COURTS—DISTRICT AND COUNTY—PRACTICE IN

CHAPTER ONE

INSTITUTION OF SUITS

Article 1812. [1177] [1181] Suits commenced by petition filed with clerk.—All civil suits in the district and county courts shall be commenced by petition filed in the office of the clerk of such court. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 3. P. D. 1425.]

Institution of suit.—The filing of the petition with the clerk of the proper court is the commencement of the suit, and will arrest the running of the statute of limitations, if there is a bona fide intention on the part of plaintiff to prosecute his suit, and he uses reasonable diligence to have process issued and served at once. Wood v. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 15 C. A. 322, 40 S. W. 24.

A suit is pending for the purpose of giving jurisdiction though the parties appear as plaintiffs instead of plaintiffs and defendants. Blagge v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 756.

Circumstances may exist which will excuse the plaintiff for failing to have citation served at once and justify him in delaying service a reasonable length of time. Wigg v. Dooley, 28 C. A. 61, 66 S. W. 306.

The filing of the petition is the commencement of the suit. London & L. Fire Ins. Co. v. Davis, 37 C. A. 348, 84 S. W. 262.

Where plaintiff on July 23, delivered to the clerk of the Harris county district court a petition, requesting him to file it for the sixty-first district, and under the special acts of the legislature regulating the filing of suits in the three district courts of that county, it was the clerk's duty to file them alternately, and if filed when presented to him, the suit would have gone to the fifty-sixth district, but at the request of plaintiff he retained it until the 26th, when it was filed in the sixty-first district, the suit was not filed until the 26th, as until actually filed the clerk held the petition as plaintiff's agent. Buchner v. Wait (Civ. App.), 137 S. W. 383.

The statute of limitations is suspended by the institution of a suit, service on defendant, and its appearance and answer. Forbes Bros. Teas & Spice Co. v. McDougle, Cameron & Webster (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 745. See, also, notes under Title 87.

Definition.—"Suit" defined. Myers v. State, 47 C. A. 336, 105 S. W. 48.

Premature commencement.—A civil action can be brought for stolen money against the thief pending a criminal prosecution. Gould v. Baker, 12 C. A. 669, 35 S. W. 708.

Filing of mandate of appellate court in a former suit, and payment of costs, held not necessary to maintenance of a distinct suit. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Ford (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 589.

Action on note not due except for default in interest held not prematurely brought where coupons were due at the time. Green v. Scottish-American Mortg. Co., 18 C. A. 286, 44 S. W. 319.

An action against a railroad company for work and labor held not to have been prematurely brought. Gulf & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 986.

Where a suit is brought on an order for the payment of money, accepted on condition, before the conditions are fulfilled, the filing of an amended petition after the conditions are performed cures any defect as to the prematurity of the action. Foley v. Houston Co-op. & Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 160.

Matters arising after commencement of suit.—Objections to the recovery of land upon a deed executed after the suit is brought must be urged upon the trial, or they will not be considered upon appeal. Pope v. Riggs (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 306.

Where the defendant entered under a sheriff's sale of the land as the property of a third person, a release from such third person, executed since the commencement of the suit, is admissible in evidence to cure defects in the proof of the judgment, execution, and sheriff's sale. Walker v. Emerson, 20 T. 706, 73 Am. Dec. 207.

Plaintiff held not entitled to show acquisition after filing of the petition of an interest in the cause of action. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Jenkins (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1106.

In a suit by an incompetent, by her next friend, to set aside a conveyance which she was induced to make by defendant's undue influence, a decree annulling defendant's marriage to plaintiff pendente lite held error. Holland v. Riggs, 53 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 167.

It was no defense to a suit by an employé for a fire loss negligently caused by the employer that the employé had transferred part of his claim, unless the transfer was made before suit. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sharp (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 614.

An assignee of time checks issued by an employer held entitled to recover on the checks when there had been pay days since their issue and prior to the filing of the petition. Aldridge Lumber Co. v. Graves (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 846.

Evidence of matters arising after commencement of action for rent held immaterial. Keahey v. Bryant (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 409.

Attachment.—See notes under Art. 242.

Art. 1813. [1178] [1182] Duty of the clerk on receiving petition.—When a petition is filed with the clerk, it shall be his duty to indorse thereon the day on which it was filed and the number of the suit; and he shall enter the suit in a docket to be kept by him for that purpose, to be called the clerk's file docket. [Id. sec. 6. P. D. 1428.]

Publication of entries not libelous.—See notes under Title 84.

Art. 1814. [1449] [1445] No paper to be considered filed, unless, etc.—No paper shall be considered as filed in the proceedings of any cause, unless the clerk shall have indorsed thereon the day on which it was filed, and have signed his name officially thereto.

Filing papers.—Where the record shows action on a paper in the trial court it will, in the absence of an objection thereto, be presumed that it was marked filed, although it does not so appear from the transcript. Knight v. Holloman, 6 T. 153.

A paper is "filed" when placed in the custody of the clerk of the court. Beal v. Alexander, 6 T. 540; Holman v. Chevaillier, 14 T. 339; Turner v. State, 41 T. 552; Snider v. Methvin, 60 T. 494; Lessing v. Gilbert, 27 S. W. 751, 8 C. A. 174.

A paper may be marked filed nunc pro tunc, so as to correspond with the fact of filing. Slocumb v. State, 11 T. 15; Holman v. Chevaillier, 14 T. 337; Turner v. State, 41 T. 549.

Written motion for new trial, placed with justice to be acted on, will be regarded as filed as of that time. Brooks v. Acker (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 800.

Objection to an order of transfer of a case that clerk antedated file mark on indictment must be before trial. Scrivener v. State, 44 Cr. R. 232, 70 S. W. 214.

Papers in a suit pending in court are filed, within the meaning of the law, when they are delivered to the clerk of the court for the purpose of being filed. Manning v. State, 46 Cr. R. 326, 81 S. W. 957, 3 Ann. Cas. 867.

Where a justice approves an appeal bond his failure to place a filing mark thereon does not affect its validity. Lewis v. Warren & C. P. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 104.

Art. 1815. [1179] [1183] Clerk's file docket.—The clerk's file docket shall be so kept as to show in a convenient form the number of the suit, the names of the attorneys, the names of the several parties to the suit, and the object thereof, and, in a brief form, the return on the process made by the sheriff or constable, and all the subsequent proceedings had in the case, specifying the time when they were had. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 6. P. D. 1428.]

Order of file docket.—The statute contemplates that cases shall be docketed and numbered in the order in which petitions are filed. And in making up the jury docket the same order should be observed as on the general docket. Ranson v. Leggett (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 669.

Art. 1816. [1180] [1184] Civil suits not to be instituted on Sunday, etc., except.—No civil suit shall be commenced, nor shall any process be issued or served, on Sunday or on any legal holiday, except in cases of injunction, attachment, garnishment, sequestration, or distress proceeding. [Acts 1846, p. 363. Acts 1897, p. 84. P. D. 1424.]

In general.—It is within the power of the legislature to require cessation of labor on certain days periodically. Ex parte Roquemore, 60 Cr. R. 282, 131 S. W. 1101, 32 L. R. A. (N. S.) 1186.

The legislature may prohibit secular business on Sunday. Gabel v. Houston, 29 T. 335; The Sunday Law Cases, 30 T. 524.

The final week of a term ends on Saturday night. Code Cr. Proc. art. 858, makes it the duty of the court, under certain circumstances in a criminal case, to continue in session the whole of Saturday night and Sunday. This is the only case in which a court can transact business on Sunday. Harper v. State, 43 T. 431.

The Sunday laws prohibit certain labor on that day. P. C. arts 299–302. A contract made in violation of the Sunday statutes would be illegal and incapable of enforcement. But there is no law which makes a contract illegal and void, or even voidable, merely because made on Sunday, when such contract is in regard to a matter not made unlawful by statute. At common law, as to contracts, no distinction is made between Sunday and any other day. Markle v. Scott, 2 App. C. C. § 674. A contract made on Sunday to secure decent burial for the dead and to procure the presence of parents of the deceased is, in contemplation of law, a contract to do a work of necessity and charity, and therefore valid. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Levy, 59 T. 542. A sale of the goods of a partnership for the purpose of paying off a debt, for which a writ of attachment had been issued, made on Sunday, is not void. The special object of article 302, Penal Code, prohibiting the barter and sale of goods on Sunday, etc., was to prevent traders from pursuing their usual business of barter and sale, and thereby promote a proper respect for the sanctity of that day, dedicated, as it should be, to rest, contemplation and worship. Schneider v. Sansom, 62 T. 201, 50 Am. Rep. 521.

Contracts.—Contracts made upon Sunday, when not in course of business prohibited on that day by statute, are valid. Beham v. Ghio, 75 T. 91, 12 S. W. 996. Thus, an agreement to compromise a suit made on Sunday is valid. Terry v. French, 23 S. W. 911, 5 C. A. 120.

Convict and bail bonds.—A convict bond is not invalid because executed on Sunday. Ex parte Millsap, 39 Cr. R. 93, 45 S. W. 20.

A bail bond is not invalidated by being executed on Sunday. Lindsay v. State, 39 Cr. R. 468, 46 S. W. 1045.

Process in general.—When service was had in another state on a non-resident defendant in a trespass to try title suit, under the provisions of article 1869 on the 22d day of February, which is a legal holiday in Texas it is void. It does not matter whether the statute of the state where service is obtained makes it valid or not. The laws of Texas in regard to service must be complied with. Norvell v. Pye (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 666.

Process issued or served on Sunday or a legal holiday is invalid and will not give jurisdiction of the court over the person of defendant, and will not support a judgment, except in the cases mentioned in the statute as exceptions. Michael v. Michael (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1018.

Garnishment.—Garnishment bond and affidavit in pending suit may be filed on Sunday. Schow v. City Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 166.

Execution.—This section of the statute refers alone to such process as may be required in the commencement of a suit, and does not apply to executions, and a sale on a legal holiday under an execution is not prohibited. Crabtree v. Whiteselle, 65 T. 111.

Reception of verdict.—A verdict may be received and entered on the minutes on Sunday. Moore v. State, 49 Cr. R. 499, 96 S. W. 321.

Collateral attack on judgment.—A justice's judgment reciting that defendant had been duly cited held not subject to collateral attack on the ground that the process had been served on a legal holiday. Burns v. Barker, 31 C. A. 82, 71 S. W. 328.

Objections and waiver.—A defendant who enters his appearance and answers to the merits, in a suit begun on a legal holiday, before excepting on account of the suit being thus instituted, thereby waives the question of jurisdiction. The objection to a suit thus brought may also be cured by an amended original petition filed before the defendant's exceptions. Williams v. Verne, 68 T. 414, 4 S. W. 548.

Objection that a suit was filed on a legal holiday can be taken only by special exceptions promptly made and urged. A general exception is not sufficient. Cox v. Trent. 1 C. A. 639, 20 S. W. 1118.

Decisions in General

Statutory requirements.—A substantial compliance with legislative requirements limiting the manner in which a court of general jurisprudence shall exercise its power in cases of a designated character is sufficient. Swenson v. McKay, 47 C. A. 483, 106 S. W. 934.

What law governs.—Where an action is based solely on a tort, and no defense is founded on contract, the law where the tort occurred governs. Sawyer v. El Paso & N. E. Ry. Co., 49 C. A. 106, 108 S. W. 718.

Right of action.—The fact that plaintiff was a criminal held no obstacle to his maintaining a civil suit. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Smith, 49 C. A. 637, 109 S. W. 1111.

Suits by state.—Where the state sues, it is subject to the same rules as other litigants. State v. Zanco's Heirs, 18 C. A. 127, 44 S. W. 527.

Torts.—One who commits an unprovoked and malicious assault and battery upon the person of another is responsible to the latter for exemplary as well as actual damages. Flanagan v. Womack, 54 T. 46; Shook v. Peters, 59 T. 393; Jackson v. Wells, 13 C. A. 275, 35 S. W. 528.

Plaintiff held to have no cause of action against defendant, who threatened to discharge his employés if they traded with plaintiff. Robison v. Texas Pine Land Ass'n (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 843.

Fraud, without damages, gives no cause of action. Reed v. Holloway (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1189.

One induced to purchase liquor under the false representation that it was not intoxicating and convicted for selling intoxicating liquor could not recover of the seller as damages his costs and expenses in the criminal prosecution nor damages for mental anguish. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Sneed (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 386.

As between two innocent persons, a loss must remain where the chance of business has placed it. Kelley v. Planters' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1142.

CHAPTER TWO

PLEADING IN GENERAL

Article 1817. [1181] [1185] System of pleading.—The pleadings in all civil suits in the district and county courts shall be by petition and answer. [Act Feb. 5, 1840, p. 88, sec. 1. P. D. 979.]

In general.—The pleadings of the plaintiff consist of an original petition and supplemental petitions. The original petition contains a statement of facts together or in separate counts, properly numbered, as show a cause of action. The supplemental petition may contain exceptions, a general denial, and the allegations of new facts in reply to those alleged by the defendant. Rules 4, 5, 47 T. 616; 84 T. 708.

Necessity of pleading.—Where the only pleading in the county court in a matter of guardianship was the presentment to the guardian of a claim duly verified, and appeal was taken to district court, there was no need for other pleadings. Everything relating to the presentment and acting on the claims in the county court required by the statutes was done and on appeal no other pleadings are required in the district court. Bradshaw v. Lyles, 55 C. A. 384, 119 S. W. 920.

Art. 1818. [1182] [1186] Pleadings to be in writing, signed and filed.—The pleadings in said courts shall be in writing and signed by the party, or by his attorney, and filed with the clerk of the court.

Signature.—A pleading not signed will be disregarded. Hemming v. Zimmerschitte, 4 T. 150.

Adding by way of amendment.—See note under Art. 1824.

Art. 1819. [1183] [1187] Pleadings defined.—The pleading shall consist of a statement, in logical and legal form, of the facts constituting the plaintiff's cause of action, or the defendant's ground of defense.

Necessity and sufficiency in general.—In legal and equitable cases rules of pleading are the same. Johnson v. Davis, 7 T. 173; Smith v. Doak, 3 T. 215; Fitzhugh v. Custer, 4 T. 391, 51 Am. Dec. 728; Mitchell v. Sheppard, 13 T. 484.

Evidence is admissible under a pleading good on general demurrer. Oliver v. Chapman, 15 T. 400; Chapman v. Sneed, 17 T. 428; Wallace v. Hunt, 22 T. 647; Black v. Drury, 24 T. 289; Powers v. Caldwell, 25 T. 352; Booth v. Pickett, 53 T. 436; Carter v. Roland, 53 T. 540; Hays v. Samuels, 55 T. 560; Blum v. Wettermark, 56 T. 80; Friend v. Miller, 62 T. 177.

It is not necessary to provide by allegation for secondary evidence of lost instrument, except where profert is not necessary. Wooten v. Dunlap, 20 T. 183.

Recognized forms may be followed, but are not authoritative. Rule 2, 47 T. 615; 84 T. 708; Holman v. Criswell, 15 T. 294.

Where the validity of a carrier's contract depends upon its reasonableness, the party who asserts its validity must allege the facts which make it so. Railway Co. v. Harris, 67 T. 172, 2 S. W. 574; Railway Co. v. Davis, 88 T. 593, 32 S. W. 510.

Matter of estoppel must be specially pleaded. Anderson v. Nuckles (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 184.

It is error to admit evidence showing a waiver of the terms of a written contract when no allegations thereof have been made. Love v. Rempe (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 681.

One relying on the unwritten part of a contract must plead that it was omitted from the written part through fraud, accident, or mistake. Janes v. Ferd Heim Brewing Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 896.

To make a waiver of the terms of a contract available it must be pleaded. McCall Co. v. Segal (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 913.

A custom cannot be treated as entering into and forming a part of a contract between parties unless it is pleaded. Patton v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 721.

Technical rules of pleading cannot be allowed to defeat a right substantially alleged. Barnes v. Patrick, 105 T. 146, 146 S. W. 154.

The rules of equity pleading, existing in jurisdictions having a separate equity procedure, are not recognized in Texas. Barnes v. Central Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1172.

Purpose and intent of pleader.—The court will not collate facts from different parts of a pleading for a purpose not intended by the pleader. Yale v. Ward, 30 T. 17; Ellis v. Singletary, 45 T. 27; Edgar v. Galveston City Co., 46 T. 421, 428.

Matters judicially noticed.—See notes under Art. 3687 for matters judicially noticed.

It is necessary to allege private acts of this state. Sterrett v. Houston, 14 T. 153. See Arts. 1822, 1826. And the laws of other states and countries. Crosby v. Huston, 1 T. 203; Bryant v. Kelton, 1 T. 434; Jones v. Laney, 2 T. 342; Bufford v. Holliman, 10

T. 560, 60 Am. Dec. 223; Sadler v. Anderson, 17 T. 245; Bradshaw v. Mayfield, 18 T. 21; Grant v. Bledsoe, 20 T. 456; Porcheler v. Bronson, 50 T. 555; Randall v. Burtis, 57 T. 362.

It is not necessary to allege the public law of this state. Wright v. Hawkins, 28 T. 452; Griffith v. Gary, 31 T. 163; Thompson v. Houston, 31 T. 610; Jopling v. Turner, 32 T. 281. Of the United States. Jones v. Laney, 2 T. 342. The principles of the common law. Nimmo v. Davis, 7 T. 26; Wallace v. Burden, 17 T. 467.

The fact that whisky is an intoxicating liquor need not be pleaded. Daniels v. College, 20 C. A. 562, 50 S. W. 205.

Matters of implication.—A fact will not be deduced from the statement of another fact (Malone v. Craig, 22 T. 609; Bledsoe v. Wills, 22 T. 650; Gray v. Osborne, 24 T. 157, 76 Am. Dec. 99; Sneed v. Moodie, 24 T. 159; Thigpen v. Mundine, 24 T. 282; Moody v. Benge, 28 T. 545; Parr v. Nolen, 28 T. 798; Seligson v. Hobby, 51 T. 147; Colbertson v. Beeson, 30 T. 76; Barnard v. Moseley, 28 T. 543; T. T. R. R. Co. v. Elam, 1 App. C. C. § 447), unless necessarily implied. James v. Fulcrod, 5 T. 512, 55 Am. Dec. 743; Warner v. Bailey, 7 T. 517; Doggett v. Patterson, 18 T. 158; Blount v. Ralston, 20 T. 132; Dawson v. Miller, 20 T. 171, 70 Am. Dec. 380; Cross v. Everts, 28 T. 523; Lockhart v. City of Houston, 45 T. 317; Lewis v. Alexander, 51 T. 578; Gonzales v. Chartier, 63 T. 36; St. Paul F. & M. Ins. Co. v. McGregor, 63 T. 399.

Conclusions of fact or law.—See, also, notes under Art. 1827 and at end of Chapter 8.

It is not necessary to allege the law upon the facts stated. Nimmo v. Davis, 7 T. 26; Milburn v. Walker, 11 T. 329; Vardeman v. Lawson, 17 T. 10; Wallace v. Burden, 17 T. 467; Bedwell v. Thompson, 25 T. Supp. 247; Wright v. McKenney, 34 T. 568; Seiling v. Gunderman, 35 T. 544.

Pleadings must state facts only. Rule 2, 47 T. 615; Mims v. Mitchell, 1 T. 443; Thompson v. Munger, 15 T. 523, 65 Am. Dec. 176.

An allegation of willingness, readiness, and ability to purchase land is not a mere conclusion, but is an averment of fact. Wilson v. Clark, 35 C. A. 92, 79 S. W. 649.

An allegation in a pleading of a mutual mistake in a written instrument is but a legal conclusion. Dalton v. Dalton (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 241.

Allegations as to what the issues were in a former action held to be conclusions. Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 699.

Matters of evidence.—See, also, notes under Art. 1827.

The evidence upon which a party relies to prove his allegations should not be pleaded. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy, 52 C. A. 22, 113 S. W. 574.

A simple allegation of facts meets the requirement of pleading, and it is not proper to plead the evidence. Drummond v. Allen Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 739.

It is not necessary to allege the evidence by which a case is sought to be established Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Finklea (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 612.

Directness and positiveness.—See, also, notes under Art. 1827.

A pleading must be positive and direct. Lawrence v. Simonton, 13 T. 220; Ballard v. Anderson, 18 T. 377; Whitlock v. Castro, 22 T. 108; Yale v. Ward, 30 T. 17; Thompson v. Eanes, 32 T. 190; Hollis v. Chapman, 36 T. 1; Edgar v. Galveston City Co., 46 T. 421. See Hamblen v. Knight, 60 T. 36.

Certainty and consistency.—See, also, notes under Art. 1827.

A pleading must be certain as to subject-matter—as where the action is based on fraud or mistake. Baker v. Rust, 37 T. 242; Boynton v. Chamberlain, 38 T. 604; Walker v. Burks, 48 T. 206; McCamant v. Batsell, 59 T. 363; Osborne v. Holland, 1 App. C. C. § 1089; Nugent v. Martin, 1 App. C. C. § 1174. On an account for goods sold. Caldwell v. Haley, 3 T. 317; Love v. Doak, 5 T. 343; Boynton v. Chamberlain, 38 T. 604; Murphy v. Service, 2 App. C. C. § 746. On a stated account. Neyland v. Neyland, 19 T. 423. As to amount due where partial payments are admitted. Wood v. Evans, 43 T. 175. As to value of property sued for. Carter v. Wallace, 2 T. 206; Gillies v. Wofford, 26 T. 76; Forbes v. Moore, 32 T. 195; Stroop v. McKenzie, 38 T. 132. In action against carrier for damages for delay. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jesse, 2 App. C. C. § 402. As to grounds for divorce. Wright v. Wright, 3 T. 168; Id., 6 T. 3; Nogees v. Nogees, 7 T. 538, 58 Am. Dec. 78. Less certainty is required of administrators. Gay v. McGuffin, 9 T. 501.

A pleading must be consistent and susceptible of proof. Rule 51, 47 T. 626; 84 T. 715; Hillebrant v. Booth, 7 T. 499; Thomas v. Browder, 33 T. 783; Hatler v. Hunter, 1 App. C. C. § 9; Ranson v. Gatewood, 2 App. C. C. § 364.

Construction of pleadings.—See, also, notes under Art. 1827 and at end of Chapter 8.

Where no objection is made to the form of the allegations of a pleading, every reasonable intendment is to be indulged in favor of such pleading. Whaley v. Thomason, 41 C. A. 405, 93 S. W. 212.

Pleadings are intended to inform the opposite party of the cause of action or ground of defense relied on, and should be construed from the standpoint of counsel for the opposite party. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Poole, 104 T. 36, 133 S. W. 239.

Certain pleadings construed. Beaumont Irrigating Co. v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 545.

The pleadings of a party must be taken most strongly against him. Broussard v. Mayumi (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 320.

In pleading specific allegations control the general allegations. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Keeran (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 355.

Surplusage and scandal.—See, also, notes under Art. 1827 and at end of Chapter 8.

Allegations of irrelevant matter or surplusage will be disregarded. Turner v. Brooks, 6 T. 205; Booth v. Cotton, 13 T. 359; Kottwitz v. Bagby, 16 T. 656. But a fact may thereby be unnecessarily put in issue when a matter of defense. Boynton v. Tidwell, 19 T. 118.

Scandalous matter in a pleading will be stricken out on motion. Herndon v. Campbell, 23 S. W. 982, 86 T. 168.

Issues, proof, and variance.—See, also, notes under Art. 1827 and at end of Chapter 8.

Effect of variance between allegation and proof, see Mims v. Mitchell, 1 T. 443; McGreal v. Wilson, 9 T. 426; Able v. Lee, 6 T. 427; Gammage v. Alexander, 14 T. 414; Brown v. Martin, 19 T. 343; Espey v. Heidenheimer, 58 T. 662; Stewart v. Gordon, 65

T. 344; Lasatar v. Van Hook, 77 T. 650, 14 S. W. 270; Schulz v. Annick (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 916.

Every issuable fact necessary to be proven must be alleged. Mims v. Mitchell, 1 T. 443; Coles v. Kelsey, 2 T. 541, 47 Am. Dec. 661; Guess v. Lubbock, 5 T. 535; Wood v. Jones, 35 T. 64; Loonie v. Frank, 51 T. 406; P. E. Co. v. Darnell, 62 T. 639. But the evidence of facts need not be stated. Wells v. Fairbanks, 5 T. 582; Van Alstyne v. Bertrand, 15 T. 177; Oliver v. Chapman, 15 T. 400; McCauley v. Long, 61 T. 74; Wooten v. Dunlap, 20 T. 183; Scoby v. Sweatt, 28 T. 713; Railroad Co. v. Chandler, 51 T. 416; Ross v. Fitch, 58 T. 148; T. & P. R. Co. v. De Milley, 60 T. 194; Whittaker v. Wallace, 2 App. C. C. § 558.

Evidence of facts not alleged will not be admitted if objected to. Guess v. Lubbock, 5 T. 535; Gillies v. Wofford, 26 T. 76; Lemmon v. Hanley, 28 T. 219; Heilbroner v. Hancock, 33 T. 714; M. P. Ry. Co. v. Nicholson, 2 App. C. C. § 169; T. P. Ry. Co. v. Hamm, 2 App. C. C. § 495. Also see Wheeler v. Wheeler, 65 T. 573.

Where matters of inducement merely are alleged in a pleading, they need not always b proved, nor will a variance in the proof in respect to such be fatal. Mitchusson v. Wadsworth, 1 App. C. C. § 978. Citing Kottwitz v. Bagby, 16 T. 656; Byrne v. Fagan, Id. 391; Oliver v. Chapman, 15 T. 400; May v. Pollard, 28 T. 677; McCauley v. Long, 61 T. 74.

Evidence concerning an issue not raised by the pleadings is inadmissible. Schulze v. Jalonick, 18 C. A. 296, 44 S. W. 580.

Proof of facts that are merely descriptive in their nature is not objectionable because not alleged in pleadings. San Antonio Edison Co. v. Beyer, 24 C. A. 145, 57 S. W. 851.

Evidence in an action for failure to deliver a telegram held unauthorized by the pleadings. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Byrd, 34 C. A. 594, 79 S. W. 40.

Testimony as to a settlement between parties to action held irrelevant, such settlement not having been pleaded. Word v. Marrs, 36 C. A. 637, 83 S. W. 17.

In an action for the wrongful release of a judgment after its sale by defendant to plaintiff, the exclusion of certain evidence held not erroneous under the pleadings, which did not raise a failure or inadequacy of consideration for the sale. W. L. Moody & Co. v. Rowland, 46 C. A. 412, 102 S. W. 911.

The meaning of "facts in issue" stated. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Hidgon (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 732.

Pleadings held to make no issue on which certain evidence bore. Mullinax v. Pyron (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1139.

The pleadings, and not the evidence must be looked to in determining the issues made; an issue being a question of fact or law raised by the pleadings. Provident Nat. Bank v. Webb (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 426.

A variance between the pleading and proof held not to warrant the exclusion of the evidence. Corbin v. Corbin (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 122.

—— Materiality and effect to mislead.—See notes under Art. 1827 and at end of Chapter 8.

Cases in which variance between allegata and probata held to be material: Mims v. Mitchell, 1 T. 443; McGreal v. Wilson, 9 T. 426; Able v. Lee, 6 T. 427; Gammage v. Alexander, 14 T. 414; Brown v. Martin, 19 T. 343. Also see Stewart v. Gordon, 65 T. 344; Wisbey v. Boyce (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 590.

Variance between allegata and probata held to be immaterial. Holliman v. Rogers, 6 T. 91; May v. Pollard, 28 T. 677; Hays v. Samuels, 55 T. 560; Smith v. Shinn, 58 T. 1.

To constitute a fatal variance the misdescription must be such as to mislead or surprise the adverse party. Shipman v. Fulcrod, 42 T. 248; Wiebusch v. Taylor, 64 T. 53.

Variance between the words "payment guarantee" and "payment guaranteed," immaterial. Washington v. First Nat. Bank, 64 T. 4.

Held no material variance between pleading and evidence. Barker v. Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 171.

Variance between pleading and proof in a boundary suit held immaterial. Battles v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 817.

Variance held immaterial. White v. Manning, 46 C. A. 298, 102 S. W. 1160.

In order for there to be a fatal variance, the allegation and the proof must differ in such manner as to have the effect of misleading the opposite party. Receivers of Kirby Lumber Co. v. Poindexter (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 439.

Variance between allegations and proof, which ought not to mislead the adverse party, is not material. Haralson v. San Antonio Traction Co., 53 C. A. 253, 115 S. W. 876.

—— Time, place, and names.—See, also, notes under Art. 1827 and at end of Chapter 8.

Time is not considered generally as forming part of the material issue, and usually one time or day may be alleged and another time or day proved. Such is ordinarily the rule even in prosecution for crime. Morehouse v. Railway Co., 4 App. C. C. § 267, 17 S. W. 1086.

S. Foster and Squire Foster do not constitute a variance. Little v. State, 75 T. 616, 12 S. W. 965. H. C. Dillahunty, H. C. Dillaunty and H. C. Dillahinty do not constitute a variance. Dillahunty v. Davis, 74 T. 344, 12 S. W. 55.

Though ordinarily allegations of time or place are immaterial, and need not be proved as laid, they may be made material by the manner or by the requirement of the averments. English v. City of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 179.

—— Written instruments.—See, also, notes under Art. 1827 and at end of Chapter 8.

The variance between the character "&" and the word "and" is immaterial. McIlhenny v. Planters' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 282.

A writing in evidence proposing terms of a contract, which were accepted without signing, was no variance from allegations setting forth the making of a contract in substantially the same terms. Slayden v. Stone, 19 C. A. 618, 47 S. W. 747.

Where a pleading does not refer to credits on a note which the note offered in evidence shows, held no variance, it being alleged that installments of interest had been paid, and the credits are for such interest. Myers v. Humphries (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 812.

Execution held not inadmissible, because under date other than that alleged, where this did not mislead opposite party. Hunstock v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 514.

Art. 1820. [1184] [1188] Pleadings of an intervenor.—The pleadings of an intervenor shall conform to the requirements of pleadings on the part of the plaintiff and defendant, respectively, so far as they may be applicable.

Sufficiency of pleading.—A petition by subsequent attaching creditors intervening in the prior attachment suit, which alleged that the prior attachment was the result of a collusive agreement between plaintiff and defendant, and was made with intent to hinder, delay and defraud creditors, especially petitioners, who were bona fide creditors, or was made for the use and benefit of defendant, held good on general demurrer, and immaterial that it did not allege plaintiff's debt to be fictitious. Martin Clothing Co. v. Page, 1 C. A. 537, 21 S. W. 702.

An insurance company, as intervener, may make allegations of the plaintiff's petition setting forth acts of negligence in causing a fire, that plaintiff is a corporation and owned the property, part of its petition of intervention, by way of reference, where it seeks to recover the amount of insurance paid, as damages. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Hartford Ins. Co., 17 C. A. 498, 44 S. W. 533.

It is not error for interveners to file a joint supplemental petition in reply to defendant's answer, where the matter contained in the petition is common to all of them. Id.

In an action by a trustee for the benefit of creditors for wrongful attachment of the property covered by the deed of trust the petition of intervention by a creditor held to assert a lien on or interest in the proceeds of the sale of certain goods conveyed by the deed. Baum v. Corsicana Nat. Bank, 32 C. A. 531, 75 S. W. 863.

Defendants cannot object to pleas of intervention because of their failure to tender equity to the original plaintiffs. Sprinkel v. McCord (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 379.

Persons entitled to intervene and grounds of intervention.—See notes at end of Chapter 5.

Art. 1821. [1185] [1189] Pleadings in particular cases.—In addition to the requirements of the several articles of this title relating to pleading, the pleadings of the parties, respectively, shall contain any other matter, not included in the preceding articles, which may be required by any law authorizing or regulating any particular action or defense.

Art. 1822. [1186] [1190] Pleading charters and acts of incorporation.—In pleading the charter or act of incorporation of any corporation, public or private, it shall not be necessary to set out at length such charter or act of incorporation, but it shall be sufficient to allege that such corporation was duly incorporated; and such allegation by either party shall be taken as true, unless denied by the affidavit of the adverse party, his agent or attorney. [Act Feb. 14, 1860, p. 116, sec. 1. P. D. 1518. Acts 1883, p. 103.]

Pleading corporate existence.—It was formerly held that in a suit by a corporation it was incumbent upon it to aver and prove its due incorporation by competent authority. Bank v. Simonton, 2 T. 531; Holloway v. Railroad Co., 23 T. 467, 76 Am. Dec. 68. By subsequent legislation a corporation is relieved of the burden of making this proof, but must allege its due incorporation. Way v. Bank of Sumner (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 497.

When a corporation is the defendant in a suit, the statute does not require that the charter should be set forth, or that it should be alleged by what authority the defendant was incorporated. Waterworks v. Kennedy, 70 T. 233, 8 S. W. 36.

In an action against a corporation it is proper to allege the corporate capacity of the defendant. Railway Co. v. Smith, 81 T. 479, 17 S. W. 133.

Where a city sued on a contract such as could have been lawfully made only by a city of over ten thousand inhabitants, the plaintiff's petition is bad on special exception if it fails to allege that the defendant is incorporated as a city of over ten thousand inhabitants. Water & Gas Co. v. Cleburne, 1 C. A. 580, 21 S. W. 393.

Allegation of incorporation held sufficient. Gill v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 751.

Where a petition in an action by a corporation omits the word "duly" in the allegation of incorporation, objection thereto must be taken by special exception else it will be regarded as waived, and proof of incorporation will not be required. Bury v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 341.

This article requires that a petition in a suit against a corporation shall allege that the defendant is "duly" incorporated, whereas article 273 in a case to attach shares held by a judgment debtor in a corporation, only requires that the applicant state in his affidavit that the "garnishee is an incorporated company." First Nat. Bank v. Brown, 42 C. A. 584, 92 S. W. 1053.

Pleading corporate name and character.—Designation, in petition of corporation, as Association "at" Dallas, whereas proper name was Association "of" Dallas, held immaterial. Underwriters' Fire Ass'n v. Henry (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1072.

A petition in a suit by a water company held to sufficiently show the character of the corporation. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell, 50 C. A. 92, 109 S. W. 435.

Pleading corporate powers.—Petition alleging partnership between corporations held insufficient, where it fails to allege charter power to enter into such relation. White v. Pecos Land & Water Co., 18 C. A. 634, 45 S. W. 207.

In an action by a lessor to recover leased premises, an allegation that a corporation to which the lease was assigned was incapable of accepting an assignment held not sufficient to show the invalidity of the assignment. Wildey Lodge No. 21, I. O. O. F., v. City of Paris, 31 C. A. 632, 73 S. W. 69.

The petition against a corporation for breach of contract held not required to state its charter powers. San Antonio Machine & Supply Co. v. Josey (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 598.

To warrant the admission of evidence of the ratification of an action brought in the name of a corporation without the authority of the governing body, held, that it is not necessary to plead it. De Zavala v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 160.

Pleading and proof as to compliance with domestic laws by foreign corporations.—See notes under Art. 1318.

Art. 1823. [1187] [1191] Pleading special act of the legislature.—Whenever any pleading is founded, in whole or in part, on any private or special act or law of the congress of the republic of Texas, or of the legislature of this state, it shall not be necessary for the party pleading the same to set out such private or special act or law, but it shall be sufficient to recite the title thereof, and the date of its approval, and to allege in substance so much of such act or law as may be pertinent to the cause of action or defense.

Pleading city charter.—A petition, in an action against a city, need not plead provisions of its charter on which the action is based, where it has been declared a public act judicially noticeable. Wright v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 406.

Pleading substance of act.—It is not necessary to set out in pleading a private act of the legislature, but it is sufficient to recite the title thereof and the date of its approval, and to set forth in substance so much of the act as may be pertinent to the cause of action or defense. Railway Co. v. Rushing, 69 T. 306, 6 S. W. 834.

Art. 1824. [1188] [1192] Pleadings may be amended.—All parties to a suit may, in vacation, amend their pleadings, may file suggestions of death and make representative parties, and make new parties, and file such other pleas with the clerk of the court in which such suit is pending as they may desire. And any party may in vacation intervene in any suit pending such amendments and pleas, subject to be stricken out at the next term of the court on motion of the opposite party to the suit for sufficient cause shown or existing, to be determined by the court; provided, that it shall be the duty of the party filing such pleading to notify the opposite party or their attorneys of the filing of such papers within five days from the filing of the same. All amendments to pleadings, pleas and pleas of intervention, must, when court is in session, be filed under leave of the court, upon such terms as the court may prescribe, before the parties announce ready for trial, and not thereafter. [Acts 1889, p. 9.]

1. Necessity of amendment.
2. Right to amend and subject-matter of amendment.
3. Matters arising or discovered after original pleading.
4. New cause of action or defense.
5. —— Affecting limitations.
6. —— Trial of right of property.
7. Amendment or further pleading after sustaining of demurrer or exception.
8. Leave of court.
9. Discretion of court in general.
10. Condition of cause and time for amendment.
11. —— Effect of announcement of ready for trial.
12. —— Trial amendments in general.
13. —— Amendment to conform to proof.
14. Conditions on granting leave.
15. Notice or citation.
16. Amendment regarded as made.
17. Mode of making amendment.
18. Form and sufficiency of amended pleading.
19. Operation and effect of amendment.
20. —— Superseding prior pleading.
21. —— Costs.
22. Amendment as affecting attachment.
23. Re-pleading by way of amendment.
24. Waiver or abandonment of amended pleading.
25. Amendment on appeal.
26. Bringing in new parties.
27. Supplemental petition.
28. Supplemental answer.
29. Repleader.
30. Substituting lost pleadings.
31. Objections and waiver.

1. Necessity of amendment.—In suit against maker and sureties on a note, and against sureties on other debts of the maker for a proportionate share of proceeds of indemnity mortgage, plaintiff held not obliged to amend petition on the trial of the case against the other sureties, after judgment on the note. Wheeler v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 376.

2. Right to amend and subject-matter of amendment.—A misstatement of name or residence may be pleaded in abatement, and may be corrected by amendment. Cartwright v. Chabert, 3 T. 261, 49 Am. Dec. 742; Tousey v. Butler, 9 T. 525; Tryon v. Butler, 9 T. 553; Gildart v. Grumbles, 22 T. 15.

An amendment allowed for the purpose of excepting to pleadings. Walling v. Williams, 4 T. 427; Fowler v. Stoneum, 11 T. 478, 62 Am. Dec. 490; Watson v. Loop, 12 T.

11; Oliver v. Chapman, 15 T. 400. To correct names (Williams v. Huling, 43 T. 113) after a plea of misnomer. Cartwright v. Chabert, 3 T. 261, 49 Am. Dec. 742. To change names of parties. Tryon v. Butler, 9 T. 553; Pridgen v. McLean, 12 T. 420; Heard v. Lockett, 20 T. 162; Garrett v. Muller, 37 T. 589; Thompson v. Swearengin, 48 T. 555. To change parties. Price v. Wiley, 19 T. 142, 70 Am. Dec. 323; Martel v. Somers, 26 T. 551; Smith v. Wingate, 61 T. 54. To correct matters of description. Walling v. Williams, 4 T. 427; Turner v. Brown, 7 T. 489; Rowland v. Murphy, 66 T. 534, 1 S. W. 658. To supply a jurat to an affidavit. Sims v. Redding, 20 T. 386. To attach a seal to a jurat. Hail v. Magale, 1 App. C. C. § 854. To show jurisdiction. Ward v. Lathrop, 11 T. 287; Evans v. Mills, 16 T. 196. To change the prayer. Furlow v. Miller, 30 T. 28; King v. Goodson, 42 T. 152; Pendleton v. Colville, 49 T. 525; Porterfield v. Taylor, 60 T. 264.

An amendment allowed in a suit by attachment. Pearce v. Bell, 21 T. 688; Tarkinton v. Broussard, 51 T. 550. Injunction. McDonald v. Tinnon, 20 T. 245. After exception has been sustained or overruled. McDonald v. Tinnon, 20 T. 245; Hutchins v. Wade, 20 T. 7.

An amendment will not be permitted where it fails to remove a defect in the pleading. Oldham v. Sparks, 28 T. 425. Where it is manifestly for delay. Hardy v. De Leon, 5 T. 211; Matossy v. Frosh, 9 T. 610.

An amendment may supply a jurisdictional fact. McDannell v. Cherry, 64 T. 177.

When exceptions to pleading have been presented and decided, leave may be granted to either or both parties to file an amendment in one instrument of writing separate from those which had been previously filed by each, which shall close the proceedings in the case to be then determined by the court, so as to decide all the questions of sufficiency arising upon them. In making this amendment the party shall refer distinctly to such instrument as he desires to amend, by name and number, as in the other amendment, without repeating the whole of it, but shall succinctly state such additional facts to be added thereto as he may desire, and this amendment shall be styled and indorsed "plaintiff's" or "defendant's trial amendment;" but if the case should not be then tried, the party or parties shall replead as in other cases of amendments. Rule 27, 84 T. 713. The court may in its discretion relax the above rule in the interest of justice. The court may allow an original amended answer to be filed. If new matter be then set up that plaintiff is not prepared to meet by pleading or evidence, he can also amend and can continue the case if necessary. Radam v. Microbe Destroyer Co., 81 T. 122, 16 S. W. 990, 26 Am. St. Rep. 783.

Pleadings may be amended in a suit by attachment for the purpose of correcting and making certain the original allegations as to the means by which plaintiffs acquired the claim sued on. Sweetzer v. Claflin, 82 T. 513, 17 S. W. 769.

Plaintiff has a right to amend his petition by adding thereto the signature of counsel. Boren v. Billington, 82 T. 137, 18 S. W. 101.

Where petition asserting title in the plaintiff, and seeking a recovery in his own right, was amended to assert title in the estate of which the plaintiff was administrator. Morales v. Fisk, 66 T. 189, 18 S. W. 495.

The affidavit may be amended in matter of form. Baker v. Wahrmund, 23 S. W. 1023, 5 C. A. 268.

After the court has held an amended answer defective, it may refuse to permit a second amendment. Alexander v. Brown (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 561.

A defect in a plea in abatement may be cured by amendment, upon leave of the court, as any other defective plea. Caldwell v. Lamkin, 12 C. A. 29, 33 S. W. 316.

Where a complaint in an action of forcible entry and detainer identifies the land, it is not error to permit the pleadings to be amended so as to show that the land is situated in the justice's precinct where the suit is pending. The above article is made applicable to justice's court by Art. 2400. McRae v. White (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 793.

Where surety paid a note and sued the principal for indemnity, held, that he might amend the petition by setting up payment of attorney's fees provided for in the note. Boyd v. Beville, 91 T. 439, 44 S. W. 287.

An amendment was properly allowed where the name of plaintiff corporation as pleaded omitted the prefix "the." McIlhenny v. Planters' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 282.

In an action on a benefit certificate for $3,000, payable in yearly installments of $300, a trial amendment by plaintiff setting up a breach of the contract declared on in the original petition, and averring $3,000, damages, held properly allowed. Supreme Tent of Knights of Maccabees of the World v. Cox, 25 C. A. 366, 60 S. W. 971.

Where a petition for mandamus to compel the commissioner of the general land office to issue a patent for land was denied because the adverse claimant was not a party, the relator can amend his petition and file a new motion. Chappell v. Rogan, 94 T. 492, 62 S. W. 539.

The failure of the petition, in an action against a telegraph company for negligence in delivering a message, to allege a prior presentation of the claim to the company as required by the contract, does not require a dismissal of the action; but the petition may be amended, on the taxation of the accrued costs to the plaintiff. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hays (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 171.

Amendment of petition in action on county bonds, amplifying allegation of demand for payment, held proper. Martin County v. Gillespie County, 30 C. A. 307, 71 S. W. 421.

Compliance with city charter requiring presentment of claim before suit held pleadable in an amended petition. City of El Paso v. Ft. Dearborn Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 799.

On a wife's death, pending an action for injuries to her by herself and husband, the abatement of the action did not prevent the husband from setting up a new cause of action for her death by an amended petition, on payment of costs. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Boykin, 32 C. A. 72, 74 S. W. 93.

A petition, defective for want of signature, held subject to amendment, and, when amended at the succeeding term, defendants having appeared and answered, the case was properly tried at that term. Vitkovitch v. Kleinecke, 33 C. A. 20, 75 S. W. 544.

An amendment to a bill of review, so as to cause it to appear that one of plaintiffs sued as trustee for the other, held properly allowed. Ferguson v. Morrison (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1240.

Plaintiff has the right by amended original petition to bring in a new defendant at any time while the cause is pending between him and the original defendant. Jolley v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 1152.

In an action by a corporation for the value of stock issued by fraud, an amendment to the petition, seeking a recovery on the ground that the person guilty of the fraud was liable as an implied subscriber, held properly allowed. Houston Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 149.

A defect in a petition on a note, and for attorney's fees stipulated therein, arising from failure to sufficiently plead the right to recover attorney's fees, may be cured by amendment. De Steaguer v. Pittman, 54 C. A. 316, 117 S. W. 481.

Where the original petition seeking a recovery on a bond erroneously stated the date of the bond, an amended petition curing the error and making the bond a part thereof was properly allowed in the absence of any showing of surprise. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Means & Fulton Iron Works (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 536.

An amendment to a petition merely realleging matters previously stricken out by the court held properly stricken out. Altgelt v. Callaghan (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1166.

In an action by the owner of the equity of redemption of mortgaged property, originally brought to recover the price at which it was sold by mortgagee, in breach of an agreement to hold in trust for plaintiffs, the petition could be amended to recover the reasonable value of the property. D. Sullivan & Co. v. Ramsey (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 580.

A plea of privilege to be sued in another county may be amended. Beckwith v. Powers (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 177.

3. Matters arising or discovered after original pleading.—Amendment allowed to set up facts arising after suit was filed. Croft v. Rains, 10 T. 520; Smith v. McGaughey, 13 T. 464; Dignowitty v. Alexander, 25 T. Sup. 162; Martin v. Parker, 26 T. 253.

A cause of action accruing after suit filed may be set up by amendment. Burns v. True, 24 S. W. 338, 5 C. A. 74. See White v. Holley, 3 C. A. 590, 24 S. W. 831.

A pleading may be amended by alleging the true name. Hopson v. Schoelkopf, 27 S. W. 283.

Failure to sign a petition for scire facias to revive a judgment is an irregularity which may be amended on motion. Polnac v. State, 46 Cr. R. 70, 80 S. W. 381.

A plaintiff in a suit to enjoin diversion of waters held entitled to show a title acquired after commencement of suit, but before he became a party by the filing of an amended petition. Santa Rosa Irr. Co. v. Pecos River Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1014.

In an action for installments under a manufacturing contract, it was plaintiffs' duty to exercise reasonable diligence in ascertaining when their cause of action arose, and to include by amendment all installments due up to the date of trial. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Gammel-Statesman Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 191.

A husband's misconduct toward his wife after the filing of her suit for divorce is properly assigned in an amended petition as grounds for divorce. Hicks v. Stewart & Templeton, 53 C. A. 401, 118 S. W. 206.

4. New cause of action or defense.—Amendment allowed to set up an additional cause of action. Bell v. McDonald, 9 T. 378; Smith v. McGaughey, 13 T. 464; Turner v. Brown, 7 T. 489; Erskine v. Wilson, 27 T. 117.

An amendment setting up a new cause of action is subject to all defenses at time of filing; as where a written contract is substituted in place of a verbal one (Williams v. Randon, 10 T. 74); a claim for damages in place of a written obligation (Wooldridge v. Hathaway, 45 T. 380); a judgment in place of a note and mortgage (Ayres v. Cayce, 10 T. 99). Where the description of land is changed so as to show a different tract. Cowan v. Williams, 49 T. 380. Where it sets up a mortgage to secure the note sued on. De Walt v. Snow, 25 T. 320.

Amendment allowed to change the character of the cause of action. Lewis v. Davidson, 39 T. 660; Hollis v. Chapman, 36 T. 1; Reed v. Harris, 37 T. 167; Miller v. Rogers, 49 T. 398; Johns v. Northcutt, 49 T. 444; Pendleton v. Colville, 49 T. 525.

Where a mistake in the mode of pleading the plaintiff's case, as to the form in which the allegations shall appear of record, is susceptible of amendment, the amendment relates back to the filing of the original petition, and is not a setting up of a new cause of action against which the statute of limitation would run to the time of filing such amendment. (Connolly v. Hammond, 51 T. 647; Killebrew v. Stockdale, 51 T. 531; Tarkinton v. Broussard, Id. 554; Scoby v. Sweatt, 28 T. 713; Becton v. Alexander, 27 T. 659; Thouvenin v. Lea, 26 T. 614; Wells v. Fairbank, 5 T. 582.) Rippetoe v. Dwyer, 1 U. C. 498.

Where suit was brought for the value of machinery wrongfully converted, an amendment charging that defendant had caused the property to be sold at a sacrifice under a wrongful attachment sets up a new cause of action. Woods v. Huffman, 64 T. 98. Amendment not setting up a new cause of action. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Irvine, 64 T. 529.

An enlargement of the extent of the injuries constituting the element of damages may be set up by amendment, and is not a new cause of action. Railway Co. v. Irvine, 64 T. 529; Railway Co. v. Pape, 73 T. 501, 11 S. W. 526; Railway Co. v. Buckalew (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 165.

A suit was filed in the name of "F. A. Rabb, a minor, by his guardian, G. A. Rabb." The petition was amended in the name of "G. A. Rabb, guardian of Frank Rabb," suing for the benefit of his ward; each petition was for the benefit of the ward alone. Held, that the amendment did not make a new party plaintiff, and that the guardian was in effect the party plaintiff in each petition. Rabb v. Rogers et al., 67 T. 335, 3 S. W. 303.

When the cause of action is an injury resulting from the alleged negligence of the defendant, the time, place and circumstances of which are stated in the original petition, which is filed before limitation has barred the action, limitation cannot be pleaded to an amendment which states more fully than the original petition the results of the injury, and which is filed at a time when the statute would bar a recovery on a suit then brought. Railway Co. v. Davidson, 68 T. 370, 4 S. W. 636.

An amendment filed after a vendor has been cited in warranty setting up the amount and payment of purchase money and prayer for judgment sets up a new cause of action. Mann v. Mathews, 82 T. 98, 17 S. W. 927.

An amendment abandoning a part of the original cause of action does not thereby set up a new cause of action. State v. Snyder, 66 T. 687, 18 S. W. 106.

Where the court has complete jurisdiction, and an amended petition is filed stating a different cause of action from that represented in the original petition, it may proceed with the trial under such terms and conditions as in its judgment are proper, provided original petition states a good cause of action. Reagan v. Evans, 21 S. W. 427, 2 C. A. 35.

The original petition charged defendant with liability on the note as the surviving partner of the firm which executed it. Amended petition alleged that defendant assumed payment for a valuable consideration paid him by the maker. The liability being the same, the same cause of action is stated, and hence the court erred, on rendering judgment in plaintiff's favor, to dissolve an attachment sued out by him on bringing the action, on the ground that the amended petition pleaded a different cause of action from that set up in the original petition, and that the attachment was incident to and dependent on the cause of action stated in the original petition. Massey v. Blake, 21 S. W. 782, 3 C. A. 57.

In an action for damages against a railroad for the destruction of plaintiff's crops by an overflow of water, alleged to have been caused by the defective construction of defendant's road-bed, because of defective culverts to carry off the water, the overruling of a demurrer, on the ground that it stated a new cause of action, to an amended petition seeking recovery for damages arising from an overflow after the filing of the original petition, was correct. Railway Co. v. Borsky, 21 S. W. 1011, 2 C. A. 545.

Amendment changing Christian name of defendant does not set up a new cause of action. Middlebrook v. D. B. Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 169.

The addition of a new party or change of the capacity in which one of a number of plaintiffs sues is not a new cause of action. Laughlin v. Tips, 28 S. W. 551, 8 C. A. 649.

An amendment changing a form of action ex contractu to an action ex delicto does not set up a new cause of action, the same facts being relied on in both actions. Railway Co. v. Richards, 11 C. A. 95, 32 S. W. 96.

Where original complaint alleged negligent operation of defendant's hand car, an amendment alleging defective machinery, does not change the cause of action. Austin & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Flannagan (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1043.

Original complaint against carrier held to state a cause of action on common-law liability, so that amendment did not introduce new cause of action. Moses v. Union Pac. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 154.

An amendment of a pleading, when equivalent to bringing a new action, cannot be allowed by the county court. Lasater v. Fant (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 321.

An amendment to a petition held properly allowed as against the objection that it changed the cause of action. Herring v. Patten, 18 C. A. 147, 44 S. W. 50; Ellis v. Mabry, 25 C. A. 164, 60 S. W. 571; Schmidt v. Brittain (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 677; Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. A. S. Veale & Co., 39 C. A. 37, 87 S. W. 202; D. Sullivan & Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 690; S. W. Slayden & Co. v. Palmo, Id. 908; Mayes v. Magill, 48 C. A. 548, 107 S. W. 363; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Gross (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1173; Snow v. Rudolph, 131 S. W. 249; Miller v. West Texas Lumber Co., 143 S. W. 970.

Where trespass to realty was brought by one joint owner, and afterwards he amended by alleging joint ownership, the amendment was not a new cause of action, and defendant, having pleaded to the original declaration, could not then plead to the jurisdiction. Foster v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 91 T. 631, 45 S. W. 376.

An amendment to a complaint to establish a trust in land by asking a personal judgment as alternative relief held not to state a new cause of action. Mixon v. Miles (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 105.

An amendment to a complaint for the recovery of personal property does not state a new cause of action because the amended plea for the first time disclosed that plaintiff sued as trustee. Schneider-Davis Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 108.

Where petition claims $200 as exemplary damages for mental distress and unlawful seizure, an amended petition, claiming $100 for mental anguish and $100 for exemplary damages, introduces no new cause of action. Smith v. Connor (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 267.

An allegation of incorporation could be added by amendment to a petition without making it a new proceeding. Nelson v. Brenham Compress Oil & Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 514.

Plaintiff may amend, after citation, and claim more than the sum stated in the citation. Majors v. Goodrich (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 919.

An amendment to a petition held not such a departure in pleading as amounts to an election to pursue a different remedy from that sought in the original petition. Williams v. Emberson, 22 C. A. 522, 55 S. W. 595.

In an action for personal injuries caused by negligence, an amendment setting up a new ground of negligence does not change the cause of action. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Perry, 38 C. A. 81, 85 S. W. 62.

An amended petition held to declare on a different cause of action from that set forth in the original petition. Booth v. Houston Packing Co. (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 46; Palmer v. Spandenberg, 50 C. A. 565, 110 S. W. 760.

Actions set forth in a petition and an amended petition are identical, where the same evidence supports either of them, and each is subject to the same defense. Booth v. Houston Packing Co. (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 46.

That plaintiffs in an amended petition sue in their individual capacity does not change the cause of action asserted in the original petition setting forth a cause of action in their favor as a firm. Mayes v. Magill, 48 C. A. 548, 107 S. W. 363.

A trial amendment, which in effect only alleged a new reason or ground why plaintiff's right to recover first alleged in his original petition should prevail, was not a new cause of action. Adams-Burke-Simmons Co. v. Johnson, 51 C. A. 583, 113 S. W. 176.

An amended petition, in an action against a railway company for injury to a section foreman caused by his hand car running over a torpedo placed on the track, held not to set up a new cause of action affected by the statute of limitations. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Murphy, 52 C. A. 420, 114 S. W. 443.

Where both the original and amended petitions were based upon a breach of the same contract, that plaintiff construed the contract as one of agency in the original petition and as one of sale in the amended petition did not make the amended petition set up a new cause of action. Kirby Lumber Co. v. C. R. Cummings & Co., 57 C. A. 291, 122 S. W. 273.

An amendment of the petition in an action on a note which merely changed one initial in the name of the maker did not set up a new cause of action. Austin v. Jackson Trust & Sav. Bank (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 936.

An amended petition correcting dates in the original petition does not state a new cause of action. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Means & Fulton Iron Works (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 536.

After plaintiffs' motion for a continuance had been denied, defendants announced ready for trial, and plaintiffs who were suing for damages for cutting timber, then moved to be allowed to amend their petition so as to describe a materially different tract of land. The question of title was in issue. Under this and the following article, held that refusal of leave to amend was no abuse of discretion. Bayle v. Norris (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 767.

In an action against a railroad for damages through delay in transporting plaintiff's cattle, where the original answer contained general demurrers and special exceptions, etc., and special answers to the effect that those in charge of the cattle did not request that the train be stopped in order to water and feed the stock, though ample facilities were offered, etc., an amended answer setting up numerous special exceptions not included in the original answer and special pleas alleging failure to comply with requirements of the contract, etc., and a failure to request in writing, as provided in the contract, opportunity to water and feed the stock, brought new issues into the case, and its filing was properly refused. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1194.

An amendment to the petition in an action on an open account which added an item, the amount of which was included in the original petition, held not to state a new cause of action. Browning v. El Paso Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 386.

A default judgment on an amended petition not stating a new cause of action held not void. Fifer v. State, 64 Cr. R. 203, 141 S. W. 989.

A petition may be amended so as to set up a new cause of action. Connally & Shaw v. Saunders (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 975.

5. —— Affecting limitations.—See notes under Title 87, chapter 3.

6. —— Trial of right of property.—See note under Art. 7781.

7. Amendment or further pleading after sustaining of demurrer or exception.—When on a general exception plaintiff takes leave to amend, the quality of finality is taken from the judgment sustaining the exception, and if the plaintiff takes a nonsuit thereafter nothing is concluded between the parties. Scherff v. Railway Co., 81 T. 471, 17 S. W. 39, 26 Am. St. Rep. 828.

A trial amendment by leave of the court may be filed whether the exception to the pleading be sustained or overruled. Railway Co. v. Huffman, 83 T. 286, 18 S. W. 741.

An amendment of a pleading in conformity to the ruling of the court is a waiver of objections to such ruling. Ware v. Griner Heirs (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 898.

Where a demurrer to the answer had been sustained, held, defendant was entitled to file a trial amendment. Harris v. Higden (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 412.

When answer to which demurrer is sustained sets up statute which had been amended, but makes no reference to amendment, appellate court can consider only statute as set up in the answer. Germania Life Ins. Co. v. Peetz (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 687.

Where a general exception to an amended petition is sustained, and plaintiff declines to amend, the facts set out therein cannot be considered. Masterson v. Bokel, 20 C. A. 416, 51 S. W. 39.

Failure of plaintiff to amend his petition so as to conform to rulings of the trial court rendered on special demurrers to his petition will not prevent a reversal of a judgment erroneously sustaining the general demurrer. Ohio Cultivator Co. v. People's Nat. Bank, 22 C. A. 643, 55 S. W. 765.

Refusal to require amendment of complaint, after exceptions to portions thereof sustained, held not error. Andrews v. Lemeos (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 1004.

Where a demurrer to a petition is sustained, and the plaintiff fails to amend, the court must enter a final judgment for defendant. United Benev. Soc. v. Shepherd (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 577.

Where, on a demurrer to the petition being sustained, plaintiff files an amendment to which no exception is urged, any error in sustaining the demurrer is waived. Green v. Tate (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 486.

Where a demurrer to a petition to enforce a written contract was sustained for invalidity of the contract, refusal to permit an amended petition, alleging a verbal agreement, to be filed, held not error. Cammack v. Prather (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 354.

Where, after demurrer had been sustained to a petition, plaintiff does not ask leave to amend, held not error for court to dismiss the suit. Gaddis v. Western Union Tel. Co., 33 C. A. 391, 77 S. W. 37.

Where demurrer to an answer was sustained and defendant excepted, it did not waive defenses therein contained and omitted from the second answer. City of Paris v. Cabiness, 44 C. A. 587, 98 S. W. 925.

Where, under leave granted to amend, complainant filed two supplemental petitions which did not strengthen his case and to which demurrers were sustained, the court did not err in refusing to grant permission for further amendments. Kruegel v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 723.

Where a general demurrer to a petition is sustained, it is not incumbent on plaintiff to amend it so as to meet a ruling sustaining a special exception. Hammons v. Clwer (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 889.

Where special exceptions are sustained to a petition, plaintiff held not bound to amend if the remainder of the petition states a cause of action. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1009.

8. Leave of court.—Leave may be granted after filing of an amendment. Hopkins v. Seay (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 899.

9. Discretion of court in general.—A refusal to grant leave to amend at a proper time is ground for reversal. Boren v. Billington, 82 T. 137, 18 S. W. 101.

Appellate courts will not interfere with rulings relating to an amendment of pleadings where there is no palpable abuse of discretion. Altgeld v. Alamo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 582; McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 278; San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1194; Schauer v. Von Schauer, 138 S. W. 145; Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Crawford, 146 S. W. 329.

The burden of showing an abuse of discretion by the court held to be on one attacking a ruling refusing amendments to an answer. Lipscomb v. Perry, 100 T. 122, 96 S. W. 1069.

The discretion of the court in refusing the joinder of cause of action by cross answer held not reviewable, unless abused. Texas Brewing Co. v. Bisso, 50 C. A. 119, 109 S. W. 270.

10. Condition of cause and time for amendment.—Leave may be refused where there has been an unreasonable delay. Matossy v. Frosh, 9 T. 610; Green v. Dunman, 35 T. 175.

An amendment is allowed before an announcement on the facts. De Witt v. Jones, 17 T. 620.

Refusal, after case called for trial, to allow plaintiff to withdraw supplemental petition or refile original petition, held not error. Puckett v. Waco Abstract & Investment Co., 16 C. A. 329, 40 S. W. 812.

Exceptions to amended answer which was not filed until the day of the trial, pleading set-off, and seeking to make new parties and have them served with citation, without offering any excuse for not having done so sooner, are properly sustained. King County Land & Live Stock Co. v. Thomson, 21 C. A. 473, 51 S. W. 890.

In an action for the failure to deliver a telegram, an amended petition, filed six years after the original petition, held not to state a new cause of action, and not barred by limitations. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Norris, 25 C. A. 43, 60 S. W. 982.

Certain amendment, offered when case was called for trial, held properly refused in view of previous announcement of court as to amendments. Lewis v. Williams, 41 C. A. 464, 91 S. W. 247.

On stated facts, held that refusal of leave to amend after seasonable request therefor was a denial of a party's right. Houston Transfer & Carriage Co. v. Whitcomb (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 358.

11. —— Effect of announcement of ready for trial.—It is not error to permit an announcement to be withdrawn for the purpose of filing an amendment. Whitehead v. Foley, 28 T. 10; Obert v. Landa, 59 T. 475; Parker v. Spencer, 61 T. 155; Gamble v. Talbot, 2 App. C. C. § 729; First Nat. Bank v. Sharpe, 33 S. W. 677.

It is within the discretion of the judge to allow a party to withdraw his announcement of readiness for trial, for the purpose of filing an amendment; and his action in this respect will not be revised on appeal. Foster v. Smith, 66 T. 680, 2 S. W. 745; Railway Co. v. Goldberg, 68 T. 685, 5 S. W. 824; Heflin v. Burns, 70 T. 347, 8 S. W. 48; Harris v. Spence, 70 T. 616, 8 S. W. 313; Railway Co. v. Butler (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 756; Miller v. Morris, 55 T. 412, 40 Am. Rep. 814.

The provision of this article forbidding amendments after announcement of ready for trial is directory only; and hence the court, in the exercise of sound discretion, may permit such an amendment, where it seems necessary to attain the ends of justice. Railway Co. v. Goldberg, 68 T. 685, 5 S. W. 824; Radam v. Microbe Destroyer Co., 81 T. 122, 16 S. W. 990, 26 Am. St. Rep. 783; Boren v. Billington, 82 T. 137, 18 S. W. 101; Massie v. Meeks (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 44; Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 402; Cahn Belt & Co. v. Oldag, 132 S. W. 102; Pitzer v. Decker, 135 S. W. 161.

A mistake in pleading may be corrected by a withdrawal of announcement and an amendment of the petition. Railway Co. v. Liitke (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 248.

The court should permit the plaintiff after the commencement of trial to withdraw his announcement of ready for trial, and amend his pleadings if necessary to attain the ends of justice. Greely-Burnham G. Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 487. Citing Whitehead v. Foley, 28 T. 1; Obert v. Landa, 59 T. 475; Railway Co. v. Goldberg, 68 T. 685, 5 S. W. 824.

Pleadings cannot be amended after trial has commenced. A party may be permitted to withdraw announcement for that purpose. Krueger v. Klinger, 10 C. A. 576, 30 S. W. 1087; Contreras v. Haynes, 61 T. 103. See Whitehead v. Foley, 28 T. 10; Obert v. Landa, 59 T. 475.

Permission to withdraw an announcement of ready for trial, and tender new issues, because of surprise at rulings on evidence, is within the court's discretion, and not reviewable, unless abuse is shown. Blain v. Popper (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 129.

The allowance or refusal of an amendment after the parties have announced themselves ready for trial is within the discretion of the court, and its action will not be reversed unless such discretion is abused. Hurd v. Texas Brewing Co., 21 C. A. 296, 51 S. W. 883; Griffin v. McKinney, 25 C. A. 432, 62 S. W. 78; W. B. Walker & Sons v. Hernandez, 42 C. A. 543, 92 S. W. 1067; Huff v. Powell, 48 C. A. 582, 107 S. W. 364; McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 286; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sharp (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 614; Cahn Belt & Co. v. Oldag, 132 S. W. 102.

A party has the right to amend his pleading at any time before announcement of the parties of ready for trial, and in discretion of court amendment can be filed after announcement, and there is no law which authorizes a district court to fix a day of the term beyond which an amendment will not be allowed. Fidelity & Casualty Co. v. Carter, 23 C. A. 359, 57 S. W. 316.

An amendment cannot be filed as a matter of right after announcement of ready for trial but only in the discretion of the court. White v. Provident Nat. Bank, 27 C. A. 487, 65 S. W. 499.

The trial court held not to have abused its discretion in refusing to permit defendant to withdraw his announcement of ready and verify his plea. Hamilton v. Bell, 37 C. A. 456, 84 S. W. 289.

After the court had indicated what the decision would be on the facts, it properly refused to permit plaintiff to withdraw his announcement and file additional pleadings. Yeakley v. Gaston, 50 C. A. 405, 111 S. W. 768.

Permission to amend complaint subject to right of either party to withdraw announcement of ready for trial, without requiring plaintiff to withdraw his announcement of ready, held not error. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Cronin (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 649.

The provision of this article authorizing amendment of pleadings before the parties announce ready for trial, and not thereafter, prescribes a general rule; but a trial court may allow such amendment after that time as promotes justice, and it was not an abuse of discretion to permit plaintiff to file a supplemental petition during a trial pleading payment of items in defendant's counterclaim. Slaughter v. Hall (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 496.

The court did not abuse its discretion in permitting an amendment, after announcement of ready for trial, and after the taking of testimony had begun, to meet a variance in the initials of the payee of a note which was the basis of the action. Pitzer v. Decker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 161.

The refusal to permit defendant, in an action for delay in shipping cattle, to withdraw announcement and amend answer so as to set up in detail the cause of delay in shipment, held within the trial court's discretion. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 329.

Where a party announced ready for trial with the understanding that he could file a plea of limitations if necessary to meet a pleading, and the court accepted the conditional announcement and no objection thereto was made by counsel of the adverse party, the refusal to permit the party to file a plea of limitation to a pleading of the adverse party during the trial was erroneous. Jones v. Burkitt (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 275.

12. —— Trial amendments in general.—A plaintiff was permitted during the trial to file a disclaimer as to part of the land described in the petition on which he was seeking to foreclose a lien. Trotti v. Hobby, 42 T. 349.

A trial amendment should not include pleadings not demanded by the ruling of the court on exceptions. Contreras v. Haynes, 61 T. 103.

Pleadings may be amended by leave of the court after the opening argument has been made. Telegraph Co. v. Bowen, 84 T. 477, 19 S. W. 554; First Nat. Bank v. Sharpe, 12 C. A. 223, 33 S. W. 676. See Railway Co. v. Howe, 4 App. C. C. § 197, 15 S. W. 198.

When defendant should be permitted to amend plea in reconvention on the trial. Armstrong v. Emmet, 16 C. A. 242, 41 S. W. 87.

In action on a note, a plea of non est factum filed during the trial will be stricken out. Scoggins v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 216.

There is no error in refusing to allow defendants to amend their answer on the trial to state matters which were necessarily within their knowledge before trial. McGregor v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 398.

The allowance or refusal of a trial amendment rests in the discretion of the trial judge, which will not be disturbed on appeal, in the absence of abuse. Dublin v. Taylor, B. & H. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 667; Fields v. Rye, 24 C. A. 272, 59 S. W. 306; White v. Provident Nat. Bank, 27 C. A. 487, 65 S. W. 498; Goodney v. International & G. N. R. Co., 51 C. A. 596, 113 S. W. 171; Hastings v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1143; Gilliland v. Ellison, 137 S. W. 168; San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Miller, Id. 1194.

Amendment of a pleading during trial is within the court's discretion. Dublin v. Taylor, B. & H. Ry. Co., 92 T. 535, 50 S. W. 120; Hastings v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1143.

Trial court may permit plaintiff to file an amendment not necessary to his right to recover, though he had introduced all his testimony. King County Land & Live Stock Co. v. Thomson, 21 C. A. 473, 51 S. W. 890.

The court's refusal of a motion to file a trial amendment, or to withdraw announcement of ready for trial, held error, where no injury could have resulted to defendant therefrom. Ford v. Liner, 24 C. A. 353, 59 S. W. 943.

The allowance of a trial amendment to the petition after the testimony is closed held not ground for reversal. Lewis v. Hoeldtke (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 309.

In an action for fraud as to the quantity of land sold, the allowance of a trial amendment alleging a mutual mistake after the evidence was closed held not an abuse of discretion. Id.

Granting of leave to have plea sworn to during trial held within discretion of the court. Dyer v. Winston, 33 C. A. 412, 77 S. W. 227.

The allowance of amendments to pleadings after the introduction of evidence will not be disturbed, in the absence of abuse of discretion. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hengst, 36 C. A. 217, 81 S. W. 832; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tolbert (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 508.

Under the express provisions of rule 27 for district and county courts (67 S. W. xxii), the court may in its discretion permit the pleadings to be amended at trial. Altgelt v. Oliver Bros. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 28.

A pleading, indorsed a trial amendment, and setting up the same matters that had been pleaded in a supplementary petition, to which a demurrer had been sustained, held not a trial amendment. Ray v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 99, 88 S. W. 466.

In an action on a contract to furnish defendants with water for irrigation, the allowance of a trial amendment alleging a waiver of a certain provision in the contract held not an abuse of the trial court's discretion. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 400.

Refusal of permission to file a trial amendment after a part of two days had been consumed in attempting to prove a certain fact held not error. Pierce v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 979.

Allowance of trial amendment to pleadings held not abuse of discretion. City of San Antonio v. Wildenstein, 49 C. A. 514, 109 S. W. 231; Gilliland v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 168.

A defective plea in abatement may be amended after evidence has been offered in support of the original plea and excluded on the ground that the plea was insufficient to admit the same. Gray v. Fuller, 54 C. A. 345, 117 S. W. 919.

Whether a party to a suit should be permitted to amend his pleadings after the argument in the case has begun is a matter largely within the discretion of the trial court. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Cronin (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 649.

Under this article, authorizing amendment of pleadings before the parties announce ready for trial, and not thereafter, a general demurrer having been overruled, it was not error in an action for a commission to refuse to permit defendant to file a trial amendment containing a special demurrer on the theory that plaintiff's pleadings restricted recovery to a certain amount. Slaughter v. Hall (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 496.

A trial amendment to a petition in an action to set aside an execution sale and cancel a constable's deed held properly allowed. Guy v. Edmundson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 615.

It was not an abuse of discretion to permit one suing on a lease to make a trial amendment of the petition to correct a clerical error in stating the date of the lease. Goldman v. Broyles (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 283.

It is within the discretion of the court to permit a trial amendment of the petition, whether exceptions to the original petition had been sustained or not. American Warehouse Co. v. Ray (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 763.

13. —— Amendment to conform to proof.—Trial amendments to conform to the evidence, held not ground for reversal. Merchants' Ins. Co. v. Reichman (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 831.

Variance between pleading and proof held cured by amendment. Fleming v. Pringle, 21 C. A. 225, 51 S. W. 553.

Refusal of the court to allow an amendment to the petition, so as to make it conform to the proof received without objection held erroneous. Ferrell v. City of Haskell (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 784.

It was not an abuse of discretion to permit an amendment, after the taking of testimony had begun, to meet a variance as to the initials of the payee of a note in controversy. Pitzer v. Decker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 161.

Trial amendment of complaint so as to conform to plaintiff's name as proven held properly allowed. Wells Fargo & Co. Express v. Bilkiss (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 798.

In an action on a contract for rent, it was not proper to allow a trial amendment to the petition, alleging that the name of another was attached to the contract sued on, to meet an objection by defendant that the agreement in evidence was so signed; while the petition only alleged a contract signed by defendant. Demetri v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 293.

14. Conditions on granting leave.—The amendment may be allowed on terms as a continuance. Rule 16, 84 T. 710; Turner v. Lambeth, 2 T. 371; Cowan v. Williams, 49 T. 380; Johns v. Northcutt, 49 T. 444; Railroad Co. v. Henning, 52 T. 466, 474; Blum v. Mays, 1 App. C. C. § 476. See Trevino v. Cantu, 61 T. 88. Or costs. Baker v. Tom, 4 T. 5; Woods v. Durrett, 28 T. 429.

A ruling in regard to an amendment of an answer held not to be error under the circumstances. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Biles & Ruby, 56 C. A. 193, 120 S. W. 952.

There is no error in permitting a plaintiff to amend his pleading without withdrawing his announcement of ready, where the permission to amend was given subject to the right of either party to withdraw his announcement of ready for trial. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Cronin (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 649.

The right to amend a petition so as to set up a new cause of action carries with it the payment of all costs up to the time of the amendment. Connally & Shaw v. Saunders (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 975.

An amended application for appointment as guardian filed in the district court on appeal from the county court held not to set up a new cause of action, so that the rule that, while the cause may be amended on appeal from the county court, payment of costs thereon are within the discretion of the lower court, had no application. Burns v. Parker (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 673.

15. Notice or citation.—It must be served unless defendant has appeared in person or by attorney. Morrison v. Walker, 22 T. 18; De Walt v. Snow, 25 T. 320; Furlow v. Miller, 30 T. 28; Hewett v. Thomas, 37 T. 520; King v. Goodson, 42 T. 152; Pendleton v. Colville, 49 T. 525; McMillan v. Jones, 66 T. 100, 18 S. W. 112; Mann v. Mathews, 82 T. 98, 17 S. W. 927.

And so where one defendant pleads over against a codefendant who has not answered. Crain v. Wright, 60 T. 515; Simon v. Day, 84 T. 520, 19 S. W. 691; Railway Co. v. Hathaway, 75 T. 557, 12 S. W. 999.

An amendment of pleadings must be served upon the defendant who has filed no pleadings. Mann v. Mathews, 82 T. 98, 17 S. W. 927. Service is not necessary when the amendment gives a better description of the land on which a lien is sought to be foreclosed. McConnell v. Foscue (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 964; King v. Goodson, 42 T. 81; Spencer v. McCarty, 46 T. 213.

Amendment which increases the amount of the demand sued on by not allowing credits admitted in the original petition entitles the defendant to notice, and judgment by default for the entire amount of the amended demand, which was not served, cannot stand. Hittson v. Gentry, 22 S. W. 70, 2 C. A. 670.

Amendments of pleadings setting up new parties and new causes of action must be served upon adverse parties who have not entered an appearance. Roller v. Reid, 87 T. 69, 26 S. W. 1060; Bryan v. Lund, 25 T. 98.

Where defendant was in court, held, that it was not error to permit plaintiff to amend by setting up a new cause of action, without giving notice by citation. Brown v. Viscaya (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 309.

Appearance on trial supplies want of notice of filing amended pleadings. Turner v. City of Houston, 21 C. A. 214, 51 S. W. 642.

This article confers the right to file amended pleadings in vacation and the provision with respect to notice, if not applicable only to pleadings in intervention does not mean that an amendment filed in vacation without notice is a nullity. W. U. Tel. Co. v. Campbell, 41 C. A. 204, 91 S. W. 314.

It is the duty of a defendant, who has answered the petition, to take notice of a subsequent amendment thereof in open court, on leave, and govern himself accordingly, even if the amendment sets up a new cause of action. Tyson v. First State Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1055.

Under this article a party is not entitled to notice of the filing in vacation of an amendment not setting up a new cause of action or injecting new issues, but which merely omits some of the plaintiffs and defendants. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. Porter (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 267.

16. Amendment regarded as made.—A judgment of dismissal on a fundamental defect in cause of action cannot be affirmed because of defect in pleadings curable by amendment. Shotwell v. McCardell, 19 C. A. 174, 47 S. W. 39.

17. Mode of making amendment.—The manner of amending pleadings is prescribed by rules 12, 16 and 27. 84 T. 710, 713, 20 S. W. xii, xiii.

18. Form and sufficiency of amended pleading.—While the amended petition should state the date or otherwise identify the original petition, failure to do so does not make it subject to a general demurrer; a special exception being necessary. Demetri v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 293.

19. Operation and effect of amendment.—Where a cross bill adopts all the allegations of the bill, and, after demurrer is sustained to both, the bill is amended, it is proper to treat the cross bill as amended also. Gillespie v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 621.

The county court has power to permit the description of land in an application for condemnation proceedings to be amended without appointing a new commission. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 18 C. A. 502, 45 S. W. 179.

Defect in petition for purchase price of goods, as to venue, held cured by amendment. Flynt v. Eagle Pass Coal & Coke Co. (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 831.

Where a plaintiff in divorce filed an amended petition pleading a new cause of action, her residence, necessary to confer jurisdiction, should be determined as of the time the amendment was filed. Michael v. Michael, 34 C. A. 630, 79 S. W. 74.

Allegation in amended petition held to cure any variance between contract and petition. Hughes v. Adams, 55 C. A. 197, 119 S. W. 134.

Under district court rule 14 (67 S. W. xxi), the filing of an amended petition is considered as the filing of the suit, and therefore the averment in such petition of residence for six months next preceding the filing of "this petition" was sufficient. Dunlop v. Dunlop (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 715.

Where plaintiff withdrew his claim for medical expenses resulting from a personal injury, held, that that did not have the effect of reducing the gross amount claimed as damages. Southwestern States Portland Cement Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 378.

20. —— Superseding prior pleading.—A suit for partnership accounting was held to be abandoned by the filing of amended petitions. Santleben v. Froboese, 17 C. A. 626, 43 S. W. 571.

A defendant cannot introduce in evidence, in support of a general denial of negligence alleged in the amended complaint, the original complaint, which did not contain that allegation. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Belt (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 374.

An amended pleading takes the place of the original, and allegations of the latter, not carried into the former, are abandoned. Wilson v. Vick (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 45.

An amendment, filed in an action for injuries to a wife, suggesting her death and alleging a cause of action therefor, held an abandonment of the original cause of action for injuries. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Boykin, 32 C. A. 72, 74 S. W. 93.

Under district and county court rules 6–8, 10, and 15 (20 S. W. xii), where defendant, after filing a "supplemental answer" denying a partnership relation alleged, filed an "amended answer," which did not deny the allegation of partnership, the question of partnership was not in issue. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Halsell, 98 T. 244, 83 S. W. 15.

An amended original petition held to stand in lieu of and supersede the original petition. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Smith, 49 C. A. 637, 109 S. W. 1111.

Where, on a plea of limitations in an action on notes, plaintiff by an amended petition sued on the original promise as well as the renewals, and defendants by an amended answer, abandoned such plea, plaintiff is entitled to recover on the original notes and attorney's fees as provided therein. Honaker v. Jones (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 649.

The amended petition on which the trial is had, and not the original petition, is determinative of the admissibility of evidence. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Crews (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1049.

Under district court rule 27 (102 Tex. xli, 67 S. W. xxii) a party's trial amendment held not to operate as an abandonment of his former pleadings, so as to release sureties upon the sequestration bond upon which he is suing. Bushong v. Alderson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 200.

21. —— Costs.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 18.

22. Amendment as affecting attachment.—See notes under Art. 242.

23. Repleading by way of amendment.—A rule requiring a trial amendment of a petition to be repleaded by way of amendment held not violated, where the court permits such amendment to be refiled during the term in which the case is tried. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wells, 24 C. A. 304, 58 S. W. 842.

24. Waiver or abandonment of amended pleading.—Where an amended petition delivered to clerk was not filed, plaintiff may abandon it, and rely on his original and supplemental petitions. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. v. Bollman, 22 C. A. 106, 53 S. W. 829.

Plaintiffs may abandon an amended petition and revive their original petition without rewriting it. Gardiner v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 558.

25. Amendment on appeal.—See notes under Arts. 2328, 3638.

26. Bringing in new parties.—See Art. 1848.

27. Supplemental petition.—The office of a supplemental petition is to set forth facts in avoidance of matters of defense pleaded in the answer. A defective statement of a cause of action in an original petition can only be cured by an amendment. Crescent Ins. Co. v. Camp, 64 T. 521; Railway Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 322.

A supplemental petition in an action to foreclose a vendor's lien on land previously sold by the vendee to defendant, who was in possession which alleged that defendant had not acquired title to the land on account of its being a homestead, and that a deed thereof was in fact a mortgage and void, held demurrable. Mallard v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 204.

Filing a supplemental petition against defendant as a voluntary association, after suing it as a corporation, is not impleading a different defendant. Grand Lodge A. O. U. W. v. Bollman, 22 C. A. 106, 53 S. W. 829.

Supplemental petition held not an amendment, but to present a new and distinct cause of action. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Levy, 23 C. A. 686, 57 S. W. 866.

In an action against an alleged firm on notes signed by one of the alleged partners, a supplemental petition alleging liability on the theory of principal and agent does not set up a new cause of action. Moore v. Williams, 26 C. A. 142, 62 S. W. 977.

Under rule 5 of district and county courts (20 S. W. xi), a supplemental petition held to set up sufficient facts to entitle plaintiff to prosecute the suit. Standifer v. Bond Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 144.

Special exceptions to allegations in supplemental petition extraneous to issues raised by petition and answer held properly sustained. Simpson v. Thompson, 43 C. A. 273, 95 S. W. 94.

Matters in response to defendant's plea in reconvention held properly incorporated in plaintiff's supplemental petition. Burleson v. Tinnin (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 350.

The allegations of a supplemental petition that a contract set up by defendant did not contain their mutual agreement and plaintiff was induced to sign it by misrepresentations made to deceive him held broad enough to avoid the contract on equitable grounds. Cotulla v. Barlow (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 294.

In a suit to quiet title in which defendant is entitled to relief, a supplemental petition held to sufficiently plead a countervailing equity. McCullough v. Rucker, 53 C. A. 89, 115 S. W. 323.

A supplemental petition filed in reply to the answer is a part of the pleadings, though a subsequent amendment to the original petition is presented. Hicks v. Stewart & Templeton, 53 C. A. 401, 118 S. W. 206.

A supplemental petition held insufficient to put in issue the execution of written instruments offered in support of a plea of estoppel. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gober (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 383.

A supplemental petition held not to set up a new cause of action. Harlan v. Harlan (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 950.

In an action on a note not instituted within four years after maturity, where defendant pleaded limitations, plaintiff held entitled to allege in a supplemental petition facts constituting a new promise to pay by defendant made less than four years before the bringing of the action. Cotulla v. Urbahn (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 13.

Plaintiff's supplemental petition alleging a new promise by defendant made less than four years before the action was a complete answer to defendant's defense of limitation. Id.

Where a note sued on had been due more than four years before suit was brought, and therefore appeared from the original petition to be barred, and defendant invoked limitation by exception and plea, the subsequent pleading by plaintiff of a new promise to pay, made less than four years before the suit, made the true cause of action on the new promise, and not on the original note; and the purpose of such pleading being to cure a defect in the petition, so as to make it show a good cause of action, it should be by amendment to the petition, and not by supplemental petition. The filing of a supplemental petition in such case, instead of an amended petition, was a mere irregularity, which did not prevent declaration upon the new promise from stopping limitation from the time of filing the supplemental petition. Cotulla v. Urbahn (Sup.) 126 S. W. 1108. See, also, Cotulla v. Urbahn (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 13; Cotulla v. Urbahn (Sup.) 135 S. W. 1159, 34 L. R. A. (N. S.) 345.

Permitting plaintiff to set up a supplemental petition in a suit to partially cancel a conveyance to plaintiff's stepfather, on the ground of his fraud, held not error. Oar v. Davis (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 710.

Supplemental petitions should not be used for supplying averments of fact which should have been made in the original petition. Burks v. Burks (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 337.

A supplementary petition, filed to meet special exceptions, alleging that the facts inquired about and not disclosed were peculiarly within the knowledge of defendant, was sufficient to meet the exceptions. Cluett, Peabody & Co. v. Sears (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1023.

A supplemental petition in an action on a note for drilling a well, denying that plaintiff had guaranteed that the water should be of a certain quality, was responsive to the answer which alleged that the note was given on plaintiff's representation that water struck was suitable for rice irrigation. Miller v. Layne & Bowler Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 341.

The purpose of an amendment to a petition is to add or withdraw something to or from what has been properly pleaded; and, where plaintiff intended to correct the date of an alleged conversion, it should have been done by amendment and not by supplemental petition. May v. Anthony (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 602.

In an action for debt evidenced by notes and an open account, defendant having pleaded a discharge in bankruptcy, plaintiff's supplemental petition alleging, to avoid a discharge, that the debt was fraudulently contracted, and praying for the same relief, did not charge a new cause of action. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Blume (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1157.

28. Supplemental answer.—A supplemental answer may contain exceptions, general denial and allegations of new facts in reply to the preceding pleading by plaintiff. Rule 8, 47 T. 617, 84 T. 709.

Allowing one of defendants sued as partner to file a supplemental answer, showing that he was no longer a member of the firm, held not reversible error, no issue being changed thereby. Tomson v. Heidenheimer, 16 C. A. 114, 40 S. W. 425.

The office of a supplemental answer is, not to supply matter which should have formed a part of the original answer, but is restricted to replies to what may be embraced in the supplemental petition, and it cannot be made to serve the purpose of aiding a defective statement in the original answer, or to add any new matter only available against the cause of action stated in the original petition. Blewitt v. Greene, 57 C. A. 588, 122 S. W. 914.

Supplementary answers are to meet matters appearing for the first time in a supplemental pleading of the opposite party, and facts pleaded in defense for the first time should not be incorporated in a supplemental answer. Philadelphia Underwriters' Agency of Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Brown (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 899.

29. Repleader.—A repleader should be ordered when pleadings have multiplied so as to make it difficult to understand the issues. Rule 29, 47 T. 622, 84 T. 713; Dutton v. Norton, 1 App. C. C. § 360. Or when they are obviously defective. Rule 32, 47 T. 623.

30. Substituting lost pleadings.—Permitting plaintiff to substitute for lost petition copy omitting items on which defendant's plea in reconvention was based held error. John Hamilton & Co. v. Western Union Tel. Co., 35 C. A. 602, 81 S. W. 58.

31. Objections and waiver.—See notes at end of chapter.

Art. 1825. [1189] [1193] Time of filing amendment.—Such leave shall be given, and such amendment filed, for a reasonable time before the case is called for trial, so as not to operate as a surprise to the opposite party. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 34. P. D. 54.]

Time of allowance and filing.—See notes under Art. 1824.

Surprise to adverse party.—It is within the discretion of the court to permit a petition to be amended, where it will not occasion surprise to the other party. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Mullins, 44 C. A. 566, 99 S. W. 433.

Defendant may object to filing second amended petition on the eve of the trial on the ground that it operates as a surprise to him. Jolley v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 1152.

Art. 1826. [1190] [1194] Pleadings amended after arrest of judgment, etc.—Whenever a judgment has been arrested or a new trial granted, because of the insufficiency of the pleadings of the party in whose favor the judgment was rendered, the court may allow such pleadings to be amended as if no such trial had been had or judgment rendered. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 114. P. D. 1475.]

Amendment after judgment.—Allowing the filing by defendants of a trial amendment after judgment is not error where the ruling allowing it to be filed was made before trial. Foster v. Eoff, 19 C. A. 405, 47 S. W. 399.

Amendment of pleading in action against firm on note after rendition of judgment held not to justify judgment against member of the firm. King v. Monitor Drill Co., 42 C. A. 288, 92 S. W. 1046.

Where a defendant appears in person the court can set aside a judgment and permit the petition to be amended and try the case on the amended petition without the necessity of new service. Tammen v. Schaeffer, 45 C. A. 446, 101 S. W. 470.

A motion to set aside a judgment dismissing a petition, and to be allowed to file an amended petition, is addressed to the discretion of the trial court. Sutherland v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 969.

Where plaintiff in an action against the maker of notes secured by a chattel mortgage, and against the payee who had indorsed the notes to him, did not ask to file an amendment, but permitted the cause to be dismissed as to the payee and proceeded to judgment against the other defendants, and did not, until after 20 days, ask that the order be set aside and for leave to amend, there was delay justifying a refusal to permit the filing of an amended petition. Lissner v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 610.

Where the petition is defective in not showing that the district court to which it was addressed had jurisdiction of the action, an amendment to show that fact should, even after a judgment for plaintiff has been reversed on appeal, be allowed to prevent multiplicity of suits. Smith v. Eureka Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 747.

28. —— Objections to rulings on demurrer or exception.
29. —— Objections to amendments and supplemental pleadings and rulings relating thereto.

30. —— Want or insufficiency of indorsement or verification.
31. —— Objections to filing or service.
32. —— Objection to introduction of evidence under pleading.
33. —— Objections to evidence on ground of variance.
34. Aider by verdict or judgment.
35. Motion to strike.
36. Compelling election.

1. Demurrer or exception.—A demurrer to a general denial held improperly sustained. Frantz v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 740.

Office of a "demurrer" stated. Jefferson v. Scott (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 705.

Objections to pleadings are properly taken by written exceptions presented before the trial on facts. Holland v. Closs (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 671.

2. —— Grounds for demurrer or exception in general.—General averment of plaintiff's rights under a live stock contract on which he was traveling when injured held sufficient as against general demurrer. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Downing, 16 C. A. 643, 41 S. W. 190.

An answer is not demurrable because the defense set up is improbable and incredible. Hansen v. Yturria (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 797.

Demurrer to petition in action for rejected claim not brought in 90 days sustained. Marx v. Freeman, 21 C. A. 429, 52 S. W. 647.

Exception to pleading raising only issue of fact should not be sustained. Burges v. New York Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 602.

Question whether a corporation organized in one state with intent to do business in another state, and not in the state of its organization, is a corporation, held not raised by exception to petition. Lasater v. Purcell Mill & Elevator Co., 22 C. A. 33, 54 S. W. 425.

The proper practice is to raise misjoinder of causes by exception, and not to permit the party to develop his case before requiring him to elect. Hays v. Perkins, 22 C. A. 198, 54 S. W. 1071.

In an action against a tax collector to recover taxes paid on an alleged illegal valuation, it was not error for the court to sustain a demurrer to the complaint, where the proceedings were regular on their face and the tax rolls were in due form and had issued from the proper authority. Texas Land & Cattle Co. v. Hemphill County (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 333.

Where plaintiff's petition in an action on appeal bond shows facts which defeat his action, a demurrer thereto should be sustained. Fenton v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 27 C. A. 231, 65 S. W. 199.

Where a petition to compel the approval of vouchers issued to a school teacher alleged that the vouchers which were attached were sworn to according to law, but the notarial seal was not affixed, the petition was good against a general demurrer. Singleton v. Austin, 27 C. A. 88, 65 S. W. 686.

Where a petition to avoid an instrument as executed without consideration shows plaintiff received stock in a corporation organized pursuant thereto, a demurrer to it is properly sustained. Parker v. Allen, 33 C. A. 206, 76 S. W. 74.

Where a petition stated a cause of action without disclosing that plaintiff's right to sue was dependent upon its compliance with the statute relating to the right of a foreign corporation to maintain suits, the question as to whether plaintiff had obtained a permit to do business in this state so as to entitle it to sue could only be raised by plea by defendant, and not by demurrer. Huff v. Kinloch Paint Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 467.

Exception to the petition, in an action by a next friend, held not to raise the objection that it was not alleged that the minor had no legal guardian. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. v. Bryant (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 290.

The objection that a petition to set aside a judgment dismissing a former action was not acted on by the court for eight years could not be raised by demurrer. Bailey v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 531.

3. —— Matters not appearing on face of pleading.—Where defendant alleges that notes sued on were given for goods purchased with a warranty, and pleads failure of consideration, and plaintiff demurs, stating that the warranty is attached to plaintiff's plea, and shows conditions not alleged in the plea, but no such warranty is attached, the demurrer is properly overruled. Cumberland Nursery Co. v. Sudberry (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 27.

A petition claiming compensation for services, right to which is negatived by nothing on the face thereof, is not demurrable because of provisions in the contract not set out. Citizens' Electric Light & Power Co. v. Gonzales Water Power Co. (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 577.

A complaint cannot be sustained as against a general demurrer on facts not alleged in the complaint. Herf & Frerichs Chemical Co. v. Brewster, 54 C. A. 217, 117 S. W. 880.

The court, in ruling on demurrers raising the defense of limitations to a cause of action stated in a written amended complaint, cannot consider anything outside of such pleading. Newsom & Johnston v. Sharman (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 912.

The court in ruling on demurrers can look alone to the allegations of the pleadings. Coons v. Green, 55 C. A. 612, 120 S. W. 1108.

Whether a demurrer to the petition in an action for breach of contract shall be sustained because the contract is contrary to public policy, held to depend on whether the petition discloses the vice in the contract. Id.

In considering a demurrer to a petition, only matters appearing on the face of the petition will be considered. Porter v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co., 56 C. A. 479, 121 S. W. 897.

A petition must be tested on demurrer solely by its allegations, which for the purposes of the demurrer must be taken as true. Kruegel v. Porter (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 801.

The sufficiency of a pleading as against an exception must be judged by its allegations. Uvalde Electric Light Co. v. Parsons (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 163.

4. —— Res judicata.—Defense of res judicata may be raised by demurrer, where apparent on the face of the petition. Fricke v. Wood, 31 C. A. 167, 71 S. W. 784; Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 699.

5. —— Statute of frauds and of limitations.—The objection that an agreement for the sale of land was verbal may be raised by demurrer if the fact appears from the petition. Garner v. Stubblefield, 5 T. 552. And where the defendant pleads general issue, the burden is upon the plaintiff of proving a valid agreement capable of being enforced. Patton v. Rucker, 29 T. 411; Aiken v. Hale & McDonald, 1 U. C. 318.

Limitation. May be set up by special exception if apparent on the face of the pleadings. Hopkins v. Wright, 17 T. 30; Smith v. Fly, 24 T. 345, 76 Am. Dec. 109; Lowe v. Dowbarn, 26 T. 507; Rivers v. Washington, 34 T. 267; I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Donalson, 2 App. C. C. § 240. Otherwise by plea. Horton v. Crawford, 10 T. 382; Cunningham v. Frandtzen, 26 T. 34; Dickinson v. Lott, 29 T. 172. Which must be brought to the attention of the court. Jenn v. Spencer, 32 T. 657.

The objection that suit on a claim against an estate is not brought within 90 days after its rejection can be raised by demurrer. Cotton v. Jones, 37 T. 34; Marx v. Freeman, 21 C. A. 429, 52 S. W. 647.

Where the petition showed on its face that it was barred by limitations, that defense was properly interposed by demurrer. Dwight v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 805.

A petition in an action for services held not demurrable on the ground that a certain part of the sum sued for was barred by limitations. Stapper v. Wolter (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 850.

Where a petition otherwise sufficient shows on its face that the statute of frauds is a good defense, the petition is subject to a general demurrer. Stovall v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 217, 218.

A defendant, setting up the statute by way of demurrer, must show that, on the face of his adversary's pleadings, the action is barred. Sievert v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 721.

A petition for breach of warranty of title held not to show that the action was barred. Id.

In a suit on a note, if it appears upon the face of the petition that more than four years has elapsed since its maturity, the petition is subject to exception. Cotulla v. Urbahn (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 13.

Where it did not appear by the allegations of the petition that the alleged cause of action was barred by the statute of limitations, it was error to sustain an exception to the petition on that ground. Kruegel v. Porter (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 801.

In a suit to redeem from foreclosure of a deed of trust, or to recover damages, a demurrer to the petition was properly sustained, where it appeared that plaintiff's right was barred by limitations. McClellan v. Pye (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 99.

On exceptions to a pleading, held, that it will not be presumed that a contract pleaded was parol and not in writing. Polk v. Seale (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 329.

When it is sought to set up limitations by special exception, it must appear from the face of the petition that the action is barred. Home Inv. Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 510; Cotton v. Garza (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 412.

Certain items in an amended statement were specially excepted to as barred by limitations, but the original statement filed in justice court, was not in the record. It did not appear that such items were not included in the original statement which would have prevented their being barred. Held, that the exceptions were properly overruled. Cotton v. Garza (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 412.

The petition, not showing on its face that the promise of defendant to pay the debt of his mother, on which it is based, was a verbal one, is not subject to general demurrer. Hendrix v. Brazzell (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 280.

6. —— Want of jurisdiction.—The want of jurisdiction of the person, when apparent from the petition, can be reached by special exception. Johnston v. Price, 2 App. C. C. § 756. But not by general exception. L. Ins. Co. v. Ray, 50 T. 511; McKie v. Simpkins, 1 App. C. C. § 279.

The statute fixing the venue of the action of trespass to try title confers a mere personal privilege which is waived by a failure to claim the privilege. It may be claimed by an exception or by plea. Willis v. White (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 818.

A question of venue is properly raised by exception where it is claimed that the fact that the suit is brought in the wrong county appears on the face of the petition. Kansas City, P. & G. Ry. Co. v. Bermea Land & Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 324.

Whether the allegations of a petition in an action for wrongful entry were sufficiently specific held not determinative of the question of jurisdiction raised by an exception that the petition shows on its face that the court had no jurisdiction of the cause of action alleged. Foster v. Roseberry, 98 T. 138, 81 S. W. 521.

Where plaintiff brought suit in a county other than that of defendant's residence, and the petition alleged defendant's correct residence and did not show any legal right to sue outside thereof, defendant could have taken advantage of the defect by exception. Lumpkin v. Blewitt (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1072.

The privilege to be sued in the county of defendant's domicile cannot be raised by general demurrer, though the fact that the court has no jurisdiction over defendant's person appears on the face of the petition, but the question must be raised by a plea of privilege verified by affidavit. Parker v. Clay Robinson & Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 588.

7. —— Demurrer to part of pleading or to pleading good in part.—Where plaintiff declared on a written contract, not within the statute of frauds, and in a second count on a verbal contract, substantially the same as the first, held that it was proper to sustain the demurrer to the latter, though because of a mistake the writing did not include the entire agreement. Jackson v. Martin (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 837.

A general demurrer setting up the plea of limitations to an action should be sustained, if it appears from the facts alleged that the action is barred, though special exceptions to particular allegations may not be well taken. Bluntzer v. Hirsch, 32 C. A. 585, 75 S. W. 326.

A general demurrer to a petition by heirs against an administrator held properly overruled, where the heirs were entitled to recover under any of the allegations therein. Thomas v. Hawpe, 35 C. A. 311, 80 S. W. 129.

A general demurrer to a petition goes to it as a whole, and is properly overruled if any part presents a cause of action. Kampmann v. Rothwell (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 120.

A defendant cannot take exceptions to a petition on grounds which render it demurrable by his codefendants on failure of his codefendants to demur. Springer v. Collins (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 758.

A petition alleging two independent issues held not demurrable as a whole because of insufficiency of one of them. Texas & G. Ry. Co. v. Pate (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 994.

A petition, in an action against two carriers for injuries to a passenger, brought in the county in which the initial carrier operated its road, etc., which states a cause of action against the initial carrier held not subject to demurrer by it. Blanks v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 377.

An assignment of error to the sustaining of plaintiff's exception to part of defendant's answer overruled. Feigelson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 17.

In an action for delay in shipping cotton, where plaintiffs claimed damages with interest on its value during the delay for having to buy other cotton at advanced prices to fill their contracts, and special damages allowed under the statute, each item of damages sued for constituted a cause of action in itself, and, if any one of them is sufficiently declared upon, a general demurrer to the petition will be overruled. Dorrance & Co. v. International & G. N. R. Co., 126 S. W. 694, 53 C. A. 460.

A general demurrer to an answer, pleading a general denial and the defenses of counterclaim and settlement, is unavailing. Reed v. Walker (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 607.

An answer setting up a defense good in part is not subject to general demurrer. Astin v. Mosteller (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 701.

A general demurrer cannot be sustained to an answer containing a general denial. Id.

Exception to allegations of petition held improperly sustained in favor of all parties even if inapplicable as to some of the defendants. Foster v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 233.

A general demurrer to an answer, however faulty the answer, should not be sustained when to do so would have the effect to strike out a general denial. Cooper v. Robischung Bros. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1050.

8. —— General demurrer or exception.—A general demurrer is an exception to a pleading, that no cause of action or matter of defense is shown thereby. Lambeth v. Turner, 1 T. 364; Hudson v. Wheeler, 34 T. 356; Robinson v. Davenport, 40 T. 333; George v. Vaughn, 55 T. 129; Carson v. Cock, 50 T. 325; Lyle v. Harris, 1 App. C. C. § 71; Alford v. Kilgore, 1 App. C. C. § 698; T. & P. R. Co. v. Hamm, 2 App. C. C. § 491; Gallagher v. Heidenheimer, 2 App. C. C. § 574; Kempner v. Wallis, 2 App. C. C. § 584.

On general demurrer every reasonable intendment will be in favor of the sufficiency of the pleading. Rule 17, Prewitt v. Farris, 5 T. 371; 47 T. 619; 84 T. 711; Edgar v. Galveston City Co., 46 T. 421; Burks v. Watson, 48 T. 107; Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Montier, 61 T. 122; Martin v. Brown, 62 T. 467; Osborne v. Barnett, 1 App. C. C. § 128; Johnson v. Dowling, 1 App. C. C. § 1094; Carr v. King, 2 App. C. C. § 557. On special demurrer, where it is fairly susceptible of two meanings, that will be taken which is most favorable to the adverse party. Swisher v. Hancock, 31 T. 262; Camp v. Gainer, 8 T. 372; Keabadour v. Weir, 20 T. 254; Murray v. G., C. & S. F. R. R. Co., 63 T. 407, 51 Am. Rep. 650; Velman v. Railway Co. (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 212.

An exception to a petition "that it does not clearly set forth any cause of action" is not equivalent to an exception "because the cause of action is not stated at all." The former goes to the form only of the petition. A defective statement of a cause of action is not reached by a general exception. Telegraph Co. v. Grimes, 82 T. 89, 17 S. W. 831.

An answer alleging breach of agreement to become a partner "during the coming season of 1892" held good on general demurrer, when not specially excepted to for uncertainty in time. Henry v. McCardell, 15 C. A. 497, 40 S. W. 172.

Verification of several pleas held sufficient in the absence of a special exception. Bowles v. Boydstun (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 368.

On general demurrer, a pleading should be liberally construed, and all reasonable inferences from the facts alleged in the pleading as a whole should be made in aid thereof. Brackenridge v. Claridge (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1005; Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co. v. Woodward, 18 C. A. 496, 45 S. W. 185; Colorado Canal Co. v. Sims (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 531; El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Kelly, 83 S. W. 855; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rollins, 89 S. W. 1099; Landrum v. Stewart, 111 S. W. 769; Ramon v. Saenz, 122 S. W. 928; Sievert v. Underwood, 124 S. W. 721; Ball v. Texarkana Water Corporation, 127 S. W. 1068; Trezevant & Cochran v. R. H. Powell & Co., 130 S. W. 234; Watson v. Harris, Id. 237; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gilbert, 130 S. W. 1037; Mack v. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co., 134 S. W. 846; W. B. Walker & Sons v. Fisk, 136 S. W. 101; Shelton v. Cain, Id. 1155; Gibbens v. Bourland, 145 S. W. 274; National Lumber & Creosoting Co. v. Maris, 151 S. W. 325; Hoechten v. Standard Home Co., 157 S. W. 1191.

Where special damages were alleged in a plea of reconvention in action on sequestration bond, which would furnish ground for recovery, a general demurrer was properly overruled. Wilkinson v. Stanley (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 606.

A defective statement of a cause of action, if amendable, is good against a general demurrer. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co. v. Woodward, 18 C. A. 496, 45 S. W. 185.

A general demurrer will not reach a failure to plead incorporation. Hunter v. William J. Lemp Brewing Co. (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 371.

Clerical error in stating a date, corrected by other averments in petition, cannot be reached by general exception that petition is contradictory and confused. Fant v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 909.

Failure to properly indorse petition cannot be alleged by general demurrer. Perkins v. Davidson, 23 C. A. 31, 56 S. W. 121.

In an action against a county to recover for supplies furnished to men in quarantine, an objection that the petition did not allege that the supplies were absolutely essential can be taken only by special exception. King County v. Mitchell, 31 C. A. 171, 71 S. W. 610.

An allegation in a complaint in an action for wrongful attachment held, as against a general demurrer, a mere recitation of the effect of the judgment in the attachment suit, and not an allegation of return of the attached property. Chandler v. Howell (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 426.

In an action against a corporation on a contract, the question whether it was ultra vires held raised by general demurrer. Markowitz v. Greenwall Theatrical Circuit Co. (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 74, 317.

Mere defective statement of a cause of action cannot be reached by general demurrer. Patterson & Wallace v. Frazer (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1077.

The objection that the petition is not indorsed "an action to try title, as well as for damages," cannot be raised by general demurrer. Echols v. Jacobs Mercantile Co., 38 C. A. 65, 84 S. W. 1082.

Where the petition shows that plaintiff is in possession of the whole survey of 640 acres, claiming only the 160 acres given by limitation under the 10-year statute, but does not describe the 160 acres clearly, it is good on general demurrer, and the court should have held the petition for trial on the merits in the absence of special exceptions, and upon proof of the facts alleged, should have adjudged the plaintiff 160 acres of the land to be set apart to him out of the whole tract so as to include his improvements. Parker v. Cameron & Co., 39 C. A. 30, 86 S. W. 648.

An exception to a petition held to have amounted to a general demurrer or exception. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wetz, 38 C. A. 563, 87 S. W. 373.

An objection that an interpleading answer was not verified could only be made by special demurrer or exception. Nixon v. Malone (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 577; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Same (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 585; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.; Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.

A petition showing a cause of action held good against a general demurrer, though it discloses that the action was brought on the wrong theory. Thompson v. Mills, 45 C. A. 642, 101 S. W. 560.

Omission of the word "county" before M., in the statement in the petition in an action on a liquor dealer's bond, that the dealer paid the liquor tax to the tax collector of M. held not ground for general demurrer. White v. Manning, 46 C. A. 298, 102 S. W. 1160.

An objection to the sufficiency of the description of a tract of land in a petition in trespass to try title can be made by a general demurrer only when it is manifest from the face of the petition that the land cannot be distinguished from all other tracts. Plummer v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1162.

The sufficiency of the petition in an action for breach of contract held not raised by general demurrer. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Eichel & Weikel (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 922.

Where appellant filed a general demurrer to a petition alleging substantially all the facts found by the court, his contention that the judgment was contrary to the evidence will not be considered. Dalhart Real Estate Agency v. Le Master (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 860.

If evidence admissible under the allegation of a petition might show a cause of action, the petition is good on general demurrer. Mack v. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 846.

Where the petition in an action for money erroneously credited to defendant's account alleged that the credit was made negligently and by mistake, the allegation of mistake must be given effect on general demurrer. Ingram v. Posey (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 421.

Certain inferences held not allowable upon a general demurrer, as violating the rule that all reasonable inferences are indulged in favor of pleading so challenged. Waxahachie Nursery Co. v. Sansom (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 422.

Allegations of a petition construed on demurrer. Moritz & Pincoff v. Adoue & Lobit (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1140.

In a suit by a county against an irrigation canal company for reimbursement for the cost of repairing a bridge over a canal, a pleading by the company held in effect a general demurrer, though styled "plea in abatement." Orange County v. Cow Bayou Canal Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 963.

That allegations as to the terms of a deed are untrue is not available on general demurrer. Astin v. Mosteller (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 701.

A petition which failed to state facts making it defendants' duty to give notice of the arrival of stock held barely saved from a general demurrer by the rule that every reasonable intendment shall be indulged in favor of a pleading on general demurrer thereto. Union Stock Yards Co. v. Hovencamp (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 704.

A petition, in an action against a carrier for injuries to an animal during shipment, which alleges negligence generally, is good as against a general demurrer. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Crippen (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 361.

General demurrer to petition which stated a good cause of action based on title under the 10-year statute is properly overruled. Carr v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 218.

Where only a general demurrer was interposed to defendant's plea in reconvention for damages for wrongful sequestration of cattle, every reasonable intendment will be indulged in favor of the pleading on appeal, as upon the demurrer below. Tiefel Bros. & Winn v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 319.

On petition and answer in a broker's action for commissions, held, in the absence of a special exception as to whether the answer properly pleaded the terms of the contract, that an exception thereto as irrelevant to the issues would be overruled. Crum v. Slade & Bassett (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 351.

An objection that an answer in the nature of a plea of partial failure of consideration was not verified by affidavit could be taken advantage of only by special exception, and not by general demurrer. Morgan v. Brown (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 361.

It is the office of a general demurrer to test the legal sufficiency of the cause of action or defense, and not the form of the pleading, since mere defects of form can only be reached by special exceptions. Id.

Privilege of a defendant to be sued in the county of his domicile, though appearing on the face of the petition, cannot be raised by general demurrer, but must be raised by a verified plea of privilege. Parker v. Clay Robinson & Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 588.

The court in passing on a general demurrer to the petition must consider everything as properly alleged which by reasonable construction is embraced within the allegations. Indiana & Ohio Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 755.

Allegations that plaintiff through the fraud of defendant as to the contents of a contract applied for by plaintiff was compelled to sell his property at a sacrifice, and that he received nothing for the amount paid on his obligation to defendant, held good as against a general demurrer, though open to attack through special exceptions. Hoechten v. Standard Home Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1191.

9. —— Special demurrer or exception.—Want of certainty is ground of special exception. Prewitt v. Farris, 5 T. 370; Mayton v. Texas & P. R. Co., 63 T. 77, 51 Am. Rep. 637.

A special demurrer is an exception to pleading on account of the manner of stating the cause of action or matter of defense. Harrington v. Galveston, 1 App. C. C. § 792. It must point out the pleading excepted to and particularize the error. Rule 18, 47 T. 620; 84 T. 711.

Where allegations are good on general exception the failure to specially except is a waiver of a defect in the formal statement. Railway Co. v. Preston, 74 T. 181, 11 S. W. 1108; Erie Tel. Co. v. Grimes, 82 T. 89, 17 S. W. 831; Jackson v. Munford, 74 T. 104, 11 S. W. 1061.

The rule of decision where special exceptions are filed to parts of the petition is rule 18 of rules for district courts: "A special exception shall not only point out the particular pleading excepted to, but shall point out intelligibly the obscurity * * * or other insufficiency in the pleading objected to." An exception not so specifying will be treated as a general demurrer, and in such case, if any item in the petition is well pleaded, the demurrer should be overruled. Railway Co. v. Granger, 85 T. 574, 22 S. W. 959.

Defendant held entitled, on special exception, to more specific allegations in petition with reference to items of account alleged. Malin & Browder v. McCutcheon, 33 C. A. 387, 76 S. W. 586.

Exception to answer held, in effect, a general exception. Gorham v. Dallas, C. & S. W. Ry. Co., 41 C. A. 615, 95 S. W. 551.

Mere reasons assigned why a general demurrer should be sustained to certain interpleading answers are not special exceptions to such answers. Nixon v. Malone (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 577; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Same (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 585; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.; Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.

In an action to set aside a sale of real estate of a deceased person to pay debts, an exception to the petition held merely a denial that it was filed in time to authorize the maintenance of the suit. Smart v. Panther, 42 C. A. 262, 95 S. W. 679.

In trespass to try title, a special demurrer upon the ground that defendant's answer shows no facts constituting good faith is sufficient, though it does not point out the particular facts in respect to good faith that are desired. Campbell v. McCaleb (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 129.

The rule that a defect in a pleading can be supplied by inference does not obtain when the defect is pointed out by a special exception, and the rule then is that the allegations must be certain to a certain intent. City of San Antonio v. Routledge, 46 C. A. 196, 102 S. W. 756.

Under rule 18 of the district and county courts (67 S. W. xxi), an exception to a petition held a general, rather than a special, one. Pfeiffer v. Wilke (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 361.

A defect in a pleading held one required to be specially indicated by an exception. Id.

In suit to require restatement of account of assignee for benefit of creditors, failure of petition to give notice to assignee as to when demand was made upon him for information as to his action on claims against the estate held to subject the petition to attack by special exception. Schutz v. Burges, 50 C. A. 249, 110 S. W. 494.

It is the office of a special exception to point out defects in pleadings. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Steele (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 546.

The question of venue can be raised by special exception to the petition, and objections to the venue in defendant's motion to vacate a judgment against it held equivalent to exceptions to the petition on that ground. Wolf v. Sahm, 55 C. A. 564, 120 S. W. 1114.

A special demurrer includes a general one. Snow v. Gallup, 57 C. A. 572, 123 S. W. 222.

An exception to a part of the petition held general. Patton-Worsham Drug Co. v. Drennon (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 705.

On an exception to the petition, held, under district court rule 18 (94 T. 670), no more than a general demurrer, and the petition held sufficient. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Harriman Bros. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 932.

In a fireman's action for injuries, the petition held sufficient as against special exceptions not specially directed to the omission to allege that defendant knew, or ought to have known, of the defective condition of the appliance. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gilbert (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1037.

Purported special exceptions to a pleading which attack its substance and not its manner and form, were, in effect, general demurrers. Donnell v. Currie & Dohoney (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 88.

A demurrer to a whole petition, on the ground that it does not set out a cause of action in a legal form, held a general demurrer. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Cates (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 92.

A demurrer to a petition against a telegraph company for failure to deliver a death message held objectionable for failure to point out specifically the defects complained of. Id.

A special exception to the petition, in an action for damages for delay for the nondelivery of a telegram, held, in effect, a general demurrer, so that it was properly overruled where a part of the petition was good. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 876.

A petition must be considered in all of its parts to determine whether it is subject to special exceptions. Freeman v. Kane (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 723.

A demurrer held general, and not special. Fritter v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 1186.

An exception held nothing more than a general demurrer. Hough v. Fink (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 147.

A demurrer which fails to specify with definiteness the point of which it complains is only a general demurrer. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Samuels (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 802.

In a suit to set aside an execution sale, failure to make plaintiff in execution a party is ground for special exception to the petition. Marshall v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 755.

Exceptions to allegations in defendants' answer because they were insufficient, indefinite, and uncertain, failed to show material facts, and in effect attempted to vary the written contract by parol, held merely a general demurrer to each of the allegations attacked. Parker v. Naylor (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1096.

On allegations of the petition of an intervening mortgagee in action to enforce chattel mortgage, held, that the point that the registration of intervener's mortgage did not affect plaintiff with notice was not properly raised by special exception. Neely-Harris-Cunningham Co. v. Lacy Bros. & Jones (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 441.

10. —— Speaking demurrer.—In an action to restrain the collection of a tax, a number of so-called special exceptions to the petition, giving reasons why the tax was collectible, held to be "speaking" general demurrers, presenting no question not raised by the general demurrer. Petty v. McReynolds (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 180.

11. —— Abandonment or waiver of demurrer or exception.—Where defendant did not call attention of trial court, to exception to plaintiff's plea in replication, such exception was waived. Woodall v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1090.

Where the record does not show that demurrers and exceptions were called to the attention of the trial court and passed on, they will be considered as waived. Denison & S. Ry. Co. v. Powell, 35 C. A. 454, 80 S. W. 1054; Moore v. Woodson, 44 C. A. 503, 99 S. W. 116; Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Waltman (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 518.

Where the demurrer to the petition was not presented to or acted on by the court, it must be deemed waived. Davis v. Davis, 51 C. A. 491, 112 S. W. 948; Dunham v. Orange Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 89; Indiana & Ohio Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Smith, 157 S. W. 755.

An assignment of error complaining that the court erred in not sustaining a demurrer cannot be considered when it does not appear that the demurrer was called to the attention of, or acted upon by, the trial court. Nagle v. Simmank, 54 C. A. 432, 116 S. W. 862.

Where exceptions to allegations in a pleading are abandoned, they cannot be renewed by objection to the evidence relating to the facts alleged in the allegations excepted to. Openshaw v. Dean (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 989.

Where the court took no action on special exceptions to the petition, the exceptions will be deemed waived. Trotti v. Kinnear (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 326.

12. —— Admissions by demurrer or exception.—A general demurrer which admits the facts stated by the plaintiff, when sustained by the judgment of the court, is as conclusive of the cause of action as if the plaintiff had proven them and a judgment had been rendered against him. Bomar v. Parker, 68 T. 435, 4 S. W. 599, overruling Hughes v. Lane, 25 T. 356.

A demurrer admits only the issuable allegations of the pleading demurred to. Brown v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 760.

Defendant's demurrer to complaint held not to have placed the allegations of his special answer before the court as true, and hence to have been improperly sustained. Meyers v. Wood, 95 T. 67, 65 S. W. 174.

The allegation in a pleading that a location on school lands and the issuance of a patent thereto to the locator were fraudulent and void held not admitted by a demurrer. Heil v. Martin (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 430.

A demurrer does not admit the truth or correctness of legal conclusions pleaded. Prokop v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co., 34 C. A. 520, 79 S. W. 101; Ball v. Texarkana Water Corporation (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1068.

A demurrer to an answer in the nature of a bill of interpleader held to have precluded the demurrant from objecting that the debtors were not entitled to relief by interpleader because of an allegation of fraud which was denied in the answers demurred to. Nixon v. Malone (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 577; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Same (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 585; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.; Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.

The matter alleged in a petition for a temporary injunction must be taken as true on demurrer. Buchanan v. Wilburn (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 841.

In construing the effect of an instrument declared on, when questioned on demurrer, the consideration alleged should be read into it. Richards v. Gee (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 61.

The allegations of a petition must be taken as true on demurrer or exception thereto. Woods v. Lowrance, 49 C. A. 542, 109 S. W. 418; Griffin v. Griffin, 54 C. A. 619, 117 S. W. 910; Le Master v. W. 459; Harris v. Santa Fé Townsite Co., 125 S. W. 77; Ball v. Texarkana Water Corporation, 127 S. W. 1068; Gomez v. Timon, 128 S. W. 656; Knox v. Askew, 131 S. W. 230; Dawson v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 379; Armstrong v. Simms, Id. 500; Malakoff Gin Co. v. Riddlesperger, 133 S. W. 519; Matthews v. Towell, 138 S. W. 169; Sanders State Bank v. Hawkins, 142 S. W. 84; Middleton v. Nibling, 142 S. W. 968; Cockrell v. Houston Packing Co., 105 T. 283, 147 S. W. 1145; Chance v. Pace (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 843; Boaz v. Ferrell, 152 S. W. 200; Kirby v. Thurmond, Id. 1099; Barre v. Daggett (Sup.) 153 S. W. 120; Allen v. Thomson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 304.

The court, in passing on an exception to an answer making a third person a party and asking judgment over against him in the event of plaintiff's recovery, held required to take the allegations as true and indulge in every reasonable intendment arising therefrom. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pigott, 54 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 841.

A general demurrer to a petition admits the truth of all the facts alleged in the petition and of all inferences reasonably deducible therefrom, for the purposes of the demurrer. State v. Racine Sattley Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 400.

A demurrer admits the truth of allegations of fact. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Ashley (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1165.

In testing the general demurrer to a petition in an action for libel, it will be presumed that the charge made against plaintiff was untrue, and that she was a person of good reputation. Guisti v. Galveston Tribune, 105 T. 497, 150 S. W. 874.

A demurrer admits the facts well pleaded. Lanza v. Roe (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 571.

13. —— Scope of inquiry.—In trespass to try title, certain land held to be treated as public domain in passing on exceptions to answer. Haney v. Atwood, 42 C. A. 270, 93 S. W. 1093.

On an appeal from an order sustaining a demurrer to a petition, the allegations of the petition held alone to be looked to. Lipscomb v. Fuqua, 103 T. 585, 131 S. W. 1061.

In determining whether overruling a demurrer to an amended petition was material error, a supplemental petition and a trial amendment can be considered. Oar v. Davis (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 710.

In determining a general demurrer to plaintiff's petition, the petition must be read in connection with the answer. Martin Co. v. Cottrell (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 48.

In determining whether a demurrer for misjoinder of causes was properly overruled, the allegations of the answer might be considered. Peoples v. Brockman (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 907.

In reviewing an order sustaining a general demurrer to a petition for mandamus, the court must be governed by the allegations of the petition, and cannot consider special matters of defense pleaded by respondents in their answer. Glover v. Albrecht (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 586.

13½. —— Demurrer as opening record.—A general demurrer relates back and attaches to the first substantial defect in the pleadings on either side. State v. Williams, 8 T. 265; Slaughter v. Buck, 1 App. C. C. § 104; Burnham v. Walker, 1 App. C. C. § 899.

14. —— Hearing and determination.—The judgment entry should show distinctly the action of the court on exceptions. Wright v. McCampbell, 75 T. 644, 13 S. W. 293.

The admission of evidence and the instructions to the jury under a pleading to which a demurrer has been sustained recalls the ruling on such demurrer. Gay v. Pemberton (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 400.

The dismissal of an action on demurrer held premature. Sparks v. McHugh, 21 C. A. 265, 51 S. W. 873.

On the nonappearance of plaintiff on the first appearance day after commencement of the action, the proper practice is to dismiss for want of prosecution, rather than to enter judgment for defendant on demurrer to the petition and on the cross-petition. Robinson v. Collier, 53 C. A. 285, 115 S. W. 915.

The sustaining of general demurrers to the sufficiency of the petition and dismissing it after sustaining special exceptions held not erroneous. Stringer v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 502.

Where, after a demurrer to the petition is sustained, plaintiff does not ask leave to amend, it is not error to dismiss the suit. Slaughter v. American Baptist Publication Society (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 224.

15. —— Effect of overruling.—The overruling of an exception to an immaterial part of a pleading is without prejudice. Kalteyer v. Wipff, 92 T. 679, 52 S. W. 63.

