frac{1}{2}$ o. [Repealed.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 160, approved April 3, 1919, is repealed by Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 118, § 1.

Art. 5243<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>. Industrial Commission created; appointment; tenure; compensation.—That there is hereby created an Industrial Commission, composed of five members, one of said members to represent employers of labor, one to represent the employés or laborers, and three to represent the general public. The members of this commission shall be appointed by the Governor, to hold office for a term of two years, or until their successors shall be appointed and qualified. The members of this commission shall serve without pay or salary, but the actual expenses incurred during hearings had by or before the commission and railway fare and hotel bills incurred by them shall be paid out of appropriations made to the executive office for the payment of rewards and the enforcement of the law, until such time as the Legislature may make appropriations to cover such items. [Acts 1920, 36th Leg., 4th C. S., ch. 9, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after Oct. 2, 1920, date of adjournment.

Art. 5243<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>a. Chairman; stenographer and secretary, salary.—By a majority vote the members of this commission shall elect one of their members as chairman of the commission, to preside at all hearings had under the provisions of this Act, with power and authority usually exercised by chairmen in such capacity; and said commission shall have authority to employ a competent stenographer to act as secretary of such commission, and to pay said secretary and stenographer a reasonable salary. The salary shall be paid out of the fund or funds described in Section 1 [Art. 5243<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>] of this Act. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 5243<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>b. Labor controversies submitted to commission.—When the Governor of Texas becomes convinced or has reason to believe that controversies between employers and employés are of such nature and character as to be of public concern or interest he shall refer, by proclamation, such controversy or controversies to the commission here created for hearing and report. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5243<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>c. Investigation and recommendation to Governor.—The commission, and the members thereof, shall forthwith proceed to the place where the employés in the controversy may be located, or to such other place as may appear best to said commission for the purpose of making investigation and report; and said commission shall make investigation and hear testimony concerning the controversy between the employers and employés; and after said investigation shall have been completed a full report shall be made to the Governor, covering the facts established by the investigations made and hearings had. Said commission shall make recommendations to the Governor as to what action should be taken in reference to the controversy or the settlement thereof. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 5243<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>d. Hearings to be public.—All hearings had by this commission shall be open to the public; and the findings and recommendations of the commission shall be furnished to the news agencies and newspapers of the State, to be published by the several papers of this State as news items. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 5243<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>e. Report to Legislature.—The commission shall also make full report to the Legislature, if in session, and if not in session, then to the succeeding session of the Legislature, setting forth the findings and recommendations, accompanied by a transcript of the testimony taken at the hearings provided for herein. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 5243<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>f. Summoning and attendance of witnesses.—The commission shall have power to summon witnesses, to issue subpoenas, to compel attendance of witnesses, to compel production of books and records by witnesses, to punish for contempt, to hold sessions and to take testimony in or out of the State of Texas, and to pay witnesses as paid in felony cases, to administer oaths; and to have all powers now given by statutes of Texas to Legislative investigation committees. [Id., § 7.]

CHAPTER ONE B

PROTECTION OF EMPLOYÉS IN FACTORIES, MILLS, ETC.

Art.

5243<sup>7</sup>/<sub>8</sub>. Temperature of factories, etc.

5243<sup>7</sup>/<sub>8</sub>a. Sewer gas.

5243<sup>7</sup>/<sub>8</sub>b. Removal of waste, etc.

5243<sup>7</sup>/<sub>8</sub>c. Doors, stairways, and elevator shafts.

Art.

5243<sup>7</sup>/<sub>8</sub>d. Water closets.

5243<sup>7</sup>/<sub>8</sub>e. Practices affecting morals of employés.

5243<sup>7</sup>/<sub>8</sub>f. Inspections; orders.

5243<sup>7</sup>/<sub>8</sub>g. Precedence of trials.

Article 5243<sup>7</sup>/<sub>8</sub>. Temperature of factories, etc.—In every factory, mill, workshop, mercantile establishment, laundry, or other establishment, adequate measures shall be taken for securing and maintaining a reasonable, and as far as possible, an equable temperature consistent with a reasonable requirement of the manufacturing process. No unnecessary humidity which would jeopardize the health of the employees shall be permitted. In every room, apartment, or building used as a factory, mill, workshop, mercantile establishment, laundry or other place of employment, sufficient air space shall be provided for every person employed therein, and which in the judgment of the Commissioner of Labor Statistics, or of his deputies and inspectors is sufficient for their health and welfare. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg., 4th C. S., ch. 58, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Explanatory.—The act bears the heading "protection of female employés in factories, mills, etc." The title of the act reads as follows: "An act for the protection of the health, safety and comfort of employés in factories, mills, workshops, mercantile establishments, laundries, or other establishments where females are employed," etc. It would seem, therefore, that the operation of the act is somewhat restricted by its title.

Art. 5243<sup>7</sup>/<sub>8</sub>a. Sewer gas.—All factories, mills, workshops, mercantile establishments, laundries and other establishments shall be kept free from gas or effluvia arising from any sewer, drain, privy or other nuisance on the premises; all poisonous or noxious gases arising from any process; all dust of a character injurious to the health of persons employed, which is created in the process of manufacturing within the above named establishment, shall be removed as far as practicable by ventilators or exhaust fans or other adequate devices. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 5243<sup>7</sup>/<sub>8</sub>b. Removal of waste, etc.—All decomposed, fetid or putrescent matter, and all refuse, waste and sweepings of any factory, mill, workshop, mercantile establishment, laundry or other establishment, shall be removed at least once each day and be disposed of in such manner as not to cause a nuisance. All cleaning, sweeping and dusting shall be done as far as possible outside of working hours, but if done during working hours, shall be done in such manner as to avoid so far as possible the raising of dust and noxious odors. In all establishments where any process is carried on which makes the floors wet, the floors shall be constructed and maintained with due regard for the health of the employés, and gratings or dry standing room shall be provided wherever practicable, at points wherever employés are regularly stationed, and adequate means shall be provided for drainage and for preventing leakage or seepage to lower floors. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 52437/8c. Doors, stairways, and elevator shafts.—All doors used by employés as entrances to, or exits from factories, mills, workshops, mercantile establishments, laundries or other establishments of a height of two stories or over, shall open outward, and shall be so constructed as to be easily and immediately opened from within in case of fire or other emergencies. Proper and substantial hand rails shall be provided on all stairways, and lights shall be kept burning at all main stairs, stair landings and elevator shafts in the absence of sufficient natural light; provided that the provisions of this section shall not apply to any mercantile establishment having seven female employés or less. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 52437/8d. Water closets.—Every factory, mill, workshop, mercantile establishment, laundry or other establishment, shall be provided with a sufficient number of water closets, earth closets or privies, and such water closets, earth closets or privies shall be supplied in the proportion of one (1) to every twenty-five (25) male persons, and one (1) to every twenty (20) female persons, and whenever both male and female persons are employed, said water closets, earth closets or privies shall be provided separate and apart for the use of each sex, and such water closets, earth closets, or privies shall be constructed in an approved manner and properly enclosed, and at all times kept in a clean and sanitary condition, and effectively disinfected and ventilated, and shall at all times during operation of such establishment be kept properly lighted. In case there be more than one shift of not more than eight hours each of employés the average number of persons in the establishment at any one time should be used in determining the number of toilets required. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 52437/8e. Practices affecting morals of employés.—It shall be unlawful for the owner, manager, superintendent or other person in control or management of any factory, mill, workshop, mercantile establishment, laundry or other establishment where five or more persons are employed, all or part of whom are females, to permit in such place of employment any influence, practices or conditions calculated to injuriously affect the morals of such female employés. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 52437/8f. Inspections; orders.—The Commissioner of Labor Statistics, or any of his deputies or inspectors, shall have the right to enter any factory, mill, workshop, mercantile establishment, laundry, or other establishment where five or more persons are employed, for the purpose of making inspections and enforcing the provisions of this Act; and they are hereby empowered, upon finding any violations of this Act by reason of unsanitary conditions such as to endanger the health of the employees therein employed, or of neglect to remove and prevent fumes and gases or odors injurious to employees, or by reason of the failure or refusal to comply with any requirement of this Act, or by reason of the inadequacy or insufficiency of any plan, method, practice or device employed in assumed compliance with any of the requirements of this Act, to pass upon and to make a written finding as to the failure or refusal to comply with any requirement of this Act, or as to the adequacy or sufficiency of any practice, plan or method used in or about any place mentioned in this Act in supposed compliance with any of the requirements of this Act, and, thereupon they may issue a written order to the owner, manager, superintendent, or other person in control or management of such place or establishment for the correction of any condition caused or permitted in or about such place or establishment in violation of any of the requirements of this Act, or of any condition, practice, plan, or method used therein or thereabouts in supposed compliance with any of the requirements of this Act, but which are found to be inadequate or insufficient, in any respect, to comply therewith, and shall state in such order how such conditions, practices, plans or methods, in any case, shall be corrected and the time within which the same shall be corrected, a reasonable time being given in such order therefor. One copy of such order shall be delivered to the owner, manager, superintendent, or other person in control or management of such place or establishment, and one copy thereof shall be filed in the office of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Such findings and orders shall be prima facie valid, reasonable and just, and shall be conclusive unless attacked and set aside in the manner provided therefor in Section 8 of this Act [Art. 52437/8g]. Upon the failure or refusal of the owner, manager, superintendent, or other person in control or management of such place or establishment, to comply with such order within the time therein specified, unless the same shall have been attacked and suspended or set aside as provided for in Section 8 of this Act, the Commissioner of Labor Statistics, or his deputy or inspectors shall have full authority and power to close such place or establishment, or any part of it that may be in such unsanitary or dangerous condition or immoral influences in violation of any requirement of this Act or of such order, until such time as such condition, practice or method shall have been corrected in accordance with such order. And the further operation or use of such place, or part thereof, ordered closed, without the correction thereof as ordered, shall subject the owner, manager, superintendent, or other person in control or management of such place or establishment to the penalties provided for in Section 9 [Penal Code, art. 1451n] of this Act. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 52437/8g. Precedence of trials.—The owner or owners, manager, superintendent, or other person in control or management, of any place or establishment covered by this Act, and directly affected by any finding or order provided for in Section 7 of this Act [Art. 52437/8f], may, within fifteen days from the date of the delivery to him or them of a copy of any such order as provided for in Section 7 of this Act, file a petition setting forth the particular cause or causes of objection to such order and findings in a court of competent jurisdiction against the Commissioner of Labor Statistics. Said action shall have precedence over all other causes of a different nature, except such causes as are provided for in Article 6657, R. S., 1911, and shall be tried and determined as other civil causes in said court, provided, that if the court be in session at the time such cause of action arises, the suit may be filed during such term and stand ready for trial after ten days' notice. Either party may appeal, but shall not have the right to sue out a writ of error from the trial court, and said appeal shall at once be returnable to the proper appellate court at either of its terms, and said appeal shall have precedence in such appellate court over other causes of a different nature, except the causes provided for in Article 6657, Revised Statutes 1911. In all trials under this section the burden of proof shall be upon the Plaintiff, to show that the findings and order complained of are illegal, unreasonable, or unjust to it or them. [Id., § 8.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 9 of the act imposes a criminal penalty and is set forth, post, as art. 1451n, Penal Code.

CHAPTER TWO

LABOR ORGANIZATIONS

Art.
5244. Right to organize.
5245. Other rights and privileges.

Art.
5246. Not to apply to what organizations.

Article 5244. Right to organize.

Picketing ordinance.—Ordinance prohibiting walking back and forth or loitering in front of business places, to persuade persons by sign or otherwise from entering to transact business, does not conflict with this article, or art. 5245, or Pen. Code 1911, art. 1473, allowing formation of labor unions and persuasion of employes. Ex parte Stout, 82 Cr. R. 183, 198 S. W. 967, L. R. A. 1918C, 277.

Union of municipal employes.—It cannot be said, as a matter of law, that a municipal corporation has no right or authority to determine that membership in a certain labor organization renders its appointees inefficient or untrustworthy, so as to transfer trial of the question to the courts. San Antonio Fire Fighters' Local Union No. 34 v. Bell (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 506.

Firemen's union.—This article merely announces that there is no prohibition of law against trade unions, and does not seek to regulate the attitude of the employer toward the organization of unions among his employes, and has no controlling effect in an action for reinstatement by discharged city firemen who violated rules and regulations of the fire department in becoming members of a labor union, in view of art. 5246. McNatt v. Lawther (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 503.

Art. 5245. Other rights and privileges.

In general.—A master plumber has no ground for injunctive relief against a labor union of journeymen plumbers which withdraws its members from his employ under a rule adopted in the interest of economical conduct of its affairs, of which he has notice, that they shall not work for one not a member of the master plumbers' association; there being no boycott, and such action being in the nature of a strike, lawful under and independently of this article. Sheehan v. Levy (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 229.

Picketing and boycott.—This article, providing that it shall not be unlawful for a member of a union to induce by lawful means any person to accept or relinquish employment, is not, in view of art. 5246, at variance with the anti-trust laws, and does not permit the picketing and boycott of an employer, whose employes are in harmony with him, with the view of compelling the unionizing of the business. Webb v. Cooks', Waiters' and Waitresses' Union, No. 748 (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 465.

This article, declaring that it shall not be unlawful for members of trade unions or other organizations to induce by peaceable means any person to accept or relinquish any employment, does not apply to the case of a labor union of cooks, waiters, and waitresses, and its members, who, on account of restaurant proprietors refusing to renew their contract with union for another year, called a strike in the place, picketed, and attempted to dissuade customers from entering. Cooks', Waiters' and Waitresses' Local Union v. Papageorge (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1036.

Art. 5246. Not to apply to what organizations.

Cited, Webb v. Cooks', Waiters' and Waitresses' Union, No. 748 (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 465; McNatt v. Lawther (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 503.

CHAPTER FOUR ## HOURS OF LABOR UPON PUBLIC WORKS

Article 5246f. Contracts deemed on basis of eight hour day; laborers employed by contractors; emergencies, etc.—All contracts hereafter made by or on behalf of the State of Texas, or by or on behalf of any county, municipality or other legal or political sub-division of the State, with any corporation, persons or association of persons for performance of any work, shall be deemed and considered as made upon the basis of eight hours constituting a day's work. It shall be unlawful for any corporation, person or association of persons having a contract with the State or any political sub-division thereof, to require any such laborers, workmen, mechanics or other persons to work more than eight hours per calendar day in doing such work, except in case of emergency, which may arise in times of war, or in cases where it may become necessary to work more than eight hours per calendar day for the protection of property, human life or the necessity of housing inmates of public institutions in case of fire or destruction by the elements. In such emergencies the laborers, workmen, mechanics or other persons so employed and working to exceed eight hours per calendar day shall be paid on the basis of eight hours constituting a day's work; provided that not less than the current rate of per hour wages for like work in the locality where the work is being performed shall be paid to the laborers, workmen, mechanics or other persons so employed by or on behalf of the State of Texas, or for any county, municipality or other legal or political sub-division of the State, county, or municipality, and every contract hereafter made for the performance of work for the State of Texas, or for any county, municipality, or other legal or political sub-division of the State, county or municipality, must comply with the requirements of this Section; provided, that nothing in this Act shall affect contracts in existence at the time of the taking effect of this Act; provided further, that nothing in this Act shall be construed to affect the present law governing State and county convict labor while serving their sentences as such; and provided further, that nothing in the foregoing Section shall prevent any person, or any officer, agent, or employee of a person or corporation, or association of persons from making mutually satisfactory contracts as to the hours of labor, at the rates of pay as herein provided; provided further that the time consumed by the laborer in going to and returning from the place of work shall not be considered as part of the hours of work. [Acts 1913, p. 127, § 2; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 121, § 1 (§ 2).]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Article 5246—1. [5246h] Actions for personal injuries or resulting death; defenses excluded.

1. DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF MASTER IN GENERAL.

2. Nature of master's duty in general.—A master is not an insurer of the servant's safety. Ebersole v. Sapp (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 156.

A religious corporation organized to operate a hospital is liable for injuries to a servant through its negligence, though money received by it was expended in maintaining institution for poor, to pay off a mortgage, and to support its mother institution in another state. Hotel Dieu v. Armendarez (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 518.

Master is not an insurer of servant's safety, but is required to exercise that degree of care which an ordinarily prudent person engaged in like business would have exercised under similar circumstances. Taylor v. White (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 656.

A servant injured by negligence of master may elect to sue either on contract or for tort. State v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 695.

3. Relation of parties.—Trustees of a trust estate operating as a business company are individually masters of servants engaged therein, and may not absolve themselves of personal liability for breach of masters' duty toward such servants. Fisheries Co. v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 343.

Where contract provided that buyer of timber should reimburse seller for wages paid scalers, not to exceed $50 per month each, a scaler employed by, and who worked under direction of, seller, at a salary of $70 a month, was not an employé of buyer, within Workmen's Compensation Act. Kirby Lumber Co. v. McGilberry (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 835.

The relationship of master and servant arises upon a contract, express or implied, between the master, on the one hand, and the servant, on the other. C. C. Slaughter Cattle Co. v. Pastrana (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 749.

4. — Independent contractors.—See Crow v. McAdoo (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 241. Mere use by one doing piece of work of material or employés primarily employed by company having work done will not, of itself, make company liable for such employés' acts, unless it had immediate control and management of work done. Texas Refining Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 131.

On issue whether a company is liable to one as employé when he is injured, in doing work for it, by a company employé assisting him, true test is to ascertain who directs movements of person committing the injury, fact that company is primary employer of the persons assisting not necessarily making them its servants. Id.

Question as to whether relation of independent contractor exists as to piece of work is usually determined on issue as to who is in charge and control of work, and who determines method of doing it. Id.

That a machinist, or the machine shop sending him to do piece of work for corporation was to receive pay for work at so much an hour, or that it was to be paid for by the job, is not conclusive on issue whether machinist was employé of the corporation. Id.

Where paper bag company, under agreement to furnish space and machines therefor with which independent contractor was to do printing, furnished defective saw machine permitting hot metal to fly about, and a totally inadequate space requiring press to be placed so near saw that press feeder was in constant danger, a danger the company had knowledge of and could have anticipated, the company was guilty of actionable negligence and was liable for injury to press feeder from metal from saw, though she was employé of independent contractor, and though such contractor had control of both machines. Continental Paper Bag Co. v. Bosworth (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 126.

Where a lessee, by terms of lease, was to operate mining properties at his own expense, purchase and install new machinery that might be necessary, pay taxes, etc., and the lessor, during the existence of the lease, did not exercise or attempt to exercise any control over the details of operating, or in controlling employés, lessee was an independent contractor, responsible to employés for injuries, though his compensation was practically a salary, and lessor furnished the money required to pay employés and operating expenses. Higrade Lignite Co. v. Courson (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 230.

Plaintiff who, with another, employed and paid by defendant, would one day load defendant's push trucks with lumber brought by others on a mule truck from its sawmill, each with a specified number of tiers, and the next day push them to, and place their contents in, defendant's dry kiln, he being under the supervision and control of defendant's foreman, and required to so handle the lumber as to keep it out of the way of the saw, and have it at regular intervals in the dry kiln, was, as regards liability for his injury from defect in the kiln, an "employé," and not an "independent contractor," though paid by the truck load. West Lumber Co. v. Powell (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 339.

A sawyer employed by a lumber company, though paid according to the timber sawed, being under control of the lumber company's foreman, is not an independent contractor, particularly where the employer deducted a portion of his wages with those of other employés for sick benefit fund, etc. West Lumber Co. v. Keen (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 625.

5. — Acts done under employment or by invitation of master's servants.—A person, by merely volunteering his services to another, or by assisting the servants of another without authority to employ such assistance, cannot establish the relation of master and servant, and so establish liability for injuries under the principles of law governing master and servant. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Jackman (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 410.

6. Scope of employment.—Employment of a servant under 15 years of age to work around dangerous machinery in violation of Acts 32d Leg. c. 46 (Vernon's Ann. Pen. Code 1916, art. 1050), is negligence per se, and a servant may recover although not engaged at the very place of work he was primarily employed to do. Waterman Lumber Co. v. Beatty (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 448.

The scope of a servant's duties is determined by what he was employed to perform and what, with the knowledge and approval of his employer, he actually did perform, rather than by the mere verbal designation of his position. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Bremer (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 253.

6½. Care as to youthful or inexperienced employé.—Employer was not negligent in permitting boy almost 16 years of age, who had never before worked about machinery, to work as off-bearer at sander machine with duty of taking boards out of machine after they had passed between unguarded rollers, where he was not required to put his hand closer than 12 inches to rollers and where he realized the danger of getting hand between rollers. Bering Mfg. Co. v. Sedita (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 639.

7. Medical attendance on injured employé.—Corporation was not liable for medical services rendered an employé in absence of special authority from board of directors, where corporation had provided method of caring for injuries to employés by means of insurance it had taken out for their benefit under the Workmen's Compensation Act. Producers' Oil Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 68.

Employer, who monthly deducts a portion of employé's wages for purposes of accumulating a fund with which to care for employés who become sick, holds the fund in trust for the contributing employés, and assumes no personal responsibility to employé who becomes sick, other than a proper and faithful administration of the trust fund, requiring him, in absence of his own hospital or a custom of furnishing hospital service, to furnish such services only if there is an unexpended portion of the trust fund. Courchesne v. Brown (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 674.

8. Cause of injury.—Where soldiers, not under the control of defendant, were placed on guard around his power plant in the interest of the general public by the United States military authorities during a warlike situation, to suppress a hostile invasion, which was imminent, and not at defendant's request, defendant was not liable to a servant, shot through the negligence of a soldier. Sweetman v. Laredo Electric & Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 701.

In an action by a servant against a master for injuries caused by an explosion, evidence held sufficient to support the jury's finding that the explosion caused plaintiff's injury. Abilene Steam Laundry Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 571.

Plaintiff, in an action for injuries to a servant, is required to convince the jury by fair preponderance of the evidence that the accident resulted from defendant's negligence. Bock v. Fellman Dry Goods Co. (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 635.

9. Accidental or improbable injury—Duty to anticipate consequences.—See note 98, post.

Defendant's mine foreman, even if he negligently directed a coal miner to work on right side of his room, could not have reasonably contemplated that minor would mine coal almost across the face of his room, leaving a projection, and thereafter undertake to mine under it, causing it to fall. Haney v. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 375.

A master is not an insurer of the servant's safety, but is bound only to the exercise of ordinary care, and is not bound to provide against, or liable for, the results of a mere accident, and whether an act is negligent or accidental is to be determined by the standard of the conduct of an ordinarily prudent person in the exercise of reasonable care. Ebersole v. Sapp (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 156.

If an injury resulting from an act could have been reasonably anticipated, or foreseen by an ordinarily prudent person in the exercise of ordinary care, the occurrence is not accidental. Id.

To render the master's acts in furnishing a servant with a certain instrumentality for his work negligent, it must be found that an ordinarily prudent man in the exercise of reasonable care would have anticipated some injury as the result of its use in such work. Id.

To entitle an employé to recover for the employer's negligence, it must appear that the injury, not necessarily the precise actual injury, but some like injury, was the natural and probable consequence of the negligence, and that it ought to have been foreseen in the light of the attending circumstances. Dawson v. King (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 164, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) King v. Dawson, 192 S. W. 271.

10½. Persons liable.—Employer, against whom recovery was had for injury to employé operator of elevator through structural defect therein, may, notwithstanding his negligence in not inspecting, enforce indemnity against elevator manufacturer and seller; it being the original active perpetrator of the wrong, and the negligence of the employer being only passive. Otis Elevator Co. v. Cameron (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 852.

11. Contracts limiting or releasing liability.—Managing shareholders of an unincorporated association are masters of servants engaged therein, and may not absolve themselves of personal liability for breach of masters' duty to reward such servants. Fisheries Co. v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 343.

As members and trustees of unincorporated business, trust, or partnership cannot change their legal status so as to make themselves masters of employés in representative capacity only, they cannot make valid contract exempting themselves from individual liability for injuries to employés of association. Id.

A contract by which a city employé released the city for personal injuries is unenforceable, and may be set aside where entered into through mistake of law on the part of the ignorant employé, who relied on the representations of the city attorney, who erroneously stated that the city could not be held for such injuries. Leslie v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 433.

11½. Amount of recovery.—See art. 2022, and notes.

Where servant was a healthy man of 29 years, earning $90 a month, and had his right hand and arm to elbow crushed and rendered worthless, was confined to the hospital four months, undergoing three operations at cost of $1,000, a verdict of $15,000, is not excessive. Farmers' Petroleum Co. v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 104.

11¾. Circumstantial evidence.—A master's negligence may be established by circumstantial evidence. Bock v. Fellman Dry Goods Co. (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 635.

II. APPLIANCES AND PLACES FOR WORK

12. Nature of master's duty and liability and care required in general.—A master is not negligent in furnishing an instrumentality for use by a servant if it would have been considered by an ordinarily prudent person in the exercise of ordinary care a proper instrumentality for use in the manner and place and for the work for which it was furnished. Ebersole v. Sapp (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 156.

Where a servant alleged negligence on the part of the master in furnishing a defective pipe wrench, a charge that it is the duty of an employer to furnish reasonably safe tools, and that a failure to do so is negligence, was erroneous as making such duty absolute. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. Ervin (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 234.

Before master can be held liable for failure to perform a promise to remove a specific danger, it is necessary to show that the existing conditions were of such a nature that their maintenance implied culpability. Taylor v. White (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 656.

Master is required to exercise ordinary care to provide servant with safe place to work and with reasonably safe and suitable machinery and appliances. Id.

The master is bound to exercise that degree of care for the protection of his servant which an ordinarily prudent person would exercise under similar circumstances, and whether he has discharged such duty depends upon the facts of the particular case and the dangers to be apprehended or avoided. Rio Grande, E. P. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Guzman (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1102.

13. Delegation of duty.—The exercise of ordinary care to furnish servant with reasonably safe place in which to work is a positive duty on part of master, which cannot be so delegated as to relieve him from liability for its negligent performance. Coca-Cola Co. v. Williams (Com. App.) 209 S. W. 396.

If under the terms of the employment the employé was charged with the duty of seeing that the walls of an excavation are safe for himself and those working under him, recovery cannot be had by him for injuries based on his dereliction in performance of that duty. Texas City Transp. Co. v. Winters (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 541, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 366, and rehearing denied (Com. App.) 224 S. W. 1087.

15. Custom and usage.—That defendant employers were operating their glass factory in same manner as other well-regulated concerns would not relieve them from liability if they failed to exercise ordinary care. Skelton & Wear v. Wolfe (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 901.

The custom of others engaged in like business is not the absolute test of negligence in failing to provide safe working place appliances, but where master was conducting his business in accordance with the uniform custom of others, it devolves upon servant to show that custom is negligent; the presumption being that persons in like business are reasonably prudent. Taylor v. White (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 656.

An employer operating an electric power plant is not negligent in failing to fence an exciter, which is covered with shield leaving no exposure except openings for adjusting and cleaning machine, where other employers in same line of business did not fence in exciters by guard rails, and employé who came in contact with machine was experienced and familiar with the surroundings. Id.

A sawmill owner was not guilty of negligence in failing to house or box in a wheel gearing under a gang table, where it was the universal usage and custom among sawmill men not to box in or house such gearing. Van Landers v. West Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 692.

17. Defects in tools, appliances and places for work in general.—Evidence held to show master's negligence in furnishing a defective tool, in using which plaintiff servant was injured. Palermo Bros. v. Capps (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 275.

Evidence held to sustain verdict for servant, injured when motorcar on which he was riding was derailed, owing to defective condition of frame. Mackay Telegraph & Cable Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 225.

Evidence held to sustain verdict for servant, injured when motorcar on which he was riding was derailed, owing to defective condition of frame. Id.

Evidence held insufficient to sustain allegation that gun used by servant killed by breaking of electric wire in defendant's glass factory was in unsafe condition. Skelton & Wear v. Wolfe (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 901.

In an action for injuries to a railroad bridge painter knocked from the scaffold by a vehicle passing on the street below, evidence held to warrant a finding that defendant was negligent in failing to furnish a reasonably safe place for work by failure to keep a lookout for vehicles, and that such negligence was the proximate cause of plaintiff's injuries. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gericke (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 668.

In an action against a master, evidence held to sustain a finding that an explosion causing injury was caused, as alleged, by the negligence of defendant in permitting the accumulation of coal dust and other combustible substances in the room where plaintiff was at work. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Moreno (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 444.

Where a lumber company's employé, pushing an empty truck over a narrow dolly-way, was struck by a loaded truck propelled by another employé, and precipitated to the ground, the lumber company is liable. Bartlett Lumber Co. v. Chaney (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 837.

An employer owed to employé generally the duty of blocking a rolling door, to prevent its falling while being used by them for its intended purpose, or to prevent its falling upon any employé working near it; and a like duty would arise toward an employé, if the employer should have anticipated that he would probably use it for other than its primary purposes in the performance of his work. Dawson v. King (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 164, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) King v. Dawson, 192 S. W. 271.

The employer's duty in respect to a safe place extends only to such parts of premises as he had prepared for the employé's occupancy or use in the performance of his work, and such other parts as he knows or ought to know such employé is accustomed or likely to use in performing his work. Id.

It is the duty of an employer to exercise ordinary care to furnish an employé a reasonably safe place in which to work, including a reasonably safe way or method of ascent and descent to and from a second floor, where it was necessary for him to go. Id.

19. Defective or dangerous machinery.—In action by servant for injury from planing machine, evidence held to show defendant's negligence. West Lumber Co. v. Tomme (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 784.

In action by operator of emery wheel for injuries due to piece of metal striking his eye, the negligence alleged being failure to provide a guard on emery wheel to prevent particles of iron from flying therefrom when iron pipes were being ground, evidence held to support verdict for plaintiff. Lancaster v. Keebler (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1117.

20. Buildings.—In a suit by a planing mill employé, who slipped and fell into a moving belt, evidence held to warrant the jury's finding that, though there were both grease and shavings on the floor near the belt, that the master was not negligent. Fults v. Waterman Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1105.

23. Mines and other excavations.—In action by a servant injured by an explosion of accumulated gas alleged to have resulted when the iron bucket furnished him struck a hard substance, brought on the theory of the master's negligence in permitting the accumulation of gas, evidence held not to show the alleged negligence. Ebersole v. Sapp (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 156.

24. Electrical apparatus and structures.—In action by telephone lineman for injuries caused by high-voltage wires, evidence held to show that employer was negligent. City of Weatherford Water, Light & Ice Co. v. Veit (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 986.

An electric light company owes a duty to employés to place high-voltage wires on outer ends of crossbeams in accordance with usual practice. Id.

25. Shipping.—Evidence as to whether employé's injury was caused by falling from insecurely fastened ladder in steamship hold held sufficient to support a verdict for plaintiff. Southern Pac. Co. v. Eckenfels (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1003.

28. Inspection and test.—Sledge hammer made by employer's head smith, its handle being placed for servant to use in striking, who never had used a sledge before equipped with a defective handle, was not a simple tool which an employer need not inspect. Sante Fé Tie & Lumber Preserving Co. v. Collins (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 164.

Facts, finding of which was warranted by the evidence, held to authorize finding of negligence of master, in respect to seeing that a coil was safe for cleaning by employé by connection with a solution tank. Liquid Carbonic Co. v. Dilley, 109 Tex. 140, 202 S. W. 316.

Duty of employer to furnish employé reasonably safe work place and appliances, as applied to operator of freight elevator, includes the making of tests and inspection for defects. Otis Elevator Co. v. Cameron (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 852.

It is the duty of the master to make such inspections of machinery, and use such precautions in keeping it oiled and in good running condition, as its nature requires. Gammage v. Gamer Co. (Com. App.) 209 S. W. 389.

Evidence in a servant's action for injury from the unexpected automatic starting of a machine held sufficient to show the master's negligent failure to inspect, oil, and repair the machine. Id.

In an action by an employé of an oil company who was hurt by a falling pulley, evidence held to warrant a finding that the master was negligent in failing to examine the pulley, etc. Batson-Milholme Co. v. Faulk (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 837.

29. Knowledge by master of defect or danger.—Knowledge of danger from high-tension wires in close proximity to telephone wires will be imputed to the telephone company where such condition had long continued. City of Weatherford Water, Light & Ice Co. v. Veit (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 986.

In an action for injuries from the explosion of a tumbler while being used to dry clothes cleaned with gasoline, evidence held to sustain a finding that the manager of the defendant's laundry who was present daily knew of such use of the tumbler that exploded, notwithstanding the contrary testimony of two of defendant's servants. Ablene Steam Laundry Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 571.

Actual knowledge by the master as an element of liability for personal injury is not essential, but knowledge of an abnormal danger which a master might and should have acquired by the exercise of ordinary care, as an element of liability, stands upon precisely the same footing as actual knowledge. C. C. Slaughter Cattle Co. v. Pastrana (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 749.

30. Repairs.—Evidence in a servant's action for injury from the unexpected automatic starting of a machine held sufficient to show the master's negligent failure to inspect, oil, and repair the machine. Gammage v. Gamer Co. (Com. App.) 209 S. W. 389.

31. Improper or unusual use or test.—The fact that a barrel of liquid would explode if fire was applied to it did not render place of work unsafe, and the safe-place rule did not apply where a vice principal lit a match to look into barrel to ascertain amount of liquid therein, causing an explosion; there being no evidence that such was only and customary method of ascertaining amount of liquid in barrel. Coca-Cola Co. v. Williams (Com. App.) 209 S. W. 396.

A master is not liable for injury where servant makes an unusual or unnecessary use of tools and appliances which the master could not have reasonably foreseen. Roberg v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 790.

An employer owed an employé no duty to secure a rolling door, so that he could safely use it to brace or balance himself in climbing through an opening leading to an upper floor, unless the employer knew or should have known that he did so use it; it not being intended for that use. Dawson v. King (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 164, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) King v. Dawson, 192 S. W. 271.

32. Proximate cause of injury.—If absence of appliance did not contribute to injury, it cannot be said that it rendered equipment unsafe for particular use made of it by servant. Skelton & Wear v. Wolfe (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 901.

Evidence held to sustain findings of jury that negligence of the vice principal in handling a rope and pipe was the proximate cause of servant's injury. Farmers' Petroleum Co. v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 194.

As between operator of elevator, injured by defect therein, and his employer, employer's failure to make inspection was proximate cause of the injury, though the defect was structural and existed when the employer bought the elevator of the manufacturer. Otis Elevator Co. v. Cameron (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 852.

In coal miner's suit for injury from negligence in failing to remove débris after fall of earth and coal in mine chamber, evidence held to sustain trial court's finding that negligence was not proximate cause of injury. Haney v. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 375.

In action for death of a locomotive engineer from a boiler explosion, evidence held to sustain finding that the explosion was due to defect in the bolts and stays designed to sustain the crown sheet of the boiler, not to lack of water. Lancaster v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 797.

In an action by a servant for damages for injuries caused by a sawing machine, evidence held sufficient to show that a rough table top on which the machine was being operated caused, or contributed to cause, the injury. Worden v. Kroeger (Com. App.) 219 S. W. 1094.

Where no stairway or method of ascent to an upper floor of a building was provided, and an employé attempted to reach the upper floor through a hole in the floor, by climbing a post on which were cleats, and in doing so placed his hand against a rolling door to brace or balance himself, and the door fell on him, the employer's negligence did not consist in providing an unsafe way, but in failing to provide any way, and was not the proximate cause of the injury, which was due to the unsafe way provided by the employé. Dawson v. King (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 164, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) King v. Dawson, 192 S. W. 271.

III. METHODS OF WORK, RULES AND ORDERS

33. Methods of work and duty to protect servant in general.—Testimony in action for death of employé held to warrant jury in finding negligent starting of machinery by another employé. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Graves (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 979.

In an action by the servant of a cattle company for injuries due to exposure and frostbite while lost in a blizzard, evidence that plaintiff was sent on an errand to a ranch 32 miles away, and became lost, but was subsequently overtaken by defendant's president and general manager, directed anew, and instructed to meet them at a designated camp, which, however, the latter left without sending out a search party after plaintiff was 1½ hours overdue and not in sight, when darkness and a blizzard were approaching, held to show negligence. C. C. Slaughter Cattle Co. v. Pastrana (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 749.

35. Knowledge of danger.—If by ordinary care a master who has sent a servant to do a perilous thing should have known of the danger, or by the exercise of ordinary care might have known, though actual knowledge was absent, he would be guilty of negligence if the situation was such that he might have known the danger to the servant by ordinary care. Baker v. Bell (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 245.

38. Negligence in giving orders.—Employer knowing that duty of turning on electric switch was dangerous, and that employé was ignorant of such danger, was negligent in ordering employé to turn on switch. San Antonio Portland Cement Co. v. Gschwender (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 967.

IV. WARNING AND INSTRUCTING SERVANTS

39. Duty to warn and instruct in general.—One employed by a city to remove rubbish, etc., from street gutters cannot recover from the city for injury received when in such work he sprained his ankle by stepping on a three-cornered brick in the gutter, which turned over the city owing him no duty of warning. Dawson v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1056.

In action by servant injured by an explosion of accumulated gas alleged to have resulted when bucket struck a hard substance, brought on theory of negligence in failing to warn servant of the danger of ignition when the bucket struck a hard substance, evidence held not to show the negligence alleged. Ebersole v. Sapp (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 156.

As a general rule, it is not the duty of the employer to warn the employé of a danger incident to the service; but, where there are hazards which the master knows of or ought to know that are unknown to the servant, it is his duty to warn. Southern Pac. Co. v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 151.

40. Delegation of duty.—Religious hospital corporation operating a laundry was liable for injury to minor servant resulting from failure of forewoman on request to instruct her as to way to stop mangle before extricating clothes clogging it, and thus to avoid danger; hospital's duty to instruct and warn being nondelegable. Hotel Dieu v. Armendarez (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 518.

41. Inexperienced or youthful employé.—A minor servant, of capacity to appreciate the danger, or who has acquired the knowledge otherwise than by instruction from master, need not be warned or instructed, but mere fact servant knows that employment is dangerous does not relieve master of further instruction as to extent of danger and means of avoiding it. Hotel Dieu v. Armendarez (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 518.

It is duty of master to warn and instruct minor servant as to dangers incident to service which are known to master, or could be known by reasonable care, and which the servant, because of immature judgment and want of experience, cannot reasonably be expected to know and appreciate. Id.

42. Dangers known to employé.—Where grab setter was aware of danger attendant upon his attempt to chuck a wheel in obedience to order of foreman, held, that there was no necessity for warning by foreman. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Hardy (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 211.

Where danger of employment is not understood or appreciated by adult employé, the master is only required to warn him, but is not required to explain details of danger or how to avoid it, where danger should be readily understood by employé, and in neither instance will master be held liable, where danger is known and appreciated. Id.

Sawmill owner was not guilty of negligence in failing to warn and instruct a boy 15 years of age of the dangers inherent in his work, where the boy had been working at the mill five or six months and was very intelligent, and testified with great clearness as to the arrangement and operation of the machinery and the handling of the lumber and how the wheel gearings which caused his injury were operated, and that he knew that injury would result to him if he crawled under a table where the gearings were placed. Van Landers v. West Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 692.

V. NUMBER AND COMPETENCY OF FELLOW EMPLOYEES

48. Competency.—In an action by a servant for personal injuries, it was error to admit evidence of incompetency of another who caused the injury, in the absence of an allegation that the employer knew of such incompetency. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. Sherbley (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 758.

VI. NEGLIGENCE OF FELLOW SERVANTS

51. Negligence as ground of liability in general.—In order that an employer may take advantage of the exemption contained in Employers' Liability Act, § 2 (art. 5246—2), so as to permit him to interpose the defense of negligence of fellow servant, he must allege and prove his exemption thereunder. Pullman Co. v. Ransaw (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 122.

53. Nature of act of fellow servant and performance of duties of master.—In an action by a servant for injury from explosion, evidence held sufficient to show that the employé whose negligence caused the explosion was acting within the scope of his employment. Abilene Steam Laundry Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 571.

54. Vice principals.—Foreman who had control over men working under him, and whose recommendations for employment and discharge of employés in his department were invariably made effective by the company, was a vice principal. San Antonio Portland Cement Co. v. Gschwender (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 967.

55. — Nature of act or omission, and performance of duties of master.—Head blacksmith's neglect to see that sledge he was furnishing helper was safe will be imputed to common employer, head blacksmith being latter's personal representative with nondelegable duty to see tools are safe. Sante Fé Tie & Lumber Preserving Co. v. Collins (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 164.

In servant's action for injuries when sledge hammer he was using flew off handle, evidence held to support finding that the head blacksmith was personal representative of employer, charged with nondelegable duty to see tools were safe. Id.

Where employer knew that certain duty was dangerous, and that employé was ignorant of such danger, it was liable for death of employé incurred in the discharge of the duty, after being ordered to discharge duty by foreman, the negligence being that of the employer. San Antonio Portland Cement Co. v. Gschwender (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 967.

58. Concurrent negligence of master and fellow servant.—If, through a fellow servant's negligence, bricks fell on plaintiff working in manhole, employers would be liable if the danger of piling the brick around the edge of the manhole was discovered by their foreman in time to have it remedied. Atterbury v. Horton & Horton (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 235.

A master is liable to his employé for injury resulting from master's negligence concurring with that of fellow servant. Florence v. Belt (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 351.

VII. ASSUMPTION OF RISK

61. Nature and extent in general.—Defense of assumed risk rests upon implied contract on the part of the servant to assume risk of all dangers ordinarily incident to the service in which he is engaged. City of Weatherford Water, Light & Ice Co. v. Veit (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 986.

Where defendants did not contend that they were subscribers to Employers' Insurance Association, or had been precluded from becoming such by art. 5246—2, court properly denied defense of assumed risk. Skelton & Wear v. Wolfe (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 901.

Where there is no negligence on the part of the master, assumption of risk has no place in the case. Southern Pac. Co. v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 151.

62. Reliance on care of master.—An instruction on assumption of risk that conveys the idea that the injured servant was bound to inspect and search for negligent acts and omissions of the master is improper. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Challen (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 213.

65. Dangerous operations and methods of work.—In employé's action for injuries while working as grab setter, when log was thrown against him by bunching team which had been attached to it to pull it up a hill, under the evidence, held, that he assumed the risk. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Hardy (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 211.

67. Incompetency or negligence of fellow servants.—Servant assumes risks caused by negligence of fellow servant. Taylor v. White (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 656.

68. Knowledge by servant of defect or danger.—Before Workmen's Compensation Act, if employé's injury resulted from risks incident to his employment, of which he knew or in exercise of ordinary care must have known or had been apprised, or which were obvious or grew out of operation of simplest laws of nature, or which were equally as open to him as to employer, held, that employé assumed the risks and is not entitled to recover. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Hardy (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 211.

An experienced employé familiar with an unfenced exciter in an electric power plant and fully appreciating danger of injury from contact with it while in operation assumes the risk. Taylor v. White (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 656.

69. Inexperienced or youthful employé.—An electric merry-go-round operator, having no experience with electricity, and no knowledge that the switch is defective and likely to close the circuit by its own weight so as to start the machine while he is making repairs, is not chargeable with knowledge of the danger. Hutcherson v. Amarillo St. Ry. Co. (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 931.

72. Promise to remedy defect or remove danger.—A servant is not relieved of the assumption of risks of a known defect by reason of a promise to remedy unless he continues in the service in reliance on such promise and has reasonable grounds to expect its fulfillment. Taylor v. White (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 656.

75. Concurrent negligence of master or vice principal.—Where grab setter was aware of danger attendant upon his attempt to chock a wheel in obedience to order of foreman, held, that presence of latter acting as vice principal did not deprive employer of defense of assumption of risk. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Hardy (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 211.

VIII. CONTRIBUTORY NEGLIGENCE

76. Application of the doctrine in general.—That employé injured through structural defect in elevator, which he was operating, was guilty of contributory negligence, is immaterial, since judgment for the injury was recovered on question whether employer can enforce indemnity against manufacturer and seller of elevator. Otis Elevator Co. v. Cameron (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 852.

78. Care required of servant.—Evidence held not to show contributory negligence on the part of a servant using a defective tool. Palermo Bros. v. Capps (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 275.

80. Reliance on care of master.—A telephone lineman could assume that his master had provided him with a safe place to work. City of Weatherford Water, Light & Ice Co. v. Veit (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 986.

84. Knowledge of defects or dangers.—In action for death of employé incurred in turning on electric switch, in compliance with order, evidence held insufficient to sustain finding that employé realized the danger. San Antonio Portland Cement Co. v. Gschwender (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 967.

An employé could not be negligent in performance of dangerous duty where he had no knowledge of the danger. Id.

86. Dangerous methods of work.—In action by servant for injury from planing machine, evidence held not to show plaintiff was negligent. West Lumber Co. v. Tomme (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 784.

87. Disobedience of rules or orders.—Evidence regarding warnings and protests by employer's superintendent against employé descending into vat to rescue fellow employé held to sustain trial court's finding that they did not constitute commands not to undertake rescue. General Accident, Fire & Life Assur. Corp. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 705.

IX. WORKMENS' COMPENSATION ACT

Cited.—Georgia Casualty Co. v. Ward (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 298; United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Ross (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 639; United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 616; Board of Water Engineers v. McKnight (Sup.) 229 S. W. 301; Millers' Indemnity Underwriters v. Cook (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 598; Dool v. City of Waco (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 176.

92. Constitutionality.—This act does not deprive employé of liberty and property without due process of law, in that he may be required to accept act, if employer does, or withdraw from employment. It does not deny the equal protection of the laws, in that discrimination results from operation of act as between employés of different employers engaged in the same work, where one employer becomes a subscriber and another does not, or because option to become a subscriber rests with employer, and dissenting employé has no other remedy than withdrawing from the employment, or because it excludes from operation of the act domestic servants, farm laborers, employés of railroad carrier, laborers working cotton gin, and employés of persons, etc., employing no more than five; there being sufficient reasons as to each class for their exclusion. Middleton v. Texas Power & Light Co., 249 U. S. 153, 39 Sup. Ct. 227, 63 L. Ed. 527.

One not an employé in an excepted class in this act may not assert any grievance that excepted class might have to the validity of the act. Id.

92a. Scope and application of act.—Employers' Liability Act, applying to all corporations having more than five employes, applies to a city. Dunaway v. Austin St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1157.

Action on policy issued under Workmen's Compensation Act for accidental drowning on dredge upon navigable water is not one within exclusive admiralty jurisdiction of federal court. Southern Surety Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 343.

92b. Conflict of ordinance with act.—San Antonio ordinance of August 27, 1917, regulating automobiles used for hire, is not in conflict with the Texas employers' liability act. Craddock v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 634.

92c. General rules of construction.—To effectuate the purpose of the Workmen's Compensation Act, to provide means for speedy adjustment of industrial accidents, and to insure compensation, its provisions should be liberally construed in favor of those claiming compensation. Western Indemnity Co. v. Leonard (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 1101; American Indemnity Co. v. Dinkins (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 949; Lumbermen's Reciprocal Ass'n v. Behnken (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 154; Eastern Texas Electric Co. v. Woods (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 498.

Since the Workmen's Compensation Act is largely copied from the Massachusetts Act, it should receive the same construction as that given the latter act by the courts of that state. Home Life & Accident Co. v. Corsey (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 464.

94. Assumption of risk.—In an action against an employer amenable to the provisions of this act, but not having qualified, assumption of risk is not a defense. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. Sherbley (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 758.

Defense of assumed risk is not available to employer who was not a subscriber under this act. Bering Mfg. Co. v. Sedita (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 639.

The Workmen's Compensation, Act abolished the defense of assumed risk. West Lumber Co. v. Keen (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 625.

95. Contributory negligence.—In a personal injury case, after instruction as to contributory negligence, and that verdict for plaintiff should be diminished in proportion to the amount of his negligence, under this article before its amendment, a verdict for the plaintiff finds defendant's negligence was the proximate cause of plaintiff's injury. McBride v. Hodges (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 877.

Where employe loses his life in rescuing fellow employe while both are working in course of their employment, relatives may recover workmen's compensation, at least where deceased was not positively prohibited by his employer from undertaking rescue. General Accident, Fire & Life Assur. Corp. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 705.

96. Remedies of employe in general.—In an action by a servant for personal injuries against an employer amenable to the provisions of Employers' Liability Act, but not having qualified, recovery could be had, under this article, subd. 4, for negligence of the employer in hiring an inexperienced and incompetent employe. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. Sherbley (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 758.

In such case it is necessary, in order to recover on the ground of negligence of the employer in hiring inexperienced and incompetent servants, to allege and prove that the employer knew of the inexperience and incompetency of the servant, or should have known it. Id.

98. Cause of injury and injuries in course of employment.—In a suit under the Workmen's Compensation Act, evidence held to show that the lifting of a can of paint caused the bursting of a blood vessel and the death of an employe. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 662.

Where lifting of a can of paint caused a blood vessel in a servant's lungs to burst, there was an "accidental injury" within the meaning of the emergency clause of the Workmen's Compensation Act. Id.

Where assistant engineer on dredge was accidentally drowned while off duty in attempting to save dredge from shipwreck, accident arose out of his employment within the Workmen's Compensation Act. Southern Surety Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 343.

Assistant engineer on dredge, accidentally drowned in storm while off duty and while attempting to save dredge from shipwreck, was killed in "course of his employment" within Workmen's Compensation Act. Id.

Where assistant engineer was accidentally drowned while on board dredge because of violent storm, recovery could not be defeated under Workmen's Compensation Act because the accident was act of God. Id.

Where intestate was injured while working on employer's barn under its orders and control and for its benefit, he was injured in course of his employment. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Curtis (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1162.

Under Workmen's Compensation Act, compensation may be awarded, although employer's negligence did not proximately cause injury. General Accident, Fire & Life Assur. Corporation v. Evans (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 705.

Although an employe's employment may continue for an interval after he has ceased working, there must be a line beyond which the liability of the employer cannot continue, and the question where that line is to be drawn in each case is to be determined by the facts themselves. American Indemnity Co. v. Dinkins (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 949.

Petition alleging that deceased, employed as an electric engineer, registered out for the day at the entrance gate, and started for home to secure rest, and had gotten a short distance, when he was struck by an automobile, was demurrable because it showed that injury was not sustained in the "course of employment," within Workmen's Compensation Law. Id.

Injuries sustained by deceased, three-quarters of a mile from refinery, where he was employed as electric engineer, after he had registered out for the day and started for home to secure rest, did not occur while he was engaged in the furtherance of the affairs of his employer, within Workmen's Compensation Law. Id.

In suit under Workmen's Compensation Law, held, under the undisputed evidence, that court erred in refusing to find that the injury occurred on one of the main public roads, which was not the only road leading to and from the plant of the employer. Id.

To come within the term "injury received in the course of employment," it must be shown that the injury originated in the work, and, further, that it was received by the employé while engaged in the furtherance of the affairs of the employer. Id.

In suit under Workmen's Compensation Law, held, under the undisputed evidence, that court erred in refusing to find as a fact that employé was injured after he had punched the time clock and after he had been relieved for the working day. Id.

One employed by a laundry to collect and deliver, and to collect the charges on delivery, who, though he had turned in his wagon at night, was on his way to a customer's residence to collect a laundry bill when he was killed by an automobile, was at the time engaged in the performance of his duties, within the Workmen's Compensation Act. Employers' Indemnity Corporation v. Kirkpatrick (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 956.

Helper on truck, under the control of driver deviating from route, and who was killed on return trip, held to have sustained injury in the course of his employment. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. v. Durham (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 275.

Where an employé was accidentally drowned while on a dredge on account of a violent storm, recovery on the employer's insurance policies could not be defeated under the Workmen's Compensation Act on the ground the accident was an act of God. South-ern Surety Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 298.

No direct causal connection between the employment and the injury is required; it being sufficient that it had to do with and originated in the employer's business and that the employé at the time was engaged in or about the furtherance of the employer's affairs. Lumbermen's Reciprocal Ass'n v. Behnken (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 154.

The expression "in the course of the employment" refers to the time, place, and circumstances of the accident. Id.

Where an entire town, probably, including a railroad track running through it, was on the employer's land, and the only well-defined crossing over the railroad track was a more or less private way leading to the employer's various buildings, and an employé who had gone home for dinner, as was customary, was returning to his work by such private way in the usual routine of his service when struck by a train, the injury was sustained in the course of the employment, though the employer had nothing to do with such train. Id.

Where a lumber company owned all the property around its sawmill and an employé riding homeward from his work on his velocipede on the company's tramroad was killed by a train at a point 1½ miles from the mill, held, that the remedy of his widow was not limited to proceeding under the Workmen's Compensation Act. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Scurlock (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 975.

Where a shipbuilding company operated under a contract with the federal government, on a cost plus profits basis, and the company's expenses in furnishing railroad transportation to its employés were part of the cost, and an employé, after leaving the train at the place of work and while he was on the railroad right of way, started to return to the train on seeing a signal that there would be no work that day, and was injured in jumping across a ditch between him and the train, the injury occurred in the course of the employment, within Workmen's Compensation Act, so as to be compensable, though he occupied the relation of passenger to the federal administration of railroads as carrier; there being an election of remedies under part 2, § 6a (art. 5246—47), of the act, if the circumstances created a liability against the carrier. Western Indemnity Co. v. Leonard (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 1101.

99. — Intoxication.—Intoxication, to be available as a defense under this article, must have contributed to the happening of the accident or the disability resulting therefrom. That employé killed when truck in which he was riding overturned as result of driver's negligence was intoxicated would be no defense where no act of employé contributed to injury, causing death; such intoxication not being the proximate cause. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. v. Durham (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 275.

Art. 5246—2. [5246hh] Inapplicable to certain classes of employés.—The provisions of this Act shall not apply to actions to recover damages for the personal injuries nor for death resulting from personal injuries sustained by domestic servants, farm laborers, ranch laborers, nor to employés of any firm, person or corporation having in his or their employ less than three (3) employés, nor to the employés of any person, firm or corporation operating any steam, electric, street, or interurban railway as a common carrier, Provided, that any employer of three or more employés at the time of becoming a subscriber shall remain a subscriber subject to all the rights, liabilities, duties and exemptions of such, notwithstanding after having become a subscriber the number of employés may at times be less than three. [Acts 1913, p. 429, pt. 1, § 2;

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Farm or ranch laborers.—Although a corporation is mainly engaged in cattle raising, with farming as a side issue, an employé injured while performing labor for the corporation in its farming operations, or in furtherance thereof, would be a "farm laborer." C. C. Slaughter Cattle Co. v. Pastrana (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 749.

A servant employed to poison prairie dogs for his employer, who was engaged in cattle raising and incidentally conducting farm operations, held not a farm laborer. Id.

Railroad companies.—Electric company operating a street railway in a city and an interurban railway, and engaged in furnishing electric light to the public and electric power for commercial purposes, held subject to the Workmen's Compensation Act, in so far as it applied to its employés engaged in operating the electric power department of its business. Eastern Texas Electric Co. v. Woods (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 498.

The Workmen's Compensation Act and the act increasing the powers of street and interurban railway corporations, having been passed at the same session of the Legislature, the Thirty-Fifth, and within a few days of each other, it is to be presumed that they are imbued with the same spirit, and actuated by the same policy, and they should be construed each in the light of the other in determining employments within Compensation Act. Id.

Number of employés.—Where it appears that a company sued for personal injuries by its servant employés more than five servants, it is subject to the Workmen's Compensation Act, whether a subscriber or not, and consequently cannot plead assumption of risk. Wichita Falls Motor Co. v. Meade (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 71.

Assumption of risk.—Where defendants did not contend that they were subscribers or had been precluded from becoming such by this article, court properly denied defense of assumed risk. Skelton & Wear v. Wolfe (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 901.

Evidence.—If city did not employ five men so as not to come within the Employers' Liability Act, such matter should be alleged and proved by the city. Dunaway v. Austin St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1157.

In order that an employer may take advantage of the exemption contained in Employers' Liability Act, § 2, so as to permit him to interpose the defense of negligence of fellow servant, he must allege and prove his exemption thereunder. Pullman Co. v. Ransaw (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 122.

Art. 5246—3. [5246i] No right of action against subscribing employer; compensation from Texas Employers Insurance Association.

See Southern Surety Co. v. Houston Lighting & Power Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1115; Batson-Milholme Co. v. Faulk (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 837.

Cited, Dallas Hotel Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 647; Cole v. Mallory S. S. Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 326.

Subscribing under act in general.—Election of one to take under Employers' Liability Act is sufficiently shown by his making claim thereunder and prosecuting it to final adjudication, so that if he is an employé within part 1, § 2, of the act, he has no right of action against his employer, if the latter is a subscriber under the act, irrespective of whether the employer gave him notice of being a subscriber. Texas Refining Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 131.

The notice to employé prescribed by arts. 5246—1, 5246—77, 5246—78, creates the relation of subscriber employer and employé, such act being mandatory, and requiring the actual giving of written or printed notice by employer to employé. Farmers' Petroleum Co. v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 194.

Where a servant waived the want of notice required by the Employers' Liability Act and sought compensation for injuries before the Industrial Accident Board, he could not thereafter recover from the employer by action in court, in view of this article Poe v. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 488.

Compensation for death of employé under the Workmen's Compensation Act, as amended by Laws 1917, c. 103, arises out of the contractual relation between the employer and the deceased employé, and is in substitution for damages ordinarily recovered by statute because of the death of the employé due to the negligence of the employer. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Boudreaux (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 756.

Effect of denial of award under act.—Denial by Industrial Accident Board of workman's claim for compensation on ground that, as casual employé, he was not employé within Employers' Liability Act had effect of remitting to their common-law rights both him and the company he claimed to be liable for his injury. Texas Refining Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 131.

Art. 5246—4. Notice by employé of election to assert common law liability; subsequent waiver; common law action preserved.

See Batson-Milholme Co. v. Faulk (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 837.

Failure to give notice.—An employé of a subscriber under the Workmen's Compensation Law by failing to give the notice provided by this article, waives his right to claim damages for compensation except under art. 5246—5, and thus waives his right to assert common-law liability, and consents to the terms of the act, and may be compelled to submit to a physical examination in his action to set aside an award and for compensation in a lump sum. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Downing (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 112.

Art. 5246—5. Employés waiving common law rights to recover compensation.

See Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Downing (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 112; note under art. 5246—4.

Art. 5246—6. [5246ii] Employés, etc., of nonsubscribing employer may sue at common law; may not participate in benefits of association.

Cited, Vaughan v. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 261.

Action for benefit of heirs.—Workmen's Compensation Act, art. 5246ii, held not to allow an action for benefit of heirs of a deceased employé, but to restrict such action to those persons enumerated in art. 4698. Cole v. Mallory S. S. Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 326.

Art. 5246—7. [5246j] Recovery of exemplary damages in certain cases not excluded; award not to be pleaded or introduced in evidence.

See Trinity County Lumber Co. v. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 531.

Art. 5246—8. [5246jj] No compensation for incapacity not extending beyond one week; medical aid.

Operation in general.—No compensation can be paid for an injury which does not incapacitate the employé for at least one week. U. S. Fidelity & Guarantee Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 616.

Effect of insurance.—Corporation was not liable for medical services rendered an employé in absence of special authority from board of directors, where corporation had provided method of caring for injuries to employés by means of insurance it had taken out for their benefit under the Workmen's Compensation Act. Producers' Oil Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 68.

Affecting computation of payments.—Under art. 5246—18, providing that the association will pay the injured employé a weekly compensation for not more than 400 weeks from date of injury, while art. 5246—8 provides that compensation shall begin to accrue on the eighth day after the injury, or after incapacity commences, if total and permanent incapacity continues for 400 weeks after the date of the injury, the servant is entitled to compensation for 400 weeks, not 401 weeks. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Downing (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 112.

Art. 5246—9. [5246k] Medical and hospital aid during first two weeks; notice of injury; additional hospital services on certificate of attending physician.

First aid treatment.—Under the Workmen's Compensation Law of 1917, an injured employé may, at the time of the injury or immediately thereafter, call in any available physician to render first-aid treatment as may be reasonably necessary at the expense of the association. Home Life & Accident Co. v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 131.

Notice of injury.—Under Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5246k, a servant cannot recover for medical aid where the insurer was not notified of the injury. American Indemnity Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 686.

Liability of employer to physician.—Under this article, a physician, furnishing medical aid to injured employé, may recover direct from the insurer. Home Life & Accident Co. v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 131.

Although Workmen's Compensation Law allows a physician to recover for only two weeks' services, yet where the services rendered an injured employé were surgical in their nature, and treatment given after the expiration of two-week period was only incidental, the actual services having been fully rendered, the physician may recover, although the services covered a period in excess of two weeks. Id.

Under the Employers' Liability Act of 1917, an employer, though a member of the Texas Employers' Insurance Association, who engages a physician for an injured employé, may become liable for the physician's compensation. Huddleston v. Texas Pipe Line Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 250.

In an action to enjoin a judgment obtained by a physician against an employer, held, that the question whether the physician was informed that he must look to the Texas Employers' Insurance Association, and not to the employer, should have been submitted to the jury. Id.

Payment of salary to physician and retention of fees.—It was not against public policy, under this article, for an employer to agree to pay a doctor a salary, the employer to retain the medical fees allowed by the insurance association. Sherrill v. Union Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 149.

If it is against public policy for an employer to contract to pay a doctor a salary and retain the medical fees allowed by the insurance association under this article, physician entering into such a contract is in pari delicto and cannot sue the employer for such fees, having received and retained his salary, since he cannot affirm in part and repudiate in part. Id.

Recovery from insurer.—Any one who pays for medical services for a servant may recover from the insurer, under this article. American Indemnity Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 686.

Where the court rendering judgment in favor of physician who treated an injured employé considered the reasonable value of the services of a necessary assistant, but did not make any separate award in favor of the assistant, the insurer cannot complain. Home Life & Accident Co. v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 131.

An insurer is liable for medical aid rendered by a physician procured by the injured employé either where the physician was procured by the direction of the employer or where the employer had notified the insurer and it had failed to furnish medical aid. Id.

Art. 5246—11. Board may regulate medical and hospital fees and charges; payment.

Reasonableness of charges.—In an injured employé's action under the Workmen's Compensation Law, a petition which does not allege that there was a failure to furnish reasonable medical aid when needed, or within a reasonable time after notice of the injury, nor that the doctor's charges therefor are reasonable, does not state a cause of action for the recovery of such charges. Home Life & Accident Co. v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 802.

Art. 5246—14. [5246kk] Compensation where death results.

See Southern Surety Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 343; Georgia Casualty Co. v. Griesenbeck (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 273.

Cited, Cole v. Mallory S. S. Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 326.

Who are beneficiaries.—The brothers of a deceased servant were "beneficiaries" within the meaning of Workmen's Compensation Act 1913 (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5246kk). American Indemnity Co. v. Zyloni (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 183.

Application of death statute.—Death Injury Statute, Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 4698, must be looked to as indicating whom Legislature intended as beneficiaries, under Workmen's Compensation Act, art. 5246kk, of employé, unmarried, without children, father, or mother, but with brothers and sisters, instead of Statute of Descent and Distribution, art. 2461, § 3, so that brothers and sisters were not "legal beneficiaries" within art. 5246kk. Vaughan v. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 261.

Under Workmen's Compensation Act 1913, § 8 (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5246kk), declaring that compensation shall be paid to legal beneficiaries to be distributed according to the law of descent, the beneficiaries as well as the apportionment must be determined by that law, and not by art. 4698, governing recovery of damages for wrongful death. Vaughan v. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co., 109 Tex. 298, 206 S. W. 920.

Effect of previous payments to deceased.—The heirs of a deceased employé previously awarded compensation for 100 weeks for injuries have no right to such compensation on the death of the employé not due to the injuries, before the term of compensation had expired. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Salsar (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 557.

Computation of amount.—Defendant cannot complain, on appeal, of court's failure to calculate the compensation due exactly as required by the statute, where amount allowed was less than it would have been if statute had been strictly followed. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. v. Durham (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 275.

Art. 5246—15. Beneficiaries in case of death; exempt from execution; mode of distribution; to whom paid; how paid.

Cited, Vaughan v. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 920.

Validity.—The courts are not concerned with the wisdom of the plan adopted by the Legislature in apportioning compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Boudreaux (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 756.

Nature of right of beneficiaries.—Under workmen's compensation statute, amount which relatives of employé who loses his life are entitled to receive does not come to them by inheritance from deceased, nor does it become part of his estate, and only cause of action which relatives have is given by statute, and vests originally in beneficiaries named. Aetna Life Ins. Co. v. Otis Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 376.

As community property.—Compensation awarded under the Workmen's Compensation Act, as amended by Laws 1917, for death of a servant is neither the community nor separate property of the deceased, and does not pass to the estate of the deceased to be administered upon, but is payable directly to those to whom it is awarded. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Boudreaux (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 756.

Where husband and father is killed in an accident, compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act, as amended by Laws 1917, c. 103, partakes more nearly of community than of separate property, and should be distributed according to the statute of descent and distribution applicable in distributing community property, one-half going to the wife and one-half to the children, under Rev. St. 1911, art. 2469. Id.

Who are beneficiaries.—Under the Workmen's Compensation and Employers' Liability Act, only the dependent and widowed mother of deceased minor servant, and not his minor brothers and sisters, held entitled to compensation. Southern Surety Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 187.

Proof that deceased employé, a 19 year old farmer boy who was his parents' chief help on their rented farm where he worked, sought temporary employment to obtain money to buy clothing for himself with intent to return to the farm to assist his parents, who were poor and failing in health and strength, held to justify a finding that they were "dependent" upon him. Southern Surety Co. v. Hibbs (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 303.

The test of dependency is, not whether the family could support life without the services or contributions of the deceased, but whether they depended upon them as part of their income or means of living. Id.

Mode of apportionment.—Compensation Act, pt. 1, § 8a, providing that beneficiaries in case of death of husband will take by law of descent, means descent relating to community property, and not per capita, as provided by law of descent relating to separate property, especially since the Industrial Board construed the law that way immediately after its passage, and many cases have been decided on that theory. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Boudreaux (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 674.

The statutes of descent and distribution (Rev. St. 1911, arts. 2469, 2462) must be looked to for a rule by which to apportion compensation among dependents for the death of a servant under the Workmen's Compensation Act, pt. 1, § 8a, as added by Laws 1917, c. 103 (Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 5246—15). Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Boudreaux (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 756.

Art. 5246—17. [5246/l] Where there are no beneficiaries association shall pay expenses of last sickness and funeral expenses.

See U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. Davis (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 700.

Cited, Vaughan v. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 261.

Art. 5246—18. [5246//] Compensation for total incapacity.

See American Indemnity Co. v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 1011; Home Life & Accident Co. v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 802.

Duration of payments.—Under Workmen's Compensation Law, providing that the association will pay the injured employé a weekly compensation for not more than 400 weeks from date of injury, while art. 5246—8 provides that compensation shall begin to accrue on the eighth day after the injury, or after incapacity commences, if total and permanent incapacity continues for 400 weeks after the date of the injury, the servant is entitled to compensation for 400 weeks, not 401 weeks. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Downing (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 112.

Art. 5246—19. [5246m] Compensation for partial incapacity.

See Home Life & Accident Co. v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 802.

Art. 5246—20. What constitutes total incapacity; burden of proof.

See Home Life & Accident Co. v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 802.

What constitutes total incapacity.—The phrase "total incapacity for work," in the Workmen's Compensation Act, does not imply an absolute disability to perform any kind of labor, and a person disqualified from performing the usual tasks of a workman in such a way as to render him unable to procure and retain employment is ordinarily regarded as being totally incapacitated. Home Life & Accident Co. v. Corsey (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 464.

Evidence.—Evidence held sufficient to support a finding that injured servant, claiming compensation under Workmen's Compensation Act, suffered total incapacity for the period stated in the finding. Home Life & Accident Co. v. Corsey (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 464.

Art. 5246—21. [5246mm] Compensation for specified injuries.

See Home Life & Accident Co. v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 802.

Computation of compensation.—In computing compensation for partial disability the proper method is to limit 60 per cent. of the average weekly wages to $15 per week and fix the compensation by multiplying this 60 per cent. by the percentage of disability and not by multiplying 60 per cent. of the average weekly wages, by the percentage of disability, limiting the compensation to $15 per week. Western Indemnity Co. v. Milam (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 825.

Art. 5246—23. Claims for hernia, etc.

Evidence.—In an action to set aside an award under the Workmen's Compensation Law, evidence held sufficient to support a jury finding that the hernia for which compensation was granted did not exist in any degree prior to the injury, though it was undisputed that the employé had another hernia prior to such injury. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Ross (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 639.

Art. 5246—24. Compensation for subsequent injury.

Compensation from former employer.—The fact that an injured employé may have obtained compensation for total incapacity from another master for a subsequent injury to which he was not entitled cannot defeat his right to recover compensation for total disability in an action against the insurer of the first master, the fraud, if any, being on the second, and not the first, master. Home Life & Accident Co. v. Corsey (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 464.

Art. 5246—25. Change in compensation awarded during incapacity; review.

In general.—In view of Workmen's Compensation Act, pt. 2, § 5 (Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 5246—44), a court trying a workmen's compensation case by implication has the power given the Industrial Accident Board by part 1, § 15 (art. 5246—33), to approve any agreed lump sum settlement, and the power given it by section 12d (art. 5246—25) to review, terminate, diminish, or increase an award for compensation made. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 239.

In a workmen's compensation case, the form of judgment proposed by the servant, embodying the right and power of the court to review it and diminish, increase, or terminate the liability of the insurer in accordance with part 1, § 12d, with the right in the insurer at any time to redeem its entire liability by payment of a lump sum on agreement with the servant, with the approval of the Industrial Accident Board, in accordance with part 1, § 15 (art. 5246—33), held proper, with modification of provisions as to executions and the approval of the trial court of any lump sum settlement. Id.

The power rests with the Industrial Accident Board to terminate compensation for an injured employé at any time on a showing that his injury had healed. Employers' Indemnity Corporation v. Woods (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 461.

Failure of losing party in a proceeding under pt. 1, § 12d, and part 2, § 5 (arts. 5246—25, 5246—44), to perfect his appeal after notice thereof by the filing of suit within the statutory period, is an abandonment of the appeal, and the administration of the claim rests with the Board as if no notice had been given. Miller's Indemnity Underwriters v. Hayes (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 833.

Grounds for change.—The Industrial Accident Board, though not expressly authorized to correct its awards except for purpose of readjusting compensation, has inherent power to correct errors, inadvertences, and mistakes; but such authority must be exercised in harmony with provisions giving the courts jurisdiction to set aside awards. Blair v. Millers' Indemnity Underwriters (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 787.

Under Workmen's Compensation Law as amended by Act March 28, 1917, pt. 1, § 12d, authorizing correction, during the compensation period, on application of any person interested showing a change of conditions, mistake, or fraud, of an award previously made, it is only a mistake of fact, and not one of law, as how much per week can be awarded for a permanent injury, which can be so corrected. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. Davis (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 700.

Art. 5246—28. Contributions from employés prohibited; effect of violation.

See Courchesne v. Brown (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 674.

Art. 5246—30. Mode of estimating weekly wage of minors; hazardous employments.

Unlawful employment of minor.—In view of this article, the Workmen's Compensation Act does not apply to infants employed around dangerous machinery in violation of Pen. Code, art. 1050. Waterman Lumber Co. v. Beatty (Civ. App.) 294 S. W. 448.

A minor under 15 years, whose employment by a lumber company at its sawmill was illegal and made punishable by Acts 1917, c. 59 (Vernon's Ann. Pen. Code Supp. 1918, art. 1050e), was not an "employé," within this article, to entitle his mother to compensation for his death. Galloway v. Lumbermen's Indemnity Exchange (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 536.

Art. 5246—32. [5246nn] No waiver of rights.

Application in general.—Under the Employers' Liability Act of 1913, art. 5246q of which authorizes an award if not settled by agreement of the parties, a settlement, made without fraud after injury, is binding; this article referring only to agreements made prior to injury. Jenkins v. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 349.

Art. 5246—33. [5246nnn] Lump sum for death or total permanent incapacity.

See Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Boudreaux (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 756.

Cited, United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Parker (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 195.

Right to and amount of lump sum payment.—Under Acts 33d Leg. pt. 1, §§ 10, 15, and part 4, § 2 (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 5246ll, 5246nnn, 5246yyyy) as to payment, an injured employé suing an indemnity company in which the employer was insured, in the absence of agreement, is entitled to judgment in lump sum for the compensation already due and for weekly installments during the balance of the time in which he is entitled to compensation. American Indemnity Co. v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 1011.

A discount is required when the compensation is increased and the number of weeks is decreased. Western Indemnity Co. v. Milam (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 825.

Grounds for allowance.—In view of Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 5246—33, providing that insurer's liability in case of servant's death or total permanent incapacity may be redeemed by payment of a lump sum by parties' agreement, but excluding any other lump sum settlement, except where in the judgment of the board manifest hardship or injustice would otherwise result, and art. 5246—34, contemplating that weekly compensation would sometimes work hardships, the facts that a lump sum settlement would enable the injured servant to live upon his unimproved farm, and that he could not support his family in town upon the weekly allowances, are to be considered. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Downing (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 112.

In action for death of employé under Employers' Liability Act, held, under the facts, that court properly awarded a lump sum rather than a weekly allowance. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. v. Durham (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 275.

Where a deceased employé's widow was left without property of any kind and with seven small children not old enough to assist in earning a living, and four of whom were under five years of age, an award of a lump sum was not an abuse of discretion, especially where the oldest children would in a few years be able to increase the family earnings. Lumbermen's Reciprocal Ass'n v. Behnken (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 154.

The association cannot be required to make a lump sum settlement, except in case of death or total permanent incapacity, notwithstanding that manifest hardship or injustice might result by denial of lump sum settlement, in view of arts. 5246—14, 5246—15, 5246—18, 5246—19, 5246—21, 5246—22, 5246—23, 5246—34, 5246—37. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 872.

Power and jurisdiction to make award.—In view of Workmen's Compensation Act, pt. 2, § 5 (Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 5246—44), a court trying a workmen's compensation case by implication has the power given the Industrial Accident Board by this article, to approve any agreed lump sum settlement, and the power given it by section 12d (art. 5246—25) to review, terminate, diminish, or increase an award for compensation made. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 239.

Under Workmen's Compensation Act, pt. 1, §§ 14, 15, 18, pt. 2, § 12, the justice court did not have jurisdiction to try the issue of a lump sum settlement by a compensation insurer with an injured employé; the amount involved exceeding the jurisdiction of the court. Employers' Indemnity Corporation v. Woods (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 461.

Under the general jurisdiction of courts of the state they have no power to decree lump settlements in favor of injured employés under the Workmen's Compensation Act. Id.

Agreement to accept lump sum in full settlement.—No estoppel arose in favor of a workmen's compensation insurer against an injured employé who agreed to accept a lump sum settlement, the employé having been without power to contract in the premises, as the insurer knew, and the justice court which rendered judgment for such a lump sum settlement having been without jurisdiction to hear and determine the issue. Employers' Indemnity Corporation v. Woods (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 461.

Under Workmen's Compensation Act, pt. 1, §§ 14, 15, 18, pt. 2, § 12, it was the intention of the Legislature to provide for compensation in weekly payments with certain definite exceptions to be approved by the Industrial Accident Board, and to make void a contract by a beneficiary to commute his compensation to a lump sum without the board's approval. Id.

Evidence.—In an action by an employé against the Texas Employers' Insurance Association to set aside an award of the Industrial Accident Board and to recover compensation in a lump sum for total and permanent disability, evidence held sufficient to sustain jury's findings in favor of plaintiff. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Downing (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 112.

Review.—Under Compensation Act, pt. 1, §§ 8a, 15, 18, providing that compensation shall be paid weekly, except that Industrial Board may redeem liability by payment in gross where manifest injustice would result from weekly payment, district court, on review of an award of weekly compensation, trying case de novo, as provided by Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 5246—44, may give a gross award in case of death of employé having wife and two children of scholastic age, and no earning capacity, award for whom would amount to but $7.44 a week. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Boudreaux (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 674.

What constitutes a special case justifying a lump sum award is left to the determination of the board or district court, and the exercise of such discretion will not be reviewed where no abuse appears. Lumbermen's Reciprocal Ass'n v. Behnken (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 154.

Art. 5246—34. Increasing amount of weekly installments.

See Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Downing (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 112; note under art. 5246—33.

Discount of payments.—Under Workmen's Compensation Act 1917, pt. 1, § 15a (Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 5246—34), implying that the Industrial Accident Board may allow some discount in case of a lump sum settlement, it was not a misuse of authority or an abuse of discretion for the district court to discount the weekly payments of death benefits at the rate of 5 per cent., according to a standing rule of the board, instead of 6 per cent., the legal rate of interest. Lumbermen's Reciprocal Ass'n v. Behnken (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 154.

Art. 5246—36. Aliens entitled to compensation, etc.

Right to award.—Nonresident aliens are entitled to recover benefits of Workmen's Compensation Act not expressly excluding them, in view of Acts 5th Leg. c. 70, Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 15, relating to aliens. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Vickstrom (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 339.

Art. 5246—37. Failure of association to make payments; forfeiture of right to do business.

See Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Boudreaux (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 674; Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Boudreaux (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 756.

Art. 5246—38. Injury to employé outside the state.

Insurance policy as affected by amendment of statute.—Where a workmen's compensation insurer contracted to pay in the manner provided by the laws of such states as were in force at the time the policy took effect, or any subsequent amendments thereto, and while the policy was in force the Texas Workmen's Compensation Act was amended to provide that, if an employé hired in Texas, sustained an injury in the course of his employment, he should be entitled to compensation according to the law of Texas though the injury was received outside of the state, such amendment became part of the policy, and the insurer was liable for an award to an employé injured in Louisiana under Texas employment. Home Life & Accident Co. v. Orchard (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 706.

Article 5246—39. [524600] Industrial accident board created; how constituted and appointed; terms of members.

See Lumbermen's Reciprocal Ass'n v. Behnken (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 154.

Art. 5246—40. [5246000] Qualifications of members; legal adviser and chairman.

See Lumbermen's Reciprocal Ass'n v. Behnken (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 154.

Art. 5246—42. [5246pp] Duties and powers of board, etc.

See Lumbermen's Reciprocal Ass'n v. Behnken (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 154.

Constitutionality.—The provision for physical examination of servant is not in violation of Const. art. 1, § 9, guaranteeing personal rights. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Downing (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 112.

Powers and Jurisdiction of Industrial Accident Board.—Jurisdiction of Industrial Accident Board to adjust claim against employers' liability insurer attaches as soon as claim for compensation for injuries to employé is filed. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Curtis (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1162.

The Industrial Accident Board is not a court, but an administrative board, where interested parties may reach amicable adjustments quickly, by way of compromise. Poe v. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 717.

Examination of injured employé.—An employé of a subscriber under the Workmen's Compensation Law by failing to give the notice provided by Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 5246—4, waives his right to claim damages for compensation except under art. 5246—5, and thus waives his right to assert common-law liability, and consents to the terms of the act, and may be compelled to submit to a physical examination in his action to set aside an award and for compensation in a lump sum. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Downing (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 112.

Facts developed on trial of motion for order for plaintiff to submit to physical examination, as well as on the merits of the case, held to show that the true extent and effect of plaintiff's injuries was in doubt after the introduction of all available testimony, and that the X-ray examination sought would probably ascertain the truth and clear up the doubt, so that the motion should have been granted. Id.

The general provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Law relative to compelling servant suing for personal injuries to submit to examination by physicians are not limited by the specific provisions requiring its exercise in particular cases, but make its exercise in those particular cases mandatory instead of discretionary, although the defendant master or insurer, before it could complain of the court's refusal to order an examination under its general discretionary authority, would probably have to allege a request and a refusal. Id.

This article gives the master's insurer the privilege of having a physical examination of plaintiff's servant made by a physician of his own selection; and, in case of refusal, the insurer should apply to the Industrial Board or court having jurisdiction of the case for an order for the examination, and such tribunal should then provide therefor. Id.

Where there was no conflict in the evidence on the hearing of the motion to the effect that an X-ray examination would be helpful in clearing up the controversy as to spinal injury, the testimony of a physician on the subsequent trial would not justify the court's overruling such motion as a matter of discretion. Id.

Where injured servant, suing to set aside Industrial Board's award and for lump sum settlement, had been examined by order of the Industrial Board, but had made no claim before filing of suit for injuries to sight and hearing, and it subsequently became known that one of the physicians would testify that he had curvature of the spine, such facts afforded reasonable grounds for defendant's request to the court for a physical examination as to such matters. Id.

In a servant's action to set aside a weekly compensation award and for lump sum settlement, where the court had refused to order that plaintiff submit to a physical examination, it was not necessary that a motion should be made that plaintiff be refused compensation until he submit to examination, since, in view of this article, he could not be allowed compensation while his refusal continued. Id.

— Jurisdiction of courts.—In a servant's action against the Texas Employers' Insurance association the Workmen's Compensation Law is the sole authority by which the court may order a physical examination of plaintiff without his consent; for in the ordinary case the court is without such power. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Downing (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 112.

The provisions for physical examination of servant apply after the proceeding has been transferred to the courts, as well as while pending before the Industrial Accident Board. Id.

Submission to medical or surgical treatment.—Refusal of an injured servant to submit himself to a surgical operation was not a refusal "to accept or receive" medical treatment where in refusing to do so he was acting under the advice of skillful physicians who were treating him. Western Indemnity Co. v. Milam (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 325.

Review.—Where a motion for an order to compel the plaintiff to submit to a physical examination appealed to the general powers of the court conferred by this article, if the court's action thereon is largely discretionary, it may be reviewed in case of abuse of discretion. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Downing (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 112.

Art. 5246—43. [5246ppp] Employé shall give notice of injury.

See General Accident, Fire & Life Assur. Corporation v. Evans (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 705; Batson-Milholme Co. v. Faulk (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 837; U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Parker (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 195.

Cited, Poe v. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 488.

Sufficiency of notice under Act of 1913.—Verbal report of injury to servant, made a day or two before his death to his foreman, proper person to receive it, satisfied Employers' Liability Act of 1913, pt. 2, § 4a, requiring notice "as soon as practicable." Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Mummey (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 251.

Brothers of deceased servant, his beneficiaries, through the attorney for the elder, held to have given the notice of injury and made the claim for compensation required by Workmen's Compensation Act 1913, though the first letter of the attorneys in relation to the matter was sent to the employer, and they were referred to the insurer, to which they wrote inclosing a copy of their first communication. American Indemnity Co. v. Zyloni (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 183.

In an action for injuries to or death of employé, plaintiffs must allege that the claim for compensation was made within six months after the injury, or, in action for death, within six months after death, as required by Employers' Liability Act, § 4a (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5246ppp). Georgia Casualty Co. v. Ward (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 380, judgment modified on rehearing 221 S. W. 298.

The prosecution of a suit for an employé's death held not a "claim for compensation" within Employers' Liability Act, § 4a (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5246ppp), requiring that "claim for compensation" be made within six months after injury or death, or removal of physical or mental incapacity, as a condition precedent to proceeding for compensation. Id.

Sufficiency of notice under Act of 1917.—Where the agents of an employer's workmen's compensation insurer of Texas employés assumed that a liability was under the employer's other policy with another company covering Louisiana employés, and without request from the injured Texas employé or the employer presented claim to the other insurer, the fact does not aid the Texas insurer to escape liability to the injured Texas employé for the award, though subsequently the injured employé through his attorneys presented claim to the Louisiana insurer through local agents. Home Life & Accident Co. v. Orchard (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 705.

Where a workmen's compensation insurer stipulated in its policy that as between employé or defendants and the insurer, notice to or knowledge of injury on the part of the employer should be notice to or knowledge on the part of the insurer, while the Workmen's Compensation Act was amended in 1917 to provide that notice, to the employer was notice to the insurer, the insurer had notice of an injury on account of the notice or knowledge of the employer. Id.

Excuses for delay.—Where an injured employé, on account of assurances given him by persons claiming to be agents of one or the other of the employer's insurers that no proceedings would be necessary, delayed presentation of his claim to the proper insurer, but the same was presented and filed with the Industrial Accident Board within a year, while the board made its award in favor of the employé, thereby holding the delay in the case came within this article, the circumstances were sufficient to excuse the employé's delay in filing claim until after six months. Home Life & Accident Co. v. Orchard (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 705.

Waiver of notice.—Insurer's attorneys, by advising attorneys for plaintiffs, in action for compensation for employé's death, that the matter had been referred to them, that the attorneys for plaintiffs should have claim for compensation filled out, and that insurer was investigating plaintiffs' claim and would advise plaintiffs as to its decision as soon as investigation was completed, did not waive the making of a claim for compensation for the employé's death within six months thereafter, as required by Employers' Liability Act, § 4a (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5246ppp). Georgia Casualty Co. v. Ward (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 380, judgment modified on rehearing, 221 S. W. 298.

Evidence.—Injured servant's report of injury to foreman having been verbal, in parents' action for death against the Employers' Insurance Association, it was proper to hear testimony of foreman and another to establish report was made, and contents. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Mummy (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 251.

Review.—Where demand for compensation was not made within the time limited and no allegation of incapacity was made, yet where there was evidence of incapacity the judgment should not be reversed and the cause dismissed on the employer's appeal, but the case should be remanded to the lower court for further proceedings. Georgia Casualty Co. v. Ward (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 298, modifying judgment on rehearing 220 S. W. 380.

Art. 5246—44. [5246q] Questions to be determined by board; suit by person aggrieved, etc.

See Western Indemnity Co. v. Prater (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 355; Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Roach (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 159.

Validity.—The provision for physical examination of servant is not in violation of Const. art. 1, § 9, guaranteeing personal rights. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Downing (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 112.

Conclusiveness of award of accident board.—Under Workmen's Compensation Act (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5246q), award of Industrial Accident Board, made on consent of parties, not withdrawn before final ruling and decision, held final between parties, constituting only remedy of father of deceased servant. Roach v. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 328.

Where, with consent of all parties, Industrial Accident Board awarded compensation under Workmen's Compensation Act against Employers' Insurance Association, claimant had no cause of action against employer; award being final. Id.

Where employer expressed its consent by becoming subscriber to employers' insurance association, insurer, obtained its license and permit and issued policy, and claimant filed claim for compensation, there was consent of all parties interested, required to give Accident Board jurisdiction. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Curtis (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1162.

Under Workmen's Compensation Act, art. 5246q, providing that party unwilling to abide by Industrial Board's findings may bring suit, and in such case board shall proceed no further, a party not exercising option to transfer case to court before board's final decision is bound thereby. General Accident, Fire & Life Assur. Corporation v. Evans (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 705.

A workmen's compensation insurer which voluntarily contested the claim of the deceased servant's brothers before the Industrial Accident Board was not bound by the board's final award, and has an appeal therefrom where the board did not direct payment of the award to the brothers or find them in fact beneficiaries, but merely fixed the amount due, and ordered payment to the "legal beneficiaries," and where there was no express agreement the parties should be bound by action of the board. American Indemnity Co. v. Zyloni (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 183.

An injured servant could not, under this article, repudiate and abrogate the ruling of the Industrial Accident Board awarding compensation, and at the same time treat it as effective and binding on the employer, and seek under section 5a to hold it liable for a lump sum settlement of his claim by reason of its failure to comply with the mandates of the board. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 239.

Decree of the Industrial Accident Board is final as to all issues and controversies, both as to law and fact, where no action has been taken by either party to set aside the final ruling and decision of the board. Southern Surety Co. v. Lucero (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 68.

Settlement by parties.—Under the Employers' Liability Act of 1913, art. 5246q of which authorizes an award if not settled by agreement of the parties, a settlement, made without fraud after injury, is binding; art. 5246nn, invalidating an agreement by employe to waive his rights, referring only to agreements made prior to injury. Jenkins v. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 349.

Correction of award by accident board.—The transfer of the controversy to the court, does not affect the Industrial Board's right to correct clerical errors manifest from the record. Blair v. Millers' Indemnity Underwriters (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 787.

The Industrial Accident Board, though not expressly authorized to correct its awards except for purpose of readjusting compensation, has inherent power to correct errors, inadvertences, and mistakes; but such authority must be exercised in harmony with provisions giving the courts jurisdiction to set aside awards. Id.

Notice of dissatisfaction with award.—Final award of Industrial Accident Board would bind all parties before it, unless prior to such award insurer manifested its objection and refusal to abide by final decision. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Curtis (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1162.

Where the Industrial Board's award, though erroneously entered against one who was not a party, was one that claimant did not wish to consent to, his only remedy was to give notice of dissatisfaction and bring suit to set it aside. Blair v. Millers' Indemnity Underwriters (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 787.

Where compensation claimant gave notice of refusal to accept award and brought suit to set it aside, the notice was sufficient for the purpose of suit, though the Industrial Board thereafter changed the award so as to make it run against the insurer who was a party to the proceeding, instead of against a stranger, since the subsequent entry was merely to correct an error of commission and related back and became effective as of date on which the original award was entered. Id.

Under Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5246q, right to sue, or to require suit to be brought on a claim for compensation, was not dependent on a party, before final determination by the Industrial Accident Board, giving notice that he does not consent to abide thereby; but the board's decision is not conclusive, though the parties agree to submit the matters pertaining to the injury to it, and the right to sue or require suit is by way of appeal. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Roach (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 159, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Roach v. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n, 195 S. W. 328.

Where beneficiaries of deceased servant filed claim with Industrial Accident Board before they filed suit against insurers, thus evidencing consent to adjudication by board, but no notice was issued by board to insurers to answer claim, and no action was taken by board in adjudicating it, it cannot be held jurisdiction of district court to adjudicate matter could not attach until formal notice had been given board by beneficiaries that they would not abide its decision; act not requiring such notice. Southern Surety Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 298.

Under Act of 1913, notice to the Industrial Accident Board of refusal to abide by its final decision was not a condition precedent to suit. Southern Surety Co. v. Nelson (Sup.) 229 S. W. 1113.

Failure of losing party to perfect his appeal after notice thereof by the filing of suit within the statutory period, is an abandonment of the appeal, and the administration of the claim rests with the Board. Miller's Indemnity Underwriters v. Hayes (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 833.

Jurisdiction of courts.—Where an insurer brings a suit to set aside the findings and award of the Industrial Accident Board, the issue to be tried is, not the collection of the sum of weekly payments due under the award, but the determination of the full amount of insurer's liability that might be recovered under art. 5246—14, and, where such amount is in excess of $500, the district court has jurisdiction. Georgia Casualty Co. v. Griesenbeck (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 273.

Under Const. art. 5, § 8, giving the district courts jurisdiction over suits involving $500 or more, and Workmen's Compensation Act, § 5 (Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1913, art. 5246—44), authorizing suits to set aside awards to be brought in a court of competent jurisdiction in county where injury occurred, the requirement that a suit to set aside an award be brought where the injury occurred is not jurisdictional, but relates only to the venue, and a suit brought in another county should not be dismissed, but, upon defendant's application, should be transferred to the county where the injury occurred. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. Lowry (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 222.

An action for compensation for death of employe which occurred after the amendment of the Employers' Liability Act by Gen. Laws 1917, c. 103, is not maintainable unless proceedings have been prosecuted to a decision in the first instance before the Industrial Accident Board. Georgia Casualty Co. v. Ward (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 380, judgment modified on rehearing (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 293.

District court, on appeal from a judgment of the Industrial Accident Board refusing to commute weekly payments into a lump sum, has jurisdiction to try the questions of totality and permanence of injury as well as the right to lump sum payment, presented as issues before the board. Southern Surety Co. v. Hendley (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 454.

The Industrial Accident Board cannot, in refusing to commute weekly payments into a lump sum, deprive the district court of jurisdiction by making the judgment contingent and providing that further applications for commutation into a lump sum may be made. Id.

Physical examination.—The provisions for physical examination of servant apply after the proceeding has been transferred to the courts, as well as while pending before the Industrial Accident Board. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Downing (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 112.

Pleading and evidence.—Parties who base their right of recovery on the Workmen's Compensation Law must show that they are entitled to compensation within the terms of the act, in view of part 2, § 5, providing that the rights and liabilities of parties shall be determined by the provisions of the act. American Indemnity Co. v. Dinkins (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 949.

In a servant's action to set aside an award of weekly payments and to recover a lump sum, the statement of the injuries, the incapacity, and the weekly wage embraced all the essential elements of a good cause of action, and it was not necessary that the measure of damages be stated in the petition, and plaintiff's overestimating the extent of his injuries or incapacity or average weekly wage would not prevent awarding such compensation as he would be entitled to under facts proven, and his seeking commutation of damages to a lump sum would not prevent the court's applying the prescribed measure of damages applicable to all but exceptional cases, in event plaintiff did not bring himself within the exceptions. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Downing (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 112.

Where prayer of injured employé was for a lump sum or for general relief, the court was authorized to increase compensation by decreasing the number of weeks under the prayer for general relief. Western Indemnity Co. v. Milam (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 825.

Employé, suing to set aside award has the burden of proving that the employer was a subscriber under the act at the time of the injury. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 872.

In an injured employé's suit to set aside a decision of the Industrial Accident Board and to recover compensation, petition held to show jurisdiction in the district court, in that it stated a cause of action for compensation for total incapacity under section 10 (art. 5246—18), or for partial incapacity, or total and partial incapacity combined, under sections 11, 11a (arts. 5246—19, 5246—20), and not a cause of action for compensation for loss of index finger, or for ankylosis of such finger under section 12 (art. 5246—21), which would have confined recovery to less than $500. Home Life & Accident Co. v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 802.

In a suit to set aside an award under the Workmen's Compensation Act, it was not reversible error to admit in evidence a certified copy of the award made by the Industrial Accident Board, where it did not appear that the court considered the award in rendering a judgment for any improper purpose, and it was apparent that upon all the facts, which were practically undisputed, the court could properly have rendered no other judgment. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. Lowry (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 818.

Trial.—A suit by insurer under Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 5246—44, to annul and cancel an award of the Industrial Accident Board made under art. 5246—14, is not, strictly speaking, an appeal, and the trial is de novo; the effect being similar to that of an appeal from the justice court judgment. Georgia Casualty Co. v. Griesenbeck (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 273.

In a servant's suit against the Texas Employers' Insurance Association to set aside an award of weekly payments and for a lump sum settlement, the case is tried de novo, and the burden of proof is upon plaintiff; and, while the petition should refer to the proceeding before the Industrial Accident Board, in order to show the court's jurisdiction, and it would perhaps be necessary to file a certified copy of the award, yet the jurisdiction is for the court's determination, and the board's award is immaterial to any issue to be tried to the jury. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Downing (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 112.

Judgment or award.—Compensation under Workmen's Compensation Act should be allowed up to date of trial alone without prejudice to sue for unmaturred further installments. Southern Surety Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 343.

In a workmen's compensation case, the judgment should have provided for the issuance of executions to collect the various installments of compensation awarded as they matured, since clerk cannot be made the judge to determine what character of process he shall issue. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 239.

In view of this article, a court trying a workmen's compensation case by implication has the power given the Industrial Accident Board by part 1, § 15 (art. 5246—33), to approve any agreed lump sum settlement, and the power given it by section 12d (art. 5246—25) to review, terminate, diminish, or increase an award for compensation made. Id.

Under Compensation Act, pt. 1, §§ 8a, 15, 18, providing that compensation shall be paid weekly, except that Industrial Board may redeem liability by payment in gross where manifest injustice would result from weekly payment, district court, on review of an award of weekly compensation, trying case de novo, as provided by Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 5246—44 may give a gross award in case of death of employé having wife and two children of scholastic age, and no earning capacity, award for whom would amount to but $7.44 a week. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Boudreaux (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 674.

Where injured servant's suit against the Texas Employers' Insurance Association was filed in the district court to set aside weekly payment award, and to recover lump sum, the entire case was then before such court, which could, if it decided that plaintiff was totally and permanently disabled, but not entitled to receive compensation in bulk, award compensation for partial disability or total disability for a limited time, or until complete or partial recovery to the same extent as the Industrial Accident Board. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Downing (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 112.

The district court may award a lump sum, though no such settlement was sought before the Industrial Accident Board, as the board is not a court, but an administrative agency, and a resort to the district court is for a trial de novo. Lumbermen's Reciprocal Ass'n v. Behnken (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 154.

In employé's action to set aside award, recital in the award was not competent to prove the employer a subscriber within the act. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Pierce, (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 872.

Review.—Discretion of district court in award of compensation in gross on trial of cause de novo, on review of an award of weekly compensation by Industrial Board, will not be disturbed on further appeal. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Boudreaux (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 674.

Where an insurer appealed from a judgment of the district court reversing a judgment of the Industrial Accident Board refusing to commute weekly payments into a lump sum, the costs of suit were properly adjudged against appellant. Southern Surety Co. v. Hendley (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 454.

District court's findings upon question of whether judgment in a compensation proceeding should be rendered in a lump sum are findings of fact and subject to be reviewed on appeal to the Court of Civil Appeals the same as other fact issues are subject to review, under Workmen's Compensation Act, as amended by Laws 1917, c. 103, pt. 1, §§ 15, 18, and pt. 2, § 5 (Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, arts. 5246—33, 5246—37, 5246—44). Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Boudreaux (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 756.

Art. 5246—45. Suit to enforce award; damages and attorney's fee, etc.

See United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. Lowry (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 222; Lumbermen's Reciprocal Ass'n v. Behnken (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 154.

Maturity of installments.—An injured servant could not, under Workmen's Compensation Act, pt. 2, § 5 (Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 5246—44), repudiate and abrogate the ruling of the Industrial Accident Board awarding compensation, and at the same time treat it as effective, and binding on the employer, and seek under section 5a to hold it liable for a lump sum settlement of his claim by reason of its failure to comply with the mandates of the board. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 239.

For injured employé to authorize his attorney to file suit for the whole amount due under award of Industrial Accident Board is in effect a maturing on his part of the amount due. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. Parson (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 418.

Under this article, injured employé may mature his entire claim and bring suit thereon, as well where there has been no payment on the award of the Industrial Accident Board, as where, after a payment, there has been default. Id.

Jurisdiction of court.—In suit to enforce award, under Workmen's Compensation Act, of Industrial Accident Board, district court has jurisdiction if sufficient weekly installments are due at time of suit to amount to court's jurisdictional amount. Roach v. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 328.

Chapter 103, Acts 35th Leg. p. 2, § 5a, amending Acts 33d Leg. c. 179, which former act became a law after an appeal was taken from an award under the first act, would not affect the question of the jurisdiction of the trial court at the time it tried the case. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Bryan (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 342.

That before suit can be brought the matter in controversy must be submitted to some board or referee, or must have some order or certificate or other matter of some department of state, does not give that place venue of a suit afterwards brought; hence in a suit under the Employers' Liability Act, the fact that plaintiff was obliged, under the act, to submit the claim to the accident board in a given county did not give such county venue of a suit on the liability. Ozbolt v. Lumbermen's Indemnity Exchange (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 158.

Evidence.—Evidence in action for noncompliance with award of Industrial Accident Board held to warrant finding that the insurance carrier did not, prior to the action, in good faith attempt to comply with the award. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. Parson (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 418.

Attorney fees.—Where servant was accidentally drowned in course of employment in 1915 and liability for his death accrued under the Employers' Liability Act of 1913, before the adoption of the amendment of March 28, 1917, insurers against liability of the employer to its employés under the act were not liable for attorney's fees by reason of refusal to pay the claim until it was established in a court of competent jurisdiction, notwithstanding Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 4746, 5246yyyy. Southern Surety Co. v. Nelson (Sup.) 229 S. W. 1113.

Judgment and review.—Under this article, on insurer's noncompliance with an award of the Industrial Accident Board, the injured employé is entitled to judgment in lump sum for compensation already due, and judgment for his weekly installments during the balance of the compensation period, but not to a lump sum judgment for the entire period. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. Parson (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 418; U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Parker (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 195.

In suit on award under Workmen's Compensation Act by Industrial Accident Board, plaintiff must recover according to terms of award allowing weekly sums, and not in lump sum. Roach v. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 328.

Compensation under Workmen's Compensation Act should be allowed up to date of trial alone, without prejudice to sue for unmatured further installments. Southern Surety Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 343.

Where Industrial Accident Board under Employers' Liability Act awarded to plaintiff widow weekly allowance, and she sued insurer thereof, held, although court properly gave judgment establishing validity of award, judgment and execution for installments which had not accrued were improper. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Curtis (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1162.

Workmen's compensation judgment for certain sum and over 200 future weekly installment items, for which execution should issue, if not paid when due, held not improper. General Accident, Fire & Life Assur. Corp. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 705.

A judgment awarding plaintiff a lump sum for accrued weekly payment, and providing that he recover others as they accrue, though providing that as to payments subsequently to accrue the court may diminish, increase, or revoke so much of said judgment as pertains to future payments, is a "final judgment," from which an appeal may be taken. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. Parson (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 418.

Execution.—In suit to enforce award under Workmen's Compensation Act by Industrial Accident Board, remedy for enforcement of award, if proven, is by execution. Roach v. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 328.

Interest.—Though letter from Industrial Accident Board, or a member thereof, to insurance carrier, stated that the award would be complied with up to a certain time by payment thereof, tender thereof was not a full legal tender; it not including interest on deferred payments, to which the injured employé was entitled. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. Parson (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 418.

The trial court properly allowed interest to an injured employé against the employer's workmen's compensation insurer on the amount allowed the employé for medical and surgical attention and for the weekly payments from the due date of each item under the act, the insurer having had notice of the injury through the notice to or knowledge of the employer. Home Life & Accident Co. v. Orchard (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 705.

Art. 5246—46. [5246qq] Compensation where sub-contractor is employed, etc.

See Batson-Milholme Co. v. Faulk (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 837.

Who are employés.—Under Employers' Liability Act, 1913, pt. 4, § 1, excepting casual employés from definition of employés, and pt. 2, § 6, excepting the employés of independent contractors on a contract "merely auxiliary and incidental to" the business, machinist sent by machine shop to do certain work on a machine was not employé of company owning machine. Texas Refining Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 131.

Subrogation of insurer.—Neither section 6, pt. 2, of the Workmen's Compensation Act, nor any other part of the act, in express terms or by implication, confers authority upon the insurer to reimburse himself for compensation paid to an injured employé as against a third person through whose negligence the injury occurred, or to be subrogated to the rights of the beneficiary as against such third person. Southern Surety Co. v. Houston Lighting & Power Co., 1905 (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1115.

Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5246qq, held not to entitle workmen's compensation insurer to recover over on any theory of subrogation against elevator company which caused death of employé of subcontractor for which insurer of mercantile company and contractor repairing and remodeling its building paid award. Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. Otis Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 376.

Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5246qq, only gives right of subrogation when cause of action for injury to employé caused by third person has vested in injured employé. Id.

Elevator company which caused death of employé of subcontractor painting store building of merchandise company, which gave work of remodeling building to independent contractor, not having become liable to deceased employé for any sum under workmen's compensation statute, no right of subrogation against elevator company is given by Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5246qq, to insurer of merchandise company and independent contractor, which paid award for death. Id.

While right of equitable subrogation exists in favor of fire insurance company which has paid for loss occasioned by negligence of third persons, no such right exists in favor of workmen's compensation insurer, despite fact that premiums for such insurance are not paid directly by employés. Id.

Under Workmen's Compensation Act, pt. 2, § 6 (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5246qq), insurance association is not subrogated to rights of employé against third person, whose negligence alone caused injury, and is given no right to indemnify itself against such wrongdoer, save only where he is an independent or subcontractor. City of Austin v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1181.

Art. 5246—47. Where injury caused by third person employé shall elect; subrogation of association.

Effect of acceptance or recovery of compensation, and election of remedies.—See Western Indemnity Co. v. Leonard (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 1101.

Where plaintiff had recovered against decedent's employer, and its indemnitor under Workmen's Compensation Act, her suit against a third person for the injury was barred. Dallas Hotel Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 647.

A settlement by the Industrial Accident Board, as provided in Acts 33d Leg. c. 179, with an employé of a subscriber, does not preclude an action by the employé against a third party to recover damages occasioned by negligence of such third party. City of Austin v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1181.

In an employé's action against a third party instituted after the employé had received workmen's compensation, an instruction that the jury should deduct the compensation paid for whatever damages they may have found is proper, since a failure to make this deduction would result in double damages. Wm. Cameron & Co. v. Gamble (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 459.

Under Workmen's Compensation Act, § 6a, authorizing an injured employé to either sue a third party injuring him or seek compensation, but not to do both, and providing that insurer paying compensation should be subrogated to the employé's rights and should pay any sum recovered in excess of the compensation to the injured employé, an employé after receiving compensation may sue a third party upon the insurer's failure or refusal to sue, and recover full damages minus the compensation previously received. Id.

Notwithstanding Workmen's Compensation Law 1917, pt. 2, § 6a (Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 5246—47), declaring that an injured employé of a subscriber within the terms of the act may not proceed both against the association and a third party liable to him because of negligence, the receipt of compensation by plaintiff, an employé of a third party subscriber, from a surety company for injury by defendant railroad, and his assignment of so much of recovery as might be had, or would indemnify it, did not absolutely bar his action against railroad. Lancaster v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 765.

Where Compensation Act is inapplicable.—A stevedore employed by a Texas company was injured while loading a vessel. Under the Texas Workmen's Compensation Act, the stevedore asserted a claim against his employer and received payment from an insurer, with whom the stevedore's employer as well as the agents of the vessel had taken out insurance. Held that, as the Texas act was inapplicable to the stevedore's claim against the vessel, and as he asserted no claim against the insurer as an insurer of the vessel or its agents, such payment did not bar his claim against the vessel, but amounted at most to a pro tanto satisfaction. The Emilia S. De Perez, 248 Fed. 480, 160 C. C. A. 490.

Subrogation.—Under Workmen's Compensation Act, a casualty company which has paid compensation to an employé cannot intervene and be subrogated to the rights of the employé to the extent of compensation paid, in an action by employé against a third person whose negligence caused the injury, regardless of the provisions of its policy. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Archer (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 796.

Neither section 6, pt. 2, of the Workmen's Compensation Act, nor any other part of the act, in express terms or by implication, confers authority upon the insurer to reimburse himself for compensation paid to an injured employé as against a third person through whose negligence the injury occurred, or to be subrogated to the rights of the beneficiary as against such third person. Southern Surety Co. v. Houston Lighting & Power Co. 1905 (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1115.

That an employer whose servant was injured by structural defect in elevator had not taken out workmen's compensation insurance does not affect his right to indemnity against the elevator manufacturer and seller. Otis Elevator Co. v. Cameron (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 852.

Under Workmen's Compensation Law 1917, pt. 2, § 6a (Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 5246—47), the right of a surety corporation to be subrogated to rights of injured employé after its payment of compensation is given for the surety's benefit, and its suit against a negligent third party is for its benefit to extent of compensation paid by it, and for benefit of injured employé for any excess, so that the intervention of a surety company which had so paid compensation to an employé claiming damages from a third party should not be dismissed. Lancaster v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 765.

Art. 5246—48. [5246qqq] Employer to keep record of injuries; reports, etc.

See Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Roach (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 159.

Art. 5246—51. Sessions of board or members; inspectors and adjusters.

See Lumbermen's Reciprocal Ass'n v. Behnken (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 154.

Art. 5246—76. Employer shall give notice to board on becoming a subscriber, etc.

Notice to Industrial Accident Board.—Defendant's liability to pay compensation under its contract of employers' liability insurance did not depend upon notice of contract by defendant to Industrial Accident Board prior to injury. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Curtis (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1162.

It was immaterial when employer notified Industrial Accident Board of its insurance contract with defendant, only notice required being notice of employé's injury within reasonable time to defendant and board. Id.

Art. 5246—77. [5246x] Notice to employés of securing of policy.

Construction and operation in general.—Where insurer insured employer against losses under Workmen's Compensation Act, § 21 (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5246xxx), but employer failed to give notice as required by section 19 (art. 5246x), so as to bring his workmen within the act, and was held liable as at common law, he could not recover an additional sum of the insurer, who had paid the schedule amount, since his own negligence permitted the servant to recover more. Trinity County Lumber Co. v. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 531.

In view of the Amendment of 1917, held that where an employer, which became a subscriber under the Workmen's Compensation Act of 1913, failed to give the written notice to employés provided for by section 19, pt. 3, the statute was not binding on an injured employé who had no notice that the employer had adopted the act. Batson-Milholme Co. v. Faulk (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 837.

Where an employer had failed to give servant notice of employer's compliance with the act, the servant could institute suit against employer for personal injuries, but was not limited thereto, and could waive the provision with reference to notice and claim benefit under the act. Poe v. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 488.

Where an employer fails to give an employee notice that his industry is being operated under the Workmen's Compensation Act, the employee may sue for damages for personal injuries based upon common-law liability, in the absence of waiver of notice. Poe v. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 717.

Necessity of notice.—The notice to employé creates the relation of subscriber employer and employé, such act being mandatory, and requiring the actual giving of written or printed notice by employer to employé. Farmers' Petroleum Co. v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 194.

Waiver of notice.—An attempt of an injured employee to obtain an adjudication before the Industrial Accident Board, after the lapse of the time allowed within which to make application for compensation, is not a waiver of the employer's failure to give notice to the employee of his industry being operated under the act, want of notice being material only in event of an effort to enforce rights in the courts, and the employee not having intended to abandon his common-law remedy, but merely to get an equitable and prompt adjustment by way of compromise before the board. Poe v. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 717.

Where an injured employee agreed upon dates for a hearing before the Industrial Accident Board of his claim for compensation, but reserved in writing a stipulation that the agreement was made without prejudice to any rights, claims, and defenses of any party, his attempt to obtain an adjudication before the Board, which allowed a plea of limitation, was insufficient to imply a waiver of his rights to sue at common law for want of notice. Id.

Where an injured employee, more than six months after his injury, attempted to obtain an adjudication before the Industrial Accident Board, under the Workmen's Compensation Act, he did not waive his right to sue at common law for want of the statutory notice, the doctrine of election of remedies being inapplicable, plaintiff, by reason of his failure to apply within the time prescribed by the act, having no valid or enforceable remedy before the Accident Board. Id.

Evidence.—In servant's action for personal injuries, plaintiff's testimony that notices were not posted at defendant's well eight months after defendant's injury was admissible, where question of their ever having been posted was made an issue. Farmers' Petroleum Co. v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 194.

Evidence held to support findings of the jury to the effect that the plaintiff had not received actual notice of defendant's acceptance of the provisions of Employers' Liability Law. Id.

Where an employer, sued for injuries, offers no proof to support the allegation that notice of provision for compensation had been given to servant by employer, it must be presumed that no such notice had been given. Poe v. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 488.

Art. 5246—78. [5246xx] Notice to incoming employés, etc.

See Farmers' Petroleum Co. v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 194; Poe v. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 488; Poe v. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 717.

Art. 5246—79. [5246xxx] Association shall pay subscriber amount of judgment, when.

Cited, Dallas Hotel Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 647.

Amount of recovery.—Where insurer insured employer against losses under Workmen's Compensation Act, § 21 (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5246xxx), but employer failed to give notice as required by section 19 (art. 5246x), so as to bring his workmen within the act, and was held liable as at common law, he could not recover an additional sum of the insurer, who had paid the schedule amount, since his own negligence permitted the servant to recover more. Trinity County Lumber Co. v. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 531.

Article 5246—82. [5246yyy] Terms defined.

Cited, Dallas Hotel Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 647; Poe v. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 488.

