A provision in an oil lease, "After a well is begun no further payments in respect to delay shall be due, and for every well drilled there shall in all events be secure from forfeiture an area of two hundred (200) feet square, with the well in the center, together with one hundred sixty (160) acres of land adjoining," held not to provide for a forfeiture of lands not within such limits, but to be used only to remove all possible doubt of the right of the lessee to hold such amount of ground with a well in the center, etc. Id.

One who purchased part of a tract of land leased for oil, and denied the lessee any further rights in the tract purchased, thus put himself in default, and was therefore in no position to complain of the failure of the lessee to drill on his part of the land. Id.

Where an oil and gas lease provided that if a well were not drilled it should terminate, save on payment of stipulated rental, notice by lessor of intention to terminate the lease is not necessary, where the well was not commenced and the rental not paid. Ford v. Cochran (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1041.

Where lessees of an oil and gas lease failed either to sink the well or pay the rent within the time stipulated, lessor's refusal thereafter to accept the rent and suit to cancel the lease is sufficient declaration of forfeiture of the lease if any such declaration is required. Hickernell v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 691.

Where a lease requiring lessee to drill a well within a year or to make specified payments to renew the lease was supported by a valuable consideration other than the promise to drill, failure of lessee to drill the well within a year would not constitute ground for cancelling the lease; there being no agreement that it should work a forfeiture thereof. Burt v. Deorsam (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 354.

Where oil and gas leases provided that, if no well was commenced within one year, the lease should terminate unless the lessee paid a specified rental, but a contemporaneous contract between the same parties provided that failure to begin a well within one year should terminate all rights and privileges granted the lessee and that the provisions of the contract should be superior to and control the provisions of the lease, the lessee could not get an extension of time by paying the rental specified in the lease. Huber v. Smith (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 339.

A lessee cannot prolong the life of an oil lease by mere payment of rental, where the cash consideration is merely nominal, and where it is evident by terms of lease as a whole that the real consideration was development for oil. Buie v. Porter (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 999.

If a lease provides that it shall be null and void, and all rights under it shall determine, if a well be not drilled within a time stated, or unless the lessee pay a stipulated rental for delay in drilling well, or until one be completed such lessee may continue lease in force during term in which it was given by payment of rental. Id.

An oil provision lease requiring the completion of a well within a given time, and providing that upon failure to so do the lease shall be null and void, is one of forfeiture on a condition subsequent, so that it is immaterial whether the lease was a mere option to go on the land and exploit for oil and gas or a conveyance of the oil and gas under the land. Burnett v. Summerour (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1013.

Where operations for the drilling of a well were begun by an oil and gas lessee within the seven-year period required by the lease, and the lessor specifically enjoined on the lessee the duty to continue such operations until the well was finished, the lessors could not say that the lease terminated at the end of the seven-year period, where it required until after such period to finish the well by the exercise of due diligence on the part of the lessee. Texas Co. v. Curry (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 643.

A lease of oil land in proven territory, which provides for its continuance by beginning the drilling of a well or paying stipulated rentals, and which does not make the right to pay rentals instead of drilling dependent on lessee having a good reason for not drilling, or make the consideration of drilling more real than that of the rental, cannot be canceled for delay to develop because the delay was without good reason; rentals having been paid in lieu thereof. Link v. State's Oil Corporation (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 693.

Lessee in an oil lease, agreeing "to drill the fourth well drilled in C. F. field on these lands or forfeit contract," would comply with his contract by completing a well on lessor's land prior to finishing a fourth one on other lands, the word "drilled" being the past participle of the verb and meaning "completed," and it would be immaterial that more than three wells had been previously started on other lands. Texas Pac. Coal & Oil Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 237.

Where owner leased land as an entirety and by lease required lessees to develop the land for oil, without providing for development of any particular acre or tract thereof, the development of a portion of the land by a sublessee accrued to the benefit of the lessee, precluding the owner from declaring lease forfeited as to another portion held by lessee or successors for nondevelopment thereof. Duke v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 485.

— Waiver of forfeiture.—Provision in oil lease, providing for forfeiture if well is not drilled within specified time, being for lessor's benefit, may be waived by lessor. Von Hatzfeld v. Haubert (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 220.

Lessor, after having agreed from time to time to delays in drilling of well by lessee, will not be permitted to declare forfeiture for delay after lessee with lessor's acquiescence had at much expense drilled a productive well. Id.

Where tract of land was subject to oil and gas lease, and lessor sold a fraction thereof to one having knowledge of the existence of the lease, a waiver by grantor of lessee's failure to drill or pay a rental in lieu thereof when due did not bind grantee. Olsen v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 878.

— Actions.—In action to cancel oil leases for forfeiture by abandonment in charge on damages, court improperly instructed it was defendant lessees' duty to exercise "ordinary care" in operation of wells. Munsey v. Marnet Oil & Gas Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 686.

In a suit to forfeit an oil and gas lease for suspension of drilling in violation of the terms thereof, held error to fail to enter judgment canceling the lease, giving the lessee an opportunity to prevent forfeiture. Stine v. Producers' Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 136.

Where an oil and gas lease provided that forfeiture could be prevented by the payment of a stipulated sum or by resumption of drilling, the lessor was not entitled, where the lease was breached, to judgment both for cancellation, and for the cash payment. Id.

Evidence held insufficient to show that lessee who was required by oil and gas lease to begin drilling of well within certain period and prosecute the work with diligence to a depth of 2,000 feet if necessary, was not prosecuting the work with due diligence and in good faith with intention to sink the well begun by him to a depth of 2,000 feet if necessary. Cockrum v. Christy (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 308.

In a suit to declare an optional lease terminated for nonperformance of the express conditions on which its continuation depended, the general rule that a court of equity will not enforce a forfeiture, but will often lend its aid to prevent one, does not apply. Ford v. Cochran (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1041.

In lessor's action to declare forfeiture of oil and gas lease, where original lease was modified by subsequent agreement, introduction of the original lease in evidence was not error, where lessor had made such lease an exhibit in his petition, and where consideration of such lease was necessary in determining whether its terms authorized a forfeiture. Von Hatzfeld v. Haubert (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 220.

In an action to cancel an oil and gas lease on the ground of abandonment, direction of a verdict for the lessee held proper; the facts at the most showing nothing more than a lack of diligence in pursuing the work of development. Pierce v. Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 193.

Testimony merely that lessee's agent told lessor he would give him a contract to drill a well and would give a contract like a neighbor's, which did not require the drilling of the well, held not sufficient to show that the consideration for the lease which, as executed by lessor did not contain that promise, was the promise to drill the well. Burt v. Deorsam (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 354.

Where a contract executed contemporaneously with oil and gas leases provided that the lessee should make a deposit to guarantee performance of the contract for the use and benefit of the lessors who should furnish a good and merchantable title and that in no event was any lessor to have any right to the sum deposited unless he should have a good and merchantable title to the land leased, the lessors could not recover such deposit on the lessee's default, without pleading and proving that they had a good and merchantable title. Huber v. Smith (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 339.

An action to cancel an oil lease, by reason of lessee's failure to comply with its agreement "to drill the fourth well drilled in C. F. field on these lands or forfeit contract," was prematurely brought, where more than three wells had been started on other lands, but not more than three of them had been completed. Texas Pac. Coal & Oil Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 237.

Rent or royalties—In general.—Where plaintiff was entitled to one-fourth of the royalties from a well, she may adopt the arrangement made by her co-owners with the owners of another well as to the division of the proceeds of two wells, the oil from both being run into the same pipe line without being measured. Gillette v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 619.

Where a landowner, who had given an oil lease providing that in event the lessee failed to develop, the lease should be forfeited, but the lessee should be entitled to retain any producing well and to seven acres around the same, devised adjoining small parcels to plaintiff and defendant, and there was a producing well on the parcel devised to defendants, held that, after forfeiture of the lease, plaintiff was entitled to share in the royalties from the producing well, though it was located solely on the parcel devised to defendants; the chief value of the land being the oil thereunder. Id.

Stipulation in an oil and gas lease relative to payment of rentals and drilling operations held not covenants by the lessee, but conditions subsequent, performance of which was optional, but nonperformance of which would result in termination of the interests conveyed, whether such rights amounted to an interest in the title to the land or merely a right to take possession for exploration or development and to own a proportion of the oil and gas produced. Texas Co. v. Curry (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 643.

— Amount and time of payment.—Under an oil lease providing for forfeiture if rentals were not paid within 10 days after due, rental due February 1st could be paid February 11th. White v. Dennis (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 161.

Where lessee assigned his interest in oil lease in different portions of the land in severalty to different persons, who in turn assigned their interests to the same person, such person, holding the lessee's interest as to the entire land, could not extend lease as to only a portion of the land by payment of only a portion of the rental, though lease provided that, on assignment as to a part of the land, the default of assignee should not affect lease in so far as it covered other portions of the land as to which rental was duly paid; such provision being applicable only in case the rights in different portions of the land were held by different persons, the optional right to pay rental being indivisible, where rights as to all the land were vested in one person. Young v. Jones (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 691.

Under a mineral lease dated December 1, 1916, providing that the lessee might prevent forfeiture by paying a specified annual rental quarterly in advance, payment of such rental on December 1 would have been in time, under the rule that the day on which a cause of action accrues is to be excluded, and, where that day was Sunday, payment on the following day was in time. Semans v. Adams (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 353.

Where an oil and gas lease provided that a well should be started within 90 days and allowed a period of 270 days in which to complete it to the requisite depth, and also that lessee would begin another well within 60 days or pay a certain rental per annum until the expiration of 3 years, the 60-day period for payment of the rental began, not on expiration of the 270 days, but with the completion of the first well, which did not require the full time allowed therefor. Hall v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1008.

Where an oil lease provided lessee should begin drilling a well or pay rentals in quarterly installments "on or before" the beginning of each quarter, a payment for a year in advance complied with its terms. Link v. State's Oil Corporation (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 693.

— Mode of payment.—A provision in an oil lease providing that the lessee could extend the time for drilling a well, by paying to the lessor or depositing to his credit in a certain bank a certain sum of money, made the bank the agent of the lessor, and payment to the bank had the same effect as payment to the lessor. McKay v. Tally (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 167; Same v. Fulgham (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 171; Hunter v. Gulf Production Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 163; Cockrum v. Christy (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 308.

Lessee's deposit of check in designated bank to lessor's credit for extension of lease under provision of lease providing therefor held sufficient to extend term of lease as against objection that actual money was not deposited, where lease did not require deposit to be made in coin or currency. Jackson v. Pure Oil Operating Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 959.

Where a bank was by the provisions of an oil lease the agent of the lessor for the receipt of moneys to be paid under the contract, instructions from the lessor to the bank not to receive a certain installment, which would by the terms of the contract protect it from cancellation for a year, of which instructions the lessee had no notice, could not affect the lessee. McKay v. Kilcrease (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 177.

Where $20 was payable quarterly as rental on an oil lease assigned by lessee to two persons, and each of the assignees gave lessee a check for $20 to cover the rental of his undivided interest and one of the checks was dishonored, there was no default by the assignees of the lease; the assignees filing a joint answer in an action by the lessor to cancel the lease, it being immaterial to a lessor as to who pays rentals due. Broyles v. Gilman (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 685.

Where an oil and gas lease provided that rentals should be deposited in a named bank to the credit of the lessor, that bank was thereby constituted an agent for the lessor for the receipt of the money, and all that was necessary for lessee to do on the day rentals were due was to deposit them in such bank to the credit of the lessor, and was not required to attempt to force lessor to go to the bank, or to receive the money, though lessor had instituted an action to cancel the lease. Richmond v. Hog Creek Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 563.

— Forfeiture and re-entry for non-payment.—If failure to pay rental operated to terminate oil lease, it was not a condition precedent to right of lessors to claim forfeiture to notify lessee of such claim before the rental was deposited in the bank to the lessor's credit. Weiss v. Claborn (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 884.

Where by the terms of an oil lease a bank was the agent of lessor to receive rentals, no formal tender of the money was necessary to avoid a forfeiture of the lease, where the cashier of the bank refused to accept the rental when offered, especially where such refusal was induced by a statement theretofore made by the lessor to the effect that he considered the lease already forfeited. White v. Dennis (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 161.

Where oil lease provided that rentals for extensions of the lease should be paid to the lessor, or deposited to his credit in a certain bank before a certain date, payment to the bank of the rentals had the same effect as payment to the lessor, and any failure of the bank to pay the money to the lessor, or to give him proper credit on its books, is not properly chargeable to the lessee. Hunter v. Gulf Production Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 163.

Assuming that payment of $1, recited in oil lease, was not sufficient to support the contract, a payment of $13.50 and its acceptance by the lessor was sufficient to maintain the contract in force during the period that such payment would by the terms of the contract protect it from cancellation; the contract providing for an annual payment of such amount to prevent forfeiture for failure to begin a well. McKay v. Kilcrease (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 177.

Where oil and gas lease merely gave lessee the right to enter on land, and take a portion of the oil and gas therefrom, without conveying a present interest therein, and provided for the termination of lessee's right, on failure to drill or make specified payment on or before certain date, the failure to drill or pay the stipulated amount on or before such date, constituted a forfeiture against which equity will not give relief, though failure to make necessary payment was due to a mistake as to amount, and though an amount less than that specified was tendered prior to such date, and the full amount tendered subsequent thereto. Young v. Jones (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 691.

Where oil and gas lease provided for a forfeiture of the lease on lessee's failure to commence drilling operations and prosecute the same with due diligence within six months, and further provided that lessee could prevent such forfeiture from year to year for specified number of years by payment of specified rentals to designated bank yearly during such period, there was a forfeiture of lease for lessee's failure to commence drilling operations within the 6 months, or during such time pay the specified rentals for following year, notwithstanding payment of such rental subsequent to expiration of six-month period, since such payment, in order to prevent a forfeiture, must have been made before the forfeiture occurred, and since the bank had no authority to receive the rents except in accordance with the terms of the lease. Bailey v. Williams (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 311.

Delay in payment of rentals under an oil lease, with no intention of tenant to abandon lease, is no ground for forfeiture if the tenant later offers to pay all rentals due; at least where lease does not stipulate for forfeiture for failure to pay when due. Collins v. Humble Oil & Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 696.

A tender by the assignee of an oil lease on March 7 of rent due March 1, delayed on account of illness in his family, did not prevent termination of the lease specially providing therefor unless lessee drilled a well or paid rent on or before the latter date. Ford v. Barton (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 268.

In an oil and gas lease the provision for payment of a stipulated rental in case development is not begun is a condition subsequent, under which the enjoyment of the estate depends on the performance thereof, and the lease can be forfeited for non-performance, not a covenant, for breach of which the only remedy is by action for damages. Hickernell v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 691.

Where a lease and option contract in the form of a usual lease provided that, if no well was commenced on or before a fixed date, the lease should terminate, unless the lessee on or before that date shall tender or pay to the lessor's credit in a named bank the sum of $80, the contract will be forfeited, where the lessee failed to make payment or deposit within the time limited, notwithstanding he deposited the payment in the mails, directed to the bank, in sufficient time for it ordinarily to have reached the bank in time, for time was of the essence of the contract. Appling v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 708.

Where an oil and gas lease required the lessee to begin a well within a time fixed or to pay rental by date of termination, the agreement was a mere option, and in event of the lessee's failure to begin the well or make the payment by the time fixed, forfeiture will be declared despite the rule that equity does not favor forfeitures and will ordinarily relieve against them. Id.

Forfeitures are not favored, and, where it is sought to forfeit an oil and gas lease for nonpayment of rent, the interpretation of the language used in refusing a tender of rent necessary to continuance of lease and the acts of the parties most reasonably suggested so as to avoid the forfeiture will be accepted. Milner v. McGuire (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 421.

Where an assignee of a portion of an oil and gas lease requiring payment of rent in event a well was not drilled within specified time by check tendered rent the day after it was due, and the tender was refused on the ground that it came too late, the lessor is restricted to the ground specified, and it, being untenable cannot justify the refusal and consequent forfeiture on the ground that the tender was not in money. Id.

— Actions.—In an action to cancel an oil, gas, and sulphur lease, evidence held insufficient to sustain the verdict of the jury to the effect that assignee of lease paid to bank rental when due. Varnes v. Dean (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1017.

III. OPERATION OF MINES AND WELLS

Rights and liabilities as to third persons.—Commercial enterprise storing explosives in a public place or near a private residence is liable for damages if the enterprise is unlawfully or negligently conducted and fire results, the storing of explosives constituting in such case actionable nuisance. McGuffey v. Pierce-Fordyce Oil Ass'n (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 335.

The holder of a legal title to an oil lease can defend his title against an equitable claim under a prior contract for sale by showing that the holder of the equitable claim is without equity. Priddy v. Green (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 243.

Contracts for testing or working.—Where oil well drilling contractors abandoned contract to clean oil well, because of oil company's noncompliance with agreement to furnish them necessary tools wherewith to do the work, they were not liable to the company for advances made and used by them in part for purchase of supplies which the company had agreed to furnish, and in part as part payment on contract, where their damages exceeded such part payment in amount. Hoppes v. Williams (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 328.

In action to recover for cost of boring wells under a contract with two landowners who agreed to pay plaintiff through a third party, evidence held not to sustain a verdict that defendants were jointly liable. Harlan v. Falfurries Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 649.

Contractor who agreed to drill to specified depth unless owner instructed him to discontinue the drilling at a lesser depth, and who temporarily discontinued drilling and undertook to ream the well for casing, could not recover expenses of reclaiming the well after it was wrecked in the process of reaming, though the contract did not call for reaming well. Empire Gas & Fuel Co. v. Couch (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1103.

Contractor, having agreed to drill to specified number of feet unless owner instructed him to discontinue at a lesser depth, was required, in order to recover for digging a fewer number of feet, to justify his failure to dig the specified number of feet by establishing facts that the owner instructed him to cease drilling operations and assumed control of the well. Id.

MINORS—REMOVAL OF DISABILITIES OF

Art. 5947. When may have disabilities removed. Art. 5949. Shall be deemed of full age.

Article 5947. [3499] When may have disabilities removed.

Construction and operation in general.—Enforcement of judgment will not be temporarily enjoined on ground that at time it was rendered debtor was minor, not represented by guardian appointed by any court, where it is not alleged that at time judgment was rendered minor's disability had not been removed by district judge, as authorized by statute. Janks v. Herrick Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 896.

The minor's residence is always that of his father, so that the term "reside," does not refer to the place of minor's bodily presence, but to his domicile with his parents. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lemons, 109 Tex. 244, 206 S. W. 75, 5 A. L. R. 943.

To relieve a minor's disabilities with respect to choice of domicile, the statutory method for removal of disabilities must be pursued. Id.

Jurisdiction.—That a father gave a minor son the right to work in another county and to spend his earnings, did not confer upon the minor the right to choose his residence, or oust the jurisdiction of the district court of the father's residence over the minor's application for removal of disabilities. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lemons, 109 Tex. 244, 206 S. W. 75, 5 A. L. R. 943.

Art. 5949. [3501] Shall be deemed of full age.

Validity of acts.—Where plaintiff, after removal of his disabilities as a minor, converted to his own use land obtained through a previous contract of settlement with defendant for plaintiff's personal injury, he ratified the settlement. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lemons, 109 Tex. 244, 206 S. W. 75, 5 A. L. R. 943.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

4. Emancipation by parent.—If claimant of cotton levied on under execution against his father was emancipated at 17, and did business for himself and in his own name, and rented land and grew cotton at his own expense, cotton belonged to him, and not to his father. Turner v. Brown (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1161.

As respects stepdaughter's right to money given or paid her by her stepfather for services rendered, and by her loaned to him, it is immaterial whether she had been emancipated by him, or whether, under circumstances, he was in loco parentis to her and entitled to her services. Youngblood v. Hoefle (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1057.

Emancipation of stepdaughter by stepfather does not necessarily make her liable for board and for clothing purchased by him while she was living with him, where there was no understanding by either that a charge was to be made therefor. Id.

The emancipation of a minor by his parents does not remove his disabilities or affect his right to disaffirm his contract; hence, in an action for disaffirmance of an infant's contract, the question of whether he has been emancipated is immaterial. Mast v. Strahan (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 790.

6. Custody—Proceedings in which custody may be awarded.—See Code Cr. Proc., arts. 69, 92, 160, 174, and notes.

7. — Right to custody in general.—The welfare and happiness of infant children is the controlling factor in determining their custody. State v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 718; Anderson v. Cossey (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 624.

Where no reasons are shown why a surviving parent should not have the custody, management, and control of his minor child, such parent is entitled to such control. Burchard v. Woodward (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 707; Ex parte Gordon (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 520.

In a controversy between the mother and the paternal grandfather of the child on habeas corpus proceedings, the court will award custody for the best interest of the child, even though the mother is not an immoral person and has not transferred custody by an instrument in writing. Radicke v. Radicke (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 964.

Father, who had no home, was thriftless and improvident, whose income was small and uncertain, who had been cruel to infant daughters and mother, and who had no one to care for daughters, was not entitled to their custody following death of mother, to whom the daughters had been awarded by divorce decree, as against maternal grandparents, who had supported them practically all their lives, had adopted them, had a good home, and were well able to support them. State v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 718.

Law and best interests of society demand that natural rights of father to custody of his children be made subservient to interest and welfare of children. Id.

Where after the death of his wife, petitioner agreed that the maternal grandparents of his daughter should raise and educate the child subject to his orders, and that he was to live with them, and the arrangement continued for some seven years, when petitioner remarried, his second wife being a woman of refinement, who was very fond of the child, held that as petitioner was able to give the child advantages, it appearing that he earned from $165 to $200 a month, he was entitled to the custody of the child, and a judgment giving the grandparents the custody during part of the year was improper. Carter v. Lambert (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 566.

The sister of a minor who was intrusted with the child's temporary custody does not have authority to give consent to an operation, but only the father of the child may give consent. Moss v. Rishworth (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 225, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Rishworth v. Moss, 191 S. W. 843.

A father is not the owner of his child in the sense of its being his personal property; his legal right to its custody arising from the law's regard for the child's welfare, and if he lacks solicitude for his child's welfare so as to indicate absence of usual natural affection, and some one else is ready and willing to give such child a suitable home, the court will, in the child's interest, award its custody to the latter. Clayton v. Kerbey (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1117.

In an action for child's custody, its welfare is the paramount issue, and that it will be best served by committing it to the parent must appear from the evidence, and it does prima facie so appear when parentage is proven, and the law so presumes until the contrary is shown. Id.

Where the father of a baby on his wife's death gave her into the custody of her maternal grandmother, who cared for the infant until she was 14, the mere fact that the father, who had married again and had other children, was a proper person to have the custody of the infant, does not entitle him to its custody, regardless of the wishes of the infant, who had become estranged from her father, stepmother, and half-sisters, and the maternal grandparent should be allowed to retain custody where for the best interests of the child. Dunn v. Jackson (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 351, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 959.

The parent is the guardian by nature of his children, and his right to their custody is paramount, but this right may be forfeited by misconduct or lost through misfortune. Id.

8. — Gift of child.—A parent may surrender the custody of his child to a third person, and on habeas corpus proceedings by the parent to regain the custody the paramount interest of the child becomes the dominant issue. Dunn v. Jackson (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 351, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 959.

9. — Evidence.—On habeas corpus, findings as to character of child's mother, her feelings towards the child, and the circumstances and feelings of respondents held to warrant conclusion that child's best interests demanded that possession and custody remain with respondents. Dugan v. Smith (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 654.

Evidence held to show that it was to the best interest of a minor child that its custody should be given to the paternal grandfather instead of the mother. Radicke v. Radicke (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 964.

In father's habeas corpus proceedings to secure custody of children, whom he has never supported, and to whom he has been cruel, it will not be presumed that the best interests of the children will be subserved by placing them in father's custody. State v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 718.

In father's habeas corpus proceeding to procure custody of children from maternal grandparents, in whose care children had been placed upon mother's death, following her divorce from father, evidence of the adoption of the children by the grandparents was admissible. Id.

In habeas corpus proceedings by father to recover possession of his child from its grandparents, evidence tending to show that he had once been found drunk, and that an unknown woman had at one time claimed him as her property, held insufficient to establish his unfitness to have his child's custody. Cardenas v. Barrera (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 474.

In a habeas corpus proceeding to obtain the custody and control of a child, evidence held to justify the court in awarding the custody of the child to the grandparents instead of the father. Burchard v. Burchard (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 707.

Comparative affection for the child and willingness and ability to administer to its present and future material and moral welfare are for the jury's consideration for what, under the evidence, they may deem them to be worth. Clayton v. Kerbey (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1117.

9½. — Trial and determination.—Whether it is to the interest of a minor child that its custody should be given to the mother or paternal grandfather is a question of fact in the first instance for the trial court. Radicke v. Radicke (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 964.

On habeas corpus to determine the custody of children as between divorced parents, where the well-being of the children furnishes the sole occasion for the exercise of judicial power, a broad discretion is by law vested in the court which has the parties and witnesses before it, and, when on a full hearing a determination has been made, an appellate tribunal will not interfere therewith where the record fails to disclose lack of sufficient evidence or a response to other than sound judicial consideration. Foster v. Foster (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1064.

In determining the custody of a child, its wishes, where sufficiently mature to judge for itself, should be consulted, and weighed with the other testimony, but the child's choice is not necessarily a controlling factor. Dunn v. Jackson (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 351.

10. Conveyances and contracts in general.—Neither relationship of stepdaughter and stepfather nor fact that stepdaughter lived in stepfather's home and that he bought her clothing, books, and scholarship in business college, etc., would deprive her of right of ownership in money loaned him by her. Youngblood v. Hoeffle (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1057.

Deed of Indian allottee of land under the United States laws was void and conveyed no title if at the time of executing the deed the Indian was a minor. Langford v. Newsom (Com. App.) 220 S. W. 544, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Newsom v. Langford, 174 S. W. 1036.

A minor may be charged as a trustee. Hughes v. Hughes (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 970, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 742.

In a minor's action to recover back money paid a college for tuition, etc., testimony that he undertook to enter the college on his own responsibility, the money to be advanced by his father and charged to his interest in his mother's estate, evidence that a catalogue, relied on as constituting a contract with the father was ordered by plaintiff and received by him and never seen by the father, and that the father did not intend to contract or pay for his son's education, supported a finding that plaintiff acted for himself and not as his father's agent. Peacock Military College v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 221.

Where a minor was acting for himself in enrolling with a military college, the belief of the college president that he had authority to bind his father, did not establish a contract with the father, or prevent the minor from rescinding the contract in the absence of estoppel. Id.

The right of a tenant in common to dispose of a designated portion of the common property, and thus make partition, is not affected by the minority or other disability of his cotenant, and, where otherwise fair, will take effect. Brown v. Brown (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1058.

10<sup>1/2</sup>. Gifts to minor.—An infant is capable of being donee of property, and in case of gift to infant no formal acceptance is necessary, but, if gift is for his advantage, the law accepts it for him, and will hold the donor bound; while, if gift is not for infant's advantage, the law will repudiate it, at his instance, even though he in terms has accepted it. Youngblood v. Hoeffle (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1057.

11. Necessaries.—A minor may repudiate a contract for necessaries to be furnished in the future, but will be liable for those already furnished. Peacock Military College v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 221.

15. Avoidance of conveyances or contracts—in general.—Where the money, paid by a minor to a military college, was obtained from his father pursuant to an understanding that it was to be advanced to him and charged to his share in his mother's estate, he had title to the money, entitling him to recover it on rescission of the contract. Peacock Military College v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 221.

16. — Who may take advantage of minority.—Purchase of personalty by infant is voidable at his option, but the adult seller cannot avoid the transaction. Youngblood v. Hoeffle (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1057.

The right of a minor to disaffirm his deed or contract is personal, and a minor holding land in trust, in which he has no personal interest, cannot disaffirm a deed of such land. Hughes v. Hughes (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 970, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 742.

17. — Time of disaffirming.—Generally one entitled to disaffirm an act voidable because of an incapacity to perform it by reason of minority or want of disposing mind must disaffirm the voidable act within a reasonable time after the disability has been removed. White v. Holland (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 611.

19. — Restoration of consideration.—One seeking disaffirmance of deed or contract on the ground of minority must restore the consideration, if still in his possession or within his control. Hughes v. Hughes (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 970, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 742.

When an infant disaffirms a contract and returns to his seller personal property bought by him, he is not liable for depreciation in the value of the property while in his possession, unless it be on the ground of tort. Mast v. Strahan (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 790.

21. Injuries to minors.—Damages to parent for injury to child are not determined by deducting from value of his services during minority expense of feeding and clothing, since parent has to feed and clothe child anyway. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Lawrence (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1020.

$4,500 held not excessive damages to parent for loss of arm of 13 year old boy, where suit was not brought until child was 21. Id.

Injured party's minority has nothing to do with amount to be awarded as damages in his action for injuries, except that damages for loss or impairment of capacity to labor and earn money is confined to time following majority. Southern Traction Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 150.

In action by parents of boy injured at railroad crossing, mere fact boy was in good health prior to losing arm at 10 years of age, standing alone in proof, furnished no basis on which jury could fix money value of services to parents during minority. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 674.

In father's action for personal injuries to minor daughter while boarding street car, instruction as to measure of damages failing to limit recovery for services to daughter's minority was error. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Crouch (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 781.

Where a nine year old boy was injured by the explosion of dynamite caps which he found on his father's premises, where they had been placed by the city's employés, so as to be accessible and attractive to children, the act of the employés was the proximate mate cause of the injury, notwithstanding that the injury occurred next day, while plaintiff was attempting to solder two of the caps together. City of Lubbock v. Bagwell (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 371.

Though an owner, who neither expressly nor impliedly invites public to come upon his premises, is under no obligation to keep them free from pitfalls or in a condition of safety for persons, whether adults or infants, who in pursuit of pleasure or convenience go upon or pass over such premises, if he maintains upon his premises something which, on account of its nature and surroundings, is especially and unusually calculated to attract and does attract children, invitation may be inferred, and he may be held liable, in the absence of contributory negligence for injury resulting to a child attracted thereby, this rule not being restricted to injuries resulting from turntables. Flippen-Prather Realty Co. v. Mather (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 121.

A lessee of an unused open air theater attractive to children, who places a bomb containing explosives therein, so that it may be set off by electric contract on opening the door, is liable for injuries to a child caused by the explosion of the bomb, although the person injured was a trespasser. Phelps v. Hamlett (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 425.

There can be no recovery in favor of a mother on account of mental suffering and anxiety caused by injuries to her child. Chrono v. Gonzales (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 368.

Where surgeons, without obtaining the consent of a minor's parents, but with the consent of the sister of the child in whose custody she temporarily was, operated on the child for diseased tonsils, the failure to obtain the parents' consent cannot be justified on the ground that the operation was necessary, and that if the tonsils were not removed serious results might have followed; it not appearing that there was any emergency. Moss v. Rishworth (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 225, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) Rishworth v. Moss, 191 S. W. 843.

Where father knew of the employment of his son by defendant mill owner, and visited the mill frequently and saw the son at work and raised no objection to the employment, such knowledge and acquiescence constituted consent, and he is estopped to urge such employment as a ground of negligence. Van Landers v. West Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 692.

27. Operation and effect of judgment against infant.—In the absence of statute to the contrary, a court can execute against infants having no permanent guardian a judgment which it had jurisdiction to render, and they are subject, as other persons, to such process. Simmons v. Arnim, 110 Tex. 309, 220 S. W. 66, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 172 S. W. 184.

Judgment against infant defendants, who were not served, is void or at least voidable. Levy v. Roper (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 514.

28. Setting aside or enjoining judgment against minor.—Enforcement of judgment will not be temporarily enjoined on ground that at time it was rendered debtor was minor, not represented by guardian appointed by any court, where it is not shown that plaintiff now or ever owned any property. Janks v. Herrick Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 896.

[Acts 1909, p. 32, § 15; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 39, § 7a, amending art. 5973, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 5975. Bonds, form of; denominations, term.—All bonds issued under the provisions of this chapter shall be issued in the name of the navigation district, shall be signed by the county judge of the county whose commissioners' court has jurisdiction of said district, shall be attested by the county clerk, and the seal of the commissioners' court of such county shall be affixed to each; they shall be issued in such denominations and payable at such time, or times, not exceeding forty years from their date, as may be deemed most expedient by said commissioners' court, and said bonds shall bear interest not to exceed six per cent per annum. [Acts 1909, p. 32, § 16; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 39, § 8, amending art. 5975, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 5978. Record of bonds to be kept; duties and fees of clerk.—When bonds shall have been issued under the provisions of this chapter, the navigation board of said district shall procure and deliver to the treasurer of the county whose commissioners' court has jurisdiction, a well bound book in which a record shall be kept of all such bonds, with their numbers, amount, rate of interest, date of issuance, when due, where payable, amount received for same, the tax levy to pay interest on and to provide sinking funds for their payment. And said book shall at all times be open to the inspection of the parties interested in said district, either as taxpayers, or bondholders or otherwise; and upon payment of any bond, an entry thereof shall be made in said book. The county treasurer shall receive for his services in recording these matters the same fees as may be allowed by law to the county clerk for other like records. [Acts 1909, p. 32, § 19; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 39, § 9, amending art. 5978, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 5982. Tax to pay interest and create sinking fund; maintenance tax.

Construction and operation in general.—The grant of taxing power to any county or district by the Legislature should be construed with strictness, the presumption being that the Legislature has granted in clear terms all it intended to grant. State v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 820.

The "Harris County Ship Channel Navigation District of Harris County," though having the same boundaries as Harris county, has no power of taxation, except such as is expressly conferred upon it by the law of its creation. Id.

Property subject to taxation.—In view of Const. art. 8, § 8, and Rev. St. art. 7525, Legislature might empower navigation district to tax rolling stock and intangible property of railroad, notwithstanding Const. art. 8, § 11, providing that property shall be assessed "in the county where situated," such property having no actual situs, but this article giving navigation district power to tax property "within said * * * district" gives no power to tax rolling stock and intangible assets of railroad, such property not being within said district, and being property of such character that it has no actual situs, and not being physically within such district. State v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 320.

Navigation district's power to "tax property within said navigation district, whether real, personal, mixed, or otherwise," gives district no power to tax intangible assets and rolling stock of railroad upon theory that the term "mixed or otherwise" gives such authority, for such words relate back to, and are qualified by, the words "property within said navigation district." Id.

Art. 5984. Tax proceedings; compensation of assessor.—The Navigation Board of said district shall provide all necessary additional books for the use of assessors and collectors of taxes and the clerk of the commissioners' court of jurisdiction for said navigation districts. The tax assessors of each county in said navigation district, when ordered to do so by the commissioners' court having jurisdiction of said district, shall assess all property within said navigation district which is located in his county and list the same for taxation in the books or rolls furnished him for said purpose, and return said books or rolls at the same time when he returns the other books or rolls of the State and county taxes for correction and approval to the commissioners' court of his county, and if said court shall find said books or rolls correct they shall approve the same, and in all matters pertaining to the assessment of property for taxation in said district, the tax assessors and boards of equalization of the counties in which said district is located shall be authorized to act and shall be governed by the laws of Texas for assessing and equalizing property for State and county taxes, except as herein provided. All taxes authorized to be levied by this chapter shall be a lien upon the property upon which said taxes are assessed, and said taxes may be paid and shall mature and be paid at the time provided by the laws of this State for the payment of State and county taxes; and all the penalties provided by the laws of this State for the non-payment of State and county taxes shall apply to all taxes authorized to be levied by this chapter. The tax assessors shall receive for such services such compensation as the said navigation and canal commissioners shall deem proper; provided that said county assessors shall in no event be allowed more than they are now allowed for like services. Should any tax assessor fail or refuse to comply with the orders of said commissioners' court requiring him to assess and list for taxation all the property in such navigation district, as herein provided, he shall be suspended from the further discharge of his duties by the commissioners' court of his county, and he shall be removed from office in the mode prescribed by law for the removal of county officers. [Acts 1909, p. 32, § 24; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 39, § 10, amending art. 5984, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 5985. Compensation of tax collector; additional bond required.—That tax collectors of the several counties in said navigation district shall be charged with the assessment rolls of navigation districts, and are required to make collection of all taxes levied and assessed against the property in their county within such district and promptly pay over the same to the treasurer of the county the commissioners' court of which has jurisdiction of said district; and said tax collectors shall be allowed no more compensation for the collection of said taxes than is now allowed for collection of other taxes, same to be fixed by the navigation and canal commissioners. The bonds of such collectors shall stand as security for the proper performance of their duties as tax collectors of such navigation districts; or, if in the judgment of the navigation and canal commissioners of such districts it be necessary, additional bonds, payable to such districts, may be required, and in all matters pertaining to the collection of taxes levied under the provisions of this chapter, the tax collectors shall be authorized to act and shall be governed by the laws of the State of Texas for the collection of State and county taxes, except as herein provided; and suits may be brought for the collection of said taxes and the enforcement of the tax liens created by this chapter. Should any collector of taxes fail or refuse to give such additional bond or security as herein provided, when requested to do so by said navigation and canal commissioners, within the time prescribed by law for such purposes, he shall be suspended from office by the commissioners' court of his county, and immediately thereafter be removed from office in the mode prescribed by law. [Acts 1909, p. 32, § 25; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 39, § 11, amending art. 5985, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Explanatory.—The title of the act, in enumerating the articles of the statute amended, omits art. 5985.

Art. 5987. County treasurer; duties.—The county treasurer of the county, the commissioners' court of which has jurisdiction of said district, shall be treasurer of said navigation district, and it shall be his duty to open an account of all monies received by him belonging to such district and all amounts paid out by him. He shall pay out no money except upon a voucher signed by the chairman or any two of said navigation and canal commissioners, or the said commissioners' court, and he shall carefully preserve on file all orders for the payment of money; and, as often as required by the said commissioners, or the said commissioners' court, he shall render a correct account to them of all matters pertaining to the financial condition of such district. [Acts 1909, p. 32, § 27; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 39, § 12, amending art. 5987, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 5988. County Treasurer to give special bond; additional bond.

See Charlton v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 969.

Art. 5992. Work, how done; contracts, how let when U. S. Government fails to act.—If the improvement or improvements be not carried out and performed by the Government of the United States, as herein provided, the contract or contracts for such improvement or improvements shall be let by the navigation and canal commissioners, and the same shall be awarded to the lowest and best responsible bidder, after giving notice by advertising the same in one or more newspapers of general circulation in the State of Texas once a week for four consecutive weeks, and by posting notices for at least thirty days in five public places in the county of jurisdiction, one of which shall be at the court house door, and at least two of which shall be within said district. Nothing herein contained shall prevent the making of more than one improvement, and where more than one improvement is to be made, the contract may be let separately for each or one contract for all such improvements. [Acts 1909, p. 32, § 32; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 39, § 13, amending art. 5992, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 6000. Unlawful for officers to be interested in contracts.—Neither the county judge of any county in said navigation district, nor any county commissioner of said counties, nor members of the navigation board or engineer shall be directly or indirectly interested for themselves, or as agents for any one else, in the contract for the construction of any work to be performed by such navigation district. [Acts 1909, p. 32, § 40; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 39, § 14, amending art. 6000, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

TITLE I. NEGOTIABLE INSTRUMENTS IN GENERAL

ARTICLE I. FORM AND INTERPRETATION

Article 6001—1. Instruments negotiable.—An instrument to be negotiable must conform to the following requirements:

1. It must be in writing and signed by the maker or drawer;
2. It must contain an unconditional promise or order to pay a sum certain in money;
3. Must be payable on demand, or at a fixed or determinable future time;
4. Must be payable to order or to bearer; and
5. Where the instrument is addressed to a drawee, he must be named or otherwise indicated therein with reasonable certainty. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 123, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 6001—2. Sum certain.—The sum payable is a sum certain with the meaning of this Act, although it is to be paid:

1. With interest; or
2. By stated instalments; or
3. By stated instalments, with a provision that upon default in payment of any instalment or of interest, the whole shall become due; or
4. With exchange, whether at a fixed rate or at the current rate; or
5. With costs of collection or an attorney's fee, in case payment shall not be made at maturity. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 6001—3. Unconditional order or promise to pay.—An unqualified order or promise to pay is unconditional within the meaning of this act, though coupled with:

1. An indication of a particular fund out of which reimbursement is to be made, or a particular account to be debited with the amount; or
2. A statement of the transaction which gives rise to the instrument, But an order or promise to pay out of a particular fund is not unconditional. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 6001—4. Payable at determinable future time.—An instrument is payable at a determinable future time, within the meaning of this act, which is expressed to be payable:

1. At a fixed period after date or sight; or
2. On or before a fixed or determinable future time specified therein; or
3. On or at a fixed period after the occurrence of a specified event, which is certain to happen, though the time of happening be uncertain.

An instrument payable upon a contingency is not negotiable, and the happening of the event does not cure the defect. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 6001—5. Provisions affecting negotiability.—An instrument which contains an order or promise to do any act in addition to the payment of money is not negotiable. But the negotiable character of an instrument otherwise negotiable is not affected by a provision which:

1. Authorizes the sale of collateral securities in case the instrument be not paid at maturity; or

2. Authorizes a confession of judgment if the instrument be not paid at maturity; or

3. Waives the benefit of any law intended for the advantage or protection of the obligor; or

4. Gives the holder an election to require something to be done in lieu of payment of money.

But nothing in this section shall validate any provision or stipulation otherwise illegal. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 6001—6. Provisions affecting validity or negotiability.—The validity and negotiable character of an instrument are not affected by the fact that;

1. It is not dated; or

2. Does not specify the value given, or that any value has been given therefor; or

3. Does not specify the place where it is drawn or the place where it is payable; or

4. Bears a seal; or

5. Designates a particular kind of current money in which payment is to be made.

But nothing in this section shall alter or repeal any statute requiring in certain cases the nature of the consideration to be stated in the instrument. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 6001—7. Payable on demand.—An instrument is payable on demand;

1. Where it is expressed to be payable on demand, or at sight, or on presentation; or

2. In which no time for payment is expressed.

Where an instrument is issued, accepted, or indorsed when overdue, it is, as regards the person so issuing, accepting, or indorsing it, payable on demand. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 6001—8. Payable to order.—The instrument is payable to order where it is drawn payable to the order of a specified person or to him or his order. It may be drawn payable to the order of;

1. A payee who is not maker, drawer, or drawee; or

2. The drawer or maker; or

3. The drawee; or

4. Two or more payees jointly; or

5. One or some of several payees; or

6. The holder of an office for the time being.

Where the instrument is payable to order the payee must be named or otherwise indicated therein with reasonable certainty. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 6001—9. Payable to bearer.—The instrument is payable to bearer;

1. When it is expressed to be so payable; or

2. When it is payable to a person named therein or bearer; or

3. When it is payable to the order of a fictitious or non-existing person, and such fact was known to the person making it so payable; or

4. When the name of the payee does not purport to be the name of any person; or

5. When the only or last indorsement is an indorsement in blank. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 6001—10. Sufficiency of form.—The instrument need not follow the language of this act, but any terms are sufficient which clearly indicate an intention to conform to the requirements hereof. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 6001—11. Date of instrument.—Where the instrument or an acceptance or any indorsement thereon is dated, such date is deemed prima facie to be the true date of the making, drawing, acceptance, or indorsement as the case may be. [Id., § 11.]

Art. 6001—12. Ante-dating or post-dating.—The instrument is not invalid for the reason only that it is ante-dated or post-dated, provided this is not done for an illegal or fraudulent purpose. The person to whom an instrument so dated is delivered acquires the title thereto as of the date of delivery. [Id., § 12.]

Art. 6001—13. Undated instrument.—Where an instrument expressed to be payable at a fixed period after date is issued undated, or where the acceptance of an instrument payable at a fixed period after sight is undated, any holder may insert therein the true date of issue or acceptance, and the instrument shall be payable accordingly. The insertion of a wrong date does not avoid the instrument in the hands of a subsequent holder in due course; but as to him, the date so inserted is to be regarded as the true date. [Id., § 13.]

Art. 6001—14. Blanks; filling in.—Where the instrument is wanting in any material particular, the person in possession thereof has a prima facie authority to complete it by filling up the blanks therein. And a signature on a blank paper delivered by the person making the signature in order that the paper may be converted into a negotiable instrument operates as a prima facie authority to fill it up as such for any amount. In order, however, that any such instrument when completed may be enforced against any person who became a party thereto prior to its completion, it must be filled up strictly in accordance with the authority given and within a reasonable time. But if any such instrument, after completion, is negotiated to a holder in due course, it is valid and effectual for all purposes in his hands, and he may enforce it as if it had been filled up strictly in accordance with the authority given and within a reasonable time. [Id., § 14.]

Art. 6001—15. Incomplete instrument.—Where an incomplete instrument has not been delivered, it will not, if completed and negotiated, without authority, be a valid contract in the hands of any holder, as against any person whose signature was placed thereon before delivery. [Id., § 15.]

Art. 6001—16. Effect of delivery of instrument.—Every contract on a negotiable instrument is incomplete and revocable until delivery of the instrument for the purpose of giving effect thereto. As between immediate parties, and as regards a remote party other than a holder in due course, the delivery, in order to be effectual, must be made either by or under the authority of the party making, drawing, accepting or indorsing, as the case may be; and in such case the delivery may be shown to have been conditional, or for a special purpose only, and not for the purpose of transferring the property in the instrument. But where the instrument is in the hands of a holder in due course, a valid delivery thereof by all parties prior to him so as to make them liable to him is conclusively presumed. And where the instrument is no longer in the possession of a party whose signature appears thereon, a valid and intentional delivery by him is presumed until the contrary is proved. [Id., § 16.]

Art. 6001—17. Construction of ambiguities or omissions.—Where the language of the instrument is ambiguous or there are omissions therein, the following rules of construction apply:

1. Where the sum payable is expressed in words and also in figures and there is a discrepancy between the two, the sum denoted by the words is the sum payable; but if the words are ambiguous or uncertain, reference may be had to the figures to fix the amount;

2. Where the instrument provides for the payment of interest, without specifying the date from which interest is to run, the interest runs from the date of the instrument, and if the instrument is undated, from the issue thereof;

3. Where the instrument is not dated, it will be considered to be dated as of the time it was issued;

4. Where there is a conflict between the written and printed provisions of the instrument, the written provisions prevail;

5. Where the instrument is so ambiguous that there is doubt whether it is a bill or note, the holder may treat it as either at his election;

6. Where a signature is so placed upon the instrument that it is not clear in what capacity the person making the same intended to sign, he is to be deemed an indorser;

7. Where an instrument containing the words "I promise to pay" is signed by two or more persons, they are deemed to be jointly and severally liable thereon. [Id., § 17.]

Art. 6001—18. Persons not signing instrument.—No person is liable on the instrument whose signature does not appear thereon, except as herein otherwise expressly provided. But one who signs in a trade or assumed name will be liable to the same extent as if he had signed in his own name. [Id., § 18.]

Art. 6001—19. Signature by agent.—The signature of any party may be made by a duly authorized agent. No particular form of appointment is necessary for this purpose; and the authority of the agent may be established as in other cases of agency. [Id., § 19.]

Art. 6001—20. Signature in representative capacity.—Where the instrument contains or a person adds to his signature words indicating that he signs for or on behalf of a principal, or in a representative capacity, he is not liable on the instrument if he was duly authorized; but the mere addition of words describing him as an agent, or as filling a representative character, without disclosing his principal, does not exempt him from personal liability. [Id., § 20.]

Art. 6001—21. Signature by procuration.—A signature by "procuration" operates as notice that the agent has but a limited authority to sign, and the principal is bound only in case the agent in so signing acted within the actual limits of his authority. [Id., § 21.]

Art. 6001—22. Indorsement or assignment by infant or corporation.—The indorsement or assignment of the instrument by a corporation or by an infant passes the property therein, notwithstanding that from want of capacity the corporation or infant may incur no liability thereon. [Id., § 22.]

Art. 6001—23. Forged or unauthorized signature.—When a signature is forged or made without the authority of the person whose signature it purports to be, it is wholly inoperative, and no right to retain the instrument, or to give a discharge therefor, or to enforce payment thereof against any party thereto, can be acquired through or under such signature, unless the party, against whom it is sought to enforce such right, is precluded from setting up the forgery or want of authority. [Id., § 23.]

ARTICLE II. CONSIDERATION

Art. 6001—24. Valuable consideration.—Every negotiable instrument is deemed prima facie to have been issued for a valuable consideration; and every person whose signature appears thereon to have become a party thereto for value. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 123, § 24.]

Art. 6001—25. Presumption of consideration.—Value is any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract. An antecedent or pre-existing debt constitutes value; and is deemed such whether the instrument is payable on demand or at a future time. [Id., § 25.]

Art. 6001—26. Holder for value.—Where value has at any time been given for the instrument, the holder is deemed a holder for value in respect to all parties who became such prior to that time. [Id., § 26.]

Art. 6001—27. Holder with lien deemed holder for value.—Where the holder has a lien on the instrument, arising either from contract or by implication of law, he is deemed a holder for value to the extent of his lien. [Id., § 27.]

Art. 6001—28. Absence or failure of consideration as defense.—Absence or failure of consideration is matter of defense as against any person not a holder in due course; and partial failure of consideration is a defence pro tanto, whether the failure is an ascertained and liquidated amount or otherwise. [Id., § 28.]

Art. 6001—29. Accommodation party; liability to holder for value.—An accommodation party is one who has signed the instrument as maker, drawer, acceptor, or indorser, without receiving value therefor, and for the purpose of lending his name to some other person. Such a person is liable on the instrument to a holder for value, notwithstanding such holder at the time of taking the instrument knew him to be only an accommodation party. [Id., § 29.]

ARTICLE III. NEGOTIATION

Art. 6001—30. When instrument is negotiated.—An instrument is negotiated when it is transferred from one person to another in such manner as to constitute the transferee the holder thereof. If payable to bearer it is negotiated by delivery; if payable to order it is negotiated by the indorsement of the holder completed by delivery. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 123, § 30.]

Art. 6001—31. Sufficiency of indorsement.—The indorsement must be written on the instrument itself or upon a paper attached thereto. The signature of the indorser, without additional words, is a sufficient indorsement. [Id., § 31.]

Art. 6001—32. Indorsement of entire instrument.—The indorsement must be an indorsement of the entire instrument. An indorsement which purports to transfer to the indorsee a part only of the amount payable, or which purports to transfer the instrument to two or more indorsees severally, does not operate as a negotiation of the instrument. But where the instrument has been paid in part, it may be indorsed as to the residue. [Id., § 32.]

Art. 6001—33. Kinds of indorsement.—An indorsement may be either special or in blank; and it may also be either restrictive or qualified, or conditional. [Id., § 33.]

Art. 6001—34. Special indorsement; indorsement in blank.—A special indorsement specifies the person to whom, or to whose order, the instrument is to be payable; and the indorsement of such indorsee is necessary to the further negotiation of the instrument. An indorsement in blank specifies no indorsee, and an instrument so indorsed is payable to bearer, and may be negotiated by delivery. [Id., § 34.]

Art. 6001—35. Changing blank into special indorsement.—The holder may convert a blank indorsement into a special indorsement by writing over the signature of the indorser in blank any contract consistent with the character of the indorsement. [Id., § 35.]

Art. 6001—36. Restrictive indorsement.—An indorsement is restrictive, which either;

1. Prohibits the further negotiation of the instrument; or
2. Constitutes the indorsee the agent of the indorser; or
3. Vests the title in the indorsee in trust for or to the use of some other person.

But the mere absence of words implying power to negotiate does not make an indorsement restrictive. [Id., § 36.]

Art. 6001—37. Same; rights of indorsee.—A restrictive indorsement confers upon the indorsee the right:

1. To receive payment of the instrument;
2. To bring any action thereon that the indorser could bring;
3. To transfer his rights as such indorsee, where the form of the indorsement authorizes him to do so.

But all subsequent indorsees acquire only the title of the first indorsee under the restrictive indorsement. [Id., § 37.]

Art. 6001—38. Qualified indorsement.—A qualified indorsement constitutes the indorser a mere assignor of the title to the instrument. It may be made by adding to the indorser's signature the words "without recourse" or any words of similar import. Such an indorsement does not impair the negotiable character of the instrument. [Id., § 38.]

Art. 6001—39. Conditional indorsement.—Where an indorsement is conditional, a party required to pay the instrument may disregard the condition, and make payment to the indorsee or his transferee, whether the condition has been fulfilled or not. But any person to whom an instrument so indorsed is negotiated, will hold the same, or the proceeds thereof, subject to the rights of the person indorsing conditionally. [Id., § 39.]

Art. 6001—40. Negotiation of instrument payable to bearer indorsed specially.—Where an instrument, payable to bearer, is indorsed specially, it may nevertheless be further negotiated by delivery, but the person indorsing specially is liable as indorser to only such holders as make title through his indorsement. [Id., § 40.]

Art. 6001—41. Indorsement by several payees or indorsees.—Where an instrument is payable to the order of two or more payees or indorsees who are not partners, all must indorse, unless the one indorsing has authority to indorse for the others. [Id., § 41.]

Art. 6001—42. Instrument drawn or indorsed to person in official capacity.—Where an instrument is drawn or indorsed to a person as “Cashier” or other fiscal officer of a bank or corporation, it is deemed prima facia to be payable to the bank or corporation of which he is such officer; and may be negotiated by either the indorsement of the bank or corporation, or the indorsement of the officer. [Id., § 42.]

Art. 6001—43. Indorsement when name wrongly designated or misspelled.—Where the name of a payee or indorsee is wrongly designated or misspelled, he may indorse the instrument as therein described, adding, if he think fit, his proper signature. [Id., § 43.]

Art. 6001—44. Indorsement in representative capacity.—Where any person is under obligation to indorse in a representative capacity, he may indorse in such terms as to negative personal liability. [Id., § 44.]

Art. 6001—45. Time of indorsement.—Except where an indorsement bears date after the maturity of the instrument, every negotiation is deemed prima facia to have been effected before the instrument was overdue. [Id., § 45.]

Art. 6001—46. Place of indorsement.—Except where the contrary appears, every indorsement is presumed prima facia to have been made at the place where the instrument is dated. [Id., § 46.]

Art. 6001—47. Continuation of negotiability.—An instrument negotiable in its origin continues to be negotiable until it has been restrictively indorsed or discharged by payment or otherwise. [Id., § 47.]

Art. 6001—48. Striking indorsements.—The holder may at any time strike out any indorsement which is not necessary to his title. The indorser whose indorsement is struck out, and all indorsers subsequent to him, are thereby relieved from liability on the instrument. [Id., § 48.]

Art. 6001—49. Transfer without indorsement.—Where the holder of an instrument payable to his order transfers it for value without indorsing it, the transfer vests in the transferee such title as the transferor had therein, and the transferee acquires, in addition, the right to have the indorsement of the transferor. But a holder who derives his title through a holder in due course, and who is not himself a party to any fraud or illegality affecting the instrument, has all the rights of such former holder in respect of all parties prior to the latter. [Id., § 58.]

Art. 6001—59. Holder in due course; presumption and burden of proof.—Every holder is deemed prima facie to be a holder in due course; but when it is shown that the title of any person who has negotiated the instrument was defective, the burden is on the holder to prove that he or some person under whom he claims acquired the title as holder in due course. Art. 6001—118. Protest; when necessary.—Where any negotiable instrument has been dishonored it may be protested for non-acceptance or non-payment, as the case may be; but protest is not required except in the case of foreign bills of exchange. [Id., § 118.]

Art. 6001—121. Art. 6001—123. Unintentional cancellation.—A cancellation made unintentionally, or under mistake or without the authority of the holder, is inoperative; but where an instrument or any signature thereon appears to have been cancelled the burden of proof lies on the party who alleges that the cancellation was made unintentionally, or under a mistake without authority. [Id., § 123.]

Art. 6001—124. Material alteration; effect.—Where a negotiable instrument is materially altered without the assent of all parties liable thereon, it is avoided, except as against a party who has himself made, authorized or assented to the alteration, and subsequent indorsers.

Referee in case of need.—The drawer of a bill and any indorser may insert thereon the name of a person to whom the holder may resort in case of need, that is to say in case the bill is dishonored by non-acceptance or non-payment. Such person is called the referee in case of need. It is in the option of the holder to resort to the referee in case of need or not as he may see fit. [Id., § 131.]

ARTICLE II. ACCEPTANCE

Art. 6001—132. How made.—The acceptance of a bill is the signification by the drawee of his assent to the order of the drawer. The acceptance must be in writing and signed by the drawee. It must not express that the drawee will perform his promise by any other means than the payment of money. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 123, § 132.]

Necessity of writing.—An acceptance of a draft must be in writing. First Nat. Bank v. Sanford (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 650.

Art. 6001—133. Acceptance written on bill.—The holder of a bill presenting the same for acceptance may require that the acceptance be written on the bill and, if such request is refused, may treat the bill as dishonored. [Id., § 133.]

Art. 6001—134. Acceptance on separate paper.—Where an acceptance is written on a paper other than the bill itself, it does not bind the acceptor except in favor of a person to whom it is shown and who, on the faith thereof, receives the bill for value. [Id., § 134.]

Art. 6001—135. Promise to accept.—An unconditional promise in writing to accept a bill before it is drawn is deemed an actual acceptance in favor of every person who upon the faith thereof, receives the bill for value. [Id., § 135.]

Necessity of writing.—An acceptance of a draft must be in writing. First Nat. Bank v. Sanford (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 650.

Art. 6001—136. Time allowed drawee to accept.—The drawee is allowed twenty-four hours after presentment, in which to decide whether or not he will accept the bill; but the acceptance if given, dates as of the day of presentation. [Id., § 136.]

Art. 6001—137. Drawee retaining or destroying bill.—Where a drawee to whom a bill is delivered for acceptance destroys the same, or refuses within twenty-four hours after such delivery, or within such other period as the holder may allow, to return the bill accepted or non-accepted to the holder, he will be deemed to have accepted the same. [Id., § 137.]

Art. 6001—138. Acceptance of incomplete bill.—A bill may be accepted before it has been signed by the drawee, or while otherwise incomplete, or when it is overdue, or after it has been dishonored by a previous refusal to accept, or by non-payment. But when a bill payable after sight is dishonored by non-acceptance and the drawee subsequently accepts it, the holder in the absence of any different agreement, is entitled to have the bill accepted as of the date of the first presentment. [Id., § 138.]

Art. 6001—139. Kinds of acceptances.—An acceptance is either general or qualified. A general acceptance assents without qualification to the order of the drawer. A qualified acceptance in express terms varies the effect of the bill as drawn. [Id., § 139.]

Art. 6001—140. General acceptance.—An acceptance to pay at a particular place is a general acceptance, unless it expressly states that the bill is to be paid there only and not elsewhere. [Id., § 140.]

Art. 6001—141. Qualified acceptance.—An acceptance is qualified, which is:

1. Conditional, that is to say, which makes payment by the acceptor dependent on the fulfillment of a condition therein stated;
2. Partial, that is to say, an acceptance to pay part only of the amount for which the bill is drawn;
3. Local, that is to say, an acceptance to pay only at a particular place;
4. Qualified as to time;
5. The acceptance of some one or more of the drawees, but not of all. [Id., § 141.]

Art. 6001—142. Same; rights of parties as to.—The holder may refuse to take a qualified acceptance, and if he does not obtain an unqualified acceptance, he may treat the bill as dishonored by non-acceptance. Where a qualified acceptance is taken the drawer and indorsers are discharged from liability on the bill, unless they have expressly or impliedly authorized the holder to take a qualified acceptance, or subsequently assent thereto. When the drawer or an indorser receives notice of a qualified acceptance, he must, within a reasonable time, express his dissent to the holder, or he will be deemed to have assented thereto. [Id., § 142.]

ARTICLE III. PRESENTMENT FOR ACCEPTANCE .

Art. 6001—143. When necessary.—Presentment for acceptance must be made;

1. Where the bill is payable after sight, or in any other case, where presentment for acceptance is necessary in order to fix the maturity of the instrument; or
2. Where the bill expressly stipulates that it shall be presented for acceptance; or

3. Where the bill is drawn payable elsewhere than at the residence or place of business of the drawee.

In no other case is presentment for acceptance necessary in order to render any party to the bill liable. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 123, § 143.]

Art. 6001—144. Release of drawer and indorsers by failure to present.—Except as herein otherwise provided, the holder of a bill which is required by the next preceding section to be presented for acceptance must either present it for acceptance or negotiate it within a reasonable time. If he fails to do so, the drawer and all indorsers are discharged. [Id., § 144.]

Art. 6001—145. Manner of making presentment.—Presentment for acceptance must be made by or on behalf of the holder at a reasonable hour, on a business day and before the bill is overdue, to the drawee or some person authorized to accept or refuse acceptance on his behalf, and;

1. Where a bill is addressed to two or more drawees who are not partners, presentment must be made to them all, unless one has authority to accept or refuse acceptance for all, in which case presentment may be made to him only.

2. Where the drawee is dead, presentment may be made to his personal representative.

3. Where the drawee has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent or has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, presentment may be made to him or to his trustee or assignee. [Id., § 145.]

Art. 6001—146. Days for making presentment.—A bill may be presented for acceptance on any day on which negotiable instruments may be presented for payment under the provisions of sections seventy-two and eighty-five of this act. When Saturday is not otherwise a holiday, presentment for acceptance may be made before twelve o'clock, noon, on that day. [Id., § 146.]

Art. 6001—147. Excuse for delay in presentment.—Where the holder of a bill drawn payable elsewhere than at the place of business or the residence of the drawee has not time with the exercise of reasonable diligence to present the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment on the day that it falls due, the delay caused by presenting the bill for acceptance before presenting it for payment is excused and does not discharge the drawers and indorsers. [Id., § 147.]

Art. 6001—148. Same.—Presentment for acceptance is excused and a bill may be treated as dishonored by non-acceptance, in either of the following cases;

1. Where the drawee is dead, or has absconded, or is a fictitious person or a person not having capacity to contract by bill.

2. Where, after the exercise of reasonable diligence, presentment cannot be made.

3. Where, although presentment has been irregular, acceptance has been refused on some other ground. [Id., § 148.]

Art. 6001—149. Dishonor by non-acceptance.—A bill is dishonored by non-acceptance;

1. When it is duly presented for acceptance and such an acceptance as is prescribed by this act is refused or cannot be obtained; or

2. When presentment for acceptance is excused and the bill is not accepted. [Id., § 149.]

Art. 6001—150. Duty of holder on non-acceptance.—Where a bill is duly presented for acceptance and is not accepted within the prescribed time, the person presenting it must treat the bill as dishonored by non-acceptance or he loses the right of recourse against the drawer and indorsers. [Id., § 150.]

Art. 6001—151. Rights of holder on non-acceptance.—When a bill is dishonored by non-acceptance, an immediate right of recourse against the drawers and indorsers accrues to the holder and no presentment for payment is necessary. [Id., § 151.]

ARTICLE IV. PROTEST

Art. 6001—152. When protest is necessary.—Where a foreign bill appearing on its face to be such is dishonored by non-acceptance, it must be duly protested for non-acceptance, and where such a bill which has not previously been dishonored by non-acceptance is dishonored by non-payment, it must be duly protested for non-payment. If it is not so protested, the drawer and indorsers are discharged. Where a bill does not appear on its face to be a foreign bill, protest thereof in case of dishonor is unnecessary. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 123, § 152.]

Art. 6001—153. Manner of making protest.—The protest must be annexed to the bill, or must contain a copy thereof and must be under the hand and seal of the notary making it, and must specify;

1. The time and place of presentment;
2. The fact that presentment was made and the manner thereof;
3. The cause or reason for protesting the bill;
4. The demand made and the answer given, if any, or the fact that the drawee or acceptor could not be found. [Id., § 153.]

Art. 6001—154. By whom made.—Protest may be made by:

1. A notary public; or
2. By any respectable resident of the place where the bill is dishonored, in the presence of two or more credible witnesses. [Id., § 154.]

Art. 6001—155. When made.—When a bill is protested, such protest must be made on the day of its dishonor, unless delay is excused as herein provided. When a bill has been duly noted, the protest may be subsequently extended as of the date of the noting. [Id., § 155.]

Art. 6001—156. Where made.—A bill must be protested at the place where it is dishonored, except that when a bill drawn payable at the place of business, or residence of some person other than the drawee, has been dishonored by non-acceptance, it must be protested for non-payment at the place where it is expressed to be payable, and no further presentment for payment to, or demand on, the drawee is necessary. [Id., § 156.]

Art. 6001—157. Protest for non-acceptance and for non-payment.—A bill which has been protested for non-acceptance may be subsequently protested for non-payment. [Id., § 157.]

Art. 6001—158. Protest before maturity.—Where the acceptor has been adjudged a bankrupt or an insolvent, or has made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, before the bill matures, the holder may cause the bill to be protested for better security against the drawer and indorsers. [Id., § 158.]

Art. 6001—159. When dispensed with.—Protest is dispensed with by any circumstances which would dispense with notice of dishonor.

Delay in noting or protesting is excused when delay is caused by circumstances beyond the control of the holder and not imputable to his default, misconduct or negligence. When the cause of delay ceases to operate, the bill must be noted or protested with reasonable diligence. [Id., § 159.]

Art. 6001—160. Protest on copy.—When a bill is lost or destroyed or is wrongly detained from the person entitled to hold it, protest may be made on a copy or written particulars thereof. [Id., § 160.]

ARTICLE V. ACCEPTANCE FOR HONOR

Art. 6001—161. Acceptance supra protest for honor.—Where a bill of exchange has been protested for dishonor by non-acceptance or protested for better security, and is not overdue, any person not being a party already liable thereon, may, with the consent of the holder, intervene and accept the bill supra protest for the honor of any party liable thereon, or for the honor of the person for whose account the bill is drawn. The acceptance for honor may be for the part only of the sum for which the bill is drawn; and where there has been an acceptance for honor for one party, there may be a further acceptance by a different person for the honor of another party. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 123, § 161.]

Art. 6001—162. Same; writing.—An acceptance for honor supra protest must be in writing, and indicate that it is an acceptance for honor, and must be signed by the acceptor for honor. [Id., § 162.]

Art. 6001—163. Same; for drawer.—Where an acceptance for honor does not expressly state for whose honor it is made, it is deemed to be an acceptance for the honor of the drawer. [Id., § 163.]

Art. 6001—164. Liability of acceptor for honor.—The acceptor for honor is liable to the holder and to all parties to the bill subsequent to the party for whose honor he has accepted. [Id., § 164.]

Art. 6001—165. Same.—The acceptor for honor, by such acceptance engages that he will on due presentation pay the bill according to the terms of his acceptance, provided it shall not have been paid by the drawee, and provided also, that it shall have been duly presented for payment and protested for non-payment and notice of dishonor given him. [Id., § 165.]

Art. 6001—166. Maturity of bill payable after sight accepted for honor.—Where a bill payable after sight is accepted for honor, its maturity is calculated from the date of the noting for non-acceptance and not from the date of the acceptance for honor. [Id., § 166.]

Art. 6001—167. Protest for non-payment of bill accepted for honor or containing referee in case of need.—Where a dishonored bill has been accepted for honor supra protest or contains a reference in case of need, it must be protested for non-payment before it is presented for payment to the acceptor for honor or referee in case of need. [Id., § 167.]

Art. 6001—168. Presentment for payment to acceptor for honor.—Presentment for payment to the acceptor for honor must be made as follows:

1. If it is to be presented in the place where the protest for non-payment was made, it must be presented not later than the day following its maturity.

2. If it is to be presented in some other place than the place where it was protested, then it must be forwarded within the time specified in section one hundred and four. [Id., § 168.]

Art. 6001—169. Delay in presentment to acceptor for honor, or referee in case of need.—The provisions of section eighty-one apply where there is delay in making presentment to the acceptor for honor or referee in case of need. [Id., § 169.]

Art. 6001—170. Dishonor of bill by acceptor for honor.—When the bill is dishonored by the acceptor for honor it must be protested for non-payment by him. [Id., § 170.]

ARTICLE VI. PAYMENT FOR HONOR

Art. 6001—171. Who may make.—Where a bill has been protested for non-payment, any person may intervene and pay it supra protest for the honor of any person liable thereon or for the honor of the person for whose account it was drawn. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 123, § 171.]

Art. 6001—172. How made.—The payment for honor supra protest in order to operate as such and not as a mere voluntary payment must be attested by a notarial act of honor which may be appended to the protest or form an extension to it. [Id., § 172.]

Art. 6001—173. Declaration before making.—The notarial act of honor must be founded on a declaration made by the payer for honor or by his agent in that behalf declaring his intention to pay the bill for honor and for whose honor he pays. [Id., § 173.]

Art. 6001—174. Preference to parties offering to make.—Where two or more persons offer to pay a bill for the honor of different parties, the person whose payment will discharge most parties to the bill is to be given the preference. [Id., § 174.]

Art. 6001—175. Effect on subsequent parties.—Where a bill has been paid for honor, all parties subsequent to the party for whose honor it is paid are discharged, but the payer for honor is subrogated for, and succeeds to, both the rights and duties of the holder as regards the party for whose honor he pays and all parties liable to the latter. [Id., § 175.]

Art. 6001—176. Holder refusing to receive.—Where the holder of a bill refuses to receive payment supra protest, he loses his right of recourse against any party who would have been discharged by such payment. [Id., § 176.]

Art. 6001—177. Rights of payer for honor.—The payer for honor, on paying to the holder the amount of the bill and the notarial expenses incidental to its dishonor, is entitled to receive both the bill itself and the protest. [Id., § 177.]

ARTICLE VII. BILLS IN A SET

Art. 6001—178. Parts to constitute one bill.—Where a bill is drawn in a set, each part of the set being numbered and containing a reference to the other parts, the whole of the parts constitutes one bill. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 123, § 178.]

Art. 6001—179. Rights of holders of different parts.—Where two or more parts of a set are negotiated to different holders in due course, the holder whose title first accrues is as between such holders the true owner of the bill. But nothing in this section affects the rights of a person who in due course accepts or pays the part first presented to him. [Id., § 179.]

Art. 6001—180. Liability of holder indorsing two or more parts to different persons.—Where the holder of a set indorses two or more parts to different persons he is liable on every such part, and every indorser subsequent to him is liable on the part he has himself indorsed, as if such parts were separate bills. [Id., § 180.]

Art. 6001—181. Acceptance.—The acceptance may be written on any part and it must be written on one part only. If the drawee accepts more than one part, and such accepted parts are negotiated to different holders in due course, he is liable on every such part as if it were a separate bill. [Id., § 181.]

Art. 6001—182. Payment by acceptor.—When the acceptor of a bill drawn in a set pays it without requiring the part bearing his acceptance to be delivered up to him, and that part at maturity is outstanding in the hands of a holder in due course, he is liable to the holder thereon. [Id., § 182.]

Art. 6001—183. Discharge of one part.—Except as herein otherwise provided where any one part of a bill drawn in a set is discharged by payment or otherwise the whole bill is discharged. [Id., § 183.]

Art. 6001—184. Promissory note defined.—A negotiable promissory note within the meaning of this act is an unconditional promise in writing made by one person to another signed by the maker engaging to pay on demand, or at a fixed or determinable future time, a sum certain in money to order or to bearer. Where a note is drawn to the maker's own order, it is not complete until indorsed by him. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 123, § 184.]

Art. 6001—185. Check defined.—A check is a bill of exchange drawn on a bank payable on demand. Except as herein otherwise provided, the provisions of this act applicable to a bill of exchange payable on demand apply to a check. [Id., § 185.]

Art. 6001—189. Check as assignment.—A check of itself does not operate as an assignment of any part of the funds to the credit of the drawer with the bank, and the bank is not liable to the holder, unless and until it accepts or certifies the check. [Id., § 189.]

TITLE IV. GENERAL PROVISIONS

ARTICLE I

Art. 6001—190. Citation of act.—This act may be cited as the Uniform Negotiable Instruments Act. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 123, § 190.]

Art. 6001—192. Same.—The person “primarily” liable on an instrument is the person who by the terms of the instrument is absolutely required to pay the same. All other parties are “secondarily” liable. [Id., § 192.]

Art. 6001—193. Reasonable time or unreasonable time.—In determining what is a “reasonable time” or an “unreasonable time,” regard is to be had to the nature of the instrument, the usage of trade or business (if any) with respect to such instruments, and the facts of the particular case. [Id., § 193.]

Art. 6001—194. Computation of time.—Where the day, or the last day, for doing any act herein required or permitted to be done falls on Sunday or on a holiday, the act may be done on the next succeeding secular or business day. [Id., § 194.]

NOTARIES PUBLIC

Article 6002. Governor shall appoint; tenure; additional notaries; proviso.

Art. 6003. [3504] Bond and oath.

Liability on bond.—Notary's liability to buyer of land for mistake in certifying to identity of person acknowledging deed is greater than that of indemnitor, and recovery can be had against notary without showing reason for not suing party who impersonated another in making acknowledgment. Brittain v. Monsur (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 911.

Actions on bond.—In action by buyer of land against notary public and sureties on her bond for damages resulting from false certificate of acknowledgment to deed made by notary and relied upon by buyer, court properly rendered judgment against defendants, though plaintiff buyer was not party to deed acknowledged before notary and alleged to have been forged. Brittain v. Monsur (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 911.

Art. 6006. [3507] Seal, and what it shall contain.

Mode of affixing.—The seal may be impressed either on the paper, or on some substance, such as sealing wax, attached to the paper, and susceptible of a definite, uniform impression. Stooksberry v. Swan (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 694.

Evidence.—Attached to a notary's certificate in a deed introduced in evidence, in the spot where the notarial seal is usually found, was a circle, defined by a reddish discoloration of the paper. About the center and along the line of the circle, small particles of red sealing wax adhered, but there was no impression of any star or letters. A witness identified the signature of the notary, and testified that the latter used a seal having a star in the center, and letters around the edge, and that in using the seal the notary put molten wax on the paper, and pressed the seal on it. Held, that it was a question for the jury whether the notary had used a seal such as was required. Stooksberry v. Swan (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 694.

Art. 6008. [3509] Their powers.

Disqualification by interest.—The act of taking and certifying acknowledgments cannot be performed by a notary public financially or beneficially interested in the transaction, but the fact that a paving company paid the fees of a notary who was taking and certifying acknowledgments to statutory mechanics' liens on abutting property did not alone disqualify him. Creosoted Wood Block Paving Co. v. McKay (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 822.

A grantee directly interested in the deed was not competent to take the acknowledgments of either of the grantors, husband and wife; and acknowledgments taken by him were invalid, and gave no force whatever to the instrument. Vauter v. Greenwood (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 269.

Acknowledgment of deed in trust executed by surviving wife to secure note to third party who had taken over purchase-money notes from vendor, taken by agent of surviving wife and vendor, who had no interest in the instrument or its consideration, but only in the transaction by way of commission from the vendor for negotiating the notes, was not void. W. C. Belcher Land Mortgage Co. v. Taylor (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 647.

Evidence.—Evidence held insufficient to show that a notary was financially interested in a transaction so as to be disqualified to take an acknowledgment. Creosoted Wood Block Paving Co. v. McKay (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 822.

Art. 6011. [3512] Shall keep a well bound book.

Art. 6055. [3556] Not to be removed for acts done prior to his election.

In general.—An officer who is his own successor, and committed the unlawful act after re-election, and while performing the functions of office, but before he had qualified, should be removed. Brackenridge v. State, 27 Tex. App. 513, 11 S. W. 630, 4 L. R. A. 360.

CHAPTER FOUR*REMOVAL OF MAYORS AND ALDERMEN*DECISIONS RELATING TO OFFICERS IN GENERAL

Powers of legislature.—The Legislature is without power to abolish constitutional offices or to shorten terms of office which are fixed by the Constitution. Covell v. Ayers, 110 Tex. 348, 220 S. W. 764, answers to certified questions conformed to (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 1119.

Interference with the statutory terms of present incumbency of state offices constitutes no obstacle to the exercise of the power of the Legislature to abolish offices of its own creation. Id.

The Legislature may impose additional duties on public officers so long as the added duties are distinctly embraced within the same department of government to which the original ones belong, and has the right to provide extra remuneration for the extra services to be rendered by the ex officio members. Garrett v. Commissioners' Court of Limestone County (Com. App.) 230 S. W. 1010.

Abandonment of office.—A public office may be abandoned, abandonment being a species of resignation, but differing from resignation in that resignation is a formal relinquishment, while abandonment is a voluntary relinquishment through nonuser. Steingruber v. City of San Antonio (Com. App.) 220 S. W. 77, affirming judgment (Civ.) City of San Antonio v. Steingruber, 177 S. W. 1023.

Nonuser does not of itself constitute abandonment of a public office, but failure to perform the duties pertaining to the office must be with actual or imputed intention on the part of the officer to abandon and relinquish the office, which intention may be inferred from the acts and conduct of the officer, and is a question of fact. Id.

Abandonment of a public office may result from an acquiescence by the officer in his wrongful removal or discharge, but to constitute such abandonment the officer must intend to relinquish the office. Id.

PARTITION

Chap.

3. Miscellaneous provisions.

CHAPTER ONE

PARTITION OF REAL ESTATE

Art.

6096. Joint owner or claimant may compel partition.

6097. Petition for, and what it shall state.

6099. Citation and service where defendant is unknown.

6100. Court shall determine, what.

Art.

6101. Decree of the court, and appointment of commissioners.

6109. Shall allot shares.

6111. When property is incapable of division, same shall be sold.

6115. Decree of court shall vest title.

Article 6096. [3606] Joint owner or claimant may compel partition.

Right to partition.—Where one of the members of a joint-stock association, owning half of its stock, was in hopeless deadlock with the owners of the other half of the stock, making it impossible to proceed with business, held, the association should be dissolved, its affairs wound up, and its property partitioned, although the original agreement provided that the trust should continue 50 years. Wiess v. McFaddin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 337.

A partition suit is based on the theory of a common title and not of disputed ownership, so that it may be converted into trespass to try title by defendant's alleging right of possession in himself to all the land. Green v. Churchwell (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 341.

Effect of suit.—Right of cotenant to possess and improve land was neither destroyed nor suspended by commencement of other cotenants' suit for partition against him. Broom v. Pearson (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 191.

Art. 6097. [3607] Petition for and what it shall state.

See Green v. Churchwell (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 341.

Parties—Necessary parties.—A valid partition cannot be had where a cotenant is not party to the proceeding. Tompkins v. Hooker (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1114.

Jurisdiction.—Under art. 3556, the heirs of a married woman could have required her husband, as community survivor, to distribute the estate by suit in the county court of probate jurisdiction, and if such right was not exercised within 12 months from filing of the community survivor's bond, district court had jurisdiction, of suit at instance of heirs for partition and distribution. Simons v. Ware (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 858.

Petition—Sufficiency in general.—Although description of land in petition for partition was indefinite, petition would not be subject to general demurrer, where description could be rendered certain. Russell v. Koennecke (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1111.

Joint owners in partition suit were not required specifically to plead their respective titles. Tompkins v. Hooker (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 193.

Waiver of objections.—The requirement that the name and residence of joint owners in partition shall be alleged, is not cured by a failure to take action upon it at the trial. Farrias v. Delgado (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 610.

Art. 6099. [3069] Citation and service where defendant is unknown.

Service by publication.—Service by publication, and appearance of defendants by attorneys appointed by the court, is sufficient to confer jurisdiction of the subject-matter in the court. Foote v. Sewall, 81 Tex. 659, 17 S. W. 373.

Art. 6100. [3610] Court shall determine, what.

Questions to be determined in general.—Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 6100, was intended to confer authority to adjust every conceivable equity existing between cotenants relating to the parties and property partitioned. Barkley v. Stone (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 925.

Where portion of land previously conveyed to third person by cotenant was omitted from partition suit between cotenants because of adverse titles, though court may not exercise any power of partition over lands sold, it may consider portion to ascertain its value and be governed thereby in adjusting equities of parties, not by what remains. Tompkins v. Hooker (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 193.

As no distinction is made between law and equity, questions of conflicting claims may be decided in partition suits, and, where raised, should be disposed of. Burns v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 158.

Where husband gave his second wife a portion of land belonging to the community estate of first marriage in which son by first wife had an undivided interest, and where such portion of the land on second wife's death was incapable of actual partition, a  $\frac{2}{38}$  interest therein owned by son's heirs will not be satisfied out of the other portion of the land to prevent a sale and enable second wife's heir, owner of  $\frac{34}{38}$  interest, to retain the land, where husband's estate consisting of  $\frac{66}{72}$  interest in such land was indebted in sums exceeding value of such interest, since to satisfy the  $\frac{2}{38}$  interest out of such land would be injurious either to owners of such interest or to husband's heirs. Zellner v. Samuelson (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 587.

Court, in decreeing minor heir who was not a party to partition proceeding a one-sixth undivided interest in the land sold, may decree that purchaser may by payment of specified amount to such heir acquire his interest in the land. Id.

Proof by plaintiff in partition of a deed to her father, that the grantee was her father, that at the time of execution of the deed he was the husband of defendant, his widow, that he was dead, that plaintiff was his only child, and that defendant was his surviving wife, made a prima facie case for plaintiff entitling her to have half the land set aside to her. Green v. Churchwell (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 341.

Adjustment of claims and equities—Manner of division in general.—Where plaintiff had acquiesced in deeds conveying a portion of community property to a third person for plaintiff's benefit in consideration of his release, equity will deny him partition of residue, in view of Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 6100. Barkley v. Stone (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 925.

In effecting partition of land owned in common, where one has improved part, it is rule to allot such part to him if possible without detriment to interest of his cotenants. Broom v. Pearson (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 191.

— Grantee of specific portion.—In partition proceedings as to land owned by cotenants, equity will usually set aside to purchaser from one portion described in deed, if possible without injury to other cotenants, and division will be made according to value, exclusive of purchaser's improvements, where all common property is before court. Tompkins v. Hooker (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 193.

Where father, owning land in common with his children sold a son a portion of the land less both in quantity and value than son's interest in the common estate, the court, in partition action, will not disturb the sale, which did not prejudice the other children. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 369.

— Improvements and other expenditures.—For the satisfaction of H.'s claim for contribution for money expended for the preservation of the common estate, the H. interest was entitled in the partition to no more land than was necessary for the purpose, and, if an excessive allotment was made to the prejudice of G., he would have the right to challenge it. Hanrick v. Hanrick, 110 Tex. 59, 214 S. W. 321.

Where an ousting tenant in common incurred necessary expenses in defending common title, other tenants in common on obtaining partition must bear their just proportion of such expenses. Martinez v. Bruni (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 655.

In a daughter-in-law's suit for partition, where the court properly decreed certain land to be community property of defendant mother-in-law, who had paid part of the purchase price with her own funds, it properly charged the daughter-in-law with her proportionate part of the purchase money paid by defendant mother-in-law. Stoppelberg v. Stoppelberg (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 587.

When one tenant in common makes improvements upon the common property without the consent of the other cotenants, he can claim reimbursement only to the extent the value of the land is enhanced by the improvement at the time of the partition. Pynes v. Pynes (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 777.

In partition where one tenant in common has made improvements without the consent of the cotenants, the right to reimbursement to the extent of the enhancement of the value of the land may be made a charge upon the interest of each debtor tenant, and division had accordingly. Id.

— Rents and profits.—In partition between cotenants, plaintiffs were entitled only to their proportion of the rents after they were legally ousted from possession. Tompkins v. Hooker (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 193.

Court, in decreeing minor heir an undivided interest in land sold pursuant to partition proceedings to which he was not a party, properly refused to award him the rental value of land, where purchaser had not in fact received any rent for property during time he had been in possession. Zellner v. Samuelson (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 537.

— Debts of estate.—Where land was sold to holder of vendor's notes upon partition of purchaser's land following purchaser's death, the court in decreeing minor heir, who was not a party to the partition proceeding, his portion of interest in land, properly charged such interest with the payment to holder of his proportionate share of the amount of vendor's lien notes held by him. Zellner v. Samuelson (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 587.

Art. 6101. [3611] Decree of the court and appointment of commissioners.

See Keener v. Moss, 66 Tex. 181, 18 S. W. 447.

Determination as to divisibility.—In suit for partition, it was not necessary to allege that land was incapable of division. Russell v. Koenecke (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1111.

A decree and proceedings in partition held not to show fundamental error, reviewable in absence of bill of exceptions and statement of facts, on the theory that the court in its first decree judicially determined that the land was susceptible of partition, and thereafter in conformity to the report of commissioners ordered it sold. Cunningham v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 242.

Where joint-stock company is dissolved, the court should not delegate, to commissioners appointed to partition the company's property, the power and authority to ascertain, determine, and report on the question whether or not the property is susceptible of partition and what would be a fair and equitable mode of division, but should decide these questions itself before decreeing partition and appointing commissioners. Wiess v. McFaddin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 337.

Art. 6109. [3619] Shall allot shares.

See Houston v. Blythe, 71 Tex. 719, 10 S. W. 520.

Art. 6111. [3621] When property is incapable of division, same shall be sold, etc.

See Lewis v. Sellick, 69 Tex. 379, 7 S. W. 673; Hensel v. Sturn (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 817; Boese v. Parkhill (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 120; Wiess v. McFaddin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 337.

Art. 6115. [3625] Decree of court shall vest title.

Final decree.—In general.—Where party to partition suit establishes his homestead right in the land, the partition, if granted, should be decreed subject to his right to possession as long as he elects to use or occupy the land as a home. Berry v. Godwin (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 191, reversing order (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 30.

In action for partition by some of the co-owners of land against purchasers from a cotenant who claimed to have acquired title by adverse possession, it was error for court, in holding that adverse title had not been acquired as to some of the plaintiff co-tenants, to give to such cotenants the interest in the land of a cotenant not made a party to the proceeding. Tompkins v. Hooker (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1114.

That there was no disposition of some of the land would not prevent from being final a decree conforming with the prayer of the petition in the division of the land which followed a former agreement of the parties for partition. Nabors v. Nabors (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1109.

In a partition suit, in which defendant claimed title to the entire tract, judgment for him was final, though there was no partition, since under such judgment there was nothing to partition. Didier v. Woodward (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 563.

— Conclusiveness.—Where decree dividing land between owners contained call for distance, and also incorporated therein prior partition deeds and subdivision map, held, distance call could not be selected from among such descriptions, so as to render the decree conclusive as to adjoining tracts' common boundary line. Wilson v. Hutcheson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1158.

Where a judgment in a former partition suit expressly left the question of title open between plaintiff and defendant, plaintiff may maintain a subsequent suit of trespass to try title; there being no attempt to change, alter, or set aside the judgment. Burns v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 158.

Warranty of title.—Decree of partition created statutory warranty in writing similar to general warranty expressed in deed, and such statutory warranty cannot be enlarged or restricted by parol evidence. O'Connor v. Sanchez (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1005.

A decree of partition between cotenants creates a warranty of title similar to a general warranty expressed in a deed. O'Connor v. Sanchez (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 309.

Where land was partitioned between cotenants and subsequently some of them brought suit for repartition because the title to land decreed plaintiffs had failed, they were not entitled to recover where they offered no evidence of ouster under paramount title nor to show that the defendants were requested to defend the suits under which the state took the land decreed to plaintiffs. Id.

Repartition.—Parties to partition wherein decree was founded on mutual mistake of matter could sue either upon statutory warranty or in equity, and allege the two causes alternatively in same pleading. O'Connor v. Sanchez (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1005.

Where land was partitioned among cotenants and some of them brought suit against others for a repartition because the land decreed to them had been recovered by the state as a part of its domain, held, that plaintiffs were bound, whether suing upon a warranty or upon failure of consideration, to prove as a basis for recovery that the state's title to the lands in question was paramount. O'Connor v. Sanchez (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 309.

CHAPTER THREE

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Art. 6122. Provisions of this title shall not affect, what.	Art. 6123. Rules of pleading, practice and evidence.

Article 6122. [3632] Provisions of this title shall not affect, what.

Partition by act of parties—In general.—Where certain tenants in common conveyed a specific portion of common property and one of the nonjoining tenants was non compos mentis, a private partition of the unsold portion of the common property among all the tenants equally was not binding upon the incompetent tenant, since he should have received an equal share of the entire tract, and not merely of the unsold portion. Lasater v. Ramirez (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 935.

— What constitutes.—Oral agreement between surviving husband and first wife's sons, by which the husband conveyed community property for son's benefit in consideration that he release estate from claim, did not constitute a partition. Barkley v. Stone (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 925.

Art. 6123. [3633] Rules of pleading, practice and evidence.

Procedure in general.—A widow sued by a daughter for partition could not, under plea of general denial, show equitable title by proving the deed to her deceased husband offered in evidence by the daughter was other than what it purported to be, or that it was made to her husband in trust for her own benefit since a plea of general denial only puts plaintiff on proof of facts necessary to make a prima facie case. Green v. Churchwell (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 341.

A plea of not guilty has no place in a partition suit. Id.

Burden of proof.—Plaintiff's allegation in a partition suit that he is the owner of the land means that he is the owner of the legal title, and he must introduce evidence to establish the fact. Green v. Churchwell (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 341.

In partition between the children of their father's first marriage and the children of his second marriage as defendants, such defendants, in order to defeat plaintiffs' claim to receive any part of the rents, held to have burden of pleading and proving that the rents came solely from improvements made by their father and his second wife as upon community property. Pynes v. Pynes (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 777.

Sufficiency of evidence.—In a suit to recover an interest in, and for partition of, land, evidence held such that it was not error to refuse a requested peremptory charge for the defendants. Nabors v. Nabors (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1109.

PARTNERSHIPS—LIMITED

Article 6126. [3583] Limited partnerships authorized.

Cited, Rochelle v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 838.

Construction and operation in general.—Where underwriters signed an insurance policy as members of an unincorporated association, their liability to the insurer is that of partners, in view of art. 6151, and this article. Merchants' & Mrs.' Lloyd's Ins. Exch. v. Southern Trading Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 352.

DECISIONS RELATING TO PARTNERSHIP IN GENERAL

I. CREATION AND EXISTENCE OF RELATION

2. Creation and existence of relation in general.—Where one party to a contract of partnership or joint venture for the purchase and sale of a certain tract of land to take effect in futuro did not accept the failure of the other party to perform, or his renunciation, as ending the contract, the contract continued to exist, and the other party, though in default originally, could take advantage of its provisions despite his anticipatory breach. First Nat. Bank v. Rush (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 378.

7. Community of interest in profits and losses—Sharing profits as compensation for services.—A contract whereby one party puts his money or property into a business against the services and skill of another under a mutual understanding to share the profits may be said to be a partnership contract in the absence of circumstances opposing such construction. Lomax v. Trull (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 861.

8. — Sharing profits but not losses.—If two of partners were to share in profits of a venture and joined with plaintiff's manager, a partnership between three was clearly established by the community of interest in profits as such, although no agreement was made to share in losses.—Avery v. Llano Cotton Seed Oil Mill Ass'n (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 351.

Where a broker employed an assistant, who was to get half of commissions realized from sales of land made to customers from the section of the country from which the assistant came, held, that there was no partnership, but merely the relation of principal and agent; the assistant not having anything to do with losses. Christian v. Duna-vent (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 875.

11½. Fraud or misrepresentations—Illegality.—A contract to pay either profits or losses incurred in an illegal enterprise cannot be impeached by showing that the partnership enterprise in which such profits or losses accrued was illegal. Bellew v. Jacobs (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 928.

12. Creation of partnership as to third persons.—In determining the question of whether a partnership exists, the actual relation consequent upon the engagement of the parties will be looked to, and as to creditors the court ordinarily will apply the doctrine that one who shares profits must also share liabilities, unless it appears the parties intended and constituted a different relation, in effect excluding that of partnership. Fink v. Brown (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 846.

13. — Sharing profits.—It is sufficient to constitute a partnership that the parties are to have a community of interest in the profits as such. Fink v. Brown (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 846.

An agreement to purchase horses and mules for sale to the government, the parties to share equally in the profits, constituted a partnership notwithstanding they made no provisions as to losses. Steger v. Greer (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 304.

15. — Particular agreements and transactions.—Where a lease contract furnished the sole basis for ascertaining whether the relation of partnership existed between the lessor company and the lessee firm, it alone will be looked to to determine the question as to an injured employé, in the absence of facts constituting an estoppel in his favor. Fink v. Brown (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 846.

Contract, whereby corporation leased ice plant, land, machinery, and appurtenances, with tools, wagons, teams, etc., to a firm which agreed to share any net profit of more than $10,000 annually, held not to create a relation of partnership rendering the company liable for injuries to an employé of the firm. Id.

16. Estoppel by holding out as partner—In general.—A reasonably prudent man, knowing that his name was improperly used in a business as partnership, would have notified all persons whom he knew, or had reason to think, were relying on the existence of the partnership. Bivins v. Oldham (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 240.

17. — Conduct constituting holding out.—In an action against alleged partners, on the question of whether or not one of defendants permitted himself to be held out as a partner with the other defendant, it was permissible to permit witness to testify that such other defendant told him that defendants were partners: there being other facts shown tending to sustain the claim of estoppel. Bivins v. Oldham (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 240.

19. Defective corporations.—In suit by the receiver of a bank to enforce stock subscriptions against various subscribers, the subscribers cannot be held liable as partners, for, if they are so liable, it is not on their subscriptions, but for money of depositors received and converted, a liability enforceable by the receiver. Davis v. Allison, 109 Tex. 440, 211 S. W. 980.

21. Evidence to show relation—Weight and sufficiency.—That defendant's son had 20 per cent. interest in property or that defendant had invested in business funds intrusted to him did not prove a partnership. Pfeiffer v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 932.

In an action against a fire insurance company and others for conspiring to prevent plaintiff from obtaining insurance, evidence held not to show that an adjustment company made defendant was a partnership. Palatine Ins. Co. v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1014.

In action to foreclose vendor's lien notes, evidence held insufficient to sustain finding that plaintiff was a partner with land company. Vineyard v. Miller Land Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 693.

In an action against two defendants as partners, where the record disclosed an admitted partnership and the evidence supports a finding of partnership debt, and that the various undisputed items of the account were personally obtained by one of defendants and charged to the partnership account, the evidence is sufficient to support findings for plaintiff. Pennington v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 303.

The profit-sharing stipulation of a contract, standing alone, is but presumptive evidence of a partnership relation between the parties. Fink v. Brown (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 846.

Evidence held not to show existence of a partnership by estoppel. Guaranty Bank & Trust Co. v. Beaumont Cadillac Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 638.

In suit on notes signed "Beaumont Cadillac Company, per H. D. Ellis, Manager," held, that court properly found that said company defendant was a branch of defendant corporation and not a partnership composed of said Ellis and two others. Id.

In an action against an alleged partnership finding of the jury that one of the defendants was estopped by his conduct to deny that he was a partner held supported by evidence. Bivins v. Oldham (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 240.

In an action against alleged partners, evidence held to support finding that one of the defendants had actual notice that the other defendant was signing his name to contracts under a firm name. Id.

In a suit to rescind a contract for the sale of land and to recover money paid, evidence that defendant and the one who made the contract, and received the payments had a contract for the subdivision and sale of the lands and shares of the profits which authorized the other to make contracts in their joint names together with an accounting between the parties of receipts under the contracts, held to sustain a finding that defendant and the other were copartners. Kuykendall v. Schell (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 298.

Testimony of one of the defendants that they had entered into an agreement to purchase horses and mules for sale to the government, each to share equally in the profits, was sufficient, if believed by the jury, to establish partnership. Steger v. Greer (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 304.

II. NAME, POWERS AND PROPERTY OF FIRM

26. Conversion of joint property into separate property.—Where a crop of broom corn was raised by a partnership, and after the landlord was paid his share the two partners divided the remainder of the crop, each share became the individual property of the partner taking it, and one could mortgage his share as security for a loan, and insure it for the benefit of the mortgagee bank, which could transfer its interest to a third person who paid the partner's debt to it, this despite any secret agreement between the partners that the mortgaging partner's share should be subject to a charge for sums due in favor of the other partner, so that the insurance money on loss was properly payable to the third person who discharged the debt. Edwards v. Commercial Union Assur. Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 87.

III. MUTUAL RIGHTS, DUTIES AND LIABILITIES OF PARTNERS

27. Construction of articles of partnership in general.—In an action for an accounting by two members of a ranching partnership brought against a third member, who was to finance the business, the partnership contract, though it gave defendant the right to supervise and control his partners and to employ other men if plaintiffs became incapacitated, held not to authorize him to discharge plaintiffs and to substitute himself and charge the partnership for performing plaintiffs' duties; the contract expressly providing that no partner should be entitled to compensation for performing the duties imposed on him. Shelton v. Trigg (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 761.

28. Interest on debts.—Ordinarily one partner will not be charged with interest for the benefit of the firm on funds belonging to it. First Nat. Bank v. Rush (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 378.

29. Interests of partners in firm property.—Law fixes lien for interest of partner in personal property of firm, and in suit by partner to recover fifth interest in tools and profits, no evidence was necessary, except that there was partnership property in hands of defendant, and that plaintiff owned an interest. Levin v. Steinle (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1137.

Nothing is to be considered as the share of a partner but his proportionate part of the residue or balance after an accounting has been taken of the debts and credits, including the amount paid by the several partners in liquidating firm debts. Diamond v. Gust (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 366.

A partner has no specific interest in any particular chattel or part of the firm property, but only in the proper proportion of the surplus of the whole after payment of debts, including amounts due the other partners. Sherk v. First Nat. Bank (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 507.

In a suit for an accounting by a partner furnishing a garage, machinery, and supplies, against a partner operating the garage and agreeing to furnish labor, supplies, and expenses, if defendant put funds to pay therefor into the business these amounts should be paid out of the partnership assets, and considered in determining profit or loss to be divided equally under the agreement whereby each could take out capital contributed. Willbanks v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 265.

34. Dealings between partners.—Where a partnership contract gave defendant partner an absolute right to dispose of the partnership property and to dissolve the firm at his option, and also gave him absolute control over the other partners, but provided that no partner should receive compensation for work performed for the firm, defendant's actions in threatening to dispose of the partnership property and to dissolve the firm if he were not paid a salary for doing the work of the other partners whom he had discharged held to constitute duress, and to make him liable for an accounting for salaries so paid; defendant's threat to exercise a contractual right to accomplish an illegal purpose rendering the threat illegal, and defendant partner was not entitled in equity and good conscience to retain the salary paid, within the rule that to recover moneys paid under duress it must be shown also that it was against equity and good conscience for the payee to retain it. Shelton v. Trigg (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 761.

Where a partnership agreement provided that a dissolution might be had only on consent of one member, such consent held not a consideration for an agreement to pay a salary to such member, contrary to the partnership contract, where the agreement was made under duress; plaintiffs not regarding such consent as consideration. Id.

Where two members of a partnership under duress exercised by a third promised to pay for services rendered by such member in violation of the partnership agreement, such members were not liable to pay therefor as upon an implied contract. Id.

Where a member of a partnership wrongfully discharged the other members and substituted himself, making a charge for his services, notwithstanding the contract provided that no partner should make such charge, the services of such substitute held not a consideration for a promise to pay therefor made by the remaining partners under duress. Id.

40. Contribution between partners.—One of four partners, who, at time of settlement between him and another partner who had assumed entire firm indebtedness, was only liable for payment of fourth of loss, and was induced by fraudulent concealment and representation of facts by partner who had assumed indebtedness to pay more than he owed by way of contribution, had a cause of action. Chalk v. Collier (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 972.

Partner who assumed firm's indebtedness could not make settlement with two other partners of their several liabilities to him in way of contribution, without concurrence of third partner, if settlement would increase third partner's liability, or deprive him of any rights against other two contributing partners. Id.

If any of partners liable to contribution in favor of one who had assumed entire firm indebtedness were insolvent, liability of others might be proportionately increased, but insolvent would remain liable for contribution to those paying, and might be compelled to pay them if he thereafter became able. Id.

41. Actions between partners.—Where one partner appropriated to his individual use a sum of money which was to have been used in discharging a debt for property acquired by the other partner and delivered to the firm, the other partner cannot maintain an action of assumpsit, but should sue for an accounting. Snyder v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 974.

43. — Evidence.—In a suit by a partner against the independent executor of a deceased copartner to recover payments made by plaintiff to the partnership on behalf of decedent, evidence held to support a finding that the debt sued for was an independent and personal obligation of decedent to plaintiff and distinct from any obligation of the partnership as such. Ewing v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 625.

In an action by two members of a partnership against a third for an accounting as to salaries exacted by such third member under duress contrary to the terms of the partnership agreement, evidence held to show that plaintiffs did not ratify defendant's actions, since a contract obtained under duress cannot be ratified by the servient party unless the so-called ratification is after all pressure and coercion have been removed. Shelton v. Trigg (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 761.

IV. RIGHTS AND LIABILITIES AS TO THIRD PERSONS

45. Representation of firm by partner—Powers of partners in general.—Partnership held bound by representations of member, acting for it and for his sister, that latter, by payment of principal and interest of vendor's lien notes owned by trust company acquired title to them, consequently vendor's lien for their security. Bolding v. Bolding (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 587.

While ordinarily the majority of the partners will control, the management of the business may by agreement be committed to one or more of the partners. Oil Lease & Royalty Syndicate v. Beeler (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1054.

Where a partnership has been proved, the admission of one partner is binding upon all of them. Steger v. Greer (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 304.

The redelivery to grantor of an unrecorded deed by third person without grantee's knowledge or consent was insufficient to reinvest grantor with title, even if the third person was a copartner of grantee, where the land was grantee's individual property; the act of the copartner not being binding on grantee.—Mason v. Hood (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 468.

52. — Disposition of firm property in general.—A gift of a house and lot to an employee by one partner was not binding on the others where they had no knowledge thereof. Leonard v. Cleburne Roller Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 605.

Where mules were purchased for a claimed partnership by one who claimed to be a member of the partnership, he had no authority, even apparent, to dispose of the mules for his personal and private benefit. Gose v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 979.

53. — Contracts in general.—While a partnership is not recognized as an entity, yet partnership contracts and undertakings are determined and adjusted under the rules of law and equity governing that relation. Snyder v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 974.

Where a partnership was formed between a broker and a stranger to a contract between broker and another to share commissions, neither the firm nor the partners occupied the status of innocent purchaser as regards the rights of the other party to the contract, but must accept the burdens of the contract as well as its benefits. Bauer v. Crow, 110 Tex. 538, 221 S. W. 936, answering certified question (Civ. App.) 171 S. W. 296.

54. — Purchases and sales.—One partner of a trading partnership may lawfully and in good faith sell the entire personal assets of the partnership to pay partnership debts. Diamond v. Gust (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 366.

Under Bankr. Act, § 5g (U. S. Comp. St. § 9589), a partner had the implied power to convey the real estate of the firm in settlement of the firm's business and to dispose of his own interest, where neither he nor the firm were parties to a proceeding in which another partner was adjudicated a bankrupt. H. G. Denny & Co. v. Lee (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 947, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 294.

55. — Mortgages or deeds of trust.—Where a partnership purchased land with money advanced by plaintiff partner, who paid partnership notes and debts, and the other partner conveyed all his interest to plaintiff, after giving, while the partnership was insolvent, a deed of his interest to a third person as trustee for a bank, which was his individual creditor, the trustee had no rights superior to those of plaintiff but had merely a right to subject any surplus remaining after payment of partnership debts, including the debt to plaintiff, who did not waive his rights, by accepting the deed. Sherk v. First Nat. Bank (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 507.

A partner cannot mortgage partnership property to secure his individual indebtedness, and such mortgage cannot be enforced as against the rights of the other partner, though the creditor did not know that such property belonged to the partnership, unless such partner is estopped to set up his rights. Western Nat. Bank of Hereford v. Walker (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 544.

A general manager of a partnership is without authority to execute a mortgage on the property of his principal to secure a debt of a third person, where the principal is not liable for such debt, nor can he authorize another to so do. Rowe v. Guderian (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 960.

63. — Estoppel to deny partner's authority.—Where partner in drug firm, in inducing sister to purchase vendor's lien notes, acted for benefit of firm, his partner was estopped to say that so far as he was concerned sister did not acquire vendor's lien against land of partnership. Bolding v. Bolding (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 587.

66. — Notice of partner's transactions.—Where a partnership has loaned casings to an oil company, notice to one partner that the relation of lender and borrower had ceased, and that of debtor and creditor arisen, was notice to the partnership. Canadian Oil & Gas Co. v. Webb (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 135.

Where purchasers of notes are partners therein, knowledge of one is knowledge of all, as regards their being innocent purchasers. Schallert v. Boggs (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1061.

Where notice to one partner of an adverse claim of title and possession to a house and lot by an employee of the partnership was based on alleged gift of such house and lot by such partner, there was no notice to the partnership of adverse claim and possession; and other partners not knowing of or consenting to the gift. Leonard v. Cleburne Roller Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 605.

69½. Liability of partners in general.—Partners are individually and personally liable, as well as jointly liable, for partnership obligations. Goodman v. Republic Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 466.

Partners are individually responsible for torts by a firm when acting within the general scope of its business, whether they personally participate therein or not. Sabinal Nat. Bank v. Bryant (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 940, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 1179.

71. Application of assets to liabilities in general.—Partnership property is liable for partnership debts, and each partner has right to demand it be so applied. Bolding v. Bolding (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 587.

72. — Priority of partnership debts.—Where the husband and his partner bought the wife's dower interest, her action on notes for the price could not be defeated by partnership debts. Stewart v. Watts (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 324.

73. — To debts of individual partner.—If payment to it was made out of a partnership fund, the creditor bank could not apply it to the individual liability of a partner. First Nat. Bank v. Rush (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 378.

74. — Transactions by or between partners affecting creditors' rights.—The assignee or mortgagee of the interest of one partner takes subject to all partnership debts and liabilities, since he can obtain no greater right than the assignor or mortgagor had. Sherk v. First Nat. Bank (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 507.

75. Actions by or against firms or partners.—Where plaintiff sued two as partners, alleging that his right of action arose under a contract with them as a firm, he cannot change his action to one against one of the partners as an individual by taking a nonsuit as to the other, since one sued as a partner cannot be held liable save on a partnership obligation. Rowse v. Woody (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 362.

Ordinarily it is error to enter judgment for partner in individual capacity, entitling him to recover funds shown to belong to partnership. Hale v. McKenzie (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1004.

A partnership fund is not subject to garnishment for the individual debt of a member of the firm, especially where the firm's assets are insufficient to satisfy its debts. Brown v. Cassidy-Southwestern Commission Co. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 333.

77. — Parties.—One partner could not recover in suit, where other partner was not party. Morris v. Gwaltney (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 473.

One making contract in his own name for benefit of himself and an undisclosed partner may sue for the benefit of himself and partner and recover the full amount of the damages. Bankers' Trust Co. v. Schulze (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 570.

80. — Sufficiency of evidence.—In an action for price of wagons sold to a partnership, evidence held insufficient to show delivery and receipt by the partnership. Owensboro Wagon Co. v. San Antonio Tie & Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 701.

In an action by lessor against lessees and assignees of lease, answer of lessee, which adopted the pleadings of the plaintiff and prayed for judgment against assignees, held sufficient to authorize the trial court to submit the issues as to whether one of the alleged assignees had allowed the other assignee to represent that he was a partner, and whether or not lessees relied upon such representations and holding out. Bivins v. Oldham (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 240.

In an action wherein it was sought to hold a defendant as a partner on a note executed by his alleged copartner, evidence held sufficient to raise issues as to partnership relations between the parties when hay for which the note was given was shipped to the copartner, and as to whether the hay was bought for the partnership, but also to show conclusively that plaintiff had no dealings with the alleged copartner as a partnership, but that it consigned the hay alone to him for sale. Lubbock Grain & Coal Co. v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 539.

In an action against the owner of a theater by a bill poster for services, a peremptory instruction for plaintiff held not warranted by evidence on theory that one in possession of the theater and who hired plaintiff was defendant's partner or manager. Markowitz v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 968.

V. RETIREMENT AND ADMISSION OF PARTNERS

91. Obligations of old firm—Liabilities of incoming or succeeding partners.—Person who became member of partnership long after it dug ditch across another's land, damaging it, was not liable individually for such damage. Wooster v. Hoecker (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 332.

93. Liabilities of retiring partner for acts and obligations of continuing partner or new firm.—It is incumbent upon members of partnership to give due notice of dissolution, and actual notice is required to those who have had dealings with the partnership, but to those who had knowledge of, but no dealings with, the partnership prior to the dissolution, actual notice thereof is not required; a public notice given in some reasonable manner being deemed sufficient. Thompson v. Harmon (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 909.

One seeking to recover against a retiring partner must establish that he knew, at the time of the transaction, that a partnership existed, of which the one sought to be held liable was a member; that he was in ignorance of any dissolution; and that he entered upon the transaction or extended credit in reliance upon the partnership as it had theretofore existed. Id.

Knowledge or notice to creditors of partnership and ignorance of its dissolution cannot be established by evidence of general reputation and notoriety in the community as to whether the partnership continued in existence. Id.

Where plaintiff dealt solely with defendant's copartner in ignorance that defendant was a dormant partner, notice of subsequent dissolution of the firm need not be given to plaintiff. Lubbock Grain & Coal Co. v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 539.

VI. DISSOLUTION, SETTLEMENT AND ACCOUNTING

98. Causes of dissolution—Transfer of partner's interest.—A sale by one partner to another has the effect of dissolving partnership, since it destroys the community of interest. Sherk v. First Nat. Bank (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 507.

A sale which practically includes all the property used by a firm in carrying on its business, whether made by the firm or a member thereof, operates as a dissolution. Lubbock Grain & Coal Co. v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 539.

99. — Misconduct of partner.—The mere failure of a partner to pay money into the partnership under a partnership agreement will not work a forfeiture of his interest and a dissolution of the partnership, but abandonment may be implied from acts and conduct of the parties inconsistent with an intention on their part to continue the contract, especially in regard to contracts executory in their nature where little has been done toward their performance. First Nat. Bank v. Rush (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 521.

102. Rights, powers and liabilities after dissolution—Effect of dissolution as to rights and liabilities of third persons.—There cannot be a surviving partner, with the rights thereof where there was a voluntary dissolution of partnership, though the partner continuing the business, who afterward died, agreed to collect accounts due the firm, and divide the proceeds. Caognard v. Tarnke (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 221.

In an action for rent that oil fields, wherein the partnership dealt, commenced to fail and their business ceased to be profitable, held not sufficient to put plaintiff on notice that the partnership renting the property had been dissolved. Mansfield v. Gerdling (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 462.

103. — Collections and payments.—Where one of two partners, who were tenants under a cropping lease, died before the crop was sold, the surviving partner not only could but should repay to the landlord from the copartnership proceeds the advances by the landlord to the firm. Bright v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 580.

104. — Sale with stipulation to refrain from competition.—Where defendant sold his interest in a business covenanting not to enter into competition with plaintiff, fact that parties thereafter did business as partners does not warrant defendant after dissolution of second partnership in competing with plaintiff. Schluter v. McLeod (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 311.

105. — Contracting new obligations in general.—That settlement on dissolution between partners was not pending would not have the effect of continuing the relation after dissolution by conduct of the parties so as to make one partner the agent of the other and bind the partnership to a contract or obligation executed by one partner without the knowledge or consent of the other. Lubbock Grain & Coal Co. v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 539.

106. — Making or indorsing negotiable instruments.—General authority of one partner on dissolution to settle firm's business does not authorize him to give a note in the firm name for pre-existing firm debts or to renew an existing debt. Lubbock Grain & Coal Co. v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 539.

107. — Rights and liabilities of survivor as to estate of deceased.—Surviving partner has no right to keep and refuse to sell partnership property and thus avoid accounting to heirs of deceased partner. Schallert v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 940.

108. — Wrongful acts.—A landlord is not liable for conversion of the funds of a deceased tenant, where it appeared that the surviving partner of deceased, after harvesting the crop, paid an individual debt to the landlord from the proceeds, if it also appeared that after such payment the surviving partner retained sufficient portion of the proceeds to satisfy the deceased partner's claim in full. Bright v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 580.

110. Distribution and settlement between partners and their representatives.—A partner who pays or is forced to pay more than his proportionate share of firm debts has a right to a general accounting and contribution from the assets of the firm or from his copartners. Diamond v. Gust (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 366.

111. — Necessity of settlement in general.—Where judgment was entered against two partners, it must be presumed that the court found the debt to be a partnership one as alleged, and one partner could not obtain judgment over against another without going into a settlement of the partnership accounts, which would not be proper in such an action. Pennington v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 303.

114. — Private accounting and settlement.—In a suit to set aside a settlement of partnership affairs, court need not audit all the partnership accounts, where there is no issue between the parties except as to certain items. Woldert v. Pukli (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1112.

115. — Fraud.—Fraud vitiates a voluntary settlement of partnership affairs as it will any other contract. Woldert v. Pukli (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1112.

Partners occupy a fiduciary relationship to each other and have the right to repose confidence in one another and to rely upon statements made relative to partnership affairs and are not required to deal with one another at arm's length, even in a settlement of partnership affairs, and it is no answer in a suit to set aside a settlement that plaintiff had means of obtaining knowledge of matters involved. Id.

In an action to set aside a settlement of partnership affairs on the ground of fraud, evidence held sufficient to sustain a judgment for plaintiff. Id.

116. Actions for dissolution and accounting—In general.—The settlement of partnership accounts, and an equitable division of the assets of the partnership among the partners, has always been one of the functions of a court of equity. Diamond v. Gust (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 366.

In suit by one partner for an accounting on ground of fraudulent sale by the other partner, the sale being void as to plaintiff, he continued to hold a half interest in the property and business and could recover, not the value of the loss of his partnership property, but one-half the property and one-half the net profits after all firm debts were paid. Id.

In a suit for partnership accounting plaintiff may be decreed a lien on defendant's half interest in uncollected partnership accounts, which may be directed to be sold in satisfaction thereof, for the amount due in settlement, and this is also true of any partnership funds defendant used for his individual benefit, but no such lien may be allowed for a debt from defendant to plaintiff for a matter not within the partnership. Willbanks v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 265.

119. — Charges and credits.—In the settlement of partnership affairs, uncollected notes and accounts should not be treated by the court as money and charged to either party, but the court should provide for the collection or sale of the notes. First Nat. Bank v. Rush (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 521.

120. — Evidence on accounting in general.—In action to recover partner's fifth interest in plumbing tools and in profits of firm, evidence that plaintiff was entitled to one-fifth of profits, or $120, held to sustain judgment for that amount. Levin v. Steinle (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1137.

In a suit to settle partnership transactions in feeding and fattening hogs, the partners to share equally in the expenses and profits, an agreed statement of facts held not sufficient to show that any profits had been made. Biggs v. Key (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 271.

In an action for a partnership accounting, evidence of payment of $40 by plaintiffs to defendant, under an alleged agreement that the firm should no longer pay the subsistence account of one of the partners, held not to make a refusal to direct a verdict for defendant as to the allowance of such claim erroneous on the ground of estoppel. Shelton v. Trigg (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 761.

Where defendant member of a partnership under duress exacted a salary for his services in violation of the partnership contract, and subsequently forced plaintiffs to enter into a dissolution agreement, a finding that there was no consideration for the salary contract or the dissolution contract held sustained by the evidence. Id.

In a suit for accounting, evidence held not to sustain burden of showing misapplication or misuse by defendant of certain money plaintiff furnished for partnership needs. Willbanks v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 265.

Graham* (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 105.

An unincorporated association not having its headquarters in county in which it was sued was not required to file appeal bond within 20 days after notice of appeal under art. 2084, requiring bond to be so filed when appellant resides in the county, since such association is an entity and as such has its residence at the place of the general headquarters of the governing officers and body. Id.

An association of underwriters issuing fire policies, in all respects substantially an arrangement under the Lloyd's insurance system as adopted in the United States, there being a trust fund administered by attorney in fact, was such an association as is authorized to be sued in the name of the association under the statutes. Merchants' & Manufacturers' Lloyd's Ins. Exch. v. Southern Trading Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 312.

Subject matter of suits.—An association, labor union, or the like cannot sue in its own name, unless property rights in which the membership is jointly interested are involved, and a labor union could not maintain a suit in its name to restrain a city from discharging certain members of the fire department, there being no contract between the labor union and the city, since this article is based upon convenience and economy in permitting all the members of a joint-stock company or association to sue in the name of the association in order to conserve a joint right or redress a joint wrong, and it was never intended that the name of the association could be used to ascertain and protect the several rights of the members or redress their several wrongs. San Antonio Fire Fighters' Local Union No. 84 v. Bell (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 506.

Suits against trustees or managers.—Suits in equity may be brought by or against some of the members of an association or trust as representatives of all the members, particularly where defendants are managing officers or trustees. Davis v. Hudgins (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 73.

The relation existing between parties owning shares in a trust to operate an oil company not being that of partners in the ordinary sense, it was not necessary that all shareholders in the association be made parties to a suit between shareholders involving its affairs and seeking accounting, dissolution, etc. Id.

Art. 6150. Citation, upon whom served.

Necessity of service on officers.—Where stockholders sought dissolution of the company, the relief prayed could not be granted, where only three stockholders were served and the officers were not served. Crow v. Cattlemen's Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1047.

Art. 6151. Judgment against, conclusive against stockholders.

Cited, Crow v. Cattlemen's Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1047.

Construction and operation in general.—Where underwriters signed an insurance policy as members of an unincorporated association, their liability to the insurer is that of partners, although the policy limited the liability of each one to a certain percentage of the loss. Merchants' & Mfrs.' Lloyd's Ins. Exch. v. Southern Trading Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 352.

In a suit on an insurance policy signed by numerous underwriters, where their attorneys in fact have executed a bond to pay off any judgment against the company, every member of the company was bound by a joint and several judgment in favor of the insured. Id.

Art. 6152. Effect of judgment where agent of company only is cited.

Art. 6153. Effect of judgment where individual stockholders also are cited.

Cited, Crow v. Cattlemen's Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1047.

Debts of joint stock company.—Individual members of a joint-stock association by statute are made liable for the debts of the concern, the question of their liability for the debts of the firm being under the circumstances of the particular case determinable by the general principles applicable to partnerships. Dee v. Taylor-Hanna-James Co. (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 361.

Art. 6154. This chapter cumulative; not to impair existing rights.

Cited, Crow v. Cattlemen's Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1047.

DECISIONS RELATING TO UNINCORPORATED ASSOCIATIONS IN GENERAL

Nature and status in general.—Parties constituting members of a voluntary association, as a syndicate, have the legal liabilities, rights, and duties of partners, except there ordinarily is no delictus personæ, and the affairs are usually conducted by managers designated according to the by-laws, and as the rights of each member are fixed by certificate, the death of a member will not dissolve the association. Oil Lease & Royalty Syndicate v. Beeler (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1054.

In the absence of legislation, a voluntary unincorporated association is not regarded by the law as a person or entity, and where such associations engage in business enterprise, the liability of the members to third persons is similar to the liability of partners, and enforceable in the same manner as the partnership liability. Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen v. Cook (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1049.

An association of persons and institutions for mutual protection against fire losses by a scheme of mutual insurance and limited liability held not a partnership. Sergeant v. Goldsmith Dry Goods Co., 110 Tex. 482, 221 S. W. 259, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1036, and answers to certified questions conformed to 223 S. W. 1118.

Agreement between organizers of an oil company held to have created a trust for such purpose, and not an unincorporated joint-stock company. Davis v. Hudgins (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 73.

By-laws and articles of association.—A member of an association may, by prior agreement, authorize the association to act for him and bind him by subsequent by-laws, awards, and the like. Kelsey v. Early Grain & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 849.

The by-laws of a syndicate formed to buy and sell oil leases provided for an executive committee, which should perform all acts necessary to complete the organization, and further provided for the election of a board of directors by the stockholders, and that such directors should assume control of the business. Held that, despite conflicting provisions in the by-laws, which apparently would have given the executive committee continuing control, the directors elected by the stockholders are thereafter entitled to control the affairs of the association as against the executive committee. Oil Lease & Royalty Syndicate v. Beeler (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1054.

A voluntary association has power to enact laws governing the admission of members and to prescribe the necessary qualifications for membership; membership being a privilege which the society may accord or withhold at its pleasure, with which a court of equity will not interfere, even though the arbitrary rejection of the candidate may prejudice his material interest. Harris v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1068.

Courts sometimes interfere where members of voluntary associations have been wrongfully excluded or expelled, but as a rule they will not interfere with the right of an association to make laws or rules, unless they are against good morals or violate the laws of the state. Id.

Purchasers of stock were bound by the provisions of articles of association authorizing trustees to conduct its business affairs and purchase and otherwise acquire property necessary for its purposes, including their power to sell all of its property for repayment of stockholder when unable to raise sufficient money to improve its property. Lucky Pat Oil & Gas Ass'n v. Cox (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 858.

Rights of members.—Purchasers of shares in a colony, with understanding it contained not less than 12,800 acres, each share representing part of the whole tract, on paying the price became collectively equitable owners of their interests in the entire tract, and also acquired equitable title to an excess area of 135.92 acres subsequently discovered in the tract, which was not reserved from sale to them or in any way designated or segregated, though deed was not made by the vendors as provided in the contract, but deeds were executed to each individual purchaser or shareowner for specific property designated by a meeting of shareholders. Duncanson v. Howell (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 232, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Howell v. Duncanson, 195 S. W. 349.

Where plaintiff contracted with an unincorporated joint-stock association for $100 par value of its stock in exchange for a $100 Liberty Bond which the association returned, plaintiff's acceptance of such return would preclude him from treating the action as a conversion of his stock which had never been delivered. Thrift Oil & Gas Co. No. 2 v. Newton (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 495.

Where defendant committed a breach of contract to sell its own stock returning plaintiff's Liberty Bond which it had agreed to accept, plaintiff was in the same condition as if he had never delivered the bond and could recover the difference between the value of the bond and the value of the stock at the time of the breach, but the bond's depreciation would not warrant his recovering the highest price of the stock between dates of breach and trial. Id.

Where a joint-stock association failed to carry on, and, recognizing that stockholders were entitled to a refund, sold land to a company for $4,000, such company to issue its stock for other stock and to pay to those who refused to accept its stock the face cash value for their stock, held, that all stockholders are entitled to participate in the $4,000 fund. Lucky Pat Oil & Gas Ass'n v. Cox (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 858.

Stockholder of a joint-stock association held to have ratified the trustee's transfer of its property to another company by refusing to accept rescission of the contract of sale and the placing of each party thereto in statu quo. Id.

Liability of members for acts and debts of association.—Trustees and members of unincorporated association may limit their liability as to some torts, and even relieve trust estate as to some, since it is not contrary to public policy to stipulate against liability for negligence except where relation of master and servant or passenger and carrier exists, but such members and trustees cannot make valid contract exempting themselves from individual liability for injuries to employes of association. Fisheries Co. v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 343.

In personal injury suit by employe against unincorporated association and two shareholders who were trustees and managing officers, court did not err in refusing to hold such members liable for such part only as would be arrived at by charging each with one-twelfth, etc., defendants being severally liable for full amount. Id.

Under applications signed by persons becoming members of an unincorporated association for mutual protection against losses by fire, providing that deposits be made by each member as a fund to pay losses, and that, if the deposits should be expended, the members should pay to the trustee such sums as might be required, "provided said sum shall in no case exceed the amount of the premises on his policy or policies then in force," held, that a member was severally liable for compensation of a manager appointed and losses on other policies only to the amount specified as premium for the insurance carried by him, but that the members were jointly and severally liable as principals to creditors with claims for services rendered or supplies sold to the association and creditors with claims for premiums for risks reinsured. Sergeant v. Goldsmith Dry Goods Co., 110 Tex. 482, 221 S. W. 259, answering certified questions (Civ. App.) 159 S. W. 1036, and answers to certified questions conformed to 223 S. W. 1118.

Where an unincorporated association was formed for the purpose of mutual protection against losses by fire, applications filed by the persons and firms becoming members must be construed along with policies issued in order to determine the liability of any member for the loss of another member; the application being the only document subscribed by any member. Id.

Officers and committees.—Where three trustees of an association sold property, accepting the services of plaintiff, the association is estopped to deny the authority of the managing trustee, who contracted with plaintiff for rendition of services in connection with the sale. Waurika Oil Ass'n No. 1 v. Ellis (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 364.

Actions against association.—In suit against sellers of stock in a joint-stock association to be formed who agreed to drill for oil to the depth of 2,000 feet and to turn the well over to the association, defendants claiming that they drilled the well to the depth agreed, evidence held to sustain case as made by plaintiffs' pleading alleging that the sole consideration for their purchase of the stock was the agreement on the part of defendants to drill a well to a depth of 2,000 feet unless oil or gas should be found in paying quantities before. Frye v. Wayland (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 975.

Equitable relief.—Where one of the members of a joint-stock association, owning half of its stock, was in hopeless deadlock with the owners of the other half of the stock, making it impossible to proceed with business, held, the association should be dissolved, its affairs wound up, and its property partitioned, although the original agreement provided that the trust should continue 50 years. Wiess v. McFaddin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 337.

Art. 6183. May purchase instrumentalities for employment of convicts.—The Prison Commission shall have the power to purchase or cause to be purchased, with such funds as may be at their disposal, any machinery, tools or supplies needed for the benefit of said Prison System; and may establish such factories as, in their judgment, may be practicable and that may afford useful and proper employment to prisoners confined in the State Penitentiary, under such regulations, conditions and restrictions as may be deemed best for the welfare of the State and the prisoners, it being the purpose of this Act to clothe said board of Prison Commissions with all power and authority necessary for proper management of the Prison System of this State. [Acts 1910, 4 S. S., p. 143, § 12; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 141, § 1.]

Art. 6184. Purchase of land, how made.—The Prison Commission shall not purchase any land for the prison system of the State of Texas unless and until the land to be so purchased and the maximum price to be paid therefor shall have been submitted to and received the approval of the Legislature of this State, and when any purchase of land is so approved, the said Prison Commission may pay such sum in cash as may be agreed upon between the vendor and the Prison Commission and for the unpaid purchase money to become due upon said land, they shall execute to the vendor notes payable in such sum and in such time as may be agreed upon between the parties, and the payment of which shall be secured by a deed of trust upon such land in the usual form, and containing such covenants as may be agreed upon between the parties and may pledge a sufficient amount of the net revenues of the property so purchased to pay the deferred instalments of purchase money thereon; and it shall be expressly provided in the conveyance to said land, the notes executed for the unpaid purchase money and the deed of trust, that the vendor relies alone upon the lien created by the deed of trust upon said land and the net revenue so pledged and that no personal liability against the Prison Commission or the State of Texas shall arise out of said transaction beyond said liens; and the purchase money paid originally, as well as the instalments paid upon deferred payments, may be paid out of any funds belonging to the said Prison System. The title to all lands purchased by the Prison Commission under the terms of this Act shall be examined, passed upon and approved as good and sufficient by the Attorney General, before such deed and conveyance shall be accepted by the Prison Commission, and all conveyances, notes and trust deeds, and other instruments executed under the provisions of this Act, shall be prepared, passed upon and approved by the Attorney General. The title to all lands so purchased shall vest in the Prison Commission, and their successors in office, as trustees, for the State. [Acts 1910, 4 S. S., p. 143, § 13; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 141, § 2; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 63, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Took effect July 28, 1919. The title and enacting part purports to amend sec. 2 of act approved March 24, 1919, being chapter 141, General Laws 36th Leg. Regular Session, by adding thereto sections 2a and 2b. The act then proceeds to amend sec. 13, ch. 10, Acts 31st Leg., 4th Called Session, so as to read as set forth above. After the provision appears a section marked 2a, reading as set forth below in art. 6184a. After this provision follows a section marked 2b, but which is the usual emergency clause.

Art. 6184a. Exercise of certain options.—The right and desire of the Prison Commission to purchase under and in accordance with, and, if necessary, by appropriate action or actions to specifically enforce the options contained in two certain leases from Bassett Blakely to the Prison Commission hereinafter referred to, having been submitted to, is hereby approved by the Legislature, and the said Prison Commission is hereby authorized and directed to exercise said options and to purchase the lands thereunder, and, if necessary, by such appropriate action or actions as they may be advised by the Attorney General, to enforce their rights under said options. Said lease contracts containing said options which relate to and embrace certain lands commonly known as Blue Ridge Farms Numbers One and Two therein described in Fort Bend and Harris Counties, Texas, are as follows:

Said contract is likewise acknowledged by Bassett Blakeley before J. W. Lewis, Notary Public, Harris County, was filed for record with the County Clerk of Fort Bend County, February 26th, 1916, and recorded in the deed records of that county, Volume 71, pages 370 et seq.

Art. 6187. Farm and factory products, movable and real property, how sold.—The Prison Commission shall have power to sell and dispose of all farm products and the products of all factories connected with the prison System, and all personal and movable property, at such prices and on such terms as may be deemed best by them, and they may with the approval of the Governor, lease any real estate or other fixed property and appurtenances belonging thereto upon such terms as to them seem best. The Prison Commission shall not have authority to sell any real estate, except as they are directed by the Governor and when directed by the Governor to sell any real estate, they shall have power to execute proper conveyance to the title thereto, such instruments of conveyance shall be prepared and approved by the Attorney General. Art. 6192. Prison accounts, how kept.

Cited, Atkins v. State Highway Department (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 226.

Art. 6195a. Removal by suit brought by the Attorney General; effect of judgment; appointment of successor.—In addition to the method of removing members of the Board of Prison Commissioners referred to in Article 6195 hereof, they may likewise be removed for the causes set forth in Article 6195 by suit brought by the Attorney General in the name of the State of Texas on the relation of the Governor; such suit to be brought in the District Court of Walker County or in Travis County, or in the county or residence of the defendant, for which purpose venue and jurisdiction is hereby conferred. It shall be the duty of the Attorney General to bring such action when directed by the Governor to do so provided the Governor accompanies such direction with charges and evidence showing the defendant is subject to removal under Article 6195. Upon the application of the Attorney General, in the name of the State of Texas, the District Judge before whom such suit is pending, may immediately suspend the defendant from office, which order or suspension shall be effective until set aside by the Court on the motion of the defendant, which motion upon the demand of the defendant shall have preference over all other causes pending in such court; provided, however, that if the judgment of the trial court be one of removal from office, the defendant shall be forthwith suspended from office pending any appeal of the case. In the event the defendant be suspended from office, and the suit finally results in favor of the defendant, he shall be entitled to recover all the compensation which would have accrued to him had he not been suspended from office, and judgment, in such event, shall be rendered against the State of Texas that the defendant recover such compensation, determining the amount thereof. The Comptroller of the State shall, upon receipt of a duly certified copy of such judgment, issue a warrant upon the State Treasury for the full amount of such judgment, such warrant to be paid by the State Treasurer out of any funds of the State not otherwise appropriated. Whenever the defendant is suspended from office, as hereinabove provided, the district judge at the time of making such order of suspension, shall appoint, for the duration of such suspension, some other qualified person to discharge the duties of the officer suspended, the person so appointed shall receive the same measure of compensation provided by law for such office, to be paid from the same sources and in the same manner as same would have been paid to the officer suspended. The suit shall be a civil action to be tried as other civil cases with the right to appeal and review as in other civil cases. The courts shall have authority to issue all necessary writs to effectuate any judgment of removal or order of suspension rendered hereunder. Such suits for removal shall have precedence over all other cases in trial courts and in appellate tribunals. The procedure of removal herein provided shall be cumulative of all other statutes relating to the subject of removal from office or impeachment. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 32, § 1, adding art. 6195a to Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 6196. Salaries and qualifications of under-officers and employés.—The prison commission shall, except as provided in this Title, fix the salaries of all officers and employés of the prison system upon such a basis as the labor and ability of the officer or employé entitles him to, such salary to be paid monthly at the end of each month. They shall pay to those employed as guards of the convicts salaries of not less than Forty ($40.00) Dollars nor more than Sixty ($60.00) Dollars per month, and it shall be the duty of the prison commission to promulgate, effective not later than July 1, 1918, an equitable schedule of salaries between the said amounts, based upon the length of service of the guard in the employ of the prison commission, his efficiency and ability to perform in a capable manner the work devolving upon such employés of the prison system; and shall furnish such guards with board and lodging free. No person shall be employed as a guard to guard convicts who is not at least twenty-one years of age, of good moral character and who is not able to read and write and has not a fair knowledge of the English language; and the prison commission may provide such other qualifications as they may deem expedient; provided, that no person shall be employed as a guard who is in any way addicted to the use of alcoholic or intoxicating liquors; and the prison commission shall require all officers and employés connected with the prison system to familiarize themselves with and conform to the rules and regulations and laws governing the prison system of this State; provided, the prison commission shall require all officers and employés with the prison system of this State to take and subscribe to the oath of office prescribed by the Constitution. [Acts 1910, 4 S. S., p. 143, § 29; Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 32, § 1; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 67, § 1.]

Art. 6200h. Use of convict labor.—For the purpose of establishing and erecting said prison plant, the Re-locating Commission is hereby further empowered to use such convict labor as may be necessary to erect said buildings, and perform such other labor as may be necessary in laying out and establishing said plant, and the Board of Prison Commissioners of Texas shall, upon requisition by said Re-locating Commission, furnish such convict labor. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 6200k. Manufacturing plants.—Said Re-locating Commission is further empowered to inaugurate and install such plants as it may see fit for producing or manufacturing, as it may deem to the best interest of the State of Texas, and in which producing or manufacturing, the convict labor of the penitentiary system may be best adapted to. Said Board shall be appointed by the Governor of the State of Texas, by and with the advice of the Senate of Texas. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 59, § 1.]

Took effect Nov. 15, 1921.

WORKHOUSES AND COUNTY CONVICTS

Art. 6232. Commissioners' courts to establish workhouses, etc.	Art. 6240. Refractory convicts to be punished. 6244. How to be credited on fine, etc.
6233. "County convicts" defined.	6247. Costs to be paid officers.
6238. To labor on public works, etc.

Article 6232. [3727] Commissioners' courts to establish workhouses, etc.

Cited, Walton v. Travis County, 5 Civ. App. 525, 24 S. W. 352.

Art. 6233. [3728] "County convict" defined.

See Ex parte Grimes, 81 Cr. R. 405, 195 S. W. 858.

Art. 6238. [3733] To labor on public works, etc.

Construction and operation in general.—The failure of the county commissioners' court to put the county convicts to work on the public roads, and permitting them to remain in jail until fines and costs are satisfied by imprisonment, does not render the county liable to the prosecuting attorney for his fees accruing to him for the prosecution of such convicts, which the county is required, by article 6247, to pay out of the labor of such convicts, since the county is not liable for the negligence of its officers, unless made so by statute. Walton v. Travis County, 5 Civ. App. 525, 24 S. W. 352.

Art. 6240. [3735] Refractory convicts to be punished.

Art. 6244. [3739] How to be credited on fine, etc.

In general.—A county convict who has worked at the county farm a sufficient time to satisfy his fine is entitled to his discharge. Ex parte Dampier, 24 Tex. App. 561, 7 S. W. 330.

The amendment reducing from one dollar to fifty cents the rate per day allowed a county convict as credit on his fine and costs when working the same out by manual labor, does not apply to a judgment which was rendered, and in process of execution, prior to the passage of the act; since under Const. art. 1, § 16, every law which changes the punishment, and inflicts a greater punishment than the law annexed to the crime when committed, is ex post facto. Ex parte Hunt, 28 Tex. App. 361, 13 S. W. 145.

Art. 6247. [3742] Costs to be paid officers.

Decision under prior statute, see Grayson County v. May (App.) 19 S. W. 331.

Liability of county.—The failure of the county commissioners' court to put the county convicts to work on the public roads, as required by art. 6238, and permitting them to remain in jail until fines and costs are satisfied by imprisonment, does not render the county liable to the prosecuting attorney for his fees accruing to him for the prosecution of such convicts, which the county is required, by this article, to pay out of the labor of such convicts, since the county is not liable for the negligence of its officers, unless made so by statute. Walton v. Travis County, 5 Civ. App. 525, 24 S. W. 352.

CHAPTER FOUR

HIRING COUNTY CONVICTS

Art.
6249. Convicts may be hired out.
6250. Either publicly, privately or generally, etc.

Art.
6251. Hirer shall give bond, and its requisites.

Article 6249. [3744] Convicts may be hired out.

See Ex parte Dampier, 24 Tex. App. 561, 7 S. W. 330; Ex parte Grimes, 81 Cr. R. 405, 195 S. W. 858.

Former law.—See Grayson County v. May (App.) 19 S. W. 331.

Convicts who may be hired out.—One convicted of seduction, which is a felony, and punished by fine, could not be hired out. Ward v. White, 86 Tex. 170, 23 S. W. 981.

Residence of parties in county of conviction.—Ex parte Medaris, 38 Cr. R. 493, 43 S. W. 517.

Art. 6250. [3745] Either publicly or privately, generally or especially.

See Ward v. White (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 312.

Art. 6251. [3746] Hirer shall give bond and its requisites.

Validity of bond.—The law authorizing the county judge to hire out one convicted of a misdemeanor or a petty offense and punished by fine, does not apply to a conviction for felony, though the punishment has been assessed at a fine; and the bond given by the hirer of such a convict is not valid, either as a statutory or a common-law bond, and its payment cannot be enforced by the county judge. Ward v. White (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 312.

Where judgment in a criminal case was void, a capias pro fine, under which defendant was arrested and delivered into the custody of another on execution by the latter of a convict's bond, issued in furtherance of execution and enforcement of the judgment, was also void; the bond under arts. 6233, 6240, 6249–6256, being but a means of procedure to enforce the judgment. Ex parte Grimes, 81 Cr. R. 405, 195 S. W. 858.

PRINCIPAL AND SURETY

Art. 6329. Surety may require suit to be brought.	Art. 6332. Execution levied first on property of principal.
6330. Discharged by failure to sue, when.	6336. Surety not to be sued alone, unless, etc.
6331. May have question of suretyship tried, when.	6337. Who is surety within this title.

Cited, State Nat. Bank of Ft. Worth v. Vickery, (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 841; Fisher v. Russell (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 143.

Notice by surety to creditor to proceed against principal.—Although a chattel mortgage gave the mortgagee power to take possession upon removal of the property, and such right was also given by statute, yet, where a surety who signed the mortgage did not in writing, request that such summary power be exercised, the mortgagee was not guilty of negligence discharging the surety because it failed to exercise such summary power on the surety's oral inquiry concerning the matter the day the mortgagee left; the debt secured by the mortgage not yet being due. Self Motor Co. v. First State Bank of Crowell (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 428.

As notice by surety to obligee to collect from the principal must be in writing, a verbal request is inadmissible. Bumpus v. Lovejoy (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 631.

Evidence.—Evidence held insufficient to show that defendant, who claimed to be a surety, gave the required notice to the obligee to collect from the principal. Bumpus v. Lovejoy (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 631.

Art. 6330. [3812] Discharged by failure to sue, when.

Cited, State Nat. Bank of Ft. Worth v. Vickery (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 841.

Failure of creditor to proceed against principal.—In an action by the payee of a promissory note against the surety, the promise of the payee to the surety to bring action against the maker which promise was not kept constitutes no defense where not alleged. Fisher v. Russell (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 143.

Art. 6331. [3813] May have question of suretyship tried, when.