16. —— Effect of sustaining.—The interposition of a successful demurrer to a supplemental petition held not to authorize a dismissal of the suit. Owens v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 783.

The sustaining of a special exception to that part of plaintiff's petition alleging misrepresentations made by defendant's agents held not to prevent the court from thereafter submitting to the jury defendant's liability for such alleged misrepresentations. Kneale & Watkins v. Thornton (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 298.

A judgment sustaining an exception to a pleading should be construed as going no further than the exception itself. Blewitt v. Greene, 57 C. A. 588, 122 S. W. 914.

17. —— Demurrer to amended pleading.—A demurrer to an amended original petition, on the ground that the statute had run, will not be sustained, where the amended pleading does not show when the original petition was filed. Kalteyer v. Wipff (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1055.

Failure of the amended petition to identify the petition superseded does not render it subject to general demurrer. Demetri v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 393.

18. —— Motion to dismiss.—A motion to dismiss the petition is in the nature of a demurrer thereto, admitting the truth of all material allegations for the purpose of testing its sufficiency. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Lunn (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 538.

19. Defects and objections and waiver thereof.—Failure to properly indorse petition cannot be first objected to on appeal. Perkins v. Davidson, 23 C. A. 31, 56 S. W. 121.

An objection to a petition on account of the failure to state the county in which the land is situated should be made by demurrer. King v. Maxey (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 401.

In an action against a telegraph company for failure to promptly deliver a message, owing to a connecting line being out of order, error in permitting pleading, evidence, and argument that the message could have been delivered by mail or telephone, held not cured by the charge. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Sorsby, 29 C. A. 345, 69 S. W. 122.

Manner in which objection to certain omission in petition must be made stated. Wabash R. Co. v. Newton, Weller & Wagner Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 992.

20. —— Cure by subsequent pleading.—A variance between the petition and the proof held corrected by the subsequent pleadings justifying a judgment foreclosing a contract lien. Melton v. Beasley, 56 C. A. 537, 121 S. W. 574.

21. —— Cure by pleadings of adverse party.—Omission of a fact in a pleading is cured by its allegation in the adversary pleading. Hill v. George, 5 T. 87; Andrews v. Hoxie, 5 T. 171; Grimes v. Hagood, 19 T. 246; McFarland v. Mooring, 56 T. 118.

In an action by a mortgagee against a mortgagor for insurance money, failure of the petition to allege that the money had been collected by defendant was cured by an admission in the answer that defendant had done so. Pan Handle Nat. Bank v. Security Co., 18 C. A. 96, 44 S. W. 15.

A petition defective for the lack of an allegation held aided by such allegation in the answer. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Wickham (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1023.

The issue as to diligence of a receiver in obtaining possesion of the personal property of the corporation held raised by an allegation to that effect in the receiver's answer, though the motion to compel him to account did not allege negligence. Hamm v. J. Stone & Sons Live Stock Co., 18 C. A. 241, 45 S. W. 330.

The omission by a party to allege material fact is cured where such fact is brought out by the pleading of other side. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Hanson, 21 C. A. 401, 53 S. W. 62.

Where the petition refers to the officer's return containing a list of articles attached, the defendant's pleading is aided by the averments in the petition and they need not set forth an itemized statement in their cross-action for damages for attaching the property. Michigan Stove Co. v. Waco Hardware Co., 24 C. A. 301, 58 S. W. 734.

Plaintiff's evidence that injury to his cattle during transportation was due to want of feed and water held admissible under defendant's answer. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Porter, 25 C. A. 491, 61 S. W. 343.

Objection to a petition of intervention by a trustee in bankruptcy, that it failed to allege that the bankrupt had been adjudged a bankrupt is obviated by an answer containing such allegation, though a demurrer to the paragraph of answer containing the allegation is sustained. Jones v. Meyer Bros. Drug Co., 25 C. A. 234, 61 S. W. 553.

Plea of personal privilege failing to state that pleader had never submitted to jurisdiction of the court held cured by a reply to defendant's answer in the action stating such fact. Sites v. Lane (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 873.

Where the allegations of the petition were not sufficient to cover the issues submitted, but the averments of the answer specifically covered them, and were denied by plaintiff, such issues were made by the pleadings, and properly submitted. Fitzhugh v. Connor, 32 C. A. 277, 74 S. W. 83.

A plea in an action to foreclose a mortgage which was not excepted to, held to justify the admission of evidence to reform the mortgage for mistake, so as to obviate a defense of usury. Norris v. W. C. Belcher Land Mortg. Co., 98 T. 176, 82 S. W. 500.

Defendant by expressly pleading a statute held to make it available for plaintiffs. Red River Nat. Bank v. De Berry, 47 C. A. 96, 105 S. W. 998.

In an action against several defendants, if plaintiff's amended petition did not sufficiently identify defendants, defendants' answer to that petition held to have supplied the omission. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wilhelm, 49 C. A. 639, 108 S. W. 1194.

Plaintiffs' right to recover was not defeated by insufficiency of the petition where the deficiency was supplied by the answer. Zan v. Clark, 53 C. A. 525, 117 S. W. 892.

In trover for cattle, in view of the defense, plaintiff held entitled to show that defendant owed him a certain sum. Boardman v. Woodward (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 550.

The defect in a pleading held cured by another pleading authorizing the relief awarded. Wright v. Hooker, 55 C. A. 47, 118 S. W. 765.

The variance between the petition specifically pleading a vendor's lien and the proof establishing a contract lien was corrected by the answer alleging the execution of a vendor's lien note which had been fully satisfied, and that the note in suit was given for borrowed money, and that the lien was attempted to be fixed on the land as an original vendor's lien note, and by the reply alleging that the intention of the parties was that the note in suit should stand in place of the original note, and be a lien on the land, justifying a judgment foreclosing a contract lien. Melton v. Beasley, 56 C. A. 537, 121 S. W. 574.

Where a right of action depends upon a foreign law, and the existence of such law is not averred, the defect is cured by an answer which pleads the foreign law. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1165.

In an action for broker's commissions, pleadings taken together held sufficient to admit proof that the sale failed because of the vendor's inability to deliver possession. Willson v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 227.

After verdict, matters alleged in the answer may supply deficiencies in the petition. Arkansas Fertilizer Co. v. City Nat. Bank, 104 T. 187, 135 S. W. 529.

Plaintiffs' petition may be looked to in aid of defendant's answer in trespass to try title, notwithstanding plaintiffs' dismissal of the suit, to furnish a description of the land in defendant's plea of limitation. Jones v. Wagner (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 280.

An answer, when supplemented by the petition, held to sufficiently plead an equitable estoppel. Lowmiller v. Heasley (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 947.

In passing on the sufficiency of a pleading, all allegations in the adversary's pleadings may be considered. Barnes v. Williams' Adm'r (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 978.

In determining the sufficiency of a cross-petition, allegations of the adverse pleadings held properly referred to even in cases of nonsuit. Id.

Where, in an action against a foreign railroad company for personal injuries occurring in that state, the petition failed to plead that the laws of the foreign state gave a right of action, an averment in the answer that the only basis plaintiff had for his right of action was a certain article of the Civil Code of such foreign state entitled plaintiff to introduce evidence as to the article in question and the right of damages thereunder. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Fife (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1181.

22. —— Waiver in general.—Where matter is pleaded in an improper form, an exception should be made on such ground, and objection to an issue offered thereunder is of no avail. Meyer v. Hill (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 333.

Where pleading is fatally defective, objection can be first made on appeal. Alamo Fire Ins. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 604.

Where no exception is made to the form or style of a pleading, it is sufficient to be considered. Baker v. Hamblen (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 362.

Assignments of error to rulings on pleadings held not reviewable on appeal, in absence of showing that exceptions were presented to and ruled upon by the trial court. Wabash R. Co. v. Newton, Weller & Wagner Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 992.

The nature of a fundamental error in pleadings requiring no objection to render the pleadings reviewable, stated. Rivers v. Campbell, 51 C. A. 103, 111 S. W. 190.

Proof will supply lack of allegation in a pleading which is good as against a general demurrer. Smith v. Norton (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 733.

An assignment of error attempting to attack the pleadings cannot be sustained where no basis was made therefor in the trial court. Ash v. A. B. Frank Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 42.

23. —— Waiver of objections to petition or complaint in general.—That the sale of a stock of cattle was for a valuable consideration, without stating the price in dollars, is a sufficient allegation to admit proof; if the defendant needs a more specific allegation of the amount, he should except to the sufficiency of the petition, and if he fails to do so, his objection, if the petition could be held defective on that account, will be considered waived, and is cured by verdict. (De Witt v. Miller, 9 T. 245.) Bradford v. Mann, 1 U. C. 225.

Exceptions to the petition must be made or the defect in the pleading is waived. Moehring v. Hall, 66 T. 241, 1 S. W. 258.

That no objections were taken to the petition before judgment will incline the court not to sustain an objection taken thereafter that it was insufficient to warrant recovery. Bialek v. Richmond (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 47.

Where a petition to compel approval of vouchers issued to a school teacher alleged that they were duly certified, but the notarial seal was not affixed, but no objection was made below, the petition will not be held bad therefor on appeal. Singleton v. Austin, 27 C. A. 88, 65 S. W. 686.

The question of plaintiff's right to equitable relief, in view of his failure to make a tender, cannot be raised for the first time on appeal. Finks v. Hollis, 38 C. A. 23, 85 S. W. 463.

The objection to a demurrable petition for an injunction held waived. Rivers v. Campbell, 51 C. A. 103, 111 S. W. 190.

In an action against a life insurance company to recover the amount of a premium note delivered to defendant's agent, general allegations of fraud in the complaint were sufficient, in the absence of a special exception. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Seidel, 52 C. A. 278, 113 S. W. 945.

Where the record does not show that an exception to the petition, that it appeared that the cause of action was barred by limitations, was presented below, an assignment of error as to sustaining the exception cannot be considered. Schneider v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 789.

Whether evidence sustains a finding that defendant waived performance by plaintiff of a condition precedent held not to be considered on appeal where plaintiff pleaded performance, not a waiver thereof. Dolinski v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 276.

A petition for an injunction, though containing no allegation that the threatened wrong will result in irreparable injury, and that petitioner has no legal remedy, is sufficient in the absence of special exception. Mitchell v. Burnett, 57 C. A. 124, 122 S. W. 937.

Where a petition was good as against a general demurrer, it must be held sufficient by the appellate court to sustain the judgment, in the absence of any complaint of the ruling on the pleadings in the trial court. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. King (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 966.

Where special exceptions were sustained to a petition, and the plaintiff failed to amend, defendant cannot, on appeal, object to the failure, not having moved to require plaintiff to amend. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1009.

Exceptions to a sworn account sued on cannot be urged for the first time on appeal. Dromgoole Bros. v. Lissauer & Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1154.

24. —— Misjoinder of causes of action and duplicity.—Misjoinder of causes of action held waived. Moore v. Waco Building Ass'n, 19 C. A. 68, 45 S. W. 974.

An assignment of error to the overruling of an exception to a petition for misjoinder of defendants overruled, where it is supported on the ground that the petition contained a misjoinder of actions. Oppermann v. Petry (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 300.

A misjoinder of actions should be excepted to in the lower court; and, if it is not, it cannot be objected to on appeal. Knox v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1142.

Misjoinder of causes of action should be pleaded in limine, and is waived by demurring and answering to the merits. Kemendo v. Fruit Dispatch Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 73.

Misjoinder of causes of action on separate contracts is waived by failure to plead it. Dishman v. Frost (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 358.

An objection that a petition improperly joins causes of action can only be corrected on objection in the trial court. Marshall & E. T. Ry. Co. v. Waldrop (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 315.

Where a terminal carrier, when sued, impleaded its connecting carrier and claimed judgment over, it was error to direct a verdict for the latter, in the absence of objection in limine, for improper joinder. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1020.

A court may consider a cause in which actions in contract and tort are joined, in the absence of any objection to the joinder. Hunter v. Lyons (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 353.

Misjoinder of causes of action cannot bar a recovery on the merits, for, if presented by plea in abatement, it would only require plaintiff to dismiss to the extent necessary to cure the objection, and, if by plea of privilege, would be cured by transferring the case to the county in which the venue should have been laid. Wichita Falls Compress Co. v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1032.

25. —— Failure to state cause of action.—The objection that the petition does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action may be urged for the first time on appeal. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Hidalgo (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 426.

That a petition for an injunction shows on its face the existence of an adequate remedy at law held not a fundamental defect which may be objected to for the first time on appeal. Rivers v. Campbell, 51 C. A. 103, 111 S. W. 190.

The question whether a suit for an injunction was maintainable on the grounds alleged in the petition held immaterial in view of the trial of the cause on the issues raised by a cross-action and by an amended petition. Armstrong v. National Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 327.

An objection that the petition in an action for breach of contract shows on its face that the contract is illegal goes to the substance of the petition, and may be made at any stage of the proceedings. Redland Fruit Co. v. Sargent, 51 C. A. 619, 113 S. W. 330.

26. —— Waiver of objections to plea or answer.—The objection that, under a plea of not guilty, defendant in trespass to try title cannot claim a reformation of his deed, cannot be made for the first time on appeal. Focke v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 755.

A party may waive his right to have a plea of set-off stricken out. Wentworth v. King (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 696.

Where specific ground of objection to plea is made, all others are waived. Wilson v. Vick, 93 T. 88, 53 S. W. 576.

Where the defect in a plea is one of substance, and not of form, and it is subject to general demurrer, it is fatal on appeal, though the specific objection was not raised in the court below. Worley v. Smith, 26 C. A. 270, 63 S. W. 903.

Objection that plea of privilege to the jurisdiction was made too late held not to be raised for the first time on appeal. Leahy v. Ortiz, 38 C. A. 314, 85 S. W. 824.

Where, in an action on an instrument certifying that defendant held money belonging to plaintiff's intestate, plaintiff did not except to defendant's plea setting up a mistake in such instrument, every reasonable intendment must be indulged in favor of the plea. Watson v. Parker, 50 C. A. 616, 111 S. W. 771.

A failure to object to an immaterial allegation in an answer or the admission of testimony in support thereof held not to render it material. Hall v. Parry, 55 C. A. 40, 118 S. W. 561.

The sufficiency of a plea of former adjudication was properly presented by a requested instruction to find for defendant; there being no exception to the plea or ruling as to its sufficiency. Craig v. Broocks (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 572.

Though a plea of contributory negligence is very general, yet, where it was not excepted to, defendant is entitled on appeal to the benefit of the issue raised. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Bivins (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 210.

A defective plea of non est factum, not objected to, merely shifts the burden of proof to the defendant. Standard Underground Cable Co. v. Southern Independent Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 429.

27. —— Objections to rulings on pleas in abatement.—Alleged error in overruling a plea in abatement, based on the pendency of another action, held waived by an agreement to dismiss the other action included in a stipulation for judgment. Forty-Acre Spring Live Stock Co. v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 417.

28. —— Objections to rulings on demurrer or exception.—Where, on exceptions to plaintiff's petition being sustained, he amends, any error in such ruling is waived. Barrett v. Independent Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1128.

Error in overruling demurrers to the petition is waived by the parties submitting the cause on an agreed statement of facts. Harde v. Germania Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 666.

29. —— Objections to amendments and supplemental pleadings and rulings relating thereto.—Where a defendant excepts to an amended petition on the ground that it states a different cause of action, he must, if he desires a postponement by reason of surprise or other sufficient cause, apply to the court. Failing to do this, he cannot on appeal complain of the judgment of the trial court overruling his exceptions. Reagan v. Evans, 21 S. W. 427, 2 C. A. 35.

Plaintiff held entitled to go to trial on an amended answer, which superseded a so-called "supplemental answer" under district and county court rules 14 and 15 (20 S. W. xii). Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Halsell, 98 T. 244, 83 S. W. 15.

Any error in admitting in evidence an abandoned answer could not have harmed defendant where one of the defenses set up therein as a counterclaim was sustained and a verdict rendered for defendant thereon. Austin v. Jackson Trust & Savings Bank (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 936.

Plaintiff's petition, as amended, held sufficient to authorize proof that plaintiff had sold the wood in controversy for 50 cents a cord less than defendant had contracted to pay for it. Armstrong v. King (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 629.

Where no objection was made in the trial court to the form of an amendment to the complaint, the objection that a trial amendment was made cannot be urged on appeal. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Cronin (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 649.

Where the record fails to show any exception to plaintiff's petition, the question of the propriety of sustaining an exception thereto cannot be considered on appeal. Walker v. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1142.

30. —— Want or insufficiency of indorsement or verification.—Plaintiff, by failure to object before trial, waives the verification of a plea of failure of consideration. Ashcraft v. Stephens, 16 C. A. 341, 40 S. W. 1036; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Jackson & Edwards (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 47; Oneal v. Weisman, 39 C. A. 592, 88 S. W. 290.

An agreement waiving defects in the pleadings waives verification of a plea of usury. Arnold v. MacDonald, 22 C. A. 487, 55 S. W. 529.

The question of error, in that defendant's pleading was not verified, cannot be raised for the first time on appeal. Adcock v. Creighton, 27 C. A. 243, 65 S. W. 42.

A failure to properly indorse a petition held not reversible error, where the objection to it on the subject of indorsement was merely general. Willoughby v. Long (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 646.

Sufficiency of affidavit to plea cannot be questioned for the first time on appeal. Dyer v. Winston, 33 C. A. 412, 77 S. W. 227.

The defect in an affidavit to an answer held waived because not excepted to. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 622.

Plaintiff's failure to object to a plea to an answer of non est factum on the ground that it was not verified by oath held to be a waiver of such objection. Standard Underground Cable Co. v. Southern Independent Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 429.

Where a pleading, setting up the failure of consideration, though not sworn to as required by the statute, was not objected to at trial, its sufficiency in that respect cannot be questioned on appeal. Nelson v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 146.

31. —— Objections to filing or service.—Where no exception was filed to a plea in abatement, an objection to the judgment rendered thereon, on the ground that the plea was not filed in due order, will not be entertained in the appellate court. Hayden v. Kirby, 31 C. A. 441, 72 S. W. 198.

Defendant, not having objected to proof of facts pleaded by her codefendants, held not entitled to complain that she was not served with notice of their pleadings. Beale's Heirs v. Johnson, 45 C. A. 119, 99 S. W. 1045.

32. —— Objection to introduction of evidence under pleading.—As a general rule exceptions to pleadings must be taken before trial, and evidence will be admitted unless clearly incompetent. Williams v. Bailes, 9 T. 61; Gaines v. Salmon, 16 T. 311; Powers v. Caldwell, 25 T. 352; Johnson v. Granger, 51 T. 42; Booth v. Pickett, 53 T. 436; Carter v. Roland, 53 T. 540.

Proof of value admitted without objection, will not authorize recovery on quantum meruit, where the petition sets up an express contract only. Gammage v. Alexander, 14 T. 414; McGreal v. Wilson, 9 T. 426.

Plaintiff brought suit to recover a balance due for the purchase of land, alleging that defendants had fraudulently delivered two notes executed by one of them only, who was the wife of her codefendant, and that the defendants claim that the notes were fraudulent and void. The defendants answered by plea of general denial and non est factum. The plaintiff, without objection, introduced testimony concerning the payments which were due, and at the close of the testimony the defendants moved to exclude the same on the ground that the notes mentioned were better evidence. Held, that the pleadings indicated the nature of the evidence on which the plaintiff must rely, and, it having been admitted without objection, the court properly overruled a motion made by defendants to exclude the evidence. Matlock v. Glover, 63 T. 231.

Objections to evidence on the ground of insufficient pleadings to which no objection has been made are not favorably considered. McDannell v. Horrell, 1 U. C. 521, citing Brown v. Sullivan, 71 T. 470, 10 S. W. 288.

Exceptions to the legal sufficiency, whether of form or substance, of the pleadings should be made before the trial upon issues of fact. Such defects cannot be taken advantage of by objections to testimony upon the trial. Railway Co. v. Preston, 74 T. 181, 11 S. W. 1108.

In a suit for "merchandise," evidence showing articles of merchandise was admitted. The defect of want of certainty in the petition could not be reached by objections to evidence. Lumber Co. v. Barnwall, 78 T. 328, 14 S. W. 782.

Attempts to take advantage of a defective pleading by objections to the admissibility of evidence are not regarded with favor; and where no special exception has been urged against such defect, the pleading will, in this respect, be liberally interpreted. Railway Co. v. Jones, 1 C. A. 372, 21 S. W. 145.

Objections to evidence on the ground that petition for distress does not set out items of account can only be raised by exception to petition. Scoggins v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 216.

Objection that facts constituting marriage are not alleged in petition comes too late by objection to evidence. Cuneo v. De Cuneo, 24 C. A. 436, 59 S. W. 284.

Where a petition is good as against a general demurrer, and subject only to special exception, advantage of the defects cannot be taken by objections to testimony tending to support its allegations, however general or indefinite they may be. McBride v. Puckett (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 242.

Objections to defects of a pleading may not be raised by excepting to introduction of evidence because of such defects. Patterson & Wallace v. Frazer (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1077.

Pleadings must be wholly defective, and show no cause of action or defense, before objections to testimony because of the insufficiency of pleadings will be entertained. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rollins (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1099.

Plaintiff held not entitled to object to the admission of evidence to show a waiver of a provision of a contract sued on because such waiver had not been sufficiently averred; no exception having been taken to defendants' plea raising such issue. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 400.

It is error to admit over objections evidence in support of allegations insufficiently pleaded to constitute a cause of action. Blackwell v. Speer (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 903.

An objection that the damages claimed in plaintiff's petition were not itemized should be presented by exception to the petition, and not by an objection to evidence. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Sunset Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 265.

That allegations of a complaint are bad as conclusions, and plaintiff refuses to amend, held ground for refusing proof. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 80.

A defect in a petition which may be cured by amendment must be presented by special exception, and cannot be taken by objection to testimony. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Greb (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 489.

Objection to indefiniteness and uncertainty of the petition may not be made by objection to evidence. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Waltman (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 518.

33. —— Objections to evidence on ground of variance.—When a misdescription of surveys occurs in title papers through which a party in trespass to try title deraigns his title, the mistake should be alleged in pleading. But when this is not done, and the other calls in the deed correct the mistake with reasonable certainty, the objection, unless raised by special exception, will not be heard for the first time when the deed is offered in evidence. Huff v. Webb, 64 T. 284.

When a party offers in evidence a writing pleaded by the adverse party, it cannot be objected that there is a variance between the allegation and proof. City of Austin v. Erwin, 2 App. C. C. § 291.

Discrepancy in names in different parts of petition held waived by failure to object on the trial. Flewellen v. Ft. Bend County, 17 C. A. 155, 42 S. W. 775.

An objection because of a variance must be taken to the admission of evidence on that ground, where the difference does not make a new cause of action. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Trice (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 770.

A complaint failing to allege that professional services were reasonable, a charge authorizing a recovery for reasonable services is proper, where no objection was made to the evidence touching same. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Lyons (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 96.

A variance between the allegations and proof held immaterial, where defendant made no objection to the evidence and did not claim surprise. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Court, 31 C. A. 146, 71 S. W. 777.

Where evidence is admitted without objection, the question of variance between the pleading and the proof cannot be raised by instructions. International Harvester Co. v. Campbell, 43 C. A. 421, 96 S. W. 93.

In an action by a seller against the purchaser to recover property sold because of defendant's breach of contract, held, that defendant could not for the first time on appeal object that the specific breach was not alleged in plaintiff's pleading. Bateman v. Hipp, 51 C. A. 405, 111 S. W. 971.

When testimony at variance with the pleading is offered on the trial, it is then the duty of the complaining party to make known his surprise, and apply to withdraw his announcement of ready. Brown Cracker & Candy Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 684.

34. Aider by verdict or judgment.—Omission of a fact in a pleading is cured by the verdict, when the issues joined require proof of the fact omitted, and it is admitted without objection. Burton v. Anderson, 1 T. 93; Carter v. Wallace, 2 T. 206; Callison v. Autry, 4 T. 371; De Witt v. Miller, 9 T. 239; McClellan v. State, 22 T. 405; Murphy v. Stell, 43 T. 123. But the verdict will not cure an omission where there is no allegation under which the evidence is admissible. Hall v. Jackson, 3 T. 305; Young v. Lewis, 9 T. 73; Denison v. League, 16 T. 399; Markham v. Carothers, 47 T. 21; Stephenson v. Bassett, 51 T. 544; City of Laredo v. Russell, 56 T. 398; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Wheat, 2 App. C. C. § 166.

Verdict will not cure the omission of a necessary substantive allegation. Schuster v. Frendenthal, 74 T. 53, 11 S. W. 1051.

Error in sustaining exception to plea of reconvention in action for price of machinery, held not cured by verdict. Ellis v. Tips, 16 C. A. 82, 40 S. W. 524.

An objection to a decree partitioning community property on the ground that the property is not sufficiently described in the petition cannot be considered on appeal, since such objection should have been taken by exception to the petition. Moor v. Moor, 24 C. A. 150, 57 S. W. 992.

Objection that a judgment introduced in evidence was rendered in the county court, instead of the district court, as alleged in the pleading, first raised after verdict, is untenable. Jones v. Meyer Bros. Drug Co., 25 C. A. 234, 61 S. W. 553.

A defective allegation of mutual mistake in a petition to recover certain school land held cured by verdict. Lewis v. Batten, 35 C. A. 370, 80 S. W. 389.

Defects in pleading will be cured by verdict, where the issue joined necessarily requires the proof of the facts defectively stated or omitted. Ellis v. Howard Smith Co., 35 C. A. 566, 80 S. W. 633.

The defect in a petition held cured by the verdict. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. James (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 774.

All pleadings will be liberally construed for the purpose of sustaining the verdict. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. v. Rosebrook-Josey Grain Co., 52 C. A. 156, 114 S. W. 436.

Judgment having been rendered in plaintiff's favor, it is unnecessary to inquire whether the court erred in overruling his exception to his adversary's pleadings. Michael v. Rabe, 56 C. A. 441, 120 S. W. 565.

The petition, in an action for the price of coal sold, held so defective as not to support a judgment for plaintiff. Stephenville, N. & S. T. Ry. Co. v. Western Coal & Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 245.

Where a petition was not demurred to, the court after verdict must indulge in its favor all reasonable intendments. Ferrell v. City of Haskell (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 784.

Though a complaint contained allegations which might be construed as seeking a double recovery, overruling a demurrer thereto was harmless, where from the verdict it was evident that double recovery was not had. Dallas Terminal Ry. & Union Co. v. Ardrey (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 616.

A verdict for plaintiff cures all defects in the petition except a failure to state a cause of action. Indiana & Ohio Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 755.

35. Motion to strike.—A motion to strike out an amended supplemental petition aimed at the pleading as a whole is properly overruled, if any part of the pleading presents a valid replication to any part of defendant's answer. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Bryant, 30 C. A. 437, 70 S. W. 1015.

Striking out plea of accord and satisfaction held no abuse of discretion. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Galliher, 34 C. A. 126, 78 S. W. 7.

Where plaintiff had previously been furnished with a copy of the answer, and made no objection to its being filed when the case was called for trial, held it was error for the court to strike it from the files of its own motion. Zollars v. Snyder & Lacey, 43 C. A. 120, 94 S. W. 1096.

In an action to contest the validity of a local option election, the striking out of a paragraph of the petition held not erroneous. Oxley v. Allen, 49 C. A. 90, 107 S. W. 945.

Refusal to strike matter from an answer as immaterial held not error, where, in view of an issue of ratification raised by the answer, it did not then appear immaterial. Uecker v. Zuercher, 54 C. A. 289, 118 S. W. 149.

Under district and county courts rule 27 (67 S. W. xxii), a pleading denominated, but not in fact, a trial amendment, held properly stricken. Barnes v. Williams' Adm'r (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 978.

In passing upon a defense upon a motion to strike, the court is required to look alone to the facts alleged, and to take them as true. Philadelphia Underwriters' Agency of Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Brown (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 899.

Where the facts alleged in a trial amendment were admissible under the allegations of the original pleading, a refusal to strike out the amendment was not error. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Trout (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1137.

36. Compelling election.—Motion to compel plaintiff to elect on which count of his petition he would rely held properly denied. Texas Brewing Co. v. Walters (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 548.

Plaintiff held properly required to elect under which of two causes of action in his petition he would proceed. Carwile v. Wm. C. Cameron & Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 611.

CHAPTER THREE

PLEADINGS OF THE PLAINTIFF

Article 1827. [1191] [1195] Requisites of the petition.—The petition shall set forth clearly the names of the parties and their residences, if known, with a full and clear statement of the cause of action and such other allegations pertinent to the cause as the plaintiff may deem necessary to sustain his suit, and without any distinction between suits at law and in equity, and each fact going to make up such cause of action and other allegations shall be pleaded by separate paragraph and each paragraph numbered consecutively. The petition shall also state the nature of the relief which he requests of the court. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 5. P. D. 1427. Acts 1913, p. 256, sec. 1, amending Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 1827.]

1. Matters of presumption or implication.—See, also, notes under Art. 1819.

Allegations of a pleading for damages to growing cotton held to raise an inference that the cotton belonged to plaintiff. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rollins (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1099.

It is not necessary to the court's jurisdiction or the plaintiff's right to recover in an action for conversion that an express promise to pay be alleged, since an implied promise arises from the conversion charged. Hitson v. Hurt, 45 C. A. 360, 101 S. W. 292.

Though a petition for reformation of the description in deeds does not directly allege that the grantees were purchasers of the lands, it will be sufficient if that fact can be clearly implied from the other allegations of the petition. Mounger v. Daugherty (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1070.

The petition of a telephone company to enjoin interference by a city with erection of poles, the city council having denied its application for a permit, need not allege that authority of its president and manager, who presented its application, was shown to the council, or possessed by him; such authority being presumed, in the absence of plea raising the issue. City of Brownwood v. Brown Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 709.

2. Matters of fact or conclusions.—See notes under Art. 1819 and at end of Chapter 8.

Petition held insufficient, as pleading a conclusion. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Mitchell, 91 T. 454, 44 S. W. 274, 40 L. R. A. 209, 66 Am. St. Rep. 906.

Allegation in an action by a police officer removed from office to recover the balance of salary, that no legal or sufficient judgment of ouster was entered, held a conclusion of the pleader. Doherty v. City of Galveston, 19 C. A. 708, 48 S. W. 804.

A complaint held insufficient because stating only a legal conclusion of the pleader. Millican v. McNeil, 92 T. 400, 49 S. W. 219.

Allegations that defendants intimidated real commissioners' court, and prevented them from approving plaintiff's bond, and procured usurpers to reject such bond, held to state legal conclusions insufficient to enable court to determine which was the true court. Millican v. McNeil (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 428.

A petition in a suit to recover a special tax held insufficient, as stating the pleader's conclusion, rather than the facts. Miller v. Crawford Independent School Dist., 26 C. A. 495, 63 S. W. 894.

In an action for breach of a warranty that a jack sold plaintiff was an "average foaler," if well cared for, allegations of the complaint that the jack was well cared for, as required by the warranty, were not mere conclusions. Ash v. Beck (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 53.

An allegation in a petition to recover back money paid on drafts held a mere conclusion. S. Blaisdell, Jr., Co. v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 96 T. 626, 75 S. W. 292, 62 L. R. A. 968, 97 Am. St. Rep. 944.

An averment in a petition for the settlement of the partnership account held to state a mere conclusion of the pleader. Bluntzer v. Hirsch, 32 C. A. 585, 75 S. W. 326.

In a suit to recover for certain property alleged to have been taken by defendants, where no exemplary damages were asked, an allegation as to the manner of taking the property held a conclusion of the pleader and improper. Rylie v. Stammire (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 626.

Allegation of petition as to noisome odors, in a suit to enjoin as a threatened nuisance the location of a cemetery adjacent to plaintiffs' lands, held a mere conclusion. Elliott v. Ferguson, 37 C. A. 40, 83 S. W. 56.

In an action on a benefit certificate, the petition held not subject to exception on the ground that the allegation as to the payment of all dues and assessments was a mere conclusion of the pleader. Endowment Rank Supreme Lodge K. P. v. Townsend, 36 C. A. 651, 83 S. W. 220.

An allegation in a complaint that there was no constructive delivery of certain deeds is a conclusion of law. Newman v. Newman (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 635.

An allegation in a petition that a tender of money by plaintiff to defendant discharged a mortgage lien is a conclusion of the pleader which may be properly stricken out. Harris v. Staples (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 801.

Allegations in petition in suit to set aside judgment for possession of land held mere conclusions of pleader. Gilbert v. Cooper, 43 C. A. 328, 95 S. W. 753.

In an action for breach of a contract of employment, an allegation that it was ratified on a subsequent date held not objectionable as a conclusion of the pleader. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Moore, 46 C. A. 259, 101 S. W. 867.

In libel an allegation that the article was published recklessly, etc., held not objectionable as stating a conclusion of the pleader. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy, 52 C. A. 22, 113 S. W. 574.

The statement in a supplemental pleading that the pleader intended to or did in fact declare upon a certain instrument is but the conclusion of the pleader, and adds nothing to the sufficiency of the original pleading. Connor v. Zackry (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 177.

Allegation of a complaint in an action for conversion of property held merely a conclusion of the pleader. Lindale Brick Co. v. Smith, 54 C. A. 297, 118 S. W. 568.

An allegation in an injury action against a railroad company that plaintiff was struck by a projection from a passing freight train while walking along the track held not objectionable as alleging a conclusion. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wilcox, 57 C. A. 3, 121 S. W. 588.

In an action for delay in transportation of cotton, an allegation in the petition held not objectionable as a conclusion. Dorrance & Co. v. International & G. N. R. Co., 53 C. A. 460, 126 S. W. 694.

A petition for certiorari to review an order admitting a will to probate held objectionable as alleging a conclusion as to petitioner's capacity to sue. Heaton v. Buhler (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1078.

Allegations of a complaint held bad as conclusions. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 80.

Petition, in an action for fraud, held good as against an exception averring that the allegation of diligence to avoid limitations was but a conclusion. Goodwin v. Simpson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1190.

An allegation in a petition held but a conclusion which could not prevail against the facts pleaded. Snipes v. Bomar Cotton Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 428.

An allegation, in a petition by a domestic corporation against the superintendent of banking and a bank examiner, for wrongfully closing a bank, held a mere conclusion of the pleader. Sanders State Bank v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 84.

An allegation in a petition for equitable relief from a judgment held not insufficient as a conclusion. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mill v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 294.

Allegation that plaintiff's land was being taken for a highway without just compensation held a mere conclusion. Schlinke v. De Witt County (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 660.

A petition by brokers for balance due on a contract of sale of machinery, alleging that defendant agreed to buy and accept said machinery from plaintiffs when the same might be delivered by the manufacturers to common carriers consigned to defendant, and agreed to pay plaintiff therefor, stated mere conclusions. San Jacinto Rice Co. v. A. M. Lockett & Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1046.

An allegation that defendant was negligent in furnishing plaintiff with a pick which was old, worn, defective, blunt, battered, and insufficient, with a crooked handle, which rendered striking uncertain, was not objectionable as a conclusion. Freeman v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 413.

3. Conclusions of law from facts alleged.—See notes under Art. 1819.

It is sufficient for the petition to state facts from which the court or jury may find if negligence existed. Rowland v. Murphy, 66 T. 534, 1 S. W. 658.

A petition must state the legal import of the transactions alleged, as well as the failure by defendant to perform them. An exhibit showing the terms of the contract cannot supply the absence of allegations in the petition of the legal effect of such contract. Guadalupe County v. Johnston, 1 C. A. 713, 20 S. W. 833.

An allegation, in a petition to foreclose a lien, of a legal conclusion, in that by contracts set forth, a lien on described property was given, is sufficient. Bringhurst v. Mutual Building & Loan Ass'n, 19 C. A. 355, 47 S. W. 831.

Where the plaintiff bases his right to recover on a contract by which an officer assigns the fees of his office, which is void as against public policy, the illegality of the contract need not be pleaded to make it available. Willis v. Weatherford Compress Co. (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 472.

In an action on a written contract, it is proper to charge on the legal effect thereof. Ash v. Beck (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 53.

Plaintiff need not allege that he has no adequate remedy at law where the petition shows that he is entitled to the equitable relief demanded. Sullivan v. Bitter, 51 C. A. 604, 113 S. W. 193.

Where the petition in an action by the holder against the acceptor of a draft in case of nonpayment fully states the fact showing defendant's liability, direct allegation of a promise to pay is unnecessary. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs, 53 C. A. 1, 115 S. W. 345.

Plaintiff, in a negligence case, need not allege that the facts pleaded constituted negligence, if that conclusion can be drawn therefrom. Patton-Worsham Drug Co. v. Drennon (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 705.

4. Matters of evidence.—See notes under Art. 1819.

A plaintiff seeking to recover from a railway company damages for injuries sustained by him on account of the alleged failure of the defendant company to keep in repair a good, safe and substantial crossing over its road track is not required to allege with specific particularity the character of the defects in such crossing. Railway Co. v. Brinker, 68 T. 500, 3 S. W. 99.

In a suit involving the ownership of property, its ownership may be alleged in general terms. The facts are matters of evidence, not of pleading. Rains v. Herring, 68 T. 468, 5 S. W. 369.

Exception to petition pleading matters of evidence will be sustained. Anglin v. Barlow (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 827.

In an action against a telegraph company for negligent delay in transmitting a message held not necessary for the petition to have set out the evidence whereby plaintiff intended to support a certain allegation. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Rowe, 44 C. A. 84, 98 S. W. 228.

Allegations, in a suit for divorce and to cancel a deed taken in the husband's name, held to sufficiently allege that the property was purchased with money of plaintiff's separate estate, and that defendant wrongfully had the deed made to himself. O'Farrell v. O'Farrell, 56 C. A. 51, 119 S. W. 899.

In an action for damages caused by failure to send a telegram, plaintiff held entitled to show certain matters, though not expressly alleged, being merely evidential. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1153.

Where the petition in an action for damages by trespassing cattle, in addition to alleging that the trees and fences injured were a part of the realty, also alleged the value of the trees, and specifically itemized the injury to the fence, the latter allegations being statements of evidence did not render the petition fatally defective. Tandy v. Fowler (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 481.

It is not necessary to allege the evidence by which a case is sought to be established. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Finklea (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 612.

5. Matters peculiarly within knowledge of defendant.—In an action for injuries to a railroad brakeman, whether defendant was engaged in intrastate or interstate commerce at the time being a matter peculiarly within defendant's knowledge, plaintiff was not required to allege such fact with the certainty required as to facts within his own knowledge. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Hawley (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 726.

Allegation of negligence in a general way is sufficient where from the nature of the case plaintiff would not be expected to know the exact cause or the precise negligent act, and the facts are peculiarly within defendant's knowledge. Texas Co. v. Giddings (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1142.

6. Directness and positiveness, or argumentativeness.—See, also, notes under Art. 1819.

An allegation in a petition by an heir to review administration proceedings held not uncertain or argumentative. Kalteyer v. Wipff (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1055.

In an action for delay in shipment, an allegation that the invoice stated a certain amount as the price at which the goods were sold is not an allegation of their value at the time of shipment, nor is the date of the bill of lading an allegation of the time of shipment. Dorrance & Co. v. International & G. N. R. Co., 126 S. W. 694, 53 C. A. 460.

A buyer of corporate stock held to sufficiently allege that the stock purchased was not worth the contract price. Reed v. Holloway (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1189.

7. Certainty definiteness, and particularity.—See, also, notes under Art. 1819.

In an action by an attorney for services rendered a corporation, the items of service must be pleaded with such certainty and particularity as to require defendant to plead thereto. Railway Co. v. Granger (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 70.

A complaint for conversion, stating that plaintiff was unable to state the precise nature of the property, or the precise value thereof, but that he believed the reasonable market value to be $100 at the time of taking, held sufficiently explicit to admit of proof. Bryden v. Croft (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 853.

Allegations of a petition held sufficiently definite to sustain an action for half the profits of a certain sale. Branch v. De Blanc (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 134.

A petition in an action for injuries by a carrier's failure to keep its ticket office open before train time held not objectionable on the ground that the allegations of damage were vague and uncertain. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Lister (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 107.

In a suit to enjoin as a threatened nuisance the location of a cemetery adjacent to plaintiffs' lands, petition held too indefinite. Elliott v. Ferguson, 37 C. A. 40, 83 S. W. 56.

In an action against a canal company for damages to a crop of rice owing to an overflow of water, the petition held not objectionable as uncertain or indefinite as to the manner of the destruction of the rice or as to the damages. Colorado Canal Co. v. Sims, 42 C. A. 442, 94 S. W. 365.

There was no error in overruling exceptions to allegations of a petition relating to personal injuries, where they were sufficiently full and specific to apprise defendant of what it would be called on to defend against. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Farris (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 536.

8. Ambiguity.—In an action for unlawfully obstructing a stream, the petition held not ambiguous. Orange Lumber Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 604.

9. Disjunctive and alternative allegations.—Prayer for relief, see post, 59, 61.

Rule 4 (84 T. 708) does not prohibit two counts in the petition having a double aspect for alternative relief. Compton v. Ashley (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 226.

Where plaintiff alleged that defendants were liable for negligence either because he was an employé, or because he was incapable of appreciating danger, held, that he could proceed on both counts. San Antonio Waterworks Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 181.

Where petition denominates instrument as "bill of sale or mortgage," and it was a bill of sale in form, but a mortgage in fact, an exception will not be sustained. Anglin v. Barlow (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 827.

The mere fact that the averments of a petition in a personal injury case are in the alternative will not subject it to a special demurrer. City of San Antonio v. Potter, 31 C. A. 263, 71 S. W. 764.

In a suit for personalty attached as a third person's held that plaintiffs could sue for an alternative recovery of all of it, or of a part. Merchants' & Farmers' Nat. Bank of Cisco v. Johnson, 49 C. A. 242, 108 S. W. 491.

Where plaintiff is in doubt about the particular facts as to the cause of the injury, which facts are within the knowledge of the defendant, it is proper to plead such facts in the alternative, without rendering the pleading inconsistent. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Langston (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 334.

Alternative pleading on quantum meruit for transferring lease of land belonging to public school fund and assisting defendant in purchasing the land held not subject to special exceptions for failure to itemize. Belcher v. Schmidt (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 833.

A petition asserting the liability of either one of two defendants does not state a cause of action. Thorndale Mercantile Co. v. Evens & Lee (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1053.

A creditor of a firm who declares on a note, in which the indebtedness, evidenced by an account prior to his receiving notice of a partner's retirement, was merged, may not recover for the indebtedness incurred prior to the notice, in the absence of an alternative pleading on the account covering that time. Rodgers-Wade Furniture Co. v. Wynn (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 340.

10. Consistency or repugnancy.—A petition may properly contain inconsistent counts. Harris v. Warlick (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 356.

A complaint praying cancellation of a land contract, mended so as to seek reformation and enforcement thereof, contingent on stated findings by the court, held not demurrable for inconsistency. Clay County Land & Cattle Co. v. Skidmore, 26 C. A. 472, 64 S. W. 815.

A claim for permanent damages to land by overflow held inconsistent with a claim for loss of annual crops or rents. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Terhune (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 381.

In an action to recover an interest in land on the ground of a resulting trust, certain allegations of the petition held not inconsistent. Pearce v. Dyess, 45 C. A. 406, 101 S. W. 549.

A petition held to present inconsistent demands. Texas Brokerage Co. v. John Barkley & Co., 49 C. A. 632, 109 S. W. 1001.

Where the petition in a fireman's action for injuries alleged for the first cause that plaintiff was wholly and permanently disabled for performing services as a fireman, for the second cause that the defendant wrongfully refused to continue him in its employment, and for the third cause that through defendant's fault he was unable to obtain employment as fireman from other railroad companies, there could be no recovery upon any such allegations; the allegation of permanent disability being in irreconcilable conflict with the necessary implication of the second and third causes that plaintiff again became able to perform the duties of a fireman. Reasoner v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 213.

11. Irrelevancy and surplusage.—Though a petition may contain a more detailed statement of the facts on which a recovery is sought than may be required to present properly the cause of action, yet, when the purpose is to indicate thereby particularly the scope of the evidence which will be relied on at the trial, and no injury can result to the adversary from their statements, it is not bad on demurrer. Railway Co. v. Pool, 70 T. 713, 8 S. W. 535.

In a suit on notes, and to foreclose a vendor's lien, held not error to strike from the petition an allegation that another, not secured by the lien and not due, had been assigned to a third person. Ramirez v. Barton (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 508.

An allegation in a complaint for personal injuries that the injured party was a man of family, all his earnings going to their support, is immaterial. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Eaten (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 562.

Where, in action by executrix of attorney against an attorney, the evidence showed defendant contracted with deceased to divide his fee in a certain case, which agreement was alleged in petition, allegation that client employed both, which was not proved, might be rejected as surplusage. Aycock v. Baker (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 273.

In an action for damages stipulated in a contract for the use of land, the description of the land in the petition held immaterial. Ackermann v. Ackermann Schuetzen Verein (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 366.

Allegations, in a petition to set aside a conveyance for fraud, as to vendee's knowledge of the value of the property conveyed, and concealment thereof, held material, when made and taken with other appropriate allegations. Wells v. Houston, 29 C. A. 619, 69 S. W. 183.

Though petition in action for injury to employé shows certain negligence to be the proximate cause, other negligence may be alleged and proved. Hildenbrand v. Marshall, 30 C. A. 135, 69 S. W. 492.

Though, by the petition, plaintiff sues as the "T. & N. O. R. Co. of 1874," held, that "of 1874" should be treated as immaterial surplusage, and a copy of the charter incorporating the T. & N. O. R. Co. in 1859 should be admitted in evidence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. of 1874 v. Barber, 31 C. A. 84, 71 S. W. 393.

In an action for injuries at a railroad crossing, an allegation in the petition that defendant knew or should have known of plaintiff's perilous position on the crossing, after defendant had struck plaintiff's wagon and attached it to a moving car, held immaterial. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Fry, 37 C. A. 552, 84 S. W. 664.

The allegation in the petition of a trustee in bankruptcy to enforce a claim against the separate property of the bankrupt's wife held properly treated as surplusage. Collins v. Bryan, 40 C. A. 88, 88 S. W. 432.

That a petition to foreclose a mortgage failed to set up an assignment to the mortgagee of certain vendor's lien notes, of the vendor's superior title, and of a mechanic's lien, held immaterial; there being no defense that the property was a homestead. Blair v. Guaranty Savings Loan & Investment Co., 54 C. A. 443, 118 S. W. 608.

In action on benefit certificate, supplemental petition alleging that representations of insured, which were made in good faith, held at best unnecessary. Modern Woodmen of America v. Owens (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 858.

Allegation that plaintiff did not know at the time of executing the release defendant's custom of requiring injured employés to sign away their rights was irrelevant in avoidance of release. Kansas City, M. & O. R. Co. of Texas v. Meakin (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1057.

Mere surplusage in a petition for damages for trespass did not render the petition fatally defective. Tandy v. Fowler (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 481.

In an action to recover the residue after a sale of land by a trustee to pay plaintiff's debt, pursuant to an agreement by which the lands which were held in trust for the creditor and debtor were to be sold and the residue equally divided upon payment of the debt, allegations of the petition that defendants fraudulently represented that the whole proceeds of the sale were barely sufficient to pay the debt, and, believing such representations, plaintiff, at defendants' request, released his interest in the land, were unnecessary, being more properly set up by way of confession and avoidance in a supplemental petition. Barnes v. Central Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1172.

12. Scandalous matter and false allegations.—Amendment setting up facts which the attorney knew to be false held to violate the spirit of rule 51 in regard to false statements in pleadings. Boyd v. Beville, 91 T. 439, 44 S. W. 287.

Allegations in a petition for injuries to a brakeman held not demurrable as unnecessary, denunciatory, and inflammatory. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Appel, 33 C. A. 575, 77 S. W. 635.

13. Mistakes in use of language.—The use of the word "impression," instead of "mistake," in an action for reformation of a deed for mistake, held not error. Metcalfe v. Lowenstein, 35 C. A. 619, 81 S. W. 362.

14. Pleading written instruments.—The fact that a petition, that does not attempt to set out the note in haec verba, alleges that the note is payable to T. R. E., when in truth it is payable to T. R. E. & Co., is immaterial; nor is it material that the petition fails to state that there is a provision for an attorney's fee, when the note contains such provision. Jones v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 406.

A petition for a specific performance of a land contract held not objectionable, as failing to show who was the purchaser of the land. Brainard v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 784.

The unauthorized stamping of the note sued on as "Paid" may be shown without pleading, there being no effort to reform for mutual mistake. Ashburn v. Evans (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 242.

A petition in an action on an administrator's bond having alleged its execution and breach, it was not necessary for plaintiff to allege its condition. Hill v. Escort, 38 C. A. 487, 86 S. W. 367.

Where the gist of plaintiff's action for deceit was the fraud of plaintiff's agent in representing an instrument to be valid security, it was immaterial that plaintiff's complaint described the instrument as a mortgage, when in fact it was a bill of sale. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson, 45 C. A. 513, 101 S. W. 1061.

Date of a contract held to be pleaded. Uecker v. Zuercher (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 149.

In an action for delay in transportation, a petition alleging the names of the shippers and consignees, that, by the terms of the contract, defendants agreed to promptly ship and deliver the cotton, and having attached thereto exhibits stating number and date of bill of lading, the number of bales in each shipment, the point of shipment, and the date each consignment reached its destination, was not faulty in failing to show the numbers, dates, and terms of the contract. Dorrance & Co. v. International & G. N. R. Co., 126 S. W. 694, 53 C. A. 460.

In an action on a duebill, an allegation in the petition that defendants executed and entered into said writing, a copy of which is set out, is sufficient, to show delivery, for the allegation imports a delivery. Santa Fé, L. E. & P. Land & Trust Co. v. Cumley (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 889.

In declaring on a note, from which the name of one of the signers was erased before delivery, it should be alleged as the note of the remaining signers. Hess v. Schaffner (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1024.

15. —— Lost instruments and secondary evidence.—It is not necessary for a party to provide, by allegation in his pleadings, for the introduction of secondary evidence of a lost deed or record; it is only where it is a deed, and the party should plead it, that he must excuse the want of profert by an allegation that the deed has been destroyed. Wooten v. Dunlap, 20 T. 183.

In an action of trespass to try title there was an allegation in the petition of the existence, contents and loss of a power of attorney to execute the deed under which plaintiff claimed. It was held that evidence in support of the allegation was admissible. Kinney v. Vinson, 32 T. 125.

In a suit on a lost note, it is not necessary that the petition should allege the loss in order to admit secondary evidence of the contents of the note. Houy v. Gamel, 26 C. A. 123, 62 S. W. 76.

16. —— Parol evidence to vary, add to, or explain writing.—In a suit on a contract the plaintiff was not permitted to introduce evidence to explain a latent ambiguity, there being no allegation that matter not contained in the writing would be relied on. Adams v. Hicks, 41 T. 239.

To permit a contemporaneous condition to be engrafted on a deed in writing, it should be upon proper allegations of fraud, accident, or mistake, and upon clear and satisfactory evidence. Railway Co. v. Garrett, 52 T. 133; Railway Co. v. Pfeuffer, 56 T. 66; Railway Co. v. Dawson, 62 T. 260; Bruner v. Strong, 61 T. 555; Monks v. McGrady, 71 T. 134, 8 S. W. 617.

A lessee cannot recover as on a warranty not contained in the lease without alleging that such warranty was omitted by fraud or mutual mistake. Thomas v. Brin (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 842.

17. Construction of petition.—In general, see notes under Art. 1819.

On demurrer or exception, see notes at end of Chapter 2.

A petition in a suit to recover damages alleged generally that the plaintiff was damaged in a designated sum, and afterwards claimed a different sum as punitory damages and a designated sum as actual damages; the general claim for damages should have been stricken out on exception. McAllen v. Telegraph Co., 70 T. 243, 7 S. W. 715.

Petition to annul deed of homestead as being a mortgage held to exclude all questions except legal effect of the instrument. Kuhn v. Foster, 16 C. A. 465, 41 S. W. 716.

Petition for injury to plaintiff because of an alleged noninsulated wire construed, and held, that the negligence charged was failure to insulate wire with braids of a certain thickness. San Antonio Gas & Electric Co. v. Speegle (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 884.

In an action against a railroad for injuries sustained by accidentally riding into a barb-wire fence erected by defendant, an averment of petition held to warrant an inference that it inclosed the right of way. Bishop v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 1086.

In a suit to set aside a judgment, a general allegation that plaintiff was insane at the time the judgment was recovered held not limited to the issue of limitation but was available for all purposes in the case. McLean v. Stith, 50 C. A. 323, 112 S. W. 355.

In an action against a railroad company for damages for failure to furnish cars as agreed, and for discrimination in furnishing cars for shipment of logs by plaintiff, the petition alleged that defendant agreed to furnish cars for speedy shipment of the logs, but in disregard of plaintiff's rights, issued an order to its local agent to take 117 cars from the general service and use them only for loading piling at a certain station, to which station all such cars were ordered to be billed, for that purpose. Held, that the petition did not allege that defendant used its cars for the maintenance of its lines and hauling material for its own use, but alleged that such cars were set apart for use by shippers generally in shipping piling only. Waugh v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 843.

A petition, not demurred to, will be given every reasonable intendment in its favor. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Saxon (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1091.

All reasonable intendments are to be indulged in aid of a petition rather than against it. Boaz v. Ferrell (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 200.

18. Conclusiveness of allegations.—A private citizen, whose land is flooded by a city waterworks, is not precluded from praying for an abatement of the nuisance by the fact that his petition, as originally filed, merely asked damages to date. City of Ennis v. Gilder, 32 C. A. 351, 74 S. W. 585.

In an action for delay in delivery of cotton, a petition, alleging that, on sundry dates, a certain number of bales of cotton were delivered to one of defendants at named places by A., C. & H., consignors, was not objectionable as failing to state what shipments were made by each, since it appears from the allegations that the parties named were jointly the consignors of each shipment. Dorrance & Co. v. International & G. N. R. Co., 126 S. W. 694, 53 C. A. 460.

19. Pleading bad in part.—A complaint attempting to avoid the execution of several instruments because of duress is insufficient, unless the facts alleged are sufficient to avoid all the instruments. Parker v. Allen, 33 C. A. 206, 76 S. W. 74.

A detached portion of a petition cannot be declared insufficient, without reference to matter pleaded in connection therewith. Altgelt v. Elmendorf (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 41.

20. Designation of court and term.—Petition in county court held not materially defective because not addressed to the county court of any particular county. Smith v. Colquitt (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 690.

21. Names, description, and capacity of parties, and venue.—In a suit against unknown heirs they may be described as the heirs of a person named, as their ancestor. Art. 1875.

It is necessary to show the right to recover in capacity in which plaintiff sues—as that plaintiff is a corporation duly incorporated. Bank v. Simonton, 2 T. 531; Holloway v. M. E. P. & P. R. R. Co., 23 T. 465, 76 Am. Dec. 68. Or administrator duly appointed. Fisk v. Norvel, 9 T. 13, 58 Am. Dec. 128; Boyle v. Forbes, 9 T. 35; Beal v. Batte, 31 T. 371. That an heir or creditor of a decedent has the right to sue. McIntyre v. Chappell, 4 T. 187; Easterling v. Blythe, 7 T. 210, 56 Am. Dec. 45; Lacy v. Williams, 8 T. 182; Clay v. Clay, 13 T. 195; Sevier v. Teal, 16 T. 371; Green v. Rugely, 23 T. 539; Webster v. Willis, 56 T. 468; Wellborn v. O. F. B. & E. Co., 56 T. 501.

When a party is acting in a fiduciary capacity, a valid appointment should be alleged. Fisk v. Norvel, 9 T. 13, 58 Am. Dec. 128; Boyle v. Forbes, 9 T. 35; Beall v. Batte, 31 T. 371; Guest v. Phillips, 34 T. 176.

A party to a written instrument designated by initials of christian name may be so named in the petition. Cummings v. Rice, 9 T. 527; Brown v. Hunter, 38 T. 626.

An allegation that plaintiff is "a resident citizen of the state of Tennessee" held sufficient. Harper v. Nichol, 13 T. 151.

The individual names of partners must be stated. Andrews v. Ennis, 16 T. 45; Burden v. Cross, 33 T. 685.

The corporate name of a corporation and that it is duly incorporated must be alleged. Art. 1826; Holloway v. M. E. P. & P. R. R. Co., 23 T. 465, 76 Am. Dec. 68; L. I. Co. v. Davidge, 51 T. 244. But see G. & R. R. R. Co. v. Shepherd, 21 T. 274; De La Garza v. Bexar Co., 31 T. 484; S. M. Ins. Co. v. Seeligson, 59 T. 3.

Names of the parties must be stated. Weems v. Sheriff of Brazoria County, 48 T. 481; Shaw v. Adams, 2 App. C. C. § 178.

There cannot be a judgment against a person not named as a party in the pleadings. Bell v. Vanzandt, 54 T. 150; Dunlap v. Southerlin, 63 T. 38.

In a suit against R. & Bros. it was alleged that the christian names of the partners were not known; it was sufficient in a collateral proceeding to support a judgment against the persons served with process. Sun M. Ins. Co. v. Seeligson, 59 T. 3.

It is sufficient if names of parties are stated in the caption. Clark v. Haney, 62 T. 511, 50 Am. Rep. 536. A middle name or initial is not known in law and will not be noticed except to show identity. McKay v. Speak, 8 T. 376; Cummings v. Rice, 9 T. 527; State v. Manning, 14 T. 402; Steen v. State, 27 T. 86; Page v. Arnim, 29 T. 53.

The name of the officer or agent upon whom process is to be served should be stated. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Gage, 63 T. 568.

A petition stating the names of the parties in the title, followed by stating the county and court, sufficiently designates the parties and lays the venue. Hall v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 46.

That defendant is described in complaint as the executor of the estate of deceased, instead of the last will of deceased, is immaterial. Craighead v. Bruff (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 764.

A petition against two defendants, using in its commencement the word "defendant," instead of "defendants," but showing by its caption and body that recovery was sought against both, held to charge both with the matters therein complained of. Diamond v. Smith, 27 C. A. 558, 66 S. W. 141.

In an action against county officers for damages to plaintiff's land, a complaint alleging that the ditch in question was constructed by defendants in their official capacity held insufficient to charge such officers individually. Nussbaum v. Bell County, 97 T. 86, 76 S. W. 430.

When the residence of the defendant is not stated, so that under articles 1850, 1852, there is no authority for the clerk to issue citation to another county, and it is not shown that a copy of the petition accompanied the citation, a judgment by default will not be sustained. Tyler v. Blanton, 34 C. A. 393, 78 S. W. 565.

Petition describing plaintiff as independent executrix held not one in her individual capacity, where it again mentions her as a distinct party suing in her own right. McKee v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 880.

A petition by partners considered, and held to show that the action was brought by the individuals composing the firm, and to be sufficient, in the absence of a special exception. Scott v. Llano County Bank (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 301.

The averment of a complaint held to make a person a party plaintiff. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Ploeger (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 226.

In trespass to try title, evidence that written acknowledgments of ownership of "railway" company referred to plaintiff "railroad" company held admissible without pleading of misnomer. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Haynes, 44 C. A. 272, 97 S. W. 849.

The petition, though showing plaintiff to be a corporation, need not give the names of its officers, under this article. Yates v. Royston State Bank (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 255.

In a stated case, a suit held to have been brought and an attachment sued out by a party having a legal entity. Lester v. Ricks (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 395.

Allegations of a petition, in a suit for specific performance, that another was interested in the contract with plaintiff were sufficient, on general demurrer, to authorize his joinder as a party plaintiff. Tolar v. South Texas Development Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 911.

Where the pleadings and affidavit and bond in an attachment suit show that plaintiff is suing as a bank by and through its president and sole manager, L. T. L., and that the bank is a private bank owned and controlled solely by L. T. L., and he had in fact no partner, the attachment proceedings will not be quashed on the theory that the plaintiff is not a legal entity, since the pleadings sufficiently show that L. T. L. was the real and only party suing. Lester v. Riley (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 458.

22. Statement of cause of action in general.—When the petition shows no legal cause of action the error is fundamental. City of Laredo v. Russell, 56 T. 398.

As to the statement of the cause of action, see Maddox v. City of Rockport (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 397.

Plaintiff held to have the right to so plead as to anticipate every possible phase of the testimony. Texas Brewing Co. v. Walters (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 548.

A petition which fails to state the date of the injuries complained of or give some reason why the date cannot be stated, is defective as tested by special demurrer. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 272.

To sustain a petition against a general exception, it must allege sufficient facts to enable the court to see that a good cause of action exists, and not merely that it might exist. Schlinke v. De Witt County (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 660.

A claim not pleaded or asserted by plaintiff below cannot be considered on appeal. Crum v. Slade & Bassett (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 351.

Whether a petition states a cause of action must be determined by the allegations in it and without reference to testimony in support of it. Niagara Fire Ins. Co. v. Lollar (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1140.

23. Theory and form of action.—A petition by a surety who paid a note and procured a transfer thereof to himself held based on an implied contract of the principal to indemnify him, and not on the note as a contract belonging to plaintiff. Boyd v. Beville, 91 T. 439, 44 S. W. 287.

Where a complaint to correct a deed alleges that the mistake constitutes a cloud on the title, the action is nevertheless for the reformation of the deed. Mathews v. Benevides, 18 C. A. 475, 45 S. W. 31.

Action for damages for a conveyance of lands by defendant to another, when he had previously sold the lands to plaintiff, is maintainable at law. Mitchell v. Simons (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 76.

A complaint held to constitute an action for the recovery of damages stipulated by contract, and hence not demurrable as setting up an estate in land under an unacknowledged agreement. Ackermann v. Ackermann Schuetzen Verein (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 366.

Where an employer fails to furnish an employé medical attendance, as he has agreed to do, the employé's cause of action is for breach of contract, and not in tort for negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hennegan, 33 C. A. 314, 76 S. W. 452.

A demand for breach of marriage promise and seduction held a demand for breach of contract. Biela v. Urbanczyk, 38 C. A. 213, 85 S. W. 451.

A complaint for breach of contract held demurrable for stating damages as in tort. Scanlon v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 930.

Petition held to set up an express contract between plaintiff and defendant, and not an implied contract. Ragley v. Godley (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 66.

Damages for the destruction of growing fruit trees which have no value when detached from the soil can only be recovered in a suit for damages for injury to the realty. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Warnecke, 43 C. A. 83, 95 S. W. 600.

The allegations of a petition held to show that the action was for a tort. Pfeiffer v. Wilke (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 361.

Where plaintiff may bring his action either on contract or in tort, if the language of the petition is equivocal, it will be construed as in tort. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. v. Rosebrook-Josey Grain Co., 52 C. A. 156, 114 S. W. 436.

Actions against telegraph companies for failure to correctly transmit and promptly deliver messages are actions ex contractu, rather than ex delicto. El Paso & N. E. Ry. Co. v. Sawyer, 54 C. A. 387, 119 S. W. 110.

A party cannot by changing the form of his action evade the necessity of pleading and proving a fact essential to his right to recovery. Hoffman v. Buchanan, 57 C. A. 368, 123 S. W. 168.

In view of the petition, held, that a suit was to recover damages sustained by reason of the death of plaintiff's son, and nothing more. Dye v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 893.

Where the complaint, in an action to recover the difference between the rate stated by the initial carrier for a through interstate shipment and the authorized published rate which he was required to pay, did not show any disregard of his instructions in the matter of routing, or any refusal to transport the shipment by the route carrying the lowest rate, and it is undisputed that he chose and directed the route, and the shipment went according to the route so chosen, the action is not one for damages for refusal of the initial carrier to transport the shipment over the least expensive route, but for damages for failure of the initial carrier to give plaintiff correct information in regard to the rate. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Leslie (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 824.

The suit held not strictly one on an account, so as to make the petition subject to exception of not itemizing accounts sued on, and not giving the different items and value thereof. Small v. Rush (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 874.

A petition against an acceptor of an order by a debtor to pay the creditor out of excess collateral in the acceptor's hands held to state a cause of action in tort. Ross v. W. D. Cleveland & Sons (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 315.

If a broker is entitled to recover any compensation on a sale made by his principal on terms differing from those set forth in his contract, he must sue upon a quantum meruit and not on the contract. Clark v. Asbury (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 286.

An action held one for damages for the conversion of mules, and not for their possession. Wilks v. Kreis (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 838.

The petition, in an action by a purchaser of land against his vendors, held to state a cause of action for recovery of damages, and not for rescission. Fordtran v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 562.

The distinction between actions at law and suits in equity held not recognized. Banks v. Blake (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1183.

Where the plaintiff's pleading sets out the facts and circumstances showing that a sale agreement was induced by fraud, states the relation of the parties to the suit, and then prays such equitable relief as he is entitled under the pleading and proof, it is not insufficient for failure to show whether cancellation or damages is sought. Hagelstein v. Blaschke (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 718.

A purchaser cannot recover damages for shortage in land bought, merely because of mutual mistake, there being no fraud, at least in the absence of allegation and proof that rescission, ordinarily the proper relief, could not be made, or would operate unfairly. Landrum v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 813.

A complaint, alleging that plaintiff placed a colt of a certain value with defendant for pasturage and keeping, at a certain price per month, and that defendant agreed to pasture and care for the same and return upon demand, declared solely upon an express contract. Bagley v. Brack (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 247.

An action for the recovery of personal chattels in specie is in substance one of detinue. Tiefel Bros. & Winn v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 319.

A petition against connecting carriers for loss of certain cotton held to state a cause of action ex contractu and not ex delicto. Elder, Dempster & Co. v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 105 T. 628, 154 S. W. 975.

24. Separate causes of action—Separate statement.—Caldwell v. Haley, 3 T. 317, discussed and adhered to, but held not to apply where several distinct items are set out. Railway Co. v. Granger, 85 T. 574, 22 S. W. 959.

A single statement should be made of the same subject-matter. Court rules, 47 T. 616, 84 T. 708; McClelland v. Smith, 3 T. 210; Caldwell v. Haley, 3 T. 317; Mays v. Lewis, 4 T. 38; Hollis v. Chapman, 36 T. 1.

The elements of actual and exemplary damages should be separately stated. Kaufman v. Wicks, 62 T. 234.

See petition in this case setting out several distinct items of service for which compensation was asked. There was a general demurrer, and a special exception that "the petition does not show the items of service claimed by the plaintiff with sufficient certainty and particularity to require the defendant to plead thereto." Some of the items were distinctly described. Held, that the general demurrer was rightly overruled. Railway Co. v. Granger, 85 T. 574, 22 S. W. 959.

Actual and exemplary damages held to have been specially pleaded, though the allegations were in one paragraph. Land v. Klein, 21 C. A. 3, 50 S. W. 638.

A petition, alleging in the same section that there was an express and an implied contract, held not objectionable. Broussard v. South Texas Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 587.

The right of a mortgagor to recover possession and to redeem are separate and independent causes of action which must be presented by appropriate pleadings, although they may be joined in the same suit. Burks v. Burks (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 337.

25. Separate counts on same cause of action.—A complaint may allege an unlawful taking and conversion in one paragraph, and in another plead that, if it should appear that the taking was lawful, then the conversion occurred through a refusal to surrender the property. Bryden v. Croft (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 853.

A second paragraph held to set out with sufficient definiteness a conversion other than that alleged in the first. Id.

Where a petition contains two counts, and no exception is taken thereto, the plaintiff is entitled to recover on either count. City of Dallas v. Jones, 93 T. 38, 49 S. W. 577, 53 S. W. 377.

Plaintiff may by one count seek to recover for value of goods sold, and by another for the agreed price. Loftus v. King, 23 C. A. 36, 56 S. W. 109.

In an action for broker's services under a contract, plaintiff held entitled to join a prayer for a recovery of the reasonable value of his services on a quantum meruit. McDonald v. Cabiness (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 943.

One may, by separate counts, state a cause of action on an express contract and in the alternative on a quantum meruit in case the express contract fails of proof. Jones v. Holtzen (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 121.

26. Joinder of causes of action.—Several causes of action or defense may be joined. Smith v. Doak, 3 T. 215; Fitzhugh v. Custer, 4 T. 391, 51 Am. Dec. 728; Dobbin v. Bryan, 5 T. 276; Mitchell v. Sheppard, 13 T. 484; Clegg v. Varnell, 18 T. 294; Waddell v. Williams, 37 T. 351; Bond v. Dillard, 50 T. 302; Cordray v. State, 55 T. 140; Love v. Keowne, 58 T. 191.

One action of trespass to try title and for partition may be brought for several tracts of land, the issues as to all the tracts being the same. Yellow Pine Lumber Co. v. Carroll, 76 T. 135, 13 S. W. 261.

The joinder of causes of action is left in large measure to the discretion of the trial court. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Browne, 27 C. A. 437, 66 S. W. 341.

Suit by widow to declare certain assets community estate, etc., held not to involve misjoinder of cause of action. Milam v. Hill, 29 C. A. 573, 69 S. W. 447.

A proceeding to correct a judgment may be joined with one to revive it. Taylor v. Doom, 43 C. A. 59, 95 S. W. 4.

An action for negligent death held not to improperly include several causes of action. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers, 41 C. A. 632, 95 S. W. 607.

A petition against an acceptor of an order by a debtor to pay the creditor out of excess collateral in the acceptor's hands, held not bad as misjoining actions because it presented inconsistent theories. Ross v. W. D. Cleveland & Sons (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 315.

A suit arising under vendor's lien notes held not to constitute misjoinder of causes of action. Bowden v. Bridgman (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1043.

27. —— Injuries to person, property, or reputation.—An action for malicious prosecution may be joined with one for false imprisonment. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Griffin, 20 C. A. 91, 48 S. W. 542.

A petition is not duplicitous in combining in one count causes of action for slander and malicious prosecution. Kleinsmith v. Hamlin (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 994.

In one action one may recover damages for personal discomfort and for depreciation of property owing to the erection of a coal hoist. Daniel v. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co., 96 T. 327, 72 S. W. 578.

Causes of action against railroad for damages to property held properly joined. Jackson v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 724.

The children of a decedent, who died pending his action for injuries, held entitled to join the cause of action for his death with the original cause of action for the injuries. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hengst, 36 C. A. 217, 81 S. W. 832.

Plaintiff might join in one action a cause of action for the flooding of his land and for actual and exemplary damages for his wrongful arrest by defendant. Cody v. Lowry (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 1109.

If one had title to the entire track, he could not split up his cause of action by bringing two or more successive suits to recover parts of it. Craig v. Broocks (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 572.

A holder of an accident and health insurance policy, providing for a monthly indemnity in case of disability, has a distinct and separate right of action for each monthly installment. Rau v. American Nat. Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 645.

43. Reference from one part of petition to another or to other instruments.—Where plaintiff alleged as a written land contract a letter which described the land by reference to other letters in defendant's possession, which contained a valid description of the property, the complaint was not demurrable for insufficiency of description in the letter set out. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n v. Forse (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 818.

Where the description in a contract for the sale of land was sufficient to identify it, a petition for specific performance held not demurrable on the ground that the contract failed to show in what county the land was situated. Brainard v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 784.

Joinder of causes of action for wrongful release of vendor's lien, for a foreclosure of the lien, and a recovery on the notes held not to relieve plaintiff of the necessity of alleging all the facts necessary to the cause of action for the wrongful release. Busch v. Broun (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 683.

44. Right of plaintiff.—Right or interest in subject-matter must be alleged—as plaintiff's right to note sued on. Merrill v. Smith, 22 T. 53; Malone v. Craig, 22 T. 609; Thigpen v. Mundine, 24 T. 282; Moody v. Benge, 28 T. 545; Gilder v. McIntyre, 29 T. 89; Col-

bertson v. Beeson, 30 T. 76; Gregg v. Johnson, 37 T. 558. And see Blount v. Ralston, 20 T. 132; Rutherford v. Smith, 28 T. 322; Barnard v. Moseley, 28 T. 543.

Where it is the law that, if there is a county attorney, the attorney for a city in the county cannot represent the state, held, that a petition by the city attorney against the county for fees was defective in not alleging that there was no county attorney. Harris County v. Stewart, 17 C. A. 1, 43 S. W. 52.

On facts pleaded, held that the party claiming land showed only a reversionary interest, and hence his right of action accrued only on the death of the life tenant. Caffey's Ex'rs v. Cooksey, 19 C. A. 145, 47 S. W. 65.

In an action by a corporation on a bond executed to another corporation, the petition held sufficient to show that the plaintiff had a right to sue on the bond. French, Finch & Co. v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1034.

The petition in a suit by an executor held sufficient to show his authority to prosecute the suit and why the heirs do not prosecute. Taylor v. Williams (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 837.

In an action against a carrier for the negligent handling of a corpse, the petition and evidence held to show that the wife of plaintiff sustained such a relation to the transportation of the corpse that a recovery for her suffering was warranted. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hawkins, 50 C. A. 128, 109 S. W. 221.

An allegation in a petition on a note that plaintiff was the successor in office of the payee was sufficient to show plaintiff's right to sue. Hess v. Schaffner (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1024.

In an action for breach of a contract to pay off a mortgage on certain lots, a petition held not defective for failure to allege whether plaintiff was a party to the foreclosure proceedings. Green v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 999.

The petition showing that by defendant's negligence the use of a well on plaintiff's land was for a given time destroyed, and averring that plaintiff by assignment acquired any claim to damages resulting from such negligence to G., and was "entitled to recover for such damages," states a cause of action, and so, in the absence of exception thereto, is sufficient without allegation of the negligence having injured G.'s possession and use of the well. Texas Co. v. Giddings (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1142.

45. —— Ownership, title, or possession.—Evidence that plaintiff was in possession of goods as trustee under chattel mortgage is admissible, under allegation that he was lawful owner and holder of such goods. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Hanson, 21 C. A. 401, 53 S. W. 62.

An allegation of ownership in a petition in an action to recover taxes on unrendered personal property held not sufficient as against a demurrer specifically raising such objection. State v. Trilling (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 788.

In an action against carrier for damage to goods shipped, consignee's general allegation of ownership held sufficient. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Dorsey, 30 C. A. 377, 70 S. W. 575.

Complaint in an action for damages held insufficient, as failing to show in what manner plaintiff obtained the ownership of the claim. Burnet Ansley Jewelry Co. v. Linz, 33 C. A. 273, 76 S. W. 773.

In an action against a railroad for failure to place cattle guards at the points where the road entered plaintiff's premises, the petition held, as against a general demurrer, to sufficiently show plaintiff the owner of the premises, and to sufficiently describe the same. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wetz, 38 C. A. 563, 87 S. W. 373.

A petition in scire facias to revive a judgment held to show plaintiff's interest in the judgment entitling him to have the same revived. Henry v. Red Water Lumber Co., 46 C. A. 179, 102 S. W. 749.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries to crops caused by flowage, petition held to sufficiently allege the title and interest of plaintiffs. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Buchanan, 48 C. A. 129, 107 S. W. 595.

46. —— Right of foreign corporation to sue.—See notes under Art. 1318.

47. —— Coplaintiffs.—In a suit by several upon equitable grounds to establish a tenancy in common with defendant, held unnecessary to aver and establish the specific interest claimed by each plaintiff. Henyan v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 458.

48. Matter of inducement and performance of conditions.—Matter of inducement should be stated when of the substance of the case, or necessary to introduce or explain it. McGehee v. Shafer, 9 T. 20; Ingram v. Drinkard, 14 T. 351.

It is necessary to allege the performance of a preliminary act, as the presentation and rejection of a claim against the county. Hohman v. Comal County, 34 T. 36. Or against an estate. Dean v. Duffield, 8 T. 235, 58 Am. Dec. 108; Wiley v. Pinson, 23 T. 486; Thompson v. Branch, 35 T. 21. But this allegation is unnecessary when the estate is administered independent of control of county court (Pleasants v. Davidson, 34 T. 459), or by the survivor of the community (Black v. Rockmore, 50 T. 88, 99). The acceptance of an assignment for benefit of creditors. Sanborn v. Norton, 59 T. 308. The performance of a condition precedent. T. P. Ry. Co. v. Hamm, 2 App. C. C. § 496.

When a fee is payable on a contingency, in a suit therefor the happening of the contingency must be alleged. Maddox v. Craig, 80 T. 600, 16 S. W. 328.

Allegations, in action for breach of contract to accept sawlogs, that they were duly tendered, held sufficient to admit proof of compliance with contract by plaintiff. Sabine Tram Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 905.

In an action against a county upon a contract which requires plaintiff to give a bond before he does certain printing, a failure to allege that such bond was given renders the petition demurrable. Lillard v. Freestone County, 23 C. A. 363, 57 S. W. 338.

A complaint in an action for breach of contract held not demurrable as showing a breach of the contract by the plaintiffs. McClellan v. McLemore (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 224.

A vendor in a contract for the sale of real estate, who sues for the deposit made by the purchaser as required by the contract, held required to allege in his petition that the abstract furnished by him showed a good title. Bowles v. Umberson (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 842.

In a vendee's suit for specific performance, tender of performance by plaintiff in his pleadings without payment of the purchase money into court entitles him to go to the jury on the facts found. Fordtran v. Dunovant, 54 C. A. 564, 118 S. W. 768.

In an action for delay in transporting, a petition is not faulty in failing to allege that the freight charges were paid in advance. Dorrance & Co. v. International & G. N. R. Co., 126 S. W. 694, 53 C. A. 460.

In an action by a shipper of live stock against a railroad for loss of the animals, where the action is based on defendant's failure to discharge its duty as a common carrier, plaintiff need neither allege nor prove the amount of his filed claim, and, if he sets up damages other than those set forth in the claim, this is matter of defense. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Harriman Bros. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 932.

A party suing for breach of contract held not required to allege the issuance of a certificate of the engineer of the adverse party that the contract has been completed. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Eichel & Weikel (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 922.

Article 4746 requires a specific allegation in the petition of demand and refusal to pay within the time prescribed, and a petition merely alleging that, though often requested, insurer has refused to pay the policy or any part thereof, is not sufficient to justify the recovery of the damages and attorney's fees. General Accident, Fire & Life Assur. Corp. v. Lacy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1170.

49. Act, omission, or liability of defendant.—The liability of the adverse party must be alleged—as, that defendant executed the note sued on. Jennings v. Moss, 4 T. 452; Frazier v. Todd, 4 T. 461; Ross v. Breeding, 13 T. 16; Sneed v. Moodie, 24 T. 159; Moody v. Benge, 28 T. 545; Parr v. Nolen, 28 T. 798; Gilder v. McIntyre, 29 T. 89; Belcher v. Wilson, 31 T. 139; Unger v. Anderson, 37 T. 550. But see Barnard v. Moseley, 28 T. 543. That the defendant, sued as surviving widow, received assets subject to execution. Steptow v. Martin, 2 App. C. C. § 755. That the contract of the wife, who is sued, was for the benefit of her separate property. Trimble v. Miller, 24 T. 214; Covington v. Burleson, 28 T. 368; Menard v. Sydnor, 29 T. 257; Lynch v. Elkes, 21 T. 229. And see Haynes v. Stovall, 23 T. 625; Jackson v. Harby, 65 T. 710, as to necessary averments. That defendant has possession of property claimed by plaintiff. Newsom v. Beard, 45 T. 151. How defendant is liable for debts of his ancestor. Ansley v. Baker, 14 T. 607, 65 Am. Dec. 136; Green v. Rugely, 23 T. 539; Patterson v. Allen, 50 T. 23; McCampbell v. Henderson, 50 T. 601; Webster v. Willis, 56 T. 468. The official character and duties of an officer sued for negligence. George v. Vaughn, 55 T. 129.

A complaint alleging that defendants usurped offices of county officers, rejected plaintiff's bond, and declared the county office to which he had been elected vacant states no cause of action, the acts of the usurpers being absolutely void. Millican v. McNeil, 92 T. 400, 49 S. W. 219.

50. —— Codefendants.—A petition which states a cause of action as to certain defendants, but not as to the other defendants, is not subject to dismissal, as disclosing a several, and not a joint, liability against each defendant. Hume v. Howard (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 202.

A petition in an action for broker's services held to charge that his contract of employment was the contract of each of the defendants and not the joint contract of both. McDonald v. Cabiness (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 943.

A petition, in an action by the transferee of a note, held insufficient to justify the making of the payee a party defendant. Young v. State Bank of Marshall, 54 C. A. 206, 117 S. W. 476.

A petition to cancel contract to convey and conveyances thereunder from plaintiff to defendant, and from defendant to codefendant, alleging that codefendant purchased with knowledge of such facts as prevented him from being an innocent purchaser, is sufficient to charge codefendant, who claimed as an innocent purchaser. Boswell v. Pannell (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 233.

51. Statutory actions.—Sufficiency of petition against foreign corporation charging contracts in restraint of trade, in violation of statute, reviewed. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State, 19 C. A. 1, 44 S. W. 936.

In action merely for damages under article 714 it is not necessary to allege a demand in writing for the cars. This is only in a suit for the penalty. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 37 C. A. 595, 85 S. W. 44.

The plaintiff in a suit to recover the penalty under article 714 must allege the fact that the duty imposed upon the carrier by that article was not waived by a special contract. The rule is as follows: "If facts in nature of exceptions enter into the statutory description of the injury are contained in the enacting clause, they must be negatived in the pleadings, but if they are contained in subsequent articles or statutes or go only to defeat a liability otherwise apparent, they are matters of defense." Id.

A petition to recover a statutory penalty must allege the necessary facts with the same degree of certainty as is required in an indictment. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cole (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 753.

The petition, in an action against an irrigation company incorporated under the irrigation statutes, for negligent failure to furnish water, held not insufficient for failure to allege that the defendant had a superior right to appropriate the water. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 286.

In an action against an irrigation company for failure to furnish water on notice or demand, allegations of the complaint held sufficient to put in issue the sufficiency of notice and to fairly raise the question of plaintiff's justification in failing to continue making demand. Id.

52. Duplicity and multifariousness.—Complaint in action for personal injuries alleged that plaintiff, without fault, was thrown from defendant's car and injured, and in a second count that he was injured in a voluntary attempt to leave the train. Held, not bad for duplicity. Railway Co. v. Buford, 21 S. W. 272, 2 C. A. 115.

A bill for contribution between joint obligors is not bad for multifariousness or mis-joinder of actions, because it includes matters which would be ground for separate actions at law. Mateer v. Cockrill, 18 C. A. 391, 45 S. W. 751.

A joint petition by an owner of property destroyed by fire and by a fire insurance company which had paid a loss thereon against a railroad company for causing the fire states a single cause of action. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Miller, 27 C. A. 344, 66 S. W. 139.

A petition held not multifarious. Tison v. Gass, 46 C. A. 163, 102 S. W. 751.

In an action for delay in transportation of cotton, a petition held not multifarious. Dorrance & Co. v. International & G. N. R. Co., 53 C. A. 460, 126 S. W. 694.

One may not recover both on an express contract and on a quantum meruit and hence both may not be declared on in the same count. Jones v. Holtzen (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 121.

A bill in equity is not demurrable because its subject-matter might have been the occasion of numerous suits at law. Slaton v. Anthony (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 201.

53. Anticipating defenses.—It is not necessary to negative matters of defense. Porter v. Burkett, 65 T. 383.

Where the application for the policy of insurance is in the hands of the company, it is not necessary that the petition, in a suit on the policy, negative the violation of the conditions recited in the application. Life & Accident Ins. Co. v. Koen, 11 C. A. 273, 33 S. W. 134.

Foreign corporation's assignee for creditors need not allege that assignment was authorized by laws of corporation's domicile. Miller v. Goodman, 15 C. A. 244, 40 S. W. 743.

That petition against bank for conversion of funds deposited by plaintiff, a married woman, fails to allege that plaintiff's husband did not draw out such funds, is no ground for a special demurrer. Coleman v. First Nat. Bank, 17 C. A. 132, 43 S. W. 938.

An action for personal injuries in a foreign country held maintainable without allegation that it is maintainable there. Mexican Cent. Ry. Co. v. Goodman, 20 C. A. 109, 48 S. W. 778.

In an action for breach of an employment contract, it was not necessary for plaintiff to allege that he endeavored to find work after his discharge or the amount of his earnings. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Moore, 46 C. A. 259, 101 S. W. 867.

It is not necessary for plaintiff in his petition to anticipate and avoid defenses to his action. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy, 52 C. A. 22, 113 S. W. 574.

The petition in an action under the statute need not negative a proviso therein; that being a matter of defense. Lane v. Bell, 53 C. A. 213, 115 S. W. 918.

Where plaintiff's petition sets up facts constituting a defense to the cause of action alleged, it is insufficient unless the effect of such defense is avoided by other allegations. Reasoner v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 213.

The plaintiff need not allege and prove the reasonableness of the fee provided for in the vendor's lien note. Brasfield v. Young (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 180.

In an action to recover half of the remainder of the proceeds of land, sold by trustee after payment of the debt, pursuant to an agreement to divide the remainder between the creditor and the debtor, allegations of the petition as to the release of plaintiff's interest in the land, procured by fraudulent representations that there was no residue, held unnecessary, and more properly set up by supplemental petition. Barnes v. Central Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1172.

54. —— Negativing contributory negligence or other fault.—In an action for injuries through negligence, plaintiff need not negative his want of ordinary care in his petition, unless he states facts showing contributory negligence, when he must plead such other facts as will rebut such legal presumption. Railway Co. v. Redeker, 67 T. 181, 2 S. W. 513; Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Bohan (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1050; Louisiana & T. Lumber Co. v. Brown, 50 C. A. 482, 109 S. W. 950; Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Young, 50 C. A. 610, 111 S. W. 704; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. King (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 151.

Allegations of failure to give signals of the approach of a train held not subject to exception because the petition showed that plaintiff was lying on the track in a fit, rendering him wholly unable to get out of the way. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Holzheuser (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 188.

Where plaintiff sues for breach of contract to furnish good seed for planting, he need not negative his contributory negligence in not procuring such seed as he contracted for. Hoopes v. East, 19 C. A. 531, 48 S. W. 764.

A petition in an action for injuries to a servant held not to show contributory negligence. Greenville Oil & Cotton Co. v. Harkey, 20 C. A. 225, 48 S. W. 1005; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Zapp (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 673; Bering Mfg. Co. v. Femelat, 35 C. A. 36, 79 S. W. 869; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Reed, 54 C. A. 26, 116 S. W. 69; Dawson v. King (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 917; Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Thompson, 140 S. W. 1148; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Roberts, 144 S. W. 691.

Petition held insufficient to raise an issue as to contributory negligence on the part of plaintiff. Louisiana W. E. Ry. Co. v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 649.

A complaint in an action against a railway company for an injury to a child, received on an unguarded turntable, held sufficient to show that the child was there at the company's implied invitation. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Morgan, 24 C. A. 58, 58 S. W. 544.

A complaint in an action against a railroad company for an injury to a child on an unguarded turntable held not demurrable, as seeking to establish an invitation to children to play thereon by proof of failure to keep the turntable locked. Id.

Petition in an action for injuries sustained by plaintiff on his jumping from a moving train held not to show plaintiff guilty of negligence as a matter of law. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Crockett, 27 C. A. 463, 66 S. W. 114.

A petition alleging negligence in running a railroad train, whereby plaintiff was injured in attempting to save his child on the track, held good as against a general demurrer. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 229.

A petition in an action for injuries held not to show that plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence in attempting to drive over a railroad crossing past a hand car left there, which frightened the horses. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Locke (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1082.

In an action for injuries to a pedestrian while standing between two railway tracks, a petition held not to show that plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Keller, 33 C. A. 358, 76 S. W. 801.

In action against a railroad for injuries to one alighting in fright from wagon on a train passing a crossing, petition held to sufficiently show actual danger. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Booth, 35 C. A. 322, 80 S. W. 121.

A complaint in an action for personal injuries considered, and held not to show that plaintiff's own negligence was the proximate cause of his injuries. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Goodman, 38 C. A. 175, 85 S. W. 492.

In an action for death of a pedestrian while walking along defendant's railroad track, the petition held not subject to exception as showing that intestate was a trespasser. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Snowden, 44 C. A. 509, 99 S. W. 865.

A petition in an action for personal injuries to one drawing water from a tank car, held to negative contributory negligence. Louisiana & T. Lumber Co. v. Brown, 50 C. A. 482, 109 S. W. 950.

The petition held not to show a person injured while attempting to cross a railroad was a trespasser or guilty of contributory negligence. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Ryan, 53 C. A. 85, 114 S. W. 906.

A petition for injuries to a servant held sufficient as against a special exception that plaintiff in placing his hand on the rolling door by which he was injured committed a voluntary and unnecessary act not in the discharge of his duty. Dawson v. King (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 917.

A petition for injuries to a servant held sufficient as against a special exception that plaintiff should have alleged that the use of the door by which he was injured was necessary to a proper prosecution of his work. Id.

A petition in an action for injuries to a passenger while riding on the bumper of a crowded street car with the permission of the conductor, owing to the negligent management of the car by which a collision was caused, held not demurrable as raising an inference of contributory negligence and assumption of risk. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Happ, 57 C. A. 427, 122 S. W. 610.

A petition for injury to a pedestrian in railway yards held to sufficiently show that he was not a trespasser. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Driver (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 409.

Exceptions to allegations of petition, in action for negligence on the ground that it showed contributory negligence on its face, held properly overruled, where the allegations might show that he was a licensee. Freeman v. Moreman (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1045.

55. —— Negativing assumption of risk.—A complaint to recover for a servant's injuries held not to show that the injury resulted from dangers and risks incident to the employment. Greenville Oil & Cotton Co. v. Harkey, 20 C. A. 225, 48 S. W. 1005; American Cotton Co. v. Smith, 29 C. A. 425, 69 S. W. 443; Dawson v. King (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 917; Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Thompson, 140 S. W. 1148.

Complaint, in action for personal injuries, alleging promise of employer to repair defects, held not to admit knowledge of defects at time of the accident. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Nordell, 20 C. A. 362, 50 S. W. 601.

In an action for injuries to a servant by an alleged defective appliance, petition held to show that plaintiff assumed the risk. Klutts v. Gibson Bros., 37 C. A. 216, 83 S. W. 404; Smith v. Armour & Co., 37 C. A. 633, 84 S. W. 675; Snipes v. Bomar Cotton Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 428.

56. —— Negativing negligence of fellow servant.—In action for injuries to a servant of railway company, allegations of petition held to present question of fact, whether defendant's employé who caused the injury was in the same grade of employment with plaintiff. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Mohrmann, 42 C. A. 374, 93 S. W. 1090.

A petition held to sufficiently designate the foreman of defendant alleged to be negligent, without naming him. Suderman & Dolson v. Kriger, 50 C. A. 29, 109 S. W. 373.

A petition for injury to a servant held, as against special exception, not to sufficiently allege the negligent servant was a vice principal as to plaintiff. Id.

A petition for injuries to a servant held sufficient as against a special exception that the petition should have stated that the employés by whose negligence the door was left insecure, by which plaintiff was injured, were not his fellow servants or servants subject to his control. Dawson v. King (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 917.

57. —— Statute of frauds and limitations.—A petition on a promise within the statute of frauds need not allege a promise in writing. Cross v. Everts, 28 T. 523; Fisher v. Bowser, 41 T. 222; Lessing v. Cunningham, 55 T. 233; Gonzales v. Chartier, 63 T. 36; New York & Texas Land Co. v. Dooley, 33 C. A. 636, 77 S. W. 1030; Carson Bros. v. McCord-Collins Co., 37 C. A. 540, 84 S. W. 391; Tyson v. Jackson Bros., 41 C. A. 128, 90 S. W. 930; International Harvester Co. v. Campbell, 43 C. A. 421, 96 S. W. 93; King v. Murray (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 255; Matthews v. Towell (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 169.

Where a party has applied for an injunction to prevent the defendant from clouding his title by a sale under a deed of trust, and bases his application on the allegation that the deed of trust is barred by limitation, he must negative the existence of facts which would prevent the running of the statute, and it is not necessary for the defendant to plead the statutory exceptions in order to admit proof. Gillis v. Rosenheimer, 64 T. 243.

A petition alleging an agreement to convey land, but not stating whether the agreement was verbal or written, does not show the agreement to be within the statute. Richerson v. Moody, 17 C. A. 67, 42 S. W. 317.

Where, from the face of the petition, it appears that the plaintiff is a person of unsound mind, sustaining a demurrer thereto on the ground of limitations is erroneous. Killfoil v. Moore (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 1024.

A petition declaring on a note apparently barred, and on written promises not barred admitting the justness of the debt, and promising to pay it, held to state a cause of action. Clayton v. Watkins, 19 C. A. 133, 47 S. W. 810.

Creditor's allegation that he could not by reasonable diligence have discovered fraud in debtor's conveyance held insufficient to avoid bar of statute of limitations; facts relied on not being stated. Vodrie v. Tynan (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 680.

Objection that coverture to relieve from the bar of limitation was not pleaded held not well taken. Darrow v. Summerhill, 24 C. A. 208, 58 S. W. 158.

When it could be construed that the facts pleaded in a petition constituted a guaranty to pay the debt of another, it was not necessary to allege that the promise was in writing. Slayden v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 715.

Facts relied on to avoid the bar of limitations on the ground of fraud must be pleaded. Boren v. Boren, 38 C. A. 139, 85 S. W. 48.

In an action on a physician's contract of employment, plaintiff held not precluded from claiming that the contract was not within the statute of frauds as a contract not performable within a year, by the fact that plaintiff alleged that the contract was one for two years. Lennard v. Texarkana Lumber Co., 46 C. A. 402, 94 S. W. 383.

A petition in an action for fraud in the sale of real estate held sufficient, in the absence of an exception, to admit proof on the purchaser's part that he was not negligent in failing to have earlier discovered the fraud charged, and thereby defeat the defense of limitations. Waller v. Gray, 43 C. A. 405, 94 S. W. 1098.

Under the allegations of a complaint, held presumable that an agreement to release a vendor's lien was in writing. McKinley v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 112.

A petition to foreclose a lien given by a note held sufficient as against a special exception that it showed on its face that the lien was barred. Munroe v. Munroe, 54 C. A. 320, 116 S. W. 878.

A petition held not to set out a contract void under the statute of frauds. Hatzfeld v. Walsh, 55 C. A. 573, 120 S. W. 525.

Where a widow claimed certain land under a parol sale from her husband, an allegation that she made improvements on the faith and credit of such parol agreements was sufficient. Reyes v. Escalera (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 627.

A petition, in an action against an initial and connecting carriers for failure to deliver freight, held not to allege a conversion prior to a certain date, so that the action was not shown to be barred by the two-year limitation. Davies v. Texas Cent. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 295.

Petition, in an action to compel specific performance of an oral contract to convey, held not to allege that plaintiff had obtained and held exclusive possession, so as to take the contract out of the statute of frauds. Purington v. Brown (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1080.

Contracts for the extension of notes can be proved on the trial to have been in writing without such averments in the petition. Matthews v. Towell (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 169.

Allegations in plaintiff's petition in suit to correct mistake in a deed held insufficient as a prima facie excuse for plaintiff's laches in bringing suit. Mounger v. Daugherty (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1070.

A plaintiff, in view of his pleadings, held not entitled to raise for the first time, on appeal, that an action was not barred by limitations, because the claim sued on arose out of a firm transaction. Glenn v. McFaddin (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 234.

Where a contract was renewed within the period of limitation, a petition declaring on the debt will be considered as declaring on the renewal contract in order to defeat the plea of limitations. Cain v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

58. Admissions.—Where one intervener pleaded an estoppel as tenant against the other's claim to realty, a failure to deny the plea entitles the former to recover. Bruce v. First Nat. Bank, 25 C. A. 295, 60 S. W. 1006.

Where a grantee of a lessor, suing the lessee for rent, subsequently accruing, pleaded the deed as transferring the lease, the allegation in the petition that a part of the rent was orally reserved by the lessor was merely an admission of her right and a disclaimer by the grantee that far, notwithstanding the deed. Vogel v. Zuercher (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 737.

Where the petition alleged that a release executed by plaintiff was obtained by defendant's fraud, defendant could rely on the admission of the execution of the release without also accepting the allegations as to fraud; the allegation as to the execution of the release being an admission against interest while the allegation of fraud in procuring it was self-serving. Barnes v. Central Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1172.

Admissions contained in the pleadings need not be proven, so that where the petition alleged the release by plaintiff of an obligation relied on by plaintiff, defendant could rely upon such release without proving it. Id.

59. Prayer for process and relief.—Facts not alleged, though proved, cannot form the basis of a decree; and where a plaintiff does not pray for judgment, or ask any relief, it is improper to render any judgment in his favor. Hall v. Jackson, 3 T. 305; Chrisman v. Miller, 15 T. 159; Hubby v. Camplin, 22 T. 582; Mann v. Falcon, 25 T. 276; Hawkins v. Forrest, 1 U. C. 167.

When there is a prayer for specific relief, the judgment, unless prescribed by statute, will not go beyond it. Hipp v. Huchett, 4 T. 20; Moore v. Guest, 8 T. 117; Hogan v. Kellum, 13 T. 396; Mann v. Falcon, 25 T. 271; Hillebrant v. Barton, 39 T. 599; Wyche v. Clapp, 43 T. 543; Moreland v. Barnhart, 44 T. 275. And see Kendal v. Mather, 48 T. 585.

Under a prayer for general relief the court will grant such relief as the party is entitled to on the pleadings and evidence. Smith v. Clopton, 4 T. 109; Hardy v. De Leon, 5 T. 211; Nash v. George, 6 T. 234; Trammell v. Watson, 25 T. 210; Cravens v. Wilson, 48 T. 324; Voigtlander v. Brotze, 59 T. 286. See Piegzar v. Twohig, 37 T. 225.

A judgment on a petition containing no prayer for relief is not void, and cannot be attacked for that reason, in an independent suit. Kendall v. Mather, 48 T. 598; Moore v. Britton, 15 C. A. 237, 38 S. W. 528.

Prayer for process is not necessary. S. M. Ins. Co. v. Holland, 2 App. C. C. § 443. But see Green v. Hill, 4 T. 465; Tulane v. McKee, 10 T. 335; Duncan v. Bullock, 18 T. 541.

A judgment determining the extent of the interests of defendants as between themselves, which is not prayed for by the pleadings, cannot be rendered. O'Leary v. Durant, 70 T. 409, 11 S. W. 116.

Where complaint seeks recovery for conversion, a judgment to foreclose an alleged lien cannot be granted under prayer for general relief. Behrens Drug Co. v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 622.

The statement of facts in a bill in equity, and not the relief prayed for, determines the nature of the cause of action. Mateer v. Cockrill, 18 C. A. 391, 45 S. W. 751.

Where a declaration prays for damages for permanent injury to land and for general relief, plaintiff may recover for either permanent or temporary injuries. Umscheid v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 496.

A prayer for general relief in a petition, which also contained a specific prayer for a judgment for a "debt," held broad enough to authorize a recovery for damages for breach of an executory contract. Jaeggli v. Phears, 30 C. A. 212, 70 S. W. 330.

Prayer for general relief in petition against assignee for benefit of creditors for appropriation to himself of property belonging to the estate in his charge held sufficient to charge assignee with dividends paid on stock included in property appropriated by him. McCord v. Nabours, 101 T. 494, 109 S. W. 913.

In a suit to quiet title, affirmative relief held properly granted under a prayer for general relief. McCullough v. Rucker, 53 C. A. 89, 115 S. W. 323.

Where the prayer for relief in a petition contains a statement of the fact on which it is intended to base a prayer for relief, it is entitled to be given the force and effect of an allegation. First Nat. Bank v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 177.

Scope and effect of a prayer for general relief, stated. Jordan v. Massey (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 804.

Under this article a prayer for relief is an essential part of plaintiff's petition and determines the character of the order or decree which the court is called upon to render. Id.

A prayer cannot change the legal effect of the facts alleged in the charging part of the petition. Wilks v. Kreis (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 838.

A prayer for general relief has reference to the relief which the facts alleged would authorize, but does not entitle the plaintiff to any other. Burks v. Burks (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 337.

Under the statute, the prayer for relief is an essential part of the petition. Id.

60. —— Alternative relief.—A prayer may be in the alternative. Grabenheimer v. Blum, 63 T. 369; Boze v. Davis, 14 T. 331; Hall v. Layton, 10 T. 55.

A vendor suing to recover on goods obtained from him on false pretense may pray in the alternative for return of the goods or for the price. Wolf v. Lachman (Civ. App.) 20 S. W. 867.

Allegations in an action to establish title to and obtain possession of a colt, asking the alternative relief of the establishment of a trust lien on the colt, held not demurrable. Wooley v. Bell (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 71.

Where the allegations in the petition preceding the first prayer state a cause of action, the alternative prayers following the first prayer will be regarded as surplusage. Hutcheson v. International & G. N. R. Co., 102 T. 471, 119 S. W. 85.

A party may, in the same suit on a contract, pray for performance and, in the alternative, for rescission without being put to the election of either remedy. Seiber v. Newman (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 585.

61. —— Interest and costs.—In conversion, interest will not be computed as damages, where none is prayed for. Texarkana Water Co. v. Kizer (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 913.

A petition in action for salary, praying for general relief, authorizes allowance of interest. City of Houston v. Lubbock, 35 C. A. 106, 79 S. W. 851.

Specific prayer for interest on an award for conversion is not essential to its recovery if the total recovery does not exceed the amount prayed for. Buffalo Pitts Co. v. Stringfellow-Hume Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1161.

Where plaintiff in mandamus to compel a city to pay a judgment prayed that the city be required to pay the judgment and interest, and for general relief, the court could direct the payment of the costs incurred in the action resulting in the judgment, though the petition did not specifically mention the costs. City of San Antonio v. Alamo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 620.

62. Exhibits.—A petition to enforce a lien for lumber sold for the erection of a building need not attach the plans and specifications, where they are in defendant's possession. Florida Athletic Club v. Hope Lumber Co., 18 C. A. 161, 44 S. W. 10.

In an action by the state to recover taxes, certain objections to a copy of a delinquent tax record annexed to plaintiff's petition held untenable. Figures v. State (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 412.

63. —— Operation and effect.—An exhibit showing the terms of the contract cannot supply the absence of allegations of the legal effect of such contract. Guadalupe County v. Johnston, 1 C. A. 713, 20 S. W. 833.

Petition setting up compromise held sufficient where the agreement was attached as an exhibit, and made a part of the pleading. Ward v. Wilson, 92 T. 22, 45 S. W. 8.

Petition held not within the rule that, where a description by metes and bounds is followed by a reference to some other writing for a further description, the latter cannot be looked to to enlarge the former. Sanger v. Roberts, 92 T. 312, 48 S. W. 1.

In a suit to enjoin as a threatened nuisance the location of a cemetery adjacent to plaintiffs' lands, attaching map to petition as exhibit held not to relieve plaintiffs from necessity of alleging facts to which exhibit related, under rule 19 (67 S. W. xxi), for the government of the district courts. Elliott v. Ferguson, 37 C. A. 40, 83 S. W. 56.

Where a suit was for the value of goods sold by plaintiff to defendant, and there was no allegation of an implied contract of sale, no such allegation can be inferred from the account of the goods sold being attached to the petition. Hayward Lumber Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 403.

A judgment foreclosing a chattel mortgage must be confined to the property described in the petition though it attaches as an exhibit the mortgage describing other property. McGregor v. Port Huron Engine & Thresher Co. (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1128.

An exhibit to a petition cannot be used to set out the cause of action, but it may aid the petition so as to make certain that which would otherwise be indefinite. Port Huron Engine & Thrasher Co. v. McGregor, 103 T. 529, 131 S. W. 398, affirming McGregor v. Port Huron Engine & Thresher Co. (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1128.

An exhibit which constitutes a part of the petition may be referred to in aid of the petition. Panhandle Telephone & Telegraph Co. v. City of Amarillo (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 638.

A petition, in an action on a guardian's bond, held not required to set out the bond in hæc verba when it is attached as an exhibit. The bond can be looked to in aid of the petition. Kretzschmar v. Peschel (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1021.

A fire policy attached as an exhibit to the petition in a suit thereon cannot be looked to, to supply by inference the fact that the insurance company used two names indifferently to designate itself. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 630.

64. —— Variance between pleading and exhibit.—An instrument which is sued upon, if made a part of a petition and filed with it for the inspection of the defendant, controls and cures any misdescription of it in the body of the petition. Longley v. Carothers, 64 T. 287.

Specific allegations in a petition are not qualified or contradicted by recitals in exhibits attached to the petition. Thompson v. Locke, 66 T. 383, 1 S. W. 112.

In the petition it was alleged that the bond sued on was for $6,000. A copy of the bond was attached to the petition as an exhibit, and in it the amount of the bond was $6,500. Objection to the bond for variance from the petition was properly overruled; the exhibit being a copy of the original, the defendants could not have been misled or surprised. Mast v. Nacogdoches Co., 71 T. 380, 9 S. W. 267.

The allegations of a petition in a suit for appointment of a receiver held insufficient to avoid the legal effect of a ratifying clause in a contract of compromise. Farwell v. Babcock, 27 C. A. 162, 65 S. W. 509.

Petition to foreclose mortgage on cattle held not to vary from the mortgage. Scaling v. First Nat. Bank, 39 C. A. 154, 87 S. W. 715.

In an action for goods sold, held that there was no variance between the allegations of the petition and the account which was annexed to the petition as an exhibit. Jackson-Foxworth Lumber Co. v. Hutchinson County (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 412.

Where a copy of the original judgment sued on was attached as a part of the petition, there could be no variance between the allegations of the petition and the judgment itself. Varn v. Arnold Hat Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 693.

Where a contract is made a part of a pleading by being attached thereto as an exhibit, the court will give to it the legal effect to which it is entitled, and the legal effect thereof will control where the allegations of the pleading and the recitals of the contract are in conflict. Cockrell v. Houston Packing Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 697.

Petition held to control over an exhibit attached in an action on an open account as to the items sued for and amount due. Browning v. El Paso Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 386.

65. Copy of account.—In view of the allegations of the petition in suit for a balance due for goods sold, it was held that it was unnecessary to set out an itemized statement. Hamilton v. Dismukes, 53 C. A. 129, 115 S. W. 1181.

66. Effect of stricken allegations.—In passing on the question of error in exclusion of evidence, held, that reference cannot be had to an allegation of a pleading properly stricken therefrom. Uecker v. Zuercher (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 149.

67. Making definite and certain.—In an action on a note, held proper to refuse to require plaintiff to plead more specifically matter unnecessarily pleaded. Wood v. Limbaugh, 48 C. A. 223, 106 S. W. 771.

68. Sufficiency to support attachment.—See notes under Art. 242.

68½. Sufficiency to warrant submission of issues to jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

68¾. Sufficiency to support judgment.—See notes under Art. 1994.

69. Pleading damages in general.—Damages not implied by law must be alleged. Railway Co. v. Curry, 64 T. 85.

Where a petition contains a general allegation of damages, and also specially avers the particular items of damage claimed, the special allegations will control. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1053.

In an action for use and occupation of farm buildings, the petition held sufficient basis for recovery of the reasonable value of the use of three buildings, though not sufficient for a recovery of a specified amount under an implied contract. Levi v. Pickering (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 721.

Damages recoverable under plaintiff's amended complaint in an action against a railroad company stated. Suter v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 785.

Plaintiff held entitled to give his opinion, though not pleading the facts on which it is based. Cartwright v. Canode (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 792.

70. Pleading general or special damages.—Damages, when direct and consequential, may be alleged in general terms. Kolb v. Bankhead, 18 T. 228; Hoggland v. Cothren, 25 T. 345; So Relle v. W. U. T. Co., 55 T. 308, 40 Am. Rep. 805; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Durrett, 57 T. 48. See City of Laredo v. Russell, 56 T. 398; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Kane, 2 App. C. C. § 20. Special damage must be alleged specifically. Stroop v. McKenzie, 38 T. 132; Bremond v. McLean, 45 T. 10; Glasscock v. Shell, 57 T. 215; Mayo v. Savoni, 1 App. C. C. § 216; G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Maetze, 2 App. C. C. § 632. The elements of actual and exemplary damages should be separately stated. Kaufman v. Wicks, 62 T. 234.

Damages are called special when they do not naturally and proximately result from a breach of a contract or are not such as would reasonably be in the contemplation of the appellant. Special damages must be alleged. Telegraph Co. v. Lively, 4 App. C. C. § 192, 15 S. W. 197.

Where the language used is libelous per se it is not necessary to allege special damages. Young v. Sheppard (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 62.

Where plaintiff seeks special damages for use of converted property, his knowledge of such use should be shown by direct allegations in petition. Smith v. Connor (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 267.

A complaint against a carrier for delay in delivering a shipment of rice held sufficient, though damages claimed be special damages, because of the rice being wet when delivered to the carrier. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Bigham (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 522.

Petition in slander held to sufficiently aver special damages. Hitzfelder v. Koppelmann, 30 C. A. 162, 70 S. W. 353.

A petition in a libel action held insufficient for failing to allege special damage; the letter complained of not being libelous per se. Morrison v. Dean (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 505.

If a publication in a newspaper tends to injure plaintiff's reputation and expose her to public hatred, contempt, or ridicule, or impeach her honesty, it is unnecessary to allege in the petition financial injury therefrom. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy, 52 C. A. 22, 113 S. W. 574.

An item of special damages not pleaded in a suit against a carrier for loss of freight held not recoverable. Pacific Express Co. v. Jones, 52 C. A. 367, 113 S. W. 952.

Unless libelous per se, there can be no recovery for the publication of a libel without allegation and proof of special damages. Allen v. Earnest (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1101.

The petition in an action for breach of contract to thresh a crop of rice held to allege sufficiently that certain expenses were necessary or reasonable. Kerr v. Blair, 47 C. A. 406, 105 S. W. 548.

In a shipper's action for damages for a railroad company's failure to furnish cars for shipping logs as agreed, and for discrimination in furnishing cars, the petition alleged that plaintiff began shipment under a contract to furnish logs to another, and fully advised defendant of the conditions of such contract and of the necessity of transporting the logs, and, upon defendant's promise to furnish cars, plaintiff made the contract to deliver the logs and procured the teams, etc., necessary to carry out the contract, and thereafter called defendant's attention to his losses by having to keep teams in readiness to load the logs. Held, that the petition sufficiently alleged damage by reason of expenses incurred in keeping teams, etc., ready to load cars when furnished. Waugh v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 843.

In a personal injury action, medical expenses cannot be considered, where not alleged. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Cassanova (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1190.

88. —— Proof and variance.—Complaint for personal injuries held to authorize proof of reasonableness of physician's bill. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Lee, 21 C. A. 174, 51 S. W. 351, 57 S. W. 573.

In personal injury action, where petition claims certain sum for medical services and medicines, evidence that plaintiff paid more than that amount is admissible, although the demand is not itemized. City of Dallas v. Jones, 93 T. 38, 49 S. W. 577, 53 S. W. 377.

Evidence that expenses for medical services were $200 held admissible, though petition alleged that they were $100. City of Dallas v. Jones (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 606.

Though petition states that plaintiff had been compelled to pay $250 for medicines, he may show that he paid $750; his right to recovery being limited to the $250. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Eckles, 25 C. A. 179, 60 S. W. 830.

In an action against a carrier for injuries, the petition, in the absence of a special exception, held sufficient to admit evidence of the amount actually paid or incurred for medical attention, etc., and of the reasonableness thereof. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Duck (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1027.

Plaintiff in a personal injury case held entitled to prove the amount spent for medicine, though exceeding the amount alleged. Texas Portland Cement & Lime Co. v. Ross, 35 C. A. 597, 81 S. W. 94.

In an action for injuries, plaintiff cannot recover for expenses incurred, but not paid, for medical services, where the petition only sets up a claim for sums expended. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Sierra (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 986.

In a personal injury action, the reasonableness of surgical and hospital fees expended by plaintiff must be proved to warrant a recovery therefor. Freeman v. Fuller (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1194.

A petition in an action for a personal injury held sufficient, in the absence of a special exception, to permit evidence that charges for medical expenses incurred were reasonable. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Greb (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 489.

In action under Laws 1901, c. 117, evidence that plaintiff's labor and expense were reasonable and necessary held admissible. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Letot (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 656.

89. Mental suffering.—Necessary allegations in petition when damages are claimed for mental suffering. W. U. Tel. Co. v. Smith, 88 T. 9, 28 S. W. 931, 30 S. W. 549.

Complaint in action for failure to deliver telegram held sufficient to authorize recovery for injuries, in that plaintiff was prevented from attending the death and burial of his father. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Gahan, 17 C. A. 657, 44 S. W. 933.

Damages for mental suffering and time lost, not necessarily resulting from the injuries complained of, should be specially alleged, in order to be recovered. Lodwick Lumber Co. v. Taylor, 39 C. A. 302, 87 S. W. 358.

A petition in an action against a telegraph company for delay in transmitting a message held to limit the claim for damages for mental anguish suffered during a certain period. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Campbell, 41 C. A. 204, 91 S. W. 312.

In an action against a telegraph company for failure to transmit a message, the petition held insufficient as against a demurrer to show that the failure to transmit the message would cause mental pain to the sender. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Steele (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 546.

In an action for mental anguish suffered by plaintiff's wife because of his absence from failure to deliver a telegram, certain allegation held not to confine her recovery to suffering endured during his absence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Olivarri (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 930.

In libel for charging plaintiff with smuggling, it was unnecessary to aver the character or extent of the mental suffering caused by the publication, or even the suffering therefrom; it being sufficient to aver the damage sustained thereby. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy, 52 C. A. 22, 113 S. W 574.

90. —— Proof and variance.—The allegation, in a complaint for injuries sustained from an attack by a vicious dog, that plaintiff had suffered great pain, is sufficient to let in proof of both physical and mental suffering. Triolo v. Foster (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 698.

In an action against a telegraph company for negligent delay in transmitting a message, certain evidence of damages for mental anguish held inadmissible under the pleadings. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 362.

In an action for injuries, plaintiff under the petition held not entitled to recover for mental suffering. City of Rockwall v. Heath (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 514.

In a personal injury action, allegation held to warrant proof of embarrassment arising from the staring of people who meet him. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Snell, 47 C. A. 413, 106 S. W. 170.

In an action by a mother against a railroad for mental suffering from defendant's delay in shipping her the dead body of her son, plaintiff's testimony that the deceased was her oldest and dearest son held improperly admitted; there being no allegation of particular affection, and that such affection was communicated to defendant when the contract of shipment was made. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Linton (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 942.

Where the petition in a personal injury action alleges mental suffering, direct evidence on that point is unnecessary where the injury appears to be serious and its effect permanent. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cleland, 50 C. A. 499, 110 S. W. 122.

In an injury action, an allegation that, by reason of being struck by a running team, plaintiff was "shocked and frightened," was sufficient to support a recovery for mental suffering. Austin Electric Ry. Co. v. Faust (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 449.

91. Aggravation of damages.—Matter in aggravation or extenuation of damages need not be alleged. McGehee v. Shafer, 9 T. 20.

Where a petition shows no ground for actual damages, an exception is properly sustained to matters of aggravation alleged as a predicate for exemplary damages. Caffall v. Bandera Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 105.

92. Exemplary damages.—Exemplary damages can be awarded only as a punishment when the injury inflicted was the result of the fraud, malice, gross negligence or oppression of the defendant. When such damages are claimed, the petition should set forth the acts or omissions which constituted such fraud, malice, gross negligence or oppression. When the defendant is a corporation it should be alleged and proved that the acts of the corporation servant which constitute the fraud, malice, gross negligence or oppression were committed by direction of the employer, or that the corporation, through its proper agents, ratified and adopted such acts as its own. Railway Co. v. Garcia, 70 T. 207, 7 S. W. 802.

As to the allegation of exemplary damages, see Harmon v. Callahan (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 705.

A petition against a railroad company by one injured through being run over by a locomotive held not to present a case for exemplary damages. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Holzheuser (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 188.

Evidence as to loss of credit held admissible under a general count for exemplary damages in an action for malicious prosecution. Curlee v. Rose, 27 C. A. 259, 65 S. W. 197.

Allegations in a petition as to a conspiracy in the procuring of a fire insurance policy in an unauthorized insolvent company held to state a case for both actual and exemplary damages. Price v. Garvin (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 985.

In an action against a telegraph company for failure to promptly deliver a message, allegations of the petition held insufficient to justify a recovery of exemplary damages. Kopperl v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1018.

In an action against an attorney for negligence whereby plaintiff lost a right of action, the petition held not to claim exemplary damages against defendant. Patterson & Wallace v. Frazer (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 146.

In an action against a railroad company for damages caused by discrimination in furnishing cars for shipment, allegations of the petition held to support a recovery of exemplary damages. Waugh v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 843.

A wife suing for the conversion of her separate property by a creditor of the husband held required to allege facts surrounding the conversion to show that defendant's acts were malicious and oppressive, in order to recover punitive damages. Walker v. Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank of Winters (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 312.

A petition in an action to vacate a judgment and recover exemplary damages from various parties for acts claimed to have been collusive, fraudulent, and wrongful held too general to show a cause of action. Kruegel v. Nitschman (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 319.

Where the petition, alleging that a trespass was willful, malicious and wrongful, was supported by evidence, a verdict for exemplary as well as actual damages, was authorized. Kittrell v. Irwin (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 199.

93. Allegations as to amount of damages.—Where plaintiff's petition alleged several items of damage, and failed to state the amount of each, it was subject to exception for being vague and indefinite. Cole v. Carter, 22 C. A. 457, 54 S. W. 914.

In an action for injuries to land by the pollution of an abutting water course, an allegation of the amount of damages sustained is sufficient, without alleging the market values of the land before and after the injury. City of San Antonio v. Pizzini (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 635.

In order to recover interest in an action by a shipper against a railroad company for injury to animals, the petition must allege the damages in a sum sufficient to cover, not only the damages actually sustained, but also interest thereon from the date of the injury to the time of the trial. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Addison, 96 T. 61, 70 S. W. 200.

A petition in an action for breach of contract held not subject to general demurrer as alleging an improper measure of damages. Shropshire v. Adams, 40 C. A. 339, 89 S. W. 448.

In an action for injuries to his wife, plaintiff held entitled to recover for loss of her services in attending to her usual and ordinary household duties without allegation or proof of the value of such services. Ft. Worth & R. H. St. Ry. Co. v. Hawes, 48 C. A. 487, 107 S. W. 556.

In an action to recover for goods lost by a carrier, where it appeared without contradiction that a "bible and testament" was one book, an allegation of the value thereof in a single sum was sufficient. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dement (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 635.

In an action against a carrier for the value of several family portraits lost in transit, the value of each of them should be separately averred, and an allegation of their aggregate value was improper. Id.

The complaint in an action for growing crops held to present a proper basis for measuring the damages. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gilbert (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1145.

A prayer for damages for the operation of a slaughterhouse, etc., for two years next preceding the filing of the petition would not warrant a recovery of damages to the time of trial. Nations v. Harris (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 334.

It is no ground for general demurrer to a petition for breach of contract that the measure of damages contended for is not the proper one. Fish v. Sadler (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1185.

94. —— Double recovery.—A petition for injuries sustained by plaintiff's team becoming frightened at a train held not objectionable, as asking judgment for plaintiff's loss of time twice. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Stonecypher, 25 C. A. 569, 63 S. W. 946.

A petition in an action for injuries to a passenger assaulted by a porter held not objectionable as demanding double damages. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Bean, 45 C. A. 52, 99 S. W. 721.

A complaint against a railroad for damages to adjoining property by noise, vibration, smoke, etc., was not objectionable as seeking a double recovery, though it alleged "by reason thereof * * * plaintiff had been damaged in the sum of $5,000, * * * and that said action of defendants caused a nuisance," whereby "plaintiff's property has been damaged in the sum of $5,000." Dallas Terminal Ry. & Union Co. v. Ardrey (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 616.

95. —— Nominal damages.—Nominal damages to be recoverable need not be sued for eo nomine, but arise by reason of allegations as to other damages. Miller v. Moore (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 750.

96. —— Proof and variance in general.—In a suit for a sum certain, evidence is admissible of an indebtedness less than that claimed. Cox v. Giddings, 9 T. 44, 47.

Though the proof may show a greater loss, recovery cannot exceed the damages alleged. Railway Co. v. Simonton, 22 S. W. 285, 2 C. A. 558.

A plaintiff in an action for personal injuries cannot recover for damages for loss of time for a greater amount than is alleged in his petition. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Barnwell (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 527.

97. —— As to value.—Where, in an action for killing a horse on a railroad track, plaintiff alleged that the market value of the horse was $500, admission of evidence that horse had no market value, but that he had an intrinsic value for the special purposes, was error. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 301, 89 S. W. 1001.

A judgment for plaintiff for the difference between the market value of his property before the construction of a railroad and its value thereafter held not supported by the pleadings. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Collins (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 820.

A petition in an action against a railroad company for killing horses on its track held sufficient, in the absence of a demurrer to permit evidence of the market value of the horses. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Hickox (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 202.

In an action for breach of contract to thresh a crop of rice, plaintiff held entitled under the petition to prove the value of the rice destroyed by reference to the nearest market for rice. Kerr v. Blair, 47 C. A. 406, 105 S. W. 548.

In an action against a railroad for the destruction by fire of grass for pasturage, testimony of the real value of the grass used for pasturage held proper under the allegations of the complaint. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Neiser (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 166.

In an action against a railroad company for killing horses, evidence as to their market value or intrinsic value held admissible under the petition, but evidence of their value to plaintiff held inadmissible. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Crews, 54 C. A. 548, 120 S. W. 1110.

Allegations that the cattle killed were reasonably worth $18 per head held sufficient to authorize proof of the market value, in an action against a railroad company. El Paso & Southwestern Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 356.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries to cattle, the petition held sufficient to warrant the admission of testimony as to the value of the cattle in the condition in which they should have arrived. Id.

98. —— Interest on amount of recovery.—In the absence of a statement of facts, where damages are alleged for fraudulent representations entitling plaintiff to recover, though no interest is claimed in the petition, it will be presumed that the necessary proof was made; and the verdict of the jury calling for interest, when damages is meant, or when interest is given as damages, is not cause for the reversal of the judgment. Close v. Fields, 13 T. 627; Calvit v. McFadden, Id. 325; Fowler v. Davenport, 21 T. 634; Anderson v. Duffield, 8 T. 237; Bradford v. Mann, 1 U. C. 226.

A petition for wrongful attachment includes interest, which need not be specified as an item of damages. Ellis v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 550.