"Employés."—Under Employers' Liability Act, pt. 4, § 1, excepting casual employés from definition of employés, and part 2, § 6, excepting the employés of independent contractors on a contract "merely auxillary and incident to" the business, machinist sent by machine shop to do certain work on a machine was not employé of company owning machine. Texas Refining Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 131.

Where contract provided that buyer of timber should reimburse seller for wages paid scalers, not to exceed $50 per month each, a scaler employed by, and who worked under direction of, seller, at a salary of $70 a month, was not an employé of buyer, within Workmen's Compensation Act, arts. 5246h, 5246yyy. Kirby Lumber Co. v. McGilberry (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 835.

Evidence showing employer's control of mode of work of hauling clay for brick manufacturing held to support finding that deceased when killed was not an independent contractor, but an "employé"; it being assumed that the statutory definition does not distinguish an "employé" from a "servant" at common law, as distinguished from independent contractor. Western Indemnity Co. v. Prater (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 355.

A traveling salesman, performing the usual and customary services for his employer, who could rightfully discontinue work or be discharged at any time, and was actually controlled by his employer in the performance of his work, held an employé, and not an independent contractor although he was not upon the pay roll of the employer, and was not paid wages, receiving his compensation by way of commission. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. of Baltimore, Md., v. Lowry (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 818.

"Average weekly wages."—Where an injured servant had worked in the employment in which he was engaged when injured for several years before injury, his average weekly wages, and not the average weekly wages of other persons similarly engaged, were the proper basis for determining the amount of compensation. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 239.

Evidence held to sustain a finding as to the amount of daily earnings of those of the same class as deceased employé doing the same work during the preceding year. Southern Surety Co. v. Hibbs (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 303.

Defendant cannot complain, on appeal, of court's failure to calculate the compensation due exactly as required by the statute, where amount allowed was less than it would have been if statute had been strictly followed. Hartford Accident & Indemnity Co. v. Durham (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 275.

"Injury sustained in the course of employment."—See note 98, under art. 5246—1.

Art. 5246—83. Officers and directors of subscriber corporation not deemed "employés."

Directors of corporation.—One under contract of hire, who is injured in the performance of his duties as superintendent and head miller, is not excluded from the benefits of the act, though he is also a director of the corporation employing him. Millers' Mut. Casualty Co. v. Hoover (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 475.

Stockholders.—A stockholder, who was the general manager, director, secretary, and treasurer of the employer corporation for a monthly "salary," is not entitled to compensation, though, as part of his duties as general manager, he occasionally performed the work of a laborer in the plant, and was injured while so doing, the language of the statute, which uses the word "wages," signifying compensation for mechanical or menial labor, and not the word "salary," which has reference to employment above the grade of such labor, showing an intention to exclude corporate officers even before the amendment of 1917. Millers' Indemnity Underwriters v. Cook (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 598.

Art. 5246—84. [5246yyyy] Employer holding policy of insurance deemed a subscriber, etc.

See Southern Surety Co. v. Nelson (Sup.) 229 S. W. 1113.

Cited, Dallas Hotel Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 647; Poe v. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 488.

Construction of policy.—Policy insuring master for injuries to employés, together with binders and amendments attached after the enactment of Workmen's Compensation Act, held to contemplate indemnity against losses under the act only and according to its schedule of compensation. Trinity County Lumber Co. v. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 531.

Where defendant had insured plaintiff against injuries to its employés, and the contract was changed subsequent to the enactment of Workmen's Compensation Act, charging a larger premium, it did not continue original liability as well as liability under the act. Id.

Construed with a liability policy issued to an employer before enactment of Workmen's Compensation Law, and binders thereafter attached, a subsequent policy, in which were merged all previous obligations, and which was made retroactive, held to cover master's liability at common law as well as under the Compensation Act. Trinity County Lumber Co. v. Ocean Accident & Guarantee Corporation (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 114.

Forfeiture of policy.—If under the laws of Texas an employé was protected by the policy issued by his employer's workmen's compensation insurer, such protection was not lost because the employer failed to pay the proper premium to the insurer. Home Life & Accident Co. v. Orchard (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 705.

Jurisdiction.—Action on policy issued under Workmen's Compensation Act for accidental drowning on dredge upon navigable water is not one within exclusive admiralty jurisdiction of federal court. Southern Surety Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 343.

Judgment.—An injured employé suing an indemnity company in which the employer was insured, in the absence of agreement, is entitled to judgment in lump sum for the compensation already due and for weekly installments during the balance of the time in which he is entitled to compensation. American Indemnity Co. v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 1011.

Art. 5246—87. Effect of amendment on rights acquired under previous law.

Operation and effect.—Where insurance policy was issued to employé and accident occurred while Acts 33d Leg. (1913) c. 179, was in force, and prior to amendment thereof, by Acts 35th Leg. (1917) c. 103, the rights of the parties were governed by the provisions of the former statute in view of the latter statute, pt. 4, § 3b, employé having no right under the statute as amended to judgment for installments not due, or to recover a penalty or attorney's fee upon insurer's nonpayment of the matured installments. The rights of employé and insurer were fixed by the law as it existed prior to amendment, though employé presented his claim to the Industrial Accident Board after the amendment took effect. Southern Surety Co. v. Lucero (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 68.

Art. 5246—91. Reports of subscriber not evidence.

Reports as evidence.—In parents' action under Act of 1913, for death of son, reports of injury, made by employer to Industrial Accident Board, were prima facie evidence of statements in them. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Mummey (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 251.

5246—104. Office and record to be kept by licensee; examination by com-	5246—107. Appropriations available.

Article 5246—101. Shall procure license.—That no person, firm or private employment agency shall engage in or carry on the business of an emigrant agent in this State without first having obtained a license therefor from the Commissioner of Labor Statistics of the State of Texas. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 36, § 1; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 13, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after Oct. 2, 1920, date of adjournment.

Operating under trade-name.—Any person who does acts inhibited by this act, without license as required, may be prosecuted, although using a guise or trade-name. Judge Lynch International Book & Publishing Co. v. State, 84 Cr. R. 459, 208 S. W. 526.

Art. 5246—102. Definition of "Emigrant Agent."—The term "emigrant agent" as contemplated in this Act shall be construed to mean any person who engages in hiring laborers or soliciting emigrants or laborers in this State to be employed beyond the limit of this State. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 36, § 2; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 13, § 2.]

Art. 5246—103. Application for license; fee; bond; action on bond; revocation of license.—Any person, firm or private employment agency desiring to be licensed hereunder as an emigrant agent shall make application to the Commissioner of Labor Statistics on forms to be prescribed by said Commissioner, in which he shall state his name, age, place where his business is to be conducted, his previous occupation for the past five years, and the names of the counties of the State in which he expects to engage in hiring laborers or soliciting laborers or emigrants in this State to be employed beyond the limits of the State; such application shall, also, be accompanied by affidavits of at least three credible men that the applicant is of good moral character. The Commissioner of Labor Statistics may require other and additional evidence of the moral character of the applicant, if he deems it necessary; and no license shall be granted to any person except one of good moral character. Such application shall be examined by the Commissioner of Labor Statistics and if he finds that the same in all respects complies with the law and that the applicant is entitled to a license under this Act, then he shall issue a license to the applicant for each county for which application is made, and shall deliver such license to the applicant upon the payment of a license fee of one hundred dollars for each county in which said solicitation or employment shall be engaged in by said agent, and the execution of a good and sufficient bond in the penal sum of five thousand dollars for each such county, to be approved by said Commissioner of Labor Statistics and conditioned that the obligor will not violate any of the duties, terms, conditions and requirements of this Act, and will not make any false representation or statement to any person solicited or employed. Said bond shall recite that any person injured by any false or fraudulent statement of such emigrant agent, or by any violation of the provisions hereof by such agent, shall be entitled to sue thereon, and, that service of process on the Commissioner of Labor Statistics as agent for such emigrant agent shall be sufficient to bind the principal on said bond. Said Commissioner is authorized to cause action to be brought on said bond by the Attorney General for any violation of any of its conditions; and any person aggrieved by any action or conduct or any false representation or statement of any such licensed party may bring action for damages against such party on said bond in the county in which same is filed, and recover thereon and against the bondsmen in any court of competent jurisdiction without the necessity of making the State a party thereto. On a full hearing the Commissioner may revoke any license for any violation of the provisions of this Act. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 36, § 3; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 13, § 3.]

Art. 5246—103a. Notice to comptroller and tax collector of issuance of license.—The Commissioner of Labor Statistics shall promptly upon the issuing of any license by him notify the Comptroller of Public Accounts of the issuance of such license and of the person to whom same is issued, and of the county or counties in which such emigrant agent will engage in business, and shall likewise notify the collector of taxes of each and every county in which such emigrant agent shall have been licensed of such facts. [Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 13, § 4.]

Art. 5246—104. Office and record to be kept by licensee; examination by Commissioner of Labor; Statistics; Limitation of fees that may be collected from laborers; return of fees collected where employment not secured.—It shall be the duty of every party licensed hereunder to keep and maintain an office, at which office a complete record of the business transacted shall be kept; there shall be kept a substantial book in the form prescribed by the Commissioner of Labor Statistics, in which shall be entered the age, sex, nativity, trade or occupation, name and address of every person or laborer hired or emigrant solicited to be employed beyond the limits of this State and where such person or emigrant was directed to go, and the address of such person or emigrant, if known. Such licensed party shall also enter in a register the name and address of every person who shall make application for laborers or emigrants to be employed beyond the limits of this State. All the books and registers, correspondence, memoranda, papers and records of every party licensed hereunder shall be subject to examination at any time by the Commissioner of Labor Statistics, his deputies and inspectors. The fees charged for hiring laborers or soliciting emigrants in this State for employment beyond the limits of this State shall not exceed two dollars for each such person or emigrant; and the fees charged any person who desires to find labor beyond the State or to emigrants beyond the boundaries of the State for the purpose of obtaining employment shall not exceed two dollars for each such person, and in no event shall more than two dollars be collected from any one for the same person who seeks employment beyond the State as a laborer or emigrant. Provided that all cases where the applicant who seeks employment beyond the State does not obtain such employment through the party licensed hereunder, then such party must return all fees collected from such applicant within thirty days after same has been collected. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 36, § 4; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 13, § 5.]

Art. 5246—105. Duties of Commissioner of Labor Statistics.—It shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Labor Statistics to enforce this Act, and when any violation thereof comes to his knowledge it shall be his duty to institute criminal proceedings for the enforcement of its penalties before any court of competent jurisdiction. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 36, § 5; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 13, § 6.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1920, 37th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 13, re-enacts the Emigrant Agent Act, Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 36 (Vernon's 1918 Supplement, arts. 5246—101 to 5246—107, inclusive), but omits sec. 7 of the latter act (art. 5246—106 of such Supplement). It is not clear that the Legislature intended to repeal that section. There is no repealing clause, general or special, in the later act.

Art. 5246—107. Appropriations available.—All appropriations heretofore made for the support and maintenance of the department of the Commissioner of Labor Statistics may be used in the enforcement and administration of this Act. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 36, § 8; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 13, § 8.]

CHAPTER NINE

PROTECTION OF LABORERS ON BUILDINGS

Art. 5246—108.	Certain buildings being constructed or repaired; temporary flooring; projecting scaffolding.	Art. 5246—111.	Duty of general contractors.
5246—109.	Same; removal of flooring.	5246—112.	Duty of owner or agent of building.
5246—110.	Same; elevators and hoisting apparatus; protection of shafts and openings.	5246—113.	Same; where contractor neglects duty.

Article 5246—108. Certain buildings being constructed or repaired; temporary flooring; projecting scaffolding.—Hereafter any building three or more stories in height, in the course of construction or repairs, shall have the joists, beams or girders of each and every floor below the floor level where any work is being done, or about to be done, covered with planking laid close together, said planking to be of not less than one and one-half inches in thickness, in buildings that have steel framework, and what is commonly known as one-inch plank in all others where joists are set on two feet centers or less, to protect the workmen engaged in the erections or construction of such buildings from falling through joists, girders, and from falling planks, bricks, rivets, tools or other substances, whereby life and limb are endangered. Where any scaffolding is placed on the outside of any of said buildings, over any public street or alley where persons are in the habit of passing, then said scaffolding shall be so constructed as to prevent any material, tools or other things from falling off and endangering the life of passersby. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 152, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 5246—109. Same; removal of flooring.—Such flooring shall not be removed until the same is replaced by a permanent flooring in such building. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 5246—110. Same; elevators and hoisting apparatus; protection of shafts and openings.—If elevators, elevating machines or hod hoisting apparatus are used within a building in the course of construction, for the purpose of lifting materials to be used in such construction the contractor or owners, or the agents of the owners, shall cause the shafts or openings in each floor to be inclosed or fenced in on all sides, two sides of which must be at least six feet, and two sides where material is to be taken off or on, shall be protected by automatic safety gates. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5246—111. Duty of general contractor.—It shall be the duty of the general contractor having charge of the erection and construction of such building to provide for the flooring as herein required, and to make such arrangements as may be necessary with the sub-contractor in order that the provisions of this Act may be carried out. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 5246—112. Duty of owner or agent of building.—It shall be the duty of the owner, or the agent of the owner, of such building, to see that the general contractor or sub-contractors carry out the provisions of this Act. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 5246—113. Same; where contractor neglects duty.—Should the general contractor or sub-contractors of such building fail to provide for the flooring of such buildings as herein provided, then it shall be the duty of the owner or the agent of the owner of such buildings to see that the provisions of this Act are carried out. [Id., § 6.]

LANDS—ACQUISITION FOR PUBLIC USE

Chap.

1. Authorizing Governor to purchase lands for state use.

Chap.

2. United States Government authorized to obtain title to lands in Texas.

CHAPTER ONE

AUTHORIZING GOVERNOR TO PURCHASE LANDS FOR STATE USE

Art.

5248. Land may be condemned.

Art.

5249. Land, how condemned.

Article 5248. Land may be condemned.

See Stockwell v. State (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 109.

CHAPTER TWO

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT AUTHORIZED TO OBTAIN TITLE TO LANDS IN TEXAS

Article 5275. [374] [333] Governor may cede jurisdiction.

Not delegation of legislative power.—This article, authorizing the Governor, on application therefor, to cede exclusive jurisdiction to the United States over lands described in the application and acquired by the United States for certain specified purposes, operates as a blanket consent by the Legislature to such cession, leaving to the Governor only the power to determine when the specified conditions exist, and is not a delegation to him of legislative power. Brown v. United States, 257 Fed. 46, 163 C. C. A. 258.

DECISIONS RELATING TO LAW OF EMINENT DOMAIN IN GENERAL

1. Nature and source of power.—Eminent domain is the sovereign power of taking private property for public use, providing first a just compensation, while taxes are burdens imposed to raise money for public purposes. City of Dallas v. Atkins (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 593.

Individuals have no right of eminent domain. Van Valkenburgh v. Ford (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 405.

Where private property is taken, it is important that all the forms of law should be complied with, for these forms have been devised and certain restrictions adopted for the protection of private rights against public oppression. Howard v. Rushing (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 953.

2. Distinction from other powers.—A prohibition against erection of wooden buildings within fire limits of an incorporated city, or removal of such buildings by proper authorities when found to be nuisances in the manner provided by law, is not an unreasonable taking of private property for public use, within purview of Const. U. S. or Texas Constitution. Crossman v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 128.

An ordinance excluding jitneys from a certain zone does not, in violation of Const. art. 1, §§ 17, 19, and Const. U. S. Amend. 14, take property and privileges, without due compensation or process of law, of jitney companies which, under former ordinances and statutes, made investments in the business; their use of the streets being the exercise of a mere license revocable at the will of the licensor. Gill v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 209.

4. Delegation of power.—Acts conferring the power of eminent domain will be strictly construed. Van Valkenburgh v. Ford (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 405.

The state has a right to part with its sovereign power of eminent domain to such agencies as it deems proper. Id.

Ordinarily it is essential for quasi public service corporations to have the power of eminent domain. Id.

6. Necessity of compensation.—Conceding that defendant had right superior to plaintiff to water in stream crossing plaintiff's land, it would have no right, in order to use water, to trespass upon plaintiff's land without compensating him therefor. King v. Schaff (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1039.

Property may not be "taken" for a public use, nor can it be damaged, unless the citizen is compensated to the extent of the damage. Brewster v. City of Forney (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 175, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 636.

11. Measure of compensation—In general.—In a condemnation suit, damages resulting on account of improper and negligent construction cannot be recovered or considered for any purpose. City of San Antonio v. Fike (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 639.

In proceedings to condemn a part of a lot for a sidewalk, it is not proper, in determining the measure of damages for the taker, to limit the inquiry as to the use to which the property may be put in the future, which opens too broad a field of conjecture. City of San Antonio v. Fike (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 911.

LANDS—PUBLIC

Chap.	Chap.
1. Public domain.	7. Land reservations.
2. General land office.	8. General provisions.
3. Land districts.	9. Sale and lease of public free school and asylum lands.
4. County and district surveyors.	10. Suits to recover public lands, rents and damages.
5. Surveys and field-notes.
6. Patents.

CHAPTER ONE

PUBLIC DOMAIN

Article 5278. Vacant public lands belong to free school fund.

See Atkins v. State Highway Department (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 226.

"Appropriated lands."—Where by virtue of a land certificate legally issued a survey was made and properly and promptly filed in county and general land office, land surveyed became "appropriated lands," which could not be covered by another certificate thereafter in view of Const. art. 14, § 2. Allen v. Draper (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 792.

Surveys Nos. 207 and 208, location of which covered a portion of a prior school survey, were void to extent of the conflict because forbidden by Const. art. 14, § 2, and award of No. 208 and patent to 207 passed no right or title to land in prior survey. Id.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

1. Public domain.—The source of all title coming from the sovereign power, any one claiming title to lands in the state must show that a portion of the public domain has been segregated by some grant or purchase and no longer forms a part of the public lands. Producers' Oil Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 349.

1/2. Authority to grant lands.—A nation cannot grant land to private individuals in territory to which it has no title, and a de facto possession could not supply title. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Sup.) 231 S. W. 683.

Treaties take effect from the date signed, and where disputed territory is ceded as by the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, the power of the ceding government to grant land within it ends with the signing of the treaty. Id.

2. Spanish and Mexican grants.—The grant of lands to plaintiffs' predecessor under the Mexican colonization laws cannot now be attacked by defendants sued in trespass to try title on the ground that such predecessor did not live in the colony where he was granted lands. Allen v. West Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 529.

The issue of abandonment of lands granted under the colonization laws of Mexico can be raised only by the state, and not by defendants in trespass to try title brought by the successors of the grantee of such lands from Mexico. Id.

In all cases except where the grantee of land under the colonization laws abandoned the realm, the laws of Mexico in 1835 required that the forfeiture of his land by him be ascertained by judicial inquiry. Id.

The act of December 14, 1837 (Laws of Republic 1836-37, p. 62), and the Constitution of the Republic recognized the validity of the transfer by a colonist of his right to land when the grant had not been perfected under the Mexican government. Southwestern Settlement & Development Co. v. Village Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 869.

An appropriation under a Mexican grant void upon its face cannot in its very nature give land the character of "titled land" or "land equitably owned" within the contemplation of Const. art. 14, § 2. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Sup.) 231 S. W. 683, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State, 196 S. W. 287.

The provisions of the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, protecting Mexican land grants, cannot be construed to protect a grant made to one by a Mexican state in April, 1848, which was after the signing of such treaty. Id.

Where land between the Nueces and the Rio Grande rivers was surveyed for grantee who paid the Mexican authorities for it prior to 1836, when it was finally claimed by the Texas Republic, such grantee acquired an inchoate or equitable title having its origin prior to December 19, 1836, which would be protected by the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo. Id.

Where parties, claiming land against the state and holders of title from state, permitted the meager and fragmentary evidence of their right to slumber more than 70 years in the buried records of a foreign jurisdiction, with no possession on their part, with the land vacant and the state's claim openly asserted by appropriation at an early day, its resurrection now will not be suffered to defeat the title of innocent settlers, who purchased from the state in good faith. Id.

Where purchasers of land from the state had not paid the full money consideration when they first learned of defendant's claim under predecessor's inchoate right to title from a Mexican state, but had completed their settlement, improved the land, and paid the principal part of the consideration, and defendant claimant made no offer to reimburse them for consideration paid or improvements, or in any way to perform what equity would require, they are in no position to complain of a judgment protecting the rights of such purchasers. Id.

Plaintiff's contention that, if a grantee from a Mexican state acquired an inchoate right to the land, he thereafter abandoned it, is not well taken, where there was no unequivocal act on his part evidencing such intention, since his mere failure to assert such right could not operate as a forfeiture of it, besides such was a question of fact, concluded by the trial court's judgment. Id.

5. Grant of lands under water.—If the owners of land riparian to a navigable lake own the bed of the lake, it is because the land was specifically granted. Welder v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 868.

7. Land certificates—Former law.—Const. 1869, art. 10, § 3, declaring null and void certificates for land located after October 30, 1856, upon land previously titled, cannot be construed to affect any right vested in 1866 in view of Const. U. S. Amend. 14. Fielder v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 158.

8. — Headright certificates.—Where no certificate entitling to land as headright was issued to woman previous to 1862, and there was no transfer by her of any interest therein to her heir, heir had no right to pass title from woman through his deed dated 1854, 1862 being earliest possible date of woman's death. Smelser v. Henry (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1151.

13. — Transfer of certificates.—The legal effect of the conveyance of a donation certificate was to invest purchaser with title to land afterward located and to make the patent when issued inure to the purchaser's benefit, although the certificate was personalty when conveyed; "conveyance" denoting an instrument which carries from one person to another an interest in land. Leonard v. Benford Lumber Co., 110 Tex. 83, 216 S. W. 382.

Actual possession of the land affected is not necessary to prove, by circumstantial evidence showing an ancient claim of ownership, the transfer of a lost certificate. Magee v. Paul, 110 Tex. 470, 221 S. W. 254, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 325, and answers conformed to (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 1118.

A sale by an administrator of a certificate after it has been located by virtue of a duplicate of the certificate will not pass the title to the land. Webb v. Goldsmith (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 690.

15. Entries and locations under former law.—The "close of the war," as used in 6 Gammel, Laws, 669, approved December 14, 1863, suspending all laws authorizing location and sale of public lands until such time, dates from closing of actual war in Texas May, 1865, and not from presidential proclamation thereof as of August 20, 1866. Fielder v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 158.

16. — Vacant public land.—Const. 1876, art. 14, § 2, providing that land certificates shall not be located "upon any land titled or equitably owned under color of title from the sovereignty of the state, evidence of the appropriation of which was on the county records or in the general land office," contemplates existence of legal evidence of such appropriation. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 287, judgment affirmed (Sup.) 231 S. W. 683.

Where section of land had not been patented to one railroad when another section overlapping to extent was located for another railroad, on that date first section was not titled land, and was not equitably owned by first railroad, within the meaning of Const. art. 14, § 2. Main v. Cartwright (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 847.

Under Const. 1869, art. 10, § 3, which declares null and void all certificates for land located after October 30, 1856, upon land titled before location of certificate, and Const. 1876, art. 14, § 2, "titled lands" are those within boundaries of patents from the state, and lands not patented, although erroneously indicated as within patent boundaries by a general land office map, were not "titled lands." Fielder v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 158.

18. — Surveys.—Where vendor held scrip from the state which called for survey of a quantity of land, one-half to holder and the other to the state, and survey was made and the land partitioned by the General Land Office, held, that vendor owned only the part designated as his, and not an undivided half interest in the whole. Browne v. Gorman (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 385.

Where certificate was located by a survey, errors in field notes as to distances on the ground between points identified by the calls did not affect validity of the location. Webb v. Goldsmith (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 690.

A mere survey, without an order of survey, is not a legal appropriation of the land and does not sever it from the mass of the public domain. Allen v. West Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 529.

19. — Location.—A survey of land by virtue of a certificate is a location of the certificate within the rule that a sale by an administrator of a certificate after it has been located will not pass the title to the land, notwithstanding Act Aug. 30, 1856 (art. 4573, Pasch. Dig.), authorizing the location of public land by entry. Webb v. Goldsmith (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 690.

22. — Transfers and contracts.—Under the Pre-emption Law, actual settlers acquired a valuable right to their claims of such a character as to be subject of contract and assignment. Stiles v. Hawkins (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 89.

23. — Priorities.—Since a mere survey, without an order of survey, is not a legal appropriation of the land and does not sever it from the mass of the public domain, where A. and M. leagues conflicted, and the M. grant was issued by virtue of an application dated January 16, 1835, the A. by application dated May 28, 1835, the order of survey of the A. league was dated May 29, 1835, and of the M. league September 1, 1835, the field notes of both surveys were dated June 1, 1835, and the M. title issued October 8, 1835, and the A. title October 13, 1835, the A. title to the conflicting portion was superior to the M. title, because appropriated under valid surveys, based on proper applications and orders for survey, prior to, the time the order for the survey of the M. survey was made, notwithstanding formal title to the M. was issued prior to title to the A. league. Allen v. West Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 529.

24. Homestead donations under former law.—One who had settled upon the state's domain, held to have substantially complied with the statute then in force as to vest in him a fee-simple ownership in the land, segregating it from the mass of the public domain and rendering it the subject of private contract. Riggs v. Baleman (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 179.

VALIDATING ACTS

Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 40, validates survey in Franklin county to William Lane on land certificate.

GENERAL LAND OFFICE

Article 5290. [4053] No transfers, etc., shall be withdrawn.

Affidavit of alteration.—Where a certified copy of a recorded deed has been filed in a suit by plaintiff for the purpose of offering the copy in evidence, an affidavit alleging alterations in the deed, and praying for the production of the original, is to be used to compel the production of the original only, and cannot be considered as attacking it when offered in evidence. *Stribling v. ## CHAPTER FIVE

SURVEYS AND FIELD-NOTES

Art. 5336. Field-notes shall describe what. 5338. Surveys on navigable streams. 5339. Surveys shall be in a square. 5344. Field-notes to be sent back for correction, when. 5347. Commissioners to have surveys made, when.	Art. 5348. Bonds, etc. 5349. May have lands surveyed, when. 5352. Persons owning private lands may co-operate. 5355. Field-notes to be returned; force and effect of.

Article 5336. [4144] Field-notes shall describe what. .

Field notes.—In trespass to try title, brought by the heirs of the owner of realty against the devisees of the owner's widow, field notes from records of the county surveyor were admissible to show the fact and date of the surveys by the original owner and the certificate or right under which they were made, although Pre-emption Act did not require the field notes to be recorded in the county, but merely returned to the land office. Stiles v. Hawkins (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 89.

In order for the status of land, as surveyed or unsurveyed land to be affected by approved field notes on file in the General Land Office, the survey of the land and the filing and approval of the field notes by the land commissioner must not be void because violative of law. Landry v. Robison, 110 Tex. 295, 219 S. W. 819.

Surveys.—Legal survey of public domain is appropriation thereof. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 287.

A location of a block of surveys is not rendered an office survey by the mere fact that the person who certified as deputy surveyor to the surveys being made according to law is not shown to have been present when the block was run out. Standefer v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 484.

That surveys are made by the same surveyor in the same month, and that most of them call for each other, do not place them in the category of a block or system of surveys, when made for different owners of certificates, and none of them are described as one of a block or system of surveys. Hanman v. San Jacinto Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 1008.

Return in twelve months—Former law.—See Hill v. Kerr, 78 Tex. 205, 213, 14 S. W. 566.

Art. 5338. [4147] Surveys on navigable streams.

Construction and operation in general.—Where some sections of a purchase under the act have a greater water front than is allowed, such fact will not invalidate the title to other sections purchased at the same time. Bacon v. State, 2 Civ. App. 692, 21 S. W. 149.

In suit to restrain defendant from taking and appropriating water from a stream running through plaintiff's land, where plaintiff alleged ownership in land constituting bed of stream and of land on both sides of stream, burden was on defendant, although plaintiff alleged nonnavigability, to establish navigability. King v. Schaff (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1039.

Navigable waters.—Lake averaging four feet in depth from which fish are taken and which is capable of use for floating logs or light draft boats is navigable; capacity, and not use, being determinative. Welder v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 868.

Where surveys on a lake were made to front one-half of the square thereon and run back at right angles, the lake was evidently regarded as a navigable lake, and its bed was not included in the surveys. Id.

By the terms of this article, and decisions thereunder a navigable stream must maintain an average width of 30 feet. King v. Schaff (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1039.

Title to bed of stream.—The bed of a navigable stream, to which state has title, is that portion of its soil covered by the water under normal conditions and seasons. King v. Schaff (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1039.

Public rights.—The common law as to nonnavigable streams is the rule of decision in Texas. Welder v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 868.

The bed of a navigable river was not open to prospecting for and development of petroleum prior to Laws 1917, c. 83, arts. 5904-5904w, notwithstanding Laws 1913, c. 173, opening to mineral prospecting "all public school, university, asylum and the other public lands, fresh water lakes, islands, bays, marshes, reefs, and salt water lakes, belonging to the state of Texas"; the bed of a navigable river not being other "public lands" within such statute. Landry v. Robison, 110 Tex. 295, 219 S. W. 819.

Evidence.—In suit to restrain defendant from taking and appropriating water from a stream running through plaintiff's land, evidence held insufficient to show that stream was navigable. King v. Schaff (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1039.

Art. 5339. [4148] Surveys shall be in a square.

Construction and operation in general.—Where there is no uniform variance from true course found in any of the lines of a survey actually run, but there is a difference in the course of the east line, and the angle at a corner is not a right angle, as required to make a proper square survey, in locating the surveys of the block the lines running southward and westward from certain corners should be run on true course. Brooks v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 632.

Art. 5344. [4154] Field-notes to be sent back for correction, when.

See Krause v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 310.

Subsequent survey.—If an original survey did not embrace lands in controversy, the act of the state surveyor in placing them within corrected field notes of such survey on his resurvey of the lands, and the subsequent approval of the field notes by the land commissioner, did not bind the state and those claiming under it. Brooks v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 632.

That a surveyor who had already surveyed a plot returned later to survey subsequent locations which he tied onto his previous work does not make his later survey a part of the same system so as to eliminate a vacancy, and the subsequent approval of the corrected field notes by the land commissioner will not bind the state or those claiming under the state. Brooks v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 856.

Art. 5347. [4261] Commissioner to have surveys made, when.

Including other lands in patented survey.—Land located by railroad and recovered by state and so belonging to permanent school fund under art. 5385, was appropriated land, and it was not lawful for Land Commissioner to correct field notes thereof to reduce its acreage and take from it land belonging to fund and give it to another survey owned by individual. Main v. Cartwright (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 847.

Art. 5348. [4262] Bonds, etc.

See Robbs v. Woolfolk (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 232.

Art. 5349. [4263] May have lands surveyed, when.

Construction and operation in general.—Land located by railroad and recovered by state, and so belonging to permanent school fund under art. 5385, was appropriated land, and it was not lawful for Land Commissioner to correct field notes thereof to reduce its acreage, and take from it land belonging to fund, and give it to another survey owned by individual. Main v. Cartwright (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 847.

Art. 5352. Persons owning private lands may co-operate.

Construction and operation in general.—Where owner of Mexican grant has lands re-surveyed by county surveyor, such surveyor acts as agent of the owner and not of estate. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 237.

Art. 5355. Field-notes to be returned, etc.

Conflicting surveys.—In trespass to try title, where evidence suggests a conflict between surveys, the burden is upon the party claiming under a junior patent to show that his land does not conflict with that held under a senior grant; but it is not incumbent upon one holding under a junior grant well defined and located on the ground to locate surrounding grants of uncertain description. Howell v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1022.

Evidence.—In trespass to try title involving boundary, where a map was properly filed in the General Land Office, a copy thereof was admissible in evidence; and, it being contemplated that field notes of all surveys shall be made and recorded, a map should be made from such field notes, which should fully explain it, so that a letter, although accompanying the map and filed, was not admissible, except that part certifying to the map's correctness, in the absence of a law authorizing its filing. Land v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 301.

A map, not filed in the surveyor's office or the General Land Office, does not become an archive in either office, and is not admissible to determine boundaries in trespass to try title. Id.

BOUNDARIES IN GENERAL

1/2. In general.—The controlling issue in all boundary suits is the intention of the parties. Welder v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 868.

A description in a voluntary conveyance is covered by the same rules of construction which apply to an involuntary conveyance. Mackechney v. Temple Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 744.

In arriving at true location of block in a system of surveys, the conditions and circumstances surrounding its location, as well as the lines actually run by the surveyor, and the corners fixed on the ground, should be considered. Standefer v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 484.

2. Relative importance of conflicting elements.—A call made upon conjecture will not control a call for course and distance. Kerr v. State (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 474.

A call in a survey for corners on the ground is superior to calls for course and distance. Brooks v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 632.

In determining the boundaries of surveyed lands a call for an established corner cannot be disregarded in favor of a call for an unmarked open line of an adjoiner. Id. In determining boundaries, when all the calls cannot be followed, as few should be disregarded as possible. Wilson v. Giraud (Sup.) 231 S. W. 1074.

3. — Control of elements consistent with intention.—In establishing boundaries, those calls will be adopted which are more certain, avoid conflicts in surveys, etc., and harmonize with the evident purpose of the state in making the grant, even though a natural object must be disregarded. Matador Land & Cattle Co. v. Cassidy-Southwestern Commission Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 430.

4. — Control of natural objects and monuments over other elements in general.—Call for well-known natural object controls call for point on line fixed by surveyor. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 287.

Course and distance in survey of land yield to calls for natural and ascertained objects, such as a river, a spring, or even a marked line. Rosetti v. Camille (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 526.

In determining boundaries, recourse should be had, first, to natural objects; second, to artificial objects; and, third, to courses and distances. Sullivan v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 104.

In boundary suit, instruction that, in locating land lines and corners, resort must first be had to natural and artificial objects called for, without variation for course, distance, quantity, or other facts, was proper. Jackson v. Graham (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 755.

Where calls of survey were for objects specified as on the ground at distances indicated, the fact that survey may not have closed according to a calculation made of distances called for in the field notes would not render survey void, as distances called for would be extended to reach the objects. Spearman v. Mims (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 573.

First importance is to be given to calls for objects on the ground, and if such objects can be identified, or if they have been destroyed or have disappeared, but their previous location can be shown, then the lines will be run accordingly, and the mere fact that the primitive land marks have disappeared does not authorize the limiting of the lines and confining of the boundaries by calls for distance in the field notes. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Choate (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 118.

While the intention of the surveyor in making an official survey will have an almost controlling effect in construing his work, such intention as evidenced by calls for courses and distances will not, where the survey was actually run, govern calls for natural monuments. State v. Coleman-Fulton Pasture Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 850.

5. — Control of water courses, highways and fences over other elements.—In the absence of showing that a call for a river bank was a mistake, it should control a call for distance. Dallas Hunting & Fishing Club v. Nash (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1032.

A requested instruction, making the course and distance controlling unless all trees called for by the field notes to locate the disputed corner were found, was properly refused, where there was evidence from which the jury could find the existence of one of the trees called for, but not the others. West Lumber Co. v. Goodrich (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 183, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Goodrich v. West Lumber Co., 182 S. W. 341.

Calls for natural objects, such as a river, do not yield to calls for artificial stakes or movable rocks or stones, in absence of evidence that there was no river at the place called for, or that there was a mistake in the call for the river. Schnackenberg v. State (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 934.

It was improper for a surveyor to begin from a corner and then undertake to locate a survey by course and distance only, ignoring all calls for natural objects, and when he reached a river to fail to run it with its meanders, but to regard only course and distance, ignoring natural calls for the river. Id.

6. — Control of metes and bounds or courses and distances over other elements.—Distance being regarded as more unreliable than course, it follows that, the greater the distance, the greater the probability of error, and vice versa. Matador Land & Cattle Co. v. Cassidy-Southwestern Commission Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 430.

Calls for adjoining surveys should not be rejected because the distance gave out from this selected corner before reaching the adjoining survey called for, but such call should have its proper weight and according to evidence made at the time and found on the ground, and it is not an invariable rule that course and distance will prevail over a call for unmarked lines. Brady v. McCuiston (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 815.

A call for a natural object will not control a call for course and distance, when it appears that the same was made by mistake, or upon an erroneous conjecture. Benavides v. State (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 568.

While distance is often the most uncertain call in field notes, there are no set rules as to whether a call for natural or artificial objects or a call for distance should control, and, in the absence of elements showing that a call for distance was inserted by mistake, it will control the location of the survey. Id.

In an action involving a boundary of a survey, a call for "the lands of the Rio Grande," if held to refer to the black lines of adjacent porciones, will be rejected when to adopt it would be to disregard the calls for course, distance, quantity, and the express configuration of the survey. Id.

When the objects, natural or artificial, called for by the field notes, cannot be found on the ground, or their previous location accounted for, then course and distance will be followed. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Choate (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 118.

Calls for course and distance prevail over a call for the line of a senior survey, if that line itself is indefinite and uncertain. Stein v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 166.

Though course and distance from an established corner prevail in the absence of located objects at the disputed corner, course and distance cannot conclusively determine the location of a disputed corner, where there is no point established on the ground by objects called for in the field notes from which to run the course and distance, in which case the jury must determine from all the evidence the true location of the disputed corner. West Lumber Co. v. Goodrich (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 183, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Goodrich v. West Lumber Co., 182 S. W. 341.

The rule that an unmarked prairie line will not prevail over a call for course and distance is not inflexible, but its application depends on the facts and circumstances of each case. Robbs v. Woolfolk (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 232.

Where the northwest and southwest corners of a survey were identified, and the other two corners not, the east line calling for an uncertain corner, it was permissible to construct the boundary lines by course and distance; the evidence tending to show that no actual survey of the land was made by the original surveyor. Prairie Oil & Gas Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 585.

The rule is that course and distance will prevail except where shown to be in conflict with a survey as actually made. Braumiller v. Burke (Sup.) 230 S. W. 400.

7. — Control of lines marked or surveyed over other elements.—Unmarked corner or line is sometimes accorded dignity of artificial object, and permitted to control course and distance call, but such controlling effect is not always given. Main v. Cartwright (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 847.

The call for a marked line will ordinarily control the call for course and distance. Kerr v. State (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 474.

An established original corner must control. Chew v. De Ware (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 988.

The identification on the ground of the footsteps of the surveyor determines the true boundary. Id.

Contention that to trace the footsteps of the original or locating surveyor one must begin at the corner at which he began, or the point ascertained to be approximately near said corner, rather than at a well established and known corner of an adjoining survey called for by the locating surveyor in fixing the boundaries in question, is untenable. Barrow v. Murray (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 178.

Where a corner or line is found marked, it influences all other surveys in the block, even though it operate to change calls for courses or distances. Standefor v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 484.

Ordinarily, where land is sold with reference to a survey made at the time, the survey determines the true boundary and marks the limits of the land to be conveyed. Swann v. Mills (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 850.

Where a deed conveying land with reference to an established line did not call for any objects, natural or artificial, conflicting with the true line, the grantee takes to the true line, though it did not correspond with a survey made at the time of the conveyance; for if the calls in a grant, when applied to land, correspond with each other, parol evidence is not admissible to vary them by showing that in point of fact they were not the calls of the survey as made. Id.

8. — Control of calls for adjoiners over other elements.—When unmarked lines of adjacent surveys are called for, and when, from the other calls of such adjacent surveys, the position of such unmarked lines can be ascertained with accuracy, the unmarked lines will prevail over course and distance. Matador Land & Cattle Co. v. Cassidy-Southwestern Commission Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 430.

The fact that in field notes of a survey there is a call for an unidentified corner of a survey ought not to be given controlling effect, if to do so is to entirely disregard calls for adjoining surveys and cause confusion and disagreement. Id.

While ordinarily a call for an adjoiner will control course and distance, not so where it is shown it was a mistake or made on conjecture. Standefor v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 484.

9. — Control of maps, plats and field notes over other elements.—Where footsteps of the surveyor are not found, it is the court's duty to ascertain intention by surveyor's field notes and circumstances and conditions surrounding the survey. Howell v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1022.

10. — Control of quantity over other elements.—While excess in quantity will be disregarded where the boundaries can be otherwise ascertained with reasonable certainty, yet, in the absence of such ascertainment, quantity may be looked to in determining the boundaries. Welder v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 868.

While quantity in a survey is immaterial when the lines and corners can be located with reasonable certainty by reference to calls for natural or artificial objects or for other surveys, when they cannot be thus located quantity becomes a material circumstance, there being no presumption of law that the surveyor made a mistake in his call for quantity. Benavides v. State (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 568.

11. Natural and permanent objects.—The Spanish word "cañada," when used as a call in field notes, means valley. Benavides v. State (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 568.

12. Artificial monuments and marks.—Objects denoting the footsteps of the surveyor cannot be given effect in the absence of calls therefor in the field notes. Hankins v. Dilley (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 549.

13. Courses and distances.—If surveyor in locating survey was under belief that the northwest corner and west line were 136 varas west from where they were in fact located upon the ground, and located section in question under such mistaken belief, resulting in a conflict in the calls, the calls for course and distance from the undisputed northwest corner and west line should be adopted. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. W. R. Pickering Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 802.

In view of act of October 20, 1866 (Acts 11th Leg. c. 41), amending Act May, 1846 (Acts 1st Leg. p. 363), which was in force until adoption of Rev. St. of 1879, held with respect to surveys made during such period that courses and distances might be varied so as to connect with a line called for; it appearing that the surveyor intended to include all vacant land. State v. Coleman-Fulton Pasture Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 850.

14. — Reversing calls.—The only reason for reversing calls in field notes is to better follow the surveyor's footsteps, and mere running of lines according to course and distance does not locate the surveyor's footsteps in absence of any marked lines or established corners. Howell v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1022.

The presumption that a surveyor did not cross a navigable stream in violation of law will not justify reversing courses, where evidence shows that the river by changing its course had crossed the lines, and where by extending the line the original shape of the tract can be practically restored. Id.

Judgment held not void for lack of sufficient description of land involved, where it was apparent from the judgment, by reversing the calls, that the beginning call for Twenty-Third street was a mistake, and that Twentieth street was meant. Pearson v. Lloyd (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 759.

Where no evidence can be found on the ground of the actual location of the beginning call, the calls may be reversed and run from marks found on the ground which are a part of the survey made. Standefor v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 484.

In a boundary controversy, where the beginning corner is not identified and certain, it is as lawful to reverse the calls as to follow the order given in the deed; but if the beginning corner can be identified, the footsteps of the surveyor must be followed, and if the beginning corner can be fixed with certainty, the called-for courses and distances as given in the deed must yield, if inconsistent. Tomlinson v. Noel (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1028.

If in running lands in one direction a difficulty is met with, and all the known calls in the survey can be met with by running in the reverse direction, this may properly be done. Schnackenberg v. State (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 934.

15. Location of corners.—Where southeast corner of survey is known corner, and there is nothing to identify southwest corner, if line be run south from true northwest corner to intersect line run west from its southeast corner, point of intersection will be the southwest corner. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 287.

Where a surveyor ran a line and put up a monument at a corner, the monument belongs to the system of surveys made by the surveyor. Hankins v. Dilley (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 549.

Lost lines and corners should be located from the nearest known corners, especially when a corner called for is in conflict with all the other calls found and established and which are nearer in point of time and distance. Standefor v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 484.

16. Location of lines.—Surveyors often run preliminary lines that become of no locative value, but merely indicate the work on the ground unless written in and made part of the field notes, and in a boundary case no attention need be taken of the action of a surveyor in running a line which he abandoned as soon as he encountered difficulties. Kempner v. Silver Lake Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 700.

The rule that the location of a tract of land must be determined by the lines of the survey as actually run and marked on the ground is only applicable where the actual survey can be found and identified as the same called for in the grant. Hamman v. San Jacinto Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 1008.

17. Designation, quantity and location of land.—Grants conveying a given number of acres and stating the amount of arable and of pasture lands in each will not be extended to embrace the area of a lake bed. Welder v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 868.

Where a grant of public lands called for a given number of acres, the presumption is that the government did not intend to grant more, and the lines would not be extended to include approximately a 40 per cent. greater acreage. Id.

18. Maps, plats and field notes.—In an action of trespass to try title, where the court had before it the original and corrected field notes, and calls for a common corner had been erased from original field notes, it was the duty of the court in locating such corner to consider the original field notes; it appearing that the surveyor had made only one trip to the land. McFaddin v. White (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 704.

All corners and field notes of a system of surveys may be looked to in locating any of the surveys in the system, and it is not necessary to constitute a block of surveys one system that the surveying be done on the same date, but it is only necessary the work be continuous from day to day and connected as part of the series of surveys. Brooks v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 632.

Field notes of blocks of surveys held not to create a vacancy between them, but to evidence intention to tie them together. Standefor v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 484.

19. Adjoining or adjacent lands.—Where two contiguous tracts are bounded by field notes radically different as to courses and distances, the trial court has no authority to change field notes of the older survey so as to include the younger when no evidence of the footsteps of the original survey can be found. Howell v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1022.

Where the unambiguous field notes of a survey definitely place it in a certain location, it cannot be moved merely because some of the surveys adjoining those which adjoin it conflict with older grants. Hamman v. San Jacinto Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 1008.

20. Waters and water courses.—Though the grantee may hold an excess, it was never the intention of the state to grant an excess, and where a line falls for the shore of a lake it will not be extended a mile to reach the center. Welder v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 868.

A call for the margin, edge of water, high or low water mark, or shore or bank of a lake excludes the bed thereof. Id.

The common-law doctrine of extending the call for a nonnavigable stream to the center thereof does not apply to calls for a navigable lake. Id.

Where written designation of homestead gave call of description as on bank of river, designation called for river wherever it was at time, and homesteader's grantee of remainder of homesteader's land obtained title only as to what remained after designation. Rosetti v. Camille (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 526.

The words "near the river bank," as used in field notes locating the corner of a survey, mean the same as "on the river bank." Burkett v. Chestnutt (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 271.

A call for a river may be ignored only when it is shown to have been made by mistake. Producers' Oil Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 349.

21. — Meandered waters.—Where original boundary followed lake meander line and waters receded imperceptibly, the water's edge was the boundary. Chew v. De Ware (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 988.

The expression, "thence down the river," as used in field notes of a surveyor of a patent, is construed to mean with the meanders of the river, unless there is positive evidence that the meander line as written was where the surveyor in fact ran it; for such lines are to show the general course of the stream and to be used in estimating acreage, and not necessarily boundary lines (citing Words and Phrases, First and Second Series, Down). Burkett v. Chestnutt (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 271.

22. — Accretion and avulsion.—Where navigable river gradually left old bed and formed new one, abandoned bed was not state land, but became an accretion or reliction to the land on either side. Siddall v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1029.

Where changes in courses of rivers occur by sudden and violent avulsive method, property lines of abutting or riparian owners remained same as before. Id.

Where navigable river, during overflow, left its old bed and formed a new one, title to old bed remained in state, and boundary lines of abutting property remained the same; the change being the result of an avulsion, though only main body of river changed channel during overflow, and drying up of old bed was gradual process. Siddall v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 381.

24. Public ways.—While a conveyance by an individual of land bordering on public highway, in absence of provisions to contrary, conveys title to center of highway if grantor owned such land, where state or municipality owns land and makes conveyance calling for highway, fee to highway is not conveyed. Schutze v. Dabney (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 342.

The owner of a lot abutting on a street acquires the fee to the middle of the street. Summit Place Co. v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 145.

26. Priority of grants and deeds.—Boundary given by course and distance in deed cannot be considered as of a different course merely because of conflict therewith in subsequent deed of tract by same grantor to another. Keefer v. Jamison (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 490.

27. Priority of surveys.—Senior surveys control junior surveys. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Brown (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 102; Erwin v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 556; Kempner v. Silver Lake Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 700.

A subsequent patent must yield to the calls for boundaries in an older survey. Dallas Hunting & Fishing Club v. Nash (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1032.

Where junior survey located northwest corner at the southwest corner of a senior survey, and called for a marked tree at that point, instruction controlling findings by the call for the tree in the junior survey held proper. Jackson v. Graham (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 755.

In an action of trespass to try title, where the older surveys on the north were definitely fixed and located, they control the location of the land in question as against uncertain locations of the southern tier of surveys. McFaddin v. White (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 704.

When field notes of a survey were made out and filed the land was to be identified and located from them, and subsequent work in surveying could not change such location, since the field notes of junior surveys cannot control the location of senior surveys. Brooks v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 632.

A map of a subsequent survey filed in the general land office cannot be permitted to affect the location of lands as evidenced by field notes based on established corners on the ground and filed prior to filing of the map. Id.

28. Remedies for establishment of boundaries.—In trespass to try title, wherein the court undertook to fix the boundary line between two surveys, one owned by plaintiff, the other by defendant, the interests and rights of the owners of other surveys not being necessarily affected, they, not being precluded or bound by the judgment, were not necessary parties. Stahlman v. Riordan (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 726.

31. — Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held to sustain finding of the jury of the location of plaintiff's boundaries as contended for by them in their action of trespass to try title. Sullivan v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 194.

In trespass to try title, evidence held to support a jury finding that a certain tract was located as claimed by defendants and interveners. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Lane (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 612.

In a boundary dispute involving conflict between surveys under the 50 cent act and a resurvey of leagues of land set apart by state for building state capitol, in which jury found state was entitled to land as made vacant by the correction of the original survey of state land by resurvey, whereby eastern line of such survey was moved west, evidence held insufficient to sustain the verdict. Kerr v. State (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 474.

In an action to determine title to an overlap of two sections of school land, evidence held not sufficient to establish a boundary line by agreement. Post v. Embry (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 514.

In suit to determine true boundary between adjoining surveys, held, that boundary was as claimed by plaintiff. Matador Land & Cattle Co. v. Cassidy-Southwestern Commission Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 430.

In an action to recover land, evidence held sufficient to support the finding of the jury as to the location of a monument from which surveys were run and by running courses and distances from corner so established that the strips of land in question belonged to three certain sections as contended by plaintiff. Brady v. McCuiston (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 815.

In suit involving question whether there is a vacancy between two leagues on the west and a survey on the east to which plaintiffs are entitled by an award from the state, evidence held to justify court's finding that the east boundary line of leagues was at the place contended for by appellees claiming adversely to plaintiffs. Barrow v. Murray (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 178.

In trespass to try title, evidence held sufficient to support finding that the southwest corner of survey owned by defendant was on a river bank, so that land claimed by plaintiff as a survey of land lying between defendant's survey and the river was in fact in defendant's survey. Burkett v. Chestnutt (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 271.

Evidence held to justify finding against defendant's contention that boundary claimed by him had been fixed by agreement between him and plaintiff's predecessor which was binding upon plaintiff. Bigham v. Stamps (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 775.

Evidence held to support finding that there was no conflict between two surveys. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. W. R. Pickering Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 802.

Finding that description of deed under which plaintiffs claimed embraced land claimed by defendant, adjoining owner, held against preponderance of the evidence. Harrison v. Abercrombie (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 708.

In an action involving a boundary of a survey calling for the head of the drain of M., deceased, evidence held to show that such call was inserted by mistake, where the call for distance would cause a discrepancy of 2.7 miles. Benavides v. State (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 568.

In an action of trespass to try title involving the question of surveys, facts of record held sufficient to sustain the judgment of the court that it was the intention of the surveyor and of the state in issuing patents and of the parties accepting the same to include in two certain surveys all of the land as shown on the official map, and sufficient to sustain an actual survey rather than a paper survey, had the trial court so found. McFaddin v. White (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 704.

Evidence held to support finding that the location of a boundary line of a senior survey was uncertain and continued uncertain for a number of years. Stein v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 166.

In a suit to locate a boundary which the parties agreed had been marked by a former picket fence, evidence of two witnesses, that they built the present fence with care not to encroach on plaintiff's lot as marked by the former fence, held sufficient to warrant a verdict for defendants, notwithstanding testimony of witnesses who had no particular reason to observe carefully that the new fence was on plaintiff's side of the former fence. Neill v. Pryor (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 296.

In a suit involving the determination of a boundary, evidence showing a tree called for at the proper distance from the alleged corner, but with bearings reversed, and showing that a marked line led to that corner, and from that corner in the direction called for by the next call, while there was no such marked line extending beyond that corner for the distance stated in the first call, held to warrant a finding that the asserted corner was the corner located by the original surveyor. West Lumber Co. v. Goodrich (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 183, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Goodrich v. West Lumber Co., 182 S. W. 341.

In a suit by the successor of one to whom all of the survey, except 200 acres set off as a homestead, was conveyed by an administrator, evidence that the survey was wider than shown by the field notes, and that the homestead owners and their successors had claimed the entire width of the survey, held to show conclusively that the homestead as set off included the entire width, though that exceeded 200 acres, so that a directed verdict, giving the successors of the homestead owners the strips included in the additional width was proper. Anderson v. Rich (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 540.

In a boundary dispute, evidence held not to fix the beginning corner in a deed with sufficient certainty to warrant overturning the verdict of a jury fixing such corner in accordance with defendants' claim. Tomlinson v. Noel (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1028.

Evidence held insufficient to show that the surveyor's decision as to the manner in which the survey should be made was the result of such gross and palpable mistake as to warrant the setting aside of the award under submission to a surveyor. Robbs v. Woolfolk (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 232.

In trespass to try title as to a strip of land claimed by limitations, evidence held not to raise issue of boundary, and court did not err in refusing to submit such issue to the jury. Cass v. Green (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 938, opinion supplemented 227 S. W. 238.

Where testimony of defendant, who claimed to have inclosed his land by a fence on line claimed to have been definitely fixed as the boundary line by agreement between defendant and plaintiff's predecessor, showed as a whole that he claimed all the land within his inclosure, but that having been pointed out as that described in his deed, he believed it was actually conveyed by such deed, his testimony on cross-examination that he claimed title under his deed, and that he did not claim any more land than was described therein, considered with testimony of a surveyor that some of land inclosed was not so described, did not affect the correctness of findings in defendant's favor on sufficient evidence. Walker v. Bowe (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 274.

In suit by the state and others to recover from an oil and gas company and others a strip of land, evidence held to justify the court's finding that no survey was made on the ground of a particular tract, but that it was merely constructed on the west line. The north and south ends of which were established by a call for natural objects. Prairie Oil & Gas Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 585.

In a proceeding to determine boundaries where surveys, as indicated by the field notes, were conflicting, held that evidence conclusively showed that the land in controversy was part of certain surveys as they were actually located on the ground in 1874. Wilson v. Giraud (Sup.) 231 S. W. 1074.

35. Agreements between parties.—Boundary disputes may be settled so as to pass title by definite and unconditional parol agreements between owners of abutting tracts. Decker v. Rucker (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1001.

Where parol agreement between former owners of tracts to line surveyed as boundary was conditional, and defendant admits that plaintiff was entitled to recover, unless defeated by some special defense pleaded, line surveyed cannot be held to be true boundary. Id.

In an action involving a boundary dispute, evidence held insufficient to show that the parties had actually agreed to a boundary line, as alleged. Campbell Banking Co. v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 621.

In trespass to try title, an agreement as to the parties' ownership of different surveys held not to amount to an agreement by plaintiff that no part of the land sued on was embraced within the boundary of one of his surveys, which was senior to that of defendant. Kempner v. Silver Lake Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 700.

Where plaintiff purchased 50 acres from the owner of a larger parcel, and the surveyor provided by the owner made an error so that plaintiff was put into possession of less than 50 acres, held that, though plaintiff and the son of the landowner carried the chains for the surveyor, plaintiff could not be denied recovery of his full 50 acres in an action against the one who purchased the remaining land on the theory that the lines as run by the surveyor were agreed lines. Davies v. Rutland (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 235.

An agreement that, in view of doubt and uncertainty as to boundaries, a certain surveyor, after being appointed special surveyor by the commissioner of the general land office, should resurvey and mark on the ground the boundary lines, the parties to be bound by the lines run and surveyed and the corners erected by him, held to contemplate that all questions arising in reference to application of the field notes of the original survey to the facts as they existed on the ground should be determined and settled by the surveyor, acting under instructions from the commissioner of the general land office. Robbs v. Woolfolk (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 232.

36. Estoppel in general.—Where plaintiff's ancestor in title owned two tracts, and conveyed one by deed, if such ancestor had the land surveyed or pointed out the lines, plaintiff would be bound thereby. Massingill v. Moody (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 265.

Mere silence and failure of plaintiff to protest against improvement by defendant at great expense of strip on boundary held not to estop plaintiff from claiming strip as against defendant, where plaintiff did not know location of true boundary line at such time, but that defendant was ignorant of location of boundary line, that same was known to plaintiff, and that by silence of plaintiff defendant was induced to make improvements on strip in controversy, were necessary to show estoppel against plaintiff. Decker v. Rucker (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1001.

Statement by former owner that he would agree to a boundary between tracts now owned by plaintiff and defendant, and sale of tract now owned by defendant pursuant thereto, held not to estop plaintiff from claiming disputed strip between tracts. Id.

Where a landowner erected a fence and, in the presence of a prospective purchaser of adjoining land, stated that he would join such prospective purchaser in building a substantial fence, where there was an opening in the fence, he was estopped as against such purchaser from denying that such fence was on the boundary. Hankins v. Dilley (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 549.

In an action by a grantee of the state to recover possession of land bought by him as public land, which was vacant according to an erroneous survey, such survey, when not made on authority of the owners of the original Spanish grant of which the vacancy was a part, did not estop them from claiming the land. McLellan v. Brown (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 177.

Where a deed called for 640 acres, located by course and distance, but no marks were called for or identified, in a suit to recover an excess which plaintiff grantee supposed to be contained in the tract bought as shown by certain marked corners, with reference to which he purchased, evidence held not sufficient to show an estoppel upon grantor to deny the corners as claimed by plaintiff. Buie v. Miller (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 630.

Where plaintiff purchased 50 acres from the owner of a larger parcel of land, and thereafter the remainder was sold to defendant, held that, in an action by plaintiff who had not been put in possession of his full 50 acres, etc., defendant could not defeat recovery on the theory that, having paid for all of the land possession of which he received, plaintiff was estopped from claiming his full 50 acres. Davies v. Rutland (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 235.

37. Recognition and acquiescence.—Acquiescence in a boundary affords a strong presumption that the line acquiesced in is the true line. Lopez v. Vela (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1111.

Evidence held sufficient to establish a line by acquiescence. Id.

Plaintiff's failure to protest against improvement of disputed strip, and his apparent silent acquiescence in claims asserted by owners of defendant's tract, at most showed that true boundary line was where defendant claimed it to be. Decker v. Rucker (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1001.

Long acquiescence, while strongly tending to show the true location of a disputed boundary line, will not control if it is otherwise shown to have been actually located elsewhere, unless the acquiescence amounts either to an estoppel or an agreement as to boundary. Campbell Banking Co. v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 621.

Long acquiescence in a boundary will not alone constitute an estoppel. Daugherty v. Manning (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 983.

A boundary was not established by acquiescence, where plaintiff did not know that the fence was not on the true line and the means of ascertaining the correctness of the location of the line was equally open to the adjoining owners. Id.

41. Apportionment of excess or deficiency.—Where, on a line of the same survey between remote corners, the whole length is found to vary from the length called for, in re-establishing lost intermediate monuments as marking subdivisional tracts the court must conclude, in the absence of circumstances to the contrary, that the variance arose from imperfect measurement of the whole line, and distribute such variance between the various subdivisions of the line in proportion to their respective lengths. Stahlman v. Riordan (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 726.

PATENTS

Art.	Art.
5361. Requisites of patent.	5376. Commissioners to deliver patents,
5362. When patent to be issued.	when; fee for.
5368. Shall issue patent to assignee.	5379. [Repealed.]

Article 5361. [4175] Requisites of patent.

Conclusiveness.—A subsequent patent inures to transferee of right to land grant or certificate, though transfer or assignment does not expressly show intention to convey land or contain covenant of warranty. Cagle v. Sabine Valley Timber & Lumber Co., 109 Tex. 178, 202 S. W. 942, 6 A. L. R. 1426.

Where a section of school land was patented before the occupant of an overlapping section of school land had acquired any right and the field notes of the patented section embraced within its calls the overlap, the patentee's right was superior to that of a subsequent purchaser of the other section. Post v. Embry (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 514.

Patent as evidence of title.—The patent carries with it the prima facie title to the land, and one attacking it must show a superior right. Schnackenberg v. State (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 934.

Art. 5362. [4176] When patent to be issued.

Construction of field notes.—A reasonable construction of field notes which harmonizes all the terms of the patent will be adopted, and such matters of description as clearly appear to have been inserted by mistake should be rejected. Wilson v. Giraud (Sup.) 231 S. W. 1074.

Art. 5368. [4182] Shall issue patent to assignee, when.

Cited, Robertson v. Du Bose, 76 Tex. 1, 13 S. W. 300.

Art. 5376. [4191] Commissioner to deliver patent, when; fee for.—The Commissioner of the General Land Office is hereby authorized and required to issue patents when it appears from the books of said office that full payment for the land has been made, where payment is required, and all legal fees due thereon have paid into said office and not withdrawn, including the legal fee or fees for the recording of said patent in the county or counties in which the land may be located. When one applies for a patent such person shall, in addition to other sums of money legally due as payment for the land and other sums due as legal fees, remit to the land Office the sum of one dollar for each and every county in which the land may be wholly or partly located and give the name and address of the owner or agent. When the patent is ready for delivery the Commissioner shall send it by registered mail to the county clerk of the county in which the land, or a part thereof is located, or to the clerk of the county in which such county may be attached for judicial purposes, together with the Receiver's check for one dollar for each and every county in which the land may be wholly or partly located, and accompany same with the name and address of the owner or his agent. Upon receipt of the patent and the fee, the clerk shall record the patent and deliver it to the owner or his agent either in person or by registered mail, if the land be wholly located in such county. If the land be located in two or more counties the patent, together with the required fee and the name and address of the owner or his agent, shall be forwarded by registered mail by each clerk to the clerk of another proper county until the patent shall have been recorded in each county and thereupon the patent shall be delivered to the owner or his agent either in person or by registered mail. All undelivered patents now in the Land Office on which fees have been paid shall be sent to the clerk of the county in which the land, or a part thereof is located, or to the clerk of the county to which such county may be attached for judicial purposes, and after being recorded in the last county as provided herein for other patents the clerk shall deliver the patent to the proper person upon payment of the recording fee. [Acts 1891, p. 182; Acts 1918, 35th Leg., 4th C. S., ch. 47, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Art. 5379. [4193] [Repealed.]

Explanatory.—Repealed by Acts 1918, 35th Leg., 4th C. S., ch. 47, § 2.

LAND RESERVATIONS

Art. 5383. Locations validated.

Art. 5385. All unappropriated lands declared part of permanent school fund.

Article 5383. [4265] Locations validated.

Rights of state.—Where the state reserves land for railroad purposes, and, upon the failure of the railroad, reopens the land to settlement, it is within the power of the state to say whether and what consideration shall be given those who have settled on the land during the period of reservation. Stiles v. Hawkins (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 89.

Art. 5385. All unappropriated lands declared part of permanent school fund.

Construction and application in general.—Land located by railroad and recovered by state and so belonging to permanent school fund was appropriated land, and it was not lawful for Land Commissioner to correct field notes thereof to reduce its acreage and take from it land belonging to fund and give it to another survey owned by individual. Main v. Cartwright (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 847.

	5404j. Record of lease; rights under lease.

Article 5393a. Validation of grants and allotments by towns or villages under authority of Spain or Mexico.

Title validated.—Where plaintiff claimed title under a conveyance by the officers of the town of San Elizario, held that, even if an attempt to incorporate the town in 1879 under general statute was of no effect, the special charter not having been repealed, the title was validated by Acts 21st Leg. Special Laws (9 Gammel's Laws, p. 1371), and this article. Perez v. Cook (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 668.

Art. 5393c. Validation of Baltazar de la Garza grant.—That the titles to all lands embraced within the boundaries of the Baltazar de la Garza grant of land in Nacogdoches County, Texas, as described in the petition and documents of said Baltazar de la Garza on file in the archives of the General Land Office of the State of Texas, the said lands so described being bounded on the west by the de la Cerda grant of land; on the north by the F. H. K. Day survey, Jose Ignacio Ybarbo grant, J. Fulcher and C. S. Engledow surveys, on the east by the M. C. Cherino grant, and on the south by the Juan Mora grant of land, be and the same are hereby in all respects validated, ratified and confirmed, and that hereafter the validity of said titles shall not be questioned in any court in the State of Texas; provided, this Act shall not apply to any defect title that may have occurred after the original grantee Baltazar de la Garza parted with the title thereto. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 97, § 1.]
Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Art. 5393d. Same; relinquishment of state claims.—That all claim of the State of Texas in and to the said Baltazar de la Garza grant of land by reason of any failure of the said Baltazar de la Garza to perfect and complete and have recorded his muniments of title thereto, or any part thereof, or for any other reason, is hereby relinquished and abandoned. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 5393e. Same; junior patents.—Provided that this Act shall not be construed as in any way affecting any junior patents that may have been located on said Baltazar de la Garza grant prior to the passage of this Act. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5393f. Validation of certain Spanish grants.—That the surveys of the following porciones of land in Webb County, Texas, granted by the Crown of Spain in 1767, to the following settlers in the City of Laredo, at that time, viz :

Porcion No.		Original Grantees
29	to	Juan Baptista Villarreal
30	to	Jose Francisco Cordova Moreno
31	to	Jose Trevino
33	to	Jose Dionisio Trevino
34	to	Jose Antonio Diaz
36	to	Laureano Salinas
37	to	Jose Bartolo Chapa
38	to	Toledo Sanchez
39	to	Jose Antonio Nasario
47	to	City of Laredo
48	to	City of Laredo
53	to	Leonardo Sanchez
57	to	Jose Maria de la Garza
58	to	Manuel Garza

be and the same are hereby validated, and the Commissioner of the General Land Office, is hereby authorized and required to issue patents on each of the above named Porciones to the respective grantees, their heirs or assigns in accord with the field notes now on file in the General Land Office. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 123, § 1.]

Took effect March 31, 1921.

Art. 5396. [4274] Surplus segregated from public domain, when.

Construction and application in general.—This act did not give controlling effect to any one method of locating surveys, or define the proper function of the various means that might be resorted to in locating boundaries, but merely referred to the different recognized means; the intent being that application of means should be governed by principles of boundary law and the use of maps under certain circumstances being recognized. Brooks v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 632.

In constructing blocks of surveys in which there is an excess, they must be constructed consecutively as placed therein by the original maps, sketches, or field notes. Standefer v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 484.

Art. 5397. [4275] Belong to public free school fund.

Excess.—Till excess in a block of surveys shall be set apart by the land commissioner, there is no right to purchase it. Standefer v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 484.

Where a section surveyed for the public school fund and described as containing 640 acres contained in fact 652 acres, and the different quarters were patented to different persons as containing 160 acres each, the purchasers had a prior right to their proportionate parts of the excess. Anderson v. Robinson (Sup.) 229 S. W. 459.

In case of excess, where a survey was actually run on the ground, the state cannot recover by seeking to tear surveys apart and declare a vacancy. State v. Coleman-Fulton Pasture Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 850.

Where a survey is actually made, it cannot be disregarded because of an excess. Id.

Art. 5402. [4271] Land, how sold and proceeds invested.

Validity of contract.—A contract for conveyance of minerals, in place, construed as an attempt to convey an interest in public school lands for a consideration, in part at least, other than money, thereby diverting a part of the fund from the purpose to which it was dedicated, so that the conveyance is void. Thomason v. Upshur County (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 325.

That portion of a contract, by which a county conveyed minerals in certain school lands which required the county to make a dedication deed to streets and alleys and to convey odd-numbered blocks to grantees without consideration to be paid in money, is void. Id.

Where a county's contract for conveyance of an interest in school lands is entire as to consideration and incapable of severance, the consideration must be wholly good or wholly bad, and, where a part of it was bad as not being in money as required by law, the remainder, being in money, is insufficient to give the contract validity. Id.

Where county commissioners' court released one-half of a tract of land burdened with a $21,000 school fund mortgage debt in favor of the county from all but $10,500 of such debt, the transaction not being in the nature of a resale, but to prevent payment of the whole mortgage, such transaction falls within the inhibition of Const. art. 7, § 6, and art. 3, § 65, and is void. Riggins v. Post (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 600.

Amount for which sold.—If a contract for conveyance of school land be considered severable as to consideration, it is void, since the commissioners' court, occupying the relationship of a trustee, could not, for the nominal consideration of $5, convey a valuable estate in land belonging to the school fund. Thomason v. Upshur County (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 325.

Power of court.—Where a contract for conveyance of an interest in school lands provides that if it is invalid the county as grantor and grantee shall make a legal and binding agreement to carry out its terms, the court cannot enforce a transfer by prescribing the price and terms of payment, which is a matter for the commissioners' court. Thomason v. Upshur County (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 325.

Art. 5404a. Sale of lands and flats under waters of Matagorda Bay.—That the Commissioner of the General Land Office be and he is hereby authorized to sell those certain lands and flats in and under the waters of Matagorda Bay, belonging to the State of Texas, upon the terms and conditions and within the limitations hereinafter provided. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 70, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 5404b. Same; persons entitled to purchase; price.—Any person, or any corporation heretofore organized, or which may hereafter be organized under the laws of the State of Texas, which has heretofore dredged a channel, or which may hereafter dredge a channel from the mainland through and across or partly across Matagorda Bay, and the lands and flats covered by the waters of said Bay to give access to the Intercoastal Canal and said proposed or constructed channel to have a depth of not less than six feet, and to be not less than one hundred feet wide at the bottom, shall have the right to purchase from the State of Texas, at the rate of Two Dollars per acre, a strip of land occupied by and adjacent to such proposed or constructed channel not to exceed eight hundred feet in width for the entire length of said channel, extending from the mainland into Matagorda Bay, for such a distance as is necessary to enable all water craft which navigate the intercoastal canal to reach said channel, which right to purchase shall include the right to drive such piling and to construct such jetties as are necessary in connection with the dredging, deepening, widening or maintaining of such channel, and the right to waste the spoil from such channel within or without the eight hundred feet so acquired. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 5404c. Same; application; fee; approval.—Any person or corporation desiring to purchase any of the lands hereinbefore referred to for such channel purposes under the provisions of this Act, shall file an application in writing for the survey thereof with the County Surveyor of the County in which the area is situated, and said County Surveyor shall, immediately upon the receipt thereof, make a survey and furnish such applicant with full field notes duly certified by him. Within ninety days after such applicant receives from said County Surveyor said certified full field notes, such applicant shall file an application and said certified field notes, together with One Dollar filing fee, in the General Land Office, together with Two Dollars per acre for each acre included in the application and field notes. Said application filed with the Commissioner of the General Land Office shall also contain a brief description of the improvements which such person or corporation may have made, or proposes to make, on the area sought to be purchased, together with an estimate of the cost of such improvements, including the dredging of the channel; and said application shall further state that it is made in good faith, and that the applicant intends to do the work and make the improvements described within the period of time therein stated, and shall also state when or about when, such person or corporation intends to begin the work of making such improvements. The Commissioner of the General Land Office shall immediately upon receipt of such application, examine the same particularly as to the improvements made or contemplated to be made, and if upon such investigation as he desires to make, he is satisfied that such application is made in good faith, and is of the opinion that such improvements have been made, or will be made as stated in said applications, and if further of the opinion that such improvements are of a substantial nature and suitable for the purposes for which the area is desired, the Commissioner shall fix the time within which work shall begin on such improvements, if the beginning of work thereon has not already been commenced, which shall not be more than six months from the date of the approval of such application, and shall also fix the time within which such improvements shall be completed, which time shall be not more than two years from the date of the granting of such application; provided that for good cause shown, the Commissioner may extend the time for the completion of such work, for a term not to exceed two years.

If after the investigation herein provided for, the Commissioner of the General Land Office shall be of the opinion that said application is made in good faith and that person or corporation making such application intends to do the work and make the improvements therein described within the period stated in such application, and is of the further opinion that such improvements are of a substantial nature and suitable for the purposes for which the area is desired, then the said Commissioner having fixed the time within which work shall be begun on such improvements, and the time in which such improvements shall be completed, shall thereupon approve said application and grant the right therein applied for; provided, no patent shall issue to such applicant or to his or its successors or assigns, until the improvements provided for shall have been completed. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5404d. Same; forfeiture of application.—Should such applicant fail or refuse to complete the improvements prescribed, within the time fixed for the completion thereof, or any extension of such time, then the said Commissioner of the General Land Office shall declare such application forfeited, and the person or corporation making such application shall forfeit to the State of Texas all rights acquired in and to the lands and flats in Matagorda Bay or the waters thereof, described in the application and field notes, together with all improvements made and all sums paid thereon. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 5404e. Same; patent.—Should the applicant complete the improvements provided for, within the time allowed, a patent to the lands described in the application shall then be issued by the State of Texas to such applicant, or to the successors or assigns of such applicant, upon the payment of the lawful patent fee. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 5404f. Same; disposal of purchase price.—All moneys received by the Commissioner of the General Land Office under the provisions of this Act, shall be transmitted by him to the State Treasurer and credited to the General Revenue. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 5404g. Same; petroleum, etc., in land applied for.—From and after the filing of an application with the County Surveyor under this Act, and Commissioner of the General Land Office shall not receive any applications for permit to prospect for petroleum, oil or natural gas in, on or under the area of waters that may be included in said application, or any part thereof, and shall not grant or extend any right to prospect for said minerals in, on or under said area; provided that the State shall and does reserve all the minerals that may be within the area which may be acquired under this Act, which reservation shall be recited in the patents to said lands. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 5404h. Same; use of channels dug.—If a channel should be dug under the provisions of this Act it shall be open to the ingress and egress of every ship, boat, tug or barge and every other kind of commercial transport upon such terms, rates of charges and conditions as may be prescribed by the Railroad Commission, and said Commission shall have the same jurisdiction over such channel as is conferred upon it over railroads. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 5404i. Lease of certain areas to Audubon society.—For and in consideration of the undertaking by the National Association of Audubon Societies to propagate, protect and conserve birds and bird life on North Bird Island and on South Bird Island in Kleberg County; on Green Island in Cameron County and on the Group of Islands known as Three Islands in Cameron County, and on the flats and reefs and shallow waters in the vicinity of and adjacent to all of said Islands so far as such water, flats and reefs may be necessary for purposes of this Act, and as the same are situated in Laguna Madre between Padre Island and the main coast lines of said counties, the Commissioner of the General Land Office shall, upon application of said Association, lease said areas or so much thereof as said Association may desire for the purposes stated herein for a term not to exceed fifty years; provided, if said Association should at any time during the term of any lease issued under this Act dissolve its organization or consent to a termination of such lease the Commissioner of the General Land Office shall cancel same and thereupon all rights acquired by said Association shall terminate. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 20, § 1.]

Took effect Nov. 15, 1921.

Art. 5404j. Record of lease; rights under lease.—All leases shall be recorded in the county in which the leased area is situated and after the record thereof the lessee shall have the exclusive right to enter upon, have, hold and occupy exclusively the area included in such lease and shall have the exclusive right to adopt such rules and regulations as may be necessary for the execution of the purposes of this Act; provided, nothing herein shall be construed to prohibit or interfere with the authority of any peace officer of the State of Texas or of the United States to enter upon any such leased area for the purpose of discharging any duty imposed upon such officer by the laws of Texas or by the laws of the United States. [Id., § 2.]

Explanatory.—Sections 3 and 4 impose a criminal penalty, and are set forth, post, as arts. 923uu, 923v, Penal Code.

Article 5405a. Sale of unsold lands.—On the first day of September 1919, and the first day of each January, May and September of each year thereafter, all the unsold lands set apart for the benefit of the public free school fund, the Lunatic Asylum fund, the Blind Asylum fund, the Deaf and Dumb Asylum fund, the Orphan Asylum fund, which have heretofore been surveyed or that may hereafter be surveyed and unsold portions of same shall be subject to sale by the Commissioner of the General Land Office under the regulations and upon the terms provided in this Act; provided, no land leased before the passage of this Act shall be subject to sale until the first sale date after the termination of the lease. No corporation shall purchase any land under this Act. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 163, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 5407. Classification and valuation; sale of timber.—The Commissioner of the General Land Office shall from time to time, as the public interest may require, classify or reclassify, value or revalue, any of the lands included in this Act, designating the same as agricultural, grazing or timber, or a combination of said classifications, according to the facts in the particular case, and when entry of the classification and the appraisalment is made on the records of the General Land Office, no further action on the part of the Commissioner, nor notice to the County Clerk shall be required to give effect thereto. No land classed as agricultural shall be sold for less than one dollar and fifty cents per acre and no land classed as grazing shall be sold for less than one dollar per acre. The land included in this Act shall be sold with the reservation of the oil, gas, coal and all other minerals that may be therein to the fund to which the land belongs and all applications shall so state. Timber on land shall be sold for cash at its fair market value. The Commissioner shall notify the clerk of the proper county of the sale of each tract, giving the name and address of the purchaser together with the price of the land. When informed of the sale of any land the clerk shall enter on his books opposite the description of the land sold, the name of the purchaser and the date sold, and the notice of such sale and the books of record and entry shall be considered public records, and be open to public inspection, and it is hereby made the duty of the county clerk to exhibit the said records to any person who shall apply therefor. [Acts 1905, p. 159, § 1. Art. 4218e, Act 1895, amended Acts 1897, p. 184. Art. 4218b, Act 1895. Art. 4218e, Act 1895, amended Acts 1897, p. 184. Act of 1905, p. 159, part of § 1. Art. 4218f, Act 1895. Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 163, § 2.]

See Ford v. Robison, 109 Tex. 126, 201 S. W. 401.

Classification.—A purchaser from the state, under Act April 12, 1883 (Acts 18th Leg. c. 88), of school land, not known to contain minerals, but fairly and in good faith classified and sold without reservation as agricultural land by the duly authorized state authorities, acquired title to minerals which might be thereafter discovered, and relation is not, under Acts 33d Leg. c. 173, as amended by Acts 33d Leg. Ex. Sess. c. 18 (arts. 5904-5920j), entitled to a permit to prospect on the land for oil and gas, in view of art. 4041, validating title to minerals. Greene v. Robison, 109 Tex. 367, 210 S. W. 498.

Reappraisal.—The commissioner of public lands may, when a second forfeiture has been declared, reappraise land at less than the amount at which it was once appraised, under arts. 5223a-5423f, permitting repurchase by former purchasers whose purchase was declared forfeited. Stockwell v. Robison, 109 Tex. 137, 201 S. W. 1156.

Evidence.—The report of the board of appraisers as authorized by arts. 5423a-5423c, amending this article, that the proper classification of certain school land was grazing land, was not record evidence that the land was ever classified and sold as grazing land, so that it was not within the provisions of the act authorizing the issuance of permits to prospect for oil and gas. Johnson v. Sunshine Oil Corporation (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 698.

In state's action to cancel sale of public land sold as dry agricultural land for $1.50 an acre upon the ground that land was legally appraised at $2 an acre at the time of the sale, and that the commissioner of the General Land Office had not notified the county clerk of county in which land was situated of classification of land and the appraisal thereof at $1.50 an acre, under Act of 1897, c. 129 (10 Gammel's Laws, p. 1238) evidence held to prove that the land had been duly appraised at $1.50 an acre, and that notice thereof had been sent to and received and recorded by the county clerk at the time of the sale. Gulf Production Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 124.

Art. 5408. Advertisement of land.—In cases where any land included in this Act may be leased and the same may come on the market by reason of the expiration or cancellation of such lease or in cases where land may be sold and revert to the fund to which it originally belonged by reason of the forfeiture or cancellation of the sale, it shall be the duty of the Commissioner to classify and value same before the next sale date thereafter and adopt such means as may be at his command that will give the widest publicity and general information as to when such land and other unsold land will be on the market for sale, together with the terms and conditions upon which the land may be purchased. No tract of land shall be subject to sale until it shall have been advertised. If there are no other satisfactory or sufficient means at the command of the Commissioner that will give the necessary publicity he shall have printed at the expense of the State, to be paid out of the appropriation for public printing, lists of the land for free distribution to the public. The lists shall contain a brief statement of how one shall proceed to buy the land. [Acts 1905, p. 159, § 2; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 163, § 3.]

Purchase after cancellation or forfeiture.—Purchaser's right to reinstatement under art. 5423, providing for reinstatement where no rights of third persons have intervened, following forfeiture for nonpayment of interest, was not affected by the fact that during interval between forfeiture and reinstatement third person made application to purchase the land, where such person did not complete his purchase by actually settling on the land, but voluntarily abandoned it. Gulf Production Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 124.

Art. 5409. [4218g] Sale by commissioner, how made.—One desiring to buy any portion of the land included in this Act shall transmit to the Commissioner of the General Land Office a separate application for each tract applied for together with the affidavit of the applicant to the effect that he desires to purchase the land for himself and that no other person or corporation is interested in the purchase thereof either directly or indirectly and one-fortieth of the aggregate price offered for the land and the obligation of the applicant in a sum equal to the amount of the unpaid purchase price offered for the land, binding the purchaser to pay to the State at the General Land Office at Austin, Texas, on the first day of November thereafter and on the first day of November of each year thereafter until the whole purchase price is paid, one-fortieth of the aggregate price with interest on the unpaid purchase price at the rate of five per cent per annum. Upon receipt and filing of the application, affidavit, obligation and the one-fortieth part of the price offered, the sale shall be held effective from that date. If the interest on any sale should not be paid when due, the land shall be subject to forfeiture by the Commissioner entering on the wrapper containing the papers "Land Forfeited," or words of similar import, with the date of such action and sign it officially, and thereupon the land and all payments shall be forfeited to the State and offered for sale on a subsequent sale date. [Acts 1895; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 163, § 4.]

Art. 5409b. Sale in whole tracts only; separate applications; lease of unsold portions.—The surveyed land and unsold portions of surveys included in this Act shall be sold in whole tracts only and without condition of settlement and residence and in quantities not to exceed eight sections to one purchaser. A separate application in writing shall be made for each tract applied for. Any unsold land may be leased at any time at not less than five cents per annum, payable in advance each year and for a term not to exceed five years, but all land so leased and unsold shall be subject to sale on each succeeding sale date. All tracts containing less than 80 acres shall be sold for cash. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 163, § 5.]

Art. 5410. Application for purchase; opening; rejection.—All sales shall be made by the Commissioner of the General Land Office or under his direction. Any person desiring to purchase any of the surveyed land included in this Act shall make a separate application in writing for each tract as a whole and be addressed to the Commissioner of the General Land Office. It shall sufficiently designate the tract applied for and state the amount offered therefor which shall not be less than the appraised value fixed thereon by the Commissioner. The Application shall be delivered to the General Land Office in a sealed envelope addressed to the Commissioner of the General Land Office at Austin, Texas, and the envelope shall have endorsed thereon in effect: "Application to buy land," and date when the land will be on the market. Applications received at the Land Office in envelopes not so endorsed shall nevertheless be valid. When the envelopes so endorsed and applications without endorsement on envelopes are received in the General Land Office, the envelopes shall remain unopened and the applications shall remain unfiled and all shall be safely and securely kept by the Commissioner or his chief Clerk until the day following the day when the land comes on the market and at ten o'clock A. M. on said day one or both of them shall begin to open the envelopes and file all applications and take such action thereon as may be provided by law; provided, if the opening day should be Sunday or other legal holiday, the opening shall be postponed until the first work day thereafter. Those desiring to be present at such opening may do so. All sales shall be made to the applicant who offers the most for the land, not less than the price fixed by the Commissioner. Should two or more applicants offer the same price for any tract the same being the highest price offered therefor on any sale date, all shall be rejected and the land offered for sale on the next sale date. Payments on all rejected applications shall be returned to the applicant by the State Treasurer. Land heretofore purchased by one shall be counted against him under this Act. [Acts 1905, p. 159, § 3; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 163, § 6.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Decision under prior act, see Richardson v. Westmoreland (App.) 19 S. W. 432.

Rights of applicants in general.—Intending purchasers of public lands, having made application to purchase as required by art. 5410, held to have perfected rights to lands, though affidavit antedated official declaration that lands were for sale. Stockwell v. Robison, 109 Tex. 137, 201 S. W. 1156.

Art. 5423 was not affected by the fact that during interval between forfeiture and reinstatement third person made application to purchase the land, where such person did not complete his purchase by actually settling on the land, but voluntarily abandoned it. Gulf Production Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 124.

When land is on the market in general.—Land described in a patent cannot be subject to future location. Schnackenberg v. State (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 934.

Art. 5416. Award and settlement.

See Gulf Production Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 124.

Settlement and occupancy.—In trespass to try title to recover land, originally public free school lands, from the purchaser thereof and his lessee, remarks of the trial court in overruling motion for new trial, and the ground on which he based his ruling, the ground being that the purchaser did not settle on the land for a home, but settled on it as employé of his subsequent lessee, held not reversible error. Nations v. Miller (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 742.

— Evidence.—Evidence in trespass to try title held sufficient to sustain findings that defendant purchaser did not actually settle free school land within 90 days after its award to him, as required, and did not reside thereon continuously for three years after actual settlement. Nations v. Miller (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 742.

Art. 5420. Limitations as to purchases.

Explanatory.—This article was in part superseded by Act April 5, 1915, which was repealed by Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 163, § 10, set forth post as arts. 5420a-5420g.

Limitations as to amount of land.—Under this article, purchaser under art. 5420a, held chargeable with land previously purchased under prior statutes in same county, although such act does not specifically so charge him. Ford v. Robison, 109 Tex. 126, 201 S. W. 401.

Arts. 5420a-5420g. [Repealed by Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 163, § 10.]

Prior purchases.—Under art. 5420, as to quantities in which school land may be purchased, purchaser under this act is chargeable with land previously purchased under prior statutes in same county, although such act does not specifically so charge him. Ford v. Robison, 109 Tex. 126, 201 S. W. 401.

Quantity purchasable.—The quantum of land which may be purchased by a single individual is determined by the number of sections regardless of acreage. Ford v. Robison, 109 Tex. 126, 201 S. W. 401.

Art. 5422. Sales without settlement.

See Siddall v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1029.

Art. 5423. [4218/] Forfeiture of purchase by non-payment of interest, etc.

Forfeiture for nonpayment of interest—Reinstatement.—Purchasers of public lands, against whom forfeiture has been declared for failure to pay interest, may be relieved of the forfeiture only in the absence of intervening rights of other persons. Stockwell v. Robison, 109 Tex. 137, 201 S. W. 1156.

Purchaser of public land classified at time of purchase as agricultural land, who defaulted in payment of interest, was entitled to reinstatement of sale with all rights received at time of original purchase, on payment of amount due, where no rights of third persons had intervened, notwithstanding reclassification of purchased land, during an interval between purchase and forfeiture, as mineral land under art. 5433, providing for sale of such land with reservation of minerals to the state. Gulf Production Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 124.

A quitclaim deed, executed by purchaser's successor in interest after forfeiture of sale for nonpayment of interest entitled grantee to reinstatement on payment of amount due, if rights of third parties have not intervened, under such statute; the grantor having enjoyed such a right and having conveyed by quitclaim deed the interest held by him at time of the execution of the deed. Id.

The right to reinstatement of successor in interest of purchaser of public land, after forfeiture for nonpayment of interest, was a vested right, where no rights of third parties had intervened, which could not be affected by any false representations to Land Commissioner by successor in interest. Id.

Where third person, who had made an application to purchase land after forfeiture of previous sale for nonpayment of interest did not complete purchase, but voluntarily abandoned it without acquiring any substantial right, purchaser or his vendee, by payment of amount due, under such statute, were entitled to reinstatement, even though cancellation of sale to third person had not been formally entered on the Land Office books. Id.

Art. 5423a. Purchasers after January 1, 1907, and before January 1, 1913, who have forfeited for non-payment of interest, may repurchase, when.

See Johnson v. Sunshine Oil Corporation (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 698.

Repurchase or reinstatement.—The right to repurchase does not constitute such title as to entitle him to compensation or damages from one who between the forfeiture and purchase obtains permit from the state to prospect for oil; art. 5920g, denying such recovery to a subsequent purchaser of the land. Southwest Texas Oil & Gas Co. v. Boykin (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 216.

Art. 5423b. Owner to advise commissioner of wish to repurchase, etc.

See Johnson v. Sunshine Oil Corporation (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 698.

Art. 5423c. Board of appraisers, how constituted, etc.

Reappraisal.—The commissioner of public lands may, under art. 5407, when a second forfeiture has been declared, reappraise land at less than the amount at which it was once appraised, under this act. Stockwell v. Robison, 109 Tex. 137, 201 S. W. 1156.

The report of the board of appraisers that the proper classification of certain school land was grazing land, was not record evidence that the land was ever classified and sold as grazing land, so that it was not within the provisions of the act authorizing the issuance of permits to prospect for oil and gas (art. 5904b, Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918). Johnson v. Sunshine Oil Corporation (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 698.

Art. 5424. Permanent improvements to be erected by purchaser; forfeiture.

Construction and operation in general.—In the provision providing that, if any purchaser shall fail "to reside upon and improve" in good faith school lands purchased by him, he shall forfeit the same to the state, the word "and" should be read "or." State v. Elza, 109 Tex. 256, 206 S. W. 342.

Value of improvements.—In suit to cancel defendant's purchase of school lands for failure to erect improvements as required, held, that defendant did not, by securing from lessee assignment of lease to land subsequently purchased, acquire title to fences erected by lessee, so that they could be counted as part of improvements. State v. Elza, 109 Tex. 256, 206 S. W. 342.

If fences were reserved by lessee of school lands when he assigned lease to defendant, they would not become defendant's, so that they could be counted as part of improvements required by this article, by virtue of his purchase of the land, prior to expiration of time for removal under art. 5457, and lessee's failure to remove within 60 days after expiration of lease as provided by said section; title not being in defendant but in the state thereafter. Id.

Forfeiture for nonoccupancy or abandonment.—A purchaser of public school lands having secured them on condition of settlement, and having failed to comply with the law's requirement as to residence through abandonment of the land himself without leaving thereon a qualified substitute, it became the duty of the commissioner of the general land office to forfeit the purchase. Schauer v. Schauer, 110 Tex. 257, 219 S. W. 195.

Art. 5425. Forfeiture for failure to settle on land, etc.

Forfeiture—in general.—Land commissioner has no authority to cancel a sale of public free school lands for collusion. Schauer v. Schauer (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1010.

Since state could recover from a substituted purchaser of public free school lands only by a direct suit, an attempted forfeiture of sale by land commissioner for collusion was void. Id.

Art. 5428. [4218f] Purchasers prior to July 30, 1895, etc.

See Ford v. Robison, 109 Tex. 126, 201 S. W. 401.

Art. 5430. Timber lands defined; regulations for sale of.

Purchaser need not be actual settler.—Under Acts 27th Leg. (1901) c. 125, an award of the timber on public lands carried with it the right of purchase of the land within five years if the timber was not sooner removed on condition of actual settlement. In 1907 the requirement as to actual settlement was abrogated. Held, that plaintiff, to whom the timber was awarded under said act, and who within the five-year period, but after 1907, was awarded the land without the condition of actual settlement, was entitled to the same as against a previous purchaser of other public lands whose conveyance, made in 1906, erroneously included the lands acquired by plaintiff. Kirby v. Conn., 109 Tex. 540, 212 S. W. 469.

Art. 5432. Unsurveyed or scrap lands.—One desiring to purchase any portion of the unsurveyed land believed to belong to the school fund shall make a written application of inquiry to the Commissioner of the General Land Office. The inquiry shall give the applicant's post office address, state in effect that he desires to buy the land if it should be for sale and sufficiently designate it. If it should appear from the records of the Land Office the area belongs to the public free school fund or if there should be doubt as to the existence of the area as public free school land the applicant shall be advised and given the name and address of an authorized surveyor with whom he may contract for the survey of the land at the expense of the applicant. The applicant shall file an application with the surveyor accompanied by one dollar as a filing fee. The Application shall be filed and recorded and sufficiently describe the land. The survey shall be made and returned to the Land Office within ninety days after the date of the Commissioner's advice as to an available authorized surveyor. If the Commissioner should decline to recognize the existence of the area as public school land and refuse to authorize a survey to be made such person may file a suit against the county surveyor in the District Court of the county in which the land is located or in the county to which such county may be attached for judicial purposes to compel him to make the survey and thereupon the surveyor shall implead the claimant of the land and in such proceedings determine if the area be public land. In such proceedings the surveyor shall not be held for any cost incurred. If the final judgment of the Court should decree the area or part thereof to be school land the surveyor shall make the survey and the application, field notes and one dollar filing fee shall be filed in the Land Office within ninety days from date of the final decree. When the surveyor returns the field notes and a plat of the survey to the Land Office, together with one dollar filing fee to be paid by applicant, he shall report under oath the classification and reasonable market value of the land and also the timber thereon and its value which may be considered in connection with such other evidence as may be required by the Commissioner in determining the price to be given the land and timber. If upon inspection of the papers the Commissioner is satisfied from the report of the surveyor and the records of the Land Office the land belongs to the public free school fund and the survey has been made according to law, he shall approve same by classifying and valuing the land and mail notice of such action to the applicant, giving the classification price and terms. Such land shall be sold without condition of settlement and residence, and the timber, if any thereon, shall be sold for cash at its reasonable market value. No award shall be issued for the land until the timber shall have been fully paid for. The applicant shall file in the Land Office his application for the purchase of the land together with one-fortieth of the appraised value fixed thereon within sixty days from the date of the notice of the classification and valuation together with the applicant's obligation for the balance of the unpaid purchase price bearing interest at the rate of five per cent per annum and the obligation and other conditions of sale shall be the same as that for surveyed land. If such application should not be filed within the time prescribed herein, the Commissioner shall place the land on the market for sale upon the same terms as are herein provided for other surveyed school land. The land shall be sold with the minerals therein reserved to the school fund. All tracts of less than 80 acres shall be sold as a whole for full cash payment which payment shall accompany the purchase application. If upon the inspection of any application, field notes and records of the Land Office, there should appear to be a greater area belonging to the school fund than that included in the application and field notes, the Commissioner may, in his discretion, require the applicant to include the whole area in his field notes. If it should appear that another than the applicant claims an unsurveyed area which belongs to the school fund, the Commissioner may, in his discretion, refer the removal of such claim to the Attorney General before making a sale to an applicant. If the Attorney General should refuse to institute proceedings for the removal of such claim, the Commissioner may, nevertheless, sell the area. [Acts 1907, p. 490, § 8; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 163, § 7.]

In general.—Where the state was not a party to actions against those to whom it has given permits under arts. 5904–5904w, to explore for oil on lands claimed to belong to the state, judgments rendered in suits against such licensees will not, under this article, be binding against the state; hence a suit by the state to enjoin defendants, who had sued the licensees from drilling on the land involved, will not be dismissed on the theory that the state was bound by the judgment in previous suit. Prairie Oil & Gas Co. v. State (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 1088, modifying judgment (Civ. App.) Prairie Oil & Gas Co. v. State, 214 S. W. 363.

Unsurveyed land.—In order for the status of land, as surveyed or unsurveyed land to be affected by approved field notes on file in the General Land Office, the survey of the land and the filing and approval of the field notes by the land commissioner must not be void because violative of law. Landry v. Robison, 110 Tex. 295, 219 S. W. 819.

Vacancies between surveys.—In suit to try title to land purchased by plaintiff as vacant land lying, as he claimed, between two surveys, one on the north and one on the south, instructions in connection with the issue as to whether the land was vacant held erroneous as calculated to mislead the jury, in that they were authorized to determine the location of the survey on the north on the ground with reference to surveys thereof made by other surveyors than the one who made the field notes on which it was patented. Antone v. Hoffman (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 500.

In suit by the state and others to recover title to land on the theory that before its attempted appropriation the land was vacant and unappropriated land, evidence held to show that the land, prior to its attempted location, was appropriated public land, and that no vacancy existed, as claimed between other surveys and the river bank, where such location might be made. Schnackenberg v. State (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 934.

In case of excess, where a survey was actually run on the ground, the state cannot recover by seeking to tear surveys apart and declare a vacancy. State v. Coleman-Fulton Pasture Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 850.

Art. 5432a. Prior right to purchase privately surveyed land for which patent can not issue.—If for any cause a patent cannot be lawfully issued upon a tract of land heretofore surveyed by virtue of any private right and such land shall be claimed in good faith by one by virtue of an original right or by a chain of title from the original holder of such right duly executed before the passage of this Act, and if such claimant has paid all taxes, he shall have the preference right to purchase the survey as surveyed school land at any time within sixty days after the date of the notice from the Land Office to the claimant that patent cannot be issued thereon, but if the said land should not be so purchased the Commissioner shall place the same on the market for sale as other surveyed public free school land. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 163, § 8.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 5433. Minerals, gayule and lechuguilla reserved.

Purchase prior to classification.—A purchaser from the state, of school land, not known to contain minerals, but fairly and in good faith classified and sold without reservation as agricultural land by the duly authorized state authorities, acquired title to minerals which might be thereafter discovered, and relator is not, under arts. 5904–5920j, entitled to a permit to prospect on the land for oil and gas, in view of Rev. St. 1895, art. 4041, validating title to minerals. Greene v. Robison, 109 Tex. 367, 210 S. W. 498.

Purchaser of public land classified at time of purchase as agricultural land, who defaulted in payment of interest, was entitled to reinstatement of sale with all rights received at time of original purchase, on payment of amount due, where no rights of third persons had intervened, under art. 5423, notwithstanding reclassification of purchased land, during an interval between purchase and forfeiture, as mineral land, where art. 5423, giving purchaser the right to reinstatement, was in existence at time of purchase, and was therefore a right which the Land Commissioner's subsequent reclassification of the land could not operate to destroy. Gulf Production Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 124.

Art. 5435. Transfers.—Owners of public free school land and asylum land heretofore or hereafter purchased from the State may sell their land or a definite portion of same in any size tract. A vendee through personal transfer heretofore or hereafter executed for a whole survey and a vendee through personal transfer heretofore or hereafter executed for a whole portion of a survey that was purchased from the State as a whole, shall have the right to become a substitute purchaser direct from the State in the manner provided herein. With the approval of the Commissioner of the General Land Office a vendee through personal transfer heretofore or hereafter executed for a portion of a survey that was purchased from the State as a whole and a vendee through personal transfer heretofore or hereafter executed for a portion of a survey that was purchased from the State in a quantity less than the whole survey, may become a substitute purchaser direct from the State in the manner provided herein; also, one who claims title, heretofore or hereafter originating through a source other than by personal transfer to a definite portion of a survey less than the whole as it was purchased from the State may, with said approval, have such definite portion divided on the records of the General Land Office from the original purchase in the manner provided herein. Vendees who hold title through personal transfers and have the right to become purchasers direct from the State may be substituted on the records of said office for the original purchaser and thereby become a purchaser direct from the State by filing in said office a complete and valid chain of title through personal transfers which have been duly executed and recorded in the county or counties in which the land or a part thereof is situated or in the county to which such county or counties may be attached for judicial purposes, and pay the lawful fees. When said papers have been filed in said office the substituted purchaser shall have his portion of land separated from the other portion, if any, on the records of the General Land Office and thereby he shall assume and become liable to the State for all unpaid principal and interest due and to become due the State for the land conveyed in the deeds so filed, together with all obligations and penalties attaching to the original purchase the same as was the original purchaser. The obligation of the original purchaser and the obligation of all vendors of such substituted purchaser shall be enforceable against the substituted purchaser the same as if he were the original purchaser from the State and the obligation of the vendor or vendors of the substituted purchaser shall be deemed cancelled. One who claims title to a definite portion of a survey through a source other than by personal transfer may, with the approval above provided, have that portion of land so claimed separated from the other portion of the survey or portion of survey upon the records of the said office by filing therein such evidence of claims as may be required by the said Commissioner and pay the lawful fees for the papers filed as evidence of the claim or right to a separation of such area. When a separation of the land has been made upon the records of the General Land Office in either manner provided for herein, that portion so separated shall be charged and credited with its pro-rata part of the principal and interest due and paid to the first day of the November preceding the date of the filing of the transfers or other papers. If in any of the preceding conditions the land that is desired to be separated from another portion should not be sufficiently designated by metes and bounds in the papers offered for filing for the purpose of certainty in identification the said Commissioner shall require that proper field notes accompany the papers before he shall be required to file them and separate the land. If any owner or claimant of any land included in this Act, which ownership or claim is shown on the records of said office should desire a patent upon a portion thereof less than the whole, such owner or claimant may, with the approval of said Commissioner, file field notes with lawful filing fee for that portion on which patent is desired and obtain a patent therefor when the land is fully paid for with all lawful fees. If the ownership should be evidenced by personal transfers the patent shall be issued to such owner and his assigns. If the claimant claims title through other evidence than by personal transfer, the patent shall be issued in the name of the person and his assigns that holds title by original purchase or in the name of the person and his assigns who appears on said records to hold title through the last personal transfer. If in any case a patent should be issued in the name of one other than the legal owner such patent and the rights granted therein shall inure to the benefit of the legal owner. If, in any case, land has been heretofore or hereafter purchased from the State on condition of residence no patent shall be issued until proper proof of such residence has been filed. In case the three years residence on the land should not have been completed before the date of the signing of the deed by the vendor, the vendee shall be in good faith an actual bona fide settler on the land on that date and shall continue to reside upon the land until his residence with that of the vendor or vendors shall aggregate the required three consecutive years continuous residence from the date of the original purchase. Every vendee before the completion of the required residence by his vendor shall file in the General Land Office an application, affidavit and obligation the same as is required of an original purchaser, together with the partial proof of his vendor's continuous residence to the date of the deed of transfer. When the required three years continuous residence has been heretofore or hereafter completed upon any land included in this Act and proof of that fact, satisfactory to the Commissioner, has been heretofore or may be hereafter filed in the General Land Office, the Commissioner shall issue a certificate of its sufficiency upon the payment of the lawful fees. The said certificate may be recorded in the deed records of the proper county and when so recorded it shall become a muniment of title. After a certificate heretofore or hereafter issued has been heretofore or may be hereafter recorded, neither the sale nor the occupancy of said land shall be questioned by the State nor any person whose rights did not accrue prior to the completion of said residence. The effect of the issuance of said certificate shall include and extend to all land purchased as additional to a home tract on which the said certificate may have been issued. No sale heretofore made or hereafter made without condition of settlement shall be questioned by the State nor any person after one year from the date of such sale. Nothing in this Act relating to the effect of a certificate of occupancy or limitation as to the time a sale may be questioned shall apply to any land that is now in litigation wherein the validity of the original sale is being questioned until such litigation shall be terminated. [Acts 1907, p. 490, § 6d; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. ch. 163, § 9; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 57, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 2 of the act repeals “chapter 25, an act approved March 1, 1911, and chapter 79, an act approved March 17, 1919, and articles 5436 and 5445 of the Revised Civil Statutes of 1911, and all laws and parts of laws in conflict with this act.” The act took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Right to transfer in general.—Where proper application has been made for public free school land of the state and the land has been surveyed, the applicant has a potential interest in the land which he can mortgage or sell; the subsequent award to him inuring to benefit of his mortgagee or purchaser. Poole v. Cage (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 500.

A purchaser of school lands who has complied with the conditions as to occupancy and filed an affidavit thereof within proper time acquires an inchoate right to the land, which can be perfected by compliance with the further requirements of the statute, and this right is subject to sale or transfer. De Shazo v. Eubank (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 976, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 369.

Title and rights acquired by transferee.—Where sale of public free school lands to original purchaser was valid, a substituted qualified purchaser, who was an actual settler upon land at time of purchase from original purchaser, acquired title by original purchaser's conveyance, although transfer and substitute obligation was not filed in general land office. Schauer v. Schauer (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1010.

Where, while the law required interest payments by purchasers of public lands to be made by November 1st each year, a purchaser of such land, from one who had contracted for it from the state agreed with the seller, by notes and by an agreement extending the notes, to pay such interest October 1st of each year, the effect of subsequent legislative extension of time within which public land purchasers might pay interest to August, 1919, was to make the subpurchaser's payment of such interest within a reasonable time before August, 1919, a compliance with such term of the contract, for, the purpose of the provision being to prevent a forfeiture to the state for nonpayment of interest, the provision must be construed in connection with the law as amended. Earhart v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 973.

While a purchaser, on complying with the requirements of the statute as to occupancy of school lands and the filing of an affidavit thereof, acquires an inchoate right subject to sale or transfer, the state is not completely divested of title until all conditions of the purchase are fully complied with, and the right of the purchaser is subject to forfeiture for failure to make payment as required, etc. De Shazo v. Eubank (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 976, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 369.

Arts. 5435a–5435d. [Repealed.]

Explanatory.—Repealed by Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 57, § 2. See art. 5435, ante.

Art. 5436. [4218k] [Repealed.]

Explanatory.—Repealed by Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 57, § 2. See art. 5435, ante.

Title, rights, and liabilities of substitute purchaser.—Where defendant acted in collusion with another to buy public school lands for such other from the occupant, the attempted transfer by the occupant to defendant was not authorized by this article, but was plainly forbidden, and defendant acquired no title to the lands; the only right acquired under a transfer authorized by the statute being that of substitution, expressly denied to defendant. Schauer v. Schauer, 110 Tex. 257, 219 S. W. 195.

Art. 5437. [Repealed.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 57, § 2, repeals ch. 79, approved March 17, 1919. The latter act amended art. 5437, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.

Art. 5444. [4218j] Regulations as to occupancy.

Certificate of occupancy—Conclusiveness.—Where one owning lots in a county applied to purchase school lands as additional land, and after proof of occupancy the land commissioner issued a certificate, such certificate is not open to collateral attack on the ground that the lots were not private land, within the statute allowing the acquisition of additional land, for the commissioner is required to determine the sufficiency of the proof of occupancy, and as the statute relating to the acquisition of school land provides for payment over a long term of years, it is essential that on issuance of a certificate after proof of occupancy the title cannot be collaterally attacked. De Shazo v. Eubank (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 976, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 369.

Art. 5445. [Repealed.]

Art. 5449d. Certain other sales validated.—In all cases where school land has been sold on condition of settlement and the purchaser has complied or may hereafter comply with the law relative to settlement thereof and has been compelled to leave the same or may hereafter be compelled to leave the same for the purpose of earning a support for himself and family, and also in such cases where a purchaser is drafted into the Federal Service before he has time to settle on the land, or where he may be drafted into the Federal Service before the completion of three years residence on the land after settlement has been made, such sales are hereby validated and the Commissioner of the General Land Office shall not cancel such sales. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg., 4th C. S., ch. 57, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Art. 5449e. Same; affidavit of purchaser.—In all cases within the provisions of this Act the purchaser shall file in the General Land Office his affidavit stating the facts pertaining thereto, corroborated by the affidavit of three disinterested persons and when such affidavits shall have been filed the owner shall have a good and perfect title, subject only to the State's lien for the unpaid purchase price. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 5449f. Same.—In all cases of sales of public lands made by the State on February 21, 1907, requiring three years residence on said land, and the purchaser entered upon the land within the time required by law, and, in good faith, made the necessary improvements, but whose occupancy was broken within three years from the entry; and the purchaser has kept his interest payments up, and has completed a period of three years occupancy of the lands awarded, such purchases are hereby validated, and shall, upon proof of such facts, be entitled to receive a certificate of occupancy of said lands. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 64, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Art. 5449g. Same.—All sales of public free school land made on October 22, 1903, in quantities not exceeding forty acres, and the same have been fully paid for, be and the same are hereby in all respects validated, and the commissioner of the General Land Office is authorized and directed to issue patents to same. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., 2d C. S., ch. 26, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 5449h. Same.—All sales of Public Free School Land which were sold on the 25th day of September, 1895, are hereby validated and when fully paid out in accordance with the purchase the Commissioner of the General Land Office shall issue a patent therefor. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 81, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 5449i. Same.—In all cases where the Public Free School land sold on condition of settlement and residence, and the purchaser settled on the land, but failed to file in the General Land Office his affidavit of settlement within the time required by law, but did file, or offered to file, such affidavit, and in all cases where said lands were sold on condition of settlement, and the purchaser abandoned same on account of drouth, and in all cases where said land was sold on condition of settlement and the purchaser was drafted or volunteered into the service of the United States on account of the war, are hereby declared validated and declared to be valid, and those who abandoned the land on account of the drouth and those who were drafted or volunteered into the service of the United States on account of the war, shall not be further required to reside on the land, but those who did settle and failed to get their affidavit of settlement in the Land Office in the time required by law, shall continue to reside on the land as required by law. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 90, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 5449j. Same.—In all sales of public free school lands, University, Asylum and public lands made by the State of Texas, by authority of the Acts of the Legislature of date April 12th and 14th, 1883, wherein the mineral rights in said lands were not, by the State specially reserved, in its award of sale or classification of such lands, at the time of such sale, reserved to the State of Texas, the sales of such land by the State be, and the same are hereby validated, and the State of Texas hereby relinquishes unto the owners of said lands, when paid for, all of its rights and title to said minerals. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 121, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 5449k. Same.—That where sales of Public Free School Lands, made the third day of March, A. D. 1896, were made under, and in accord with, the provisions and requirements of Chapter 48 of the Acts of the Twenty-fourth Legislature and where the purchasers of said lands have met all the requirements of purchase and payment, and have failed to meet the requirement of settlement, that said sales be, and the same are hereby declared to be, as legal and valid as if settlement had been made on said lands, and the Acts of the purchasers had been in all respects in strict compliance with the requirements of the law, and all such sales are hereby validated and made binding. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 166, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 5449l. Same.—All sales of public free school land which were sold on the 16th day of August, 1895, and the division of surveys sold on that date, where no proof of occupancy has been made and subsequent purchasers have bought in good faith, are hereby validated, and when fully paid out in accordance with the purchase, the Commissioner of the General Land Office shall issue a patent therefor without proof of occupancy. [Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 39, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after June 18, 1920, date of adjournment.

Art. 5449m. Same.—All sales of Deaf and Dumb Asylum lands made on April 6, 1903 are hereby validated and when fully paid for, together with all fees, the Commissioner of the General Land Office shall issue patent therefor. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 56, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Art. 5449n. Same.—That all sales of public school lands situated in whole or in part in Uvalde County, State of Texas, heretofore made by the Commissioner of the General Land Office on applications filed as provided by law on the following dates, or either of them, to wit: November 28, 1904, September 2, 1908 and January 2, 1919, which sales had not been by said Commissioner canceled prior to February 1, 1921, be and the same are hereby in all things validated and the purchasers thereof, or their assigns, shall be entitled on payment of balance purchase money due the State of Texas, and all interest therein, to receive patents therefor. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 98, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Art. 5449o. Same; postponing forfeiture.—Resolved by the Senate of the State of Texas, the House of Representatives concurring: The Commissioner of the General Land Office is hereby authorized to and he shall postpone the forfeiture of school land until August 25, 1922, for the non-payment of interest now due on said land. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., S. C. R. No. 5, Aug. 8, 1921, p. 243.]

LEASES

Art. 5457. [4218w] Lessees may remove improvements, when.

Improvements not removed.—If fences were reserved by lessee of school lands when he assigned lease to defendant, they would not become defendant's, so that they could be counted as part of improvements required by art. 5424, by virtue of his purchase of the land, prior to expiration of time for removal under this article, and lessee's failure to remove within 60 days after expiration of lease as provided by said section; title not being in defendant but in the state thereafter. State v. Elza, 109 Tex. 256, 206 S. W. 342.