Burden of proof.—Since it will be presumed that all the makers of a joint and several note were equally liable with each other, the burden of showing the contrary rests upon such of the makers as allege that their liability is limited and different from that of the other makers. Lockett v. Farmers' State Bank of Vernon (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 526.

Art. 6332. [3814] Execution, levied first on property of principal.

See Dignowity v. Staacke (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 824.
In general.—In an action on a note against the maker and surety, where judgment is rendered for the payee, it is error to enter an absolute judgment in favor of the surety against the maker, but the court should order the sheriff to levy execution first on the property of the maker, and, if sufficient property of the maker cannot be found, to levy on property of the surety for the deficiency. Dignowity v. Staacke (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 824.

This article held without application, in suit by bank against public weigher and sureties for breach of duty in releasing without surrendering of receipts cotton for which he had issued receipts, which were pledged to bank, to require judgment to protect weigher and sureties by subjecting property of depositor of cotton and pledgor of receipts first to execution, etc. Taliaferro v. Brady Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 174.

Art. 6336. [3818] Surety not to be sued alone, unless, etc.

Parties.—Creditor company properly joined in one suit its debtor and the surety who signed with the debtor a purported guaranty of account. Dodd v. W. T. Rawleigh Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 131.

If the holder of the note sued guaranteeing indorser, alleging that the maker was only an accommodation maker, it was right of the guaranteeing indorser to have the maker made a party for the determination of that issue. Moore v. Belt (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 225.

Sureties may be impleaded in proper suits, or even come in themselves and have the question of their liability determined and fixed. National Surety Co. v. Atascosa Ice, Water & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 597.

Only in case of a conditional guaranty, and not where the guaranty is absolute, need the principal be sued before the guarantor, or joined in the action against him. Smith v. Cummer Mfg. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 338.

Art. 6337. [3819] Who is surety within this title.

See Smith v. Cummer Mfg. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 338.

Parties.—Creditor company properly joined in one suit its debtor and the surety who signed with the debtor a purported guaranty of account. Dodd v. W. T. Rawleigh Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 131.

If the holder of the note sued guaranteeing indorser, alleging that the maker was only an accommodation maker, it was right of the guaranteeing indorser to have the maker made a party for the determination of that issue. Moore v. Belt (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 225.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

I. CREATION AND EXISTENCE OF RELATION

2. Validity of obligation of principal.—A bonding company's bond to secure the execution of a building contract was not vitiated by the fact that obligee had only the legal title to the premises, and the equitable title was in another. Texas Fidelity & Bonding Co. v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 301.

That a contract is usurious does not entirely discharge sureties, but they are liable for principal. C. C. Slaughter Co. v. Eller (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 704.

The liability of a surety for a promise made by a person incompetent to contract is not necessarily ascertained by determining the liability of the principal, the surety being released only if the undertaking is illegal, or the principal's promise is induced by fraud or deceit, incapacity of the principal being a contingency against which the surety assures the promisee. Mitchell v. Zurn (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 954. Reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Zurn v. Mitchell, 196 S. W. 544.

Sureties for a corporation whose contract to do grading and excavating, build a cement foundation, and lay floors was ultra vires, the company being chartered only to manufacture and deal in building material, were liable to the other party on the corporation's breach; the contract being neither illegal nor against public policy. Id.

Where the principal, a married woman or a minor, is discharged on account of his or her incapacity, the debt remains, and its burden must be assumed by the surety for the woman or minor. Id.

3. Creation of relation in general.—Letters written by the son of the maker of a note to the holder of same held not to make the writer liable as guarantor for the debt of his father. Hopkins v. Schallert (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 219.

Where letters are relied on as constituting guaranty of payment of a note, all the essential terms of a guaranty contract must clearly appear from the writing. Id.

Evidence held to show that defendant promised to pay plaintiff on services rendered individually and not as surety. Bumpus v. Lovejoy (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 631.

While a surety is usually bound with his principal in one and the same instrument, executed at the same time and on the same consideration, a guarantor's obligation is his separate undertaking, on which he is not liable until the default and liability of the principal creditor has been established. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank of Comanche v. Lillard Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 260.

5. Change from principal debtor to surety.—Where, after vendee had defaulted and judgment had been obtained against him, he and his wife conveyed property to a trustee, who in turn conveyed to the wife, stipulation in deed to wife that she agreed to pay judgment had the effect to bind her as primary obligor, and make her husband surety, if she had capacity to make such contract. Johnson v. Scott (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 671.

Where an assumption has been accepted by the payee, the assumptor becomes the principal and the original debtor is surety as to the creditor, unless otherwise specially contracted by the parties. Wilson v. J. W. Crowds Drug Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 223, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 194.

For a debtor to obtain the advantage that may have accrued to him as surety by reason of the fact that the extension actually given by the creditor to the purchasers of the debtor's stock of goods assuming the debt was different from that consented to by the debtor, it was incumbent upon the debtor to establish an unconditional acceptance by the creditor of the assumption by the purchasers of the debt. Id.

11. Delivery of written instruments—Acceptance and notice thereof.—Notice of acceptance of bond, it being one of security, and not of guaranty, securing performance of their contract by cigar salesmen, held not necessary to charge the sureties. Martinez v. Cathey (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 370.

12. Consideration.—Where, in consideration of written guaranty of note of guarantor's deceased brother, noteholder extended note and waived lien on horses under mortgage securing note, which horses guarantor's son was to use in hauling to secure funds to pay note, consideration for guaranty did not fail because deceased brother's administrator took possession of horses. McDaniel v. Cage & Crow (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1073.

Extension of note, or release of security, is sufficient consideration for written guaranty of note. Id.

Note executed to pay indebtedness of third party for goods furnished prior to execution of note, and not at request of maker, was without consideration and was not collectable. Santikos v. Hamilton-Turner Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 560.

13. Mistake.—If one is induced to become a surety for another through material misrepresentations of fact, though honestly made, the contract is invalid. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Hico Oil Mill (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 137.

One who signs a chattel mortgage without reading it is not released from his liability because of his negligence. Self Motor Co. v. First State Bank of Crowell (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 428.

II. NATURE AND EXTENT OF LIABILITY OF SURETY

18. General rules of construction.—The rule that surety contracts will be strictly construed applies only after the legal scope or effect of the terms used is determined by an application of the same rules of construction that are applied to any other character of contract. State Nat. Bank of Ft. Worth v. Vickery (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 841.

A suretyship contract is to be interpreted with a view of ascertainment of the intent of the parties, the same to be gathered from the language of the instrument in its entirety, and where necessary resort may be had to the purpose of the parties in the making of the contract. Id.

Surety contracts will be strictly construed, merely that the obligation of the surety shall not be extended by implication or presumption, and not to relieve the surety from an onerous condition or obligation. Id.

The rules which determine the rights of uncompensated sureties are applicable in determining the rights of corporation sureties who enter into contract of suretyship for profit. Hess & Skinner Engineering Co. v. Turney, 110 Tex. 148, 216 S. W. 621.

Surety on a contractor's bond is charged with knowledge of all the terms, stipulations, and legal consequences of the contract upon which it became a guarantor. O'Neil Engineering Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 1091, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) First Nat. Bank v. O'Neil Engineering Co., 176 S. W. 74.

The liability of sureties is strictissimi juris, and not to be extended by construction. Chapman v. Gross R. Scruggs & Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 471.

19. Scope and extent of liability in general.—The liability of a surety cannot be extended beyond the terms of the contract out of which his obligation arises. Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 460; McGregor & Henger v. Escalada (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 398.

Contractor to erect church, and sureties, held liable for cost of insurance paid by church trustees for breach of contract obligation to keep building insured and to carry liability insurance. Garrett v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 675.

In an action against surety on a contractor's bond, evidence tending to show an oral agreement between contractor and owner to which surety was not a party held properly excluded. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Harlan (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 906.

Contract purporting to guarantee payment of account, signed by principal debtor and claimed guarantor, held one of suretyship and not of guaranty. Dodd v. W. T. Rawleigh Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 131.

Though city ordinance for the licensing of operators of jitney busses required such operators to file a bond in the amount of $1,000 conditioned on payment of all damages from negligence, etc., declared that in no event should the sureties be liable for more than the amount of the bond, yet, where a bus operator filed two bonds each in the amount of $1,000, the liability of the sureties is not restricted to $500 each, and in event of a judgment for more than $2,000 against the operator, surety is liable to the full amount of the bond, though the other surety had paid $900 in compromise of the claim against him. Western Indemnity Co. v. Murray (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 696.

Where milling company having elevator in which it stored its own wheat was granted loans of $10,000 at different times evidenced by three promissory notes of that amount, and company gave as collateral its warehouse receipts covering wheat in elevator, and also gave bond with surety with obligation against fraudulent issue of certificate, withdrawal of wheat without return of certificate and conversion of wheat by milling company, surety, on facts showing that on issuance of first note company had full amount of wheat in elevator, but not requisite amount on issuance of other two notes, and that company went into bankruptcy, having no wheat on hand, was liable as to first note for the distributive share that the obligee would have received with other creditors if converted wheat had been on hand at market price at time of bankruptcy, but as to other notes was liable at face of notes as the certificates securing these were fraudulently issued. New England Equitable Ins. Co. v. Mechanics'-American Nat. Bank of St. Louis (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 685.

A written guaranty of any indebtedness for merchandise sold to guarantor's son guarantees the payment of notes given by son for merchandise purchased, which is merely representing the indebtedness in a different form. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Neblett (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 963, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 365.

Where city canceled contract for construction because contractor was financially embarrassed, when contractor's surety undertook to take over and complete work, it was under duty to use reasonable care and good faith to do so at minimum cost, and to account to contractor for difference between cost and amount received from city, a duty not escaped by letting the contract to a construction company for an arbitrary sum. Lion Bonding & Surety Co. v. O'Kelly (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1115.

A mere guaranty of accounts, or of payment of accounts, without more, is an absolute guaranty. Smith v. Cummer Mfg. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 338.

A surety may keep aloof from participation in his principal's fraud, in which case he can be held only on the basis of his bond; but the moment he abandons that position and deals with the principal in the fraud, he will be stripped of his benefits and made to respond with his principal in damages. Bain v. Coats (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 571.

In an action against the operator of a jitney bus and his surety to recover on a bond, required by the city, covering a particularly described automobile, failure to prove that the injury was caused by such automobile held to require a reversal of a judgment against the surety. Motor Car Indemnity Exch. v. Lillenthal (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 703.

21. Conditions of liability.—Where milling company, not a bonded warehouse, for purpose of securing loans, gave bond with surety reciting that company intends to operate an elevator for warehousing of grain and will be desirous of obtaining loans from obligee on warehouse receipts issued by it, etc., surety cannot defeat liability on bankruptcy of milling company which did not have amount of wheat in elevator as evidenced by the receipts it gave on ground that bonded warehouse receipts were meant and none were issued, all parties to transaction knowing that milling company could not issue public bonded warehouse receipts. New England Equitable Ins. Co. v. Mechanics'-American Nat. Bank of St. Louis (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 685.

Where a surety's bond, given for the operation of a jitney business, prescribed a route and required a change of route to be consented to by the surety, the surety will not be liable for injuries caused by a jitney bus or its driver, where the driver was not only off the prescribed route but had temporarily discontinued the actual conduct of the jitney business. Motor Car Indemnity Exch. v. Lillenthal (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 703.

22. Duties of office or employment, and performance thereof by principal.—Bank's cashier "willfully misapplied or willfully abstracted" bank's funds, within his bond, whether he used all the money for himself personally, or got it and willfully misapplied it in some other way, to the use of some other person. National Surety Co. v. Atascosa Ice, Water & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 597.

23. Performance of contract by principal.—A building contract bond that the contractors will "well and truly perform the covenants," etc., of the contract, the surety assuming liability for any and all damages naturally and directly resulting from failure to do the work in the time specified, renders the bonding company liable for damages from delay by the contractor. Texas Fidelity & Bonding Co. v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 301.

Where a surety executed a bond that the contractor should faithfully perform his contract and he abandoned it before completing the building, whereupon the owner completed it at extra cost, he was entitled to judgment on the bond. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 373.

When sureties for contractor for building executed bond he should faithfully perform, and if he abandons before completion, and owner completes at extra cost, owner is entitled to judgment on bond. Garrett v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 675.

Where a surety bond, conditioned that a contractor would perform a building contract, stipulated that the bond should terminate and become void on August 1, 1914, such stipulation does not preclude obligee from recovering on the bond for nonperformance, though all of the work of another contractor in doing the work had not been finished, and all payments to such contractor had not been made at such date. American Surety Co. v. Camp (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 798.

III. DISCHARGE OF SURETY

24. Provisions of contract of suretyship or guaranty in general.—Where a written guaranty provided for payment of any indebtedness due thereunder at a certain place the fact that notes taken for indebtedness thereby guaranteed were payable at a different place does not change the obligation of the guarantor so as to relieve him from his guaranty; the provision in the guaranty contract having reference to the ultimate obligation of the guarantor and not to the principal's debt. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Neblett (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 963, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 365.

25. Change in obligation or duty of principal.—An agreement to extend the time of payment of a note bearing 12 per cent. interest, in consideration of the payment by the maker of the interest then due and 3 per cent. additional interest, discharges the liability of the sureties, without whose knowledge and consent it is made; the validity of the agreement not being affected by Rev. St. Tex. 1879, arts. 2978, 2979, limiting the rate of interest to 12 per cent., and providing that contracts for a greater rate shall be void as to the whole of the interest only. Mann v. Brown, 71 Tex. 241, 9 S. W. 111.

Act of owner in purchasing bricks which he was authorized only to select under a building contract held a violation of contract, and, no lien being thereby established, released surety. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Harlan (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 906.

Independently of and under art. 5623, and adding article 5623a, sureties of contractor to erect church building held not released because of changes in plans and specifications, which architect authorized and church trustees paid for. Garrett v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 675.

A change in a contract of indebtedness, increasing interest from legal rate of 6 to 10 per cent. on past-due interest, and a change making place of payment in a county other than debtor's residence, were both material, and would release a guarantor. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Neblett (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 365.

The law in reference to releasing a surety by reason of a change in the construction contract, which surety guaranteed, has no application to change in the contract between contractor and subcontractor, thereafter made, where there was no resultant injury to the surety. Hess & Skinner Engineering Co. v. Turney (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 171.

The liability of a surety cannot be extended beyond the terms of the contract out of which his obligation arises, and if the contract is altered without his consent his obligation ceases, regardless of whether alteration is to his injury or to his advantage. Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 460.

Where cigar salesmen contracted with their employer they should sell a certain brand in territory, including Kansas City, but there was a tacit exclusion of Kansas City from the territory, and also their employer delayed in furnishing cigars necessary to fill orders, thus causing loss of commissions, the modifications of the contract discharged the sureties on the bond of the salesmen, responsible for their own default Martinez v. Cathey (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 370.

Whether injury results to the surety or not, the creditor has no right to make any contract with the principal changing the contract without the consent of the surety to the contract actually made. Wilson v. J. W. Crowdus Drug Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 223, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 194.

In determining whether changes in the plans or construction affect the liability under a contractor's bond which referred to and made a part of its plans and specifications reserving to the owners the right to alter or modify the plans and specifications, the test is whether the changes "alter or modify the plans and specifications" of the building contracted to be erected, or do they amount to a contract for a different building? Southern Surety Co. v. Nalle & Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 402.

In an action on a contractor's bond reserving the right to "alter or modify the plans and specifications," where it appeared that the original contract provided for a three-story hotel, but the plans were subsequently changed so as to provide for a four-story building, held, that such change constituted such a departure from the plans and specifications as to call for a different building, and therefore released the surety, in the absence of ratification. Id.

31. Change in parties to obligation secured.—Where a copartnership contracted for the erection of a school building and gave the required bond, but dissolved before the work was performed, though the one partner continued performance of the contract under the firm's name, the sureties were not thereby released from liability to those who furnished materials to the partner after the dissolution. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Burton Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 699.

32. Extension of time for payment or other performance.—Time of payment must not be extended without the consent of the surety. State Nat. Bank of Ft. Worth v. Vickery (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 841; Pattillo v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Stamford (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1054.

If payee of a note bound himself by agreement founded on a good consideration to forbear until property could be sold, sureties would be released, although maker might have privilege of paying at any time. C. C. Slaughter Co. v. Eller (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 704.

The time for payment on a note, providing that "time of payment may be extended without notice thereof," could be extended from time to time without releasing the surety, surety having consented not merely to one extension, but that time of payment could be prolonged or continued as agreed upon between maker and holder. State Nat. Bank of Ft. Worth v. Vickery (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 841.

Where debt, for payment of which sureties were obligated, was originally in the form of open account and bore interest at the rate of 6 per cent., the execution of notes, without sureties' consent, by principal to creditor in settlement of the open account extending time for payment and bearing interest at the rate of 8 per cent., and providing for a 10 per cent. increase for payment of attorney's fees, released the sureties, being a material change in their obligation. Southland Life Ins. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 460.

Regardless of injury or benefit, where principal debtor and one of the sureties make a valid agreement by which time of payment is extended, every other surety who does not consent to such extension is released from liability, although at the time of such agreement and continuously since then the principal has been insolvent. Short v. Shannon (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 463.

33. — Requisites and validity of agreement in general.—If note could have originally been made payable at a time to be determined by a contingency, extension may be made on same terms if supported by consideration. C. C. Slaughter Co. v. Eller (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 704.

As agreement for extension of time for payment of note must be mutual, payee must not only be bound to wait for such time of payment, but maker must be bound not to pay before such time. Id.

34. — Consideration.—That it was customary for maker of notes to convey property to secure them would not of itself impose an obligation to continue it or show that property was not conveyed as consideration for agreement to extend time of payment, so as to discharge sureties, and if property was transferred to payee of a note as additional security pursuant to agreement for extension, such conveyance would be sufficient consideration for agreement so as to discharge sureties. C. C. Slaughter Co. v. Eller (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 704.

Contract for extension of time for payment of a note for a definite period, when the debt bears interest, is on a valuable consideration, and binding on the parties; thus discharging the surety not consenting thereto. Scarborough v. McKinnon (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 223.

36. Payment or other satisfaction by principal.—Where the principal maker of a note pays it with money secured from a third person, and takes it up without any assignment of it being made, the debt is discharged, and the person who furnishes the money cannot recover on the note against the surety therein. Stroud v. Miller (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1175.

Where a railway contractor gave the railroad an indemnity bond to protect it against all claims, demands, suits, or causes of action which might be brought against it by reason of acts or doings of the contractor, and a third person was injured through the contractor's negligence, the surety was not released from liability to the railroad where the contractor, without such surety's knowledge, entered into a settlement agreement with the injured person, since the contractor's action in making the settlement agreement was only in fulfillment of the common obligation of the bond, providing the amount he agreed to pay did not exceed amount to which injured party was justly entitled; the railroad being called upon to make good the settlement by reason of the default of the contractor. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Walker, 110 Tex. 286, 219 S. W. 815.

Where railway contractor gave indemnity bond to railroad to protect it against damages occasioned by any acts of the contractor, and a third person was injured by reason of the negligence of the contractor, and a settlement agreement was entered into between the contractor and the injured party, and through the railroad's fraudulent representation as to the contractor's financial condition the injured person accepted notes in part payment of the amount agreed on, such fraud on the part of the obligee in the bond did not release the surety from liability to the railroad, which was called upon to pay the amount of such notes by reason of the fraud; the basis of any liability on the railway's part being primarily the contractor's default in payment of the injured person's claim. Id.

38. Release or loss of other securities.—Where plaintiff contracted to sell lumber with sight draft attached, but sued for a balance due, showing waiver of the sight draft clause, the purchaser's sureties on the contract were not liable. Watson-Christensen Lumber Co. v. Maund (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 894.

Where a note was given, secured by a chattel mortgage, and the payee did not record the mortgage, and indorsed the note to plaintiff, and assigned the chattel mortgage to him, the plaintiff's duty to record mortgage could not be inferred from his mere acceptance of the note and unrecorded mortgage, and the plaintiff was entitled to recover against the original payee as an indorser. Palm v. Nunn (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1124.

The rule that the release by creditor of securities held by him for the payment of an obligation for which the surety is liable operates to discharge and release the surety to the value of the securities released does not apply to a surety engaged in suretyship for profit, not injured by such transaction. Hess & Skinner Engineering Co. v. Turney (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 171.

Where a chattel mortgage was binding between the parties and the mortgagee or assignee might have seized the property which was removed by the mortgagor without consent, the fact that the instrument was not registered was not the proximate cause of the removal, and so would not discharge a surety on such mortgage. Self Motor Co. v. First State Bank of Crowell (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 428.

40. Unauthorized payment to principal.—See Tarkington Prairie Lodge, A. F. & A. M., No. 498, v. George W. Smyth Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 588.

Where a surety executed a bond for faithful performance of a contract, and the contractor had earned $700, for which he gave an assignment to one furnishing materials which had gone into the building, and the owner accepted the assignment, the amount was rightfully paid; there being more due the contractor at the time. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 873.

Building contractor's surety held not discharged by building owner, after abandonment of work by contractor, making installment payments to materialmen without certificate of architect, provided for by contract. Williams v. Baldwin (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 975.

In an action involving the liability of a surety on an indemnity bond given by a railway contractor to the railroad, where there was no pleading that the railroad was under any duty to the surety to withhold payment of amounts due the contractor, and it was merely averred that the railroad at the time of the settlement was indebted to the principal in an amount in excess of that which a person injured through the contractor's negligence agreed to accept, and thereafter, without the surety's knowledge or consent, but with the knowledge that the contractor had not paid notes given to the injured third party, paid such amount to the contractor, there was no sufficient charge that the railroad company breached any duty to the surety by making such payment. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Walker, 110 Tex. 286, 219 S. W. 815.

Sureties on bond of contractor to build church held released from liability on his bond by reason of the conduct of the principals in the bond, the building committee of the church, in failing to retain 20 per cent. of the contract price until 30 days after completion and acceptance of the building, as provided in the contract. Burton Lingo Co. v. First Baptist Church (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 913.

Payments by owner to contractor without certificates of architects without sureties consent in violation of bond held to discharge sureties. Williams v. Baldwin (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 554.

41. Discharge of principal without payment or satisfaction.—Plea by principal of bond, contractor for building, which will release him if established, will also release sureties. Garrett v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 675.

Where J. gave T., as payment or security for note he owed him, note payable by W. and M. to J., J. not becoming principal obligor on the W. and M. note, by indorsing it, or afterwards signing a renewal, to get extension of time, discharge by T. did not affect the liability of W. and M. to T. Wilson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 341.

The cancellation of notes, given for the price of a plow, for fraud practiced on the buyer, released comakers of the notes, whether they were joint or joint and several obligors or sureties. Hackney Mfg. Co. v. Celum (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 577, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 988.

42. Negligence of creditor in general.—Where an owner was negligent in a suit by materialmen claiming liens on his property and seeking foreclosure in not setting up in such suit that he had paid certain amounts and other defenses which he might have made, he was not entitled to any relief against surety on contractor's bond. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Harlan (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 906.

44. Neglect to give notice to surety of default.—It is not Texas doctrine that surety for hire is only released from payment of damages for principal's delay in completing work by owner's failure to give notice of default required by bond. American Indemnity Co. v. Board of Trustees of Robstown Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 592.

45. Neglect to act or proceed against principal.—Where an unregistered chattel mortgage and note were assigned to a bank, and the mortgagor thereafter removed the property, a surety on the note and mortgage was not discharged on the theory of negligence because the surety, on learning that the mortgagor was leaving, made inquiries of the mortgagee, and was told that the mortgage could not be found, where he did not demand that the mortgagee take possession or offer to pay the debt, so that he could take possession, for, had he done so, he would doubtless have been advised of the assignment and could have protected himself. Self Motor Co. v. First State Bank of Crowell (Civ. App.) 236 S. W. 428.

The general rule is that a creditor owes no duty of active vigilance to the surety to enforce the collection of the indebtedness arising from the obligation, as the latter, at any time after default of the principal, is entitled to pay the debt and reimburse himself by enforcing it against the principal and his cosureties. Id.

47. Consent by surety to transactions between creditor and principal.—Where clause in note provided that makers, sureties, indorsers, and guarantors waived protest and consented that the time of payment might be extended without notice thereof, that plaintiff, to whom payee indorsed note, agreed to two extensions without knowledge or consent of sureties, did not release them. Archenhold Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 808.

48. Waiver or estoppel of surety.—Where the surety under a contractor's bond consents to, or ratifies, a change in plans, its receipt of additional pay by reason of such change is proof of such ratification or of having consented to the change in advance. Southern Surety Co. v. Nalle & Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 402.

49. Payment or other satisfaction by surety.—In action on bond conditioned to save plaintiff harmless from vendor's lien on property purchased, held that where surety discharged lien, though seller did not discharge it when due, plaintiff could not recover from surety attorney's fees incurred in suing on bond. American Surety Co. of New York v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 623.

Where a surety could have interpleaded a fourth claimant as if occupying the position of stakeholder for all injured, yet such claimant, knowing of other claims, had no right to assume such would be done, and delay enforcing his claim until surety was bound by judgments of the other three exhausting the bond, and if he did so he was estopped from holding the surety. Darrah v. Lion Bonding & Surety Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1101.

Where three persons injured in the same accident, sued a jitney bus owner and his surety for injuries, securing judgments which exhausted the surety bond, the benefit of the policy was for a fourth claimant as well, and he could have intervened in each suit to secure his share and he was still entitled to hold the surety for his pro rata, unless he was guilty of laches in suing surety. Id.

IV. REMEDIES OF CREDITORS

50. Rights of action against surety.—In depositor's action against bank for deposits misappropriated by bank's cashier, in which bank impleaded cashier's surety with prayer for judgment over, depositor was not entitled to a judgment against the surety in absence of showing that bank was insolvent or could not meet its obligations by reason of any of the alleged wrongful acts of such cashier. National Surety Co. v. Atascosa Ice, Water & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 597.

54. Pleading.—When principal and sureties are sued in same action on same contract, if principal pleads facts showing nonliability, whether same facts are pleaded by sureties, they can urge an appeal nonliability under principal's plea. Garrett v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 675.

A plea by bonding company that claimant had waived his rights to share in the indemnity paid to other claimants by permitting their judgments to be collected for the maximum amount of the insurance is sufficient to include negligence of the claimant in delaying his suit until after such judgments. Darrah v. Lion Bonding & Surety Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1101.

55. Evidence.—Where a father guaranteed the payment of indebtedness previously incurred by his son for merchandise and payment for such indebtedness thereafter incurred, the fact that the son on the same day the guaranty was executed gave notes for the indebtedness which was already incurred, requiring payment of interest and attorney's fees, is evidence that future indebtedness might likewise be represented by similar notes without discharging the guarantor. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Neblett (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 963, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 365.

In depositor's action against bank for deposits alleged to have been misappropriated by bank's cashier, in which bank asked for judgment over against cashier's surety, evidence held to sustain finding that cashier wrongfully abstracted or willfully misapplied bank's moneys. National Surety Co. v. Atascosa Ice, Water & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 597.

V. RIGHTS AND REMEDIES OF SURETY

(A) As to Creditor

58. Recourse to and exhaustion of remedy against principal.—Subrogation as a rule applies to principal and surety, the object of the rule of subrogation being to give the paying surety all the remedies that the creditor has against the principal debtor. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Archer (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 796.

The debt being that of deceased, it was duty of creditor to exhaust its remedy against his property before resorting to property of son mortgaged by deceased to secure debt. Cavitt v. Beall Hardware & Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 798.

A transaction by which a bank loaned money to contractors for payment of wages due laborers, which money was so used, held not to constitute an equitable assignment of labor debts, nor subrogate the bank to the laborers' claims against contractor's surety. Hess & Skinner Engineering Co. v. Turney (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 171.

60. Recovery of payments to or money received by creditor.—Where bridge building contractor in consideration of execution of contractor's bond agreed that all payments specified in bridge contract and withheld by the county should be paid to the surety company, and later gave a bank, to secure its advances of moneys used to pay wages of laborers, an order on the county to be paid out of money due on the bridge contract, held that each had merely an equitable assignment of money retained by the county, so that the surety company as the elder must prevail. Hess & Skinner Engineering Co. v. Turney, 110 Tex. 148, 216 S. W. 621.

(B) As to Principal

61. Right of recourse to principal, in general.—The mere fact that a bonding company was a bank's surety did not in law make it a creditor of the bank with which the county had deposited funds. Lion Bonding & Surety Co. v. Austin (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 542.

Where vendors of land deposited in bank $1,000 of total price paid in cash, to be paid over to them when they should obtain release of mortgage and place it in bank, bank occupied toward buyer position of surety for vendors, and vendors to bank position of indemnitors, they having informed bank release had been obtained, and bank having applied deposit to payment of their note held by it, and refused to pay money to buyer. Bank of Snyder v. Howell (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 908.

Sureties on a promissory note for the accommodation of the maker could purchase the obligation executed by both of them from the payee bank and maintain a suit thereon against the maker and principal. Brokaw v. Collett (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 790.

63. Rights of surety after payment or satisfaction by him of debt or liability.—Where, when note became due, surety thereon for a valuable and adequate consideration purchased it and collateral note from payee, held, note was discharged, so that right, if any, which surety or payee had thereafter against makers, would be on an implied promise to pay, although surety on the day that he purchased notes obtained a loan from payee and delivered notes to it as security. Kynerd v. Security Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 133.

Payee's indorsement of note to surety under agreement between payee and surety that surety was not to satisfy the note, but merely become the owner of it, held not to extinguish the note and satisfy the debt. Security Nat. Bank of Dallas v. Kynerd (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 123.

the several classes of work shall be awarded, being authorized to let the contract for the several classes of printing to separate bidders, and in calling for proposals it shall be specified that bids for stationery and office supplies shall be separate and distinct from the bids for printing. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 6343. [4223a] Proclamations, notices, etc., to be published in newspaper; rates for.—All proclamations of the Executive Department and all other notices required to be published by the State of Texas, or any department, institution or Board of Control, shall be published in the newspaper selected by the Secretary of State, if from the Executive Department, and in the newspaper selected by the department, or institution or Board of Control issuing such notice, provided that the same notice or proclamation shall not be published in more than one newspaper in the same county, and the rate for such official publication shall not exceed one cent per word for the first insertion and one-half cent per word for each subsequent insertion, all bills for publications to be accompanied by a certificate of the publisher under oath, certifying to the number of publications and the dates thereof, together with a clipping of said publication from an issue of his newspaper, said bills to be audited by the Board of Public Printing. Art. 6344. [4224]

Explanatory.—This article is to some extent superseded by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 84, § 7 (art. 6343, ante), but as it has not been expressly repealed, and deals with subjects not covered by the Act of 1919, it should possibly be regarded as living law as to matters not provided for in the latter act.

Explanatory.—Superseded by repeal of art. 6345 by Act March 23, 1915, ch. 126, § 2 (note under art. 7325, Supplement 1918), and by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 84, set forth in this chapter.

Explanatory.—Superseded by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 84. See art. 6342b, ante.

Arts. 6348–6350. [4228–4230] [Superseded in part.]

Explanatory.—These articles are superseded in part by art. 6343a, ante, but it would seem that they still have some vitality in so far as they indicate the distribution of printed books and documents, and the particular matters that are to be printed.

Explanatory.—Superseded by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 84, set forth in this chapter and by Act March 23, 1915, ch. 126, set forth as art. 7325, Supp. 1918.

Art. 6353. [4233] Bonds of bidders.—The Board of Public Printing shall require that each bid be accompanied by a bond, in an amount to be fixed by the Board of Public Printing, conditioned that if awarded the contract said contractor will comply with all terms and conditions thereof, said bond to be with two or more good and sufficient sureties or a bond by a surety company authorized to do business in Texas. For any breach of contract, the Attorney General, when so instructed by the Board of Public Printing, shall file suit in the proper court as in such cases provided. [Id., § 9, superseding art. 6353, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 6354. [4234] Officers not to be interested in contracts.—No member or officer of any department of the Government shall be in any way interested in any contract which shall be let under the provisions of this Act. [Id., § 10, superseding art. 6354, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Explanatory.—Superseded by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 84, set forth in this chapter, and by Act March 23, 1915, ch. 126 (Supp. 1918, art. 7325).

Art. 6360. [4240] Printing of journals of Senate and House of Representatives.—It shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Senate and of the Journal Clerk of the House of Representatives to deliver to the Contractor the journals of their respective Houses for the purpose of being printed, together with a comprehensive index to the same, to be printed at the end thereof, and it shall be the duty of the Contractor to carefully use the same, and return them without delay, uninjured, to such Secretary and Journal Clerk respectively when the printing thereof is completed. [Id., § 11, superseding art. 6360, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 6361. [4241] Printing of laws and resolutions; copies for contractor.—It shall be the duty of the Secretary of State to deliver to such contractor, as soon as practicable after their passage or approval, copies of all laws and resolutions adopted by the Legislature, together with a comprehensive index to same. [Id., § 12, superseding art. 6361, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 6362. [4242] Same; Secretary of State to read and revise proofs.—It shall also be the duty of the Secretary of State to read and revise the proofs of such laws and resolutions, and to superintend the printing of the same, and to compare the same with the originals in his office, and to certify that the laws and resolutions as published are true copies of such originals, which certificates, together with a statement of the date on which the Legislature adjourned, which shall be appended to and printed at the end of each volume of such laws and resolutions. But the provisions requiring the Secretary of State to read and revise the proofs shall not dispense with the duty of the contractor to see that such proofs are properly read and corrected. The Secretary of State shall employ such additional help as shall enable him to expeditiously prepare the copy of the laws and immediately mail same as soon as delivered by the contractor. [Id., § 13, superseding art. 6362, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 6362a. Carbon copies of enrolled bills and resolutions for Secretary of State.—Whereas, It is necessary that copy of all enrolled bills in both the House and Senate be furnished to the State Printer by the Secretary of State and by such copy being made and so furnished by the Enrolling Clerks of both the House and Senate much time and expense will be saved the State; therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate, the House of Representatives concurring, That the Enrolling Clerk of the Senate and the Enrolling Clerk of the House be directed and required to make carbon copies of all enrolled bills and resolutions that are sent to the Governor for his approval, and they shall furnish said copies to the Secretary of State at the same time the original enrolled bills and resolutions are transmitted to the Governor. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 1st C. S., S. C. R. No. 1, May 8, p. 8.]

Art. 6363. [4243] Laws and journals, etc., printed; to be delivered to Secretary of State; exceptions.—The whole number of such laws and journals, reports of public officers and other public documents authorized to be printed shall be delivered to the Secretary of State, at his office, except such printing as may be ordered by the two Houses of the Legislature or either of them, for their use, which shall be delivered to such persons at such times as such Houses or either of them, may direct. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 84, § 14, superseding art. 6363, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 6364. [4244] Same; when to be delivered.—Delivery of the general and special laws shall begin within thirty days after the last copy shall have been furnished, and on the Journals within sixty days after the last copy has been furnished the contractor; provided that at least one-fourth of the copy shall have been delivered each week for three weeks prior to the delivery of the last copy; but it is expressly understood that the index shall not be considered as part of the regular copy and the limit as specified above shall apply to last copy furnished, not including index and history of bills and resolutions. The reports of public officers shall be delivered to the Governor by the respective officers making the same, in sufficient time to be delivered to the contractor one month before the meeting of the Legislature, and if so furnished to said contractor shall be delivered to the Secretary of State not later than the first week of said session. [Id., § 15, superseding art. 6364, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 6365. [4245] Audit of accounts for printing, etc.; payment for.—All accounts for printing done or stationery furnished, under the provisions of this Act, except that for the Legislature when in session, shall be audited as follows: The account shall be verified by the affidavit of the contractor that said account is true and correct; that the amount of work charged for has actually been performed, or the actual amount of stationery or supplies delivered, and that the prices charged in said account are in accordance with the stipulations of the contract, and shall be accompanied with a sample of the work done or the stationery furnished. After which it shall be examined by the State Expert Printer and the Board of Public Printing, and if found correct, approved by said Board. Such claim, when thus examined and approved, shall be sufficient authority for the Comptroller to issue his warrant to be paid out of the appropriations for public printing or stationery. [Id., § 16, superseding art. 6365, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 6366. [4246] Same.—All accounts for printing done or stationery used in either House of the Legislature shall, before being approved by the Legislature or the committee on public printing or either House, be presented to the State Expert Printer, for certificate from him that said printing or binding or stationery is charged for at the rate of the current contract, and which account, when approved by the committee on public printing of either House of the Legislature, shall authorize the Comptroller to draw his warrant to pay such account out of the contingent fund. [Id., § 17, superseding art. 6366, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Explanatory.—Superseded by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 84, set forth in this chapter, and by Act March 23, 1915, ch. 126, set forth as art. 7325, Supp. 1918. See art. 6368, post.

Art. 6368. [4248] Abrogation of contracts for printing and stationery.—The contracts for printing and stationery herein provided for may be abrogated by the Legislature when in session, or by the Printing Board with the consent of the Governor or Comptroller, when the Legislature is not in session, if the contractor should fail to perform the work, or furnish the supplies in accordance with law and with his contract, and as promptly as the exigencies of the public service demand. [Id., § 18, superseding art. 6368, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 6369. [4249] Letting of new contracts.—Should the successful bidder fail to execute the bond with security as herein provided, or should the contract be abrogated, it shall be the duty of the Board of Public Printing to proceed to let a new contract as herein provided. Provided, however, that said Board of Public Printing may in its discretion, make such temporary arrangement to meet the emergency as is demanded by the public interest. [Id., § 19, superseding art. 6369, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 6370. [4250] Stationery for reporters of Supreme Court and Court of Criminal Appeals.—The reporters for the Supreme Court and Court of Criminal Appeals shall be furnished by the Board of Public Printing, with all stationery necessary for the performance of their duties. [Id., § 20, superseding art. 6370, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 6370-1. Approval of contracts; repeal.—All contracts made under the provisions of this Act shall be subject to the approval of the Governor, the Secretary of State and the Comptroller, as required by Article XVI, Section 21, of the Constitution of this State. All laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [Id., § 21.]

Art. 6370-2. State Board of Control substituted for Board of Public Printing.—Upon the taking effect of the Act of the Regular Session of the Thirty-sixth Legislature creating the State Board of Control, with subsequent amendments thereto, the members of said State Board of Control shall be substituted for the members of the Board of Public Printing, as provided for in Section one of this Act. [Id., § 22.]

Art. 6370a. Said contract may also provide for the printing and binding of delayed manuscripts of said reports; and said Board of Printing, or such other board or state agency, may also provide, from time to time, by separate contracts under similar conditions, for the reprint of said reports, or volumes thereof; and said Board, or such other board or state agency, may also, from time to time, provide by separate contracts, under similar conditions, for renewal contracts in the event of forfeiture or for other reasons; and to facilitate the prompt printing and binding of said reports in the future; the clerks of said courts shall provide the reporters of said courts with manifold copies of the opinions of said courts as the said courts rendering the same shall direct to be published, duly certified, together with a record of the cases as soon as said opinions become final. [Acts 1913, p. 59, § 2; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 36, § 2.]

Said Board, or such other board or state agency, shall also determine whether electrotype or stereotype plates of said reports are to be made and to regulate the use thereof, but the ownership of such plates, together with the copyright of said reports, shall remain in the State of Texas. [Acts 1913, p. 59, § 3; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 36, § 3.]

Article 6394f. Contractors with state, municipalities, etc., to give bond; actions on bond, etc.

Cited, Howard v. Barthold & Casey (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 378.

Construction and operation in general.—This article is mandatory, and the commissioners' court has no authority to release a contractor from the execution of such bond, but there is no objection to deferring its execution to a time prior to beginning the work. Headlee v. Fryer (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 213.

Art. 5623a does not relate to bonds given in accordance with this article, and sureties upon bond of contractor constructing school building for school district were discharged, where school district failed to retain 20 per cent. of contract price for 30 days, as required by building contract. Larkin v. Pruett Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 443.

As to county contractor's bond, the rule that instruments insufficient as statutory bonds may be enforced as common law obligations has no application unless it appears on the face of the instrument that it was executed for the benefit of the person seeking to enforce it. Scharbauer v. Lampasas County (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 468.

Art. 5623a, passed by the Thirty-Fourth Legislature and expressly made a part of Rev. St. tit. 86, c. 2, relating to liens, does not relate to a bond given under this article, passed by the Thirty-Third Legislature, and hence a bond given by a building contractor under the latter section to secure the performance of a contract to erect a schoolhouse cannot be employed as a basis for recovery by a materialman under art. 5623a. Cooper v. H. H. Hardin & Co. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 550.

This article, having been enacted after the execution of a bond by a county contractor, cannot be relied on for the purpose of affording relief to unpaid materialmen against the surety on the contractor's bond. Mosher Mfg. Co. v. Equitable Surety Co. (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 318.

Independent of any statute, a municipality has implied authority to bind contractors to pay the claims of laborers and materialmen, and hence, though public buildings, as a county courthouse, are not subject to materialmen's liens, the county may by contract, regardless of any statute, obligate the contractor to give bond to secure materialmen and laborers, for such agreements are justifiable, just as lien statutes, on the theory that they protect public interest by securing responsible dealers and better materials. Id.

Parties to public contractor's bond were presumed to know the provisions of this article, requiring such a bond. Trinity Portland Cement Co. v. Lion Bonding & Surety Co. (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 483.

In action involving the question of whether public contractor's bond executed under this article, protected laborers and materialmen, the court will take judicial notice that such statute was enacted to protect laborers and materialmen who in many cases were left unpaid. Id.

Bonds—Construction.—Where bridge contractor's bond was conditioned on completion according to specifications and delivery to city free from all liens, which completion was had and delivery free from liens made to city because no one can have a lien on public works, surety was not liable to materialmen; "liens" having its usual signification, and not meaning "claims." Lion Bonding & Surety Co. v. Trussed Concrete Steel Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1176.

Wood furnished as fuel for an engine used by a bridge contractor in hoisting steel, and for repairs of tools and hauling material from railroad to river, were items for "material used and labor performed" in the prosecution of the work, under the contract, for which contractor's surety would be liable, but a scraper and paint brushes were tools and not materials. Hess & Skinner Engineering Co. v. Turney (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 171, judgment reformed and affirmed 110 Tex. 148, 216 S. W. 621.

Where a contractor, in constructing a bridge, in order to facilitate work, had laborers take their meals in camp instead of going into town for them, the labor in cooking such meals was labor performed in the prosecution of the work, and for such the contractor's surety would be liable. Id.

In order to constitute a sufficient statutory obligation, the bond of a contractor with a county must comply substantially with the terms and requirements of the statute, and when it appears from the bond that no effort was made to condition it for the payment of laborers and materialmen, art. 5623, so requiring, will not be read into the instrument to create a liability not disclosed by the language used. Scharbauer v. Lampasas County (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 468.

Bank which advanced money to bridge bonding contractor to pay wages of laborers and later secured an order on county which retained balance due under bridge contract held not protected by contractor's bond as to the debt. Hess & Skinner Engineering Co. v. Turney, 110 Tex. 148, 216 S. W. 621, reforming and affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 171.

The bond given by a contractor for a school building, secures the materialmen and laborers as well as the city and may be sued upon by them. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Burton Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 699.

A bond given by a school contractor, which contained no clause for payment for supplies furnished the contractor as required, is not the bond required by the statute, and, even if it is valid as a common-law bond, does not make the surety liable for supplies furnished the contractor. Ame Brick Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 248.

Where contract for construction of school building required completion of building within six months from date of delivery of bonds to contractor, but in other provision of contract provided that the contractor should not be held responsible for delay by reason of fires, acts of Providence, and other acts beyond the contractor's control, and where specifications provided for additional time for delays resulting from additional work or changes in work or other acts of the parties on contractor giving written notice thereof, it was proper for the court in ascertaining time of contractor's default in completion of contract under the provision of the contractor's bond requiring notice to surety within 30 days of default to exclude the period of delays resulting from accidental or uncontrollable causes, though the contractor had given no written notice thereof; the requirements as to written notice being applicable only to the delays from change in the work, etc., and other delays occasioned by the acts of the parties as contemplated by the specifications. Board of Trustees of Robstown Independent School Dist. v. American Indemnity Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 105.

Where a surety bond given by contract to secure performance of an agreement to build a courthouse for a county was conditioned on faithful performance of the contract by the principal, on payment of all claims for labor and material used, and on indemnity to the county, the bond should be construed not only as for the benefit of the county, but as securing the claims of materialmen, and giving them a right of action thereon against the surety; such persons not being otherwise secured. Mosher Mfg. Co. v. Equitable Surety Co. (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 318.

Bridge contractor's bond conditioned on contractor's performance of his contract, inured to the benefit of materialmen who furnished material to contractor, though the contract provided that the bond should cover the guaranty that all "labor and materialmen liens should be paid," since such provision as to liens will be disregarded as surplusage, inasmuch as there could be no such liens on public works, and since such statute requires that the bond be executed to protect laborers and materialmen, and will be read into the bond. Trinity Portland Cement Co. v. Lion Bonding & Surety Co. (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 483.

This article is by implication read into a city contractor's bond, and the bond will be construed in connection with the contract and the statute. Id.

Sureties—Liability in general.—Sureties on the bond of a bridge contractor with a county, though liable to the county, were not liable to parties not mentioned in the bond, and not protected by it in any way, who furnished material, etc., for the construction of the bridges. Scharbauer v. Lampasas County (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 468.

That bridge company did not require one-half of the cost of steel furnished to contractor to be paid in cash at point of shipment, when its contract with contractor would have entitled it to such cash payment, and, when it held an assignment of the contract from contractor to secure purchase price of steel, consented to application of money due under construction contract to payment of claims of local merchants and laborers for which surety was liable on bond, did not change the contract guaranteed by the surety on contractor's bond, nor relieve surety from liability to the bridge company. Hess & Skinner Engineering Co. v. Turney, 110 Tex. 148, 216 S. W. 621.

Where a contractor's bond securing the erection of a school building did not include, as required, the obligation that the contractor should promptly make payments to all persons supplying him with labor and materials, and did not make the bondsmen liable except for the performance by the contractors of all the obligations resting on them for the construction of the building according to the plans, no recovery could be had, by a materialman under such section of the statute. Cooper v. H. H. Hardin & Co. (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 550.

Though the failure to procure the certificate required by statute as a condition precedent to a valid contract for the construction of a school building makes the contract void as between the city and the contractor and his sureties, it does not affect the liability of the contractor's sureties to those who furnished material which was used in the construction of a building accepted by the city. U. S. Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Burton Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 699.

Failure of trustees of school district to comply with arts. 2740, 2771, and arts. 2904n, 2904o, relating to securing of building permits, sale of bonds, and deposit of proceeds, etc., did not affect liability on school building contractor's bond. Board of Trustees of Robstown Independent School Dist. v. American Indemnity Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 105, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) American Indemnity Co. v. Board of Trustees of Robstown Independent School Dist., 200 S. W. 592.

Actions on bond.—Though petition of contractor for road construction suing on bond of subcontractor was insufficient, held, in view of answers or cross-actions of subcontractor's creditors, pleadings as a whole were sufficient to support judgment for contractor against subcontractor's surety. Southern Surety Co. v. Owens Bros. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1148.

Materialman, suing principal paving contractor and surety on his bond for materials furnished subcontractor, was not required to plead and prove that no suit had been instituted by the city within the preceding six months. Fennell v. Trinity Portland Cement Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 796.

In materialman's action on paving contractor's bond, giving materialmen right to intervene in city's action on bond or bring action in its own name if no action is instituted by city within six months, the defense that materialman's action was prematurely brought should be raised by plea in abatement. Id.

Art. 6394g. Laborers and materialmen to have right of action, when.

Cited, Hess & Skinner Engineering Co. v. Turney, 110 Tex. 148, 216 S. W. 621.

Construction and operation in general.—This article having been enacted after the execution of a bond by a county contractor, cannot be relied on for the purpose of affording relief to unpaid materialmen against the surety on the contractor's bond. Mosher Mfg. Co. v. Equitable Surety Co. (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 318.

Actions.—Materialman, suing principal paving contractor and surety on his bond for materials furnished subcontractor, was not required to plead and prove that no suit had been instituted by the city within the preceding six months. Fennell v. Trinity Portland Cement Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 796.

State or city for whom work is being constructed by contractor, is not required to bring suit on such bond, except when there has been a breach of some of the conditions in which the state or municipality is interested. Id.

Right of action by materialmen.—A surety bond to secure the performance of a contract to build a courthouse for a county held a bond of indemnity to the county alone, and not to give materialmen a right of action thereon in their own names. Equitable Surety Co. v. Mosher Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 788.

Paving contractor's bond, given to secure performance of contract and "payment of all indebtedness incurred incident thereto for labor and material," and giving materialmen furnishing "materials used in the construction of such work * * * right of action thereunder," held to give materialman furnishing materials to subcontractor a right of action thereon. Fennell v. Trinity Portland Cement Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 796.

Where paving contractor gives bond, to secure payment of all indebtedness incurred incident to the performance of the contract, materialman's right of action against the contractor was given him by the bond, and was not dependent upon the statute. Id.

QUO WARRANTO

Art. 6398. Quo warranto, when.	Art. 6403. Law cumulative.
6401. Proceedings as in civil cases.

Article 6398. [4343] Quo warranto, when.

In general.—Where contestants alleged that the election officers wrongfully refused to count the ballots in a certain precinct, declared the offices in such precinct vacant, and appointed the defeated candidates thereto, their remedy held not by mandamus to compel issuance of the certificate of election, but by quo warranto. Wells v. Commissioners' Court of Presidio County (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 608.

Rule that election contest is not civil suit, and that district court has no jurisdiction, under constitutional provision giving jurisdiction of suits where amount in controversy is $500, does not apply to quo warranto in name of state against one charged with unlawfully withholding office. Shipman v. Jones (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 329.

Prior to amendment of Const. art. 5, § 8, in 1891, district court had no jurisdiction of election contest, but did of information in nature of quo warranto, contesting result of election as declared, to remove intruder and install person entitled, and it also had jurisdiction of suit for office. Id.

A director of an irrigation district can be removed only in a proceeding conducted in the name of the state, as prescribed in arts. 6030, 6042, 6398. J. C. Engleman Land Co. v. Donna Irr. Dist. No. 1 (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 428.

The action of quo warranto is the proper proceedings to try title to a county office. Griffith v. State (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 469.

Although a county judge is entitled to hold the office until his successor is elected and qualified, quo warranto will lie before his successor has qualified. Id.

In an action in quo warranto to remove a person from an office, a suit for the office must be dismissed where the term of office has expired. Griffith v. State (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 423.

A proceeding in quo warranto, is a "civil proceeding" and is governed by the rules applied to other cases under article 6401. Pease v. State (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 269.

Exercise of corporate franchises and powers.—Information in the nature of a quo warranto is the proper remedy to determine whether a school board is lawfully exercising authority in annexed territory formerly belonging to another independent school district and to restrain such exercise if unauthorized. State v. Bradshaw (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 656.

A levee improvement district is a governmental agency, and a body politic and corporate, and its existence and right to act as such could be questioned only in quo warranto proceedings prosecuted by or on behalf of the state. Wilmarth v. Reagan (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 446.

Parties plaintiff or petitioners.—A proceeding to forfeit the charter of a corporation can only be instituted by the Attorney General, and the attempt to confer such power on the district or county attorney is in violation of Const. art. 4, § 22. State v. Waller (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 322.

The state is merely a nominal party; the real party being the relator. Pease v. State (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 269.

Petition.—A petition by the state, on the relation of certain persons, praying that a special act incorporating a city and the charter granted be declared void and the defendants be ousted from their offices, held sufficient, under a general exception, to negative the fact that the qualified voters of the city voted for the adoption of the charter contained in the special act and to show that the state is seeking to oust the officers and vacate the charter upon the relation of the relators named in the petition. State v. Vincent (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 402.

Sufficiency of evidence.—In a suit in the nature of quo warranto contesting an election and seeking to oust defendant from the office of mayor, pleadings and evidence held insufficient to support a money judgment in favor of relator for salary. Pease v. State (Com. App.) 209 S. W. 162.

Art. 6401. [4346] Proceedings as in civil cases.—Every person or corporation who shall be cited as hereinbefore provided shall be entitled to all the rights in the trial and investigation of the matters alleged against him, as in cases of trial of civil cases in this State; and either party may prosecute an appeal or writ of error from any judgment rendered, or which may have heretofore been rendered by the trial court, as in other civil cases and the court on appeal shall give preference to such cases, and hear and determine the same at the earliest day practicable. [Acts 1879, S. S., p. 43, § 4; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 114, § 1, amending art. 6401, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 2 of the act repeals all laws in conflict. The act took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

In general.—A proceeding in quo warranto, is a "civil proceeding" and is governed by the rules applied to other cases. Pease v. State (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 269.

Time for appeal.—Appeals in quo warranto must be prosecuted to the term of the appellate court in session at the time judgment was rendered in the district court, and respondents, having abandoned their appeal, cannot have the case reviewed on writ of error. Bartlett v. State (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 656.

To give a Court of Civil Appeals jurisdiction of appeal from judgment in a quo warranto proceeding respondents should have filed their appeal in it not later than the first Monday in July, 1918, during the term of the court in session when the judgment was rendered in the trial court, and should have filed transcript on appeal within 20 days after perfecting appeal. Id.

Failure to file transcript.—Where there is motion to dismiss writ of error prosecuted by respondents in a quo warranto proceeding on the ground that appeal was not perfected or transcript filed within time, the question raised by the motion is jurisdictional, and leaves the court no discretion relative to dismissing writ. Bartlett v. State (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 656.

Costs.—In an action in quo warranto, the costs will be taxed against the relator, where judgment was rendered against him on his claim for the salary, fees, and emoluments of the office and the suit for the office is dismissed because the term has expired. Griffith v. State (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 423.

Art. 6403. [4348] Remedy cumulative.

See Troilo v. Gittinger (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 233.

INCORPORATION OF RAILROAD COMPANIES

Art.	Art.
6405. Not less than ten persons may form.	6415. When authorized to be sold or conveyed under special law.
6406. Who may build railroads.
6412. May proceed to act when.

Article 6405. [4350] Not less than ten persons may form.

See Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Morris, 67 Tex. 692, 4 S. W. 156.
Cited, Roaring Springs Town-Site Co. v. Paducah Tel. Co., 109 Tex. 452, 212 S. W. 147.

Art. 6406. Who may build railroads.

Applicability of statute.—Railroad laid down for purpose of removing logs to be owned by individual vendor of logs and operated by foreign corporation without due authorization was railway within meaning of this article. Philip A. Ryan Lumber Co. v. Ball (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1037.

Foreign corporation, having made contract to operate railroad to remove lumber and having permit only to engage in lumber and logging business, had no power to operate railroad in view of this article, so that its contract was for an illegal purpose and unenforceable. Id.

Foreign company using domestic company's road.—A foreign railroad corporation entered into an arrangement with a Texas corporation, which owned a small railroad lying wholly within the state, whereby through trains were operated over the lines of the two companies. The Texas company owned no rolling stock, but the accounts were kept separate, and employés who in many instances represented both railroads were separately paid by each. An employé of the foreign corporation injured in a foreign state sued the foreign corporation in the Texas courts. Held, under this article, and Const. art. 10, § 6, that service of process on officials of Texas company cannot be treated as service on the foreign corporation, on the theory that the foreign corporation was working a deception and was doing business in Texas, for the fraud in no event could injure one whose cause of action arose in a foreign state. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Weeks (D. C.) 248 Fed. 970.

Art. 6412. [4356] May proceed to act when.

See Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Morris, 67 Tex. 692, 4 S. W. 156.

Art. 6415. [4359] When authorized to be sold or conveyed under special law.

Liabilities of successor.—Interest coupons attached to bonds of railway sold by owner were not included in exception to contract of sale, providing owner contracted railway should be delivered clear of debts, "except the first mortgage above referred to." West v. Carlisle (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 515.

In view of contract whereby owner of all stock and bonds of railway agreed to sell securities and deliver control, held, that the trial court erred in not charging seller with taxes for 1912, and with sum paid by purchasers in settlement of pending suits and other claims. Id.

CHAPTER TWO

AMENDING OR CHANGING CHARTER

Article 6421. [4365] May project, etc., branch line by amendment.

Limited to branch lines.—Rev. St. 1879, art. 4113, does not confer the right to buy another railroad. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Morris, 67 Tex. 692, 4 S. W. 156.

CHAPTER THREE

PUBLIC OFFICES AND BOOKS

Art.
6423. Shall keep offices in this state.

Art.
6435. Change of location of general offices, etc., prohibited, etc.

Article 6423. [4367] Shall keep offices in this state.

Constitutionality.—The restriction upon a corporation organized to take over a sold-out railroad, under arts. 6624, 6625, imposed by this article, preventing removal of offices and shops from a county which has issued bonds in consideration of location of such offices and shops, is not invalid, as imposing a burden upon interstate commerce since the burden, if any, is indirect. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County, 246 U. S. 424, 38 Sup. Ct. 370, 62 L. Ed. 807.

Location of general offices—Change.—Under this article, and art. 6624, providing that the charter of a sold-out railroad shall pass to the purchaser, subject to art. 6625, authorizing such purchasers to form a new corporation, but that no right shall be acquired in conflict with the present Constitution and laws, held, that a new corporation could not move offices and shops located pursuant to contract, as it is subject to the "limitations imposed by law." International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County, 246 U. S. 424, 38 Sup. Ct. 370, 62 L. Ed. 807.

Contracts for location of shops and offices—Validity.—Contract made by receiver of railroad and complied with by receiver and company for over 20 years to establish headquarters for division at particular town held perpetual contract which railroad company could not terminate without showing that it could not by reasonable effort discharge duties while complying with contract. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. City of Ennis (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 256.

In view of this article, a contract of receiver of railroad to establish division headquarters with necessary roundhouses and machine shops at particular town based on valuable consideration and which was adopted by company is valid and enforceable. Id.

— Bind successors.—Where the original railroad company, a Texas corporation, whose property and franchises were acquired by defendant, also a Texas company, had contracted, in consideration of an issue of county bonds, to maintain its general offices, machine shops, and roundhouses at a city within the county, this article applied, and precluded a change by defendant, although its articles of incorporation fixed the place for its general offices as another city. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County, 246 U. S. 424, 38 Sup. Ct. 370, 62 L. Ed. 807.

Purchaser of railroad property and corporation organized to operate it held charged with contract made by receiver to establish for a valuable consideration division headquarters at particular town. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. City of Ennis (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 256.

— Enforcement of contract.—A judgment against a railroad based on this article, and requiring perpetual maintenance of railroad offices and shops at a place in a certain county, was not in improper form, as purporting to be perpetual, since the word "perpetual" added nothing to the requirement, which would be perpetual until the law was changed. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County, 246 U. S. 424, 38 Sup. Ct. 370, 62 L. Ed. 807.

Contract of railroad company to maintain its division headquarters at particular town entered into by receiver for valuable consideration and complied with for many years may be enforced by injunction. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. City of Ennis (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 256.

Art. 6435. [4376] Change of location of general offices, etc., prohibited, etc.

Cited, Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. City of Ennis (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 256.

OFFICERS OF RAILROAD CORPORATIONS

Art.
6445. Corporate powers vested, etc.

Art.
6446. President and other officers.

Article 6445. [4386] Corporate powers vested in directors.

See Midland & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Midland Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 627; note to art. 6446.

Art. 6446. [4387] President and other officers.

Authority of officers and agents—In general.—Under this article, and art. 6445, all authority of railroad officers depends on action of the board in conferring authority on them. Midland & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Midland Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 627.

— President.—To recover of a railroad company on an acceptance by its president, there must be proof of authority conferred on him by its board of directors to execute the acceptance or of estoppel or ratification; and therefore pleading of these things. Midland & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Midland Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 627.

CHAPTER SIX

STOCK AND STOCKHOLDERS

Article 6469. [4410] No stock shall be issued, except, etc.

Consideration.—Under Const. art. 12, § 6, a railroad company can legally accept notes secured by deeds of trust upon lands as "property" in payment of stock subscriptions. Lumpkin v. Brown (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 498.

Such right carries with it the power to dispose of such securities, including the lesser power to transfer and assign them as collateral, a power not to be denied in the absence of a constitutional or statutory prohibition. Id.

CHAPTER EIGHT

RIGHT OF WAY

Art.
6481. Right to construct, etc., road anywhere in the state.
6482. Right of way over public lands.
6484. May lay out road two hundred feet wide.
6485. Across streams of water, etc.
6486. Opening through fences, etc.
6494. Crossings of public roads.
6495. Culverts, etc.
6499. Other railways, etc.
6503. Damages, etc.
6504. When owner and corporation can not agree, etc.
6506. Statement to be filed, etc.

6512. Manner of service, etc.
6513. Return of notice.
6514. Property of minors, etc.
6515. Non-residents, or party secreting himself.
6518. Rules of damages, etc.
6520. Same subject.
6522. Assessments to be in writing, etc.
6523. Others may be appointed, when.
6527. May remove cause, when.
6528. Decision made judgment, when.
6530. Damages to be paid, when.
6531. Practice in case specified.
6532. Right of way, how construed.
6534. Right of way vested how.

Article 6481. [4422] Right to construct, etc., road anywhere in the state.

Acquisition of right of way—Condemnation.—Individual cannot exercise the right of eminent domain in view of Const. art. 1, § 17, and Rev. St. 1911, arts. 6504-6530, and this article. Philip A. Ryan Lumber Co. v. Ball (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1037.

Art. 6482. [4423] Right of way over public lands.

Width of way.—Under this article, a railroad, which constructed its main line over a hundred foot right of way condemned through private lands, is entitled to a right of way of like width only over adjacent public lands against a county seeking to open a road. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Bland (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 727.

A railroad, claiming, under this article, a right of way over public lands in excess of the hundred foot width which it condemned over private lands for its main line, had the burden to show the necessity for a way over public lands exceeding 100 feet in width. Id.

Art. 6484. [4425] May lay out road two hundred feet wide.

See Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Bland (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 727.

Duty to employes.—Duty under this article to cut down standing trees as affecting liability for injuries to employes, see The T. & St. L. Ry. Co. v. Vallie, 60 Tex. 481.

Art. 6485. [4426] Right to construct across streams of water, etc.

See Panhandle & S. F. R. Co. v. Huckabee (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 666.

Applicability.—A railway company's refusal to permit a vessel to pass through its drawbridge during the Galveston storm of 1915 did not violate this article, and Rivers and Harbors Act, § 5. West v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 343.

Receivers of railroad, who had authority to construct road, and who in so doing were required to build an embankment, had implied authority to excavate in street, in view of this article, and art. 6494, beyond the limits of the right of way, where the engineers for the receiver testified that such excavation was necessary to get the proper drainage, to secure an underground crossing, and to place road in reasonable state of usefulness. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 740.

Art. 6486. [4427] Opening through fences, etc.

Inclosed land divided by right of way.—This article is mandatory; and, where a railway left an opening, without gates, but with cattle guards, that was not inappropriate to the needs of the owner and the situation of the property, it had the right to set up the defense that the right of way was fenced, in an action by landowner's tenant to recover the value of a mule killed on the right of way; the opening having been made with the acquiescence, if not the express consent, of the landowner. Butler v. Baker (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 827.

Art. 6494. [4435] Crossings of public roads.

See St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 281.

Construction and repair of crossings.—Receivers of railroad, who had authority to construct road, and who in so doing were required to build an embankment, had implied authority to excavate in street, in view of this article, and art. 6485, beyond the limits of the right of way, where the engineers for the receiver testified that such excavation was necessary to get the proper drainage, to secure an underground crossing, and to place road in reasonable state of usefulness. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 740.

A contract by which a brick plant agreed to save a railroad harmless from all claims arising out of negligence in maintaining a spur crossing, was not violative of public policy, in that it had a tendency to cause the railroad to omit the performance of the duties imposed by this article. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Diamond Press Brick Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 204, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 188 S. W. 32, and judgment modified 226 S. W. 140.

See Austin & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Anderson, 79 Tex. 427, 15 S. W. 484, 23 Am. St. Rep. 350; Clark v. Dyer, 81 Tex. 339, 16 S. W. 1061.

Cited, Texas & S. R. Co. v. Meadows, 73 Tex. 32, 11 S. W. 145, 3 L. R. A. 565.

1/2. Right to construct drains in general.—Railroad had right, by digging ditch on its own property, to drain right of way, and, so far as adjoining owner was concerned, had legal right to continue ditch on property of some one else so as to connect with gully. Ingrando v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 925.

10. Actions for damages for breach of duty—Liability in general.—Under art. 4694, as to railroad's liability for causing death, and this article, it is liable for death of one knocked from tree by its floating trestle, if failure to have insufficient drainage was proximate cause. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Behne (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 680.

Where there was a ditch between adjoining land sufficient to protect lower land from surface water flowing from upper land, a railroad which so constructed and maintained its roadway as to divert water into ditch and caused water to overflow and injure crops on lower land, is liable, though part or even all of such water may have been water which had fallen upon the upper land. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 375.

In action for diversion of surface water, injuring plaintiff's crops, it was error to submit question whether railroad had diverted water and caused it to so increase the flow of water from other land being drained by ditch between such land and plaintiff's land as to cause such water to overflow and damage plaintiff's crops. Id.

12. — Cause of injury.—For failure of railroad in constructing roadbed to leave sufficient openings for drainage, as required by this article, to be proximate cause of death of one knocked by its floating trestle from tree, it need not have anticipated some one would be so located. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Behne (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 680.

Failure of a railroad to have sufficient opening for flood water in bridging a creek as required in this article, whereby in a not unprecedented flood its bridge was washed away, held not the proximate cause of the death of one drowned when thrown from a tree downstream in which he had taken refuge from the flood, when the tree was struck by the bridge. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Behne (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 354.

Requisites of proximate cause stated. Id.

Where the act or omission is wrongful or negligent, whether as a result of failure to observe a statutory or common-law duty, liability, in either case, is limited to proximately caused injuries, and the rules for determining proximate cause are the same in either case. Id.

17. — Measure of damages in general.—Measure of damages for injury or destruction of growing crops held value at time and place of injury, to be determined from reasonable market value when matured, less cost of cultivating, harvesting, and marketing. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 605.

Measure of damages is difference between market value of land immediately before overflow and its market value immediately thereafter. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Pemberton (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 253.

Where it is shown that plaintiff's land would have been flooded by natural causes, but that the defendant's negligent construction of a bridge has increased the loss, the measure of damages is the increase of loss. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Speer (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 762.

Where crops have been planted and are growing or have matured and are yet on the land, plaintiff is entitled to recover for their destruction from overflow caused by defendant's wrongful act the reasonable value of such crops at the time and place of destruction. Id.

26. — Evidence.—Where only evidence of amount of damages to growing crops was evidence of cost of plowing land and planting crops, evidence held insufficient to support verdict and judgment. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 605.

Evidence held to support verdict for landowner for damages to crops by construction of railway embankment impounding waters and causing overflow. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1026.

In an action against a railroad company for overflow of land and crops resulting from negligent construction of a bridge, defendant was not liable for such damage as would have resulted from overflow had no bridge been constructed, and where the evidence was insufficient for the jury to determine what portion of the damage was caused by the increased overflow due to the bridge, they had no basis for determination of the amount of plaintiff's recovery. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Speer (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 762.

In such action evidence held not sufficient to require an instruction on plaintiff's contributory negligence in failing to remove obstructions consisting of trees and drift from the channel of a creek. Id.

In such action testimony showing overflow more extensive than those before construction, but not showing extent of increase or the amount of damage caused by such increase, is insufficient. Id.

Art. 6499. [4440] Shall have the right to cross, intersect, etc., other railways.

Agreements for connection.—Contract for connection between railroads means physical joining of rails so as to permit trains to pass from one set of rails to other. Phillip A. Ryan Lumber Co. v. Ball (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1037.

Art. 6503. [4444] Value of same and damages shall first be paid.

Art. 6504. [4445] In case corporation and owner can not agree, etc.
—If any railroad corporation shall at any time be unable to agree with the owner for the purchase of any real estate, or the material thereon, required for the purpose of its incorporation or the transaction of its business, for its depots, station buildings, machine and repair shops, for the construction of reservoirs for the water supply, or for the right-of-way, or for a new or additional right-of-way, for change, or relocation or road bed, to shorten the line, or any part thereof, or to reduce its grades, or any of them, or for double tracking its railroad or constructing and operating its tracks, which is hereby authorized and permitted or for any other lawful purpose connected with or necessary to the building, operating or running its road, such corporation may acquire such property in the manner provided in this Chapter; provided, that the limitation in width prescribed in Article 6484, Revised Statutes, 1911, shall not apply to real estate, or any interest therein, required for the purposes herein mentioned, other than right-of-way, and shall not apply to right-of-way when necessary for double tracking or constructing or adding additional railroad tracks, and that real estate, or any interest therein, to be acquired for such other purposes, or any of them, need not adjoin or abut on the right-of-way; provided, further, that no change of the line through any city or town, or which shall result in the abandonment of any station or depot, shall be made, except upon written order of the Railroad Commission of Texas, authorizing such change; and provided, further, that no railroad corporation shall have the right under this Act to condemn any land for the purposes mentioned in this Article situated more than two miles from the right-of-way of such railroad corporation; and provided, further, that nothing herein shall be construed to repeal or limit the provisions of section 1, Chapter 93 of an Act passed at the Fourth Called Session of the Thirty-fifth Legislature, approved April 13, 1918. [Acts 1876, p. 146, § 21; amended Acts 1901, p. 46; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 151, § 1.]

See Philip A. Ryan Lumber Co. v. Ball (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1037; note under art. 6481; City of Rosebud v. Vitek (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 728.

Cited, Dysart v. Wichita Falls, R. & Ft. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 277.

Authority of commission.—Judgment restraining removal of railroad depot in violation of covenant held not to prevent such removal in obedience to order of Railroad Commission when public benefit requires such removal. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Mosel (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 621.

While the Railroad Commission has authority to enforce the law as to the removal of railway depots, it is not its duty to enforce contracts of railroad companies with private individuals as to the maintenance of depots. Id.

— Change of line.—A railroad company, after having located, established, and operated its line cannot abandon or change the location of its tracks without legislative authorization, and this article authorizes a relocation for shortening the line or reducing the grade only. Jeff Bland Lumber & Building Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 402.

The railroad commission is not authorized under this article, to make an order granting a railroad company the right to enter a city over the tracks of another railway and abandon its own. Id.

See Porter v. City of Abilene (App.) 16 S. W. 107.

Jurisdiction.—Since Rev. St. 1879, art. 4182 et seq., provide for condemnation proceedings by railroads in the county court, the district court has no jurisdiction to award condemnation in a suit by the land-owner against the railroad for use and occupation. Galveston Wharf Co. v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 72 Tex. 454, 10 S. W. 537.

A county court has jurisdiction in matters of eminent domain, such jurisdiction not being taken away by Acts 32d Leg. c. 24. Balch v. San Antonio, F. & N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 161 S. W. 1091.

In view of arts. 6481-6534, held, that district court would not enjoin condemnation proceedings where county court had acquired jurisdiction by filing of sufficient petition and parties had failed to agree on damages as provided by this article. Ellis v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 172.

The district court has jurisdiction to enter judgment of condemnation only in cases within art. 6531. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Malone, 222 S. W. 217, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 809.

The statement—in general.—Petition to condemn land for use of railroad company held sufficient under this article, since right to condemn land for purposes mentioned is given by art. 6504. Ellis v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 172.

Filing of application containing allegations of all facts necessary to confer upon county court jurisdiction to determine issues involved in proposed condemnation immediately fixed jurisdiction. Id.

The application hereunder should state a failure to agree or an excuse therefor, as by showing that the landowner is a minor. City of Dallas v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 305.

— Description of land.—A description of real estate in a petition under this article which would enable a surveyor, or one skilled in locating land, to locate the land sought to be condemned, is sufficient. Parrish v. Wichita Falls, R. & Ft. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 205.

— Purpose of condemnation.—In a proceeding under this article, a railway company is not required to condemn each tract for all the purposes named in the statute, but to have a specific tract appropriated to its use for any one of the statutory purposes, and the damages should be measured by the use to which the land is applied. Parrish v. Wichita Falls, R. & Ft. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 205.

Art. 6507. Regular judge disqualified; special judge appointed.

San Angelo Waterworks Co.* (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 165.

Amendment of return.—An award is not void because commissioners amended their return to the county court to include purposes for which it was sought to condemn the land not included in the first return, where if the commissioners held a second hearing on the question of damages, no injury was shown. Parrish v. Wichita Falls, R. & Ft. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 205.

See Ellis v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 172; City of Rosebud v. Vitek (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 728.

Proceedings after filing opposition—Jurisdiction.—County court empowered by its judgment to vest title to realty in city in condemnation proceedings held the proper court for the landowner to file petition attacking the judgment of condemnation on the ground that recitals essential to jurisdiction in the record were false, and to establish aliunde the record that the court in truth was without jurisdiction. City of Dallas v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 305.

Sufficiency of petition.—Petition of landowner and husband to cancel and annul, for want of service and citation or other notice, judgment in a condemnation suit by defendant city, held to set up a cause of action as distinguished from a mere motion to correct an error of entry. City of Dallas v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 305.

Effect of judgment.—See City of Laredo v. Benavides (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 482; note under art. 6534.

Bond.—Where bond of railroad company to obtain possession of land pending appeal by landowner from judgment of condemnation is signed by the company and two individuals, the names of the individuals are to be taken as signed as sureties. Dysart v. Wichita Falls, R. & Ft. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 277.

Payment of compensation.—Subd. 2 of this article, providing that an award in condemnation proceeding and a like amount must be deposited in court, which shall be held together with the award itself, etc., clearly contemplates that the award shall not be paid to the landowner pending the suit. City of Rosebud v. Vitek (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 728.

Art. 6531. [4472] Practice in case specified.

See City of Dallas v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 305.

Jurisdiction of District Court.—The district court has no jurisdiction to enter a judgment of condemnation, except in cases falling within the terms of this article. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Malone (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 217, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 809.

Applicability—To other than railroad companies.—In view of art. 2590, as to condemnation by drainage district, this and related articles, as to condemnation by railroads, and Const. art. 1, § 17, as to payment of condemnation damages, an insolvent drainage district, in suit to enjoin it from damaging land by flowage could not in its answer seek to condemn the lands by making offer to pay the damages determined. Matagorda County Drainage District No. 5 v. Borden (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 308.

Arts. 1283a-1283f, as to the incorporation of gas, electric current and power companies, in providing, by art. 1283d, for condemnation by such company in the same manner as is provided by law in the case of railroads, does not extend to such the benefits of this article, in view of Rev. St. arts. 1232, 1306. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Malone (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 217, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 190 S. W. 809.

Art. 6532. [4473] The right of way, how construed.

Fee in land.—Where railroad company owned fee in strip on which its road was constructed, it could not be restrained from extracting oil therefrom, notwithstanding art. 1164. Crowell & Conner v. Howard (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 911.

A railroad company may exclude trespassers from its right of way, and take reasonable steps to effect that purpose and protect itself therefrom. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Bland (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 727.

Adverse use.—An easement for a public road may be acquired on a portion of a railroad right of way by prescription. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bluit (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 441.

Since public policy, in the absence of statute, does not prevent acquisition of rights of way to highways by adverse possession it does not prevent the acquisition of railway rights of way in that manner. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Belcher (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 471.

Forfeiture of charter.—Rev. St. 1879, art. 4206, was intended to prevent the right of way from reverting to the grantors on the dissolution of the company, and despite forfeiture under art. 4278, the unfinished road is nevertheless its property, to be sold for the benefit of its creditors and shareholders. Sulphur Springs & Mt. P. Ry. Co. v. St. Louis, A. & T. Ry. Co. in Texas, 2 Civ. App. 650, 22 S. W. 107.

Art. 6534. [4475] Right of way vested by judgment of the court.

Enforcement of judgment.—Under the provisions of this and related articles, a judgment for damages, rendered on trial after objection to the award of commissioners, may be enforced by execution against a city, though it has not taken possession of the property condemned for a street. City of Laredo v. Benavides (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 482.

INJURIES FROM CONSTRUCTION OR MAINTENANCE OF RAILROAD

1. Injuries to abutting property—In general.—Every abutting owner has an interest in full width of street, and, if it is obstructed by a railway so as to damage sale or rental value of property, has a right of action for damages. Southern Traction Co. v. Fears (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 856.

2. — Necessity of compensation.—The construction of a steam railroad upon a street or highway, the fee of which is owned by abutting owners, constitutes a taking of private property for public use which Const. art. 1, § 17, provides cannot be done without making adequate compensation. City of Orange v. Rector (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 503.

7. — Negligence.—Regardless of its negligence a railway is liable for damages resulting from location of roundhouse within 800 feet of plaintiffs' homestead. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Reeves (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 814.

8. — Measure of damages.—Measure of damages to abutting lot is determined by value of lot immediately before, and its value immediately after, construction of railroad in street. Southern Traction Co. v. Fears (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 856.

11. — Ingress and egress.—In abutting owner's action for damages from construction of street railroad viaduct occupying part of street, interference with ingress and egress and with light and air are not the only elements of damages. Southern Traction Co. v. Fears (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 856.

13. — Switches or spur tracks.—In action against a railway company for injury to residence property resulting from maintenance of side track, it was improper to plead plaintiff's limited means, and that property was the pride of himself and family. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 555.

It was proper to plead its peculiar value as residence property as showing "market value." Id.

A railroad company is not liable to the owner of adjoining property for the depreciation of the value of such property caused by the mere presence of a newly constructed switch track upon the right of way adjoining the property. Wight v. Daniels (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 473.

Where the court, though finding that considerable noise and smoke were made by the operation of trains on a newly constructed switch, concluded as a matter of law that the railway company was liable for damage to adjacent property by constructing the embankment and the track complained of, the compensation awarded was allowed only for damages accruing from the construction of the switch track, and not from the operation of trains thereon. Id.

Under Const. art. 1, § 17, as to compensation for property taken or injured, owner of property which depreciated owing to construction of switch track near by, and storage and hauling of freight, could recover his damages regardless of negligence in construction or operation of the track. Stubblefield v. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 936.

Property owners adjacent to side track cannot recover for personal inconvenience by operation of trains, in the absence of negligence therein. Id.

Petition, alleging plaintiff was owner of property fronting on street, on opposite side of which was a 150-foot railway right of way, in the center of which was the track, and that railroad caused depreciation of his property when it built switch track on edge of right of way and stored freight in the street, held to state a cause of action. Id.

15. — Annoyance, discomfort and inconvenience.—The discomfort to owners as distinguished from depreciation in property value is only recoverable when resulting from improper location or operation of railway tracks constituting nuisances. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 555.

Where plaintiff did not allege operation of defendant's railway in such a manner as to constitute a nuisance he could not recover for discomforts resulting therefrom. Id.

16. — Noise, vibrations, smoke, noxious odors and cinders.—Railroad's federal charter, though not expressly making it liable for "damaging" property, but only where it "takes" or "destroys," and Const. U. S. Amend. 5, prohibiting "taking" of private property for public use without just compensation, do not relieve it from liability for unreasonably damaging property by soot, smoke, etc., from its roundhouse. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1117.

A railway company is liable to the owner of adjoining property for injuries to the property caused by discharging water thereon and by the noise and smoke resulting from the construction of a switch track and the operation of trains thereon, though necessary to the operation of the railway as a federal corporation engaged in interstate commerce, and directed by the federal court, which had appointed a receiver, and though there was no evidence that the construction was negligent. Wight v. Belcher (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 472.

17. — Benefits.—Where the construction of a switch track and the operation of trains thereon adjacent to plaintiff's property depreciated its market value at the time of construction, it is no defense that the value had since increased, along with other property, so that at the time of the trial it was worth as much as before the construction of the switch. Wight v. Belcher (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 472.

21. — Defenses.—That street railroad viaduct raised above ground was authorized by the city council did not absolve street railroad company from damages resulting from its construction. Southern Traction Co. v. Fears (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 856.

23. — Evidence.—In abutting owner's action for damages from construction of street railroad viaduct occupying part of street, evidence held to justify court's conclusion that structure prevented building of residences or business houses on opposite side of street. Southern Traction Co. v. Fears (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 856.

In an action against a railroad for loss of cattle escaping through openings made in plaintiff's fence during railroad construction, evidence as to extent of damages held sufficient to warrant verdict as to amount. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Baker (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 7.

27. Negligence in construction or maintenance—Injuries to children.—Where child was injured playing on turntable, action of towerman, near by, in speaking generally to the children on turntable, telling them they might get hurt, did not relieve railroad company from liability. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Chappel (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1037.

That lock bar on turntable was left in place by railroad employes using turntable does not affect liability of company for injury to child playing on turntable; such lock bar not being a secure fastening, but used simply to hold the turntable track in line when switching, and being easily shaken loose by trespassing children. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Chappell (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 366.

34. Nuisance—In general.—A roundhouse constituting a nuisance, it was no defense to action for damages that it was more convenient to construct and operate it at that place than another, that in constructing and operating it the railroad neither "took" nor "destroyed" plaintiff's property, or that the railroad was not negligent in constructing or operating it. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1117.

Railroad's federal charter, though not expressly making it liable for "damaging" property, but only where it "takes" or "destroys," and Const. U. S. Amend. 5, prohibiting "taking" of private property for public use without just compensation, do not relieve it from liability for unreasonably damaging property by soot, smoke, etc., from its roundhouse. Id.

See Calcasieu Lumber Co. v. Harris, 77 Tex. 18, 13 S. W. 453.

Purposes for which land may be taken.—A railroad company has the right to acquire real estate without limitation or restriction in use, and when so acquired its title is as absolute as that of a private individual, at least in so far as concerns immunity from attack by any one except the state. Stevens v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 639.

Art. 6538. [4479] Shall have the right to receive and hold grants, etc.

See Calcasieu Lumber Co. v. Harris, 77 Tex. 18, 13 S. W. 453.

Grants for right of way or other purposes—Title, estate or interest acquired.—Conveyance to railroad company in the usual form of a general warranty deed held to give title to the property, and not a mere right of way. Crowell & Conner v. Howard (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 911.

Instrument by presiding justice of county court reading, "I, ———, donate, grant, and convey" certain land to railroad for use as depot site, construed with county court's order using words "grant" and "donate," was intended to pass title, and not merely permissive possession, where only word of limitation declared grant void upon railroad's failure to build line through certain town. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Orange County (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 539.

Where county granted land to railroad, and for more than 40 years permitted railroad to use land and pay all taxes thereon, the county will be held to have intended to grant land absolutely, and not merely to give permissive right to use same as site for depot. Id.

— Covenants and conditions.—When the public interest requires the removal of a railway depot, it can be removed notwithstanding a covenant with private individuals not to remove it. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Mosel (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 621.

A grantor of land could burden it with a covenant requiring the maintenance of a railroad depot thereon for the benefit of any land in the vicinity, whether owned by him or not. Id.

Judgment restraining removal of depot contrary to covenant with plaintiffs' grantor held not to be reversed where one plaintiff had bought land owned by the common grantor at the time of the covenant. Id.

While the Railroad Commission has authority to enforce the law as to the removal of railway depots, it is not its duty to enforce contracts of railroad companies with private individuals as to the maintenance of depots. Id.

Judgment restraining removal of railroad depot in violation of covenant held not to prevent such removal in obedience to order of Railroad Commission when public benefit requires such removal. Id.

Where land is deeded to railroad on condition subsequent that it shall be used for railroad purposes only, forfeiture of the easement created by the deed is the effect of permanent abandonment of such use. Red River, T. & S. Ry. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1160.

Provision of a deed as to consideration and binding the grantee railroad to use the land for railroad purposes only, held to import a condition subsequent. Id.

Deeds to a railroad on condition that premises shall be used exclusively for railroad purposes, and that after they shall cease to be so used they shall revert, naming a small consideration, the real consideration being expected enhancement in value of adjoining property, held to convey a fee upon condition subsequent, and not upon limitation, and railroad took an indefeasible title after grantors' sale of adjoining land. Stevens v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 639.

Art. 6542. [4483] Right to erect and maintain buildings, etc.

Fixtures.—Where a lease of a portion of a railroad right of way provided that on termination the lessee should be allowed a reasonable time in which to remove improvements, he forfeited his right to remove house, and it became a part of the realty if it was not removed within a reasonable time, and he had no claim for damages because the lessor subsequently tore it down. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Clevenger (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1036.

Concessions—Privilege to hackmen.—A railroad company may confer on a particular company the exclusive privilege of having its hack stand on the company's ground and soliciting business there, and may exclude by injunction other hackmen intruding thereon for the purpose of soliciting transportation of passengers and baggage, where they are not prevented from entering the premises and transporting any individuals with whom they had previous contracts. Clisbee v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 235.

Art. 6543. [4484] Right to regulate time of transportation.

See Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Harp (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 502.

Art. 6544. [4486] Right to borrow money, issue bonds, etc.

Cited, Sulphur Springs & Mt. P. Ry. Co. v. St. Louis, A. & T. Ry. Co. in Texas, 2 Civ. App. 650, 22 S. W. 107.

Art. 6545. [4487] Mortgage invalid, unless, etc.

Estoppel to assert invalidity.—Where, in pursuance of a resolution to issue bonds secured on mortgage not adopted in consonance with Rev. St. 1879, art. 4220, a contract has been executed and the company has had the benefit thereof, it is estopped from denying its authority to make the contract. Texas W. Ry. Co. v. Gentry, 69 Tex. 625, 8 S. W. 98.

Art. 6548a. Abandonment, change, or relocation of line; petition; order.—When any railroad in this state whether incorporated under State or Federal charter desires to abandon, change or relocate any portion of its line or railroad within this state adjacent to but not within any incorporated City of 50,000 or more inhabitants of this state according to the United States census, it shall present a petition therefor to the Railroad Commission of Texas showing that portion of its line sought to be changed, relocated or abandoned and the situation of the new or relocated line, with the reasons justifying the same; thereupon the Railroad Commission of Texas shall set aside said application for hearing and give public notice thereof of not less than ten days in the locality where such change is desired by publishing notice in a newspaper of general circulation published nearest thereto, setting out substantially what such contemplated change may be; and if after such hearing the Railroad Commission of Texas shall be of opinion that it is to the public interest to permit such change, relocation or abandonment of said line, it shall enter its order approving same and thereupon said railroad corporation or receivers of any railroad shall be empowered to make such change, relocation or abandonment; provided that nothing contained herein shall be construed to authorize the Railroad Commission of Texas to permit any railroad corporation or receivers of any railroad to abandon such substantial part of its line as shall amount to impairment of its charter contract or deprive any city or town of railroad facilities. Provided that the Railroad Commission of Texas shall not exercise the power herein granted unless and until said railroad corporation or receivers of any railroad shall have obtained the permission of the County Commissioners Court of the County for such change, relocation or abandonment, which permission shall be evidenced by the duly authenticated order of such court which shall accompany the petition of such railroad corporation or receivers of any railroad to the Railroad Commission of Texas. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 27, § 1.]

Art. 6548b. Same.—When any Railroad Corporation or receivers of any railroad of the State desire to change, relocate or abandon any part of its line within any incorporated City containing 50,000 or more inhabitants according to the United States census, it shall present its petition therefor to the governing legislative authority of such city said petition to be also supported by the names of not less than five hundred resident citizens who shall be property owners in said city, showing the reasons therefor and the part of the line sought to be changed, relocated or abandoned, the new location, or arrangements proposed for operation; whereupon such governing legislative authority if of opinion that the same is for the public interest, shall enter its order permitting such change, relocation or abandonment of said line. That thereupon the said railroad corporation or Receivers of any railroad shall present its petition to the Railroad Commission of Texas praying for authority to make such change, relocation or abandonment, with a description of that portion of its lines; providing that no change shall be made that will seriously affect the charter obligations of any railroad company sought to be changed, relocated or abandoned, together with a description of the changed or relocated line, or arrangement for the new operation, which petition shall be accompanied by the order of the governing legislative authority of the City as aforesaid approving same; whereupon the Railroad Commission of Texas shall set down such application for public hearing upon not less than ten days notice, and if upon such hearing the Railroad Commission of Texas shall be of opinion that the public interest will be conserved by the granting of such petition, it shall enter its order to that effect and thereupon said railroad corporation or Receivers of any railroad shall have full power to make such change, relocation or abandonment of its line. Providing that no application to alter, change or re-locate railway tracks, as contemplated by this section, shall be acted upon by the governing Legislative authority of such city until 30 days after the petition of citizens provided for herein shall have been filed with said body, and publication thereof has been made for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation within the limits of said city, prior to action had thereon. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 6548c. Same; power of eminent domain.—When any railroad corporation or Receivers of any railroad shall have been empowered under the provisions of this Act, to change, relocate or abandon its line of railroad in this State, it shall have full power to acquire by condemnation or otherwise all lands for rights of way, depot grounds, shops, roundhouses, water supply sites, sidings, switches, spurs or any other lawful purpose connected with or necessary to the building, operating or running of its road as changed, relocated or abandoned; provided, however, that all property so acquired is hereby declared to be for and is charged with public use so far as same may be necessary. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 6548d. Same; certain acts validated.—All changes, relocations and abandonments of parts of their lines by railroad corporations or Receivers of any railroad in or adjacent to any city having a population according to the United States census of 50,000 inhabitants or over, heretofore made with the permission of the Railroad Commission of Texas or authorized by its written order, are hereby validated and made legal as fully as if made under the provisions of this Act, and such permission or written order of the Railroad Commission of this State, given prior hereto, shall be full power and authority to a railroad corporation or Receivers of any railroad to make such change, relocation or abandonment of parts of its line; providing that this Act shall not affect any right or rights for damages that any person, firm or corporation may now have, may have had or may have in the future for damages caused by any such removal, change or abandonment. [Id., § 4.]

Sec. 5 repeals all inconsistent acts or parts of acts.

Power of Legislature.—The Legislature, by this article, could ratify effectually an abandonment and relocation by a railroad of a portion of its main line tracks. Jeff Bland Lumber & Bldg. Co. v. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 750.

Art. 6548e. Same; hearing of application.—Whenever the governing authority of any City containing 50,000 inhabitants or more shall present to the Railroad Commission of this State its application for any change or relocation of any tracks of any railroad corporation or Receivers of any railroad in such way as to better serve the public interest, said Railroad Commission shall set down such application for a hearing after giving ten days notice to such railroad corporation or Receivers of any railroad, whose tracks are sought to be changed or relocated and after such a hearing may make its order directing such change or relocation if in the opinion of the Railroad Commission such change or relocation would be to the best interest of all parties concerned. Provided that no application to alter, change or relocate railway tracks, as contemplated by this section, shall be determined upon by the governing legislative authority of such city until 30 days after publication of the proposed change or relocation of said railway tracks shall have been made in the official newspaper of the said city. [Id., § 6.]

SPECIAL ACTS PERMITTING REMOVAL OF RAILROAD

Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 28, permits the Riviera Beach & Western Ry. Co. to remove its tracks.

Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 56, permits the Texas Southeastern Ry. Co. to remove its tracks between Vair and Neff.

Failure on the part of railroad companies to comply with the requirements of this article shall be deemed an abuse of their rights and privileges and such abuse shall be at once corrected and regulated by the Railroad Commission. Provided further that no railroad corporation nor any manager or receiver of any railroad shall ever abandon operation of its trains over said railroad, or any part thereof, and in case any railroad corporation, manager or receiver has now or may hereafter abandon operation of its trains over its said railroad, or part thereof, the Railroad Commission of Texas shall at once issue its order directing said railroad corporation, manager or receiver to at once resume operation of its trains over said road, or part thereof, in accordance with the orders, rules, and regulations of the Railroad Commission.

Provided further that if any railroad corporation, manager or receiver shall attempt to abandon any railroad, or part thereof, by failing to operate its trains or to resume operation of its trains over its said road, or part thereof, if the operation of trains has been abandoned, the Railroad Commission shall report the same to the Attorney General of the State of Texas who shall at once file a suit in behalf of the State against said railroad corporation, manager or receiver in any District Court of any county through which said railroad may pass, or of Travis County, for the purpose of determining whether or not said railroad corporation, manager or receiver has failed or refused to carry out the purpose of this article and if it shall be determined by the court that said corporation, manager or receiver has so failed or refused, said court shall appoint a receiver for the purpose of operating said railroad and carrying out the purposes of this Article, and the said receiver shall have had no connection, directly or indirectly, with said railroad corporation, manager or receiver prior to the time of his appointment, but who shall be a good business man well qualified to perform the duties of said receiver.

Provided further that said receiver shall collect freight and passenger rates as prescribed by the Railroad Commission and shall do and perform any and all things necessary in the operation of said trains over said road and shall report to the said court at such times as may be prescribed by the decree of the court all of his acts as such receiver. [P. D. 4893; amended Acts 1903, 1 S. S. p. 21; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 88, § 1.]

Stations where no tickets are sold.—See note under art. 6618.

Sidings and spur tracks.—This article, if construed so as to require railroads to construct sidings and spur tracks at stations, requires construction thereof only where necessary for accommodations for transportation of passengers and freight. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 535.

The reasonableness and justness of Railroad Commission's order requiring construction of depot building and sidings and spur tracks, whether made pursuant to this article or art. 6715, depends upon the facts of the particular case. Id.

Art. 6552a. Effect of preceding section.—This act shall be considered cumulative of all laws of the State of Texas now in force on this subject when not in conflict herewith, but when in conflict herewith, this Act shall control; provided further that the provisions of this Act shall not apply to railroads to which the right of eminent domain is not granted under the laws of this State. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 88, § 2.]

3. Repeal.—This article does not repeal art. 6559. St. Louis, A. & T. Ry. Co. v. McKee (App.) 15 S. W. 45.

Art. 709 is repealed by implication, so far as concerns railroad companies, by this article, and art. 6680. San Antonio & N. P. Ry. Co. v. Bailey (App.) 15 S. W. 203.

7. Failure or refusal to furnish cars or transport.—Under this article, a shipper who shows that he was ready to pay freight charges may recover damages caused by a refusal to transport his property.—Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Schmidt (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 452.

Railroads are quasi public corporations, and require thereby an exclusive privilege to carry on their business over their highways, which powers are granted with the express view of their rendering adequate and impartial service to the public. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Strickland (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 410.

A carrier is not required to accept as a passenger one without an attendant who is mentally incapable of caring for himself. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Sears (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 684.

17. Measure of damages—Penalty.—In suit for conversion of a carload of hay, the evidence and verdict establishing the conversion, plaintiff cannot recover the penalty prescribed by this article, on the value of the hay up to the time of the judgment; the action for conversion being an election to treat title of the date of conversion. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Talmage (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 862.

Art. 6558. Freight to be delivered on payment of charges.

See Schloss v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 85 Tex. 601, 22 S. W. 1014; note under art. 6559.

Constitutionality.—The fact that this article applies only to railroads, and not to other carriers, does not render it class legislation. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. McCown (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 435.

Though it applies to shipments from outside the state, it is not repugnant to, or superseded by, the interstate commerce act. Id.

Excuses for failure to deliver.—A failure to comply with this article is not excused by the refusal of the owner to surrender the bill of lading, or to give an indemnity bond in lieu of such surrender. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. McCown (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 435.

Art. 6559. Penalty for refusal to deliver freight.

Constitutionality.—This article is not unconstitutional as a regulation of interstate commerce, though applied to freight shipped from a point without the state. Ft. Worth & D. Ry. Co. v. Lillard (App.) 16 S. W. 654. Following Railway Co. v. Dwyer (Tex.) 12 S. W. 1001.

This article is not an attempted regulation of the interstate commerce law, but a valid police regulation, which the state has a right to pass. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson, 4 Civ. App. 345, 23 S. W. 732.

Repeal.—This article is not repealed by art. 6554. St. Louis, A. & T. Ry. Co. v. McKee (App.) 15 S. W. 45.

Tender of charges.—In order to recover the penalty prescribed in this statute, the shipper must bring himself strictly within its requirements, and a consignee who tendered the amount of freight shown to be due by an expense account furnished by the carrier, which was no part of the bill of lading, could not maintain an action for such penalty. Schloss v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 85 Tex. 601, 22 S. W. 1014.

Pleading and proof.—In an action under this article for a penalty, for overcharge on a bill of lading, which, provided, "weight and classification subject to correction," plaintiff must allege and prove that the freight charges specified therein were based on the actual weight of the freight. (Railway Co. v. Cruse [Sup.] 18 S. W. 755, followed.) Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Loonie, 84 Tex. 259, 19 S. W. 335.

Where, in an action to recover the penalty authorized by this article, it was admitted by both parties that the bill contained the words, "Weight subject to correction," and it was claimed by defendant that more was due than tendered, the court erred in charging that the jury could only consider evidence as to the true weight if they believed that such words were in the bill, as the burden of proof was on plaintiff to show that he tendered the full amount. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Nelson, 4 Tex. Civ. App. 345, 23 S. W. 732.

In a suit for penalty under this article, where the bill stipulates that the weights named therein are subject to correction, plaintiff must plead and prove that the weights stated in the bill are correct. Wichita Val. Ry. Co. v. Nance, 6 Tex. Civ. App. 34, 25 S. W. 47.

Matters excusing carrier.—A railroad company is not liable to the penalty prescribed by this article, when the freight is detained by a connecting line to which it has been delivered together with the bill of lading. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Adair (App.) 14 S. W. 1076.

The company is not liable to the penalty prescribed by this article where the detention was while the road was in the hands of receivers. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Stoner, 5 Civ. App. 50, 23 S. W. 1020.

Art. 6563. [4506] Signs shall be erected at cross-roads, etc.

Accidents at crossings.—See notes at end of chapter 10 of this title.

— Failure to provide signboards.—Rev. St. 1879, art. 4231, applies equally to roads public by dedication as to public roads established by statutory proceedings. Missouri Pac. R. Co. v. Lee, 70 Tex. 496, 7 S. W. 857.

Art. 6564. [4507] Bell and steam whistle; duty as to.

See Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. York, 74 Tex. 364, 12 S. W. 68; St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 281.

Rights of action.—Rev. St. 1879, art. 4232, does not give any right of action on account of an accident causing death. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cook (Sup.) 16 S. W. 1038.

When and where signals must be sounded—in general.—Rev. St. 1879, art. 4232, as amended, does not require both the whistle to be blown and the bell rung; and it is sufficient if the whistle is blown at a distance of at least 80 rods before the crossing is reached, without continuing the blowing until the crossing is passed. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Kirschoffer (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 577.

— Engine starting within 80 rods from crossing.—The statute does not apply to a train and engine backing from a point less than 80 rods from a crossing. Schaff v. Bearden (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 503.

For whose benefit duty is imposed.—Omission of statutory signals on approach of train to highway crossing is negligence per se only in case of those using or about to use highway, and not with respect to trespassers. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Luten (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 909.

Where the killing of operator of motor car by a passenger train did not occur at a crossing, and where deceased was not on the road when hurt, the statute requiring a whistle to be blown when approaching a crossing has no application. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Whitfield (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 380.

Accidents at crossing—Failure to signal negligence per se.—Railroad's failure to blow whistle and ring bell at least 80 rods from public crossing as required by this article, held negligence per se. Hines v. Foreman (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 630; Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 526.

Failure of trainmen in backing train toward crossing to give signals required by this article, does not constitute negligence per se. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Shockley (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 716.

— Proximate cause.—In actions for injuries to passengers in automobile struck by car with gong and whistle sufficient to give reasonable warning, as jury found, court properly refused to submit issue whether accident would have happened had car been equipped with different bell and whistle, as required in certain cases by this article. Sellers v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 397.

Where a train of 23 cars was backing towards a crossing, and the engine was some 900 feet away when automobile was struck at the crossing, on evidence that the bell, if rung, could not have been heard at the crossing, failure to ring it was not the proximate cause of the injury. Schaff v. Bearden (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 503.

— Evidence.—The failure to comply with these requirements at the crossing at which plaintiff was injured was prima facie evidence of negligence, making the company liable for the injury if it occurred without any fault of plaintiff. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Breitling (Sup.) 12 S. W. 1121.

Negative testimony of the driver of an automobile struck at a crossing and another person that they did not hear the bell rung as the train was approaching held insufficient to sustain a finding that the bell was not rung. Schaff v. Bearden (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 503.

In an action for death of driver of automobile truck struck by a train at a crossing, evidence held sufficient to sustain jury finding of negligence proximately causing the injury. Schaff v. Merchant (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 970.

In an action for killing a mule at a public crossing, evidence held to warrant finding that failure to blow whistle and ring bell at crossing, as required by this article, was negligence proximately causing mule's death. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 526.

Crossing another railroad.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4232, in an action for damages caused by a collision between two trains at a crossing, instruction that, if defendant's engineer, on approaching the crossing, failed to bring his engine to a full stop at such a distance from the crossing as, under the circumstances, common prudence would dictate as necessary to avoid a collision, and that the collision occurred by reason of such failure, the defendant would be liable held proper. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Mackney, 33 Tex. 410, 18 S. W. 949.

Art. 6589. [4519] Station depots shall be erected, etc.

Mandatory character of statute.—This article is mandatory, and to secure compliance therewith it is the duty of the Railroad Commission to order a railroad company which maintains only a shed at a town containing several stores, mills, etc., to erect a depot there sufficient to handle the freight and passenger traffic. Angelina & N. R. R. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 703.

Such an order of the Railroad Commission is not subject to a test of reasonableness: the only question of reasonableness possible being as to the kind of buildings required to be built. Id.

A railroad company cannot evade the statutory duty imposed upon it because of increased expense to the company. Id.

Duty as to goods not stored.—Where a carrier had established a platform as a place for the reception and delivery of cotton, it was required, under this article, to do whatever was reasonably necessary to protect cotton placed on the platform from fire caused by sparks from passing engines, or from a cotton gin located 75 or 80 yards therefrom. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Triplett (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 305.

Suits—Defenses.—Under this article, and art. 6693, it is no defense to a consignee's action for failure to deliver goods to connecting carrier that freight could not have been left at junction point where there was no station, without loss. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Warren (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 814, 816.

Where a railroad, in the absence of a warehouse building to protect cotton at its station, as required by this article, unloaded cotton shipped over its road on the platform of a compress company, the compress company was the agent of the railroad, and not an independent warehouseman. Wichita Valley Ry. Co. v. Golden (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 465.

Art. 6590. [4520] No storage to be charged, except, etc.

See Hines v. First Guaranty State Bank of Aubrey (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 668.

Art. 6591. [4521] Passenger depots opened, lighted, warmed, etc.; penalty for failure.

See Hines v. Hadnot (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 136.

Stations where no tickets are sold.—See note to art. 6618.

Lighting and heating depots, etc.—A railroad company owes a duty to the traveling public to exercise ordinary care to keep its passenger station buildings and other depot premises set apart for the use of passengers in reasonably safe condition and to light such premises at night when necessary. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 822.

— Limiting liability.—Though a carrier may stipulate against liability for failing to set down a passenger riding on a drover's pass at a station or to furnish lights for him, it nevertheless must exercise the high degree of care which it owes to a passenger not to set him down at an unsafe place, or a place so remote from the depot platform used for passengers as would expose him to manifest danger. Robert v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 954.

— Contributory negligence.—Passenger on a dark night walking off unlighted platform without paying particular attention to where she was going, held contributorily negligent as a matter of law, and cannot recover. Hines v. Hadnot (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 136.

Safe means of ingress and egress.—Where the usually traveled and apparently safe way between depot and public road was between the main and switch tracks, it cannot be said that pathway leaving that walk only a few feet from the public road, running diagonally across the switch track over the end of a culvert, was the only practical way to reach the public road, so that the railroad owed duty to the public to keep such way in suitable condition for such use, or to provide lights for the guidance of those passing over it after alighting from a passenger train. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 822.

Evidence.—In an action by passenger who claimed to have contracted la grippe resulting in pneumonia and tuberculosis from exposure in cold waiting room, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that the passenger suffered such injuries as claimed, and the denial of a new trial was not error. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 814.

Art. 6592. Water closets to be erected.

Effect of Federal Control.—Under Act Cong. March 21, 1918, § 10 (U. S. Comp. St. 1918, U. S. Comp. St. Ann. Supp. 1919, § 3115½j), the Federal Director General of Railroads whose predecessor in office took over the properties of a railroad in the possession and control of a receiver is not liable to penalties for failure of himself and predecessor to keep well lighted the waterclosets and adjacent depot grounds maintained at several passenger stations, as required by this and the two succeeding articles. State v. Hines (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 667.

Questions for jury.—In an action for penalties for failure to comply with this article, whether water-closets 524 feet from a depot in a town without sewers were within a reasonable and convenient distance held for the jury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. State, 110 Tex. 128, 216 S. W. 393.

Verdict.—In an action for penalties under this article, verdict that defendants were guilty of not having their water-closets at a convenient place at the town named, which was without sewers, did not find the facts essential to support the imposition of penalties. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. State, 110 Tex. 128, 216 S. W. 393.

Art. 6593. Separate closets, how constructed and maintained.

Effect of Federal control of railroads, see note under art. 6592.

Art. 6595. [4522] Switch cars shall be furnished.

See Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wallace, 2 Tex. Civ. App. 270, 21 S. W. 973.

Art. 6596. [4523] Cattle-guards and stops at what places.

See Ward v. Bonner, 80 Tex. 168, 15 S. W. 805.

Art. 6598. [4525] Character of cattle-guards and stops.

See Ward v. Bonner, 80 Tex. 168, 15 S. W. 805.

Art. 6600. [4527] Liability of company for neglect to place and keep in repair cattle-guards and stops.

See Ward v. Bonner, 80 Tex. 168, 15 S. W. 805.

Liability for negligence—Damages.—Where railroad, after running line through plaintiff's lands, by neglecting and refusing to close openings on right of way by fence and cattle guards, gradually destroyed value of grass and herbage as pasturage by failing to protect it from stock of others, case was one of special damages, to be measured by loss to plaintiff rather than market value of grass. San Antonio, U. & G. Ry. Co. v. Ernst (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 603.

Art. 6601. Johnson grass not permitted to go to seed on right of way.

See International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Dawson (Sup.) 232 S. W. 279; note under art. 6602.

Art. 6602. Penalty and damages.

See Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Blumberg (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 734.

Effect of receivership—Penalty.—Receivers of railway companies appointed by the United States court are liable under this and the preceding article, for penalties for allowing Johnson grass to go to seed on the right of way of the railway company of which they had control. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Dawson (Sup.) 232 S. W. 279.

Duties of landowner.—It was not incumbent on plaintiff, suing railroad for damage through the spread of Johnson grass, to cease plowing the land, or tediously to gather the grass roots placed thereon through the negligence of defendants. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Blumberg (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 734.

Measure of damages.—Evidence held insufficient to support the measure of damages which is the reasonable cost of exterminating the additional Johnson grass, and placing the land in the same condition it was in before defendant's wrong. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Seligman (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 303.

The amount whereby the value of the land infested with the grass has been diminished is the measure whereby damages are to be ascertained, though plaintiff landowner alleges in the alternative that the grass can be eradicated for a smaller amount. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Blumberg (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 734.

Actions—Parties.—A railroad and a brick company, alleged and proved to be joint tort-feasors in permitting the spread of Johnson grass from a spur track to his land, were properly joined in one suit; it being clearly alleged that the spur track was leased by the brick company but controlled by the railroad company, the parties jointly undertaking the upkeep of the right of way. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Blumberg (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 734.

Art. 6603. [4528] Liability of companies for stock killed or injured.

See Texas Electric Ry. v. Barton (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 689.

6. Street and other electric railways.—An interurban railway using electricity as a motor power is a "railroad," within this article, which is remedial and to be liberally construed. Texas Electric Ry. v. Barton (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 689.

8. Applies only to injuries from collision.—Owner cannot recover under this article; live stock not having been hurt in collision with train. Schaff v. Page (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 807; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Hughes, 68 Tex. 290, 4 S. W. 492.

8½. Care required and liability in general.—Under this article, where horses attached to a wagon run away, and are injured at a place on the track which was not fenced, nor a public crossing, defendant is liable. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Keith, 74 Tex. 287, 11 S. W. 1117.

In action for injuries to mule on railway track, instruction that railroad must provide reasonable approach to freight unloading points, and that plaintiff, hauling material from cars, had a right to use the most reasonable and convenient approach, whether provided by the railroad or not, was erroneous. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rea (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 812.

Railroad's duty to make freight unloading points as safe as reasonable care will make them does not make it liable for injury to animal resulting from the unsafe condition of parts of the premises not intended for public use, and into which the public is not invited. Id.

The presence of box cars, lumber, and cordwood, placed near a public crossing for railroad purposes, though an obstruction of trainmen's view, is not negligence upon which liability for killing a mule at the crossing can be based, but may be considered in determining whether train was operated with proper care. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 526.

12. — Care as to animals seen on or near track.—It was not the duty of a railroad's engineer to slow his train down when already running at a fairly slow rate because he saw cattle evidencing no nervousness or excitement standing 50 feet away from the track, as he could not anticipate they would attempt to cross. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Dumm (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 204.

13. Liability where right of way is fenced.—Where a railroad has its right of way properly fenced, it is necessary, to admit proof that hogs were killed on the track, to allege that the railroad was negligent. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Lovett (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 498.

A railroad company may gain a certain immunity from liability for killing live stock on its right of way by fencing the same, although not required by law to fence it. Butler v. Baker (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 827.

14. Liability where right of way is not fenced.—There is no law compelling railroads to fence a right of way. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Wilhite (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 765.

15. Liability where stock are prohibited from running at large—In general.—Where stock is prohibited from running at large, the owner of stock killed on a railroad track must prove negligence, although the railroad has not fenced its right of way. Baker v. McMillan (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 701; Texas City Terminal Co. v. McGee (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 673; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Messer (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 232; Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Wilhite (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 765.

It is not negligence for a railroad company to remove a portion of the fence inclosing its right of way unless the remaining portion thereby makes the situation more dangerous for stock running at large. Paris & Mt. P. R. Co. v. Bridges (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 350.

Where the stock law is enforced, it is sufficient if the railroad company uses such care as a reasonably prudent person would under the same circumstances, not merely the degree of care exercised by the owner of the stock to prevent its running at large. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Messer (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 232.

20. Liability where right of way cannot be fenced—Places where fences are not required.—The statute imposing a liability on railroad companies for injuries done to animals, unless the track was fenced, does not apply to a flag station and siding at which trains stop only when passengers or freight are to be received or discharged. (Railway Co. v. Cocks, 64 Tex. 154, followed.) Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wallace, 2 Civ. App. 270, 21 S. W. 973.

That point where plaintiff's horse was killed by defendant's locomotive was within switching limits of railroad does not as a matter of law establish place was not one which defendant should inclose with a fence in order to avail itself of protection against killing of stock. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 600.

Where the section foreman of a railroad company which had fenced its right of way at place where a fence was not required by law was negligent in letting the fence get out of repair so that plaintiff's mare got on the right of way and was killed by a train, the company was liable, though the trainmen could not by exercising ordinary care have avoided the injury. Bigham v. Hines (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 512.

Railroad held liable for death of mule, where after discovery of the mule on the track at a place not required to be fenced, the trainmen did not use ordinary means to prevent injuring it, and where such failure was proximate cause of the mule's death. Hines v. Curlee (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 669.

21. — Necessity of showing negligence.—To recover from a railroad for killing cattle at a crossing which could not be or was not required to be fenced, it devolved on plaintiff to show negligence on the part of the railroad. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 204; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 496; Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 526; San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Martin (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 1113; Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Peterson (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 747.

23. What constitutes fence—Repair and maintenance.—Railway fence so out of repair that it will not exclude live stock is no fence within this article. Robbins v. Bell (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 865.

25. Liability for stock injured at private crossing.—Duty to erect gates at crossing of third-class road, see Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. O'Neal (App.) 16 S. W. 537.

27. — Repair of gates.—Gate being part of a right of way fence, and placed there by the railway company, though for the accommodation of landowner, it was the company's duty to make it of such strength, and with such fastenings, as to turn stock of ordinary disposition. Texas Electric Ry. Co. v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 563.

29. Contributory negligence of owner.—It is the duty of landowner to keep shut and to repair trivial defects developing in gate put in right of way fence by railroad company for his accommodation and, till it got out of repair so as to impart knowledge thereof to the company, to make such defect known to the company. Texas Electric Ry. Co. v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 563.

30. Proximate cause of injury.—Where cattle were run down by train, proceeding in excess of speed allowed by ordinance, and there was testimony that had train not been proceeding so fast cattle could have been driven from tracks, recovery cannot be denied on theory that violation of municipal ordinance was not proximate cause. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Liuzza (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1043.

Where plaintiff's mare was killed by a train while she was caught in cattle guard at a road crossing, the negligent failure of the railroad employes to sound the statutory warnings for the crossing could not be proximate cause of the killing. Hines v. Collins (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1108.

31. Presumptions and burden of proof.—Proof of killing of stock on railway track makes prima facie case against railway, under this article, though if railway can prove it fenced track where injury occurred, it is defense against prima facie case, and merits of case depends on questions of railway's negligence, owner's contributory negligence, and proximate cause. Baker v. Schroeder (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 394.

33. Sufficiency of evidence.—In general.—See Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Philpot (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1183.

In action for killing mule, evidence held to justify inference that defendant's train actually struck the mule. Robbins v. Bell (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 865.

Testimony of plaintiff and another witness held to sustain verdict that plaintiff owned mules killed by defendant railroad, although both witnesses had made contrary statements before trial. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 868.

Evidence held to show that the crossing at which plaintiff's mule was killed by defendant railroad was a public crossing. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Peterson (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 747.

34. — Negligence of defendant.—Evidence held not to show that the accident was due to defendant railroad's negligence. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Peterson (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 747; Jefferson County Traction Co. v. Giles (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 224.

In an action against a railroad company for the death of a mule which had strayed onto the right of way because of the removal of a fence, evidence held insufficient to show negligence. Paris & Mt. P. R. Co. v. Bridges (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 350.

In an action for killing a cow at a point where railroad company was not required to fence its tracks, evidence held insufficient to show that trainmen were negligent in failing to give signals and keep proper lookout and that such negligence was the proximate cause of the injury. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 496.

Evidence held to support finding that railroad was negligent in failing to maintain its right of way fence, and that such negligence was the cause of the entry of plaintiff's cattle on right of way. Hines v. O'Brien (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 497.

Evidence held insufficient to warrant conclusion that employes in charge of locomotive were negligent in failing to keep a proper lookout. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 526.

A finding that interurban car was operated at negligent rate of speed held warranted. Eastern Texas Electric Co. v. Hunsucker (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 817.

— Proximate cause.—In an action against a railroad for damages for a cow killed in a cut, evidence held insufficient to show that fencing and placing a cattle guard at only one end of the cut was the cause of the accident. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Messer (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 232.

36. Measure of recovery—In general.—In action for negligently killing mules, measure of damages is their market, and not their reasonable, value. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 868.

Measure of damages recoverable against railroad for injuring an animal is difference between market value at time of injury in the vicinity, if there is such a value, or, if not, the market value in the nearest vicinity, and such value immediately after injury. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 491.

38. — Interest.—The amount recoverable from a railroad for stock killed does not include interest. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Post (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 129.

Art. 6608. [4535] To receive freights and passengers from connecting lines.

Cited, Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Williams, 77 Tex. 121, 13 S. W. 637.

Liability of connecting carriers.—Facts held insufficient to fix any liability upon defendant terminal carrier as member of a partnership or as joint contractor for injuries to live stock while in the hands of the contracting carrier; its action in hauling such stock, as required by this article, not of itself amounting to a ratification of the contract. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Fuller, 3 Civ. App. 340, 22 S. W. 1006.

Ratification of initial carrier's contract.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4251, a railroad company is not bound by a through bill of lading, under which it receives freight, in ignorance of its terms, the original carrier having no authority to contract for it. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dwyer, 75 Tex. 572, 12 S. W. 1001, 7 L. E. A. 478, 16 Am. St. Rep. 926.

Facts held not enough to prove conclusively a contract of agency or partnership between the companies, nor a ratification by the delivering company, so as to bind it to the freight rate named in the bill of lading. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 5 Civ. App. 24, 23 S. W. 827.

Receiving from initial carrier goods for transportation was not a ratification of initial carrier's contract, but merely a compliance with this and related articles. Ponder v. Crenwelge (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1125.

Art. 6610. [4537] Terms for receiving.

Art. 6616. [4540] Equal facilities to be furnished.

Fixing rates.—In mandamus to compel railroad to furnish express company facilities under this and the following article, court was not empowered to determine what constituted a reasonable rate; the establishment of rates being a legislative and not a judicial function. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Empire Express Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 590, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 222.

Railroad was under no obligation to furnish express company facilities under this and the following article, though contract tendered by express company called for same per cent of gross rates as was provided for by the railroad's contract with another express company, where latter company did a big interstate business and its contract guaranteed a minimum payment, and where contract tendered contained no such guaranty and contemplated only intrastate business. Id.

Tender of business.—Express company to be entitled to facilities by railroad under arts. 6616, 6617, must make a demand therefor with payment or tender of the proper rate. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Empire Express Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 590, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 222.

Judgments.—To enforce a rate established by a contract between express company and railroad company, the decree must follow the contract in its entirety, and any substantial variation therefrom would be the fixing of the rate by the court in usurpation of a legislative function. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Empire Express Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 590, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 222.

Contracts for use of road.—Railroad companies may make contracts in their private character for the use of road, as distinguished from their public character of common carrier. Hicks v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 840.

Art. 6617. [4541] Damages for failure to comply, etc.

Stations where no tickets are sold.—Under this article and arts. 6552, 6591, a company is liable for the ejection of a passenger from a freight train, who gets on at a junction where there is no ticket office, notwithstanding its rule that passengers without tickets cannot ride on such trains. Eddy v. Rider, 79 Tex. 53, 15 S. W. 113.

Baggage.—The provision in this article, for an allowance of baggage to each railroad passenger, does not permit the passenger to take the baggage of another. Andrews v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1040.

Despite statute regulating railroad passenger's allowance of baggage, under statute creating Railroad Commission, held, that commission had power to classify baggage, and to fix what articles shall constitute such for transportation, determining it shall consist, among other things, of articles carried as samples by traveling salesmen. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Levy (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 513.

Art. 6618a. Reduced rate to certain officers.—From and after the passage of this Act, any steam railroad company or any electric inter-urban railroad company or any person or persons operating the same, or any receiver or receivers, or lessee or lessees thereof shall be permitted to transport between points wholly within this State at the reduced rate of one cent per mile, while traveling on official business connected with their respective offices, the following named peace officers, to-wit:

Adjutant General of the State of Texas; State Rangers; the sheriff of any county, his deputies to be designated by him; constables; chiefs of police and assistant chiefs and captains; city marshals, chief of the detectives of any county or city, and assistant detectives. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 88, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 2 of the act imposes a criminal penalty and is set forth, post, as art. 1531i, Penal Code. The act took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

INJURIES FROM OPERATION OF RAILROAD

II. COMPANIES AND PERSONS LIABLE FOR INJURIES

$\frac{1}{2}$ . In general.—Ultimate carrier for foreign car, loaded by consignor, held not liable for injuries to consignee's servant from falling of loose casting within car while being unloaded; defect not being discoverable by outside inspection. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pysher (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 981.

1. Ownership, possession and control of road in general.—Under the Federal Control Act (U. S. Comp. St. 1918, U. S. Comp. St. Ann. Supp. 1919, §§ 3115 $\frac{1}{2}$ a-3115 $\frac{1}{2}$ p), the possession, control, and management of railroads was completely and exclusively vested in the Director General. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Long (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 212.

A railroad company whose road was in charge of the Director General of Railroads was not responsible, after the promulgation of General Orders 50 and 50a, for the acts of the Director General's servants in destroying a house constructed on the right of way by a lessee whose lease had terminated. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Clevenger (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 1036.

A railroad under federal control authorized by Congress is not liable for the death of a person struck at a crossing. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Wilkerson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 574.

Under Act Cong. Feb. 23, 1920, § 206, subd. (d), notwithstanding sections 202, 211, action pending at termination of federal control for injury to railroad employee during federal control is thereafter to be prosecuted against the agent appointed by the President under such act for defending such actions. Hines v. Collins (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 332.

Where, in action, for negligent operation of railroad during federal control, judgment was rendered after such control had terminated, and the agent appointed by the President had been made a defendant, it should have been against him alone; there being no liability of the railroad company in its corporate capacity. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Haywood (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 347.

After dismissal of defendant railway company from the suit which continued against defendant Director General of Railroads, it was error for the trial court to render judgment fixing a lien against the properties of the railroad to secure payment of judgment rendered against the Director General. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hamrick (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 166.

Where the Director General of Railroads, after taking charge of a railroad, continued to maintain and operate trains over a crossing without in any way attempting to remedy the defective and dangerous conditions surrounding it, he was responsible for negligence in maintaining such condition, though the crossing was constructed long before he took charge. Payne v. Wallis (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 1114.

3. Companies permitting use of road by others.—A railroad is liable for negligence of other roads using its tracks, whether licensees or lessees. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1085.

A railway company, which permitted a lumber company to use its tracks under contract unauthorized by law, is responsible to third persons for negligence of lumber company. Trinity Valley & N. Ry. Co. v. Scholz (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 224.

A servant employed upon a train making trips over another company's road is entitled to presume that such company performed its duty to keep the track in a safe condition, and is entitled to damages for injuries received by reason of its failure in such respect. Hicks v. Gulf C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 840.

5. Joint liabilities.—Where a defendant railroad company was an active tort-feasor guilty of affirmative negligence causing the death of an employé of another company also charged with negligence, the railroad company is not entitled to recover over against the other company. Rio Grande, E. P. & S. F. R. Co. v. Guzman (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 628.

Where employé of express company was also in charge of baggage car, the railroad and the express companies held jointly liable for injury caused by his negligence in throwing a parcel out of the door, whether such parcel was express matter, baggage, or mail matter. American Express Co. v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 364.

III. INJURIES TO PASSENGERS OR FREIGHT

See Carriers, Title 20.

IV. INJURIES TO LICENSEES OR TRESPASSERS IN GENERAL

8. Injuries to persons at stations.—A boy who of his own accord crawls under a railroad's warehouse to see animals unloaded from a circus train attracting him to the place is a trespasser, and the railroad is not liable for his death by the collapse of the building caused by its insecurity and the presence of people on top of it. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 1108.

9. Injuries to persons working on or about cars.—Where one drove a team onto railroad land at a place used for unloading of cars, the railroad owed him, as an invitee, the duty to use ordinary care for his safety, and was liable, where, by reason of negligently causing noise and escape of steam, the team was frightened and ran away. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Barrett (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 557.

Trainmen are not bound to maintain a lookout to discover whether the train's approach frightened a team standing at the side of a box car on a switch track, and so negligence cannot be predicated on their failure to keep a lookout. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 184.

Trainmen, shunting car on an oil company's spur track, were not as matter of law entitled to assume that the oil company would warn its employés working beside the track of any danger from shunted cars. Blair v. Jefferson & N. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 936.

Where the station agent of one railroad rightfully entered the box car of another to discharge his duty as agent for the first, the servants of the other road could not negligently injure him without subjecting their company to liability, even if the agent was not the agent of such company in handling freight, and not a joint agent of the two roads. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Jackman (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 410.

Where warehouse company's employé, aware of the condition of a side track, was injured when in pushing a car a steel sliver on a rail caught his clothing, the railroad was not liable for his injuries, though it had knowledge and failed to warn him. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. McLain (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 65.

Railroad's duty toward shipper's employé who, while assisting in loading and unloading freight, was required to help in moving flat car which the railroad had failed to properly place, was that of exercising ordinary care, since such employé was rightfully upon premises, and was not a volunteer, trespasser, or mere licensee. Rio Grande E. P. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Guzman (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1102.

11. Injuries to persons on trains—Care required and liability as to licensees.—A lumber company owes a licensee on its log train no duty with respect to the condition of its track, cars, or other instrumentalities; its sole duty being to exercise ordinary care in the operation of the train. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 831.

Where a logging company permitting a licensee to ride on its logging train creates a new danger after he is on the train, if by making up its train in a manner not before used by it, it must assume with reference to such new hazard the responsibility of exercising due care to protect him from injury resulting by reason thereof. Id.

Where a railroad gave a lumber company written permission to use its tracks, receiving no consideration therefor, lumber company not being a common carrier, a servant of the lumber company, while riding on one of the lumber company's motorcars, was a mere licensee (quoting Words and Phrases, First and Second Series, Licensee). Hicks v. Gulf C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 840.

A railroad company owes to a mere licensee, riding on a motorcar operated over its track, no affirmative duty in regard to fencing its right of way so as to keep stock off of the track, or the condition of the track, the licensee assuming all the risks incident to the operation of the car. Id.

12. — Care required and liability as to children.—In action for injuries to an eight year old boy while on a locomotive in charge of a hostler, failure of the court to present issue of defendant's alleged negligence in knowingly consenting to the presence of the boy upon the locomotive cab held error. Dickey v. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 552.

14. Removal of trespassers.—A carrier is liable for ejection of a trespasser from its moving freight train if it used unnecessary force, or if by threats or violence it terrified him to such an extent as to cause him to believe that he could only save himself from bodily hurt by jumping off. Baker v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 314.

16. Contributory negligence of person injured—Persons working on or about cars.—One injured while attempting to block a car after having released a defective brake, was not required to inspect the car before moving it, defendant knowing of the custom of allowing coal cars to move a short distance by gravity to facilitate unloading. Texas Midland R. R. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 340.

It is the duty of a person driving any team near a locomotive to exercise such care and prudence to prevent such team from running away and causing injury as a person of ordinary care would exercise under the same or similar circumstances for his own safety. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Barrett (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 557.

It is the duty of a person unloading a car, when a switching crew undertakes to move it, to exercise that degree of care that a person of ordinary prudence would commonly exercise under the same circumstances to avoid injury to himself. Schaff v. Moss (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 548.

A son injured by the movement of cars while assisting his father in loading a car with household goods is not chargeable with father's negligence, where the son has no control over the management of the work. Hines v. Welch (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 681.

The principle of imputed negligence rests on agency or authority of each, express or implied, to act for all in respect to the control of the means or agencies employed to execute the common purpose or enterprise. Id.

A "joint enterprise" within the law of imputed negligence is the joint prosecution of a common purpose under such circumstances that each has authority express or implied to act for all in respect to the control or agencies employed to execute such common purpose. Id.

In the absence of the relation of parent and child and of principal and agent, negligence in the conduct of another will not be imputed to a plaintiff if he neither authorized such conduct or participated therein, nor had the right or power to control it. Id.

If either of the persons whose negligence injures a third person is the agent or representative of the third person, or under the third person's control, the third person cannot recover for injuries, because the negligence of his representative or agent is chargeable to him as principal. Id.

20. Acts or omissions of employes or others.—Act of conductor in apprehending boys whom he thought implicated in stoning trains held within general authority as conductor and in furtherance of railroad's business as carrier. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Besser (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 263.

Where everything passenger on train did in relation to arrest of two boys was done at request and advice of conductor, passenger's acts must be treated as those of conductor as to liability of railroad for arrest. Id.

If railroad's yard watchman, within general scope of employment to protect railroad's property, acted unreasonably and negligently in performance of duties as he saw them, railroad was liable for any injury suffered by another thereby, whether watchman acted upon reasonable appearances or not. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 105.

That sewer is constructed by independent contractor does not relieve principal of responsibility for defects causing injury to pedestrians in refilling excavations where such principal contractor retained authority to decide as to the manner of refilling. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Scheppelman (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 167.

The act of trainmen in moving cars on a mill track to places designated by an oil company was for the mutual benefit of both companies, not for the sole benefit of the latter, so as to render the trainmen its servants, for whose negligence it would be solely responsible. Blair v. Jefferson & N. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 936.

Where master placed armed guard at gate, who arrested plaintiff and wrongfully shot him because he attempted to escape, the master was liable, though he had expressly forbidden the guard to use his weapon for any such purpose. Lancaster v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 550.

Where a railroad company engaged an independent contractor to disinfect stock cars with a medicated creosote solution, which work was not inherently dangerous, an employe of the contractor, who was not warned of the danger of slipping and suffered injuries from the splashing of the solution in the eye, cannot recover from the company; the contractor's fault being purely collateral to the work. Crow v. McAdoo (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 241.

The one contracting to disinfect cars on a car basis, hiring and discharging his help, held an independent contractor," for whose acts causing injury to one assisting him the railroad company is not responsible. Id.

Where an employe engaged to operate a gasoline motorcar requested a blacksmith who had repaired the car, the motor of which was owned by the employe, to ride on the car to detect any defect, held that, the employe was acting within the scope of his apparent authority. Hines v. Parsons (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1027.

Where plaintiff went to defendant's railroad station for the purpose of sending a telegraphic message, the station agent being the operator, and an altercation and assault resulted when the demand of the agent that plaintiff dismiss an action which as attorney he had brought against the railroad company was refused, defendant was not responsible, as such demand was not within the scope of the agent's employment. Payne v. Tisdale (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 881.

23. Actions for injuries to licensees or trespassers—Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—In suit for injuries to child 13 years of age invited to ride on moving box car, evidence held to warrant finding that child lacked capacity to understand danger, and was not guilty of contributory negligence. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Lawrence (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1020.

In action against railroad and watchman, evidence held to justify finding that shot which injured plaintiff was not fired maliciously or with intent to shoot plaintiff, but merely to induce him to leave railroad yards. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 105.

In such action, evidence held to support finding watchman was acting within general scope of authority. Id.

In a personal injury action, evidence held sufficient to sustain jury's special finding that the injured boy had sufficient intelligence to appreciate, and sufficient discretion to avoid, the danger from which the injury resulted. Farrand v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 845.

In action for injury to plaintiff by escaping steam from passing engine when he drove his team between depot platform and track for purpose of unloading lumber, conflicting evidence held sufficient to support verdict for plaintiff. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Whatley (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 968.

In action for injuries to shipper of stock caused by flashing a light before animals on loading chute causing them to rush back and trample plaintiff, evidence held to raise the issue whether or not the light came from a trainman's lantern or from some other source. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 773.

In an action against a railway for death of an oil company's employé, working beside a spur track, evidence held sufficient to support finding that the trainmen owed the oil company's employé the duty to warn him before shunting a car toward him. Blair v. Jefferson & N. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 936.

In an action against railroad receivers for personal injuries sustained when the box car in which plaintiff was unloading brick was struck by another car, evidence held not to support a finding of defendant's negligence. Lancaster v. Hunter (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 765.

In an action against a railroad by a warehouse company's employé caught on a siver on a rail while engaged in moving a freight car on a side track, evidence held to show that plaintiff had full knowledge of the defect. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. McLain (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 65.

In an action by a servant shot by an armed guard because plaintiff attempted to leave the guard's custody after arrest, a finding of liability held sustained by the evidence. Lancaster v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 650.

In an action for injuries to a drayman injured by a falling tombstone on a station platform, evidence held to warrant findings of the jury that the stone which fell was not so placed as to be reasonably safe for persons to pass it, conveying freight. Hines v. Jones (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 412.

24. — Damages.—In action against railroad for arrest of boys thought to be implicated in stoning trains, verdict of $1,000 for each boy held not so excessive as to indicate bias, prejudice, or other improper motive or consideration on part of judge. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Besser (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 263.

In action against railroad and yard watchman for shooting plaintiff in calf of leg, verdict for plaintiff for $2,500 was not excessive. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Fleming (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 105.

$6,000 damages was not excessive for mail clerk, whose muscles were torn loose from the spinal column. Texas-Mexican Ry. Co. v. Creekmore (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 682.

VI. ACCIDENTS AT CROSSINGS

34. Mutual rights and duties at public crossings.—It was duty of interurban railroad's servants in approaching crossing where view was obstructed to exercise ordinary care in operation of car, and duty of one driving wagon over crossing to exercise ordinary care. Southern Traction Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 150.

Common sense and public welfare dictate that right of precedence at railroad crossing, as between train and automobile driver or other user of intersecting highway shall be accorded to train. Baker v. Collins (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 519.

An interurban railroad company has no right to the exclusive use of that part of the street upon which its track is laid, but all persons have an equal right to the use thereof for traveling over and across the street. Galveston-Houston Electric Ry. Co. v. Patella (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 615.

Travelers on a public highway intersected by an electric railway do not have equal rights at crossing with the railway company. Southern Traction Co. v. Kirksey (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 702.

35. Defects in crossings and approaches.—A railroad company failing to use ordinary care in maintaining a public crossing in repair, is liable for injuries to a driver thrown from a wagon by the bad condition of the track without negligence on his part. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Huckabee (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 666.

39. Signboards, signals, flagmen and gates at crossings.—Railway crossing flagman is obliged to use ordinary care in keeping a lookout and giving warning of approaching trains to traveling public. Sulzberger & Sons Co. of America v. Page (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 928.

Where a petition alleged that view of travelers approaching crossing in village was obstructed by cars and temporary depot, it was not error to overrule special exception to the petition charging negligence in failing to have a flagman or watchman at the crossing. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Tisdale (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 347.

Where it was customary to run trains at from 15 to 35 miles an hour at a crossing, which was one of the most used streets, jury could find negligence because of failure to have flagman at crossing. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Harrington (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 685.

A railroad is not required to keep watchmen at public crossings except when crossing is peculiarly or extraordinarily dangerous. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Shockley (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 716.

There is no legal duty to provide a watchman at a crossing, unless such crossing is so peculiarly dangerous that an ordinarily prudent person could not use it with safety. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Zumwalt (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1030.

Railway companies should maintain a flagman in towns and cities at crossings which are unusually dangerous or attended with more than ordinary hazard, though there is no ordinance or statute requiring it. Tisdale v. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 133.

The proper test for determining the question of negligence in not maintaining a flagman at a crossing is not the population of a town or city, but whether the crossing is unusually dangerous and attended with more than ordinary hazard. Id.

Where a valid city ordinance requires a flagman at a railroad crossing, it is negligence as a matter of law on the part of the railroad company to fail to comply with such ordinance, and if such failure is the proximate cause of an injury to one using the crossing, the railroad company is liable. Baker v. Hodges (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 844.

A railway company's duty to keep a flagman at a public highway crossing only arises where the crossing can be said to be attended with extra hazard or unusual danger, which depends upon the extent of the use of the crossing and the surrounding circumstances. Id.

40. Care in running trains in general.—Instruction that the law requires those in charge of trains to use "great care and prudence" in operating them, so as to avoid injury, held erroneous in requiring a higher degree of care on the part of the railroad than is required by law. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Luten (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 159.

42. Lights, signals and lookouts from trains or cars.—Railroad company's duty to exercise due care at crossings includes duty of looking out for any traveler in using crossing, and in using means of avoiding injury. Lyon v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 995.

A place on a railroad track where persons on foot and in vehicles habitually crossed, with the knowledge and without the objection of a railroad, for a number of years, and where its employes operating its train might expect persons to be at any time of the day or night, imposed upon the company the duty to give statutory signals. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Douthit (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 201.

44. Rate of speed.—In action for death of plaintiff's decedent struck by train at crossing, negligence might be predicated on speed of train, although place of accident was in country, and there was no statute regulating speed; it being duty of defendant to exercise ordinary care in regard thereto. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Luten (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 909.

Whether an ordinance limiting the speed of trains to 10 miles an hour applied to the receiver was immaterial, where the trial judge found as a fact that the receiver was negligent in operating the train at the rate of speed at which it was operated over a crossing; and such finding was supported by the evidence. Baker v. Hodges (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 844.

47. Precautions as to persons seen at or near crossings—In general.—A flagman on a train backing towards crossing, who sees the imminence of the danger of collision with an approaching automobile, and realizes that the automobile will not stop before reaching track, must exercise ordinary care to use every reasonable means in his power to prevent collision by stopping the train. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Wentzel (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 710.

Trainmen have a right to presume that person approaching track is in full possession of his senses, and will make proper use of them, and are not bound to anticipate that he will be negligent. Id.

A brakeman on the rear of a train backing toward a crossing, on discovering that an automobile will go upon the tracks, must exercise ordinary care to use all means at his command to avert collision, but he is not bound at all hazards to use all the means at his command. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Shockley (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 716.

It is the duty of a railroad engineer to use the facilities at hand to prevent a collision either by stopping or lessening its speed or by giving some warning of its approach when he can reasonably infer that an approaching automobile will likely undertake to cross the track, and he has no right to wait until absolutely certain that the driver is going into a place of danger. Hines v. Arrant (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 767.

49. Contributory negligence of person injured—Care in going on or near tracks in general.—Negligence of the driver of a private vehicle in approaching a railroad crossing is not ordinarily chargeable to other occupants of the vehicle while riding at his invitation or with his consent. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 277; Lyon v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 995.

Want of ordinary care on part of one riding with another in his automobile as mere guest would be measured by whether he failed in his duty to keep a lookout and warn his companion operating automobile when he discovered approach of train at crossing. Lyon v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 995.

Where it does not appear that passenger in wagon was in any respect responsible for acts of driver, driver's negligence in going upon interurban railroad's crossing cannot be imputed to passenger unless it was sole cause of injury. Southern Traction Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 150.

The act of a person going upon a railroad track at a public crossing, or where the railroad has expressly or impliedly licensed the act, is not negligence per se. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Douthit (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 201.

Passenger in overcrowded jitney car held not, as a matter of law, contributorily negligent in becoming a passenger in the car and remaining therein while approaching a crossing, submitting herself to care and custody of driver. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Wentzel (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 710.

Such passenger must use ordinary care to avoid injury, though the driver's negligence is not imputable to him. Id.

Where plaintiff and her husband going to the city on business, accepted an invitation from a brother-in-law to ride in his automobile, as he was taking his sister to the city, the driver and plaintiff's husband were not engaged in a joint undertaking so as to render his negligence imputable to them. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 277.

50. — Care required of children and others under disability.—If boy of 10 years, injured at railroad crossing, acted with prudence that child of his age, intelligence, and experience would use under same circumstances, he was not guilty of contributory negligence. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 674.

That automobile driver approaching crossing was under the influence of intoxicants would be a fact that jury might consider in determining whether he was guilty of contributory negligence, but it would not of itself convict him of such negligence. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 281.

52. — Duty to stop, look, and listen.—Where passengers in automobile approaching railroad crossing were warned by bell that car or cars were approaching in time to have caused driver to stop, and also could have seen approaching car in time, they were negligent, so that railroad was not liable to them despite any negligence of motor-man. Sellers v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 397.

One approaching railroad crossing is required, in the exercise of ordinary care, to look and listen for approaching train before attempting to cross track. Beaumont, S. L. & W. Ry. Co. v. Myrick (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 935.

If decedent approached crossing without looking or listening, and if, by so doing, he would have seen or heard train in time, and if a man of ordinary prudence would have looked or listened, he was guilty of contributory negligence proximately causing his death. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Harrington (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 685.

A driver of an ambulance, who failed to use ordinary care to discover the approach of a train before he drove his ambulance so near the railroad track as to render it impossible to stop and prevent the collision, was guilty of contributory negligence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Houston Undertaking Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 84.

Generally the failure of one about to go over a public railroad crossing to look and listen does not of itself constitute negligence as a matter of law. Trochta v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 218 S. W. 1038.