Allegations held insufficient to entitle a recovery against a city of interest on delinquent payments for water. Waterworks Co. v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 205.

Interest not claimed in the pleadings cannot be recovered. Wentworth v. King (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 696.

To permit a recovery of interest in action against carriers for injuries to a shipment of cattle, the petition should allege such item. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 54.

A judgment awarding interest held error, where with interest it exceeded the amount sued for. First Nat. Bank v. Cleland, 36 C. A. 478, 82 S. W. 337.

One held not entitled to recover interest on the value of property burned where his pleadings merely seek recovery of the actual value of the property. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Starks (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 1003.

In an action for breach of contract, where plaintiff prays for damages in a certain amount and general relief, though interest eo nomine as damages is not mentioned interest may be allowed from the accrual of the cause of action, as part of the damages. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Timon (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 82.

Interest at the legal rate for the amount of damages sustained by a shipper may be allowed, though not asked for in the pleadings. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Smythe, 55 C. A. 557, 119 S. W. 892.

Interest held recoverable where the pleading praying for general relief demands judgment for a sum sufficient to include interest in addition to the sum claimed to be due at the time of the accrual of the cause of action. Erie City Iron Works v. Noble (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 172.

In an action for damages for unreasonable delay in shipment of cotton, where plaintiffs averred the shipment of the cotton, the unreasonable delay in its delivery, and that the bills of lading when issued were by the consignors attached to drafts and forwarded to plaintiffs for payment, and that the drafts were paid on presentation, and that on these drafts the plaintiffs were compelled to pay interest aggregating a certain sum, and prayed judgment for damages by way of loss of interest as set forth, and general relief, held, that the petition as to the claim for interest was good as against a general demurrer. Dorrance & Co. v. International & G. N. R. Co., 126 S. W. 694, 53 C. A. 460.

Where landowner's pleading in proceedings to condemn a railroad right of way did not ask for interest as damages upon the amount of damages allowed and none was awarded by the jury, the court had no right to give judgment therefor. Routh v. Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1152.

A petition, in an action for the destruction of crops, which alleges the time of the destruction, and which prays for damages, is sufficient for the allowance of interest. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Doke (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1174.

99. Pleading particular facts or issues—Agency and scope of employment.—In a suit for the value of an animal shot by the defendant, it was said that evidence of the animal having been shot by a person under the control and direction of the defendant was admissible, but the case was disposed of on another ground. Guffey v. Moseley, 21 T. 408.

It must be alleged that an agent was authorized to delegate his authority. McCormick v. Bush, 38 T. 314; Smith v. Sublett, 28 T. 163; Hudson v. Farris, 30 T. 574; McLamore v. Heffner, 33 T. 514; Bell v. Warren, 39 T. 106.

An allegation charging negligence against the corporation will admit proof of the negligence of its agents who may be charged with the duty of performing that the omission of which constitutes the negligence complained of. Railway Co. v. George, 85 T. 153, 19 S. W. 1036.

Allegations of statements of defendant's servants in procuring a release of plaintiff's claim for personal injuries held insufficient in not specifying which servants made the particular statements. The Oriental v. Barclay, 16 C. A. 193, 41 S. W. 117.

Under an allegation that defendant did a certain thing, it cannot be shown that his wife or agent did it. Arndt v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 771.

Complaint in action for injuries to trespasser ejected from train held sufficient to allow evidence that, while brakemen were by rules forbidden to eject them, such rules were customarily violated to the knowledge of defendant. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Rutherford, 94 T. 518, 62 S. W. 1056.

A petition for the death of plaintiff's intestate from smallpox communicated to him by a nurse employed by defendant's servant held not objectionable for failure to allege that at the time intestate was inoculated the nurse was in defendant's service and acting within the scope of his employment. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 542.

Petition in action to recover commission for sale of real estate held insufficient, as against a special exception, to show that a person had authority from an executrix to agree to pay plaintiff the stipulated commission. Dyer v. Winston, 33 C. A. 412, 77 S. W. 227.

Pleadings held to put in issue the question whether a defendant acted as the agent of codefendants, railroad contractors, in making the contract sued on, and to render it the duty of the court to submit such issue, if warranted by the evidence. McCabe & Stein v. Farrell, 34 C. A. 36, 77 S. W. 1049.

In an action by a subagent for commissions for selling land, allegations of petition held sufficient to permit proof of the authority of the agent to employ the subagent. Eastland v. Maney, 36 C. A. 147, 81 S. W. 574.

It is not necessary to allege that request was made of any particular agent that the stock be watered and fed. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 37 C. A. 595, 85 S. W. 44.

In an action by the purchaser of a machine against the seller for failure to deliver, held, under the pleadings, error to permit plaintiff to show that defendant had knowingly permitted the person who made the contract to hold himself out as defendant's manager with authority to execute such contract. Fred W. Wolf Co. v. Galbraith, 39 C. A. 351, 87 S. W. 390.

In an action against a county for materials furnished, an allegation of the petition held to have authorized proof of the authority of the agent claimed to have acted for the county. Jackson-Foxworth Lumber Co. v. Hutchinson County (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 412.

A verified account, made out against an agent of an undisclosed principal and attached as an exhibit to the petition, is evidence only against the agent. Pittsburg Plate Glass Co. v. Roquemore (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 449.

In action against corporation for breach of contract to furnish water for irrigation of rice crop, allegations of petition held to fix on plaintiffs notice that the company had not entered on its corporate purpose, and that its general manager's powers were restricted to the management of the preliminary work. Tres Palacios Rice & Irrigation Co. v. Eidman, 41 C. A. 542, 93 S. W. 698.

In action against an irrigation company for false representations by its general manager, petition held sufficient on general demurrer in its showing of authority of the general manager. Cleghon v. Barstow Irr. Co., 41 C. A. 531, 93 S. W. 1020.

Plaintiff's right to recover for delay in delivery of telegram sent by another to a doctor to come to plaintiff held shown, without any allegation as to agency of sender, by allegation that the sender informed the telegraph company that the sickness of plaintiff's wife caused him to thus send for the doctor. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Stubbs, 43 C. A. 132, 94 S. W. 1083.

Where, in an action on a contract, there was no question as to the agency of a certain person and his authority to act for defendant, proof of his actions within the scope of his agency supported an allegation that they were the acts of the defendant. Baldwin v. Polti, 45 C. A. 638, 101 S. W. 543.

In an action for services performed by plaintiff's wife, an allegation held not too indefinite to allow proof that the contract was made by the wife as plaintiff's agent. O'Connell v. Storey (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 1174.

A corporation can act only through its agents, and, when it is sought to hold a corporation liable on a contract alleged to have been made by an agent the name of the agent should be stated in the petition. Gulf & I. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 972.

A petition for assault by defendant's servants by alleging the assault was authorized by defendant held to state a cause of action. Boutwell v. Medling Milling Co., 49 C. A. 485, 108 S. W. 1025.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff, the petition held to allege a willful assault and battery and not a negligent injury so that the court properly charged that if defendant's servant shot plaintiff by mere accident, defendant was not liable. Biggins v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 561.

Where a vendee alleged that false representations were made by the vendor, evidence that the vendor's agent made the representations was objectionable as a variance. Stevenson v. Cauble, 55 C. A. 75, 118 S. W. 811.

In an action against the owner of land for damages for his refusal to convey pursuant to a purported contract of sale made by an agent, petition held to sufficiently allege that the agent was in fact defendant's agent for a sale of the land. Donnell v. Currie & Dohoney (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 88.

In a proceeding to cancel a sale of land on the ground of the purchaser's minority, the state must allege and maintain it by proof. Baldwin v. Salgado (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 608.

A petition in an action against a railroad company held defective in not alleging that the act complained of was within the scope of the authority of defendant's employés. Weatherford, M. W. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Crutcher (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 137.

An averment in a petition, in an action for injuries to plaintiff by being compelled to jump from a moving train, held to sufficiently allege that the act was rendered necessary by that of defendant's brakeman, within the scope of his authority. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1076.

Where insurer claimed that the policy had lapsed for nonpayment of the second premium, plaintiff's plea that the agent to whom he paid was authorized to collect premiums generally, though his written contract limited his authority to first premiums, while not sufficient for estoppel, was proper as raising the issue of authority given outside the written contract. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Collins (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 554.

100. —— Assumption of obligation.—An allegation, in a petition to foreclose a mortgage which had been assumed by defendant, that by a contract between the sole devisee of the mortgagor and defendant the latter had assumed payment of the mortgage was sufficient averment of the assumption on a general demurrer. Fant v. Wright (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 514.

101. —— Consideration or want thereof.—Pleading consideration, see Bason v. Hughart, 2 T. 476; Hardison v. Hooker, 25 T. 91; Lanes v. Squyres, 45 T. 382; Life Ins. Co. v. Davidge, 51 T. 244; Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Miller, 2 App. C. C. § 332; Jones v. Holliday, 11 T. 412, 62 Am. Dec. 487; Williams v. Edwards, 15 T. 41.

In action against railroad company for damages for breach of its agreement to construct a crossing, allegation of complaint held to show no consideration. Owazarzak v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 31 C. A. 229, 71 S. W. 793.

Where a written contract imported a consideration, an allegation that it was made "for a valuable consideration" was sufficiently specific as to consideration. Delta County v. Blackburn (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 902.

Petition in action for injuries held to contain no sufficient allegation that the amount received by plaintiff in consideration of a release was inadequate to compensate him for the damages suffered. Reasoner v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 213.

102. —— Conspiracy.—A complaint held not to allege a conspiracy to fraudulently deprive plaintiff of his property. Wells v. Houston, 23 C. A. 629, 57 S. W. 584.

Petition in an action for damages for conspiring and making false representations to injure plaintiffs' business held to state a cause of action. Brown v. American Freehold Land Mortg. Co. of London, 97 T. 599, 80 S. W. 985, 67 L. R. A. 195.

A petition by preferred creditors against the trustee in a deed of trust and simple creditors held to sufficiently aver the acts constituting a fraudulent conspiracy against plaintiffs. Sawyer v. J. F. Wieser & Co., 37 C. A. 291, 84 S. W. 1101.

The admission of the hearsay statement of a third person held not justified on the theory that the petition charged a conspiracy between a party to the action and the third person. Riensch v. Naylon, 51 C. A. 45, 110 S. W. 781.

Evidence held admissible under allegations that defendants conspired with others to defraud and deceive the general public and plaintiff in particular. Witliff v. Spreen, 51 C. A. 544, 112 S. W. 98.

A petition against judges, attorneys, and clerks for conspiracy should set forth their specific acts, showing plaintiff's right to recover damages, or that defendants had no right to do the acts complained of. Kruegel v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 343.

Allegations, in an action to set aside an execution sale, that W. conceived the idea of conspiring with H. and instituting suit and attaching property, that H. co-operated by taking the affidavit of the publisher of the daily paper publishing the citation, and was co-operating, conspiring, and confederating with the said W. and M. for the purpose of clouding and destroying defendants' title to property, sufficiently charged conspiracy between the three. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 573.

103. —— Customs and usages.—A complaint in an action against a railway company for injury to child received on a turntable, alleging a custom of children to play on it, held not insufficient in not stating how the company became cognizant of the custom. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Morgan, 24 C. A. 58, 58 S. W. 544.

104. —— Dedication.—A petition for the obstruction of a highway held to state facts sufficient to show a valid dedication. Bellar v. City of Beaumont (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 410.

In an action to enjoin a railway company from constructing a fence between its right of way and plaintiff's lot, allegations that a street existed between the right of way and the lot and had for many years been open as a public street, etc., was sufficient to sustain proof of a dedication, or dedication by prescription, of the land as a street. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Ayers (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1068.

105. —— Discovered peril.—The petition in a personal injury suit against a street railway company held not to authorize a recovery on the ground of discovered peril. Denison & S. Ry. Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 322.

Allegation held sufficient as against a general demurrer to show that plaintiff's act in going into danger was not so unanticipated as that defendant's employé could not have prevented her injury by due care. Poteet v. Blossom Oil & Cotton Co., 53 C. A. 187, 115 S. W. 289.

An allegation, in substance, that the motorman should, after discovering plaintiff's peril, have stopped or slackened the speed of the car, but failed to do so, to which the defendant answered that there was not time to do so, held to raise the issue of discovered peril. Galveston Electric Co. v. Antonini (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 841.

Plaintiff having alleged that he was in the usual and proper place for taking a street car at the time he was struck, an allegation that defendant negligently failed to stop the car after discovering plaintiff's presence "at said time and place" was insufficient to raise the issue of discovered peril. Townsend v. Houston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 629.

A petition, alleging that plaintiff's vehicle was plainly seen by defendant's servants, or could have been seen by the use of ordinary care, and that they failed to stop the car, but negligently drove it toward plaintiff, presented the issue of discovered peril, so as to authorize an instruction thereon. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Cassanova (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1190.

106. —— Duress.—Allegations held insufficient to show legal duress in the acceptance of a lesser amount in full settlement of a bond. Shelton v. Jackson, 20 C. A. 443, 49 S. W. 415.

Where avoidance of a release because of duress was not pleaded, it was not error to refuse to submit such issue to the jury. Chouquette v. McCarthy (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 956.

A complaint in a suit to avoid an instrument because executed by duress of defendant held insufficient to raise the issue of duress. Parker v. Allen, 33 C. A. 206, 76 S. W. 74.

Petition in an action to cancel a note and mortgage held insufficient to raise the issue whether the new note and mortgage into which the first were merged were procured under duress of imprisonment, not negativing freedom of contract or showing the character of the offense for which the party was threatened with criminal prosecution. Shriver v. McCann (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 317.

107. —— Estoppel.—A petition held insufficient to show an estoppel against a bank to deny a representation made by it that the county treasurer had a certain credit balance, for failure to allege any loss by the county in consequence thereof. Anderson v. Walker, 93 T. 119, 53 S. W. 821.

Declaration held to contain a good plea of estoppel as against a general demurrer. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Yale, 27 C. A. 10, 65 S. W. 57.

Allegations of a petition against a carrier to set aside a release of liability for injuries to a passenger held to estop defendant to allege that plaintiff should not have relied on the statements of defendant's physicians. Jones v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 32 C. A. 198, 73 S. W. 1082.

108. —— Foreign laws.—In order that the law of a different jurisdiction than that of the forum, being different from that of the forum, shall be applied in the case on trial, it must be alleged and proven. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Sloss, 45 C. A. 153, 100 S. W. 354.

When a right of action rests upon a foreign law, the existence of the foreign law must be averred. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1165.

Testimony of witnesses to prove the laws of another state and the decisions construing them were improperly permitted where the statutes were not pleaded. Johnston v. Branch Banking Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 193.

109. —— Fraud and mistake.—Allegations of fraud sufficient basis for cancellation of a sale of goods. Williams v. Kohn (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 920.

In a suit by the assignee of an insurance policy against his assignor, allegations that plaintiff took the policy relying on defendant's representations that it was a valid claim against the insurer and had been adjusted, and that it would be paid at the expiration of 60 days, but without any averment that such representations were untrue, beyond the mere statement that the claim was not paid within the time represented, are insufficient to show any liability on the part of defendant, aside from that created by the assignment. Gooch v. Parker, 41 S. W. 662, 16 C. A. 256.

A pleading held to show that an order for goods was taken through fraudulent representations. Danner v. Ft. Worth Implement Co., 18 C. A. 621, 45 S. W. 856.

An allegation that vendees had procured goods by fraudulent representations as to their condition held sufficient. Mitchell v. Bloom (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 406.

A complaint for deceit must show that the alleged false representations were material; that plaintiff was ignorant of their falsity, and was actually deceived thereby. Carson v. Houssels (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 290.

In pleading fraud, the acts constituting fraud must be specifically alleged. Ohio Cultivator Co. v. People's Nat. Bank, 22 C. A. 643, 55 S. W. 765.

Averments in a petition held not to constitute a sufficient allegation of fraud. Weekes v. Sunset Brick & Tile Co., 22 C. A. 556, 56 S. W. 243.

In an action by a railroad employé for personal injuries, a replication to a plea of release that the release "was obtained by fraudulent representations" held good under general demurrer. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 885.

In a suit to cancel a deed for fraud, intimate relations of friendship between the parties need not be specially pleaded to entitle plaintiff to prove the same. Wells v. Houston, 29 C. A. 619, 69 S. W. 183.

In a suit to cancel a contract and deed made in pursuance thereof, on the ground of fraud, the petition held to allege false representations of existing facts. American Cotton Co. v. Collier, 30 C. A. 105, 69 S. W. 1021.

A petition in an action against a carrier for injuries held to state a sufficient cause of action to set aside a release for fraud. Jones v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 32 C. A. 198, 73 S. W. 1082.

A complaint in a suit to avoid an instrument because its execution was procured by fraud held not to sufficiently allege the facts showing fraud. Parker v. Allen, 33 C. A. 206, 76 S. W. 74.

A petition in an action against defendant for falsely representing that third persons had signed a note as makers held not bad, as against a general demurrer, for failing to allege that defendant knew that the representation was false. Commercial Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 239.

A complaint in an action to set aside a judgment held not defective as being too vague in its allegations of fraud. De Garcia v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 275.

In suit to avoid insurance contract for false representations of agent, held not necessary to allege agent's knowledge of falsity of representations. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Maverick (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 560.

To recover on fire insurance policy on ground of mistake in description of property, it must be shown that mistake was mutual. Underwriters' Fire Ass'n v. Henry (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1072.

Where one party to an exchange of lands sued to rescind because the exchange was accomplished by fraudulent misrepresentations as to the title to the land conveyed to him, it was sufficient to allege the specific misrepresentation. Corbett v. McGregor (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 278.

An allegation that plaintiff entered into a contract through a mistake superinduced by defendant's conduct presents the issue of fraud only. Finks v. Hollis, 38 C. A. 23, 85 S. W. 463.

Fraud cannot be shown, unless specially pleaded. Pickett v. Gleed, 39 C. A. 71, 86 S. W. 946.

A petition in an action on a note held to show that the transferror was primarily liable on his representations as to the note and lien securing it being found false. Harris v. Cain, 41 C. A. 139, 91 S. W. 866.

Pleadings by plaintiff in an action for injuries to a servant held to sufficiently show a cause of action for a rescission of a release of the master from liability. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cade (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 124.

Petition in action for false representations by manager of irrigation company as to location of plaintiff's water right held sufficient on general demurrer. Cleghon v. Barstow Irr. Co., 41 C. A. 531, 93 S. W. 1020.

A complaint in an action to cancel a note for fraudulent representations held sufficient against a general demurrer. Karner v. Ross, 43 C. A. 542, 95 S. W. 46.

In an action for fraudulent representations inducing plaintiff to buy corporate stock, the petition held not defective in its allegations as to what representations were relied on by plaintiff. Collins v. Chipman, 41 C. A. 563, 95 S. W. 666.

Where one seeks a cancellation of a conveyance because induced by fraudulent representations made by the grantee, only, such representations as are alleged and relied on can be considered. White v. White (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 733.

The allegations in a petition to reopen a judgment as to certain testimony, being false and fraudulent, held insufficient. Sperry v. Sperry (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 419.

The petition in an action for breach of contract held to allege sufficiently the time and person who made representations. Kerr v. Blair, 47 C. A. 406, 105 S. W. 548.

In an action for money delivered by mistake to defendant instead of the owner thereof, allegations in the petition held improper as against a special exception. Riensch v. Naylon, 51 C. A. 45, 110 S. W. 781.

A petition, in an action by a corporation, induced by fraud to issue paid-up stock, held sufficient to authorize a recovery of the damages sustained. Houston Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 149.

In an action to rescind a sale of land for fraudulent representations, the petition held to sufficiently allege the fraud, as against general and special demurrers. Lee v. Haile, 51 C. A. 636, 114 S. W. 403.

In a suit by buyers of a piano to rescind for misrepresentations, it was unnecessary to allege that the representations were fraudulently made, where the matter averred showed at least constructive fraud. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Garza & Co., 53 C. A. 346, 116 S. W. 150.

A petition, in an action against real estate brokers for deceit inducing the purchase of land, held to state a cause of action. Gordon v. Rhodes & Daniel (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1023.

Where, in a suit to cancel a deed of land in trust, the pleadings did not raise the issue that the deed was made in fraud of the creditors of the grantor, the issue could not be raised by the evidence, independent of the pleadings. Smith v. Olivarri (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 235.

In an action for damages by false representations inducing plaintiff to purchase his partner's interest in the firm, certain evidence held irrelevant, as not bearing on the issue. Pitman v. Self (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 907.

A petition held sufficiently to allege fraud of a certain defendant. Jef Chaison Townsite Co. v. Beaumont Sawmill Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 714.

In an action by the maker of a note after judgment recovered thereon by a bona fide holder for value before maturity for fraud of the payee, the petition held not demurrable for failure to allege that plaintiff was solvent. Pitzer v. Decker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 161.

A petition, in an action on a contract, held not to sufficiently allege fraud or mistake in the execution of it. Moore v. Studebaker Bros. Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 570.

A petition by a seller, in an action against the buyer and a third person, alleging that the third person represented to plaintiff that the buyer was financially responsible and would pay his debts promptly, that such representation was false, and that plaintiff relied thereon and was deceived thereby, held to state a cause of action against the third person, as against a general demurrer. Gibbens v. Bourland (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 274.

Where, in an action for deceit in inducing a sale of land for worthless notes, plaintiff's petition alleged that he received nothing of value when he resold the notes, he was properly permitted to show that he received a conveyance of land for the notes to which the grantor had no title. Russell v. Palmer (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 561.

Allegations that plaintiff, a minor, was induced to execute a release under a mistaken belief as to its import, held proper as bearing on question of disaffirmance after majority, though not showing fraud. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Meakin (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1057.

A petition against the maker of notes secured by a chattel mortgage and against the payee who had indorsed them without recourse, which alleges that they were taken on the faith of false and fraudulent representations made by the payee as to the financial responsibility of the makers, and as to insurance on the mortgaged property, and that the mortgaged property is of the value of $1,500, securing notes to the amount of $800, without showing the consideration paid by the indorser, fails to state an action for damages for the alleged fraud, since it fails to show that the indorsee suffered any damages therefrom. Lissner v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 610.

Under rule 17, for district and county courts (142 S. W. xviii), a petition in an action for fraudulent representations as to the quantity of land conveyed by a contract of sale, held to sufficiently state a cause of action. McDaniel v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 332.

110. —— Gift.—The plaintiff sued for property alleging that the defendant set up a claim thereto which was fraudulent and without foundation. The defendant answered by pleading a deed of gift of the property from the plaintiff to himself. Upon this state of pleadings evidence on the part of plaintiff to show that the gift was a donatio causa mortis was not admissible. Thompson v. Thompson, 12 T. 327.

111. —— Highway.—A petition to recover damages for the death of plaintiff's horse, occasioned by defendant building a wire fence across a traveled road held not demurrable for not alleging that the road was a public road, and not on defendant's land. Allison v. Haney (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 933.

In an action against a railroad for injuries sustained by riding into a barb-wire fence erected by defendant, an allegation of the petition held not to show prescriptive right of way in the public. Bishop v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 1086.

112. —— Homestead exemption.—In action on note and to foreclose mortgage securing the same, held, that the issue raised by the pleadings was whether the land involved was occupied as a homestead at the date alleged in plaintiff's original petition as the date when the note and mortgage were executed. Delaney v. Walker, 34 C. A. 617, 79 S. W. 601.

Evidence of abandonment before execution of trust deed held admissible, without pleading, in an action to foreclose, to show that the premises were not a part of the homestead. Henry v. Corpus Christi Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 568.

113. —— Judgment.—Action on judgment, see post.

Plaintiff's complaint in an action for wrongfully suing out a distress warrant against her in a justice court held to allege facts constituting a judgment obtained against her by defendant in an action in such court as final. Kingsley v. Schmicker (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 331.

A petition in an action to foreclose held insufficient to raise an issue that a former judgment was res judicata of a defense of usury. Norris v. W. C. Belcher Land Mortg. Co., 98 T. 176, 82 S. W. 500, 83 S. W. 799, reversing W. C. Belcher Land Mortg. Co. v. Norris, 34 C. A. 111, 78 S. W. 390.

114. —— Jurisdictional facts.—See notes under Title 34, Chapter 3, and Title 35, Chapter 3.

Actual inhabitancy, as required by the statute, must be alleged and proven. An allegation that plaintiff "is a bona fide citizen of the county of Bell, state of Texas, and has been for more than six months before the filing of this petition," is not in compliance with the statute. Haymond v. Haymond, 74 T. 414, 12 S. W. 90.

An allegation that a certain sum was paid for property is not an allegation of its value, so as to show the amount involved, within a statute conferring jurisdiction. Smith v. Horton, 92 T. 21, 46 S. W. 627.

An averment that a foreign corporation doing business in the state has a local agent in the county where the suit is filed held sufficient to confer jurisdiction over it. Home Forum Ben. Order v. Jones, 20 C. A. 68, 48 S. W. 219.

Allegations in a complaint for divorce held equivalent to an allegation that plaintiff was an actual bona fide inhabitant of the state. Needles v. Needles (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1070.

In an action for breach of contract, brought in the county court, a petition which fails to show the amount in controversy is demurrable. Lillard v. Freestone County, 23 C. A. 363, 57 S. W. 338.

Complaint held sufficient to confer jurisdiction on county court, in absence of plea to the jurisdiction. Allison v. Haney (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 933.

A decree for divorce held not erroneous on the ground that the petition did not allege that plaintiff was a bona fide inhabitant of the state at the time of filing her petition. Longwell v. Longwell, 39 C. A. 612, 88 S. W. 416.

Where the petition alleges that plaintiff resides in S. county, Texas, and has been a bona fide resident citizen of S. county for more than six months, next prior to, and immediately preceding filing of suit, it is sufficient as to residence. Owens v. Owens, 40 C. A. 641, 90 S. W. 664.

A complaint seeking to foreclose a lien on personal property held not subject to general demurrer for failure to allege the value of the property. Bullard v. Stewart, 46 C. A. 49, 102 S. W. 174.

The petition and the evidence in a suit for divorce held to show venue as against an objection raised in the amended motion for a new trial. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 578.

A petition is sufficient to give jurisdiction which states material facts necessary to empower the court to hear and determine the cause. McDaniel v. Staples (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 596.

In an action to foreclose a chattel mortgage, allegations that plaintiff and defendant resided in P. county, where the suit was filed, and that the mortgaged property was of the value of $345, were sufficient to show proper venue and subject-matter in amount. Id.

It is mandatory that the petition should allege that plaintiff is an actual bona fide inhabitant of the state, and has resided in the county, six months next preceding the filing of the suit. The allegation need not be in exact language of the statute. If facts are stated which substantially meet the requirement it is sufficient. Gamblin v. Gamblin, 52 C. A. 479, 114 S. W. 408.

In an action on a county treasurer's bond, begun in the district court, to recover a portion of the school fund which the treasurer did not pay over to his successor, the petition should allege the amount of the bond sued on in order to show that the amount is within the jurisdiction of the trial court. Connor v. Zackry (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 177.

An allegation held sufficient to show the jurisdiction of a court, in the absence of a plea or evidence attacking it. Varn v. Arnold Hat Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 693.

An appeal from the county court will be reversed, where the petition fails to show the value of the property in controversy. Bates v. Hill (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 288.

The allegations of the petition control in determining the question of the jurisdiction of the court. Beauchamp v. Parrish (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 333.

Where a petition alleged that plaintiff and defendant were married in C. county, Tex., about March 12, 1909, had continued to live together since, that both resided in C. county, and that plaintiff had so resided for more than six months preceding the filing of the suit, but failed to allege that plaintiff was a bona fide inhabitant of the state, it was insufficient. Forsythe v. Forsythe (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 198.

It is essential to the validity of the judgment that the pleadings affirmatively show that the trial court had jurisdiction of the subject-matter. Walker Mercantile Co. v. J. R. Raney Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 317.

114½. —— Marriage.—Petition alleging marriage held to admit of proof of common-law marriage. Cuneo v. De Cuneo, 24 C. A. 436, 59 S. W. 284.

115. —— Modification of contract.—In a suit upon a joint obligation by two, one of the defendants proved that he had signed the note as a surety upon an agreement that the signature of a co-surety was to be obtained before the note should have effect. Evidence that the defendant had promised to pay the note after he had ascertained that the proposed co-surety had failed to sign it was admissible in the absence of a pleading averring facts necessary to bind him by such agreement. Loving v. Dixon, 56 T. 75.

Where a contract authorizing plaintiffs to sell land within certain time is extended with slight changes by indorsement thereon, in an action for the breach before the extended time has expired, it is proper to declare on both contracts. McLane v. Maurer, 28 C. A. 75, 66 S. W. 693, 1108.

Proof of subsequent change in written agreement held admissible under the pleadings. Old River Rice Irr. Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 154.

116. —— Notice or knowledge.—In an action to recover land deeded to plaintiff by her husband, wherein it was alleged defendant and the husband conspired to defraud her, held, she could show that she did not know of the deed of trust under which one of defendants purchased, and which her husband gave before deeding the property to her. Parks v. Worthington (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 921.

117. —— Ordinances.—A city ordinance regulating speed of trains held admissible in an action for injuries at a street crossing under a pleading reciting the substance of such ordinance. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Dalwigh (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 527.

A mere allegation of the effect of a city ordinance regulating the placing of electric lighting wires, without setting forth a copy of the same or giving its substance, was not a sufficient pleading of the same, and should have been stricken out. Brush Electric Light & Power Co. v. Lefevre, 93 T. 604, 57 S. W. 640, 49 L. R. A. 771, 77 Am. St. Rep. 898.

In an action for injuries by collision with a vehicle driven by defendant at a speed prohibited by a city ordinance, allegations of the petition held sufficient to admit proof of the ordinance. Foley v. Northrup, 47 C. A. 277, 105 S. W. 229.

A petition, in an action for injuries in a collision with a street car, held sufficient to permit the introduction in evidence of a city ordinance relating to the speed of cars. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Hunt, 54 C. A. 415, 118 S. W. 827.

Where the only negligence alleged was in the character of the crossing, evidence of city ordinance fixing speed limit was incompetent. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 959.

An allegation that a city ordinance was a valid ordinance legally passed and adopted was sufficient, without alleging the details of its adoption necessary to make it a valid ordinance. Altgelt v. Gerbic (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 233.

118. —— Partnership.—A petition held not to allege that defendants were partners. Kessler v. First Nat. Bank, 21 C. A. 98, 51 S. W. 62.

The question of a partnership by estoppel resulting from conduct does not arise, unless pleaded. Casey-Swasey Co. v. S. G. Treadwell & Co., 32 C. A. 480, 74 S. W. 791.

A partnership by way of estoppel by holding one's self out as a partner must be specially pleaded. Hamner v. Barker (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1180.

Allegations of the petition held sufficient as a plea charging one as a partner by estoppel. Id.

119. —— Payment.—In action against constable for levying under execution, evidence that judgment had been paid held not admissible under complaint alleging that execution was not issued at the instance of plaintiffs in the judgment. Moore v. Moore (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 565.

120. —— Proximate cause.—Exceptions to allegations of negligence shown by the petition not to have been the proximate cause of plaintiff's injury are properly sustained. Miller v. Itasca Cotton Seed Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 366.

121. —— Subrogation.—A party may not be subrogated to the rights of another, without pleading and proving facts entitling him to subrogation. Hawkins v. Potter (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 643.

One asserting an equity of subrogation in property which has been illegally sold, as in case of a purchaser at a void administrator's sale, must plead it. Wilkin v. Geo. W. Owens & Bros., 102 T. 197, 114 S. W. 104, 132 Am. St. Rep. 867.

A plaintiff in trespass to try title held not subrogated to a prior lien because of the failure to plead subrogation. Chalkey v. Cooper, 56 C. A. 251, 120 S. W. 273.

Before subrogation can be decreed, the facts from which it arises must be distinctly and appropriately alleged and shown and the equity therefrom must plainly appear. Sherk v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 832.

122. —— Tender and offer of equity.—In a suit to restrain the sale of property under a deed of trust, an offer by plaintiff to do equity does not require the actual payment or tender of payment of what is admitted to be due, nor that it should be brought into court. Spann v. Sterns, 18 T. 556; Maloney v. Eaheart, 81 T. 281, 16 S. W. 1030.

A mortgagor suing for the recovery of mortgaged property unlawfully detained by the mortgagee is not under the necessity of making a tender before suit of the money owing on the property. The defendant has the right of foreclosure so as to subject the property to his debt. Soell v. Hadden, 85 T. 182, 19 S. W. 1087.

Offer to return consideration paid on goods obtained by fraud made on filing petition against assignee of fraudulent debtor held sufficient. Blalock v. Joseph Bowling Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 305.

A complaint by a vendor, asking for a recovery of land sold under an executory contract, held not insufficient for failure to offer to return a part of the purchase price shown to have been received therefor. Pitman v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 600.

A petition of a member of a partnership at will, asking for a dissolution and an accounting, held sufficient without an offer to do equity. Wright v. Ross, 30 C. A. 207, 70 S. W. 234.

In an action for injuries after a release of defendant from liability, in consideration of a sum paid plaintiff, held sufficient to express a willingness in the pleadings to allow the sum so paid against any judgment for plaintiff. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cade (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 124.

A complainant in equity is not required to plead the equities of his adversary, it not being necessary to offer to do equity as a condition of recovery unless the opposing equities are so blended with his own case as to be inseparable from a fair statement thereof. Nueces Valley Irr. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 633.

A petition by a vendor to recover the land for nonpayment of a note secured by vendor's lien held not defective for failure to offer to repay any part of the purchase money he may have received. Miller v. Linguist (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 170.

123. —— Waiver and ratification.—A waiver of a condition in the policy must be specially pleaded. German Ins. Co. v. Daniels (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 549.

Allegations in the petition held not to plead a waiver of a forfeiture of an insurance policy. City Drug Store v. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 21.

A waiver by the owner of a provision of a building contract requiring a written order of the architect for extra work is not available, in an action where recovery for extra work is sought, unless pleaded. Essex v. Murray, 29 C. A. 368, 68 S. W. 736.

Ratification and waiver of fraud and deception practiced on defendant in a sale of land must be pleaded and proved, to form the basis of a judgment for plaintiff on the contract. Guinn v. Ames, 36 C. A. 613, 83 S. W. 232.

Evidence of waiver, during drilling of an oil well, of contractor's guaranty that it should be a flowing well, held not to avail him in action for contract price, not being pleaded. R. L. Cox & Co. v. J. H. Markham, Jr., & Co., 39 C. A. 637, 87 S. W. 1163.

Plaintiff, who pleads performance of a condition precedent, cannot recover on proof of a waiver by defendant of such performance. Dolinski v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 276.

In a suit to foreclose a vendor's lien, a reply held to raise the issue of waiver or nonwaiver of the vendor's lien at the time of sale. Wittliff v. Biscoe (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1153.

124. Pleading in particular actions.—In an action for equitable relief in the course of their transactions, held that it was not error to fail to allege certain items in the petition. Openshaw v. Rickmeyer, 45 C. A. 508, 102 S. W. 467.

A petition, in an action against a judicial or quasi judicial officer for exceeding the limits of his legal powers, held required to show a usurpation of authority and improper or malicious motives. Sanders State Bank v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 84.

125. —— Account.—Where an account sued on is properly itemized in the petition, except as to a few items, it is not subject to demurrer. Dwight v. Matthews, 94 T. 533, 62 S. W. 1052.

In an action on an account for merchandise sold and delivered, a bill of particulars, one of the items in which is, "To balance due in cash, $600," is not sufficiently specific. Ralston v. Aultman (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 746.

Where an open account for goods sold, sued on, is not itemized, demurrer will lie. Hickman v. Scudder-Gale Grocer Co. (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 1081.

Declaration in an action on a book account held not demurrable because of failure to show that the account began with the commencement of the dealings between the parties. Keating Implement & Machine Co. v. Erie City Iron Works (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 546.

A special exception to the petition in an action on an account stated that it is not itemized held good. Bartholomew v. Shepperd, 41 C. A. 579, 93 S. W. 218.

126. —— Against abstract company.—Complaint against abstract company for failure of abstract to show deed under which persons claimed adversely held to state no cause of action. Puckett v. Waco Abstract & Investment Co., 16 C. A. 329, 40 S. W. 812.

127. —— Against bailee for failure to return property.—In a bailor's action for the value of a colt which the bailee fails to return, plaintiff need not plead fraud and negligence on the part of the bailee. Bagley v. Brack (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 247.

128. —— Against carriers of goods and live stock.—In an action against a carrier for damage to goods, the time when the goods were received by the carrier should be alleged. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Creath, 3 App. C. C. § 83.

Complaint against railroad company for damage to goods in transit held to state a cause of action on the common-law liability. Moses v. Union Pac. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 154.

It is not necessary to plead or prove the negligence in an action against a carrier for injuries to a shipment of stock caused by its failure to provide proper cars. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Pool, 24 C. A. 575, 59 S. W. 911.

The petition in an action for loss of property by a carrier describing some of it as "one chest of silver," and other articles as "one punch bowl, one H. P. vase, and two C. G. bowls," without even stating the material thereof, is subject to special exceptions to sufficiency of description. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quilhot (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 200.

Where delays and failure to feed and water plaintiff's cattle were generally alleged in the petition, and there was no special exception to more particularly specify the points of delay, or at which there was refusal to feed and water, evidence as to delay at W., and of a demand and refusal to water at E., was not objectionable because such delays and demand and refusal had not been pleaded. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 895.

In an action against a carrier for injury to live stock from delay in transportation, an allegation in the petition that the injury resulted from "delay, rough handling, and that the horses were choused around while at T.," was not broad enough to admit testimony that at one of the stations defendant's servants "hammered and knocked around and put four bolts in the back end of the car," and that the "noise and hammering made the horses restless and nervous," since the word "choused" means no more than a trick, a sham, or a cheat. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Peacock (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 463.

The petition for injury to a shipment of cattle from rough usage and delay in transit held sufficiently specific as to negligence. Ft. Worth & R. G. R. Co. v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 813.

A petition against carriers for injury to live stock held to have sufficiently described the property. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Saunders (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 829.

In an action for breach of a carrier's contract to transport cattle by a particular train, plaintiff's petition held to sufficiently charge delay in transportation, as distinguished from a mere failure to furnish cars. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Whiteside (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1037.

129. —— Against connecting carriers.—Allegations in the petition, in an action against connecting carriers for breach of contract to carry safely, that one of them received cattle for through shipment over its own and the other's line, but that the terminal carrier refused to receive them unless they were reloaded into its own cars, and over plaintiff's protest the cattle were reloaded, causing great damage and delay, and that because of such delay the shipment was further delayed at another point, and as a direct result of the negligent acts of one or both carriers when unloading and reloading the cattle, they were greatly injured when they reached destination, and that each carrier failed in its duty to carry with reasonable care sufficiently charged the final carrier with a breach of its common-law duty to carry safely. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 737, judgment reversed 104 T. 92, 134 S. W. 328.

The effect of the Carmack Amendment is to make all connecting carriers the agent of the initial carrier, and in an action thereunder against the initial carrier for injury to a shipment it was not necessary that the petition give the names of defendant's connecting lines. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 309.

130. —— Against carriers of passengers.—Complaint by passenger for injuries in rear-end collision held sufficient to admit proof of negligence of employés on both trains. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 16 C. A. 93, 40 S. W. 608.

Petition for injury received while alighting at intermediate station, in reliance on statement of conductor, held to sufficiently show that such statement was negligence proximately causing the injuries. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Downing, 16 C. A. 643, 41 S. W. 190.

Negligence of defendant held predicated on both the insufficiency of the stop of the train and the suddenness of the start when plaintiff was attempting to alight. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. McElree, 16 C. A. 182, 41 S. W. 843.

In an action against a carrier for injuries to a passenger, it was not necessary to plead a rule of the company requiring engineers to use extra precaution after a heavy rain, in order to prove the rule and its violation. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bell, 24 C. A. 579, 58 S. W. 614.

In an action for injuries to a passenger in alighting from a train, an allegation that "the car was negligently and carelessly put in motion" was sufficient to admit proof that "the car gave a jerk" when plaintiff was in the act of alighting. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Moss (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 894.

In an action against a railway company for injuries sustained by alighting from a train, it was not error to reject evidence that there were no lights at the station; failure to provide lights not being pleaded. Milligan v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 27 C. A. 600, 66 S. W. 896.

Plaintiffs, in an action against a railroad for death resulting from the derailment of a train, held confined in their proof to the specific allegations as to the cause of the derailment. Johnson v. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co., 27 C. A. 616, 66 S. W. 906.

A petition in an action by a passenger for damages to his baggage held not to sufficiently describe the articles destroyed or damaged. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Seale, 28 C. A. 364, 67 S. W. 437.

Under the petition in an action for injuries received while disembarking from a car, certain evidence held admissible. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 587.

A petition in an action for injuries to a passenger, received while disembarking, held good as against a general demurrer. Id.

A petition in an action for injuries by reason of a carrier's failure to have its ticket office open before train time held sufficient. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Lister (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 107.

In an action against a railroad for the loss of trunks, defendant is entitled to be informed by plaintiff of the several items constituting the contents of the trunks. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Weatherby, 41 C. A. 409, 92 S. W. 58.

The petition held to charge negligence, not only in the original construction of a car, but in allowing it to get out of repair, and furnishing it for transportation in such condition. Leas v. Continental Fruit Express, 45 C. A. 162, 99 S. W. 859.

Under allegations of the petition, in a personal injury action against a street car company, that defendant's employés stopped the car to permit passengers to alight, and, while plaintiff's wife was alighting, without giving her a reasonable time to alight, negligently caused the car to be suddenly moved, injuring her, evidence was relevant that it was the duty of defendant's conductors to assist lady passengers to alight, and that its rules required them to do so. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Higdon (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 732.

In an action for injuries to a street car passenger while attempting to alight, caused by a negligent failure of the car to stop at a crossing, plaintiff may testify as to how far he was from the crossing when he rang the bell to signal the car to stop at the crossing to enable him to alight, as bearing on the negligence in failing to stop the car, though the petition did not allege the fact sought to be proved by the testimony. Needham v. Austin Electric Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 904.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff during the switching of a freight car in which he was riding as a passenger, a petition, alleging that defendant's agents and servants while operating the engine and car in defendant's railroad yard negligently backed the car suddenly and unexpectedly and with great and unusual force and violence against the car, train, or engine standing on the track, causing plaintiff to be thrown forward against the car and injured, stated a cause of action under the rule authorizing a passenger under such circumstances to recover only for injuries due to the unnecessary and unusual jarring and switching of a car. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 910.

In an action by a passenger for ejection, evidence that depot leaked held admissible under pleading that on return to the depot it was raining. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Wharton (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 282.

In an action for loss of a sleeping car passenger's effects, evidence that defendant's servants knew that stealing from cars had been going on in the neighborhood was admissible, though such knowledge was not alleged. Pullman Co. v. Schober (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 236.

131. —— Against cities.—Seeking to enforce against a city an executory contract, the petition must allege that the contract is authorized by the statute, as well as the existence of conditions made necessary by statutory or organic law to the execution thereof. Water & Gas Co. v. Cleburne, 1 C. A. 580, 21 S. W. 393.

Pleading in action for injury on a defective crosswalk. Denison v. Sanford, 21 S. W. 784, 2 C. A. 661.

Where the petition alleges that the city owns and operates an electric plant, and that the city was chartered under the general laws of the state, a general exception thereto on the theory that it is not alleged that the city is not authorized to own and operate such a plant can not be sustained. City of Honey Grove v. Lamaster (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1053.

In an action against a city chartered under the general laws, for injuries caused by a shock from an electric wire, an allegation that the city had authority to operate the electric light plant is unnecessary. Id.

A complaint on a contract against a city held to sufficiently allege authority of the council to execute the contract. Harrison v. City of Sulphur Springs (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1064.

A complaint against a city and school board for damages for refusing to permit plaintiffs to perform their contract for work on a new school house, which does not allege that the city has made provision to meet the obligation of the contract or had funds for that purpose, does not state a cause of action against the city. Peck-Smead Co. v. City of Sherman, 26 C. A. 208, 63 S. W. 340.

A petition in an action against a city for injuries to a traveler in consequence of a defective street held to show the duty required of the street superintendent to repair the street. City of Dallas v. McCullough (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 1121.

Petition against a city held not to waive plaintiff's lien on the general fund of the city for a certain year. City of San Antonio v. Alamo Nat. Bank, 52 C. A. 561, 114 S. W. 909.

The petition on city warrants of a certain year, though showing there remain enough uncollected taxes for such year to pay the claim, held sufficient, without alleging diversion of the same or denial of right to payment therefrom. Id.

An allegation of the petition in a personal injury action against a city of service of written notice of the injury on the mayor held sufficient. City of San Antonio v. Ashton (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 757.

One seeking to recover damages from the operation of a sewer system for a city held required to allege and prove either negligence in the construction and operation of the system, or that the system creates a nuisance. Stamford Sewerage Co. v. Astin (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 649.

132. —— Against heirs.—Judgment upon a money claim against the ancestor should not be rendered against heirs unless it is alleged that they received assets from the ancestor. Schmidtke v. Miller, 71 T. 103, 8 S. W. 638.

A petition to charge heirs and devisees with decedent's debts held insufficient, in not describing the property each defendant received. Blinn v. McDonald, 92 T. 604, 46 S. W. 787, 48 S. W. 571, 50 S. W. 931.

133. —— Against sureties.—Pleadings held not to raise the question whether one of two sureties bound on several obligations of the same principal was required to distribute a fund pro rata among all the obligations. Sanders v. Wettermark, 20 C. A. 175, 49 S. W. 900.

Where defendant became surety on an agent's contract with a crayon company by which the agent bound himself to solicit orders for frames and enlargements of portraits, to deliver the portraits sold, and to sell frames and collect the money therefor, a petition, in an action to charge defendant as surety, alleging that the agent collected and wrongfully appropriated certain moneys due and belonging to plaintiff, was not sufficient. May v. Chicago Crayon Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 733.

134. —— Against telegraph and telephone companies.—Complaint for failure to deliver a telegram, the purpose of which was not disclosed on its face, held to state a cause of action. Ward v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 259.

Petition in an action against a telephone company for failure to notify plaintiff that a certain party wished to talk with him held not to state a cause of action. Lewis v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 303.

In an action for negligence in delivering a message, the petition as against a general demurrer held to include an allegation that defendant negligently failed to make delivery to the addressee's authorized agent. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Shaw, 40 C. A. 277, 90 S. W. 58.

A petition in an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering a message held insufficient for failing to contain a certain allegation. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bell, 42 C. A. 462, 92 S. W. 1036.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay, the petition held to sufficiently show a contract for the transmission of the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Rowe, 44 C. A. 84, 98 S. W. 228.

An allegation that the sender of a message informed the agent of the facts and circumstances requiring speedy transmission held sufficient to admit proof of any information given the agent touching the urgency of the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Hidalgo (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 426.

In an action against a telegraph company for negligence in the transmission and delivery of a message, an issue as to negligence in transmission held to have been raised by the petition. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Cook, 45 C. A. 87, 99 S. W. 1131.

In an action against a telegraph company for negligence in the transmission and delivery of a message, an allegation of the petition held to have charged a contract to rush the message. Id.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering a message, the reasonableness of the office hours of the company held not in issue. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Johnsey, 49 C. A. 487, 109 S. W. 251.

In an action against a telegraph company for nondelivery of a message, the petition held sufficient to authorize the admission of evidence that the sendee would have complied with the request made in the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Powell, 54 C. A. 466, 118 S. W. 226.

A petition in an action against a telegraph company held sufficient as against the general demurrer. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Hughey, 55 C. A. 403, 118 S. W. 1130.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in the delivery of a message, whereby a son was prevented from reaching the bedside of a dying mother and attending her funeral, certain evidence held admissible without any allegation in the petition. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Douglass (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 488.

In an action against a telegraph company for injuries to cattle caused by failure to transmit a message, certain evidence held admissible under the allegations of the petition. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1153.

In an action against a telegraph company for damages to cattle from delay caused by its failure to deliver a message, held unnecessary to have alleged in the petition that, if the message had been delivered, the cattle would not have been delayed. Id.

Allegations of a petition for negligence in the transmission and delivery of a death message, relating to information furnished by the addressee to the agent as to where he could be found in case a death message arrived which he was expecting, held proper to show that if diligence had been used the message could have been delivered. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Cates (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 92.

A petition against a telegraph company for damages for failure to deliver a death message held not objectionable for failure to connect the alleged negligence of defendant with the absence of plaintiff's father at the funeral of her husband. Id.

A petition for damages by delay in delivering a telegram, so that plaintiff was prevented from reaching his brother's side before he died, without stating that, if the telegram had been delivered, he would have done so, is demurrable. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1062.

In an action against a telegraph company for damages, a petition which failed to allege that the person sending it paid for its transmission, or that the defendant bound itself to deliver, or without showing a contract between the parties, held demurrable. Id.

A petition against a telegraph company for negligent delivery of a telegram held to sufficiently allege the making of a contract for the transmission and delivery of the message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Conder (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 447.

A petition in an action against a telegraph company held to state a cause of action for breach of contract to transmit a message. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Saxon (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1091.

The petition in an action for mental suffering from failure of a telephone company to promptly notify plaintiff of a call for him, should allege that, had the message been promptly completed, he would have taken a certain train, it having alleged that this would have been necessary in order for him to have arrived in time for his mother's funeral. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Givens (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 676.

The petition in an action against a telephone company for mental suffering from delay in notifying plaintiff of a call for him must allege that the company had notice of the nature of the message desired to be sent to plaintiff. Id.

Averments in an action against a telegraph company for damages for delay in the delivery of a death message held to sufficiently notify the defendant of the close relationship of the parties. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Samuels (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 802.

Petition in action for delay in delivery of telegram held to sufficiently allege that, if the telegram had been delivered in time, plaintiff would have attended his brother's funeral. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Stracner (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 845.

A petition, in an action for delay in the delivery of a message announcing the fatal illness of plaintiff's child, thereby preventing him from seeing the child alive, which merely alleges in general terms that he could and would have reached the child before its death had the message been promptly delivered, is subject to a special exception. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Forest (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 204.

135. —— Assault.—In an action against a beneficial association, an allegation that plaintiff was tripped by an officer or agent of the defendant held broad enough to cover any kind of tripping. Grand Temple and Tabernacle of Knights and Daughters of Tabor v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 173.

136. —— Between assignor and assignee.—Complaint in a suit by assignee of a policy against his assignor held insufficient to show any liability on defendant's part aside from that created by the assignment. Gooch v. Parker, 16 C. A. 256, 41 S. W. 662.

In an action to foreclose vendor's lien by an assignee, petition held insufficient to authorize a judgment against the assignor for a wrongful release of the lien. Busch v. Broun (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 683.

137. —— Bills and notes.—Pleading instrument, see ante, 14–16.

The execution and delivery of the note by the maker to the payee. Malone v. Craig, 22 T. 609; Barnard v. Moseley, 28 T. 543; Moody v. Benge, 28 T. 545; Parr v. Nolen, 28 T. 798. But bills of exchange and promissory notes imply a consideration. Jones v. Holliday, 11 T. 412, 62 Am. Dec. 487; Williams v. Edwards, 15 T. 41. The breach or nonperformance of the contract (Holman v. Criswell, 13 T. 38; Welder v. Dunn, 2 App. C. C. § 96), as the non-payment of the note (Brackett v. Devine, 25 T. 194; Whitaker v. Record, 25 T. 382; Grant v. Whittlesey, 42 T. 320), which may be alleged in general terms (Holman v. Criswell, 15 T. 394; Palmer v. Wilks, 17 T. 105; Blythe v. Speake, 23 T. 429).

As to allegations in suit on a letter of credit, see Wilson v. Childress, 2 App. C. C. § 425.

A petition on a promissory note which contains no averment as to the time when the note was due, but which contains the general allegation that the note "remains still due and unpaid," being formal in other respects, is good on general demurrer. Pennington v. Schwartz, 70 T. 211, 8 S. W. 32.

In a suit on a bill of exchange by the drawer against the drawee, it was alleged that it was drawn by plaintiff on the defendant at his request and for his sole use and benefit; that payment was refused and the bill was taken up by plaintiff. These allegations on general exception showed a good cause of action. Tinsley v. Penniman, 83 T. 54, 18 S. W. 718.

Complaint in action on note against indorser held to sufficiently allege protest Williams v. Planters' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 617.

An indorsee of a note need not in an action thereon allege a purchase for valuable consideration. Schauer et al. v. Beitel's Ex'r (Sup.) 49 S. W. 145.

In suit on a note, plaintiff need not set out an itemized account for which the note was given. Melton v. Katzenstein (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 173.

An allegation as to a stipulation in a note to pay attorney's fees held necessary in an action thereon. Williams v. Harrison, 27 C. A. 179, 65 S. W. 884.

Allegations in a petition held to show that a bank had bought drafts from a consignor on the consignee with the bills of lading as mere security for the payments of the draft. S. Blaisdell, Jr., Co. v. Citizens' Nat. Bank, 96 T. 626, 75 S. W. 292, 62 L. R. A. 968, 97 Am. St. Rep. 944.

In an action by the holder of a note, maturing September, 1907, against an indorser without suing the maker, the petition alleged that the maker had filed a petition in bankruptcy on November 8, 1907, and was adjudicated insolvent and bankrupt and prayed for a judgment against the indorser, as he was the only party thereto who was then solvent. Held, that the petition sufficiently alleged the insolvency of the maker at the time of maturity of the notes. First Nat. Bank v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 177.

In an action on a note stipulating for 10 per cent. attorney's fees if placed with an attorney after maturity for collection, allegations of the petition that the notes had matured and were unpaid, and that plaintiff had been compelled to place them with an attorney for collection and directed him to file suit thereon, were insufficient to support a recovery for any sum as expenses incurred in collecting the notes; such fees being considered as indemnity, and not as stipulated damages. Reed v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 864.

A petition on notes, alleging that defendants agreed in the notes to pay a percentage attorney's fee, if placed for collection, after maturity or if collected by suit, that after maturity the notes were placed in an attorney's hands for collection, and that he has sued thereon, was good against a general demurrer, and sufficient to admit proof of the amount plaintiffs agreed to pay the attorney for his services and as to the reasonableness of the fee. Smith v. Norton (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 733.

Where certain notes sued on stipulated for 10 per cent. on the amount due as attorneys' fees if suit was brought thereon, or if placed in the hands of an attorney for collection, plaintiff was not entitled to recover attorneys' fees on a petition merely alleging that plaintiff elected after October 31, 1907, to declare both notes due and placed them in the hands of certain attorneys for collection and suit thereon, but failing to allege the date when the notes were placed in the hands of the attorneys. Ward v. Boydston (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 786.

In a suit on notes, pleadings held to sufficiently show that defendant was an indorser. Daniel v. Brewton (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 815.

A petition in an action on the bond of a contractor to erect a building for an independent school district held to state a cause of action, though it does not allege that the bond was accepted by the trustees. Wright v. Jones, 55 C. A. 616, 120 S. W. 1139.

139. —— Breach of contracts in general.—Pleading breach or non-performance of contract, see Holman v. Criswell, 13 T. 38; Welder v. Dunn, 2 App. C. C. § 96.

Pleading place of execution or performance, see Whitlock v. Castro, 22 T. 108.

In a suit on a contract it is necessary to allege its terms (Bledsoe v. Wills, 22 T. 650; Salinas v. Wright, 11 T. 572) according to its legal effect (Wooters v. I. & G. N. R. R. Co., 54 T. 294).

A complaint for breach of contract not to engage in business for a certain time held sufficient on demurrer. Erwin v. Hayden (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 610.

A petition held sufficient to show not only a contract with, but a breach by, a defendant. Arkansas Const. Co. v. Eugene, 20 C. A. 601, 50 S. W. 736.

Where a contract authorizing plaintiffs to sell lands fixes a minimum price, leaving the asking price to be agreed on, a complaint for breach of such contract which alleges that such price was agreed to is sufficient. McLane v. Maurer, 28 C. A. 75, 66 S. W. 693, 1108.

The petition in an action for breach of contract to furnish water to irrigate lands held to sufficiently describe the lands. Colorado Canal Co. v. Dennis & Rugely, 38 C. A. 116, 85 S. W. 443.

In an action for architect's services, an allegation that plaintiff was employed to make plans for a building, the estimated cost of which was $40,000, held a mere estimate, and not an allegation that the building that plaintiff was employed to make plans for was one that was to cost such sum. Buckler v. Kneezell (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 367.

A petition in an action for boring a well held sufficient, without going into the details as to size of the well, etc. J. M. Guffy Petroleum Co. v. Hamill, 42 C. A. 196, 94 S. W. 458.

Pleadings in an action based on a refusal to permit plaintiff to carry out a contract for grading and clearing at a specified price held to raise no issue as to whether the work was to be done in a specified time. Jefferson & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Dreeson, 43 C. A. 282, 96 S. W. 63.

In an action on a contract, a demurrer to the petition held erroneously sustained. Linton v. Brownsville Land & Irrigation Co., 46 C. A. 225, 102 S. W. 433.

Allegations of petition held proper as tending to show intentional breach of contract by vendors. Hughes v. Adams, 55 C. A. 197, 119 S. W. 134.

A petition, in an action on contract, held not insufficient as uncertain. Broussard v. South Texas Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 587.

A petition in an action on a contract held good as against a general demurrer. Martin v. A. B. Frank Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 958.

Where the petition alleged a special contract to pay plaintiff for medical services rendered, but did not allege breach of such contract by failure to pay, it was subject to a general demurrer. Carter v. Olive (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 478.

Petition on contract for transfer of lease and assistance to defendant in purchasing land belonging to public school fund, held not subject to certain special exceptions. Belcher v. Schmidt (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 833.

A petition to recover rents under certain leases held to sufficiently allege privity of contract between plaintiff and defendant. Dockery v. Thorne (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 593.

In an action to recover on a contract to cut and deliver wood under a contract secured by defendant from the government, held, that evidence as to the character of wood to be furnished thereunder was admissible under the pleadings. Sauer v. Veltmann (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 706.

140. —— Breach of contract of sale.—The terms of a petition based on a contract as to the sale of goods held to allege a delivery of the goods. Jaeggli v. Phears, 30 C. A. 212, 70 S. W. 330.

A petition for breach of a contract to convey to plaintiff certain land held not to state facts entitling plaintiff to recover damages. Prusiecke v. Ramzinski (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 771.

In an action for breach of a contract for the sale of growing hay, the petition was not defective for failure to give a sufficient description of the land to identify it; the location of the hay not being material. Kreisle v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1132.

In an action by a buyer of cattle to recover a partial payment of the price and for damages for defective condition of the cattle, evidence of the buyer that he bought for market shipment as stockers and feeders held admissible as against objection that the pleadings did not warrant its introduction. O'Brien v. Von Lienen (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 723.

141. —— Breach of promise to marry.—Complaint held to allege promise by correspondence, and also by parol. Barber v. Geer, 26 C. A. 89, 63 S. W. 934.

Petition held to allege an agreement made solely by correspondence. Barber v. Geer, 94 T. 581, 63 S. W. 1007.

Petition is not demurrable for failing to allege any definite time for performance. Clark v. Reese, 26 C. A. 619, 64 S. W. 783.

Held not prejudicial error to permit plaintiff to plead and prove that defendant advised an abortion after he seduced her. Huggins v. Carey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 390.

A petition stating that defendant proposed marriage with plaintiff and she accepted, that he won her love and that under reiterated promises he had intercourse with her, etc., held good. Id.

142. —— By broker for commissions.—A petition held defective for failure to allege the names of purchasers whom plaintiff claimed he had secured. Burnett v. Edling, 19 C. A. 711, 48 S. W. 775.

Petition held to state a cause of action. McLane v. Goode (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 707.

Petition in real estate broker's action against another broker for share of commissions held not demurrable. Blake v. Austin, 33 C. A. 112, 75 S. W. 571.

Petition held sufficient. Yarborough v. Creager (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 645.

The petition properly set forth the agreement between the owner and the purchaser settling the matter arising out of the owner's failure to sell. Wilson v. Clark, 35 C. A. 92, 79 S. W. 649.

A petition in action for breach of a contract for the services in the sale of real estate held not demurrable as showing a forfeiture by plaintiff by his acceptance of an inconsistent employment. Shropshire v. Adams, 40 C. A. 339, 89 S. W. 448.

Where time was of the essence of the contract, an extension should have been pleaded in order to authorize its admission in evidence and submission to the jury. Leuschner v. Patrick (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 664.

Where defendant authorized plaintiff to sell to a certain person for a certain amount, and defendant a few days later sold to him for a less amount, petition held sufficient. Pierce v. Nichols, 50 C. A. 443, 110 S. W. 206.

Issue in action by a broker for commissions stated. A. T. Baker & Co. v. De Vitt, 49 C. A. 607, 110 S. W. 528.

A petition, held to state a cause of action for the compensation agreed on. Shelton v. Cain (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1155.

An allegation in a petition held sufficient to justify the admission of evidence as to rate of commission. Leake v. Scaief (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 814.

In an action by a broker for commissions, he having testified that he had spoken to the purchaser and advised him to buy the land, evidence of defendant that he and another in whose hands the land was placed for sale had also spoken to the purchaser held admissible under the general issue. Obets v. Maney (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 351.

A petition alleging that plaintiff became associated with defendant firm as a real estate broker, with an agreement that he should receive all commissions earned by the firm on property procured by him, that he listed with such firm property previously listed with him individually upon an agreement for a certain commission, that he brought the owner thereof to the firm's office, and that thereafter defendant firm purchased the land for themselves individually, without the consent of plaintiff, with an agreement that the vendor should pay no commission, and that plaintiff had never waived his right to a commission, states a cause of action. Burns v. Russell Bros. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 707.

Petition, in action against real estate brokers for a share in a commission on a sale, held to sufficiently allege that the other brokers had ratified the contract of one of them agreeing to pay such commission. Lilly v. Yeary (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 823.

Where a petition alleges a contract for a commission of 7½ per cent. "of the list selling price" of any automobile sold by plaintiff and evidence of an agreement to pay a commission of 7½ per cent., with only an understanding by plaintiff that it would be based on the list selling price, because commissions on such sales were usually based on such price is inadmissible. Overland Automobile Co. v. Buntyn (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 654.

143. —— By or against corporations in general.—Pleading incorporation, see notes under Art. 1822.

Pleading right of foreign corporation to sue, see ante.

Petition, in action to charge several corporations on notes given by one of them, payment of which was assumed by another, held insufficient. White v. Pecos Land & Water Co., 18 C. A. 634, 45 S. W. 207.

In an action for the benefit of a corporation to recover money appropriated for treasurer's services, pleadings held to raise an issue as to the reasonableness of the amount voted. Greathouse v. Martin, 100 T. 99, 94 S. W. 322.

It is not necessary, in a suit by a private corporation, to allege in the petition that the suit is authorized by the governing body thereof. De Zavala v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 160.

Petition in an action by a corporation on a note held bad on general demurrer. Dillard v. A. G. McAdams Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1023.

In an action by a corporation which changed its name the petition held not defective in failing to allege an assignment of the account sued on. Posey v. White House Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 931.

It is not necessary in a suit by a private corporation to allege that the suit is authorized by the board of directors. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 877.

In an action on a judgment and to foreclose the lien thereof brought by a foreign corporation, a petition which showed that plaintiff had surrendered its permit to do business in the state was not demurrable where it did not appear why it surrendered its permit, or that it was such a corporation as was required by statute to obtain such a permit, and it did appear that at the time the abstract of the judgment was recorded in the county where the suit was brought it had such a permit, since Arts. 1314–1321 do not prevent suits for the enforcement or protection of lawfully acquired property rights. Kingman Texas Implement Co. v. Borders (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 614.

144. —— By or against executors and administrators.—A petition in a suit for a legacy against one alleged to be an executrix, which fails to allege that the defendant had qualified as such executrix, or whether the estate was in due course of administration in the county court, or in what capacity the defendant took possession of the property of the estate except by referring to articles of the statute; and where personal judgment against the executrix was claimed, failure to allege any fact or circumstance authorizing a personal judgment against her is insufficient. Hawkins v. Forrest, 1 U. C. 167.

In a suit by an administrator de bonis non against the personal representatives of his deceased predecessor to recover assets collected or received and not accounted for, it is not essential that the entire former inventory of the estate should be set out in that petition. Allegations showing the value of the estate which was received by the former administrator, as shown by the inventory, the amount paid over by him, the amount turned over to the administrator de bonis non, connected with a statement declaring the money or property not accounted for, will be sufficient in a proceeding instituted to compel an account. Dwyer v. Kalteyer, 68 T. 554, 5 S. W. 75.

Pleadings in an action for a devastavit. Frank v. De Lopez, 21 S. W. 279, 2 C. A. 245; Chapman v. Brite, 23 S. W. 514, 4 C. A. 506.

Petition to compel executors to pay plaintiff an annuity held sufficient. Turner v. Clark, 18 C. A. 606, 46 S. W. 381.

Petition in action for payment of rejected claim held bad. Marx v. Freeman, 21 C. A. 429, 52 S. W. 647.

A petition against an independent executrix need not allege the solvency of the estate. Hartz v. Hausser (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 63.

In an action against an administrator on certain notes, the petition held not objectionable for failure to sufficiently allege that all legal payments and credits had been allowed. Dashiell v. W. L. Moody & Co., 44 C. A. 87, 97 S. W. 843.

145. —— By or against insurance company or order.—An allegation that a clause set out at length was attached and made a part of the insurance policy is a sufficient allegation that the clause constituted a part thereof. City Drug Store v. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 21.

That insured had an insurable interest in the premises at the time they were destroyed can be inferred from an allegation that the loss happened under circumstances rendering defendant liable. Northwestern Nat. Ins. Co. v. Woodward, 18 C. A. 496, 45 S. W. 185.

A complaint in an action on an insurance policy held to sufficiently allege that plaintiff was the owner of the premises at the time of the loss. Id.

Petition in action for insurance on a retail stock need not be accompanied by itemized list. Id.

Petition in action on life policy, setting out its substance and facts showing company's liability, held sufficient. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Freeman, 19 C. A. 632, 47 S. W. 1025.

A complaint on a policy, against the company and a creditor of insured, to whom the policy is payable as his interest may appear, does not state a cause of action against the creditor, where it does not allege that he claims an interest. Andrews v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co., 92 T. 584, 50 S. W. 572.

In an action on a fire policy, plaintiff must allege that he was the owner of the property at the time of the contract of insurance. Continental Fire Ass'n of Ft. Worth v. Bearden, 29 C. A. 569, 69 S. W. 982.

A petition in an action on a parol life insurance policy held not objectionable for failure to allege consideration, and that the policy took effect before insured's death. Pacific Mut. Ins. Co. v. Shaffer, 30 C. A. 313, 70 S. W. 566.

Where a petition attached a policy sued on, and the policy required proofs of loss, a failure to allege compliance with such condition rendered the petition demurrable. Texas Home Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Bowlin (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 797.

Petition on a contract of fire insurance held sufficient as against a general exception. Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co. v. Jameson Bros., 31 C. A. 651, 73 S. W. 418.

In an action on a policy of fire insurance, petition held to sufficiently allege ownership of the property destroyed as against a general demurrer. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. White, 32 C. A. 197, 73 S. W. 827.

Payee of life policy held not entitled to recover premiums paid thereon, when not pleaded. Wilton v. New York Life Ins. Co., 34 C. A. 156, 78 S. W. 403.

The petition in an action on a fire policy held to sufficiently describe the property, the books of account being burned. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Nunn (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 88.

Petition on fire insurance policy held to state cause of action. Underwriters' Fire Ass'n v. Henry (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1072.

The petition on an accident policy held not required to set forth clauses of the policy, which, if breached, would limit defendant's liability or exempt it from any liability. Continental Casualty Co. v. Jennings, 45 C. A. 14, 99 S. W. 423.

In an action on a health policy specifying an indemnity for confining illness, excepting disabilities resulting from paralysis, etc., in which case one-fifth of the amount is payable, insured cannot show that paralysis confined insured without pleading that fact. General Accident Ins. Co. v. Hayes, 52 C. A. 272, 113 S. W. 990.

A complaint, in an action on an accident insurance policy, held sufficient to allege that the loss of the sight of both of plaintiff's eyes was caused by external, violent, and accidental means, independent of all other causes. Ætna Life Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 432.

An insurer's waiver of a breach of the conditions of a policy must be pleaded, to be available. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. of Waco v. Moore (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 441.

Petition by executors who were also heirs to an estate to recover on a policy of fire insurance, taken out in the name of one of the executors for the benefit of estate, held to state a good cause of action against a general demurrer. Shawnee Fire Ins. Co. v. Chapman (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 854.

Petition by insurer against railroad company to recover fire loss paid held not subject to exception. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Commercial Union Assur. Co. of London, Eng. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 401.

Plaintiff's petition in an action on an insurance policy, alleging that the policy was on "his certain stock of merchandise," was a sufficient allegation of ownership of the property destroyed as against a general demurrer. Royal Ins. Co. v. W. P. Wright & Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 824.

A petition on a policy held not to show that the agent writing the policy was agent of both parties, so as to render the policy void. Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co. v. McCollum (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 775.

A petition in an action on a fire insurance contract, which alleges facts authorizing proof of either a written or an oral contract of insurance, is not demurrable. Niagara Fire Ins. Co. v. Lollar (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1140.

The petition in an action on a fire insurance contract, which alleges facts showing a parol contract free from conditions, is not bad for failing to allege compliance with conditions. Id.

A petition, in an action on a policy on life of a horse, which alleges that plaintiff was the owner of the horse when the policy was issued, that the horse died within the life of the policy, that all premiums had been paid, that plaintiff furnished proof of loss with demand of payment, and that defendant was indebted to plaintiff in the amount of the policy, sufficiently alleged as against a general demurrer that plaintiff was the owner of the horse at the time of its death. Indiana & Ohio Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 755.

146. —— By or against husband or wife or both.—In Overand v. Menczer, 83 T. 122, 18 S. W. 301, it is held that the recitals in the pleadings should show that the suit was for the use of the wife in order to conclude her by the judgment.

The husband suing alone for injury to his wife's separate property should allege ownership in her. Railway Co. v. Stockton, 15 C. A. 145, 38 S. W. 647.

In an action under the statute against husband and wife for debts relating to her children and her separate estate, held, that it need not be alleged that the husband is insolvent, and that there is no community estate liable. Hawkes v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 548.

A petition under the statute against husband and wife on a note signed by each, alleging that the wife executed it for money had for the necessary care of her children and her separate estate, held sufficient. Id.

Petition by married woman for conversion of community property, failing to allege abandonment by husband, or separation, or that plaintiff had acquired sole control of property, held insufficient to show her right to sue alone. Schwulst v. Neely (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 608.

Petition in action against married woman held sufficient to charge her separate estate. Emerson v. Kneezell (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 551.

In an action for the specific performance of a contract by a married woman to make a will, where the petition does not allege that the contract was made so as to be binding on such married woman, a demurrer will be sustained. West v. Clark, 28 C. A. 1, 66 S. W. 215.

Allegation by married woman that her husband had permanently abandoned her without her fault, and had left the state, is sufficient to authorize her to sue for the community property. Word v. Kennon (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 334.

In an action by a husband for injuries to his wife, it was not necessary to allege or prove the value of her services. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 38 C. A. 201, 85 S. W. 445.

In trespass to try title by a married woman, her husband not being joined, she must allege that her husband failed or refused to sue for her or to join with her. Parks v. Worthington, 39 C. A. 421, 87 S. W. 720.

Petition seeking to hold widow liable for debt of her deceased husband, on the ground of her possession of assets of the husband's estate, held insufficient to authorize a personal judgment against her. Breck v. Coffield, 42 C. A. 24, 91 S. W. 594.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in transmitting a message, an allegation of the petition held sufficient to show that the damages were plaintiff's separate property. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Rowe, 44 C. A. 84, 98 S. W. 228.

A petition in an action by a wife to recover community property held to sufficiently allege that plaintiff was destitute of means, had been abandoned by her husband, and left to her own resources. Irwin v. Irwin (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 1011.

The requisite certainty of the allegations of the husband and wife, respectively, when either of them claim property as their separate property on the ground that it was purchased with their own money, stated. O'Farrell v. O'Farrell, 56 C. A. 51, 119 S. W. 899.

In an action against a husband for the rent of rooms furnished his wife and the price of rugs, etc., sold to her, where the petition did not allege that the rooms were rented and the rugs sold with plaintiff's permission, knowledge, or consent, testimony to establish such fact was not admissible. Fields v. Florence (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 187.

A petition, in an action on a note executed by husband and wife, held to limit the recovery against the wife. Teel v. Blair (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 478.

Allegations in trespass to try title held sufficient to entitle plaintiff to recover on the theory that the land was community property. Watson v. Harris (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 237.

In an action on a duebill an allegation in the petition that the instrument of writing evidenced an indebtedness due the plaintiff, and that it was given to the plaintiff's wife, etc., was sufficient to show that defendants became liable and promised to pay the plaintiff the said sum, and that he was the legal owner thereof, for as a matter of law the husband is the proper party to sue upon his wife's choses in action. Santa Fé, L. E. & P. Land & Trust Co. v. Cumley (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 889.

A widow's petition for damages for malicious prosecution of her husband held not required to allege that there was no administration on his estate, and no need of any. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Groseclose (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 736.

In an action against a woman and her husband, evidence that the husband agreed to what she said, and sought to sustain her in it, held properly excluded, where it was not alleged that he ratified and reiterated her slanderous statements. Lehmann v. Medack (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 438.

147. —— By or against landlord.—A petition in an action for damages for breach of farm rental contract held to state a cause of action. McFarland v. Owens (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 229.

Where a lessor alleged that he re-rented a portion of the leased premises from the lessee, such allegation did not authorize evidence of an agreement prior to the lease. Greenhill v. Hunton (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 440.

In action by landlord against third person for value of cotton on which he held a lien for supplies to tenant, allegation as to application of proceeds of bales of cotton received from the tenant held sufficient. Cadenhead v. Rogers & Bro. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 952.

A petition to recover rents held not defective for failure to show the time during which an intervening occupant was in possession. Dockery v. Thorne (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 593.

In an action to cancel a deed, the plaintiff need not, in his pleadings, tender back the consideration received by him, but must offer to do equity. Cecil v. Henry (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 216.

A petition in a suit to set aside a conveyance held not open to a certain exception. Romine v. Howard (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 690.

A petition in an action by the insured for the cancellation of a life policy and a note given for the first premium held to show that insured's negligence was excusable as against a general demurrer. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Hargus (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 580.

Under district and county courts rule 17 (67 S. W. xxi), a complaint by the buyers of an automatic piano to rescind the contract held good against a general demurrer. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Garza & Co., 53 C. A. 346, 116 S. W. 150.

In a suit to rescind a contract whereby stock in a corporation was purchased, the petition held not to state a cause of action. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. of Oklahoma v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 662.

In the absence of an averment in the petition that such stock was worthless, it will be treated as sufficient consideration for the purchase price. Id.

Petition held too indefinite. Id.

A petition to partially cancel a conveyance to plaintiffs' stepfather for fraud held to state a good cause of action. Oar v. Davis (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 710.

In an action to disaffirm a conveyance of public school lands made by plaintiff when an infant, allegations in the petition of plaintiff's purchase from an individual and plaintiff's occupancy thereafter for a couple of months, but not showing whether plaintiff's grantor had purchased from the state, or the length of his occupancy of the land, are insufficient to show plaintiff's abandonment of such lands within three years, so as to forfeit her title. Salser v. Barron (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1039.

A petition for rescission of lease on the ground that the property was leased to conduct a meat market, and that the parties were mutually ignorant of an ordinance prohibiting meat markets in the vicinity of the leased premises, and that the lessor refused to permit plaintiff to sublet, held not demurrable because it did not allege that lessee was ready and willing to perform. Altgelt v. Gerbic (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 233.

Where plaintiff, suing to cancel a note and mortgage pursuant to an agreement that they would be canceled as compensation for services as a broker, alleged that they had been merged in a new note and mortgage, he was not entitled to the relief asked without pleading and proving facts sufficient to avoid the new note and mortgage. Shriver v. McCann (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 317.

150. —— Condemnation proceedings.—A petition in condemnation proceedings for a right of way for a telephone line held to sufficiently describe the land sought to be condemned. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co., 18 C. A. 500, 45 S. W. 151.

The description of land sought to be condemned for a telegraph right of way is sufficient if one skilled in such matters is able to locate it. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 18 C. A. 502, 45 S. W. 179.

On appeal to the county court from judgment of commissioners' court assessing damages for public roads, petition held to state a cause of action. Karnes County v. Ray (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 76.

151. —— Contribution.—In an action for contribution against parties who had signed notes with the plaintiffs, after payment by plaintiffs, defendants held to have the burden of pleading and proving that the attorneys' fees stipulated in such notes should not be recovered. Webster v. Frazier (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 609.

152. —— Conversion.—Petition in action against bank for conversion of deposit held sufficient on general demurrer. Coleman v. First Nat. Bank, 17 C. A. 132, 43 S. W. 938.

Evidence of the value of property claimed to have been converted by a surviving partner held inadmissible, in an action for an accounting, where the petition did not allege facts constituting conversion and the value of the property, or pray that defendant should be charged therewith. Gresham v. Harcourt, 93 T. 149, 53 S. W. 1019.

A petition in an action for the wrongful seizure of household and kitchen furniture held to sufficiently describe the articles taken. Souther v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 359.

A petition in an action for the wrongful seizure of goods, held not defective for not setting forth with sufficient particularity the insulting language of defendant and his agent at the time of the seizure. Id.

A petition, alleging that defendant, with intent to defraud plaintiff, induced the sheriff to believe that defendant had a mortgage on plaintiff's property, given by some other person than plaintiff, and directed the sheriff to forcibly seize the property, and that the sheriff seized the property, and now withholds the same from plaintiff, and that the defendant thereby converted the property by the means aforesaid, was not open to the objection that it failed to allege the means by which defendant pursuaded the sheriff to take the property. Walker v. Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank of Winters (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 312.

The petition, in an action by a mortgagee for the conversion of mortgaged chattels, should specifically allege the time and place of conversion and the value of the chattels converted. Johnson v. Oswald (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1164.

153. —— Covenant or warranty.—In a suit for damages for breach of warranty plaintiff alleged the purchase of the right of way and depot grounds from the defendants; that they executed a warranty deed therefor, and the right thereto has failed. Held, sufficient to support a judgment. Ackerman v. Huff, 71 T. 317, 9 S. W. 236.

A petition held sufficient in an action to recover under a warranty for money paid to remove a lien. Boyd v. Leith (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 618.

In an action to recover damages for breach of warranty in sale of goods, allegations in plaintiff's petition held sufficient on general demurrer. Hume v. Sherman Oil & Cotton Co., 27 C. A. 366, 65 S. W. 390.

Petition in action by transferee of vendor's lien notes on warranty of title by transferror held insufficient to state cause of action. Mackey v. Walker (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 691.

154. —— Declare deed a mortgage.—A petition in an action to have deeds declared in effect a mortgage held to state a cause of action. Openshaw v. Rickmeyer, 45 C. A. 508, 102 S. W. 467.

155. —— Dissolution of partnership.—A petition in an action for dissolution of a partnership, etc., held sufficient to support the judgment. Meeve v. Eberhardt, 49 C. A. 327, 108 S. W. 1013.

The petition by husband and wife for an accounting as to a partnership held to sufficiently allege the husband was a partner, to sustain a judgment on that basis. Keith v. Aubrey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 278.

A petition held to state a good cause of action for the dissolution of a firm and for an accounting and the appointment of a receiver. Smith v. Lamon (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 304.

155½. —— Divorce.—Allegation and proof of a valid, subsisting marriage is necessary. Wright v. Wright, 6 T. 3; Stafford v. Stafford, 41 T. 111.

In suits for divorce on the ground of "cruelty" and "outrageous conduct," the jury or court should pass upon the effect the specific charges have, or are likely to have, upon the plaintiff, whether or not it be insupportable; and to sustain demurrer to a wife's petition for divorce, alleging on the part of her husband towards her "a studied course of insults," "publicly charging her with taking his money," "cursing her," and calling her a "strumpet and a bitch," is erroneous. Taylor v. Taylor, 18 T. 578; Sheffield v. Sheffield, 3 T. 87; Pinkard v. Pinkard, 14 T. 357, 65 Am. Dec. 129; Sharman v. Sharman, 18 T. 525; Wright v. Wright, 6 T. 18; Spruill v. Spruill, 1 U. C. 244. And a complaint alleging quarrelsome and disagreeable habits of wife held not to state cause of action for cruelty. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 413. But a petition charging the wife with a series of acts extending over a period of six years, alleged to constitute outrage and cruelty of a nature rendering living together by the parties insupportable, the acts being the charging of plaintiff by defendant with infidelity to his marital vows and with dishonesty and acts of personal violence, is sufficient, though showing frequent condonations. Crossett v. Crossett (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 358.

Abandonment, alleged how. Morey v. Morey, 82 T. 308, 17 S. W. 838.

A petition for divorce, setting out specific acts of misconduct, held not subject to general demurrer. Golding v. Golding, 49 C. A. 176, 108 S. W. 496.

An allegation that defendant's conduct was "unendurable" held sufficient. Gamblin v. Gamblin, 52 C. A. 479, 114 S. W. 408.

Allegations that defendant abandoned plaintiff's bed and board and went to Mexico, where he now resides, would not be a sufficient allegation of abandonment to entitle plaintiff to a divorce on that ground alone. O'Farrell v. O'Farrell, 56 C. A. 51, 119 S. W. 899.

A petition for divorce for outrage and cruelty rendering living together insupportable held sufficient, though showing frequent condonations. Crossett v. Crossett (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 358.

A petition of a husband for divorce held good as against a general demurrer. Dawson v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 379.

156. —— Establishment and enforcement of trusts.—If facts exist which entitle the trustee of corporation stock to recover dividends thereon notwithstanding it appears that such dividends have been paid to the cestui que trust, such facts must be alleged. Hurd v. Texas Brewing Co., 21 C. A. 296, 51 S. W. 883, 57 S. W. 573.

A petition in an action to recover value of land fraudulently sold by trustee held to sufficiently describe the land. Espey v. Boone, 33 C. A. 83, 75 S. W. 570.

In a suit to recover land claimed by reason of a resulting trust, certain allegations of the petition held proper. Pearce v. Dyess, 45 C. A. 406, 101 S. W. 549.

Where plaintiffs sued to recover an interest in land on the ground that a resulting trust had arisen in their favor, it was unnecessary for the petition to allege that the alleged trustee had promised or agreed to convey to plaintiff. Id.

A petition to recover land on the ground that defendant, who bought and paid for it, acquired and held the title in trust for plaintiff, does not state a cause of action without also offering to do equity by alleging a willingness and ability to pay the purchase price as a condition of a judgment, even if an actual tender of payment before suit was rendered unnecessary by defendant's conduct. Hoffman v. Buchanan, 57 C. A. 368, 123 S. W. 168.

Petition in action by sureties after payment on their bonds to follow trust money wrongfully paid by their principal held not insufficient for failure to show defendants' want of notice, since that was a matter of affirmative defense. Boaz v. Ferrell (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 200.

Where an heir's petition alleged that defendant administrator had sold certain land belonging to the estate to D. and thereafter obtained a conveyance to himself from D. in fraud of complainant's rights, the petition stated facts sufficient to raise a constructive trust of complainant's interest. Nuckols v. Stanger (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 931.

157. —— Establishment of water rights.—A petition held to state a cause of action for the determination of water rights of the parties. San Juan Ditch Co. v. Cassin (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 815.

158. —— False imprisonment or malicious prosecution.—In suit for malicious prosecution, malice and want of probable cause must be alleged. Griffin v. Chubb, 7 T. 603, 58 Am. Dec. 85; McNeese v. Herring, 8 T. 151; Harris v. Finberg, 46 T. 79; Gabel v. Weisensee, 49 T. 131.

Complaint against judge for false imprisonment held not to allege that he was not sitting as a court when decision complained of was rendered. Taylor v. Goodrich, 25 C. A. 109, 40 S. W. 515.

Petition in malicious prosecution need not show that complaint under which plaintiff was arrested alleged a crime in terms legally sufficient. Kleinsmith v. Hamlin (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 994.

In an action for procuring the unlawful arrest of plaintiff, held error under the issues to admit evidence that the person, making the arrest, entered a charge of vagrancy against plaintiff. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cherry, 44 C. A. 232, 97 S. W. 712.

Petition held not to allege an action for malicious prosecution, but to allege one for false imprisonment. Taylor Bros. v. Hearn (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 301.

159. —— Foreclosure of liens.—A petition to foreclose a vendor's lien, and also a mortgage given as additional security, held to state a cause of action. Fontaine v. Bohn (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 637.

Description of boundaries in petition and decree to foreclose vendor's lien held sufficient. Mansel v. Castles, 93 T. 414, 55 S. W. 559.

A petition in proceedings to foreclose a mechanic's lien held insufficient, in failing to set out that the required steps were taken by claimant. Rhodes v. Jones, 26 C. A. 568, 64 S. W. 699.

Petition in action on a vendor's lien note and to foreclose the lien held sufficient as against a general demurrer. Brasfield v. Young (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 180.

160. —— Forfeit franchise.—Petition to forfeit franchise of water company for failure to furnish pure water held sufficient. Palestine Water & Power Co. v. City of Palestine (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 659.

161. —— Garnishment proceedings.—In garnishment proceedings to reach a bank deposit, evidence of the purpose for which the money was drawn out of the bank the day following the service of the writ, and of what became of it, held admissible under the pleadings. Ferguson-McKinney Dry Goods Co. v. City Nat. Bank, 31 C. A. 238, 71 S. W. 604.

162. —— Inducing breach of contract or discharge of employé.—Petition in an action for wrongfully procuring discharge of a servant held to state a cause of action. Suarez v. McFall Bros. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 744.

Complaint held to aver that plaintiff was injured when his foreman had "actual" knowledge of his dangerous situation. Pledger v. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 516.

The alleged defects in the machine held averred with sufficient particularity; the machine being in the possession of the other party. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hayden, 29 C. A. 280, 68 S. W. 530.

A complaint for wrongful death of a railroad employé, averring that defendant's rules forbade making "flying switches," held sufficient, without setting out the rule. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Karrer (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 328.

Allegations of petition held sufficient to sustain a recovery for an injury caused to a servant by the weight of a hand car suddenly coming on him by striking him. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Lee, 32 C. A. 23, 74 S. W. 345.

In an action against two electric companies and the receiver of one of them, petition held not objectionable for failure to allege the existence of the relation of master and servant between plaintiff and the receiver. Dallas Electric Co. v. Mitchell, 33 C. A. 424, 76 S. W. 935.

Petition held sufficient to warrant finding that car was running at dangerous speed. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reeves, 35 C. A. 162, 79 S. W. 1099.

Petition held to state a good cause of action as against a general demurrer, and to be sufficient to support a judgment by default. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 855.

A petition for injuries to a railroad brakeman need not state the name of the conductor nor the number of the car. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Powell, 38 C. A. 157, 86 S. W. 21.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff while employed as a fireman on defendant's engine, petition considered, and held not subject to exception. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 1122.

Plaintiff need not allege in terms that defendant knew, or in the exercise of ordinary care should have known, of the defects in an appliance furnished plaintiff before the injury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Udalle (Civ App.) 91 S. W. 330.

A petition held to allege that a scaffold was unsafe. Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. v. Meyers (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 140.

The petition held to sufficiently show that decedent at the time of the accident was in a proper place in the discharge of his duties. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers, 41 C. A. 632, 95 S. W. 607.

A petition, which points out the apparatus which was defective, held sufficient. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Barnes, 42 C. A. 626, 95 S. W. 714.

A petition in an action for injuries to an employé while assisting in carrying a rail held sufficient as against a particular objection. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Bonn, 44 C. A. 631, 99 S. W. 413.

In an action for injuries to a railroad brakeman by the act of his fellow brakeman in throwing a piece of ice from the train, plaintiff's petition held fatally defective for failure to allege that the act of the negligent servant was within the scope of his employment. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Henefy (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 884.

An allegation held to raise the issue of negligence in defendant's failure to inspect the track, though the wreck resulted from the intentional displacement of a rail by wreckers. Thompson v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 48 C. A. 284, 106 S. W. 910.

An allegation held to sufficiently raise the issue of inspection. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris, 48 C. A. 434, 107 S. W. 108.

In an action for injury to a brakeman who was pushed from a car by the sliding of lumber thereon, allegations of the petition as to the manner in which the defendant was negligent held sufficient. Southern Pac. Co. v. Godfrey, 48 C. A. 616, 107 S. W. 1135.

The petition of a servant injured through the negligence of another servant held not to limit his incompetency to drunkenness. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 50 C. A. 10, 108 S. W. 988.

A rule of defendant held admissible under the pleadings. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harper, 53 C. A. 614, 114 S. W. 1168.

The allegations of the petition held sufficient to authorize the admission of certain testimony. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Norvell (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 861.

A petition against a railway company for injury to an employé held not defective. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Beauchamp, 54 C. A. 123, 116 S. W. 1163.

A petition held not to show that plaintiff at the time of the accident was an employé of defendant. Walker v. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 554.

A petition held sufficient to render certain evidence admissible as bearing on the issue of the negligence alleged. Producers' Oil Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1023.

A petition held to sufficiently show the nature of plaintiff's employment. Dawson v. King (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 917.

A petition held sufficient as against a special exception that it should have alleged that the rolling door by which plaintiff was injured was defectively constructed. Id.

A petition for injuries to a servant by being struck by a door while engaged in getting a hammer from an upper floor in a building held to state a cause of action as against a general demurrer. Id.

A petition held sufficient as against a special exception that plaintiff did not state what relation defendant sustained to the building in which plaintiff was injured. Id.

In a servant's action for injuries by oil spouting from the bottom of a tank into plaintiff's eyes, when he removed the nipple from the pipe, evidence that gravel in the valve caused the oil to spout upon its removal held properly refused under the pleadings. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sanchez, 57 C. A. 87, 122 S. W. 44.

In an action against a railroad for death of a locomotive engineer, certain evidence held admissible under the pleadings. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Bradt, 57 C. A. 82, 122 S. W. 59.

In pleading rules promulgated by a master, plaintiff need not set out the rules verbatim, but may state their substance. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ravanelli (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 208.

In an action for injuries to a railroad brakeman, plaintiff held not required to allege with certainty whether defendant at the time was engaged in interstate or intrastate commerce. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hawley (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 726.

A petition held to present the issue whether cars were switched with unusual and unnecessary force. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Welter (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 45.

Petition held based upon negligence in employing a minor in dangerous work without warning of the danger and without his mother's consent, and to state a good cause of action. Commerce Cotton Oil Co. v. Camp (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 852.

In a fireman's action for injuries, the petition held sufficient as against general demurrer and to allege that defendant knew, or ought to have known, of the defective condition of the appliance. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gilbert (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1037.

A petition held sufficient as against a special exception. Freeman v. Kane (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 723.

An exception to a petition by a brakeman for injuries received while coupling cars held properly overruled. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Averill (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 98.

A petition held defective for failing to affirmatively allege that the negligent act stated was the proximate cause of the injury. Snipes v. Bomar Cotton Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 428.

Petition in a railroad engineer's action for personal injuries by derailment by the negligence of a switch tower operator held sufficient to allege the negligence relied on. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Scott (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 710.

A petition held not to sufficiently allege negligence in employing an incompetent foreman. Butler v. Gulf Pipe Line Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 340.

Where the petition does not disclose that the suit is based on the federal employer's liability act, it will be held that plaintiff is not seeking recovery for an injury received while engaged in interstate commerce, and the sufficiency of the petition must be tested by the state law. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Seale (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1099.

169. —— Interpleader.—A bill of interpleader, which states that plaintiff is in possession of a fund, which he tenders in court, to which he has no claim, and which is claimed by two other parties, and that he is ready and willing to pay the fund to whomsoever the court may adjudge is entitled to it, is not demurrable. Bolin v. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 444.

A bill of interpleader should allege that the debtor filing it is disinterested, the character of the different claims made, that there is a reasonable doubt as to who is entitled to the fund or duty, and that the claims constitute a single demand. Nixon v. Malone (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 577; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Same (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 585; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.; Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.

170. —— Judgment, action on.—In a suit or scire facias on a domestic judgment, it may be described in general terms. Bullock v. Ballew, 9 T. 498; McFadden v. Lockhart, 7 T. 573; Perkins v. Hume, 10 T. 50; Hopkins v. Howard, 12 T. 7.

In a suit on a judgment of a court of record in another state, jurisdiction may be alleged in general terms; if of inferior and limited jurisdiction, its jurisdiction must be specially pleaded. Reid v. Boyd, 13 T. 241, 65 Am. Dec. 61; Beal v. Smith, 14 T. 305; Grant v. Bledsoe, 20 T. 456.

In an action on a domestic judgment, it is not necessary to plead or prove any of the proceedings in the cause previous to the rendition of the judgment. Schleicher v. Markward, 61 T. 99; citing Bullock v. Ballew, 9 T. 500; McFadden v. Lockhart, 7 T. 573.

A petition in an action upon a judgment recovered in the United States circuit court held sufficient. Whitley v. General Electric Co., 18 C. A. 674, 45 S. W. 959.

An averment, in an action on a judgment, that the abstract thereof was "alphabetically and otherwise duly indexed and cross-indexed as required by law in such cases," was sufficient. Brin v. Anderson, 25 C. A. 323, 60 S. W. 778.

A petition in an action of scire facias to revive a judgment held sufficient as against a general demurrer. Henry v. Red Water Lumber Co., 46 C. A. 179, 102 S. W. 749.

A proceeding to revive a judgment by scire facias is not a new suit, and the same particularity is not required as in stating a cause of action in the original complaint. Delaune v. Beaumont Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 518.

A scire facias held to sufficiently identify the judgment sought to be revived. Id.

171. —— Judgment, equitable relief against.—A petition held to state sufficient ground for vacating judgments in partition. Schneider v. Sellers, 25 C. A. 226, 61 S. W. 541.

A bill in equity to set a judgment aside held not a showing of freedom from negligence in failing to appeal or commence legal proceedings to set the judgment aside, which would authorize the relief. Bergstrom v. Kiel, 28 C. A. 532, 67 S. W. 781.

One suing to set aside a judgment must in his pleading set up facts sufficient to enable the court to determine the issues presented in the original action, and render such judgment as will be an effective substitute for the one set aside. Owens v. Foley, 42 C. A. 49, 93 S. W. 1003.

In a suit to set aside a judgment in an action for the possession of land, the petition must set out the chain of title relied upon by the plaintiff. Gilbert v. Cooper, 43 C. A. 328, 95 S. W. 753.

A petition for a new trial on equitable grounds after the term must show sufficient matter to have entitled the complainant to a new trial during the term and legal grounds for the delay. Kruegel v. Cobb (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 723.

A petition for a new trial, after the term, for denial of a meritorious defense, must not only show that complainant did not know of the defense, but that his ignorance did not result from any lack of diligence. Id.

A petition in a suit for a new trial held to fail to relieve a party of the charge of negligence in not having her application presented and acted on at the term at which judgment was rendered. White v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 872.

A petition in an equitable suit for a new trial is insufficient where it fails to reallege the cause of action set up in the original suit. Jirou v. Jirou (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 493.

Petition should set out, in substance at least, either the pleadings of the parties or the facts upon which the adverse party relied, in order that it may be seen whether the petitioner's defenses would be sufficient. Robbie v. Upson (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 406.

Petition held insufficient, because it showed that the judgment was taken against the party in his absence through his own negligence. Id.

A petition to set aside a judgment dismissing a suit for want of prosecution must show that a cause of action was alleged; that the dismissal was without negligence on the part of petitioner; that he was diligent in seeking a reinstatement; and that a cause of action exists against defendant. Porter v. Kruegel (Sup.) 155 S. W. 174.

172. —— Libel or slander.—In suit for slander, the publication of the slanderous words in the hearing of another must be alleged. Linney v. Maton, 13 T. 449.

Petition alleging that plaintiff was a contractor, and that the publication was made to injure him with the public in the capacity of contractor, does not state that the libelous matter was about him in his business. Brown v. Durham (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 331.

A complaint held not to charge defendant with having spoken slanderous words. McCarthy v. Miller (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 973.

The propriety and functions of an innuendo in libel stated. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy, 52 C. A. 22, 113 S. W. 574; Atchley v. State, 56 Cr. R. 569, 120 S. W. 1010.

In libel for charging plaintiff with smuggling, held unnecessary to allege that the publication tended to expose her to disgrace, etc., or to cause the belief that she was guilty of smuggling. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Lewy, 52 C. A. 22, 113 S. W. 574.

Though malice may be inferred from other matters pleaded, the rules of good pleading require a special allegation of malice in actions of libel. Id.

A cause of action for a libel, mentioning no names, is shown when the circumstances alleged point to plaintiff as the person concerning whom the libelous statements are made. Harris v. Santa Fé Townsite Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 77.

Where words contained no reflection upon any particular individual, no averment or innuendo can make them defamatory. Id.

A petition in an action for libel held not to state a cause of action for failing to state facts justifying the inference that the publication was made concerning plaintiff and his wife. Id.

A petition for libel held not objectionable on the ground that the matter stated was privileged. Galveston Tribune v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 302.

An innuendo may give point or meaning to matters sufficiently expressed before, but is not available to establish a new charge. McCauley v. State, 64 Cr. R. 183, 141 S. W. 975.

An alleged libelous publication held insufficient to sustain an innuendo that it was intended to mean that certain officers of the county court had sent a person to the asylum as insane who was in fact sane. McCauley v. State, 64 Cr. R. 183, 141 S. W. 975.

Where plaintiff alleges that defendant spoke slanderous words in the hearing of "divers persons," she must prove that the words were spoken in the presence of at least three persons, the word "divers" meaning "several," which means any number more than two. Day v. Becker (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1197.

A petition alleging a false and defamatory report of a divorce proceeding, and averring that publication was maliciously made, is not demurrable on the ground that the publication was privileged under the statute authorizing a fair, true, and impartial account of judicial proceedings, but providing that publication is not privileged, where it is made with malice. McDavid v. Houston Chronicle Printing Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 252.

Where, in an action for the publication of libelous newspaper articles, one article complained of was not libelous per se, the plaintiff should allege its libelous character by proper innuendo showing same. Fessinger v. El Paso Times Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1171.

173. —— Liquor dealer's bond.—Petition in suit for breach of liquor dealer's bond. See Brady v. Chamblis, 3 App. C. C. § 148; Grady v. Rogan, 2 App. C. C. § 261.

Sufficiency of petition for breach of bond based on sale of liquor to a minor. Maier v. State, 21 S. W. 974, 2 C. A. 296.

In an action on a liquor dealer's bond for selling liquor to plaintiff's minor son, the petition is not defective for not alleging defendant's want of good faith. Lucas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 823.

In such case, held not necessary that the petition should refer to the statute authorizing such suit. Id.

Petition alleging breaches of liquor dealer's bond held not subject to special exception as too vague and uncertain. Patton v. Williams, 35 C. A. 129, 79 S. W. 357.

Petition for breach of liquor dealer's bond by sale of liquor to minor held insufficient in failing to show any right in plaintiff to control the minor's actions. Choate v. Vlha, 40 C. A. 566, 89 S. W. 1082.

The overruling of a special exception to plaintiff's allegation in a suit to recover on a liquor dealer's bond for the sale to a minor held not reversible error. Price v. Wakeham, 48 C. A. 339, 107 S. W. 132.

In an action on a liquor dealer's bond for permitting a minor to enter and remain in his saloon, it being a jury question whether the minor was allowed to remain long enough to constitute a breach of the bond, it was unnecessary to allege how long he remained. Markus v. Thompson, 51 C. A. 239, 111 S. W. 1074.

An allegation held sufficient to show that defendant permitted a minor to enter and remain in a place where intoxicants were sold. Id.

Petition in an action on a liquor dealer's bond for the unlawful sale of liquor to a minor, held to allege that the interest of plaintiff was that of a parent. Saunders v. Alvido & Laserre, 52 C. A. 356, 113 S. W. 992.

An allegation of service on defendant of notice not to sell held sufficient. Birkman v. Fahrenthold, 52 C. A. 335, 114 S. W. 428.

An averment in the petition that defendant was legally notified by plaintiff through a peace officer not to sell intoxicating liquors to her husband, who was an habitual drunkard, is not insufficient for failing to properly allege notification. Haynes v. Haberzettle (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 717.

174. —— Mandamus.—A petition to compel school trustees to enroll petitioner's children in a school census held insufficient, where there were no allegations of a demand and refusal to comply. Burrell v. Blanchard (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 46.

A petition for mandamus to compel a treasurer of a school board to pay certain warrants should allege that such warrants were drawn on funds in the hands of the treasurer, and that he has or has had funds in his possession out of which he could legally pay said warrants, and which have been duly set apart and apportioned by the school board to pay the same. Bank of Nocona v. March (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 266.

Application for mandamus, alleging refusal by a county clerk to prepare and transmit a transcript, held sufficient without alleging practicability of so doing. Newton v. Leal (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 209.

Where an award for plaintiff's horses, which were afflicted with glanders, had been returned by commissioners appointed by the county judge, it was not incumbent on plaintiff, in a petition for mandamus to compel the county judge to issue a warrant, to show the value of the horses. Maynard v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 334.

Where a petition for mandamus to compel a county superintendent to approve a teacher's contract did not allege that the approval of the contract would not render the funds of the district deficient, the writ must be denied. Watkins v. Huff (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 922.

A petition for mandamus to compel the court of civil appeals to certify a case to the supreme court should state the facts relied on. Shirley & Holland v. Conner, 98 T. 63, 80 S. W. 984, 81 S. W. 284.

Such petition should present a copy of the evidence on the trial on the issue. Id.

Petition to compel railroad company to reduce tracks to the level of the street crossings held to sufficiently state the action required. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. City of Dallas, 98 T. 396, 84 S. W. 648, 70 L. R. A. 850.

Under the city charter of San Antonio, a petition to compel the payment of a judgment against it held sufficient to entitle plaintiff to a mandamus requiring payment thereof. City of San Antonio v. Routledge, 46 C. A. 196, 102 S. W. 756.

Such petition held to show the absence of another adequate and sufficient remedy. Id.

Such petition held insufficient as against a specified special exception. Id.

A petition in mandamus to compel a city to pay a judgment held not bad for failing to aver wherein it became the duty of the city to provide for the payment of the judgment. Id.

In mandamus proceedings, the rules of the common law as to pleadings obtain. Id.

A petition for mandamus to a county tax collector to make a payment pursuant to an order of the commissioners' court in accordance with a contract of the county held not required to set out the contract in full. Bailey v. Aransas County, 46 C. A. 547, 102 S. W. 1159.

In mandamus to correct a judgment of a justice of the peace, the petition held insufficient to show that the judgment was void. Cohen v. Moore, 101 T. 45, 104 S. W. 1053.

In mandamus to compel a railroad company to construct its line through a county seat, more particularity is required in the petition than in an ordinary action. Felton v. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 650.

A petition for mandamus to compel the issuance of an execution on a judgment held not subject to general demurrer. Glover v. Albrecht (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 586.

175. —— Medical services.—In an action for medical services, testimony as to the value of the services held properly admitted under the petition. Rogers v. Mexico City Banking Co., 46 C. A. 475, 103 S. W. 461.

A petition in an action by a nonresident physician for professional and other services rendered a resident held not to state a cause of action as against a general demurrer. Swift v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 901.

176. —— Money received or money paid.—As to allegations in suit for recovery of money paid to use of another, see Gatewood v. Laughlin, 2 App. C. C. § 149.

A petition held sufficient as one for money had and received. Pfeiffer v. Wilke (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 361.

The fact that plaintiff loaned money to another, which was used to obtain material placed upon defendant's land, would not of itself make defendant liable to plaintiff for such money, in absence of a showing of agency. Combest v. Glenn (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 112.

177. —— Negligence in general.—Proximate cause and discovered peril, see ante.

An allegation of gross negligence will support a verdict based on a finding of ordinary negligence. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Magrill, 15 C. A. 353, 40 S. W. 188.

General allegations of negligence are limited by averment of specific negligent acts, and the issue is confined to such acts. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Vance (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 167; Missouri Valley Bridge & Iron Co. v. Ballard, 53 C. A. 110, 116 S. W. 93; Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCraken, 53 C. A. 627, 117 S. W. 453.

An allegation of negligence in a complaint held not specific, but sufficiently general, to admit evidence offered. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 658.

A petition alleging that defendant negligently and recklessly ordered plaintiff's son to jump from its train sufficiently averred willful negligence, and was not insufficient on the ground that her son was a trespasser. House v. Blum (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 82.

In an action against a railway company for an injury to a child received on an unguarded turntable, an allegation that defendant was negligent in failing to keep the turntable locked, pursuant to its rule requiring it to be locked, held not demurrable. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Morgan, 24 C. A. 58, 58 S. W. 544.

Under a general allegation of negligence, in an action against a railway company for injuries from collision with a train, it is competent for plaintiff to prove negligence in any form. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Meeks (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 329.

Petition, alleging specific negligence, which as matter of law is not proximate cause of injury, held not aided, as against demurrer, by general allegations. Prokop v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co., 34 C. A. 520, 79 S. W. 101.

In pleading negligence, petition held required to contain certain allegations. Poteet v. Blossom Oil & Cotton Co., 53 C. A. 187, 115 S. W. 289.

Plaintiff, in a negligence case, need not plead specific acts constituting the negligence complained of. Patton-Worsham Drug Co. v. Drennon (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 705.

It is not necessary that a complaint set out each detail of negligence. Texas Traction Co. v. Hanson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 214.

178. —— Negligence in use of street.—A petition for injuries to plaintiff's wife by her horse becoming frightened at a team of decorated horses driven by defendant's agent held not to allege actionable negligence on defendant's part. Patton-Worsham Drug Co. v. Drennon, 104 T. 62, 133 S. W. 871.

A petition held to state a good cause of action for injuries received by being run down by an automobile. Cannon v. Burns (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 77.

179. —— Quieting title.—The allegations of a petition considered, and held not to show a cloud on plaintiff's title. Carver v. First Nat. Bank, 18 C. A. 425, 45 S. W. 475.

In suits to remove cloud from title the plaintiff must allege and show title to the land, or that he is in possession. Mayfield v. Heirs of Musquez, 1 U. C. 221.

It is not necessary, in a suit to remove cloud from title, to allege an eviction or a trespass by defendant on the premises. Yoe v. Montgomery, 68 T. 338, 4 S. W. 622.

A petition held not to state a cause of action for removal of cloud on title. Smith v. Morgan, 28 C. A. 245, 67 S. W. 919.

180. —— Recovery of land.—See Trespass to Try Title.

In an action to recover school lands upon a certificate, a petition is not subject to exceptions where it contains the allegations required in a complaint in trespass to try title. Simon v. Stearns, 17 C. A. 13, 43 S. W. 50.

In a suit to recover land, held, plaintiff could show certain facts relating to her delay in having her deed recorded. Parks v. Worthington (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 921.

In an action by a purchaser to recover land from which he was evicted for failure to pay the purchase price within a specified time, the petition held insufficient as not showing any equitable reasons for preventing rescission of the contract of sale and for extending the time of payment. Lipscomb v. Fuqua, 103 T. 585, 131 S. W. 1061.

181. —— Redeem.—The petition in a suit by a married woman to redeem certain judicial sales held fatally defective. Parks v. Worthington, 39 C. A. 421, 87 S. W. 720.

182. —— Reformation of instruments.—Allegations in a petition held insufficient to justify reformation of a contract for the sale of land. Cammack v. Prather (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 354.

Petition in suit to correct mistake in instrument creating mechanic's lien held to sufficiently allege privity between plaintiff and lienees. Silliman v. Taylor, 35 C. A. 490, 80 S. W. 651.

A petition in an action on a fire policy held not bad for failing to pray for a reformation of the contract. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Brannon, 99 T. 391, 89 S. W. 1057, 2 L. R. A. (N. S.) 548, 13 Ann. Cas. 1020.

A petition for reformation of policy held objectionable for failure to aver that the mistake was mutual. Ætna Ins. Co. v. Brannon (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 614.

A petition in a suit to correct an alleged misdescription in deeds is not objectionable because it contains copies of all the deeds sought to be corrected. Mounger v. Daugherty (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1070.

A petition seeking recovery of the price of timber sold confirming all the agreement except a clause as to when payment should become due as to which reformation was asked to express the true intention, and alleging that plaintiff was induced to sign, through mistake, fraud, and misrepresentation as to such clause, was good as against general demurrer. Hart v. Jopling (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1075.

A pleading for reformation of a deed held to state a cause of action based on the ground of mutual mistake of the parties. Dickey v. Forrester (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1181.

183. —— Replevin.—In a suit for personal property, its character, quantity and value, the right of the plaintiff thereto, and its conversion or detention by defendant, must be alleged. Carter v. Wallace, 2 T. 206; Gillies v. Wofford, 26 T. 76; Forbes v. Moore, 32 T. 195.

In a suit to recover personal property, evidence of its value is not admissible, where such value was not stated in the petition. Gillies v. Wofford, 26 T. 76.

184. —— Services on implied contract.—A petition against a city to recover for building a bridge held to state a case on an implied contract, though other averments therein were insufficient to show liability on an express contract. Berlin Iron-Bridge Co. v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 408.

The allegations of a petition in an action to recover for services performed relying on promises, fraudulently made, to make will in plaintiff's favor, held not demurrable. West v. Clark, 28 C. A. 1, 66 S. W. 215.

In an action for services a petition held not demurrable for failure to allege in terms that the services were actually rendered. Stapper v. Wolter (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 850.

An allegation in a petition for services that they were reasonably worth $30 per month held not an allegation that they were to be paid for monthly. Id.

A statement held not a statement of the value of the services in an action for a quantum meruit. Stringer v. Franklin County (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1168.

A petition held to state facts supporting a finding for wages due for services performed. Chambers v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 864.

185. —— Set aside fraudulent conveyance.—The court, in a suit to cancel a deed of land in trust for specified purposes, will not presume that the deed was executed in fraud of the creditors of the grantor, on the ground that he had no property, or that he was insolvent, in the absence of allegations to that effect. Smith v. Olivarri (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 235.

186. —— Setting aside will.—In a petition to set aside a will, an allegation that fraud was practiced by the defendant who wrote the will, in failing to embody in it, as directed by the testator, certain conditions, discloses a sufficient cause of action. Vickery v. Hobbs, 21 T. 570, 73 Am. Dec. 238.

187. —— Specific performance.—In a suit for specific performance, the terms of the agreement and performance by plaintiff (Ward v. Stuart, 62 T. 333; Hurt v. Cooper, 63 T. 362), the description of the land, and ability of defendant to convey, must be alleged (Hall v. Jones, 3 T. 305; Chrisman v. Miller, 15 T. 159).

It is not necessary to aver the value of the land. Brainard v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 784.

Complaint held to state a cause of action. Milam v. Gordon, 29 C. A. 415, 68 S. W. 1003; Morrison v. Hazzard, 99 T. 583, 92 S. W. 33.

Petition in action for specific performance of contract to leave property by will at death held insufficient to show a trust for the benefit of plaintiff in testator's interest in community property devised by the testator to his widow. Jordan v. Abney, 97 T. 296, 78 S. W. 486.

The petition held not required to allege that damages would be inadequate compensation. Bishop v. Tartt (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 359.

A petition in an action to enforce specific performance of a contract for the sale of state school land held sufficient. Pope v. Tallaferro (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 309.

In a suit for specific performance of a contract to convey property, plaintiff need not plead in the alternative for the value of the property, and, if he only seeks to recover it, no allegation of its value is necessary, where the petition shows jurisdiction in the court regardless of such value. Cheek v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 707.

A petition for specific performance of a contract between factions of church, and to enjoin defendant faction from interfering with rights of plaintiff faction, held sufficient at least as against general demurrer. Bottom v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 833.

188. —— Taxes and assessments.—A petition to collect an assessment held to sufficiently allege that the city collector had given the required 30 days' notice to the owner. Bennison v. City of Galveston, 18 C. A. 20, 44 S. W. 613.

A complaint for the payment of special taxes need not aver the existence of, or the facts constituting, the bonded indebtedness, for the payment of which the tax was levied. Berry v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 273.

Where charter provides for improvements either by contract or day labor, it is not necessary, in action to collect assessment, to allege which method was adopted. Breath v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 903.

In an action to collect assessment, allegation that contract was executed held sufficient, without alleging that it was signed by the mayor and clerk. Id.

In action to collect assessment, it is not necessary to allege when the work was completed. Id.

A complaint for the payment of special taxes levied to pay bonded indebtedness need not aver the existence of such indebtedness, where it pleads the ordinances making the levy. City of San Antonio v. Berry, 92 T. 319, 48 S. W. 496.

A petition to recover taxes on land assessed against the "unknown owner" from defendants, who failed to show that they claimed any interest in the property assessed held fatally defective. State v. Mantooth, 20 C. A. 396, 49 S. W. 683.

A petition by a city for the recovery of taxes, alleging that the property was duly assessed for taxation, authorizes proof of the assessment. Wright v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 406.

A petition to recover special taxes to pay a city's bonded indebtedness, pleading ordinance making the levy, need not allege existence of the debt. Id.

An averment held to sufficiently show that provision was made for at least the minimum per cent. of interest and sinking fund, on the issuance of municipal bonds, as required by the constitution and a city charter. Berlin Iron-Bridge Co. v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 408.

Petition alleging that taxes were levied to provide for interest on bonds held not demurrable because no tax can be collected to pay interest on bonds prior to their sale. Moody v. City of Galveston, 21 C. A. 16, 50 S. W. 481.

A petition to foreclose a tax lien held not insufficient for failure to describe the property. Grace v. City of Bonham, 26 C. A. 161, 63 S. W. 158.

A petition in a suit to recover a special tax held insufficient, as failing to allege that the realty involved was within the particular territory where the tax was levied. Miller v. Crawford Independent School Dist., 26 C. A. 495, 63 S. W. 894.

Where, in tax proceedings, land in survey No. 150 is attempted to be described, but is described as in survey No. 130, the error is fatal. Wolf v. Gibbons (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 238.

In suit to foreclose tax lien, description of property in petition held sufficient. Haynes v. State, 44 C. A. 492, 99 S. W. 405.

In an action by a delinquent taxpayer to recover costs alleged to have been illegally exacted upon payment of the taxes, the petition held sufficient in certain respects. Typer & Knudson v. Tom (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 850.

189. —— Trespass.—Petition held to allege wrongful injuries after entry on land, as well as wrongful entry. Hooper v. Smith (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 65.

193. Issues, proof, and variance.—Allegations as to damages, see ante.

Matters of defense, see notes at end of Chapter 8.

In an action to recover goods levied on, a statement by R. to the officer after levy held admissible under a count alleging that at the time of the levy the goods were owned by R., and that he had transferred to plaintiff the cause of action arising from the levy. Carter-Battle Grocer Co. v. Rushing (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 449.

Where plaintiffs sued to recover for legal services in a suit pending in the federal court, evidence as to services in another suit in the state court was inadmissible. Higgins v. Matlock, Miller & Dycus (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 571.

In mandamus to compel a county commissioners' court to recognize a school district, under allegations of the petition, petitioners held entitled to show any fact which made void the act of the commissioners in changing a district, including the fact that the change was without the consent of the majority of the legal voters thereof. Crow v. Fails, 57 C. A. 331, 122 S. W. 933.

Admission, over objection, of evidence of a matter essential to plaintiff's cause of action, and not alleged in the petition, held error. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Givens (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 676.

Where a brakeman charged the excessive speed of a train as negligence, and that because thereof he was unable to avoid an injury, evidence as to the speed was admissible on the issue of contributory negligence, although the issue of negligence, based on the excessive speed, had become immaterial. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Shinn (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 636.

194. —— Allegations which must be proved in general.—In a suit for several and distinct injuries evidence is admissible as to one only. Carter v. Wallace, 2 T. 206.

In a suit for damages against a railroad company for injuries resulting from its car being thrown from the track by a rail broken several days before the injury and a part of which was missing, it was not necessary that both defects should be proved. The substance of the issue is, was the track of the road unsound and unsafe by reason of the defective rail. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Kirk, 62 T. 227.

An allegation that defendant was a "party" to an instrument not signed by him must be proven. Miller v. Railway Co., 83 T. 518, 18 S. W. 954.

In personal injury case, where plaintiff had pleaded separate grounds of negligence, held, that he need prove but one. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pitts (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 255; Davis v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 17 C. A. 199, 43 S. W. 44; Gutierrez v. Laredo Electric & Railway Co. (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 310; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Simon, 54 S. W. 309; San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Trigo, 101 S. W. 254; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Patillo, Id. 492; Garber v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 118 S. W. 857; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Callahan (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 129.

In conversion against a sheriff for the value of goods seized under attachments of two separate creditors, it is not necessary to prove a seizure under both writs, when plaintiff only alleged the seizure under one. Triplett v. Morris, 18 C. A. 50, 44 S. W. 684.

The act of plaintiff in an action on a saloon keeper's bond for selling liquor to a student, in amending his complaint and in offering evidence in support thereof, and asking instructions based on the theory of the amended complaint, held not to preclude the plaintiff from urging on appeal that he was entitled to recovery without proving the additional facts pleaded in the amendment. Peacock v. Limburger, 95 T. 258, 66 S. W. 764.

Plaintiff in an action for injuries is not required to prove all the elements of damage alleged to entitle him to recover. Williams v. Houston Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1160.

In an action on a liquor bond for a sale of liquor to a minor, plaintiff held entitled to recover under proof of any one of the several breaches of the liquor bond counted on. Wakeham v. Price (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 1093.

That plaintiff's proof did not show that he had been damaged by an obstruction in a highway to the extent alleged in the petition held not to preclude him from recovering for whatever injury the evidence disclosed. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Wood, 41 C. A. 226, 92 S. W. 259.

Regardless of what may be alleged in a petition, it is only necessary to prove such allegations as are necessary to constitute a cause of action. Collins v. Chipman, 41 C. A. 563, 95 S. W. 666.

A petition alleging several acts of negligence does not require proof of all the acts, but it is sufficient if it be shown that the injury resulted from one of the acts alleged, and it is only when a series of acts alleged as negligence, none of which if severed from the combination would constitute negligence, that it is essential to submit all the facts alleged to the jury. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Callahan (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 129.

An allegation that plaintiff's wife was injured, in that her back and hips were sprained, bruised, and injured, was supported by proof of injury to either hip. Southern Pac. Co. v. Blake (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 668.

In a broker's action for commissions, failure to prove a certain allegation of the petition held not fatal to a recovery. Cheek v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 707.

A plaintiff suing for the killing of an animal on the track held entitled to recover on proving one act of negligence alleged without reference to the other grounds of negligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Schram (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 195.

195. —— Proof of unnecessary allegations.—In a suit to rescind on the ground of misrepresentations, where plaintiff pleaded fraud and intent to deceive, held, that the allegations need not be proved, being nonessential to a recovery. Carter v. Cole (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 369.

In action against railroad for expulsion from train, held not necessary to prove execution and issuance of ticket by defendant. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Ing, 29 C. A. 398, 68 S. W. 722.

A plaintiff in a personal injury action held not required to prove that he was, as alleged in his petition, sound before the injury, in order to recover. Green v. Houston Electric Co., 40 C. A. 260, 89 S. W. 442.

An instruction which requires plaintiff to prove an unnecessary allegation is erroneous. Selman v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 1030.

Where a passenger seated in a standing coach was injured by the violent and negligent movement thereof, the means by which it was moved was immaterial and the allegation in the petition in an action for the injuries that the coach was jarred by some other car or locomotive coming into violent collision with it need not be proved. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stone (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 587.

Allegations of a petition in a suit to foreclose a judgment lien held material, and the proof must correspond therewith. Blankenship & Buchanan v. Herring (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 882.

196. —— Proof of matters admitted.—Where the ownership of land is alleged in the petition for injunction under oath, and not denied in the answer, the production of the deed under which the plaintiffs claim, with proof of possession to the time of the institution of the suit, is sufficient evidence of title to support the action. Dwyer v. Hosea, 1 U. C. 596.

An admission in a special plea of a fact not denied by other pleas dispenses with proof thereof by plaintiff. Bauman v. Chambers, 91 T. 108, 41 S. W. 471.

In an action to recover delinquent taxes, the defendant having admitted his ownership of the land by a verified answer, it was unnecessary to otherwise prove it. League v. State (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 262.

In an action by the state to foreclose a tax lien, it was unnecessary for the state to prove facts admitted in defendant's verified answer. League v. State, 93 T. 553, 57 S. W. 34.

In action to recover for services rendered separate estate of wife, admissions in answer that alleged property was the separate property of the wife relieves plaintiff from proving such fact. Emerson v. Kneezell (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 551.

In mandamus, in view of the pleadings, no evidence was required to sustain the allegations of the petition to warrant the court in granting relief. City of San Antonio v. Routledge, 46 C. A. 196, 102 S. W. 756.

In an action against carrier for delay in delivering car load of goods, plaintiff held required to prove only such allegations as were placed in issue by the special denial where there was no general denial. Wabash R. Co. v. Newton, Weller & Wagner Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 992.

Plaintiff held not required to introduce evidence of facts shown by the answer. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Waltman (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 518.

There being no denial as to plaintiff being a partnership or a corporation, no proof of such fact was necessary. Midkiff & Caudle v. Johnson County Savings Bank (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 705.

197. —— Materiality to issue in general.—Alleged variance between the petition and the proof held immaterial. Hillje v. Hettich (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 491.

Variance between the allegation and proof, in an action against a telegraph company for the refusal to receive a message, held immaterial. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 686.

The variance between pleadings and evidence in action for overflow of land held immaterial. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Foster, 45 C. A. 334, 100 S. W. 1017.

In an action against an electric company for injuries received through coming in contact with a live wire, a variance, if any, between the allegation and the proof, held immaterial. Houston Lighting Power Co. v. Hooper, 46 C. A. 257, 102 S. W. 133.

In an action against a carrier for breach of contract to carry a dead body, any variance as to the time within which the remains were to be shipped held immaterial. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Linton (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 129.

The petition in an action by an employé for salary alleged that the salary paid for six months preceding semiannual settlements, and expense money advanced to him during such period, must be added together and multiplied by 10, and the product deducted from the net amount of shipments made on the basis of selling price, and on such balance to allow a commission in addition to the stated salary. The proof showed an additional deduction of a percentage in semiannual settlements, based on losses, to determine the amount on which commissions are to be calculated. Held, that the variance was immaterial. Cluett, Peabody & Co. v. Sears (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1023.