• Art. 5458. One year to assert right to leased or sold land.

Construction and operation in general.—Purpose of this act is beneficent and should be liberally construed. Schauer v. Schauer (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1010.

Limitation of actions in general.—Where forfeiture of sale to A. of public free school lands by land commissioner was unauthorized, a suit by B., subsequent purchaser from A. against C., a prior purchaser from A., not filed until more than a year after award to A. and to B., and more than a year after Acts 29th Leg. c. 29, §§ 1, 2, arts. 5458, 5459, became effective, would be barred. Schauer v. Schauer (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1010.

The fact of forfeiture of public free school lands by an applicant to purchase is material to the right of the purchaser on forfeiture to prosecute trespass to try title to recover the lands from the original purchaser and his lessee only as relieving him from being barred within a year. Nations v. Miller (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 742.

— When statute does not apply.—This article has no effect on the assertion of title to such land made by plaintiff, to whom it was validly awarded after lawful forfeiture of the previous purchase of defendant's predecessor. Schauer v. Schauer, 110 Tex. 257, 219 S. W. 195.

This article has no application to one asserting title under the statute of limitations of 10 years as against a purchaser from the state, but applies only to persons claiming the right to purchase or lease land already sold or leased to others. Whitaker v. McCarty (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 945, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 502.

Art. 5459. Same.

Construction and operation in general.—The fact of forfeiture of public free school lands by an applicant to purchase is material to the right of the purchaser on forfeiture to prosecute trespass to try title to recover the lands from the original purchaser and his lessee only as relieving him from being barred within a year. Nations v. Miller (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 742.

Though the surveyor of a land district had no authority to make sale of land in another county, no one but the state can question such survey and sale by him in view of this article. Brooks v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 632.

This article has no effect on the assertion of title to such land made by plaintiff, to whom it was validly awarded after lawful forfeiture of the previous purchase of defendant's predecessor. Schauer v. Schauer, 110 Tex. 257, 219 S. W. 195.

This act has no application to one asserting title under the statute of limitations of 10 years as against a purchaser from the state, but applies only to persons claiming the right to purchase or lease land already sold or leased to others. Whitaker v. McCarty (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 945, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 502.

Effect of expiration of limitation period.—An award of state lands to a purchaser or lessee is conclusive, except as against the state, that all requirements of the law had been complied with after the short period of limitation. Whitaker v. McCarty (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 945.

CHAPTER TEN

SUITS TO RECOVER PUBLIC LANDS, RENTS AND DAMAGES

Article 5468. The attorney general to bring suits for lands.

Construction and operation in general.—Since the land commissioner has no authority to determine the legality of a patent previously issued, mandamus will not lie to compel him to issue a permit to prospect on land for which the state had previously issued a patent, which it had never attempted to set aside, the remedy for wrongful patent being by action by the Attorney General. Fitzgerald v. Robison, 110 Tex. 463, 220 S. W. 768.

TITLE 80

LANDLORD AND TENANT

Art.		Art.
5475.	Landlord shall have preference lien; contracts under which lien shall not attach; certain contracts void; recovery of excessive payments of rent; penalty.	5479.	Distress warrant.
5477.	Duration of lien; goods stored in warehouse; exemptions.	5480.	Oath and bond.
5478.	Lien does not apply to, etc.	5484.	Judgment against sureties.
5478a.	Removal not a waiver, etc.	5489.	Tenant shall not sub-let without consent, etc.
		5490.	Owners of buildings have preference lien, etc.
		5491.	Distress warrant, how obtained.

Article 5475. [3235] Landlord shall have preference lien; contracts under which lien shall not attach; certain contracts void; recovery of excessive payments of rent; penalty.

See Kelly v. Gibbs, 84 Tex. 143, 19 S. W. 380.

Cited American Type Founders' Co. v. Nichols, 110 Tex. 4, 214 S. W. 301.

Validity.—Since the landlord's lien is given by statute, the Legislature may restrict it as it deems best for the public interest or entirely abolish it, and no vested right of the landlord is invaded by a statute authorizing a tenant to create a lien upon a crop superior to any lien in favor of the landlord. Dunbar v. Texas Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 614.

The law providing for landlord's liens upon crops grown by tenant to secure advances, is not unconstitutional because its operation is restricted to certain classes of contracts. Hawthorn v. Coates Bros. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 804.

This article, as amended in 1915 so as to make a letting of farm lands, giving to the landlord more than one-third of crops, void, violates the due process clauses of the state and federal Constitutions (Const. Tex. art. 1, § 19; Const. U. S. Amend. 14, § 1). Rumbo v. Winterrowd (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 258.

Limitation of rent.—This article held inapplicable, where landlord agreed to keep irrigation engine and machinery in repair. Doby v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 806.

This article, as amended in 1915, held inapplicable where landlord furnished house, garden, pasturage, etc., besides furnishing everything needed to raise the crop. Green v. Prince (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 200.

A contract that landlord furnish everything except the labor to make and gather the crops, and that he have half of all crops and all of the cottonseed, is plainly excepted by the proviso to this article. Hawthorn v. Coates Bros. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 804.

Rental contract, whereby landlord was to furnish land and pasturage in return for one-third of all feed and one-fourth of all cotton grown on land, and in addition the maize stocks, after heading of feed, was not illegal, or in violation of statute. James v. Blake (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 546.

A lease wherein lessor was to furnish at his own charge and expense the seeds, teams, feed, and tools necessary to make the crops, and lessee was to furnish at her own charge and expense the labor necessary to grow and harvest same, the lessor to have a lien on lessee's interest in the crops as security, for sums advanced, was not within the prohibition of this article, as amended. Penn v. Hare (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 527.

Landlord and Tenant Act, making a contract for a rental in excess of one-fourth of the cotton crop void where tenant "furnishes everything except the land," did not affect validity of a contract giving landlord, who furnished tenant a dwelling in which to live, pasture for his stock, and ground for a garden, a one-third share of the crops. Rutledge v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1034.

Creation and existence of lien.—Lien created by statute for payment of debt is but part of remedy afforded for its collections, and the remedy simply acting on property is no part of the obligation of a contract. Hawthorn v. Coates Bros. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 804.

A contract giving landlord, as rent, certain share of crops grown by tenant on rented farm, need not be recorded to give third persons notice of landlord's interest therein; a landlord's lien being created by statute. G. M. Carlton Bros. & Co. v. Hoppe (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 248.

Where, under the provisions of the lease, the landlord is a tenant in common of the crops grown on the place, the landlord's statutory lien does not exist. Rosser v. Cole (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 510.

Rent or advances secured.—A landlord is entitled to a lien on his tenant's crops for supplies only when they are furnished by him, directly or indirectly, and not when he is merely guarantor or surety for payment of supplies furnished to the tenant by another. Gaylor v. Monroe (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 330.

Subject-matter to which lien attaches.—An inclosed square in a city, with no improvements save a pavilion, was rented for a pleasure resort. The tenants erected a shooting and skating gallery and swings and benches on the grounds for the accommodation of visitors. Held that, on improvements placed on the ground outside of the pavilion, the landlord had no lien. Rush v. Henley (App.) 15 S. W. 201.

Landlord has a lien on tenant's crop. Williams v. King (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 106.

A gasoline pump and tank between sidewalk and curb in front of leased premises, used as filling station by lessee, held subject to the landlord's statutory lien. West Furniture Co. v. Cason (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 774.

A landlord's preference lien extends to all of the crop raised, and the lien is not satisfied until all of the rent and advances have been paid. Green v. Scales (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 274.

If one tenant made the contract of rental with the landlord, the fact that he did not live on the place, but that his son, a married man, did so, worked the farm, and made a crop, did not of itself destroy the relation of landlord and tenant existing between the landlord and the occupant's father; and the landlord had a lien on all crops whether the land was cultivated by the tenant in person or by such agent or subtenant. Id.

In a landlord's action to enforce his lien on a bale of cotton grown on the rented premises, evidence held sufficient to make prima facie proof that the bale was raised on the landlord's premises during the particular crop year, either by the tenant himself, or by an agent or subtenant, his son. Id.

Under a lease of land on shares, held, that lessor was entitled to a lien on lessee's half interest in the crop raised for money advanced, and that such money was to be all taken out of lessee's share; notwithstanding a clause, "Of the net proceeds, after deducting and repayment to the party of the first part of the sums that may have been advanced by him of the sale of cotton raised from said aforesaid farm, one-half shall be the property of the party of the first part, and the remaining one-half shall be the property of the party of the second part." Penn v. Hare (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 527.

Priorities.—Lien on crops given irrigation company furnishing water by art. 5009, held superior to landlord's lien. Texas Bank & Trust Co. of Beaumont v. Smith (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 617; Dunbar v. Texas Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 614.

Landlord furnishing supplies to tenant directly and through a third party, held to have a lien superior to that of chattel mortgagee. Ross v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 672.

Where chattel mortgage is executed upon future crops, and mortgagor subsequently sold land, remaining in possession as tenant under agreement to give landlord share of crops as rent, landlord's lien for rent is prior to mortgagee's lien; mortgage becoming effective upon growing of crop, but only as to mortgagor's interest therein. G. M. Carlton Bros. & Co. v. Hoppe (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 248.

A chattel mortgage executed and filed before the making of a lease contract is a prior lien over one contained in the lease contract. Oakes v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 360.

A mortgage on a crop given prior to the time when a landlord's lien attached would not take precedence over the latter. McKelvy v. Gugenheim (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 757.

The landlord being a subsequent creditor and lienholder in good faith, his lien on tenant's property in the building at time of lease takes priority under art. 5655, over prior chattel mortgage thereon not forthwith deposited and filed in county clerk's office as thereby required, but filed subsequent to the lease. Ingram v. Lattimore (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 297.

Conversion of property subject to lien.—Judgment creditor of tenant who levied upon the crops when the tenant was indebted to his landlord for rent, supplies, or advancements held liable to the landlord for conversion to the extent of so much of the converted crops as might be necessary to satisfy the landlord's claim, liability not being limited to the pro rata part of the tenant's debt to the landlord which the part of the crop levied on bore to the whole of the crop raised by the tenant; the principle of marshaling of securities not being involved. Fields v. Fields (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 195.

Purchaser from tenant of property subject to landlord's lien, who takes possession of property, removes it from leased premises, and claims title thereto, is liable to conversion. West Furniture Co. v. Cason (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 774.

Art. 5477. Duration of lien; goods stored in warehouse; exemptions.

Duration.—Where building was leased in 1913 for ten-year term and tenant vacated building in February, 1916, landlord's lien upon tenant's goods placed on premises existed only to end of that year. John Church Co. v. Martinez (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 486.

Conversion.—In landlord's action against tenant's purchaser of gasoline tank and pump for conversion on theory that tank and pump were covered by landlord's statutory lien, it was no defense that mortgage on the furniture in the building executed by tenant to landlord had not been recorded, or that purchaser had no notice thereof, or that purchaser had paid a valuable consideration for the tank and pump. West Furniture Co. v. Cason (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 774.

Priorities.—See notes under art. 5475, ante.

Art. 5478. [3238] Does not apply to, etc.

Property exempted from lien.—A gasoline pump and tank between sidewalk and curb in front of leased premises, used as filling station by lessee, held subject to the landlord's statutory lien, such pump and tank not being "goods, wares, and merchandise," and the sale thereof by tenant in vacating premises and going out of business not being "in good faith in the regular course of business." West Furniture Co. v. Cason (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 774.

Art. 5478a. [3239] Removal not a waiver, etc.

Waiver, loss, or discharge of lien.—Plaintiffs do not waive a landlord's lien by suing out a writ of sequestration and distress warrant, though the writs are levied on part of the property on which the lien is claimed. Lovelady v. Harding (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 933.

Removal of agricultural products to be prepared for market, as cotton for ginning, does not constitute a waiver of the landlord's lien, which continues and attaches to the product so removed as if remaining on the rented premises. Green v. Scales (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 274.

A landlord, suing his tenant and purchasers of cotton on which he claimed to have a landlord's lien, who agreed to the sale of the cotton by his tenant, and also consented in advance to appropriation of so much of the proceeds as would be sufficient to satisfy a note which he and the tenant had executed to a bank secured by mortgage lien on all the crops, waived his lien, and by accepting part of the proceeds of the sale, which the tenant had deposited in the bank to his credit as rents, ratified the sale. Brod v. Luce (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 553. †

Though a landlord allowed his tenant to sell crops and deposit the rent to his credit, thus waiving his lien as to purchasers, the lien was not waived with respect to a judgment creditor of the tenant who levied on unsold crops. Jarrell-Evans Dry Goods Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 920.

Art. 5479. [3240] Distress warrant.

Parties.—In a suit against a tenant to enforce a landlord's lien for rent, one to whom the tenant has sold part of the crops may be made party defendant. Hall v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 1110.

Questions for jury.—Whether landlord indirectly furnished supplies to his tenant, entitling him to a lien therefor on his crop, or was only a surety or a silent partner in the firm which furnished them, should on conflicting evidence have been submitted to the jury. Gaylor v. Monroe (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 330.

Wrongful distress.—Where tenant of restaurant premises sold personalty and business colorably to another, business being of no value to him or his vendee, and personalty having no rental value, he and his vendee could not recover, in landlord's action for rent and to foreclose lien, damages on their cross-actions on ground distress warrant had been maliciously sued out. Pantaze v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 521.

Where a tenant, against whom a distress warrant had been issued, delivered the keys to a constable over night, and the constable redelivered them to the tenant's agent the following morning, held, that the taking and keeping of the keys, as it was done with the tenant's consent, did not constitute a conversion of his property by the landlord. Saenz v. Hamilton Hotel Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 159.

Where there was no seizure of property under a distress warrant, the tenant cannot complain that it was issued without petition having been filed or citation issued. Id.

Art. 5480. [3241] Oath and bond.

Affidavit as to grounds.—An affidavit for warrant in distress proceedings must show, either that the rent claimed was due, or that the tenant was about to remove or to remove his property from the premises. Watson v. Corley (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 481.

Art. 5484. [3245] Judgment against sureties.

Cited, Denson v. McCasland, 2 Civ. App. 184, 21 S. W. 169.

Art. 5489. [3250] Tenants shall not sub-let without consent, etc.

Right to assign or sublet in general.—This article prohibits the assignment of a lease. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Settegast, 79 Tex. 256, 15 S. W. 228.

Effect of unauthorized subletting.—All produce raised on the rented premises, whether by the tenant or a so-called "subtenant," is subject to the statutory lien for rent, in the absence of consent to subleasing. Stokes v. Burney, 3 Civ. App. 219, 22 S. W. 126.

A subletting of a part of the demised premises without the landlord's consent renders the lease contract, at the landlord's option, subject to forfeiture. Stubblefield v. Jones (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 720.

A lease was forfeited by a subletting where the sublessees occupied a portion of the premises under the lessees with their consent; it being immaterial that the lessees' consent was given subject to the landlord's approval, or that no consideration moved from the sublessees to the lessees for the use and occupancy of the premises, or that the lessees permitted the sublessees to go into possession as an accommodation and courtesy to the sublessees, or that the sublessees' occupation was merely temporary. Id.

Assignment or sublease and construction and operation thereof.—Where lease provided for forfeiture by lessor for nonpayment of rent, and secured lease moneys by lien upon property of lessees, payment of amounts due and overdue under lease held consideration for verbal assignment by lessees to one who advanced money to pay the rent due; and the fact that assignee subsequently deducted such amount as expense of transaction in cattle, will not alter effect of verbal assignment, but appellate court must presume that it was deducted pursuant to agreement. Burnett v. Gibbs (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 725.

In action involving conflicting claims to leased ranch, evidence held to show sufficient verbal assignment of lease to defendant in consideration of his payment of all amounts due thereunder. Id.

The act of a tenant in permitting a third person to pasture stock on the leased premises together with tenant's stock, there being no surrender or abandonment, either actual or constructive, of the premises by the tenant to the third person, was not a subletting, forfeiting the lease under the statute. Wade v. Madison (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 118.

Where tenant on shares, in prospect of being drafted into the army, arranged with his brother to look after the land in his absence, such arrangement did not constitute a "subletting." Lamar v. Hildreth (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 167.

A sublessee or subtenant, not an assignee of a lease, could not recover damages for breach of one of the lease covenants. International Dry Goods Co. v. Lyman Drug Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 268.

Assignment of lease to third person with landlord's written consent made him landlord's tenant and released original lessees from their contractual relations with landlord. Id.

Where assignee of lease did not reassign to one of original lessees, but merely permitted it to use building with consent or acquiescence of landlord, such original lessee was only a sublessee or subtenant. Id.

Assignment of lease to third person with landlord's written consent made him landlord's tenant. Id.

Where a lessee in turn leased the premises for the same length of time, there was an assignment of his lease, and the sublessees became responsible to the lessor to the same extent as if the contract of lease had been made directly to them. Russell v. Old River Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 705.

Where a lessee of land under a lease, reserving the owner's right to sell and to cancel the lease at any time, sublets the land, and the sublessee subsequently, but before entering into possession purchases the land from the owner, the sublease is not affected. Green v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 471.

A subtenant, like an assignee, is ordinarily precluded from questioning the title of the head landlord. Rio Bravo Oil Co. v. Sanford (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 219.

No assignee of a lease or subtenant can be heard to say that he was ignorant of the terms on which the lessee held possession. Smith v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 27.

The assignee of a leasehold estate succeeds to all the interest of the lessee and to the benefits of all the covenants and agreements of the lessor which are annexed to and run with the estate. Cauble v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 922.

Covenant by a lessor to procure and deliver to the lessee two certain sections of land leased was a covenant which ran with the land, and the lessee's assignee may take advantage of it and is entitled to recover of the lessor damages naturally and proximately resulting from breach. Id.

— Consent of landlord.—In action involving conflicting claims to leased ranch, evidence held to show that lessor had notice of defendant's acquisition by verbal assignment of remainder of term of lease, and impliedly consented thereto. Burnett v. Gibbs (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 725.

Where landlord's agent, after tenant's sale of his restaurant business and personality in the premises, received rent payments from the buyer and called on him for further payment, the landlord did not thereby necessarily accept the buyer as a tenant. Pantaze v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 521.

In lessee's action against sublessee on express covenant to pay rent, where defense was that owner and lessee had accepted sublessee's assignee as lessee, evidence held sufficient to show such acceptance. Goffinet v. Broome & Baldwin (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 567.

Where it was understood between the lessor and lessee of pasture lands that the lessee was to sublet or assign to other parties, the lessor, though not having the particular sublessees in mind, is bound by the lessee's assignment or sublease; the relation of landlord and tenant existing between him and the sublessees. Russell v. Old River Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 705.

Lessor, by consenting to the assignment of lease, or subleasing of land by lessee cultivating land of lessor other than that covered by lease without lessor's knowledge, was not estopped from denying the relationship of landlord and tenant with assignee or sublessee as to such land not covered by lease, regardless of whether he used reasonable diligence to ascertain whether the land being cultivated was that covered by lease; he being estopped only if he actually knew lessee was in possession and cultivating land not rented. Smith v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 27.

Where plaintiff by his subsequent acts and conduct recognized an assignee of a lease as his tenant, he could not question the right of the lessee, whose tenancy he did not deny, to assign the lease. Irwin v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 522.

Art. 5490. [3251] Owners of buildings to have preference lien, etc.—All persons leasing or renting any residence, storehouse or other building, shall have a preference lien upon all property of the tenant in such residence, storehouse or other building, for the payment of rents due and to become due, provided that in order to fix and secure the lien for rents that are more than six months due, it shall be necessary for the person leasing or renting any storehouse or other building which is used for commercial purposes, to file in the office of the county clerk of the county in which such storehouse or such other building is situated, a statement of the amount of rent due, itemized as to the months for which it is claimed to be due, together with the name and address of the tenant, a description of the rented premises, the date on which the rental contract began and that on which it is to terminate, which statements shall be verified by the oath or affirmation of the person claiming such lien, his agent or attorney, taken before some officer duly authorized to take oaths or affirmations, and such statement when so verified shall be recorded by the County Clerk in a book to be provided for such purpose. No lien for rent more than six months past due upon any storehouse or other building rented for commercial purposes shall be valid as against bona fide purchasers or unsecured or lien creditors of said tenant, unless said statement shall be verified, filed and recorded as above provided.

The several county clerks of the State shall each keep an alphabetical index for the purpose of recording the rental liens above described, and for their services in indexing and filing such liens they shall receive a fee of twenty-five cents for each lien so filed and indexed.

And provided that the lien for rents to become due shall not continue or be enforced for a longer period than the current contract years, it being intended by the term "current contract years" to embrace a period of twelve months, reckoning from the beginning of the lease or rental contract, whether the same be in the first or any other year of such lease or rental contract. Such lien shall continue and be in force so long as the tenant shall occupy the rented premises, and for one month thereafter; but this Article shall not be construed as in any manner repealing or affecting any act exempting property from forced sale. [Acts 1889, p. 11; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 110, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Cited, Wichita Falls Sash & Door Co. v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 100.

Property subject to lien.—A landlord who lets a store-house for one year at a rent payable at the end of the term has a lien for the year's rent on the proceeds of the tenant's goods, seized in the store-house on attachment, and sold as perishable a few months after the year commenced. Ghio v. Shutt, 78 Tex. 375, 14 S. W. 860.

An inclosed square in a city, with no improvements save a pavilion, was rented for a pleasure resort. The tenants erected a shooting and skating gallery and swings and benches on the grounds for the accommodation of visitors. Held that, on improvements placed on the ground outside of the pavilion, the landlord had no lien. Rush v. Henley (App.) 15 S. W. 201.

Lien for rent due lessor of building from lessee selling automobile supplies, oil, etc., held to attach to gasoline filling station, consisting of buried tank, etc., installed in vacant space between sidewalk and curbing of street on which building abutted, "building," including land within inclosure belonging to building and appropriate to its use, even though particular space was part of street. S. F. Bowser & Co. v. Cain Auto Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 554.

Duration of lien.—A landlord may more than 30 days after the tenant was adjudicated a bankrupt file an amended claim setting up his lien under the statute, for the rights of the parties were fixed at the time of adjudication at which time the bankrupt was occupying the demised premises, and his goods and chattels contained therein were impressed with the lien, and the subsequent possession of the trustee, which was not adverse as to the landlord, did not affect the lien. Lontos v. Coppard, 246 Fed. 803, 159 C. C. A. 105.

Rights of landlord.—A landlord may on bankruptcy of the tenant prove his claim for rent for the balance of the current year and enforce the same against the proceeds of the property subject to the lien, though the debt be not provable against the bankrupt's general estate. Lontos v. Coppard, 246 Fed. 803, 159 C. C. A. 105.

Where, as contemplated when a partner, as authorized, took a lease, the partners incorporated, and the lease was used for the corporation's benefit, it as well as they became liable thereon, and the landlord was entitled, as against them and it, to the preference lien. Ingram v. Lattimore (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 297.

Priorities.—One who purchases property upon leased premises takes it with constructive notice of the landlord's rights, and subject to the lien. Lehman v. Stone (App.) 16 S. W. 784.

Chattel mortgage filed before commencement of second year of term under a lease, held superior to the landlord's lien for rent accruing in the second year. Meacham v. O'Keefe (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1000.

Where a tenant purchased a soda fountain and executed a chattel mortgage thereon, and, being unable to pay for it, redelivered it to the vendor, who then made a sale to another person, who executed to the vendor a chattel mortgage on the fountain, leaving it in the store of the landlord, and at a later date the tenant moved from the premises, the purchaser of the fountain then becoming the tenant, and the mortgagee having paid rent to the landlord up to such date, the mortgage lien was prior to any lien of the landlord on account of subsequent rent. B. M. Burgher & Co. v. Barry (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 457.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

1. Creation and existence of relation of landlord and tenant.—The relation of landlord and tenant rests at last upon a contract, and, while it need not be express, there must exist such facts as to the acts, conduct, and intention of the parties as will properly give rise to one by implication. Dolen v. Lobit (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 143, 964.

The relation of landlord and tenant is always created by contract, either express or implied; but the reservation or payment of rent is not essential to the creation of the relation, though it is a usual incident of a tenancy, for a "tenant" is one occupying the lands or premises of another in subordination to that other's title, and with his consent express or implied. Stubblefield v. Jones (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 720.

2. Tenancy at will.—Where the evidence showed that the one who contracted for plaintiff's services in posting bills was in possession of defendant's theater under an agreement to lease it, which agreement was not to be effective until a bond for payment of rent was executed, which was never done, the debtor was a tenant at will for whose debts the owner was not liable. Markowitz v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 968.

3. Implied tenancy.—The relation of landlord and tenant ordinarily grows out of the contract between the parties, but the landlord or tenant may by their acts or declarations or conduct be estopped from denying the relationship in cases where there is no contract. Smith v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 27.

4. Evidence as to relation.—In an action to have a trust declared in land, plaintiff claiming an undivided interest therein, evidence held to justify a finding that a lease of the land from defendant to plaintiff was but a lease of defendant's interest therein; defendant claiming that plaintiff was estopped to claim any interest in the land. Graves v. Graves (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 543.

6. Requisites and validity of leases.—Lease contract held not void because not specifying which particular 200 acres of plaintiff's 300 uncultivated acres were to be put in cultivation. Folmar v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 861.

Where leasing of plaintiff's premises was done by others so that plaintiff did not know who were his tenants, representation by defendant seeking a lease that he was tenant occupying premises was material where plaintiff in reliance on representation made lease which he would not otherwise have made. Nimmo v. O'Keefe (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 883.

Lessor may recover rental of building let to prize fighter for training quarters, although lessor knew of the purpose for which the building would be used, since, to recover, it was only necessary to show a letting of the premises, a promise to pay the rent, and default; the action for rent not being founded on lessee's unlawful agreement with another to engage in a prize fight, and it not being unlawful to train for a prize fight. Willard v. Knoblauch (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 734.

Where a lease of a fruit stand to be located outside a building provided that in case its maintenance on the sidewalk should be illegal space inside the building might be used, the stipulation for use of the inside space was severable from the stipulation for the use of the sidewalk, and while the use of the sidewalk was illegal, it did not vitiate the contract as a whole. Wicks v. Comves, 110 Tex. 532, 221 S. W. 938, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 774.

Where one tenant by fraud on the landlords obtained a lease of all the premises, his own and those occupied by other tenants, the landlords, on discovery of the fraud, were entitled to cancellation of the lease, and the other tenants could repudiate their attornment to the first, and continue their possession as tenants, after which cancellation and repudiation of attornment the landlords are entitled to have the status quo of the property preserved by injunction. Vogelsang v. Gray (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 535.

A lease made by parties who had previously conveyed their interest in the property is void. Requa v. Joseph (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 585.

Independently of the idea of contract, a "lease," which is more than a mere license to occupy land, possesses the property of passing an interest and partakes of the nature of an estate. Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1021.

The rule that fraud practiced will furnish no ground for recovery unless defrauded parties suffer injury, while applicable to suits for pecuniary damages, is not ordinarily applicable in suits to rescind the contract, and parties seeking to cancel lease need not plead or prove amount of damages. Osborn v. Texas Pac. Coal & Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 359.

There is no difference between the validity of the terms of an oral contract and one in writing in respect to renting land from landlord for the rental year. Hulshizer v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 658.

A tenant does not show himself entitled to rescission of lease by his answer to landlord's action for his breach setting up landlord's oral promise not to allow another part of premises to be used for saloon purposes. C. R. Miller & Bro. v. Nigro (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 511.

A tenant is not entitled to rescission where, after knowledge of alleged misrepresentation of landlord's agent as to the condition of the premises, tenant continued on the premises for over three years under the lease. Id.

8. Liability for breach of contract.—Where landlords repudiated rental contract by suing for and sequestering land, tenants could accept renunciation, and agree contract should be put to an end, subject to their right to bring action for wrongful rescission, and their failure to make replevy bond and retain property during contract year did not affect their cause of action. Lamar v. Hildreth (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 167.

In an action wherein tenant obtained damages for breach of contract to rent land, an assignment that verdict of jury was contrary to the evidence, in finding that landlord breached the contract to tenant's damage, because it was conclusively shown landlord offered to let tenant have another tract of land in every respect equally as good in quality and condition as the tract he did not get, was without merit, since the tenant had a perfect right to insist upon the contract he made. Hulshizer v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 658.

Landlord may relet premises upon tenant's abandonment by taking proper precaution not to create a surrender by operation of law, in which case the measure of his damages will be the agreed rental less amount realized from reletting, or he may permit the premises to remain vacant. C. R. Miller & Bro. v. Nigro (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 511.

In a landlord's action against tenant for breach of contract, a petition showing lease agreement for rental of $250 per month and plaintiff's reletting for $150 a month for balance of term under a lease in which new tenants were to pay $250 a month for second and third years, which were beyond the expiration of the first lease, held not objectionable, since, if the landlord used due precaution or diligence in making contract, acting fairly and honestly, the tenant could not complain. Id.

In a landlord's action against tenant for breach of written lease containing no agreement for landlord to make certain repairs, and answer alleging such agreement but failing to allege fraud or mistake in any of the lease terms, is subject to general exception for such defect. Id.

9. Estoppel of tenant.—Tenant, who enters on land by virtue of the demise of his landlord, is estopped from denying the title of his landlord and, never having repudiated his title, cannot acquire as against the landlord title by adverse possession. Beason v. Williams (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 963; Fincher v. Wood (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 868; Gordon v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 716.

Pleadings as a whole, under principle that lessee may not deny landlord's title, held to disclose such interest in those brought in by interpleader by one sued by lessee in oil lease for price of oil as to entitle them to hearing on issue of forfeiture of lease. Kirlicks v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 687.

A lease by the true owner to the son of the claimant by adverse possession, who also held as a lessee of his mother, failed to interrupt the adverse possession, upon the same principle as that which prevents a tenant from attorning to another during his term. Lockin v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 168.

One entering possession under the tenant or lessee occupies the same position as the original tenant and lessee, and is equally estopped to deny that the possession thus acquired is that of the landlord. Werts' Heirs v. Vick (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 63.

Lessee is estopped to deny lessors' title, though the proofs show the property belonged to the lessors' wives. Lovelady v. Harding (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 933.

A tenant, who has recognized the title of his landlord by renting the land and paying rent, cannot attack the landlord's title. Perez v. Cook (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 668.

Payment of rent is evidence of permissive occupation acknowledging a tenancy which prevents the tenant from claiming that his possession was adverse to the person to whom he paid the rent. Gordon v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 716.

In trespass to try title, a defendant who purchased a house and fence rails owned by a tenant at will, who had vacated the premises, and entered into possession of such house and the premises without change in the improvements or the portion of the property used, without notice from such tenant at will, or any one else, to the owner of an intention to claim the land adversely to the owner, was also a tenant at will, and his possession was not adverse to the owner. West Lumber Co. v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 828.

10. Warranty that building is adapted to lessee's purpose.—The tenant, in the absence of agreement to the contrary, takes the rented premises as he finds them, under the doctrine of caveat emptor. Walling v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 232.

11. Commencement of term.—Lease of storehouse at gross rental of $12,900, payable in monthly payments for five years from April 1st, providing that if building was then incomplete the lessee would accept it when completed, but the lessor would refund such rent as might become due to such time as premises should be ready for occupancy, modified by letter to lessee that lease should stand canceled unless building was ready June 1st, and, in lieu of refund, lessor should not begin payment of rent until building was ready, construed, and held, that lease commenced on April 1st and terminated March 31st, five years later, although building was not ready nor occupied until July 15th. Camp v. U. S. Tire Co. (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 1115.

Where a lease of a fruit stand located outside of a building provided that if the city should complain of the encroachment of the fruit stand on a portion of the sidewalk, or if the maintenance of the fruit stand is or should become illegal, a space inside of the building could be used for such fruit stand, such lease held to constitute a renting of the inside space as from the time of the inception of the contract; an existing ordinance forbidding the maintenance of fruit stands on the sidewalk. Wicks v. Conves, 110 Tex. 532, 221 S. W. 938, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 774.

14. Conversion by landlord.—Where a lessor upon ousting lessee from the premises has taken possession of the lessee's personal property, the lessee did not abridge his rights to recover for conversion by refusing a tender of the property after the conversion was complete. Henderson v. Beggs (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 565.

A landlord who, after ousting a tenant from the premises for nonpayment of rent, takes possession of the tenant's personal effects found on the leased premises, and excludes the tenant from access thereto temporarily, is guilty of conversion. Id.

Where landlords, upon abandonment of premises, retook possession and removed personal belongings of tenants found therein to their own home without intent to appropriate the same, and so held the property subject to tenants' order, they were not guilty of conversion of such belongings. Alsbury v. Linville (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 492.

In tenants' action against landlord for entering rented premises and converting tenants' personal property, evidence held to warrant finding that premises had been abandoned and that tenants' claim that they had not abandoned premises was an afterthought to bolster up a suit for damages. Id.

23. Damages for failure to deliver possession.—Ordinarily the measure of damages for breach of a covenant to deliver possession is the rental value of the property, but the lessee may also recover such special damages as naturally and proximately result from the breach. Cauble v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 922.

Where grazing lands were leased, and the lessor failed to deliver two sections to the assignee of the lease, such assignee is not entitled to reduction of the rent in the amount of the rental value of the two sections not delivered and also an item as special damages for feed purchased to take the place of the undelivered grazing land. Id.

Item of $500 for feed which lessee's assignee was obliged to purchase because of lessor's failure to deliver two sections of the land held an item of damage to be regarded as a natural and proximate result of the lessor's breach of covenant to deliver, the lands having been leased for grazing purposes when a severe drouth prevailed and pasturage was scarce. Id.

24. Disturbance of possession of tenant.—Where lessee was deprived of possession by wrongful act of third persons, it being his duty to use reasonable means to minimize his damages, jury should determine what amount plaintiff earned, or by exercise of reasonable effort he could have earned, in same or similar business elsewhere. McCauley v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 317.

In lessee's action for damages by wrongful dispossession by third parties, expense to which he was put thereby is proper measure of damages. Id.

Value of pasturage upon land of which lessee was wrongfully dispossessed by third persons was proper element of damages. Id.

That lessee who was wrongfully deprived of possession would have sublet part of the land is no defense to his action against dispossessors, though it is defense on part of lessor. Id.

Where a lease of office rooms provides for re-entry without notice or demand, if any part of the rent remained unpaid for two days after it is due, a lessor on default in payment of rent for more than two days incurs no liability by ousting lessee from the premises. Henderson v. Beggs (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 565.

Where landlords sued out writ of sequestration against tenants, mere fact that sheriff did not resort to physical force in ejecting them, but permitted them to effect removal themselves, made it none the less an ejection by the landlords. Lamar v. Hildreth (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 167.

In trespass to try title by buyer of land against seller's tenant, latter bringing cross-action for wrongful ouster, evidence that tenant, besides himself and wife, had one son and daughter, both of age, all working on the farm, also two teams and farm implements, held to warrant a finding he could have grown a crop on the farm with practically no outlay of money. Rupert v. Swindle (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 671.

In trespass to try title by buyer of land to recover it from seller's tenant, latter, on his cross-action for wrongful ouster, was entitled to recover as damages reasonable market value of his part of the crops which it was reasonably probable he would have raised during the year, less expense of raising and harvesting them, and such sums as he and the dependent members of his family could have earned by engaging in other business. Id.

One wrongfully evicted was not entitled to damages for expense of moving property from road, where it was thrown by officers executing a writ of sequestration, where defendant, through such officers, offered without expense to plaintiff to take the property to place where plaintiff afterwards carried it at his own expense. Williams v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 981.

One evicted from farm land was not required to take any steps to lessen the damage he might sustain by eviction until actually evicted, and was not required on receiving notice from landlord that he could not occupy the land to attempt to lease other premises. Id.

In action in tort against landlord for wrongful entry and for wrongful destruction of growing crop, the proper measure of damages is the value of the crop just as it stood upon the ground at the time and place of its destruction. Smith v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 27.

Landlord plowing up and destroying crop on lands claimed by tenant will not be constructively charged with negligence in failing to know that his tenant has violated rental contract by taking charge of land he never rented. Id.

An injunction restraining a tenant from pasturing stock upon leased lands while wet and refusal to dissolve the injunction did not constitute an eviction of the tenant where the injunction might be sustained upon the theory that pasturing stock on wet lands was contrary to good husbandry. Friemel v. Coker (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1105.

Where plaintiff agreed to let defendant cut hay from lands but excluded him before expiration of the term, defendant is not bound to minimize the damage by leasing other hay lands, but is entitled to recover the full amount of the loss, regardless of the fact that he might have secured other lands. Bankers' Trust Co. v. Schulze (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 570.

In tenants' action to restrain landlord from ousting them, a petition alleging a written lease made by correspondence, and that plaintiffs went into possession of the property and held it for a period of one year, held sufficient as against a general demurrer and special exception, amounting to a general demurrer. Phœbus v. Connelley (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1019.

In lessees' proceeding to enjoin lessor from removing them from leased premises, notwithstanding defendant's denial under oath of a written lease for three years, the court was not compelled to refuse the injunction, but might within its discretion grant the writ. Id.

Unless inconsistent with its terms, the covenant of quiet enjoyment and that the lessor has the right to lease for the term expressed is always implied in a lease; the covenant being ordinarily implied by the words lease, agreement, to let, grant, and demise. Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1021.

26. Rights as to crops.—In an action by tenant under a lease for one year to recover from his landlord's grantee for money received for pasturage, evidence held to justify a jury finding that plaintiff was to receive only his proportion of crops grown, and that he would not be permitted to delay his surrender of premises to cut or otherwise utilize Johnson grass growing on stubble land. Cooke v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 642.

Where mortgagor demises land before foreclosure, lessee is thereafter entitled to crops in preference to purchaser. Temple Trust Co. v. Pirtle (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 627.

Where mortgagor before foreclosure demised grass lands, lessee is entitled to crops and to enter and sever same, though grass was natural growth of soil. Id.

The doctrine of emblements is the common-law right of a tenant whose lease of uncertain duration has been terminated without his fault and without previous knowledge on his part to enter on the leased premises to cultivate, harvest, and remove the crops planted by him before termination of the lease. Dinwiddie v. Jordan (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 126; reversing (Civ. App.) Jordan v. Dinwiddie, 205 S. W. 862.

A lease whereby the tenants were to relinquish possession in the event of sale on repayment by the lessor of the unearned rentals, having no explicit reference to emblements, did not deprive the tenants of their right, after termination of their right of general possession on giving notice of sale, to re-enter, cultivate, harvest, and remove the crops planted by them during the tenancy. Id.

Emblements may be the subject of contract, but, in the absence of a stipulation in the lease contract dealing therewith, the tenant is entitled to emblements. Id.

27. Rights of landlord and tenant after eviction or abandonment.—Ordinarily exemplary damages are not allowed for mere breach of contract, as a tenancy contract, but where landlord wrongfully and willfully or maliciously uses writ of sequestration to obtain possession of rented property, to which he has no lawful right, such damages may be recovered. Lamar v. Hildreth (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 167.

Landlords, in taking possession of abandoned premises, are required to safely care for property left in premises by tenants. Alsbury v. Linville (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 492.

Where plaintiff prevented defendant from cutting hay on lands which he had fenced, evidence held sufficient to sustain the award of damages, it appearing that the lands were fenced, and so were more valuable for haying than surrounding inclosed lands which defendant could have obtained. Bankers Trust Co. v. Schulze (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 570.

In an action for wrongful eviction of plaintiff by lessor's grantee during the life of the lease, where it appeared that lessor had given a warranty deed to defendant, such fact did not justify the joinder of lessor as a party defendant on motion of defendant. Robinson v. Street (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 648.

28. Liability for rent.—Liability for rent is based on privity of contract or privity of estate; and, where there is an express covenant to pay, the lessee is held in privity of contract, and, in the absence of express covenant, the liability arises on an implied obligation whereby he is held in privity of estate. Cauble v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 922.

29. — Failure of landlord to repair.—In action against tenant under lease for rent, tenant having vacated because of defects in roof, it was proper to admit in evidence written notices of defects in roof, sent to landlord after execution of lease, while tenant was holding under prior lease. Ingram v. Fred (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 298.

A tenant, who leased a building for two years for a specific sum payable in monthly installments, may vacate and refuse to thereafter pay rent, where lessor has failed to keep building in repair and tenantable as agreed. Id.

31. — Surrender or abandonment.—Where terms of lease, required lessor, in case of tenant's breach, to release premises for best obtainable rent upon tenant's account, he was bound to rent it for remainder of term to ascertain amount of deficiency, in order to bind tenant for deficiency remaining due at end of any year. John Church Co. v. Martinez (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 486.

Where tenant was entitled to nine months' notice of cancellation of lease, but in being notified of such cancellation was given right to immediate cancellation of lease and surrender of land, the tenant's vacation of land, without notifying owner or sublessee, from whom he had purchased lease, of his acceptance of owner's proposition to immediately end contract, was not sufficient to relieve tenant or sublessee of liability for rent. Goffinet v. Broome & Baldwin (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 567.

32. — Amount.—If written lease was abrogated by agreement substituting another as tenant, then for any part of the term that the original lessee occupied under re-entry, after the substituted tenant vacated, the measure of recovery is not the rent stipulated in lease, but the reasonable rental value, in the absence of another contract fixing rent for such period. Lovelady v. Harding (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 933.

A lease of land for pasturage purposes for one year at a rental of $6,000 payable in installments, $600 down and $600 a month for five months and $480 a month for five months, terminable on notice if the landlord should sell, held a lease at $500 per month, and, where terminated by sale at end of five months, lessee, having paid $3,000, was entitled to a return of $500. Ramsey v. Odiorne (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 615.

Where premises are rented without a stipulated sum being agreed upon as rental, it is implied that the tenant will pay the landlord the reasonable rental value for the use of the premises. Kubena v. Mikulascik (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1105.

33. — Time of accrual.—Under a lease of a ranch for pasturage for one year at $500 per month, terminated under the terms of the lease after five months by reason of a sale of the premises, lessee should pay for first month of term, although he did not use or occupy premises that month. Ramsey v. Odiorne (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 615.

When a certain amount is to be paid as rent for a fixed period and no time is stated in the lease when the rental is to be paid, it is not due until last day of the period for which the rent is to be paid. Bailey v. Williams (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 311.

34. — Persons entitled.—Where plaintiffs who had each purchased a half section of land from the lessor agreed jointly with the lessee, holding subject to sale, that lessee should have grass on the section for grazing purposes, the relation of landlord and tenant was established, and plaintiffs were properly joined as parties plaintiff in action for rent. Marshall v. Magness (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 541.

On a conveyance of the reversion in fee, the grantee is entitled to the subsequently accruing rentals, unless the grantor expressly reserves them. Walker v. Ames (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 365.

35. — Persons liable.—Assignment of lease by lessee does not affect his liability on an express covenant to pay rent. Goffinet v. Broome & Baldwin (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 567.

In the absence of express covenant to pay rent, if the lessee parts with his estate with the consent of the lessor, the privity of estate is thereby destroyed, and the lessee is not further obligated to pay rent, as there is nothing on which to base the implied obligation. Cauble v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 922.

Where there is an express covenant to pay rent, the lessee, after assignment of his term, remains liable on his express covenant, the privity of contract being unaffected when the privity of estate is terminated by the assignment, even though such assignment was made with the consent of the lessor, and though the lessor has accepted rental payments from the assignee, such receipt of rent from the assignee not amounting to novation of the contract or release of the lessee. Id.

37. — Evidence.—In landlord's action for rent, defendant's testimony that she owned fixtures in barber shop kept by her son and had received part of shop's income for their use, etc., held insufficient to make her liability for rent a jury question. Kiam v. Stacy (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 341.

In an action for rent, evidence of modification of the lease by lowering the rent for one year held too slight to be submitted to the jury. Foster v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 374.

In landlord's action for rent, in which he claimed that the tenant was holding over after expiration of other term, and that no rent had been agreed upon, refusal to permit landlord to testify as to the reasonable rental value held error. Kubena v. Mikulascik (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1105.

38. — Amount of recovery.—Landlord was entitled to have attorney's fees specified in lease included in his judgment for rent, where reasonableness thereof was not questioned. Ingram v. Texas Christian University (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 608.

On tenant's breach of lease for ten years and its vacation of building, lessor could recover only rent due and payable at date of trial and foreclosure of landlord's lien, excluding rent to become due thereafter until showing of value of unexpired lease and as to whether building had been relet for lessee's account. John Church Co. v. Martinez (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 486.

The liability of an original lessee for rent is regarded as being in the nature of that of a surety for the assignee, so that any credit to which the assignee is entitled inures to the benefit of the original lessee. Cauble v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 922.

41. Possession of tenant as possession of landlord.—The record owner's possession, through tenants, of portions of a survey, constitutes constructive possession of entire survey except portions actually adversely occupied. Pate v. Gallup (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1151.

45. Waste.—In the absence of express agreement there is an implied agreement on the tenant's part to use leased farm property in a tenantlike manner without committing injury to it by acts inconsistent with good husbandry. Friemel v. Coker (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1105.

46. Improvements by tenant.—In construing lessee's contract for building or other improvements, not containing specifications, consideration should be given circumstances, contemplation of parties, and character and purpose of improvements, and contract should be reasonably construed to render it equitable. Folmar v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 861.

Where lease obligated tenant to erect houses and cribs and to sink wells for domestic uses, but did not state character of improvements, lessee and successors were under obligation to spend reasonable amount of money and labor to construct wells in general use in locality. Id.

One wrongfully evicted is not entitled to recover damages by reason of improvements, which were fixtures of permanent character, and not shown to have been made with the consent of the landlord, or with the understanding that they might be removed from the premises at the expiration of the tenancy. Williams v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 981.

Stipulation in lease according lessees right to sublet in part or whole, carried with it right of lessees to make or permit the making of such changes and additions in building as were reasonably necessary to its use by subtenants, provided changes did not constitute substantial change in structure, and could be removed at expiration of the lease without injury to building, "alteration," as applied to a building, meaning a substantial change. Mayer v. Texas Tire & Rubber Co. (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 874.

49. Damages for failure to make improvements.—In a landlord's action for tenant's breach of lease by abandoning premises, defendants might set up damages for restoring the premises to condition represented by the landlord, such expenditure not being merely the expense of repairs which the landlord had not agreed to do. C. R. Miller & Bro. v. Nigro (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 511.

50. Duty to make repairs in general.—A tenant, who leased a building for two years for a specific sum payable in monthly installments, may vacate, when lessor failed to keep building in repair and tenantable as agreed. Ingram v. Fred (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 298.

To exempt landlord from damages to tenant resulting from defects in roof, and at same time hold tenant liable for full contract price, which he agreed to pay upon understanding that building was tenantable, would be unreasonable and obviously unjust to tenant, and such construction of lease should not be favored. Id.

If landlord was obligated to repair roof of building, such obligation was not discharged by unsuccessful efforts to remedy defects, under plea that such efforts constituted reasonable diligence to accomplish purpose. Id.

A lease of a building, providing that lessor "shall have reasonable time to repair the same," when notified of leaks, held to contemplate that it was duty of lessor to make such repairs upon receiving such notice. Id.

In the absence of a covenant to that effect, the landlord is under no obligation to repair the premises, even when they become defective through decay or deterioration. Pollack v. Perry (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 967.

The covenant of a landlord to make repairs on premises leased from month to month is presumed to continue as a covenant for the months after the first, where the tenant is permitted to remain in possession on paying the stipulated rent without a new agreement. Id.

It is the duty of the tenant to keep fences on the leased premises in repair. Friemel v. Coker (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1105.

A tenant violating a duty owing to the landlord by failing to repair fences, etc., is liable for the resulting damage caused by stock entering the premises and destroying crops, although the damage was not fully accomplished before the termination of the lease. Id.

In a tenant's action against landlord for breach of contract to keep premises in repair, evidence of gross receipts is insufficient to ascertain the amount of tenant's loss of profits. Midkiff v. Benson (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 186.

A landlord having expressly covenanted to keep a building in repair is liable for breach thereof, even though committed by another tenant subsequently renting a different part of the building, and the fact that the latter is also liable in tort does not relieve the landlord. Id.

A tenant may recover against landlord failing to keep building in repair for loss of profits naturally flowing for such breach of contract, where there is sufficient data to enable the jury to ascertain such loss with reasonable certainty. Id.

There is no implied warranty upon part of landlord that premises are fit for purposes for which they are leased and if tenant desired that landlord make changes or repairs he should have such covenant incorporated in the agreement to lease. C. R. Miller & Bro. v. Nigro (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 511.

Ordinarily where a lease does not provide that landlord shall repair premises, there would be no consideration for his oral promise to repair, yet where landlord misrepresented the premises there would be sufficient consideration for his promise to put them in the condition represented. Id.

51. Injuries from defective condition of premises.—A landlord who agreed to repair floor of rented premises is liable for the negligent failure of his employé to replace a defective plank in the floor, whereby injury resulted to the tenant since he is chargeable with knowledge of the defect in the floor of which the carpenter had knowledge. Pollock v. Perry (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 967.

Evidence that landlord's employé had opportunity to ascertain the defective condition of a plank, and that it was in the same condition then as when it broke under plaintiff, held sufficient to warrant the jury in finding that the servant had knowledge of the defective condition of the plank, so that it was negligence not to repair it. Id.

Where the landlord agrees to repair the premises, liability for personal injuries to the tenant, resulting from failure to repair, may arise on theory of negligence. Id.

57. Renewal of lease in general.—Although there was no evidence of specific agreement relating to kind of crops and amount of rental, evidence held sufficient to sustain finding of contract, where the buyer of land inquired of the tenant what rentals he had been paying to the seller for the previous year, and, on receiving the desired information, immediately told the tenant he might have the farm for another year, thus implying his assent to the rental on the same terms. Rupert v. Swindle (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 671.

In a suit by tenant to restrain landlord from leasing to another after expiration of lease giving tenant an option for an extension of two years, evidence held to show that the tenant by his conduct and dealings, including offer of higher price, had waived the option to extend lease at the option price. Mowery v. Rivero (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 290.

60. Duration and termination of lease.—Rule that tender of rent by lessee immediately after filing of suit by lessor is sufficient to relieve against forfeiture of lease is not a rule of absolute application, and trial court, in exercise of its equity powers, may deny it to a willful and persistent violator of his legal obligations. Crawford v. Texas Improvement Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 195

Doctrine that courts of equity do not favor forfeitures will not be applied in favor of lessee who has willfully and persistently defaulted in payment of rent, in absence of some strong counterbalancing equity. Id.

In suit by lessor to forfeit lease for nonpayment of rent, evidence held to support jury finding on special issue that lessee's failure to pay rent as stipulated in lease was willful and persistent. Id.

Fact that lessee believed that his lessor would not, without notice, forfeit lease for failure to pay rent, and that such belief was caused by lessor's conduct, does not raise any equity in favor of lessee, who has willfully and persistently defaulted in payment of rent, or estop the lessor from forfeiting lease. Id.

Under a lease providing for its termination in case the building should become so injured as to become unfit for use, where injury to a tin roof was merely temporary, and by ordinary repairs could be easily restored, it was not an injury within the contract. Sherrill v. Kirkin-York Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 775.

Repudiation by tenant by institution of action in trespass to try title to the land forfeits his right to claim further under the lease. Werts' Heirs v. Vick (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 63.

Where constable, in taking possession of leased building and ousting person in possession under tenant, was not acting under direction of landlord's agent, act did not terminate lease, which provided it should terminate on re-entry. Pantaze v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 521.

Stipulation that lease may be terminated by sale of land is valid, and will be upheld. Jordan v. Dinwiddie (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 862.

Ordinarily breaches of express covenants, much less those that arise only by implication, do not forfeit the right of possession or confer the right of re-entry, in the absence of an express provision to that effect in the contract. Wade v. Madison (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 118.

Assuming that defendant, an employé of a partnership using land of plaintiff with his consent without payment of rent, was a tenant of the plaintiff, such relation was ended by dissolution of the partnership and abandonment of the land, although the employé was given fences remaining after a prairie fire, where the land was open to the public and unfenced for two years before defendant re-entered and fenced it. Dolen v. Lobit (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 143, 964.

Where landlords repudiated rental contract by suing for and sequestering land, tenants could accept renunciation and agree contract should be put to an end, subject to their right to bring action for wrongful rescission. Lamar v. Hildreth (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 167.

Where lessees were not in default for the rent, lessor had no right to forfeit lease because the lessees had for about two months left the premises; lessee not being required to remain in physical possession of premises at all times. Obets & Harris v. Speed (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 316.

A provision in a lease, "Should the parties of the first part (the lessors) make a sale of land herein leased, then, and in that event this lease will immediately become void," operated as a contingent limitation of the lease term, and when the contingency happened, all rights under the contract, including the right of occupancy, terminated. Johnson v. Phelps (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 446.

The conveyance of property which was subject to a lease providing that it could be terminated on a sale of the premises for the sole purpose of terminating the lease, property to be reconveyed after danger of suit by the lessee was past, was fraudulent as a matter of law. Rogers v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 489.

61. Recovery of possession.—Landlords were authorized to take possession of premises upon abandonment thereof by tenants. Alsbury v. Linville (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 492.

One in lawful possession of premises as servant under tenants who were holding over after termination of a lease, was entitled to damages, where humiliated by being thrown into the street by force of arms without any lawful process. Chrono v. Gonzales (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 368.

In order that entry on land by lessor amount to a resumption of possession, it must be inconsistent and hostile to the right of possession of the tenant, and a mere entry to make preservative repairs or for any other purpose, providing same is made in subserviency to the estate of the tenant and without intention to resume possession of the premises, does not amount to a resumption of possession and control. Goodman v. Republic Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 466.

62. Renting on shares.—Where the one raising the crop is "a cropper on the shares," the relation of landlord and tenant does not in fact exist; the relation being that of "joint owners" of the crop. Williams v. King (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 106.

Under an agreement to go on a landowner's farm and cultivate a part of it, the parties to divide the crop equally, the landowner to haul the crop to the gin, the cultivator of the ground was a "cropper." Davis v. State (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 690.

It is settled law in tenancy contracts upon shares to treat parties as having entered into joint business enterprises, stipulating what shall be advantage of each. Lamar v. Hildreth (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 167.

The execution of rental contract and assignment thereof by mortgagor does not constitute the taking of mortgagees' property or an impairment of their security within federal Const. Amend. 14, prohibiting taking of property without due process of law. Sanger Bros. v. Hunsucker (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 514.

Where plaintiffs rented land to defendant, and were to furnish animals, feed, and everything necessary, except labor, and were to receive as rent one-half of all the crops, and agreed to feed one team of defendant's horses, and defendant was to let plaintiffs have the use of such team during the year for their feed, and plaintiffs turned the team over to defendant to be used by him in cultivation of the crop, it was not the intention of the parties that the value of the use of team above cost of feed should form and be a part of the rents and the contract was not void as charging rent greater than that allowed by law. Raymond v. Ashley (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 992.

63. — Mode of cultivation of land.—Where lessees obligated to cultivate, etc., undertook to apply contract, which purported to cover 200 acres as to cultivation, to lessor's uncultivated 300 acres, obligation rested on them to put 200 acres in reasonably good state of cultivation, and to surround them with reasonably good fence. Folmar v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 861.

Damages claimed by landlord for tenant's breach of contract to cultivate land in a good workmanlike manner held not too remote, speculative, and uncertain to sustain an action therefor. Shotwell v. Crier (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 262.

A contract imposing a joint obligation to farm, cultivate, and gather a crop of cotton in a thorough and farmerlike manner necessarily implied that the persons jointly contracting to so do should personally supervise and superintend the operations, and such duty was nondelegable, and recovery could not be had under the contract where a third person was hired to superintend and do the work, in the absence of allegations of a quantum meruit. Enterprise Co. v. Neely (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1088.

65. — Rights and liabilities as to crops.—A landlord is not the owner of any part of a growing crop being raised by his tenant before it is divided, or, if there is an agreement to divide, before it is matured and ready to be divided. Williams v. King (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 106.

The owner of land cannot create a valid mortgage on an unplanted or growing crop, which belongs to the tenant, who has merely agreed to pay him a share of the crops as rents for the use of the land, and where prior to a division of the crops, the land is sold under a trust deed, the chattel mortgagee has no lien on any part of the crop. Brod v. Guess (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 299.

Where a tenant under a valid contract with owner agrees to pay a crop rent, and thereafter actually plants and cultivates the specified crop, the crop may be sold or mortgaged even though at the time of the sale or mortgage the crop has not actually been planted. Sanger Bros. v. Hunsucker (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 514.

Where land is rented under crop-sharing rental contract, and, while crops are growing, is sold under deed of trust, and, after sale, a portion of the land is replanted by tenant under agreement with purchaser, assignees of rental contract are entitled to the rent crop share of the replanted crops as against purchaser. Id.

Rental contract, entered into by purchaser under deed of trust with tenant in possession, with knowledge of tenant's rental contract with former owner, and assignment of rents thereunder, is of no effect as against assignees. Id.

Where cattle entered, ate, or destroyed the landlord's share of the crop, a judgment against the tenant for value of such part of the crop held sustained by evidence that the tenant did not properly repair the fences protecting the landlord's share of the crop, and that he gave the stock access to such crop. Friemel v. Coker (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1105.

68. — Breach of contract by landlord in general.—Value of crop before gathered held not measure of tenant's damages for landowner's breach of lease contract. Lott v. Ballew (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 645.

Where landowner breached his contract to rent agricultural land on shares, thus depriving his tenant of employment, amount earned by tenant in other employments, or amount he could have earned by leasing other equally available land, should be deducted from his recovery. Id.

In action by tenant for landlord's failure to permit him to cultivate rented lands, instruction allowing as damages reasonable cash market value of plaintiff's share of crops he might have raised thereon held to erroneously premit consideration of expense of making and gathering crops. Butler v. Perdue (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1176.

Evidence held sufficient to support finding that lessor agreed to furnish lessee necessary water for irrigating rice crop. Hudson v. Salley (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 655.

In an action for breach of a contract of employment under which it was alleged plaintiff was to have a portion of a crop and a portion of the increase in stock and profits from the milk on the farm where he was employed, plaintiff could show the value of the milk sold and the calves and pigs born during the year. Hall v. White (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 669.

In action by tenants against landlords for breach of rental contract, evidence as to damages held not so vague, uncertain, and conjectural that no verdict for tenants could rightfully be based upon it. Lamar v. Hildreth (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 167.

For breach of rental contract tenant may recover what he would reasonably have made out of his crop but for breach, but is not limited to such item, and is entitled as well to loss sustained as well as gains prevented, and may recover for damages to his feed by the eviction. Id.

The measure of damages for the breach of a contract leasing or renting land on shares is the value of the injured party's share of the crops which he could have made, less proper deductions, to be determined by the circumstances of each particular case. Williams v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 981.

69. — Eviction.—In action by tenant on shares against landlords for wrongful eviction and breach of contract, plaintiff alleging special damages by eviction as well as exemplary damages, court properly refused to direct verdict against plaintiff because he was a single man within draft age, and had been called to army, which would have interfered with cultivation of crop in any event. Lamar v. Hildreth (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 167.

70. — Conversion.—Where tenant set up share-cropping contract, and alleged that landlord and a third person conspired to oust him of the crop, it was not error to award him as damages the value of his share of the crop, without deducting the cost of harvesting, since a conspiracy includes a corrupt motive for which penalty may be inflicted. Stewart v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 768.

71. — Breach of contract to deliver share.—Where plaintiff landlord was entitled to one-third of a crop free from all expenses of cultivating and harvesting it, his damages cannot be limited to the value of the crop at the time defendant tenant destroyed it, since that would deprive him of the benefit of his contract with defendant to cultivate the land properly. Shotwell v. Crier (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 262.

While, as a general rule, in actions in trespass to try title and in forcible entry and detainer, the measure of damages is the rental value of the property while wrongfully withheld, a landlord may sue a tenant on shares holding over only for use of pasture land withheld after expiration of lease or the value of the grass converted, measuring its value by the number of cattle pastured at a fixed price per head. Id.

The measure of damages for the destruction of the landlord's share of a wheat crop by the tenant's pasturing stock thereon is the market value of plaintiff's share of such crops as would probably have been raised if defendant had complied with his contract and not destroyed the crop. Id.

72. — Liabilities of third persons.—A landlord's lien applies only while crops remain on the premises and for one month thereafter, and a landlord suing a purchaser at sale under execution against tenant as for conversion must allege and prove that the crop was at the time of the conversion either on the premises or had not within his knowledge been removed for a greater time than 30 days. Jarrell-Evans Dry Goods Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 920.

In an action by landlord for conversion of cotton on which the landlord had a lien for rent and advances, where execution against the tenant had been levied on the cotton while it was in possession of the tenant either on the premises or at the place where the tenant had taken it to have it prepared for market, held, that the burden of showing waiver or loss of lien was on defendants, purchasers at execution sale, who claimed that his lien had been waived by the landlord because he allowed the tenant to sell crops, so judgment for defendants cannot be sustained on the theory that the landlord did not establish that the crops were on the premises or had not been removed for more than 30 days. Id.

LAND SURVEYORS

Art. 5491½. Board of examiners; members; appointment; qualifications.	Art. 5491½e. Same; powers and duties; signature to field notes.
5491½a. Same; organization; quorum.	5491½f. Field notes and plats.
5491½b. Examinations; questions; applicants for license; deposit; conduct of examinations.	5491½g. Compensation of licensed surveyor; force and effect of field notes.
5491½c. Same; custody of questions and answers; second examination; license to successful applicants; duration of; revocation.	5491½h. Rights of unlicensed surveyors.
5491½d. Licensed surveyors; oath of office; bond.	5491½i. Certificates of facts shown by books, etc., in county surveyor's office.
	5491½j. Seal of licensed surveyors.
	5491½k. Repeal.

Article 5491½. Board of examiners; members; appointment; qualifications.—A Board of Examiners of Land Surveyors is hereby created to be composed of the Commissioner of the General Land Office and two reputable land surveyors, to be appointed by the Governor, who have had not less than fifteen years practical and active experience in the field as land surveyors. The first two surveyors so appointed shall receive a license from the said Board without examination and shall hold their membership on such board at the pleasure of the appointing authority. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 67, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 5491½a. Same; organization; quorum.—Within sixty days after the taking effect of this Act the Board shall organize by electing a Chairman and a Secretary-Treasurer. Two members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business and the concurrence of two members shall be necessary for the adoption or rejection of any question. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 5491½b. Examinations; questions; applicants for license; deposit; conduct of examinations.—The Board shall prepare in writing questions upon the theory of surveying, practical surveying, theory and use of surveyor's instruments, calculation of areas, closing of field notes, the law of land boundaries and touching such other matters pertaining to surveying as the Board may deem important. No one shall either directly or indirectly make known to any applicant for surveyors license the questions upon which such examination shall be given prior to the commencement of the examination. When the questions shall have been prepared by the Board they shall be forwarded to the custodian of questions for teachers certificates in each county under proper enclosures with suitable words on the enclosure indicating the contents. The questions shall be held unopened by such custodian and opened only in the presence of such applicants for surveyors license as may present themselves for examination at the same time and place as may be required of applicants for teachers certificates. Each applicant shall deposit the sum of ten dollars with the authority that may be authorized to receive such fees from applicants for teachers certificates. When such sum shall have been deposited the authority conducting the examination for teachers certificates shall likewise conduct the examination for land surveyors license in the same manner as for that for teachers certificates. When such applicants shall have returned the questions and answers to the source from which they were received, the authority receiving them shall return both questions and answers to the Chairman of the Board of Examiners of Surveyors, together with eight dollars of the ten dollars deposited by each applicant, and retain two dollars which two dollars shall be disposed of as are the fees paid by applicants for teachers certificates. The sum received by the Board, or so much thereof as may be necessary, may be used to defray the actual expense incurred by said Board in the execution of this Act and the remainder shall be deposited annually into the State Treasury; provided that no appropriation shall ever be made to defray the expenses of said Board or to carry into effect any of the provisions of this Act. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5491½c. Same; custody of questions and answers; second examination; license to successful applicants; duration of; revocation.—When the questions and answers shall have been received by the Chairman of the Board as aforesaid, he shall either convene the Board for the purpose of passing upon the answers made to the questions and the issuance of the License or the refusal to so issue the license; or the said Chairman may transmit the questions and answers to the other members for their consideration and action as herein contemplated. All questions and answers made thereon with the action of the Board shall be deposited in the General Land Office and there safely kept not less than one year. Should a license be refused an applicant such applicant may take any subsequent examination under the same conditions as in the first instance. Every applicant who successfully passes the examination shall receive from said Board a Land Surveyors License attested by the Seal of the Board and shall be valid for life unless sooner revoked by the Board for any of the following causes; to wit: the holder declared by any court to have committed a felony, theft or fraud, to be insane or incompetent; found by the Board to have unlawfully given information concerning any undisclosed public land; found to have been directly or indirectly interested in the purchase or in the acquisition of the title to any public land; found guilty of any act or default discreditable to the surveying profession. Before any license shall be revoked the holder thereof shall be advised by written notice from the Board being mailed to him at his last known address at least thirty days before the date fixed for hearing any charge against him, stating the charge, and the time and place for such hearing. Should the Board find the charge sustained by the facts the license of such surveyor shall be revoked. The facts adduced at such hearing shall be reduced to writing. The surveyor whose license shall have been revoked may appeal from such revocation to the district court of any county. Upon such appeal the court shall admit in evidence the written record of the Board, together with such other evidence as may be offered on either side in accordance with the rules of evidence in district courts. After a revocation of a surveyor's license such surveyor shall not perform the duties of a licensed surveyor unless such license shall have been restored; provided, that applicants, who are reputable land surveyors of fifteen years actual experience in the field as such land surveyors, shall receive a license with the exemption when they shall have filed with said Board the affidavits of three credible persons to the effect that applicant is a reputable land surveyor of fifteen actual experience in the field as such and upon the payment of a fee of Two ($2.00) Dollars to the said Board. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 5491½d. Licensed surveyors; oath of office; bond.—Before one who receives a land surveyors license shall be authorized to perform the duties of a land surveyor, he shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, and shall make a good and sufficient bond in the sum of one thousand dollars, payable to the Governor and his successors in office, conditioned that he will faithfully, impartially and honestly perform all the duties of a surveyor to the best of his skill and ability in all matters wherein he may be employed. The said bond shall not be void upon first recovery nor until the whole may be exhausted. The said oath and bond shall be recorded in the office of the county clerk of the county in which the licensee resides, and after being so recorded the said bond and oath of office shall be filed in the General Land Office, accompanied with one dollar as filing fee and thereupon the licensee shall be authorized to enter upon the discharge of the duties of a land surveyor. The other records and books of the Board relating to the execution of this Act shall be deposited in the General Land Office for safe keeping when not in use by the Board. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 5491<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>e. Same; powers and duties; signature to field notes.—Land Surveyors, licensed and otherwise qualified as provided in this Act, are hereby authorized to perform the duties that are now or may hereafter be required of county surveyors and shall be subject to the direction of the Governor, Commissioner of the General Land Office, the Attorney General, and the courts of the State in the matter of land surveying in such cases as may come under the jurisdiction of said authorities. Their jurisdiction shall be co-extensive with the limits of the State. They may be elected county surveyor of the county in which they reside and if so elected shall qualify as provided by law for county surveyors, but such election for any particular county shall not limit the jurisdiction of said surveyor to such county, nor shall the election of a county surveyor for any particular county prevent any other licensed surveyor from performing the duties of a surveyor in such county. Every field note made by one licensed under this Act shall be signed by the surveyor and followed by the designation "Licensed Land Surveyor." [Id. § 6.]

Art. 5491<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>f. Field notes and plats.—The field notes of every survey made by a licensed land surveyor shall in every respect conform to the requirements that are now or may hereafter be required for field notes and every survey made shall be recorded in the county surveyor's records of the proper county, and for the purpose of such record and for all other purposes licensed surveyors shall have free and unrestrained access to the county surveyor's records therein. The field notes of all surveys and plats of same made by any licensed land surveyor affecting the lines, boundaries and areas of unpatented land shall be forwarded to the General Land Office. If a licensed land surveyor should discover an undisclosed tract of public land, he shall not make known that fact to any one except to such person or persons as may have it enclosed, but he shall forward to the General Land Office a report of the existence of such tract and the acreage therein, and its probable value. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 5491<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>g. Compensation of licensed surveyor; force and effect of field notes.—A licensed land surveyor shall receive as compensation for his services not to exceed ten dollars per day and other expenses incident to the survey shall be agreed upon between the surveyor and the interested party, whether that be a private person, a county, a court, or the State. All fields notes made by a licensed land surveyor in whatsoever county shall have the same force and effect and be admissible in evidence the same as field notes heretofore made by county surveyors and their deputies. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 5491 $\frac{1}{2}$ h. Rights of unlicensed surveyors.—A surveyor who does not hold a license under this Act may nevertheless be elected to the office of county surveyor and perform the duties of that office and one who does not hold such license may be appointed deputy county surveyor and perform the duties of that office and they shall receive such compensation for their services as licensed State land surveyors; and nothing herein contained shall be construed to prevent any surveyor or person to survey for another by private contract and the criminal penalties contained herein shall not apply to such surveyor or person surveying for another by private contract nor to any surveyor surveying lands by order of court. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 5491 $\frac{1}{2}$ i. Certificates of facts shown by books, etc., in county surveyor's office.—Surveyors qualified under this Act and County Surveyors may make a certificate of any fact shown by the books, documents and records of any county surveyor's office and may make a certified copy of any book, document or record or entry therein shown by the record of said office, and said certificate and certified copy shall be admissible in evidence as to what said records may disclose, and for such service the surveyor may charge a fee of one dollar for each certificate and thirty-five cents for each one hundred words contained in any certified copy; provided, when a county has a county surveyor such surveyor alone shall be authorized to make certificates and certified copies and receive the fees therefor. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 5491 $\frac{1}{2}$ j. Seal of licensed surveyors.—Licensed land surveyors under the provisions of this Chapter shall procure a seal of offices similar to that of a Notary Public, with this exception, around the margin shall be the words "licensed state land surveyor" and between the points of the star in the said seal shall be the words "Texas," with which seal he shall authenticate all certificates and other official acts issued under the provisions of this chapter and no certificate or other instrument issued by such land surveyor shall be admitted in evidence, or have any legal effect, unless, such seal is impressed thereon. [Id., § 11.]

For section 12 of this act, see Penal Code, art. 1617b.

Art. 5491 $\frac{1}{2}$ k. Repeal.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act are hereby repealed. [Id., § 13.]

CHAPTER ONE

COMMON LAW

Art.

5492. Common law of England adopted.

Art.

5493. Executors, etc., governed by, when.

Article 5492. [3258] Common law of England adopted.

Cited, Wadkins v. Watson, 86 Tex. 194, 24 S. W. 385, 22 L. R. A. 779; State Nat. Bank of San Antonio v. East Coast Oil Co., S. A., 109 Tex. 510, 212 S. W. 621.

Construction and operation.—Under City of Dallas Charter, art. 2, § 2, subd. 1, article 2, § 3, subds. 24, 33, and article 2, § 7, subd. 4, an ordinance regulating and licensing jitney busses and requiring a surety bond by the operators was valid, and not derogative of common law. City of Dallas v. Gill (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1144.

Where the statutes and the Constitution are merely declaratory of common principles and do not define the civil rights and remedies in any given case, the common law of England, so far as not inconsistent with the Constitution and laws of the state, is applicable. City Nat. Bank of Wichita Falls v. Laughlin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 617.

The question of assignability of the right of re-entry after condition subsequent broken should be governed by the same rule which is applied to the assignability of an interest in land in the adverse possession of another, and the right of re-entry after condition subsequent broken is assignable in view of art. 7733(4), notwithstanding this article. Perry v. Smith (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 340.

Art. 5493. [3259] Executors, etc., governed by, when.

Construction and operation.—Arts. 3309, 3621, 3622, 3623, 3235, 4099, 4101, 5493, do not authorize administrator to charge against the estate a premium paid for the making of his bond. Jarvis v. Drew (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 970.

SPECIAL LAWS

Article 5494. [3250] Notice of intention to apply for special law.

General and special laws.—Act May 16, 1907 (post, arts. 7487-7502), imposing inheritance taxes, is not special, but a general, law, applying equally and uniformly to every class affected. Dodge v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 116.

Constitutionality of statutes.—Sp. Act April 1, 1913 (Loc. & Sp. Acts 33d Leg. c. 138), creating special school district and providing for assessments, etc., is valid under amendment 1909, Const. art. 7, § 3, though notice was not given as required by art. 3, §§ 56, 57. Eagle Lake Independent School Dist. v. Hoyo (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 352.

Under Const. art. 3, § 56, art. 8, § 9, as amended, and Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 3870, 6901, held, that Bexar County Road Law (Loc. & Sp. Acts 33d Leg. c. 77, § 5), providing for annual salary for commissioners of county for acting in all capacities, is unconstitutional as an attempted regulation of county affairs by local and special act. Altgelt v. Gutzeit, 109 Tex. 123, 201 S. W. 400.

Const. art. 7, § 3, authorized the Legislature to pass the special act creating the Gonzales Independent School District, without notice, although it included the incorporated city of Gonzales, which had assumed control of the public schools under general laws, and become a taxing district authorized by art. 11, § 10, regardless of art. 3, § 56. Houston v. Gonzales Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 963.

Irrespective of Const. art. 3, § 56, art. 7, § 3, authorized the Legislature to pass, without notice, the special act creating the Charco independent school district, which provided for election to determine necessity of borrowing money and the rate of taxation. Powell v. Charco Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1178.

The act creating the county court at law of Harris county (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 1811-50), and providing that the county judge shall receive for the ex officio duties of his office not less than $1,500 a year and the Harris county road act likewise providing extra compensation for the county judge, held local special laws, regulating the affairs of the county, and invalid under Const. art. 3, § 56, as to a matter which could be regulated by a general law. Ward v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 792.

Act March 29, 1917 (Acts 35th Leg. c. 142), entitled "An act to incorporate the city of Plainview, Hale county, Texas, and to grant it a charter; to define its powers and prescribe its territorial limits, duties and liabilities, repealing all laws or parts of laws in conflict herewith, and declaring an emergency," is a local or special law, within Const. art. 3, § 56. State v. Vincent (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 402.

Though the incorporated city of Gonzales had assumed control of the public schools under the general laws and become a taxing district as authorized by Const. art. 11, § 10, the Legislature may nevertheless under art. 7, § 3, provide for formation of school district by local law without notice and create a special school district including the city without notice of intention to apply for the local or special law as required by article 3, § 57. Houston v. Gonzales Independent School Dist. (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 467.

Sp. Laws 36th Leg. (1919) c. 74, providing for establishment of road districts and creation of a board of a permanent road commissioners composed of certain county officers and citizens selected from each commissioner's district for the carrying on of the work, is not unconstitutional as an unwarranted attempt by the Legislature to control the affairs of Limestone county by special law or to take from the commissioners' court powers conferred upon that body alone in violation of Const. art. 5, § 18, in view of art. 3, § 52, and art. 8, § 9. Garrett v. Commissioners' Court of Limestone County (Civ. App.), 230 S. W. 1010.

Under Const. art. 11, § 2, and art. 8, § 9, the Legislature may pass local laws for construction as well as maintenance of public roads and highways already built without the local notice required for special or local laws, in view of art. 3, §§ 52, 56. Id.

Inhibition of Const. art. 3, § 56, against creating offices by special or local law, relates only to offices and officers for counties, cities, towns, election or school districts. Id.

Effect of giving notice.—Where an employé on a state railroad was injured, and his petition to the Legislature for privilege of entering the courts with his cause of action, of which under Const. art. 3, § 57, he was required to give advance notice of 30 days, was presented within two years after injury, the running of limitations against an action for such injuries was tolled. State v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 695.

CHAPTER THREE

CONSTRUCTION OF LAWS

Art.	Art.
5502. General rules of construction.	5504. Meaning of certain words.
5503. What shall not vitiate.

Article 5502. [3268] General rules of construction.

See Gibson v. Wood (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 893; Debenham v. Short (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1147; City of San Antonio v. Spears (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 703; Robinson v. Monning Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 535; Walker v. Fields (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 632.

Cited, City of Brenham v. Brenham Water Co., 67 Tex. 542. 4 S. W. 143; Alsop v. Jordan, 69 Tex. 300, 6 S. W. 831, 5 Am. St. Rep. 53; Halbert v. Alford (Sup.) 16 S. W. 814; American Type Founders' Co. v. Nichols, 110 Tex. 4, 214 S. W. 301.

1. Construction of statutes in general.—When two constructions may be given a statute, one of which would lead to absurdities and defeat the legislative intent, while the other would clarify its meaning, purposes, and intent, and make the statute enforceable, such reasonable construction must be given it. American Indemnity Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 812; City of Corpus Christi v. Mireur (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 528; Eastern Texas Electric Co. v. Woods (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 498.

Ambiguity in the language of a special law, affecting only one county, should be resolved in favor of the construction which will give effect, rather than that which will unduly limit or defeat, its purpose. Ex parte Miller, 85 Cr. R. 263, 211 S. W. 451.

Ordinarily, a statutory amendment affecting admissibility of evidence or probative effect of pleadings, affidavits, etc., affects suits pending at time of amendment, as well as suits filed thereafter. Walker v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 713.

Unless a contrary intention clearly and strongly appears and is manifested in appropriate words, a statute will always be given a construction that will make it operate prospectively, where to do otherwise would be to materially change existing rights. Invader Oil & Refining Co. of Texas v. City of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 616.

Laws depriving citizens of rights possessed by them should be strictly construed. Poe v. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 717.

2. — Constitution.—When a constitutional amendment is adopted, it becomes just as much a part of the organic law as the section amended originally was, and the effect of the amendment is the same as if it had been originally incorporated in the Constitution. State v. Vincent (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 402.

Just as liberal rule is generally applied in construction and enforcement of remedial statutes and Constitutions, stricter rule is applied when question is as to restrictive effect on legislative power of provisions of state Constitution. Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 380, denying rehearing 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 479.

Words in a Constitution speak from date of original insertion, unless it be provided otherwise; but words may be used in a sense broad enough to include things not at the time within human experience. Id.

3. Intention of legislature.—In construing statute, purpose is to ascertain legislative intent. Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 380, denying rehearing 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 479; Abilene & S. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 878; Merchants' & Mfrs.' Lloyd's Ins. Exch. v. Southern Trading Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 352.

While it is for the Legislature to make a law, it is the court's duty to "try out the right intentment" of statutes upon which they are called to pass and to ascertain and enforce them according to their intentment. Headlee v. Fryer (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 213.

Although it is plain duty of courts in construing statutes to give effect to intent of lawmaking power and seek for that intent in every legitimate way, there is no room for construction when intention of Legislature is so apparent from face of statute that there can be no question as to its meaning. Larkin v. Pruett Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 443.

While the intention of the Legislature must be ascertained from the words used to express it, the manifest reason and the obvious purpose of law should not be sacrificed to a literal interpretation of such words. Milners' Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 825.

Intent of a statute must be found in its language, and not elsewhere, and its interpretation must be such as its words in their plain sense fairly sanction and will clearly sustain. Simmons v. Arnim, 110 Tex. 309, 220 S. W. 66, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 184.

In the construction of a statute, the application of words of a single provision may be enlarged or restrained to bring the operation of the act within the intention of the Legislature when violence will not be done by such interpretation to its language. Eastern Texas Electric Co. v. Woods (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 498.

4. — Intent in construing constitution.—The fundamental principle in construing Constitutions is to ascertain the intent of the framers. Cain v. Lumsden (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 115.

In ascertaining whether a certain interpretation should be given a constitutional provision, it is proper to consider whether its framers and the voters adopting it intended the consequences which must follow a given construction. Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 479.

5. Spirit or letter.—Courts are not authorized to extend scope and application of statute merely because there is apparently no reason why right given in one case should not have been given in other cases. Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. Otis Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 376.

A statute is to be extended to cases not within the words but within the purpose thereof, as a thing within the intention of the legislators is as much within the statute as if it were within the letter. Headlee v. Fryer (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 213.

Intention of a statute should prevail against its strict letter. Walker v. Haley, 110 Tex. 50, 214 S. W. 295.

The intent of the Legislature in enacting a law is the law itself, and must be enforced when ascertained, though not consistent with the strict language, which will not be followed when it leads away from the true intent. Eastern Texas Electric Co. v. Woods (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 498.

6. Policy and purpose.—Every statute must be construed with reference to the object to be accomplished, and in ascertaining such object the occasion and necessity of the enactment of the statute may be considered. Merchants' & Mfrs.' Lloyd's Ins. Exch. v. Southern Trading Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 352.

It is not to be supposed that a law would require a vain thing. Red River Nat. Bank v. Ferguson, 109 Tex. 287, 206 S. W. 923.

The evil to be remedied and the object to be accomplished by a statute must be kept constantly in mind in arriving at the legislative intent. Eastern Texas Electric Co. v. Woods (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 498.

Statute must be construed not only by its own language, but the court must consider the ends sought to be obtained by it in connection with the statute to which it was intended to be cumulative. Hunter v. Whiteaker & Wasfington (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1096.

7. — Terms of constitution.—A rule of construction applicable to constitutional amendments is that in ascertaining the intention of an amendment the court should look to the evil to be cured and the remedy sought to be applied. Hamilton v. Davis (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 431.

10. Meaning of language—In general.—Words in common use, found in statute, must be given sense in which they are ordinarily used. State v. Yturria, 109 Tex. 220, 204 S. W. 315, L. R. A. 1918F, 1079, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 291.

While "or" is a disjunctive conjunction and the term "and" is a conjunctive conjunction, the words are not words of technical meaning and are to receive in law the same meaning they carry in common parlance, and it being plain that in the Constitution the terms "and" and "or" are used as convertible terms, it will be presumed that the Legislature used them in that sense in a statute. Alexander v. State, 84 Cr. R. 75, 204 S. W. 644.

Unless the context indicates otherwise, the language of statutes is to be given its ordinary signification. Sugg v. Smith (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 363.

A statute will not be nullified or saved by refinement of construction, but it and provisions of the Constitution, which it is claimed to violate, will be interpreted according to the popular meaning of the language employed, except where used in a technical sense; that is, their effect will be determined by the plain and ordinary meaning of the language used. Lawson v. Baker (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 260.

11. — Language of constitution.—Unless the context indicates otherwise, the language of the Constitution is to be given its ordinary signification. Sugg v. Smith (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 363.

The language selected by the framers of a constitution, when its meaning is clear, controls the court in interpreting it. Ex parte Meyer, 84 Cr. R. 288, 207 S. W. 100.

The statute will not be nullified or saved by refinement of construction, but it and provisions of the Constitution which it is claimed to violate will be interpreted according to the popular meaning of the language employed, except where used in a technical sense; that is, their effect will be determined by the plain and ordinary meaning of the language used. Lawson v. Baker (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 260.

12. Plain and unambiguous language.—Where language is plain and unambiguous, there is no room for construction, but where the meaning is doubtful the court can conjecture as to the intention of the Legislature. Hunt v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 869; Merchants' & Mfrs.' Lloyd's Ins. Exch. v. Southern Trading Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 352; Gribble v. State (Cr. App.) 210 S. W. 215, 3 A. L. R. 1096; Henderson v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 535.

Where language of statute is ambiguous, "construction" thereof becomes necessary; "construction" being the process or art of determining the sense, real meaning, or proper explanation of obscure or ambiguous terms or provisions. Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 880, denying rehearing 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 479.

If intent of a statute can be clearly ascertained from a reading of its provisions, and all its parts may be brought into harmony therewith, that intent will prevail without resort to other aids for construction. Western Indemnity Co. v. Milam (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 825.

13. — Words of constitution.—Where language of Constitution is ambiguous, "construction" thereof becomes necessary. Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 880, denying rehearing 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 479.

Where the meaning of a constitutional provision is plain, courts should not attempt to construe it, but should allow its clear meaning to apply. Garrett v. Commissioners' Court of Limestone County (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1010.

14. General and specific words.—General words in a statute, as "such other amusements," will not be rejected as too general nor interpreted to include all kinds of amusements, but refers to those of the species named. Zucarro v. State, 82 Cr. R. 1, 197 S. W. 982, L. R. A. 1918B, 354.

Under arts. 1011, 1013, authorize a personal judgment against a married woman, who owned as her separate estate property abutting on the improved street, which was the homestead of herself and her husband; her estate, under this article, not excluding her from the general term "owner." Spears v. City of San Antonio, 110 Tex. 618, 223 S. W. 166, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) City of San Antonio v. Spears, 206 S. W. 703.

Where an enumeration of specific things is followed by some general word or phrase, such general word or phrase, under the ejusdem generis rule of construction, is to be held to refer to things of the same kind as those specifically mentioned. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 998.

15½. Gender.—Art. 7866, providing that, if a "testator" has a child at time of execution of will, a child born subsequently who survives testator shall be entitled to the share he would have received if the "father" had died intestate, held applicable to the rights of an after-born child under his mother's will. Parker v. Swain (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 231.

18. Statute as a whole.—Intent of statute must be determined from construction of all of its provisions. Atkins v. State Highway Department (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 226; Hess & Skinner Engineering Co. v. Turney, 109 Tex. 208, 203 S. W. 593.

Court cannot adopt construction of section of statute, no matter how plainly required by its language, standing alone, which would defeat intent of Legislature in whole statute. Moorman v. Terrell, 109 Tex. 173, 202 S. W. 727.

In construing statute, all parts thereof must be given effect. Hunter v. Whiteaker & Washington (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1096.

19. Conflicting provisions.—Statutes will not be construed as conflicting if such construction can be reasonably avoided. Mitchell v. Hancock (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 694.

A general provision sufficiently comprehensive to include a given subject-matter will be controlled by another provision specifically relating to the same subject-matter. State v. Valentine (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1006.

20. — Constitutional provisions.—When one section of the Constitution expresses a general intention to do a particular thing and another section expresses a particular intention incompatible with the general intention, the particular intention is to be considered in the nature of an exception. Garrett v. Commissioners' Court of Limestone County (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1010.

23. Title and caption.—An act is to be interpreted in the full light of its title; but the title itself has no enacting force, and cannot confer powers not mentioned in the act. Red River Nat. Bank v. Ferguson, 109 Tex. 287, 206 S. W. 923.

24. History and surrounding circumstances.—If construction given by Legislature to statute reserving public lands for benefit of counties for free schools were clearly wrong, it would be duty of Supreme Court to disregard it, but construction should not be cast aside and dependent titles struck down unless construction is clearly wrong. Slaughter v. Yoakum County, 109 Tex. 42, 195 S. W. 1129.

Journals kept by Legislature cannot be considered by courts for purpose of determining whether Const. art. 3, § 30, prohibiting amendment in passage so as to change original purpose, has been violated in passage of a bill. Harris County v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 445.

26. Contemporaneous construction.—Art. 5598, as amended by Act 35th Leg. c. 206, preserving common-law defenses to actions for libel, held not a legislative construction that the former law deprived defendants of such defenses. Koehler v. Dubose (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 238.

27. Executive construction.—If construction given by executive department to statute reserving public lands for benefit of counties for free schools was clearly wrong, it would be duty of Supreme Court to disregard it, but construction should not be cast aside and dependent titles struck down unless construction is clearly wrong. Slaughter v. Yoakum County, 109 Tex. 42, 195 S. W. 1129.

Public policy requires solving of mere doubts in favor of construction put upon statutes by departments and officers charged with their administration. Moorman v. Terrell, 109 Tex. 173, 202 S. W. 727.

Where construction of a statute is doubtful, construction given by officer of state, expressly charged with enforcement, is entitled to great weight, and should be followed, unless clearly erroneous. Harris County v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 445.

In the construction of 6 Gammel's Laws, 669, approved December 14, 1863, suspending laws authorizing disposition of state land until close of the war, the construction by the land office authorities in opening offices for such business is entitled to great weight. Fielder v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 158.

The contemporaneous and particular construction of a statute by those whose duty it is to carry it into effect, though not absolutely controlling, is entitled to great weight by the court. State v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 820.

Where statute is "ambiguous"—that is, open to construction—construction given it by head of executive department of state government will be followed by courts, and upheld, unless clearly erroneous. Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 880, denying rehearing 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 479.

27½. Legislative construction of constitutional provision.—Due consideration and weight, though not necessarily conclusive force, should be given a construction placed by Legislature on state Constitution. Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 880, denying rehearing 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 479.

28. Presumptions to aid construction.—It is presumed Legislature charged all language used by it with a meaning and purpose, especially when language is an adopted phrase or bears evidence of having been chosen with care or is a phrase of long and frequent usage in the same connection or others involving a similar principle of construction. Alexander v. State, 84 Cr. R. 75, 204 S. W. 644.

The language of the Constitution may be presumed to have been chosen with more care than that of any other legislation. Id.

While Legislature had power to overturn the steady unbroken policy of the laws of the state to protect the property of the wife from the debts of her husband, it is to be assumed that, in the execution of such a purpose, proposed law would use language so plain and certain that it would need no construction. Red River Nat. Bank v. Ferguson, 109 Tex. 287, 206 S. W. 923.

Courts must assume that, in enacting statute, Legislature was familiar with previous decisions of Supreme Court affecting subject-matter. Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 880, denying rehearing 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 479.

The court, in construing a statute, will not presume that the Legislature intended to provide for an absurdity. Hunter v. Whiteaker & Washington (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1096.

29. Statutes relating to same subject.—In the absence of any direct judicial interpretation of the language under construction, its use in substantially the same connection, where its meaning is undisputed, would afford the best guide to the legislative intent. Alexander v. State, 84 Cr. R. 75, 204 S. W. 644.

The Mining Act of 1883 (9th Gammel's Laws, p. 406), relating to reservation of minerals in school and asylum lands, being a contemporaneous act with that of April 12, 1883 (Acts 18th Leg. c. 83), relating to school lands, each should be construed in the light of the other. Greene v. Robison, 109 Tex. 367, 210 S. W. 498.

Knowledge of an existing law relating to the same subject is attributed to the Legislature in the enactment of a subsequent statute. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Marcofich (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 582, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 51.

Statutes are construed with reference to the general law in existence at time of enactment and in connection with other similar statutes relating to same subject-matter. Millhollon v. Stanton Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1109.

In construing statute, it must be read in the light of other statutes on the same subject. Hunter v. Whiteaker & Washington (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1096.

30. Statutes adopted at same session.—See Ex parte Fulton, 86 Cr. R. 149, 215 S. W. 331; Eastern Texas Electric Co. v. Woods (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 498.

Acts of same Legislature are to be construed together. Claunch v. State, 82 Cr. R. 355, 199 S. W. 483.

31. General and special statutes.—See Ex parte Bennett, 85 Cr. R. 315, 211 S. W. 934.

The fact that a special enactment conflicts with general laws already existing when it was enacted does not affect its validity, as the repugnant portions of the general laws give way to those of the special law, and its provisions will be given the same scope and effect as they would have without the existence of a general law having contrary application. Garrett v. Commissioners' Court of Limestone County (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1010.

32. Re-enactment of or reference to former statute and adoption of provisions previously construed.—Where a judicial construction has been placed on a statute and the laws have been subsequently revised and the construed provision re-enacted without material change, it will be conclusively inferred that the lawmaking body intended that the same construction should be placed on the language of the statute in the future. Cobb & Gregory v. Dies (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 438; Lotto v. State (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 563; Vaughn v. State, 86 Cr. R. 255, 219 S. W. 206.

Presumption is that Legislature by amendment intended to change the law, and phraseology of the amended act materially different from that of original act raises a presumption of an intent to change the meaning. McLaren v. State. 82 Cr. R. 449, 199 S. W. 811.

Art. 2021, authorizing impeachment of verdict on motion for new trial, by testimony of jurors as to their misconduct, will be held to have been adopted with the construction, previously placed by the Court of Criminal Appeals on a similar statute for criminal cases, that the issue was not one in the main case tried before the jury, and therefore that the evidence thereon must be preserved by bill of exceptions or statement of facts filed in term time. Smith v. Texas Power & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 119.

Where the language of a statute relating to a female juvenile under the age of 18 years is the same as that relating to male juveniles under 17 years of age which had been previously construed, it must be presumed that the construction of such former statute indicates the legislative intent in the latter. Slade v. State, 85 Cr. R. 358, 212 S. W. 661.

Judicial expressions interpreting a statute before it is amended are presumed to have been sanctioned and adopted by the Legislature in making the amendment. Williams v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 177.

33. — Constitutional provisions.—Where the language of Const. art. 8, § 2, authorizing the exemption from taxation of buildings used exclusively, and owned, by institutions of purely public charity, as construed by the Supreme Court, was carried without change into the subsequent amendment of the section, the presumption is conclusive that the people readopted the provision with knowledge of its declared intent. City of Houston v. Scottish Rite Benev. Ass'n (Sup.) 230 S. W. 978.

34. Laws of other states.—The decision of the highest courts of the state construing its statutes is binding on courts of other jurisdictions. Criteser v. Gaffey (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 193, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Gaffey v. Criteser, 195 S. W. 1166.

35. Statutes adopted from another state or country.—Where Legislature enacts a law similar in all material respects to a federal law, it will be presumed that the construction given the federal statute by the federal courts was adopted by the Legislature. Fennell v. Trinity Portland Cement Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 796.

Since the Workmen's Compensation Act (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 5246h-5246zzzz) is largely copied from the Massachusetts Act, it should receive the same construction as that given the latter act by the courts of that state. Home Life & Accident Co. v. Corsey (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 464.

When the Legislature brings over from a sister state and adopts in identical or similar terms a statute which has been construed in such state, courts of Texas customarily apply same construction to it. Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 880, denying rehearing 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 479.

In determining the validity of statutes adopted from other states, the presumption is indulged that the Legislature was aware of the fixed judicial interpretation of such statutes in the states from which they were copied, and their validity is to be determined in the light of such construction. Board of Water Engineers v. McKnight (Sup.) 229 S. W. 301.

35½. — Constitutional provisions.—When suffrage clause is imported literally or substantially into a state Constitution from Constitutions of other states, though prior to construction thereof by courts of such other states, subsequent constructions by such courts are strongly persuasive of sense in which clause was incorporated into organic law of adopting state. Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 880, denying rehearing 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 479.

Where one state adopts a constitutional provision of another, after such provision has received judicial construction, it will be construed likewise in the adopting state. Id.

It is to be presumed that provisions of existing Constitutions of other states, extending meaning of "elections" to make suffrage clause or provision expressly include elections then or thereafter authorized by law, whether strictly governmental elections or not, were known to framers of Constitution of Texas in adopting a suffrage clause, but without the extension of meaning. Id.

36. Mandatory or directory.—The word "shall" is not always given a mandatory effect in construing a statute, and, notwithstanding its use, statute is sometimes held directory, but when word is used, the presumption is that it is in imperative, and not in directory, sense. McLaren v. State, 32 Cr. R. 449, 199 S. W. 811.

Words "may" and "shall" are to be given that meaning which will best express legislative intent. Hess & Skinner Engineering Co. v. Turney, 109 Tex. 208, 203 S. W. 593.

37. Provisos, exceptions and saving clauses.—Statutes which constitute exceptions to general statutes are to be strictly construed. Moss v. Bross (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 343.

Exceptions will not be ingrafted on statutes by implication, or merely because good reasons exist for adding them. Spears v. City of San Antonio, 110 Atl. 618, 223 S. W. 166, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) City of San Antonio v. Spears, 206 S. W. 703.

39. Remedial statutes.—Remedial statutes will be liberally construed to accomplish legislative purpose, especially as Final Title, § 3, expressly so provides. Taylor v. Iowa Park Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 853.

42. Penal statutes.—Penal statutes must be strictly construed. Schaff v. Bearden (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 503.

43. Revenue laws.—In the construction of provisions of tax laws which point out the subjects to be taxed, and indicate the time, circumstances, and manner of assessment, there is no reason for peculiar and rigid rules. Millers' Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 825.

44. Time of taking effect.—See Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Harral (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 659.

Statute speaks as of time at which it takes effect. Moorman v. Terrell, 109 Tex. 173, 202 S. W. 727.

47. Construction in favor of constitutionality.—The construction of a statute which would bring it in conflict with the Constitution is to be avoided, if possible, because it is presumed the Legislature did not intend to violate the Constitution. City of Waco v. Higginson (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1084; Maud v. Terrell, 109 Tex. 97, 200 S. W. 375; White v. Fahring (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 193; Lawson v. Baker (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 260.

Statutes should not be annulled by the courts merely because doubts may be suggested as to their constitutionality. Kling v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 42; Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 479; Lawson v. Baker (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 260.

If an act is susceptible of two constructions, one which makes it valid and the other invalid, that construction should be adopted which will sustain validity. White v. Fahring (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 193; Houston v. Gonzales Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 963.

An act of the Legislature should not be held void by the courts unless it clearly violates some express or necessarily implied provision of the Constitution. Bonham v. Fuchs (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1112; Atkins v. State Highway Department (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 226.

The courts indulge a presumption in favor of the validity of legislative acts, but the presumption is not conclusive. Ex parte Meyer, 84 Cr. R. 288, 207 S. W. 100.

Every doubt is resolved in favor of the constitutionality of a statute. Simmons v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 338.

An act of the Legislature will not be held to be unconstitutional unless its invalidity is apparent beyond a reasonable doubt. Hamilton v. Davis (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 431.

Court should uphold a statute as valid, unless clearly unconstitutional; every intentment and presumption being in favor of constitutionality. Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 830, denying rehearing 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 479.

Courts ought not to interpret laws so as to nullify or impair them, when their language reasonably admits of a different meaning. Spears v. City of San Antonio, 110 Tex. 618, 223 S. W. 166, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) City of San Antonio v. Spears, 206 S. W. 703.

The Legislature in enacting laws is presumed to regard the limitations imposed by the Constitution as assiduously as courts regard them in construing and applying laws, and it is properly the function of courts to seek out how by reasonable construction to uphold and enforce the legislative will as being consistent with the Constitution rather than to review and nullify it. Garrett v. Commissioners' Court of Limestone County (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1010.

Art. 5503. [3269] Grammatical errors, etc., shall not vitiate.

See Fromme v. State, 85 Cr. R. 366, 212 S. W. 501.
Cited, Halbert v. Alford (Sup.) 16 S. W. 814.

Art. 5504. [3270] Meaning of certain words.

See Moffett v. Moffett, 67 Tex. 642, 4 S. W. 70; Ritz v. City of Austin, 1 Civ. App. 455, 20 S. W. 1029.

Operation and effect.—Corporations may make affidavits through their officers and agents when such affidavits are required. Simmons v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 338.

Words judicially defined.—Term "day," as used in enactments or contracts, means 24 hours from midnight to midnight, except where restricted. Dallas County v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 702.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Enactment in general.—It appearing that the members of the Thirty-Sixth Legislature thought that Senate Bill No. 32 relating to salaries of judges, was not in substance the same as House Bill No. 21, relating to salaries of judges, which was defeated, the courts ought not to interfere and hold that the former was in substance the same as the latter and that the Legislature did not have power to pass it under Const. art. 3, § 34, the question being one upon which the minds of reasonable men might differ. King v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 42.

Where an act appears to be duly authenticated according to required standards, the power to ascertain and test whether the constitutional demands have been complied with should be vested in the Legislature itself, and when it appears that the authentication and promulgation of the legislative department has been in conformity to the Constitution, the courts will not permit any further inquiry into the matter, and will not permit legislative journals to be invoked to overturn the authenticated statute. Id.

The clerical correction of changing "or" to "and" in a legislative bill may be made by concurrent resolution, at least previous to the signature of the bill. Davis v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 532.

Subjects and titles of acts.—See Wilkinson v. Lyon (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 638.

Const. art. 3, § 35, restricting legislative acts to a single subject, will be liberally construed, and where the provisions are germane in any degree the law will be upheld. Davis v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 532; Ex parte Wilson, 85 Cr. R. 554, 213 S. W. 984; McPherson v. Camden Fire Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 211, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1055.

If a law has but one general object or subject fairly indicated by its title, deals only with matters related directly or indirectly to the main subject, which have a mutual connection, and are necessary to the accomplishment of the act, it does not deal with two subjects. Ex parte White, 82 Cr. R. 85, 198 S. W. 583; Dodge v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 116.

Acts 33d Leg. c. 72, amending Stock Law (art. 7235) in so far as it attempts to exclude Matagorda county from operation of article, held violative of constitutional provision as to title of statutes. Ward Cattle & Pasture Co. v. Carpenter, 109 Tex. 103, 200 S. W. 521.

Title of Acts 35th Leg. c. 190 (arts. 7012½, 7012½g), declaring that fees and charges should constitute part of fund for support of state highway commission, held sufficient under Const. art. 3, § 35, to support appropriation of license fees for use of highway department. Atkins v. State Highway Department (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 226.

Act May 16, 1907 (Acts 30th Leg. [1st Called Sess.] c. 21), (post, art. 7487 et seq.), entitled "An act to tax property passing by will or by descent or by grant or gift; taking effect on the death of the grantor or donor," does not unconstitutionally extend beyond title's scope because providing for appointment of administrator to collect inheritance taxes. Dodge v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 116.

The caption of the amendment approved March 16, 1918, which reduced the number of signers required to secure organization of Bailey county, held to disclose the purpose of the act. Earnest v. Woodlee (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 963.

Acts 35th Leg. 4th Called Sess. c. 16 (Pen. Code, arts. 173½g-173½o), entitled an act to prohibit soliciting soldiers and sailors to have intercourse with any "immoral woman," but prohibiting such solicitation for intercourse with "any woman," does not violate Const. art. 3, § 35, requiring a statute's subject to be expressed in its title. Ex parte Wilson, 85 Cr. R. 554, 213 S. W. 984.

In ascertaining whether a statute is violative of Const. art. 3, § 35, providing that no bill shall contain more than one subject, which shall be expressed in its title, it is incumbent on the court to ascertain the intention of the Legislature, and, if possible by fair construction, to uphold it, and the title of a statute will be viewed as a part of the law, and the body of the act will be referred to in construing the title. McPherson v. Camden Fire Ins. Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 211, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 1055.

Under the express provision of Const. art. 3, § 35, an act containing matters not included within the caption is void only as to the extraneous provisions provided they are separable from the others. Davis v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 532.

A statute is violative of Const. art. 3, § 35, requiring the subject of the act to be stated in the title, if the title is misleading and imports a subject different from that to which the law relates. De Silvia v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 542.

Acts 33d Leg. (1913) c. 143, amending art. 4694, is invalid in so far as it undertakes to make a natural person liable in damages for a wrongful death caused by his agent or servant; the change not being within the scope of the caption of the amending act. Anderson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 142.

Amendment of constitution.—If there is an inconsistency between a provision of the Constitution as amended and the Constitution as originally adopted, so that one or the other must yield, the subsequent provision, being the last expression of the sovereign will of the people, will prevail as an implied modification pro tanto. State v. Vincent (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 402.

Amendment of acts.—Where statutory article consists of several subdivisions dealing with same matter, one or more of such subdivisions may be amended without interfering with other parts of article. City of Laredo v. Frishmuth (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 190.

Const. art. 3, § 36, prohibiting amendment or revival of statutes by reference to title, held inapplicable to municipal ordinances. Ex parte Parr, 82 Cr. R. 525, 200 S. W. 404.

Acts 34th Leg. c. 105, amending Pen. Code, art. 1259a, so as to omit words "shall steal or" with reference to taking of motor vehicles and which was republished with said words omitted, held valid under Const. art. 3, § 36. Ex parte Jackson, 83 Cr. R. 55, 200 S. W. 1092.

Acts 35th Leg. 4th Called Sess. c. 16 (Pen. Code, art. 173½n), creating an offense and providing that it shall not be subject to existing suspended sentence law (Vernon's Ann. Code Cr. Proc. 1916, art. 865b), does not violate Const. art. 3, § 36, prohibiting amendment of a statute by reference to its title, and requiring re-enactment at length. Ex parte Wilson, 85 Cr. R. 554, 213 S. W. 984.

Acts 35th Leg. (1917) c. 60, (post, art. 7314) which supplemented the act of creating a Live Stock Sanitary Commission for the state of Texas found in Acts 1893, c. 56, which was modified by Acts 33d Leg. (1913) c. 169, is not invalid under Const. art. 3, § 36, declaring that no law shall be revived or amended by reference to its title because it did not set out the earlier legislation; the latter act being complete and entire in itself. Page v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 584.

Express repeal.—Where an act is repealed without a saving clause, it is considered, except as to transactions passed and closed, as though it had never existed. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 998.

Implied repeal in general.—Repeals by implication are not favored. Clay v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1072; Westbrook v. Missouri-Texas Land & Irrigation Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1154; Ayo v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 979; St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Marcovich (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 582, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 51.

An implied repeal does not result, unless the antagonism between the two statutes is so pronounced that both cannot stand, and if it is possible to fairly reconcile them, and so construe the later statute as to allow effect to the older law and still leave an ample field for its own operation, an implied repeal does not result. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Marcovich (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 582, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 51; Eastern Texas Electric Co. v. Woods (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 498.

A void act of the Legislature cannot repeal existing valid statutes. Venn v. State. 85 Cr. R. 151, 210 S. W. 534.

A law, general in its application and character, is not repealed or superseded by or necessarily repugnant to other laws general in character forbidding the same acts, but which have special application. Ex parte Roya, 85 Cr. R. 626, 215 S. W. 322.

Antagonism between two statutes must be absolute, and so pronounced that both cannot stand, before a court is warranted in holding as a mere matter of construction an earlier law, or a power conferred by such a law, repealed by implication. Lasater v. Lopez, 110 Tex. 179, 217 S. W. 373.

Repugnancy in principle between two acts forms no reason why both may not stand, and one statute is not repealed by the repugnant spirit of another. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Marcovich (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 582, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 51.

— By act relating to same subject matter.—When the law prescribes one penalty for its violation, and thereafter the Legislature prescribes another, proper construction requires holding that latter penalty supersedes and repeals former. Sugg v. Smith (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 363.

While a statute contrary to a former one and expressed in negative words operates to repeal the former, the rule is applicable only when the purpose of the statutes is the same. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Marcovich (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 582, affirming judgment (Com. App.) 185 S. W. 51.

— Of special by general act.—A general law will not be construed to repeal a special law on the same subject. Westbrook v. Missouri-Texas Land & Irrigation Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1154.

Suspension of act.—Acts 35th Leg. c. 96, § 19 (art. 30) providing that if court in Twentieth and Eighty-Fifth judicial districts is in session by virtue of existing laws at time act becomes effective, the act will not be operative until after term shall have expired or be terminated by order of judge, is not unconstitutional as delegating to judge power to suspend laws contrary to Const. art. 1, § 28. Hughes v. State, 83 Cr. R. 550, 204 S. W. 640.

Constitution as limitation of power.—Where a statute is not prohibited expressly nor impliedly by the Constitution, it must be sustained. Simmons v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 338.

The general power of the Legislature of Texas is restricted only by the Constitutions of the United States and of the state. Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 880, denying rehearing 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 479.

The power of the Legislature to make a given act penal is not limited to the permission of the Constitution, but exists where not specifically forbidden; and transporting, receiving, and possessing of intoxicating liquor may be made an offense although not named and forbidden by Const. art. 16, § 20. Reeves v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 668.

The Legislature is omnipotent in all instances except where a limitation set upon its powers appears embedded in the Constitution, either from express inhibitions written there or from clear and conclusive implication. Rumbo v. Winterrowd (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 258.

Laws violating state or federal Constitution.—When the Constitution provides and commands that a thing shall be done, the matter must be done as directed, and neither the Legislature, executive, nor the courts have authority to set aside the mandates. Alvarado v. State, 83 Cr. R. 181, 202 S. W. 322.

The "police power" of the state is the power to enact laws for the promotion of the public health, safety, morals, peace, order, and welfare and is nothing more nor less than the power of government inherent in every sovereignty. If a legislative enactment is reasonably adapted to the attainment of promoting public health, safety, morals, peace, or welfare, it is within the legitimate scope of the police power and does not infringe any provision of the Constitution of the United States. Ex parte White, 82 Cr. R. 85, 198 S. W. 583.

There is nothing in the Constitution inhibiting the Legislature from conferring on the county court the power to render a judgment as a juvenile court by Code Cr. Proc. art. 1198, especially in view of Const. art. 5, § 1, empowering the Legislature to establish such other courts as it may deem necessary and prescribe the jurisdiction thereof. Ex parte Davis, 85 Cr. R. 218, 211 S. W. 456.

Acts 36th Leg. (1920) c. 38, § 15 (Pen. Code, art. 1284h), authorizing the Live Stock Sanitary Commission to require the dipping of cattle exposed to fever-carrying tick within nine months prior to the passage of the act, and making violation of such direction a misdemeanor, is not an ex post facto law. Walker v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 513.

It is competent for the Legislature to give retrospectively the capacity it might have given in advance, and to dispense retrospectively with any formality it might have dispensed with in advance. Ogburn v. Barstow, Ward County, Tex., Drainage Dist. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1036.

— Police power.—Police regulations affecting the conduct of legitimate occupations are often upheld, but there is no legislative authority to prohibit a useful and harmless avocation. Ex parte Adlof, 86 Cr. R. 13, 215 S. W. 222.

While the courts do not undertake to catalogue the subjects on which police power may operate, such power, which is not arbitrary, is commensurate with the duty to provide for the people in their health, safety, comfort, and convenience, as consistently as may be with private property rights. Juhan v. State, 83 Cr. R. 63, 216 S. W. 873.

The state under its police power has the right to regulate the conduct of business to protect the public health, morals, and welfare, observing constitutional limitations, reasonable classification, and terms of control. Id.

The exercise of the police power is inherent in every sovereign state and cannot be surrendered. Hanzal v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 237.

The police power, like every other power of the government, is subordinate to the Constitution. Stockwell v. State, 110 Tex. 550, 221 S. W. 932, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 109.

Police power is that authority which resides in every sovereignty to pass all laws for the internal regulation and government of the state necessary for the public welfare. Rumbo v. Winterrowd (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 258.

Conflict with federal statutes.—Where Congress has legislated, under U. S. Const. art. 1, § 8, providing for monopolies in the matter of patent rights, trade-marks, and copyright, no state can nullify its acts. Coca-Cola Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 791.

Effect of partial invalidity.—Act May 12, 1899, imposing certain restrictions on and granting certain privileges to fraternal benefit orders generally, from which, by section 16, designated orders are excluded, must be regarded as an entirety, and section 16 cannot be expunged, but all must fall as repugnant to U. S. Const. Amend. 14, and Const. Tex. art. 1, § 3, guarantying equal protection of the laws. Supreme Lodge United Benev. Ass'n v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 661.

When part of an act has been held unconstitutional, the remainder will not be sustained unless complete in itself and capable of being executed in accordance with legislative intent. Bexar County v. Linden (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 478.

The presence in Acts 29th Leg. c. 122, of sections 34, 48 (arts. 5107—35, 5107—48), which are inoperative because they do not provide for any hearing for determination of benefits, to property within irrigation districts, does not render the whole act violative of the Constitution, since the main purpose of the act can be given effect without regard to the sections, and must be upheld, the subsequent acts of Legislature (Acts 33d Leg. c. 172, § 95, Acts 35th Leg. c. 87, § 95) having cured the defects. White v. Fahring (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 193.