Failure to look and listen at a railroad crossing may be treated as conclusively showing contributory negligence when the undisputed facts show that the failure to use such precaution was an inexcusable act of carelessness of which no person of ordinary prudence would have been guilty. Hines v. Arrant (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 767.

Failure of an automobilist to look and listen before crossing a railroad track is not, under all circumstances, contributory negligence. Hines v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 889.

53. — Duty where view or hearing obstructed.—See Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Harrington (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 685.

In an action for injuries in collision between a motortruck and a train running at an excessive speed without giving the statutory signal, where plaintiff looked first to the right and then to the left as he passed the last obstruction, and the evidence was undisputed that had he looked first to the left he could have avoided the collision, held, that he was not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law. Hines v. Messer (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 611.

An automobilist, who was traveling 12 miles an hour as he went upon a crossing, where he was struck by a passenger train traveling at 18 miles an hour, was negligent as a matter of law, where the view of the crossing was obstructed. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Wilkerson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 574.

Driver of a motortruck is not required to stop his truck and get out and walk on to a main track at a crossing, where view is obstructed by standing cars, to see whether or not a train is approaching. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Zumwalt (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1080.

It was not contributory negligence as a matter of law to approach a railroad crossing in an automobile at a speed of 12 miles an hour, though the view of approaching trains was greatly obstructed, and the automobile driver was familiar with the crossing, where he knew that trains were not operated over the crossing more than once a day, and sometimes not oftener than once a week, and he testified that he was looking and listening for trains. Payne v. Wallis (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 1114.

54. — Knowledge of danger.—One crossing a railroad track must exercise some degree of care for his own safety, being charged with knowledge that a railroad track is a dangerous place, even at a public highway. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gaddis (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 895.

55. — Reliance on precautions on part of railroad company.—Where deceased, though warned by flagman, attempted to cross in front of a train running at a speed in excess of that fixed by ordinance, he was guilty of contributory negligence, and no recovery could be had on the theory that he could assume the railroad was not violating the ordinance. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gaddis (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 895.

While as a general rule reliance on due care by the railroad company's servant does not excuse negligence by a person crossing the track, the jury may find absence of negligence, where the pedestrian saw a train standing near the crossing, and relied on notice of starting the train by ringing a bell or blowing the whistle. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Price (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 628.

While persons using a railway crossing have the right to expect that the law requiring signals will be obeyed, this will not excuse them for failure to use care. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Pearson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 708.

58. — Crossing near approaching trains or cars.—Railroad held not liable for death of auto driver who drove on crossing when if not negligent he must have seen headlight and known train was approaching, unless negligence of railroad caused him to place himself in such peril as to produce terror incapacitating him from acting normally. Baker v. Collins (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 519.

59. — Acts in emergencies.—It was not negligence for plaintiff to leave in his automobile, a violin, which was destroyed with the car when the latter, stuck on a railroad crossing, was demolished by a train. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 754.

61. Proximate cause of injury.—Negligence of railroad in failing to keep flagman at crossing was proximate cause of injuries to boy when he backed into passing freight train, in endeavor, as he claimed, to avoid another engine approaching on another track. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 674.

If one is guilty of negligence in attempting to cross a railroad, and is killed by an approaching train, the negligence is the proximate cause of the death. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Harrington (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 685.

Where the injury to plaintiff as the result of her negligence in proceeding on a railroad crossing could have been anticipated, such negligence, as a matter of law, is the proximate cause. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Pearson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 708.

The failure of the conductor of a freight train waiting on a passing track at a highway crossing for a passenger train to pass to station a member of the crew at the crossing as a flagman held the proximate cause of an injury to one struck by the train. Baker v. Hodges (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 844.

62. Injury avoidable notwithstanding contributory negligence.—Where train crew discovered peril of decedent negligently attempting to cross ahead of train in his automobile, road came under new duty to use means reasonably at hand or within its power to prevent collision and decedent's death. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Sloman (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 321.

In such case road was not liable for death unless after discovering peril it could have avoided collision by proper use of means at hand. Id.

In action against railroad for death in crossing collision, where issue of discovered peril intervened on trial, all issues of original negligence became immaterial. Id.

Where railroad train crew discovered peril of decedent, who was about to attempt crossing in front of train in his automobile, use of danger signals, such as continuous ringing of bell, blowing of whistle, and also checking speed of train, were within road's new duties. Id.

The principle of last clear chance has no application in the absence of actual knowledge by defendant of danger. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 696.

Plaintiff whose automobile stuck on a railroad crossing and was demolished by a train, though the engineer had actually seen it in time to stop by using proper means, could recover from the railroad, even if he had been a trespasser on the track, which he was not. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 754.

If an engineer, discovering the peril of a driver approaching track, fails to exercise ordinary care to avoid injury, the railroad is liable, notwithstanding the driver's contributory negligence. Trochta v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 218 S. W. 1038.

Where the engineer failed to sound whistle after discovering the peril of a driver, and where such negligence was the proximate cause of the injury, railroad was liable, notwithstanding the driver's contributory negligence. Id.

The test of liability for injury to one who negligently drives upon a crossing is not whether the engineer on discovering the peril did what he thought proper in the emergency to avoid the collision, but whether he did what a man of ordinary prudence would have done under the circumstances, he being required to exercise ordinary care proportionate to the danger. Id.

The failure of occupants of an automobile to indicate to the motorman of an approaching interurban car that they heard his warning whistle does not show that he knew they were in peril, so that he should have stopped or checked his car, where the speed of the automobile was such that he inferred it would stop before going on the crossing. Galveston-Houston Electric Ry. Co. v. Patella (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 615.

Where a person is discovered in a perilous position at a crossing, the trainmen are only required to use ordinary care in the use of the means at hand consistent with the safety of the train, its crew and passengers, to avoid injury. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Pearson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 708.

If there are facts to sustain a finding of negligence, the question of negligence remains the principal question to be submitted, and it is not removed from the case by the issue of discovered peril. Hines v. Foreman (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 630.

The doctrine of "discovered peril" permits recovery, notwithstanding contributory negligence, if the defendant saw the danger in time to prevent the injury by the use of ordinary care and failed to do so, but the doctrine does not permit defendant to avoid liability for primary negligence by showing that he made reasonable efforts to avert injuries after discovering the dangerous situation caused by such negligence. Id.

The doctrine of discovered peril involves the exposed condition brought about by the plaintiff's negligence; the actual discovery by defendant's agents of plaintiff's perilous situation in time to avert, by use of all means at their command, commensurate with their own safety, injury to him, and the failure thereafter to use such means. Baker v. Shafter (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 349.

64. Actions for injuries—Pleading, including issues, proof and variance.—In action against railroad for injuries to passengers in automobile struck at crossing by railroad's motorcar court properly overruled plaintiff's motion to exclude evidence as to crossing bell maintained by railroad which pleaded contributory negligence. Sellers v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 397.

67. — Sufficiency of evidence.—In action against interurban railroad for injuries in collision, evidence held not to show as matter of law that negligence of driver of wagon in which plaintiff rode was sole cause of collision. Southern Traction Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 150.

In action for injuries to 10 year old boy at railroad crossing when he stepped back into passing freight train, as he claimed, to avoid switch engine on other track, in view of age of boy, evidence held sufficient to support finding acquitting him of contributory negligence. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 674.

In such action, evidence held to show boy stopped and stood between two tracks to let switch engine go by, and, in attempting to get out of its way, backed into freight train behind. Id.

Evidence held to show the boy must have known freight train was passing behind him when he stepped backward into it, so that railroad's failure to keep bell at crossing could not have been proximate cause of injury. Id.

In an action for injuries received in crossing accident, evidence held sufficient to support finding that defendant's train was running at the rate of 18 miles an hour. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harling (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 207.

In action for injuries to automobile stuck on crossing evidence held to justify finding that engineer's negligence was direct and proximate cause of injury; car having been on tracks by accident over which plaintiff had no control. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 754.

Evidence held to sustain finding that automobile driver injured in collision at crossing was not contributorily negligent by failing to look and listen before attempting to cross track. Beaumont, S. L. & W. Ry. Co. v. Myrick (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 935.

In an action for death of driver of automobile truck struck by a train at a crossing, evidence held insufficient to show that driver was guilty of contributory negligence. Schaff v. Merchant (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 970.

In an action for damages to an ambulance in collision with a train at a crossing, evidence held sufficient to support a finding that plaintiff's driver was guilty of contributory negligence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Houston Undertaking Co. (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 84.

Conflicting evidence upon the issue of plaintiff having reduced the speed of his automobile to 6 miles an hour within 30 feet of the track held sufficient to sustain the verdict against defendant. Hines v. Messer (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 611.

Evidence as to whether defendant's employes operating train discovered that plaintiff's team was in danger of being struck in time to have avoided a collision by the use of the means at their command, and failed to exercise reasonable care and diligence to stop the train, held to justify a finding for plaintiff. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Roach-Manigan Paving Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1017.

In an action for the death of an automobile driver, evidence held not to show that the interurban crossing at which the accident occurred was one of special danger, though it was in a small incorporated town, and there was some obstruction to the view, so that it was error to admit evidence that there was no watchman or automatic crossing warning maintained there. Galveston-Houston Electric Ry. Co. v. Patella (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 615.

Testimony by several witnesses that they did not hear crossing signals, though they could and would have heard them if they had been given, though negative in character, is sufficient to support a special verdict that the signals were not given against testimony of the employes and other witnesses that the whistle and bell were sounded as required by statute. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 277.

In an action for death at a railroad crossing, a finding that deceased was not guilty of contributory negligence held so against the weight of the evidence as to be clearly wrong. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Wagner (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 377.

In an action for damages to a truck struck at a crossing where structures and cars obstructed the view and hearing, evidence held sufficient to sustain the finding of the jury that plaintiff was not guilty of contributory negligence. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Zumwalt (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1080.

In an action for damages to a truck struck at a crossing, a finding that the railroad was negligent in not having a flagman at the crossing at the time held sustained by evidence. Id.

In an action for the death of plaintiff's wife and son, who were killed when an automobile the wife was driving was struck by a train, a finding exonerating the wife of contributory negligence held so contrary to the great preponderance of the evidence as to show prejudice and necessitate reversal. Hines v. Roan (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1070.

Evidence in action for collision of train with auto truck held not to conclusively show that the driver saw the train in time to stop before going on the crossing. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Merchant (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 327.

On the issue of contributory negligence of deceased, the jury had the right to consider the evidence most favorable for plaintiff from the position of deceased just before and at the moment of the collision, rejecting all evidence most favorable to defendant. Id.

A finding that the failure to ring the bell as a train approached a crossing was the proximate cause of a collision with an automobile cannot be disturbed, though there was a brakeman on the end of the car to give warning, where the evidence showed that the crossing was in such a deep cut, and the view thereof was so obstructed that it was doubtful whether the driver of the automobile could have been seen by the brakeman in time to prevent the collision. Payne v. Wallis (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 1114.

68½. — Damages.—A verdict for $3,000 held not excessive where a man 45 years old was injured in the kidneys and both legs resulting in piles and Bright's disease, in consequence of which he could live but a few years. Texas Midland R. R. v. Combs (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1178.

Minor or adult suing for personal injuries is entitled to recover such sum as would, in jury's opinion, compensate him in items sued for if paid in cash at time of trial. Southern Traction Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 150.

Elements of damage recoverable by plaintiff from interurban railroad which injured him at crossing were physical and mental pain suffered, or which might be suffered, and any impairment in capacity to labor and earn money. Id.

Value of plaintiff's horse just prior to accident at defendant's railroad crossing, and its value subsequent to accident after reasonable time had elapsed within which injury might have developed was not correct measure of damages. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. King (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1112.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain the jury's finding that plaintiff's injuries were permanent. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harling (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 207.

Where it was shown that plaintiff had a life expectancy of 15 or 16 years, was permanently injured, totally disabled from performing profitable labor, and for a number of years up until about 2 years previous to injury had earned from $5,000 to $10,000 per year, a verdict for $20,000 is not excessive. Id.

The true measure of damages for injury to automobile was the difference in the market value immediately before and immediately after the accident. Beaumont, S. L. & W. Ry. Co. v. Myrick (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 935.

VII. INJURIES TO PERSONS ON OR NEAR TRACKS

71. Right to go on or near track—Customary use of track.—Where a railroad habitually placed cars upon a commercial track to be there moved by warehouse employes for unloading, such an employe engaged in moving cars was not a trespasser or licensee upon the track, but an invitee, as to whom it owed ordinary care to keep its track in safe condition. McLain v. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 292.

In an action for death on railroad track at a point habitually used by the public, the law of assumed risk does not apply. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Douthit (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 201.

If the portion of a roadbed of a railway company has been commonly and habitually used for a long time by the public as a footpath, with the knowledge and acquiescence of the company, it is considered as having licensed the public to use such portion of its roadbed for that purpose. Id.

73. Care required as to licensees.—A railroad owes a mere licensee upon its tracks the duty to exercise ordinary care to avoid injuring him, including the duty to keep a proper lookout to discover his presence on the track and to give warning of the approach of a train. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Douthit (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 201.

74. Care required as to trespassers.—It is the duty of a railroad to exercise care not to kill a trespasser or a drunken person. Baker v. Loftin (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 159.

Instruction that railroad company owed a trespasser no duty until his position of peril was discovered was erroneous. Frick v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 198.

A railroad is guilty of actionable negligence in failing to exercise ordinary care to discover and avoid injuring persons on the track at such places and upon such occasions as one of ordinary prudence would expect to find them, and whether such persons are trespassers or rightfully upon the track makes no difference, apart from issues of contributory negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Douthit (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 201.

75. Frightening animals near railroad.—A railroad company is liable for injuries caused by a team on a neighboring road becoming frightened, if such injury is occasioned by unusual and unnecessary noise made by the train. Baker v. Galbreath (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 626.

Where a frequently traveled road is near a railroad, the company owes the duty not to make any unnecessary and unusual noise of a character calculated to frighten a team, though the company's employes are unaware of the presence of the team. Id.

Blowing whistles and making noise being a necessary result of operating trains, those in charge of them are under no obligation to look for teams, which might become frightened by the noise even though such teams be upon public roads. Id.

76. Defects in roadbed, tracks or equipment.—A mere licensee walking upon any part of a railroad's right of way set apart for the maintenance of track and operation of trains, must take such right of way as he finds it, and in the absence of invitation by the railroad it owes him no duty to repair defects or light the way, though it knows such use is being made of such way by the public and fails to object, and though persons using it are doing so to reach a station to become passengers or to travel from stations after alighting from trains. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 822.

78. Articles projecting, falling or thrown from trains.—Where automobile struck an iron bar extending from the side of a railroad car, the door of which had been left open after the car was unloaded, it was the duty of railroad company to exercise ordinary care to prevent the car, or any portion thereof, from injuring pedestrians or persons riding in the street adjacent to the tracks. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ristine (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 515.

79. Mode of running trains or cars.—A licensee on a lumber company's tramroad assumes all risks growing out of the operation of a train thereon with the tender in front of the engine. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Scurlock (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 975.

80. Signals and lookouts—In general.—A duty of reasonable lookout, varying according to circumstances, to discover infants near or on the track, devolves upon train operatives. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 178.

In action for death of child killed on track, negligence being alleged both as to lookout and permitting bushes and weeds on side of track, obstructing train operatives' lookout, the condition of the right of way was important only as an incident affecting the question whether proper lookout was kept. Id.

That the fireman, engineer, and brakeman failed to keep a lookout for a licensee, or to see him until too late, and failed to give proper signals, held to show negligence of trainmen. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Gober (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 305.

81. — Persons entitled to benefit of signals and lookouts.—When a trespasser, injured by a train, is a child or other person incapable of being charged with negligence, the company is liable for injury for failure of the operatives of the trains to exercise ordinary care to keep a lookout. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Haywood (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 347.

A railroad company must at all times exercise ordinary care to discover persons on its tracks, even though they be trespassers, and in the absence of contributory negligence is responsible for damages to them from its negligence in this respect. Id.

82. — Places for giving signals or keeping lookout.—If ordinary care would require a railroad to give warning of the approach of its trains by the blowing of whistles and the ringing of bells, at a place on the track habitually used by the public, failure to give such warning would be actionable negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Douthit (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 201.

83. Rate of speed.—In the absence of statutory regulations or special circumstances, a railroad company may run its trains at any speed without being chargeable with negligence. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Haywood (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 347.

A railroad company cannot be charged with negligence merely because of the speed of its train near a pumping station on its grounds, there being no crossing there, and it not being a place for stopping, merely because on the grounds, at a place in a sense apart from the tracks, the pumper lived with his family; the country being level and the tracks visible for a long distance. Id.

84. Violation of ordinance as negligence.—A railway company may violate an ordinance by permitting the space between its tracks in the street to become dangerous to vehicles, and yet not be liable for injuries if such violation is not the proximate cause of the injuries. Schaff v. Hollin (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 279.

The violation of an ordinance limiting the speed of a railroad train to six miles an hour, attended with injury to one near the track as a consequence thereof, is negligence per se. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cook (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 539.

85. Precautions as to persons seen on or near tracks—In general.—Where operatives of a train discovered presence of a trespasser on tracks in a perilous position, they are only required to exercise ordinary care in use of all means within their power consistent with safety of train to avoid injuring him, and are not required to do everything in their power to stop the train. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. McGill (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 338.

When trainmen, discovering object on track, in the exercise of proper care, did not recognize it as a human being, it was not their duty to stop the train until they discovered that it was a man. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. McGill (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 699.

86. Right to presume that person will leave track or avoid danger.—Rule that those in charge of trains have right to presume that persons walking on track will observe usual danger signals and seek place of safety has no application when those in charge of cars know or have good ground for knowing that for some reason warnings were not heard or will not be observed. Southern Traction Co. v. Rogan (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1135.

89. Contributory negligence of person injured—Care required of persons on or near tracks in general.—A person was not guilty of contributory negligence in going upon a railroad track at a point habitually used by the public, where there was no other convenient way of reaching his destination, or where there was another convenient way, but he had no knowledge of it. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Douthit (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 201.

It is not the law that a licensee using a railroad track as a passageway because it is accompanied with some danger, by that fact alone and as a matter of law, is guilty of contributory negligence. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Gober (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 305.

Contributory negligence is a defense in an action for injuries through failure, of trainmen to use ordinary care to discover the person injured on the track, and to avoid infliction of injury. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Watts, 110 Tex. 106, 216 S. W. 391.

One lying down on a railroad track is guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law, unless his presence is accounted for and explained. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Boyett (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 669.

When a trespasser on a railroad track injured by a train is accountable for his own acts, the fact that he has exposed himself to the danger is conclusive evidence of his negligence, and defeats recovery. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Haywood (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 347.

90. — Care required of children and others under disabilities.—One lying down on a railroad track by reason of disease, mental or physical, is not guilty of contributory negligence. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Boyett (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 669.

A railroad's section foreman, knowing the schedules of trains, by drinking to the point of stupor and falling asleep on the track in the evening, when he was passing along on his own affairs in the railroad's hand car, at a time when a train was about due to pass, was guilty of negligence contributing to his death when struck. Baker v. Loftin (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 195, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 159.

That a child escapes the watchfulness of parents and gets on a railroad track is not conclusive proof of failure in their duty to exercise ordinary care to prevent it from going into danger, which would prevent a recovery for its death. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Haywood (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 347.

92. — Knowledge of danger.—The doctrine of assumption of risk, even if applying to anything else than personal risks of the servant, could not prevent recovery by employé, living with his family on railroad, for death of his child, killed on the track through negligence of train operatives in not keeping a proper lookout; the negligence to which the risk was incident not being known by the employé till the very moment of the accident. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Haywood (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 347.

93. — Reliance on precautions on part of railroad company.—Failure to anticipate negligence on the part of another is not negligence, and so one riding on a gasoline motorcar on defendant's track is not negligent in failing to anticipate that other motors might be operated in the dark without any light. Hines v. Parsons (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1027.

94. — Acts in emergencies.—Where plaintiff was hemmed in between the wheels of a wagon hitched to a horse, which was frightened at approaching train, his attempt to escape by his only avenue across the railroad track was not contributory negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cook (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 539.

Where one acts to save another from imminent danger brought about by the negligence of a third person, the rule of ordinary care is not applied to his act, but he is only precluded from recovering from such third person for his injury in such attempted rescue if he acted rashly under the circumstances. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Haywood (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 347.

95. Proximate cause of injury.—Failure of train operatives to keep proper lookout is proximate cause of death of infant near the track only when proper lookout would have prevented the death. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 178.

Where child killed on railroad track was not discernible by train operatives at any time before she reached a point within five or six feet of the track, and then only when the train, running about 25 miles an hour, was about 160 steps away, the death was not proximate result of negligent failure of operatives to keep lookout. Id.

In action for death of trespasser run down by defendant's train, instruction that if the engineer, after discovering deceased and knowing his position of peril, exercised ordinary care to avoid striking deceased, verdict should be for defendant, was improperly refused. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. McGill (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 338.

For the negligent speed of a railroad train to be the proximate cause of an injury to one near the track it is not necessary that the operators of the train should have anticipated injury occurring in the particular manner it did occur, but it is sufficient that they should have anticipated that some injury might occur. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cook (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 539.

Where plaintiff's peril could have been seen in time to have stopped a train running at a lawful rate of speed the jury may infer that the train operatives would have performed their duty to keep a reasonable lookout, and have discovered his peril, so that the speed was the proximate cause of the injury. Id.

96. Injury avoidable notwithstanding contributory negligence.—For one walking on railroad tracks to come within doctrine of discovered peril requiring those in charge of trains to exercise care, it is not necessary that pedestrian should be in actual danger; it being sufficient if it is apparent that he is about to enter into a perilous situation. Southern Traction Co. v. Rogan (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1135.

Where those operating a locomotive discovered a hack standing too close to the track at a station, and failed to use every means consistent with the safety of the train and its operatives to avoid collision, the railroad company is liable notwithstanding contributory negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 696.

Though wife of railroad section foreman was negligent in going upon bridge with her husband, where they were caught by a train and forced to seek to escape by retracing their steps, which resulted in wife's death, railroad was liable; engineer and fireman having failed to exercise due care to avoid injuring wife after discovering peril. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. House (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 358.

To recover for death of an intoxicated person on the track, on the theory of breach of duty imposed by discovery of his peril, it is essential to show, not merely that those in charge of engine by exercise of reasonable care might have acquired a knowledge of his peril in time to avoid injury, but that they actually possessed it. Baker v. Loftin (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 195, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 159.

An instruction that the defendant railway company owed the deceased no duty, except to exercise ordinary care in the use of all means within its power, consistent with the safety of the train and the people thereon, to avoid injuring deceased after his peril was discovered, is not erroneous as requiring the trainmen to exercise more than ordinary care. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. McGill (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 699.

102. Actions for injuries—Sufficiency of evidence.—In action for death on the track, evidence held sufficient to sustain a verdict for plaintiff. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 357.

Evidence held sufficient to show that engineer could have reasonably anticipated that deceased might fall into a cattle guard and that engine might overtake him before he reached street crossing. Id.

Evidence that deceased had discovered approaching train and ran along a track towards a cattle guard and crossing tended to show contributory negligence. Id.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain a jury's finding that operatives of defendant's locomotive discovered that plaintiff's intestate's horses had backed his hack upon the track about 150 feet ahead of the train, and failed to use the means at their command to avoid injury. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 696.

In action for injuries received upon the unexpected moving of a train while plaintiff was attempting to cross between tender and coal car, evidence held insufficient to raise issue whether brakeman upon seeing plaintiff knew train was likely to move, and whether, if he had so known, he could have prevented train from moving. Freeman v. Huffman (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 819.

In an action for death on defendant's track, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that the company had knowingly permitted the public to use its roadbed at the point where the accident occurred. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Douthit (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 201.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that the deceased was not sitting or lying on the track when struck, although nobody saw the accident. Id.

In an action for death at a point upon a railroad track habitually used by the public, evidence held to warrant a finding that deceased was not guilty of contributory negligence. Id.

In such action evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that the servants operating the train failed to keep a proper lookout to discover the deceased. Id.

In such action evidence held to warrant a finding that the negligent failure to keep a lookout and to give warning was the proximate cause of the accident. Id.

In section foreman's action for death of his wife, struck as she was escaping from bridge on which they had been caught by approaching train, evidence held sufficient to support finding that engineer and fireman did not use due care to avoid injuring plaintiff's wife after they discovered her peril. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. House (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 358.

Evidence held to support a finding that a licensee using railroad tracks stopped, looked, and listened before going upon the track where he was injured. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Gober (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 305.

Evidence held to show that a pedestrian using tracks of a switchyard was a licensee at the time of his injury. Id.

In an action for injuries to a pedestrian struck by a train, running faster than permitted by city ordinance, evidence that a train running at the lawful speed could have been stopped after the plaintiff's danger was seen, or that plaintiff could have cleared the track, is sufficient to warrant the jury's finding that the negligence was the proximate cause of the injury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cook (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 539.

In an action for the death of one lying on a railroad track evidence held insufficient to sustain a finding that he was not guilty of contributory negligence. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Boyett (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 669.

In an action for death, evidence held insufficient to support finding, necessary to road's liability on theory of discovered peril, that fireman and engineer saw decedent and knew of his peril in time to avoid injuring him, and yet failed to use all means within their power. Baker v. Loftin (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 195, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 159.

In action for death on a railroad track, evidence held sufficient to sustain a verdict in favor of plaintiff on a theory of discovered peril, notwithstanding the positive testimony of trainmen in defendant's favor. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. McGill (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 699.

103. — Damages.—It was not error to refuse to instruct at defendant's request that, if railroad was guilty of negligence proximately causing the flagman's death, and the flagman himself was guilty of negligence proximately contributing thereto, the damages should be reduced as provided by Acts 1909 (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 10, where the court had directed a verdict for the defendant if the jury found the flagman guilty of contributory negligence, which was a charge more favorable to defendant than the charge which was refused. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Sutor, 110 Texas 250, 218 S. W. 1034.

$8,000 held not excessive where plaintiff, 34 years old, struck by defendant's railroad train, sustained a fracture of the leg and suffered considerable pain, his earning capacity was decreased to the extent of over $5,000, and the injury might be permanent. Baker v. Streater (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1039.

IX. FIRES

108. Defects in construction of engines.—If spark arresters used by railroad had proven to be inadequate during a high wind, it was its duty to secure better ones, or to use reasonable diligence to protect an adjacent landowner, from fire started by igniting grass and weeds on its right of way, in some other manner. Quanah A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Stearns (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 857.

110. Combustibles on railroad property.—Where hot winds dried grass on railroad's right of way, rendering it combustible, and, on account of velocity of wind, it was dangerous to attempt to burn it off, duty to plow or burn fireguards to protect adjacent lands rested on railroad rather than landowner. Quanah A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Stearns (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 857.

113. Contributory negligence of owner of property—Combustibles near railroads.—Landowner adjoining railroad's right of way is not required to anticipate railroad's negligence in respect to setting fires, and has right to full enjoyment of his property for all lawful purposes, including growing of grass. Quanah A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Stearns (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 857.

That plaintiff had for several years stacked inflammable fodder so near a railroad track as to show contributory negligence gives no prescriptive right as against the railroad company to stack it there, nor does it lessen plaintiff's negligence in similarly stacking the fodder which burned. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 289.

117. Injury avoidable notwithstanding contributory negligence.—Knowledge by a railroad company that fodder is stacked near its tracks without protection from sparks does not render it liable under the doctrine of discovered peril for failure to use care to prevent the escape of sparks. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 289.

119. Contracts for exemption from liability.—Under contract whereby road leased site on right of way for grain and seed house, with limitation of liability, held, that road was not liable for destruction of seed house by fire set by burning cotton seed hulls from freight car delivered to house. Walling v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 232.

124. Actions for injuries by fire—Sufficiency of evidence.—In action for destruction of grass and growing timber on plaintiff's land, caused by a fire set out by defendant's locomotive, evidence held sufficient to support a verdict for plaintiff. Angelina County Lumber Co. v. Mast (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 360.

In an action for damages for burning a residence, evidence held sufficient to support a verdict on the theory that defendant's employes failed to exercise ordinary care in handling and operating a locomotive, allowing it to emit sparks, though equipped with a proper spark arrester. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 133.

Although it is necessary to trace fire to railroad, it is not necessary that evidence should exclude all possibility of another origin, but it is sufficient if all the facts and circumstances fairly warrant a conclusion that the fire did not originate from some other cause. Moose v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 645.

In an action for loss by fire of cotton stored on a platform established by carrier, evidence held insufficient to show that sparks from a passing engine or sparks from a cotton gin nearby caused the fire. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Triplett (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 305.

In an action for burning a barn, evidence held to support the conclusion that the fire originated from sparks emitted from engine, though the barn was 130 feet from the track. Hines v. Jumper (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 350.

125. — Damages.—The true measure of damages for the burning of grass is its reasonable market value at time of its destruction, but, if the grass has no market value at that point, the owner's measure of recovery would be the reasonable value of the grass to him, considering the use to which he was putting it. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Price (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 518; Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Word (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 902; San Antonio, U. & G. Ry. Co. v. Ernst (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 603.

Damages by fire, sustained by lessee from railroad of site for grain and seed house, on which lessee could not procure insurance on account of proximity of building used for storage of inflammable oils, held not within contemplation of parties or such as would naturally and possibly result from breach, and so too remote to be recovered from the road. Walling v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 232.

Where the grass on plaintiff's land was fired by railroad company, plaintiff is entitled to recover the highest market value for any purpose to which he might wish to subject the land or the grass, including the purpose of pasturage. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hapgood (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1040.

In suit against railroad for injuries to fruit and shade trees by fire, measure of plaintiff's damages held sum necessary to compensate him for being deprived of trees for intended use, rather than difference in value of land before and after injury. Stephenville, N. & S. T. Ry. Co. v. Baker (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 385.

In action for the negligent burning of grass in a pasture, a charge, permitting recovery for the cost of feed and expenses of caring for cattle, does not furnish a certain rule of damages, but the correct rule is to permit recovery for the value of the grass at the date of its destruction. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Word (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 902.

The measure of damages for the negligent burning of grass by a railroad company is its market value for any use or purpose for which it may be valuable to its owner, but in the event that it has no market value then the measure of damages is its value to its owner for any uses to which he may put it. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 430.

In an action for damages to a pasture caused by fire from a passing engine, the measure of damages was the difference in the value of the land because of the injury. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ellis (Sup.) 224 S. W. 471, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 160 S. W. 606.

Parties entitled to object.—The Director General of Railroads cannot complain of a judgment because it provides for execution against the railroad or the receiver in case the railroad property is returned to them, though they were not parties to the action, since those provisions of the judgment, if unauthorized, are void and do not affect its validity as against the Director General. Hines v. Robey (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 201.

For what debts railroad liable.—Petition against federal Director General of Railroads and receiver of a railroad for conversion of government bonds paid for by the owners, employés of the railroad, through monthly deductions from salary, held to state a cause of action against the Director General alone, and not to show the liability of the receiver. Chambers, Watson & Wilson v. Hines (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 200.

Art. 6621. [4545] Service of notice and how given.

See 1918 Supp., arts. 6016½-6016½c, as to newspaper publication instead of posting.

Art. 6623. [4547] When wages to be paid discharged employé.

Unconstitutional.—This article is special legislation, not protecting alike the interest of employer and employé, and is unconstitutional. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Wilson (App.) 19 S. W. 910.

See International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County, 246 U. S. 424, 38 Sup. Ct. 370, 62 L. Ed. 807; note under art. 6625.

Art. 6625. [4550] New corporation, in case of sale, may be formed, how.

Constitutionality.—The restriction upon a corporation organized to take over a sold-out railroad, under this and the preceding article, imposed by the Office-Shops Act (art. 6423), is not invalid, as imposing a burden upon commerce between the states, although the railroad is engaged in such commerce, since the burden, if any, is indirect. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County, 246 U. S. 424, 38 Sup. Ct. 370, 62 L. Ed. 807.

Duties and liabilities of purchaser of railroad in general.—Purchaser of railroad property and corporation organized to operate it held charged with contract made by receiver to establish for a valuable consideration division headquarters at particular town. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. City of Ennis (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 256.

Debts represented by notes were not "subsisting liabilities and claims" within this article, where debts and claims within such statute had been paid with money procured by giving the notes without any assignment of the claims or agreement that the lender should be subrogated to the rights of the creditors whose claims were paid with the borrowed money. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Concrete Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 718.

Indorsement of vouchers to bank, which advanced money to pay claims against railroad company of character mentioned in this article, constituted assignment of vouchers to bank, which in consequence became subrogated to right of original holders. Id.

Proceedings relating to claims.—That intervener in receivership proceedings failed to set up by amendment claim under this article, in addition to his claim of priority under doctrine of equity, held not to estop him, on doctrine of election of remedies, from setting up his statutory claim in subsequent suit. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Concrete Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 718.

Claims against a railroad company under this article, could not have been adjudicated in receivership proceedings had prior to the enactment of such statute, and therefore prior to the existence of the purchasing corporations. Id.

That claim under this article, could have been asserted by amendment of plea of intervention filed prior to enactment of such statute did not make determination of pleas adjudicata as to such claim. Id.

Evidence, in a suit to enforce against railroad property purchased from receiver a claim under this article, held to show that stockholders of old company received stock in or control over new company in consideration of their holdings in the old company. Id.

— Jurisdiction.—See art. 6626.

Location of offices.—Under this and the preceding article, and art. 6423, a new corporation could not move offices and shops already located, as it is subject to the "limitations imposed by law." International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County, 246 U. S. 424, 38 Sup. Ct. 370, 62 L. Ed. 807.

Art. 6626. [4551] Jurisdiction, etc.

Jurisdiction of state court.—Under this article, railroad company organized to operate railroad property acquired on sale by receiver appointed by federal court held estopped to assert jurisdiction of federal court to determine validity of contract of receiver. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. City of Ennis (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 256.

Reservation of jurisdiction in decree of federal court, wherein validity and priority of claims on principles of equity were determined, held not to preclude state court from passing on claim under the preceding article, against property sold by receiver. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Concrete Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 718.

Cited, Texas Trunk Ry. Co. v. Lewis, 81 Tex. 1, 16 S. W. 647, 26 Am. St. Rep. 776.

Suits—Parties.—Despite art. 3723, relating to deceased natural persons only, and having no application to dissolved corporations, under this article, a clear right is vested in the last secretary of a sold-out railway company and the sole surviving members of its last board of directors, as trustees of the property of the sold-out company, to maintain an action for its recovery, and, when they assert the validity of an execution sale and their rights as trustees, the sale is not open to challenge by a naked trespasser. Richardson v. Allison (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 252.

Art. 6635i. Extension of time to build branches; restoration of franchises, etc.—Any railway corporation chartered since the first day of January A. D. 1892, and which by its original charter or by amendment thereto, filed since said first day of January, A. #### Article 6637. [4560a] Authorized agents for the sale of tickets.

Authority of ticket agent.—Station agent of railroad, in circulating rumor plaintiff had stolen overcoat of newsboy on train, cannot be said to have acted as representative of railroad or within his employment. Beaumont, S. L. & W. Ry. Co. v. Daniels (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 481.

A station agent has no apparent authority to bind the railroad by a contract to board and lodge a mule which was part of a shipment and was injured while in the railroad's possession. Lancaster v. Futrell (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 805.

Railroad commission's powers.—See note to art. 6693.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

LIABLE FOR INJURIES TO EMPLOYÉS

Art. 6640. Liable for injuries to fellow-servants.	Art. 6646. No assumed risk where safety appliance not provided.
6641. Who are vice-principals.	6648. Liable for injury or death of employé.
6644. Contributory negligence a defense, except, etc.	6649. Contributory negligence, rule as to.
6645. When assumed risk not available as defense.	6650. Assumed risk, rule as to.
	6651. Contract changing liability void.

Article 6640. Liable for injury to fellow-servant.

Effect of statute in general.—Under this article, a railway shop laborer did not assume the risk of the negligence of his fellow servants in failing to render him proper assistance in lifting a heavy box onto a truck. Payne v. Harris (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 350.

What constitutes operating cars, etc.—Protection against the negligence of a fellow servant under this article, is not given those employed to operate a car, locomotive, or train, but to those who at the time of injury are actually engaged in the act or work of such operation. Houston Belt & Terminal Co. v. Glover (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 597.

One assisting in operating a derrick on a wrecking car used in unloading another car is not engaged in the "operation of a car," within this article. Id.

Interstate commerce.—The federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665) abolished the common-law doctrine of fellow servants. Wight v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 295; Cox v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. (Sup.) 222 S. W. 964, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Cox, 159 S. W. 1042.

Art. 6641. Who are vice-principals.

Constitutionality.—This article does not deny to railroads within the state the equal protection of the laws, so as to be invalid, under Const. U. S. Amend. 14. Campbell v. Cook (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 977.

Receivership.—This article applies to railroad operatives employed by the receiver of a railway corporation. Campbell v. Cook (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 977.

Art. 6644. Contributory negligence a defense, except, etc.

1. Application of the doctrine of contributory negligence in general.—An independent contractor guilty of negligence contributing to his injury through his employer's negligence is barred from recovery. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clement (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 407.

6. Inexperienced or youthful employé.—In action by infant for personal injuries received by reason of his acceptance of invitation of employé of defendant railway to help couple engines, in order to recover, it must be shown that the infant was not capable of appreciating the danger. Trinity Valley & N. Ry. Co. v. Scholz (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 224.

7. Reliance on care of master.—An employee has the right to assume that employer has exercised proper care with respect to providing a safe place to work and suitable and safe appliances for the work. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Smithers (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 637.

12. Knowledge of defects or dangers—Constructive notice.—As regards assumption of risk and contributory negligence, knowledge is presumed where the danger is so obvious that an ordinarily prudent person would have appreciated that it endangered his safety. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Butts (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 419.

14. Duty to discover or remedy defects or dangers—Duty to observe defects or dangers.—Where it was no part of a servant's duty to place standards in the sockets on flat cars on which rails were loaded, he was not required to use even ordinary care to ascertain whether the standards were in place. Hargrove v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 138.

15. — Reliance on care of master or fellow employés.—Employé has right to rely on the master's furnishing safe tools and appliances and a safe place to work, and need not use ordinary care to learn of defects and dangers therein. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Francis (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 342.

24. Dangerous operations and methods of work—In general.—An engineer on a wrecking car who started engine operating a crane to pull upright a wrecked box car upon signal by plaintiff foreman could not be guilty of negligence toward plaintiff, who was injured by a loose roof falling off the car, for he was doing the very act that the foreman directed him to do. Wight v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 295.

28. — Riding on trains, cars, or locomotives.—A switchman riding on the top of toolhouse on a car in a wrecking train, held not guilty of negligence contributing to his injuries when the engineer's act in increasing speed with a jerk threw him off. Baker v. Grace (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 299.

30. — Switching cars.—Where switchman attempted to board engine at the designated place on the footboard for another switchman, who had assumed plaintiff's station thereon, and was thrown and injured by the other's attempt to assume his proper station, held, that plaintiff was in the exercise of due care. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Lovick (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 283.

37. Compliance with commands or threats.—An employé who was ordered by his foreman to go upon a railroad water tank to pour cinders into it to stop leaks was not required to ascertain if the tank was safe. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Long (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 212.

39. Proximate cause of injury.—Where railroad's negligence was the proximate cause of the death of a section foreman on the track, at midnight with a motor car, it is liable notwithstanding that the foreman was negligent. Baker v. Loftin (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 159.

44. Sufficiency of evidence—In general.—Evidence held to support a finding that a servant relied on the supposed superior knowledge of a foreman as to the safety of picking up a live wire torn down by a wreck on defendants' track. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Wolkarte (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1023.

45. — Contributory negligence shown.—In action for injury to station agent, who, after steps had been removed, and while attempting to step from edge of a mixing trough to freight platform and to pull himself up by a railing on platform, fell back into a ditch which railroad was constructing, held, on the evidence, that agent was guilty of contributory negligence, proximately causing his injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Graham (Com. App.) 209 S. W. 399.

46. — Contributory negligence not shown.—In an action for the death of a section foreman killed while on the track at midnight with a motor, evidence held to sustain a finding that he was not drunk, or lying on the track to sleep or negligent. Baker v. Loftin (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 159.

In a railroad employé's action for injuries, due to a defective guard rail in the vestibule of a Pullman coach, a finding that plaintiff himself had adjusted the guard rail held not supported by the evidence. Blackman v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 412.

50. — Dangerous operations and methods of work.—Regarding contributory negligence of superintendent killed between cars, jury could say, he, seeing engine standing still, and switchmen working between cars, might, exercising proper care, have concluded engineer had been signaled, and would obey signal, not to move engine. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Howard (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1159.

Art. 6645. When assumed risk not available as defense.—That the plea of assumed risk shall not be available as a bar to recovery of damages in any suit hereafter brought in any court of this State against any corporation, receiver or other person, operating any railroad, interurban railway or street railway in this State, for the recovery of damages for the death or personal injury of any employé or servant caused by the wrong or negligence of such person, corporation or receiver; it being contemplated that while the employé does assume the ordinary risk incident to his employment he does not assume the risk resulting from any negligence on the part of his employer, though known to him.

Where, however, in any such suit, it is alleged and proven that such deceased or injured employee was chargeable with negligence in continuing in the service of any such corporation, receiver or person above named in view of the risk, dangers and hazards of which he knew, or must necessarily have known, in the ordinary performance of his duties, such fact shall not operate to defeat a recovery, but the same shall be treated and considered as constituting contributory negligence and if proximately causing or contributing to cause the death or injury in question it shall have the effect of diminishing the amount of damages recoverable by such employee, or his heirs or representatives in case of the employee's death, only in proportion to the amount of negligence so attributable to such employee. [Acts 1905, p. 386, § 1; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 100, § 1, amending art. 6645. Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

See Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Watson (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1177; Thornhill v. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 490.

Cited, Hines v. Bannon (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 684.

2. What law governs and interstate commerce.—The defense of assumed risk is available to the employing railroad under the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665), applicable where the injury was in interstate commerce. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clement (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 407; Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 665; Hargrove v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 188; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Drennan (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 691; Southern Pac. Co. v. Berkshire (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 323; Houston Belt & T. Ry. Co. v. Christian (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 816; Hines v. Bannon (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 684.

Under federal Employers' Liability Act, when the negligence does not amount to a violation of the Safety Appliance Acts, the defense of assumed risks at common law is left intact, and such defense may be set up in action for injuries on railroad turntable as against allegations that the handle was too short, there was insufficient light, the current was on in the electric turner, and that same was out of order. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1049.

State statutes abrogating defense of assumed risk are inapplicable to actions for injuries to railroad employés engaged in interstate commerce, federal statutes and decisions governing. Schaff v. Hendrich (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 543.

Federal Employers' Liability Act has not abrogated the defense of assumed risk under the common law. Id.

While the defense of assumed risk is eliminated by the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665) in cases of interstate commerce, where the violation by the carrier of the statute enacted for the safety of employés contributed to the injury in all other cases it is a complete bar. Southern Pac. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 554.

The defense of assumed risk is left available to railroad company by the federal Employers' Liability Act and amendments (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665), where a workman is injured by being knocked from a scaffold by a passing vehicle while painting a railroad bridge used by interstate trains. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gericke (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 668.

In an action under the Federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665) and the Safety Appliance Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8605-8623), testimony relating to contributory negligence and assumed risk is properly excluded. McAdoo v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 870.

Except in those cases where the defense of assumed risk is taken away by express provisions of the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665), that defense remains as it existed at common law before the act was passed. Southern Pac. Co. v. De la Cruz (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 108.

In an action under Federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665), for injuries caused by the railroad's violation of the Ash Pan Act (U. S. Comp. St. § 8624), the railroad could not defend on the plea of assumed risk or contributory negligence, in view of Federal Employers' Liability Act, § 4 (U. S. Comp. St. § 8660), and Employers' Liability Act 1908, §§ 1-4 (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8660). Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Smithers (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 637.

In action for an injury to an employee engaged in painting a bridge used in interstate commerce, the common-law doctrine of assumed risk, if supported by the facts, is a complete defense. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gericke (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 745.

3. Construction and application of statute.—In action against railroad by employé injured in handling heavy barrel unaided, plaintiff's requested charge on assumption of risk, where servant continued in employment and master was aware of danger, held an improper application of this article. Swann v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1131.

The rule of assumed risk in Texas is the same as it was known to the common law, except where abrogated or modified by statute. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gericke (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 668.

4. — Assumed risk merged in contributory negligence.—This article does not merge the defense of assumed risk into that of contributory negligence, the doctrine of comparative negligence founded on art. 6649, as to contributory negligence of railroad employé affecting recovery, not applying where plaintiff is barred from any recovery for injuries by assumption of risk. Swann v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1131.

5. — Risks assumed in general.—This article applies only to situation where there is defect in the appliance used or in surrounding conditions affecting employé's safety, and not to a case where the negligence claimed is in not having any appliances of any kind to facilitate the work. Swann v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1131.

Under this article, defense of assumed risk is not available against railroad section hand, injured in assisting to move motorcar from toolhouse onto the track, if the employer was guilty of negligence in failing to provide instrumentalities with which to do the work with reasonable safety, which was a proximate cause of the injury, though the employee knew of the defective and dangerous means provided, if the employer also knew thereof, or if the employer did not know thereof, unless a person of ordinary care with knowledge of the defect and danger would not have continued in the service. Olds v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 336.

This article is applicable to a suit for injuries resulting from a railway company's failure to furnish a shop laborer sufficient help in lifting heavy box; the term "defect," in the statute, including a "defective" force of men, a force of men less than required for the service. Payne v. Harris (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 350.

7. — Notice to or knowledge of employer.—Under the provision making the plea of assumed risk unavailable where the employer or his foreman knows the danger, risk of injury resulting from the fall of a lumber pile is not assumed where the foreman knew of the danger and promised to hold the pile up while the men were working under it. Lancaster v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 207.

8. — Prudence in continuing work.—The second subdivision of this article does not impair common-law rule that, when a person of ordinary prudence having such knowledge would not have continued in service, such employé, continuing in service, does assume the risk. Swann v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1131.

An instruction that employee did not assume risk if, with knowledge of defendant's negligence, he exercised ordinary care to avoid injury therefrom, would have been defective under subd. 2 of this article. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Smithers (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 637.

11. Nature and extent of risks assumed in general.—Issue raised by evidence of employé choosing unsafe way of doing work, when safe, suitable, and convenient way is available, is only that of contributory negligence, and not of assumption of risk. Southern Pac. Co. v. De la Cruz (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 428.

Assumed risk must be confined to the ground of negligence found warranting recovery, and it is immaterial to what extent the risks of independent grounds of negligence may have been assumed. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gericke (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 668.

15. Dangers incident to nature of work.—Dangers ordinarily incident to employment are those commonly and usually pertaining to or incident to it, which a reasonably prudent person might anticipate, and do not include danger by acts of negligence, unless habitual and known to the servant. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 614.

An employé assumes risks naturally and ordinarily incident to employment. Hargrove v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 188.

18. Defective or dangerous tools, machinery, appliances or places—Tracks and roadbeds.—Railroad employé, 26 years of age, intelligent, and experienced, having full knowledge of the uneven condition of roadway which caused his fall while between moving cars which he was uncoupling, held to have assumed, as a matter of law, the danger of the risk, precluding him from recovering damages under federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665). Hamm v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 345.

20. Dangerous operations and methods of work—In general.—The common-law defense of assumed risk, available under the federal act as distinguished from contributory negligence held presented by a showing that a railway blacksmith's helper received injuries to his thumbs by the falling of a trip hammer while he was using his hands, instead of tongs furnished, to place an iron in position under the hammer. Southern Pac. Co. v. De la Cruz (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 108.

21. — Operation of trains.—Impact of box cars being switched is a risk ordinarily incident to the work of a switchman, which he assumes, and he cannot recover for injuries caused by being wrenched while operating a brake on top of a box car by an impact of the force usual and ordinary in the switching business. Baker v. Beattie (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 653.

23. Insufficient force for work.—In action against railroad for injuries to servant while lowering pipe into well by rope, requested instruction that plaintiff could not recover if he knew assistance was inadequate, and yet undertook work of his own voltion, while ordinarily prudent person would not, held properly refused, as erroneous, in view of this article. Stephenville, N. & S. T. Ry. Co. v. Shelton (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 915.

29. Knowledge by servant of defect or danger—Necessity and effect in general.—Railroad employé engaged in interstate commerce, knowing that machinery is defective, the place of work unnecessarily dangerous, or that proper rules are not enforced, assumes risk thereof, unless he informs employer, who promises to correct conditions. Schaff v. Hendrich (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 543.

Injured employé is not excused from consequences of assumed risk because another servant also assumed same risk at same time, in absence of testimony that other as vice principal specifically commanded plaintiff servant to assist him in doing dangerous work, assuring him there was no danger. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clement (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 407.

32. — Constructive notice.—Plaintiff entering the services of the company assumed the risks and dangers incident to his employment which were obvious and known to him, or which he must necessarily, in discharge of his duties, have known of. Southern Pac. Co. v. Hazelbusch (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 268.

At common law a servant assumes, not only risks ordinarily incident to his employment, but also those arising from the negligence of the master, if he knows or in the proper discharge of his duties necessarily must have known of such negligence and of the dangers incident thereto. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1049.

To subject servant to defense of assumed risk, it is not necessary that he understand operation of a complicated machine, but only that he know the dangerous condition thereof, or should know it, in the exercise of reasonable care. Id.

An employé does not assume risk in consequence of employer's negligence, unless employé has knowledge thereof, or must necessarily have acquired knowledge thereof. Hargrove v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 188.

As regards assumption of risk and contributory negligence, knowledge is presumed where the danger is so obvious that an ordinarily prudent person would have appreciated that it endangered his safety. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Butts (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 419.

The servant has a right to assume that the master has discharged his duty in providing a safe working place, and does not assume the risks arising from master's failure to so do, unless he knows of such failure and the attendant risks, or in the ordinary discharge of his own duty must have necessarily acquired the knowledge. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Long (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 212.

A charge on assumed risk which imposes on the employee the duty of exercising ordinary care to discover danger due to the master's negligence is improper. Hines v. Collins (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 332.

A servant assumes the risks of dangers of which he has actual knowledge, and of such hazards as he should have learned by the exercise of ordinary care, but, in the absence of knowledge to the contrary, he may rely on the assumption that the master will do his duty, and is not under obligation to look out for the master's negligence. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Reichert (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 550.

33. — Continuing work with knowledge of danger.—Railroad employee who knew, or must have known, of railroad's negligence, and continued in the service, could not recover under Federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665), even though with knowledge of such negligence he exercised ordinary care to avoid the injury. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Smithers (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 637.

34. — Defective or dangerous appliances or places in general.—A roundhouse helper who had worked for over two years about engines and a turntable, assumed the risk of injury from conditions which had never changed during such time. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1049.

Railroad station employé, who drew truck loaded with trunks along a cement walk, knowing that walk had broken places in it, though lights had been turned off, so he could not see, held to have assumed risk of injury, when truck was jostled off on him. Hines v. Wicks (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 581.

35. — Cars and locomotives.—Where it was the duty of the master or his agent to remove any oil spilled on the top of the tank or tender of an engine, a servant could presume this had been done, and until he had been notified or acquired knowledge to the contrary, he does not assume the risk of slipping and falling from such cause. Southern Pac. Co. v. Hazelbusch (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 268.

Where employé, hoisting rails on flat cars, was required in haste, while the train was switching, to mount a car, and went upon a car without standards, so that rails fell about him and endangered him, absence of the standards, which were only a few inches tall, was not so plainly observable that he must be conclusively presumed to know of their absence. Hargrove v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 188.

Where railroad employé, after seeing a box car containing lumber jammed and jarred by other cars, proceeds to unload lumber and is injured by falling into open space over which lumber had slid because of impact, he cannot recover for injury, having assumed risk of working in the car after the jarring of the lumber. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Drennan (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 691.

Though railroad was negligent in failing to inspect car loaded with gasoline, and in representing to employé of refinery company, requested to repair leak, that it was loaded with unrefined naphtha, refinery company's employé assumed risk of injury where prior to time car exploded after he loosened dome cap he either learned it contained gasoline or something more dangerous. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clement (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 407.

Roundhouse hostler did not assume risk of working in cab with wet and greasy floor unless the grease and water and the consequent danger were so obvious that an ordinarily careful person in his situation would have observed the grease and water and appreciated the danger. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Smithers (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 637.

36. — Tracks and roadbed.—Though a bridge painter, working on a scaffolding over a highway, and who could not see approaching vehicles, knew that the scaffolding was too low to permit high-topped wagons to pass, so that he assumed the risk of injury from that defect, such knowledge does not show assumption of risk by him of his employer's failure to have watch kept if such watch was reasonably necessary for the employee's protection. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gericke (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 745.

An employee placed by his employer in a position where he could not guard himself against danger by any reasonable amount of care can assume that his employer had made such provision for his safety as is reasonably necessary and is not required to use even ordinary care to see whether this had been done, and he can therefore be held to have assumed the risk of the master's failure to take such precaution only when he knew it had not been taken or when in the ordinary discharge of his duty he must have acquired such knowledge. Id.

40. — Incompetency or negligence of fellow servants.—Where a railroad trucker assisted by his foreman in unloading bundles from a truck in a manner required by the foreman was injured by the foreman swinging his end of a bundle before the trucker was ready, and before it reasonably appeared so, there was no assumption of risk as to the foreman's negligence in swinging his end, as the nature of the act precluded knowledge or discovery thereof in time to have averted injury. Cox v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. (Sup.) 222 S. W. 964, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Cox, 159 S. W. 1042.

41. Inexperienced or youthful employé.—Where minor servant of railroad's receiver did not know of dangers of working on hand car under circumstances surrounding him at time he received his injuries, he did not assume the risk. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Lopez (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 192.

42. Obvious or latent dangers.—If a railroad was negligent in furnishing to its section foreman and his men an untempered hammer, a defect which, in the exercise of ordinary care, would not have come to the foreman's knowledge, the road cannot escape liability on theory the foreman assumed the risk. Hines v. Flinn (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 679.

43. Notice to or knowledge of master.—Where, after calling attention to possible danger, a servant, relying on his foreman's assurance of safety, proceeds to do work in a required manner, he cannot be charged with assumption of risk unless the danger is so obvious that an ordinarily prudent person would appreciate it, despite the assurance. Cox v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. (Sup.) 222 S. W. 964, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Cox, 159 S. W. 1042.

45. Compliance with commands.—In determining whether an engineer of a railroad wrecker, injured while complying with commands of his foreman, assumed the risk of injury because outriggers were not set out, the question is not whether the engineer used ordinary care in ascertaining whether outriggers were set out, but whether he had actual knowledge of the necessity for using them, or whether the omission was so plainly observable that he would be presumed to have known of it. Houston Belt & T. Ry. Co. v. Christian (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 816.

A railroad employé who, under foreman's orders to so do, went on top of water tank to pour cinders into it to stop leaks, without knowledge of the defective condition of the tank, did not assume the risk of injury by the collapse of the tank so as to prevent recovery under the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665). Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Long (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 212.

48. Concurrent negligence of master.—In general.—A servant does not assume the risk of his master's negligence, nor is he required to anticipate such negligence. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Estes (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1155.

An employee does not assume negligence of his employer as a risk ordinarily incident to his service. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gericke (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 745.

49. — Knowledge by servant of defect or danger.—Employé assumes risk of normal dangers not attributable to employer's negligence, but does not assume risk from defect attributable to employer's negligence until aware of such defect, or unless it is so plainly observable that he may be presumed to have known of it. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 665.

Under common-law doctrine of assumed risk, servant does not assume any risks or dangers arising from negligence of master of which he has no knowledge, but does assume risks caused by master's negligence of which he has prior knowledge. Hines v. Bannon (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 684.

Where the employer was derelict in his duty to a brakeman in operating a dump car in a particular method, and thereby imposed an extraordinary hazard upon the brakeman, he did not as a matter of law assume the risk, unless he was specifically informed of the danger, or unless it was so open and obvious that he must necessarily have realized and comprehended it. Schaff v. Morris (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 199.

53. Sufficiency of evidence.—Knowledge of servant.—Evidence held to support a finding that railroad's foreman, a master mechanic, had a knowledge superior to an employé as to whether a wire torn down by a wreck was a live wire. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Wolkarte (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1023.

Evidence held to show that railroad employé, injured while working in roundhouse pit by reason of slippery condition of pit bottom, knew of such condition and realized risk of slipping and falling by reason thereof in performance of his duties. Schaff v. Hendrich (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 543.

In a railroad employé's action under the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665), for injuries from collapse of a tank, evidence held sufficient to sustain the jury's finding that plaintiff in going on tank did not know of its dangerous and defective condition. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Long (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 212.

In an action for an injury to a railroad bridge painter, evidence held to sustain the jury's finding that he did not know of the master's failure to have watch kept for approaching vehicles which would strike the scaffold. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gericke (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 745.

54. — Assumption of risk shown.—In an action by a switchman jerked from a car by sudden application of brakes, evidence held to show that plaintiff had assumed the risk. Southern Pac. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 554.

55. — Assumption of risk not shown.—In an action for injuries to a railroad bridge painter knocked from a scaffold by a vehicle passing on the street below, evidence held sufficient to authorize a finding that his injuries were not the result of a risk that he had assumed. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gericke (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 668.

Art. 6646. No assumed risk where safety appliance not provided.

Operation and effect in general.—In an action under Federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665), for injuries caused by the railroad's violation of the Ash Pan Act (U. S. Comp. St. § 8624), the railroad could not defend on the plea of contributory negligence, in view of Federal Employers' Liability Act, § 4 (U. S. Comp. St. § 8660), and Employers' Liability Act 1908, §§ 1-4 (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8660). Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Smithers (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 637.

Art. 6648. Liable for injury or death of employé.

I. CONSTITUTIONALITY, CONSTRUCTION, APPLICATION AND EFFECT OF STATUTE

1. Constitutionality.—Legislature of state, without unjustly discriminating, could impose on railroads penalty in fixed sum in cases of persons negligently killed who were not employés, and, as to employés, give right of action for damages actually sustained, and make persons and corporations other than those operating railroad liable for all damages by negligent killing. Clay v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1072.

II. NATURE AND EXTENT OF LIABILITY IN GENERAL

6. What law governs and interstate commerce.—See St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Texas v. Smitha (Sup.) 232 S. W. 494.

Railroad section hand, injured while assisting foreman of section crew in taking ties to stack near toolhouse, was not injured in interstate commerce, though branch road on which ties were afterwards used was employed by road in handling interstate freight. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Watson (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 1177.

Congress intended by legislation on liability of railroads for injury to employés in interstate commerce to take exclusive control in order to make liability uniform throughout United States, and it is to be determined by provisions of legislation itself and general common law as administered by federal courts. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 665.

A fireman on an interstate train assisting other employés in repairing a water spout at a tank where his engine must then take water was within his duties, and an injury while so engaged comes under the federal Liability Act. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1149.

A railroad company in breaking up interstate trains at a junction point within the state to facilitate delivery of shipments to other points within the state is engaged in interstate commerce notwithstanding interstate cars were to be delivered within state or at terminal where trains were broken up. Southern Pac. Co. v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1076.

The operator of a hoist used to load rails on flat cars, after workmen had removed them from the ties and laid new rails, was engaged in repair of tracks, and, where the road operated in two states, was engaged in interstate commerce. Hargrove v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 188.

In view of the federal Safety Appliance Act of March 2, 1903, mere fact that car at moment of injury was not engaged in interstate commerce did not preclude recovery, where railroad was engaged in interstate commerce. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Sprole (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 935.

In servant's action for injuries, due to violation of federal Safety Appliance Act of March 2, 1893, the master's liability was enforceable in the courts of Texas, without reference to the laws of Louisiana, in which state the tort occurred. Id.

Mere fact that car at time of injury was on special track used to carry freight to plant of a refining company did not relieve railroad of liability under the federal Safety Appliance Act of March 2, 1893, for a defective coupling causing the injury. Id.

Where lumber is loaded in a box car in one state and is shipped to another state to be used in the manufacture of doors for grain cars designed for the handling of interstate shipments of grain, an employé who unloaded the lumber in the latter state is engaged in "interstate commerce." Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Drennan (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 691.

A brakeman on an interstate train, injured while respotting local cars, which were necessarily dislocated when his train had to take a siding, was engaged in "interstate commerce," within the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665). Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Lester (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 555.

A brakeman, injured by defective coupler of a car of an interstate railway company, is within the protection of the federal Safety Appliance Law (U. S. Comp. St. § 8606), though not at the time engaged in interstate service. Id.

Act Cong. Feb. 17, 1911 (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8630-8639), providing for official inspection of locomotives engaged in interstate commerce under rules of Interstate Commerce Commission, did not change railroad's legal duty to exercise ordinary care to keep its machinery in reasonably safe condition, so that the fact that an appliance is not condemned upon inspection is not conclusive on question of whether it is a safe appliance. Lancaster & Wight v. Allen (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 984.

In action for death of fireman engaged in interstate commerce, Act Cong. Feb. 17, 1911 (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8630-8639), to promote the safety of employes and travelers by compelling common carriers to equip their locomotives with safe and suitable boilers, and section 2 of that act, as amended by Act Cong. March 4, 1915 (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8639a-8639d), and the regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission, constitute the law of the case. Id.

One engaged in the initial step of a switching operation, which would start cars upon their return trip to a place in another state to be again loaded, was engaged in interstate commerce, and the Federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665) was applicable, where he was injured while so engaged. McAdoo v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 870.

Employé, who was handling trunks, some of which had come on a direct train from Louisiana to Texas, held injured in "interstate commerce," so that the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665) controlled. Hines v. Wicks (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 531.

A trucker injured in unloading freight shipped from another state is employed by a carrier in "interstate commerce," and liability therefor is governed by the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665). Cox v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. (Sup.) 222 S. W. 964, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Cox, 159 S. W. 1042.

Under federal Employers' Liability Act, § 2 (U. S. Comp. St. § 8658), a railroad employé in a territory is within the provisions of the act, though his employment was not in interstate commerce or in commerce between the territory and a state. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Trout (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 472.

An interstate carrier's shopman, crushed between cars which he was chaining together, because of the absence of a drawhead, when a switch engine, coming onto the siding suddenly pushed the cars together, held to come within the Safety Appliance Act of Congress (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8605-8612) as a matter of law. Wight v. Callicut (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 389.

7. Relation of parties—In general.—That plaintiff has procured employment by false and fraudulent statements contained in his application for employment is no defense to an action against his employer for injuries. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Estes (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1155.

Where the state owned and operated a railroad under Laws 30th Leg. c. 74; Laws 31st Leg. (2d Ex. Sess.) c. 24; Laws 33d Leg. c. 139, arts. 6745a-6745f, and employed labor, held that the state occupies to such employes the relations of an ordinary employer; and, where an employé was injured through the negligence of agents having supervision and management of the road, the state is liable, though it cannot be sued without commission. State v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 695.

In action against railroad receivers for injuries to an employé, assigned error based on refusal to instruct a verdict in favor of the receiver upon the ground that the liability is against the Director General of Railroads will be overruled. Lancaster v. Keebler (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1117.

During the period of government control of railroads under the Federal Control Act (U. S. Comp. St. 1918, U. S. Comp. St. Ann. Supp. 1919, §§ 3115¼a-3115¼p) relation of master and servant did not exist between an employé and the railroad company, and the company was not liable for injury to employé sustained during such a period. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Long (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 212.

In a servant's action for injuries on a railroad under federal control, it was error to deny a motion to dismiss receiver of the railroad, so that the case could be prosecuted against the Director General alone, under Order No. 50, Oct. 28, 1918, and Act Cong. March 21, 1918 (U. S. Comp. St. 1918, U. S. Comp. St. Ann. Supp. 1919, §§ 3115¼a-3115¼p). Baker v. Bell (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 245.

Whether action for injury to railroad employee from operation of a car during government control should be in name against the company, under Federal Control Act, § 10 (U. S. Comp. St. 1918, U. S. Comp. St. Ann. Supp. 1919, § 3115¼j), or against the Director General under his General Orders Nos. 50 and 50a, action is in effect against the government, and there is no individual liability of the company. Hines v. Collins (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 332.

It is not important whether the nominal defendant, in action for injury to railroad employee during federal control, was the company or the Director General; he being in court, and the litigation being conducted by the proper government representatives. Id.

A judgment against receivers of a railroad for the death of an employee during the time the railway was operated by the federal government through the Director General was erroneous. Lancaster v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 524.

10. — Volunteers in general.—Station agent of one railroad injured in the box car of another in discharge of his duty as agent of the first to check a shipment of iron being delivered to his railroad by the other, held not an intruder, meddler, stranger, or mere volunteer in the work of unloading the other railroad's car. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Jackman (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 410.

11. — Acts done under employment or by invitation of master's servants.—Employé of railroad company, injured while riding upon track in a motorcycle by invitation of another employé after working hours, motorcycle being run down by freight train, held a "trespasser." Frick v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 198.

12. — Agreement between railroads for joint use of yard.—Where two intersecting railroads erected an interlocking plant for their joint use, the one, knowing that servants of the other would use the plant, was under the same duty to keep it in a reasonably safe condition for the other's employés as was the other itself. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Grimes (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 691.

13. — Commencement, suspension or termination of relation.—Effect of government control, see note 7, ante.

Where an employer leases or hires his employés to another without their knowledge or acquiescence in the change of relationship, the original employer is not thereby relieved from liability for injuries sustained by the servant in the course of his employment. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Trout (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 472.

14. Scope of employment—In general.—Master's obligation to exercise ordinary care to provide reasonably safe premises can be invoked as basis for liability for injury to servant only when the injury is received in the line of the servant's duty. Houston Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. v. Stephens, 109 Tex. 185, 203 S. W. 41.

16. Care required in general.—A master must exercise due care to furnish a servant a reasonably safe place to work, and if his negligence renders such place unsafe, with resulting injury to servant, master is liable, if injury is such as under circumstances might reasonably have been foreseen as natural, probable, and proximate result of negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Graham (Com. App.) 209 S. W. 399.

18. Medical attendance on injured employé.—Defendant railway, which deducted certain per cent. from employé's wages turning it over to hospital association, held not liable for damages to employé resulting from refusal of association to give medical treatment for injuries. Davis v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 603.

Railway Employés' Hospital Association, formed to provide medical and surgical treatment for its members, which include all the employés of the Railway Company, held not an insurance company, but a mutual benefit association, and its contracts with its several members cannot be regarded or construed as contracts of insurance. International & G. N. Ry. Employés' Hospital Ass'n v. Bell (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 309.

A rule of Railway Employés' Hospital Association held not to authorize the treatment of a member away from the line of the railway, or by other than one of the physicians of the association, and a member who was suddenly taken sick in St. Louis, Mo., while in the performance of his duties, was not entitled to receive money expended for medical services, although under his contract of employment with the railroad he was required to pay monthly dues to the association. Id.

19. Cause of injury—In general.—"Proximate cause" incorporates in it such anticipation of result as ought, from the circumstances, to have been foreseen as natural consequences of a negligent act; and if a negligent act produces an injury, and more serious injury naturally flows from the negligence, without any intervening independent cause, those consequences are probable and ought to be foreseen, and are chargeable to the negligence. Collins v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 477.

Test as to whether or not act or omission amounting to negligence is proximate cause of injury is whether or not injury is natural or probable consequence of such act or omission, and whether or not injury of such character should reasonably have been foreseen as consequence, in light of circumstances. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clement (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 407.

If it required two agencies to produce the injury, or if both contributed thereto as concurrent forces, the presence and existence of one will not exculpate the other, because it would still be the efficient cause of the injury. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Smithers (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 637.

20. — Acts or omissions of third persons.—In an action by a railroad fireman injured in a collision when the engine on which he was working passed through an open switch, where the sole basis for liability was the negligence of the engineer in not discovering that the switch was open, it is immaterial that switch was changed by an unauthorized person. Lancaster v. Mays (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 676.

Where it was the duty of an employer to guard an engine standing with steam up on a side track, and performance of such duty would have prevented a trespasser from moving it, so that it ran upon the main track and killed an employee, the failure to perform such duty was a proximate cause of the accident. Lancaster v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 524.

Where express messengers who were in fact joint employees of the express company and the railroad company were assisted by a sole employee of the express company at a time when a trunk was thrown out of a car and injured an employee of the railroad company, an instruction allowing recovery against the railroad company though the trunk was thrown by the assistant, who was solely an employee of the express company, was improper. American Express Co. v. Chandler (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 1085.

21. Accidental or improbable injury—In general.—Negligence is essential to liability for unintentional injury. Southern Pac. Co. v. Berkshire (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 323.

22. — Anticipation of consequences.—Action of switching foreman in releasing coupling, without warning, as switchman was stepping from one car to another at point of separation, was negligence proximately causing the injuries to switchman from falling, if foreman, in exercise of ordinary care, could have reasonably anticipated that the switchman might be at the point of separation. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Estes (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1155.

The action of the foreman was negligent if, in the exercise of ordinary care, the foreman might reasonably have foreseen that when he uncoupled the cars, switchman might be in the act of stepping from one car to another, and it was not necessary, for the act to be negligent, that the foreman should have foreseen that the switchman would be so doing. Id.

Where there is reason to anticipate some injury may result to the servant, the master must exercise such care as will prevent the injury, and a failure to do so is actionable negligence, if injury follows the breach of duty. Collins v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 477.

Negligence rests primarily upon two elements: First, reason to anticipate injury; and, second, failure to perform the duty arising on account of that anticipation, but to render negligence actionable it must be incorporated into some injury. Id.

Where an engine, containing defects calculated to release the brakes, was left with steam up and unblocked on a down grade leading to the main track where trains were frequently passing, and it ran upon the main track and collided with another engine, the jury was justified in finding that the employer should have foreseen the consequences resulting from the movement of the engine and owed employees working on the main track the duty to guard the engine. Lancaster v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 524.

23. Joint liability of employers and others.—In a railroad employé's action for injuries due to an alleged defective guard rail on a Pullman coach, the Pullman company and the railroad company hauling the Pullman coach, if liable at all for the injury, were jointly liable. Blackman v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 412.

Where the joint station agent of two railroads was injured while helping the employés of the second road unload freight from a box car, through the negligence only of a brakeman of the second road, the first road was not liable for the injuries, and judgment in the agent's suit against both roads was properly rendered in his favor against the second only. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Jackman (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 410.

Where an express messenger handled baggage as well as express matter, both the express company and the railroad company held liable to an employee of the railroad company for injury caused by the negligence of the messenger in throwing a trunk out of a car, regardless of whether it was baggage or express. American Express Co. v. Chandler (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 1085.

25. Contracts limiting or releasing liability.—See notes to art. 6651.

III. APPLIANCES AND PLACES FOR WORK

27. Nature of master's duty and liability and care required in general—Appliances.—A master is not required to provide machinery for handling heavy barrels to supplement aged employé's failing strength, where employé has been doing that work for more than two years without injury. Swann v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1131.

In the absence of a violation of some other statute, the common carrier's liability under the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665) for injury or death by reason of defect in equipment depends on whether defect was due to carrier's negligence, but where statute requires common carrier to furnish certain equipment or to furnish equipment in a certain condition, and death or injury is due to a violation thereof, the violation fixes liability for the consequent damages. Lancaster & Wight v. Allen, 110 Tex. 213, 217 S. W. 1032.

28. — Places for work.—The state, as an employer operating state's railroad, is bound to furnish employés with a safe place in which to work. State v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 695.

It is the employer's duty to use ordinary care to provide employé a safe working place. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Long (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 212.

This rule has no application where the servant is engaged for the very purpose of repairing and making a dangerous place safe. Id.

A railroad employé who, under orders of his foreman, went upon top of a water tank to pour cinders into tank to stop a leak, could recover for injuries sustained on collapse of tank because of its defective condition, on theory that employer was negligent in failing to provide safe place in which to work; the rule that employer is not required to use ordinary care to provide a safe working place where servant is engaged for the very purpose of repairing and making a dangerous place safe being inapplicable to such case. Id.

The employer is required to furnish a reasonably safe place in which to work. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Smithers (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 637.

33. Delegation of duty.—It is the duty of an employer to take necessary reasonable precautions to make the servant's place of work reasonably safe and such duty is non-delegable. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gericke (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 668.

A master is not liable for injuries to a servant from a selection from an adequate stock of suitable appliances of an appliance which was unsuitable for the purpose for which he intended to use it if such unsuitableness was a result of a defect which could not have been detected and provided against on the part of the master or of its being too light for the use for which it was intended. Roberg v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 790.

A railroad furnishing a wrecking crew with chains of various and ample strength is not liable under federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665) for the death of an experienced foreman from breaking of a chain of insufficient strength which he selected. Id.

The master's duty to use ordinary care to furnish reasonably safe appliances includes the duty of inspection, and such duty is nondelegable. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ewing (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 198, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 300.

If there was nothing to indicate to injured section foreman that the temper of a maul has been changed since it was furnished him, or that he knew the dangerous condition in which it was because not properly tempered, he was not under duty to send it to the blacksmith shop to be properly tempered, as required by the railroad's rules. Hines v. Flinn (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 679.

The duty of furnishing a safe and suitable maul or sledge for use in his work by its section foreman is a nondelegable duty of a railroad, of which it cannot relieve itself by charging the foreman with its performance. Id.

36. Appliances or places owned, controlled or provided by third persons.—The general duty of the master to furnish only such equipment and appliances as are reasonably safe in the particular use applies to the acceptance for transportation of cars coming to one railroad from another. Colorado & S. Ry. Co. v. Rowe (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 928.

37. Defects in tools, appliances and places for work in general.—A railroad owes to a carpenter, who fell off of a bridge because the head of a spike which he was attempting to pull broke off, no duty not to use secondhand spikes. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 598.

A railroad company employing a night watchman to patrol a roundhouse owes him the duty to keep a drop pit in the roundhouse covered or to warn him thereof. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1177.

39. Locomotives.—Under U. S. Comp. St. § 8631, making it unlawful to use a locomotive in moving interstate traffic unless the boiler and appurtenances are in proper condition, the receivers of a railroad are liable to the widow of an engineer killed by a boiler explosion due to defect in the bolts and stays designed to sustain the crown sheet. Lancaster v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 797.

Under Act Cong. Feb. 17, 1911 (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8630-8639), as amended by Act Cong. March 4, 1915 (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8639a-8639d), and rules and regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission thereunder, railroad was not negligent where the flanges on the wheel were in accordance with such rules; the question of whether railroad exercised ordinary care to keep flanges safe for operation of locomotive not being the test of negligence in such case. Lancaster & Wight v. Allen, 110 Tex. 213, 217 S. W. 1032.

Where an engine, with defects, calculated to release the brakes was left with steam up and unblocked on a down grade leading to the main line track where trains were frequently passing, and that it ran upon such track and collided with another engine, killing an employee, the jury had a right to find negligence in leaving the engine unattended under such circumstances. Lancaster v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 524.

Safety Appliance Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8617-8623), requiring an engine to be equipped with an ash pan which can be dumped or emptied or cleaned without the necessity of an employee going under the locomotive, held to protect an employee not only while he is actually under the locomotive adjusting the pan, but also in each and every step necessary to accomplish that purpose. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Smithers (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 637.

40. Cars—In general.—Negligence cannot be predicated upon railroad's failure to make car brake beam safe for a switchman to step on as the car approaches him standing on track in order to ride the car while making a coupling. Freeman v. Garretts, 109 Tex. 78, 196 S. W. 506.

An engine and two wrecking cars on one of which plaintiff switchman was riding when injured held not a "train" within Act Cong. March 2, 1893, § 1 (U. S. Comp. St. § 8605), as amended by Act Cong. March 2, 1903, § 1 (U. S. Comp. St. § 8613), so that failure of the railroad to have the air brakes on the cars coupled up to enable the engineer to control the cars from the engine was negligence on the railroad's part as a matter of law. Baker v. Grace (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 299.

49. Platforms and ladders.—That railroad took away steps which were convenient and direct passage for its agent to freight platform, and left known safe routes of travel, did not charge it with negligence because such other routes might have been inconvenient to agent and have required more of his time in performance of his duties. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Graham (Com. App.) 209 S. W. 399.

54. Inspection and test—Things to be inspected.—A railroad has no duty to inspect spikes for defects as to one who fell off a bridge on account of the head coming off of a spike he was attempting to pull in repairing or constructing a bridge. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 598.

The rule requiring master to furnish servant safe place in which to work does not apply to work in a box car unloading lumber therefrom, it being unreasonable to expect master to inspect every car of lumber before the unloading thereof. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Drennan (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 691.

A standard make hand car, purchased from a reputable manufacturer and furnished to a section foreman, is not a simple tool or appliance, and its purchase is not the exercise of ordinary care, relieving the railroad of the duty of inspection to ascertain its fitness for use, depending on a proper adjustment of the cogwheels. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ewing (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 198, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 180 S. W. 300.

55. — Foreign cars.—A railroad is bound to inspect the cars of another railroad used on its road just as it would inspect its own cars, and owes such duty as master, and is responsible for the consequences of such defects as would be discovered by ordinary inspection. Rowe v. Colorado & S. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 731.

The general duty of the master to furnish only such equipment and appliances as are reasonably safe in the particular use applies to the acceptance for transportation of cars coming to one railroad from another, and is discharged if the accepting railroad exercises ordinary care to inspect the cars, not being liable for latent defects. Colorado & S. Ry. Co. v. Rowe (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 928.

57. — Time and opportunity for making.—Without proof of master's actual knowledge of the existence of a defect in appliances, etc., such defect must have existed for such length of time as to raise the presumption of negligence in failing to discover it by reasonable inspection. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Hickman (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 550.

61. Knowledge by master of defect or danger.—Leakage of gas from car containing gasoline held insufficient to put railroad's employes on notice contents had been mislabeled unrefined naphtha, and that car contained casing head gasoline, to make cause of action for negligence in favor of refinery company's employé requested to remedy leak, particularly where explosion would not have occurred if employé had not loosened dome cap. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clement (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 407.

62. Repairs.—Employment contract held not such repair work as invokes the doctrine that when the servant is engaged in making repairs to machinery in unsafe condition the master is not required to provide a safe place to work. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Schelb (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 881.

Refinery company's employé having been employed by railroad as expert to remedy a dangerous leaky condition in an oil car, general rule imposing on master duty to furnish a safe place to work was not applicable. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clement (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 407.

64. Proximate cause of injury—Appliances in general.—Where a railroad furnished a wrecking crew with chains of ample strength to be used for various purposes, its failure to inspect a chain of insufficient strength selected by the foreman, the breaking of which caused his death, was not the proximate cause of his injury. Roberg v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 790.

65. — Locomotives.—Where a roundhouse hostler slipped in stepping on water and grease on floor of engine cab while descending to ground to go under engine to close ash pan, the railroad's failure to keep ash pan in repair, in violation of Ash Pan Act (U. S. Comp. St. § 8624), was the proximate cause of the injury, notwithstanding that he would not have fallen but for the water and grease on the floor of the cab. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Smithers (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 637.

IV. METHODS OF WORK, RULES AND ORDERS

72. Customary methods.—In a railway repair man's action for injury, due to being struck by an engine while at work near a track in a train shed, where there was evidence that it was customary to signal or give warning of the approach of locomotives, defendant owed plaintiff the duty of giving such warning. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. McGraw (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 559.

75. Care required in operating locomotives, trains and cars—Employés riding on locomotives, trains, or cars.—Where a brakeman, whose overalls were being wound around a carwheel, gave the engineer signal to stop, but the engineer disregarded it until the brakeman called out to stop, which was too late, so that the brakeman's leg was injured, the railroad was liable for such negligence of the engineer; the brakeman not having been negligent himself. Hines v. Douglas (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 211.

Failure to stop a work train, as was customary, to permit laborers to alight at their boarding place, causing one to jump from the train after it had slowed down, held not negligence per se. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Kornegay (Com. App.) 227 S. W. 1100.

76. — Employés on or near tracks.—That a flagman's duties in guarding a crossing require him to watch approaching engines and cars does not absolve the railroad company from its duty to exercise ordinary care to avoid striking him with an approaching engine; the flagman being entitled to rely upon the exercise of such care by his employer. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Suitor, 110 Tex. 250, 218 S. W. 1034.

The moving of an open dump car with its side and bottom overhanging and forming a trap in which a brakeman standing at the usual distance from the track and intent upon his duties was caught and injured when it closed by gravity, instead of operating the car by air, as intended by its manufacturer, constituted actionable negligence, whether or not it constituted a violation of the duty to furnish a safe place to work. Schaff v. Morris (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 199.

That the engineer of a passenger train going 25 to 30 miles an hour when 100 yards from a freight brakeman, saw him alight from the freight engine, did not impose upon the engineer the duty to reduce his speed. Sorrell v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 768.

Where an experienced freight brakeman was struck when he tried to jump across the main track ahead of a passenger train, which was visible for two miles, while his train was on a siding with signals indicating clear track, the engineer's failure to signal was not available as a ground of negligence. Id.

The engineer of a passenger train going 25 to 30 miles an hour and visible for two miles while approaching a siding occupied by a waiting freight train, with signals indicating clear track, is not bound to anticipate that members of the freight crew will be on the track so as to impose on him the duty to reduce his speed. Id.

80. Proximate cause of injury.—Where, in process of switching, string of cars is bumped against lumber box car changing position of lumber, injury to employé falling into open space formed by the lumber sliding is not proximately caused by the negligent bumping. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Drennan (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 691.

Where foreman directed cars to be switched onto a clear track, but instead they were switched onto a different track, where they bumped into standing cars, injuring a switchman operating a brake, the efficient cause of the injury was the impact of the cars and not the switching onto the wrong track. Baker v. Beattie (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 658.

Where a railroad laborer knew that a work train was not going to stop as was customary but only to slow down, and alighted when conductor signaled the engineer to speed up, the failure to stop was not the proximate cause of his injuries in alighting. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Kornegay (Com. App.) 227 S. W. 1100.

V. WARNING AND INSTRUCTING SERVANT

94. Obvious or latent dangers.—In an action against a railroad for a fall from a bridge by reason of becoming overbalanced by the breaking off of the head of a spike which plaintiff was attempting to pull, defendant owed no duty to instruct plaintiff of the danger of such work. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 598.

95. Dangers from extraneous sources.—Where the head brakeman threatened by armed trespassers returned to the rear of the train and got his pistol in the presence of the rear brakeman, who with his pistol entered the car where the trespassers were and was shot after they warned him to keep out, the failure of the head brakeman to notify him that the trespassers were armed was not negligence for which the railroad company was liable. Southern Pac. Co. v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 151.

96. Sufficiency of warnings.—Telling a crew fighting a fire "not to get too hot, not to stay there if they got too tired, and if they got too hot or tired to get out and let others relieve them," is a sufficient warning of the danger of becoming overheated. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bennett, 110 Tex. 262, 219 S. W. 197.

97. Proximate cause of injury.—Any negligence in exposing an employé to danger of explosion from gasoline in a car in which he was requested to remedy a leak without informing him of danger by stating car contained unrefined naphtha could properly have been found a proximate cause of injury to employé when after loosening dome-cap on car gas and gasoline escaped and caught fire. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clement (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 407.

VI. FELLOW SERVANTS

100. Duty to provide adequate number.—If railroad's foreman ordered plaintiff, assisting in lowering pipe into well by rope passing over a drum, to slacken rope, so that plaintiff's strength became inadequate, and he was injured, railroad was chargeable with actionable negligence. Stephenville, N. & S. T. Ry. Co. v. Shelton (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 915.

A railroad was not liable for injuries to a "fire knocker," resulting from over-exertion in closing an ash pan, by reason of its negligence in not keeping it in proper repair so that it would work easily, where the employé knew that the pan was out of order and hard to open and close, and was neither directed nor expected to overexert himself by attempting to close the pan himself without aid. Hines v. Ross (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1066.

101. Competency—Duty and liability in general.—It is the duty of a railroad to furnish an engineer of at least ordinary skill to operate a crane on a wrecker. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Glass (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 730.

107. Nature of act and performance of duties of master.—In general.—Where it was the duty of wrecking foreman to order his crew to attach a cable to a box car, but of the men when they saw a loose roof to report it to him or remove it before a box car was raised by the cable, the failure of the crew to do either, was a breach of duty of the servants and not a negligent exercise of superintendence by the foreman; and, where the foreman was injured by a loose roof falling off of a box car being uprighted, by reason of such breach of duty, he could recover damages under the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665). Wight v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 295.

108. — Scope of employment.—Where one servant is injured by another servant while the latter is in direct discharge of a duty, though in its performance making use of instrumentalities and using more force than expressly authorized or instructed, the master cannot escape liability on the ground of abuse of authority by the latter servant. Pullman Co. v. Ransaw (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 122.

Where Pullman porter remaining on his car under express orders was injured while being ejected by company's watchmen under inconsistent orders, it was not necessary to liability that it should have authorized specific acts of watchmen in carrying pistols or shooting plaintiff, if watchmen were acting within scope of their duties in putting porter off car. Id.

If defendant railway's guard, who had authority to detain persons going into and out of yards inclosing shop grounds of defendant railway, wrongfully detained and shot plaintiff, defendant's employé, defendant would be liable, although the particular act and detention was unauthorized. Campbell v. Lancaster (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 269.

111. Vice-principals and other representatives of master.—Nature of act or omission, and performance of duties of master.—The selection by a railroad pumpman of a rope insufficient for hoisting timbers to repair a water spout, which rope broke causing injury to a fireman, was negligence of the company. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1149.

117½. Proximate cause of injury.—Negligence of railroad employé in entering a tank car with a torch, causing an explosion and a fire, cannot be regarded as the proximate cause of the death of another servant who was injured and overheated while subsequently fighting the fire. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bennett, 110 Tex. 262, 219 S. W. 197.

IX. ACTIONS

126. Parties entitled to recover.—A minor daughter who married a few months after the death of her father, a locomotive fireman, is, where the railroad is liable under the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665), entitled to some damages at least up to the time of her marriage, and the denial of any recovery is error. Davis v. Wight (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 26.

When a child reaches its majority, parent's legal duty to support it ceases, and, in the absence of proof, it cannot be presumed that such support will be continued so as to justify recovery under the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665) for loss thereof through the parent's death. Hines v. Walker (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 837.

130. Weight and sufficiency of evidence in general—Existence of relation.—Evidence held sufficient to support finding that railway conductor was defendant's employé and was engaged in the performance of the duties required of him by defendant when injured. San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 247.

In employé's action for injuries, brought against several railroad companies as partners in operation of line where injury occurred, evidence held insufficient to show existence of relationship of partners between two of the railroads. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Trout (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 829.

In an action for injuries to a refinery company's employé endeavoring to stop a leak in a tank car at request of railroad's yardmaster, evidence held sufficient prima facie to sustain finding of relationship of master and servant between plaintiff and railroad. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Clement (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 407.

131. — Scope of employment.—In an action for the death of a section foreman on the track with a motor at midnight, evidence held to sustain a finding that he was not a trespasser. Baker v. Loftin (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 159.

From the fact that deceased was division superintendent of the road, it could be found he was acting within the scope of his authority in going between cars where switchmen were replacing drawhead, which had fallen out, separating a train. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Howard (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1159.

132. — As to particular facts.—In action under Federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665), for injuries to employee, evidence held to warrant finding that the injuries received caused paralysis. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Smithers (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 637.

Evidence as to the mental condition of an injured employee after he received his injury held sufficient to sustain a finding by the jury that the employee was mentally incompetent to make a settlement with the employer for the injuries received by him. Smith v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 290.

133. Evidence as to cause of injury—In general.—In an action for injuries to a railroad bridge painter knocked from the scaffold by a vehicle passing on the street below, evidence held to warrant a finding that defendant's negligence in failing to keep a lookout for vehicles was the proximate cause of plaintiff's injuries. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gericke (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 668.

134. — Defective or dangerous appliances.—Evidence in servant's action for injury from fall of trip hammer while not being operated, held sufficient to raise issue of it being broken or worn. Southern Pac. Co. v. De La Cruz (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 423.

In employé's suit for injury in operating lever controlling interlocking plant at junction of tracks, evidence held sufficient to sustain jury's finding that failure of the lever to work was proximate cause of injury. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Hickman (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 550.

135. — Defects in cars and locomotives.—Evidence held to warrant finding that the negligence of the railroad in permitting a defect in a locomotive step to exist was the proximate cause of the injury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Schelb (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 881.

In an action under the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665) and the Federal Safety Appliance Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8605-8623) evidence held to sustain a finding that a defective coupler was the proximate cause of injury. McAdoo v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 870.

138. — Warnings and signals.—In a suit by a section hand, ruptured while lifting a motor hand car, evidence held to warrant a finding that the proximate cause of his injury was the negligence of an assistant suddenly letting go of the car without warning. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Lindsey (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 182.

Evidence held to show that permanent injury to a section foreman, poisoned by handling creosote ties, was the proximate result of negligence in failing to warn him of the danger. Collins v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 477.

Evidence held sufficient to support a finding that the death of a flagman run over by a switch engine was proximately caused by the fireman's negligence, either in failing to give due warning or to discover the flagman's danger in time to avert injury. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Suitor, 110 Tex. 250, 213 S. W. 1034.

142. Evidence as to master's negligence—Defective or dangerous places.—Evidence in action for injury to station agent, held not to show railroad's negligence in not covering ditch or taking proper means to prevent any one from falling or stepping into it. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Graham (Com. App.) 209 S. W. 399.

In an action under the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665) for injuries from collapse of water tank while he was on top pouring cinders into it to stop a leak, evidence held to support a finding of negligence in failing to provide him with a safe place in which to work. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Long (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 212.

143. — Cars and locomotives.—Plaintiff's testimony that he made repeated attempts and failed to open a coupler knuckle, by pulling and jerking the lever or by pulling it with his hands, shows violation of the federal Safety Appliance Act of March 2, 1893. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Sprole (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 985.

In an action for injuries to a locomotive fireman by slipping on the oil tank of the locomotive, a finding that it was not "usual and customary" for oil and grease to be on such engines held sustained by the evidence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Crow (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 237.

In an action by a locomotive fireman for injuries from slipping on grease on the oil tank, evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding of negligence on the part of the railroad. Id.

In an action under federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665) for death of a brakeman when a car ahead of him dumped coal on the track, evidence held sufficient to raise the issue of accident. Colorado & S. Ry. Co. v. Rowe (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 928.

144. — Tracks and roadbeds.—In an action by a locomotive engineer for injuries in a derailment on a newly made roadbed, evidence held to support a finding of negligence by the jury. Wight v. Bell (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 532.

145. — Operation of trains, cars and locomotives.—In an action for death of one on track with a motor at midnight, evidence held to sustain a finding that the track was not so curved that the headlight did not show deceased, and that the trainmen should have seen deceased or his lantern in time to stop. Baker v. Loftin (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 159.

Evidence held to support finding of want of care of engineer who moved cars against standing cars, where train had separated, killing employé assisting in replacing drawhead. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Howard (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1159.

Evidence in action for killing of head brakeman of freight train on passing track, held to support finding of negligence in backing train. Schaff v. Scoggin (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 758.

In a switchman's action for injuries when he fell from a wrecking car, evidence as to the engineer's negligence in speeding up the engine and train with a jerk that threw plaintiff off held sufficient to sustain verdict for plaintiff. Baker v. Grace (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 299.

Evidence held to support a finding that there was a failure on the part of those operating a switch engine to exercise ordinary care to prevent injury to the flagman struck by the engine, which approached without warning. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Sultor, 110 Tex. 250, 218 S. W. 1034.

Evidence that poles on a car in a work train on which a workman was riding when injured were held in place on one side by short standards only, though long ones had been furnished for use after the car was loaded, and that the train was moving at a high speed, considering the roughness of the track, when one of the poles rolled off, held to support a finding of negligence in loading the car and moving the train. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Trout (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 472.

In an action for a railroad employé's death in a derailment, evidence held to justify jury in finding that the accident would not have occurred but for defendant's negligence in running the train at an unsafe speed and laying the track improperly. Hines v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 493.

146. — Negligence in giving orders.—Evidence held to sustain finding that railroad receiver's foreman of section hands was guilty of negligence in ordering plaintiff, a minor, to ride on a hand car overcrowded with eight other men. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Lopez (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 192.

147. — Knowledge by master of defect or danger.—In an action against a railroad for injuries from fall from a bridge by becoming overbalanced while pulling a spike, the head of which broke off, evidence held insufficient to warrant a finding that defendant had notice of the defect. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 598.

149. — Warnings and instructions.—In a railroad employé's action for injuries by being knocked from a scaffold by a passing wagon while painting a bridge over a street, evidence held to authorize a finding that the foreman, keeping lookout for vehicles, was negligent in leaving the bridge without notifying plaintiff or his fellow workmen. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gericke (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 668.

156. Damages.—That the servant, after his injuries, showed a mental condition which he described as "the blues," was an element of damages allowable. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 614.

Mental suffering, which an injured person experiences from brooding over and regarding his crippled condition, is not too remote, but is a proper subject for damages in a servant's action for injuries. Id.

In railroad servant's action for injuries under federal Employers' Liability Act, court properly submitted as element of damage pain of body and mind, though no direct evidence of pain of mind was offered. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 665.

In an action under the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665) and the federal Safety Appliance Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8605-8623) for death of a servant, damages were properly awarded for conscious suffering prior to death, where there was evidence that deceased lived an hour or two after being injured and was conscious and was suffering. McAdoo v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 870.

Under federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665), damages recoverable by deceased's children are restricted to the benefits they might have expected to receive during minority, unless proof is made of unusual facts showing that child might reasonably expect support after reaching majority. Hines v. Walker (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 837.

It is proper in action, under the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665), for death of a son, to inquire into the financial and physical condition of the beneficiaries. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Francis (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 342.

158. Excessiveness of verdict.—Verdict for personal injuries held not excessive. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Schelb (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 881; Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 614; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1149; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Haven (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1152; San Antonio, U. & G. R. Co. v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 247; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 222; St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Webber (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 519; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Butts (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 419; El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Lovick (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 283; Baker v. Grace (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 299; McAdoo v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 870; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Crow (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 237; Payne v. Harris (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 350; Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Smithers (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 637.

A verdict for death held not excessive. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Bremer (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 253; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Howard (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1159; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Carpenter (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 270; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 358; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 778; Lancaster v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 797; McAdoo v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 870; Hines v. Mills (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 777.

Verdict for death held excessive. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Saint (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1021; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Glass (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 730; Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Francis (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 342.

In servant's action for injuries, verdict held excessive. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 230; Baker v. Bell (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 245.

Public policy does not demand that verdict in railroad servant's action for injuries should not be as large as $20,000 on any grounds, though federal Employers' Liability Act is virtually compensation statute, and fixes liability for defective appliances, regardless of negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 222.

Verdict for $7,500 in favor of a railroad brakeman, who sustained only a partial loss of the two outside fingers of the left hand, which loss disqualified him from continuing in service on standard railroads, was excessive by only $2,500. Lancaster v. Hynes (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 957.

Art. 6649. Contributory negligence; rule as to.

Federal Employers' Liability Act.—U. S. Comp. St. § 8659, makes inapplicable the doctrine of contributory negligence to cases of injury to railroad employes in interstate commerce by reason of violation of the federal Safety Appliance Acts (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8605-8619, 8621-8623). Lancaster v. Hynes (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 957.

In an action based upon the Federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665), in connection with the Federal Safety Appliance Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8605-8623), contributory negligence is not available as a defense, where a violation of the Safety Appliance Act was the concurring proximate cause of the death or injury. McAdoo v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 870.

In an action under the Federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665) and Safety Appliance Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8605-8623) testimony relating to contributory negligence and assumed risk on the part of the deceased is properly excluded. Id.

Under the federal Employers' Liability Act (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8657-8665), contributory negligence is not a complete bar to recovery; the act providing that the amount of damage resulting from the injured employe's negligence shall be deducted from the amount resulting from defendant railroad's negligence. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Estes (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 1087.

Application and effect of statute—Contributory negligence.—In action for injuries to locomotive fireman when he slipped on metal apron between engine and tender which he had caused to become slippery in sprinkling coal, evidence held sufficient to sustain finding of contributory negligence resulting in deduction from the damages. Hodnett v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 380.

Where the court correctly charged the jury in accordance with this article, the refusal of a special issue requiring the jury to find the total amount of damage suffered and the amount of the diminution was not error, particularly where there was no assertion that the amount awarded was excessive. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Reichert (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 550.

— Effect on assumption of risk rule.—Art. 6645, does not merge the defense of assumed risk into that of contributory negligence, the doctrine of comparative negligence founded on this article, not applying where plaintiff is barred from any recovery for injuries by assumption of risk. Swann v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1131.

Art. 6650. Assumed risk, rule as to.

Federal Employers' Liability Act.—See McAdoo v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 870; note under art. 6649.

Art. 6651. Contract changing liability void.

Contracts exempting from liability.—Pullman porter's employment contract, assuming "all risks of accident or casualties while employed on or about cars" of the company "incident to such employment," would not relieve company from liability for injury to porter suffered in resisting being ejected from his car by watchmen who had been instructed by company to put off any one found on car, porter having been instructed to remain on car and not notified of conflicting instructions. Pullman Co. v. Ransaw (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 122.

— Under Federal Employers' Liability Act.—Under Federal Employers' Liability Act, §§ 1, 5, written contract of employment between railroad and employé, in so far as it provided that road should not be liable for injuries, unless employé gave notice in writing of his claim, was void. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 665.

Federal Employers' Liability Act, § 5 (U. S. Comp. St. § 8661), makes void a contract by interstate railroad employé to give notice of injury and claim for damages within 30 days or his right to recover therefor would be barred. Panhandle & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brooks (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 186, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 665.

Release of claims—Fraud or mistake.—In action by section foreman for injuries, evidence held to authorize finding that representations that plaintiff was well, made by defendant railroad's physicians, were intended to influence plaintiff in making settlement with defendant's claim agent and signing release. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Haven (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1152.

In such action evidence held to authorize finding that physicians, who treated plaintiff, were agents and employés of defendant railroad, authorized to advise plaintiff as to probability of his recovery from injuries. Id.

Condition of plaintiff's leg was not matter equally open to him and the physician. Id. Statement of the physicians, that plaintiff "was all right and well," were statements of fact, upon which plaintiff had right to rely in settling his claim and signing release. Id.

If statements of the physician were false and made to induce plaintiff to settle his claim, that statements were innocently made would not deprive plaintiff of right to have release set aside. Id.

Advice of physician to settle, or his false representations as to extent of injuries, are not grounds for setting aside release, where physician had nothing to do with obtaining releases, and claim agent did not knowingly take advantage of injured person's confidence in physician. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 90.

Where after he was injured an employee was not competent mentally to make a settlement, the argument and tactics of the claim agent in securing such settlement would justify its cancellation, though they were not sufficient to constitute fraud if used against a man in possession of his normal mental powers. Smith v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 290.

— Rescission.—That an injured employee had invested part of money received from the employer in settlement in a farm does not establish an exception to the rule that one who has spent the money need not tender its return if he offers to have the amount credited upon any judgment he might recover, and therefore does not require a tender before suit to cancel the settlement and recover the damages. Smith v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 290.

Where the employer took the position that its settlement with its employee was valid and conclusive, so that any offer by the employee to return the amount paid him in settlement would have been refused, it cannot insist that a preliminary tender was a prerequisite to his action to cancel the settlement and recover the damages. Id.

— Construction and effect.—Where a servant was injured and on returning to work applied for pay for the time he was absent, and after negotiating for some time the master agreed to pay him half time, and the servant accepted the same, it must be held, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary or evidence that payment of half wages was a voluntary payment, that there was an accord and satisfaction of the servant's entire cause of action, and he could not thereafter recover for pain and suffering or subsequent loss of time. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Morgan (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 512.

Article 6654. [4562] Powers and duties.

See Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 814.

Jurisdiction of commission.—See Angelina & N. R. R. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 703; note under art. 6658.

Power to regulate railroads.—Common carriers being created for public purposes are subject to regulation by the states creating them under certain defined constitutional limitations, such regulation including the matter of facilities and the fixing of rates. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Empire Express Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 590, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 222.

Fixing rates—In general.—In mandamus to compel railroad to furnish express company facilities under arts. 6616, 6617, court was not empowered to determine what constituted a reasonable rate for such facilities; the establishment of rates being a legislative and not a judicial function. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Empire Express Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 590, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 222.

— For connecting lines.—Under this article, §§ 5, 6, an order permitting a carrier, shipping coal purchased by it from a point on another line to a point on its own line, to participate in a division of the through rate, held valid; such order applying only to shipments actually hauled to the point of destination and not stopped at the junction point. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Rio Grande & E. P. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 230 S. W. 974.

Where the Railroad Commission established a joint through rate from one point to another, and where the terminal carrier purchased coal at the point of commencement for shipment between such points without an agreement with initial carrier as to division of the through rate, the commission's order, dividing the through rate for shipment of such coal in proportion to the local rates of the carriers, held valid, as against contention that terminal railroad was not entitled to a revenue prorate for hauling its own coal over its own line. Texas-Mexican Ry. Co. v. Rio Grande & E. P. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 231 S. W. 308.

Such terminal carrier was not entitled to switching charges on cars stopped by it at the intermediate point where initial carrier's line terminated and its own line commenced, without informing initial carrier as to the cars so stopped and the number or identity thereof. Id.

Art. 6656. [4564] Rates to be held conclusive until, etc.

Conclusiveness of rates and orders.—Every shipper in interstate commerce is charged with notice of the terms of interstate tariffs governing his shipment. Shroyer v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 1095, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Shroyer, 197 S. W. 773, and judgment modified Shroyer v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 226 S. W. 140.

— Effect of special contracts.—That railroad had made contract with express company fixing its rate for facilities furnished the company at certain per cent. of its gross receipts with a guaranteed minimum payment did not estop it from denying reasonableness of similar rate fixed by court for facilities to be furnished another express company doing a much smaller business in a much smaller territory without such a guaranty as to minimum payment. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Empire Express Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 590, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 222.

Interstate shipment.—Where the tariffs filed for interstate transportation of cotton fixed Wichita Falls as the only concentration point at which cotton might be stopped in transit for compression or conditioning, but further provided that if accident or other cause renders any compress unavailable the carrier reserves the right to use any other available compress, the carrier, where the compress at Wichita Falls was unable to take sand out of the cotton, might contract for conditioning of the cotton at Ft. Worth, the conditioning of the cotton being for the benefit of the carrier; and hence the carrier, having so contracted, cannot recover more than the regular rate to Galveston. Schaff v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 223.

No interstate carrier can waive a requirement of the Interstate Commerce Act, or stipulation of contract made pursuant thereto. Shroyer v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 1095, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Shroyer, 197 S. W. 773, and judgment modified (Sup.) Shroyer v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co., 226 S. W. 140.

Representatives of interstate carrier cannot, by conversations, letters, and negotiations extending beyond time limited for suit by contract pursuant to the Interstate Commerce Act, estop the carrier to assert and invoke the limitation against the shipper. Id.

The Carmack Amendment (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8604a, 8604aa) prohibits the making of new oral agreements between the shipper and the carrier which are contrary to the schedules or tariffs on file with the Interstate Commerce Commission. City Nat. Bank of El Paso v. El Paso & N. E. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 391.

Art. 6657. [4565] When railway dissatisfied, may file petition, etc.

See Kohler v. United Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 337; Railroad Commission of Texas v. Rio Grande & E. P. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 230 S. W. 974.

Review of rates and orders—Scope of inquiry.—Courts may inquire into the reasonableness of the requirements as to facilities and of the rates as fixed, and if found unreasonable restrain their enforcement; but they cannot go further and determine facilities and establish rates deemed reasonable, the establishment of facilities and rates being a legislative function. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Empire Express Co. (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 590, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 173 S. W. 222.

Conclusiveness of court's decision.—A judgment setting aside order of Board of Railroad Commissioners without prejudice to a former order or right to make such future orders as it may deem just and reasonable held not to foreclose board from proceeding under a subsequent order providing apportionment of costs of building a union depot differently from order set aside. State v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 829.

Failure to ask review.—Under this article and art. 6672 held that, where a railroad company ordered by the Commission to stop certain trains at a county seat instead of instituting a suit to test the validity of the order saw fit to await proceedings against it by the state, it was proper to impose a penalty for each failure to stop. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. State of Texas, 246 U. S. 58, 38 Sup. Ct. 236, 62 L. Ed. 574.

Art. 6658. [4566] Burden of proof.

See Kohler v. United Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 337.

Burden of proof on plaintiff.—Under art. 6654, subd. 12, and this article, the burden rests upon a railroad company, assailing an order of the Railroad Commission requiring it to maintain a depot at a certain station, to show the unreasonableness of the exercise of the power vested in commission by statute. Angelina & N. R. R. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 703.

Art. 6670. [4574] "Unjust discrimination" defined.

See Quannah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Bone (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 332.

Construction of statute in general.—Under Const. art. 10, § 2, prohibiting unjust discrimination and this article, exemptions from the operation of the Anti-Pass Law (Acts 30th Leg. c. 42, as amended by Acts 32d Leg. c. 83), contained in section 2, are void except as to employes and their families, etc.; necessary caretakers; indigent poor; Confederate veterans; persons injured in wrecks, and physicians and nurses attending them; persons and property carried in general epidemic; articles sent to orphan homes, etc.; special rates authorized by the railroad commission; exchange privileges to bona fide officers and employes, and exchange of mileage for advertising space. State v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1006.

The doctrine that, if a common carrier does not charge one person more than the law permits, its rendition of similar service for others without charge is not unjust discrimination, does not apply in construing Const. art. 10, § 2, prohibiting unjust discrimination. Id.

Actions—in general.—Injunction held properly refused to restrain defendant from bringing a multiplicity of actions in the justice court against complainant, for damages for unjust discrimination, contrary to the statute, where it also appeared that defendant had sued complainant in the county court for the penalty prescribed for the violation of said provisions, and that, from the judgment in this case, an appeal would lie to the court of appeals. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Kuteman, 79 Tex. 465, 14 S. W. 693.

Under Const. art. 4, § 22, art. 10, § 2, and Acts 30th Leg. c. 42, § 9, Attorney General was authorized to sue to enjoin railroads of the state from granting passes to persons under unconstitutional exception in the Anti-Pass Law (Acts 30th Leg. c. 42, as amended by Acts 32d Leg. c. 83). State v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1006.

Art. 6671. [4575] Damages; penalty; venue in cases of discrimination.

See Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Bone (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 332.

Actions for damages.—Assuming that, before a shipper can recover the penalty for failure to maintain a freight depot at which his goods could be delivered to connecting carrier under this article, he must show pecuniary damage, such damage is shown in the interest upon the value of goods shipped and withheld. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Warren (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 814, 816.

Under this article, penalty for failure to maintain freight depots at junction points, is independent of the common-law right of action for refusing to deliver goods, and the remedy may be pursued without reference to actual damages. Id.

Art. 6672. [4576] Penalty not otherwise provided.

Penalties—For separate offenses.—Under this article, and art. 6657, where a railroad company ordered by the Commission to stop certain trains at a county seat instead of instituting a suit to test the validity of the order saw fit to await proceedings against it by the state, it was proper to impose a penalty for each failure to stop. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. State of Texas, 246 U. S. 58, 38 Sup. Ct. 236, 62 L. Ed. 574.

Art. 6675. [4579] All violations of duty to be reported to attorney general.

Actions—Where brought.—Injunction suit by state to compel railway company to obey orders of Railroad Commission not declared void by any court was properly brought in a state court; Judicial Code (Act Cong. March 3, 1911, c. 231, 36 Stat. 1148, 1149 [U. S. Comp. St. §§ 993, 997]), §§ 207, 208, not applying. Abilene & S. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 878.

Art. 6676. [4580] "Road," "railroad," "railroad companies," etc., defined. Law applies only to railroads in this state. One train a day to be run.

See St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. White, Jackson & Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 315.

Interstate commerce.—Under Interstate Commerce Act Feb. 4, 1887, c. 104, §§ 1, 3, 24 Stat. 379, 380 (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8563, 8565), Interstate Commerce Commission had no jurisdiction to regulate intrastate rates, although having an injurious effect upon interstate commerce. Abilene & S. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 878.

Where shipper contracted with one railroad in Arkansas to ship stock to Texarkana, where he received them personally and drove them across state line, and entered into contract with another railroad to ship them to another point in Texas, latter railroad could not claim that there was continuous shipment so as to entitle it to interstate rate. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stinson (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 476.

Maize shipped from one point in Texas through Oklahoma to another point in Texas was subject to the provisions of the federal Interstate Commerce Act (U. S. Comp. St. § 8563 et seq.). St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Shields Grain & Coal Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 183.

Under the Interstate Commerce Act and the Carmack Amendment thereto (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8604a, 8604aa) no discrimination will be permitted, directly or indirectly, by interstate carriers as between shippers. Shroyer v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 1095, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Shroyer, 197 S. W. 773, and judgment modified (Sup.) Shroyer v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co., 226 S. W. 140.

A shipment of cattle originating in Mexico carried to El Paso, Tex., is a foreign shipment, as the cattle were transported through a port of entry, notwithstanding the shipment was carried only a short distance in Texas. Mexico Northwestern Ry. Co. v. Williams (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 476.

Stopping trains at county seat towns.—Under this article, an order of the Railroad Commission requiring a railroad to stop two interstate trains at a county seat having a population of 1,500, and at which two other trains each way stopped daily, held not to impose an unreasonable burden on interstate commerce. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. State of Texas, 246 U. S. 58, 38 Sup. Ct. 236, 62 L. Ed. 574.

Though this article is not directed against interstate trains as such, the Railroad Commission was not deprived of power to require stopping of interstate trains at a county seat, thereby incidentally interfering with such trains, by section 1 of the Hepburn Amendment to Interstate Commerce Act (Act Feb. 4, 1887, c. 104, 24 Stat. 379, as amended by Act June 29, 1906, c. 3591, 34 Stat. 584 [U. S. Comp. St. § 8563]), and Act June 18, 1910, c. 309, § 7, 36 Stat. 544 (U. S. Comp. St. § 8563), requiring carriers to make reasonable regulations affecting the facilities for transportation and giving the Interstate Commerce Commission jurisdiction over such matters. Id.

AUTHORITY AND DUTIES OF COMMISSION OVER OTHER SUBJECTS*Art. 6677f. Objections to decisions, etc.; actions and appeals.

Party at interest.—A lumber company located upon the main line of a railroad company's track at a distance from other railroads is an interested party in a proceeding before the Railroad Commission by the company for permission to abandon such tracks and enter the city over the tracks of another road, under this article. Jeff Bland Lumber & Building Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 402.

Art. 6678. [4497] Railroad to furnish cars when demanded.

See note under art. 6680.

Time for supplying cars.—Generally, when cars are required by shipper, reasonable notice should be given by him, and a reasonable time allowed the company in which to procure cars. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Strickland (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 410.

Particular kind of car.—It was carrier's duty to furnish shipper a suitable car in which to transport its peanuts, whether they were green and uncured or dried and well cured; shipper being entitled to compensation for damages by reason of carrier's negligence. Cleburne Peanut & Products Co. v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 270, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1070.

Art. 6680. [4499] Penalty for failure to furnish.

Repeal.—Art. 709 is repealed by implication by this article and art. 6554. San Antonio & N. P. Ry. Co. v. Bailey (App.) 15 S. W. 203.

Defenses.—Where railroad accepts perishable goods with express or implied notice of the perishable character thereof, it is precluded, upon its failure to furnish cars, from asserting that it did not have the means or facilities for performing the duty it took upon itself; it being no defense that carrier did not own or control such cars or equipment. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Strickland (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 410.

An irregularity in shipper's application for car for shipment of poultry was waived by carrier, where trainmaster received order, acted on it, and finally furnished the car on the application. Id.

In action for failure to furnish car within a reasonable time after shipper's application in violation of duty under Interstate Commerce Act (U. S. Comp. St. § 8563, subd. 2), held, that the railroad's agent at one station had authority to receive application for car for shipment at another station. Id.

Action for breach of contract.—See note under art. 6690.

Art. 6682. To deliver loaded cars in reasonable time.

Consignee's liability—Demurrage.—Consignees held bound to unload within reasonable time and to have no right to retain possession of car and peddle goods therefrom at retail, and, failing to unload within reasonable time, are liable for demurrage and reasonable expenses. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. W. A. Nabors Fruit Co. (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 420.

Art. 6687. Shall furnish freight facilities, interchange cars, etc.

Duty to furnish facilities.—The duty of railway common carriers to furnish suitable cars is absolute, in view of this article. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Morehead (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 336.

Carrier, having contracted to deliver a shipment of stock to certain parties at a certain point, could not delegate its duty to provide proper facilities for delivering the stock in question to a switching company and thereby escape liability for the negligence of the switching company, under this article. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Hasse (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 448.

— Defective car.—A railroad is not responsible for a cause of action accruing after the Director General of Railroads took charge and after the promulgation of General Order No. 50, and while its line of railway was still in the hands of the federal government, and is in no way responsible for negligent acts of the servants in furnishing a leaky car for a shipment of chops. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Tanner (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 713.

Interchange of cars and freight.—Under this and related articles, defendant railroad has burden of showing that its failure to forward was excused by not receiving empty cars. Quanah, A. & P. Ry. Co. v. Bone (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 332.

A carrier transferring goods within time fixed by commission is not liable, although it might reasonably have done so sooner. Id.

In action against carrier for refusing to forward goods via a connecting line, an erroneous statement of route in billing does not excuse defendant, who knew such statement was erroneous and refused to forward for other reasons. Id.

Under this article, it is the duty of the connecting carrier to which a loaded car of stock is delivered to receive it as loaded, if suitable, and forward it; the initial carrier having the privilege of furnishing its own cars beyond the end of its line. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Morehead (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 336.

Art. 6688. To interchange cars at junction points.

Presumption of agreement.—Where there is no evidence that defendant initial carrier required connecting carrier to furnish an unloaded car, as required by this article, the court on appeal may, in aid of judgment below, assume that defendant's loaded car was delivered to connecting carrier pursuant to an agreement. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Morehead (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 336.

Art. 6689. Commission to make rules and regulations.

Demurrage.—Though cars were bunched through no fault of the carrier but owing to washouts over which it had no control, it could not collect demurrage for the free time which the rules grant the shipper under such conditions, making it impossible to get cars for loading and unloading, and which demurrage the rules also stipulate shall be refunded. Payne v. White House Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 417.

Art. 6690. Liable for damages, when.

Actions for damages.—Evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that a shipper of hogs had no knowledge of a shortage in cars at the time he placed his hogs in railroad stock pens. Texas Midland R. R. v. O'Kelley (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 152.

Liability for breach of special contract.—An action against a railroad company for breach of a parol agreement to furnish cars at a time specified is not an action for the penalty prescribed by art. 6680, for a failure to supply cars on written application, and is maintainable. Receivers of Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Graves (App.) 16 S. W. 102.

Though art. 6680 imposes a penalty on railroad companies for failure to furnish freight-cars after demand therefor in writing, an action will lie for the breach of an oral contract to furnish cars. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co. v. Harmonson (App.) 16 S. W. 539.

A carrier knowing of a car shortage cannot evade its obligation to furnish cars for hogs where it so contracted, where it did not notify the shipper of such shortage, to the shipper's damage, by showing that it would have been a discrimination against other shippers. Texas Midland R. R. v. O'Kelley (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 152.

A railroad is not liable for damages for failure to furnish car on seller's breach of contract requiring him to deliver goods f. o. b. cars at certain station within certain time, where seller had canceled order for car prior to expiration of time within which he could have made delivery under his contract with buyer. Hallam v. Duckworth (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 222

In action for breach of carrier's contract to deliver cars to orchard for shipment of peaches, evidence held insufficient to show that plaintiffs' damages certainly would have been diminished had they delivered fruit at station of defendant carrier or at that of another carrier. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Weems (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 972, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 184 S. W. 1103.

In such action, evidence held sufficient to authorize finding of making of contract substantially as alleged by plaintiffs. Id.

Art. 6693. Duty to provide suitable freight and passenger depots.

Affecting deliveries to connecting carrier.—See note to art. 6589.

Enjoining enforcement of order.—In action to enjoin enforcement of Railroad Commission's order requiring construction of depot building at certain place, the only question as to the unjustness and unreasonableness of the order, in view of this article, is whether sum required to be expended is reasonable. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 535.

In action to enjoin enforcement of Railroad Commission's order requiring construction of depot building, spur tracks, and sidings, special issue as to reasonableness of order was properly applied to both building and sidings, since it will not be assumed that sidings and spur tracks are indispensable to all stations. Id.

Evidence held to support verdict finding Railroad Commission's order directing construction of depot building, sidings, and spur tracks at expense of from $250 to $500 to be unfair and unreasonable to railroad. Id.

In passing upon reasonableness of Railroad Commission's order requiring construction of depot building at certain place, court will contrast expense of complying with order with inconvenience and hardships imposed on the public by reason of absence of facilities ordered. Id.

Under art. 6654, subd. 12, and this article, the burden rests upon a railroad company, assailing an order of the Railroad Commission requiring it to maintain a depot at a certain station, to show the unreasonableness of the exercise of the power vested in commission by statute. Angelina & N. R. R. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 703.

Depots and agents.—Under the statutes a place may become a "station" either by designation by the railroad, or by designation by statute, or by being established as a siding or stopping place to receive and discharge passengers and freight. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 535.

The duty imposed upon a railroad by this article, carries with it by necessary implication the furnishing of agents at such stations, and the Railroad Commission has power to secure compliance therewith. Angelina & N. R. R. Co. v. Railroad Commission of Texas (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 703.

Art. 6695. Commission may order construction of union depots.

Cost and location of building.—Where railroads objected to a union depot location fixed by the Railroad Commission, it devolved upon them to show a more suitable and less costly site, and, failing to do so, the issue was not raised by the evidence, and the court should have so instructed the jury. State v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 829.

The apportionment between three railroads of the costs of a union depot upon the basis of the user held proper. Id.

Art. 6715. To build sidings, etc., when.

Reasonableness of order.—The reasonableness and justness of Railroad Commission's order requiring construction of depot building and sidings and spur tracks, whether made pursuant to art. 6552 or this article, depends upon the facts of the particular case. Railroad Commission of Texas v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 535.

Art. 6716i. Arrangement of tracks and depot buildings.—The authority is hereby conferred upon the Railroad Commission of Texas to inquire into the proposed or existing arrangement of railroad tracks, and depot buildings, at railroad stations in this State to determine whether or not proposed or existing arrangements of such tracks, switches and depot buildings is or may be dangerous to the public and to determine whether or not the public interest demands or may demand a re-arrangement or relocation of such tracks, switches and depot buildings to be made, and to determine whether or not such rearrangement or relocation can be made upon terms and conditions reasonable and just to the person, firm, corporation or receiver owning or operating such tracks, switches and depot buildings, and the Railroad Commission may if the aforesaid question can, under the facts, be resolved affirmatively, thereupon give notice to such persons, firm, corporation or receiver, and after public hearing and investigation, may require the person, firm, corporation or receiver, owning or operating such tracks, switches and depot buildings at such points to arrange, or re-arrange, or relocate the same in accordance with the specifications made by the Railroad Commission. Provided however, that no such arrangement, re-arrangement, or relocation, shall be authorized, or required within the limits of any incorporated city or town without the express consent of the governing body of such city or town. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 93, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

ISSUANCE OF STOCKS AND BONDS REGULATED

Art. 6717. State vested with regulation of issue of bonds, stocks, etc.	Art. 6722. Authority to issue bonds to be secured.
6718. Prohibiting incumbrance above value.	6724. Prerequisites to issue of bonds. 6727. Certificates, bonds, etc., void.

Article 6717. [4584a] Regulation of issue of stocks, bonds, etc., by railroads vested in state.

Operation and effect.—Where note given by plaintiff to railway company for stock was turned over by it to defendant as collateral to note of company, plaintiff, who paid collateral note to defendant under mistaken belief induced by representations of defendant's agents that defendant was rightful and innocent holder, was entitled to recover money paid, the company's note being void for failure to comply with this and related articles. Lumpkin v. Brown (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 217.

Where note given by railway company for money borrowed was void for failure of officers of company to comply with this and following articles, defendant holder would have no right to enforce notes received by company for stock and pledged by it as collateral, although defendant had a cause of action against company on implied promise to pay money received. Id.

This and the succeeding related articles, cannot be evaded on ground that the railroad actually received money raised through execution of a note secured, among others, by stock subscription notes secured by deeds of trust on land, an indebtedness void under the statutes. Lumpkin v. Brown (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 498.

They do not render void the creation of indebtedness without the consent of the Commission which does not operate as a lien on property essential to or of use in operation of the road. Id.

Where a note executed by a railroad company secured by stock subscription notes secured by deeds of trust was void under this and following articles, as a transaction had without the consent of the Railroad Commission, and the stock subscriber paid his note to the bank holding it for collection on the advice of his attorney without knowledge of the illegal character of the indebtedness, and on the mistaken belief it was in the hands of an innocent holder for value, the stock subscriber is not estopped to demand return of the money paid on discovery of the violation of the statutes. Id.

See Lumpkin v. Brown (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 498; note under art. 6717.

Art. 6722. [4584f] Authority to issue bonds before completion of roads must be obtained, etc.

See Lumpkin v. Brown (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 498; note under art. 6717.

Art. 6724. [4584h] Prerequisites to the issue by railroad companies of bonds, etc.

Application.—This article does not apply to the lien created by law for labor, though the amount due therefor is represented by notes. Bryan College Interurban Ry. Co. v. Kropp (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 733.

Art. 6727. [4584k] Certificates, bonds, etc., void.

See Lumpkin v. Brown (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 498; note art. 6717.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

STREET RAILROADS

DECISIONS RELATING TO STREET RAILROADS IN GENERAL

II. REGULATION AND OPERATION

9½. Right to discontinue operation.—A street railroad cannot be prevented, not even by the city itself, from removing or abandoning track, in absence of provision in franchise. Jones v. Dallas Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 807.

Where street railroad's franchise provided that no tracks should be removed or operation of railroad thereon abandoned without the consent of the city, the railroad could remove track and abandon operation on procuring city's consent, notwithstanding opposition of abutting owners on streets affected by such removal. Id.

11. Care required in operation of road.—It is the duty of those operating street cars to use ordinary care to avoid injuring persons using the streets. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 739.

12. Right to use streets.—While a street railroad does not have the exclusive right to use its tracks upon a city street, yet its rights to their use between crossings is so far superior as to require of travelers a higher degree of caution. Ferrell v. Beaumont Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 654.

While the right of a steam railroad to use its tracks is superior to that of other persons, and one going upon the track at a crossing in front of a moving train ordinarily becomes a trespasser, such rule does not apply to street railroads in cities. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Terrazas (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 387.

Franchise granting the right to operate in the city a street railway system "comprising the property now owned and operated" by named existing companies, and such extensions and additions as should be made in accordance with the provisions of such franchise, held not to restrict the right to such streets as were at the time used for such purposes. Jones v. Dallas Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 807.

Such franchise held to empower the city to authorize an extension by resolution without an additional franchise adopted after three readings and 60 days suspension with opportunity for popular vote as required by Dallas City Charter, the right to construct and operate an addition or extension being not a right to be conferred by a franchise within article 2, § 8, subs. 1-4, but a privilege conferred by the original franchise. Id.

13. Defects in tracks or equipment and obstructions in streets.—Where a street railroad franchise provided that the traction company should hold the city harmless for damages to property or injuries to persons by reason of the construction of the railroad, the traction company was liable to the city for a judgment against the city in favor of a pedestrian, injured by city's passive neglect to repair a culvert, crushed by a wagon used by traction company in hauling gravel for the construction of the road. City of Polytechnic v. Redmon (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 730.

Such franchise imposed a liability on the traction company, even though the driver of the wagon was an independent contractor. Id.

18. Injuries to persons on or near tracks—Signals and lookouts.—An ordinance providing that drivers shall look out for and give right of way to vehicles approaching from the driver's right does not relieve a motorman from the duty to look out for an automobile approaching from his left. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Benjamin (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 996.

22. Contributory negligence—In general.—In the absence of a city ordinance requiring pedestrians to cross streets only at places indicated, it is not negligence per se to undertake to cross a street at other places than street intersections. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Allen (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 739.

One who without warning found her child's life in imminent danger, her clothes being afire by reason of the negligence of a third person, was not guilty of contributory negligence in putting out the fire with her hands. Wichita Falls Traction Co. v. Hibbs (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 287.

23. — Drivers of vehicles and persons therein.—Where plaintiff at driver's invitation jumped upon the run board of an automobile upon a city street between crossings, and before he could enter the automobile it was struck by a street car, which was in plain view, and plaintiff did not attempt to keep any lookout, he was guilty of contributory negligence. Ferrell v. Beaumont Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 654.

It is negligence per se to drive an automobile upon a street in violation of an ordinance requiring the use of a mirror to indicate to the driver vehicles following the car, where the automobile was so inclosed by curtains that the driver could not see to the rear. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Terrazas (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 387.

Negligence of a driver of an automobile will not be imputed to one riding as a passenger. Texas Electric Ry. Co. v. Crump (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 827.

25. Proximate cause of injury.—Where a child's clothing caught fire from a charcoal stove negligently left in the street and the mother burnt her hands in extinguishing the fire, negligence in leaving the stove was the proximate and efficient cause of the mother's injuries. Wichita Falls Traction Co. v. Hibbs (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 287.

Negligence on the part of the plaintiff will not bar recovery for injuries resulting from the negligent act of the defendant, unless plaintiff's negligence was the proximate cause of the injury. Dallas Ry. Co. v. Eaton (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 318.

26. Injury avoidable notwithstanding contributory negligence.—No recovery can be had under the last clear chance doctrine in the absence of proof that defendant's motorman discovered deceased's peril in time, by the exercise of due care and the use of the means at hand, to have prevented injury. Southern Traction Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 199.

In action against railroad for death of a person on the track, under the discovered peril doctrine, negligence in failing to discover deceased's perilous situation is immaterial. Id.

A street car company does not have the exclusive right to the use of the street and its operatives are bound to prevent collision with automobiles if possible after discovering peril. Houston Electric Co. v. Schmidt (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 617.

Before the doctrine of negligence after discovered peril can apply, it must be shown that the person alleged to have been negligent actually discovered the peril. Nicholson v. Houston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 632.

Contributory negligence of the owner of an automobile struck by a street car at a street intersection does not bar recovery for injury resulting from failure on the part of the motorman, after he discovered the danger, to use proper care to avoid the collision; the automobile owner having done all he could to get his automobile out of the way of the street car as soon as he discovered it. Southwestern Gas & Electric Co. v. Grant (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 544.

The motorman of a street car, after discovering the peril of the driver of a horse and buggy on the track, is required only to exercise that degree of care which a person of ordinary prudence would use under the same or similar circumstances, by the use of all the means at his command consistent with the safety of the car and its passengers, to avoid the injury. Paris Transit Co. v. Fath (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 1030.

27. Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held sufficient to sustain a finding that a street car actually struck a wagon loaded with hay and caused it to turn over. Corpus Christi Street & Interurban Ry. Co. v. Kjellberg (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1032.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain a verdict that the motorman was negligent after discovering plaintiff's peril. Houston Electric Co. v. Schmidt (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 617.

Evidence held to show that plaintiff's injury, resulting from his jumping upon the run board of an automobile just before its collision with a street car, was caused by contributory negligence in not seeing the car, and not by mistake of judgment. Ferrell v. Beaumont Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 654.

Evidence held sufficient to support jury's finding that deceased was killed by collision of the automobile he was driving with defendant's street car. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Terrazas (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 387.

A finding that it was negligence to operate a street car at a speed of 25 miles per hour near a crossing held warranted by the evidence. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 275.

In an action by one injured while riding in an automobile which collided with a street car, evidence held to sustain a finding that the street car was operated at a dangerous rate of speed. Texas Electric Ry. Co. v. Crump (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 827.

In an action for personal injuries, evidence held to show damages. Id.

In an action for injuries to an automobile passenger, crushed between two street cars evidence held not to sustain allegations of violation of street car company's rules as to speed of meeting cars, or that cars were negligently operated at dangerous speed. Nicholson v. Houston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 632.

In action against street railroad for damages to automobile driven upon track in front of moving car, evidence held to support railroad's claim that accident was caused by contributory negligence. San Antonio Public Service Co. v. Tracy (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 637.

Evidence held to justify a finding that defendant was the owner of the tracks upon which the collision occurred, so as to warrant an inference that the street car belonged to defendant. Texas Electric Ry. v. Whitmore (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 644.

28½. Amount of damages.—Where plaintiff was 33 years old and earning about $90 per month at the time of injury after which he was helpless and unable to work at all, an award of $3,000 will not be set aside as excessive. Houston Electric Co. v. Schmidt (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 617.

Where the Legislature, in passing an act giving an employe of the state railroad permission to sue for injury, provided that limitations should not begin to run until the passage of the act, such act was not under the ban interdicting retroactive statutes. Id.

[Acts 1921, 37th Leg., 2d C. S., ch. 4, § 1, adding § 3a to Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 26.]

Art. 6745s. If board cannot sell or lease road it may operate same.—If the Board of Managers cannot sell said railroad or lease the same to an advantage, then it is hereby authorized to continue to operate the same upon the most economical bases possible, and until such time as the Board may be able to find a satisfactory purchaser for said railroad or lease the same to an advantage, and for the purpose of rehabilitating said railroad and putting the same in shape so that traffic may move over the same in safety, there is hereby appropriated out of any funds in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated, the sum of Twenty-five Thousand ($25,000.00) Dollars to be used in the payment for repairs and operation from the date of the taking effect of this Act, which with the operating revenue derived from the railroad, to be paid by warrants, drawn upon the State Treasury, by the Comptroller upon order of the Board of Managers. Disbursements.—All disbursements and payments of every nature whatsoever, including interline balances shall be paid by warrant of the Comptroller upon the Treasury drawn by him upon due order of the Board of Managers. Interline balances shall be carried by the Comptroller as a separate trust fund for the benefit of connecting lines entitled to revenue funds collected by said railroad. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 6745v. Deposit of funds.—All current funds received by the Board of Managers or any station agent of such railroad shall be forthwith transmitted to such State bank as may be designated by the Board of Managers as a depository of such funds. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., 2d C. S., ch. 4, § 1, adding § 7a to Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 26.]

SUPPLYING LOST RECORDS, ETC.

Article 6784 [4600] Original deeds, etc., recorded again, when.

When original not filed in time former record ceases to be constructive notice.—Where deeds are not re-recorded after the destruction of the records, the first record does not constitute notice as against a bona fide purchaser. Weber v. Moss (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 609.

REGISTRATION

Chap.

1. Recorders and their duties.
2. Acknowledgment and proof of deeds, etc., for record.

Chap.

3. Instruments authorized to be recorded, and the effect of recording.
5. General provisions.

CHAPTER ONE

RECORDERS AND THEIR DUTIES

Art.

6789. Shall keep memorandum and give receipt.
6790. Shall record without delay in the order presented.

Art.

6791. Record shall take effect, when.
6796. Separate record books.

Article 6789. [4605] Shall keep a memorandum and give receipts, etc.

See Kennard v. Mabry, 78 Tex. 151, 14 S. W. 272.

Art. 6790. [4606] Shall record without delay in the order presented.

Cited, Spence v. Brown (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 983.

Application to judgment abstracts.—Since Rev. St. 1879, tit. 61, c. 1, prescribing the manner in which liens under judgments may be acquired, was evidently intended to be complete within itself, it is unaffected by Rev. St. 1879, tit. 86, c. 1, art. 4298, providing that each recorder shall record every "instrument of writing" authorized to be recorded by him, and deposited with him for record, "with the acknowledgments, proofs, affidavits and certificates written or printed on the same," etc., even if the language of such section is broad enough to apply to the record of an abstract of a judgment for the purpose of acquiring a lien. Spence v. Brown, 86 Tex. 430, 25 S. W. 413.

Art. 6791. [4607] Record shall take effect from date of deposit.

See Wilson v. Simpson, 80 Tex. 279, 16 S. W. 40.

Notice from time of deposit, though not recorded.—Where an abstract of judgment is filed for record prior to the deposit of a deed, and is recorded the day after the deposit of said deed, but before the deed is actually recorded, held, under Rev. St. 1879, art. 3159, providing that "an abstract of judgment shall operate as a lien, from the date of its record and index, on all real estate," etc., and by virtue of Rev. St. 1879, art. 4299, declaring that deeds "shall be deemed recorded from the time they are deposited with the proper officer for record, if properly authenticated," the party claiming under the deed has a title good against the lien of the judgment. Belbaze v. Ratto, 69 Tex. 636, 7 S. W. 501.

When instrument is deemed filed or recorded.—An instrument is entitled to record upon its arrival or deposit in the county clerk's office, whether sent by mail or messenger, or handed to the clerk elsewhere and carried there by him. Jones v. MacCorquodale (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 59, 62; Same v. Maes (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 59, 62.

That persons presenting for filing in the county clerk's office applications for oil and mineral permits deposited them on the counter, without formally accosting or requesting the deputy to file them, until after another applicant had made such request, entitled him to no priority, as under this article, an instrument is filed when deposited for that purpose in the county clerk's office. Id.

Mortgage recorded in book of deeds.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4334, providing that mortgages shall be valid from the time they are filed for record, and the like provisions of articles 4299, 4332, an absolute deed intended as a mortgage, but recorded in a book of deeds, is valid against purchasers and creditors, though art. 4304 provides that mortgages shall be recorded in separate books. Kennard v. Mabry, 78 Tex. 151, 14 S. W. 272.

Art. 6796. [4612] Mortgages, etc., to be recorded in separate book.

Mechanics' liens.—Rev. St. 1879, art. 4304, does not contemplate that liens shall be recorded separately from each other. The registration, therefore, of a mechanic's lien in a book in which mortgages are recorded, is proper. Quinn v. Logan, 67 Tex. 600, 4 S. W. 247.

Contract for lien.—Where an instrument, like a contract for a lien on a homestead, does not require recording to make it valid between the parties, the filing of it with the clerk makes it notice to subsequent purchasers, and it is immaterial that it is recorded in a book with deeds. Lignoski v. Crooker, 86 Tex. 324, 24 S. W. 278.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT AND PROOF OF DEEDS, ETC., FOR RECORD

Art. 6797. Before whom acknowledgment may be made in this state.	Art. 6803. Certificate of officer.
6798. Without this state and within the United States.	6804. Form of certificate of acknowledgment.
6800. Acknowledgment, how made.	6805. Form of acknowledgment by a married woman.
6801. Party must be known or proven.	6806. Proof of instrument by witness.
6802. Acknowledgment of married woman, when and how taken.	6807. Witness must be personally known to the officer.

Article 6797. [4613] Before whom acknowledgments may be made in this state.

Cited, Brittain v. Monsur (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 911.

Disqualification of officer.—See Hamilton County Development Co. v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 116.

Evidence held insufficient to show that a notary was financially interested in a transaction so as to be disqualified to take an acknowledgment. Creosoted Wood Block Paving Co. v. McKay (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 822.

A grantee directly interested in the deed was not competent to take the acknowledgment of either of the grantors, husband and wife; and acknowledgments taken by him were invalid, and gave no force whatever to the instrument. Vauter v. Greenwood (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 269.

Art. 6798. [4614] Without this state and within the United States.

Cited, Brittain v. Monsur (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 911.

Art. 6800. [4616] Acknowledgment, how made.

See Belbaze v. Ratto, 69 Tex. 636, 7 S. W. 501; Royal Neighbors of America v. Fletcher (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 476.

Cited, Brittain v. Monsur (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 911.

Certificate—Requisites and sufficiency.—Certificate of acknowledgment not bearing seal of notary was insufficient to admit deed to record, and such deed was inadmissible in evidence in support of five years statute of limitation in trespass to try title. McDonald v. Stanfield (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 892.

Art. 6801. [4617] Party must be known or proven.

See Salmon v. Huff, 80 Tex. 133, 15 S. W. 1047; Royal Neighbors of America v. Fletcher (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 476.

Proof of identity.—A deed cannot be read in evidence as a recorded instrument if the certificate of acknowledgment fails to show that the person making it was known to the officer, or his identity proved. McKie v. Anderson, 78 Tex. 207, 14 S. W. 576; Frost v. Erath Cattle Co., 81 Tex. 505, 17 S. W. 52, 26 Am. St. Rep. 831.

Where a tax deed is signed, "B., Tax Collector of C. County," a certificate reciting "Personally appeared B., tax collector of said county, to me well known and acknowledged," etc., is sufficient. Schleicher v. Gatlin, 85 Tex. 270, 20 S. W. 120.

Under this article, where notary public has not personal knowledge of identity of party who makes acknowledgment before him, he takes such acknowledgment at his own risk, unless he complies with the statute as to proof of identity by oath or affirmation of credible witness. Brittain v. Monsur (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 911.

In action by buyer of land against notary on ground he relied on false certificate of acknowledgment of notary to deed to grantor, and thereby failed to get title which he would have gotten if certificate had been true, title to land was mere incident, and, it not being disputed by defendant notary, plaintiff did not need to show that if certificate had been true he would have acquired good title because party purporting to have acknowledged was owner. Id.

Art. 6802. [4618] Acknowledgment of married woman, when and how taken.

See Royal Neighbors of America v. Fletcher (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 476.

Cited, Thompson v. Johnson, 84 Tex. 548, 19 S. W. 784; Hynson v. Gulf Production Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 873.

In general.—The leading purpose of the statute was to secure freedom of will and action on the part of the wife. Angier v. Coward, 79 Tex. 551, 15 S. W. 698.

Where oil lease executed by husband and wife, covering their homestead, was signed and acknowledged by the wife merely for the purpose of enabling lessee to secure other leases, and without intent on her part to convey her rights in the homestead, and lessee had notice thereof, the lease was inoperative as a conveyance of an interest in the homestead, in view of arts. 1115, 6802, and 6805. McEntire v. Thomason (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 563.

Necessity of acknowledgment.—No title to homestead passed by quitclaim deed executed by husband alone, in violation of arts. 1115, 4621, 6802, 6803, and Const. art. 16, § 50. Clark v. Tulley (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 605.

Explanation by officer.—Deed executed by married woman to her separate land did not pass title, where it does not appear from acknowledgment that deed was explained to her, and that she willingly signed it and declared that she did not wish to retract. Smith's Heirs v. Hirsch (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 754.

In an action to cancel a deed to a homestead where the contents of the deed were not explained to grantor's wife by the notary taking her acknowledgment as required by statute, that fact of itself would be sufficient to authorize cancellation. Stephenson v. Arceneaux (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 729.

— Privily and apart.—See Waller v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 893.

Where a deed conveying land which was wife's separate property was signed by husband and wife, and it did not appear that the wife was examined privily and apart from her husband, the conveyance was void. Dupuy v. Dicks (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 49.

In the conveyance of the homestead, the wife has until the very last moment of her privy examination within which to retract her contract or act in conveying the homestead. Maynard v. Gilliam (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 818.