The variance between the petition, in an action by a vendor for the purchaser's breach and the contract introduced in evidence, held not material. Green v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 255.

An instruction that plaintiff could not recover because of variance between her pleading and proof was properly refused, where the variance was not substantial. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Mebus (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 955.

198. —— Place and time.—In the petition, the note, which bore date October 12, 1888, was described as executed on or about October 11, 1885. The variance was immaterial. Bank v. Stephenson, 82 T. 435, 18 S. W. 583.

Allegation that a sign-board regulating speed of trains was at the corporate limits; proof that the sign-board was over a mile within the corporate limits. No essential variance. International & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Kuehn, 21 S. W. 58, 2 C. A. 210.

It is not necessary, in an action for death by wrongful act, that the proof be confined to the date alleged in the petition. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Glover (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 515.

Where a petition alleged that plaintiff's intestate was killed on defendant's tracks at a certain point within the city, and evidence shows that he was killed at another point, held immaterial. Texarkana & Ft. Smith Ry. Co. v. Frugia, 43 C. A. 48, 95 S. W. 563.

There is no fatal variance between an allegation that a contract was made "on or about September, 1905," and the proof that it was entered into in October of the same year. Kerr v. Blair, 47 C. A. 406, 105 S. W. 548.

Where the petition charged that the defendant on or about May 10, 1909, unlawfully converted plaintiff's property, proof of conversion in June or August, 1910, was a fatal variance. May v. Anthony (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 602.

Where the statutory notice of injury on a defective sidewalk stated the place of the accident, and the locality of the accident was substantially stated in the same way in the petition, the allegation of the place of the accident was descriptive of the cause of action, and the proof must correspond at least substantially therewith. English v. City of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 179.

199. —— Parties or other persons.—In a suit for an amount due by account, a bill of particulars was attached to the petition giving, among other items, acceptances in favor of divers parties, drawn by Hays & Co., on Samuel & Sons. It was claimed that there were fatal variances in some of the acceptances described in the account, as to the names of the parties in whose favor the same were drawn, as between the names: "Merrill" and "Murrell;" "E. M. Samuel & Sons" and "E. M. Samuels & Sons;" "Hayden, Wilsons & Allen" and "Hayden, Wilson & Allen." The variances were held to be immaterial, as the defendants could not have been misled thereby. Hays v. Samuels, 55 T. 560.

The note sued on was described in the petition as payable to I. T. and W. I. B., administrators of Y. H. B. The note offered in evidence was payable to I. T. and W. I. B., administrators of the estate of Y. H. B. The variance was immaterial. Wiebusch v. Taylor, 64 T. 53. The note described in the petition was for $356; a note for $355, offered in evidence, was excluded. Brown v. Martin, 19 T. 343.

An allegation that an insurance policy was assigned to T. H. Lee & Co. is not supported by an assignment to D. N. Lee. Insurance Co. v. Lee, 73 T. 641, 11 S. W. 1024.

A bill of exchange was described as drawn by Blackmur & Co., by M. P. Blackmur, attorney. The bill produced was signed "Horace Blackmur & Co., M. P. Blackmur, attorney." The variance is immaterial. Rische v. Bank, 84 T. 413, 19 S. W. 610.

Where a complaint alleges seizure by a sheriff, evidence that it was by a deputy sheriff held not a variance. Tarver v. Carter (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 229.

Although a plaintiff had alleged that two parties to a contract made him a promise, he may recover against one upon proof that he promised, although he may fail to prove the promise of the other. McDonald v. Cabiness, 100 T. 615, 102 S. W. 721.

A petition on an account held defective for variance, where it alleged a cause of action against defendant individually, and the exhibit to the petition showed a verified account against a corporation. Smith v. Briggs-Weaver Machinery Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 954.

Where a corporation was sued under the name of Oriental Oil Company of Beaumont, held, that it was not intended that the words "of Beaumont" should be part of its corporate name, and there was no variance. Oriental Oil Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 722.

Though the road, the closing of which was sought to be enjoined, was not a part of the E. road as actually laid out by the county authorities, yet it being part of "what is known" as the E. road, and this being the allegation of the petition, there is no variance. Porter v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 599.

200. —— Property or other subject-matter.—Matter of identity is not within the rule as to variance. Thus, in an action on an insurance policy, the property destroyed was described as a "one story" house, both in the policy and in the petition. On the trial the plaintiff's evidence as to the destruction by fire of his house was excluded because the house destroyed was a "story and a half" house, but in all other respects answering the description in the policy and petition. Held error, but under certain circumstances the description may be material. Eakin v. H. I. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 1234; citing Mason v. Kleberg, 4 T. 85; Mason v. McLaughlin, 16 T. 24; Pleasants v. Dunkin, 47 T. 357.

In trespass to try title, when the deed under which plaintiff claims is shown to cover more land than is embraced in the description given in the petition, that fact constitutes no variance. Broxson v. McDougal, 70 T. 64, 7 S. W. 591.

A slight difference between the description of property as alleged in the petition and that contained in deeds offered in evidence is immaterial, where the question is not in dispute under the pleadings. Kalteyer v. Wipff, 92 T. 673, 52 S. W. 63.

A mistake in the name of a survey in the description of land does not constitute a variance between the petition and proof. Echols v. Jacobs Mercantile Co., 38 C. A. 65, 84 S. W. 1082.

201. —— Written instruments.—An allegation that a note is payable to A. is sustained by the production of a note payable to A. or bearer. Mason v. Kleburg, 4 T. 85.

The variance in the description of a receipt as dated "Oct. 25, 1854," and the receipt read in evidence dated "Oct. '54," a copy of which was attached to the answer, is immaterial. May v. Pollard, 28 T. 677. Suit was brought on a contract which on its face purported to have been executed "this 24th, 1880." The written contract was attached to the petition, which alleged that it was reduced to writing on the 24th of January, 1880. When a written instrument is made a part of and filed with the petition it will cure any misdescription of it in the body of the petition. Longley v. Caruthers, 64 T. 287; Pyron v. Grinder, 25 T. Sup. 159; Spencer v. McCarty, 46 T. 213.

An allegation that plaintiff by a written obligation promised to pay A. $5,000 is not supported by an obligation to pay a sum not exceeding $5,000, subject to certain provisos and conditions therein stated. S. C. of A. L. H. v. Anderson, 61 T. 296. An alleged promise to pay "when thereunto afterwards requested" is not proven by evidence of a promise to pay in two years from this date. Hunt v. Wright, 13 T. 549.

Under an allegation that a payment was made on the 7th of November, 1882, by a check of a specified number, a check stamped paid on the 11th day of December, 1882, was admitted in evidence, the issuable fact being the payment, and not the specific date thereof. Stevens v. Gainsville Nat. Bank, 62 T. 499.

In an action against a common carrier, founded on his common-law liability, it is not necessary to produce in evidence the bill of lading alleged to have been lost. If there is a special contract restricting the common-law liability of the carrier, it devolves upon him to allege and prove it. When the suit is founded upon the bill of lading, then the bill must be produced in evidence or its non-production accounted for, and its substance proved as alleged. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Wheat, 2 App. C. C. § 165; Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Nicholson, 2 App. C. C. § 169; T. P. Ry. Co. v. Scrivener, 2 App. C. C. § 328.

In an action on a promissory note signed by the defendants and payable to themselves, it was alleged that the defendants indorsed the note, etc. A note executed by defendants to one Lewis and by him indorsed was excluded on the ground of variance. Sweetzer v. Claflin, 74 T. 667, 12 S. W. 395.

A note declared on in the petition is supported by the production of such note with an erased credit on it. Watts v. Overstreet, 78 T. 571, 14 S. W. 704.

An allegation that defendant by bond obligated himself to convey land "in fee-simple by warranty deed," is supported by a bond to convey it "by a good and valid deed or deeds in common form." Phillips v. Herndon, 78 T. 378, 14 S. W. 857, 22 Am. St. Rep. 59.

A reference in a note to a deed as recorded on pages 219–220 instead of 419-420 was held not constituting a variance. Halfin v. Winkleman, 83 T. 165, 18 S. W. 433.

It is alleged that M. gave one-half of her estate to A. and one-half to B. The will gave A. and B. $400 each. It being shown that this was all the estate of M., there was no variance. Michon v. Ayalla, 84 T. 685, 19 S. W. 878.

The note sued on was described in the pleading as payable to "the bearer or E. H. and W. D. Wheeler"; as offered in evidence it was payable "to bearer E. H. and W. D. Wheeler." Held, there was no material variance. Gunter v. Lillard, 1 C. A. 325, 21 S. W. 118.

In foreclosing a mortgage against another than the mortgagor and the maker of the note secured, it was an immaterial variance that the name of a person appeared as a surety on the note offered in evidence, in addition to the makers named in the petition. Montague County v. Meadows (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 326.

Where notes were described as having been executed by H., the exclusion of notes executed by H. & Co. and H. and another was error. McDonald v. Dorbrandt, 17 C. A. 277, 42 S. W. 1047.

It is proper to admit in evidence the note sued on, though dated a few days before the date alleged in the petition, where the description is otherwise sufficient to identify it. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Moore, 19 C. A. 283, 46 S. W. 665.

The fact that a petition on a note alleged that the note was payable to "T. R. Ellison," whereas it was in fact payable to "T. R. Ellison & Co.," held immaterial. Jones v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 406.

Bond offered in evidence held not objectionable on ground of variance. Lasater v. Waites (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 518.

Written contract of sale being made a part of plaintiffs' petition, and its breach the cause of action alleged, there could be no variance between the writing and allegations in the petition. Ash v. Beck (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 53.

A variance of three days in the allegation and proof as to the date of a lost instrument sued on was not material, not being of such character as to surprise the adverse party. Alexander v. Wakefield (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 77.

In a foreclosure proceeding, held, that there was no variance, though the mortgage only named the city where the land was located and the petition named both city and county. Crow v. Kellman (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 564.

In replevin of animals a slight variance in the description between the petition and the mortgage under which defendants claim held immaterial. Saenz v. O. F. Mumme & Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 59.

Plaintiff held not entitled to recover under the pleadings and proof that defendant did not execute the check in suit, notwithstanding the acknowledged execution of a smaller check. Cleveland v. Taylor, 49 C. A. 496, 108 S. W. 1037.

A note sued on held admissible in evidence under the allegations of the petition. Taylor v. McFatter (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 395.

In an action on a contract for the construction of a county bridge, the court held not to have erred in admitting in evidence the tracing of a plan for the bridge in view of the allegations of the petition. Webb County v. Hasie, 52 C. A. 16, 113 S. W. 188.

In an action on notes alleged to be for a certain amount, notes offered in evidence held admissible over an objection of variance. Carroll v. Mitchell-Parks Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 446.

In a suit on a note, the description in the petition of a note payable to "J. I. Case Threshing Machine Co." is not at variance with the note offered in evidence, payable to "J. I. Case Threshing Machine Co., or bearer." J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 439.

If, in a suit on a note, the petition was in fact at variance with the note in failing to include the sentence, stamped on the back, "This note is subject to the terms of a certain trust indenture recorded in Racine County, Wis., in Book 102, page 375," yet it was a matter to be shown by evidence, and a subject of defense. Id.

Although, in a suit on a note, the petition failed to include the sentence, "This note is subject to the terms of a certain trust indenture recorded in Racine County, Wis., in Book 102, page 375," which was stamped on the back of the note, there was not a fatal variance with the note when introduced. Id.

A petition in an action against carriers of live stock alleged that the initial carrier received the live stock for transportation from Sabinal, Tex., to National Stockyards, East St. Louis, Ill., for delivery there to a designated assignee, and the contracts introduced in evidence showed an agreement to transport the live stock, waybilled to East St. Louis, to New Orleans, the end of the initial carrier's road, to be there transferred to a connecting carrier for transportation to the same assignee named in the petition; and the contracts in evidence showed the same consignee and related to the same cattle and cars. Held, that there was no material variance between the contracts pleaded and those offered as proof, and that there was nothing in the matter of alleging the contracts calculated to mislead the defendants into mistaking the plaintiff's cause of action. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Johnson & Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 725.

Petition for the conversion of mortgaged animals describing them as "coming twos" held to be supported by description in the mortgage describing them as yearlings. Barron v. San Angelo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 142.

The proof of a certain note held to be no variance from the petition. Ucovich v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1102.

Where a note declared on was that of five separate persons, and that introduced in evidence was signed by four only, there was a fatal variance. Hess v. Schaffner (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1024.

There was a fatal variance, where the petition alleged that the notes sued on were executed by defendant to plaintiff, while the proof showed that they were executed to another, who indorsed them in blank to plaintiff. Childs v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 511.

Where the complaint on a note described the note as payable to H. and A., and alleged that H. and A. indorsed it to plaintiff, while the indorsement on the note was "H. & A.," evidence showing that the note was sold to plaintiff by H., and by him indorsed in the firm name, was not a material variance. Hawkins v. Western Nat. Bank of Hereford (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 722.

A petition described notes sued on collectively as "stipulating for 10 per cent. on amount of principal and interest then due as attorney's fees in case said notes are placed in the hands of attorneys for collection." Each note recited that, if "this note is placed in the hands of an attorney for collection," the maker will pay 10 per cent. additional as attorney's fees. Held not a fatal variance. Bowers v. Goats (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1013.

In an action to recover the amount of notes, payment of which defendant assumed by a certain deed, and which he was called upon to produce by the petition, the variance between an allegation that the notes were payable a specified number of days after date respectively, and evidence that the notes were payable a specified number of years after date, was not fatal. Bowers v. Goats (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1014.

In an action on a liquor dealer's bond, the variance between the bond, which showed it was executed on September 7th, and the petition, which alleged it was executed on September 28th, is immaterial. Adams v. State (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1086.

202. —— Nature and extent of relief.—Where a suit was brought to establish a note as a claim against a decedent's estate, the district court could determine the validity of a deed of trust given as security for the note. George v. Ryon, 94 T. 317, 60 S. W. 427, reversing (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 825.

A party having an interest in property wrongfully converted does not lose his right to recover by alleging his interest as greater than is shown by the evidence. Bruce v. Laing (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1019.

In an action against a railway company for conversion of a car load of wheat, which was destroyed by a storm while in the company's possession, recovery cannot be had on the ground of breach of a contract to notify the consignee, unless such breach is pleaded. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Darby, 28 C. A. 229, 67 S. W. 129.

Certain evidence in an action on a note held inadmissible to support relief not demanded. Neitch v. Hillman, 29 C. A. 544, 69 S. W. 494.

Though plaintiff sued for more than the amount of the chattel mortgage he sought to foreclose, held there was no variance, preventing his foreclosing for the amount of the mortgage. Becker v. Bowen (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 45.

Where a petition for rent was sufficient to charge defendant for two years of an extension of the lease, it was immaterial when defendant's occupant left the premises. Dockery v. Thorne (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 593.

203. —— Matters of defense.—See notes under Art. 1828 and at end of Chapter 8.

Where plaintiff claims under an execution sale, and defendant offers a deed from the judgment debtor, plaintiff may show fraud, though not specially pleaded. Clardy v. Wilson, 27 C. A. 49, 64 S. W. 489.

204. —— Effect of variance to mislead or surprise.—To constitute a fatal variance, a misdescription must be such as to mislead or surprise the adverse party. Shipman v. Fulcrod, 42 T. 248; Wiebusch v. Taylor, 64 T. 53. Where an instrument is filed with the petition, there can be no objection on account of variance. Pyron v. Grinder, 25 T. Sup. 159; Spencer v. McCarty, 46 T. 213; Longley v. Carruthers, 64 T. 287.

In an action to recover on municipal bonds, a variance between those described and those offered in evidence is harmless, where defendant was not misled. Thornburgh v. City of Tyler, 16 C. A. 439, 43 S. W. 1054.

Mistakes in the petition concerning the indorsements on the note sued on, held not to mislead defendant so as to warrant a refusal to admit the note in evidence. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Moore, 19 C. A. 283, 46 S. W. 665.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries to a passenger from the striking of the car by an engine, the gist of the action was that defendant had struck the car with such violence as to injure plaintiff, and the variance between the allegations and proof that the engine propelled a car against the one in which plaintiff was located was not misleading to defendant, and therefore immaterial. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Lane (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1066.

Variance between pleading and proof of the contract in a broker's action for commission held not fatal, where defendant was not misled thereby. Parks v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 704.

205. —— Agency.—Contract for the appointment of an agent for an insurance company held not to constitute a variance with the petition, in that it showed a contract by the company's agent, and not on behalf of the company. Foster v. Franklin Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 91.

Under a petition in an action against a railroad for negligently causing the death of plaintiff's minor child, alleging that defendant's train crew had control of the operation and management of the train, a judgment for plaintiff would not be supported by proof that a construction crew foreman had charge of the train. Forge v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 41 C. A. 81, 90 S. W. 1118.

There was no variance between a petition alleging the making of a contract by plaintiff and evidence showing the making thereof by his wife in his presence, and with his consent. Lilly v. Yeary (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 823.

206. —— Assignment.—In an action to recover the proceeds of an assigned policy, evidence held not objectionable on the ground of variance. Clarke v. Adam, 30 C. A. 66, 69 S. W. 1016.

207. —— Ownership or title.—Ownership of property must be proved as alleged in a suit for injuries thereto. Tex. & N. O. R. P. Co. v. Oates, 2 App. C. C. § 618; G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Witt, 2 App. C. C. § 774; Mo. P. Ry. Co. v. Teague, 2 App. C. C. § 780.

Where plaintiffs suing for the conversion of a horse, claim his entire value, they cannot show, on defendants' counterclaiming for the animal's keep, that defendants were part owners. Gooch v. Isbell (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 973.

The fact that the petition, in a suit to establish a boundary, only claimed a part of the land described in a patent and a deed, did not render the patent and deed inadmissible. Runkle v. Smith, 52 C. A. 186, 114 S. W. 865.

A party relying on an express trust in land may not recover on proof of a different title. Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 739.

208. —— Nature and form of contract and performance or breach thereof in general.—An alleged promise to pay when thereunto afterwards requested is not supported by evidence of a promise to pay in two years from date. Hunt v. Wright, 13 T. 549.

The petition alleged a contract between W. & Co., J. T. H. and W. G. C. with defendants' company for the shipment of cattle from Wills Point to Farmers' Branch. Two contracts were offered in evidence, one of which was signed by W. & Co. and the other by J. T. H., for the shipment of cattle from Wills Point to Carrollton. The variance was held to be fatal. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Hamm, 2 App. C. C. § 495.

Evidence of an express contract is variant from an allegation of adoption of contract by acts and conduct. Stokes v. Burney, 22 S. W. 126, 3 C. A. 219.

Where plaintiff sued for goods sold and delivered, and the evidence showed a contract of consignment, held, that the variance was fatal. J. I. Case Plow Works v. Morris, 17 C. A. 6, 42 S. W. 652.

There is no substantial variance where the lessor alleges a sum due for rent, and the proof shows a rental at so much per acre, which amounts to the sum sued for. Roberson v. Gill (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 326.

Proof held to be at fatal variance with pleading as to parties and elements of contract sued on. Letot v. Edens (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 109.

Where plaintiff does not prove the contract sued on he cannot recover. Id.

There is no variance between an allegation that plaintiff was employed to look after certain property and mineral lands and proof that he had only a nominal charge of the mineral lands. Cotton v. Rand (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 55.

It was error to render judgment for plaintiff, where the evidence showed a different contract from that sued on. Loudon v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 783.

Under a petition that money loaned was payable on demand, proof that claimant loaned the money, and that borrower said that, as soon as he sold his cotton, he would pay the money, does not show a variance. Kartoghian v. Harboth (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 79.

Where the complaint alleged that defendant agreed to employ plaintiff in a certain capacity "during his lifetime, or so long as he might desire," and the testimony was that the agreement was to so employ him "during his lifetime," the contract proved was not the one alleged, and he could not recover. Texas M. R. R. v. Morris, 29 C. A. 491, 69 S. W. 102.

In an action for refusal to permit plaintiff to carry out a contract for grading and clearing at a specified price, evidence held not to be at variance with the petition. Jefferson & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Dreeson, 43 C. A. 282, 96 S. W. 63.

One suing for money loaned to a corporation held not entitled to recover for the corporation's breach of contract in failing to deliver stock purchased by him. Max Hahn Packing Co. v. Shaw, 44 C. A. 187, 97 S. W. 712.

There is no variance between a petition seeking a recovery for the value of goods sold and the proof of a written contract of sale. Hayward Lumber Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 403.

In an action on a note and to foreclose a chattel mortgage securing it, the mortgage and plaintiff's testimony that defendant at the time of the execution of the note had agreed that it should be secured by the mortgage held inadmissible under the pleadings. Williams v. Manix (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 520.

In an action on defendant's contract with plaintiff and another to deposit a certain sum in bank, proof that plaintiff made a deposit in bank by note held not a variance from an allegation of the petition that it was a cash deposit. Snow v. Rudolph (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 249.

In an action for the price of railroad ties, held, that there was no variance between the allegations and the proof. Richardson v. Herbert (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 628.

The variance between a petition in an action on a contract of sale of timber and the proof held fatal. Adams v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1163.

Plaintiff cannot recover upon a contract different from that declared on. Stuart v. Calahan (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 60.

There is a variance in suit by a buyer in which he pleads breach of verbal representations and warranties, where the proof shows a written contract, set up by defendant seller, which the buyer claimed he signed in ignorance of its contents, and through fraud practiced by the seller's agent. Southern Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Peveto (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 279.

Where plaintiff's petition did not allege whether the contract sued on was oral or in writing, plaintiff could recover on proof of a contract, written or oral, embodying substantially the terms of the contract alleged. Granger v. Kishi (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1161.

The plaintiff cannot recover in a suit on a contract, unless the evidence sustains the exact contract alleged in the pleadings. Bagley v. Brack (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 247.

209. —— Express and implied contracts.—When the petition alleges a special contract, the plaintiff cannot recover a quantum meruit; and proof of value, admitted without objection, will not authorize a recovery (Gammage v. Alexander, 14 T. 414; McGreal v. Wilson, 9 T. 426); but in a suit on quantum meruit, evidence of what the purchaser agreed to pay is admissible. Ballew v. Casey, 60 T. 573.

In an action upon an implied contract of lease, it is improper to admit evidence of an express contract. Shiner v. Abbey, 77 T. 1, 13 S. W. 613.

When a recovery is sought on an express contract, evidence of an implied obligation is inadmissible. Krohn v. Heyn, 77 T. 319, 14 S. W. 130.

Proof of an implied contract is not admissible under a petition alleging an express contract. Lohner v. Wilcox (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 27; Walker v. Dickey, 44 C. A. 110, 98 S. W. 658; Fordtran v. Stowers, 52 C. A. 226, 113 S. W. 631; C. W. Hahl & Co. v. Southland Immigration Ass'n, 53 C. A. 592, 116 S. W. 831; Mullinax v. Pyron (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1139; Hereford Nursery v. Deaf Smith County, 138 S. W. 442; Grogan v. Odell, 141 S. W. 169; Whitney v. Parish of Vernon, 154 S. W. 264.

One suing on an express contract cannot prove a custom not pleaded. Johnson & Moran v. Buchanan, 54 C. A. 328, 116 S. W. 875.

Allegations that work was done at the solicitation of defendant's agent and with its knowledge and consent, were sufficient to sustain a recovery against it on a quantum meruit. Suderman-Dolson Co. v. Hope (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 216.

Landlord suing on an express contract could not recover for use and occupation nor on a verbal promise to pay rent. Johnson v. Hulett, 56 C. A. 11, 120 S. W. 257.

In an action to recover for loss sustained by the failure to fully insure rice left with defendant to be milled and sold, the petition held sufficient to admit proof of an implied contract to fully insure the rice. Broussard v. South Texas Rice Co. (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 587.

Where a plaintiff has declared upon an express contract made by defendant to refund freight charges paid by plaintiff without alleging any custom of refunding, evidence of such custom is inadmissible. Standard Paint Co. v. San Antonio Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1150.

Evidence held not to constitute such a variance as would preclude plaintiff from recovering for the reasonable value of materials furnished under a contract. Eberhart v. Crisman & Nesbitt (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 841.

Where the petition for injuries to goods alleges an express agreement of carriage, no recovery can be had, in the absence of proof of an express agreement. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Rackusin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 734.

Where the petition, in a materialman's action against an owner for the price of lumber furnished a contractor, stated a cause of action based solely on estoppel by conduct, it was error to admit proof of defendant's direct promise to pay the debt. Marks v. Jones (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 618.

210. —— Action by broker for commissions.—A variance held not material. Sanderson v. Wellsford, 53 C. A. 637, 116 S. W. 382.

Held that there was a fatal variance between the pleading and proof. Hughes v. McFarland (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 172; Rogers v. McMillen, 132 S. W. 853.

Evidence as to the reason for failure of the sale held not a fatal variance. Willson v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 227.

Held, that there was no variance between the pleadings and proof. Fritter v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 1186.

211. —— Action for contribution.—In an action between the makers of notes for contribution, held, that there was no such variance between allegations and proof as was calculated to mislead and surprise defendant; and hence the variance, if any, became immaterial. Dyer v. Adams, 56 C. A. 400, 120 S. W. 946.

212. —— Action on liquor dealer's bond.—Proof showing breaches occurring a few months prior to the dates specified in the petition was sufficient to support the allegations. Hawthorne v. State, 39 C. A. 122, 87 S. W. 839.

An allegation held sufficient to admit proof of two breaches of the bond on the same day. Markus v. Thompson, 51 C. A. 239, 111 S. W. 1074.

Where the petition alleged sales on or about certain dates, plaintiff was not bound to prove violations on those particular dates. Birkman v. Fahrenthold, 52 C. A. 426, 114 S. W. 428.

The admission of certain evidence held not erroneous under the pleadings. Id.

Certain evidence held admissible under the issues. Wetzel v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 414.

213. —— Action for wages.—In an employé's action for the difference between his original salary and the amount which the employer claimed was his salary after it had been reduced by a general notice of reduction of wages, certain testimony held inadmissible under the issues. Pennington v. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 923.

214. —— Action against partners.—In brokers' action brought by individuals described as partners for commission, held, that there was a fatal variance between the cause of action pleaded and the proof, defeating the right of recovery. Neal v. Adkins (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 264.

Where, in an action for goods sold to a firm, no exceptions were filed to plaintiff's pleadings, the counts of which, though inconsistent to a certain extent, pleaded several combinations of facts sufficient to show defendant's liability, and the evidence was sufficient to support the plaintiff's allegation that defendant was estopped to deny the existence of a partnership, and that defendant was carrying on the business under a firm name, of which his own name formed a part, a judgment would not be set aside for variance between the pleadings and the proof. Garza v. Alamo Live Stock Commission Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 687.

215. —— Actions by or against husband or wife or both.—Action for damages to real estate; allegation that the property belongs to a married woman, a plaintiff; proof that it was either the common property of herself and husband or the separate property of the husband. Held to be a fatal variance. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Becht (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 971.

Where a wife is a party to a foreclosure and no foreclosure of any superior title of the wife is asked, a deed from the husband to the wife subsequent to the mortgage held inadmissible. Branch v. Wilkens (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 1083.

Where the petition, in an action against a husband for a debt contracted by his wife, was based on the theory that the debt was for necessaries furnished her, plaintiff could not recover on the ground that defendant authorized his wife to contract the debt since the allegations and proof must correspond. Fields v. Florence (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 187.

In an action by husband and wife to recover on notes belonging to wife's separate estate, and to foreclose a vendor's lien, certain evidence held admissible as bearing on the issues made by the pleadings. Givens v. Carter (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 623.

216. —— Actions against insurance companies or orders.—An allegation that insured joined the S. lodge, and died when a member of the order, and proof that he was a member of B. lodge when he died, held no variance. Supreme Lodge, Knights of Honor, v. Rampy (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 422.

Acceptance of proofs of loss without objection to the want of an appraisal by arbitrators, and the fact that the company had not required an arbitration, held provable under the petition. Virginia Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Cannon, 18 C. A. 588, 45 S. W. 945.

Where assured pleaded no consideration for a mortgage alleged as a breach of condition in a policy evidence that the note secured by the mortgage was never delivered was admissible. Insurance Co. of North America v. Wicker, 93 T. 390, 55 S. W. 740.

In an action on accident policy, evidence that death was caused by "injury to the stomach, or to the pyloric orifice," held admissible under an allegation that death was caused by "rupture of the stomach." Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. Hicks, 23 C. A. 74, 56 S. W. 87.

Where plaintiff pleaded compliance with conditions of a fire policy requiring proof of loss, he could not recover on proof of a waiver of such condition. St. Paul Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Hodge, 30 C. A. 257, 70 S. W. 574, 71 S. W. 386.

Variance in action on insurance policy as to number and name of insured held immaterial. Ætna Life Ins. Co. v. J. B. Parker & Co., 96 T. 287, 72 S. W. 168, 580, 621.

Evidence in action on fire insurance policy held variant from petition as to building destroyed. Underwriters' Fire Ass'n v. Henry (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1072.

In an action on a fire policy, held, that there was no variance between plaintiff's pleading and evidence as to a waiver by the insurer's agent of a requirement of the policy. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 49.

An offer of compromise of an insurance claim held inadmissible under a claim of waiver of a failure to produce an inventory, and a breach of the iron-safe clause. Continental Ins. Co. v. Cummings (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 48.

In an action on an insurance policy, if facts constituting a waiver of any defense are not specifically pleaded, evidence to prove the waiver is inadmissible. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Wagner, 50 C. A. 233, 109 S. W. 1120.

In an action on a benefit certificate, there was no variance between the petition alleging a positive obligation and the certificate containing conditions and provisos on which liability was made to depend. Modern Order of Prætorians v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 260.

Where the petition in an action on a certificate issued by a fraternal organization alleged that decedent was a member of a subordinate temple, it was error to introduce in evidence the financial card of another temple. International Order of Twelve Knights & Daughters of Tabor v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 320.

217. —— Action against telegraph company.—Proof in action against telegraph company for negligent delivery of message held not to exhibit variance from allegation of petition. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Roberts, 34 C. A. 76, 78 S. W. 522.

A petition in an action against a telegraph company for delay in transmitting a message held to warrant the admission of certain evidence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Campbell, 41 C. A. 204, 91 S. W. 312.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering messages, evidence that the person who filed one of them told the company where the sendee could be found held admissible under the allegations of the petition. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bell, 48 C. A. 359, 107 S. W. 570.

A petition, in an action against a telegraph company for failure to promptly deliver a message alleging the delivery of a message to defendant is sustained by proof of a delivery to a connecting carrier and thence to defendant. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Tice (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1078.

218. —— Action to rescind.—Allegations in a suit to rescind a sale of land that the land was worthless are supported by evidence that there was no such land in existence. Paul v. Chenault (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 682.

219. —— Action for wrongful discharge.—Certain evidence held admissible under the issue. Kramer v. Wolf Cigar Stores Co., 99 T. 597, 91 S. W. 775.

220. —— Action for slander.—Variance between petition and proof as to slanderous words held not material. Patterson & Wallace v. Frazer, 100 T. 103, 94 S. W. 324.

One may recover for slander without proving that the exact words alleged were spoken. King v. Sassaman (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 304.

In slander it is sufficient for plaintiff to prove that the words spoken were substantially as alleged. Patterson & Wallace v. Frazer (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 146.

221. —— Action for death.—Where the petition in an action for wrongful death alleged a cause of action under the state statutes relating to intrastate carriers' liability for negligent death, proof that the carrier was engaged in interstate commerce at the time would not support the petition. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pope (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 163.

222. —— Action for obstruction of water course.—In an action for unlawfully detaining the water of a stream, the evidence held not to support the allegations of the petition. Stacy v. Delery, 57 C. A. 242, 122 S. W. 300.

223. —— Actions for negligence in general.—Proof that an injury resulted from a temporary staging around a water-tank supports an allegation that the injury was caused by defective construction of the tank. Railway Co. v. Hohn, 1 C. A. 36, 21 S. W. 942.

When acts of negligence are set out in the petition the recovery is limited to those acts. Fordyce v. Moore (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 236.

Under petition alleging injury resulting from contact with two primary wires, testimony of plaintiff that he was guarding against such wires, and did not touch them, constitutes fatal variance. Newnom v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 669.

In an action for negligence in failing to insulate a live wire, there can be no recovery for other negligence than that charged. San Antonio Gas & Electric Co. v. Speegle (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 884.

Recovery can be had only for damage resulting from the specific acts of negligence alleged. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Droddy (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 902.

224. —— Actions against carriers.—Evidence in action for compelling plaintiff's wife, being a white woman, to ride in a negro coach, held not at variance with the pleadings. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ball, 25 C. A. 500, 61 S. W. 327.

Evidence in action for wrongfully ejecting plaintiff's wife at a station held at variance with the complaint, so as to justify directing verdict for defendant. Allin v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 26 C. A. 43, 62 S. W. 1079.

A complaint in an action against connecting carriers for delay in transportation of stock held not to preclude evidence of other delays than those specified. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Griffith (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 438.

In an action against a railroad company for death of a passenger, alleged to have been caused by the negligent operation of the train, so as to cause the car to "lurch backward and forward," plaintiff could not recover on evidence of any jerk or jolt causing the car to lurch sideways. Hicks v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 322.

Proof that lurching of the car from negligent operation of the train, charged to have caused a passenger's death, was sidewise, instead of backward and forward, as alleged, held not to prevent recovery Hicks v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 96 T. 355, 72 S. W. 835.

The petition, in an action for injury to a passenger from being ejected after being carried beyond her station, having claimed no recovery for injury to her child who accompanied her, evidence that it got no supper or breakfast where they were ejected was inadmissible. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1139.

In an action by a mail clerk against a railroad for personal injuries received in a wreck, plaintiff's petition alleged that his injuries were caused by the negligence and carelessness of defendant's employés, in charge of the two trains which collided, in failing to obey orders, etc., and the negligence of defendant in providing a defective mail coach. Upon the trial, plaintiff proved that the wreck occurred as alleged, and that he received the injuries, but failed to prove the negligence as alleged. Held that, as plaintiff had specified in his petition the particular acts or matters which constituted defendant's negligence, he waived his right, which he would otherwise have had to rely on the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur, and was tied down to the negligence alleged. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 974.

On plaintiff's allegations of negligence of defendant's employés, in an action against a carrier for personal injuries, he cannot recover on proof indicating negligence of some character. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Neal (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 398.

225. —— Action for injuries to servant.—Plaintiff alleged that he was injured by being thrown from a hand car. It appeared in evidence that he jumped from the car to save himself from apparent danger. The variance was held immaterial. Railway Co. v Johnson, 83 T. 628, 19 S. W. 151.

Evidence that plaintiff, while standing on the pilot of an engine, slipped and fell from it, is supported by an allegation that he was thrown off by the jar of the shock of the engine. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Beam (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 411.

Evidence of defective construction of a locomotive held competent to show the cause of its explosion, though such cause was not alleged as negligence constituting ground for recovery. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. De Ham, 93 T. 74, 53 S. W. 375.

Where complaint alleges injury from a piece of a hammer breaking off, and specifies negligence in that the hammer was old and cracked, there can be no recovery on evidence that it was new and not cracked. De La Vergne Refrigerating Mach. Co. v. Stahl (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 40.

Petition, in an action for an injury to a fireman caused by the explosion of a locomotive boiler, held not to permit a recovery for the failure to provide a "soft plug" in the fire box. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. De Ham (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 395.

Where the petition alleged that it was caused by stepping on a projecting bolt of the footboard of defendant's engine, it is error to refuse to instruct that there can be no recovery if the injury was caused by stepping on some other substance on such board. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Milam (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 735.

Plaintiff could not recover for defendant's negligence in kicking cars which he was about to couple, under allegation of complaint that cars were carelessly handled. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Baker (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 964.

Where, in an action for injuries sustained by stumbling over ground switch in the night-time, complaint did not allege negligence on account of the character of the switch used, held error to admit testimony as to whether other kind of switch might have been safer. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 626.

An allegation that defendant negligently allowed the handhold which caused the accident to become defectively fastened is sufficient to admit evidence that the wood in which the end of the handhold was embedded was not sound. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jones, 29 C. A. 214, 68 S. W. 190.

Freight brakeman, injured by falling from one of a string of cars on a side track while attempting to step on the next one, held not entitled, under the evidence, to recover on the ground that the train which struck the cars was operated at a negligently high rate of speed. Texas, S. V. & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Peden, 32 C. A. 315, 74 S. W. 932.

In an action for injuries to a brakeman by the breaking of a defective brakestaff, a variance between allegations of the petition and proof held immaterial. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Collins, 33 C. A. 58, 75 S. W. 814.

Certain evidence held properly excluded, because variant from the pleadings. Jernigan v. Houston Ice & Brewing Co., 33 C. A. 501, 77 S. W. 260.

Evidence that locomotive fireman, injured by blowing out of plug from engine, jumped or fell to ground, held admissible, though he alleged that he was blown from the engine. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Crum, 35 C. A. 609, 81 S. W. 72.

Petition held sufficient, in the absence of special demurrer, to admit expert testimony of a custom to put employés at work on machines of the character of that which caused the injury only after they had become experienced. Gammel-Statesman Pub. Co. v. Monfort (Civ. App.) 81 S W. 1029.

Where the incompetency of a railway brakeman is in issue, the question of his fitness for the varied duties of a brakeman is involved. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hays, 40 C. A. 162, 89 S. W. 29.

Rules of railroad company held admissible in evidence under pleading. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Fanning, 40 C. A. 422, 91 S. W. 344.

The admission of evidence to sustain a ground of negligence not pleaded held error. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Breeding, 41 C. A. 123, 91 S. W. 877.

In an action by a servant for injuries alleged to have been caused by the insecure fastening of the handhold on a locomotive, an allegation held sufficient in the absence of exception to admit of evidence that the fastenings were originally unfit. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 184.

In an action for death of a servant while inspecting certain oil tanks, evidence that there was no float or gauge provided whereby the depth of the oil could be determined without going on top of the tanks held admissible. Yellow Pine Oil Co. v. Noble (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 332.

In an action by a locomotive fireman for injuries received in a wreck caused by defective condition of the track, the rules of the company were admissible on the issue of its negligence without being pleaded. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Garrett, 44 C. A. 406, 98 S. W. 932.

Where petition alleged that switchman was knocked from top of car while releasing a brake, and evidence showed that the accident occurred while he was sitting upon the brake, variance held not material. Consolidated Kansas City Smelting & Refining Co. v. Binkley, 45 C. A. 100, 99 S. W. 181.

In an action by a servant for injuries received by reason of defective machinery, evidence held not at variance with the allegations of the complaint. Receivers of Kirby Lumber Co. v. Poindexter (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 439.

Certain evidence held admissible in view of the petition. Commerce Milling & Grain Co. v. Gowan (Civ. App.) 104 S W. 916.

Certain evidence held insufficient to warrant a recovery, as not within the allegations of the petition. Currie v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 1149.

Evidence that a turntable was defective as alleged when weighed down by a large engine as when plaintiff was injured held to support the allegation made. Currie v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 101 T. 478, 108 S. W. 1167.

Statement as to when there is a variance in an action for negligence. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 196.

Where a section hand alleged injuries caused by being struck by a projection from a passing train, he could not recover if he was injured by attempting to catch a passing car. De Hoyes v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 52 C. A. 543, 115 S. W. 75.

Where the action was based on foreman's negligence in failing to notify plaintiff of a particular danger, he could not complain that he was not notified in time to escape other dangers. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Pollock (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 843.

In an action for injuries to a railway switchman, where the petition did not predicate negligence upon a failure to use permanent drains, evidence as to certain permanent drains which might have been used instead of open ditches was inadmissible. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Wirtz, 55 C. A. 555, 119 S. W. 324.

Statement of what was the substance of the issue, which alone had to be proved, under a petition for negligent injury to a servant. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Grant (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 145.

Pleading and proofs, in an action by an employé for malpractice by physician employed by defendant, considered, and held, that there was no variance. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. McWain, 57 C. A. 512, 124 S. W. 202.

A servant may not recover on a ground different from that alleged in the petition. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Shubert (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 708.

An operator of a paper cutter suing for personal injury on one theory held not entitled to recover on another. National Biscuit Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 65.

Certain evidence held inadmissible, as not within the pleadings. Thompson Bros. Lumber Co. v. Bryant (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 290.

Proof that the engine which caused the injury was running north instead of south, as was alleged in the petition, is an immaterial variance. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Keeran (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 355.

Where plaintiff, injured by the splintering of a steel pick, alleged that the pick was old, defective, and insufficient, which was denied by defendant, evidence that it was improperly tempered was admissible. Freeman v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 413.

Petition alleging that plaintiff was in defendant's employ when injured held to justify proof showing where, when, and by whom he was employed. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Trout (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1137.

Certain allegations in the petition held to warrant proof of the manner of the accident, although other allegations misstated the exact location of the same. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Limberg (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1180.

Where petition alleged that deceased employé's injury could have been avoided by the use of the means at hand, evidence that the engine by which he was struck could have been stopped by means of an angle cock was competent. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Suitor (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 185.

In an action by a servant of a telephone company against the company and a city for injuries from contact with the city's electric light wire, in which the city prayed recovery over against the telephone company for any judgment against the city, evidence that if one of the telephone company's workmen had pulled a plug maintained by the city it would have deadened the light wire and made plaintiff's place of work safe was admissible under the issues. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Luckie (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1158.

Under a petition in a servant's action alleging injury from cogs inside a dough mixer because of defective lights, proof that they were on the outside held not a material variance, since it could not have served to mislead or surprise defendant, and since their position was not a material issue. Brown Cracker & Candy Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 684.

226. —— Actions for injuries in operation of railroads.—Where complaint alleges injuries caused by frightening a horse by willfully opening valve in engine, plaintiff cannot show damages from the engineer's failure to discover the proximity of the horse. Wallace v. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 865.

Where an allegation that the rails, or their fastenings, or the switch, or the switch rods, were out of repair, or not properly fastened together, was supported by evidence that the accident was due to a missing bolt that should have held the switch rods together, there was no variance. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Gaither (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 266.

Under an allegation that the engineer failed to blow the whistle and ring the bell at a crossing, there can be no recovery because he failed to keep a lookout. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Stolleis (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 679.

The variance is immaterial where the allegation is that a rail joint was an inch and a half higher than the other, and the proof showed that it was three-eighths of an inch higher. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Summers (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1106.

The proof in an action for injuries held not to constitute a substantial variance from the petition as to the immediate cause of the accident. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Locke (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1082.

In an action against a railroad for injuries resulting from leaving stumps above the prohibited height, on a road which it constructed in place of a public road taken for its right of way, that plaintiff alleged the injury was caused by not restoring the original road to its former state, instead of from the company's failure to cut down the stumps in the new road, would not bar a recovery, even though the latter proximately caused the injury, where the petition showed a cause of action without that averment. Hall v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 52 C. A. 90, 114 S. W. 891.

An allegation that defendant was negligent in failing to keep a proper lookout for animals on its railroad track is not supported by proof that the engine was equipped with an oil headlight, instead of an electric headlight. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Latham, 53 C. A. 210, 115 S. W. 890.

In an action by a parent for injuries to his minor child run over by a train, the petition held supported by the evidence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Brouillette (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 287.

Where excessive speed and failure to sound whistle or bell were the only grounds of negligence alleged, plaintiff could not recover for the death of a mule on proof that the engineer failed to keep a proper lookout. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Graham (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 653.

Petition in an action for injuries to a traveler at a crossing which alleges the negligent operation of its train against a team and vehicle of the traveler, hurling him from the vehicle, is sustained by proof of the negligent operation of the train causing the collision, though he is shown to have jumped from his vehicle, and not to have been hurled therefrom. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wood (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1187.

Art. 1828. [1192] [1196] Defensive matters pleaded by plaintiff. —When the defendant sets up a counter claim against the plaintiff, the plaintiff shall plead thereto under the rules prescribed for the pleadings of defensive matter by the defendant so far as the same may be applicable. And whenever under such rules the defendant is required to plead any matter of defense under oath, the plaintiff shall in like manner be required to plead such matters under oath when relied on by him. [Acts 1913, p. 256, sec. 2, amending Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 1828.]

Replication or subsequent pleadings.—Supplemental pleading or amendment, see notes under Art. 1824.

Pleading new promise in answer to plea of limitations, see Coles v. Kelsey, 2 T. 541, 47 Am. Dec. 661; Wilkinson v. Thulemeyer, 44 T. 470.

An exception which prevents the running of the statute must be pleaded by way of replication. Hughes v. Lane, 25 T. 356. As coverture. Ortiz v. De Benavides, 61 T. 60. Fraudulent concealment must be set up by a replication. Smith v. Fly, 24 T. 345, 76 Am. Dec. 109; Smith v. Talbot, 18 T. 774; Munson v. Hallowell, 26 T. 475, 84 Am. Dec. 582; Ripley v. Withee, 27 T. 14; Anding v. Perkins, 29 T. 348; Hudson v. Wheeler, 34 T. 356; Andrews v. Smithwick, 34 T. 544; Bremond v. McLean, 45 T. 10; Kuhlman v. Baker, 50 T. 630; Ransome v. Bearden, 50 T. 119; Alston v. Richardson, 51 T. 1; Connolly v. Hammond, 51 T. 635; Brown v. Brown, 61 T. 45; Kennedy v. Baker, 59 T. 150.

Matter in confession and avoidance of facts alleged in the answer must be pleaded by way of replication in a supplemental petition. Life Ins. Co. v. Davidge, 51 T. 244; Ranney v. Miller, 51 T. 263; rule 5, 47 T. 616; 84 T. 708.

The defense of limitation must be specially pleaded, and this may be done by special exception when the bar of limitation is disclosed by the petition. When limitation is pleaded and a new promise is set up, the recovery, if limitation has run against the original cause of action, must be on the new promsie. If the plaintiff suing on a note apparently barred by limitation sets up also a new promise, he may recover on the original cause of action unless limitation is specially pleaded by the defendant. Gathright v. Wheat, 70 T. 740, 9 S. W. 76; Davidson v. Railway Co., 3 App. C. C. § 173.

An acknowledgment must be pleaded. Howard v. Windom, 86 T. 560, 26 S. W. 483; Krueger v. Krueger, 76 T. 178, 12 S. W. 1004, 7 L. R. A. 72; Trainer v. Seymour, 10 C. A. 674, 32 S. W. 154. See, also, Cain v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 702.

A party seeking to avoid the defense of limitation must plead the matter which constitutes the reply. Lewis v. Terrel, 26 S. W. 754, 7 C. A. 314.

Coverture in reply to plea of limitation must be pleaded. Byers v. Carll, 27 S. W. 190, 7 C. A. 423.

A subsequent ratification by the maker is a complete answer to the issue raised by the plea of non est factum, and it need not be pleaded. Bremner v. Fields (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 447; Railway Co. v. Chandler, 51 T. 416; Brock v. Jones, 16 T. 461.

The fact that there is a forged deed in a defendant's chain of title must be pleaded by the plaintiff to defeat a plea of limitation. Harris v. Linberg (Civ. App.) 39 S. W. 651. See Byne v. Wise (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 1069; Chamberlain v. Showalter, 5 C. A. 226, 23 S. W. 1017.

An averment in a supplemental petition, in reply to the answer, that, if it should be shown that the entire cause of action had not matured, all items alleged had matured, held proper. Hatch v. Rodgers (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 819.

Plaintiff could not attack a judgment pleaded by defendant as an estoppel where she did not do so in her pleadings. Blagge v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 756.

A party cannot take advantage of evidence avoiding the statute, unless a plea in avoidance is interposed. Dodge v. Signor, 18 C. A. 45, 44 S. W. 926.

In an action for land appropriated by railroad, plaintiff may prove title by limitations without pleading it. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Wickham (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1023.

Though temporary absence from the state by one in adverse possession suspended limitation, in trespass to try title to it, plaintiff must set up such temporary absence in reply to defendant's plea of limitations. Bateman v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 224.

Facts excepting plaintiff from operation of statute must be pleaded. Dublin v. Taylor, B. & H. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 667.

Facts rebutting a plea of limitation must be pleaded. Morrow v. Terrell, 21 C. A. 28, 50 S. W. 734.

The allegations of an answer held not to relieve plaintiff of the necessity of setting up matter in avoidance by plea. Hurd v. Texas Brewing Co., 21 C. A. 296, 51 S. W. 883, 57 S. W. 573.

Evidence of fraud in transaction is admissible under reply denying existence of facts in transaction. Matula v. Lane, 22 C. A. 391, 55 S. W. 504.

Where, in an action on a partnership note, "No partnership" is pleaded as a defense, it is not necessary to plead ostensible partnership in reply, in order to show such fact. Bonnet v. Tips Hardware Co. (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 59.

Where a telegraph company defends an action for failure to deliver a message on the ground that no claim for damages was presented as provided in a condition in an alleged contract, the plaintiff cannot deny the existence of such condition unless he pleads non est factum. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Hays (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 171.

Where a plea of limitation sets up the one and two year statutes, plaintiff's counter plea of minority, which states facts meeting both statutes, is sufficient, though it does not specifically mention the one-year statutes. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Washington, 25 C. A. 600, 63 S. W. 538.

Where, in a suit by an attorney to recover for services, the defense was payment according to contract, plaintiff could not show bad faith, when not pleaded. Tennant v. Fawcett, 27 C. A. 428, 66 S. W. 80.

Where defendant pleads provisions in the certificate of insurance sued on, plaintiff cannot prove a waiver of the provisions without pleading facts showing such waiver. United Benev. Soc. v. Shepherd (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 577.

When defendant pleads counterclaim before plaintiff can prove payment he must distinctly state in plea the nature of the payment. Wooley v. Bell (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 72.

Where defendant in partition had a right to prove title in one under whom he claimed, plaintiff could assail such title without special plea in avoidance. Kuteman v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 563.

In the absence of special plea, coverture cannot be proved. Meineke v. Edmundson, 33 C. A. 505, 77 S. W. 238.

In trespass to try title, plaintiffs held not entitled to rely on the coverture of their mother to suspend the statute of limitations; such disability not having been pleaded. Lamberida v. Barnum (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 698.

Coverture held not available as a defense to a plea of limitations, though shown at the trial without objection, where it was not pleaded in reply to the plea of limitations. Lawder v. Larkin (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 171.

Judgment by default cannot be entered against complainants for failure to answer matters set up in a cross-action which could have been proved under the plea of not guilty. Taylor v. Ward (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 465.

Facts to avoid the terms of a judgment pleaded as res judicata must be pleaded. Robbins v. Hubbard (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 773.

Facts not in avoidance of the plea of limitations, but which go to disprove the facts alleged, held admissible under the general denial. Hyman v. Grant, 50 C. A. 37, 114 S. W. 853.

Verification.—See Arts. 1829a, 1829b.

Where a plea of agency is not denied under oath, evidence disputing such agency is inadmissible. Edinburgh American Land Mortg. Co. v. Briggs (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 1036.

Allegation in answer not denied under oath must be taken as true. Gill v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 751.

Where defendant does not allege a release relied on to be in writing, plaintiff need not, as a prerequisite of showing that it was executed through fraud or mistake, deny its execution under oath. O'Maley v. Garriott (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 108.

Plaintiff need not deny under oath execution of writings set up in answer as defensive matter. Stevens v. Equitable Mfg. Co., 29 C. A. 168, 67 S. W. 1041.

Statement as to verification of supplemental petition in an action on a life policy. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Jay (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 545.

A sworn allegation of a cross-bill not controverted by the answer must be taken as prima facie true. Citizens' State Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 56 C. A. 515, 120 S. W. 1141.

The petition in an action for delay in delivery of telegrams did not allege in terms any contract between the parties, but only the delivery of the messages to the defendant for transmission with the sender's name attached, payment of charges, and negligence in transmission by defendant, and resulting damages. The answer alleged that the contracts for transmission were in writing, and contained a stipulation calling for notice of claim of damages within 60 days from the filing of the message, as a condition precedent to liability, and that the contracts were made in writing by the defendant with H., the sender and agent of plaintiff. Held, that under this article and article 1906 the answer did not allege that the contracts for transmission were executed by plaintiff or by his authority, so as to require plaintiff to deny the same under oath, but only alleged a contract executed by H., though for plaintiff's benefit, and hence evidence was admissible for plaintiff that the messages were telephoned to the telegraph agent, and were not written on the company's blanks by the sender, who had no knowledge that the blanks contained such a stipulation. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Douglass, 104 T. 66, 133 S. W. 877.

Issues, proof, and variance.—See, also, notes under Art. 1827.

Where, in trespass to try title, plaintiffs claimed under their mother, who died during coverture, and defendant pleaded limitations, the burden was on plaintiffs to prove the date of their mother's death. Lamberida v. Barnum (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 698.

Evidence, in an action to recover possession of property, held admissible to show that defendants were not innocent purchasers. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Glover, 55 C. A. 112, 118 S. W. 731.

Art. 1829. [1193] [1197] Special defenses to be answered by plaintiff; facts not denied taken as confessed.—If any special matter of defense shall be pleaded by the defendant, the plaintiff shall be required to answer to each paragraph, either admitting or denying the same, or denying that he has any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief. And any fact so pleaded by the defense that is not denied by the plaintiff shall be taken as confessed. [Acts 1913, p. 256, sec. 3, amending Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 1829.]

Implied denials—Operation of previous law.—See Martin v. Teal (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 691; Cook v. Greenberg (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 686; Murchison v. Mansur-Tibbetts Implement Co. (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 605.

Matters pleaded in defense are in issue without replication by the plaintiff. The plaintiff can rebut the testimony without pleading on his part. McKinney v. Nunn, 82 T. 44, 17 S. W. 516.

Where defendant seeks to avoid the policy by reason of false swearing of insured, the latter may show it was unintentional, without pleading such fact. Phœnix Ins. Co. v. Swann (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 519.

Special matters of defense alleged by defendant must be proved, unless admitted by the plaintiff. Bauman v. Chambers, 17 C. A. 242, 42 S. W. 564; Id., 91 T. 108, 41 S. W. 471.

The statute held to make it unnecessary for plaintiff to deny certain affirmative allegations in defendant's answer on foreclosure. Devine v. United States Mortg. Co. of Scotland (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 585.

Where defendant specially pleads his title, it is incumbent on the plaintiff if he desires to prove matter in avoidance of such title to plead the same. But it is only matter in avoidance which is required to be pleaded. The statute interposes for plaintiff a denial of the facts alleged in the answer by the defendant. Kuteman v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 564.

A special plea, in a suit on a benefit certificate, that the assured committed suicide, is put in issue, per force of the statute, although there is an implied admission of suicide in plaintiff's reply to the special plea, and it is error to sustain a demurrer to the reply and render judgment on the plea. Brown v. United Moderns, 39 C. A. 343, 87 S. W. 357.

This article does not, when the special matter of defense pleaded is founded in whole or in part on an instrument in writing charged to have been executed by the other party, obviate the necessity of the plaintiff's denying under oath that such written instrument was executed by him or by his authority. State Nat. Bank v. Stewart & Co., 39 C. A. 620, 88 S. W. 296.

The plaintiff accompanying a shipment of stock was riding on the engine when injured. The defendant pleaded an agreement by him to abide by a promulgated rule, which required him to ride in the caboose. Therefore, if the allegation of the answer as to the promulgation of the rule is to be given any effect, it was an issue in the case under the pleadings whether such rule was at the time of the accident an existing rule. The plaintiff could show that it was not observed, nor attempted to be enforced. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Avis, 100 T. 33, 93 S. W. 425, 426.

Where, in proceedings for the wrongful suing out of a distress warrant, defendant's answer pleaded that plaintiff had sold cotton without defendant's consent, such allegation would be deemed denied, so as to permit proof that plaintiff was entitled to it under the contract. Morgan v. Tims, 44 C. A. 308, 97 S. W. 832.

In a suit for the balance due on a sale of goods, evidence held admissible, under general denial, which this article would have interposed if it had not been filed. Hamilton v. Dismukes, 53 C. A. 129, 115 S. W. 1181.

Under this article plaintiff, suing a telegraph company for negligent delay in the delivery of a message, who, in the replication to the answer setting up a contract limiting the liability of the company to its own line, stated the facts substantially as set forth in the answer, without filing a general denial, did not expressly admit the special contract, and the company, to avail itself thereof, must prove it. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas v. Harriss, 56 C. A. 105, 121 S. W. 358, 122 S. W. 891.

Where plaintiff, in an action against a telegraph company for delay in transmitting and delivering a telegram, set up, in a supplemental petition, a limited liability stipulation relied on by defendants, such pleading constituted an express admission of the facts pleaded, within this article. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas v. Harriss, 56 C. A. 105, 121 S. W. 358, 122 S. W. 891.

Under this article, the burden of proving a limited liability stipulation, pleaded by a telegraph company as a defense for delay in transmitting and delivering a telegram, was on the defendant, unless it was expressly admitted by plaintiff. Id.

A supplemental petition denying generally all allegations in answers of certain defendants, but not specially denying execution of written instruments by plaintiff, was insufficient to put their execution in issue when offered in support of a plea of estoppel, a general denial to matters pleaded by defendant being interposed by statute without necessity of a plea thereof by plaintiff. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Gober (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 383.

CHAPTER THREE A

VERIFICATION OF PLEADINGS

Article 1829a. Allegations of fact to be verified, except, etc.—Every allegation of fact relied upon as a cause of action or defense by either plaintiff or defendant must be verified by the affidavit of such party, his agent or attorney, to the effect that he believes the statement thereof to be true; provided, that verification shall not be required to the answer of a guardian, or of a person imprisoned in the penitentiary, nor in any case where the admission of the truth of the allegations of the complaint or answer might subject the party to a criminal prosecution, nor to allegations of an action founded on a note, bond, bill of exchange, mortgage or other written out obligation of the defendant, nor to defenses founded on the written obligation, release or acknowledgment of the plaintiff, unless the writing upon which the action or defense is founded is mutilated, lost or destroyed. [Acts 1913, p. 256, sec. 5.]

Explanatory.—This act adds Arts. 1829a and 1829b. See Arts. 588, 1828, 1906, 3710, 3712.

Mandamus.—A petition for mandamus must be verified. Shirley & Holland v. Conner, 98 T. 63, 80 S. W. 984, 81 S. W. 284.

Art. 1829b. Where several plaintiffs or defendants; verification by agent or attorney; effect of want of certificate of verification.—Where there are several plaintiffs or defendants the verification of the pleadings required by this Act may be [by] either of them if the party so verifying the same shall make oath that the facts and statements contained in such petition or answer, as the case may be, are true to his own knowledge or belief. And such pleadings may be verified by the agent or attorney of any party or parties to a suit by making a like affidavit. Provided that if the petition or answer has not a certificate of verification attached thereto, that the same shall nevertheless be considered by the court as though it had same unless the opposing party specially excepts to the same upon that ground, whereupon it shall be the duty of the court to allow the party to add a certificate of verification to his pleading if he so desires. [Id. sec. 6.]

CHAPTER FOUR

VENUE OF SUITS

Article 1830. [1194] [1198] Venue, general rule.—No person who is an inhabitant of this state shall be sued out of the county in which he has his domicile, except in the following cases, to-wit: [Acts Dec. 10, 1863. P. D. 1423.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1913, p. 424, entitled, "An act to amend article 1830, title 37, Revised Statutes 1911, by striking out exception 1 and adding in lieu thereof the following: 1. Where there are two or more defendants residing in different counties in which case the suit may be brought in any county where any one of the defendants reside; provided that the transfer or assignment of any note or chose of action shall not give a subsequent holder the right to institute suit on any such note or chose in action in any other county or justice precinct than the county or justice precinct in which such suit could have been prosecuted if no assignment of transfer had been made," sets out the entire article at length following the enacting clause. The title of the amendatory act does not seem to contemplate an amendment of the subdivisions of the article other than the fourth. The subdivisions of the article, other than the fourth, seem to have been inaccurately copied into the new act, and the errors are of a substantial nature. It would seem that the new act is void in so far as it purports to re-enact the provisions not directly involved in the amendment. The act, following the title as above set forth, is as follows:

"Be it enacted by the Legislature of the state of Texas:

"Article 1830. No person who is an inhabitant of this state shall be sued out of the county in which he has domicile except in the following cases, to wit:

"1. Where the defendant is a married woman in which case she may be sued in, county in which the husband has his domicile.

"2. Where the defendant is a transient person in which case he may be sued in any county in which he may be found.

"3. Where the defendant or all of several defendants reside without the state or where the residence of defendant is unknown, in which case the suit may be brought in the county in which the plaintiff resides.

"4. Where there are two or more defendants residing in different counties, in which case the suit may be brought in any county where any one of the defendants reside. Provided that the transfer or assignment of note or chose of action shall not give any subsequent holder the right to institute suit on such note or chose of action in any other county or justice precinct than the county or justice precinct in which such suit could have been prosecuted if no assignment or transfer had been made.

"5. Where a person has contracted in writing to perform an obligation in any particular county in which case suit may be brought suit may be brought either in such county, or where the defendant has his domicile.

"6. Where the suit is against an executor, administrator or guardian, as such, to establish a money demand against the estate which he represents, in which case the suit may be brought in the county in which such estate is administered.

"7. In all cases of fraud and in cases of defalcation of public officer, in which cases may be instituted in the county in which the fraud was committed, or where the defalcation occurred, or where the defendant has his domicile.

"8. Any suit for damages growing out of the suing out of any writ of attachment or sequestration, or for the levy of such writ, may be brought in any county from which such writ was issued or in any county where such levy was made, in whole or in part, within this state.

"9. Where the foundation of the suit is some crime, or offense, or trespass, for which a civil action in damages may lie in which case case [suit] may be brought in the county where such crime, offense, or trespass was committed, or in the county where the defendant has his domicile.

"10. Where the suit is for the recovery of any personal property in which case the suit may be brought in any county in which the property may be, or in which the defendant resides.

"11. Where the defendant has inherited an estate concerning which the suit is commenced, in which case suit may be in the county where such estate principally lies.

"12. Where the suit is for the foreclosure of other liens in which case suit may be brought in the county in which the property subject to such lien, or a part thereof, may be situated.

"13. Suit for the partition of lands or other property may be brought in the county where such lands or other property or a part thereof may be, or the county in which one or more of the defendants resides.

"14. Suits for the recovery of land or damages thereto, suits to remove an incumbrance on the title to land, suits to quiet the title to land, and suits to prevent or stay waste on land, must be brought in the county in which the land, or a part thereof, may lie.

"15. In breach of warranty of title to land, where the vendors liable thereon live in different counties, the plaintiff may bring his action in any county where either of such vendors reside and join all other vendors in one and the same suit.

"16. Suit for divorce from the bonds of matrimony shall be brought in the county in which the plaintiff whether husband or wife shall have resided for six months next preceding the bringing of the suit.

"17. When suit is brought to enjoin execution of the judgment or to stay proceedings in any suit in which case the suit shall be brought in the county in which such judgment was rendered or in which such suit is pending.

"18. Suits to revise the proceedings of the county court in matters of probate must be brought in the district court of the county in which such proceedings were had.

"19. Suits against any county shall be commenced in some court of competent jurisdiction within such county.

"20. Suits for mandamus against the heads of any departments of state government shall be brought in the district court of the county in which seat of government may be.

"21. Suits in behalf of the state for the forfeiture of the charter of private corporation, chartered by act of the legislature shall be commenced in the district court of the county in which the seat of government may be.

"22. Suits brought by the state for the purpose of forfeiting the charter of a private corporation, organized under the laws of this state and for the purpose of cancelling the permit authorizing a foreign corporation to transact business in this state, and for the purpose of restraining corporations from exercising powers not conferred upon them by the laws of this state, and for the purpose of preventing persons from engaging in business in the state of Texas contrary to the laws thereof, may be instituted in the proper court of the county in which the seat of government may be.

"23. Suits on behalf of the state to forfeit land fraudulently or colorably alienated by railway companies in fraud of the rights of the state, under the laws granting lands to railway companies, shall be brought in the county in which the seat of government may be.

"24. Suits against any private corporation, association, or joint stock company may be commenced in any county in which the cause of action or a part thereof arose or in which such corporation, association or company has an agent or representative or in which his principal office is situated. And suits against a railroad corporation, or against any assignee, trustee or receiver, operating its railway, may also be brought in any county through or into which the railroad of such corporation extends or is operated. Suits against receivers of person and corporation may also be brought as provided for in article 2147.

"25. Whenever any passenger, freight, baggage or other property has been transported by two or more railroad companies, express companies, steamship or steamboat companies, transportation companies, or common carriers of any kind or name whatsoever, or by an assignee, lessee, trustee or receiver thereof, or partly by one or more such companies, or common carriers, and partly by one or more assignees, lessees, trustees or receivers thereof, operating or doing business as such common carriers in this state or having agents or representatives in this state, suits for damage or loss or for any other cause of action arising out of such carriage, transportation or contract in relation thereto, may be brought against any one or all of such common carriers, assignees, lessees, trustees or receivers so operating or doing business in this state, or having agents, representatives in this state in any court of competent jurisdiction, in any county in which either of such common carriers, assignees, lessees, trustees or receivers operates or doing business, or has an agent or representative; provided, however, that if damages may be recovered in such suits against more than one defendant not partners in such carriage, transportation or contract, the same shall on request of either party be apportioned between the defendants, by the verdict of the jury or if no jury is demanded there [then] by the judgment of the court.

"26. All suits against railroad corporations, or against any assignee, trustee or receiver operating any railway in the state of Texas for damages arising from personal injuries resulting in death or otherwise shall be brought either in the county in which the injury occurred or in the county in which the plaintiff resided at the time of the injury; provided, that if the defendant railroad corporation does not run or operate its railway in or through the county in which the plaintiff resided at the time of the injury and has no agent in said county then then said suit shall be brought either in the county in which the injury occurred or in the county nearest that in which the plaintiff resided at the time of the injury in which the defendant corporation runs or operates its road or has an agent; and provided, further, that, in case the plaintiff is a non-resident of the state of Texas, then such suit may be brought in any county in which the defendant corporation may run or operate its railroad or may have an agent; provided, that when an injury occurs within one-half mile from the boundary line dividing two counties, suit may be brought in either of said counties.

"27. Suits by mechanics, laborers, and operatives, for their wages, due by railroad companies may be instituted and prosecuted in any county in this state where such labor was performed, or in which the cause of action, or part thereof occurred [accrued] or in the county in which principal office of such railroad company is situated; and in all such suits service of process may be made in the manner now required by law.

"28. Foreign, private or public corporations, joint stock companies or associations not incorporated by the laws of this state and doing business within this state, may be sued in any court within this state having jurisdiction over the subject matter, in any county for [where] the cause of action or a part thereof accrued, or in any county where such company may have an agency or representative, or in the county in which the principal office of such company may be situated, or when the defendant corporation has no agent or representative in the state, then in the county where the plaintiff, or either of them reside.

"29. Suits against fire, marine or inland insurance companies may also be commenced in any county in which any part of the insured property was situated; and suits against life and accident insurance companies or associations may also be commenced in the county in which the persons insured or any of them resided at the time of such death or injury.

"30. Whenever in any law authorizing or regulating any particular character of action the venue is expressly prescribed the suit may be commenced in the county to which jurisdiction may be so expressly given."

General rule.—The exceptions to the general rule, unless peremptory, are for the benefit of plaintiff. Kinney v. McLeod, 9 T. 78; Carro v. Carro, 60 T. 395.

When the venue of a suit is not prescribed by statute, the suit may be brought in any county to which service could be obtained on the defendant, or where he might appear, and, by making defense, waive service. Pegram v. Owens, 64 T. 475; Southern Pac. Ry. Co. v. Graham, 12 C. A. 565, 34 S. W. 135.

Parties may establish venue in certain county by contract. Hawes v. Parrish, 16 C. A. 497, 41 S. W. 132.

Venue in action on contract held improperly laid. Gresham v. Welsh, 17 C. A. 712, 41 S. W. 667; Ney v. Ladd (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 1014.

A plea to the jurisdiction claiming that defendants were entitled to be sued in the county of their residence, which was other than that in which suit was brought, held properly overruled. Schneider v. Sellers, 25 C. A. 226, 61 S. W. 541.

Where a party owes taxes on personal property in one county and lives in another, suit for said taxes must be brought in the county of the owner's residence and not in the county where the taxes are payable. A provision of law, even though embodied in the constitution making a particular class of debts payable in a particular county, is of no greater sanctity or binding force than a verbal contract promising to pay a debt in such county. Owing taxes in a county other than that in which the owner of the property lives does not come within any of the exceptions of this article authorizing suit to be brought out of county of one's domicile. Harrold v. State, 30 C. A. 524, 71 S. W. 407.

The venue is to be determined by the facts shown by the proofs as existing when the action was begun, and not solely by the allegations of the pleading. Ogburn-Dalchau Lumber Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 48.

The privilege granted by this article to be sued in the county of one's residence is a valuable right. Birge v. Lovelady (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1194.

Where two causes of action are properly joined, the suit may be brought in the county in which a suit on either of the causes of action may be commenced. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

—— Cases not within exceptions to general rule.—Action for services on ranch is properly brought in county where ranch is located. Gay Ranch Co. v. Rowland (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1086.

An action to revive dormant judgment must be brought in the county in which the judgment was rendered. City Nat. Bank v. Swink (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 131.

An election contest for a county office can be tried only in the county where the election was held. Calverley v. Shank, 28 C. A. 473, 67 S. W. 434.

An action for damages for breach of a contract to sell growing timber with a right of ingress and egress for a fixed period to cut and remove the timber is an action in personam, and the venue is in the county of defendant's residence. Burkitt v. Wynne (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 816.

An action for the specific performance of a contract for the sale of growing timber held an action in personam, and the venue is in the county of defendant's residence. Id.

That plaintiff, suing for the specific performance of a contract for the sale of growing timber with a right of ingress and egress for a fixed period to cut and remove the same, or for damages for breach of the contract, alleged that he owned the timber, did not defeat defendant's right to be sued in the county of his residence, where plaintiff was chargeable with a knowledge of the facts, and the law, whereby he did not obtain a title to the timber, so that his only right was a suit for the specific performance or for damages for breach of contract. Id.

The court, in a suit to enforce a contract of sale of real estate, held authorized to sustain defendant's plea of privilege. Luter v. Ihnken (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 675.

Under this article respondent in habeas corpus proceedings for the custody of a child is entitled to be sued in the county of her residence, rather than in the county of the residence of relator, the father of the child. Finney v. Walker (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 679.

Joinder of causes.—Jurisdiction to enforce security as to a note held to draw to it jurisdiction to enforce the security as to an account, irrespective of the county where the security might be enforceable as to the account alone. Spikes v. Brown (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 725.

When there are distinct causes of action of such a nature that they may be joined in the same suit, venue as to one of them will confer venue as to the other. First Nat. Bank v. Valenta, 33 C. A. 108, 75 S. W. 1087.

Where two causes of action are properly joined, the suit may be brought in the county in which a suit on either of the causes of action may be commenced. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

Transfer of cause of action.—Evidence held to show that the transfer of a claim was not collusive, for the purpose of obtaining jurisdiction. National Exch. Bank v. Foley, 27 C. A. 450, 66 S. W. 249.

A simulated assignment of a cause of action, made to obtain jurisdiction of a nonresident of the county where the action is brought, held ground for sustaining a plea by the nonresident of his privilege to be sued in his own county. Taylor v. Sturgis, 29 C. A. 270, 68 S. W. 538.

An assignment of a claim with a guaranty being to secure a debt as well as to allow suit against the person liable for the claim out of the county of his residence, held that the latter cannot object to the jurisdiction on the ground of the assignment being fraudulent. Leahy v. Ortiz, 38 C. A. 314, 85 S. W. 824.

A defendant may not be sued out of the county of his residence by a fictitious assignment of a cause of action. Waldrep v. Roquemore (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 248.

A defendant held not entitled to object to the jurisdiction of a court on the ground that an assignment had been made with intent to deprive him of his being sued in another county. Ucovich v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1102.

One's right to be sued on an open account in the county of his domicile cannot be defeated by a simulated transfer of the account for the purpose of conferring jurisdiction in a court of another county. Van Horn Trading Co. v. Day (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1129.

Assignment of cause of action held fictitious, for purpose of authorizing bringing of action at domicile of assignor. Brooks v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 564.

In an action on an assigned claim for damages, in which defendant filed a plea of privilege to be sued in the county of his residence, plaintiff's good faith in purchasing the claim should be submitted, without reference to his assignor's good faith in selling it. McCoy v. Pafford (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 968.

If the sale to plaintiff of a claim against defendant for damages for selling poor quality hay to plaintiff's assignor was in good faith, the fact that one of the motives of the purchase was to enable plaintiff to sue in a county which was not that of defendant's residence would not defeat jurisdiction in that county. Id.

Where G., residing in N. county, in good faith transferred an account against P., who resided in B. county, to plaintiff bank, and, the same not being paid, the bank sued both G. and P. in the precinct of N. county, where G. resided, P. was not entitled to the sustaining of a plea of privilege to be sued in his own county. Peacock v. First State Bank of Garrison (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1185.

Where plaintiff purchased a claim against defendant C. with a warranty by the assignor, in good faith, that plaintiff knew that in doing so he was assisting the assignor to have the case tried in the county of the assignor's residence did not show a fraudulent device to defeat C.'s claim of privilege. Caruthers v. Link (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 330.

It could not be claimed that a cause of action on an account was fraudulently transferred for the purpose of changing the venue to the county in which the transferee brought suit thereon, where the transfer was supported by a valuable consideration. Kell Milling Co. v. Bank of Miami (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 325.

A plea of privilege because the evidence showed that the transfer of the account sued upon to the plaintiff was fraudulent should be sustained. Carver Bros. v. Merrett (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 633.

Residence.—Disorganized counties are attached for judicial purposes to the organized county whose county seat is nearest to the county seat of such disorganized county. Art. 1360.

If the defendant is in the act of removing from one county to another, and it cannot be certainly known in which county is his residence, suit may be brought in either. Brown v. Boulden, 18 T. 431.

Where there has been a change of residence, it must be complete before suit to defeat action in county in which defendant previously resided. Brown v. Boulden, 18 T. 431; Wilson v. Bridgeman, 24 T. 615; Tucker v. Anderson, 27 T. 276.

Place of business being in a different county does not take away the right of being sued in county of residence. Blucher v. Milsted, 31 T. 621.

The residents of a new county, until it is organized, are within the jurisdiction of the county from which it is taken. Art. 1359; Liles v. Woods, 58 T. 416.

The word "domicile" is evidently used in place of "residence." O'Connor v. Cook (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 1113.

Payment of office rent by a corporation in a county for the purpose of fixing the venue of suits will not prevent one sued by the corporation from interposing a plea of privilege to be sued where he resides. Kalamazoo Nat. Bank v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 143.

A suit on the bond superseding a judgment must be brought in the county of the obligee's residence, though the contract on which the judgment was recovered allowed defendant to be sued out of his county. McInnes v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 537.

To entitle one to sue in a county other than where defendant resides, the case must be brought clearly within an exception named in the statute. Chamberlain v. Fox (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 297.

In action by real estate broker for commissions, prospective purchaser living in adjoining county held entitled to be sued only in his county. Scottish American Mortg. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 217.

Facts disclosed in an action held not to entitle plaintiff to sue defendants in the county of its residence. Borden & Antill v. Le Tulle Mercantile Co., 32 C. A. 477, 74 S. W. 788.

Where defendant's domicile is in a county other than that in which he is sued, his plea of privilege to be sued in the county of his residence held well founded. Pearson v. West (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 334.

An inhabitant and resident mean the same thing. The words "domicile" and "residence" have been used by the legislature interchangeably, and domicile is used in the sense of residence. Where a man has a ranch in one, where he spends part of the year looking after his business, and owns a house in a city in another county where he spends another part of the year, an action against him for an assault alleged to have been committed at the ranch can be brought in either county. Pearson v. West, 97 T. 238, 77 S. W. 945.

An action on a draft cannot be maintained against the drawee in a county other than that of his domicile, as against a plea in abatement asserting the privilege. Gamer v. Thomson, 35 C. A. 283, 79 S. W. 1083; Dougherty & Lyford v. Dilworth (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 573.

An action held properly dismissed on defendant's plea of privilege to be sued in the county of his residence. Mills v. Brown, 38 C. A. 258, 85 S. W. 33.

An action held properly brought in the county where the cause of action arose at least in part, though defendant was neither a resident of nor had a resident agent in that county. Peach River Lumber Co. v. Ayers, 41 C. A. 334, 91 S. W. 387.

Defendant held a resident of the state, and entitled to be sued in the county of his residence, though he also had another residence in another state. Taylor v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 108.

In an action on notes, a plea of personal privilege of defendants to be sued in their own county held properly overruled. Myrick Bros. Co. v. Jackson, 44 C. A. 553, 99 S. W. 143.

The overruling of defendant's plea of privilege to be sued in the county of her residence held error. Schneider v. Rabb (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 163.

Where suit is brought on a vendor's lien note in a county other than that in which the land lies, the occupants of the land not being parties to the note cannot be sued outside the county of their residence. Lumpkin v. Story, 49 C. A. 332, 108 S. W. 486.

No defendant can be sued out of the county of his residence except in certain special instances enumerated in this article. Behrens v. Brice, 52 C. A. 221, 113 S. W. 784.

Where defendant resided during part of each year in several counties, he could be sued in any one of them. Armstrong v. King (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 629.

Under this article a petition in an action on a written obligation to pay money held to confer jurisdiction over the person of defendant, though a resident of another county. Witherspoon v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 660.

In an action on an obligation to pay money, evidence held not to sustain defendant's plea of privilege to be sued in the county of his residence. Id.

That plaintiff suing for the specific performance of a contract for the sale of growing timber or for damages for breach thereof alleged that he owned the timber held not to defeat defendant's right to be sued in the county of his residence. Burkitt v. Wynne (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 816.

The maker of a note may be sued thereon in the county of his residence, though the note be payable in another state. Hurd v. Inglehart (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 119.

One living in a county for some time held to have acquired a residence there, so that he might be sued in that county. Kelly v. Egan (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1183.

Where a person with a residence in one county moved his family to another, where he owned land, and rented out the family house, he acquired such a domicile in the second county by six months' residence that he might be sued there, though he intended ultimately to return to his old home. Id.

Where a firm doing business in a county was sued in another county, in which none of the partners resided, for services rendered, it could claim the privilege of being sued in the county in which it did business. Reinhardt Grain Co. v. Palmer (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 925.

Suits for injunction.—See notes under Art. 4652.

Suits to supply lost records.—See Arts. 6778-6781.

Objections and waiver.—The right given by this section is a personal privilege, which must be claimed by a demurrer, if the want of proper venue appears on the face of the petition, otherwise by a plea in abatement (Masterton v. Cundiff, 58 T. 472); and is waived by an appearance and continuance of cause by consent (McDonald v. Blount, 2 App. C. C. § 344; Floyd v. Gibbs [Civ. App.] 34 S. W. 154; Jolly v. Pryor, 12 C. A. 149, 33 S. W. 889).

An objection to the venue, when not set up in the record by exception or plea, must be deemed waived. Spicer v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 314; Fairbanks & Co. v. Blum, 21 S. W. 1009, 2 C. A. 479.

A plea of privilege filed before service of citation is not a waiver of the privilege. Callhan v. Pemberton (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 227.

Plea of privilege to be sued in county of residence held not waived. Riddick v. Bryant, 16 C. A. 241, 41 S. W. 78.

The statute fixing the venue of certain actions confers a privilege which may be waived. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Foster (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 198.

An objection to the jurisdiction on the ground that the action was not brought in the county where defendant corporation had its principal office held waived. Postal Tel. Cable Co. of Texas v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 912.

Defendants, having waived privilege to be sued in the counties of their domicile, cannot assert privilege of being sued in county where the land involved is situated. Moody v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 523.

Pleas of privilege to be sued in counties of their domicile held waived by defendants. Id.

Appearance in justice's court, waiving citation, and going to trial after a plea of privilege had been overruled, held not a waiver of such plea. Dorroh v. McKay (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 611.

Plea and demurrer to petition, on ground that defendants were entitled to be sued in another county, held waived. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Miller, 25 C. A. 190, 60 S. W. 881.

A failure to comply with Gen. Laws 1901, p. 31, regulating the venue of suits against railroad companies, may be waived by defendant's voluntary appearance. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Baumgarten, 31 C. A. 253, 72 S. W. 78.

Clause 17 confers a mere privilege upon a defendant that may be waived as has been expressly held to be true in cases arising under clause 14 of this article, relating to the venue of suits for the recovery of lands or damages thereto, which in terms is equally as imperative as clause 17. Foust v. Warren (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 405.

Where defendant resided in different counties during different parts of the year, plaintiff's right to sue in one of such counties did not depend on whether defendant by his acts had estopped himself to deny that he resided in such county. Pearson v. West, 97 T. 238, 77 S. W. 944.

Where one goes to trial without presenting or urging his plea of privilege to be sued in county of his residence, he waives his privilege and submits his person to the jurisdiction of the court. Karner v. Ross, 43 C. A. 542, 95 S. W. 46.

The right of a defendant to be sued in the county of his residence held not waived. Schneider v. Rabb (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 163.

Notwithstanding subdivision 14, a defendant not residing in the county where a suit is instituted to recover land located in a third county, may waive his right to be sued in the county of his domicile, and may submit himself to the jurisdiction of the court in which suit has been instituted. Stevens v. Polk County (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 618.

The mere sending of a plea of privilege to a justice of the peace did not justify the defendant in paying no further attention to the action. Lyons Bros. Co. v. Corley (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 603.

Right of a defendant to have a suit concerning land brought in the county where it lies, under subdivision 14, is waived by failure to object on suit being brought in another county, though the suit be against unknown heirs, cited by publication. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Bayne (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 544.

Where, in an action by a buyer of corn to recover for its damaged condition, the seller waived any right to be sued in another county, it was immaterial where he lived or whether the contract was in writing, as affecting the right to sue in the county where it was brought. Lupton v. Willmann (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 261.

The right to be sued in the county of one's domicile is a personal privilege, and does not affect the jurisdiction of the court to render judgment if it has jurisdiction over the subject-matter. Parker v. Clay Robinson & Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 588.

—— Participation in cause in general.—Plea of privilege is waived by consenting to a continuance before plea filed. McDonald v. Blount, 2 App. C. C. § 344; Peveler v. Peveler, 54 T. 53. Or by not having a demurrer to the jurisdiction acted on. County of Galveston v. Noble, 56 T. 575.

It has been held that a plea of privilege is not waived by a continuance at the request of defendant. Bergstrom v. Bruns (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 1098.

Plea of privilege held not waived by submitting to hearing on demurrer during its pendency. Pryor v. Jolly, 91 T. 86, 40 S. W. 959.

Motion to quash citation and agreement to continuances held waiver of privilege to be sued in county where defendant had its office. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Granberry, 16 C. A. 391, 40 S. W. 1062.

Consent to continuance after plea or privilege is filed is not a waiver of the plea. Jennings v. Shiner (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 276.

Continuance without urging disposition of plea of privilege held an abandonment thereof. Chatham Machinery Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 592.

Plea of venue is waived if the case is continued by agreement without the plea being called to the court's attention. Aldridge v. Webb, 92 T. 122, 46 S. W. 224.

Defendant's plea of privilege was waived by going to trial without presenting it to the court's attention. Hall v. Howell (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 561.

Continuance at the first term of a county court, by agreement, without prejudice, and general continuances thereafter, held not a waiver of a plea of privilege. Dorroh v. McKay (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 611.

A participation in certain proceedings in a case for an extended period of time held to constitute a waiver of defendant's right to object that the action was brought in the wrong county. Seley v. Whitfield, 24 C. A. 56, 58 S. W. 541.

Where, pending a plea of privilege to be sued in the county of his residence, defendant rules plaintiff for costs, he abandons his plea of privilege. Brown v. Reed (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 73.

The filing of a demurrer and general denial constitutes a waiver of all questions of venue. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Baumgarten, 31 C. A. 253, 72 S. W. 78.

Plea of privilege to jurisdiction held not waived by continuances of hearing. Leahy v. Ortiz, 38 C. A. 314, 85 S. W. 824.

Where a defendant answers and goes to trial without urging his plea of privilege to be sued in the county of his residence, the plea is waived. Karner v. Ross, 43 C. A. 542, 95 S. W. 46.

Where a default judgment was set aside on defendant's motion, and he then filed a motion under oath asking until the next term of court in which to answer, which motion was granted, he waived his privilege to be sued in the county of his residence. Thomas v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 934.

Defendants held not to have waived their plea of privilege to have the case tried in another county, reserved in their original application to vacate a judgment against them, by their amended petition on such application. Wolf v. Sahm, 55 C. A. 564, 120 S. W. 1114, 121 S. W. 561.

When it appears upon the face of the petition, that the venue is improperly laid, the question of venue can be raised by a special exception to the petition, so that when defendant in a motion to vacate a default judgment obtained on service by publication objects to the jurisdiction because not sued in proper county, such objection can be regarded as a special exception, and the venue is not waived. Id.

A defendant by filing a subsequent pleading held not to abandon his plea of privilege to be sued in the county of his residence. Freeman v. Bank of Garvin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 685.

Where defendant filed a plea of privilege and entered a stipulation as to the evidence that should be considered thereon, the filing of a motion to suppress a deposition taken by plaintiff was a waiver of that plea. Howe Grain & Mercantile Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 656.

Where an application for habeas corpus was filed and defendants filed answers without questioning the jurisdiction or asserting their privilege to have the matter determined in the county of their residence, and judgment was entered in their favor, and at a subsequent term the relator filed a petition for a rehearing and new trial, defendants cannot object to the jurisdiction of the court, as their privilege of being sued in the county of their residence was lost by their previous failure to object on that ground. Patton v. Shapiro (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 687.

—— Cross-complaint.—Plea of non-venue in abatement is waived by defendant when he files a cross-bill asking affirmative relief against plaintiff. Slator v. Trostel (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 285.

While the defendant does not waive a plea of privilege by pleading generally to the merits subject to the plea, his plea of privilege is waived by the filing of a cross-action demanding affirmative relief. Kolp v. Shrader (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 860.

Where a vendor and purchaser each made a deposit to secure performance, and the purchaser sued to recover his deposit, and an answer concluded: "Wherefore, having answered, these defendants pray that they may be discharged with their costs; that it be adjudged that the plaintiff forfeit his deposit; and they pray for general relief"—did not amount to a waiver by defendant of their plea of privilege to be sued in the county of their residence; such answer not amounting to a cross-complaint. Stephens v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 620.

The filing of a cross-action seeking affirmative relief is equivalent to the institution of an independent suit, and constitutes a waiver of a plea asserting the right to be sued in another county. Thorndale Mercantile Co. v. Evens & Lee (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1053.

The filing of a cross-action against plaintiff and a trial on the merits waived defendant's privilege of being sued in another county. Id.; F. T. Ramsey & Son v. Cook (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 346.

By filing a cross-action and seeking a judgment against their codefendant for more than the sum sued for, defendants waived any rights under a plea of privilege. Carver Bros. v. Merrett (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 633.

A party waives his plea of privilege to be sued in another county by subsequently filing and urging a cross-action asking for affirmative relief. Barbian v. Greshham (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 365.

Where plaintiff charged defendant with fraud alleged to have been committed in L. county, and defendant filed a cross-action seeking to recover against its codefendant any judgment that might be recovered against defendant, the filing of the cross-action was a waiver of defendant's plea of privilege to be sued in the county of its domicile. Amarillo Commercial Co. v. McGregor Milling & Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1124.

Overruling of a plea of privilege interposed by defendant in justice's court is waived by his subsequently filing a cross-action. Keeling & Field v. Walter Connally & Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 232.

1. Exceptions: married women.—Where the defendant is a married woman, in which case she may be sued in the county in which her husband has his domicile. [P. D. 1423.]

2. Transient persons.—Where the defendant is a transient person, in which case he may be sued in any county in which he may be found.

3. Non-residents and persons whose residence is unknown.—Where the defendant, or all of several defendants, reside without the state, or where the residence of the defendants is unknown, in which case the suit may be brought in the county in which the plaintiff resides.

Non-residents.—Cited, Liles v. Woods, 58 T. 416.

If neither plaintiff nor defendant reside in this state, it must appear that the defendant owns property or has effects within the jurisdiction of the court. Ward v. Lathrop, 4 T. 180; McMullen v. Guest, 6 T. 279; Campbell v. Wilson, 6 T. 391; Tulane v. McKee, 10 T. 336; Ward v. Lathrop, 11 T. 287; Shandy v. Conrales, 1 App. C. C. § 236. See Western Union Tel. Co. v. Russell, 12 C. A. 82, 33 S. W. 708; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Edloff (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 410.

Suit for negligent act without this state may be brought in this state by a nonresident. Telegraph Co. v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 494.

A person who is a non-resident of the county in which the written obligation is to be performed, but who is not a party to the obligation, cannot be joined in the suit when it is brought in the county where the contract is to be performed. Behrens Drug Co. v. Hamilton, 92 T. 284, 48 S. W. 5.

Defendant held a resident of the state, and entitled to be sued in the county of his residence therein, though he also had another residence in another state. Taylor v. Wilson, 99 T. 651, 93 S. W. 109.

A non-resident can be sued in the county of the residence of the plaintiffs. Hudgins & Bro. v. Low, 42 C. A. 556, 94 S. W. 412.

See Art. 240, subd. 2.

Residence unknown.—If the residence of the defendant is unknown at the time of institution of suit, subsequent knowledge will not defeat jurisdiction. Kuteman v. Page, 3 App. C. C. § 165. Citing Whiting v. Briscoe, Dallam, 540; Walker v. Walker, 22 T. 331.

Evidence in an action where defendant pleaded privilege to be sued in the county of his residence held insufficient to sustain a finding that his residence was unknown to plaintiff at the commencement of the action. Scaeif v. Crofford (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1003.

Where plaintiff knew that defendants' residence, at the time of the contract sued on, was in S., that one of the defendants was attending school outside the state, and that the other defendants were traveling in Europe, and there was nothing known to him to lead him to believe that their absence from home was other than temporary, their residence was not "unknown" to him, within the meaning of subdivision 3. Brooks v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 564.

4. Several defendants residing in different counties; effect of assignment.—Where there are two or more defendants residing in different counties, in which case the suit may be brought in any county where any one of the defendants reside. Provided that the transfer or assignment of note or chose of action shall not give any subsequent holder the right to institute suit on such note or chose of action in any other county or justice precinct than the county or justice precinct in which such suit could have been prosecuted if no assignment or transfer had been made. [P. D. 1423. Acts 1913, p. 424, amending Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 1830, subd. 4.]

Explanatory.—See notes at head of this article.

Suit for personal property.—See note under subdivision 10 of this article.

Residence of codefendants.—A surety on an administrator's bond may sue cosureties for contribution in a county in which any one resides. Rush v. Bishop, 60 T. 177.

When such a plea is interposed by one of several who are joined as defendants in a suit to recover damages for a tort, brought in a county where he does not reside, and there is evidence tending to establish the fact that the defendant who resides at the venue of the cause is not liable, it is error not to present in a charge to the jury the issue thus arising on the plea to the jurisdiction. Railway Co. v. Mangum, 68 T. 342, 4 S. W. 617.

In a case where the proper venue depended on the residence of the defendant, it was found that he had gone from the county in which he had first lived to another county and had there engaged in business, taking with him all his movable property; that he had sold his house and given possession, but had returned and was only prevented from removing his family by sickness, and it was notorious that he had removed from the county of his former residence. Held, that when it is uncertain in which of two counties a defendant has his residence, he may be sued in either. In this case he could not properly be sued in the county where he first resided. Faires v. Young, 69 T. 482, 16 S. W. 800.

A suit for damages on an injunction bond may be brought in a county in which one or more of the obligors reside. This rule is not affected by the fact that the suit in which the bond was given was brought in another county. Wood v. Hollander, 84 T. 394, 19 S. W. 551.

The suit of creditors of an insolvent corporation against stockholders for contribution, limited by their unpaid subscription, to pay the debts, may be maintained in the county where some reside against all. Mathis v. Pridham, 20 S. W. 1015, 1 C. A. 58.

The provision of the statute which allows suit against plural defendants to be brought in the county where any one of them resides extends to one whose liability as guarantor, and for a portion only of a claim, is not of itself within the jurisdictional limits of the court; the claim in its entirety, however, being within the limit. Turner v. Brooks, 21 S. W. 404, 2 C. A. 451.

An action against a principal and surety may be brought in the county where the surety resides. Lyons v. Daugherty (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 146; Brigham v. Thompson, 12 C. A. 562, 34 S. W. 358.

This subdivision is controlled by subdivision 17, post. Montague County v. Meadows (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 694.

The fact that a guarantor has been released cannot be interposed as affecting the question of venue by the principal defendant, who resided in another county, but was sued with the guarantor, and in the county of the guarantor's residence. Slaughter v. Moore, 17 C. A. 233, 42 S. W. 372.

A codefendant cannot sever a suit so as to be sued in the county of his residence, where the other defendant is a resident of the county wherein the suit is brought. Walhofer v. Hobgood, 18 C. A. 291, 44 S. W. 566.

If the court has jurisdiction over the subject-matter, of defendant, and one plaintiff, it has jurisdiction to try the case, as against a plea of privilege to be sued in another county. Foster v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 91 T. 631, 45 S. W. 376.

Where several defendants in conversion resided in different counties, held proper to sue in any county in which any of them resided. Cobb v. Barber, 92 T. 309, 47 S. W. 963.

An action may be brought against several joint tort-feasors in the county of the residence of any one of them. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Graves (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1103.

Action may be brought in any county in which any defendant resides who is properly joined. Dublin Cotton Oil Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1054; Hoskins v. Velasco Nat. Bank, 48 C. A. 246, 107 S. W. 598.

Principal and surety in bond for faithful performance of contract held entitled to be sued in a county other than that in which the bond was to be payable, under an agreement which was not in fact carried out. Chamberlain v. Meredith (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 120.

Jurisdiction cannot be obtained over a foreign corporation in a county where it has no agency and where its domicile is in a different county, by joining another railroad as codefendant which has part of its railroad in such county. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Edmisson (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 635.

Where a wife, by reason of the husband's abandonment, has authority to bind the community for necessaries, she may be sued therefor in the county of her separate residence, and her husband brought in, though not a resident thereof. Fermier v. Brannan, 21 C. A. 543, 53 S. W. 699.

The statute permitting suit to be brought in the county of the residence of either one of two defendants applies only where there is a cause of action against both. Kansas City, P. & G. Ry. Co. v. Bermea Land & Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 324.

The action of deputy sheriff in removing wounded prisoner from county in which he received his wounds whereby injury resulted, is such a trespass as will authorize suit in said county though it was not the domicile of the defendant. Lassater v. Waites (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 518.

Where suit is to establish widow's right in the community assets of herself and estate of her deceased husband, to set aside her conveyances for partition, to declare liens, etc., venue is properly laid in county of residence of one defendant, although it is sought to declare a lien upon the separate estate of one of the devisees of the will who resides in another county. When a court has jurisdiction all correlated matters can be settled in one suit by bringing in the necessary parties even when they live in different counties to avoid multiplicity of suits. Milam v. Hill, 29 C. A. 573, 69 S. W. 450.

Where parties, jointly responsible for a fraudulent conspiracy, are joined as defendants, suit may be brought in the county where one of them resides, though the others reside in different counties. Sawyer v. J. F. Wieser & Co., 37 C. A. 291, 84 S. W. 1101.

Certain parties held not defendants, within the meaning of this article. Russell & Co. v. F. W. Heitmann & Co. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 75.

To maintain a suit against two railroads in this state jointly liable, under this subdivision, the suit must be brought at the domicile of one of them, that is, where it has its public office. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. McKnight, 99 T. 289, 89 S. W. 758.

A suit by a beneficiary of a deed of trust against the trustee and certain nonresidents, alleged to have participated in the trustee's fraud, held properly brought against all in the county of the trustee's residence. Sawyer v. First Nat. Bank, 41 C. A. 486, 93 S. W. 151.

Action held properly brought against resident and nonresident defendants in county in which the resident defendant and plaintiffs lived. J. D. Hudgins & Bro. v. Low, 42 C. A. 556, 94 S. W. 411.

Nonresident defendant held entitled to represent codefendant in filing question of privilege based on residence of the codefendant in county other than that in which suit is brought. Id.

The only case in which a defendant can be sued out of his county by reason of joinder is where he is jointly sued with some other person in the county of the latter's residence. Id.

That a widow and her son, joined as defendants in a suit against her husband after her husband's death, resided in a county other than that in which the suit was brought, held not to prevent certain insurers from joining them in an answer in the nature of a bill of interpleader filed in the original suit. Nixon v. Malone (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 577; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Same (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 585; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.; Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.

The drawer and drawee of a draft being proper parties to a suit by the payee thereon, the drawee could not avail itself of the plea of privilege to be sued in the county of its residence. Provident Nat. Bank v. C. D. Hartnett Co., 45 C. A. 273, 100 S. W. 1024.

Where suit is brought for damages for wrongful levy of sequestration writ, and the defendants live in different counties, the suit does not necessarily have to be brought in the county in which the alleged damage was done. Subdivision 8 is not mandatory and does not control over subdivision 4. Thomason v. Crawford, 46 C. A. 461, 103 S. W. 192.

In an action against two partners, one resident in the county where the action was brought and the other nonresident, the fact that the resident partner had been discharged in bankruptcy held not to entitle the nonresident defendant to be sued in the county of his domicile. Hoskins v. Velasco Nat. Bank, 48 C. A. 246, 107 S. W. 598.

An action against two persons jointly liable for a trespass to the person may be filed against both in the county of the residence of either. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Parsons (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 240.

Suit on joint liability of drawer and acceptor of a draft in case of nonpayment can be maintained in the domicile of either. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs, 53 C. A. 1, 115 S. W. 345.

A proper party defendant is not entitled to the privilege of being sued in the county of his residence wherein other defendants do not reside. Id.

An action on a note against the maker and the independent executrix of the deceased payee indorsing it may be brought in the county of the residence of the independent executrix, though the maker resides in another county. Goodwin & McFarland v. Burton, 54 C. A. 586, 118 S. W. 587.

Where the suit is against the agents of a bankrupt and the trustee in bankruptcy, the venue can be laid in the county of residence of either. Gardner v. Planters' Nat. Bank, 54 C. A. 572, 118 S. W. 1149.

The right of plaintiff bank, the indorsee of bills of exchange, to sue in the county of the drawer's residence, though the drawees resided in another county, held not defeated by the mere fact that on nonpayment of the bills they were charged back to the drawer on plaintiff's books. Vaughn v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank of Alvord (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 690.

Under subdivision 4 the indorsee of a bill of exchange might sue the drawer in the county of his residence, and join the drawees, who resided in another county, in such suit. Id.

If plaintiff bank or its officers acted in good faith in taking bills of exchange, its right to sue the drawer and drawees who resided in different counties in the county of the drawer's residence was not defeated by the fact that the drawer had an undisclosed purpose of conferring jurisdiction on the district court of his county in case a contest over the matter arose. Id.

In a suit against sureties on their bond, a certain surety held a proper party to the suit, so as to give the court of his county jurisdiction of the sureties living in another county. White v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 437.

In a suit against sureties on their bond, they could not claim the privilege of being sued in the county where the estate of a deceased surety was being administered, where the executors, who were parties to the suit, did not claim such privilege. Id.

An assignee held entitled to sue the debtor and the assignor in the same suit in the county of the residence of the latter. Kenedy Town & Improvement Co. v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 558.

In view of the allegations of a petition, nonresident defendants held entitled to rely on their privilege of being sued in the county of their residence. Moorhouse v. King County Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 883.

Where a note secured by a mortgage on land was payable in a named county, and the maker had left the state, and those claiming the land resided in other counties, an action could not be maintained in the county where the note was payable by virtue of subdivision 4. Breed v. Higginbotham Bros. & Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 164.

Since subdivision 6 expressly provides the venue of suits against administrators on money demands, such section controls subdivision 4, so that a suit against an administrator on a money demand must under the requirement of subdivision 30 be brought in the county where the estate is being administered, and not in the county where one of the defendants resides. Dickson v. Scharff (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 980.

Where defendant was sued in a county in which he did not reside, evidence held to warrant a finding that another defendant, when sued and cited, was a resident of the county in which the venue was laid. Slaton v. Anthony (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 201.

A defendant who did not reside in the county in which the suit was instituted cannot object to the venue merely because, pending trial, the resident defendant settled the case and was released. Id.

Evidence held to show that the guaranty made by the agent was personal to himself, and was not a cause of action, alleged against all the defendants so as to avoid such claim of privilege. Stephens v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 620.

Under subdivision 4, the cause of action asserted against one defendant must be the same as that against the other, so that where, in an action by the purchaser to recover a deposit of earnest money, and to forfeit the vendor's deposit, brought against the vendor, the purchaser's agent in making the contract of sale, and others, the action against the agent was on his personal guaranty that the deposit should be returned, if the sale was not consummated, while that against the other defendants was that they fraudulently claimed a forfeiture after breaching the contract themselves, the causes of action were distinct, so that the defendants, other than the agent, could not be sued in a county in which they did not reside. Id.

The bringing of an action of trover against the borrower of a horse held to divest the owner of his title, and so to deprive him of any right of action against third persons who had insured the horse and collected the insurance, and consequently he could not by joining such persons in an amended petition deprive them of their privilege to be sued only in the county of their residence. Ft. Worth Horse & Mule Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 200.

Where plaintiff joined as defendant a party who was clearly entitled to a change of venue to another county, and did not dismiss as to such party, the court, having no power to dismiss as against that party, properly transferred the suit as to all parties, especially where the other parties defendants had pleaded privilege to be sued in such other county. Garrison v. Stokes (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 898.

Under subdivisions 4 and 7, a purchaser's action against the vendor and his agent for the payments made for an option on land misrepresented by the agent was properly brought in the county where the misrepresentations were made. Kleine Bros. v. Gidcomb (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 462.

—— Improper joinder.—A defendant cannot be sued out of his county by the joinder of a fictitious or improper party (Henderson v. Kissam, 8 T. 46; Pool v. Pickett, 8 T. 122; Roan v. Raymond, 15 T. 78; Christie v. Gunter, 26 T. 700), or by a fictitious assignment of the cause of action (Jones v. Austin, 6 C. A. 505, 26 S. W. 144).

This exception applies only to those who are necessary as well as proper parties. Holloway v. Blum, 60 T. 625; Blum v. Root, 2 App. C. C. § 98. See Vogelsang v. Mensing, 1 App. C. C. § 1165; Looney v. Le Geirse, 2 App. C. C. § 532; Chaison v. Beauchamp (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 303.

Construing this subdivision it was held that the defendant who resides in the county where the suit is brought must be either a necessary or proper party defendant; if he is neither a necessary nor proper party, a plea to the jurisdiction filed by non-residents of the county joined with him in the action should be sustained. Railway Co. v. Mangum, 68 T. 342, 4 S. W. 617.

Pleas to the venue held properly sustained to a petition which stated no cause of action against the only defendant who lived in the county. Girand v. Barnard (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 482.

Where a national bank was not liable on drafts, an action against a nonresident party cannot be maintained in the county of the bank's domicile, by joining the bank as defendant. Groos v. Brewster (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 590.

A plaintiff cannot get jurisdiction of a non-resident of the county, by joining with him as a defendant, a resident of county in which suit is brought against whom he has no cause of action. Russell & Co. v. F. W. Heitmann & Co. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 77.

Where a defendant is joined solely to give jurisdiction of another defendant not otherwise suable in the county, a plea of privilege by the latter defendant should be sustained. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Waddell Bros., 38 C. A. 434, 86 S. W. 655.

In an action against two defendants, evidence held to show that one of them was joined to give the courts of the county in which the action was brought jurisdiction of the other defendant, not otherwise suable in that county. Id.

A suit cannot be maintained over a plea of privilege in the county of residence of a codefendant against whom the petition discloses no liability. Beauchamp v. Chester, 39 C. A. 234, 86 S. W. 1055.

It is the good faith allegation of a cause of action against a defendant resident in a county which authorizes the joinder of a defendant not a resident. Toland v. Sutherlin, 49 C. A. 538, 110 S. W. 487.

Persons held improperly joined as parties defendant. Brant v. Lane, 54 C. A. 425, 118 S. W. 229, 139 S. W. 768.

Where a resident defendant was a proper party, and was not joined for the fraudulent purpose of conferring jurisdiction on the district court of T. county of a codefendant residing in another county, the latter's plea of privilege to be sued in the county of his residence was properly overruled. Allen v. Edrington (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 362.

A defendant may not be sued out of the county of his residence by the joinder of improper parties. Waldrep v. Roquemore (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 248.

Where a plaintiff is chargeable with knowledge of the legal effect of evidence establishing a parol agreement by defendant to answer for the debt of the codefendant, his act in joining the defendant in the suit against the codefendant, who is a nonresident of the county, is a legal fraud on the jurisdiction of the court over the codefendant, and his plea of privilege to be sued in the county of his residence must be sustained. E. J. Chauvin & Co. v. McKnight (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 383.

Joinder of an additional defendant, in order to sue in a county other than that in which the defendant had its sole place of business, held a fraud upon the jurisdiction of the trial court, and a violation of the real defendant's right to be sued in the county where it had its sole place of business. Thorndale Mercantile Co. v. Evens & Lee (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1053.

The owner of a horse brought trover against the person to whom he had loaned the horse and who had failed to return him, and defendant, who had been exhibiting the animal, impleaded third persons in whose stable the animal had been burned to death, claiming that they had insured the horse and collected the insurance. Held that, as plaintiff by his form of action divested himself of title to the horse and vested it in defendant, he had no right of action against the third persons for the amount of insurance, and consequently his joining them, by an amended petition, with the defendant, would not deprive them of their privilege to be sued only in the county of their residence. Ft. Worth Horse & Mule Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 200.

Where a railroad company was properly joined with other defendants in a suit for fraud arising out of the issuance of bills of lading for half bales of cotton as full bales, the fact that it might subsequently be held that the railroad company was not liable did not show a fraudulent joinder, so as to entitle the other defendant to object that the railroad company was joined to enable the plaintiff to sue in the county in which such other defendant did not reside. Wichita Falls Compress Co. v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1032.

5. Contract in writing to be performed in a particular county.—Where a person has contracted in writing to perform an obligation in any particular county, in which case suit may be brought either in such county, or where the defendant has his domicile. [P. D. 1423.]

Place of performance.—See Mahon v. Cotton, 13 C. A. 239, 35 S. W. 869.

As to the application of this subdivision, see Durst v. Swift, 11 T. 273; Phillio v. Blythe, 12 T. 124; Barrow v. Philleo, 14 T. 345; Wilson v. Adams, 15 T. 323; Wright v. Reed, 37 T. 265; Bigham v. Talbot, 51 T. 450; Cohen v. Munson, 59 T. 236; Little v. Woodbridge, 1 App. C. C. § 152; Phillips v. Adkins, 1 App. C. C. § 292; Mann v. Clapp, 1 App. C. C. § 503; Morrison v. Jalonick, 1 App. C. C. § 778; Mathews v. Denison, 1 App. C. C. § 1256; Henry v. Fay, 2 App. C. C. § 835, Farmer v. Brannon, 21 C. A. 543, 53 S. W. 699.

This exception contemplates that the contract should plainly provide that it is to be performed in a county other than that in which the defendant resides. Barker v. Foster, 3 App. C. C. § 305.

A contract to build a house, and a bond conditioned that the contractor build the house as he contracts to do, are separate contracts, and a suit upon the latter must be brought in the county of the residence of one or more of the obligors. Lindheim v. Muschamp, 72 T. 33, 12 S. W. 125.

A foreign corporation with an office in one county in this state contracted with persons resident of another county to loan its money on land in the latter county. It was held that the venue of suit against the corporation for breach of that contract was in the latter county. Eq. Mort. Co. v. Weddington, 21 S. W. 576, 2 C. A. 373.

Suit against a defendant on several notes payable in different counties may be brought in the county in which one of the notes is payable. Middlebrook v. D. B. Mfg. Co., 86 T. 706, 26 S. W. 935.

A non-resident railroad company, which gives a bill of lading for the delivery of goods at a place in Texas, limiting its liability to injuries on its own line, may be sued at the place of delivery. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Hornbeck, 90 T. 499, 39 S. W. 564.

Suit on a note can be brought in the county where it is payable. Burrows v. Grover Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 822.

An action to foreclose a chattel mortgage is properly brought in the county in which the notes were payable, and a purchaser from the mortgagor, not residing in the county, may be made a defendant. Oxsheer v. Watt (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 121.

Where the place of performance of a contract of itself gives the trial court jurisdiction over defendants, impleaded, it is immaterial whether there was collusion between plaintiff and original defendant to confer jurisdiction over them. Moody v. Pangle, 18 C. A. 720, 45 S. W. 741.

The place of performance of the contract sued on controls the question of jurisdiction over defendants. Id.

Where a resident of one county enters into a written contract to be performed in another, an action will lie in the latter county for a breach. Landa v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 860.

This exception does not authorize joinder of a nonresident who is a party to the obligation. Behrens Drug Co. v. Hamilton, 92 Tex. 284, 48 S. W. 5; Zapp v. Davidson, 21 C. A. 566, 54 S. W. 366; Lumpkin v. Story, 49 C. A. 332, 108 S. W. 485.

Infancy of a maker of a note will not defeat jurisdiction to sue him in the county where it was made payable. Melton v. Katzenstein (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 173.

District court of the county wherein a note was payable held to have jurisdiction to foreclose a mortgage securing the same, regardless of the location of the premises. Spikes v. Brown (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 725.

One entitled to sue another on notes in a county fixed by the notes may embrace in such a suit a claim on an open account. Ball v. Southern Rock Island Plow Co. (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 158.

When a person buys a car of corn from a broker who lives in another county and the broker orders the corn to be shipped from another state by a third person, attaching drafts for the price (payable on delivery of the corn) to the bill of lading issued by the carrier, which the consignee indorses, an action on the contract can be brought in the county where the buyer lives, this being the county in which the contract is to be performed. Seley v. Williams, 20 C. A. 405, 50 S. W. 399.

An action for rent on a lease against an assignee thereof may be brought in the county where the rent is payable. Campbell v. Cates (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 268.

The district court of a county in which a note is payable has jurisdiction of an action thereon, and to foreclose a vendor's lien on real estate by which it is secured, though the defendants resided in a different county, and the property is situated in another county. Phelps v. Norman (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 978.

Where a note stipulating that, if not paid at maturity, it is to be payable in a county other than that in which the maker resides, is sued on in such other county before it becomes due, and it becomes due long before the trial, it is sufficient to confer jurisdiction. Morgan v. E. Bement & Sons, 24 C. A. 564, 59 S. W. 907.

Venue in action on a note, as against indorser in possession of property securing the note, held properly in county where such party and maker reside and note is payable. King v. Parks, 26 C. A. 95, 63 S. W. 900.

Where a note is made payable in a certain county, the courts of such county have jurisdiction in an action on the note, though defendants reside in other counties. Branch v. Wilkens (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 1083.

A buyer's contract to pay a part of the price of machinery, and to execute a note, payment to be made within a particular county, held to entitle the seller to bring his action in that county. McKaughan v. Kellett-Chatham Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 908.

The written contract need not expressly state that it is to be performed in a particular county to give jurisdiction, but if it appears from the writing that it must necessarily be performed in a certain county, the venue is properly laid in that county. Darragh v. O'Connor (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 646.

Evidence held to show that substitutionary agreement was satisfaction for a note, so as to necessitate suit in the county of defendant's residence, and not where note was payable. Wettermark v. Burton, 30 C. A. 509, 70 S. W. 1029.

Where a corporation contracts to pay its obligations in a county other than its domicile, the court of such county has jurisdiction of an action for a receiver of the property of the corporation. Wills Point Mercantile Co. v. Southern Rock Island Plow Co., 31 C. A. 94, 71 S. W. 292.

The change of 1879 in the statute permitting the bringing of actions in the county of the place of performance of contracts held to exclude consideration of all other than written contracts. Borden & Antill v. Le Tulle Mercantile Co., 32 C. A. 477, 74 S. W. 788.

In an action on a note payable in a particular county, defendant cannot plead his privilege to be sued in another county. Fenn v. Roach & Co. (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 361.

This does not provide that the contract shall by express words require the performance of the contract in a particular county, but if the contract be in writing and must necessarily be executed in a county different from that of the domicile of the party contracting, then for breach of the contract he may be sued in either of these counties. Bell County Brick Co. v. R. L. Cox & Co., 33 C. A. 292, 76 S. W. 608.

A letter written by a debtor after adjustment of accounts and the dishonoring of a draft drawn on him by his creditor in which he stated that had he been at home he would have protected the draft, and that he would remit to the creditor in a few days, did not amount to the execution of a written contract in the county of the creditor's residence, so as to warrant suit therein. Flynt v. Eagle Pass Coal & Coke Co. (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 832.

Where one contracts to deliver in a certain county cotton at a certain grade and at a fixed price, as evidenced by his drafts and bills of lading, his failure to deliver cotton of the specified grade and quantity, he can be sued in the county where the cotton was to be delivered, as that was where the contract was to be performed. Callender, Holder & Co. v. Short, 34 C. A. 364, 78 S. W. 367.

Where defendants ordered goods from a resident of another county to be delivered f. o. b. cars in that county, the place of payment was the county of defendants' residence, and not that where the goods were delivered, and hence an action could not be maintained against them in the latter county. Russell & Co. v. F. W. Heitmann & Co. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 75.

Where a draft is addressed to the drawee at a specified place in a particular county and accepted in general terms, and not by a qualified acceptance, the law implies that it was the intention of the parties in making the contract that the debt was to be paid at the specified place, and the court of that county had jurisdiction. Yett v. Green (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 788.

Where defendant consented to a divorce decree requiring him to pay certain rents to his divorced wife, in D. county, an action to recover such rents was properly brought against him in that county. Connellee v. Werenskiold (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 747.

Where defendant promised to execute notes payable in B. county, Texas, he thereby promised to satisfy the indebtedness in B. county, and was properly suable there. Parr v. McGown (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 950.

An action against a corporation on an executory contract may be brought in the county where such contract is performed. Houston Rice Milling Co. v. Wilcox & Swinney, 45 C. A. 303, 100 S. W. 204.

A guarantor of a note according to its tenor and legal effect held liable to suit in the county where the note was payable, though he did not reside there. McCauley v. Cross (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 790.

A contract held not in writing, within this subdivision, so that suit could be brought against a party thereto in a county other than his residence. Bewley v. Mrs. E. Schultz & Son (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 294.

An order sheet, even if a contract between the parties, held not sufficient to bring the case within this subdivision, permitting a party to a contract to be sued in a county other than his domicile, where he contracts to perform in another county. Id.

To come within the exception the instrument of writing must plainly provide for performance in county other than in which defendant resides. Id.

The contract need not expressly state that it is to be performed in a particular county to give jurisdiction, but if it appears that it must necessarily be performed in a certain county it is sufficient. In this case the contract was to deliver the wood in Waco and this gave jurisdiction to sue for breach of the contract in McLennon County. Gaddy v. Smith, 53 C. A. 605, 116 S. W. 165.

Evidence held insufficient to prove contract for delivery of goods to purchaser in a certain county so as to entitle him to sue for breach of the contract in such county. J. J. B. McCullar Lumber Co. v. Higginbotham Bros. & Co. (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 885.

In an action for money paid, held, that there was no contract in writing to perform any obligation in the county of plaintiff's residence, and defendants' plea of privilege was properly sustained. Rio Grande Lumber Co. v. Summers (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 187.

An action on a contract binding defendant to refund the money sued for in a designated county in the event of his failure to fulfill his part of the agreement is properly brought in such county. Martin v. A. B. Frank Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 958.

In an action for breach of a contract of sale, evidence held not to sustain a finding that the contract was to be performed in H. county, so as to authorize the bringing of the action there instead of in the county of defendant's domicile. Harris Millinery Co. v. Bryan (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 999.

The term "obligation," as used in subdivision 5, means such an obligation that its breach would deprive the other party of some appreciable right or cause him some actionable damage, and where a written contract for the sale of lumber did not provide that the price was to be paid in H. county or provide where the lumber was to be delivered, merely providing that the seller should pay the freight to a point in that county, there was no obligation to be performed in H. county which was breached by the buyer's refusal to order and receive the remainder of the lumber, whether the contract of sale be considered as executed or executory; the refusal to pay the full contract price being the only material obligation breached in the first instance, and the seller's measure of damages not being affected by such refusal if the contract was executory. Ogburn-Dalchau Lumber Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 48.

In determining whether one has contracted in writing to perform an obligation in a particular county so as to control the venue under subdivision 5, the written contract alone can be looked to; any parol provision of the contract being immaterial. Id.

Under subdivision 5 the petition, in an action on a written obligation, which alleges that defendant bound himself to pay the money sued for in the county of the venue of the action, gives jurisdiction over the person of defendant, though a resident of another county. Witherspoon v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 660.

Under this subdivision suit on a contract for the exchange of property, "enforceable at Weatherford, in Parker county, Texas," is properly brought in Parker county. Whisenant v. Schawe (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 146.

An order for ties held not to import a promise to pay the price in a particular county, so as to authorize suit therein. Burkitt & Barnes v. Berry (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1187.

An implied promise to pay the price of goods at a particular place held not to determine the venue of an action for the price. Id.

The exception in subdivision 5 contemplates only such an obligation as may be made the basis of a suit. Bomar Cotton Oil Co. v. Schubert (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1193.

The essential obligation imposed on a buyer by a contract of sale of a season's output of linters, which fixes the price and manner of shipment, and which requires the buyer residing in one county to send a representative to a designated place in another county to inspect before shipment, is to accept and pay for the linters; and a breach of his obligation to send a representative to the designated place for inspection gives no cause of action, and does not justify the bringing of an action in the county within which the designated place is located, within subdivision 5. Id.

One operating cotton seed oil mills in various counties contracted to deliver cotton seed oil, without in terms binding himself to perform the contract in a particular county, in which he was not domiciled. The contract was performed in a county in which he did not reside, and an assignee, claiming under an assignment reciting that the contract provided for the feeding in such county, sued for breach in such county. Held, that the contract did not necessarily import an obligation to be performed in the county in which the suit was brought. Birge v. Lovelady (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1194.

Where an action is brought against an individual on a written contract for the digging of a well on his land, which does not provide for any place of payment by him, he has the right granted by subdivision 5 to be sued in the county of his domicile. McCammant v. Webb (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 693.

A lease of certain land held not to provide for the payment of the rent at any particular place, and hence defendant's plea of privilege to be sued in the county of his residence should have been sustained. Casey v. Carr (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 601.

Objections and waiver.—See notes under Art. 1831 and at head of this article.

6. Executors, administrators, etc.—Where the suit is against an executor, administrator or guardian, as such, to establish a money demand against the estate which he represents, in which case the suit must be brought in the county in which such estate is administered. [Id.]

Representatives included.—The exception controls the venue, when there are other defendants not within it. Wilson v. Kyle, 35 T. 559.

This exception includes independent executors. Bondies v. Buford, 58 T. 266.

Suit under Art. 3555 may be brought in the county of defendant's residence. Stewart v. Morrison, 81 T. 396, 17 S. W. 15, 26 Am. St. Rep. 821.

The venue of a suit on the bond of the administrator for failure to pay over money on final settlement is properly laid in the county of the defendant's residence, and not in the county of the administrator. Id.

Where testatrix of community property has qualified in one county and moved to another, suit against her must be brought in the county of her residence. Jones v. McRae, 16 C. A. 308, 41 S. W. 403.

In an action against a guardian and ward to foreclose a lien on guardianship property the suit must be brought in the county in which the estate is being administered, notwithstanding the fact that the ward has been relieved by marriage of minority and the note is payable in another county. McKay v. Marshall, 16 C. A. 632, 42 S. W. 868.

Actions included.—Suit against an executor or administrator for failure to pay over money ordered to be paid to the heirs on final settlement can be brought in the county of the defendant's residence. Stewart v. Morrison, 81 T. 396, 17 S. W. 15, 26 Am. St. Rep. 821.

This exception does not apply to a suit on a money demand against an executor incurred for legal advice as to the construction of the will of his testator. Crosson v. Dwyer, 30 S. W. 929, 9 C. A. 482.

A proceeding against an executor for the construction of a will is not within this article. Id.

A suit for the construction of a will may be brought in the county in which the defendant has his domicile. Id.

Action against guardian and ward to foreclose lien on ward's property pledged by guardian must be brought in the county in which the estate is administered. McKay v. Marshall Nat. Bank, 16 C. A. 632, 42 S. W. 868.

A suit against a guardian for specific performance of a contract for the location of land held properly instituted in the county in which the guardianship proceedings were pending. Logan v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 395.

In a suit against sureties on their bond, held, that they could not claim the privilege of being sued in the county where the executors of a deceased surety were acting. White v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 437.

Since subdivision 6 expressly provides the venue of suits against administrators on money demands, such section controls subdivision 4, so that a suit against an administrator on a money demand must under the requirement of subdivision 30 be brought in the county where the estate is being administered, and not in the county where one of the defendants resides. Dickson v. Scharff (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 980.

7. Cases of fraud, and defalcation.—In all cases of fraud, and in cases of defalcation of public officers, in which cases suit may be instituted in the county in which the fraud was committed, or where the defalcation occurred, or where the defendant has his domicile. [Id.]

Cited, Holmes v. Coalson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 661.

Place of fraud or default.—Finch v. Edmonson, 9 T. 504; Evans v. Mills, 16 T. 196; Freeman v. Kuechler, 45 T. 592. And see Bracken v. Neill, 15 T. 109.

This section applies to constructive as well as to actual fraud. The grantee in a deed, absolute on its face but in trust to secure a loan, sold the land to bona fide purchasers. The sale was fraudulent and gave jurisdiction where it was committed. Boothe v. Fiest, 80 T. 141, 15 S. W. 799.

Defendant, residing in L. county, ordered of plaintiff by telegram and letter a quantity of wheat at a certain price f. o. b. in E. county, but when the wheat arrived refused it on the ground that it was not equal to the sample. Defendant then went to E. county and agreed to take it at a reduced price, and he thereupon received it and paid for it according to his own weights. Plaintiff, dissatisfied with the amount paid, brought suit in E. county for an alleged balance due and for damages, averring a fraudulent conversion of the wheat in that county. Held, that the suit should have been brought in L. county, since the cause of action did not arise in E. county within this provision of the statute. McLaughlin v. Shannon, 22 S. W. 117, 3 C. A. 136.