Though section 20 of Acts 29th Leg. c. 122 (art. 5107—72), violates Const. art. 16, § 30, in that it fixes the term of office of the board of directors of irrigation districts at four years, the other provisions of the act are not so dependent on, or connected with, provision fixing the terms of office as to render them invalid. Id.

If a part only of a statute be void, the remainder will be sustained, if it is separable, so that it may safely be presumed that it would have been passed without the void part. Lawson v. Baker (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 260.

Determination of constitutional questions.—The power to declare a legislative enactment void is one which the judge, conscious of the fallibility of the human judgment, will shrink from exercising in any case where he can conscientiously and with due regard to duty and official oath decline the responsibility. State v. Vincent (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 402.

It being the province of the court to decide only questions affecting substantial rights, it will not, in advance of any applicable conditions, determine whether due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment would be violated by an exercise of the authority given the state treasurer, by art. 2426, as amended by State Depository Law of 1919, on failure of a depository to pay over state funds on his check, to forthwith convert the securities deposited by such depository and disburse the money for account of the state funds. Lawson v. Baker (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 260.

The question of the constitutionality of a statute will not be passed upon if the rights of the litigants can otherwise properly be adjudicated. Rumbo v. Winterrowd (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 258.

Persons entitled to raise constitutional questions.—No one may invoke protective constitutional restrictions who has not sustained some practical injury resulting from the infraction of his legal rights. Hoard v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 687; Atkins v. State Highway Department (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 226.

In an action on an assessment levied by special school district created by special act, taxpayer may plead unconstitutionality of act. Eagle Lake Independent School Dist. v. Hoyo (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 352.

Delegation of legislative or judicial powers.—Arts. 1006–1017, relating to street improvements, is not unconstitutional in that article 1016 provides for a delegation of legislative power to the people of the various cities of the state; the act being an amendment of existing charters which the inhabitants may accept or reject. Keller v. Western Paving Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1077; Frankenstein v. Rushmore & Gowdy (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 189.

Acts 1909 (2d Called Sess.) c. 14, one section of which (art. 1016, ante), provides for its acceptance by a city before it becomes effective therein, does not violate Const. art. 3, § 1, vesting the legislative power in the Legislature and article 1, § 28. Sullivan v. Roach-Manigan Paving Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 444.

Art. 7312 et seq., and Acts 33d Leg. c. 169, § 3 (art. 7314b), giving the live stock sanitary commission authority to promulgate rules for quarantine areas, etc., are not invalid as delegation of legislative authority to administrative body. Mulkey v. State, 83 Cr. R. 1, 201 S. W. 991.

Declaring result of local option election and issuance of order prohibiting the sale of intoxicants by the commissioners' court, under art. 5721, are merely ministerial, and not judicial or legislative acts. Hines v. State, 83 Cr. R. 195, 202 S. W. 91.

Under inheritance tax law of May 16, 1907 (Acts 30th Leg. [1st Called Sess.] c. 21), (post, art. 7494), providing that property cannot be sold for taxes until notice is given, sufficiency of notice is judicial question. Dodge v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 116.

Legislature may confer upon municipal corporations, by special charter, police powers necessary for protection of public health, safety, and morals. Crossman v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 128.

Art. 7107, authorizing sheriff to judge of reasonable amount of damage to property if damaged while in possession under replevin bond is void as undertaking to invest the sheriff with judicial power. Morgan v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 670.

Power to extend city limits, previously vested in the Legislature, could, by amendment of the Constitution, be vested in the voters of the city. Cohen v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 757.

Acts 35th Leg. c. 88, §§ 105 and 118 (arts. 5011½f, 5011½u), in so far as they attempt to confer upon the board of water engineers the power to determine and establish the relative rights of claimants to water, violate Const. art. 2, dividing the powers of government, and art. 5, § 1, vesting judicial power exclusively in the courts. McKnight v. Pecos & Toyah Lake Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 599.

An ordinance regulating use of streets by jitneys, passed in the exercise of delegated power, is not void as exercise of legislative power reserved by Const. art. 3, § 1, to the state. Gill v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 209.

Acts 31st Leg. (2d Ex. Sess.) c. 14, including arts. 1006–1017, relating to street improvements, is not invalid because an attempt by the Legislature to delegate its power to make laws to the voters of cities and towns by permitting them to adopt statutory provisions relative to street improvements. Carwile v. Childress (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 308.

Acts 35th Leg. c. 60, § 19 (art. 7314n), as to dipping of cattle to eradicate fever ticks, is not subject to the objection that it attempts to delegate and confer upon the live stock sanitary commission legislative authority and discretion. Serres v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 596.

Power granted to municipalities and other agents of government to prescribe rules for prevention of diseases and the preservation of health is not a delegation of authority which is prohibited by the Constitution. Hanzal v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 237.

Art. 4459, authorizing commissioner of agriculture to declare any trees infested with injurious insect pests or contagious diseases of citrus fruits a public nuisance, with absolute power to summarily destroy them, and making the commissioner's finding as to the existence of such pests or contagious diseases final, held invalid in so far as it makes his decision final, since Legislature was not authorized to invest the commissioner with such arbitrary power. Stockwell v. State, 110 Tex. 550, 221 S. W. 932, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 109.

The state, having expressly declared certain things to be public nuisances, may also remit to such agencies as health boards or other proper administrative officers the authority of determining whether other things constitute public nuisance, with the power to abate them; but the determination of such boards or officers is not conclusive, and cannot be made so, unless it be with respect to something having the nature of public emergencies, threatening public calamity, and presenting an imminent and controlling exigency, before which, of necessity, all private rights must immediately give way. Id.

A statute which is to become effective as a law only after an affirmative vote by the people is unconstitutional, as a delegation of legislative power to the electors.

Spears v. City of San Antonio, 110 Tex. 618, 223 S. W. 166, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) City of San Antonio v. Spears, 206 S. W. 703.

A statute authorizing the performance of certain acts by city is valid, even though the decision of the city to exercise the power conferred is dependent on a vote of the electors. Id.

The Legislature cannot confer on the live stock commission power to create a penal offense in failing to dip cattle for fever ticks. Ex parte Leslie, 87 Cr. R. 476, 223 S. W. 227.

Power to pass ordinances concerning vaccination to prevent disease may be delegated to a municipal corporation. Zucht v. King (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 267.

The Legislature has no right to delegate to a municipal corporation authority to control the organization of courts specially committed to the Legislature, notwithstanding the rule that legislative powers relating to matters of purely local concern may be delegated to the city. De Silvia v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 542.

It was not reversible error for the judge, in open court and over defendant's objection, to request counsel for plaintiff to prepare the findings and conclusions of the trial court, where the judge replied to the objection that he would not sign and approve them unless found to be correct, and they were subsequently submitted to him and signed and approved; there being no real delegation of judicial function. Berkman v. D. M. Oberman Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 338.

Distribution of governmental powers in general.—In mandamus to compel railroad to furnish express company facilities under arts. 6616, 6617, court was not empowered to determine what constituted a reasonable rate for such facilities; the establishment of rates being a legislative and not a judicial function. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Empire Express Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 590, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 222.

An irrigation company by its contracts with landowners having fixed rates for land, the court, in suit by other owners of like lands to compel the company to furnish water as its predecessor had contracted, could require it to comply with its obligations on the same terms as to rates as the other lands without invading rate-making power of Legislature. Edinburg Irr. Co. v. Paschen (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 329.

Art. 1016, relating to improvements, does not violate Const. art. 3, § 1, which provides that the legislative power of the state shall be vested in a Senate and House of Representatives, because of the fact that it permits the cities to determine whether the provisions of chapter 11 shall be adopted by them. Elmendorf v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 631.

Judicial powers and functions.—Political questions.—Election contest is not matter pertaining to ordinary administration of law in courts, but is a political question, to be regulated by the political authority. Shipman v. Jones (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 329.

Ordering and holding elections and declaring their result is the exercise of political power, with which the courts can interfere only for the protection of the personal and property rights of the citizens. Richardson v. Mayes (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 546.

— Encroachment on Legislature.—The wisdom of statutory enactments is a question solely for the Legislature. Rudasill v. Rudasill (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 843; Vaughan v. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co., 109 Tex. 298, 206 S. W. 920.

The argument that the policy of a law is unsound is not available to control its construction contrary to the expressed legislative intent. McLaren v. State, 82 Cr. R. 449, 199 S. W. 811.

The policy of statutes is no concern of the court so long as they do not violate the Constitution. Ex parte McCloskey, 82 Cr. R. 531, 199 S. W. 1101.

That no reason is apparent why the Legislature should have discriminated between employes of hotels and of restaurants does not authorize a court to construe art. 5644, so as to include both when the ordinary signification of the language excludes the latter. Debenham v. Short (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1147.

It is the court's duty to observe, and not disregard, statutory provisions. Dodd v. State, 83 Cr. R. 160, 201 S. W. 1014.

The courts have no power to legislate. Ex parte Meyer, 84 Cr. R. 288, 207 S. W. 100.

Art. 5229, declares that boys under 17 years of age charged with felonies, who do not claim the privilege of trial as juveniles, may be sent to the penitentiary, where the conviction condemned them for a period greater than 5 years, but if for less penalty the confinement shall be in the juvenile school, but the statutes make no such exemption for girls and the discrimination between the two classes, boys and girls, if wrong, is for the Legislature, and not for the courts, to remedy. Slade v. State, 85 Cr. R. 358, 212 S. W. 661.

Where the language of a statute is plain, the courts are not authorized to place on it a forced construction to mitigate a seeming hardship or to supply an apparent omission, thus assuming a legislative function. Rowe v. Dyess (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 232.

Courts have nothing to do with the making or repealing of statutes, and violate their true powers and endanger their own authority when they undertake the legislative role by construing an act to abrogate an important public power of long existence and continued legislative sanction, whose lawful exercise will afford a public benefit. Lasater v. Lopez, 110 Tex. 179, 217 S. W. 373.

Whether or not a statute is a proper one and should be changed is a legislative, and not a judicial, question, and, while a statute stands unchanged, the court must enforce it as it finds it. Tippins v. State, 86 Cr. R. 205, 217 S. W. 380.

The legislative and judicial are co-ordinate departments of government of equal dignity, and each is alike in the exercise of its proper functions and cannot directly or indirectly, within the limits of its authority, be subject to the control or supervision of the other, without unwarrantable assumption by that other of power which by the Constitution is not conferred upon it. State v. Vincent (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 402.

The province of the courts is simply to declare the written law as found, and they should not by construction, when its language is plain and unmistakable, add to or take from statutory enactments. Rudasill v. Rudasill (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 843.

To enforce a rate claimed to be established by a contract between express company and railroad company, the decree must follow the contract in its entirety, and any substantial variation therefrom, and substitution therefor, of the court's judgment, would be the fixing of the rate by the court in usurpation of a legislative function. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Empire Express Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 590, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 222.

Whether purely party affairs, such as primary elections and conventions, should be regulated, and extent of any regulation, so long as reasonable, are peculiarly legislative matters, involving issues of public policy beyond concern of courts. Koy v. Schneider, 110 Tex. 369, 221 S. W. 880, denying rehearing 110 Tex. 369, 218 S. W. 479.

Courts are not concerned with question whether a statute conserves a wise public policy. Id.

Where the Legislature has declared a certain thing to be a public nuisance, the courts are warranted in going behind the findings of a Legislature and determining the contrary only in clear cases; but whether something not defined as a public nuisance by the statute is such under its general terms is a question for the courts. Stockwell v. State, 110 Tex. 550, 221 S. W. 932, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 109.

The Legislature's acts cannot be questioned by courts merely because judges consider them unwise, improvident, oppressive, or otherwise unsound, if a constitutional restriction, which they transcend and override, cannot be definitely indicated. Rumbo v. Winterrowd (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 258.

The courts are not concerned with the wisdom of the plan adopted by the Legislature in apportioning compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act. Texas Employers' Ins. Ass'n v. Boudreaux (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 756.

INVESTIGATING COMMITTEES—PROCEDURE

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Special session—Submission of subjects by Governor.—Governor's proclamation or messages, submitting subject of legislation to special session under Const. art. 3, § 40, need not state the details of the legislation to be considered; such matters being within discretion of Legislature. Ex parte Fulton, 86 Cr. R. 149, 215 S. W. 331.

Acts 35th Leg. 4th Called Sess. 1918, c. 31, amending Allison Shipping Law, so as to make it unlawful to have or keep intoxicants in public place in local option territory or transport liquor therein, held authorized under Const. art. 3, § 40, prohibiting legislation at special session upon subjects other than those designated in the Governor's proclamation or message, by proclamation calling for legislation to restrict liquor traffic and render liquor inaccessible to soldiers. Id.

Special session of the Legislature having been called by the Governor to deal with the subject of intoxicants embraced in his message, the discretion as to means, within the limits of the Constitution, was with the Legislature, and beyond the control of the Governor, save in his exercise of the veto power. Ex parte Davis, 86 Cr. R. 168, 215 S. W. 341.

Acts 35th Leg. 1918, 4th Called Sess. c. 24, § 1, prohibiting the manufacture of intoxicants, held not invalid as having been passed at a special session and not relating to a subject presented by the Governor, as required by Const. art. 3, § 40; he having mentioned the matter of intoxicants in his proclamation, and elaborated his views in a subsequent message. Id.

Article 5584½. District may be created; purposes of.—There may be created within this State conservation and reclamation districts, to be known as Levee Improvement Districts, for the purpose of constructing and maintaining levees and other improvements on, along and contiguous to rivers, creeks and streams, for the purpose of reclaiming lands from overflow from such streams, and for the proper drainage and other improvement of such lands, all as contemplated by Section 59, Article 16, of the Constitution of this State, for the conservation and development of the natural resources of this State, which said districts shall have and may exercise all the rights, powers and privileges given by this Act, and in accordance with its directions, limitations and provisions. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 44, § 1.]

Took effect April 2, 1918.

Repeal.—This act, the Laney Act, creating conservation districts under Const. art. 16, § 59, did not, by implication, repeal the Canales Act, Acts 35th Leg. (4th Called Sess.) c. 25 (art. 5107—267), making Const. art. 16, § 59, effective by providing for creation of conservation districts. Dallas County Levee Dist. No. 2 v. Looney, 109 Tex. 326, 207 S. W. 310.

Art. 5584½a. Petition; for creation of district wholly within one county, contents; for creation of district in two or more counties, contents; hearing on petition; order and notice.—When it is proposed to create a levee improvement district wholly within one county there shall be presented to the commissioners' court of the county in which the lands to be included in such district are located, or to the county judge of the county if the commissioners' court is not in session, a petition signed by the owners of a majority of the acreage of such proposed district, setting forth the proposed boundaries thereof, the general nature of the work proposed to be done, the necessity therefor and the feasibility thereof, and designating a name therefore, which shall include the name of the county in which it is situated, which petition shall be accompanied by a deposit of fifty dollars; and when it is proposed to create such a district to be composed of lands in two or more counties then a petition of the nature above indicated, signed by the owners of a majority of the acreage of such proposed district, shall be presented to the commissioners' court of the county, or, if the court is not in session, to the county judge thereof, in which is located the greater amount of acreage of such proposed district, which shall be the county of jurisdiction in respect to all matters concerning said district, and the name of which county shall be included in the name of such district; and, upon presentation of either such petition, it shall be the duty of the court to which it is presented, or the county judge of such county if the court be not in session, to fix a time and place at which such petition shall be heard before the commissioners' court of the county wherein it is filed, which date shall be not less than fifteen nor more than thirty days from the date of the order, and to order and direct the county clerk of such county, as ex officio clerk of the commissioners' court thereof, to issue a notice of such time and place of hearing, which notice shall inform all persons concerned of the time and place of hearing and of their right to appear at such hearing and contend for or contest the formation of such district, as their interests may dictate, and to deliver notice to any adult person who is willing to execute the same by posting, as hereinbefore directed. The order shall further direct the clerk forthwith to issue a notice of the filing of such petition and of its general purport, stating the time and place of hearing, which shall be mailed forthwith to the State Reclamation Engineer at his office in Austin, Texas. [Id., § 2.]

Notice.—Where sufficient notice of hearing of the commissioners' court of a county at which a levee improvement district was created was given, the district was lawfully created in so far as concerns the power of the commissioners' court to create it. Wilmarth v. Reagan (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 445.

Art. 5584½aa. Same; posting copy.—Upon receipt of the notice above provided for by any adult person willing to receive and execute the same, it shall be the duty of such person, or persons, if more than one shall act, if the district is wholly within a county, to post a copy of such notice at the door of the court house of said county, and copies at four different places within such proposed district; and if the district be composed of more than one county then there shall be posted a copy of such notice at the door of the court house of each county in which any portion of the proposed district is located, and four copies in four different places within the boundaries of the proposed district and within each county in which any portion of the lands to be included in said district is located. Such posting shall be for not less than ten days prior to the date fixed for the hearing, and the person, or persons, so posting shall make affidavit, before some officer authorized by law to administer oaths, of his, or their, action in respect to such posting, and such affidavit when so made shall be conclusive of the facts sworn to. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5584½aaa. Same; deposit accompanying.—A petition for the formation of such a district, if the district is wholly within one county, shall be accompanied by a deposit of fifty dollars, and if the district is proposed to be located in more than one county it shall be accompanied by a deposit of seventy-five dollars, which deposit shall be paid to the clerk of the court of jurisdiction, who shall therefrom, upon vouchers approved by the county judge, pay all expenses incident to the hearing herein provided for, returning any excess to the petitioners or their attorney. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 5584½b. Examination of proposed district by State Reclamation Engineer.—The State Reclamation Engineer, upon receipt of the notice to him herein provided for, shall forthwith, by himself, or deputy, examine said proposed district and do, or cause to be done, such work in respect thereto as may be necessary to enable him to determine the necessity, feasibility and probable costs of reclaiming the lands of such districts from overflows, and the proper drainage thereof, together with the costs of organizing such district and the maintenance thereof for a period of two years, and he shall, by himself or deputy, attend the hearing and file his written report in respect to the matters concerning which he has investigated, and give to the court such further additional information as may then be required. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 5584½bb. Hearing on petition; contests; jurisdiction of commissioners' court.—At the time and place set for the hearing of the petition, or such subsequent date as may then be fixed, the court shall proceed to hear such petition and all issues in respect to the creation of such proposed district, and any person interested may appear before the court in person or by attorney and contend for or contest the creation of such district, and offer testimony pertinent to any issue presented. Such court shall have exclusive jurisdiction to determine all issues in respect to the creation, or not, of such district, and of all subsequent proceedings in respect to said district if the same should be created. Such hearing may be adjourned from day to day and from time to time, as the facts may require. The court shall have power to make all incidental orders deemed proper in respect to the matters before it. [Id., § 6.]

Review.—The Court of Civil Appeals must treat as concluded by order of the commissioners' court of a county creating and organizing a levee improvement district questions of the correctness of the description of the boundaries of the district, and of the inclusion of land which should not have been included. Wilmarth v. Reagan (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 445.

Art. 5584½bbb. Judgment and order creating district; district to be governmental agency and body corporate; general powers.—If, upon the hearing of such petition, it be found that the same is signed by the owners of a majority of the acreage of the proposed district, and that due notice has been given, and that the proposed improvements are desirable, feasible, and practicable, and would be a public utility and a public benefit, and would be conducive to public health, then such court shall so find and render judgment reciting such findings and creating and establishing such district, which judgment and findings shall be embodied in an order which shall be entered of record in the minutes of said court, which order shall define the boundaries of such district, which need not include all of the lands described in the petition, if, upon the hearing, a modification or change is found necessary or desirable. A levee improvement district created as herein specified shall be a governmental agency and a body politic and corporate, with such powers of government and with the authority to exercise such rights, privileges and functions concerning the purposes for which it is created as may be conferred by this Act, or any other law of this State to the benefits of which it may become entitled. [Id., § 7.]

Nature of district.—A levee improvement district was a governmental agency, and a body politic and corporate, and its existence and right to act as such could be questioned only in quo warranto proceedings prosecuted by or on behalf of the state. Wilmarth v. Reagan (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 445.

Art. 5584½c. Works of improvement; powers of district as to; bonds and indebtedness.—Levee improvement districts created under this Act or entitled to the benefits of its provisions, subject to the supervision and direction of the State Reclamation Engineer, or other superior authority created by law, and subject to the limitations in this Act contained, shall have full power and authority to build, construct, complete, carry out, maintain, protect, and, in case of necessity, add to and rebuild, all works and improvements within their district necessary or proper to fully accomplish any plan of reclamation lawfully adopted for or on behalf of such district, and may make all necessary and proper contracts, and employ all persons and means necessary or proper to that end; and in the accomplishment of such purposes they may or may not issue bonds, and may or may not incur indebtedness; provided, that no bonds by or on behalf of such district shall be issued nor shall any indebtedness against the same be incurred unless the proposition to issue such bonds or to incur such indebtedness shall be first submitted to the qualified property tax paying voters of such district, and the proposition adopted by a majority vote of the tax paying voters of the district voting at an election held to determine such question; and no enumeration of specific powers in this Act shall be held to be a limitation upon the general powers hereby conferred except as may be distinctly expressed. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 5584½cc. Power of eminent domain; procedure.—The right of eminent domain is hereby expressly conferred upon all levee improvement districts established under the provisions of this Act, for the purpose of enabling such districts to acquire the fee simple title, easement or right of way to, over and through and any all lands, waters, or lands under waters, private or public (except land and property used for cemetery purposes), within, bordering upon, adjacent or opposite to such districts, necessary for making, constructing and maintaining all levees and other improvements for the improvement of a river or rivers, creek or creeks, or streams, within or bordering upon such districts, to prevent overflows thereof. In the event of the condemnation, or the taking, damaging or destroying of any property for such purposes, the improvement district shall pay to the owner thereof adequate compensation for the property taken, damaged or destroyed. All condemnation proceedings or suits in the exercise of eminent domain under this Act shall be instituted under the direction of the district supervisors, and in the name of the levee improvement district, and all suits or other proceedings for such purposes and for the assessing of damages, and all procedure with reference to condemnation, the assessment of and estimating of damages, payment, appeal, the entering upon the property pending the appeal, etc., shall be in conformity with the statutes of this State for the condemning and acquiring of right of way by railroad companies, and all such compensation and damages adjudicated in such condemnation proceedings, and all damages which may be done to the property of any person or corporation in the construction and maintenance of levees or other improvements under the provisions of this Act shall be paid out of any funds or properties of said levee improvement district, except taxes necessarily applied to the payment of the sinking fund and the interest on the district bonds. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 5584½ccc. Rights of way; power to acquire.—The district supervisors of any district are hereby empowered to acquire the necessary right of way for all levees and other necessary improvements contemplated by this Act, by gift, grant, purchase or condemnation proceedings; and they may by the same methods acquire any levee or other improvements already constructed. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 5584½d. Entry upon lands; power of supervisors, etc.—The supervisors of any district and the engineer and employees thereof are hereby authorized to go upon any lands lying within or adjacent to said district for the purpose of examining same with reference to the location of levees, drainage ditches and all other kinds of improvements to be constructed for or within such district, and for any other lawful purpose connected with their plan of reclamation, whether herein enumerated or not. [Id., § 11.]

Art. 5584½dd. Levees, bridges, etc., across or under railroad tracks, etc., or public or private roads.—The said levee improvement districts are hereby authorized and empowered to make all the necessary levees, bridges and other improvements across or under any railroad embankment, tracks, or rights of way, or public or private roads or the rights of way thereof, or levees or other public improvements of other districts, or other such improvements and the rights of way thereof, or to join such improvements thereto, for the purpose of enabling the said levee improvement districts to construct and maintain any or all of the improvements necessary for the said district; provided, however, that notice shall first be given by said levee improvement district to the proper railroad authorities or other authorities or persons, relative to the additions or changes to result from the improvements contemplated by the said levee improvement district; and the said railroad authorities or other authorities, or persons, shall be given thirty days in which to agree to the said work, or to refuse to agree thereto, or in which they, if they so desire, may at their own expense construct the said improvements in their own manner; provided, such design or manner of construction shall be satisfactory to the said levee improvement district and approved by the State Reclamation Engineer or his deputy. [Id., § 12.]

Art. 5584½ddd. Rights of way across public or county roads.—Levee improvement districts are hereby given the right of way across all public or county roads, but they shall restore such roads where crossed to their previous condition for use, as near as may be. [Id., § 13.]

Art. 5584½e. Joint action with other districts, etc.—Levee improvement districts shall have authority to act jointly with each other, with political subdivisions of the State, with other States, and with the Government of the United States, in the performance of any of the things permitted by this Act; such joint acts to be done upon such terms as may be agreed upon by their supervisors, subject to the approval of the State Reclamation Engineer. [Id., § 14.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ ee. District supervisors; appointment; qualifications; duties; compensation; terms of office; vacancies in office.—When a levee improvement district has been created under this Act the court creating the same shall forthwith appoint by a majority vote three supervisors for such district, who shall be known as “district supervisors,” and who shall be owners of real property within such district, and whose duties shall be as hereinafter provided. Said supervisors shall each receive for his services not more than five dollars per day for the time actually engaged in work for said district and all expenses while so engaged, to be paid upon rendition of sworn accounts, approved by the county judge of the county having jurisdiction; and they shall hold their offices for two years, and until their successors are appointed and qualified, unless sooner removed by a majority vote of the court of jurisdiction; and any vacancy in office shall be filled by a majority vote of the court having jurisdiction, which court shall continue from time to time to appoint supervisors in order that the board may always be full. [Id., § 15.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ eee. Same; oaths and bonds.—Before entering upon their duties the district supervisors shall each take and subscribe before some officer authorized to administer oaths, an oath to faithfully and impartially discharge his duties as supervisor and render true accounts of his services and expenses, and each shall enter into bond with good and sufficient security, payable to the levee improvement district, in the sum of one thousand dollars, unless the court of jurisdiction shall fix a larger amount, which it may do when in its judgment the interests of the district may so require, which bond shall be conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of such supervisor and that he will render true accounts of his services and expenses, which bond shall be approved by the county judge of the county the commissioners’ court of which has jurisdiction, and shall be filed with the clerk of the court having jurisdiction and by him entered of record in his office, and the original bond shall be retained on file. [Id., § 16.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ f. Same; organization; officers; district engineer.—District supervisors, after their qualification, shall organize by electing one of their number chairman and one vice-chairman, and shall elect a secretary, who need not be a member of the board; and an engineer and such other employees or assistants as may from time to time be found necessary to the successful carrying on and completion of the work and business of the district; they shall certify their organization and the name of their engineer, who shall be known as “district engineer,” to the commissioners’ court of the county having jurisdiction. [Id., § 17.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ ff. District engineer; powers and duties; report; plan of reclamation.—The district engineer, subject to the authority of the State Reclamation Engineer, shall have control of the engineering work of the district, and shall, with such assistants as may be necessary in the judgment of the board of supervisors, as soon as practicable after his appointment, make a survey of the lands within the boundaries of the district and of all lands adjacent thereto that will be improved or reclaimed, in whole or in part, by any system of levees and drainage that may be adopted; and shall make report in writing to the board of supervisors of his work in this regard, with maps and profiles of his surveys, which report shall contain a full and complete plan for draining, constructing levees and reclaiming the lands of the district from overflow of or damage by water from the streams in or adjacent to such district, and whose waters may in anywise affect the same, which plan may include, and where necessary shall include, costs of straightening streams from which injury to the lands of said district may result; and shall also in such report indicate the physical characteristics of the lands within the district, the location of any public roads, railroads, or the rights of way or roadways and other property or improvements located on said lands; a duplicate of which report shall be filed with the State Reclamation Engineer, for his approval. Such report before adoption may be modified by the State Reclamation Engineer, or by the board of supervisors, with his approval, and when approved by the State Reclamation Engineer and adopted by the board of supervisors, the same shall be known as and shall be designated as "The plan of reclamation." [Id., § 18.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ fff. Commissioners of appraisement; appointment; qualifications.—As soon after the approval and adoption of the plan of reclamation as practicable, the commissioners court of the county of jurisdiction shall appoint three disinterested commissioners, who shall be known as "commissioners of appraisement," and who shall be freeholders but not owners of land within the district for which they are to act, and neither shall be related within the fourth degree of affinity or consanguinity to either of the district supervisors; and such commissioners of appraisement shall proceed as follows: [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 44, § 19; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 50, § 1 (§ 19).]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ g. Same; notice to of appointment; oaths of office; organization; secretary.—The secretary of the board of supervisors, immediately following the appointment of the commissioners above mentioned shall in writing notify each of his appointment, and in the notice designate a time and place for the first meeting of such commissioners; it shall be the duty of the commissioners to meet at the time and place specified, or as soon thereafter as may be found practicable at some time and place to be agreed upon by them, when they shall each take and subscribe an oath that they will faithfully and impartially discharge their duties as such commissioners, and make true report of the work done by them, and at such meeting the commissioners shall organize by electing one of their number chairman and one vice chairman, and the secretary of the board of supervisors, or, in his absence, such person as the board of supervisors may appoint, shall be secretary of said board of commissioners during their continuance in office, and shall furnish to them such information and such assistance as may be within his power and necessary to the performance of their duties. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 44, § 20.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ gg. Same; view of land; assessment of benefits and damages, report of findings; contents.—Within thirty days after qualifying and organizing, as above directed, the commissioners shall begin their duties, and they may at any time call upon the attorney of the district for legal advice and information relative to such duties, and may, if necessary, require the presence of the district engineer, or one of his assistants, at such times and for so long as may be necessary to the proper performance of their duties. Said commissioners shall proceed to view the lands within such district, or that will be affected by the plan of reclamation for such district, if carried out, and all public roads, railroads, rights of way and other property or improvements located upon such lands, and all such lands without the district as may be acquired under the provision of this Act for any purpose connected with or incident to the fully carrying out of the plan of reclamation; they shall assess the amounts of benefits and all damages, if any, that will accrue to any tract of land within such district, or to any public highway, railroad, and other rights of way, roadways or other property, from carrying out and putting into effect the plan of reclamation for such district. The board shall prepare a report of their findings, which shall show the owner of each piece of property examined, and on or concerning which any assessment is made, together with such description of said property as may identify the same, with the amount of damages and all benefits assessed for and on account of or against the same, as well as the value of all property to be taken or acquired for rights of way or any other purpose connected with the carrying out of the plan of reclamation as finally approved by the State Reclamation Engineer; which report shall be signed by at least a majority of the commissioners and filed with the secretary of the board of supervisors of the district, which report shall also show the number of days each commissioner has been employed and the actual expenses incurred by each during his service as commissioner; and each shall be paid by the district five dollars per day for his services, and all necessary expenses in addition thereto, upon the approval of his accounts for such per diem and expenses by the board of supervisors. Said commissioners shall in their report fix a time and place when and where they will hear objections thereto, and such date shall be not less than twenty days from the filing of such report. [Id., § 21.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ ggg. Hearing on report of commissioners; notice of.— When the report of the commissioners shall have been filed [filed] with the secretary of the board of supervisors he shall forthwith give notice by publication in a newspaper published in each county wherein any portion of the district is located, for at least once a week for two consecutive weeks prior to the date fixed for such hearing, of the time and place of such hearing, and he shall also mail a written notice to each person whose property will be in anywise affected by the carrying out of the plan of reclamation, if his post office is known, stating the time and place of such meeting, which notice shall state in substance that the report of the commissioners to assess benefits and damages accruing to the land and other property by reason of the plan of reclamation for the district in question has been filed in his office, and that all persons interested may examine the same and make objections thereto in whole or in part, and that the commissioners will meet on the day and at the place named for the purpose of hearing and acting on objections to such report; and the secretary upon the day of the hearing shall file in his office the original notice, with his affidavit thereto, showing the manner of publication and the names of all persons to whom notices have been mailed, and that the post offices of those to be affected to whom notices were not mailed were unknown to him and could not be ascertained by reasonable diligence; and copies of such notice and affidavit shall be filed, one with the commissioners of appraisement and one with the clerk of the commissioners court having jurisdiction. [Id., § 22.]

Art. 5584½h. Exceptions to report of commissioners; confirmation of report; findings.—At or before the hearing upon the report of the commissioners of appraisalment any owner of land or other property affected by such report or the plan of reclamation may file exceptions to any or all parts of such report, and said commissioners at the time and place specified in the notice shall proceed to hear and pass upon all such objections, and where such objections are sustained, in whole or in part, may make such changes and modifications from time to time as may be necessary to conform the report to their findings. When the commissioners shall have finally acted they shall make decree confirming such report, in so far as it is confirmed, and approving and confirming the same as modified or changed, in so far as it may be modified or changed. The commissioners shall have power to adjudge and apportion costs incurred upon the hearing in such manner as may be deemed equitable. The findings of the commissioners as to benefits and damages to lands, railroads and other real property within the district shall be final and conclusive. The final decree and judgment of the commissioners shall be entered of record in the minutes of the board of supervisors and certified copies thereof shall be filed with the county clerk of each county in which any portion of the lands within such district are located, as a permanent record of such county; and such filing shall be notice to all persons of the contents and purposes of such decree. [Id., § 23.]

Suit to annul.—Despite Const. art. 5, § 8, plaintiffs, attacking an order of the commissioners' court of a county creating a levee improvement district, held not entitled on the allegations of their petition to maintain their suit, in so far as it was to annul the report of the commissioners of appraisalment assessing damages and benefits. Wilmarth v. Reagan (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 445.

Art. 5584½hh. Final findings, etc., to be basis of tax levy.—After the action of the commissioners of appraisalment, as aforesaid, their final findings, judgment and decree, until lawfully changed or modified, shall form the basis of taxation within and for the levee improvement district for which they shall have acted for all purposes for which taxes may be levied by, for or on behalf of such district, and all taxes shall be apportioned and levied on each tract of land, railroad and other real property in the district in proportion to net benefits to the property named in such final judgment or decree, as shown thereby. In all matters before the commissioners of appraisalment, parties interested may not only appear in person or by attorney, or both in person and by attorney, but they shall be entitled to process for witnesses, to be issued by the chairman of the commissioners of appraisalment on demand, and such commissioners shall have the same power as a court of record to enforce the attendance of witnesses. [Id., § 24.]

Art. 5584½hhh. Funds for improvements; raising by other means than bond issue.—Levee improvement districts created under this Act, desiring to effect and carry out their plans of reclamation without the issuance of bonds, shall, subject to the limitations hereinabove stated, be authorized and empowered, through their boards of supervisors, to make such arrangements by contributions from land owners, or otherwise, as may be necessary to provide the funds requisite to the completion of their improvements; and may, by vote of the resident property taxpayers of such districts, create such indebtedness, to be evidenced otherwise than by bonds, as may be deemed requisite. Provided, such indebtedness shall never exceed the cost of construction of improvements to be made according to the adopted plan of reclamation approved by the State Reclamation Engineer, and the cost of maintenance of such improvements for two years as estimated by him, plus ten per cent additional to meet emergencies, modifications and changes lawfully made. [Id., § 25.]

Art. 5584½i. Bonds, petition for issue; contents.—Where any levee improvement district desires to issue bonds to raise funds for its works of improvement, there shall be presented to the commissioners' court having jurisdiction, or to the judge thereof, in vacation, a petition signed by the owners of a majority of the acreage of lands included within such district, praying for the issuance of bonds to an amount stated, which amount shall not exceed the estimated costs of the improvements to be made, and the maintenance of the works of improvement for two years, as approved by the State Reclamation Engineer, plus ten per cent additional to meet emergencies, modifications and changes lawfully made. The petition shall state the rate of interest to be borne by such bonds, and pray that an election be ordered within and for such district to determine whether or not bonds shall be issued by and on behalf of said district for the purposes above indicated, and to the amount stated, and whether taxes shall be levied within and for said district in payment thereof; provided, that said bonds shall bear a rate of interest not exceeding six per cent per annum. [Id., § 26.]

Art. 5584½ii. Same; order for election; ballots; polling places; election officers.—Upon presentation of such petition such commissioners' court, if in session, or the judge thereof if the court be not in session, shall make and cause to be entered of record upon the minutes of said court an order directing that an election be held within and for such levee improvement district at a date to be fixed in the order, to be not less than fifteen nor more than thirty days after the date of such order, for the purpose of determining the questions mentioned in such petition. At such election those desiring to vote in favor of the issuance of bonds and levy of taxes in payment thereof, shall have written or printed on their ballots: "For the issuance of bonds and levy of taxes in payment thereof"; and those desiring to vote against the proposition submitted shall have printed or written on their ballots: "Against the issuance of bonds and levy of taxes in payment thereof." Each and every levee improvement district is hereby constituted an election precinct for the purpose of the election above specified, and all other elections which may be ordered or held under any provisions of this Act. When elections are ordered the judge or court ordering the same shall fix the polling place or places for the holding of such election, and name a judge and two clerks at each polling place, and more judges or clerks if deemed necessary; and there shall be at least one polling place in each county in which any portion of the district is located. [Id., § 27.]

Art. 5584½iii. Same; deposit accompanying petition.—When a petition for a bond election is presented it shall be accompanied by a deposit of two hundred dollars, from which shall be paid all expenses of such election, and such other expenses as may be properly incurred up to the sale and issuance of bonds, and any excess shall be returned to the petitioners or their attorney; and when bonds are issued the amount of such expense shall be refunded to the petitioners or their attorney from the proceeds of the bonds. [Id., § 28.]

Art. 5584½j. Same; notice of order for election.—When an order for an election has been made, the clerk of the commissioners' court of the county having jurisdiction shall forthwith issue and place in the hands of the sheriff of the county, if the district is wholly within one county, a notice stating in substance the contents of such election order, and the time and place or places of such election, and it shall be the duty of such sheriff, by himself or deputy, forthwith to post a copy of such notice at the door of the court house of his county, and four other copies at four different places within the boundaries of such district, which posting shall be done not less than ten days prior to the date fixed for said election; if such district is located in more counties than one, then such notice may be delivered to any adult person, who shall post copies of the same, one at the door of the court house of each county in which any portion of such district is situated, and four copies at four separate places within the boundaries of those portions of the district situated in each county, which posting shall be for not less than ten days prior to the date of said election; such sheriff or person posting shall make due return to the clerk of the court having jurisdiction of his action in the premises; the return of the individual other than the sheriff to be under oath, before some person authorized by law to administer oaths, and the return of the sheriff and such oath shall be conclusive evidence of the facts stated. [Id., § 29.]

Art. 5584½jj. Same; election; conduct of; voters.—All elections held under any provisions of this Act shall be governed as near as may be by the general election laws of this State, except as modified hereby, and shall be held and conducted by the judges and clerks appointed by the court of jurisdiction, or, in their absence or refusal to act, by others chosen by the voters, and the supervisors of the district shall furnish all necessary ballots and other election supplies requisite to such elections. None but qualified property tax paying voters of such district shall vote at any election to authorize the issuance of bonds by or on behalf of the district or for the creation of any indebtedness against any district. [Id., § 30.]

Art. 5584½jjj. Same; election; returns; canvass; declaration of result.—Immediately after any election under this Act the officers holding the same shall make returns of the result thereof to the commissioners' court having jurisdiction, and return the ballot boxes to the clerk of said court, who shall safely keep the same and deliver them, together with the returns of the election, to the commissioners' court of jurisdiction at its next regular or special session, and said court shall at such session canvass the vote and returns, and if it be found that the proposition submitted has been adopted by a majority of the qualified property tax paying voters of such district voting at said election, then the court shall declare the result, and, if the election be for the issuance of bonds, shall declare that it resulted in favor of the issuance of bonds and the levy of taxes in payment thereof; and, if the result be against the issuance of bonds, then it shall declare that the result was against the issuance of bonds and the levy of taxes in payment thereof; and, if the question be for a maintenance tax, or other tax, then it shall declare the result to be for or against such tax, as the case may be; or, if the question be any other proposition which may be properly submitted at an election, the order shall declare the result to be for or against the proposition submitted, as the case may be, and an order, or orders, declaring such result shall be entered upon the minutes of such court. [Id., § 31.]

Art. 5584½k. Maintenance tax; election to determine.—If, at the time of petition for a bond election, or at any other time, the supervisors of any district created under this Act, or entitled to its benefits, shall desire to be submitted to the voters of the district the question of a maintenance tax, or other proposition proper to be submitted to them, they shall petition the commissioners' court of jurisdiction for an election upon the question so desired to be submitted, and it shall be the duty of the court to order an election, and that notice be given substantially as in case of a bond election, and notice shall be given substantially as in case of such elections, and all other proceedings shall be had in respect to the question so submitted substantially in accordance with the provisions hereof in respect to a bond election. [Id., § 32.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ kk. Bonds; order directing issue; issue; denominations; maturity; interest.—If a bond election in any district created under this Act or entitled to its benefits shall have resulted in favor of the issuance of bonds and levy of taxes in payment thereof, after such result has been duly declared the commissioners' court of jurisdiction shall make an order directing the issuance of bonds of such district, to be known as "Levee Improvement Bonds," to the amount voted, unless a less amount was requested by the district supervisors, which bonds shall state upon their faces the purposes for which they are issued. Said bonds shall be issued in the name of the levee improvement district by and on behalf of which they are voted, shall be signed by the county judge of the county whose commissioners' court has jurisdiction, and shall be attested by the county clerk of said county, and the seal of the commissioners' court of such county shall be affixed to each; they shall be issued in such denominations, and payable at such time or times; not exceeding thirty years from their date, as may be deemed most expedient by the issuing authority, and shall bear interest not to exceed six per cent per annum. [Id., § 33.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ kkk. Same; record of.—When bonds shall have been issued by and on behalf of any levee improvement district the supervisors of such district shall procure and deliver to the treasurer of the county whose commissioners' court has jurisdiction a well bound book in which a record shall be kept of all such bonds, with their number, amount, rate of interest, date of issuance, when due, where payable, amount received for same, and the tax levy to pay interest on and to provide sinking funds for their payment, which book shall at all times be open to the inspection of the parties interested, either as tax payers or bondholders; and upon the payment of any bond an entry thereof shall be made on such book. The county treasurer shall receive for his services in recording all these matters the same fees as may be allowed by law to the county clerk for recording deeds. [Id., § 34.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ l. Same; determination of validity.—Before any bonds issued by or on behalf of any levee improvement district are offered for sale there shall be forwarded to the Attorney-General a certified copy of all proceedings had in the organization of the district and with reference to the issuance of such bonds in connection with the bonds themselves, and such other information with respect thereto as may be required by the Attorney-General shall be furnished; and it shall be the duty of the Attorney-General to carefully examine said bonds, in connection with the record and the Constitution and laws of this State governing the issuance of such bonds, and, if, as a result of his examination, the Attorney-General shall find that such bonds are issued in conformity with the Constitution and laws of this State and that they are valid and binding obligations upon the district by or on behalf of which they are issued, he shall so officially certify, and, until he shall so officially certify, and until registered by the Comptroller, as hereinafter required, said bonds shall be without validity. [Id., § 35.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ ll. Same; registration.—When the bonds of any levee improvement district have been examined and approved by the Attorney-General and his certificate thereto has issued, they shall be registered by the State Comptroller in a book kept for that purpose, and the certificate of the Attorney-General as to the validity of such bonds shall be preserved of record. Such bonds after receiving the certificate of the Attorney-General, and after having been registered in the Comptroller's office, as herein provided, shall be held, in every action, suit or proceeding in which their validity may be brought into question, prima facie valid; and in every action brought to enforce collection of such bonds and interest thereon, the only available defense against the validity of such bonds shall be forgery or fraud. [Id., § 36.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ lll. Same; sale.—When bonds shall have been issued, approved and registered as provided in this Act, the court of jurisdiction may appoint the county judge of the county of jurisdiction, or other suitable person, to sell said bonds on the best terms and for the best price possible and approved by the district supervisors, and no sale shall be complete until approved by such supervisors. The judge or person selling such bonds shall be allowed, as full compensation for all services performed in respect thereto, one-fourth of one per cent of the amount received, and, except such commission, shall promptly pay over to the proper treasurer or depository the proceeds of said bonds, to be placed to the credit of such levee improvement district; but, before proceeding to make any sale, such judge, or any person appointed, shall execute a good and sufficient bond, payable to the levee improvement district, and approved by the commissioners' court having jurisdiction, for an amount not less than the par value of the bonds to be sold, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duty under his appointment. [Id., § 37.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ m. Tax levy to pay bonds; sinking fund.—When bonds shall have been issued by any levee improvement district, the commissioners court of the county, if the district is wholly within one county, or, if the district is located in more than one county, then the commissioners' court of each county in which any portion of such district is located, shall levy and cause to be assessed and collected taxes upon all the real property and railroads within such district, based upon and apportioned, as to each piece of property, to the net benefits which it shall have been found will accrue to such property from the completion of the plan of reclamation or other duly authorized work, which taxes shall be sufficient in amount to pay the interest on such bonds as it shall fall due, and to raise an additional sum which will create a sinking fund sufficient to discharge and redeem such bonds at maturity; and such taxes shall thereafter be levied annually so long as such bonds or any of them are outstanding, sufficient in amount to accomplish the purposes above indicated. Sinking funds shall from time to time be invested in such county, municipal district or other bonds as other sinking funds may by law be invested in, or in the bonds of the series to which such funds apply, if offered for redemption before maturity upon terms deemed advantageous to the district by its supervisors or the court of jurisdiction. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 44, § 38; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 50, § 2 (§ 38).]

Art. 5584½mm. Maintenance tax; levy; amount.—When a maintenance tax shall have been voted in any district entitled to the benefits of this Act, the taxing authorities of such district shall thereafter levy and cause to be assessed and collected taxes upon the real property of such district based upon the net benefits thereto contemplated to be accomplished through the plan of reclamation, to an amount not exceeding the specific sum voted, and the vote in such cases may be for a specific sum, or not to exceed a specific sum. The proceeds of such taxes shall be used for the maintenance, upkeep, repairs and additions to the levees and other improvements in the district, or other lawful expense incurred by and on behalf of such district, and for no other purposes. The right to levy such taxes shall remain in force until abrogated, in whole or in part, by another election; but elections upon the question of the repeal or reduction of maintenance taxes shall not be held oftener than every five years. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 44, § 39.]

Art. 5584½mmm. Tax assessor; tax roll.—The secretary of the board of supervisors of levee improvement districts shall be ex officio tax assessor for such districts, and it shall be his duty when any tax is levied, at the expense of the district, to prepare a tax roll in form substantially as the assessment roll made up by county tax assessors, except that instead of ad valorem valuation it shall state net benefits assessed against property, and he shall compute against each piece of property the amount of taxes assessed against it, and enter on such roll the amount of such taxes. A certified copy of such roll, in so far as it appertains to each county in which any portion of the district is located, shall be filed with the tax collector of such county. [Id., § 40.]

Art. 5584½n. Collection of tax by county tax collectors; special collectors.—The tax collector of the several counties shall be charged with the assessment rolls of levee improvement districts and the amount of taxes herein provided for shall be annually extended upon the tax books of the county, and collected by the collector of the county along with other taxes; and they are required to make collections of all taxes levied and assessed against property within such districts along with all other taxes, and promptly pay over the same to the treasurer of the district; and the bonds of such collectors shall stand as security for the proper performance of their duties as tax collectors of such levee improvement districts, or, if in the judgment of the supervisors of such districts it be necessary, additional bonds, payable to such districts, may be required; and any collector failing to act hereunder in promptly collecting said taxes, or failing to give the additional bond required, shall be deemed guilty of malfeasance in office, and shall be suspended from office by the commissioners court of his county, and may be removed from office in the mode prescribed by law; and in case of suspension the boards of supervisors may appoint special collectors for their respective districts and require such security of them as they deem proper, and the persons so chosen shall have and exercise within and for the district all the rights and powers which tax collectors have or may have by law in their respective counties. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 44, § 41; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 50, § 3 (§ 41).]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ nn. Delinquent taxes; collection; lien of tax; penalty for nonpayment of tax.—Tax collectors of levee improvement districts shall perform all duties and exercise all powers in respect to delinquent taxes due levee improvement districts as may be provided by law for the collection of delinquent taxes, both State and county, and the collection of such delinquent levee improvement taxes and sales of property therefor shall be governed by the laws applying to the collection of delinquent State and county taxes; and to that end levee improvement districts organized and created under this Act, and acting by a majority of their supervisors, are hereby given the power and authority to collect such delinquent taxes, and to institute and prosecute by attorneys employed by them, suits in the name of the district for their collection, paying such attorneys for their services such fees or commissions as to the supervisors may seem proper; and such districts are also authorized to do and perform all other things that may be necessary for the collection of such taxes. Taxes levied under this Act shall be a first and prior lien upon all property against which they are assessed, and shall be payable and shall mature and become delinquent as may be provided by law for State and county taxes, and upon failure to pay such taxes, when due the same penalty shall accrue and be collected as may be provided by law in case of non-payment of State and county taxes. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 44, § 42; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 50, § 4 (§ 42).]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ nnn. Treasurer of district; county treasurer to be; bond; compensation.—The county treasurer of the county, the commissioners' Court of which has jurisdiction, shall be treasurer of all levee improvement districts of which such court has jurisdiction, and as such shall execute a good and sufficient bond, payable to the levee improvement district, in a sum equal to one and one-fourth of the taxes contemplated to be paid over in any one year, or such other or further amount as the board of supervisors of the district may require, which bond shall be conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of the principal as treasurer of the levee improvement district, and shall be approved by the board of supervisors of such district. Such bond may be made by any guaranty or surety company approved by the board of district supervisors, and premiums therefor may be paid out of the maintenance fund of the district. The treasurer, as compensation for his services, shall be allowed not exceeding one-fourth of one per cent upon sums received by him by and on behalf of such levee improvement district. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 44, § 43.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ o. Same; accounts with districts; payments by.—It shall be the duty of the county treasurer whose commissioners' court has jurisdiction, as treasurer of the levee improvement district, to open an account with each such district and to keep an accurate account of all moneys received by him belonging to such district, and all moneys paid out by him. He shall pay out no money except upon a voucher signed by two of the district supervisors and countersigned by the county judge, and he shall carefully preserve all orders for the payment of money; and as often as required by the said district supervisors or the commissioners' court he shall render a correct account to them on all matters pertaining to the financial condition of such district. [Id., § 44.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 50, purports, in its title, to amend section 44 of chapter 44, Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., together with other enumerated sections of the latter act, but in the body of the act section 44 is not mentioned.

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ 00. District depository; selection.—Where the county, whose commissioners' court may have jurisdiction of any levee improvement district, has a depository, such county depository shall be the depository of the funds of the levee improvement district, and where such county has no depository then it shall be the duty of the board of supervisors of the levee improvement district to select a depository as depositories are selected for counties, and the laws applying to county depositories shall apply and govern in such cases. [Id., § 45.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ 000. Compensation for services by officers, etc.—For all services performed by any officer or individual under this Act, the compensation for which is not expressly provided for, such officer or individual shall receive the same compensation as he would for like services if rendered as an officer of a county. Clerks recording orders hereunder shall receive the same compensation as would a county clerk for recording deeds, and persons posting notices hereunder shall receive the same compensation as would a sheriff for posting notices required by law to be posted by him officially. [Id., § 46.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ p. Contracts for improvements; letting; advertisement for bids.—All the improvements contemplated by the plan of reclamation, as approved by the State Reclamation Engineer, shall be constructed; and among the powers that may be exercised by the board of supervisors of any levee improvement district operating under the provisions of this Act the following are hereby enumerated for greater certainty:

(a) To let contracts to build, construct, excavate and complete all or any part of the works and improvements which may be needed to carry out, maintain and protect the plan of reclamation; such contracts to be let by the district supervisors to the lowest or best bidder who is qualified to do the work, after giving notice by advertising the same in one or more newspapers of general circulation in the State of Texas, once a week for two consecutive weeks, which contracts shall be made in writing and signed by the members of such board or a majority thereof, and by the contractor, in duplicate; provided, that such work may be let without advertisement, upon contracts approved jointly by the district supervisors and the county judge of the county of jurisdiction; or

(b) To employ men and teams, and to purchase tools, machinery, rolling stock, and all necessary equipment, and to advance money in payment therefor, in building, constructing, completing and repairing all or any part of the works and improvements necessary to carry out, maintain and protect the plan of reclamation; and

(c) To sell land and other property, including all material or equipment acquired by the district, upon such terms and conditions as may be mutually agreed upon; and all moneys received from such sales shall be deposited with the county treasurer for the use and benefit of the district. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 44, § 47; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 50, § 5 (§ 47).]

Took effect Nov. 15, 1921.

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ pp. Bond of contractor.—The person, firm or corporation to whom such contract is let shall give bond payable to the district in such amount as the board of supervisors may determine, not to exceed the contract price, conditioned that he, they or it will faithfully perform the obligations, agreements and covenants of such contract, and that in default thereof they will pay to said district all damages sustained by reason thereof. Such bond shall be approved by the supervisors, and shall be deposited with the depository of the district, a true copy thereof being retained in the office of the secretary of the board of supervisors. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 44, § 48.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ ppp. Supervision of and report on work.—All work included in the contract shall be done in accordance with the specifications under the supervision of the supervisors and the district engineer. As the work progresses the engineer of such district shall make report to the supervisors, showing in detail whether the contract is being complied with, and when the work is completed he shall make a detailed report of same to the supervisors, showing whether or not the contract has been fully complied with according to its terms; and if not in what particular, it has not been so complied with. [Id., § 49.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ q. Inspection of work; payments for work.—The supervisors shall, during the progress of the work under any contract, inspect the same; and upon the completion of any work in accordance with the contract, they shall draw a warrant on the treasurer of the district for the unpaid amount of the contract price in favor of the contractor. Payments pending the work shall not exceed in the aggregate eighty-five per cent of the contract price of the work done, the said amount of work completed to be shown by estimates of the engineer of the district. [Id., § 50.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ qq. District seal.—Levee improvement districts created under this Act, or entitled to its benefits, shall each have a common seal which shall be circular in form, with the name of the district within the circle, with a star of five points in the center; and such districts may use [sue] and be sued in the courts of this State in and by their corporate names, and all courts of this State shall take judicial notice of their existence. [Id., § 51.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ qqq. Approval of plans by State Reclamation Engineer; necessity for.—From and after the taking effect of this Act it shall be unlawful for any levee improvement district, whether it proposes to construct its levees or other improvements with or without the issuance of bonds, to construct, to undertake to construct, or maintain any levee or other improvements, without first obtaining the approval by the State Reclamation Engineer, as provided in this Act, of the plans for such levees or other improvements; and in the event any such levee improvement district undertakes to construct, constructs or maintains any levee or other improvement without first obtaining the approval of the State Reclamation Engineer of the plans for the same, as provided in this Act, it shall be the duty of the Attorney-General, on the request of the State Reclamation Engineer, to file suit in one of the district courts of Travis County, Texas, in which the venue of such suits is hereby fixed, to enjoin the construction or maintenance of such levee or other improvement. [Id., § 52.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ r. Same; work by private individuals or corporations.—From and after the taking effect of this Act it shall be unlawful for any person, corporation or levee improvement district, without first obtaining the approval of plans for the same by the State Reclamation Engineer, to construct, attempt to construct, cause to be constructed, maintain or cause to be maintained, any levee or other such improvement on, along or near any stream of this State which is subject to floods, freshets or overflows, so as to control, regulate or otherwise change the flood waters of such stream; and any person, corporation or district violating this section of this Act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment; and each day any such structure is maintained or caused to be maintained shall constitute a separate offense. And in the event any such structure is about to be constructed, is constructed, or maintained by any person or corporation without approval of the plans by the State Reclamation Engineer, it shall be the duty of the Attorney-General, on the request of the State Reclamation Engineer, to file suit in one of the district courts of Travis County, in which the venue of such suits is hereby fixed, to enjoin the construction or maintenance of such structure. Provided, that the provisions of this section shall not apply to dams, canals or other improvements made or to be made by irrigation, water improvements or irrigation improvements made by individuals or corporations. [Id., § 53.]

Art. 5584½rrr. Abolition of district; effect.—If any levee improvement district heretofore created or that hereafter may be created shall find, at any time prior to the sale of its bonds or final lending of its credit in other form, that the proposed undertaking for any reason is impracticable or apparently cannot be successfully carried out, the commissioners' court is hereby authorized to abolish such district upon petition signed by the owners of a majority of the acreage in the district, praying for the dissolution of such district, setting forth the reasons therefor, and accompanied by a deposit of fifty dollars. Such petition shall be set for hearing, notice of such hearing shall be given, the hearing thereon shall be held, and the expense thereof paid out of said deposit, all in conformity with the procedure prescribed in this Act in connection with the petition for the establishment of the district; and the commissioners' court shall have the same powers with respect to the abolition of such districts that it has with respect to their creation. If upon the hearing it shall appear to the court that such district should be abolished, the court shall so find and shall render judgment reciting such finding, and by its orders entered of record declare and decree such district abolished, and appoint the chairman of the supervisors or some other suitable person as trustee to close up its affairs without delay; the term and compensation of such trustee to be at the pleasure of the said court. If the court should not so find, it shall dismiss the petition at the cost of the petitioners, and enter such finding of record. Where any taxes have been levied and collected in the name of the district in anticipation of an issue of bonds, such taxes, so far as unexpended, shall in the event of dissolution of the district as herein provided, and on order of the commissioners' court duly entered, be returned to the taxpayers ratably, after deducting the compensation of the assessor, collector and treasurer in connection therewith, and any other claims properly chargeable against such taxes; proper receipt for all sums so refunded to be taken and filed by the treasurer. [Id., § 54.]

Art. 5584½rrr. Additional work and funds therefor.—If it should develop that the works and improvements set out in any plan of reclamation adopted by or on behalf of a levee improvement district are found insufficient to reclaim in whole or in part any or all of the lands and other property within the district, or if extensive repairs or additions to such works are deemed necessary, then in respect thereto the board of supervisors of the district, upon petition of the owners of a majority of the acreage of the district, may proceed in all respects to provide additional funds for such additional works, in accordance with the provisions of this Act, in respect to the original plan of reclamation, and may, under like limitations, create additional indebtedness or issue additional bonds, but always subject to every limitation in respect to such original proceedings, as well as the approval of the new or amended plan of reclamation by the State Reclamation Engineer. [Id, § 55.]

Art. 5584½s. Reassessment of benefits.—If the plan of reclamation for any levee improvement district is changed or modified, or if extensive repairs or additions thereto are made as provided in Section 55 of this Act [Art. 5584½rrr], or if at any time after one year from the date of any final judgment and decree of the commissioners of appraisement, the owners of a majority of the acreage of lands within any levee improvement district shall file a petition with the commissioners court of the county of jurisdiction, alleging that the previous assessments of benefits in such final judgment and decree are insufficient or inequitable, and praying for an increase or readjustment of the assessment of benefits for the purpose of making an adequate or more equitable basis for the levy of taxes, it shall be the duty of the commissioners court to set a day for the hearing of such petition, and to issue notice informing all persons concerned of the time and place of hearing, and their rights to appear and contend for or contest an increase or readjustment of assessments of benefits, such notice to be posted at the places, for the length of time, and in all respects the same as the original notice, as is provided in Section 3 of this Act [Art. 5584½aa]; and at the time and place set for the hearing the commissioners court shall proceed to hear such petition and proof for or against the same, and if it finds that the aggregate amount of assessed benefits as shown by such previous final judgment and decree is insufficient to carry out the original plan of reclamation, or any change in or modification of or repairs or additions to the same, or that there has been a material change in the relative value of the benefits conferred on the property in the district, or that for other reasons such assessment of benefits is inadequate or inequitable, it shall order that there be made a reassessment of benefits for the purpose of providing a sufficient, more adequate or equitable basis of taxation for all purposes within such district; and thereupon it shall proceed to appoint commissioners of appraisement, as in the first instance, which commissioners shall proceed in all respects as in the first instance, and with all the powers, rights, privileges and duties, both to the commissioners and persons interested; and such commissioners shall finally make their findings and enter their judgment and decree in the matter, which thereafter, until again changed or modified, shall be the basis of the assessment of taxes within and for the district. Provided, that there shall be no reassessment of benefits that will in any way render insecure any outstanding bonds or other indebtedness of any district availing itself of the benefits of this Section, nor shall the sum of benefits as reassessed ever be less in amount than the sum total of all outstanding bonds and other indebtedness of such district; and it shall be the duty of the commissioners court of each county in which such district is located to levy annually and cause to be assessed and collected taxes based upon such reassessment, at rates sufficient to provide funds requisite to pay interest upon all outstanding bonds and other indebtedness of such district, and to pay off such bonds or other indebtedness at maturity, and also to pay the interest on and provide necessary sinking funds to pay all bonds or other indebtedness that may hereafter be issued. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 44, § 56; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 135, § 1 (§ 56); Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 50, § 6 (§ 56).]

See 1918 Supp., arts. 6016 $\frac{1}{2}$ -6016 $\frac{1}{2}$ c, on the subject of notice. The act took effect Nov. 15, 1921.

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ ss. Suit by person, etc., objecting to approval or disapproval of reclamation plan by State Reclamation Engineer; determination; appeal.—If the supervisors of any levee improvement district, or any person or corporation whose interests are affected thereby, be dissatisfied with the action of the State Reclamation Engineer in finally approving or disapproving any plan of reclamation for such district, the district or person or corporation dissatisfied may within fifteen days after such final action, file suit in the district court of the county whose commissioners' court has jurisdiction of the district in question, against the State Reclamation Engineer, and to which suit the district shall be made a party defendant, if the suit be on behalf of any other complaining person or corporation. The petition shall set forth the cause or causes of objection and show wherein the interests of the petitioner are injuriously affected by the action of the State Reclamation Engineer complained of. Process shall issue as in other cases and the case shall have preference of trial in the court wherein it is filed, and upon final hearing the court shall render its judgment and decree approving or disapproving of the plan of reclamation, in whole or in part, as it may find to be equitable and just; and such judgment shall stand for the action of the State Reclamation Engineer in such matters. There may be an appeal, as in ordinary cases, from the judgment of the trial court, which appeal shall have preference of hearing in the Court of Civil Appeals, the judgment of which in the matter shall be final, and shall stand for the action of the State Reclamation Engineer in respect to the matters at issue in such suit. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 44, § 57.]

For sections 58, 59 of this act, see Penal Code, arts. 1254, 1254a.

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ sss. Other laws applicable.—In all matters not herein provided for levee improvement districts created hereunder shall be governed by the provisions of Chapter 146 of the General Laws of the Regular Session of the Thirty-fourth Legislature, authorizing the commissioners' court of counties to establish levee improvement districts, and amendments to such law, save that in no instance except as is specially required or permitted in this Act shall it be necessary for any county judge to approve any contract made by a board of supervisors. [Id., § 60.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ ssss. Other districts may exercise powers, etc., conferred by act.—Levee improvement districts heretofore organized under any law of this State, and districts organized under any law of this State having for their objects the reclamation of lands through a system of levees and drainage, whether denominated levee improvement districts or not, may become entitled to and may hereafter exercise all the rights, powers and privileges conferred by this Act upon districts created under it, and to all of the enlarged powers which may be conferred under Section 59, Article 16, of the Constitution of this State, by proceeding as follows: [Id., § 61.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ t. Same; procedure.—Whenever the owners of a majority of the acreage of any district mentioned in the preceding section [art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ ssss] shall present to the commissioners' court of the county in which such district is located their petition praying that a hearing be ordered to determine whether such district may avail itself of the provisions of this Act, it shall be the duty of the court to fix a time and place for such hearing, and cause notice thereof to be given, substantially in all respects as notice of the hearing upon the matters of the formation of a district under this Act, and at the time and place of such hearing the court shall proceed to hear and determine the issue presented by the petition, and evidence for and against the same, and if it finds that the interests of the district in question would be promoted by granting the prayer of the petition it shall so decree and enter its judgment of record, declaring it to be to the interest of such district that it avail itself of all the rights, powers and privileges conferred by this Act upon districts created under it, and that the district on behalf of which the petition is filed shall thereafter be entitled to and may exercise all rights, powers and privileges conferred by this Act upon districts created by it, and thereafter such district shall have and may exercise all such rights, powers and privileges as if created under this Act, and thereafter it shall proceed in all things as it would if created hereunder. but such decree shall not in any respect injuriously affect any financial liability of such district. [Id., § 62.]

Art. 5584 $\frac{1}{2}$ tt. Acts not repealed.—Nothing contained in this Act shall be construed to repeal any law upon this subject passed at the Fourth Called Session of the Thirty-fifth Legislature, but any such law shall be deemed cumulative. [Id., § 63.]

SEAWALLS

Art. 5585.	Construction and maintenance of seawalls; powers of counties and cities, etc.	Art. 5588.	Issuing bonds; election.
---------------	---	---------------	--------------------------

Article 5585. Construction and maintenance of seawalls; powers of counties and cities, etc.

Construction and operation in general.—The construction of a sea wall within the limits of a city for the protection of the lives and property of the inhabitants of the county is "county business" within the jurisdiction of the commissioners' court under Const. art. 11, § 7, art. 5, § 18, and this article. Galveston County v. Gresham (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 560.

Implied powers.—The commissioners' court, having broad power to construct a sea wall, has authority to employ an attorney to aid in carrying out that power. Galveston County v. Gresham (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 560.

Art. 5588. Issuing bonds; election.

Construction and operation in general.—The grant of taxing power to any county or district by the Legislature should be construed with strictness; the presumption being that the Legislature has granted in clear terms all it intended to grant. State v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 820.

SPECIAL AND LOCAL ACTS RELATING TO SEA WALLS, ETC.

Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 68, grants to city of Corpus Christi certain lands under water for construction of sea walls or break waters.

Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 52, granting certain land to city of Rockport.

Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 22, donating to city of Aransas Pass eight-ninths of the state advalorem taxes to aid such city to pay the interest on bonds and to provide a sinking fund for constructing seawalls, breakwaters, and shore protections.

Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 23, makes a similar provision for the city of Rockport.

Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 24, makes a similar provision for the city of Port Lavaca.

Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 25, makes a similar provision for the city of Freeport.

Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 80, granting lands to city of Port Lavaca to aid in construction of sea walls or breakwaters and incidental improvements.

Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 138, makes a similar provision for the city of Corpus Christi.

TITLE 84

LIBEL

Art.		Art.
5595.	Definition.	5598a. Not to affect pending suits or accrued causes of action.
5596.	Mitigation of damages.	5598b. Venue of action.
5597.	What matters deemed privileged.
5598.	To be construed, how.

Article 5595. Definition.

See Light Pub. Co. v. Huntress (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1168.

What constitutes libel in general.—In action against credit company for libel in placing plaintiff's name in a list of debtors, it was necessary to prove publication. Henderson v. Credit Clearing House (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 370.

In action against insurance company for resulting tie-up of plaintiff's shipment because of alleged slanderous statements, evidence held to warrant finding that defendants' agent did not intend to state, and financial backer did not understand, that no reinsurance had been obtained. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 666.

It is not libelous for one who is the owner of the assignment of another's wages to give notice of that fact to the master, but, if at the time notice is given the debt which the assignment secures had been paid, and it is maliciously claimed that it has not, the one giving notice is liable for such damages as proximately result from the unlawful act. Evans v. McKay (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 630.

If any part of a newspaper publication was libelous of city officers, the whole was a libel; it all being one coherent article relative to charges against the city and officials in relation to the nonsuppression of gambling and prostitution, made by army officers. Express Pub. Co. v. Wilkins (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 614.

Defamatory language may be actionable in itself or per se, or may be actionable only on allegation and proof of special damages or per quod. Id.

Gas company's letter to consumer, stating that the meters had been tampered with and that the consumer would be held responsible for the safety of the new meters being installed, without charging the consumer with tampering with meter, held not libelous, even if aided by innuendo. Fuson v. Abilene Gas & Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 208.

This article gives a full and complete definition of libel, and no other definitions can be considered in arriving at a conclusion as to whether a publication constitutes libel. Taber v. Aransas Harbor Terminal Ry. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 860.

Where defendant published an article stating that plaintiff, who was arrested on complaint of illegally transporting liquor, was discharged after hearing before justice, who held that the evidence was insufficient to show violation, the fact that the justice, without authority of law, found plaintiff not guilty, will not render defendant liable, the account not differing in substance from the judgment of the justice, and there being nothing to indicate any suppression of facts. Mulhall v. Express Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 545.

Malice.—In cases founded on libelous publication, the jury may infer the existence of malice from absence of probable cause for making the publication; or from evidence of express malice. Evans v. McKay (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 630.

Where words uttered are not actionable per se or presumptively libelous, it becomes necessary to prove express malice or that the alleged libelous matter was published in reckless disregard of plaintiff's rights and in a spirit of indifference concerning the injury which it might inflict. Id.

In actions for libel, there are two kinds of malice, "malice in law" and "malice in fact," or "express malice," malice in law arising in cases where the words uttered are presumed in law to be malicious. Id.

In libel or slander actual or express malice need not be proven by direct or extrinsic evidence, but it may be inferred from the relation of the parties, the circumstances attending the publication, the terms of the publication itself, and from the words or acts of defendant before, at, or after the time of the communication, but it must be evidence from which the jury may infer malice existing at the time of publication and actuating it. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Edmundson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 131, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 402.

The malice, meant and required, as a basis for punitive or exemplary damages for a libel, must be actual and not merely imputed. Wortham-Carter Pub. Co. v. Littlepage (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1043.

Exposing person to hatred, contempt, or ridicule.—Accusing one of having "brainstorms" charges a natural defect, and exposes the one accused to ridicule. Hibdon v. Moyer (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1117.

Article entitled "Misstatements of (?)," and charging untruthfulness, held libelous per se, as exposing person to hatred, ridicule, or financial injury. Id.

Charge that saloon keeper sold to minors or knowingly to their agents, held to expose him to public hatred, contempt, ridicule, or financial injury. Koehler v. Dubose (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 238.

Defamatory words to be "libelous per se" must be of such a nature that the court can presume as a matter of law that they will tend to disgrace and degrade the party, or hold him up to public hatred, contempt, or ridicule, or cause him to be shunned and avoided. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 666.

To be libelous, the language of the publication on which the libel is predicated, taken in connection with the facts and circumstances alleged, must have injured plaintiff's reputation, thereby exposing him to public hatred and contempt, financial injury, etc. Fuson v. Abilene Gas & Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 208.

Letter by vice president of railroad to Railroad Commission denying charge of discrimination made by plaintiff and stating in substance that plaintiff was unreliable, that he was a disturber in the community, and that the better element of the community would not associate with him, was libelous per se, as tending to expose plaintiff to contempt or ridicule and financially injure him and impeach his integrity and reputation. Taber v. Aransas Harbor Terminal Ry. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 860.

Imputation of crime and immorality.—Written language charging plaintiff with destroying valuable testimony, with conspiring to defeat the jurisdiction of courts to which he had submitted his litigation, and with trying to appropriate to himself valuable property in such a way as to avoid responsibility, held libelous. Baten v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 394.

Printed or written language falsely and maliciously charging crime is libelous per se. Express Pub. Co. v. Wilkins (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 614.

The untrue statement published in a newspaper that plaintiff, a physician, had been indicted for violation of the Harrison Anti-Narcotic Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 6237g-6237q) constitutes a libel. Wortham-Carter Pub. Co. v. Littlepage (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1043.

The publisher of an article setting out that after plaintiff, who was arrested for the illegal transportation of liquor, was discharged by a justice of the peace, the Attorney General procured an injunction against sale, is not liable because he failed to state plaintiff contended that he was transporting the liquor for export; it not appearing that the transportation for export was illegal while other transportation was not. Mulhall v. Express Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 545.

Imputation of misconduct in office.—Printed or written language falsely and maliciously charging crime is libelous per se, so that it is libelous per se to impute to an officer in his official character incapacity, fraud, dishonesty, misconduct, or want of integrity, or to charge that he has been induced to act in his official capacity by a pecuniary or other improper consideration, such as, if true, would be ground for his removal. Express Pub. Co. v. Wilkins (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 614.

Tendency to injure in profession or business. Where alleged slanderous words charged plaintiff, who was holder of blank policy, with issuing unauthorized certificates, plaintiff was required to prove special damages: such words not being defamatory as a matter of law, as charging an act involving moral turpitude, reflecting on business integrity, or calculated to impair business standing. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 666.

Causing special damage.—Article being libelous per se, in that it charged plaintiff with untruthfulness, it was unnecessary for plaintiff to offer evidence of special damages to authorize recovery. Hibdon v. Moyer (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1117.

Where alleged slanderous words charged plaintiff, who was holder of blank policy, with issuing unauthorized certificates, plaintiff was required to prove special damages: such words not being defamatory as a matter of law, as charging an act involving moral turpitude, reflecting on business integrity, or calculated to impair business standing. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 666.

In the case of defamatory language actionable per se damages in nonprivileged matters are conclusively presumed, but in actions per quod only any injury resulting from the use of the language must be alleged and proved. Express Pub. Co. v. Wilkins (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 614.

Construction of language.—Charges that minors frequented plaintiff's saloon and seemed to experience no difficulty in finding some one to buy liquor for them, and were tempted to drink held to warrant innuendo that this meant that he was guilty of selling liquor to minors. Koehler v. Dubose (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 238.

Alleged defamatory language must be construed as a whole. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 666.

Words not in themselves conveying any defamatory meaning may by innuendo be shown to charge commission of a crime, but for such purpose new matter cannot be introduced, and the actual meaning of the words used cannot be enlarged. Fuson v. Abilene Gas & Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 208.

Damages in general.—A verdict of $1,500 in favor of a woman who was accosted on the streets with the demand that she permit defendant's servant to examine certain bundles under accusation that she was a thief and a shoplifter was not excessive. W. C. Munn Co. v. Westfall (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 328.

Where railroad's conductor slandered plaintiff by imputing to him theft of overcoat, verdict for plaintiff for $500 against the railroad cannot be set aside as excessive. Beaumont, S. L. & W. Ry. Co. v. Daniels (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 481.

In action for slander and for wrongful interference in contractual relations, resulting in tie-up of plaintiff's shipment of cotton, damages cannot be recovered for loss of profits plaintiff might have made by engaging in other business during period of tie-up, instead of devoting his time to effort to settle shipment controversy; such damages being too remote and speculative. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 666.

In the law of libel, general damages are those which naturally, proximately and necessarily result from publishing the libel, and are recoverable under a general averment; the elements of such damages being injury to character, or reputation, feelings, mental suffering and anguish, and other like wrongs or injuries incapable of money valuation. Evans v. McKay (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 680.

Mental suffering.—Damages for mental anguish caused by publication of matter actionable under Rev. St. 1911, art. 5595, defining libel, is recoverable regardless of whether there was any other injury or damage. Hibdon v. Moyer (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1117.

In action for slander, damages cannot be recovered for mental distress, not the direct result and proximate effect upon his mind and feelings of alleged slanderous statement. Providence-Washington Ins. Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 666.

Exemplary damages.—An employé who was discharged from his employment by reason of defendant falsely and maliciously notifying the employer that the employé owed her a debt and that she had an assignment of his wages was properly allowed exemplary damages. Evans v. McKay (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 680.

Exemplary damages for libel are allowable only where fraud, malice, gross negligence, or oppression exist, and are awarded in the way of punishment of the wrongdoer and not as a reimbursement of legal damages to the injured party. Wortham-Carter Pub. Co. v. Littlepage (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1043.

In an action against a newspaper corporation only for publishing a false statement that defendant was indicted by a federal grand jury, where there was no proof of any actual or express malice or gross negligence or oppression on the part of any one shown to be an officer of the corporation and it appeared that the mistake or act of the reporter whether with or without malice was not ratified by it, but on the contrary an immediate correction of the error was published as soon as discovered, exemplary damages were not allowable against the corporation. Id.

The "malice," meant and required as a basis for punitive or exemplary damages for a libel, must be actual and not merely imputed, and, while malice may be inferred from and proven by circumstances showing an utter disregard of the rights of another, an indifference to the infliction of the injury, or gross negligence such inference is one of fact and not of law. Id.

Art. 5596. Mitigation of damages.

See Light Pub. Co. v. Huntress (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1168; Express Pub. Co. v. Wilkins (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 614.

Justification and mitigation in general.—Petition open to construction as charging saloon keeper with selling liquor to minors or knowingly to their agent, held not cured by adding that petitioners did not blame him, and thought he tried to run his place according to law. Koehler v. Dubose (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 238.

Truth as justification.—Where plaintiff, assignee of an oil lease, by failure to meet the condition of drilling a well or paying rent within the time specified, had permitted the lease to terminate, he was not entitled to a judgment for slander of title against lessors for asserting that the lease had terminated. Ford v. Barton (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 268.

Art. 5597. What matters deemed privileged.—The publication of the following matters by any newspaper or periodical, as defined in Article 5595, shall be deemed privileged, and shall not be made the basis of any action for libel without proof of actual malice:

1. A fair, true and impartial account of the proceedings in a court of justice, unless the court prohibits the publication of the same, when in the judgment of the court the ends of justice demand that the same should not be published, and the court so orders; or any other official proceedings authorized by law in the administration of the law.

2. A fair, true and impartial account of all executive and legislative proceedings, including all reports of and proceedings in or before legislative committees, and of any debate or statement in or before the Legislature or in or before any of its committees, and including also, all reports of and proceedings in or before the managing boards of educational and eleemosynary institutions supported from the public revenue, of city councils or other governing bodies of cities or towns, of the commissioners' court of any county, and of the board of trustees of the public schools of any district or city, and of any debate or statement in or before any such body.

3. A fair, true and impartial account of public meetings organized and conducted for public purposes only.

4. A reasonable and fair comment or criticism of the official acts of public officials and of other matters of public concern published for general information. [Acts 1901, p. 30, § 3; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 25, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Privileged communications in general.—"Absolute privilege" is confined to cases in which the public service of the administration of justice requires complete immunity from being called to account for language used, such as language used in legislative bodies, in debates, in reports of military officers on military affairs to their superiors, language used by judges on the bench and witnesses on the stand. Taber v. Aransas Harbor Terminal Ry. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 860; Koehler v. Dubose (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 238.

This article does not give newspapers an absolute privilege as to the publication of the matters therein stated. Light Pub. Co. v. Huntress (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1168.

This act preserves existing defenses to actions for libel, including defense of privilege, and does not limit such defense to publishers of newspapers or periodicals. Koehler v. Dubose (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 238.

Protest to comptroller against grant of liquor license held not absolutely privileged because of constitutional right to petition the government for redress of grievances. Id.

Where the defense of privilege in a libel suit is a vested ground of defense, it cannot be taken away by retroactive legislation, in view of Const. art. 1, § 16. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Edmundson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 181, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 402.

In libel or slander, if one makes a statement believing it to be true, he will not lose the protection arising from the privileged occasion merely because he had no reasonable ground for his belief. Id.

Generally a newspaper publisher may, when done in good faith and without intent to injury, print and circulate any item whether true or false without pecuniary liability other than that arising from loss of confidence and esteem in the minds of the public. Wortham-Carter Pub. Co. v. Littlepage (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1043.

The untrue statement published in a newspaper that plaintiff, a physician, had been indicted for violation of the Harrison Anti-Narcotic Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 6287g-6287q) cannot be defended on the ground that it was privileged matter, so that the defendant, however innocent may have been the mistake, is liable for actual damages. Id.

Judicial proceedings.—Pleadings in civil actions are privileged publications not supporting action for libel. Taylor v. Iowa Park Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 853.

Petition under arts. 7435, 7436, to comptroller protesting against grant of new license to saloon keeper, held not privileged as a communication in a judicial proceeding. Koehler v. Dubose (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 238.

The privilege of publishing an impartial account of judicial proceedings, does not justify the publication of a libelous written pleading properly filed upon which no action has been taken by the court, and is limited to proceedings while the court is in session and may have an opportunity to prohibit publication. Baten v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 394.

Allegations, in motion for contempt, that plaintiff had disobeyed the supersedeas granted by the trial court, in having willfully destroyed certain house on the premises involved in the action, which was valuable evidence, and in cutting and removing a great amount of timber from premises, held privileged, being pertinent, material, and relevant to the charge of contempt. Id.

Words spoken, written, or printed in the course of a judicial proceeding are absolutely privileged when material, relevant, and pertinent to the issues involved in the case. Id.

The Railroad Commission of Texas is not a judicial or quasi judicial tribunal, and a letter written by vice president of railroad to commissioner denying plaintiff's charge of discrimination and libeling plaintiff was not absolutely privileged. Taber v. Aransas Harbor Terminal Ry. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 860.

The publisher of a newspaper need not interview a defendant as to his defense before publishing an account of judicial proceedings. Mulhall v. Express Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 545.

The publisher of a newspaper article which stated that, after plaintiff, who was charged with illegally transporting liquor, was discharged by a justice, the Attorney General procured an injunction, is not liable for defamation because the article did not state whether the complaint on which the injunction was procured was based on information and belief or on knowledge. Id.

Reports of official proceedings.—Letter written by vice president of railroad to Railroad Commission denying plaintiff's charge of discrimination and libeling plaintiff cannot be protected except in a qualified sense, and, if malice is shown to have actuated using of libelous words clearly not necessary to defense, vice president and railroad are liable for provable damages. Taber v. Aransas Harbor Terminal Ry. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 860.

Discharge of duty to others.—Qualified privilege extends to communications made in good faith by one having an interest or a duty to a person having corresponding interest or duty, and embraces cases where duty is of a moral character or an imperfect obligation. Koehler v. Dubose (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 238; Taber v. Aransas Harbor Terminal Ry. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 860; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Edmundson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 181, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 402.

Communications passing between state agents of fire insurance companies and the local agents, and communications from one insurance company to another, with reference to matters wherein the companies are mutually interested, and to protect such interest, are conditionally privileged. Palatine Ins. Co. v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1014.

In a libel suit brought against a railroad company by a discharged baggageman in the joint service of an express company and defendant, based upon a letter to the express company by defendant's superintendent requesting his discharge because he had carried a passenger in the baggage car contrary to regulation, the letter was privileged; the superintendent in good faith believing the information upon which it was based to be true. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Edmundson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 181, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 402.

Where defendant in slander action had occasion to suspect plaintiff of stealing from her chickens, fruit, and jelly, her accusation, made to wife of plaintiff's landlord in order to prevent renewal of lease to the plaintiff, was qualifiedly privileged, and malice must be shown by plaintiff. Vacicek v. Trojack (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 505.

In an action for slander, charges made by the defendant to the sheriff were not privileged where not made with an honest desire to promote the ends of justice, but to injure the plaintiff and to cause the breaking of her engagement to marry defendant's brother. Vogt v. Guldry (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 656.

Utterance or statement, charging female employé of large store with thievery, made by the store's manager in his office in the presence of other executives and employés when he was investigating a claim of theft held qualifiedly privileged and not to be made a basis for damages, actual or exemplary, unless the employé charged with the theft could show the statement was actuated by actual or express malice or want of good faith. Foley Bros. Dry Goods Co. v. McClain (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 459.

Criticism and comment on public matters.—Although a report of a court proceeding was true, a newspaper did not have the right to base unreasonable and unfair comment and criticism thereon, although the subject of criticism was a candidate for public office. Light Pub. Co. v. Huntress (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1168.

Under arts. 7435, 7436, 7446, statements in petition to comptroller protesting against grant of new license to saloon keeper circulated when no application was pending, held not absolutely privileged. Koehler v. Dubose (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 233.

A newspaper article relative to slackness and corruption on the part of the chief of police and police judge of a city, in failing to suppress gambling and prostitution at the instance of army officers, held privileged; proof of actual malice therefore being essential, and not inferable from the falsity of the charges alone. Express Pub. Co. v. Wilkins (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 614.

Where a member of a Liberty Loan committee, during the war with Germany, while soliciting subscriptions to bonds, distributed circulars, prepared by the county council of defense, and claimed to contain a libelous statement concerning plaintiff, who had refused to subscribe, his acts, claimed to be done in discharge of a public duty, were privileged in a limited sense, and the trial court, in plaintiff's action for libel against him and others, properly refused to instruct preemptorily for plaintiff as against him. McBroom v. Weir (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 855.

Existence and effect of malice.—In an action for libel, malice may be inferred from the falsity of the charge or imputation, unless the occasion is privileged, but, if the occasion be privileged, a proper and sufficient motive is shown repelling the inference of malice and giving rise, in view thereof, to the presumption that the communication was made in good faith, whereupon it devolves upon plaintiff to establish malice in fact. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Edmundson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 181, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 402; Koehler v. Dubose (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 233; Simmons v. Dickson (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 612; Express Pub. Co. v. Wilkins (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 614.

Absolute privilege is a defense, regardless of malice. Koehler v. Dubose (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 233.

"Actual malice" is necessary to render a privileged publication actionable libel, implying a wrongful act done intentionally or with evil intent, without just cause, or excuse or as the result of ill will. Express Pub. Co. v. Wilkins (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 614.

The falsity of a privileged publication is a circumstance which, taken with others, may show actual malice. Id.

In libel the "malice" which avoids a privilege is actual or express, existing as a fact at the time of the communication, and which has inspired or colored it, and such malice exists where one casts an imputation which he does not believe to be true, and where the communication is actuated by some sinister or corrupt motive, or motives of personal spite or ill will, or where the communication is made with such gross indifference to the rights of others as will amount to a willful or wanton act. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Edmundson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 181, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 402.

In a libel suit against a railroad company brought by a discharged employé based on a letter from defendant's superintendent to plaintiff's employer, charging violation of rules, the failure of defendant's superintendent to answer plaintiff's letters of inquiry and his refusal to investigate the charges in the letter held not inconsistent with the superintendent's good faith so as to justify a legal inference of malice. Id.

There can be no recovery for a slanderous utterance made under circumstances entitling it to a qualified privilege unless defendant's agent, in making the statement, was actuated by actual or express malice, or other evil motive. Foley Bros. Dry Goods Co. v. McClain (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 459.

In an action by a female store employé against the company for slander by its manager in charging her with theft, evidence held insufficient to warrant the jury's finding that the manager's utterance, made under conditions entitling it to a qualified privilege, was actuated by actual or express malice. Id.

Repetition by others.—Where statements made to another are qualifiedly privileged, the circulation of such statements by the confidant as rumors impose no liability on the one making the privileged statements. Vacicek v. Trojack (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 505.

Art. 5598. To be construed, how.

See International & G. N. R. Co. v. Edmundson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 181.
Cited, Taber v. Aransas Harbor Terminal Ry. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 360.

Construction and operation in general.—Art. 5598, as amended by Act 35th Leg. c. 206, preserving common-law defenses to actions for libel, held not a legislative construction that the former law deprived defendants of such defenses. Koehler v. Duhose (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 238.

Common-law defenses.—Arts. 5595-5597, relating to libel, did not destroy any common-law defense to libel, but rather added to the same so far as newspapers and periodicals are concerned. Light Pub. Co. v. Huntress (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1163.

In action against grand jurors for making a report to the court that sheriff and others were guilty of immoral conduct unbecoming to dignity of their positions, defendants had the legal right to assert the common-law defense of conditional privilege, despite publication shall be privileged. Rich v. Eason (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 581.

Any newspaper or periodical can interpose any defenses to a civil cause for libel that existed at common law or otherwise, in addition to the defenses enumerated in the libel law. Express Pub. Co. v. Wilkins (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 614.

Art. 5598a. Not to affect pending suits or accrued causes of action.

See International & G. N. R. Co. v. Edmundson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 181.

Art. 5598b. Venue of action.—Action for damages for libel or slander shall be brought, and can only be maintained, in the county in which the plaintiff in any such action resided at the time of the accrual of the cause of action, or in the county where the plaintiff resided at the time of filing suit, or in the county of the residence of the defendants, or any of them, or the domicile of any corporate defendant, at the election of the plaintiff. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 87, § 1.]

LIBRARY AND HISTORICAL COMMISSION

Art. 5600. Commission, how constituted.	Art. 5602. Powers and duties of the Commission.
5601. Meetings; compensation.	5602a. Style; official seal.
5601a. State Librarian; appointment, qualifications, compensation.	5606. Duties of State Librarian.
5601b. Assistant librarian; appointment, duties, bond, compensation.	5607a. Distribution of reports.
5601c. Assistants in the State Library; appointment and qualifications.	5608. Legislative reference section.
	5609b. Penalty for injuring or defacing library property.

Article 5600. Commission, how constituted.—The Governor, shall, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint five persons who shall constitute the Texas Library and Historical Commission. Appointments shall be made for the term of six years, except appointments to fill vacancies, which shall be made by the Governor for the unexpired term. Provided: That

The members of the Commission shall at their first meeting be divided by lot into three groups, two members to serve two years, two four years, and one six years from the date of appointment, and that all appointments shall thereafter be for six years. [Acts 1909, p. 122, § 2; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 60, § 1 amending art. 5600.]

Art. 5601. Meetings; compensation.—The Commission shall hold at the State Capitol at least one regular meeting annually, and as many special meetings as may be necessary. Each member of the Commission shall receive while in attendance at the meetings of Commission a per diem of $5.00, and the actual expenses incurred in attending the meetings. [Acts 1909, p. 122, § 2; Acts 1913, p. 281, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 60, § 1 amending art. 5601.]

Art. 5601a. State Librarian; appointment, qualifications, compensation.—The Commission shall elect a state librarian, who shall not be of their number and who shall be a trained and experienced librarian of administrative ability. Said state librarian shall serve at the will of the Commission and shall give to the governor an acceptable bond in the sum of five thousand ($5,000.00) dollars for the proper care of the State Library and its equipment. In addition to his salary, the state librarian shall be allowed his actual expenses when traveling in the service of the Commission. Such expenses shall be certified to under oath in the same form as other accounts of the State Library.

The term, "trained and experienced librarian" is for the purpose of this law defined as a man or woman who shall have had at least one year's training in a library school and at least three year's administrative experience as head of a free public or institutional library, or as an assistant of high rank in such library. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 60, § 1 adding art. 5601a.]

Art. 5601b. Assistant librarian; appointment, duties, bond, compensation.—The Commission shall appoint an assistant librarian who shall rank as head of a department and who in the absence of the State Librarian may sign and certify accounts and documents in the same manner and with the same legal authority as the State Librarian.

The said Assistant Librarian shall give acceptable bond to the Gov-error in the sum of $3,000 and shall take oath of office in the same manner as the state Librarian. [Id., adding art. 5601b.]

Art. 5601c. Assistants in the State Library; appointment and qualifications.—Assistants in the State Library shall be appointed by the Library and Historical Commission and shall be divided into four grades: Heads of departments, library assistants, clerks [clerks], and laborers. Heads of departments and library assistants shall be required to have technical library training; heads of departments shall have had at least one year of experience in library work prior to appointment. Clerks shall be required to hold a diploma from a first class high school according to the standards of the State Department of Public Instruction or the University of Texas, or to present satisfactory evidence of educational training equal to that provided by such high school, and also to present satisfactory evidence of proficiency in stenography and typewriting or book-keeping.

Laborers must present satisfactory evidence of education sufficient to do such elementary clerical work as shall be required of them.

Provided: That the archivist must present satisfactory evidence of one year's advanced work in American or Southwestern history in a standard college and of a fluent reading knowledge of Spanish and French; and that the Archivist is not required to have technical library school training or any library experience. [Id., adding art. 5601c.]

Art. 5602. Powers and duties of the Commission.—The Commission is authorized and empowered to purchase within the limits of the annual appropriation allowed by Act of the legislature from time to time, suitable books, pictures, etc., the same to be the property of the State. The Commission shall give advice to such persons as contemplate the establishment of public libraries in regard to such matters as the maintenance of public libraries, selection of books, cataloguing, and library management. The Commission shall conduct library institutes, and encourage library associations. [Acts 1909, p. 122, § 3; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 60, § 1 amending art. 5602.]

Art. 5602a. Style; official seal.—The style of the Library governed by the Texas Library and Historical Commission shall be "Texas State Library." A circular seal of not less than one and one-half inches, and not more than two inches in diameter, bearing a star of five points, surrounded by two concentric circles, between which are printed the words, "Texas State Library," is hereby designated as the official seal of the Texas State Library; and the seal above designated shall be used in authentication of the official acts of the State Library. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 60, § 1 adding art. 5602a.]

Art. 5606. Duties of the State Librarian.—The duties of the State Librarian, acting under the direction of the Texas Library and Historical Commission, shall be as follows:

First. He shall record the proceedings of the Commission, keep an accurate account of its financial transactions, and perform such other duties as may be assigned him by said Commission.

Second. He shall have charge of the State Library and all books, pictures, documents, newspapers, manuscripts, archives, relics, mementos, flags, etc., therein contained.

Third. He shall endeavor to collect all manuscript records relating to the history of Texas in the hands of private individuals, and where the originals cannot be obtained he shall endeavor to procure authenticated copies. He shall be authorized to expend the money appropriated for the purchase of books relating to Texas, and he shall seek diligently to procure a copy of every book, pamphlet, map or other printed matter giving valuable information concerning this State. He shall collect portraits or photographs of as many of the prominent men of Texas as possible. He shall endeavor to complete the files of the early Texas newspapers in the State Library; and he shall cause to be bound the current files of not less than ten of the leading newspapers of the state, and the current files of not less than four leading newspapers of other states, and of as many county papers, professional journals, denominational papers, agricultural papers, trade journals and other publications of this state as seem necessary to preserve in the State Library an accurate record of the history of Texas.

Fourth. He shall demand and receive from the officers of state departments having them in charge, all books, maps, papers, manuscripts, documents, memoranda, and data not connected with or necessary to the current duties of said officers, relating to the history of Texas, and carefully classify, catalogue and preserve the same. The attorney general shall decide as to the proper custody of such books, etc., whenever there is any disagreement as to the same.

Fifth. Any state, county or other official is hereby authorized and empowered in his discretion to turn over to the State Library for permanent preservation therein any official books, records, documents, original papers, maps, charts, newspaper files and printed books not in current use in his office, and the state librarian shall receipt for the same.

Sixth. The state librarian shall endeavor to procure from Mexico the original archives which have been removed from Texas and relate to the history and settlement thereof, and in case he can not procure the originals, he shall endeavor to procure authentic copies, thereof. In like manner, he shall procure the originals or authentic copies of manuscripts preserved in other archives beyond the limits of this state, in so far as said manuscripts relate to the history of Texas.

Seventh. He shall preserve all historical relics, mementos, antiquities, and works of art connected with and relating to the history of Texas, which may in any way come into his possession as state librarian. He shall constantly endeavor to build up an historical museum worthy of the interesting and important history of this state.

Eighth. He shall make and certify to copies of papers or documents in the State Library, upon application of any person interested, and shall charge the same fees as are allowed the secretary of state for similar services. And such certified copies of papers and documents shall be received in evidence by the courts the same as like papers and documents of other state departments. He shall collect all such fees in advance and turn them over to the state treasurer in the form required by law, and shall be authorized to approve the vouchers for all expenditures made in connection with the State Library.

Ninth. He shall give careful attention to the proper classification, indexing and preserving of the official archives that are now or may hereafter come into his custody.

Tenth. He shall make a biennial report to the Texas Library and Historical Commission, to be by them transmitted to the governor, to be accompanied by such historical papers and documents as he may deem of sufficient importance.

Eleventh. He shall ascertain the condition of all public libraries in this state, and report the results to the commission. He is authorized in his discretion to withhold from libraries refusing or neglecting to furnish their annual reports or such other information as he may request, public documents furnished the Commission for distribution, or inter-library loans desired by such libraries. [Acts 1909, p. 122, § 9; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 60, § 1, amending art. 5606.]

Art. 5607a. Distribution of reports.—That until a permanent state agency for the distribution of state documents to the public and institutional libraries of Texas and the exchange with libraries elsewhere shall be provided for by law, 150 copies of all annual, biennial and special reports of state departments, boards, and institutions, findings of all investigations, bulletins, circulars, laws issued as separates, legislative manuals, 75 copies of all daily legislative journals, bound journals, bills, resolutions, session laws and compiled statutes, and 150 copies of all other publications, except routine business forms and court reports shall be delivered by the State Contract Printer to the State Library for distribution and exchange. All requisitions for such publications as must by law be approved by the state expert printer or other official or officials performing the duties appertaining to the state expert printer, shall be sent to him in duplicate, one copy to be kept for his files, the other to be delivered to the State Library on the day on which the work is by him assigned to the state contract printer. All daily legislative journals, bills, resolutions, and other legislative documents hereinbefore required to be delivered to the State Library shall be delivered daily to the said State Library by the state contract printer, and at the close of each legislative session, all daily journals, bills, and resolutions, in the hands of the sergeants-at-arms of the House and the Senate shall be delivered to the State Library to be disposed of at the discretion of the librarian. No accounts of the state contract printer for the printing of documents hereinbefore required to be delivered to the State Library shall be approved by the State Printing Board or other state officials or officials performing the function appertaining to the State Printing Board nor warrants therefor issued by the comptroller unless the state contract printer shall show a receipt from the State Library for such delivery as hereinbefore required.

Provided: That the state librarian shall at the beginning of each fiscal year revise the mailing list of libraries entitled to receive state publications under the provisions of this act and desiring to receive them: and if the number of such publications hereinbefore required to be delivered to the state librarian shall be insufficient to supply such libraries, the said state librarian is hereby authorized to request of the state printer or Board or the official or officials performing the functions appertaining to the State Printing Board such a number of copies as will supply such libraries.

Provided further: That the State Printing Board or the official or officials performing the duties appertaining to the State Printing Board shall upon receiving such request of the state librarian cause to be printed such a total number as will enable the state contract printer to deliver to the said state librarian the number requested: and the state contract printer shall deliver to the state librarian the said number of copies instead of the number hereinbefore specified. [Acts 1913, p. 281, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 60, § 1, amending art. 5607a.]

Art. 5608. Legislative reference section.—The said Library is authorized and directed to maintain for the use and information of the members of the Legislature, the heads of the several state departments, and such other citizens as may desire to consult the same, a section of the State Library for legislative reference and information. This section shall possess available for use, explanatory check lists and catalogues of the current legislation of this and other states, catalogues of the bills and resolutions presented in either branch of the legislature, check lists of the public documents of the several states, including all reports issued by the various departments, boards and commissions of this state, digests of such public laws of this and other states as may best be made available for legislative use. The Legislature Reference Section shall give the members of the legislature such aid and assistance in the drafting of bills and resolutions as may be asked. [Acts 1909, p. 122, § 11; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 60, § 1, amending art. 5608.]

Art. 5609b. Penalty for injuring or defacing library property.—Penalty for injuring or defacing library property. That whoever wilfully injures or defaces any book, newspaper, magazine, pamphlet, manuscript, or other property belonging to any public library, reading room, museum, or other educational institution, by writing, marking, tearing, breaking, or otherwise mutilating, shall be punished by a fine not greater than the replacement value of the property injured, and that a copy of this article shall be posted in a conspicuous place in such library, reading room, museum, or other educational institution. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 60, § 1, adding art 5609b.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 2 repeals all laws in conflict. The act took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

JUDGMENT LIENS

Art.	Art.
5610. Clerk of county court shall keep judgment record.	5615. Index shall show what.
5611. Clerks of courts shall make and deliver abstracts of judgments.	5616. Lien of judgment, when.
5612. Abstract shall show what.	5617. Lien exists, how long.
5614. Clerk of county court shall record and index abstracts.	5618. Satisfaction of, shown how.
	5619. Satisfaction of to be entered on judgment record.

Article 5610. [3283] Clerk of county court shall keep a judgment record.

See Spence v. Brown, 86 Tex. 430, 25 S. W. 413, reversing (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 983. Cited, First Nat. Bank of Decatur v. Cloud, 2 Tex. Civ. App. 627, 21 S. W. 770.

Art. 5611. [3284] Clerks of courts shall make and deliver abstracts of judgments.

See Herring v. Walker, 3 Civ. App. 614, 22 S. W. 819; Spence v. Brown, 86 Tex. 430, 25 S. W. 413, reversing (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 983. Cited, First Nat. Bank of Decatur v. Cloud, 2 Tex. Civ. App. 627, 21 S. W. 770.

Art. 5612. [3285] Abstract shall show what.

See Spence v. Brown, 86 Tex. 430, 25 S. W. 413, reversing (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 983. Cited, Nye v. Moody, 70 Tex. 434, 8 S. W. 606.

Abstract—Requisites and sufficiency in general.—An abstract of a judgment is sufficient, whatever its form, which shows the essential facts prescribed. Gullett Gin Co. v. Oliver, 78 Tex. 182, 14 S. W. 451.

It is not necessary for the abstract to specify the character in which the parties sued or defended. Willis v. Smith, 66 Tex. 31, 17 S. W. 247.

— Amount and credits.—Where abstracts of a justice's judgment recited amounts of judgments incorrectly, no lien was created by filing and registry thereof. Lemons v. Epley Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1118.

An abstract of judgment need not affirmatively show, that there were no credits to which the judgment was entitled, in order to give a lien on land when filed with the county clerk of another county; it being sufficient that the abstract shows correctly the names of the parties to the suit, the number of the suit, the court in which the judgment was rendered, the date of the judgment, the amount thereof, the rate of interest it bore, the costs of suit, and the total amount due. Willis v. Pegues (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 96.

Art. 5614. [3287] Clerk of county court shall record and index abstracts.

See Belbaze v. Ratto, 69 Tex. 636, 7 S. W. 501.

Sufficiency of record in general.—The record of an abstract, which the clerk failed to certify, was invalid, and insufficient to create the lien. Herring v. Walker, 3 Civ. App. 614, 22 S. W. 819.

The certificate to the abstract need not be recorded with the abstract, in order to give a lien on the land of the judgment debtor, in the absence of any statute requiring it to be recorded. Spence v. Brown, 86 Tex. 430, 25 S. W. 413, reversing (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 983.

Art. 5615. [3288] Index shall show what.

See Belbaze v. Ratto, 69 Tex. 636, 7 S. W. 501; Ullmann v. Jasper, 70 Tex. 446, 7 S. W. 763.

Sufficiency of index.—An index of a judgment record in which plaintiff's name appears as W. & Co., and in which the name of one of defendants fails to appear except in the firm name, by which they were sued, is insufficient. Steffens v. Cameron (Sup.) 19 S. W. 1068.

This article is sufficiently complied with by placing defendant's name in the proper alphabetical position, followed by plaintiff's name, though neither party is designated as defendant or plaintiff, and though neither the word "versus" or "against," nor any abbreviation thereof, is placed after the name of either party. Von Stein v. Trexler, 5 Civ. App. 299, 23 S. W. 1047.

Art. 5616. [3289] Lien of judgment, when.

See Ullmann v. Jasper, 70 Tex. 446, 7 S. W. 763; Pierce v. Wimberly, 78 Tex. 187, 14 S. W. 454; Herring v. Walker, 3 Civ. App. 614, 22 S. W. 819; Spence v. Brown, 86 Tex. 430, 25 S. W. 413.

Indexing as condition precedent to lien.—See Gullett Gin Co. v. Oliver, 78 Tex. 182, 14 S. W. 451; Steffens v. Cameron (Sup.) 19 S. W. 1068.

The presumption is that the index was made when the judgment was registered, and the party relying on the lien is entitled to such presumption, in the absence of rebutting evidence. Willis v. Smith, 66 Tex. 31, 17 S. W. 247.

Land to which lien attaches—Estate or interest of judgment debtor.—The common-law rule that a judgment lien attaches only to such estate in land as is owned by judgment debtor at the time the abstract of judgment was filed, notwithstanding a prior unrecorded deed, has been abrogated by art. 6824. Diltz v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 356.

Purchaser of land sold on alias execution under judgment recovered by vendors against vendee and assigned, abstract of judgment being legally issued and filed for record, held not in position of one who finds record title in judgment debtor, and fixes lien on his property which would be effective, though debtor may have conveyed to another by unrecorded deed, being in position of claiming lien on property not shown by record to be debtor's. Lewis v. San Antonio Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 552, 991.

A judgment creditor has no lien upon vendor's lien notes held by judgment debtor from sale of land after rendition of judgment, and cannot invoke equitable powers of court and through instrumentality of an injunction and receivership subject them to payment of judgment. Tunnell v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 451.

Rights of lienholder.—One who converted mortgaged property to his own use, the property being subject to prior lien in favor of judgment creditors, is liable to such creditors to the extent of the value of the property converted, not to exceed the amount of their judgment. Burlington State Bank v. Marlin Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 954.

Priorities.—Where an abstract of judgment is filed for record prior to the deposit of a deed, and is recorded the day after the deposit of said deed, but before the deed is actually recorded, held, the party claiming under the deed has a title good against the lien of the judgment. Belbaze v. Ratto, 69 Tex. 636, 7 S. W. 501.

A judgment is not a lien as against a deed recorded before the judgment is indexed. Nye v. Moody, 70 Tex. 434, 8 S. W. 606.

Where deed reserving vendor's lien for purchase-money note was recorded, and such lien assigned by unrecorded instrument, the original deed was notice to vendor's creditors only until purchase-money note was outlawed, and liens of judgments against vendor secured after note was barred by statute of limitations are superior to assignee's rights under vendor's lien. Price v. Traders' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 934.

Despite article 1104, purchaser of land sold on alias execution under judgment recovered by vendors against vendee and assigned, abstract of judgment being legally issued and filed for record, held to take subject to title previously conveyed away by vendee by deed not filed for record until more than three weeks after abstract of judgment was filed, recorded, and indexed, as record of abstract of judgment creates lien only on property actually owned by judgment debtor. Lewis v. San Antonio Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 552.

Where at time judgment was rendered for creditor, court determined that all of the judgment debtor's land was within the homestead exemption, and the homestead was abandoned after another creditor had obtained a judgment, the creditor who obtained the second judgment had a prior lien upon any excess over the homestead exemption, but the creditor first obtaining judgment had a first lien upon the balance remaining. Harrison v. First Nat. Bank of Lewisville (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 269.

The holder of an unrecorded deed to land sold under execution, when sued in trespass to try title, had the burden of showing that the judgment creditor had notice of the deed at the time the abstract of his judgment was recorded. Ives v. Culton (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 321, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 619.

Though a contract employing an attorney to sue on notes for the attorney's fees stipulated therein amounted to an equitable assignment of an interest in the judgment to the attorney, such interest was severable from that of the client, and the client's interest was not affected by the attorney's previously and independently acquired knowledge of an unrecorded deed to land sold in satisfaction of the judgment. Id.

Foreclosure of lien.—If any part of judgment constituted valid lien on land in controversy, such lien could be foreclosed, either by execution sale or by decree of foreclosure in suit for that purpose. Ives v. Culton (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 619, judgment affirmed (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 321.

Art. 5617. [3290] Lien exists, how long.

Construction and application in general.—This article has no reference to decrees establishing or foreclosing contract liens. Willis v. Smith, 66 Tex. 31, 17 S. W. 247.

Duration of lien—issuance of execution.—A judgment ceases to be a lien if more than 12 months are allowed to elapse between the issuance of a first and a second execution, even though the first execution was issued within 12 months from the date of the judgment. Adams v. Crosby, 84 Tex. 99, 19 S. W. 355.

Plaintiff in trespass to try title claimed under a sheriff's deed as purchaser at an execution sale. The judgment was recovered in 1885, execution issued in 1886, abstract filed for record in 1887, and execution under which plaintiff claimed issued in 1889. Held, in the absence of anything to show that the 1886 execution was issued within 12 months after rendition of judgment, and that therefore the judgment was not dormant when the abstract was filed in 1887, that judgment was properly rendered for defendant. Evans v. Frisbie, 84 Tex. 341, 19 S. W. 510.

Art. 5618. [3291] Satisfaction of judgment, shown how.

Cited, Evans v. Frisbie, 84 Tex. 341, 19 S. W. 510.

Satisfaction.—Evidence held to support court's finding that neither fraud nor duress was practiced upon judgment creditor to induce her to accept $30 in full satisfaction of a judgment for $175. Irby v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 290.

Merger.—Where a judgment was rendered against a surety on a note, and also against a railroad company on its notes given as collateral to secure the note, and the railroad company subsequently became insolvent and went into the hands of receivers, an intervention by the judgment creditor in the receivership proceedings did not affect the status of the judgment on the note, and did not result in a merger of the two suits or judgments. Walker v. Chatterton (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 1100, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 192 S. W. 1085.

Art. 5619. [3292] Satisfaction of judgment to be entered on judgment record.

Cited, Evans v. Frisbie, 84 Tex. 341, 19 S. W. 510.

CHAPTER TWO

MECHANICS, CONTRACTORS, BUILDERS AND MATERIAL MEN

Art. 5621. In favor of whom.	Art. 5627. What is sufficient diligence; what included on property in city or county.
5622. When to be filed.	5629. When sold separately purchaser may remove.
5623. Written notice to owner; filing with county clerk; owner to file contract and bond of contractor; effect.	5631. On homesteads, how fixed.
5623a. Duty of owner to take bond; form and contents; suit on bond; change of plans not to discharge sureties.	5632. Notice to owner of property.
5624. Form of fixing lien on unwritten contracts.	5633. Diligence, what is sufficient.
5625. Form when material is furnished to contractor or builder and not the owner of property.	5634. Contractor to be furnished by owner with account.
5626. Description of property.	5635. Original contractor to defend suit by subcontractors, etc.
	5636. When indebtedness accrues.
	5637. Liens upon equal footing.
	5638. Speedy enforcement of.

Article 5621. [3294] In favor of whom.

See Bryan College Interurban Ry. Co. v. Kropp (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 733; Hicks v. Faust, 109 Tex. 481, 212 S. W. 608.

Validity.—The materialman's lien law is justified upon the ground that the material for which the lien is sought has been converted into a part of the realty and has increased the value of the realty by becoming a part thereof. Hess v. Denman Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 162.

Property subject to lien.—No materialman's or laborer's lien can attach to public buildings, as a courthouse, erected by a county, but independent of any statute, a municipality has implied authority to bind contractors to pay the claims of laborers and materialmen, and hence, the county may by contract, regardless of any statute, obligate the contractor to give bond to secure materialmen and laborers, for such agreements are justifiable, just as lien statutes, on the theory that they protect public interest by securing responsible dealers and better materials. Mosher Mfg. Co. v. Equitable Surety Co. (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 318.

Right to lien—Constitution as origin.—Const. art. 16, § 37, is a self-executing provision and creates a mechanic's lien for repairs, etc., which lien does not depend upon the statute to be enacted for its enforcement. McBride v. Beakley (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1137; Wichita Falls Sash & Door Co. v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 100; City Nat. Bank of Wichita Falls v. Laughlin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 617.

— Nature of claim.—This article does not give contractor lien for services rendered in constructing roadbed or laying out railroad; only lien being for materials furnished. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Hales (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 903.

There being no statutory provision for giving notice of mechanic's lien on "articles made," one who makes store fixtures for lessee, and, without actual notice of lien to lessor, permits them to be put in leased store, relinquishes against landlord's lien, any priority of lien. Rev. St. 1911, arts. 5621, 5622, 5624. Wichita Falls Sash & Door Co. v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 100.

Contractor to erect building is not entitled to lien to secure notes given by owners of land not to him, but to materialman. Herring v. Barber (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 142.

— Contract with or consent of owner.—A lien can be enforced by an original contractor though his contract is not in writing. State v. Cherokee Iron Mfg. Co., 2 Civ. App. 588, 22 S. W. 253.

Where contract for improving street provided that contractor was granted mechanic's lien on premises to secure payment of contract price, lien provided for held a "mechanic's lien," and not a "mortgage lien," nor a "pledge of land." Schutze v. Dabney (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 342.