The requirement of the statute that the acknowledgment of a married woman "shall be privily and apart from her husband" is met if at the time the husband is not within distance to hear, or in any other matter exercise a possible influence over her by his presence or nearness. Richmond v. Hog Creek Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 563.

Rights of married women where acknowledgment is defective or procured by fraud.—In a suit to cancel an oil lease, a finding that defendants were without notice of a defective acknowledgment by plaintiff wife held sustained by the evidence, notwithstanding evidence that one of defendants was present at the time the acknowledgment was taken, and that notary did not remain with plaintiff's wife after the departure of plaintiff husband and lessee. Richmond v. Hog Creek Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 563.

Art. 6803. [4619] Certificate of officer.

See note under art. 6800; Royal Neighbors of America v. Fletcher (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 476.

Cited, Brittain v. Monsur (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 911.

In general.—No title to homestead passed by quitclaim deed executed by husband alone, in violation of arts. 1115, 4621, 6802, 6803, and Const. art. 16, § 50. Clark v. Tulley (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 605.

Necessity of proper certificate.—In partition suit of property conveyed to plaintiff by a divorced woman, but claimed by her to be conveyed to plaintiff merely as trustee to recover possession from her former husband, but alleged by plaintiff to constitute an absolute conveyance, whether the certificate of acknowledgment was valid was immaterial, since, if title otherwise passed, failure of acknowledgment would not render it inoperative. Allen v. Williams (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 135.

Conclusiveness and impeachment of certificate.—A certificate of acknowledgment in due form is conclusive in the absence of fraud or imposition. Fagan v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 346; Texas Co. v. Keeter (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 521.

A married woman is not estopped by the certificate of a notary to deny her want of knowledge of the terms of a lease which she was led to believe by the grantee and notary was different from the one actually signed and different from the one she had agreed to make. Davis v. Burkholder (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1101.

A certificate of a notary regular in form cannot be impeached in the absence of allegations connecting the grantee with notice of failure of the officer to perform his duty in taking the acknowledgment or allegations of fraud with which the grantee is connected. Crabb v. Bell (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 623.

The rule that a notary's certificate, regular in form, cannot be impeached except where the grantee has notice of the officer's failure to perform his duty, or for the grantee's fraud, does not apply where the purchaser is charged with notice before he pays the purchase money that the certificate does not speak the truth and that the acknowledgment of a married woman, one of the grantors, was not taken as required by law. Id.

In an action by a wife to cancel a deed executed by her and her husband, evidence held sufficient to support a finding that notary public took plaintiff's acknowledgment as required by law and as stated in the certificate. Dendinger v. Martin (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1095.

Where a married woman executes a conveyance of her separate property or homestead, and such conveyance is accompanied with a certificate of acknowledgment regular in every respect, then the instrument is operative as against a purchaser in good faith who has paid a valuable consideration therefor, although notary has not properly explained the instrument to the married woman, and had her declare that she did not desire to retract it, as required by statute. Richmond v. Hog Creek Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 563.

Art. 6804. [4620] Form of certificate of acknowledgment.

See Salmon v. Huff, 80 Tex. 133, 15 S. W. 1047; Royal Neighbors of America v. Fletcher (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 476.

Cited, Brittain v. Monsur (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 911.

Certificate—Requisites and sufficiency—In general.—A certificate which literally complies with this form, except in using "T" instead of the words "Before me," is good, and entitles the deed to be recorded. Belbaze v. Ratto, 69 Tex. 636, 7 S. W. 501.

Art. 6805. [4621] Form of acknowledgment by a married woman.

See McEntire v. Thomason (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 563; Dupuy v. Dicks (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 49; Royal Neighbors of America v. Fletcher (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 476.

Matters which must be certified.—A certificate of acknowledgment which does not state substantially all the facts prescribed is not sufficient to give validity to the instrument. Jones v. Robbins, 74 Tex. 615, 12 S. W. 824.

— Identity.—Where a tax deed is signed, "B., Tax Collector of C. County," a certificate reciting "Personally appeared B., tax collector of said county, to me well known and acknowledged," etc., is sufficient. Schleicher v. Gatlin, 85 Tex. 270, 20 S. W. 120.

Court properly admitted deed from husband and wife, notary's certificate to wife's acknowledgment falling to state she was known to him, or that proof was made of her identity; certificate in question having been made May 2, 1879, before the statute requiring such statement took effect. Fortenberry v. Cruse (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 523.

— Examined privily and apart.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4313, a certificate which merely recites that "the grantors appeared before me in person, and acknowledged that they signed, sealed, and delivered the said instrument as their free and voluntary act, for the use and purposes therein set forth, including the release and waiver of the rights of homestead," is defective, and, in the absence of evidence that the wife was examined according to the statute, the heirs of the wife are not estopped to deny title in one who holds by purchase of the grantee. Williams v. Ellingsworth, 75 Tex. 480, 12 S. W. 746.

Certificate of acknowledgment of married women, dated in 1859, held sufficient as to separate examination and explanation of transaction. (Per Brooke, J.) Lewis v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 607.

An instrument, executed by the heirs, confirming a distribution of the property by the executor, cannot operate as a conveyance of an interest of a married woman in the property, where she was not examined separate from her husband in taking her acknowledgment, as required by arts. 6805, 1114. Waller v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 893.

Art. 6806. [4622] Proof of instrument by witness.

Cited, Brittain v. Monsur (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 911.

Art. 6807. [4623] Witness must be personally known to officer.

Cited, Brittain v. Monsur (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 911.

CHAPTER THREE

INSTRUMENTS AUTHORIZED TO BE RECORDED, AND THE EFFECT OF RECORDING

Art. 6821. Patents and grants may be recorded without proof.	Art. 6833. Transfer of judgments to be recorded.
6822. Copies of archives recorded.	6835. Partition to be recorded.
6823. What may be recorded.	6837. Suit for land, notice to be filed.
6824. All sales to be void as to creditors and purchasers unless registered.	6838. Record of, how made.
6826. English language to be used.	6839. Transfers without notice valid.
6828. Deeds valid, etc., against subsequent creditors from, etc.	6840. Effect of notice.
6829. Marriage contract valid, when.	6841. Titles to chattels, where recorded.
6832. Judgments to be recorded.	6842. Record of any grant, etc., when notice.

Article 6821. [4637] Patents and grants may be recorded without proof.

Cited, Le Doux v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 902.

Art. 6822. [4638] Copies of archives recorded.

Cited, Robertson v. Du Bose, 76 Tex. 1, 13 S. W. 300.

Certified copy of county record.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4330, where a transfer of a bounty warrant issued for military service was recorded in the general land office, and a certified copy of such record was registered in the county wherein the land was situated, a certified copy of the county records was admissible in evidence. Tevis v. Collier, 84 Tex. 638, 19 S. W. 801.

Art. 6823. [4639] What may be recorded.

In general.—The recordation of a deed is not essential to its validity. McBride v. Loomis (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 480.

The policy of the registration laws requires that the public records disclose all matters affecting land titles. Leonard v. Benford Lumber Co., 110 Tex. 83, 216 S. W. 382.

What may be recorded—Deeds, conveyances, mortgages, etc.—Deed reserving vendor's lien and purchase-money note reciting that it was secured by such lien are entitled to registration under this article. Price v. Traders' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 934.

A conveyance of a donation certificate before location thereunder was properly recorded after location of the land, under this article. Leonard v. Benford Lumber Co., 110 Tex. 83, 216 S. W. 382.

— Instrument of adoption.—Art. 1 contemplates that an instrument of adoption shall be recorded, and therefore it must be either duly authenticated or acknowledged in the manner required for the proof of deeds for registration. Royal Neighbors of America v. Fletcher (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 476.

— Assignment of rents and royalties.—The assignment of money rentals and royalties due for certain years under an oil lease was not subject to the registration laws, nor the law merchant, not being a "deed, conveyance, or instrument concerning lands or tenements," within the meaning of the registration statute, being personal property, a nonnegotiable chose in action. Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank of Ranger v. Tullis (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 847.

— Assignment of vendor's lien notes.—See Etheridge v. Campbell (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 441; Traders' Nat. Bank v. Price (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 160.

— Assignment of purchaser's interest in land contract.—Instrument assigning purchaser's interest under a contract for the sale of lands held an instrument "concerning lands" within this article, and, being properly acknowledged, to be entitled to record. J. M. Frost & Sons v. Cramer (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 838.

Art. 6824. [4640] All sales, etc., to be void as to creditors and purchasers, unless registered.

Cited, Falls Land & Cattle Co. v. Chisholm, 71 Tex. 523, 9 S. W. 479.

2. Laws do not apply to trusts, etc., arising by operation of law.—That wife has advanced funds from her separate estate to pay for land does not give her right which may not be defeated by unauthorized sale of land to bona fide purchaser for value, regardless of fact that her equity was not susceptible of record. Martin v. Granger (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 666.

Where a judgment was rendered against a husband, holding title to wife's land under resulting trust, and another, who as to the debt was a surety only, the surety taking note of husband secured by a trust deed on the wife's land without notice and paying the judgment was a bona fide purchaser as against the wife, but not as to balance of a note which had been given by the husband prior to the trust deed and mentioned therein as being secured. Chalk v. Daggett (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1057.

3. Patents not within article.—In a proceeding by the state and purchasers from it, in trespass to try title, opposed by claimants under a Mexican grant, where such grant was void, its record, with the field notes accompanying it, in the county, or the filing of a copy of it and the field notes in the Land Office, afforded no character of notice to such purchasers, and a resurvey, based upon the void grant, was wholly without authority and the filing of the field notes thereof could not operate as notice, so that, even if diligently pursued, such knowledge could only lead to ascertainment of the void grant, and the purchasers from the state are innocent. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Sup.) 231 S. W. 683.

4. "Creditors and purchasers for a valuable consideration without notice."—Rev. St. 1879, art. 4332, applies to bona fide purchasers at sale specially ordered by the court. Ward v. League (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 986.

A creditor who has fixed a lien upon land by the levy of attachment or other judicial process or by the filing of abstract of judgment in the deed records, is a "creditor" within this article. Diltz v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 356.

5. Bona fide purchasers—In general.—Purchaser of land sold on alias execution under judgment recovered by vendors against vendee and assigned, abstract of judgment being legally issued and filed for record, held not in position of one who finds record title in judgment debtor, and fixes lien on his property which would be effective, though debtor may have conveyed to another by unrecorded deed, being in position of claiming lien on property not shown by record to be debtor's. Lewis v. San Antonio Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 552, 991.

If as a matter of fact property was a rural homestead at the time it was sold at sheriff's sale, no issue of innocent purchaser could arise as between the original owner and vendee of the purchaser at the sheriff's sale. O'Fiel v. Janes (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 371.

An assignee of a lease, not so worded as to constitute an interest in land, but merely giving to lessee the right to go on the land and to bore for oil and gas and sulphur, and to extract such minerals, if found, from the soil, does not have the rights of an innocent purchaser for value. Varnes v. Dean (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1017.

6. Mode and form of conveyance—In general.—Under a special warranty deed warranting the title "by, through, or under me, but not otherwise," but purporting "to convey the land," a grantee may become a purchaser unaffected by undisclosed equities. Johnson v. Marti (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 726.

Under a general assignment for the benefit of creditors, all the property of the debtor, except that exempt from forced sale, passes to the assignee, whether included in the inventory or not, and parties dealing with the property who are not in possession of facts sufficient to put them upon inquiry, have a right to rely upon the record as to its true ownership, so that the transfer of vendor's lien notes, which is within the registration statutes, and which notes purchaser failed to register, will not sustain a claim of transferee's right to the ownership against the innocent purchaser under the general assignment. Etheridge v. Campbell (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 441.

An oil lease giving the lessee right to drill for oil within six months, and, in the alternative, to pay 25 cents an acre rentals per annum, confers a mere right or equity, and sublessees, as against the lessors attacking the original lease, cannot claim that they are within the rule of protection of purchasers for value without notice of the vice in the original consideration in the original lease, since such rule extends only to cases where the purchasers have taken a conveyance. Hitson v. Gilman (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 140.

Where the vendor of land, having assigned to T. vendor's lien notes with the lien securing their payment "together with the superior title," acted as T.'s agent in procuring from the purchaser of the land a conveyance by quitclaim to T. in satisfaction of the notes held by T., but the vendor, in fraud of his principal, T., prior to procuring the quitclaim, procured from the purchaser, without any consideration, a gas and oil lease in the name of E., which lease did not convey the minerals in place, but amounted merely to a grant of the right or option to prospect upon the land for oil, gas, and other minerals and to reduce those minerals to possession and ownership, assignees of this lease could not claim as innocent purchasers, both because they themselves were the assignees, not of an interest in land, but of a mere option, and also because the purchaser under whom they claimed did not have the superior legal title, but merely held under an executory contract, so that his title was equitable. Taylor v. Turner (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1031.

7. — Quitclaim.—A deed warranting title only against persons claiming under the grantors is a conveyance of the title, and not merely a quitclaim, so that a grantee thereunder can claim the protection due an innocent purchaser. Crow v. Van Ness (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 539.

8. Notice—In general.—One purchasing land is not bound by a trust agreement between his grantor and a third person, where he has neither actual nor constructive notice thereof. Johnson v. Marti (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 726.

9. — Actual notice.—One who purchased with knowledge that a deed absolute in form to his grantor was in fact intended as security for a debt occupied no better position than his grantor, and acquired no title to the land. Hays v. Morris (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 672.

First wife of decedent claiming land in trespass to try title in the right of her son against the second wife held not a bona fide purchaser in good faith, having notice when she purchased her son's interest of the second wife's claim, and not having paid valuable consideration. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 202.

10. — Effect of notice.—A purchaser's title is unaffected by notice of a claim under a contract; claimant, by reason of forfeiture of contract, having no title or right enforceable against the vendor. Wilson v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 285.

One who purchased oil and mineral lease with constructive notice of outstanding purchase-money notes against the land could not hold the minerals in the absence of an offer to redeem by paying off the notes. Taylor v. Turner (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1031.

11. — Constructive notice and facts putting on inquiry.—Company having purchased purchaser's equity in land was chargeable with notice of vendor's title and rights. Rockhill Country Club Co. v. Nix (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 155.

Where owner of homestead not fully paid for contracted for erection of house, and being unable to meet his payments, arranged with contractor for taking of title in his name to be subsequently transferred to owner incumbered with vendor's lien, that deed from original vendor to contractor had not been recorded was not sufficient to put bank purchasing vendor's lien note on notice of irregularity in title. Martin v. Granger (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 666.

If a lessee under an oil and gas lease had notice prior to execution of the lease that a third person was claiming the land under an unrecorded contract of sale, an assignee of the lease was charged with such notice. Aurelius v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 863.

Purchaser of a vendor's lien note was not chargeable with knowledge of an agent of the seller that the note was given in a simulated sale of a homestead. Harrison v. First State Bank of Lewisville (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 269.

Knowledge by attorneys acquiring an undivided interest in land for legal services of existence on the land of an expensive pumping plant and pipe line, and that third persons were exercising absolute control over the plant and all the rights of ownership, and using a road, was sufficient to put a prudent man on inquiry, and the inference arises that the attorneys obtained information as to the interest which such third person had in the land, such as a perpetual easement or license. Markley v. Christen (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 150.

Purchaser at sale under judgment foreclosing a vendor's lien is not an innocent purchaser, he having acted wholly through an agent, and so been charged with his knowledge that the owners of the land had not been cited nor represented in the action by an attorney having authority to do so. Levy v. Roper (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 514.

Notice to a purchaser of land that there was a clerical defect in the description of land contained in the judgment, which was part of his chain of title, does not charge him with notice that the judgment was erroneous in so far as it divested the interest of an heir. Crow v. Van Ness (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 539.

12. — Recitals in conveyance.—See art. 6842, and notes.

Assignees of an interest in a recorded oil and gas lease can rely on the recital of payment of consideration in the lease, though in fact the consideration was never paid. Hickernell v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 691.

13. — Records and facts of which record is notice and unrecorded instruments.—See art. 6842, and notes.

Though under this article, the failure to record a mortgage would not affect its validity, and though under most circumstances a mortgage to secure a valid debt cannot be held fraudulent, a mortgage given with the understanding that it would not be recorded lest other creditors take action, and in order that the contracting of new debts might not be interfered with, might be set aside as in fraud of creditors. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Penland, 247 Fed. 480, 159 C. C. A. 534.

Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4334, providing that mortgages shall be valid from the time they are filed for record, and the like provisions of arts. 4299, 4332, an absolute deed intended as a mortgage, but recorded in a book of deeds, is valid against purchasers and creditors, though art. 4304 provides that mortgages shall be recorded in separate books. Kennard v. Mabry, 78 Tex. 151, 14 S. W. 272.

Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4332, a written agreement by a grantee of land to reconvey on certain conditions, which agreement was not filed for record, does not affect a lien acquired by levy, by a judgment creditor against the holder of the legal title without notice of such agreement; and, where the creditor purchases at the sheriff's sale made under the levy, he will take title as against the persons entitled to the reconveyance, though he had notice of the agreement before the sheriff's certificate was issued. Stephens v. Keating (Sup.) 17 S. W. 37.

Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4332, a judgment in condemnation proceedings by a railway company must be recorded in order to protect the company from the claims of a subsequent purchaser from the landowner. Parker v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 84 Tex. 333, 19 S. W. 518.

A forged deed is void and ineffective, and reliance upon it by a purchaser cannot affect the rights of the owner of the property. Alamo Trust Co. v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 413.

The common-law rule that a judgment lien attaches only to such estate in land as is owned by judgment debtor at the time the abstract of judgment was filed, notwithstanding a prior unrecorded deed, has been abrogated by this article. Diltz v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 356.

When a deed is executed and delivered, the title to the land vests in the grantee, whether the deed is recorded or not. Lewis v. San Antonio Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 552.

Under art. 5616, despite article 1104, purchaser of land sold on alias execution under judgment recovered by vendors against vendee and assigned, abstract of judgment being legally issued and filed for record, held to take subject to title previously conveyed away by vendee by deed not filed for record until more than three weeks after abstract of judgment was filed, recorded, and indexed, as record of abstract of judgment creates lien only on property actually owned by judgment debtor. Id.

If purchaser of land did not know prior to purchase that deed to his grantor was a mortgage, he was in law an innocent purchaser for value as against heirs of mortgagor. Meyer v. Sheffield (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 679.

An unrecorded instrument, releasing portions of land from vendor's lien, does not affect rights of subsequent purchaser of note secured by lien, who had no actual notice of release. Biswell v. Gladney (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 256.

Where the record disclosed that grantor acquired his title in a sale under a trust deed, purchaser could not be said to claim through another, who claimed under a deed from the original owner and had deeded the same to the grantor; the last deed not being recorded or known to the purchaser. Johnson v. Marti (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 726.

In view of arts. 6824, 6842, 6857, a purchaser of land must take notice of conveyances of such land recorded in a county from which a new county in which the land is situated was taken. Leonard v. Benford Lumber Co., 110 Tex. 83, 216 S. W. 382.

Where plaintiffs and defendants in trespass to try title hold under different chains of title, the issue of innocent purchaser does not arise, though plaintiffs' chain of title was not recorded. McCarthy v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 307.

Where R. gave plaintiff power of attorney to recover and perfect title to land sold under foreclosure and convey him an undivided interest therein and plaintiff purchased the land from the mortgagee, his subsequent purchase of R.'s interest without knowledge of defendant's claim under an unrecorded federal court judgment gave him title to all of the land as an innocent purchaser, notwithstanding R.'s knowledge of defendant's claim. Norton v. Ball (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 581.

A lease not recorded until after innocent parties had purchased property is void as to such bona fide purchasers. Requa v. Joseph (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 585.

A trust deed which was not recorded in the mortgage and lien records of the county is nevertheless a valid lien as between the parties and all other persons who do not occupy the position of innocent purchasers or lienholders for a valuable consideration. Shaw v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 520.

Since the failure to record an assignment of a note and vendor's lien securing it leaves the assignor, according to the record, with only his lien in the land which is not subject to attachment, such failure does not give the attaching creditor of the assignor any right superior to the assignee, even if the assignment is an instrument whose recording is not only authorized under art. 6823, but is required under art. 6824 to be effectual against creditors and subsequent purchasers. Traders' Nat. Bank v. Price (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 160.

An unrecorded deed to A., who sold the timber on the land, was in the chain of title of persons claiming under the timber deed, and a timber deed to A. which he had refused to accept was not in their chain of title, and they were therefore not innocent purchasers of an outstanding claim to the land under a subsequent conveyance from A.'s grantor. Fidelity Lumber Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 177.

One refusing to accept a timber deed and obtaining a deed to the land which was not recorded and was subsequently lost was not charged with constructive knowledge of the unauthorized filing of the timber deed by some one else. Id.

A writing purporting to be a memorandum designating what the parties were to do as a consideration for an assignment theretofore made of an oil and gas lease is insufficient as a lease, and cannot be recorded under this article, because not containing evidence of an absolute right to land, but merely a chance of title, and it will not support a plea of innocent purchaser by one purchasing from the assignee in such case, and neither will a verbal assignment. Atlantic Oil Producing Co. v. Dawkins (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 525.

Parties purchasing land from the state were not under the duty of searching through the records of ancient towns of foreign country for evidence of an adverse right, which was only discovered long after their rights accrued by extraordinary effort, in the archives of a Mexican town, for there can be no presumption of notice, where inquiry, pursued with ordinary diligence, would have been futile. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Sup.) 231 S. W. 683.

In trespass to try title, wherein an oil company intervened as an innocent purchaser for value without notice, held, that the oil company was charged with notice of proceedings under which its lessor obtained title on foreclosure, and of any invalidity in the order of sale therein. De Guerra v. De Gonzalez (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 896.

14. — Possession.—Although the possession by a tenant in common is consistent with the recorded title, that does not relieve a purchaser from the duty to inquire from the possessor the nature of his claim and possession. Boedefeld v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1027.

Plaintiff taking a deed from vendor's executor to land of which defendants had visible and continuous possession for more than 30 years was put on notice as to defendant's interest therein, and was not a bona fide purchaser, although defendant's deed from such deceased vendor was not recorded. Id.

Every person dealing with land must take notice of the actual possession. Lasater v. Jamison (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 1151.

By possession of land by persons, inquiry of whom would disclose they were tenants of married woman, notice that it is her separate property is given purchaser from grantee of such woman's husband. Rev. St. 1911, art. 4261. Markley v. Martin (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 123.

Defendant purchasing from D. land conveyed to plaintiff, and then by her husband to D., had notice from possession by one who was plaintiff's tenant, and whom he knew was not D.'s tenant, that it was plaintiff's separate property. Markley v. Mussett (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 126.

Where holder of homestead not fully paid for had title taken in person contracting to erect house thereon, who subsequently conveyed to the owner subject to a vendor's lien. original owner's possession of premises was not sufficient to give bank purchasing vendor's lien note constructive notice of his homestead rights. Martin v. Granger (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 666.

Where purchasers knew that defendants, as lessees, were in actual possession of premises and cultivating the land, they were put on notice of the extent of defendants' rights therein. Gilroy v. Rowley (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 623.

Regardless of what the recorded title would show as to the ownership of land, possession is also evidence of title, and notice to a prospective purchaser of such title as the possessor has. Cooper v. Hinman (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 972.

The defense of innocent purchaser of the legal paper title is not available against the owner of a title by limitation, in view of Rev. St. 1911, art. 5679. Bryan v. Ross (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 524.

Open, exclusive, and visible possession of land, either through himself or his agent and employes, maintained by the holder of an unrecorded deed when the lien of the grantor's judgment creditor attaches by filing and indexing of an abstract of judgment against the grantor, is notice to the judgment creditor of the right under which the land is held. Newman v. Phalen (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 958.

A purchaser from a vendee, whose vendor remains in possession, is not bound to go beyond the deed from such vendor conveying the title, where it has been properly executed and registered. Brooker v. Wright (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 196.

The possession of a tenant of vendor's grantor, as a matter of law, merely puts proposed vendee upon "inquiry," and affects him with notice of such facts as would be the exercise of due diligence, have brought home to an ordinarily prudent man knowledge of the real facts. Id.

Where plaintiff, knowing that others had open and notorious possession of a portion of the premises, acquired a claim to lands, for the purpose of asserting in judicial proceedings title so acquired, he cannot be deemed a bona fide purchaser, though the deeds under which defendants claimed title were not recorded. Martinez v. Bruni (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 655.

Though defendants might be regarded as tenants in common of plaintiff's grantor, their visible and notorious possession was sufficient to put plaintiff on notice and prevent him from being a bona fide purchaser, even though the conveyances under which defendants claimed were unrecorded. Id.

In order for possession of premises to be such constructive notice as to place a prospective purchaser upon inquiry, as a matter of law, as to any claim to title in the land held by the occupant or his landlord, the possession must be actual, open, and visible, and not merely constructive. Aurelius v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 863.

Generally possession of land affords constructive notice of rights of party in possession, and this is equally true where the possession is by tenant. Harris v. Hamilton (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 273, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 409.

Where a purchaser of land has actual knowledge that the possession of his vendor's grantor is not "by sufferance of the grantee," but is by virtue of some right remaining in such grantor inconsistent with the terms of his deed, the purchaser has constructive notice of the rights of such grantor. Id.

Where a person has in fact held land long enough to give him title by limitation, it is good against a claimant under paper title, although at the time of the purchase the land is vacant and there is no trace of the prior adverse possession. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Olive Sternenberg & Co. (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 534, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 232. Same v. Patterson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 538, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1140.

15. Consideration.—In general.—The mere fact that an oil company, sublessee of part of an oil lease, paid valuable consideration for its sublease, without proof of want of notice or knowledge of the defense of want of consideration to which the original lease was subject, or other circumstances showing good faith in the sublessee company, was not sufficient to establish the defense of innocent purchaser for value from the original lessee as against the original lessors setting up the want of consideration for the lease. Hitson v. Gilman (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 140.

If payment of oil lease rentals by sublessees merely afforded consideration for the option given the original lessee to extend the period within which he would be required to drill for oil, such payment of rentals did not constitute the sublessees innocent purchasers for value, without notice of the infirmity in the original lease that it was not supported by consideration, and thereby protected as against the lessors. Id.

Where R. gave plaintiff a power of attorney to recover and perfect the record title to land which had been sold under foreclosure and, in consideration of his services and expenses, conveyed him an undivided half interest in the land, and plaintiff performed such services and purchased the land from the mortgagee without knowledge of defendant's claim under an unrecorded judgment of the United States District Court, such services were a sufficient consideration to support plaintiff's claim of innocent purchase of one-half of the land, though the purchase from the mortgagee was also for R.'s benefit and R. had knowledge of the proceedings and judgment in the federal court. Norton v. Ball (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 581.

16. — Payment of value.—In trespass to try title purchasers claiming under state may be purchasers for value, although they have paid only one-fortieth of purchase price. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 287.

That plaintiffs paid $12 for all the other land of a tract, and paid only $2 for the land in question, indicates they had knowledge that their grantor was selling the land of his landlord, and they were charged with knowledge that he had no record title. Rio Bravo Oil Co. v. Sanford (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 219.

To entitle subsequent vendee to have prior unregistered conveyance postponed to his subsequent conveyance, it must appear that he purchased in good faith without notice, actual or constructive, of prior vendee, purchase money being actually paid, recital in deed not being sufficient. Ackers v. Frazier (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 426.

To be protected as a bona fide purchaser, purchaser must have paid value for the land. Conn v. Southwestern Settlement & Development Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 612.

19. Title and rights acquired by bona fide purchasers and equities and defenses against them.—A claim of homestead in property conveyed by warranty deed duly recorded, the property, being surrendered to the vendee, is without foundation as against innocent purchasers. Dowdy v. Furtner (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 647.

The vendor is under no duty to record his deed to preserve his vendor's lien thereunder from loss by another's innocent purchase in reliance on a deed forged by the vendee. Alamo Trust Co. v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 413.

While attempt to unlawfully incumber homestead may be invalid as between parties to original contract and those having notice, homestead right will not be enforced against innocent holder for value of debt and lien thus created. Martin v. Granger (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 666.

In the absence of notice to the contrary, purchaser has the right to assume that the deed to his vendor correctly stated all of the unpaid consideration for which it was executed, and where a note described in the deed makes no reference to a provision for attorney's fees, in the absence of actual notice, judgment for foreclosure against the purchaser cannot include such attorney's fees. Gray v. Fenimore (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 956.

Oil lease, where sufficient to transfer interest in land, and therefore assignable, will not be canceled as to innocent purchaser, who paid a valuable consideration for the lease without notice of any infirmity. McKay v. Lucas (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 172.

Notwithstanding Const. art. 16, § 50, an innocent purchaser for value of a vendor's lien note, given in a simulated sale of a homestead, acquires the right to enforce the lien. Harrison v. First Nat. Bank of Lewisville (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 269.

A bona fide purchaser cannot be held as a constructive trustee, regardless of the fraud of his vendor. Reeves v. Shook (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 429.

Where defendant wife owned as her own separate property certain acreage, standing in the name of one S., and this acreage was conveyed by S. to C. at her request, in exchange for C.'s conveyance to defendant husband of the property in controversy, which defendants proceeded to occupy as their homestead, but the deed from C. retained a vendor's lien upon the land to secure a recited purchase-money note for $2,000 in favor of S., made at defendant husband's request, which note in fact represented no part of the purchase price, but was to pay an antecedent personal debt owed S. by defendant husband, a purchaser, who had no knowledge of the facts other than appeared by the note, deed, and records, was protected against the defense that the note, not being for any part of the purchase price, was invalid against the wife's claim of homestead. Hayner v. Chittim (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 279.

Where the lien of a judgment was valid to the extent of the balance owned by the judgment creditor, though the equitable assignee of the other interest had knowledge of an unrecorded deed, by his purchase of the judgment, such assignee acquired such balance and the lien as it existed in the hands of the judgment creditor. Ives v. Culton (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 321.

Where a deed was never validly delivered, it did not become operative, and, though the grantee obtained possession, one purchasing from him cannot defeat the grantor's rights on the theory of bona fide purchase. Haggood v. City Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 775.

Where the owners of an oil and gas lease authorized an agent to sell the same and deposited an assignment with a bank, the title did not pass where on the dishonor of the check of the purported purchaser the owners repudiated the transaction, and so notified the bank, but the agent through false statements procured possession of the assignment and had it recorded; for there was no delivery, and the owners declined to accept payment from the agent; hence even a bona fide purchaser from the agent had no rights superior to the owners. Id.

20. Evidence.—Evidence held to show that plaintiff, a subsequent vendee, had notice before he purchased that a deed of the actual occupant and claimants was, though in form absolute, a mortgage. Mason v. Olds (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1040.

In statutory trespass to try title, defendants, heirs of widow from whom plaintiff's grantor acquired title, setting up that widow's deed was mortgage and known to have been such by plaintiff when he purchased, evidence tending to prove defense held insufficient to sustain verdict for defendants. Meyer v. Sheffield (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 679.

In an action on a vendor's lien note, evidence held to show that the purchaser of part of the property, who had paid the purchase price upon being shown a release of the lien, was an innocent purchaser not affected by the fact that the vendor's lien note had not in fact been paid. First State Bank of Abilene v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 442.

In trespass to try title by a prior purchaser against a junior purchaser from the common source, evidence held insufficient to show that defendant junior purchaser's predecessor was an innocent purchaser without notice from the common source of title. Johns v. Wear (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1008.

21. — Presumptions and burden of proof.—See notes under art. 3687, rule 12.

24. Mortgagees as bona fide purchasers—Notice and effect of notice in general.—A subsequent mortgagee, or purchaser under such a mortgage, was not an innocent purchaser as against an outstanding vendor's lien note, knowledge of which could have been acquired by using reasonable diligence. Benton v. Jones (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 193.

25. — Record as notice.—See art. 6842, and notes.

Where, when note and deed of trust were given, deed of purchaser from mortgagor was not of record, and mortgagees had no notice of her title or claim, as against mortgagees, she is in no better position than had she purchased on date on which she filed deed for record, subsequently to recordation of deed of trust. R. B. Templeman & Son v. Kempner (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 293.

27. — Rights acquired in general.—Payee, accepting note to secure husband's debt and deed of trust on wife's land to secure note, without knowledge that wife at time of execution of deed of trust was insane, was not protected as an innocent purchaser. White v. Holland (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 611.

Art. 6826. [4640a] English language to be used.

Instrument executed prior to enactment of statute.—This article has no application to the introduction in evidence of an instrument in writing executed long prior to the adoption of the statute. Ross v. Sutter (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 273.

Art. 6828. [4642] Deed, etc., valid, against subsequent creditors from, etc.

See Lewis v. San Antonio Belt & Terminal Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 552.

In general.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4334, and the like provisions of arts. 4299, 4332, an absolute deed intended as a mortgage, but recorded in a book of deeds, is valid against purchasers and creditors, though art. 4304 provides that mortgages shall be recorded in separate books. Kennard v. Mabry, 78 Tex. 151, 14 S. W. 272.

Since the passage of Rev. St. 1879, art. 4292, a destroyed record of a deed which has not been re-recorded within four years does not operate as constructive notice to a subsequent purchaser, under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4334, that deeds shall take effect, as against subsequent purchasers, from the time they are "delivered to the clerk to be recorded." O'Neal v. Pettus, 79 Tex. 254, 14 S. W. 1065.

Where an instrument, like a contract for a lien on a homestead, does not require recording to make it valid between the parties, the filing of it with the clerk makes it notice to subsequent purchasers, and it is immaterial that it is recorded in a book with deeds. Lignoski v. Crooker, 86 Tex. 324, 24 S. W. 278.

Under the provisions of Rev. St. 1879, art. 4333, that all deeds shall be recorded in the county where the land, "or a part thereof," is situated, and art. 4334, that any conveyance delivered to be recorded shall take effect as to all subsequent purchasers, and as to all creditors, from the time of delivery, a deed of trust describing the land as being in one county, when a part of it is actually in another county, if recorded in the former county, gives sufficient notice to creditors levying execution on the land outside such county. Brown v. Lazarus, 5 Civ. App. 81, 25 S. W. 71.

As a general rule subsequent creditor who acquired claim with knowledge or notice of conveyance sought to be annulled cannot attack it as fraudulent, and subsequent creditors of husband would not be heard to say that they had no notice of prior recorded conveyances to husband's wife and daughter. Sikes v. First State Bank of Deatur (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 227.

Where husband in making a conveyance to his wife intended to defraud his creditors, and immediately had the deed recorded at the county seat of county where the land lay, a considerable distance from the places of business of his creditors, the record of the instrument did not under arts. 6828, 6842, constitute such constructive notice to subsequent creditors that they could not attack the deed. Quarles v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1112.

Repeal.—Rev. St. 1879, arts. 4298, 4338, requiring the record of judgments with the certificates of authenticity attached thereto, are not impliedly repealed by arts. 3153-3163, providing for the record of abstracts of judgments, so as to make them a lien. Spence v. Brown (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 309.

See Wichita Falls Electric Co. v. Chancellor & Bryan (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 649.

Does not apply to transfer before suit.—This article has no application to cause of action on which suit has not been filed. Browne v. King (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 884.

Art. 6835. [4649] Partition to be recorded.

See Callahan v. Hendrix, 79 Tex. 494, 15 S. W. 593.

Construction and application.—Where the judgment of the district court under which plaintiff claims title was not recorded with the county clerk of the county where the land was situated, as required by Rev. St. 1879, art. 4339, until after defendant purchased the land from parties holding under apparent chain of title from the patentee, paying a valuable consideration therefor, under the bona fide belief that he was buying from the true owners, defendant's title is unaffected by the judgment. Corley v. Renz (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 935.

Decree competent evidence, though not recorded, when.—The failure to record a judgment determining title to property in the deed records of the county, under the provisions of this article, does not prevent the introduction in evidence of the judgment as a muniment of title. Crow v. Van Ness (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 539.

Art. 6837. Suit for land; notice to be filed.

Lis pendens—In general.—The filing of a petition in involuntary bankruptcy by proper parties, making the jurisdictional allegations, operates as lis pendens, and is notice to all creditors. Coppard v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 650.

Lis pendens notice required by this article, to contain "a description of the land affected," held, in view of description in deeds and petition, to sufficiently identify the land by its description. Pope v. Beauchamp (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 928.

— Effect of recording of transfer.—Elder v. Craddock (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 314.

— Termination.—A lis pendens operates only during pendency of the suit, and only as to matters involved therein, and terminates upon settlement of the suit. Johnson v. Marti (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 726.

— Operation and effect.—Where a wife's suit against her divorced husband to set aside a settlement of their property rights and a conveyance of land to the husband pursuant thereto was pending when a creditor of the husband, which subsequently purchased the land at sheriff's sale, acquired an attachment lien thereon, it was charged with notice under the rule of lis pendens, and could not claim to be an innocent holder without notice. Kuehn v. Kuehn (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 918.

— Purchasers pendente lite.—A lis pendens notice places the purchaser of the property on inquiry as to the real facts, and charges him with notice of what an investigation would have disclosed. Mason v. Olds (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1040.

One purchasing land pending suit in trespass to try title was not an "innocent purchaser." Roberts v. Dreyer (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1097.

Vendor's lien reserved by purchase-money note being substantially a mortgage, purchaser of the note is, as to the lien, charged with notice of recorded lis pendens in suit to cancel conveyances for fraud. Pope v. Beauchamp (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 923.

One who purchased a note long after maturity, and after suit was begun thereon, would be a pendente lite purchaser, and his pendens would apply to her. Warren v. Parlin-Orendorff Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 586.

The purchaser of land, on whom a prior purchaser from the same party holding an unrecorded deed served an injunction petition that the prior purchaser and record lessee of the lands was owner of them, bought at his peril where he failed to make full and complete inquiry as to the basis of the claimed title of the other and prior purchaser and lessee. Kelly v. Blakeney (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 651.

The common-law rule that a purchaser pendente lite was bound by a judgment against his predecessor does not apply to the purchaser of a negotiable instrument, who acquires good title if he had no actual notice of the pending suit. Pope v. Beauchamp, 110 Tex. 271, 219 S. W. 447.

This article was intended to protect purchasers, and does not change the common-law rule that a bona fide purchaser of a negotiable note secured by vendor's lien acquired good title to the note and to the lien. Pope v. Beauchamp, 110 Tex. 271, 219 S. W. 447.

Under art. 7758, making a judgment for recovery of real estate conclusive against all persons claiming under a party by title arising after the commencement of the action, a judgment against a lessee canceling a mineral lease is not conclusive against an assignee of the lease who procured his assignment before the suit was begun, so that the lis pendens notice filed therein did not affect him. Burt v. Deorsam (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 354.

Where plaintiff's predecessor in title after foreclosing vendor's lien notes mortgaged the premises, the mortgage being assigned to plaintiff, who bought in the property on foreclosure sale had under proceedings brought after notice of lis pendens of an action by defendants' grantor against plaintiff's predecessor in title to recover the property on the theory that he was not the owner of the vendor's lien notes, plaintiff being a purchaser pendente lite, is bound by the judgment in favor of defendants' grantor. Allen-West Commission Co. v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 342.

— Rights and liabilities of purchasers.—Where letters in evidence fixed the amount due from an owner to a corporation constructing an irrigation plant and subsequently intervener in garnishment proceedings against contractor purchased the construction contract, the rights of the parties were fixed before purchase, and intervener could recover no more than the amount fixed by such agreement. Hall v. Nunn Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 452.

The vendor's lien securing a negotiable purchase-money note, like a mortgage, is incidental to the note and accompanies it in all transfers and a bona fide purchase of the note discharges, not only the note, but also the lien, from equities against them in payee's hands, so that a bona fide purchaser of the note pending a suit by a former owner of the land to recover the land on the ground of fraud acquires a lien valid against the land after its recovery by the former owner, despite the fact that lis pendens notice was filed in such suit under this article. Pope v. Beauchamp, 110 Tex. 271, 219 S. W. 447.

Art. 6838. Record of, how made.

Index.—To render lis pendens notice effectual, it need not be indexed by the clerk as required by this article; it being expressly provided by art. 6840 that it shall be effective from time of its filing. Pope v. Beauchamp (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 928.

Art. 6839. Transfers without notice, valid.

Failure to file lis pendens.—In trespass to try title, failure of plaintiff to record a lis pendens did not affect his rights, where defendant was in possession of the premises in controversy at the time plaintiff executed a deed after the institution of the suit to a third party, thus effecting the purchases with constructive notice as effectually as would have been the recording of lis pendens notice, under arts. 6839, 6840. Elder v. Craddock (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 314.

Art. 6840. Effect of notice.

Effect of notice by other means.—This article does not deal with the rights of persons with either actual or constructive notice of equities, and filing notice is unnecessary as against a subsequent purchaser or incumbrancer with actual or constructive notice; so that, where a purchaser of land had notice of vendor's lien thereon, the right to foreclose such lien against such purchaser in suit to revive a prior judgment on the vendor's lien note for the purpose of foreclosing the lien was not affected by the fact that, in the suit in which the judgment was recovered, no lis pendens notice was filed in the county where the land was situated. Ater v. Knight (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 648. See, also, Elder v. Craddock (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 314.

Art. 6841. [4651] Titles to chattels, where recorded.

Removal to another county.—In view of art. 5655, the chattel mortgage act did not repeal this article, which requires registration in the county to which the property might be removed, so that where a mortgage was filed in the county of the mortgagor's residence, and he moved to another county, taking the property with him, with the consent of the mortgagee, the mortgage was void as to subsequent purchasers, unless within four months it was filed in the county to which the property was removed. Reed v. Spikes (App.) 15 S. W. 122.

Under this article, where mortgage on mules was given to the sellers thereof by the buyers, and the mules were moved to Louisiana, where the lien of the mortgage was recorded, the sellers' liens become inferior to the liens of a bank, acquired after the mules were brought back into another county of Texas and recorded there before the sellers' mortgage was recorded; the recording of the mortgage by the sellers in the county into which the mules were brought back not having been within four months after the removal of the mules from another county where the lien was first recorded, into Louisiana, on the original sale. Hart Bros. v. Kirkes (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 870.

Consent or knowledge of removal by mortgagee.—Rev. St. 1879, art. 4341, does not apply in case of a removal without the mortgagee's consent. Vickers v. Carnahan, 4 Civ. App. 305, 23 S. W. 338. And the statute is inapplicable to property removed without mortgagee's consent, but with his knowledge. Guaranty State Bank of Tyler v. Reeves (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 285.

Art. 6842. [4652] Record of any grant, etc., when notice.

Record as notice—In general.—One who acquired deed to land after deeds of other parties, through long course of years, had been recorded and specifically described property, was not innocent purchaser. McDougal v. Conn (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 627.

Where deed reserving vendor's lien for purchase-money note was recorded, and such lien assigned by unrecorded instrument, the original deed was notice to vendor's creditors only until purchase-money note was outlawed, and liens of judgments against vendor secured after note was barred by statute of limitations are superior to assignee's rights under vendor's lien. Price v. Traders' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 934.

Under arts. 6828, 6842, held, that subsequent creditors of husband would not be heard to say that they had no notice of prior recorded conveyances to husband's wife and daughter. Sikes v. First State Bank of Decatur (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 227.

As a general rule subsequent creditor who acquired claim with knowledge or notice of conveyance sought to be annulled cannot attack it as fraudulent. Id.

Where husband in making a conveyance to his wife intended to defraud his creditors, and immediately had the deed recorded at the county seat of county where the land lay, a considerable distance from the places of business of his creditors, the record of the instrument did not under arts. 6828, 6842, constitute such constructive notice to subsequent creditors that they could not attack the deed. Quarles v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1112.

After deed was recorded, subsequent purchasers were charged with constructive notice of deed and record. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Lane (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 216.

Since a landowner need not constantly examine records to guard against instruments affecting his title, he is not to be charged with notice of registration of hostile deed to his tenant, where his possession is not disturbed. Werts' Heirs v. Vick (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 63.

The fact that the trust deed by one partner to a third person in payment of his individual debts was recorded did not have the effect, when the other partner accepted a deed to the same interest, of a waiver of his rights to have the partnership assets applied to the payment of partnership debts. Sherk v. First Nat. Bank (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 507.

In a suit to foreclose vendor's lien on lands, where a conveyance of two incumbered parcels on its face spread the vendor's lien on both, held that a peremptory instruction in favor of successors in interest of a grantee and against plaintiff, the holder of notes, secured by the vendor's lien, was properly denied. Lanham v. West (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 258.

A mortgagee is not charged with constructive notice of a subsequent recorded deed, conveying part of land involved. Biswell v. Gladney (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 256.

A fact disclosed by acknowledgment of a recorded power of attorney has same effect as if it appeared elsewhere in instrument, so far as notice to land purchaser of defect in chain of title is concerned. Griggs v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 261.

One purchasing property from a mortgagor subsequent to the execution and filing of the mortgage takes subject to the mortgage. Price Oil Mill Co. v. Madisonville Oil Mill & Fertilizer Co. (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 708.

Where a deed expressly reserving lien to secure the series of notes executed by the purchaser grantee was duly recorded, third persons were charged by the record with notice of the lien on the land so created, and, in buying a second series of vendor's lien notes from the husband of the original grantor and vendor after a reconveyance to and resale by her, they took subject to the lien of the outstanding first purchase-money notes, and recitals in the recorded deed of reconveyance from the purchaser grantee to the grantor, in a recorded transfer of part of the notes to a college, and in the recorded deed to the subsequent purchaser, were material only in determining their effect on the notice from record of the original deed, and, not being tantamount to a declaration of payment of the notes and release or extinguishment of the lien, the fact that transfers of part of the first series of notes were not recorded was immaterial. H. O. Wooten Grocer Co. v. Lubbock State Bank (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 335.

Recitals in deed of reconveyance from the purchaser of land to the seller held not to be construed as declarations of payment, satisfaction, or cancellation of the vendor's lien notes and release or extinguishment of the lien, so as to entitle purchaser of subsequent series of vendor's lien notes to regard the first vendor's lien notes as satisfied. Id.

In view of arts. 6824, 6842, 6857, a purchaser of land must take notice of conveyances of such land recorded in a county from which a new county in which the land is situated was taken. Leonard v. Benford Lumber Co., 110 Tex. 83, 216 S. W. 382.

Registration of a deed of trust and a chattel mortgage, valid in their description of the property and otherwise, which created liens on the property in controversy, constituted constructive notice to parties seeking protection as innocent purchasers through an execution sale subsequently made upon a judgment. Thorndale Mercantile Co. v. Continental Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1059.

Where the owner of a large parcel of land conveyed 50 acres and the deed was recorded, a subsequent purchaser from such landowner has constructive notice of the conveyance. Davies v. Rutland (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 235.

As between mortgagor and mortgagees, the lien given by the original mortgage or deed of trust was preserved by each of the subsequent deeds of trust executed on renewals of the debt, and such instruments having all been properly recorded, the lien is valid as against any subsequent purchaser. R. B. Templeman & Son v. Kempner (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 293.

In partition where a cotenant in possession claimed by adverse possession, the registration of a deed under which he held was constructive notice to his cotenants of the existence of the deed. Terry v. Terry (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 299.

— Facts of which record is notice.—Purchasers are only charged with notice of facts exhibited by record, and not with such as might have been ascertained by such inquiries as examination of record might have induced prudent man to make. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Lane (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 216.

Every purchaser of land is chargeable with all that real estate records show in claim of title under which he claims, including all recitations therein. Id.

Where record showed a conveyance to "Elizabeth O. Griggs," and that she later gave a power of attorney in which she was described as "Mrs. Elizabeth O. Griggs," there is no constructive notice to a purchaser that she had a husband living when land was conveyed to her. Griggs v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 261.

Land purchasers are charged with knowledge of all facts appearing in recorded instruments, and where circumstances appear in chain of title sufficient to put a reasonably prudent man on inquiry, the purchaser is charged with knowledge of facts which might have been discovered by reasonable inquiry. Id.

A purchaser of land from heirs, whom purchaser believed to have only an undivided interest, must take notice of statements in prior recorded conveyance from an ancestor of the heirs setting forth facts showing the true ownership of the land. Leonard v. Benford Lumber Co., 110 Tex. 83, 216 S. W. 322.

Where duly recorded deed recited vendor's lien was retained to secure purchase-money note, a subsequent purchaser was chargeable with notice of the lien. Ater v. Knight (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 648.

A reference in a sheriff's return in an attachment action to a deed from "F. L. Perry" to "J. P. McCasland" was not notice to a subsequent incumbrancer of a deed from "E. F. Perry" to "I. P. McCasland," in the absence of a showing that "E. F." Perry was known as "F. L." Perry or that "I. R." McCasland was known as "J. P." McCasland. Lemm v. Kramer (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 560.

Recording of an oil and gas lease prior to its assignment gives constructive notice to the assignees of the conditions in the lease, and such assignees are charged with knowledge that the conditions for development or payment of rent had not been performed. Hickernell v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 691.

Though the primary purpose of the registration statute may be to protect innocent purchasers for value, it is also intended to protect all whose rights are disclosed by the record, so that the record of a deed reserving the minerals under the tract conveyed is constructive notice that the title to the minerals was vested in the grantor. Wallace v. Hoyt (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 425.

One who claims a tract of land under chain of title derived from the state has constructive notice of every fact disclosed by the chain of title, although he had not read the instruments constituting that chain, and therefore has constructive knowledge of reservation of mineral rights in a deed to a remote grantor. Id.

Where land was sold with a reservation of mineral rights, a subsequent registration of oil leases held insufficient to constitute notice of adverse possession, in view of this article. Lyles v. Dodge (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 316.

Deed executed by the ancestor of certain defendants in plaintiff bank's suit in trespass to try title, and by others, to plaintiff bank's predecessor, held to disclose such facts as required such predecessor and subsequent purchasers under him to make proper inquiry as to what persons owned an interest in the land, which inquiry, had it been pursued, would have advised such predecessor of the equities owned by defendants. Yates v. Buffalo State Bank (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 619.

A junior purchaser of land is chargeable not only with notice of the contents of a registered deed in the chain of title, but when the mesne conveyances contain that which should put a prudent person on inquiry he is chargeable with notice of whatever such inquiry would have revealed. Id.

Although the records may have shown facts which charged a purchaser of property with notice that a minor was the heir of a former owner, that fact does not charge him with notice of error in a judgment vesting the title in his grantor to the exclusion of the heir. Crow v. Van Ness (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 539.

— Persons affected with notice and notice of instruments not in chain of title.—Under party wall agreement, whereby one adjoining owner built it at his own cost, with provision that other should pay his share when he used it, such other's grantee with notice would be liable to pay for its use on theory that builder was absolute owner until such use. McCormick v. Stoneheart (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 883.

The assignee of vendor's lien is not charged with constructive notice of a subsequent recorded deed conveying part of land involved. Biswell v. Gladney (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 256.

Although the literal terms of arts. 6842, 6857, would require that all persons be held to know what appears on the face of a duly recorded instrument, registration of an instrument thereunder only carries notice of its contents to those bound to search for it, among whom are subsequent purchasers under the grantor in a recorded instrument. Leonard v. Benford Lumber Co., 110 Tex. 83, 216 S. W. 382.

The grantee of land was not charged with constructive knowledge of a subsequent conveyance of the land by the grantor to a third person. Fidelity Lumber Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 177.

— Particular instruments.—Patentees of land or their assignees cannot ignore a recorded conveyance of a donation certificate executed before the location of the land; such instrument having the legal effect to determine in whole or in part to whose benefit the patent itself inures. Leonard v. Benford Lumber Co., 110 Tex. 83, 216 S. W. 382.

A subsequent purchaser of land charged with notice of a mortgage lien by record of the mortgagees' deed of trust is bound by any valid renewal and extension of the note between the mortgagor, her seller, and the mortgagees. R. B. Templeman & Son v. Kempner (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 293.

Article 6852. [4663] Party may have action to correct error, etc.

Correction of certificate.—If acknowledgment of a married woman's deed was actually made as required by statute, certificate can be corrected to conform to facts. McCracken v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 336.

Art. 6853. [4664] May obtain judgment of proof of any instrument.

In general.—Plaintiff, in an action against the heirs of his deceased grantor, under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4354, sought to prove for record an instrument purporting to have been executed by deceased, conveying certain lands to plaintiff. The instrument contained all the essential elements of a conveyance of real estate, except that it was not acknowledged by the grantor nor attested by subscribing witnesses, as required by Rev. St. 1879, art. 554. Held, that a demurrer to the petition was properly overruled, since the instrument, though it might not take effect as a conveyance, was effectual as a contract to convey, on which a conveyance could be enforced under Rev. St. 1879, art. 561, and as such was entitled to record. Howard v. Zimpelman (Sup.) 14 S. W. 59.

This article is without application to the case of a buyer of land who refuses to acknowledge contract of extension of vendor's lien; four years limited by arts. 5694, 5695, for continuance of the lien having elapsed, so that judgment, under art. 6853 would be a nullity. McCracken v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 336.

Art. 6857. [4668] Old registration operative after creating new county.

See Lumpkin v. Muncey, 66 Tex. 311, 17 S. W. 732.

In general.—Although the literal terms of arts. 6842, 6857, would require that all persons be held to know what appears on the face of a duly recorded instrument, registration of an instrument thereunder only carries notice of its contents to those bound to search for it, among whom are subsequent purchasers under the grantor in a recorded instrument. Leonard v. Benford Lumber Co., 110 Tex. 83, 216 S. W. 382.

In view of arts. 6824, 6842, 6857, a purchaser of land must take notice of conveyances of such land recorded in a county from which a new county in which the land is situated was taken. Id.

Art. 6858. [4669] Attachments to be recorded, when.

Sufficiency of record.—Under this article, where clerk duly indexed names of several parties to suit wherein land was attached, held that record was sufficient, though heading of writ when filed did not recite names of some of parties, name of defendant whose land was attached being given. Farmers' Nat. Bank v. Collis (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 782.

Levy in county other than where suit pending.—Though not directly authorizing it, this article impliedly authorizes sheriff to certify a copy of writ of attachment levied in county other than that in which suit was pending. Farmers' Nat. Bank v. Collis (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 782.

Article 6859. [4670] What roads are declared to be public.Cited, Worthington v. Wade, 82 Tex. 26, 17 S. W. 520.

What are public roads in general.—Whether a road is public depends in a measure on the particular facts, but it does not depend on its length, its terminus, nor the number of people who use it; it is a public road if there is a general right to use it for travel even if it ends in a cul-de-sac. Bradford v. Moseley (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 171, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Moseley v. Bradford, 190 S. W. 824.

Prescription.—An easement for a public road may be acquired on a portion of a railroad right of way by prescription. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bluit (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 441.

Where roadway on railroad right of way outside poles carrying telegraph wires was used generally by the public for hauling and travel for more than 20 years to the knowledge of the railroad, and was worked by the citizens, there was a public road by prescription. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bryant (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 443.

Oil and gas lease.—In view of Pen. Code 1911, art. 812, as to obstructing highways, a commissioners' court has no authority under arts. 1370, 2241, 6859, 6860, 6861, to lease any portion of the public highways for oil and gas wells, which will necessarily be obstructions thereof, notwithstanding such portion of the highway has been acquired by purchase and not condemnation, or the lessee also holds a lease from the owner of the fee of the land over which such portion of the highway runs as a right of way. Boone v. Clark (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 607.

Evidence of existence of highway.—Evidence held insufficient to show that alleged road was a public way. Espejo Land & Irrigation Co. v. Urbahn (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 920.

Evidence held to show acquisition of prescriptive right of way for public road in railroad right of way. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bluit (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 441.

Art. 6860. [4671] Commissioners' courts to open, etc.

Cited, Rankin v. State, 25 Tex. App. 694, 8 S. W. 932; Wooten v. Texas Bitulithic Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 248.

In general.—Arts. 6860, 6861, 6875, 6884, 6885, contemplate that roads shall be laid out and across the lands of citizens in answer to a public necessity therefor, and not for the benefit of private parties. Dunlap v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 711.

Validity of special act intrenching on powers of commissioners' court.—See Garrett v. Commissioners' Court of Limestone County (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1010.

Jurisdiction and powers of commissioners' court.—See Bradford v. Moseley (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 171, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Moseley v. Bradford, 190 S. W. 824.

In view of Pen. Code 1911, art. 812, as to obstructing highways, a commissioners' court has no authority under arts. 1370, 2241, 6859, 6860, 6861, to lease any portion of the public highways, for oil and gas wells, which will necessarily be obstructions thereof, notwithstanding such portion of the highway has been acquired by purchase and not condemnation, or the lessee also holds a lease from the owner of the fee of the land over which such portion of the highway runs as a right of way. Boone v. Clark (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 607.

The question of the necessity of a public road is wholly for the determination of the petitioners, and where so determined by them and the commissioners' court, and where proper legal steps have been taken, the question is not subject to review by the district court in suit to enjoin opening of the road. Culp v. Commissioners' Court of Coryell County (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 944.

When the commissioners' court approved a report of the jury of view in a proceeding to establish a road under arts. 6860, 6861, 6875, 6884, 6885, and adjourned for the term, their power to make a change in the road from that laid out by the jury of view ended, except as the power might again be invoked by proceedings in accordance with article 6875 and for the purposes specified in article 6861. Dunlap v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 711.

While the commissioners' court is vested by law with a wide discretion in the matter of opening and establishing public roads, it cannot transcend the powers given it over that subject by law. Id.

All the county commissioners of Navarro county were proper members of road board of district No. 1, it appearing that the road district embraced a portion of all the commissioners' precincts, and as such members were entitled to participate in all of the deliberations and actions of such board. Montfort v. Commissioners' Court of Navarro County (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 424.

Procedure in general.—That a petition to open a second-class road be signed by at least eight freeholders is jurisdictional, under art. 6876, notwithstanding arts. 6860, 6871, empowering commissioners' court to open roads on its own motion. Haverbekken v. Hale, 109 Tex. 106, 204 S. W. 1162.

In proceeding to open a second-class road on application of freeholders, the 20 days' notice required by art. 6875, is jurisdictional, notwithstanding arts. 6860, 6871, empowering commissioners' court to open roads on its own motion. Id.

Powers as to state highways running through road districts.—See Montfort v. Commissioners' Court of Navarro County (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 424.

Art. 6861. [4672] Shall not be changed, except, etc.

See Haverbekken v. Hale, 109 Tex. 106, 204 S. W. 1162; Boone v. Clark (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 607.

Changing location of road.—When the commissioners' court approved a report of the jury of view in a proceeding to establish a road under arts. 6860, 6861, 6875, 6884, 6885, and adjourned for the term, their power to make a change in the road from that laid out by the jury of view ended, except as the power might again be invoked by proceedings in accordance with art. 6875 and for the purposes specified in art. 6861. Dunlap v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 711.

Where the board of permanent road commissioners of a county created under Sp. Laws 33d Leg. (1913) c. 60, in selection of route between two terminals, carefully considered the entire situation, and where there was no evidence of bad faith or perversity, or of moral delinquency, actuating the board or any of its members in receding from the tentative selection of one route and ultimately adopting another route, and where the selection of such other route caused the contribution by the state of $106,000, which the state threatened to withdraw if the road was constructed along the route first selected, the change of routes was not an abuse of discretion, warranting interference, though first route would serve more people and the cost of maintenance would be less, but at most was a mistake of judgment, with which the court will not interfere; "discretion" being defined as the power or right to act officially according to what appears just and proper under the circumstances. Board of Permanent Road Com'rs of Hunt County v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 859.

Appointment of jury.—Act Feb 7, 1884, provides that it shall be the duty of each commissioners' court, within 90 days after passage of the act, on their own motion, to appoint a jury of view to lay out certain roads, and on the report of the jury of view such roads shall be declared public highways. Held that, while this made it the duty of the courts to act within 90 days, their power to act on their own motion was not limited to that time. Evans v. Santana Live-Stock & Land Co., 81 Tex. 622, 17 S. W. 232.

Art. 6866. [4677] When damages are excessive, etc.

Appeal bond.—The road in question being laid out under arts. 6863, 6864, appeal to district court from award of jury of view is governed by art. 6866, which does not require bond to be filed in ten days after approval of award by commissioners' court, and not by art. 6882. Currie v. Glasscock County (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 533.

In general.—In proceeding to open a second-class road on application of freeholders, the 20 days' notice required by art. 6875, and petition signed by at least eight freeholders, are jurisdictional, notwithstanding arts. 6860, 6871, empowering commissioners' court to open roads on its own motion. Haverbekken v. Hale, 109 Tex. 106, 204 S. W. 1162.

An order, though made on court's own motion to establish a new road, the description therein locating the road's termination at any point in a line of more than 1,000 varas, is fatally defective, since the statutes do not lodge, in the jury of view, discretion to determine where the road shall end. Live Oak County v. West (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 965.

Landowners and others interested entitled to hearing.—This article, clearly contemplates that landowners affected by opening of a road, as well as others having an interest, may be heard relevant to the proposal, and court's action thereon, in proceedings of the court in its original action on the petition. Haverbekken v. Hale, 109 Tex. 106, 204 S. W. 1162.

Notice.—In proceeding to open a second-class road on application of freeholders, the 20 days' notice required by this article, is jurisdictional, notwithstanding arts. 6860, 6871, empowering commissioners' court to open roads on its own motion. Haverbekken v. Hale, 109 Tex. 106, 204 S. W. 1162.

An application and notice of intention to establish a highway, leaving its termination to be fixed at any place along a line of more than 1,000 varas, are not sufficiently definite to comply with this article. Live Oak County v. West (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 965.

A road never located by a jury of view may be ordered closed without notice or hearing; but where a landowner's rights were not confined to general rights of public, but had been established by a judgment long prior to litigation, commissioners' court could not waive such rights for him nor authorize closing or obstructing of roadway without his consent. Santa Fé Townsite Co. v. Norvell (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 960.

When the commissioners' court approved a report of the jury of view in a proceeding to establish a road under arts. 6860, 6861, 6875, 6884, 6885, and adjourned for the term, their power to make a change in the road from that laid out by the jury of view ended, except as the power might again be invoked by proceedings in accordance with art. 6875 and for the purposes specified in art. 6861. Dunlap v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 711.

— Waiver.—Notice provided for, which is personal to the landowner affected by laying out of a road, may be waived by him; but he cannot waive any requirement of statute in which the public generally is interested. Haverbekken v. Hale, 109 Tex. 106, 204 S. W. 1162.

In a proceeding to lay out a road, appearance by a landowner, to constitute a waiver of notice, must be such as secures to him the same opportunity and benefit he would have had if legal notice had been given. Id.

Public necessity for road.—See Dunlap v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 711.

Art. 6876. [4687] Application, how made.

Cited, Wooten v. Texas Bitulithic Co. (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 248.

Application.—That a petition to open a second-class road be signed by at least eight freeholders is jurisdictional, under this article, notwithstanding arts. 6860, 6871, empowering commissioners' court to open roads on its own motion. Haverbekken v. Hale, 109 Tex. 106, 204 S. W. 1162.

Necessity of public use.—The right of eminent domain under this article, implies that the purpose for which it may be exercised must be a public one, and not a mere private one; a "public use" being one which concerns the whole community in which it exists, as contradistinguished from a particular individual or number of individuals. Leathers v. Craig (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 995.

Necessity for road.—Where the owner of a tract subdivided it between his children, and prior to the subdivision there were public roads bounding it giving convenient access to the church, school, gin, mill, and store used by the occupants and private ways over the land intersecting the public roads, the parties living on any subdivision, who would otherwise be cut off by other subdivisions had the right to demand access to and the use of the prior existing private roads over other subdivisions, under the rule that partition of real estate among heirs carries with it by implication the same right of way from one part to and over the other as had been plainly and obviously enjoyed by the common ancestor, and they could not sit by and permit themselves to be cut off by their kindred and then demand of the owner of an adjoining tract that he give them an outlet over his land, so that they had no legal right under this article, to have opened such a new road over such adjoining tract; it not being a road of necessity. Leathers v. Craig (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 995.

Injunction.—Where commissioners had no legal right to order a road opened across plaintiff's land under this article, he had a right to enjoin their action as being without jurisdiction by suit in district court; the remedy by appeal to the county court under article 6882 being inadequate. Leathers v. Craig (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 995.

Art. 6877. [4688] How laid out.

Validity of statute.—Arts. 6877-6882 do not contemplate a taking of private property for a public use without adequate compensation being first made or secured, or otherwise than by due course of law. Vogt v. Bexar County, 5 Civ. App. 272, 23 S. W. 1044.

Location of road.—Comparative cheapness and desirability of construction of other routes held not to constitute a legal objection to construction of a road as located by the commissioners. Tippett v. Gates (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 702.

Fact that more low, wet, and marshy land would be crossed in building a road as located by the road commissioners than if it were built on other routes held not to afford legal ground of complaint, despite provisions of local statute that no road should be laid out or constructed on such land, except where necessary to build directly across it. Id.

— Effect of agreements.—See Tyree v. Road Dist. No. 5, Navarro County (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 644; Tippett v. Gates (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 702.

— Individual interest of officers.—The fact that two members of a board of road commissioners lived on a road as located by them does not affect the validity of the board's action in determining to build the road, if the determination of the board locating the road was honest and fair. Tippett v. Gates (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 702.

Art. 6880. [4691] Notice to owner.

Necessity of notice.—The notice required by statute for the opening of a road must be given the owner, and, if it is not given, the opening of the road may be enjoined. Bradford v. Moseley (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 171, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Moseley v. Bradford, 190 S. W. 824.

Persons entitled to notice.—Proceedings for the opening of a road across lands owned by life tenant and remaindermen are binding against the life tenant if she was properly served, though the remaindermen were not served, and the life tenant is not entitled to injunction against the maintenance of the road. Bradford v. Moseley (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 171, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Moseley v. Bradford, 190 S. W. 824.

Waiver of notice or objections.—Where landowners were given notice in writing of time and place for laying out road, responding to which they attended upon, and filed with jury of view their claims for damages, and also went into commissioners' court, where their damages were determined de novo, contending for more than jury had allowed, and protesting against approval of report and appealing to county court, there was no such failure to comply with this article, as rendered proceedings of court null and void. Lawrence v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 702.

Necessity of record showing notice or waiver of notice.—The notice required to be served on the landowner by Rev. St. 1879, art. 4370, is a jurisdictional fact, which should affirmatively appear in the record; and, if the giving of such notice is not affirmatively shown, the proceedings are void. Vogt v. Bexar County, 5 Civ. App. 272, 23 S. W. 1044.

Where, in action to enjoin opening of road, no evidence is offered, other than recital in order of commissioners' court establishing road, to show that parties affected thereby were served with proper notice by jury of view, order is void. Cooke County v. Dudenhafter (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 976.

Sufficiency of notice.—Where the court's order states that the jury of view is to lay out third-class road described in application and later refers to it as second-class road, held, that the order was for a second-class road, and that, where jury's notice referred to the order, the owner had notice of class of road burdening his land. Live Oak County v. West (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 965.

Art. 6881. [4692] Statement by owner of damages.

Elements and measure of damages in general.—Where construction of a road necessitated additional fencing and the establishment of an additional watering place to restore abutting land to former usefulness and value, for grazing purposes, the district court on appeal from award of jury of view erred in finding that there was no evidence of depreciated value of land not taken. Currie v. Glasscock County (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 533.

Under the Constitution as amended in 1876 (Const. art. 1, § 17) to provide that a person's property shall not be taken or "damaged" for public use without adequate compensation, unless by his consent, damages to the land abutting on a highway from elevation of the roadway by a viaduct and approach thereto are recoverable. Dallas County v. Barr (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 453.

A county is liable for the damage to property abutting on a highway from its elevation of the roadway. Id.

The measure of damages to abutting property by the elevation of a highway is the difference in the value of the land before and after the change. Id.

Interest.—Interest from time of injury to abutting property from elevation of highway is allowable as part of the damages, though at time of action they are unliquidated. Dallas County v. Barr (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 453.

Deduction for benefits.—In proceeding to determine the amount of damages to land due to construction of a road by appellee county, increased and better road facilities could be taken into consideration as offsetting damages to land not taken. Currie v. Glasscock County (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 533.

Evidence of benefits and damages.—In proceeding to determine the amount of damages due to construction of a road, failure of court to recognize evidence of value to tract as a whole, and evidence of decrease in value due to road, as of any probative force upon issue of damage to land not actually appropriated, was reversible error. Currie v. Glasscock County (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 533.

In proceeding to determine the amount of damages due to construction of a road, evidence of the cost of additional fencing, establishing watering places, and other items of like nature necessitated by the laying of the road is admissible and entitled to be accorded its proper probative force in determining whether tract of land as a whole has been damaged. Id.

Evidence consisting of varying opinions as to value of land before and after elevation of highway held to support the jury's finding as to amount of damages therefrom to abutting property. Dallas County v. Barr (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 453.

Persons entitled to damages.—Right of the grantee of land as abutting on a highway to damages thereto from the elevating of the roadway is not affected by the fact that prior to his deed the land for the highway had been conveyed in fee for highway purposes by the same grantor. Dallas County v. Barr (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 453.

Art. 6882. [4693] If report approved, damages to be paid, etc.

Constitutionality.—Arts. 6877-6882 do not contemplate a taking of private property for a public use without adequate compensation being first made or secured, or otherwise than by due course of law. Vogt v. Bexar County, 5 Civ. App. 272, 23 S. W. 1044.

Approval of report.—An entry in the records of the commissioners' courts, "passed pending settlement under contract on file," held not to hold open the court's approval of a report of the jury of view in a proceeding to establish a highway beyond a subsequent unqualified order of approval. Dunlap v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 711.

Appeal.—Amount in controversy as affecting jurisdiction of county court, see Leathers v. Leon County (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 658.

The road in question being laid out under arts. 6863, 6864, appeal to district court from award of jury of view is governed by art. 6866, which does not require bond to be filed in ten days after approval of award by commissioners' court, and not by this article. Currie v. Glasscock County (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 533.

The commissioners' courts are given discretion in the matter of opening roads, and that discretion, unless abused, cannot be reviewed, but if it is abused, the revisory power of the district court may be exercised. Bradford v. Moseley (Com. App.) 223 S. W. 171. Reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Moseley v. Bradford, 190 S. W. 824.

Finding by the commissioners' court that all statutory requirements were complied with, that due notice was given, and that the road was necessary are as binding on review as would have been the verdict of the jury. Id.

Under this article, it is not necessary that the landowner give an appeal bond. Leathers v. Leon County (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 658.

Restraining opening of road.—Action of commissioners' court in proceeding to open highway, in determining that juror of view was a freeholder, and in refusing to award landowners more damages than did jury, held conclusive except as landowners questioned it in exercise of right of appeal under this article, and not to warrant injunction proceedings to restrain opening of road. Lawrence v. Gordon (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 702.

County judges and county commissioners were properly enjoined from opening a road, where the commissioners' court did not dispose, by an order of the court, of damages awarded by jury to petitioner in proceedings to open such road, in view of the requirements of arts. 6882, 6883, since, by failure to dispose of such damages by court order, petitioner was deprived of opportunity to appeal, if he desired. Howard v. Rushing (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 953.

Taxpayers may maintain injunction to restrain diversion of road funds. Elder v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 243.

Where commissioners had no legal right to order a road opened across plaintiff's land under art. 6876, he had a right to enjoin their action as being without jurisdiction by suit in district court; the remedy by appeal to the county court under art. 6882 being inadequate. Leathers v. Craig (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 995.

Art. 6883. [4694] Court may order opening of road, but damages assessed must be first paid, etc.

See Hopkins v. Cravey, 85 Tex. 189, 19 S. W. 1067.

Restraining opening of road until compensation is made.—County judges and county commissioners were properly enjoined from opening a road, where the commissioners' court did not dispose, by an order of the court, of damages awarded by jury to petitioner in proceedings to open such road, in view of arts. 6882, 6883, since, by failure to dispose of such damages by court order, petitioner was deprived of opportunity to appeal, if he desired. Howard v. Rushing (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 953.

Art. 6885. [4696] May change roads, when.

Authority to change roads.—When the commissioners' court approved a report of the jury of view in a proceeding to establish a road under arts. 6860, 6861, 6875, 6884, 6885, and adjourned for the term, their power to make a change in the road from that laid out by the jury of view ended, except as the power might again be invoked by proceedings in accordance with art. 6875 and for the purposes specified in art. 6861. Dunlap v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 711.

Nature of road.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4389, and in view of Rev. St. 1879, art. 4245, a railroad which runs through an inclosure and is crossed by a third-class road, is not required to place gates at the crossing. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. O'Neal (App.) 16 S. W. 537.

Constitutionality of local act.—Under Const. art. 3, § 56, article 8, § 9, as amended, and arts. 3870, 6901, held, that Bexar County Road Law (Loc. & Sp. Acts 33d Leg. c. 77, § 5), providing for annual salary for commissioners of county for acting in all capacities, is unconstitutional, as an attempted regulation of county affairs by local and special act. *Altgelt v. Validity of municipal ordinance.—San Antonio ordinance of August 27, 1917, regulating automobiles used for hire, is not invalid as in conflict with the state highway department act of 1917. Craddock v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 634.

Art. 6904½k. Allotment of state aid; amount; maintenance of roads constructed.—Whenever the Commissioners' Court of any county shall desire, and is prepared, to construct one or more miles of public roads constituting a part of the system of State Highways as designated by the Department, such court may make application for an allotment of State aid from the State Highway fund, and if such application is accompanied by plans, profiles and estimates prepared in accordance with the requirements of the State Highway Engineer, the Commission shall file such application in the order in which it is received; and when such roads shall be constructed according to specifications and under the supervision of the Highway Engineer, the commission shall make an allotment of aid from any moneys available in the State Highway fund, not to exceed one-fourth of the cost of construction; provided, that the aggregate sum contributed by the State to aid in building roads in any one county during any one year shall not be in excess of the whole cost of ten average miles of such road.

Provided, if any State Highway shall pass through any unorganized county or other territory in which the assessed valuations do not permit of the raising of the necessary funds to assure construction of the part of such State Highway, the Commission shall be authorized to construct such part of the State Highway, from any moneys in the State Highway funds available for such purposes.

In counties in which the assessed valuation of property, in the judgment of the Commission, does not warrant the construction of sections of the system of State Highways necessary to provide the State with trunk roads, or to connect market centers of the State as provided in this Act, the Commission may, in its discretion, increase such allotment of State aid not to exceed one-half of the cost of construction not more than ten miles of such part of the system of State Highways in each of such counties in one year. All parts of the system of State Highways that may be constructed with State aid, as provided in this Section, shall be maintained at the expense of the county in which such part of the highway is located, in accordance with plans approved by the State Highway Department, and failure to maintain such sections of State Highway shall forfeit any further State aid until such maintenance work shall have been done. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 190, § 12; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 71, § 1.]

Art. 6904½q. Legislature shall make appropriations and to fix compensation of engineer and employes of highway department; contracts; expenditure of funds.—That from and after the passage of this Act, it shall be the duty of the Legislature to make appropriations for, and it is hereby authorized to appropriate funds for the maintenance and running expenses of the Highway Department, and to fix the compensation of, the State Highway Engineer and all other employees of the State Highway Department, and to determine the number of such employees.

It shall be the duty of the State Board of Control to make contracts for equipment and supplies (including seals and number plates), required by law in the administration of the registration of licensed vehicles, and in the operation of said department, as provided in Chapter 190, of the General Laws of the Thirty-fifth Legislature, Regular Session [1918 Supp., art. 6904½ et seq]. All moneys herein authorized to be appropriated for the operation of the State Highway Department, and the purchase of equipment required by said Chapter 190, shall be paid from the State Highway Fund, authorized to be created by said Chapter 190; and all the remainder of said Highway Fund, not so appropriated for the maintenance and operation of the said department shall be expended by the State Highway Commission for the furtherance of public road construction and the establishment of a system of State highways, as contemplated and set forth in the provisions of Chapter 190, General Laws, of the Thirty-fifth Legislature, Regular Session, and Acts amendatory thereof. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 50, § 1.]

Sess.) c. 22, created the office of superintendent of public roads and bridges for Chambers county, providing in section 10 that the superintendent might call out persons liable to work on the public roads, yet, as the act declares that it should be cumulative of all general laws, the road overseer still had authority to call persons to work. *Walling v. essary to provide such index boards. Article 6946. [4756] Commissioners' court may employ, etc.

Constitutionality of local act.—Assuming that citizen members of the permanent board of road commissioners of Limestone county road district No. 15, established and organized under Sp. Laws 36th Leg. (1919) c. 74, are officers, it cannot be said that the latter act violates Const. art. 16, § 30, in that the tenure of office is to be until the work is completed, since such constitutional provision can be read into the act so as to make it read, "And shall continue to serve not exceeding two years as members of said board," etc. *Garrett v. |---|--|

Article 6963. [4773] Commissioners' Court may hire or purchase all machinery, etc., for working roads.

Application of requirement as to sealed proposals.—Harris County Road Law, §§ 9, 10, as to sealed proposals for contracts for county roads, does not apply to a contract for hire of man and team at $4 a day, terminable at any time by either party, or to a purchase of claims of laborers hired by the day by the county. Otto v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 610.

Art. 6966. [4776] May improve roads and bridges by contract.

Not applicable to counties not adopting act.—This article has no application to counties which have not adopted it by appointing a road superintendent. Art. 2241 empowers the commissioners' court of county which has not adopted article 6966 to build a road and create an indebtedness to be paid by interest-bearing warrants in future years, although a bond issue under articles 605, 610, for such purpose has been voted down in an election. Lasater v. Lopez (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1039.

Article 6976½. Roads to be divided into sections.—That the public roads of each county shall be divided into sections of convenient length and size. That said section shall include not less than eight nor more than twenty miles of public road, and shall be numbered in numerical order, and shall be known on the road map of the county by such number. That the road superintendent, hereinafter provided for, shall locate, outline, and designate the boundaries of each section and all territory subject thereto, which designation shall be approved by the commissioners' court, and entered upon the minutes thereof, and such superintendent shall prepare a map, as now provided by law, and on which map he shall show the location of the territory and roads embraced within each section. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 42, § 1.]

Art. 6976½a. Budget; road maintenance fund; division among road sections; maintenance tax; outstanding warrants.—Before the employment of patrolmen for the different sections of the county, the commissioners-court shall make up a budget of its road and bridge fund, making a fair and conservative estimate of the county's income from all sources available for road maintenance. Said budget shall include an item making an estimate to cover the amount of funds necessary for the maintenance of the bridges in the county, including the building or repair of any bridge let by contract, the cost of which would exceed $100.00. The amount so estimated for the repair and upkeep of bridges shall be deducted from the total amount shown by such budget, and the balance shall constitute a road maintenance fund, to be expended under the patrol system herein provided for. Such sum shall then be divided among the several road sections of the county in proportion to the mileage and classification of such roads. First, second, and third class roads shall prorate in such division at the ratio of one, two, and three; that is, three times as much shall be set aside for the maintenance of a mile of first class road as shall be set aside for the maintenance of a mile of third class road. Provided further that where any first or second class road is, by nature of its situation and condition, in a high state of repair, or where same may be maintained from local sources, such as local district maintenance fund, so as not to require so great a proportion of the county maintenance fund, then the county commissioners, in conjunction with the road superintendent, may in their discretion prorate a lesser amount to the upkeep of a first or second class road and a correspondingly greater amount to such one or more roads of the inferior class as the conditions may require. That the said road maintenance fund, hereinabove referred to, shall include such funds as shall be derived from moneys paid for the privilege of being exempt from road duty, from the fifteen cents now authorized by law as a road tax, and from the further levy of an additional fifteen cents when voted for road maintenance, and such other funds as may by law become a part of the present road and bridge fund of the county, and that the road maintenance fund, or the road and bridge fund, shall never be so pledged for the future as to defeat the purpose of this Act by creating debts against the fund and thus destroying the means of operating upon the annual budget basis in applying the patrol system. Provided further, that where any subdivision of a county may have voted a maintenance tax, the funds derived therefrom shall be expended upon the roads within the said subdivision, in accordance with the terms of this Act, and same shall continue until a like maintenance tax is voted for the entire county. Where counties have pledged the proceeds of a maintenance tax to the payment of warrants running for a term of years so as to absorb or deplete the road maintenance fund, such warrants, where legally issued, should be, at the earliest practical date, paid off or funded into bonds issued in accordance with law, to the end that the maintenance tax shall henceforth go to the maintenance fund as contemplated herein. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ aa. Classification of roads.—For the purpose of this division, the following classification shall be substantially observed by the road superintendent and the commissioners' court:

First Class Roads: All roads designated as State highways by the State Highway Commission shall be first class roads. One road leading in the direction of the county site of each adjoining county shall be a first class road, and such other roads as are subject to constant and heavy traffic may be by the commissioners' court of the respective counties classified as first class roads.

Second class roads shall include the main arteries of travel leading to first class roads and such other roads as are subject to a smaller or lesser degree of travel than first class roads.

Third class roads embrace the lesser arteries that connect up with the second and first class roads, and all other ways designated as public roads not included in first and second class roads. The class to which a particular road belongs shall be shown upon the county map herein provided for. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 6976½b. Selection of road patrolmen; competitive bidding; vacancy; receipt for road equipment.—After the roads shall have been sectionized, as above provided, which shall be done before January 1, 1922, the commissioners' courts of the several counties shall convene on the first Tuesday in January of 1922, or on some later date not after March 1, 1922, to be named by the commissioners' court, and each year thereafter for the purpose of selecting road patrolmen for each section of road in the county, and prior to such meeting the road superintendent shall advertise the letting of the several jobs of patrolmen, which advertisement shall consist of a brief general statement, contained in some paper of general circulation published in the county to the effect that all contracts for patrolmen will be let at said time. That a map showing the different road sections and the amount allowed in the budget to pay for the maintenance of such section may be seen in the office of the road superintendent at the county site, and posted notices of the letting of such contracts shall also be posted at one or more public places within each road section. A party applying for the position of patrolman shall use substantially the following blank, which may be furnished by the road superintendent:

For _____ dollars, the amount allowed to Section _____, in the road maintenance budget of this county, I will patrol the roads in said section for _____ days during the year of 19—, with split log drag, or such other implements as shall be directed by the road superintendent.

I agree to enter into a contract to carry out all the duties of patrolman and to make bond to such effect.

Signed _____

The contest among the bidders shall be the amount of work proffered for the money on hand, and the one offering the greatest amount of work shall be awarded the contract. Provided the commissioners' court may for adequate cause reject all bids and readvertise for a patrolman. Provided that in case of a vacancy, the said county road superintendent may hire a patrolman for a period of 60 days for any road district, who shall perform as nearly as may be the duty therein imposed, and during the said 60 days the said county road superintendent shall again advertise for a patrolman as in the first instance. The said patrolman, or any hired substitute, upon entering upon the duties, shall execute a written receipt to the county road superintendent for all tools, property and equipments of every kind that shall be delivered to him, and at the end of his term he shall deliver an inventory showing what is on hand for the use of his successor and until said inventory or report is made the last payment due the said patrolman shall not be made by the county commissioners' court. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 6976½bb. Duties of patrolmen; contract; penalty.—The said patrolman so employed shall furnish one or more teams, as may be designated by the road superintendent, the compensation for which shall be included in his contract. The said contract shall state the minimum number of days that he shall put in upon the work of the roads during the year, and the minimum number during each month of the year. He shall be furnished with a list of the hands, or persons subject to road duty upon his section, and it shall be his duty to see that each of said hands who have not paid an exemption fee to the tax collector of the county shall put in at least five days' work upon the roads of his section. His failure to do this shall subject him to a penalty of not less than $25.00 for each offense, to be deducted from the compensation allowed him in his contract. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ c. Enforcement of road duty; bond; equipment; mode of working roads; direction of road superintendent; bridges.—That the patrolman shall, under the direction of the superintendent, have power, and it is made his duty to see that all persons liable to road duty shall be called into service in such numbers and at such times as may be deemed necessary to effectively maintain and improve the roads of the several sections of the county.

The patrolman shall furnish bond in the sum of $500.00, conditioned that he will carry out the terms of his contract under the direction of the road superintendent, and in accordance with law. The said patrolman shall provide himself with the necessary team or teams, or motor vehicle, in accordance with his bid and contract for the purpose of patrolling and maintaining the roads of his section. The county shall provide him with a drag and other necessary implements to maintain the hard surface roads and also to smooth out dirt roads while in a plastic condition, after each rain, and when not so employed, the patrolman shall, under the direction of the superintendent, haul gravel, sand or other material upon the muddy portions of the road, and clay, gravel or other material upon the sandy portions, and also to sod the embankments of new roads in Bermuda grass. He may employ any other help allowed him under this Act in his work. The number of days that such patrolman shall employ in patrolling the roads, and the times at which it shall be done shall be under the general direction of the road superintendent, distributing throughout the year the number of days called for in his contract. He shall also see to the building and repair of all bridges not let by contract. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ cc. Office of county road superintendent created; duties.—The office of county road superintendent is hereby created in the several counties of the State, with such duties, compensation and liabilities as are herein imposed. The said superintendent shall devote his entire time to the construction and maintenance of the county roads. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. Appointment of superintendent, oath and bond; county engineer shall be road superintendent.—That the commissioners' court of the several counties of the State shall, within ninety days after the passage of this Act, at a regular session or a called meeting thereof, appoint a county road superintendent of construction and maintenance, except as is otherwise herein expressly provided, who shall have charge of all public road maintenance, together with the building of bridges and culverts in his county. Each county road superintendent shall, within twenty days after his appointment, take and subscribe to the oath required by the Constitution, and enter into bond, payable to the county judge or his successor in office, with good and sufficient surety to be approved by the county judge, in the sum of \$5,000.00, conditioned upon the said superintendent's faithfully and effectively discharging and performing all the duties required by law, or imposed upon him by the commissioners' court of his county, at the time of his appointment, which bond shall be filed and recorded as other official bonds, and shall not be void from the first recovery but may be sued upon from time to time until the whole amount is exhausted. Provided that wherever a county now employs a county engineer, that said county shall be the county road superintendent and draw only the salary provided for the engineer, so as to combine the two offices. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ dd. Qualifications of superintendent; salary; duties and powers; forbidding use of highway at certain times; liability of persons using highway after notice.—Every road superintendent shall be a qualified voter and a resident of some county in the State of Texas; shall serve for two years unless removed, as herein provided, or until his successor is appointed and qualified. The said superintendent shall receive a salary to be determined by the commissioners' court of the county employing him and in proportion to the road mileage and assessed valuation of said county.

The said road superintendent shall, subject to the orders of the commissioners' court, and under the advice of the State Highway Commission, have general supervision of all public roads and highways of his county; shall superintend the laying out of new roads, and particularly of the maintenance and repair and general upkeep of the several highways and public roads of the county, except as is otherwise herein expressly provided. That he shall forthwith as now directed by law make or cause to be made a road map of the county showing the location, mileage, and classification of the different roads and highways and road sections in said county.

The county road superintendent of any county may have the authority, by posting notices on the highway when from wet weather or recent construction or repair such can not be safely used without probable serious damage to same, or when the bridges or culverts on same are unsafe, to forbid the use of such highway or any section thereof to any vehicle or loads of such weight or tires of such character as will unduly damage such highway. The notices provided for herein shall state the maximum load permitted and the time such use is prohibited and shall be posted upon the highway in such places as will enable the drivers to make detours to avoid the restricted highways or portions thereof.

Provided further, that if the owner or operator of any such vehicle feels himself aggrieved by such action, he may complain in writing to the county judge of such county, setting forth the nature of his grievance. Upon the filing of such complaint the county judge shall forthwith set down for hearing the issue thus raised for a certain day, not more than three days later, and shall give notice in writing to such road official of the day and purpose of such hearing, and at such hearing the county judge shall hear testimony offered by the parties respectively, and upon conclusion thereof shall render judgment sustaining, revoking or modifying such order theretofore made by the county road superintendent, and the judgment of the county judge shall be final as to the issues so raised.

If upon such hearing the judgment sustains the order of the county road superintendent, and it appears that any violation of same has been committed by the complainant since posting such notices, he shall be subject to the same penalty hereinafter provided for such offense as if same had been committed subsequent to the rendition of such judgment made upon such hearing.

The owner, operator, driver or mover of any vehicle, object or contrivance over a public highway or bridge shall be jointly and severally responsible for all damages which said highway or bridge may sustain as the result of negligent driving, operating or moving of such vehicle or as a result of operating same at a time forbidden by the road superintendent, and the amount of such damages may be recovered in an action by law by the county judge for the use of the county, and such recovery shall go to the benefit of the damaged road. It is hereby made the duty of the county attorney to represent the county in the prosecution of such suits. [Id., § 9.]

Explanatory.—A part of this section, which imposes a criminal penalty, is set forth, post, as art. 822e, Penal Code.

See 1918 Supp., arts. 6016½-6016½c, as to newspaper publication instead of posted notice.

Art. 6976½e. Reports by road superintendent; patrolman's report.—That the road superintendent shall make a report under oath to the commissioners' court at each regular term thereof, making a complete report of his doings and of the work performed in the different road sections of the county, showing the condition of the roads, reporting any bridges that are becoming dangerous or needing repairs, the number of miles of road that have been patrolled, and worked since the last report and such other information as the commissioners' court may desire. The road superintendent shall prepare a blank form of report card for the use of the patrolmen, and said card shall be filled out as a daily report from each patrolman, which he must make as a part of his duties, and same shall show, among other things, the date, hours worked, character of work done, help had, if any, and such other matters as deemed by the superintendent necessary and desirable. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 6976½ee. County subdivisions; instruction of patrolmen.—That the county superintendent shall divide the county into two or four general sub-divisions, and shall twice a year assemble all of the patrolmen in said sub-divisions and give them lessons and instruction in road maintenance, and shall name from among the patrolmen in said subdivision the particular patrolman who has achieved the best results and maintained his roads in the highest state of efficiency. The road superintendent shall spend not less than four days each week out upon the roads seeing the different patrolmen and advising them in their work, and shall as nearly as possible visit the roads of each patrolman as often as once every two weeks. [Id., § 11.]

Art. 6976½f. Meetings of road superintendents; maintenance manual.—That once each year the State Highway Commission shall arrange for a good road meet of all of the road superintendents in each Senatorial District, and it shall be the duty of said road superintendents to attend this meet and carry with them the patrolmen who have been granted the highest place for efficiency in their respective sub-divisions, and that at such meeting some member of the State Highway Commission or other person or persons, selected and invited, shall give instruction in road maintenance and repairs. That such meeting shall take place where an actual demonstration of road work shall be had by one of the patrolmen of the particular county. Provided further, that the State Highway Commission shall cause to be prepared and published a "Maintenance Manual" similar to that used in Wisconsin and other states, which shall give the patrolmen proper instruction in the care and upkeep of roads, which instructions, together with a copy of this Act, shall be printed and furnished in sufficient numbers to each county for the use of the several patrolmen therein. [Id., § 12.]

Art. 6976½ff. Annulment of patrol contracts; removal of road superintendent.—A patrolman may have his contract annulled for neglect of duty or non-compliance with the terms of such contract, and upon recommendation of the county road superintendent the commissioners' court may declare such contract forfeited, settle with the patrolman for services to that date, and advertise for a successor, and may maintain any action against him and his bondsmen for any damage, loss or injury that the county has sustained by reason of the breach of his contract. The county road superintendent may be removed from office as now provided for by law for the removal of other officials. [Id., § 13.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ g. Purchase or hire of tools, etc., for improvement of roads.—The commissioners' court of any county, upon the recommendation of the superintendent, is empowered and authorized to purchase or hire all necessary tools, implements, machinery, and labor required to maintain the roads herein provided for, and to build and permanently improve any other roads where same is deemed necessary and proper, not, however, to such an extent as to largely deplete the funds of the county for road maintenance, herein provided for. [Id., § 14.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ gg. County convicts to be employed on road work; costs and commutation of time.—The commissioners' court shall require all county convicts not otherwise employed, to labor upon the public roads under such regulations as may be most expedient. Each county convict worked on the public roads in satisfaction of any fine and costs shall receive a credit thereon of fifty cents for each day that he may labor. And the commissioners' court shall order that the county pay to the officers of court as much as one-half of the costs due them when worked out upon the roads. But no such costs nor any part thereof shall ever be paid until such convict has worked out the entire amount of such fine and costs as provided by law, and then only upon a certificate from such county road superintendent to the effect that such costs have been so worked out. The commissioners' court may grant a reasonable commutation of time to a county convict as a reward for faithful services and good behavior, and such court shall make proper rules and regulations under which such commutation may be granted, which may be done by increasing the pay or compensation allowed to one dollar per day. [Id., § 15.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ h. Use of convicts for permanent road work; appropriation of funds.—The road superintendent may use the convict gangs in doing permanent road work; that is, in grading and building roads of a more permanent character than that of the road maintenance herein provided for under the several patrolmen of the county, and such convict gangs shall have a separate foreman, and not be under the direction of a regular patrolman employed by the county under contract for road maintenance, but such convicts gangs, under their foreman may be sent to such portions of the county for the purpose of improving roads that have been found difficult to maintain and to such other places as the county road superintendent may direct. In case a county shall determine to do permanent road work either with convicts or otherwise, a reasonable amount of money may be set aside for such purpose in making up the budget of the road and bridge funds, such appropriation, however, shall in no event be such as to destroy or seriously cripple the system of road maintenance herein provided. [Id., § 16.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ hh. Acceptance of donations; drains.—The commissioners' court may accept donations of money, land, teams, tools or labor, or any other kind of property or material, to aid in building or keeping up roads in the county, and said court or any road superintendent by and with the concurrence of the commissioners, may authorize any person to make a drain along any public road, the same to be done under the direction of the road superintendent. [Id., § 23.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ l. Patrolman may call out workers.—Patrolmen of roads shall have the power to call out all persons liable to work upon public roads at any time such road patrolman may deem it necessary, or when ordered by the superintendent or other competent authority, and such hands may be called out in detail, or the whole force at any one time, as may be deemed best, for the care of the public roads. [Id., § 24.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ ll. Persons not designated for road work may be called by patrolman.—In case any person liable to work on roads shall not have been designated and apportioned by the commissioners' court, the

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ n. Same; employment of person to summon hands.—The patrolman shall have the power to appoint some one to summon the hands to work on the roads, and such person shall be exempt from working on the roads as many days as he was actually engaged in summoning the hands. [Id., § 28.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ nn. Same; complaint against hands not responding.—It shall be the duty of the patrolman, within ten days after he has had his road worked by those subject to road duty, to file with the county attorney of his county, or the justice of the peace of his section, a complaint in writing and under oath against each person subject to road duty who has been summoned to work and who has failed to work and who has failed to furnish a substitute, and also against each person so summoned who has refused to do a reasonable amount of work on the road or who has refused to perform the reasonable directions of the patrolman. [Id., § 29.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ o. Appropriation of materials; compensation therefor.—When to the patrolman it may appear expedient to make causeways and build small bridges, or to gravel any public road, the timber, gravel, earth, stone, or other necessary material most convenient therefor may be used, but in such case, the owner of such timber, or gravel, earth, stone or other necessary material shall be paid out of the county treasury a fair compensation for the same, to be determined by the commissioners' court upon the application of such owner. [Id., § 30.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ oo. Whenever it is necessary to drain the water from any public road, the patrolman shall cut a ditch for that purpose, having due regard to the natural water flow, and with as little injury as possible to the adjacent land owner; provided, that in such cases, the commissioners' court shall cause the damage to such premises to be assessed and paid out of the general revenue of the county, and in case of a disagreement between the commissioners' court and such owner, the same may be settled by suit as in other cases. [Id., § 31.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ p. Workers may supply wagons, etc., instead of labor.—When it may be necessary to use a wagon for any purpose in working a road, or a plow or scraper, the patrolman of such road is authorized to exchange the labor of any hand or hands bound to work on such road, for the use of a wagon or wagons, plows or scrapers, and the necessary teams to operate the same, at reasonable rates, to be employed as aforesaid. [Id., § 32.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ pp. Mile posts.—It shall be the duty of all road patrolmen to measure such parts of roads as are in their respective sections and set up posts of good, lasting timber or stone at the end of each mile leading from the court house or some other noted place, and to make on said posts in legible and enduring figures the distance in miles to said court house or other noted place, which may be shown upon a board securely fastened to said post. [Id., § 33.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ q. The funds to provide such mile boards shall be appropriated by the commissioners' court from the moneys paid into the hands of the tax collector by different persons of the county in paying for exemptions from road service, as hereinabove provided, and it is here made the duty of the tax collector to pay over to the county treasurer all moneys collected from this source, and the same shall be applied to the road and bridge fund of the particular county. [Id., § 34.]

Art. 6976 $\frac{1}{2}$ qq. the street commissioner or other person in charge of the roads or streets of said town or city. And provided further, provisions of this Act may not apply to counties containing any city of more than One Hundred Thousand (100,000) inhabitants according to the census of 1920, which county may be operating under a special road law. Provided further, that where in any county a local road district has been heretofore created and has funds on hand for road building, then its expenditure is not affected by this Act, but same may be expended as under existing law and where such local road districts have voted a maintenance tax or otherwise raised a road maintenance fund, such fund must be expended in the district for which it was voted or originally designed, and any local board charged with the disbursement of such fund is hereby continued with all the powers originally designed and constituted under the law by which it was created. Such share of the county road maintenance fund as may be allotted to the sections within the special road districts shall be handled through the superintendent and patrolmen just as in other portions of the county, and the local board of commissioners, or governing body for such local district, may, if they so elect, have use of the patrolmen for the particular road district so as to unify the maintenance work. [Id., § 38.]

Art. 6976½s. ## ROAD LAW FOR COUNTIES HAVING FORTY THOUSAND INHABITANTS OR OVER

Art. 6984. May take material for road work; compensation, condemnation proceedings.	Art. 6985. Same; county not to give bond; compensation of condemnation commissioners.

Article 6984. May take material for road work; compensation; condemnation proceedings.—When to the commissioners court it may appear expedient to build, repair or maintain any public road in their county, the timber, earth, stone, gravel or other necessary material most convenient therefor may be used whether such material is desired for the construction, repair or maintenance of the entire road system of the county or for any defined district or political subdivision of the county, and whether such road construction or road maintenance work is being provided for from the general road and bridge funds of the county, or from the proceeds of a county bond issue, or from the proceeds of any bonds, issued, or from special taxes voted by any defined district or political subdivision of the county, but in such case the owner of any such material shall be paid a fair and just compensation for such material as may be agreed upon by the owner thereof or his agent and the commissioners court; and in the event such material is needed for the general system of county highways, then payment shall be made from the road and bridge fund of the county, or from the proceeds of any county issue of bonds, and if such material is to be used for the benefit of any defined district or political subdivision of the county, then the cost of such defined district or subdivision arising through sale of bonds or the collection of special taxes; provided, however, that should said owner or his agent, and the said commissioners court fail to agree upon the compensation to be paid therefor, then the county, upon the order of said court, shall proceed to condemn the same in the manner that a railroad company can condemn land for right of way, and the same proceedings shall be had as if the proceedings were by a railroad company. [Acts 1901, p. 277, § 8; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 26, § 1, amending art. 6984, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Explanatory.—The title of the act reads as follows: "An Act to authorize any county for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating public roads, whether such roads are macadamized, graveled or paved, or built of other material, to use timber, earth, sand, stone, gravel or other necessary materials convenient therefor, and to provide for the condemnation of such road material, and prescribing condemnation proceedings and providing compensation for such material, and declaring an emergency." But the enacting part purports to amend arts. 6984 and 6985, Rev. Civ. St. 1911. Took effect 90 days after June 18, 1920, date of adjournment.

Art. 6985. Same; county not to give bond; compensation of condemnation commissioners.—The county shall not be required, in proceedings to determine the compensation to be paid for material to build, repair or maintain public roads, in any case to give bond for costs, and the commissioners appointed to condemn such property necessary as aforesaid shall receive for their services two dollars for each and every day that they may be necessarily engaged in the performance of their duties as such commissioners, to be paid out of the same fund from which payment is made for materials is paid, on the order of the commissioners court and the compensation awarded by said commissioners for the necessary material shall be paid to the owner or deposited with the county treasurer to the credit of such owner, and when so paid or deposited the county shall have the right to enter upon and use said material. If the owner of such material, or said county, is not satisfied with the compensation awarded said owner, he or said county may appeal therefrom as in cases of appeal in proceedings by railroad companies to condemn right-of-way; provided the commissioners appointed to condemn such road material, shall, after due hearing, fix a fair and reasonable value for such material; and if it has a market value, then such market value shall be determined and the market value fixed thereon as compensation to the owners, or if the material has no market value then its value shall be fixed at such sum as the evidence shows the material to be reasonably worth for the purposes for which it is used; and provided further that the value may be fixed either as a whole or in quantities, by the yard for earth, for sand, or broken stone, or by the perch for stone used for building walls or abutments, and per tree or per post or per foot where trees are suitable for lumber, for bridge material, for timber or in such quantities as may be needed upon estimates secured by or under the directions of the commissioners court of the county. [Acts 1901, p. 277, § 9; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 26, § 2, amending art. 6985, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Took effect 90 days after June 18, 1920, date of adjournment.

Article 7012½. Registration of motor vehicles; application; fees; definition of terms; weight of loads; trailers; tractors; motor buses; electric vehicles; disputed classifications; rear view mirrors; tires; special permits as to loads and tires; liability for injury to highway.—Registration fees.* In order to provide funds to effectuate the provisions of this Act on and after January 1, 1922, and annually thereafter on and after the first day of January, every owner of a motor vehicle, tractor, trailer, or semi-trailer, or motorcycle in this State shall file in the office of the county tax collector of the county in which he resides or in which the vehicle he owns is being operated, on a blank provided by the State Highway Department, an application for the registration of each motor vehicle or motorcycle owned or controlled by him.

Each application shall be accompanied by the requisite fee for the number of unexpired quarters of the calendar year, which fee for the registration of a motorcycle for a full calendar year shall be Three ($3.00) Dollars, and for the registration of a motor vehicle except those herein-after designated as "Commercial Motor Vehicles," shall be thirty-five (35c) cents per horse power, as determined by the standard gauging power employed by the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers, but no motor vehicle shall be registered for a full year for a less sum than Seven ($7.50) Dollars and fifty cents. The term motorcycle shall include only those motor-driven vehicles with less than four wheels and with the driver sitting astride.

A commercial motor vehicle, under the provisions of this Act, is any motor vehicle intended, designated or used for the transportation of property.

For each commercial motor vehicle the annual license fee shall be based upon the net carrying capacity of the vehicle, and tire equipment as follows: provided that commercial motor vehicles whose net carrying capacity is two thousand pounds or less shall pay on the basis of horsepower rating as provided herein, but shall be subject to all the provisions of this Act.

Net Carrying Capacity in Pounds	If Equipped With Pneumatic Tires	Solid Tires
2,001 to 3,000	$ 30.00	$ 36.00
3,001 to 4,000	40.00	48.00
4,001 to 5,000	50.00	60.00
5,001 to 6,000	65.00	78.00
6,001 to 7,000	80.00	96.00
7,001 to 8,000	100.00	120.00
8,001 to 9,000	120.00	144.00
9,001 to 10,000	150.00	180.00

No motor vehicle shall be licensed under this Act whose net carrying capacity is greater than eight thousand pounds, provided that the officers or persons charged with the supervision and care of any certain highway may make written application to the State Highway Commission, asking that motor vehicles having a greater carrying capacity than named in this Act be permitted to operate on and over the highway specifically named in the application; and the State Highway Commission shall after investigation and finding the highway named in the application of sufficient construction to carry without material injury a load greater than that named in this Act, then the State Highway Commission shall have the authority to issue to owners of motor vehicles a license authorizing a greater load than named in this Act. Said license shall state the amount of load that may be carried and also the section of highway over which said motor vehicle may carry such excess load.

(A) For each trailer or semi-trailer, drawn or designed to be drawn by a commercial motor vehicle or tractor, the annual license fee shall be based upon the tire equipment and gross weight of vehicle and capacity load as follows:

Equipped with	Per 100 Pounds Gross Weight of Vehicle and Capacity Load.
Pneumatic Tires.....	15c
Solid Rubber Tires.....	25c
Iron, steel or other hard tires.....	35c

Provided that semi-trailers equipped with iron, steel, or other hard tires shall pay at the rate of $1.00 per 100 pounds of gross weight as specified under this section.

(B) The word "Tractor" where used in this Act shall be construed to mean: any self-propelled vehicle designed or used as a traveling power plant or for drawing other vehicles, but having no provision for carrying loads.

For each tractor, the annual license fee shall be based upon the weight of the tractor as follows:

	Annual License Fee
1 to 2,000 pounds.....	$ 5.00
2,001 to 4,000 pounds.....	10.00
4,001 to 6,000 pounds.....	15.00
6,001 to 8,000 pounds.....	20.00
8,001 to 10,000 pounds.....	25.00

Motor Buses. Owners of passenger motor vehicles that have a seating capacity of more than seven passengers, shall pay in addition to the fee of thirty-five (35c) cents per horsepower an additional registration fee of one ($1.00) dollar for each number of passengers the motor vehicle will seat in excess of seven passengers. * * * [Here follows a provision imposing a fine. It is set forth, post, as art. 820b6, Penal Code.]

Vehicles Not Subject to Registration. Trucks or tractors used exclusively for agricultural purposes, fire engines, road rollers, steam shovels, and other road building and agricultural machinery shall not be required to be registered; provided that nothing in this section shall be construed to exempt from this Act motor vehicles, trailers, semi-trailers, and tractors used for road building purposes and privately owned; provided that trucks used exclusively for agricultural purposes shall be registered by horsepower as is now provided for registration of automobiles and shall be subject to all the provisions of this Act, except the payment of annual license fees.

(A) Internal Combustion. For all purposes of this Act the horsepower of any motor vehicle, except electric or steamdriven vehicles, shall be determined by the formula commonly known as the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce formula, being as follows:

Square the diameter of the bore of the cylinder in inches, multiply by the number of cylinders and divide by two and one-half.

(B) Steam Vehicles. For the purpose of this Act, the horsepower of any steam driven vehicle, shall be computed by the system of horsepower rating adopted by the United States Government.

(C) Electric Vehicles. For vehicles propelled by electricity the rating shall be the normal horsepower designated by the manufacturer of the electric motor or motors used therein.

Basis of Weight Fees: In the computation of fees for trailers and semi-trailers the gross weight shall be the actual weight of the vehicle in pounds plus the manufacturer's rated load-carrying capacity; and in the computation of fees for commercial motor vehicles the net carrying capacity shall be the manufacturer's rated load-carrying capacity.

Disputed Classifications: The Highway Department shall have the authority, in disputed cases to determine the classification in which any vehicle belongs and the amount of fee which shall be paid therefor. No vehicle with a body wider than ninety (90) inches or of a total gross weight when loaded with a capacity load, of more than six hundred and fifty (650) pounds per inch width of tire, shall be licensed or be operated on the public highways, and no commercial motor vehicle or trailer operated hereunder shall ever carry more than ten per cent in excess tonnage over and above its registered carrying capacity.

No commercial motor vehicle shall be licensed or operated in this State until said vehicle shall have been equipped with a rear view mirror placed and maintained so that the driver shall at all times be able to see other vehicles approaching from the rear.

No commercial motor vehicle, trailer, semi-trailer, or tractor shall be operated upon the highways of this State if equipped with solid rubber tires less than one inch in thickness at any point from the surface to the rim, or if equipped with pneumatic tires when one or more of such tires has been removed. * * * [Here follows a criminal penalty. It is set forth, post, as art. 820b7, Penal Code.] The maximum weights prescribed herein shall also apply to trailers, semi-trailers, and tractors.

Anything to the contrary notwithstanding, upon application in writing to the State Highway Department, said Department in its discretion may issue a special permit to the owner or operator of any vehicle allowing heavier or wider loads than named herein, to be moved or carried over and on the public highways and bridges. They may also issue such special permit to increase the permissible weight per inch of width of tire. Such permits shall be in writing and they may limit the time and use of operation over the said highways and bridges which may be traversed and may contain such special conditions and provisions and require such undertaking or other security as the said Department shall deem to be necessary to protect the public highways and bridges from injury, or provide indemnity from any injuries resulting from such operation. All such special permits shall be carried in the vehicle to which they refer and upon demand shall be open to inspection of any peace officer or employee charged with care or protection of public highways.

The county road superintendent of any county, or any road supervisor whose road is affected, may have the authority by posting notices on the highways, when from wet weather or recent construction or repairs such cannot be safely used without probable serious damage to same, or when the bridges or culverts on same are unsafe to forbid the use of such highway or any section thereof to any vehicle or load of such weight or tires of such character as will unduly damage such highway. The notices provided for herein shall state the maximum load permitted and the time such use is prohibited and shall be posted upon the highway in such places as will enable the drivers to make detours to avoid the restricted highways or portions thereof.

Provided further, that if the owner or operator of any such vehicle feels himself aggrieved by such action, he may complain in writing to the county judge of such county, setting forth the nature of his grievance. Upon the filing of such complaint the county judge shall forthwith set down for hearing the issue thus raised for a day certain, not more than three days later, and shall give notice in writing to such road official of the day and purpose of such hearing, and at such hearing the county judge shall hear testimony offered by the parties respectively, and upon conclusion thereof shall render judgment sustaining, revoking, or modifying such order heretofore made by the county road superintendent, or road supervisor, and the judgment of the county judge shall be final as to the issues so raised.

If upon such hearing the judgment sustains the order of the county road superintendent, or road supervisor, and it appears that any violation of same has been committed by the complainant since posting such notices, he shall be subject to the same penalty hereinafter provided for such offense as if the same had been committed subsequent to the rendition of such judgment made upon such hearing. * * * [Here follows provision for criminal penalty, set forth, post, as art. 820b8, Penal Code.]

The owner, operator, driver, or mover of any vehicle, object, or contrivance over a public highway or bridge shall be jointly and severally responsible for all damages which said highway or bridge may sustain as the result of negligent driving, operating or moving of such vehicle, or as a result of operating same at a time forbidden by the road superintendent, or road supervisor, and the amount of such damages may be recovered in an action by law by the county judge for the use of the county, and such recovery shall go to the benefit of the damaged road. It is hereby made the duty of the county attorney to represent the county in the prosecution of such suits. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 190, § 16; Acts 1918, 35th Leg., 4th C. S., ch. 71, § 2 (§ 16); Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 113, § 1 (§ 16); Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 131, § 1 (§ 16); Acts 1921, 37th Leg., 1st C. S., ch. 52, § 1 (§ 16).]

Constitutionality.—Acts 35th Leg. c. 190, and chapter 207, as amended by Acts First Called Sess. 35th Leg. c. 31, creating state highway department and providing for licensing of motor vehicles, held not a revenue measure, though the license fees provided for greatly exceed expense of administering law. Atkins v. State Highway Department (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 226.

Any invalidity in Acts 35th Leg. c. 190, § 16, delegating to state highway department authority to formulate rules for determination of weights governing license fees for commercial vehicles, held, in view of section 27, not to invalidate those provisions imposing licenses on noncommercial vehicles. Id.

As license fees for motor vehicles provided by Acts 35th Leg. c. 190, would, if not validly appropriated, be covered into state treasury and await appropriation by some future Legislature, provisions for collection of fees cannot be attacked on ground that there was no valid appropriation. Id.

Where evidence did not show, and there was nothing in Acts 35th Leg. c. 190 and chapter 207 as amended by First Called Sess. 35th Leg. c. 31, providing for licensing of motor vehicles, to show that licenses were excessive, it must be presumed they were reasonable. Id.

License fees for operation of motor may be fixed according to horse power, though Const. art. 8, §§ 1, 2, requires uniformity of taxation and forbids assessment of property for taxes elsewhere than in county where it is situated. Id.

Title of Acts 35th Leg. c. 190, declaring that fees and charges should constitute part of fund for support of state highway commission, held sufficient under Const. art. 3, § 35, to support appropriation of license fees for use of highway department. Id.

SECTION 16A, ADDED BY ACTS 1919, 36TH LEG., CH. 113, § 2, AS AMENDED BY ACTS 1921, 37TH LEG., CH. 131, § 2, AND REPEALED BY ACTS 1921, 37TH LEG. 1ST C. S., CH. 52, § 2

Explanatory.—Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 52, § 2, attempts to repeal Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 131, § 16a. The title of the act provides for "repealing section 16a added to chapter 190 of the General Laws of the Regular Session of the Thirty-Fifth Legislature by section 2 of chapter 113 of the Acts of the Regular Session of the Thirty-sixth Legislature, and amended by section 2 of chapter 131 of the General Laws of the Regular Session of the Thirty-seventh Legislature," but in the body of the act first mentioned, the legislative declaration is as follows:

"Sec. 2. That section 6a be added to chapter 190 of the General Laws of the Regular Session of the Thirty-fifth Legislature as amended by section 2 of chapter 113 of the General Laws of the Thirty-sixth Legislature, as amended by section 2 of chapter 131 of the General Laws of the Thirty-seventh Legislature be and the same is hereby expressly repealed."

The text of the provisions sought to be repealed, as the same was amended by Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 131, § 2, is as follows:

"Sec. 16a. All commercial motor vehicles and trailers having a greater carrying capacity than one ton, shall, before said commercial motor vehicles or trailers are allowed to operate over the highways and roads of this State, be further registered and licensed as follows:

"The owner of any commercial motor vehicle or trailer having a net carrying capacity of more than one ton shall make application to the County Tax Collector of the county where said owner resides, or has his or its principal office or place of business, accompanied by the registration certificate, or certified copy thereof, showing said motor vehicle or trailer to be registered under existing laws as defined by Section 1 hereof, and which applications must show the carrying capacity in tons of said motor vehicle or trailer for the further license to operate said motor vehicle or trailer, which application shall be sworn to, and, as far as practicable, shall state the general route or routes and the estimated mileage thereof, in each county or counties, over which it is proposed to operate said motor vehicle or trailer, but such mileage shall not include the streets of any incorporated town or city. Upon receipt of said application when same is approved, the County Tax Collector shall issue a license in proper form prepared by the Highway Department to the owner of said motor vehicle or trailer, and said license shall at all times be displayed in a prominent place on the motor vehicle or trailer so licensed.

"(b) The owner of each commercial motor vehicle or trailer registered hereunder shall keep in a separate book or books kept for that purpose, an accurate account of the number of miles traveled by said motor vehicle and trailer attached thereto, if any, while being operated outside the limits of any incorporated city or town; and if said motor vehicle or trailer is operated in more than one county, an accurate account shall be kept of the miles so traveled in each county. Said books shall at all times be open for the inspection of the County Tax Collector, or the duly authorized agent of said Tax Collector, of the counties where said motor vehicle or trailer is licensed to operate, and said Tax Collector, or the authorized agent of either, shall have the right at any and all times to make an inspection of said books."

While the express repeal seems to be ineffective, the provision may be regarded as superseded or impliedly repealed by Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 52.

[Id., § 5.]

Art. 7012<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>e. Same; to be known as Traffic Officers; co-operation with city, etc., police departments; arrests; complaints; fines.—The said Special Deputies shall be known as the County Traffic Officers, and shall, at all times, co-operate with the police department of each city or town within the county, in the enforcement of said traffic laws in said city or town as well as in the other portions of the county. When arrests are made by said officers for offenses committed within the corporate limits of any city or town, complaints shall be filed before the City Court, or other proper Tribunal in said city or town, having jurisdiction over such offenses, and the fines arising therefrom shall be retained by such city or town for the maintenance of their streets, and to

7020½d. How named; body corporate.	7020½j. Anticipation of funds by issuance of warrants.
7020½e. Counties, political subdivisions, districts, etc., may create indebtedness; limitation.	7020½k. Special road law counties.

Article 7020½. Commissioners' court may establish road districts.—The Commissioners' Courts of the several counties of this State may create within their counties road districts for the purpose of the construction, maintenance and operation of macadamized, graveled or paved roads and turnpikes, or in aid thereof, and which may include one or more previously created political subdivisions or defined districts that have voted and issued road bonds, and, in addition thereto, other territory if deemed judicious, and which may exclude certain territory as hereinafter permitted; and such districts shall be created in the same manner that political sub-divisions or defined road districts are now authorized to be created by Chapter 2 of Title 18, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas of 1911, and all amendments thereto. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 41, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.
See notes under art. 6860.

Art. 7020½a. Districts governed by bond law.—Any road district created under the provisions of this Act shall be governed and controlled by the provisions and limitations of Chapter 2, Title 18, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas of 1911, and all amendments thereto, except as herein otherwise provided. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 7020 $\frac{1}{2}$ b. Compensation to existing districts for bonds outstanding; procedure.—Any one or more political sub-divisions or defined road districts included within the limits of a road district under the provisions of this Act shall be fully and fairly compensated by the new district in an amount equal to the amount of district bonds outstanding against such sub-divisions or districts and which shall be done in the form and manner prescribed for the issuance of county road bonds under authority of Chapter 38, Acts of the Second Called Session of the Thirty-sixth Legislature [Arts. 637a–637hh], except the petition shall be signed by fifty or a majority of the resident property tax-paying voters of the new district and the bonds proposed to be issued shall be for the purchase or construction of roads in the included district or districts, and the further construction, maintenance and operation of macadamized, graveled or paved roads and turnpikes, or in aid thereof, within and for the new district. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 7020 $\frac{1}{2}$ c. Exclusion of levee, drainage or improvement districts; adjustment of liabilities; fractional districts.—In the event any political sub-division or defined road district sought to be incorporated into the proposed new road district should embrace the whole or any part of any levee improvement district, drainage district, or any other improvement district, created under any laws passed pursuant to Section 52 of Article 3 of the Constitution, as it now exists, then the territory covered by such other district may be excluded from the new road district sought to be created under the provisions of this Act, but, except as herein specially permitted no fractional part of a previously created road district shall be included within the limits of a road district created under the provisions of this Act; provided, that in the issuance of bonds by the new district for the purpose prescribed by Section 3 hereof, that portion of the territory of the previously created sub-division or road district included within the other improvement districts hereinabove named shall not be subjected to the payment of such new district bonds, but said territory shall continue to be liable for its pro rata part of all road bonds issued by the previously created sub-division or road district as the assessed values thereof shall bear to the whole assessed values of such previously created sub-division or road district so encroached upon, as such assessed values are shown upon the last preceding county tax assessment rolls, and it is hereby made the duty of the Commissioners' Court annually to levy and to have assessed and collected a tax upon all taxable property within said territory sufficient to pay said territory's pro rata part of the interest on and the necessary sinking fund for the bonds issued by such previously created sub-division or road district, and all taxes collected for that purpose within such territory shall be placed in a separate fund to the credit of the interest and sinking fund account of such sub-division or district so encroached upon and shall be applied to the purposes named and no other. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 7020 $\frac{1}{2}$ d. How named; body corporate.—Each road district created under the provisions of this Act shall bear the name of the county in which it is located, and shall be definitely numbered, which may be the number of the road district incorporated therein which was first created, and a district so established shall become and be a body corporate with all the powers, rights and privileges conferred by this Act, or any other law, upon districts created for the purpose of the construction, maintenance and operation of macadamized, graveled or paved roads and turnpikes, or in aid thereof. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 7020<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>e. Counties, political subdivisions, districts, etc., may create indebtedness; limitation.—Any county in this State, or any political sub-division or defined district thereof, heretofore created or hereafter to be created, acting under the provisions of Section 52 of Article 3 of the Constitution may upon a vote of two-thirds of the resident property taxpayers thereof, qualified to vote, voting at an election to determine the matter, create indebtedness for the purposes of maintaining the roads of such county or political sub-division or defined district to an amount which, in addition to other indebtedness incurred under the provisions of this Act, or any other Statute passed pursuant to said section of the Constitution, will not exceed one-fourth of the last assessed valuation of the real property situated in such county or political sub-division or defined district. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 7020<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>f. Same; election.—Whenever fifty, or more, or a majority of the resident qualified, property tax-paying voters of any county or political subdivision or defined district, such as is mentioned in the preceding Section, petition the Commissioners' Court of such county for an election to determine whether indebtedness specifically for maintenance of the roads of the county or political sub-division or defined district shall be incurred, it shall be the duty of such court to order an election within and for such county or political sub-division or defined district to determine whether such indebtedness shall be created and whether taxes shall be levied upon the taxable property in such county or political sub-division or defined district in payment thereof, provided the indebtedness sought to be created, in addition to all other indebtedness of such county or political sub-division or defined district, will not exceed one-fourth of the last assessed value of the real estate situated in such county, or political sub-division, or defined district. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 7020<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>g. Petition for creation of indebtedness; order and notice of election.—The petition for the creation of indebtedness for maintenance purposes may be for the creation of a specified amount of indebtedness annually, or for an amount annually that would be raised by taxes at a named rate according to the last assessed value of the property within such county or political sub-division or defined district; provided, that where a political sub-division or defined district has been created for the issuance of road bonds, the order and notice of the election herein provided for need not describe the boundaries of such political sub-division or defined district, but it shall be sufficient to identify the district by its number and the date of its creation and the number of the volume and page or pages of the minutes of the Commissioners Court in which is recorded the order creating and establishing such political sub-division or defined district. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 7020<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>h. Mode and conduct of election; duties of Commissioners' Court in event of favorable result.—The Commissioners' Court shall name the place or places for holding an election on the question of incurring indebtedness for maintenance purposes, and name a manager and two clerks for each polling place, and notice of such election shall be given, and other proceedings shall be had substantially as required by law for bond elections in road districts, and returns of such elections and declarations of results thereof shall be substantially as provided for road district bond elections, except the ballots at such elections shall read

“For Maintenance Indebtedness and Levy of Taxes in Payment Thereof,” or “Against Maintenance Indebtedness and the Levy of Taxes in Payment Thereof.” If such election results in favor of the proposition submitted, the Commissioners’ Court of the county may incur indebtedness annually for and on behalf of such county or political sub-division or defined district for the maintenance of the roads of such county or political sub-division or defined district to the amount voted, until authority so to do is revoked, or changed by another election, which may not be held until the expiration of five years from the date of the election authorizing such maintenance tax, and the Commissioners’ Court of the county, while such authority exists, shall annually levy, and cause to be assessed and collected, taxes upon the taxable property of such county or political sub-division or defined district at rates sufficient to produce the specific annual sum voted, or at the specific rate voted, or so much, or at such rate as will raise funds sufficient to satisfy the maintenance indebtedness created, or intended to be created, for the current year, the proceeds of which taxes shall be used for the purposes named. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 7020 $\frac{1}{2}$ i. Election to revoke or modify former result.—An election to revoke, modify or increase the right to incur maintenance indebtedness, when permissible, may be obtained and held substantially as here-in provided for an election to incur such indebtedness. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 7020 $\frac{1}{2}$ j. Anticipation of funds by issuance of warrants.—The amount to be raised by taxation for maintenance purposes may be anticipated during any current year by the issuance of warrants against the same, which may bear interest at a rate not to exceed eight per cent per annum from their date and be payable on or before the tenth day of April of the year next succeeding the year of issuance, which warrants may be disposed of to raise maintenance funds, or the same may be used in payment of maintenance work, but the amount of warrants to be issued in any one year, in anticipation of maintenance funds, shall never exceed 90% of the amount of such funds as would be raised by taxation levied during such year. [Id., § 11.]

Art. 7020 $\frac{1}{2}$ k. Special road law counties.—Any county operating under a special road law may avail itself of all of the provisions of this Act. [Id., § 12.]

CHAPTER ELEVEN

SPECIAL ROAD TAX

Art.
7042. Election for road tax, etc.

Art.
7045. Duty of Commissioners’ Court.

Article 7042. Election for road tax, etc.

Explanatory.—Arts. 7042–7046 are limited in their scope by Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 41, ante, arts. 7020 $\frac{1}{2}$ –7020 $\frac{1}{2}$ k, as far as the maintenance of paved roads is concerned.

Power of legislature to levy local tax in one county.—Const. art. 8, § 9, empowering the Legislature to pass local laws for the maintenance of public roads, did not authorize the Legislature to levy a local tax in one county for road purposes, contrary to other provisions of the Constitution limiting the power of the Legislature in levying taxes. Meyenberg v. Ehlinger (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 312.

Art. 7045. Duty of commissioners' court.

Collection of tax.—Loc. & Sp. Laws 36th Leg. (1919) c. 2, imposing a road tax on inhabitants of Fayette county, clearly indicates that the special tax is to be collected as other taxes, so that payment of the tax levied for the year 1920 cannot be compelled before February 1, 1921. Meyenberg v. Ehlinger (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 312.

JUDICIAL OFFICERS

7057. Justices of supreme court, judges of commission of appeals, judges of court of criminal appeals, judges of courts of civil appeals, judges of district courts.

7058, 7059. [Superseded.]

Article 7057. Justices of supreme court, judges of commission of appeals, judges of court of criminal appeals, judges of courts of civil appeals, judges of district courts.—From and after the passage of this Act, Judges of the Supreme Court, judges of the Commission of Appeals, and the judges of the Court of Criminal Appeals of this State shall each be paid an annual salary of Sixty Five Hundred dollars, payable in equal monthly instalments; that the judges of the several Courts of Civil Appeals of this State shall each be paid an annual salary of Five Thousand Dollars, payable in equal monthly instalments; and that the Judges of the District Courts of this State shall each be paid an annual salary of Four Thousand Dollars, payable in equal monthly instalments. [Acts 1913, p. 329, § 1, superseding Arts. 7057, 7058, Rev. St. 1911; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 32, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Sec. 2 of Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 32, repeals all conflicting laws. The act took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Validity of act.—It appearing that the members of the Thirty-Sixth Legislature thought that Senate Bill No. 32 relating to salaries of judges, was not in substance the same as House Bill No. 21, relating to salaries of judges, which was defeated, the courts ought not to interfere and hold that the former was in substance the same as the latter and that the Legislature did not have power to pass it under Const. art. 3, § 34, the question being one upon which the minds of reasonable men might differ. King v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 42.

Since the Thirty-Sixth Legislature was lawfully in session, and had the inherent right to legislate upon the question of fixing the salaries of judges, the courts will presume that such Legislature had not incapacitated itself from enacting into law Senate Bill No. 32 by defeating at the same session a bill similar in substance, contrary to Const. art. 3, § 34, and will not suffer such presumption to be rebutted. Id.

See art. 7057.

See art. 7057; King v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 42.

CHAPTER FIVE

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 7086.	Salaries shall not be changed during term.	Art. 7089.	Salary to be paid only, when.
---------------	--	---------------	-------------------------------

Article 7086. [4853] Salaries shall not be changed during term.

Power to change salary.—Relation between holder of public office and government is not that of employer and employé, and their rights are not to be determined by rules of contracts of employment; so that governing body under which public officer holds office may abolish office or change compensation during term of office of incumbent. Carver v. Wheeler County (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 537.

Beginning of term of office.—County treasurer's term of office did not begin before election, within this article, though political complexion of county was so predominately Democratic that only real contest was in primaries. Carver v. Wheeler County (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 537.

Art. 7089. [4859] Salary to be paid only, when.

Unconstitutional office.—An official appointed to an unconstitutional office is not entitled to compensation for services rendered. Maud v. Terrell, 109 Tex. 97, 200 S. W. 375.

SEALS AND SCROLLS

Article 7093. [4863] Unsealed instruments held to import consideration, etc.

See Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Wilson, 3 Tex. Civ. App. 583, 24 S. W. 686.

Written contracts import consideration.—In trespass to try title, bond for title, not reciting any consideration, was not evidence of title, where the payment of valuable consideration was not waived. Robinson v. Randell (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 625.

A written instrument reciting a consideration imports one. Miers & Rose v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 715.

A note, properly signed and delivered by a party, is prima facie evidence of its due execution, as well as its consideration. Goree v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 620.

Where defendant's so-called option contract with plaintiff to lease her oil lands on its face disclosed that it was based on a money consideration, when plaintiff by her testimony refuted the acceptance of the consideration so stated in the instrument, she sufficiently raised the issue of want of consideration. Texas Co. v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 300.

A written oil lease imports a consideration, and, if $1 recited therein is not sufficient, other consideration might be presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, to have been paid in order to uphold the written contract. McKay v. Kilcrease (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 177.

Effect of sworn plea.—Under this article, and in view of art. 1906, which provides that the consideration of a written instrument can only be impeached by a sworn plea, the interposition, in an action on a note, of a sworn plea denying consideration, does not throw the burden of proving consideration on plaintiff. Newton v. Newton, 77 Tex. 508, 14 S. W. 157.

SEQUESTRATION

Art.

7094. In what cases to be issued.
7095. Affidavit, and what it shall state.
7096. Petition must be filed, when.
7097. Bond for the writ.
7099. Writ and its requisites.
7103. Defendant may replevy by giving bond.
7104. Bond in case of personal property.
7105. In case of real estate.

Art.

7106. Return of bond and judgment thereon.
7107. How judgment may be discharged.
7108. When the property has been injured.
7109. Execution shall issue when.
7110. Replevy by plaintiff; bond.
7111. Bond shall be returned, and the proceeding thereon if forfeited.
7112. Defendant not required to account for hire, etc., when.

Article 7094. [4864] In what cases to be issued.

See Schuster v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 327.

Cited, Spero v. Peters (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 514; cited in dissenting opinion, San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Blair, 108 Tex. 434, 196 S. W. 1153.

Right of action and nature of remedy.—Although one acquires possession of a chattel through an illegal transaction, he may sue a trespasser, taking possession thereof, to recover such possession. Colburn v. Coburn (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 248.

While not recognizing common-law forms of action, yet, where personal property is sued for, the legal principles governing the action of detainee must be resorted to and the judgment in such an action, as well as under art. 2368, is in the alternative for the recovery of the property or its value, and where plaintiff's petition entitled him to recover possession of specific personal property, and there was a prayer for general relief, a motion to quash a writ of sequestration should have been denied. White v. Texas Motor Car & Supply Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 138.

Grounds for sequestration.—Where a purchaser of a musical instrument gave a chattel mortgage for the unpaid balance of the price, the seller cannot sequester the property, but, to obtain possession in event of nonpayment, must foreclose the lien of the mortgage. Kahn v. J. W. Carter Music Co. (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1163.

Where a part owner wrongfully withheld personal property, another part owner could not bring action for the property, but should sue for a partition thereof. Miller v. Fenton (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 631.

A tenant having removed a portion of the crop from the rented premises without consent of the landlord, and without accounting for his pro rata share thereof, reserved as rent, writ of sequestration legally issued. Gaylor v. Monroe (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 330.

In trespass to try title to land on which an oil well had been drilled by defendant, who was in possession, and who was solvent, evidence being conflicting on the question of right to possession, plaintiffs held to have an adequate legal remedy by sequestration, under subdivision 4 of this article, and equity could not be called upon to give relief by appointment of receiver. General Oil Co. v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 261.

Under art. 1827, a petition must make a full and clear statement of the cause of action and other pertinent allegations deemed necessary to sustain the suit and also the nature of the relief demanded, and where there were allegations of ownership and delivery to defendant of automobiles and demand for their possession, accompanied by tender of storage charges and of special daily damages until return of the property, a demand for the properties was involved, although no specific demand therefor was made, and the writ of sequestration was warranted by the prayer for general relief, if the special prayer be totally rejected. White v. Texas Motor Car & Supply Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 138.

Action for damages.—In action for damages for refusal to deliver automobiles stored in defendant's garage, sequestration was properly quashed, as arts. 7094, 7095, do not authorize writ in an action merely for damages. White v. Texas Motorcar & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 441.

An original petition for the recovery of two automobiles and damages for their retention held not a mere petition for damages, but one for the possession of specific property warranting a writ of sequestration, in view of subd. 2. White v. Texas Motor Car & Supply Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 138.

Suit to recover personal property.—In determining whether plaintiff sued for recovery of personal property, resort must be had to the whole petition, and the averments must be read in connection with the prayer, which must be consistent with the cause of action asserted, and the relief must be authorized by the pleaded facts and cannot be granted unless prayed for, and the specific relief asked is a controlling factor, in the absence of a prayer for general relief. White v. Texas Motor Car & Supply Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 138.

Evidence.—Evidence in replevin case as to identity of diamond with imperfection, alleged once as "scratch" and again as "shiver," held sufficient to uphold finding on special issue that it was plaintiff's diamond. Hall v. Collier (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 880.

Conversion by creditor.—Where a piano was taken by statutory procedure in a suit to foreclose a purchase-money contract lien and was placed in the possession of the sheriff and the cause was dismissed, and on the same day another suit was started and the sheriff retained the property under a new writ of sequestration without having returned it, there was no conversion by the creditor. De Arcy v. South Texas Music Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 381.

Art. 7095. [4865] Affidavit, and what it shall state.

Sufficiency of affidavit in general.—The words "will make use of its possession of said property to injure said property," in plaintiff's affidavit for sequestration, were substantial compliance with art. 7094, providing that the writ may issue where plaintiff fears that defendant "will injure such property." White v. Texas Motorcar & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 441; White v. Texas Motor Car & Supply Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 138.

The statute does not require affidavit for sequestration to state that the writ is not sued out to injure either defendant. Joseph W. Moon Buggy Co. v. Moore-Hustead Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 328.

In suit to foreclose deed of trust and builder's lien, allegations of application for sequestration that plaintiff feared defendants would injure the property and convert the rents, fruits, and revenues, held not inconsistent. Dowdy v. Furtner (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 647.

Separate affidavit for sequestration in the alternative is objectionable for duplicity. Schuster v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 327.

Sequestration affidavit reciting that affiant, who was described as plaintiff in specified suit, was sworn and stated he was owner of property "sued for as aforesaid," held sufficient, since quoted words, by referring to recital, make recital substantially sworn matter. Richardson v. Cantrell (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 702.

Under statute requiring sequestration affiant to state that he fears defendant or person in possession of property will remove it from county, etc., an affidavit stating he feared defendant would do so held sufficient, although property was then in another's possession. Id.

Where petition in suit to foreclose a purchase-money contract lien alleged a debt of $216.50, together with 10 per cent. thereof as attorney's fees, a recitation in an affidavit for a writ of sequestration that the debt was $216.50 was not a material variance. De Arcy v. South Texas Music Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 381.

Description of property.—In suit to foreclose purchase-money contract lien upon a piano, together with stool and scarf, an affidavit for sequestration sufficiently described the property as a piano. De Arcy v. South Texas Music Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 381.

Value of property.—Affidavit for sequestration of a number of buggies satisfies this article, requiring it to give the value of each article, where it gives the value of each which is different from the others, and groups those alike and gives their number and aggregate value. Joseph W. Moon Buggy Co. v. Moore-Hustead Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 328.

Where the holder of a secured note, given for the purchase price of three mules, sought to foreclose his mortgage lien and prayed a writ of sequestration for possession of the property, the writ must be quashed, where neither the affidavit nor the petition alleged the value of each item of the property. Gandy v. Cornelius (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 467.

Under arts. 7094, 7095, 7097, 7103, plaintiff lessee suing a sublessee to recover possession of the premises in order to secure writ of sequestration was required to state in his affidavit the value of the property sought to be sequestered, and not the value of his leasehold interest therein, and defendant sublessee was not entitled to replevy the property, on levy of the writ of sequestration, by execution and delivery of bond for double the real value of plaintiff's interest. Spero v. Peters (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 514.

Affidavit regarded as surplusage.—Where petition for sequestration alleged ejectment as ground and was sufficient, the filing of a separate affidavit upon a different ground which was insufficient could be regarded as surplusage and did not impair the sufficiency of the petition. Schuster v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 327.

Art. 7096. [4866] Petition must be filed, when.

Sufficiency of petition.—That the language of petition for sequestration with reference to ejectment is not in exact words of art. 7094, subd. 5, is not fatal, but it is sufficient if the language is synonymous therewith. Schuster v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 327.

If two distinct grounds exist for issuance of writ of sequestration which are not inconsistent, they may be conjunctively alleged. Id.

Where petition for sequestration alleged ejectment as ground and was sufficient, the filing of a separate affidavit upon a different ground which was insufficient could be regarded as surplusage and did not impair the sufficiency of the petition. Id.

Under this article, the petition, and not the affidavit for sequestration, determines the nature of the action in determining whether court had jurisdiction to issue writ, and amendment of petition after issuance of writ does not cure defect. White v. Texas Motorcar & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 441.

Art. 7097. [4867] Bond for the writ.

Cited, Spero v. Peters (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 514.

Approval of bond.—Where clerk of court files sequestration bond and issues process thereon, his approval, though not indorsed on bond, will be presumed, in absence of showing that he did not approve bond and that the writ was improvidently issued. Richardson v. Cantrell (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 702.

Liability on bond.—Plaintiff is not liable for the scratching of a sequestered piano, unless he took part in the handling of it, or directed it. Miller v. Poff (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 399.

Where plaintiff took by sequestration property which he was entitled to take under a chattel mortgage, he is not liable in damages, though the ground of sequestration was not established. Id.

Liability for wrongful sequestration.—In action for damages for wrongful sequestration, judgment in original proceeding will not be held void on ground of disqualification of county judge because of relationship with surety on appeal bond. Fred Mercer Dry Goods Co. v. Fikes (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 830.

If grounds upon which writ of sequestration was secured were false or untrue, defendant is entitled to recover his actual damages, regardless of whether plaintiffs sincerely believed in truth thereof. Id.

In action against defendants who had obtained possession of plaintiff's premises by sequestration proceedings without making plaintiff a party thereto, the sequestration proceedings and the issuance and levy of the writ on the property is no defense. Bassham v. Evans (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 446.

Soldier who was ejected from his premises by means of sequestration proceedings and was deprived of the protection to which he was entitled under Soldiers' & Sailors' Civil Relief Act (U. S. Comp. St. 1918, U. S. Comp. St. Ann. Supp. 1919, §§ 3078¼a-3078¼ss) could recover damages regardless of whether facts stated in affidavit for sequestration are true or false. Bassham v. Evans (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 446.

While mortgagee's exercise by sequestration of a right given him by his mortgage to take possession of the mortgaged property, as the right to declare all notes due and take possession of the property upon feeling unsafe or insecure from any cause, could not make him liable as for wrongful sequestration, yet, if the mortgagee had not exercised its option to declare all the notes due because it felt unsafe and insecure, before sequestration was sued out and levied, and sued out sequestration on the ground alone of fear that the holder of the mortgaged property would injure the property during the pendency of suit, the mortgagee, if such ground in fact did not exist, could not escape liability for actual damages by showing that it had reasonable grounds to fear such consequences. Central Transfer & Storage Co. v. Wichita Falls Motor Co. (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 688.

Actions on bonds or for wrongful sequestration.—When real or personal property had been levied on by a writ of execution, attachment, sequestration, or other such writ, to which the claimant or owner is not a party, he may resort to his common-law remedy for the damages inflicted by seizure thereunder. Bassham v. Evans (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 446.

Damages in general.—In a suit for damages for the wrongful sequestration of personal property shown to have a particular use to the owner, his peculiar damage from its seizure and detention was recoverable. Keppler v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 447.

On evidence in a suit for damages for wrongful sequestration of personal property, judgment for plaintiff for $419.70, in view of the restoration of the property to plaintiff, held grossly excessive. Id.