To entitle plaintiff to sue in his own county because of fraud perpetrated on him there by defendant, residing elsewhere, it is insufficient to show merely that the latter drew a draft on him for a false claim. Landa v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 860.

In a suit to recover against non-residents for the breach of warranty the court has no jurisdiction where there was no allegation that fraud was committed in the county in which the suit was brought. Seley v. Whitfield (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 865.

Action to cancel trust deed on ground of fraud is properly brought in county where fraud was committed. Moore v. Byars (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 752.

Where fraud is committed in the county of plaintiff's residence, defendant is suable therein. Whitaker v. Brown (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1104.

An action to cancel transfer of judgment obtained by fraud can be brought in county where the transfer was obtained. Lindsey v. State, 27 C. A. 540, 66 S. W. 333.

Where the cause of action arises through fraudulent act of agent of corporation in a county other than that of its residence it is properly sued in county where the fraud is committed. Hunt County Oil Co. v. Scott, 28 C. A. 213, 67 S. W. 452; Trinity Valley Trust Co. v. Stockwell (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 794; Galveston Shoe & Hat Co. v. Rowe, 109 S. W. 1104.

Action for fraud is properly brought in the county where it was perpetrated, though defendants resided in another county. Howe Grain & Mercantile Co. v. Galt, 32 C. A. 193, 73 S. W. 828; Winter v. Terrill, 42 C. A. 598, 95 S. W. 761; Martin v. A. B. Frank Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 958; Jef Chaison Townsite Co. v. Beaumont Sawmill Co., 133 S. W. 714; Day v. Steverson, 145 S. W. 1062.

In case of an action for deceit against a private corporation, when a part of the cause of action arises in a county different from that in which the corporation has its domicile, it may be sued in the former. In this case defendant was located in Beeville and wrote a letter to plaintiff at Cuero, on which plaintiff acted, and which is made the basis of the suit. The letter on which plaintiff relied deceived plaintiff. Venue was properly laid in De Witt county. Commercial Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 240.

A corporation may be sued for deceit in the county in which the false representations were made, though its office and agents are in another county. Western Cottage, Piano & Organ Co. v. Griffin, 41 C. A. 76, 90 S. W. 884.

An action for breach of warranty and for deceit in the same transaction held properly brought in the county where the property was situated and the transaction took place, though defendant resided in another county. Thomas v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 934.

Where deceit is charged in a land transaction when the land was situated in Red River county and the sale was consummated in that county, but the fraudulent representations which led to the sale, were made in Fannin county, venue was properly laid in Fannin county. Gordon v. Rhodes & Daniel (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1026.

An order given by purchaser to the seller, to ship a bill of goods to county of residence of former, and acceptance of order by the seller and a note of confirmation of order addressed by the seller to the purchaser is not such an agreement to perform in the county to which goods are to be shipped as will give it jurisdiction to the latter county. McCullar Lumber Co. v. Higginbotham Bros. Co. (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 885.

The evidence failing to show fraud committed in a certain county giving the county court therein jurisdiction over defendant under this subdivision, defendant held entitled to assert his privilege against suit in such county. Id.

Where plaintiffs sued to recover the alleged value of personal services, for which they alleged defendant, who resided in another county, promised in the county where the suit was brought to pay within a certain time, or to execute therefor notes payable in such county, a mere allegation that defendant made such promises with the fraudulent intent thereby to defeat plaintiffs' recovery did not entitle plaintiffs to sue defendant over his objection in a county other than where he resided, under subdivision 7. Oakes & Witt v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 320.

Where defendant sold and agreed to deliver to plaintiff in G. county a certain variety of broom corn seed and fraudulently delivered another or mixed variety of seed, which was planted by plaintiff in G. county, a fraud was committed on him in that county, and suit for damages therefor was properly instituted there, as provided by subdivision 7. American Warehouse Co. v. Ray (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 763.

Under subdivisions 4 and 7, a purchaser's action against the vendor and his agent for the payments made for an option on land misrepresented by the agent was properly brought in the county where the misrepresentations were made. Kleine Bros. v. Gidcomb (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 462.

Where plaintiff is through false representations and deceit, persuaded to take his child into another county, and his possession and right to control it were not interfered with until he got in such county, the venue of a suit to recover the child was not properly laid in the county where the fraud was practiced, and a plea of privilege by the defendants to be sued in the county where they resided should have been sustained; the fraud not being the gist of the action. Sheffield v. Rousey (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 653.

Plaintiff purchased a claim of $192.50 against defendant C., guaranteed by the assignor for $150, and sued both C. and the assignor thereof in the county of the assignor's residence. Plaintiff testified that he purchased the claim because he considered it a good investment, and also to assist the assignor to have the suit tried in his own county. Held, such facts did not show that the purchase was fraudulent to defeat C.'s right to have the case tried in the county of his residence, since if plaintiff purchased in good faith, it was immaterial that he knew that in doing so he was aiding his assignor to have the question tried in the county of the assignor's residence. Caruthers v. Link (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 330.

Where a defendant employed to recover and sell land of plaintiff for one-half of the land recovered or one-half of the proceeds of land sold did not report any sales made and appropriated to his own use the whole proceeds thereof, and failed to inform plaintiff of the status of his interest, though repeatedly requested so to do during a course of years, he was guilty of fraud which must be deemed to have existed at the time and place of sale of the land and under subdivision 7, he could be sued in that county, though he resided elsewhere. Thomason v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1040.

A defendant who failed to pay to a corporation a specified sum, as he had promised to induce plaintiff to return to the corporation money she had withdrawn, and who at the time of the making of the promise did not intend to fulfill it, was guilty of fraud within subdivision 7. Ferrell v. Millican (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 230.

An action for fraud consummated in a conversation had in a certain county is properly brought therein. Id.

8. When attachment sued out or levied.—Any suit for damages growing out of the suing out of any writ of attachment or sequestration, or for the levy of any such writ, may be brought in any county from which such writ was issued, or in any county where such levy was made, in whole or in part, within this state. [Acts of 1889, p. 48.]

Wrongful suits and writs.—See Focke v. Blum, 82 T. 436, 17 S. W. 770; Baines v. Jemison, 86 T. 118, 23 S. W. 639.

When the levy was made by the officer at the instance and by the direction of the plaintiff in attachment, suit against the officer and the plaintiff may be brought in the county where the levy was made, although the residence of the plaintiff is in another county. Carothers v. McIlhenny, 63 T. 138; Raleigh & Heidenheimer v. Cook, 60 T. 438; Hilliard v. Wilson, 65 T. 286.

Where the undisputed evidence, in an action for wrongful attachment, showed facts making the attachment wrongful, it was error to submit those questions to the jury. Pate v. Vardeman (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 317.

9. Cases of crime, offense, or trespass.—Where the foundation of the suit is some crime, or offense, or trespass, for which a civil action in damages may lie, in which case the suit may be brought in the county where such crime, or offense, or trespass was committed, or in the county where the defendant has his domicile. [P. D. 1423.]

Crime or offense.—See Hunt v. Hardin, 14 C. A. 285, 36 S. W. 1028.

"Crime," "offense," are synonymous terms. Illies v. Knight, 3 T. 312.

In a suit for malicious prosecution the "offense" is the causing the warrant to issue, and the suit must be brought in the county in which this is done, and not in the county in which the arrest is made. Hubbard v. Lord, 59 T. 384. See McRea v. McWilliams, 58 T. 328; Cahn v. Bonnett, 62 T. 674.

A petition contained allegations which, taken together, amounted to a charge that the defendants combined falsely to accuse plaintiff of the offense of swindling A., and in pursuance of such combination did, through one of their number, make such accusation by affidavit before a magistrate of W. county, and that this was done for the purpose of extorting money and the payment of a debt pretended to be due defendants. Held that, while the averments were not so specific and certain as would be required in an indictment, they were sufficiently certain for the purposes of civil pleading; that the act so charged constituted an offense which was in the nature of a conspiracy, and will be deemed to have been committed where any act in pursuance of the common design was performed by any one of the conspirators or by any other person at their instigation. The conspiracy was renewed with every act done in pursuance of the unlawful design. The affidavit against the plaintiff to secure his arrest in pursuance of the common design having been made in W. county, that county is taken to be the county in which the offense was committed, as a suit for damages for the wrong done was properly brought in that county. Raleigh v. Cook, 60 T. 438.

A suit for libel may be brought in any county in which the libelous statement has been circulated. Belo v. Wren, 63 T. 686.

This subdivision of the statute does not apply where the cause of action resulted from a mere omission to do a duty. Connor v. Saunders, 81 T. 633, 17 S. W. 236. Thus, an action for damages resulting in the death of plaintiff's wife, caused by the negligence of the defendant, must be brought in the county of his residence. Austin v. Cameron, 83 T. 351, 18 S. W. 437.

An allegation that defendants conspired and converted plaintiff's property to their use, gives jurisdiction in the county where these acts are charged to have occurred, outside of defendant's residence Rotan v. Maedgen, 24 C. A. 558, 59 S. W. 586.

Where the basis is some crime or offense or trespass, the suit can be brought where it was committed as well as in the county where the defendant resides. Baldwin v. Richardson, 39 C. A. 348, 87 S. W. 354.

Where a suit is brought in one county and jurisdiction attaches, and the defendant dies afterwards, if the case is one that survives all necessary parties can be brought in even though they reside in another county. Nixon v. Malone, 100 T. 250, 98 S. W. 385, 99 S. W. 403.

A joint action against two or more persons for slander cannot be maintained, and where one utters the alleged slanderous words in the county of his residence to one person alone, who repeats them in another county, the one who utters the words cannot be sued in the latter county by being joined in the suit with the one who repeats them there. Parr v. Thompson, 45 C. A. 337, 100 S. W. 793.

Trespass.—Trespass means any intentional wrong or injury to the person or property of another. Hubbard v. Lord, 59 T. 384; Armendiaz v. Stillman, 54 T. 623; Cook v. Hortsman, 2 App. C. C. § 770.

When a transitory action is based upon personal injuries, recognized as such by universal law, suit may be brought against the aggressor wherever he may be found. When the right of action exists by reason of a statute, the wrong must have occurred and the remedy must be pursued in the state where the law was enacted and has effect. Willis v. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co., 61 T. 432, 48 Am. Rep. 301.

An action for damages for injury to personal property may be brought in the county where the injury was committed against the parties causing the same who are residents of another county. Campbell v. Trimble, 75 T. 270, 12 S. W. 863.

The unlawful seizure of goods under a writ of attachment is a trespass, and an action therefor may be brought in the county in which the seizure was made. Perry v. Stephens, 77 T. 246, 13 S. W. 984; Willis v. Hudson, 72 T. 598, 10 S. W. 713; Focke v. Blum, 82 T. 436, 17 S. W. 770.

In a suit for damages for personal injuries caused by the defendant's representative failing to do an act which it was his duty to do, it is held that the word "trespass" embraces only actions for such injuries as result from wrongful acts willfully or negligently committed, and not those which result from a mere omission of duty. Ricker v. Shoemaker, 81 T. 22, 16 S. W. 645.

An action against a railway company for personal injuries is purely transitory, and follows the person of the wrongdoer wherever he goes; a court takes jurisdiction wherever he is found, without regard to the residence of either party or the place where the injury was inflicted. Railway Co. v. Worley (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 478.

Action by mortgagee of cattle against purchaser on execution against the mortgagor, brought by sequestration, before maturity of the note for foreclosure, held not an action of trespass, and maintainable in a county other than that in which the purchaser resides, where sequestration is dismissed and complaint is amended. London v. Miller, 19 C. A. 446, 47 S. W. 734.

Action for injury from removal of prisoner just after his broken leg had been set, over protest of physician, held one, not for negligence, but trespass, within Rev. St. art. 1194, prescribing venue. Lasater v. Waites (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 518.

This article applies to the trespasser himself and not to those who are not guilty of the trespass. The sureties on sheriff's bond cannot be sued out of county of their residence for trespass of his deputy when neither the sheriff nor his deputy is made a party. Lasater v. Waits, 95 T. 553, 68 S. W. 500.

Where, after a temporary injunction to restrain trespass on land in another county was dissolved, plaintiff filed an amended petition, praying only for rent and restitution of such land, a plea to the jurisdiction, because such an action could be maintained only in the county where the land was situated, should be sustained. Fant v. Kenedy Pasture Co., 29 C. A. 530, 69 S. W. 420.

In an action for personal injuries, defendants held not guilty of a trespass, within the meaning of the venue statute, so as to entitle plaintiff to sue in the county where the injury occurred. Stewart v. Nichols & Haralson, 36 C. A. 354, 82 S. W. 339.

The word "trespass," as here used, means any intentional wrong or injury to the person or property of another, and includes conversion. Ward v. Odem (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 634.

A "trespass," within this statute, is an active wrong, as distinguished from negligently omitting what should have been done, and includes the negligent running of a yacht so as to cut the cable of another, and thereby destroy it. Winslow v. Gentry (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 260.

10. Suits for personal property.—Where the suit is for the recovery of any personal property, in which case the suit may be brought in any county in which the property may be, or in which the defendant resides. [Id.]

Suit for personal property.—A suit to recover for conversion of property may be brought in any county where either one of the defendants resides. Cobb v. Barber, 92 T. 309, 47 S. W. 963.

11. Concerning inheritances.—Where the defendant has inherited an estate, concerning which the suit is commenced, in which case suit may be brought in the county where such estate principally lies. [Id.]

12. Foreclosure of mortgage or other liens.—Where the suit is for the foreclosure of a mortgage or other lien, in which case suit may be brought in the county in which the property subject to such lien, or a portion thereof, may be situated. [Id.]

Foreclosures.—See notes under subdivision 5, ante.

It is no objection to the jurisdiction of a court to set aside a foreclosure sale on motion in the original action that the purchaser made a party to the motion is a nonresident of the county in which such motion is filed. Hansbro v. Blum, 22 S. W. 270, 3 C. A. 108.

A suit to enforce a vendor's lien on land may be brought in the domicile of the maker, or in the county in which the land is situated. Hilliard v. White (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 553. See Higgins v. Frederick, 32 T. 282.

Mortgage defined. Tittle v. Vanleer, 89 T. 174, 29 S. W. 1065, 34 S. W. 715, 37 L. R. A. 337; Seward Confectionery Co. v. Ullmann (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 1072.

Where the purchaser of cotton on which a landlord claimed a lien was not sued in the county where he resided, the overruling of his plea that he was sued in the wrong county was erroneous. Zapp v. Davidson, 21 C. A. 566, 54 S. W. 366.

A suit on certain notes and to foreclose a trust deed held not a suit to try title, to be brought in the county in which the land is situated. Branch v. Wilkens (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 1083.

Where tenant lives in one county and mortgagees claiming under mortgage from tenant live in another, suit can be brought to foreclose landlords' lien against the mortgagees and tenant in county of latter's residence. Cardwell v. Masterson, 27 C. A. 591, 66 S. W. 1122.

A suit to foreclose a deed of trust or mortgage and thereby enforce the payment of a debt to secure which the same was given, may be brought in the county in which part of the property embraced in the deed of trust or mortgage is located and the court in which the suit is brought can appoint a receiver. Commercial Telephone Co. v. Territorial Bank & Trust Co., 38 C. A. 192, 86 S. W. 69.

If, when a suit was instituted, plaintiff had a lien on property which entitled him to sue in the county in which the property was situated, under subdivision 12, the jurisdiction of the court would not be devested by the subsequent loss or abandonment of the lien in changing the form of the action. Ogburn-Delchau Lumber Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 48.

Filing of a claim for a mechanic's lien does not fix a lien if the account was not filed in time nor govern claims not lienable, as affecting venue of an action against the debtors. Van Horn Trading Co. v. Day (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1129.

13. Suits for partition.—Suits for the partition of lands or other property may be brought in the county where such lands or other property, or a part thereof, may be, or in the county in which one or more of the defendants reside.

Situation of land.—Suit may be brought in any county in which a part of the land is situated. Osborn v. Osborn, 62 T. 495.

Title.—If in a suit for partition it appears from the petition that the defendant asserts an adverse title, and there be a prayer for recovery, the venue is governed by exception 14. Stark v. Burr, 56 T. 130.

Residence.—One or more of several defendants, tenants in common, must reside in the county in which a suit for partition is brought in order to give the court jurisdiction if the land be situated in other counties. But such a residence will not confer jurisdiction to partition an entire estate, consisting of several tracts of land, if the defendant residing at the venue of the suit has transferred his interest as joint tenant in one tract to a non-resident purchaser. Peterson v. Fowler, 73 T. 524, 11 S. W. 534. See Grant v. Reavis (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 132.

14. Suits concerning lands.—Suits for the recovery of lands or damages thereto, suits to remove incumbrances upon the title to land, suits to quiet the title to land, and suits to prevent or stay waste on lands, must be brought in the county in which the land, or a part thereof, may lie. [Id.]

Cited, Stevens v. Polk County (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 618.

Actions included.—It seems that suit may be brought in any county where part of the land lies, although defendant claims a part which lies wholly in another county. Ryan v. Jackson, 11 T. 391.

A suit for a specific performance or rescission of a contract for the sale of land is not within this exception. But see cases. Hearst v. Kuykendall, 16 T. 327; Miller v. Rusk, 17 T. 170; Mixan v. Grove, 59 T. 573; Morris v. Runnells, 12 T. 175.

A suit against a surveyor to compel a survey of land must be brought in the county of his residence, notwithstanding the other defendants assert an adverse interest in the land. T. M. Co. v. Locke, 63 T. 623.

An action by tenants in common in two tracts of land located under one land certificate, but in different counties, and against heirs of the grantee of the certificate, in trespass to try title, can be maintained for both tracts, there being no plea in abatement nor special exceptions as to the tract of land lying in the county other than that in which suit is brought. Martin v. Robinson, 67 T. 382, 3 S. W. 550; Ryan v. Jackson, 11 T. 400; Tevis v. Armstrong, 71 T. 59, 9 S. W. 134.

In a suit to remove cloud from title, brought in a county within which none of the land is situated, a plea in abatement filed in proper time and manner objecting to the venue should be sustained. Russell v. Railway Co., 68 T. 646, 5 S. W. 686.

A suit against a railway company for an injury done to one's land and grass by fire caused by negligence of the company may be maintained not only in the county in which the cause of action arose, but in any county through or into which the company operates its road, or in which it has an agency, or in which its principal office is situate. Railway Co. v. Horne, 69 T. 643, 9 S. W. 440.

When a petition for the recovery of land alleges facts which show that plaintiff has the superior title, and is indorsed as required in the action of trespass to try title, the proper jurisdiction is in the county where the land is situated, without reference to places of residence of the respective parties. Bender v. Damon, 72 T. 92, 9 S. W. 747.

Where the prayer of the petition is to recover land and also to remove cloud caused by sale under a void judgment rendered in another county, the plaintiff may show the nullity of the judgment. Id. See subdivision 17, post.

The venue of a suit by the state to set aside a sale of public lands as authorized by Act April 12, 1883, is regulated by the general laws, and not by the special provisions of Act April 14, 1883, and under this subdivision, the district court of the county in which the land is has jurisdiction. State v. Wichita Land & Cattle Co., 73 T. 450, 11 S. W. 488, following State v. Stone & Pasture Co., 66 T. 363, 17 S. W. 735.

Suit to supply a lost power of attorney under which land was conveyed should be brought in the county of the residence of the defendant and not where the land is situated. Douglas v. Baker, 79 T. 499, 15 S. W. 801.

Under the act of April 14, 1883 (18th Leg., p. 186), suits for the recovery of land mentioned in the acts against non-residents or corporations, or where twenty-five sections or more of land in excess of the seven sections authorized by law to be purchased have been purchased by or for the benefit of any one person or corporation, shall be brought in the district court of Travis county. In all other cases suits should be brought in the county where the land is situated. State v. Snyder, 66 T. 687, 18 S. W. 106.

Venue of suit to enjoin interference with plaintiff's right to quarry stone is governed by this section. O'Connor v. Shannon (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1096.

The district court of one county had jurisdiction to render judgment in trespass to try title to land in another county in which defendant resided. State v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 224.

Growing trees are "lands" within the meaning of the above article. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Foster (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 198.

Action to cancel trust deed is properly brought in county in which land on which it is an incumbrance is situated. Moore v. Byars (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 752.

An action to cancel a trust deed held properly brought where the land was situated, though the certificate of stock held by the grantor of the deed provided otherwise in regard to suits on the certificate. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck, 20 C. A. 111, 49 S. W. 160.

In trespass to try title, a defendant cannot by cross-petition seek to recover land in another county, where the other parties to the cross-petition are not residents of the county where suit was brought. Hanner v. Caudle (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 411.

District court of one county held to have jurisdiction to compel vendor of land in another county to transfer superior title to transferee of purchase-money note. Dittman v. Iselt (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 96.

The burning of grass growing upon land by fire negligently set out by sparks escaping from a passing engine is not damages to land within the meaning of this article. Knight v. Railway Co., 93 T. 417, 55 S. W. 558.

Action for damages to land and personalty from a fire set by defendant, brought in county where it is maintainable as to personalty is also maintainable there as to realty. Wilson v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co., 23 C. A. 706, 58 S. W. 183.

The district court of T. county held to have jurisdiction to try an action of trespass to try title to land located in another county and claimed by a resident of another county, though the venue thereof might be improperly laid. Wolfe v. Willingham, 43 C. A. 167, 94 S. W. 362.

An action to rescind a contract for sale of land held not within this exception. Lucas v. Patton, 49 C. A. 62, 107 S. W. 1143.

Action for specific performance of a contract to convey land held an action in personam, and not in rem, and not within this exception. Id.

An action, the object of which is to secure damages for breach of contract to make title to land, held merely personal. Id.

In case of failure of defendant against whom specific performance is decreed to make title to the land, a subsequent recovery of damages held not to be for damages to the land, within Hart. Dig. art. 667. Id.

A suit for the specific performance of a contract to convey land is not a suit for the land, and the venue thereof is not controlled by the statute fixing venue of suits for the recovery of land. Burkitt v. Wynne (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 816.

Tested by the averments of a petition, a suit for damages for breach of contract to convey lands, for specific performance, for damages, and for judgment and title and possession held a suit for specific performance, and not in the alternative for possession, and as such to require the court to sustain a defendant's plea of privilege to be tried in the county of his residence. Garrison v. Stokes (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 898.

Objections and waiver.—See notes at head of article.

15. Breach of warranty.—In breach of warranty of title to lands, where the vendors liable thereon live in different counties, the plaintiff may bring his action in any county where either of such vendors reside, and join all other vendors in one and the same suit. [Acts of 1887, p. 69.]

16. Suits for divorce.—Suits for divorce from the bonds of matrimony shall be brought in the county in which the plaintiff, whether husband or wife, shall have resided for six months next preceding the bringing of the suit. [Act May 27, 1873, p. 117.]

Application of statute.—See Jones v. Jones, 60 T. 451.

This statute and subdivision do not apply where the suit is to annul a contract of marriage on the ground of mental incapacity of one of the parties at the time of entering into the contract. Schneider v. Rabb, 100 T. 211, 97 S. W. 463, 464.

In a suit for divorce, residence in the county where the suit is brought for six months next preceding the bringing of the suit, as required by subdivision 16 and article 4632, must be alleged and proved. McLean v. Randell (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1116.

17. Injunctions, etc.—When the suit is brought to enjoin the execution of a judgment or to stay proceedings in any suit, in which case the suit shall be brought in the county in which such judgment was rendered or in which such suit is pending. [Act May 13, 1846. P. D. 3932.]

Application in general.—Scire facias to revive a judgment is a continuation of the same suit, and the jurisdiction is where the original judgment was rendered, regardless of the residence of the defendants. Schmidtke v. Miller, 71 T. 103, 8 S. W. 638.

A suit to vacate a judgment and set aside a sale of land made thereunder must be instituted in the court by which the judgment was rendered. If the judgment is an absolute nullity from want of jurisdiction, suit may be brought in the county where the land is situated. Bender v. Damon, 72 T. 92, 9 S. W. 747.

A void judgment may be attacked collaterally in any court. Id.

This provision and article 4653, post, apply to injunctions restraining the execution of a judgment, and not to an injunction restraining the sale of property claimed to be exempt from execution. Van Ratcliff v. Call, 72 T. 491, 10 S. W. 578.

Law requiring proceedings to enjoin the execution of a judgment to be brought in the court wherein it was rendered does not apply to a suit to enjoin a sale under a levy on land claimed as a homestead. Fannin County Bank v. Lowenstein (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 316.

A defendant, in a suit to enjoin a sale under a levy on land claimed as homestead, is entitled to the privilege of having the suit brought in the county of his residence. Id.

A suit to enjoin a foreclosure sale held not required to be brought in the county in which the decree was rendered. D. June & Co. v. Doke, 35 C. A. 240, 80 S. W. 402.

This section fixes the venue to stay proceedings in any suit, in the county where the suit is pending. Turner v. Patterson, 54 C. A. 581, 118 S. W. 568.

Subdivision 17 and article 4653, apply only when suit is to restrain execution of a judgment because of some infirmity in the judgment or the writ, or where some equity has arisen since the judgment which should prevent enforcement, and does not apply where the injunction is only to prevent sale of exempt property, in which case suit may be brought in any court having jurisdiction of the subject-matter in the county in which any defendant resides or in which the property, if realty, is situated. Parsons v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1084.

Under subdivision 17, a suit to restrain enforcement of a judgment rendered in a county of which the judgment creditor was a resident, brought in another county against such judgment creditor, and the sheriff of the latter county holding in his hands an execution on the judgment, could not be maintained in so far as it sought to restrain proceedings on the judgment. Lyons Bros. Co. v. Corley (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 603.

On appeal from action to enjoin execution on a judgment, defendant's plea of residence in another county and request for a change of venue held not waived. Ferguson v. Fain (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1184.

Under subdivisions 17 and 30, an action by one against whom judgment has been rendered in a district court for the county in which plaintiff in that action resided, to enjoin execution thereon by the sheriff on the ground that such judgment has been paid off in the settlement of subsequent litigation, must be brought in the county in which the judgment was obtained. Id.

Complainant having been awarded certain attorney's fees in gambling prosecutions in K. county against residents of H. county, B., as their assignee, sued in a justice court of H. county to recover a part of such allowance as excessive. While such suit was pending, complainant instituted suit in K. county against the justice, B., and his attorney to restrain a further prosecution of the suit, alleging that all the defendants resided in H. county. Held, under subdivision 17, that the suit was improperly brought in K. county, and that defendants' plea of special privilege should have been granted. Murchison v. Kulawik (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 354.

Parties to suit or judgment.—Hendrick v. Cannon, 2 T. 259; Winnie v. Grayson, 3 T. 429; Cook v. Baldridge, 39 T. 250; Hugo & Smitzer v. Dignowitty, 1 App. C. C. § 158; George v. Dyer, 1 App. C. C. § 780. When the injunction is obtained by one not a party to the judgment, the suit can be brought in the county of defendant's residence. Brown v. Young, 1 App. C. C. § 1241.

Where there is an administration or a necessity for one, a money judgment must be enforced through the probate court. Where heirs are proper parties, judgment can be rendered against them not exceeding assets received. Schmidtke v. Miller, 71 T. 103, 8 S. W. 638.

Upon a defendant dying in a proceeding to revive a money judgment, the legal representatives are necessary parties, and the heirs are only proper parties in such suit where there is shown to be no administration nor need of one. Id.

A suit to enjoin the sale of land under a judgment to which the owner was not a party may be brought in the county in which the land is situate. Huggins v. White, 27 S. W. 1066, 7 C. A. 563.

An injunction will be granted to restrain the sale under execution of land belonging to one not a party to the suit. Wofford v. Booker, 10 C. A. 171, 30 S. W. 67.

Action to enjoin execution of judgment against lands not belonging to judgment defendant need not be brought in county where judgment was rendered. McCargo v. Smith, 23 C. A. 714, 58 S. W. 188.

A suit to restrain the sale of property under a judgment foreclosing a mechanic's lien, brought by one claiming under a deed of trust executed by the owner, is properly brought in the county where the levy on the real estate is made, and where one of the defendants resides. Kinsey v. Spurlin (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 122.

A suit by a stranger to a judgment to enjoin a sale of property levied on under an execution issued under the judgment held properly brought in the county where the property is situated. Seeligson v. Gifford, 46 C. A. 566, 103 S. W. 416.

A cross-bill filed by a defendant in a suit by a stranger to a judgment to restrain the sale of property levied on under an execution issued under the judgment held to set up matter constituting an original suit, so as to entitle the stranger to insist on his right to have the same determined in the court of the county of his residence. Id.

Objections and waiver.—See notes at head of article.

18. To revise proceedings of the county court in probate matters.—Suits to revise the proceedings of the county court in matters of probate must be brought in the district court of the county in which such proceedings were had. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 128, secs. 128, 130.]

19. Suits against counties.—Suits against any county shall be commenced in some court of competent jurisdiction within such county. [Act April 11, 1846. P. D. 1047.]

Control by special statute.—A suit for injunction restraining sale under execution in favor of a county is properly commenced not in that county, but in the one in which the sheriff, having charge of the sale and against whom the writ is granted has his domicile as provided specially by article 4653. A special provision in one statute will control over a general provision in another. Little v. Griffin, 33 C. A. 515, 77 S. W. 635.

Division of county.—The district court of a county held to have jurisdiction to determine a claim of such county against each of two other counties taken therefrom. Jeff Davis County v. City Nat. Bank, 22 C. A. 157, 54 S. W. 39.

20. Heads of departments.—Suits for mandamus against the heads of any of the departments of the state government shall be brought in the district court of the county in which the seat of government may be. [P. D. 1407.]

21. Forfeiture of charters granted by the legislature.—Suits in behalf of the state for the forfeiture of the charters of private corporations chartered by act of the legislature, shall be commenced in the district court of the county in which the seat of government may be. [Act Aug. 21, 1876, p. 312, sec. 2.]

22. Forfeiture of charters, under general incorporation law, for certain purposes.—Suits brought by the state for the purpose of forfeiting the charter of a private corporation, organized under the laws of this state, and for the purpose of cancelling the permit authorizing a foreign corporation to transact business in this state, and for the purpose of restraining corporations from exercising powers not conferred upon them by the laws of this state, and for the purpose of preventing persons from engaging in business in the state of Texas, contrary to the laws thereof, may be instituted in the proper court of the county in which the seat of government may be. [Acts 1903, p. 118.]

23. Suits to set aside fraudulent alienations of lands granted to railway companies.—Suits on behalf of the state to forfeit land fraudulently or colorably alienated by railway companies in fraud of the rights of the state, under the laws granting lands to railway companies, shall be brought in the county in which the seat of government may be. [Const., art. 14, sec. 5.]

Cited, McCammant v. Webb, 147 S. W. 693.

24. Private corporations, associations, etc.—Suits against any private corporation, association or joint stock company may be commenced in any county in which the cause of action, or a part thereof, arose, or in which such corporation, association or company has an agency or representative, or in which its principal office is situated. And suits against a railroad corporation, or against any assignee, trustee or receiver operating its railway, may also be brought in any county through or into which the railroad of such corporation extends or is operated. Suits against receivers of persons and corporations may also be brought as provided for in article 2147. [Act March 21, 1874, p. 31. P. D. 6011f, 6011h. Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879. Acts of 1887, p. 122.]

Application in general.—See notes ante, under subdivision 7.

A suit in this state by a widow for damages for the negligent killing of her husband in the state of Arkansas will not be heard for want of jurisdiction. Willis v. Railway Co., 61 T. 434, 48 Am. Rep. 301; Railway Co. v. Richards, 68 T. 375, 4 S. W. 627; Railway Co. v. McCormick, 71 T. 660, 9 S. W. 540, 1 L. R. A. 804.

This subdivision applies to suits for damages against a railway company. St. L. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Traweek, 84 T. 65, 19 S. W. 370. A New York life insurance company is within this article. Insurance Co. v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 910.

Suit against a railroad company for growing trees destroyed must be brought in the county where the land lies. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Foster (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 198.

An action against a railway company for negligently killing stock on its track is not local, but transitory. Porter v. El Paso Southwestern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 927.

This subdivision does not apply where the suit is against the receivers of a corporation and not against the corporation itself. Kirby Lumber Co.'s Receivers v. McLendon, 56 C. A. 279, 120 S. W. 228.

Agency, representative or office.—Under the act of 1885, similar in its terms to the law now in force, it was held that suit could be brought against a foreign corporation in the county in which it had an agency or representative, without alleging that its principal office was in such county. Bradstreet Co. v. Gill, 72 T. 115, 9 S. W. 753, 2 L. R. A. 405, 13 Am. St. Rep. 768; Hunt v. Railway Co. (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 460.

A suit is properly brought in a county where the vice-president resides with his family and transacts much of the company's business and the company's official guide indicates such county to be his official address. Gulf, B. & K. C. Ry. Co. v. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 692.

A passenger, entering a sleeping car at a station in Texas to go to a point in Mexico, may sue for violation of the contract in a county in Texas in which the car company has an agent, though the fare was not collected until the train entered Mexico, and neither plaintiff nor defendant resides in such state. Pullman Palace-Car Co. v. Arents, 28 C. A. 71, 66 S. W. 329.

The president of corporation, having the powers and authority usually incident to that office, is a representative of the corporation in the sense in which that term is used in this article, and the venue is properly laid in the county in which he lives, when, whatever duties he performed as such president he performed in that county. Sharp v. Damon Mound Oil Co., 31 C. A. 562, 72 S. W. 1043.

Representative capacity of president of corporation, as fixing venue of suits, held not affected by fact that he performed very few official acts. Id.

Representative capacity of president of corporation, as fixing venue of suits, held not affected by private understanding that the other officers were to do all the work. Id.

In an action against a railroad, evidence held to show that defendant had an agency in the county where the action was brought authorizing its prosecution therein under this subdivision. Southern Pac. Co. v. Godfrey, 48 C. A. 616, 107 S. W. 1135.

Where all of the several carriers joined as defendants in an action for damages to live stock are shown to be partners and agents of each other, and to have had a common agent in the county where the action is brought, they are all subject to the jurisdiction of the district court of that county. Eastern Ry. Co. of New Mexico v. Littlefield (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1086.

The local agent of defendant, a foreign railroad company, was served with process in an action for injuries. Held, under the evidence, that under subdivisions 24 and 28 the agent was the local agent within the statute, hence plaintiff, a nonresident, had the right to bring and maintain the action in the county where process was served. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Kiser (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 852.

Plaintiff, suing a corporation in a county other than its domicile, held required to show clearly that it had an agency in that county. Cannel Coal Co. v. Luna (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 721.

The right to sue a corporation in another county than that of its domicile is for the benefit of the plaintiff, and to entitle him to such a venue he must clearly present the facts necessary to show that the corporation has an agency or representative in the county in which the suit is brought. Id.

A petition in a suit by a county and a city and citizens of the city to restrain a railroad company from removing its machine shops, roundhouses, and general offices from the city held not to allege that defendant's domicile is in the county, so as to deprive it of its right to have the case tried in the county of its domicile. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

Venue in a suit to restrain a railroad company from moving its general offices, shops, etc., to another county in violation of a contract held to have been properly laid in the county where the petition claimed the railroad company's offices and shops were lawfully located. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Sup.) 156 S. W. 499.

Railroad line within county.—In a suit against the G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. in W. county for loss of baggage, the defendant alleged that the loss occurred on the Mo. Pac. Ry. Co., a connecting line, and made that company a party defendant. A plea of privilege of the Mo. Pac. Ry. Co., that it did not operate its road in W. county, and had no office or agent therein, was properly sustained. Railway Co. v. Jackson, 4 App. C. C. § 47, 15 S. W. 128.

A railroad company incorporated under act of congress is a domestic corporation in the sense that it can be sued in a county through which its line extends. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Weatherby, 41 C. A. 409, 92 S. W. 59, 60.

Under subdivision 24 and article 2088, a petition for a writ of error which alleges that defendant, a domestic railroad corporation, has a line of railroad extending through the county in which the action was brought with a designated local agent and an attorney of record residing in the county, sufficiently shows the residence of defendant to give the clerk of court the required information on which to issue the proper citation and to have the same served on the proper party. Padgitt v. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co., 104 T. 249, 136 S. W. 442.

A petition in an action by a county and a city and citizens of the city to restrain a railroad company from removing from the city certain railroad establishments held to state a cause of action for the specific performance of a contract for the maintenance of such establishments in the city; the injunction prayed for being only ancillary, so that the action is maintainable in a county in which defendant has a line of road. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

Place of contract or performance.—The "cause of action," as those words are used in this subdivision of the statute, consists not only of the right which plaintiff has, but of the injury thereto; thus, when there is a breach of contract which by its terms was to have been performed in any particular county, a cause of action arose there, and the defendant can be sued there. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Hill, 63 T. 381, 51 Am. Rep. 642; Cotton Press v. Bradley, 52 T. 587.

Where a party performs services for a corporation on its ranch, suit for pay therefor can be brought in the county in which the ranch is located. Gay Ranch Co. v. Rowland (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1086.

Contract with private corporation can be sued on in the county where it is to be performed. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Browne, 27 C. A. 437, 66 S. W. 343.

A cause of action growing out of a breach of contract arises in part in the county in which the contract was made, although the breach may wholly occur in a different county. A cause of action consists of the right of the plaintiff, as well as of the injury to that right, and when the right arises from or is based upon a contract such right comes into existence at the time and place of the making of the contract, and it follows necessarily that a cause of action growing out of a breach of contract arises or comes into existence, in part, at the place at which the contract was made. Mangum v. Lane City Rice Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 605, 606.

Where plaintiff corporation residing in Hunt county made a contract with defendant corporation residing in Wilson county through brokers for delivery of oil in former county, part of the contract at least was to be performed in Hunt county and venue was properly laid in that county. Floresville Oil & Mfg. Co. v. Texas Refining Co., 55 C. A. 78, 118 S. W. 196.

Plaintiff, from its office in G. county, by telephone, agreed with defendant's manager at its office in F. county to sell cotton seed delivered f. o. b. in G. county, payable in F. county by draft with bill of lading attached, the seller to pay the freight and to sell cotton seed from other points and divert it to F. county. Held, that under subdivision 24 the "cause of action" comprehended the agreement between the parties, its performance by one, and its breach by the other, and that the acts to be done under the agreement constituted a performance in F. county, so that no cause of action "arose" in G. county; and hence that the defendant was entitled to a change of venue. Planters' Cotton Oil Co. v. Whitesboro Cotton Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 225.

Under subdivision 24, an action against a corporation on an account, for grain purchased was properly brought by an assignee of the account in the county in which the grain was purchased, and the draft was drawn by the seller on the buyer, though the buying corporation had residence in another county. Kell Milling Co. v. Bank of Miami (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 325.

Objections and waiver.—See notes at head of article.

25. Suits for damages against two or more railroad, etc., companies or receivers, etc.—Whenever any passenger, freight, baggage or other property has been transported by two or more railroad companies, express companies, steamship or steamboat companies, transportation companies, or common carriers of any kind or name whatsoever, or by any assignee, lessee, trustee or receiver thereof, or partly by one or more such companies, or common carriers, and partly by one or more assignees, lessees, trustees or receivers thereof, operating or doing business as such common carriers in this state, or having agents or representatives in this state, suit for damage, or loss, or for any other cause of action arising out of such carriage, transportation or contract in relation thereto, may be brought against any one or all of such common carriers, assignees, lessees, trustees or receivers so operating or doing business in this state, or having agents or representatives in this state, in any court of competent jurisdiction, in any county in which either of such common carriers, assignees, lessees, trustees or receivers operates or does business, or has an agent or representative; provided, however, that, if damages be recovered in such suits against more than one defendant not partners in such carriage, transportation or contract, the same shall, on request of either party, be apportioned between the defendants, by the verdict of the jury, or, if no jury is demanded, then by the judgment of the court. [Acts 1899, p. 214. Acts 1905, p. 29.]

Cited, Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Langbehn (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1188.

Injury to freight or other property.—A shipper may sue several railroads, partners in transporting stock, in the county of the residence of any one of the roads. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Graves (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1103.

Jurisdiction cannot be obtained over a foreign corporation, in a county where it has no agency and where its domicile is in a different county, by joining another railroad as codefendant which has part of its railroad in such county. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Edmisson (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 635.

In an action against two carriers for damages to stock shipped, held, that there was no joint liability, and hence the court had no jurisdiction over one of the carriers, whose line did not run through the county in which the suit was brought. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 600.

The language of this act (of 1899) is sufficiently comprehensive to fix liability on all carriers concerned in the transportation of property on a through shipment for damages to such property no matter on which line over which the property was transported the damage occurred, even though the road against which judgment was rendered had no office in the county of judgment. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Jones, 26 C. A. 167, 62 S. W. 1076.

The whole amount of damages sustained are first to be ascertained from the facts and then apportioned as justly and nearly as may be among the different roads over whose lines the property was transported (unless the companies were partners in the shipment) and judgment given against each company for the amount apportioned against it. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Cushny (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 796.

Action can be brought against one carrier alone although such carrier's road does not extend into the county where the suit is brought, if either of the roads that can be sued extends or is operated in the county. Texas & Pac. Ry. Co. v. Middleton, 27 C. A. 481, 65 S. W. 379.

When one of the connecting lines violates contract of shipment made with the initial carrier, suit may be brought against it for damages in any county through which any one of the connecting lines runs. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 67.

The purpose of this act was to relieve the shipper of the difficulty of ascertaining how much of the damage was chargeable to one company and how much to another, and provide for a joint action against all the carriers where there was a reasonable probability that each was responsible for some part of the whole damage. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Lynch, 97 T. 25, 75 S. W. 488.

The purpose of this act was to relieve shippers of the necessity of determining how much damage was done on one road and how much on another, and to provide a joint action against all the carriers when there was a reasonable probability that each was responsible for some part of the whole damage. Although the shipper accompanied the stock, he could not know, before the facts were developed, how much of the damage was caused by each road. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Murtishaw, 34 C. A. 447, 78 S. W. 954.

In a case of through shipment over connecting lines, where two of the roads operate in Texas, venue will lie in any county through which either extends or operates. G. C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Pitts & Son, 37 C. A. 212, 83 S. W. 729.

This law means that suit may be brought against any one or all of the connecting carriers claimed to be liable for damages to property carried by them in any county in which the railroad of either of them (that is, of those claimed to be liable) extends or is operated, and the situation or operation of the railroad of a company not sued, and not alleged in any manner to be liable for damages does not affect the venue. M., K. & T. Ry. v. Bumpas, 38 C. A. 410, 85 S. W. 1047.

Where suit is brought in a case of through shipment, in a county through which one of the roads runs, and the petition alleges joint and several liability and prays for joint and several damages, venue is not defeated because no liability is shown and no recovery is had against the road running through the county in which suit is brought, when no affirmative fraud is shown in the joinder. The mere fact that no liability is shown of the road relied on for jurisdiction, is not of itself sufficient to prove fraudulent joinder. A., T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Williams, 38 C. A. 405, 86 S. W. 39.

An inability to allege in the petition the precise amount of damages done by each of the carriers engaged in the transportation seems to have been the reason for the enactment of this law of venue. The purpose of the act is to provide a joint action against all of the carriers where there is a reasonable probability that each is liable for some part of the whole damage. Id.

Where all the railroads sued are named as connecting carriers, and participated in the transportation, and the petition alleges that one of the companies had an agent in the county of the suit, and there was no plea of privilege other than by demurrer, the petition brings the case within the letter and spirit of this act. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Allen, 39 C. A. 236, 87 S. W. 169.

To give venue under this law in a case of stock shipment two facts must appear; (1) That the corporation operated a part of its road in the state and had an agent in the state; (2) that the stock was shipped over the road. Jurisdiction is not obtained under this law of a road which refused to receive the shipment. It might be obtained in a proper case under subd. 4. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. McKnight, 99 T. 289, 89 S. W. 757, 758.

This act was not intended in any way to affect the rights of the parties under the contract made between them, but in one action to enforce such contract according to its terms, against all the participants in the transportation of the freight. Excepting all such defendants as were partners, either in the contract or in the shipment from the operation of the proviso, shows that the apportionment of the damages was to be made only between defendants who are separately liable to plaintiff. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Elliott & Dial, 99 T. 286, 89 S. W. 768.

In an action against an initial carrier for damages to a shipment in transportation, the plea of privilege of a connecting carrier held properly sustained. American Refrigerator Transit Co. v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 243.

Plaintiff held not warranted in making certain railroads parties defendant to an action against another road, merely for the purpose of depriving the latter road of its privilege of being sued in the county wherein it had an agent. Gilvin v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 130.

The act 1905 does not impose such burden upon interstate commerce, as distinguished from commerce within the state, as amounts to an infringement upon the power of congress to regulate interstate commerce, and is not invalid on this account. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Wester (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 773.

This act is constitutional and valid. Texas Central Ry. Co. v. Marrs, 100 T. 530, 101 S. W. 1177, 1178; St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 677; St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Moon, 47 C. A. 209, 103 S. W. 1177.

Suit can be brought in any county through which either road runs or has an agent. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cunningham, 51 C. A. 368, 113 S. W. 772; Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Shivel & Stewart (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 197.

A belt line railway company, chartered as a railroad company, owning four or five locomotives and one flat car and about 14 or 15 miles of track, which makes connection with various railroad companies, and switches cars for these companies to stockyards and other railroad connections, but which has no depot or loading facilities, furnishes no cars, makes no charges to shippers or contract with them, and is paid for its services by the railroad companies, is not a "common carrier" within the meaning of this subdivision. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Henson, 56 C. A. 468, 121 S. W. 1127.

Under subdivision 25 suit against two companies was properly brought in a particular county where a cause of action was stated against both companies and one of them operated through the county, though the other did not, and had no representative there, in the absence of a showing that the first-mentioned company was joined for the fraudulent purpose of conferring jurisdiction against the other. Southern Pac. Co. v. W. T. Meadors & Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 170.

A belt line railway company having 5 engines and 12 or 15 miles of track, whose business is to intercept cattle traffic some distance from stockyards and transport it over its own line to the yards, for which it is paid by the railroad company employing it to do so, is a "transportation company," within subdivision 25. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Henson, 103 T. 598, 132 S. W. 118.

Defendant railroad company, not operating in this state, but having an agent at Galveston, could under subdivision 25 be sued in Mitchell county, where its connecting carrier had an office and agent and through which such connecting road was operated. Southern Pac. R. Co. v. W. T. Meadors & Co., 104 T. 469, 140 S. W. 427.

The object of subdivision 25 is to relieve the shipper of the burden of proving the damages accruing on each line; the initial carrier being liable to him for all damages, and the apportionment being necessary only as between the two carriers. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Young (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1113.

Under subdivision 25, a suit may be brought against any one or all of the carriers in any county in which either is operating its road, without joining as a defendant a carrier whose line extends into the county where the suit is brought, or which has a local agent or its principal office in such county. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Langbehn (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1188.

Injuries to passengers.—The principal difference between this act and the act of 1899 is in the addition of the word "passenger" to this act. This law does not fix or create any liability, but is only a venue statute. The language of this law is clear and unambiguous and means that where a party buys a ticket over two connecting lines from an agent of the initial carrier in a county in which it operates its road, maintains an office, or has an agent and is injured on the connecting line he can sue both roads in the county where he made the contract of transportation, that is the county in which he bought the ticket. Blanks v. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 378; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Sizemore, 53 C. A. 491, 116 S. W. 405.

Under subdivision 25, where a passenger had a ticket over two roads, he could bring an action, for injuries received during transportation, in any court which had jurisdiction ordinarily over either of the companies. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Blanks, 103 T. 191, 125 S. W. 312.

Objections and waiver.—This statute like any other of its class is one of personal privilege and can be and is waived by the defendant voluntarily appearing and filing demurrer and answer. Galveston, H. & S. Ry. Co. v. Baumgarten, 31 C. A. 253, 72 S. W. 79.

26. Suits for personal injuries, against railroad corporations, assignees, receivers, etc.—All suits against railroad corporations, or against any assignee, trustee or receiver operating any railway in the state of Texas, for damages arising from personal injuries, resulting in death or otherwise, shall be brought either in the county in which the injury occurred, or in the county in which the plaintiff resided at the time of the injury; provided, that if the defendant railroad corporation does not run or operate its railway in, or through, the county in which the plaintiff resided at the time of the injury, and has no agent in said county, then said suit shall be brought either in the county in which the injury occurred, or in the county nearest that in which the plaintiff resided at the time of the injury, in which the defendant corporation runs or operates its road, or has an agent; and provided, further, that, in case that the plaintiff is a non-resident of the state of Texas, then such suit may be brought in any county in which the defendant corporation may run or operate its railroad, or may have an agent; provided, that, when an injury occurs within one-half mile from the boundary line dividing two counties, suit may be brought in either of said counties. [Acts 1901, p. 31.]

Application in general.—Where plaintiff shipped stock over connecting lines and was to receive return transportation and defendant refused to honor his contract and ejected him from its train, an action, brought by him on account of such ejection was one for personal injuries within the meaning of the statute. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Lynch, 97 T. 25, 75 S. W. 488; S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Dolan (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 304.

A railroad having its domicile in the state in one county can be sued in another county for damages arising out of a contract for shipment over its own lines and those of another road having an agent in the latter county. St. L., I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. J. H. White & Co. (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 947.

A suit cannot be brought against two railway companies in a county in which the railroad of neither extends or is operated; that is, in a county where the railroad of a third carrier which is not sued or in any manner liable for the damages claimed, extends or is operated. A., T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Forbis (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1075.

An action against a railroad company for personal injury received outside of the state may be brought in a county in the state through which the company operates its railroad. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gibson, 42 C. A. 306, 93 S. W. 469.

This law is not invalid in that it imposes burdens on interstate commerce as distinguished from commerce within the state and is constitutional. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Boshear (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1035.

Where a foreign railway company operates its trains over a road in Texas belonging to a home company, service of citation on a conductor of such foreign company in Texas is good and gives the court jurisdiction over the foreign company. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Sizemore, 53 C. A. 491, 116 S. W. 405, 406.

Under this statute, suits for carrying a passenger past his destination may be brought either in the county where the injury occurred or where plaintiff resided at the time of the injury. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Ward (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 130.

Residence.—Evidence merely that an employé had worked for several weeks in the county where he was injured did not establish his "residence" in such county, under the statute relating to venue in such actions. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cloyd (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 43.

Where one working for a railway company moves about from place to place in Texas as he finds employment, and accepts positions for an indefinite length of time intending to remain as long as the work suits him or until he voluntarily quits or is discharged, and claims no home in Texas but in another state, where he intends at some indefinite time to return and reside permanently, and is injured; in a suit for damages the venue is properly laid in the county where plaintiff is stopping at the time and makes headquarters, and eats and sleeps and has his washing done, or in the county in which the injury occurred, and not in another. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rogers, 37 C. A. 99, 82 S. W. 823.

Residence as used in this law means a fixed and permanent abode or dwelling place for the time being as contradistinguished from a mere temporary locality of existence. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Elder, 44 C. A. 605, 99 S. W. 856.

Action may be brought in the county of plaintiff's permanent place of residence, though temporarily residing elsewhere. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Overton (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 71.

See this case for facts showing that one wandering about the country and working in different places at various things, was a nonresident within the meaning of this law. Ft. W. & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Monell, 50 C. A. 287, 110 S. W. 505.

Evidence held to show that a servant suing a railroad company for personal injuries was a nonresident of the state within the venue laws. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1148.

Agency.—In an action for a wrongful ejection from defendant's train, evidence held to show that defendant controlled and operated a line of railway in the state, and had an agency in the county where the action was brought. Southern Pac. Co. v. Craner (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 534.

Merely because an agent of one road which runs through the county of plaintiff's residence has in his possession and sells tickets or coupons over another road that does not run through the county, this does not make him the agent of the latter so as to give jurisdiction over the latter in the county of plaintiff's residence. Doster v. Ft. W. & D. C. Ry. Co., 49 C. A. 47, 107 S. W. 580.

Railroads included.—The terms "operating any part of their roads in this state" mean that such corporations are transporting freight, baggage or other property within this state, over their own lines and does not embrace transfer of freight from one road to another. St. L. I. M. Ry. Co. v. White & Co., 97 T. 493, 80 S. W. 78.

This act does not apply to a railroad operated by private parties as an incident to some other business, such as lumber business or sugar manufacturing business, etc. Kirby Lumber Co.'s Receivers v. McLendon, 56 C. A. 279, 120 S. W. 228.

The word "railroad," in this act, was not limited to a commercial railroad, but included a tram road operated as appurtenant to a sawmill by receivers of the sawmill corporation, so that an action for injuries to a brakeman thereon was triable in the county where plaintiff resided and where the injury occurred, though the principal office of the receivers and corporation was in another county. Receivers of Kirby Lumber Co. v. Lloyd, 103 T. 153, 124 S. W. 903.

The district court of G. county had jurisdiction of a suit by a nonresident against a foreign railroad corporation for personal injuries, where a domestic corporation owning the part of the line in the county was a mere subcorporation, and the foreign corporation completely controlled such line. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Hale (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 411.

27. Mechanics, laborers and operatives for their wages.—Suits by mechanics, laborers and operatives, for their wages due by railroad companies, may be instituted and prosecuted in any county in this state where such labor was performed, or in which the cause of action, or part thereof, accrued, or in the county in which the principal office of such railroad company is situated; and, in all such suits, service of process may be made in the manner now required by law. [Acts of 1879, p. 8.]

28. Foreign, private or public corporations, etc.—Foreign, private or public corporations, joint stock companies or associations, not incorporated by the laws of this state, and doing business within this state, may be sued in any court within this state having jurisdiction over the subject matter, in any county where the cause of action, or a part thereof, accrued, or in any county where such company may have an agency or representative, or in the county in which the principal office of such company may be situated; or, when the defendant corporation has no agent or representative in the state, then in the county where the plaintiffs, or either of them, reside. [Acts of 1887, p. 131.]

Application in general.—Where a party brings suit for damages arising from a sale of goods made to him through false representations by an agent of a corporation, he can bring suit in the county in which the false representations were made and the contract obtained, although the order or contract had afterwards to be approved in another county by the corporation and the goods shipped from there. McCord-Collins Commerce Co. v. Levl, 21 C. A. 109, 50 S. W. 606.

Jurisdiction cannot be obtained over a foreign corporation in a county where it has no agency and where its domicile is in a different county, by joining another railroad as codefendant which has a part of its railroad in such county. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Edmisson (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 635.

A cause of action is made up of the contract and the breach of it. The contract having been made and entered into between the parties in a county in Texas (for its approval by an executive officer of the corporation of another state related to the time and place it was made and was only a ratification of it) a part of it accrued or arose in that county, and the venue was properly laid in that county, although the local agent on whom service was obtained resided in another county. Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co. v. Troell (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 326.

Foreign corporation may plead privilege of being sued in proper county, as may any other defendant. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Forbis, 35 C. A. 293, 79 S. W. 1074.

A railroad company incorporated under the acts of congress is not a foreign corporation in the sense that it must be sued in a county in which it has an agency or representative, or in which its principal office is situated. It can be sued in a county through which its line runs. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Weatherby, 41 C. A. 409, 92 S. W. 59, 60.

By "agency" or "representative" as used in this subdivision is meant a fixed or permanent agency in the county in which the suit is instituted. This subdivision is an exception to the general rule that no person an inhabitant of this state shall be sued out of the county in which he has his domicile, and has reference to foreign corporations, joint stock companies or associations alone, and has provisions peculiar to those corporations. Bay City Iron Works v. Reeves & Co., 43 C. A. 254, 95 S. W. 740.

Whether a foreign railway corporation, sued for injuries to an employé received outside of the state, did business or had an agent in the county where the suit was brought and process served, is a question of fact. Southern Pac. Co. v. Allen, 48 C. A. 66, 106 S. W. 441.

The venue of suits against foreign corporations is fixed by this article and subdivision. The fact that a foreign corporation gets a permit to do business in this state and establishes its principal office in Dallas county does not require it to be sued in justice precinct No. 1 of Dallas county. Coca-Cola Co. v. Allison, 52 C. A. 54, 113 S. W. 309.

Where a foreign railroad corporation is operating a railroad across the state of Texas and has an agent there, it may be sued therein, under subdivision 28. Southern Pac. Co. v. Blake (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 668.

Under this subdivision a foreign live stock insurance company could not be sued on a policy in the county of plaintiff's residence, where the company did not have a representative or office therein, and the insured animal did not die there. Indiana & Ohio Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Krenek (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1181.

Suit by nonresidents.—Parties not residing in this state may bring an action in the courts of this state against a foreign corporation doing business in this state. W. U. Tel. Co. v. Clark, 14 C. A. 563, 38 S. W. 225.

29. Fire, marine, life and accident insurance companies.—Suits against fire, marine or inland insurance companies may also be commenced in any county in which any part of the insured property was situated; and suits against life and accident insurance companies or associations may also be commenced in the county in which the persons insured, or any of them, resided at the time of such death or injury. [Act April 17, 1874, p. 107. P. D. 6011f.]

30. Venue prescribed by particular law.—Whenever, in any law authorizing or regulating any particular character of action, the venue is expressly prescribed, the suit shall be commenced in the county to which jurisdiction may be so expressly given.

Venue expressly given.—Since subdivision 6 expressly provides the venue of suits against administrators on money demands, such section controls subdivision 4, so that a suit against an administrator on a money demand must under the requirements of subdivision 30 be brought in the county where the estate is being administered, and not in the county where one of the defendants resides. Dickson v. Scharff (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 980.

Under subdivision 17 and in view of this subdivision held that an action by one against whom judgment has been rendered in a district court for the county in which plaintiff in that action resided, to enjoin execution thereon by the sheriff on the ground that such judgment has been paid off in the settlement of subsequent litigation, must be brought in the county in which the judgment was obtained. Ferguson v. Fain (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1184.

Under subdivision 30 and articles 4652, 4653, a suit against a railroad company for injunctive relief only can only be brought in the county in which the corporation has its domicile. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Anderson County (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 239.

Art. 1831. Issuing process and taking depositions, no waiver of plea; use of deposition; cause transferred when; costs.—Issuing process for witnesses and taking depositions shall not constitute a waiver of a plea of privilege, but depositions taken in such case may be read in evidence in any subsequent suit between the same parties concerning the same subject-matter in like manner as if taken in such subsequent suit. [Acts 1907, p. 248.]

See, also, notes at head of Art. 1830.

Cited, Wolf v. Sahm (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 733; Indiana & Ohio Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Krenek (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1181; Birge v. Lovelady (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1194; Kirkpatrick v. San Angelo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 362.

Waiver in connection with depositions.—Where defendant filed a plea of privilege to be sued in another county, and entered into a stipulation as to the evidence that should be considered thereon, the filing of a motion to suppress a deposition taken by plaintiff was a waiver of that plea, since, as the deposition could not be considered in passing on the plea, defendant could not contend that the motion to suppress was only to preclude the use of matter in it affecting the question of privilege. Howe Grain & Mercantile Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 656.

Art. 1832. If plea sustained, no dismissal, but transfer.—If a plea of privilege is sustained, the cause shall not be dismissed, but the court shall transfer said cause to the court having jurisdiction of the person of the defendant therein; and the costs incurred prior to the time such suit is filed in the court to which said cause is transferred shall be taxed against the plaintiff. [Id.]

Transfer.—Where a cause is transferred from one district court to another, in which it is tried, the order of transfer and proceedings in the court in which such order is entered, certified by the clerk, become ipso facto a part of the record of the cause. Southern Pac. Co. v. Winton, 27 C. A. 503, 66 S. W. 477.

Under this act, held that, where an action for conversion was brought in the wrong county, the court upon sustaining defendants' pleas of privilege to the venue should order the case to be transferred to the proper court and county. Brant v. Lane, 54 C. A. 425, 118 S. W. 229.

The appellate court could not give effect to the statute prohibiting the dismissal of an action because of the improper overruling of a plea of privilege; it appearing that plaintiff had no right of action against the privileged defendant, but would reverse and dismiss as to privileged defendants. Ft. Worth Horse & Mule Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 200.

If, in an action for damages for the sale of inferior hay, brought against the seller and the railroad companies transporting the hay, it appeared that the carriers were not negligent, a verdict was properly directed for them, though the case was transferred to another county for trial on the plea of privilege of the other defendant, there being nothing prohibiting such action in this article or article 1833. McCoy v. Pafford (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 968.

Where plaintiff joined as defendant a party who was clearly entitled to a change of venue to another county, and did not dismiss as to such party, the court, having no power to dismiss as against that party, properly transferred the suit as to all parties, especially where the other parties defendants had pleaded privilege to be sued in such other county. Garrison v. Stokes (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 898.

The court sustaining a plea of privilege must, as required by this article, transfer the cause to the proper county, and may not dismiss it. Ragland v. Guarantee Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1187, following Luter v. Ihnken (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 675.

—— Justices of the peace.—Under this and article 1833 where plea of privilege to be sued in proper precinct is sustained, the court should order the case transferred to the proper precinct. This law applies to justices' courts by virtue of article 2400. Kramer v. Lilley, 55 C. A. 339, 118 S. W. 736.

Art. 1833. When plea sustained, order changing venue, record transmitted.—Whenever a plea of privilege to the venue, to be sued in some other county than the county in which the suit is pending, shall be sustained, the court shall order the venue to be changed to the proper court of the county having jurisdiction of the parties and the cause; and the clerk shall make up a transcript of all the orders made in said cause, certifying thereto officially under the seal of the court, and transmit the same, with the original papers in the cause, to the clerk of the court to which the venue has been changed; provided, that nothing herein shall prevent an appeal from the judgment of the court sustaining a plea of privilege. Transfer in general.—Under this article and under Acts 1st Called Sess. 31st Leg. c. 34, creating for Tarrant county a court designated as the "county court of Tarrant county for civil cases," with jurisdiction of civil cases other than probate matters to the exclusion of the "county court of Tarrant county," and also making the county clerk the clerk of the new court, held, that where a cause for goods sold brought in another county was, on a plea of privilege, transferred to the "county court of Tarrant county," the county clerk of that county properly filed and docketed the suit in the county court of Tarrant county for civil cases; the improper designation of the court being a mere irregularity not depriving the proper court of the jurisdiction vested in it by law. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mill v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 294.

Under this article it is error, in sustaining such a plea, to dismiss the suit. Burgess v. Young County Abstract & Title Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 643.

Several defendants.—Where nonresident individuals, joined as defendants with a corporation in an action begun in the county in which it had its place of business, filed pleas of privilege to be sued in the county of their residence and of misjoinder of actions and parties, the court properly acted first on the plea of privilege, and determined whether the petition stated one cause of action against the individuals and the corporation, or causes of action so blended as to make them inseparable, and its action on adjudging that the cause of action against the corporation was severable from that alleged against the individuals in changing the venue of the case against the individuals to the county of their residence in compliance with Rev. St. 1895, art. 1194c, added by Acts 30th Leg. c. 133, was proper. Moorhouse v. King County Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 883.

Where a plaintiff filed an amended petition, wherein he joined two persons residing in another county as defendants, and one of them filed a plea of privilege to be sued in the county of his residence, and the plea was sustained, the court must, as required by this article, transfer the entire cause to the proper county, especially where the codefendant had previously filed a plea of privilege. Luter v. Ihnken (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 675.

If, in an action for damages for the sale of inferior hay, brought against the seller and the railroad companies transporting the hay, it appeared that the carriers were not negligent, a verdict was properly directed for them, though the case was transferred to another county for trial on the plea of privilege of the other defendant, there being nothing prohibiting such action in article 1832, requiring the transfer of the cause to the court having "jurisdiction of the person of the defendant therein" if a plea of privilege to be sued in another county is sustained, or this article. McCoy v. Pafford (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 968.

Appeal.—A judgment for defendant on sustaining a plea of privilege was appealable, though not a final judgment under this act. Oakes & Witt v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 320.

Under this article, on reversal of a judgment denying a change of venue, the court of civil appeals will change the venue to the proper county instead of dismissing the case. Harris Millinery Co. v. Bryan (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 999.

Under this authorization of an appeal from a judgment sustaining a plea of privilege, such a "judgment," though interlocutory, is final for the purpose of an appeal, and is within district and county courts rule 53 (67 S. W. xxiv), providing that there shall be no bills of exception to judgments on matters which at common law constitute the record proper; and an exception to the judgment is not essential to a right of appeal, notwithstanding rule 55 (67 S. W. xxiv) requiring bills of exception to rulings on applications for a change of venue, which applies only to matters arising during the trial, from which no appeal may be taken until final judgment. Luter v. Ihnken (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 675.

Where plaintiff in an action for the conversion of a horse by an amended petition joined two persons against whom he had no right of action and who were privileged to be sued in another county, and recovered against all the defendants, the appellate court cannot, having found that the new defendants' plea of privilege was erroneously overruled, comply with the statute providing that, when a plea of privilege is sustained, the case shall be transferred to the proper court, but must affirm the judgment as to the original defendant, and reverse as to the others. Ft. Worth Horse & Mule Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 200.

Under this article a judgment sustaining such a plea of privilege is appealable. Water & Light Co. of El Campo v. El Campo Light, Ice & Water Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 259.

An order overruling defendants' pleas of privilege to be sued in the county of their residence, not being specially mentioned in articles 3445, 3446, and 3447, authorizing appeals from certain decisions, was not appealable thereunder, nor was it appealable under this article; the last article being an exception to the statutes relating to appeals generally, and to be strictly construed. Holmes v. Coalson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 661.

Art. 1834. [1195] [1199] When water course or highway is county boundary.—In all cases where any part of a river, water course, highway, road or street shall be the boundary line between two counties, the several courts of each of said counties shall have concurrent jurisdiction in all cases over such parts of said river, water course, highway, road or street as shall be the boundary of such county, in the same manner as if such parts of said river, water course, highway, road or street were within the body of such county. [Act May 11, 1846. P. D. 1421.]

CHAPTER FIVE

PARTIES TO SUITS

Article 1835. [1196] [1200] Suits by and against counties, cities, etc.—All suits brought by or against any of the counties or incorporated cities, towns or villages shall be by or against it in its corporate name. [Act Aug. 30, 1876. P. D. 1045.]

Actions by or for use of county.—The county judge is not authorized to bring suit in his own name for the use of the county. De La Garza v. Bexar County, 31 T. 484; Looscan v. Harris County, 58 T. 511.

A suit on an official bond payable to the person occupying the position of county judge, and which failed to designate his official character, could be brought in the name of the obligee for the use of the county. Smith v. Wingate, 61 T. 54.

In a suit brought by the county judge for the use of the county, his name should be stricken out as surplusage. If that is not done, his authority to bring the suit can be put in issue only by a plea in abatement. Smith v. Mosley, 74 T. 631, 12 S. W. 748.

Upon the abandonment by the county of the use of the block or site for court-house and jail, the fee having remained in the state, the state alone became entitled to the possession. No legislative act was necessary to authorize the institution of legal proceedings by the state for the recovery of the block so abandoned against persons in possession and holding adversely to the state. State v. Travis County, 85 T. 435, 21 S. W. 1029.

The county judge has authority to bring suits in his own name for the use of the county. Johnson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 682; Day v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 675.

A county which has condemned property is the real party in interest in a suit to enjoin a contractor under it from entering upon and making use of the property, and is entitled to defend such suit. Johnston v. O'Rourke & Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 501.

The county and one whom it had contracted to pay for collecting delinquent taxes held properly joined as plaintiffs in a petition for mandamus to the county tax collector to make such payments ordered by the commissioners' court. Bailey v. Aransas County, 46 C. A. 547, 102 S. W. 1159.

Where a collector of state and county taxes commingled the tax money belonging to them, whether regarded as a trust fund or as a fund jointly owned by the state and county, either the state or county, if without fault, might sue for a recovery in proportion to its interest. Boaz v. Ferrell (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 200.

Suit against county.—In mandamus to compel members of commissioners' court to approve the bond of a county judge, the successors of the commissioners and the judge appointed instead of plaintiff held necessary parties. Gouhenour v. Anderson, 35 C. A. 569, 81 S. W. 104.

Suit by city.—A city has authority to bring suit to annul a franchise granted a waterworks company upon the violation of its contract with the city and without making the state a party thereto. Palestine Water & Power Co. v. City of Palestine, 91 T. 540, 44 S. W. 814, 40 L. R. A. 203.

Suits against cities.—In mandamus to compel the payment of a judgment obtained against a city, the officers thereof held not necessary parties. City of San Antonio v. Routledge, 46 C. A. 196, 102 S. W. 756.

In an action on a contract, though defendant city was not a necessary party, its joinder under the circumstances held so manifestly proper that error in refusing to make it a party with another defendant may be reviewed on appeal. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 973.

A city was not a necessary party to mandamus against the city engineer to compel him to ascertain and disclose to relator the location of the street line in front of her premises in accordance with a city ordinance. Giraud v. Winslow (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1180.

In a suit to establish a trust in city land acquired by defendant as plaintiffs' attorney, the city and a street railway company held unnecessary parties. Henyan v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 458.

Garnishment and execution.—Property of a city not held for public purposes is subject to execution on a judgment against the city. City of Laredo v. Nalle, 65 T. 362; City of Sherman v. Williams, 84 T. 422, 19 S. W. 606, 31 Am. St. Rep. 66; City of Laredo v. Benavides (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 482.

As a general rule execution cannot be awarded to enforce a judgment against a municipal corporation, and this general rule must obtain, as we have no statute providing otherwise. City of McGregor v. Cook, 4 App. C. C. § 141, 16 S. W. 936.

Execution may run against city. Gordon v. Thorp (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 357.

Funds of a city deposited in a city depositary as provided by law cannot be subjected to the city's debts by garnishment. Capps v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Longview (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 808.

A general creditor of a city cannot subject to his debt money applicable to current expenses and insufficient therefor. Id.

Liability and consent of state to be sued.—An action against the attorney general, the state comptroller, and the state treasurer to enjoin the assessment and collection of a tax is not a suit against the state, but against the individual officers. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 436; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Stephens, Id.; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Davidson, Id.; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Same, Id.; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Stephens, Id.; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Davidson, Id., judgment reversed Stephens v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 100 T. 177, 97 S. W. 309; State v. Galveston, H. & H. Ry. of 1882 (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 460, 469; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. State (Civ. App.) Id. 461, 469; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Same, Id.; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Same (Civ. App.) Id. 462, 469; Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Same, Id.; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Same (Civ. App.) Id. 463, 469; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Same, Id.; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Same (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 464, judgment reversed State v. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co., 100 T. 153, 97 S. W. 71; Id. (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 469; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Same (Civ. App.) Id. 465, 469; Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Same, Id.; Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Same (Civ. App.) Id. 466, 469; San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Same, Id.; State v. St. Louis, B. & M. R. Co. (Civ. App.) Id. 467, 469; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Same, Id.; Texas Midland R. Co. v. Same (Civ. App.) Id. 468, 469; State v. Texas & P. R. Co., 100 T. 279, 98 S. W. 834.

A suit against state officers to restrain the collection of a privilege tax on the operation of oil wells, imposed by Acts 29th Leg. p. 358, c. 148, is in fact a suit against the state, and cannot be maintained without its consent. Producers' Oil Co. v. Stephens, 44 C. A. 327, 99 S. W. 157; Stephens v. Morning Star Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 159; Southwestern Oil Co. v. State, Id.

In ejectment by the state to recover an island, one of the defendants was not entitled by cross-bill to raise issues and obtain affirmative relief, under the rule that a citizen may not sue the state without its consent. Texas Channel & Dock Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 318, judgment reversed 104 T. 168, 135 S. W. 522.

State officers trespassing upon property given by legislative enactment to the exclusive custody and possession of a private corporation held liable as any other trespasser would be; a suit against them not being a suit against the state. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic of Texas (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 877.

A suit against officers of a county to restrain the collection of taxes assessed against property is not a suit against the state, so as to require the consent of the legislature to its institution. Porter v. Langley (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1042.

A suit by the Daughters of the Republic of Texas against the superintendent of public buildings and ground of the state to enjoin defendant from entering upon the Alamo property on the ground that it was given to the custody of plaintiff corporation by Act Jan. 26, 1905 (Acts 29th Leg. c. 7), is not an action against the state so as to be prohibited. Conley v. Daughters of the Republic (Sup.) 156 S. W. 197.

Art. 1836. [1197] [1201] Suits by executors, etc.—Suits for the recovery of personal property, debts or damages, and suits for title or for the possession of lands, or for any right attached to, or growing out of, the same, or for any injury or damage done thereto, may be instituted by executors, administrators or guardians appointed in this state, in like manner as they could have been by their testator or intestate; and judgment in such cases shall be as conclusive as if rendered in favor of, or against, such testator or intestate; but such judgment may be set aside by any person interested for fraud or collusion on the part of such executor or administrator. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 44. P. D. 1447.]

Authority of executor or administrator to sue—In general.—As to the authority of an executor or administrator to maintain a suit, see Cobb v. Norwood, 11 T. 556; Blackman v. Green, 17 T. 322; Cherry v. Speight, 28 T. 503; Davis v. Phillips, 32 T. 564; Simpson v. Foster, 46 T. 618; Moseby v. Burrow, 52 T. 396; Terrell v. Crane, 55 T. 81. A surviving administrator can maintain a suit upon a note executed to him and another administrator who has since died. Wood v. Evans, 43 T. 175.

Where an administrator surrenders a note payable to his intestate in return for a note of third persons, he can sue said third persons in his capacity as administrator, though he was not authorized to accept the note in payment. Brainerd v. Bute (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 575.

Executor held not entitled to question provisions of a judgment against his testator entitling the testator to redeem from tax sale. Bente v. Sullivan, 52 C. A. 454, 115 S. W. 350.

—— Rents.—During administration of a decedent's estate, the administrator is solely entitled to sue for and recover rents which are to be administered as assets under the supervision of the county court. Smart v. Panther, 42 C. A. 262, 95 S. W. 679.

—— To recover land.—As to the right of an administrator to bring suit for the recovery of land, see Gunter v. Fox, 51 T. 386; Guilford v. Love, 49 T. 730; Boggess v. Brownson, 59 T. 420; Morales v. Fisk, 66 T. 194, 18 S. W. 495; Lawson v. Kelley, 82 T. 457, 17 S. W. 717.

Where land has been devised, suit for its recovery may be brought by the executor and devisee. Lufkin v. City of Galveston, 73 T. 340, 11 S. W. 340.

Where a conveyance reserved a vendor's lien, the vendor's administrator held entitled to recover the land from the vendee on his default in payment. Smith v. Owen, 43 C. A. 411, 97 S. W. 521.

—— To remove cloud.—An executor or administrator may maintain a suit to remove cloud from title to land owned by the heir without joining him as a party, and the judgment rendered will conclude the heir in the absence of fraud and collusion. This is by virtue of the statute. The statute is equally explicit in requiring that the heir shall be made a party defendant to any suit brought against the estate involving title. Russell v. Railway Co., 68 T. 646, 5 S. W. 686.

—— To cancel deed.—An administrator with the will annexed had the exclusive legal right to sue, to cancel a deed executed by testamentary trustees, after he intervened in an action for that purpose brought by devisees under the will, so that the devisees' suit should have been thereafter dismissed. Wisdom v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1128.

—— Must be put in issue by plea.—See notes at end of Chapter 8.

Capacity in which to sue or be sued.—In scire facias against an executor on a bond executed by the testator as surety, the fiduciary character of the executor should be shown. Morse v. State, 39 Cr. R. 566, 50 S. W. 342.

A cross action cannot be maintained against an administratrix individually, in an action by her as administratrix. Gresham v. Harcourt (Sup.) 53 S. W. 1019.

Action to recover the value of property wrongfully sold by administrator held properly brought against him in his representative capacity. Schmitt v. Jacques, 26 C. A. 125, 62 S. W. 956.

Executor or administrator need not be joined, when.—The administratrix of a deceased administrator is not a necessary party to a suit against the heirs of the administrator's sureties for funds misappropriated by the administrator. Strickland v. Sandmeyer, 21 C. A. 351, 52 S. W. 87.

The administrator of an owner of land covered by a vendor's lien held not a necessary party to foreclosure proceedings instituted after all of decedent's debts were paid. Henry v. McNew, 29 C. A. 288, 69 S. W. 213.

Where the person to whom a loss is payable is stipulated on the face of a fire policy, he may sue alone; neither the insured nor his legal representatives being necessary parties. German Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, Wilson & Co., 42 C. A. 407, 92 S. W. 1068.

Heirs not necessary parties, when.—Heirs of joint tort-feasor, having received property of their ancestor, are proper parties defendant to an action for its conversion. Middleton v. Pipkin (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 240.

Where suit was brought to establish a note as a claim against the estate of the deceased maker, the claim having been rejected by the administrator, held not necessary to make the heirs parties, even though the plaintiff had sought to establish the lien given by a trust deed on land securing the note. George v. Ryon (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 138.

Trustee not necessary party, when.—In a suit to establish a rejected claim against a decedent's estate, and to determine the validity of a trust deed given to secure it, the trustee is not a necessary party. Ryon v. George, 32 C. A. 504, 75 S. W. 48.

Executor or administrator proper party, when.—The entire interest in the mortgaged premises passed from the mortgagor prior to his death. The mortgagor's administrator was not a proper party to the suit for foreclosure, no personal judgment being sought. Puckett v. Reed, 22 S. W. 515, 3 C. A. 350.

An administrator is neither a necessary nor proper party to an appeal by creditors from a judgment of the county court classifying approved claims against the estate of the decedent. Zieschang v. Helmke (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 436.

Where the estate of a decedent had been partitioned and the executor discharged, the executor was not a proper party in an action on an account by one to whom it had been allotted. Hill v. Herndon (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 813.

—— Not proper party, when.—In a proceeding to review an administrator's sale of land, persons purchasing from the grantee cannot be joined as parties. Roy v. Whitaker (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 491.

Where executor wrongfully pays money over to another for the benefit of heirs of an estate, and such other wrongfully converts the same, there is no misjoinder in making the executor and such other a party to an action by the heirs for such money. Watkins v. Sansom, 22 C. A. 178, 54 S. W. 1096.

Under cross-bill in a suit by an administratrix to recover double the amount of usurious interest paid, held, that the administratrix was properly made a party, both in her individual and representative capacity. Cassidy v. Scottish-American Mortg. Co., 27 C. A. 211, 64 S. W. 1023.

Suit by widow against husband's executor, heirs, and devisees, to declare certain assets community estate, etc., held not to involve misjoinder of parties. Milam v. Hill, 29 C. A. 573, 69 S. W. 447.

Administrators of deceased principal debtor held properly joined as parties defendant for purpose of establishing plaintiff's claims, in an action seeking enforcement of lien of trust deed given by the debtor and defendant sureties to secure payment of the obligations. Planters' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 643.

Temporary administrator.—A suit by a plaintiff since deceased may be prosecuted by a temporary administrator where such power is given in his appointment. Callahan v. Houston, 78 T. 494, 14 S. W. 1027.

A temporary administrator empowered to take possession of an estate and collect debts cannot sue for a conversion. William J. Lemp Brewing Co. v. La Rose, 20 C. A. 575, 50 S. W. 460.

Foreign administrator.—A foreign administrator may assign by indorsement a negotiable promissory note the property of the estate, and the indorsee may maintain suit in this state in his own name on such note. Abercrombie v. Stillman, 77 T. 589, 14 S. W. 196.

Suits by guardian.—If minors have lawful guardians they should be made parties to suits in which minors are interested; if not, or the guardians are interested adversely to the minors, special guardians must be appointed. Pucket v. Johnson, 45 T. 550; Insurance Co. v. Ray, 50 T. 511; Bond v. Dillard, Id. 300; Hawkins v. Forrest, 1 U. C. 167.

An action on a bond executed by a guardian of two minors, he having been discharged from the control of the estate of one of his wards, may be enforced at the suit of the other ward against the sureties alone, the guardian having died before suit. Robertson v. Tonn, 76 T. 535, 13 S. W. 385.

Pending suit for personal injuries to the wife brought by the husband he became insane. It was held that the suit could be prosecuted only by the guardian of the husband. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Bailey, 83 T. 19, 18 S. W. 481.

When plaintiff sues as guardian, he is the party to the suit and not the ward, and a judgment against the defendant for land and the adjustment of the rights of the guardian and ward therein is void. Sandoval v. Rosser, 26 S. W. 935, 86 T. 682.

Widow may sue.—The surviving widow without administration can maintain an action on a judgment in favor of her husband, the same being community property. Walker v. Abercrombie, 61 T. 69. But see the case.

That a policy of life insurance was payable to the "executors, administrators, or assigns" of the insured did not defeat the right of the widow and children of insured to sue on it. Sun Life Ins. Co. v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 603.

Condition precedent to suit by heir.—To authorize a suit by or against an heir upon a claim for money in favor of or against his ancestor, it is necessary to allege and prove some fact constituting an exception to the general rule requiring suit by the administrator; as lapse of more than four years since intestate's death without administration, or that administration has been closed. Webster v. Willis, 56 T. 468; Ansley v. Baker, 14 T. 607, 65 Am. Dec. 136; Cunningham v. Taylor, 20 T. 126; Green v. Rugely, 23 T. 539; Patterson v. Allen, 50 T. 23; McCampbell v. Henderson, 50 T. 601.

Pending an administration, heirs cannot sue save where it is shown to be necessary for their protection. Lee v. Turner, 71 T. 264, 9 S. W. 149.

Heirs cannot sue for the recovery of a chose in action or other property, unless it is alleged that there is no administration or no necessity for one. Richardson v. Vaughan, 23 S. W. 640, 86 T. 93. But see Walker v. Abercrombie, 61 T. 69.

Minor children necessary parties.—Minor children are necessary parties in a proceeding to fix their right to an allowance for a year's support. Woolley v. Sullivan, 92 T. 28, 45 S. W. 377.

Art. 1837. [1198] [1202] Suits for land against decedents.—In every suit against the estate of a decedent involving the title to real estate, the executor or administrator, if any, and the heirs shall be made parties defendant. [Act Aug. 15, 1870, p. 141, sec. 229. P. D. 5697.]

See Willard v. Cleveland, 14 C. A. 557, 38 S. W. 222.

Construction.—Legal representatives of a decedent are necessary parties defendant. Heirs are only proper parties (except in suits for land) where it is shown that there is no administration nor need of one. Schmidtke v. Miller, 71 T. 103, 8 S. W. 638; Lee v. Turner, 71 T. 264, 9 S. W. 149; Rogers v. Kennard, 54 T. 36; Sanders v. Devereux, 25 T. Sup. 12; Giddings v. Steele, 28 T. 732, 91 Am. Dec. 336.

When affirmative relief is asked by a defendant in a suit for land brought by the administrator, the heirs of the estate suing must be made parties. East v. Dugan, 79 T. 329, 15 S. W. 273.

Prior to the revision of the statutes the heirs of a decedent were not necessary parties defendant in this action, and a judgment against the administrator was conclusive of their rights. Lawson v. Kelley, 82 T. 457, 17 S. W. 717.

Under this article, in a suit to recover land, the heirs were necessary parties, and personal service on an administrator did not make them parties. Wiseman v. Cottingham (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 817.

Suit must involve title.—Construing section 118 of the act of May 13, 1846 (Early Laws, art. 1755, § 21; art. 3484, § 229), Revised Statutes, final title, section 5, and Revised Statutes, article 3363, held, that this article applies to suits in which the title of the estate to land is brought in controversy, and not to such as merely seek to enforce a lien upon it. The heirs are not necessary parties to a suit brought against an independent executor by a lien creditor to enforce his lien against the land of the estate. Howard v. Johnson, 69 T. 655, 7 S. W. 522.

In an action to set aside a decree foreclosing a lien on the land of a corporation, held, that the heirs of a stockholder owning practically all the stock were not necessary parties. Fox v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 597.

Under the laws that existed in 1843, the heirs of a deceased mortgagor were not necessary parties to a suit to foreclose the same against his administrator. Flack v. Braman, 45 C. A. 473, 101 S. W. 537.

Purchaser of heir's interest may sue.—A judgment creditor of an heir, having purchased the heir's interest in certain of decedent's lands, held authorized to maintain an action to set aside an order for the sale of the land to pay debts of the deceased. Smart v. Panther, 42 C. A. 262, 95 S. W. 679.

Heirs may be sued—When no administration.—When there is no administration, or an administration is unnecessary, the heirs may be sued without administration. Patterson v. Allen, 50 T. 26; McCampbell v. Henderson, 50 T. 601; Webster v. Willis, 56 T. 468; Mayes v. Jones, 62 T. 365; Schmidtke v. Miller, 71 T. 103, 8 S. W. 638; Low v. Felton, 84 T. 378, 19 S. W. 693; Buchanan v. Thompson's Heirs, 4 C. A. 236, 23 S. W. 328; Solomon v. Skinner, 82 T. 345, 18 S. W. 698; Byrd v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 1070.

—— For debts, when.—Ordinarily debts of an estate must be collected through the medium of an administration. Green v. Rugely, 23 T. 539; Ansley v. Baker, 14 T. 607, 65 Am. Dec. 136; Cunningham v. Taylor, 20 T. 129; McMiller v. Butler, 20 T. 402.

Suit for debt may be brought against the heirs of a decedent who have inherited assets. Low v. Felton, 84 T. 378, 19 S. W. 693.

Art. 1838. [1199] [1203] Suits for injuries resulting in death.—In cases arising under the provisions of title 70, relating to injuries resulting in death, the parties entitled thereto may bring their suit for such damages as provided in said title.

Plaintiffs in actions for death.—See notes under Art. 4699.

Art. 1839. [1200] [1204] Suits for wife's separate property.—The husband may sue either alone or jointly with his wife for the recovery of any separate property of the wife; and, in case he fail or neglect so to do, she may, by the authority of the court, sue for such property in her own name. [Act Jan. 20, 1840, p. 3, sec. 9. P. D. 4636.]

See Turnley v. Insurance Co., 54 T. 451; Railway Co. v. Medaris, 64 T. 92; Railway Co. v. Corley (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 903, as to allegations in petition.

Action by husband.—The husband can sue alone for the wife's separate personal property (Millikin v. Smoot, 71 T. 759, 12 S. W. 59, 10 Am. St. Rep. 813), and recover damages for personal injuries sustained by her (T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Bailey, 83 T. 19, 18 S. W. 481).

Husband may sue alone to have declared a vendor's lien on land alleged to have belonged to him and his wife and to have been sold by them. Meyer v. Smith, 21 S. W. 995, 3 C. A. 37.

Husband may sue for damages sustained by the wife, and when damages to both result from the same act, recovery may be had by each in the same suit. Rice v. Railway Co., 27 S. W. 921, 8 C. A. 130; Telegraph Co. v. Dale (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 1059. Citing Railway Co. v. Watson, 72 T. 631, 10 S. W. 731; Telegraph Co. v. Adams, 75 T. 531, 12 S. W. 857, 6 L. R. A. 844, 16 Am. St. Rep. 920; Gulf, C. & S. F. Tel. Co. v. Richardson, 79 T. 649, 15 S. W. 689; Telegraph Co. v. Nations, 82 T. 539, 18 S. W. 709, 27 Am. St. Rep. 914; Railway Co. v. Sciacca, 80 T. 355, 16 S. W. 31.

Wife not a necessary party to suit to foreclose vendor's lien against land in which she has homestead interest. Brightman v. Fry, 17 C. A. 531, 43 S. W. 60.

A wife is not a necessary party to an action involving the title to land purchased with community funds. Central Coal & Coke Co. v. Henry (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 281.

A wife held not a necessary party to an action on a contract executed by herself and husband where it was not made for the benefit of her separate property. Burke v. Purifoy, 21 C. A. 202, 50 S. W. 1089.

In a suit by a husband for the value of timber cut from his land as his separate property, without his authority or consent, the wife is neither a necessary nor proper party. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Starr, 22 C. A. 353, 55 S. W. 393.

The wife is not a necessary party in a suit to foreclose a tax lien against her husband's homestead. Collins v. Ferguson, 22 C. A. 552, 56 S. W. 225.

A wife is not a necessary or proper party to a suit brought by the husband for injuries to her arising from defendant's negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Baumgarten, 31 C. A. 253, 72 S. W. 78.

In an action on a life insurance policy by insured's special administrator, decedent's wife was not a necessary party. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, 34 C. A. 131, 78 S. W. 398.

Damages for an injury to a wife during coverture are community property, for which the husband alone is entitled to sue, unless he has abandoned her without her fault. Vaughn v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 34 C. A. 445, 79 S. W. 345.

Action for personal injuries to a married woman should be brought by her husband alone. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Campbell, 36 C. A. 276, 81 S. W. 580.

A married woman held not a necessary party to a suit in trespass to try title against her husband, where the only possession she had was by reason of occupancy of herself and husband. Hamilton v. Blackburn, 43 C. A. 153, 95 S. W. 1094.

In a suit to foreclose a mortgage executed by a man who at the time was single, his wife living with him on the premises is not a necessary party. Adams v. Bartell, 46 C. A. 349, 102 S. W. 779.

A husband held entitled to sue for the breach of a contract to transmit a telegram to his wife sent by a third person. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bell, 48 C. A. 359, 107 S. W. 570; Same v. Gilliland (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 212.

To entitle a creditor to assert against the debtor's wife the superiority of an attachment lien to her unrecorded conveyance or attack such conveyance as fraudulent, held not necessary that the wife should have been a party to the attachment. Parks v. Worthington, 101 T. 505, 109 S. W. 909.

Under this article a husband suing alone for his wife's separate property must set up her claim thereto, and a judgment against him, in a suit where he claimed the property as his own, based on title by limitations, is not binding on the wife claiming through a deed. Bishop v. Gestean (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1141.

In ejectment against a husband, who with his family occupied lands, it is not necessary to make the wife a party defendant, in order to expel her under a judgment of ouster against the husband. Evans v. Marlow (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 347.

A wife held not a proper or necessary party to a suit by her husband on a contract made in her husband's presence, and with his consent, with a broker for a share of commissions on sales to persons procured by her. Lilly v. Yeary (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 823.

Actions by wife.—When the wife is abandoned by the husband, or he refuses to sue, she may institute or defend suit for the protection of herself or property. Mitchell v. Wright, 4 T. 283; Hartley v. Frosh, 6 T. 208, 55 Am. Dec. 772; O'Brien v. Hilburn, 9 T. 297; Wright v. Hays, 10 T. 130, 60 Am. Dec. 200; Cheek v. Bellows, 17 T. 613, 67 Am. Dec. 686; Fullerton v. Doyle, 18 T. 3; Kelley v. Whitmore, 41 T. 647; Carothers v. McNeese, 43 T. 224; Zimpleman v. Robb, 53 T. 280; John v. Battle, 58 T. 591; Ezell v. Dodson, 60 T. 331; Ryan v. Ryan, 61 T. 474; Black v. Black, 62 T. 296; Slator v. Neal, 64 T. 222; Reddin v. Smith, 65 T. 26; Cullers v. James, 66 T. 495, 1 S. W. 314; Norton v. Davis, 83 T. 32, 18 S. W. 430; Woodson v. Massenberg, 22 S. W. 106, 3 C. A. 146; Railway Co. v. Gillum (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 698; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lackey, 12 C. A. 229, 33 S. W. 768; Same v. Griffith, 12 C. A. 631, 35 S. W. 741; Leeds v. Reed (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 347; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hennesey, 20 C. A. 316, 49 S. W. 917; Bennett v. Gillett (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 302; Word v. Kennon (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 365; Vaughn v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 34 C. A. 445, 79 S. W. 345; Western Bank & Trust Co. v. Gibbs (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 947; City of San Antonio v. Wildenstein, 49 C. A. 514, 109 S. W. 231; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Allen, 53 C. A. 433, 115 S. W. 1179; Heagy v. Kastner (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 788.

A. B., who sued as a feme sole in trespass to try title, alleged that she was the owner and entitled to possession of the land sued for, and that she held the same by regular chain of title, which she filed; one of the deeds was made to her whilst her husband was yet living. The court refused to charge that the plaintiff could not maintain a suit for it in her own name. Held: (1) That there was no error in refusing the charge. (2) Distinguished from Hatchett v. Conner, 30 T. 111, Holloway v. Holloway, 30 T. 164, Owen v. Tankersley, 12 T. 413, and Moffatt v. Sydnor, 13 T. 628. Hutchins v. Bacon, 46 T. 408.

A tort inflicted on the wife by her husband and another gives to the wife no right of action against the husband; if the wife is, on justifiable grounds, living apart from her husband, she may, during coverture, maintain an action against such stranger alone; and if, before action brought, the husband dies, or a divorce intervenes, she could prosecute the suit. Nickerson v. Nickerson, 65 T. 281.

In a case where the husband is a party to the wrong, the damages can be recovered by the wife alone. Id.

An allegation that the husband and wife had been living apart for more than two years, etc., held sufficient to authorize her to sue alone. Railway Co. v. Gillum (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 697.

The wife can sue alone for the recovery of her separate property when the husband refuses to join, but the petition should distinctly show her right to sue, and also that the property sought to be recovered is her separate property, by stating facts and not mere conclusions of the pleader. Schwulst v. Neely (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 608.

Where married woman sued in her individual right, and her husband has joined her pro forma, her designation under a business name may be rejected as surplusage. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Red Cross Stock Farm, 22 C. A. 114, 53 S. W. 834.

Where a wife had been in continuous possession of real estate purchased by her husband in his own name, her husband's heirs held not necessary parties to an action for injuries thereto. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Charwaine, 30 C. A. 633, 71 S. W. 401.

Married woman held liable for allowance to guardians ad litem, in action brought by her for construction of will, although court held that she was not entitled to maintain the action. Thompson v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 706.

A wife could not sue in her own name on a contract made in her husband's presence, and with his consent, with a broker for a share of commissions on sales to persons procured by her, and was not a necessary or proper party to a suit on such contract by the husband. Lilly v. Yeary (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 823.

Joinder of husband and wife.—In a suit by husband and wife to recover on a note, the separate property of the wife, the husband's indebtedness is no defense. Hubby v. Camplin, 22 T. 582.

A sale of the homestead under a decree of foreclosure to which the wife was not a party does not pass title. Campbell v. Elliott, 52 T. 151; Thompson v. Jones, 60 T. 94; Id., 77 T. 627, 14 S. W. 222; Jergens v. Schiele, 61 T. 255; Freeman v. Hamblin, 1 C. A. 157, 21 S. W. 1019; Mexia v. Lewis, 3 C. A. 118, 21 S. W. 1016; Odum v. Menafee, 11 C. A. 119, 33 S. W. 129.

They may join in an action for damages for the wrongful seizure by attachment or execution of exempt property. Craddock v. Goodwin, 54 T. 578; Cunningham v. Coyle, 2 App. C. C. § 422.

A suit may be maintained against husband and wife for slanderous words spoken by her, and a general judgment will be rendered against both—her separate estate to be first exhausted before sale of the husband's. Zeliff v. Jennings, 61 T. 458.

The wife is a proper party plaintiff in a suit on a note, her separate property. Martin v. Jones, 3 App. C. C. § 205.

The wife is a proper party to a suit to foreclose the vendor's lien on a note given by her husband for land deeded to her, and may properly be included in the decree of foreclosure; but it is error to render judgment against her for the debt or for costs. Linn v. Willis, 1 U. C. 158; Garner v. Butcher, 1 U. C. 430.

A married woman is not bound by recitals in the pleadings or judgment in a suit against her husband to which she is not a party, affecting her title to separate property (Overand v. Menczer, 83 T. 122, 18 S. W. 301), when it does not appear from the pleadings that the suit was brought for her use (Buzard v. McAnulty, 77 T. 445, 14 S. W. 138).

A married man may join with his wife in an action for damages to her separate property. An action by the husband does not bar an action by him and his wife. Railway Co. v. Flato, 13 C. A. 214, 35 S. W. 859.

The husband is a necessary party to an action to recover or protect the wife's separate property, unless he refuses to join in the suit, and is a necessary party to the appeal bond. Hugo v. Seffel, 92 T. 414, 49 S. W. 369.

In a suit by a husband, for value of timber cut from the wife's separate land, the latter is a proper though not a necessary party to the suit. Railway Co. v. Starr, 22 C. A. 353, 55 S. W. 393.

Where a debtor has conveyed land to his wife in trust for himself, she may be joined as defendant in an action to collect a debt due from him, in which the land has been attached, to determine her rights in the land. O'Neal v. Clymer (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 545.

In an action to foreclose a mechanic's lien on the homestead in the execution of which the wife joined, the action being brought after limitations has run against the claim, she is a necessary party. San Antonio Real Estate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Stewart, 27 C. A. 299, 65 S. W. 665.

A wife cannot sue alone for money loaned, where the money was procured by a mortgage, in which her husband joined, on her separate estate, in the absence of evidence that, when the money was so procured, it was the intention to look to her separate estate alone for reimbursement. Somes v. Ainsworth (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 468.

In suit by a judgment creditor to foreclose an abstract lien on land alleged to have been fraudulently conveyed by the judgment debtor, the wife of the debtor held a necessary party. Texas Brewing Co. v. Bisso, 50 C. A. 119, 109 S. W. 270.

A wife cannot sue for injury to a minor son without joining the husband. Hillsboro Cotton Mills v. King, 51 C. A. 518, 112 S. W. 132.

Where a married woman sues to enjoin the sale of property on execution against her husband, it is not error to refuse to make her husband a party defendant to a cross-bill against her and her sureties on the injunction bond. Broussard v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 712.

A wife could not sue in her own name on a contract made in her husband's presence, and with his consent, with a broker for a share of commissions on sales to persons procured by her. Lilly v. Yeary (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 823.

Suits between husband and wife—Wife cannot sue for tort.—A wife cannot sue her husband for torts committed by him against her person or reputation while the marriage relation existed. Nickerson v. Nickerson, 65 T. 281; Sykes v. Speer (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 422; Wilson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 322.

—— Support.—A wife cannot maintain an action against her husband for support. Irwin v. Irwin (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 1011.

—— May sue for separate property.—A wife may sue her husband for her separate property, and the court may grant her power to manage and control it where it is shown that there has been a permanent separation. Ryan v. Ryan, 61 T. 473; Martin Brown Co. v. Perrill, 77 T. 199, 13 S. W. 975; Heintz v. Heintz, 56 C. A. 403, 120 S. W. 941.

—— On note, when.—A married woman, duly appointed as guardian of her infant daughter by a former marriage, who loaned the money of such infant daughter to her husband, could sue him on the note given therefor. Wright v. Wright (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1015.

—— Husband may sue to settle property rights.—A husband may maintain a suit against his wife to settle property rights, and the latter, for purposes of the suit, may act independently of him. Newman v. Newman (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 635.

Suits as to community property.—A judgment against the husband binds the interest of the wife in community property, unless she has a defense growing out of the homestead right, when she is a necessary party (Jergens v. Schiele, 61 T. 255); but a judgment in a suit against the husband alone for the separate property of the wife does not bind her. Read v. Allen, 56 T. 182.

An action for the recovery of community property cannot be brought by a married woman joined by her husband pro forma. Wartelsky v. McGee, 10 C. A. 220, 30 S. W. 69; Railway Co. v. Burnett, 61 T. 638; Middlebrook v. Zapp, 73 T. 29, 10 S. W. 732; Edrington v. Newland, 57 T. 634. As to general rules governing suits for wife's separate property, see Cannon v. Hemphill, 7 T. 184; Clay v. Power, 24 T. 304; Hatchett v. Conner, 30 T. 104; Holloway v. Holloway, 30 T. 164; Turnley v. T. B. & I. Co., 54 T. 451. The husband can sue alone for injuries to crops grown on land, the property of the wife. T. & St. L. R. R. Co. v. Reid, 1 App. C. C. § 296; Millikin v. Smoot, 71 T. 759, 12 S. W. 59, 10 Am. St. Rep. 813. Husband can sue alone for personal injuries to the wife. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Pollard, 2 App. C. C. § 481; Owen v. Tankersley, 12 T. 405; Williams v. Turner, 50 T. 137; Railway Co. v. Bailey, 83 T. 19, 18 S. W. 481; Telegraph Co. v. Cooper, 71 T. 507, 9 S. W. 598, 1 L. R. A. 728, 10 Am. St. Rep. 772. The husband may sue alone for damages to the separate property of the wife. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Medaris, 64 T. 92. The misjoinder of the wife, in a suit by the husband, is not reversible error, unless prejudice to the adverse party results therefrom. San Antonio Ry. Co. v. Helm, 64 T. 147; G. C., & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Jones, 3 App. C. C. § 22.

A surviving wife, after her remarriage, and the children of her first marriage, are proper parties to and may maintain an action to stay the sale of the community property under an execution issued on a judgment recovered against her for a community debt, and to have such execution abated. Wingfield v. Hackney, 95 T. 490, 68 S. W. 262.

Misjoinder.—A married woman, owning one-half the capital stock of a theater company, brought suit against other stockholders, either for the benefit of the corporation, or, in the alternative, for her own benefit, and joined her husband as plaintiff in the action. Held that, as any judgment would be binding on both the husband and wife, there was no misjoinder of parties. Kingsbury v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 73.

—— Effect of.—In a suit for damages to the wife's separate property, while she is not a proper party plaintiff, yet the joinder of the husband and wife as plaintiffs is not reversible error. Lee v. Turner, 71 T. 264, 9 S. W. 149.

That a husband joined his wife as a party in an action to recover for her services is no ground for reversal. Johnson v. Erado (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 139.

When plaintiff sues for value of timber cut from his own land, the joinder of his wife therein as coplaintiff is neither necessary nor proper, but if such joinder has not been hurtful to the case the judgment will not be disturbed. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Starr (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 394.

See Art. 1896.

Improper joinder of the wife in a suit on an account due a community held not ground for dismissing the cause. Gentry v. McCarty (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 152.

Art. 1840. [1201] [1205] Against husband and wife, for necessaries, etc.—The husband and wife shall be jointly sued for all debts contracted by the wife for necessaries furnished herself or children, and for all expenses which may have been incurred by the wife for the benefit of her separate property. [Act March 13, 1848, p. 77, sec. 4. P. D. 4643.]

See Lemons v. Biddy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1065.

Debt must be contracted by wife for necessaries.—The debt must be contracted by the wife or by her express authority (Christmas v. Smith, 10 T. 123; Milburn v. Walker, 11 T. 329; Stansbury v. Nichols, 30 T. 145; Sorrel v. Clayton, 42 T. 188; Warren v. Smith, 44 T. 245), and must be for necessaries for herself or children (Brown v. Ector, 19 T. 346; Magee v. White, 23 T. 180; Harris v. Williams, 44 T. 124), or for the benefit of her separate property (Butler v. Robertson, 11 T. 142; Carothers v. McNese, 43 T. 221; Covington v. Burleson, 28 T. 368; Smotridge v. Lovell, 35 T. 58; Wright v. Blackwood, 57 T. 644).

When the wife claims property seized under an execution against the husband, on her failure to establish her claim it is error to render judgment against the husband. Marx v. Lange, 61 T. 547.

Action against husband and wife on a note executed by them, and to foreclose a mortgage lien. The petition averred that the note was executed by the wife for money and means by her had "for the proper and necessary care of her children and separate property." It did not allege that the children were minors. Defendants failed to answer. Held, that the petition was sufficient to authorize a judgment and execution against her separate property. See Arts. 4624–4625. Hawkes v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 548.

The suit being one under the statute, and not a suit to charge the wife's separate property in equity for necessaries for the family, including the husband, it was not necessary to allege that the husband was insolvent, and that there was no community estate liable for the debt. Id.

Where a judgment has been rendered in a suit brought in the manner prescribed by this article, it will be presumed that the judgment was rendered on a debt, the wife was permitted to incur by Art. 4624. Lane v. Moon (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 215.

Abandonment by husband.—When the husband abandons the wife she can bind the community property for necessaries without being joined by the husband, and can give a valid lien thereon for debts incurred previously for necessaries. Fermier v. Brannan, 21 C. A. 543, 53 S. W. 699.

—— Presumption as to.—See Callahan v. Patterson, 4 T. 61, 51 Am. Dec. 712.

Art. 1841. [1202] [1206] For wife's debts, etc.—The husband and wife shall also be jointly sued for all separate debts and demands against the wife, but, in such case, no personal judgment shall be rendered against the husband. [Act May 13, 1848, p. 363, sec. 41. P. D. 9.]

Construed.—A suit may be maintained against the husband and wife on a note given by her for the purchase of land, but no personal judgment can be rendered against her. Matlock v. Glover, 63 T. 231; Smith v. Wilson, 32 S. W. 434.

A husband was a necessary party to an action on a contract made with his wife for an improvement of her separate real estate by the drilling and casing of a well thereon. Lemons v. Biddy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1065.

Art. 1842. [1203] [1207] Several obligors to any contract may be joined, but, etc.—The acceptor of any bill of exchange, or any other principal obligor in any contract, may be sued either alone or jointly with any other party who may be liable thereon; but no judgment shall be rendered against such other party not primarily liable on such bill or other contract, unless judgment shall have been previously, or shall be at the same time, rendered against such acceptor or other principal obligor, except where the plaintiff may discontinue his suit against such principal obligor as hereinafter provided. [Acts May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 4; Id. secs. 45, 46. Jan. 25, 1840, p. 144, sec. 6. P. D. 1426, 1448–9, 225. Act to adopt and establish R. C. S. passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

See Deutschman v. Battaile (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 489; Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Anderson, 152 S. W. 816.

Construction and application.—It seems that one of several joint obligors in a contract may be sued alone. Hinchman v. Riggins, 1 App. C. C. § 294. One or more of several joint and several obligors can be sued. Glasscock v. Hamilton, 62 T. 143; Cook v. Phillips, 18 T. 33.

This article applies to joint principals. Miller v. Sullivan, 89 T. 480, 35 S. W. 362.

Any principal obligor in any contract may be sued either alone or jointly with any other party who may be liable thereon. Webb v. Gregory, 49 C. A. 282, 108 S. W. 479; Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 349.

Although this article and Arts. 1897 and 1899 permit actions to be maintained against those secondarily liable without joining the principal, yet the maker of a note secured by a mortgage upon land is a necessary party in an action to recover upon the note, foreclose the mortgage, and test the adverse claims which others are asserting to the land. Breed v. Higginbotham Bros. & Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 164.

A judgment against one of several joint obligors does not merge the debt in the judgment, so that a subsequent suit may be maintained against the other obligors under this article. Middleton v. Nibling (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 968.

Under this article no judgment could be rendered against the drawer of a check who was only secondarily liable, where no judgment was shown to have been rendered against a bank which, by its acceptance of the check, became primarily liable. Elliott v. First State Bank of Ft. Stockton, 105 T. 547, 152 S. W. 808.

Release of one joint obligor discharges all.—An unrestricted release of one joint obligor discharges all. Where there is a release of one obligor and a reservation of rights against other obligors, the latter remain responsible for their proportionate part of the obligation. Bates v. Wills Point Bank, 11 C. A. 73, 32 S. W. 339.

Dismissal as to some.—See notes under Art. 1899.

May sue one or more joint promisors.—A note being joint and several, defendants cannot plead they are sureties for the purpose of avoiding suit without the co-obligor being joined. W. U. T. Co. v. Proctor, 6 C. A. 300, 25 S. W. 811.

In an action against a surety on notes, other sureties on the notes held proper, but not necessary, parties. Bolton v. G. C. Gifford & Co., 45 C. A. 140, 100 S. W. 210; Sorrel v. Same (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 212; Seeligson v. Same, Id.

A plaintiff may sue one or more of the promisors on a joint promise, or may dismiss as to one and proceed as to another, even in the appellate court. McDonald v. Cabiness, 100 T. 615, 102 S. W. 721.

Suit for contribution.—Where parties are not equally criminal, the principal delinquent may be held responsible to a co-delinquent for damages paid by reason of the offense in which both were concerned in different degrees as perpetrators. City of Ft. Worth v. Allen, 10 C. A. 488, 31 S. W. 235.

In a suit for contribution by obligors who have discharged the obligation, all the other joint obligors should be made defendants. Mateer v. Cockrill, 18 C. A. 391, 45 S. W. 751.

A bill for contribution against sureties held not demurrable for joinder of all sureties liable to contribute as parties. Jalufka v. Matejek, 22 C. A. 384, 55 S. W. 395.

Art. 1843. [1204] [1208] Parties conditionally liable may be sued, when.—The assignor, indorser, guarantor and surety upon any contract, and the drawer of any bill which has been accepted, may be sued without the necessity of previously, or at the same time, suing the maker, acceptor or other principal obligor, when he resides beyond the limits of the state, or in such part of the same that he can not be reached by the ordinary process of law, or when his residence is unknown and cannot be ascertained by the use of reasonable diligence, or when he is dead, or actually or notoriously insolvent. [Id.]

See Shropshire v. Smith (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 470; Jackson v. Rollins, 128 S. W. 681.

In general.—Where a party having a choice of remedies pursues one to final judgment, he is estopped from bringing successive suits based upon different phases. Ward v. Green, 88 T. 177, 30 S. W. 864, citing Moore v. Gammel, 13 T. 120; Burson v. Blackley, 67 T. 5, 2 S. W. 668.

It would seem from this article that the acceptor is a necessary party in a suit against the drawer unless certain conditions therein named exist. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 349.

Under this article an indorser would not be relieved from liability because of the creditor's failure to go beyond the state and subject property there to the payment of the debt by resorting to extraordinary remedies in advance of the maturity of the note. First Nat. Bank v. Powell (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1096.

Death of principal.—Sureties on a claimant's bond may be sued alone if the principal is dead and without bringing in the decedent's representatives. Muenster v. Tremont Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 277.

When the principal dies the surety may be sued by the payee without necessity of first presenting the claim to the administrator. Planters' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 645.

Principal a fugitive from justice.—In a suit against the principal and sureties on a guardian's bond, upon proof that the principal is a fugitive from justice and that the officers have been unable to find him, the suit may be dismissed as against the principal and prosecuted against the sureties. Bopp v. Hansford, 18 C. A. 340, 45 S. W. 744.

Insolvency of principal.—When the maker of a note is insolvent or a nonresident, protest and notice, or suit at the first term, are not necessary in order to hold the indorser. Bank v. De Morse (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 417; Insall v. Robson, 16 T. 129; Burrow v. Zapp, 69 T. 476, 6 S. W. 783; Hanrick v. Alexander, 51 T. 501.

An indorser cannot be sued without the maker if the latter has any property liable to execution. Smith v. Ojerholm, 93 T. 35, 53 S. W. 341.

It cannot be said that a principal is insolvent within the meaning of the statute when any part of the debt can be made by execution against him. Id.

Under this article the principal in a replevy bond and a supersedeas bond need not be joined as defendant, where it is alleged and proved that he is actually and notoriously insolvent; such bonds being "contracts" within the statute. Wilson v. Dickey (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 437.

—— Question for jury.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 13.

Instructions.—See Art. 1970 et seq.

Evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.

Art. 1844. [1204] [1208] Sheriff, constable, etc., sued for damages, may make indemnitors parties, etc.—Whenever a sheriff, constable or a deputy of either, has been sued for damages for any act done in his official character, and has taken an indemnifying bond for such acts so done by him, upon which said act a suit for damages is based, the said sheriff, constable or his deputy shall have the right to make the parties, principal and surety on such bond of indemnity, parties defendant in such suit for damages, and the cause may be continued for the purpose of obtaining service on such parties, so made in said cause. [Acts 1885, p. 90.]

Construction and operation.—A sheriff was sued for the wrongful levy of three attachments in favor of different plaintiffs against the same defendant. He could not make the several creditors who had indemnified him parties to the action. Thomas v. Chapman, 62 T. 193.

Parties to an indemnity bond may be made parties to suit against the sheriff. A deputy sheriff may sue in his own name on a promise to indemnify. Heidenheimer v. Johnston, 1 App. C. C. § 645.

When suit is brought against an officer for the wrongful levy of an attachment, the sureties on the indemnity bond of such officer have no right to intervene. In this case the officer required the parties to the bond to defend, etc., but the court say that it was not necessary for them to be made parties to the suit for that purpose. Since the institution of this suit, this article was passed, authorizing an officer to make the obligors in an indemnity bond parties to a suit against him. McKee v. Coffin, 66 T. 305, 1 S. W. 276.

An officer having a bond of indemnity can only recover upon it the damages adjudged against him for the wrongful seizure of property, and his recovery is limited by the amount of the bond. Stevens v. Wolf, 77 T. 215, 14 S. W. 29. See Cabell v. Shoe Store, 81 T. 104, 16 S. W. 811.

As to the form of the verdict and judgment where indemnity bonds are given by several parties, see Dodd v. Gaines, 82 T. 429, 18 S. W. 618.

Where the state sued a sheriff and sureties on his official bond for indebtedness due state for taxes unpaid by the sheriff and his sureties, but did not charge the sheriff with theft or embezzlement, the sureties could not bring in as party defendant a guaranty company on its guaranty and indemnity bond in favor of the sureties, conditioned that it would save harmless the sureties from all costs, losses, damages, and expenses which they might incur or suffer by reason of any act or fraud or dishonesty amounting to larceny or embezzlement on the part of the sheriff in connection with the duties of his office, in order to obtain judgment over against the guaranty company, because the issues between the state and the sheriff and his sureties are different from those between the sureties and the guaranty company. The state has no concern with the guaranty company, nor the guaranty company with the state and yet the case of each is complicated with that of the trial of the other. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Fossati, 97 T. 497, 80 S. W. 74.

Art. 1845. [1205] Sureties on official bonds, when joined.—In any suit brought by the state of Texas, or any county of said state, against any officer who has held an office for more than one term and has given more than one official bond, the sureties on each and all of such bonds may be joined as defendants in one and the same suit, whenever it is alleged in the petition that it is difficult to determine when the default sued for occurred and which set of sureties on such official bonds is liable therefor. [Acts of 1891, p. 85.]

Does not apply, when.—This article does not apply where plaintiff sues in his individual right. Baggett v. Sheppard (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 952.

Art. 1846. [1206] When different officials and their bondsmen may be joined.—In any suit by the state of Texas upon the official bond of any state officer, any subordinate officer who has given bond, payable either to the state or to such superior officer, to cover the default sued for, or any part thereof, together with the sureties on his official bond, may be joined as defendants in one and the same suit with such superior officer and his bondsmen, whenever it is alleged in the petition that both of such officers are liable for the money sued for, to the end that all equities may be adjusted between them in one suit. [Id.]

Art. 1847. [1207] Suit in the name of the state for the use of others.—Whenever any official bond is made payable to the state of Texas, or any officer thereof, and a recovery thereon is authorized by, or would inure to the benefit of, parties other than the state, suit may be instituted on such bond in the name of the state alone for the benefit of all parties entitled to recover thereon. [Id.]

In general.—Where a judgment is rendered that the state recover of defendant fines and costs, an action can be maintained, in the name of the state for the use of the county, where a sheriff has failed to collect said judgments. Spradley v. State, 23 C. A. 20, 56 S. W. 114, 442.

An official bond, payable to the state and conditioned on the faithful performance of official duties, cannot be sued on by a private individual. Clough v. Worsham, 32 C. A. 187, 74 S. W. 350.

The corporate existence of a school district, organized under color of authority of a statute, cannot be collaterally attacked for mere irregularity in its organization, but the attack must be by suit in the name of or under authority of the state, by one having a special interest affected by its existence. Wilson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 639.

Existence of corporation cannot be disputed collaterally.—See Art. 1138 and notes.

Art. 1848. [1208] [1209] Additional parties may be brought in, when.—Before a case is called for trial, additional parties may, when they are necessary or proper parties to the suit, be brought in by proper process, either by the plaintiff or the defendant, upon such terms as the court may prescribe; but such parties shall not be brought in at such a time or in such a manner as unreasonably to delay the trial of the case.

For provisions authorizing unincorporated joint stock companies or associations to sue and be sued in their company names, see title "Partnerships—Limited" and "Joint Stock Companies."

Relates to parties, not venue.—This article does not refer to the subject of venue and a party cannot be brought into a case pending unless he be liable to be sued upon that cause of action in that county independently of the pending suit. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. McKnight, 99 T. 289, 89 S. W. 758.

This article relates to the subject of parties and not of venue. Mugg & Dryden v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. et al. (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 876.

This article does not authorize the bringing in of a party defendant, unless such party was properly suable in the county where such suit is pending. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Henson, 56 C. A. 468, 121 S. W. 1127.

Bringing in new parties—In general.—It is optional with either party to bring in proper but not necessary parties, and a failure by either to do so does not invalidate any judgment rendered. Reed v. Coffey (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1027; League v. Scott (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1129.

In an action by a bona fide purchaser of a purchase-money note, defendant held not entitled to bring in, as parties, one for whose benefit the note was executed, and the vendor, against whom defendant had rights of action. Phelps v. Scott (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 687.

Where subsequent grantees assumed payment of a mortgage, the mortgagee was entitled, in an action by the mortgagor to cancel the mortgage, to file a cross bill to enforce the assumption contracts and to implead the subsequent grantees. Southern Home Building & Loan Ass'n v. Winans, 24 C. A. 544, 60 S. W. 825.

In an action for the price of goods damaged in transit through the alleged negligence of a railroad company, it was proper to bring the railroad company into the suit on defendant's complaint for judgment over against it. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Browne, 27 C. A. 437, 66 S. W. 341.

Where, in partition, it was shown that a third party had an interest in the property, it was the duty of the court to stay the proceedings and require him to be made a defendant. Latham v. Tombs, 32 C. A. 270, 73 S. W. 1060.

In an action against a city for injuries caused by a defective sidewalk, pleading filed by city showing property owner to be primarily liable held to make a case for impleading property owner. City of San Antonio v. Talerico, 98 T. 151, 81 S. W. 518.

The refusal to allow a defendant to bring in a new party for its benefit held not erroneous. Sexton Rice & Irrigation Co. v. Sexton, 48 C. A. 190, 106 S. W. 728.

It was no objection to plaintiff's right to bring in a new defendant by amended petition that the original defendants had disclaimed, and that the disclaimer had been called to the court's attention; no judgment having been rendered. Jolley v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 1151.

In a suit to foreclose vendors' liens, defendants held properly denied leave to implead third persons. Zan v. Clark, 53 C. A. 525, 117 S. W. 892.

In a suit against a railroad company for damages to land, the defendant is entitled to vouch in its warrantor that it may have judgment against him for such judgment as may be rendered against it. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Douglas (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1048.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff's property, caused by the derailment of a car, sustaining exceptions to the petition of defendant to have traction company owning intersecting track made defendant held not error. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Corr (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 185.

Since, if carriers were negligent in the handling of freight, they would be liable either to the consignor or consignee, they could be joined in a cross-action filed by a consignee against the consignor when sued for the price, and alleging the consignor's breach of contract and the railroad company's negligence in handling the cars shipped, especially where the pleadings made it doubtful whether the carriers' liability was to the consignor or consignee. Kemendo v. Fruit Dispatch Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 73.

Demurrers held properly sustained to pleadings by defendant seeking to bring in a new party and recover judgment over against him. Curtis v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 795.

Defendant held not entitled to bring in as a codefendant one not standing in privity of contract with plaintiff. Keel & Son v. Gribble-Carter Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 235.

—— Application and proceedings thereon.—Held unnecessary, under the circumstances, for plaintiff to take formal leave in making defendant city a party defendant to an action on a contract. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 973.

Mode of bringing in new parties.—Defendant cannot by cross-bill bring in a substituted plaintiff. Garrett v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 288.

Persons may be brought in as parties by amendment to the pleadings. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Howell (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 560.

A defendant is entitled to maintain a cross-action to bring in a party whom he claims is liable over to him in the event that any judgment be rendered against him. Courchesne v. Santa Fé Fuel Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 684.

—— Rights and liabilities of parties brought in.—In action to vacate deed, interveners claiming under defendant held not prejudiced by order allowing withdrawal of defendant's answer. Temple Nat. Bank v. Warner (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1025.

Claimant under foreclosure sale on senior mortgage held entitled to assert rights thereunder when made party to foreclosure of junior lien. Hampshire v. Greeves (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 665.

—— Time for bringing in new parties.—The facts which will entitle the court to suspend a trial to admit the bringing in of a new party, or to entitle the adverse party to a suspension for that purpose, determined. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Howell (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 560.

A pleading asking that defendant's agent be made a party held too late. Dayton Lumber Co. v. Stockdale, 54 C. A. 611, 118 S. W. 805.

The right of a defendant in an action of trespass to try title to bring his warrantors in as parties defendant must be exercised with reasonable diligence, so as not to delay the trial of the case, in accordance with this article, but any delay necessary to enable a party to bring in its warrantor by proper pleading and citation is not unreasonable delay. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Davis (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 808.

A defendant in trespass to try title cannot take any steps to bring his warrantors into the suit as defendants until the suit is filed, and, where he has only 14 days before the first day of the term after the suit is filed in which to file a cross-bill against his warrantors and make service upon them, and they live in different counties and some at a distance, the time allowed to the defendant is not sufficient, and he is entitled to a continuance. Id.

Under this article, if defendant surety, in an action on a note and to foreclose a vendor's lien, desires that various purchasers of the land be made parties defendant, so that the lien could be foreclosed so as to prevent redemption by such purchasers, such parties should have been brought in before the surety's answer was filed, so that he cannot ask therein that the purchasers be made defendants. Hume v. Perry (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 594.

Substitution.—In an action on a note, held not error to allow a corporation to make itself a party plaintiff. Tackett v. Mutual Realty Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 347.

Eliminating unnecessary though proper parties.—The court commits no error in eliminating unnecessary parties, though they may be proper parties. Reed v. Coffey (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1027.

It is no abuse of the court's discretion to dismiss one not an original or necessary party, even though he might be a proper party. Carder v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 946.

Intervention.—See notes at end of chapter.

Interpleader.—See notes at end of chapter.

Art. 1849. [1209] [1210] Parties may appear by attorney.—Any party to a suit may appear and prosecute or defend his rights therein, either in person or by an attorney of the court.

For provisions as to the appointment of attorney to defend suit by publication where no answer is filed, etc., and as to appointment of guardian ad litem for minors, lunatics, etc., see Arts. 1941 and 1942.

Appearance in general.—The answer in an action to set aside a judgment may be filed and presented by defendant's attorney. Lee v. Hickson, 40 C. A. 632, 91 S. W. 636.

Must be attorney of court.—A person cannot prosecute a suit in court by an agent and attorney in fact, if the latter is not an attorney of the court. Harkins v. Murphy & Bolanz, 51 C. A. 568, 112 S. W. 138.