— Breach of contract.—That improvements called for by a mechanic's lien contract were completed by other workmen would not affect owner's liability to pay or his liability by virtue of a deed of trust and secured note given to induce payee to pay for such improvements. Blackmon v. Texas Securities Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 590.

— Assignment of contract.—Where contractor's assignment of his contract was recognized by owner before subcontractors and lien claimants gave statutory notice of their claims, assignee's rights were superior to those of such subcontractors. Gordon-Jones Co. v. Welder (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 681.

In mechanic's lien proceeding, evidence that contractor assigned contract before abandoning it held to sustain finding that nothing was due contractor at date of abandonment. Id.

— Persons entitled to lien.—The equitable owner of property, who has transferred the legal title to another merely for the purpose of building, cannot, on furnishing material for such building, claim a lien therefor as against real lienholders. Texas Fidelity & Bonding Co. v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 301.

Materialman, who had given proper notice to fix lien, was not deprived of lien, though owner, after such notice, paid the contractor the full contract price. Fox v. Christopher & Simpson Iron Works Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 833.

Operation and effect.—Defendants, in consideration of work and materials furnished for their homestead, gave a mechanic's lien on the improvements, and the land on which the same was situated, "which said land is more particularly described as follows: 'Tract or parcel of land known as lot No. nine, (9,) in block No. two.'" The house was built on lots 9 and 10, both of which were designated as defendants' "homestead" at the time of their purchase. Held, that the particular description of the land on which the lien was given in the contract must prevail over the general description, and there was no lien on lot 10, but under this article, there was a lien on the improvements on both lots, and the purchaser on foreclosure of the lien could remove the improvements from lot 10. Crooker v. Grant, 5 Civ. App. 182, 24 S. W. 639.

A subcontractor, giving owners notice of its claim against contractor, established a lien against the property; but such lien did not create a personal liability of the owners for payment of claim. Fox v. Christopher & Simpson Iron Works Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 833.

Assignment of lien.—An assignment of builders' lien without an assignment of the debt would be without meaning or use, and the lien follows the debt. Miller v. Guaranty Trust & Banking Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 642.

Waiver of lien.—Where contract of subcontractor expressly waived and released lien for labor or material, in action on quantum meruit, alleging rescission, subcontractor held not entitled to mechanic's lien. Collinsville Mfg. Co. v. Street (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 284.

Art. 5622. [3295] When to be filed.

See Collinsville Mfg. Co. v. Street (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 284; Gordon-Jones Const. Co. v. Welder (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 681; Wichita Falls Sash & Door Co. v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 100; Hicks v. Faust, 109 Tex. 481, 212 S. W. 608.

Cited, Webb v. Koger, 78 Tex. 1, 14 S. W. 238; Bosley v. Pease (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 516.

Time for filing.—Where a person enters into a contract with the owner of a building to furnish material for the building, and there is no middleman or other contractor intervening between them, he must be deemed an "original contractor," having four months within which to file a lien, and is not, therefore, confined to the thirty days allowed a "day laborer or other person" for that purpose. Matthews v. Wagenhaeuser Brewing Ass'n, 83 Tex. 604, 19 S. W. 150.

Effect of filing.—Claimant sold ice and refrigerating machinery to a Texas corporation which became a bankrupt. The machinery was complete in itself and could be disconnected without injury to the bankrupt's plant as it theretofore existed by unbolting four connections. Adjudication in bankruptcy followed less than a month after delivery, and claimant within four months of delivery filed the contract of sale which was in the form of a letter with an acceptance written thereon by the bankrupt. The letter showed that the bankrupt was engaged in manufacturing artificial ice at the place of its address. Held that as claimant had a materialman's lien under Const. art. 16, § 37, and as the requirements of arts. 5622-5627, are intended merely to give notice to persons other than the purchaser, claimant acquired a lien valid as against the trustee in bankruptcy who under Bankr. Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 47a, 30 Stat. 557 (U. S. Comp. St. § 9631), took the rights of a lien creditor, for the land on which the machinery was installed could readily be located from the contract. Reeves v. York Engineering & Supply Co., 249 Fed. 513, 161 C. C. A. 439.

A mechanic's lien exists from the time the work is begun, if the verified account is filed for record within four months after the demand becomes due, and is entitled to priority over a mortgage executed by the owner during the performance of the work, though the lien was not recorded when the mortgage was executed. Schultz v. Alamo Ice & Brewing Co., 2 Civ. App. 236, 21 S. W. 160.

Recording.—This article does not make it necessary that they be recorded in a book kept exclusively for that purpose, and a record thereof in the general deed record books is sufficient where it appears that such books were also kept and used to record mechanics' liens, and that no book was kept in the county clerk's office for such purpose alone. (Bosley v. Pease [Civ. App.] 22 S. W. 516, followed.) Lignoski v. Crooker (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 774.

Art. 5623. [3296] Written notice to owner; filing with county clerk; owner to file contract and bond of contractor; effect.

See Wichita Falls Sash & Door Co. v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 100; Hicks v. Faust, 109 Tex. 481, 212 S. W. 608; Neel v. First Presbyterian Church of Marlin (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 411.

In general.—A mechanic's lien account, and affidavit, filed within 90 days after delivery of plate glass, sent to replace glass broken on former shipment, held filed within 90 days after last delivery, as required by art. 5636. Cruz v. Texas Glass & Paint Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 819.

One who furnished material to a subcontractor to be used in the construction of a building may fix a lien upon the property and secure the payment of the price of the material so furnished, without regard to the original contractor; the latter not being entitled to written notice referred to in such statute. Burns & Hamilton Co. v. Denver Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 719.

Constitutionality.—The provision limiting recovery by subcontractors to original contract price does not violate Const. art. 16, § 37, guaranteeing lien to materialmen and laborers. Gordon-Jones Const. Co. v. Welder (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 681.

The provision requiring owner to contract with the builder to give a bond conditioned as required by article 5623a, held void, being an interference with the law of liberty of contract. Hess v. Denman Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 162.

The economic advantage of the owner, if any, of having the lien satisfied by the bond would not justify the exercise of the police power requiring him to make a compulsory contract with the contractor to give a bond. Id.

Notice to owner.—Claimant sold ice and refrigerating machinery to a Texas corporation which became a bankrupt. The machinery was complete in itself and could be disconnected without injury to the bankrupt's plant as it theretofore existed by unbolting four connections. Adjudication in bankruptcy followed less than a month after delivery, and claimant within four months of delivery filed the contract of sale which was in the form of a letter with an acceptance written thereon by the bankrupt. The letter showed that the bankrupt was engaged in manufacturing artificial ice at the place of its address. Held that as claimant had a materialman's lien under Const. art. 16, § 37, and as the requirements of arts. 5622-5627, providing for the filing of the contract within four months, are intended merely to give notice to persons other than the purchaser, claimant acquired a lien valid as against the trustee in bankruptcy who under Bankr. Act July 1, 1898, c. 541, § 47a, 30 Stat. 557 (U. S. Comp. St. § 9631), took the rights of a lien creditor, for the land on which the machinery was installed could readily be located from the contract. Reeves v. York Engineering & Supply Co., 249 Fed. 513, 161 C. C. A. 439.

Materialman who has furnished material to contractor, and between whom and owner there is no relation of creditor and debtor, and who did not give owner written notices of the items of material furnished to contractor and how much there was due and unpaid on bill of material, and who did not file itemized account of claim in office of county clerk, cannot recover balance due on such material from owner, who has paid contractor all that was due him after waiting a reasonable time after completion of the building, and who had no notice of materialman's claim; owner being under no legal relation to the materialman selling the contractor so as to render him personally liable for contractor's debt. Hess v. Denman Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 162.

— Sufficiency.—In mechanic's lien proceedings by several materialmen and subcontractors, the giving of notice of claim by one subcontractor does not inure to the benefit of others, their right depending upon their own compliance with the statutory requirements unaided by the diligence of others. First Nat. Bank v. Lyon-Gray Lumber Co., 110 Tex. 162, 217 S. W. 133.

Verbal notice, when either given to the owner or his agent, is not a sufficient compliance with this article, as it read prior to amendments by the Thirty-Fourth and Thirty-Fifth Legislatures. Burns & Hamilton Co. v. Denver Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 719.

The agent of the owner of a building being constructed to whom notice may be given under this article, as it read prior to the amendments by the Thirty-Fourth and Thirty-Fifth Legislatures, must be such agent as the owner has expressly vested with authority to receive such notice, or referred to as the one to whom such notice might be given, or be an agent of general authority in such managerial or directing situation with reference to the construction of the building as constitutes him the alter ego of the owner. Id.

Itemized account.—Where a materialman has failed to file any account or claim in the county clerk's office, he cannot enforce his claim as against the owner or its property in mechanic's lien proceedings, the filing of an itemized account as well as written notice being a prerequisite to the enforcement of the debt, not only as against subsequent purchasers, but also as against the owner. First Nat. Bank v. Lyon-Gray Lumber Co., 110 Tex. 162, 217 S. W. 133.

Limitation of amount of owner's liability.—Materialman's lien against building is limited to amount due from owner to contractor when materialman's notice is served. Thelander v. Becker (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 848.

Materialmen are charged with notice whether any debt is due contractor from owner when materialmen's notice of liens are filed. Id.

Where no installment of the price of the work was due the contractor for work done when a materialman or a mechanic gave notice to the owner's agents for the purpose of receiving such notice, the materialman or mechanic secured no right against the owner or the property, through the giving of such notice, accompanied by presentation of an order for payment from the contractor, claimed to operate as an assignment. Leeper-Curd Lumber Co. v. Barbuzza (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 216.

Where the owner of a building in the process of construction has paid to the contractor amounts in excess of a materialman's claim after being properly served with written notice, the materialman's right either to a personal judgment or a foreclosure is not affected because the contractor abandoned the contract, and the owner completed the building at a cost in excess of the contract price. First Nat. Bank v. Lyon-Gray Lumber Co., 110 Tex. 162, 217 S. W. 133.

— Payments to original contractor.—When notice is given to the owner or his agent of the fact that material has been furnished a contractor, subcontractor, agent, or receiver, a lien is fixed on the property to the extent of the sum afterwards paid under the original contract. Texas Fidelity & Bonding Co. v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 301.

The lien of materialmen upon the contract money paid to the contractor after notice of such lien, is not affected by the fact that the money so paid to the contractor was used by it to pay current weekly pay rolls of workmen, necessary to be paid to avoid stoppage of the work. Id.

Materialman, who had given proper notice to fix lien, was not deprived of lien, though owner, after such notice, paid the contractor the full contract price. Fox v. Christopher & Simpson Iron Works Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 833.

Building contractor's assignment of owner's negotiable note as collateral security held payment of contract price so as to preclude materialmen from thereafter fixing liens against owner's property though the owner's note was not such payment. Thelander v. Becker (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 848.

That the owner under a building contract, providing that 20 per cent. of the contract price be reserved until completion of the building, agrees with the contractor to modify such requirement so as to permit the use of part of the reserve fund, does not affect the owner's liability to subcontractors and materialmen whose notices of claim were not then filed. First Nat. Bank v. Lyon-Gray Lumber Co., 110 Tex. 162, 217 S. W. 133.

Where owner paid contractor, after materialman, by giving owner notice of his claim for material furnished subcontractor and by filing and recording proper account within proper time, acquired lien, personal judgment against owner and contractor for amount of materialman's claim was proper. Wilson v. Sherwin-Williams Paint Co., 110 Tex. 156, 217 S. W. 372.

Materialman who has given owner notice of claim for material furnished subcontractor at a time when owner's indebtedness to contractor exceeded such claim, and who has filed and recorded proper account within 90 days from date of furnishing last item, is entitled to lien for amount of claim, though contractor after material was furnished and before notice was served on owner had settled in full with subcontractor, and though materialman had not given owner notice as each item of material was furnished. Id.

Materialman who has furnished material to contractor, and between whom and owner there is no relation of creditor and debtor, and who did not give owner written notices of the items of material furnished to contractor and how much there was due and unpaid on bill of material, and who did not file itemized account of claim in office of county clerk, cannot recover balance due on such material from owner, who has paid contractor all that was due him after waiting a reasonable time after completion of the building, and who had no notice of materialman's claim; owner being under no legal relation to the materialman selling the contractor so as to render him personally liable for contractor's debt. Hess v. Denman Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 162.

Bond.—Sureties of contractor to erect church building held not released because of changes in plans and specifications which architect authorized and church trustees paid for. Garrett v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 675.

In order to constitute a sufficient statutory obligation, the bond of a contractor with a county must comply substantially with the terms and requirements of the statute, and when it appears from the bond that no effort was made to condition it for the payment of laborers and materialmen, since this article will not be read into the instrument to create a liability not disclosed by the language used. Scharbauer v. Lampasas County (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 468.

Art. 5623a. Duty of owner to take bond; form and contents; suit on bond; change of plans not to discharge sureties.

Cited, Williams v. Baldwin (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 975.

Validity.—Art. 5623, as amended by Acts 1915, c. 143 (Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 5623), requiring owner to contract with the builder to give a bond conditioned as required by this article, held void, being an interference with the law of liberty of contract, since the economic advantage of the owner, if any, of having the lien satisfied by the bond would not justify the exercise of the police power requiring him to make a compulsory contract with the contractor to give a bond. Hess v. Denman Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 162.

Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 5623a, providing that no change in the plans of building, construction, or method of payment shall avoid or affect liability on the bond of a building contractor, and limiting defenses to those which may be made by the contractor, does not violate federal Const. Amend. 14, as depriving the sureties of the right to contract, or as denying sureties the equal protection of the law. Wright v. A. G. McAdams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 571.

This article is unconstitutional as an unwarranted interference with the right of contract. Williams v. Baldwin (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 554.

In so far as this article provides that no change or alteration in the plans, building construction, or method of payment shall affect the liability under a contractor's bond, it is unconstitutional. Southern Surety Co. v. Nalle & Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 402. Contra, see Wright v. A. G. McAdams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 571.

Operation and effect in general.—This article does not relate to a bond given under art. 6394f, requiring public school contractors to give bond. Cooper v. H. H. Hardin & Co. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 550; Larkin v. Pruett Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 443.

This article being operative when defendants signed as sureties, it became part of their contract, and they are bound with knowledge of its provisions and the extent to which it would affect their rights and liabilities. Wright v. A. G. McAdams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 571.

Validity of bond.—A building contract made under this article was valid, though the contract and bond were not filed with the clerk before the work was commenced. Wright v. A. G. McAdams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 571.

While a person cannot be both obligor and obligee in a bond, yet one furnishing material for the construction of a church building may recover on the contractor's bond, though members of the church committee who were named as obligees signed as sureties. Alfalfa Lumber Co. v. Hope (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 81.

Failure to record a contractor's bond, which, save as to amount, complied with this article, does not affect its validity and prevent recovery. Id.

Though a contractor's bond was for less than one-half of the contract price as specified, that will not invalidate the same. Id.

Contractor's bond providing that, "in order to secure compliance by the contractors with each and all of his obligations and covenants, they have this day entered into bond, payable to the owner, in the sum of $5,000," held to have been taken by owner voluntarily and without statutory compulsion. Williams v. Baldwin (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 554.

Liability on contractor's bond.—One furnishing material to a building contractor could not recover against surety company's contractor for completion of building. Fox v. Christopher & Simpson Iron Works Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 833.

Where a contractor agreed to pay a subcontractor certain specified prices for building work by providing funds necessary to meet the subcontractor's weekly pay roll with final payment of the balance within 30 days after acceptance of the work, etc., and the subcontractor duly completed his contract but the weekly advancements exceeded the total sum due, held, that the contractor could not recover such excess from the subcontractor's sureties on a bond guaranteeing the subcontractor's faithful completion of his contract, since to do so would extend the sureties' liability beyond the terms of their bond. McGregor & Henger v. Escajeda (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 398.

Discharge of sureties.—Independently of and under Acts 34th Leg. c. 143, amending art. 5623, and adding this article, sureties of contractor to erect church building held not released because of changes in plans and specifications which architect authorized and church trustees paid for. Garrett v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 675.

A building contract and contractor's bond entered into subsequent to Acts 34th Leg.

c. 143, adding this article, was entered into with reference to such statute, and owner's payment of the full contract price for the building before it was completed and accepted, and failure to retain 20 per cent. of the contract price as provided, did not release the bondsmen as against the owner. Tarkington Prairie Lodge, A. F. & A. M., No. 493, v. George W. Smyth Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 588.

Where a construction contract was complete as a binding obligation when the sureties signed the contractor's bond containing blanks, and none of the matters mentioned, either in the stickers pasted on the contract subsequently or in a letter, tended to make a new or different contract further than authorized by this article, the sureties' plea of non est factum is no defense against materialmen and subcontractors. Wright v. A. G. McAdams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 571.

Where contractor's bond taken by owner voluntarily and not in compliance with this article, included materialmen and laborers as obligees, and was conditioned for the payment of claims for labor performed and material furnished, the sureties were not discharged from liability to laborers and materialmen by reason of owner's payments to contractor in violation of the bond unless materialmen and laborers knew of such violation at the time of furnishing the material and performing the labor. Williams v. Baldwin (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 554.

Right of action on contractor's bond.—One furnishing material to a building contractor could not recover on bonds given by a surety company to owner to indemnify owner against loss. Fox v. Christopher & Simpson Iron Works Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 833.

Under provision of building contract between surety which had given indemnity bond to owner and its contractor to complete the work, held, that a materialman was entitled to recover for materials furnished. Id.

A subcontractor, suing the sureties for a building contractor, had the right to sue directly on the bond, and to disregard his right of action on his express contract. Wright v. A. G. McAdams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 571.

Where a building contractor executed a bond conditioned in part upon prompt payment to all subcontractors, "furnishers of material," etc., and plaintiff furnished and delivered on the premises to a subcontractor certain material that went into the house, for the express purpose of being so used, plaintiff was "a furnisher of material" within the bond. Koehler v. Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 785.

Where a building contractor executed a bond partly conditioned upon payment to all furnishers of material used in the building, plaintiff, which furnished materials for use in the building to a subcontractor, was in privity with the chief contractor and could sue him on the bond. Id.

Actions on contractors' bonds.—The suit on the contractor's bond, being against the owner as well as the building contractors, the owner is entitled to recover his attorney's fees against the contractor's surety. Wright v. A. G. McAdams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 571.

In suit between materialmen, subcontractors, and laborers against the owner, the contractors, and their sureties, though the contractors had assigned to their sureties any balance due from the owner, the court did not err in failing to render judgment for the sureties for such a balance, where the owner had a claim for damages from delay in completion and for attorney's fees, which claim might properly be set off in equity against his assigned obligation to the contractors. Id.

Proof that the bond of a contractor engaged to construct a church building was found in the custody of the treasurer of the church, who was the official custodian of its papers, the bond itself being duly signed by personal sureties, warrants a finding of delivery. Alfalfa Lumber Co. v. Hope (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 81.

Sureties executing contractor's bond could not by agreement with owner confer exclusive jurisdiction to try action on bond on courts of specified county; the venue in such action being fixed by statute, and not by contract. Neel v. First Presbyterian Church of Marlin (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 411.

Art. 5631. [3304] On homestead, how fixed.

In general.—A trust-deed upon a homestead to secure money borrowed for the purpose of erecting a building thereon creates no lien. Ellerman v. Wurz (Sup.) 14 S. W. 333.

Mere reference to contract between contractor to erect building on homestead land and owners of homestead, in deed of trust given to materialman, did not create lien in favor of materialman against homestead. Herring v. Barber (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 142.

Where the owner of a lot not fully paid for contracted for the building of a house thereon, and subsequently, being unable to meet his payments, rescinded the contract of purchase, destroyed his unrecorded deed, and had title taken in the name of the contractor, who in turn conveyed it back to the owner, retaining a vendor's lien, the homestead right of the owner attached before the transfer was made, the lot having been dedicated for that purpose, and the dedication having been completed when the improvements were begun, so that as to parties with notice no valid lien could be created to secure the antecedent debt. Martin v. Granger (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 666.

Where omissions by contractor on improvements to homestead are unintentional and do not impair the structure as a whole, and may be compensated for by deduction from contract price, there is a substantial performance which entitles contractor to lien. Harrop v. National Loan & Investment Co. of Detroit, Mich. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 878.

In foreclosure of mechanic's lien on homestead, a lien should not be adjudged for attorney's fees. Id.

Where husband and wife, having homestead on three lots, conveyed one lot to wife's sister to have house built on it to rent, other part of lots being sufficient for homestead, and occupied by husband and wife as such, lot on which house was built was segregated as part of homestead, and lost character, and mechanic's lien attached. Ferguson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 966.

Where a portion of the homestead has been abandoned, in foreclosing a materialman's lien on such portion there is no legal objection to including the amount of attorney's fees in the foreclosure. Lipscomb v. Adamson Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 228.

One who with his wife gives a materialman's lien on his homestead by written contract cannot defeat the lien by showing he also intended to cover the cost of the labor in such contract, but that he or his creditor failed to do so. Id.

The fact that an advancement was a loan to husband and wife to improve their homestead did not avoid the effect in fixing lien for the money so borrowed, where the facts showed that all of the loan was used for such purpose. Turbeville v. Book (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 814.

The fact that money lent husband and wife to improve their homestead was turned over to the husband by the contractor to pay for material and labor does not vitiate or avoid the lien of the loan, particularly where no question is raised by either husband or wife as to whether the improvements were constructed in strict accord with the contract. Id.

Foreclosure of a mechanic's lien upon community property and homestead could not be set aside by the wife, although not made a party to the suit and not served with citation, except for fraud upon her homestead rights, the foreclosure sale being regular, and where a bank purchased the judgment and had the property sold thereunder and resold to the husband who gave vendor's lien notes therefor sufficient to cover the judgment, such vendor's lien notes constituted a valid lien upon the property as against the wife, at least to the extent of the amount owing upon the mechanic's lien notes. Cooley v. Miller (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 1085.

Necessity of compliance with requirements.—One B. purchased land, and made a trust-deed to a building association to secure a loan, the deed reciting that it was not a homestead, and was free from all liens and exemptions. B. began to build a house for himself and family on the land, and purchased from W. lumber for that purpose. B., before all the lumber was furnished, moved, with his family, onto the lot. Held that, the property being the homestead of B. and his family, W. could acquire no lien against it, except by contract entered into when the material was furnished, and signed by the husband and wife, and acknowledged by her as required in the sale of a homestead. Sutherland v. Williams (Sup.) 11 S. W. 1067.

There can be no lien upon homestead acquired by materialman who furnished material for building erected thereon, not to owners of homestead, but to builder who contracted with owners, unless such materialman has complied with statute. Herring v. Barber (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 142.

In absence of substantial compliance with building contract, no lien can be fixed on homestead. Harrop v. National Loan & Investment Co. of Detroit, Mich. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 878.

Where a contract for improvements on a homestead was not executed in compliance with the statutes in reference to mechanics' liens on homesteads, it could not fix a lien for the improvements in favor of the contractor. Wright v. A. G. McAdams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 571.

Sufficiency of contract.—Where a contract for the erection of a building on a homestead by its own terms creates a lien in favor of the contractor, an allegation in the petition that the contract was filed with the county clerk, and recorded by him in a specified book, shows sufficient compliance with statutory requirements. Lignoski v. Crooker (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 774.

Sale of homestead under trust deed given to secure notes, executed in payment of improvement of homestead, under contract signed by husband and wife, was valid. Bowers v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 82.

Deed of trust on homestead to secure payment of note given by husband and wife to contractor to erect building is invalid where there is no contract in writing for work and material, though money secured on note is afterwards used to improve homestead. Herring v. Barber (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 142.

Where husband and wife give deed of trust on homestead which does not show contract for erection of building, or consideration, deed, though duly executed by both, does not create lien on homestead. Id.

A mechanic's lien contract on a homestead need not set out specifications of building, except general essentials. Harrop v. National Loan & Investment Co. of Detroit, Mich. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 878.

Contract for lien on homestead providing for construction of $2,000 house, $600 to be paid in cash, and $1,400 to be secured by mechanic's lien, is not invalid, as far as the owner is concerned, because contract was really to repair and enlarge an old house; contractor allowing $600 for lumber and material in standing walls. Id.

A contract for mechanic's lien on homestead, could validly provide that a failure to complete improvements should not defeat lien for contract price, less such amount as would be reasonably necessary to complete improvement. Id.

A contract signed by husband and wife giving a materialman's lien upon their described homestead for material for "the erection, repairs, and improvements on our homestead," and reciting consideration, time of payment, and rate of interest, held sufficient, although containing no itemization or description of material, since it could be shown by parol the quantity, pieces, or articles that were agreed on, and that they were thereafter actually delivered. Lipscomb v. Adamson Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 228.

A contract for improvement of the homestead of husband and wife, to subject it to forced sale, need not insure value received for the moneys expended. Turbeville v. Book (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 814.

Lien on homestead of husband and wife for improvements held fixed by a contract in writing complying with Const. art. 16, § 50, and this article. Id.

Where contract for the improvement of the homestead of husband and wife by erecting a building complied with Const. art. 16, § 50, and this article, the resulting lien is enforceable against the homestead, though the building as finished cost more than the contract called for, where the wife knew of such changes and increase*in cost. Id.

Homestead interest of wife is no more a defense to a suit to foreclose a mechanic's lien, when executed according to law, than it is a defense in an action to foreclose a vendor's or tax lien. Cooley v. Miller (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 1085.

A reference to a contract to erect a building on homestead land in a deed of trust given to a materialman on the same day created a lien in favor of the materialman against the homestead; the trust deed and the contract constituting one contract. Barber v. Herring (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 472.

Art. 5632. [3305] Notice of sub-contractor or laborer to owner of property.

See Hess v. Denman Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 162.

Construction and operation.—Where several lien creditors showed notice of claim to the owner of a building being constructed at a time when he held funds in excess of existing lawful demands against him subject to enforcement in point of priority, then whether their notices were filed in point of time or not, if fixation is completed within the statutory period, they should be paid in full, but should the funds be less than the aggregate of such claims payment should be made pro rata. Rotsky v. Kelsay Lumber Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 558.

Where the owner, after deducting the amount of claims for liens already filed, paid further amounts to the contractor, succeeding claims should be treated as claims in the first instance, except that they attach only to any balance left in the owner's hands either from previous assignments or liens, but when the entire contract price is exhausted the owner cannot be held for further payments. Id.

Where lien claims and equitable assignments arise out of construction of a building, diligent claimants are entitled to priority over others, and claimants, who by their delay have allowed the owner to pay out funds they might otherwise have impounded, cannot thereafter demand that they share with diligent claimants. Id.

Effect of notice.—In case of liens against the property of an owner of a building in construction, the impounding of funds due the contractor dates from the service of statutory notice, presuming that fixation is completed as required by statute. Rotsky v. Kelsay Lumber Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 558.

Should an owner of a building after notice of a claim pay out to the contractor funds lawfully impounded, he becomes personally liable to assignees, and his property becomes bound to answer to liens fixed by diligent claimants. Id.

Art. 5633. [3306] Diligence, what is sufficient.

Art. 5634. [3307] Contractor to be furnished by owner with account.

Art. 5636. [3309] When indebtedness accrues.

Accrual of indebtedness.—A mechanic's lien account, and affidavit, filed within 90 days after delivery of plate glass, sent to replace glass broken on former shipment held filed within 90 days after last delivery as required by Rev. St. art. 5636. Cruz v. Texas Glass & Paint Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 819.

Art. 5637. [3310] Liens upon equal footing.

See First Nat. Bank v. Lyon-Gray Lumber Co., 110 Tex. 162, 217 S. W. 133.

Art. 5638. Enforcement of.

Construction and operation.—This article has no application to a materialman asserting an equitable assignment of a portion of the contract price. Rotsky v. Kelsay Lumber Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 558.

Where lien claims and equitable assignments arise out of construction of a building, diligent claimants are entitled to priority over others, and claimants, who by their delay have allowed the owner to pay out funds they might otherwise have impounded, cannot thereafter demand that they share with diligent claimants. Id.

Retention of funds by owner.—Where several lien creditors showed notice of claim to the owner of a building being constructed at a time when he held funds in excess of existing lawful demands against him subject to enforcement in point of priority, then whether their notices were filed in point of time or not, if fixation is completed within the statutory period, they should be paid in full, but should the funds be less than the aggregate of such claims payment should be made pro rata. Rotsky v. Kelsay Lumber Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 558.

In case of liens against the property of an owner of a building in construction, the impounding of funds due the contractor dates from the service of statutory notice, presuming that fixation is completed as required by statute. Id.

Should an owner of a building after notice of a claim pay out to the contractor funds lawfully impounded, he becomes personally liable to assignees, and his property becomes bound to answer to liens fixed by diligent claimants. Id.

Where the owner, after deducting the amount of claims for liens already filed, paid further amounts to the contractor, succeeding claims should be treated as claims in the first instance, except that they attach only to any balance left in the owner's hands either from previous assignments or liens, but when the entire contract price is exhausted the owner cannot be held for further payments. Id.

Foreclosure suit.—Mechanic's lien defendant cannot destroy court's jurisdiction, which had attached to him, by leaving state and instructing his attorney to make no further defense. Cruz v. Texas Glass & Paint Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 819.

Mechanic's lien defendant who answered original petition was bound to take notice of materialman's intervention. Id.

Original contractor, payee of notes and beneficiary of mechanic's and builder's lien, who subsequently purchased property, as part consideration assuming payment of notes, was not necessary party to proceedings to foreclose lien in sense that failure to make him party rendered foreclosure void. Hartfield v. Greber (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 85.

In action to foreclose contract lien, where there was no contention as to whether contract had been complied with, the introduction in evidence of the notes and contract lien held to establish prima facie case for foreclosure of the lien. Johnson v. Barker (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 348.

CHAPTER TWO A

LIENS ON OIL, GAS, OR WATER WELLS, MINES, QUARRIES, AND PIPE LINES

Article 5639a. Contracting laborers and materialmen entitled to lien.

See Burns & Hamilton Co. v. Denver Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 719.

CHAPTER THREE

LIENS OF RAILROAD LABORERS

Art. 5640. Railroad laborers, etc., to have lien, when.	Art. 5641. Lien, how foreclosed. 5643. Lien ceases, when.
---	---

Article 5640. [3312] Railroad laborers, etc., to have lien, when.

Construction and operation in general.—This article is separate and distinct from arts. 5621 to 5639, as to general mechanics' liens, and the only requirement is that steps to enforce the lien be taken within 12 months after its creation. Bryan College Interurban Ry. Co. v. Kropp (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 733.

The lien arises when the work is done, and the execution of notes thereafter does not create a lien. Bryan College Interurban Ry. Co. v. Kropp (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 733.

Who entitled to lien.—The word "laborer," means one who performs manual services in construction, repair, or operation contemplated by the statute, and does not embrace one who may work in preparing materials to be used in the construction of the road. St. Louis, A. & T. Ry. Co. v. Mathews, 75 Tex. 92, 12 S. W. 976.

This article gives no lien to one who has undertaken and performed a subcontract for the construction of several miles, at a specified sum per mile. Krakauer v. Locke, 6 Civ. App. 446, 25 S. W. 700.

L. contracted with a railroad company to build its road, and made a contract with R. to make excavations for a stipulated price. R. performed his contract, hiring men therefor, using his own teams and implements, and superintending the work. Held, that R. was a contractor, and not a mechanic, operative, or laborer, and that he was not entitled to a lien. (Krakauer v. Locke, 6 Civ. App. 446, 25 S. W. 700, followed.) Parks v. Locke (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 702.

This article does not give contractor lien for services rendered in constructing road-bed or laying out railroad. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Hales (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 903.

If a note is made payable at a time when the right to enforce a mechanic's lien has been lost by expiration of time, it will be presumed, in absence of agreement to the contrary, that the parties intended to substitute the note for the lien, and it will be deemed that the lien was waived. Bryan College Interurban Ry. Co. v. Kropp (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 733.

Where the contractor for railroad work accepted notes in payment without reserving therein a lien, his lien after the expiration of a year expired. Id.

Property subject to lien.—Nothing but railroad right of way and equipment is subject to lien. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Hales (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 903.

Art. 5641. [3313] Lien, how foreclosed.

Foreclosure suit.—In suit against railroad company for services for construction of roadbed wherein it was sought to foreclose lien on railroad's property, allegation that all property was subject to lien, in the absence of an exception, held sufficient description. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Hales (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 903.

Where laborer's lien claimant and the intervener in a suit on notes of a railroad waived their lien, or admitted having none, the court had no jurisdiction, and could only dismiss as to them. Bryan College Interurban Ry. Co. v. Kropp (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 733.

Art. 5643. [3315] Lien ceases, when.

Cited, Bryan College Interurban Ry. Co. v. Kropp (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 733.

CHAPTER FOUR

LIENS OF ACCOUNTANTS, BOOK-KEEPERS, ARTISANS,
CRAFTSMEN, FACTORY OPERATIVES, MILL OPER-ATIVES, SERVANTS, MECHANICS, QUARRYMEN,
COMMON LABORERS AND FARM HANDS

Art. 5644. Who entitled to liens.	Art. 5648. Lien ceases when.
5645. Liens, how fixed.

Article 5644. Who entitled to liens.

See Ball v. Beaty (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 552; Security Trust Co. of Houston v. Roberts (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 892.

Persons entitled to lien.—That no reason is apparent why the Legislature should have discriminated between employes of hotels and of restaurants does not authorize a court to construe this article, so as to include both when the ordinary signification of the language excludes the latter so that it does not authorize a lien upon a "restaurant," since "restaurant," given its ordinary signification under art. 5502, is not a "hotel," in view of legislative policy indicated by arts. 4536 and 5246a, and it does not become such because the proprietor kept a price list of the rooms in and recommended a nearby hotel, and the selling of cigars by a "café" or "restaurant" does not make it a "store" or "shop." Debenham v. Short (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1147.

Property subject to lien.—Common laborers working with a threshing machine do not have a lien upon the grain threshed by it. Gibson v. Wood (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 893.

Priority.—A lien of a printer on a printing press and engine is subordinate to the lien of a chattel mortgage registered before the employé began his employment, notwithstanding the statute provides for a "first lien." American Type Founders' Co. v. Nichols, 110 Tex. 4, 214 S. W. 301.

An existing chattel mortgage lien is superior to an after acquired and established laborer's lien. Ferrell-Michael Abstract & Title Co. v. McCormac (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 559.

Where a chattel mortgage on an automobile was duly executed, filed, and registered, subsisting and unpaid when defendant made repairs on the automobile, and defendant had full notice thereof, the chattel mortgage was superior to the lien for work and materials furnished for repairs, whether defendant retained possession or not, and whether the repairs increased the value or not. Holt v. Schwarz (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 856.

Art. 5645. Liens, how fixed.

See Debenham v. Short (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1147; Hickory Jones Co. v. Mettaufer (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 745; Ball v. Beaty (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 552.

Affidavit.—Where plaintiff sought to fix his laborer's lien only against certain machinery specifically described in his affidavit, he would acquire no lien on realty, there being nothing in affidavit to indicate whether machinery was attached to realty. Security Trust Co. of Houston v. Roberts (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 892.

Computation of time for filing account.—Affidavit and account for laborer's lien must be presented and filed within 30 days from the date the debt, under the original contract, becomes collectable and enforceable, and agreement between employer and employé for extension of time of payment does not extend time for perfecting lien, the word "accrued" as used in the latter article meaning original maturity date. Security Trust Co. of Houston v. Roberts (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 892.

Art. 5648. Lien ceases, when.

CHAPTER SEVEN

CHATTEL MORTGAGES

Art. 5654. Reservation of title in chattel mortgages, and to be recorded.	Art. 5660. Property not to be removed.
5655. All instruments intended to operate as liens to be recorded.	5661. Not to be recorded at length; mortgages on articles attached to realty described in instrument; form of instrument; separate record book.
5656. Duty of clerk receiving.
5657. Copy to be received in evidence.

Article 5654. [3327] Reservations of title, mortgages, and to be recorded.

See Garcia v. Hernandez (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1099.

Validity.—Arts. 5654, 5655, making void, as to bona fide purchasers, instruments made to secure purchase price of personal property when not registered although executed in another state where they were not required to be registered, do not deny citizens of such other state any rights, in that they fail to give full faith and credit to the public acts of the other state. Willys-Overland Co. of California v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 978.

Construction and operation in general.—It is settled policy of Texas that enforcement against innocent purchasers for value of secret undisclosed liens upon and reservation of titles to personalty, possession of which has been voluntarily surrendered and the possessor clothed with an apparent full and unincumbered title, shall not be had. Chambers v. Consolidated Garage Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 565, judgment affirmed Consolidated Garage Co. v. Chambers (Sup.) 231 S. W. 1072.

Conditional sales.—Although conditional sale contract provided that sale by buyer would vest title, until such sale was made buyer had legal title subject to seller's mortgage, and such title and none other passed to trustee in bankruptcy under Bankruptcy Act July 1, 1898, § 70, subd. "a." Park v. South Bend Chilled Plow Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 843.

An instrument in the form of a lease contract of automobile is a "chattel mortgage," where a sale of the automobile was in contemplation and the lease contract was taken to secure payment. Willys-Overland Co. of California v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 978.

Where a contract recited the sale of a piano, stool, and scarf, but described the property upon which a lien was created as the piano, the stool and scarf will not be held subject to lien. De Arcy v. South Texas Music Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 381.

Where a building contractor has installed certain passenger elevators in the building, and included them in the estimate of material and labor furnished, the company selling the elevators to the contractor has no enforceable lien therefor as against the owner of the building, merely because it has reserved title until full payment, which by statute has the effect of a chattel mortgage lien, the reservation not having been filed until after the owner of the building became a bona fide subsequent purchaser. First Nat. Bank v. Lyon-Gray Lumber Co., 110 Tex. 162, 217 S. W. 133.

A contract of sale of an auto in Texas, where the contract was made and was to be performed, passed title, leaving in the seller no other interest than that of lienor, notwithstanding provision reserving title to the seller till paid for. Buchanan-Vaughan Auto Co. v. Woosley (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 554.

The statute converting conditional sales into chattel mortgages, and requiring their registration to protect the mortgagee against the claims of bona fide purchasers, is inapplicable to sales conditional in the sense that payment is conditioned on the honoring upon presentation of the draft given for the price, especially where the draft is a forged one, and the seller is induced to take it by fraud. Gose v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 979.

— Mortgage.—A note reciting the consideration to be the sale of certain personal property and certain crops to be raised on a designated farm, and that title was not to pass from the payee until payment in full, held to constitute a chattel mortgage when recorded under art. 5655, as the recitation of reservation of title might be treated as surplusage. Fourmentin v. Scott (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 901.

Waiver of reservation of title.—Where goods were sold under a conditional contract, declared by statute to be a mortgage, seller did not waive his lien by taking notes in evidence of the goods sold. Moore-Hustead Co. v. Joseph W. Moon Buggy Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1032.

Where goods were sold under a conditional sale contract, declared by statute to be a chattel mortgage, seller did not impair his right to a lien by a transfer of notes given in evidence of the goods sold to a bank as collateral, thereafter reacquiring the same; the transfer of the notes in both cases carrying with it such rights in the mortgage as the owner of the notes had. Id.

Necessity of registration.—Where owner shipped pianos to a party on consignment, such contract created the relation between the parties of owner and factor, and the contract did not fall within the provisions of arts. 5654, 5655, in regard to chattel mortgages. Chase Hackley Piano Co. v. Clymer (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 214.

Contract to hold piano for sale, title to remain in music company, money to be immediately paid over, piano to be returned upon request, was bailment, with right to sell, and not mortgage required to be registered. Renfroe v. Hall (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 218.

Where a sale is conditional, in that title is to pass, not upon delivery of the property, but upon subsequent payment, in order to affect subsequent purchasers or creditors, it must be filed as a chattel mortgage. Menke v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 693.

A conditional sale of an automobile in California, where it is not necessary to register the instrument, upon removal of the automobile to Texas by the purchaser, will be considered a chattel mortgage, and unless registered in Texas will be void as against bona fide purchaser. Willys-Overland Co. of California v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 978.

Where plaintiff in California sold an automobile to defendant under an unrecorded conditional sales contract whereby plaintiff retained title, and defendant took the car to Texas, and there sold it to a good-faith purchaser for value, held, that such purchaser acquired title as against plaintiff. Consolidated Garage Co. v. Chambers (Sup.) 231 S. W. 1072; affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Chambers v. Consolidated Garage Co., 210 S. W. 565.

Suits.—Statement in prayer of petition to recover buggies that plaintiff is owner is surplusage, and should be treated as such, where petition shows he sold them by contract reserving title, constituting a mortgage, and under article 5660 entitles plaintiff, as mortgagee, to possession to satisfy the debt. Joseph W. Moon Buggy Co. v. Moore-Hustead Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 328.

In a suit by the seller to recover the title and possession of picture machines, conditionally sold, and in the alternative to recover part of the purchase price with interest and foreclosure, the seller cannot recover both the machines and the purchase price. Black v. Southern Film Service (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 295.

Art. 5655. [3328] All instruments intended to operate as liens to be recorded.

See Fourmentin v. Scott (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 901.

Cited, Lazarus v. Henrietta Nat. Bank, 72 Tex. 354, 10 S. W. 252; Beene v. National Liquor Co. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 596.

Validity.—Arts. 5654, 5655 do not deny citizens of such other state any rights, in that they fail to give full faith and credit to the public acts of the other state. Willys-Overland Co. of California v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 978.

Construction and operation in general.—This article did not repeal art. 6841, requiring registration in the county to which the property might be removed, and that where a mortgage was filed in the county of the mortgagor's residence, and he moved to another county, taking the property with him, with the consent of the mortgagee, the mortgage was void as to subsequent purchasers, unless within four months it was filed in the county to which the property was removed. Reed v. Spikes (App.) 15 S. W. 122.

Chattel mortgages.—Where owner shipped pianos to a party on consignment, such contract created the relation between the parties of owner and factor, and the contract did not fall within the provisions of arts. 5654, 5655, in regard to chattel mortgages. Chase Hackley Piano Co. v. Clymer (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 214.

An instrument in the form of a lease contract of automobile is a "chattel mortgage," within arts. 5654, 5655, where a sale of the automobile was in contemplation and the lease contract was taken to secure payment. Willys-Overland Co. of California v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 978.

A description in a chattel mortgage of certain mules as "two grey mules about 16 hands high and one bay mule about 16 hands high. Said property now situated in Tarrant county, on the J. B. Grieder farm about 4½ miles northwest of Grand Prairie, Tex.," held sufficient to charge a livery stable keeper who claimed a lien for the keeping of such mules with notice of the mortgage. Oak Cliff State Bank & Trust Co. v. Travis (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 286.

Creditors, purchasers and mortgagees.—One who purchases property subject to chattel mortgage with knowledge as to provisions for application of purchase price on mortgage debt and applies price to other transactions, held to hold the property subject to rights of mortgagee. Clark & Boice Lumber Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank of Jefferson (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 197.

A "creditor," is one who has acquired rights by an attachment or other process of law, and not merely a general creditor who has acquired no interest in the property. Alsbury v. Alsbury (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 650.

One who signed a note and chattel mortgage as a surety is not a creditor as to whom the mortgage is void because not registered. Self Motor Co. v. First State Bank of Crowell (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 428.

If the consideration, or part thereof, for a chattel mortgage, was the extension of the note secured, there is a sufficient consideration to entitle the mortgagee to protection, as a subsequent mortgagee in good faith, as against a prior unfiled mortgage. First Nat. Bank v. Todd (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 322, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 219.

A mortgagee must have advanced a consideration for the mortgage and had no notice of the unrecorded lien, in order to be a mortgagee in good faith. Id.

Filing, recording and registration.—A mortgage must be filed, as soon as it can be by reasonable exertion, taking into consideration all the circumstances of the case; and it is for the jury to determine whether a mortgage was filed "forthwith" after its execution. Freiberg v. Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. (App.) 16 S. W. 784.

Where secretary-treasurer by course adopted by corporation for transacting its business was authorized to execute a chattel mortgage, constructive notice from recording the same will be imported to defendant, purchaser of mortgaged property, where his right to deny such notice rests solely on claim that officer's acts were ultra vires. Peyton v. Sturgis (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 205.

A contract giving landlord, as rent, certain share of crops grown by tenant on rented farm, need not be recorded to give third persons notice of landlord's interest therein; a landlord's lien being created by statute. G. M. Carlton Bros. & Co. v. Hoppe (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 248.

Where chattel mortgage was executed in the afternoon and filed at 9 o'clock the next morning, a finding that it was filed within a reasonable time was justified. Oakes v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 360.

A conditional sale of an automobile in California, where it is not necessary to register the instrument, upon removal of the automobile to Texas by the purchaser, will be considered a chattel mortgage under arts. 5654, 5655, and unless registered in Texas will be void as against bona fide purchaser. Willys-Overland Co. of California v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 978.

In landlord's action against tenant's purchaser of gasoline tank and pump for conversion on theory that tank and pump were covered by landlord's statutory lien, it was no defense that mortgage on the furniture in the building executed by tenant to landlord had not been recorded, or that purchaser had no notice thereof, or that purchaser had paid a valuable consideration for the tank and pump. West Furniture Co. v. Cason (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 774.

— Foreign registration.—A chattel mortgage duly executed and recorded under the laws of the state where it is executed and the property located is valid as against purchasers in good faith in another state to which the property is removed by the mortgagor unless that state has enacted some statute to the contrary or unless the transaction contravenes the settled law or policy of the forum. Consolidated Garage Co. v. Chambers (Sup.) 231 S. W. 1072.

— Record as notice and effect as to priority.—Defendant's chattel mortgage having been filed for record prior to petition in bankruptcy, trustee was not entitled to have mortgage canceled without first tendering amount due thereon, unless mortgage was void. Park v. South Bend Chilled Plow Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 843.

Record of chattel mortgage, made by one who is not the owner of the property, is not constructive notice to one dealing with owner. Wunschel v. Farmers' State Bank of Burkburnett (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 924.

Where an automobile was mortgaged to a bank, as security for notes, extending over a considerable period of time, the mortgagor retaining possession and right to use and care for the machine at his expense, one furnishing necessary repairs had an artisan's common-law lien, superior to a recorded chattel mortgage; arts. 5665-5667, providing for mechanic's liens, being but declaratory of the common law, fixing no priority as to other liens, as is done in the case of liens on buildings and improvements on land by arts. 5628, 5629. City Nat. Bank of Wichita Falls v. Laughlin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 617.

Where plaintiff lent sawmill machinery to defendant, the mere fact that defendant gave a chattel mortgage on all of his sawmill machinery, which included that lent, was not notice to plaintiff of defendant's repudiation of his title so as to start the running of limitations, though the mortgage was filed for record, for plaintiff was not bound to make periodic searches of the records to discover whether defendant had repudiated. Williams v. Davenport (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 675.

A lien of a printer on a printing press and engine under art. 5644, is subordinate to the lien of a chattel mortgage registered before the employé began his employment, notwithstanding such statute provides for a "first lien." American Type Founders' Co. v. Nichols, 110 Tex. 4, 214 S. W. 301.

Registration of a deed of trust and a chattel mortgage, valid in their description of the property and otherwise, which created liens on the property in controversy, constituted constructive notice to parties seeking protection as innocent purchasers through an execution sale subsequently made upon a judgment. Thorndale Mercantile Co. v. Continental Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1059.

A properly recorded chattel mortgage on an automobile is a lien superior to the lien of a mechanic for repairs made subsequent to the mortgage, though the mortgage obligated the mortgagor to keep the automobile in repair, where it also provided that he should not incur or permit any incumbrance or lien of any character against it. Dallas County State Bank v. Crismón (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 857.

— Failure to file or record mortgage.—The failure of the clerk to enter the mortgage in the proper book after it has been filed with him does not affect the rights of the mortgagee. Cleveland v. Empire Mills, 6 Civ. App. 479, 25 S. W. 1055.

Where a note was given, secured by a chattel mortgage, and the payee did not record the mortgage, and indorsed the note to plaintiff, and assigned the chattel mortgage to him, the plaintiff's duty to record mortgage could not be inferred from his mere acceptance of the note and unrecorded mortgage, and the plaintiff was entitled to recover against the original payee as an indorser. Palm v. Nunn (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1124.

The landlord being a subsequent creditor and lienholder in good faith, his lien on tenant's property in the building at time of lease takes priority, over prior chattel mortgage thereon not forthwith deposited and filed in county clerk's office as thereby required, but filed subsequent to the lease. Ingram v. Lattimore (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 297.

Where judgment creditor caused execution to issue and be levied upon automobile in possession of judgment debtor, his lien attached at time of levy and was superior to lien of unregistered chattel mortgage on automobile of which he had no notice at such time, notwithstanding notice at time of execution sale. Alsburly v. Alsburly (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 650.

A chattel mortgage not filed for registration is void only as to the creditors of the person making it, and as against purchasers or mortgagees or lien-holders in good faith, but is valid between the parties. Self Motor Co. v. First State Bank of Crowell (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 428.

The assignee of an unregistered chattel mortgage which was valid as between the parties may follow and seize the property where it was removed by the mortgagor without the consent of the mortgagee. Id.

Where the ticket for a bale of cotton was delivered by the grower to a bank holding a recorded crop mortgage, and the bank transferred the ticket to plaintiff, who had no knowledge of defendant's crop mortgage, plaintiff is entitled to the cotton as against defendant; the transfer of the ticket carrying with it possession and it not appearing that defendant's mortgage was recorded. McLendon Hardware Co. v. J. A. Hill & Son (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 825.

Art. 5656. [3329] Duty of clerk receiving.

See Boykin v. Rosenfield, 69 Tex. 115, 9 S. W. 318.

Art. 5657. [3330] Copy of instrument evidence of what.

Decisions under prior law, see Grounds v. Ingram, 75 Tex. 509, 12 S. W. 1118; Boydston v. Morris, 71 Tex. 697, 10 S. W. 331.

Admissibility in evidence of certified copy.—A certified copy of a chattel mortgage, filed in the office of the county clerk after being duly authenticated for record, is admissible in evidence in like manner as the original. Edwards v. Osman, 84 Tex. 656, 19 S. W. 868.

Art. 5660. [3333] Property not to be removed.

Removal or transfer of property.—See Moore-Hustead Co. v. Joseph W. Moon Buggy Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1032.

Statement in prayer of petition to recover buggies that plaintiff is owner is surplusage, and should be treated as such, where petition shows he sold them by contract reserving title, constituting, under art. 5654, a mortgage, and under this article entitles plaintiff, as mortgagee, to possession to satisfy the debt. Joseph W. Moon Buggy Co. v. Moore-Hustead Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 328.

Where the chattel mortgagee of cordwood, attached in suit against the mortgagor, authorized the sale of the wood on condition that the proceeds be turned over to him to hold in escrow awaiting final judgment in the suit, which was done pursuant to agreement between the attorneys for plaintiff and defendant mortgagor, the mortgagee became bailee of the proceeds of the sale. Loya v. Bowen (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 474.

The assignee of an unregistered chattel mortgage which was valid as between the parties may follow and seize the property where it was removed by the mortgagor without the consent of the mortgagee. Self Motor Co. v. First State Bank of Crowell (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 428.

Art. 5661. [3334] Not to be recorded at length; mortgages on articles attached to realty described in instrument; form of instrument; separate record book.

Former law.—See McEride v. Beakley (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1137.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT OF CHAPTER SEVEN IN GENERAL

1. Chattel mortgages—Nature.—No particular form is necessary to constitute a mortgage a chattel mortgage if it fairly indicates the creation of a lien specifying the debt and the property on which it rests, and when it is so drawn that a person reading cannot understand it otherwise than as a lien on the property described, and where it has been properly registered, it may be received in evidence as a mortgage. Fourmentin v. Scott (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 901.

2. — Distinguished from other transactions.—A bill of sale covering two race horses, but providing in a separate defeasance clause that, if the seller should within ten days repay the recited consideration, etc., held to be a chattel mortgage, and not a sale; "repay" meaning "to pay back; to refund; as, to repay money borrowed or advanced," notwithstanding a stipulation that the title to the property is to become absolute on default of the repayment by the seller of the consideration; such provision being ineffectual, as oppressive to creditors and contrary to public policy. Walker v. Wilmore (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 655.

3. — Property which may be the subject of mortgage.—Where a tenant under a valid contract with owner agrees to pay a crop rent and thereafter actually plants and cultivates the specified crop, the crop may be mortgaged even though at the time of the mortgage the crop has not actually been planted. Sanger Bros. v. Hunsucker (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 514; Williams v. King (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 106.

Equity will enforce a mortgage against property which the mortgagor does not own or which is not in being at the time of the mortgage, if the mortgage contains such a description as to identify the property when it comes into possession or being. Watson v. D. A. Paddleford & Son (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 779. Certified questions answered, 110 Tex. 525, 221 S. W. 569; Williams v. King (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 106.

One cannot mortgage that which he does not own, so as to create a lien thereon prior to his becoming such owner. Williams v. King (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 106.

Bill of sale covering gasoline engine, pipes, pump, rods, and trough could not transfer such part of the property as had become part of the realty under the law of fixtures. Boyd v. Hurd (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 339.

Thirty thousand pound engine, embedded in 6-foot deep concrete foundation, by 4 feet long, 1½ inch in diameter, bolts, covered with concrete, became, as a matter of law, a part of the realty by reason of method of attachment and impossibility of removal without injury to real estate. Van Valkenburgh v. Ford (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 405.

A chattel mortgage on electric exciter, sold to corporation operating plant subject to vendor's lien, was entitled to priority over vendor's lien, where it was not attached to the realty in such manner as to constitute it a fixture. Id.

Mere possession by bailee of property is not sufficient to create any right in favor of third person who takes mortgage upon them. First Nat. Bank of Canadian v. Jones (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 468.

A chattel mortgage on future crops is enforceable in equity, when the crops come into the possession of the mortgagor, if their acquisition was contemplated when the mortgage was made. Perkins v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 789.

The owner of land cannot create a valid mortgage on an unplanted or growing crop, which belongs to the tenant, who has merely agreed to pay him a share of the crops as rents for the use of the land, and where prior to a division of the crops, the land is sold under a trust deed, the chattel mortgagee has no lien on any part of the crop. Brod v. Guess (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 299.

Where machinery was sold to a mortgagor under an agreement that it should remain personalty and should be subject to a chattel mortgage for payment, the intention of the seller and mortgagor will control, and the machinery being such that it could be removed without damage to the realty, it did not become part of the realty under the doctrine of fixtures. Murray Co. v. Simmons (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 461.

5. — Parties.—Where a factor mortgaged goods belonging to his principal without the knowledge of principal or act of estoppel on principal's part, the principal's right to the goods is superior to that of mortgagee. Chase Hackley Piano Co. v. Clymer (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 214.

Where an impostor secured possession of mules by representing to their owner that he was J. R. J., the nephew and partner of a mule dealer of the same name, a resident of A., in another state, and gave for them $2,900 draft on such other J. R. J., who really existed, and the bank in A., on inquiry, telegraphed that "J. R. J.'s draft for $2,900 will be paid," there was no completed sale to the impostor, but at most a voidable sale to the real J. R. J., and, on the return of the draft as a forgery, an innocent mortgagee of the mules from the impostor had no title as against the owners, as the payment by forged draft was not a payment, and the impostor had no authority, even apparent, to dispose of the mules, which were purchased as firm property, for his personal and private benefit. Gose v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 979.

6. — Consideration.—The extension of time granted to the debtor in which to pay the debt was a sufficient consideration to sustain his chattel mortgage to secure the debt. Watson v. D. A. Paddleford & Son (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 779, certified questions answered 110 Tex. 525, 221 S. W. 569.

8. — Bill of sale as mortgage.—Written bill of sale and contemporaneous agreement to retransfer the property on the seller's payment of the consideration were in effect a chattel mortgage and not a pledge, under which either party by agreement might have possession. Keppler v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 447.

Though an instrument may contain all of the terms of an absolute conveyance, if it is apparent from the language used that it was intended as security for a debt, it will be treated as a mortgage. Walker v. Wilmore (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 655.

9. — Form of instrument.—A stipulation in chattel mortgages giving mortgagee the right in case he feels unsafe or insecure in the collection of the debt to declare all the indebtedness due and take possession of the mortgaged property is valid and enforceable. Central Transfer & Storage Co. v. Wichita Falls Motor Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 688.

10. — Description of property.—See Oak Cliff State Bank & Trust Co. v. Travis (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 286.

Description of mortgaged property as the first four bales of cotton and cotton seed grown by the mortgagor in a certain year held sufficient. Ross v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 672.

A crop mortgage describing the property as "10 bales of cotton, now being picked and to be ginned," covers cotton which was then in the process of being picked, and is not restricted to such cotton as was being separated from the stalk on the day of execution. Burlington State Bank v. Marlin Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 954.

A chattel mortgage describing the property as one span brown mules, bought of the said B. & B., who were the mortgagors, held sufficient as against any one who had notice of the mortgage, but a description as "one white horse about 16 hands high, branded —," is insufficient. Id.

It is not necessary to name the year in which the crops are to be grown, in order to make the mortgage on a future crop a valid one, since what the parties contemplated at the time controls. Perkins v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 789.

Chattel mortgage given as security on machinery sold the mortgagor, a gin company, by the mortgagee, held not void for uncertainty of description, though the list of the property did not of itself sufficiently identify it, in view of a stipulation that it was to be located on a certain gin lot identified by evidence. Thorndale Mercantile Co. v. Continental Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1059.

A chattel mortgage, describing the property mortgaged as "any three bales of cotton to be planted and cultivated by me in the year 1912 on the place known as the — farm, — miles from R., or any other farm in C. county," was void as against creditors for want of certainty as to the property mortgaged as it pointed out no particular cotton and no particular land on which the cotton was to be produced. Watson v. D. A. Paddleford & Son, 110 Tex. 525, 221 S. W. 569, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 779, and 223 S. W. 1117.

A description in chattel mortgage of a crop which does not mention the year in which it was to be raised, nor specify the land on which it was to be grown, is too indefinite to cover the particular crop without proof of intention of the parties to specify the crop. Smith v. Coburn (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 344.

Where a chattel mortgage itself gives means by which the property can be definitely identified, although the description is not as accurate as it should be, the instrument is not void for indefiniteness of description. Rus v. Farmers' Nat. Bank of Sealy (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 985.

11. — Execution.—Evidence, in a suit upon notes and chattel mortgage given by purchaser of machinery, held insufficient to show that fraud or deceit was practiced inducing defendants to sign the contract. Board v. Emerson-Brantingham Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 421.

15. Construction and operation.—Property mortgaged and estates and interests of parties therein.—A mortgage will convey all property ascertainable from the description, and the specified property becomes subject to the lien, but other property not within the description contained in the mortgage will not pass, so that chattel mortgagee of first four bales of cotton grown by mortgagor, has no lien on remaining cotton entitling him to sue for conversion, where tenant's interest in first four bales did not satisfy landlord's superior lien. Ross v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 672.

In action to foreclose mortgage on cattle, evidence held to sustain finding that a third person to whom cattle belonged had done nothing which would lead an ordinarily prudent person to believe that they belonged to mortgagor, and that mortgagor had a right to mortgage them. First Nat. Bank of Canadian v. Jones (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 468.

A chattel mortgage on half of a crop of cotton to be raised on certain land, mortgagor to have cotton ginned and baled, held to contemplate that lien was to cover and apply to one-half of bales of cotton, that might be raised, and not an undivided one-half interest in crop, thus giving mortgagee right to elect which bales she should take or sell; and a second mortgagee, who had sequestered and sold the part of the crop before first mortgagee selected her bales, is liable in conversion to the extent of the full value of the part taken. Citizens' Guaranty State Bank v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 271.

One cannot convey by chattel mortgage a greater title than he possesses. Brod v. Guess (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 299.

In a mortgage on entire crop of 130 acres of rice to be planted on the B. farm, the particular description of the farm is controlling over the general description by number of acres, so that the mortgage would not include 30 acres planted on the J. farm, with the 100 acres actually planted on the B. farm, particularly where mortgagor was not contemplating planting the 30 acres when executing mortgage. D. S. Cage & Co. v. Southern Rice Growers' Ass'n (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 78.

15½. — Renewal.—Renewal of chattel mortgage, by executing new mortgage and discharging old mortgage of record, merely continues lien, and renewed mortgage is superior to chattel mortgage executed before renewal, but subsequent to original mortgage. First State Bank of Saltillo v. Ennis Title Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1122.

Where mortgagor of automobile did not receive letter from mortgagee demanding payment of overdue installment note until after car had been taken by mortgagee, there was no acceptance of its offer by the mortgagor, who did not act on it to his injury, or part with any consideration for it, to effect a contract of extension of the note, or waiver of right to take possession. Lipper v. McClain (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 349.

16. Bona fide purchasers.—Despite deficiencies in description of mortgaged chattels, it was sufficient as to one who purchased knowing of incumbrance; parol evidence being admissible to supply any deficiency in description. Clark & Boice Lumber Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank of Jefferson (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 197.

In an action between conflicting lienholders, evidence held insufficient to sustain a verdict to the effect that appellant, a chattel mortgagee, did not take its mortgage in good faith. Burlington State Bank v. Marlin Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 954.

Mortgagee, having filed mortgage, has the right to assume that purchaser of mortgaged property purchased goods with full knowledge that property was incumbered, and a purchaser who buys property with either actual or constructive notice of mortgage, pays purchase price to the mortgagor at his peril. Weeks v. First State Bank of De Kalb (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 973.

In action by a subsequent chattel mortgagee to foreclose a mortgage, where a prior mortgagee intervened, evidence held to warrant a finding that plaintiff was not a bona fide subsequent mortgagee for value, although the mortgage was executed in renewal of an older mortgage, and although the mortgagee advanced the fees or charges for preparing the instrument, and although mortgagor was credited with a balance left over of $1.60. First Nat. Bank v. Todd (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 219.

Where plaintiff's contract, reserving title to property, was not recorded in the proper county, and in a suit against a subsequent purchaser the undisputed evidence showed payment by him of a valuable consideration, the adequacy of the consideration was not a proper subject of inquiry. Ten-Pennett Co. v. James (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 528.

Where, in an action to recover property to which plaintiff had reserved title from a subsequent purchaser, the uncontradicted testimony showed that he paid $100 in cash and an automobile estimated to be worth $250, and the jury found the value of the property was $375, the amount paid was not so grossly inadequate as to raise a suspicion that defendant was not an innocent purchaser for value. Id.

17. Priorities of mortgages.—Landlord furnishing supplies to tenant directly and through a third party, held to have a lien superior to that of chattel mortgagee. Ross v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 672.

A chattel mortgage filed before commencement of second year of term under a lease, held superior to the landlord's lien for rent accruing in the second year. Meacham v. O'Keefe (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1000.

Where chattel mortgage is executed upon future crops, and mortgagor subsequently sold land, remaining in possession as tenant under agreement to give landlord share of crops as rent, landlord's lien for rent is prior to mortgagee's lien; mortgage becoming effective upon growing of crop, but only as to mortgagor's interest therein. G. M. Carlton Bros. & Co. v. Hoppe (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 248.

A chattel mortgage executed and filed before the making of a lease contract is a prior lien over one contained in the lease contract. Oakes v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 360.

Where land on which gins stood was sold, and deed of trust given, and company with notice of deed sold machinery for gins, chattel mortgage to secure price stipulating it should remain personalty, as against vendor of gins, seeking to foreclose deed of trust, machinery became part of realty, and deed could be foreclosed on it. Murray Co. v. Jacksboro Oil & Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 517.

Where machinery composing part of plant sold by vendor subject to vendor's lien is replaced by new machinery, consisting of 30,000-pound engine, which was embedded in concrete foundation 6 feet deep and attached to foundation by iron bolts 4 feet long, the vendor's lien was entitled to priority over chattel mortgage on such engine. Van Valkenburgh v. Ford (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 405.

Where a tenant purchased a soda fountain and executed a chattel mortgage thereon, and being unable to pay for it, redelivered it to the vendor, who then made a sale to another person, who executed to the vendor a chattel mortgage on the fountain, leaving it in the store of the landlord, and at a later date the tenant moved from the premises, the purchaser of the fountain then becoming the tenant, and the mortgagee having paid rent to the landlord up to such date, the mortgage lien was prior to any lien of the landlord on account of subsequent rent. B. M. Burgher & Co. v. Barry (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 457.

An existing chattel mortgage lien is superior to an after acquired and established laborer's lien. Ferrell-Michael Abstract & Title Co. v. McCormac (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 559.

Where a chattel mortgage on an automobile was duly executed, filed, and registered, subsisting and unpaid when defendant made repairs on the automobile, and defendant had full notice thereof, the chattel mortgage was superior to the lien for work and materials furnished for repairs, whether defendant retained possession or not, and whether the repairs increased the value or not. Holt v. Schwarz (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 856.

Where defendants, having a half interest in a laundry property, gave a mortgage covering all the property to a bank, and on the day the mortgage was recorded purchased from plaintiff the other undivided half interest, plaintiff not retaining a lien in the bill of sale, but taking a mortgage to secure the purchase price which he filed forthwith, held, that the bank's lien was inferior to plaintiff's lien. Central Texas Exch. Nat. Bank v. Sparkman (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 297.

Where a cotton gin was mortgaged and on the mortgagor securing upon credit a steel gin stand, etc., the old frame gin stands were removed, but it did not appear that discontinuance in use injured them, the mortgagee, whose deed of trust did not specify the machinery, cannot hold the new machinery, which was subject to a chattel mortgage for the purchase price, particularly as the deed of trust did not obligate the mortgagor to keep the old machinery in repair or operation. Murray Co. v. Simmons (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 461.

Evidence held insufficient to show determination of priority. Short v. Blair & Hughes Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 427.

18. — Mortgagee as bona fide purchaser.—Where plaintiff drew a bill of sale of a car from H. to B. without reference to a company, except that its name appeared thereon above H.'s signature, and plaintiff took a mortgage upon the car from B., plaintiff may not claim that the company is estopped by the bill of sale, or that he is an innocent purchaser as against the company. Rowe v. Guderian (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 960.

19. — Notice affecting priority.—Where a chattel mortgagee, never knew of or assented to any mortgage being taken in his name for the protection of a firm until between 9 and 10 months after payment of the mortgagor's note to him, and until long after the rights of a third person under mortgage to himself had accrued, and transfer by the mortgagee to the firm of whatever right he had under the mortgage was subsequent to the mortgage in favor of the third person, the mortgage to such third person was not affected or destroyed. Whitaker v. Sanders & Samuels (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 256.

20. Rights and liabilities of parties—Possession or control of property.—Under agreement after default in notes that mortgagee should have possession of working outfit covered by the mortgage, held, that use of property in construction of roads which mortgagor had not contracted to build was not wrongful, and that all that mortgagee was required to pay was profits actually earned and not reasonable value of use. Montgomery v. Gallas (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 993.

Mortgagor has the right to sell the incumbered property, subject to the incumbrance. Weeks v. First State Bank of De Kalb (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 973.

A mortgagee of chattels entitled to possession need not make a demand in order to recover the same from the possession of an assignee of the mortgagor. Moore-Hustead Co. v. Joseph W. Moon Buggy Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1032.

Under mortgage securing installment notes payable each month, and providing that failure to pay any one shall mature all, etc., holder has right, on failure to pay a note at maturity, to take possession of property and hold or dispose of it in character of mortgagee, not of owner, to pay debt, without being liable for conversion. Lipper v. McClain (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 349.

The entire series of notes representing the price of an automobile being due and unpaid, the vendor chattel mortgagee, under the terms of the mortgage, provided that failure to pay any note on maturity would mature the entire series, had right to take possession of the car, and no cause of action for its rental or value arose in favor of the buyer mortgagor out of his action in so doing. Litchfield v. Fitzpatrick (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 926.

The rule that the mortgagor cannot recover possession of the mortgaged property from the mortgagee in rightful possession without paying the mortgage debt does not apply where the value of the use to which the mortgagee has put the mortgaged property exceeds the mortgage debt, and in such case the mortgagor may recover the mortgaged property and the excess of the value of such use over the amount of the mortgage debt. Montgomery v. Gallas (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 557.

An innocent mortgagee of mules, to which mortgagor had no title, held entitled to be reimbursed by the owner, upon the latter's reclaiming them, for their feed and care while in mortgagee's possession. Gose v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 979.

21. — Conversion of or injury to property.—Action of sellers of machinery in asking buyer if he had insured machinery was equivalent to request that machinery be insured for benefit of sellers, in accordance with requirements of a chattel mortgage, and buyer's reply in affirmative was an assurance that he had so insured it. Walter Connally & Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 656.

Where chattel mortgagee was entitled to lien on part of proceeds of insurance policy, if proceeds of policy had not been exempt from garnishment, service of writ on insurance company would have conferred on mortgagee right to such proceeds to extent of their lien superior to right of holder of vendor's lien. Id.

A chattel mortgage gives the mortgagee no lien upon proceeds of a fire insurance policy upon the property, where the policy is taken by the debtor for his own protection. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Thomas Goggan & Bro. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 163.

Unauthorized sale of mortgaged chattels by mortgagee and payee of notes secured thereby, held by another as collateral, and the appropriation of the avails without the knowledge of the holder of the note, is a "willful and malicious injury to property" within the meaning of Bankruptcy Act, § 17, as amended by Act Feb. 5, 1903 (Comp. St. § 9601), providing that a discharge in bankruptcy shall not release the bankrupt from liability for willful and malicious injuries to the person or property of another. Sabinal Nat. Bank v. Bryant (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 940, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 1179.

Defendant having the right, under chattel mortgage pleaded and in evidence, to take possession for default shown, cannot be held liable for doing so, though also pleading consent of mortgagor to such taking and not showing it otherwise than by the mortgage. J. M. Radford Grocery Co. v. Jamison (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 998.

Where mortgagee of chattels assigned same to a third person and third person disposed of them, such third person is responsible to the mortgagee for the value of the chattels. Moore-Hustead Co. v. Joseph W. Moon Buggy Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1032.

Conversion of mortgaged automobile did not result from the mortgagee's failure at once to proceed to foreclosure after taking possession of the car pursuant to the terms of the mortgage on default in payment of a single monthly installment note. Lipper v. McClain (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 349.

A mortgagee has no right to a judgment foreclosing his lien against mortgaged property in the hands of a purchaser from the mortgagor, and in the same suit to recover a judgment for conversion of that property, the right of a mortgagee to suit for conversion being based on the assumption that his security has been destroyed or impaired. Smith v. Wall (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 759.

22. — Measure of damages for conversion.—As to the measure of the mortgagor's damages for mortgagee's wrongful detention of the mortgaged property, compensation to the mortgagor is not the limit of recovery, but one of the considerations fixing the measure of damages is that the wrongdoer shall not be allowed to profit by his own wrong, so that the mortgagor may recover, in addition to the property or its value, not merely the interest on such value during the time of detention, but the value of the use of the property during such time in case it exceeds interest; and the principle of preventing profits from wrongdoing renders it immaterial that the injured mortgagor replaces the property by purchase, or that he in fact loses money in the use of the property so purchased, and also limits the value of the use to the use of the property for the purpose alone for which it was used by the mortgagor and the mortgagee, rather than the value of the use for other purposes for which it was adapted and for which it could have been hired out by the owner, at least in the absence of pleading by the mortgagor that he could and would have rented out the property for some other use. Montgomery v. Gallas (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 557.

24. Waiver or loss of lien.—The fact that mortgagee expected mortgagor to sell mortgaged property and thus secure money with which to pay debt, and that mortgagee knew that mortgagor was selling property, is not in itself sufficient to support finding that mortgagee waived lien. Weeks v. First State Bank of De Kalb (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 973.

Chattel mortgagee of attached cordwood, by his agreement with the attorneys for plaintiff and defendant mortgagor that the wood might be sold and the proceeds turned over to him to hold in escrow awaiting final judgment, held not to have waived his mortgage lien, superior to the attachment lien of plaintiff, nor to have done anything to estop him from asserting his lien after proper surrender of the fund in his hands or its deposit in court. Loya v. Bowen (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 474.

A mortgagee may by his words or acts waive his lien on the property covered. Medlin v. Hambright (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 577.

25. Payment, release or satisfaction.—Where the chattel mortgagee of attached cordwood agreed with the attorneys for plaintiff and for defendant mortgagor that the wood might be sold and the proceeds turned over to him to hold in escrow awaiting final judgment, the mortgagee became a bailee of the proceeds, and could not apply them to the extinguishment or reduction of defendant mortgagor's debt to him, and could not assert any superior right in them until he had surrendered the fund to plaintiff, or paid it into court, this irrespective of registration statutes. Loya v. Bowen (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 474.

Where the owner of cattle covered by a chattel mortgage sold part of the cattle, accepting a part payment of $150, and the purchaser before delivery resold them to a third party, and it appeared that neither the original purchaser nor his vendee knew of the existence of the mortgage at the time of the sale but that upon obtaining knowledge thereof they agreed with the mortgagee's agent that the proceeds upon sale in a certain market should be paid to the mortgagee, who was thereupon to release the mortgage, the payment of the $150 constituted a consideration for the agreement to release, since, if the original purchasers had refused to carry out the contract in event that the mortgagee should have insisted on its rights, it could have required the return of the payment, and the agreement to release deprived them of such right, and also because by the agreement the mortgagee, which was the real vendor, relinquished all its rights to such payment. Lee v. Clay, Robinson & Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 219 S. W. 1090.

Where mortgagor turned automobile over to mortgagee in conformity with an agreement whereby mortgagee undertook within a reasonable time to sell the car for an amount sufficient to satisfy the note secured by the mortgage and leave the mortgagor $245, mortgagor could not recover on such agreement, where he failed to turn over to the mortgagee the license tax receipt referred to under Act March 24, 1919 (Gen. Laws, c. 138), since, either the contract was void, because an attempt to bind mortgagee to commit a crime, or was breached by the mortgagor by failing to deliver the receipt. Overland Sales Co. v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 284.

26. Foreclosure.—In suit to foreclose a mortgage covering all crops grown for the year 1915 and all succeeding years, evidence that the mortgagor was plaintiff's tenant in 1915, and continued as such during 1916 and 1917, sufficiently showed that the parties contemplated when the mortgage was made that a crop would be grown on the leased land in 1917. Perkins v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 739.

The sale of piano to plaintiff for plaintiff's use in conducting an immoral business being an illegal transaction, defendant, in plaintiff's suit to recover possession of the piano as having been taken from plaintiff's possession by force, could not set up that the chattel mortgage on the piano, given by plaintiff to secure notes for the purchase price, gave defendant the power, as assignee of the mortgagee, of seizure and sale. Colburn v. Coburn (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 248.

Where the mortgage by its terms confers the power of seizure and sale upon the mortgagee only, such power does not extend to mortgagee's assignee, and, if he attempts to exercise it, he is a trespasser. Id.

A chattel mortgage, executed to indemnify a surety on a claimant's bond authorizing the trustee to take possession and sell the property if judgment should be rendered against the mortgagor and he should not appeal, and providing, in case of an appeal the mortgage should remain in force, and if judgment should be rendered against the surety the same remedy should apply, and providing that the surety's remedies and rights should be fully matured without it being required to first pay any judgment, costs, and expenses, did not authorize a seizure and sale in case of a judgment against the claimant from which he appealed. Warren v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 104.

A chattel mortgage to indemnify the surety on a claimant's bond, authorizing a sale of the property if judgment was rendered against the mortgagor and no appeal taken, used the word "appeal" as meaning a taking of the case to a higher court by any authorized method, including a writ of error. Id.

In suit for the amount of promissory notes and to foreclose chattel mortgage lien on mules, automobile, and cotton raised by one defendant, and against the other defendant for conversion of the cotton, evidence held to show that plaintiff mortgagee authorized defendant mortgagor to sell the cotton and to receive the money therefor. Medlin v. Hambright (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 577.

27. Judgment.—Where mortgagor's purchaser had not paid mortgagor the price, the court in mortgagee's action against mortgagor and purchaser properly gave mortgagee judgment against purchaser for such price, even though purchaser was a bona fide purchaser, since the payment thereof to mortgagee relieves the purchaser from his indebtedness to mortgagor and does equity between parties. West Furniture Co. v. Cason (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 774.

CHAPTER EIGHT

OTHER LIENS

Art.	Art.
5663. In favor of hotels, etc.	5665. Possession may be retained, when.
5663a. Same; satisfaction of lien.	5666. Where no price agreed upon.
5663b. Same; hotel or inn defined.	5667. Sales may be made for charges.
5664. Livery stable keepers.	5671. Other liens, etc., not affected.

Article 5663. [3318] Lien in favor of hotels and boarding houses.—Proprietors of hotels, boarding houses or inns, whether individual, partnership or corporation shall have a special lien upon all baggage and other property in and about such hotel, inn or boarding house brought to the same by or under control of his guests or boarders for the accommodations, board and lodging or either and for all money paid for and advanced to them and for such other extras as are furnished at the request of such guests and said inn keeper, boarding house keeper and hotel-keeper, shall have the right to detain such baggage and other property until the amount of such charges are paid and such baggage and other property shall be exempt from attachment or execution until such lien and the costs of satisfying it are paid. [Acts 1874, p. 200, § 1; P. D. 7116f; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 71, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 5663a. Same; satisfaction of lien.—The inn keeper, boarding house keeper, or hotel keeper shall retain such baggage and other property upon which he has a lien for a period of thirty days, at the expiration of such time if such lien is not satisfied, he may sell such baggage or other property, at public auction, first giving notice of the time and place of sale by posting at least three notices thereof in public places in the county where the inn, hotel or boarding house is situated and also by mailing a copy of such notices to said guest or boarder at the place of residence designated by the register of such inn or hotel if the register shows a place of residence; and after satisfying the lien and any costs that may accrue, and residue remaining shall on demand, within sixty days, be paid such guest or boarder and if not demanded within sixty days from date of sale, such residue shall be deposited by such proprietor with the treasurer of the county in which said hotel, inn or boarding house is located, accompanied with a true and correct statement made under oath and which residue shall be retained by the county treasurer for a period of one year, and if not claimed within that time by the owner thereof, the county treasurer shall pay the same into the State Treasury, and it shall be placed to the credit of the escheat fund. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 71, § 2.]

Art. 5663b. Same; hotel or inn defined.—Under the meaning of this Act a hotel or inn is a place where the proprietor makes it his business to furnish food or lodging, or both to all who apply, paying suitable compensation therefor, provided further that the words hotel or inns shall be construed to include rooming houses. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5664. [3319] Lien of livery stable keepers and pasturers.

See Oak Cliff State Bank & Trust Co. v. Travis (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 236; Bivins v. Oldham (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 240.

Duties of livery stable keepers and pasturers.—The law places the obligation on one taking cattle into his pasture to take care of them. Rabe v. State, 87 Cr. R. 497, 222 S. W. 1106.

Right to lien.—If one who is allowed by the owner of a horse to have possession of it, and keep it in the town of A., but who is forbidden to take it to the town of B., nevertheless takes it to B., and boards it at a livery-stable there, the stable keeper will not acquire a lien thereon. Stott v. Scott, 68 Tex. 302, 4 S. W. 494.

The lessor of pasture lands held a lien on the cattle of sublessees of such lands for the rent due from the lessee. Russell v. Old River Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 705.

This article does not give the owner of a leased pasture a lien on the animals pastured therein by the lessees. Broad & Pearce v. Cage (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 104.

One taking cattle into a pasture of which he has control has a lien on the cattle for pasturage, although nothing is said concerning the price or who shall care for and control the cattle. Rabe v. State, 87 Cr. R. 497, 222 S. W. 1106.

Conversion of animals subject to lien.—Where, according to the evidence, S., the owner of cattle stolen, placed them in the pasture of H., controlled by one T., who looked after the place, and to both of whom rent was due from S. under their pasturer's lien, and ownership was alleged to be in S., there was a variance, and the indictment should have alleged ownership in T. or real ownership in S. and special ownership in T. Rabe v. State, 85 Cr. R. 373, 212 S. W. 502.

Art. 5665. [3320] Mechanics may retain possession of article repaired, when.

See Wichita Falls Sash & Door Co. v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 100.

Cited, Guaranty State Bank of Tyler v. Reeves (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 235.

Right to lien.—An artisan who repairs an automobile has a lien at common law, for his charges, independent of statute. City Nat. Bank of Wichita Falls v. Laughlin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 617.

Where owner of automobile, being held by a garage keeper for repair charges sued to recover automobile, and tendered sequestration bond to protect the garage keeper, and the garage keeper retained automobile by furnishing replevy bond, his lien did not cover storage charges for the period of time in which he was in possession of the automobile after having replevied it, since he would have been protected, without the retention of the automobile, by the sequestration bond. Hudson v. Breeding (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 718.

Effect of surrender of possession.—A garage which voluntarily surrenders possession of an automobile loses its lien for repairs, though it subsequently comes into possession of the car. White v. Texas Motorcar & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 441.

Rights of third persons.—Where a garage is sold and the buyer in taking possession of the garage comes into possession of an automobile held by seller to protect a lien for repair charges, the buyer gets no right to the lien on such automobile, unless the lien claimed has been assigned to him by the seller. White v. Texas Motorcar & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 441.

Where an automobile was mortgaged to a bank, as security for notes, extending over a considerable period of time, the mortgagor retaining possession and right to use and care for the machine at his expense, one furnishing necessary repairs had an artisan's common-law lien, superior to a recorded chattel mortgage; arts. 5665-5667, providing for mechanic's liens, being but declaratory of the common law, fixing no priority as to other liens, as is done in the case of liens on buildings and improvements on land by arts. 5628, 5629. City Nat. Bank of Wichita Falls v. Laughlin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 617.

Waiver of lien.—In a suit to recover money due for labor and material in repairing an automobile and to foreclose a lien after it had been delivered to owner's son, who gave a note, evidence held insufficient to show a waiver of the lien. McBride v. Beakley (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1137.

Where there was no express agreement waiving lien for repairs on an automobile, the taking of the note of the owner's son on its delivery to him, did not have that effect. Id.

Attack on sale.—Allegations that a car left with defendants for repairs was sold after notice, under this article, and that certain accessories had been converted, etc., held to state a good cause of action, although not alleging that plaintiff was entitled to possession of the car or had tendered the charges due, since the petition did not admit that charges were due or that sale was legal, and in any event the allegations alleging the conversion of accessories rendered the petition good at least in part. J. C. Killgore & Co. v. Whitaker (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 445.

Art. 5671. [3326] Other liens and contracts not affected.

Right to lien.—Arts. 5661, 5665-5667, relate to common-law liens, and art. 5671 and Const. art. 16, § 37, do not make possession an essential element of a lien for repairs given by such article of the Constitution. McBride v. Beakley (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1137.

Priorities.—This article means that priorities of liens existing independent of the statute shall be preserved, and therefore cannot be considered as making a chattel mortgage lien superior to a mechanic's lien, since both liens exist independent of such statute. City Nat. Bank of Wichita Falls v. Laughlin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 617.

The lien of a livery stable keeper for board of mules, created after the execution of a mortgage on such mules, of which the livery stable keeper has notice, is inferior to the lien of the mortgage. Oak Cliff State Bank & Trust Co. v. Travis (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 286.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT-MATTER OF CHAPTER IN GENERAL

1. Liens in general.—An agreement to mortgage designated property, when carried so far that nothing remains undone except the formal execution of the mortgage, may, as between the parties, be treated as creating an equitable lien. Houston Nat. Exch. Bank of Houston v. Gregg County (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 805.

Under agreement between officers of debtor and creditor banks for delivery of a note secured by bills receivable, where nothing remained but performance, held, that creditor bank was entitled to equitable lien, though note was not executed or the collateral sent to it. Id.

A garage owner has no lien on automobile for storage charges, unless automobile was stored under contract with the owner thereof. White v. Texas Motorcar & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 441.

Where a garage is sold and new owner continues to hold a car he knows is being wrongfully withheld from its owner, he cannot claim lien on such car for storage charges. Id.

Where a garage, holding an automobile on which it claims a lien, is sued by owner for possession, and replevies automobile after a writ of sequestration has been issued, the garage cannot claim a lien for storage for the time it held automobile after it had been replevied. Id.

An executory agreement in writing to give a lien on land is sufficient to create a lien in equity on such land, though mortgage or lien is itself never executed, under the maxim that equity regards that as done which ought to be done. Luse v. Rea (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 942.

Where land is conveyed in terms subject to a mortgage or other lien, the grantee does not by accepting the deed become liable personally for the debt. George v. Blumberg (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 309.

Mortgagee of lands is but a lienholder, the legal title remaining in the owner of the mortgaged premises, with an unimpaired right to lease and obtain the emblements in the way of growing crops. Sanger Bros. v. Hunsucker (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 514.

One purchasing property incumbered with a mortgage is not personally bound to pay debt unless he assumes it, but mortgage remains a lien against the land. Clark v. Scott (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 728.

County held not entitled to an equitable lien, based on the doctrine of estoppel, as against the seller of materials to its bridge contractor, though after the property was delivered to the contractor the county paid it 60 per cent. of the contract price of the work, and after its delivery and the making of the payment the seller caused the property to be seized. Scharbauer v. Lampasas County (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 468.

Corporation may, by contract with stockholder, acquire a lien on the stock for debts due the corporation by the stockholder. Turner v. Cattleman's Trust Co. of Ft. Worth (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 831.

If broker who acted as agent for both parties to real estate exchange transaction was a party to or had notice of the fraud that induced consummation of transaction, he is in no position to assert a lien for commissions on one of the tracts of land conveyed, reserved in the deed after the transaction had been rescinded because of such fraud, though rescission did not specifically provide for the cancellation of commission notes. Speer v. Dalrymple (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 174, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 911.

A lien on land may be established in cases where there is no personal liability. Elmendorf v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 631.

Contract by owner of lot abutting on street, granting paving contractor, "in consideration of said improvements to and upon said premises, and the fact that thereby the value thereof will be enhanced in excess of the cost * * * a mechanic's lien on said premises to secure the payment of indebtedness," held to give the contractor an enforceable lien on the abutting property of the owner to secure the owner's indebtedness to the contractor for paving the street, notwithstanding that the work was not done on the property itself, and notwithstanding that the lien was miscalled a "mechanic's lien." Dabney v. Schutze (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 176.

Where notes recited that they were secured by a deed of trust on certain land, and where deed of trust purporting to secure payment of such notes was forged, one who received notes in part payment of the purchase price for other land on the strength of the recitals in notes and deed of trust as to the execution of such deed of trust to secure notes held entitled to an equitable deed of trust lien on the land, though no deed of trust was in fact executed. Rea v. Luse (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 310.

2. Waiver or release of lien in general.—A lien may be waived by express agreement, or by implication from the facts inconsistent with its continued existence. McBride v. Beakley (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1137.

The rule that a lienor's delivery of possession is a waiver of his lien originated in case where the lien itself was dependent upon the possession, and does not apply where possession is not an essential to the existence of the lien. Id.

One will not be held to have intentionally waived a lien unless the intent is expressed or is plain and clear; the presumption always being against it. Id.

By Bankruptcy Act 1898, § 67 (U. S. Comp. St. § 9651), all liens obtained within four months prior to the adjudication in bankruptcy, whether voluntary or by process of a state court, and whether the proceedings in bankruptcy be voluntarily or involuntarily begun, are vacated by the adjudication of bankruptcy. Archenhold v. Schaefer (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 139.

A county which contracted with a construction company for completed bridges, and accepted a bond as surety for the contractor's faithful performance, thereby waived its right, if it had any, to invoke the doctrine of equitable liens on property sold the contractor by third parties. Scharbauer v. Lampasas County (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 468.

If broker who had acted as agent for both parties to real estate exchange transaction was a party to or consented to rescission of transaction on ground that it had been induced by fraud, he could not enforce the lien on land of defrauded party, reserved in the deed by which the land was conveyed. Speer v. Dalrymple (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 174, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 911.

3. Vendor's lien—In general.—There is no right to a vendor's lien to secure purchase price of chattel after delivery. Park v. South Bend Chilled Plow Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 843.

A vendor's lien is but an incident to the debt, and follows the debt in whatever form it may be evidenced. Ater v. Knight (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 648.

4. — Lien reserved in contract or conveyance.—A general warranty deed for a stated consideration, one-half paid in cash and the balance evidenced by a note and retaining a vendor's lien therein for the enforcement of such balance, is an executory contract under which superior legal title remained in the vendor. Walls v. Cruse (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 240.

5. — Implied or equitable lien.—A vendor's lien exists to secure payment of purchase money on real estate sold on credit, even though no such lien is expressly retained. L. C. Denman Co. v. Standard Savings & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1109; Luse v. Rea (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 942.

In action for compensation under party wall agreement, where plaintiff pleaded lien and sought foreclosure and where amount to become due was in nature of purchase price of undivided interest in wall, defendant's liability would create an equitable lien on his property. McCormick v. Stoneheart (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 883.

Vendor who retained lien became entitled, on the principle of subrogation, to implied vendor's lien springing out of contracts of purchase and assumption by defendants from original vendee and his assignee. L. C. Denman Co. v. Standard Savings & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1109.

In suit to enforce implied vendor's liens upon interests in lease, etc., it could not be contended that property which defendants purchased from original purchaser was subject to any kind of implied lien to secure payments of debts due by original purchaser for personal property purchased by him from plaintiffs. Blair v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 465.

Where purchase-money notes recited that they were secured by deed of trust lien on land, one who took notes believing they were in fact so secured is entitled to equitable lien on the land, notwithstanding no deed of trust was in fact executed. Luse v. Rea (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 942.

Where grantee took a deed in blank and on sale by him filled in the name of his purchaser, the first grantee had an implied equitable lien, though not connected with the record title. Gray v. Fenimore (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 956.

Where plaintiff company furnished material for a plant to the value of $1,900, and the owner sold the plant to defendant, the deed reciting it was subject to $1,900 against the plant, the $1,900 being part consideration for the conveyance, for payment of the amount of any balance due equity implied a lien on the plant and land in favor of plaintiff, though the deed did not expressly reserve one. Burton-Lingo Co. v. Standard (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 446.

Where land was sold partly for cash and partly for other land, and the seller did not know of mortgage on such other land created by the buyer conveying it, and such mortgage was foreclosed, the seller could sue, not only for a money judgment, but also unless the right of a third party had intervened for a judgment fixing a lien on the land sold. Smith v. Price (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 836.

6. — Operation and effect.—Where a lien is retained in a note or deed, or contract to convey title or bond for title, the legal title is in the vendor, and the equitable title is in the vendee. Gambrell v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 287; Daugherty v. Manning (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 983.

The vendor's lien reserved by a purchase-money note is substantially a mortgage. Pope v. Beauchamp (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 928.

Where deed expressly retains the vendor's lien to secure the purchase money or the unpaid part thereof, the contract is executory, and the vendor retains the superior title upon which he may recover upon purchaser's failure to pay. Waco Development Co. v. McNeese (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 464.

As between a vendor and vendee, a deed reserving an express vendor's lien is regarded as executed and not executory, except so far as necessary to collect the purchase money. Daugherty v. Manning (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 983.

Though a vendor's lien is retained in a deed, the vendee is entitled to possession and holds exclusively for himself, and not as agent or vendee for any one, but as the true owner against the world. Id.

A vendor's lien retained to secure notes given for the purchase price of land was a mere incident to the debt itself and could be developed into title sufficient to sustain an action in trespass only by foreclosure, sale, and purchase. Burns v. Dyer (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 457.

7. — Amount and extent of lien.—Where purchaser before maturity, etc., of notes given partly for purchase price of land, had knowledge by recitals therein that vendees, husband and wife, occupying premises as a homestead, gave deed to vendor, who in turn deeded to husband, held purchaser was entitled to judgment for full amount of notes, but only to lien on premises for amount owing on land at date notes were executed. Thomas v. Ash (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 670.

8. — Property subject to lien.—Where vendor sells plant with machinery located thereon subject to vendor's lien, and machinery is subsequently removed and new machinery installed, the new machinery takes the place of the old machinery, and becomes subject to the lien, on the ground that depreciation of vendor's security will not be permitted. Van Valkenburgh v. Ford (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 405.

Where two parcels of land, one of which was subject to vendor's lien notes, were conveyed to a single grantee, and the habendum clause of the deed recited that it was agreed that the vendor's lien should be retained until all the notes were paid, held that the lien was spread over both parcels. Lanham v. West (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 258.

A vendor who accepted from purchaser in part payment of the purchase price third person's notes, which recited that they were secured by deed of trust on other land, and did not appear to be purchase-money notes, held not entitled to a vendor's lien on such other land to secure payment of the notes. Rea v. Luse (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 310.

9. — Priority of lien.—Contract for sale of machinery and purchase-money chattel mortgage construed, and held that sellers had lien on proceeds of policy insuring machinery superior to one holding vendor's lien on land upon which machinery was situated, and who had an assignment indorsed on policy after a loss occurred. Walter Connolly & Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 656.

Purchase-money notes, to secure payment of which a vendor's lien is retained in deed, are a first lien as against a deed of trust given by the grantee. Houston v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1121.

An instrument reciting "I further agree that said note for $2,000 shall be secured by the first lien on said lot 9 * * * and be a prior lien to the $600 note," held only a subordination of the vendor's lien on lot 9, leaving it a first lien on lot 10; such two lots being both covered by the vendor's lien and a trust deed securing the $2,000 note. Benton v. Jones (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 193.

In broker's action on commission notes and to foreclose lien reserved in deed, where broker's lien as shown by facts pleaded was inferior to vendor's lien for purchase price, vendors were entitled to show they had a lien superior to that of broker, and to have jury pass on such issue. Speer v. Dalrymple (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 174, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 911.

Creditors who attached the interest of their debtor in certain lands, in which the record showed he had only a vendor's lien, but which in fact had been reconveyed to him by an unrecorded deed, thereby secured a lien upon the title given him by the deed, but such lien was subject to the vendor's lien, which he had assigned by unrecorded assignment to another. Traders' Nat. Bank v. Price (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 160.

Where one for whose use and benefit the title to land was held by another subject to a deed of trust and a vendor's lien subordinate thereto purchased coupon notes for interest on the debt secured by the deed of trust, with intention that the debt evidenced by the notes should not be paid, and that the lien held to secure them should not be extinguished, but preserved for its benefit, the notes were not paid, and the lien not extinguished, as no injustice would be done the holder of the vendor's lien. West v. McCelvey Loan & Investment Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 913.

10. — Assignment of lien or claim for purchase money.—Defendant, who pursuant to agreement with vendee to carry debt purchased notes given in payment of balance of purchase price, held entitled to enforce vendor's lien, securing notes, against entire tract, although vendee agreed with his mother, who furnished money for first payment, that she should have part of land. Nobles v. Long (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 752.

As vendor may pass his superior legal title to the holder of an unpaid purchase-money note, the assignee of the note and superior title may likewise pass such title to a subsequent assignee of the same unpaid note. R. B. Godley Lumber Co. v. C. C. Slaughter Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 801.

The fact that a transfer of a purchase-money note and lien and vendor's superior legal title occurs at different dates would not affect the transferee's right to recover the land. Id.

The equitable rule that assignee of a vendor's lien with notice that part of land had been sold subsequent to assignment might be required to so act as not to deprive purchaser of his equitable right to have land not conveyed first subjected to payment of debt is not applicable where lienholder releases part of security without knowledge of sale. Biswell v. Gladney (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 256.

Where land was sold, and vendor's lien notes given for the price, and the vendor transferred three of the notes to a third person, the reconveyance of the land by the buyer to the vendor did not effect a merger extinguishing the vendor's lien. H. O. Wooten Grocer Co. v. Lubbock State Bank (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 835.

The purchase of a vendor's lien note carries with it the lien, and the transferee of such a note can take a written assignment and place it of record, thus securing himself against wrongful release by the original owner. Id.

Purchasers of second series of vendor's lien notes resulting from resale of land after reconveyance to the seller held chargeable with duty to inquire as to the ownership of the whole or part of the first series of vendor's lien notes resulting from the first sale, notwithstanding a declaration, in a transfer of part of the first series of notes, of the creation of second lien to secure other notes of the first series, though giving rise to a dubious inference they were then owned by the seller; the inference not being sufficiently cogent to be tantamount to a payment of the notes and release or extinguishment of the lien, particularly in view of the assumption of the indebtedness by the seller in the deed of reconveyance. Id.

Innocent purchaser of secured vendor's lien note may enforce it against the land, although it grew out of a simulated sale of a homestead made to raise a loan and though the person from whom he purchased was a purchaser with notice of the defect. Brooker v. Wright (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 196.

One purchasing a secured vendor's lien note from an innocent purchaser may enforce it against the land, although he had notice before the purchase that the note arose out of a simulated sale of a homestead. Id.

Since the failure to record an assignment of a note and vendor's lien securing it leaves the assignor, according to the record, with only his lien in the land which is not subject to attachment, such failure does not give the attaching creditor of the assignor any right superior to the assignee, even if the assignment is an instrument whose recording is not only authorized under art. 6823, but is required under art. 6824 to be effectual against creditors and subsequent purchasers. Traders' Nat. Bank v. Price (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 160.

Though the failure to record an assignment of a note and the vendor's lien securing it would protect an innocent purchaser or creditor who relied upon a release or some affirmative act of the assignor to defeat the lien, such failure does not affect the right of the assignee, even against purchasers or creditors, where there is no affirmative declaration or equivalent act by the record owner of the lien. Id.

The transfer of vendor's lien notes to an assignee does not carry the vendor's superior title to the land. Smith v. Tipps (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 307.

Where plaintiff, assignee of three vendor's lien notes, was transferee of the legal title of only one of the two vendors, plaintiff, after two of the three notes had become barred, could recover only half the land from the original purchaser, notwithstanding a disclaimer by the nontransferring vendor. Id.

11. — Transfer of property by purchaser.—Recitals of deed conveying land subject to a vendor's lien in consideration of a payment of $10, and the transfer of the indebtedness of a third person to the grantee, held not to show an assumption by the grantee of the debt secured by the vendor's lien. George v. Blumberg (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 309.

A grantee assuming payment of lien indebtedness for which his grantor is personally liable thereby becomes liable to and can be sued by the holder and owner of such indebtedness, but a purchaser who does not assume payment of the prior vendor's lien is not personally liable. Allen v. Traylor (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 945.

Where land was sold, resold to one who did not assume payment of the vendor's lien, and part of it again sold by him to defendant, who as part consideration assumed payment of the sum of $4,784, with interest accrued and to accrue, representing part of the unpaid principal sum due on the vendor's lien notes, assuming and agreeing to pay on the principal and interest of the notes and an amount equivalent to $23 a lot on each lot conveyed to him, defendant was liable to the holder of the vendor's lien notes for the specific amount on the principal and interest thereof. Id.

A subsequent purchaser who assumed and agreed to pay the vendor's lien notes given by his immediate grantor is liable to the holder of the notes as principal, not as surety. Strickland v. Higginbotham Bros. & Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 433.

A purchaser who gave vendor's lien notes cannot sue a subsequent purchaser who assumed the notes on those notes, though he retained a lien on the land; his only right under the lien being to redeem in case of foreclosure of vendor's lien. Id.

The institution of suit by the vendor against a subsequent purchaser from the purchaser who made the notes is a sufficient acceptance of the assumption of the notes by the subsequent purchaser. Id.

The retention by the purchaser who gave vendor's lien notes of a lien on property after he sold to another who assumed the payment of the notes does not make the liability of the subsequent purchaser that of surety only. Id.

A vendor who reserves a lien for the purchase money has superior title to the purchaser, and a subsequent purchaser from the vendee acquires only the vendee's title, and cannot claim the land against the vendor or his successor without showing payment of the purchase money. Rooney v. Porch (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 245.

Where purchaser by his deed acknowledged and continued in full force and effect a vendor's lien securing purchase-money note, neither he nor subsequent purchasers claiming under him with full knowledge of all the facts could deny the existence of the note, on the ground that it had been discharged, by merger in that it had come into the purchaser's possession. Beauchamp v. Zellmer (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 965.

A purchaser of land assuming the payment of outstanding vendor's lien notes given by prior owners becomes, as between himself and the prior owners, the principal obligor, and they his sureties. Hall v. Conine (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 823.

12. — Waiver, loss or discharge of lien.—Where innocent purchaser of vendor's lien note was also a purchaser of property at its sale under trust deed, although sale was void because purchaser had notice that prior deeds were intended as mortgages, he could still foreclose lien of his vendor's lien note to enforce payment of note. Moore v. Chamberlain, 109 Tex. 64, 195 S. W. 1135.

Where a purchaser conveyed to a corporation subject to vendor's lien, and suit by vendor was dismissed, corporation agreeing to reconvey land if amount due was not paid, and on failure to make payment deeds held in escrow were delivered to vendor and recorded, corporation and vendee refusing to deliver possession, held, that vendor had not lost rights as holder of superior title. Rockhill Country Club Co. v. Nix (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 155.

Vendors prosecuting a suit to final judgment under a claim of superior title as vendors thereby waived their right of foreclosing a vendor's lien in a subsequent action, although they lost in the first action. Marshall v. Mayfield (Com. App.) 227 S. W. 1097.

Where vendor retained lien to secure payment of purchase price, he may, on purchaser's default, either elect to disaffirm the contract and sue for the land, or elect to affirm and foreclose the lien. Gambrell v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 287.

Grantor who retained vendor's lien, though agreeing with the grantee after his default in payment, to undertake to find some one who would purchase the property and relieve the grantee from certain indebtedness, could, on a disagreement between them as to what indebtedness such a purchaser should assume, abandon effort to find a purchaser, and sue for recovery of the property for the default in payment. Dollins v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 344.

Land was sold for $3,000, $1,000 paid in cash furnished to the purchasers for that purpose by defendant. The purchasers, being unable to pay the $2,000 balance, contracted to execute two deeds, one to the vendors, conveying to them an undivided half interest in the land in consideration of their canceling the notes for such balance, and the other to defendant, conveying to him the other undivided half interest, defendant to pay $500 to the sellers on the execution and delivery of the deeds. The purchasers placed the vendors and defendant in possession of the property through a tenant who attorned to each of them as owners and paid rent to each for the use of the property. Held, vendors were not estopped to claim that defendant had abandoned his contract rights by his letter advising vendors to go ahead and foreclose their vendor's lien, by the fact that after the writing of such letter the vendors received rent on the property, on the theory that any claim of right by vendors under the letter would have the effect to take away from defendant, as co-owner, his interest in the property; for defendant was not a co-owner; his being thus placed in possession not being a conveyance to him of any interest in the property. Daugherty v. Roasberry (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 924.

Where a vendor sold the land retaining title to secure payment of purchase-money notes representing the entire agreed consideration none of which were ever paid by the purchaser a subsequent sale by the vendor to another purchaser cancels the contract of sale to the first purchaser and vests the legal and equitable title in the second purchaser. Head v. Moore (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 362.

13. — Payment, release or satisfaction.—Vendee cannot avail himself of the right to partial release of vendor's lien without strict compliance with conditions of the deed governing such right. White v. Tegnell (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 213.

Under deed containing provision for partial release of vendor's lien, vendees were entitled to such a release upon payment of one of purchase-money notes, though upon resale of part of land to be released from lien they had not tendered money received from such resale to vendors and demanded release. Id.

Where the receiver of a corporation which had conveyed lands, retaining lien to secure the discharge of vendor's lien notes by the grantee, executed a release to which the holder of the vendor's lien notes was not a party, such release is not binding on the holder of the vendor's lien notes, and does not constitute evidence of the intention in the minds of the parties to the conveyance. Lanham v. West (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 258.

Where a vendor of land agreed to release any part of land sold by vendee upon payment of $25 per acre on land to be released, vendee could not, after making a general payment on notes without asking that such payment be applied to release of some designated tract, thereafter claim that it should be so applied. Vineyard v. Miller Land Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 693.

Where vendor agreed to discharge his lien upon any designated tract of land upon payment of $25 per acre out of proceeds of such particular tract, equity would protect purchaser from vendee of particular tract of land who had furnished money paid to vendor against any lien of vendor, if said payment amounted to 25 per acre, but a purchaser who had not paid as much as $25 per acre had no right to demand that previous payments made by land company on notes in excess of $25 per acre for other lands sold should be applied to discharge of lien on his land. Id.

Payment by a purchaser of notes secured by vendor's lien after the vendor had conveyed the property to another does not affect the title of the subsequent purchaser. Rooney v. Porch (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 245.

In action on purchase-money notes and to foreclose vendor's lien securing notes, where defendants tendered amount due prior to commencement of the suit and also tendered amount in court at time of suit, court properly refused to enter judgment and foreclosure of lien on the notes not due; there having been no default subjecting the undue notes to payment. Easley v. Easley (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 343.

A grantee from whom the grantor seeks to recover the land conveyed because of default in payment of balance of purchase money, for which a vendor's lien was retained, destroys the legal effect, as a defensive tender, of his offer to pay the balance of the purchase money, by alleging conversion of machinery, asking that its value be deducted from amount still due, and offering to pay the remainder only. Dollins v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 344.

As a matter of law, the purchaser of land could apply the proceeds of a federal loan, the procuring of which was a condition precedent to the obligations of the contract, to the payment of any of the purchase-money notes he might choose, where the contract did not in express terms provide which note should be paid. Faulkner v. Otto (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 447.

A purchaser of land assuming the payment of outstanding vendor's lien notes given by prior owners becomes, as between himself and the prior owners, the principal obligor, and they his sureties, and the purchase of the notes by him or any one for his benefit constitutes a payment of the debt and merges the lien in the title. Hall v. Conine (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 823.

H. purchased certain land, assuming the payment of outstanding vendor's lien notes executed by prior owners. Subsequently he executed to plaintiffs a deed of trust conveying to them said land and a stock of merchandise and authorizing them, after 90 days, to sell both and distribute the proceeds among H.'s creditors, any surplus to be returned to H. Plaintiffs, as trustees, afterwards sold the stock of merchandise, and with the proceeds acquired all of the notes issued by the prior owners. Held, the presumption was that plaintiffs, as trustees, took up the notes for the benefit of the trust estate, thus extinguishing the lien and releasing the prior owners from further liability as sureties on the notes. Id.

Where plaintiff holding a vendor's lien note against defendant sent a release to the representative of a loan company to take up the note in making a loan on the land to the amount of the difference between the purchase price of a part thereof sold to a third party and the indebtedness to plaintiff, and the representative procured checks both from the third party and from defendant, but misappropriated them a judgment for defendant cannot be sustained on the ground that plaintiff's negligence in delivering the release was the proximate cause of the injury to defendant, where the representative did not use it to obtain defendant's check, which was given solely because the third party's attorney approved the transaction. Shaw v. First State Bank (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 325, affirming in part and reversing in part (Civ. App.) First State Bank of Abilene v. Shaw, 214 S. W. 442.

The fact that vendor's lien notes are long overdue is not proof that they have been paid and that the vendor has released the lien. Head v. Moore (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 362.

14. Marshaling.—See Fields v. Fields (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 195.

If one, who, pursuant to agreement with vendee to carry debt, purchased purchase-money notes, was entitled to judgment for amount of such notes, he was also entitled to judgment foreclosing vendor's lien securing notes. Nobles v. Long (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 752.

Where vendor owned five lots, four of which were subject to trust deed, and he sold the fifth lot and three others on consideration that the vendee discharge the trust deeds on all of them, and the mortgagee without his consent released one lot and then sought foreclosure, the vendor was entitled as against vendee to a vendor's lien on the two unincumbered lots, until the mortgage lien was discharged. Nix v. Albert Pick & Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1112.

In suit against a decedent's estate to have sold land of the estate subject to plaintiffs' note for the purchase money thereof secured by deed of trust on the land, a vendor's lien thereof being preserved and in effect recited in the note and deed of trust, and plaintiff's claim as evidenced by the note and deed of trust having been established in the county probate court, held, there was no pleading or proof justifying sale of remainder of the land before sale of the portion which a later lienholder claimed should be last sold to protect her claim. Fryckberg v. Scott (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 21.

Where persons jointly interested in land, as an accommodation for one of the joint owners, mortgaged the land, the accommodation mortgagors are entitled to require the holders of notes to resort first to the interest of the accommodated mortgagor in the property. Harris v. Hamilton (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 273, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 409.

15. Enforcement of vendor's lien.—Where vendor brought an action against purchasers of vendee to foreclose, there was no election of remedies, and he could subsequently sue the vendee on an unpaid vendor's lien note. Rector v. Brown (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 702.

If vendor sues to foreclose his lien, he has elected to affirm the contract and rely upon his debt and lien, and after such suit stands in the position of a mortgagee, and cannot rescind the contract as executory. Bassham v. Evans (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 446.

Where vendor brought suit to foreclose his lien against maker of purchase money notes, even if he had made a party to the proceeding maker's grantee, who was in military service, the latter could not recover under Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act, § 301 (U. S. Comp. St. § 3078¼f), prior payments of purchase money as damages for vendor's recovery of the property without proceeding under such act, since vendor by lien foreclosure elected to affirm contract and to treat grantee as owner and to assume the position of mortgagee, so that grantee's rights were governed by section 302 (U. S. Comp. St. § 3078¼ff), and not section 301. Id.

Where vendor violated Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act, § 302 (U. S. Comp. St. § 3078¼ff), in foreclosing lien on soldier's property because of nonpayment of notes which soldier had guaranteed to pay upon conveyance of property to him by the maker without making soldier a party to the proceedings, soldier's right to damages was not affected by fact that maker was a party, and that soldier's father who was made a party was his agent and in possession, or by the fact that soldier's brother was a co-owner; the right under the statute being personal to the soldier in view of subdivision 3, and sections 203, 204 (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 3078¼d, 3078¼dd). Id.

While filing of suit to foreclose vendor's lien might extend time to pay the debt, it did not waive vendor's right to rescind or destroy his legal title. Walls v. Cruse (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 240.

A subsequent purchaser who assumed and agreed to pay the vendor's lien notes given by his immediate grantor is liable to the holder of the notes as principal, not as surety, and he can be sued without joining his grantor. Strickland v. Higginbotham Bros. & Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 433.

Where the vendor of land had granted extensions of the lien not without payment of interest and permitted the purchasers to remain in possession for 15 years without any return, it was not inequitable, in suit in trespass to try title or in the alternative to foreclose the lien, to render judgment for return of the land, where the purchaser had not been able to secure any offer to purchase or loan on the land until after judgment was rendered. Lewright v. Reese (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 270.

Purchaser's grantee under quitclaim deed, against whom no personal or money judgment was asked in the seller's suit to recover of the buyer on vendor's lien notes and to foreclose vendor's lien, is not in position to protest the foreclosure of the lien. Riggs v. Baleman (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 179.

In suit to foreclose vendor's lien, brought against the buyer and his grantee, the grantee's answer admitting title to land was in the state, and he a naked trespasser without interest, the grantee, after such admission, cannot be permitted to come in and litigate title to the land. Id.

The buyer of land from defendant who bought from plaintiff deraigned title from plaintiff, and was a proper and necessary party to plaintiff's suit to foreclose vendor's lien. Id.

A note from grantee to grantor, if given as part of the consideration of the purchase, for which vendor's lien was retained, is canceled by operation of law, by judgment in grantor's favor in action by him to recover the land for default in payment of balance of purchase price. Dollins v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 344.

In suit to foreclose vendor's lien, wherein plaintiffs pleaded abandonment by a defendant by letter to them of his rights under a parol agreement to acquire an interest in the property, the court having confined trial to the single issue of abandonment of the agreement by such defendant, held that judgment for plaintiffs should not cancel such defendant's deed of trust, constituting a second and subsequent lien on the property and giving defendant until the property was sold under foreclosure a right of redemption. Daugherty v. Roasberry (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 924.