Where mortgagee by illegal sequestration after property had been returned to mortgagor deprived mortgagor of use of part thereof, held mortgagor was entitled to set off reasonable value of use from such date to date of trial in action on notes secured by the mortgage. Montgomery v. Gallas (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 993.

Where in trespass to try title it was determined that plaintiff's writ of sequestration was wrongfully issued and served, the taking of the property under such writ amounted to a conversion, and it was no defense to defendant's claim in reconvention for damages for wrongful sequestration that defendants were given an opportunity to harvest all crops that they had seeded and cultivated as lessees of the premises, for defendants had a right to refuse such offer. Gilroy v. Rowley (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 623.

In action for trespass in wrongfully obtaining possession of plaintiff's property by sequestration proceedings, mental anguish occasioned by the trespass cannot be recovered as actual damages; although if the trespass were malicious or with evil intent, so that exemplary damages are recoverable, mental anguish may be considered in assessing such damages, under the rule permitting the jury, in assessing such damage, to consider damage too remote to be considered strictly compensatory. Bassham v. Evans (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 446.

In action against defendants who had obtained possession of premises by sequestration proceedings without making plaintiff a party to the proceedings in violation of his rights as a soldier under Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act (U. S. Comp. St. 1918, U. S. Comp. St. Ann. Supp. 1919, §§ 3078¼a-3078¼ss), plaintiff's measure of damages was not recovery of purchase money installments paid, but was the value of the use of premises and any special damage to the property. Id.

The value of defendant's time lost in attending court on the trial of a suit against him cannot be recovered as damages on quashing of writ of sequestration. Kubena v. Mikulascik (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1105.

On quashing of writ of sequestration, the defendant cannot recover attorney's fees as damages. Id.

Value of property.—A chattel mortgage on half of a crop of cotton to be raised on certain land, mortgagor to have cotton ginned and baled, held to contemplate that lien was to cover and apply to one-half of bales of cotton, that might be raised, and not an undivided one-half interest in crop, thus giving mortgagee right to elect which bales she should take or sell; and a second mortgagee, who had sequestered and sold the part of the crop before first mortgagee selected her bales, is liable in conversion to the extent of the full value of the part taken. Citizens' Guaranty State Bank v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 271.

Where plaintiff wrongfully sequesters property and converts it pending suit, defendant is entitled as damages not only to value of property, but, where that is insufficient, to compensation for detention. Fred Mercer Dry Goods Co. v. Fikes (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 830.

In sequestration, where property is unlawfully seized and taken from the owner, it is proper to award a sufficient sum to compensate him for the injury occasioned by the detention of the property in addition to the value, where award of the value with interest is not sufficient. Hyway Motor Co. v. Saulsbury (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 322.

In sequestration, as in attachment, if property is unlawfully seized and taken from the owner, he may recover damages sustained, ordinarily the value of the property so taken at the time of the seizure, with 6 per cent. interest from the time. Id.

Where defendant sequestered and replevied certain goats claimed by plaintiff to be his property, in conversion by plaintiff the measure of damages was the reasonable market value of the goats at the time of their seizure under the writ of sequestration, with 6 per cent. interest on such amount from the said date to the time of trial. Garcia v. Hernandez (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1099.

Exemplary damages.—Ordinarily surety on sequestration and replevin bonds is not liable in case of wrongful sequestration for exemplary damages, but, where the malicious acts are instigated by him or where he acts jointly in the conversion of the property, he is responsible for exemplary damages in same degree as plaintiff. Fred Mercer Dry Goods Co. v. Fikes (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 830.

If plaintiffs, in securing writ of sequestration upon false grounds, acted maliciously and without probable cause for believing truth thereof, they are liable, in addition to actual damages, for vindictive or exemplary damages by way of punishment for their wrongful and oppressive use of court's process. Id.

Where plaintiff secured issuance of writ of sequestration upon false grounds and without probable cause, defendant is entitled to recover as exemplary damages attorney's fees, expenses, and loss of time resulting from the original action. Id.

Where no actual damages are recoverable by defendant on quashing of writ of sequestration, exemplary damages cannot be awarded. Kubena v. Mikulascik (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1105.

Evidence.—In action for damages for wrongful sequestration, the pleadings and judgments rendered in original action are admissible in evidence; the result of such action being basis of action for damages, and proof of its outcome being necessary to proof of damages suffered thereby. Fred Mercer Dry Goods Co. v. Fikes (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 830.

Art. 7099. [4869] Writ and its requisites.

Motion to quash.—A motion to quash sequestration proceedings, on the ground that plaintiff did not sue for the recovery of personal property, but for damages for its conversion, is, in effect, a general demurrer to the petition, and the petition should be liberally construed and aided by all reasonable inferences and intendments when hearing the motion. White v. Texas Motor Car & Supply Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 138.

Effect of quashal of writ.—Under the provision that the writ shall command the officer to hold the property "subject to the future order of the judge, court, or justice of the peace who issued the writ," the officer is justified in holding the property until ordered by the court to dispose of it, or until the final disposition of the cause, though an interlocutory order has been made quashing the sequestration, but not directing the officer what to do with the property. Thompson v. Graves (App.) 15 S. W. 38.

Art. 7103. [4873] Defendant may replevy by giving bond.

Persons entitled to replevy.—Owner of sequestered property who was not a party to the sequestration proceedings could not have replevied property under this article. Bassham v. Evans (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 446.

Amount of bond.—Under arts. 7094, 7095, 7097, 7103, plaintiff lessee suing a sublessee to recover possession of the premises in order to secure writ of sequestration was required to state in his affidavit the value of the property sought to be sequestered, and not the value of his leasehold interest therein, and defendant sublessee was not entitled to replevy the property, on levy of the writ of sequestration, by execution and delivery of bond for double the real value of plaintiff's interest. Spero v. Peters (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 514.

Validity and quashal of bond and writ.—Where plaintiff, in an action to foreclose a chattel mortgage on diamonds, sued out a writ of sequestration under which sheriff took the diamonds into possession, a bonding company, by executing a replevy bond and taking possession of the diamonds and delivering them to defendant's attorneys, did not become liable to plaintiff for conversion of the property, the sequestration proceedings being subsequently quashed, in view of this article. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Harless (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 124.

Quashal of writ as affecting judgment against surety.—Where it is apparent that plaintiff was not awarded judgment against the surety on defendant's replevy bond by virtue of the latter's contractual liability as surety on the bond, which was rendered null and void by quashal of the writ of sequestration sued out by plaintiff, judgment for plaintiff was not affected by quashal of the writ. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Harless (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 307.

Art. 7104. [4874] Bond in case of personal property.

Liability on bond.—Where in sequestration proceedings the sheriff subjects part of the property covered by the replevin bond to the debt, the sureties on the replevin bond are not thereby released from the remainder of the judgment. Morgan v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 670.

In a replevin action, plaintiff was not limited to the value alleged; the market value at the time of trial being the measure of damages. Tripplett v. Hendricks (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 754.

The court cannot render judgment against a surety on bond in replevin to secure possession of sequestered property for the costs of the suit, but the judgment creditor is entitled to recover as against the surety such costs as may be incurred in proper proceedings to collect the judgment. Id.

Plaintiff in sequestration, who exchanged his mule for the mare of a defendant claimed to have acted fraudulently, not being entitled to return of his mule as against a subsequent purchaser in possession without notice of the fraud, recovery will not be awarded to him, on the replevin bond signed by the fraudulent owner of the mare. Cox v. Collom (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1102.

The value of property sequestered and obtained by a defendant under a replevin bond is to be determined by its market value at the time of trial. Litchfield v. Fitzpatrick (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 926.

In an action for conversion of certain goats sequestered and replevied by defendant, a verdict for plaintiff held not contrary to the evidence as to title. Garcia v. Hernandez (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 1099.

— Effect of quashing of writ.—Quashal of a writ of sequestration sued out by plaintiff rendered null and void the replevy bond executed by the original defendant, and relieved of all liability the surety thereon. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Harless (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 307.

Art. 7105. [4875] In case of real estate.

Liability of sureties.—Plaintiff is entitled to rentals to accrue up to time possession should be delivered to plaintiff where authorized by the bond. Fincher v. Wood (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 868.

Art. 7106. [4876] Return of bond and judgment thereon.

In general.—The question whether judgment should be rendered against sureties on replevin bond is exclusively for the court. Gonzales v. Flores (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 351. Where plaintiff, seller of jewelry, recovered against surety on defendant's replevy bond, writ of sequestration having been sued out, on theory that surety had converted property on which, he (the seller) had a valid mortgage lien, and did not recover on the replevy bond, usual judgment rendered when recovery is had on replevy bond was not called for and would not have been proper. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Harless (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 307.

In trespass to try title, where sequestration writ was issued and the property replevied, court, rendering judgment for plaintiff, was authorized to give judgment for rentals to accrue up to time possession of the property should be delivered to plaintiff, where authorized by replevy bond, in view of arts. 7106-7109. Fincher v. Wood (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 868.

Pleadings, findings and evidence to support judgment.—Under this article, introduction of the bond in evidence is unnecessary, and such introduction without the application for writ of sequestration is harmless error. Gonzales v. Flores (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 851.

In suit to recover automobile, in alternative for purchase price, with foreclosure of lien, plaintiff suing out writ of sequestration and car being later replevied by defendant, failure of verdict and judgment for plaintiff against defendant and sureties on replevin bond to find value of automobile was reversible error. Reeves v. Avina (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 729.

Under arts. 7103-7109, where a mortgagee seeks only to foreclose his lien on the property, if any portion is realty, and a replevy bond is given, all he is entitled to is to have the realty subjected to his debt; and if replevy bond was executed in the terms of the statute securing him against injury to, and for the rents of, the realty, the object can be accomplished without any finding or judgment concerning the value of the realty, which should be ignored in determining the extent of liability of the obligors on the replevy bond and their right to reduce it by returning the personal property. Thorndale Mercantile Co. v. Continental Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1059.

Requisites of judgment.—A judgment, approving a verdict in replevin which establishes the value of each article as shown by the verdict copied therein, complies sufficiently with the statute, especially when considered with the judgment provision authorizing return of property described in verdict or any portion thereof. Gonzales v. Flores (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 851.

Where the replevin bond is copied into the judgment and recovery thereon decreed, it amounts to a finding that the bond is valid. Id.

Under arts. 7103-7109, where a mortgagee of realty and personalty sued to foreclose his lien and sequestered the property, and the successor of defendant mortgagor gave a replevy bond with sureties, decree awarding to plaintiff mortgagee the full amount of his debt against defendant mortgagor, also awarding recovery against the obligors on the replevy bond for the value of the personalty replevied as fixed by the verdict, with right in the obligors to deliver to the sheriff any portion of the personalty, and thereby relieve themselves from liability except for the value of such portion of the personalty as they failed to return to the sheriff, in no event to exceed plaintiff mortgagee's judgment against defendant mortgagor, fully protects the obligors in the replevy bond. Thorndale Mercantile Co. v. Continental Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1059.

Operation and effect of judgment.—The giving of replevy bond in sequestration proceedings and the rendition of judgment against the sureties thereon does not pass the title to the property to the defendant, or destroy plaintiff's right to subject the same to the payment of his debt. Morgan v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 670.

Art. 7107. [4877] Defendant may discharge judgment by return of property, etc.

See Siddall v. Goggan, 68 Tex. 708, 5 S. W. 668; Krall v. Campbell Printing-Press & Mfg. Co., 79 Tex. 556, 15 S. W. 565.

In general.—The defendant and sureties in sequestration should have the privilege of returning the property, unless it is shown the property has been disposed of, or cannot be produced. Tripplett v. Hendricks (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 754.

In trespass to try title, where sequestration writ was issued and the property replevied, court, rendering judgment for plaintiff, was authorized to give judgment for rentals to accrue up to time possession of the property should be delivered to plaintiff, where authorized by replevy bond, in view of arts. 7106-7109. Fincher v. Wood (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 868.

Validity.—The provision authorizing sheriff to judge of reasonable amount of damage to property if damaged while in possession under replevin bond is void as undertaking to invest the sheriff with judicial power. Morgan v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 670.

Art. 7108. [4878] When the property has been injured, etc.

See Fincher v. Wood (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 868.

Liability of surety for loss of or injury to property.—Where petition in sequestration showed that the property taken by defendant under replevin bond was not surrendered, plaintiff had a valid judgment against the surety for the amount of the debt, but no cause of action to recover for loss or injury to the property although the sheriff may have levied upon such property as he could find. Morgan v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 670.

Art. 7109. [4879] Execution shall issue, when.

See Krall v. Campbell Printing-Press & Mfg. Co., 79 Tex. 556, 15 S. W. 565; Fincher v. Wood (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 868.

Art. 7110. [4880] Plaintiff may replevy, when, and his bond.

Effect of dismissal of suit.—See Brooks v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 361.

Art. 7111. [4881] Bond shall be returned, and the proceedings thereon if forfeited.

Cited, Sweeney v. Alderete (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 367.

In general.—Defendants, in suit for title and possession of property seeking judgment against plaintiff and sureties on replevin bond conditioned to have property forthcoming to abide decision of court and filed after he procured issuance and levy of writ of sequestration did not need to show they were owners of the property sequestered, where evidence showed it was taken from their possession and had not been returned. Myrick v. Futch (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 861.

Petition by seller of jewelry against buyer and latter's surety on replevy bond given when property was replevied from seizure under writ of sequestration held not to seek to enforce surety's statutory liability on bond, but rather to seek recovery, either on the bond as a common-law obligation, or for conversion. General Bonding & Casualty Ins. Co. v. Harless (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 307.

In suit involving liability for sequestration, the market value of each article or piece of property at the time of trial is the proper measure of damages, so that recitals in a plaintiff's petition, sequestration bond, writ of sequestration, and replevy bond, all filed 17 months before the trial, were inadmissible to establish such market value. Vaughn v. Charpiot (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 950.

In action involving liability on replevy bond in sequestration case for depriving defendant of use of mules, etc., replevied, defendant's testimony as to what he was making per day in hauling, for which purpose he could have used the mules, held insufficient to establish the value of their use between their seizure and the trial, 17 months later. Id.

Contention that court erred in entering judgment on bond for value of sequestered property at date of trial, in that true measure of damages is value at time of sequestration, cannot be sustained. Brooks v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 361.

Under arts. 7110, 7111, where plaintiff's suit is decided against him, it is the duty of the court to enter judgment for defendant on the bond, whether defendant has filed formal affirmative pleadings or not. Id.

Dismissal by plaintiff.—Where plaintiff dismisses suit for title and possession of property, he fails to establish his right thereto, and judgment necessarily must be in favor of defendants against him and the sureties on his replevin bond filed after issuance and levy of writ of sequestration. Myrick v. Futch (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 861.

Where plaintiff in sequestration replevied, giving bond, required by art. 7110, conditioned for the forthcoming of the property, to abide the decision of the court, and later plaintiff dismissed, defendant had the right to judgment for the value of the property, although his answer consisted only of general demurrer and general denial, for under this article, providing for judgment on the replevy bond in case of decision against plaintiff, the suit had been "decided" against plaintiff by his voluntary act, and by virtue of such statute defendant's answer had the legal effect of affirmative pleading. Brooks v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 361.

In action for possession of certain oats, claimed as rent, where petition, affidavit and bond for sequestration, writ, and replevy bond showed conclusively that plaintiff took or caused the oats to be taken from defendant's possession, and it was alleged by plaintiff that oats were a part of crop raised by defendant, held, defendant was entitled to judgment, without reference to where actual title was; plaintiff having voluntarily discontinued action. Id.

In action for rents, consisting of 275 bushels of oats, plaintiff having sequestered oats and subsequently replevied the same, giving a replevy bond, where case was dismissed merely as to plaintiff's cause of action, plaintiff and his bondsman were not entitled to service of citation, or to any given period or form of notice that case would be tried at the following term. Id.

Where plaintiff in sequestration replevied and took possession of the property and, before defendant had answered or was required to answer, dismissed the suit and paid the costs under art. 1898, the defendant, on seasonably filing answer, was entitled, notwithstanding plaintiff's dismissal of his suit, to proceed with his side of the case and to recover on replevin bond without the right on the part of the plaintiff to have the order of dismissal set aside and to prove its title to and possession of the property at the time of seizure; the suit, by reason of such dismissal, having been "decided against the plaintiff" within this article. E. H. Bruyere Const. Co. v. Bewley (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 610.

Art. 7112. [4882] Defendant not required to account for hire, etc., when.

Liability for rents.—In replevin for possession of automobile, or for its value, and rent, plaintiff was not entitled to rent, where the judgment was for the value of the automobile, but was entitled to 6 per cent. on such sum from the date of taking. *Willys-Overland Co. of California v. ##### ELECTION AND QUALIFICATION

Article 7121. [4892] Oath and bond.

See Russey v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 974.

Liability on bond—Money received.—In a county's suit against its former sheriff and bondsmen to recover moneys illegally received by the sheriff during term of office, the bondsmen were not liable for the sums paid to the sheriff in good faith by order of the commissioners' court for hire of a guard at the county jail, even though the amounts paid were not authorized by law. Cooper v. Johnson County (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 528.

POWERS, DUTIES AND LIABILITIES

Art. 7125. [4896] May appoint deputies, etc.

De facto deputies.—Where deceased, at a prior term, was appointed in writing deputy sheriff, and the sheriff continued him by oral appointment and he acted as deputy continuously for a number of years and was generally recognized as deputy, he was a de facto officer. Burkhardt v. State, 83 Cr. R. 228, 202 S. W. 513.

Criminal responsibility.—Under the provision that every person appointed deputy-sheriff shall take and subscribe the oath of office which shall be indorsed on his appointment, together with the certificate of the officer administering the same, one charged with unlawfully carrying a pistol cannot defend on the ground that he is a deputy-sheriff, where his appointment bears no indorsement and he was a resident of another county at the time of such appointment, remaining there and making no pretense of being an officer on his arrest. Blair v. State, 26 Tex. App. 387, 9 S. W. 890.

The appointment of accused as a special deputy-sheriff to pursue and capture horse-thieves, and to carry fire-arms for that purpose, although not indorsed with the oath of office required by this article, is admissible in evidence in a prosecution for carrying a pistol; because, whether legal or not, it was strongly calculated to induce the accused to believe that he had the right to carry a pistol. Lyle v. State, 21 Tex. App. 153, 17 S. W. 425.

Art. 7126. [4897] Responsible for their acts.

Cited, Hendrick v. Walton, 69 Tex. 192, 6 S. W. 749.

Art. 7130. [4901] Shall execute all legal process.

Wrongful levy or other taking of property.—A sheriff is not liable to the trustee in bankruptcy for conversion, although he sells property under levy after the bankruptcy proceedings begin, unless he had notice thereof. Coppard v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 650.

Notice to a sheriff having in his hands an execution that the judgment debtor is in bankruptcy must come through official channels, and a notice of intention to bring bankruptcy proceedings is insufficient. Id.

Process or order of court as protection from liability.—In the absence of fraud to which he is a party a sheriff may safely apply to satisfaction of an execution, fair on its face, money subject thereto, though told by the execution defendant that he had paid the judgment. Branscum v. Reese (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 871.

Art. 7136a. Enforcement of United States explosives act; failure; punishment.—It is hereby made the duty of all the sheriffs and constables, their deputies, policemen, city marshals and all other peace officers of the State, to fully co-operate with and assist the officers of the United States whose duty it is to enforce the provisions of an Act of Congress approved October 6, 1917, entitled "An Act to prohibit the manufacture, distribution, storage, use and possession, in time of war, of explosives, providing regulations for the safe manufacture, distribution, storage, use and possession of the same, and for other purposes"; and it is also made the duty of said officers to promptly report any fact or circumstance coming to his knowledge in any way showing or indicating a violation of any of the provisions of said act of Congress, to the United States explosive inspector or other proper officers of the United States, charged with the duty of enforcing the provisions of said Act of Congress, and the willful failure or refusal of any such officer to discharge and perform the duties imposed by this Act shall constitute a misdemeanor involving official misconduct and on conviction he shall be punished by fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, and by removal from office, and it shall be the duty of the judge or court rendering said judgment of conviction to embody suitable provisions removing said offender from office. [Acts 1918, 35th. Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 70, § 1.]

OF MARKS AND BRANDS

Art.

7151. Owners of stock to have mark and brand.
7156. Brands of minors.

Art.

7160. Unrecorded brands no evidence; proviso.

Article 7151. [4921] Owners of stock to have mark and brand.

Cited, Thompson v. State, 26 Tex. App. 466, 9 S. W. 760; Rankin v. Bell, 85 Tex. 28, 19 S. W. 874.

Change of brand.—Although this article provides that a party shall have but one mark and brand for his cattle, this was not intended to prohibit a stock-owner from changing his mark and brand; and the records of different counties, showing different brands for the same cattle, are admissible when the evidence shows that the owner removed his cattle from one county to the other, and there registered a different brand because the former was claimed by other parties. McClure v. Sheek's Heirs, 68 Tex. 426, 4 S. W. 552.

Art. 7156. [4926] Brands of minors.

Cited, Rankin v. Bell, 85 Tex. 28, 19 S. W. 874.

Art. 7160. [4930] Unrecorded brands no evidence; proviso.

Unrecorded brands as evidence.—Where, on the trial of an indictment for larceny, the evidence of the alleged owner of the animal was to the effect that in the summer of 1883 he had lost a colt, 18 months old, and branded with a certain mark, which was not recorded, and that the animal found in the possession of defendant in September, 1886, he identified by this brand, and that there were no flesh-marks that he could swear to, except that it had a small neck, and its form, and that he knew it to be the same colt by the brand, and the small neck and form, held that, under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4561, the proof arising from flesh-marks was insufficient proof of ownership to sustain a conviction. Romero v. State, 24 Tex. App. 130, 5 S. W. 663.

On a trial for larceny, the only evidence of the ownership of the animal alleged to have been stolen was that it bore a certain brand. The record did not show whose was the brand, nor that it was recorded as required by Rev. St. 1879, art. 4561, although the bill of exceptions showed that defendant objected to the offered record of the brand, but did not set it out, nor show that it was read in evidence over the objection. Held, that a conviction could not be sustained. Burke v. State, 25 Tex. App. 172, 7 S. W. 873.

Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4561, unrecorded brands are not evidence as to who has the management and control of the cattle. McKenzie v. State, 32 Cr. R. 568, 25 S. W. 426, 40 Am. St. Rep. 795.

Under this article, in prosecution for cattle theft properly certified copy of registration of alleged brand of owners of stolen cattle in county of their residence was admissible to prove ownership, whether as partners or jointly as individuals. Gomez v. State, 206 S. W. 86.

— Identification.—This article does not prevent proof of identity and ownership of cattle by a witness who testifies that from the brands, as flesh-marks upon certain hides, he knows that the hides came from off certain particular animals. Tittle v. State, 30 Tex. App. 597, 17 S. W. 1118.

Art. 7169d. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 7169f. Same; sale of skins.—The Live Stock Sanitary Commission of Texas or its authorized representatives are hereby authorized to sell at the best prevailing market prices hides of all predatory animals that may be killed under the authority of Chapter 107 of the Acts of the Regular Session, of the 36th Legislature [Arts. 7169a-7169e]. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 41, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 7169g. Same; proceeds of sale of hides.—All sums of money received by any representatives of the Live Stock Sanitary Commission for the sale of such hides as provided for in Section 1 hereof [Art. 7169f], shall be remitted at once to the Live Stock Sanitary Commission by said representative. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 7169h. Same; funds; expenditure of.—All moneys received by the State Treasurer from the Live Stock Sanitary Commission as provided for by this Act shall be credited by the State Treasurer to the credit of the Live Stock Sanitary Commission of Texas, and set apart to be used by the Live Stock Sanitary Commission in the further eradication of predatory animals as provided for in Chapter 107 of the Act of the Regular Session of the 36th Legislature [Arts. 7169a-7169e], and such funds shall be drawn from the State Treasury by the Live Stock Sanitary Commission for said purposes at any time after such funds are deposited and it may be drawn by the Live Stock Sanitary Commission in any amount or amounts for said purposes not to exceed the amount on deposit. Such fund is in addition to any appropriation made or that may be made by the Legislature for eradicating predatory animals. [Id., § 3.]

OF THE SALE, SLAUGHTER AND SHIPMENT OF ANIMALS

Art.
7170. Bill of sale to be taken.
7171. Possession, prima facie illegal, without.

Art.
7172. Stock animals sold by marks, etc.

Article 7170. [4940] Bill of sale to be always taken.

Application.—Arts. 7170, 7171, have no extra territorial effect, where sale without state was accompanied by actual delivery, and property was afterwards brought into state. Jurado v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 859.

Sale of stock.—In action for fraud in sale of a jack for breeding purposes, the proper measure of damages was the difference between the price paid for the animal and the actual value thereof, plus any sums expended by reason of the fraudulent representation. Womack v. Hastings & Lagow (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 878.

In suit for fraud in sale of a jack, recovery cannot be had for profits. Id.

In action for fraud in sale of a jack for breeding purposes, recovery could not be had for feed and care of the animal after it was discovered by the purchaser that the jack was not available for purpose for which purchased. Id.

— Rights and liabilities on sale of diseased stock.—The fact that a seller, misrepresenting diseased cattle as sound, realized his profits in the form of a commission, did not of itself necessarily show that he was handling the cattle merely as broker and agent for plaintiff. Graves v. Haynes (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 665.

Where plaintiff had known defendant for some time, had confidence in him, was assured by defendant that the cattle came from a safe county, and did not have the fever, and by such representations was induced to buy them not knowing them to be diseased, the defendant cannot, whether he be seller or plaintiff's agent, escape liability for such misrepresentations on the ground that he in good faith believed them to be true. Id.

If buyer of cattle represented to be free from tick fever believed the representations and relied on them and would not otherwise have purchased the cattle, he is entitled to recover damages, although he relied in part on what he saw when he inspected the cattle; but, if he relied in fact on what he saw he cannot recover. Graves v. Haynes (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 383.

Art. 7171. [4941] Possession prima facie illegal, without.

Cited, Rankin v. Bell, 85 Tex. 28, 19 S. W. 874.

Rebuttal of presumption.—Title may be shown to have passed, though there was no written transfer, by evidence of a bona fide sale on sufficient consideration. First Nat. Bank of Colorado v. Brown, 85 Tex. 80, 23 S. W. 862.

No extra territorial effect.—Arts. 7170, 7171, have no extra territorial effect, where sale without state was accompanied by actual delivery, and property was afterwards brought into state. Jurado v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 859.

Art. 7172. [4942] Stock animals sold by mark and brand, etc.

Application of law—Record.—A creditor claiming property rights in cattle running on a range which he has purchased of his debtor, paying for the same partly in cash and partly by crediting the debtor with his account, without recording the transfer, acquires no title to the property under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4564. Black v. Vaughan, 70 Tex. 47, 7 S. W. 604.

Sale and actual delivery.—On a sale of cattle accompanied by actual delivery, though the purchaser returns the cattle to the range, the bill of sale is not required to be recorded, under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4564. Boutwell v. Hiltbold (App.) 15 S. W. 501.

Where there was actual delivery of the cattle, title passed, though the bill of sale, describing them by certain marks and brands, was not recorded. First Nat. Bank of Colorado v. Brown, 85 Tex. 80, 23 S. W. 862.

Article 7209. [4978] Commissioners' court to order election.

See Watkins v. Vaughn (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 480; Cline v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 668.

Filing petition.—The petition for an election is fundamental and essential to the jurisdiction of the court in ordering an election on the adoption of the law prohibiting hogs, goats, and sheep from running at large within a county or subdivision. Coleman v. Hallum (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 296.

Order for election.—Where the order for an election on the adoption of the law preventing hogs, goats, "and" sheep from running at large stated that the petition requested such election, and included a copy of the petition praying for such an election, the statement in the conclusion of the order that the election was to be held to determine whether hogs, goats, "or" sheep shall be permitted to run at large was manifestly contrary to the intent of the court to order the election asked for, so that the word "or" can be construed to mean "and," as is permissible to effectuate the intention of the parties. Coleman v. Hallum (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 296.

Liability of railroad company for killing hogs.—Where art. 7235 et seq., relating to horses and cattle, has not been adopted in a county, a railroad operating an unfenced track therein, unless negligent, is not liable, under art. 6603, for hogs killed or injured while running at large in violation of title 124, c. 5, adopted in such county. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Wilhite (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 765.

Operation within city.—Legislature, by special charter granted City of Dallas (Sp. Acts 30th Leg. c. 71), having given it right and authority to control, regulate, restrain, and prohibit running at large of stock within its bounds, as well as control of streets and public grounds, county cannot invade its territory in attempt to exercise authority by a local option election. Cowand v. State, 83 Cr. R. 298, 202 S. W. 961.

Art. 7210. [4979] Election may be ordered in subdivisions, when.

Cited, Gilley v. Haddox (App.) 15 S. W. 714.

Art. 7211. [4980] Requisites of petition.

Cited, Gilley v. Haddox (App.) 15 S. W. 714.

Sufficiency of petition in general.—Election for adoption of the stock law for subdivision of county was void; the statute requiring the petition for election to specify the classes of animals desired to be restrained and the order for election to conform to the petition, whereas the petition specified hogs, sheep, "and" goats, and the order hogs, sheep, "or" goats. Hallum v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 989.

Description.—Under Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 7211, it is imperative that a petition for a stock law election in a subdivision of a county shall particularly describe such subdivision and designate the boundaries thereof, and a petition, describing a subdivision as "beginning at a point on the west boundary line of Franklin county; the N. W. corner of general stock law district; thence east with the N. B. line general stock law to where same connects with," etc., was insufficient under this article. Alsobrook v. State, 86 Cr. R. 271, 216 S. W. 167.

Art. 7212. [4981] Election, how ordered and conducted.

Cited, Gilley v. Haddox (App.) 15 S. W. 714.

Application to city.—Stock law election will not be held invalid because order of election included territory within corporate limits of city and two towns, conceding that election could not be enforced in incorporated territory. Goforth v. Corley (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 243.

Term of court.—Where order for election for adoption of stock law in a subdivision of a county was made at the term of the commissioners' court during which the petition was filed, instead of at the next term, as required by the statute, election was void, and could not be vitalized by lapse of years. Hallum v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 989.

The provision of this article, requiring the commissioner's court at its next regular term after the filing of a petition therefor to order an election, was intended only to prevent the court from delaying the calling of an election, and does not invalidate an order for such election made at the same term at which the petition was filed. Coleman v. Hallum (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 296.

Art. 7213. [4982] Notice, how given.

Cited, Gilley v. Haddox (App.) 15 S. W. 714.

Art. 7214. [4983] Requisites of the order.

See Watkins v. Vaughn (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 480.

Cited, Gilley v. Haddox (App.) 15 S. W. 714.

Art. 7215. [4984] Voting places.

Cited, Gilley v. Haddox (App.) 15 S. W. 714.

Designation of place in order.—Order of county judge for stock law election for a commissioner's precinct held to sufficiently designate places at which polls should be opened, as required by this article. Goforth v. Corley (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 243.

Art. 7216. [4985] Managers to be appointed, when.

Cited, Gilley v. Haddox (App.) 15 S. W. 714.

Art. 7217. [4986] Freeholders only to vote.

Cited, Gilley v. Haddox (App.) 15 S. W. 714.

Freeholders.—Qualified voters of all territory to be affected by operation of local option stock law are entitled to vote, and law cannot be legally enforced against such voters, not given opportunity to vote at election. Cowand v. State, 83 Cr. R. 298, 202 S. W. 961.

Art. 7218. [4987] Manner of voting.

Cited, Gilley v. Haddox (App.) 15 S. W. 714.

Art. 7219. [4988] Returns of election.

Cited, Gilley v. Haddox (App.) 15 S. W. 714.

Art. 7220. [4989] Returns, how opened.—The returns shall be opened, tabulated and counted by the Commissioners' Court of the County in the same manner as provided for all general elections in the State of Texas. [Acts 1876, p. 150, § 4; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 59, § 1.]

See Watkins v. Vaughn (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 480.

Cited, Gilley v. Haddox (App.) 15 S. W. 714.

Art. 7221. [4990] Proclamation of the result, and its effect.

Cited, Gilley v. Haddox (App.) 15 S. W. 714.

Proclamation.—Where plaintiff in suit for damages done to his crops by defendants' hogs did not allege or prove that his crops were protected by a good and lawful fence, he could not recover, where he failed to allege and prove that the county judge published or posted, as required by this article, notice of result of election, putting the special stock law into effect; it being necessary to allege and prove each of steps required by article 7209 et seq., where special stock law is relied upon. Watkins v. Vaughn (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 480.

The proclamation of the county judge, declaring the result of an election adopting the law prohibiting hogs, goats, and sheep from running at large, raises the presumption that everything necessary to a legal election had been done, so that evidence such proclamation was issued is sufficient to show the validity of the election without evidence as to the manner of counting and tabulating the votes. Coleman v. Hallum (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 296.

Art. 7222. [4991] Stock may be impounded, when.

Cited, Gilley v. Haddox (App.) 15 S. W. 714.

In general.—There is no general law prohibiting stock running at large. Carvel v. Kusel (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 941.

Injunction.—The statutory remedy by impounding animals unlawfully running at large and selling them to pay for the damage done by them given by arts. 7222-7226, is of doubtful adequacy, since the damage might exceed the value of the animals, or the animals doing the damage might not be identified, and therefore such remedy does not prevent the granting of an injunction to restrain an owner from unlawfully permitting his hogs to run at large. Coleman v. Hallum (Com. App.) 232 S. W. 296.

Arts. 7223-7228. [4992-4997].

Cited, Gilley v. Haddox (App.) 15 S. W. 714.

Art. 7234a. Elections validated.—All elections held in any county in this State for the purpose of determining whether or not hogs, sheep or goats shall be permitted to run at large in such county or subdivision as provided in Chapter 5 of the Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, wherein the petition was filed, orders of the election made by the Commissioners' Court, notice thereof given, such election held and a majority of the freeholders voting at such election, voted in favor of same, and such election may have been invalidated by the failure of some ministerial officer to perform the duties required of him, be, and the same is hereby in all things validated, and shall be, by all of the courts of this State, held to be valid elections, just the same as if the officers charged with duty of opening, tabulating and counting the votes should have complied with the law, as provided in said Chapter 5 of the Revised Civil Statutes of Texas. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 59, § 2.]

Took effect July 28, 1919.

Art. 7234b. Limited free range for hogs in county or subdivision thereof; petition for election; number of signatures to.—Upon the written petition of fifty (50) freeholders of any county, or upon the petition of twenty (20) freeholders of any subdivision of any county, which county or subdivision has heretofore adopted, or may hereafter adopt, the hog law under the provisions of Chapter 5, Title 124, of the Revised Civil Statutes of Texas [Arts. 7209–7234], the commissioners' court of such county shall order an election to be held in said county or subdivision on some day named in the order, for the purpose of enabling the freeholders of such county or subdivision to determine whether hogs shall have a free range in said county or subdivision from the fifteenth day of November to the fifteenth day of February, of each year. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 92, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 7234c. Same; number of petitioners in certain cases.—Whenever there is territory between two subdivisions of a county which have adopted the hog law, and in such intervening territory there is less than fifty (50) freeholders, an election shall be ordered on the petition of a majority of the freeholders residing in such intervening territory, and the election shall be held for the purpose named herein and under the terms of this Act. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 7234d. Same; description of subdivision in petition.—If the petition be from the freeholders of a subdivision of any county, such subdivision shall be particularly described and the boundaries thereof designated in the same manner as when originally established. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 7234e. Same; order for, date, and conduct of election.—Upon the filing of such petition, the commissioners' court, at a regular or special meeting thereof, shall pass an order directing an election to be held throughout the county or the particular subdivision thereof, as the case may be, on a day to be designated in the order, not less than thirty days from the date of such order; which election shall be held and conducted and the returns thereof made in accordance with the laws regulating general elections, in so far as the same are applicable. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 7234f. Same; order for election by county judge; notice of election.—Immediately after the passage of an order for an election by the commissioners' court, the county judge shall issue an order for such election and cause public notices thereof to be given for at least thirty days before the day of election, by publication of the order therefor in some newspaper published in the county, if there be one; if no newspaper be published in the county then by posting copies of such order at the court house door, and at some public place in each justice's precinct, if such election be ordered for the whole county, or at three public places in the subdivision, if the election be ordered for a subdivision. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 7234g. Same; contents of order of county judge.—The order of the county judge shall specify:

1. The petition and the action of the commissioners' court.
2. The class of animals it is proposed shall have the limited period of free range.
3. The time in which said animals are to have the limited period of free range.
4. The territorial limits to be affected.
5. The day of election.
6. The places at which polls are to be opened. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 7234h. Same; plans for holding election.—If the election is ordered for the whole county, the same shall be held at the usual voting places in the several election precincts; but, if the election is ordered for any particular subdivision the county judge shall designate the particular places in such subdivision at which the polls shall be opened. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 7234i. Same; managers of election.—If the election be for a subdivision of the county, the county judge shall, at the time he issues the order for such election, appoint proper persons as managers of said election, all of whom shall be freeholders of the county and qualified voters; and such managers may appoint their own clerks. [Id., § 8.]

Art. 7234j. Same; voters.—No person shall vote at an election under the provisions of this Act, unless he be a freeholder and is also a qualified voter under the constitution and laws of Texas. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 7234k. Same; ballots.—All votes at an election held under the provisions of this Act, shall be by ballot; and voters desiring to permit hogs to have a limited period of free range in hog law counties or districts as designated in the order, shall place upon their ballots the words, "For the limited period of free range for hogs," and those against limited period of free range for hogs shall place upon their ballots the words, "Against the limited period of free range for hogs." [Id., § 10.]

Art. 7234l. Same; returns of election.—On or before the 10th day after any election under the provisions of this Act, the persons holding such election shall make due return of all votes cast at their respective voting places for and against said proposition to the county judge of the county, who shall tabulate and count said returns and ascertain the result of said election. [Id., § 11.]

Art. 7234m. Same; counting returns.—The returns shall be opened, tabulated and counted by the county judge in the presence of the county clerk and at least one justice of the peace of the county, or two respectable freeholders of the county. [Id., § 12.]

Art. 7234n. Same; declaration of result of election.—If a majority of the votes cast at such election shall be "For the limited period of free range for hogs," the county judge shall immediately issue his proclamation declaring the result; which proclamation shall be posted at the court house door, and after the expiration of ten days from its issuance, it shall be lawful to permit hogs to run at large within the limits designated for the period of time between the fifteenth day of November of each year and the fifteenth day of the following February of each year, both days inclusive. [Id., § 13.]

Art. 7234o. Same; second election.—Whenever an election is held under the provisions of this Act for any county or subdivision, no other election for such purpose shall be held within such county or subdivision for the space of two years, but the defeat of the proposition for a county shall not prevent another election from being held immediately thereafter for any subdivision of such county; nor shall the defeat of the proposition for any subdivision prevent an election from being held immediately thereafter, for the entire county. [Id., § 14.]

Art. 7234p. Same; declaration of result of second election.—If, in a county or subdivision which has formerly adopted the limited period of free range for hogs, as provided for under the terms of this Act, a majority of the legal votes cast at such election shall be "Against the limited period of free range for hogs," the county judge shall immediately issue his proclamation declaring the result; which proclamation shall be posted at the court house door, and after the expiration of ten days from its issuance, it shall be unlawful to permit hogs to run at large within the limits designated; if a majority of the legal votes cast at such election shall be, "For the limited period of free range for hogs," he shall so state in his proclamation, and the operation of the law shall be in no way affected by such election. [Id., § 15.]

Art. 7234q. Same; election for adoption of stock law and free range proposition held at same time.—When an election is called for any county or subdivision thereof for the purpose of voting upon the question of the adoption of the stock law or any part thereof, under provisions of Chapter 5, Title 124, of the Revised Civil Statutes of Texas [Arts. 7209–7234], if such county or subdivision has not already in operation the stock law or any part thereof, under the provisions of said Chapter and Title, it shall be lawful to submit at the same time and at the same election the question of the limited period of free range for hogs, as provided for in this Act, but said proposition must be submitted and voted upon as a separate proposition, and the votes cast, therein, and the returns thereof, and the judge's proclamation thereon, must be separate and distinct from that of the stock law proposition voted on at such election. [Id., § 16.]

Took effect Nov. 15, 1921.

Cited, Clarendon Land, Investment & Agency Co. v. McClelland (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 170; Rodgers v. Tobias (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 804.

Title of former act.—Acts 33d Leg. c. 72 (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 7235), amending Stock Law (Rev. St. 1911, art. 7235) in so far as it attempts to exclude Matagorda county from operation of article, held violative of constitutional provision as to title of statutes. Ward Cattle & Pasture Co. v. Carpenter, 109 Tex. 103, 200 S. W. 521.

Qualifications of petitioners.—A person who owned land and lived in the subdivision when he signed petition for stock law election under this article, but had moved just across the line out of the district when the petition was filed, was not a qualified signer at such time. A signer who, when his house burned in the district, with his children, his wife being dead, moved some 200 yards across the line of the district and lived with his mother, was not disqualified thereby to sign the petition; he having had the intention to return and build a house. Signer who had sold his land and moved out of the district when the petition was filed, was disqualified. Signer who, though he lived in the district, did not own any land in it, was disqualified. Signer who lived on part of his deceased father's homestead as heir, had such an interest in the land as made him a legal signatory to the petition and voter at the election. Reid v. King (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 960.

— Evidence.—Declarations of voters made before or after the election are incompetent to show that by reason of age or residence they were not qualified to vote. Reid v. King (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 960.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain the trial court's finding that a given signer was qualified when the petition was filed, he having testified that he moved to the district "about" a date which would have qualified him, "about" signifying no certain date, but being a relative term giving a margin for moderate variation. Id.

Evidence held insufficient to meet contestants' burden to show that a particular signer was not a legally qualified signer and voter as a landowner. Id.

Evidence held insufficient to meet the burden of proof resting on contestants to show the disqualification of a particular person on the theory that he was a non-resident of the district. Id.

Liability of railroad company for killing hogs.—Where this article has not been adopted in a county, a railroad operating an unfenced track therein, unless negligent, is not liable, under art. 6603, for hogs killed or injured while running at large in violation of title 124, c. 5, adopted in such county. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Wilhite (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 765.

Art. 7235a. Election in Harris county.—Upon the written petition of twenty (20) freeholders of any subdivision of Harris county as may be described in the petition and defined by the commissioners' court of Harris county, the commissioners' court of said county shall order an election to be held in such subdivision of said county as may be described in the petition and defined by the commissioners' court on the day named in the order, for the purpose of enabling the freeholders of such subdivision of Harris county as may be described in the petition and defined by the commissioners' court, to determine whether horses, mules, jacks, jennets and cattle shall be permitted to run at large in such subdivision of Harris county, as may be described in the petition and defined by the commissioners' court. [Acts 1913, p. 157, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., Sp. L. ch. 46, § 1.]

Art. 7235b. Provisions applicable.—Upon the filing of such petition, the order of the commissioners' court thereon, the holding of such election, the return thereof, and all other action in respect thereto shall be as prescribed in the general law, title 124, chapter 5, of the Revised Statutes of Texas of 1911. [Acts 1913, p. 157, § 2; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. Sp. L. ch. 46, § 2.]

Art. 7239. Order for election.

See Reid v. King (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 960.

Art. 7244. Qualifications of electors.

See Reid v. King (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 960; notes under art. 7235.

Art. 7251. Fees for impounding; notice.

See 1918 Supp., arts. 6016½-6016½c, as to newspaper publication instead of posting.

Art. 7254. Lawful fence, what constitutes.

Cited, Clarendon Land, Investment & Agency Co. v. McClelland (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 170.

Effect of statute.—The statute prescribing what shall constitute a lawful fence, does not throw open to the use of the public the lands of persons failing to maintain such an inclosure. Davis v. Davis, 70 Tex. 123, 7 S. W. 326.

TRESPASSING ANIMALS

Trespass by animals.—When landowner joined his fence with railroad stock pens, he knew of their use, and took the risk of injury to crops from cattle placed in the pens breaking the fence and getting on his land; shippers owing no other duty than not negligently to use the pens, so as to cause injury. Blakely-Settegast-Martin Cattle Co. v. Kidd (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 263.

Where the law requiring the owner of stock to keep them confined is not in force, the owner is not liable for trespass by the cattle on inclosed land of another, unless he knows the cattle are vicious, in the sense that they have the habit of breaking into inclosures which ordinarily restrain cattle of that class. Id.

Common-law rule requiring restraint of cattle by tethering or inclosure is not in force in this state. Phillips v. Crow (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 851.

Article 7314. [5043c] Duties of Live Stock Sanitary Commission; quarantine, etc.

See Ex parte Smallwood, 87 Cr. R. 268, 221 S. W. 293.

Cited, White v. State, 87 Cr. R. 315, 221 S. W. 283; Ex parte Leslie, 87 Cr. R. 476, 223 S. W. 227.

Constitutionality.—Acts 35th Leg. c. 60, and Acts 33d Leg. c. 169, requiring all cattle to be dipped, whether infected with ticks or not, and whether kept on owner's premises or not, did not violate Const. art. 1, § 19, or Const. U. S. art. 14, § 1. Brazeale v. Strength (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 247.

The Legislature could make the provision of Acts 35th Leg. c. 60, relating to prevention of disease in live stock, apply where those of the repealed act (Acts 33d Leg.) formerly applied. Id.

The tick eradication statute held not unreasonable as against certain grounds urged. Emberline v. State, 85 Cr. R. 399, 212 S. W. 952.

Art. 7312 et seq. (creating live stock sanitary board), as amended by Acts 35th Leg. (Reg. Sess.) c. 60, and Acts 35th Leg. (1st Called Sess.) c. 12 (Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 7314 et seq.), is constitutional. Serres v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 596.

Acts 35th Leg. (1917) c. 60, supplementing the act creating a Live Stock Sanitary Commission (Acts 1893, c. 56), and requiring the dipping of cattle to prevent diseases, is not invalid as prescribing unreasonable and excessive penalties for failure, the penalties ranging only from $10 to $200. Page v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 584.

Acts 35th Leg. (1917) c. 60, which supplemented the act of creating a Live Stock Sanitary Commission for the state of Texas found in Acts 1893, c. 56, which was modified by Acts 33d Leg. (1913) c. 169 is not invalid under Const. art. 3, § 36, declaring that no law shall be revived or amended by reference to its title because it did not set out the earlier legislation; the latter act being complete and entire in itself. Id.

The tick eradication law of 1917, requiring dipping of cattle, is not void as authorizing injury to private property for public use without compensation, as the dipping process is harmless to the animals when properly handled, and removes the cause of disease. Id.

Counties in which operative.—Acts 35th Leg. c. 60, approved in 1917, relating to prevention of diseases in live stock, was intended to apply to counties where Acts 33d Leg. c. 169, had been adopted. Brazeale v. Strength (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 247.

The Tick Eradication Law requiring citizens to comply with rules and regulations of the Live Stock Sanitary Commission, is not a "local law" within the meaning of Const. art. 16, § 23; the only effect of the local option feature contained in section 7 of such act being to hasten the operation of the law as to a county voting thereunder. Gandy v. State (Cr. App.) 220 S. W. 339.

The Legislature has the power to enact a law by the terms of which the rules and regulations prescribed by the Live Stock Sanitary Commission, for the purpose of preventing disease and promoting health among such live stock, is binding upon the citizens, so far as the same appear reasonable in their terms and methods of enforcement, and the Tick Eradication Law (Acts 35th Leg. [1917] c. 60 [Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 7314 et seq.]) is valid with or without the local option feature. Id.

The Tick Eradication Law (Acts 35th Leg. [1917] c. 60 [Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 7314 et seq.]) is in force and effect in counties where no local election has been had under section 7 of such act. Id.

Quarantine orders.—In order to make a special quarantine order of the live stock sanitary commission of Texas effective, it must designate the territory or premises included in the order with sufficient particularity to enable the person or persons affected thereby to know the territory so quarantined, and an information or complaint charging a violation of the Tick Law within such specially designated territory or premises must contain such a description. Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 522.

Liability of carrier.—Where plaintiff without dipping his cattle, in pasture in territory under quarantine, could not have taken them to defendant's station for interstate shipment, without violating quarantine regulations, defendant, because notifying plaintiff in advance that it would not transport them unless they were dipped, was not liable for the damage from dipping them, which plaintiff thereupon had done, irrespective of whether under regulations, under the national quarantine act, it would have been defendant's duty to receive them for shipment had they been moved and tendered for shipment without dipping. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Hall (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 170, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 535.

A railway company was not liable to a shipper of cattle for negligence in causing bulls in a shipment to be castrated, where the carrier, intending to comply with quarantine regulations, refused to receive the bulls for shipment unless they were given, the tubercular test or castrated, and the shippers exercised their choice and themselves castrated the bulls. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. McDowell (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 1109.

Injunction.—Commissioners' court could not be enjoined from exercising power under Acts 35th Leg. c. 60, relating to prevention of diseases in live stock in force at time of application for writ, merely because Acts 33d Leg. c. 169, in force when order was made, did not authorize action. Brazeale v. Strength (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 247.

In suit to enjoin the inspector of a county from requiring cattle to be dipped pursuant to the Tick Eradication Statute, testimony that, instead of being harmful, the dipping of cattle is beneficial, even if inadmissible, held harmless to plaintiff cattle owners. Lewis v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 691.

Evidence of rules and regulations.—In suit to enjoin a county inspector from requiring cattle to be dipped pursuant to the Tick Eradication Statute, certified copy of the rules and regulations of the Live Stock Sanitary Commission, not certified by any member of the Commission, but by the acting Secretary of State, held admissible. Admission of such certified copy, if erroneous, held not ground for reversal, when complained of by plaintiff cattle owners, who had the burden of proving their case. Lewis v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 691.

Judicial notice of rules and regulations.—Under Tick Eradication and Quarantine Law, court and jury will take judicial notice of rules and regulations of live stock sanitary commission proclaimed by Governor, but judicial notice cannot be taken of rules and regulations not so proclaimed. Mulkey v. State, 83 Cr. R. 1, 201 S. W. 991.

Proof of violation of proclamation of Governor defining quarantine areas, etc., which did not purport to show that regulations had been prescribed by live stock sanitary commission, held not sufficient to support conviction of violation of rules and regulations of commission; for court cannot take judicial notice that rules proclaimed were those of commission. Id.

Art. 7314a.

See Mulkey v. State, 83 Cr. R. 1, 201 S. W. 991.

Effect of federal regulations.—State regulations for moving cattle from pasture in quarantined territory to station are not in conflict with and so not superseded by, federal regulations, under the national quarantine act, relating solely to their movement in interstate shipment. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Hall (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 170, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 535.

Art. 7314b. Control of sale of veterinary biological products; eradication of fever-carrying tick and other contagious diseases; special quarantine districts; quarantine of pastures, etc.; prescribing methods of dipping.

Constitutionality.—Rev. St. 1911, art. 7312 et seq., and Acts 33d Leg. c. 169, § 3 (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, art. 7314b), giving the live stock sanitary commission authority to promulgate rules for quarantine areas, etc., are not invalid as delegation of legislative authority to administrative body. Mulkey v. State, 83 Cr. R. 1, 201 S. W. 991.

Previous examination necessary.—Under Acts 35th Leg. c. 60, §§ 2, 3, 4, regarding powers of sanitary live stock commission, held, that examination disclosing presence of fever-carrying ticks and necessity for dipping is prerequisite to authority to require cattle to be dipped. Trimble v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 224.

Art. 7314d. Duties of commissioners' court and county judge.—It shall be the duty of the county commissioners' courts to co-operate with and assist the Live Stock Sanitary Commission in protecting the live stock of their respective counties from all malignant, contagious, infectious or communicable diseases, whether such diseases exist within or outside the county, and otherwise protect the live stock interests of their counties. It shall be the duty of said commissioners' courts to co-operate with the Live Stock Sanitary Commission and the officers working under the authority or direction of said commission in the suppression and eradication of fever-carrying ticks, and all malignant, contagious, infectious or communicable diseases of live stock; provided when it becomes necessary to disinfect any premises, county or subdivision of the county infected with fever-carrying ticks, anthrax, hog cholera, glanders, foot and mouth diseases, bovine tuberculosis or contagious abortion, under order of the Live Stock Sanitary Commission, the county judge of the county where the said premises are located, shall have such disinfecting done at the expense of the county, and according to the rules and regulations of the Live Stock Sanitary Commission, and the said commissioners' courts are hereby authorized and empowered and directed to appropriate moneys out of the general fund of their counties, to incur indebtedness by the issuance of warrants and to levy a tax to pay the interest thereof, and provide for a sinking fund in payment thereof for the purpose of purchasing, constructing or leasing necessary public dipping vats within their counties, and for the purchase of dipping material and other materials and for the hire of labor necessary to destroy the diseases and the carriers herein mentioned; provided, that for such permanent improvements, funds may be expended out of the general fund of the county; provided, further, that said warrants shall draw interest at a rate not exceeding six per cent per annum; and provided, further, that all warrants issued under this chapter shall run not exceeding twenty years from the date thereof. [Acts 1913, p. 353, § 5; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 60, § 3; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 44, § 1 (§ 3); Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 10, § 1 (§ 3).]

Took effect 90 days after Oct. 2, 1920, date of adjournment.

Constitutionality.—Acts 33d Leg. c. 169, authorizing commissioners' court to cooperate with live stock sanitary commission, authorized expenditure of all county money necessary and not inhibited by Const. art. 11, § 7. Brazeale v. Strength (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 247.

Acts 35th Leg. c. 60, and Acts 33d Leg. c. 169, requiring expenditure by county for building of vats and dipping of cattle to prevent disease, does not violate Const. art. 11, § 7, relating to provision for sinking fund and interest. Id.

Previous examination necessary.—Under Acts 35th Leg. c. 60, §§ 2, 3, 4, regarding powers of sanitary live stock commission, held, that examination disclosing presence of fever-carrying ticks and necessity for dipping is prerequisite to authority to require cattle to be dipped. Trimble v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 224.

Duty of owner in absence of free dipping vats.—That free dipping vats have not been provided by the county does not excuse an owner of cattle from refusing to obey the tick eradication statute. Emberline v. State, 85 Cr. R. 399, 212 S. W. 952.

Criminal responsibility for failure to pay charges.—Tick Eradication Law (Acts 35th Leg. [1917], c. 60, § 3 [Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, § 7314d]), as amended by Acts 36th Leg. (1919), c. 44, shows a legislative intention that facilities for the dipping of tick-infected cattle should be furnished at public expense, so that one required to pay a charge for the use of the facilities provided cannot be prosecuted for failure to dip cattle as ordered. Walker v. State (Cr. App.) 222 S. W. 569.

Art. 7314d1. Time of compliance by counties in designated zones not changed.—Provided the provisions of this Act shall in no wise change the time of those counties under the designation of Zones No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3 to comply with the provisions of this Act as amended, but the same shall remain in effect. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 44, § 1, adding section 3a.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 7314dd. Duty of commission to make investigations and quarantine animals; duty of state veterinarian.

Previous examination necessary.—See Trimble v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 224.

Art. 7314e. Election in counties on question of tick eradication; quarantine.

Result of election.—In a prosecution for violating the tick eradication statute, it was error to permit the county judge orally to testify as to the fact of the publication of the result of the election for taking up the work of tick eradication in the absence of a showing that such proof was necessary because of the loss or destruction of the certificate provided for by this article. Emberline v. State, 85 Cr. R. 399, 212 S. W. 952.

Governor's proclamation.—A proclamation of the Governor, under this article, is not evidence that a local option was ever in fact held, but mere hearsay. Felchack v. State, 87 Cr. R. 207, 220 S. W. 340.

Courts will take judicial cognizance of a proclamation of the Governor given under this article, but will not take judicial cognizance of the fact that a local option election has been held under such section, or that such law is in force in any particular territory. Id.

Counties subject to act.—The Tick Eradication Law (Acts 35th Leg. [1917] c. 60 [Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 7314 et seq.]) is in force and effect in counties where no local election has been had under section 7 of such act. Gandy v. State (Cr. App.) 220 S. W. 339.

Release of county from operation of act.—Under the Tick Eradication Law (Laws 1917, c. 60) § 7 (Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, art. 7314e), particularly in view of sections 3 and 9, when such law is voted into existence by a county power to determine when the territory shall be released or declared free from ticks and the cattle permitted to be moved is confided to the Live Stock Sanitary Commission to be exercised by the promulgation of proper rules and regulations, which shall be made effective by proclamation of the Governor. Godwin v. State, 87 Cr. R. 632, 224 S. W. 896.

Injunction.—Allegation of fraud or misrepresentation by live stock inspector and those interested in securing passage of quarantine law as applied to county, in an election, held for that purpose, does not present legal ground for injunction restraining inspector from requiring cattle to be dipped. Trimble v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 224.

Art. 7314f. Zones or districts for tick eradication.

See Godwin v. State, 224 S. W. 896; note under art. 7314e.

Constitutionality.—The Tick Eradication Statute in its application to Coryell county, embraced within the quarantine zone, held not obnoxious to the Constitution, and not violative of the rights of cattle owners in the county, personal or property, because their cattle were free from statutory diseases or fever-carrying tick. Lewis v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 691.

Art. 7314ff. Zones or districts for tick eradication.—That Chapter 60 of the General Laws of the State of Texas, passed at the Regular Session of the Thirty-Fifth Legislature of the State of Texas, being an Act supplementing the Act creating the Live Stock Sanitary Commission for the State of Texas, and which is known as the Eradication of the Cattle Ticks law, be so amended as that hereafter Val Verde County, in the State of Texas, shall be placed in Zone No. 2, as defined in said Act, instead of in Zone 1, as heretofore. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 4, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 7314fff. Same.—That Chapter 60 of the General Laws of the State of Texas, passed at the Regular Session of the Thirty-fifth Legislature of the State of Texas, being an Act supplementing the Act creating the Live Stock Sanitary Commission for the State of Texas, and which is known as the eradication of the Cattle Ticks Law, be so amended as that hereafter Uvalde County and Medina County, in the State of Texas, shall be placed in Zone No. 3, as defined in said Act, instead of Zone No. 2 as heretofore. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., 2d C. S., ch. 27, § 1.]

Art. 7314g. Proclamations respecting quarantine in tick zones.

See Castleman v. Rainey (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 630.

Sufficiency and effect of proclamation.—See Godwin v. State, 224 S. W. 896.

In a prosecution for violating tick eradication statute, a supplemental proclamation of the Governor, declaring the county under tick quarantine, was not inadmissible as against the objection that it did not appear that the proclamation had been published in any newspaper, although it would have been inadmissible on objection that it was not a copy certified by the secretary of state, as prescribed by this article. Emberline v. State, 85 Cr. R. 399, 212 S. W. 952.

A certified copy of a proclamation of the Governor would be sufficient to establish the existence of a quarantine under such sections, although such is not true of a proclamation under article 7314e. Felchack v. State, 87 Cr. R. 207, 220 S. W. 340.

Supplemental Proclamation No. 12 by the Governor of Texas, relative to the release of certain territory from the Tick Eradication Law held to have released cattle in the territory specified from quarantine only in so far as the quarantine forbade the movement of such cattle. Godwin v. State, 87 Cr. R. 632, 224 S. W. 896.

Art. 7314h. Same; movement of animals in quarantined districts.

See Felchack v. State, 87 Cr. R. 207, 220 S. W. 340; note under art. 7314g.

Art. 7314k1. Live Stock Sanitary Commission may direct dipping of cattle, etc.—The Live Stock Sanitary Commission, or its chairman, is hereby authorized and empowered to direct in writing any person, or persons, company, or corporation, owning, controlling, or caring for any cattle, horses, mules or asses, which are subject to being dipped under the provisions of this Act, to dip all or any of said cattle, horses, mules, or asses, under the supervision of an authorized inspector of such Commission, in an arsenical solution of a strength not less than seven and one-half pounds, and not more than eight and one-half pounds of arsenic to each five hundred gallons of water in the said solution for the purpose of destroying, eradicating and removing said fever-carrying tick or exposure, subject to the provisions of this Act. Said dippings shall be administered at regular intervals but the Live Stock Sanitary Commission shall not require the dipping of cattle at more frequent intervals than every fourteen days. [Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 38, § 1 (§ 15a).]

Art. 7314k2. Form and requisites of direction.—The written direction issued by the Live Stock Sanitary Commission, or its chairman, requiring the dipping of cattle, as provided for in this Act, shall be dated, showing the date of its issuance, the name of the person, company, or corporation to whom the said directions are given, the approximate location of the premises on which the said live stock are located, the name of the county in which said premises are located, and it shall state in clear and intelligible language that the said cattle, horses, mules or asses, which the said person is therein directed to dip, have the fever-carrying tick upon them, or that they are exposed to the said fever-carrying tick, or are on a premise or other place on which the fever-carrying tick is known to exist, or that they have some time during the nine months next preceding the date of the issuance of said written direction hereinbefore provided been exposed to the said fever-carrying tick, or been on a premise or other place on which the fever-carrying tick is known to exist; and it shall direct the said person, company or corporation to dip the said live stock under the supervision of an authorized inspector of the Live Stock Sanitary Commission, in an arsenical solution of a strength of not less than seven and one-half pounds, nor more than eight and one-half pounds of arsenic to each five hundred gallons of water in the dipping solution in which the said live stock are to be dipped, and it shall designate the place, date and time that said dipping is to be done, and it shall be signed by the Live Stock Sanitary Commission or its chairman. [Id., § 1 (§ 15b).]

Constitutionality.—Acts 36th Leg. (1920) Third Called Sess. c. 38, § 15, authorizing the Live Stock Sanitary Commission to require the dipping of cattle exposed to fever-carrying tick within nine months prior to the passage of the act, and making violation of such direction a misdemeanor, is valid. Walker v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 513; Lee v. Same (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 515.

Art. 7314k3. Service of direction; affidavit of protest; hearing and determination; injunction.—The said dipping direction, provided for in this Act, shall be delivered to the person, company, or corporation, owning, controlling, or caring for said cattle, horses, mules, or asses required to be dipped, at least fourteen full days before the date and time said dipping is to be administered. The person, company, or corporation, owning, controlling, or caring for said cattle, horses, mules, or asses, required to be dipped under the provision of this Act may file with the Live Stock Sanitary Commission, or its chairman, a written affidavit at any time within five days after receiving said written direction and not later, denying that said cattle, horses, mules or asses, are subject to being dipped under the provisions of law, or that for good and sufficient reason set out in said affidavit the said person, company, or corporation is entitled to have said dipping direction rescinded, or to have said dipping postponed, and requesting that the Live Stock Sanitary Commission, or its chairman, withhold the enforcement of said dipping direction and grant him, or them, a hearing on said matter, or make necessary investigation to determine the correctness of the statement contained in said affidavit. Upon the receipt of said affidavit the Live Stock Sanitary Commission, or its chairman, shall within five days after receipt of such affidavit grant said affiant a hearing in the office of the chairman of said Commission if the affiant so desires it, and gives such affiant notice of such hearing by telegram or registered mail, and which hearing shall be set not less than four days after the service of said notice and the said Commission shall consider such ex parte affidavits as such owner or caretaker may file with said Commission in said hearing and said Commission and its chairman shall make such investigation in person, or through its authorized representatives, in reference to said statement as the said Commission, or chairman thereof, deem necessary, and if said statements are found to be correct the said dipping direction shall be rescinded by the said Commission, or its chairman; otherwise the said dipping direction shall be enforced on the date and at the time specified in said written direction. The said Commission, or its chairman, after having granted said hearing, or made said investigation, shall notify the said person, company, or corporation in writing of its findings, which said notice shall be delivered to the said person, company, or corporation, at least four full days before the day and time he or they are required to dip said cattle, horses, mules, or asses, by virtue of said written direction. If the said person, company, or corporation who has been directed to dip said cattle as hereinbefore provided for shall be dissatisfied with the findings of the Commission, he or they may apply to a court of proper venue and jurisdiction for injunctive or other relief and the Live Stock Sanitary Commission shall not enforce the said dipping order until the final disposition of said suit or action. [Id., § 1 (§ 15c).]

Criminal responsibility.—Under the provision that a person notified to dip his cattle may file a protest and may obtain an injunction if dissatisfied with the action of the Live Stock Sanitary Commission thereon, it is not necessary to show the taking of such steps in order to avail of defenses against a criminal prosecution. Walker v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 513; Lee v. Same (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 515.

Art. 7314k4. Inspections, how made.—The ascertaining of the presence of the fever-carrying tick on any premise, place or live stock, or the ascertaining of exposure of premises, places, or live stock, to said fever-carrying tick, shall be done by authorized representative or inspectors, of the Live Stock Sanitary Commission, or by the said Commissioners. [Id., § 1 (§ 15d).]

Art. 7314k5. Rules and regulations.—The Live Stock Sanitary Commission is hereby authorized and empowered to make, adopt and promulgate, rules and regulations for carrying out and enforcing all the provisions of this Act. [Id., § 1 (§ 15e).]

Art. 7314l. Publication or notice of quarantine order.—Whenever the Live Stock Sanitary Commission shall have determined the fact that cattle, horses, mules, asses, sheep, hogs, goats, or other live stock, are infected with, or exposed to splenetic tick fever, bovine tuberculosis, anthrax, glanders, contagious abortion, hemorrhagic septicaemia, scabies, hog cholera, malta fever, or other similar, or dissimilar contagious, infectious, or communicable diseases, or to the agency of transmission thereof, recognized by the veterinary science as being contagious, infectious, or communicable, the said Commission shall designate the district, county, or part of county, or premises necessary to be quarantined, and notice of such quarantine shall be issued by the said Commission, or chairman thereof, as provided herein. Publication of such quarantine orders may be made in any newspaper within such area, or if no newspaper is published in such area, then the nearest newspaper thereto. In lieu of such publication the Live Stock Sanitary Commission may give notice of such quarantine by posting a copy of such quarantine notice at the county court house door of the county in which said quarantine is to be effective. A written notice of such quarantine delivered to the owner or caretaker of live stock to be quarantined shall be sufficient notice of such quarantine, in lieu of notices above provided; provided that the owner or caretaker, of milch or dairy cows shall not be required to dip such cattle unless upon examination by an authorized inspector of the Live Stock Sanitary Commission, such cattle or a part of them are found to have the fever-carrying tick upon them, or are exposed to said fever-carrying tick, and if the said Live Stock Sanitary Commission shall so find, then said quarantine shall be effective as to the premises of such owner, and said person shall be subject to all the provisions of this Act, provided the term milch or dairy cows shall include only such cattle as are actually used for domestic or dairy purposes and does not include stocker or breeding cattle for other purposes. [Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 60, § 17; Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 12, § 1; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 38, § 2 (§ 17).]

Explanatory.—Sec. 15 of the act is penal in its nature and is set forth as art. 1284k of the Penal Code, post. The act took effect June 17, 1920.

Evidence.—In prosecution for failure to comply with notice to dip cattle located in quarantined territory under Acts 35th Leg. (1917) c. 60, §§ 17, 18 (Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, arts. 7314l, 7314m), the evidence to sustain conviction must show that the quarantine had been established. Dodson v. State, 87 Cr. R. 152, 219 S. W. 1101.

Art. 7314m. Same; filing copy of notice with county clerk; evidence.

See Dodson v. State, 87 Cr. R. 152, 219 S. W. 1101.

Service of notice on Sunday.—Service of notice to dip cattle made on Sunday, was not illegal, despite art. 1816, there being no such provision in the Code of Criminal Procedure. Williams v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 545.

Art. 7314n. Seizure of animals being moved in quarantine district; dipping or treating; compensation of sheriff; lien.

Constitutionality.—This article is not subject to objection that it attempts to vest in the sheriff, acting under direction of the live stock sanitary commission, authority to enter upon plaintiff's premises and seize and mistreat plaintiff's cattle without due process of law and without compensation for, or protection against, injuries likely to result in such seizure and treatment, or as delegating to the live stock sanitary commission legislative authority and discretion. Serres v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 596.

Cattle need not be infested.—Cattle need not be actually infested with ticks in order to make them subject to the tick eradication statute and to the requirement of the live stock sanitary commission that they be dipped; the requirements applying to all cattle within the specified quarantine zone. Emberline v. State, 85 Cr. R. 399, 212 S. W. 952.

Extent of inspection.—To authorize official live stock inspectors to proceed with dipping of cattle under tick eradication laws, it is not necessary that each animal be inspected and some condition found to exist authorizing work of tick eradication, but before the live stock commission or its agents or inspectors are authorized to require dipping or to dip the cattle themselves, some investigation must be made disclosing existence of disease or presence of tick. Castleman v. Rainey (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 630.

See Castleman v. Rainey (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 630.

Art. 7314r. Validation of elections.

Validity and effect.—In view of Const. art. 16, § 23, the Legislature had authority to validate, by this article, an election of April 3, 1917, whereby Dallas county determined, under Acts 33d Leg. c. 169 (Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1914, arts. 7314-7314e), that the county should take up the work of tick eradication, though chapter 169 before the election was held was repealed by Acts 35th Leg. c. 60 (Vernon's Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1918, arts. 7314-7314q). Castleman v. Rainey (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 630.

Said Board shall be appointed by the Governor within ninety days after his inauguration from a list of eligible practitioners of veterinary medicine furnished the Governor by the Secretary of the State Veterinary Medical Association, and term of office of its members shall be two years, or until their successors shall be appointed and qualified. No member of the Board shall be a stockholder or a member of the faculty or a member of a board of trustees of any veterinary college. Said board or any member thereof shall have power to administer oaths for all purposes required in the discharge of its duties, and to adopt a seal to be affixed to all official documents. Special meetings of said board may be held upon a call of four members of said board. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 7324d. Same; records to be kept.—The board of Examiners shall preserve a record of its proceedings in a book kept for that purpose, showing the name, age and place and duration of residence of each applicant, the time spent in study in medical schools, and the year and school from which degrees were granted, or in case where the applicant qualifies as having been engaged in the practice of veterinary medicine in Texas, prior to 1911, same shall show age, name and place and duration of residence and the number of years engaged in the practice of veterinary medicine in Texas. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 7324e. Practice of veterinary medicine without registration of authority to practice.—It shall be unlawful for anyone to practice veterinary medicine in any of its branches upon animals within the limits of this State, who has not registered in the district clerk's office of the county in which he resided, his authority for so practicing, as herein prescribed together with his age, post office address, place of birth and name of school of veterinary medicine from which he graduated. Provided that nothing in this Act shall prohibit any person, who has heretofore registered as a veterinary surgeon in the county of his residence according to the provisions of Chapter 76 of the Acts of the regular session of the Thirty-second Legislature who had previous to the year 1911 practiced veterinary medicine or veterinary surgery as his principal occupation for five years in the State of Texas prior to the year 1911, from practicing in the county of his residence only by securing a license from the State Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners by filing satisfactory evidence of his former compliance with the requirements of said Act, chapter 76, Acts of the regular session of the Thirty-second Legislature, together with an affidavit that he has practiced veterinary medicine or or veterinary surgery continuously for five years prior to 1911, in which affidavit he shall state the place where he has practiced veterinary medicine or veterinary surgery for five consecutive years immediately prior to 1911, together with his place of residence during said period. Upon the face of such license shall be printed the words, non-graduate. Provided further that after the passage of this Act, it shall be unlawful for any person to register under the five year practicing clause of this section, but the object of this provision is to permit persons who have heretofore lawfully registered to continue practicing under the five year clause. Persons, etc., subject to gross receipts tax required to have permit to transact business; issue of permit.—Every person, company, firm, partnership, corporation, or unincorporated company or association, engaged in any business within this State, upon which the laws of this State require the payment of a tax on gross receipts, shall after this Act become effective be required to have a permit to transact such business, to be issued by the Secretary of State, which permit shall be and remain posted, subject to the view of the public at the principal office of such person or concern to whom the same is issued. The permit shall be issued in such form as may be prescribed by the Attorney General, shall show the name of the person or concern to whom issued, the business to be transacted, and that the holder thereof has complied with this Act. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 84, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Art. 7392b. Permits to transact business; issue; duration of.—Permits to transact business shall be issued by the Secretary of State upon applications made upon forms prescribed by the Secretary of State, which applications shall show, to the satisfaction of the Secretary of State, the facts required to be shown in the permit; and shall show that the applicant has paid the gross receipts taxes prescribed by law, or that if the applicant is the vendee of a going business that his vendor has paid all his gross receipts taxes due, or to become due; such taxes are to be shown to be paid for the current quarter, or such other period of time as said taxes may be paid. The Secretary of State shall make such investigation as necessary to determine that such taxes have been paid and shall then issue a permit to transact business, authorizing the party to whom issued to transact business until the 31st day of December of the current year, after which date new permits for each year must be obtained, as in the first instance; provided, however, that those now engaged in business shall have sixty days after this Act becomes effective to obtain permits hereunder, but all those beginning business after this Act becomes effective must obtain a permit before transacting business. When a permit has been issued as herein provided, it shall be the duty of the Secretary of State to immediately certify such fact to the Comptroller of Public Accounts. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 7392c. Suspension of permit on non-payment of tax.—Within Thirty days after gross receipts taxes may become due by anyone transacting, or authorized to transact, business hereunder, if such tax remains unpaid, the Comptroller shall certify such fact to the Secretary of State, whose duty it shall be to notify the delinquent tax payers that his name has been certified to the Secretary of State as a delinquent and that unless the tax is paid to the Comptroller within ten days from the date of such notice the permit to transact business of the delinquent will be suspended by the Secretary of State. The notice herein provided for shall be given by the Secretary of State, mailing to the delinquent at his last known address a printed or written notice, and the mailing of such notice by the Secretary of State shall be a sufficient compliance of this Act. If the tax, with accrued penalties, is not paid within fifteen days after the mailing of the notice the Secretary of State shall note on his records that the permit to transact business of the delinquent has been suspended, giving the date upon which such action was taken by the Secretary of State. The Secretary of State shall then immediately certify such suspension to the Comptroller and to the Attorney General. After the permit to transact business has been suspended it shall be unlawful for the delinquent to continue to transact business, and it shall be the duty of the Secretary of State to cause to be published in some daily or weekly paper, published in the county of the delinquent's place of business, or if there is no newspaper published in such county, then in some daily newspaper of Statewide circulation, notice that the delinquent's permit to transact business has been suspended. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 7392d. Effect of act.—This Act shall be cumulative of all other laws on the subject, except where in direct conflict therewith, in which instances this Act shall govern. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 7394. Explanatory.—Sec. 2 of Acts 1919, 36th Leg. ch. 42, repeals all conflicting laws. The act took effect March 11, 1919.

See Deveny v. Success Co. (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 295; notes to art. 7399.

Constitutionality.—This article, and art. 3837, as applied to an Illinois corporation engaged in both interstate and intrastate commerce, and having its domicile and principal establishment in Illinois, but having depots and warehouses in Texas, impose a direct burden on interstate commerce, and constitute a taking of property without due process. Looney v. Crane Co., 245 U. S. 178, 38 Sup. Ct. 85, 62 L. Ed. 230.

Art. 7397a. Reports to be filed; basis of tax.—Except as herein provided, all corporations that are now required by law to pay an annual franchise tax, shall, between the first day of January and the fifteenth day of March of each and every year, be required to make a report to the Secretary of State, on blanks furnished by him, showing the condition of such corporation on the 31st day of December preceding; provided that the Secretary of State may, for good cause shown by any corporation, extend such time to any date up to the first day of May, which report shall give the authorized capital stock of the corporation, the capital stock actually paid in, the surplus and undivided profits of the corporation, if any, the name and addresses of all the officers and directors of the corporation, the amount of mortgages, bonded or other indebtedness of such corporation, and the amount of the last annual, semi-annual or quarterly dividend; provided, that domestic corporations having a permit or permits to do business outside the State, shall include in such report the gross receipts of such corporation from all sources and the gross receipts of the corporation from its business done in Texas, for the calendar year preceding; provided, that foreign corporations shall include in such report, the total gross receipts of the corporation from all sources and the gross receipts of the corporation in Texas for the calendar year preceding; and provided further, that where a foreign corporation has not theretofore done business in the State of Texas and is granted a permit to do business in Texas, it shall file its first report to the Secretary of State at the end of one year from the date of such permit. [Acts 1913, p. 327, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 46, § 2; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 90, § 2.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

Art. 7397b. Penalty for failure to make report.—Any corporation which shall fail or refuse to make the report as provided in Section 2 hereof [Art. 7397a] shall be assessed a penalty of ten per cent of the amount of franchise tax due by such corporation, payable to the Secretary of State, together with its franchise tax. [Acts 1913, p. 327, § 2; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 46, § 3; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 90, § 3.]

Art. 7397c. Reports privileged, etc.—The reports required by this Act shall be deemed to be privileged and not for the inspection of the general public, but any party or parties who are interested in the subject matter of any report may, upon valid request in writing made to the Secretary of State, secure a copy of same. [Acts 1913, p. 327, § 3; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 46, § 4; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 90, § 4.]

Art. 7397d. May be made by what officers; how executed, etc.—The following officers of each and every corporation shall be deemed competent to make the report required by this Act; the president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer or general manager, and all reports provided for in this Act shall be signed officially and sworn to before some officer authorized by law to administer oaths. [Acts 1913, p. 327, § 4; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 46, § 5; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 90, § 5.]

Art. 7397e. Repeal.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed, but where this Act is not in conflict with any existing law, it shall be held to be amendatory thereof. [Acts 1913, p. 327, § 5; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 46, § 6; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 90, § 6.]

Art. 7399. Failure to pay tax; charter forfeited, when; penalty.

Rule of construction.—This article is more or less penal in its nature and is not entitled to a liberal or strained construction. Deveny v. Success Co. (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 295.

Sufficiency of forfeiture.—Under this article, secretary of state must enter on margin of record in office words "Rights to do business forfeited," and date of entry, before company's right to sue or defend can be denied. Millsaps v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 202.

Effect of forfeiture.—Ordinarily forfeiture of a charter by secretary of state for non-payment of franchise takes all authority away from the corporation to act. Bunn v. City of Laredo (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 320.

Under Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1906, arts. 5243i, 5243j, a release of land covered by an oil grant by the president of a corporation who had forfeited its right to do business by failure to pay its franchise tax was futile, as he could not do for the corporation what it was without legal capacity to do for itself. Davis v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 549.

Rights after forfeiture.—When construed in connection with art. 1314, the forfeiture of a foreign corporation's permit under arts. 7394, 7399, does not prevent its recovery in an action brought by it before the forfeiture for breach of a contract while it was authorized to do business. Deveny v. Success Co. (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 295.

Non-payment of tax; effect.—Failure of corporation to pay franchise tax does not ipso facto work dissolution. Millsaps v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 202.

Under Rev. St. 1895, arts. 5243i, 5243j, corporation's failure to pay franchise tax does not bring about a forfeiture of its charter, but merely established a ground for forfeiture which could only be taken advantage of by the state and used as a basis for a judicial forfeiture. Bunn v. City of Laredo (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 320.

STATE INTANGIBLE TAX BOARD

Art.		Art.
7407.	State tax, of whom composed; tax commissioner, appointment of.	7420.	Duties and powers of board in passing upon statement.
7414.	Tax on intangible assets; law applies to whom.	7426.	Persons complying with this chapter relieved of other taxes.

Article 7407. State tax board, of whom composed; tax commissioner, appointment of.

See Druesdow v. Baker (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 493.

Art. 7414. Tax on intangible assets; law applies to whom.

Validity and construction in general.—Amendment of railroad intangible tax law by Acts 30th Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 17, so as to provide for local tax on intangible assets "in addition to ad valorem taxes on intangible properties," held not void as providing dual tax. Baker v. Druesdow (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1043.

Since railroad's rolling stock and intangible assets have no actual situs in any particular county or district, it is within the lawful power of the Legislature to determine whether such property shall be embraced within the limits of a taxing district, and whether it shall be taxed for the purposes of such district. State v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 820.

A railroad corporation has no constitutional right to have its intangible property taxed only at its place of domicile. Id.

This act neither requires nor authorizes double taxation of the intangibles of a railroad. Druesdow v. Baker (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 493.

Companies subject to tax.—Evidence held to show that railroad had no intangible property taxable in Texas, and that fixing of values on intangible property by state tax board was arbitrary finding of values that did not exist. Baker v. Druesdow (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1043.

That a railroad, through its inability to meet interest payments, has been placed in the hands of receivers pending foreclosure, is not conclusive evidence of the nonexistence of intangible values belonging to such railroad and taxable under this act. Druesdow v. Baker (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 493.

Powers of county.—Where a county, pursuant to Const. art. 3, § 52, as amended in 1904, and Rev. St. art. 628, voted special road bonds, the rolling stock and intangible assets of a railroad company passing through the county may be taxed for the purpose of paying the interest and providing a sinking fund for the redemption of the bond, in view of art. 7414 et seq. Bell County v. Hines (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 556.

That a defined district provided for by Const. art. 3, § 52, as amended in 1904, which issued bonds for highways could not tax the rolling stock and intangible assets of a railroad company, does not prevent a county issuing road bonds pursuant to the section, from doing so, for art. 7414, provides that railroad companies shall pay local taxes to the county on intangible assets, etc., and such property is part of the property of the county. Id.

Situs of intangibles.—Intangible assets and rolling stock of railroad are of such a nature and character that they have no actual situs in any particular county or district. State v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 820.

Acts 30th Leg. (First Called Sess.) c. 17, did not have the effect of fixing a situs for rolling stock and intangible assets of railroad company. Id.

Valuation for assessment.—Art. 7420, does not require tax board to fix entire value of property by adding value of capital stock and mortgage indebtedness, but board must adopt that method unless it seems unfair or unjust. Baker v. Druesedow (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1043.

Under art. 7420, it is within power of court in proper cases to determine real value of railroad by capitalizing its net earnings at reasonable interest rate. Id.

Intangible values of railroad company are values of railroad property over and above value of its physical assets, which intangibles ordinarily result from profits of its business as actually conducted. Id.

Art. 7420 does not authorize state tax board arbitrarily to fix intangible values of railroad if rendition of physical property for taxation has been made at less than fair and just value. Id.

Where tangibles, including those of railway companies in a county, are, as a result of settled practice, systematically assessed below their true value, and the intangibles of the railroads assessed at their true value, a railroad is entitled to enjoin the collection of so much of the tax against it as was based on the assessment of its intangibles at a higher proportionate value than that of other property within the state on the ground such assessment is in violation of Const. art. 8, § 1. Druesdow v. Baker (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 493.

If the intangible assets of a railroad are assessed at their true full value and its tangible assets at less than their true value and below the value of the tangible property generally of the county, and such overvaluation of intangibles is equalized by the under-valuation of tangibles, it is not entitled to equitable relief. Id.

In suit to restrain the collection of taxes assessed against railroad under this act, evidence held to support the trial court's finding that in making the valuation complained of the State Tax Board acted in good faith and that the valuations were not affected by fraud, bad faith, or other improper motives. Id.

In such suit, evidence held to warrant the finding of the State Tax Board in fixing the value of the railroad's tangibles and intangibles. Id.

In such suit where the court found that the tangible properties had been assessed at less than one-half value, and that the intangible values apportioned to the county were $600,000, making the total sum $3,800,000, which were assessed at about 45 per cent., and that the total properties of the railroad in the county were assessed at less than 50 per cent. of their value, while other property was assessed at least 50 per cent., the further finding that there had been no discrimination against the railroad was proper, as was determination that there was no violation of the uniformity and equality taxation clause of the Constitution. Id.

— Collateral attack.—The decisions of the State Tax Board under this act, in the matter of valuations, are quasi judicial and a collateral attack cannot be justified in the absence of fraud, or something equivalent thereto; mere difference of opinion as to the reasonableness of valuation, etc., not warranting interference by the courts. Druesdow v. Baker (Com. App.) 229 S. W. 493.

Enjoining collection.—Mere fact that county board, in assessing railroad tangibles, made levy too low did not affect railroad's right to enjoin collection of tax on intangible property certified to county by state board. Baker v. Druesedow (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1043.

Art. 7420. Duties and powers of board in passing upon statement.

See Baker v. Druesedow (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1043; notes to art. 7414.

TAX ON LIQUOR DEALERS

Articles 7427-7466. [Superseded.]

Explanatory.—These articles, imposing a tax on liquor dealers, have been rendered inoperative by the amendment of art. 16, § 20, of the State Constitution, and by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 78, post, Penal Code, arts. 588¼-588½tt, and by the Prohibition amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and by the Volstead Act.

ARTICLE 7427

Conflict in statutes.—Pen. Code, art. 157, imposing license tax on dealers in nonintoxicating malt liquors, held not void under Const. art. 8, § 2, because this act imposes different tax on business of selling intoxicating malt liquors. Claunch v. State, 82 Cr. R. 355, 199 S. W. 483.

Contracts—Validity of.—Seller of whisky to defendant, not qualified to obtain license to operate saloon, who had procured another to obtain such license, defendant himself furnishing money and in fact owning business, could recover price of whisky, though knowing facts. Bonnie & Co. v. Blankenship (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 934.

Clubs.—Enjoining sale, see Country Club v. State, 110 Tex. 40, 214 S. W. 296, 5 A. L. R. 1185; notes to art. 4674.

Review of refusal of license.—If action of city manager in refusing retail liquor dealer's license is arbitrary and unreasonable, courts will review and control such action by mandamus. City of Brownsville v. Fernandez (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 112.

23. Persons entitled to sue.—Where there had been no legal proceeding awarding custody and control of a minor, and real father was still living, stepfather who, after her divorce had married the minor's mother, could not, maintain action, under this article, for selling or giving intoxicants to minor, in view of art. 4070. Gallamore v. Glazier (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 854.

Since the statute giving the right to an aggrieved person to sue for the forfeiture on a liquor dealer's bond is penal in its nature, the right of an independent school district, to sue for such forfeiture must be made very clear. Devine Independent School Dist. v. Koehler (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 238.

An independent school district is not a "person" within the meaning of the statute giving the right to an aggrieved person to sue for the forfeiture on a liquor dealer's bond. Id.

25½. Nature of suit.—A retail liquor dealer's bond, given under this article, does not create between its makers and the state or any beneficiary a contractual relationship in such sense as to cause a vested right of action for penalties to flow from breaches of it; but action thereon is for purely statutory penalties. State v. Mitchell, 110 Tex. 498, 221 S. W. 925.

Article 7487. Property subject to the tax.

Validity.—This act is not special, but a general, law, applying equally and uniformly to every class affected. Dodge v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 116.

Exemption.—Neither adopted person nor child of adopted person is "direct lineal descendant" of adopter, within this article. State v. Yturria, 109 Tex. 220, 204 S. W. 315, L. R. A. 1918F, 1079, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 189 S. W. 291.

Exemption of property passing to certain specified classes from payment of inheritance tax and from lien securing it, under this article, confers on such classes a "privilege." Id.

In view of the adoption statute, property in Texas was not subject to inheritance tax, under this article, on passing by will to persons adopted by testator, but was subject to tax on passing by will to children of persons adopted by testator. Id.

Art. 7490. Inventory; filing; penalty.—Every executor, administrator, or trustee of the estate of a decedent, leaving property subject to taxation under this chapter, or other person coming into possession of any portion of such estate, whether such property passes by will or by the laws of descent and distribution, or otherwise, shall within three months after coming into possession of any of such property, make a report in duplicate, one of which shall be filed with the Comptroller and one with the county clerk of the county court of the county wherein such decedent resided at the time of his death, or wherein the principal part of such estate is located, giving the date of death of such decedent, the approximate value of his estate, if known, of the persons entitled to receive such estate; and within one year after coming into possession of any portion of such estate, such person or persons shall, if some other person has not previously done so, file with the Comptroller and with the said county clerk, said report to be preserved as a permanent record of said office pertaining to such estate, a complete inventory showing the condition of said estate and pay the taxes owing on said estate as provided in this chapter; and in case the tax is not paid within the time herein prescribed a penalty of 2 per cent a month for the first ten months and two per cent a month thereafter until such tax is paid, shall be added to such tax and collected as fixed penalty for the failure to promptly pay such tax; provided that a lien shall exist on all property belonging to said estate to secure the payment of such tax, penalties, and costs, and all persons acquiring any portion of said estate shall be charged with notice of the existence of any unpaid tax, penalties, and costs, which lien may be enforced in any suit brought for the collection of such tax, and penalties, and the county attorneys and the district attorneys of this state are authorized at any time after the expiration of the time above mentioned to institute suit in behalf of the State in any court of competent jurisdiction for the recovery of such tax and the penalties owing thereon under this chapter and he shall receive as compensation therefor 10 per cent on the amount of the taxes payable hereunder, not to exceed in any one case the sum of $200.00, which fee shall be added, and collected from said estate, in addition to the taxes and penalties herein provided for, which compensation shall be in addition to all other fees and compensation provided by law; provided that the aggregate of fees received under this chapter shall not exceed in any one year the sum of $2,000.00 and any fees earned in addition to said sum shall be considered a portion of the tax and penalties collected, and be distributed in the same manner. [Acts 1907, p. 496, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 164, § 1.]

See post, art. 7497.

Art. 7491. Report by county attorney to county judge; compensation; reports.—It shall be the duty of the county attorney of each county of this State to carefully investigate and keep informed concerning estates subject to the payment of taxes under this chapter and if the notice required by the preceding article is not given within three months from the death of any person leaving an estate subject to the payment of taxes under this chapter, such county attorney shall report the condition of said estate to the county judge of the county in which said decedent resided at the time of his death, or where the principal part of his estate was located, and if such report is not made as required in the preceding article within six months from the death of such person, it shall be the duty of the county judge to appoint an administrator of said estate. For his services in making the investigation and making the report herein required, the county attorney shall receive a commission of eight per cent of the taxes payable under this chapter, not to exceed in any one estate the sum of $60.00, and the county judge shall receive a commission of two per cent of the taxes collected under this chapter, not to exceed in any one estate the sum of $15.00, which fees shall be cumulative of all other fees and compensation provided by law. Such compensation shall be paid by the Collector of taxes on the certificate of the county judge out of the taxes paid to him on property belonging to such estate. In case a report is filed by more than one county attorney, then the fee herein provided shall be allowed only to the county attorney who first filed said report. [Acts 1907, p. 496; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 166, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 164, § 1.]

See post, art. 7497.

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

See Thompson v. Dodge (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 586.

Administrator under original act—In general.—Administrator appointed under Act of 1907, is governed by general statutes relating to administration of estates. Dodge v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 116.

Under art. 3289, an inheritance tax administrator appointed under this article, is superseded by executor under probated foreign will. Id.

Under arts. 7487-7502, the county judge has authority to appoint a permanent administrator of the estate of a decedent, who has authority to administer the estate, and, among other things, to collect the inheritance tax, and not merely a special administrator. Thompson v. Dodge (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 586.

Despite arts. 7487-7502, and arts. 3623, 3624, as to allowance of reasonable attorney's fees, county judge held unauthorized to approve contract between administrator to collect inheritance tax and an attorney, which contract was fraudulent and unconscionable as calling for such payments to attorney by way of retainer and for services as would exploit estate for his benefit. Id.

— Validity of statute.—Arts. 7487-7502, providing for the collection of inheritance taxes, and for appointment of an administrator for that purpose and to act generally, if no application for letters testamentary or of administration shall be made, are constitutional. Thompson v. Dodge (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 586.

They do not unconstitutionally extend beyond title's scope because providing for appointment of administrator to collect inheritance taxes. Dodge v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 116.

The provision authorizing appointment of administrator does not deny due process of law contrary to federal Constitution. Id.

It is not invalid because not requiring that notice be given before appointment especially as property cannot be sold to satisfy tax without notice. Id.

Art. 7492. Appraisers appointed; notice to be given, etc.

See Dodge v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 116.

Validity.—The provision of this act for appointment of appraisers in inheritance tax proceedings, is constitutional. Dodge v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 116.

Art. 7493. County judge to regulate tax.

Review or correction of appraisal.—Appraisers' report may be attacked before such court, although this act does not provide for appeal from report. Dodge v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 116.

Appeal may be taken to district court from inheritance tax orders made by appraisers or county court. Id.

Under art. 733, providing that county court's proceedings regarding decedent's estate may be reviewed by certiorari, writ may issue to correct inheritance tax proceedings in county court. Id.

Personal judgment.—Under this act, inheritance tax proceedings are purely in rem, and no personal judgment can be obtained. Dodge v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 116.

Art. 7494. Property withheld until tax paid.

Cited, Dodge v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 116.

Sale by administrator.—Under the provision that property cannot be sold for taxes until notice is given, sufficiency of notice is judicial question. Dodge v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 116.

A sale under this act is subject to requirements of arts. 3479-3507, relating to sale of decedents' property. Id.

Sale by administrator appointed to collect inheritance taxes pursuant to arts. 7487-7502, though approved by county judge, proceeds having been largely used to pay an attorney employed by unconscionable contract and in exploitation of the estate, held void; no attention having been paid to art. 7494, requiring previous ascertainment of amount of tax and sale having been sought improperly under arts. 3489, 3490. Thompson v. Dodge (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 586.

Art. 7497. False reports; penalty.—If any person charged with the duty of filing a report under this chapter, shall knowingly make a false report, he shall be liable for a penalty of not exceeding one thousand dollars, which shall be collected by any county attorney or district attorney in the name of the State, by suit in any court of competent jurisdiction, twenty per cent of which penalty shall be retained by said officer as attorneys fees and the remainder shall be distributed as the taxes collected under this chapter are distributed. [Acts 1907, p. 496; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 164, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 164, sec. 1, expressly amends arts. 7490, 7491, and this article. The subject-matter of this amendment is entirely foreign to that of the amended article, which read as follows: "In case such tax shall not be paid to the collector of taxes within six months after the county judge has notified the amount thereof as hereinbefore provided, the collector shall commence an action to recover the amount of such tax against the executor, administrator or trustee, and the party to whom or for whose use the property has passed; provided, that the county judge may by certificate to the collector extend such time of payment whenever the circumstances of the case require."

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Cited, Dodge v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 116.

Validity.—This act is not unconstitutional as interfering with the rights of district or county attorneys, because the words allowing county tax collectors to "sue" and "commence an action" will be construed to mean to institute actions and assist where the attorneys so desire. Maud v. Terrell, 109 Tex. 97, 200 S. W. 375.

Art. 7500. Tax refunded when.

See Thompson v. Dodge (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 586.

Art. 7501. Final account not allowed until tax is paid.

Article 7503. [5061] All property to be taxed.

Cited, Pfeiffer v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 932.

In general.—Taxation must be uniform, as well as equal, to meet the constitutional maxim. Millhollon v. Stanton Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1109.

Power to tax.—The power of taxation is an incident of sovereignty, and all questions in regard to it address themselves to the discretion of the legislative department, whose conclusions, within the limits of the Constitution, are final. State v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 820.

Art. 7504. [5062] Real property includes what.

In general.—Under this article, a viaduct constructed by railroad companies over tracks is real property, and not property subject to taxation as personal property. City of Texarkana v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 804.

Fixtures.—Parties may by express agreement constructively sever fixtures from the soil so as to require treatment of the fixtures as personal property. Westchester Fire Ins. Co. v. Roan (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 985.

Art. 7505. [5063] Personal property includes what.

Cited, Ferris v. Kimble, 75 Tex. 476, 12 S. W. 689; Campbell v. Wiggins, 2 Civ. App. 1, 20 S. W. 730; City of Austin v. Great Southern Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 482.

Taxable personal property.—Improvements placed on land of railroad by lessee with agreement that it was for use of lessee and could be removed was personal property for purpose of taxation. Armstrong v. Mission Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 895.

A state cannot tax personal property of a nonresident temporarily within its borders. North American Dredging Co. of Nevada v. State (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1065.

Nevada corporation whose dredgeboat and equipment were in Texas and rendered for taxation by it held to have the burden of showing that the property was not taxable, and not to have sustained such burden. Id.

Situs of property.—A vessel plying between ports of different states engaged in coast-wise trade has its situs for taxation at the domicile of its owner, unless it has acquired an actual situs in another state. North American Dredging Co. of Nevada v. State (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1065.

Art. 7506. [5064] Definition of terms.

Singular as embracing plural.—Under arts. 5502, 7506, a judgment reciting that service was had on "defendant" showed sufficiently that service was had on two defendants for the purpose of a collateral attack; it appearing that the defendants were throughout the judgment referred to in the singular. Robinson v. Monning Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 535.

Art. 7507. [5065] Exemption from taxation.*1. Schools and churches.

Buildings used by religious societies.—Const. art. 8, § 2, in exempting places of religious worship and institutions of purely public charities, must not be construed so as to exclude necessary grounds for entry into the buildings, and art. 7507, §§ 1, 6, is therefore constitutional. Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 669.

Parsonage or rectory, used as residence for minister, is not exempt from taxation under Const. art. 8, § 2, or art. 7507, §§ 1, 6. Id.

There is clear and logical difference between place of worship and institution of public charity, and that one is used for other does not change its character, under Const. art. 8, § 2, and art. 7507, §§ 1, 6. Id.

1c. Art Leagues and Societies of Fine Arts.—That all property belonging to Art Leagues and Societies of Fine Arts, whether incorporated or not, which are devoted wholly and without charge to the promotion of education and learning, including Art Galleries and exhibits therein contained, the land upon which the same are situated, which is devoted exclusively to such purposes, and also all land, money, pictures and other works of art and all other personal property which may be necessary and in actual use for the purpose of carrying out the educational feature of this Act shall be exempt from taxation. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 46, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

3. Public property.

Public use.—Property used for governmental purposes is not necessarily exempt; the test under the Constitution being whether it is devoted to a public use. Corporation of San Felipe De Austin v. State (Sup.) 229 S. W. 845.

Property of a municipality devoted to public uses is not taxable. Id.

Public land granted to a town for use by inhabitants as timber and grazing lands by the Mexican government, confirmed by acts of the Congress of the Republic in 1837 (Laws 1837, p. 21) and 1841 (Laws 1840-41, p. 46), where still so used by the inhabitants is exempt from state and county taxation under provision of Constitution exempting land devoted to a "public use." Id.

6. Public charities.

See Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 669; notes to subd. 1.

Validity.—The provision of this article, exempting institutions of purely public charity from taxation, is not unconstitutional. State v. Settegast (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 253.

Under Const. art. 8, § 2, as amended January 7, 1907, the Legislature may exempt from taxation institutions of purely public charity, and not merely the buildings used and owned by such institutions. Id.

Property and institutions exempted.—No building comes within the exemption from taxation authorized by Const. art. 8, § 2, unless it is both owned and used exclusively by an institution of purely public charity. City of Houston v. Scottish Rite Benev. Ass'n. (Sup.) 230 S. W. 978.

The Legislature might reasonably conclude that an institution was one of "purely public charity" within Const. art. 8, § 2, where, first, it made no gain or profit, second, it accomplished ends wholly benevolent, and, third, it benefited persons, indefinite in numbers and in personalities, by preventing them, through absolute gratuity, from becoming burdens to the state. Id.

It does not satisfy Const. art. 8, § 2, that the use of the building by others than the institution was permitted by the owner to obtain revenues to be devoted entirely to its work of public charity, nor is the requirement satisfied by the fact that those sharing the use pay no rent. Id.

To the extent that the property was used by lodges whose activities included fields other than charity, it was not and could not be used exclusively by an institution of purely public charity, within Const. art. 8, § 2. Id.

— Hospitals.—Hospital held "purely public charity," whose land and buildings were exempt from taxation under this subdivision, and Const. art. 8, § 2. Scott v. All Saints Hospital (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 146.

In suit by hospital to restrain collection of taxes, evidence held not to show charge against patients able to pay was made for profit, but rather that it was made to carry out beneficent design of hospital. Id.

Trustees to whom property was bequeathed for the purpose of maintaining a public charity hospital for the gratuitous relief of residents of a specified county, constituted an "institution of purely public charity" where no private or pecuniary return was reserved to the giver or any other particular person, and the entire benefits were to go to the public generally. State v. Settegast (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 253.

Trustees under a will who had organized themselves into a board and held property bequeathed to them for the establishment and maintenance of a hospital constituted an "institution of purely public charity" exempt from taxation, though the board had no members in the sense that lodges, mutual aid societies, and other organizations have, as this subdivision does not exclude other institutions, than those particularly defined therein. Id.

Such trustees were exempt from taxation on such property though they were accumulating a fund with which to build and operate a hospital and converting non-revenue-producing property into income-bearing assets, and did not yet have a hospital in operation. Id.

— Beneficial associations.—Scottish Rite Benevolent Association, held an institution of purely public charity within Const. art. 8, § 2, as a charity need not be universal to be public. City of Houston v. Scottish Rite Benev. Ass'n (Sup.) 230 S. W. 978.

A benevolent association whose lodge room was not only rented to other charitable institutions, but the first story of whose building was rented for commercial purposes, was not entitled to exemption from taxation on its property under this article, in view of Const. art. 8, § 2. Concho Camp, No. 66, W. O. W., v. City of San Angelo (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 1106.

Local camp of voluntary benevolent order held not entitled to exemption from taxation, under this article, on account of its issuing insurance policies to its members, so that it was not an institution purely for public charity within Const. art. 8, § 2. Id.

Enjoining collection of tax.—A public charitable corporation assessed with taxes on personalty, from which it is not exempt, as well as with taxes on realty from which it is exempt, cannot enjoin collection of the entire tax. Davis v. Santa Rosa Infirmary (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 125.

Where taxes on the land of an alleged public charity can be collected only through suit, and any invalidity of the taxes can be urged in defense, the charity prior to such suit is not entitled to injunction against collection, having an adequate legal remedy. Id.

DECISIONS RELATING TO ARTICLE IN GENERAL

Cited, Davis v. Santa Rosa Infirmary (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 125.

Power to exempt.—The condemnation of exemption from taxation contained in Const. art. 8, § 2, carries with it condemnation of commutation of taxes. Millers' Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 825.

Right to exemption in general.—Burden is on one claiming exemptions from taxation to bring himself clearly within statute or Constitution. Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 669.

In considering exemptions from taxation, law must be strictly construed. Id.

In view of Const. art. 8, § 2, for a statute imposing a certain tax to be construed as commuting other taxes the commutation must clearly appear from the terms of the law, and cannot be extended by construction or implication beyond the clear import of its terms. Millers' Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 825.

United States bonds.—The federal law rendering Liberty bonds and subdivisions of indebtedness exempt from taxation by states and cities is the paramount law, and if there is an impediment to the exercise of the power of the United States in the state Legislature or its administration, the courts will restrain or set aside any attempt to evade. City of Waco v. Amicable Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 698.

The effect of U. S. Comp. St. § 6816, providing that obligations of the United States shall be exempt from taxation, is that in any scheme of state or municipal taxation government bonds must be eliminated from consideration in any equation to reach the taxable property, or, at least when they are included, it compels a deduction as such for the amount of the bonds. Id.

Art. 7508. [5066] When property to be rendered.

Liability for tax.—The ownership of property on the 1st day of January of any year creates a liability on the part of the owner for taxes levied upon such property for that year. Winters v. Independent School Dist. of Evant (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 574.

Art. 7510. [5068] Where to be rendered.

Cited, City of Austin v. Great Southern Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 482.

Power of Legislature.—Unless restrained by some constitutional provision, the Legislature may fix the situs for taxation of all personal property. State v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 820.

Place of rendering for assessment.—Personal property is subject to taxation in county or district where situated. Cantwell v. Suttles (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 656.

A promissory note is tangible personal property to be taxed as other personal property where situated. City of Austin v. Great Southern Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 482.

That a taxpayer pays taxes on personal property in the wrong county does not prevent an assessment in the county where the property is actually situated. Id.

Under Const. art. 8, § 11, a bonding company was taxable by city of Austin on securities it was required to deposit with state treasurer, though it had its home office in another county, provisions of insurance situs act, attempting to fix situs of personalty at home office, being void. Texas Fidelity & Bonding Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 818.

Under Const. art. 8, § 11, and arts. 7510, 7514, the proper place to tax personal property is the residence of the owner, provided it has not acquired a situs for purpose of taxation elsewhere, in which instance it is taxable where situated. City of Galveston v. Haden (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 766.

Unorganized counties.—An unorganized county being in effect a part of the county to which it is so attached, the collection of taxes on such personalty of a non-resident may be enforced by the tax collector of the latter county, under Const. art. 8, §§ 1, 11, Rev. St. 1879, arts. 4669, 4673, 4676, and Laws 1879, c. 50, § 1. Llano Cattle Co. v. Faught, 69 Tex. 402, 5 S. W. 494.

Art. 7510a. Securities, etc., when taxed.—All securities, of every kind and character, and all moneys, required or permitted by law to be deposited by any person, firm residing in this State, or corporation organized under the laws of Texas, with the treasurer of the State of Texas, or other State officer or Department, shall be taxed in the County in which the person owning same resides, or where such firm has its place of business, or at the domicile of such corporation, and at no other place. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg., 4th C. S., ch. 40, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Art. 7512. [5070] Live stock, when and how rendered.

Liability for tax.—Under this act, the live stock is liable for taxes assessed thereon in each county, although taxes on the entire herd had been assessed and paid in the county in which the management of the business was conducted. Nolan v. San Antonio Ranch Co., 81 Tex. 315, 16 S. W. 1064.

Art. 7514. [5072] Vessels, where listed.

Art. 7518. [5076] The statement and its requisites.

Sufficiency of statement.—Agreed statement of facts held to sustain finding that property upon which taxes were due was defendant's property and was duly rendered and assessed, though inventory appeared to be made in wrong name. North American Dredging Co. of Nevada v. State (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1065.

Art. 7519. [5077] Certain credits and stocks not to be listed.

Effect of corporation's failure to list.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4682, exempting corporation stock from taxation against the owner when the capital and property of the corporation are required to be taxed, the owner of stock in a state bank is not taxable therewith while the property of the bank is, under the law, taxable, although the bank does not return its property for taxation, as it should do. Gillespie v. Gaston, 67 Tex. 599, 4 S. W. 248.

ON UNRENDERED LANDSArticle 7663. [5213] Back taxes on unrendered lands.

Power to assess omitted property.—If the owner of property does not render the same for taxation, it should be put on the unrendered roll; and, if this is not done for any year or series of years, back taxes may be collected for such time as they are not barred by limitation. Winters v. Independent School Dist. of Evant (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 574.

Before an assessor can place omitted property on the assessment roll, there must be a law authorizing such assessment. Millers' Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 825.

Article 7684. Delinquent taxes a lien on land.

* See State v. Liles (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 517.

Art. 7685. Lands delinquent to be listed by tax collector.

Conclusiveness of lists.—Under a city charter, arts. 7621, 7685, 7692, and 7699, relating to delinquent taxes, held applicable, and mere proof of assessment of taxes is not alone sufficient to show nonpayment after 20 years, but it must be shown by delinquent tax record or other evidence outside assessment. Leake v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 472.

The delinquent tax rolls required by art. 7685 et seq., are prima facie evidence of nonpayment of taxes. Garza v. City of San Antonio (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 697.

Art. 7687. Delinquent tax list to be published.

See Potter County v. Boesen (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 948.

Contracts for publication.—A contract for the publication of the delinquent tax list, providing for payment "as delinquent taxes are paid into the hands of the tax collector," did not make compensation for publishing the list dependent on the collection of the tax, but merely fixed the time for payment. Potter County v. Boesen (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 948, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 787.

Under such contract the debt matured when the county had been given a reasonable time in which to exhaust the remedies provided for the collection of the tax. Id.

Where such contract was made in 1907, a reasonable time in which to have disposed of the tax litigation had expired when the claim for compensation was presented and rejected in 1913. Id.

Under the law it is the duty of the commissioners' court of the county to have the delinquent tax list published and to pay for such publication, and such obligation is not dependent on collection of the taxes. Id.

Art. 7687a. Notice to owners of delinquency; contents; duplicates for district or county attorneys; receipts for payment.—During the months of April and May each year, or as soon thereafter as practicable, the collector of taxes in each county of this State shall mail to the address of each record owner of any lands or lots situated in the county a notice showing the amount of taxes delinquent or past due and unpaid against all such lands and lots as shown by the delinquent tax record of the county on file in the office of the tax collector, a duplicate of which shall also have been filed in the office of the Comptroller of Public Accounts of the State of Texas and approved by such officer. Such notice shall also contain a brief description of the lands and lots appearing delinquent and the various sums or amounts due against such lands and lots for each year, they appear to be delinquent according to such records, and it shall also recite that unless the owner or owners of such lots or lands described therein shall pay to the tax collector the amount of taxes, interest, penalties and costs set forth in such notice within 90 days from the date of notice, then, and in that event, the county or district attorney will institute suits for the collection of such moneys and for the foreclosure of the Constitutional Lien existing against such lands and lots. And it shall also be the duty of the tax collector in every county of this State, as soon after mailing such notice as practicable, to furnish to the county or district attorney duplicates of all such notices mailed to the tax payers in accordance with the provisions of this Act, and also, lists of lands and lots located in the county appearing on the delinquent tax records in the name of "unknown" or "unknown owners" or in the name of persons whose correct address or place of residence in or out of the county said collector is unable, by the use of due diligence, to discover, or ascertain, against which taxes are delinquent, past due, and unpaid, and such lists or statements shall show the amount of state and county taxes delinquent, past due, and unpaid, against each such tract or lot of land for each year they appear to be delinquent according to the delinquent tax records of the county and shall likewise contain a brief description of all such lands and lots. And it shall be the further duty of the tax collector to furnish on demand of any person or persons, firm or corporation like statements with reference to any particular lot or tract of land for whatever purpose desired, which shall be in all instances certified by him with the seal of his office attached. Whenever any person or persons, firm or corporation shall pay to the tax collector all of the taxes, interest, penalties and costs shown by the delinquent tax records of the county to be due and unpaid against any tract, lot, or parcel of land for all the years for which said taxes may be shown to be due and unpaid, prior to the institution of suit for the collection thereof, it shall be the duty of the tax collector to issue to such person or persons, firm or corporation, a receipt covering such payment as is now required by law. [Acts 1915, 34th Leg., ch. 147, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 64, § 1.]

See Barber v. State (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 292; notes to art. 7688a.

Notice to property owner.—Notice from tax collector to "record owner" that taxes are delinquent and that tax lien will be foreclosed, required by this article, is a prerequisite to the right of the state to a foreclosure or recovery of the taxes. Hunt v. State, 110 Tex. 204, 217 S. W. 1034; State v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 636.

Under art. 7687b, it is sufficient for tax collector to send notice to one who appeared to be owner in delinquent records, and it is no defense, in action to recover delinquent taxes from one who subsequently became owner, that his title appeared upon county records. State v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 636.

Under arts. 7687a and 7688a, a suit for delinquent taxes for years between 1896 and 1910 cannot be maintained where the tax collector of the county did not mail to defendant or the record owner of the land a written notice showing the amount of taxes appearing delinquent prior to May 1, 1916. Barber v. State (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 292.

In suit to foreclose lien for delinquent taxes for year 1915, where notice required by this article was mailed June 2, 1916, and suit was filed after 90 days from mailing, state was entitled to judgment and foreclosure, all other requirements of the law having been complied with; the time of giving notice being immaterial, provided taxpayer has 90 days' time from such notice before suit is filed. State v. Guana (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 687.

Under this article, notice must be given to the owner of the title at the time of the notice as disclosed by the public records of the county required to be kept, notwithstanding section 2 (art. 7687b). Hunt v. State, 110 Tex. 204, 217 S. W. 1034.

Limitations.—This act does not place any limitation on the right of the state to collect delinquent taxes, but is intended merely to fix the duties of the tax collector and county attorneys, for otherwise the state might lose taxes by delay of the tax collector in sending notice, though the bond of such officials does not cover such loss. State v. Heath (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 567.

Art. 7687b. Notices, how made up; supplemental tax lists, etc.

See Hunt v. State, 110 Tex. 204, 217 S. W. 1034.

Cited, State v. Guana (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 687.

Notice to property owner.—See State v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 636; notes to art. 7687a.

Compensation of collector.—See Sherman County v. Ross (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1055; Curtin v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 453; notes to art. 7688a.

Art. 7687c. Publication of lists postponed.—That the publication of delinquent lists for State, county, special school, district school and levy improvement taxes, and water improvement districts by the County Commissioners Court of each county or board of directors of any water improvement district in this State shall be postponed until October 15, 1921. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 4, § 1.]

Explanatory.—The title of the act seems to cover the subject of the act fully, except that, in enumerating the taxes involved, it omits those levied by water improvement districts.

Art. 7687d. Suspension of suits.—That no suits shall be brought for the collection of any delinquent taxes for the year 1920 until after the fifteenth day of October, 1921. [Id., § 2.]

See note under art. 7687c.

Art. 7688. Suits to foreclose tax liens on delinquent lands.

Cited, Bomar v. Runge (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 287.

Pleading and proof in general.—In suits for taxes and foreclosure of liens therefor, it is essential to allege and prove nonpayment and consequent delinquency. Garza v. City of San Antonio (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 697.

Art. 7688a. Duty of county or district attorney to institute suit; fees; compensation of tax collector.—As soon as practicable after the expiration of ninety days from the date of notice mailed to the delinquent owner by the Tax Collector under the provisions of this Act, the County Attorney or District Attorney, if there be no County Attorney, shall file or institute suit, as otherwise provided by law, for the collection of all delinquent taxes due at the time of filing such suit against any lands or lots situated in the county, together with interest, penalties and costs then due, as otherwise provided by law; provided, that for the work of filing such suits, the County or District Attorney shall receive a fee of Four ($4.00) Dollars for the first tract of land included in each suit and One ($1.00) Dollar for each additional tract included therein; and, provided, where improved town lots are sued upon or included in a suit with other lands or unimproved town lots in the same town only one such additional fee shall be added for each twenty lots or any number less than twenty, and it shall be the duty of said County or District Attorney in bringing such suits to include in the same suit all lands and unimproved town lots owned by any one owner; and, provided, further, that in counties containing over fifty thousand inhabitants such fee shall be Two ($2.00) Dollars for the first tract and Fifty (.50) cents for each additional tract, and that the same provisions with regard to the joining of different tracts owned by the same owner in one suit shall apply to such counties.

The Tax Collector shall, in addition to the compensation and costs now allowed by law, be entitled for the making up the delinquent record or supplements thereto, where necessary under this Act, the sum of Five (.05c) cents for each and every line of yearly delinquencies entered on said delinquent record or supplement, the same not to exceed Twenty-five (25c) in any one case, such compensation to be paid out of the General fund of the county upon a completion or approval of said record or supplement. The Tax Collector shall also receive a commission of five per cent on the amount of delinquent taxes collected in addition to the commissions now allowed by law, but all such fees or commissions of the said Tax Collector, District Attorney or County Attorney under this Act shall be accounted for as fees of office under provisions of the Maximum Fee Bill as provided in Chapter 4, Title 58, of the Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, 1911, as amended by Chapters 121 and 142, Acts of the Regular Session of the Thirty-third Legislature. [Acts 1915, 34th Leg., ch. 147, § 3; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 64, § 2.]

Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

Cited, State v. Guana (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 687.

Notice to property owner.—See Barber v. State (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 292; notes to art. 7687a.

When suit maintainable.—Under the express provisions of arts. 7687a and 7688a, a suit for delinquent taxes for a period between 1896 and 1910 could not be maintained by the county attorney subsequent to January 1, 1913. Barber v. State (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 292.

Compensation of collector.—Under sections 2 and 3 of this act, although tax collector prepared delinquent tax record in duplicate, he was not entitled to five cents per line for both, but only for one. Sherman County v. Ross (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 1055; Curtin v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 453.

The word "record," as used in this act is not synonymous with "book," "volume," or "copy," and the collector is not entitled to double the fee where he copied the compiled matter into a duplicate book. King v. Marion County (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1052.

Under arts. 3881, 3883, 3889, 3893-3897, a county tax collector is not entitled to receive and retain, in addition to amount allowed by the foregoing sections, compensation provided by §§ 2, 3, of this act, for making up delinquent tax rolls and collecting delinquent taxes. Curtin v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 453.

Art. 7688b. Suits against unknown owners.—In respect to lands and lots appearing on lists furnished by the tax collector to the County or District Attorney in accordance with the provisions of this Act, as lands and lots located in the county which appear on the delinquent tax record in the name of "unknown" or "unknown owner," or in the name of persons whose correct address or place of residence in or out of the county said collector has been unable, by due diligence to discover or ascertain, it shall be the duty of the county attorney or in counties having no County Attorney, of the District Attorney, immediately after the lists of such lands have been furnished him by the collector, to proceed to collect all taxes, penalty, interest and costs then due against the same in the manner prescribed in Chapter 15 of Title 126 of the Revised Statutes of 1911. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 64, § 3.]

Explanatory.—Added to Acts 1915, 34th Leg., ch. 147, as § 3a.

Art. 7689. Proceedings in suits to foreclose tax lien.

In general.—The taxes for ten years on five acres of land assessed as belonging to defendant's husband cannot be collected by foreclosing a tax lien for all of the taxes on two of the five acres assessed as the property of defendant for only six years. Garza v. City of San Antonio (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 697.

Parties.—Suit may be maintained against either or all of the co-owners of a parcel of land to recover ordinary taxes against the land. Elmendorf v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 631.

Evidence.—Presumption of payment after lapse of 20 years applies in a suit to recover alleged delinquent taxes where there was no proof of delinquency other than assessment itself on which penalty and interest had been computed at a time obviously long after levy. Leake v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 472.

In a suit to collect delinquent taxes, a mere copy of the assessment roll does not prove nonpayment. Garza v. City of San Antonio (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 697.

Judgment—Requisites and conclusiveness of.—The refusal of the trial court to foreclose any liens for taxes due prior to judgment for taxes under which the property was sold was correct, since a valid sale under a junior assessment cuts off all prior tax liens. Ivey v. Teichman (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 695.

Costs in excess of lawful amount taxed by reason of clerk's error in making out an original order of sale upon tax foreclosure renders the judgment therein a nullity as against a minor owner, regardless of the smallness of the amount. Teat v. Perry (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 650.

In a suit to foreclose a lien for delinquent taxes, where the petition, in connection with the assessment roll, described the property as containing five acres, a judgment describing the land as consisting of two acres was not sufficient; the portion ordered sold being left to inference and conjecture. Garza v. City of San Antonio (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 697.

Where a state or municipality seeks to recover a judgment against a citizen for taxes, by virtue of which his property may be seized and sold, all legal requirements must be strictly complied with, and the rule applies with the same force to the description of the property in a judgment as to proof of nonpayment. Id.

— Grounds for attack on judgment.—Where a tax judgment has been rendered without citing defendant, the owner of the property, defendant may, within the period of statutory limitations, attack the judgment in a direct proceeding wherein equitable relief may be had as circumstances require. Harrison v. Sharpe (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 731.

— Collateral attack.—Tax judgments containing recitals showing jurisdiction may not be contradicted in collateral proceedings. Harrison v. Sharpe (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 731.

A suit to set aside a tax judgment and sale thereunder brought by the owner on the ground that citation had not been served upon her, wherein the petition recited that the suit was in the nature of a bill of review to annul the judgment and proceedings, followed by a statement of facts upon which plaintiff relies, does not constitute a collateral attack on the tax proceedings. Id.

If a tax sale judgment was without binding force, the objection that the attack upon it was a collateral one would make no difference. Teat v. Perry (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 650.

Validity of sale.—On sale for taxes in an action foreclosing a tax lien under arts. 7688, 7689, an owner is afforded full opportunity to defend and to prevent the sacrifice of his property, so that the validity of the sale is to be determined by the rules governing judicial sales, and not by the rules governing summary tax sales. Brown v. Bonough (Sup.) 232 S. W. 490.

Purchaser in good faith.—Merely because the purchaser at a tax sale did not know that it was wrongfully or irregularly made does not prevent the sale from being set-aside in a direct proceeding for that purpose. Harrison v. Sharpe (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 731.

That property has been acquired at a tax sale by an innocent purchaser does not prevent the sale from being set aside because the owner of the property was not cited in the tax proceedings, where the purchaser will receive an unconscionable profit in the owner's loss if he be allowed to retain the property and where he can be placed in status quo. Id.

Where property has been sold under a tax judgment without citing the owner and has been purchased by an innocent party at the tax sale, the sale merely will be set aside, and the judgment left undisturbed. Id.

Art. 7690. Sheriff to execute deeds.

Title of purchaser at tax sale.—In the absence of contrary provision in statute or judgment under which sale is made, the purchaser at a valid tax sale acquires title free from any lien for taxes assessed and delinquent for any years previous to that for which sale is made, and the state cannot recover state and county taxes antedating foreclosure sales. State v. Liles (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 517.

One purchasing land sold for taxes under a judgment in a tax suit rendered without service of citation was not a purchaser in good faith entitled to protection as such where the price paid by him was grossly inadequate. Rowland v. Klepper (Com. App.) 227 S. W. 1096.

Art. 7691. Attorneys to represent state; fees, etc.

Costs in general.—Compensation allowed county clerks in delinquent tax suits by this article, must be reported, accounted for, and considered in reaching maximum compensation of such clerks as provided by maximum fee bill (art. 3883), notwithstanding art. 3924. Jones v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 207.

Under the Houston City Charter 1905, except as otherwise specified therein, the fees of officers in suits for sale of property to pay taxes are the same as those in similar suits for state and county taxes under this article. Teat v. Perry (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 650.

The 5 per cent. allowance for attorney's fees in city tax suits under Houston City Charter, art. 3, § 8, supersedes the provision of this article, which is otherwise applicable, in view of arts. 7693, 7699, so that such fee is allowable. Id.

On foreclosure of a tax lien, the clerk and sheriff were not entitled to collect fees in excess of those prescribed by this article. Brown v. Bonougli (Sup.) 232 S. W. 490.

The title of a purchaser at a sheriff's sale foreclosing a tax lien under valid judgment and order of sale is not affected by the sheriff's unauthorized retention of more than lawful commissions. Id.

Where judgment of sale was entered, an order of sale, bearing indorsement of costs in excess of those permitted by this article, though erroneous and irregular, was not void, and the title of the purchaser was good against collateral attack by suit for recovery of the land. Id.

Art. 7692. Assessor to list unpaid taxes annually, etc.

Cited, Powell v. Archer County (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1037; Baker v. Fogle, 110 Tex. 301, 217 S. W. 141.

Application.—Under a city charter, arts. 7621, 7685, 7692, and 7699, relating to delinquent taxes, held applicable, and mere proof of assessment of taxes is not alone sufficient to show nonpayment after 20 years, but it must be shown by delinquent tax record or other evidence outside assessment. Leake v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 472.

Cost, interest, and penalties.—Where taxes are separable, citizen, to escape penalties for nonpayment of valid taxes, need not tender tax which is invalid, but it is sufficient to tender taxes legally due. State v. Hoffman, 109 Tex. 133, 201 S. W. 653.

Where taxpayer tendered portion of taxes validly assessed, he is not liable for penalties on amount of taxes tendered, though he fails to support his claim that part of taxes not tendered was invalid. Id.

When tax due.—Under Const. art. 6, § 2, art. 7, § 3, art. 8, § 1, and this article, poll tax becomes due on January 1st, and persons entering the state after such date need not pay such tax in order to be qualified voters. Earnest v. Woodlee (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 963.

Art. 7693. Law available to incorporated cities and towns.

See Teat v. Perry (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 650; notes to art. 7691.

Art. 7696. May redeem in two years by paying double.

See Turner v. Maury (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 255.

Art. 7697. May redeem, when and how.—That the owner or any one having an interest in land or lots heretofore sold to the State, or any city or town, under the decrees of court, in any suit or suits brought for the collection of the taxes thereon, or by the collector of taxes, or otherwise, shall have the right at any time within two years after the taking effect of this Act to redeem the same upon the payment of the amount of taxes for which sale was made, together with all costs, penalties and interest now required by law, and also the payment of all taxes, interest, penalties and costs on or against said lands or lots at the time of said redemption. And where lands or lots shall hereafter be sold to the State or to any city or town for taxes under decree of court in any suit or suits brought for collection of taxes thereon or by a collector of taxes, otherwise, the owner having an interest in such lands or lots shall have the right at any time within two years from date of sale to redeem the same after such sale upon payment of the amount of taxes for which sale was made, together with all costs and penalties required by law, and also the payment of all taxes, interest, penalties and costs on or against said lands or lots at the time of redemption. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 400; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 69, § 1; Acts 1920, 36th Leg. 3d C. S., ch. 59, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Took effect 90 days after June 18, 1920, date of adjournment. Sec. 2 of the act repeals all laws in conflict. The act, though not expressly amending art. 7697, Rev. St. 1911, supersedes that article.

Art. 7698. Proceedings against delinquents, unknown or non-resident.

Parties.—Defendant in trespass to try title held not the unknown owner within this article, such owner having been the only party cited, it having been open to the county attorney to learn from the records of the tax assessor that defendant paid taxes on the land in three previous years, and that no one had paid since. Bomar v. Runge (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 287.

The state's suit for taxes on land should be brought against a nonresident, under this article, by name. Catlett v. Combs (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 697.

An owner whose land had been previously sold for taxes was not an unknown owner for purposes of suit by the state for taxes; the purchaser of the land from the state comptroller being the owner if the sales were valid. Id.

Requisites of petition, notice or citation.—In a tax suit against a nonresident owner, the requisites of the necessary citation, in October, 1906, were exclusively prescribed by this article. Rousset v. Settegast (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 219.

That suit for delinquent taxes was against the nonresident owner and his unknown heirs, the petition specially reciting the suit was brought pursuant to Acts 24th Leg. c. 42, relating to the collection of delinquent taxes, did not bring it within arts. 1874, 1875, as to service of citation, instead of art. 7698. Id.

Writ against nonresident owner in delinquent tax suit running, "To the sheriff or any constable of Harris County, Greeting," and further reciting, "You are hereby notified that suit has been brought by the state for the collection of said taxes," and "You are commanded to appear and defend said suit," instead of the owner of property himself, was fatally defective as not in compliance with this article. Id.

Under art. 5107—46, requiring the process in suits for delinquent taxes by water improvement districts to be served as provided for suits of like character, the citation is not governed by art. 1874, relative to suits in general, but by article 7698, relative to suits for delinquent taxes. Wheat v. Ward County Water Improvement Dist. No. 2 (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 713.

Validity and conclusiveness of judgment.—Judgment in tax suit against the unknown owner, the only party cited, being regular and valid as against defendant therein, was binding on defendant in the present suit of trespass to try title, if he was the defendant in such suit, otherwise not. Bomar v. Runge (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 287.

Art. 7699. Similar proceedings by city or town.

See Leake v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 472, notes to art. 7692; Teat v. Perry (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 650, notes to art. 7691.

Art. 7700b. Release of soldiers, etc., from penalties and costs for non-payment of taxes or assessments.—By the authority of Section 10, Article 8, and Section 3, Article 1, of the Constitution of the State of Texas, and in conformity with an act passed by the Congress of the United States March 8, 1918, the Legislature of this State by a vote of both Houses, duly entered and recorded on the respective journals thereof, does hereby release to each said soldier, sailor or marine, all penalties and costs of every nature incurred by him and taxed against him by reason of non-payment of any taxes or assessments, whether general or special, falling due during his period of military service in respect to any of his real property, personal property, or mixed property, of any kind whatever that may have accrued or been charged against them for non-payment of his principal tax during any period of time so engaged in the military service of the United States as a soldier, sailor or marine. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 69, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 7700c. Same; credits to collectors; affidavits.—The Comptroller of the State of Texas in making annual settlements with county tax collectors of this State shall credit the account of said collectors with all such penalties and costs in respect to any real property, personal property or mixed property so owned by said soldiers, sailors and marines during his period of military service upon presentation to him by the collector of the affidavit of said soldier, sailor or marine so owning such property:

(1) The date and place of such person in the military service of the United States;

(2) A general description of the real, personal or mixed property owned by such soldier on which said penalties or costs may have accrued;

(3) The amount of taxes or assessments against said property which fell due during the period of his service, and the amount of penalties and costs accrued by reason of non-payment of such taxes or assessments; and

(4) The date and place of his discharge from the military service of the United States, and the unit in which he was serving at the time of his discharge. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 7700d. Same.—Upon the presentation to the comptroller of public accounts of this State by any county tax collector of this State of the affidavit of any such soldier, sailor or marine, as provided for in Section 2 of this Act [Art. 7700c], the comptroller of public accounts shall be hereby authorized, and it is made the duty of said comptroller of public accounts, to credit the account of the tax collector of any county of this State with all penalties and costs that may have accrued against said soldier, sailor or marine, by reason of his services as such; the said comptroller of public accounts shall also credit the account of the tax collector with the poll tax assessed against such soldier, sailor or marine for the years 1917, 1918 and 1919, as provided for by Senate Bill No. 1, Acts of the Thirty-sixth Legislature, First Called Session, approved May 9, 1919. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 7700e. Same.—Upon the presentation by the county tax collector of any affidavit by any such soldier, sailor or marine, as provided in Section 2 of this Act [Art. 7700c], it shall be the duty of the commissioners court or courts of this State to credit the account of such tax collector with all penalties and costs that may have accrued against any such soldier, sailor or marine, as provided for in Section 2 of this Act. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 7700f. Same; custody of affidavits.—All such affidavits presented to the comptroller of public accounts, as a part of the tax collector's report and presented to the commissioners courts of this State as a part of the credit claimed by reason of such affidavits on the accounts of such tax collector in the performance of his official duty, shall be kept on file in the office of the comptroller, or the office of the county clerk if made to the commissioners court, for a period of four years. [Id., § 5.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Setting aside tax sale—Procedure.—In a suit to set aside a default judgment rendered in a tax suit and the sheriff's deed thereunder and to recover title to the property, the submission of special issues as to whether plaintiff was served with a copy of the citation and as to when he first learned of the rendition of the judgment was not error. Rowland v. Klepper (Com. App.) 227 S. W. 1096.

— Extent of relief.—In a suit to set aside a default judgment in a tax suit and the sheriff's deed thereunder and recover title to the property, where it appeared that plaintiff was not served with citation, but the state was not made a party, and no meritorious defense as against the state was shown, the sale will be set aside, leaving the judgment undisturbed. Rowland v. Klepper (Com. App.) 227 S. W. 1096.

— Rights and liabilities of parties.—In action to set aside judgment for delinquent taxes, legal on its face, and to cancel sheriff's deed, purchaser should have been given judgment for aggregate amount paid out by him as actual taxes on lot since the tax sale, with legal interest and a lien to insure payment. Rousset v. Settegest (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 219.

Parol evidence.—See notes under art. 3687, rule 20.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

ASSESSMENT AND COLLECTION OF TAXES IN CERTAIN CASES

Article 7702. Property omitted from tax rolls, etc., list of.

Right to assess omitted property.—Before an assessor can place omitted property on the assessment roll, there must be a law authorizing such assessment. Millers' Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 825.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

OF MUNICIPAL TAXES TO PAY SUBSIDIES IN AID OF RAILROADS AND OTHER INTERNAL IMPROVEMENTS

Article 7716. [5233] Such taxes, how applied.

Property received from collector in lieu of taxes.—Property conveyed to a city in compromise of a suit against its tax collector and the sureties, on his failure to pay over taxes assessed and collected to meet the obligation of the city on bonds issued in aid of the construction of certain railroads, stands in the same position as would the money collected if paid over; and under the provisions of Rev. St. 1879, art. 4778, cannot be appropriated to the claim of a judgment creditor, and an injunction will issue restraining an execution sale by him. City of Sherman v. Williams, 84 Tex. 421, 19 S. W. 606, 31 Am. St. Rep. 66.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN A

IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT TAXES TO PAY CERTAIN CERTIFICATES OF INDEBTEDNESS

Art.

7721¼. Tax to pay certificates of indebtedness issued for repair of levies.

7721¼a. Same; election; order for.

7721¼b. Same; levy, assessment and collection of tax.

Art.

7721¼c. Same; priority of outstanding bonds.

7721¼d. Same; when election may not be called.

Article 7721¼. Tax to pay certificates of indebtedness issued for repair of levies.—Any improvement district created prior to the year 1915 for drainage or levee purposes, which has heretofore issued, through its commissioners, in the performance of the duty enjoined upon them by law to keep the levees in their districts repaired, its certificates of indebtedness in payment for necessary repairs of any levee of such districts damaged or destroyed in part by overflow or flood occurring during the year 1915, may pay such certificates by taxation, when the levy and collection of a tax for such purpose shall have been authorized by an election which may be held in such district, as hereinafter provided for. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 153, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 7721 $\frac{1}{4}$ a. Same; election; order for.—The County Commissioners' Court of any county in which any such district is situated, when petitioned to do so by a majority of the property tax paying voters of any such district, shall order an election to be held in such district for the purpose of determining whether or not a tax shall be levied, assessed and collected for the purpose of paying such certificates, and the existing law applicable to such improvement district, as to the calling of an election, notice thereof, the appointment of election officers, the qualification of voters therein, the time, place and manner of holding elections, and the making and acting upon returns thereof, for determining whether or not the bonds of the district shall be issued, shall control and be complied with, with only such difference as shall be necessary to make such law applicable to the subject. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 7721 $\frac{1}{4}$ b. Same; levy, assessment and collection of tax.—If the result of such an election shall be in favor of the levy, assessment and collection of a tax with which to pay such certificates, then the tax shall be annually levied, assessed and collected by the same agencies, and in the same way as in the case of any tax authorized with which to pay a bond issue, and then the same shall be applied in payment of such certificates as the proceeds of a bond issue of such district would be applied under existing laws upon any valid debt of such districts. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 7721 $\frac{1}{4}$ c. Same; priority of outstanding bonds.—All proceedings hereunder shall be subject to the priority and preference in all respects of the outstanding bonds of the district. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 7721 $\frac{1}{4}$ d. Same; when election may not be called.—If at the time of the presentation of any petition for an election authorized hereunder, it should appear to the County Commissioners' Court, from an examination of the records pertaining thereto, that the amount of the certificates sought to be paid by taxation, added to the amount of the unpaid bonds outstanding against such district, exceed in amount the aggregate amount of bonds which such district could then legally issue, then no election shall be called. [Id., § 5.]

TIMBER

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Nature of property in timber.—Though standing timber is generally regarded as part of the realty, the owner by contract can constructively cause a severance, and for purposes of mortgage or sale convert it into personalty. Downey v. Dowell (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 585.

Title to timber.—One having a lien under a deed of trust has no title to wood cut and removed prior to foreclosure. Chavez v. Schairer (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 892.

Sale of timber in general.—Contracts of sale and deeds of standing timber, like other contracts, should be interpreted in such manner as will best carry out intention of parties. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Boykin, 109 Tex. 276, 206 S. W. 815; Broocks v. Moss (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 153.

In action to recover for breach of contract to convey timber, evidence held to support jury findings that there was meeting of minds on essential elements of contract. West Lumber Co. v. C. R. Cummings Export Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 546.

If a deed conveyed timber in fee as an interest in the land, the assignee of the grantee could enjoin the owners of the land from cutting the timber, but, if it granted the timber as personalty, the purchaser had no right after the time fixed for cutting and removal. Dunsmore v. Blount-Decker Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 603.

Case as made by owner of standing timber for rescission on ground of misrepresentation of contract of sale held not to rest on legal fraud. Jones v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 223.

Damages for breach of contract.—Where capacity of buyer's mill would have handled all timber contracted for in addition to timber secured from other sources, timber manufactured could not be considered to minimize damages for breach of contract to deliver. West Lumber Co. v. C. R. Cummings Export Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 546.

Although seller had no notice of inception of contract to deliver timber of special damage from breach, he would be liable therefor if after timely notice he failed to perform. Id.

Where seller had notice that buyer was to manufacture timber and would suffer special damages, court did not err in allowing as damages for breach by seller difference between contract price and value of lumber. Id.

Where seller of timber knew at the time that the contract was entered into that buyer intended to manufacture such timber into lumber, and that other timber was not available therefor, the buyer, on seller's failure to deliver and on inability to get other timber, could recover the loss of profits that it would have made if the lumber had been manufactured, even though the seller did not know until after contract had been entered into that the buyer would likely suffer damages in loss of profits. West Lumber Co. v. R. C. Cummings Export Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 911.

Limitation as to time.—Where deed conveying timber provides a definite time within which timber is to be cut and removed, all timber not so cut within time limited reverts to grantor and those holding under him, notwithstanding deed does not in terms provide for reversion. Adams v. Fidelity Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1034.

Timber deed providing for extension of period for removal held to authorize annual renewals for limited period, and forfeiture of timber rights could not be declared because grantee's successor, when renewal was asked, tendered only the annual payment. Id.

Where timber deed specified acreage as 2,350 acres, more or less, annual payment of extension of time of removal should be computed on that acreage, though it subsequently developed that land was greater in area. Id.

Instruments which merely convey timber with a license to remove, without stipulating time for removal, imply that timber must be removed within a reasonable time. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Boykin, 109 Tex. 276, 206 S. W. 815.

Under contract of sale of standing timber, giving purchaser liberty to go upon land and remove timber as would be convenient to him, title passed to only so much timber as might be removed within a reasonable time, since removal clauses should not be construed as covenants. Id.

A contract transferring standing timber, with right to all the time purchaser or his assigns should demand for its removal, and providing they should be forever entitled to have and hold such timber and right of way for its removal, held an absolute sale of timber, with unlimited time for removal. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Hamilton, 109 Tex. 270, 206 S. W. 817.

Where a deed to timber did not convey a fee-simple title and specified no time for removal, the grantee must remove the timber within a reasonable time, or he will lose his rights thereunder. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Bunn (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 830.

A deed of standing timber which gave the grantee the right to cut and remove the timber within a specified time, and an additional term or so much thereof as might be required, on payment of a specified sum, gave the grantee title only to such timber as was cut and removed within the period fixed. Broocks v. Moss (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 153.

Timber deeds and contracts containing a time limitation for the removal of timber pass no title save to so much of the timber as the vendee may remove within the time limited. Conn v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 137.

A deed conveying all pine timber upon a described tract of land, and empowering grantees to enter to cut the timber, including the usual covenant of warranty, conveyed a fee-simple title to the timber, so that plaintiff was not required to remove it within a reasonable time, but could do so at his pleasure, and title to the timber did not revert to grantor after a reasonable time. Chapman v. Dearman (Sup.) 229 S. W. 1112.

Deed of timber construed.—A deed conveying all merchantable timber on a certain tract, providing that the grantees should have 10 years to cut and remove it, and permitting the grantees to enter the land for the purpose of cutting and removing the timber, conveys the timber as personalty. Dunsmore v. Blount-Decker Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 603.

The term "merchantable pine timber," as used in a timber deed, meant such pine timber as was suitable for trade and sale, and which had a value on the market at the date of the deed, only such size timber as was ordinarily used for sawmill purposes in the vicinity. Southwestern Settlement & Development Co. v. May (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 133.

A deed conveying all pine timber on a described tract of land, and empowering grantees to enter to cut and remove it, including the usual covenants of warranty conveyed a fee-simple title to the timber. Chapman v. Dearman (Sup.) 229 S. W. 1112.

Actions for taking timber.—If defendant had superior title to land when wood was cut therefrom, he had superior title and possessory right to the wood which would constitute a perfect defense to action for conversion. Chavez v. Schairer (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 892.