Amicus curiæ.—An attorney of the court may be heard or not as amicus curiæ, in the discretion of the court, concerning a proceeding in which he is not counsel; but in such case the court can only do that which it could do without such action of counsel, and no more. Andrews v. Beck, 23 T. 455; Moseby v. Burrow, 52 T. 403; State v. Jefferson Iron Co., 60 T. 312.

An amicus curiæ cannot take a valid exception to a ruling. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Neil P. Anderson & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 182.

Exceptions filed by amici curiæ cannot be treated as exceptions filed by defendant on his appeal, and unless jurisdictional, cannot be considered. Hurd v. Inglehart (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 119.

1. Persons who may or must sue as plaintiffs—Capacity and interest in general.—All natural and artificial persons may sue and be sued. Bank v. Simonton, 2 T. 531; Holloway v. M. E. P. & P. R. R. Co., 23 T. 465, 76 Am. Dec. 68.

Trespass to try title cannot be maintained by one in his own name for the use of another. Hooper v. Hall, 30 T. 154; Smith v. Olsen (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 874.

The widow can collect a policy payable to herself, "half for her use and half for use of her children." The children are not necessary parties to a suit. Life Ins. Co. v. Ray, 50 T. 511.

Several creditors may join in a petition when they have similar rights with respect to the property of their debtor. Orr v. Moore, 1 App. C. C. § 588. And so several taxpayers may join to restrain the collection of a tax. Girardin v. Dean, 49 T. 243; Carlile v. Eldridge, 1 App. C. C. § 986. The jurisdiction of the court as to the amount in controversy is determined by the aggregate amount of taxes of all the parties. Carlile v. Eldridge, 1 App. C. C. § 986.

One of several subscribers who signed through fraud held entitled to sue for damages without joining the others. Read v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 742.

Vendee of purchaser at execution sale may sue to adjudicate adverse claim of beneficiary in a deed of trust on the same land claiming as purchaser under such deed. Shappard v. Cage, 19 C. A. 206, 46 S. W. 839.

Children designated as beneficiaries held proper plaintiffs to sue on a policy, though their names were not inserted therein, and assured had other children than those designated. International Order of Twelve of the Knights and Daughters of Tabor v. Boswell (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1108.

A taxpayer cannot maintain mandamus to compel the state comptroller to sue to collect a tax imposed on the gross receipts from the passenger travel of railroads and steamships operating within the state. Lewright v. Love, 95 T. 157, 65 S. W. 1089.

Defendants in an action for conversion held to be wrongdoers, as against whom plaintiff's right of possession was sufficient to support the action. Bridges v. Williams, 28 C. A. 38, 66 S. W. 120.

Maury, 79 T. 435, 15 S. W. 686.

43. —— Joint tort-feasors.—A suit for personal injuries may be brought against the defendants jointly or severally. Hardy v. Broaddus, 35 T. 668; Railway Co. v. Croskell, 25 S. W. 486, 6 C. A. 160.

In cases of joint trespass the party injured may sue one or all of the trespassers. Thompson v. Albright, 4 App. C. C. § 24, 14 S. W. 1020.

All persons who participate in any manner in a tort are jointly and severally liable to one injured thereby and he may sue one or all of the wrongdoers. Farmers' Gin & Milling Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 668.

44. —— Foreclosure proceedings.—Subsequent purchasers of mortgaged property are proper parties to a suit for debt and foreclosure of lien thereon. Hall v. Hall, 11 T. 526; Lockhart v. Ward, 45 T. 227; Wright v. Wooters, 46 T. 380; Davis v. Diamond, 1 App. C. C. § 590; Dalian v. Hollacher, 2 App. C. C. § 528; Bradford v. Knowles, 86 T. 505, 25 S. W. 1117; Looney v. Simpson, 87 T. 109, 26 S. W. 1065; Mittenthal v. Heigel (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 87; Brigham v. Thompson, 34 S. W. 358; McDaniel v. Chinski, 23 C. A. 504, 57 S. W. 922.

A lienholder asserting that his lien was paid when senior lienholder accepted vendor's lien notes held a proper party on foreclosure of the vendor's lien. Scharff v. Whitaker, 92 T. 216, 47 S. W. 519.

On foreclosure, the holder of an adverse title not derived of the mortgagor cannot be made a party defendant. Wolf v. Harris, 20 C. A. 99, 48 S. W. 529.

In an action by a grantor to foreclose a vendor's lien against his grantee, the vendee of the grantee is not a necessary party defendant. O'Rourke v. Clopper, 22 C. A. 377, 54 S. W. 930.

Where a landlord sued out a distress warrant and sought to foreclose his lien on certain goods, purchasers of the goods were proper parties. Jackson v. Corley, 30 C. A. 417, 70 S. W. 570.

In actions to enforce mechanics' liens the contractors as well as the owners are proper parties. Slade v. Amarillo Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 475; Same v. Caruthers, Id.

A suit arising under vendor's lien notes held not to constitute a misjoinder of parties defendant. Bowden v. Bridgman (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1043.

In a proceeding to foreclose a mortgage lien, it is proper to make any one claiming under the mortgagor a party thereto. Hampshire v. Greeves, 104 T. 620, 143 S. W. 147.

In a suit to foreclose a mortgage, the only proper parties are the mortgagor, mortgagee, and those acquiring rights or interests under them subsequent to the mortgage. Gamble v. Martin (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 327.

45. Persons who must be joined as defendants—In general.—All parties interested in the subject-matter of the suit and affected by the decree must be made parties. Henderson v. Terry, 62 T. 281; Black v. Black, 62 T. 296.

In a suit by taxpayers of a county to annul proceedings of the county court authorizing the issuance of bonds of the county, and to enjoin the collection of taxes to pay interest on such bonds, the bondholders are necessary parties. Board v. T. & P. R. Co., 46 T. 316.

The county judge held not a necessary party to an action on a guardian's bond. Robertson v. Tonn, 76 T. 535, 13 S. W. 385; Kretzchmar v. Peschel (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1021.

Where land condemned for a telegraph right of way is owned by two owners, proceedings instituted against one are binding on him though the other is not made a party. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 18 C. A. 502, 45 S. W. 179.

A bank alleged to be liable for conversion of book accounts held not a necessary party to a suit to recover on such accounts from the original debtor. Behrens Drug Co. v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 622.

Necessary parties determined in a suit by an heir based on the contention that an administrator's deed was void. Kalteyer v. Wipff (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1055.

Remaindermen held necessary parties to entitle a legatee to a judgment for his support, pending an action by him for his legacy. McCreary v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 476.

It is not necessary, in partition among heirs of land inherited, that the wife of one be made a party, in order to conclude her right as to homestead therein. Hill v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 357.

In action against joint owners of land, to recover money alleged to be charged on such land, all owners or their representatives must be made defendants. Parrish v. Williams (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 79.

Parties to a railroad's contract to maintain crossing held not necessary parties to a suit by one of them to compel the company to maintain an open crossing. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Schawe, 22 C. A. 599, 55 S. W. 357.

In an action by a grantor of a street railway against the assignee of the grantee for damages for failure to operate the railway as required by the deed, the grantee is not a necessary party. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485.

The holders of bonds are necessary parties to an action to restrain a school district from levying a tax to pay interest on such bonds. Boesch v. Byrom, 37 C. A. 35, 83 S. W. 18.

In a proceeding to set aside a decree for fraud perpetrated in its rendition by a plaintiff in the suit on his coplaintiffs, instituted by a purchaser of the interests of some of the coplaintiffs, the other coplaintiffs should be made parties. Clevenger v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 1062.

In a suit by a taxpayer to enjoin collection of tax levied to pay town bonds, the town and the holder of the bonds held necessary parties. Bradford v. Westbrook, 39 C. A. 638, 88 S. W. 382.

An insurer insuring an employer against damages for injuries to its employés held not required to be a party in an action against the employer. Texas Short Line Ry. Co. v. Waymire (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 452.

Where an injunction restraining a city treasurer from applying funds will affect the holders of city warrants, such holders should be made parties. Pendleton v. Ferguson, 99 T. 296, 89 S. W. 758.

In a suit by a broker for compensation, a third person held not to be a necessary party, nor to have an interest in the suit interfering with plaintiff's right to recover. Hancock v. Stacy (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 177.

It is the policy of the law, if practicable, to determine all issues in one proceeding, so that all parties necessary for that purpose should be joined. Hume v. Perry (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 594.

On bill of review against a judgment awarding recovery of land, certain defendants in the original suit held not necessary parties. Wiseman v. Cottingham (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 817.

Where the commissioners' court had made and entered of record an order levying a tax, and a suit was thereafter brought by taxpayers to restrain the levy of the tax, a temporary restraining order forbidding the levying and collecting of the tax could not be sustained, where the officer whose duty it was to collect the tax was not a party to the suit. Commissioners' Court v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 37.

A ward suing his guardian and his sureties held not required to make a notary public, assisting the guardian in perpetrating a fraud, a party defendant. Kretzschmar v. Peschel (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1021.

Where, after the levy of a tax, the purpose for which it was levied was abandoned, and the county commissioners' court attempted to transfer the tax to a fund for another purpose, the county judge and county commissioners were not necessary parties to a suit against the tax collector to restrain the collection of the tax. Petty v. McReynolds (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 180.

46. —— Actions on contract.—In a suit for loss of baggage against a carrier, who, as alleged, sold plaintiff a ticket over connecting lines, the other connecting carriers need not be joined as defendants. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Foltz, 22 S. W. 541, 3 C. A. 644.

Third person held not a necessary party in an action on a contract between plaintiff and defendant. Ragley v. Godley (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 66.

47. —— Landlord and tenant.—Tenant held properly required to be made a party defendant in action by landlord against defendants for removing furniture on which tenant had given a lien for rent. Peck v. Cain, 27 C. A. 38, 63 S. W. 177.

In an action against railroad for loss of property by fire communicated by defendant's engine to stock of goods in building under lease from railroad, lessee held not necessary party. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Keahey, 37 C. A. 330, 83 S. W. 1102.

In an action for rent, persons having only a remainder interest in property held neither necessary nor proper parties. Brooks v. Wynn (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1055.

48. —— Principal and surety.—The principal on a note was not a necessary party to a suit by the surety to be released from liability. Reeves & Co. v. Jowell (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 364 (second case).

49. —— Suits by or against trustee.—The fact that the trustee is authorized by the instrument evidencing the trust to receive rents for the use of the cestui que trust, and in his discretion to sell the property and apply the proceeds to the benefit of the cestui que trust, will not authorize the trustee to defend alone a suit brought to cancel the instrument creating the trust. The beneficiary is a necessary party. Ebell v. Bursinger, 70 Tex. 120, 8 S. W. 77.

As a general rule the cestui que trust is a necessary party in all suits brought by or against the trustee to recover the trust property. See Alliance Milling Co. v. Eaton (Civ App.) 33 S. W. 588. The exceptions to this general rule apply chiefly to cases where there are great numbers of beneficiaries in the trust, and where the intention existed in creating the trust to invest the trustee with power to prosecute and defend suits in his own name. Ebell v. Bursinger, 70 T. 120, 8 S. W. 77; Boles v. Linthecum, 48 T. 221; Preston v. Carter, 16 S. W. 17, 80 T. 388; Monday v. Vance, 11 C. A. 374, 32 S. W. 559. The objection for want of parties can be made on appeal or error. Anderson v. Chandler, 18 T. 436.

In a suit by a trustee against a bank and a receiver of another bank to recover because of failure to pay a draft claimed to have been purchased by the trustee from the insolvent bank against the other, the beneficiaries of the trustee are necessary parties. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Cobbs, 53 C. A. 1, 115 S. W. 345.

In a suit to adjudge that a purchaser at an execution sale of the franchises of a street railway company is a trustee the company held not a necessary party. Buckner v. Carter (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 442.

In a suit to establish a trust in land which defendant acquired as plaintiffs' attorney, one to whom defendant had sold part of the land as so acquired held not a necessary party. Henyan v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 458.

50. —— Against corporation.—The suit was for obstruction of way to premises by defendant digging ditches, and the prayer was to compel him to fill them. In abatement defendant pleaded the ditches were dug by an irrigation company of which he was president. The answer showing the company to be a necessary party, the judgment requiring the defendant to fill the ditches was erroneous. Bates v. Van Pelt, 20 S. W. 949, 1 C. A. 185.

In an action to enjoin the overflowing of land by means of a dam, where it is not shown that the officers and employés of the corporation owning the dam were doing or threatening to do anything independent of the corporation, they are not necessary parties. Reitzer v. Medina Valley Irrigation Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 380.

51. —— Suits by or against partnerships.—Dormant and nominal partners (Speake v. Prewitt, 6 T. 252) and persons incompetent to contract need not be joined as defendants (Shelby v. Perrin, 18 T. 515; Shipman v. Allee, 29 T. 17).

One of the members of a firm held a necessary party to a suit for dissolution. Boyd v. Boyd, 34 C. A. 57, 78 S. W. 39.

A surviving partner, suing to close up the firm business, need not make the deceased partner's heirs parties, where no judgment can be obtained against decedent's estate. Shivel & Stewart v. Greer Bros. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 207.

In actions by partnerships, all firm members, except dormant partners, are necessary parties. Floore v. J. T. Burgher & Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1152.

Where, in an action to restrain the diversion of waters of a river by an irrigation system, defendant pleaded that the system was owned by a firm of which he was a member, the other members of the firm, though nonresidents, were necessary parties. Biggs v. Lee (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 138.

52. —— Suits to set aside sale.—In a suit to set aside a sale under a judgment, the plaintiff in the judgment and the purchaser should be made parties. Ewing v. Wilson, 63 T. 88.

When, in a suit to set aside an execution sale on account of the fraud of the purchaser, there are no equities to adjust between the judgment creditors and the purchaser, no complaint being made as to the validity of the judgment and execution, the creditor is not a necessary party. Stone v. Day, 69 T. 13, 5 S. W. 642, 5 Am. St. Rep. 17.

In order to set aside a sheriff's sale for gross inadequacy of consideration, a direct proceeding should be instituted for that purpose in the court from which the execution issued, and the plaintiff in execution, as well as the purchaser, should be made parties. Miller v. Koertge, 70 T. 162, 7 S. W. 691, 8 Am. St. Rep. 587.

In order to set aside a sale in a direct proceeding for that purpose the purchaser at such sale must be placed in statu quo. See the opinion for case in which the beneficiaries in a trust deed were held to be necessary parties in a suit to set aside a sale made thereunder. Chase v. Bank, 1 C. A. 595, 20 S. W. 1027.

In a suit by a former ward to set aside a sale of land under execution issued on a judgment rendered against him while a minor, and against another person as his guardian, but who was not such guardian, the latter was not a necessary party. Land & Cattle Co. v. Ward, 21 S. W. 129, 1 C. A. 307.

That execution debtor notified the purchaser before the sale that the judgment had been satisfied did not excuse failure to make the judgment creditor a party to an action to set aside the sale. Marshall v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 755.

53. —— Conversion.—An administrator transferred a note belonging to the estate in payment of a debt due from himself. The maker of the note afterwards executed to the holder a new note payable to him in lieu of the note thus transferred, which he paid. In a suit against the former administrator, by the administrator de bonis non, to recover the proceeds of the note thus fraudulently transferred, held, that in such a suit brought for the wrongful conversion of property against the former administrator, neither the sureties on his official bond nor the maker of the original note were necessary parties defendant. Williams v. Verne, 68 T. 414, 4 S. W. 548.

A purchaser suing a bank for damages for the conversion of money deposited with it for the payment of the price on specified conditions held not required to make the vendor a party defendant. Banco Minero v. Ross & Masterson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W 224.

54. —— Scire facias to revive judgment.—In a suit by scire facias to revive a judgment, all the parties to the judgment must be joined. Austin v. Reynolds, 13 T. 544; Carson v. Moore, 23 T. 450; Baxter v. Dear, 24 T. 17, 76 Am. Dec. 89; Henderson v. Van Hook, 25 T. Sup. 453; Slaughter v. Owens, 60 T. 668; Rowland v. Harris (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 295.

55. —— Principal and agent.—In an action for breach of warranty on a sale for an undisclosed principal, such principal need not be joined as a defendant with his agent. Ash v. Beck (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 53.

56. —— Suits affecting community property.—In a suit against a husband to cancel a deed to community property, the record title to which was in him, the intervention of a third party held not to make the suit a new suit, so as to make it necessary that the defendant's wife be made a party, in order that the judgment should be binding upon her. Gabb v. Boston (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 569.

The surviving widow may sue a surviving partner for an accounting as to community property without joining her minor children. Chambers v. Ker, 24 S. W. 1118, 6 C. A. 373.

57. —— Suits to redeem.—It is no defense to a suit to redeem a pledge of stock as collateral that alleged purchasers of the stock from the pledgor were not made parties. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Conner, 29 C. A. 259, 67 S. W. 773.

58. —— Actions for contribution.—In an action for contribution by certain guarantors who had paid a note on which all the guarantors were primarily liable under a contract, held, that the other joint guarantors, defendants, were not prejudiced by failure to join a committee which had agreed to be responsible for its payment. Mateer v. Cockrill, 18 C. A. 391, 45 S. W. 751.

In an action for contribution against parties who had signed notes, but had failed to pay their proportional share, such parties have no right to be sued separately. Webster v. Frazier (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 609.

59. —— Garnishment proceedings.—Transferee of defendant in garnishment proceedings held not a necessary party, but, at most, a proper party. Barnett & Record Co. v. Fall (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 644.

Where a garnishee's answer denying possession of any effects of the judgment debtor is contradicted by a pleading alleging the execution by the judgment debtor and his wife of a deed of trust to the garnishee, designating the wife and her children beneficiaries, the children are necessary parties. League v. Scott (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1129.

60. —— Action to determine water rights.—In an action to determine water rights, a company through whose ditches a party was diverting water held a necessary party to the suit. Biggs v. Miller (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 632.

In a suit between irrigation companies to enjoin defendant from improperly taking water from a river, other irrigation plants who might also be improperly taking water are not necessary parties; it not being necessary to make them parties in order to adjust the equities between plaintiff and defendant. Matagorda Canal Co. v. Markham Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1176.

In an action between irrigation companies to enjoin defendant from taking water from a river, defendant's water tenants, some of whom claimed riparian rights, were necessary parties. Id.

61. —— Suit to compel surveyor to make survey.—In a suit to compel a surveyor to make a survey, all persons asserting a claim to the land should be made parties. Smith v. Power, 2 T. 57; Watkins v. Kirchain, 10 T. 375; Tabor v. Commissioners, 29 T. 516; T. M. Ry. Co. v. Locke, 63 T. 623.

62. —— Trial of right of property.—A claimant of property against which a chattel mortgage is being foreclosed by one owning only part of it cannot object to the failure to join the owner of the other part, beyond insisting that he shall pay only one bill of costs. Avery v. Popper (Sup.) 48 S. W. 572.

Where the owner of a lake deeded the use of its waters to a railway company for railway purposes and then dedicated it to a city as a park, the railway company held not a necessary party to an action by the city against a subsequent grantee to try title to the park. Gillean v. City of Frost, 25 C. A. 371, 61 S. W. 345.

It is not essential that plaintiff's vendee should be a party defendant in a sequestration suit brought against one who had been a party to the vendee's fraud upon plaintiff. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Glover, 45 C. A. 93, 99 S. W. 592.

In ejectment against a husband, who with his family occupied lands, it is not necessary to make the wife a party defendant, in order to expel her under a judgment of ouster against the husband. Evans v. Marlow (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 347.

In trespass to try title by a municipal corporation to recover a portion of a street claimed by defendant as part of his homestead, the wife was not a necessary party. Gillaspie v. City of Huntsville (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1114.

63. —— Creditors' suits.—The creditor and vendee are the only necessary parties to a suit to set aside, as fraudulent as to creditors, the deed of one who died without property, and on whose estate no administration has been taken out. Marshall v. Taylor, 7 T. 235; Lane v. Howard, 22 T. 7; Hart v. Rust, 46 T. 566; Birdwell v. Butler, 13 T. 338; Heard v. McKinney, 1 U. C. 83.

A petition to cancel a mortgage as a fraudulent preference of creditors must join as parties all the accepting creditors. Cleveland v. People's Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 523.

A petition to cancel a mortgage as a fraudulent preference of creditors should join as defendants persons designated by the mortgage as creditors whose claims are attacked by plaintiff creditors as fictitious. Id.

64. —— Mandamus proceedings.—Persons occupying street under contract with city held necessary parties to mandamus proceedings to compel removal of obstructions. Gibbs v. Ashford, 27 C. A. 629, 66 S. W. 858.

Holders of refunding bonds held necessary parties to mandamus proceedings, instituted by holders of unrefunded bonds, to compel a city to apply the proceeds of taxes raised for the refunding bonds to the payment of interest charges on the unrefunded bonds. City of Austin v. Cahill (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 536.

One to whom school lands were awarded after the award thereof to relator was canceled held not a necessary party to mandamus to compel the commissioner to reinstate the award to relator. Byrne v. Robison, 103 T. 20, 122 S. W. 256.

65. —— To enjoin sale under execution.—The plaintiff in execution is a necessary party to a suit against a sheriff to enjoin the sale of property levied on under execution. Ryburn v. Getzendaner, 1 U. C. 349.

66. —— Against telegraph company.—In an action against a telegraph company for failing to inform the sender of the message that the addressee resided beyond the free delivery limits, held not necessary to join as a defendant a telephone company, which transmitted the message to the telegraph company. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 61.

67. —— Specific performance.—Neither a minor nor his heirs at his death were necessary parties in a suit against the guardian for the specific performance of a contract. Logan v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 395.

In an action for specific performance of a contract made in behalf of several owners of distinct parcels of land, all of such owners held properly joined as parties defendant. Morrison v. Hazzard, 99 T. 583, 92 S. W. 33.

A vendor suing for the specific performance of a contract of sale held required to make all the purchasers parties. Banco Minero v. Ross & Masterson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 224.

68. —— Subrogation.—The fact that the original creditor had devised to his daughter and wife "all the money I have or may have at my death," etc., did not make them necessary parties in an action by interveners against the original debtor to enforce their right of subrogation by reason of having paid the debt owing to the testator. Darrow v. Summerhill, 24 C. A. 208, 58 S. W. 158.

69. —— Suits on negotiable instruments.—A suit on a negotiable instrument can be maintained only against those who are parties on the face of the instrument. Ezell v. Edwards, 2 App. C. C. § 767; Texas L. & C. Co. v. Carroll, 63 T. 48.

70. —— Foreclosure proceedings.—All parties having an interest in land on which the foreclosure of a vendor's lien is sought are necessary parties. Hall v. Hall, 11 T. 547; Lockhart v. Ward, 45 T. 227; Byler v. Johnson, Id. 509; Peters v. Clements, 46 T. 115; Schmeltz v. Garey, 49 T. 49; Peticolas v. Carpenter, 53 T. 27; Slaughter v. Owens, 60 T. 668; Templeman v. Gresham, 61 T. 50; Beck v. Tarrant, Id. 402; Black v. Black, 62 T. 296; Railway Co. v. Whitaker, 68 T. 630, 5 S. W. 448; Thompson v. Griffin, 69 T. 139, 6 S. W. 410; Andrews v. Key, 13 S. W. 640, 77 T. 35; Looney v. Simpson, 26 S. W. 1065, 87 T. 109.

A person who is in possession of personal property is a necessary party to a suit for the foreclosure of a mortgage on the same. Buchanan v. Monroe, 22 T. 537; Hall v. Hall, 11 T. 526; Mills v. Traylor, 30 T. 11; Chapman v. Lacour, 25 T. 94; James v. Jacques, 26 T. 320, 82 Am. Dec. 613; Preston v. Breedlove, 45 T. 47; Byler v. Johnson, 45 T. 509; Waldroff v. Scott, 46 T. 1; Carter v. Attoway, 46 T. 108; Turner v. Phelps, 46 T. 251; Cannon v. McDaniel, 46 T. 303; Wood v. Loughmiller, 48 T. 203; Pitman v. Henry, 50 T. 357; Silliman v. Gammage, 55 T. 365; Hillebrand v. McMahan, 59 T. 450; Davis v. Diamond, 1 App. C. C. § 590.

Where several notes given for the purchase-money of the same land are in the hands of different parties, they are necessary parties to a suit for foreclosure of the lien. McDonough v. Cross, 40 T. 251; Wooters v. Hollingsworth, 58 T. 371; Glaze v. Watson, 55 T. 563; Delespine v. Campbell, 45 T. 628.

When a vendor seeks to enforce against his vendee a mere equitable lien for purchase-money, a subsequent purchaser by deed and in possession is a necessary party. But if the party in possession and his vendor have a mere equity, and the former has notice by the recitals in his deed that the purchase-money is unpaid, he is not a necessary party. Robinson v. Black, 56 T. 215.

In an action against a railroad company, in favor of an assignee, of claims against a subcontractor, the contractor and subcontractor are necessary parties. A. & N. W. R. Co. v. Rucker, 59 T. 587.

In a suit to enforce a judgment lien on land, the defendant in the judgment and subsequent purchasers of the land are necessary parties. Slaughter v. Owens, 60 T. 668.

In a suit on a vendor's lien note by an assignee of the note, not only must the payee who has transferred the lien be made a party, but the original maker is a necessary and proper party to a decree of foreclosure, and unless the judgment sets out a foreclosure as to him, his rights are not affected thereby. Black v. Black, 62 T. 296.

A subsequent vendee in possession is not a necessary party to a suit to foreclose an express lien reserved in a deed to his vendor, and the purchaser at sheriff's sale under the judgment of foreclosure, though a third party, may maintain trespass to try title against such subsequent vendee in possession, who was not a party to the suit to foreclose. Foster v. Powers, 64 T. 247. See Bradford v. Knowles (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 1095; Bradford v. Knowles, 78 T. 110, 14 S. W. 307; Pierce v. Moreman, 84 T. 596, 20 S. W. 821.

The contractor is a necessary party to a suit against the owner by workmen, etc., to enforce his lien. Thomas v. Ownby, 1 App. C. C. § 1212.

The contractor is a necessary party to a suit by a laborer to enforce a lien on a railroad. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. McTiegue, 2 App. C. C. § 763; A. & N. W. R. R. Co. v. Rucker, 59 T. 587.

One who purchases an equity of redemption at sheriff's sale before a mortgage creditor brings his suit to foreclose, and who is not made a party to the foreclosure suit, is not affected by it. Railway Co. v. Whitaker, 68 T. 630, 5 S. W. 448.

A purchaser in possession from the vendee before suit to foreclose the vendor's lien is a necessary party to such suit. Ballard v. Carter, 71 T. 161, 9 S. W. 92.

A decree foreclosing the vendor's lien does not affect the rights of a purchaser from the vendee in possession and not a party to the suit. Id.

The mortgagor sold corn subject to his mortgage. Suit was prosecuted to judgment by mortgagee against the mortgagor. The corn was used by the purchaser. The mortgagee brought suit against the purchaser for the value of the corn, it being less than the amount secured by the mortgage. Held: 1. The suit against the mortgagor, without making the purchaser a party, was not an abandonment of the lien. 2. That the mortgagor was not a necessary party in suit by mortgagee against the purchaser. 3. The purchaser was responsible; the measure being the value of the corn subject to the lien which he had used. Boydston v. Morris, 71 T. 698, 10 S. W. 331.

In a suit to foreclose an implied vendor's lien on land (neither the notes nor the deed expressly retaining the lien), a third person then in actual possession of the land under deed from the maker of the notes holds the legal title, which remains unaffected by such foreclosure proceedings unless such third person is made a party thereto. Rhine v. Hodge, 1 C. A. 368, 21 S. W. 140.

In an action by the assignee of a vendor's lien to foreclose, the vendee's mortgagees are not necessary parties. Reagan v. Evans, 21 S. W. 427, 2 C. A. 35.

Wife not necessary party to foreclose vendor's lien existing prior to homestead rights. Watkins v. Spoull, 28 S. W. 356, 8 C. A. 427.

The trustee in a mortgage with power to sell is not a necessary party in a suit to foreclose the mortgage. Perryman v. Smith (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 349.

Foreclosure suits are equitable proceedings, and all parties whose rights are to be affected by the result must be made parties before they can be concluded by the decree. Oriental Hotel Co. v. Griffiths, 33 S. W. 652, 88 T. 574, 30 L. R. A. 765, 53 Am. St. Rep. 790.

Where a first mortgage is foreclosed without joinder of second mortgagee, a purchaser who has bought subject to second mortgage cannot have surplus applied on second mortgage. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Rich (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1032.

A senior mortgagee held not a necessary party on foreclosure by a junior mortgagee. Big Sandy Lumber Co. v. Kuteman (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 172.

On foreclosure of vendor's lien on one of four notes, the holders of the other notes must be made parties. Tidwell v. Starr (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 778.

A wife is not a necessary party to a foreclosure suit brought to foreclose a vendor's lien on a homestead. Brightman v. Fry, 17 C. A. 531, 43 S. W. 60.

Holder of a note secured by vendor's lien held not to represent the paramount title retained by the vendor, and hence a subsequent purchaser was a necessary party in an action to foreclose the lien. Williamson v. Conner, 92 T. 581, 50 S. W. 697.

A grantee of a mortgagor is not bound by a foreclosure commenced after the mortgagee has notice of his purchase, unless he is made a party. Oppermann v. McGown (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1078.

Where an execution purchaser of land was not a party to a suit to foreclose a mortgage thereon, the purchaser at the foreclosure sale cannot recover in trespass to try title against those claiming under the execution purchaser. Davis v. Lanier, 94 T. 455, 61 S. W. 385.

A railroad company, its contractor, and subcontractor are necessary parties to a suit on a duebill given by a subcontractor for work performed in constructing a railroad, in which it is sought to enforce a laborer's lien against the railroad. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Dorman (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 1086.

In proceedings to foreclose a mechanic's lien on property transferred after the lien had attached, the original debtor held a necessary party. Walter v. Dearing (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 380.

A wife is not a necessary party to a suit to foreclose a purchase money lien upon land purchased by her husband. Jackson v. Bradshaw, 28 C. A. 394, 67 S. W. 438.

In an action on a note and to foreclose a chattel mortgage in which L. was joined merely as a joint possessor of the property mortgaged, a judgment against him for the debt or value of the property was error. McLain v. McCollum & Frazier (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1027.

A contractor for railroad improvements held a necessary party defendant in a suit to enforce a lien for labor and materials furnished by third person for such contractor. Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Davis, 37 C. A. 342, 83 S. W. 883.

A senior mortgagee is not a necessary party in a suit by a junior mortgagee to foreclose. Garza v. Howell, 37 C. A. 585, 85 S. W. 461.

In a suit to foreclose a judgment lien on land, the judgment debtor, who had conveyed the land subsequent to the recording of a proper abstract of the judgment, was not a necessary party. McDowell v. M. T. Jones Lumber Co., 42 C. A. 260, 93 S. W. 476.

Purchaser, on foreclosure by proceedings to which plaintiff was not party, held to acquire, as against plaintiff, the rights of vendor under notes and vendor's lien. Mason v. Bender (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 715.

A foreclosure decree held not objectionable because it was sought to join certain unnecessary parties by publication of citation against them, when there was no statutory authority therefor. Flack v. Braman, 45 C. A. 473, 101 S. W. 537.

In an action to enforce the lien of a laborer of a subcontractor of a contractor for the construction of a railroad, the contractor should be made a party. Jasper & E. Ry. Co. v. Peek (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 776.

A contractor employed by a subcontractor held entitled to enforce his lien against a railroad company for work done in the construction of its railroad, without making the contractor a party. Id.

Where a mortgagee having no legal title sues to foreclose, he must make a subsequent purchaser a party. Hatton v. Bodan Lumber Co., 57 C. A. 478, 123 S. W. 163.

Where a vendor or his assignee sues to foreclose the vendor's lien, a subsequent purchaser is not a necessary party as the foreclosure purchaser acquires the interest of the vendor including the superior legal title, entitling him to recover the land subject to the equitable rights of the subsequent purchaser to redeem by paying the price paid at the foreclosure sale. Id.

The foreclosure of a vendor's lien by the assignee thereof, who used due diligence to ascertain all existing claims to the land and to make all known claimants parties to the action, extinguishes the rights of a town under a prior parol dedication of which such assignee had no notice, though the town was not a party. Adoue & Lobit v. Town of La Porte (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 134.

Where a vendor accepted a note as part of the purchase price, expressly reserving a vendor's lien, subsequent purchasers were not necessary parties to a suit on the note and for foreclosure of the lien. Ball v. Belden (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 20.

A junior lien holder is a proper, but not necessary, party to a suit to foreclose a vendor's lien. Miller v. West Texas Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 608.

When the mortgagee has notice of a conveyance by the mortgagor, the grantee is a necessary party to a suit for foreclosure. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Blount (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 566.

An assignee of vendor's lien notes held not entitled to foreclose so as to bar the vendee and purchasers from the vendee without making such vendee and purchasers parties to the action. Id.

In an action to foreclose a vendor's lien, contingent remaindermen held neither necessary nor proper parties. Shannon v. Buttery (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 858.

A purchaser of land, who gave vendor's lien notes thereon, being primarily liable, cannot complain that the omission of parties to the foreclosure suit would render the land unsalable and thus subject him to personal liability. Id.

Parties whose interest in land was acquired subject to a vendor's lien held not necessary parties to a foreclosure suit. Blake v. Vesey (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 221.

In an action to foreclose a materialman's lien a tenant who selected certain floor tiling, which was accepted and used by the contractor with notice to the owner, is not a necessary party. Texas Builders' Supply Co. v. Beaumont Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 770.

A junior mortgagee holding under an unrecorded mortgage, and of whose lien the plaintiff was not advised, was not a necessary party to a suit to foreclose a prior vendor's lien, and his rights were cut off by such foreclosure. Gamble v. Martin (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 327.

71. Interpleader.—Either party may interplead another who claims from him the same debt or duty as the adverse party. Williams v. Wright, 20 T. 499; Iglehart v. Moore, 21 T. 501; Iglehart v. Mills, 21 T. 545; Legg v. McNeill, 2 T. 428; Dobbin v. Wybrants, 3 T. 457; Westmoreland v. Miller, 8 T. 168. See Holloway v. Blum, 60 T. 625; E. T. F. Ins. Co. v. Coffee, 61 T. 287; Kempner v. Wallis, 2 App. C. C. § 584; P. E. Co. v. Williams, 2 App. C. C. § 810.

In an action on an insurance policy providing for subrogation of the insurer to the rights of the insured, the insurer may cause a third party whose negligence caused the loss to be impleaded, and have all rights determined, though the insurer has not paid the loss. Philadelphia Underwriters v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 31 C. A. 104, 71 S. W. 419.

A defendant held not to occupy an impartial position, so as to be entitled to be protected as a stakeholder. Trammell & Lane v. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co., 42 C. A. 455, 94 S. W. 104.

A party is entitled to file a bill of interpleader when he is a mere disinterested stakeholder, owing a fund or duty which he is willing and able to pay to one of two or more claimants, and is unable to determine to which he is indebted. Nixon v. Malone (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 577; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Same (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 585; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.; Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.

It was immaterial to a debtor's right to file a bill of interpleader that the rights of some of the claimants arose by reason of tort, and that of others on contract, or that all of the claims had not ripened into suits and could not be adjudicated in one suit. Id.

That certain insurance companies participated in a change of beneficiary in certain policies payable to insured, his executors or assigns, held not to preclude them from filing a bill of interpleader in a suit by various claimants of the proceeds of the policies. Id.

Insurance companies which were made defendants in an action seeking to subject the proceeds of policies to plaintiffs' claim held entitled to require plaintiffs and the other defendants to interplead for the fund. Nixon v. Malone, 100 T. 250, 98 S. W. 380; Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.; Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York v. Same, Id.; Nixon v. New York Life Ins. Co., Id.

It is no valid objection to a bill of interpleader that a particular claimant claims less of the particular funds than the whole amount tendered into court. Rochelle v. Pacific Express Co. (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 543.

Where a reward has been publicly offered to any one who will furnish evidence to secure the arrest and conviction of an unknown offender, and several persons separately claim to be entitled to the reward, an action of interpleader by the person liable for the reward is proper to determine who is entitled to it. Id.

72. Persons entitled to intervene and grounds of intervention—In general.—An intervention has been allowed for the purpose of asserting a right to the amount due on a note or account, or to personal property in controversy in the suit. Field v. Gantier, 8 T. 74; Van Bibber v. Geer, 12 T. 15; Eccles v. Hill, 13 T. 65; Wright v. Neathery, 14 T. 211; Fisher v. Bogarth, 2 App. C. C. § 120; Graves v. Hall, 27 T. 148; Smith v. Allen, 28 T. 497; Bremond v. Manley, 31 T. 6; Batchelor v. Douglass, 31 T. 182; Smalley v. Taylor, 33 T. 668; Mussina v. Goldthwaite, 34 T. 125, 7 Am. Rep. 281; Converse v. Sorley, 39 T. 515; Foote v. O'Roork, 59 T. 215.

And see Stoddart v. McMahan, 35 T. 267, where the wife was permitted to intervene in a suit by attachment to protect the homestead.

A claimant of personal property cannot intervene in a suit by attachment to set up title thereto. Carter v. Carter, 36 T. 693; Ferguson v. Herring, 49 T. 126; Ryan v. Goldfrank, 58 T. 356. But see Burlacher v. Watson, 38 T. 62; Meyberg v. Steagall, 51 T. 351.

Where the title to real estate is directly involved, one who has an interest in the property may intervene. Norvell v. Phillips, 46 T. 161.

Where the title is indirectly involved, as where land has been levied on under an attachment to satisfy a debt, a third party in possession, in order to intervene, must allege facts authorizing an injunction. Whitman v. Willis, 51 T. 421; Acklin v. Paschal, 48 T. 147.

Suit against United States officers in possession would not bar the government from resorting to any lawful remedy for the recovery of any right it may have therein. That an intervener bought an interest in the land in controversy from one not a party subsequent to the filing of the suit in no way affects his right to intervene and assert such title as he may have. Stanley v. Schwalby, 85 T. 348, 19 S. W. 264.

If by intervention other land was improperly made a subject of controversy, the action of the court in allowing it might be irregular, but its jurisdiction would not be affected. Whether such a state of facts was shown to make it proper to bring all the land in or not, the parties were before the court seeking to litigate over a subject of which it had jurisdiction, and its judgment entertaining and determining their suit cannot be collaterally attacked. Ivey v. Harrell, 1 C. A. 226, 20 S. W. 775.

A necessary party who was not joined may come into suit voluntarily. Foster v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 91 T. 631, 45 S. W. 376.

Stockholder of corporation held not to have such a cause of action as to entitle him to intervene in action by reorganization committee against the corporation's mortgagee. Bangs v. Sullivan, 33 C. A. 30, 73 S. W. 74.

In an action to set aside a judgment, certain parties held properly permitted to intervene. Lee v. Hickson, 40 C. A. 632, 91 S. W. 636.

The husband is the proper party to protect all claims based on community property or to recover wages of the wife for services rendered prior to a separation, and the wife has no right of intervention in such action, except as to what may have become her separate property. Michael v. Rabe (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 939.

The mere fact that a claim is below the jurisdiction of the court in which an action is pending is no ground for denying the right of intervention therein where a good reason for allowing the application is otherwise shown. Watkins v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Rockwall, 53 C. A. 437, 115 S. W. 304.

In mandamus to compel the district clerk to issue execution, the judgment debtors were properly permitted to intervene to show why the writ should not be granted. Kruegel v. Murphy & Bolanz (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 680.

73. —— Interest in subject of action in general.—The interest of an intervener must be such as would give him an independent right of action or constitute a valid defense to a suit against him. Pool v. Sanford, 52 T. 621; Fleming v. Seeligson, 57 T. 524.

The right of intervention denied where there was no privity of contract between the intervener and plaintiff. Burditt v. Glasscock, 25 T. Sup. 45; G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Gage, 63 T. 568; Robb v. Smith, 40 T. 89.

Persons not affected by the judgment which may be rendered in a suit have no right to intervene. Hinzie v. Kempner, 82 T. 617, 18 S. W. 659. Persons having an interest in the subject-matter may intervene. Spaulding v. Anders (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 407.

Attachment being levied upon community property in which the heirs of the deceased mother had an interest, to protect which interest they intervened, held, that interveners have no such equitable right as entitles them to intervene, and that there was no error in sustaining exceptions to the plea. Hinzie v. Moody, 1 C. A. 26, 20 S. W. 769.

One who is interested merely in the thing in litigation, and not in the particular rights, wrongs, or remedies involved, or who will not be affected prejudicially by a judgment rendered in the action, cannot intervene therein. Watkins v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Rockwall, 53 C. A. 437, 115 S. W. 304.

74. —— Grantees or purchasers.—One who, pending a suit involving property, purchases at a trust sale the interest of one of the parties in that property, occupies a position entitling him to intervene in that suit. Fleming v. Seeligson, 57 T. 524. See Wolf v. Butler, 81 T. 86, 16 S. W. 794; Stanley v. Schwalby, 85 T. 348, 19 S. W. 264.

One who buys a cause of action after suit is not a necessary party. Evans Co. v. Reeves, 26 S. W. 219, 6 C. A. 254; Wortham v. Boyd, 66 T. 401, 1 S. W. 109; Hair v. Wood, 58 T. 78; Lee v. Salinas, 15 T. 495.

A purchaser of personal property at an execution sale cannot intervene in another suit. Reddick v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 43.

Purchasers of land of a devisee pending administration held not entitled to intervene in an application by the administrator to distribute the funds in his hands; the interests of such purchasers being subject to the administration. Hallam v. Moore (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 908.

75. —— Creditors.—A creditor was allowed to intervene in a proceeding in the probate court to set apart a homestead to the widow and show that the property was not in fact a homestead. McLane v. Paschal, 62 T. 102.

A subsequent attaching creditor may intervene to defeat a fraudulent demand. Nenney v. Schluter, 62 T. 327; Meyberg v. Steagall, 51 T. 351; Jaffray v. Meyer, 1 App. C. C. § 1350; Fisher v. Bogarth, 2 App. C. C. § 120.

A fraudulent diversion of a debtor's property may be as effectively accomplished by a collusive suit as by a direct transfer; and to prevent the legal result of such a suit between an attaching creditor and the debtor, a junior attaching creditor may intervene in the case and protect his interest in the attached property by showing that the plaintiff's demand is fictitious. Johnson v. Heidenheimer, 65 T. 263; Wolf v. Butler, 81 T. 86, 16 S. W. 794.

Where property in the hands of a trustee for creditors was attached, held, that the preferred creditors might intervene, although their interests would be fully protected by the trustee. Boltz v. Engelke (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 47.

In an action to dissolve a partnership and to appoint a receiver, intervention by partnership creditors held authorized. Holder v. Shelby (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 590.

The general creditors of the husband of one of two deceased married women, claimed to have been partners in a business in their own right, could not intervene in a suit by the administrator of one of them against the administrator of the husband of the other, claiming that defendant had wrongfully taken possession of the property as community property when it was separate property. Lanza v. Roe (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 571.

76. —— Assignees.—Where a claim was transferred pending suit thereon, the transferee might come in and make himself a party, but it was not necessary, as he took the transfer subject to the result of the litigation. J. T. Stark Grain Co. v. Harry Bros. Co., 57 C. A. 529, 122 S. W. 947.

77. —— Lienors.—Where a mortgagee sues to foreclose his mortgage secured by a chattel mortgage upon a crop of cotton and corn raised by the tenant, the landlord has the right to intervene in the suit, and set up his landlord's lien and have it declared a prior lien to the chattel mortgage, and have it foreclosed as a preference lien on the crops. Polk v. King, 19 C. A. 666, 48 S. W. 601.

Where a senior chattel mortgagee sues to foreclose and makes a third person a party based on his conversion of the property, a junior mortgage may not intervene to obtain a judgment against the third person for the conversion. Watkins v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Rockwall, 53 C. A. 437, 115 S. W. 304.

78. —— Persons primarily or ultimately liable.—The vendor of personal property with warranty of title may intervene in a suit to defend title. Parker v. Nolan, 37 T. 85.

A surety embraced in a judgment against the principal has such interest that he may intervene in an injunction suit by a mortgagee of the principal's land to prevent its sale by the judgment creditor. Ivory v. Kempner, 21 S. W. 1006, 2 C. A. 474.

In an action against a railroad for damages to property, held proper to permit parties having agreed to indemnify the company to become parties defendant. Boyer & Lucas v. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1038.

79. Time for intervention.—Intervention should not be allowed after the original parties have agreed upon a judgment. Lambie v. Wibert (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 225.

Intervention will not be permitted after issues between original parties have been practically determined. Pinkard v. Willis, 24 C. A. 69, 57 S. W. 891.

80. Application to intervene.—All parties to the suit present in court in person or by attorney must take notice of the intervention. Bryan v. Lund, 25 T. 98.

Defendants cannot object to pleas of intervention because of their failure to tender equity to the original plaintiffs. Sprinkel v. McCord (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 379.

81. Mode and form of intervention.—An improper intervention may be dismissed on motion or exception. Ragland v. Wisrock, 61 T. 391.

One who voluntarily entered his appearance in an action, and adopted plaintiffs' pleadings, held to have become a party thereto. Garrett v. Robinson, 93 T. 406, 55 S. W. 564.

Where a bill of interpleader is filed, naming the various claimants of the fund in the plaintiff's hands, a claimant not made a party to the bill may become so by entering a plea asserting an interest in the fund. Bolin v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 444.

82. Status and rights and liabilities of interveners.—An intervener cannot delay the trial. Van Bibber v. Geer, 12 T. 15; Eccles v. Hill, 13 T. 65; Smith v. Allen, 28 T. 497; Ragland v. Wisrock, 61 T. 391. He may interpose an objection going to the foundation of the action. Hanchett v. Gray, 7 T. 549. He must accept the case with its previous orders and papers, including depositions, etc. Rainbolt v. March, 52 T. 246.

An intervener cannot appeal until final judgment as to all of the parties. Stewart v. State, 42 T. 242; Linn v. Arambould, 55 T. 611.

An intervener, by making himself a party to secure his interest in property involved in litigation, in making defense of his own right can plead and prove anything which will be a defense to the plaintiff's case, so far as it might affect his (intervener's) own claim. He does not, however, become the protector of the defendant, nor can the defendant derive any aid in his own case beyond what may be brought into it supported by his own defense as made in his answer. If the defendant's pleadings do not admit of evidence of payment or satisfaction of the note sued on, he cannot defend or receive the benefit of such defense made by the intervener, but the intervener's rights cannot be injured by the defendant's conduct of his own defense. Brown v. Mitchell, 1 U. C. 373.

A receiver of an insolvent corporation may reconvene against one who intervenes in a proceeding to which he is a party and ask an adjudication of all the rights of the corporation growing out of a continued course of business with the intervener under one general agreement. The fact that other suits were pending in another jurisdiction involving some of the matters in dispute, and to which the receiver was a party, when pleaded in abatement to the plea in reconvention, is not an answer to it. Bank v. Weems, 69 T. 489, 6 S. W. 802, 5 Am. St. Rep. 85.

An intervener against whom no affirmative relief is asked by the pleadings of the other parties to the cause occupies so much the position of the plaintiff that the only proper action to take with regard to him when he fails to appeal is to dismiss his suit for want of prosecution. Noble v. Meyers, 76 T. 280, 13 S. W. 229.

Suit by P. against E. for the value of personal property converted by him. C. intervened, claiming a lien on the property. Judgment was rendered for P. Pending an appeal without a supersedeas bond on execution against E., the judgment was satisfied. The judgment for P. was reversed and the property declared subject to the lien of C. Thereupon E. pleaded his judgment, and P., admitting it, dismissed suit as to E. It was held that C., having shown on the second trial that the property was subject to his lien, was entitled to judgment against P. for the sum and interest recovered from E. Claflin v. Pfeifer, 84 T. 23, 19 S. W. 297.

Interveners may occupy the positions of either plaintiffs or defendants, and all the elements of a cause of action or ground of defense may be contained in their pleading, and parties may come into court as effectually by that method as by original suit. Ivey v. Harrell, 1 C. A. 226, 20 S. W. 775; Simkins v. Searcy, 10 C. A. 406, 32 S. W. 849.

83. Defects and grounds of objection to parties in general—Mode of objection.—Non-joinder or misjoinder of parties, if apparent on the record, can be reached by special exception; otherwise by plea in abatement. Williams v. Bradbury, 9 T. 487; Shelby v. Burtis, 18 T. 644; Railroad Co. v. Le Gierse, 51 T. 189; Brundige v. Rutherford, 57 T. 22; Mott v. Ruenbuhl, 1 App. C. C. § 599; T. & P. R. Co. v. Pollard, 2 App. C. C. § 481; Barnett & Record Co. v. Fall (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 644.

Non-joinder or misjoinder of parties must be pleaded. Williams v. State, 23 T. 279; Davis v. Willis, 47 T. 155; Stresau v. Fideli, 1 App. C. C. § 847. The objection cannot be made by general demurrer. Railroad Co. v. Le Gierse, 51 T. 189; Mott v. Ruenbuhl, 1 App. C. C. § 599; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Pollard, 2 App. C. C. § 481, citing Williams v. Bradbury, 9 T. 487; Shelby v. Burtis, 18 T. 644.

If the petition shows the existence of parties in interest who have not been joined, it will be dismissed on demurrer; if their existence is not disclosed by the pleadings, but is disclosed on the hearing by the evidence, the case should be stopped until those parties are cited. Ship Channel Co. v. Bruly, 45 T. 6; De La Vega v. League, 64 T. 208.

An objection to the capacity of school trustees to sue to recover land can be attacked only by a sworn plea denying their authority. Crouch v. Posey (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1001.

A misjoinder either of actions or of parties must be taken advantage of by a plea in abatement, or, where the misjoinder appears from the face of the petition, by a special exception in the nature of such plea. Brooks v. Galveston City Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 330.

Where notes executed by a corporation were attached to and made a part of the petition, and it was proved that the notes were executed by the corporation acting through its president, a misnomer of the corporation as maker could only be taken advantage of by a plea in abatement. Houston Land & Loan Co. v. Danley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1143.

Misjoinder of parties must be pleaded in limine and cannot be raised by general demurrer. Farmers' Nat. Bank of Center v. Merchants' Nat. Bank of Houston (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1120.

Nonjoinder of parties cannot be raised by general demurrer. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Lockhart (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 127.

84. —— Time for objection.—The want of necessary parties to an action may be urged after judgment by default has been entered against those who have been made parties. Anderson v. Chandler, 18 T. 436; Ebell v. Bursinger, 70 T. 120, 8 S. W. 77.

That a person is not made a party to an action cannot be first objected to on appeal; but the question must be raised in the trial court. Rankin v. Busby (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 678; Southern Building & Loan Ass'n v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 320; Leslie v. Elliott, 26 C. A. 578, 64 S. W. 1037; Isaacks v. Wright, 50 C. A. 312, 110 S. W. 970.

Defect in necessary parties plaintiff may be shown on appeal. Hanner v. Summerhill, 26 S. W. 906, 6 C. A. 764.

Nonjoinder of parties cannot be first raised on motion for new trial. Brackenridge v. Claridge (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1005.

An objection that there was a misjoinder of parties held too late when not raised below. Green v. Scottish-American Mortg. Co., 18 C. A. 286, 44 S. W. 319.

Issue as to right of administrator to prosecute action as such cannot be first raised on appeal. Bull v. Jones (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 474.

The objection, in a suit to partition community property, that there is a nonjoinder of parties, should be pleaded before the rendition of the final decree. Moor v. Moor (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 347.

The question of plaintiff's right to recover in the capacity in which he sues cannot be first raised on appeal. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Jones, 30 C. A. 316, 70 S. W. 349.

In receivership proceedings against a firm, one of the partners, not having objected to the trial court's refusal to permit a receiver in bankruptcy to intervene, held not entitled to object to such ruling on appeal. Southwell v. Church, 51 C. A. 547, 111 S. W. 969.

A plea of misjoinder of parties must be first acted on in the trial court. Knox v. McElroy, 103 T. 357, 127 S. W. 798.

The objection that a guardian of the estate of her children could not maintain an action in trespass to try title as their next friend held not available, when raised for the first time on appeal. Keller v. Lindow (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 304.

The question as to a misjoinder of parties or causes must be presented by special exception in the trial court, and cannot be raised for the first time on appeal. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mill v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 294.

85. —— Plea.—A plea in abatement to an action on a liquor dealer's bond held insufficient. Price v. Wakeham, 48 C. A. 339, 107 S. W. 132.

A plea denying plaintiff's right to recover in the capacity in which it sues is not a plea denying its right to sue in its own name, and is not applicable where it sues in its own name, and not in a representative capacity. Midkiff & Caudle v. Johnson County Savings Bank (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 705.

86. —— Want of capacity or interest.—The right of one to sue as administrator must be questioned by a special plea in abatement. Barton v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 400.

87. —— Nonjoinder of parties plaintiff.—In a suit by heirs it was alleged that administration upon the estate of their ancestors had been closed. The defendant was not required to plead in abatement the nonjoinder of the administrator, it appearing on the trial that administration was pending. Peveler v. Peveler, 54 T. 53.

The objection of nonjoinder of one joint owner in trover by the other will be disregarded on failure to except or plead, where the part owner's property is limited to his interest. Leonard v. Worsham, 18 C. A. 410, 45 S. W. 336.

In a trespass by one of two joint owners of land, defendant can except to the petition for nonjoinder of the other owner, if it discloses the joint ownership, or he can plead a nonjoinder. Foster v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 91 T. 631, 45 S. W. 376.

In an action against a railway company for personal injuries, the question of nonjoinder of parties in interest cannot be raised, unless by plea of nonjoinder filed in due order. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 496.

Where a pledgor of notes brought suit without joining the pledgee, the error, being merely nonjoinder of parties plaintiff, should have been taken advantage of by plea in abatement. Liner v. J. B. Watkins Land Mortg. Co., 29 C. A. 187, 68 S. W. 311.

Motion to compel plaintiff's attorney to give security for costs held not a pleading complaining of his nonjoinder as party. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reeves, 35 C. A. 162, 79 S. W. 1099.

While tenants in common must join in an action for trespass, nonjoinder of a cotenant can in general only, be taken advantage of by plea in abatement, or by apportionment of the damages on the trial. C. R. Cummings & Co. v. Masterson, 42 C. A. 549, 93 S. W. 500.

A judgment in an action for negligent death brought by only a part of the parties in interest held not void. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Howell (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 560.

A special exception for nonjoinder of parties plaintiff held filed too late. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Ochiltree (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 584.

The nonjoinder of a necessary party plaintiff can be taken advantage of only by a plea in abatement, unless the necessity of his being a party sufficiently appears in the pleadings, in which case the question may be raised by a special exception. Id.

The defendant in an action by a second indorser of a note must, by proper pleading, bring in other indorsers, if he wishes to make them parties. McShan v. Watlington (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 722.

Where parties to a suit are only proper parties, the right to complain that they were not made parties may be waived by delay. Biggs v. Miller (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 632.

In actions ex delicto the objection to the nonjoinder of a part of the parties plaintiff is available only by plea of abatement, or by way of apportionment of damages on the trial. Hughes-Buie Co. v. Mendoza (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 328.

88. —— Nonjoinder of parties defendant.—In an action against a partner, plaintiffs having alleged that the names of defendant's associates were unknown, defendant could not object to a defect of parties defendant without pleading in abatement and furnishing plaintiffs with the names and residences of the omitted partners. Holman v. Vickery & Coyle (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 430.

Where the petition does not on its face show a nonjoinder of parties defendant, that question cannot be raised by exception. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wells (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 670.

89. —— Misjoinder of parties plaintiff.—Misjoinder of parties must be pleaded in abatement. Denison & P. Suburban Ry. Co. v. Smith, 19 C. A. 114, 47 S. W. 278.

The joinder by mutual consent of plaintiffs in trespass to try title, in one of whom is vested the legal title, and in the other the equitable interest, based on a contract with the owner of the legal title, though an irregularity, is not ground for reversal. Satterwhite v. Rosser, 61 T. 166.

Misjoinder of parties and of actions apparent on the face of the petition may be raised by a special exception to the petition. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 577.

An allegation in a petition held not to show a misjoinder of parties plaintiff. Goodwin v. Simpson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1190.

Where a misjoinder of parties plaintiff does not appear on the face of a petition, the question of misjoinder cannot be raised by general demurrer. Porter v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 469.

90. —— Misjoinder of parties defendant.—Misjoinder of defendants must be pleaded. Abatement of suit therefor on judge's own motion held error. Sparks v. McHugh (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1045.

In an action to recover land under vendor's lien, question of whether one who signed notes with vendee, but not made party, was solvent, held immaterial, where no plea that he was necessary party was filed. Banks v. McQuatters (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 334.

Demurrer held the proper mode of objecting to defendant bringing in another as codefendant. Keel & Son v. Gribble-Carter Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 235.

Where misjoinder of defendants is not pleaded, it cannot be urged on appeal. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 288.

91. —— Misnomer or misdescription.—Prefixing of the word "the" to the name of a corporation made a party defendant does not change the name of the corporation, and is immaterial. Western Bank & Trust Co. v. Ogden, 42 C. A. 465, 93 S. W. 1102.

A party may be identified by the middle name. Niagara F. Ins. Co. v. Lee (Sup.) 19 S. W. 1030.

A clerical error in the name of a party to a suit apparent on the record is immaterial. Terry v. French, 5 C. A. 120, 23 S. W. 911.

Defendant in error held not entitled to object to a misnomer for the first time on appeal. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Cline (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 175.

A misnomer of a corporation as maker of a note executed by its president must be raised by plea in abatement. Houston Land & Loan Co. v. Danley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1143.

A mistake in the name of a defendant corporation, where citation is duly served on the proper party, must be taken advantage of by plea in abatement. Forbes Bros. Teas & Spice Co. v. McDougle, Cameron & Webster (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 745.

92. —— Amendment.—Where plaintiff, in an action for the death of a relative, shows that there are other relatives that should have been joined as plaintiffs, it is incumbent upon him to request a stay of proceedings, until the necessary amendment can be made; and, if this be not done, plaintiff cannot recover. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. McCray (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 275.

93. Waiver of defects and objections—In general.—An error on account of misjoinder of parties or causes of action may be waived. Delk v. Punchard, 64 T. 360.

Defendant's failure to interpose a plea of misjoinder or nonjoinder, or plea to the alleged membership of plaintiff as a voluntary association, held to constitute a waiver of the objection that some of the alleged members did not belong to the association. Ackermann v. Ackermann Schuetzen Verein (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 366.

Where one fails to plead defect of parties, he will be deemed to have waived same. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Parks, 40 C. A. 480, 90 S. W. 348.

Defendant held to have waived any question as to a misjoinder of parties. Braun & Ferguson Co. v. Paulson (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 617.

In an action on a note, where defendants by cross-complaint brought in a new party who had assumed the payment of the note, it was error to dismiss him on his own motion for misjoinder of parties and causes of action. Key v. Fouts, 44 C. A. 424, 99 S. W. 448.

If no objection is made to capacity in which plaintiff sues, objection is thereby waived. McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 287.

94. —— Nonjoinder of parties plaintiff.—Long delay in raising an objection that a petition by a married woman was defective for failure to join her husband held a waiver thereof. City of San Antonio v. Wildenstein, 49 C. A. 514, 109 S. W. 231.

When it develops on the trial that a person not joined has an interest in plaintiff's claim, and the defendant fails to make an effort to cure the defect in parties plaintiff, he waives what at most is dilatory matter, of which he could thereafter avail himself only by seeking to have damages properly apportioned. Waggoner v. Snody, 36 C. A. 514, 82 S. W. 357.

If no objection is taken by defendant by a demurrer or plea in abatement for failure to make proper parties plaintiff, the defect will be deemed waived. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Seale (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 999.

95. —— Misjoinder of parties plaintiff.—Defendant, not having objected by exception that a wife was joined with her husband in an action for injuries to her, held to have waived the objection. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 38 C. A. 201, 85 S. W. 445.

96. —— Nonjoinder of parties defendant.—An objection that another was a necessary party plaintiff, presented only by special exceptions to petition, without a ruling, held waived. Guarantee, Savings, Loan & Investment Co. v. Cash (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 749.

As to nonjoinder of joint obligors, see Hinchman v. Riggins, 1 App. C. C. §§ 294, 295.

97. —— Misjoinder of parties defendant.—Misjoinder of parties defendant held waived by joint answer. Burton v. Archinard (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 684.

In an action to enforce the lien of a laborer of a subcontractor of a contractor for the construction of a railroad, the failure to make the contractor a party held waived by the railroad company by its delay in raising the question. Jasper & E. Ry. Co. v. Peek (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 776.

Where misjoinder of defendants is not pleaded, it cannot be urged on appeal. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 288.

98. —— Misnomer.—Plaintiff's failure to sue defendant a corporation by its right name held waived. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. (Mut.) of Waco v. First State Bank of Hamlin (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1083.

99. —— Defect cured.—When it is apparent from an inspection of the record that no injury has resulted from the final judgment in a cause from the action of the court in overruling a plea in abatement setting up a misjoinder of parties or of causes of action, the action of the court on the plea becomes immaterial, and can afford no ground for reversal. Thompson v. Griffin, 69 T. 139, 6 S. W. 410; Railway Co. v. Jamison, 12 C. A. 689, 34 S. W. 674.

Defect of parties plaintiff held cured by a consolidation of separate suits begun by them respectively. Avery v. Popper (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 951.

Defendant cannot object, in a suit to rescind a sale made by him, that a certain person who furnished part of the consideration was not a plaintiff, where such person, on the death of the original plaintiff, became a plaintiff as one of his heirs, and adopted his pleadings. Cabaness v. Holland (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 379.

CHAPTER SIX

PROCESS AND RETURNS

Article 1850. [1212] [1213] Citation to issue, when.—When a petition shall be filed with the clerk, and the other regulations hereinafter prescribed shall be complied with, it shall be his duty to issue forthwith a writ of citation for the defendant. [Act Feb. 6, 1854, p. 53, sec. 9. P. D. 1430.]

Provisions mandatory.—The provisions of the statute in regard to citations are mandatory, and unless there is a substantial compliance therewith a judgment by default cannot be sustained. Pruitt v. State, 92 T. 432, 49 S. W. 366.

Clerk must prepare copy.—The copy of the citation must be prepared by the clerk without additional charge. Hallman v. Campbell, 57 T. 54. As to variance between copy and original, see Jensen v. Hays, 2 App. C. C. § 566.

Deputy clerk may issue, when.—A deputy district clerk, who was regularly appointed, subscribed the oath of office, and acted as such officer, was an officer de facto, and a citation issued by him was valid, though no jurat was attached to his oath. Calvert, W. & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Driskill, 31 C. A. 200, 71 S. W. 997.

Guardian ad litem cannot be appointed before service.—A guardian cannot be appointed until the minor has been duly served with process. Kremer v. Haynie, 67 T. 450, 3 S. W. 676; Wheeler v. Ahrenbeck, 54 T. 535.

When process may or must be issued.—In order to interrupt limitation citation must, after suit is filed, be issued and served without delay. (Veramendi v. Hutchins, 48 T. 531.) Ricker v. Shoemaker, 81 T. 22, 16 S. W. 645.

A citation which appears to have been issued before suit brought will not support a judgment by default. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Pape, 1 App. C. C. § 244.

Power of clerk of commissioners' court to issue.—See Art. 2280.

In particular courts or proceedings—Suits by next friend.—See Art. 2167 et seq.

—— Certiorari.—See Art. 739.
—— Condemnation.—See Art. 6511 et seq.
—— Corporation courts.—See Art. 917.
—— Distress.—See Art. 5486.
—— Guardian and ward.—See Art. 4063.
—— Injunctions.—See Art. 4662.
—— In justices' courts.—See Art. 2321 et seq.
—— Partition.—See Art. 6098 et seq.
—— Probate matters.—See Art. 3256.
—— Quo warranto.—See Art. 6400.
—— Supplying lost records.—See Art. 6779.

Art. 1851. [1213] [1214] One citation to each county where there is a defendant.—If there be several defendants, residing in different counties, one citation shall issue to each of such counties.

Must issue to county named in petition.—Citation must be issued to the county named in the petition as the residence of the party, or place where he is to be found. Ward v. Lattimer, 2 T. 245; Bean v. McQuiddy, 1 App. C. C. § 52; Duer v. Endres, 1 App. C. C. § 322. But see Baber v. Brown, 54 T. 99; Saunders v. Gilmer, 8 T. 295; Sun Mutual Ins. Co. v. Holland, 2 App. C. C. § 443; Lauderdale v. Ennis Stationery Co., 80 T. 496, 16 S. W. 308.

Art. 1852. [1214] [1215] Citation shall contain what.—Such citation shall be directed to the sheriff or any constable of the county where the defendant is alleged to reside or be, and shall command him to summon the defendant to appear and answer the plaintiff's petition at the next regular term of the court, stating the time and place of holding the same. It shall state the date of the filing of the plaintiff's petition, the file number of the suit, the names of all the parties and the nature of the plaintiff's demand, and shall contain the requisites prescribed in article 2180. [Acts Feb. 6, 1854, p. 53, sec. 9. May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 10. Nov. 12, 1866, p. 199, sec. 1. P. D. 1430-1. Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

Provisions mandatory.—A citation which in any respect omits a requirement of law will not support a judgment by default. I. & G. N. R. Co. v. Pope, 1 App. C. C. § 242; H., E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Erving, 2 App. C. C. § 122; Block v. Weiller, 2 App. C. C., § 503; Kirk v. Hampton, 2 App. C. C. § 719.

This article must be strictly complied with. Dunn v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 1084; American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Rodriquez (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 678.

Requisites and sufficiency in general.—Two or more defendants residing in the same county may be included in one citation. Carson v. Dalton, 59 T. 500.

A writ void on its face will not protect a ministerial officer making an arrest or seizing property thereunder. Worsham v. Votgsberger (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 157.

In view of the statute relating to process, held that a citation in an action to foreclose vendor's lien notes was sufficient. Blake v. Vesey (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 221.

A citation to a county court, written on a district court form, with erasures and interlineations, was sufficient to sustain a default judgment. McMillion v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 300.

Where the return of citation showing service was made a part of the transcript and certified, and the judgment recited service, it was not material that the citation contained no indorsement of filing by the clerk. Cloyes v. Phillip (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 549.

Indicating time and place for appearance.—Where a defendant was served on the 24th of June, 1876, with a citation to appear at a term of the district court of San Saba county to be held on the fourth Monday after the first Monday in September, 1876, and on the 29th day of July, 1876, the time of holding court in that county was changed, by act of the legislature, to the second Monday in September, 1876, to render judgment against him by default September 11, 1876, at a term of court held under the law as changed, was erroneoues. Gen. Laws 15th Leg. c. 67, p. 73; Pasch. Dig. art. 1513; Id. art. 1413; Neill v. Brown, 11 T. 17; Bagley v. Spruill, 1 U. C. 277.

It is not necessary that the words "the next regular term" should be used in the citation when the time and place of holding court is stated. Cave v. City of Houston, 65 T. 619. Nor the day of the month when the time is otherwise sufficiently designated. Railway Co. v. Wheat, 68 T. 133, S. W. 455.

As to statement of time, see McDowell v. Nicholson, 2 App. C. C. § 268. A citation is defective which states an impossible time. James v. Proper, 1 App. C. C. § 83; Scott v. Watts, 1 App. C. C. § 89; Binyard v. McCombs, 1 App. C. C. § 520.

A citation requiring defendant to appear on "the 3d Monday in February, A. D. 1894," was held to be sufficient. De Walt v. Zeigler, 29 S. W. 60, 9 C. A. 82; citing Cave v. City of Houston, 65 T. 621; Railway Co. v. Wheat, 68 T. 136, 3 S. W. 455; Kirk v. Hampton, 2 App. C. C. § 719.

Defendant must take notice of change in the law as to the time of holding court. Maddox v. City of Rockport (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 397.

Discrepancy in the date of a citation to appear held, on writ of error, to warrant a reversal of the judgment. Larkin v. Fenn (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 290.

Under this article a citation in an action in the county court, which requires defendant to appear before the county court of a designated county at the next regular term thereof, on a designated date, is fatally defective for failing to state the place of the holding of the court. Crenshaw v. Hempel (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 731.

A citation which requires defendant to appear at a date already past at the time of the filing of the petition will not support a default judgment. Paris & G. W. Ry. Co. v. Beckley (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 47.

A copy of a citation showing that petition was filed February 23d, for the May term following, and requiring appearance on the third Monday of "Febr May," one letter following the other in regular typewriter space lengths, is sufficient to require appearance at the May term; the letters "May," being written in bolder type than the letters "Febr." Ketchum v. Bourland (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 276.

A citation directing defendant to appear at the next regular term of the district court to be held on the second Monday of September, 1912, "the same being the 2d day of September, 1912," was fatally defective. Taylor v. Taylor, 157 S. W. 1184.

Indicating name of court.—Citation must state court in which suit is pending. Rutta v. Laffera, 1 App. C. C. § 822.

Indicating date of filing petition.—A citation which by clerical error states that the petition was filed March 20th instead of February 20th will not be quashed where it was served February 20th. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Johnson, 16 C. A. 546, 41 S. W. 367.

The misstatement of the time of filing the petition in the citation held corrected by serving with it a copy of the petition showing the proper date. Pruitt v. State (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 553.

The law requiring the citation to give the true date of filing the petition is mandatory and must be substantially complied with; otherwise the defendant is not required to answer. Leavitt v. Brazelton, 28 C. A. 3, 66 S. W. 466.

The omission of the citation to give the date of filing the petition renders a default judgment erroneous. Le Master v. Dalhart Real Estate Agency, 56 C. A. 302, 121 S. W. 185.

Error in that the copy of the citation served did not contain the true date of the filing of plaintiff's original petition was cured, where the copy of the writ delivered to defendant was accompanied by the certified copy of plaintiff's original petition and another defendant's cross-bill, which copies disclosed the true date of their filing. Wood v. Warren (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 301.

Indicating file number.—A citation which does not state the file number of the suit will not support a judgment by default. Durham v. Betterton, 79 T. 223, 14 S. W. 1060.

The file-mark may be corrected after judgment. Pennsylvania Fire Ins. Co. v. Wagley (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 997.

Where the file number of the case is not contained in the body of the citation it is insufficient to sustain a judgment by default. Duke v. Spiller, 51 C. A. 237, 111 S. W. 787.

In a special proceeding under the delinquent tax law of 1897, the citation need not state the file number of the suit as provided by this article, nor need it state the amount of the costs as given in the petition. Unknown Owner v. State, 55 C. A. 300, 118 S. W. 803.

Under this article a citation which does not contain on its face the file number is fatally bad, though the number is indorsed on the back thereof. Crenshaw v. Hempel (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 731.

Indicating names of parties.—The name of the defendant was stated in the petition to be U. S. Cummings. The citation was to and served upon Uriah Cummings. The variance is immaterial. Cummings v. Rice, 9 T. 527. And so where the name was Sampson Christie, and the citation was to Sampson and returned served on the defendant Sampson Christie. Crain v. Griffis, 14 T. 358.

A citation which fails to state the names of all of the defendants is defective and will not support a judgment by default. (King v. Hopkins, 42 T. 52; Little v. Marier, 8 T. 108; Andrews v. Ennis, 16 T. 46; Gunter v. Jarvis, 25 T. 583.) Owsley v. Paris Exchange Bank, 1 U. C. 93.

A citation by publication of "McKee" will not support a judgment against "McRee." McRee v. Brown, 45 T. 503. A petition, citation and service on "Favers" will not support a judgment by default against "Faver." Faver v. Robinson, 46 T. 204.

A citation for "Townsend" was returned served on "Townsen." Held sufficient. Townsend v. Ratcliff, 50 T. 148. The variance between "railway company" and "railroad company" immaterial. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Donahue, 56 T. 162.

In a suit brought by partners a statement of the firm name in the citation is sufficient, their individual names having been stated in the petition, and all other requisites of the process being complied with. Putman v. Wheeler, 65 T. 522; Graves v. Drane, 66 T. 658, 1 S. W. 905.

Matter descriptive of the person need not be inserted in the citation. In the petition plaintiff was styled "assignee of C. W. I. and I. N. I. & Co." In the citation he was styled "assignee of C. W. I. & Co." The variance was held to be immaterial. Maddox v. Craig, 80 T. 600, 16 S. W. 328.

A citation commanding the officer to summon "I. N. S., agent for the G., C. & S. F. Railway Company," etc., does not command service on the company, and will not sustain a judgment against the railway company, although served upon the person named in the writ. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rawlins, 80 T. 579, 16 S. W. 430; Phœnix Fire Ins. Co. v. Cain (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 709.

Service of a citation on G., correct in all respects except that the name of the co-defendant, who was properly served, was stated to be W. R. H. instead of R. M. H., will support a judgment by default against G. Gunter v. McEntire (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 590.

The statute also requires the citation to state the names of all the parties to the suit, and for this purpose it is sufficient to state the firm name of the plaintiffs. De Walt v. Zeigler, 29 S. W. 60, 9 C. A. 82, citing Putman v. Wheeler, 65 T. 525. But see Graves v. Drane, 66 T. 658, 1 S. W. 905.

The Christian name of the defendant in a suit is sufficiently stated by giving its initial. Milburn v. Smith, 11 C. A. 678, 33 S. W. 910.

One whose surname is Bryan is not bound by a judgment and execution in a suit in which he was cited by the name of Bryant. Weidemeyer v. Bryan, 21 C. A. 428, 53 S. W. 353.

A citation which fails to state the name of the defendant in giving the style of the suit, but does state it in the latter part of the writ, is good. Guinan v. City of Waco, 22 C. A. 445, 54 S. W. 611.

Citation, in action in firm name, in which petition gives firm name and those of individual partners, held to comply with statute requiring citation to state names of all parties. Lash v. Morris County Bank (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 806.

The fact that the full name of defendant was not stated each time it was referred to in a citation held not to render it obnoxious to a motion to quash. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Bodie, 32 C. A. 168, 74 S. W. 100.

Citation failing to state the names of both defendants in action on a joint note held insufficient to support a judgment by default. Delaware Western Const. Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 33 C. A. 658, 77 S. W. 628.

A judgment rendered against J. M. Peters on process issued against him was void as against M. J. Peters. Watt v. Parlin & Orendorff Co., 44 C. A. 439, 98 S. W. 428.

A citation in a case against a foreign corporation which has an agent in Texas is fatally defective if it commands the officer to summon the agent to appear and answer. It should direct the corporation to be summoned. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Uecker, 46 C. A. 84, 101 S. W. 872.

A citation held insufficient in not giving the names of the parties. Higgins v. Shepard, 48 C. A. 365, 107 S. W. 79.

Where a citation was issued commanding the summons of the St. L., S. F. & T. Ry. Co., which was served on G. as defendant's agent, whom the constable described in his return as the agent of the St. L. & S. F. Ry. Co., there was no legal service on the latter road. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 424.

The citation in an action by a corporation need not contain the names of its officers, under this article. Yates v. Royston State Bank (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 255.

If a defendant was legally before the court by personal service, it had jurisdiction to render judgment against him, even by default, though he was served under another than his real name. Anderson v. Zorn (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 835.

Under this article a petition complaining of the "Refugio County Land & Irrigation Company" and service of citation on a person described as treasurer of the company does not make the "Refugio Land & Irrigation Company" a party, and limitations applicable to the cause of action against the latter company do not cease to run in its favor on the filing of the petition. Bickford v. Refugio Land & Irrigation Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1188.

A default judgment against the "Mecca Fire Insurance Company (Mutual) of Waco, Tex.," is not sustainable on citation to the "Mecca Fire Insurance Company of Waco, Tex.," in the absence of allegation that the corporation used the two names indifferently. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 630.

A citation to an interpleaded party against whom defendants filed a cross-action was defective for not giving the names of all the parties to the suit. Leard v. Z. D. & J. W. Agnew (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 682.

Though the citation directing the officer to summon defendant railway companies, instead of naming them, stated that another railroad company "and others" were defendant, it was sufficient, where it commanded the officer to deliver to each of the defendants, naming them, a true copy of the citation. El Paso & Southwestern Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 356.

—— Must plead misnomer.—One personally served, under a wrong name, is bound by a judgment entered against him, if he does not plead the misnomer, so that one who was in the possession of the premises sued for in unlawful detainer, and was described in the citation, holding under a lease from the plaintiff therein, with whom he had had trouble respecting the lease, and who admitted that the citation was served upon him, was put upon notice that he was the person intended to be sued so as to be bound by a default judgment entered against him, though the citation was to John Doe Zorn, while his name was Jacob Zorn. Anderson v. Zorn (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 835.

—— Not cured by amendment.—An error in the name of a party in a suit who does not appear cannot be corrected by an amendment not served. Southern Pacific Ry. Co. v. Block, 84 T. 21, 19 S. W. 300.

Indicating nature of plaintiff's suit or demand.—The nature of the plaintiff's demand may be stated briefly and without detail. H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Burke, 55 T. 323, 40 Am. Rep. 808; Pipkin v. Kaufman, 62 T. 545; Hunt v. Wiley, 1 App. C. C. § 1214; H., E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Erving, 2 App. C. C. § 123.

It is sufficient to briefly state the nature of plaintiff's demand in general terms; as that the suit is on a promissory note, stating date and amount, and for foreclosure of a mortgage on land designated by location and quantity. Hinzie v. Kempner, 82 T. 617, 18 S. W. 659.

A citation describing the cause of action thus: "Suit, trespass to try title and remove cloud from title, cancel deed and for damages," is insufficient in not describing the land sought to be recovered. Ford v. Baker (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1036.

It is not necessary that the citation should set up in detail the allegations in the petition. It is not designed to supply the place of the petition or that it should state nature of plaintiff's demand otherwise than in a general way. McAnally v. Vickry (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 858.

While the statement of the nature of the demand in the citation need not fully set out the cause of action, it must be sufficient to correctly inform the defendant of the general nature of the claim asserted. Unless the citation is in substantial compliance with the requirements of the statute, a judgment by default is not authorized. Carlton v. Mayner, 47 C. A. 47, 103 S. W. 412, 413.

Under the statute, a citation is only required to state the nature of plaintiff's demand, and need not contain an accurate description of the grounds of action or the instrument sued on; and a citation alleging that defendant executed and delivered vendor's lien notes as a part of the purchase money of a lot described by subdivision, section and block, that the notes were due and unpaid, after demand, and citing defendant to answer plaintiff's petition, and that he have judgment for his debt, interest and costs, and for a foreclosure of the lien, is sufficient. Blake v. Vesey, (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 221.

—— Copy of petition instead of brief summary.—A citation containing no statement of the nature of plaintiff's demand, except a reference to a certified copy of the petition attached, held insufficient to support a judgment by default. Delaware Western Const. Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 33 C. A. 658, 77 S. W. 628.

Where a copy of the petition was attached to the citation and served on the defendant, it was immaterial that the statement of demand in the citation was not sufficiently full. Old Alcalde Oil Co. v. Ludgate (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 453.

A citation was not insufficient because a copy of plaintiff's petition was attached thereto, instead of a brief summary of the cause of action, as required. El Paso & S. W. Co. v. Hall (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 356.

—— Variance between petition and citation.—Any mere discrepancy or variance in the description of the note upon which a suit is brought contained in the citation and petition would by a comparison between them be corrected and explained by the petition. A description of the cause of action in the citation is sufficient, if the error or omission in the description is not of such a character as to mislead the defendant. Thus, where the citation described the note sued on as being made on the 14th day of January, 1878, and due and payable on the 1st day of January, 1878, whereas the note sued on was executed on the 14th day of January, 1878, and due and payable on the 1st day of January, 1882, a judgment by default was affirmed on appeal on the ground that the misdescription was not of such a character as to mislead the defendant. Pipkin v. Kaufman, 62 T. 545. See, also, Cave v. City of Houston, 65 T. 619.

Variance between petition and writ in immaterial matter is not a fatal defect. Maddox v. Craig, 80 T. 600, 16 S. W. 328.

A statement of the nature of plaintiff's demand in a citation held not the same as that pleaded in the petition, and was therefore insufficient to sustain a judgment against defendant C. by default. Carlton v. Mayner, 47 C. A. 47, 103 S. W. 411.

Necessity of seal.—A citation without a seal will not support a judgment. Line v. Cranfill (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 184.

Judgment by default is fatally defective if the seal of the court is not impressed on the citation on which it is based. Carson Bros. v. McCord-Collins Co., 37 C. A. 540, 84 S. W. 391.

May be amended.—Citation may be amended by affixing a seal. Cartwright v. Chabert, 3 T. 261, 49 Am. Dec. 742; Winn v. Sloan, 1 App. C. C. § 1103.

Defects in a citation which may be amended, if not excepted to, are not grounds for reversal. Marshall v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 578. See Austin v. Jordan, 5 T. 133; Crain v. Griffis, 14 T. 358; Hale v. McComas, 59 T. 487; Loungeway v. Hale, 73 T. 497, 11 S. W. 537. But see Durham v. Betterton, 79 T. 224, 14 S. W. 1060; Railway Co. v. Erving, 2 App. C. C. § 122; Kirk v. Hampton, Id. § 719; Railway Co. v. Pape, 1 App. C. C. § 243; Carlton v. Miller, 2 C. A. 621, 21 S. W. 697.

When, upon motion to quash the citation, plaintiff amends by leave of court, there is no error in overruling the motion, unless defendant was injured by the allowance of the amendment. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Truesdell, 21 C. A. 125, 51 S. W. 272.

A clerical error in a citation may be amended by leave at any time before trial. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Coker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 179.

A citation held properly amended as to place for appearance. Id.

No judgment without service of process, etc.—See Art. 1885 and notes.

Process, requisites of.—See Art. 2180.

Art. 1853. [1215] [1216] Defendant out of county to have copy of petition.—Where the defendant is to be served without the county in which the suit is pending, a certified copy of the plaintiff's petition shall accompany the citation; and, should there be more than one defendant to be served without the county, a certified copy of the petition shall be made out for each of them.

Certified copy.—The certified copy of the petition need not contain indorsements on the petition or the clerk's file marks, therefore a court cannot presume that a copy of a petition served upon a defendant contains a copy of the clerk's file mark. Pruitt v. State, 92 T. 432, 49 S. W. 368.

When citation is sent to a county other than the one in which suit is brought a certified copy of the petition must accompany the same. Tyler v. Blanton, 34 C. A. 393, 78 S. W. 565.

The indorsement on the back of a petition is no part of the petition and need not be included in the copy served on defendant. Wichita Mill & Elevator Co. v. State (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 427.

Seal not necessary.—It is not necessary that the copy should be authenticated by the seal of the court. Glasscock v. Shell, 57 T. 215.

Stating nature of demand.—This article does not change the statutory requirement that the citation should contain a statement of the nature of plaintiff's demand. Where the only statement was a reference to "the certified copy of petition hereto annexed" the citation was insufficient to support a judgment by default. Delaware Western Construction Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 33 C. A. 658, 77 S. W. 628.

Copy a part of citation.—The copy of petition accompanying is part of the citation and corrects error in date in the citation. Pruitt v. State (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 553.

Variance between copy and original.—As to variance between copy and original, see Jensen v. Hays, 2 App. C. C. § 566. When service of citation is made upon the agent of an incorporated company who resides in the county where the suit is brought, the defendant company, though its principal office may be elsewhere, is not entitled to be served with a certified copy of the petition. H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Burke, 55 T. 323, 40 Am. Rep. 808.

Art. 1854. [1216] [1217] Citation where sheriff is a party.—Where it appears from the petition that the sheriff is a party to the suit, or is interested therein, the citation shall be addressed to any constable of his county. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 21. P. D. 1437.]

Art. 1855. [1217] [1218] Duty of officer receiving citation.—It shall be the duty of the sheriff or constable to whom any citation shall be delivered to indorse thereon the day and hour on which he received it, and to execute and return the same without delay. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 14. P. D. 1433.]

Art. 1856. [1218] [1219] Service of citation within the county.—Unless the process should otherwise direct, the citation shall be served, if within the county in which the suit is pending, by the officer executing it delivering to the defendant, or, if there be more than one, then to each defendant in person, a true copy of the citation.

See Coffin v. Varela, 27 S. W. 956, 8 C. A. 417; King v. Goodson, 42 T. 153; Holliday v. Steele, 65 T. 388.

Necessity of personal service.—Suit by an insurance company to compel two persons who claimed the same policy, to interplead, is not a proceeding in rem, so that personal notice may be dispensed with. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Gooding, 19 C. A. 490, 49 S. W. 123.

An action held one in personam. Banco Minero v. Ross & Masterson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 224.

Copy to each defendant.—The return on a citation held to show that, contrary to the requirement of the statute, but a single copy was served on the two defendants. Duke v. Spiller, 51 C. A. 237, 111 S. W. 787.

Defendant sued in different capacities.—A defendant sued as executor, and also individually, need not be served with more than one copy of the citation. Owsley v. Paris Exchange Bank, 1 U. C. 93.

Fees of officer serving.—See notes under Art. 3864.

Service after return day a nullity.—Service of a citation after the return day is a nullity, and will not authorize a judgment by default. Harrington v. Harrington, 4 App. C. C. § 80, 16 S. W. 538.

Copy of petition unnecessary.—When a defendant resides in the county in which suit is brought it is not necessary that he be served with a copy of the petition. Brummer v. Moran, 46 C. A. 410, 102 S. W. 475.

Art. 1857. [1219] [1220] Service without the county.—If served without the county in which the suit is pending, the officer shall also deliver to the defendant and each of them, in person, the certified copy of the petition accompanying the citation. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 14. P. D. 1433.]

In general.—Minors residing beyond the limits of the county in which the suit was pending, and served with copies of the writ only, and not with copies of the petition, are not properly served, and the court cannot appoint a guardian ad litem for them. Kremer v. Haynie, 67 T. 450, 3 S. W. 676.

In serving a citation and original petition, it is not necessary to serve therewith an amended petition, alleging that a defendant has moved to another county and asking for citation to such county. Calvert, W. & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Driskill, 31 C. A. 200, 71 S. W. 997.

Sufficiency of return.—See notes under Art. 1864.

Presumptions.—See notes under Art. 3687.

Art. 1858. [1220] [1221] Citation in suits against counties.—In suits against any county, the citation shall be served on the county judge of such county. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 320, sec. 5. P. D. 1048.]

Art. 1859. [1221] [1222] Against cities, towns, etc.—In suits against any incorporated city, town or village, the citation may be served on the mayor, clerk, secretary or treasurer thereof. [Act Feb. 6, 1854, p. 53, sec. 9. P. D. 1430.]

Service on city held good.—In a suit against a city it was alleged in the petition that D. C. S. was mayor and G. R. B. was secretary of the defendant corporation. The citation directed the corporation to be cited, stated who were the mayor and aldermen, and directed them also to be cited. The sheriff's return upon the citation showed that it was served by delivering to said D. C. S. a true copy of the citation and also to the parties named in the citation as aldermen. It was held that thereby the municipal corporation was before the court, which thus obtained power to render judgment for the amount due and to award the necessary process to enforce the judgment. City of Houston v. Emery, 76 T. 282, 13 S. W. 264; s. c., 76 T. 321, 13 S. W. 266.

Art. 1860. [1222] [1223] Against incorporated companies and joint stock associations.—In suits against an incorporated company or joint stock association, the citation may be served on the president, secretary or treasurer of such company or association, or upon the local agent representing such company or association in the county in which suit is brought, or by leaving a copy of the same at the principal office of the company during office hours; provided, that if the president, secretary or treasurer does not either of them reside in the county in which suit is brought, and such company or association has no agent in the county in which suit is brought, then the citation may be served upon any agent representing such company or association in the state; and, in suits against receivers of railroad companies, service may be had upon the receiver, upon the general or division superintendent, or upon any agent of the receiver who resides in the county in which suit it [is] brought; provided, that, if there be no agent of the receiver in the county in which suit is brought, then service may be had upon any agent of the receiver in the state. [Acts 1887, p. 122. Acts 1874, p. 32. Acts 1874, p. 10. Acts 1854, p. 53. Acts 1854, p. 55. Acts 1903, p. 66. P. D. 1430, 4888.]

See American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 871.

Service—In general.—Service of process, to be binding upon a corporation, must be made upon the identical officer or agent, or on one of the officers or agents, prescribed by the statute. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 855.

There are three ways by which a corporation may be served with citation, first, upon the president, secretary or treasurer of the company; second, upon the local agent representing the company in the county where suit is brought, or third, by leaving a copy of the same at the principal office of the company during business hours. Webb v. Texas Christian University, 48 C. A. 264, 107 S. W. 87.

—— Local agent.—Citation may be served on the local agent of the company. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Gage, 63 T. 568.

A station agent, who was the local agent for a railway company owned and operated by defendant, though chartered under a different name, was defendant's authorized representative at the station to receive service of citation for it. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Casselberry (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1161.

Service upon a railroad in this state, if upon an agent, must be made upon some one authorized to represent it in the transaction of its business done or to be done in the state. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox, 105 T. 40, 143 S. W. 606, 157 S. W. 745.

—— Not on trustee.—Service cannot be made upon a "trustee." Waco Lodge v. Wheeler, 59 T. 554.

—— Upon manager, when.—It cannot be assumed that the manager of a company is either the president, secretary, treasurer or local agent of the company. In case of a foreign corporation service may be had upon the general manager; but, if the defendant is not a foreign but a domestic corporation, service cannot be so made. Implement Co. v. Schmidt, 4 App. C. C. § 134, 16 S. W. 174.

Service of citation upon the "manager" of a domestic corporation will not support a judgment by default, because the court cannot presume that the "manager" is either president, secretary, treasurer, or local agent of the corporation. Latham Co. v. Radford Grocery Co., 54 C. A. 510, 117 S. W. 909.

—— On agent adversely interested.—Service of citation on the agent of the corporation who is adversely interested will not support a judgment against the corporation without its knowledge. In this case a motion was made during the term to set the judgment aside on the ground above stated. Insurance Co. v. Storms, 6 C. A. 659, 24 S. W. 1122.

—— President.—Actual service on the president of the corporation within the jurisdiction, in an action against him on a guaranty of the corporate debt, held to convey jurisdiction, though he resided in another state. Carter v. Forbes Lithograph Mfg. Co., 22 C. A. 549, 56 S. W. 227.

—— Railroads parts of one line.—A railroad company which in fact controlled other roads purporting to operate independently of it held liable for their acts, so that service upon any of the other roads was a sufficient service upon it. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 327.

Where several railroads are parts of one line owned and controlled by one of the roads for which the others act as agents, a service on a general agent of the system was sufficient service on the controlling road. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 265.

—— At principal office.—Service must be at the principal office. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Gage, 63 T. 568.

—— In suits against receivers.—See, also, Art. 2147.

The statute provides that, in an action against a receiver of a corporation and of railroad companies, service of citation may be had upon the receiver or upon the general or division superintendent of the road, or upon any agent of said receiver who resides in the county in which the suit is brought.

—— Petition to state name of local agent.—It is not essential, though perhaps the better practice, in suits against corporations for the petition and citation to state the local agent or general manager upon whom service is to be made, but an omission to do so invalidates neither the petition nor citation. When the name is stated a judgment by default may be taken without proof that the person named is the local agent of the company. If not stated there must be proof that person served is the local agent or general manager. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 859.

Repealed as to certain insurance companies.—Acts 31st Leg. c. 108, § 34, providing that process in the case of domestic insurance companies of certain kinds "may" be served "only" on certain of their officers, or by having a copy at the home office, and that laws relating to corporations in general shall apply to such companies so far as pertinent and "not in conflict" with the provisions of this act repeals this article so far as concerns such companies. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 871.

Conclusiveness of return.—See notes under Art. 1864.

Waiver of service.—Waiver of process and acceptance of service by president and secretary of a corporation held fraudulent, because such officers were acting as agents for the adverse party. Fox v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 815.

A waiver of citation by an officer of a corporation, in good faith, as representative of the corporation, is binding on it. Fox v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 597.

In an action against a corporation to foreclose a valid vendor's lien, waiver of service of citation by the secretary of the corporation was not in fraud of its rights unless the land was worth more than the amount of the lien. Id.

A vice president of a corporation, who as agent for another held a vendor's lien note on corporation property, could not waive service of citation for the corporation in a suit to foreclose the lien. Id.

Art. 1861. [1223] Foreign corporations, how served.—In any suit against a foreign, private or public corporation, joint stock company or association or acting corporation or association, citation or other process may be served on the president, vice-president, secretary or treasurer, or general manager, or upon any local agent within this state, of such corporation, joint stock company or association, or acting corporation or association. [Acts of 1885, p. 79.]

Service—In general.—Judgment rendered against foreign corporation in a county where it had no agent reversed. Youngblood v. Strahorn-Hutton-Evans Commission Co. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 648.

Under this article service of citation is authorized upon any of the named officers of a foreign corporation if found in this state, unless it be shown that the corporation was not doing business in this state and that the officer on whom service was obtained was here casually and not on any business of the corporation, at the time of service, and the burden is on the party attacking the service to establish these facts. Cameron & Co. v. Jones, 41 C. A. 4, 90 S. W. 1134.

—— "Local agent" defined and service upon.—Service of citation on the local agent of a foreign corporation held valid, though the record did not show the corporation did business in the state. Frick Co. v. Wright, 23 C. A. 340, 55 S. W. 608.

"Local agent" as used in the statute means an agent at a given place or within a definite district. An "agent for the state" is not a local agent within this state. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson, 97 T. 432, 79 S. W. 517.

In a suit by a foreign corporation to set aside a default judgment against it in an action in which the citation was served on its local agent, the claim that the judgment was not authorized by the evidence cannot be considered. Bankers' Union of the World v. Nabors, 36 C. A. 38, 81 S. W. 91.

The president of a subordinate lodge organized by the supreme lodge of a foreign fraternal association held the association's agent within the law authorizing service of citation on agents of foreign corporations. Id.

By the term "local agent" as used in this article, is meant one who serves his principal in a certain fixed locality, and who represents the corporation in the promotion of the business for which it was incorporated, and it was not contemplated that service could be had upon an attorney employed to adjust its claims, or an attorney employed to go to any part of the state and represent it in the settlement of claims, to foreclose liens, or perform other services not directly connected with the purposes of its organization. Bay City Iron Works v. Reeves & Co., 43 C. A. 254, 95 S. W. 740.

Service upon the local agent of a foreign corporation whose office and place of business are in another state is sufficient. Werner Stave Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 248.

Jurisdiction of foreign corporation was acquired by service of citation on its local agent. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Goodrich (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1176.

Service on a local agent of a foreign railroad company, in an action for injuries to a train employé, held sufficient to confer jurisdiction over the corporation. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bunkley (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 937.

—— Upon commercial agent.—Service of process can be made upon the commercial agent of a foreign railroad corporation. Shane v. Railway Co., 28 S. W. 456, 8 C. A. 441.

—— Soliciting passenger agent.—In an action against a foreign railway company, operating no road within the state, service of citation was properly made on a soliciting passenger agent maintaining an office within the state. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Bass (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 860.

—— Upon secretary after resignation.—In an action against a foreign corporation, facts held sufficient to warrant a finding that the other members of the corporation had knowledge that its former secretary was continuing to act as such after his resignation. Wm. Cameron & Co. v. Jones, 41 C. A. 4, 90 S. W. 1129.

Citation need not designate person to be served.—The citation is sufficient where it commands the officer to serve the defendant by name when it is a foreign corporation, but it is better practice to point out the individual by name on whom service is desired, such as the president, vice president, secretary, treasurer or general local agent. Where there is a nonessential statement, by way of suggestion, in parenthesis on the citation, it does not invalidate the citation. Where the citation has been served on the right party but his name is given incorrectly on the return, it can be corrected so as to give the right name. Frick Co. v. Wright, 23 C. A. 340, 55 S. W. 608.

Conclusiveness of return.—See notes under Art. 1864.

May plead privilege to be sued in proper county.—See notes under Art. 1830(28).

Art. 1862. In suits against foreign corporations, cumulative mode.—Service may be had on foreign corporations, having agents in this state, in addition to the means now provided by law, by serving citation upon any train conductor who is engaged in handling trains for two or more railway corporations, whether said railroad corporations are foreign or domestic corporations, if said conductor handles trains over foreign or domestic corporations' track across the state line of Texas, and on the track of a domestic railway corporation within the state of Texas, or upon any agent who has an office in Texas, and who sells tickets or makes contracts for the transportation of passengers or property over any line of railway or part thereof, or steamship or steamboat of any such foreign corporation or company. For the purpose of obtaining service of citation on foreign railway corporations, conductors who are engaged in handling trains, and agents engaged in the sale of tickets or the making of contracts for the transportation of property, as described in this article, are hereby designated as agents of said foreign corporations or companies upon whom citation may be served. [Acts 1905, p. 30.]

See Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. W. C. Powell & Son (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 363.

One making contracts for handling of freight.—A resident who makes contracts for the transportation of freight over the lines of a foreign corporation doing business in the state is an "agent" of the corporation, within this article. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Demere & Coggin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 623.

"Any agent," etc.—Article cumulative.—Under this article and article 1830, subd. 26, providing that suits against a railroad may be brought in any county through or into which it extends or is operated, and subdivision 28, providing that foreign corporations may be sued in any county where they may have an agency or representative, the local agent of defendant, a foreign railroad company, held, under the evidence to be the local agent within the statute; hence plaintiff, a nonresident, had the right to bring and maintain the action in the county, where process was served. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Kiser (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 852.

The words "any agent" in this article mean any agent who sells tickets or makes contracts of transportation over the line of a foreign railroad; and the section, so construed, provides for service in addition to the means provided by article 1861, providing for the service on enumerated officers of foreign corporations. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Demere & Coggin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 623.

"Doing business" within state.—A foreign railroad corporation which sends its trains over a line of road into the state without any change of crew, and which employs such crew to take the train out of the state, and which has an agent in the state to make contracts to transport freight over its line, does business in the state, within this article. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Demere & Coggin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 623.

One company controlling others.—An agreement of a foreign and local railroad company construed, together with evidence as to the mode of operating the companies, and held to show that the foreign company was operating through the company within the state, so as to authorize a suit by a nonresident for personal injury by proper service of process on the officers of the local company. Buie v. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co., 95 T. 51, 65 S. W. 27, 55 L. R. A. 861.

Where several railroads are parts of one line owned and controlled by one of the roads for which the others act as agents, a service on a general agent of the system was sufficient service on the controlling road. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 265.

Service on the conductor and ticket agent in the employ of a railroad company which was a mere subcorporation controlled by the defendant company was sufficient service on the defendant. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Hale (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 411.

Evidence, in an action for damages to a shipment of live stock, held not sufficient to support the allegation of an entirety or the existence of a partnership between defendants so as to make service on an agent of a state corporation legal notice to a foreign corporation. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox, 105 T. 40, 143 S. W. 606, 157 S. W. 745.

Art. 1863. [1224] [1224] Against partners.—In suits against partners, the citation may be served upon one of the firm; and such service shall be sufficient to authorize a judgment against the firm and against the partner actually served. [Act Feb. 5, 1858, p. 110, sec. 2. P. D. 1514.]

Service upon one member.—When service is made upon one member of the firm, judgment may be rendered against the partnership and the partner served, without discontinuing as to the other partner. Burnett v. Sullivan, 58 T. 535; Alexander v. Stern, 41 T. 193; Railway Co. v. McGaughey, 62 T. 272; Sanger Bros. v. Overmier, 64 T. 57; Henderson v. Banks, 70 T. 398, 7 S. W. 815; Halsell v. McMurphy, 23 S. W. 647, 86 T. 100.

Service of process on one member of a partnership will authorize a judgment against him and against the firm. Martin v. Burns, 80 T. 676, 16 S. W. 1072; Geo. Scalfi & Co. v.

State, 96 T. 559, 73 S. W. 443; Slaughter v. American Baptist Publication Society (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 224.

Characteristics of corporation.—Partnerships are not by this and article 2006 thereby invested with any of the characteristics of corporations; nor are they expressly or impliedly authorized to sue or be sued in their firm names independently of their members. It follows therefore that where the individual members who have been served all answer there can be no judgment by default against the firm. Owen v. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 432.

Service after dissolution.—The dissolution of a partnership before suit does not affect the creditor's right to a judgment so long as there is partnership property which could be subjected to execution upon judgment obtained by service upon all the partners. Alexander v. Stern, 41 T. 193.

Service upon one partner after a dissolution of the firm and before its liabilities have been liquidated is sufficient. T. & St. L. R. R. Co. v. McCaughey, 62 T. 271; Alexander v. Stern, 41 T. 193; Sanger v. Overmier, 64 T. 57. And when such suit is brought in a county in which the defendants do not reside, an appearance and answer by one partner will authorize a judgment against the partnership property, although one of the partners had filed a plea of privilege. Sanger v. Overmier, 64 T. 57.

Effect of dismissal as to partners not served.—A dismissal of the individual members of a partnership except the one through whom the partnership had by service been brought into court is not a dismissal as to the firm. Frank v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 311.

If a suit is dismissed as to partners not served, judgment cannot be rendered against the partnership, but only against the partners served. Glasscock v. Price, 92 T. 271, 47 S. W. 965.

In receivership proceedings.—Citation to partners in receivership proceedings held not required where the proceedings were in fact those of the firm. Southwell v. Church, 51 C. A. 547, 111 S. W. 969.

Art. 1864. [1225] [1225] Return of citation.—The return of the officer executing the citation shall be indorsed on, or attached to, the same; it shall state when the citation was served and the manner of service, conforming to the command of the writ, and shall be signed by him officially. [Act March 16, 1848, p. 106, sec. 11. P. D. 1507.]

Requisites and sufficiency in general.—A return on the citation against an insurance company held sufficient to sustain a default judgment. Texas Fire Ins. Co. v. Berry (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 790.

It was no objection to service that the return showed that the citation which was addressed to defendants at London, England, was served upon them at Berwyn, in the county of Surrey. Stein v. Mentz, 42 C. A. 38, 94 S. W. 447.

The return to a citation held insufficient to authorize a default judgment. Mahan v. McManus (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 789.

Date of service.—A return not showing the month and year when service was made is fatally defective. L. I. & F. Co. v. Watkins, 23 S. W. 612, 4 C. A. 428.

To sustain a judgment by default the sheriff's return on the citation must show the date of service. Robinson v. Horton (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1045.

The return on a citation held not to leave uncertain the date of service. Duke v. Spiller, 51 C. A. 237, 111 S. W. 787.

A sheriff's return of the service of a citation is not defective, because it indicates that it was served in the year "11," with no abbreviation mark to indicate that the year 1911 was meant; the date of the service being clearly apparent. O'Donnell v. Kirkes (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1167.

A sheriff's return on a citation contained the following, "Came to hand on the 18 day of March, A. D. 1911," and further showed service on two of the defendants on the following dates, "year 11, month 3, day 30"; the dates being tabulated, and the respective figures given being placed under the respective words preceding them. Held, that under common usage to express the year of a given date by using the last two figures only, the return, construed as a whole, clearly showed that the citation was served on such defendants on March 30, 1911, and was therefore sufficient. Cloyes v. Phillip (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 549.

—— Showing service before suit filed.—The return of the citation showing service of the same before suit was filed, a judgment by default was reversed on appeal. Texas State Fair Ass'n v. Lyon, 24 S. W. 328, 5 C. A. 382.

Manner of service—Delivery of copy.—The return must show the delivery of a true copy of the citation (and of the petition when served out of the county) to each of the defendants. Roberts v. Stocklager, 4 T. 307; Middleton v. State, 11 T. 255; Graves v. Robertson, 22 T. 130; Winans v. State, 25 T. Sup. 175; Batey v. Dibrell, 28 T. 172; Ryan v. Martin, 29 T. 412; Clark v. Wilcox, 31 T. 322; Hill v. Grant, 33 T. 132; Bendy v. Boyce, 37 T. 443; Tullis v. Scott, 38 T. 537; Hendon v. Pugh, 46 T. 211; Sun Mutual Ins. Co. v. Seeligson, 59 T. 3; McDowell v. Nicholson, 2 App. C. C. § 269. In person. Batey v. Dibrell, 28 T. 173; Womack v. Slade (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 1002; Poole v. Mueller (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 739.

A return showing a delivery of a true copy of the writ, with "a certified copy of plaintiff's original petition," is sufficient. Graves v. Drane, 66 T. 658, 1 S. W. 905.

The return of the sheriff must show the delivery of a certified copy of the petition to each of the defendants named therein. Lauderdale v. Ennis Stationery Co., 80 T. 496, 16 S. W. 308; King v. Goodson, 42 T. 152; Holliday v. Steele, 65 T. 388; Covington v. Burleson, 28 T. 368; Willis v. Bryan, 33 T. 429; Rutherford v. Davenport, 4 App. C. C. § 244, 16 S. W. 110.

The return of service of process upon an interpleaded cross-defendant was defective, where it did not show that he was served with a certified copy of the cross-complaint. Leard v. Z. D. & J. W. Agnew (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 682.

—— Parties served.—The return showed that a citation against "the Southern Pacific Railroad Company" was served upon the Southern Pacific Company. An amendment of the petition not served designated the defendant as the Southern Pacific Company. A judgment by default was reversed on error. Southern Pacific Co. v. Block, 84 T. 21, 19 S. W. 300.

A return to a citation reciting delivery to "S. & C., the within named defendants, of a true copy of this citation," held insufficient. Swilley v. Reliance Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 387.

Return to writ of scire facias held to show that service was had on each of the defendants. Polnac v. State, 46 Cr. R. 70, 80 S. W. 381.

In an action against a railroad company, return of service of process held to show that citation was delivered personally to S., defendant's agent, and to be sufficient. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Scoggin & Dupree, 57 C. A. 349, 123 S. W. 229; Same v. Birdwell (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 232; Same v. Henderson, Id.; Same v. Lovelady, Id.

Where a citation issued to several defendants and the sheriff's return stated that it was served "by delivering to the within named defendant" a copy thereof, no inference could be indulged in as to the identity of the defendant served. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Youngblood (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 898.

The return on a citation was that it had been "executed * * * by delivering to Jennie Scott and J. G. Scott, * * * the within named defendant in person, a true copy of this writ." Held, that as the return failed to show which one, if either, of the two defendants named, was served, it was tantamount to a service on neither of them, and insufficient. Scott v. Ray (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1002.

The sheriff's return of the service of a citation is not defective, because it states that it was served on "R. L. McCalley," where it also states that it was served on the "within named defendant," who was "R. L. McCaulley." O'Donnell v. Kirkes (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1167.

—— Agent of corporation.—The return of service on an agent of a corporation need not show all the facts set out in the statute which authorizes and provides for such service, but it is sufficient if they are shown from the record. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 855.

—— Must show service upon each party.—A return showing service "by delivering to I. P. R., H. R. H. & M. W. S., the within named defendant, in person, a true copy of this writ," insufficient. It should have shown service upon each of the parties. Rush v. Davenport (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 380; Randolph v. Schwingle (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 955; King v. Goodson, 42 T. 153; Holliday v. Steele, 65 T. 388.

A return of service "by delivering to the within named defendants in person a true copy of this writ" is fatally defective in not showing delivery to "each" defendant. Chamblee v. Hufsmith (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 616.

Return of service of citation on two defendants held insufficient to show service of a copy on each, so as to support a default judgment. Russell v. Butler (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 395.

The return showing only service of a single copy of the citation on the two defendants held not cured by the indorsement thereon of a bill for fees charging for serving two copies. Duke v. Spiller, 51 C. A. 237, 111 S. W. 787.

Indorsement of filing by the clerk.—There being no statute specifically requiring the clerk to indorse his file mark on a citation after its return, and the citation being regarded as filed, as a matter of law, when returned to the clerk's custody, where citation, with service indorsed thereon, appeared in the transcript, duly certified by the clerk, and the judgment contained a recital of service, it sufficiently appeared that the citation and the officer's return were before the trial judge when judgment was rendered; and it was therefore immaterial that there was no indorsement of filing by the clerk thereon. Cloyes v. Phillip (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 549.

Return to be considered as a whole.—All parts of the return should be considered in determining its effect. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Scoggins & Dupree, 57 C. A. 349, 123 S. W. 229.

Conclusiveness of return and impeachment thereof.—A defendant corporation may appear to contest the service, and quash it by showing that the person on whom the writ was served is not his officer or agent. This, under Art. 1883, post, operates as an appearance at the next term. The defendant corporation may, after judgment, either by motion or original suit, have the default set aside by proving that the person cited is not its agent or officer authorized by law to be served. It would seem, also, that when it is brought to the knowledge of the court, by affidavit of the person served, that a judgment by default is sought against a corporation by service on one not its agent, etc., the court should require proof of the agency, etc., before proceeding to judgment. When the petition alleges the agency of the person upon whom the service is made, the defendant in a collateral proceeding is concluded by the judgment. Jones v. Jefferson, 66 T. 576, 1 S. W. 903; H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. Burke, 55 T. 323, 40 Am. Rep. 808.

When a corporation is served through an alleged officer or agent, whose official character is called in question, the court should inquire whether or not such person is in fact such officer or agent. Olsen v. California Ins. Co., 11 C. A. 371, 32 S. W. 446.

In this state in a suit against a corporation when the local agent or other officer upon whom service may be had is not named in the citation, the sheriff's return showing service upon such agent or officer is not conclusive of the fact that such person is the agent or officer, but such fact may be put in issue, and if judgment has been taken by default, it can be set aside by motion or original suit upon proof that person served was not the agent or officer authorized by law to be served with citation. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 855.

There is no presumption of agency to receive service of process for a foreign railroad corporation, and, where service is made on a person represented to be its agent, the return is not conclusive of the fact that the person served was its agent. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox, 105 T. 40, 143 S. W. 606, 157 S. W. 745.

In an action against a foreign insurance company, process having been certified by the return to have been served on the person alleged in the petition to be defendant's agent, it was not necessary for plaintiffs to prove that the party served was such agent. Liverpool & London & Globe Ins. Co. v. McCollum (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 775.

—— By parol evidence.—In a proceeding to set aside a judgment by default, fraudulently procured, parol evidence will be heard contradicting the officer's return. Randall v. Collins, 58 T. 231. Also see Holliday v. Steele, 65 T. 388.

—— Direct or collateral attack.—The return of the sheriff showing service on a party may be impeached by him in a suit instituted for that purpose. Kempner v. Jordan, 26 S. W. 870, 7 C. A. 275.

The return of citation showing service upon a person bearing the name of the defendant in the suit implies service of such defendant and cannot be impeached in a collateral proceeding. Brooks v. Powell (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 809.

—— Affidavit of defendant insufficient.—A motion and affidavit of the defendant are insufficient to contradict the sheriff's return. Gatlin v. Dibrell, 74 T. 36, 11 S. W. 908; Randall v. Collins, 58 T. 231; Wood v. City of Galveston, 76 T. 126, 13 S. W. 227.

The affidavit of the defendant is insufficient to overcome the official return. Wood v. City of Galveston, 76 T. 126, 13 S. W. 227.

—— Testimony of single witness insufficient.—The return of an officer cannot be impeached by the testimony of a single witness. Gatlin v. Dibrell, 74 T. 36, 11 S. W. 908; Wood v. City of Galveston, 76 T. 126, 13 S. W. 227.

Presumption as to sufficiency.—See notes under Art. 3687.

Recitals in judgment.—The recital of facts in the judgment may be controlled by other facts appearing of record. Treadway v. Eastburn, 57 T. 209; Fowler v. Simpson, 79 T. 611, 15 S. W. 682, 23 Am. St. Rep. 370.

A recital in the judgment of a valid citation and service of process controls the record. If the judgment is silent, the whole record may be examined. Martin v. Burns, 80 T. 676, 16 S. W. 1072. Judgment of a justice of the peace is not within this rule. Wilkinson v. Schoonmaker, 77 T. 615, 14 S. W. 223.

Return of citation by publication.—See Art. 1878 and notes.

Return of service on nonresident.—See Art. 1872 and notes.

Must show diligence.—An officer returning process not served must show the diligence used to execute it. Morgan v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 156.

Art. 1865. [1226] [1226] Return of citation not served.—When the citation has not been served, the return shall show the diligence used by the officer to execute the same and the cause of failure to execute it, and where the defendant is to be found, in so far as he has been able to ascertain.

Art. 1866. [1227] [1127] Alias process.—When any process has not been returned, or has been returned without service, or has been improperly served, it shall be the duty of the clerk, upon the application of any party to the suit, his agent or attorney, to issue other process to the same or any other county, as the party applying may direct. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 19. P. D. 1435.]

See American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Rodriquez (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 678.

To same or other county.—Upon the return of the original process issued to the proper county, not served, alias process may be issued to the same or any other county as directed by plaintiff, without an amendment of the petition. Baber v. Brown, 54 T. 99; Lauderdale v. Ennis Stationery Co., 80 T. 496, 16 S. W. 308.

Supplemental petition not necessary.—When the suit is against several, who are described in the petition as residents of another county, but temporarily in the county where the suit is brought, and in which another defendant resides, if there be no service, a supplemental petition is not requisite to authorize an alias citation to the county of the residence of the defendants. When service is made on the party outside of the county in which the suit is pending, it is the duty of the officer to deliver to him a certified copy of the petition whether the writ so commands or not. Crawford v. Wilcox, 68 T. 109, 3 S. W. 695.

Art. 1867. [1228] [1228] Time of service of citation.—The citation shall be served before the return day thereof; and, in order to compel the defendant to plead at the return term of the court, the citation must be served at least ten days before the first day of such return term, exclusive of the days of service and return. [Acts of 1891, p. 94.]

See Dickson v. Burke, 28 T. 117; Fizhugh v. Hall, 28 T. 558; Wallace v. Crow, 1 App. C. C. § 41; Trevino v. Garza, 1 App. C. C. § 821; Cobb v. Brown, 3 App. C. C. § 314.

Sunday counted.—Sunday is counted when an intermediary day. Wood v. City of Galveston, 76 T. 126, 13 S. W. 227.

Must be served ten days before term.—A judgment by default will be reversed where a record affirmatively shows that the citation was not served ten days before the first day of the term as above required. Jackson v. Dowdy (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 693.

Art. 1868. [1229] [1229] Same subject.—If the citation be issued too late, or if it can not be served at least ten days before the first day of such return term, exclusive of the days of service and return, the officer to whom it is delivered shall nevertheless proceed to serve the same at any time before the return day thereof; and such service shall compel the defendant to plead at the next succeeding term of the court. [Id.]

Application.—This article applies to personal service and to service by publication. Hill v. Baylor, 23 T. 261.

Art. 1869. [1230] [1230] Citation to defendant without the state.—Where the defendant is absent from the state, or is a non-resident of the state, the clerk shall, upon the application of any party to the suit, his agent or attorney, address a notice to the defendant requiring him to appear and answer the plaintiff's petition at the time and place of the holding of the court, naming such time and place. Its style shall be, "The State of Texas," and it shall give the date of the filing of the petition, the file number of the suit, the names of all the parties and the nature of the plaintiff's demand, and shall state that a copy of the plaintiff's petition accompanies the notice. It shall be dated and signed, and attested by the clerk, with the seal of the court impressed thereon; and the date of its issuance shall be noted thereon; a certified copy of the plaintiff's petition shall accompany the notice. [Act March 15, 1875, p. 170, sec. 2.]

See Bassett v. Sherrod, 13 C. A. 327, 35 S. W. 312; Woldert v. Durst, 15 C. A. 81, 38 S. W. 215.

Construed, how.—The notice must be in substantial compliance with the statute, the provisions of which will be liberally construed. Jones v. Jones, 60 T. 451; Trevino v. Trevino, 54 T. 261; Leal v. Woodhouse, 2 App. C. C. § 101; Rowan v. Shapard, 2 App. C. C. § 295.

A citation served on a nonresident, which failed to comply with this article, held insufficient to support a judgment by default, even though the judgment recites due service. Bilby v. Rodgers (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 616.

Does not apply to justice courts.—Where a justice's judgment was rendered against a non-resident, who had neither an office nor an agent in the state, without service of other process than notice to nonresident defendant issued as authorized by this article, the judgment is void on its face and can be enjoined without showing a valid defense to the action. August Kern Barber Supply Co. v. Freeze, 96 T. 513, 74 S. W. 303, 304.

Service on nonresidents by notice, as is provided for in this article for district and county courts, cannot be had in a suit in the justice courts, and hence a judgment rendered in a justice court on such attempted service by notice is null and void. Carpenter v. Anderson, 33 C. A. 491, 77 S. W. 293.

Nonresidents within state.—The provisions of this article do not apply to service upon a nonresident of this state found in the state and upon whom service is had in the state. A nonresident found within the state may be served in the same way as though he were a resident of the county in which he is served. Cameron & Co. v. Jones, 41 C. A. 4, 90 S. W. 1132.

The notice provided in this article is only required when it is sent out of the state, to be served there upon the absent or nonresident defendant. Id.

Citizen temporarily absent.—Service without this state of process against a defendant who is a resident citizen of this state, but temporarily absent, confers jurisdiction. Fernandez v. Casey, 77 T. 452, 14 S. W. 149; Martin v. Burns, 80 T. 677, 16 S. W. 1072.

A party may be absent from the state and yet be a citizen, and as such subject to the process of its courts. Horst v. Lightfoot, 103 T. 643, 132 S. W. 761.

Revival of judgment based on personal service.—Service by publication in scire facias to revive a judgment recovered in the federal court of Colorado is good against a defendant who was personally served in the original action, notwithstanding that he had during the interim removed from the jurisdiction. Collin County Nat. Bank v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1181.

Must be addressed to whom.—A citation addressed to the sheriff or constable of a county in another state is not in compliance with this article. Porter v. Hill County (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 383.

The law confers upon the wife the surname of the husband, and in suit by publication she should be cited by that name. Freeman v. Hawkins, 77 T. 498, 14 S. W. 364, 19 Am. St. Rep. 769.

Where citation is addressed to defendants at London, England, and is served on them outside of London in England, it is sufficient. The notice need not be served in the county of his residence, nor is it addressed to, nor required to be served by an officer, but can be served by any disinterested person competent to make oath of the fact. Stein v. Metz, 42 C. A. 38, 94 S. W. 448.

Acceptance of service.—Where a nonresident receives and acknowledges receipt of notice issued by the clerk and copy of petition the service is sufficient. Balfour v. Tuck (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 842.

Court can provide methods of service.—The court held authorized to provide methods of serving process which will affect all residents or nonresidents. Banco Minero v. Ross & Masterson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 224.

Effect of such service.—See Art. 1873 and notes.

Art. 1870. [1231] [1231] By whom served.—Such notice may be served by any disinterested person competent to make oath of the fact. [Id.]

Art. 1871. [1232] [1232] Service in such cases.—Service in such cases shall be made by the person executing the same delivering to the defendant in person a true copy of such notice, together with the certified copy of the plaintiff's petition accompanying the same. [Id.]

As to service on nonresident defendant, see Hopkins v. State (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 225.

What law governs.—Service of process without the state in an action of trespass to try title pending in the courts of Texas is governed by the Texas laws. Norvell v. Pye (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 666.

Art. 1872. [1233] [1233] Return of such service.—The return of service in such cases shall be indorsed or attached to the original notice; it shall state when the same was served and the manner of service, and shall be signed and sworn to by the party making such service before some officer authorized by the laws of this state to take affidavits; and such affidavit shall be certified under the hand and official seal of such officer. [Id.]

Amendment.—Sheriff's return may be amended in conformity with the facts as to service. C. & A. Mortgage Co. v. Kyser, 27 S. W. 280, 7 C. A. 475.

Art. 1873. [1234] [1234] Effect of such service.—Where a defendant has been served with such notice, he shall be required to appear and answer in the same manner and under the same penalties as if he had been personally served with a citation within this state.

Will not sustain personal judgment.—The service of process without this state against a defendant who is a citizen of and residing in another state will not sustain a strictly personal judgment. York v. State, 73 T. 651, 11 S. W. 869; Falk Brewing Co. v. Hirsch, 78 T. 192, 14 S. W. 450; Maddox v. Craig, 80 T. 600, 16 S. W. 328; Kimmarle v. Railway Co., 76 T. 686, 12 S. W. 698; Porter v. Hill County (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 383; Roller v. Holley, 13 C. A. 636, 35 S. W. 1074. In a case determined prior to the act of April 27, 1893, it was held that, while the court had authority to decree partition of land against a nonresident served by publication, it could not render judgment against him for the costs of suit. Foote v. Sewall, 81 T. 659, 17 S. W. 373. Such service of process can be made in suits to try title to or remove clouds from the title to land. Hardy v. Beaty, 84 T. 562, 19 S. W. 778, 31 Am. St. Rep. 80; Foote v. Sewall, 81 T. 659, 17 S. W. 373; Arndt v. Griggs, 134 U. S. 316, 10 S. Ct. 557, 33 L. Ed. 918.

Service on nonresident without limits of the state will not authorize personal judgment. Donovan v. Hinzie et al. (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 994; L. & N. Ry. Co. v. M. K. & T. Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 296, 88 S. W. 413, 89 S. W. 276; Horst v. Lightfoot, 103 T. 643, 132 S. W. 761.

When a corporation of another state is served in that state with a true copy of the notice of the suit and with a certified copy of plaintiff's petition accompanying the same, in accordance with this article, a personal judgment cannot be rendered against said corporation. Louisville & N. Ry. Co. v. Emerson, 43 C. A. 281, 94 S. W. 1105; Gilbert Book Co. v. Pye, 43 C. A. 183, 95 S. W. 9.

In an action for specific performance against a nonresident personally served at his domicile, no valid judgment can be rendered against defendant where no levy of an attachment upon property belonging to him within the state was made, unless he voluntarily appeared and submitted himself to the jurisdiction of the court. Lucas v. Patton, 49 C. A. 62, 107 S. W. 1143.

Personal service without state will.—Where personal service is had on one without the state judgment by default can properly be rendered against him. Wilson v. Nat. Bank, 27 C. A. 54, 63 S. W. 1068.