The holder of a lien upon tracts of land acquires no title thereto without foreclosure by proceedings in which all persons who had acquired interests in the land were made parties. Pope v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 837.

16. — Defenses.—In a suit on vendor's lien notes, the purchaser of land can interpose as a defense the illegality of the contract, by which the equitable title was conveyed to him and the lien retained, to defeat recovery on the lien notes. Stone v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 5.

17. — Limitations.—See notes under arts. 5694, 5695.

21. — Sale and proceeds.—In action to restrain defendant from subjecting plaintiff's stock held as collateral to balance due on vendor's lien notes after foreclosure, evidence held not to sustain a finding that land sold for an inadequate price. Cattlemen's Trust Co. v. Cantrell (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 354.

Where assignee of judgment foreclosing vendor's lien, by agreeing to release owners of the land from liability on such judgment in consideration of their refraining from bidding at foreclosure sale and by later repudiating such agreement immediately prior to the sale, when it was too late for owners to bid, prevented owners from bidding at sale, owners could have sale set aside for fraud; effect of express and unconditional renunciation of contract being to entitle owners to treat contract as terminated. Moore v. Jenkins, 109 Tex. 401, 211 S. W. 975.

In suit to foreclose vendor's lien against vendee and one purchasing the land from him subject to the lien, but not assuming the lien, in which suit no apportionment of the costs between defendants was made by the decree, it was the right of such purchaser to have the costs satisfied out of the proceeds of the foreclosure sale before applying such proceeds to paying the lien. Gough v. Jones (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 943.

Mere inadequacy of price for which land was sold on foreclosure of vendor's lien notes does not justify setting aside the sheriff's sale. Strickland v. Higginbotham Bros. & Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 433.

On foreclosure of a vendor's lien, an agreement by the vendor's attorney that if one jointly liable on the judgment would refrain from bidding the vendor would release him from further liability was a fraud in law, as preventing or chilling the bidding, but such agreement did not make the sale absolutely void, but merely voidable, and it was subject to recognition by the parties as valid, and, so long as it so stood, a sale of other land under an alias execution for a deficiency was valid as between the parties, and could not be attacked collaterally. Ives v. Culton (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 321.

Failure to give notice to owners of land, as required by art. 3757, of sale under judgment foreclosing vendor's lien, renders the sale voidable. Levy v. Roper (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 514.

Where judgment purporting to foreclose vendor's lien was rendered on a note barred by limitations, and without any citation to or appearance by the landowners, and sale thereunder was without notice to them, they seeking to avoid the judgment, sale need not offer to repay what was paid by the purchaser, who bought through an agent knowing of the fraud. Id.

22. — Title and rights of purchasers at sale.—Purchaser at foreclosure of a first lien, a vendor's lien, acquires the land subject, but not subordinate, to rights of holder of second lien, a mortgage, who was not party to foreclosure. Houston v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1121.

24. Right to recover possession of land in general.—Vendor who had retained superior title and elected to recover land was entitled to recover where purchase-money notes had not been paid. Rockhill Country Club Co. v. Nix (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 155.

26. Lien of purchaser of land for purchase money.—On sale of land to enforce equitable lien of purchaser under contract for sale of land for purchase money paid, surplus arising from sale of land belongs to owner of land. Speer v. Hansen (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 324.

32. Attorney's lien.—Agreement with attorneys who were to collect notes that they should have collection fees therein provided held equitable assignment to them of interest in fund, or, if not, equitable lien. Ives v. Culton (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 619.

In suit involving priority between prior unrecorded deed and judgment lien, held that plaintiff attorney, who knew of conveyance, did not acquire lien for payment of his interest. Id.

Where client assigned note to attorney as collateral for specified indebtedness, and not for collection, or to secure payment of fees for services rendered, there was no attorney's lien on note for such services. Thomson v. Findlater Hardware Co., 109 Tex. 235, 205 S. W. 831, 2 A. L. R. 1486.

Evidence held not to support finding that defendant attorney who filed a special plea by way of intervention had no interest in judgment sought to be canceled, so that judgment creditor could compromise the entire judgment without consent of attorney. Irby v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 290.

In Texas an attorney at law has not been given a general lien on a cause of action or judgment or money until collected and in his hands. Finkelstein v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 401.

In suit to cancel oil lease executed by plaintiffs, husband and wife, wherein their attorney intervened to enforce lien on leasehold in hands of defendants, declaration of equitable lien on leasehold interest of a defendant in favor of attorney held erroneous in view of contract between attorney and plaintiffs, contemplating attorney should acquire no vested interest prior to forfeiture of lease and second lease for best price obtainable. Id.

37. Liens incident to partnerships.—Law fixes lien for interest of partner in personal property of firm, and in suit by partner to recover fifth interest in tools and profits, no evidence was necessary, except that there was partnership property in hands of defendant, and that plaintiff owned an interest. Levin v. Steinle (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1137.

39. Liens incident to tenancies in common.—Upon payment of taxes, a co-owner acquires right to exact contribution, which right is secured by a lien upon his cotenant's interest in the land. Elmendorf v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 631.

42. Pledges.—Where the assignee of purchaser's contract for a resale of land at a profit assigned such right to secure payment of his note before he had obtained the purchaser's assignment of his right to recover a deposit under contract of sale, the holder of note had no claim upon the deposit. J. M. Frost & Sons v. Cramer (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 838.

If officers of debtor and creditor banks settled all terms regarding payment of drafts and giving of note and security, and nothing remained except performance, contract was within class which may be enforceable as an executory agreement. Houston Nat. Exch. Bank of Houston v. Gregg County (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 805.

The assignment, by client to attorney, of note as collateral for a specified indebtedness, did not constitute an equitable assignment of client's interest in the note to the extent of an indebtedness to attorney for professional services not included in specified debt, where parties did not agree that pledged note was to cover such debt. Thomson v. Findlater Hardware Co., 109 Tex. 235, 205 S. W. 831, 2 A. L. R. 1486.

Where note given by railway company for money borrowed was void for failure of officers of company to comply with arts. 6717, 6727, defendant holder would have no right to enforce notes received by company for stock and pledged by it as collateral, although defendant had a cause of action against company on implied promise to pay money received. Lumpkin v. Brown (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 217.

Where collateral has been transferred to secure a debt which remains unpaid, it may by agreement of the parties thereto be made to apply also to other debts. Slaughter v. Texas Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1109.

It is not essential to the validity of a pledge that it be specifically mentioned in the note secured thereby, and a lien can be foreclosed on stock which the evidence showed was pledged as collateral security for the note, though not mentioned in the note. Stan-ton v. Security Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 854.

43. — Title of pledgor.—That one intrusted jewelry to another for safe-keeping does not authorize the other to pledge it, and he cannot divest the owner of ownership by pledging it, even to an innocent pledgee. City Nat. Bank of Eastland v. Conley (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 972.

44. — Pledgee as bona fide purchaser.—Where party sold piano and received purchase price, and thereafter pledged another piano, which he did not own, to secure delivery, and pledgee subsequently received notice of ownership of pledged piano, and later entered into agreement with seller to accept pledged piano in place of one he bought, the pledgee was not a purchaser without notice. Renfro v. Hall (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 218.

48. — Conversion of property before default.—Where a bailee, holding cotton liners in trust for the owner as security, violates the trust by selling the property and placing it beyond the owner's reach, the measure of damages for conversion is the highest market price of the property between the date of the conversion and the filing of suit. Early-Foster Co. v. Mid-Tex Oil Mills (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 224.

In an action against a bank for damages for conversion of corporate stock placed as collateral to a note, the measure of damages was the value of the stock at the time converted, less the amount of the note. First Nat. Bank v. Kerr (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 1106.

50. — Payment or discharge of debt.—Where assignment from plaintiff of balance due plaintiff as subcontractor for materials was held by bank as a mere pledge of collateral to secure payment of certain indebtedness due it by plaintiff, the cashing by the bank of a check for less than the amount claimed by plaintiff, which check had been sent the bank by the contractor and recited that it was in full, when there was a dispute as to whether the contractor should pay liquidated damages for delay, did not constitute an accord and satisfaction. Llano Granite & Marble Co. v. Hollinger (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 151.

Where subcontractor of road construction contract made contract whereby third party constructed road with funds furnished by subcontractor, and deposited third party's note with original contractor as collateral to secure advances to third party by original contractor for subcontractor, any act by original contractor, as far as receiving payment, was binding on subcontractor. McFarland v. Ray McDonald Co. (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 946.

Where the holder of a note has collateral to secure its payment, for the purpose of collection and application to the debt the collateral is the property of the holder of the note, and if he holds it as security for payment of more than one debt, he may, in the absence of contrary agreement, apply such proceeds as he may deem proper on the several debts. Slaughter v. Texas Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1109.

52. — Return of property on payment or other discharge.—Where bank on payment of note delivered corporate stock held as collateral to the person who placed the stock with the bank, when it knew that the stock should be delivered to another, who was the true owner of the stock, it was guilty of conversion. First Nat. Bank v. Kerr (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 1106.

53. — Sale of property.—The pledgee's right to sell collateral held by him to secure his debt, and the manner in which such right shall be exercised, are proper matters of contract, though, in the absence of an agreement, the law confers upon the pledgee the right to sell at public auction after due advertisement and after reasonable notice to the pledgor of the time and place of sale. Haynes v. Western Union Telegraph Co. (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 361, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Haynes, 212 S. W. 260.

54. — Actions to enforce right of action pledged.—One to whom a vendor's lien note had been pledged as collateral security for a debt can foreclose the lien without first suing on the original debt. Poythress v. Ivey (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 157.

In a suit by the pledgee of a note to foreclose the vendor's lien securing it, before suit by him on the debt for which the note was pledged as collateral security, the equities between the maker of the note and the pledgor of the paper as to the excess after satisfying the original amount due by the pledgor can be adjusted by the court, and if the pledgor has no interest in the excess, pledgee can recover only enough to satisfy the balance due on the debt to which the pledge is collateral. Id.

In an action to recover moneys advanced under the provisions of an assignment of an interest in a life insurance policy, a petition setting out the instrument, and alleging its execution and that its purpose was to secure the repayment of sums advanced, and alleging the total amount of indebtedness, was sufficient. Hicks v. Emerson-Brantingham Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 348.

56. Subrogation.—Indorsement of vouchers to bank, which advanced money to pay claims against railroad company of character mentioned in art. 6625, constituted assignment of vouchers to bank, which in consequence became subrogated to right of original holders. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Concrete Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 718.

Subrogation is of two kinds, one by operation of law, other by contract. Id.

Tenant who redeems common property from incumbrance has right to contribution from his co-owners, and as between him and defaulting cotenants lien is not extinguished, but is kept alive for his benefit, and may be foreclosed upon failure of co-owners to reimburse him within reasonable time. Johnston v. Johnston (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 469.

Subrogation may arise by agreement of the parties or by implication in equity to prevent fraud or injustice. Aaron Frank Clothing Co. v. Deegan (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 471.

Where a county treasurer negligently issued checks to fictitious persons upon unauthorized warrants, which checks the county depository bank paid upon forged indorsements, the treasurer could not be subrogated to the county's rights against the bank, since public policy forbids that he profit by his own negligence. Padgett v. Young County (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1646.

"Subrogation" is a doctrine of equity and is the substitution of another person in place of a creditor, so that the person in whose favor it is applied succeeds to the rights of the creditor in relation to the debt. Sanger Bros. v. Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 348.

Right of subrogation does not necessarily depend upon privity of contract between the one paying the debt and the creditor or debtor, but arises from the nature of the transaction. Miller v. Guaranty Trust & Banking Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 642.

Brokers, agents of both borrowers and lender in making a loan secured by a note and trust deed sought to be canceled because they failed to pay over the money to the borrower, cannot be subrogated to rights of holders of original vendor's lien notes on the mortgaged land until they have satisfied them, and the lender likewise cannot claim subrogation, since he is chargeable with the knowledge of all facts in the possession of his agents. Steele v. Butler (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 506.

Where plaintiff in exchange of land delivered warranty deed, with covenant qualified as being subject to a mortgage, there being no agreement that the payment of such mortgage should constitute part of the consideration for the land, plaintiff was in the position of a surety on the debt which was to be paid out of the land, and before he could be subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee to sue he must pay the entire debt, and not only the interest. Campbell v. Jones (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 710.

57. — Discharge of incumbrances by purchasers of property.—Where creditor under a trust deed bought at a sale and, to protect its title, purchased a prior mortgage which had been assumed by the grantor in the trust deed, it is entitled to be subrogated to the senior lien, but the land is the primary fund for its payment, and foreclosure must be first had, after which it may have judgment for any deficiency. Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank of Ballinger v. Cameron (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1167.

Where plaintiff loaned defendant money with which to buy land for defendant, without agreement for subrogation, and defendant paid part of the purchase money, giving notes for the rest which he ultimately paid, such payment extinguished the debt, and the doctrine of subrogation did not apply in favor of the lender. Aaron Frank Clothing Co. v. Deegan (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 471.

A grantee named in deed which never became effective, because the grantor during his life retained control thereof, held not subrogated to the lien of vendor's lien notes against the property, which he discharged. Eckert v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 317.

The right of purchaser at execution sale to redeem from lien claims is restricted to those properties to which he acquired legal title, and by payment of liens on other property he is not subrogated to the judgment debtor's right therein, where not compelled to do so to save himself a loss, since the right of subrogation is never accorded to a mere volunteer. Houston v. Shear (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 976.

A purchaser of land from a trustee under a deed of trust at a sale, void by reason of art. 5693, was entitled under the doctrine of subrogation to the debt and the right to sue on the notes, if they were not barred by the provisions of arts. 5694, 5695. Howard v. Stahl (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 826.

Where joint judgment debtor under a judgment foreclosing a vendor's lien paid the judgment and took an assignment and agreed to release owner from liability on such judgment in consideration of an agreement to refrain from bidding, but repudiated such agreement prior to sale, thus preventing owner from bidding, the assignee, who had paid the judgment, is entitled to be subrogated to the vendor's lien for the amount paid by him on the judgment, or to have such judgment enforced for his protection; the sale having been set aside for fraud. Moore v. Jenkins, 109 Tex. 401, 211 S. W. 975.

One who pays purchase price of homestead subject to vendor's lien, or part thereof, on behalf of purchaser under agreement with the purchaser that vendor's lien shall be retained as security for the money advanced, is entitled to be subrogated to vendor's rights to such lien, and where amount advanced is in excess of that secured by vendor's lien, he is subrogated to the extent of the amount of the lien. W. C. Belcher Land Mortgage Co. v. Taylor (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 647.

Where a deed was declared a mortgage, purchaser from the grantee, who had constructive notice of rights of original grantors, and hence was not an innocent purchaser, is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of original grantee to require the property to be subjected to vendor's lien notes in the hands of a third party, and upon the payment of such notes is entitled to enforce the lien against the property to the extent that he had to pay the notes, with interest, and to a lien on the land for taxes paid, with legal interest. Harris v. Hamilton (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 273, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 409.

A purchaser of an abandoned homestead was not entitled to invoke the equitable rule of subrogation, as against the judgment creditors of original grantors of the homestead, by reason of his payment to an innocent purchaser of a note, given in a simulated sale of the homestead to a third person, who reconveyed to the wife; payment of such note being assumed as part of the purchase price to the wife, there being no agreement by any one that he should be subrogated to the rights of the innocent purchaser of the note and lien securing the same. Harrison v. First Nat. Bank of Lewisville (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 269.

Where a number of tracts of land had been sold subject to a vendor's lien, and two of them were resold to a subsequent purchaser who discharged the portion of the lien note chargeable against his tracts, a subsequent incumbrancer for money loaned to the first purchaser has no right of subrogation against the subsequent purchaser, especially where it was not shown the money loaned was applied to the payment of the original vendor's lien note, though the subsequent incumbrance recited the existence of that indebtedness. Pope v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 837.

58. — Persons making advances for discharge of debt or incumbrance.—On payment of note secured by deed of trust on horse, sureties held subrogated to the creditor's rights under the deed of trust, and entitled to its foreclosure. Billingsley v. West (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1054.

One loaning money on a deed of trust which was used in paying off a builder's and mechanic's lien was subrogated to all the rights of the holders of the builder's lien. Dowdy v. Furtner (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 647.

Where mortgagee is compelled to pay taxes to protect his lien, he is subrogated to the lien created by the tax assessment. Lewis v. Powell (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 737.

A transaction by which a bank loaned money to contractors for payment of wages due laborers, which money was so used, held not to constitute an equitable assignment of labor debts, nor subrogate the bank to the laborers' claims against contractor's surety. Hess & Skinner Engineering Co. v. Turney (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 171.

A creditor, who pays off mortgages on property and takes a new mortgage in the aggregate amount, will be subrogated to the rights of the old mortgagees or against an existing inferior mortgage, although formal releases were made and recorded; the holder of the inferior mortgage, of whom the creditor had no actual knowledge, not being prejudiced thereby. Sanger Bros. v. Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 348.

Payment of debt through payment of judgment in mechanic's lien suit and procuring assignment of judgment held to create privity of contract between assignor, assignee, and debtor, and a substitution of the assignee in the place of the assignor in its relation to the debt. Miller v. Guaranty Trust & Banking Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 642.

Bank which paid judgment in mechanic's lien suit and took assignment under an arrangement with one of judgment debtors that debt should be carried forward under a new arrangement held not a volunteer, but to be subrogated to rights of assignor, so that, where judgment was set aside because of lack of service upon one defendant, the original debt and lien would be recognized as a subsisting charge upon the property. Id.

Where community of which third wife was member made deferred payments on land purchased by community of husband and second wife, it was entitled to be subrogated to rights of vendor lienholder against land, whose claim it satisfied, or husband's heirs in partition could seek reimbursement equal to their inherited interest in funds expended in discharging debts against common property. Guest v. Guest (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 547.

The right of subrogation is never accorded to a mere volunteer. Houston v. Shear (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 976.

Bank, which advanced money to bridge building contractor to pay wages of laborers and later secured an order on county which retained balance due under bridge contract, held not subrogated to the rights of the laborers and not protected by contractor's bond as to the debt. Hess & Skinner Engineering Co. v. Turney, 110 Tex. 148, 216 S. W. 621.

Defendant bank, which without authority, but in good faith, applied proceeds of plaintiff's notes left with it for collection to payment of notes of plaintiff and his brother to A., also left with it for collection, on which, as between plaintiff and his brother, the brother alone was obligated, is not entitled to subrogation to A.'s rights as against plaintiff, because this would deprive plaintiff of one of his legal rights without his consent, and without wrongdoing on his part, and because subrogation should be enforced only where it will benefit a meritorious claim without doing injustice to others. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Hereford v. Vardeman (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 585, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 695.

Where vendee conveyed the land to one who assumed payment of a note secured by a vendor's lien, and it was subsequently conveyed several times until conveyed to one who did not assume payment of the note, and the original vendor foreclosed to collect interest which he was compelled to pay on a mortgage existing at the time of the original deed, and interest due on the vendor's lien note, and purchased at the foreclosure sale, to which the vendee was not a party, and subsequently conveyed the land to another, undertaking to release the vendor's lien, the original vendee is entitled, upon being compelled by the original vendor to pay the note, to foreclose the vendor's lien upon the land, being subrogated to the rights of the original vendor. Brown v. Farquhar (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 541.

Where vendee in his deed to another took an express assumption of payment from his grantee for a note secured by vendor's lien and expressly retained a lien to secure the same, he received more than a mere personal promise of the grantee to pay the note, and in substance took an express contract lien to secure the part of the purchase money he himself owed in the purchase of the land and for which he was obligated, and he thereby retained an interest in the land for which he was entitled to protection in a court of equity, if it could be done without injustice to others. Id.

Where, in fraud of the homestead rights of a wife, a consent decree was entered between the husband and his children by a former marriage, vesting title to land in the children subject to a life estate in the husband and subject to outstanding liens, the children, in seeking subrogation to the rights of creditors whose prior liens they had paid, did not come into court with such a case as appealed to the equitable powers of the court. Bell v. Franklin (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 181.

Under a consent decree between a husband and his children by a former marriage, whereby, in fraud of the wife's homestead rights, title to land was vested in the children subject to a life estate of the husband and subject also to outstanding liens, payments by the children of taxes and interest on prior liens were voluntary, and they were not entitled to be subrogated to the interest of the lienholder. Id.

By entering on the land and repudiating his deed and appropriating the rents and revenues to his own use, a grantor placed himself in default and appropriated part of that which should have been applied to pay the interest and taxes on a mortgage subject to which the land had been conveyed, and cannot claim that he was subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee by reason of his having paid interest and taxes. Campbell v. Jones (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 710.

59. — Benefit of remedies of creditor.—See Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Archer (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 796.

Where surety has procured his principal to execute deed of trust to secure note upon which surety is liable, and has paid such note, he will be subrogated to rights of payee, and is entitled to foreclose lien by procuring sale by trustee under trust deed. Eustis v. Frey (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 118.

Purchaser of notes at receiver's sale, part of consideration for notes being amount of debt represented by judgment in mechanic's lien suit, which judgment was set aside, held entitled by reason of doctrine of subrogation to valid lien on premises to secure payment of amount paid for notes with interest. Miller v. Guaranty Trust & Banking Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 642.

Article 5672. [3340] Three years' possession, when a bar.

See Grigsby v. May, 84 Tex. 240, 19 S. W. 343; R. B. Templeman & Son v. Kempner (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 293; Martin v. Burr (Sup.) 228 S. W. 543.

In general.—In an action for the recovery of land, three year's possession by a defendant, who cannot show his possession to be within the limits of the survey under which he claims, is not a bar. Horst v. Herring (Sup.) 8 S. W. 306.

In an action to recover possession of real estate, the defense of three years' adverse possession was not available where defendant's title or color of title rested in parol. Finch v. Trent, 3 Civ. App. 568, 22 S. W. 132.

A void deed is neither title nor color of title. Spikes-Nash Co. v. Manning (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 374.

Where the one-time owner had by prior conveyance parted with whatever title he had to the land, the claims of a subsequent grantee to title by virtue of the three-year statute of limitations cannot be sustained. Raley v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 906.

The three years' statute of limitations barring suits against one who had title from sovereign does not bar an action against purchaser under an executory contract of sale by the holder of the vendor's lien. Stone v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 5.

The 3-year statute of limitations of peaceable and adverse possession under title or color of title from and under the sovereignty of the soil does not apply in favor of purchasers of land in suit by owner of vendor's lien to foreclose the lien on the land. Ater v. Knight (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 648.

To support title to land under the three years' statute of limitation, the deed under which the claim is made must contain a description sufficient to identify the land; a deed void for uncertainty of description necessarily being insufficient to support the plea. Langham v. Gray (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 741.

Art. 5673. [3341] "Title" and "color of title" defined.

Cited, Garvin v. Hall, 83 Tex. 295, 18 S. W. 731.

Void, irregular or defective deeds.—In an action to recover possession of real estate, the defense of three years' adverse possession was not available where defendant's title or color of title rested in parol. Finch v. Trent, 3 Civ. App. 568, 22 S. W. 132.

Title derived through deed of a surviving husband of community property not made to pay community debts was not acquired "by a regular chain of transfer from or under the sovereignty of the soil" supporting limitation under three-year statute. Burnham v. Hardy Oil Co., 108 Tex. 555, 195 S. W. 1139.

The grantee in possession under a deed, control of which the grantor retained during life, held not to trace his claim of title through a regular chain of transfers, etc., and so the three-year statute of limitation was not applicable in a suit by those claiming under the will. Eckert v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 317.

Where a duly recorded deed conveying land was signed by husband and wife, though it did not appear that the wife was examined privily and apart from her husband, such conveyance is sufficient color of title to support a claim of title by limitations under the five-year statute, though the property being the separate property of the wife, the conveyance was void. Dupuy v. Dicks (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 49.

A grantee of a purchaser at a sale under a trust deed did not have a title acquired "by a regular chain of transfer from or under the sovereignty of the soil," supporting limitation under the three-year statute, where the holder of the legal title to the land before the mortgage lien was foreclosed was not a party to the suit to foreclose. Martinez v. Logan (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 611.

Deed purporting to convey a tract or parcel of land, part of the J. S. Johnson one-quarter league, beginning at the northwest corner of said Johnson survey, running thence south, etc., held sufficient in its description for adverse possession to be claimed thereunder, though omitting to give the state and county of location, the date line showing it was executed at Beaumont, Tex., and the deed beginning state of Texas, county of Jefferson, and reciting that both grantor and grantee were citizens of such county, from which the presumption followed the land was located therein, and the check delivered to the grantor in payment for the land, together with a written notice of sale executed by the grantor, being sufficient to identify the land. Langham v. Gray (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 741.

If the common source of title or his heirs had sold the land in question to plaintiffs or plaintiffs' predecessor before conveying to defendants, defendants did not hold "title or color of title" to support limitation of three years. Southwestern Settlement & Development Co. v. Village Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 869.

Patents, grants, certificates and surveys.—An award of a school survey located in a prior survey of which there had also been an award is not "color of title from the sovereignty of the soil," required to give a superior right by three years' adverse possession under statute. Allen v. Draper (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 792.

While a patent could not convey paramount title to land located within a prior school survey, it constituted "color of title from the sovereignty of the soil," within the three-year statute of limitation, sufficient to enable patentees to secure a right thereto superior to one having an award of prior school survey. Id.

In trespass to try title based on adverse possession, it is no defense that state has refused to issue a patent to defendants, where defendants could at any time have obtained a patent by making a correction in field notes; there being no issue as to the boundaries to the land in controversy, the boundaries as existing on the ground being old recognized established surveys. Stark v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 473.

Equitable title.—The three-year limitation statute applying to "title" acquired by "a regular chain of transfer from or under the sovereignty of the soil" refers to a legal title, and not to an equitable right or title. Burnham v. Hardy Oil Co., 108 Tex. 555, 195 S. W. 1139.

The title acquired by an alleged trustee as to two-thirds of land to which he had a legal title, the beneficial interest in which belonged to plaintiffs, was not such title as would support the three-year period of limitations as to such interest. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Harbaugh (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 496.

Art. 5674. [3342] Five years' possession, when a bar.

See R. B. Templeman & Son v. Kempner (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 293; Martin v. Burr (Sup.) 223 S. W. 543.

In general.—In an action for the recovery of real estate, a defendant who has maintained five years' adverse possession, under a duly-registered deed, with concurrent payment of taxes, may plead the bar of the statute, but he is not entitled to this privilege if the possession and payment of taxes have not been concurrent. Snowden v. Rush, 69 Tex. 593, 6 S. W. 767.

Plaintiff having entered under a deed duly registered, and defendant under a tax-deed which is void on its face, the possession of the latter is confined to his actual occupancy, and, notwithstanding the entry of defendant, plaintiff may acquire title by adverse possession to all the land not within the limits of defendant's actual occupancy. Claiborne v. Elkins, 79 Tex. 330, 15 S. W. 395.

To constitute adverse possession under five-year statute of limitation payment of taxes must be concurrent with holding under deed. Gallup v. Runnels (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 504.

Evidence in trespass to try title examined, and defendants held to have met all requirements of both the five and ten year statute of limitations, and by proof of knowledge of and recognition by plaintiff's vendor of adverse possession of defendants for more than such periods of limitation. Boedefeld v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1027.

The several requisites to title to land under the five-year statute of limitations must concur for the entire period. Griswold v. Comer (Com. App.) 203 S. W. 139.

Fraud alone will not prevent the running of the five-year statute of limitations, though the party invoking the statute has put it in motion by his own wrong through participation in the fraud. Davis v. Howe (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 609.

In action to recover land in which defendants set up the five-year statute of limitations in bar of plaintiffs' right to recover evidence held to support finding that defendants' predecessor occupied land under a recorded deed and paid taxes thereon for more than five years. Morris v. Moore (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 890.

Evidence of the possession of plaintiff's predecessors, which continued under color of title for five years prior to the suspension of the statute on January 28, 1861, having been accompanied by payment of taxes on the land held to show adverse possession. Dupuy v. Dicks (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 49.

To acquire, under the five-year statute of limitation, the full title given by art. 5679, all the requirements of the statute must be strictly complied with. Daugherty v. Manning (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 983.

Under the five-year statute of limitations adverse possession must be for a consecutive period of five years, coupled with concurrent payment of annual taxes for such consecutive period. Martinez v. Logan (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 611.

Title may be acquired to an undivided interest in land under the five-year statute of limitations by payment of taxes. Brownfield v. Brabson (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 491.

Possession.—When the other elements of adverse possession are present, the land will be deemed sufficiently inclosed when it was fenced on three sides and there was deep water on the fourth. Alice State Bank v. Houston Pasture Co., 247 U. S. 240, 38 Sup. Ct. 496, 62 L. Ed. 1096.

The mere fencing of land though land is claimed under a deed duly of record, and taxes are duly paid thereon, will not, of itself, without the statutory contemplated use, cultivation, or enjoyment, give such purchaser title by limitation under either the 5 or 10 year statutes. Stringer v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 267.

Evidence that an adverse possession claimant had fenced the land in question some five years previously, that he had cleared some of it, and recently erected a house upon it, held to establish an assertion of exclusive ownership under the five-year statute. Todd v. Hand (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 770.

In partition where a cotenant claimed the land by adverse possession, evidence held to warrant a finding that the possession and assertion of adverse claim under a recorded deed was of such unequivocal and notorious character and so long continued that it could be presumed that plaintiffs had notice thereof, and their rights were barred by limitation. Terry v. Terry (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 299.

In an action to quiet title to land, where defendants set up title by limitation, evidence held insufficient to establish such title not showing an actual, visible, adverse, continuous, and exclusive possession by defendants' predecessor under claim of right which would ripen into title. Carrington v. Carrington (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1029.

Payment of taxes.—Compliance with the five-year statute of limitations requires that the payment of taxes for each of the five years be made before they have become delinquent for said year. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Jordan (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 320; reversing in part (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 544.

Where plaintiff claimed title to land under the five-year statute of limitations, he was bound to show payment of taxes before they became delinquent under arts. 7615, 7616, et seq., for it is essential to acquire title under the five-year statute that the landowner receive the notice, which he must have by payment of taxes before they become delinquent. Baker v. Fogle, 110 Tex. 301, 217 S. W. 141.

Payment of taxes after delinquency is insufficient under the five-year statute of limitations. Brownfield v. Brabson (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 491. Contra. see Fogle v. Baker (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 752; Settegest v. Floyd (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 686.

In trespass to try title, where there was no evidence that defendant's grantors paid any taxes thereon, and defendants pleaded the five-years limitation, it was error to charge that if defendant's grantor went into possession under his deed, cultivating, using, and enjoying the premises, paying taxes thereon, in any, and claiming adversely under his deed for five years before suit, they should find for defendants. Hitchler v. Scanlan, 83 Tex. 569, 19 S. W. 259.

Payment of taxes should be shown to a reasonable certainty in every case where title is claimed under the five-year statute of limitations. Gallup v. Runnels (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 504.

Evidence held insufficient to show concurrent payment of taxes for any consecutive five years. Id.

Tax deed covering land of which occupant held possession in subordination to title of true owner conveyed title and interest which occupant possessed, and in effect broke seizin which he had up to that time, so that, to establish title, he must do so under 10 years' adverse possession after deed. Morrison v. O'Hanlon (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 97.

In a suit to recover possession of land adversely, held the five-year statute of limitation does not apply, where defendant has paid taxes for only four years. Spikes-Nash Co. v. Manning (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 374.

One who was in possession of land under claim of ownership and under deed duly recorded, and rendered it for taxation during 10-year period, will be presumed, in absence of a contrary showing, to have paid taxes when due; he being dead and the tax records destroyed. Morris v. Moore (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 890.

As certainly as the payment of taxes implies the assertion of a claim of right, in an open and public way, which may reach the owner, so the discontinuance of tax payments signifies the abandonment of such claim. Baker v. Fogle, 110 Tex. 301, 217 S. W. 141.

In trespass to try title, wherein a former owner had intervened, it was not error to permit proof that he had rendered the property and paid taxes, thereby showing that he was claiming against all parties. Bishop v. Paul (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 435.

Possession for five years otherwise sufficient to ripen into title under the five-year statute is insufficient, where during part of the time the records showed that the occupant paid taxes on land other than that of which he was in possession. Conn v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 137.

In trespass to try title, plaintiff claiming under an instrument found by the jury to be a deed, but claimed by defendants to be a mortgage, evidence held insufficient to raise the issue of payment of taxes for the year 1912 by defendants, material on the issue of limitation. Langham v. Gray (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 741.

The five-year statute of limitations does not require that claimant of title to land under it make a rendition of the property for taxes, but merely demands the payment of such taxes as may be due. Ammerman v. Bourland (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 804.

In an action of trespass to try title, plaintiffs claiming that they had paid taxes which was admitted except that the school tax collector testified that another rendered the north half of the north half of the land for two years and paid the taxes for such years, it should appear, for plaintiffs to substantiate their claim of prescription under the five-year statute, that the school district has incorporated as such, and that levies and taxes were made by it for the series of years involved. Id.

The burden of proof is on plaintiffs claiming in trespass to try title under the five-year statute of limitations affirmatively to show payment of all taxes due, if any, during the full period of five years. Id.

Where deed was registered September 7, 1904, payment of taxes for the years 1904 to 1908, inclusive, was sufficient to sustain a plea of five-year limitations, it not being necessary to pay taxes for the year 1909. Brownfield v. Brabson (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 491.

It was not sufficient, under the five-year statute of limitations, that taxes were paid, where payment was made on a wrong description, so that no credit of taxes was made on the assessment of taxes against the tract of land in question, since such payment would not afford owner of legal title any notice that some one else was paying taxes on his land. Id.

Claim under deed duly registered—In general.—This article does not apply to one who claims under a deed which is void on its face. Stayton, C. J., dissenting. Schleicher v. Gatlin, 85 Tex. 270, 20 S. W. 120.

Record of deed made by survivor of community without compliance with statute requiring filing of inventory is not sufficient to secure protection of this article. Griffin v. West Ford, 60 Tex. 501.

A cattle company was entitled to prescribe under the five-year statute by virtue of a recorded deed to K. for company's benefit. Burnham v. Hardy Oil Co., 195 S. W. 1139.

Certificate of acknowledgment not bearing seal of notary was insufficient to admit deed to record, and such deed was inadmissible in evidence in support of five years statute of limitation in trespass to try title. McDonald v. Stanfield (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 892.

Where plaintiffs in trespass to try title claimed under a prior grant, defendant's evidence that he paid taxes on land described under a subsequent grant showed that one of the essentials for acquiring title under the five-year statute of limitations was lacking. Dallas Hunting & Fishing Club v. Nash (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1032.

When a deed is the basis of possession of land, it defines the extent of the hostile claim. Boy v. McDowell (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 937.

The object of the five-year statute of limitation in requiring a deed and its due registration being to define the boundaries of the land claimed and to give notice to the true owner of such adverse claim, the validity of the deed is immaterial; it being sufficient if it is an apparently valid instrument with the essential parts of a deed. Davis v. Howe (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 609.

A deed under a tax sale, void as running to a deputy of the sheriff making the sale, is sufficient color of title under the five-year statute of limitations. Id.

Where plaintiffs had unbroken possession of the land in suit from August, 1909, until September, 1915, for them to perfect title under the five-year statute of limitation, it was not necessary that their deeds be of record; they holding under a deed to their predecessor duly registered within the meaning of the statute. Settegast v. Floyd (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 636.

In action to recover land in which defendants set up the five-year statute of limitations in bar of plaintiffs' right to recover, evidence held to support finding that defendants' predecessor occupied land under a recorded deed. Morris v. Moore (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 890.

Competent proof that the deed was executed is unnecessary where it had been duly recorded and not revoked. Todd v. Hand (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 770.

A conveyance by grantors of all their right, title and interest in certain described lands, followed by the habendum clause of a general warranty deed, is a deed to the land, and not a mere quitclaim of the grantor's interest, and will support a plea of five years' limitation. Brownfield v. Brabson (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 491.

Registration.—Although the registration of a tax-deed before the expiration of the period of redemption does not make it a muniment of title, or render it available as a basis of possession, yet, upon the expiration of the redemption period, such prior registration becomes good, and a new registration is not required. Davis v. Hurst (Sup.) 14 S. W. 610.

Where partition between heirs, under which defendant claims, was not by parol, and not under probate proceedings, but by deed showing on its face it was muniment of title necessary to be recorded under five-year statute of limitations, bar of statute is not complete as to interest in land conveyed to defendant by partition deed, not registered until after suit brought. Griswold v. Comer (Com. App.) 209 S. W. 139.

Where one claiming under color of title conveyed the land, but the deed to the grantee, who was placed in possession, was not recorded for nearly a year, the failure to record the deed broke the chain of possession, and the grantor's previous possession could not be counted in making up the five-year period, though the land was shortly thereafter reconveyed to him. Dupuy v. Dicks (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 49.

The deed under which possession is held must be registered, whether it is a deed from a predecessor in title with whom the claimant holds in privity or a deed from any other source. Daugherty v. Manning (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 983.

Under the statute of limitation of five years, a delay of five months in registering a deed in the chain of title under which adverse possession was claimed broke the continuity of the possession, and was not excused by the fact that the deed was placed in a bundle of registered title papers and that the grantee understood that a third person was to record the deed. Id.

It was not necessary to claim title to land by prescription under the five-year statute that each deed in succession from the first possessor should have been recorded; the statute requiring only that each claimant in succession shall hold and claim under a duly recorded deed, and that the title conveyed by the deed is in fact for the benefit of claimant. Ammerman v. Bourland (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 804.

The five-year statute of limitations begins to run from the time of registration of the deed on which the plea is based. Brownfield v. Brabson (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 491.

— Description of land.—A deed to support a plea of five years' limitation must contain such a sufficient description that it will appear from its terms or reference to other instruments of record in the chain of title that it conveys the very land in controversy, so that its registration will put the adverse party on notice that the land is thus being claimed, as an owner of land is not bound to run down references to facts outside the chain of title to ascertain the meaning of the deed. Brownfield v. Brabson (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 491; Langham v. Gray (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 741.

In trespass to try title, a plea of five-year statute of limitations was supported by a deed referring to adjoining surveys on three sides and a river on the other, although name of patentee and number of certificate were erroneous. Randolph v. Lewis (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 795.

Limitation under 5-year statute of limitations is available only when the party asserting it claims under a deed purporting to convey the property claimed, and does not apply to land more than 90 feet from a street, when the deed purports to convey only 90 feet. Cass v. Green (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 938, opinion supplemented 227 S. W. 238.

Forged deed.—In adverse possession proceedings excluding evidence that a deed to claimant for the land involved had been forged, is not reversible error, where the claimant had secured and claimed under a prior deed. Todd v. Hand (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 770; Fogle v. Baker (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 752.

The rule that five years' adverse possession of land under a forged deed, or deed executed under a forged power of attorney, will not bar an action as in other cases, does not apply to the bar announced in the ten-years statute. Moses v. Dibrell, 2 Civ. App. 457, 21 S. W. 414.

The fact that a deed was executed by "Wesley Baker" as "the sole heir of G. W. Baker, of Payette county, Illinois," does not render the deed a "forgery," by reason of the fact that the deed conveys land which was at one time owned by George W. Baker, who has no descendant or relative named Wesley Baker. Fogle v. Baker (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 752.

An affidavit that deed was a forgery did not constitute evidence of forgery in fact, but merely called for proof of the deed's execution. Todd v. Hand (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 770.

A deed executed under a forged power of attorney was a forged deed, within the meaning of the five-year statute of limitations. Olsen v. Grelle (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 927.

Art. 5675. [3343] Ten years' possession, when a bar.

See Schaeffer v. Williams (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 220.

In general.—In suit in trespass to try title, where no equity suit was necessary to set aside a deed as a condition precedent to recovery of land, general statute of limitations which apply to suits for the recovery of real estate, and not four-year statute of limitations, is applicable. Moore v. Chamberlain, 109 Tex. 64, 195 S. W. 1135.

In trespass to try title, plaintiff claiming under ten-year statute of limitations, though defendant showed on plaintiff's cross-examination that plaintiff had not paid taxes on any portion of land, that did not show conclusively that plaintiff was not claiming adversely. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Holland (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 668.

Where, after having paid for land, defendants were informed by vendor that he could not give deed, as land belonged to a certain third person, defendants could not acquire title under 10-year statute, as against such person, without setting up claim adverse to him. Thomas v. Ash (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 670.

Claim of right is unnecessary to constitute adverse possession under ten-year statute. Fowler v. Woods (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 247.

Claimant of land under chain of title from persons who merely occupied and claimed adversely must specially plead the limitation of ten years. Luttrell v. Click (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 255.

Where commissioner, pursuant to decree in partition suit, conveyed land by deed dated December 11, 1896, and grantee who took immediate possession and those holding under him down to and including defendant had had continued adverse and uninterrupted possession of land, using and cultivating same from date of purchase until November 9, 1914, defendant would have title under ten-year statute. Boese v. Parkhill (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 120.

The right to the use of water for irrigation runs with and is appurtenant to the land, and hence, like land, is subject to the 10-year statute of limitations.—Kountz v. Carpenter (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 109.

The ten-year statute would begin to run in favor of plaintiff when he took possession of lands within a valid survey claiming title by virtue of a deed, although no patent had been issued to lands within the survey, since those claiming adversely to plaintiff by virtue of the survey could, in view of art. 7742, have maintained trespass to try title. Spearman v. Mims (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 573.

In trespass to try title, held that plaintiff was not entitled to recover by virtue of prior possession of alleged owners from whom he claims to have purchased, or by virtue of title acquired by such owners under the 10-year statute. Schoonmaker v. Clardy (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1112.

Arts. 5458, 5459, prescribing a limitation of one year for suits by persons claiming the right to purchase state lands theretofore sold, has no application to one asserting title under the statute of limitations of 10 years as against a purchaser from the state, but applies only to persons claiming the right to purchase or lease land already sold or leased to others. Whitaker v. McCarty (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 945, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 502.

Under 10-year adverse possession statute, no deed to land is necessary, and no muniment of title is required, but possession in compliance with statute in absence of contrary evidence carries presumption it is under claim to land, though, where evidence raises issue as to assertion of claim of which the possession is notice, it becomes a jury question, and finding is conclusive. Thompson v. Richardson (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 952, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 275.

Where possession is taken of another's land, but in recognition of true title and constructive possession of title holder, occupant is in possession in subjection to recognized title, and cannot perfect claim of title or defense under 10-year adverse possession statute as against true owner without bringing to his notice a repudiation of the recognition and of assertion of adverse claim, from which his right under statute must date. Id.

Actual possession and cultivation of the land in controversy is all the notice required to start the running of the 10-year statute of limitations, whether the possessors had any deed to the land or not, and whether the record owners knew of their own interest. Krause v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 310.

Every owner of land is presumed to know its boundaries, take notice when they are invaded, and when such invasion arises by reason of field notes and muniment of title, issued to the adverse claimant's grantor and not from the intent of such claimant to acquire lands belonging to another by limitation, 10 years' possession and use vests such claimant with complete legal title. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Olive Sternenberg & Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 534, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 232; Same v. Patterson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 538, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1140.

Possession.—See McCarthy v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 307.

Where party claims title by adverse possession under 10-year statute, improvements made by him within 10-year period cannot be considered. Bailey v. Kirby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 221.

Under ten years statute of limitation, possession does not extend to land of deed not duly recorded. McDonald v. Stanfield (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 892.

An admission of title in another, by claimant under 10-year adverse possession statute, before bar of statute is complete, will defeat his own title by limitations. Thompson v. Richardson (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 952, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 275.

The mere fencing of land though land is claimed under a deed duly of record, and taxes are duly paid thereon, will not, of itself, without the statutory contemplated use, cultivation, or enjoyment, give such purchaser title by limitation under the 10-year statute. Stringer v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 267.

In trespass to try title where the land was claimed under the 10-year statute of limitations and inclosed by a fence by the limitation claimant, and it appeared that the record owner before the expiration of the 10-year period entered and cut and removed the timber from the inclosure without opposition, held, that the entry of the true owner and the removal of the timber were sufficient to stop the running of limitations in favor of the limitation claimant. Black v. Goolsbee (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 463.

Though defendant and those under whom he claimed cleared and fenced land involved in trespass to try title, and had continuous, peaceable, adverse, and uninterrupted possession thereof for more than ten years before suit was commenced, unless they either cultivated, used, or enjoyed it during such time, they did not acquire title by ten years' limitations. Smith v. Wood (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 583.

If ten years' possession of land involved in trespass to try title was not completed when the occupant disclaimed title in another suit, such disclaimer operated to break the continuity of his adverse possession, and he never acquired title to the land by force of the ten-year statute, as the ten years would have to be computed from the date of filing disclaimer; ten years from such date not having in fact elapsed when the present suit was commenced. Id.

Evidence.—In action to recover land claimed under ten-year statute of limitation, verbally given plaintiff by her father, evidence tending to show that the only claim of ownership to the land was made by her father held not sufficient to show plaintiff's adverse occupation. Stark v. Leonard (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 708.

In trespass to try title, deed showing upon its face that it had been altered by erasures and insertions, which were not explained, held admissible as memorandum under ten years statute of limitation. McDonald v. Stanfield (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 892.

Evidence in trespass to try title examined, and defendants held to have met all requirements of the ten year statute of limitations, and by proof of knowledge of and recognition by plaintiff's vendor of adverse possession of defendants for more than such periods of limitation. Boedefeld v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1077.

In trespass to try title, evidence held to show that the possession and claim of one of plaintiff's predecessors in interest had matured into title under the ten-year statute of limitations before such predecessor executed a timber deed. Conn v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 137.

In trespass to try title, undisputed evidence held to show that defendants had title by the ten-year statute of limitations. Schoonmaker v. Clardy (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1112.

In trespass to try title, in which plaintiffs' title rested on limitations for 10 years, held, that judgment for plaintiffs was warranted under the evidence. Foster v. Guerra (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 295.

In an action by one claiming land by adverse possession, evidence held to sustain a finding that plaintiff held the land as described in his petition for a period of 10 years. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Conn (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 342.

In action to recover land, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding in favor of plaintiff under the ten-year statute of limitations. Ross v. Sutter (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 273.

In an action to quiet title to land, where defendants set up title by limitation, evidence held insufficient to establish such title not showing an actual, visible, adverse, continuous, and exclusive possession by defendants' predecessor under claim of right which would ripen into title. Carrington v. Carrington (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1029.

Art. 5676. [3344] Ten years' possession construed to embrace what.

In general.—In an action to recover more than 160 acres, uninclosed, held, that the defendant, not claiming under the memorandum, and whose 10 years' adverse possession had not expired at the time of the passage of the act, could not plead the bar of the statute. Snowden v. Rush, 69 Tex. 593, 6 S. W. 767.

Possession resumed by a grantor cannot be held to be under color of his original grant, and his claim under the statute of limitations is restricted to the limits of his actual occupation, unless they embrace less than the permitted acreage. Bullock v. Smith, 72 Tex. 545, 10 S. W. 687.

Where party claims title by adverse possession under 10-year statute, and his possession includes portions of adjoining tracts, the location of his home is controlling factor, and incidental possession of other tract is not adverse beyond its actual limits. Bailey v. Kirby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 220.

Burden was upon defendants claiming land beyond their inclosure under the 10-year adverse possession statute to show that their possession extended to such land. Thompson v. Richardson (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 952, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 275.

One who takes possession of land, without written memorandum, asserting claim only to the part actually inclosed, cannot hold in excess of the inclosure, though if his improvements cover less than 160 acres, and he claims the whole, he can perfect title by limitations to such portion of the adjoining outlying survey as is requisite to make his holding comprise 160 acres. Id.

In trespass to try title, whether plaintiff's predecessor, who plaintiff claimed to have acquired title by limitation under 5 and 10 year statutes, had kept the land continuously inclosed by a fence for any period of 5 or 10 years, and during such period continued its use and enjoyment as a pasture for stock, held for the jury. Stringer v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 267.

As between the record owner and a limitation claimant, the latter cannot claim a specific 160 acres by actual possession for 10 years or less than 160 acres, unless the 160 acres so claimed has been definitely designated on the ground for 10 years before the institution of the suit, but the limitation claimant can avoid such rule by showing that the specific 160 acres is a fair partition as between him and the record owner. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Conn (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 342.

One holding possession for more than ten years of a field 5 or 6 acres in a survey containing 640 acres cannot claim adverse possession to an undivided 160 acres not definitely located, where he exercised no actual possession outside field, and he bought from one who only claimed the field, and owner of survey had no notice of any claim beyond limits of field. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Holland (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 546, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 668.

One who, while residing on and in possession of tract of land in one section, for more than 10 years claimed ownership of a separate 160-acre tract of land in another section, and cultivated 20 acres thereof, acquired title to the entire 160 acres, though the 20 acres so cultivated were inclosed, since the possession and occupation of the 20 acres was separate and distinct from the tract of land on which he resided, and the doctrine of inclosure was therefore not applicable. Lutcher v. Reed (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 540.

Actual possession of a part does not give constructive possession to 640 acres under Act 1841 (Laws of Republic, 5th Cong. p. 167), § 17 (Paschal's Dig. art. 4624), or to 160 acres under this article, in the absence of a claim of right to the 640 acres or 160 acres, as the case may be. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Ainsworth (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 185.

In trespass to try title, evidence that defendant continuously for 10 years cultivated a small portion of land, claiming ownership of the entire tract of 160 acres, and inclosed the land so cultivated with a fence, held sufficient to sustain finding of jury that defendant had acquired title to the 160 acres by adverse possession. W. T. Carter & Bro. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 889.

Where a section, together with four or five other sections, constituted a pasture inclosed by a pasture fence, and where the amount of land included therein did not exceed 5,000 acres, claimant, in obtaining title by adverse possession, was not limited to 160 acres, but was entitled, if at all, to title to the entire section. Didier v. Woodward (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 563.

Possession under written memorandum.—Description by metes and bounds in deed, together with actual possession, was notice to true owner of adverse claim, although deed erroneously referred generally to the land as being in a different survey. Tucker v. Angelina County Lumber Co. (Com. App.) 216 S. W. 149.

Under the 10-year statute possession of a part of a tract of land under a deed extends by construction to the limits described in the conveyance. Crawford v. Thos. Goggan & Bros. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1106.

Though a deed was void and the grantee never took possession of the land, his heirs, claiming under the deed as heirs, could prove title to the boundaries described in the deed. McCarthy v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 307.

Tax deed describing land as "4,000 acres of land lying and being in Sabine county on the Sabine river, and known as the grant originally made to A.," held sufficient, under evidence that there was but one A. league in Sabine county, and that such league was on the Sabine river, and was an original grant containing 5,500 acres, to constitute a memorandum of title, fixing the boundaries of the land claimed by person claiming thereunder to give such person title by adverse possession to all the land in the A. league in Sabine county. Temple Lumber Co. v. Mackechney, 228 S. W. 177, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Mackechney v. Temple Lumber Co., 197 S. W. 744.

A deed is a sufficient memorandum of land claimed for purposes of acquiring title by adverse possession, if the description would have been sufficient to pass title; reasonable and not absolute certainty in fixing the boundaries being required. Id.

Art. 5677. [3345] Land surrounded by other lands, etc., peaceable possession of defined.

See Crawford v. Thos. Goggan & Bros. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1106.

In general.—This article is without application, when the land owned by the person is merely adjacent to and not surrounded by that claimed and fenced by another. Kendrick v. Polk (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 826.

This article held inapplicable, where one section, with a pasture fence built practically along one line thereof was included in a pasture with four or five other sections. Didier v. Woodward (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 563.

Art. 5678. [3346] Same.

In general.—The "actual possession" means pedal possession, living upon, occupation of land, or making improvements. Schaeffer v. Williams (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 220.

Where testimony did not show that any part of land in controversy fenced with more than 5,000 acres was cultivated and used for agricultural or manufacturing purposes, or was in actual possession of defendant, ten-year statute of limitations did not apply. Id.

Where the inclosure exceeds 5,000 acres, a claimant by inclosure cannot escape the effect of the statute by asserting that within his inclosure of more than 5,000 acres there are lands which are leased and not owned by him and which should therefore be deducted from the acreage inclosed to reduce it to an inclosure of less than 5,000 acres in legal effect. Vergara v. Myers (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 1118.

Art. 5679. [3347] Possession gives full title, when.

See Bunn v. City of Laredo (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 675; Martin v. Burr (Sup.) 228 S. W. 543.

Cited, Snowden v. Rush, 69 Tex. 593, 6 S. W. 767; Todd v. Hand (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 770.

Nature and extent of title acquired.—Under contract providing that vendee should have 30 days for examination of abstract of title furnished by vendors, and should point out defects to vendors, who should have reasonable time to cure defects, where vendee did not within 30 days point out defects which were not remedied, he cannot recover partial payments made on theory that vendors may not perfect title; vendors having a good title by limitations. Lieber v. Nicholson (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 512.

The defense of innocent purchaser of the legal paper title is not available against the owner of a title by limitation. Bryan v. Ross (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 524.

A contract for an abstract showing "good title" is not complied with by showing a title by limitations. Wakeland v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 842.

Purchaser's possession for prescriptive period without recognizing an outstanding title superior to that of vendor under which he was holding held to give vendor good title as against third persons where purchaser did not during the prescriptive period openly and continuously manifest the purpose to disclaim against the title under which he entered upon the land by some act manifesting an intention to repudiate the relation of vendor and purchaser, notwithstanding a mere mental reservation or intention or declaration that such possession was not held against third persons. Robertson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 620.

To acquire under the five-year statute of limitation the full title given by this article, all the requirements of the statute must be strictly complied with. Daugherty v. Manning (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 983.

Under the statute making possession of land under certain circumstances a perfect defense to trespass to try title if pleaded and proved, such possession is a defense though not pleaded by way of confession and avoidance. Krause v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 310.

Since a limitation claimant of an undefined part of the land of another is a joint tenant with the record owner, the limitation claimant can maintain trespass to try title for a specific part of the land against third persons, who showed no title, although he has not occupied all of such land, as there can be no partition, except as between owners. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Conn (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 342.

Owner under a grant which conflicted with and extended over on an earlier grant from the state was technically a trespasser, but when he opened a field thereon and continuously cultivated it and used it for the purpose for which it was adapted for the period prescribed by the statute of limitations, he lost the character of trespasser and became owner. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Olive Sternberg & Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 534, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 232; Same v. Patterson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 538, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1140.

Plaintiff could not acquire by limitations title to land of which she had never been in possession, unless person in possession had possession as her enant. Bishop v. Williams (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 512.

A purchase of part of a tract of land accompanied with more than 20 years' possession of the part bought and the making of improvements gives title to the land. Gordon v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 716.

What will not divest title—In general.—Where, after defendants' use of water for irrigation purposes for 14 years, plaintiff began using the excess water running through defendants' ditches, such use did not destroy defendants' already acquired prescriptive title to all of such water, or prevent the continued running of the statute of limitations. Kountz v. Carpenter (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 109.

Subsequent loss of possession.—After the acquisition of title by adverse possession, the fact that the adverse owner moves from the premises does not constitute an abandonment in law, nor work a forfeiture of the title acquired as against the former owner. Stark v. Leonard (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 677.

Art. 5680. [3348] "Peaceable possession" defined.

In general.—In order to gain title by adverse possession, occupancy must be for a consecutive period of the required number of years. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Conn (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 342.

An instruction defining "peaceable possession" as that which is continuous and not interrupted by adverse suits, being within the language of this article, is correct. Collins v. Megason (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 583.

Evidence that defendant, who claimed to have acquired title by adverse possession under the 10-year statute, but who had not herself occupied the land, had leased the property during all except 2 of the 10 years, without proof that she had a tenant in possession during such 2 years, held insufficient to establish title by adverse possession. Didier v. Woodward (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 563.

Interruption by suit.—In trespass to try title, where plaintiffs' title was one by limitation, a former suit by defendants against plaintiffs' tenants did not break the continuity of plaintiffs' possession of the land involved in the instant suit, where, although the petition in the former suit described generally the land involved therein as being a certain survey which in fact included the land in the instant suit, such general description was followed by a particular description by metes and bounds, not including it; the particular description controlling the general. Stark v. Brown (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 811.

Where judgment was rendered September 25, 1908, which divested from plaintiff's predecessor all title, plaintiff's possession coupled with that of her predecessor did not ripen into title under the ten-year statute of limitations, where plaintiff's suit was filed in April, 1918, and the owner of the record title filed a cross-action in July, 1918. Conn v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 137.

Continuity of possession.—Appointment of a receiver for a corporation does not stop the running of limitations against the corporation, as to one holding land of the corporation adversely. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Brown (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 102.

If title of the claimant by adverse possession were not already perfect, a lease within the statutory period of only 8 acres out of a tract of over 160 acres, made by the true owner to a third person, would prevent perfection of the adverse claimant's title. Lockin v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 168.

Evidence held to show that defendant had the alley fenced and covered with a barn continuously for more than ten years, thus acquiring title by the statute of limitations. Bradford v. Sorenson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 382.

Evidence held to show continuity of possession for the necessary 10 years. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Abraham (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 265.

Where the grantee of one who entered on and under color of title and held possession for some time failed to record his deed for about a year, the continuity of possession was broken and the running of the statute stopped, even though the grantor had a vendor's lien on the land for the purchase price, and it was subsequently reconveyed to him. Dupuy v. Dicks (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 49.

One in possession of property under a claim of right thereto may attempt to buy his peace from adverse claimants without recognizing the title of adverse claimants or interrupting the period of limitations. Chapman v. Dickerson (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 318.

In trespass to try title, in which plaintiff claimed title under the statutes of limitation, finding of continued occupancy during required period held warranted, notwithstanding that in several instances there was a period of about two months between the time when one occupant moved out and another moved in. Morrison v. Bennette (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 307.

Defendant broke the continuity of his possession, so that the running of limitations was stopped, if he stated to plaintiff that he knew her father's heirs owned the land, or if defendant made a statement to the effect that he did not claim the land adversely. Collins v. Megason (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 583.

In trespass to try title, where defendant relied on adverse possession, evidence held sufficient to warrant finding that his possession was continuous, and that the breaks were no greater than were reasonably required for change in tenants, and that therefore the possession was continuous. Id.

In action to recover title to land, which was used principally as a pasture for stock, there being evidence that the husband of one of the defendants at one time stretched a single wire, not sufficient to turn stock, along part of the land, intending to segregate a portion as his wife's property, and that a short time thereafter plaintiffs' predecessor R., then claiming the property, removed the wire and notified defendants, and there was nothing to indicate that his stock were disturbed or his actual possession otherwise interfered with, an instruction that the action of defendant's husband was not sufficient to interrupt the peaceable and continuous possession of plaintiffs and their predecessors if the jury believed that R., immediately on discovering the wire, removed it, was not error. Thomas v. Calahan (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 602.

Where the land which was agricultural was allowed to lie idle one year, that fact did not constitute an abandonment which would preclude previous possessors from relying on their possession as against one entering wholly without title. Beason v. Williams (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 963.

Owner's entry upon land to cut timber therefrom interrupted the running of the statute of limitations in favor of adverse claimant as to all of such land except that portion inclosed by claimant, since owner's entry on land carried with it constructive possession of all the land not in claimant's actual possession. Evans v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 731.

Art. 5681. [3349] "Adverse possession" defined.

See Lyles v. Dodge (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 316; Martin v. Burr (Sup.) 228 S. W. 543; Carrington v. Carrington (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1029.

In general.—Adverse possession, to be available, must have been continuous for the statutory period. Holstein v. Adams, 72 Tex. 485, 10 S. W. 560.

Party is charged with what his deed calls for, and where he makes mistake in paying taxes on one lot instead of another this will not aid him on question of adverse possession of the lot on which he meant to pay taxes. Morrison v. O'Hanlon (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 97.

In action to try title, the issue being whether defendant was an innocent purchaser, or took with notice that a deed to his grantor was in fact a mortgage, where the jury found that he took with notice, and also that he had held by limitation for the required time, it was error to give effect to the latter finding, since limitations are of no avail to a purchaser with notice. Hays v. Morris (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 672.

An owner of land claimed adversely by another is charged as a matter of law with knowledge of location of land and its boundaries. Randolph v. Lewis (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 795.

Title of a fraudulent grantee is protected by the statute of limitation. Davis v. Howe (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 609.

Entry into possession of land under a contract of exchange not accompanied by a deed starts the statute of limitation in favor of the person so entering. Bryan v. Ross (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 524.

Where a vendor of land in a deed agreed to "give a road 20 feet wide from the old Tyler road to the S. E. corner of the above tract sold to the said M.," and provided "said road sold to remain open permanently," but did not place any restrictions as to the use in a special way, or for a forfeiture, such easement could be devoted to pedestrians, and failure to use such road for passage of wagons was not an abandonment or extinguishment of the easement, and adverse possession could not be predicated thereupon. Henderson v. Le Duke (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 655.

Actual and visible appropriation.—The fact that within inclosure were lands controlled by others than defendant did not render any the less adverse defendant's possession of lands therein which it had owned and controlled. Burnham v. Hardy Oil Co., 108 Tex. 555, 195 S. W. 1139.

It is only necessary that the outside inclosure of lands claimed by adverse possession be maintained for the required period; condition of inside fences during that time being immaterial. Id.

Temporary breaks in the inclosure of property claimed by adverse possession do not arrest limitation. Id.

Actual occupancy by residence on land is not necessary to constitute adverse possession. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Holland (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 668.

Mere marking of lines will not amount to disseisin of owner, nor give constructive possession which will support plea of statute of limitations to lands not in actual possession. McDonald v. Stanfield (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 892.

That land claimed by plaintiff was contained in inclosure containing land owned by both defendant and his father, and that inclosure was jointly used by both, would not prevent defendant from acquiring title by adverse possession, where land was claimed by him and not by his father. Esser v. Kneupper (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 508.

Where adjoining landowner, at time that defendants erected a fence inclosing their land, knew that they claimed all land inclosed except a parcel of his land, which was included by an offset in fence, defendant's holding, except as to parcel included by offset, would be adverse, although fence, had it been run in a straight line, would not mark true boundary. Id.

The mere fencing of land for more than ten years does not show use or occupancy sufficient to give title. Hankins v. Dilley (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 549.

Fence inclosing 360 acres of land was a sufficient notorious assertion of holder's adverse claim, though land was in a very rough, broken, uninhabited country. Masterson v. Pullen (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 537.

One of the essentials required to perfect a title by limitation is that the adverse claim must be open and notorious in order to inform the true owner that his title is contested. Boy v. McDowell (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 937.

Where a party's improvements were all on a certain survey, and there was no visible evidence of his claim to the land in controversy in another survey, except an encroachment by fencing a small portion thereof, there was no such possession of the land as gave notice of any claim except as to that inclosed. Fielder v. Houston Oil Co. (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 797.

That a grantee had several Mexican tenants who at times camped upon the 30-acre tract in tents for purpose of cutting timber for wood and charcoal, etc., and at times cultivated a small garden on the land, held not as a matter of law to give grantee title by adverse possession as against true owner. Stringer v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 267.

Where a person who has acquired title by adverse possession to a certain portion of a league purchases a tract contiguous thereto, the continued actual possession of the land to which he had acquired adverse possession without enlargement or extension so as to reach the land purchased would not give him title by adverse possession to land purchased; his possession of other tract not being extended thereto by construction. Id.

Where there was a conflict between surveys of two grants by the state and holders of junior grant were in actual possession of the part of the land in conflict, cultivating and using it, claiming to the extent of the boundaries of their recorded deed, and there was not shown any actual possession or use of any part of the prior grant by the owners of that title and the possession by the owners of the subsequent grant was exclusive, open, adverse, and notorious, it matured into a legal title by the limitations statute. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Olive Sternenberg & Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 534, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Same v. Olive Sternenberg & Co., 200 S. W. 232; Same v. Patterson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 538, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1140.

Possession, to be adverse in contemplation of the statutes, must be open, visible, and notorious, for the full period required. W. T. Carter & Bro. v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 816.

Possession as notice.—Since a landowner need not constantly examine records to guard against instruments affecting his title, he is not to be charged with notice of registration of hostile deed to his tenant, where his possession is not disturbed. Werts' Heirs v. Vick (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 63.

Possession of premises usually carries with it the presumption of a claim of title. Boy v. McDowell (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 937.

The actual possession of a few acres of a tract of land by inclosure with other land owned by claimant is insufficient to put the owner upon notice that any claim of adverse possession is asserted beyond that actually fenced. Fielder v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 158.

An owner of land is bound to take notice of the actual possession of another, and is charged with knowledge of his boundaries, and whatever is reasonably sufficient to notify the owner that another has set up a claim to his land hostile to and inconsistent with the true ownership puts in operation the statute of limitations. W. T. Carter & Bro. v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 816.

Possession of part.—The record owner's possession, through tenants, of portions of a survey, constitutes constructive possession of entire survey except portions actually adversely occupied. Pate v. Gallup (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1151.

Where plaintiff held possession for at least 12 years of field of from 5 to 6 acres in tract of 160 acres, claiming whole tract, and using field for purposes to which it was adapted, plaintiff secured title to whole tract by adverse possession. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Holland (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 668.

When actual owner enters, trespasser is thereafter confined to land enclosed or of which he has actual pedal possession. McDonald v. Stanfield (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 892.

Purchaser of survey taking possession and using parts in conflict with another survey and parts not in conflict and extending invasion of the conflicting survey held to have adverse possession of the entire conflict. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1140.

The purchaser of a survey, conflicting, unknown to him, with a senior survey, by going into possession and using some parts in conflict and others not in conflict, held to acquire title to all the conflicts. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Olive Sternenberg & Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 232.

Where deed conveys two separate tracts, one farm land the other woodland, actual possession by the grantee of the farm land only is not sufficient to continue the grantor's adverse possession as to the woodland. Sandmeyer v. Dolljisi (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 113.

Where one having a deed to land took actual possession of part of a 20-acre tract, all outside the calls of his deed, making adverse claim to all of it, his adverse possession extended to all the tract, provided his claim was of sufficient notoriety; the true owner not having actual possession of any of his land, so that rule giving priority to his constructive possession had no application, and this though the adverse occupant erroneously believed his deed covered the tract. Woodley v. Becknell (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 932.

Where one claims only to the true boundary, wherever situate, his possession beyond such line through mistake is not adverse; but one claiming ownership of all the land within his marked boundaries, which are embraced in the description in a deed under which he claims, is claiming adversely, although he erroneously believes the marked boundary to be the true boundary. Tucker v. Angelina County Lumber Co. (Com. App.) 216 S. W. 149.

One taking possession of a league of land of which 15½ acres were improved, and claiming an indefinite 640 acres not designated, but not exercising any control over, or adverse possession of, any part of the league other than that covered by the actual improvements, acquired no title by limitation to any part of the league outside of the improved land. Durham v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 161, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 211.

When naked possession alone is relied on as constituting title to land, there must be an actual occupancy of the land, and the possession cannot be extended by construction beyond the actual occupancy. Ludtke v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 351.

Where there was an overlap of 48 acres and a field of 50 or 60 acres, cultivated and occupied by the junior patentee, who resided on the junior patent, occupied about 15 acres of the overlap, the remainder being on the junior patent, such possession of part of the overlap being in good faith was sufficient to give constructive title to all the overlap, notwithstanding the claim that such possession did not extend beyond actual possession, because merely incidental to possession of the residence of the junior patentee on the junior patent. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Olive Sternenberg & Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 534, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Same v. Olive Sternenberg & Co., 200 S. W. 232; Same v. Patterson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 538, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1140.

To constitute an "adverse enjoyment of land," the act of enjoyment must be of such character as to afford grounds for an action by the real owner, and the occupancy of one subdivision of a larger tract is not notice to the owner of another subdivision not actually occupied that the occupant is claiming or intends to claim any portion of his land. Gerhart v. Moore (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 876.

Possession of surface as possession of minerals.—Where land has been conveyed reserving oil and gas rights, grantee is entitled to the ordinary possession of the surface, and such possession alone will not defeat by limitation the title to the minerals which were reserved. Luse v. Parmer (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1031; Wallace v. Hoyt (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 425; Henderson v. Chesley (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 573.

The fact that persons in possession of a tract of land hold under deeds conveying the tract to them by metes and bounds description without any mention of the mineral rights thereunder does not make their possession of the surface a possession of the minerals thereunder, which had been previously severed by reservation in a deed conveying property to the possessors' remote grantor. Wallace v. Hoyt (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 425.

Where land was granted with a reservation of mineral rights and a remote grantee bored a well to a depth of about 300 feet for obtaining either water or oil, such act held not sufficient to show such adverse possession of the mineral rights as was necessary to set the statute of limitation in operation; no oil or water being discovered, and the well being subsequently abandoned. Lyles v. Dodge (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 316.

What constitutes hostile possession.—Entry of claimant on the land need only be with intent to claim it as his own, to hold it for himself, such continuing to be nature of his possession, and his entry or holding need not be founded on some character of title. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Jones, 109 Tex. 89, 198 S. W. 290.

Where one rents land to another such tenancy is sufficient notice of adverse possession, although he never mentioned his claim to any one. Salinas v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 605.

Claim of ownership of land, to give rise to title by limitation, must be open and a distinct claim of ownership, and mere assertion by occupant that he might as well have land as another does not show the assertion of exclusive hostile right or title. Morrison v. O'Hanlon (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 97.

Mere permissive possession of land, however long continued, will not give title by adverse possession. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Orange County (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 539.

Though a person in possession of land, acknowledging a better right in the state, may hold adverse possession as against true owner; the mere holding of land, under the belief that the land is the state's and with the purpose of acquiring it lawfully at some future time, does not define the attitude of the possessor as hostile to the claim of the owner of whose existence he is ignorant. Masterson v. Pullen (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 537.

Plaintiff, who took possession of land for purpose of acquiring land from state under belief that land was vacant, but who after being told that land was not vacant, and with knowledge of real owner, continued for a period of ten years to hold land and make substantial improvements in fence inclosing land, held to have held land adversely to true owner. Id.

An encroachment upon the land of another, due solely to a mistake in the location of the true boundary, is inconsistent with a claim of ownership to any portion of the land beyond the limits of the inclosure. Boy v. McDowell (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 937.

As regards hostility of possession, it is enough that those in possession by themselves or tenants are claiming for themselves in hostility to all others. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Abraham (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 265.

As there is no penal law against trespass and people are accustomed when it inflicts no apparent damage to pass at will over uninclosed and unoccupied lands, ordinary use of a way over such lands will not be deemed adverse so as to ripen into a prescriptive way. Nave v. City of Clarendon (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 1110.

Where a landowner platted a town site which designated lands adjacent to the railway as reserved for railway purposes and sold lots according to the plat, a purchaser of a lot adjacent to the railway who constructed a cement sidewalk to give access to his hotel to patrons must be deemed to have evinced an intention to use the premises permanently for a way so that such use will ripen into a prescriptive title. Id.

Purchaser's possession under an executory contract is adverse to all the world, except the vendor or one who stands by privity of contract in a similar relation to him as vendor. Robertson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 620.

Where K.'s possession of land owned by S. was under some sort of a trade with S., S.'s absence and failure to assert his right in opposition to K. raised no presumption of K.'s adverse right. Durham v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 161, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 211.

Having acquired the mortgagor's title, and the land being subject to the mortgagees' lien when she placed her deed of record and took possession, possession of buyer from mortgagor was not adverse to mortgagees' claim of lien, she being entitled to possession as owner, and the mortgagees at no time having been entitled thereto. R. B. Templeman & Son v. Kempner (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 293.

Where there was evidence that the one on whose adverse possession defendant relied had recognized the title of one of the heirs of the patentee having a one-sixth interest, it was not error to refuse a directed verdict for defendant for the other five-sixths interest, since if the holding was not adverse to one heir it was not adverse to the others. Chapman v. Dickerson (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 318.

The real test of adverse possession is whether the acts done by the possessor on the land and the use made thereof were of such nature and character as reasonably to notify the true owner that a hostile claim was being asserted. W. T. Carter & Bro. v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 816.

A lease by railway company to the remote grantor of the owner of a lot adjoining right of way, of a small strip adjacent to the lot, does not show that the possession of that strip by the subsequent owners was permissive under the lease, where it was not included in the description in the deeds to them and there was no evidence that they had knowledge of its existence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Belcher (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 471.

Adverse claimant in possession of land claimed did not by purchase from owner thereof of another tract of land three-quarters of a mile distant from land so occupied and claimed acknowledge owner's title to the land so occupied so as to preclude him from obtaining title thereto by adverse possession, but such purchase was merely a circumstance for the jury to consider in connection with other facts and circumstances in evidence in determining whether the adverse claimant's possession was adverse during a continuous period of 10 years at any one time. Evans v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 731, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 605.

Occupancy of land by one who entered thereon by permission of the owner did not give occupant title by adverse possession, since the possession in such case was that of the owner. Id.

One in actual possession of land for four years as the agent of persons who were merely tenants at will was charged with constructive knowledge of the facts and conditions of their entry, though he did not know to whom the land belonged, as respected his right to hold adversely to the landlord. Lobit v. Dolen (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 831.

Necessity of claim of right.—The possession with recognition of the rights of the owner becomes adverse only by an express repudiation of the rights of the owner which is brought to the owner's notice, or is so notorious and public as to require the owner to take notice. Chapman v. Dickerson (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 318; Thompson v. Richardson (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 952, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 186 S. W. 275; Durham v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 161, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 211.

Where occupant of land took possession in subordination to better title, having so entered, he was required thereafter to change character of possession and make it of such character as to indicate unmistakably assertion of claim of exclusive possession in him, if he sought title by limitation. Morrison v. O'Hanlon (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 97.

Possession is adverse within the statute, although entry on land is made with no original right, but only for the purpose of acquiring limitation and making a home. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Brown (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 102.

Where, in fencing their land, defendants procured permission from adjoining landowner to make an offset in their fence for a short distance, so as to inclose a parcel which was concededly his land, adjustment to be made later, held, there was no adverse possession under 10-year statute as to such parcel, where no further agreement was made, which would give notice that such land was being claimed. Esser v. Kneupper (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 508.

An encroachment upon the land of another, due solely to a mistake in the location of the true boundary, may be converted into an adverse claim to land beyond the inclosure sufficient to mature into a title by limitation by acts showing a hostile intent, such as actual notice to the owner that legal title to the entire tract was claimed. Boy v. McDowell (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 937.

By result in plaintiff's favor, within the limitation period, of a survey of the land in question under agreement of the parties that they should abide thereby, claim of right under which defendant had entered was terminated, and thereafter possession was not hostile, but permissive, and would not ripen into title, unless there was a repudiation of the permissive possession, with notice. Carr v. Bordner (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 282.

Mere declaration or statement of the surface owner's attorney, evidencing a hostile claim to minerals under the land, could not of itself have changed the character of the possession of the surface from a consistent to an adverse possession of the minerals, mere possession of the surface not being possession of the minerals at all; there having been a severance of the minerals. Henderson v. Chesley (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 573.

Vendor and purchaser.—The five years' statute of limitations barring suits to recover land does not begin to run against a suit on the vendor's lien until the purchaser asserts a claim to the land hostile to the lien. Stone v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 5.

Where purchasers went into possession with knowledge of purchase-money note and lien securing it, and that it must be paid, and held in privity with the vendor through deeds down to themselves, their possession was not inconsistent with the rights of the vendor or the holder of the note. Ater v. Knight (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 648.

Purchaser's possession under an executory contract is adverse to all the world, except the vendor or one who stands by privity of contract in a similar relation to him as vendor, and is not adverse to his vendor until the relation of vendor and purchaser is disclaimed or repudiated by one of the parties with notice to the other. Robertson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 620.

A vendor's possession, in the absence of circumstances showing the contrary, is adverse to his vendee; but such is not the case where the vendor remaining in possession has sold the minerals, but not the surface. Green v. West Texas Coal Mining & Developing Co. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 548.

Landlord and tenant.—Where land had rental value of $1,000, while cotenant was in actual possession of part and constructive possession of remainder, court properly refused to award other cotenants recovery of rents, possession, plea of not guilty in trespass to try title, and setting up statute of limitations not constituting ouster. Broom v. Pearson (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 191.

Possession of tenant is possession of landlord, and cannot be said to be adverse, in support of limitations, until landlord has notice of repudiation of tenancy and adverse claim of his tenant. Werts' Heirs v. Vick (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 63.

Where record title to land was in defendant, and H. obtained and held possession as subtenant of defendant's tenant, plaintiffs who obtained and had recorded a warranty deed from H. and wife could not acquire title by adverse possession; the execution of the deed not being a repudiation of the tenancy, and there being no other repudiation. Rio Bravo Oil Co. v. Sanford (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 219.

Where tenants at will of land used in their stock business discontinued their business, but did not surrender possession, but afterwards gave the posts and wire in their fence to their former agent, who had been in actual possession, and he rebuilt the fence, inclosing part of the land with other land of his own, he stood in his former employers' shoes, and occupied the relation of tenant at will to the landlord, and his possession could not be adverse to the landlord until the landlord had actual or constructive knowledge of his adverse claim. Lobit v. Dolen (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 831.

Tenants in common.—The possession of a cotenant, or tenant in common, will be presumed to be in right of the common title, and he will not be permitted to claim protection of the statute of limitations unless it clearly appears that he has repudiated his cotenant's title and is holding adversely thereto. Stiles v. Hawkins (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 89; Terry v. Terry (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 299.

A tenant in common claiming title to land by adverse possession must show exclusive possession, not merely possession with other members of family against whom he claims title, though exercising exclusive control and claiming title. Hardin v. Wanslee (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1031.

Acts relied on by a tenant in common in showing an ouster of his cotenant, and assertion of adverse claims, must be more certain and unequivocal in character than is necessary in ordinary cases where no privity of estate exists, and notice of the adverse holding must be brought home to the cotenant either by information or by acts of unequivocal notoriety. Stiles v. Hawkins (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 89.

The existence of the relationship of tenants in common robs the possession and use of the property by one of them of all probative force as against others, and, the possession being lawful, no inference of adverse claim arises therefrom. Le Blanc v. Jackson (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 687.

In partition action, defendant, claiming to have acquired title to the whole tract by adverse possession as against a cotenant, must show, not only continuous possession of the land for the required period of time, cultivating, using and enjoying it, but also that such continuous possession and use was after repudiation of the cotenancy, with notice of repudiation to the cotenant. Parsons v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 441.

Defendants may have acquired title by adverse possession as against some of the cotenants without having acquired adverse title as against other cotenants, where the former did not become parties to the partition action until six years after the action was commenced by the latter. Tompkins v. Hooker (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1114.

In partition where a cotenant in possession claimed by adverse possession, the registration of a deed under which he held was constructive notice to his cotenants of the existence of the deed. Terry v. Terry (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 299.

In partition between cotenants wherein one claims adversely, it must be shown to claim the protection of statute of limitations that the cotenant against whom the adverse claim is asserted had actual knowledge thereof or that possession and assertion of a hostile claim was of such notorious character that such cotenant would be presumed to have notice thereof. Id.

A cotenant not in possession must have actual knowledge of the fact that cotenant in possession is disputing his right to the property, or such cotenant's possession and assertion of hostile claim must be so notorious as to authorize the presumption that the other joint owner had knowledge thereof; but possession under deed or deeds executed by a cotenant and purporting to convey the entire property is hostile to that of the co-tenant, and he is charged with knowledge of the hostile character thereof. Olsen v. Grelle (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 927.

Husband and wife.—Where a husband abandoned his wife, leaving her in possession of the community lands, which possession she retained for 16 years, the wife could not acquire title to the lands by limitations. Hardin v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1108.

If the former husband of defendant gave the land to the mother of plaintiff's grantors, and placed her in possession, before he could hold adversely to those holding under her there would have to be some act on his part repudiating her claim. Kendrick v. Polk (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 826.

Where father made parol gift of land to daughter and daughter's husband conducted, along with the father, the business of a partnership on the premises, the husband having the sole and exclusive management of the business, the possession of the husband was not adverse to the daughter, as a partnership has no separate legal entity such as a corporation possesses. Carleton-Ferguson Dry Goods Co. v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 208.

Persons in fiduciary relation.—To constitute the possession of a trustee adverse to the beneficiaries, the repudiation of the trust must be clear and unequivocal, and the beneficiaries must have notice thereof. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Harbaugh (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 496.

An employee of a partnership living in a house of the partnership on the property was estopped to claim title adversely to the partnership under the statute of limitation or otherwise without a clear repudiation of his holding as a licensee and notice of such repudiation brought home to the partnership through some member or members of the firm under such circumstances as to be legally binding upon the firm and the members thereof individually, although one of the partners without authority made a parol gift of the house and lot to the employee without knowledge or consent of the other partners, employee not making permanent improvements which would enhance the value of the lot; but employee could set up the statute of limitations as to the undivided interest of the partner making the gift of the house and lot. Leonard v. Cleburne Roller Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 606.

Evidence.—Evidence that house and improvements of adverse possession claimant were on one tract, and only minor and incidental improvements on a second tract, did not make his adverse holding of second tract beyond his actual possession thereof a jury question. Bailey v. Kirby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 221.

Evidence of adverse possession held not undisputed, so as to require judgment against plaintiffs. Blumenthal v. Nussbaum (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 275.

A witness' testimony that he had lived on land claimed by adverse possession for 12 years under an arrangement with claimant's predecessor in title to evict squatters, etc., held not to establish title by adverse possession as matter of law. Jones v. Keith Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 869.

Evidence held sufficient to show that outside inclosure of lands claimed by adverse possession was sufficiently maintained for more than the necessary period. Burnham v. Hardy Oil Co., 108 Tex. 555, 195 S. W. 1139.

In trespass to try title, evidence held to support a finding that defendant had lived on the land for a period long enough to give him title by adverse possession. Settegast v. Blakely (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 253.

Evidence held sufficient to support a finding that defendant took possession of land adversely for himself, and not as agent of another. Salinas v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 605.

Evidence held sufficient to support a finding that plaintiff, claiming by adverse possession, had constructed her buildings within the boundaries of defendant's land, and not to show that one claiming land adversely claimed only to specified boundaries, so as to render judgment for an undivided 160 acres erroneous. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Brown (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 102.

In action where plaintiff claimed title to 160 acres of land by adverse possession, the question of encroachment not being raised, the distance plaintiff was on defendant's land was immaterial. Id.

Evidence held to show that roadway over defendant's land was used with his permission, and that use was not exclusive, nor adverse, nor reasonable necessary. Espejo Land & Irrigation Co. v. Urbahn (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 920.

In suit by adjoining landowner to recover land inclosed within defendants' fence, evidence held to warrant a finding that defendants claimed to fence except for a short distance, where fence departed from line originally adopted. Esser v. Kneupper (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 508.

Evidence held to show prior appropriation and use by defendants and their vendors of one head of water for irrigation for a period of more than 10 years. Kountz v. Carpenter (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 109.

Evidence held to support finding that possession was hostile to claim of all others. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Abraham (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 265.

In an action involving the title to land, evidence held insufficient to show that the possession of any part of the land by an heir and tenant in common was ever adverse to his brothers, also tenants in common. Le Blanc v. Jackson (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 687.

In an action involving question of whether plaintiff had acquired title by adverse possession, testimony that an agent of defendants, who claimed to be legal owners of the land, urged witness to persuade plaintiff to compromise, was admissible to show notice to defendants of plaintiff's adverse claim. Stark v. Haynes (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 343.

On the question of whether plaintiff acquired title by adverse possession, plaintiff's testimony that her brother had told her that agent of defendants, who claimed legal title, had told him to offer to compromise with plaintiff, was admissible to prove her claim to the land, and that offer of compromise was made by defendants. Id.

In a suit for land where plaintiffs set up adverse title, evidence held sufficient to identify the parcel to which they set up an adverse claim. Stark v. Leonard (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 677.

In trespass to try title, evidence held not to show that plaintiff had prior and continuous possession, by virtue of which he was entitled to recover. Schoonmaker v. Clardy (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1112.

In action by purchaser at vendor's lien foreclosure sale, evidence held to show that purchaser during his possession for the prescriptive period did not recognize a title in third persons superior to that of vendor under which he was holding. Robertson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 620.

Evidence that K. took possession of land owned by S. under some sort of a trade, the character of which is not shown, does not warrant the jury in finding that the possession was taken under such circumstances as to set in motion the bar of limitations, especially where K. subsequently abandoned any character of occupancy for more than half a century. Durham v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 161, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 211.

In trespass to try title, evidence for defendant describing land occupied adversely held sufficiently definite to sustain a verdict in his favor. Ludtke v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 351.

Evidence that the person in possession through whom defendant claimed under the statute of limitations had attempted unsuccessfully to purchase the interest of one heir of the original patentee, and had gone into possession with the understanding he was to set off the interest of that heir if he could purchase from the others, held to raise the issue whether his possession was adverse to the heirs. Chapman v. Dickerson (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 318.

In suit to recover title and possession of certain land, wherein a defendant claimed title to an undivided 80 acres in the 160-acre tract, the question whether defendant's possession through a tenant was sufficient to put the true owner on inquiry held for the jury. W. T. Carter & Bro. v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 816.

In partition against purchasers from plaintiffs' cotenants claiming to have acquired title by adverse possession, question as to whether plaintiffs permitted cotenant to remain on the land held proper. Tompkins v. Hooker (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1114.

In partition where a cotenant claimed the land by adverse possession, evidence held to warrant a finding that the possession and assertion of adverse claim under a recorded deed was of such unequivocal and notorious character and so long continued that it could be presumed that plaintiffs had notice thereof, and their rights were barred by limitation. Terry v. Terry (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 299.

Art. 5682. [3350] Possession may be held by different persons.

Tacking successive possessions.—In trespass to try title, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that defendant had title by limitation of five years on account of the adverse possession of its predecessor. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Billingsley (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 248.

Where plaintiff's predecessor in title was ousted of possession of the land by decree of the federal court, plaintiff cannot, though her predecessor continued in possession and delivered possession to her, tack the later possession with the earlier possession. Conn v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 137.

In an action of trespass to try title to recover the title and possession of land, evidence held to raise an issue as to whether defendant's remote grantor or intervenor's testator's grantor matured limitation title. Conn v. Southwestern Settlement & Development Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 612.

Privity of estate.—Under the statute of limitations, a vendee's possession may be tacked to the possession of those under whom he holds in privity, if all the other elements are present. Daugherty v. Manning (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 983.

Vendor and purchaser.—Where a vendor conveyed, retaining a lien to secure purchase-money notes, and by action in court rescinded the conveyance for nonpayment of lien notes, later obtaining quitclaim deeds from the purchasers, such transactions made no break in the privity of vendor's title. Brady v. McCuiston (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 815.

Grantee has a right to avail himself of adverse claim exercised by his grantor to boundaries recited in deed. Barry v. Jones (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 1113.

There was no continuous holding under deeds duly registered by a grantor and grantee where the grantee's deed was not registered for five months, though the grantor retained an express vendor's lien to secure payment of the purchase-money notes, on the theory that the grantee was holding under the grantor's registered title. Daugherty v. Manning (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 983.

Where plaintiff claimed title by adverse possession, variance between description of land in petition and description in deed between plaintiff and predecessor was harmless, where the deed was not offered as a muniment of title, but for the purpose of proving privity between plaintiff and such predecessor to establish continuity of possession for required period. Morrison v. Bennette (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 307.

Landlord and tenant.—In trespass to try title, evidence held sufficient to support a finding that defendant had acquired title by adverse possession through a tenant. Salinas v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 605.

A lease by the true owner to the son of the claimant by adverse possession, who also held as a lessee of his mother, failed to interrupt the adverse possession, upon the same principle as that which prevents a tenant from attorning to another during his term. Lockin v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 168.

One entering possession under the tenant or lessee occupies the same position as the original tenant and lessee, and is equally estopped to deny that the possession thus acquired is that of the landlord. Werts' Heirs v. Vick (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 63.

Where land was occupied by one who was avowedly the tenant of the owner, the possession of such tenant was equivalent to possession by the owner on the question of notice to third parties of said owner's rights. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Choate (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 285.

Inclosure of land by claimant's tenants inures to the benefit of the claimant. Didier v. Woodward (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 563.

Art. 5683. [3351] Right of the state not barred, etc.

In general.—This article does not prevent the acquisition of title by adverse possession to a portion of railroad right of way, since that article was amended after there were extensive railway holdings to meet the construction theretofore placed on it as permitting adverse possession to give title against cities, counties, and towns, and if railway rights of way had been intended to be included, they could have been expressly mentioned. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Belcher (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 471.

State.—An award of a school survey, coupled with proof of occupancy, payment of a part of purchase money, interest, and taxes, is such a right as can be destroyed by adverse possession, notwithstanding title will remain in state until it gives a patent. Allen v. Draper (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 792.

Claimant under purchase from state.—In trespass to try title based on adverse possession, it is no defense that state has refused to issue a patent to defendants, where defendants could at any time have obtained a patent by making a correction in field notes; there being no issue as to the boundaries to the land in controversy, the boundaries as existing on the ground being old recognized established surveys. Stark v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 473.

The rule that a purchaser from the state, before the issuance of a patent, has a title to land, subject to divestiture through adverse possession, though the state cannot be thus barred, applies, though the tract claimed by adverse possession is not a multiple of 40 acres, and assuming that, because of this fact, the adverse claimant cannot compel the land commissioner to substitute him for the purchaser, or demand a patent on payment of the purchase price, as such title as the purchaser has may nevertheless be acquired. Whitaker v. McCarty (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 945, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 502.

The title acquired by an adverse possessor of lands sold by the state, prior to patent, is only such as the purchaser had, and is subordinate to that of the state, and subject to forfeiture until compliance with the conditions of purchase, and upon a declaration of forfeiture all right and title reverts in the state. Id.

County.—Where county granted land to railroad for depot purposes, but failed to sell land by commissioner at public auction as required by law, the railroad, by entering upon land, making improvements thereon, and continuing possession and paying taxes for more than 40 years, secured title thereto by adverse possession. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Orange County (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 539.

Alley.—Where title to land dedicated as alley was obtained by defendant by limitation, defendant did not rededicate land to city by sale of property with reference to map filed in deed records, where no mention was made of the alley, and where owner had not made or recorded plat; the reference to deed being for purpose of identifying lots, and not for purpose of dedicating alley. City of Pearsall v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 327.

Art. 5684. [3352] Does not run against infants, etc.—If a person entitled to commence suit for the recovery of real property or to make any defense founded on the title thereto, be at the time such title shall first descend or the adverse possession commence:

- (1) A person, including a married woman, under twenty-one years of age, or
- (2) In time of war, a person in the military or naval service of the United States, or
- (3) A person of unsound mind, or
- (4) A person imprisoned, the time during which such disability or status shall continue shall not be deemed any portion of the time limited for the commencement of such suit, or the making of such defense; and such person shall have the same time after the removal of his disability that is allowed to others by the provisions of this chapter; providing that on and after the first day of November, A. D., 1920, the period of limitation shall not be extended so as to authorize any person who has the right of action for the recovery of any lands, tenements, hereditaments to institute suit therefor against another having peaceable and adverse possession thereof, using and enjoying the same after the expiration of twenty-five years next after the cause of action shall have accrued, and provided further that this article shall in no way affect suits pending when this Act takes effect, and all such suits shall be tried and disposed of under the law then in force. [Acts 1841, p. 109, §§ 14-17; P. D. 4621-4; 1895, p. 35; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 55, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

In general.—The disability of coverture, beginning subsequent to the commencement of the adverse possession, is not available, although the party was under age at that time, and married later on. The one disability cannot be tacked to the other. Ragsdale v. Barnes, 68 Tex. 504, 5 S. W. 68.

Adverse possession under ten-year statute is unaffected by minority during part of such period of woman claiming title through marriage to deceased record owner's husband after limitation period had expired. Fowler v. Woods (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 247.

Minors.—Where adverse possession commenced in the lifetime of the owner, minority of his heirs does not affect the bar or interrupt running of the statute. Sandmeyer v. Dolijsi (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 113.

Art. 5684a. Adverse possession under chain of title.—On and after the first day of November A. D. 1920, a person who has had; and held the peaceable and adverse possession of lands, tenements and hereditaments, the title to which has passed out of the State, using and enjoying the same under deed or deeds duly recorded constituting a regular chain of title, for a period of twenty-five years immediately preceding shall have a good marketable title thereto. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 55, § 2.]

CHAPTER TWO

LIMITATION OF PERSONAL ACTIONS

Art.	Art.
5685. Actions to be commenced in one year.	5692. Actions for specific performance.
5686. Survival of cause of action.	5693. Time in which power of sale may be exercised.
5687. Actions to be commenced in two years.	5694. Rights under vendor's lien barred, when.
5688. What actions barred in four years.	5695. Contracts of extension, how made and construed; proviso.
5690. All other actions barred, when.	5696. Judgments shall be revived, when.
5691. Actions on foreign judgments barred, when.	5699. On action to contest a will.

Article 5685. [3353] Actions to be commenced in one year.

Cited, Hinkle v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 311.

Art. 5686. [3353a] Survival of cause of action.

Assignment of cause of action.—Barratry was offense at common law, and though this article allows assignment of unliquidated claim for damages for personal injury or other choses in action, state has right to denounce, as offense of barratry, solicitation of employment to collect such claims. Ex parte McCloskey, 82 Cr. R. 531, 199 S. W. 1101.

Art. 5687. [3354] Actions to be commenced in two years.

See Smith v. Dickey, 74 Tex. 61, 11 S. W. 1049.
Cited, St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Shields Grain & Coal Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 183.

Subdivision 1.—In trespass to try title to a strip of land, which for more than two years has been occupied by a railroad track, where the company by cross-bill seeks condemnation of the right of way, the right of the land-owner to compensation for the injury to the land not taken is not barred by this subdivision. Texas Western Ry. Co. v. Cave, 80 Tex. 137, 15 S. W. 786.

Subdivision 2.—Where one partner had loaned casings to an oil company and had been notified about four years before the suit that the casing had been abandoned, such notice, being notice to the partnership, barred an action for conversion by another partner. Canadian Oil & Gas Co. v. Webb (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 135.

Where a father, owning land in common with his children, collected rent for more than 30 years without accounting therefor, or recognizing children's right to participate therein, and appropriated rent to own use, children were barred from recovering their interest in such rents as were collected for more than 2 years prior to action, though 5 years prior to action he recognized children's interest in property by joining with them in mortgaging property. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 369.

In an action to recover the possession of personal property on a farm purchased by defendant at the time of the purchase, evidence held insufficient to show defendant's adverse possession thereof for two years. McGlasson v. Fiorella (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 254.

Subdivision 4.—See American Surety Co. of New York v. Board of Trustees of Independent School Dist. of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 292; City of Ft. Worth v. Same (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 294.

The four-year statute of limitation, and not the two-year statute, applies to an action to recover for deficiency in land conveyed resulting from mutual mistake of the parties as to the quantity of land. Hohertz v. Durham (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 549; Gillispie v. Gray (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 730.

In an action by a national bank against its former vice president and director, under U. S. Rev. St. § 5239 (U. S. Comp. St. § 9831), to recover damages for an excessive loan made by defendant director in violation of section 5209 (U. S. Comp. St. § 9761), the two-year limitation of Vernon's Sayles' Civ. St. Tex. 1914, art. 5687, was inapplicable; the action being within the general description of art. 5690, and subject only to the limitation of four years thereby prescribed. Corsicana Nat. Bank of Corsicana v. Johnson, 251 U. S. 68, 40 Sup. Ct. 82, 64 L. Ed. 141.

A conditional promise, in writing, to pay if ever the promisor is able, coupled with proof of such ability subsequent to the promise, is sufficient to take a case out of this subdivision, even if such ability is not a continuing one. Lange v. Caruthers, 70 Tex. 718, 8 S. W. 604.

Action for establishment of trust and recovery of lots so held, although seeking personal judgment in alternative, was not action of debt barred by two-year statute of limitations. Home Inv. Co. v. Strange, 109 Tex. 342, 195 S. W. 849, 204 S. W. 314, 207 S. W. 307.

Where, under contract providing that defendant should pay for materials, plaintiff paid therefor, a suit for money paid was barred within two years subsequent to date of purchase and appropriation by defendant. Palo Pinto County v. Beene (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 866.

An action for price of goods or commodities sold on a written order, containing no express promise to pay, is not within the two years' statute, but the four years' statute, of limitations. Lewis v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 333.

One who loaned money to another to purchase land for the latter, who agreed to convey the land to the lender, in default of payment could not maintain suit nearly five years thereafter to establish a lien on the land or recover the money; the parol promise being barred by the statute of limitations of two years. Aaron Frank Clothing Co. v. Deegan (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 471.

In a suit by the county upon the treasurer's bond for loss occasioned by his violation of official duty, the statute of limitation of two years is not applicable. Padgett v. Young County (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1046.

Cause of action for fraud of buyer of peanut threshers was not barred by the two-year statute of limitations, where falsity of original representations of seller's agent was concealed by further misrepresentations, whose falsity was not discovered until within two years of suit brought. Texas Harvester Co. v. Wilson-Whaley Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 574.

An action for fraud and deceit is subject to the bar of limitations of two years. Id.

As suit by county against county tax assessor and sureties on his official bond, predicated entirely upon recovery of money which the county had voluntarily allowed and paid the assessor in excess of the maximum compensation allowable for his official services under arts. 7583-7585, and art. 3385, was not for an act in violation of the duties covered by his bond, under arts. 3894, 3895, 7547, but an action in the nature of debt for money received, the two-year statute applied against the county. Grayson County v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 249.

A cause of action for fraudulent misrepresentations, inducing the purchase of oil stock in January and March, 1913, the buyer having discovered the fraud within a few months by working for the company, was barred, on December 20, 1915, by the two-year statute of limitations, which begins to run when the fraud is discovered. Bain v. Lovejoy (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 984.

Where plaintiff allowed defendant, whom he had engaged to clear land, to give written orders on merchants for merchandise, the fact that defendant gave written orders on merchants for part of the money and goods received does not render the two-year statute inapplicable, on the theory that the contract was one in writing. Powers v. Schubert (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 120.

Where the original petition stated a cause of action on express contract, plaintiff could not recover on an implied contract and quantum meruit set up in an amended petition which was not filed until more than two years after the accrual of the cause of action upon quantum meruit. Kuhn v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 343.

The two years' statute of limitations did not apply to a suit on a contract in writing. Leeson v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 763.

The collection and retention by the county treasurer of commissions to which he is not entitled constitutes official malfeasance, giving rise to an action on his bond to which the four, and not the two, years' statute of limitations would apply. Charlton v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 969.

The recitals in deed of public school lands on which there was due the state a certain sum per acre that, as part of the consideration for the deed, the grantees assumed the obligation and debt, including principal and interest, payable to the state, constituted an express agreement by the grantees to pay their grantor's obligation to the state, including each installment of interest, and their grantor's cause of action against them for breach of such agreement by failure to pay such interest installments was one for debt evidenced by and founded upon a contract in writing, to which the four-year statute of limitations was applicable, and not a cause of action to be reimbursed money paid as surety, to which the two-year statute would apply; for, although the grantor had paid the interest installments before suit, his right of action did not arise from defendants' duty or implied promise to reimburse him, but from breach of their duty themselves to pay the installments. Smith v. Nesbitt (Sup.) 230 S. W. 976.

Where plaintiff alleged he was fraudulently induced to subscribe for stock, and his allegations further showed a purpose to recover what he paid, that the certificates had not been issued, and that he had received nothing and consequently could make no offer of restoration, and that the notes he executed were worthless, in that they had been canceled by defendant, he appeared to have repudiated the contract and to seek restoration of the status quo, so that his action was, in effect, for rescission, and the two-year statute was not applicable. Clark v. Texas Co-op. Inv. Co. (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 281, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Texas Co-op. Inv. Co. v. Clark, 212 S. W. 245.

Where a purchaser of a half interest in a sawmill verbally assumed payment of half the mortgage indebtedness of his vendor, and later purchased the other half, and also assumed the remaining half of the indebtedness, the contract of assumption not being a contract in writing, the two-year statute applied, and the mortgagee could not recover a personal judgment against the purchaser, where more than two years had elapsed from the time of the assumption and maturity of the debt; but this did not prevent the mortgagee from foreclosing the mortgage assumed, the notes not having been barred at the time of the purchase. McCaslin v. Pittsburg Foundry & Machine Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 887.

Subdivision 5.—In a suit on an open account, an item, "Balance on settlement, $401.69," is too general. Leverett v. Wherry (App.) 15 S. W. 121.

Where items of goods sold, for defects in which set-off was claimed, were sold at one time, a bill rendered when the goods were shipped, and payment demanded by draft, the transaction was not a portion of a mutual account under the four-year statute, but the two-year statute applied. Caffarelli Bros. v. Lyons Bros. Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 685.

Proprietor of chili parlor who also sold soda water and near beer in connection with his chili business held not a "merchant." Dillard v. Dugger Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 360.

That chili parlor proprietor was given credit for near beer bottles and cases delivered by him to his creditor on two separate occasions did not make the creditor's action against him one on a "mutual and current account concerning the trade of merchandise" there being in such case but one account, and the delivery of the bottles and cases being merely payments thereon. Id.

A watch, watch fob, and pistol turned over to his creditor by a proprietor of a chili parlor held not "merchandise," since chili parlor proprietor was not dealing in such articles, but merely gave them as his personal possessions to his creditor toward payment of his account. Id.

Subdivision 6.—See Alley v. Bessemer Gas Engine Co. (C. C. A.) 262 Fed. 94; Alley v. Bessemer Gas Engine Co. (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 963.

A cause of action for exemplary damages for the refusal of a carrier to transport a passenger pursuant to her ticket because she was a negro was barred in two years as a tort. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 74.

Art. 5688. [3356] What actions barred in four years.

See Kendall v. Hackworth, 66 Tex. 499, 18 S. W. 104; Benavides v. Houston Ice & Brewing Ass'n (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 385.

Cited, Meusebach v. Half, 77 Tex. 185, 13 S. W. 979; Chicago, T. & M. C. Ry. Co. v. Titterington, 84 Tex. 218, 19 S. W. 472, 31 Am. St. Rep. 39.

Subdivision 1.—An action to recover the balance due on a railroad grading contract is an action "founded upon a contract in writing" and, is not barred until the lapse of four years from the time the cause of action accrued. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 74 Tex. 256, 11 S. W. 1113.

The suit on the bond, given on appeal from a justice of the peace can be barred only by this article, limiting to four years an action for debt founded on a contract in writing. Wooldridge v. Rawlings (Sup.) 14 S. W. 667.

A mortgage was foreclosed, and the premises bid in by the mortgagee. One who had purchased after the execution of the mortgage, and whose deed was duly recorded, was not made a party to the foreclosure. The mortgagee took possession of the premises within four years after the sale on foreclosure. Held, that after the expiration of the four years the mortgage could be foreclosed against the purchaser, and that the right to a foreclosure was not barred by this article. King v. Brown, 80 Tex. 276, 16 S. W. 39.

Where original carrier's agent, pursuant to consignee's letter, reshipped goods over defendant railway, advising consignee thereof, held sufficient compliance with art. 710, making four-year statute of limitations, applying to written contracts, applicable to consignee's action for damages. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Bone (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 244.

An action against a grantee for the amount of grantor's vendor's lien note which the grantee assumed and agreed to pay is an action for debt evidenced by or founded on a contract in writing within this article. Gilles v. Miners' Bank of Cartersville, Mo. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 170.

An action for price of goods or commodities sold on a written order, containing no express promise to pay, is not within the two years' statute, but the four years' statute, of limitation. Lewis v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 383.

Where letter was written to defendant describing wheat to be sold at price certain, to which defendants replied in writing that they would take a carload if sample suited, and the samples were sent and a telegram or letter was forwarded ordering the car of wheat which was shipped and accepted, the contract was in writing under the statute of limitations. Id.

Where a purchaser of land on August 10, 1907, as part of purchase price, gave three notes, due, respectively, in three, four, and five years, and his vendee in 1911 made agreement with then owner of notes whereby, in consideration of increased interest, notes were made payable August 10, 1912, four years' statute would bar personal recovery in a suit on the notes, and not on the subsequent agreement, brought after August 10, 1916. Henson v. C. C. Slaughter Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 375.

Where the beneficiary in an accident policy wrote to the insurer within 90 days after death of insured, as provided by the policy, to furnish blanks required for proof, but insurer failed to furnish same, such failure constitutes a waiver of insurer's right to such proof, and of the contractual period of limitation stated in the policy in pursuance of art. 4742, and hence the statutory period of four years applied. Simmons v. Western Indemnity Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 713.

A bill of lading executed by a carrier is a contract in writing to which the four-year statute of limitation applies. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 1107.

A cause of action for actual damages for a carrier's refusal to transport a passenger pursuant to her ticket was within this article. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 74.

A bill of lading is a "contract in writing" and an action by a carrier to recover unpaid freight is not barred until expiration of four years; for failure on the part of a carrier to collect or a shipper to pay the stipulated rate is a breach of a contractual obligation, and not merely of a legal duty, although the rate stipulated is the only lawful rate. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Shields Grain & Coal Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 183.

The four-year statute of limitation, and not the two-year statute, applies to an action to recover for deficiency in land conveyed resulting from mutual mistake of the parties as to the quantity of land. Hohertz v. Durham (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 549.

After a judgment has been entered on a note, secured by a trust deed and foreclosure thereof ordered, the four-year statute of limitations no longer applies, even in favor of subsequent lien claimants who were not parties to the foreclosure suit. Shaw v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 520.

The collection and retention by the county treasurer of commissions to which he is not entitled constitutes official malfeasance, giving rise to an action on his bond to which the four, and not the two, years' statute of limitations would apply. Charlton v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 969.

The recitals in deed of public school lands on which there was due the state a certain sum per acre that, as part of the consideration for the deed, the grantees assumed the obligation and debt, including principal and interest, payable to the state, constituted an express agreement by the grantees to pay their grantor's obligation to the state, including each installment of interest, and their grantor's cause of action against them for breach of such agreement by failure to pay such interest installments was one for debt evidenced by and founded upon a contract in writing, to which the four-year statute of limitations was applicable, and not a cause of action to be reimbursed money paid as surety, to which the two-year statute would apply; for, although the grantor had paid the interest installments before suit, his right of action did not arise from defendants' duty or implied promise to reimburse him, but from breach of their duty themselves to pay the installments. Smith v. Nesbitt (Sup.) 230 S. W. 976.

Subdivision 3.—Where transactions consisted entirely of sales by plaintiff to defendant, held, that there was no mutual and current account between merchant and merchant. Neal Commission Co. v. Golston (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1124.

Action on mutual and current account between merchant and merchant being barred in four years, plaintiff's reply setting up that the account was one between merchant and merchant was proper. Cameron Automobile Co. v. Berry (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 411.

Where items of goods sold, for defects in which set-off was claimed, were sold at one time, a bill rendered when the goods were shipped, and payment demanded by draft, the transaction was not a portion of a mutual account under the four-year statute; but the two-year statute applied. Caffarelli Bros. v. Lyons Bros. Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 685.

Where defendant gave notes to his partner, and they agreed that on dissolution of the partnership the amount due him should be remitted from the notes, and more than four years after dissolution suit was brought on the notes, the agreement was no defense, but in the nature of a set-off, and barred. Cameron v. Williams (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 928.

A watch, watch fob, and pistol turned over to his creditor by a proprietor of a chili parlor held not "merchandise" since chili parlor proprietor was not dealing in such articles, but merely gave them as his personal possessions to his creditor toward payment of his account. Dillard v. Dugger Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 360.

That chili parlor proprietor was given credit for near beer bottles and cases delivered by him to his creditor on two separate occasions did not make the creditor's action against him one on a "mutual and current account concerning the trade of merchandise" there being in such case but one account, and the delivery of the bottles and cases being merely payments thereon. Id.

Proprietor of chili parlor who also sold water and near beer in connection with his chili business held not a "merchant." Id.

Art. 5690. [3358] All other actions barred, when.

See Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 369.

In general.—In an action by a national bank against its former vice president and director, under U. S. Rev. St. § 5239 (U. S. Comp. St. § 9831), to recover damages for an excessive loan made by defendant director in violation of section 5200 (U. S. Comp. St. § 9761), the two-year limitation of Vernon's Sayles' Civ. St. Tex. 1914, art. 5687, was inapplicable; the action being within the general description of this article, and subject only to the limitation of four years thereby prescribed. Corsicana Nat. Bank of Corsicana v. Johnson, 251 U. S. 68, 40 Sup. Ct. 82, 64 L. Ed. 141.

A mortgage was foreclosed, and the premises bid in by the mortgagee. One who had purchased after the execution of the mortgage, and whose deed was duly recorded, was not made a party to the foreclosure. The mortgagee took possession of the premises within four years after the sale on foreclosure. Held, that after the expiration of the four years the mortgage could be foreclosed against the purchaser, and that the right to a foreclosure was not barred by this article. King v. Brown, 80 Tex. 276, 16 S. W. 39.

The statute of limitations of four years, or any other period, unaccompanied by adverse possession, is without application in trespass to try title. McBride v. Loomis (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 480.

Where, in a suit to establish plaintiff's rights in the waters of a stream and enjoin diversion, there was evidence that defendants and their predecessors in title had remained in the adverse, peaceable, uninterrupted, notorious, and exclusive use of the water for irrigation and the operation of railroad locomotives for more than 10 years, there was a question for the jury whether the action was barred by the limitation of 4 years. Martin v. Burr (Sup.) 228 S. W. 543.

The act of 1895 relative to the diversion of water from streams does not repeal the statute of limitations of four years as applied to suits involving the rights of private riparian owners. Id.

The four-year statute of limitations applies to a purchaser's equitable action against a vendor for misrepresentation of the quantity of land purchased at a fixed price per acre. Gillespie v. Gray (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1027.

Cause of action.—A claim by a judgment debtor that creditors had purchased property at a prior execution sale for much less than its value is a claim by way of set-off against the creditors' demand for satisfaction from other property, constituting a cross-action and not a mere defense, and was barred by the four-year statute. Nelson v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 366.

Actions for recovery of real estate.—In suit in trespass to try title, where no equity suit was necessary to set aside a deed as a condition precedent to recovery of land, general statute of limitations which apply to suits for the recovery of real estate, and not four-year statute of limitations, is applicable. Moore v. Chamberlain, 109 Tex. 64, 195 S. W. 1135.

The four-year statute of limitation, and not the two-year statute, is applicable to a suit for shortage in acreage by the purchaser of land. Gillispie v. Gray (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 730.

A suit to quiet the right of riparian proprietors to the water of a stream and to enjoin diversion is not an "action for the recovery of land," and is within this article. Martin v. Burr (Sup.) 228 S. W. 543.

Rescission or cancellation.—Held that, though this article includes an action to set aside a deed conveying land, it cannot be invoked as a bar to such a proceeding when brought by a married woman, when it appears that she was under coverture when the right of action accrued. Storer v. Lane, 1 Civ. App. 250, 20 S. W. 852.

Where subscriber to corporation stock set up fraud inducing his subscription, his action would be barred by statutes applicable to rescission and cancellation, and not those applicable to suits to remove clouds from titles. Loñe Star Life Ins. Co. v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1104.