Where one seizes timber removed from land and is sued in conversion, and he defends on the ground of superior title to land, it is sufficient to show a common source and superior right. Id.

That one was in possession of timber which he purchased from one claiming land, and which he has cut and removed, was sufficient evidence of title to maintain action of conversion. Id.

— Measure of damages.—Where one buys standing timber from one claiming title to land when in fact another has a superior title and seizes the wood, he is a trespasser, and in suit for conversion is not entitled to expenses of cutting and removing. Chavez v. Schairer (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 892.

Logging contracts.—Contract for the conduct of a sawmill enterprise as a joint enterprise held to imply in the absence of explanatory evidence, that defendant's share of the expenses was to begin when the mill reached his land, and, where the parol testimony was to the effect that such was the intention, the Court of Civil Appeals erroneously held as a matter of law that defendant was not bound for any part of the expenses until the mill was in actual operation. Porter v. McKinnon (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 574, affirming judgment (Civ. App.) McKinnon v. Porter, 192 S. W. 1112.

TITLE 127 A

TORTS—SITUS OF SUITS FOR

Article 7730½. Suits for death or personal injury by wrongful act committed outside the state.

Right of action in general.—The cause of action for wrongful death given by Comp. Laws N. M. 1884, §§ 2309, 2310, as amended by Laws 1891, c. 49, is transitory, and may be maintained in a state other than that of New Mexico. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Berkshire (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1093.

In a servant's action for injuries, based on the defendant railroad's violation of the federal Safety Appliance Act (U. S. Comp. St. § 8605 et seq.), the master's liability was enforceable in courts of Texas, without reference to the laws of California, where the tort occurred. Southern Pac. Co. v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 561.

That only one action can be brought in Texas for a tort, and that subsequent actions can be brought in Mexico for damages accruing after trial, does not prevent a Texas court from assuming jurisdiction of action for tort committed in Mexico, and giving judgment for damages accruing before trial. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Carruth (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 984.

Under pleadings and evidence in action for damages for tort committed in Mexico, held that it was not necessary to invoke provisions of Acts 35th Leg. c. 156, bestowing jurisdiction upon courts of Texas in cases involving torts committed in foreign countries, to justify court in taking jurisdiction. Id.

A resident of Texas, suffering personal injuries in another state while employed in interstate commerce by a common carrier domiciled in Texas, can bring suit in Texas to enforce the carrier's liability under the federal Safety Appliance Acts (U. S. Comp. St. §§ 8605-8623). St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smitha (Sup.) 232 S. W. 494.

— Action on penal statute.—Notwithstanding this act, a widow cannot sue a railroad in Texas for the death of her husband in a crossing collision in New Mexico, under Code N. M. 1915, § 1820, since the recoverable sum is allowed as a penalty. Clay v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Com. App.) 228 S. W. 907; Clay v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1072.

— Necessity of ancillary administrator.—Where domiciliary administrator of New Mexico resident in Texas sued railroad company alleged to be liable for death of his intestate, held that, as Comp. Laws N. M. 1884, §§ 2309, 2310, as amended by Laws 1891, c. 49, allow suit only by personal representative, an ancillary administrator in Texas should be appointed. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Berkshire (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1093.

Right of non-residents to sue.—The comity existing between states and nations sanctioned the rule that an inhabitant of another state or another nation has free access to courts for the redress of wrongs or the prosecution of rights. Coss v. Coss (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 127.

	7758. Final judgment conclusive.

Article 7731. [5248] Method of trying titles to land, etc.

Nature and scope of remedy in general.—Trespass to try title is a rescission in itself. Rockhill Country Club Co. v. Nix (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 155.

Suits for land in ejectment are possessory in their nature, whether based on prior possession or title. Butler v. Borroum (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1115.

Equities and rights of vendor and purchaser.—Surviving wife and children, suing in trespass to try title after decedent's notes secured by a vendor's lien had been barred by limitations, might satisfy the debt or offer to pay it as a condition to cancellation of surviving wife's deed to defendant and so enable court to adjust their equities. Grundy v. Greene (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 964.

Foreclosure.—Foreclosure of a mortgage could not be awarded in an action to rescind a trade for deceit or in an action for trespass to try title. Campbell v. Jones (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 710.

Partition.—A partition suit in ordinary form may be converted into trespass to try title by defendant's alleging right of possession in himself to all the land. Green v. Churchwell (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 341.

Art. 7733. [5250] The petition shall state what.

See O'Connor v. Luna, 75 Tex. 592, 12 S. W. 1125; Windsor v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 780; notes to arts. 7741, 7742.

Petition.—Where plaintiff pleads her title specially, she abandons her plea in trespass to try title, but does not thereby subject the petition to general demurrer. Hensley v. Pena (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 427.

In widow's suit in form of trespass to try title, to remove cloud from title, and, in alternative, to enforce equitable vendor's lien, petition held sufficiently to allege fraud which induced her to deed away her interest, thus establishing her cause of action. Janes v. Stratton (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 386.

A complaint in trespass to try title alleging that plaintiff was in possession of the land, describing it, that defendant unlawfully entered and ejected the plaintiff therefrom, and unlawfully withholds possession thereof to plaintiff's damage, etc., held sufficient as against a general demurrer. Shumaker v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 461.

Petition in trespass to try title to deceased's homestead held to state cause of action. Clark v. Scott (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 728.

Where petition set up adverse possession under instrument not describing any locatable land and did not allege that plaintiff entered on any certain described land and held same adversely, petition is insufficient. School Trustees of Eastland County v. Hilliard (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 579.

A petition, alleging plaintiff's ownership in fee simple of land, that defendant was in possession thereof and forcibly detaining it from plaintiff, with facts showing plaintiff's right to possession, though not literally complying with the fiction prescribed by Rev. St. art. 7733, and not containing the indorsement required by article 7734, substantially complies with those statutes and shows the suit to be for recovery of land. Evans v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 491.

A petition in trespass to try title, alleging the recovery by defendant of a default judgment against plaintiffs in a suit to try title to land having the same lot and block numbers but in a different town, was not insufficient, where it was expressly alleged that the property involved was not the same as that involved in the prior suit. Hare v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 482.

In trespass to try title, under a claim that a foreclosure sale was invalid, because part of the lands were improperly described as being in a named county, it was necessary for plaintiffs to plead a willingness to make reimbursement. De Guerra v. De Gonzalez (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 896.

— Description of premises.—In suit for certain land described by metes and bounds and inclosed by defendant's fence, the burden was on defendant to show what portion he was entitled to, and, where he showed title only to part, the court erred in refusing judgment for plaintiff for the remainder because it was not described in the pleadings or evidence so that a description thereof could be made in the judgment. Esser v. Kneupper (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 508.

In suit in form of trespass to try title and to remove cloud, description of deed set forth in petition as basis of plaintiff's title, held so deficient and contradictory in its calls that no land was conveyed. School Trustees of Eastland County v. Hilliard (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 579.

In trespass to try title to land in Lacey league, defendants, claiming part of the land through adverse possession, did not limit their claim to the Moses Hill survey by generally describing the land as being in the latter survey in their pleadings, where they also described the land by metes and bounds. Tucker v. Angelina County Lumber Co. (Com. App.) 216 S. W. 149.

— Interest or ownership.—In trespass to try title, it is not necessary for plaintiff, who relies on equitable title, to plead specifically facts on which his title is based; customary allegations being sufficient to authorize proof of any fact tending to establish title. Blumenthal v. Nussbaum (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 275.

Fact that vendor pleaded unauthorized deed in rescission of contract would not prevent recovery upon good title pleaded by him and admitted by defendant. Rockhill Country Club Co. v. Nix (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 155.

Trespass to try title being rescission, notice of intention to rescind is unimportant so far as pleading title is concerned. Id.

— Adverse possession or claim.—Allegations that defendants unlawfully withheld possession from plaintiff, that the property was occupied and used by defendants, and that plaintiff feared defendants would injure the property, held sufficiently to charge an eviction subsequent to the date of his possession of the premises, notwithstanding that the date upon which plaintiff had possession was erroneously stated. Shumaker v. Byrd, 110 Tex. 146, 216 S. W. 862.

Petition, which sounded in trespass to try title, was not changed by allegations that defendant's title was void, and that record thereof cast a cloud on the title of plaintiffs. Canon v. Scott (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 429.

— Prayer for relief.—In trespass to try title, the court can reform an instrument relied upon to support title under a general prayer for equitable relief, where the proper facts are pleaded, although there is no prayer for reformation. Alfalfa Lumber Co. v. Mudgett (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 337.

In trespass to try title, it was error to grant to plaintiffs rent for which their petition does not pray, in view of subdivision 7 of this article. Spikes-Nash Co. v. Manning (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 374.

— Amendment.—A petition substantially complying with this article, though not literally complying therewith, is sufficient to support an amended petition containing all the allegations of fact required by that article. Evans v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 491.

— Issues, proof and variance.—Under petition alleging that plaintiffs were heirs of E. and owners of property, held that allegation that they were heirs was descriptive, and evidence was admissible that property was community property of E. and the widow, one of the plaintiffs. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 674.

Where paragraph of second amended petition alleged trespass to try title, to which defendants answered by plea of not guilty, formal alternative pleas permitted issue of equitable right in plaintiffs to correct partition between parties because original decree was founded on mutual mistake of matter. O'Connor v. Sanchez (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1005.

To rebut plaintiff's claim that decree in prior partition suit was based on belief parties owned all land, and that belief was mistake, it was permissible for defendants to plead and prove in rebuttal there was no mistake, and on such issue, made by equitable cause of action pleaded, parol testimony restricting statutory warranty arising from decree of partition was properly admitted. Id.

In trespass to try title to land in the "Isom Lee" survey, sheriff's deed to land in "J. Lee" survey was properly excluded, in the absence of evidence tending to show that the variance in the description was a clerical error. Hopkins v. King (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 360.

Much latitude is allowed in suits to recover the title and possession of realty when plaintiff's petition is in the ordinary form of trespass to try title and is only met by a plea of not guilty. Grundy v. Greene (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 964.

In trespass to try title met only by a plea of not guilty, either party may offer evidence by way of confession and avoidance, and, under certain conditions, may prove that a deed relied upon by his adversary is void because procured by fraud, or as the result of mistake. Id.

Plaintiff fails to establish title to the land sued for, there not only being a difference between the description in his deed and that in the petition, but the evidence showing the tracts to be distinct. Carr v. Bordner (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 282.

Under the provision requiring plaintiff suing for an undivided interest to state the amount thereof, he must establish title to a definite interest, though it may be less than that stated. Steddam v. Kirby Lumber Co., 110 Tex. 513, 221 S. W. 920, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 273.

In trespass to try title, petition pleading the five-year statute of limitations held sufficient to apprise defendants that plaintiffs claimed a privity of estate between themselves and their grantors, so that testimony of such grantors as to the possession of each under their deeds was admissible. Ammerman v. Bourland (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 804.

The presumption of the execution of a deed may be asserted under the general allegations of a trespass to try title petition. Brownfield v. Brabson (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 491.

A showing of title by limitations is not permissible under the general allegations of a petition of trespass to try title, but must be specially pleaded. Id.

Assignability of right of re-entry.—The question of assignability of the right of re-entry after condition subsequent broken should be governed by the same rule applied to the assignability of an interest in land in the adverse possession of another, and such right is assignable in view of subdivision 4 of this article, notwithstanding the act of 1840, which makes the common law of England the rule of decision in the state. Perry v. Smith (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 340.

Art. 7734. [5251] Indorsement on petition.

Effect of failure to indorse.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4787, where the petition alleged that plaintiff was the widow of the owner of the land, and that it was the homestead, and had been set apart to her by the probate court, and also stated the facts constituting the invasion of her rights, a judgment for plaintiff will not be reversed for want of the required indorsement. Bradley v. Deroche, 70 Tex. 465, 7 S. W. 779.

A petition, though not literally complying with the fiction prescribed by art. 7733, and not containing the indorsement required by this article, held to substantially comply with those statutes and show the suit to be for recovery of land. Evans v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 491.

Art. 7735. [5252] Warrantor, etc., may be made a party.

Cited, Monks v. McGrady, 71 Tex. 134, 8 S. W. 617; Sulphur Springs & Mt. P. Ry. Co. v. St. Louis, A. & T. Ry. Co. in Texas, 2 Civ. App. 650, 22 S. W. 107.

Right of defendant to ask judgment against warrantor.—Under Rev. St. 1879, arts. 1209, 4788, defendants' vendor being in court, and having made separate answer, defendants were properly allowed to plead his covenants of warranty to them, and to ask judgment against him thereon, in the event of a judgment against them for the land. Kirby v. Estill, 75 Tex. 484, 12 S. W. 807.

Art. 7736. [5253] Landlord may become defendant.

Conclusiveness of judgment.—See Stout v. Taul, 71 Tex. 438, 9 S. W. 329; notes to art. 7758.

Art. 7737. [5254] The possessor shall be defendant.

Cited, Rains v. Wheeler, 76 Tex. 390, 13 S. W. 324.

Possession of defendant in general.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4790, an action of trespass to try title may be maintained against a defendant who never has occupied the premises, if he claims title thereto; and it is not necessary to aver and prove that the owner ever was in actual possession, or that the defendant was in possession as a trespasser, unless some relief is sought based on these facts. Day Land & Cattle Co. v. State, 68 Tex. 526, 4 S. W. 865.

Conclusiveness of judgment.—See Stout v. Taul, 71 Tex. 438, 9 S. W. 329; notes to art. 7758.

Art. 7738. [5255] May join as defendants, whom.

Necessary parties.—In trespass to try title wherein defendant's title depends on a mortgage with an incorrect description carried through to the sheriff's deed, the mortgagor, or his legal representative, is a necessary party to a reformation of such mortgage. Alfalfa Lumber Co. v. Mudgett (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 337.

In trespass to try title by divorced first wife of decedent, claiming through her son, against second wife, where by judgment court did not attempt to reform deed to second wife, it was not necessary that grantors should have been made parties. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 202.

Where defendant and another agreed to purchase land, title being taken in defendant's name and it being understood that the third person should have no interest until he had paid for his share, held, that the heirs of such third person who died pending a suit were not necessary parties; it appearing no payments were made. Watkins v. Hines (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 663.

In trespass to try title against lessee, subsequent lessees of portions of the land were not necessary parties, and final judgment could be rendered without them as parties; no request having been made that they be made such, though they were possibly proper parties, and no judgment rendered would bind them. Patton v. Texas Pac. Coal & Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 857.

Art. 7739. [5256] May file plea of "not guilty" only.

Affirmative relief and cross actions.—In trespass to try title, defendant attorney held entitled to have reimbursement for moneys paid for land made condition precedent to enforcement of judgment by client, although not requested in answer, tender having been made by plaintiff's pleading. Home Inv. Co. v. Strange, 109 Tex. 342, 195 S. W. 849.

Where there was no pleading on the part of defendants of the payment of taxes and no prayer for set-off, the court did not err in refusing to set off against the damages awarded plaintiffs taxes paid by defendants, in view of art. 1907. Watts v. McCloud (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 381.

Where a defendant brings a cross-action against plaintiff and another defendant, he must affirmatively show title to land in the possession of second defendant. Hankins v. Dilley (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 549.

Cross-action by defendant seeking to recover amount paid down on contract for sale of land held, under the pleadings, not defeated by failure to offer to pay rent for land held by her, where it was alleged in supplemental answer that she actually did pay rent. Speer v. Hansen (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 324.

Defendants had the right by cross-action to ask that they be quieted in their title, and, if the evidence established more than the right to such judgment, there was no error in rendering it, even if it did have the effect of settling future possible claims. Campbell v. Jones (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 710.

Art. 7740. [5257] What proof may be made under such plea.

Defenses in general.—Defendant in trespass to try title, who follows a formal plea of not guilty by specially pleading his title, will not be permitted to show any title other than that specially pleaded. Hadnot v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 359.

One purchasing land pending suit in trespass to try title was not an "innocent purchaser." Roberts v. Dreyer (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1097.

Under allegation that defendant had perfected title by adverse possession, defendant could not show as against prima facie case that the property had been conveyed to him by parol by one who had been in adverse possession, where if the statute of limitations had operated at all in the grantor's favor it had operated long enough to perfect title in him, which could not be divested by parol, in view of art. 1103. Campbell v. Castle (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 484.

In trespass to try title, the defense that conveyance was invalid as to the grantor's wife, who did not join therein, because of homestead rights, must be pleaded. Guarantee Mercantile Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 543.

Except as to title by limitation where plaintiff in trespass to try title elects to plead his title specially, he is confined to the proof of the title so pleaded. Brownfield v. Brabson (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 491.

Title or right of possession of third person.—It is not a defense that the land has been sold under execution against one of the cotenants thereof, where defendant does not connect himself with the outstanding title thereby created. Holmes v. Tennant (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 798.

While it is not necessary for a defendant in trespass to try title to connect himself with an outstanding title, it is necessary that he establish the validity of such outstanding title. McBride v. Loomis (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 480.

Generally a defendant, relying on an outstanding title in some third person to defeat plaintiff's recovery, must show such outstanding title is a valid one, and the mere fact that some kind of an outstanding title appears is not a good defense. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Choate (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 118.

Execution of deed by plaintiff after institution of suit and prior to filing of cross-action by defendant did not create outstanding title upon which defendant could rely as a defense. Elder v. Craddock (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 314.

Stale demand and laches.—See Duren v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co., 86 Tex. 287, 24 S. W. 258; notes to art. 7742.

In trespass to try title founded upon legal and not equitable title, laches was no defense. Perez v. Maverick (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 199.

Legal title to land cannot be defeated by a plea of stale demand. Cagle v. Sabine Valley Timber & Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 942.

One seeking to repudiate a contract for fraud or mistake must act promptly on discovery thereof and where plaintiff admitted that in 1913, less than a year after her deed to defendant, she learned that he was claiming the land, a suit in trespass to try title not filed until latter part of February, 1916, justified a finding that the right of possession had been lost. Grundy v. Greene (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 964.

Proof under plea of not guilty or general issue.—The statute of frauds is available as a defense in trespass to try title though not pleaded, under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4793. Johnson v. Flint, 75 Tex. 379, 12 S. W. 1120.

Defendant, under plea of not guilty, could not collaterally attack execution sale to plaintiff, although plaintiff stilled competitive bidding at prior sale under same judgment. Ives v. Culton (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 619.

In trespass to try title by divorced first wife of decedent, claiming through her son against second wife, testimony that deed to second wife was intended for her separate use and benefit held admissible under general denial and plea of not guilty. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 202.

In city's action to compel removal of fence inclosing alley, which city claimed had been rededicated after 10 years' title against city had been perfected by limitation, defendant, under this article could show that there was no new dedication of the alley, under plea of not guilty. City of Pearsall v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 327.

In trespass to try title, defendant filing a plea of not guilty as well as one of limitations, may show that he was a tenant in common with his codefendants, and had an interest in the fee of less than a whole by virtue of a timber deed. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 281.

Defendant could, in view of this article, under plea of not guilty, invoke defense that plaintiffs claiming through subtenant were estopped to deny defendant's title. Rio Bravo Oil Co. v. Sanford (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 219.

In trespass to try title by a decedent's daughter against his widow, wherein the latter pleaded a general denial, evidence showing that the deed to decedent offered in evidence by daughter was other than what it purported to be, or was made to the husband in trust for the widow's benefit, would not be admissible. Green v. Churchwell (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 341.

The defense that after-acquired title of an oil and gas lessor passed to the lessee by estoppel is available by virtue of this article, under plea of not guilty. Texas Pacific Coal & Oil Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1021.

A legal or equitable estoppel may be proved under the general denial without being specially pleaded; consequently, where plaintiff relied upon title by limitation, it was competent for defendants to show that he in fact entered as their tenant and that his possession therefore was not adverse. Beason v. Williams (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 963.

Though the plea of not guilty authorizes any defense which defeats recovery, since the suit is possessory, it does not authorize an unenclosed equity in defendant to defeat the recovery of the land by the true owner having the paramount legal title under the common source, but such equity must be set up by adequate pleading. Pope v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 837.

Art. 7741. [5258] Answer taken as admitting possession.

See Von Rosenberg v. Cuellar, 80 Tex. 249, 16 S. W. 53.

Cited, Rains v. Wheeler, 76 Tex. 390, 13 S. W. 324.

In general.—Pleas of not guilty and of the statutes of limitations will be deemed equivalent to an ouster of plaintiff, under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4794. St. Louis, A. & T. Ry. Co. v. Prather, 75 Tex. 53, 12 S. W. 969.

Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4794 et seq., a plea of not guilty is not sufficient to charge defendant with use and occupation from the institution of suit, without proof of his occupancy. O'Connor v. Luna, 75 Tex. 592, 12 S. W. 1125.

In trespass to try title to recover land conveyed by a married woman alone, though part of community of herself and husband, held that under answer alleging that married woman's deed was duly executed, evidence that she had been abandoned by her husband and it was necessary to sell land was admissible. Hadnot v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 359.

Art. 7742. [5259] What is sufficient title, etc.

Title to support action.—In trespass to try title, plaintiff must recover, if at all, upon the strength of his own title, and not upon the infirmity of defendant's title. Bunn v. City of Laredo (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 675; Engelking v. Mertens (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 777; Harrison v. Abercrombie (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 708; Canon v. Scott (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 429; Dittman v. Cornelius (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 109; Moss v. Ingram (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 258.

Plaintiff, to recover, must establish his title. Hall v. Edwards (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 167, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 674; McCaslin v. Veasy (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1173.

A plea of stale demand is no defense to an action of trespass to try title against one claiming title under a land certificate duly located and surveyed under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4795. Duren v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co., 86 Tex. 287, 24 S. W. 258.

Refusal of defendant, who had purchased property for immoral purposes, to yield possession to plaintiff, who had purchased at trustee's sale under deed in trust executed as a part of the immoral transaction, did not render the illegal deed of trust an unexecuted contract so as to preclude court from giving plaintiff relief in trespass to try title, the contract having been executed by the trustee's sale giving plaintiff a complete title, with the right of possession as an incident thereto, without reference to the original illegal contract. Hall v. Edwards (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 167, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 194 S. W. 674.

One without title cannot maintain an action to establish title, and to recover possession for the use or benefit of another having title. Duncanson v. Howell (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 232, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Howell v. Duncanson, 195 S. W. 349.

Where petition was insufficient, in failing to show that plaintiff had either legal or equitable title, if it would sustain a suit for specific performance of contract to convey land, cause should not be dismissed, but should be retained as suit for specific performance. Ballard v. Ellerd (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 305.

Where plaintiff had before the trial sold the land to a third party and given him a deed thereto, and such grantee gave the plaintiff an express written authority to continue and prosecute the suit in her name for him, an assignment claiming that there was an outstanding title in the grantee was without merit. Paire v. Goff (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 813.

Where the evidence justified conclusion that defendant, if in actual possession, was a naked trespasser, he was in no position to take advantage of any irregularities in the execution sale upon which plaintiff's title rested. Hopkins v. King (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 360.

Under art. 7733, par. 4, plaintiff could not maintain trespass to try title, where he had conveyed by warranty deed, although his deed reserved vendor's lien, and provided for reconveyance by purchaser if plaintiff could not secure possession for the purchaser. Windsor v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 780.

The holder of a naked legal title may maintain trespass to try title. Masterson v. Pullen (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 537.

The ten-year statute would begin to run in favor of plaintiff when he took possession of lands within a valid survey claiming title by virtue of a deed, although no patent had been issued to lands within the survey, since those claiming adversely to plaintiff by virtue of the survey could, in view of this article, have maintained trespass to try title. Spearman v. Mims (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 573.

In trespass to try title, bond for title, not reciting any consideration, was not evidence of title, where the payment of valuable consideration was not waived. Robinson v. Randell (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 625.

While the plaintiffs must have title at the commencement of the suit, and one without title cannot sue for the use of another, a conveyance pendente lite by plaintiff does not affect the progress or determination of the suit, and grantee is bound by the judgment rendered, and a judgment for plaintiff inures to grantee's benefit, and such conveyance does not constitute an outstanding title. Heard v. Vineyard (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 489.

Even if a temporary administrator should not have been appointed under art. 3301, yet where the will had been duly probated, and there was an administration pending, and debts in a large sum had been filed and approved, the heirs and devisees could not bring trespass to try title to land belonging to the estate against others claiming it. Simmons v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 338.

Plaintiff in a boundary suit must recover on the strength of his own title. Brooks v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 632.

In trespass to try title, plaintiff must show title in himself from the sovereignty, title by limitation, or such prior possession as entitles him to recover. Schoonmaker v. Clardy (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1112.

In trespass to try title to land in possession of another, the plaintiff must connect himself with the sovereignty of the soil, or show a common source or agreement as to a common source. Barry v. Jones (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 1113.

A vendor's lien retained to secure notes given for the purchase price of land was a mere incident to the debt itself, and could be developed into title sufficient to sustain an action in trespass to try title only by foreclosure, sale, and purchase. Burns v. Dyer (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 457.

It was necessary for plaintiff to show she had either legal or equitable title to the land described in her petition; and, where her mother's deed to a defendant recited a cash consideration, neither the legal nor the superior title which arises from express reservation of lien to secure payment of the purchase money remained in the mother, or in plaintiff through her. Smith v. Price (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 836.

— Paper title.—Plaintiff, whose title depended upon deed from defendant city, could not maintain trespass to try title, deed upon its face showing superior title in defendant. Bunn v. City of Laredo (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 675.

— Equitable title.—The assertion of an equitable title arising out of a contract to convey and payment of the purchase money is sufficient to support trespass to try title. McBride v. Loomis (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 450.

In trespass to try title, one can recover if he holds the superior title, whether legal or equitable. Gulf Production Co. v. Palmer (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1017.

— Right of plaintiff to possession.—Prior possession of G., plaintiff's grantor, warrants judgment for plaintiff, defendant showing no superior title; W., under whom defendant claims, having entered as G.'s lessee, and there being no affirmative proof that G. did not have title. Crafts v. McAllen (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 729.

Where the grantor of plaintiff in trespass to try title had possession by a tenant prior to the entry of defendant, plaintiff's possession was sufficient to support a judgment as against defendant who was a mere trespasser. Mortimer v. Jackson (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 510.

Though plaintiff failed to deraign title from the state, yet where defendants' plea of title by limitations was not sustained, and plaintiff showed prior possession of the land in his grantors, judgment for plaintiff was proper. Perez v. Cook (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 668.

When land is inclosed by a substantial fence at a time defendant forcibly enters thereon, plaintiffs are entitled, in the absence of title in defendant, to recover on the strength of their prior possession, notwithstanding they have failed to show title because the land has not been inclosed for the statutory period. McLellan v. Brown (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 177.

Plaintiff is entitled to recover by proof of possession by predecessor in title, in absence of any proof on part of defendant. Robinson v. Randell (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 625.

Proof of prior possession is sufficient to sustain the action, when defendant is a mere naked trespasser. Allen v. Vineyard (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 266.

Suits for land, in ejectment or trespass to try title, are possessory in their nature, whether based on prior possession or title; and one having prior possession of land is not required to exhibit his full title to recover against a mere trespasser. Butler v. Borroum (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 1115.

The rule which permits plaintiff to recover against a mere trespasser, on proof of prior possession without further evidence of title, is a rule of evidence only, and not a rule of estoppel, and when defendant shows affirmatively that the plaintiff has no title, and thus rebuts the presumption arising from his prior possession, defendant, though a mere trespasser, will not be disturbed. Id.

Defendants lawfully in possession could defend against mortgagee out of possession suing in trespass to try title who had no right of possession though defendants were not able to show title in themselves. Langham v. Gray (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 741.

To support a recovery against a mere trespasser, the possession need not have been continuous up to and concurrent with the unlawful entry. Beason v. Williams (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 963.

— Title of cotenant or joint tenant.—Proof of title to an undivided interest in a survey will support a recovery of the entire survey against a stranger to the title in trespass to try title. McCarthy v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 307; Hennegan v. Nona Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 664.

Plaintiff, in addition to establishing title to an undivided interest, must prove that defendant has no title to any interest; it being only a trespasser that a tenant in common can evict and thus appropriate the exclusive possession. Steddum v. Kirby Lumber Co., 110 Tex. 513, 221 S. W. 920, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 273.

Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—In trespass to try title by heirs of remote owner, recitals in deed by legal representatives of such owner together with surrounding circumstances held sufficient to support court finding that owner before his death executed and delivered a contract to convey land. Hennegan v. Nona Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 664.

In wife's suit to quiet title against mother superior of convent, who claimed husband had willed property to convent, facts recited in bill of exception held insufficient to sustain plea in abatement alleging that by husband's will property was devised to convent or its academy. Mother Mary Angela v. Battle (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1030.

That plaintiff in suit against the occupants of a homestead who had given a deed absolute as security declined to state from whom he purchased, was a circumstance in determining the weight of his testimony that he did not know, prior to his purchase, of the claims of the occupants. Mason v. Olds (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1040.

Proof by plaintiff of actual possession, under claim of ownership, irrespective of continuity, was prima facie evidence of title, sufficient against defendant entering the land a few months before and taking possession thereof from a tenant without plaintiff's consent. Menefee v. Colley (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 182.

Where both parties claimed through common source, evidence held sufficient to show that vendee in defendant's chain of title was not innocent purchaser as to prior vendee in plaintiff's chain. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Lane (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 216.

Evidence held to sustain findings for plaintiff. Luttrell v. Click (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 255.

Evidence held to sustain judgment for defendant. McCardell v. Lea (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 562.

Evidence held sufficient to establish title in defendant and his successors in interest by deed, duly executed and delivered, which was lost before recording. Boedefeld v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1027.

Evidence which showed who were mortgagee's heirs and that mortgagee died leaving estate, but which failed to show that there was no administration pending or that administration was unnecessary, was insufficient to prove that conveyance by heirs to plaintiff passed any right. Engelking v. Mertens (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 777.

Under evidence, held, that plaintiff at most had only such right as might accrue to him by reason of having without request liquidated amount of mortgage debt against home of defendant which right was unavailing. Id.

In trespass to try title to and to recover possession of a league of land granted by the Mexican government to one John Moore, evidence held insufficient to warrant finding that the John Moore under whom plaintiffs claimed was the original grantee. Toole v. Moore (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 429.

Where plaintiff claimed under a deed conveying lot 17 in block 5, according to the map on file, without otherwise designating boundaries, plaintiff was entitled to recover, where the only official map in evidence showed land to be a part of lot 17; defendant having produced no testimony showing better title in herself or any one else. Johnson v. Clark (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 164.

Evidence held sufficient to show parol gift of part of property involved. Morrow v. Preston (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 270.

In trespass to try title by one of five heirs of patentee of land in L. county, to recover an undivided one-fifth interest in two tracts therein, evidence held to conclusively show the partition of ancestor's estate, and that plaintiff had received land in R. county equaling or exceeding his interest as an heir, so that trial court properly directed a verdict for defendants. Wright v. Robertson (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 255.

In suit in form of trespass to try title and to remove cloud, in which defendant set up cross-action for judgment over for title and receivership conceding that description of land in plea was sufficient to describe definite quantity of land though petition did not, held, that plea must fail for want of proof. School Trustees of Eastland County v. Hilliard (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 579.

In an action involving title to land, evidence held sufficient to warrant a finding that person through whom plaintiff was claiming had a grant from the states of Coahuila and Texas, so that it was immaterial that a testimonio in evidence was inadmissible to sustain such finding. Ross v. Sutter (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 273.

A statement of facts reciting the introduction of abstracts to establish plaintiff's title is insufficient to show plaintiff's title, where it did not state that three of the instruments referred to purported to convey the land involved nor that the title was recorded in the county where the land was situated, even if an abstract could be used as proof of title. Shumaker v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 817.

In a suit for trespass to try title and for specific performance of a contract for the sale of land, evidence held insufficient to show that a decree for specific performance would be inequitable. Simpson v. Green (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 375.

Effect of stipulations.—See notes to art. 2166.

Art. 7743. [5260] Either party may demand abstract of title.

Abstract as evidence of common source.—Abstracts furnished under this article, are admissible in trespass to try title to show common source. Mortimer v. Jackson (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 510.

Evidence under abstract.—Under arts. 7743-7745, when demand is seasonably made on plaintiffs to furnish abstract of title they rely upon, there must be strict compliance therewith, and written instrument, subsequently offered in evidence, not having been included in abstract, cannot be admitted. Davis v. Cisneros (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 298.

Art. 7745. [5262] Abstract shall state what.

Admissibility of evidence.—See Davis v. Cisneros (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 298; notes to art. 7743.

Art. 7746. [5263] Amended abstract.

Evidence admissible under abstract.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4799, defendants cannot give in evidence a power of attorney not contained in the abstract, which they had filed under notice from plaintiff. Smith v. Powell, 5 Civ. App. 373, 23 S. W. 1109.

Art. 7747. [5264] Surveyor appointed, etc.

Cited in dissenting opinion, San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Blair, 108 Tex. 434, 196 S. W. 1153.

In general.—Under Rev. St. 1879, arts. 4800 and 4801, where, on refusal of survey, plaintiff dismisses his action, but defendant proceeds for the affirmative relief asked for plaintiff may avail himself of the error in refusing the order of survey; the leading issue being the position of a boundary line, and there having been no sufficient testimony as to the facts which would have been shown by a survey. Giraud v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 967.

Continuance for survey.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4800, a judgment will not be reversed because of the refusal to continue the case in order to have a survey made, when there is nothing to show that the defeated party was injured, and it does not appear that the application for continuance was the first application made for that cause. Coleman v. Beardslee (Sup.) 16 S. W. 1011.

Art. 7748. [5265] Survey unnecessary, when:

See Giraud v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 967; notes to art. 7747.

Art. 7749. [5266] Common source of title, proof of.

Title from common source in general.—One claiming land under foreclosure of a trust deed, by showing execution of trust deed by one P., does not show common source of title with one claiming title by judgment against P. and another, constituting defense to conversion of wood. Chavez v. Schairer (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 892.

Where defendant's grantor, engaged to marry a woman who had two children by former marriage, bought land, the title to which was taken in her name, in trust for him, and after marriage he conveyed to plaintiff, and on his wife's death her mother assumed to convey to defendant, defendant had no title from the common source since the two children survived; but plaintiff had equitable title, at least, from the common source, entitling her to recover. Mortimer v. Jackson (Com. App.) 206 S. W. 510.

Where one held land for years under a void administrator's deed, a quitclaim deed from the heirs of one who had owned the property at a time prior to the death of the administrator's deceased did not constitute the acquisition of a new and independent title, but merely supplemented the title theretofore held and claimed. McBride v. Loomis (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 480.

Where defendant, relying on a deed, introduced the same in evidence, the recitals in the deed were available to the plaintiff in the establishment of his title, although defendant was also relying on a quitclaim deed from heirs of a former owner. Id.

Plaintiff, having shown a complete chain of title from the common source to herself, is entitled to recover the land unless defendant as he claims was an innocent purchaser for value. Johns v. Wear (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1008.

Under this article, the burden is on plaintiff to deraign his title from the sovereignty of the soil unless there is a common source of title shown. Pope v. Witherspoon (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 837.

Agreement as to common source.—Where the parties agreed as to a common source, it was incumbent upon plaintiff to show superior title from such source. Laidacker v. Palmer (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 739.

Effect of common source or claim thereunder in general.—Evidence that defendant claims under a common grantor is prima facie proof that such grantor had the title at the time he undertook to convey the right which the defendant claims, and this necessarily involves the assumption that he had acquired the title of all previous owners. McBride v. Loomis (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 480.

Though defendants' grantor, who was the common source of title, may have had an equity to reform a conveyance to plaintiff's predecessor, so as to make the description in the deed coincide with a survey made at the time of the conveyance, yet defendants, not having shown themselves connected with the equity, cannot, by reason of such outstanding equity, defeat plaintiff's action to recover land included within the description. Swann v. Mills (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 850.

Proof of common source.—A void tax deed to one under whom defendants claim, reciting that the land was sold as the property of one under whom plaintiffs claim, is admissible, in connection with subsequent deeds reciting the tax sale and showing a chain of title to defendants, to show that the parties claim under a common source; Rev. St. 1879, art. 4802. Garner v. Lasker, 71 Tex. 431, 9 S. W. 332.

Rev. St. 1879, art. 4802, does not change the effect of original deeds when offered as evidence of common title. Bosse v. Cadwallader (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 260.

Facts held not to warrant submission of issue whether deed from common source to a son whose heirs are plaintiffs was a bona fide sale and purchase or a conveyance in trust to subserve the convenience of the parties. Watts v. McCloud (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 381.

Under this article, plaintiffs, having shown an undivided interest in the land, however small, were entitled to recover all of the land as against the defendant relying on evidence of deeds merely showing common source. Le Blanc v. Jackson (Com. App.) 210 S. W. 687.

Evidence held not to show that plaintiff had discharged the burden of showing title from the agreed common source superior to that of defendants. Laidacker v. Palmer (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 739.

In suit to quiet title, where plaintiffs established title by adverse possession, a quit-claim deed given by one of the defendants to another conveying her interest as heir of the common source of title is irrelevant. Krause v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 310.

Under this article, in trespass to try title by heirs of a deceased wife against the purchaser from the surviving husband, who sold to pay community debts, certified copy of deed from the surviving husband to defendant purchaser held properly admitted in evidence, though there was no affidavit made to show loss of or inability to produce the original. Stone v. Light (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 1108.

Any error in admitting such original certified copy held harmless to plaintiff heirs; the surviving husband having testified prior to the offer in evidence that he had so deeded the land to the purchaser. Id.

Deeds introduced by plaintiff to show the title of defendant which contained descriptions varying from those in plaintiff's chain of title held to show that the land referred to was the same land, and to establish a common source of title. Pope v. Witherpoon (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 837.

Art. 7752. [5269] When defendant claims part only.

Cited, Keyser v. Meusback, 77 Tex. 64, 13 S. W. 967.

Disclaimer in general.—Under this article, a plea of not guilty and a disclaimer of all of the land sued for are so inconsistent that the plea of not guilty will be disregarded. Kenedy Pasture Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 287.

Where defendant pleaded not guilty, a cross-action by him would not bring him within this article; allegations of the cross-petition not being a part of his answer proper. Hankins v. Dilley (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 549.

That suit by two plaintiffs for different tracts was a friendly one is no reason why effect should not be given by way of estoppel to disclaimer therein by one plaintiff of the tract claimed by the other. Smith v. Wood (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 583.

Defendant's plea setting up the ten-year statute of limitations, showing that while defendant disclaimed title to any of the lands sued for of which he was not in possession he asserted he was in possession of all of it, held not insufficient as containing a disclaimer as to part of the land sued for and not sufficiently describing the part to which the disclaimer did not apply. Id.

Judgment for part disclaimed.—In the absence of a reason why in equity it should not have such effect, an unqualified disclaimer by defendant of a part of the land entitles plaintiff to judgment for such part, and judgment operates as an estoppel against defendant to assert any right he may have had to such part, a rule which has application where one of two plaintiffs suing for a separate and described part of a tract disclaims any right to the part the other sues for, and judgment is rendered for each for the part for which he sues. Smith v. Wood (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 583.

Art. 7753. [5270] When plaintiff proves part.

Cited, Keyser v. Meusback, 77 Tex. 64, 13 S. W. 967.

Recovery by plaintiff.—Where in trespass to try title to recover a 160-acre tract claimed by adverse possession of a 5½-acre tract included therein, plaintiff showed adverse possession to the smaller tract alone, but the pleadings or evidence did not show its location or give a description thereof there is no basis for a judgment for the smaller tract. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Holland (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 546, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 668.

Art. 7755. [5272] The judgment, etc.

See O'Connor v. Luna, 75 Tex. 592, 12 S. W. 1125.

Judgment in general.—In trespass to try title, defendant attorney held entitled to have reimbursement for moneys paid for land made condition precedent to enforcement of judgment by client, as he who seeks equity must do equity. Home Inv. Co. v. Strange, 109 Tex. 342, 195 S. W. 849.

Where petition was insufficient, in failing to show that plaintiff had either legal or equitable title, if it would sustain a suit for specific performance of contract to convey land, cause should not be dismissed, but should be retained as suit for specific performance. Eallard v. Ellerd (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 305.

In trespass to try title, the court can reform an instrument relied upon to support title under a general prayer for equitable relief, where the proper facts are pleaded, although there is no prayer for reformation. Alfalfa Lumber Co. v. Mudgett (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 337.

Where defendant's title is dependent upon the correction of a mistake, an instrument, upon proper pleading, can be reformed, if the proper parties are before the court. Id.

Where defendant counterclaimed, and plaintiff entered general denial, and defendant testified to an administrator's sale to him of the land involved, which was sufficiently shown, although he thereby obtained an excess over the amount actually sold, plaintiff could not have the equitable relief of having the sale set aside. McCardell v. Lea (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 562.

Where administrator's sale report showed sale of various acreages "east of Trinity river, in Liberty county," and of 684 $\frac{1}{2}$  acres "in Liberty county," to defendant, there was no merit in contention that judgment should have allowed defendant only land east of the river, or land shown on the administrator's map of the date of the sale as unsold, though an excess unsold, including the land claimed, was afterwards found. Id.

Judgment in boundary suit, held insufficient to settle rights of parties. Main v. Cartwright (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 847.

Claimant by adverse possession may claim a specific acreage of a larger tract and in the alternative an undivided interest in an undescribed acreage of like amount, which interest may be segregated by duly appointed commissioners. Lockin v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 168.

In trespass to try title, met only by a plea of not guilty, affirmative relief to plaintiff, because the deed relied upon by his adversary was void for fraud or mistake, will be granted in response to appropriate pleadings bringing himself within the conditions that entitle him to a rescission. Grundy v. Greene (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 964.

Purchaser who acquired from heirs of third person an outstanding title, and sued seller in trespass to try title but lost suit, held not entitled to specific performance of contract of sale; bringing of action having been repudiation of contract. Whittenburg v. Groves (Com. App.) 208 S. W. 901.

Judgment that plaintiff "have and recover" certain land, and that she "have her writ of possession," construed a judgment for both title and possession and not merely for possession. Pearson v. Lloyd (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 759.

Where record title was in defendant and plaintiff failed to sustain her claim to title by limitations, it was proper for the trial court to decree title to be in defendant who filed a cross-action. Conn v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 137.

Though plaintiff's claim of ownership of the fee was decided against him, a judgment, providing merely that he take nothing by the suit, was improper, where he had a life estate in the property; and the judgment should recognize such life estate. Hunting v. Jones (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 265, modifying judgment 215 S. W. 959 which reversed (Civ. App.) 183 S. W. 858.

Where plaintiffs showed no title, legal or equitable, as to the interest of defendant in the land involved, a common tract set apart by shareholders in a colony, including plaintiffs and defendant the full extent of plaintiffs' right was to have their interests adjudicated, and to be admitted into joint possession with defendant. Duncanson v. Howell (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 232, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Howell v. Duncanson, 195 S. W. 349.

Where heir in possession by consent of coheirs conveyed the whole of the land, the coheirs, in trespass to try title against the heirs' remote grantee were not entitled to a judgment for all of the land, the grantee being entitled to the interest therein of the heir who conveyed the land. Guarantee Mercantile Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 543.

In trespass to try title by owner of land against defendant who had purchased it from third person who had not been authorized by the owner to sell the land, the defendant was not entitled to recover from the owner the purchase price paid to such third person. Mason v. Hood (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 468.

Partition.—Partition of land may be prayed for in a suit of trespass to try title where it is alleged plaintiff owns an undivided interest in the land, and that defendant has ejected him and denied his right of possession, but is merely incidental to the main action, which is to try title. Green v. Churchwell (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 341.

Fixing disputed line.—Where the question was one of disputed boundary, and the location of a fence was established by the evidence, judgment fixing the boundary at a certain number of varas south of the fence is not open to attack on the ground that it did not define the boundary line by objects on the ground. Watkins v. Hines (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 663.

Art. 7756. [5273] Damages, etc., when recovered.

See Campbell v. Jones (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 710.

Damages.—The general law of limitations does not apply to claim for damages in trespass to try title, but such claim is governed by Rev. St. 1879, arts. 4809, 4814, 4815, relating to such claims. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Poindexter, 70 Tex. 98, 7 S. W. 316.

Use and occupation.—Where defendant purchased with notice that a deed to his grantor was a mortgage, the true owner, in suit to try title, could recover the rental value of the land during the period in which defendant occupied it, less payments made by defendant to the mortgagee. Hays v. Morris (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 672.

One who has never been in possession of property, the subject of suit for trespass to try title, and has never collected or received any of the rents, is not personally liable to plaintiff for rent. Stiles v. Hawkins (Com. App.) 207 S. W. 89.

That plaintiff's land was inclosed with that of defendants' merely secured the right to each party to pasture cattle upon the land in proportion to the number of acres in the inclosure owned by him, but defendants could not lease plaintiff's land to others for grazing and appropriate the rent money. Strait Bros. v. Chaney (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 219.

Defendants' leasing of all such land for pasture without plaintiff's knowledge was an exclusive and special use of the land, and plaintiff can recover the rent money collected for use of his land. Id.

A petition, alleging that defendants, without plaintiff's knowledge or consent, entered upon such land, used and occupied it, and shared profits arising therefrom, and prevented plaintiff from renting the same, held not demurrable for failing to state that defendants were in exclusive possession thereof. Id.

Where a party acquires deeds to land and takes possession thereof, necessitating a suit to recover the land, the successful plaintiff is entitled to rentals though defendant has not collected any rent. Sherwood v. Sherwood (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 555.

Art. 7758. [5275] Final judgment conclusive.

See Cassidy v. Kluge, 73 Tex. 154, 12 S. W. 13.

Res judicata.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4811, a judgment against a tenant in possession is not conclusive on the landlord, notwithstanding arts. 4789–4791. Stout v. Taul, 71 Tex. 438, 9 S. W. 329.

Judgment against vendor in suit in which recovery was sought under his superior title, held not to bar action to recover on the notes and foreclose his lien. Tullos v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1073.

Where there was no evidence that issues and parties in former suit and present suit were the same, decree in former was not admissible to prove res judicata, nor outstanding title. Zarate v. Unknown Heirs of Zarate (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 697.

Decree in former action, introduced by defendants, without any pleading or testimony to show what land was involved, or what issues were disposed of, held not to identify defendants therein with defendants mentioned in amended petition in present suit. Id.

A judgment in favor of plaintiff for the land, but not allowing rentals as prayed, does not bar an action for rentals accruing subsequent to the former judgment and secured by a supersedeas bond given under art. 2102, on appeal in the former cause. Roberson v. Tom (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 723.

Where a husband was in adverse possession of land, but became insane and the wife continued to live upon the land, the possession of the wife could not be distinct from that of the husband, and a judgment against the husband was binding on the wife, notwithstanding art. 3593. Fidelity Lumber Co. v. Howell (Civ. App.) 206 S. W. 947.

A judgment in a former case between other parties held a mere recital, and not an adjudication of title to the land in question. Laidacker v. Palmer (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 739.

Legal effect of judgment, that plaintiffs take nothing, is to divest the plaintiffs of whatever title they have at the time. Woodley v. Becknell (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 932.

Such judgment is, under this article, binding on all who thereafter derain title through plaintiffs. Id.

Where the district court rendered judgment divesting an infant of title to land which had been part of the community estate of her mother and deceased father, and which had been conveyed by the mother after remarriage, held that though the mother had no authority to convey the community property, and though as a general rule a minor's interest in land can be sold only under order of court of probate, the presumption in favor of the validity of the judgment was not overthrown. Van Ness v. Crow (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 572.

Where plaintiffs had recovered a judgment as against the unknown heirs of A, if the person of that name under whom they claimed and the person having the same name under whom defendants claimed was not the same person, they did not, by their judgment, acquire the title of the heirs of the person under whom defendants claimed. McCarthy v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 307.

Such equities as defendant in trespass to try title may have should be asserted in such action and not by suit to restrain execution of a writ of possession issued on the judgment. Lewright v. Reese (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 270.

Under this article, the judgment against plaintiffs is a bar to any suit in the future by them against defendant for the same land, and, as between the parties, has all the force and effect of a judgment specifically vesting title in defendant. Bomar v. Runge (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 287.

Under this article, a judgment against a lessee canceling a mineral lease is not conclusive against an assignee of the lease who procured his assignment before the suit was begun, so that the lis pendens notice filed therein did not affect him. Burt v. Deorsam (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 354.

Purchasers of land pendente lite are not necessary parties, a final judgment being made conclusive upon them by this article. Lovenskiold v. Casas (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 888.

Defendants not parties in a former action in trespass to try title to recover a small strip of land, and to establish a boundary line, cannot urge a judgment in favor of the defendant in the former case as an estoppel against plaintiff, under this article. Whiteman v. Whiteman (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 888.

CLAIM FOR IMPROVEMENTS

Art. 7760. Suggestion of improvements in good faith. 7761. Issue as to. 7762. Rents and profits to be offset against.	Art. 7763. Judgment for excess, etc. 7764. Writ of possession not to issue, unless, etc. 7765. On failure of plaintiff, defendant may pay, etc., and keep premises.
--	--

Article 7760. [5277] Suggestion of improvements in good faith.

See Buchanan v. Williams (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 59.

Rights of parties as to improvements in general.—If improvements did not increase value of property, there can be no recovery for improvements. Allen v. Draper (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 792.

The measure of compensation for improvements is the enhancement of the value of the land and not the cost of the improvements, since there must be a benefit to the owner in enhanced value to estop him from denying the right to compensation. Sheffield v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 614.

In trespass to try title, the defendant may plead not guilty, and in addition may appeal to the equitable powers of the court for reimbursement for improvements made, taxes paid, and purchase money, in the event that judgment should be rendered against him as to the title to the property. Mason v. Hood (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 468.

Possession and good faith as grounds for compensation.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4813, one who has fenced and cultivated school lands for more than one year, but has not actually resided thereon, is not entitled to compensation for improvements from a purchaser of such lands. Baker v. Millman, 77 Tex. 46, 13 S. W. 618.

Proceedings for recovery of compensation.—Defendant will not be allowed to recover value of improvements, where he did not plead any valuable and permanent improvements. Morrow v. Preston (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 270.

Art. 7761. [5278] Issue as to.

See Buchanan v. Williams (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 59.

Application of statute.—This article does not apply to a suit for cancellation of a deed, but in the latter the plaintiff will be required to do equity by paying for improvements made and taxes paid by the grantee in good faith. Dean v. Dean (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 505.

Limitations.—See Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Poindexter, 70 Tex. 93, 7 S. W. 316; notes to art. 7756.

Art. 7762. [5279] Rents and profits to be offset against.

See Ammons v. Dwyer, 78 Tex. 639, 15 S. W. 1049.

Set-off against value of use and occupation and damages.—There should be no allowance for value of improvements where they are completely offset by rents. Allen v. Draper (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 792.

Limitations.—See Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Poindexter, 70 Tex. 93, 7 S. W. 316; notes to art. 7756.

Art. 7763. [5280] Judgment for excess, etc.

Necessity of finding of value.—Finding of value of improvements placed by defendant on strip in controversy was essential for rendition of final judgment for value of improvements under arts. 7763-7768. Decker v. Rucker (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1001.

Art. 7764. [5281] Writ of possession not to issue, unless, etc.

See Dignowity v. Fly, 110 Tex. 613, 210 S. W. 505.

Time for payment.—Although appeal was taken by giving cost bond only, it continued case until final decision by Supreme Court, so that defendant had 18 months provided by judgment of lower court, and by arts. 7764, 7765, to pay for land after decision by Supreme Court. Fain v. McCain (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 389.

Art. 7765. [5282] On failure of plaintiff, defendant may pay, etc., and keep premises.

See Dignowity v. Fly, 110 Tex. 613, 210 S. W. 505.

Time for payment.—See Fain v. McCain (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 389; notes to art. 7764.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Conditions precedent to action or recovery in general.—Although the equitable title to land was in plaintiffs, they could not assert title nor defend under it without first reforming a judgment which, through mistake in description of land, placed title in others, reflect the actual terms of the agreement which was embodied in a judgment to which plaintiffs were parties. Gulf Production Co. v. Palmer (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1017.

Reimbursement of taxes paid.—In trespass to try title, defended on the ground of tax title, evidence in the absence of objection thereto held sufficient to show that taxes paid by defendants for certain years constituted a valid lien against the land, for which defendants should recover. Teat v. Perry (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 650.

In trespass to try title to land claimed under tax sale, held that equity and conscience required that defendants be given back what they were properly shown to have paid out for such taxes as constituted a lien upon the property. Id.

In trespass to try title against defendant who had purchased from third person who had had no authority to sell, the defendant could not recover taxes paid for certain year, where the owner had also paid the taxes for such year. Mason v. Hood (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 468.

Persons entitled to remedy.—Assignee of a fund may intervene in garnishment proceedings to protect its interest in garnished fund. Zimmerman Land & Irrigation Co. v. Rooney Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 201.

If, in a garnishment by judgment creditor, the intervening bank owned a beneficial interest in the money before the garnishment, it could recover. Fannin County Nat. Bank v. Gross (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 187.

A third person, as a partnership composed of the judgment debtor and others, may intervene in garnishment proceedings, without being impleaded by garnishee, and set up and have adjudicated a claim to the fund. Brown v. Cassidy-Southwestern Commission Co. (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 833.

Affidavit or pleading by claimant.—In suit for debt and to foreclose chattel mortgage wherein plaintiff levied writ of sequestration on the property, claimant thereof could not intervene without filing sworn plea, under this article, setting up his ownership of the property, and also filing claimant's bond. Wilkie v. Wilkie (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 418.

In such suit, intervening claimant's plea based on conversion by plaintiffs, which did not show right to intervene by setting up interest in debt sought to be collected, should have been stricken out, and judgment for the intervener thereon was improper. Id.

Art. 7770. [5287] Bond.

See Howard v. Parks, 1 Tex. Civ. App. 603, 21 S. W. 269; Wilkie v. Wilkie (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 418.

In general.—Manner of levy on personal property under execution is waived by a claimant, who executes a claimant's bond and takes possession. Watson v. Schultz (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 958.

A claimant of property levied on under execution, who executes a bond and takes possession, cannot complain that levy should have been made by giving notice, and not by actual seizure. Id.

Assessment of value as determining jurisdiction.—See Cleveland v. Tufts, 69 Tex. 580, 7 S. W. 72; notes to art. 7778.

Art. 7771. [5288] Condition of bond.

See Wilkie v. Wilkie (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 418.

Art. 7772. [5289] Property to be delivered to claimant.

See Willis v. Thompson, 85 Tex. 301, 20 S. W. 155.

Art. 7774. [5291] Form of bond.

The sureties on the claimant's bond are liable for costs, the form of bond prescribed by Rev. St. 1879, art. 4827, binding the sureties to pay all damages and costs awarded against the claimant. Ft. Worth Pub. Co. v. Hitson, 80 Tex. 216, 14 S. W. 843.

Art. 7776. [5293] Return of oath, bond and copy of writ when levy made in county other than that where writ issued

See Mudge v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 819.

Transfer of jurisdiction by claim of ownership.—The justice or court to which a bond given by the claimant of property levied on under execution is made returnable, under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4829, has jurisdiction of an action thereon, though claimant is a resident of another county. Denson v. Ham (App.) 16 S. W. 182.

Art. 7778. [5295] Jurisdiction.

See Mudge v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 819.

Determination of value.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4823, the value of the property in controversy is, in the absence of fraud, to be determined by the assessment made by the officer serving the writ, and not by the subsequently proved value of the property. Cleveland v. Tufts, 69 Tex. 580, 7 S. W. 72.

County court.—Where plaintiff, in action to recover automobile, sued out a writ of sequestration, and defendant replevied the automobile, which the sheriff assessed at the value of $600, the county court was not without jurisdiction under Const. art. 5, § 8, for that section applies only to suits for a trial of the right of personal property, under arts. 7769, 7778, and the proceeding is to be transferred to the district court only when the claim is by a third person. Automobile Underwriters of America v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 367.

Art. 7780. [5297] Issue to be made up, etc.

See State v. Bender, 68 Tex. 676, 5 S. W. 674; Scarborough v. Alcorn, 74 Tex. 358, 12 S. W. 72.

Art. 7781. [5298] Requisites of issue.

Sufficiency of tender of issue.—Plaintiff warehouse company, tendering issue in proceedings for trial of right of property to sequestered cotton, that it was stored with it, need not name the owners who stored it, it stating it could not, and this appearing on trial. King-Collie Co. v. Wichita Falls Warehouse Co. (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 748

Art. 7782. [5299] Judgment by default against defendant, when.

In general.—As Rev. St. 1879, art. 4835, authorizes judgment by default against a claimant if he does not appear and join issue "within the time prescribed for pleading," which is fixed not later than the fifth day of the term by art. 1263, it is error to render judgment by default against the claimant on the second day of the term, though that is designated as the appearance day by Laws 1891, p. 94, c. 76. Martin v. Hartnett (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 963.

Where claimant files his bond and oath, enters his appearance and requests order directing issues, no judgment can be rendered by default against him or his surety until he refuses to join issues under direction of court. Warren v. Atlas Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 320.

Art. 7784. [5301] Proceedings, how conducted.

See Boaz v. Schneider, 69 Tex. 128, 6 S. W. 402.

Art. 7785. [5302] Burden of proof on plaintiff, when.

See Howard v. Parks, 1 Civ. App. 603, 21 S. W. 269.

Property taken under execution.—Mere fact that cotton levied on under execution was at M.'s gin did not necessarily raise inference that it was in M.'s possession, and burden was on judgment creditor to remove uncertainty as to who was in possession thereof in order to cast burden upon claimant to prove his ownership, under arts. 7785, 7786. Burlington Buggy Co. v. Usrey (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 684.

Art. 7786. [5303] Burden of proof on defendant, when.

See Le Page v. Slade, 79 Tex. 473, 15 S. W. 496; Willis v. Thompson, 85 Tex. 301, 20 S. W. 155; Burlington Buggy Co. v. Usrey (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 684; notes to art. 7785.

In general.—Under this article, the fact that the judgment creditor was permitted to open and close did not shift the burden of proof, or entitle the court to place the burden on such creditor. Horn v. Price (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 590.

Under this article the burden of proof was on the claimant of property levied on under writ of sequestration. Roberts Seed Co. v. Mt. Pleasant Oil Mill (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 939.

Under this article, a claimant had the burden of showing that he was in possession of property attached, or, failing in that, of showing that he was justly entitled to possession. Briggs v. Briggs (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 511.

Art. 7787. [5304] Damages.

See Dupree v. Woodruff (Sup.) 19 S. W. 469; notes to art. 7788; Willis v. Thompson, 85 Tex. 301, 20 S. W. 155.

Amount.—Where judgment is rendered in favor of an attaching creditor, as against a claimant of the attached property, it should not be for the value of the property, but for the amount of the creditor's claim, with 10 per cent. damages thereon, as allowed by Rev. St. 1879, arts. 4840, 4841. Wetzel v. Simon (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 792.

Art. 7788. [5305] Where value of property exceeds judgment.

See Wills Point Bank v. Bates, 76 Tex. 329, 13 S. W. 309; notes to art. 7791; Wetzel v. Simon (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 792; notes to art. 7787

Cited, Wilber v. Kray, 73 S. W. 533, 11 S. W. 540.

Basis for assessing damages.—Under arts. 7787, 7788, that where attaching creditors recovered in the trial of right of property with a third party, and the value of the property was greater than the amount of plaintiffs' claim against defendants, plaintiffs were entitled to recover 10 per cent. damages on the amount of their claim, as evidenced by the judgment rendered. Harris v. Schuttler (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 989.

Excessive damages.—Under Rev. St. 1879, arts. 4840, 4841, where the value of the property attached was $50, and the amount claimed by the writ was $24.55; damages against claimant for $5 was excessive. Dupree v. Woodruff (Sup.) 19 S. W. 469.

Art. 7790. [5307] Judgment upon failure to establish title, etc.

See Wills Point Bank v. Bates, 76 Tex. 329, 13 S. W. 309; notes to art. 7791.

Cited, Wilber v. Kray, 73 Tex. 533, 11 S. W. 540.

Right to judgment.—Where the claimant of cotton seed levied on under writ of sequestration showed merely that the relation of debtor and creditor existed between it and defendants in the suit, having failed to establish ownership of the seed, claimant was not entitled, under this article, to the judgment. Roberts Seed Co. v. Mt. Pleasant Oil Mill (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 939.

Form of judgment.—Under Act April 2, 1887, amending Rev. St. 1879, art. 4843, where there is only one plaintiff, the judgment should fix the amount of his claim, as well as the value of the property. Martin v. Hartnett, 86 Tex. 517, 25 S. W. 1115, affirming (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 963.

Amount of judgment.—On failure of claimant of attached property to sustain his claim, judgment may be rendered for plaintiff in attachment for amount of his debt, instead of for value of property, where debt is less than such value. Warren v. Atlas Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 320.

Burden of proof.—See Roberts Seed Co. v. Mt. Pleasant Oil Mill (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 939; notes to art. 7786.

Art. 7791. [5308] Execution shall issue.

Relief against execution.—Under Rev. St. 1879, arts. 4841, 4843, as amended by Laws of 1887, where the plaintiff in the writ issues execution for the full amount of his judgment against the claimant, instead of the amount of his claim with interest and damages, the latter was entitled to relief, and that, the illegal proceedings being subsequent to judgment, injunction was the proper remedy. Wills Point Bank v. Bates, 76 Tex. 329, 13 S. W. 309.

Art. 7793. [5310] Return of property by claimant within ten days.

In general.—Evidence of the value of the use of the property from the time it was received by claimant under his bond is properly admitted, as the judgment should show such value to enable claimant to choose between the provisions of Rev. St. 1879, art. 4845, allowing him to return the property, and pay for the use thereof, or to pay for the property, with interest on its value. Keating v. Julian (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 607.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—In proceedings to determine right to attached property, evidence held to sustain verdict that bill of sale to claimant, who held a mortgage on the property was not intended to convey the property, and that claimant was not the owner. Clopton v. Jolley & Terry (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 799.

Evidence held to show that at time of and prior to levy of attachment, claimant, who replevined the property, was in actual possession and control by the attachment defendant as his agent. Id.

Article 7796. "Trusts" defined.

See Fred Miller Brewing Co. v. Coonrod (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1099; W. T. Rawleigh Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 799.

Combinations prohibited.—Where one man who was either owner or mortgagee in possession of a power plant procured shutting down of competing plant to eliminate its competition, the anti-trust laws were not violated, since neither capital, skill, nor acts were combined to accomplish purpose. Bomar v. Smith (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 964.

Subdivisions 5, 6, relating to combinations to stifle competition, held not to apply to an agreement between fire insurance companies to refrain from writing insurance for an individual. Palatine Ins. Co. v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1014.

If five insurance companies combine in refusing to grant insurance, and also in persuading other companies to refuse insurance by unlawful means, the combination is unlawful. Id.

Where a labor union combines to boycott and picket an employer to coerce him into unionizing his business, such combination is a trust within this article, and is illegal under article 7799. Webb v. Cooks', Waiters' and Waitresses' Union, No. 748 (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 465.

The "combination of capital, skill or acts by two or more persons," etc., contemplated by arts. 7796-7798, must be in relation to articles or commodities of merchandise, produce, or commerce, or where they are in any manner affected or controlled. Dannel v. Sherman Transfer Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 297.

The governing body of a hospital may refuse to permit physicians professing a certain system of medicine to practice in the hospital, and adopt such regulations as are proper or deemed by it necessary or expedient to improve the hospital, and require of those using its equipment that they possess specific medical learning and equipment in order to receive membership on the medical staff, and to accomplish this may employ a committee of physicians to standardize the hospital, if done in good faith with no evil intent to injure or oppress. Harris v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1068.

Members of a medical association, an organization which no physician professing an exclusive system of medicine could join, could legally agree among themselves not to assist an osteopath in surgery, if they did so in good faith and with no intent to injure the osteopath. Id.

For persons interested in competing banks to advise and induce officers, directors, and stockholders in one of them to sell their stock to men who were seeking to organize a new bank held not an unlawful combination. Edwards v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 278.

A railroad company's granting the exclusive privilege to one company to solicit transfer of passengers and baggage on its own grounds and exclusion of others held not in contravention of the rule against monopolies or in violation of anti-trust statutes. Clisbee v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 235.

The acts of a labor union, and its members, in calling a strike in the restaurant of proprietors who refused to renew their contract with the union, and in picketing and attempting to dissuade customers from entering the place, were violative of arts. 7796-7799. Cooks', Waiters' and Waitresses' Local Union v. Papageorge (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1086.

The general language of this article, was intended only as an expression of the purpose of the law, and is limited by the specific definitions of the prohibited acts in the subsequent portions of the section, so that a contract which is not within the specific language is not void, though the general language was broad enough to include it. Schow Bros. v. Adva-Talks Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 883.

Contract not to engage in business.—Contract whereby partner retiring in favor of another, agreed not to engage in business in town in competition with his old and the new partner, held not void at common law as against public policy, nor as establishing trust, monopoly, or conspiracy in restraint of trade as defined and denounced by arts. 7796-7798, nor evidencing combination of capital, skill, or acts to accomplish things forbidden. Schlag v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 369.

Arts. 7796-7798, do not prohibit sale of business and agreement to abstain from engaging in that business for certain period of time, and obligating the seller to use his influence in aiding the purchaser. Dannel v. Sherman Transfer Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 297.

A contract whereby one of two persons engaged in the funeral business sells to the other an auto hearse, and agrees not to buy another hearse, and to use only the hearse sold for a period of five years at a reasonable rental, did not violate arts. 7796-7798, amounting to no more than sale of business with agreement not to engage in such business. Id.

Interstate commerce.—An interstate contract for the sale of motorcars to a local dealer in Texas held rendered invalid by a provision imposing restrictions on resale of the cars by the purchaser in violation of the Anti-Trust Law of Texas, and to invalidate notes given for the purchase price of such cars. Kissel Motor Car Co. v. Walker (C. C. A.) 270 Fed. 492.

When property is sold and delivered to a resident of the state free from any claim of title by the seller, and is held for resale by retail in the state, it becomes subject to the anti-trust laws of the state, and is not a subject of interstate commerce, though the buyer is termed the agent of the seller. State v. Willys-Overland (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 609.

Where goods were sold in interstate commerce, the moment they passed into the possession of the purchaser such goods and the handling of them and all contracts and agreements concerning their sale or disposition from that time passed out of the influence of the federal law and into the control of the state law, and the anti-trust statutes would apply to resale agreements. Caddell v. J. R. Watkins Medical Co. (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 226.

Contracts for sale of goods.—See State v. Willys-Overland (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 609; notes at end of title.

Company's contract for sale of merchandise to its agent, wherein agent agreed "to have no other business or employment," not only required him to devote his entire time, but restricted him to making purchases of merchandise from company only, and so was violative of anti-trust act. Dodd v. W. T. Rawleigh Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 131.

The owner of a patent right, copyright, or trade-mark, may impose upon his assignee such restrictions as he may see proper, and to which his assignee will agree, including the price at which the article may be sold, the territory in which it may be manufactured and sold, the material that may be used in its manufacture or in connection therewith. Coca-Cola Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 791.

The owner of an article protected by patent, copyright, or trade-mark, when he has manufactured and sold the same, cannot impose restrictions upon his vendee as to the future sale of the same. Id.

Contract between manufacturer and dealer giving dealer exclusive right of sale in certain territory and obligating him not to sell similar goods of any other manufacturer in such territory held in violation of the anti-trust statutes. Fred Miller Brewing Co. v. Coonrod (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1099.

A contract between wholesale and retail dealers, providing that retailer shall sell tractor at price fixed by manufacturer, and requiring wholesaler to reimburse retailer for any decrease in the retail price, held an agreement to fix and maintain price for the sale of a commodity, in violation of subs. 2, 4, 5. Hubb-Diggs Co. v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 425.

Exclusive franchise.—Petition alleging that city granted exclusive franchise for 25 years to use streets and alleys for water system, and that plaintiff became owner of the system, was, in so far as it sought recovery for a breach of contract, subject to special exceptions; the grant of exclusive privilege being void. Templeton v. City of Wellington (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 186.

Trade unions.—See notes under arts. 5244, 5245.

Art. 7797. "Monopoly" defined.

See Kissel Motor Car Co. v. Walker (C. C. A.) 270 Fed. 492; notes to art. 7796; Schlag v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 369; Cooks', Waiters' and Waitresses' Local Union v. Papageorge (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1086.

What are monopolies.—An ordinance forbidding jitneys within a certain zone does not create a monopoly, in violation of Const. art. 1, §§ 1, 26, in favor of street railways. Gill v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 209.

Validity in general.—Private monopolies are contrary to the genius of a commercial people, and contracts in restraint of trade are not looked upon with favor, but the federal Constitution, however, provides for the creation of monopolies in the matter of patent rights, trade-marks and copyrights (article 1, § 8). Coca-Cola Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 791.

Rights acquired under contract.—If transaction, whereby one life insurance company acquired assets and liabilities, including premium notes, of another, illegal as in violation of arts. 7797, 7807, was executed, title to premium note passed, so that acquiring company could enforce it against maker. California State Life Ins. Co. v. Kring (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 372.

Petition, in suit on such note held not demurrable as showing that transaction was not authorized by art. 4737, providing that any life insurance company may reinsure, therefore repugnant to articles 7797, 7807. Id.

Submission of issues.—In view of the anti-trust statute, and particularly this article, in an action involving purchase of assets of bank by individual, where issue whether contract was entered into to destroy competition was presented by pleadings, refusal of request for its submission as issue of fact held reversible error. Langford v. Power (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 662.

Art. 7798. Conspiracies against trade, what constitutes.

See Kissel Motor Car Co. v. Walker (C. C. A.) 270 Fed. 492; notes to art. 7796; Cooks', Waiters' and Waitresses' Local Union v. Papageorge (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1086; Fred Miller Brewing Co. v. Coonrod (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1099; notes to art. 7807.

Conspiracy defined.—A conspiracy is a combination of two or more persons by some concerted action to accomplish some criminal or unlawful purpose, or to accomplish some purpose not in itself criminal or unlawful by criminal or unlawful means. Palatine Ins. Co. v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1014.

Unlawful conspiracy in general.—A medical association, qualifications for membership being that applicant must not support or profess an exclusive system of medicine or advertise as such, is legitimate and lawful, and is not rendered an unlawful conspiracy merely because it directly affects the material interest of an osteopath, under arts. 5733, 5736, 5741, 5742, 5745, and the Constitution. Harris v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 1068.

Liability of conspirators.—A conspiracy makes the individual parties to it liable not only for their own individual acts, but for the acts of others done in the accomplishment of its purpose. Palatine Ins. Co. v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1014.

Commodities within statute.—Under subd. 1, an agreement between fire insurance companies to refuse insurance to an applicant is not prohibited; insurance not being a "commodity." Palatine Ins. Co. v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1014.

Coca-Cola syrup is not an article to be used by the public, but is useful only as an ingredient in the manufacture of bottled Coca-Cola, and as no one but the licensee of the Coca-Cola Company has the right to manufacture bottled Coca-Cola, it was no restriction on trade to provide in a contract of assignment of rights that bottlers should not sell the syrup, which was sold to them by the company. Coca-Cola Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 791.

Within this article, cuts to be used for advertising purposes in connection with advertising service, and which were not intended to be bought for resale, since their value would be destroyed by general use in the community, are not commodities, so that a contract, forbidding the sale of such cuts by the buyer, is not a violation of the Anti-Trust Act. Schow Bros. v. Adva-Talks Co. (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 833.

Restraint of trade.—An agreement between two persons that one will buy from the other exclusively, or that one will sell to the other exclusively, a given commodity, constitutes "conspiracy in restraint of trade," within this article. Pennsylvania Rubber Co. v. McClain (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 586.

No restraint of trade under a contract of sale of a business with good will covenant may rest upon inference; a stipulation being necessary. Houston Transfer & Carriage Co. v. Williams (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 1081, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 712.

Contract whereby partner retiring in favor of another, agreed not to engage in business in competition with his old and the new partner, held not void at common law as against public policy, nor as establishing conspiracy in restraint of trade as defined and denounced by this article. Schlag v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 369.

Contracts in restraint of trade are to be construed with the intent of arriving at the fair meaning of the parties, and where their provisions are susceptible of two constructions, the court will examine the entire instrument, consider the subject-matter, the motives that led to it, the surrounding circumstances and object intended to be affected, and where one construction would render the contract illegal, and the other would make it lawful, that construction which would conform the contract to the law must be adopted. Dannel v. Sherman Transfer Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 297.

A contract whereby a brewing company, in consideration of plaintiff's payment of a debt owing to it, agreed to give plaintiff the exclusive right to sell its beer in a county, plaintiff to pay a fixed price and to order the beer as he required it, being a contract of sale, and not of agency, falls within this article. American Brewing Ass'n v. Woods (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 448.

A brewing company could stipulate as a condition of its lease to a saloon keeper that the saloon keeper should not sell a competitor's beer; such agreement not violating the anti-trust laws. Celli & Del Papa v. Galveston Brewing Co. (Com. App.) 227 S. W. 941.

Landlord's threat not to renew lease if lessee purchased goods from lessor's competitor held not unlawful, since such threat was but the exercise of a legal right on the part of the lessor which cannot form the basis of liability in suit against the landlord by the competitor. Id.

Mortgagee's threat to foreclose mortgage if mortgagor continued to sell goods of mortgagee's competitor did not entitle the competitor to recover damages in absence of showing that he lost any business by reason thereof. Id.

It is not unlawful to induce another not to deal with a third person, provided that contractual rights of third person are not interfered with. Id.

Contract giving dealer exclusive territory and obligating him to sell none but the manufacturer's product therein held void as in restraint of trade in violation of the anti-trust statutes, even though dealer disregarded the contract and sold similar goods of other manufacturers, without manufacturer's knowledge. Fred Miller Brewing Co. v. Coonrod (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1099.

Art. 7799. Acts and things mentioned declared illegal.

See Kissel Motor Car Co. v. Walker (C. C. A.) 270 Fed. 492; notes to art. 7796; Webb v. Cooks', Waiters' and Waitresses' Union, No. 748 (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 465; Cooks', Waiters' and Waitresses' Local Union v. Papageorge (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1086.

Art. 7801. Attorney general to institute quo warranto proceedings.

Suit for injunction.—Under Const. art. 4, § 22, and Rev. St. 1879, arts. 2805, 2806, attorney general held entitled to bring an action in the name of the state to restrain the establishment of a fire insurance monopoly. Queen Ins. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 1048, reversed 24 S. W. 397.

Art. 7805. Where foreign corporation is convicted of violating this law, no other corporation to which the defaulting corporation has transferred its business or property shall be permitted to incorporate or do business in this state.—When any foreign corporation has been convicted of a violation of any of the provisions of this Chapter, and its right to do business in this State has been forfeited, as provided in Article 7803, Revised Civil Statutes of Texas of 1911, then before such corporation or any other corporation to which such corporation may have transferred its properties and business or which has assumed its obligations, shall be permitted to incorporate or do business in Texas, it shall be required to go into the court where the original judgment of forfeiture was entered and show that it has fully obeyed the decree of court forfeiting its charter, and has satisfied in full all fines and penalties assessed against it, and it shall further show that it has so organized or reorganized its affairs and business that if permitted to do business in Texas it can and will do so without violating any of the laws of this State, and particularly that it has no connection with any person, firm, or corporation engaged in violating the laws against trusts and monopolies, and is not itself so engaged; provided that no such action shall be instituted within five years from the date of such original conviction and provided further that any corporation which shall be convicted a second time of a violation of any provision of this title shall be forever barred from instituting any such action hereunder. Whereupon and after a hearing had, after the notice to the Attorney General herein provided, the court may modify or reform such judgment so as to permit such corporation to incorporate, or secure a permit, and do business in Texas, and such modified or reformed judgment shall be by the clerk of said court certified to the Secretary of State for action by him in conformity therewith. Nothing in this Act shall in any manner affect any judgment hereafter rendered by any court against any corporation, its agent, or employes or successors.

Provided, that notice of filing of such proceeding and the taking of evidence shall be served upon the Attorney General of the State, whose duty it shall be to represent the State in such proceeding; and provided, further, that the court may require the production of all books and records and may appoint a commission to take testimony, either within or without the State; and provided, further, that the expense of the entire proceeding, including reasonable attorney's fee, the amount of which to be determined by the judge trying the case, and the same to be paid to the attorney representing the State, and same to be delivered by such attorney to the State Treasurer and by him deposited to the account of the General Revenue Fund of the State; and it is further provided that the court, after modifying or reforming the judgment, as provided herein, shall retain jurisdiction of the case and at any time thereafter shall, upon showing that the said corporation is violating the laws against trusts or monopolies, or has connection with any person, firm, or corporation engaged in violation of the laws against trusts or monopolies, set aside any order or judgment entered, and in which event all proceedings based thereon, including all transfers of any and all properties shall be nullified, and it shall be the duty of the Attorney General, for good cause, to enter proceedings to set aside and nullify the modified judgment of the court and its proceedings, as herein provided; and provided, further, that if the court shall, after the hearing provided for, refuse to modify or reform such judgment, no permit shall be issued by the Secretary of State to such corporation or to any other corporation to which its properties or business have been transferred or which has assumed the payment of its obligations. [Acts 1903, p. 121, § 10; Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 7805, amended; Acts 1917, 35th Leg., ch. 37, § 1; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 30, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 7807. All agreements in violation of, void.

Validity of contracts.—A contract whose main purpose, considered with circumstances and conditions giving rise to its execution, or whose necessary result, was the establishing of a combination or trust, is unenforceable. Saye v. Garrard (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 684.

Though "void" involves the idea of utter ineffectiveness, in this article, term was used to describe usual legal effect of an unlawful contract, which is that when executed resulting titles will not be disturbed. (Per Boyce, J.) California State Life Ins. Co. v. Kring (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 372.

If a contract under which absolute sales of goods are made limits resale of the product to prescribed territory, or to fixed price, or the retailer is required to devote all his time to the sale of such particular goods and may not engage in any other business, it is invalid, and not enforceable in the courts. Caddell v. J. R. Watkins Medical Co. (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 226.

Such a contract held invalid and not enforceable. Id.

Contract giving dealer the exclusive privilege of sale in described territory and prohibiting dealer from selling any but manufacturer's product in such territory held not susceptible of severance as against contention that illegal provisions violating the anti-trust statute could be eliminated without affecting validity of other portions. Fred Miller Brewing Co. v. Coonrod (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1099.

Right of action for breach of contract.—In an action and cross-action, where both parties relied upon a contract illegal as a "conspiracy in restraint of trade," neither can recover. Pennsylvania Rubber Co. v. McClain (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 586.

A contract whereby a brewing company, in consideration of plaintiff's payment of a debt agreed to give plaintiff the exclusive right to sell its beer in a county, plaintiff to pay a fixed price and to order the beer as he required it, being a contract of sale, and not of agency, falls within art. 7798, and hence an action for breach of such agreement cannot be maintained. American Brewing Ass'n v. Woods (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 448.

Actions not brought on illegal contract.—Where company sold merchandise to agent under contract violative of anti-trust act, and later sold under new contract, which was legal, amount due under such subsequent contract being susceptible of separation, company could recover amount due from agent under it. Dodd v. W. T. Rawleigh Co. (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 131.

If transaction, whereby one life insurance company acquired assets and liabilities, including premium notes, of another, illegal as in violation of the anti-trust statutes was executed, title to premium note passed, so that acquiring company could enforce it against maker. California State Life Ins. Co. v. Kring (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 372.

Petition, in suit on such note held not demurrable as showing that transaction whereby note was acquired was not authorized by art. 4737, therefore repugnant to anti-trust statutes, arts. 7797, 7807. Id.

Though purchaser of medicines from a foreign corporation construed a new contract, prepared to take the place of an earlier illegal contract as containing the same provisions as the first, recovery by the foreign corporation will not be denied, where the new contract was not obnoxious to the monopoly statutes, and the corporation was in no wise to blame for the purchaser's construction. W. T. Rawleigh Co. v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 1111.

Where to induce persons to refrain from organizing a new bank, they were persuaded to purchase a controlling interest in one, of which plaintiff was cashier, and to facilitate such purpose defendant and another agreed to pay plaintiff an amount equal to his salary under an unexpired contract, the contract with plaintiff was valid and enforceable even though the acts of the banks amounted to an illegal combination. Edwards v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 278.

Where a dealer indebted to manufacturer for goods delivered under a contract which was void because in restraint of trade in violation of arts. 7796-7818, gave manufacturer his check in settlement of indebtedness in order to procure possession of insurance policy deposited as security and thereafter stopped payment on check, the manufacturer could recover amount of check notwithstanding illegality of the contract. Fred Miller Brewing Co. v. Coonrod (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 1099.

EVIDENCE IN TRUST CASES

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Evidence of the violation of the law.—In action on contract for purchase of assets of a bank by an individual, evidence held to justify a jury finding that individual purchased in behalf of another bank, which ratified transaction, though without prior knowledge thereof, so that anti-trust statute applied. Langford v. Power (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 662.

In an action against fire insurance companies for conspiring to prevent plaintiff from obtaining insurance, evidence held not to show total absence of damage. Palatine Ins. Co. v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 1014.

Evidence held to support finding that contract of sale of business and good will with agreement not to re-engage in the same business in same town while purchaser was in that business therein was not illegal as a combination or trust. Saye v. Garrard (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 684.

In suit for injunction by state against automobile company, existence between company and its selling agents, of a combination of acts actually creating and carrying out restrictions in the free pursuit of a business permitted by law, also preventing or lessening competition in the sale of automobiles, in violation of art. 7796, held established. State v. Willys-Overland (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 609.

Article 7819. Who and what are public warehousemen and warehouses.—All persons, firms, companies or corporations who shall receive cotton, wheat, rye, oats, rice, or any kind of produce, wares, merchandise, or any description of personal property in store for hire, shall be deemed and taken to be public warehousemen.

A warehouse within the meaning of this Act, shall be a house, building, or room in which the above mentioned commodities are stored and are protected from damage thereto by the action of the elements. [Acts

1901, p. 251, § 1; Acts 1913, S. S. p. 93, § 2, amending art. 7819, Rev. St. 1911; Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 54, § 1.]

Explanatory.—Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment. Sec. 2 of the act repeals art. 7827 and sec. 3 repeals all laws in conflict.

Warehouse defined.—In common parlance a "warehouse" is a house used for storing goods, wares, and merchandise, whether for the owner or for some one else, and whether the same be a public or private warehouse. New England Equitable Ins. Co. v. Mechanics'-American Nat. Bank of St. Louis (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 685.

Art. 7823. Must deliver property immediately upon production of receipt.

Care of property stored.—One maintaining a meat cold storage impliedly agrees to use ordinary care to maintain it in such condition that meat can be safely kept there for usual length of time. Sherman Ice Co. v. Klein (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 918.

Although plaintiff did not agree to pay storage to defendant compress company, where cotton was received with expectation that defendant would be compensated by carrier before shipment, held defendant was a bailee for hire, whose duty it was to exercise ordinary diligence. Jackson v. Greenville Compress Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 324.

Where defendant accepted cotton in connection with its compress business on storage for mutual benefit of both parties, it was not necessary to prove an express contract, law implying a contract and imposing on defendant duty to use ordinary care. Id.

A cotton compress and warehouse company, which charged for compressing cotton, and stored it as a mere incident to the compression, was a "bailee for hire" of the cotton while in storage, and responsible for failure to exercise ordinary care. Exporters' & Traders' Compress & Warehouse Co. v. Wills (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1056.

Where plaintiff left two bales of cotton with defendant for storage until plaintiff should call for them, alleged to have been received only for plaintiff's convenience, and receipt stating it was not a public warehouse, a bailment resulted, requiring defendant to exercise ordinary care to hold and return the cotton. Griffin v. Smith (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 33.

Limiting liability.—Contract of warehouse company, covering storage of cotton, and stipulating that company would not be responsible for loss by fire or otherwise, not stipulating against responsibility for loss through fire caused by its own negligence, did not exempt company from liability for loss by fire so caused. Exporters' & Traders' Compress & Warehouse Co. v. Wills (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1056.

Art. 7825. Force and effect of warehouse receipts; negotiable, etc.

Receipt as contract.—A receipt issued by warehouseman, stating the amount or quantity of goods received, and also the conditions under which the same are to be stored, is more than a mere receipt, and is in fact a contract fixing the rights of the parties. Kahn v. Cole (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 556.

Negotiability.—Cotton tickets, issued for cotton stored in warehouse, were not negotiable at common law. Carter, v. Farmers' Nat. Bank of Seymour (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 265.

Transfer of receipts.—Where a cotton yard issued a ticket for bale of cotton, the legal title, ownership, and constructive possession of the bale was evidenced by the ticket, so that the delivery of the ticket was a symbolic delivery of the cotton and raised a presumption of the transfer of ownership, although the rule would be otherwise if the possession by the cotton yard indicated a claim of ownership by it. McLendon Hardware Co. v. J. A. Hill & Son (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 825.

Sale of cotton without receipt.—One purchasing cotton from the manager of a warehouse company engaged in storing cotton and issuing receipts therefor, providing for delivery of the cotton only on their return, gets no title, the manager not having the receipts, and having no authority to sell, and the warehouse company being guilty of no acts operating as an estoppel. King-Collie Co. v. Wichita Falls Warehouse Co. (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 748.

Art. 7826. Liability for damages.

Evidence in actions against warehouseman.—Where it is alleged that meat kept in defendant's cold storage was moldy through dampness, evidence need not show negligence producing dampness. Sherman Ice Co. v. Klein (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 918.

Evidence held to show conclusively a breach of defendant's duty as bailee of cotton to hold the bales for plaintiff as agreed, and to return them on demand. Griffin v. Smith (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 33.

Art. 7827. [Repealed by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 54, § 2.]

WAREHOUSES AND MARKETING

Art. 7827a. Purpose of act.

Validity.—Conditions in the cotton trade, as to negligent weighing, loss in transit, deterioration, and "city crop" held to warrant enactment of this act, and it is within the legitimate exercise of the police power. Ex parte White, 82 Cr. R. 85, 198 S. W. 583.

It is not obnoxious to constitutional objections. Id.

The mere fact that conditions requiring remedy in the cotton trade were not caused by cotton ginner did not make its enactment unwarranted. Id.

It is not invalid as embracing two unrelated subjects; its purpose being to promote the cotton industry, in doing which both ginning and storage must be regulated. Id.

It is not invalid, merely because the title purports regulation of "all gins" and the body of the act refers only to public gins, since, as a matter of fact, all gins within the state are public. Id.

It is not obnoxious to Const. U. S. Amend. 14, or any other provision thereof, and is valid. Id.

It does not deprive producers of due process of law. Id.

Art. 7827cc. Sample from cotton bales ginned; certificate.

Validity.—This act is not invalid for failing to provide a penalty for its violation by the producer by substituting a different sample, since he is liable under the swindling statute if he does so. Ex parte White, 82 Cr. R. 85, 198 S. W. 583.

The provision requiring cotton ginner to abstract and preserve three samples from each bale, thus imposing an expense of not to exceed 15 cents per bale in the ginning of cotton, does not deprive ginner of due process of law. Id.

Art. 7827d. Wrapping of cotton ginned; marking.—Each bale of cotton ginned by a licensed and bonded ginner in this State shall be so wrapped that the bale will be completely covered when compressed; provided that the ends of the bale shall be closed and well sewed; and, provided further, that the quality of the bagging shall at all times be such that marking thereon will, under ordinary conditions, remain intact and visible. Each and every licensed and bonded ginner shall mark each bale of cotton ginned by him with a metal tag or marker or some indestructible material on which shall be stamped in distinct letters the following "B——— and "B. G. ——," together with the name of the gin or ginner and his post office address. The manner of marking for identification may at any time be regulated by the Commissioner. The first blank above indicated shall be filled in by the ginner by placing the same number, numerically, as that of the bale, as shown on the books of the gin ginning the same; and the letter "B" shall stand for "bale." The second blank shall be filled in by the ginner, by inserting the number of the gin license assigned to it by the Commissioner; and the letters "B. G." when so used, shall stand for "Bonded Gin." All laws and parts of laws heretofore enacted, providing for the marking of branded cotton in the bale, are hereby repealed. [Acts 1914, 33d Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 5, § 6; Acts 1917, 35th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 41, § 7; Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 116, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

UNIFORM WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS ACT

PART I. THE ISSUE OF WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS

Art. 7827 1/2. Who may issue receipts.—Warehouse receipts may be issued by any warehouseman. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 126, § 1.]
Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 7827 1/2a. Form and contents.—Warehouse receipts need not be in any particular form, but every such receipt must embody within its written or printed terms:

- (a) The location of the warehouse where the goods are stored.
- (b) The date of issue of the receipt.
- (c) The consecutive number of the receipt.
- (d) A statement whether the goods received will be delivered to a specified person, or to a specified person or his order.
- (e) The rate of storage charges.
- (f) A description of the goods or of the packages containing them.
- (g) The signature of the warehouseman, which may be made by his authorized agent.
- (h) If the receipt is issued for goods of which the warehouseman is owner, either solely or jointly or in common with others, the fact of such ownership, and
- (i) A statement of the amount of advances made and of liabilities incurred for which the warehouseman claims a lien. If the precise amount of such advances made or of such liabilities incurred is, at the time of the issue of the receipt, unknown to the warehouseman or to his agent who issues it, a statement of the fact that advances have been made or liabilities incurred and the purpose thereof is sufficient.

A warehouseman shall be liable to any person injured thereby, for all damage caused by the omission from a negotiable receipt of any of the terms herein required.

(j) When a negotiable receipt is issued under the terms of this Act for cotton or other agricultural products stored in any warehouse operating under the terms of this Act, it shall, in addition to the other conditions mentioned herein, state the weight, grade, and condition of the same and shall state plainly whether such agricultural products are insured or not. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 7827 1/2aa. Insertion of other terms and conditions.—A warehouseman may insert in a receipt, issued by him, any other terms and conditions, provided that such terms and conditions shall not—

- (a) Be contrary to the provisions of this Act.
- (b) In any wise impair his obligation to exercise that degree of care in the safe-keeping of the goods entrusted to him, which a reasonably careful man would exercise in regard to similar goods of his own. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 7827 1/2b. Non-negotiable receipt.—A receipt in which it is stated that the goods received will be delivered to the depositor, or to any other specified person, is a non-negotiable receipt. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 7827 1/2bb. Negotiable receipt.—A receipt in which it is stated that the goods received will be delivered to the order of any person named in such receipt is a negotiable receipt.

No provision shall be inserted in a negotiable receipt that it is non-negotiable. Such provision, if inserted shall be void. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 7827½c. Duplicate receipts; marking.—When more than one negotiable receipt is issued for the same goods, the word “duplicate” shall be plainly placed upon the face of every such receipt, except the one first issued. A warehouseman shall be liable for all damages caused by his failure so to do to any one who purchased the subsequent receipt for value supposing it to be an original, even though the purchase be after the delivery of the goods by the warehouseman to the holder of the original receipt. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 7827½cc. Non-negotiable receipts; marking.—A non-negotiable receipt shall have plainly placed upon its face by the warehouseman issuing it, “non-negotiable,” or “not negotiable.” In case of the warehouseman’s failure so to do, a holder of the receipt who purchased it for value supposing it to be negotiable, may, at his option, treat such receipt as imposing upon the warehouseman the same liabilities he would have incurred had the receipt been negotiable.

This action shall not apply, however, to letters, memoranda, or written acknowledgments of an informal character. [Id., § 7.]

PART II. OBLIGATIONS AND RIGHTS OF WAREHOUSEMEN UPON THEIR RECEIPTS

Art. 7827½d. Delivery of goods to holder of receipt or depositor thereof.—A warehouseman, in the absence of some lawful excuse provided by this Act, is bound to deliver the goods upon a demand made either by the holder of a receipt for the goods or by the depositor, if such demand is accompanied with—

- (a) An offer to satisfy the warehouseman’s lien.
- (b) An offer to surrender the receipt if negotiable, with such indorsements as would be necessary for the negotiation of the receipt, and
- (c) A readiness and willingness to sign, when the goods are delivered, an acknowledgment that they have been delivered, if such signature is required by the warehouseman.

In case the warehouseman refuses or fails to deliver the goods in compliance with a demand by the holder or depositor so accompanied, the burden shall be upon the warehouseman to establish the existence of a lawful excuse for such refusal. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 126, § 8.]

Art. 7827½dd. Justification of warehouseman in delivering.—A warehouseman is justified in delivering the goods, subject to the provisions of the three following sections, to one who is—

(a) The person lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods, or his agent.

(b) A person who is either himself entitled to delivery by the terms of a non-negotiable receipt issued for the goods, or who has written authority from the person so entitled either endorsed upon the receipt or written upon another paper, or

(c) A person in possession of a negotiable receipt by the terms of which the goods are deliverable to him or order or to bearer, or which has been endorsed to him or in blank by the person to whom delivery was promised by the terms of the receipt or by his mediate or immediate indorsee. [Id., § 9.]

Art. 7827½e. Liability for misdelivery.—Where a warehouseman delivers the goods to one who is not in fact lawfully entitled to the possession of them, the warehouseman shall be liable as for conversion to all having a right of property or possession in the goods if he delivered the goods otherwise than as authorized by subdivisions (b) and (c) of the preceding section and though he delivered the goods as authorized by said subdivisions he shall be so liable, if prior to such delivery he had either—

(a) Been requested, by or on behalf of the person lawfully entitled to a right of property or possession in the goods, not to make such delivery, or

(b) Had information that the delivery about to be made was to one not lawfully entitled to the possession of the goods. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ ee. Cancellation of receipt upon delivery of goods.—Except as provided in Section 36 [Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ r], where a warehouseman delivers goods for which he has issued a negotiable receipt, the negotiation of which would transfer the right to the possession of the goods. and fails to take up and cancel the receipt, he shall be liable to any one who purchases for value in good faith such receipt, for failure to deliver the goods to him, whether such purchaser acquired title to the receipt before or after the delivery of the goods by the warehouseman. [Id., § 11.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ f. Cancellation of receipt upon delivery of part of goods.—Except as provided in Section 36 [art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ r], where a warehouseman delivers part of the goods for which he had issued a negotiable receipt and fails either to take up and cancel such receipt, or to place plainly upon it a statement of what goods or packages have been delivered he shall be liable, to any one who purchases for value in good faith such receipt, for failure to deliver all the goods specified in the receipt whether such purchaser acquired title to the receipt before or after the delivery of any portion of the goods by the warehouseman. Material and fraudulent alteration of a receipt shall not excuse the warehouseman who issued it from liability to deliver, according to the terms of the receipt as originally issued, the goods for which it was issued, but shall excuse him from any other liability to the person who made the alteration and to any person who took with notice of the alteration. Any purchaser of the receipt for value without notice of the alteration shall acquire the same rights against the warehouseman which such purchaser would have acquired if the receipt had not been altered at the time of the purchase. [Id., § 13.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ g. Lost or destroyed receipts.—Where a negotiable receipt has been lost or destroyed, a court of competent jurisdiction may order the delivery of the goods upon satisfactory proof of such loss or destruction and upon the giving of a bond with sufficient securities to be approved by the court to protect the warehouseman from any liability or expense, which he or any person injured by such delivery may incur by reason of the original receipt remaining outstanding. The Court may also in its discretion order the payment of the warehouseman's reasonable costs.

The delivery of the goods under an order of the Court as provided in this section, shall not relieve the warehouseman from liability to a person to whom the negotiable receipt has been or shall be negotiated for value without notice of the proceedings or of the delivery of the goods. [Id., § 14.]

Art. 7827½gg. Effect of duplicate receipts.—A receipt upon the face of which the word "duplicate" is plainly placed is a representation and warranty by the warehouseman that such receipt is an accurate copy of an original receipt properly issued and uncanceled at the date of the issue of the duplicate, but shall impose upon him no other liability. [Id., § 15.]

Art. 7827½h. No title to goods in warehouseman.—No title or right to the possession of the goods, on the part of the warehouseman, unless such title or right is derived directly or indirectly from a transfer made by the depositor at the time of or subsequent to the deposit for storage, or from the warehouseman's lien, shall excuse the warehouseman from liability for refusing to deliver the goods according to the terms of the receipt. [Id., § 16.]

Art. 7827½hh. Interpleader of claimants of goods.—If more than one person claims the title or possession of the goods, the warehouseman, may, either as a defense to an action brought against him for non-delivery of the goods, or as an original suit, whichever is appropriate, require all known claimants to interplead. Determination of claims to goods.—If some one other than the depositor or person claiming under him has a claim to the title or possession of the goods, and the warehouseman has information of such claim, the warehouseman shall be excused from liability for refusing to deliver the goods, either to the depositor or person claiming under him or to the adverse claimant, until the warehouseman has had a reasonable time to ascertain the validity of the adverse claim or to bring legal proceedings to compel all claimants to interplead. [Id., § 18.]

Art. 7827½ii. Adverse title, when not a defense.—Except as provided in the two preceding sections and in sections 9 [art. 7827½dd] and 36 [art. 7827½r], no right or title of a third person shall be a defense to an action brought by the depositor or person claiming under him against the warehouseman for failure to deliver the goods according to the terms of the receipt. [Id., § 19.]

Art. 7827½j. Liability for non-existence or misdescription of goods.—A Warehouseman shall be liable to the holder of a receipt for damages caused by the non-existence of the goods or by the failure of the goods to correspond with the description thereof in the receipt at the time of its issue. If, however, the goods are described in a receipt merely by a statement of marks or labels upon them, or upon packages containing them, or by a statement that the goods are said to be goods of a certain kind, or that the packages containing the goods are said to contain goods of a certain kind, or by words of like purport, such statements, if true, shall not make liable the warehouseman issuing the receipt, although the goods are not of the kind which the marks or labels upon them indicate, or of the kind they were said to be by the depositor. [Id., § 22.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ kk. Mingling fungible goods.—If authorized by agreement or by custom, a warehouseman may mingle fungible goods with other goods of the same kind and grade. In such case the various depositors of the mingled goods shall own the entire mass in common and each depositor shall be entitled to such portion thereof as the amount deposited by him bears to the whole. [Id., § 23.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ l. Same; delivery to owners.—The warehouseman shall be severally liable to each depositor for the care and re-delivery of his share of such mass to the same extent and under the same circumstances as if the goods had been kept separate. [Id., § 24.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ ll. Attachment, etc., of goods.—If goods are delivered to a warehouseman by the owner or by a person whose act in conveying the title to them to a purchaser in good faith for value would bind the owner, and a negotiable receipt is issued for them, they can not thereafter, while in the possession of the warehouseman, be attached by garnishment or otherwise, or be levied upon under an execution, unless the receipt be first surrendered to the warehouseman, or its negotiation enjoined. The warehouseman shall in no case be compelled to deliver up the actual possession of the goods until the receipt is surrendered to him or impounded by the court. [Id., § 25.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ m. Remedies of creditors of depositors.—A creditor whose debtor is the owner of a negotiable receipt shall be entitled to such aid from courts of appropriate jurisdiction, by injunction and otherwise, in attaching such receipt or in satisfying the claim by means thereof as is allowed at law or in equity, in regard to property which cannot readily be attached or levied upon by ordinary legal process. (b) Against all goods belonging to others which have been deposited at any time by the person who is liable as debtor for the claims in regard to which the lien is asserted if such person has been so entrusted with the possession of the goods that a pledge of the same by him at the time of the deposit to one who took the goods in good faith for value would have been valid. [Id., § 28.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ nn. Loss of lien.—A warehouseman loses his lien upon goods—

(a) By surrendering possession thereof, or

(b) By refusing to deliver the goods when a demand is made with which he is bound to comply under the provisions of this act. [Id., § 29.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ o. Statement of claim of lien in receipt.—If a negotiable receipt is issued for goods, the warehouseman shall have no lien thereon, except for charges for storage of those goods subsequent to the date of the receipt, unless the receipt expressly enumerates other charges for which a lien is claimed. In such case there shall be a lien for the charges enumerated so far as they are within the terms of Section 27 [art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ mm], although the amount of the charges so enumerated is not stated in the receipt. [Id., § 30.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ oo. Retention of goods until satisfaction of lien.—A warehouseman having a lien valid against the person demanding the goods may refuse to deliver the goods to him until the lien is satisfied. [Id., § 31.]

[Id., § 32.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ pp. Sale to satisfy lien.—A warehouseman's lien for a claim which has become due may be satisfied as follows:

The warehouseman shall give a written notice to the person on whose account the goods are held, and to any other person known by the warehouseman to claim an interest in the goods. Such notice shall be given by delivery in person or by registered letter addressed to the last known place of business or abode of the person to be notified. The notice shall contain—

(a) An itemized statement of the warehouseman's claim, showing the sum due at the time of the notice and the date or dates when it became due.

(b) A brief description of the goods against which the lien exists.

(c) A demand that the amount of the claim as stated in the notice, and of such further claims as shall accrue, shall be paid on or before a day mentioned, not less than ten days from the delivery of the notice if it is personally delivered, or from the time when the notice should reach its destination, according to the due course of post, if the notice is sent by mail, and

(d) A statement that unless the claim is paid within the time specified the goods will be advertised for sale and sold by auction at a specified time and place.

In accordance with the terms of a notice so given, a sale of the goods by auction may be had to satisfy any valid claim of the warehouseman for which he has a lien on the goods. The sale shall be had in the place where the lien was acquired, or, if such place is manifestly unsuitable for the purpose, at the nearest suitable place. After the time for the payment of the claim specified in the notice to the depositor has elapsed, an advertisement of the sale, describing the goods to be sold, and stating the name of the owner or person on whose account the goods are held, and the time and place of the sale, shall be published once a week for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper published in the place where such sale is to be held. The sale shall not be held less than fifteen days from the time of the first publication. If there is no newspaper published in such place, the advertisement shall be posted at least ten days before such sale in not less than six conspicuous places therein. From the proceeds of such sale the warehouseman shall satisfy his lien, including the reasonable charges of notice, advertisement and sale. The balance, if any, of such proceeds shall be held by the warehouseman, and delivered on demand to the person to whom he would have been bound to deliver or justified in delivering the goods. From the proceeds of such sale, the warehouseman shall satisfy his lien, including the reasonable charges of notice, advertisement and sale. The balance, if any, of such proceeds shall be deposited with the County Clerk of the County in which the warehouse is located and shall be delivered, on demand, to the person to whom the warehouseman would have been bound to deliver, or justified in delivering the goods, for which the receipt was issued.

At any time before the goods are so sold any person claiming a right of property or possession therein may pay the warehouseman the amount necessary to satisfy his lien and to pay the reasonable expenses and liabilities incurred in serving notices and advertising and preparing for the sale up to the time of such payment. The warehouseman shall deliver the goods to the person making such payment if he is a person entitled, under the provisions of this Act, to the possession of the goods on payment of charges thereon. Otherwise the warehouseman shall retain possession of the goods according to the terms of the original contract of deposit. [Id., § 33.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ q. Same; perishable and hazardous goods.—If goods are of a perishable nature, or by keeping will deteriorate greatly in value, or by their odor, leakage, inflammability, or explosive nature, will be liable to injure other property, the warehouseman may give such notice to the owner, or to the person in whose name the goods are stored, as is reasonable and possible under the circumstances, to satisfy the lien upon such goods, and to remove them from the warehouse, and in the event of the failure of such person to satisfy the lien and to remove the goods within the time so specified, the warehouseman may sell the goods at public or private sale without advertising. If the warehouseman after a reasonable effort is unable to sell such goods, he may dispose of them in any lawful manner, and shall incur no liability by reason thereof.

The proceeds of any sale made upon the terms of this auction shall be disposed of in the same way as the proceeds of sales made under the terms of the preceding section. [Id., § 34.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ qq. Other methods of enforcing lien.—The remedy for enforcing a lien herein provided does not preclude any other remedies allowed by law for the enforcement of a lien against personal property nor bar the right to recover so much of the warehouseman's claim as shall not be paid by the proceeds of the sale of the property. [Id., § 35.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ r. Effect of sale.—After goods have been lawfully sold to satisfy a warehouseman's lien, or have been lawfully sold or disposed of because of their perishable or hazardous nature, the warehouseman shall not thereafter be liable for failure to deliver the goods to the depositor, or owner of the goods, or to a holder of the receipt given for the goods when they were deposited, even if such receipt be negotiable. [Id., § 36.]

(b) Where, by the terms of the receipt, the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of a specified person, and such person or a subsequent indorsee of the receipt has indorsed it in blank or to bearer.

Where, by the terms of a negotiable receipt, the goods are deliverable to bearer or when a negotiable receipt has been indorsed in blank or to bearer, any holder may indorse the same to himself or to any other specified person, and in such case the receipt shall thereafter be negotiated only by the indorsement of such indorsee. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 126, § 37.]

Art. 7827½s. Negotiation by indorsement.—A negotiable receipt may be negotiated by the indorsement of the person to whose order the goods are, by the terms of the receipt, deliverable. Such indorsement may be in blank, to bearer or to a specified person. If indorsed to a specified person, it may be again negotiated by the indorsement of such person in blank, to bearer or to another specified person. Subsequent negotiation may be made in like manner. [Id., § 38.]

Art. 7827½ss. Transfer of receipt.—A receipt which is not in such form that it can be negotiated by delivery may be transferred by the holder by delivery to a purchaser or donee.

Art. 7827½t. Who may negotiate receipt.—A negotiable receipt may be negotiated—

(a) By the owner thereof, or

(b) By any person to whom the possession or custody of the receipt has been entrusted by the owner, if, by the terms of the receipt the warehouseman undertakes to deliver the goods to the order of the person to whom the possession or custody of the receipt has been entrusted, or if at the time of such entrusting the receipt is in such form that it may be negotiated by delivery. (b) The direct obligation of the warehouseman[d] to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the receipt as fully as if the warehouseman had contracted directly with him. [Id., § 41.]

Art. 7827½u. Title acquired by transfer of receipt.—A person to whom a receipt has been transferred but not negotiated, acquires thereby, as against the transferrer, the title of the goods, subject to the terms of any agreement with the transferrer.

If the receipt is non-negotiable such person also acquires the right to notify the warehouseman of the transfer to him of such receipt, and thereby to acquire the direct obligation of the warehouseman to hold possession of the goods for him according to the terms of the receipt.

Prior to the notification of the warehouseman by the transferrer or transferee of a non-negotiable receipt, the title of the transferee to the goods and the right to acquire the obligation of the warehouseman may be defeated by the levy of an attachment or execution upon the goods by a creditor of the transferor, or by a notification to the warehouseman by the transferrer of a subsequent purchaser from the transferrer of a subsequent sale of the goods by the transferrer. [Id., § 42.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ uu. Transfer of negotiable receipt without indorsement.—Where a negotiable receipt is transferred for value by delivery, and the indorsement of the transferrer is essential for negotiation, the transferee acquires a right against the transferrer to compel him to indorse the receipt, unless a contrary intention appears. The negotiation shall take effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made. [Id., § 43.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ v. Warranties on negotiation, etc., of receipt.—A person who for value negotiable or transfers a receipt by indorsement or delivery, including one who assigns for value a claim secured by a receipt, unless a contrary intention appears, warrants—

- (a) That the receipt is genuine.
- (b) That he has a legal right to negotiate or transfer it.
- (c) That he has knowledge of no fact which would impair the validity or worth of the receipt, and
- (d) That he has a right to transfer the title to the goods and that the goods are merchantable or fit for a particular purpose whenever such warranties would have been implied, if the contract of the parties had been to transfer without a receipt the goods represented thereby. [Id., § 44.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ vv. Indorser as guarantor.—The indorsement of a receipt shall not make the indorser liable for any failure on the part of the warehouseman or previous indorsers of the receipt to fulfill their respective obligations. [Id., § 45.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ w. Implied warranty.—A mortgagee, pledgee or holder for security of a receipt who in good faith demands or receives payment of the debt for which such receipt is security, whether from a party to a draft drawn for such debt or from any other person, shall not by so doing be deemed to represent or to warrant the genuineness of such receipt or the quantity or quality of the goods therein described. [Id., § 46.]

Art. 7827 $\frac{1}{2}$ ww. Fraud, mistake, or duress.—The validity of the negotiation of a receipt is not impaired by the fact that such negotiation was a breach of duty on the part of the person making the negotiation, or by the fact that the owner of the receipt was induced by fraud, mistake, or duress to entrust the possession or custody of the receipt to such person, if the person to whom the receipt was negotiated, or a person to whom the receipt was subsequently negotiated, paid value therefor, without notice of the breach of duty, or fraud, mistake or duress. [Id., § 47.]

Art. 7827½www. Subsequent negotiation.—Where a person having sold, mortgaged, or pledged goods which are in a warehouse and for which a negotiable receipt has been issued, or having sold, mortgaged, or pledged the negotiable receipt representing such goods, continues in possession of the negotiable receipt, the subsequent negotiation thereof by that person under any sale, or other disposition thereof to any person receiving the same in good faith, for value and without notice of the previous sale, mortgage, or pledge, shall have the same effect as if the first purchaser of the goods or receipt had expressly authorized the subsequent negotiation. [Id., § 48.]

Art. 7827½x. Seller's lien and stoppage in transitu.—Where a negotiable receipt has been issued for goods, no seller's lien or right or stoppage in transit shall defeat the rights of any purchaser for value in good faith to whom such receipt has been negotiated, whether such negotiation be prior or subsequent to the notification to the warehouseman who issued such receipt of the seller's claim to a lien or right of stoppage in transit. Nor shall the warehouseman be obliged to deliver or justified in delivering the goods to an unpaid seller unless the receipt is first surrendered for cancellation. [Id., § 49.]

Repeal.—The law of 1883, applying to public weighers as embodied in Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. 1897, art. 4308, was repealed by Acts 1899, c. 155. Troilo v. Gittinger (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 233.

Art. 7830. [4310] Duties.

Negotiation of receipts.—This article held to make cotton tickets negotiable instruments only in hands of holder to whom it has been negotiated by delivery and indorsement. Carter v. Farmers' Nat. Bank of Seymour (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 265.

The provision making cotton tickets negotiable by delivery and indorsement, must be strictly followed by one relying on its benefit and protection, since it gives to such tickets a character other than that which they would have had under the common law. Id.

Liability of weigher storing cotton.—In view of arts. 583, 584, bank having taken valid assignment of cotton receipts issued by public weigher, and having thereby and by agreement acquired title to cotton, under this article, public weigher, in delivering cotton without requiring surrender of receipts, must respond to bank, in suit in its own name, for its loss. Taliaferro v. Brady Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 174.

Public weigher and his sureties were not entitled to require such bank, to foreclose its mortgage upon security other than cotton or receipts before it could recover against weigher and sureties. Id.

Debtor having left country and other property securing debt having been disposed of or not being discoverable, bank held not required to foreclose upon or exhaust such property before going against public weigher and sureties. Id.

Under stipulation in receipts that cotton would be delivered only on return of receipts, and this article, liability of weigher and sureties to bank, held fixed by delivery of cotton to assignor of receipt without return of certificates. Id.

Under art. 7828, as amended by Acts 35th Leg. (1918) 4th Called Sess. c. 95, and arts. 583, 584, and 7829, public weigher, who delivered cotton to owner without taking up cotton tickets, was not liable to bank to which former owner had transferred tickets as collateral without indorsements subsequent to the sale of the cotton, since the tickets, not having been indorsed, were not negotiable instruments in hands of bank under this article. Carter v. Farmers' Nat. Bank of Seymour (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 265.

Art. 7846 $\frac{1}{4}$ y. Inspection, testing, etc., of weights and measures by sealers and inspectors.—It shall be the duty of all sealers, deputy sealers, inspectors, and local sealers in this State to inspect, try and test all weights, scales, beams, measures of any kind, instruments or mechanical devices for weighing or measuring and all tools, appliances and accessories connected with any or all such instruments or measures kept for the purpose of sale, sold or used by any proprietor, agent, lessee or employee in proving the size, quantity, extent, area weight or measurement of quantities, things, produce, articles for distribution or consumption, purchased or offered or submitted by such person or persons for sale, hire, or award and ascertain if the same are correct, and he shall have the power to and shall from time to time weigh or measure packages or amounts of commodities of whatsoever kind kept for the purpose of sale, offered for sale or sold, or in the process of delivery, in order to determine whether the same contains the quantity or amount represented and whether they are being offered for sale or sold in accordance with law and may seize for use as evidence such amounts of commodities or packages which shall be found to contain a less amount than that represented. He shall at least once each year, or as much oftener as may be found necessary, and directed by the State Superintendent, see that the weights, measures and all weighing and measuring apparatus, used in any locality to which he is assigned for the purpose of inspection, are correct. All local sealers of weights and measures shall test at least once each year all scales, weights and measures of every kind and device within any such city to which they are appointed, and oftener, if required so to do. Any sealer or deputy sealer, or inspector for the purposes above mentioned, and in the general performance of his duty may, without warrant, enter, go into or upon any stand, place, building or premises, or stop any vendor, peddler, junk dealer, driver of a coal wagon, ice wagon or delivery wagon or the driver of any wagon containing commodities for sale or delivery, and if necessary require him to proceed to some place which the sealer may specify for the purpose of making the proper tests. [Id., § 20.]

Art. 7846<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>yy. Prosecutions for violations of law.—Any sealer, deputy sealer, or inspector having a knowledge of a violation of any of the provisions of this Act, or any law relative to weights and measures, shall cause the violator to be prosecuted, when in his opinion such violation is wilfully committed. [Id., § 21.]

Art. 7846<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>z. Seizure and condemnation of weights and measures.—Whenever a sealer, deputy sealer, or inspector of weights and measures compares weights and measures, or weighing or measuring instruments and finds that they correspond, or cause them to correspond to the standards, or he shall seal or mark under his name such weight or measure or weighing or measuring instrument with an appropriate device showing that the weight or measure, or weighing or measuring instrument is correct, and the date of the inspection, which device shall be placed so as to be easily seen. He shall condemn and seize and may destroy incorrect weights and measures and weighing and measuring instruments, which in his best judgment are not susceptible of repair, but any weights and measures, or weighing or measuring instruments which shall be found to be incorrect, but which, in his best judgment are susceptible of repair, he shall cause to be marked with a tag or other suitable device with the words "Out of Order." The owner or user of any weights or measures, or weighing or measuring instruments, which have been marked "Out of Order," as in this Section provided, may have the same repaired or corrected within thirty days, but until the same have been repaired or corrected and tested as herein provided, the owner or user thereof must neither use nor dispose of the same in any way, but shall hold the same at the disposal of the State Superintendent or any deputy or local sealer. When the same have been repaired or corrected, the owner or user thereof shall notify the State Superintendent or his deputy, or local sealer and they shall again be tested for the purpose of proving the weight, measure or weighing or measuring instrument, which had been found to be incorrect and marked as in this Section, and until such weight, measure or weighing or measuring instrument has been re-inspected by the sealer and found correct, the same shall not be used or in any way disposed of by the owner. Any person who removes or obliterates any tag or device placed upon any weight or measure, or weighing or measuring instrument by any sealer, deputy sealer, or inspector, provided for in this Act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. When any weight, measure or weighing or measuring instrument has been repaired and corrected, as in this Act provided, and has been re-inspected and found correct by the sealer of weights and measures, as in this Act provided, the sealer of weights and measures shall remove the tag or device with the words "Out of Order" and shall mark such weight, measure or weighing or measuring instrument in the manner provided for the marking of the same where upon inspection they were found to be correct. [Id., § 22.]

Sec. 23 of this act is penal. See post, Penal Code, art. 992e.

Art. 7846<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>zz. Powers as peace officers.—The State Superintendent, his deputy, sealers or inspectors and all local sealers and their deputies in the performance of their official duties, shall have the same power as peace officers in this State. [Id., § 24.]

Sections 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29 of this act are penal. See post, Penal Code, arts. 343b, 434a, 434b, 995c, 992f.

Art. 7846 $\frac{1}{4}$ zzz. "Person" defined.—The word "person," whenever used in this Act, shall be deemed to include person, firm or corporation and all officers, directors and managers of corporations shall comply with the provisions of this Act on behalf of their respective corporations. The penal provisions of this Act shall apply to the executive head, manager, agent, trustee or receiver of any corporation doing business in this State. [Id., § 30.]

Art. 7846 $\frac{1}{2}$ . Weight of bread loaves.—Bread to be sold by the loaf made by bakers engaged in the business of whole-saling and retailing bread, shall be sold based upon any of the following standards of weight and no other, namely, a loaf weighing one pound or 16 ounces, a loaf weighing one and one-half pounds, or 24 ounces, and loaves weighing two pounds, or 32 ounces, and loaves weighing three pounds, or some other multiple of one pound or 16 ounces. These shall be the standards of weight for bread to be sold by the loaf. Provided, however, that variations, or tolerance, shall not exceed one ounce per pound over and one ounce per pound under the standard unit weight, within a period of 24 hours after baking. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 63, § 5.]

See arts. 4595 $\frac{1}{4}$ –4595 $\frac{1}{4}$ d, ante, and art. 711a, Penal Code, post. The act took effect 90 days after March 12, 1921, date of adjournment.

7854l. Owners and operators of wells to keep books; corporations, etc., operating wells, etc., to file name, etc., with railroad commission.

Article 7854c. Waste in production of natural gas, and crude oil or petroleum; waste defined.—Natural gas and crude oil or petroleum shall not be produced in the State of Texas in such manner and under such conditions as to constitute waste. The terms "waste" in addition to its ordinary meaning shall include (a) escape of natural gas in commercial quantities into the open air from a stratum recognized as a natural gas stratum; but this is not intended to have application to gas pockets in high points in strata recognized as oil strata; (b) drowning with water of a gas stratum capable of producing gas in commercial quantities; (c) underground waste; (d) the permitting of any natural gas well to wastefully burn (e) the wasteful utilization of such gas; (f) burning flambeau lights except when casing head gas is used in same; provided not more than four may be used in or near the derrick of a drilling well and (g) the burning of gas for illuminating purposes between eight o'clock A. M. and five o'clock P. M. unless the use is regulated by meter. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 155, art. (sec.) 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 19, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 7854d. Same; confining gas in wells.—Whenever natural gas in such quantity and quantities, in a gas bearing stratum known to contain natural gas in such quantities, is encountered in any well drilled for oil or gas in this State, such gas shall be confined to its original stratum until such time as the same can be produced and utilized without waste and all such strata shall be adequately protected from infiltrating waters. All operators, contractors, or drillers, pipe line companies, gas distributing companies drilling for or producing crude oil or natural gas or piping oil or gas for any purpose shall use every possible precaution in accordance with the most approved methods to stop and prevent waste of oil and gas, or both, in drilling and producing operations, storage or in piping or distributing and shall not wastefully utilize oil or gas, or allow same to leak or escape from natural reservoirs, wells, tanks, containers, or pipes. [Id., art. (sec.) 2.]

Art. 7854e. Same; powers of railroad commission.—It shall be the duty of the railroad commission to make and enforce rules and regulations for the conservation of oil and gas, it shall have authority to prevent the waste of oil and gas in drilling and producing operations and in the storage, piping and distribution thereof, and to make rules and regulations for that purpose; it shall be its duty to require dry or abandoned wells to be plugged in such way as to confine oil, gas and water in the stratas in which they are found and to prevent them from escaping into other stratas and to establish rules and regulations for that purpose. It is empowered to establish rules and regulations for the drilling of wells and preserving a record thereof, and it shall be its duty to require such wells to be drilled in such manner as to prevent injury to the adjoining property, and to prevent oil and gas and water from escaping from the stratas in which they are found into other stratas, and to establish rules and regulations therefor; it shall be its duty to establish rules; and regulations for shooting wells and for separating oil from gas; it shall have authority to require records to be kept and reports made by oil and gas drillers, operators and pipe line companies and by its inspectors; it is authorized to do all things necessary for the conservation of oil and gas whether here especially enumerated or not, and to establish such other rules and regulations as will be necessary to carry into effect this Act and to conserve the oil and gas resources of the State. [Id., art. (sec.) 3.]

Removal of casing.—The property right in the casing in an oil well as well as the derrick, tools, etc., belongs to the driller of the well the same as trade fixtures and may be removed by him. Southwestern Oil & Gas Co. v. Kimball Oil & Development Co. (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 1111.

Where defendants began drilling a well under a lease which gave plaintiffs the right to complete the well if defendants should not drill to a stated depth, plaintiff, on defendant's refusal to drill to that depth, can have removal of the casing enjoined, though it belongs to defendants, since such removal under this act, and the rule of the commission, requiring wells to be plugged when the casing was withdrawn, would deprive plaintiff of its right to complete the well if defendant removed the casing therefrom. Id.

Art. 7854f. Same; duties of pipe line expert.—It shall be the duty of the pipe line expert provided for in Section 11, Chapter 30, of the Acts of 1917, to be the supervisor for the Railroad Commission in enforcing its rules and regulations. The Railroad Commission may appoint such deputy supervisor as may be necessary. It shall have the authority to increase the salary of the supervisor to a sum not exceeding $5,000.00 per annum and to fix the salaries of the deputies at not exceeding $3,600.00 per annum, all salaries and other expenses of the administration and enforcement of this Act shall be paid out of the funds created in Chapter 30 of the Acts of 1917, and in the manner therein provided. It shall be the duty of the supervisor and his deputies to supervise the plugging of all abandoned wells and the shooting of wells and to conform to the rules and regulations of the Railroad Commission, dealing with the production and conservation of oil and gas. [Id., art. (sec.) 4.]

Art. 7854g. Same; certificate of compliance with laws before connecting with wells.—Owners or operators of gas wells shall, before connecting with any oil or gas pipe lines, secure from the Railroad Commission a certificate showing compliance with the oil and gas conservation laws of the State and conservation orders of the Railroad Commission. Pipe line companies shall not connect with oil or gas wells until the owners or operators thereof shall furnish certificates from the Railroad Commission that the conservation laws of the State have been complied with, provided this Act shall not prevent a temporary connection with any well or wells in order to take care of production and prevent waste until opportunity shall have been given the owner or operator of said well to secure certificate showing compliance with the conservation laws of the State. [Id., art. (sec.) 5.]

Art. 7854h. Same; books showing production of oil and gas.—It is hereby made the duty of all owners or operators of oil and gas wells to keep books showing the amount of oil and gas produced and disposed of, with the price for which the same was sold, together with the receipts from the sale or transfer of leases or other property, and the disbursements made in connection with or for the benefit of such business, which books shall be kept open for the inspection of the Railroad Commission, or any accredited representative thereof; and of any stockholder or shareholder in said business and any owner or operator refusing to comply with the provisions of this Article shall be subject to the penalties imposed by this Act. [Id., art. (sec.) 6.]

Art. 7854i. Same; penalties.—In addition to any penalty that may be imposed by the Railroad Commission for contempt, any firm, person, corporation or any officer, agent or employé thereof, directly or indirectly violating the provisions of this Act or the orders or regulations of the Railroad Commission made in pursuance thereof, shall be subject to a penalty of not more than Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars, to be recovered in any Court of competent jurisdiction, such suit to be brought in the name of the State of Texas, and to be instituted and conducted by any County or District Attorney, on the direction of the Railroad Commission. Each day that such violation continues shall be considered a separate offense. [Id., art. (sec.) 7.]

Art. 7854j. Same; repeal.—This Act shall be cumulative of all laws of this State which are not in direct conflict herewith, regulating the conservation of oil and gas, but it shall repeal all laws or parts of laws in conflict with its provisions. [Id., art. (sec.) 8.]

Art. 7854k. Same; partial invalidity of act.—If any of the provisions of this Act shall be held unconstitutional or for any other reason shall be held void, such holdings shall not have the effect to nullify the remaining parts of this Act, but the parts not so held to be void shall nevertheless remain in full force and effect. [Id., art. (sec.) 9.]

Art. 7854kk. Salaries and expenses, how paid.—All salaries and expenses necessary to enforce the provisions of Chapter 155, Acts of the Regular Session of the Thirty-sixth Legislature to conserve the oil and gas resources of the State, shall be paid out of the fund created by Section 11, Chapter 30, Acts of the Regular Session of the Thirty-fifth Legislature. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 31, § 2.]

See ante, art. 732½, and arts. 7854c-7854k.

Art. 7854kkk. Act cumulative.—This Act shall be cumulative of all other laws for the conservation of oil and gas and the control of pipe lines. [Id., § 3.]

Took effect July 25, 1919.

Art. 7854l. Owners and operators of wells to keep books; corporations, etc., operating wells, etc., to file name, etc., with railroad commission.—It is hereby made the duty of all owners and operators of oil and gas produced and disposed of, with the price for which the stock sold and unsold and amount of promotion money paid, amount of oil and gas produced and disposed of, with the price for which the same was sold, together with the receipts from the sale or transfer of leases or other property, and the disbursements made in connection with or for the benefit of such business; which books shall be kept open for the inspection of the Railroad Commission or any accredited representative thereof, and of any stockholder or shareholder or royalty-owner in said business, and shall report such information to the Railroad Commission of Texas for its information, when required by the Commission to do so. Any person, firm, partnership, joint stock association, corporation or other organization, domestic or foreign, operating wholly or partially within this State, acting as principal or agent for another, for the purpose of drilling, owning or operating any oil or gas well, or owning or controlling leases of oil and mineral rights, or the transportation of oil or gas by pipe line, shall immediately file with the Railroad Commission of Texas, at Austin, the name of the company or organization, giving the name and post office address of the organization, the plan under which it was organized, and the names and post office addresses of the trustee or trustees thereof, and the names and post office addresses of the officers and directors. Any person, firm, joint stock association, corporation or other organization, or the agent thereof, refusing to comply with any of the provisions of this section, shall be subject to all the fines and penalties imposed by Article 7, Chapter 155, Acts of the Regular Session of the Thirty-sixth Legislature, approved March 31st, 1919. [Id., § 1.]

WILLS

Art.	Art.
7855. Persons competent to make a will.	7865. Posthumous children.
7856. What may be devised, etc., by will.	7866. Children born after making of will.
7857. Requisites of a will.	7867. The same.
7858. Will wholly written by testator.	7869. Bequests to children, etc., not to lapse.
7859. Revocation of written will.	7874. To be recorded, etc.
7861. Nuncupative will, requisites of.	7875. Foreign wills.
7863. Testimony to be committed to writing, etc.

Article 7855. [5333] Persons competent to make a will.

See Davis v. Laning, 85 Tex. 39, 19 S. W. 846, 18 L. R. A. 82, 34 Am. St. Rep. 784.

Mental capacity.—Mere eccentricities of one who knows that he is making a will, remembers the objects of his bounty, and acts without improper influence, are not sufficient to justify annulling the will. Vaughan v. Malone (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 292.

Insane delusions, as distinguished from general insanity, will, where it can fairly be inferred that the testamentary instrument was affected thereby, defeat probate. Campbell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 134.

Mental incapacity may be inferred from an enfeebled condition of the mind and body. Bradshaw v. Brown (Civ. App.) 218 S. W. 1071.

That testatrix is old, in feeble health, or that her memory does not possess the vigor of earlier years, or that she has excluded from her bounty some or all of her legal heirs, will not defeat will if she retains sufficient mind or understood what she was doing, the nature and extent of her property, the disposition she desires to make, the persons she desires to be recipients of her bounty, the mode of distribution, and a mind capable of exercising judgment, reason, and deliberation and capable of seeing the consequences of will to a reasonable degree, and the effect of it upon her estate and family. Id.

The mental capacity required in disposing of an estate by will and in disposing of it by contract is the same. Turner v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 252.

Undue Influence.—Undue influence, to vitiate will, need not consist of overt acts exercised at time of execution; influence exercised previously to and operating at time of execution, being sufficient. Rounds v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 496; Pendell v. Apodaca (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 682.

Will otherwise valid will not be set aside on ground of undue influence, unless it be shown that such undue influence operated on testator's mind, causing him to make disposition which, except for such influence, he would not have made. Beadle v. McCrabb (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 355.

Where a will is plain, and testator is capable of fully understanding it, and either carefully reads it or has it correctly read to him, that the beneficiaries fail to advise him fully as to claims of others is immaterial. Leahy v. Timon (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 1029.

It does not constitute undue influence for a wife to plead with her husband to make a will in a certain manner, nor even to insist thereon, provided her solicitations and importunities do not overthrow the will and destroy the free agency of the testator. Ater v. Moore (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 457.

Fraud.—It was not fraud on the part of beneficiary under a will that a third person gave advice to testator without any inducement or solicitation on the part of the beneficiary, who had no participation whatever therein. Ater v. Moore (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 457.

Evidence of mental capacity and undue influence.—See notes to art. 3271.

Unnatural disposition.—While this article gives every person of sound mind absolute power of disposition over his property, yet, where unnatural disposition was shown as evidence of want of testamentary capacity, a requested instruction that, if the testator was not incapable, he might dispose of his property as he saw fit, though dictated by unreasonable prejudice toward one heir or overwhelming love for another, was properly refused, as being argumentative. Campbell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 134.

In such case a requested instruction that, if the testator was not incapable, he might dispose of his property as he saw fit, in disregard of all natural affection, was properly refused, as being on the weight of the evidence. Id.

Art. 7856. [5334] What may be devised, etc., by will.

See Moffett v. Moffett, 67 Tex. 642, 4 S. W. 70; Hall v. Fields, 81 Tex. 553, 17 S. W. 82.

Community property.—Where husband's will directed distribution of his own property only, executor had no right to administer wife's half of the community estate. Slavin v. Greever (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 479.

Art. 7857. [5335] Requisites of a will.

In general.—See Adams v. Maris (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 622; notes at end of title. A will gave the residue to testator's brother, in trust, "to be disposed of by him as I have heretofore or may hereafter direct him to do," but did not name the beneficiaries. Held, that neither a paper, written by the brother, not offered for probate as part of the will, nor testimony by the brother that he wrote the paper at testator's request on the morning before the execution of the will, was admissible under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4859. Heidenheimer v. Bauman, 84 Tex. 174, 19 S. W. 382, 31 Am. St. Rep. 29.

Under this article, every will, except when wholly in the handwriting of testator, must be in writing and signed and attested, as stated herein. Massey v. Allen (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 682.

In proceedings to probate a will, evidence held insufficient, under art. 3267, to prove execution in compliance with this article. Id.

Form of instrument.—Instrument providing in part that husband should have use of property during his natural life, and that upon his death property should immediately pass "in accordance with terms of this bill of sale," held not testamentary in character. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 540.

If a paper clearly evidences on its face an intention to make a gift inter vivos which is not consummated by delivery, the paper cannot, by the aid of parol testimony, be converted into a will in contravention of this article. Adams v. Maris (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 622.

— Deed or will.—Instrument purporting to convey title to lands on its delivery is deed and not will, though possession be deferred until grantor's death. Lovenskoild v. Casas (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 629.

When the grantor in a deed reserves control of the deed or right to dispose of the property during his life, or a deed is deposited with a third party, but under control of the grantor, and not to take effect until after his death, such control renders the instrument testamentary in character, with the right of revocation in the grantor. Eckert v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 207 S. W. 317.

Attestation.—Where testator signed his name in the presence of the two subscribing witnesses, and called upon the two to witness what he had said and done, and the witnesses carried the instrument to a table only 10 feet from testator, signed it, and returned with it to the testator, there was a valid execution of the codicil under this article, though when the witnesses signed their backs were toward testator, and their bodies between testator and the paper. Earl v. Mundy (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 716.

Art. 7858. [5336] Will wholly written by testator.

In general.—An envelope addressed to payee and indorsed, "Notes," and a letter inclosed asking payee to accept "this," referring to a form note inclosed partly in deceased maker's handwriting, the envelope and letter being wholly in his handwriting, held valid as a holographic will. Adams v. Maris (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 622.

An instrument, signed and dated, and in terms: "To Mrs. Eugenia Poss auto and $5,000," held shown by application for probate to be a valid holographic will. Poss v. Kuhlmann (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 633.

Art. 7859. [5337] Revocation of written will.

In general.—Evidence that testatrix stated she had "destroyed" will held sufficient to rebut the presumption that the will had not been revoked; such statement not being a conclusion, but a statement of ultimate fact, in view of this article, the term "destroy," as applied to wills, meaning to burn or tear into fragments, and the destruction being the essential fact to be proved, as distinguished from the means used. Rape v. Cochran (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 250.

Mere expression of a desire by testator to change his will cannot have the effect of revoking it or of changing any of its provisions, in view of this article. Ater v. Moore (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 457.

Where testator inherited money after executing his will, which he did not desire to have pass by the will, and went to his partner for advice, and the latter unintentionally deceived him by telling him that such property would not pass under the will, the will was not revoked or changed in any manner. Id.

Subsequent will.—The disposition of property by different wills will be sustained, unless the inconsistency is such that the wills cannot stand together, and a later will revokes a former only when and to the extent that it is inconsistent with the former. Adams v. Maris (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 622.

Where holographic will gave a note to the payees, his later will, giving to another a certain sum and providing that at his death the rest of his property should go to his bodily heirs, did not prevail over the specific bequests to the legatees named. Id.

Joint will.—Widow, after executing codicil confirming joint will of her and her husband, held not entitled to abrogate the joint will, but to own only a life estate in accordance therewith, the fee being owned by the devisees. Moore v. Moore (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 659.

Joint will executed by two sisters became irrevocable after surviving sister ratified it by having it probated and by accepting and enjoying the benefits derived from its provisions, and she was estopped from making a different disposition by subsequent will. Sherman v. Goodson's Heirs (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 839.

Evidence of revocation.—See Adams v. Maris (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 622; Clover v. Clover (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 916; notes to art. 3267, et seq.

Revival of revoked will.—Under Rev. St. 1879, art. 4861, the cancellation of a will expressly revoking all former wills does not revive a former will. Hawes v. Nicholas, 72 Tex. 481, 10 S. W. 558, 2 L. R. A. 863.

Art. 7861. [5339] Nuncupative will, requisites of.

See Walker v. Fields (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 632; notes to art. 7863.

Art. 7863. [5341] Testimony to be committed to writing, etc.

Reduction of testimony to writing.—Under arts. 3269, 3270, 7861, 7863, it is not sufficient that one or even two of the witnesses set down the testament; it being necessary that each of the witnesses sign, read, assent, or agree to what is written, notwithstanding art. 5502. Walker v. Fields (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 632.

Arts. 3269, 3270, 7861, 7863, not providing who shall commit the testimony to writing or its manner or form, the procedure may be informal so long as it observes the essential requirements of the law, and the testimony as reduced to writing will be sufficient if it contains all the requirements of a nuncupative will, it being also proper to include the fact that testator dies at his habitation, etc., and to show who was present and heard the words. Id.

Art. 7865. [5343] Posthumous children.

See Parker v. Swain (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 231.

Art. 7866. [5344] Children born after making a will.

In general.—This article held applicable to the rights of an after-born child under his mother's will, in view of art. 5502, subsds. 3, 4. Parker v. Swain (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 231.

Art. 7867. [5345] The same.

See Parker v. Swain (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 231.

Art. 7869. [5347] Bequests to children, etc., not to lapse.

See Moss v. Helsley, 60 Tex. 426.

Art. 7874. [5352] To be recorded, etc.

Sufficiency of record.—Judgment for probate of will is not lacking in finality for appeal because will was not copied therein, if the judgment identified the will by definite description, declared it probated, and ordered it to be filed and recorded, and the transcript to the district court showed compliance with this article. Edens v. Cleaves (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 355.

Art. 7875. [5353] How foreign will may be proved.

Admissibility in evidence.—Under Sayles' Civil St. 1888, art. 548a, § 1, a will of lands in Texas, executed and probated in Georgia, was not admissible in trespass to try title, though recorded in the county where the lands were situate, where a copy of the judgment of the court admitting it to probate did not accompany the will. Green v. Benton, 3 Civ. App. 92, 22 S. W. 256.

Who entitled to contest.—No one is entitled to contest probate of will of a resident of another state under this article except a "person interested" therein, that is, one who either absolutely or contingently is entitled to share in the estate, so that a creditor of testator is not included. Thompson v. Dodge (Civ. App.) 210 S. W. 586.

DECISIONS RELATING TO TOPIC IN GENERAL

3. Contracts to devise or bequeath.—Mother's promise to make will devising estate to daughter as inducement to execution of daughter's deed to mother is enforceable against mother's estate. Robinson v. Faville (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 316.

If decedent's statements were never communicated to her nephew, there could have resulted therefrom no express contract between her and the nephew to pay for his services in her will. Ivey v. Lane (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 61.

A contract, not rendered unenforceable by any statute by which one party agrees to leave property to the other at the former's death, is enforceable. Hooks v. Bridgewater (Sup.) 229 S. W. 1114.

6. Reasonableness.—Every citizen of Texas has the absolute right by his testamentary bequests to dispose of his property regardless of the ties of nature and relationship and in defiance of the rules of justice or the dictates of reason. Stolle v. Kanetzky (Civ. App.) 220 S. W. 557.

8. Validity of bequests in general.—A bequest for a "tabernacle" or "coliseum" to be erected in a public park on plans to be determined by persons named, suitable for pleasures and comforts of persons resorting to park, held not void for uncertainty of object. Lightfoot v. Poindexter (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1152.

A gift to a college for erection of a chapel is not void on the ground that the college, being incorporated for educational purposes, cannot own and control a building used for purpose of conducting religious services. Id.

Courts are reluctant to declare wills void for uncertainty, and it is only when the instrument is unintelligible or uncertain, after admission of extrinsic evidence as to situation of parties and circumstances, that a true patent ambiguity is established. Adams v. Maris (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 622.

A testator may create successive life estates in the same property, provided they are persons in being at the time the will takes effect, each such estate to begin upon the termination of a preceding life estate. Neely v. Brogdon (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 614.

To avoid a will or any of its provisions for uncertainty, it is not enough that the disposition appears too obscure and irrational for the testator to have been likely to intend it, but the gift must be without clear meaning at all; and the improbability of such a gift on general principle, shall not defeat it. Jones' Unknown Heirs v. Dorchester (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 596.

Other provisions of a will are not invalidated by the fact of one person by fraud or undue influence obtaining provisions therein for himself. Walker v. Irby (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 331.

8½. — Rule against perpetuities.—A perpetuity is a limitation of property taking the subject thereof out of commerce for a longer period than a life or lives in being and 21 years thereafter (citing Words and Phrases, Perpetuity). West Texas Bank & Trust Co. v. Matlock (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 937.

A will which does not provide for vesting the fee during the life or lives of a person or persons in being or within 21 years and 10 months thereafter is void under the rule against perpetuities. Neely v. Brogdon (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 614.

In determining whether a will is void under the rule against perpetuities the possibilities of vesting of estate within the period fixed by the rule are to be determined as of the time of testator's death. Id.

A will devising testatrix's property to her husband for life, and on his death to be divided between two childless nieces, who were to receive the revenues and pay an annuity, and providing that the estate should pass to their issue, if any, or, if none, to her two other childless nieces and to their issue, conferred on the issue of her two other nieces a fee, and not a life estate, and so did not violate the rule against perpetuities. Id.

11. Construction—Law governing.—The law at the time of the execution of a will may be considered in ascertaining testator's intent. Haupt v. Michaelis (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 706.