Art. 1874. [1235] [1235] Citation by publication.—Where any party to the suit, his agent or attorney, shall make oath at the time of instituting the suit, or at any time during its progress, that the party defendant is a nonresident of the state, or that he is absent from the state, or that he is a transient person, or that his residence is unknown to the affiant, the clerk shall issue a citation for the defendant, addressed to the sheriff or any constable of the county in which the suit is pending. Such citation shall contain a brief statement of the cause of action, and shall command the officer to summon the defendant by making publication of the citation in some newspaper published in his county, if there be any newspaper published therein, but if not, then in any newspaper published in the judicial district where the suit is pending; but if there be no newspaper published in such judicial district, then it shall be published in the nearest district to the district where the suit is pending. Such citation shall be published once in each week for four consecutive weeks previous to the return day thereof. [Acts

March 16, 1848, p. 106, sec. 13; March 15, 1875, p. 170, sec. 1. Acts 1879, ch. 96, p. 103. P. D. 25.]

See dissenting opinion of Hodges, J. McDonald v. Mabee (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1089.

In general.—Notice by publication, given by jury of view in proceedings to condemn land for public road, held good and sufficient. Asher v. Jones County, 29 C. A. 353, 68 S. W. 551.

A judgment, petition, and affidavit of defendant's attorney held to show citation by publication only. Greenway v. De Young, 34 C. A. 583, 79 S. W. 603.

Substituted service of process on the contractor, who was a nonresident, held insufficient to render her a party to a suit for labor and material furnished to her by third persons. Eastern Texas R. Co. v. Davis, 37 C. A. 342, 83 S. W. 883.

Must be strictly followed.—This article must be strictly followed. Netzorg v. Green, 26 C. A. 119, 62 S. W. 791; Harris v. Hill, 54 C. A. 437, 117 S. W. 907; Gibson v. Oppenheimer (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 694.

Statement of cause of action—In general.—This article requires more to be stated in the citation than is required where the citation is to be served in the county where the suit is instituted. The nonresident defendant must be placed in full possession of the plaintiff's demand and he must have full notice of the extent to which his interests might be affected. A citation that does not give such information is defective. Borden v. City of Houston, 26 C. A. 29, 62 S. W. 427.

An omission to state in a citation by publication that foreclosure is asked for is fatally defective where this is prayed for in the petition. Netzorg v. Green, 26 C. A. 119, 62 S. W. 791.

The citation by publication in a trespass to try title case, must follow the petition in describing the land in so far as is necessary to contain the substance of what is contained in the petition, briefly stated, and can omit only so much as is not necessary to apprise defendant of what is involved in plaintiff's demand against him. Humphrey v. Beaumont Irrigating Co., 41 C. A. 308, 93 S. W. 182.

Plaintiff's citation to defendant in a suit instituted to enforce a mechanic's lien was made by publication, and stated that plaintiff as subcontractor performed work on a building which the contractor was to "assist in erecting for defendant Carson in the city of Amarillo, Tex.," that plaintiff had filed a lien upon the building and lot, and prayed for judgment for his debt and for general and special relief, etc. Held, that the citation was insufficient to authorize a judgment against defendant to foreclose the lien upon his property, since it contained no information that a lien was claimed and a foreclosure sought, nor a sufficient description of any property upon which a lien could be claimed. Carson v. Gilchrist (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 529.

Affidavit.—It is not the making of the affidavit, but its truth, which gives jurisdiction by publication over the person of the absent defendant. Kitchen v. Crawford, 13 T. 521.

If the affidavit is not made in accordance with the statute, the judgment will be reversed on error. Doty v. Moore, 16 T. 592.

It is not necessary, in order to support a judgment on service by publication, to show that an affidavit for publication was made. Iiams v. Root, 22 C. A. 413, 55 S. W. 411.

Under this article an affidavit that plaintiff did not know the "whereabouts" of his wife is insufficient. Young v. Young (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 898.

Residence unknown.—A compliance with the statute gives jurisdiction over an unknown resident or nonresident owner. Pool v. Lamon (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 363.

A valid decree of divorce may be obtained in the county of the matrimonial domicile on service by publication where plaintiff continues to reside there and defendant's residence is unknown. Griffin v. Griffin, 54 C. A. 619, 117 S. W. 910.

"Transient person."—A person having a permanent residence in another state, but at the time being within this state, is a transient person. Traylor v. Lide (Sup.) 7 S. W. 58; Hambel v. Davis, 89 T. 256, 34 S. W. 439, 59 Am. St. Rep. 46.

Time and number of publications.—The first publication must be four weeks (twenty-eight days) before the first day of the court to which the writ is returnable. Stephenson v. T. & P. R. R. Co., 42 T. 162; Hill v. Faison, 27 T. 428; Simpson v. Mitchell, 47 T. 572; Stegall v. Huff, 54 T. 193; Davis v. Robinson, 70 T. 394, 7 S. W. 749; Stewart v. Anderson, 70 T. 588, 8 S. W. 295.

Where the trial was not had until the March term, publication for four consecutive weeks preceding the January term was sufficient. Patterson v. Seeton, 19 C. A. 430, 47 S. W. 732.

Evidence that service by publication in a justice's court was completed on October 21st, and cited defendant to appear on October 23d, held not sufficient to invalidate a judgment against defendant, entered at the succeeding term in December, though the action was not continued over to the December term. Irion v. Bexar County, 26 C. A. 527, 63 S. W. 550.

Judgment.—See Notes under Art. 1994 et seq.

Suit as lis pendens.—A suit by publication is lis pendens from the time service is perfected by publication for the time and in the manner prescribed by law. Cassidy v. Kluge, 73 T. 155, 12 S. W. 13.

Will not sustain personal judgment.—Where jurisdiction over nonresident is acquired by citation by publication, a personal judgment against him may be corrected to restrict it to the garnished fund. Austin Nat. Bank v. Bergen et al. (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1037.

Suit by insurance company to compel two persons who had sued it to interplead is not a proceeding in rem, dispensing with personal service. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Gooding, 19 C. A. 490, 49 S. W. 123.

There is no jurisdiction to render a personal judgment against one absent from the state after service of notice by publication, though the defendant is a citizen of the state. McDonald v. Mabee (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1089.

Courts acquire jurisdiction in suits in personam by personal service of process, but in suits in rem such process may be constructive, and the court may acquire jurisdiction to determine a suit in rem, though defendant has been served only by publication. Batjer v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 841.

A suit to foreclose a mortgage is a suit in rem. Id.

—— Property attached.—Without an attachment upon property within this state a judgment upon service of citation upon the defendant in a personal action made outside of the state is void, as also is a sale under it. Scott v. Streepy, 73 T. 547, 11 S. W. 532; Falk Brewing Co. v. Hirsch, 78 T. 192, 14 S. W. 450.

A judgment rendered upon service by publication upon nonresident defendants in an attachment suit is void save against the property attached. An execution sale of other property under such judgment is void. Martin v. Cobb, 77 T. 544, 14 S. W. 162; Kimmarle v. H. & T. C. Ry. Co., 76 T. 686, 12 S. W. 698; Maddox v. Craig, 80 T. 600, 16 S. W. 328.

As to proceedings where an attachment has been issued in a suit in which citation was served under this article. Milburn v. Smith, 11 C. A. 678, 33 S. W. 910.

—— Against partners.—Service of citation by publication will support a judgment against partners, and sale of the property of any of the firm thereunder is valid. Martin v. Burns, 80 T. 676, 16 S. W. 1072

Time for answering—Defendant has until call of appearance docket to file his answer and judgment by default on first day of term in which suit is filed is erroneous. Cockrell v. State, 22 C. A. 568, 55 S. W. 579.

Answer in cases of citation by publication.—See Art. 1905.

Art. 1875. [1236] [1236] For unknown heirs.—Where any property of any kind in this state may have been granted, or may have accrued, to the heirs, as such, of any deceased person, any party having a claim against them relative to such property, if their names be unknown to him, may bring his action against them, their heirs or legal representatives, describing them as the heirs of such ancestor, naming him; and, if the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, shall at the time of instituting the suit, or any time during its progress, make oath that the names of such heirs are unknown to the affiant, the clerk shall issue a citation for such heirs, addressed to the sheriff or any constable of the county in which the suit is pending. Such citation shall contain a brief statement of the cause of action, and shall command the sheriff or constable to summon the defendant by making publication of the citation in some newspaper of his county, if there be a newspaper published therein, but if not, then in the nearest county where a newspaper is published, once in each week for eight successive weeks previous to the return day of such citation. [Acts Nov. 9, 1866, p. 125, sec. 1; March 16, 1848, p. 106, sec. 26. P. D. 5460, 26.]

See Cain v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 834.

In general.—Proof of publication of process held not defective under the statute. Stuart v. Cole, 42 C. A. 478, 92 S. W. 1040.

Under this article where the property going to unknown heirs does not satisfy a claim sued on other property which came to the heirs from the same decedent can be levied upon to satisfy the deficiency. Gibson v. Oppenheimer (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 694.

Suits for delinquent taxes.—This article should be followed in suits for taxes under the delinquent tax act of 1897 against unknown heirs as such, in view of the provisions of Rev. St. 1895 art. 5232g. Williams v. Young, 41 C. A. 212, 90 S. W. 942.

Effect of such service.—Under this article sale of land under judgment enforcing a vendor's lien in a suit against unknown heirs divests all their right, title, and interest as fully as though they had personally appeared; they being inhabitants of the state and having been duly cited by publication. Gibson v. Oppenheimer (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 694.

In an action to enforce a vendor's lien founded on citation to unknown heirs of decedent, judgment for plaintiffs did not affect the interest of his widow, she not being made a party. Id.

—— Judgment cannot be collaterally attacked.—As the district court has general jurisdiction of suits affecting title to land, a judgment of the district court in a suit under this article is conclusive against collateral attack, unless void on its face. Blaske v. Settegast (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 221.

Time and number of publications.—Where, in an action against certain defendants and their unknown heirs, the court did not acquire jurisdiction because citation was not published for eight successive weeks as required by this article, the judgment against the defendants and the sale of land thereunder were void. Hopkins v. Cain, 105 T. 591, 143 S. W. 1145.

Presumption as to service.—See notes under Art. 3687.

Appointment of attorney ad litem.—"In all suits where the defendant is cited by publication, and no appearance is entered within the term allowed for pleading, the court shall appoint an attorney to defend in behalf of such defendant, and shall allow such attorney a reasonable compensation for his services, to be taxed as part of the costs of the suit." Act Nov. 9, 1866 (Acts 11th Leg. p. 125; P. D. 26).

Appointment of an attorney ad litem for defendant unknown heirs, before the beginning of the term to which the citation is returnable, is, at most, only an irregularity. Steele's Unknown Heirs v. Belding (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 592.

Form of petition.—The form of petition under this article is not given, but a petition in the form prescribed by the chapter on trespass to try title might well be held sufficient. Construing this article and article 7733 and chapter 23, title 37, the petition should set forth the title of plaintiff and the claim of defendant if known. Cates v. Alston's Heirs (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 980.

Will not sustain personal judgment.—In a suit against unknown owners of land cited by publication, a judgment for partition of land is valid, but a judgment for costs against them is without jurisdiction and void. Foote v. Sewall, 81 T. 659, 17 S. W. 373.

Art. 1876. [1237] [1237] Citation by publication to contain same requisites as other writs.—The citations provided for in the two preceding articles shall contain the requisites prescribed in article 2180. [Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

See Arts. 1941 and 2175.

File number.—The citation by publication is not defective because the file number of the suit is not stated in the body thereof but is endorsed on it near the title of the case as it appears on the face of the citation. McLane v. Kirby & Smith, 54 C. A. 113, 116 S. W. 118.

Art. 1877. [1264] [1264] Publication of citation in suits involving title to land.—In all suits involving the title to land, wherein service of citation is by publication, the publication of citation shall be made in the county in which the land is situated; provided, there be a newspaper published in such county, and if there be no newspaper published in such county, then in the county nearest to the county wherein the land is situated. [Acts 1909, S. S., p. 324.]

Art. 1878. [1238] [1238] Return of citation by publication.—The return of the officer executing such citation shall be indorsed or attached to the same, and shall show when the citation was executed and the manner thereof, specifying the dates of such publication, shall be accompanied by a printed copy of such publication, and shall be signed by him officially. [R. S. 1879, 1238.]

In general.—A return upon citation held not to show insufficient service by publication, upon collateral attack on the judgment. Cain v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 834.

Showing manner of service.—A sheriff's return to a citation by publication to unknown heirs which states the date when the writ was received, and that he caused it to be published in a newspaper (naming it) which was published in the county of the venue "for eight weeks successively," without showing when it was executed, is not in compliance with the statute. If eight weeks did not elapse between the date of the issuance of the citation and the beginning of the term at which the writ was returned, such return would not affect its validity as citation to the succeeding term. O'Leary v. Durant, 70 T. 409, 11 S. W. 116.

A sheriff's return on a citation against a non-resident defendant which only shows that he ordered it published, is insufficient. Maury v. Keller (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 59.

Under Art. 1875, requiring citations to be published once in each week for eight successive weeks previous to the return day of such citation and this article, the officer could not merely state in his return that the citation was published eight successive weeks, but the return should show such publication, and the publication was insufficient where the facts stated in the return only showed publication for seven successive weeks. Hopkins v. Cain, 105 T. 591, 143 S. W. 1145.

Art. 1879. [1239] [1239] Mistake in return may be corrected.—Any mistake or informality in a return may be corrected by the officer at any time under the direction of the court. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 18. P. D. 53.]

Porter v. Miller, 7 T. 468; Thomason v. Bishop, 24 T. 302; Thomson v. Bishop, 29 T. 154; Burke v. Thomson, 29 T. 158. After appearance, defendant cannot object to the insufficiency of the return. Thomson v. Bishop, 29 T. 154.

In general.—An amendment after judgment, and when the court is not in session, is a nullity. Thomas v. Goodman, 25 T. Sup. 446.

An amendment of return of citation after petition for writ of error is filed is a nullity. Texas State Fair Ass'n v. Lyon, 24 S. W. 328, 5 C. A. 382.

Where a garnishee appears, the return on the writ may be amended during the trial to show that he was properly served. Fleming v. Pringle, 21 C. A. 225, 51 S. W. 553.

The return is but the evidence that service of citation has been made, and if defective, the court undoubtedly may permit the officer to amend it so as to accord with the true facts at any time during the term. Brewster v. State, 40 C. A. 1, 88 S. W. 860.

Notice to defendant.—A return on a citation can be amended without notice to the defendant. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 860.

Amendment relates back.—An amended return attached to the citation relates back to the time service was had, and is regarded as filed when the citation was filed. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 855.

Art. 1880. [1240] [1240] Acceptance of service of process.—The defendant may accept service of any process, or waive the issuance or service thereof by a written memorandum signed by him or by his duly authorized agent or attorney, and filed among the papers of the cause; and such waiver or acceptance shall have the same force and effect as if the citation had been issued and served as provided by law. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, secs. 12, 13. P. D. 1508, 1432.]

See Douglas v. State, 58 Cr. R. 122, 124 S. W. 933, 137 Am. St. Rep. 930.

Acceptance and waiver—Who can accept.—Service cannot be accepted by a minor. Wheeler v. Ahrenbeck, 54 T. 539.

As to acceptance of service by partnership, see Ludiker v. Ratto, 2 App. C. C. § 116.

Where a defendant in error dies after petition in error has been filed and bond for writ approved but before citation in error has been served, the surviving wife and children can accept service of citation when deceased left no debts and there was no administration nor necessity therefor. Binyon v. Smith, 50 C. A. 398, 112 S. W. 139.

—— Prior to institution of suit.—Acceptance of service with waiver of issuance and service of citation made prior to the institution of suit will not support a judgment by default. McAnelly v. Ward, 72 T. 342, 12 S. W. 206.

—— Signature to memorandum.—When the acceptance is by the party, the genuineness of his signature is presumed. Metz v. Bremond, 13 T. 394; Crain v. Griffis, 14 T. 358; Laird v. Thomas, 22 T. 276. The acceptance may be indorsed on the petition. Jewett v. Miller, 19 T. 290.

—— Effect.—Where defendant appeared and accepted service in writing, waiving, process, he cannot allege in error that he was not legally cited. Broocks v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 822.

In an action to subject land to plaintiff's lien, where the principal defendant's grantor was made a party defendant, and the principal defendant filed a waiver and acceptance of service in the cause, but never appeared, the court was without jurisdiction to dispose of the defendant grantor's cross-action against the principal defendant where that defendant was not again served. Doyle v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 473.

Art. 1881. [1241] [1241] Entering appearance in open court.—The defendant may, in person, or by attorney, or by his duly authorized agent, enter an appearance in open court; and such appearance shall be noted by the judge upon his docket and entered in the minutes, and shall have the same force and effect as if citation had been duly issued and served as provided by law. [Id.]

See Douglas v. State, 58 Cr. R. 122, 124 S. W. 933.

What constitutes appearance and effect thereof in general.—See Liles v. Woods, 58 T. 416, and P. & A. L. I. Co. v. Fitsgerald, 1 App. C. C. § 1345, as to the effect of a voluntary appearance.

The fact that the defendant had employed attorneys to defend the suit, had executed a replevy bond in the case, that the attorneys had accepted the service of a certain notice in said cause, and waived the filing of certain evidence to be used on the trial, does not constitute an appearance. Wells v. Amos Iron Works, 3 App. C. C. § 297.

An appearance in the district court for any purpose gives jurisdiction as to the whole case. Landa v. Mercantile & Banking Co., 10 C. A. 582, 31 S. W. 55. Citing York v. State, 73 T. 652, 11 S. W. 869; Sam v. Hochstadler, 76 T. 164, 13 S. W. 535; Pace v. Potter, 85 T. 475, 22 S. W. 300; Fairbanks v. Blum, 2 C. A. 480, 21 S. W. 1009; Insurance Co. v. Hanna, 81 T. 491, 17 S. W. 35.

An appearance not made for the purpose of questioning a service waives any defect in such service. Edinburgh American Land Mortg. Co. v. Briggs (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 1036.

An appearance by one sued individually and as executrix held to sufficiently show an appearance as such executrix. Woolley v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 861.

An attorney requesting a clerk to place his name on the docket, as representing a litigant, does not make an appearance for him in proceedings to try right of property under execution. Stevens v. Perrin, 19 C. A. 554, 47 S. W. 802.

Evidence held to show a voluntary appearance by defendant in an action, and waiver of defects in the service of the citation. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. McCarty, 29 C. A. 616, 69 S. W. 229.

Agreement of defendant in an action to a change of venue held to include a voluntary appearance. Jones v. Robb, 35 C. A. 263, 80 S. W. 395.

A voluntary appearance without service by a member of a firm, or by all the members by an attorney in an action against the firm, authorizes a judgment binding the firm property. State v. Cloudt (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 415.

A party held to have appeared in an action so as to preclude him from collaterally attacking the judgment rendered against him on the ground of want of jurisdiction. Artusy v. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1106.

Proceedings in a certain case held to warrant the recital that all parties appeared, etc., notwitnstanding one of the defendants was a corporation. Forty-Acre Spring Live Stock Co. v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 417.

Jurisdiction of the person held given by voluntary appearance whether in obedience to process or otherwise. Banco Minero v. Ross & Masterson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 224.

A railway company held to have submitted to the jurisdiction of the trial court, even if proper service was not made. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Bass (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 860.

The insufficiency of the officer's return to a citation is waived by defendant by his appearance in the cause at the term succeeding the return term. Martin Co. v. Cottrell (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 48.

Demurrer.—Where a defendant demurred to a first amended original petition, and it was sustained, no new citation was necessary on the second amended pleading, filed at a subsequent term, stating the same cause of action. Wisley v. Houston Nat. Bank, 28 C. A. 268, 67 S. W. 195.

Defendant, by appearing and demurring to an amended petition, waived the necessity of a new service upon filing the amendment, even if it set up a new cause of action against him. Snow v. Rudolph (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 249.

Plea of privilege.—The filing of a plea of privilege does not invoke the jurisdiction of the court in which it is filed. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. J. H. White & Co. (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 947.

A verified plea of privilege, without any limitation, is a general appearance sufficient to support a judgment by default. Santa Fé, L., E. & P. Land & Trust Co. v. Cumley (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 889.

A justice of the peace acquired jurisdiction of defendant's person where he appeared and answered by filing his plea of privilege to be sued in another county, which was overruled. Hudson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 486.

Defendants by filing pleas of privilege to be sued in another county at a term before that at which they were cited to appear entered their appearance at such preceding term for the purpose of trying such pleas. Harris Millinery Co. v. Melcher (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 100.

Filing of plea of privilege to the court's jurisdiction held to constitute general appearance. Early & Clement Grain Co. v. Fite (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 673.

Filing of plea of privilege to the court's jurisdiction held to waive irregularities in the citation or service and require the defendant to take notice of subsequent proceedings. Id.

Continuance.—The appearance of defendants and their consenting to a continuance waive the right to object to the jurisdiction of the court. Seley v. Parker (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 1026.

In an action for carrying a passenger beyond his destination, where defendant's attorney was informed of the filing of suit and agreed to a continuance, this amounted to an appearance, and his plea of limitations based on plaintiff's failure to issue a citation cannot be sustained. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ward (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 130.

Plaintiffs, by appearing and moving for a continuance and for leave to file a supplemental petition in response to an answer and cross-action, submitted to the court's jurisdiction, though they had not been served with citation on the cross-action. Degetau v. Mayer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1054.

Plea to jurisdiction.—The appearance of a foreign corporation by a plea to the jurisdiction is a waiver of the want of jurisdiction. Railway Co. v. Charman (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 958; Liles v. Woods, 58 T. 417.

Effect of appearance by nonresident.—A defendant served with process in another state, if he appears and moves to quash the service of the writ, thereby impliedly waives all other objections to the writ not then urged. If the motion be sustained, its effect is only to abate the writ; it does not operate a dismissal of the suit, and the plaintiff may have service of citation within the state if the defendant can be reached. Feibleman v. Edmonds, 69 T. 334, 6 S. W. 417.

An appearance in court by a nonresident defendant served with citation outside of this state, by a plea to the jurisdiction or a motion to quash service, subjects him to the jurisdiction of the court. Railway Co. v. Whitley, 77 T. 126, 13 S. W. 853; York v. State, 73 T. 651, 11 S. W. 869; Life Ins. Co. v. Hanna, 81 T. 487, 17 S. W. 35; Fairbanks v. Blum, 21 S. W. 1009, 2 C. A. 479.

A voluntary appearance by nonresident defendants to contest the jurisdiction of the court renders them subject to its jurisdiction, so as to warrant a personal judgment. Evans v. Breneman (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 80.

Appearance in courts of state by nonresident defendant held waiver of his immunity from the jurisdiction of state courts, and to perfect service made upon him without the state. Lucas v. Patton, 49 C. A. 62, 107 S. W. 1143.

An action against a foreign corporation domiciled in a foreign country held an action in personam, so that having voluntarily submitted itself to the jurisdiction of the court, it cannot urge that the court is without jurisdiction. Banco Minero v. Ross & Masterson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 224.

General appearance.—A general appearance is a waiver of process, and confers upon the court where the case is pending jurisdiction over the person appearing. Mueller v. Heidemeyer, 49 C. A. 259, 109 S. W. 447.

All appearances unless limited will be held to be general appearances. Id.

Facts considered, and held to show that a plaintiff had submitted himself to the jurisdiction of the court by general appearance, and could not complain of a judgment against him in a cross-action. Id.

Appearance by attorney.—An appearance by an attorney as amicus curiæ to object to the sufficiency of the service of a writ is not an appearance in the case, although he was in fact the attorney of the defendant. Railway Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 379.

A judgment held effective against persons who appeared by attorney, though not cited. Hart v. Hunter, 52 C. A. 75, 114 S. W. 882.

Recitals in judgment.—When the judgment recites that the defendants did appear in person and by attorney in open court, all questions of defective service of citation are rendered immaterial. Tammen v. Schaefer, 45 C. A. 522, 101 S. W. 469.

As waiver of plea of privilege.—See notes under Arts. 1830, 1909, 1910.

Where attachment was levied on the property of a nonresident, and service was had on him under the statute by notice served on him in another state, and he filed a motion to quash the attachment and appeared and filed an answer, jurisdiction was complete as though he had been served within the state, and did not depend upon the attachment. Simon v. Temple Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 592.

Art. 1882. [1242] [1242] Answer constitutes appearance.—The filing of an answer shall constitute an appearance of the defendant so as to dispense with the necessity for the issuance or service of citation upon him. [Id.]

See Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Scoggin & Dupree, 57 C. A. 349, 123 S. W. 229.

In general.—Any defensive pleading, although made for the purpose of denying the jurisdiction of the court over the defendant, is an appearance, and gives the court jurisdiction over his person as fully as would the issuance of proper citation and its proper service within this state. York v. State, 73 T. 651, 11 S. W. 869; Railway Co. v. Whitley, 77 T. 126, 13 S. W. 883; Legion of Honor v. Larmour, 81 T. 71, 16 S. W. 633.

An answer, after plea to the jurisdiction, held an appearance, under the statute. Loeb v. Crow, 15 C. A. 537, 40 S. W. 506.

A defendant in conversion held not to make itself a party after its dismissal from the case by its answer to a pleading of a codefendant seeking relief against it. Sexton Rice & Irrigation Co. v. Sexton, 48 C. A. 190, 106 S. W. 728.

An answer for a husband and wife, though informal, if authorized by the wife, held sufficient to make her a party to the suit, though she was not served. Owens v. Cage & Crow, 101 T. 286, 106 S. W. 880.

Service of process is waived by a defendant voluntarily appearing and answering to the merits. Werner Stave Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 247.

Where defendant, after its motion to quash the return for defects in service of citation was overruled, voluntarily answered to the merits, without reserving the privilege of being heard at the next term or asking a continuance, it waived any defects in the return, and the court could proceed with trial at the same term. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Scoggin & Dupree, 57 C. A. 349, 123 S. W. 229; Same v. Birdwell (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 232; Same v. Henderson, Id.; Same v. Lovelady, Id.

Defendant by answering held to have submitted itself to the jurisdiction of the court, whether it had any property in Texas or not. Southern Pac. Co. v. Blake (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 668.

The filing of an answer constitutes an appearance, so as to dispense with the necessity for the issuance or service of citation; this being so even in case of a verified plea of privilege, which is unlimited. Santa Fé, L., E. & P. Land & Trust Co. v. Cumley (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 889.

Where an action was continued to a subsequent term after defendant had filed an answer to the merits on the original petition, the court properly refused to quash the citation under Arts. 1882 and 1883. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. (Mut.) of Waco v. First State Bank of Hamlin (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1083.

The filing of an answer to a suit confers jurisdiction of the defendant, so as to authorize a binding judgment, notwithstanding a defect in the process. King v. Oliphant (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1167.

Pleas of privilege to be sued in the county of defendant's residence must be determined during the term at which they were filed, even though defendant was not compelled to answer until the succeeding term, and that failure to call such pleas up for action at the term at which they were filed waived them. Harris Millinery Co. v. Melcher (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 100.

Defendant, having answered plaintiff's petition, was required to take notice of the complaint of a subsequent intervener. Deutschmann v. Ryan (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1140.

It is the duty of a defendant, who has answered the petition, to take notice of a subsequent amendment thereof in open court, on leave, and govern himself accordingly, even if the amendment sets up a new cause of action. Tyson v. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Santa Anna (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1055.

Answer by nonresident.—A nonresident, who appears to an action against him in the state and files pleadings therein, subjects himself to the jurisdiction. Cassidy v. Willis & Connally, 33 C. A. 289, 78 S. W. 40.

A foreign corporation summoned as a garnishee gave the court jurisdiction by voluntarily answering. Hockwald v. American Surety Co. (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 181; Bernstein v. Same, Id.; Allen v. Same, Id.; Levy v. Same, Id.

A foreign corporation domiciled in a foreign country, personally appearing in an action against it, and filing its answer therein, thereby gives the court jurisdiction over it. Banco Minero v. Ross & Masterson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 224.

In attachment against a nonresident served with notice in another state, jurisdiction was fully acquired by his appearance and answer and was not dependent on the attachment. Simon v. Temple Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 592.

Cross-complaint or plea in reconvention.—Objection to suit as commenced on Sunday held waived by filing plea in reconvention. Benchoff v. Stephenson (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 106.

Judgment in a cause in which defendant filed a cross-plea seeking affirmative relief held such as to show that plaintiff had submitted himself to the jurisdiction, so that it was not necessary to serve him with a citation. Smithers v. Smith, 35 C. A. 508, 80 S. W. 646.

Where defendant by leave of court, filed a cross-action against plaintiff, who appeared and announced ready for trial on the issues joined, and gave notice of appeal from an adverse judgment, the appearance was a waiver of citation on the cross-action. Water & Light Co. of El Campo v. El Campo Light, Ice & Water Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 259.

Withdrawal of answer.—Where a defendant cited by publication has filed an answer he cannot, by a withdrawal of his answer, avoid the effect of an appearance. Williams v. Huling, 43 T. 113. And so when a demurrer is sustained to the answer. Brooks v. Chatham, 57 T. 31. An appearance by an answer is not affected by the withdrawal of the answer. Wheeler v. Roberts, 2 App. C. C. § 127.

As waiver of plea of privilege.—See notes under Arts. 1830, 1909, 1910.

Art. 1883. [1243] [1243] Motion constitutes appearance, when.—Where the citation, or service thereof, is quashed on motion of the defendant, the case may be continued for the term, but the defendant shall be deemed to have entered his appearance to the succeeding term of the court.

Motion as appearance.—An appearance for the purpose of objecting to the service of citation without this state, or by publication, or for any other purpose, operates as an appearance to the succeeding term of the court. And it is immaterial whether this motion is sustained or overruled. Railway Co. v. Morris, 68 T. 49, 3 S. W. 457; York v. State, 73 T. 651, 11 S. W. 869; Sam v. Hochstadler, 76 T. 162, 13 S. W. 535; Kauffman v. Wooters, 79 T. 205, 13 S. W. 549; Railway Co. v. Whitley, 77 T. 126, 13 S. W. 853; Legion of Honor v. Larmour, 81 T. 71, 16 S. W. 623; Life Ins. Co. v. Hanna, 81 T. 487, 17 S. W. 35; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Scoggin & Dupree, 57 C. A. 349, 123 S. W. 229; Same v. Birdwell (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 232; Same v. Henderson, Id.; Same v. Lovelady, Id.

If the motion to quash is not acted on during the term, but is passed to another term without action, the same result will follow. York v. State, 73 T. 651, 11 S. W. 869; St. L., A. & T. Ry. Co. v. Whitley, 77 T. 126, 13 S. W. 853; Legion of Honor v. Larmour, 81 T. 71, 16 S. W. 633.

The filing of exceptions to the manner of citation is not an appearance. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Childs (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 41.

An appearance of a foreign corporation for the purpose of objecting to the jurisdiction of the court operates as an appearance to the next succeeding term of court. Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co. v. Troell, 30 C. A. 200, 70 S. W. 324.

Where defendant moved to quash a writ of sequestration, he thereby submitted himself to the jurisdiction of the court. McLain v. McCollum & Frazier (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1027.

The filing of motion to quash citation operates as an appearance in case the motion is overruled, and the defendant is required to answer or suffer default. If the motion is sustained, it is an appearance to the next term. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson, 97 T. 432, 79 S. W. 517.

It was contended that a default judgment was erroneous because entered at the same term after a prior default was set aside on a motion based in part on a defective citation or service thereof. Held, that it was not erroneous, though it appeared that the first judgment was set aside on that ground, as, aside from the fact that the statute does not declare that the setting aside of a judgment on that ground shall operate as a continuance to the succeeding term, it appeared that one ground of the motion was the illegal perpetuation of an injunction, and, while under such statute appearance solely to object to jurisdiction may not, if the objection be sustained, subject a party to the court's jurisdiction during the term, his appearance for any other purpose would do so, and defendant's appearance on such motion was not only to question jurisdiction, but to question the validity of the judgment on its merits, and he was afterwards before the court for all purposes of the suit, and should not be heard to complain of the subsequent proceedings, on ground that he had not answered nor otherwise entered his appearance. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 198.

Where defendant appeared and attacked the sufficiency of the service and his motion was overruled, and there was a mistrial, and he appeared at the subsequent term and defended on the merits, he thereby submitted to the court's jurisdiction and cannot deny jurisdiction on appeal. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Bass (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 860, 861.

Defendants, by a motion to quash under this article, entered their appearance at the next term, and, as Art. 1881 declares that an appearance shall have the same force and effect as if citation had been duly issued and served, the motion did not bar them from filing a plea of privilege to be sued in another county, for that plea need not be filed until citation has been served. F. T. Ramsey & Son v. Cook (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 346.

Motion or plea.—Whether defendant raise by motion or by plea the question of the sufficiency of the service on it, the effect is the same under this article. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Blocker (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 156.

Objection at first term.—A defect in the citation is waived if the motion is not made at the first term. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Brett, 61 T. 483.

Art. 1884. [1244] [1244] Reversal of judgment on appearance.—Where the judgment is reversed on appeal or writ of error taken by the defendant for the want of service, or because of defective service of process, no new citation shall be issued or served, but the defendant shall be presumed to have entered his appearance to the term of the court at which the mandate shall be filed.

Art. 1885. [1245] [1245] No judgment without service of process, etc.—No judgment shall, in any case, be rendered against any defendant unless upon service, or acceptance, or waiver of process, or upon an appearance by the defendant, as prescribed in this chapter, except where otherwise expressly provided by law. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 65, sec. 18.]

Process to sustain judgment—Necessity of process.—A judgment obtained against a defendant without service of process, and without appearance by him, is void. Witt v. Kaufman, 25 T. Sup. 384; G., H. & S. A. R. R. Co. v. McTiegue, 1 App. C. C. § 457; Dashner v. Wallace, 29 C. A. 151, 68 S. W. 307; Barrett v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 240; Watt v. Parlin & Orendorff Co., 44 C. A. 439, 98 S. W. 428; Womble v. Harsey (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 764; Banco Minero v. Ross & Masterson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 224.

Where one of several defendants pleads over against a co-defendant, asserting against him rights not mentioned in the petition, notice must be served on such defendant who has not answered in the main case. Crain v. Wright, 60 T. 515; Railway Co. v.

Hathaway, 75 T. 557, 12 S. W. 999; Simon v. Day, 84 T. 520, 19 S. W. 691; Roller v. Ried, 26 S. W. 1060, 87 T. 69; Rush v. Davenport (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 380.

In order to support a judgment by default on appeal, the record must show service of citation. Bates v. Casey, 61 T. 592.

A judgment rendered on a demand set up by way of amendment in a proceeding by attachment, where service is attempted by publication as to the original cause of action, but not as to the amendment, there being no appearance by the defendant or personal service on him, is a nullity. Stewart v. Anderson, 70 T. 588, 8 S. W. 295.

A foreign judgment against a citizen of Texas in a personal action, without personal service or appearance by the defendant, is without jurisdiction, and is void when offered as a basis of right in a Texas court. Brewing Co. v. Hirsch, 78 T. 192, 14 S. W. 450.

An allegation in an amended petition, alleging value within the court's jurisdiction, held not a statement of a new cause of action requiring service of citation anew. Wisley v. Houston Nat. Bank, 28 C. A. 268, 67 S. W. 195.

Citation and service of answer on plaintiffs held necessary to give court jurisdiction to render judgment on counterclaim. Boyce v. Concho Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 356; Field v. O'Connor, 80 S. W. 872; Mayhew & Co. v. Harrell, 57 C. A. 509, 122 S. W. 957; Bomar v. Morris (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 663; Twichell v. Askew, 141 S. W. 1072; Fisher v. Atkinson, 156 S. W. 339.

A judgment by default entered before the defendant is commanded by the citation to answer is void. Oden & Co. v. Vaughn Grocery Co., 34 C. A. 115, 77 S. W. 967.

Where a defendant was not cited to answer his codefendants' cross-action, and never appeared, answered, nor paid any attention thereto, matters involved in such cross-action could not be submitted to the jury. Johnston v. Fraser (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 49.

A default judgment cannot be rendered on an amended petition setting up a new cause of action where the defendant was not served with citation or notice of the amendment, and did not appear or answer. Palmer v. Spandenberg, 50 C. A. 565, 110 S. W. 760.

An amendment joining necessary parties who were omitted from the original petition held to state a new cause of action requiring due service of process, unless waived. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Howell, 101 T. 603, 111 S. W. 142.

Where defendant, in an action to enforce a contract for the sale of land, at the term to which the case was returnable filed a cross-petition to cancel the contract as a cloud on title, the court cannot enter judgment for defendant on the cross-petition without service of it on plaintiff and in his absence. Robinson v. Collier, 53 C. A. 285, 115 S. W. 915.

The statutory requirements as to citation must be followed, in order to give jurisdiction over the person, so as to support a default judgment. Latham Co. v. J. M. Radford Grocery Co., 54 C. A. 510, 117 S. W. 909.

Where defendants filed a cross-plea against codefendants for affirmative relief, and codefendants never appeared nor filed answers, in the absence of service of citation on the cross-plea, the court was without jurisdiction to award the relief prayed for. Mayhew & Co. v. Harrell, 57 C. A. 509, 122 S. W. 957.

Where one of several defendants pleads over against a codefendant asserting against him rights in the subject of litigation not mentioned in the petition, notice must be served on the codefendant unless he has answered in the main case. Vernor v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 641.

A defendant is not entitled to judgment over against a codefendant where no service was had upon the latter on such defendant's alternative cross-action. Rex v. James (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 248.

An amended petition curing defects in the original petition in an action on a note providing for 10 per cent. attorney's fees, arising from the failure to allege the contract price of attorney's services, or the reasonable value thereof, in the absence of a contract, does not set up a new cause of action, and defendant need not be cited to answer it. Miller v. West Texas Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 970.

Art. 6851 provides that on issuing a writ of injunction not pertaining to a pending suit the clerk shall cite the defendant as in civil cases. Arts. 3235-3239 provide for citation to nonresident defendants and the manner of its service and return. Art. 3240 provides for citation by publication. Nonresident execution creditors placed execution in the hands of the sheriff, who levied upon property claimed as a homestead, and the debtor then applied for an injunction against the sheriff as the only party defendant. Held, that the execution creditors were necessary parties defendant, and that without notice to them in one of the statutory methods the injunction was a nullity. McCanless v. Gray (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 174.

The dropping of one plaintiff from a suit or the adding of another plaintiff or the elimination of a defendant improperly joined, by filing an amendment to the petition, is not a new cause of action or an abandonment of the original action, and additional service of process is not necessary. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 267.

—— Sufficiency.—On a citation from a justice's court, issued April 15, 1890, and returned May 12, 1890, showing service, a judgment rendered at the return term was not void. Tobar v. Losano, 25 S. W. 973, 6 C. A. 698.

The issuance and service of a certain citation held not to authorize a default judgment against one of the parties to the action. Shook v. Laufer (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 277.

Certain facts held not to have rendered service of process insufficient to support a default judgment. Mahan v. McManus (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 789.

A default judgment entered on a citation which was unnecessary held without legal effect. Vernor v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 641.

If a defendant was legally before the court by personal service, it had jurisdiction to render judgment against him, even by default, though he was served under another than his real name. Anderson v. Zorn (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 835.

Default judgment, rendered on substituted copy of citation recited therein, held void. Turner v. Pope (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 420.

A judgment on constructive service of process held invalid. Banco Minero v. Ross & Masterson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 224.

—— Defective service.—A defendant is not required to obey a void process, but, if merely defective, it brings him into court, and if he does not take his exception at the proper time he cannot urge the defect as on appeal. Cave v. City of Houston, 65 T. 619.

Collateral attack—Presumptions.—See notes under Art. 1994.

Judgment against minors.—A judgment without actual service of process on minors, defendants, represented by a guardian ad litem, is not void. Kegans v. Alcorn, 9 T. 34; Thomas v. Jones, 10 T. 52; Wheeler v. Ahrenbeck, 54 T. 536; Alston v. Emmerson, 83 T. 231, 18 S. W. 566, 29 Am. St. Rep. 639.

When a court has acquired jurisdiction over the persons of minor defendants, though a judgment rendered against them when no guardian ad litem has been appointed to represent them would not be void, yet a due administration of justice would require its reversal on appeal. Ashe v. Young, 68 T. 123, 5 S. W. 454.

A judgment rendered without actual service of process on a minor defendant, represented by a guardian ad litem, is not void but voidable only. Alston v. Emmerson, 83 T. 231, 18 S. W. 566, 29 Am. St. Rep. 639; Kegans v. Allcorn, 9 T. 34; Wheeler v. Ahrenbeck, 54 T. 536; Kremer v. Haynie, 67 T. 451, 3 S. W. 676; Sprague v. Haynes, 68 T. 215, 4 S. W. 371. See Russell v. Railway Co., 68 T. 646, 5 S. W. 686; Ashe v. Young, 68 T. 123, 5 S. W. 454. But it will be reversed on appeal. Ashe v. Young, 68 T. 123, 5 S. W. 454.

CHAPTER SEVEN

ABATEMENT AND DISCONTINUANCE OF SUIT

Article 1886. [1246] [1246] Suit not to abate where plaintiff dies, if, etc.—Where in any suit the plaintiff shall die before verdict, if the cause of action be one which survives, the suit shall not abate by reason of such death, but the executor or administrator, and if there be no administration, and no necessity therefor, then the heir of such deceased plaintiff may appear, and, upon a suggestion of such death being entered of record, in open court, may be made plaintiff in such suit, and the suit shall proceed in his name. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 38. P. D. 6.]

See Corsicana Cotton Oil Co. v. Valley, 14 C. A. 250, 36 S. W. 999.

Insanity of husband or wife.—As to the effect of the insanity of the husband or wife pending suit, see Arts. 3593, 3595, 3609, 3610, and 3614; Railway Co. v. Bailey, 83 T. 19, 18 S. W. 481.

Administration of estate as prerequisite.—An appearance by an heir must show that there is no administrator and no necessity therefor. Railway Co. v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 470.

An heir is authorized to maintain the suit only in the event there is no administration and no necessity therefor, and his petition should contain allegations to this effect showing his right to sue. W. U. Tel. Co. v. Kauffman (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 631.

Under this article the husband, in an action by husband and wife, having filed suggestion of her death, intestate, stating that she left her minor children as her heirs, and that they inherited the cause of action, and prayed to be allowed to prosecute the action for and on their behalf, and he having in open court disclaimed and released any interest, the case, on the court granting the prayer of the suggestion, properly proceeded in the name of the original parties for the benefit of the minors, without necessity for another petition, as the suggestion is to be regarded as part of the pleadings to the extent of substituting them for their mother. Parriss v. Jewell, 57 C. A. 199, 122 S. W. 399.

Widow may prosecute, when.—A widow can prosecute in her own name after the death of her husband a suit in trespass to try title instituted by him, when she is sole legatee under her husband's will which cuts off his children, and no executor is named and there is no necessity for an administration of the husband's estate. Yarbrough v. De Martin, 28 C. A. 276, 67 S. W. 177.

Defendants held to have waived objections, if any, to the widow prosecuting an action instituted by her deceased husband. Id.

The abatement, by the death of plaintiff, of an action brought by the father of a minor on a liquor dealer's bond for sales to the minor, held not to have precluded a subsequent action by the minor's mother. Brooks v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 936.

Suggestion of death.—When there is no entry of record of suggestion of death of plaintiff, as a condition of right of his heirs, but the judgment recites that such suggestion was made and that the heirs were granted leave to sue, it is sufficient to sustain the judgment. But the error is sufficient to prevent award of damages allowed, in a case where appeal is taken merely for delay. Lowry v. Haynes, 44 C. A. 431, 98 S. W. 1069.

Proof of heirship.—Those making themselves parties to an action of trespass to try title as heirs of plaintiff, who died pending suit, must prove their heirship, there being a plea of not guilty. Musselman v. Strohl, 83 T. 473, 18 S. W. 857.

Laches.—Heirs reviving a suit of their ancestor on coming of age, six years after his death, held not guilty of laches, under this and the succeeding article. Beck v. Avondino, 20 C. A. 330, 50 S. W. 207.

Notice of revival.—Where a suit was not on the docket, notice to defendant of its revival in the name of the heirs was necessary, under Arts. 2120 and 2122. Beck v. Avondino, 20 C. A. 330, 50 S. W. 207.

Actions which survive.—The right of action on contracts and for the recovery of real or personal property, or for injuries to or conversion of personal property, survive. McCampbell v. Henderson, 50 T. 601; G., H. & S. A. R. R. Co. v. Freeman, 57 T. 156; Ferrill v. Mooney, 33 T. 219. But vindictive damages cannot be recovered from a deceased trespasser. Wright v. Donnell, 34 T. 291.

An action by a father on a liquor dealer's bond for "five hundred dollars as liquidated damages," recoverable under Rev. St. 1895, art. 3380, for a sale of liquor to the son, does not abate on the principal's death. Nolan v. Tennison, 21 C. A. 332, 50 S. W. 1028.

A cause of action for an injury to real estate survives the owner's death and passes to his heirs. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Smith, 35 C. A. 351, 80 S. W. 247.

Actions which do not survive.—The right of action for torts unconnected with contracts does not survive, except in the cases mentioned in Arts. 1895 and 5686. Watson v. Loop, 12 T. 11; Taney v. Edwards, 27 T. 224; Cherry v. Speight, 28 T. 503; Gibbs v. Belcher, 30 T. 79; Galveston C. Ry. Co. v. Nolan, 53 T. 139.

In the absence of statutory provision, an action against a telegraph company to recover for mental suffering through failure to promptly deliver a message abated by the plaintiff's death. Fitzgerald v. Western Union Tel. Co., 15 C. A. 143, 40 S. W. 421.

The death of plaintiff, in an action on a liquor dealer's bond for sales of liquor to plaintiff's minor son, pending an appeal from a judgment in her favor, held to abate the cause of action on the bond on the reversal of the judgment. Ellis v. Brooks, 101 T. 591, 102 S. W. 94, 103 S. W. 1196.

Judgment for or against deceased person not void.—A judgment in favor of or against a party who is dead, unless his death is shown by the record itself, is not void by reason thereof, and is not subject to collateral attack. Giddings v. Steele, 28 T. 732, 91 Am. Dec. 336; Milam County v. Robertson, 47 T. 222; Taylor v. Snow, 47 T. 462, 26 Am. Rep. 311; Cain v. Woodward, 74 T. 549, 12 S. W. 319; Flores v. Maverick (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 316.

Person reviving adopts pleadings.—Widow prosecuting suit commenced by deceased husband held to have adopted original pleadings, so as to render judgment in her favor sufficient as against objection that there were no pleadings to support it. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Buchanan, 48 C. A. 129, 107 S. W. 595.

Appearance of an administratrix suggesting death of plaintiff and her authority to prosecute the suit held to adopt his pleadings as her own. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Keith (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 695.

Death of parties after appeal.—See Arts. 1549, 1618.

Death of party as affecting issuance of execution.—See Art. 3720 et seq.

Art. 1887. [1247] [1247] Scire facias to executor, etc.—If, upon such death, no such appearance and suggestion be made at the first term of the court thereafter, it shall be the duty of the clerk, upon the application of the defendant, his agent or attorney, to issue a scire facias for the executor, administrator or heir of such decedent requiring him to appear and prosecute such suit; and if, after service of such scire facias as required in the case of citations, such executor, administrator or heir shall not enter his appearance on or before the appearance day of the succeeding term of the court, the defendant may, on motion, have the suit discontinued. [Id.]

Motion to reinstate.—After the death of the plaintiff in an action of trespass to try title, and before his heirs or legal representatives were made parties, the suit was dismissed. Held, that such order was voidable against his heirs, etc., upon a motion or proceeding to reinstate the case within a reasonable time after such dismissal. Armstrong v. Nixon, 16 T. 610, limited so far as the opinion declares such order void. Other cases on the subject followed. Weaver v. Shaw, 5 T. 286; Milam County v. Robertson, 47 T. 222; Giddings v. Steele, 28 T. 756; Taylor v. Snow, 47 T. 464, 26 Am. Rep. 311; Harrison v. McMurray, 71 T. 122, 8 S. W. 612.

At the September term, 1889, of the district court, defendant suggested the death of one of the plaintiffs. May 28, 1890, on motion of defendant, suit was dismissed as to the party plaintiff whose death had been suggested. On June 10, 1890, and during the term, application was made by one, shown by affidavit to be the sole heir, to set aside the order dismissing the case, and to be allowed to appear as plaintiff showing merits. The dismissal should have been set aside. Musselman v. Strohl, 83 T. 473, 18 S. W. 857.

Minor heirs may appear after arrival at age.—When a party plaintiff dies pending the suit, his minor heirs can appear after they arrive at full age, and suggest death of plaintiff and prosecute the suit in their own behalf. Beck v. Avondino, 20 C. A. 330, 50 S. W. 207.

Art. 1888. [1248] [1248] Death of defendant.—Where in any suit the defendant shall die before verdict, if the cause of action be one which survives, the suit shall not abate by reason of such death, but, upon a suggestion of such death being entered of record in open court, or upon a petition of the plaintiff, representing that fact, being filed with the clerk, it shall be his duty to issue a scire facias for the executor or administrator, and, in a proper case, for the heir of such deceased defendant, requiring him to appear and defend the suit; and, upon the return of such service, the suit shall proceed against such executor, administrator or heir, and such judgment may be rendered therein as may be authorized by law. [Id. sec. 39. P. D. 7.]

Necessity of suggestion.—The death of a party defendant should be called to the attention of the trial court by suggestion, and if this is not done an objection to the judgment on this account cannot be made on appeal. Blum v. Goldman, 66 T. 621, 1 S. W. 899.

Failure to make proper parties.—A failure to make proper parties within a reasonable time after the suggestion of the death of a defendant is ground for the dismissal of the suit. Alexander v. Barfield, 6 T. 403; Tucker v. Bryan, 1 App. C. C. § 1158.

Heir can be made party, when.—As to the right to make an heir a party, see Webster v. Willis, 56 T. 468; Ansley v. Baker, 14 T. 607, 65 Am. Dec. 136; Cunningham v. Taylor, 20 T. 126; Green v. Rugely, 23 T. 539; Patterson v. Allen, 50 T. 23; McCampbell v. Henderson, 50 T. 601; Tucker v. Bryan, 1 App. C. C. § 1157.

Suit against husband and wife.—Where trespass to try title is brought against a wife, who owns property, and her husband, and the former dies leaving the husband as her sole heir, the suit may proceed against him, without making her personal representative a party thereto, and the judgment will bind all his interest in the property. Bonner v. Ogilvie, 24 C. A. 237, 58 S. W. 1027.

The fact that a husband died pending a suit against him and his wife to foreclose a tax lien held not to deprive the district court of jurisdiction already acquired to finally determine the validity of the tax lien. State v. Jordan, 25 C. A. 17, 59 S. W. 826, 60 S. W. 1008.

Where, pending an action by a landlord against his tenant to recover advances and rent, the tenant died and his widow and children were made defendants, the amount of recovery against the widow was properly limited to the value of the crop or its proceeds received by her from her husband or his estate. Leverett v. Meeks, 29 C. A. 523, 68 S. W. 302.

Death, when controverted, tried by court.—The suggestion upon the record of the death of either party being controverted, the question will be tried by the court. Armstrong v. Nixon, 16 T. 610. If not controverted, no further proceedings will be had until the proper party is made. Bissell v. Lavaca, 6 T. 54; Martel v. Hernsheim, 9 T. 294; M. M. Ins. Co. v. Brower, 38 T. 230.

Reinstated on motion.—Where the plaintiff was dead when the suit was dismissed, the case will be reinstated upon motion at the succeeding term. Armstrong v. Nixon, 16 T. 610; Brown v. Torrey, 22 T. 54.

Actions which survive.—An action by the state for a penalty on violation of a liquor dealer's bond abates on the death of the wrongdoer. State v. Schuenemann, 18 C. A. 485, 46 S. W. 260.

An action for land held to have force as a pending suit after death of defendant. Jones v. Robb, 35 C. A. 263, 80 S. W. 395.

Art. 1889. [1249] [1249] Where executor, etc., dies.—Where an executor or administrator shall be a party to any suit, whether as plaintiff or defendant, and shall die or cease to be such executor or administrator before verdict, the suit shall not thereby abate, but may be continued by or against the person succeeding him in the administration, or by or against the heir, where there is no administration and no necessity therefor, upon like proceedings being had as provided in the two preceding articles, or the suit may be discontinued, as provided in article 1882. [1887.] [P. D. 6, 7.]

Independent executrix.—An action against an independent executrix on a claim against her testator is not abated by her death. Parks v. Lubbock (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 466.

Art. 1890. [1250] [1250] Surviving parties.—Where there are two or more plaintiffs or defendants, and one or more of them die, if the cause of action survive to the surviving plaintiffs and against the surviving defendants, the suit shall not abate by reason of such death, but, upon suggestion of such death being entered upon the record, the suit shall, at the instance of either party, proceed in the name of the surviving plaintiffs or against the surviving defendants, as the case may be. [Id. sec. 36. P. D. 4.]

See Gunter v. Jarvis, 25 T. 581; Dunman v. Coleman, 59 T. 199.

Death of insolvent principal on bond.—In an action to restrain the sale of property on an execution in which defendant files a cross-bill against plaintiff and the sureties.

on her injunction bond, and plaintiff subsequently dies insolvent, it is unnecessary to bring her representatives into the action as parties. Broussard v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 712.

Death of partner.—On the death of a partner pending suit brought in the firm name, it is not necessary to make the legal representative of the deceased a party. Dunman v. Coleman, 59 T. 199. The death of a partner, who is coplaintiff with the other member of a firm, during the pendency of the suit in the appellate court, presents no objection to proceeding to final judgment in the name of the surviving partner, without making the representative of the deceased a party. Yet the court, on motion of the surviving partner or the appellee, will grant a scire facias to make such representative a party. Gunter v. Jarvis, 25 T. 581. Upon death of one of several plaintiffs in an action of trespass to try title, the surviving plaintiffs, being joint tenants, can prosecute their suit. Musselman v. Strohl, 83 T. 473, 18 S. W. 857.

Death of next friend.—Where a party brings suit for himself and as next friend of minors, and dies pending the suit, and the cause of action survives to said minors the suit does not abate, but the court can appoint some proper person to represent the interests of the minors and it is immaterial by what name such representative is designated. Long v. Behan, 19 C. A. 325, 48 S. W. 555.

Art. 1891. [1251] [1251] Death between verdict and judgment.—Where in any suit either party shall die between verdict and judgment, the judgment shall be entered as if both parties were living. [Id. sec. 37. P. D. 5. Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

Death after judgment.—When a party dies after judgment, it would seem that it is competent for the attorney to prepare bills of exception in reference to matters occurring before judgment, statement of facts, etc. But if a motion for new trial is pending, the suggestion of the death of a party suspends the power of the court to act upon such motion until a representative of the decedent is made a party. Wamble v. Graves, 1 App. C. C. § 481.

After appeal.—Death of party after appeal perfected to court of civil appeals does not preclude review of decision of that court in supreme court. Coe v. Nash, 91 T. 113, 41 S. W. 473.

Art. 1892. [1252] [1252] Marriage of plaintiff feme sole.—A suit instituted by a feme sole shall not abate by her marriage; but, upon a suggestion of such marriage being entered on the record, the husband may make himself a party to such suit and prosecute the same as if he and his wife had been originally plaintiffs in such suit. [Id. sec. 40. P. D. 8.]

Husband necessary party plaintiff.—On the marriage of a widow pending a suit for her son's death, the husband should be made a party. Street Ry. Co. v. Cailloutte, 79 T. 341, 15 S. W. 390.

A suit brought by a woman while she is a feme sole does not abate upon her marriage, but her husband becomes a necessary party plaintiff. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co. v. Wright, 33 C. A. 80, 75 S. W. 566.

Effect of failure of husband to become party.—This article only provides that when a feme sole marries after institution of suit, her husband may make himself a party, but does not provide that the suit shall abate if he shall fail to avail himself of the privilege. Western Cottage Piano & Organ Co. v. Anderson, 45 C. A. 513, 101 S. W. 1063.

Suit pending between parties to marriage.—A wife having begun a suit against her husband, before marriage, to set aside a conveyance of her separate property fraudulently secured by him, was entitled to continue the suit to termination thereafter. Holland v. Riggs, 53 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 167.

Proof that defendant married plaintiff pendente lite while she was incompetent, in order to obtain possession of her property, held sufficient to justify the denial of his motion to dismiss the suit. Id.

A husband by virtue of the marriage acquired no right to discontinue an action brought by his wife against him before marriage without her consent, or, if she was incompetent, without the consent of those suing with the permission of the court in her behalf. Id.

Art. 1893. [1253] [1253] Marriage of defendant feme sole.—A suit instituted against a feme sole shall not abate by her marriage, but, upon a suggestion of such marriage being entered on the record, in open court, or upon a petition representing that fact being filed with the clerk, it shall be his duty to issue a scire facias to the husband of such defendant; and upon the return thereof executed, the husband shall be made a party to such suit, and it shall proceed as if such husband and wife had originally been defendants in such suit. [Id. sec. 41. P. D. 9.]

Husband necessary party.—When a feme sole, party defendant, marries pending suit, the plaintiff should suggest her marriage and her husband should be made a party, and it is error to render judgment against her as a feme sole. Reed v. Cavitt, 10 C. A. 373, 30 S. W. 575; Miller v. Sullivan, 14 C. A. 112, 33 S. W. 695, 35 S. W. 1084, 37 S. W. 778.

Rights of married woman party.—A married woman, party to a suit, may employ counsel, compromise the suit, agree upon the judgment and exercise her rights through an attorney. Cordray v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 245.

Art. 1894. [1254] [1254] Suit to the use of another.—When a plaintiff, suing for the use of another person shall die before verdict, the person for whose use such suit was brought, upon such death being suggested on the record in open court, may prosecute the suit in his own name, and shall be responsible for costs in the same manner as he would have been had the suit been commenced by him. [Id. sec. 42. P. D. 10.]

Petition should show that suit is for use of another.—That the suit is brought for the use of another must appear from the petition. Price v. Wiley, 19 T. 142, 70 Am. Dec. 323; Clark v. Hopkins, 34 T. 139; Moore v. Rice, 51 T. 289; Smith v. Wingate, 61 T. 54. But an alleged assignee may contest the right with the representatives or heirs when made parties. Howard v. McKenzie, 54 T. 171.

Judgment against nominal plaintiff.—A defendant cannot recover judgment against a nominal plaintiff on a counterclaim, unless he is cited to answer the same. McFadin v. MacGreal, 25 T. 73.

Art. 1895. [1255] [1255] Death of party to suit for injuries resulting in death.—In cases arising under the provisions of title 70, the suit shall not abate by the death of either party pending the suit, but in such case, if the plaintiff dies, where there is only one plaintiff, some one or more of the parties entitled to the money recovered may be substituted and the suit prosecuted to judgment in the name of such party or parties, for the benefit of the persons entitled; if the defendant dies, his executor, administrator or heir may be made a party, and the suit prosecuted to judgment as provided for in previous articles of this chapter. [Act Feb. 2, 1860, p. 32, sec. 4. P. D. 18.]

Survival of action brought by person injured.—See notes under Art. 5686.

Art. 1896. [1256] [1256] Where some of defendants not served.—Where there are several defendants in a suit, and some of them are served with process in due time and others not so served, the plaintiff may either discontinue as to those not so served and proceed against those that are, or he may continue the suit until the next term of the court and take new process against those not served; and no defendant against whom any suit may be so discontinued shall be thereby exonerated from any liability under which he was, but may at any time be proceeded against as if no such suit had been brought and no such discontinuance entered. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 45. P. D. 1448.]

See Kuykendall v. Coulter, 7 C. A. 399, 26 S. W. 748, citing Forbes v. Davis, 18 T. 274; Wooters v. Smith, 56 T. 198.

Construed.—Where one of several defendants is not served with process, and does not appear, the court should dismiss as to him without prejudice, and not direct a verdict in his favor. Sanders v. Wettermark, 20 C. A. 175, 49 S. W. 900.

Where, in a suit on a liquor dealer's bond to recover damages for the unlawful sale of liquor to plaintiff's son, one of the sureties on the bond was not served and died before trial, it was proper to allow the suit to be dismissed as to him. Lucas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 823.

Discontinuance refused, when.—Wooters v. Smith, 56 T. 198; Sanger v. Ker, 1 App. C. C. § 1084. A discontinuance may be refused where it will operate to the prejudice of the party as to whom it is sought. Schmick v. Noel, 64 T. 406.

Applies to persons who might have been joined.—A plaintiff being permitted, under this article, to discontinue as to one or more of several defendants joined, but not cited, the same rule may be applied where persons who might have been made parties are not joined; and hence a suit could be brought on a foreign judgment against one of two persons against whom the judgment was rendered. Varn v. Arnold Hat Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 693.

Dismissal as to partner.—If plaintiff proceeds to trial without service of citation on one of several defendants, the suit will be discontinued as to him. Burton v. Varnell, 5 T. 139; Houston v. Ward, 8 T. 124; Greenwood v. Watts, 1 App. C. C. § 114.

Suit may be dismissed as to a partner not served who is actually and notoriously insolvent, and who is a nonresident of the state whose residence is unknown. Geo. Scalfi & Co. v. State, 96 T. 559, 73 S. W. 442, 443.

In an action against two persons who had given a liquor bond and been engaged under such bond in business as a firm, and against the surety thereon, the bond in terms binding the surety for the partners as individuals, the insolvency of one of the partners, or inability to obtain service on him being shown, was sufficient to authorize a dismissal as to him, and a judgment against the other and against the surety. Scalfi v. Graves, 31 C. A. 667, 74 S. W. 796.

One partner can be sued separately and alone to a personal judgment. Webb v. Gregory, 49 C. A. 282, 108 S. W. 478.

A judgment against a firm and a copartner after the absolute discontinuance of the action against a partner held void as against the firm. McManus v. Cash & Luckel (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 798.

Art. 1897. [1257] [1257] Discontinuance as to principal obligor.—Where a suit is discontinued as to a principal obligor, no judgment can be rendered therein against an indorser, guarantor, surety or drawer of an accepted bill who is jointly sued, unless it is alleged and proven that such principal obligor resides beyond the limits of the state, or in such part of the same that he can not be reached by the ordinary process of law, or that his residence is unknown and can not be ascertained by the use of reasonable diligence, or that he is dead or actually or notoriously insolvent. [Id. P. D. 1449, 1426, 225.]

See Varn v. Arnold Hat Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 693.

In general.—This article does not apply to a party who, on the face of the instrument sued on, is a principal obligor, but whose relation to the other defendants is that of a surety. Hooks v. Bramlette, 1 App. C. C. §§ 867, 868.

As to discontinuance as to an administrator, see Chapman v. Brite, 23 S. W. 514, 4 C. A. 506.

Where, in suit on guardian's bond, it is shown that the principal is a fugitive from justice, the action may be dismissed as to him, and continued as to the sureties. Bopp v. Hansford, 18 C. A. 340, 45 S. W. 744.

This article applies only where the action is founded on a contract, where the objection rests on the surety independent of the suit and does not authorize judgment on a claimant's bond where he dies before trial and the action is therefore dismissed as to the claimant. Muenster v. Fremont Nat. Bank, 92 T. 422, 49 S. W. 632. See art. 1896.

A dismissal of an action on a note, as to a defendant to whom the other defendants pleaded they were sureties, held not to warrant a dismissal as to the latter. Redmond v. Smith, 22 C. A. 323, 54 S. W. 636.

One suing on notes could dismiss as to the maker and hold an indorser upon proof of the maker's insolvency. Daniel v. Brewton (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 815.

Although Art. 1842, this article, and Art. 1899, relating to the relation of surety, indorser, or guarantor, permit actions to be maintained against those secondarily liable without joining the principal, yet the maker of a note secured by a mortgage upon land is a necessary party in an action to recover upon the note, foreclose the mortgage, and test the adverse claims which others are asserting to the land. Breed v. Higginbotham Bros. & Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 164.

Principal obligor dead.—Sureties can be sued alone without making the representatives of the deceased principal parties. Muenster v. Tremont National Bank (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 277. See, also, Broussard v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 712.

Dissolution of corporation.—Where a foreign insurance company, sued with its surety, had been dissolved and its affairs placed in a receiver's hands, so that it could not be sued, ruling by the reviewing court that a peremptory instruction to find for the insurance company and against plaintiff operated the same as a discontinuance or dismissal as to the company was not so prejudicial to the surety, it being the only one liable, as to require a rehearing. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 816.

Conditions named must be alleged and proved.—The allegation which authorizes a discontinuance as to the principal obligor must be proven. Welch v. Phelps et al. (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 175.

This article requires plaintiff to allege and prove that such residence is unknown "to him," and cannot be ascertained by the use of reasonable diligence on his part. Patterson v. Walker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 612.

Art. 1898. [1258] [1258] Discontinuance in vacation.—The plaintiff may enter a discontinuance on the docket in vacation, in any suit wherein the defendant has not answered, on the payment of all costs that have accrued thereon. [Id. sec. 28. P. D. 1440.]

See Varn v. Arnold Hat Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 693.

In general.—The plaintiff may discontinue his cause in vacation upon payment of all costs accrued. Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 261.

Cannot be reinstated.—When a case has been dismissed before answer is filed it cannot be reinstated on motion of the defendant. Werner v. Kasten (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 322.

Entry of discontinuance by attorneys.—Where an entry of discontinuance was made of a case on the docket in vacation by the attorneys writing the names of plaintiffs and signing themselves as attorneys for plaintiffs, the entry was as much the act of plaintiffs as if it had been made by them in person, the presumption being that it was authorized by them. Seeligson v. Gifford (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 417.

Nonsuit may be taken, when.—See Art. 1955.

Art. 1899. [1259] [1259] Discontinuance as to defendants served, etc.—The court may permit the plaintiff to discontinue his suit as to one or more of several defendants who may have been served with process, or who may have answered when such discontinuance would not operate to the prejudice of the other defendants; but no such discontinuance shall, in any case, be allowed as to a principal obligor, except in the cases provided for in article 1897.

Cited.—Varn v. Arnold Hat Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 693; Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Anderson, 152 S. W. 816.

In general.—In an action by attachment, where one of three sureties on the replevin bond died pendente lite, and the surviving sureties asked no relief against him, the court properly allowed plaintiff to discontinue as to the deceased surety, and proceed against the others. Cohen v. Grimes, 18 C. A. 327, 45 S. W. 210.

Where joint obligors have been sued and served with process the suit can be dismissed as to all except one and judgment rendered against him alone and after the dismissal as to some the case will be left in the same situation as to the rights of all the parties, as if the parties so dismissed had never been sued at all. Bute v. Brainerd, 93 T. 137, 53 S. W. 1017.

In an action on guardian's bonds, one executed in 1886, the other in 1888, plaintiff could dismiss as to the sureties on the first when the sureties on the second had asked no relief against them, and the defalcation had been made after they were discharged. Hornung v. Schramm, 22 C. A. 327, 54 S. W. 615.

Dismissal of action against one defendant in suit on a joint and several contract held not error. Alexander v. Wakefield (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 77.

In trespass to try title, held that in view of the defendant's answer plaintiff was not entitled to discontinue the cause. Smithers v. Smith, 35 C. A. 508, 80 S. W. 646.

In a suit against representatives of the minority faction of a church to obtain control of the church property, defendants could not complain of the dismissal of the suit as to one of their number who died. Gipson v. Morris, 36 C. A. 593, 83 S. W. 226.

One injured by several persons concerned in a tort may sue one or all of them, and though he sues all, he may discontinue as to any of them. Sexton Rice & Irrigation Co. v. Sexton, 48 C. A. 190, 106 S. W. 728.

A plaintiff has the right to dismiss an action at any time against one of two joint tort-feasors. Temple Electric Light Co. v. Halliburton (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 584.

A plaintiff who joins two persons as defendants has alone the right to dismiss as to one of them. Luter v. Ihnken (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 675.

The holder of a note executed jointly by two makers, having sued them both, held entitled to dismiss as to one pleading privilege. Bates v. Hill (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 288.

Dismissal as to partner.—Dismissal of a suit against a firm as to one or more partners operates as a dismissal against the firm, and leaves the remaining members to answer as individuals. Atkinson v. McClellan (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 896.

The dismissal as to a partner who was made a defendant in an action on behalf of a partnership, terminated the suit of the partnership as such. Storrie v. Ft. Worth Stockyards Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 286.

Though the dismissal as to a partner who was a defendant in an action on behalf of a firm terminated the suit as a partnership action, held, that it was properly continued to determine plaintiff's rights. Id.

Intervener may prosecute.—It is not error to permit an intervener to prosecute his petition in intervention after plaintiff has dismissed his cause of action. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Hartford Ins. Co., 17 C. A. 498, 44 S. W. 533.

Withdrawal of claim by intervener.—An intervener, before judgment, may withdraw his claim. Guthrie v. Pierson (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 405.

Objection must be made when.—When there is a discontinuance as to a defendant served, the objection, if any, must be made at the time the order is applied for. Gamble v. Talbot, 2 App. C. C. § 730.

Nonsuit.—See Art. 1955.

Art. 1900. [1260] [1260] Discontinuance when defendant has filed counter claim.—Where the defendant has filed a counter claim seeking affirmative relief, the plaintiff shall not be permitted, by a discontinuance of his suit, to prejudice the right of the defendant to be heard on such counter claim.

See Egery v. Power, 5 T. 501; Bradford v. Hamilton, 7 T. 55; Cunningham v. Wheatly, 21 T. 184.

Dismissal does not affect counter claim.—Dismissal of the action by plaintiff will not affect a plea of reconvention filed by defendant. Smith v. Wilson, 18 C. A. 24, 44 S. W. 556.

Reorganization committee of corporation held entitled to dismiss a certain action brought by it, subject only to the right of intervener therein to be heard on his claim for affirmative relief. Bangs v. Sullivan, 33 C. A. 30, 73 S. W. 74.

Where, in an action by several plaintiffs for the conversion of a horse, defendants counterclaim for the animal's keep, it is error to permit part of the plaintiffs to be dismissed from the suit. Gooch v. Isbell (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 973.

The true rule is that where a defendant has by his pleadings sought some affirmative relief the right of the plaintiff to dismiss the entire cause is forbidden. Blank v. Robertson, 34 C. A. 387, 78 S. W. 564.

Dismissal of proceedings on a note and mortgage because brought prematurely does not affect a cross-action attacking the validity of the mortgage. Jungbecker v. Huber, 101 T. 148, 105 S. W. 487.

Plaintiff's dismissal of his original suit has no effect on a cross-action filed by defendant. Kolp v. Shrader (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 860.

A plea of limitation in trespass to try title held an affirmative plea in reconvention for the recovery of the land, and was therefore not affected by plaintiffs' dismissal. Jones v. Wagner (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 280.

See, also, notes under Art. 1955.

Counter claim must state cause of action.—The counter claim which precludes a discontinuance of suit by plaintiff to the prejudice of the defendant must set up facts entitling the defendant to a judgment which could not be given to him under pleadings strictly defensive. A special plea in an action of trespass to try title setting up facts admissible under the plea of not guilty would not preclude a judgment of nonsuit. Hoodless v. Winter, 80 T. 638, 16 S. W. 427.

To prevent plaintiff from taking nonsuit the defendant must not only pray for affirmative relief but he must state facts showing that he has a cause of action. If he is doing no more than resisting the plaintiff's recovery, the plaintiff has the right for his own protection to dismiss his suit. Wetsell v. Hopkins, 29 C. A. 218, 67 S. W. 1076.

Amount of counter claim.—Where plaintiff, on defendant's filing plea of reconvention, dismisses his action, the court can adjudicate the issues under said plea, though the amount was not sufficient to give original jurisdiction. Stacy v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 759.

Under Art. 1330, authorizing counter claims, and this article, it is immaterial to a defendant's right to recover on the counterclaim that the amount thereof is less than would be within the court's jurisdiction as an original cause of action. Cooksey v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1175.

Counter claim not supported.—Where the defendant has not offered any evidence in support of his counter claim there is no error in permitting plaintiff to take a nonsuit and refusing a judgment for defendant on his counter claim. Block v. Weiller, 61 T. 692.

Art. 1901. [1261] [1261] Requisites of scire facias and returns.—The scire facias and returns thereon, provided for in this chapter, shall conform to the requisites of citations and the returns thereon, under the provisions of chapter six of this title.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Discontinuance as to one of several plaintiffs.—A discontinuance or abandonment of the suit by one of the plaintiffs does not abate the suit, nor preclude a recovery by the other plaintiff. Biencourt v. Parker, 27 T. 558.

Grounds of abatement—Assignment of cause of action.—The assignment pendente lite of the chose in action that is the subject of the suit is not ground for abatement, where the assignor agrees to continue the suit for the assignee's benefit. Drouilhet v. Pinckard (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 135.

Under the facts held, that the sale of a note pending an action thereon was no ground for an abatement of the action. Richey Grocery Co. v. Warnell (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 419.

An assignment of a cause of action pending the action is proper and does not necessitate a change of parties. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 267.

—— Dissolution of corporation.—As to abatement of suit against a corporation which has been dissolved pending suit, see Life Association v. Goode, 71 T. 90, 8 S. W. 639.

A corporation brought suit, and soon after was dissolved, and judgment was rendered in its favor. The president and directors, as trustees, assigned the judgment to a new corporation. The judgment debtor brought suit to restrain the enforcement of the judgment. The new corporation was entitled to revive the judgment and have the same enforced. Kelly v. Rochelle (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 164.

It was not ground for the abatement of an action by a corporation that a person testified that prior to the commencement of the suit "he had made a bargain to buy" the stock of the corporation and had "offered some" of the stock for sale. American Rio Grande Land & Irrigation Co. v. Mercedes Plantation Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 286.

—— Another action pending.—This defense is not available when former suit was dismissed at time of filing plea. Oldham v. Erhart, 18 T. 147. Or was not properly brought. Wilson v. Kyle, 35 T. 559. Or brought for the assertion and protection of another right. Bryan v. Alford, 1 App. C. C. § 85. That a former suit was pending when a plea in reconvention was filed on the same cause of action will not be ground for abatement to the plea when it is shown that before the hearing below the former suit had been dismissed. Trawick v. Martin-Brown Co., 74 T. 522, 12 S. W. 216.

Suit is not abated by pendency of another suit involving matters pleaded in reconvention. Silcock v. Bradford (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 234.

One assigning land pending an action of trespass to try title may thereafter continue to prosecute the action. Ostrom v. Layer (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1095.

A plea of another action pending is properly overruled where, before the trial, such other action is dismissed. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Kenna (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 555.

The pendency of a suit in the federal court does not abate a suit pending in the state court for the same relief. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Barton, 24 C. A. 122, 57 S. W. 292; Biard & Scales v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1168; Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Porter, 156 S. W. 267.

Suit filed by defendant against a third person to recover an undivided one-half of land, pending an action by plaintiff against defendant to recover a part of the same land, after which plaintiff amended his complaint, claiming the entire land, held not to constitute a former suit pending at the time, so as to deprive the court of jurisdiction. Cooper v. Mayfield, 94 T. 107, 58 S. W. 827.

Pleas setting up pending suit between the same parties for the same cause of action held improperly overruled. Davidson v. Jefferson (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 822.

A plea in abatement, setting up a previous action as a bar, held properly sustained. Cornick v. Arthur, 31 C. A. 579, 73 S. W. 410.

Pendency of appeal from judgment in favor of garnishee is not ground for abatement of action brought in same court against garnishee by the debtor. Rieden v. Kothman (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 425.

Where plaintiff bought land, relying on defendant's false representation of title, the pendency of a suit by third persons to recover a portion of the land held no bar to plaintiff's suit for a rescission. Olschewske v. King (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 665.

The pendency of an action by the general agent of an insurer on a note given by an insured held not a ground for the abatement of an action by the insured for the cancellation of the insurance and the note. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Hargus (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 580.

A motion to abate an action on the ground that another action between the same parties and involving the same subject-matter has been commenced since the beginning of the action sought to be abated is properly overruled. Pullman Co. v. Hoyle, 52 C. A. 534, 115 S. W. 315.

A plea in abatement based on the pendency of another action against one of the defendants alone held properly overruled. Id.

Where a party is actually prosecuting an action, a motion to compel him to elect between that action and a subsequent action is properly overruled. Id.

The pendency of a former suit for reward held not to abate a second suit of interpleader. Rochelle v. Pacific Express Co., 56 C. A. 142, 120 S. W. 543.

That a plaintiff in an action brought in Texas for a personal injury inflicted in a sister state instituted an action in the sister state on the same cause of action held not to abate the former action. Morgan's L. & T. R. & S. S. Co. v. Street, 57 C. A. 194, 122 S. W. 270.

Action on purchase-money notes held not to abate because of pendency of another action to rescind the contract of sale and cancel the notes. Garza & Co. v. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 906.

In foreclosure of a chattel mortgage, a plea in abatement that a suit by defendant against plaintiff for cancellation of the notes and for damages for breach of the contract was pending held properly overruled. Liberty Milling Co. v. Continental Gin Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 856.

A pending suit to recover upon a judgment rendered against a guardian and the sureties upon his bond held not abated by the guardian's bill to review such judgment. Minchew v. Case (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 366.

A petition in the county court held improperly dismissed as showing on its face that it was a second suit for the same cause of action. Allen v. Burr's Ferry, B. & C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1185.

A plea of abatement on account of pendency of another action should be overruled, where the parties in the two suits are not the same. Keator v. Whittaker (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 606.

The pendency of one suit in one jurisdiction is no bar to a suit involving the same controversy in another jurisdiction. Biard & Scales v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1168.

Where, in a suit to foreclose a lien, the property involved was more than $1,000 in value, the county court had no jurisdiction, and a suit thereon, though not dismissed, was no bar to a subsequent suit on the same cause in the district court. Red Deer Oil Development Co. v. Huggins (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 949.

Death of next friend.—On the death of a next friend of infant plaintiffs, the court may revive the action by appointing a guardian ad litem. Long v. Behan, 19 C. A. 325, 48 S. W. 555.

Revival of abated action.—Upon the dissolution of a private corporation all actions at law against it abate. It would seem that a suit at equity abated by such dissolution might be revived. Limitation will run against a bill of revivor to make proper parties, such existing, who represented the defunct corporation and who could be made parties. Life Association v. Goode, 71 T. 99, 8 S. W. 639.

Involuntary dismissal.—An assignment of error, that the court erred in sustaining the motion to dismiss as to a defendant before the proof was heard, will be overruled where the facts warranting the dismissal are proven on the trial and before the final judgment is entered. Scalfi v. Graves, 31 C. A. 667, 74 S. W. 796.

A mandamus operates upon the person sought to be compelled to perform an official act, and not upon the office that he may hold, therefore when a mandamus suit is brought against an officer, and he resigns pending the suit, the cause of action abates and must be dismissed. His successor in office cannot be substituted in his place and the suit prosecuted to judgment. In this case it was sought to compel the county judge to hold an election on the question of removal of the county seat. Pending suit he resigned and his successor was made a party, and writ was prayed for directed to him. Carpenter v. Kone, 54 C. A. 264, 118 S. W. 203.

A dismissal without prejudice for want of prosecution held the only proper judgment where plaintiffs fail to appear and prosecute, and are without notice of a cross-action. Allen v. Ft. Stockton Irrigated Lands Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 682.

Where plaintiff fails to appear in person or by attorney, and there is no cross-action, the only judgment which should be rendered is one of dismissal for want of prosecution. Drummond v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 266.

—— Reinstatement.—When an order of discontinuance is set aside and the case is reinstated, it stands as did the original suit, and is not affected as to limitation by the discontinuance. Cotton v. Lyter, 81 T. 10, 16 S. W. 553.

Motion for reinstatement of case is properly denied, where dismissal was due to plaintiff's inexcusable neglect. Schintz v. Hume (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 680.

The court's refusal to reinstate a case dismissed for want of prosecution held abuse of discretion. Alexander v. Smith, 20 C. A. 304, 49 S. W. 916.

A motion to set aside a judgment of dismissal for want of prosecution should allege facts constituting a meritorious cause of action. Drummond v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 266.

A motion to set aside a judgment of dismissal for want of prosecution must show that the judgment cannot be ascribed to negligence of plaintiff or his attorney. Id.

CHAPTER EIGHT

PLEADINGS OF THE DEFENDANT

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 1902. Defendant to plead to each fact; facts not denied; answer may include several matters, etc.—The defendant in his answer shall plead to each fact alleged in the plaintiff's petition, and either admit or deny the same, or deny that he has any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief. And any fact not denied by the defendant or which he does not deny that he has any knowledge or information thereof sufficient to form a belief shall be taken as confessed. The defendant may also plead as many several matters either of law or equity as he may think necessary for his defense, and which may be pertinent to the cause, provided that he shall file them at the same time and in due order of pleading; provided, that if the defendant alleges any facts as a ground for defense that such allegations shall conform to the rules herein prescribed for the pleadings of the plaintiff. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 29. P. D. 1441. Acts 1913, p. 256, sec. 4, amending Rev. Civ. St. 1911, Art. 1902.]

See Kemendo v. Fruit Dispatch Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 73.

Operation in general.—The defendant may, with other pleas, present a cross-action, which to that extent will place him in the attitude of a plaintiff. Rule 7, 47 T. 617; 84 T. 709.

The answer may consist of pleas to the jurisdiction, in abatement, of privilege or other dilatory pleas; of exceptions, general and special; of general denial; and may set up other facts by way of avoidance or estoppel, which may be stated together or in several special pleas, each presenting a distinct defense, and numbered so as to admit of separate issues. Id.

District court rule 27 (67 S. W. xxii) and Art. 1902 held not to have authorized defendant to present new matter before trial supplementary to that contained in his answer then on file. Hoffman v. Lemm (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 712.

Inconsistent pleas and duplicity.—A party may file inconsistent pleas. Welden v. Texas Continental Meat Co., 65 T. 487; Cranfill v. Hayden, 22 C. A. 656, 55 S. W. 811; Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas v. Harriss, 56 C. A. 105, 121 S. W. 358.

Defendant having pleaded the truth of the matter charged to be libelous, and also a general denial, it was error to allow plaintiff to read in evidence from the plea so much as alleged the truth of the publications, for purpose of showing motive. Such admission is inconsistent with the statutory right to file inconsistent defenses. Young v. Kuhn, 71 T. 645, 9 S. W. 860.

Answer by second mortgagee in suit to foreclose first mortgage held demurrable for misjoinder of causes. Coutlett v. United States Mortg. Co. (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 817.

A plea reconvening for damages for wrongfully and maliciously suing out a distress warrant, and also claiming compensation for clearing land under contract, is not subject to exception as declaring on two causes of action. Hurst v. Benson, 27 C. A. 227, 65 S. W. 76.

In an action to recover for legal services in defending a suit under a contract of employment providing for fixing the plaintiff's fee after an investigation of the suit, an answer alleging that plaintiff had not performed any services, and had agreed to cancel the contract, was not subject to exception. Higgins v. Matlock, Miller & Dycus (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 571.

The ruling of the court in sustaining a plea of misjoinder to causes of action in the answer in a suit by a wife to enjoin the sale under execution against the husband of real estate claimed by her held not an abuse of discretion. Texas Brewing Co. v. Bisso, 50 C. A. 119, 109 S. W. 270.

An answer to a suit on notes held to plead one defense, breach of warranty, and to be good against general demurrer. Adams v. Gary Lumber Co., 54 C. A. 477, 117 S. W. 1017.

Responsiveness to issue presented by plaintiff's pleading.—Where a widow answered, in a suit to subject land to debts, that it was a homestead, and asked for removal of the lien as a cloud on her title, notwithstanding that plaintiffs had not sought to establish their lien, they were entitled to resist the claim of homestead. George v. Ryon (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 138.

Where the petition fails to allege that the cattle had been for through shipment "on a contract for through carriage," it was error to strike answer denying existence of any such contract and setting up a contract of shipment limiting liability to defendant's own line, although the shipment was between points in this state. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Arnett, 41 C. A. 409, 92 S. W. 58.

In an action by a husband and wife for assault and battery committed on the wife, defendant may not plead as a set-off or in reconvention a subsequent and separate assault committed on him by the husband. McCormick v. Schtrenck (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 720.

Reference to other counts or paragraphs.—An exception to a paragraph in defendant's answer based on the failure to set out the terms of an alleged contract was without merit, where the succeeding paragraph sufficiently showed the terms of the contract. Walker v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 51 C. A. 391, 112 S. W. 430.

Admissions.—An admission that defendant had no objection to having policies made payable to plaintiff, and that defendant had agreed to carry insurance for plaintiff's indemnity, did not admit that policies were payable to plaintiff. Pan Handle Nat. Bank v. Security Co., 18 C. A. 96, 44 S. W. 15.

In trespass quare clausum fregit a plea in bar admits plaintiff's title and right of possession. Nafe v. Hudson, 19 C. A. 381, 47 S. W. 675.

Admission of chattel mortgage as evidence of plaintiff's title as trustee is not objectionable, where defendants have set out such mortgage in their answer. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Hanson, 21 C. A. 401, 53 S. W. 62.

In a suit for price of goods sold, evidence of quantity, quality, or variety held inadmissible, under admission in answer that plaintiff had a good cause of action as stated in his complaint. Mobile Fruit & Trading Co. v. Boero (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 361.

Where a defendant files a general denial, followed by a special plea, matter averred therein is not to be taken as confessed in favor of plaintiff's cause of action. Gillett v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 61.

In an action by a lessee, against the lessor, for damages for the breach of a contract, held error to regard the amount of plaintiff's damages as conclusively admitted by defendant's cross-bill. Lewis v. Crouch (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1009.

Certain insurance companies held not to have admitted their participation in an alleged fraudulent transfer of certain policies by alleging in an answer in the nature of a bill of interpleader that it was claimed that such transfers were fraudulent by one of the claimants of the proceeds of the policies. Nixon v. Malone (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 577; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Same (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 585; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.; Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.

—— Failure to traverse or deny.—In mandamus, every fact not specially denied is admitted. Town of Pearsall v. Woolls (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 959.

Where, in an action against a firm, the allegation of partnership was not denied, proof or a finding thereof was not necessary. Sanger Bros. v. Corsicana Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 737.

In action for failure to deliver telegram, allegations as to partnership and agency of telegraph company with defendant held established when not denied. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Carter, 42 C. A. 224, 94 S. W. 205.

An allegation in a petition, not denied by the special denials, where the answer contains no general denial, held admitted. Mentz v. Haight (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 1076.

Where defendant pleaded the illegality of contracts sued upon, held not necessary to show that the illegal agreement had been performed. Smith v. Bowen, 45 C. A. 222, 100 S. W. 796.

In mandamus, the allegations in plaintiff's petition which are not specifically denied by defendant are accepted as true. City of San Antonio v. Routledge, 46 C. A. 196, 102 S. W. 756.

In a mandamus proceeding, an answer neither admitting nor denying a fact is an admission thereof. Giraud v. Winslow (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1180.

Pleading particular facts or defenses.—See notes at end of this chapter.

Denials.—See notes at end of this chapter.

All pleas to be filed at same time and in due order.—See, also, notes under Art. 1909.

Separate pleas should be filed at the same time and in due order. Cranfill v. Hayden, 22 C. A. 656, 55 S. W. 805.

This article does not embrace motions to quash and pleas which seek to abate the writ of attachment, which may be filed after pleas to the merits. But where there has been a long delay before filing the plea in abatement, it will be held that the defect complained of has been waived. Wallace v. First Nat. Bank of Gallatin, Tenn., 95 T. 103, 65 S. W. 181.

The only departures permitted from this requirement that the pleadings of defendant shall all be filed at the same time are under the terms of rule 27, where exceptions have been sustained after the case is called for trial. This is allowed to prevent injustice to the defendant in the presentation of his defense and to avoid delay in the trial. Hoffman v. Lemm (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 716.

Under this article, district and county court rule 7 (67 S. W. xx), permitting the original answer to consist of pleas of privilege, etc., Art. 1882, making the filing of an answer an appearance by defendant dispensing with service of citation, Art. 1910, requiring pleas in abatement and other dilatory pleas to be determined during the term at which they are filed if the business of the court permits, and district and county court rule 24 (67 S. W. xxii), requiring all dilatory pleas not going to the merits to be tried at the first term to which the attention of the court shall be called thereto, unless passed by agreement, and that they shall be called and disposed of before the issue on the merits, held, that pleas of privilege to be sued in the county of defendant's residence must be determined during the term at which they were filed, even though defendant was not compelled to answer until the succeeding term, and that failure to call such pleas up for action at the term at which they were filed waived them. Harris Millinery Co. v. Melcher (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 100.

Supplemental answer.—See notes under Art. 1824.

Art. 1903. Plea of privilege; what sufficient.—A plea of privilege to be sued in the county of ones residence shall be sufficient, if it be in writing and sworn to, and shall state that the party claiming such privilege was not, at the institution of such suit, nor at the time of the service of such process therein, nor at the time of filing such plea, a resident of the county in which such suit was instituted, and shall state the county of his residence at the time of such plea, and that none of the exceptions to exclusive venue in the county of ones residence mentioned in article 1830 or article 2308 of the Revised Statutes exist in said cause. [Acts 1907, p. 248.]

Filing plea after default.—Defendant in default may insist upon plea of privilege to be sued in another county, where plaintiff fails to take default before appearance. Landa v. Moody (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 51.

Necessity and nature of plea.—The defendant may plead that he is improperly sued in a county not his place of residence. Wilson v. Adams, 15 T. 323; Brown v. Boulden, 18 T. 431; Taylor v. Hall, 20 T. 211; Wilson v. Bridgeman, 24 T. 615; Blucher v. Milstead, 31 T. 621; Brown v. Read, 33 T. 629; Little v. Woodbridge, 1 App. C. C. § 152; Shandy v. Conrales, 1 App. C. C. § 237; Morrison v. Jaliorick, 1 App. C. C. § 735; W. U. T. Co. v. Weiting, 1 App. C. C. § 801; Cresswell Ranch & Cattle Co. v. Waldstein (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 260.

Privilege to be sued in a particular county must be set up by plea in abatement. Whittaker v. Wallace, 2 App. C. C. § 559. It is sufficient to anticipate and negative such exceptions as are applicable. Freiberg v. Greenlay, 2 App. C. C. § 647.

In divorce, questions of venue are not waived by a failure to plead in abatement. Bruner v. Bruner (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 796.

The right to sue in a particular county is a personal privilege, which must be specially pleaded. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rogers, 37 C. A. 99, 82 S. W. 822.

Under this article a plea of privilege is not a plea in abatement, for, if it is sustained, the court must make an order changing the venue to the proper county; and the rules as to pleas in abatement ought not to be given controlling effect in determining the sufficiency of a plea of privilege. Stevens v. Polk County (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 618.

Where defendant, in an action to revoke a license to practice medicine, objects to the jurisdiction of his person, he should interpose his plea of privilege. Berry v. State (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 631.

Cross-action by codefendant.—A plea of privilege to be sued in the county of the residence of defendant was good in a cross-action by a codefendant. Freeman v. Bank of Garvin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 685.

Plea by plaintiff.—Where defendant's plea prayed that title to certain land might be adjudicated and decreed in him, and plaintiff pleaded its privilege of having the title adjudicated in county where land was situated, error, if any, in refusal to allow plaintiff's plea, was cured by dismissal of defendant's prayer. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Bancroft (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 606.

Exceptions to plaintiff's plea of privilege of being sued in the county of her domicile, made in response to defendants' answer demanding repayment of money paid defendant in settlement, held to have been properly sustained. Kelsey v. Collins, 49 C. A. 230, 108 S. W. 793.

Sufficiency of plea.—A plea of privilege is required to negative only such supposable matter as would give jurisdiction to the court. Raleigh v. Cook, 60 T. 442; Stark v. Whitman, 58 T. 375; Tignor v. Toney, 13 C. A. 518, 35 S. W. 881.

A plea of privilege should negative the existence of any of the exceptions which authorize the bringing suit in any particular precinct. Breen v. T. & P. Ry. Co., 44 T. 302; Houston & Texas C. Ry. Co. v. Graves, 50 T. 181; Stark v. Whitman, 58 T. 375; Raleigh v. Cook, 60 T. 438; Carothers v. McIlhenny, 63 T. 138; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Weiting, 1 App. C. C. § 801.

Plea of privilege of nonresident corporation, having no representative in county where action is brought, need not negative matters negatived by the pleading on which it was cited. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Childs (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 41.

Plea of privilege need not state that allegations contrary to defendant's right to be sued elsewhere were fraudulently made. Id.

Plea of privilege held to show that cause of action was not for tort in county where action was brought. Id.

Plea of privilege in action against railway company held sufficient. Moore v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co., 18 C. A. 561, 45 S. W. 609.

Where defendant pleads his privilege of being sued in the county of his residence, he must negative the existence of every state of facts which would give the court jurisdiction. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. v. Peck, 20 C. A. 111, 49 S. W. 160.

A plea to the jurisdiction of a justice, that suit had not been commenced in the precinct of defendant's residence, held defective. McQuigg v. Nabors, 23 C. A. 357, 56 S. W. 212.

Where a petition against two railroads alleges a partnership or joint liability, the plea of one of them, a nonresident, to the jurisdiction, is properly overruled, where it fails to charge fraud in the allegations. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Stell (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 980.

Plea of personal privilege need not affirmatively allege that pleader had never submitted to jurisdiction of the court. Sites v. Lane (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 873.

Defendants, failing in their plea of privilege to negative certain charges in the petition, held to have consented to litigate the action in the court where same was brought. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. North Texas Grain Co., 32 C. A. 93, 74 S. W. 567.

Where suit is brought in a county in which neither of the defendants resides and each pleads to the jurisdiction and states in his plea the county in which each resides, but not the precinct, and negatives each of the 13 exceptions enumerated under Art. 2308, the plea is good, although it does not state the precinct of the county in which the defendant resides. Aspermont Drug Co. v. Crowbus Drug Co. (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 259.

In an action against a railroad, a venue plea held subject to special exception for failure to allege that defendant did not operate any part of its road in the state. Gilvin v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 130.

In an action against a railroad company and an individual for a joint trespass to the person, the plea of privilege of the individual to be sued in the county of his residence must allege that the county in which the suit was instituted was not the domicile of the company. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Parsons (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 240.

In trespass to try title begun in T. county, a plea of privilege to be sued in B. county, which alleged that defendant was not a resident of T. county at the time the suit was instituted, and at the time of the filing of the plea, but was a resident of B. county, that the land in controversy was in B. county, and that defendant had not waived his right to be sued where the land was situated, was sufficient as against a general demurrer. Stevens v. Polk County (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 618.

The purpose of this article is to permit a defendant to simplify his plea of privilege, and, instead of negativing exceptions in article 1830, relating to the venue of suits, to merely state in general terms that none of the exceptions exists; but defendant may, at his option, avail himself of the amendment, or he may frame his plea in accordance with the rules of law established by the decisions of the appellate courts. Id.

Defendant cannot, in a plea of privilege, seeking to change the venue, present an issue of fraudulent assignment of the claim in suit, without specially charging that the claim was fraudulently assigned for the purpose of conferring jurisdiction. Pearce v. Wallis, Landes & Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 496.

An answer, in an action by the assignee of a claim, alleging that the assignment was made for the fraudulent purpose of conferring jurisdiction on the court in a county other than that of defendant's residence, states no defense on the merits. Id.

In an action on an assigned claim, the plea of privilege on the ground of residence properly included allegations of a fraudulent and fictitious assignment; this being a provable fact. Drummond v. Allen Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 739.

Proof of allegations of plea.—Plaintiff, having failed to allege in his complaint any cause of action against a certain defendant or to ask judgment against him, cannot complain of the sustaining of a plea of privilege by such defendant, without hearing evidence thereon. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Clements, 20 C. A. 498, 49 S. W. 913.

Where the complaint, in an action against a corporation for breach of contract, did not allege where the contract was made, and the corporation did not prove its plea of privilege that no part of the cause of action arose in the county in which suit was brought, the plea was properly overruled. Mangum v. Lane City Rice Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 605.

A defendant who pleads privilege to be sued in the county of his residence has the burden of establishing the averments of his plea. Scaeif v. Crofford (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1003.

Plea that plaintiff had fraudulently alleged the value of the property in order to give the county court jurisdiction held improperly sustained without taking proof to support it. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Davis (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 337.

Waiver or abandonment of plea.—See notes under Arts. 1830, 1909, 1910.

Hearing and determination.—When defendant, by the joinder of a fictitious codefendant, has been sued out of the county of his residence, upon proof of the fact under a plea in abatement the suit should be dismissed. Henderson v. Kissam, 8 T. 46; Pool v. Pickett, 8 T. 122; Roan v. Raymond, 15 T. 78.

In determining question of jurisdiction and merits of plea of privilege to be sued in county of defendant's domicile, averments of petition held required to be accepted as true. Baldwin v. Richardson, 39 C. A. 348, 87 S. W. 353.

Where a plea of privilege did not allege that the codefendant was fraudulently joined, to confer jurisdiction in the county of the codefendant's residence, the court's failure to submit the plea was equivalent to sustaining a general demurrer thereto. Kirkpatrick v. San Anglo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 362.

On a plea of privilege, in an action against a debtor and the assignor of the debt, who guaranteed its payment, where it was claimed that the assignment was fictitious, for the purpose of fixing the venue at the domicile of the assignor, evidence of the assignor's insolvency was material and competent. Brooks v. Bonner (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 564.

Effect of sustaining plea.—A court which acquires jurisdiction of nonresident defendants by reason of a note having been executed in the county in which suit is brought, does not thereby acquire jurisdiction, over their plea of privilege, to determine another cause of action joined with the action on the note. First Nat. Bank v. East, 17 C. A. 176, 43 S. W. 558.

Verification.—See notes under Art. 1906.

Order of pleading.—See notes under Art. 1909.

Amendment.—See notes under Art. 1824.

Demurrer or exception as presenting question.—See notes at end of Chapter 2.

Art. 1904. [1263] [1263] Answer to be filed, when.—In all cases in which the citation has been personally served at least ten days before the first day of the term to which it is returnable, exclusive of the day of service and return, the answer of the defendant shall be filed in the county and district courts, on or before the second day of the return term, and before the call of the appearance docket on said second day. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, secs. 10, 12; June 16, 1876, p. 22, sec. 18. P. D. 1506, 1508. Acts of 1891, p. 94; amend., 1893, p. 31.]

Time for filing in general.—A defendant has the right to file his answer at any time before a judgment by default has been actually announced by the court. City of Jefferson v. Jones, 74 T. 635, 12 S. W. 749; Ellett v. Britton, 6 T. 229; Hurlock v. Reinhardt, 41 T. 580; Tally v. Thorn, 35 T. 727; Wheat v. Davidson, 2 T. 196.

An answer may be filed at any time before the case is reached on call (Anderson v. Nuckles [Civ. App.] 34 S. W. 184, 680), if an interlocutory judgment by default has not been entered (Boles v. Linthicum, 48 T. 220).

Plea of res judicata held filed with sufficient promptness. Mallory v. Dawson Cotton Oil Co., 32 C. A. 294, 74 S. W. 953.

In trespass to try title by one whose title depended on a judgment in favor of the state for delinquent taxes, an answer seeking to set aside the sale under the judgment held not made in time. Ryon v. Davis, 32 C. A. 504, 75 S. W. 59.

Refusal to allow answer to be filed after the parties had announced ready for trial held not error, in the absence of an excuse for not filing it before. Crawford v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 553.

A plea to the jurisdiction held to be in time any time before judgment. Wilkinson v. McCart, 53 C. A. 507, 116 S. W. 400.

Under this article the call of the appearance docket ends defendant's time to answer, in the absence of a request for an extension, in case plaintiff desires to avail himself of his right to a judgment by default. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 715.

Plea to jurisdiction.—A plea to the jurisdiction of the court held properly stricken out, because filed too late. Price v. Garvin (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 985.

Effect of addition of parties.—Addition of parties plaintiff in response to allegation of an answer held not a new suit, so as to excuse defendants from answering until notice. Eversberg v. Miller (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 223.

Pendency of plea of privilege.—Where defendant filed a plea of privilege to be sued in another county, until the issue of venue was decided he was not required to traverse the allegations of the petition. Garza v. Cotton (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 212.

Art. 1905. [1264] [1264] Answer in cases of citation by publication.—In cases in which service of citation has been made by publication, and wherein eight weeks' publication is required, the answer shall be filed on or before appearance day of the term to which the citation is returnable, as in cases of personal service. In all other cases in which service of citation has been made by publication, the answer shall be filed on or before appearance day of the term next succeeding that to which the citation is returnable. [Acts 1846, p. 363, sec. 12. Acts 1909, S. S. p. 324.]

See Burns v. Batey, 1 App. C. C. § 421.

Time for taking default.—Under this article default judgment on the first day of the term in an appearance case is erroneous. Cockrell v. State, 22 C. A. 568, 55 S. W. 579.

Art. 1906. [1265] [1265] Certain pleas to be verified by affidavit.—An answer setting up any of the following matters, unless the truth of the pleadings appear of record, shall be verified by affidavit:

1. That the suit is not commenced in the proper county.
2. That the plaintiff has not legal capacity to sue.
3. That the plaintiff is not entitled to recover in the capacity in which he sues.
4. That there is another suit pending in this state between the same parties for the same cause of action.
5. That there is a defect of parties, plaintiff or defendant.
6. A denial of partnership as alleged in the petition, whether the same be on the part of the plaintiff or defendant.
7. That the plaintiff or the defendant, alleged in the petition to be duly incorporated, is not duly incorporated as alleged.
8. A denial of the execution by himself or by his authority of any instrument in writing, upon which any pleading is founded, in whole or in part, and charged to have been executed by him or by his authority, and not alleged to be lost or destroyed. Where such instrument in writing is charged to have been executed by a person then deceased, the affidavit will be sufficient if it state that the affiant has reason to believe and does believe that such instrument was not executed by the decedent or by his authority.
9. A plea denying the genuineness of the indorsement or assignment of a written instrument, as required by article 588.
10. That a written instrument upon which a pleading is founded is without consideration, or that the consideration of the same has failed in whole or in part.
11. That an account which is the foundation of the plaintiff's action, and supported by an affidavit, is not just; and, in such case, the answer shall set forth the items and particulars which are unjust. [Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

12. That the contract sued upon is usurious. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 31. P. D. 1. Id. sec. 52. P. D. 228. Id. sec. 88. P. D. 1444. Id. sec. 30. P. D. 1442. Id. sec. 86. P. D. 1443. Act Jan. 25, 1840, p. 144, sec. 5. P. D. 224. Act April 2, 1874, p. 52, sec. 1. P. D. 6829c. Acts of 1883, p. 4.]

Necessity and effect of verification in general.—A plea in abatement need not be verified when the truth of the matter alleged therein appears from the petition. Turman v. Robertson, 3 App. C. C. § 215; Keabadour v. Weir, 20 T. 254; Higgins v. Frederick, 32 T. 282.

When a defendant is insane and his guardian is ignorant of the facts, the affidavit is not necessary. Weis v. Ahrenbeck, 24 S. W. 356; 5 C. A. 542.

When matters pleaded in abatement do not appear of record, the plea must be sworn to. Pullman Palace Car Co. v. Booth (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 719.

When the statute requires the pleading to be sworn to, an amendment which becomes a substitute for the original is within the statute. Bland v. State (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 914.

Plea in action on fire policy held not to require verification. McCarty v. Hartford Fire Ins. Co., 33 C. A. 122, 75 S. W. 934.

The plea of receivership need not be verified by affidavit. Adams v. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co., 34 C. A. 413, 79 S. W. 79.

The answer in an action to set aside a judgment on the ground that it was procured by the false swearing of one of defendant's witnesses need not be sworn to. Lee v. Hickson, 40 C. A. 632, 91 S. W. 636.

An answer in the nature of a bill of interpleader, asking no relief except by judgment at the end of the trial, need not be verified. Nixon v. Malone (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 577; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Same (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 585; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.; Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.

Verified answer filed to an unverified complaint held not to entitle defendant to judgment. Todd v. State (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 761.

Where pleas contain allegations, the truth of which is apparent from the averments of the petition, they need not be verified. Lyons Bros. Co. v. Corley (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 603.

This article does not apply to an action against an owner of property for injuries received while it was in the hands of a receiver, so as to require the discharge of a receiver to be denied under oath or stand admitted, the statute not mentioning such a case. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 288.

Waiver of objections.—See notes at end of chapter.

Amendment.—See notes under Art. 1824.

Genuineness of indorsement or assignment.—See notes under Art. 588.

Denial of giving of notice of claim for damages.—See note under Art. 5714.

Who may verify and sufficiency of verification in general.—In Wilson v. Adams, 15 T. 323, it is held that the defendant having made oath to the truth of the plea, to the best of his knowledge and belief, the affidavit was insufficient. See, also, Davis v. Campbell, 35 T. 779; Cates v. Maas, 4 App. C. C. § 161, 14 S. W. 1066.

An affidavit to the truth of the plea according "to the best of affiants' knowledge and belief" is fatally defective. Graham v. McCarty, 69 T. 323, 7 S. W. 342.

A plea in abatement by two defendants may be verified by the affidavit of one. Jones v. Austin, 26 S. W. 144, 6 C. A. 505.

Subdivision 1.—A plea of privilege, sworn to by a firm of lawyers, but with nothing to indicate which member of the firm swore to it, is properly stricken out. Seley v. Parker (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 1026; Seley v. Whitfield (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 865.

Where a corporation interposes a plea of privilege, asserting its right to be sued in the county of its domicile, it must establish the material averments of the plea. Houston Rice Milling Co. v. Wilcox & Swinney, 45 C. A. 303, 100 S. W. 204.

The failure of plaintiff to rebut by evidence the facts alleged in defendant's sworn plea of privilege to be sued in another county is not an admission of the facts alleged in the plea. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Shivel & Stewart (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 196.

An instruction on a plea of privilege held to place a greater burden on plaintiff than he was required to bear. Armstrong v. King (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 629.

A defendant who pleads his privilege to be sued in the county of his residence, notwithstanding the allegations of the petition alleging a cause of action to pay money in another county in which the action was brought, has the burden of proving that he did not so obligate himself. Witherspoon v. Duncan (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 660.

A plea of fraud on the jurisdiction not verified is a nullity. Fritter v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 1186.

A defendant who pleads privilege to be sued in the county of his residence has the burden of establishing the averments of his plea. Scaeif v. Crofford (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1003.

The right of a defendant to be sued in the county of his residence is personal, which may be and is waived unless invoked through a verified plea, so that the mere allegation that defendant resides in a county other than that where the suit is brought does not subject the petition to special demurrer. Ward v. Odem (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 634.

Where defendant filed a plea of privilege and showed that his codefendant, while domiciled in the county where the suit was brought, was a minor, the burden of showing that he was emancipated and could acquire a residence separate from that of his father was on plaintiff. First State Bank of Mt. Calm v. Fain (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 454.

A sworn plea of privilege in statutory form is not prima facie proof of the facts alleged, and other proof of the facts must be introduced to sustain it, unless such facts are revealed on the face of plaintiff's pleading. Ragland v. Guarantee Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1187, following Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Shivel & Stewart (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 196.

Subdivision 2.—In a suit by one claiming to act as administrator in its institution, the representative capacity of the plaintiff need not be shown in the absence of a proper plea denying the right to thus sue. Dolson v. De Ganahl, 70 T. 620, 8 S. W. 321.

Want of capacity to sue must be pleaded under oath. Miller v. Goodman, 15 C. A. 244, 40 S. W. 743; Midkiff & Caudle v. Johnson County Savings Bank (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 705.

Where one intervenes in a suit as trustee appointed by referee in bankruptcy, and no plea under oath is filed denying the capacity in which he acts he need not prove his appointment and qualification as trustee. Jones v. Meyer Bros. Drug Co., 25 C. A. 234, 61 S. W. 555.

The question of legal capacity of plaintiff to sue, or that plaintiff cannot recover in the capacity in which he sues, can only be raised by sworn plea denying authority of plaintiff to prosecute the suit. Crouch v. Posey (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1003.

In order to put in issue the legal capacity of a temporary administrator to bring the suit there must be a denial under oath of such capacity. Young v. Meredith, 38 C. A. 59, 85 S. W. 32.

Where one sues as guardian and there is no plea putting plaintiff's capacity to sue in issue there is no need of proof on that point. Kaack v. Stanton, 51 C. A. 495, 112 S. W. 706.

Where plaintiff's petition shows his legal capacity to sue and there is no verified answer denying it, it is not error for the court to assume in his charge such legal capacity. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Allen, 53 C. A. 129, 115 S. W. 1181.

An allegation of the appointment of a receiver and an order authorizing him to defend actions against defendant corporation need not be proved in the absence of a sworn denial. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Ormond, 57 C. A. 79, 121 S. W. 899.

In a suit against a railroad and its receiver, the allegation of the petition that permission to sue the receiver had been obtained from the court appointing him will be taken as true where not denied by plea under oath, as required by this article. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Wynne, 57 C. A. 68, 122 S. W. 50; Same v. Bradt, 57 C. A. 82, 122 S. W. 59.

The question of plaintiff, suing as administratrix, not having executed a bond as such, and so not having capacity to sue as such, required by this subdivision to be raised by plea verified by affidavit, is waived by defendant, so that it cannot have it considered on appeal; it having failed to have it determined by the trial court, and to assign error thereon. Casey v. Texarkana & Ft. S. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 856.

This article does not require an administratrix made a defendant in her representative capacity, in an action on a note executed by the intestate and to foreclose a vendor's lien, to deny under oath that she is administratrix; but plaintiff must prove that she is administratrix to entitle him to a judgment against her in her representative capacity. American Loan & Mortgage Co. v. Bangle (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 662.

Subdivision 5.—In an action for injury to plaintiff's minor son, held, that it was necessary that a plea that she was a married woman without right to sue without joining her husband should be sworn to and filed in due order of pleading. Hillsboro Cotton Mills v. King, 51 C. A. 518, 112 S. W. 132.

This subdivision applies only where the additional party is a necessary party. Commercial Bank of Chicotah, Okl., v. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Santa Anna (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1175.

Subdivision 6.—In a suit against a railway company, the liability of which is alleged to result from its partnership with connecting line, evidence of partnership is not required in the absence of the plea of non est factum. Railway Co. v. Tisdale, 74 T. 8, 11 S. W. 900, 4 L. R. A. 545.

Plaintiff's petition did not charge that the defendant executed the bill of lading sued on, or authorized any one to execute the same, nor that there was a partnership between the defendant and the company that executed the bill of lading, and therefore a plea of non est factum was not necessary. Dillingham v. Fischl, 1 C. A. 546, 21 S. W. 554.

Partnership need not be proven unless denied under oath. Railway Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 131; Railway Co. v. Tisdale, 74 T. 8, 11 S. W. 900, 4 L. R. A. 545; Railway Co. v. Wilbanks, 7 C. A. 489, 27 S. W. 302; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Edloff, 89 T. 454, 34 S. W. 414.

An allegation of partnership of connecting lines of railway, defendants in the suit, not being denied, plaintiff is entitled to joint judgment against all for damages incurred on the line of either. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Edloff, 89 T. 454, 34 S. W. 414.

A plea by one defendant denying the partnership of several defendants inures to the benefit of all. Hayden Saddlery-Hardware Co. v. Ramsey, 14 C. A. 185, 36 S. W. 595.

In a suit by an indorsee of a note against the maker, an allegation by defendant that the indorsee and payee were partners, made simply with a view of charging the plaintiff with notice, need not be denied under oath. First Nat. Bank of Wamego v. Oliver, 16 C. A. 428, 41 S. W. 414.

In an action on a note by the indorsee, where defendant alleges that plaintiff was partner of the payee, it was error to conclude that he was a partner because he had not denied under oath the defendant's allegations to such effect. Id.

The failure to deny an alleged partnership under oath is an admission of it. Buchanan v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 33.

Defendants having failed to deny under oath that they were acting together as partners in handling shipments of cattle over their lines, the partnership was admitted, and a judgment jointly and severally rendered against them was proper. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Pool & Smith, 52 C. A. 307, 114 S. W. 685.

In an action to recover money and property claimed to have been paid for patent rights, sold plaintiff by several defendants conspiring together to defraud him and induce him to purchase by fraudulent representations, allegations that defendant R. was a "partner" in the unlawful scheme did not allege such a partnership as the statute requires to be denied under oath; the word "partner" as used being synonymous with "co-conspirator." Rushing v. Spreen (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 49.

In a suit by partners on a contract, it was not necessary that defendant file a plea under oath denying partnership in order to present the question of a variance on evidence that one plaintiff was not a partner when the contract was made and performed. Neal v. Adkins (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 264.

The effect of this subdivision is not obviated as to all the defendants by the fact that a codefendant, alleged in the petition to be a partner, asserted in his special plea under oath that he was not a partner. Ginners' Mut. Underwriters of San Angelo, Tex., v. Wiley & House (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 629.

The failure of defendants, sued as partners, to deny such partnership under oath in their answer, is by force of statute equivalent to an admission of such partnership, precluding evidence to the contrary. Johnson v. Dyess (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 203.

Where a railroad, defendant in an action for damages to a shipment of live stock, under oath denied the plaintiff's allegation of partnership with other roads, of which there was no proof, that issue should not have been submitted to the jury. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox (Sup.) 157 S. W. 745.

Subdivision 7.—Where an incorporated city sues as such, it is not error to overrule an unsworn pleading denying that it is duly incorporated. Heller v. City of Alvarado, 1 C. A. 409, 20 S. W. 1003.

The pleading must allege the fact that the plaintiff is duly incorporated to require a verified answer. Way v. Bank of Sumner (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 497. See Water Works v. Kennedy, 70 T. 233, 8 S. W. 36.

It is not necessary to prove the existence of a corporation where defendant has not filed a plea denying it. P. J. Willis & Bro. v. Smith, 17 C. A. 543, 43 S. W. 325.

Plaintiff having alleged that it was a corporation duly incorporated and the allegation not having been denied as required by this article, no evidence is required to sustain the allegation, for it must be taken as true. If the defendant denies the incorporation the burden is on him to prove it. Steely v. Texas Imp. Co., 55 C. A. 463, 119 S. W. 323.

Subdivision 8.—See, also, notes under Art. 3710.

Unless denial of execution, by party's authority, of written instrument on which pleading is founded is verified as this article requires, authority need not be proved. Hunt v. Siemers, 22 C. A. 94, 53 S. W. 387.

Where connecting carriers, sued for damages to a shipment of cattle accompanied by plaintiff, the shipper, pleaded an estoppel of plaintiff to deny the truth of stock condition reports signed by him, and execution of which he did not deny under oath pursuant to this subdivision, but offered no testimony to prove that by reason of the statements therein they were misled and induced to refrain from doing any act, performance of which have placed them in a better condition, error in admitting plaintiff's testimony that statements therein showing the good condition of the cattle did not appear in the reports when he signed them was harmless. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gober (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 383.

Where, in a suit against connecting carriers for damages to a shipment of cattle accompanied by plaintiff, the shipper, two defendants alleged plaintiff signed reports en route showing the cattle were in good condition, and pleaded in general terms that he was estopped to deny the truth thereof, and he did not except to the plea of estoppel, nor, as required by this subdivision, deny under oath execution of the reports, it was error to permit him to testify that such statements as to their condition did not appear in the reports when he signed them. Id.

Under this subdivision and article 1828, which requires like verification of a reply to similar allegations of the answer, the petition in an action for delay in delivery of telegrams did not allege in terms any contract between the parties but only the delivery of the messages to the defendant for transmission with the sender's name attached, payment of charges, and negligence in transmission by defendant, and resulting damages. The answer alleged that the contracts for transmission were in writing, and contained a stipulation calling for notice of claim of damages within 60 days from the filing of the message, as a condition precedent to liability, and that the contracts were made in writing by the defendant with H., the sender and agent of plaintiff. Held, that the answer did not allege that the contracts for transmission were executed by plaintiff or by his authority, so as to require plaintiff to deny the same under oath, but only alleged a contract executed by H., though for plaintiff's benefit, and hence evidence was admissible for plaintiff that the messages were telephoned to the telegraph agent, and were not written on the company's blanks by the sender, who had no knowledge that the blanks contained such a stipulation. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Douglass, 104 T. 66, 133 S. W. 877.

Where a defendant in an action on a written instrument does not deny by affidavit the execution of the instrument as required by this article and article 3710, he may not object to the introduction in evidence of the instrument on the ground that its execution has not been proved. Dalton v. Dalton (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 241.

A fire policy reduced to writing is a written contract importing a consideration within this subdivision; and, in the absence of a verified answer alleging failure of consideration because of nonpayment of the premium, the defense is not available. Ginners' Mut. Underwriters of San Angelo, Tex., v. Wiley & House (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 629.

Where a written order for goods was signed by E. as general manager of defendant corporation, his authority could not be denied in the absence of a verified plea under this subdivision. A. S. Cameron Steam Pump Works v. Lubbock Light & Ice Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 717.

Where, in an action against a carrier for destroyed goods after it had become a warehouseman, plaintiff pleaded a contract with the carrier's agent to reship the goods to another station before the fire, but did not allege that this contract was in writing, defendant was not required by this article to deny its execution under oath, in order to prove its invalidity on the ground that its agent had no authority to make it. Anderson v. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 358.

Subdivision 9.—See notes under Arts. 588, 3710.

Subdivision 10.—In trespass to try title against a subsequent purchaser of land from a common vendor, the defendant may show that no consideration was paid for the first deed without having first filed a sworn plea setting up that fact; the deed not being pleaded, or necessary to be pleaded, is not within the rule prescribed in subdivision 10 of this article. Barnard v. Blum, 69 T. 608, 7 S. W. 98.

A plea of failure in part of the consideration of a note sued on must be verified. Strain v. Manufacturing Co., 80 T. 622, 16 S. W. 625.

In an action on a promissory note for the purchase money for land, an answer claiming damages for breach of warranty need not be verified. Gass v. Sanger (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 502.

The impeachment of the consideration of a written instrument can only be impeached by a sworn plea. Lindley v. Nunn, 17 C. A. 70, 42 S. W. 310; Warren v. Gentry, 21 C. A. 151, 50 S. W. 1025.

An exception to a plea of a failure of consideration in an action for services should be sustained where the plea is unsustained by affidavit. Boyd v. Boyce (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 720.

The plea of want of consideration for a written contract, which raises the issue as to whether such contract or prior oral contract shall control, need not be verified. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Jackson & Edwards (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 47.

A plea of failure of consideration for a note sued on is not verified when sworn to only to the best of defendant's knowledge and belief. Callen v. Evans (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 543.

In an action for the price of pumping machinery, defendant's plea that plaintiff knew that the goods were not worth above $150, but represented to defendant that they were worth $322, that they were in fact practically worthless, except for scrap iron of a very low grade, not exceeding $100 and praying judgment on cross-bill for $250 above whatever amount the machinery should be found to be actually worth, set up a partial failure of consideration, and was required by this article to be verified. A. S. Cameron Steam Pump Works v. Lubbock Light & Ice Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 717.

Subdivision 11.—See, also, notes under Art. 3712.

Under this subdivision an answer denying the justness of certain items, but not denying under oath other items sued on, is equivalent to a confession of the justness of the undenied items. Knowles v. Gary & Burns Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 189.

Subdivision 12.—See notes under Art. 4983.

Art. 1907. [1266] [1266] Plea of payment, counter claim, etc.—In every action in which a defendant shall desire to prove any payment, counter claim or set-off, he shall file with his plea an account stating distinctly the nature of such payment, counter claim or set-off, and the several items thereof; and, on failure to do so, he shall not be entitled to prove the same, unless it be so plainly and particularly described in the plea as to give the plaintiff full notice of the character thereof. [Act Feb. 5, 1840, p. 62, sec. 2. P. D. 3444.]

In general.—Where a party claims a payment, set-off or counterclaim, his plea setting this up must plainly and particularly describe it, else it cannot be proven. Scott v. Texas Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 37.

When the defendant does not plead payment, counterclaim or set-off, of course he cannot prove either. Richey Grocery Co. v. Warnell (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 419.

Under this article a finding that it was intended by the maker of a note that a later note should be submitted for a prior one, is not equivalent to a finding that the payee agreed with the maker to accept the second note in satisfaction of the first. Third Nat. Bank of Springfield, Mass., v. National Bank of Commerce (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 665.

Payment, application thereof, and accord and satisfaction.—Must be pleaded. Holliman v. Rogers, 6 T. 91; Able v. Lee, 6 T. 427; Wells v. Fairbanks, 5 T. 582; Cartwright v. Jones, 13 T. 1; Gaines v. Salmon, 16 T. 313; Marley v. McAnelly, 17 T. 658; Ware v. Bennett, 18 T. 806; May v. Taylor, 22 T. 349; Pettigrew v. Dix, 33 T. 277; Mayblum v. Austin, 1 App. C. C. § 616; Brandt v. Thurber, 1 App. C. C. § 640; Nugent v. Martin, 1 App. C. C. § 1173; First Nat. Bank v. Pritchard, 2 App. C. C. § 132. As to application of payment, see Rives v. Habermacher, 1 App. C. C. § 748. Tender of payment. Price v. McCoy, 1 App. C. C. § 181; Brock v. Jones, 16 T. 461; Tooke v. Bonds, 29 T. 419. Accord and satisfaction. McGehee v. Shafer, 15 T. 198; Bradshaw v. Davis, 12 T. 336.

Evidence of payment is not admissible unless the nature of the payment is so plainly and particularly described in the plea as to give plaintiff full notice of its character. Art. 1907. Under a general plea evidence of payment in money only is admissible. Proof of payment in any commodity is admissible under a special plea. Able v. Lee, 6 T. 427.

Admission of receipt without plea of payment held error. Hander v. Baade, 16 C. A. 119, 40 S. W. 422.

A defense seeking to set off a claim of a third person against plaintiff's claim as a plea of set-off, and not of payment. San Antonio & Gulf Shore Const. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 754.

Proof of payment of the claim against an estate cannot be made by the administrator without pleading payment. Kartoghian v. Harboth (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 79.

Where plaintiff alleged a contractual relation between it and defendant, it was proper to allow evidence that no such relation existed and that the amount sued for had been paid defendant's subcontractor. Haralson v. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 788.

Before proof of payment can be made, facts shall be alleged in the plea distinctly stating the nature of such payment. Wooley v. Bell (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 72.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage given to secure a note, evidence of a partial payment which was not pleaded was inadmissible. Eastham v. Patty, 29 C. A. 473, 69 S. W. 224.

In an action on certain notes, allegations of an answer held to constitute a sufficient plea of payment as against a general demurrer. Eule v. Dorn, 41 C. A. 520, 92 S. W. 828.

Payment need not be pleaded where the matter pleaded is a set-off. Ruzeoski v. Wilrodt (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 142.