An action for the rescission of a contract to purchase corporate stock on the ground of fraud is governed by the four-year statute, but an action for damages by reason of fraud in the sale of corporate stock is governed by the two-year statute. Texas Co-op. Inv. Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 245.

A suit to set aside a deed procured by fraud is barred by the four-year statute of limitations. Dean v. Dean (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 505.

Vacation and reformation of judgments.—The statute of limitations of four years applied to a suit to vacate a judgment for want of service of process. Godshalk v. Martin (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 535.

A suit, in so far as it is one to set aside a judgment, is barred in 4 years after the judgment was obtained. Kirtley v. Spencer (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 328.

An action to reform a judgment which misdescribed land through mistake comes within the statute of limitation of four years, and is barred after such time unless facts pleaded are sufficient to toll the statute. Gulf Production Co. v. Palmer (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1017.

Art. 5691. [3359] Actions on foreign judgments barred, when.

In general.—This article applies to a judgment of a federal court for another state. Collin County Nat. Bank v. Hughes, 110 Tex. 362, 220 S. W. 767, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1181.

Art. 5692. [3360] Actions for specific performance.

Cited, Peterson v. McCauley (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 826.

In general.—In an action for specific performance of a contract, to sell land, where defendant neither pleaded nor attempted to prove a demand for the purchase money, and did not allege that the contract had been rescinded, a demurrer to a plea setting up laches on part of plaintiff for a shorter period than that prescribed, as a bar to the action, and the increased value of the land, was properly sustained. Riley v. McNamara, 83 Tex. 11, 18 S. W. 141.

Art. 5693. Time in which power of sale may be exercised.

See City of Ft. Worth v. Rosen (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 84; Clark v. Mussman (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 380; Frederick v. House (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 607; McCracken v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 336.

Construction and application in general.—Rights of grantee of trust deed to exercise power of sale having become completely barred under this article, four years after the debt matured and before enactment of article 5695, providing for extension of time did not extend his time; the rights of the grantor having become vested. Turner v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 263 S. W. 615.

Where note secured by trust deed with power of sale matured in July, 1908, right to a sale was barred after July, 1912, statute having been passed in 1911, so that holder of trust deed had a reasonable time to exercise power of sale. Id.

Where notes secured by a deed of trust matured January 1, 1913, the authority of the trustee to transfer the property under the deed of trust expired absolutely on January 1, 1917, under this article, although such statute, as amended, did not go into effect until November 17, 1913. Howard v. Stahl (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 826.

A purchaser of land from a trustee under a deed of trust at a sale, void by reason of this article, was entitled under the doctrine of subrogation to the debt and the right to sue on the notes, if they were not barred by the provisions of arts. 5694, 5695. Id.

Letters acknowledging the justness of debts evidenced by notes secured by a mortgage held, under Rev. St. 1911, art. 5705, to stop the running of limitations against the notes as personal obligations of the makers; the provision of that article not being affected by arts. 5693-5695, as amended, in which the Legislature was dealing with liens. Bean v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 634.

Actions on improvement certificates are not governed by the four-year statute of limitations, relating to vendor's and deed of trust liens. City of Ft. Worth v. Rosen (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 933.

Art. 5694. Rights under vendor's lien barred, when.

Constitutionality.—See Quick v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 536.

Construction and application.—In general.—This article should be construed as remedial. Bunn v. City of Laredo (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 675.

The rule that a vendor's lien is preserved from the bar of limitations on the purchase-money note if personal judgment is had on such note, so that after expiration of the period of limitation on the note a proceeding may be commenced to revive the judgment and enforce the vendor's lien as an incident to the debt evidenced by the judgment, is not changed by the passage of this article. Ater v. Knight (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 648.

Letters acknowledging the justness of debts evidenced by notes secured by a mortgage held, under art. 5705, to stop the running of limitations against the notes as personal obligations of the makers; the provision of that article not being affected by this article, in which the Legislature was dealing with liens. Bean v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 634.

The provision relating to period of limitations for enforcement of vendor's lien and for recovery of land by a vendor who has reserved title, did not repeal article 593, providing for three days of grace on all notes negotiable or assignable by law, or affect the applicability of such statute to notes secured by deeds of trust and mortgages. Hoard v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 687.

Where vendor's lien notes executed in 1910, and due, respectively, in 1911 and 1912, did not pass to plaintiff until 1920, action thereon and upon vendor's lien reserved was barred for the act which gave 12 months in which to institute suit on the superior title went into effect July 1, 1913. Quick v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 536.

Remedies barred.—Where deed reserving vendor's lien for purchase-money note was recorded, and such lien assigned by unrecorded instrument, the original deed was notice to vendor's creditors only until purchase money note was outlawed, and liens of judgments against vendor secured after note was barred by statute of limitations are superior to assignee's rights under vendor's lien. Price v. Traders' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 934.

This article does not apply to an action, begun in 1914, to foreclose a vendor's lien note due in 1909, which a grantee of the land in 1912, assumed and expressly agreed to pay, and for personal judgment against the grantee. Gilles v. Miners' Bank of Cartersville, Mo. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 170.

Contract for sale or lease, whereby seller promised he would make deed only on buyer's making specified payments, which in fact were never made, was not "deed of conveyance," and conditional obligations of buyer to pay sums mentioned were not "vendor's lien notes." Bailey v. Burkitt (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 725.

Regardless of this article, where vendor's right to rescind matured February 23, 1881, a petition filed November 16, 1914, held within time, in view of art. 5695, extending time. Perez v. Maverick (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 199.

This article applies to an action to recover land by the owner of a purchase-money note and the vendor's superior title. R. B. Godley Lumber Co. v. C. C. Slaughter Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 801.

This article has no application to contracts giving power to forfeit for nonpayment, but only bar enforcement of a superior title, or the foreclosure of vendor's lien. Bunn v. City of Laredo (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 675.

This article applies to vendor's lien evidencing indebtedness due for the purchase money, and not to a judgment based on such indebtedness. Ater v. Knight (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 648.

Actions on improvement certificates are not governed by the four-year statute of limitations, relating to vendor's and deed of trust liens. City of Ft. Worth v. Rosen (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 933.

Suspension of limitations.—The running of this statute is not suspended by a suit by the vendor to recover the amount of the notes, and precludes recovery of the land by suit brought more than four years after maturity of the notes, though recovery on the notes was denied because of illegality of the contract. Stone v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 5.

Art. 5695. Contracts of extension, how made and construed; proviso.

See Price v. Traders' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 934; Bailey v. Burkitt (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 725; R. B. Godley Lumber Co. v. C. C. Slaughter Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 801.

Cited, Howard v. Stahl (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 826; Smith v. Tipps (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 307; Sewell v. Walton (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 371.

Constitutionality.—Const. art. 1, § 16, forbidding retroactive laws, or laws impairing obligation of contracts, contemplates only that a statute shortening the period within which an action may be brought shall allow a reasonable time within which to assert rights. Bunn v. City of Laredo (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 675.

This article is valid in so far as it provided for extension of period of limitations in which to enforce vendor's lien by filing of acknowledged contract of extension, even though proviso relating to revival of remedies already barred should be held unconstitutional. Baxter v. Baxter (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 204.

The Legislature was empowered to extend an existing vendor's lien for additional four-year period. Hoard v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 687.

The provision giving the vendor who has reserved superior legal title the right (if exercised within four years from November 18, 1913, the date of taking effect of the amendment) to enforce claim against the land on purchaser's default by judicial foreclosure proceedings, although the right to foreclose vendor's lien on the land had on November 18, 1913, been lost by limitation, held valid. Id.

The provision shortening the time for action on existing vendor's lien note, is valid, and not unconstitutional as being retroactive. Quick v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 536.

Construction and operation in general.—Vendor's attempt to recover land in trespass to try title after action was barred held not election of remedies preventing enforcement of lien. Tullo v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1073.

This article does not apply to a paving certificate, in view of Const. art. 3, § 35. City of Ft. Worth v. Rosen (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 84.

A recorded mortgage to secure future indebtedness is valid, not only between the parties, but as to subsequent purchasers from the mortgagor, and, as to such subsequent purchasers any advances made or indebtedness incurred in pursuance to the mortgage contract, whether before or after the subsequent sale or incumbrance, are protected by a prior and superior lien, upon the property, this article does not affect the validity of such a future indebtedness clause. Poole v. Cage (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 500.

Extension of vendor's lien note, not recorded as required by statute, would vitalize the debt for four years beyond the four limited by this article, but would not authorize foreclosure of lien, which had ceased to exist. McCracken v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 336.

Letters acknowledging the justness of debts evidenced by notes secured by a mortgage held, under art. 5705, to stop the running of limitations against the notes as personal obligations of the makers; the provision of that article not being affected by arts. 5693-5695, as amended, in which the Legislature was dealing with liens. Bean v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 634.

Vendor's attempt to recover land by virtue of his superior title, in an action of trespass to try title, after such action was barred, was an election of remedies preventing an action on vendor's lien notes and to foreclose the lien. Marshall v. Mayfield (Com. App.) 227 S. W. 1097.

Where a landowner made an executory contract to convey, retaining a vendor's lien in the purchase-money notes, but failed to sue to foreclose the lien, or otherwise to take steps to recover the land, until limitations barred his right to recover, the superior title then vested in the grantee. Canon v. Scott (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1042.

Existing liens.—This article does not apply to an action begun in 1914 to foreclose a vendor's lien note due in 1909 which a grantee of the land assumed and expressly agreed to pay in 1912, and for personal judgment against the grantee. Gilles v. Miners' Bank of Cartersville, Mo. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 170.

Vendor's lien note due November 15, 1909, held not barred on November 18, 1913, when the amendment by Acts 33d Leg. c. 123, took effect, in view of article 593, giving 3 days' grace. Tullos v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1073.

Regardless of art. 5694, where vendor's right to rescind matured February 23, 1881, a petition filed November 16, 1914, held within time, in view of this article. Perez v. Maverick (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 199.

Rights of grantee of trust deed to exercise power of sale having become completely barred under art. 5693, four years after the debt matured and before enactment of art. 5695, providing for extension of time, did not extend his time; the rights of the grantor having become vested. Turner v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 615.

As limitation laws relate to remedy only, and Legislature may increase or diminish the period of limitation, provided such change is made before the right has become barred under the pre-existing statute, the proviso to this article prevented bar of vendor's lien notes executed subsequent to July 14, 1905, and maturing August 10, 1912, until four years after enactment of statute. Henson v. C. C. Slaughter Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 375.

Relative to bar of suit to foreclose a mortgage executed after July 14, 1905, and securing a note maturing before, but less than four years before, the taking effect of Acts 1913, c. 123, embodied in this article, right to renew and extend the note and mortgage is not limited to four years after maturity of the note, but to four years after the taking effect of the legislative acts. Frederick v. House (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 607.

Where notes secured by a mortgage on real estate, though due, were not barred by limitations, when this article was amended by Acts 33d Leg. 1st Called Sess. (1913) c. 27, the holder of the notes had four years after the last amendment took effect within which to commence foreclosure suit, and such period could not be shortened on the theory that the four-year period should be counted from the first amendment. Bean v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 634.

Subsequent purchasers.—Where maker of note representing vendor's lien sold property to defendants, who assumed payment of note, but executed no new note, their contracts of assumption were as binding as if new notes had been executed, and were not barred where suit was brought within four years from the date of such assumption contract, though more than four years after maturity of the note; but payee could not have personal judgment against maker in suit brought more than four years after note was due, where he had not executed extension contract. L. C. Denman Co. v. Standard Savings & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1109.

An extension contract between the vendor and vendee extends the time for recovery under the lien, though a purchaser from the vendee is not a party thereto. Howell v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 975.

Purchaser in 1916 of a lot against which there was, as shown by the deed records, a vendor's lien for the purchase-money debt, evidenced by a note due in 1910, could not be an innocent purchaser as to such lien, since, it was enforceable until July, 1917; it being immaterial that such purchaser had no notice that the note and lien had, prior to such purchase, been merged in a judgment, to which the 10 years' statute applies, and that suit was not brought on such judgment and to foreclose the vendor's lien as incident thereto, until 1919, as bringing suit dispensed with necessity of extending the note under art. 5595. Ater v. Knight (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 648.

Extension.—This article does not require record at any particular time, and an extension filed some years after its execution, but before renewed obligation was barred, held sufficient. Clark v. Mussman (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 380.

Extension by buyer of land of vendor's lien notes and lien made when neither the original debt nor lien was barred, and when notes were in hands of transferee, held to have kept lien alive and enforceable against his own vendee until four years after new maturity date, though his vendee had bought land before contract of extension, and had then assumed of record payment of notes against it, payment of which was subsequently extended. Allison-Richey Gulf Coast Home Co. v. Welder (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 392.

Note and deed of trust constituting renewal of note of previous year, and continuation of lien securing it, held a renewal of the note and a continuation of the lien under this article, every requirement of which was met and complied with, such renewal and continuation of lien being binding on a subsequent purchaser from the mortgagor, so that the mortgagees' claim, suit having been instituted within less than four years after maturity of the renewed note, was not barred by limitations. R. B. Templeman & Son v. Kempner (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 293.

Art. 5696. [3361] Judgment shall be revived, when.

In general.—The fact that a claim for a teacher's salary has been audited and allowed by the commissioners' court of a county does not render it a "judgment" enforceable within 10 years, but where it is afterwards repudiated, and payment refused, the 4-years statute of limitation applies. Fruitt v. Durant, 84 Tex. 8, 19 S. W. 281.

Foreign judgment.—Where scire facias proceeding to revive a personal judgment is, as in the federal courts, but a continuance of the original suit, the judgment of revivor does not become the judgment, and action on the revived judgment is on the original judgment, so that bar of that action by limitations must be determined, relative to action on foreign judgment, according to the judgment's original date. Collin County Nat. Bank v. Hughes, 110 Tex. 362, 220 S. W. 767, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1181.

Revival of Judgment.—In debt on a dormant judgment, and for costs paid out by plaintiffs in the original suit, it is proper to render judgment for the amount of the original judgment, with interest and the costs, and to make the last judgment bear interest from its date. Bridge v. Samuelson, 73 Tex. 522, 11 S. W. 539.

A proceeding to revive a judgment against a city may be joined with an application for a mandamus to enforce its collection. City of Houston v. Emery, 76 Tex. 232, 13 S. W. 264.

Under arts. 2430, 3443, 3449, and 3450, providing that judgments on claims disallowed by administrators shall be filed with the county court and have same effect as if they had been allowed, such judgments are not enforceable by execution, and cannot become dormant and be revived by scire facias under arts. 3717 and 5696. Farmers' Nat. Bank v. Crumley (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 358.

While the technical judgment on scire facias to revive a judgment is ordinarily that execution issue, yet, as the judgment was a debt, the proceeding to revive is nothing more or less than a suit for debt. Ater v. Knight (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 648.

Art. 5699. [3364] On actions to contest a will.

See Sutton v. English, 246 U. S. 199, 38 Sup. Ct. 254, 62 L. Ed. 664.

Construction and operation in general.—This article does not, in view of Const. art. 5, § 16, give district courts jurisdiction to annul by original proceeding the action of a county court in probating a will. Minor v. Hall (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 784.

CHAPTER THREE

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art.		Art.
5701.	Suspension during late war.	5707.	Presumption of death, when, etc.
5702.	Time of temporary absence not counted.	5708.	No limitation against infants.
5703.	Death of owner, etc., shall stop limitation, until, etc.	5711.	One disability not tacked to another.
5704.	Death of person, etc., against whom, etc.	5712.	Claims barred under pre-existing laws, etc.
5705.	Acknowledgment must be in writing.	5713.	No agreement to shorten period of limitation valid.
5706.	Limitation must be pleaded, etc.	5714.	Notice of claims for damages; rule as to.

Article 5701. [3366] Suspension during late war.

Cited, Smith v. Perkins, 81 Tex. 152, 16 S. W. 805, 26 Am. St. Rep. 794; Jackson v. Houston, 84 Tex. 622, 19 S. W. 799.

Art. 5702. [3367] Time of temporary absence not counted.

Construction and application in general.—This article has no application, where defendant was without the state when the cause of action accrued and did not return within the period of limitations. Alley v. Bessemer Gas Engine Co. (C. C. A.) 262 Fed. 94.

The question of the defendant's residence in the state is immaterial in determining the application of the statute, but its applicability depends on the presence of the defendant in the state, either at the time the cause of action accrued or the right arose out of which the cause of action grew. Graham v. Englemann (D. C.) 263 Fed. 166.

This article applies to one who at time of accrual of cause of action had a "residence" as distinguished from a "domicile" within the state. Watts v. McCloud (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 381.

Nonresidence.—If subsequent grantee from common source, claiming title by adverse possession under five-year statute, was a nonresident at time his deed was recorded, mere visits to the state on business or pleasure would not bring the suspensory statute into operation. Watts v. McCloud (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 381.

If subsequent grantee from common source, claiming title by adverse possession under five-year statute, was a resident at time deed to him was recorded, the operation of the statute would be suspended during his absence from the state, although during such time grantee became a nonresident. Id.

Absence.—Defendant foreign corporation was, for purpose of citation on it, not only within the state when plaintiff's cause of action for personal injury accrued, but also never without it during the two years thereafter, so that under art. 5687, subd. 6, and art. 5702, action was barred; it at all times having local soliciting agents; on whose orders, when approved at the home office, it shipped, art. 1861 allowing it to be served by citation on any local agent within the state. Alley v. Bessemer Gas Engine Co. (C. C. A.) 262 Fed. 94.

An action commenced June 24, 1889, on an account due plaintiff in April, 1887, where defendant was out of the state from April until October in 1887, was not barred by the two-years limitation. Watkins v. Junker (Sup.) 19 S. W. 390.

Pleading.—In suit to recover on sworn account, defendant setting up statute of limitations, court erred in sustaining exception to paragraph of plaintiff's pleading alleging defendant was out of state some of time during which cause might have been maintained. Cameron Automobile Co. v. Berry (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 411.

Evidence.—In trespass to try title, the principal issue being whether deceased grantee was at time of accrual of cause of action a resident, so that his absence from the state would suspend statute of limitations, a statement of said grantee in an affidavit that his post office address was a named place within the state was admissible as a circumstance tending to establish residence. Watts v. McCloud (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 381.

Art. 5703. [3368] Death of owner, etc., shall stop limitation until, etc.

In general.—Death suspends limitation period for year, unless administrator or executor has sooner qualified. Coleman v. Texas Produce Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 382.

Under federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665), cause of action in case of death does not accrue until appointment of a personal representative of deceased, and, where deceased's wife filed petition within two years after she was appointed administratrix, action was not barred. Bird v. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co., 109 Tex. 323, 207 S. W. 518.

Limitation would be suspended as to a debt owing to a community only until such time as surviving spouse qualified as community administrator under the provisions of art. 3592 et seq. Clark v. First Nat. Bank (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 677.

Art. 5704. [3369] Death of person, etc., against whom, etc.

In general.—Where an administrator of an estate is not appointed until more than 2½ years after the death of his intestate, a claim consisting of a note and mortgage, filed against the estate 4 years and 3 months after its maturity, is not barred by the statute of limitations, since the statute of limitations was suspended for one year after intestate's death. Kiobassa v. Raley, 1 Civ. App. 165, 23 S. W. 253.

"Administratrix."—The qualification of a surviving wife as community administratrix, under the provisions of art. 3592 et seq., is an "administration," which will put such statute of limitation in motion after its suspension by reason of the death of the husband, at least so far as actions to subject community property to community debts are concerned. Clark v. First Nat. Bank (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 677.

Art. 5705. [3370] Acknowledgment must be in writing.

Extension of note.—Mere extension of past-due note is only an acknowledgment of justness of claims which must be in writing to toll the running of the statute. Poythress v. Ivey (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 103.

Extension of vendor's lien note, not recorded as required by statute, would vitalize the debt for four years beyond the four limited by arts. 5694, 5695. McCracken v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 336.

Where a husband and wife borrowed money from intervener to buy lots and construct buildings thereon, and gave notes therefor prior to moving onto the property, and subsequently the husband alone by agreement extended the time of payment he could not renew the wife's indebtedness which had become barred by the four-year statute (art. 5688), so as to defeat her homestead rights. Benavides v. Houston Ice & Brewing Ass'n (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 385.

New promise.—Promise by administratrix to pay claim not then presented to her for allowance or rejection held not to prevent running of limitations especially in view of this article. Butler v. Fechner (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1126.

The original barred debt, not being satisfied or discharged but merely unenforceable, is sufficient consideration for the new promise to pay. Frederick v. House (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 607.

Action upon new contract.—A new consideration is essential to a parol agreement, extending the date of payment of a note in order to postpone the beginning of the period of limitation. First State Bank of Eustace v. Bowman (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 75.

This article has no application, where payee of a note by parol agreement, has extended the date of payment in consideration of the payment of interest to extended date; this being a new contract superseding note. Id.

Where a new promise or acknowledgment is pleaded by amendment to take a claim out of the statute, limitations will run against such new promise until the filing of the amendment. Cozier v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 975.

Sufficiency of acknowledgment.—After the statute of limitations had run, the creditor drew on the debtor. The latter wrote: "When I last saw you I explained to you that everything I had was tied up, and that the first debt I paid would be yours." "By doing the way you have it seems to me you desire to advertise the fact that I am in debt." "I wish to say to you plainly that drawing on me is not making your claim better. If you are not satisfied with delay and my excuses sue me as a man, but cease persecuting me. I am good for any judgment obtained against me." Held, that the letter was sufficient to remove the bar of the statute. Russ v. Cunningham (Sup.) 16 S. W. 446.

Letter from debtor to creditor, making proposition looking toward settlement in corporate stock, held to have renewed debt and prevented bar by running of four-year limitation. Emerson-Brantingham Implement Co. v. Hickman (Civ. App.) 193 S. W. 412.

Defendant's letter, in answer to request for payment of agent's commission, stating his impression that claim had been paid, promising to search his records and get the matter straightened out and requesting agent to think the matter over, was not such acknowledgment of indebtedness or new promise to pay as to lift the bar of limitations. Campbell v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 743.

Where defendant, who had cleared land for plaintiff, demanded an additional sum, and the demand, which was written by defendant's agent, adverted to plaintiff's claim, which was supposed to be a small one, and the letter showed that defendant did not know the amount of plaintiff's claim, there was no acknowledgment of plaintiff's claim so as to take the same out of the limitation statute. Powers v. Schubert (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 120.

Letters acknowledging the justness of debts evidenced by notes secured by a mortgage held to stop the running of limitations against the notes as personal obligations of the makers; the provision of that article not being affected by arts. 5693-5695, as amended, in which the Legislature was dealing with liens. Bean v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 634.

An acknowledgment of indebtedness sufficient to remove the bar of the statute, must acknowledge the existence of liability at the time of the acknowledgment and express a willingness to pay; it being insufficient that it acknowledges the justice of the original claim so that in an action to recover an attorney's fee barred by the two-year statute of limitation, a letter written by the client to the attorney admitting that he owed the attorney something, but objecting to the amount of the claim and requesting a reduction, is not sufficient. Wade v. Sheehan (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 444.

Art. 5706. [3371] Limitation must be pleaded, etc.

See Gathright v. Wheat, 70 Tex. 740, 9 S. W. 76.

Pleading statute as defense.—Statutes of limitation must be pleaded, in order to obtain any relief under them. McCracken v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 336; Bunn v. City of Laredo (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 675; Garza v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 488.

Claimant of land under chain of title from persons who merely occupied and claimed adversely must specially plead the limitation of ten years. Luttrell v. Click (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 255.

A first amended abandoned petition being no part of a second amended petition, that the second alleges a different cause of action can be raised only by plea and proof. Corpus Christi Street & Interurban Ry. Co. v. Kjellberg (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1032.

In trespass to try title, defendant, claiming by limitations, cannot show that the title was in a third person by limitation, not having so pleaded. Campbell v. Castle (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 484.

San Antonio City Charter, § 123, barring delinquent taxes after 10 years, fixes a limitation period, and is not available to taxpayer unless pleaded. Garza v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 488.

Demurrer or exception as raising defense.—An objection that an amended pleading presents a new cause of action barred by limitations can be reached only by a plea, and not by an exception, which requires consideration of the former pleadings. Pyle v. Park (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 243.

No special form is prescribed for a plea of limitations, and in case the petition on its face discloses the accrual of the statutory period, defense may be made by special exception. City of Ft. Worth v. Rosen (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 84.

A cause of action is not shown by the petition to have been barred by limitation, so as to be subject to special exception, where petition alleges, as the date of conversion, a date less than two years prior to the bringing of the action. Robbins v. Winters (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 149.

Where petition does not show on its face that cause of action is barred by limitation, the defense of limitation cannot be maintained by exceptions, but must be specially pleaded. Hamilton v. Wm. H. Swanson Film Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 574.

In suit to establish plaintiff's and interveners' interest in a note, exception to the effect that cause of action asserted by plaintiff creditor showed that cause of action was barred, was properly overruled, where claims of interveners, other creditors, were not barred. Warren v. Parlin-Orendorff Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 586.

The defense of limitation may, where the facts appear upon the face of the pleadings, be taken advantage of by special exceptions. Garcia v. Yzaguirre (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 236.

Plaintiff could not avail himself of defense of limitation to note set up in defendant's cross-action without having pleaded limitation in his reply, though he had raised such defense by special exception, where court had not acted upon the exception, and judgment of the court thereon had not been invoked by plaintiff; the exception having been waived. Id.

Pleading avoidance of limitation.—In action against county judge and sureties on his bond to recover money due plaintiff county, a demurrer to petition because action was barred by limitations was properly sustained, where supplemental petition in avoidance failed to show defendant's fraudulent concealment of cause of action preventing bringing of an action, in view of arts. 1427, 1453, relating to judge's statements, report to county clerk, and examinations. Marion County v. Rowell (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 983.

Where defendant by exception and plea urged limitations, it was incumbent upon plaintiff to file an amended petition or replication setting up such facts as he depended on to show that the cause of action should be considered for purpose of limitation as having accrued at a time within two years preceding the filing of the suit. Powers v. Schubert (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 120.

Plaintiff in an action on a series of notes providing that all payments should mature upon default in payment of installment cannot contend that the parties waived the provision as to accelerated maturity in the absence of an allegation as to such waiver in avoidance of defendant's plea of limitation. City of Ft. Worth v. Rosen (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 933.

Sufficiency of pleading.—No special form is prescribed for a plea of limitations, and such defense may be made by plea. City of Ft. Worth v. Rosen (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 84.

In trespass to try title, allegations by defendant that he and those under whom he "holds by priority of contract in interest claiming to have good and perfect right and title thereto, has had and held peaceably said lands and adverse possession of same * * * for a period of more than 10 years," amounted to no more than an assertion that defendant had perfected title by his own occupancy or use in privity with others, and not that title stood in a third person by virtue of the statute of limitations. Campbell v. Castle (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 484.

Under the statute making possession of land under certain circumstances a perfect defense to trespass to try title if pleaded and proved, such possession is a defense, though not pleaded by way of confession and avoidance. Krause v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 310.

In a suit to establish plaintiff's rights in the waters of a stream and enjoin diversion, an answer alleging that defendants and their predecessors in title had the adverse, peaceable, and continuous use of the waters for irrigation of certain lands by means of dams and ditches for more than 10 years, and, in the case of one defendant, for its locomotives by means of pumping plants and tanks for more than 30 years, it sufficiently presented the defense of limitation of 4 years where no special exceptions were urged. Martin v. Burr (Sup.) 228 S. W. 543.

In trespass to try title, where defendant relied on adverse possession, pleadings held to present the issue whether he recognized plaintiff's paramount title. Collins v. Megason (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 533.

In an action on notes containing provision that the whole debt would mature on failure to pay installment, defendant's plea "that plaintiff's debt * * * is barred by the two-year statute of limitation, plaintiffs' said cause of action, if any they have or had, having accrued more than two years before their suit was filed, and defendant pleads the two-year statute of limitations in bar of any recovery herein," was sufficient as against an objection that it did not set forth the facts upon which defendant relied, since plaintiff was charged with knowledge that the statute of limitation began to run against the whole debt from the maturity of the installment upon which default was made. City of Ft. Worth v. Rosen (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 933, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 84.

Art. 5707. [3372] Presumption of death when, etc.

See Moser v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 259.

Presumption of death—What raises.—A charge, where the death of plaintiffs' ancestor is in issue, that if he "had absented himself beyond the sea, or elsewhere, for seven successive years, and if the evidence does not show that he was alive within that time," he shall be presumed to be dead, is sufficient without any qualification as to whether he has been heard from during the seven years, or whether the absence was from his home. French v. McGinnis, 69 Tex. 19, 9 S. W. 323.

Where the evidence shows that a man was unmarried and had removed from the state many years ago and has not been heard from for 15 years, such facts are insufficient to raise presumption of death. Stiles v. Hawkins (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 89.

Where a member of a mutual benefit society, of happy disposition, fond of wife and children, left home to go to his work and was never seen again, an irresistible presumption arises that he died shortly after leaving home, so that a subsequent forfeiture of his policy for nonpayment of dues was ineffectual. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Piper (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 649.

— Construction and operation of statute.—Presumption of death arising from seven years' absence is not absolute. Barrios v. State, 83 Cr. R. 548, 204 S. W. 326.

Provisions in insurance policies or certificates.—Act Cong. June 29, 1894, c. 119, § 4, provides that Knights of Pythias shall have power to amend their Constitution, provided they do not conflict with laws of United States, or any state. Held, that a by-law, to the effect that disappearance shall not be regarded as evidence of death until full term of life expectancy of assured has expired, cannot be given effect. Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 891.

Provisions in the by-laws of a mutual benefit society against absence or disappearance of a member from his residence unheard of for any length of time, being held to be evidence of the death of such member, are null and void. Sovereign Camp, Woodmen of the World, v. Piper (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 649.

— Accrual of cause of action.—A by-law of a fraternal insurance company, providing that no action can be brought on a policy unless proof of death be furnished within one year, nor unless action is commenced within two years, does not apply, where plaintiff must rely upon this article to establish death. Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 891.

Under fraternal insurance certificate payable only "upon satisfactory proof of death," where it was impossible to establish death until after expiration of seven-year period creating presumption of death, cause of action on policy did not accrue until then. Id.

Art. 5708. [3373] Limitation shall not run against infants, etc.

Cited, Davis v. Laning, 85 Tex. 39, 19 S. W. 846, 18 L. R. A. 82, 34 Am. St. Rep. 734.

In general.—Infancy and coverture as an avoidance of the bar of limitations are personal privileges which are waived by a failure to plead them. Krause v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 310.

If legal title is in administrator, he holds it in trust for the heirs subject to rights of creditors of decedent's estate, and in such event, irrespective of disability, the cestui que trust is barred when the trustee is barred; but the statute of limitations will not run against a cestui que trust laboring under a statutory disability, such as coverture, where the legal title is not in the trustee, until such disability is removed. Smith v. Price (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 836.

Minors.—Limitations held not to run during the minority of legatees claiming under the will of a grantor, who during life retained control, etc., of the deed under which the grantee therein named claimed. Eckert v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 317.

Under arts. 3595, 3598, 3601, 3612, limitations began to run against all adult heirs of a married woman on their cause of action against the sureties on the bond given by their father as community survivor one year after the filing of the bond, and, as to a minor son, limitations began to run against him when he reached 21, and his cause of action would be barred 4 years after such date. Simons v. Ware (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 858.

Married women.—Wife is not barred by limitations from bringing action against husband to cancel deed to husband, since, being under coverture, there were no limitations running against her. Moore v. Moore (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 78.

Persons of unsound mind.—Limitations did not run against the right of a grantor of unsound mind or her heirs to set aside the deeds until her death, the heirs having until then no right to sue. Sherwood v. Sherwood (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 555.

Art. 5711. [3376] One disability not tacked to another.

See Warren v. Frederichs, 83 Tex. 380, 18 S. W. 750.

In general.—Where limitation began to run before a married woman acquired title to the land, it would continue to run, notwithstanding the disability arising subsequently by reason of the title being vested in her as her separate property. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Choate (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 118.

Art. 5712. [3377] Claims barred under pre-existing laws, etc.

See St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Marcofich (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 532.

Cited, Bean v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 634.

In general.—Where a law of limitation not in force before was created by the Revised Statutes, in computing the time of the statutory bar the time already elapsed when the trouble took effect should be added to that subsequently elapsed. Boon v. Chamberlain, 82 Tex. 480, 18 S. W. 655.

Art. 5713. [3378] No agreement shortening period of limitation valid.

See Independent Order of Puritans v. Lockhart (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 559.

Insurance policy.—Provision of employer's liability insurance policy against action, unless brought within 90 days, held not to prevent bringing of action after 90 days because invalid. Home Life & Accident Co. v. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1064.

The provision in an insurance policy for shortening the period of limitation, being one for the benefit of the insurer, may be waived, and will be construed strictly against the insurer and liberally in favor of the beneficiary. Simmons v. Western Indemnity Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 713.

Art. 5714. [3379] Notice of claims for damages; rule as to.

In general.—The act from which this article was taken did not violate article 3, § 35, of the Constitution. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Jobe, 6 Civ. App. 403, 25 S. W. 168.

This article applies to claims for delay in delivery of dispatches. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Jobe, 6 Civ. App. 403, 25 S. W. 1036.

A contract between a sender of a telegram and a telegraph company to the effect that the company shall not be liable for damages or statutory penalties where the claim is not presented in writing within 95 days after the cause of action shall have arisen is valid, and is binding on the parties thereto and their principals, unless procured by fraud, or unless unreasonable under the facts and circumstances of the particular case. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Janko (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 243.

A shipper of live stock is bound by provision of the contract, signed by him with the second carrier, requiring notice of injury to stock, if he had opportunity to read the contract before signing it, though he testified he had a previous oral contract with the initial carrier for the shipment to final destination. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 734.

This article is restrictive and in derogation of the common-law right to freely contract, and therefore is to be strictly construed. Travelers' Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 53.

Art. 708, first enacted in 1863, prohibiting carriers from limiting or restricting their common-law liability, was not repealed by implication by this article, which, without special reference to carriers, prohibits stipulations requiring notice of any claim for damages within a less period than 90 days. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Marcofich (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 582, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 51.

Time for giving notice.—This article does not prohibit notice after 90 days when circumstances show that delay was not unreasonable, and does not show that insurer was injured by reason of delay. Fidelity & Casualty Ins. Co. of New York v. Mountcastle (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 862.

Filing suit and service of citation in less than 91 days complied with requirement of notice within such time in live stock shipping contract. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Gibbons (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 352.

This article does not make invalid a stipulation in a contract to transmit a telegram requiring notice of claim for damages to be presented within 95 days after the cause of action arises, if such a stipulation is reasonable. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Verhalen (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 240.

Interstate commerce.—This article does not apply to interstate shipments, but in such cases it is for the carrier to satisfy the jury that the notice required was reasonable. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 311.

In absence of rules of Interstate Commerce Commission or federal statute providing when suit must be commenced by railroad to recover unpaid freight on interstate shipment, the statutes of limitations of the state govern. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Shields Grain & Coal Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 183.

Insurance companies.—An action by the obligee on a bond indemnifying it against default of its treasurer, for the amount of a defalcation, is a claim for damages so that a condition of the policy requiring immediate notice was void. Western Indemnity Co. v. Free and Accepted Masons of Texas (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1092.

A by-law of a fraternal insurance company, providing that no action can be brought on a policy unless proof of death be furnished within one year, nor unless action is commenced within two years, does not apply, where plaintiff must rely upon art. 5707, relating to presumption of death, to establish death. Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 891.

This article applies to notice and proofs of loss under a hail insurance policy. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Pipkin (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 360.

This article applies to fraternal benefit associations, art. 4830, enacted in 1913, providing that no insurance law thereafter enacted shall apply to them, being inapplicable as art. 5714 is a prior existing statute and not an insurance law. Independent Order of Puritans v. Lockhart (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 559.

Stipulation in employers' liability policy requiring that immediate written notice of accident be given to insurer is not void, this statute having no application to such stipulation as to notice of an accident. Travelers' Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Scott (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 53.

This article held not applicable to provision in indemnity policy, requiring insured to give insurer notice of accident immediately on occurrence thereof. Texas Glass & Paint Co. v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 811.

Pleading, evidence and burden of proof.—It will be presumed that a requirement of a telegraph company that notice of claim be made within a specified time has been complied with, unless failure to do so is specially pleaded. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Love & Walters (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 889.

In an action against a telegraph company for failing to deliver a message, where a plea that notice of damages had not been made within 95 days as required by contract was stricken, judgment for defendant could not be entered on appeal on the ground that the undisputed evidence showed that the stipulation for notice was reasonable. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Verhalen (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 240.

A plea, setting up that a shipper of live stock failed to give notice of claim within a day after delivery at destination, etc., must be verified, and, if not verified, raises no such issue. Mexico Northwestern Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 712.

In action on employers' liability policy, where answer set up failure of insured to give insurer notice of the accident as required by the policy, defendant's failure to verify answer was waived by plaintiff by failure to object to evidence as to such want of notice. Travelers' Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Scott (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 53.

In an action on a life insurance policy, where insurer has not pleaded failure to give notice of death of insured, it will be presumed that such notice was given. Illinois Bankers' Life Ass'n v. Floyd (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 967, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Floyd v. Illinois Bankers' Life Ass'n of Monmouth, Ill., 192 S. W. 607.

Construction and performance of stipulation.—Under live stock shipping contract providing for notice only to agent of initial carrier, notice to the initial carrier was notice to connecting carriers. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Gibbons (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 352.

An insurer of property which was not totally destroyed by fire, the policy providing that the loss should not become payable until 60 days after notice, ascertainment, and proof of loss, in the absence of denial of liability, was not liable for interest from the date of the loss. Delaware Underwriters v. Brock, 109 Tex. 425, 211 S. W. 779.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

I. NATURE, VALIDITY AND CONSTRUCTION OF LIMITATIONS IN GENERAL

½. Construction in general.—Statutes of limitation being in the nature of statutes of repose, requiring diligence in enforcing rights and putting a period to litigation, are regarded with favor, as based upon considerations of sound public policy, and are to be construed in like manner as other statutes, and their application not evaded by implied exceptions. Davis v. Howe (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 609.

1½. Power of legislature to enact laws.—A statute shortening the period within which an action may be brought need only allow a reasonable time within which to assert rights. Bunn v. City of Laredo (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 675.

The Legislature may provide a shorter period of limitation for existing causes of action, and may create a statute of limitations, where none existed before; but it cannot, by so abbreviating the time within which suit must be brought, take away the right of action altogether, and must allow a reasonable time after the law goes into effect to bring suits on actions not already barred. Bean v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 634.

As to causes of action not already barred, the Legislature may extend the period of limitation or remove the bar altogether. Id.

When a vested right has been lost by limitation, the Legislature has no power to restore it. Hoard v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 687.

2. Limitation as against state or municipality.—A city cannot plead the two-year statute of limitations in an action by a school district against it to recover penalty moneys collected on school taxes by the city, such school officers exercising a portion of the sovereign powers of the state. American Surety Co. of New York v. Board of Trustees of Independent School Dist. of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 292; City of Ft. Worth v. Same (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 294.

5. Estoppel to rely on limitation.—Statement of attorney for administratrix that he thought she would pay claim when she got the money held not to bind her, or estop her from pleading limitations against the claim. Butler v. Fechner (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1126.

Parties by their acts, not evidenced by any writing, may estop themselves from setting up the statute of limitations. City of Ft. Worth v. Rosen (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 84.

6½. Defense or cross-action.—In a suit by the vendor for specific performance of the contract and to foreclose vendor's lien, the right of the purchaser to a reduction of the purchase price because of a misrepresentation by the vendor's agent on which the purchaser relied is a purely defensive plea, and not a defense in the nature of a cross-action, as in the case where the purchaser seeks to recover the purchase money paid, and therefore the statute of limitations is not available to defeat the defense of partial failure of consideration. Mason v. Peterson (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 567.

II. COMPUTATION OF PERIOD OF LIMITATION

(A) Accrual of Right of Action or Defense

7. Causes of action in general.—A husband, having given bond as community survivor to account to the heirs of his deceased wife for their interest in the community property, and having sold it, became liable on the bond, in an action by the heirs for their interest, for the proceeds, and limitations then began to run in favor of him and his sureties against such action. Simons v. Ware (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 853.

Statutes of limitations did not start to run against cause of action for recovery of salary paid defendant during occupancy of office to which plaintiff had been elected until final decision in quo warranto proceeding holding that defendant had not been entitled to the office, plaintiff's cause of action not having accrued until such final determination. Pease v. State (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 269.

8. Title to or possession of real property.—Where wife dies, and husband takes possession of community property, after the expiration of a reasonable time for payment of community debts an action may be brought by the heirs of the deceased wife for their interest, and limitations then begin to run without the surviving husband's expressly repudiating any claim on the part of the heirs. Williford v. Simpson (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 191.

A life tenant's acquiescence in a boundary did not bar the remainderman during the existence of the life estate. Daugherty v. Manning (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 933.

The right of action in favor of riparian owners to quiet their riparian rights and prevent wrongful interference by upper proprietors accrues when the upper proprietors divert water to such an extent as to deprive the lower proprietors of water for domestic use to their substantial injury. Martin v. Burr (Sup.) 228 S. W. 543.

Limitations do not begin to run against remainderman until the death of the life tenant, in favor of persons not strangers to the life estate. Olsen v. Grelle (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 927.

9. Title to or possession of personal property.—Where plaintiff lent sawmill machinery to defendant, limitations did not begin to run in defendant's favor until he repudiated plaintiff's title and notice of the repudiation was brought home to plaintiff, and the mere fact that defendant gave a chattel mortgage on all of his sawmill machinery, which included that lent, was not notice to plaintiff of defendant's repudiation of his title so as to start the running of limitations, though the mortgage was filed for record, for plaintiff was not bound to make periodic searches of the records to discover whether defendant had repudiated. Williams v. Davenport (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 675.

Where personal property owned by plaintiff was on a farm when purchased by defendant from a third party, but it was not near his residence or barn, and he did and said nothing tending to show that he was exercising dominion over it, or claimed any right to it prior to his use of the property, he did not have adverse possession until he first used the property. McGlasson v. Fiorella (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 254.

10. Contracts in general.—Under party wall agreement, limitation as to adjoining owner's right to recover upon other's use of wall held to run only from actual use of wall. McCormick v. Stoneheart (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 883.

A parol agreement by payee, extending date of payment in consideration of the payment of interest to extended date, is a new contract, and limitation for such contract is not that for note, but that for parol agreements. First State Bank of Eustace v. Bowman (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 75.

Where an oil company borrowed certain casing under a contract to pull it from the well if oil were not found, a cause of action for the casing accrued when the company notified the owner that it had abandoned the well and left part of the casing therein. Canadian Oil & Gas Co. v. Webb (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 135.

Upon breach of contract, injured party's cause of action at once accrues. Lamar v. Hildreth (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 167.

In absence of actual knowledge that carrier of shipment of cotton would not or could not deliver part of shipment, or of facts and circumstances which would charge consignee with notice, statute of limitations would not begin to run against consignee's cause of action until reasonable time had elapsed within which cotton should have been delivered. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. R. W. Williamson & Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 571, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 354.

If there had been an express contract on the part of testatrix to bequeath property to her nephew to pay for his services, the statute of limitations would not begin to run against the nephew's claim until after testatrix's death. Ivey v. Lane (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 61.

In the case of an agreement to pay or a covenant to do a certain act, a recovery may be had as soon as there is a breach of the contract, whereas in the case of a covenant of indemnity, strictly, that is of indemnity against loss, no right of action accrues until the indemnitee has suffered a loss against which the covenant runs. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Charlton (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 862.

Where purchaser of a half interest in a sawmill verbally assumed half of the seller's mortgage indebtedness, and later bought the other half of the sawmill and verbally assumed all the mortgage indebtedness, the cause of action in the mortgagee's favor for the part of the indebtedness due when the buyer assumed the payment thereof arose at the time the agreement to assume was made, and the cause of action for the part not then due arose when that part became due. McCaslin v. Pittsburg Foundry & Machine Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 887.

12. Instruments for payment of money.—Express assumption in a deed by grantee of payment of vendor's lien note given by grantor is a contract in writing, limitations against action on which by holder of note begins to run only from date of such deed. Gilles v. Miners' Bank of Cartersville, Mo. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 170.

Cause of action against bank on certificate of deposit payable to order of depositor "six months after date in current funds on return of this certificate properly indorsed, with interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum. No interest after maturity," accrued upon expiration of the six months' period and was barred by limitations upon failure to bring action within the prescribed period thereafter, not being a general deposit and being in the nature of a promissory note maturing six months after date. Rodriguez v. First State Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 357.

13. Implied contracts.—Where plaintiff, who had engaged an agent to clear land under an arrangement that the agent should give orders for merchandise, sought to recover from the agent, on the theory that the orders exceeded the compensation agreed, the cause of action, whether deemed one arising out of misappropriation by an agent or an implied promise, accrued at the time the agent should have made settlement. Powers v. Schubert (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 120.

If there had been an express contract on the part of testatrix to bequeath property to her nephew to pay for his services, the statute of limitations would not begin to run against the nephew's claim until after testatrix's death, but if there was only an implied contract, limitations would begin to run from time of performance of the services. Ivey v. Lane (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 61.

15. Severable contracts and installments.—The effect of a provision in a series of installment notes that a failure to pay any installment when due shall mature all deferred payments matures all the installments without reference to the intention of the holder, and limitations begin to run from the date of the maturity of the installment thus permitted to pass maturity. City of Ft. Worth v. Rosen (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 933; affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 84.

16. Accounts.—Where an agent contracted to sell books for his principal, reporting by the fifth of each month, and all books which formed basis of account on which principal's suit against sureties on agent's bond was based were disposed of by the agent before March 1, 1910, to the knowledge of the principal, his suit against the sureties, filed April 22, 1914, was barred by the four-years statute of limitations. Ferry v. Bedford (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 839.

17. Torts.—Where the defendant railroad company's construction of a bridge as built was not unlawful and plaintiff's rights were not invaded by its building, but the bridge was as an impediment to the stream, causing or increasing an overflow of plaintiff's land during heavy rains, the statute limiting actions therefor ran from the date of the flood. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Speer (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 762.

Where a nuisance is permanent, and continuing resulting damages should all be litigated in one suit, but when not permanent and dependent upon accidents or contingencies successive actions may be brought for injury as it occurs, and an action for such injury would not be barred by the statute of limitations, unless the full period of the statute had run against the special injury before suit was brought. Id.

In trespass a right of action arises when the cause is created, and the statute of limitations is put into operation when plaintiff's inclosure is invaded. Trinity Portland Cement Co. v. Horton (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 510.

In action in the nature of a nuisance in which there has been no actual invasion of plaintiff's land, the first right of action does not arise until some injury has been suffered, no matter when the cause of injury occurred. Id.

Though plaintiffs delayed for ten years in suing for damages caused by dust which, when the wind was in certain directions, was carried from defendant's cement plant onto their premises, held, that the nuisance could not be considered a permanent one because the structure was permanent, so as to bar plaintiff's right of action by limitations. Id.

A cause of action for negligence by or for misappropriation by an agent accrues at the time of the wrongful act, and the statute commences to run at that time, and not at the time of ascertaining damages. Powers v. Schubert (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 120.

Where the injury to plaintiff's land from a septic tank operated by a town resulted, not from the construction of the tank, but from the mode of operation, the statute of limitations did not begin to run against plaintiff's right to recover the depreciation in the value of his land resulting from the nuisance at the time of the construction of the tank, but only when the consequential damages resulting from its operation occurred. Town of Jacksonville v. McCracken (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 294, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 309.

18. Reimbursement or indemnity from person ultimately liable.—Where, under contract providing that defendant should pay for materials, plaintiff paid therefor, a suit for money paid was barred within two years subsequent to date of purchase and appropriation by defendant. Palo Pinto County v. Beene (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 866.

Enforceable cause of action did not arise in favor of bank against vendors of land, who had deposited $1,000 of price, to be repaid to them when they should obtain release of mortgage, until bank parted with its money in obedience to judgment against it in suit of buyer of land to recover special deposit of $1,000, vendors having represented to bank release of mortgage had been obtained, and bank having applied deposit to payment of vendors' note. Bank of Snyder v. Howell (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 908.

A right of action by M., an intermediate covenantee, against S., his covenantor, for breach of covenant in a warranty deed, does not accrue so as to set in motion the statute of limitations, until he has paid the amount of a judgment recovered against him by G., a subsequent covenantee, though M. was made a party in a suit to try title by G. against adverse claimants, but was dismissed as a party thereto before judgment was rendered. McPike v. Smith (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 815.

19. Liabilities created by statute of constitution.—Since right of city to enforce assessment depends on performance of statutory steps to fix lien against property and personal judgment against owner, cause of action for that purpose does not accrue till those necessary steps are taken. Texas Bitulithic Co. v. Henry (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 221.

(B) Performance of Condition, Demand and Notice

21. Conditions precedent in general.—Where decedent had deeded realty to plaintiff by absolute deed intended as security for past, present, and future advances, and it appeared from undisputed evidence that the claim sued on by plaintiff was to be paid from moneys derived from royalties and leases of the land and from the proceeds of a sale thereof whenever such sale should take place, the claim was not barred by limitations, since the contingency which would set in motion the statute had not happened. Ewing v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 625.

22. Demand.—The rule that limitation runs against a demand obligation from its date does not apply to bank deposits. Sam v. Ludtke (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 98.

Where a sum of money is deposited with an individual for safekeeping with understanding that it is to be returned at any time, and that individual is to pay interest, no demand is necessary to start running of statute of limitations. Id.

The period of limitations does not begin to run against general deposits in banks represented either by passbooks or other evidences of deposits in contradistinction to deposits under certificate of deposits, payable at specified time, until demand. Rodriguez v. First State Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 357.

That certificate of deposit payable six months after date was made payable in Mexican money did not postpone accrual of action thereon until demand. Id.

23. Notice.—Where one partner had loaned casings to an oil company and had been notified about four years before the suit that the casing had been abandoned, such notice, being notice to the partnership, barred an action for conversion by another partner under the two-year statute of limitations. Canadian Oil & Gas Co. v. Webb (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 135.

24. Leave to sue.—As a state cannot be sued without permission, limitations against an action by employé on a state railroad, who was injured by those having the management of the road, do not begin to run until permission to sue is granted. State v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 695.

(C) Ignorance, Mistake, Trust, Fraud and Concealment of Cause of Action

25. Ignorance of cause of action.—Assignee of judgment being subrogated to the original debt in case the judgment, which was based on a record showing proper service, were invalid, the statute of limitations would not run against him, as to the original debt, until he had knowledge of invalidity of the judgment because a judgment debtor had not been served with citation. Miller v. Guaranty Trust & Banking Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 642.

Where plaintiff engaged defendant to clear land, arranging that orders of defendant for merchandise should be honored, and after learning that the work had stopped plaintiff several times wrote defendant for settlement, and defendant did not by any fraud prevent plaintiff from ascertaining the amount of land cleared, held that, where plaintiff used no diligence to discover his claim which arose, out of the fact that the orders for merchandise exceeded the value of the clearing, plaintiff cannot escape the running of limitations. Powers v. Schubert (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 120.

Bare fact of knowledge by consignee of cotton, on November 16th, that only 74 bales of consignment of 104 had been delivered by carrier to Atlantic steamship line, and that latter, on December 7th, delivered to consignee at Liverpool, England, only what it had received from carrier at New Orleans, was insufficient to impute notice to consignee that carrier could not or would not comply with contract, to institute running of statute of limitations against consignee's cause of action. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. R. W. Williamson & Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 571, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 187 S. W. 354.

26. Mistake as ground for relief.—A mistake in description of land in a judgment only prevents the running of the statute of limitations until the mistake is discovered, or, by the use of reasonable diligence, it might have been discovered. Gulf Production Co. v. Palmer (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1017; Hohertz v. Durham (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 549; Gillespie v. Gray (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1027.

That member of fraternal insurance association did not know his contract prohibited his engaging in saloon business was not mistake of fact suspending operation of statute of limitations against his cause of action to recover premium payments. Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W., v. Schwartz (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 156.

Statements made by the county surveyor to the purchaser after the transaction was completed, and which were not binding on the vendor, may nevertheless be sufficient to excuse the purchaser's failure to discover mistake in the quantity of land purchased so that his right to such recovery will not be barred by limitations. Hohertz v. Durham (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 549.

Where a party to an action involving title to land procured a compromise and settlement, and there was nothing about the entry of the judgment to deceive him or lull him into false security, and no confidential relations existed between him and his adversary's counsel, and he went with counsel to the court where the compromise was stated and judgment entered, and without fraud on the part of any one, but in an honest effort to enter the judgment, a mistake was made in the description of the land he must take notice of such mistake from its date. Gulf Production Co. v. Palmer (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1017.

27. Fraud as a ground for relief—In general.—Fraud alone will not prevent the running of the five-year statute of limitations, though the party invoking the statute has put it in motion by his own wrong through participation in the fraud. Davis v. Howe (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 609.

Where insured upon delivery of policy signed receipt stating he had examined the policy, and found it as represented, the cause of action, if any, for reformation of the policy on ground of fraud accrued at time of delivery of policy, in absence of evidence that he did not examine policy and of some reasonable excuse for his not doing so. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 598.

Fraud in procuring judgment against defendants who were not served and did not appear, notwithstanding recital in the judgment of service and appearance, and though an attorney unauthorized to do so appeared for them, prevents the statute running before discovery of the fraud, even against adult defendants. Levy v. Roper (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 514.

28. Discovery of fraud.—Limitation against a suit to secure relief from a deed procured by fraud begins to run when the fraud becomes known, and knowledge of a fact which would induce, by a prudent person, inquiry which would lead to discovery of fraud, is in law a knowledge of the fraud. Dean v. Dean (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 505; Texas Co-op. Inv. Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 245.

In suits for relief against fraud and deceit, the statute of limitation does not begin to run until complainant discovers the fraud, or has learned facts sufficient to put a person of ordinary prudence on inquiry which, if pursued, would have led to a discovery of the fraud. Gillispie v. Gray (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 730; Binder v. Millikin (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 239.

Where vendors represented that lands had been surveyed and stepped off and that they were positive that it contained 326 acres, statute held not to run against action for fraud until some circumstance aroused the purchaser's suspicion. Stone v. Burns (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1121.

Suit to cancel oil lease on the ground of fraud was barred by limitations, where the false representations and the fraudulent acts relied upon were well known to plaintiffs, or could have been ascertained by the exercise of the slightest diligence more than two years before the action was commenced. McEntire v. Thomason (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 563.

Cause of action for fraud of buyer of peanut threshers was not barred by the two-year statute of limitations, where falsity of original representations of seller's agent was concealed by further misrepresentations, whose falsity was not discovered until within two years of suit brought. Texas Harvester Co. v. Wilson-Whaley Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 574.

The rule requiring diligence to discover fraud does not apply where a father defrauded his child, in which case the child can rely on the parent's representations until facts showing fraud come to knowledge. Dean v. Dean (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 505.

Fraud alleged in petition in suit by one partner was notice to the other, not made a party. Morris v. Gwaltney (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 473.

A cause of action for fraudulent misrepresentations, inducing the purchase of oil stock in January and March, 1913, the buyer having discovered the fraud within a few months by working for the company, was barred, on December 20, 1915, by the two-year statute of limitations, which begins to run when the fraud is discovered. Bain v. Lovejoy (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 984.

29. Existence of trust—In general.—A deposit of money with an individual for safe-keeping, with understanding that he is to pay interest and return deposit on demand, does not create such trust relation as will prevent running of statute of limitations. Sam v. Ludtke (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 98.

If a father recognized the interest of his children in land purchased with community property, and there was no repudiation of such interest, the statutes of limitation did not begin to operate until his death, nor was the suit to establish a trust in the land a stale demand when brought within a very few years after the father's death. Thomas v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1010.

In an action by heirs against the husband of deceased to recover an interest in community property, a finding that defendant had not held the property in question under an express trust thereby preventing limitations from running held supported by the evidence. Williford v. Simpson (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 191.

The statute begins to run against a suit to enforce right under constructive trust from time trust is imposed, except when it is ingrafted on account of fraud, or there is a fraudulent concealment of the facts, and then from the time when the fraud is discovered, or when such knowledge is acquired as will enable the beneficiary, by the exercise of proper diligence and discretion, to discover the facts. McCord v. Bass (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 192, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Bass v. McCord, 178 S. W. 998.

If legal title is in administrator, he holds it in trust for the heirs subject to rights of creditors of decedent's estate, and in such event, irrespective of disability, the cestui que trust is barred when the trustee is barred; but the statute of limitations will not run against a cestui que trust laboring under a statutory disability, such as coverture, where the legal title is not in the trustee, until such disability is removed. Smith v. Price (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 836.

30. Repudiation or violation of trust.—Limitations do not run against an express trust until the trustee repudiates the trust by word or acts which will bring knowledge thereof to the beneficiary. McBride v. Briggs (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 341; Home Inv. Co. v. Strange, 195 S. W. 849; St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Harbaugh (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 496; Graves v. Graves (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 543.

Where defendant, holding plaintiff's stock pursuant to oral agreement to reconvey, was trustee, limitation did not begin to run in his favor until repudiation of relationship and until cestui que trust had, in exercise of due diligence, or by constructive notice, discovered such repudiation. Stuart v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 615.

Though judgment creditors had by their agreement become trustees for the judgment debtor, they repudiated such trust by purchasing the property at execution sale, and the statute of limitation against any right to relief against such purchase begins to run from that date. Nelson v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 366.

If, when wife died, husband took possession of community property and held it under an express trust, limitations did not begin to run as against the heirs of the deceased until there was an express repudiation of interest or claim in the heirs. Williford v. Simpson (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 191.

Right of action of assignors for benefit of creditors to have relief in protection of their right to any surplus against fraudulent disposition of the property by the assignees, accrued when they knew of the fraud or of conditions charging them with knowledge, and this though it could not then be said that there would be a surplus, and though creditors were proceeding against the assignees. McCord v. Bass (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 192, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Bass v. McCord, 178 S. W. 998.

Where son did not bring action to have trust declared in land by reason of talks with his father with reference to his interest in the land, when father stated that he only refused to divide the land because he was not ready to quit and wanted to handle it as a whole, and did not repudiate the trust until just four years before the action, held, that the action was not a stale demand under the ten-year statute of limitations. Graves v. Graves (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 543.

31. Concealment of cause of action.—Evidence held insufficient to show such a fraudulent concealment by the grantor of land who had not recorded his conveyance as to prevent the running of limitations in his favor as against one holding a vendor's lien note executed by a prior grantor. Raley v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 906.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain plaintiff's plea that defendant concealed fraud in sale of machines until within two years of suit brought, by further misrepresentations and that plaintiff was not negligent in being misled by such representations. Texas Harvester Co. v. Wilson-Whaley Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 574.

A cause of action for fraudulent misrepresentations, inducing the purchase of oil stock in January and March, 1913, the buyer having discovered the fraud within a few months by working for the company, was barred, on December 20, 1915, by the two-year statute of limitations, which begins to run when the fraud is discovered, though the president of the company by words or acts induced the buyer to postpone bringing action, for such words and acts are not the same as a fraudulent concealment of the cause of action, which means that the defendant has by some fraud concealed from the plaintiff that he has a cause of action at all. Bain v. Lovejoy (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 984.

In action by assignee for agent's commission where defendant set up limitations and that he had assumed agent's indebtedness to bank in equal amount, there was no mistake or fraudulent concealment avoiding plea of limitations, where there was no diligence on part of plaintiff or his assignor to learn whether latter's indebtedness to bank had been credited with amount of commission. Campbell v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 743.

Where a party went with his antagonist's attorney before the court, and had a judgment entered in accordance with a compromise and settlement, which judgment erroneously described the land the title to which was involved, evidence held to show that the party either actually knew of the terms of the settlement, as stated to the court, or in the exercise of due care should have known them. Gulf Production Co. v. Palmer (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1017.

(D) Pendency of Legal Proceedings or Stay

33. Pendency of action or other proceeding.—Where an agent to sell books, who had given a bond with sureties, became insolvent and went into bankruptcy, and his sureties tried to get the principal's claim against the agent allowed and paid out of the estate, but did nothing that legally excused or misled the principal from bringing suit against them on the agent's bond at any time after the date when the cause of action matured, the proceedings in bankruptcy and the acts of the sureties did not toll the four-years statute of limitations. Perry v. Bedford (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 839.

The running of the statute against vendor's suit to recover the land, is not suspended by a suit by the vendor to recover the amount of the notes. Stone v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 5.

36. Suspension of statute of limitations.—Evidence of the possession of plaintiff's predecessors, which continued under color of title for five years prior to the suspension of the statute on January 28, 1861, having been accompanied by payment of taxes on the land, held to show adverse possession. Dupuy v. Dicks (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 49.

(E) Commencement of Action or Other Proceedings

37. Mode of computation of time limited.—In computing the time by which an action is barred, the day on which a cause of action accrues is not counted. Smith v. Dickey, 74 Tex. 61, 11 S. W. 1049.

38. Proceedings constituting commencement of action—In general.—Merely filing suit did not arrest the running of the statute, where the suit was practically abandoned by failure to prosecute. Raley v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 906.

Where an employé on a state railroad was injured, and his petition to the Legislature for privilege of entering the courts with his cause of action, of which, under Const. art. 3, § 57, he was required to give advance notice of 30 days, was presented within two years after injury, the running of limitations against an action for such injuries was tolled. State v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 695.

The filing of a paper designated an amended petition stating a cause of action within the jurisdiction of the court was the commencement of a suit and interrupted the running of limitations, though the original petition stated a cause of action in excess of the court's jurisdiction. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 74.

39. Issuance and service of process.—Where the petition is filed within the year, but no citation issued until nearly two years thereafter, because no cost-bond was given, nor affidavit made of inability to pay or secure costs, the delay will not be excused, and the action is barred. Ricker v. Shoemaker, 81 Tex. 22, 16 S. W. 645.

Under art. 1812, where petition was filed within period of limitation, delay in issuance and service of citation held to raise no presumption of laches making limitations applicable. Godshalk v. Martin (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 535.

Filing a petition with instructions not to issue citation thereon until further instructed, or until some future time, does not suspend the running of the statute of limitations. Hughitt v. Trent (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 445.

The running of limitations is not interrupted by the mere filing of the petition with the clerk, for not only must this initial step be taken, but there must be a bona fide intention that the process be served at once upon the defendant, so, where citations were prepared by the clerk but were never issued, and neither plaintiffs nor their counsel showed any excuse for failure to obtain service during a period of more than a year, the filing of the petition will not be deemed to have interrupted the running of limitations. Ferguson v. Estes & Alexander (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 465.

Where citations on petition filed by plaintiffs' attorney were not issued and no service was had for more than a year thereafter, plaintiffs cannot escape the effect of the continued running of limitations on the ground that the fault was that of their attorney. Id.

If a suit is filed and the clerk is directed by the plaintiff not to issue process, limitations will not be arrested by the filing of the petition, and it was no excuse for delay in issuing citations that service could not have been completed by publication in time for trial at the next term of court; defendants' addresses being unknown. Phillips v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 406.

Where a petition in equity was filed in the federal court, and a subpoena returned unserved in 1912, when limitations had almost run, and no further attempt at service was made until 1913, when the case was transferred to the law docket, though the service finally made was authorized by Clayton Act Oct. 15, 1914, the running of limitations was not stopped by the filing of the petition under the law of Texas. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. West Pub. Co. (C. C. A.) 270 Fed. 563.

40. Want of jurisdiction.—The filing of a petition claiming an amount in excess of the court's jurisdiction was not the commencement and prosecution of a suit, and did not interrupt the running of limitations. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 74.

42. Defects or Irregularities in pleadings or other proceedings.—A cause of action is not barred by the statute of limitations where a judgment had been rendered thereon which is later set aside on direct attack because rendered on an amended petition stating a new cause of action which was not served on defendant, since the suit to recover on such cause of action is left still pending, and the filing of the suit originally stopped the running of limitations. Young v. City Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 340.

A pleading not skillfully drawn and not sufficient to support the judgment obtained thereon held sufficient to stop the running of the statute of limitations. Smith v. Tipps (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 307.

43. Intervention or bringing in new parties.—Defendant, member of firm which damaged plaintiff's land, becoming such subsequent to damage, who was not made party to plaintiff's suit against firm until more than two years after cause of action arose, and did not enter appearance until after he was made party, could rely on the two-year statute of limitations. Wooster v. Hoecker (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 332.

Commencement of suit to recover land stops the running of limitations in favor of defendant as against the interest of one who intervenes therein under a power of attorney given by plaintiff to prosecute such suit, coupled with an interest in the land, since a judgment would be binding upon the intervener as well as the plaintiff. Bryan v. Ross (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 524.

Fraud alleged in petition in suit by one partner was notice to the other, not made a party, and where more than two years intervened between the time suit was brought and the time such other was made a party, suit was barred as to the other, as his was a new cause of action. Morris v. Gwaltney (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 473.

Since one partner could not recover in the original suit for fraud where the other partner was not an original party, the children of the first partner, who, with the other partner, were made plaintiffs in the suit after first partner's death, were barred; more than two years having elapsed after suit was brought before they and the other partner were made parties plaintiff. Id.

45. Amendment of pleadings—In general.—Where a new promise or acknowledgment is pleaded by amendment to take a claim out of the statute, limitations will run against such new promise until the filing of the amendment. Cozier v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 975.

A petition which as against a general demurrer is insufficient to state a cause of action is sufficient to stop the running of limitations if the defects therein are afterwards cured by an amended pleading, even though such pleading is filed after limitations have run. Henderson v. Beggs (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 565.

Where description of land sued for in original petition does not identify the grant in which it is situated, and the first and second amendments describe a different tract of land and embrace no part of the land described in trial amendment, except a small triangular tract, limitation continued to run in favor of defendants until filing of trial amendment. Schoonmaker v. Clardy (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1112.

Where the facts pleaded in the original petition and in the amended petition are substantially the same and set up the same cause of action, the cause of action is not barred by limitations, where the original petition has been filed within the statutory period. Garcia v. Hernandez (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1099.

46. Amendment restating original cause of action.—Where petition against a railway company and receiver for maintenance of a side track in front of plaintiff's residence was amended, complaining of same actions but against company alone, a new cause of action was not set up making applicable plea of limitation. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 555.

In an action by a former lessee against his lessor for conversion of personal property alleged to have been committed by lessor, an amendment to the complaint that the acts were committed by lessor's agent was not barred by limitations, although the statutory period had elapsed at time of amendment. Henderson v. Beggs (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 565.

Where the original parties plaintiff suing as heirs of the original payee of notes amend and sue as the heirs of the heir of the original payee, such amendment does not change the claim or cause of action, but relates back to the commencement of the suit and stops the running of the statute of limitations at that point. McCreight v. Sumner (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 545.

In action for balance due on cotton, amended petition held not barred, being merely an amplification of original pleadings; both original and amended petitions asking for same amount and alleging such amount to be the balance due. Weld-Neville Cotton Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 731.

Where action was brought in name of one having no interest in subject-matter and no authority to file same in his name, and the court allowed real party in interest to file an amended petition and plea of intervention wherein same cause of action was set up, the filing of the first petition in the name of the party having no interest being a mistake on the part of attorneys, there was no new cause of action as far as limitations was concerned. Howard v. Stahl (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 826.

Petition, alleging that defendant for a valuable consideration assumed payment of note executed by son, held to save from limitations amended petition alleging that son turned over to defendant practically all of his property in consideration of defendant's assumption to pay son's debts, that land was conveyed to defendant with the agreement that defendant would use either the land or the proceeds to pay son's debts, and that defendant expressly agreed to pay note on plaintiff's agreement not to sue son thereon. Bell v. Swim (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 470.

47. Amendment introducing new cause of action.—See Moore v. Chamberlain, 109 Tex. 64, 195 S. W. 1135.

In action by widow for herself and children to recover for negligent death of her husband, amendment in behalf of a personal representative of deceased, alleging that deceased met his death while engaged in interstate commerce, would not introduce a new or different cause of action barred by limitations, since amendment would relate back to original action, which was not barred. Pope v. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas, 109 Tex. 311, 207 S. W. 514; Bird v. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co., 109 Tex. 323, 207 S. W. 518.

Where an original petition was for false and fraudulent representations which constituted plaintiff's right to cancel note and recover money paid, and the allegations of the amended petition were in effect the same amplified, there was no new cause of action, and the amendment relates back to filing original petition in so far as the statute of limitations is concerned. Bankers' Trust Co. v. Calhoun (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 826; Same v. James (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 830.

Amendment in action for establishment of trust and recovery of lots so held, which asked for personal judgment in alternative, did not set up new cause of action within statute of limitations. Home Inv. Co. v. Strange, 109 Tex. 342, 195 S. W. 849, 204 S. W. 314, 207 S. W. 307.

In action under Texas statute for death of railroad employé, trial amendment seeking to recover under federal Employers' Liability Act held to state new cause of action barred by two-year statute of limitation. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Bird (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 597.

Where plaintiff's original petition alleged that defendant agreed to accept care for, and keep cotton delivered by plaintiff, and compress it within a reasonable time, trial amendment alleging that defendant agreed to open bales and separate good cotton from the damaged set up new cause of action. Jackson v. Greenville Compress Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 324.

A petition setting up payee's execution of notes and liability of indorser, but not excusing failure to sue maker before second court term after maturity, as required by art. 579, stops the running of the statute of limitations, and an amended petition supplying the allegations does not set up a new cause of action. McCamant v. McCamant (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 118.

Change in cause of action from joint to individual one, made by amendment of petition, is not filing of new suit, and to determine whether cause is barred by statute of limitations it will be considered as filed on date of original petition. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reed (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 410.

In suit for conversion based on contract to store and return cotton on demand, and refusal on ground cotton had been destroyed by fire, amendment alleging loss occurred through defendant's negligence, filed more than two years after accrual of cause of action, did not state new cause of action, barred by statute of limitations. Exporters' & Traders' Compress & Warehouse Co. v. Wills (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1056.

Where husband and wife, suing railroad and receiver for injuries to wife, originally alleged actual damages of $140, and exemplary damages of $300, amended petition, after court struck claim for exemplary damages, claiming $290 as actual damages filed more than two years after cause of action accrued, set up new cause of action for actual damages in excess of $140, barred by two years' statute of limitations. Cozier v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 975.

Where suit for injuries was brought against railroad's receiver alone, but amended cause of action was based on joint negligence of receiver and railroad, such cause of action, so far as against railroad, was distinct from previous cause of action, and barred by two years' statute of limitations. Id.

Where the petition contained a declaration only upon an express contract, with a mere plea in the prayer in the alternative for recovery on quantum meruit, the court properly sustained an exception to an amended petition pleading a quantum meruit in the alternative, filed more than two years after the cause of action accrued. Thames v. Clesi (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 195.

Where the substantial facts in the petition and in each amended petition were that defendant had obtained money from plaintiff under contract to make a loan on plaintiff's land, and to issue a life insurance policy, which contract defendant had breached and refused to return the money, a recovery under either of the petitions would bar recovery under the others or either of them, and there was no change of cause of action to subject it to operation of statute of limitations. Trammell v. San Antonio Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 786.

Where plaintiff, in petition and amended petitions, prayed judgment for himself for rescission of contract and for money paid, and in amended petition asked the same for the use and benefit of plaintiff bank, there was not such a change in the names of the parties as to set up a new cause of action and subject it to the operation of the statute of limitations. Id.

In an action for personal injuries sustained when plaintiff's team became frightened by defendant's train, while travelling on a neighborhood road, an amendment, filed more than two years from the date of the injury, alleging that the road was a public road, did not set up a new cause of action, so as to be barred by the two-year statute of limitations. Baker v. Galbreath (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 626.

Where petition for loss of barges, filed within two years of the loss, alleged that defendant was in their possession "without hire," an allegation contradicted by the specific facts recite another amended petition filed more than two years after the loss, and eliminating the improper allegation that the barges were in defendant's possession without hire, did not change the cause of action, and was not barred by the two-year statute of limitations. Freeport Town-Site Co. v. S. H. Hudgins & Sons (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 287.

Amended petition suing on same life policies, for same amount of insurance and upon same risk, as original petition, merely amplifying and stating in different form the same cause of action as alleged in original petition, did not set up new cause of action so as to be barred by limitations. Northwestern Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 598.

The safest test of whether an amended petition introduces a new cause of action, relative to bar of limitations, is whether the same evidence would support both pleadings, and whether the allegations are subject to the same defenses. El Paso Times Co. v. Fuller (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 113.

Oral contract as to taking charge of circulation of newspaper, set up in third amended petition, held to so materially vary from that in first amended petition as to introduce a new cause of action, barred by limitations. Id.

In an action on a contract, an amendment by plaintiff to the pleadings, setting up a mistake in the contract and asking that the same be corrected, was not a new cause of action as respects the statute of limitations. Benson v. Ashford (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 283.

Where a lessee of a horse sued for injuries to the horse, and, without his consent, made the lessor a joint plaintiff, but on the owner's protest filed another petition and sued in his own name, the amended petition did not set up a new cause of action to which limitations would apply. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 1107.

In action by two joint lessees, amended petition naming only one of the lessees as plaintiff, and alleging that such plaintiff had purchased the interest of the other lessee in the lease, was not barred by limitations, though filed after period of limitations had expired; the amended petition not stating a new cause of action. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Baker (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 7.

In action against railroad for loss of cattle and damage to pasturage because of openings made in plaintiff's fences during construction of road, where original petition charged that defendant, its agents, and employes broke fences in not less than eight different places, and that "people grading the road for defendant" tore down fences and left them down, without specifying parts of fences where openings were made, amended petition, alleging openings to have been made by servants of independent contractor on the right of way held not to state new cause of action so as to be barred by limitations; the amended petition merely making more specific the allegations of original petition. Id.

In suit in statutory form of trespass to try title, for the recovery of land and for damages, plaintiff suing as heir of her mother, who had conveyed the land to defendant, partly for cash and partly for other land, which, unknown to plaintiff's mother, was mortgaged, which mortgage was subsequently foreclosed, second amended petition, whereby plaintiff sought recovery of the land conveyed by her mother or in the alternative, the value of the land conveyed by defendant, lost by the foreclosure, and a foreclosure of her equitable lien therefor upon the land conveyed by her mother, held to state a new cause of action. Smith v. Price (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 836.

48. Amendment affecting form of action or relief.—While pleadings in justice court may be informal, and great liberality is indulged both in substance and form, held that, where plaintiff's claim, filed in justice court, based on the refusal of a conductor of a train to stop at the station at which he desired to alight, was founded on an action ex contractu, an amendment, claiming damages for the conductor's insulting words and conduct, which sounded in tort, introduced a new cause of action, and was barred, where the amendment was not filed until more than five years after the cause of action accrued. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Sanderson (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 286.

Where shipment of goods was sold under conditional contract reserving title, which by statute was a chattel mortgage, and seller brought action against the buyer and its assignee to recover title and possession, an amendment by plaintiff to the petition on reversal of judgment in its favor, so as to only recover possession as mortgagee, did not change the cause of action so as to affect the statute of limitation. Moore-Hustead Co. v. Joseph W. Moon Buggy Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1032.

Where the original petition stated a cause of action on express contract, plaintiff could not recover on an implied contract and quantum meruit set up in an amended petition which was not filed until more than two years after the accrual of the cause of action upon quantum meruit. Kuhn v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 343.

50. Set-offs and counterclaims.—Where defendant set up counterclaim for breach of contract, and subsequently filed supplemental answer alleging different contract and breach thereof more than four years prior to the filing of such answer, its cause of action on such breach was barred by limitations, though the original answer setting up counterclaim was filed within the four-year period of limitations. Mann v. Southland Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 191.

In action by seller of gas engine for balance of purchase price, buyer could not, in answer, set up claim for damages for personal injury sustained as the result of a defect in the engine more than two years before the commencement of the action, such claim being barred by limitations, even though set up in answer, since such claim does not go to the validity of plaintiff's demand in its inception, or show its performance, but is based on a cause of action separate from the cause of action stated by plaintiff. Alley v. Bessemer Gas Engine Co. (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 963.

III. OPERATION AND EFFECT OF BAR BY LIMITATION

53. Nature and extent of bar.—See Henson v. C. C. Slaughter Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 375.

Statutes of limitations are curative, and confer rights of property, which are as fully entitled to protection as any other legal right. Fogle v. Baker (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 752.

Where there was no substantial compliance with a contract to lay tile floors in a neat and workmanlike manner, and any cause of action on quantum meruit or an implied contract having been barred by the two-year statute of limitations, plaintiff could not recover. Thames v. Clesi (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 195.

54. Bar of debt as affecting security.—The debt secured being barred by limitations, action to foreclose mortgage is barred. Poythress v. Ivey (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 103.

Note, together with contract of sale, whereby sellers warranted title and agreed that proceeds of note received from buyers should be applied to any and all debts against property, amounted to an assignment of note to sellers' creditors, and suit by a creditor was not barred, although he could not maintain suit on debt; a bar by statute not paying the debt. Warren v. Parlin-Orendorff Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 586.

A pledgee of property may sell or sue for conversion, although debt which it was given to secure is barred. Id.

Even if plaintiff had pleaded title by limitations and even if defendant's right to enforce superior title or foreclose its vendor's lien was barred by arts. 5694, 5695, where plaintiff's deed showed that he held title in subordination to the right of defendant city he could not recover without proving that debt had been paid. Bunn v. City of Laredo (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 675.

Where plaintiff, the manager of a corporation, on leaving its employment, was paid an amount supposed to be the balance due him on the account between him and the corporation, and, on the corporation auditor's later claiming that there had been a mistake in accounts and an overpayment of $1,041, plaintiff deposited such amount in a bank to protect the company, such deposit was made in contemplation of a speedy statement as to the account, and when the company failed to render a statement or make claim until after the account had become barred by limitations, the company's right to the deposit was also barred. Mexican Coal & Coke Co. v. Ruckman (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 347.

56. Persons to whom bar is available.—A subsequent purchaser of part of the land covered by trust deed cannot rely upon the statutes of limitations to bar foreclosure of the trust deed, where the original debtor treated the debt secured by the trust deed as continuing, and did not raise the issue of limitations by exception or other pleading. Poythress v. Ivey (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 157.

58. Waiver of bar.—Limitations being purely a personal defense, a defendant may waive it. Howard v. Stahl (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 826.

As there is no constitutional provision requiring the state to plead limitations in an action against it, the Legislature, on passing an act allowing an employé of a state railroad who was injured to sue, may waive limitations, and provide that limitations should not begin to run until the passage of the act. State v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 695.

TITLE 88

LOCAL OPTION

Articles 5715-5730. [3384-3399] [Superseded.]

Explanatory.—These articles are superseded by the amendment of art. 16, § 20 of the state Constitution, and by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 78, Penal Code, arts. 588¼-588½tt, and also by the Prohibition amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and the National Prohibition Act (the Volstead Act).

ARTICLE 5715

See Ezzell v. State, 29 Tex. App. 521, 16 S. W. 782; Dillard v. State, 31 Cr. R. 470, 20 S. W. 1106; Sullivan v. State, 83 Cr. R. 477, 204 S. W. 1169.

Cited, Carnes v. State, 23 Tex. App. 449, 5 S. W. 133; Gilbert v. State, 32 Cr. R. 596, 25 S. W. 632.

1. Validity of local option laws.—After the local option prohibition law has been adopted in a given locality by a vote of the people, its abrogation in that locality is not within the power of the Legislature, but its repeal rests with the people, by their vote expressed at an election. White v. State, 84 Cr. R. 545, 210 S. W. 200.

2. Relation to other laws.—The state-wide statutory prohibition did not repeal the local option law. Jarrott v. State, 84 Cr. R. 544, 209 S. W. 663; White v. State, 84 Cr. R. 545, 210 S. W. 200.

The act of the Legislature establishing the 10-mile zone law did not repeal or suspend the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquor in local option territory. White v. State, 84 Cr. R. 545, 210 S. W. 200; Jarrott v. State, 84 Cr. R. 544, 209 S. W. 663.

3. Where local option elections may be held.—This article refers only to incorporated towns with defined limits. Ex parte Tummins, 32 Cr. R. 117, 22 S. W. 409.

13. Order for election—in general.—Decision under prior law, see Ex parte Sublett, 23 Tex. App. 309, 4 S. W. 894.

— Description of territory.—A petition was signed by 230 names, and specified the limits of the proposed subdivision. The commissioners' court, in acting thereon, and ordering the election, found that petitioners were all voters living in the proposed subdivision. Their order set forth the metes and bounds of the subdivision and the time and places of voting. Held, that the subdivision was sufficiently designated as against one charged with unlawful sale therein. Ex parte Segars, 32 Cr. R. 553, 25 S. W. 26.

18. Qualified voters.—Right of electors to vote upon question of local option depends on whether they reside within county where election is held. Garvey v. Cain (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 765.

ARTICLE 5717

See Curry v. State, 28 Tex. App. 475, 13 S. W. 752; Dillard v. State, 31 Cr. R. 470, 20 S. W. 1106.

Date of election.—An election ordered on November 10th can be legally held on November 25th. Winston v. State, 32 Cr. R. 59, 22 S. W. 133.

ARTICLE 5718

See Gilbert v. State, 32 Cr. R. 596, 25 S. W. 632.

Cited, Ex parte Tummins, 32 Cr. R. 117, 22 S. W. 409.

Posting notices.—Where it appears, on a trial for violating the local option law, that the clerk did not post the notices, but issued them, and placed them in the hands of "good men" to be posted, there is no presumption that such men posted the notices. James v. State, 21 Tex. App. 189, 17 S. W. 143.

ARTICLE 5719

See Dillard v. State, 31 Cr. R. 470, 20 S. W. 1106.

ARTICLE 5721

See Curry v. State, 28 Tex. App. 475, 13 S. W. 752; Dillard v. State, 31 Cr. R. 470, 20 S. W. 1106.

3. Strict compliance with statutes.—The order of the court declaring the result of the election, and prohibiting the sale, need not be in the words and form required by this article, but a substantial compliance with that section is sufficient. James v. State, 21 Tex. App. 353, 17 S. W. 422.

7. Order declaring result of election.—Declaring result of local option election and issuance of order prohibiting the sale of intoxicants by the commissioners' court, are merely ministerial, and not judicial acts. Hines v. State, 83 Cr. R. 195, 202 S. W. 91.

Even if Legislature did not have power to authorize commissioners' court to issue order prohibiting sale of intoxicants, it is immaterial, as the mere declaration by such body that the results of an election were in favor of local option would put the law in effect. Id.

8. — Time of making order.—A delay on the part of the court in making the order would not invalidate the election. Ex parte Burge, 32 Cr. R. 459, 24 S. W. 289.

9. — Sufficiency in general.—The order need not state the date the election was ordered. McDaniel v. State, 32 Cr. R. 16, 21 S. W. 684.

Where a local option election is ordered on November 9th, the election is not void because the proclamation and order of court declaring the result both recited that the election was ordered on November 10th, since such order need not state the date the election was ordered. (McDaniel v. State, 32 Cr. R. 16, 21 S. W. 684, followed.) Winston v. State, 32 Cr. R. 59, 22 S. W. 138.

Though nine days elapsed between an election and canvass, and there was error in the date in the certificate of publication of the result of a prohibition election, there was no error in allowing their admission in evidence, in a prosecution thereunder, where the election had not been contested in the time required by law. Coffey v. State, 82 Cr. R. 57, 198 S. W. 326.

11. — Need not recite statutory exceptions.—An election was not void because, in entering the order which declared the result and prohibited the sale of intoxicating liquors, the county commissioners' court failed to add the words "except for the purposes and under the regulations specified in this title," the order in other respects being a literal compliance with the statute. Gilbert v. State, 32 Cr. R. 596, 25 S. W. 632.

17. — Operation and effect in general.—Record of commissioners' court, declaring result of an election and entering order putting local option into effect was conclusive, in absence of contest, that election was regular. Matheny v. State, 82 Cr. R. 47, 198 S. W. 312.

Where the local option law has been placed in effect by a vote of the people, it must so remain until the people of the same territory repeal it by a vote at another election, and the Legislature has no power to do so. Reed v. State, 84 Cr. R. 335, 206 S. W. 937.

ARTICLE 5722

See Ezzell v. State, 29 Tex. App. 521, 16 S. W. 732; Dillard v. State, 31 Cr. R. 470, 20 S. W. 1106; Smith v. State, 81 Cr. R. 446, 196 S. W. 519.

Evidence.—That nine days elapsed between an election and canvass, and there was error in the date in the certificate of publication of the result of a prohibition election, there was no error in allowing their admission in evidence, in a prosecution thereunder, where the election had not been contested in the time required by law. Coffey v. State, 82 Cr. R. 57, 198 S. W. 326.

ARTICLE 5724

See Ex parte Cox, 28 Tex. App. 537, 13 S. W. 862.

In general.—This article applies only to those localities thereafter adopting the law, and does not nullify a county election repealing the law, held one year after its adoption, which occurred before the passage of this act. Dawson v. State, 25 Tex. App. 670, 8 S. W. 820.

ARTICLE 5726

See Ex parte Cox, 28 Tex. App. 537, 13 S. W. 862.

ARTICLE 5727

See Dillard v. State, 31 Cr. R. 470, 20 S. W. 1106.

In general.—Under Act March 3, 1917, c. 162, § 5, 39 Stat. 1069 (U. S. Comp. St. 1918, U. S. Comp. St. Ann. Supp. 1919, § 8739a), declaring that whoever shall cause intoxicating liquors to be transported in interstate commerce except for scientific purposes, etc., into any state the laws of which prohibit the manufacture or sale therein of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes shall be punished, it is unlawful for an interstate carrier to transport for beverage purposes intoxicating liquors from without the state into a Texas county which had adopted prohibition, this article, declaring the sale, etc., within prohibition territory of intoxicating liquors with intent to violate the law, to be an offense. McAdams v. Wells Fargo & Co. Express (D. C.) 249 Fed. 175.

This article sufficiently prescribes penalties for its violation, by referring to such as are prescribed by the Penal Code. Ex parte Segars, 32 Cr. R. 553, 25 S. W. 26.

ARTICLE 5728

See Wright v. State, 83 Cr. R. 415, 203 S. W. 775.

1. Validity of statute.—This article is binding on all courts and all persons. Wright v. State, 83 Cr. R. 415, 203 S. W. 775.

12. Procedure in general—Scope of inquiry.—In local option election contest where boundary line had never been established as required by Rev. St. 1911, art. 1400, court properly determined boundary, for purpose of ascertaining whether certain parties who voted resided within commissioner's district in which election was held. Garvey v. Cain (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 765.

13. — Evidence.—In local option election contest, evidence held sufficient to support court's finding that certain named persons were not legal voters, and that there was no intimidation of voters calculated to change result. Garvey v. Cain (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 765.

In local option election contest, evidence held insufficient to show that a boundary involved had been recognized and established within Rev. St. 1911, art. 1400, adopting such boundaries as true boundaries. Id.

23. Presumption where election not contested.—The declaration of the commissioners' court upon the adoption of county local option is conclusive unless contested within 30 days. Bashara v. State, 84 Cr. R. 263, 206 S. W. 359.

A local option election will be held valid in absence of a contest within the time prescribed by statute and a finding of court upon that contest that election was illegal. Jarrott v. State, 84 Cr. R. 544, 209 S. W. 663.

24. Statutory contest only way to attack election.—This article does not prevent one accused of violating the order of prohibition from showing at a later time that it is void. Curry v. State, 28 Tex. App. 475, 13 S. W. 752.

There is no force in a collateral objection to a local option election, made after the 30 days, that the voting place of one ward (which gave a majority against prohibition) was two blocks away from the place designated, there being no proof that such change was made corruptly or fraudulently or with the effect of depriving any one of his suffrage. Ex parte Segars, 32 Cr. R. 553, 25 S. W. 26.

MANDAMUS

Article 5731. [1450] No mandamus on ex parte hearing.

In general.—It is error to grant a peremptory mandamus on an ex parte hearing without notice. Crumley v. McKinney (Sup.) 9 S. W. 157.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

1. NATURE AND GROUNDS IN GENERAL

2. Existence and adequacy of other remedy in general.—Mandamus will not lie where the petitioners have another plain and adequate remedy. Cobb & Gregory v. Dies (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 433; Wells v. Commissioners' Court of Presidio County (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 608.

Where contestants alleged that the election officers wrongfully refused to count the ballots in a certain precinct, declared the offices in such precinct vacant, and appointed the defeated candidates thereto, their remedy held not by mandamus to compel issuance of the certificate of election, but by quo warranto. Wells v. Commissioners' Court of Presidio County (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 608.

One injured in New Mexico suing railroad in Texas could not by mandamus compel immediate trial of his action contrary to general orders Nos. 18, 18a, and 26 of the Director General of the Railways, in the absence of compliance with No. 26, permitting application to the Director General for relief in event of unnecessary hardship by postponement according to those orders. Rhodes v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 114.

Relators who sought no relief in trial court are not entitled to mandamus in Supreme Court to compel trial court to vacate its judgment, permit them to intervene, and grant certain other relief. Matthaei v. Clark, 110 Tex. 114, 216 S. W. 856.

3. Remedy by appeal, writ of error or certiorari.—Writs of mandamus will not be issued where there is a clear legal remedy, as by certiorari, by which the statute authorizes a cause to be removed from justice court to the county court. Hardin v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 679.

The right to have a judgment reinstated and enforced by mandamus is not affected by the fact that an appeal from such judgment can be taken or a writ of error to review judgment secured on a retrial. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Muse, 109 Tex. 352, 207 S. W. 897, 4 A. L. R. 613.

Remedy of interveners being by appeal to Court of Civil Appeals from order dismissing intervention and refusing leave to amend, such order or judgment will not be reviewed by Supreme Court in original application for mandamus to control district court. Matthaei v. Clark, 110 Tex. 114, 216 S. W. 856.

Mandamus from Supreme Court to trial court cannot be used as substitute for appeal provided by law, by relator aggrieved by judgment or order. Id.

3½. Resort to other remedies.—Where a contract for roadwork between county and plaintiffs was in indivisible contract, although providing for estimates as the work progressed and for the issuance of time warrants upon such estimates, plaintiffs, by presenting a claim for the final and full amount due under the contract and obtaining action thereon by certain commissioners, acting as the county court or attempting to so act, allowing a certain amount as balance due settlement in full, and subsequently instituting and prosecuting to judgment a claim for this particular amount as the balance due under the contract, whether they had success in recovering such amount or not, made an election to claim such sum as the balance due, and they cannot again sue to compel the county court to issue warrants applied for upon certain estimates made as the work progressed. Cobb & Gregory v. Parker (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 214.

Where relators gave notice of appeal from an order of the trial judge disqualifying himself and executed a supersedeas bond, etc., such proceeding will not preclude mandamus to compel the trial judge, who was not disqualified, to proceed, for his order was purely interlocutory and did not dispose of the case. Montfort v. Daviss (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 806.

Where a judge erroneously deemed himself disqualified and refused to act, whereupon an application for injunction was made to another judge and acted upon, held that, in view of art. 4643, the injunction proceeding will not prevent mandamus compelling the original trial judge to proceed with the cause. Id.

4. Nature and existence of rights to be protected or enforced.—A candidate for nomination at a party primary who pledged support to the primary nominee as required by statutes commits an act violative of conscience by thereafter accepting an independent nomination so that petitioners for such nomination are not entitled to mandamus to compel the secretary of state to certify the nomination. Westerman v. Mims (Sup.) 227 S. W. 178.

5. Nature of act to be commanded.—Though arts. 3164-3166, have been strictly complied with in nominating an independent candidate, the secretary of state will not be compelled by mandamus to certify his name to be placed on the ballot if it is not entitled to be placed thereon because of any provision of the law, no matter where embodied. Westerman v. Mims (Sup.) 227 S. W. 178.

7. Mandamus ineffectual or not beneficial.—The court will not grant the mandamus sought by relator, where the writ would be unavailing and useless. Pollard v. Speer (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 620.

Where county treasurer, seeking mandamus to revoke vacation order requiring transfer of county funds from one bank to another bank held to be legal depository, gave his check to latter bank drawn on first bank for the funds, he did all that was required to comply with order, regardless of fact that draft accepted in payment of check was not paid, and mandamus proceedings will be dismissed. Hammonds v. Ward (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 334.

Original application for mandamus by S. Bank to vacate order of judge in vacation compelling transfer of county funds to M. Bank as legal depository will be dismissed as moot, where S. Bank honored check by county treasurer for the funds by giving draft therefor which was credited by M. Bank, though S. bank afterwards attempted to rescind the transaction. State Nat. Bank of Mt. Pleasant v. Ward (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 338.

Upon appeal from an order refusing mandamus to compel a court stenographer to prepare a statement of facts in an appeal in a habeas corpus case, where, on the same day that this proceeding was filed, the record on appeal in habeas corpus was filed, as was the statement of facts a few days later, it may be inferred that the stenographer complied with appellant's request, and that, even if entitled to mandamus, it would not be necessary. Collins v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 1005.

8. Persons entitled to relief.—Petitioners for independent nomination of a candidate who was under obligation to support a nominee of the party primary invited a breach of that obligation, and therefore cannot maintain mandamus to compel certification of the nomination if the obligation was such that it would prevent resort to mandamus by the nominee, though they could maintain such proceedings if the candidate himself could have done so. Westerman v. Mims (Sup.) 227 S. W. 178.

II. SUBJECTS AND PURPOSES OF RELIEF

9. In what cases mandamus will issue in general.—Under art. 1526, empowering the Supreme Court to issue mandamus agreeable to the principles of law regulating such writ, mandamus, while a strictly legal remedy, will be refused, by analogy to the principles of equity, in aid of those who do not come into court with clean hands; that is, those who have violated conscience or good faith or other equitable principles in their prior conduct connected with the controversy. Westerman v. Mims (Sup.) 227 S. W. 178.

A writ of mandamus is a discretionary writ, and not a writ of right. Id.

12. Acts and proceedings of courts, judges and judicial officers—Specific acts.—Mandamus will not lie to compel the district judge to hold a special term of court under art. 1720, since the statute clearly leaves the matter of calling such sessions to the discretion of the district judge. Pollard v. Speer (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 620.

The district clerk, being clothed with discretion in passing upon the financial worth of the sureties upon a supersedeas bond and in entering his approval thereon, will not be required by writ of mandamus to approve the bond unless the relator shows that the clerk had arbitrarily and without exercising discretion refused to approve the bond. Bean v. Polk (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1106.

13. — Entertaining and proceeding with cause.—That the regular judge for a personal reason does not desire to try a particular case gives him no right to decline to do so; and, if he does decline, he may be compelled, by mandamus, to try the case. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. Ready (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1034.

Since under art. 1714, the judges of the district courts are empowered but not required to make orders in vacation, where a judge in vacation set down habeas corpus proceeding for hearing the respondents, who filed a plea of privilege to be sued in their own county, could not, by mandamus, compel the judge to hear and pass upon their plea when he preferred to continue the cause until term time. Lucid v. McDowell (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 203.

Where trial judge deemed himself disqualified and certified the facts to the Governor, who appointed another judge, such appointment, where the facts were insufficient to disqualify, is not effective, and the trial judge may by mandamus be compelled to proceed. Montfort v. Daviss (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 806.

18. — Vacation of judgment or order.—Supreme Court will not by mandamus direct district court to vacate or set aside judgment, though on proper showing it might require such court to file, hear, and determine petition for such relief. Matthaei v. Clark, 110 Tex. 114, 216 S. W. 856.

19. — Proceedings for review.—Mandamus does not lie to compel trial court to correct record to show real date of adjournment and of filing of findings of fact and conclusions of law, where application to court to correct such record has been made, entertained, and overruled. Eustis v. Frey (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 117.

The question for the county court on hearing of petition for mandamus to a justice of the peace to allow appeal in forma pauperis is, not whether the justice erred in refusing such appeal on the evidence before him, but whether on the further evidence before the court there is a right thereto. Hardin v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 679.

The trial court will not be required by mandamus to include certain facts in bill of exception complaining of court's ruling on motion for new trial on ground of insufficiency of evidence, since the facts proved should be brought up by a statement of facts, and not by the bill of exception, and since, if facts had been stated in the bill, the court could not have considered them. Rhoades v. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 481.

Where there is a conflict between decisions of the Courts of Civil Appeals, mandamus to compel certification of the question to the Supreme Court will be issued; the Court of Civil Appeals having final jurisdiction over the case. Fruit Dispatch Co. v. Rainey (Sup.) 232 S. W. 281.

23. Acts and proceedings of public officers or boards and municipalities—Ministerial acts in general.—Writ of mandamus will not lie except where the acts sought to be performed are purely ministerial. Trustees of Independent School Dist. No. 57 v. Elbon (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1039.

24. — Matters of discretion.—Mandamus is never available against an officer to compel performance of any act involving the exercise of official discretion. Tippett v. Gates (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 702; Donna Independent School Dist. v. First State Bank of Donna (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 974.

Mandamus will not issue against a public officer save to compel performance of a ministerial duty, neither involving discretion nor leaving any alternative. Hardin v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 679.

Supreme Court will not issue mandamus against any public officer except to enforce performance of a clear, legal duty not involving exercise of discretion conferred upon him by law. Matthaei v. Clark, 110 Tex. 114, 216 S. W. 856.

25. — Specific acts.—Since art. 3125, provides that all persons holding a possessory right to land adjoining an irrigation plant can compel the furnishing of water to irrigate crops, the duty to furnish water is statutory and can be enforced by mandamus. Dunbar v. Texas Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 614.

27. — Matters relating to public schools.—In view of the record, showing non-compliance with the requirements of arts. 2886, 2889, 3024, relative to election of trustees for an independent school district, petitioners for mandamus held not entitled to the writ to compel trustees of the district to declare the results of an election for school trustees, and to issue certificates therefor to the parties receiving majority of votes. Trustees of Independent School Dist. No. 57 v. Elbon (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1039.

28. — Proceedings relating to public lands.—Since the land commissioner has no authority to determine the legality of a patent previously issued, mandamus will not lie to compel him to issue a permit to prospect on land for which the state had previously issued a patent, which it had never attempted to set aside, the remedy for wrongful patent being by action by the Attorney General under art. 5468. Fitzgerald v. Robison, 110 Tex. 468, 220 S. W. 768.

29. — Issuance of certificates and licenses.—If action of city manager in refusing retail liquor dealer's license is arbitrary and unreasonable, courts will review and control such action by mandamus. City of Brownsville v. Fernandez (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 112.

30. — Establishment of roads and issuance of road bonds.—Where after district road bonds had been issued, under arts. 628, 631, 632, the commissioners' court, on voter's petition, made order determining that the bonds could not be sold at par, repealing the order authorizing their issuance and canceling the bonds, mandamus would not lie, nearly five years thereafter, to compel reissuance of the bonds. Jackson v. McAllister (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 671.

Even if commissioners' court abused discretion in using proceeds of county bonds to improve a certain road, they cannot by mandamus be forced to improve another road. Grayson County v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 160.

31. — Issuance of warrants and payment of claims.—See Martin v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 653.

Where a county treasurer defaulted, and it is impossible to ascertain which funds were depleted, his successor cannot be compelled by mandamus to pay the full amount of funds due to a drainage district, although he may have wrongfully paid orders from other funds; arts. 700, 2608, being inapplicable. Nueces County Drainage Dist. No. 2 v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1000.

Where defendants as school trustees contracted to pay plaintiff a salary for teaching school but refused to sign or approve his voucher for the last month, plaintiff could not have mandamus to compel the signing of the voucher, since the approval thereof was discretionary with the trustees. Wells v. Bruner (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 363.

III. JURISDICTION, PROCEEDINGS AND RELIEF

40. Parties.—In mandamus to compel clerk of court to issue writ of possession, petition was demurrable, where it showed upon its face a controversy between plaintiff and others over title and none of such persons were made parties. Fain v. McCain (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 889.

Owners of three surveys abutting on river bed were necessary parties to mandamus proceeding against county surveyor to compel him to survey river bed, as appropriated to public free school fund, that plaintiff might purchase it. Siddall v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1029.

The city was not a necessary party in madamus by district attorney to compel judge and clerk of corporation court to permit petitioner to prosecute all criminal cases, and to tax costs in such cases in his favor, although city ordinances attempting to deny him such right were involved. Monk v. Crooker (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 194.

Where a railroad, with permission of the authorities, the Railroad Commission and the Attorney General, abandoned a portion of its track, and sold its right of way to a company, which sold to residents of the city, who built thereon, a company aggrieved by the abandonment cannot secure mandamus to compel replacement without making the city and present holders of the title to the abandoned right of way parties to the suit. Jeff Bland Lumber & Building Co. v. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 750.

The various litigants who might be adversely affected by the district judge's approval of a supersedeas bond for an appeal are not necessary parties to an application for mandamus to compel him to fix the amount thereof, where the right to the writ depends on whether the law allowed supersedeas. Blankenship v. Little Motor Kar Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 210.

42. Pleading.—In a proceeding in which an injunction and mandamus is sought, submitted on bill and answer, allegations of the bill not specially denied under oath must be taken as true. Houston Electric Co. v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 198.

42½. Hearing.—In mandamus a party who did not object to the court's deciding the case on the evidence before it, and did not offer any further evidence, cannot complain that there should have been a further hearing on the facts, if the facts before the court were sufficient to sustain the judgment. Monk v. Crooker (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 194.

43. Scope of inquiry.—On mandamus to compel judge of district court to vacate receivership as to property of decedent and order delivery to relator as administrator, sole question was relator's right to vacation and order for delivery, and whether court had authority to sell property was immaterial. Lauraine v. Ashe, 109 Tex. 69, 196 S. W. 501.

48. Disobedience of writ.—Where applicant for habeas corpus disobeyed mandamus judgment with knowledge of its terms, he cannot complain that mandamus writ was not actually served on him. Ex parte Smith, 110 Tex. 55, 214 S. W. 320.

TITLE 89½

MATERNITY HOMES

Art.

5732½. Persons conducting maternity homes shall procure license.

5732½a. Notice of license to local health officer.

Art.

5732½b. Licensee shall report births.

5732½c. Revocation of license.

Article 5732½. Persons conducting maternity homes shall procure license.—Every individual, firm, association, or corporation, owning, keeping, conducting or managing an institution or home for the boarding or sheltering of infant children, or so-called "Baby Farm", or any lying-in hospital, hospital ward, maternity home or other place for the reception, care and treatment of pregnant women, and charging a fee or receiving or expecting compensation in the way of room rent or board, shall obtain an annual license which shall be issued by the State Board of Health without fee, shall not be transferable to other persons or other premises, and shall expire on the thirty-first day of December next following the issuance. The application for such license shall state the name and address of the licensee, the specific location of the building used, and the number of inmates which may be boarded there at one time, and shall be approved by the local health officer. No greater number of inmates shall be housed at one time in the building than is authorized by the license, and no pregnant woman or infant shall be kept in a building or place not designated in the license. A record of licenses issued shall be kept by the State Board of Health. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 76, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 4 of the act imposes a criminal penalty, and is set forth, post, as art. 513c, Penal Code. The act took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Art. 5732½a. Notice of license to local health officer.—Whenever any such license is issued, the board shall forthwith give notice of the granting and terms to the local health officer, who shall keep informed of the nature and reputation of every such institution in his jurisdiction, and shall visit and inspect the same from time to time, and for such purposes shall at all reasonable hours be given free and unrestricted access to such institution. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 5732½b. Licensee shall report births.—Every such licensee shall report to the local health officer, within twenty-four hours next after it occurs, the birth of any child, including stillborn or prematurely born children at such institution; the arrival of any child, stating the name, sex, age, color, and from whom received; and the removal of any child, stating its name, age, and disposition made of it. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5732½c. Revocation of license.—Whenever a keeper, manager or owner of any such institution as is defined in Section 1 of this Bill shall be convicted of keeping or conducting a "disorderly house" as that term is defined by the criminal laws of this State, the State Board of Health shall forthwith revoke the license theretofore issued authorizing the keeping of such house; and should any such manager, keeper or owner refuse to permit any person authorized by this Bill to inspect such house at any reasonable hour, or should they fail to make such reports to the local health officer within the time and in the manner required by this Bill, then said State Board of Health may suspend said license for any period of time not to exceed six months, and upon any subsequent failure to permit such visits of inspection or to make said reports, said State Board of Health is authorized to revoke the license theretofore issued for the conducting of such house. [Id., § 5.]

MEDICINE—PRACTICE OF

Chap.

1. Physicians and surgeons.
2. Nurses.

Chap.

3. Anatomical board.
4. Optometry.

CHAPTER ONE

PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS

Art.

5733. Medical board established.
 5736. Physicians required to register.
 5741. Examination, how conducted, and to include what.
 5742. Does not apply to whom.

Art.

- 5744a. Cancellation of license on conviction of crime.
 5745. Who regarded as practicing medicine.
 5747. Malpractice, cause for revoking license.

Article 5733. Medical board established.Cited, Harris v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1068.

Constitutionality of prior act.—The prior act, relating to the qualifications of physicians, and requiring the board of examiners to be “graduates of some medical college recognized by the American Medical Association,” is not in conflict with Const. art. 16, § 31, declaring that the legislature may pass laws prescribing the qualifications of physicians, “but no preference shall ever be given by law to any schools of medicine.” Kenedy v. Schultz, 6 Civ. App. 461, 25 S. W. 667.

Art. 5736. Physicians required to register.See Home Life & Accident Co. v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 131.

Validity of act.—A license to practice medicine is a privilege or franchise granted by the government. Harris v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1068.

The practice of medicine in all its phases as a public business is within the legitimate police powers of the state for regulation. Hicks v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 302.

Prosecutions for unlawfully practicing.—Defendant chiropractor, who, before practicing medicine, did not register with the district court of the county of his residence the certificate of some authorized board of medical examiners, evidencing his authority to practice medicine, violated such article, though the remainder of its requirements, with regard to stating under oath his age, etc., were complied with. Hicks v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 302.

Unlicensed practitioner's right to recover fees.—A person serving as a physician without having a certificate of qualification, cannot recover for such services. Kenedy v. Schultz, 6 Civ. App. 461, 25 S. W. 667.

A physician to recover for services must show compliance with Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5736, regulating the practice of medicine. Faine v. Eckhardt (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 459.

Art. 5741. Examination, how conducted, and to include what.Cited, Harris v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1068.

Validity.—This article is not violative of Const. art. 16, § 31, commanding laws prescribing the qualifications of physicians and forbidding preference by law to any school of medicine; the statute not being discriminatory and does not conflict with art. 5742. Hicks v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 302.

Art. 5742. Does not apply to whom.Cited, Harris v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1068.

Construction and operation in general.—Art. 5741 and this article, are not in conflict with each other. Hicks v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 302.

Art. 5744a. Cancellation of license on conviction of crime.—When the facts are made known to the State Board of Medical Examiners of this State that any licensed “practitioner of Medicine” has been convicted, either in a State or Federal Court, of the crime of the grade of a felony, or one which involves moral turpitude or procuring or aiding or abetting the procuring of a criminal abortion, said board is hereby authorized and empowered, and it is made its duty to immediately investigate said facts, and said Board is hereby authorized and empowered to immediately cancel the license of such licensed "practitioner of medicine." [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 129, § 1; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 75, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 2 repeals all laws in conflict. The act took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Art. 5745. Who regarded as practicing medicine.

Cited, Harris v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1068.

Art. 5747. Malpractice cause for revoking license.

Negligence or malpractice.—A physician is not liable for injury to patient in using X-ray, if the cause of the injury was the abnormal hypersensitiveness of the patient's skin, which could not have been discovered prior to the treatment. Hamilton v. Harris (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 450.

If defendant, who had contracted to personally attend plaintiff's wife during approaching confinement, but who was unable to do so, used ordinary care in selecting a substitute when requested by defendant to speedily dispatch another physician, he owed duty to exercise ordinary care in the selection of the substitute, but if he did so he would not be liable for negligence or lack of skill of substitute in the absence of facts showing that the substitute was acting as his agent. Moore v. Lee, 109 Tex. 591, 211 S. W. 214; 4 A. L. R. 185.

A physician is not liable for injuries resulting from use of X-ray where he exercises such reasonable care and skill as is ordinarily exercised by reputable physicians in the locality, and he is not expected to look for unexpected results from treatment of his patients, and is not expected to anticipate results arising from peculiar characteristics and conditions of a patient. Hamilton v. Harris (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 533.

— Evidence.—In action against physician for malpractice, wherein plaintiff introduced no evidence of general ability, physician could not introduce testimony as to it. Hackler v. Ingram (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 279.

In an action for damages for alleged negligent X-ray burn, whether plaintiff had a hypersensitive skin, or whether burn was the result of negligence on the part of defendant physician held for the jury. Hamilton v. Harris (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 533.

— Charge.—Where defendant, when called to attend plaintiff's wife pursuant to contract, stated that he would be unable to attend, and plaintiff asked him to speedily dispatch another physician which defendant did, court properly refused to charge that any negligence or lack of skill of physician dispatched was chargeable to defendant, regardless of the care exercised in selection. Moore v. Lee, 109 Tex. 391, 211 S. W. 214, 4 A. L. R. 185.

— Damages.—Verdict of $1,000 against physician for alleged malpractice held not excessive. Hackler v. Ingram (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 279.

In action for physician's negligence, loss of business is a remote consequence for which the physician is not liable. Hamilton v. Harris (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 450.

A verdict of $3,500 was not excessive for an X-ray burn between the legs of a merchant, resulting in an operation, great suffering, permanent inconvenience by reason of grafting of pig skin, and lessening of power to attend to his business. Hamilton v. Harris (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 533.

Employment and compensation.—Complaint, in suit by physicians to recover for attendance, medicine, etc., should itemize amount charged for medicine, amount charged for examination, that charged for visit, charge for prescription, etc.; no further itemization being necessary. Willet Bros. v. Western Naval Stores Co. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 352.

Where it was a long-established custom among doctors where the parties resided for a doctor to send another to those patients whom he was unable to attend, defendant's statement to a physician selected by him to attend to a case that it would be a partnership case cannot be construed otherwise than as meaning that defendant expected to resume charge when his other engagements would permit, and that each for his services would be entitled to compensation. Moore v. Lee, 109 Tex. 391, 211 S. W. 214, 4 A. L. R. 185.

Relation to patient in general.—Before performing an operation, a physician must obtain the consent of his patient if competent to give it, or, if not, of some one under the circumstances who would legally be authorized to give the requisite consent, though, of course, if a person be injured to the extent that he is unconscious and his injuries require prompt surgical attention, a physician may be justified in applying such treatment as is reasonably necessary for the preservation of life or limb, and consent will be implied. Moss v. Rishworth (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 225, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Rishworth v. Moss, 191 S. W. 843.

NURSES

Art.
5755a. Lecturing nurses; employment.

Art.
5755b. Same; compensation.

Article 5755a. Lecturing nurses; employment.—That the Board of Nurse Examiners for the State of Texas, be and it is hereby authorized to employ at least three lecturers from among the registered nurses of this State to visit and lecture to the young women students of the high schools, colleges and Universities of the State, those supported by public as well as by private patronage or endowment, with the view of securing volunteers from among the young women of the State willing to begin at once to take training for service as professional nurses to meet the demands for trained nurses to care for our sick and wounded in the war, as well as to properly serve the civilian population in the meantime. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 51, § 1.]