12. — Intention of testator.—The intention of testator, if not inconsistent with some established rule of law or with public policy, must control in the construction of a will; and it is the duty of the courts to ascertain such intention, and to give force and effect to the scheme that the testator had in his mind for the disposition of his estate. Haupt v. Michaelis (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 706; Neely v. Brogdon (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 614; Norton v. Smith (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 542; Gilliam v. Mahon (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 712.

All parts of a will must be construed together, and the intention of the testator must be arrived at by considering the whole, and not from detached, segregated, and isolated words, sentences, or clauses. Haupt v. Michaelis (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 706; Mahon v. Gilliam (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 124; Barmore v. Darragh (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 472.

The intent of the testator, as expressed in the whole instrument when read in the light of the circumstances surrounding the testator when the will was written, must govern. Nations v. Neighbors (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 691; Jones' Unknown Heirs v. Dorchester (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 596.

It is permissive to consider language of whole will for purpose of ascertaining intention of testator, provided language so considered indicates that words "heirs of body" were used in narrower sense than true one. McMahan v. McMahan (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 354.

The presumption is that a testator intended to dispose of his entire estate, and not to die partially or wholly intestate, though such presumption against partial intestacy arises only where intent to pass whole estate is expressed in some form, and not where testator's language is plain and unambiguous. Grant v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 893.

Where residue is given by will, every presumption is against an intended intestacy, and such intent so to do must appear from appropriate language or clear implication. Id.

No presumption of an intent to die intestate as to any part of property is to be made, where language of will can fairly be construed to dispose of whole estate. Id.

The primary rule is to give the instrument the effect intended by the testator, and this interpretation must be ascertained from the language used, the nature and extent of the property bequeathed, the status and surroundings of the beneficiaries, etc. McNeill v. St. Aubin (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 781.

While the statute requiring wills in writing precludes ascribing to testator any intention not expressed, yet there is an obligation to give effect to the intention which the will properly expounded contains; and therefore evidence simply explaining the writing is admissible. Adams v. Maris (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 622.

The testator's intention is to be ascertained from the language of the entire will, and technical rules or grammatical construction will be disregarded when to follow them would nullify his will. Neely v. Brogdon (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 614.

It will be presumed that testator intended to make a valid will, and if the will admits of both a valid and an invalid construction, the former will be adopted. Id.

Courts must not indulge in and give effect to mere conjecture as to the intention of a testator, since to do so would be assuming the power to make rather than to construe the will. Barmore v. Darragh (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 472.

13. — Language.—Words may be transposed, supplied, or omitted when to do so would make a will more clearly express the intention of the devisor as indicated by the entire contents of the instrument. Neely v. Brogdon (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 614; Haupt v. Michaelis (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 706.

In construing a will the application of the rule to accord a technical meaning to technical words is relaxed to a greater extent than in construing other documents. Johnson v. Goldstein (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 840.

Technical words are presumed to have been used in their settled legal meaning unless the contrary is manifest. Jones' Unknown Heirs v. Dorchester (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 596.

In harmonizing conflicts to effectuate the ascertained intention of the testator, words and phrases may be given meanings other than their technical import. Barmore v. Darragh (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 472.

Where words or phrases are susceptible of two constructions, one consistent with an intention to do that which the testator may lawfully do, and the other consistent with an intention to do that which he may not lawfully do, the first construction will be adopted and the other rejected. Id.

14. — Separate clauses.—Will, giving property in trust, held not to give to testator's wife the policies on his life, within the rule that a special provision of a will, when clear, will control a general provision, the subsequent clause being but a recognition of the fact that all the policies would, on his death, be her separate property, as would have been the case had he not thereafter made his estate beneficiary in some of them. Freeman v. Classen (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 300.

A will is not to be read so as to contradict itself if its apparent contradictions can be reconciled by bringing the various clauses together and deducing a consistent interpretation from the whole context. Jones' Unknown Heirs v. Dorchester (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 596.

A subsequent clause in a will must be deemed to affirm, not to contradict, an earlier clause, if such construction can clearly be given. Id.

The will should be considered in its entirety, and seeming conflicts between its separate clauses reconciled, if possible, to give effect to the true intention of the testator as manifested by the instrument as a whole. Norton v. Smith (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 542.

Where there are clauses in a will so inconsistent or contradictory that all cannot be given effect, those should be given effect which seem most nearly to comport with the real and true intention of the testator as gathered from the entire instrument, and others should be ignored. Id.

15. — Instruments construed together.—Where a note in an envelope indorsed, "notes," existed when the inclosed letter asking payees to accept "this" was written, the word "this" would not of itself incorporate note into letter, nor would fact that note was written at same time make it a part of letter. Adams v. Maris (Com. App.) 213 S. W. 622.

Evidence that a note in a sealed envelope, indorsed, "Notes," was only thing sealed up with letter asking payees to accept "this," held sufficient to support jury's conclusion that word "this" referred to inclosed note. Id.

16½. — Construction by executors.—Under will devising estate to executors and trustees, with power to decide all questions of construction in their best judgment, their construction of will to include devise of income as well as corpus, honestly and fairly made and reasonably predicated on will, would not be overruled. Grant v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 893.

19. Devisees and legatees—Heirs.—A will providing that "each heir" should take an undivided interest in certain land, and states, "Their is one exception to this rule," and then recites that his afflicted daughter's husband and grown sons should not have any interest, held not to exclude such afflicted child from an interest. Michaelis v. Haupt (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 274.

Where an absolute devise was followed by a paragraph, which directed that the estate should go to devisee's sister if she survived him dying without "heirs of his body * * * but if he dies leaving issue of his own body then his said heirs shall inherit" the second clause would be given effect as giving the property, in case devisee was survived by issue of his body, to those of such issue who were living at his death: "heirs of his body" and "issue of his own body" being construed to mean simply "children." and "inherit" to mean "take," although technically "inherit" is a word of limitation, and "take" is a word of purchase. Barmore v. Darragh (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 472.

Under a will devising land after the death of testator's wife to "my brothers living and the heirs of my deceased brothers", held, that testator intended to devise the property to the children of his deceased brothers, and not their heirs. Connor v. Biard (Civ. App.) 232 S. W. 885.

It appearing from a will that testator regarded the word "child" and the word "heir" as synonymous, it was the duty of the court to read the words "heir" and "heirs" as meaning "child" and "children." Id.

20. — Classes.—Where testatrix devised in equal parts to F. W. and the living children of D. A., deceased, "or their heirs," testatrix being adopted daughter of sister of D. A., and having inherited from her adoptive mother, F. W. and living children of D. A.'s four children and heirs of D. A.'s deceased children were each entitled to a fifth per stirpes. Ladd v. Whitledge (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 463.

21½. — Exclusion from provisions of will.—Testator having six children, including a married daughter, who had a husband and two children, in his lifetime divided his lands into five parts, and made deeds, respectively, to the children other than the daughter, and in his will recited the fact of such division, and provided that L., the daughter's husband, and his two children should receive no part of his lands. The will further recited that the daughter was entirely incompetent, and had to be taken care of all her life. The daughter had lived in the home of testator for five years preceding testator's death. Her husband never visited her during that time, and she suffered from intense and continuous melancholia. Held, that it was the evident intent of testator to exclude the daughter from any interest in the land. Haupt v. Michaelis (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 706.

24½. Substituted devise.—A will bequeathing real estate to testator's wife, and in later paragraphs expressing a desire that his estate be kept together until majority of his youngest child, and then for partition and division between his children, devised the property to the wife in the event she survived him, and devised it to their children and grandchildren in the event he survive her. Belcher v. Schmidt (Civ. App.) 226 S. W. 491.

25. Description of property.—A bequest for erection of a chapel by the executor at a cost between specified limits held not void for uncertainty of amount. Lightfoot v. Poindexter (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1152.

A bequest of a specified number of Mexican pesos is not ambiguous by reason of the subsequent divergence in the exchange of value of Mexican silver and Mexican gold coin. Volpe v. Benavides (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 593.

Such bequest must be construed to mean Mexican pesos, gold or silver, and gives executors the option to pay either in silver pieces or gold pieces or in their equivalent value in United States money at the rate of exchange prevailing when payment is due. Id.

27. — Community property.—Husband's will, directing division of "my estate," directed disposition of husband's property only, and not wife's community property. Slavin v. Greever (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 479.

Will providing that property given wife should, upon wife's death, be divided equally between specified heirs, did not authorize distribution of wife's community estate among such heirs, where husband's will did not attempt to direct disposition of wife's share of community property. Id.

28. Estates created—Limitation over.—Where a testator, after giving his property, by language importing absolute fee-simple title, to his wife, inserted a clause directing disposition thereof on her death, the intention of the testator as expressed in the latter clause should be given effect, if possible, since it does not violate any rule of law or public policy. Norton v. Smith (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 542.

Under a will giving the property to testator's wife with full power of disposition, which contained a subsequent clause directing her to will the property on her death to the respective families of herself and testator, the latter clause applies only to the property of testator still possessed by the wife at her death. Id.

A provision that an estate shall take a certain course in case of the death of a named person operates only in case the person's death occurs before testator's death; but such rule is inapplicable where, after an absolute devise, the contingency named whereby the estate devised should go to devisee's sister was not his death merely, but his death "before his sister * * * without heirs of his body." Barmore v. Darragh (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 472.

Where an absolute devise was followed by a provision that "in case" devisee died before his sister without "heirs of his body" his share should go to his sister, the devisee, on surviving the testator, did not take title absolutely but on his death without issue the devise over to his sister, if living, would take effect; "in case" meaning "in the event," and "without heirs of his body" meaning "without issue." Id.

A clause in a will devising over to another an estate given to testatrix's daughter in fee by a previous clause, "in case of the death" of the daughter and her named child, impliedly conditioned the devise over upon the death of the daughter and her child before testatrix's death, so that where the daughter and her child survived testatrix the devise over lapsed. Id.

29. — Fee simple.—An estate devised without words of limitation will be construed an estate in fee, and if the legatee be not in existence when the will takes effect, the fee will vest in him upon his coming into existence unless the will be defeated by the rule against perpetuities. Neely v. Brogdon (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 614.

Under a will creating successive life estates with no words of limitation as to the estate passing to the issue of the last life tenants, the issue takes a fee simple. Id.

Where a testator devised his property to his wife and children, a subsequent provision that it was to be kept intact until the youngest child attained his majority did not defeat the title theretofore vested in the devisees, and a creditor of a nonresident devisee could attach his interest in the property and obtain service by publication, even though he could not require partition of the property before the youngest child reached majority. Sewell v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 530.

Will which devised land by granting and habendum clauses sufficient, without qualifying language, to vest a fee under art. 3235, but stated that estate was devised subject to certain conditions, held not to vest absolute fee in devisee at time of testator's death, but to vest the estate upon the conditions named, one of which was that he should live to a specified age before being given specified portion of estate, and that on his death without issue before reaching specified age the estate should vest in executors. Jones' Unknown Heirs v. Dorchester (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 596.

The rule that an absolute disposition may be limited by a subsequent clause in a will, where the intention is clearly expressed, is not affected by art. 1106, raising a presumption of fee-simple devise, "if a less estate be not limited by express words." Barmore v. Darragh (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 472.

A will providing that "I give and bequeath to my wife all my real and personal property, * * * also my granddaughter to have equal share with all my heirs when the property is divided," gave the property to the wife in fee, as the clear gift in fee could not be cut down by the subsequent ambiguous clause. Gilliam v. Mahon (Com. App.) 231 S. W. 712.

30. — Rule in Shelley's Case.—Under will devising land to daughter for life with remainder in fee in heirs of her body, held, daughter took life estate; "heirs of body," meaning children of daughter living at her death, making rule in Shelley's Case inapplicable. McMahan v. McMahan (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 354.

Rule in Shelley's Case does not preclude construction of technical words "heirs of body" so as to ascertain testator's intention. Id.

A will giving a life estate to a son, remainder to "his heirs by his present wife," and providing that, if he should die "without any surviving heirs," the property "shall go to my other heirs, each sharing alike," construed as using the word "heirs" as equivalent to "children," so that the son took only a life estate, and not a fee under the rule in Shelley's Case. Hunting v. Jones (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 959.

Devise to C. in terms for life, with remainder in fee at his death to his "heirs" or his "heirs at law," vests in him the fee, under the rule in Shelley's Case; there being nothing manifesting intention to use the technical words in the sense of child or children. Crist v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 276.

Where an absolute devise was followed by a provision that in case the devisee at her death shall leave children, "which includes B. [her child by a former marriage], her children shall inherit her estate, share and share alike," the devisee was limited to a life estate with remainder over to those of her children who might survive her; the clause "which includes B." being treated as surplusage and ineffective, and the provision that the property should pass "share and share alike" being conclusive of testatrix's intention that it pass by purchase, not by limitation. Barmore v. Darragh (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 472.

The rule in Shelley's Case is directed against a devise over to the "heirs" of the first taker, and hence is inapplicable to an absolute devise followed by a provision that if the devisee should die before his sister and without heirs of his body the estate shall go to the sister. Id.

31. — Life estate.—A devise of possessions, use, rents, or revenues of property during a life in being creates a life estate. Neely v. Brogdon (Civ. App.) 214 S. W. 614.

Where testator gave all his real and personal property to his wife, and expressed the desire that his granddaughter should have an equal share with all his heirs when the property was divided, the wife took a life estate, and not a fee; the later clause showing an intention that property should ultimately be divided among testator's heirs. Mahon v. Gilliam (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 124.

31½. Use and occupation.—Where a will created a spendthrift trust for testatrix's stepson held that an item bequeathing to him testatrix's "homestead place to be used and enjoyed by him as a home to live at for and during his natural life," with remainder over upon his death to his issue, and in default of such issue to revert to testatrix's general estate, would be construed to give him only a right of occupancy as a home for life. Johnson v. Goldstein (Com. App.) 215 S. W. 840.

33. Conditions.—Will in favor of testatrix's daughter conditional on her paying all that was owed on a granddaughter's property "out of her money," in view of the context, held not to have required the daughter to pay the granddaughter's debts with the daughter's money. Minor v. Hall (Civ. App.) 225 S. W. 784.

Will in favor of testatrix's daughter, held to require the daughter to pay the burial expenses of testatrix, a debt due to a third person, and certain lien indebtedness against testatrix's home place, and to invest $100 for two grandchildren, as a condition precedent or subsequent to the passing of absolute title to the daughter. Id.

As words can be changed in a will only when it will effectuate a clearly apparent intent of testator, the word "refuse" in a devise with provision that, if devisee refuse a home to his sisters when sick or out of employment, the land shall be divided equally between them, cannot be changed to "fail." Adams v. Henry (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 152.

A will, which gave land to testatrix's nephew "H. (with express understanding that his sisters are to have a home there whenever they need one)," held not to create a condition precedent, but to vest the fee in the nephew, on a condition subsequent, in view of art. 1106. Id.

Such nephew having after death of testatrix accepted under the will, his interest in the land was not affected by any statement before testatrix's death, that his sisters should not have a home there, nor by the fact that after such death one of them, did not seek a home there, believing from what he had previously said that it would be refused. Id.

37. — Restraint on power of alienation.—A clause in a will directing that the rights that a beneficiary receives under the will shall revert to others, if he gives any of the estate he inherits under the will to any of certain named kin, is void. Barmore v. Darragh (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 472.

38. Testamentary trusts—Creation.—Where income under testamentary trust was payable during beneficiary's lifetime for her use and benefit without limitation, held not to be a spendthrift trust. Nunn v. Titcher-Goettinger Co. (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 890.

Whenever it appears to have been the creator's intention that beneficiary's interest should not be subject to creditor's claims, such interest is a spendthrift trust. Id.

A will, although not using word "trust," held to give executor right to hold property in trust for minor beneficiaries. Beckham v. Beckham (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 517.

Where a will gave property absolutely to testator's wife and directed that at her death she will to the respective families of testator and herself whatever she might have, the later clause was more than an expression of desire and imposed a conditional limitation on the fee so as to create a trust on all testator's property which the wife did not dispose of during her lifetime. Norton v. Smith (Civ. App.) 227 S. W. 542.

A trust will not be imposed unless it clearly appears from the will that it was intended. Beckham v. Beckham (Com. App.) 227 S. W. 940.

Where a will gave an absolute estate to testator's children, and in subsequent provision authorized the executor to take possession of "any and all property belonging to my estate; to sell and convey same; * * *" etc., the executor held independent executor, and not a trustee. Id.

A clause following devises of life estates to testatrix's son and daughter, in which testatrix enjoined them to "take care of B. [the son of the daughter by a former marriage] and properly educate him, to be paid for out of the estate which I give to my said two children * * *," was precatory merely; it being left to the will of the son and daughter whether its provisions should be regarded. Barmore v. Darragh (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 472.

38½. — Charitable trust and gifts.—Bequest for education of youth of certain county, to be carried out in specified manner, is a charitable trust, the college to which given being trustee, for inability of which to take trust will not fail, but will be administered by equity. Lightfoot v. Poindexter (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1152.

Testamentary gift to trustees, invested with discretionary powers as to manner of expenditure, to aid a school founded by testator, held to sufficiently describe the beneficiaries, and good as a gift to a public charity. Kirtley v. Spencer (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 328.

Where the purpose of a charitable trust is distinctly declared, and trustees are appointed by the will to carry out the intent of the testator, and the beneficiary may be ascertained, it is not void on the ground of being too indefinite and uncertain to be administered by a court of equity. Jones' Unknown Heirs v. Dorchester (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 596.

Testamentary trust for the erection and maintenance of hospital for the poor was not defeated by the fact that at the time of the execution of the will there were no hospitals in such city and the existence of two such hospitals at time trust was sought to be enforced. Id.

Such trust did not fail merely because the estate was not as big as had been supposed by testator and was not sufficient for erection and maintenance of as costly a hospital as contemplated, where it was sufficient for the erection and maintenance of a hospital on a smaller scale for the care of poor. Id.

39. — Violation of rule against perpetuities.—A bequest for erection of a building in a public park is not void under the provisions of the Constitution against perpetuities, being a charitable gift. Lightfoot v. Poindexter (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1152.

The main purpose of a corporation being education, it is a charity legacy to which is not within inhibition against perpetuities, though it has stockholders which elect from their number, the directors. Id.

Will bequeathing property to named trustees to have full management, control and sale, with directions to turn proceeds over to certain church when in judgment of trustees the church shall be in need of new church building, did not contravene constitutional inhibition against perpetuities. Meadors v. Sherrill (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 546.

40. — Construction.—Under will devising all real and personal estate to executors and trustees to be managed by them for 20 years, with power to make sales, etc., the executors and trustees took a fee simple to the whole estate. Grant v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 893.

Devise of real and personal property to executors and trustees to be managed for 20 years, with power of sale and duty to loan on security or invest moneys not needed for specified purposes, included not only the corpus, but the income. Id.

Where a testator devised property in trust for his minor grandchildren, though the will did not expressly limit the trust to the minority of the beneficiaries, it must be so construed, and when any of the beneficiaries come of age, or, if a female, marries, the trustee should turn over to such beneficiary his or her share of the property. McNeill v. St. Aubin (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 781.

Where a testator devised to trustees for named minor grandchildren one-fourth of his estate, and authorized such trustees, who were also executors, to sell any part of the estate, held that the trust cannot be considered as passive, and so the guardian of the minor grandchildren cannot recover the property. Id.

Under a will creating a trust and requiring payment, on the beneficiary's death of the expenses of her last sickness, her "last sickness" held that illness by which she was last taken to her bed, and not the general or protracted illness of a chronic invalid. McLean v. Breen (Com. App.) 219 S. W. 1089, 9 A. L. R. 459.

41. Powers—Alienation.—A testamentary power to executors and trustees to sell any property of the estate, at public or private sale, implied the power to sell the whole estate, requiring, as a condition precedent, a fee-simple estate. Grant v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 893.

47. Compromise of litigation over will.—Compromise agreement for division of land devised to plaintiff and defendant with provision for survivorship, held susceptible only of the construction that defendant was to convey to plaintiff a fee-simple estate, and not merely a life estate. Flores v. Flores (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 1157.

48. Rights of devisees and legatees.—Heirs and legatees may sell and convey their interest in the estate. Miers & Rose v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 213 S. W. 715.

54. Election—Testamentary provisions.—As a general rule, a party cannot take under the will and at the same time adverse to it. Slavin v. Greever (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 479.

Surviving wife is not required to make election between will and her share of community property, where she receives no benefit under will inconsistent with her community interest. Id.

In an action by a widow on notes of deceased husband, widow's right to recover as legatee being inconsistent with her right to recover as heir, and the evidence showing that the will was duly probated, and there being no evidence that the widow declined to accept as such legatee, it will be assumed that she accepted as legatee. Houston Transfer & Carriage Co. v. Williams (Com. App.) 221 S. W. 1051, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 712.

55. — Acts constituting.—Recognizing the named executor, accepting an estate devised by the will, but to which one is entitled by law, is not an election to take under a will. Campbell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 134.

56. — Effect.—A wife's acceptance of her husband's will which disposed only of his interest in their community property does not waive her community rights. Hutchens v. Dresser (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 969.

Under will devising real and personal property to executors and trustees, the provision made for widow, not required by reason of her election to take her share of community estate, held not a partial intestacy, but to revert to trust estate. Grant v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 893.

A will, giving the younger children each a sum of money from testator's estate, and then giving all testator's estate to his wife plainly and unambiguously, undertakes to dispose only of the estate testator owned, not the interest of the wife in the community estate, so that her taking under the will was not an election that her community interest should pass under the will. Waller v. Dickson (Civ. App.) 229 S. W. 893.

59. Lapsed devises and bequests.—A bequest lapsing by the legatee dying before testatrix, in the absence of statute, falls into the residuary clause of "all of the remainder of my property"; a contrary intention not being clearly expressed. Lightfoot v. Poindexter (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 1152.

Where provision for support of testator's children was not needed, because of court's election that they take under will of their mother, which had been set aside, held, in view of testator's intention, that the bequest did not lapse, but fell into residuary trust. Grant v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 200 S. W. 893.

60. Rights of creditors of legatees and devisees.—See Sewell v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 224 S. W. 530.

The judgment in probate proceedings having required the payment in Texas of the share of a legatee, his creditors claiming to have an interest in his share are not in a position to complain of the judgment in so far as it provides for a transfer to Mexico of the administration in other respects. State Nat. Bank v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 215 S. W. 989.

In a suit against an independent executor and residuary legatees to recover under a promise by decedent to make a bequest in plaintiff's favor, a complaint, charging that the legatees had received certain enumerated property of a value more than sufficient to satisfy the claim, was insufficient as failing to allege a personal liability against the legatees; the remedy being to proceed to enforce a creditor's lien against the property. Patton v. Smith (Civ. App.) 221 S. W. 1034.

61. Mutual wills.—A mutual will of a husband and wife, giving the survivor a life estate, and upon his or her death devising the homestead in fee to an adopted child and a son of a deceased adopted child, when adopted and ratified by the widow, who survived, vested an undivided half interest in the homestead in each of the named remaindermen. Rossetti v. Benavides (Civ. App.) 195 S. W. 208.

Joint will of husband and wife held to evidence reciprocal agreement, whereby survivor accepted life estate and the fee vested in the children and grandchildren, the devisees. Moore v. Moore (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 659.

Instrument executed by two sisters held intended to operate as a joint and mutual disposition of all the property owned by each, and for the mutual benefit of each, and not an instrument in which each severally undertook to dispose of her property. Sherman v. Goodson's Heirs (Civ. App.) 219 S. W. 839.

Joint will, providing that all property, both real and personal and mixed, belonging to one who shall die first, shall pass to survivor to be used by such survivor as she may choose during her lifetime, etc., did not give survivor power to dispose of property by will. Id.

A will of husband and wife, whereby they give their property to trustees for a charity, the trustees to pay half of the income to the survivor for life, held a joint and mutual will, estopping the survivor, after acceptance of benefits under it, from renouncing it. Kirtley v. Spencer (Civ. App.) 222 S. W. 328.

WOOL GROWING INTERESTS

Article 7879. [5357] Inspectors to be appointed in counties.

Admissibility of order and bond in evidence.—Under Act April 4, 1883, an order appointing plaintiff sheep inspector, and approving his bond, is admissible in an action for his fees, as it will be presumed that the commissioners ascertained the facts authorizing the appointment. Abbott v. Stanley, 77 Tex. 309, 14 S. W. 62.

FINAL TITLE

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Sec.	Sec.
3. To be liberally construed.	16. Shall be construed as continuation of former laws, etc.
5. Repeal does not affect, what.	17. Laws of the thirty-second legislature not affected.
6. Same subject.

Section. 3. To be liberally construed.

Remedial statutes.—Remedial statutes will be liberally construed to accomplish legislative purpose, especially as this section expressly so provides. Taylor v. Iowa Park Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 853.

Penal statutes.—By this section, penal statutes must be liberally construed with a view to effect their objects and to promote justice. Sugg v. Smith (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 363.

Derogation of common law.—By this section, statutes in derogation of the common law must be liberally construed with a view to effect their objects and to promote justice. Sugg v. Smith (Civ. App.) 205 S. W. 363.

Mechanics' liens.—Under Const. art. 16, § 37, and this section, one who has no title to land when he enters into a contract for the erection of a building thereon, but who acquires title pending the performance of such contract, is an "owner," within Sayles' Civil St. art. 3164, which gives a lien to mechanics and material men furnishing labor or material on a building under a contract with the "owner" or his agent. Schultze v. Alamo Ice & Brewing Co., 2 Civ. App. 236, 21 S. W. 160.

Sec. 5. Repeal does not affect, what.

Retroactive laws in general.—See Freeman v. W. B. Walker & Sons (Com. App.) 212 S. W. 637; State v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 695.

When new statute deals with procedure only, prima facie it applies to all actions, those which have accrued, or are pending, and future actions. Texas Refining Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 131.

Fixed or vested rights.—This section held to protect privilege in a libel suit as a vested ground of defense. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Edmundson (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 181, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 185 S. W. 402.

Sec. 6. Same.

Effect of repeal or change of law in general.—In view of this section, held, that arts. 4621, 4622, 4624, cannot be given retroactive effect to create personal liability of wife who joined husband in execution of note before passage of such sections. Akin v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 625.

Sec. 16. Shall be construed as continuation of former law, etc.

Cited, Harris County v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 445; American Type Founders' Co. v. Nichols, 110 Tex. 4, 214 S. W. 301.

Continuation of acts.—Although Acts 27th Leg. c. 26, defining "libel," giving newspapers certain defenses, and preserving existing defenses, was incorporated in Rev. St. 1911, without phrase about existing defenses, such revision did not destroy previously existing defense that civil pleadings are privileged. Taylor v. Iowa Park Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 199 S. W. 853.

Intention to alter or change provisions of art. 3831, cannot be inferred from fact that it was in revision of statute placed under a title which contained a statute relating to a different matter. Harris County v. Hammond (Civ. App.) 203 S. W. 445.

Rev. St. 1911 constitutes a mere codification and continuation of laws formerly enacted, and therefore article 4957, which was intended to be a codification of section 65, Acts 31st Leg. c. 108, is controlled thereby. North American Accident Ins. Co. v. Hodge (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 700.

Effect as to construction.—Where Legislature revises statutes of a state without changing particular statute which has been judicially construed, it is presumed that Legislature intended that same construction should continue. Gearheart v. State, 81 Cr. R. 540, 197 S. W. 187.

Effect as to validity.—The incorporation into the Revised Statutes of an act invalid because its subject-matter is not included in the title does not give validity to the act. Western Indemnity Co. v. Free and Accepted Masons, of Texas (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1092.

Sec. 17. Laws of the thirty-second legislature not affected.

Similar provisions of prior revisions.—Under Rev. St. 1879, final tit., § 20, which provides that "any law passed by the sixteenth legislature in conflict with any provision of this act shall be the law of the state, this act to the contrary notwithstanding," the act of 1879 relative to public weighers passed by the sixteenth legislature, and amended by the act of 1883, is not invalidated by Rev. St. 1879, p. 587, art. 4081, etc., which was passed with the Revised Statutes, and requires the governor to appoint the officer. Johnson v. Martin, 75 Tex. 33, 12 S. W. 321.

III. LAND LAWS

DECISIONS RELATING TO OLD LAND LAWS

R. S. 1895, Art. 4041. [3800] Title to mines, etc., released.

Validity.—This article when treated as a validating act, is not in violation of Const. art. 7, § 4, as to Legislature not having power to grant relief to purchasers of school lands, or section 5, forbidding appropriation of school funds to a foreign purpose. Greene v. Robison, 109 Tex. 367, 210 S. W. 498.

Extension of earlier act.—Although this article is a re-enactment of the statute of 1879, in identical terms, it extended the operative force of the latter over the period between 1879 and 1895. Greene v. Robison, 109 Tex. 367, 210 S. W. 498.

R. S. 1895, Art. 4280. Unorganized county school land.

In general.—Acts 17th Leg. c. 61, providing for designating and setting apart 300 leagues of land out of unappropriated public domain for benefit of unorganized counties, and for its survey and location, was not a present grant, but a provision for a future donation. Yoakum County v. Slaughter, 109 Tex. 42, 195 S. W. 1129.

If vested right was created in unorganized counties by such act, Legislature retained power over land involved, and had authority to adopt Acts 18th Leg. c. 55, making reservation of land for benefit both of unorganized counties and such organized counties as had failed to obtain title to land previously appropriated in their behalf. Id.

If, while Acts 17th Leg. c. 61, continued in force, any of such counties had perfected organization and paid or tendered surveying and patent fees, it would have become entitled to four leagues out of reservation, and would have acquired, vested right. Id.

Had a statute invested unorganized counties with title to part of public domain for benefit of free schools, lands would have constituted granted lands, and rights of counties would have been protected from adverse legislation by Const. art. 7, § 6. Id.

It was within power of Legislature to make such provisions for benefit of counties in respect to maintenance of free schools as in its wisdom were best suited to their situation. Id.

§ 4352. (Act June 29, 1906, c. 3592, § 4, as amended Act May 9, 1918, c. 69, §§ 1-3.) Proceedings for naturalization. Filipinos, Porto Ricans or aliens in service of Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, or merchant marine.—Seventh. Any native-born Filipino of the age of twenty-one years and upward who has declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States and who has enlisted or may hereafter enlist in the United States Navy or Marine Corps or the Naval Auxiliary Service, and who, after service of not less than three years, may be honorably discharged therefrom, or who may receive an ordinary discharge with recommendation for reenlistment; or any alien, or any Porto Rican not a citizen of the United States, of the age of twenty-one years and upward, who has enlisted or entered or may hereafter enlist in or enter the armies of the United States, either the Regular or the Volunteer Forces, or the National Army, the National Guard or Naval Militia of any State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, or the State militia in Federal service, or in the United States Navy or Marine Corps, or in the United States Coast Guard, or who has served for three years on board of any vessel of the United States Government, or for three years on board of merchant or fishing vessels of the United States of more than twenty tons burden, and while still in the service on a reenlistment or reappointment, or within six months after an honorable discharge or separation therefrom, or while on furlough to the Army Reserve or Regular Army Reserve after honorable service, may, on presentation of the required declaration of intention petition for naturalization without proof of the required five years' residence within the United States if upon examination by the representative of the Bureau of Naturalization, in accordance with the requirements of this subdivision it is shown that such residence can not be established; any alien serving in the military or naval service of the United States during the time this country is engaged in the present war may file his petition for naturalization without making the preliminary declaration of intention and without proof of the required five years' residence within the United States; any alien declarant who has served in the United States Army or Navy, or the Philippine Constabulary, and has been honorably discharged therefrom, and has been accepted for service in either the military or naval service of the United States on the condition that he becomes a citizen of the United States, may file his petition for naturalization upon proof of continuous residence within the United States for the three years immediately preceding his petition, by two witnesses, citizens of the United States, and in these cases only residence in the Philippine Islands and the Panama Canal Zone by aliens may be considered residence within the United States, and the place of such military service shall be construed as the place of residence required to be established for purposes of naturalization; and any alien, or any person owing permanent allegiance to the United States embraced within this subdivision, may file his petition for naturalization in the most convenient court without proof of residence within its jurisdiction, notwithstanding the limitation upon the jurisdiction of the courts specified in section three of the Act of June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six, provided he appears with his two witnesses before the appropriate representative of the Bureau of Naturalization and passes the preliminary examination hereby required before filing his petition for naturalization in the office of the clerk of the court, and in each case the record of this examination shall be offered in evidence by the representative of the Government from the Bureau of Naturalization and made a part of the record at the original and any subsequent hearings; and, except as otherwise herein provided, the honorable discharge certificate of such alien, or person owing permanent allegiance to the United States, or the certificate of service showing good conduct, signed by a duly authorized officer, or by the masters of said vessels, shall be deemed prima facie evidence to satisfy all of the requirements of residence within the United States and within the State, Territory, or the District of Columbia, and good moral character required by law, when supported by the affidavits of two witnesses, citizens of the United States, identifying the applicant as the person named in the certificate or honorable discharge, and in those cases only where the alien is actually in the military or naval service of the United States, the certificate of arrival shall not be filed with the petition for naturalization in the manner prescribed; and any petition for naturalization filed under the provisions of this subdivision may be heard immediately, notwithstanding the law prohibits the hearing of a petition for naturalization during thirty days preceding any election in the jurisdiction of the court. Any alien, who, at the time of the passage of this Act, is in the military service of the United States, who may not be within the jurisdiction of any court authorized to naturalize aliens, may file his petition for naturalization without appearing in person in the office of the clerk of the court and shall not be required to take the prescribed oath of allegiance in open court. The petition shall be verified by the affidavits of at least two credible witnesses who are citizens of the United States, and who shall prove in their affidavits the portion of the residence that they have personally known the applicant to have resided within the United States. The time of military service may be established by the affidavits of at least two other citizens of the United States, which, together with the oath of allegiance, may be taken in accordance with the terms of section seventeen hundred and fifty of the Revised Statutes of the United States after notice from and under regulations of the Bureau of Naturalization. Such affidavits and oath of allegiance shall be admitted in evidence in any original or appellate naturalization proceeding without proof of the genuineness of the seal or signature or of the official character of the officer before whom the affidavits and oath of allegiance were taken, and shall be filed by the representative of the Government from the Bureau of Naturalization at the hearing as provided by section eleven of the Act of June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six. Members of the Naturalization Bureau and Service may be designated by the Secretary of Labor to administer oaths relating to the administration of the naturalization law; and the requirement of section ten of notice to take depositions to the United States attorneys is repealed, and the duty they perform under section fifteen of the Act of June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six (Thirty-fourth Statutes at Large, part one, page five hundred and ninety-six), may also be performed by the Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner of Naturalization: Provided, That it shall not be lawful to make a declaration of intention before the clerk of any court on election day or during the period of thirty days preceding the day of holding any election in the jurisdiction of the court: Provided further, That service by aliens upon vessels other than of American registry, whether continuous or broken, shall not be considered as residence for naturalization purposes within the jurisdiction of the United States, and such aliens can not secure residence for naturalization purposes during service upon vessels of foreign registry.

During the time when the United States is at war no clerk of a United States court shall charge or collect a naturalization fee from an alien in the military service of the United States for filing his petition or issuing the certificate of naturalization upon admission to citizenship, and no clerk of any State court shall charge or collect any fee for this service unless the laws of the State require such charge to be made, in which case nothing more than the portion of the fee required to be paid to the State shall be charged or collected. A full accounting for all of these transactions shall be made to the Bureau of Naturalization in the manner provided by section thirteen of the Act of June twenty-ninth, nineteen hundred and six.

Alien seamen deemed citizens.—Eighth. Every seaman, being an alien, shall, after his declaration of intention to become a citizen of the United States, and after he shall have served three years upon such merchant or fishing vessels of the United States, be deemed a citizen of the United States for the purpose of serving on board any such merchant or fishing vessel of the United States, anything to the contrary in any Act of Congress notwithstanding; but such seaman shall, for all purposes of protection as an American citizen, be deemed such after the filing of his declaration of intention to become such citizen: Provided, That nothing contained in this Act shall be taken or construed to repeal or modify any portion of the Act approved March fourth, nineteen hundred and fifteen (Thirty-eighth Statutes at Large, part one, page eleven hundred and sixty-four, chapter one hundred and fifty-three), being an Act to promote the welfare of American seamen.

Reimbursement for printing and binding.—Ninth. For the purpose of carrying on the work of the Bureau of Naturalization of sending the names of the candidates for citizenship to the public schools and otherwise promoting instruction and training in citizenship responsibilities of applicants for naturalization, as provided in this subdivision, authority is hereby given for the reimbursement of the printing and binding appropriation of the Department of Labor upon the records of the Treasury Department from the naturalization fees deposited in the Treasury through the Bureau of Naturalization for the cost of publishing the citizenship text book prepared and to be distributed by the Bureau of Naturalization to those candidates for citizenship only who are in attendance upon the public schools, such reimbursement to be made upon statements by the Commissioner of Naturalization of books actually delivered to such student candidates for citizenship, and a monthly naturalization bulletin, and in this duty to secure the aid of and cooperate with the official State and national organizations, including those concerned with vocational education and including personal services in the District of Columbia, and to aid the local Army exemption boards and cooperate with the War Department in locating declarants subject to the Army draft and expenses incidental thereto.

Aliens erroneously exercising privileges of citizens.—Tenth. Any person not an alien enemy, who resided uninterruptedly within the United States during the period of five years next preceding July first, nineteen hundred and fourteen, and was on that date otherwise qualified to become a citizen of the United States, except that he had not made the declaration of intention required by law and who during or prior to that time, because of misinformation regarding his citizenship status erroneously exercised the rights and performed the duties of a citizen of the United States in good faith, may file the petition for naturalization prescribed by law without making the preliminary declaration of intention required of other aliens, and upon satisfactory proof to the court that he has so acted may be admitted as a citizen of the United States upon complying in all respects with the other requirements of the naturalization law.

Alien enemies.—Eleventh. No alien who is a native, citizen, subject, or denizen of any country, State, or sovereignty with which the United States is at war shall be admitted to become a citizen of the United States unless he made his declaration of intention not less than two nor more than seven years prior to the existence of the state of war or was at that time entitled to become a citizen of the United States, without making a declaration of intention, or unless his petition for naturalization shall then be pending and is otherwise entitled to admission, notwithstanding he shall be an alien enemy at the time and in the manner prescribed by the laws passed upon that subject: Provided, That no alien embraced within this subdivision shall have his petition for naturalization called for a hearing, or heard, except after ninety days' notice given by the clerk of the court to the Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner of Naturalization to be present, and the petition shall be given no final hearing except in open court and after such notice to the representative of the Government from the Bureau of Naturalization, whose objection shall cause the petition to be continued from time to time for so long as the Government may require: Provided, however, That nothing herein contained shall be taken or construed to interfere with or prevent the apprehension and removal, agreeably to law, of any alien enemy at any time previous to the actual naturalization of such alien; and section twenty-one hundred and seventy-one of the Revised Statutes of the United States is hereby repealed: Provided further, That the President of the United States may, in his discretion, upon investigation and report by the Department of Justice fully establishing the loyalty of any alien enemy not included in the foregoing exemption, except such alien enemy from the classification of alien enemy, and thereupon he shall have the privilege of applying for naturalization; and for the purposes of carrying into effect the provisions of this section, including personal services in the District of Columbia, the sum of $400,000 is hereby appropriated, to be available until June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and nineteen, including travel expenses for members of the Bureau of Naturalization and its field service only, and the provisions of section thirty-six hundred and seventy-nine of the Revised Statutes shall not be applicable in any way to this appropriation.

Repatriation of expatriated citizens.—Twelfth. Any person who, while a citizen of the United States and during the existing war in Europe, entered the military or naval service of any country at war with a country with which the United States is now at war, who shall be deemed to have lost his citizenship by reason of any oath or obligation taken by him for the purpose of entering such service, may resume his citizenship by taking the oath of allegiance to the United States prescribed by the naturalization law and regulations, and such oath may be taken before any court of the United States or of any State authorized by law to naturalize aliens or before any consul of the United States, and certified copies thereof shall be sent by such court or consul to the Department of State and the Bureau of Naturalization, and the Act (Public fifty-five, Sixty-fifth Congress, approved October fifth, nineteen hundred and seventeen), is here repealed.

Proof of continuous residence.—Thirteenth. Any person who is serving in the military or naval forces of the United States at the termination of the existing war, and any person who before the termination of the existing war may have been honorably discharged from the military or naval services of the United States on account of disability incurred in line of duty, shall, if he applies to the proper court for admission as a citizen of the United States, be relieved from the necessity of proving that immediately preceding the date of his application he has resided continuously within the United States the time required by law of other aliens, or within the State, Territory, or the District of Columbia for the year immediately preceding the date of his petition for naturalization, but his petition for naturalization shall be supported by the affidavits of two credible witnesses, citizens of the United States, identifying the petitioner as the person named in the certificate of honorable discharge, which said certificate may be accepted as evidence of good moral character required by law, and he shall comply with the other requirements of the naturalization law. (34 Stat. 596. 40 Stat. 542-546, 548.)

The above provision is amendatory of Act June 29, 1906, c. 3592, § 4, as set forth in the 1914 edition of Vernon's Statutes, by adding thereto subdivisions 7 to 13 inclusive, as set forth above.

§ 4352a. (Act May 9, 1918, c. 69, § 3.) Validation of certificates of naturalization.—All certificates of naturalization granted by courts of competent jurisdiction prior to December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and eighteen, upon petitions for naturalization filed prior to January thirty-first, nineteen hundred and eighteen, upon declarations of intention filed prior to September twenty-seventh, nineteen hundred and six, are hereby declared to be valid in so far as the declaration of intention is concerned, but shall not be by this Act further validated or legalized. (40 Stat. 548.)

§ 4352aa. (Act May 9, 1918, c. 69, § 2.) Acts repealed.—All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with or repugnant to the provisions of this Act are hereby repealed; but nothing in this Act shall repeal or in any way enlarge section twenty-one hundred and sixty-nine of the Revised Statutes, except as specified in the seventh subdivision of this Act and under the limitation therein defined: Provided, That for the purposes of the prosecution of all crimes and offenses against the naturalization laws of the United States which may have been committed prior to this Act the statutes and laws hereby repealed shall remain in full force and effect: Provided further, That as to all aliens who, prior to January first, nineteen hundred, served in the Armies of the United States and were honorably discharged therefrom, section twenty-one hundred and sixty-six of the Revised Statutes of the United States shall be and remain in full force and effect, anything in this Act to the contrary notwithstanding. (40 Stat. 547.)

§ 4352aaa. (Act July 19, 1919, c. 24, § 1.) Persons of foreign birth serving in military or naval forces of United States during war with Germany.—Any person of foreign birth who served in the military or naval forces of the United States during the present war, after final examination and acceptance by the said military or naval authorities, and shall have been honorably discharged after such acceptance and service, shall have the benefits of the seventh subdivision of section 4 of the Act of June 29, 1906, Thirty-fourth Statutes at Large, part 1, page 596, as amended, and shall not be required to pay any fee therefor; and this provision shall continue for the period of one year after all of the American troops are returned to the United States. (41 Stat. 222.)

§ 4356a. (Act June 30, 1914, c. 130.) Aliens honorably discharged from service in Navy or Marine Corps or in Revenue-Cutter Service.—Repealed. Act May 9, 1918, c. 69, § 2, 40 Stat. 547.

§ 4369. (Act June 29, 1906, c. 3592, § 10, as amended, Act May 9, 1918, c. 69, § 3.) Evidence of residence.—In case the petitioner has not resided in the State, Territory, or the District of Columbia for a period of five years continuously and immediately preceding the filing of his petition he may establish by two witnesses, both in his petition and at the hearing, the time of his residence within the State, provided that it has been for more than one year, and the remaining portion of his five years' residence within the United States required by law to be established may be proved by the depositions of two or more witnesses who are citizens of the United States, upon notice to the Bureau of Immigration and Naturalization and the United States attorney for the district in which said witnesses may reside. (34 Stat. 599. 40 Stat. 548.)

VI. LAWS OF THE UNITED STATES RELATING TO REMOVAL OF CAUSES FROM STATE TO FEDERAL COURTS

The following changes have occurred in the laws on this subject since the publication of the 1918 Supplement of Vernon's Annotated Statutes:

§ 1021a. (Act April 16, 1920, c. 146.) Service of process after removal.—Hereafter, in all cases removed from any State court to any United States court for trial in which any one or more of the defendants has not been served with process or in which the same has not been perfected prior to such removal, or in which the process served upon the defendant or defendants, or any of them, proves to be defective, such process may be completed by the United States court through its officers, or new process as to defendants upon whom process has not been completed may be issued out of such United States court, or service may be perfected in such court in the same manner as in cases which are originally filed in such United States court: Provided, Nothing in this Act shall be construed to deprive any defendant upon whom process is so served after removal, of his right to move to remand the cause to the State court, the same as if process had been served upon him prior to such removal. #### Article 1. [1] Design of the Code.

See McLaren v. State, 82 Cr. R. 449, 199 S. W. 811.
Cited, Pitner v. State, 23 Tex. App. 366, 5 S. W. 210; Ex parte Fulton, 86 Cr. R. 149, 215 S. W. 331; Ex parte Davis, 86 Cr. R. 168, 215 S. W. 341.

Definiteness of penal statutes.—Art. 820k, (a), providing that vehicles shall be operated in a careful manner, with due regard for the safety and convenience of pedestrians and all other vehicles, is obnoxious to the rule which requires some degree of certainty in informing one accused of crime of the nature of the accusation against him, and such provision is inoperative and unenforceable in so far as it undertakes to define an offense. Russell v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 566; Snider v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 146.

In view of this article the failure to clearly define the punishment of an offense does not reduce defendant's peremptory challenges, though the prosecuting attorney declares that he will not insist on the death penalty. Kerley v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 163.

Art. 2. [2] Object of punishment.

See McLaren v. State, 82 Cr. R. 449, 199 S. W. 811.
Cited, Pitner v. State, 23 Tex. App. 366, 5 S. W. 210.

In general.—Under Vernon's Ann. Code Cr. Proc. 1916, arts. 865c, 865e, and in view of arts. 865d and 865g, as well as this article, one convicted of a felony, whose sentence is suspended by the jury, cannot, after the period of suspended sentence has expired, be imprisoned on that sentence because of a later charge of another felony; for that would violate the purpose of the suspended sentence statute. Ex parte Coots, 85 Cr. R. 334, 212 S. W. 173.

Art. 3. [3] All penalties must be affixed by written law.

See McLaren v. State, 82 Cr. R. 449, 199 S. W. 811; Lotto v. State (Cr. App.) 208 S. W. 563.

Cited, Pitner v. State, 23 Tex. App. 366, 5 S. W. 210; Ex parte Fulton, 86 Cr. R. 149, 215 S. W. 331; Ex parte Davis, 86 Cr. R. 168, 215 S. W. 341.

8. Punishable offenses.—Art. 820k, (a), providing that vehicles shall be operated in a careful manner, with due regard for the safety and convenience of pedestrians and all other vehicles, is obnoxious to the rule which requires some degree of certainty in informing one accused of crime of the nature of the accusation against him, and such provision is inoperative and unenforceable in so far as it undertakes to define an offense. Russell v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 566; Snider v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 146.

A completed penal law must define with certainty the act or omission denounced as an offense. Ex parte Leslie, 87 Cr. R. 476, 223 S. W. 227.

Due process requires that a penal law give reasonable notice as a predicate of the punishment for violation. Id.

The power of the Legislature to make a given act penal is not limited to the permission of the Constitution but exists where not specifically forbidden. Reeves v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 668.

Art. 4. [4] Common law rule of construction, when.

Cited, Ex parte Fulton, 86 Cr. R. 149, 215 S. W. 331.

Art. 6. [6] Unintelligible law not operative.

See Ex parte Leslie, 87 Cr. R. 476, 223 S. W. 227.

Cited, Ex parte Fulton, 86 Cr. R. 149, 215 S. W. 331; Ex parte Davis, 86 Cr. R. 168, 215 S. W. 341.

Definiteness.—Under Const. art. 5, § 17, juvenile delinquent law, construed with this article, and Vernon's Ann. Code Cr. Proc. 1916, art. 770, held, that order committing female delinquent child to sister of order for an indefinite term not beyond the age of 21 was void. Ex parte McLoud, 82 Cr. R. 299, 200 S. W. 394.

Acts 36th Leg. (1919) c. 161, § 1a, amending Acts 35th Leg. (1917) c. 207, § 9, post art. 320d, making it unlawful to operate automobile, motorcycle, or bicycle with front lamps projecting forward a light of such glare and brilliancy as to seriously interfere with the sight of or temporarily blind the vision of a driver of a vehicle approaching from an opposite direction, held void for indefiniteness; the glare and brilliancy not being described by any standard. Griffin v. State, 86 Cr. R. 498, 218 S. W. 494.

Acts 1st Called Sess. 35th Leg. (1917) c. 41, § 47 (art. 977m), making it a crime to "falsely pack a bale of cotton," held not so indefinite as to be unconstitutional or violative of this article, the quoted words having a clear meaning as required by arts. 9 and 10, in view of Code Cr. Proc. 1911, arts. 58 and 59. Ex parte Montgomery, 86 Cr. R. 636, 218 S. W. 1042.

It is not necessary to put into a statute mention of all the specific ways in which the offense therein set forth may be committed. Id.

Juvenile delinquent law, defining juvenile delinquents and providing for trial, procedure, penalty, commitment, etc., held not so uncertain and indefinite as to be invalid. Ex parte Pruitt, 82 Cr. R. 394, 200 S. W. 392.

Art. 9. [9] General rule of construction.

Cited, Ex parte Davis, 86 Cr. R. 168, 215 S. W. 341.

3. Meaning of language.—Owner of garage is not guilty of violating Acts 35th Leg. c. 159 (art. 1617½c) providing that any "garage" or "repair shop" not keeping register of repairs to automobiles shall be guilty of a misdemeanor; in view of the requirement that words be given their clear meaning. Fowler v. State, 81 Cr. R. 574, 196 S. W. 951.

Art. 10. [10.] Words specially defined, how understood.

See Taylor v. State, 29 Tex. App. 466, 16 S. W. 302.

Legislative Intent.—"Incorrigible," used in Acts 35th Leg. 4th Called Sess. (1918) c. 26 (Code Cr. Proc. art. 1197) prescribing procedure in cases of delinquent children, in its general use means bad beyond correction or reform, but, in view of this article, it was not legislative intent that child to come within law must be bad beyond reform in absolute sense, but rather one whose reformation could not be effected by control to which he was subject. Hogue v. State, 87 Cr. R. 170, 220 S. W. 96.

Indictment or Information.—Owner of garage is not guilty of violating Acts 35th Leg. c. 159 (art. 1617½c), providing that any "garage" or "repair shop" not keeping register of repairs to automobiles shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, in view of the requirement that words be given their clear meaning. Fowler v. State, 81 Cr. R. 574, 196 S. W. 951.

A "cashier," defined as a custodian of money of a bank, mercantile house, and the like, is not a "clerk," who is defined as one to keep accounts or records, a higher assistant in an office, so that there is a variance between an indictment charging accused with embezzlement of money, while clerk of a corporation, which charge must be construed under this article, by giving the ordinary meaning to the words, and proof that he was the cashier of the corporation, especially where the manager of the corporation expressly testified that he was not a clerk. Miller v. State (Cr. App.) 226 S. W. 379.

Art. 11. [11] Innocence presumed.

Cited, Stooksbury v. Swan, 85 Tex. 563, 22 S. W. 963.

Art. 15. [15] Effect of modification by subsequent law.

Modification by construction.—Where a statute giving grounds for disbarment of an attorney was construed by the court of final jurisdiction and was thereafter re-enacted without material change, to give the statute a new construction disbarring an attorney on a new ground, would be in effect disbarring the attorney by a law not previously prescribing the offense. Lotto v. State (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 563.

Art. 16. [16] Repeal, effect of.

See State v. Mitchell, 110 Tex. 498, 221 S. W. 925.

Effect on pending proceedings.—One being prosecuted under a city ordinance for speeding at the time Acts 35th Leg. c. 207 (art. 820s) relating to speed of automobiles, went into effect, should be discharged, because such act contains no saving clause as to pending actions. Ex parte Wright, 32 Cr. R. 247, 199 S. W. 486.

Prosecution of employer for discharge of employé for giving testimony before the industrial welfare commission, in violation of Acts 36th Leg. (1919) c. 160, § 9, will be dismissed where, pending the employer's motion for rehearing before the Court of Criminal Appeals, such statute was repealed by Acts Reg. Sess. 37th Leg. Senate Bill 41. Poye v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 161.

Mode of repeal.—A void act of the Legislature cannot repeal existing valid statutes, and a void penal statute, not being operative, can furnish no ground for an accused to elect under which act he would be prosecuted, or to elect as to which punishment should be inflicted in case of a conviction. Venn v. State, 85 Cr. R. 151, 210 S. W. 534.

Prosecution against corporation.—There is no provision of law in Texas under which a firm or corporation can be indicted or tried under the criminal laws. Judge Lynch International Book & Publishing Co. v. State, 84 Cr. R. 459, 208 S. W. 526.

Art. 25. [25] "Accused" and "defendant" synonymous.

Cited, Childers v. State, 30 Tex. App. 160, 16 S. W. 903, 23 Am. St. Rep. 899.

Art. 27. [27] "Convict" defined.

Cited, Brittian v. State, 85 Cr. R. 491, 214 S. W. 351.

Witness.—Defendant's accomplice in burglarizing and stealing from a millinery store, who was convicted of burglary and accepted the verdict with recommendation of suspended sentence and entered into recognizance for such sentence as required, held not a "convict," until final judgment or sentence was pronounced. Brown v. State, 86 Cr. R. 8, 215 S. W. 323.

In a prosecution for receiving stolen property, defendant's accomplice, though the jury had rendered against him a verdict of guilty of a felony, was not disqualified as a witness, where he had not been sentenced when he testified. Grant v. State, 87 Cr. R. 19, 218 S. W. 1062.

35. Persons under seventeen years not punishable capitally.	45. Accidents excused, when.
39. Insanity a defense.	46. No mistake of law excuses.

	51. Intention presumed.
	52. Burden of proof on defendant, when.

Article 32. [32] The persons punishable under this Code.

Corporations.—There is no provision of law in Texas under which a firm or corporation can be indicted or tried under the criminal laws. Judge Lynch International Book & Publishing Co. v. State, 84 Cr. R. 459, 208 S. W. 526.

Art. 34. [34] Children not punishable.

See McLaren v. State, 82 Cr. R. 449, 199 S. W. 811; Williams v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 173.

12. Juvenile delinquents.—A judgment in a proceeding under the juvenile delinquent law, finding a boy of 10 or 11 years of age to be a delinquent and committing him, conflicted with this article, unless it is shown that he had discretion sufficient to understand the nature and legality of the act constituting the offense, so that where there was no such showing the judgment would be reversed. Miller v. State, 82 Cr. R. 495, 200 S. W. 389.

Art. 35. [35] Persons under seventeen years not punishable capitally.

See McLaren v. State, 82 Cr. R. 449, 199 S. W. 811.

Evidence of non-age.—Jury's finding that defendant was not under 17 at time of commission of crime, as to which defendant has the burden of proof, held supported by the evidence. Flores v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 786.

Art. 39. [39] Insanity a defense.

Cited, Ex parte Trader, 24 Tex. App. 393, 6 S. W. 533.

1. Criminal responsibility in general.—Sanity is a condition precedent to guilt. Kiernan v. State, 84 Cr. R. 500, 208 S. W. 518.

8. Temporary insanity.—In prosecution for rape, where defendant set up temporary insanity on account of drunkenness in mitigation of penalty, the court in instructions properly limited defense to a state of mind rendering accused incapable of distinguishing between right and wrong. Dodd v. State, 83 Cr. R. 160, 201 S. W. 1014.

9. Trial of issue of insanity.—Where defendant has no attorney, insanity at the time of the alleged crime and trial is a good ground for a new trial, on motion there by relatives who became aware of the prosecution after conviction. Gardner v. State, 82 Cr. R. 38, 198 S. W. 312, L. R. A. 1918B, 1144.

12. Evidence.—The killing by defendant of his own son without provocation worthy of the name should call for the closest scrutiny of his mental condition. Kiernan v. State, 84 Cr. R. 500, 208 S. W. 518.

The fact that defendant, who had once previously been adjudged insane, was found to be insane, but two years before the commission of the offense charged, will not establish his insanity at the time of the offense; it appearing that after a short stay in the insane asylum he was paroled on condition that he should within 30 days report in person or by letter, and it further appearing that during the interim defendant had been at liberty, etc., free from all restraint. Barton v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 989.

14. Separate trial of insanity after conviction.—Defendant, who sends to the Court of Criminal Appeals with his motion for rehearing copy of a judgment of the county court entered since the appeal adjudging defendant insane, cannot thereby procure that the court shall withhold its mandate should the motion for rehearing be overruled; the appellate court apprehending that on sufficient showing judgment will be held up and the case disposed of as provided in Code Cr. Proc., arts. 1017-1030. Escue v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 483.

Art. 40. [40] Proof of insanity according to common law.

2. Burden of proof.—The burden is upon accused to make out his defense of insanity. Hartman v. State, 85 Cr. R. 582, 213 S. W. 936.

The fact that defendant in murder case was subject to epileptic attacks did not change the rule requiring one accused of crime to satisfy the minds of the jury that at the very time of the commission thereof his mind was in such condition that he did not know the nature and quality of the act, that it was an act he ought not to do, and, if he knew it was wrong, that he had not sufficient will power to refrain from doing the same. Zimmerman v. State, 85 Cr. R. 630, 215 S. W. 101.

In homicide prosecution defended on the ground of insanity, the defendant was required to prove by a preponderance of the testimony that the act charged was done by him while insane. Perea v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 305.

The law presumes that accused was sane at the time he committed the offense, and does not require the state to prove his sanity. Taylor v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 679.

In a prosecution for assault with intent to murder, when it was not claimed that defendant was permanently or continuously insane, the existence of defendant's mental derangement at the time he shot his wife was not a presumption following the proof that, upon other occasions, he had become temporarily deranged; and it being conceded that his mental derangement was an exception, it was defendant's burden to prove that it prevailed at the time the offense was committed. Roberts v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 759.

4. Mental condition in general.—Where the question of insanity is raised upon the trial of a person accused of crime, insanity in the family of the accused is a proper subject of investigation. Bouldin v. State, 87 Cr. R. 419, 222 S. W. 555.

Where defense was insanity, the mere fact that the half-brother of defendant's father was of a weak mind was provable, and it was germane to that question that he was not of sufficient weak mind to require his being restrained or charged with insanity. Pruitt v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 525.

In homicide prosecution defended on the ground of insanity, where defendant's father, his employers, his friends, and a number of physicians testified without expressing the opinion that defendant had at any time been insane, and where an expert physician, upon a full statement of the facts, including the fact that for some time prior to the homicide defendant had been afflicted with syphilis, declined to state that in his opinion the defendant was insane, exclusion of testimony that syphilis frequently caused insanity held proper. Perea v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 305.

The fact that defendant, who had once previously been adjudged insane, was found to be insane but two years before the commission of the offense charged, will not establish his insanity at the time of the offense; it appearing that after a short stay in the insane asylum he was paroled on condition that he should within 30 days report in person or by letter, and it further appearing that during the interim defendant had been at liberty, etc., free from all restraint. Barton v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 989.

In a prosecution for assault to murder, where the defense was insanity, it was not error to permit the sheriff to testify as to the demeanor of defendant when he was arrested. Roberts v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 759.

7. Opinion evidence—Nonexperts.—A witness, who visited defendant in jail the morning after the shooting charged, was present when he was released on bond, and took him home with him for several days, should have been permitted to testify that he appeared physically collapsed, nervous, weak, and pale, and to give his opinion that his mind was unsound, especially where the state's witnesses were permitted to express opinions on no stronger predicate. Plummer v. State, 86 Cr. R. 487, 218 S. W. 499.

A witness who was not an expert could not state her conclusion as to defendant's insanity without first giving the facts on which the opinion was based. Taylor v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 679.

Where defendant relied on insanity, testimony by a nonexpert witness that he talked to defendant and did not notice anything peculiar about his mental condition, the witness further testifying that he had had occasion to observe insane persons, was properly admitted, the witness not purporting to give his opinion, but merely stating the facts of his observation. Barton v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 989.

Where a nonexpert witness testified that in conversation with defendant he observed nothing unusual as to his mental condition, the fact that the witness may have had slight opportunity for observation goes only to the weight of his testimony. Id.

In a prosecution for assault to murder, where the defense was insanity, it was not error to permit the sheriff to give his opinion that accused was sane, based on his observations of accused while in custody. Roberts v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 759.

8. — Experts.—Where accused claimed he killed deceased while temporarily insane from use of narcotics and intoxicants, evidence regarding the amount of morphine and whisky accused had taken prior to the killing held to sustain the hypothetical case put to a physician who testified that the amount specified would not cause temporary insanity. Cundiff v. State, 86 Cr. R. 476, 218 S. W. 771.

10. Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence of accused's insanity held to require reversal of conviction of assault with intent to rape a female under 15 years of age. Gardner v. State, 85 Cr. R. 103, 210 S. W. 694.

Although accused, in a prosecution for homicide, need not prove insanity beyond a reasonable doubt, it must be clearly proved. Zimmerman v. State, 85 Cr. R. 630, 215 S. W. 101.

In a homicide case, evidence held to sustain a conviction of murder as against a claim of insanity. Id.

In prosecution for murder, where defense was that defendant by reason of blows on the head, and by reason of being crazed by excessive use of intoxicants, did not know the criminal nature of the acts committed by him, evidence held to sustain conviction. Haynes v. State (Cr. App.) 224 S. W. 1100.

Art. 41. [41] Intoxication as a defense.

2. Intoxication as defense.—Question of intent, being raised by the evidence in larceny, should be submitted, notwithstanding defendant's drunkenness. Riddick v. State, 83 Cr. R. 291, 202 S. W. 947.

An intoxicated person is held to the same degree of caution in the handling of a pistol or other deadly instrument as is required of a sober person. Haynes v. State (Cr. App.) 224 S. W. 1100.

Defendant, claiming temporary insanity brought about by the recent use of intoxicants, is not entitled to more than the benefit of that phase of this article, which rendered the temporary insanity, if it existed from the cause stated, available to mitigate the punishment. Hooter v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 1093.

4. Evidence of intoxication in general.—Whether physical condition of defendant, due to use of intoxicants, was such that he could not commit assault with intent to rape, held, under the evidence, for the jury. Morris v. State, 84 Cr. R. 100, 206 S. W. 82.

Where a defendant convicted of malicious mischief was shown to have been under the influence of intoxicants, it was error to exclude testimony of the quantity of liquor he had been drinking, and his conduct. Haag v. State, 87 Cr. R. 604, 223 S. W. 472.

5. Admissibility in mitigation of punishment.—The opinion of witnesses was admissible as to the extent of defendant's intoxication, which would not excuse the offense, but might mitigate the punishment. Haag v. State, 87 Cr. R. 604, 223 S. W. 472.

9. Toxicomania.—In prosecution for rape, where defendant set up temporary insanity on account of drunkenness in mitigation of penalty, the court in instructions properly limited defense to a state of mind rendering accused incapable of distinguishing between right and wrong. Dodd v. State, 83 Cr. R. 160, 201 S. W. 1014.

This article precludes one excusing himself from an unlawful act on the ground of mental derangement rendering him incapable of understanding the nature of the act where such derangement is brought about only by the recent and voluntary use of intoxicating liquors. Hooter v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 1093.

10. Combination of causes of insanity.—In prosecution for negligent homicide, mental condition produced by intoxicants could not justify an illegal act in and of itself; but it might do so, combined with two blows on the head, both of which knocked defendant down. Haynes v. State, 83 Cr. R. 6, 204 S. W. 430.

13. Charge of court.—On a trial for murder a charge defining insanity, as understood in criminal law, as when a person was, at the time of committing the act, laboring under such defect of reason as not to know the nature of the act; or, if he did know, that he did not know he was doing wrong; or, if he knew it was wrong, that he did not have the mental power to refrain from doing it; and instructing that intoxication produced by the voluntary recent use of intoxicants does not excuse crime or mitigate either the degree or the penalty; but that if defendant, at the time of the homicide, was so intoxicated, and such intoxication produced in his mind a state of insanity, as the term has been defined, he can be convicted of murder in the second degree, but not in the first,—is proper. Rather v. State, 25 Tex. App. 623, 9 S. W. 69.

In a prosecution for assault with intent to rape, evidence held to require an instruction as to temporary insanity from the use of intoxicating liquor, in mitigation of penalty. Morris v. State, 82 Cr. R. 13, 198 S. W. 141.

In prosecution for murder, charge on effect of drunkenness on defendant's part, in connection with charge on insanity, held to cover every phase of issue as to effect of defendant's drunkenness. Coates v. State, 83 Cr. R. 309, 203 S. W. 904.

In prosecution for murder, defendant's intoxication, together with fact that he received two blows on the head, which knocked him down, should have been submitted to jury on question of mental status and temporary insanity. Haynes v. State, 83 Cr. R. 6, 204 S. W. 430.

In a criminal prosecution, where there was evidence that defendant was under the influence of intoxicating liquors, it was error to refuse to instruct following the statute that, while intoxication or temporary insanity therefrom would not excuse the offense, it should be considered in mitigation of penalty. Haag v. State, 87 Cr. R. 604, 223 S. W. 472.

Art. 44. [44] Duress, a defense, when.

Power of control over accused.—The behest of an employer furnishes no excuse for the commission of an offense. Cassl v. State, 86 Cr. R. 369, 216 S. W. 1099.

Art. 45. [45] Accidents excused, when.

Intent.—In a prosecution under art. §20aa, as amended, against the president and general manager of a corporation, based on the operation by the corporation of a motor car on which the seal assigned by the highway department was not displayed, it is a defense that defendant procured a seal for such car, as he did for all the others, and gave orders for its attachment, which orders were not carried out, through a change in the personnel of the corporation's servants, and that defendant was ignorant that the car was operated without a seal. Axtell v. State, 86 Cr. R. 264, 216 S. W. 394.

Where defendant fired a shot at one person, with malice, intending to kill him, the fact that it wounded another, whom he did not intend to kill, would not excuse him from liability for assault with intent to murder. Jones v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 122.

Art. 46. [46] No mistake of law excuses.

See Pettit v. State, 28 Tex. App. 240, 14 S. W. 127.
Cited, Vaughn v. State, 86 Cr. R. 255, 219 S. W. 206; Busby v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 419.

Art. 47. [47] Mistake of fact, excuse, when.

Mistake of fact.—Defendant is not guilty of a violation of a pure food law (arts. 698-716) simply because sulphite is found in sausage meat sold by him; it being necessary that the sulphite be added willfully and knowingly, in view of arts. 46, 47, 704, 710, 711, and 715. Vaughn v. State, 86 Cr. R. 255, 219 S. W. 206.

In prosecution for aggravated assault, sole ground of aggravation charged being that injured party was a female, accused should be afforded the benefit of the law as applied in criminal cases of an honest mistake of fact if the prosecuting witness was wearing the apparel of a man and presented the appearance of one, and accused was misled into the belief that she was a man, without fault or want of care upon his part, since such mistake would have mitigated the offense. Vyoral v. State (Cr. App.) 224 S. W. 889.

In a prosecution for bigamy where appellant claimed and testified that at the time of the second marriage he believed that a decree of divorce had been entered dissolving the former marriage, court erred in excluding under the hearsay rule testimony of defendant's sister that she had related to defendant that she had had a conversation with a lawyer whom defendant had employed to bring suit for divorce, and that such lawyer had told her that the divorce had been granted, being original testimony going to show the information upon which defendant acted in entering into the second marriage. Busby v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 419.

Art. 51. [51] Intention presumed.

See Hartman v. State, 85 Cr. R. 582, 213 S. W. 936.
Cited, Stooksbury v. Swan, 85 Tex. 563, 22 S. W. 963.

Instructions.—In a prosecution for manslaughter, instruction that if defendant struck and killed deceased, but without intention to kill, and defendant had not provoked the difficulty, or by his own wrongful acts had not produced the necessity of taking decedent's life, etc., then he was not guilty of a higher offense than that of an aggravated assault, held erroneous as shifting the burden of proof and requiring the jury to find beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant struck and killed deceased, and also that in making the assault he was not justified. Mason v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 952.

Art. 52. [52] Burden of proof on defendant, when.

2. Burden of proof on defendant and charge of court thereon.—In a murder prosecution, where the state, over defendant's objection, introduced evidence that the cause of the killing was insulting conduct towards defendant's wife, thus assuming the burden of reducing the offense to manslaughter, a judgment of conviction should be reversed. (Per Davidson, P. J.) Bibb v. State, 83 Cr. R. 616, 205 S. W. 135.

To bring unlawful homicide within the grade of manslaughter as against that of murder, the burden is not on accused to prove the mitigating circumstances, but he is entitled to have the offense mitigated to the grade of manslaughter, if there is evidence producing in the minds of the jury a reasonable doubt as to which of the grades of the offense he should be convicted of. Moore v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 218.

In a prosecution for statutory rape upon a female between the ages of 15 and 18 under art. 1063, where the defense was previous unchaste character, accused had the burden of showing her unchaste character, not by reputation, but by specific acts. Norman v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 991.

10. — Bigamy.—In a prosecution for bigamy, where defendant asserted that on the morning of the day when the marriage took place he was rendered unconscious by partaking of some kind of liquid, and knew nothing of the marriage, the burden of establishing such defense was on him. Burgess v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 182.

OF OFFENSES AND PUNISHMENTS

CHAPTER ONE

DEFINITION AND DIVISION OF OFFENSES

Art.

53. "Offense" defined.

55. Felonies and misdemeanors defined.

Art.

56. Felonies subdivided.

Article 53. [53] "Offense" defined.

What constitutes "offense."—Custom for superintendent of schools of city to chastise pupils existed in violation of principles of civil law and of provision of Criminal Code denouncing use of unlawful violence upon another's person, and custom was not defense to superintendent when sued for assault by pupil whom he chastised. Prendergast v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 196 S. W. 246.

Charging a number of distinct felonies in one count of an indictment violates the right of accused under Bill of Rights, § 10, to demand the nature and cause of the accusation against him, since an offense is but one act or omission forbidden by positive law under this article, so that the defect is not a matter of form, but of substance, and warrants a reversal, notwithstanding Code Cr. Proc. 1916, art. 476. Todd v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 515.

Art. 55. [55] Felonies and misdemeanors defined.

PRINCIPALS

Art.

74. Who are principals.
75. Same.
76. Same.

Art.

77. Same.
78. Same.

Article 74. [74] Who are principals.

1. Acting with others and presence at commission of crime in general.—Mere presence of an accused when an offense is committed will not make him guilty, since there must be some character of guilty connivance or participation. Davis v. State, 85 Cr. R. 15, 209 S. W. 749; Anderson v. State, 85 Cr. R. 411, 213 S. W. 639.

Principal not only may perform some antecedent act in furtherance of the commission of the crime, but when it is actually committed is doing his part of the work assigned him, in connection with the plan and furtherance of the common purpose, whether he is present where the main fact is to be accomplished or not. Burow v. State, 85 Cr. R. 133, 210 S. W. 805.

The mere fact that a conspiracy is shown does not make all parties to the conspiracy principals, whether they were present or not when the offense was committed. Id.

When the offense is committed by the perpetration of different parts, which constitute one entire whole, it is not necessary that the offenders should be in fact together at the perpetration of the offense to render them liable as principals. Id.

Parties engaged in conspiracy to commit crime performing different acts in furtherance thereof are "principals" under the statute, whether present bodily at the place of the offense or not. Id.

One may be a principal who is not bodily present when the offense is committed. Middleton v. State, 86 Cr. R. 307, 217 S. W. 1046.

During continuance of conspiracy the acts of each conspirator in furtherance of the common design are the acts of all, and each would be a principal in any crime committed in the execution of such design. Id.

Where person who did not actually commit crime was prosecuted as a principal, the evidence must show that at the time of the commission of the offense the parties must have been acting together, each doing some part in the execution of the common purpose. Id.

All persons are principals who are guilty of acting together in the commission of an offense where act was done in pursuance of a common intent, whether all were actually bodily present on the ground when the offense was actually committed or not. Id.

Where two families engaged in a gun fight, and the son of accused fired the shot which killed deceased, accused was not chargeable with the killing, unless he and his son were acting together as principals. Rasberry v. State (Cr. App.) 224 S. W. 1093.

To bigamy, as to all other offenses, applies the law of principal and accessory, and one knowingly aiding and abetting, even as a party, is a principal; so a woman who knowingly married a married man is a principal. Burgess v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 182.

Where act of killing deputy sheriff was one of the reasonable consequences of an attempted jail delivery, one taking part therein was guilty of murder, though there was no evidence of an express agreement to take the life of the deputy. Israel v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 984.

2. Act and Intent.—Defendant, owner of hog which died otherwise than by slaughter, and person who sold meat for him, being coconspirators in so doing, act of one within scope and duration of conspiracy was binding on other, so whether defendant's agent was innocent or guilty through lack of or possession of knowledge of way hog died, his act in selling meat was one in which defendant was guilty. Cozine v. State, 87 Cr. R. 92, 220 S. W. 102.

3. Distinguished from accomplice.—If calf was stolen when accused was not bodily present, but pursuant to conspiracy in which he performed a part in furtherance of common design, accused would be liable as principal under this article, and not as accomplice under article 79. Simpson v. State, 81 Cr. R. 389, 196 S. W. 835.

4. Knowledge and concealment of crime.—That defendant's alleged coconspirator may have placed poison in the food of deceased, husband of defendant, and that she knew in advance that coconspirator was going to do it, did not make her a principal, where she did not prepare the poison, or place it in the food of deceased, and was not present at the time of the homicide. Roebuck v. State, 85 Cr. R. 524, 213 S. W. 656.

There are six ways in which a party may be a principal, in only two of which it is necessary that he be actually present, and where A. actually commits the offense, but B. keeps watch so as to prevent the interruption of A., or where A. actually commits the offense but B. at the time of such commission is endeavoring to secure the safety or concealment of A., or A. and B., B.'s presence at the scene of commission of crime is unnecessary. Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 410.

6. Misdemeanors in general.—Defendant, having induced another to make assault, is guilty of assault; distinction between principal and accomplice not being recognized in misdemeanors. Latham v. State, 81 Cr. R. 566, 196 S. W. 839.

As a general rule, all guilty participants in misdemeanor are principals. Cozine v. State, 87 Cr. R. 92, 220 S. W. 102.

7. Specific crimes—Abortion.—One who has been unduly intimate with a female, and arranges with a physician for an abortion, and takes the female to the physician, is guilty as a principal, although not actually present on occasion of premature birth; what was done being result of conspiracy. Hammett v. State, 84 Cr. R. 635, 209 S. W. 661, 4 A. L. R. 347.

8. — Assault.—Defendant, having induced another to make assault, is guilty of assault; distinction between principal and accomplice not being recognized in misdemeanors. Latham v. State, 81 Cr. R. 566, 196 S. W. 839.

In the case of a misdemeanor, as a single assault, all parties are regarded as principals. Lewis v. State, 86 Cr. R. 6, 215 S. W. 303.

9. — Assault with intent to murder.—If, after accused cut prosecutor, accused's brother shot prosecutor to defend accused from apparent attack by prosecutor, brother not knowing of original difficulty and finding accused and prosecutor in controversy, accused would be responsible as principal only for cutting, and not for shooting. Soria v. State, 83 Cr. R. 343, 203 S. W. 57.

13. — Burglary.—Act of receiving stolen property some hours after it was taken from house with knowledge that it was stolen would not make recipient principal in burglary, although he could be prosecuted for receiving fruits of crime. Robertson v. State, 81 Cr. R. 378, 195 S. W. 602, 6 A. L. R. 853.

If defendant, in connection with another, committed a burglary, he was guilty equally with other. Bega v. State, 81 Cr. R. 635, 197 S. W. 1109.

One present, aiding and encouraging others to go into house to commit burglary, is principal, although he does not go into house. Coleman v. State, 83 Cr. R. 86, 200 S. W. 1087.

The mere presence of defendant at the scene of a burglary would not make him guilty as a principal. Meredith v. State, 85 Cr. R. 239, 211 S. W. 227.

17. — Homicide.—Defendant held not responsible for death of decedent, stabbed by defendant's father or by his brother, acting independently of defendant. Wallace v. State, 82 Cr. R. 588, 200 S. W. 407.

If an accused did not enter into a conspiracy to kill, and did not take part in the homicide, or did not, knowing the unlawful purpose of his companions, aid or encourage them in the commission of the act, he would not have been guilty of the crime, though he was present, but if he was a party to such conspiracy, or, knowing the unlawful purpose of his companions, aided or encouraged them in their unlawful act, he might be guilty, though he was not at the scene of the killing. Funk v. State, 84 Cr. R. 402, 208 S. W. 509.

Where defendant, who was present when his son killed deceased, was charged with murder an instruction that if defendant and his son had entered into an agreement to kill deceased and agreed to act together in so doing and had previously formed a design in which the minds of the two united and concurred in the common intent to take the life of deceased, and in pursuance of said common intent of both defendant, acting in conjunction with his son, took the life of deceased, then he was guilty of murder, is not erroneous. Henderson v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 535.

One who knowingly engages in common with another in an unlawful enterprise having for its purpose the death or serious bodily injury of another is guilty of such crime whether it is intended that his own hand or that of another shall strike the fatal blow, and hence an instruction that defendant could not be convicted unless he intended to take the life of deceased or inflict upon him serious bodily injury was properly refused. Monday v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 531.

18½. — Rape.—Where accused held the victim while another raped her, accused was guilty of rape, under the law of principals, unless insane. Dodd v. State, 83 Cr. R. 160, 201 S. W. 1014.

20. — Theft.—Defendant was not guilty of hog theft as principal even if he knew it was another's hog which he was asked to haul from place of killing to his house. Williams v. State, 82 Cr. R. 215, 199 S. W. 296.

Defendant, who agreed to purchase from cattle thieves cattle to be stolen by them, and who encouraged the theft and furnished arms and a wagon to aid in its perpetration, but who was not present at the commission of the crime and committed no act in furtherance thereof, was not a principal, but merely an accomplice. Burow v. State, 85 Cr. R. 133, 210 S. W. 805.

To hold defendant guilty as principal in prosecution for theft of mules, it must appear that he was one of the individuals who took the mules or at the time of taking was doing something in aid of those who did the taking. Benavides v. State, 85 Cr. R. 375, 212 S. W. 658.

21. — Violations of local option and prohibition laws.—A conviction for the unlawful selling of intoxicating liquors cannot be had under the Dean Law, in view of section 31 thereof (art. 588¼o), making purchase unlawful, and section 40 (art. 588¼ss), which seeks to compel offenders to testify, and of arts. 74–83, defining principals, accomplices, and accessories, where the witness purchasing the liquor was not corroborated as required by Code Cr. Proc. 1911, art. 301. Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 486.

Where the prosecuting witness and another, discovering that defendant was not at home, found him in another place, and defendant, in response to an inquiry as to where the prosecuting witness could procure whisky, stated that he had a cotton picker who could furnish liquor, etc., but defendant was not present at the sale, he is not guilty as a principal, for he was not present, he did not keep watch, he did not assist in the unlawful act, he did not endeavor to secure the safety or concealment of the sellers, he did not employ an innocent agent, and he did not advise or agree to the commission of the offense. Chandler v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 105.

23. Indictment, proof and variance.—To convict one of rape under law of principals, the indictment need not allege the acts making accused a principal, but may directly charge the crime of rape. Dodd v. State, 83 Cr. R. 160, 201 S. W. 1014.

A principal offender, by reason of the part performed by him in the commission of an offense, may be convicted under an indictment charging him directly with its commission. Jones v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 122.

Defendant charged as a principal with automobile theft could not be convicted as an accomplice. Seebold v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 328.

24. Evidence.—Deceased having been engaged in difficulty with defendant's father and brother, evidence held not to authorize submission of law of principals. Wallace v. State, 82 Cr. R. 588, 200 S. W. 407.

Evidence held sufficient to show that defendant and his accomplice actually stole car, and that defendant was a principal with his accomplice, even if latter himself personally did the stealing. Smith v. State, 83 Cr. R. 485, 203 S. W. 771.

In prosecution for hog theft, evidence held to connect accused with offense as principal so that it was not error to fail to instruct as to distinction between accomplices and principals. Wilson v. State, 83 Cr. R. 593, 204 S. W. 321.

Evidence held sufficient to support conviction of murder under the law of principals. Davis v. State, 85 Cr. R. 163, 211 S. W. 589.

In prosecution for murder, facts held to show a conspiracy between defendant and person who did killing. Middleton v. State, 86 Cr. R. 307, 217 S. W. 1046.

26. Instructions.—Evidence warranting instructions, see notes under Code Cr. Proc. art. 735.

An instruction on principals that: "If so, then the law is that all are alike guilty, provided the offense was actually committed during the existence and execution of the common design and intent of all, whether in point of fact all were actually bodily present on the ground when the offense was actually committed or not"—was properly given. Funk v. State, 84 Cr. R. 402, 208 S. W. 509.

There was no error in telling jury that accused, who was indicted alone for negligent homicide but who was accompanied by another person who seemed to be acting with him, would be guilty, if he or his companion, acting together, committed the offense. Gribble v. State, 85 Cr. R. 52, 210 S. W. 215, 3 A. L. R. 1096.

In a prosecution for murder, instruction applying the doctrine of principals held too broad as covering the entire domain of principals, not merely those parts directly applicable to the facts of the case. Walsh v. State, 85 Cr. R. 208, 211 S. W. 241.

Where person who did not actually commit crime was prosecuted as a principal, the evidence must show, and the charge of the trial court submit, that at the time of the commission of the offense the parties must have been acting together, each doing some part in the execution of the common purpose. Middleton v. State, 86 Cr. R. 307, 217 S. W. 1046.

The court should follow the statutory law in instructing on principals. White v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 511.

Art. 75. [75] Same.

Giving encouragement.—One present, aiding and encouraging others to go into house to commit burglary, is principal, although he does not go into house. Coleman v. State, 83 Cr. R. 86, 200 S. W. 1087.

A person acting with another in the taking of an automobile for the purpose of converting it into money was guilty of theft, although the automobile was actually taken by such other person. Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 1105.

In a prosecution for receiving stolen goods and for larceny, on theory of conspiracy, held, that defendant who encouraged another to steal automobiles, agreeing to buy the stolen cars at a certain price, the thief having no further interest in either car or proceeds, was not a principal to the theft. Kolb v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 210.

Instructions.—An instruction that, if F. or B. unlawfully, etc., shot and killed deceased, and if defendant was present and participated in the homicide, or, knowing the unlawful intention of F. and B. and of each or either to shoot and kill deceased, encouraged them by words or acts in the commission of the offense, and was a principal with them in its commission, he was guilty, was not erroneous as not clearly or sufficiently stating the grounds upon which he might be convicted as a principal. Monday v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 831.

An instruction that one who is present at the time and place an offense is actually committed, and, knowing the unlawful intent and purpose of the person committing the offense, either participates in the commission or encourages the person engaged in it knowing his unlawful purpose and intent, by words, signs, deeds, or acts, is a principal, and alike guilty with the one committing the offense, though not in the exact language of this article, sufficiently states the principle embraced therein, and is not erroneous. Id.

Art. 76. [76] Same.

See Middleton v. State, 86 Cr. R. 307, 217 S. W. 1046; Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 486.

Theft.—A person who was four miles distant at the time when certain other persons stole a number of hogs, and who did not assist in the theft, and was not endeavoring to secure the safety or concealment of the offenders, is not a principal, though he made preparations to slaughter and pack the hogs, and assisted in so doing when they were brought to his house. Per Hurt, J., dissenting. Watson v. State, 21 Tex. App. 598, 17 S. W. 550.

Art. 77. [77] Same.

See Middleton v. State, 86 Cr. R. 307, 217 S. W. 1046; Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 486.

Employing person not punishable.—In a prosecution for forgery consisting of writing in a check a larger amount than authorized by its maker, the fact that the defendant used an innocent agent to fill out the fraudulent check which defendant indorsed did not release defendant. Duncan v. State, 86 Cr. R. 191, 215 S. W. 853.

Art. 78. [78] Same.

Procuring or assisting.—One who purposely removes a possible or probable witness for the purpose of preventing the witnessing by such person of the proposed crime, and who is keeping such person away, is a principal within this article. Middleton v. State, 86 Cr. R. 307, 217 S. W. 1046.

One who procured another to commit murder and was present at the time of the killing was a principal. Sapp v. State, 87 Cr. R. 606, 223 S. W. 459.

Instructions.—An instruction that, if F. or B. unlawfully, etc., shot and killed deceased, and if defendant was present and participated in the homicide, or, knowing the unlawful intention of F. and B. and of each or either to shoot and kill deceased, encouraged them by words or acts in the commission of the offense, and was a principal with them in its commission, he was guilty, was not erroneous as not clearly or sufficiently stating the grounds upon which he might be convicted as a principal. Monday v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 831.

ACCOMPLICES

Article 79. [79] Accomplice, who is.

See Parker v. State, 24 Tex. App. 61, 5 S. W. 653; West v. State, 28 Tex. App. 1, 11 S. W. 635.

1. Accomplice in general.—An “accomplice,” is one who has completed his offense before the crime is actually committed, and whose liability attaches after its commission, by virtue of his previous acts in bringing it about through the agency of or in connection with third parties. Burow v. State, 85 Cr. R. 133, 210 S. W. 805.

A positive agreement to commit a felony constitutes a conspiracy, whether the felony is afterwards executed or not; but, where the party is charged as an accomplice, there must be a crime in pursuance to the agreement, and the accomplice must advise, commend, or agree to furnish means or aid in order to connect him with it. Cone v. State, 86 Cr. R. 291, 216 S. W. 190.

2. Actual complicity between accomplice and principal necessary.—To prove conspiracy to commit crime, it is not necessary to prove that the defendants came together and actually agreed in terms to have that design and pursued by common means, proof that they pursued the same objects performing different parts thereof so as to complete it with a view to the attainment of the same object being sufficient. Burow v. State, 85 Cr. R. 133, 210 S. W. 805.

7. Accessory before the fact.—If calf was stolen when accused was not bodily present, but pursuant to conspiracy in which he performed a part in furtherance of common design, accused would be liable as principal under art. 74, and not as accomplice under this article. Simpson v. State, 81 Cr. R. 389, 196 S. W. 835.

One having knowledge that principals intended to obtain money by conspiracy and false representation, who aided and encouraged it, adopted the acts of the principals which preceded his entry into the scheme. Gerber v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 334.

27. Particular crimes—Theft.—Defendant, who agreed to purchase from cattle thieves cattle to be stolen by them, and who encouraged the theft and furnished arms and a wagon to aid in its perpetration, but who was not present at the commission of the crime and committed no act in furtherance thereof, was not a principal, but merely an accomplice. Burow v. State, 85 Cr. R. 133, 210 S. W. 805.

That defendant previous to taking advised theft and gave information touching preparation for the offense would tend to show that he was not a principal, but an “accomplice,” defined, as one not present at the commission of the offense. Benavides v. State, 85 Cr. R. 375, 212 S. W. 653.

To convict defendant as an accomplice to theft of automobile charged to have been stolen by P., it is necessary to prove that P. was a principal, and that defendant advised and encouraged him to commit the theft, and that defendant was to receive the stolen automobile and pay therefor. Cone v. State, 86 Cr. R. 291, 216 S. W. 190.

28. Violations of liquor laws.—In a prosecution for possession of intoxicating liquor not for medicinal, mechanical, scientific, or sacramental purposes, a purchaser of liquor will, under the Dean Law, be deemed an “accomplice,” and a conviction cannot be had on his uncorroborated testimony, for the term “accomplice,” as used in Vernon’s Ann. Code Cr. Proc. 1916, art. 801, is used in a different sense from the term as used in Pen. Code 1911, art. 79, and includes any person connected with the crime by unlawful act or omission transpiring either before, at, or after the commission of the offense, and under such definition purchaser is an accomplice. Chandler v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 107.

33. Evidence.—Evidence in proof of a conspiracy to commit crime will generally, from the nature of the case, be circumstantial. Burow v. State, 85 Cr. R. 133, 210 S. W. 805.

35. Instructions.—In prosecution of defendant as an accomplice to theft of automobile, held, that jury should have been instructed that the state must prove first that P. was a principal and committed the theft. Cone v. State, 86 Cr. R. 291, 216 S. W. 190.

ACCESSORIES

Article 86. [86] Who is an accessory.

Particular crimes—Burglary or theft.—One who merely hauls away for a thief the articles stolen is not an accessory. Garcia v. State, 81 Cr. R. 316, 195 S. W. 196.

Article 89. [89] Accomplice may be tried before principal.

Evidence.—Where defendant was indicted as an accomplice it is necessary to prove the guilt of the principal as a part of case against defendant. Sapp v. State, 87 Cr. R. 606, 223 S. W. 459.

Art. 91. [91] Can not be witnesses for each other, but may sever.

Witnesses.—One indicted as principal with defendant for same crime was not available to him as witness, under Code Cr. Proc. art. 791, or this article. Terrell v. State, 81 Cr. R. 647, 197 S. W. 1107.

Defendant, charged by information with unlawful assembly, codefendants being charged therewith by separate informations, having complied with Code Cr. Proc. art. 727, in making his application for severance, trial court was without discretion to overrule it without sufficient reasons, shown in record. Ligon v. State, 82 Cr. R. 147, 198 S. W. 787.

Art. 148a. Persons or corporations liable to gross receipts tax engaging in business without obtaining permit.—Any person, company, firm, partnership, corporation, unincorporated company or association, transacting business in this State upon which a gross receipts tax is required by law to be paid, without having first obtained a permit to do so, or transacting such business after its permit so to do has been suspended, as provided in this Act, shall be liable to a penalty of not less than $50.00 nor more than $500.00 daily for each day's business which is transacted in violation of this Act. ### OCCUPATION TAX ON SOLICITING ORDERS IN LOCAL OPTION DISTRICTS, COLD STORAGE, AND C. O. D. SHIPMENT OFFICES

Articles 150-156. [Superseded.]

Explanatory.—These articles, imposing an occupation tax on the solicitation of orders in local option districts, and on cold storage and C. O. D. shipment offices, have been rendered inoperative by the amendment of art. 16, § 20, of the State Constitution, and by Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 78, post. arts. 588¼-588½tt.

CHAPTER SEVEN

OCCUPATION TAX ON DEALERS IN NON-INTOXICATING MALT LIQUORS

Art. 157. Persons selling non-intoxicating malt liquors as a beverage.	Art. 158. To file application for license and pay collector the tax. 160. Providing penalty for violation.
---	---

Article 157. Persons selling non-intoxicating malt liquors as a beverage.

Validity.—This article though intended to aid enforcement of laws against sale of intoxicating liquors, is not void under Const. art. 16, § 20, nor under Const. art. 8, § 2, because Acts 31st Leg. (1st Called Sess.) c. 17, imposes different tax on business of selling intoxicating malt liquors. Claunch v. State, 82 Cr. R. 355, 199 S. W. 483.

The Legislature has power to prohibit, as a police regulation, sale of nonintoxicating malt liquors in territory where prohibition is in force. Claunch v. State, 83 Cr. R. 382, 203 S. W. 891.

Repeal.—Art. 496, defining as a disorderly house a place in prohibition territory where nonintoxicating malt liquors are sold, is in direct conflict with and repeals arts. 157, 158, 160, levying an annual occupation tax on such business in prohibition territory, and no conviction can be had for failure to acquire the license. Claunch v. State, 83 Cr. R. 382, 203 S. W. 891.

Construction in general.—Nonintoxicating malt liquor is a fermented malt liquor, containing alcohol in quantities insufficient to produce intoxication when used as a beverage. Claunch v. State, 83 Cr. R. 382, 203 S. W. 891.

Evidence.—In prosecution for engaging in business of selling nonintoxicating malt liquors without payment of tax, evidence held insufficient to sustain conviction. Cheves v. State, 81 Cr. R. 613, 197 S. W. 716.

Art. 158. To file application for license and pay collector the tax.

CHAPTER NINE

DEALING IN PUBLIC LANDS BY OFFICERS

Article 164. [123] Officers not to deal in public lands.

What constitutes "public lands."—The term "public lands," as used in this article, is not restricted to unappropriated public domain, but includes school lands. Cotulla v. Laxson, 60 Tex. 443.

County surveyors.—A contract by a county surveyor, whereby he was to receive a greater compensation for his work than the law allowed, is void. Keith v. Fountain, 3 Civ. App. 391, 22 S. W. 191.

"Public land," is not limited to the unappropriated public domain, but includes school lands, and, as the issuance of a certificate of occupancy does not completely divest the state of its title, the county surveyor is incompetent to acquire the right or interest of an occupant who has not received a certificate but a patent. De Shazo v. Eubank (Com. App.) 222 S. W. 976, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) 191 S. W. 369.

TITLE 4 A

OF OFFENSES AGAINST THE UNITED STATES

Art.	Art.
173½. Disloyal or abusive language.	173½j. Transportation of women for unlawful sexual intercourse with members of military or naval forces of United States, etc.
173½a. Same.	173½k. Transportation of women accompanied by members of military or naval forces of United States for purpose of unlawful sexual intercourse.
173½b. Mutilation, defacing, etc., flag of United States.	173½l. Owner, etc., of house permitting unlawful sexual intercourse with members of military or naval forces of United States.
173½c. Display of enemy flag, etc.	173½m. Transportation of members of military or naval forces of United States, etc., to houses of prostitution, etc.
173½d. Arrests.	173½n. Punishment.
173½e. Venue of offenses.	173½o. Definitions.
173½f. Reports of violations of act.
173½g. Soliciting sexual intercourse with members of military or naval forces of United States, etc.
173½h. Sexual intercourse by women with venereal diseases with members of military or naval forces of United States.
173½i. Transportation of members of military or naval forces of United States, etc., for purposes of unlawful sexual intercourse.

Article 173½. Disloyal or abusive language.—If any person shall, at any time or place within this State, during the time the United States of America is at war with any other nation, use any language in the presence and hearing of another person, of and concerning the United States of America, the entry, or the continuance, of the United States of America in the war or of and concerning the army, navy, or marine corps of the United States of America, or of and concerning any flag, standard, color, or ensign of the United States of America, or any imitation thereof, or the uniform of any officer of the army of the United States of America, which language is disloyal to the United States of America, or abusive in character, and calculated to bring into disrepute the United States of America, the entry, or continuance, of the United States of America in the war, the army, navy, marine corps of the United States of America, or any flag, standard, color, or ensign of the United States of America, or any imitation thereof, or the flag, color, standard, or ensign, or the uniform of any officer of the army of the United States of America, or is of such nature as to be reasonably calculated to provoke a breach of the peace, if said in the presence and hearing of a citizen of the United States of America, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by confinement in the State penitentiary for any period of time not less than two years, nor more than twenty-five years. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 8, § 1.]

Took effect March 11, 1918.

Validity.—The prohibition of the use of disloyal language per se as a war measure is a subject of federal legislation, and not within the purview of the regulatory power of the state, and the Disloyalty Act infringes upon the exclusive domain of federal legislation, in that the gravamen of the offense is the use of disloyal language, and not breach of the peace. Ex parte Meckel, 87 Cr. R. 120, 220 S. W. 81.

The Disloyalty Act, prohibiting the use of disloyal talk of such nature as to be reasonably calculated to provoke a breach of the peace while the government is at war, is violative of Bill of Rights, § 8, relating to free speech, freedom of the press, etc. Id.

A state has the power to pass laws making it a felony to utter disloyal statements in the presence of an American citizen while the country is at war which may cause a breach of the peace. Id.

The disloyalty Act is invalid. Schellenger v. State, 87 Cr. R. 411, 222 S. W. 246.

What constitutes offense.—To constitute an offense under this act, the language complained of must be both disloyal and calculated to provoke breach of the peace, and must have been said in the hearing of a citizen of the United States. Ex parte Acker, 85 Cr. R. 364, 212 S. W. 500.

Indictment.—The word "or" in this article, was intended to be and should be read "and," and each element of the offense must be charged conjunctively. Fromme v. State, 85 Cr. R. 336, 212 S. W. 501.

Review.—Where appeal from a conviction under this act, came up without any bills of exceptions or statement of facts in the record, and motion for new trial only questioned the sufficiency of the evidence to support verdict, and court, on examination, finds that indictment appears to follow language of statute, and that language imputed to defendant, if uttered, violated the law, the conviction would be affirmed. Meyer v. State, 85 Cr. R. 168, 212 S. W. 504.

Discharge on habeas corpus.—In habeas corpus proceedings for discharge of prisoner charged with violation of Disloyalty Act, court will not discharge prisoner, though complaint does not set out the language used, or show wherein it was calculated to provoke a breach of the peace, and does not allege that it was used in the presence and hearing of a United States citizen, since under Vernon's Code Cr. Proc. art. 206, the prisoner will not be discharged where there is probable cause to believe an offense has been committed. Ex parte Acker, 85 Cr. R. 364, 212 S. W. 500.

Art. 173½a. Same.—Any person who shall at any time and place within this State, during the time the United States is at war with any other nation, or nations, commit to writing or printing, or both writing and printing, by letters, words, signs, figures, or any other manner, and in any language, anything of and concerning the United States, the entry or continuance of the United States in the war, or of and concerning the army, navy, or marine corps of the United States, any flag, standard, color, or ensign of the United States, or any imitation thereof, or uniform of any of its officers, which is abusive in character, or disloyal to the United States, and reasonably calculated to bring into disrepute the United States, the entry, or continuance of the United States in the war, the army, navy, or marine corps of the United States, any flag, standard, color, or ensign of the United States, or that of any of its officers, and reasonably calculated to provoke a breach of peace if written to or in the presence of a citizen of the United States, or if said in the presence and hearing of any citizen of the United States shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by confinement in the State penitentiary for any period of time not less than two years, nor more than twenty-five years. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 173½b. Mutilation, defacing, etc., flag of United States.—Any person who shall, within this State, publicly or privately, mutilate, deface, defile, defy, tramp upon, or cast contempt upon, either by words or acts, any flag, standard, color, or ensign of the United States, or that of any of its officers, or on any imitation of either of them, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by confinement in the State penitentiary for any period of time not less than two years, nor more than twenty-five years. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 173½c. Display of enemy flag, etc.—Any person who, during the existence of the war between the United States and any other nation, or nations, shall knowingly, within this State, display, or have in his possession for any purpose whatsoever, any flag, standard, color, or ensign, or coat of arms of any nation with which the United States is at war, or any imitation thereof, or that of any State, subdivision, city, or municipality of any such nation, shall be deemed guilty of a felony, and shall be punished by confinement in the State penitentiary for any period of time not less than two years, nor more than twenty-five years. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 173½d. Arrests.—Any officer may, without warrant, arrest anyone violating any section of this Act, when the offense is committed in his presence, or within his view, or within the view of a magistrate. Any officer about to make such arrest shall be authorized to require any person violating any provisions of this Act to at once desist from such violation. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 173½e. Venue of offenses.—Indictments and prosecutions for violations of the provisions of this Act may be had in any county where the offense is committed, or in Travis County, the State of Texas; and for such purpose venues and jurisdiction is conferred upon the district courts of the counties of the State where such offenses are committed, and on the District Court of Travis County; provided, that the Suspended Sentence Laws of this State shall not apply in convictions had under this Act. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 173½f. Reports of violations of act.—It shall be the duty of any person who shall hear, see, or know of any person violating any of the provisions of this Act, to immediately report the same to some officer authorized to make arrests in such cases; and it shall be the duty of said officer to forthwith cause the arrest of such person, or persons, against whom such charge has been filed, and to immediately carry him before some officer whose duty it shall be to thoroughly investigate the charges, and to make such orders, and to enter such judgments, as to such person, as the law may direct. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 173½g. Soliciting sexual intercourse with members of military or naval forces of United States, etc.—It shall be unlawful for any person to make an appointment for, or solicit any person engaged in the service of the United States military or naval forces, or any of the military or naval forces of the Allies of the United States in the present war with Germany, to meet or come in contact with any woman, for the purpose of having unlawful sexual intercourse. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 16, § 1.]

Took effect March 20, 1918.

Constitutionality of act.—This act, entitled an act to prohibit soliciting soldiers and sailors to have intercourse with any "immoral woman," but prohibiting such solicitation for intercourse with "any woman," does not violate Const. art. 3, § 35, requiring a statute's subject to be expressed in its title. Ex parte Wilson, 85 Cr. R. 554, 213 S. W. 984.

The provision of this act that it shall not be subject to existing suspended sentence law (Vernon's Ann. Code Cr. Proc. 1916, art. 865b), does not violate Const. art. 3, § 36, prohibiting amendment of a statute by reference to its title, and requiring re-enactment at length. Id.

Art. 173<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>h. Sexual intercourse by women with venereal diseases with members of military or naval forces of United States.—It shall be unlawful for any woman knowing herself to be afflicted with a communicable venereal disease to have unlawful sexual intercourse with any person engaged in the service of the military or naval forces of the United States or any of the military or naval forces of the Allies of the United States in the present war with Germany. [Id., § 1a.]

Art. 173<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>i. Transportation of members of military or naval forces of United States, etc., for purposes of unlawful sexual intercourse.—It shall further be unlawful for any person operating any vehicle for hire to knowingly transport any person engaged in the service of the military or naval forces of the United States or any of the military or naval forces of the Allies of the United States in the present war with Germany to any place for the purpose of unlawful sexual intercourse. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 173<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>j. Transportation of women for unlawful sexual intercourse with members of military or naval forces of United States, etc.—It shall be unlawful for any person operating any vehicle for hire to knowingly transport any woman to meet any person in the service of the United States military or naval forces or any of the military or naval forces of the Allies of the United States in the present war with Germany for the purpose of unlawful sexual intercourse. [Id., § 3.]

Art. 173<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>k. Transportation of women accompanied by members of military or naval forces of United States for purpose of unlawful sexual intercourse.—It shall be unlawful for any person operating any vehicle for hire to knowingly transport any woman accompanied by any person in the military or naval forces of the United States or any of the military or naval forces of the Allies of the United States in the present war with Germany to any place for the purpose of unlawful sexual intercourse. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 173<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>l. Owner, etc., of house permitting unlawful sexual intercourse with members of military or naval forces of United States.—It shall be unlawful for the owner or keeper of any house to knowingly permit any person engaged in the service of the military or naval service of the United States, or any of the military or naval forces of the Allies of the United States in the present war with Germany, to meet or be with, in such house, any woman for the purpose of unlawful sexual intercourse. [Id., § 4a.]

Art. 173<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>m. Transportation of members of military or naval forces of United States, etc., to houses of prostitution, etc.—It shall be unlawful for any person operating any vehicle for hire or accommodation to knowingly transport any person engaged in the service of the military or naval forces of the United States, or any of the military or naval forces of the Allies of the United States in the present war with Germany, to any place where lewd women live, reside or assemble for the purpose of carrying on their avocation. [Id., § 4b.]

Art. 173½n. Punishment.—Any person violating any of the provisions of this Act shall be deemed guilty of a felony and be punished therefor by confinement in the State penitentiary for a term of years not more than five. In prosecution for violations of this Act the accused shall not be permitted to make application for the suspended sentence and no one shall upon conviction for violation of this Act be entitled to any of the benefits of the suspended sentence Act. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 173½o. Definitions.—By the term “any person engaged in the service of the United States military or naval forces, or any of the military or naval forces of the Allies of the United States in the present war with Germany” is meant any person who is actually enlisted in either branch of said service, and which fact is known to the person who is charged with the violation of this Act, or any person who wears a uniform or insignia, which is required of him by the Government. [Id., § 6.]

Art. 295—5. Violations of act; punishment.—Any candidate or other person who furnishes, gives, or delivers to another person any money or other thing of value to be used in violation of or for any purpose prohibited by the provisions of this Act, and any person who receives or accepts any money or thing of value to be used in violation of or for any purpose prohibited by the provisions of this Act, shall be deemed guilty of an offense, and upon conviction thereof, should be punished by a fine not to exceed $1000.00, or by confinement in the County jail for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment, or by confinement in the penitentiary for not less than one year, nor more than five years. [Id., § 7.]

Art. 295—6. Records of receipts and expenditures; contents; affidavits to; false oaths, etc., punishment.—Each and every candidate for nomination in a primary election and every campaign manager or assistant campaign manager for any such candidate, is hereby required to keep an accurate record of all funds received and disbursed for campaign purposes, which record shall be preserved for a period of twelve months, and shall be open to inspection of all opposing candidates and qualified voters, and every candidate and campaign manager is hereby required to file a sworn statement of all monies previously received or disbursed by him, including money borrowed and liabilities incurred but not paid, not more than thirty nor less than twenty-five days prior to the date of the primary election, and not more than twelve nor less than eight days prior to the date of the primary election, and not more than ten days after the date of the primary election. Each such statement shall include all items contained in all statements previously made in accordance with the requirements of this Section, if any, and shall include the names of all contributors to any campaign fund handled by the party making the same, and the names of all persons from whom any money has been received or from whom any money has been borrowed for such fund, and the names of all persons to whom disbursements exceeding ten ($10.00) dollars in amount have been made and the purpose of such disbursements. Such statement shall also set forth that it is as full and explicit as the party making it is able to make, and the party making it shall before some officer qualified to administer oaths, take and subscribe the following oath, which shall be filed with said statement:

"I do solemnly swear that the foregoing statement, filed herewith correctly shows all moneys received by me and disbursed by me or in my behalf or with my knowledge or consent through or by any other person in connection with the candidacy of _____ for the nomination for _____ before the _____ primary election, and that I have neither directly nor indirectly arranged or assented to, encouraged or connived at the spending of any money other than as shown in said statement, and that I have not violated any of the provisions of the laws of Texas governing primary elections of the expenditure of funds in connection with a candidacy for a nomination in such primary election in letter or in spirit."

[Id., § 8.]

TITLE 7

OF OFFENSES WHICH AFFECT THE FREE EXERCISE OF RELIGIOUS OPINION

Chap.

1. Disturbance of religious worship.

Chap.

2. Sunday laws.

CHAPTER ONE

DISTURBANCE OF RELIGIOUS WORSHIP

Article 296. [193] Disturbance of congregation in any manner.

Designation of offense.—Where a conviction is had under this article, the recognizance on appeal is fatally defective which recites that the offense is "willfully disturbing a congregation assembled for the purpose of public worship." Mullinix v. State, 32 Cr. R. 116, 22 S. W. 407.

A recognizance merely reciting that defendant stands charged with the offense of disturbance of religious worship is fatally defective, for failure to recite that the congregation was assembled for religious purposes, was conducting itself lawfully, and that the disturbance was willfully created. Morgan v. State, 32 Cr. R. 413, 23 S. W. 1107.

SUNDAY LAWS

Art.

299. Working on Sunday.

300. Not applicable, when.

301. Horse racing, gaming, etc., on Sunday.

Art.

302. Selling goods on Sunday.

303. Exceptions from operation of preceding article.

Article 299. [196] Working on Sunday.

Cited, Vogt v. State, 21 Tex. App. 331, 17 S. W. 624.

Labor.—Sale of engine oil on Sunday by dealer in automobile supplies held not permissible as work of necessity, where oil might have been obtained from one of the places excepted by art. 303. Grimes v. State, 82 Cr. R. 512, 200 S. W. 378.

Art. 300. [197] Not applicable, when.

Cited, Ex parte Sundstrom, 25 Tex. App. 133, 8 S. W. 207.

Work of necessity.—Sale of engine oil on Sunday by dealer in automobile supplies held not permissible as work of necessity, where oil might have been obtained from one of the places excepted by art. 303. Grimes v. State, 82 Cr. R. 512, 200 S. W. 378.

Art. 301. [198] Horse racing, gaming, etc., on Sunday.

Cited, Ex parte Sundstrom, 25 Tex. App. 133, 8 S. W. 207.

Art. 302. [199] Selling goods on Sunday.

Cited, Cottar v. State, 81 Cr. R. 659, 197 S. W. 987; Dillon v. State, 81 Cr. R. 660, 197 S. W. 987; Phillips v. State, 81 Cr. R. 658, 197 S. W. 988; Riggle v. State, 81 Cr. R. 658, 197 S. W. 988.

3. Municipal powers.—Ordinance allowing a moving picture show to remain open on Sunday cannot suspend this article, prohibiting them to run on Sunday with certain films. Zucarro v. State, 82 Cr. R. 1, 197 S. W. 982, L. R. A. 1918B, 354.

5. Construction.—This article is not affected by article 1480, making theaters public houses of amusements to be regulated by law and ordinance. Zucarro v. State, 82 Cr. R. 1, 197 S. W. 982, L. R. A. 1918B, 354.

That moving picture shows were invented subsequent to the enactment of this article, prohibiting certain amusements on Sunday, would not preclude statute prohibiting it if it came within classification defined therein. Id.

7. Elements of offense.—A recognizance, on appeal from a conviction for selling goods on Sunday, merely reciting that defendant stands charged with the offense of selling goods on Sunday, is insufficient, as failing to recite an offense, since the sale, to constitute an offense, must be made by a person belonging to one of the classes enumerated. Henderson v. State (Cr. App.) 23 S. W. 692.

10. Persons liable.—Dealer in wares, merchandise, and automobile supplies who sold engine oil on Sunday held not excepted from prohibition, conceding that garages are covered by exception in favor of livery stables. Grimes v. State, 82 Cr. R. 512, 200 S. W. 378.

It is no ground for quashing a complaint, for keeping open on Sunday a place of amusement, that it charges defendant as being the agent or employé of the proprietor. Ealey v. State, 87 Cr. R. 648, 224 S. W. 771.

15. Public amusements.—The words, "such other amusements," includes moving picture shows where they reproduce dramatic or theatrical performances or acrobatic or other displays such as pertain to the circus, or dancing, gymnastics, or amusements similar to those shown in variety theaters. Zucarro v. State, 82 Cr. R. 1, 197 S. W. 982, L. R. A. 1918B, 354.

Drama is story put in action, and theatrical performance is dramatic performance, and essential elements of circus and variety theater are performances or acts of those taking part, and motion picture produces drama without spoken word. Id.

There is no merit in motion to quash a complaint, on the ground that the Sunday law does not apply to moving picture shows; the charge being of keeping open on Sunday a place of amusement, to wit, a theater, an act expressly forbidden by such statute. Ealey v. State, 87 Cr. R. 648, 224 S. W. 771.

A person can be held for a violation of this article, prohibiting operating of theaters, circuses, and other amusements on Sunday, under a charge for operating a theater on Sunday, whether the performance was a tragedy, melodrama, or comedy, and one violated such article when he operated a moving picture show, although the screen depicted war pictures entitled "Under Four Flags," forming a part of the publicity work of a committee selected by the President during the war. Hegman v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 954.

16. Indictment, information and complaint.—A complaint and information for violating the Sunday law stating that defendant was a dealer "of" wares and merchandise instead of "in" wares and merchandise, as used in the statute, was not invalid. Helms v. State, 84 Cr. R. 621, 209 S. W. 657.

That the criminal complaint was filed on Sunday is not ground for quashing it. Ealey v. State, 87 Cr. R. 648, 224 S. W. 771.

19. Instructions and questions for jury.—Whether a moving picture theater and pictures constitute a theater or circus which cannot remain open on Sunday, is a question of law for the court and not a question of fact for the jury. Hegman v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 954.

23. Injunction.—An injunction will not issue to restrain the operation of a moving picture show on Sunday, where such operation constitutes a misdemeanor, and no property rights of complainant are involved. Barry v. State (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 304; State v. Barry (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 957.

Art. 303. [200] Exceptions from operation of preceding article.

See Ex parte Sundstrom, 25 Tex. App. 133, 8 S. W. 207.

Druggists.—Where defendant was accused of selling Florida water on Sundays, and the testimony of several physicians called as witnesses of the state was conflicting as to whether Florida water was a medicine, and defendant testified that he kept a drug, book and general store, and kept the article among his medicines, and sold it as such, that the evidence did not warrant a conviction. Todd v. State, 30 Tex. App. 667, 18 S. W. 642.

Livery stable keepers.—Garage is a place for the care and storage of motor vehicles, and in which they are kept for hire, and a livery stable is a place where horses are groomed, fed, and hired, and vehicles are kept for hire. Grimes v. State, 82 Cr. R. 512, 200 S. W. 378.

Garage keepers.—This article does not except dealer in automobile supplies under rule of ejusdem generis. Grimes v. State, 82 Cr. R. 512, 200 S. W. 378.

CHAPTER ONE OF PERJURY

Art.

304. "Perjury" defined.
305. Not perjury, when.

Art.

307. And about something past or present.
310. Punishment.

Article 304. [201] "Perjury" defined.

1. Elements of offense.—If witness in civil case had testified falsely, or signed false affidavit, in support of motion for new trial, that former testimony was false, he would have been guilty of perjury, but not of false swearing. Shipp v. State, 81 Cr. R. 328, 196 S. W. 840.

Defendant was guilty of perjury, where, before the grand jury investigating his relations with an unmarried woman not his wife, he willfully and deliberately, not laboring under mistake or excitement, made certain material false statements, even though such statements were not freely and voluntarily made, since one must tell the truth in every judicial proceeding even though he speaks under compulsion. Hardin v. State, 85 Cr. R. 220, 211 S. W. 233, 4 A. L. R. 1308.

4. — Affidavits.—Where a public school teacher, on making affidavit, as required by law, to the check drawn by the trustees on the county treasurer for his pay, makes a false statement, he may be prosecuted for perjury. O'Bryan v. State, 27 Tex. App. 339, 11 S. W. 443.

That false affidavit, filed in judicial proceeding, such as motion for new trial, was or was not attached to the motion did not affect question of perjury. Shipp v. State, 81 Cr. R. 328, 196 S. W. 840.

Where defendant attempted to bribe witness to make false affidavit, in support of motion for new trial, that his own testimony had been false, if witness made such affidavit, it was perjury. Id.

False affidavit obtained and filed with motion for new trial, to be used on the motion, was in a judicial proceeding, so that any falsity in it constituted perjury rather than false swearing. Id.

9. Evidence.—In prosecution for perjury in testifying at trial of one for arson, where indictment for arson, set out in indictment for perjury, named owner of the house burned, admission of testimony of an owner that house was in possession of and rented to party on trial for arson, as alleged, was not error. Herndon v. State, 82 Cr. R. 232, 198 S. W. 788.

In trial for perjury, court did not err in permitting court reporter to state, both from his recollection and from his stenographic notes taken at the time, what defendant swore to on the trial of another for arson. Id.

Evidence held to support a conviction of perjury. Allen v. State, 82 Cr. R. 416, 199 S. W. 633.

In prosecution for perjury, where defendant was not present at first difficulty, but claimed only to have been present when killing occurred, and testified to what he saw, details of first difficulty were inadmissible. Roberts v. State, 83 Cr. R. 139, 201 S. W. 998.

In prosecution for perjury committed while testifying as a witness, evidence of testimony given by accused at the trial at which the alleged perjury was committed may be testified to by the court stenographer at such trial. Roberts v. State, 83 Cr. R. 511, 204 S. W. 866.

In a prosecution for perjury, in which defendant was accused of falsely swearing that he had sexual intercourse with a woman prior to her alleged seduction by another, the woman's testimony of facts and conversations of her alleged seducer in consummating the offense, and of the birth of her child were inadmissible, where not connected with defendant. Ice v. State, 84 Cr. R. 418, 208 S. W. 345.

In a prosecution for perjury, alleged to have been committed before the grand jury, where the grand jury did not have a full written record of the testimony, it was proper to permit a grand juror to testify to defendant's oral testimony in full, particularly where there was no claimed conflict between the testimony so given and the part written. Id.

In prosecution for perjury by having made false statements before the grand jury investigating defendant's relations with a woman other than his wife in Hood county, testimony that defendant had taken the woman to a rescue home in another county, etc., was admissible. Hardin v. State, 85 Cr. R. 220, 211 S. W. 233, 4 A. L. R. 1308.

In prosecution for perjury where indictment alleged perjury of testimony given in previous trial in solido, the state must prove all such testimony to be false. Welch v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 301.

10. Instructions.—Court improperly instructed that under allegation of defendant's attempt to induce third person to commit perjury, jury would be justified in convicting of attempt to induce false swearing. Shipp v. State, 81 Cr. R. 328, 196 S. W. 840.

In prosecution for perjury, where state introduces proceedings in trial on which perjury was committed, if result of such trial was adverse to testimony of defendant charged with perjury, court must limit effect of evidence, otherwise such charge is unnecessary. Roberts v. State, 83 Cr. R. 139, 201 S. W. 998.

In prosecution for perjury, court on request should have given charge defining words "willfully" and "deliberately" in connection with perjury. Id.

In a prosecution for perjury, where the court charged that if defendant's statement before the grand jury investigating a criminal matter implicating defendant was made under mistake, agitation, or excitement, or unless the district attorney had warned defendant he did not have to make any statement, and that any statement might be used against him, etc., special charge that the jury would not consider for any purpose the statement made by defendant unless it was freely and voluntarily made was properly refused. Hardin v. State, 85 Cr. R. 220, 211 S. W. 233, 4 A. L. R. 1308.

Art. 305. [202] Not perjury, when.

See Steber v. State, 23 Tex. App. 176, 4 S. W. 880.

Art. 307. [204] And about something past or present.

Cited, Addison v. State, 85 Cr. R. 181, 211 S. W. 225.

Art. 310. [207] Punishment.

317d. False statement by live stock commission merchant as to average daily sales.

Article 312. [209] "False swearing," definition of.

4. Perjury distinguished.—If witness in civil case had testified falsely, or signed false affidavit, in support of motion for new trial, that former testimony was false, he would have been guilty of perjury, but not of false swearing. Shipp v. State, 81 Cr. R. 328, 196 S. W. 840.

Art. 316. [213] Witness before grand jury divulging proceedings, etc.

Issues, proof and variance.—In prosecution of witness before grand jury for having divulged its proceedings, testimony of person to whom defendant was alleged to have divulged the proceedings as to what defendant told him held a variance from the allegations of the indictment. Addison v. State, 85 Cr. R. 181, 211 S. W. 225.

Evidence.—In prosecution for divulging proceedings of grand jury, foreman of jury was properly permitted to testify that defendant was a witness before the jury and as to what he testified to when there, despite defendant's claim that truth, or falsity of his evidence before jury was not under investigation, and that foreman's testimony was in violation of his oath. Addison v. State, 85 Cr. R. 181, 211 S. W. 225.

Persons compelled to testify.—This article includes members of the grand jury as well as witnesses testifying before them in its prohibitive language, and in an inquiry before any judicial tribunal, where the members of the grand jury or those who have been witnesses before it are required to testify to any of the matters set forth herein, they are authorized so to testify by the last clause of the article. Addison v. State, 85 Cr. R. 181, 211 S. W. 225.

Art. 317c. False statement in affidavit of bidder for state supplies.—Any person making a false statement in any such affidavit shall be deemed guilty of a felony and shall be punished as now prescribed for that offense; provided, however, that in addition to any other county having venue of such offense Travis county shall also have venue of the same, and such person, regardless of where the offense was committed, may be indicted by the grand jury of Travis county and be tried in Travis county. Explanatory.—This article is a part of sec. 5 of Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 167. For the remainder of this act, see ante, Civ. St. arts. 7150¼-7150½p.

Art. 317d. Civil Statutes, ante] shall constitute false swearing as defined by the Penal Code of this State and shall be punished accordingly. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 91, § 11.]

CHAPTER THREE

OF SUBORNATION OF PERJURY AND FALSE SWEARING

Article 318. [214] Subornation of perjury, or false swearing.

Evidence.—In prosecution for attempt to induce another to commit perjury by making false affidavit, in support of motion for new trial, that testimony in civil case had been false, defendant had right to disprove any act relied on by state as to truth of evidence of witness, and to show fallacy of all such evidence, though state introduced only testimony stated in indictment. Shipp v. State, 81 Cr. R. 328, 196 S. W. 840.

In prosecution for attempt to induce another to commit perjury by filing, in support of motion for new trial, false affidavit falsifying testimony, defendant had right to show truthfulness of affidavit by direct or circumstantial evidence, by impeachment of witness, or by attack on circumstances corroborating him. Id.

Instructions.—In prosecution for attempt to induce another to commit perjury by making false affidavit, state having alleged general false statement in solido, court was required to charge that to convict entire affidavit must be proven false. Shipp v. State, 81 Cr. R. 328, 196 S. W. 840.

In prosecution for attempt to induce another to commit perjury, where indictment alleged particular amount of money offered such other, court improperly charged jury should find guilty if they believed defendant sought "by any means" to induce other to commit perjury. Id.

1. EXTORTION

Article 363. [256] Extortion by officers.

Elements of offense.—A contract by a county surveyor, whereby he was to receive a greater compensation for his work than the law allowed, is void. Keith v. Fountain, 3 Civ. App. 391, 22 S. W. 191.

3. PECULATION

Art. 373. [264] County or city officers trading in claims.

What acts illegal.—Under this article a contract between a sheriff, at the time ex officio tax collector of his county, and another, by which each party was to furnish equal amounts of money, to be invested in county scrip, and to divide the profits equally, is illegal. Read v. Smith, 60 Tex. 379.

4. NEPOTISM

Art. 382. Officers included.

Explanatory.—For the remainder of this act, see ante, Civ. St. arts. 2904aa-2904aaaa. The act took effect March 20, 1918.

Art. 420h. Same.—Any official or employee of the public free schools failing to perform his or her legal duty in connection with the administration of this law shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be subject to a fine of not more than five hundred dollars or removal of

For remainder of this act, see ante, Civ. St. arts. 2904aa-2904aaaa.

Art. 420i. Same.—Any teacher, principal, superintendent, trustee, or other school official having responsibility in the conduct of the work of the school, and failing to comply with this provision of the law shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof in proper court shall be subject to fine of not less than Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) and not more than One Hundred Dollars ($100.00), cancellation of certificate, or removal from office as the case may be, or both fine and cancellation of certificate or fine and removal from office. Each day shall be regarded as a separate offense, and it shall be the duty of the trustee, city or county superintendent, or ex-officio superintendent to inspect the schools regularly with regard to the enforcement of this Act and file charges promptly in the court in all cases of violation. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 80, § 2.]

Art. 420j. Failure to perform duties relating to certain communicable diseases.—Any local health officer, employee, inspector, physician, nurse, superintendent of clinic or hospital, druggist or other person who fails to perform the duties required of him in this Act, or violates any of the provisions of this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction therefor shall be fined in any sum not less than five nor more than fifty dollars, and each violation shall be a separate offense. Any health officer or other physician who shall willfully fail to perform the duties required of him in this Act shall, in addition to the penalties imposed by this Section forfeit his right and license to practice medicine within this State; and the district courts of the State shall have jurisdiction of suits for the forfeiture of such license in such cases, and the suit may be filed by any citizen of the State in the court having jurisdiction, under the ordinary rules of venue, and it shall be the duty of the county and district attorneys to represent the petitioners in such suit. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 85, § 12.]

Explanatory.—For remainder of this act, see ante, Civ. St. arts. 4605¼-4605¼k. The act took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

Any such appointee or employee, or the wife of such appointee or employee, or other person related to such appointee or employee within the third degree by affinity or consanguinity who shall violate any of the provisions of this Act, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction, shall be punished by dismissal from his office or employment, and be fined not less than Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) nor more than Two Hundred Dollars ($200.00). [Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 58, § 1.]

Took effect Nov. 15, 1921.

6. BARRATRY

Art. 421. [290] "Barratry" defined and punished.

Constitutionality.—Though, under the law of Texas, causes of action in tort as well as in contract are assignable, this article, as amended by Laws 1917, c. 133, § 1, forbidding the personal solicitation of employment to prosecute, defend, present, or collect any claim, is a reasonable regulation of the business of obtaining adjustment of claims and does not violate rights of liberty and property, or deny the equal protection of the laws, in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment. McCloskey v. Tobin, 252 T. S. 107, 40 Sup. Ct. 306, 64 L. Ed. 481; Ex parte McCloskey, 82 Cr. R. 531, 199 S. W. 1101.

Acts 35th Leg. c. 133, amending Pen. Code 1911, art. 421, so as to further define barratry and extend provision to all persons who might seek employment to present or collect claim, held not in violation of Const. art. 1, §§ 3 and 19, as depriving citizens of Texas of property, privileges, or immunities without due process of law, but valid in view of restrictions of every person's right to use his property to detriment of state, etc. Ex parte McCloskey, 82 Cr. R. 531, 199 S. W. 1101.

Barratry was offense at common law, and though Rev. St. 1911, art. 5686, allows assignment of unliquidated claim for damages for personal injury or other choses in action, state has right to denounce, as offense of barratry, solicitation of employment to collect such claims. Ex parte McCloskey, 82 Cr. R. 531, 199 S. W. 1101.

Elements of offense.—Petition in action to recover a money judgment, in the alternative to recover a leasehold interest in described realty, held not to show on its face, to render it demurrable, that plaintiff, in his alleged contract with defendants to file suit for cancellation of a former lease on which agreed rentals had not been paid, and therefore had terminated, but which remained a cloud on the title, was willfully guilty of any act or combination of acts denounced as barratry. Tunstill v. Grisham (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 272.

Evidence.—Evidence held insufficient to show that temporary guardian was appointed or had himself appointed for mere purpose of giving certain attorneys employment. McAllen v. Wood (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 433.

Effect on right of action.—A suitor is not barred from recovery because his attorney had violated the law in obtaining the employment. Kurz v. Soliz (Civ. App.) 231 S. W. 424.

7. COMPOUNDING CRIME

Art. 422. [291] Agreeing with offenders not to prosecute.

In general.—Defendant, who charged plaintiff with stealing, and, under duress of threats of murder and prosecution, forced him to assign vendor's lien notes, and secured conveyance from buyer from plaintiff, could not keep fruits of duress as against plaintiff on ground both were in pari delicto in contracting to stifle prosecution. Mallard v. Day (Civ. App.) 204 S. W. 245.

8. MALICIOUS PROSECUTION

Art. 423. [292] "Malicious prosecution" defined and punished.

In general.—The making of a motion for contempt cannot be the basis for a suit for malicious prosecution, in absence of a showing of arrest: an arrest being an essential element of such cause of action. Baten v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 217 S. W. 394.

9. FALSE PERSONATION

Art. 424. [293] Falsely pretending to be an officer.

Elements of offense.—If one falsely pretends to be a designated officer and in such character does an act claiming it to be official, he is guilty of false personation, whether the act be one which the officer might legally do, or he called upon to do, or not. Walker v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 853.

Indictment and information.—An information for false personation of an officer must set out the pretense charged with sufficient particularity to enable accused to know what office he is charged with assuming. Walker v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 853.

Issues, proof and variance.—An information, charging defendant with falsely pretending to be an executive officer of the state, county, and city, to wit, a deputy sheriff, a constable, deputy constable and a policeman, was not supported by proof that he said he was an "officer"; there being many other officers besides state officers. Walker v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 853.

Evidence.—That defendant's motives in going to a house which had been burglarized and asking permission to see if anything had been stolen may have been sinister, and that he may have been a confederate of the burglar will not justify conviction for false personation of an officer. Walker v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 853.

11. GENERAL PROVISIONS

Art. 426. [294] Wilful neglect of official duty.

See Patterson v. State, 83 Cr. R. 169, 202 S. W. 88.

Art. 427. Selection of jurors in certain counties.

See Patterson v. State, 83 Cr. R. 169, 202 S. W. 88.

Art. 428. Putting in or taking names from wheel illegally.

See Patterson v. State, 83 Cr. R. 169, 202 S. W. 88.

Art. 434a. Neglecting or refusing to exhibit weight or measure.—

Any person neglecting or refusing to exhibit any weight, measure, or weighing or measuring instrument of any kind, or appliances and accessories connected with any or all of such instruments or measures which are in his possession or under his control, to the State Superintendent, his deputy, inspector or to any local inspector or local sealer, for the purpose of allowing the same to be inspected and examined, as provided for in this Act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 131, § 26.]

For remainder of Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 131, see ante, Civ. St. arts. 7846¼, 7846¼g-7846¼zzz.

Art. 434b. Neglecting or refusing to exhibit articles sold at given weight or quantity.—Any person, who, by himself, or his employee, agent, or as the proprietor or manager, shall refuse to exhibit any article, commodity, produce or anything being sold or offered for sale at a given weight or quantity, or ordinarily so sold, to the State Superintendent, or to his deputy or to a sealer or his deputy, or to an inspector or local sealer for the purpose of allowing same to be tested and proved as to quantity contained therein, as provided for in this Act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. [Id., § 27.]

See note to art. 434a, ante.

CHAPTER ONE

UNLAWFUL ASSEMBLIES

Art.

435. "Unlawful assembly" defined.
445. To prevent any person from pursuing his labor.

Art.

450. Lawful meetings included if unlawful purpose is afterwards agreed on.

Article 435. [299] "Unlawful assembly" defined.

Elements of offense.—One charged with unlawful assembly may be convicted thereof, although others with whom he assembled were acquitted of the charge, so that less than the requisite number to constitute an unlawful assembly remained. Reynolds v. State, 82 Cr. R. 505, 199 S. W. 1092.

Indictment or information.—A complaint charging defendant with having taken part in an unlawful assembly with reference to two separate persons is not defective as charging separate and distinct offenses; unlawful assembly being one offense, though committed against two persons. Reynolds v. State, 82 Cr. R. 505, 199 S. W. 1092.

Art. 445. [309] To prevent any person from pursuing his labor.

Indictment, information or complaint.—Under Pen. Code 1911, arts. 435, 445, an indictment charging unlawful assembly as against a motorman and conductor of a street car, held not defective for failing to allege that the car was operated or run, or that it was intended to be operated or run, or as charging actual violence instead of unlawful assembly. Reynolds v. State, 82 Cr. R. 505, 199 S. W. 1092.

Art. 471. Vulgar or profane language over telephone.

Indictment, information or complaint.—Where complaint charged offense of using indecent language over telephone as committed in Wichita county, information founded thereon charging such offense in county of ——— will not support conviction, in view of Code Cr. Proc. art. 478, subd. 5. Mays v. State, 83 Cr. R. 218, 202 S. W. 733.

CHAPTER FOUR
UNLAWFULLY CARRYING ARMS

Art.	Art.
475. Unlawfully carrying arms.	479. Arrest without warrant; officer failing to arrest, punishable.
476. Not applicable, when and to whom.
477. Carrying arms in church or other assembly.

Article 475. [338] Unlawfully carrying arms.—If any person in this State shall carry on or about his person, saddle, or in his saddle bags any pistol, dirk, dagger, slung-shot, sword, cane, spear or knuckles made of any metal or any hard substance, bowie knife, or any other knife manufactured or sold for the purposes of offense or defense, he shall be punished by fine not less than $100.00 nor more than $500.00, or by confinement in the county jail for not less than one month nor more than one year. [Acts 1905, p. 56; Acts Jan. 30, 1889; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 91, § 1.]

Cited, Jacobs v. State, 28 Tex. App. 79, 12 S. W. 408.

4. Carrying in general.—Defendant held not guilty of unlawfully carrying pistol handed him by another, who had borrowed it and was taking it home, and who took the weapon back shortly after he gave it to defendant to keep temporarily. Wallace v. State, 82 Cr. R. 658, 200 S. W. 836.

Where a physician carried a pistol around in his obstetrical case, and upon drawing in front of his office and house and leaving his automobile he saw a young man with whom he had had trouble, and returned to his automobile and took the pistol from the case and either put it in his pocket or carried it in his hand, held that trial court was justified in convicting him for unlawfully carrying on or about his person a pistol. Robertson v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 236.

8. Intent of accused.—Lack of evil intent, or intent to violate the law, in carrying a pistol unlawfully, is no justification. Lewis v. State, 84 Cr. R. 499, 208 S. W. 516.

14. Carrying between residence and place of business.—One who carries a pistol from his residence to his place of business, for the purpose of cleaning it, is not guilty of unlawfully carrying weapons. Boissean v. State (App.) 15 S. W. 118.

Employé who was directed by employer to carry a pistol from one place of business to another may lawfully execute such order with the bona fide intent of leaving it at place to which it is carried, provided the pistol is not carried habitually or in roundabout ways, or while he is loitering along the streets or unnecessarily deviating from the route to the place to which it is being carried. Cassi v. State, 86 Cr. R. 369, 216 S. W. 1099.

A person may carry a pistol from his home to his store or from one store to another with the bona fide intent of leaving it at the place to which it is carried, provided pistol is not carried habitually or in roundabout ways or while loitering along streets or unnecessarily deviating from the route to the place to which it is being carried. Id.

The fact that accused would be justified in carrying a pistol from his place of business to his residence does not authorize him to arm himself and seek an antagonist, although he found him en route to his home. Moore v. State, 86 Cr. R. 502, 217 S. W. 1036.

While one might have a right to carry a pistol from his home to another place, as to a farm, if he intended to leave the pistol there, he would have no right to carry it from his home to his farm, or from farm to farm, and back and forth, or even occasionally, merely to have the pistol with him. Taylor v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 552.

15. Finding weapon and carrying it home.—One who found brass knuckles on highway and picked them up and was carrying them without any unlawful purpose was not guilty of crime. Tucker v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 796.

16. Carrying from place of gift or purchase.—Where defendant had made trade for pistol, and unexpectedly met seller at social gathering, who turned pistol over to defendant, who carried it home, defendant was not guilty of violation of pistol law. Gates v. State, 82 Cr. R. 655, 200 S. W. 841.

19. Carrying borrowed weapon home and returning same to lender.—One who borrows a pistol and carries it home by the most practicable route does not violate the law prohibiting unlawful carrying of a pistol. Wilson v. State, 86 Cr. R. 356, 216 S. W. 881.

In a prosecution for unlawfully carrying arms, where it appeared that defendant got a pistol from his brother, to whom he had loaned it, and carried it 30 miles to another town, where he lived, the conviction could not be sustained; defendant having a right to take his pistol home. Rosebud v. State, 87 Cr. R. 267, 220 S. W. 1093.

22. Evidence.—Evidence that defendant lived in a neighborhood distant from the county seat, and beset with violent and lawless men, was properly excluded, since such facts offered no excuse for carrying the pistol. O'Neal v. State, 32 Cr. R. 42, 22 S. W. 25.

Offense of assault with prohibited weapon under Acts 33d Leg. c. 114, § 1 (art. 1024a), held, in connection with this article, not established by evidence. Brinkley v. State, 82 Cr. R. 150, 198 S. W. 940.

Evidence on prosecution for carrying a pistol, claimed by defendant to have been handed to him by a person in the house, held insufficient to show guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. Bogus v. State, 83 Cr. R. 356, 203 S. W. 597.

Evidence in a prosecution for unlawfully carrying a pistol held not sufficient to sustain a conviction. Crockett v. State, 84 Cr. R. 163, 205 S. W. 987.

In a prosecution for unlawfully carrying a pistol, evidence that defendant placed the pistol against the side or breast of one of the state's witnesses, and what he said in such connection, was admissible. Dodaro v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 394.

In a prosecution for unlawfully carrying brass knuckles, evidence held to warrant a conviction. Tucker v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 796.

In a prosecution for unlawfully carrying a pistol, where the defense was that it lacked a cylinder, the question held, under the evidence, for the jury. Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 811.

23. Charge.—On an information charging defendant with carrying a pistol, the judge in his charge gave the provisions of this article, which relate to carrying a dagger, dirk, slung-shot, etc. Held, that the charge should have been confined to the specific weapon charged in the information. Miller v. State (App.) 18 S. W. 197.

Refusal to instruct as to acquittal if accused, charged with unlawfully carrying a pistol, borrowed pistol and was carrying it home by the most practicable route and came upon his brother engaged in trouble, and after the difficulty turned back to his brother's store to ascertain whether his brother was injured, and there left the pistol for a day or two, was error. Wilson v. State, 86 Cr. R. 356, 216 S. W. 881.

Where the state offered evidence of two pistol carryings, but relied on one, the jury should be charged that, unless defendant did on the occasion relied on carry a pistol, there could be no conviction. Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 811.

In a prosecution for carrying a pistol which defendant claimed lacked a cylinder, a charge that the carrying of a part of a pistol which is not capable of being used for shooting is not a violation of the law, but it is illegal to carry a pistol whether a new one or an old one, a good one or a bad one, or whether all its parts are together at the time, was improper, the latter portion tending to mislead the jury. Id.

In a prosecution for unlawfully carrying a pistol, where defendant contended that the weapon lacked a cylinder, he is entitled to have that theory affirmatively presented by charges that there could be no conviction if the weapon did lack a cylinder. Id.

Art. 476. [339] Not applicable, when, and to whom.—The preceding article shall not apply to a person in actual service as a militiaman, nor to any peace officer in the actual discharge of his official duty, nor to the carrying of arms on one's own premises or place of business, nor to persons travelling provided, this exception shall not apply to any deputy constable, or special policeman who does not receive a compensation of forty dollars or more per month for his services as such officer, and who is not appointed in conformity with the statutes of this State authorizing such appointment; provided, further, that this exception shall not apply to the Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner, nor to any deputy, when not in the actual discharge of his duties as such, nor to any game warden, or local deputy Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner except when in the actual discharge of his duties in the county of his residence, nor shall it apply to any game warden or deputy Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner who does not actually receive from the State fees or compensation for his services. [Acts 1871, p. 25; Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 91, § 1.]

Took effect 90 days after March 27, 1918, date of adjournment.

See Miller v. State (App.) 18 S. W. 197.

1. Officers in general.—In a prosecution for unlawfully carrying a pistol, the court erred in not permitting accused to prove that he had been appointed, or thought he had been appointed and deputized, as city marshal, and was acting as such when he was charged with carrying the pistol, although such evidence did not show any legal appointment, since one who reasonably believed that he was appointed an officer, and exercised authority under that appointment, would not be guilty of violating the law in carrying a pistol. Barnett v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 519.

2. Deputies and de facto officers.—This article applies to a deputy-sheriff of any county while in any other county, whether in the pursuit of private or official business. Clayton v. State, 21 Tex. App. 343, 17 S. W. 261.

This article authorizes a deputy postmaster to carry a pistol only while he is actually engaged in the post office. Love v. State, 32 Cr. R. 85, 22 S. W. 140.

5. Penitentiary or convict guard.—A penitentiary guard, not in the lawful discharge of his duty as such guard, on the premises of the penitentiary, nor going nor returning to or from a place for the purpose of obtaining ammunition for his weapon, is liable to the penalties herein imposed. West v. State, 26 Tex. App. 99, 9 S. W. 485.

9. Travelers.—Where defendant went to a city 60 miles distant, taking with him his pistol to have it repaired, and was arrested on the train which he had boarded for home, he is a "person traveling." Impson v. State (App.) 19 S. W. 677.