Took effect April 2, 1918.

Art. 5755b. Same; compensation.—That the said Board be and it is hereby authorized to fix the salary or compensation for said lecturers, to agree upon the term of service and pay the same from the accumulated fees now on hand and under the control of said Board amounting to something over three thousand dollars, to be vouchered and paid as is provided in Section 6 of the Act of 1909 creating the Board of Nurse Examiners, as amended by the Act of 1911 [Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 5754]. [Id., § 2.]

CHAPTER THREE

ANATOMICAL BOARD

Article 5757. Regulations for delivering dead bodies.

See Brown v. Bonough (Sup.) 232 S. W. 490.

5763½c. Tenure of members of Board; vacancies; eligibility of members.
5763½d. Qualification and organization of Board; meetings; rules, etc.; administration of oaths.
5763½e. Records.
5763½f. Examination of practitioners; declaration of intention to continue practice.
5763½g. Registration of declaration; regarded as certificate.

Art.
5763½h. Registration of license.
5763½i. County clerk to keep register; fees; entry of revocations of licenses; annual list of optometrists.
5763½j. Application for license; examination; licensee; fee; disposition of fund.
5763½k. Examinations how conducted; disqualification for license.
5763½l. District court may revoke licenses.
5763½m. Display of license.
5763½n. Sellers of spectacles as merchandise not within act.
5763½o. Scope of license.
5763½p. Partial invalidity.

Article 5763½. Practice of optometry defined.—The practice of optometry is hereby defined to be the employment of objective or subjective means, without the use of drugs, for the purpose of ascertaining and measuring the powers of vision of the human eye, and fitting lenses or prisms to correct or remedy any defect or abnormal condition of vision. Provided that nothing herein shall be construed to permit optometrists to treat the eyes for any defect whatsoever in any manner nor to administer any drug or drugs externally or internally, nor to prescribe drug or drugs or physical treatment whatsoever, unless such optometrist is a regular licensed physician or surgeon under the laws of this State. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 51, § 1.]

Took effect Nov. 15, 1921.

Art. 5763 $\frac{1}{2}$ a. Expense of board to be derived from license fees; surplus.—The "Texas State Board of Examiners in Optometry," hereinafter provided for, shall defray all expenses under this Act from fees provided in this Act, and no part of same shall be paid from the State Treasury, nor shall any appropriation ever be made from the State Treasury for any expenditures made necessary by this Act, and all fees remaining in the hands of the State Board of Examiners in Optometry at the end of any fiscal year in excess of five thousand (\$5,000.00) dollars shall be paid into the general fund of the State of Texas. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 5763 $\frac{1}{2}$ b. Board of Examiners created.—That a Board to be known as "The Texas State Board of Examiners in Optometry," for the State of Texas, named in Section 2 of this Act [Art. 5763 $\frac{1}{2}$ a], is hereby created. Said Texas State Board of Examiners in Optometry, which hereinafter may be referred to as the Board, shall be composed of five members, whose duty it shall be to carry out the purposes and enforce the provisions of this Act, and the Governor of Texas shall within ninety (90) days after the passage of this Act, appoint five persons to constitute such Texas State Board of Examiners in Optometry, who shall possess the necessary qualifications to practice optometry and who shall have been residents of this State actually engaged in the practice of optometry within the meaning of this Act, for at least five years immediately preceding the passage of this Act. The Texas State Board of Examiners in Optometry thus appointed, or a quorum thereof, shall, by virtue of such appointment, issue licenses to themselves. Three members of the Board shall constitute a quorum. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5763 $\frac{1}{2}$ c. Tenure of members of Board; vacancies; eligibility of members.—The members of the said Texas State Board of Examiners in Optometry shall be divided into three classes; one, two and three, and their terms of office shall be determined by lot at the first meeting of the Board. Two members shall hold their offices for two years, two members four years, and one member six years, respectively, from the time of their appointment, and until their successors are duly appointed and qualified, and the members of one of the above classes of said Board shall thereafter be appointed every two years, by the Governor, to supply vacancies made by provisions of this Act, who shall hold office for six years and until their successors are duly appointed and qualified. In case of death or resignation of a member of the Board, the Governor shall appoint another to take his place for the unexpired term only. After the first Board has been appointed, only licensed optometrists under the laws of the State of Texas and actively engaged in the practice of optometry shall be eligible for appointment on said Board. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 5763 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. Qualification and organization of Board; meetings; rules, etc.; administration of oaths.—The members of said Texas State Board of Examiners in Optometry shall qualify by taking the oath of office, the same as prescribed by the Constitution for State officials. At the first meeting of said Board after each appointment the Board shall elect a president, a vice-president, and secretary-treasurer. Regular meetings shall be held at least twice a year, at such time and place as shall be deemed most convenient for applicants for license. Not less than ten days notice of such meeting shall be given by publication in at least three daily newspapers of general circulation as may be selected by the Board. Special meetings may be held upon call of three members of the Board. The Board may prescribe rules, regulations and by-laws in harmony with the provisions of the Act, for its own proceedings and government for the examination of applicants for license to practice optometry. Any member of said Board shall have the power to administer oaths for all purposes required in the discharge of its duties and shall adopt a seal to be affixed to its official documents. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 5763½e. Records.—The Board shall preserve a record of its proceedings in a book or register kept for that purpose, showing name, age, place and present residence of each applicant, the name and location of any school or schools of optometry from which he holds credentials, and the time devoted to the study and practice of same, together with such other information as the Board may desire to record. Said register shall also show whether applicants were rejected or licensed and shall be prima facie evidence of all matters contained therein. The secretary of the Board shall on March 1st of each year transmit a certified copy of said register to the Secretary of State for permanent record a certified copy of which, with hand and seal of the secretary of said Board, or Secretary of State, shall be admitted as evidence in all courts. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 5763½f. Examination of practitioners; declaration of intention to continue practice.—All those engaged in the practice of optometry in this State at the time of the passage of this Act shall have one hundred and twenty (120) days after the appointment of the Board by the Governor of Texas in which to make declaration to the secretary of said Board on blank forms furnished by the Board, their intention to continue the practice of optometry in the State of Texas and their intention and purpose to take such examination in optometry as the Board may prescribe. Such examination to cover the following subjects only:

- (a) The limitations of the sphere of optometry.
- (b) The necessary scientific instruments used.
- (c) The form and power of lenses used.
- (d) A correct method of measuring presbyopia, hypermetropia, myopia and astigmatism.
- (e) The writing of formulas and prescriptions for the adaptation of lenses in aid of vision.

Provided that those making this declaration shall on or before January 1st, 1923, secure a license from the Board as hereinafter provided. Those engaged in the practice of optometry in this State at the time of the passage of this Act who fail to make such declaration, notifying the secretary of the Board as specified, shall be deemed to have waived their rights under the provisions of this Act. Those referred to as privileged to make declaration to the secretary of said Board on blank forms furnished by the Board of their intention to continue the practice of optometry in the State of Texas are hereinafter referred to as declarants. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 5763 1/2g. Registration of declaration; regarded as certificate.—Declarants, who filed with the Secretary of the Texas State Board of Examiners in Optometry a declaration of their intention to continue the practice of optometry in this State as provided in this Act, shall be given by the Board a certified copy of the declaration so filed, bearing the seal of the Board, and this certified copy shall be filed for record in the county clerk's office of the declarant's home county within thirty days of its date of certification by the Texas State Board of Examiners in Optometry, and thereafter declarant shall not begin or continue the practice of optometry in any county in this State without having first filed for record with the county clerk of such county the certified copy of his declaration issued him by the Texas State Board of Examiners in Optometry, and the failure to file same for record in the office of the county clerk shall be regarded as prima facie evidence of the lack of such document. Said certified copy so issued to him, or her, by the Board of declarant's declaration of intention to continue the practice of optometry in this State, as provided in this Act, may hereinafter in this Act be called a certificate. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 5763 1/2h. Registration of license.—After the passage of this Act it shall be unlawful for any person to begin to practice optometry within the limits of this State who has not registered in the county clerk's office of the county in which he resides, and in each county in which he practices, his license for so practicing as herein prescribed, together with his age, post-office address, place of birth, subscribed and verified by his oath. The fact of such oath and record shall be endorsed by the county clerk upon the license. The absence of record of such license in the county clerk's office shall be prima facie evidence of the lack of possession of such license to practice optometry. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 5763 1/2i. County clerk to keep register; fees; entry of revocations of licenses; annual list of optometrists.—It is hereby made the duty of the county clerk of each county in the State to purchase a book of suitable size to be known as the "Optometry Register" of such county and set apart at least one full page for the registration of each optometrist, and to record in said Optometry Register the name and record of each optometrist who presents for record a license or certificate issued under this Act by the State Board of Examiners in Optometry. The county clerk shall receive the sum of one dollar for each document registered under this Act, which shall be his full compensation for all duties required under this Act. When an optometrist shall have his license revoked, it shall be the duty of said county clerk, upon being notified by the Board, to make a note of the fact beneath the record in the Optometry Register, which entry shall close the record. On the first day of January in each year, said county clerk, shall, upon request of the Board, certify to the secretary of the Board a correct list of the optometrists then registered in the county, together with such other information as said Board may require. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 5763 1/2j. Application for license; examination; license; fee; disposition of fund.—Every person desiring to begin the practice of optometry after the passage of this Act shall make application for license by presenting to the secretary of the Board, on blank forms furnished by the Board, satisfactory evidence, verified by oath, that he or she has attained the age of twenty-one years, is of good moral character, has the necessary preliminary education and has graduated from a school of optometry maintaining a standard which meets with the requirements of said Board, or has studied optometry in Texas not less than two years in the office of an optometrist licensed under this Act, before taking the examination which shall be prescribed by the Board. Said examinations shall consist of tests in practical, theoretical, and physiological optics, in theoretical and practical optometry, and in the anatomy, physiology, and pathology of the eye as applied to optometry. Every candidate successfully passing examination shall be registered by the Board as possessing the qualifications required by this Act, and shall receive from said Board a license which, when registered with the county clerk, as provided, shall entitle the person so examined and licensed to practice optometry in this State; provided that the Board shall have authority, at its discretion to recognize the license which as been issued, after full examination, by State Board of Examiners in Optometry of other states having a standard of education in optometry satisfactory to the Texas State Board of Examiners in Optometry and may issue to such persons a license to practice optometry in Texas, or in its discretion, may admit for full examination any person presenting an unrevoked certificate of examination from the Board of Examiners of any other State.

When a license or certificate is issued it shall be numbered and recorded in a book kept by the secretary of the Board and its number shall be noted upon the respective documents. The Board shall charge a fee of $15.00 for examining an applicant for license, which fee must accompany the application for examination. Such applicant shall be given due notice of the date and place of examination. In case an applicant, because of failure to pass examination, be refused a license, such applicant shall, after six months, be permitted to take a second examination without additional fee. The fee for issuing a license or certificate shall be $5.00, to be paid to the secretary of the Board. The fund realized from the aforesaid fees shall first be applied to the payment of all necessary expenses of the Board and remaining fund shall be applied, by order of the Board, to compensating members of the Board in proportion to their labors, provided said compensation shall in no case exceed $20.00 per day for the time occupied. [Id., § 11.]

Art. 5763½k. Examinations how conducted; disqualification for license.—All examinations shall be conducted in writing and by such other means as the Board shall determine adequate for the ascertainment of the qualifications of applicants and in such manner as shall be entirely fair and impartial to all individuals and every recognized school of optometry. All applicants examined at the same time shall be given identical questions. No person taking the examination contemplated herein shall be approved by the Board until the Board is satisfied that the applicant has the necessary knowledge to practice optometry. The Board may refuse to admit persons to its examination or to issue licenses provided for in this Act for any of the following reasons:

First. The presentation to the Board of any untrue statement or any document or testimony which was illegally or fraudulently obtained, or when fraud or deceit has been practiced in passing the examination.

Second. Conviction of a crime of the grade of felony, or one which involves moral turpitude.

Third. Other grossly unprofessional or dishonorable conduct of a character likely to deceive or defraud the public; or for habits of intemperance or drug addiction, provided any applicant who may be refused admittance to examination before said Board or be refused a license, after legal notice and a full and impartial hearing, shall have his right of action to have such issue tried in the district court of any county in which one of the members of the Board shall reside. [Id., § 12.]

Art. 5763 $\frac{1}{2}$ l. District Court may revoke licenses.—The right herein to practice optometry in this State may be revoked by any district court upon proof of the violation of the law in any respect in regard thereto, or for any cause for which the State Board of Examiners in Optometry is authorized to refuse to admit persons to examination or to issue licenses as provided in Section 12 of this Act [Art. 5763 $\frac{1}{2}$ k], and it shall be the duty of the several district and county attorneys of this State to file and prosecute proceedings in the name of the State upon request of any member of said Board. [Id., § 13.]

Art. 5763 $\frac{1}{2}$ m. Display of license.—Every person practicing optometry in this State shall display his license or certificate in a conspicuous place in the principal office where he practices optometry, and, whenever required, exhibit such license or certificate to said Board of Examiners, or its authorized representative, and whenever practicing said profession of optometry outside of, or away from said office, or place of business, he shall deliver to each client or person fitted with glasses a bill of purchase, or sale, which shall contain his signature, post-office address, and number of his license, or certificate, together with a specification of the lenses and material furnished and the prices charged for such lenses and material respectively. [Id., § 14.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 15 imposes a criminal penalty and is set forth, post, as art. 770 $\frac{1}{2}$ , Penal Code.

Art. 5763 $\frac{1}{2}$ n. Sellers of spectacles as merchandise not within act.—Nothing in this Act shall be construed to apply to persons who sell spectacles and eye-glasses as merchandise and those who fit glasses for their customers; officers or agents of the United States or the State of Texas in the discharge of their official duties. [Id., § 16.]

Art. 5763 $\frac{1}{2}$ o. Scope of license.—Nothing in this Act shall be construed as giving authority to use, prescribe, sell or offer for sale any eye lotions, salves, or medicines of any kind or description, practice medicine and surgery within the provisions of Chapter XCCIII, Acts of the Thirtieth Texas Legislature [Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 5733–5747; Vernon's Ann. Pen. Code, 1916, arts. 750–756], or as conferring any title or appellation in a sense to indicate the practice of medicine and providing that the title of Optometrist or practice, as defined in Section 1 of this Act [Art. 5763 $\frac{1}{2}$ ], shall not be construed as practicing medicine or surgery or indicating the practice of medicine or surgery. [Id., § 17.]

Sec. 18 repeals all laws in conflict.

Art. 5763 $\frac{1}{2}$ p. Partial invalidity.—That if any of the provisions of this Act shall be held to be unconstitutional or invalid, such unconstitutionality or invalidity shall in no way affect the constitutionality or validity of any portion of this Act which may be given reasonable effect without the provisions so declared unconstitutional or invalid. [Id., § 19.]

TITLE 91*MILITIA

Chap.

2. Reserve militia.

Chap.

3. National guard.

CHAPTER TWO*RESERVE MILITIA*Article 5776. Power of governor to call out militia.

Review by courts.—Under the authority conferred on the Governor by Const. Tex. art. 4, §§ 7, 10, and this article, to call out the militia to enforce the laws in case of riot, or breach of the peace, or imminent danger thereof, the determination of whether such conditions exist is solely for the Governor, and his decision is not reviewable by the courts. United States v. Wolters (D. C.) 268 Fed. 69.

CHAPTER THREE*NATIONAL GUARD*ADJUTANT GENERAL*Article 5787.

Explanatory.—This article is superseded as to the salary of the Adjutant General by art. 7054, post.

TITLE 92*MILL PRODUCTS*Article 5894. Packages, how marked; standard weights.

Express warranty.—Notwithstanding the provisions of these and the following articles, the seller of cotton seed meal for stock feed is liable on an express warranty of soundness and prime quality. Kincannon & Gaines v. Independent Cotton Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 378.

TITLE 93

MINES AND MINING

CHAPTER ONE

MINING CLAIMS, PERMITS AND LEASES

- Art.
5904. Lands open to prospecting for minerals.
5904a. Persons entitled to prospect for minerals; rules.
5904b. Application for right to prospect for petroleum oil and natural gas in surveyed lands; amount and location of lands.
5904c. Permit to prospect for petroleum and gas in unsurveyed lands; number of acres.
5904d. Issuance of permit to prospect for oil and gas.
5904dd. Revival and extension of permits on lands owned by the state.
5904ddd. Same; annual payments to state; offset wells; resumption of drilling.
5904dddd. Same; forfeiture of permit.
5904e. Development work for petroleum and gas; filing statement in General Land Office; forfeiture; removal of product before obtaining lease, prohibited.
5904f. [Repealed.]
5904f1. Permits on school and university lands revived and extended.
5904f2. Same; annual payments to state; offset wells; resumption of drilling.
5904f3. Same; forfeiture.
5904f4. Same; application for lease; terms of lease.
5904f5. Affidavit by owner of expired permit.
5904f6. Same; not applicable to land sold.
5904g-5904k. [Repealed.]
5904k1. Lands included; oil, natural gas, coal, and lignite excluded.
5904k2. Extent and shape of claims; superficial areas.
5904k3. Location notice; posting; temporary monuments; permanent monuments; interference with notice or monuments.
5904k4. Application for survey of claim; contents; filing fee; award for claim; monuments.
5904k5. Survey of claim; boundaries; location and marking of corners; field notes and plat; compensation of surveyor.
5904k6. Rights of locator; assessment work.
5904k7. Separate or joint locations; rights and liabilities of co-owners.
5904k8. Forfeiture of claim; relocation.
5904k9. Purchase price; assessment work; royalties.
5904k10. Other lands included.
5904k11. Surface rights of locator; rights of way.
5904k12. Sale of land without minerals; discovery of other minerals.
5904k13. Partial invalidity of act.
5904k14. Repeal.
- LEASE OF LANDS FOR PRODUCTION OF OIL AND NATURAL GAS
Art.
5904o1. Lands included.
5904o2. Rental and royalties; amount.
5904o3. Advertisement of areas.
5904o4. Applications for separate areas; lease; term.
5904o5. Surveyed and unsurveyed areas.
5904o6. Royalties; payment; books and accounts.
5904o7. Royalties and other sums due; where and to whom paid; disposition of.
5904o8. Lien of state for royalties, etc.
5904o9. Offset wells.
5904o10. Pollution of waters.
5904o11. Transfer or relinquishment of lease.
5904o12. Forfeiture of lease.
5904o13. Right of way for entry, etc., onto land.
5904o14. Prior rights.
5904o15. Repeal.
- OIL AND NATURAL GAS ON SURVEYED FREE SCHOOL AND ASYLUM LANDS
5904o16. Owners of soil constituted agents of state; relinquishment to owners of undivided part of oil and gas; remainder reserved for public free school fund and asylum funds.
5904o17. Sale or lease of oil or gas by owners of land; terms and conditions; minimum price and royalties; rentals; payments to state.
5904o18. Offset wells on lands not included in act; requirements as to drilling.
5904o19. Same; failure or refusal to drill or develop such wells; relinquishment forfeited.
5904o20. Same; sale of oil and gas on forfeiture of relinquishment; price, etc.
5904o21. Payments of value of gross production of oil and gas to state and owners of soil; books, accounts, etc.
5904o22. Amounts due state, where and to whom paid.
5904o23. Lien of state on wells to secure payment of amounts due.
5904o24. Failure or refusal to pay amounts due; false returns or reports; refusal of or giving false information; forfeiture of rights acquired under permit or lease.
5904o25. Relinquishments to owners of soil subject to rights under permits to prospect for oil and gas already existing or hereafter granted.

Art.
5904o26. Subsequent purchasers of unsold public free school or asylum lands for which prospecting permits have issued.

5904o27. Permits; assignment; record of.

5904o28. Permittees to begin drilling well, when; limitation of time for completing development of wells.

5904o29. Report of development of well by permittee; application for lease: log of well or wells; issue of lease.

5904o30. Royalties payable by permittee to state and owners of soil.

5904o31. Relinquishment of permits.

5904o32. Retroactive operation of act.

5904o33. Damage to soil.

5904o34. Laws relating to permits continued in force.

DEVELOPMENT AREAS

Art.
5904o35. Designation of development areas.

5904o36. Designation shall continue permits in force; development.

5904o37. Lease issued in case oil or gas is discovered; relinquishments.

5904o38. Does not apply to school land.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

5904p. Definitions and requirements; abandonment or relinquishment.

5904q. Disposition of proceeds.

5904qq. Transfer of moneys in game, fish and oyster fund to school fund.

5904s. Forfeiture of rights under permit or lease.

Article 5904. [3498a] Lands open to prospecting for minerals.

Explanatory.—Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 83, is repealed by Acts 1919, 36th Leg., 2d C. S., ch. 19, § 15, in so far as the former act relates to "islands, salt water lakes, bays, inlets, marshes, and reefs owned by the state within tidewater limits, and that portion of the Gulf of Mexico within the jurisdiction of Texas, and the unsurveyed public free school lands." See arts. 5904o1 to 5904o15, post.

See Prairie Oil & Gas Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 363; Fox v. Robinson (Sup.) 229 S. W. 456, 458.

Construction and operation in general.—This act does not ipso facto work forfeiture of mineral rights in school lands, and other applicants cannot file until Commissioner of General Land Office has indorsed termination upon duplicate of permit retained in his office. Underwood v. Robison, 109 Tex. 228, 204 S. W. 314.

A purchaser from the state of school land, not known to contain minerals, but fairly and in good faith classified and sold without reservation as agricultural land by the duly authorized state authorities, acquired title to minerals which might be thereafter discovered, and relator is not entitled to a permit to prospect on the land for oil and gas, in view of art. 4041, validating title to minerals. Greene v. Robison, 109 Tex. 367, 210 S. W. 498.

Oil produced from wells is a "mineral" substance. Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Co. v. Howard (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 735.

Art. 5904a. Persons entitled to prospect for minerals; rules.

See note under art. 5904, as to partial repeal.
Cited, Fox v. Robinson (Sup.) 229 S. W. 456.

Art. 5904b. Application for right to prospect for petroleum oil and natural gas in surveyed lands; amount and location of lands.

See note under art. 5904, as to partial repeal.
Cited, Fox v. Robinson (Sup.) 229 S. W. 456.

Construction and operation in general.—The report of the board of appraisers as authorized by arts. 5423a-5423c, that the proper classification of certain school land was grazing land, was not record evidence that the land was ever classified and sold as grazing land, so that it was not within the provisions of this article. Johnson v. Sunshine Oil Corporation (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 698.

Right to permit.—Proper filing, under this or the following article in accord with the character of the land, is essential to the right to a permit. Wagner v. Robison, 109 Tex. 114, 201 S. W. 171.

Where a certain area had been lawfully surveyed in virtue of an application made under the act, but upon which no permit issued, the field notes being approved by the commissioner and filed in the land office, the commissioner was authorized to treat the area, as respects a later application, as "surveyed land" within the meaning of the act. Sibley v. Robison, 110 Tex. 1, 212 S. W. 932.

The actual survey of the bed of a navigable stream by county surveyor under application for the right to prospect and develop petroleum in such land, did not make such land "surveyed land," since the survey, having been made under former statute which did not open up such land to prospecting for petroleum, was void. Landry v. Robison, 110 Tex. 295, 219 S. W. 819.

Where school land was awarded to a private purchaser, whose application represented that he was buying it for agricultural or grazing purposes only, and that, if it was classed as mineral, the sale was on the express condition the minerals should be reserved to the school fund, the state had authority to grant a permit to prospect for oil and gas thereon to one other than such purchaser's successor. Johnson v. Sunshine Oil Corporation (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 698.

Application.—Separate applications for oil and mineral permits for state lands may be filed simultaneously. Jones v. MacCorquodale (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 59, 62; Same v. Maes (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 62.

An application to the Land Commissioner for a permit to prospect for oil and gas which describes the land by section number, block number, and township, found in the county to the clerk of which the application is addressed, is sufficient to identify the land. Johnson v. Sunshine Oil Corporation (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 698.

Art. 5904c. Permit to prospect for petroleum and gas in unsurveyed lands; number of acres.

See note under art. 5904, as to partial repeal.

See Redus v. Blucher (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 613

Right to permit.—Proper filing, under this or the preceding article in accord with the character of the land, is essential to the right to a permit. Wagner v. Robison, 109 Tex. 114, 201 S. W. 171.

Art. 5904d. Issuance of permit to prospect for oil and gas.

See note under art. 5904, as to partial repeal.

Art. 5904dd. Revival and extension of permits on lands owned by the state.—That all permits to prospect for oil and gas heretofore issued under the Mineral Act of 1917 on islands, salt water lakes, bays, inlets, marshes and reefs owned by the State of Texas within tide water limits and that portion of the Gulf of Mexico within the jurisdiction of Texas and which permits have not been canceled and on which as many as two annual payments of rental have been made to the State be and they are hereby revived and extended so that they shall remain in full force and effect for a period of five years from the date of the issuance of the permits conditioned only upon compliance with the terms of this Act. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 58, § 1; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., 1st C. S., ch. 24, § 1.]

Took effect Nov. 15, 1921.

Art. 5904ddd. Same; annual payments to state; offset wells; resumption of drilling.—The owner of a permit included in this Act shall pay to the State annually in advance during the life of the permit, ten cents for each acre included therein, and if there should be any payments past due under the terms of the original permit, such sum shall be paid within sixty days after this Act becomes effective and if not so paid, the term of such permit shall not be extended herein. The Commissioner of the General Land Office may, when necessity occasions, direct the owner of a permit included in this Act to drill such offset well or wells as may be necessary for the protection of the State's interest in the area included herein. The owner of a permit revived and extended herein on which the drilling of a well had been begun, shall resume such drilling in good faith within such reasonable time after the taking effect of this Act as may be fixed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office and continue same diligently and in good faith. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 58, § 2.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Art. 5904dddd. Same; forfeiture of permit.—The failure to make the payment of the ten cents per acre within the time prescribed herein for past due payments or the failure to make future annual payments within thirty days after same becomes due, or the failure to drill such offset well or wells as may be directed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and when sufficiently informed of the facts which render the permit subject to forfeiture the said Commissioner shall forfeit such permit by an endorsement upon the wrapper in the General Land Office containing the papers relating thereto and sign it officially. A notice of such forfeiture shall be mailed to the clerk of the county in which such area is situated and when such notice has been received by said clerk, the area shall again be subject to be acquired in the manner then provided by the law relating to such area. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5904e. Development work for petroleum and gas; filing statement in General Land Office; forfeiture; removal of product before obtaining lease, prohibited.

See note under art. 5904, as to partial repeal.

Relinquishment.—Where one has been granted a two-year permit to develop an area for oil and gas, a relinquishment filed by him is equivalent to an abandonment and refusal to proceed with reasonable diligence and he cannot immediately refile on the land, notwithstanding art. 5920c. Fox v. Robinson (Sup.) 229 S. W. 456.

Art. 5904f.

See note under art. 5904, as to partial repeal.

Art. 5904f1. Permits on school and university lands revived and extended.—That all permits to prospect for oil and gas, heretofore issued on University land, and Public School land which is unsold at the time this Act goes into effect, river beds or channels and fresh water lakes and islands therein, and which have not expired, be and they are hereby extended so that they shall remain in full force and effect for a period of five years from the date of the issuance of the permit, conditioned only upon compliance with the terms of this Act. And that all permits to prospect for oil and gas, heretofore issued on said land and areas and all permits heretofore issued after the Mineral Act of 1917 went into effect on salt water lakes, bays, inlets, marshes, reefs, and islands owned by the State within tide water limits and that portion of the Gulf of Mexico within the jurisdiction of Texas, which have expired at the time this Act goes into effect, but on which the drilling of a well or wells, has been begun in good faith, or with reference to which permits and the right of the owner of the same to the possession of the area included therein bona fide litigation has existed during the whole or a part of the term of the permit, be and the same are hereby revived and extended so that they shall remain in full force and effect for a period of five years from the date of the issuance of the permit, conditioned only upon compliance with the terms of this Act. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 6, § 1.]

Art. 5904f2. Same; annual payments to state; offset wells; resumption of drilling.—The owner of a permit included in this Act shall pay to the State annually in advance during the life of the permit ten cents for each acre included therein and if there should be any payments past due under the terms of the original permit such sum shall be paid within sixty days after this Act becomes effective and if not so paid the term of such permit shall not be extended herein. The Commissioner of the General Land Office may, when necessity occasions, direct the owner of a permit included in this Act to drill such offset well or wells as may be necessary for the protection of the State's interest in the area included herein. The owner of a permit revived and extended herein on which the drilling of a well had been begun shall resume such drilling in good faith within such reasonable time after the taking effect of this Act as may be fixed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office and continue same diligently and in good faith. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 5904f3. Same; forfeiture.—The failure to make the payment of the ten cents per acre within the time prescribed herein for past due payments or the failure to make future annual payments within thirty days after same become due or the failure to drill such offset well or wells as may be directed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office or the failure to resume drilling in good faith on expired permits which are received and extended herein within such reasonable time as may be fixed by the said Commissioner or the failure to continue such drilling diligently and in good faith, shall subject the permit to forfeiture by the Commissioner of the General Land Office and when sufficiently informed of the facts which render the permit subject to forfeiture the said commissioner shall forfeit such permit by an endorsement upon the wrapper in the General Land Office containing the papers relating thereto and sign it officially. A notice of such forfeiture shall be mailed to the clerk of the county in which such area is situated, and when such notice has been received by said clerk, the area shall again be subject to be acquired in the manner then provided by the law relating to such area. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5904f4. Same; application for lease; terms of lease.—If oil or gas should be produced in paying quantities upon the area included in any of the permits included in this Act, the owner of the permit shall report the development to the Commissioner of the General Land Office within thirty days thereafter, and apply for a lease, accompanying the application with a correct log of the well or wells, and thereupon a lease shall be issued without the payment of any additional sum of money and for a period not to exceed ten years, subject to renewal or renewals. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 5904f5. Affidavit by owner of expired permit.—The owner of a permit which has expired at the time this Act goes into effect shall file in the General Land Office, within sixty days after this Act goes into effect, his affidavit showing the facts with reference to the beginning of the drilling of a well or the pendency of litigation, and in event such owner fails to file such affidavit within said time he shall not be entitled to the benefits of this Act. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 5904f6. Same; not applicable to land sold.—Nothing in this Act shall be construed to apply to permits heretofore issued upon any public free school land that has heretofore been sold and which sales are now in force. [Id., § 6.]

Arts. 5904g–5904k.

See note under art. 5904, as to partial repeal.

Art. 5904k1. Lands included; oil, natural gas, coal, and lignite excluded.—All valuable mineral bearing deposits, placers, veins, lodes and rock carrying metallic or non-metallic substances of value except oil, natural gas, coal and lignite that may be in any public free school land, University land, Asylum land, which has heretofore been sold with a reservation of mineral therein and all of said substances that may be in or upon said land that was purchased with the relinquishment of the mineral therein, and all lands of which the mineral rights therein have reverted to the State of Texas as the Sovereign Government and all of said substances that may be in or upon any other public land including islands and river beds and channels, which belong to the State shall be included in this Act and subject to sale as provided herein, together with such rules as the commissioner of the General Land Office may prescribe not inconsistent with the provision hereof. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 79, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 5904k2. Extent and shape of claims; superficial areas.—A mining claim upon mineral lands as described under Section 1 of this Act [Art. 5904k1] may equal, but shall not exceed 1500 feet in length and 600 feet in width. Such claims may be of unlimited depth, but shall be bounded by four vertical planes from the side and end lines. All claims shall be in the form of a parallelogram unless such form is prevented by adjoining rights and the locator shall be entitled to the use of all superficial area bounded by the enclosed lines of the claim and to all minerals therein except coal, natural gas, oil and lignite, upon the terms hereinafter provided. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 5904k3. Location notice; posting; temporary monuments; permanent monuments; interference with notice or monuments.—The locator of any mining claim as described under the preceding section of this Act shall post up at the center of one of the end lines of the claim a written notice giving the name of the locator and of the claim, and date of posting and shall describe the claim by giving the number of feet in length, width and approximate directions the claim lies in length from the notice, together with the section number, if known, and the county, and shall place temporary posts, or stone markers at the four approximate corners of the claim at the time of making the location. The temporary monuments shall be replaced by permanent monuments at the four corners as given by the county surveyor within one hundred days after the issue of award to said claim. These permanent monuments shall be of timber posts four inches, or equivalent, or of stone or concrete and shall be not less than three feet high. The location notice shall be posted in a conspicuous manner so that it can be easily seen. In all conflicts, priority of location shall decide. Anyone interfering with, removing or destroying any monument, post or notice of any locator shall be subject to a fine of not to exceed $100 or 30 days in jail, either or both, and it shall be the duty of the district judges in the respective judicial districts of Texas, to charge the grand juries with an investigation of such offenses. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5904k4. Application for survey of claim; contents; filing fee; award for claim; monuments.—The locator shall within thirty days after posting the required notice, file with the county surveyor of the county in which the land or a part thereof is situated an application in writing for the survey of the claim. Such application shall be accompanied by One Dollar ($1.00) as a filing fee, and the application shall be recorded by the surveyor. The application shall give the name of the claim and the locator and such description of the boundary and location as will enable the surveyor to identify the area of the land. Within one hundred days after the application has been filed with the surveyor the application and field notes for the area applied for shall be filed in the General Land Office accompanied by One Dollar ($1.00) as a filing fee. When the application has been considered and all things have been in compliance with the Law, the Commissioner shall issue to the applicant an award for the area, and within one hundred days thereafter the owner shall erect the monuments provided for in Section 3 [Art. 5904k3]. Nothing in this Section shall be construed to interfere with the right of the locator to proceed with the development and operation of the property from and after the posting of the location, provided such operation does not conflict with the mineral rights of a prior locator or owner. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 5904k5. Survey of claim; boundaries; location and marking of corners; field notes and plat; compensation of surveyor.—In making the survey, it shall be obligatory on the surveyor that he locate and mark the corners of the claim on the ground as described in the location notice and that he shall determine the direction and distance to a corner of a section on which the claim is located, that he shall also determine the direction and distance to some prominent and permanent land mark other than a section corner which may serve as a mineral monument or marker and in the event of any conflict, this direction and distance to said prominent and permanent land mark shall have priority over all other distances and directions in serving to locate the mining claim. In making a record on the field notes and plat of the survey the directions and distances herein required shall be incorporated in and made a part of the record. For services rendered under this Act a surveyor shall not charge exceeding Ten ($10.00) Dollars per day. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 5904k6. Rights of locator; assessment work.—After the date of an award the owner shall have the exclusive right to the possession and use of the minerals within the area of the claim so long as he shall continue to do the annual assessment work or cause it to be done consisting of excavation in the form of a shaft or a tunnel or an open cut to the extent of ten feet in depth or length and at least four feet by five feet for the other dimensions for each claim. If an award shall be issued prior to the first day of October of any year the first annual assessment work shall be done before the end of that calendar year and during the month of January following, such owner shall file in the General Land Office his affidavit that such work has been done and shall state of what it consisted. Such owner of the minerals in such area shall during the next calendar year beginning January 1st, next after the date of such award, perform or cause to be performed, the required annual assessment work and file an affidavit thereof as in the first instance in the General Land Office during January of each succeeding year. All the assessment work for a group of claims may be done on one claim if such claims be contiguous. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 5904k7. Separate or joint locations; rights and liabilities of co-owners.—Said mining claim or claims may be filed upon by one or more persons as provided for herein, separately or jointly, and if any mining claim of any character shall be filed upon jointly by two or more locators and any one or more them shall fail to pay his part of the annual rentals when due, or fail to contribute his proportion of any expenses or assessment work required in this Act within the required time, the co-owners paying their proportional part of said rentals, expenses and assessment work shall not be prejudiced thereby in their interest or title in said claim, but the right, interest, title and claim of such co-owner so defaulting shall ipso facto cease and terminate, and the same shall revert thereupon to the State or the fund to which it originally belonged. The co-owners so paying as required herein shall after such forfeitures, have the prior and preference right for ninety days thereafter, to make the delinquent payments of rentals and expenses and to do the required assessment work required of said delinquent co-owner, or finish making the payment and doing such assessment work, if any had been previously done by said delinquent co-owner, upon making of payment and doing said work as required herein by said co-owners within said ninety days, he or they shall have thirty days, after the expiration of said ninety days, within which to make affidavit to the Commissioner of the General Land Office to the effect that all of said provisions had been carried out and said work done within said time, and for the location thereon by said co-owner or co-owners of his or their mining claim covering the interest so forfeited in the same manner as if no location had ever been made by said forfeiting owner thereon. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 5904k8. Forfeiture of claim; relocation.—Failure of the locator or owner of any claim or claims to comply with any provisions of this Act prior to receiving patent thereto, shall constitute an ipso facto forfeiture of all his rights in the claim, and the claim shall be open to location by others as prescribed in this Act, the same as if no location had ever been made. Any claim which shall have been forfeited by any locator or locators, owner or owners, shall not be relocated either in whole or in part by such forfeiting locator or owner within a period of six months from time of forfeiture. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 5904k9. Purchase price; assessment work; royalties.—All sales under this Act shall be upon the further condition that the applicant for the minerals in any claim shall pay the sum of fifty cents per acre, which sum shall be paid annually in advance after the award of the area and during the month of each succeeding January of each year thereafter, also upon the condition that the owner shall perform or cause to be performed the annual assessment work as provided for, and in addition thereto, pay 2 per cent royalty upon the production of such claim as shown by the net smelter, mill, mint, or refinery returns or of the sums arising from the sale of the ore or products from the claim, and received by the owner. Royalty payments arising from the sale of ores, mineral, or other products, shall be due quarterly in January, April, July and October for the quarters preceding the months and shall be accompanied by affidavit of owners, showing amounts of money received during the quarter from the sale of ore or other products and accompanied by copies of smelter or mint, mill or refinery returns or other documents setting forth the amounts received by the owner. The royalties and annual payments shall be paid to the State through the Commissioner of the General Land Office at Austin. The annual payments of 50 cents per acre shall apply on the purchase price of the claim. The owner shall have the right at any time after five years from the date of the award, to pay the balance due on the purchase price of the claim and obtain a patent thereto and after the issuance of the patent no further assessment work shall be required. The purchase price shall be Ten ($10.00) Dollars per acre. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 5904k10. Other lands included.—All State land belonging to or under the jurisdiction and control of the Prison Commission of this State, or the Board of Trustees for the State Institution for the Training of Juveniles, and all other farms belonging to the State and administered by other Boards, shall become subject to the provisions of this Act; but with the express reservation that in sales of the mineral rights in or under such farms, the annual payments and the royalties shall be made so long as the purchasers of said rights shall desire to operate their respective claims; and in no event shall a patent issue upon any claim filed upon any such farms belonging to the State, and all rights of the claimant to any land or filings hereunder, shall terminate upon permanent cessation by such claimant of operation under such claim. [Id., § 9a.]

Art. 5904k11. Surface rights of locator; rights of way.—The locator or owner of a mining claim shall have the right to occupy within the limits of his claim so much of the surface ground as is strictly necessary for the use and exploration of the mineral deposits and for the building and works necessary for mining operations and for the treating and smelting of the ore produced on such claims and to occupy within and without the limits of his claim the necessary land for right of way, for ingress and egress to and from his claim, for roadways or railways; provided that if the locator or owner of the mineral right cannot agree with the owner or lessee of the surface right in regard to the acquiring of same and in regard to the compensation for the injury incident to the opening and the working of such mine and the access thereto, he may apply to the judge of the county court of the County in which such mining claim is located by filing a written petition setting forth with a sufficient description the property and surface right sought to be taken and the purpose for which the same is to be taken and it shall be the duty of such County Judge of such County to appoint three disinterested freeholders to examine, pass upon and determine the damages and compensation to be paid to the owner of such surface right or other property necessary to be taken, and the proceedings for acquiring or condemning such surface right or other property shall, at all times, so far as possible, be covered by the laws relating to the condemnation of rights of way for railway companies, locator or owner of such mining claim, occupying the position of the railway company, and an appeal may be taken from the decision of the Commissioners upon the same terms and conditions and subject to the same regulations and qualifications prescribed by law for the condemnation of right-of-way for railways. Nothing in this section shall be construed as giving the prospector, or locator any grazing right or rights to any surface or well water in use for livestock or to any timber rights either on or off the claim located to the detriment of the surface owner or lessee. In case minerals are produced upon the claim or claims provided for herein, then whether same be worked as a claim or sold and patented to the purchaser thereof, said 2 per cent royalty upon the production of such claim shall be perpetual, and payable as provided for herein. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 5904k12. Sale of land without minerals; discovery of other minerals.—The issuance of an award of the filing of a prospector's location on unsold land included within this Act, shall not prevent the sale of the land without minerals on which such mineral or mining claim may be located under the laws applicable to such land, but in case of such sale after an application has been filed with the Commissioner of the Land Office as herein provided the purchaser of such land shall not be entitled to any part of the proceeds of such minerals or mining location nor other compensation, nor shall such purchaser have any action for damages done to such land by or resulting from the proper working of or operation under such award of prospector's location. Should any mineral or substance within the provisions of this Act, other than those included in the permit or lease, under which one is operating be discovered while the area is being worked, for the mineral and substances embraced in such permit or lease, the owner thereof shall have a preference right for 60 (sixty) days after such discovery in which to file on the area allowed one for such minerals or other substances by complying with the provisions of this Act, relating to the mineral or substances discovered. [Id., § 11.]

Art. 5904k13. Partial invalidity of act.—If any provisions of this bill be held to be unconstitutional either as applied to any character of land described in Section 1 [art. 5904k1] or in any other respect, such decision shall not be construed to invalidate the provision of this Act with regard to any other character of land described in Section 1 or any other provision of this Act. [Id., § 12.]

Art. 5904k14. Repeal.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed. [Id., § 13.]

LEASE OF LANDS FOR PRODUCTION OF OIL AND NATURAL GAS

Art. 590401. Lands included.—All islands, salt water lakes, bays, inlets, marshes and reefs owned by the State within tide water limits, and that portion of the Gulf of Mexico within the jurisdiction of Texas, and the unsurveyed public free school lands shall be included herein and shall be subject to lease by the Commissioner of the General Land Office to any person, firm, or corporation for the production of oil and natural gas that may be therein or thereunder in accordance with the provisions of this Act, and such rules and regulations as may be adopted by said Commissioners as being necessary to the proper execution of its purposes. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., 2d C. S., ch. ~~16~~ § 1.]

Took effect July 23, 1919.

Art. 590402. Rental and royalties; amount.—The areas included herein shall be leased for one-eighth of the gross production of oil, or the value of same, that may be produced and saved and one-eighth of the gross production of gas, or the value of same, that may be produced and sold off of the area, and ten cents per acre in advance for the first year and thereafter in advance an additional sum of twenty-five cents per acre for the second year, and fifty cents per acre for the third year and one dollar per acre for each and every year thereafter, not to exceed ten years, that the owner of the lease shall desire to hold the rights granted therein, and until production is secured in commercial quantities, and in addition thereto such sum of money, if any, that one may pay therefor; provided, whenever production shall have been secured in commercial quantities, and the payment of royalty begins and continues to be paid, as provided herein, the owner shall be exempt from further annual payments on the acreage. If production should cease and royalty not be paid, the owner of the lease shall, at the end of the lease year in which royalty ceased to be paid, and annually thereafter in advance pay one dollar per acre so long as such owner may desire to maintain the rights acquired under the lease not to exceed ten years from the date of said lease. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 590403. Advertisement of areas.—The Commissioner of the General Land Office shall fix the day and hour when an area or areas will be subject to lease and he shall advertise or readvertise such area or areas at least thirty days before such lease date, except as elsewhere provided in the event of tie bids. If there should be no other sufficient means for giving the necessary publicity as to what areas will be subject to lease and the time when applications may be filed the Commissioner shall have lists of such areas printed for free distribution at the expense of the State which expense shall be paid out of the appropriation for public printing. Such lists shall contain a brief designation of the areas subject to lease and the terms upon which they may be leased and the time when applications therefor may be filed in the General Land Office. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 590404. Applications for separate areas; lease; term.—Applications for separate areas and the first payment of ten cents per acre and the sum offered in addition thereto, if any, for any area shall be delivered into the General Land Office on or before the day and hour on which the area will be subject to lease in sealed envelopes on which shall be endorsed in substance "Application to lease Minerals," and in addition thereto the date the area will be subject to lease. All envelopes so endorsed shall be securely kept by the Commissioner or his Chief Clerk unopened until the date on which applications are to be opened and at said hour either or both of them shall begin to open the envelopes in the presence of such persons as may desire to be present. All applications received up to the opening hour whether open or sealed, endorsed or not endorsed, shall be considered as properly delivered into the General Land Office. An application which includes two or more areas or is for a price less than the fixed royalty and price per acre shall be void. When an application shall have been filed and considered and the area found to be subject to lease, the lease shall be issued for a term not to exceed twenty-five years to the applicant that pays the most, if any sum, for the area in addition to the fixed price per acre and the stipulated royalty. If production should not be secured in ten years the lease shall terminate and the area again be subject to lease as in the first instance. A duplicate of the lease shall be kept on file in the General Land Office. If two or more persons should offer the same price for the same area and the same should be the highest price offered, all shall be rejected and a date fixed within the discretion of the Commissioner, but not later than the fifteenth day of the following month, when the area will be subject to lease as in the first instance; provided, if the time so fixed should be a date prior to the said fifteenth day of the next month an application at a price less than the former sum offered shall not be considered. All sums paid upon rejected applications shall be returned by the State Treasurer. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 5904o5. Surveyed and unsurveyed areas.—For the purpose of executing the provisions of this Act to the best interest of the State the Commissioner of the General Land Office may recognize or decline to recognize any survey or surveys heretofore made of any area included herein. Such survey as may be so recognized shall be advertised and shall be subject to lease as a whole. Such surveys as may not be so recognized shall be deemed, together with all adjacent unsurveyed areas, as one unsurveyed area, and the said Commissioner shall advertise the whole or designated portions thereof for lease, and such whole area or designated portions thereof as may be so advertised shall be subject to lease as a whole according to the advertisement; provided, field notes for such unsurveyed area may, in the discretion of the Commissioner, be required before a lease is issued therefor. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 5904o6. Royalties; payment; books and accounts.—Royalty equal to one-eighth of the value of the gross production, as herein, provided, shall be paid to the State on or before the twentieth day of each month for the preceding month during the life of the lease, and it shall be accompanied by the sworn statement of the owner, manager, or other authorized agent, showing the gross amount of oil produced and saved since the last report, and the amount of gas produced and sold off the area, and the market value of the oil and gas together with a copy of all daily guages of tanks, gas meter readings, if any, pipe line receipts, gas line receipts and other checks or memoranda of amount produced and put into pipe lines, tanks, or pools, and gas lines or gas storage. The books and accounts, the receipts and discharges of all lines, tanks, pools and meters, and all contracts and other records pertaining to the production, transportation, sale and marketing of the oil and gas shall at all times be subject to inspection and examination by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, the Attorney General, the Governor, or the representative of either. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 5904o7. Royalties and other sums due; where and to whom paid; disposition of.—Royalty and all other sums shall be due and payable to the State at Austin, Texas, and shall be paid to the Commissioner of the General Land Office and he shall transmit all remittances in the form received to the State Treasurer who shall credit the permanent free school fund with all amounts received from the unsurveyed school lands and with two-thirds of the amount so received from other areas and shall credit the general revenue fund with the remaining one-third from said other areas. All payments shall be in the form of cash, bank draft on some State or National Bank in Texas, or Post-Office or Express money order, or such other form as may be prescribed by law, for making remittances to the State Treasury. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 5904o8. Lien of state for royalties, etc.—The State shall have a first lien upon all oil and gas produced upon any lease area to secure the payment of all unpaid royalty and other sum or sums of money that may be due and become due under the provisions of this Act. -[Id., § 8.]

Art. 5904o9. Offset wells.—If oil or gas should be produced in commercial quantities in a well on an area privately owned which well should be within one thousand feet of an area leased under this Act, the owner of the lease on such State area shall, within sixty days after the initial production on such privately owned area, begin in good faith and prosecute diligently the drilling of an offset well or wells on the area so leased from the State and such offset well or wells shall be drilled to such depth and use such means as may be necessary to prevent the undue drainage of oil or gas from beneath such State area. A log of each well, whether producer or non-producer, shall be filed in the General Land Office within thirty days after the well has been completed or abandoned. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 5904o10. Pollution of waters.—The development of wells and the development and operation upon the areas included herein shall be done so far as practicable in such manner as to prevent such pollution of the water as will destroy fish, oysters and other sea food and it shall be the duty of the Game, Fish & Oyster Commissioner to enforce such rules and regulations as may be prescribed for that purpose by the Commissioner of the General Land Office. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 5904o11. Transfer or relinquishment of lease.—One may transfer his lease at any time and such transfer shall be recorded in the County or counties in which the area or part thereof is situated and within ninety days after the date of its execution the recorded transfer or certified copy of same shall be filed in the General Land Office accompanied by one dollar as filing fee, and thereby the assignee shall succeed to all the rights and be subject to all the obligations and penalties of the original lessee. An owner may relinquish his lease to the State at any time by having the relinquishment recorded in the county or counties in which the area or part thereof is situated and within ninety days after the date of its execution the recorded relinquishment or certified copy of same shall be filed in the General Land Office accompanied by one dollar as filing fee, and thereby the owner of such lease shall be relieved of any further obligations to the State, but such relinquishment shall not have the effect to release the owner from any obligations or liabilities theretofore accrued in favor of the State. [Id., § 11.]

Art. 5904o12. Forfeiture of lease.—If the owner of a lease should fail or refuse to make the payment of any sum due either on an area or royalty on the production within thirty days after same shall become due, or if such owner or his authorized agent should knowingly make any false return or false report concerning production, royalty, or drilling, or if such owner should fail or refuse to drill any offset well or wells in good faith as required by this Act and the rules and regulations adopted by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, or if such owner or his agent should refuse the proper authority access to the records pertaining to the operations under this Act, or if such owner or his authorized agent should knowingly fail or refuse to give correct information to the proper authority, or fail or refuse to furnish the log of any well as provided herein, such lease shall be subject to forfeiture by the Commissioner of the General Land Office and when sufficiently informed of the facts which authorize a forfeiture, the Commissioner of the General Land Office shall forfeit same, and the area shall be subject to lease again to another than to such forfeiting owner after due advertisement; provided, such forfeiture may be set aside and the lease and all rights thereunder reinstated before the rights of another intervene upon satisfactory evidence of future compliance with the provisions of this Act and the rules and regulations authorized to be adopted for the purpose of executing its provisions. [Id., § 12.]

Art. 5904013. Right of way for entry, etc., onto land.—Whenever it may be necessary for the owner of a lease acquired under this Act to enter the enclosed land of another for the purpose of ingress and egress to and from the area so leased from the State and such lessee and owner of enclosure or agent of such owner cannot agree upon the place of such entry, nor the conditions of such entry, the lessee or his agent may petition the Commissioners Court of the County or Counties in which such enclosure may be situated in whole or in part for the opening of such way of ingress and egress aforesaid as may be necessary. Upon the filing of such petition it shall be the duty of said Court or Courts to proceed to lay out and establish in the manner provided for the laying out of third class public roads, such road or roads as may be necessary for the purposes named herein. [Id., § 13.]

Art. 5904014. Prior rights.—Nothing in this Act shall be construed to affect or impair valid rights that may have been acquired by virtue of any valid application heretofore filed nor any valid permit or lease heretofore issued upon any area included in this Act, but such rights, obligations, and penalties attaching thereto shall remain in full force and effect so far as it may relate to the areas included herein. [Id., § 14.]

Art. 5904015. Repeal.—So much of Chapter 83, of an Act approved March 16, 1917, as relates to the leasing of the areas included in this Act is hereby repealed so far as it includes and provides for the leasing of said areas. [Id., § 15.]

OIL AND NATURAL GAS ON SURVEYED FREE SCHOOL AND ASYLUM LANDS

Art. 5904016. Owners of soil constituted agents of state; relinquishment to owners of undivided part of oil and gas; remainder reserved for public free school fund and asylum funds.—To promote the active cooperation of the owner of the soil and to facilitate the development of its oil and gas resources the State hereby constitutes the owner of the soil its agent for the purpose herein named, and in consideration thereof, relinquishes to and vests in the owner of the soil and undivided fifteen-sixteenths of all oil and gas and the value of the same that may be upon or within the surveyed and unsurveyed public free school land and the asylum lands and portions of such surveys that have heretofore been sold with a mineral classification or mineral reservation and that which may hereafter be sold with a mineral classification or mineral reservation, subject to the terms and conditions of this Act; and the remaining undivided portion of said oil and gas and the value of same is hereby reserved for the use and benefit of the public free school fund and the several asylum funds; provided, the relinquishment herein relating to unsurveyed school land shall not in any manner apply to nor affect any oil and gas permit or lease heretofore issued on any unsurveyed school land, but said relinquishment shall become effective as to such land and the oil and gas therein when the existing permit or lease shall be terminated according to law. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 81, § 1; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., 1st C. S., ch. 38, § 1.]

Took effect Nov. 15, 1921.

Art. 5904o17. Sale or lease of oil or gas by owners of land; terms and conditions; minimum price and royalties; rentals; payments to state.—The owner of said land is hereby authorized to sell or lease to any person, firm or corporation the oil and gas that may be thereon or therein upon such terms and conditions as such owner may deem best, subject only to the provisions of this Act and the reservations herein, for the benefit of the school and asylum funds. All leases and sales so made shall be assignable; provided that no oil or gas rights shall be sold or leased hereunder for less than ten cents per acre per year, plus royalty, and the lessee or purchaser shall in every case pay to the State ten cents per acre per year of sales and rentals, and, in case of production, shall pay to the State the undivided one-sixteenth of the value of the oil and gas as reserved in Section 1 of this Act [Art. 5904o15];—it being expressly provided that all sales or leases of the land made by the owner under this Section of the Act shall, as respects the rental to be paid, be made for and inure to the benefit of the State to the extent herein provided. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., 2d C. S., ch. 81, § 2.]

Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 5904o18. Offset wells on lands not included in act; requirements as to drilling.—If oil or gas should be discovered in paying quantities on land that is not included in this Act and within one thousand feet of land that is so included, the owner, lessee, sub-lessee or receiver or other agent in control of such land as is included herein, shall in good faith begin the drilling of an offset well or wells upon such land as is included herein within one hundred days after the first discover, and prosecute same with diligence to completion. Every offset well shall be drilled to the depth necessary for effective protection against undue drainage by other wells on other lands in that locality. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5904o19. Same; failure or refusal to drill or develop such wells; relinquishment forfeited.—If the persons aforesaid, who own or control land included in this Act, should fail or refuse to begin such drilling of offset wells thereon within the time required or fail or refuse to drill such well or wells diligently and in good faith or fail or refuse to drill such well or wells to the depth necessary for the purpose intended, or fail or refuse to use the means necessary to the development of any well or wells thereon within the time required or fail or refuse to drill such well drilled thereon thereupon the relinquishment herein granted shall ipso facto terminate and the rights acquired thereunder shall likewise terminate, and the oil and gas relinquished herein shall revert to and become the property of the State's General Revenue Fund and when the Commissioner of the General Land Office is sufficiently informed of the facts which so terminate such rights, he shall indorse on the wrapper containing the papers relating to the sale of the land words indicating such termination and sign it officially. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 5904o20. Same; sale of oil and gas on forfeiture of relinquishment; price, etc.—When the relinquishment granted herein and the rights acquired thereunder shall have been terminated as provided in the preceding section, the Commissioner shall take possession of the land and advertise the oil and gas therein for sale. All such sales shall be made at such times as the Commissioner may determine and in the same manner as is now provided for the sale of public free school land. The sale shall be made to the person, firm or corporation that will pay the highest price therefor in addition to one-eighth of the oil and gas produced or the value of same, which shall be reserved to the public free school fund. The sum received in addition to the reserved one-eighth shall be divided equally between the General Revenue Fund of the State and the owner of the soil after deducting the expenses incident to the advertisement and sale. Purchasers at such sales shall begin the drilling of the necessary off-set wells within sixty days after the acceptance of their offer and the failure to do so and the failure to comply with the provisions of this Act relating to the drilling of offset wells shall likewise operate as a termination of the right acquired thereunder and the substances therein shall be subject to sale as herein provided. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 5904o21. Payments of value of gross production of oil and gas to state and owners of soil; books, accounts, etc.—One-sixteenth of the value of the gross production of oil saved and one-sixteenth of the gross production of gas saved and sold off the premises shall be paid to the State and like amounts to the owner of the soil on or before the twentieth day of each month for the preceding months and it shall be accompanied by a sworn statement of the owner, manager, or other authorized agent, showing the gross amount of oil produced and saved since the last report and the gross amount of gas produced and sold off the premises, and the market value of same, together with a copy of all daily gauges of tanks, gas meter readings, if any, pipe line receipts, gas line receipts and other checks or memoranda of amount produced and put into the pipe lines, tanks or pools and gas lines or gas storage. The books and accounts, the receipts and discharges of all lines, tanks, pools and meters, and all contracts and other records pertaining to production, sale and marketing of oil or gas shall at all times be subject to inspection and examination by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, the Attorney General, the Governor, or the representative of either. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 5904o22. Amounts due state, where and to whom paid.—All sums due the State under the operations of this Act, shall be due and payable at Austin, Travis County, and shall be paid to the Commissioner of the General Land Office and he shall transmit all remittances in the form received to the State Treasurer, who shall credit the fund to which the land originally belonged with the amount paid upon production. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 5904o23. Lien of state on wells to secure payment of amounts due.—The State shall have a first lien upon all oil and gas produced upon the land to secure the payment of all sums of money that may be due or become due under the provisions of this Act; and the owner of the soil shall have a second lien thereon to secure the payment of any sum that may be due him. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 5904o24. Failure or refusal to pay amounts due; false returns or reports; refusal of or giving false information; forfeiture of rights acquired under permit or lease.—If any person, firm or corporation, operating under this Act should fail or refuse to make the payment of any sum of money due within thirty days after it becomes due, or if such one or an authorized agent should knowingly make any false return or false report concerning production or drilling, or if such one should fail or refuse the proper authority access to the records pertaining to the operations, or if such one or an authorized agent should knowingly fail or refuse to give correct information to the proper authority, or knowingly fail or refuse to furnish to the General Land Office a correct log of any well, the rights acquired under the permit or lease shall be subject to forfeiture by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and when sufficiently informed of the facts which authorize a forfeiture, he shall forfeit same, and the oil and gas shall be subject to sale in the manner as provided in Section five of this Act; except the owner of the soil shall not thereby forfeit his interest in the oil and gas; provided such forfeiture may be set aside and all rights theretofore existing shall be reinstated at any time before the rights of another intervene upon satisfactory evidence of future compliance with the provisions of this Act. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 5904o25. Relinquishments to owners of soil subject to rights under permits to prospect for oil and gas already existing or hereafter granted.—The provisions of this Act relinquishing to the owner of the soil fifteen-sixteenths of the oil and gas in or under such soil is made subject to the rights now existing under valid permits to prospect for oil and gas that have heretofore been issued or which may hereafter be issued upon valid application now on file for such permit; and the rights secured under such permits or applications for permits shall be terminated in the manner provided by the law under which such rights were secured or under the provisions of this Act, but when such rights shall be so terminated, such relinquishments shall be fully effective; provided a relinquishment to the State of a lease that may be producing oil or gas in paying quantities shall not operate to relinquish or convey to the owner of the soil any interest whatever in the oil and gas that may be in the land included in such lease. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 5904o26. Subsequent purchasers of unsold public free school or asylum lands for which prospecting permits have issued.—If one has heretofore or should hereafter acquire any valid right to the oil and gas in any unsold public free school or asylum land under any other law, a subsequent purchaser of such land shall not acquire any rights to any of the oil and gas that may be therein, but when such rights shall be terminated in the manner provided in the law under which such rights were obtained, then the owner of the soil shall become the owner of that portion of the oil and gas herein relinquished and shall be thereafter subject to the provisions of this Act. A forfeiture of the purchase of any survey or tract for any cause shall operate as a forfeiture of the minerals therein to the State. [Id., § 11.]

Art. 5904o27. Permits; assignment; record of.—Permits issued, or to be issued upon applications heretofore filed, or hereafter filed upon any land included in this Act may be assigned as a whole into one ownership or may be grouped or combined into one organization, upon such terms as the owners may agree, and in one or more groups or combinations not to exceed sixteen sections of 640 acres each, more or less, in one group, for the purpose of developing oil and gas. All such assignments and agreements shall be recorded in the county or counties in which the land or part thereof is situated and shall be filed in the General Land Office within sixty days after the execution of the same, accompanied by one dollar as a filing fee. [Id., § 12.]

Art. 5904028. Permittees to begin drilling well, when; limitation of time for completing development of wells.—The owner of a permit issued upon applications heretofore or hereafter filed shall have eighteen months from the date thereof in which to begin the drilling of a well for oil and gas on some portion of the land included therein. The owner or owners of a combination of permits, held by assignment or agreement shall have a like period of eighteen months from the average date of the permits included therein in which to begin the drilling of a well for oil and gas on some portion of the land included therein, and the drilling on one permit shall be sufficient for the protection against forfeiture of all the permits included in such combination. Owners of permits included herein shall have three years after the date of the permit and the same time after the average date of the permits placed in a combination of permits in which to complete the development of oil and gas thereon, and if oil and gas should not be found in paying quantities and a lease applied for within said time, all rights in such permit or combination of permits shall terminate, and the oil and gas in such land shall become subject to the provisions of this Act relating to the relinquishment of oil and gas to the owner of the soil. [Id., § 13.]

Art. 5904029. Report of development of well by permittee; application for lease; log of well or wells; issue of lease.—If oil or gas should be produced in paying quantities upon any land included in this Act, the owner of the permit shall report the development to the Commissioner of the General Land Office within thirty days thereafter and apply for a lease upon such whole surveys or tracts in each permit as the owner or owners of a combination of permits may desire to be leased and accompany the application with a log of the well or wells, and the correctness of the log shall be sworn to by the owner, manager or driller, and thereupon a lease shall be issued without the payment of any additional sum of money and for a period not to exceed ten years, subject to renewal or renewals. [Id., § 14.]

Art. 5904030. Royalties payable by permittee to state and owners of soil.—The owner of a permit or combination of permits that desire to avail themselves of the terms of this Act shall pay to the State ten cents per acre, annually in advance, for the second and third years and shall likewise pay to the owner of the soil ten cents per acre for the first year of such permit before availing himself of the privileges of this Act, and a like sum thereafter annually in advance. A failure to make either of said payments shall subject the permit or permits to forfeiture by the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and when sufficiently informed of the facts which subjects the permit or permits to forfeiture the said Commissioner shall forfeit the permit or permits by an endorsement of forfeiture upon the wrapper containing the papers relating to the permit or permits and sign it officially. The payment of the ten cents per acre to the owner of the soil may be made in person or by payment to the County Clerk of the county in which the land is situated, and the said clerk shall deposit such payment in some bank at the county seat to the credit of the record owner of such land. If the owner of the soil should refuse to accept such payment, the said clerk shall withdraw such deposit and return same to the owner of the permit or permits. The payment, or the tender of payment, shall be evidenced by the receipt of the owner or part owner or County Clerk filed among the papers in the General Land Office relating to such permit or permits. [Id., § 15.]

Art. 5904o31. Relinquishment of permits.—The owner of a permit or combination of permits may relinquish to the State a permit or combination of permits or any whole survey or whole tract included in a permit at any time before obtaining a lease therefor by having such relinquishment recorded in the county or counties in which the land or a part thereof is situated and file it in the General Land Office within sixty days after its execution, accompanied by one dollar as a filing fee. [Id., § 16.]

Art. 5904o32. Retroactive operation of act.—The provisions of this Act, so far as they relate to a combination of permits and extensions of time for beginning development and time for development, shall apply to permits heretofore issued and those hereafter issued upon University land. [Id., § 17.]

Art. 5904o33. Damage to soil.—The payment of the ten cents per acre and the obligation to pay the owner of the soil one-sixteenth of the production and the payment of same when produced and the acceptance of same by the owner, shall be in lieu of all damages to the soil. [Id., § 18.]

Art. 5904o34. Laws relating to permits continued in force.—All the terms, conditions, limitations and obligations provided in the law under which permits included herein have been or may be issued and rights secured therein shall continue and remain in full force and effect except as changed or modified by this Act. [Id., § 19.]

Sec. 20 of this act repeals all conflicting laws.

DEVELOPMENT AREAS

Art. 5904o35. Designation of development areas.—The owner or owners of a permit heretofore issued by the State of Texas permitting the holder or holders to prospect for oil and gas on University land under the provisions of the existing laws, who, at the time this Act takes effect, individually or in co-operation with the holders of permits covering other University land, at some point upon the land covered by such permit, has or have drilled a well to a depth of at least two thousand feet, shall have the privilege of filing with the Commissioner of the General Land Office, within sixty days from the date on which this Act goes into effect, an instrument in writing designating what shall be called a University land oil and gas development area, which area shall consist of not to exceed six contiguous blocks of University land; provided that the holders of the permits covering land included in such development area, prior to the designation thereof, shall have directly or indirectly contributed to the expense of, or co-operated in the drilling of the above mentioned well, or an additional well or wells located or to be located within said area. Said instrument shall be signed and acknowledged by the owner or owners of the permit covering the land on which said well has been drilled, and a filing fee of one dollar shall be paid the Commissioner of the General Land Office for filing the same. There shall be included in such instrument, or attached thereto, an affidavit of at least three credible persons, citizens of the State of Texas, showing the existence of the facts required for the designation of such development area. [Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 4, § 1.]

Took effect Oct. 2, 1920.

Art. 5904o36. Designation shall continue permits in force; development.—From and after the designation of any such University land oil and gas development area, all permits covering land therein which at the time of such designation are still in force, upon the payment in advance of the ten cents per acre per annum as now provided by law, may continue in force for a term not to exceed five years from the date of the last permit issued on any of the land included in any such development area, and all development work may be commenced and completed within the said period of five years; provided, if such payment should not be so made on any permit included in such area, such permit in arrears shall be cancelled by the Commissioner of the General Land Office. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 5904o37. Lease issued in case oil or gas is discovered; relinquishments.—Should oil or gas in commercial quantities be discovered during the life of such development area or a portion thereof, a lease may be issued on one or more contiguous permits not to exceed sixteen sections, for each discovery well as now provided by law. The owner or owners of a permit or permits within such development area may relinquish one or more whole sections or the equivalent thereof, in a solid body of regular form at any time before applying for a lease by having the relinquishment recorded in the county where the land is located and filed in the General Land Office accompanied by a filing fee of one dollar. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 5904o38. Does not apply to school land.—This Act is not intended to and shall not be construed to apply to public free school land. [Id., § 4.]

Sec. 5 of the act repeals all laws in conflict.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

Art. 5904p. Definitions and requirements; abandonment or relinquishment.

"Surveyed land."—Where a certain area had been lawfully surveyed in virtue of an application made under the act, but upon which no permit issued, the field notes being approved by the commissioner and filed in the land office, the commissioner was authorized to treat the area, as respects a later application, as "surveyed land" within the meaning of the act. Sibley v. Robison, 110 Tex. 1, 212 S. W. 932.

Art. 5904q. Disposition of proceeds.—The proceeds arising from activities under this Act which affect lands belonging to the public free school fund and the permanent fund of the several asylums shall be credited to the permanent funds of said institutions. All proceeds heretofore or hereafter paid or collected, from activities under this Act affecting the lands belonging to the permanent fund of the University of Texas, save and except the royalties provided by this Act, shall be credited to the available fund of said Institution, and the State Treasurer is hereby directed to credit all such funds to the available fund of such Institution, provided, however, that all such funds shall be held by the Board of Regents of the University of Texas in a special building fund, and shall be expended only for the erection of buildings or for other permanent improvements. All royalties collected under the terms of this Act from lands belonging to the University of Texas, shall be credited to the permanent fund of the University. All proceeds arising from the activities affecting lands other than those belonging to the public free school fund, the University and the several asylums, shall be credited to the Game, Fish, and Oyster fund. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 83, § 17; Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 21, § 1; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 58, § 1 (§ 17).]

Took effect 90 days after June 18, 1920, date of adjournment.

Art. 5904qq. Transfer of moneys in game, fish and oyster fund to school fund.—All money now in the State Treasury to the credit of the Game, Fish and Oyster fund and unexpended which was received from royalty on oil and gas leases issued upon river beds and channels, fresh-water lakes, and islands therein and saltwater lakes, islands, bays, inlets, marshes and reefs owned by the State within tide water limits and that portion of the Gulf of Mexico within the jurisdiction of Texas, is hereby transferred to the available public free school fund and the State Treasurer shall so credit said sums. All sums of money hereafter received as royalty upon oil and gas from the areas aforesaid and all sums hereafter received as payment upon the acreage of said areas shall likewise be credited to the available public free school fund. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 55, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment. Sec. 2 of the act repeals all laws in conflict.

Art. 5904s. Forfeiture of rights under permit or lease.

Abandonment.—Intention of oil lessees to forfeit grants by voluntary abandonment is to be found from consideration of nature and extent of undertaking, conduct of parties, and what they did or failed to do. Munsey v. Marnet Oil & Gas Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 686.

Relocation.—Where, at the time notice of forfeiture of an oil and mineral lease had time to reach the county clerk's office and did reach such office, a number of applicants for permits to prospect were waiting at the filing window, having deposited their applications on the counter, and a number of other applications were received in the same mail as the notice, all were entitled to be filed simultaneously. Jones v. Mac-Corquodale (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 59, 62; Same v. Maes (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 62.

An attempted relocation of a mining claim, which was void because the claim was then held under a valid location by others, who had done all assessment work thereon, does not entitle the relocators to the ore taken by them from the claim, though they were in actual possession of it. Kelvin Lumber & Supply Co. v. Copper State Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 858.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

I. TITLE, CONVEYANCES AND LEASES IN GENERAL

Title in general.—Notwithstanding the fugitive nature of oil and that, like water in the earth, it belongs to the owner of the land under which it is found, a landowner who sinks a well on his land may acquire title to all the oil produced therefrom, regardless of the fact that it may be drawn from under the lands of adjoining owners. Gillette v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 619.

Nature of property in minerals.—Minerals, being tangible substances, may be treated in law as corporeal property, and, until separated from the soil, are part of the realty within which they lie. Marnett Oil & Gas Co. v. Munsey (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 867; Canon v. Scott (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 429; Hynson v. Gulf Production Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 873.

Petroleum oil, like water, is not subject of property except while in actual occupancy, and a grant of either water or oil is not a grant of the soil, or of anything for which ejectment will lie. Prairie Oil & Gas Co. v. State (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 1088.

Adverse possession.—Assuming that the grantees had the duty of reasonable protective and continued development should the land be shown to be oil land, the failure to comply with such implied condition did not defeat the rights under the grant where at the time the contingency actually arose by the discovery of oil upon a contiguous tract those claiming under subsequent conveyances from the grantors were in the possession of the land and drilling thereon to the exclusion of those claiming under the oil grant. Davis v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 549.

The rights under an oil and mineral grant passing the legal title were not barred by limitations where there was no adverse possession, cultivation, use, or enjoyment of the subsurface land for the required length of time, but only possession of the surface for farming and grazing purposes, as possession of the outer surface is not that of the minerals beneath. Id.

Recovery of possession of lands or mines.—A judgment, decreeing plaintiff a half undivided interest in the minerals and the entire surface, and defendants' predecessor the remaining half undivided interest in the minerals, effected a severance of the surface and mineral estates, and the result was the same as if the judgment had awarded plaintiff all the surface and defendants' predecessor all the minerals and mineral rights. Henderson v. Chesley (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 573.

Recovery for trespass or conversion.—In an action for the conversion of ore removed from a mining claim by trespassers, the trespassers are not entitled to compensation for the expense of removing and shipping the ore. Kelvin Lumber & Supply Co. v. Copper State Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 858.

Grants and reservations of minerals and mining rights—Requisites and validity.—Where the minerals in certain land were sold to a group of associates, of whom plaintiff was one and a defendant another, and such defendant and a third person by misrepresentations procured deed of his interest from plaintiff, and subsequently made to the original seller the payments due to keep plaintiff's rights alive, the seller's receipt obtained through such fraudulent transaction could not inure to nor confer benefits on defendant and the third person, though it purported to assign the seller's rights to them. Holland v. De Walt (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 216.

Owner of land may convey an indefeasible legal title to the minerals under the soil separate and distinct from the surface rights. Marnett Oil & Gas Co. v. Munsey (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 867.

Construction and operation in general.—An instrument which granted, bargained, sold, and conveyed all the oil and other minerals in a described tract of land, held so explicit as to preclude the arising of any other conditions by implication except, perhaps, an obligation to protect the land from drainage and further reasonably develop it after it had been proven to be oil-bearing territory, under the rule that additional terms may be read into written contracts only when they are silent about, and not inconsistent with, what is sought to be so interpolated. Davis v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 549.

Where an oil and mineral grant, which passed the legal title to the minerals subject to a reserved royalty, provided that it should be void if drilling should not be commenced and prosecuted with due diligence within two years, but that a forfeiture might be prevented by the payment of $10 a year until a well was commenced, a further provision that the completion of a well should operate as a full liquidation of all rentals under this provision during the remainder of the term was a condition subsequent. Id.

Distinction between conveyance or sale and license or lease.—Instrument executed by the owner of supposed oil land and designated as an oil lease held a conveyance of the mineral rights in the land subject to defeasance for failure to pay the rentals as stipulated, and subject to the further contingency of termination after the expiration of a five-year period by failure to discover the minerals mentioned in paying quantities, and failure to exercise ordinary diligence after discovery to mine same. Key v. Big Sandy Oil & Gas Development Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 300.

Oil lease held to have conferred upon the lessee, not an estate in land, but only a license or option to enter upon and develop it for oil and other minerals. Hitson v. Gilman (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 140.

An instrument which, for a nominal consideration (presumably paid), "granted, bargained, sold, and conveyed * * * all the oil, gas, and coal and other minerals" in a described tract of land with usual surface privileges, to have and to hold to the grantee, his heirs and assigns, on specified conditions, and stated that the grant was not intended as a mere franchise, but as a conveyance of the property for the purpose mentioned, when followed by a substantial performance of the drilling terms with the knowledge and approval of the grantors at a considerable expenditure of money, vested in the grantee and his assigns the legal title to nine-tenths of the minerals subject to the reserved royalty for the specified period, and not a mere leasehold right or option to prospect. Davis v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 549.

"Lease" whereby owner "sold and conveyed" the minerals in described land in consideration of a nominal cash payment and the agreement of grantee to sink a designated number of wells within a stipulated time, and whereby it was agreed that, in case the grantee "is unwilling to bore said wells, the said party of the first part shall have the right to bore same, provided there shall be preserved to each well then bored by said S. [grantee] a surrounding territory of not less than seven acres of land," held not to convey an indefeasible legal title to the minerals, but merely to give grantee the right to explore for the minerals and bring them to the surface. Marnett Oil & Gas Co. v. Munsey (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 867.

Contract whereby owner "granted, bargained, sold, and conveyed" specified minerals "in and under" described land to another, "to have and to hold forever," in consideration of the sum of $250 and a certain portion of the royalties, and wherein it was agreed that the instrument should have the effect "to sever all the minerals in or under said lands from the surface thereof and to sell and convey all such minerals," held not merely a lease, but a conveyance of an indefeasible legal title to the minerals, if any, in or under the land. Hynson v. Gulf Production Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 873.

Nature of estate granted or reserved.—A contract conveying minerals therein named, in place, is in its nature a conveyance of an interest in the land described; such minerals being a part of the realty. Thomason v. Upshur County (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 325.

A conveyance of an interest in the oil, gas, and minerals in and under a tract of land is a conveyance of an "interest in the land." Crabb v. Bell (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 623.

Kind, quantity and location of minerals granted or reserved.—Reservation in deed of all the "coal and mineral," with the right to enter and "to mine and remove the same," held to include oil and gas, oil and gas being minerals, and the term "mine" being broad enough for the purpose of reaching and extracting oil or gas, regardless of means to be used. Luse v. Boatman (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1096.

Conveyance or abandonment of rights granted or reserved.—Abandonment, in the absence of some act or deed legally sufficient to divest the title, is inapplicable to a legal title to land, and hence could not defeat the legal title under an oil and mineral grant which conveyed title to the oil and minerals, and not a mere leasehold. Davis v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 549; Marnett Oil & Gas Co. v. Munsey (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 867.

If husband and wife conveyed minerals in their homestead to a corporation, the minerals were no longer subject to lawful disposition by the husband and wife, and if the corporation's lease was invalid and failed to operate as a conveyance, the minerals necessarily remained part of the homestead of the husband and wife, and if thereafter they again separated and segregated the minerals from their homestead and the conveyance was abandoned, set aside, and rescinded, the minerals again resumed their original status. Maynard v. Gilliam (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 818.

An instrument declaring null and void a so-called oil lease conveying oil, gas, coal, and other minerals, and purporting to discharge and release the land thereby covered from its provisions, executed by the owner of an undivided two-thirds interest in the so-called oil lease, could not affect the other one-third interest. Davis v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 549. See, also, notes under art. 1103 et seq.

— Remedies.—An implied undertaking on the part of grantee to whom minerals had been conveyed to discover and develop minerals within a reasonable time would be a covenant, a breach of which would entitle the grantor to recover damages merely, and not a condition subsequent entitling grantor, on noncompliance therewith, to a cancellation of the contract. Hynson v. Gulf Production Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 873; Davis v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 549.

A grantor of an undivided half interest in minerals in land, who had a right to a return of the land if mineral was not shown to exist in paying quantities within a year, waived his right to re-entry or forfeiture by expressing his satisfaction as to what was done and minerals shown to exist, being present and having knowledge of the extent of the grantee's performance. Tickner v. Luse (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 578.

Assuming that under an oil grant providing that the completion of a well should operate as a full liquidation of all rental during the remainder of the term it was an implied covenant that the grantee should continue drilling to meet the development of contiguous lands, the facts held not to authorize an action for violation of the covenant. Davis v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 549.

Nature of mining leases and agreements.—An oil lease is a conveyance of an interest in land. McEntire v. Thomason (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 563.

An oil lease, giving lessee the right to enter and drill for oil, lay pipes, and erect structures, etc., on the land for five years, and so much longer as oil was produced thereon, is more than a mere license, which is a personal privilege to do some act on the land, without passing any estate therein, and which is revoked by a conveyance by either lessor or lessee. Priddy v. Green (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 243.

Oil and gas lease, providing that it should become void on lessee's failure to commence and prosecute with due diligence drilling operation within 6 months, but that lessee could prevent forfeiture from year to year for specified number of years by paying a specified sum per acre to lessor for each year thereafter until well was completed, did not convey title to the oil and gas in the lands described, though lease contained words of grant, but was merely an option to explore the same; no title vesting until the gas or oil was produced. Bailey v. Williams (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 311.

Agreements for leases.—Where an oil prospector agreed to accept an oil lease in terms fully set forth as a part of the contract within 5 days after releases were procured from one who held prior oil leases on the land, and such releases were obtained, the contract became executed under the maxim that, Equity regards as done that which ought to be done, though the new lease was not formally executed. Haynie v. Stovall (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 792.

Where grantee, who received lands in exchange for an interest in an oil and gas lease, refused to execute in favor of the grantor an oil and gas lease on the property received, according to the agreement, such refusal does not after conveyance warrant the grantor in rescinding unless the promise was made without intention to perform. Long v. Calloway (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 414.

Instrument executed by plaintiffs, oil and gas lessors, in favor of defendant, whereby plaintiffs agreed to execute and deliver to defendant an oil and gas lease if his suit to invalidate the prior lease by plaintiffs to a company was successful held dependent on a future contingency and not construable as a conveyance of the minerals in present, but merely as a contract to convey them on happening of the contingency. Maynard v. Gilliam (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 818.

Requisites and validity of leases and agreements.—Oil lease, giving lessee right to at any time surrender lease and be relieved from obligations thereunder remaining unfulfilled at such time, where lessors in consideration of lease received a large amount of stock of company to which lease was assigned, was not void for want of mutuality. McEntire v. Thomason (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 563.

The objection that an oil and gas lease is void for want of mutuality because lessees are not bound to proceed with development is untenable, where lessees have paid an independent consideration. Aycock v. Reliance Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 848.

That an oil and gas lease failed to stipulate a time in which lessees should proceed with development would not render it unilateral, since, where a contract fixes no time for performance, the law presumes the parties intended a reasonable time. Id.

In an action to set aside the transfer of a part interest in an oil and gas lease, made on representations that a well in the process of being sunk in the neighborhood would be a dry hole when, as a matter of fact, the purchaser knew it was producing, bad faith on the part of the purchaser being material, knowledge on the seller's part as to such bad faith was also material in determining whether he had waived the fraud, by executing the transfer. Zundelowitz v. Waggoner (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 598.

That plaintiff had agreed to give gas and oil lease to a person to be furnished by one D., and that she executed a lease to defendant lessee thinking she was dealing with D.'s prospective lessee, was a unilateral mistake, affording no ground for cancellation; there having been no misrepresentation, the contract terms having been fully agreed upon, and the identity of the lessee not being of the essence of the contract. Price v. Biggs (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 236.

In gas and oil lease, an agreement that diligent operations by lessee looking towards discovery of gas and oil "in the immediate vicinity, by which is meant within fifteen miles of some portion of the land," shall operate as a substitute for operation on the leased land, held not so contradictory of a covenant to put down a well in the immediate vicinity as to render the lease void for uncertainty. Id.

Covenant to begin operation in drilling on the land leased or the community lands in the immediate vicinity by April 1, 1919, held not so inconsistent with clause providing that consideration for lease and for all common leases is the covenant to begin actual development on some part of the premises within 12 months, as to require a holding that lease is void. Id.

Where plaintiffs by false representations of defendant and notary who took acknowledgment to lease sought to be canceled were induced to sign a contract which in fact they never made, that plaintiffs, who relied upon the integrity of defendant and notary, signed lease without reading it, is not such negligence as will deprive them of equitable relief. Davis v. Burkholder (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1101.

Oil lease granting rights to lessee, requiring him within a fixed time to begin operations or to pay the rentals, grants an estate on condition subsequent and is valid. Priddy v. Green (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 243.

Statement of agent procuring oil and gas lease that refusal to sign would bring about a lawsuit held not unlawful or amounting to "duress," within the meaning of the law to authorize the lessors to have cancellation of the lease; it not appearing the assertion was not made in good faith. Turner v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 252.

Contract executed by husband and wife, obligating themselves to convey minerals in their homestead land to defendant if he were successful in attacking prior oil and gas lease executed by such husband and wife to a corporation, held not sufficiently definite and specific within itself to operate as a lease or conveyance of the minerals to defendant, in the absence of actual removal of the minerals from the homestead of which they were legally a part, precluding valid disposition by mere contract to separate in futuro. Maynard v. Gilliam (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 818.

Oil and gas lease reading that it was made and entered into on a specified date "between Mrs. M. C. P. et al.," etc., "first parties," etc., mentioning the lessors as "first parties" in several places, but naming no other than Mrs. M. C. P., held invalid as to lessors not named. Patton v. Texas Pac. Coal & Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 857.

Where two disinterested witnesses testified that the blanks in the clause of an oil lease providing for extension of the time for completing the well were not filled in when the lease was executed, and the lessor testified he had given the lessee no authority to fill in those blanks, the evidence was sufficient to sustain a finding that the filling in of the blanks was an alteration subsequent to the execution of the lease. Fleming v. Head (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 302.

Where the clause in an oil lease providing for payment to extend the time for completing the well had unfilled blanks for designating the place and amount of the payments and the extension thereby secured when the lease was executed, the unauthorized filling of those blanks by the lessee was a material alteration of the lease, which was not binding on the lessors. Id.

The definite and unambiguous terms of an oil and gas lease, respecting the time of its continuance, held to refute the contention that it was void for uncertainty in that respect. Morris v. Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 981.

City ordinance, which merely regulated drilling of oil wells and did not absolutely prohibit drilling for oil, but contemplated that drilling might be in such manner or under such conditions as to receive approval of city's building inspector, did not invalidate oil lease, though building inspector testified that he could not grant permission to drill well on land covered by such lease, since it cannot be said as a matter of law that the ordinance will continue for full term of oil lease, or that such building inspector will continue in office, or that his successor will view condition with like effect. Brie v. Porter (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 999.

Where lessee drew up an oil and gas lease, and lessors relied on his statement as to the time the lease would run, and believed that the lease was written for only six months instead of ten years, and, to induce that belief, lessee pointed out a six months' clause in the lease as the term for which it was to run and remarked, "I will make it for six months so you will understand it," and lessors believed the six months' time had reference to the time that lease was to run and acted upon it, but in truth it had reference instead to the payment of rentals, and not to the time the lease was to run, and though lessor might have ascertained by the exercise of ordinary care the application of the six months' clause, such representation would be sufficient ground if promptly acted upon to avoid the lease. Smith v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 136.

Modification or cancellation.—Where defendants acquired from plaintiffs for cash option to develop land for oil without intention to drill themselves for oil but to sell privilege, not binding themselves to sink wells, that they acquired option without intention to drill is no ground for cancellation. Griffin v. Bell (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1034.

A failure to make tender of consideration paid will not necessarily defeat rescission of an oil lease, but requires the cost to be charged to plaintiff up to the time of the tender. Davis v. Burkholder (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1101.

Where plaintiff did not read an oil lease, but was not prevented from so doing by any trick or device on the part of the defendant, plaintiff cannot obtain rescission of the lease on the ground that it was not as advantageous as he expected it to be. Texas Co. v. Keeter (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 521.

Where plaintiffs sought to have an oil lease canceled on the ground that it provided for payment of rent in April instead of January, and the only loss which plaintiffs would suffer was the loss of the use of the money for the three-month period, plaintiffs are not entitled to rescission of the lease which they failed to read before signing; the alleged change not working any substantial difference in the situation of the parties. Id.

In an action to cancel an oil lease on the ground that rental for an extension had not been paid in time, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding in favor of defendant on such issue. Hunter v. Gulf Production Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 163.

If an oil and gas lease was obtained by fraud, plaintiff lessor should not have been required to pay anything to defendant lessee in order to have the lease canceled, though it was worth at the time more than the amount plaintiff lessor paid defendant lessee for a reconveyance. Ware v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 593.

Where a landowner conveyed an undivided interest by executory contract retaining a vendor's lien, but failed to enforce his rights thereunder until barred by limitations, so that the superior title vested in the grantee, and the grantee thereupon executed an oil and gas lease to a third person, held that the interest acquired by such third person, while only a right to develop the mineral, was a present vested right to enter and produce minerals, and that such interest was not revoked by lessor in a subsequent deed of the land to his grantor. Canon v. Scott (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1042.

II. CONSTRUCTION OF OIL AND GAS LEASES

In general.—Leases for oil and gas are to be construed most favorably to the lessor. Bailey v. Williams (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 311; Aycock v. Reliance Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 848; Hitson v. Gilman (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 140.

Under oil and gas lease provisions that lessor was to be at no expense arising from the operation or development, that lessees were authorized to partition the land, and that the drilling obligation was not to be binding until partition, the burden of partitioning rested upon the lessees and not upon the lessor. Aycock v. Reliance Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 848.

Oil and gas lease, granting described premises "for the sole and only purpose of mining and operating for oil and gas, and of laying pipe lines, and of building tanks," etc., designating the right of the lessee as a "privilege," and providing that lessee's rights should terminate on failure to drill within one year or make payment of specified amount on or before certain date, held a mere right, franchise, or privilege to enter on the land, and to appropriate a portion of oil and gas discovered therein, and not a conveyance of the oil and gas as a present interest in the land, the commencement of a well, or payment of rental on or before specified date, being a condition precedent to the continuation or extension of the lessee's privileges after such date. Young v. Jones (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 691.

In oil and gas leases, time is regarded as the essence of the contract, and the rule that a lease is construed most strongly against the lessor does not apply. Id.

Oil and gas leases and a contract executed contemporaneously therewith between the same parties and with reference to the same subject-matter constituted one contract and must be construed together. Huber v. Smith (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 339.

The covenant of quiet enjoyment which is implied in case of an ordinary lease should be implied with respect to an oil and gas lease. Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1021.

Where a mother, who gave an oil and gas lease on which her son had an undivided interest, executed a confirmation of the lease after the son's conveyance of his interest to her, such confirmation being executed before execution of reconveyance to the son, the first deed of reconveyance being destroyed without delivery, the confirmation of the lease passed title to the son's undivided interest. Id.

An oil and gas lease giving the lessee power to take and remove oil and like minerals conveys an interest in the land. Smith v. Womack (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 840.

Consideration and mutuality.—See notes under art. 589.

Term.—Where landowners conveyed oil, gas, coal, and other minerals on condition subsequent as to locating and bringing up oil, on compliance with condition grants became absolute for 20 years, or as long as oil in paying quantities could be produced, as provided. Munsey v. Marnet Oil & Gas Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 686.

Covenants implied.—See notes under art. 1112.

Assignment or sale of lease or reversion.—Where one purchases an oil lease with knowledge that his vendor has contracted that the oil produced on the property shall be sold and delivered to a pipe line company at a price named in the sale contract, he is bound by such contract. Simms v. Southern Pipe Line Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 283.

In an action for inducing a part owner of an oil and gas lease to sell to another part owner by falsely representing that a well dug in the neighborhood would be a dry hole, although the purchaser knew that the well was then producing, such statement although in the form of an opinion, being made for the purpose of deceit as to a matter within the knowledge of the person expressing it, was sufficient to form a predicate for actionable fraud. Zundelowitz v. Waggoner (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 598.

The agreement by the lessor of supposed oil land that the well drilled by the lessee company to a depth of 2,000 feet was a complete well within the meaning of the lease was binding upon her and upon the buyer from her, who bought the land with full notice of the construction of the lease, and also upon the buyer's lessee, who took his lease with notice of the same fact. Key v. Big Sandy Oil & Gas Development Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 300.

Where oil lease provided that lessors "do hereby grant, sell, convey, and lease unto the lessee all the oil and gas in and under the following described tract of land, and also the tract of land itself, and the possession thereof for the purpose of entering and operating thereon and removing therefrom said oil and gas," and provided further that "all covenants and agreements herein set forth between the parties hereto, shall extend to their respective heirs, legal representatives and assigns," lessee could assign lease without lessor's consent; an interest in the land itself having been conveyed subject to a defeasance of the title upon lessee's failure to comply with the covenants on his part required to be performed. Jackson v. Pure Oil Operating Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 959.

Where a landowner gave an oil company a 25-day written option to lease her land, and subsequently, though before expiration of such 25 days, wrote that she could wait no longer for her money, asking return of her lease and abstract, stating that she did not see proper to accept payment, such letter was an absolute revocation of the option or offer to lease, which was not supported by consideration. Texas Co. v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 300.

Sublessees of parts of an oil lease were affected with notice of the form and legal effect of the original lease to their assignor. Hitson v. Gilman (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 140.

Where an oil lease calling for drilling of a well by the lessee within six months, or payment of certain rentals, provided expressly that the lessee might assign all or any part of the land, any assignee of part of the original lease was entitled to protect his own lease by paying his proportionate part of the rentals of the rate per acre specified in the original lease; the lessors not being entitled to have rental installments, after assignments by the lessee, paid as a whole. Id.

Where a contract for the transfer of an oil lease was deposited in escrow until the payment of the balance of the purchase price after examination of the title, no estate or interest vests in the purchaser until the performance of the condition. Priddy v. Green (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 243.

Where defendant exchanged an interest in an oil and gas lease for plaintiff's land, and on suit by the other lessees for partition the leasehold interest was sold by judicial decree, defendant being made a party to the suit for partition, defendant cannot prevent plaintiff's rescission on account of his fraud, on the theory that plaintiff could not restore the status quo. Long v. Calloway (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 414.

In an action for specific performance of a contract to convey an oil lease, defendants cannot escape liability because of plaintiff's mere nonperformance of an oral promise to perform an act in the future unless the promise was made without intention of performance and was relied on by defendants; hence an answer merely setting up nonperformance is open to demurrer. Greenmeyer v. McFarlane (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 613.

Where defendant wired he would sell an oil lease at $50 an acre, with direction to wire immediately if interested, and plaintiff inquired as to the length of lease, rentals, and whether defendant could furnish abstract, etc., whereupon defendant advised as to the length of lease, and that he had abstract, and plaintiff wired in return that he would take the lease, directing defendant to draw through a bank for the full amount, giving reasonable time for examination of abstract, no complete contract to convey the lease to plaintiff resulted, as defendant's offer contemplated immediate acceptance, and he could not be required to wait for examination of the abstract by plaintiff's counsel, nor forced to appoint the bank as his agent to deliver assignment and receive consideration; the purported acceptance by plaintiff constituting a counter proposition, prohibiting formation of contract until acceptance. Langford v. Bivins (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 867.

There is no implied obligation resting on the vendor of an oil lease to furnish abstract of title. Id.

Time is of the essence of contracts for the sale of mineral leases and lands. Id.

Lessee's appropriation of money to assist parties to whom he contracted to assign in performing acts which were to be the consideration for the assignment, cannot be construed into a waiver or an estoppel to claim a forfeiture of the right to acquire the lease as against a purchaser from the latter, because in no sense indicating that lessee would not insist on the provisions of his written assignment, and neither could such estoppel result if it were construed as a completed partnership between them. Atlantic Oil Producing Co. v. Dawkins (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 525.

Where defendant agreed to drill two oil wells and was to pay plaintiff one-sixth of the oil produced as a royalty and was assigned oil leases, and after having drilled one well abandoned the contract, the plaintiff was not entitled to recover as damages the market value of such leases merely because defendant did not "return" them to the plaintiff, in the absence of evidence showing that the leases lapsed, the effect of the abandonment of the contract being to divest defendant of the rights conferred by the leases and revest them in plaintiff, who could at once have exercised the right conferred by the leases or again assigned such rights to another. Southwestern Oil Corporation v. Bois D'Arc Creek Oil & Gas Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 821.

Falsity of an opinion representation that a nearby well looked like a dry hole, made to obtain an option on an interest in an oil lease, was not material as affecting right to rescind the transfer of such interest, where nothing was done to prevent a fair test of the well, and the assignor did nothing to inform himself in relation thereto. Waggoner v. Zundelowitz (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 721.

Where the title tendered by executors contracting to grant an oil and gas lease on the lands of the testatrix was at best so doubtful that it was not a merchantable title, the purchaser is entitled to refuse and performance will not be enforced. Smith v. Womack (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 840.

A contract for the sale of an oil and gas lease, which described the instrument as a commercial lease, providing for one-eighth of the royalty to be paid to the landowner, is sufficiently definite to sustain an action for breach; it appearing that the land had been leased on the ordinary producer's form, it being immaterial in such case that the contract did not contain provisions as to the terms, such as would be necessary if there was no existing lease. Garrard v. Cantrell (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 911.

Though plaintiff was not the owner of an oil and gas lease at the time when he contracted for its sale, yet, where he had a contract with the owner for the sale thereof, he was such a bona fide contractor as would entitle him to insist on his rights under the contract for the sale of the lease. Id.

Assignee as bona fide purchaser.—See notes under art. 6824.

Extension or renewal.—A sum paid plaintiffs by defendants in advance for option to develop oil lands held not only consideration for privilege extending over first term of six months, but for all rights, conditional and unconditional, conferred, including conditional right to claim extension of option. Griffin v. Bell (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1034.

The $500 paid by the lessee of supposed oil land in addition to a full performance by his assignee of the drilling contract stipulated in the lease held a full payment of the consideration required for continuation of the lease for the five-year period stipulated in it. Key v. Big Sandy Oil & Gas Development Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 300.

Where mineral lease provided for extension of lease upon lessee's payment of certain amount by certain date to lessor's credit in designated bank, lessee's deposit of required amount during specified time to designated bank was sufficient to extend lease, notwithstanding bank's failure, through negligence of employé, to credit lessor with such amount during such period; the dereliction of the bank not being chargeable to the lessee. Tatum v. Fulton (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1033.

Under oil lease providing that, if operations for drilling a well were not commenced on or before a certain day, the lease should terminate, unless lessee on or before such day should pay or tender a specified amount, which payment should operate as a renewal, time was of the essence of the option to continue lease; and where defendant, lessee's assignee, did not pay specified amount until two days after option had expired, lessors, who declined to receive the amount, were entitled to decree canceling lease and removing same as a cloud on their title, though they were not damaged by delay of two days and failed to declare a forfeiture prior to deposit. Weiss v. Claborn (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 384.

Under oil lease providing that rentals for extensions should be paid to the lessor, or deposited to his credit in a certain bank, notice by the lessor to the bank of his intention to revoke the offer of an extension was ineffective, where not communicated to the lessee; the bank being the agent of the lessor. McKay v. Tally (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 167; Same v. Fulgham (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 171.

If a lessor under an oil lease has the right to withdraw his offer to extend the time for drilling a well, he must give some notice of his intention to withdraw the offer before acceptance, and such revocation of the offer must be communicated to the lessee. Id.

An oil lease or option, providing that the lessee could extend the time for drilling by the payment of a certain amount at the beginning of each year, was a continuing offer by the lessor to extend the time, and after acceptance of such amount, it became a binding and valid contract for the period of extension. Id.

Proof that a landowner who had executed an oil and gas lease finally returned a check for rent which was to extend the period of the lease marked "refused" will establish a tender. Lone Star Gas Co. v. McCullough (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 1114.

Where a lease was in wild-cat territory, a provision for extension of the lease for a term of five years on payment of small rents is valid and enforceable, even though the lessee had made no attempt to drill, the rule that in proven territory the lessee cannot by paying rentals unduly delay development of the property, but that such matters is in the nature of a privilege enabling the lessee to save forfeiture, not being applicable to wild-cat territory. Id.

In view of provisions of oil and gas lease reciting a consideration of $50 for the first term and for the lessee's option of extending the period, time for payment of the rental of $25 for the extension of the lease beyond January 1, 1919, held of the essence of the contract. McLaughlin v. Brock (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 575.

Where an oil and gas lease made time for payment of an extension rental of the essence of the contract, the lessee's failure to make such payment when due terminated the lease ipso facto according to the terms of its stipulation. Id.

Where a tender of rentals required to renew a lease for six months was refused by lessor, lessee is thereby excused from making further tenders, though he is not relieved of liability therefor in case the lease is held valid. Burt v. Deorsam (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 354.

Surrender, abandonment or forfeiture.—To establish abandonment of lease on the part of the lessee, both an intention and the act must be shown. Hall v. McClesky (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1004; Hall v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1008.

Lessee of oil lands for 20 years held to have abandoned his rights under the lease in having drilled as required by the lease and struck oil and then having removed his machinery when the well ceased to flow without expectation of resumption of operations. Grubb v. McAfee, 109 Tex. 527, 212 S. W. 464.

Where an oil lease provided that the lessee would bring in a producing well within 11 months, and that within 30 days thereafter he should bring in another well and proceed with the same diligence until there should be at least five wells on the property, and that failure to prosecute the drilling should be construed as an abandonment of the lease other than as to producing wells, no judicial forfeiture was necessary where the lessee, after bringing in three producing wells, abandoned further operations. Gillette v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 619.

An oil lease, providing that if oil is found in paying quantities in the first well the lessee will in 30 days begin boring a second well on some other acre of the tract and continue to bore as developments may justify, until at least five or six wells have been completed, or the acre on which lessee has failed to drill a well reverts to lessor, is ambiguous, and will not sustain a forfeiture because of failure to bore all of five wells upon different acres. Decker v. Kirlicks, 110 Tex. 90, 216 S. W. 385.

Contrary to the general rule that forfeitures are not favored in law, the forfeiture of oil and gas lease is so favored, and the lease will be strictly construed against the lessee. Cockrum v. Christy (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 308.

Where oil and gas lease provided for forfeiture only on failure to pay the annual cash considerations on a fixed date, breaches of covenants will not forfeit the right of possession; there being a fair consideration for the lease. Pierce v. Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 193.

Rights of lessee under an oil and gas lease may be lost by abandonment, and abandonment is a question of intention, which may be established by circumstantial evidence, such as the removal of machinery, quitting the premises, and other circumstances showing an intention to relinquish all rights and interests in the leased premises. Hall v. McClesky (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1004.

In a suit by a landowner to cancel an oil and gas lease on the ground of abandonment, evidence held insufficient to show abandonment by lessee. Id.

In a suit to cancel an oil and gas lease for abandonment by lessee, evidence held insufficient to establish such ground. Hall v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1008.

Oil and gas lessors, who expressly repudiated the lease and forbade any development of the tract, are not in a position to invoke against the lessee as ground for cancellation the theory of abandonment by lessee. Texas Co. v. Curry (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 643.

Oil and gas lessors invoking against lessee the harsh remedy of forfeiture to obtain relief must show their right thereto plainly from the express terms of the lease itself, and not by implication or strained construction. Id.

Lessee's failure to operate wells during 2-year period after having drilled 21 wells on the land and after operating the wells apparently to the satisfaction of the parties for about 15 years, was not an abandonment entitling lessors to claim a forfeiture by reason of nonuser, where they had been operating at a loss, were involved in financial difficulties, and where they did not remove machinery from the premises, since in such case it did not appear that they intended permanently to relinquish their rights; abandonment being the intentional relinquishment of a vested right. Marnett Oil & Gas Co. v. Munsey (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 867.

Where oil lease entitled lessees to explore for oil and operate oil wells on payment of royalty to lessor, without authorizing lessor to claim a forfeiture by reason of nonuser for any period of time, the only way lessees could be divested was by a voluntary conveyance or a permanent abandonment of the leases. Id.

Testing or working—Construction, breach and penalties.—Where only consideration, moving to grantors of minerals, other than eighth interest in oil produced, was $5, real consideration was eighth portion of oil reserved, and it was duty of grantees by implication continuously to operate wells as contemplated. Munsey v. Marnett Oil & Gas Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 686.

Where oil wells were seized by bankruptcy court, lessees of lands, on showing they made effort to secure possession, or to operate under court's direction, could not be held liable in damages to lessors' successors during period for failure to operate under leases. Id.

In an oil and gas lease providing that, "when a well is once begun, the drilling thereof shall be prosecuted with due diligence until same is completed," word "completed" means finished, or sunk to the depth necessary to find oil or gas in paying quantities or to such a depth as would reasonably preclude probability of finding it at further depth. Frost v. Martin (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 72.

An oil and gas lease providing for forfeiture for suspension of drilling under certain conditions, held not to become absolute after the drilling of the first well, but that drilling of subsequent wells was to be prosecuted under the same conditions as the first. Stine v. Producers' Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 126.

Where an oil and gas lease provided that forfeiture might be avoided by payment of stipulated sum in cash every six months, an absolute obligation on part of the lessee to prosecute the drilling or to pay the stipulated amount was not imposed. Id.

Under oil lease conveying all oil under all the land for fixed payment and royalties, giving lessee right to subdivide and sell, and inhibiting drilling well within 300 feet of residence, except with consent of "both parties hereto, their heirs and assigns," assignee of part of excepted circle may drill thereon, lessor consenting, without consent of assignees of other parts. McFarlane v. Gulf Production Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 460.

The payment by lessee of a valuable consideration for his oil and gas lease does not relieve him of his obligation to proceed with diligence in the performance of his part of the contract. Aycock v. Reliance Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 848.

The definition of "oil in paying quantities" as not including, but, excluding the cost of drilling, is applicable, where the lessee has drilled the well and is operating it under the contract, and the lessor is seeking to take the premises from the lessee's possession on the ground that the well is not producing oil in paying quantities, but is not applicable where the lessee is required to drill a well when oil shall be found in paying quantities. Aycock v. Paraffine Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 851.

The contractual consideration of a five-year oil lease having been fully performed by the lessee by drilling a well, the lessee was under no obligation to drill another well in order to hold the lease for the five-year period. Key v. Big Sandy Oil & Gas Development Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 300.

The lessee of oil lands after oil was encountered in the first well sunk held under obligation implied by law to exercise reasonable diligence to continue drilling and mining operations on the land. Grubb v. McAfee, 109 Tex. 527, 212 S. W. 464.

Under written oil and gas lease between lot owners and trustees of oil company, trustee lessees held not precluded from drilling more than one well on the lots, or from drilling as many wells as appeared reasonably necessary to develop the land for oil and gas, provided the drilling of any subsequent wells would not necessitate the removal of any of the houses on the land when the lease contract was made. Grimes v. Goodman Drilling Co. (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 202.

Where plaintiff purchased the surface rights of a lot burdened with the terms of an oil and gas lease, he cannot complain of conditions produced by the trustee lessees and others such as are usual and customary during the drilling of an oil well. Id.

Under an oil lease providing "that in case the party of the second part fails to drill said wells, * * * said $500 shall be forfeited, * * * also oil leases hereby conveyed to be returned to the party of the first part," the party of the second part contracted to return or reassign the leases if the wells were not dug as contracted to be dug. Bois D'Arc Creek Oil & Gas Co. v. Southwestern Oil Corporation (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 115.

Where a contract for the lease of oil lands expressly binds lessee to begin actual development of the oil property, such obligation is not discharged by making reasonable efforts to secure third parties to develop the land. Bost v. Biggers Bros. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 1112.

Where oil and gas lease required lessee to begin drilling well and prosecute the drilling with due diligence to 2,000 feet if necessary before striking oil, the fact that lessee and his driller might be mistaken in their belief that a 2,000-foot well could be sunk with the drilling outfit with which they began to drill did not warrant forfeiture, unless on ascertaining inadequacy of such outfit he failed to make diligent effort to obtain an adequate drilling outfit. Cockrum v. Christy (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 308.

Where lessee selected the location of an oil well and hauled derrick timbers to the site, and selected and provided a water supply for drilling purposes, there was a "beginning of operations for the drilling of a well for oil" within the meaning of a lease requiring such operations to be begun within a certain time. McCallister v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 850.

Where an oil and gas lease provided that it should terminate on March 1st, in event no well was commenced, unless the lessee should pay or tender to the lessor stipulated rental, time was of the essence of the contract, the lessee not being bound to drill the well or pay the rental, and a failure to either drill the well or pay the rental within the stipulated time terminates the contract. Ford v. Cochran (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1041.

Where an oil and gas lease was made in consideration of lessee within 270 days completing a well within one mile of lessor's tract, and provided for commencement of a well on lessor's tract within 60 days after completion of the first well, which was to be drilled to a depth of 2,000 feet, lessee agreeing to pay rent for delay in drilling the well on lessor's premises, held, that lessee, having drilled the first well to the requisite depth before expiration of the time for its completion, was under no obligation to begin another within 60 days after such completion; a completed well meaning finished or sunk to the depth necessary to find oil, or to such a depth as, in the absence of oil, precludes a probability of finding it at a further depth. Hall v. McClesky (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1004.

Lessee, by placing timbers for erection of derrick and machinery, including boiler, on the ground where oil well was to be drilled, complied with provision requiring him to "commence to drill" well within certain period; the word "commence" being defined as "to perform the first act of." Terry v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1019.

An oil and gas lessee, by its election to continue the lease in force after the stipulated seven years within which it was required to drill for oil, was under an implied obligation to exercise reasonable diligence further to develop all the different tracts whenever the conditions reasonably required development to accomplish the purpose of the lessors in executing the lease, i. e., to realize profit from any oil to be found in the land. Texas Co. v. Curry (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 643.

Stipulations in an oil and gas lease relative to payment of rentals and drilling operations held not covenants by the lessee, but conditions subsequent, performance of which was optional, but nonperformance of which would result in termination of the interests conveyed, whether such rights amounted to an interest in the title to the land or merely a right to take possession for exploration or development and to own a proportion of the oil and gas produced. Id.

Under an oil and gas lease providing that, if the lessee sank a well and discovered oil or gas within the limits of time provided, the lease should be in effect for 20 years from discovery, the lessee owed an implied duty to exercise reasonable diligence for further development prior to expiration of the 20-year period specified, and if it failed to exercise such diligence with respect to any one of the several tracts embraced in the lease, and thus decided to abandon it as to such tract, the lease, perhaps, might be canceled, at the instance of lessors as to such tract on the theory of abandonment, but not of forfeiture. Id.

Contract for a lease and for development of oil land, a bond for its performance, and the lease executed in connection therewith, construed as one whole contract, held to show parties intended payment to lessor of amount of bond as liquidated damages for breach by failure to drill a well which should be begun on or before a fixed date, and that they did not intend that if the time to begin drilling was extended for one year by paying $1,000 therefor, as provided, lessor could also recover on the bond for failure to begin the well on or before the date fixed. Owings v. Prideaux (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 903.

In action on bond for performance of oil drilling contract in connection with an oil and gas lease, held that, as to the liability of defendant and his sureties, it was immaterial whether defendant had any interest in the lease. Id.

An oil lease expressly authorizing an assignment, and providing for termination unless a well was commenced within 200 feet of the lands before a specified date, was complied with where a corporation to which the lessee turned over adjoining lands in payment for stock was induced by the lessee to drill within the required distance for the purpose of carrying out the contract, though the corporation was not an assignee of the lease in question. Battle v. Adams (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 930.

An oil lease requiring a well to be commenced within 200 feet of the lessor's lands before a specified date was complied with if the lessee induced or procured a third party to drill a well within the required distance for the purpose of carrying out the contract, whether his contract with the third person was made before or after the execution of the lease. Id.

— Forfeiture for breach.—The lessee of oil lands after oil was encountered in the first well sunk held under obligation implied by law to exercise reasonable diligence to continue drilling and mining operations on the land, but the contract, which specified as the sole cause of forfeiture of the lessee's right a failure to drill a first well within time, did not make the obligation a condition subsequent, and did not authorize forfeiture of the lease for noncompliance. Grubb v. McAfee, 109 Tex. 527, 212 S. W. 464.

Because of the vagrant and fugitive nature of oil and gas, and the opportunity of an oil and gas lessee to injure the lessor by delaying development, the ordinary rule that equity abhors a forfeiture does not apply to an oil and gas lease under which the lessee wrongfully fails to develop. Hitson v. Gilman (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 140.

Under an oil lease calling for drilling of a well within six months, or payment of 25 cents per acre per annum as rentals until commencement of a well, the lessee, by paying rentals, cannot unduly delay development of the property, the provision for rentals being in the nature of a privilege enabling the lessee to avoid forfeiture where drilling is delayed because of some equitable reason, the payment of the rentals merely constituting consideration for the delay during the period covered, and not supplying the place of an original consideration for the lease, the privilege being but an option which must be supported by an original consideration. Id.

A paragraph in an oil lease, providing that "in case the grantee * * * should sink a well or shaft and discover either oil, gas or other minerals within the limits of time provided, then the conveyance should be in full force and effect for 20 years from the discovery of the product," held not to stipulate for a forfeiture, even by implication, but to refer to another paragraph of the lease, providing for forfeiture, but providing only that "operations for the drilling of a well for oil or gas" should be begun within a certain time. McCallister v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 859.

Where owner of four tracts of land executed a lease to the four as an entirety, purchasers of two of the tracts could not divide the contract into separate parts, and enforce a forfeiture of the lease in part only while it was valid as to the remainder; the purchaser acquiring no better right than the vendor possessed. Id.