Where traveler defects and turns aside from his journey on business disconnected with his journey, fact that he was originally a traveler does not exempt him from punishment for unlawfully carrying a pistol on or about his person. Pecht v. State, 82 Cr. R. 136, 199 S. W. 290.

In prosecution for unlawfully carrying a pistol on or about his person, question whether accused was at time a traveler is for jury. Id.

In prosecution for unlawfully carrying a pistol, defended on the ground that defendant was a traveler at the time of his arrest, and as such entitled to carry a pistol, the question of whether defendant's journey had ceased, or had been deflected from, at the time of his arrest, held for the jury. Witt v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 395.

10. Premises or place of business.—Where uncontradicted evidence showed that defendant carried pistol not only when he was in dance hall but back and forth to his home and when he took a lady home from the hall, charge that defendant had the right to carry pistol on premises (dance hall) over which he had control was inapplicable and properly refused. Payne v. State, 84 Cr. R. 2, 204 S. W. 765.

Whether, under evidence introduced by defendant, charged with unlawfully carrying a pistol his relation to his father's home, where he used the weapon in frightening away trespassers, was such as to bring him within the exemption of the statute of persons carrying arms on their own premises, though he resided part of the time elsewhere, held a matter which, on defendant's objection to the charge and request for a special charge, should have been left for the jury. Rather v. State, 87 Cr. R. 624, 224 S. W. 776.

11. Apprehension of attack and imminence of danger.—One accused of unlawfully carrying pistol on or about his person cannot excuse charge on ground of imminent danger, when he had no such apprehension at time he armed himself. Pecht v. State, 82 Cr. R. 136, 199 S. W. 290.

If at time defendant carried his pistol he had reasonable grounds for fearing an unlawful attack upon his person and the danger was so imminent as not to admit of arrest of person about to make such attack, defendant should be acquitted. Payne v. State, 84 Cr. R. 2, 204 S. W. 765.

If defendant believed at the time he carried pistol that he or his family were in danger of serious bodily injury, he had a right to carry pistol, provided there was insufficient time to have the party about to make the unlawful attack arrested. Id.

14. Evidence.—In prosecution for unlawfully carrying pistol on or about his person, evidence held sufficient to sustain conviction. Pecht v. State, 82 Cr. R. 136, 199 S. W. 290.

In action for unlawfully carrying pistol on or about his person, evidence held to warrant finding that accused was not at time a traveler, and that, if he had been, he deflected from his journey so as to lose protection of his status as a traveler. Id.

Evidence held to sustain conviction of defendant for unlawfully carrying a pistol on or about his person. Payne v. State, 84 Cr. R. 2, 204 S. W. 765.

In a prosecution for unlawfully carrying a pistol, wherein defendant claimed that he heard a noise behind his house and took his pistol, and ran out the back door some 50 feet, where he met the officers and was arrested, and that the arrest was made on his own rented premises, evidence held not to sustain a conviction. Rogers v. State, 85 Cr. R. 421, 213 S. W. 637.

17½. Charge.—In a prosecution for unlawfully carrying a pistol, the trial court did not err in refusing to instruct that defendant could not be guilty if he carried the pistol from his home to his place of business, etc., when it was not carried habitually between such places, where the issue was not raised as presented in the requested charge. Dodaro v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 394.

Art. 477. [340] Carrying arms in church or other assembly.

Validity.—Art. 269, prohibiting any person, under penalty, from carrying a dangerous weapon on election day, during polling hours, within a half mile of the polls, and this article do not define the same offense, so that defendant, convicted upon indictment of the offense defined in article 269, may not object that the two provisions fix different punishments for the same offense, and are therefore not enforceable. Cooper v. State, 25 Tex. App. 530, 8 S. W. 654.

Art. 479. [342] Arrest without warrant; officer failing punished.

Cited in dissenting opinion, Sharp v. State, 81 Cr. R. 256, 197 S. W. 207.

OFFENSES AGAINST PUBLIC MORALS, DECENCY AND CHASTITY

- Chap.
 1. Unlawful marriages.
 2. Incest.
 3. Of adultery and fornication.

- Chap.
 4. Bawdy and disorderly houses.
 4a. Pandering.
 5. Miscellaneous offenses.

CHAPTER ONE

UNLAWFUL MARRIAGES

Art.
 481. "Bigamy" defined.

Art.
 482. Preceding article not applicable, when.

Article 481. [344] "Bigamy" defined.

1. Nature and elements of offense in general.—To bigamy, as to all other offenses, applies the law of principal and accessory, and one knowingly aiding and abetting, even as a party, is a principal; so a woman who knowingly married a married man is a principal. Burgess v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 182.

It is no defense that at the time of the second marriage defendant was temporarily insane from the recent use of intoxicants; a bigamous marriage being always void. Hooter v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 1093.

To authorize defendant's conviction of bigamy, it was necessary for state to prove that when defendant married he had been previously legally married to another woman, who was living when offense was committed. Rogers v. State, 83 Cr. R. 526, 204 S. W. 222.

6. Mistake and duress.—In a prosecution for bigamy, the fact that accused did not live with the bigamous wife after he learned of his mistake as to a divorce from a former wife was not material. Busby v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 419.

8. Indictment and proof thereunder.—Indictment for bigamy, charging that defendant unlawfully married a woman (naming her), when having a lawful former wife then living (naming her by her maiden name and her name after marriage to defendant), to whom he had theretofore been lawfully married, held sufficient. Henton v. State (Cr. App.) 209 S. W. 409.

9. Evidence.—In a prosecution for bigamy where accused claimed that at time of the second marriage he believed that a decree of divorce had been entered dissolving the former marriage, it was clearly his right to have before the jury the testimony of the bigamous wife that she had reported to him that his lawyer had told her that a divorce had been granted. Busby v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 419.

In prosecution for bigamy, evidence held insufficient to sustain conviction, in that it failed to establish that defendant, who married in Texas was the person who had married previously in Michigan, and in that it failed to show that at the time of his second marriage, if it was such, defendant's first wife was living. Rogers v. State, 83 Cr. R. 526, 204 S. W. 222.

In prosecution for bigamy involving issue of marriage to alleged first wife, evidence that the parties long openly lived together as husband and wife, and held themselves out as such, supplemented by declarations of the defendant to the effect that they were married, held sufficient to prove common-law marriage. Ahlberg v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 253.

In prosecution for bigamy involving issue of whether defendant was married to alleged first wife, there was no impropriety in receiving proof that a child was born to alleged first wife during her cohabitation with defendant. Id.

In prosecution for bigamy involving issue of whether defendant was married to alleged first wife, evidence held to support judgment of conviction irrespective of the question of a common-law marriage. Id.

Art. 482. [345] Preceding article not applicable, when.

Abandonment of spouse.—In prosecution of second husband for desertion of wife, it was error to instruct concerning former husband that presumption of death from seven years' absence was absolute, being on weight of evidence, and it is immaterial that wife would be exempt from conviction of bigamy. Barrios v. State, 83 Cr. R. 548, 204 S. W. 326.

INCEST

Art.
486. Punishment.
488. Certain marriages prohibited.

Art.
489. Relationship, how proved; proof of marriage unnecessary.

Article 486. [349] Punishment.

4. Indictment and proof thereunder.—As this article does not contain the word “knowingly” in defining “incest,” in an indictment charging that crime, it is not necessary to allege that defendant “knowingly” entered into an unlawful marriage. Simon v. State, 31 Cr. R. 186, 20 S. W. 716, 37 Am. St. Rep. 802.

5. Evidence.—See Lawrence v. State, 87 Cr. R. 61, 219 S. W. 460.

In a prosecution for incest, evidence held insufficient to justify conviction. Bradshaw v. State, 82 Cr. R. 351, 198 S. W. 942.

In a prosecution for incest, evidence as to previous acts of intercourse was admissible on the question of involuntary submission to defendant. Bohannon v. State, 84 Cr. R. 8, 204 S. W. 1165.

In a prosecution for incest, an instruction that the jury might consider other acts of intercourse between defendant and prosecutrix as evidence corroborating prosecutrix was erroneous. Hollingsworth v. State, 85 Cr. R. 248, 211 S. W. 454.

6. Testimony of prosecutrix or paramour.—A stepdaughter 19 years of age who consents to intercourse, being an accomplice in a prosecution for incest, her evidence must be corroborated. Bradshaw v. State, 82 Cr. R. 351, 198 S. W. 942.

In a prosecution for incest, where it was necessary that the testimony of the prosecuting witness be corroborated, her testimony given before the grand jury was hearsay and inadmissible. Hollingsworth v. State, 85 Cr. R. 248, 211 S. W. 454.

8. Charge of court.—In prosecution for incest, it is error to submit issue of relationship of niece, where there is evidence to show the relationship of half-niece, in view of statute defining the crime which makes a distinction between niece and half-niece. Griffin v. State, 83 Cr. R. 157, 202 S. W. 87.

Where it was necessary to corroborate the evidence of prosecuting witness in a prosecution for incest, where a statement by defendant before the grand jury that prosecutrix had left his house and that he was unaware of her pregnancy or that she had been having intercourse was introduced, it was error to fail to instruct that such statement could not be considered as a criminative fact; the statement in no way corroborating prosecutrix. Hollingsworth v. State, 85 Cr. R. 248, 211 S. W. 454.

Art. 488. [351] Certain marriages prohibited.

See Bohannon v. State, 84 Cr. R. 8, 204 S. W. 1165.

Art. 489. [352] Relationship, how proved; proof of marriage unnecessary.

Proof of marriage.—A defendant who is indicted for committing incest by marrying his niece may be convicted on proof of his cohabiting with her without proof of a formal marriage between them. Simon v. State, 31 Cr. R. 186, 20 S. W. 399, 37 Am. St. Rep. 802.

OF ADULTERY AND FORNICATION

Art.
490. “Adultery” defined.

Art.
494. “Fornication” defined.

Article 490. [353] “Adultery” defined.

5. Habitual carnal intercourse.—The court cannot lay down any hard and fast rule as to what constitutes habitual carnal intercourse within the meaning of the adultery statute. Halbadier v. State, 87 Cr. R. 129, 220 S. W. 85.

Proof of occasional acts of carnal intercourse is not sufficient to show habitual intercourse. Hafley v. State (Cr. App.) 224 S. W. 1099.

8. Indictment and proof thereunder.—In adultery prosecution, complaint and information containing no allegation that the habitual carnal intercourse was “without living together” was fatally defective, such words being statutory statement and requirement. Yates v. State, 84 Cr. R. 590, 209 S. W. 407.

10. Evidence.—Testimony of accomplice as to nine specific acts of sexual intercourse between the 15th of August and the 25th of December at varying intervals, only three of which were corroborated, without proof of attending circumstances showing that the intercourse was habitual, held not sufficient to sustain a conviction of adultery by habit-ual carnal intercourse without living together. Cordill v. State, 83 Cr. R. 74, 201 S. W. 181.

On trial under indictment for living together and having carnal intercourse, where state's witnesses had testified to seeing accused with the woman in very secreted place near certain mail box, evidence that the woman frequently went to mail box and remained there from 20 minutes to 2 hours was admissible. Green v. State, 83 Cr. R. 68, 201 S. W. 182.

In prosecution for unlawfully living with a woman not defendant's wife while he was lawfully married to another, evidence consisting of mere suspicious circumstances held insufficient to justify the verdict of guilty. Childress v. State, 85 Cr. R. 22, 210 S. W. 193.

In a prosecution of a married man for habitual carnal intercourse with a female not his wife, evidence held to sustain a conviction. Webb v. State, 86 Cr. R. 337, 216 S. W. 865.

In a prosecution for adultery, evidence held insufficient to show habitual carnal intercourse as charged in the indictment. Hafley v. State (Cr. App.) 224 S. W. 1099.

Evidence held to warrant a conviction of unlawfully having habitual carnal intercourse "without living together." Burnett v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 239.

Art. 494. [357] "Fornication" defined.

Cited, Mosley v. State, 82 Cr. R. 16, 198 S. W. 146.

Elements of offense.—In a prosecution for fornication, the state must show that the parties were single persons. Stubblefield v. State, 83 Cr. R. 48, 200 S. W. 1090.

Indictment and information.—An indictment charging that a man and woman had habitual carnal intercourse, but not alleging that they lived together at the time of such intercourse, or that they had the intercourse without living together, is fatally defective. Hurt, J., dissenting. Jones v. State, 29 Tex. App. 347, 16 S. W. 189.

CHAPTER FOUR

BAWDY AND DISORDERLY HOUSES

Art.		Art.
496.	"Bawdy house" and "disorderly house" defined.	498. Alluring females to visit same.
497.	"Assignment house" defined.	500. Punishment for keeping.

Article 496. [359] "Bawdy house" and "disorderly house" defined.

Constitutionality.—Arts. 496, 500, making a house disorderly where liquor is sold or kept for the purpose of sale, so as to require the seller to obtain an internal revenue license, are valid. Claunch v. State, 83 Cr. R. 378, 204 S. W. 436.

Conflict with other statute.—This article is in direct conflict with, and repeals, arts. 157, 158, 160, levying an annual occupation tax on such business in prohibition territory, and no conviction can be had for failure to acquire the license. Claunch v. State, 83 Cr. R. 382, 203 S. W. 891.

Ordinances.—A city by its ordinance cannot set aside the state penal laws prohibiting houses of prostitution. Levy v. State, 84 Cr. R. 493, 208 S. W. 667.

Character of house.—A combined retail grocery store and beer saloon, frequented by prostitutes and vagabonds for the purpose of drinking beer, does not constitute a disorderly house. Harmes v. State, 26 Tex. App. 190, 9 S. W. 487, 8 Am. St. Rep. 470.

A bawdyhouse is one kept for prostitution, or where prostitutes are permitted to resort or reside for the purpose of plying their vocation. Clark v. State, 86 Cr. R. 585, 218 S. W. 366.

— Sale of liquor.—Nonintoxicating malt liquor, as used in arts. 157, 158, 160, 496, is a fermented malt liquor, containing alcohol in quantities insufficient to produce intoxication when used as a beverage. Claunch v. State, 83 Cr. R. 382, 203 S. W. 891.

Recognition.—A recognition on appeal is sufficient, where it states that defendant is charged with "keeping a disorderly house," though it does not also state that defendant is owner or lessee of the house. Reed v. State (Cr. App.) 22 S. W. 969, reversing 21 S. W. 364.

Indictment and information.—An indictment for keeping a disorderly house is fatally defective which fails to allege that accused was the owner, lessee, or tenant of the house. Lamar v. State, 30 Tex. App. 693, 18 S. W. 788.

An indictment alleging that defendant "was the owner * * * of a certain house. * * * and did then and there knowingly permit the keeping in said house of a disorderly house, to wit, a house kept for prostitution, and where prostitutes were permitted to resort and reside for the purpose of plying their vocation," is sufficient. Mansfield v. State (Cr. App.) 24 S. W. 901.

Indictment for keeping disorderly house, where women of bad reputation were employed, held sufficient when in language of arts. 496 and 500, without any further description or designation of such women. Limantia v. State, 82 Cr. R. 430, 199 S. W. 619.

An indictment for keeping a disorderly house where liquor was sold and kept for sale in violation of arts. 496; 500, held sufficient. Claunch v. State, 83 Cr. R. 378, 204 S. W. 436.

Evidence.—In prosecution for keeping a disorderly house where liquors are sold, a certified copy of the record of the internal revenue liquor license to accused, which corresponded, as testified to by one witness, with a revenue license posted in appellant's place of business, was properly admitted in evidence. Claunch v. State, 83 Cr. R. 378, 204 S. W. 436.

In prosecution for keeping a disorderly house where liquors are sold, under arts. 496, 500, a witness can testify to the general reputation of the house. Id.

In a prosecution for keeping a disorderly house, the state was properly permitted to introduce in evidence labels on bottles of liquor purchased to the effect that the contents contained less than 2 per cent. alcohol, and giving the name of the brewer. Id.

Since keeping a disorderly house is a continuing offense, witnesses may testify that they had seen posted in defendant's place of business an internal revenue license about the time sales of liquor were made: Id.

Art. 497. "Assignment house" defined.

Indictment and information.—A complaint that defendant kept a house to be used by "men for the purpose of meeting by mutual appointment made by another for the purpose of sexual intercourse" does not state an offense, and is a variance from information charging it was done for the purpose of men and woman meeting for such intercourse. Reynolds v. State, 82 Cr. R. 326, 198 S. W. 958.

Art. 498. Alluring females to visit same.

Elements of offense.—Assisting prostitute to ply her vocation in woods held not within pandering statute (art. 506a), which is directed against offense in connection with house of prostitution, but was within article 498. Johnson v. State, 83 Cr. R. 64, 201 S. W. 990.

Art. 500. [361] Punishment for keeping, or owner of the house having information that his house is being kept or used, etc.

1. Constitutionality, repeal, and amendment.—Arts. 496, 500, making a house disorderly, where liquor is sold or kept for the purpose of sale, so as to require the seller to obtain an internal revenue license, are valid. Claunch v. State, 83 Cr. R. 378, 204 S. W. 436.

3. Nature and elements of offense and persons liable.—Whether or not a particular house is used as a bawdyhouse and whether the owner knew of its use are questions for the jury. Rosborough v. Cerveni (Civ. App.) 197 S. W. 319.

If defendant directly or for another kept or was concerned in keeping, or aided or assisted or abetted the persons who kept a disorderly house, by making appointments with men for the purpose of assignments with women in such house, he was guilty as charged of keeping or of unlawfully aiding, assisting, and abetting in keeping a disorderly house; defendant having made an "appointment" for the men and women within the definition of the term as arranging a meeting. Spears v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 326.

5. Indictment, information and complaint.—Where, on a trial for keeping a disorderly house, the complaint alleged that defendant "kept a disorderly house, to wit, a house for the purposes of prostitution, owned and occupied by defendant for purposes of prostitution," and the recognizance stated the offense to be that of keeping a disorderly house, to wit, a house for prostitution, and a house used and occupied by defendant, the appeal will be dismissed, as the recognizance does not allege that defendant was either the owner, tenant, or lessee of a disorderly house. Reed v. State (Cr. App.) 21 S. W. 364.

A complaint that defendant kept a house to be used by "men for the purpose of meeting by mutual appointment made by another for the purpose of sexual intercourse" does not state an offense, and is a variance from information charging it was done for the purpose of men and women meeting for such intercourse. Reynolds v. State, 82 Cr. R. 326, 198 S. W. 958.

Indictment for keeping disorderly house, where women of bad reputation were employed, held sufficient when in language of arts. 496 and 500, without any further description or designation of such women. Lilimantia v. State, 82 Cr. R. 430, 199 S. W. 619.

An indictment for keeping a disorderly house where liquor was sold and kept for sale held sufficient. Claunch v. State, 83 Cr. R. 378, 204 S. W. 436.

8. Evidence.—In support of the allegation that the house kept by accused was a disorderly one, evidence of its general reputation as such was admissible, although not sufficient alone to establish the fact. Cross v. State, 85 Cr. R. 430, 213 S. W. 633; McGary v. State, 82 Cr. R. 54, 198 S. W. 574.

In prosecution for keeping a disorderly house, evidence held sufficient to make a question for the jury and to sustain a conviction. Lacey v. State, 83 Cr. R. 102, 201 S. W. 408.

In prosecution for keeping a disorderly house where liquors are sold, a certified copy of the record of the internal revenue liquor license to accused, which corresponded, as testified to by one witness, with a revenue license posted in appellant's place of business, was properly admitted in evidence. Claunch v. State, 83 Cr. R. 378, 204 S. W. 436.

In prosecution for keeping a disorderly house where liquors are sold, a witness can testify to the general reputation of the house. Id.

Since keeping a disorderly house is a continuing offense, witnesses may testify that they had seen posted in defendant's place of business an internal revenue license about the time sales of liquor were made. Id.

In a prosecution for keeping a disorderly house, the state was properly permitted to introduce in evidence labels on bottles of liquor purchased to the effect that the contents contained less than 2 per cent. alcohol, and giving the name of the brewer. Id.

In a prosecution for keeping a disorderly house, it was error to admit testimony by police officers as to the reputation of the premises, where such officers did not have adequate knowledge thereof. Schwimmer v. State, 84 Cr. R. 227, 206 S. W. 521.

10. Charge of the court.—In a prosecution for keeping or permitting to be kept a bawdyhouse on premises leased and controlled by defendant, the charge of the court should submit to the jury the question whether or not defendant in fact occupied that relation to said premises. Chadwick v. State, 86 Cr. R. 269, 216 S. W. 397.

CHAPTER FOUR A

PANDERING

Article 506a. Pandering.

Nature and elements of offense.—Assisting prostitute to ply her vocation in woods held not within pandering statute, which is directed against offense in connection with house of prostitution, but was within article 498. Johnson v. State, 83 Cr. R. 64, 201 S. W. 990.

Indictment and information.—Indictment for pandering, following language prescribing offense, held sufficient. Baldwin v. State, 82 Cr. R. 50, 198 S. W. 305.

Evidence—Admissibility.—In prosecution of husband for pandering held, cross-examination of wife, who was principal state's witness, as to her past life, was proper for showing motives of wife and other state's witness who had been paying her attention. Eppison v. State, 82 Cr. R. 364, 198 S. W. 948.

In prosecution of husband for procuring his wife to enter house of prostitution, wife having testified that relations with another man were brought about by brute force, held, it was proper to contradict her for impeachment, to show motive, and corroborate defendant. Id.

While right of one accused of crime to make bond is guaranteed, evidence in prosecution for pandering, that accused agreed to obtain bond for a prostitute and urged her to continue her vocation, that he whipped her and required her to remain at home, that he caressed her and received money from her while she was living in disorderly house, and that he made inquiries of officers who were watching house in which she lived was admissible. Parker v. State, 83 Cr. R. 81, 200 S. W. 1083.

In prosecution for pandering, evidence that accused while prostitute was living at another house struck her because he did not receive money enough from her is admissible, though charge submitted offense in connection with residence of prostitute at different address. Id.

Where in a prosecution for procuring a female to become an inmate of a house of ill fame, in which it was shown that she left place of accused and went to home of another, testimony that accused went to such home for purpose of bringing her back would be admissible regardless of whether he saw the female or whether she heard any conversation at such place to that effect. Dollar v. State, 86 Cr. R. 333, 216 S. W. 1087.

Where, in a prosecution for procuring a female to become an inmate of a house of ill fame, testimony that she left place of accused and went to home of another was admissible as a predicate for further testimony that he attempted to induce her to return, but her reason for going, such as that her child was sick, would be of no importance. Id.

In prosecution for inducing D. to become an inmate of a house of prostitution kept by defendant and her husband, testimony of P., a prostitute, that she went to house in question and registered and occupied a room therein for the purpose of prostitution was admissible, though defendant was not present in the lobby of the house when P. entered and defendant's husband assigned P. a room. Dollar v. State, 86 Cr. R. 398, 216 S. W. 1089.

Sufficiency.—In prosecution for pandering, evidence held to establish defendant's guilt. Baldwin v. State, 82 Cr. R. 50, 198 S. W. 305.

In a prosecution for pandering, evidence held insufficient to sustain a conviction. Baker v. State, 82 Cr. R. 401, 199 S. W. 631.

In prosecution for pandering, evidence held sufficient to sustain conviction. Parker v. State, 83 Cr. R. 81, 200 S. W. 1083.

Evidence held insufficient to sustain conviction of pandering. Johnson v. State, 83 Cr. R. 64, 201 S. W. 990.

In a prosecution for procuring a female to become an inmate of a house of ill fame, evidence held sufficient to sustain a conviction. Dollar v. State, 86 Cr. R. 333, 216 S. W. 1087.

Charge.—In prosecution for pandering held, as main charge failed to present theory raised by defendant's evidence, court's refusal of charge presenting such theory was error. Eppison v. State, 82 Cr. R. 364, 198 S. W. 948.

In prosecution for pandering, where it was doubtful whether houses involved were houses of prostitution or where prostitution was encouraged or allowed within meaning of the law, those terms should be defined in charge. Johnson v. State, 83 Cr. R. 64, 201 S. W. 990.

ILLEGAL BANKING, PASSING SPURIOUS MONEY, AND BANK GUARANTY

| Art.514. Issuing bills to pass as money.524. Director borrowing funds.531a. Receiving deposits after failure to comply with requirements as to increase of capital stock. | Art.532. Receiving deposits when insolvent. |
|---|---|

Article 514. [368] Issuing bills to pass as money.

Elements of offense.—Where debtor gave creditor a check without sufficient funds in the bank, went to the bank the following morning to make a deposit to meet the check, but on hearing that the check had been turned over to officers, took the money directly to the creditor and paid him, instead of depositing it in the bank, he was not guilty of issuing a check intended to circulate as money, in the absence of evidence that check was issued to creditor for any other purpose than to pay debt. Jackson v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 1095.

Art. 524. Director borrowing funds.

Indictment and information.—Indictment held to sufficiently charge the defendant bank president in a general way with becoming indebted to the bank, but not to authorize admission of evidence of transactions showing his indirect liability through membership in a firm to which the loan was made. Le Master v. State, 81 Cr. R. 577, 196 S. W. 829.

Evidence.—Evidence in the prosecution of bank president for unlawfully borrowing money through secret connection with a partnership to which the loan was made, held insufficient to show that defendant was a partner, and through the partnership became indebted to the bank. Le Master v. State, 81 Cr. R. 577, 196 S. W. 829.

Art. 531a. Receiving deposits after failure to comply with requirements as to increase of capital stock.—It shall hereafter be unlawful for any director, officer or employee of any State bank or banking corporation, organized under or subject to the general banking laws of this State, or any person for any such bank or banking corporation, to receive any deposits at any time after such bank or banking corporation has failed or refused, within the time required, to comply with any order or requirement of the State Banking Board, pursuant the provisions of Section 1 of this Act [Art. 564, Civil Statutes, ante], when its total demand and time deposits and savings accounts shall in the aggregate amount to more than the limitations placed upon deposits by Section 1 of this Act; and such acceptance of deposits by any director, officer, or employee of any such bank or banking corporation or by any persons therefor, shall be deemed a misdemeanor and punishable upon conviction by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars ($100.00), nor more than five hundred dollars ($500.00), or by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than thirty days, nor more than ninety days, or by both such fine and imprisonment; and each acceptance or receipt of a deposit in violation hereof shall constitute a separate offense. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 54, § 2.]

Took effect April 2, 1921.

Art. 532. Receiving deposits when insolvent.

New debt.—The transfer by a bank of all of its property and assets as security to another bank, which assumed its liabilities to creditors, did not create a new debt in violation of this article. Harris v. Briggs (C. C. A.) 264 Fed. 726.

OF LOTTERIES AND RAFFLES

Article 536. [377] Dealing in futures.

Elements of offense.—Where the intention of the parties in a contract for the sale of cotton was that no actual cotton should ever be delivered by the vendor or received and paid for by the vendee, the contract is illegal, prohibiting dealing in cotton futures. P. T. Talbot & Son v. Martindale (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 302.

CHAPTER THREE

BUCKET SHOPS—DEFINING AND PROHIBITING SAME

Art.		Art.
539.	Futures or dealing in futures defined.	545.	Proof prima facie.
543.	Penalty for making future contract.	546.	What constitutes prima facie case.

Article 539. Futures or dealing in futures defined.

Interstate transactions.—This article does not apply to a written contract between a resident of Texas and a grain company in Nebraska contemplating the interstate transportation and delivery of grain. Merriam & Millard Co. v. Cole (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1054.

Civil actions.—That seller in contract for future delivery of grain could, and if demanded would, have made a delivery, is not necessarily conclusive against delivery not having been intended by either party. Clark v. Merriam & Millard Co. (Civ. App.) 223 S. W. 869.

— Validity of contract.—Contract for sale of goods to be delivered at future date is invalid, if the seller does not then have the goods, nor intend a delivery, but only a settlement on the difference between contract and market price. Merriam & Millard Co. v. Cole (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1054.

A contract for future delivery of an article where it is contemplated by the parties thereto that such articles should not be delivered, but that settlement might be made by paying the difference in the contract price at the time of such delivery and the price named in the contract, is a "wager contract." Fate v. Wilson Bros. Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 235.

If it was intention of parties to contract to deliver cotton that no cotton should be delivered, but that contract should be complied with by payment of difference in market value of cotton at time and place of delivery and price named in contract, it was a wager contract, and not enforceable. Id.

Where deed of trust was executed to secure grantee against loss in guaranteeing grantor's indebtedness, and the written guaranties were executed at time of execution of deed, but no money passed at such time, the guaranties and deed of trust did not become effective until the delivery of the guaranties by grantor to grantee, and, where delivered in settlement of cotton future transactions between them, the deed of trust and guaranties became a part of such illegal transaction. Sanger v. Futch (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 681.

A contract of sale of cotton, delivered at the time, is not a wagering contract, because providing that the price shall be market price on any day, within a certain future period, selected on its arrival by the seller. Smith v. Duncan (Com. App.) 209 S. W. 140.

Where the intention of the parties in a contract for the sale of cotton was that no actual cotton should ever be delivered by the vendor or received and paid for by the vendee, the contract is illegal. P. T. Talbot & Son v. Martindale (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 302.

A contract for the purchase of cotton, not intended by the parties to be settled by paying or receiving a margin or profit, but contemplating an actual delivery and payment, was not illegal as a future contract. Puckett v. Wilson Bros. Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 642.

Contract by which seller sold cotton on consignment, and in which seller agreed to sell the cotton outright to buyer on or prior to specified date, retaining the option to take the price prevailing on any day from date of delivery to such specified date, held unenforceable; the transaction being a gambling transaction. Moore v. H. Seay & Co. (Civ. App.) 228 S. W. 610.

Whether a contract for sale of cotton is a "future contract" depends on the intention of the parties at the time of contracting, and if at that time their bona fide intention is that the cotton shall be actually delivered and paid for, the contract is not a "future contract"; otherwise if their intention is that the contract shall or may be settled by paying or receiving a margin or profit thereon. Fenter v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 844.

— Evidence.—In a suit for balance due under written contract for purchase of oats, defended on the ground that it was a gambling contract not intending an actual delivery, undisputed evidence held to require a directed verdict for plaintiff. Merriam & Millard Co. v. Cole (Civ. App.) 198 S. W. 1054.

Evidence held to show a contract for sale of cotton was a mere gaming transaction or dealing in futures, the parties not contemplating actual delivery. Honey v. Wilson Bros. Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 209 S. W. 187.

Parol evidence is admissible to show that a written contract for the sale of cotton, legal and proper in form, was in fact entered into for the purpose of speculating in futures and with intention not to deliver the cotton purchased, but to pay the difference between the contract price and the price on a future named day, contrary to Laws 1907, c. 86. Fenter v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 230 S. W. 844.

Art. 543. Penalty for making future contract.

See Pate v. Wilson Bros. Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 235.

Art. 545. Proof prima facie.

See Puckett v. Wilson Bros. Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 642.

Burden of proof.—The burden is on plaintiff, in an action for the breach of a contract to deliver cotton in the future, to prove that actual delivery was bona fide intended. Pate v. Wilson Bros. Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 208 S. W. 235.

Art. 546. What constitutes prima facie case.

Rebuttal of prima facie case.—Under indictment for forging name of railroad's agent to bill of lading, in violation of Vernon's Ann. Pen. Code 1916, art. 1547, punishable by confinement for not less than 5 nor more than 15 years, conviction could not be had on showing violation of art. 924, denouncing crime of ordinary forgery, penalty for which, under art. 936, is imprisonment for not less than 2 or more than 7 years. Crouch v. State, 84 Cr. R. 221, 206 S. W. 525.

In an action for failure to deliver cotton, the most the court had a right to say was that the contract, because it was for delivery of cotton in the future, was prima facie or presumptively illegal; plaintiff buyer having the right to show it was in fact valid. Puckett v. Wilson Bros. Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 211 S. W. 642.

CHAPTER FOUR

GAMING

Art.	Art.
548. Playing cards in a public place.	559. Keeping or renting for.
549. What included in preceding article.	560. Betting at place resorted to.
551. Keeping or exhibiting table or bank.	563. Persons going in gaming house.
552. Table or bank includes, what.	572. Permitting a house to be used for gaming.
553. Games specifically enumerated.	573. [Superseded.]
554. Indictment.	574. Procedure in gaming cases.
555. Proof.	577. Pool selling or book making.
556. "Played," "dealt" and "exhibited" defined.	578. Betting on horse racing.
557. Gaming table, bank, etc., betting at.

Article 548. [379] Playing cards in a public place.

10. Private residence occupied by a family.—A conviction for card playing cannot be sustained where the evidence shows but one sitting or playing in a private residence, and the information does not allege that the house was used for retailing spirituous liquors. Rambo v. State (Cr. App.) 24 S. W. 650.

Evidence, on prosecution for playing cards at a place not a private residence, held to show a tent to be a private residence. Harris v. State, 82 Cr. R. 196, 198 S. W. 956.

21. Indictment or information—Description of place or house.—An indictment charging that defendant permitted "a game of cards to be played upon his premises, the said premises then and there being appurtenances to a public place, to-wit, a house for retailing spirituous liquors," is sufficient. Ballew v. State, 26 Tex. App. 483, 9 S. W. 765.

26. Evidence.—On indictment for playing cards "in a house for retailing spirituous liquors," proof that defendant played cards in a "saloon" does not sustain the allegation. Springfield v. State (App.) 13 S. W. 752.

To convict of playing cards "at a house for retailing spirituous liquors," it is not enough to show that the room in which the playing occurred was attached to the saloon, but it must be shown that it was used in connection with the business thereof. Robinson v. State (App.) 19 S. W. 894.

Evidence, on prosecution for playing cards in a place other than a private residence, held insufficient to show playing. Harris v. State, 82 Cr. R. 196, 198 S. W. 956.

27. Instructions.—An instruction, on a trial for playing cards at a gaming house, defining a "gaming-house" as "a house or part of a house where gaming is carried on as a business," is correct. Anderson v. State (App.) 12 S. W. 868.

Art. 549. [380] What included in preceding article.

See Ballew v. State, 26 Tex. App. 483, 9 S. W. 765.

Art. 551. [382, 388a] Gaming table, bank, etc., keeping or exhibiting.

See Perez v. State, 84 Cr. R. 184, 206 S. W. 192.

2½. Repeal.—See Francis v. State (Cr. App.) 233 S. W. 974.

3. Offense in general.—A conviction can be had even though defendant was not the owner of such table, or had no interest therein; exhibition for the purpose of gaming being sufficient to constitute the offense. Lettz v. State (Cr. App.) 21 S. W. 371.

8. Gaming table or bank.—"Craps" is not a banking game (Chappell v. State, 27 Tex. App. 310, 11 S. W. 411, followed). Bell v. State (Cr. App.) 21 S. W. 366.

21. Indictment or information.—An indictment charging the defendant with "unlawfully permitting a game with dice to be played and bet at a house under his control," the said "house being then and there a public place, to-wit, a house for retailing spirituous liquors," is good. Robinson v. State, 24 Tex. App. 4, 5 S. W. 509.

Where an indictment charges unlawful playing at a game of cards in a public place, and the evidence shows that the game played was "monte," the evidence will not sustain a conviction since different penalties are provided for "monte" and "playing with cards." Averheart v. State, 30 Tex. App. 651, 18 S. W. 416.

Art. 552. [383] Table or bank includes, what.

See Averheart v. State, 30 Tex. App. 651, 18 S. W. 416.

Art. 553. [384] Games specifically enumerated.

See Evans v. State (Cr. App.) 22 S. W. 18.

Indictment or information.—See Averheart v. State, 30 Tex. App. 651, 18 S. W. 416. "Faro" is one of the banking games specifically named in the statute, and to allege that the defendant bet at a "faro-bank" is to sufficiently allege the offense of which the defendant has been convicted. Short v. State, 23 Tex. App. 312, 4 S. W. 903.

Art. 554. [385] Indictment.

See Averheart v. State, 30 Tex. App. 651, 18 S. W. 416.

Art. 555. [386] Proof.

See Averheart v. State, 30 Tex. App. 651, 18 S. W. 416.

Art. 556. [387] "Played," "dealt" and "exhibited" defined.

See Lyle v. State, 30 Tex. App. 118, 16 S. W. 765, 28 Am. St. Rep. 893; Averheart v. State, 30 Tex. App. 651, 18 S. W. 416.

Art. 557. [388] Gaming table, bank, etc., betting at.

See Lyle v. State, 30 Tex. App. 118, 16 S. W. 765, 28 Am. St. Rep. 893.

3. Betting in general.—A recognizance on appeal from a conviction for crap playing must show that the game was not played in a private residence, since crap playing is not an offense eo nomine under this article, and the elements of the offense must be set out in the recognizance. Roe v. State (Cr. App.) 24 S. W. 28.

Each game or bet participated in or made by defendant charged with gaming was a separate offense. Wrenn v. State, 82 Cr. R. 642, 200 S. W. 844.

A conviction cannot be sustained on proof that defendant played a game of craps, without any showing that any bet was made on the game. Walling v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 1096.

9. Betting at game played with dice.—It is an offense to bet on any game played with dice, or remain in any place where such game is played, whether in private residence occupied by a family or elsewhere. Renfro v. State, 82 Cr. R. 343, 199 S. W. 1096.

16. Complaint, indictment or information.—Indictment charged that appellant bet and wagered at "a certain faro-bank." Held sufficient, inasmuch as faro is one of the games specially denounced by statute. Short v. State, 23 Tex. App. 312, 4 S. W. 903.

22. Evidence.—Evidence held to show that defendant violated the statute, by betting or wagering money at a game with cards at a private residence commonly resorted to for the purpose of gaming. Cagle v. State, 82 Cr. R. 347, 200 S. W. 153.

In prosecution for unlawful gaming in a private residence, it was not error to admit testimony as to why defendant put quilts over the windows in his residence. Id.

A deputy sheriff could testify in prosecution for unlawful gaming that he had watched "a bunch going up" toward defendant's residence, and that he heard money rattling in the room and heard an argument as if defendant and another had fallen out over the game. Id.

Evidence on prosecution for shooting craps held insufficient for conviction. Vaughn v. State, 84 Cr. R. 166, 206 S. W. 50.

Evidence held insufficient to sustain conviction for the offense of unlawfully betting at a game of pool. Yancey v. State, 84 Cr. R. 281, 206 S. W. 843.

Art. 559. [388b] Keeping or renting for.

2. Repeal.—Art. 572 was not repealed by this article. Allen v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 517.

13. Indictment or information—Keeping and being interested in keeping, etc.—An indictment alleging that two persons named did unlawfully permit a game of monte "to be played in a house under his control, the said house being a public place," etc., is fatally defective, as not showing that the house was under defendants' control, or that of either of them. Jones v. State (App.) 19 S. W. 677.

18. Evidence—Keeping or maintaining room, etc.—Evidence held to sustain conviction of permitting the use of a house for purpose of gambling with dice. Wright v. State, 83 Cr. R. 559, 204 S. W. 767.

Evidence that defendant, in a prosecution for keeping a gaming house, had assisted the owner of the premises in finding a tenant after he himself had surrendered his lease, knowing or believing that the tenant would keep a gaming house, was not sufficient to sustain his conviction as keeper of such house. Bell v. State, 84 Cr. R. 197, 206 S. W. 516.

20. Instructions.—In a prosecution for keeping a gaming house, it was error to refuse to charge that defendant could not be convicted for gambling. Bell v. State, 84 Cr. R. 197, 206 S. W. 516.

Art. 560. [388c] Betting at places resorted to.

Cited, Colchell v. State, 23 Tex. App. 584, 5 S. W. 139.

Art. 563. [388f] Persons going in gaming house.

Nature and elements of offense and persons liable.—The statute against being present where gambling is being carried on applies only to onlookers, and not to those playing. Harris v. State, 82 Cr. R. 196, 198 S. W. 956.

It is an offense to bet on any game played with dice, or remain in any place where such game is played, whether in private residence occupied by a family or elsewhere. Renfro v. State, 82 Cr. R. 343, 199 S. W. 1096.

Evidence.—The state's evidence on a prosecution for playing cards, being purely circumstantial, and entirely consistent with defendant's, that they were expecting to play cards on the coming of others, but had not begun, is insufficient for conviction. Renfro v. State, 82 Cr. R. 197, 198 S. W. 957.

Art. 572. [389] Permitting a house to be used for gaming.—If any person shall permit any game prohibited by the provisions of this chapter to be played in his house, or a house under his control, or upon his premises, or upon premises under his control, the said house being a public place, or the said premises being appurtenances to a public place, he shall be fined not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars. [Amended by Act March 5, 1881, p. 17.]

Explanatory.—This article was omitted from Vernon's Penal Code of 1916, in view of the decisions therein mentioned. In view of the later decision in Allen v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 517, it is inserted in this supplement as live law.

Repeal.—Art. 572, declaring that, if any person shall permit any game prohibited by the provisions of the chapter to be played in his house, or a house under his control, the house, being a public place, etc., shall be fined, was not repealed by art. 559, making it a felony for one knowingly to permit his premises to be used "as a place for the purpose of being used as a place to bet," etc., Allen v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 517. See, also, Francis v. State (Cr. App.) 233 S. W. 974.

Indictment or information.—An indictment under art. 572, declaring that, if any person shall permit any game prohibited by the provisions of the chapter to be played in his house, or a house under his control, the said house, being a public place, etc., shall be fined not less than $25 or more than $100, will not support a conviction for felony. Allen v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 517.

Art. 573. [390] [Superseded.]

See Francis v. State (Cr. App.) 233 S. W. 974.

Art. 574. [391] Procedure in gaming cases.

Immunity to persons testifying.—A person testifying before a grand jury in regard to gaming offenses is entitled to the protection of this article. Elliott v. State (App.) 19 S. W. 249.

In a prosecution for keeping a gambling house, where it appeared that previously defendant had been questioned in regard to keeping such house in connection with a homicide, held that a plea in abatement should have been sustained. Dodson v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 836.

Art. 577. Pool selling or book making.

Cited, American Metal Co. v. San Roberto Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 202 S. W. 360.

Art. 578. Betting on horse racing.

Elements of offense.—Where plaintiff agreed with another to run a horse race, the owner of the fastest horse to get stakes, and if either failed or refused to race, the other to have the stakes, such agreement was illegal, as betting on a horse race, and either party could rescind and recover his money from defendant stakeholder. Leber, v. Dibrell (Civ. App.) 216 S. W. 477.

[Acts 1915, 34th Leg., ch. 22, § 2; Acts 1921, 37th Leg., ch. 51, § 2, amending art. 587, Penal Code.]

Art. 588 $\frac{1}{4}$ . Manufacture, sale, etc., of intoxicating liquors unlawful.

—That it shall be unlawful for any person, directly or indirectly, to manufacture, sell, barter, exchange, transport, export, deliver, take orders for, solicit, or furnish spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors, or medicated bitters capable of producing intoxication, or any other intoxicant whatever, or any equipment for making any such liquors, or to possess or receive for the purpose of sale any such liquors herein prohibited. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 78, § 1; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 61, § B (§ 1).]

Took effect Nov. 15, 1921.

Explanatory.—This act, taken in connection with the amendment of art. 16, § 20, of the state Constitution, and the prohibition amendment to the United States Constitution, and the act of Congress enacted pursuant thereto (the Volstead Act) supersede, or at least render inoperative many other state laws relating to intoxicating liquors. This act supersedes Acts 1918, 35th Leg., 4th C. S., ch. 24, on the same subject.

See Todd v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 515; Thomas v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 157; Thomas v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 159; Chandler v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 999.

Validity.—The power of the Legislature to make a given act penal is not limited to the permission of the Constitution, but exists where not specifically forbidden; and transporting, receiving, and possessing of intoxicating liquor may be made an offense although not named and forbidden by Const. art. 16, § 20. Reeves v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 668; Banks v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 994.

The legislative power of the state, by Const. art. 3, § 1, is vested in the Legislature, and except as restricted by other provisions the Legislature may exert all the police power of the state, including the power to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicants. Ex parte Davis, 86 Cr. R. 168, 215 S. W. 341.

Constitutional amendment adopted May 24, 1919, forbidding the manufacture and sale of intoxicants, held not violative of Const. art. 3, § 1, as attempting to have a statute enacted by direct vote of the people. Berlew v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 518.

Const. art. 16, § 20, as amended, prohibits the manufacture, sale, barter, and exchange of intoxicants except for certain purposes, and authorizes the Legislature to enact laws to enforce said section, and a law forbidding the transporting, receiving, or possessing intoxicating liquor would aid in enforcing and making more effective such constitutional section and is authorized. Reeves v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 668.

There is nothing in the Constitution of the state of Texas which denies to the Legislature the power to enact laws forbidding the manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquor, or even liquors with insufficient alcoholic content to produce intoxication. Russell v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 948.

Section 1 of the state-wide prohibition law of Texas, prohibiting the manufacture of liquors within the state, except for medicinal, etc., purposes, is within the police powers of the state, and not in conflict with the federal Constitution. United States v. James (D. C.) 256 Fed. 102.

— Effect of national prohibition.—The Dean Prohibition Law is not in conflict with the Eighteenth Amendment to the federal Constitution and Volstead Act, and affords a basis for a prosecution for sale of intoxicating liquor. Robert v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 230; Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 486; Banks v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 670; Russell v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 948; Thomas v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 826.

The term "appropriate legislation," as used in Const. U. S. Amend. 18, § 2, authorizing Congress and the several states to enforce such amendment by appropriate legislation, means legislation contemplated to make the amendment fully effective; that is, legislation adapted to carry out the objects the legislators had in view. Ex parte Gilmore (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 199.

Constitution U. S. Amend. 18, § 2, providing that Congress and the several states shall have concurrent power to enforce such amendment by appropriate legislation, does not require that the state legislation shall be identical with that of Congress or be confined to an enforcement of the laws of Congress. Id.

There is nothing in the meaning of the term "concurrent," as contained in Const. U. S. Amend. 18, § 2, making the right of the states to pass appropriate legislation to enforce that amendment any more restricted than the power conferred upon Congress to effect the same result, except that the law of the state can affect only those within the state boundaries. Id.

Nature and elements of offenses.—A sale of intoxicating liquor is the transfer of title of property from one person to another. Robert v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 230.

If defendant moved on premises where there was paraphernalia for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor, and took possession of such paraphernalia and proceeded to use it, he was guilty of having in possession equipment to manufacture intoxicating liquor not for medicinal, etc., purposes, though the equipment was already in existence on the premises when he took charge of them. Thielepape v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 769.

The act of selling intoxicating liquor is one offense and that of possessing such liquor is a separate and distinct offense, and previous conviction or acquittal of the sale of liquor does not bar prosecution for possession of the same liquor. Chandler v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 337.

Designation of offenses.—One convicted under this act should be adjudged guilty of manufacturing, selling, etc., intoxicating liquor, not for medicinal, sacramental, or scientific purposes, and judgment and sentence should specify the particular acts for which the accused has been convicted, and a sentence and judgment for violating the "state-wide intoxicating liquor prohibition law" were defective, although this act was denominated by compiler as "State-Wide Intoxicating Liquor Prohibition," such naming not being the act of the Legislature and fitting no offense. Carr v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 405.

Jurisdiction.—The United States District Court is not given exclusive jurisdiction over the offense of possessing equipment for making intoxicating liquor under the Volstead Act, but the state court still has jurisdiction of a prosecution therefor under the state Penal Code. Andres v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 503.

One may be convicted in the state courts for the unlawful manufacture of intoxicating liquors in violation of Const. art. 16, § 20, under the Eighteenth Amendment to the federal Constitution and the act of Congress thereunder. Shaw v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 509.

Indictment or information.—An indictment charging unlawful transporting, receiving, and possessing of liquors capable of producing intoxication but failing to state that such was not for medicinal, mechanical, scientific, or sacramental purposes which are excepted by the statute, is fatally defective. Reeves v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 668.

Indictment for having in possession equipment for manufacturing liquor capable of producing intoxication, containing a description of the various articles claimed to constitute the equipment, held not vague, indefinite, or uncertain. Banks v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 670.

An indictment for having in possession equipment for manufacturing liquor capable of producing intoxication, was not defective for failure to allege that defendant acquired the equipment subsequent to passage of the act. Id.

It was not necessary for an indictment for having in possession equipment for manufacturing liquor capable of producing intoxication, to negative matters of special defense such as might arise from possession of such equipment under statutory permit. Id.

The use of the word "and" between the words "scientific" and "sacramental" in an indictment, instead of "or," in negating the statutory exceptions, does not render the indictment void. Bell v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 232.

Where defendant was charged with operating a still, the indictment, describing the liquor as spirituous, vinous, and intoxicating liquor capable of producing intoxication, was sufficient. Russell v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 948.

An indictment, charging defendant with being in possession of intoxicating liquors not for medicinal, scientific, sacramental, or mechanical purposes, is sufficient. Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 592.

An indictment, charging that defendant "did possess" intoxicating liquor not for medicinal, etc., purposes, was sufficient, though not using the expression "had in his possession." Rainey v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 118.

Admissibility of evidence.—It would be no justification or excuse that one of the sales of liquor made by a person charged with pursuing the business of selling intoxicating liquors was made under the belief that the liquor was for a person who was ill, and evidence of that fact was properly excluded. Mann v. State, 87 Cr. R. 142, 221 S. W. 296.

In a prosecution for making liquor, it was proper to allow the state to ask defendant whether he recalled the discovery of a still at a point near his residence; it appearing that the still was taken by officers to the county jail and there identified by the state's witness as the still which defendant had been operating. Russell v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 948.

In a prosecution for manufacturing intoxicating liquor, it is permissible for the state to ask defendant if the still discovered near his premises was not one he had been operating in a pasture, as testified to by the state's witness. Id.

In a prosecution for unlawful possession of intoxicating liquors, defendant should have been permitted to testify that in transporting the whisky he was acting for other parties as their agent, since it is not likely that the jury would have fixed the same amount of punishment for an agent's as for a principal's violation of the law. Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 692.

In a prosecution for having in possession equipment for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor not for medicinal, etc., purposes, testimony that when defendant was arrested, on returning home from a purported visit to his mother-in-law, a small quantity of whisky was found in his possession, or in the car he was driving, of a similar character to the whisky found in jugs at his barn, was admissible. Thielepape v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 769.

Sufficiency of evidence.—In a prosecution for the unlawful manufacture of intoxicating liquor, where defendant admitted that he made whisky, no further proof was required to show that the liquor was intoxicating. Grandberry v. State, 86 Cr. R. 232, 216 S. W. 164.

Evidence held to sustain conviction of illegal sale of intoxicating liquor. Berlew v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 518.

Evidence held insufficient to show that articles found in defendant's possession, which could be used in making intoxicating liquors in connection with other articles, were possessed by defendant for the purpose of manufacturing intoxicants for an unlawful purpose. Williams v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 316.

Where it appeared that defendant had been invited by another to ride in an automobile wherein liquor was subsequently found, and there was no evidence that he had possession of the liquor nor encouraged its transportation, the evidence was insufficient to sustain a conviction. Richardson v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 1094.

In a prosecution for having possession of equipment for manufacturing intoxicating liquors, for unlawful purposes, evidence of the possession of an oil stove, tubs, and barrels containing sour mash, which could be used in making corn whisky in connection with other utensils, would not support a conviction, without evidence, circumstantial or otherwise, that it was for the manufacture of intoxicating liquors for unlawful purposes. Thomas v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 156.

In a prosecution for having unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor, court properly refused to instruct the jury to return a verdict of not guilty on the ground that the state had failed to prove that defendant's possession of the liquor was not for lawful purposes, where it appeared that he was found in possession of two gallons of home-made whisky, and that he stated to the officer that he had gotten four gallons of same that morning, and had disposed of two gallons before night, and if the officers would let him alone he would dispose of the remainder, and then let the whole proposition alone. Carr v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 405.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain conviction for having in possession equipment for manufacturing liquor capable of producing intoxication for a purpose other than allowed by this act. Banks v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 670; Same v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 994.

In prosecution for unlawful possession of intoxicating liquors, evidence insufficient to sustain a conviction. Chandler v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 108.

In a prosecution for having in possession equipment for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor not for medicinal, etc., purposes, evidence held sufficient to sustain conviction, though the top of a certain kettle enumerated as one of the articles of the equipment and necessary before the equipment could be used to make liquor was not found or accounted for. Thielepape v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 769.

Evidence held to sustain conviction of having in possession intoxicating liquors not for medicinal, etc., purposes. Thielepape v. State (Cr. App.) 231 S. W. 773.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain conviction for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor not for medicinal, etc., purposes. Id.

In a prosecution for possessing equipment for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor, evidence held sufficient to support a conviction. Chandler v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 317.

In a prosecution for unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor, evidence held sufficient to show defendant's possession of the liquor was to make an unlawful sale. Chandler v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 337.

Evidence that defendant had on his premises a considerable quantity of intoxicating liquors and the equipment for its manufacture held sufficient to sustain a conviction for unlawful possession of the liquor, since the presence of the equipment indicates engaging in the business for unlawful purposes. Thomas v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 826.

Questions for jury.—In prosecution for transporting liquor into state on defendant's person, nature of defendant's relation to liquor found in his possession, bearing evidence of having been brought from Mexico, held issue of fact for jury; defendant's explanation that he had found liquor and was taking it to police station not being conclusive. Amaya v. State, 87 Cr. R. 160, 220 S. W. 98.

Where witness testified that he drove for defendant an automobile in which the latter placed the liquor, if the witness knew that defendant was transporting whisky in violation of law, he was an accomplice whose testimony must be corroborated, and whether he did so know was a question which should have been submitted to the jury. Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 692.

Charge.—In a prosecution for transporting liquor into state on defendant's person, instruction, presenting defendant's theory he had found liquor and was taking it to police station, that if his explanation was reasonable and true or a reasonable doubt existed on the issue, to acquit him, held proper. Amaya v. State, 87 Cr. R. 160, 220 S. W. 98.

In a prosecution for transporting and having possession of intoxicating liquor, in view of the lack of supporting evidence, refusal of defendant's requested charge that, if the grips containing liquor were left in his room, and he did not know their contents, he could not be guilty, held proper. Campbell v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 695.

In prosecution for unlawfully possessing intoxicating liquor, an instruction that the word "possess" means the exercise of actual control, care, and management of the property is correct; the ownership of the property not being an essential element of its possession. Thomas v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 826.

Decisions under Acts 1918, c. 24—Validity.—The provision prohibiting the sale, barter, or exchange of intoxicating liquors throughout the state, violates Const. art. 16, § 20, relating to local option. Ex parte Myer, 84 Cr. R. 288, 207 S. W. 100.

The state wide prohibition law is unconstitutional. Venn v. State, 85 Cr. R. 151, 210 S. W. 534.

Section 3, making it unlawful for any railroad to transport within or import into the state intoxicants, or for any person to receive the same or to deliver the same, in so far as it interfered with interstate commerce, was made valid by Webb-Kenyon Act (U. S. Comp. St. § 8739) and was not in conflict with any existing law. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 845.

The act was not in contravention of Const. art. 16, § 20, giving the right to voters within certain prescribed limits to determine from time to time whether intoxicants shall be sold in such prescribed limits. Id.

It is not indefinitely framed or of such doubtful construction that it cannot be understood from the language in which it is expressed. Id.

There was no such repugnance or doubt as to the meaning of the provisions relating to transportation and receipt of intoxicating liquors as to render the same void. Id.

Zone Liquor Law, § 3 (art. 610g, post) was not repealed or superseded by the act nor was the latter act repealed or superseded by chapter 31 (art. 606a, post) relating to sales and transportation of intoxicating liquor. Ex parte Roy, 85 Cr. R. 626, 215 S. W. 322.

Despite Const. art. 16, § 20, declaring the Legislature shall enact a law whereby the qualified voters of any county, town, or city, etc., by majority vote may determine from time to time whether the sale of intoxicants shall be prohibited, under article 3, § 1, vesting the legislative power in the Legislature, it could enact Acts 35th Leg. 1918 4th Called Sess. c. 24, § 1, prohibiting the manufacture of intoxicants. Ex parte Davis, 86 Cr. R. 168, 215 S. W. 341.

The act held not invalid as having been passed at a special session and not relating to a subject presented by the Governor, as required by Const. art. 3, § 40; he having mentioned the matter of intoxicants in his proclamation, and elaborated his views in a subsequent message. Id.

Acts 35th Leg. 4th Called Sess. (1918) c. 24, § 3, prohibiting transportation or importation into state of any spirituous liquors, held not inoperative as indirect violation of Const. art. 16, § 20. Amaya v. State, 87 Cr. R. 160, 220 S. W. 98.

The provision prohibiting transportation of intoxicating liquor, is constitutional, though section 2 of same act, prohibiting sale of intoxicating liquor, was invalid because the Constitution had prescribed the manner in which sales could be prohibited. Coleman v. State, 87 Cr. R. 240, 220 S. W. 1097.

— Construction and application in general.—Cited, Ex parte Davis, 86 Cr. R. 168, 215 S. W. 341.

The state-wide statutory prohibition did not repeal the local option law. Jarrott v. State, 84 Cr. R. 544, 209 S. W. 663; White v. State, 84 Cr. R. 545, 210 S. W. 200.

Any law which might be in conflict therewith, as to transportation or receipt of intoxicants, would be repealed thereby by implication, notwithstanding other sections of the chapter provide that all other laws prohibiting or regulating sale of intoxicants shall remain in full force and effect. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 845.

One violating the Zone Liquor Law is not entitled to be punished under the later passed State-Wide Act, fixing a lighter punishment. Ex parte Roy, 85 Cr. R. 626, 215 S. W. 322.

Provisions art. 606a, relating to transportation and shipment of intoxicating liquors in territory where such liquor has been prohibited under local option law, will prevail in such territory over chapter 24, the state-wide prohibition law, since the acts of same session of Legislature must be taken as a whole and construed as one act. (Per Morrow, J.) Ex parte Fulton, 86 Cr. R. 149, 215 S. W. 331.

In a prosecution for transporting intoxicating liquor it was error to refuse an instruction authorizing acquittal if accused was transporting it home for his personal use. Coleman v. State, 87 Cr. R. 240, 220 S. W. 1097.

The Acts of the Thirty-Fifth Legislature (1918) Fourth Called Session, on the subject of intoxicating liquors, should be construed together, so that, under chapter 24, prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors, and chapter 23, amending and re-enacting the license laws, relator, regularly licensed to sell intoxicating liquors, could not be convicted of selling such liquors without a license on any theory that his license was revoked by chapter 24. Ex parte Ford (Cr. App.) 226 S. W. 410.

The act does not make punishable the possession of intoxicating liquor. Carr v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 405.

Art. 588 $\frac{1}{4}$ a. Manufacture, sale, etc., of liquors containing in excess of 1 per cent of alcohol unlawful.—That it shall be unlawful for any person, directly or indirectly, to manufacture, sell, barter, exchange, transport, export, deliver, solicit, or take orders for, or furnish any spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors, or medicated bitters, or any potable liquor, mixture, or preparation, containing in excess of one per cent of alcohol by volume, or any equipment for making such liquors, or to possess or receive for the purpose of sale any such liquors herein prohibited. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 78, § 2; Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 61, § B (§ 2).]

Validity.—The Dean Law, relating to intoxicating liquors, is not void because of Const. U. S. Amend. 18, and the passage of the federal law known as the Volstead Act, because the state law gives to intoxicating liquors a definition varying from that prescribed by Congress, and because the penalties of the state and federal laws are different. Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 486.

Constitution held not to forbid the Legislature from making penal the sale for beverage purposes of liquor containing less than 1 per cent. of alcohol or prohibiting the transportation, possession, or delivery of such liquors. Reeves v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 668.

This article is valid though a federal law prohibits the transportation, etc., of liquor containing more than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol. Ex parte Gilmore (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 199.

Under Const. U. S. Amend. 18, the state cannot render lawful the manufacture, sale, or transportation of liquor containing a greater percentage of alcohol than that prohibited by federal law. Id.

The Dean Law, prohibiting the manufacturing of spirituous liquor containing in excess of 1 per cent. of alcohol, held valid. Burciago v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 562.

Nature and elements of offenses.—Defendant could not be convicted of manufacturing spirituous liquor with more than 1 per cent. alcohol under the Dean Law, if he manufactured the liquor for medicinal purposes, notwithstanding his failure to secure a permit from the comptroller of public accounts or to comply with the other conditions specified in sections 7-11, since such failure did not make him guilty of manufacturing liquor for an improper purpose. Burciago v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 562.

Evidence.—In prosecution for manufacturing spirituous liquor with more than 1 per cent. of alcohol in violation of Dean Law, in which defendant claimed that he had been making the liquor for his own use for medicinal purposes, the admission of testimony that defendant had not obtained a permit from the federal government or comptroller of the state to manufacture liquor for medicinal purposes held proper; the failure to obtain permit being persuasive that he was not making the liquor for medicinal purposes. Burciago v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 562.

In prosecution for manufacturing spirituous liquor with more than 1 per cent. of alcohol, sheriff's testimony that it looked as if the mash had run over the edges of barrels in defendant's house and had dried held admissible. Id.

Charge.—In a prosecution for the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors under the Dean Law, witnesses purchasing the liquor from defendants were particeps criminis and accomplices, and a conviction cannot be had on the testimony of one of them without corroboration, and it was error not to so charge. Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 488.

On a trial for selling intoxicating liquors, where the beverage sold was subsequently analyzed and found to contain a prohibited per cent. of alcohol, but defendant claimed it was not intoxicating when sold by him, the court, if requested, should charge that the jury should acquit if the liquor did not contain the prohibited percentage of alcohol at the time of the sale. Gardner v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 856.

Art. 588 $\frac{1}{4}$ a1. Sale for medicinal, mechanical, etc., purposes, permitted.—It shall not be unlawful for any person to manufacture, sell, barter, exchange, transport, export, deliver, solicit, take orders for, furnish, possess, or receive for the purpose of sale, barter, exchange, transport, export, or deliver spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors or medicated bitters for medicinal, mechanical, scientific, or sacramental purposes, subject to the provisions of this Act. [Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 61, § B, adding § 2a to Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 78.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>a2. Same; not punishable under this act.—The manufacture, sale, barter, exchange, transportation, exporting, soliciting, taking orders for, furnishing, and possessing of any of the liquors mentioned in this Chapter, if done for medicinal, mechanical, scientific, or sacramental purposes, and after a permit has been duly authorized and granted by the proper authorities, shall not be punishable under the terms of this Chapter. [Id., adding § 2b to Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 78.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>a3. Witness not to be regarded as accomplice.—Upon a trial for a violation of any of the provisions of this Chapter, the purchaser, transporter, or possessor of any of the liquors prohibited herein shall not be held in law or in fact to be an accomplice, when a witness in any such trial. [Id., adding § 2c to Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 78.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>a4. Suspended sentence law not to apply.—No person over twenty-five years of age convicted under any of the provisions of this Act shall have the benefit of the Suspended Sentence Law. [Id., adding § 2d to Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 78.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>aa. Definitions.—The words “intoxicating liquors,” or “liquors” hereafter used in this Act shall be held to include and comprehend all liquors referred to in the first and second sections of this Act and the said liquors prohibited by the said first and second sections of this Act will hereafter be referred to herein for convenience as “intoxicating liquors.” [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 78, § 3.]

Took effect 90 days after July 22, 1919, date of adjournment.

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>b. Liquors described in sections one and two construed to include, what.—The various liquors described in Sections 1 and 2 of this Act [arts. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>, 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>a] shall be construed to include all distilled malt, spirituous, vinous, fermented or alcoholic liquors and all alcoholic liquids and compounds, whether medicated, proprietary, patented or not, and by whatever name called, which require a federal tax as a beverage, or which contain more alcohol than is necessary to extract the medicinal properties of the drug contained in such preparation and to hold the medicinal agents in solution and preserve the same. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>bb. Person defined.—The word “person” as used in this Act shall be held to include both natural persons and corporations, but where the offense is committed by a corporation, then the corporation shall be punished as prescribed in Section 36 [art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>qq] of this Act. [Id., § 5.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>c. Intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes for use in residence; denatured alcohol; denatured rum; medicinal purposes; toilet, etc., preparations; storage in bonded warehouses.—The provisions of this Act shall not prohibit the possession of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes for use by the owner and members of his family, or bona fide guests, in a bona fide residence, if such liquors were purchased and deposited in such residence before this Act goes into effect. Nothing in this Act shall prohibit the manufacture, transportation, storage, and sale of denatured or pure ethyl alcohol, or denatured rum for use only in the industrial or mechanical arts or for scientific purposes or in chemical laboratories or hospitals, or to prevent the manufacture, transportation, sale and keeping and storing for sale any medicinal preparations manufactured in accordance with formulas prescribed by the United States Pharmacopeia or National Formulary or American Institute of Homeopathy, or of alcoholic, patent or proprietary medicines which do not require the payment of the Federal Tax as a beverage and which contain no more alcohol than is necessary to extract the medicinal properties of the drug contained in such preparation, and to hold the medicinal agents in solution, and to preserve the same and which are manufactured and sold for legitimate and lawful purposes and not as beverages, or to prevent the manufacture and sale of bona fide alcohol toilet, or anti-septic preparations and solutions or flavoring extracts which do not require the payment of Federal tax as a beverage and which contain no more alcohol than is necessary for the extraction, solution and preservation of the agents contained therein, and which are manufactured and sold for legitimate and lawful purposes and not as beverages, and upon the outside of the bottle or package of each is printed in English conspicuously and legibly and clearly the quantity by volume of alcohol in such preparation.

The Manufacturer of flavoring extracts or toilet, medicinal, anti-septic preparations or solutions, patent or proprietary medicines, or preparations permitted to be manufactured by this Act shall be permitted to purchase, possess, transport and store alcohol necessary for the manufacture of said article, but not to be sold or given away, provided that such manufacturer shall secure a permit from the Comptroller, and provided that said manufacturer shall make a monthly report to be filed with the Comptroller on or before the 10th day of each month, showing the name and quantity of every such preparation, solution or medicine so manufactured, and the percentage of alcohol contained in each such preparation, solution or medicine. Provided further that said manufacturer shall, upon request of the Attorney General of the State, the Comptroller of the State, or the District or County Attorney of the county in which such manufacturer has his place of business, furnish to the officer making such request any information called for by such officer with reference to the manufacture, storage or sale of any such alcoholic preparation, solution or medicine, and any information with reference to the quantities and dates of sale and transportation of any such preparation, solution or medicine to any person or persons designated in such request. And provided further that any of the officers herein above named shall have the right at any reasonable time within business hours to examine the books and records and all data in the possession of such manufacturer with reference to the manufacture, storage or sale of such alcoholic preparations.

Nothing herein shall prevent the storage in United States bonded warehouses in the custody of a United States collector of internal revenue of all liquors manufactured prior to the taking effect of this Act or to prevent the transportation of such liquors for purposes not inhibited by this Act. [Id., § 6.]

Such permits shall not be in conflict with the prohibitions contained herein. [Id., § 7.]

Effect of failure to comply with requirements.—Defendant could not be convicted of manufacturing spirituous liquor with more than 1 per cent. alcohol under the Dean

Law, if he manufactured the liquor for medicinal purposes, notwithstanding his failure to secure a permit from the comptroller of public accounts or to comply with the other conditions specified in this article, since such failure did not make him guilty of manufacturing liquor for an improper purpose. Burciago v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 562.

Art. 588 $\frac{1}{4}$ d. Permits to manufacture and sell; issue; pharmacists; bonds of retailers.—A permit shall not be issued by the Comptroller to any person who has, within two years next preceding the issuing of the same, been adjudged guilty of violating any of the provisions of this Act, or of any permit, or of any law of this State, or of the United States, prohibiting or regulating the liquor traffic; nor shall a permit be issued for the purpose of selling such liquor at retail, unless such sale be made by a pharmacist designated in the permit and duly licensed by the State Board of Pharmacy, nor until a bond shall be given and approved, and the applicant has filed written application therefor setting forth the qualifications and the purposes for which the permit will be used, together with such other information as the Comptroller may require. The bond herein required of a retailer shall be made payable to the Governor of this State at Austin, in Travis County, Texas, shall be in the sum of One Thousand Dollars conditioned for the faithful observance of this Act; the bond shall be upon such form as may be drawn and prescribed by the Attorney General and for any breach of the same suit may be brought in the District Court of Travis County to recover the entire amount of same as a penalty for such violation of the law and breach of the bond. Said bond, if signed by personal sureties, must be signed by two solvent sureties, or, if by a surety company, then by a surety company authorized to transact business in the State of Texas. The bond shall be subject to the approval of the Comptroller and shall be filed in his office. The Attorney General shall bring all actions for breach of said bond in the name of the State. Nothing in this act shall be construed as requiring that any priest, rabbi or minister of any religious denomination or sect to have a permit in order to purchase or receive shipments of wine for sacramental purposes; and nothing in this Act shall make it unlawful for any priest, rabbi or minister or any religious denomination or sect to purchase, order or receive, wine for sacramental purposes or for any common carrier to ship, transport, carry or deliver same to any priest, rabbi or minister of any religious denomination or sect for sacramental purposes only; provided, however, that where such shipment or purchase is made a record thereof shall be made and kept and the priest, rabbi or minister making such purchase or shipment shall be identified. [Id., § 10.]

Art. 588 $\frac{1}{4}$ ee. Record of liquors manufactured or sold.—All persons authorized to manufacture alcohol shall keep a separate record of such liquors manufactured or sold, giving date and quantity of such liquor manufactured and sold, the quantity of such liquor on hand, name and address of persons to whom such liquor was sold, the name and address of all agents in any way connected with such manufacture, sale, or purchase, or the keeping, storing, delivering, consigning, and distribution of such liquor, the name and address of all common, or other carriers, receiving, transporting, and delivering said liquor, and a copy of the application on which the purchase or sale of such liquor was made, and a detailed account of the dispositions of such liquor. A copy of such record shall be sent to the Comptroller of Public Accounts every third month after the Act goes into effect by the 10th of the month for the quarter preceding. [Id., § 11.]

Art. 588 $\frac{1}{4}$ f. Sales by wholesale and retail druggists; records.—It shall be unlawful for a wholesale druggist to sell alcohol or wine, except in wholesale quantities, to persons having permits to purchase in such quantities. Such wholesale druggist shall keep an accurate record of all sales and label the containers of such liquor, setting forth the kind of liquor contained therein, by whom manufactured, and the person to whom sold. A copy of such record shall be sent to the Comptroller of Public Accounts every third month after this Act goes into effect by the 10th of the month for the quarter preceding. It shall be unlawful for a retail druggist or pharmacist to sell any liquor except alcohol for nonbeverage purposes or wine for sacramental purposes. any narcotic drug, and have a permit as provided herein for issuing prescriptions. Such physician before issuing any prescriptions must make a careful personal, physical examination of the person to whom the alcohol is prescribed, and in no case issue such prescription to any person whom he has reason to believe will use alcohol for beverage purposes, nor prescribe more than a pint of alcohol to any person at a time. Nor shall such prescriptions be filled at any pharmacy or drug store in which the physician has any financial interest. For any shift or device by which intoxicating liquors may be improperly prescribed, or for any violation of this section, in addition to the penalty prescribed, for the first offense under this Act, the Comptroller of Public Accounts may suspend the permit of such physician to issue prescriptions for alcohol for a period of one year, and for the second offense, in addition to the punishment prescribed herein, the permit of such physician shall be deemed revoked forthwith. The revocation of such permit, if revoked by the court, shall be sent to the authority granting the permit and shall act as a ban to the granting of any further permit to such physician to issue prescriptions. [Id., § 14.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>gg. Common carriers; permits.—It shall be the duty of every railroad company, express company, or other common carrier that transports any liquor to secure first a permit from the Comptroller of Public Accounts and to keep correctly at the place of receipt for shipment, in typewriting or in a clear and legible hand, that the same may be easily read, a permanent alphabetically arranged record of the receipt of such liquors and the name and post office address, street address, or other description of domicile of the consignor and consignee, and the place of delivery. The copy of the record hereinbefore mentioned shall be sent by the transportation company to the Comptroller of Public Accounts of the State where the delivery was made, not later than the 10th day of the month for the quarter next preceding. [Id., § 16.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>hh. If such container is inclosed in a package with other material, then such copy shall be attached to it or pasted on it when it is taken from such package and before the liquor is delivered. Complaints of violations of law by pharmacists; revocation of permit.—If at any time there shall be filed with the Comptroller of Public Accounts a complaint under oath setting forth that any pharmacist, who has a permit to sell alcohol for medicinal, mechanical, or scientific purposes, or wine for sacramental purposes, is not in good faith conforming to the provisions of this Act, or is guilty of violating this Act, the Comptroller of Public Accounts or his agent shall immediately issue an order citing such pharmacist to appear at a place in the State where he resides before the Comptroller of Public Accounts, on a day named not more than thirty days, nor fewer than fifteen days, from the issuing of such order, at which time the question of the cancellation of such permit shall be heard. If it be found that such pharmacist is guilty of violating any of the provisions of this Act, such permit shall be revoked and no permit shall be granted to such person, firm, or corporation for two years thereafter. [Id., § 20.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>j. Place of delivery of liquor.—In case of a sale where a shipment or delivery of such intoxicating liquor is made by a common or other carrier the sale or delivery thereof shall be deemed to be made in the county wherein the delivery is made by such carrier, to the consignee, his agent, or employes. A prosecution for such sale or delivery may likewise be had in the county wherein the sale is made or from which the shipment is made, or in any county through which the shipment is made. [Id., § 21.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>jj. Advertising liquors, etc., unlawful.—It shall be unlawful to advertise anywhere, on land or water, by any means or method, intoxicating liquors, or to advertise the manufacture, method of manufacture, sale, keeping for sale or furnishing of the same, or where, how, from whom and at what price the same may be obtained, provided that the manufacturer of alcohol or wine and wholesale druggists having a permit under this act shall be allowed to send price lists to those to whom they are permitted to sell alcohol or wine under this act; it shall also be unlawful to permit any sign or billboard containing such prohibited advertisement to remain upon one's premises or to circulate any prohibited price list, order blank or other matter designed to induce or secure orders for such intoxicating liquors. The officers charged with the enforcement of this act are authorized to remove, paint over or otherwise obliterate any such advertisement from any sign, billboard or other place when it comes to his notice, and shall do so upon the demand of any citizen who has first requested the person in charge of such advertisement, or the owner of the property on which it is located and such person fail to remove such advertisement as required by law. Any advertisement or notice containing the picture of a brewery, distillery, bottle, keg, barrel, or box or other receptacle represented as containing intoxicating liquors, or designed to serve as an advertisement thereof, shall be within the inhibition of this section. It shall be unlawful for any newspaper or periodical to print in its columns statement concerning the manufacture or distribution of alcoholic liquors directly or indirectly, for which the said newspaper or periodical receives compensation of any kind, without printing at the beginning and at the close of said statement in type of the same size used in the body of the said article the following statement: "Printed as paid advertising." [Id., § 22.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>k. Removal of prohibited liquors, etc.—Within thirty days after the date when this act has become operative, every person except licensed pharmacists, wholesale druggists, manufacturing chemists, or hospitals or other places provided for herein to legally possess liquor, shall remove, or cause to be removed, all intoxicating liquors in his possession for prohibited purposes, and failure to do so shall be evidence that such liquor is kept therein for the purpose of being sold, bartered, exchanged, given away, furnished or otherwise disposed of in violation of the provisions of this act; and provided further, that any licensed pharmacist, wholesale druggist, manufacturing chemist, or person in charge of hospital or other place having liquor or alcohol shall report to the Comptroller of Public Accounts within the thirty-days' period the kinds and amounts of intoxicating liquors, or the manufacture thereof, shall be permanently removed and obliterated. Such signs shall be removed within five days after this act becomes operative.

All screens, stained glass, or other obstructions which prevent a clear view of the interior of any room or place where intoxicating liquors were sold as a beverage, within one year before this act became operative shall be removed or changed so as to give a permanent unobstructed view of the interior of said room or place, if beverages of any kind are sold therein. [Id., § 23.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>kk. Sale, etc., of compound, etc., for making intoxicating liquors.—It shall be unlawful to advertise, sell, deliver, or possess any preparation, compound, or table from which intoxicating liquor as a beverage is made, or any formula, directions, or recipes for making intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes. Transportation of liquor without notice to carrier thereof unlawful.—It shall be unlawful for any person to use or induce any railroad company, express company, or any other carrier, or any servant or employee thereof, or any person or persons, to carry, transport, or ship any package or receptacle containing liquors without notifying the carrier, its servant or agent, or any person who carries the same, of the true nature and character of the shipment. But failure to notify such carrier shall not be a defense for illegal transportation. [Id., § 25.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>ll. Soliciting, etc., orders for liquor unlawful.—It shall be unlawful for any person to solicit, or receive from any person for the purpose of forwarding for the person from whom received, any orders for intoxicating liquors from any person or to give any information how such prohibited liquors may be received or where such liquors are, or to send for such liquors, except for the purposes permitted by this Act. [Id., § 26.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>m. Action for damages for injuries caused by sale, etc., of liquors.—Every wife, husband, child, parent, guardian, or other person who shall be injured in person or property or means of support or otherwise by any intoxicated person by reason of the unlawful selling, giving, or furnishing or transporting to any person of the liquors mentioned shall have a right of action in his or her name against any person or persons or corporation who shall, by unlawful selling, transporting or giving any such orders, have caused or contributed to any such injury; and in any action provided for in this Section the plaintiff shall have a right to recover actual and exemplary damages. In case of the death of either party, the action or right of action given by this section shall survive to and against his or her executors or administrator, and the amount so recovered by either wife or child shall be his or her sole and separate property. Such damages together with the costs of suit, shall be recoverable in an action before any court of competent jurisdiction; and in any case where parents shall be entitled to such damages, either the father or mother may sue alone therefor, but recovery by one of such parties shall be a bar to suit brought by the other. [Id., § 27.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>mm. Unlawful orders to carrier for delivery of liquor.—It shall be unlawful to give to any carrier, or any officer, agent or person acting or assuming to act for such carrier, an order requiring the delivery to any person of any liquor or package containing liquors consigned to or purporting to or claimed to be consigned to a person when the purpose of the order is to enable any person not an actual bona fide consignee to obtain such liquors. [Id., § 28.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>n. Transportation, etc., of liquor without certain information attached to packages unlawful.—It shall be unlawful for any person to transport liquor or to receive or possess any liquors from a common or other carrier unless there appears on the outside of the package containing such liquors the following information:

Name and address of the consignor or seller, name and address of the consignee or persons receiving the liquor; kind and quantity of liquor contained therein and number of permit. Any consignee accepting or receiving any package containing any such liquors upon which appears a false statement, or any person consigning, shipping, transporting, or delivering and such package, knowing that such statement appearing on the outside in false, shall be deemed guilty of violating the provisions of this act. [Id., § 29.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>nn. No property rights in liquors possessed, etc., unlawfully; seizure and destruction.—No property rights of any kind shall exist in any intoxicating liquors manufactured or sold or kept for sale for beverage purposes in violation of law, and in all such cases the same may be searched for, seized, and ordered to be destroyed. Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>o. [Repealed.]

Acts 1921, 37th Leg. 1st C. S., ch. 61, § A, expressly repeals section 31 of Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 78.

Testimony of purchaser.—A conviction for the unlawful selling of intoxicating liquors cannot be had under the Dean Law, in view of this article, making purchase unlawful, and art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>ss, which seeks to compel offenders to testify, and of arts. 74-88, defining principals, accomplices, and accessories, where the witness purchasing the liquor was not corroborated as required by Code Cr. Proc. art. 801. Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 486.

The rule prescribed by Code Cr. Proc. 1911, art. 801, that accomplice's testimony must be corroborated, applies, in a prosecution for the sale of intoxicating liquors, to witnesses purchasing; this article making the purchase unlawful, so that, even if the purchaser was not a principal offender with the seller, he is an offender, and his testimony would require corroboration, the identity of the offense not being essential. Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 487.

In a prosecution for the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors under the Dean Law, witnesses purchasing the liquor from defendants were particeps criminis and accomplices, and a conviction cannot be had on the testimony of one of them without corroboration, and it was error not to so charge. Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 488.

In a prosecution for the unlawful possession of intoxicating liquors, where witness testified that he drove for defendant an automobile in which the latter placed the liquor, if the witness knew that defendant was transporting whisky in violation of law, he was an accomplice whose testimony must be corroborated, and whether he did so know was a question which should have been submitted to the jury. Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 692.

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>oo. Renting, keeping, etc., building, etc., for unlawful manufacture, etc., of liquor unlawful.—It shall be unlawful for any person to rent to another or to keep or to be in any way interested in keeping any premises, building, room, boat or place to be used for the purpose of storing, manufacturing, selling, transporting, receiving or delivering, or bartering or giving away intoxicating liquors in violation of this Act and any one who knowingly does so shall be guilty of violating this Act and shall be punished accordingly as provided in the penal Section [Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>qq] hereof. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg. 2d C. S., ch. 78, § 32.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>p. Common nuisances; punishment.—Any room, house, building, boat, structure or place of any kind similar or dissimilar to those named, where intoxicating liquor is kept, possessed, sold, manufactured, bartered or given away, or to be transported to or transported from in violation of law, and all intoxicating liquors and all property kept in and used in maintaining such place are hereby declared to be a common nuisance and any person who maintains or assists in maintaining such common nuisance shall be guilty of violating this act and shall be punished accordingly. [Id., § 33.]

Art. 5881/4pp. Same; abatement; injunction; bond of owner of premises.—The Attorney General or county or district attorney of the county where such nuisance, as defined in Section 33 of this Act [Art. 5881/4p], exists or is kept or maintained, may maintain an action in the name of the State of Texas to abate and perpetually enjoin such nuisance and upon judgment of the court ordering, such nuisance shall be abated, all intoxicating liquor, containers, utensils and instrumentalities used in the maintenance of such nuisance shall be ordered by the court to be destroyed, same shall be destroyed by any officer authorized to execute civil process; the court shall also order that the place where said nuisance is kept or maintained be closed for one year or until the owner, lessee, tenant or occupant thereof shall file bond with sufficient sureties to be approved by the court making the order in the penal sum of $1,000.00, payable to the State of Texas, at Austin, Texas, and conditioned that intoxicating liquor will not thereafter be manufactured, sold, bartered, stored, transported to or from, or given away in violation of law. In case of the violation of any condition of such bond, the whole sum may be recovered as a penalty in the name and for the State of Texas in the District Courts of Travis County, all suits to be brought by the Attorney General. In all cases where any person has been convicted of a violation of the provisions of this Act for acts done in keeping or maintaining the nuisance defined in Section 33 hereof, and such conviction has been final, then a certified copy of such judgment of conviction shall be considered as prima facie evidence of the existence of such nuisance in any action to abate the same. [Id., § 34.]

Decisions under prior act.—Under Act 35th Leg. (Fourth Called Sess.) c. 24, known as the "State-Wide Prohibition Law," injunction will lie to restrain a railroad from using its transportation facilities in the state for receiving, transporting, or delivering intoxicants except for medicinal, scientific, mechanical, or sacramental purposes. Gulf. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 845.

Art. 5881/4q. Seizure and destruction of liquor; search warrant.—A search warrant may be issued under Title 6 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of this State for the purpose of searching for and seizing and destroying any intoxicating liquor possessed, sold or to be sold or transported, or to be transported, or manufactured in violation of this Act, and for the purpose of searching for and seizing and destroying any containers, instrumentalities for manufacture or of transportation used or to be used in the unlawful possession, sale, manufacture or transportation of intoxicating liquors. No warrant shall be issued to search a private dwelling occupied as such, unless some part of it is used as a store, shop, hotel or boarding house, or for some purpose other than a private residence, or unless the affidavits of two credible persons show that such residence is a place where intoxicating liquor is sold or manufactured in violation of the terms of this act.

The application for the issuance of and the execution of any such search warrant, and all proceedings relative thereto, shall conform as near as may be to the provisions of title 6 of the Code of Criminal procedure of this State, except where otherwise provided in this act.

In the event any such liquor or utensils, containers or instrumentalities herein referred to are found, the officer executing the warrant shall seize same. The liquor and articles so seized shall not be taken from the custody of officer by writ of replevin or other process, but shall be held by the officer to await the final judgment in the proceedings. [Id., § 35.]

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>qq. Punishment for violations of act; corporations.—Any person violating any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by confinement in the Penitentiary for any period of time not less than one (1) year or more than five (5) years.

Any corporation violating any of the provisions of this act shall be subject to a penalty in favor of the State of Texas, which shall be recoverable in an action in the name of the State to be brought by the Attorney General in any district court of Travis County or such action may be brought in the district court of any county where the offense is committed, by the Attorney General or by the county or district attorney of such county with the consent and approval of the Attorney General. In any such action for penalties, the State shall recover the sum of Five Hundred ($500.00) Dollars for any violation of the law, provided that each separate violation of the law shall be considered a separate offense is within the terms of this section, or where the offense is of a continuing character, then each day shall be considered a separate infraction of the law, for which the penalty may be recovered. The officers, agents or servants of any corporation against which any such penalty suit may be brought shall not be excused from testifying on the ground that their testimony might incriminate them, but where they are called upon by the State to testify and do testify they shall not be prosecuted for their participation in those acts about which they have testified. [Id., § 36.]

Validity.—The Dean Law, relating to intoxicating liquors, is not void because of Const. U. S. Amend. 18, and the passage of the federal law known as the Volstead Act, because the state law gives to intoxicating liquors a definition varying from that prescribed by Congress, and because the penalties of the state and federal laws are different. Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 486.

A difference in the penalty prescribed by an act of Congress and a state law passed for the purpose of enforcing Const. U. S. Amend. 18, does not render the state law unconstitutional. Ex parte Gilmore (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 199.

Court did not err, in a prosecution for violation of the prohibition law, in charging the penalty under the state law, instead of the punishment as prescribed in the Volstead Act of Congress. Reece v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 562.

An indictment, charging defendant with being in possession of intoxicating liquors not for medicinal, scientific, sacramental or mechanical purposes, is sufficient, and is not subject to be quashed on the theory that the Dean Law, under which it was drawn, conflicts with rulings on the federal law known as the Volstead Act, relating to parties becoming owners prior to such act going into effect in a case where defendant was shown to have been transporting whisky to other parties. Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 692.

Testimony of purchaser.—In a prosecution for the unlawful sale of intoxicating liquors under the Dean Law, witnesses purchasing the liquor from defendants were particeps criminis and accomplices, and a conviction cannot be had on the testimony of one of them without corroboration, and it was error not to so charge. Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 488.

In a prosecution for the unlawful possession of intoxicating liquors, where witness testified that he drove for defendant an automobile in which the latter placed the liquor, if the witness knew that defendant was transporting whisky in violation of law, he was an accomplice whose testimony must be corroborated, and whether he did so know was a question which should have been submitted to the jury. Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 230 S. W. 692.

Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>r. Compensation to district or county attorney for bringing penalty suits.—It is further provided that where penalty suits are brought in Section 36 of this Act [Art. 588<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>qq], with the consent and approval of the Attorney General, that the district or county attorney bringing the same shall receive as compensation for his services twenty-five (25) per cent. of the amount of penalties recovered and collected, which amount may be held by the district or county attorney recovering the same when he collects and pays over the balance of the judgment to the State. [Id., § 37.]

Art. 588 $\frac{1}{4}$ rr. Restraining violations of act.—In addition to all other remedies now provided by law and provided in this Act, the Attorney General is hereby authorized to enjoin the violation of any section or sections of this act, and suit therefor may be maintained in the name of the State of Texas in any District Court in Travis County, Texas, and for such purpose venue and jurisdiction is hereby conferred upon the district courts of Travis County, Texas; and the district or county attorney of any county, wherein any of the provisions of this act, are violated, is authorized to institute and maintain, in the district court of any such county, a suit in the name of the State to enjoin and prevent the violation of any section or sections of this act. This remedy by an injunction given in this section shall be cumulative of and in addition to the other provisions of this act providing penalties or creating and defining crimes and punishments, and may be maintained with or without prosecutions or penalty suits herein otherwise provided for. [Id., § 38.]

Art. 588 $\frac{1}{4}$ s. Violations of injunction; punishment.—Any person violating the terms of any injunction issued under the provisions of Section 38 of this Act [Art. 588 $\frac{1}{4}$ rr] shall be punished for contempt by fine of not less than One Hundred (\$100.00) Dollars nor more than Five Hundred (\$500.00) Dollars, and by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than thirty (30) days, nor more than six (6) months. [Id., § 39.]

Art. 588 $\frac{1}{4}$ ss. Witnesses.—No person shall be excused from testifying against persons who have violated any provisions of this act for the reason that such testimony will tend to incriminate him, but no person required to so testify shall be punished for acts disclosed by such testimony. [Id., § 40.]

Corroboration of purchaser.—A conviction for the unlawful selling of intoxicating liquors cannot be had under the Dean Law, in view of art. 588 $\frac{1}{4}$ o, making purchase unlawful, and this article, and of Pen. Code. arts. 74-88, defining principals, accomplices, and accessories, where the witness purchasing the liquor was not corroborated as required by Code Cr. Proc. art. 801. Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 486.

Art. 588 $\frac{1}{4}$ t. Pending prosecutions, etc.—All suits or actions, civil or criminal, pending under the law in force the day this Act takes effect, may be prosecuted to final judgment and such judgment entered in like manner with the same effect as though this Act was not passed and all rights and action, civil or criminal, accrued under any existing law are hereby preserved and saved and excepted from the operation and effect of this Act, and the same may be prosecuted by suit for recovery or conviction in like manner and to the same extent as might be done if this act was not passed. [Id., § 41.]

Art. 588 $\frac{1}{4}$ tt. Partial invalidity of act.—If any provisions of this act shall be held to be invalid, it is hereby provided that all other provisions of this act, which are not held to be invalid, shall continue in full force and effect. [Id., § 42.]

Articles 589-591. [Superseded.]

Explanatory.—These articles are made inoperative by the amendment of art. 16, § 20, of the state Constitution, and by Acts 1919, 36th Leg., 2d C. S., ch. 78, ante, arts. 588¼ to 588¾tt.

ARTICLE 589

See Ex parte Segars, 32 Tex. Cr. R. 553, 25 S. W. 26.

1. In general.—This article was applicable to counties in which local option was adopted previous to its passage. Gearheart v. State, 81 Cr. R. 540, 197 S. W. 187.

Where election on question of prohibition was carried prior to Acts 31st Leg. (1st Called Sess.) c. 15, making it offense to pursue business of selling intoxicating liquors in prohibition territory, such act was applicable. Mackey v. State, 81 Cr. R. 630, 199 S. W. 482.

2. Legislative power.—Acts 35th Leg. (4th Called Sess.) c. 24, p. 37, prohibiting the sale, barter, or exchange of intoxicating liquors throughout the state, violates Const. art. 16, § 20, relating to local option. Ex parte Myer, 84 Cr. R. 288, 207 S. W. 100.

4. Relation to other statutes and former jeopardy.—The Zone Law could not substitute or repeal a local option law voted in by the people. Jarrott v. State, 84 Cr. R. 544, 209 S. W. 663.

The local option prohibition law was not repealed by Acts 35th Leg. (4th Called Sess.) c. 24, providing for state-wide prohibition, nor by the act of the Legislature establishing the ten-mile zone law. White v. State, 84 Cr. R. 545, 210 S. W. 200.

6. Offense.—If defendant had no interest in and did not reap any profits from sale of whisky but procured it as an accommodation, it would not constitute a sale. Alexander v. State, 84 Cr. R. 75, 204 S. W. 644; Amonett v. State, 83 Cr. R. 587, 204 S. W. 438.

Only an illegal sale that forms basis of conviction, and legal sales, or a sale for which defendant had been tried and convicted, would constitute no violation of law. Amonett v. State, 83 Cr. R. 587, 204 S. W. 438.

It would be no justification or excuse that one of the sales of liquor made by a person charged with pursuing the business of selling intoxicating liquors was made under the belief that the liquor was for a person who was ill. Mann v. State, 87 Cr. R. 142, 221 S. W. 296.

8. Indictment.—The offense of engaging in the business of selling liquors in prohibition territory, laid by the indictment as committed on or about a certain day, embraces a period of three years prior and up to the filing of the indictment. Jackson v. State, 82 Cr. R. 383, 200 S. W. 150; Alexander v. State, 84 Cr. R. 75, 204 S. W. 644; White v. State, 86 Cr. R. 420, 217 S. W. 389.

An indictment for pursuing business of selling intoxicating liquors is required to give name of alleged purchaser of liquor touching the two sales essential under the statute. Fisher v. State, 81 Cr. R. 568, 197 S. W. 189; Mackey v. State, 81 Cr. R. 630, 199 S. W. 482.

A person cannot be convicted for pursuit of occupation of selling intoxicating liquors, where the indictment alleges the making of a sale to each of two named persons within three years next preceding filing of the indictment, unless the sales are proven as alleged. Robinson v. State, 81 Cr. R. 448, 196 S. W. 186.

Proof of sale to purchaser not named in indictment would not constitute basis of conviction, though admissible as tending to show that he was pursuing such business. Amonett v. State, 83 Cr. R. 587, 204 S. W. 438.

Where two elections had been held at different times in the same county, both of which resulted in favor of local option, an indictment for following the business of selling intoxicants in that county may allege either election. Elam v. State, 87 Cr. R. 190, 220 S. W. 332.

10. Evidence—Admissibility.—Evidence of other offenses, see notes under art. 783, C. C. P. note 55.

Testimony of witness, on prosecution for engaging in liquor business in prohibition territory, that when on occasions he bought whisky from defendant he had a number of quarts on hand, is admissible. Jackson v. State, 82 Cr. R. 383, 200 S. W. 150.

On prosecution for engaging in liquor business in prohibition territory, evidence of receipt of shipments by defendant within the three years before filing of indictment is not too remote. Id.

Evidence of custom of whites to order whisky in name of negroes not being connected with defendant held not admissible for him on prosecution for engaging in liquor business in prohibition territory. Id.

In prosecution for pursuing business of selling intoxicating liquors in local option territory, where there was evidence of sale to one of alleged purchasers, evidence that defendant had been acquitted of charge of such sale was admissible. Amonett v. State, 83 Cr. R. 587, 204 S. W. 438.

In a prosecution for pursuing the occupation of a retail liquor dealer in a county where the sale was forbidden, where defendant did not put in issue his reputation, evidence as to his bad reputation as a seller of intoxicating liquors is inadmissible. Alexander v. State, 86 Cr. R. 606, 218 S. W. 752.

11. — Sufficiency.—Evidence held sufficient to sustain a conviction of engaging in the business of selling liquors in prohibition territory. Jackson v. State, 82 Cr. R. 383, 200 S. W. 150; Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 199 S. W. 466; White v. State, 82 Cr. R. 286, 199 S. W. 1117; Morse v. State, 83 Cr. R. 153, 201 S. W. 1158; Goss v. State, 83 Cr. R. 349, 202 S. W. 956; Jennings v. State, 84 Cr. R. 242, 206 S. W. 522; Crockett v. State, 84 Cr. R. 604, 209 S. W. 408; Jones v. State, 86 Cr. R. 261, 216 S. W. 183.

Testimony of one witness as to isolated sales was insufficient to establish that accused was engaged in "business." Gearheart v. State, 81 Cr. R. 540, 197 S. W. 187.

Under art. 597, proof of one sale of intoxicating liquor will warrant conviction; but in a prosecution under this article, three sales to the same person the same day, unaccompanied by other proof, is insufficient. Young v. State, 81 Cr. R. 656, 198 S. W. 148.

Evidence of three sales of liquor, and defendant's possession shortly before of about a gallon of whisky, held insufficient to support conviction for pursuing business of selling intoxicants. Reese v. State, 82 Cr. R. 447, 199 S. W. 469.

Proof of separate sales made by accused to the same individual on dates about two weeks apart is not sufficient to sustain a conviction for pursuing business of selling intoxicating liquor. Elam v. State, 87 Cr. R. 190, 220 S. W. 332.

13. Instructions.—Refusal of defendant's special instruction presenting his defense that he acted as agent merely, in one transaction held error. Amonett v. State, 83 Cr. R. 587, 204 S. W. 438.

ARTICLE 590

Evidence.—An examined verbatim copy of an internal revenue license for selling intoxicants, having been proven completely, was properly admitted in evidence. White v. State, 82 Cr. R. 286, 199 S. W. 1117.

Since keeping a disorderly house, in violation of arts. 496, 500, is a continuing offense, witnesses may testify that they had seen posted in defendant's place of business an internal revenue license about the time sales of liquor were made. Claunch v. State, 83 Cr. R. 378, 204 S. W. 436.

Number of sales.—A person cannot be convicted of pursuit of occupation of selling intoxicating liquors, where the indictment alleges the making of a sale to each of two named persons within three years next preceding filing of the indictment, unless the sales are proven as alleged. Robinson v. State, 81 Cr. R. 448, 196 S. W. 186.

Evidence.—District attorney can ask a witness, who testified that he bought liquor from defendant, when, where, and how many times he bought it, where the times fixed were within three years next preceding filing of indictment for engaging in business of selling liquor. Gray v. State, 82 Cr. R. 27, 197 S. W. 960.

Evidence in prosecution for engaging in business of selling intoxicating liquor in prohibition territory, held to sustain conviction. Goss v. State, 83 Cr. R. 349, 202 S. W. 956.

Explanatory.—This article is made inoperative by the amendment of art. 16, § 20, of the state Constitution and by Acts 1919, 36th Leg., 2d C. S., ch. 78, ante, arts. 588¼-588½tt.

See Payne v. State (App.) 19 S. W. 677.

Indictment.—An indictment, that defendant gave intoxicating liquor to one named, "then and there being under the age of 21 years, without the written consent of the parent * * * of the said —, against the peace," etc., was too uncertain as to who was the minor and as to consent. Earnest v. State, 83 Cr. R. 41, 201 S. W. 175.

Evidence.—In prosecution for giving intoxicating liquor to minor, mere proof that girl obtaining liquor was only 17 was insufficient to warrant conviction, in the absence of evidence as to her size and development. Earnest v. State, 83 Cr. R. 41, 201 S. W. 175.

In prosecution for giving intoxicating liquors to minor, state must show that defendant knew of minority. Id.

Charge.—A charge that if the minor informed defendant, at the time the liquor was sold, that he was 21 years old, and if defendant believed such statement to be true, and on the strength of it sold him the liquor, the jury must acquit, does not change the rule of the statute, that defendant shall knowingly sell before conviction can be had. Jones v. State, 32 Cr. R. 110, 22 S. W. 149.

Arts. 594-606. [Superseded.]

3. Relation to other statutes and former jeopardy.—Acts 35th Leg. 4th Called Sess. chs. 5, 6, amending arts. 611 and 612, prescribing punishment for selling intoxicating liquor without a license, does not apply to local option territory. Reed v. State, 84 Cr. R. 335, 206 S. W. 937.

The local option prohibition law was not repealed by Acts 35th Leg. 4th Called Sess. ch. 24, providing for state-wide prohibition, nor by the 10-mile zone law. White v. State, 84 Cr. R. 545, 210 S. W. 200.

5. License.—Prosecution for sale of intoxicating liquor at retail without license in local option territory may be maintained under this article, but not under article 612, as amended by Acts 35th Leg. (Fourth Called Sess.), c. 6, § 1, such provision not applying to local option territory. Buckner v. State, 83 Cr. R. 554, 204 S. W. 327.

6. Offense.—Proof of one sale of intoxicating liquor will warrant conviction. Young v. State, 81 Cr. R. 656, 198 S. W. 148.

In a prosecution for selling intoxicating liquors in prohibition territory, it is no defense that the seller made no money, or that the liquor did not belong to him. Bird v. State, 84 Cr. R. 285, 206 S. W. 844.

If one desiring intoxicating liquor gave money to another, who gave it to defendant, and defendant bought liquor, and gave it to person who furnished money, it was sale by defendant within contemplation of local option law. Lopez v. State, 84 Cr. R. 422, 208 S. W. 167.

Whisky is per se an intoxicating liquor. Landers v. State, 85 Cr. R. 109, 210 S. W. 694.

7. — Agents.—Under local option law, one who sells intoxicating liquors or acts as agent of another selling intoxicating liquors is guilty of crime, but one who acts purely for accommodation of purchaser is not guilty of crime. Chance v. State, 85 Cr. R. 62, 210 S. W. 208.

9. Indictment, information or complaint.—See Shipley v. State, 84 Cr. R. 278, 208 S. W. 342.

Indictment held sufficient. Coursey v. State, 82 Cr. R. 272, 199 S. W. 1091; Johnson v. State, 83 Cr. R. 61, 200 S. W. 832; Price v. State, 83 Cr. R. 322, 202 S. W. 948.

An indictment charging selling liquor in dry territory to four persons named can be supported only by evidence that the sale was made to all four. Price v. State, 83 Cr. R. 322, 202 S. W. 948.

An indictment need only allege that a prohibition election was held, that the result was declared by an order of the commissioners' court, and that an order was made prohibiting the sale of liquor. Wright v. State, 83 Cr. R. 415, 203 S. W. 775.

The use of the words "declaring the result of the election" instead of the words "declaring the result of said vote." Bashara v. State, 84 Cr. R. 263, 206 S. W. 359.

12. Evidence—Presumptions and burden of proof.—State sustains burden of proving that local option election has been held and notice published, by proof of entry by county judge of fact that order of commissioners' court declaring result of election has been published. Smith v. State, 81 Cr. R. 446, 196 S. W. 519.

The state need not prove the sale was made with the purpose of evading the law. Bashara v. State, 84 Cr. R. 263, 206 S. W. 359.

Defendant's attorney could waive proof of records showing that the local option law was in effect. Landers v. State, 85 Cr. R. 109, 210 S. W. 694.

13. — Admissibility in general.—Where liquor defendant was selling was taken out of box in basket, evidence that the basket containing the box and bottles was afterwards examined on same day and found to contain 11 bottles of whisky was admissible. Berry v. State, 83 Cr. R. 210, 203 S. W. 901.

Evidence held insufficient to establish identity of defendant with the person who sold intoxicating liquors illegally. Shepherd v. State, 81 Cr. R. 522, 196 S. W. 541.

Evidence held sufficient to sustain finding that liquid sold was whisky and not cider, although no one tasted it. Berry v. State, 83 Cr. R. 210, 203 S. W. 901.

Evidence held sufficient to identify defendant as the party who sold beer to the alleged purchaser. Hays v. State, 83 Cr. R. 398, 204 S. W. 229.

17. Instructions.—Refusal to instruct that two sales of intoxicating liquors to person mentioned in indictment must be shown held reversible error. Fisher v. State, 81 Cr. R. 568, 197 S. W. 189.

Where indictment alleged two sales of liquor to individuals named, and evidence showed sales alleged, instruction that to convict jury must find that accused did make as many as two separate sales, as charged in indictment, was proper. Gray v. State, 82 Cr. R. 27, 197 S. W. 990.

It was not error to fail to define offense of selling intoxicating liquors in violation of local option law. Flores v. State, 82 Cr. R. 107, 198 S. W. 575.

It was not error to refuse special charge that state must prove that bottles introduced and labeled Budweiser, contained intoxicants where two sales charged had been fully proved by other evidence. Head v. State, 82 Cr. R. 211, 198 S. W. 581.

A charge that the ownership of the liquor was immaterial, if defendant was exercising control, etc., held correct, and applicable to the case. Bird v. State, 84 Cr. R. 285, 206 S. W. 844.

A contention that the court failed to charge affirmatively that prohibition was in force when the offense was committed is without merit, where the charge, filed in November, 1918, states that the sale of liquors has been prohibited in the county since the spring of 1910. Edwards v. State, 85 Cr. R. 19, 209 S. W. 743.

ARTICLE 602

See Franklin v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 486.

Validity.—Under Const. art. 16, § 20, the legislature had power to enact this article. Ezell v. State, 29 Tex. App. 521, 16 S. W. 782.

Construction and operation in general.—An action on a retail liquor dealer's bond, being for purely statutory penalties in the nature of a punishment designed to prevent future statutory violations of regulatory provisions of the general liquor law, cannot be maintained after adoption of the local option law in the precinct where said dealer's business was carried on, such adoption either repealing or suspending the general liquor law as to such territory, and there being no statutory provision for keeping alive right of action for breaches of the bond prior to such adoption. State v. Mitchell, 110 Tex. 498, 221 S. W. 925.

Accomplices.—Testimony of prosecuting witness that he met accused, who had whisky, and asked accused to sell him some, and that accused did so, did not show that witness was accomplice. Gray v. State, 82 Cr. R. 27, 197 S. W. 990.

One who acts purely for accommodation of purchaser of intoxicating liquors is not guilty of crime. Chance v. State, 85 Cr. R. 62, 210 S. W. 208.

The special rule in local option cases, prescribed by this article, is inapplicable to sale to soldier contrary to Acts 35th Leg. 4th Called Sess. ch. 7. Huggins v. State, 85 Cr. R. 205, 210 S. W. 804.

A stool pigeon, who, at the direction of an officer, purchased intoxicating liquor from defendant, was not an accomplice. Canales v. State, 86 Cr. R. 142, 215 S. W. 964.

Defectives who testified that they purchased liquor from defendant, but neither of whom made any other effort to induce him to engage in business, were not "accomplices." Mann v. State, 87 Cr. R. 142, 221 S. W. 296.

Validity.—Acts 35th Leg. 4th Called Sess. 1918, c. 31, amending Allison Shipping Law, was authorized under Const. art. 3, § 40, by proclamation calling for legislation to restrict liquor traffic and render liquor inaccessible to soldiers. Ex parte Fulton, 86 Cr. R. 149, 215 S. W. 331; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 212 S. W. 845.

Allison Shipping Law, as amended by Acts 35th Leg. 4th Called Sess 1918, c. 31, is not unconstitutional under Const. art. 16, § 20, relating to local option legislation to prohibit "sale" of intoxicants, being merely for purpose of making enforcement of local option law more effective in districts in which it is in force, and does not deny any right guaranteed by the federal Constitution. (Per Morrow, J.) Ex parte Fulton, 86 Cr. R. 149, 215 S. W. 331.

The provision prohibiting the possession of intoxicating liquor in public places, is valid and not in conflict with the Webb-Kenyon Act. Harper v. State, 86 Cr. R. 446, 217 S. W. 703.

The act, in so far as denouncing offense of unlawfully having and keeping intoxicating liquor in a public place in a locality in which sale is prohibited by local option, held valid. Baldauf v. State, 87 Cr. R. 228, 220 S. W. 550.

Repeal.—Provisions of this act will prevail in such territory over the state-wide prohibition law, since the acts of same session of Legislature must be taken as a whole and construed as one act. (Per Morrow, J.) Ex parte Fulton, 86 Cr. R. 149, 215 S. W. 331.

Offense.—This act does not prohibit the gift of whisky by one person to another, where there is no transportation; the provisions as to delivery relating to transportation. Tolbert v. State, 86 Cr. R. 459, 217 S. W. 153.

To make one guilty of the possession of intoxicating liquor in a public place it is not necessary that he intends to remain in the public place where he is charged with having possession of liquor. Harper v. State, 86 Cr. R. 446, 217 S. W. 703.

Evidence.—In a prosecution for unlawfully transporting, carrying, and delivering intoxicating liquor, etc., evidence held insufficient to sustain a conviction. Tolbert v. State, 86 Cr. R. 459, 217 S. W. 153.

Evidence held sufficient to show defendant's guilt of the possession of intoxicating liquor in a public place and to show that the liquor was not for use in his own home. Harper v. State, 86 Cr. R. 446, 217 S. W. 703.

Charge.—An instruction that, before defendant could be convicted for the unlawful possession of liquor, he must have had it in his possession at or around a railway depot as claimed, and the jury must find that it was a place to which persons resorted for the purpose of business and boarding trains for the purpose of transportation, etc., sufficiently defined "public place." Harper v. State, 86 Cr. R. 446, 217 S. W. 703.

Offense.—Instruction permitting conviction of vagrancy, in absence of evidence that acts occurred in prohibition territory, is erroneous. Johnson v. State, 83 Cr. R. 49, 201 S. W. 177.

ARTICLE 606l

Cited, Ex Parte Fulton, 86 Cr. R. 149, 215 S. W. 331.

Art. 610a. Procuring liquor for soldiers or sailors prohibited.—It shall hereafter be unlawful for any person, directly or indirectly, to knowingly purchase for or to procure for, or to sell, give, or deliver to, or cause to be given or delivered to any person engaged or enlisted in the military or naval forces of the United States, or any person engaged or enlisted in the military or naval forces of any of the associates of the United States in the present war with Germany, any spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, or medicated bitters, capable of producing intoxication. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 7, § 1.]

Explanatory.—This act being prohibitory in character, may be operative, notwithstanding the state-wide prohibition act, and the state and federal prohibition amendments. The act took effect March 11, 1918.

Validity.—The state Legislature cannot, on the ground of military necessity, pass a general prohibition law, under Const. art. 16, § 28, the federal government being able to take care of its army. Ex parte Myer, 84 Cr. R. 288, 207 S. W. 100.

State Legislature had power to make it a criminal offense to solicit a soldier in the service of the United States to meet a woman for the purpose of illicit intercourse. Green v. State, 84 Cr. R. 485, 208 S. W. 514.

What constitutes offense.—If certain bottles in defendant's possession contained wine which would intoxicate, and defendant left a bottle where his brother-in-law, a marine in the military forces of the United States, could get it by arrangement, defendant violated this act. Gardner v. State, 85 Cr. R. 343, 212 S. W. 169.

To constitute a violation of the law against selling or giving intoxicating liquors to soldiers, there must be some sort of parting with possession by the accused, and some sort of possession in the soldier for whom intended; the delivery being accomplished directly or indirectly, since the law to soldiers does not denounce the intent to so do, or even the attempt resulting in failure. Wales v. State, 86 Cr. R. 183, 217 S. W. 384.

Indictment.—Allegation that defendant "did then and there unlawfully and knowingly, directly and indirectly, purchase for and procure for, and did then and there give and deliver and did then and there cause to be given and delivered," is in the terms of this article, and contention that indictment is duplicitous because of such allegation cannot be sustained. Crosby v. State, 85 Cr. R. 297, 212 S. W. 168.

Evidence.—In a prosecution for selling whisky to a soldier, evidence held sufficient to corroborate testimony of witnesses who procured the sale for the purpose of securing evidence, if those witnesses were accomplices. Huggins v. State, 85 Cr. R. 205, 210 S. W. 504.

Evidence held to sustain conviction of procuring and delivering intoxicants to persons enlisted in military forces. Crosby v. State, 85 Cr. R. 297, 212 S. W. 168.

Evidence held insufficient to sustain defendant's conviction of having supplied intoxicating wine to his brother-in-law, a marine. Gardner v. State, 85 Cr. R. 343, 212 S. W. 169.

Where the state showed that defendant went to his own room and got a bottle of his own whisky, but failed to show that he delivered it to a soldier, he cannot be convicted of procuring it for a soldier, since he could not "procure" it from himself. Wales v. State, 86 Cr. R. 183, 217 S. W. 384.

In a prosecution for the unlawful sale or giving of intoxicating liquor to soldiers, evidence held insufficient, in view of the presumption of innocence, to sustain conviction. Id.

Charge.—A requested instruction, directing an acquittal if the defendant bought the whisky for himself, was incorrect. Huggins v. State, 85 Cr. R. 205, 210 S. W. 804.

Verdict.—Verdict of jury held to solve, in favor of the state, any question of variance as to names of soldiers to whom liquor was given and names charged in indictment. Crosby v. State, 85 Cr. R. 297, 212 S. W. 168.

Art. 610b. Person in military or naval forces defined.—By the term "any person engaged in or enlisted in the military or naval forces of the United States" is meant all those persons who are actually enlisted in either of said forces and who is known by the person charged with said violation to be so engaged, or who is wearing the uniform or insignia required of him by the Government as a person in said service. [Id., § 1a.]

Art. 610c. Penalty; suspended sentence not applicable.—Any person violating any provision of this Act shall, upon conviction, be confined in the State Penitentiary for a term not less than two nor more than five years, and each violation shall be a separate offense. In prosecution under this Act the defendant shall not be permitted to make application for the suspended sentence nor shall anyone upon conviction of a violation of this Act be entitled to any of the benefits of the Suspended Sentence Act. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 610d. Selling, etc., liquor within ten miles of military or naval station prohibited.—From and after April 15, 1918, it shall be unlawful for any person in time of war between the United States and any other nation or country to sell, barter or exchange any spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors, or medicated bitters capable of producing intoxication, within ten miles of any part of the land or buildings occupied or controlled by the government of the United States, or any department thereof, and used as a fort, arsenal, training camp, quarters, or place where soldiers are, or may hereafter, be camped, stationed, or quartered; aviation field or school where soldiers, sailors, marines, or aviators are being quartered, drilled, or trained for service in any branch of the United States army or navy, except as herein provided. [Acts 1918, 35th Leg. 4th C. S., ch. 12, § 1.]

Explanatory.—This act, being prohibitory in character, may be operative, notwithstanding the state-wide prohibition act and the state and federal prohibition amendments. See note under art. 610g. The act took effect March 16, 1918.

Cited, Ex Parte Davis, 86 Cr. R. 168, 215 S. W. 341.

Validity.—This act is not unconstitutional, but is a valid exercise of police powers. Ex parte Hollingsworth, 83 Cr. R. 400, 203 S. W. 1102.

Effect of state-wide prohibition act.—One violating the Zone Liquor Law is not entitled to be punished under the later-passed State-Wide Act, fixing a lighter punishment. Ex parte Roy, 85 Cr. R. 626, 215 S. W. 322.

Art. 610e. Shipment of liquors into ten mile zone prohibited.—From and after April 15, 1918, it shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation, in time of war between the United States and any other country, to ship or transport by or over any common carrier, express or service car, any spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors or medicated bitters capable of producing intoxication, into the zone or territory within ten miles of any part of the land or buildings occupied or controlled by the United States government or any department thereof, and used as a fort, arsenal, or training camp, aviation field or school where soldiers, sailors, marines or aviators are being quartered, drilled, or trained for service in any branch of the United States army or navy, or are camped, quartered, or stationed. [Id., § 2.]

Art. 610f. Sale of liquor within ten miles of shipbuilding plant prohibited.—It shall hereafter be unlawful for any person in time of war between the United States and any foreign country to sell, barter or exchange any spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, or medicated bitters capable of producing intoxication, within ten miles of any place used as a yard or place where ships are being built under contract with the government of the United States, except as herein provided. [Id., § 2a.]

Art. 610g. Carrying liquor into ten mile zone prohibited.—From and after April 15, 1918, it shall be unlawful for any person, in time of war between the United States and any other country, to carry, in any manner, any spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors, or medicated bitters capable of producing intoxication, into the zone or territory within ten miles of any part of the land or buildings occupied or controlled by the United States government or any department thereof, and used as a fort, arsenal, training camp, aviation field or school where soldiers, sailors, aviators or marines are being held, quartered or trained for service in any branch of the United States army or navy; camps, quarters, or place where soldiers are, or may be, camped, stationed, or quartered, except as herein provided. [Id., § 3.]

Not repealed.—Zone Liquor Law, § 3, was not repealed or superseded by Acts 35th Leg. 4th Called Sess. 1918, c. 24, § 3 (art. 588¼ et seq. ante), nor was the latter act repealed or superseded by chapter 31, relating to sales and transportation of intoxicating liquor. Ex parte Royce, 85 Cr. R. 626, 215 S. W. 322.

Art. 610h. Exceptions.—The preceding articles shall not apply to the sale of wine for sacramental purposes, nor to the bona fide shipment or sale of alcoholic liquors as medicines, in case of actual sickness; but such alcoholic liquor shall only be sold in such zone or territory upon the prescription of a regular practicing physician, dated and signed by him and certified on his honor that he (the physician) has personally examined the applicant (naming him) and that he finds him actually sick and in need of the alcoholic liquor prescribed, as a medicine; provided, that a physician who does not follow the profession of medicine as his principal or usual calling, or who is in any way, directly or indirectly, engaged in the sale of such stimulants on his own account or as the agent, employé, or partner of others, shall not be authorized to give the prescription provided for in this article; and provided, further, that no person shall be permitted to sell more than once on the same prescription, nor upon a prescription which has been cancelled, nor on a prescription which is not dated, signed and certified as above required; provided, that every person selling such stimulants upon the prescription herein provided for shall cancel such prescription by endorsing on it the word "cancelled," and file the same away, and on the first day of May, 1918, and every month thereafter, file a duplicate of the said prescription with the clerk of the district court, accompanied by an affidavit, stating that he has sold no intoxicating liquor other than that named in the prescriptions filed, which said prescriptions shall be preserved by the clerk of the district court for a period of three years from and after the date of filing, subject to the inspection of the grand jury, district, county and precinct officers; provided that the preceding article shall not apply to the sale of ethyl alcohol in quantities of one gallon or more by or to any person, firm or corporation engaged in the wholesale drug business, or by, or to any owner, proprietor, agent or employee of any retail drug store, whether incorporated or un-incorporated in which drugs are compounded, and employing a registered pharmacist for the purpose of being used in such retail drug business; provided further that every such person, firm, or corporation shall have first paid the taxes and procured the license required by Art. 7475, of the Revised Civil Statutes of Texas, and have complied with the law regulating such sales in local option territory. [Id., § 4.]

Art. 610j. ## POOL HALLS

Art.	Art.
633a. Maintaining or operating pool hall prohibited.	633b. Same; punishment.

Article 633a. Maintaining or operating pool hall prohibited.—On and after the 1st day of May, A. D., 1919, it shall be unlawful for any person acting for himself or for others to maintain or operate a pool hall within this State. The term "pool hall" as herein used mean and include any room, hall, building or part of building, tent, or enclosure of any kind or character, similar or dissimilar to those named or any enclosed open space in which or where are exhibited for hire, revenue, price, fees, or gain of any kind; or for advertising purposes of any kind, any pool or billiard table or tables, or stands or structures of any kind or character on or in which are or may be played pool or billiards of any kind or character or any game, similar or dissimilar to the game of pool or billiards played with balls, cues or pins or any similar devices; any such table or tables, stands or structures of any kind or character used or exhibited in connection with any place where goods, wares or merchandise or other things of value are sold or given or where or upon which any money or thing of value is paid or exchanged, shall be regarded as a place where is exhibited the tables, stands, or structures herein referred to for hire, revenue and gain. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 14, § 1.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Acts 1913, ch. 74, secs. 12, 13, 15, the provisions of which were declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, in Ex parte Mitchell, 109 Tex. 11, 177 S. W. 953. The act took effect May 1, 1919.

State* (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 532.

Art. 633b. Same; punishment.—Any person or persons, who shall operate or maintain any pool or billiard hall as described herein, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than twenty-five ($25.00) dollars and not more than one hundred ($100.00) dollars, or by confinement in the county jail for not less than thirty days nor more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment; provided that each day such pool or billiard hall is operated or maintained shall constitute a separate offense. ## CHAPTER NINE

VAGRANCY

Art.
634. "Vagrancy" defined.

Art.
635. Person unlawfully soliciting orders for intoxicating liquors, vagrant.

Article 634. "Vagrancy" defined.

Cited, Hogue v. State, 87 Cr. R. 170, 220 S. W. 96.

1. In general.—A cabinet workman supporting himself by such work, and who was a regular certified commissioned Spiritualist, teaching and lecturing on Spiritualism, was not a "vagrant" even though he acted as a medium and charged for spiritual consultations, unless he was advertising himself as a clairvoyant or prophet of coming events or of having supernatural knowledge for the purpose of maintaining himself in whole or in part. Staufer v. State, 85 Cr. R. 1, 209 S. W. 748.

Although this article, would include one who was involuntarily out of employment, it cannot be reasonably so construed, and does not apply where accused was seeking regular employment, and in the meantime taking whatever odd jobs he could get. Harris v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 875.

5. Common prostitutes.—Vagrancy under Pen. Code, arts. 634-640, is a present condition; and one cannot be convicted thereof because previously a common prostitute, having abandoned such life. Cox v. State, 84 Cr. R. 49, 205 S. W. 131.

By statute, to constitute defendant a vagrant under the allegation that she was a common prostitute, it was necessary to show that she was such, which was not done, where no witness testified as to the necessary facts of intercourse with men. Levy v. State, 84 Cr. R. 493, 208 S. W. 667.

Where defendant in opening house of prostitution was justified so far as city authorities could justify her, and ceased to run house when notified by chief of police on May 20th that she must do so, and thereafter was not concerned in business, she was not guilty of vagrancy, through formerly running house of prostitution under complaint filed against her July 31st. Id.

10. Evidence.—Testimony of witnesses, having heard men say they had had intercourse with defendant, tried on a charge of being a prostitute, was hearsay. Woods v. State, 81 Cr. R. 403, 195 S. W. 858.

Evidence held insufficient to warrant conviction for vagrancy on the ground of defendant being a common prostitute, as distinguished from a prostitute. Cox v. State, 84 Cr. R. 49, 205 S. W. 131.

In a prosecution for vagrancy, evidence held not sufficient to sustain a conviction. Bennett v. State, 84 Cr. R. 159, 205 S. W. 987.

In prosecution for vagrancy by being common prostitute and running house of prostitution, testimony as to defendant's general reputation and general reputation of some of her associates, and general reputation of houses in her part of city, held inadmissible. Levy v. State, 84 Cr. R. 493, 208 S. W. 667.

In prosecution for vagrancy, evidence held insufficient to show that defendant was advertising as a clairvoyant, or as a prophet of coming events, or of having supernatural knowledge with respect to either present or future conditions, happenings, or events. Staufers v. State, 85 Cr. R. 1, 209 S. W. 748.

That accused was a common prostitute could not be established by proof of her reputation as such, or of the reputation of the house in which she lived. Cross v. State, 85 Cr. R. 430, 213 S. W. 638.

Art. 635. Person unlawfully soliciting orders for intoxicating liquors, vagrant.

Evidence.—Instruction permitting conviction of vagrancy, of one who unlawfully solicits orders for intoxicating liquors vagrant, in absence of evidence that acts occurred in prohibition territory, is erroneous. Johnson v. State, 83 Cr. R. 49, 201 S. W. 177.

ABANDONMENT OF WIFE OR CHILDREN

Art.	Art.
640a. Desertion and failure to support wife or children; penalty.	640c. Proof of marriage and paternity, etc.
640b. Order for support pendente lite; contempt.	640d. Venue.
	640f. Liberal construction; partial invalidity.

Article 640a. Desertion and failure to support wife or children; penalty.

Cited, Barrios v. State, 83 Cr. R. 548, 204 S. W. 326; Gully v. Gully (Sup.) 231 S. W. 97.

Offense.—As the fact that a wife refused to give up custody of her young children does not relieve the husband from his legal duty, to support and maintain them when they are in destitute and necessitous circumstances, in prosecution under such statute a refusal of motion to continue on account of absence of a witness who would testify to wife's refusal was not reversible error. Utsler v. State, 81 Cr. R. 501, 195 S. W. 355.

To convict husband under wife desertion statute, he must not only have deserted his wife, or have failed to support her, but it must have been willfully done. Dickey v. State, 82 Cr. R. 154, 198 S. W. 309.

In prosecution for wife desertion, part of state's case was to prove desertion was without justification. Boattenhamer v. State, 84 Cr. R. 210, 206 S. W. 344.

In a prosecution for wife desertion, the state must show, not only that the husband willfully and without justification deserted his wife and neglected and refused to support and maintain her, but also that he left her in destitute and necessitous circumstances. Wallace v. State, 85 Cr. R. 91, 210 S. W. 206.

In a prosecution brought nine days after the alleged desertion of wife, no desertion was shown, where during such time defendant's father had paid her $10 for him, and just prior to the alleged desertion the defendant had paid $20 for groceries and left the wife credit on which to purchase groceries. Id.

To show guilt of offense of desertion of wife and children, it must appear that defendant deserted, neglected, or refused to provide for his wife and children under 16, that his conduct was willful and without justification, and that wife and children were in destitute and necessitous circumstances. Mercardo v. State, 86 Cr. R. 559, 218 S. W. 491, 8 A. L. R. 1312.

The term "willful," means not only with evil intent and malice, but also implies a set purpose or design. Id.

Where wife, at time of preferring charge against husband for desertion, had $110, conviction will not be sustained; the wife not being in destitute and necessitous circumstances. Davis v. State, 86 Cr. R. 514, 218 S. W. 493.

To convict a husband of willful desertion and failure to support his wife, it must be affirmatively shown, not only that the husband unjustifiably deserted his wife, but also that his wife was in destitute circumstances. Hood v. State, 87 Cr. R. 222, 220 S. W. 550.

In order to make the desertion of the wife an offense under the statute, the prosecution must show that the wife was left in destitute and necessitous circumstances. Barrow v. State (Cr. App.) 225 S. W. 53.

Conviction for wife desertion cannot be had except upon proof that there was a willful desertion of the wife and that she was in destitute or necessitous circumstances. Terrell v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 240.

In a prosecution for desertion of his wife and his infant child, the fact that the two were provided for is no defense, for it is very rare that actual suffering results from such desertion. Williams v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 507.

Justification.—Husband, who left wife and daughters in home after endeavoring to persuade wife to remove with him that he might escape drink habit, and who, after removal, remitted what money he could spare, and offered to deed home to wife, who, with daughters, was making $80 a month, did not violate statute denouncing wife desertion. Green v. State, 84 Cr. R. 151, 206 S. W. 93.

A husband, who when absent from his wife and children sent them $125 each month of his earnings of $150, and who when he returned was told by his wife that she would not have anything to do with him as such, or perform for him any of her duties as wife, was justified in refusing or failing further to support her. Mercardo v. State, 86 Cr. R. 559, 218 S. W. 491, 8 A. L. R. 1312.

"Justification" means a sufficient lawful reason why a person did or did not do the thing charged. Id.

After a husband found that by reason of the high cost of living his wages in the city were not sufficient to support him and his wife, and he believed that by going to the country and renting a farm he would better his position, he cannot be held criminally liable for wife abandonment, where he offered to take his wife with him, and she declined to go, claiming that her health demanded that she remain in the city with her mother. Reid v. State (Cr. App.) 229 S. W. 324.

Though a few days prior to the actual institution of a prosecution for desertion of his wife and infant child defendant offered to renew his conjugal relations, that offer is no bar to a prosecution for either the crime of desertion of a wife or desertion of the child, but can be considered merely on the question whether the desertion was willful. Williams v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 507.

Indictment, information, or complaint.—Information charging neglect to support four minor children named, and alleging that the "injured party" was under age of 16 held to sufficiently plead that each of the children was under such age. Utsler v. State, 81 Cr. R. 501, 195 S. W. 855.

Complaint for wife desertion, following the language of the statute, and alleging that defendant deserted his "wife," naming her, held not insufficient as failing to allege defendant was married. Turner v. State, 84 Cr. R. 605, 209 S. W. 406.

Information, charging desertion of infant children without alleging the children to be in destitute and necessitous circumstances, held fatally defective. Woodard v. State, 86 Cr. R. 632, 218 S. W. 760.

Evidence—Admissibility.—In a prosecution for wife abandonment, which the husband sought to justify by showing that the wife's mother kept a reputed assignation house, the general reputation of the house was of itself some evidence that the wife knew of such reputation. Trial v. State, 84 Cr. R. 16, 205 S. W. 343, 725.

In a prosecution for abandonment of wife and child, evidence that the wife could have received support from defendant's father was improperly excluded; such evidence being pertinent on the question of intent and in mitigation. Id.

In a prosecution for failure to support minor children, testimony of defendant's father that his wife had a miscarriage at his house, caused by defendant's cruel treatment, was admissible, as showing defendant's attitude toward his wife and family. Curd v. State, 86 Cr. R. 552, 217 S. W. 1042.

In a prosecution for failure to support minor children, the fact was admissible that defendant filed suit for divorce in a county before he had lived there six months, so that the suit was brought at a time and place when and where he had no legal right to file it and obtain divorce; the prosecution involving defendant's entire attitude towards his wife and children. Id.

In a prosecution for failure to support minor children, testimony of defendant's father that he had employed an attorney to represent defendant's wife in defendant's divorce suit was admissible for what it was worth, as showing the destitute condition of the wife and children of defendant at the time he forced them to take refuge with his father. Curd v. State, 217 S. W. 1043.

In a prosecution for wife desertion, testimony that defendant had been charged with shooting craps, and that a witness had gone on his bond when he was arrested, and testimony that defendant's wife was a good woman, was inadmissible as irrelevant. Moore v. State, 87 Cr. R. 24, 218 S. W. 1059.

In prosecution for child desertion, testimony of witness with whom defendant had left his children for six or eight months without payment therefor, in violation of his agreement to pay witness, that at the end of such period the children were taken to a particular orphanage, held admissible on issue of defendant's willful abandonment and desertion of the children. Reid v. State (Cr. App.) 226 S. W. 408.

— Sufficiency.—Evidence held insufficient to establish the offense by a father of willfully neglecting and refusing to provide for the support and maintenance of a child. Joiner v. State, 81 Cr. R. 524, 196 S. W. 523.

In a prosecution for wife desertion, evidence held insufficient to support conviction. Dickey v. State, 82 Cr. R. 154, 198 S. W. 309.

In a prosecution for desertion and failure to support a wife and child, evidence held sufficient to support a conviction. Matthews v. State, 84 Cr. R. 622, 209 S. W. 660.

In prosecution for willful desertion of wife, evidence held insufficient to support conviction. Lamm v. State, 85 Cr. R. 48, 210 S. W. 209.

Evidence held to sustain conviction of the offense of willful refusal to support defendant's two children, aged one and two years. Curd v. State, 86 Cr. R. 552, 217 S. W. 1042.

When the testimony in a prosecution for willful failure or refusal to provide for wife and children, shows that defendant husband did not desert the wife but that she turned from him, and that he did not neglect or refuse to provide for her or her children but gave them most of his earnings, while at the time alleged they were not in distress but had house rent paid and money, conviction is against the law and the evidence, and will be reversed. Mercardo v. State, 86 Cr. R. 559, 218 S. W. 491, 8 A. L. R. 1312.

In a prosecution for wife desertion, evidence held insufficient to justify finding that defendant's wife was in necessitous circumstances, showing rather that she made a living herself, and that she drove defendant away from home. Perry v. State, 87 Cr. R. 226, 220 S. W. 549.

That the husband left his wife their home and the furniture, and some money, and that she could have procured goods on his credit, or could have returned to her father, who was able to support her, but instead secured employment and supported herself, held not to show that she was in destitute circumstances. Hood v. State, 87 Cr. R. 222, 220 S. W. 550.

Evidence held insufficient to sustain conviction for unlawfully, willfully, and without justification abandoning, neglecting, and refusing to provide for the support and maintenance of minor children under 16 years of age in destitute and necessitous circumstances. Flowers v. State, 87 Cr. R. 293, 221 S. W. 289.

Evidence, not making clear that defendant's child was in destitute or necessitous circumstances, and tending to negative any willful neglect on defendant's part, held insufficient to support judgment convicting him of desertion of the child. Hollien v. State, 87 Cr. R. 645, 224 S. W. 779.

In prosecution for child desertion, testimony that father left his children with person whom he agreed to pay specific amount a month and that after making first month's payment he left children with such person for six or eight months without payment therefor, held sufficient to sustain a conviction, in absence of evidence showing any excuse or justification for such conduct. Reid v. State (Cr. App.) 226 S. W. 408.

Conviction of wife desertion held not supported by the evidence. Mikeska v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 235.

In a prosecution against a husband and father for desertion, including the refusal to provide for the support and maintenance of his child, evidence held sufficient to sustain a conviction. Williams v. State (Cr. App.) 232 S. W. 507.

Questions for jury.—In a prosecution for abandonment, it was error to withdraw from the jury as matter of justification the reputation of the wife's mother and of houses which she kept, the statute leaving the determination of justification to the jury. Trial v. State, 84 Cr. R. 16, 205 S. W. 343, 725.

In prosecution for wife desertion, what conditions or facts justify the conclusion that desertion was without justification is for the jury, statute not defining them. Boattenhamer v. State, 84 Cr. R. 210, 206 S. W. 344.

Instructions.—In a prosecution for wife desertion, the words "justification," "destitute," and "necessitous," used in the statute and the charge, did not require explanation or definition by the court. Turner v. State, 84 Cr. R. 605, 209 S. W. 406.

Art. 640b. Order for support pendente lite; contempt.

Art. 640c. Proof of marriage and paternity, etc.

Cited, Trial v. State, 84 Cr. R. 16, 205 S. W. 725.

Validity.—This article held valid as against objection that Const. art. 3, § 36, providing that no law shall be revised or amended by reference to its title and requiring the amended section to be re-enacted and published at length, was not complied with, since such statute is complete within itself and is not an amendment of Code Cr. Proc. 1916, art. 795, providing that husband and wife in no case can testify against each other except in a criminal prosecution for an offense by one against the other, notwithstanding its effect is to restrict the operation of the latter statute. Terrell v. State (Cr. App.) 228 S. W. 240.

Wife's testimony.—The law making the wife incompetent to testify against her husband as to privileged communications is purely statutory, being embodied in Code Cr. Proc. 1916, arts. 794, 795, while this article makes husband or wife competent to testify to all relevant facts in a prosecution for wife desertion or for failure to support minor children. Curd v. State, 86 Cr. R. 552, 217 S. W. 1043.

A wife was a competent witness against her husband, and complaint, sworn to by her, charging him with desertion of wife and child in destitute and necessitous circumstances, was not void. Hollien v. State, 87 Cr. R. 645, 224 S. W. 779.

Art. 640d. Venue.

Allegation of venue.—In a prosecution for wife desertion, an indictment for desertion, in support of which the prosecution does not expect to show continued destitution of the wife, must allege the desertion in the county in which it occurred, or there will be variance. Hood v. State, 87 Cr. R. 222, 220 S. W. 550.

A complaint for desertion of wife and child, which alleged that "in said county and state" defendant committed the acts complained of, with no reference elsewhere in the complaint to any county, is insufficient to show that the desertion occurred within the county where the prosecution was instituted. Freeman v. State (Cr. App.) 224 S. W. 1087.

Art. 640f. Liberal construction; partial invalidity.

Art.	Art.
694. Offensive trades and nuisances.	696a. Violation of sanitary rules for conduct of hotels, restaurants, etc.
695dd. Failure to test water supply, etc.	696b. Violation of sanitary rules for conduct of barber and beauty shops.
695e. [Repealed.]

Article 694. [423] Offensive trades and nuisances.

What constitutes public nuisance.—"Unlawfully practicing medicine," within provisions of arts. 754, 755, cannot be enjoined as "trade business, or occupation injurious to health of those in the neighborhood," within meaning of this article and Code Cr. Proc. art. 148, authorizing injunction of injurious occupation after indictment therefor. Crowder v. Graham (Civ. App.) 201 S. W. 1053.

Art. 695dd. Failure to test water supply, etc.—In all cases where the authorities of any city, or town, or village, or any person, or firm, or corporation, or company, their officers and their receivers, or agents furnishing drinking water to cities or towns of Five Thousand (5000) inhabitants or less, shall fail or refuse to carry out the provisions of this Act, and shall furnish for public use, drinking water that is contaminated, impure and unclean, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished on conviction thereof by a fine in any sum not to exceed $500.00 for any such offense, and upon any conviction of a second offense, its contract, franchise or charter shall be subject to forfeiture by proceedings to that effect, in an injunction proceeding brought by the State Authorities, or the District or County Attorney, which shall be heard and disposed of without undue delay as other injunction suits. [Acts 1919, 36th Leg., ch. 133, § 5.]

CHAPTER TWO

SALE OF UNWHOLESOME FOOD, DRINK OR MEDICINE, OR MILL PRODUCTS

Art.	Art.
700. Drugs, confectionery, and foods, when deemed adulterated.	711. Penalty for violation of act.
704. Manufacture and sale of certain foods, discolored and adulterated.	711a. Violation of sanitary rules as to bakeries.
706. Sale of impure milk.	MILL PRODUCTS
708. Exemptions from provisions of act.	715. Penalty for violating any provision of this law.
710. Obstruction of officers.

Article 700. Drugs, confectionery, and foods, when deemed adulterated.

Validity.—Statutory regulations against use of unwholesome food are within power of state to protect public health, so that statute prohibiting sale for food of meat of animal that has died otherwise than by slaughter is valid. Cozine v. State, 87 Cr. R. 92, 220 S. W. 102.

Nature and elements of offense and defenses.—On a presentation for selling meat of a hog that had died otherwise than by slaughter, it was no defense that the meat was wholesome. Cozine v. State, 87 Cr. R. 92, 220 S. W. 102.

Defendant, owner of hog which died otherwise than by slaughter, and person who sold meat for him, being coconspirators in so doing, act of one within scope and duration of conspiracy was binding on other, so whether defendant's agent was innocent or guilty through lack of or possession of knowledge of way hog died, his act in selling meat was one in which defendant was guilty. Id.

The terms "diseased animal" and "animal that died otherwise than by slaughter," can be separated, and the flesh of a diseased animal is within the prohibited class though the animal may have been slaughtered, the prohibition of sale for food of flesh of an animal that died otherwise being absolute, and not dependent on the jury's decision that the flesh of such animal was not fit for food; the fitness of the flesh not being open to inquiry. Corzine v. State (Cr. App.) 227 S. W. 1102.

Art. 704. Manufacture and sale of certain foods, discolored and adulterated.

Elements of offense.—Defendant is not guilty of a violation of a pure food law simply because sulphite is found in sausage meat sold by him; it being necessary that the sulphite be added willfully and knowingly, in view of arts. 46, 47, 704, 710, 711, and 715. Vaughn v. State, 86 Cr. R. 255, 219 S. W. 206.

Art. 706. Sale of impure milk.

Indictment or information.—An information charging that defendant "did unlawfully and knowingly offer for sale" adulterated milk, is not open to the objection that it does not charge that defendant knew that the milk was adulterated. Sanchez v. State, 27 Tex. App. 14, 10 S. W. 756.

An information for selling milk adulterated by adding water, declaring it unlawful for any person to sell or expose for sale adulterated or impure milk, containing proviso that skimmed milk may be sold if the can or package it is taken from is marked "skimmed milk," was not defective because containing no negative allegation that the sale was not a sale of skimmed milk so marked, as the statute contains no proviso authorizing a sale of water nor because it did not show the name of the purchaser of the adulterated milk, as the offense consisted in the sale or exposure for sale of adulterated milk. Quaternick v. State, 84 Cr. R. 40, 204 S. W. 328.

Evidence.—In a prosecution for sale of milk adulterated by adding water, a conviction on conflicting evidence is binding on appeal. Quaternick v. State, 84 Cr. R. 40, 204 S. W. 328.

Art. 708. Exemptions from provisions of act.

Cited, Vaughn v. State, 86 Cr. R. 255, 219 S. W. 206.

Art. 710. Obstruction of officers.

See arts. 4575a, 4575b, Civ. St., ante; Vaughn v. State, 86 Cr. R. 255, 219 S. W. 206.

Art. 711. Penalty for violations of act.

See Vaughn v. State, 86 Cr. R. 255, 219 S. W. 206.

Jurisdiction.—Under Acts 35th Leg.