Where payment is the issue, this article only requires that it be so plainly and particularly described in the plea, as to give the plaintiff full notice of the character thereof. Brown v. Rash, 45 C. A. 603, 101 S. W. 1041.

This article does not apply to a pleading to enjoin the enforcement of a judgment against the land of plaintiff, who is a stranger to the judgment, but applies only where the defendant in a suit brought to recover on a debt against him pleads payment of such debt. Horvets v. Dunman, 46 C. A. 177, 102 S. W. 462, 463.

In an action on acceptances by one holding only the legal title, defendant not having pleaded a part payment, plaintiff was entitled to recover the amount due thereon under the pleading and evidence. Haggard v. Bothwell (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 965.

Payment must be pleaded by defendant to be available unless admitted in plaintiff's pleadings. Tilt-Kenney Shoe Co. v. Haggarty, 43 C. A. 335, 114 S. W. 386; State v. Quillen (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 660; Rutherford v. Gaines, 118 S. W. 866; Thompson v. Baird, 146 S. W. 354; Key v. Hickman, 149 S. W. 275; Garrett v. Grisham, 156 S. W. 505.

In action on contract of leasing, exceptions held not sustainable to entire plea of payment. Schroeter v. Bowdon, 53 C. A. 135, 115 S. W. 331.

It is not necessary for defendant to plead a payment admitted in the petition. Rutherford v. Gaines, 103 T. 263, 126 S. W. 261.

In an action to recover the amount of certain premium notes on policies not accepted, a sum returned should have been credited on the judgment obtained by the makers of the notes against the insurance company, without a plea of payment pro tanto. Security Life Ins. Co. of America v. Stephenson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1137.

In an action on a check by a bank, general exceptions to maker's answer explaining why check was not paid, and alleging that plaintiff had partially reimbursed itself by charging the check to the payee, held properly overruled. First Nat. Bank v. Abernathy (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 349.

Set-Off or counterclaim.—The plea in reconvention was held good in the following cases: Thomas v. Hill, 3 T. 270; Egery v. Power, 5 T. 501; Walcott v. Hendrick, 6 T. 406; Sterrett v. City of Houston, 14 T. 153; Alford v. Cochrane, 7 T. 485; Hammonds v. Belcher, 10 T. 271; Castro v. Gentiley, 11 T. 28; Carlin v. Hudson, 12 T. 202, 62 Am. Dec. 521; Castro v. Whitlock, 15 T. 437; Oldham v. Erhart, 18 T. 147; Brady v. Price, 19 T. 285; North v. Swing, 24 T. 193; Beckham v. Hunter, 37 T. 551; Coleman v. Bunce, 37 T. 171; Avery v. Stewart, 60 T. 154; Scalf v. Tompkins, 61 T. 476; Streeper v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 326; Dreiss v. Faust, 1 App. C. C. § 34; Howard v. Moore, 1 App. C. C. § 225; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Hurless, 1 App. C. C. § 582; Green v. Carlton, 1 App. C. C. § 833; McDonnell v. Home Bitters Co., 1 App. C. C. § 1160; Dwyer v. Testard, 1 App. C. C. § 1230.

The plea must describe the debt with the same certainty, as in the petition on a like demand, and being a special plea must show by its averments the right to have the set-off allowed. Peet v. Hereford, 1 App. C. C. § 873; Smith v. McGehee, 1 App. C. C. § 940; Henderson v. Johnson, 22 C. A. 381, 55 S. W. 35; Scott v. Texas Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 37.

Action to recover money deposited with defendant; averment in answer that the deposit was made as a forfeit or liquidated damages to secure the performance of a contract. Defendant not entitled to show damage from the breach of contract in addition to the liquidated damages. Morrison v. Ashburn (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 993.

An answer considered, and held not to constitute a valid reconvention against plaintiff's cause of action. Beckham v. Burney (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1041.

In a plea in reconvention on a sequestration bond, the affidavit on which the writ issued need not be set out. Wilkinson v. Stanley (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 606.

It must state distinctly the nature and several items of counterclaim or set-off and conform to the ordinary rules of pleading. Henderson v. Johnson, 22 C. A. 381, 55 S. W. 35; Hurst v. Benson, 27 C. A. 227, 65 S. W. 77.

A set-off or counterclaim pleaded by a garnishee, as against defendant, for damages for delay, held invalid for failure to state each and every delay, and the effect thereof constituting such damages. Scott v. Texas Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 37.

Unless a plea of payment, set-off or counterclaim, plainly and particularly describes the claim set up so as to give the opposite party full notice of the character thereof, it cannot be proven. Id.

Pleadings held sufficient to entitle defendants to a judgment for the balance of their set-off. Garrett v. Robinson, 93 T. 406, 55 S. W. 564.

Set-off, not raised in a trial court, will not be considered on appeal. Spradley v. State, 23 C. A. 20, 56 S. W. 114, 442.

Under a plea in a suit for rent claiming damages for injuries to property by reason of a wrongful levy thereon in distress proceedings, evidence of such injuries was admissible. Hurst v. Benson, 27 C. A. 227, 65 S. W. 76.

In an action for breach of contract, items in the answer held not to constitute a counterclaim. National Guarantee Loan & Trust Co. v. Thomas, 28 C. A. 379, 67 S. W. 454.

A judgment cannot be offset against a claim unless it has been pleaded in offset. Stagg's Heirs v. Piland, 31 C. A. 245, 71 S. W. 764.

In action for unlawful entry into plaintiff's dwelling, and seizure and conversion of a piano therein, defendant held, under his plea, not entitled to a set-off against plaintiff's damage in any amount. Hillman v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 787.

A cross-bill, to recover damages for injury to a crop of rice held not demurrable for failure to more accurately describe such crop. Gravity Canal Co. v. Sisk, 43 C. A. 194, 95 S. W. 724.

In an action for money, defendant's plea in reconvention held proper. McBurnett v. Lampkin, 45 C. A. 567, 101 S. W. 864.

In an action for rent, a plea in reconvention for plaintiff's breach of a cropping contract held not objectionable for failure to allege how much of the land could have been planted in oats, the amount that could have been raised, the price they could have been sold for, and the cost of raising and selling them. Waggoner v. Moore, 45 C. A. 308, 101 S. W. 1058.

In an action on an account, defendant having set up an account for advances by way of set-off, plaintiff was entitled to an itemized statement of such advances. Stark v. Burkitt, 103 T. 437, 129 S. W. 343.

In trespass to try title, defendants' claim to reimbursement for taxes and interest, etc., paid on the lands, was a mere equity entitling them to affirmative relief only in case it was pleaded. Lippincott v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1070.

Defendant, in an action by a husband and wife for the purchase price of cattle owned by the wife, could not show that, after delivery to defendant, the husband retook and converted certain of the cattle, in the absence of a plea of set-off. Peoples v. Brockman (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 907.

The defense of damages from the loss of collateral security set up in an action on the debt is the set-off of one cause of action against another, and must be specially pleaded. Carver Bros. v. Merrett (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 633.

In an action for the possession of a diamond stud or its value, a plea in reconvention that plaintiff had in his possession personal property of greater value than the diamond stud, to which plaintiff was entitled, held to state no cause of action against the plaintiff. Clay v. Marmar (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1125.

—— In action on contract of sale.—In action for price of machinery sold with warranty, answer held sufficient, though it did not show the particular defects of the machine relied on as a breach. Lane & Bodley Co. v. City Electric Light & Water Works Co., 31 C. A. 449, 72 S. W. 425.

In action for price of goods sold to a railroad company, cross-bill held sufficiently definite as against a general exception. Gorham v. Dallas, C. & S. W. Ry. Co., 41 C. A. 615, 95 S. W. 551.

A buyer who, in an action for the balance of the price, pleads breach of warranty and damages therefor, may not recover the partial payment made on the delivery of the goods. Erie City Iron Works v. Noble (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 172.

Where a buyer claimed breach of warranty in the sale of certain shoes, he could not recover the value of shoes exchanged for defective ones purchased from plaintiff, as an item of damage. Hill v. Hanan & Son (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 245.

In an action for the price of farm implements, an answer, alleging that the implements were not of the character represented and were not merchantable, that they were unfit for the purposes for which guaranteed, so that the consideration failed, that the defendant on discovery of the failure of the implements to fulfill the warranty notified the seller thereof and demanded that sound implements be substituted, and tendered the implements received back to the seller, and that the seller waived the conditions of the warranty as to notice of defects, sufficiently alleges a warranty and a breach as against a general demurrer. Fetzer v. Haralson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 290.

A buyer relying on breach of warranty and on waiver by the seller of the conditions of the warranties must allege in the plea that noncompliance was expressly agreed to by the seller, or set out the facts relied on to constitute a waiver. Id.

A buyer relying on the seller's breach of warranty must specifically set out the warranty and the facts constituting a breach and compliance by him with its terms. Id.

In an action for price, evidence that seller retook and converted part of the property after delivery held inadmissible, in the absence of a plea of set-off. Peoples v. Brockman (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 907.

—— In action on note.—Plaintiff suing on a note held entitled, notwithstanding defendant's set-off, to the full amount due according to its terms. Ruzeoski v. Wilrodt (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 142.

An answer in an action on a note held to set up a counterclaim. Id.

In an action on a note given for timber, held, that the plea was insufficient as an allegation of a breach of warranty. Callen v. Evans (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 543.

On claim on certain notes executed by defendant, an insolvent bank and trust company, a plea in reconvention, alleging the wrongful sale of pledged collaterals by intervener, held sufficient in law. Oriental Bank of New York v. Western Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 1176.

—— Pleading damages.—Plea claiming damages for breach of warranty in a sale of cotton machinery held not to claim remote damages. Ellis v. Tips, 16 C. A. 82, 40 S. W. 524.

Plea in action for price of cotton machinery claiming damages from depreciation in cotton because of defects in machinery held defective. Id.

Plea in reconvention held defective for not alleging that the damages sought therein had been contemplated at the time the contract was made. Id.

—— Designation of plea.—Where a defendant pleaded as a set-off or counterclaim matter which was really a defense, the form of the pleading made no difference; for the law looks upon what a pleading contains, and not what it may be called. Nelson v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 146.

—— Pleading of codefendant.—A defendant is not entitled to a judgment on a plea in reconvention filed by a codefendant. Cissel v. Lewis, 20 C. A. 415, 50 S. W. 425.

Cross-complaint in general.—See notes at end of chapter.

General denial.—See notes at end of this chapter.

Art. 1908. [1267] [1267] General denial need not be repeated.—Where the defendant has pleaded the general denial, and the plaintiff shall afterward amend his pleading, it shall not be necessary for the defendant to plead such denial a second time, but such original denial shall be presumed to extend to all matters subsequently set up by the plaintiff.

Art. 1909. [1268] [1268] Pleas to be filed in due order, etc.—Pleas shall be filed in the due order of pleading, and shall be heard and determined in such order under the direction of the court. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 32. P. D. 2.]

See, also, notes under Art. 1947.

In general.—Want of jurisdiction of subject-matter is fatal at any stage of the suit, whether raised by pleading or not. Tarbox v. Kennon, 3 T. 7; Austin v. Jordan, 5 T. 130; Graham v. Roder, 5 T. 146; Able v. Bloomfield, 6 T. 263; Bridge v. Ballew, 11 T. 269; Evans v. Pigg, 28 T. 586; Newman v. McCallum, 1 App. C. C. § 274.

A plea to the jurisdiction of the person comes too late after a general demurrer and denial. Compton v. Stage Co., 25 T. 67. A plea in abatement filed after pleas to the merits comes too late. Allen v. Read, 66 T. 13, 17 S. W. 115.

A plea of privilege is waived by failure to plead it at the proper time. Osborne v. Burnett, 1 App. C. C. § 125; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. R. Co. v. McTiegue, 1 App. C. C. § 460.

It rests in judicial discretion to permit a plea in abatement to be tried on the evidence before a trial on the merits. Tynberg v. Cohen, 67 T. 220, 2 S. W. 734.

Where the petition filed in the district court alleges an amount in controversy within the jurisdiction of the court, and the defendant contends that the real amount in controversy is less than such jurisdiction, and that it has been fraudulently alleged at such greater value for the purpose of conferring jurisdiction of the case, it is necessary that such facts be pleaded by the defendant, and that the plea be filed in due order of pleading; that is, in abatement. Ratigan v. Holloway, 69 T. 468, 6 S. W. 785; Bates v. Van Pelt, 20 S. W. 950, 1 C. A. 185; Hoffman v. B. & L. Ass'n, 85 T. 409, 22 S. W. 154.

A plea to the jurisdiction not filed in due order of pleading is waived. Howard v. Britton, 71 T. 290, 9 S. W. 73; Blum v. Strong, 71 T. 328, 6 S. W. 167; Graham v. McCarty, 69 T. 323, 7 S. W. 342; Allen v. Read, 66 T. 18, 17 S. W. 115; Burchard v. Record (Sup.) 17 S. W. 241; Hoffman v. Association, 85 T. 409, 22 S. W. 154; Davis v. Railway Co., 12 C. A. 427, 34 S. W. 144.

The court in its discretion may hear and determine exceptions to pleadings out of their due order. Trawick v. Martin-Brown Co., 74 T. 522, 12 S. W. 216.

Dilatory pleas should be disposed of before the trial on the merits. District court rule 24. As to the application of the rule, see Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Shook (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 737.

A failure to plead misnomer in abatement waives the error. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 846.

In trespass to try title, defect of venue must be suggested by a seasonable pleading. State v. Patterson, 17 C. A. 231, 42 S. W. 369.

When defendant has filed an answer to the merits, and thereby waived his right to file a plea in abatement, his right cannot be regained by withdrawing his answer. Slaughter v. Moore, 17 C. A. 233, 42 S. W. 372; Wolf v. Willingham, 48 C. A. 536, 107 S. W. 60.

A plea to the jurisdiction set up for the first time in third amended answer on facts known before the filing of the first, is too late. Schauer et al. v. Beitel's Ex'r (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 145.

A plea to the jurisdiction held waived, because not presented to the court in apt time. Weekes v. Sunset Brick & Tile Co., 22 C. A. 556, 56 S. W. 243.

An amendment of a pleading of privilege held filed in due order of pleading, since it related back to the filing of the original plea, which was properly filed. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 600.

Where defendant appeared and demurred, it was error to sustain a subsequent plea in abatement setting up defendant's privilege of being sued in his own county. Southern Rock Island Plow Co. v. Pitluk, 26 C. A. 327, 63 S. W. 354.

Where a stranger to an action files a motion to intervene which is subsequently withdrawn on leave of court, he has not submitted to the jurisdiction of the court so as to be barred from pleading personal privilege. Sites v. Lane (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 873.

Exceptions to the citation or writ are pleas in abatement by both common law, and rule 7 (67 S. W. xiv) prescribing the order of pleading for our courts. Such pleas precede in due order a plea of mere privilege to be sued in the county of the litigant's residence. The previous filing of plea of privilege constitutes a waiver of the exceptions or plea in abatement of the writ. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 67.

Where one is sued in justice court, he is not required to file his plea of personal privilege to be sued in the county of his residence before the day of trial. Mistrot Bros. & Co. v. Wilson, 41 C. A. 160, 91 S. W. 870.

Failure of defendant's counsel to argue a general demurrer to the petition held not to have waived the right to urge the statute of frauds against the petition. Stovall v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 217.

The trial court properly refused to consider demurrers filed after the parties had announced ready for trial while the jurors were being examined on their voir dire where there was opportunity to demur before trial. Missouri Valley Bridge & Iron Co. v. Ballard, 53 C. A. 110, 116 S. W. 93.

It not appearing that a plea to the jurisdiction was filed after the exceptions, the same was not waived by the fact that the exceptions preceded the plea. Garth v. Childs (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 284.

A plea of privilege to be sued in another county is waived by first filing a demurrer, by which defendant submits his person to the jurisdiction of the court. Dickson v. Scharff (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 980.

Where no plea in abatement for want of capacity in plaintiffs to maintain the suit was filed, as required by this article and article 1910, defendants' requested instruction for a directed verdict because of plaintiffs' alleged incapacity to prosecute the suit was properly refused. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Seale (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1099.

Answer to merits as waiver of matter in abatement.—A plea in abatement, filed after an answer to the merits, should be disregarded. Graham v. McCarty, 69 T. 323, 7 S. W. 342.

A plea of privilege must always be interposed in the justice's court before an answer to the merits and cannot be made for the first time on appeal. Engel v. Brown, 1 App. C. C. § 803; Bank v. Hinchman, 3 App. C. C. § 375.

A plea of misjoinder of parties was filed after a plea to the merits. The court properly refused a charge as to such misjoinder asked by the defendant. Howard v. Britton, 71 T. 286, 9 S. W. 73.

That the amount in controversy has been fraudulently stated is a plea to the jurisdiction, which must be filed before the answer on the merits. Hoffman v. B. & L. Ass'n, 85 T. 409, 22 S. W. 154.

A plea of privilege filed after an original answer will be overruled. Tignor v. Toney, 13 C. A. 518, 35 S. W. 881.

Garnishee held not to waive privilege of being sued in county where he resided, by answer under commission. Moore v. Blum (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 511.

Where defendant files a plea of privilege and demands a jury trial, he does not waive his plea by the filing and determination of a demurrer to the complaint. Pryor v. Jolly, 91 T. 86, 40 S. W. 959.

A plea to the jurisdiction because an action was brought in the wrong county is waived when filed after answer, with general denial and general demurrer and continuance. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Foster (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 198.

Plea to jurisdiction first raised in third amended answer held too late. Schauer v. Beitel's Ex'r (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 145.

A plea to the jurisdiction cannot be filed after a plea in bar. Schauer v. Beitel's Ex'r, 92 T. 604, 50 S. W. 931.

The fact that the principal on a bond answered and submitted himself to the jurisdiction of the court will not deprive the sureties of their right to be sued in the county of their residence. Chamberlain v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 624.

Where defendant had filed a plea in abatement and an answer to the merits of the case, and on the appearance day requested plaintiff's counsel to have the hearing of the plea and on the merits set for a day certain, which was done, the defendant did not waive his right to be heard on his plea of abatement. Bennett v. Stratton, 25 C. A. 510, 61 S. W. 949.

Where defendant's plea to the jurisdiction was overruled, he was not entitled to plead to the jurisdiction again, after having gone to trial on the merits, without saving an exception to the ruling. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Harlan (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 971.

A plea to the jurisdiction as to the amount claimed by an amended petition in an action for wrongful attachment held filed too late after pleading to merits upon the original petition. Thompson v. Rosenstein (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 439.

Exceptions to citation are not waived because they are written on same piece of paper and filed at same time with a plea to the merits, they preceding the plea to the merits. This is in accordance with the statute. Pyron v. Graef, 31 C. A. 405, 72 S. W. 101.

Pleas in abatement, or exceptions to the petition in the nature of such pleas, must, to be considered, be filed prior to an answer to the merits, whether such answer raises issue of law or of fact. Brooks v. Galveston City Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 330.

A plea in abatement on the ground that the court has no jurisdiction because the amount involved is too small cannot be considered, when filed after the case has been continued, and after defendant has answered to the merits. O'Neil v. Murray (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1090.

An assertion by defendant of a right to be sued in a particular county, held a plea in abatement which must precede an answer to the merits or is waived. Wolf v. Willingham, 48 C. A. 536, 107 S. W. 60.

A party does not waive his right to move to dismiss an appeal from a justice to the county court for want of jurisdiction of the subject-matter by first pleading to the merits. McQueen v. McDaniel (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 219.

Defendant does not waive his plea of privilege by filing at time of filing his said plea, a plea to the merits and a motion to continue the case to make additional parties in the event it should be held to answer, even though the several pleas were written on separate pieces of paper. Collin County Nat. Bank v. Turner (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 671.

The plea of privilege to be sued in another county, interposed by defendant after answering, held to come too late. Barclay v. Deyerle, 53 C. A. 236, 116 S. W. 123.

Documents filed by defendants on their application to set aside a judgment against them taken in absence upon service by publication, for the purpose of having the judgment vacated, were not pleadings within the rule that a plea of venue must precede a plea to the merits, so that their plea of privilege to be sued in another county was not waived by filing such documents. Wolf v. Sahm, 55 C. A. 564, 120 S. W. 1114.

A plea in abatement or special exception for nonjoinder of a necessary party plaintiff must be filed in due order, and an amended answer containing an exception for nonjoinder filed several days after the filing of the original answer, consisting of a general demurrer to the original petition and a general denial, comes too late and is properly overruled. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Ochiltree (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 584.

Misjoinder of causes of action should be pleaded in limine, and is waived by demurring and answering to the merits. Kemendo v. Fruit Dispatch Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 73.

Where an action was filed March 31, 1908, a plea of privilege, following exceptions and a general denial to the answer, filed January 26, 1910, is waived. Fritter v. Pendleton (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 1186.

A plea in abatement, filed after an answer to the merits and at a subsequent term of court, should be overruled. Keator v. Whittaker (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 606.

In a suit by a corporation to recover property sold for taxes, a plea challenging the capacity of the corporation to sue, because its charter had been forfeited, must be filed before answer to the merits, and it is not sufficient that all the pleas of defendant were filed together, where the plea to the capacity followed the answer to the merits. Harvey v. Provident Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1127.

The filing of an amended plea of privilege to be sued in another county related back to the original plea, so that the fact that an answer to the merits was filed between the filing of the original and amended plea was immaterial. Beckwith v. Powers (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 177.

Preliminary trial on plea to jurisdiction.—The refusal of a preliminary trial as to jurisdiction is not error, introduction of evidence on that issue being allowed on the trial of the cause. Watson v. Williamson (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 793.

Art. 1910. [1269] [1269] Certain pleas to be determined during the term at which filed.—Pleas to the jurisdiction, pleas in abatement, and other dilatory pleas and demurrers, not involving the merits of the case, shall be determined during the term at which they are filed, if the business of the court will permit. [Id. sec. 33. P. D. 3.]

See, also, notes under Art. 1947.

Construction and application.—It is not reversible error to submit a plea in abatement with those to the merits. Holstein v. Gardner, 16 T. 115; Brein v. Railway Co., 44 T. 302. But the jury should be instructed to pass upon the plea in abatement first, and that if they find that issue in favor of the defendant they should go no further. A dilatory plea, such as the plea of privilege, stands very nearly upon the same footing as a demurrer, upon which a defendant must specially ask the action of the court or it will be considered abandoned. Watson v. Baker, 67 T. 48, 2 S. W. 375; Galveston Co. v. Noble, 56 T. 575.

While pleas in abatement and pleas upon the merits may be submitted together, a defendant has a right to have a jury pass upon his plea in abatement alone. Howeth v. Clark, 4 App. C. C. § 315, 19 S. W. 433.

A party, by proceeding to trial upon the merits without invoking a determination of a plea in abatement, will be held to have waived it, and on appeal it is immaterial whether the plea was sufficient or not. Blum v. Strong, 71 T. 321, 6 S. W. 167; Maxwell v. National Bank (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 848. See Spencer v. James, 10 C. A. 327, 31 S. W. 540.

Special exceptions to the form of adversary pleadings come too late after there has been a trial and a continuance of the case at a former term without objection on that account. Smith v. Savings Bank, 1 C. A. 115, 20 S. W. 1119.

The privilege of being sued in a particular county must be pleaded, and the plea must be disposed of at the first term after the suit is filed, unless otner business prevents its consideration, or it is continued by consent of parties. Crisswell Ranch & Cattle Co. v. Waldstein (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 260.

Plea of privilege to be sued in the county of his residence should be called to the attention of the court at the first term. Waco Ice Co. v. Wiggins (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 58.

A plea of privilege is waived if not disposed of at the first term of the court, the business of the court permitting, and where a continuance is granted without urging the disposition of such plea. Chatham Machinery Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 592.

Plea of venue held waived by cause being continued to next term without plea being called to court's attention. Aldridge v. Webb, 92 T. 122, 46 S. W. 224.

A plea alleging that plaintiff has fraudulently stated the cause of action at a greater amount than the amount really due for the purpose of giving jurisdiction, is a plea in abatement, and must be disposed of at term when filed or it will be considered waived. Watson v. Mirike, 25 C. A. 527, 61 S. W. 540.

Failure of court to rule on exceptions before hearing on the merits held not error. Connor v. Williamson, 26 C. A. 285, 62 S. W. 961.

The court can entertain jurisdiction of counterclaims, if parties consent that such issues may be determined in one trial, by failing to object at the proper time. Pucket v. Page (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 346.

The court held entitled to entertain jurisdiction of an action for conversion and of a counterclaim where the parties consent thereto, or where a special demurrer is waived by delay, under this article. Id.

A continuance after filing of a plea of privilege to be sued in another county which carried the hearing of the plea beyond the term held without prejudice to defendant's right to urge the plea. Garrett v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 49 C. A. 438, 108 S. W. 760.

District court rule 24 (67 S. W. xxii) provides that all dilatory pleas and all motions, etc., relating to a suit pending, which do not go to the merits, shall be tried at the first term at which the attention of the court is called to the same, unless passed by consent of the court, and shall be disposed of before the issue on the merits is tried. Held, in view of this article and article 1947, that, where defendant presented his plea of privilege and demanded a ruling thereon before a trial on the merits, he did all he was required to do, and, the court having determined to hear the plea with the main case, that defendant, on applying for a necessary continuance, failed to again insist on a hearing of his plea, did not constitute a waiver thereof. Waldrep v. Roquemore (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 248.

A trial judge properly refused to rule on demurrers passed upon at a former term. Steiner v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 261.

Under article 1524 and this article authorizing the supreme court to make rules for the courts not inconsistent with the law, and providing that dilatory pleas shall be determined during the term at which they are filed if the business of the court permits, and under district and county court rule 24 (67 S. W. xxii), providing that all dilatory pleas shall be tried at the first term to which the attention of the court shall be called to the same, unless passed by agreement, and all such pleas shall be disposed of before the main issue on the merits is tried, the court may in its discretion dispose of dilatory motions at the trial of the merits, and, where evidence on the motions and the main case are heard together, it must require the jury to first dispose of the motions, and, where that is done, the defeated party may not complain unless he shows that he suffered injury by the failure of the court to dispose of the motions before hearing evidence on the merits. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1148.

Under article 1902, permitting defendant to plead as many separate matters as he deemed necessary for his defense, provided that they be filed at the same time, district and county court rule 7 (67 S. W. xx), permitting the original answer to consist of pleas of privilege, etc., article 1882, making the filing of an answer an appearance by defendant dispensing with service of citation, this article, and district and county court rule 24 (67 S. W. xxii), requiring all dilatory pleas not going to the merits to be tried at the first term to which the attention of the court shall be called thereto, unless passed by agreement, and that they shall be called and disposed of before the issue on the merits, held, that pleas of privilege to be sued in the county of defendant's residence must be determined during the term at which they were filed, even though defendant was not compelled to answer until the succeeding term, and that failure to call such pleas up for action at the term at which they were filed waived them. Harris Millinery Co. v. Melcher (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 100.

A defendant is not estopped from urging a general demurrer to a petition by his failure to present, and have it acted upon, during the term at which it was filed. Kruegel v. Nitschman (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 319.

Where no plea in abatement for want of capacity in plaintiffs to maintain the suit was filed, as required by article 1909 and this article, defendants' requested instruction for a directed verdict because of plaintiffs' alleged incapacity to prosecute the suit was properly refused. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Seale (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1099.

Defendant waived a plea of privilege to be sued in the county of his residence by failing to call the plea to the trial court's attention during the term at which it was filed, by agreeing to a continuance, and by attempting to set up a cause of action against other parties, and having them brought into the suit long after the plea was acted upon by the trial court. Lupton v. Willmann (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 261.

1. Necessity of pleading in defense in general.—The want of authority in the attorney to bring suit must be pleaded. Smith v. Wingate, 61 T. 54.

An objection that petition, in action for breach of contract to accept certain sawlogs, contains no allegation that they were scaled as required, must be set up by plea. Sabine Tram Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 905.

Objection to a petition containing a false averment of the amount claimed, to confer jurisdiction can only be taken by a plea and proof. Walhoefer v. Hobgood, 18 C. A. 291, 44 S. W. 566.

Objections by defendant, sued by a building and loan association to foreclose a mechanic's lien, to credits allowed him and a disposition made of his stock, must be set out in his pleadings. Bringhurst v. Mutual Building & Loan Ass'n, 19 C. A. 355, 47 S. W. 831.

In a suit by divorced wife for partition of community property, objection by defendant that court did not charge estate with value of his separate property cannot be considered, where he did not ask in his pleadings nor seek at the trial to have it charged. Moor v. Moor, 24 C. A. 150, 57 S. W. 992.

Where a defense, in an action to try title, that the title of the defendant, acquired under a trust deed, was defective, because the deed was not accepted by the beneficiaries prior to an attachment lien, was not pleaded, it will not be considered on appeal. Samuel Cupples Wooden-Ware Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 318.

In an action against an innocent purchaser of land and the wrongful vendor thereof to recover the land, where the wrongful vendor, if any one, was entitled to a certain alleged payment made by the plaintiff, the court will not consider any equities arising from this payment in the absence of any plea in regard to the same by the wrongful vendor. Black v. Garner (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 918.

Where there is no attempt in a suit to foreclose to affect the superior title, the issue of a superior title adverse to the mortgage cannot be interposed. Branch v. Wilkens (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 1083.

An answer by defendant which did not set up a misomer in plaintiff's petition held to waive such misnomer and service of process. McCord-Collins Co. v. Pritchard, 37 C. A. 418, 84 S. W. 388.

Defendants, who made default in the lower court and filed no pleadings, cannot urge on appeal their privilege to be sued in the county of their residence, or usury in the debt sued upon. Carson Bros. v. McCord-Collins Co., 37 C. A. 540, 84 S. W. 391.

In a suit to recover an interest in land on the ground that a resulting trust had arisen in favor of plaintiffs, certain facts held to constitute defensive matter. Pearce v. Dyess, 45 C. A. 406, 101 S. W. 549.

Matter of defense not pleaded cannot be made a ground for reversing a judgment in favor of plaintiffs. Haywood v. Scarborough (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 469.

A buyer sued for the price of jewelry sold and delivered held not entitled to prove a certain fact because not included in his answer. Western Mfg. Co. v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 924.

A grantee, claiming the right to hold property conveyed to him on the ground that the grantor conveyed it with the design to defraud his creditors, held required to allege and prove that the property was conveyed to him by the grantor with intent to defraud his creditors. Smith v. Olivarri (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 235.

One contracting to sell all the cattle of a specified brand, who asserts that it was understood that he should be required to deliver only the cattle subject to a mortgage, must present the same as a defense by proper pleading. Dupree v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 608.

Where a carrier, sued for breach of a special contract for the carriage of goods, did not in the trial court raise the issue of the validity of the 90-day clause in its shipping contract, such defense, if any, was waived. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 548.

2. Defect of parties.—See notes at end of Chapter 5.

3. Improper venue.—See notes under Arts. 1830, 1903.

4. Style of pleading.—A verified pleading containing allegations intended as denials and a prayer for dissolution of the injunction and general relief, in the absence of objection as to form, will be held sufficient as an answer, although styled a "motion to dissolve injunction." Hicks v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 845.

5. Matters constituting defense in general.—In an action for the contract price of iron furnished a railroad, the contract price calling for immediate shipment, defendant's answer properly averred circumstances at the making of the contract to show that the parties contemplated immediate shipment which was not made. Gorham v. Dallas, C. & S. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 930.

6. Anticipation of defensive matter.—The plea must anticipate and exclude all supposable matter as would, if alleged by the opposite party, defeat said plea. Turman v. Robertson, 3 App. C. C. § 215, citing Breen v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 44 T. 302; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Graves, 50 T. 200; Stark v. Whitman, 58 T. 375; Raleigh v. Cook, 60 T. 439.

7. Joint or separate pleas or answers of co-defendants.—Defendant held not entitled to complain to striking out of the answer of another defendant. Davis v. Coleman, 16 C. A. 310, 40 S. W. 606.

In an action on an instrument alleged to have been executed by authority of defendants, a separate denial by one defendant is not a denial of authority as to the others. Hoxie v. Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank, 20 C. A. 462, 49 S. W. 637.

An answer which adopts the answer of other defendants, "except where this answer conflicts therewith," held insufficient, as failing to designate the portion adopted. Bexar Building & Loan Ass'n v. Lockwood (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 253.

Answer in an action of trespass to try title held to plead the statute of limitations jointly and severally. Henning v. Wren, 32 C. A. 538, 75 S. W. 905.

8. Statement of defense.—In suit to foreclose, sustaining exception to answer that mortgagee had no knowledge of the mortgage till defendant acquired his interest held error since delivery to and assent of the mortgagee is necessary to validity of mortgage. Whitaker v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 638.

In an action to recover certain hogs, or the value thereof, an answer held to sufficiently allege that the hogs were taken up, in territory where the hog law had been adopted, while they were running loose and claiming damages and fees. Lee v. McInnis (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 160.

An answer in an action for personal injuries held not to set up a defense. Freeman v. Cleary (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 521.

All facts essential to be proven to sustain a plea must be alleged therein. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Harris, 105 T. 320, 148 S. W. 284.

9. Inconsistent allegations and duplicity.—See notes under Art. 1902.

10. Plea to the jurisdiction.—The defendant may plead that the amount is fraudulently stated to give jurisdiction. Sherwood v. Douthit, 6 T. 224; Ellett v. Powers, 8 T. 113; Bridge v. Ballew, 11 T. 269; Gouhenant v. Anderson, 20 T. 459; Dwyer v. Bassett, 63 T. 274; Little v. Woodbridge, 1 App. C. C. § 154; Eden v. Osborn (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 414.

The defendant may plead to the jurisdiction of the court that neither of the parties resides in the state, that the cause of action accrued without this state, and that the defendant has no property, rights or credits within the state which may be subjected to the judgment. McMullen v. Guest, 6 T. 275; Tulane v. McKee, 10 T. 335; Ward v. Lathrop, 11 T. 287; Seawell v. Lowery, 16 T. 47; Haggerty v. Ward, 25 T. 144; M. M. Ins. Co. v. Bower, 38 T. 230; Armendiaz v. Serna, 40 T. 291; Wilson v. Zeigler, 44 T. 657; Johnson v. Herbert, 45 T. 304; Shandy v. Conrales, 1 App. C. C. § 236; Weems v. Rainer, 1 App. C. C. § 1207; P. & A. Life Ins. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 1 App. C. C. § 1345; Schmidt & Zeigler v. Stern, 2 App. C. C. § 92.

The question of fraudulent allegation to confer jurisdiction must be presented by a plea. Dwyer v. Bassett, 63 T. 274; Beville v. Rush (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1022.

A plea to the jurisdiction alleging that plaintiff had mistakenly stated the amount sued for held insufficient. Graves v. Bullen, 53 C. A. 261, 115 S. W. 1177.

A plea to the jurisdiction that items sued for could not be recovered as a matter of law, so that the amount in controversy was not within the jurisdiction of the court, was insufficient, where it was not alleged that the items were claimed fraudulently in order to confer jurisdiction. Star Mill & Elevator Co. v. Sale (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1037.

11. —— Privilege as to venue.—See notes under Art. 1903.

12. Plea in abatement.—As mode of objection to improper venue, see notes under Art. 1830.

As mode of objecting to defects as to parties, see notes at end of Chapter 5.

A plea in abatement must be certain to every intent, and without any repugnancy. Osborn v. Barnett, 1 App. C. C. § 126; McKie v. Echols, 1 App. C. C. § 1282. Must be filed before answer to the merits. Engel v. Brown, 1 App. C. C. § 803; Whittaker v. Wallace, 2 App. C. C. § 559. Must anticipate and exclude all such supposable matter as would, if alleged by the adversary, defeat the plea. Carter v. Marks, 17 T. 539; Raleigh v. Cook, 60 T. 438; W. U. T. Co. v. Weiting, 1 App. C. C. § 801; Railroad Co. v. Graves, 50 T. 181; Breen v. Railroad Co., 44 T. 302; Stark v. Whitman, 58 T. 375; Lindheim v. Davis, 2 App. C. C. § 108.

A pleading in abatement for nonjoinder of parties held insufficient for failing to allege that defendant could not, by exercise of care, have discovered such nonjoinder earlier. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wofford (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 119.

It was not error to overrule, on second trial, a plea in abatement which had been overruled by the supreme court on an appeal from judgment rendered on a former trial. City of Marshall v. McAllister, 22 C. A. 214, 54 S. W. 1068.

Defendant's plea in abatement for nonjoinder of parties plaintiff held properly overruled on demurrer. Orange Mill-Supply Co. v. Goodman (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 700.

Plea in abatement alleging that defendant was a corporation, and not a resident of the county, held insufficient for failure to allege that it did not have an agent in such county. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Pickens (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 156.

A plea in abatement held properly overruled. Gulf & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Weddington, 31 C. A. 235, 71 S. W. 780.

A plea in abatement to a city's action for taxes, that the state and county are necessary parties, is properly overruled, where it does not appear that the state and county taxes are unpaid. Bennison v. City of Galveston, 34 C. A. 382, 78 S. W. 1089.

In an action on a note, defendant's plea in abatement for defect of parties defendant held properly denied. Algelt v. Alamo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 582.

A plea in abatement held to sufficiently allege that defendants had entered into no contract in writing performable in the county in which the suit was brought, and that persons residing in such county and who have been joined as defendants were not necessary or proper parties. Russell & Co. v. F. W. Heitmann & Co. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 75.

In an action on account, a plea in abatement held insufficient. O'Neil v. Murray (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1090.

A plea in abatement should aver fully not only what is necessary to be answered, but anticipate all such supposable matter as would, if alleged, defeat the plea. Price v. Wakeham, 48 C. A. 339, 107 S. W. 132.

A plea in abatement held not to present the question of the pendency of another suit on the same cause of action. Holland v. Western Bank & Trust Co., 56 C. A. 324, 118 S. W. 218.

In a suit on a note, a plea in abatement held properly overruled. Guderian v. Clark (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 564.

A plea in partition held not a plea in abatement, but to go to the merits of the action and in bar of a recovery on the cause of action alleged. McComas v. Curtis (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 594.

A plea denying plaintiff's right to maintain the suit in the capacity in which it sues is one in abatement. Midkiff & Caudle v. Johnson County Savings Bank (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 705.

13. Denials.—In a mandamus proceeding, a general denial goes for naught, and the facts alleged in the petition must be taken as true. May v. Finley, 91 T. 352, 43 S. W. 257.

In an action on a contract stipulating for an inspection of material sold, where the petition alleged that the material had been inspected, an allegation that the inspection had not been made was properly pleaded in defense. Gorham v. Dallas, C. & S. W. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 930.

In an action for personal injuries by a railroad engineer, defendant's special denial held to sufficiently deny the complaint, though no general denial was filed. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Brice (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1094.

14. —— General denial.—General denial puts in issue all the allegations in the petition necessary to show a cause of action, except such as must be put in issue by a special plea. Mims v. Mitchell, 1 T. 443; Guess v. Lubbock, 5 T. 535; Armstrong v. Lipscomb, 11 T. 649; Thatcher v. Mills, 11 T. 692; Able v. Chandler, 12 T. 88, 62 Am. Dec. 518; Kinnard v. Herlock, 20 T. 48; Erskine v. Wilson, 20 T. 77; Robinson v. Brinson, 20 T. 438; Bedwell v. Thompson, 25 T. Sup. 245; Hampshire v. Floyd, 39 T. 103; Willis v. Hudson, 63 T. 678; Mayblum v. Austin, 1 App. C. C. § 616. Evidence in rebuttal is admissible under. Bailey v. Hicks, 16 T. 222. But new affirmative matter cannot be shown. Guess v. Lubbock, 5 T. 535; Banking Co. v. Stone, 49 T. 4; L. Ins. Co. v. Davidge, 51 T. 244.

In a suit on a lost writing, its execution is put in issue by a general denial, and the burden of proof is on the party claiming under it. Erskine v. Wilson, 20 T. 77; Robinson v. Brinson, 20 T. 438; Hampshire v. Floyd, 39 T. 103; Jordan v. Robson, 27 T. 615.

General denial in a suit to recover damages for breach of contract authorizes evidence by defendant that plaintiff failed to fulfill his part of the contract. Altgelt v. Emilienburg, 64 T. 150. In a suit on an insurance policy it puts in issue the ownership of the property. Queen Ins. Co. v. Jefferson Ice Co., 64 T. 578.

In a suit for damages resulting from the negligence of the defendant, the defendant may, under the general issue, introduce evidence of the contributory negligence of plaintiff. Rogers v. Watson, 1 App. C. C. § 382.

Negligence of plaintiff contributing to injury may be shown under the general denial. Rogers v. Watson, 1 App. C. C. § 382.

Under a general denial a party can prove any fact which would disprove an allegation to the pleading of the adverse party. Railway Co. v. Booton, 4 App. C. C. § 231, 15 S. W. 909.

In a suit by an administrator de bonis non, against an independent executor, for an abandonment of his trust and refusal to pay over money collected, the defendant pleaded a general denial. Items of payments by him in due order of administration were inadmissible. Grothaus v. Witte, 72 T. 124, 11 S. W. 1032. Matters in confession and avoidance must be specially pleaded. Mistrat v. Texas Oil Co., 3 App. C. C. § 45. As to allegations of payment, see Hahn v. Broussard, 23 S. W. 89, 3 C. A. 481.

Affirmative facts of defense tantamount to a general denial are admissible under the plea of general denial. Winn v. Gilmer, 81 T. 345, 16 S. W. 1058.

Action for injuries to an employee of a railroad company caused by a defective coupling. General denial by defendant. Held, that plaintiff must prove that he has been damaged substantially as alleged; that the injury was caused by a defect in the coupling; that the defect was known, or might have been known by the exercise of proper care on the part of defendant or of its employés; and also the amount of damages he has sustained. Sabine & E. T. Ry. Co. v. Ewings, 21 S. W. 700, 1 C. A. 531.

Action to recover cotton alleged to have been wrongfully seized under an execution against another. Defendant not entitled to prove a fraudulent transfer under a general denial. Hoffman v. Cleburne Bldg. & Loan Ass'n, 22 S. W. 155, 2 C. A. 688.

A general denial to a mandamus petition does not put in issue the facts alleged. May v. Finley, 91 T. 352, 43 S. W. 257.

Evidence to diminish apparent damages resulting from a wrongful expulsion from a train was held admissible under a general denial. Mexican Cent. Ry. Co. v. Goodman (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 580.

The defense in an action for failing to seize property under execution, that it was in possession of another officer, cannot be shown under a general denial. Reilly v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 552.

Plaintiff can prove that a paper, relied on by defendant, was executed through fraud or by mistake, without denying its execution under oath, where it was pleaded generally, without stating whether it was in writing or not. O'Malley et al. v. Garriott (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 108.

Under a general denial the bailee cannot show the destruction of the bailed article without his fault. Cochran v. Walker (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 403.

In a suit on a contract based on plaintiff's ownership of a certain judgment, testimony under a general denial, tending to show defendant's ownership of such judgment, was improperly excluded. Branch v. De Blanc (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 134.

Where purchase-money notes and land are sold, and lien expressly retained, purchaser may, under plea of not guilty, show that notes have not been paid, and thus defeat action by original vendee for possession. Polk v. Kyser, 21 C. A. 676, 53 S. W. 87.

Evidence of a mistake in one of conflicting calls held admissible under a general denial putting in issue the allegation that certain surveys were not in a certain commissioner's precinct. Martin v. Mitchell, 32 C. A. 385, 74 S. W. 565.

In an action for overflowing plaintiff's land, defendant held entitled to show under the general issue that the loss of rental value was attributable to causes independent and distinct from any acts of defendant. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Gurley, 37 C. A. 283, 83 S. W. 842.

In an action for death, defendant held entitled, under the general issue, to show that decedent, at the time she sustained the injuries, had a disease which would have caused her death as soon as she did die, independent of the injuries. Hardin v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 440.

In an action for injuries received by an employé, certain evidence held admissible under the general issue. Price v. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co., 41 C. A. 47, 90 S. W. 717.

In an action for trespass on land a plea of not guilty held not a denial of the plaintiff's possession or right of possession. C. R. Cummings & Co. v. Masterson, 42 C. A. 549, 93 S. W. 500.

In an action for trespass, a plea of not guilty is insufficient to put plaintiff's title in issue. Paraffine Oil Co. v. Berry (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 1089.

The defendant may by a general denial put the plaintiff upon proof of facts alleged, and he can introduce evidence which tends to disprove the facts alleged, and to rebut evidence offered by the plaintiff. If he desires to introduce evidence of a fact which does not tend to rebut the facts of plaintiff's case, but which show an independent reason why plaintiff should not recover on the case stated and proved, he must plead such fact, else the evidence will not be admissible, and a judgment rendered upon such evidence admitted under a general denial will not be sustained. W. L. Moody & Co. v. Rowland, 100 T. 363, 99 S. W. 1115.

In an action for injuries sustained incident to expulsion from a passenger train, evidence affecting extent of suffering for which recovery is sought to be had held admissible under general issue as the rule that special defenses in the nature of confession and avoidance must be specially pleaded is not applicable. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Travis, 45 C. A. 117, 99 S. W. 1141.

In an action on an insurance policy, the general denial pleaded by the company held sufficient to require the court to consider a stipulation in the policy. Germania Fire Ins. Co. v. McChristy (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 822.

Evidence held admissible under defendant's general denial. McLellan v. Brownsville Land & Irrigation Co., 46 C. A. 249, 103 S. W. 206.

In an action by an employé for a wrongful discharge, the employer may, under the general denial, show that the employé voluntarily resigned in anticipation of a threatened discharge. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Thomas, 47 C. A. 150, 103 S. W. 423.

In an action for the death of a servant, certain evidence held admissible under the general issue. Wade v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 84.

In an action on a liquor dealer's bond for permitting a minor to enter and remain in his saloon, any defense that plaintiff, the minor's father, had authorized other dealers to sell liquor to the minor, could not be shown under a general denial, but would have to be specially pleaded. Markus v. Thompson, 51 C. A. 239, 111 S. W. 1074.

In an action by a passenger for assault by the company's employés, the company, under a general denial, could show that the alleged damages were not caused by the assault, but resulted from chronic alcoholism. Fielder v. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co., 51 C. A. 244, 112 S. W. 699.

In an action by a buyer against the seller for breach of a written contract of sale, defendant under a general denial may introduce evidence tending to show that a broker by whom the contract was signed failed to report the sale to defendant for its confirmation, as required by the rules of an association to which the parties to the contract belonged as members. Floresville Oil & Mfg. Co. v. Texas Refining Co., 55 C. A. 78, 118 S. W. 194.

In an action for breach of contract for which no time for performance is specified, a general denial puts plaintiff on proof of his allegation that one year was a reasonable time within which defendants should have performed the contract, and defendant may introduce any evidence which goes to controvert the evidence introduced by plaintiff. South Texas Telephone Co. v. Huntington (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 242.

Under a general denial defendant may prove any fact which goes to show that plaintiff never had any cause of action. Id.

In foreclosures, a general denial is sufficient to require proof of the execution of the mortgage, where it is alleged in the pleadings, or shown by the evidence, that the original has been lost or destroyed. Blair v. Breeding, 57 C. A. 147, 121 S. W. 869.

Plaintiff contracted with a connecting carrier to carry a shipment of lumber between two points, over the roads of a number of connecting carriers, and to stop the shipment en route at a planing mill to have the lumber planed, and plaintiff paid the through rate between the point of shipment and the point of destination, but the carrier who should have delivered it to the planing company refused to deliver it for a long time, on the ground that under a rule of the Railroad Commission such a stop-over was uniawful unless the sum of the local rates between the two points had been charged. Held, in an action for the delay, and for loss of part of the lumber and depreciation in value, that the defense that the railroad agent who made the contract with plaintiff had no authority under such rule of the Railroad Commission to issue a through bill of lading with stop-over privileges on payment of the through rate only could not be set up under a general denial, but defendant should have set up the facts by a plea of confession and avoidance, and although evidence to sustain such a defense was introduced, under the pleadings of the other defendant carriers, defendant not having pleaded such defense could not take advantage of the same. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Hamlin Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 605.

In an action for damages for breach of contract of shipment of cattle by failure to water them in the pens, defendant could not show under the general denial that the failure to have water at the cattle pens was due to an "unavoidable accident." Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 329.

Where certain land and permanent improvements standing in the name of an insolvent's wife were sought to be subjected to the payment of his debts, evidence that he gave his wife his interest in the community funds used in their construction over those necessary to pay his indebtedness to her held admissible under her general denial and plea of not guilty. Kane v. Ammerman (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 815.

In an action for services under a specific contract, defendant was entitled to show, under the general issue, a different contract, as well as the abandonment of the original contract. Goodwin v. Biddy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 739.

In an action on an account involving isolated transactions resting on special contract, testimony of the incorrectness of items of the account is admissible under the general denial. Bishop v. Mount (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 442.

Evidence that two of the cattle, the price of which was sued for, were left with plaintiff after delivery held admissible under a general denial. Peoples v. Brockman (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 907.

A general denial pleaded in an action for personal injuries while defendant lumber company was in the hands of a receiver would put in issue the appointment of a receiver. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 288.

Defendant in conversion cannot, under a general denial, show his subrogation to the lien of a stranger. Bassham v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1065.

Defendant, in an action for the wrongful killing of plaintiff's dogs may show on the issue of exemplary damages that shortly before the killing he had found his sheep killed by dogs, though he relies alone on a general denial. Turner v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1009.

Under the general denial in an action for broker's commissions, defendant could show, in the absence of express objection, that he and plaintiff were closely related so as to raise the presumption that plaintiff's services were gratuitous. Carl v. Wolcott (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 334.

Under a general denial in an action for injuries alleged to have been received by a fall during plaintiff's initiation, defendant might show that plaintiff's injury was in fact caused by the willful act of a stranger, or by a spirit of malice. Grand Temple and Tabernacle in State of Texas of Knights and Daughters of Tabor of International Order of Twelve v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 532.

15. Waiver of general denial.—By pleading limitations in the answer before a general denial held defendant did not waive the general denial. Sterling v. De Laune, 47 C. A. 470, 105 S. W. 1169.

16. Cross-complaint against plaintiff.—Set-off or counterclaim, see notes under Art. 1907.

Cross-bill seeking to substitute a third party plaintiff held erroneous. Garrett v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 288.

In an action to establish a mechanic's lien, a cross bill alleging delay in completing the building and damages thereby, for which certain sureties were liable, held to state a cause of action as against the sureties. Meyers v. Wood, 26 C. A. 591, 65 S. W. 671.

Plaintiff, in a suit to enjoin the sale of certain lots on execution, on the ground that it was part of his homestead, held to be the party seeking affirmative relief, so that there was no merit in his contention that defendant's answer was insufficient in its allegations for affirmative relief. Harris v. Matthews, 36 C. A. 424, 81 S. W. 1198.

Where a senior mortgagee, whose mortgage is not in default, is joined in foreclosure by a junior mortgagee, he is not thereby entitled to foreclose. Garza v. Howell, 37 C. A. 585, 85 S. W. 461.

An answer alleging a contract to convey certain of the land in controversy, but failing to allege an agreement to convey any certain quantity or part of the land, held insufficient to sustain a decree of specific performance. Cook v. Embrey, 46 C. A. 128, 101 S. W. 844.

In a suit to quiet title in which defendant is entitled to relief, held, that any countervailing equities which complainant might have must be pleaded. McCullough v. Rucker, 53 C. A. 89, 115 S. W. 323.

Cross-petition held to sufficiently allege a cause of action to remove a cloud from title, as against a general exception thereto. Degetau v. Mayer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1054.

A defendant who was brought into a suit to establish a resulting trust for the purpose of adjusting his equities must file an answer in the nature of a cross-bill setting up the superiority of his equities or the court may only establish plaintiff's claim. Miller v. Himebaugh (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 338.

17. Cross-complaint against codefendant.—Pleading of defendant against a codefendant, brought in to answer for defendant's liability, held not to show there was no liability of defendant, and hence no basis for pleading over against codefendant. City of San Antonio v. Smith, 94 T. 266, 59 S. W. 1109.

Pleading held to state a cause of action over against a codefendant for maintaining a nuisance. Id.

Essentials of pleading in a cross-action on a note given for a loan of the purchase price of land, stated. Singletary v. Goeman (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 436.

Defendants' in an action on a promissory note, were entitled to adopt the complaint as a cross-action against another defendant, who assumed payment. Hawkins v. Western Nat. Bank of Hereford (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 722.

In a telephone lineman's action against an electric light company, answer held insufficient to show defendant's right to recover over against the telephone company because it failed to show that defendant was free from fault, but at most showed a case of concurrent negligence. Snyder Ice, Light & Power Co. v. Bowron (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 550.

18. Effect of failure to plead special contract.—In an action by owner of cattle against carrier to recover penalty for failure to feed and water the cattle, defendant's failure to plead special contract requiring owner to care for the cattle held of no avail to plaintiff. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Peters, 31 C. A. 6, 71 S. W. 70.

19. Construction of pleading.—An answer, in an action by heirs to recover an interest in community property, which pleaded that the demand to the property mentioned in the petition was stale, held applied to both real and personal property mentioned in the petition. Clifton v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 611.

In action on accident policy, answer, when construed with petition, held to set up defense of death caused by oysters voluntarily taken into stomach, within exception of policy. Maryland Casualty Co. v. Hudgins, 97 T. 124, 76 S. W. 745, 64 L. R. A. 349, 104 Am. St. Rep. 857, 1 Ann. Cas. 252.

Where answers do not disclose the name of the answering defendant, extraneous matters may be considered to determine who is the real party filing the pleadings, and the question is one for the jury. McCord-Collins Co. v. Prichard, 37 C. A. 418, 84 S. W. 388.

An answer in an action for breach of contract construed. Kansas City Packing Box Co. v. Spies (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 432.

Where, in an action for the purchase price of paint, defendant alleged misrepresentations as to its quality, etc., it was improper to treat each representation alleged as a separate thing; the representation alleged being in effect a single representation that the paint was of a certain quality. Huff v. Kinloch Paint Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 467.

An answer, in an action for the death of an employé, held to show that a third person was the party whose active negligence was primarily the proximate cause of the employé's death, entitling the employer to recover from him the damages recovered for the death. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pigott, 54 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 841.

An allegation of ratification in an answer held not necessarily to have reference to plaintiff being insane, where the petition seeks to set aside a deed not only on the ground that plaintiff was insane when she executed it, but also, proceeding on the theory of her sanity, on the ground of fraud. Uecker v. Zuercher, 54 C. A. 289, 118 S. W. 149.

Allegations of a cross-petition that defendants had acquired a fee-simple title by a purchase from the administrator, acting under process of law and under approval of the probate court, implied that a lien placed on the land by a trust deed, executed by decedent, had been discharged when defendants purchased from the administrator. Degetau v. Mayer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1054.

20. —— As a whole.—An answer was not insufficient because certain paragraphs did not set out the matters constituting contributory negligence, where such matters were set out in other paragraphs. Riley v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 581.

21. —— General and specific averments.—A particular allegation of the answer, which alleged contributory negligence, governs a general plea; and so, there being no evidence in support of the particular allegation, a charge on that issue was properly refused. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Keeran (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 355.

22. —— Exhibits.—See also notes under Art. 1827.

When an exhibit is referred to in pleading, and its inspection shows facts contradictory of the allegations in the plea, in considering the plea on demurrer the exhibit and not the allegations found in the plea must control. Freiberg et al. v. Magale, 70 T. 116, 7 S. W. 684.

23. Theory of defense.—Facts provable in an action at law without being specially pleaded cannot, when pleaded, convert the defense into an equitable one. Snow v. Gallup, 57 C. A. 572, 123 S. W. 222.

24. Withdrawal or abandonment of pleading.—A plea to the jurisdiction of the court was waived where the cause was twice continued without action being specially invoked on the plea. Bonart v. Lee (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 906.

Where no evidence is introduced in support of a plea for damages, it is abandoned. Schulz v. Tessman, 92 T. 488, 49 S. W. 1031.

In a suit to foreclose a tax lien, held, the court properly refused to permit a defendant, appearing without service, to withdraw his answer. Moss v. City of Rockport (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 652.

A defense alleged, but not proved, nor requested to be submitted to the jury, held abandoned, and hence unavailable on appeal. Wright v. United States Mortg. Co. (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 368.

When defendant failed to offer evidence in support of its cross-action, it thereby abandoned the same. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Schlather (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 953.

In an action against a principal and his agent, who pleaded that he acted as his principal's surety only, evidence that he had no authority to make the contract, which was contradicted, held not to constitute an abandonment of his plea of suretyship, so as to justify judgment against the agent. Tabet v. Powell (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 997.

Where defendant filed a plea of reconvention, and after having announced ready for trial refused to submit his pleadings to the court, he abandoned his plea. Hill v. Lyles (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 559.

Defendants held entitled to amend and withdraw their disclaimer prior to the rendition of judgment thereon. Jolley v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 1151.

25. Striking out matter from pleading.—It is not error to strike out a paragraph of an answer, where under the remaining paragraphs the same defense may be fully availed of. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 56.

In an action for damages sustained by a passenger by reason of having been illegally arrested by an agent of the railroad company, an allegation in the answer held properly stricken out. Texas Midland R. R. v. Dean (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 524.

See, also, notes at end of Chapter 2.

26. Variance between pleading and proof.—In a suit for property hired to the defendant, evidence that it was lost or destroyed is not admissible under an answer alleging that it had been returned. Mims v. Mitchell, 1 T. 443.

In a suit for the recovery of property there was a general denial and a special plea that the property sued for belonged to the estate of defendant's intestate. Held, evidence of the disability of the plaintiff to sue was irrelevant and inadmissible. Guess v. Lubbock, 5 T. 535.

In an action on an open account for goods sold, the defendant pleaded a set-off contracted by one whom he alleged to have been the partner of the plaintiff, averring also that the plaintiff had assented to it. Although the evidence was not sufficient to render plaintiff liable as partner, it nevertheless proved his assent, and that was sufficient to sustain the verdict in favor of the defendant for his offset. Baker v. Smith, 8 T. 346.

Both parties claimed the property in controversy by purchase from M. The defendant alleged that the sale to plaintiff was without consideration. Evidence showing that the sale was fraudulently made for the purpose of hindering and delaying creditors is inadmissible. Robinson v. Martel, 11 T. 149.

The plaintiff sued for property conveyed to defendant by an absolute bill of sale, alleging that the bill of sale was made in trust to secure certain debts which had been paid. The defendant answered that he purchased the property absolutely in good faith and for a sufficient consideration. The defendant was not permitted to prove that the sale was made by plaintiff for the purpose of defrauding his creditors. Cuney v. Dupree, 21 T. 211.

Where one of the makers of an instrument was released on condition and his name erased, and, the condition failing, he again signed the instrument, the plea of non est factum by the other makers is not sustained. Tobin Canning Co. v. Fraser, 81 T. 407, 17 S. W. 25.

An allegation of payment is not supported by proof of a set-off, or an allegation of a payment of money by proof of payment in property; but an allegation of payment made for a collateral purpose, as to prove the purchase of property, may be proven by evidence of a credit upon a counter demand. Hamburg v. Wood, 66 T. 168, 18 S. W. 623.

A note was pleaded and exhibited in evidence to show a settlement of which the note was a part. Such fact was not sufficient, in an action on the note itself, to support the plea of res adjudicata. Keesey v. Old, 21 S. W. 693; 3 C. A. 1.

In an action on a promissory note the defendant answered that it was given for a certain consideration which had failed. Evidence that the note was given for a consideration different from that stated in the plea is inadmissible. Lemmon v. Hanley, 28 T. 219.

On foreclosure, held error to permit wife signing the mortgage to testify that she did not read it, there being no issue that her signature was procured by fraud. Scottish-American Mortg. Co. v. Scripture (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 210.

Where the answer of defendant mortgagee was a general denial, with the allegation that his mortgage was superior to plaintiff's mechanic's lien, the defense held not open that plaintiff waived his lien by taking a mortgage. Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank v. Taylor, 91 T. 78, 40 S. W. 876.

Where defendant pleads that eight of the items sued on were incorrect, he is estopped to deny the others. Low v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 73.

Evidence of value of personalty in the hands of receivers, to which defendant was entitled, so that he might have judgment for the value if return was refused, held not admissible under pleadings. Holland v. Preston (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 374.

In an action against a carrier for delay in transportation, evidence of a strike that caused the delay was not admissible under the general denial. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Pumphrey (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 246.

Where contributory negligence charged by defendant in personal injury case was not shown to come within any of the express prohibitions of defendant's printed rules, held, that the rules were irrelevant. Galveston, H. & S. Ry. Co. v. Pitts (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 255.

Where incompetency to do a certain thing is set up in justification of the discharge of an employé and negligence is involved, held, evidence need not be confined to the one thing in question. Texas Brewing Co. v. Walters (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 548.

Where defendant files an admission under the rules that plaintiff has a good cause of action except as to facts set up in the answer constituting a defense, the defense is confined to these specific matters. Phœnix Assur. Co. v. Munger Improved Cotton Mach. Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 271.

Evidence that plaintiff held stock as additional security for a debt not set out in the pleadings held inadmissible, where the defendant alleged that it was held as collateral, and that the debt had been paid, without reply filed. Hurd v. Texas Brewing Co., 21 C. A. 296, 51 S. W. 883.

Where insurer alleged that assured falsely represented himself to be the owner of land on which the property insured was located, evidence that he admitted that he did not own the granary was admissible. Insurance Co. of North America v. Wicker, 93 T. 390, 55 S. W. 740.

Where the defense on foreclosure of vendor's lien was that the transaction was a mortgage, and not a sale, no fraud being alleged, it was error to admit statements by defendant's wife that she signed the papers under undue influence. Claflin v. Harrington, 23 C. A. 345, 56 S. W. 370.

Agreement of plaintiff to pay attorneys 40 per cent. of amount recovered is not admissible in support of plea in abatement because of defect of parties plaintiff. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Abernathy (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 175.

Where a judgment creditor alleged that, prior to acquiring his lien, the debtor fraudulently transferred his property, but did not allege that plaintiff, who held a deed of trust on the land, had notice of the fraud, evidence thereof was inadmissible against plaintiff. White v. Provident Nat. Bank, 27 C. A. 487, 65 S. W. 498.

In an action on notes for the price of iron, where the defendant alleged a breach, in that the same kind of iron was not furnished as that sold to a certain other firm, evidence that the kind of iron contracted for was sold to other firms held properly excluded. Rice v. Dickson Car Wheel Co. (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 645.

Where deed of a street railway contained a covenant against incumbrances, an assignee of the vendee, when sued for a breach of an agreement set forth in the deed, held not entitled to defend by showing that the covenant against incumbrances was broken. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485.

Defendant, having pleaded one thing as contributory negligence, held not entitled to submit evidence of other contributory negligence. El Paso Electric St. Ry. Co. v. Ballinger & Longwell (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 612.

In condemnation proceedings for a road, the reception of evidence that after contest filed the county constructed the fences made necessary by the road, there being no plea to that effect, held error. Watkins v. Hopkins County (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 872.

An accident insurance company merely pleading exemption from liability on ground that death resulted from eating oysters containing ptomaine poison held confined to such defense. Maryland Casualty Co. v. Hudgins (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 1047.

A pleading of contributory negligence because the telegram was not sent in care of the person for whom the addressee worked, will not support a finding of contributory negligence because the sender failed to inform the operator that the addressee lived near a certain building. Western Union Tel. Co. v. James, 31 C. A. 503, 73 S. W. 79.

Where, in an action for conversion of a policy, defendant bank pleaded an express pledge as collateral, it could not defend on the ground that it had an equitable lien thereon. First Nat. Bank v. Cleland, 36 C. A. 478, 82 S. W. 337.

In an action for money loaned and for commissions for selling defendant's cotton, evidence of plaintiff's negligence in caring for the cotton, as alleged in the answer, held admissible under the pleadings and admission filed under rule 31 (67 S. W. xxiii) of the district and county courts. Kleinsmith v. Kempner, 37 C. A. 246, 83 S. W. 409.

In an action on a note, a letter written by the payee to defendant long after plaintiff purchased the note, and after its maturity, showing failure of consideration, held admissible under a plea alleging want of consideration and that plaintiff was not a bona fide holder, etc. Morris v. Brown, 38 C. A. 266, 85 S. W. 1015.

In an action by the landlord against the tenant of a farm for rents and advances, certain evidence held not to sustain allegations of the answer to the effect that plaintiffs wrongfully took possession of the crop, etc. McFaddin v. Sims, 43 C. A. 598, 97 S. W. 335.

A compliance with district and county courts rule No. 31 (67 S. W. xxiii), giving defendant in a specified case the right to open and close, held to restrict the matters of defense to such as are especially pleaded in legal avoidance of the facts alleged by plaintiff. Meade v. Logan (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 188.

In trespass to try title, defendant may introduce oral testimony tending to correct the calls in a deed on which he relies, though there is no allegation of mistake in his answer. Moore v. Loggins (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 183.

When the particular risk is specified in the pleadings, no other risks may be shown. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Garcia, 54 C. A. 59, 117 S. W. 206.

Under a plea of total failure of consideration for a note sued on, a partial failure may be shown. Samples v. Wever, 56 C. A. 562, 121 S. W. 1129.

In a suit for failure to promptly transmit and deliver a telegram, held, that defendant should be confined to the facts pleaded in a special plea as to how a mistake could have occurred. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 151.

Defendant cannot show other acts of contributory negligence than those specifically pleaded by the answer. J. Rosenbaum Grain Co. v. Mitchell, 105 T. 160, 145 S. W. 1188.

In an action on a buyer's assignment of his claim to recover the price paid for goods bought, the defense that the buyer kept the goods cannot be raised by a plea of estoppel to rescind. Drummond v. Allen Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 739.

In an action by a car checker injured while boarding a moving train, the defendant, having pleaded that the train belonged to it, cannot at trial defend on the ground that it belonged to another railroad company over which it had no control. Houston Belt & Terminal Co. v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 703.

See, also, notes under Arts. 1819, 1827.

27. Matters to be proved by defendant.—Defendant is not required to prove facts which the petition specifically alleges. Veeder v. Gilmer (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 584.

Where a petition alleged the release by plaintiff of an obligation relied on, defendant could rely upon such release without proving it. Barnes v. Central Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1172.

28. Cure of defects by pleading of adversary.—See notes at end of Chapter 2.

29. Waiver of defects or objections.—See notes at end of Chapter 2.

30. Form and sufficiency of allegations—Conclusions.—When a plea contains averments of legal conclusions predicated by the pleader on facts stated, and not necessary to the full presentation of the right claimed, it should on motion be stricken out. Morrison v. Insurance Co., 69 T. 353, 6 S. W. 605, 5 Am. St. Rep. 63.

When payment is made in money, at the time stated in the plea, evidence of the fact is admissible under a plea that "the notes sued on have been fully paid, satisfied and discharged" at a time named in the plea. When the payment is a conclusion of law from a certain state of facts, the facts must be specially alleged in the plea. Holliman v. Rogers, 6 T. 91; Marley v. McAnelly, 17 T. 658; Nugent v. Martin, 1 App. C. C. § 1173.

An answer averring a conclusion not supported by the facts alleged held demurrable. Branch v. De Blanc (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 134.

In an action against railroad companies for negligent delay in shipping cotton, a trial amendment, filed by one of the defendants which only alleged as a conclusion that there was a strike which prevented prompt movement of cars and which resulted in the delay, and which failed to allege what particular shipment was delayed, or that the cars could or would have been used to handle plaintiff's cotton, and not alleging any facts to show why its cars were on other lines of railroads, or what acts were done by any person to prevent their return, was demurrable; since, before the defense that a strike on other lines of railroad prevented the defendant from discharging its duty to plaintiffs would be available, it was necessary to allege all the facts which would put plaintiffs upon notice of the issues of fact they would be required to meet. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 250.

31. —— Disjunctive or alternative allegations.—In an action for the price of goods damaged in transit, defendant's answer, bringing in the railroad company, held to show that defendant sought alternative relief against the company, if he was liable for the purchase price. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Browne, 27 C. A. 437, 66 S. W. 341.

32. —— Inconsistent allegations.—Positive allegations of a plea cannot be overthrown on demurrer by the fact that dates stated therein conflict with facts stated. Wiggins v. Bisso, 92 T. 219, 47 S. W. 637, 71 Am. St. Rep. 837.

33. —— Irrelevancy and surplusage.—Contract not performed held properly stricken from answer, in action to set aside deed, because giving defendant no rights. McCampbell v. Durst, 15 C. A. 522, 40 S. W. 315.

Where the petition sets forth that H., "hereafter styled plaintiffs," is a firm composed of persons specified, the suit is by the alleged members as individuals, and a denial of partnership is immaterial. Western Union Tel. Co. v. L. Hirsch (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 394.

In a suit by a landlord for rents and supplies furnished the tenant, certain allegations of the answer held irrelevant. McFaddin v. Sims, 43 C. A. 598, 97 S. W. 335.

In an action on a contract, allegations in the answer as to defendant's financial condition held immaterial. Hall v. Parry, 55 C. A. 40, 118 S. W. 561.

If delivery of benefit certificate was not essential to completion of contract, plea that such delivery was delayed by negligence held immaterial, and to be stricken out on exception. Modern Woodmen of America v. Owens (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 858.

In a suit to set aside a trust deed and a conveyance on foreclosure thereof, an allegation in defendant's answer as to the consideration for the deed held not objectionable as immaterial. Morris v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 800.

In an action on a note given for the price of goods, an answer alleging that plaintiff's salesman agreed when he took the order for the goods that goods theretofore purchased from plaintiff might be returned, and the value thereof credited on the note, held to state a cause of action for recovery of payments made on the note, so that allegations as to representations made by plaintiff's attorney to whom such payments were made were immaterial. Clayton v. Western Nat. Wall Paper Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 695.

34. —— Pleading written instruments.—In an action against railroad companies for negligent delay in shipping cotton, where defendant's pleadings set out the fact that the contracts of shipment were in writing, but did not allege that there was any agreement in respect to delays in the written contract, nor where and under what circumstances an understanding, if any, in respect to delays was entered into, or any facts that would put plaintiffs upon notice of the very issues they would be expected to meet, it was not error to sustain a special demurrer thereto. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 250.

35. —— Mistakes.—When from an inspection of an entire plea it is manifest that a wrong name has been written through mistake, and it is obvious what name was intended without looking beyond the plea itself, the error is immaterial. Fears v. Albea, 69 T. 437, 6 S. W. 286, 5 Am. St. Rep. 78.

36. Exhibits.—To plaintiff's pleading, see notes under Art. 1827.

It is not necessary for an insurance company to attach a written assignment of plaintiff's right of action for damages, as an exhibit, where it is set out in effect, and the petition sets out the policy, and alleges liability and payment of loss. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Hartford Ins. Co., 17 C. A. 498, 44 S. W. 533.

37. Pleading particular facts or defenses—Abandonment or breach of contract.—In an action on contract, failure of defendant to plead a breach by plaintiff in failing to perform in time, held to preclude it from taking advantage of such a breach. Jefferson & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Dreeson, 43 C. A. 282, 96 S. W. 63.

In an action by a vendee to recover the purchase price of land on the ground that the vendor had refused to convey the land, abandonment of the contract by plaintiff was defensive matter, which should have been alleged and proved by defendant. Pfeiffer v. Wilke (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 361.

In an action against a vendor to compel specific performance of a contract for the sale of land, if the vendor relies upon mutual abandonment, he must plead it. Lipscomb v. Amend, 49 C. A. 300, 108 S. W. 483.

38. —— Agency.—In alleging fraud in obtaining a note by the payee's agents, their names should be disclosed in the answer. American Nat. Bank v. Cruger (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1057.

An answer by one of two joint tort feasors that he committed the tort as agent for the other is insufficient. Diamond v. Smith, 27 C. A. 558, 66 S. W. 141.

In an action on a note, a plea alleging specified payments to have been made at specified times to plaintiff and to two named agents, but not stating to which of them any particular payment was made, was bad. Eastham v. Patty, 29 C. A. 473, 69 S. W. 224.

An allegation that a defendant did certain things is supported by proof that he did them through his agent. Ucovich v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1102.

39. —— Another action pending.—Nature of defense in general, see notes at end of Chapter 7.

Must be pleaded. Langham v. Thomason, 5 T. 127.

40. —— Assignment.—The answer in an action to recover the proceeds of a fire policy, which alleged that insured gave defendant an order upon the local agents, directing the company to pay defendant the amount of a note executed to him by insured, that the company agreed to pay him such amount in settlement of policy, which insured consented to accept if defendant accepted the same in settlement of his claim, which he agreed to do, held to allege an actual assignment of the proceeds of the policy to defendant. Prentice v. Security Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 925.

41. —— Assumption of risk.—Where a passenger alleged that he was thrown from the platform of a railway car, where he had stopped while passing from one car to another in search of a seat, an exception was properly sustained to defendant's answer that the plaintiff took passage knowing that the train was an excursion train, and therefore assumed the risk. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Morris (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 813.

The issue as to whether a railroad employé assumed the risk of defective appliances which resulted in his injury can be raised only by a special plea. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Harris, 95 T. 346, 67 S. W. 315.

Answer held to sufficiently plead assumption of risk. Adams v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co., 34 C. A. 413, 79 S. W. 79.

An allegation in an answer in an action for injuries to a servant held to sufficiently raise an issue of assumed risk. Price v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 38 C. A. 309, 85 S. W. 858.

In an action by a servant for injuries, the answer held to have pleaded assumption of risk with sufficient definiteness. Bryan v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 693.

In an action by an employé for personal injuries, the defense that the employé assumed the risk is not available unless pleaded. Price v. Consumers' Cotton Oil Co., 41 C. A. 47, 90 S. W. 717.

In an action by an employé for injuries, the employer held required to allege and prove either assumed risk or contributory negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Parish (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 682.

Assumption of risk from danger caused by the master's negligence or arising from a faulty manner of work must be pleaded. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Garcia, 54 C. A. 59, 117 S. W. 206.

Where the defense of assumption of risk is not pleaded, the court should not submit the issue of assumed risk. Lewis v. Texas & P. R. Co., 57 C. A. 585, 122 S. W. 605.

In an action for injury to a passenger by lurching of the vessel, a plea of assumption of risk held insufficient. North German Lloyd S. S. Co. v. Roehl (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 322.

An employer sued for personal injuries, wishing to rely on the defense of assumption of risk, must plead it. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hall (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 445.

42. —— Bankruptcy.—Bankruptcy must be pleaded. Coffee v. Ball, 49 T. 16; Jackson v. Elliott, 49 T. 62; Miller v. Clements, 54 T. 351. Also see Martin-Brown Co. v. Milburn, 2 App. C. C. § 214.

43. —— Compromise and settlement.—There is a distinction between an agreement to accept a promise in satisfaction and an agreement to accept the performance of such promise in satisfaction. In the latter case there is no satisfaction without performance, while in the former the remedy is by an action for the breach, and plaintiff cannot recur to the original demand. Railway Co. v. Harriett, 80 T. 73, 15 S. W. 556.

Answer, in action upon an itemized account, held to present a sufficient defense by way of settlement and satisfaction so as to admit evidence in support of such answer. Bergman Produce Co. v. Browne (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 153.

44. —— Consideration and want or failure thereof.—Must be pleaded. Arts. 589, 7093; Jackson v. A. G. L. Ins. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 750; Smith v. Fly, 24 T. 345, 76 Am. Dec. 109; O'Connell v. Duke, 29 T. 299, 94 Am. Dec. 282; Ladd v. Pleasants, 39 T. 415; Jones v. Jones, 2 App. C. C. § 1; Trevino v. Hein, 2 App. C. C. § 105; Cobb v. Tufts, 2 App. C. C. § 154; Hannah v. Chadwick, 2 App. C. C. § 517.

See opinion for facts under which it was held that if one, in consideration of his acceptance of the drafts of another, receive from such other a promissory note for the amount, secured by mortgage, which by subsequent negotiation is converted into a conditional sale, and the drawer of the drafts afterwards conveys the mortgaged property absolutely for the benefit of the acceptor in satisfaction of such notes, the fact that the acceptance was never paid cannot be urged by the mortgagor under plea of failure of consideration to defeat title derived by purchase from the assignee of the acceptor. Harvey v. Edens, 69 T. 420, 6 S. W. 306.

In the absence of a plea of want or failure of consideration, evidence of non-payment of a premium on an insurance policy is inadmissible. Newton v. Newton, 77 T. 512, 14 S. W. 157; Railway Co. v. Wright, 1 C. A. 405, 21 S. W. 80; Phœnix Ins. Co. v. Hague (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 654.

Consideration for the note sued on was alleged by defendant to be plaintiff's promise to surrender a certain other note which he had failed to do. Held insufficient, in failing to allege promise to deliver at any particular time. Welborn v. Norwood, 20 S. W. 1129; 1 C. A. 614.

Plea of failure of consideration construed. McDonald v. Young (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 885.

Allegations in answer held sufficient to let in proof of failure of consideration. Ricker Nat. Bank v. Brown (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 909.

A defense of failure of consideration of note cannot be first raised on appeal. Graves v. Hillyer (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 889.

An answer, in an action for damages pleading a release given for a "good and valuable consideration," sufficiently pleads a valuable consideration, in the absence of an exception for the want of particularity. Warren v. Gentry, 21 C. A. 151, 50 S. W. 1025.

An answer alleging that one of the notes sued on was given in renewal of a note which had been discharged and was void for want of consideration held sufficient. Eule v. Dorn, 41 C. A. 520, 92 S. W. 828.

A plea of failure of consideration held to include that of partial failure. Gutta Percha & Rubber Mfg. Co. v. City of Cleburne, 102 T. 36, 112 S. W. 1047.

A plea of failure of consideration of a note sued on by the payee against the maker held sufficient. Baldwin v. Self, 52 C. A. 509, 114 S. W. 427.

In an action on a note given for timber, held, that a plea of failure of consideration was insufficient in substance, and that, the plea alleging a covenant of warranty, the matter would have to amount to a breach of warranty to let in such a plea based on a defective title. Callen v. Evans (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 543.

Under a plea of total failure of consideration for a note sued on, a partial failure may be shown. Samples v. Wever, 56 C. A. 562, 121 S. W. 1129.

A purchaser, in an executed conveyance of real estate, held not to show facts sufficient to defeat a collection of the price. Blewitt v. Greene, 57 C. A. 588, 122 S. W. 914.

Where, in a suit on notes given by a vendee of land as part of the purchase price, the vendee alleged that title to two of the lots had failed without alleging their value, he was not entitled to an abatement of the price paid. Harris v. Berry (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1148.

In an action by a bank on a note, a plea that the note was given for plaintiff's accommodation and that defendant received no consideration therefor was not objectionable for failure to further allege that there was not any other detriment or loss to the bank. First Nat. Bank v. Pearce (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 285.

A plea that part of the land sold was held under a superior title alleged as a defense to an action for the balance of the price held insufficient. Mosteller v. Astin (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1136.

That a bank had released a debtor from a debt for which a note of the debtor to a third person was given is not available to the maker when sued by the third person unless pleaded. Woods v. Warren (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 293.

An answer alleging that the note sued on was given for the price of goods sold by plaintiff to defendant on the agreement of plaintiff to take back certain unsalable goods theretofore sold by plaintiff to the defendant, and to credit the invoice price on the note, and that, notwithstanding defendant's continued willingness to return the goods, plaintiff had failed and refused to receive the same, sufficiently alleged a failure of consideration. Clayton v. Western Nat. Wall Paper Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 695.

In an action on a note given for goods sold, an answer setting up an agreement by plaintiff's salesman to take back goods previously purchased from plaintiff, and to credit the amount thereof on the note, need not particularly describe the goods which were to be returned, where the answer also alleged that, under the agreement with the salesman, an inventory was to be made thereof by the plaintiff. Id.

A plea of failure of consideration in an action on a note held sufficient as against a general demurrer. Key v. Hickman (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 275.

An allegation that certain parts of machinery for which a note sued on was given were missing held not objectionable for failure to itemize such parts and give their value. Lemond v. Smith (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 751.

In a suit on a note given for the price of certain farming tools and machinery, a plea held to sufficiently allege failure of consideration. Id.

45. —— Coverture.—Evidence of coverture, though admitted without objection, cannot be considered when the coverture of the wife has not been pleaded in avoidance of the plea of limitation. Harvey v. Cummings, 68 T. 599, 5 S. W. 513.

An answer held insufficient to overcome the validity of a married woman's acknowledgment to a deed. Brand v. Colorado Salt Co., 30 C. A. 458, 70 S. W. 578.

46. —— Damages and mitigation thereof.—Matter in extenuation of damages need not be alleged. McGehee v. Shafer, 9 T. 20.

Where a minor sues for damages for personal injuries, held, that defendant must plead any cause which would prevent plaintiff from recovering for diminished earning capacity from the date of his emancipation. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Tonahill, 16 C. A. 625, 41 S. W. 875.

Answer in action to recover price of electric plant, alleging failure to complete contract, held to set up a certain and correct measure of damages. A. J. Anderson Electric Co. v. Cleburne Water, Ice & Lighting Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 929.

In an action for damages sustained by the construction of a railroad in front of plaintiff's property, the amount due on the property should not be deducted from the damages, where defendant has not asked it in its pleadings. Denison & P. Suburban Ry. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 280.

In conversion against plaintiff in attachment, that the attached property might thereafter, in another pending suit, be applied to satisfaction of plaintiff's creditors, held not available in mitigation of damages, when not pleaded. Scott v. Childers, 24 C. A. 349, 60 S. W. 775.

In an action for breach of marriage promise appellee could not show in mitigation of damages that he was unable to perform the contract because of ill health; such defense not having been pleaded. Edge v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 148.

Employer, who has wrongfully discharged his servant, must allege and prove that servant could have earned other wages at different work, in order to show himself entitled to retain a deduction from the agreed wages. Weber Gas & Gasoline Engine Co. v. Bradford, 34 C. A. 543, 79 S. W. 46.

That an employé could have lessened his damages from his discharge held a matter of defense. Peacock v. Coltrane, 44 C. A. 530, 99 S. W. 107.

A claim that decedent's injuries were aggravated by his negligence was defensive matter, which should be specially pleaded. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smith, 49 C. A. 610, 108 S. W. 1195.

The answer in an action on a written contract held sufficient to present an item to be considered as arising from a breach of plaintiff's promise, and as a result of the fraud alleged. International Land Co. v. Parmer (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 196.

Since, in an action against a carrier for damages to personal property in transit, the measure of damages is ordinarily the difference in the market value of the property when it arrives at its destination, and what the value would have been had it not been damaged when it arrived, if the carrier wishes to contend that the wholesale and not the retail price of the property should govern in fixing the amount of damages, facts supporting such contention should be specially pleaded. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Barden (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 83.

Under pleadings in action for commissions on sale of goods, evidence as to value of trunks, samples, etc., retained by plaintiff, held admissible. Missouria Glass Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 433.

In an action for damages for taking oil from land through mistake as to ownership, defendant could not complain that the value of the oil at the surface was adjudged against him, where he did not plead nor prove the cost of extracting. Right of Way Oil Co. v. Gladys City Oil, Gas & Mfg. Co. (Sup.) 157 S. W. 737.

47. —— Discharge of surety.—Suretyship and discharge by extension of time of payment must be pleaded. Babcock v. M. N. Bank, 1 App. C. C. § 818.

48. —— Estoppel, waiver, and ratification.—Estoppel is unavailable as a defense, unless pleaded. T. B. & Ins. Co. v. Hutchins, 53 T. 61, 37 Am. Rep. 750; Taylor v. Tompkins, 1 App. C. C. § 1051. See Wilbarger County v. Bean, 3 App. C. C. § 16a; Texas Produce Co. v. Turner (Sup.) 27 S. W. 583; Austin Real Estate Co. v. Bahn (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 1047; Short v. Short, 12 C. A. 86, 33 S. W. 682; Pacific Exp. Co. v. Hertzberg, 17 C. A. 100, 42 S. W. 795; Howe v. O'Brien (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 813; Harle v. Texas Southern R. Co., 39 C. A. 43, 86 S. W. 1048; Ross v. Moskowitz (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 86; Couch v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 49 C. A. 188, 107 S. W. 872; El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Eichel & Weikel (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 922; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Linton, 141 S. W. 129; Parks v. Sullivan, 152 S. W. 704; Reed v. Robertson (Sup.) 156 S. W. 196.

In an action to cancel a trade on the ground that plaintiffs had accepted a deed ignorant of defendant's misrepresentations as to title, held, that defendant might prove the contrary, without alleging it by way of estoppel. Bailey v. Mickle (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 949.

Unless it is pleaded, it cannot be proved that a person is estopped to deny the authority of another to act in his behalf because he clothed him with apparent authority. Swayne v. Union Mut. Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 518.

When defendant in trespass to try title pleads title in himself, and seeks affirmative relief, plaintiff cannot avail himself of an estoppel, unless he pleads the same. Lybrand v. Fuller, 24 C. A. 296, 59 S. W. 50.

Estoppel of a corporation to deny the authority of an agent to execute a contract, to be availed of, must be pleaded. Tres Palacios Rice & Irrigation Co. v. Eidman, 41 C. A. 542, 93 S. W. 698.

A plea of estoppel held insufficient, as failing to show that the one invoking the same would be prejudiced, unless such estoppel was allowed. Blackburn v. Delta County, 48 C. A. 370, 107 S. W. 80.

In a suit to cancel a sheriff's sale on foreclosure of vendor's lien, the answer held to show a waiver by plaintiff of the irregularities relied on. Williams v. Burke (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 160.

In an action by a land broker for commissions, a plea of estoppel held insufficient. Montgomery v. Amsler, 57 C. A. 216, 122 S. W. 307.

Where mental incapacity is pleaded to avoid a release, the failure to disaffirm within a reasonable time after being restored to competency to contract must be specially pleaded by the other side to be available. Alamo Dressed Beef Co. v. Yeargan (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 721.

In a suit for damages to a shipment of stock accompanied by plaintiff, the shipper, a plea of estoppel to deny the truth of stock condition reports made by him while en route, was good as against a general demurrer, independent of a further plea that as part of the shipping contract he bound himself to execute them. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Gober (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 383.

In support of an alleged plea of estoppel to deny that personal property sold by a firm to plaintiff in payment of a debt belonged to the firm, evidence should have been restricted to what preceded the alleged sale to plaintiff. Ricketson v. Best (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 353.

In trespass to try title, evidence to prove an estoppel against a defendant is inadmissible, in the absence of a plea of estoppel or a plea in the nature of a plea of estoppel. Reed v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 306.

One sued for the price of articles cannot avoid the time limitation contained in the contract, and pleaded by plaintiff, of 30 days in which to try them, and return them if not satisfactory, by showing a waiver thereof, unless he pleads the waiver. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. O. D. Havard Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 656.

49. —— Foreign law.—Insurer relying upon law of another state as a ground of defense held required to plead and prove it. Washington Life Ins. Co. v. Lovejoy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 398.

In partition of community property, the defense that defendant paid for the property with funds earned in another state, under the laws of which such funds were his separate property, must be pleaded to admit evidence thereof. Griffin v. McKinney, 25 C. A. 432, 62 S. W. 78.

50. —— Forfeiture.—In a suit by one claiming under a junior patent for land against one in possession under a prior grant, evidence of the forfeiture of the grant was inadmissible in the absence of an allegation of that fact. Paul v. Perez, 7 T. 338.

51. —— Fraud and mistake.—Fraud or mistake must be pleaded. Mitchell v. Zimmerman, 4 T. 80, 51 Am. Dec. 717; Dunham v. Chatham, 21 T. 245, 73 Am. Dec. 228; Weir v. McGee, 25 T. 31; Pendarvis v. Gray, 41 T. 329; Loper v. Robinson, 54 T. 510; Jones v. Jones, 2 App. C. C. § 1; Jackson v. Stockbridge, 229 T. 394, 94 Am. Dec. 290; Webb v. Harris, 1 App. C. C. § 1289; Warner v. Munsheimer, 2 App. C. C. § 394; Ascue v. Aultman, 2 App. C. C. § 498. Fraud may be waived by acts of party. Temple Nat. Bank v. Warner (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 239.

Where, in action on judgment, defendant pleads fraud in obtaining it, the specific acts must be set forth. Miller v. Lovell (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 835.

Answer attempting to avoid conveyance because of false representations that it was a mortgage may set out transaction leading to the execution. Atkinson v. Reed (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 260.

In an action on a foreign judgment, defendant may plead fraud in defense or by cross action. Babcock v. Marshall, 21 C. A. 145, 50 S. W. 728.

That a plea to an action on a note alleging fraud did not state the facts constituting the fraud did not render it insufficient, in the absence of demurrer. Reed v. Corry (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 157.

A plea that defendant was induced to contract to deliver pecans by fraudulent representations that the crop was good is insufficient, where it is not alleged that the failure of the crop rendered the execution of the contract more expensive. Hopkins v. Woldert Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 63.

In action on insurance policy, held error to admit evidence of mistake and fraud; there being no pleadings raising such issues. Ætna Fire Ins. Co. v. Brannon (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 560.

In an action on a note given for part of the purchase price of land, defendant's allegations of fraud in the sale held sufficiently specific. Morris v. Brown, 38 C. A. 266, 85 S. W. 1015.

In a suit to foreclose a deed of trust, evidence of defendant's ignorance of certain provisions of the deed held inadmissible in the absence of allegations of fraud or mistake. McGaughey v. American Nat. Bank, 41 C. A. 191, 92 S. W. 1004.

In an action on a note a cross-bill, alleging payment of the note in ignorance of an extension, held insufficient to require submission to the jury of a claim of misrepresentations to defendants' attorney in relation thereto. Collins v. Kelsey (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 122.

An answer in a suit to compel the performance of a contract for the conveyance of land, which alleges that the execution of the contract was induced by fraudulent representations by plaintiff, held to show that the representations were material and were relied on by defendant. Fisher v. Dippel, 46 C. A. 266, 102 S. W. 448.

In an action for the price of steel bars sold under a written order, a demurrer to an answer setting up fraud in procuring the order for a greater quantity of bars than had been agreed held properly overruled. Compagnie Des Metaux Unital v. Victoria Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 651.

In an action on a note given for timber, held, that a plea was insufficient as a plea founded on fraud and misrepresentation. Callen v. Evans (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 543.

Fraud relied on to avoid a policy must be specially pleaded. Delaware Ins. Co. of Philadelphia v. Hill (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 283.

In an action on a note purporting to be signed by a firm and indorsed by a third person, brought by the payee against the firm and the indorser, an answer of the indorser alleging that the payee knew of the withdrawal of one of the partners from the firm, that the indorser did not know it, that the payee as well as the partners withheld information of such withdrawal, whereby the indorser was induced to indorse as surety for the firm, was good as against a general demurrer as alleging that the payee with knowledge of the indorser's ignorance of the withdrawal of a partner intentionally withheld from the indorser information of the fact and thereby induced the indorser to indorse the note, relieving the indorser from liability. Trezevant & Cochran v. R. H. Powell & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 234.

In a suit on a note, a plea of a parol agreement by plaintiff held properly stricken where the plea of fraud contained no specific allegations. Long v. Riley (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 79.

A plea in an action on a note alleging an agreement and confederation between the payees and third persons to extort money from defendant and others on obligations similar to the note in issue is too general as against a special exception. Key v. Hickman (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 275.

Where, in a purchaser's action for breach of contract, an answer alleging that vendor had been induced to sign the contract by plaintiff's fraudulent representations that it bound plaintiff to purchase, "assuming" a certain debt, when in fact it merely bound him to purchase "subject to" such debt, was not demurrable for failure to allege special damage from the fraud, such allegation, if made, being a conclusion. Parker v. Naylor (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1096.

In an action on purchase-money notes given for the price of 125 acres of land, a defense alleging misrepresentations and failure of title as to more than half of the tract held to state a defense, and was not demurrable. Morgan v. Brown (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 361.

In an action on notes given for the price of land, defendants' failure to properly implead the parties claiming an adverse title to a part of the land did not defeat their right to show fraud in the representations as to the quantity of the land; nor was such right defeated by their prayer for a survey, to which they might not have been entitled. Id.

52. —— Homestead.—A party held not entitled to claim a homestead right without pleading it. Sweet v. Lyon, 39 C. A. 450, 88 S. W. 384.

In action by wife to recover homestead, proof of voluntary abandonment by her is inadmissible without special plea. Huss v. Wells, 17 C. A. 195, 44 S. W. 33.

A pleading claiming homestead exemption held insufficient to allow defendant to show that the family consisted of herself and grandchild. First Nat. Bank v. Sokolski (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 818.

53. —— Improvements.—In trespass to try title, see Arts. 7760, 7761.

A defendant who fails to specifically plead improvements and ask compensation cannot recover therefor. Ivy v. Ivy (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 682.

54. —— Illegality of contract.—Illegality of contract. Nunn v. Lackey, 1 App. C. C. § 1331; Markle v. Scott, 2 App. C. C. § 674; Turner v. Gibson, 2 App. C. C. § 714.

55. —— Infancy.—Infancy must be pleaded. Campbell v. Wilson, 23 T. 252, 76 Am. Dec. 67. Infancy of plaintiff should be pleaded in abatement. Moke v. Fellman, 17 T. 367, 67 Am. Dec. 656.

56. —— Invalidity of ordinance.—A railway company, desiring to raise the question as to whether a city ordinance constitutes an unreasonable restriction on railways, must do so by proper pleadings and proof. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Matherly, 35 C. A. 604, 81 S. W. 589.

Answer to petition for mandamus to compel railroad company to reduce its track to the level of street crossings of a city held sufficient to show that the ordinance relied on is unreasonable and arbitrary, entitling defendant to a hearing on the evidence. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. City of Dallas, 98 T. 396, 84 S. W. 648.

57. —— Laches.—Relator, having delayed mandamus proceedings to compel the issuance of a patent to certain land for 15 years after his right accrued, held barred by laches, though such defense was not pleaded. Munson v. Terrell, 101 T. 220, 105 S. W. 1114.

Laches or stale demand must be pleaded in order to avail a party invoking it. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 573.

58. —— Limitation of liability of carrier.—In an action founded on the common-law liability of a carrier, it is not necessary to produce the bill of lading in evidence. If there was a special contract restricting the carrier's liability, he must allege and prove it. M. P. Ry. Co. v. Nicholson, 2 App. C. C. § 169.

Where a cattle-shipping contract requires notice to be given of a claim for damages within a very limited time, the burden of showing by pleading and evidence that such stipulation was reasonable under the facts of the particular case is upon the railway company. Railway Co. v. Turner, 1 C. A. 625, 20 S. W. 1008; Railway Co. v. Paine, 1 C. A. 621, 21 S. W. 78.

The answer in an action against a carrier for destruction of goods in transit pleading violation of a stipulation against maintenance of such an action unless notice of the claim be given within a certain time, should allege that plaintiff consignor knew of the destruction at the time thereof; the goods having been in the carrier's possession. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brass (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1075.

59. —— Limitations.—See notes under Art. 5706.

60. —— Marshaling securities.—An answer by a second mortgagee, praying that the first mortgagee first exhaust property not included in the second mortgage, held not subject to a general demurrer. Devine v. United States Mortg. Co. of Scotland (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 585.

61. —— Negligence and contributory negligence.—Contributory negligence relied on as a defense must be pleaded unless it appears from the pleading of the plaintiff. Railway Co. v. Watson, 72 T. 631, 10 S. W. 731; Railway Co. v. Porter, 73 T. 304, 11 S. W. 324; W. U. Tel. Co. v. Apple (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 1022.

Negligence must be pleaded, and is a question of fact to be determined by the jury. Railway Co. v. Daniels (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 337; Railway Co. v. Jamison, 12 C. A. 689, 34 S. W. 674. A defendant relying upon contributory negligence as a defense must allege and prove it, unless the plaintiff's case discloses want of care on part of the injured party, or exposes him to suspicion of negligence. Railway Co. v. Bennett, 76 T. 151, 13 S. W. 319; Brown v. Sullivan, 71 T. 470, 10 S. W. 288.

On the issue of negligence, if the facts raising the question of contributory negligence are developed, the defendant is entitled to a decision of it, whether pleaded or not. Railway Co. v. Allbright, 26 S. W. 250, 7 C. A. 21.

An allegation of contributory negligence in general terms is not sufficient to admit of a defense of disobedience of orders by an employé injured. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Magrill, 15 C. A. 353, 40 S. W. 188.

In an action for injuries at a street crossing, contributory negligence in not stopping the horse after seeing the engine, not alleged in defendant's answer, was not in issue. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 147.

In an action against a railway company for running over plaintiff's horse, a plea that he negligently permitted his horse to run at large and graze on defendant's track held to state no defense. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Seay (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 177.

A plea "that plaintiff was guilty of negligence at and before his injury, which was the direct and proximate cause of same," raises the issue of contributory negligence. Stewart v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 34 C. A. 370, 78 S. W. 979.

A general plea of contributory negligence, not excepted to, is sufficient to warrant the submission of the issue raised thereby. Id.

In an action for injuries to a servant, plea of contributory negligence held a general one, under which defendant could show any fact showing contributory negligence arising from the use of certain benches. Bell v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 134.

In an action against a railroad company by an engineer for injuries at a washout, the rules of defendant held admissible, though not pleaded. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Fitzpatrick (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 406.

In an action for the death of a servant, the answer held sufficiently specific as to deceased's contributory negligence. Ramm v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 426.

Defendant held required to plead contributory negligence, unless it is developed by plaintiff's case. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gammage (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 645.

An answer in an action for personal injuries held to sufficiently allege warning of danger to warrant the introduction of testimony that plaintiff knowingly ran his train at a dangerous rate of speed. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Worth (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 958.

Omission to take a less dangerous route held not an issue on the question of contributory negligence, where the acts or omissions relied on in the pleading did not include that omission. Texas Midland R. R. v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 199.

Where a master relies upon a violation of rules by the servant to prevent a recovery he must plead the violation. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Powell, 51 C. A. 409, 112 S. W. 697.

In an action for the death of a servant, held necessary to plead the defense of contributory negligence. Lewis v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 57 C. A. 585, 122 S. W. 605.

A railway company, sued for negligently burning a section foreman's goods in a section house, could not rely on his contributory negligence, in the absence of a plea thereof. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sharp (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 614.

A carrier of live stock was not entitled to urge the shipper's contributory negligence in not caring for the cattle in transit, in the absence of a special plea alleging such defense. Herndon v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 285.

Allegations in an answer that the injuries caused to a servant's eye by a sliver from an anvil resulted from his negligence in striking cold iron improperly placed on the anvil raised the issue of contributory negligence, and it was error to refuse instructions that if plaintiff was negligent in failing to heat the iron, and this negligence caused the injury, he could not recover. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Meakin (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1057.

62. —— Non est factum.—Verification of plea, see notes under Art. 1906, subd. 8.

Must be pleaded. Arts. 588, 589, 1906; Reid v. Reid, 11 T. 585; Alexander v. Baylor, 20 T. 560; Willis v. Morrison, 44 T. 27; City Water Works v. White, 61 T. 536. Under plea denying execution, burden of proof is upon party claiming under the instrument; where alteration is alleged the defendant must prove it. Wells v. Moore, 15 T. 521; Richers v. Helmcamp, 1 App. C. C. § 682.

The validity of a gift of certificates of deposit may be disputed, without a plea of non est factum to the instrument by which such certificates were assigned. Cowen v. First Nat. Bank, 94 T. 547, 63 S. W. 532.

A plea of non est factum in an action on a note denies the execution of the note by himself or by any person authorized to sign or execute the same for him. Connor v. Uvalde Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1092.

63. —— Notice or knowledge of facts.—Notice is sufficiently alleged by allegation that defendant had "full notice." Osborn v. Prather, 83 T. 208, 18 S. W. 613.

An answer in an action to foreclose a mortgage on a homestead held to sufficiently allege that plaintiff purchased it with notice of other security for the debt. Interstate Building & Loan Ass'n v. Tabor, 21 C. A. 112, 51 S. W. 300.

64. —— Payment.—See notes under Art. 1907.

65. —— Release.—In an action for damages in transportation of cattle, a release from all damages prior to loading, by the terms of a written contract, should be pleaded. Scott v. Texas Cent. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 849.

66. —— Res judicata.—Former judgment must be pleaded. Lee v. Kingsbury, 13 T. 71, 62 Am. Dec. 546; Tadlock v. Eccles, 20 T. 782, 73 Am. Dec. 213; Bledsoe v. White, 42 T. 130; Cook v. Burnley, 45 T. 97; Girardin v. Dean, 49 T. 243; Oldham v. McIver, 49 T. 556; Philipowski v. Spencer, 63 T. 604; Frankel v. Heidenheimer, 1 App. C. C. § 807.

A plea of res judicata held sufficient to admit evidence in its support. Hanrick v. Gurley, 93 T. 458, 56 S. W. 330.

In an action on a contract, a plea that a former judgment, recovered in an action on the same contract, was res judicata, held sufficient, without any allegation that the contract was indivisible. Mallory v. Dawson Cotton Oil Co., 32 C. A. 294, 74 S. W. 953.

In an action on a contract, a plea of res judicata held sufficient, though not setting forth the pleadings and judgment in the other case. Id.

In an action on a note, a plea of res judicata held sufficient. Fenn v. Roach & Co. (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 361.

A plea of res judicata is not demurrable for failing to show affirmatively that the former judgment has not been appealed from. Id.

Judgment relied on as bar to an action held not available unless pleaded. Interstate Nat. Bank v. Claxton (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 44.

In an action for the conversion of a horse, sold in sequestration proceedings to foreclose a mortgage thereon, the judgment in such proceedings, not having been pleaded as res judicata, could be considered only, with other evidence, on an issue as to whether the mortgage had been discharged. Smith v. Bean, 36 C. A. 623, 82 S. W. 793.

A plea of former adjudication held to sufficiently show that the former trial on the issue involved was on the merits. Martin v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1009.

Res judicata must be pleaded and proven. Pye v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1086.

Where plaintiff, suing on a contract, pleaded that the contract was distinct from the contract litigated in a prior suit, the plea of res judicata on the ground that the face of the pleadings showed that the matters in controversy had been or should have been litigated in the prior cause will be overruled. Peacock v. Coltrane (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1087.

67. —— Statute of frauds or in avoidance thereof.—The statute of frauds, to be availed of, must be pleaded. League v. Davis, 53 T. 9; Texas Brewing Co. v. Walters (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 548; International Harvester Co. v. Campbell, 43 C. A. 421, 96 S. W. 93; Hendrix v. Brazzell (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 280.

Where, in an action, the defendant recovered judgment on a counterclaim, a defense of the statute of frauds to the counterclaim cannot be urged on appeal; it not having been pleaded. Hart v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 921.

In an action on vendor's lien notes, an answer alleging a subsequent contract for payment in installments held not demurrable for failure to allege that the contract was in writing. Booher v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 956.

In trespass to try title, the defense that the parol gift under which plaintiff claimed was void under the statute of frauds held not properly raised by a motion for a peremptory instruction on the ground that the evidence showed only a verbal gift. Wallis v. Turner (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 61.

Where a widow claimed land under a parol sale from her husband, a plea alleging the character and value of improvements held not subject to general demurrer for failure to allege the reasonable or rental value of the land. Reyes v. Escalera (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 627.

A widow's plea, alleging the making of improvements on land orally conveyed to her by her husband, held not demurrable for failure to allege the making of any improvements during the husband's lifetime. Id.

68. —— Tender and offer of equity.—Plea of, must bring the money into court. Tooke v. Bonds, 29 T. 419.

In an action on a note given for part of the price of land, defendant held not required to offer to reconvey as a part of a plea that the conveyance was fraudulent. Morris v. Brown, 38 C. A. 266, 85 S. W. 1015.

In an action on a note given for goods sold, an answer pleading a tender and a willingness at all times to surrender certain goods, the value of which it had been agreed should be credited on the note, need not state the time of the tender. Clayton v. Western Nat. Wall Paper Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 695.

69. —— Usury.—See notes under Art. 4983.

70. Defense or relief in particular actions.—That a deed is in fact a mortgage is shown by an allegation that the instrument was intended to secure a sum of money advanced to the grantor. Gray v. Shelby, 83 T. 409, 18 S. W. 809.

71. —— Against partnership.—An answer in an action against a firm on a contract signed in its name held to raise the issue whether the firm signed the contract or was bound by it. S. W. Slayden & Co. v. Palmo (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 908.

72. —— Against railroad companies.—Where plaintiff was on a freight train by consent of the brakeman, to whom he had paid fare, in an action for injuries received by being knocked off by the brakeman, a defense that plaintiff was on the train through collusion with the brakeman must be specially pleaded. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Black, 23 C. A. 119, 57 S. W. 330.

Where the petition in an action against a railroad alleges that plaintiff was run over by having his foot caught in defendant's tracks, the defendant may show in defense that he was injured by slipping under the train while it was passing. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Washington, 94 T. 510, 63 S. W. 534.

In an action against a railroad company for alleged negligence in the construction of its right of way, an answer alleging purchase of such right of way and the payment of an amount including remuneration for damages incident to the construction, etc., held not subject to exception. Kendall v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 757.

In an action against railroad companies for negligent delay in shipping cotton, where defendant pleaded an unusual rush of business as a defense, a special demurrer thereto was properly sustained, there being no allegation that the delay was caused by any act of God or the public enemy, or through the fault or negligence of the plaintiffs, or that it was delayed by any contract authorizing defendants to delay the shipments. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Hannay-Frerichs & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 250.

In an action against a carrier for damages for delay in delivering cattle, an exception to an allegation by defendant that the delay was caused by a wreck, it not being alleged that the wreck was not caused by the negligence of defendant, was properly sustained. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Wells, Nash & Nash (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 659.

The carrier has the burden of pleading and proving that the cause of loss of, or injury to, a shipment of cattle was something for which it was not liable. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Drahn (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 282.

73. —— Against surety.—Defendant, sued as principal, must plead that he is merely a surety. Wiley v. Pinson, 23 T. 486; Pyron v. Grinder, 25 T. Sup. 159.

Answer by surety, alleging extension of time of payment without his knowledge or consent, but not alleging that it was for any definite time or upon any consideration, held insufficient. National Bank of Commerce v. Gilvin (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 652.

An answer by a surety, alleging that plaintiff did not sue on the debt at the first term of court after maturity, but not alleging that any statutory notice to sue was given or any fact making it obligatory on the creditor to sue at the first term was insufficient. Id.

A surety, seeking to exonerate himself on the ground of the creditor's neglect or carelessness, should plead the specific facts constituting negligence. Id.

74. —— Against telegraph companies.—In an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering message, held error to sustain a demurrer to the plea, setting up the making of the contract and the breach thereof in another state. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Christensen (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 744.

In an action against a telegraph company for negligent delay in the transmission and delivery of a death message, certain matter held matter of defense to be pleaded and proven by defendant. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Cook, 45 C. A. 87, 99 S. W. 1131.

The alleged defense to an action for a telegraph company's failure to deliver a message that it was unrepeated must be specially pleaded and proved by defendant. Postal Telegraph-Cable Co. v. Sunset Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 265.

A plea in an action against a telegraph company for failing to deliver a message that the addressee lived beyond the free delivery limits, but failing to allege demand for and nonpayment or guaranty of extra charge for delivery, held insufficient. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Harris, 105 T. 320, 148 S. W. 284.

75. —— By broker for commissions.—In an action for a real estate broker's commission, held not necessary for the owner to plead that a contract relied upon by the broker was not consummated by a sale of the land. Wilson v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 1152.

Under allegations in the answer in an action for a broker's commissions, that, if plaintiff was instrumental in effecting the sale, his services were purely voluntary and without promise of compensation, evidence was admissible that plaintiff and defendant were closely related so as to raise the presumption that the services were gratuitous. Carl v. Wolcott (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 334.

76. —— By foreign corporation.—Question whether a corporation was a foreign one, so as to require compliance with statutory conditions before doing business in the state, held not raised in the lower court so as to warrant review on appeal. Continental Oil & Cotton Co. v. E. Van Winkle Gin & Machine Works (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 415.

77. —— By or against executors or administrators.—The authority of plaintiff suing as executor or administrator must be put in issue by a special plea. Dignowitty v. Coleman, 77 T. 98, 13 S. W. 857; Douglas v. Baker, 79 T. 499, 15 S. W. 801.

An answer of an administrator in a suit for an accounting held not defective because it shows that agent of intestate collected more money than he turned over. Hanlon v. Wheeler (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 821.

In action against administrator to compel him to give new bond, he may plead no funds in his hands. Id.

A plea, in an action on notes executed by an independent executor for money borrowed for the purpose of carrying on decedent's business, held not to refer to the authority of an alleged partner as executor of the decedent. Altgelt v. Alamo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 582.

An executor's capacity to sue to recover property belonging to the estate can only be questioned under a plea in abatement. Fischer v. Giddings, 43 C. A. 393, 95 S. W. 33.

78. —— For breach of promise to marry.—In a suit for breach of marriage promise, evidence showing that one other than defendant had visited plaintiff with matrimonial intentions was inadmissible; it not having been pleaded, and it not appearing that she encouraged the purpose of such person. Edge v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 148.

79. —— For injuries to servant.—In an action for injuries received in defendant's employ, held, that no question of fellow servant was raised. B. Lantry Sons v. Lowrie (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 837.

In an action against a railway company for injuries to a switchman, certain evidence held admissible under defendant's pleading. Worcester v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 339.

That the injury to a servant suing for a personal injury was caused by his accidentally stepping on a rock is an affirmative defense, which must be pleaded to be available. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wafer (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 712.

80. —— For libel.—Justification for alleged libel must be specially pleaded. Logan Bros. & Co. v. W. T. Browning & Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1181.

Plea of justification in a libel suit held insufficient. Id.

81. —— For services.—Evidence as to the reasonable value of labor performed under a contract held admissible under the defendant's pleading. Banks v. House (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1022.

The allegation of some specific default held necessary to admit proof under a defense to an action for services that the work was unsatisfactory. Mudgett v. Texas Tobacco Growing & Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 149.

82. —— For trespass or conversion.—The defense that the premises were in the exclusive possession of a lessee must be specially pleaded. Nafe v. Hudson, 19 C. A. 381, 47 S. W. 675.

Defendant in conversion held entitled to prove ownership of the property under mortgage without specially pleading the same. Crane v. McGuire (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 942.

83. —— For wrongful levy.—A plea alleging generally that the writ was wrongfully sued out is sufficient to admit evidence of that fact, in absence of a special exception. Richburg v. McIlwaine, Knight & Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1166.

84. —— Mandamus.—On application of the city for mandamus to compel a railroad company to reduce the grade of its track at street crossings to the street level, an answer showing the impracticability of complying with the ordinance states a good defense. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. City of Dallas, 98 T. 396, 84 S. W. 648.

An application for mandamus to compel a district judge to proceed to try a cause; or, if disqualified, to certify his disqualification, denied on the allegations of the verified answer. Kruegel v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 1095.

A traverse in mandamus is only necessary when the return alleges independent facts on which relator wishes to take issue. Giraud v. Winslow (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1180.

In mandamus to compel a city engineer to disclose a street line to relator, it was no answer that respondent had offered to disclose the line as claimed by the city authorities. Id.

85. —— On bonds and notes.—In an action against the maker and indorser of a note, held, that the maker's plea was sufficient to entitle him to relief against the payee. Polk v. Shoemaker (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 539.

A plea that a large part of the items embezzled by defendant's principal were not within the bond sued on, without specifying the items objected to, held not sufficiently specific. Foster v. Franklin Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 91.

An answer alleging the law of the state where a note was executed held to allege that such notes were subject to defenses existing at the time of the transfer only, and not those existing at the time of the trial. National Bank of Commerce v. Kenney, 98 T. 293, 83 S. W. 368.

In an action on a note given for part of the price of land, a plea of outstanding title showing danger of eviction held sufficient, without an allegation of actual eviction. Morris v. Brown, 38 C. A. 266, 85 S. W. 1015.

An answer in an action on a note held good as against a general demurrer. Landrum v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 769.

An answer in an action on a note held to at least inferentially allege a breach of contract by plaintiff so as to be sufficient as against a general demurrer. Id.

86. —— On contracts in general.—Admissibility of evidence in action to recover on contract, where defendant pleads partial nonperformance, determined. A. J. Anderson Electric Co. v. Cleburne Water, Ice & Lighting Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 929.

In action on contract, answer alleging nonperformance held too vague and indefinite. Id.

87. —— On insurance contracts.—In a suit on a policy, defendants must allege breach of conditions, if they wish to avail themselves of such defense. Phœnix Assur. Co. v. Deavenport, 16 C. A. 283, 41 S. W. 399.

Answer in action on policy that there was an indebtedness exceeding the amount stated in the application held too general. Phœnix Assur. Co. v. Munger Improved Cotton-Mach. Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 271.

A beneficial association held not entitled to prove a by-law, not pleaded, passed after issuance of the certificate sued on. Supreme Council, American Legion of Honor v. Storey (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 901.

Under a benefit certificate, suicide held a defense. Brown v. United Moderns, 39 C. A. 343, 87 S. W. 357.

That insured procured other insurance without insurer's consent, in violation of the policy, held a matter of defense, and, to be available, must be pleaded. Ginners' Mut. Underwriters of San Angelo, Tex., v. Wiley & House (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 629.

The provision in a fire policy that property insured shall be considered personalty is defensive, and, to be available, must be pleaded. Id.

88. —— Partition.—Answer in partition between heirs construed to allege that one of the heirs was not entitled to take under the will. Ackermann v. Ackermann, 22 C. A. 612, 55 S. W. 801.

A defendant in partition, who did not in his answer question the right to partition, but suggested that the same could only be done by a sale, may not on appeal object to a partition on the ground that the trial court had no right to make it. Williamson v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 998.

89. —— Specific performance.—An answer in action for specific performance of contract between factions of church and for injunction held to state a defense. Bottom v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 833.

90. —— To foreclose mechanic's lien.—Where defendants in an action to foreclose a mechanic's lien did not plead an alleged prior lien, evidence to prove the same was properly excluded. Guarantee, Savings, Loan & Investment Co. v. Cash (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 749.

91. —— To foreclose vendor's lien.—In action to foreclose vendor's lien, defendant, to avail himself of defect in plaintiff's title, must allege and prove his ignorance of the defect, and be able to reconvey. Moore v. Vogel, 22 C. A. 235, 54 S. W. 1061.

Allegations in a defendant's answer in an action to recover land, or, in the alternative, to foreclose a vendor's lien thereon, reviewed, and held not to show equity entitling defendant to relief thereunder. Efron v. Burgower (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 306.

92. —— To recover leased land.—In an action to recover leased land, an allegation of the answer held not to authorize judgment for plaintiff, because lessee had denied the landlord's title. Wildey Lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F., v. City of Paris (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 99.

93. —— To redeem.—A plea in a suit to redeem stock deposited as collateral, alleging a sale of certain stock by the pledgor and that the stock was held by the pledgee "subject to the agreement," is defective, where the conditions on which the stock was held were not alleged, nor any averment made as to a breach or fulfillment of the conditions, nor any allegation embodied as to the ownership of such stock. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Conner, 29 C. A. 259, 67 S. W. 773.

In a suit to redeem collateral security, a plea setting up an alleged sale of the collateral by the pledgor held insufficient and demurrable. Id.

94. —— Trespass to try title.—See notes under Arts. 7739-7741.

CHAPTER NINE

CHANGE OF VENUE

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 1911. [1270] [1270] By consent of parties.—The court may, upon the written consent of the parties thereto, or their attorneys, filed with the papers of the cause by an order entered on the minutes, transfer the same for trial to the court of any other county having jurisdiction of the subject matter of such suit. [Act June 21, 1876, p. 25, sec. 1.]

Agreement.—Where there is a positive agreement to change venue, it is not defeated by a provision in the agreement that all the papers shall be transmitted, because the agreement to change is not made conditional upon the transmission of the papers. Jones v. Bourbounais, 25 C. A. 94, 60 S. W. 987.

Art. 1912. [1271] [1271] Granted on application, when.—A change of venue may be granted in any civil cause upon application of either party, supported by his own affidavit and the affidavit of at least three credible persons, residents of the county in which the suit is pending, for any of the following causes:

1. That there exists in the county where the suit is pending so great a prejudice against him that he cannot obtain a fair and impartial trial.

2. That there is a combination against him instigated by influential persons, by reason of which he cannot expect a fair and impartial trial.

3. For other good and sufficient cause, to be determined by the court. [Act April 7, 1874, p. 67, sec. 1. P. D. 5885a.]

See Freeman v. Cleary (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 521.

Grounds.—It was not ground for change of venue that plaintiff was sheriff, and had summoned the jurors. Houston Printing Co. v. Moulden, 15 C. A. 574, 41 S. W. 381.

A prejudice against the case of a party to a suit is as effectual in preventing his getting a fair and impartial trial as a prejudice against him personally, and a change of venue should be granted on account of such prejudice. Trimble v. Burroughs, 41 C. A. 554, 95 S. W. 615.

The venue having been proper when the action was commenced, held there was no right to change because of amendment of petition, and elimination of part of the defendants. Thomas v. Ellison, 102 T. 354, 116 S. W. 1141.

Prejudice of a general nature, existing to a greater or less extent among the great body of the people, held not a ground for a change of venue. Freeman v. Cleary (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 521.

The trial court held justified in refusing to hear application for change of venue on ground of local prejudice, where a similar application by the same party in another case had been denied, after a full hearing, a few days previous. Freeman v. Ortiz (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 304.

Application.—An application for change of venue must be made within a convenient and reasonable time. Cook v. Garza, 9 T. 358.

All of several joint parties must unite in the application. Mills v. Paul (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 558.

Affidavit may be made by an agent of a party to the suit. Railway Co. v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1113; Railway Co. v. Pierce, 10 C. A. 429, 30 S. W. 1122.

Art. 1913. [1272] [1272] Shall be granted, unless, etc.—Where application for a change of venue is made in conformity to the requirements of the preceding article, the same shall be granted, unless the credibility of the persons making the application for a change of venue, or their means of knowledge, or the truth of the facts set out in the said application, are attacked by the affidavit of a credible person; and, if such application is thus attacked, the issue thus formed shall be tried by the judge, and the application granted or refused, as the law and the facts shall warrant. [Id. sec. 4. P. D. 5885d; amend., 1893, p. 2.]

Issue and determination.—When application for change of venue is made properly and is attacked, an issue is formed to be tried by the judge and the application is to be granted or refused as the facts warrant. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 695.

The court may determine whether the petition states a cause of action before acting on plaintiff's motion for a change of venue. Carpenter v. Kone, 54 C. A. 264, 118 S. W. 203.

Where an application for a change of venue on the grounds and in the manner specified in Art. 1912, is attacked by the adverse party on grounds stated and in the manner specified by this article an issue is formed which the trial court must try. Freeman v. Ortiz (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 113.

Burden of proof.—On application for change of venue, the burden is on the applicant to prove the facts alleged in the application. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Bernard (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 686.

On an application for a change of venue on the ground of prejudice, the burden of proof is on the applicant. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 702.

The burden of proof to establish at least one of the grounds on which a change of venue was sought held on the defendant. Jones v. Wright (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1010.

On an application for a change of venue, the burden is on the applicant to prove the facts entitling him to the change. Trimble v. Burroughs, 41 C. A. 554, 95 S. W. 614.

Counter affidavits and other evidence.—Counter affidavits or rebutting testimony as to the grounds of the application inadmissible. Salinas v. Stillman, 25 T. 12. No inquiry can be made into the means of knowledge of those who make the supporting affidavits. Farley v. Deslonde, 58 T. 588.

Affidavits for and against an application for a change of venue cannot be considered as evidence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 693.

The court, on a contested application for a change of venue, held authorized to consider the evidence received on a prior application on the same grounds. Freeman v. Ortiz (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 113.

Discretion of court.—When the venue has been improperly changed, the judgment will be reversed and the cause remanded for a new trial to the proper county. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Ryan, 44 T. 426.

A change of venue without sufficient ground therefor is reversible error. Dodson v. Bunton, 81 T. 655, 17 S. W. 507.

When the statutory requirements are complied with, a change of venue must be granted. Ellis v. Stearns (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 222.

A trial court held not to have abused its discretion in changing the venue of an action. T. A. Robertson & Co. v. Russell, 51 C. A. 257, 111 S. W. 205.

Change of venue is largely in the trial court's discretion, and its action will not be reviewed unless it results in injustice or is contrary to law. Wolf v. Sahm, 55 C. A. 564, 120 S. W. 1114.

Under Art. 1912, authorizing a change of venue on the grounds of prejudice against the applicant and of combinations against him by influential persons, the court must grant the application when not contested; but, when contested in the manner prescribed by this article, the court is vested with discretion in determining from the evidence the existence or nonexistence of such grounds. Freeman v. Ortiz (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 113.

An application for a change of venue held addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court. Freeman v. Cleary (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 521.

Transfer as to all parties.—Where plaintiff joined as defendant a party who was clearly entitled to a change of venue to another county, and did not dismiss as to such party, the court, having no power under the statute to dismiss as against that party, properly transferred the suit as to all parties. Garrison v. Stokes (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 898.

Setting aside order.—The district court of one county cannot resume jurisdiction of a cause, by setting aside an order granting a change of venue, after such order has been executed and the jurisdiction of the district court of another county has attached. Stone v. Byars, 32 C. A. 154, 73 S. W. 1086.

Remand.—A court to which venue has been changed cannot remand the case where the record shows order for change made by the court. Williams v. Planters' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 617.

Review.—Order changing venue will not be disturbed in the absence of the evidence on which it was based. Williams v. Planters' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 617.

Art. 1914. [1273] [1273] To what county.—Upon the grant of a change of venue, as provided in the two preceding articles, the cause shall be removed to some adjoining county, the court house of which is nearest to the court house of the county in which the suit is pending, unless it be made to appear in the application that such nearest county is subject to some objection sufficient to authorize a change of venue therefrom in the first instance; but the parties may, by consent, agree that it shall be changed to some other county, and the order of court shall conform to such agreement. [Id. sec. 2. P. D. 5885b.]

Court to which changed.—The nearest courthouse is the one most convenient of access, and nearest by the usual traveled route. Shaw v. Cade, 54 T. 307.

This article does not necessarily mean an adjoining county in which the courthouse is most accessible by railroad. Loonie v. Tillman, 22 S. W. 524, 3 C. A. 332.

The disqualification of the nearest county (if any) must be shown in the application, and the court must order the change to the nearest adjoining county, unless the disqualification is shown in the application and the disqualification of the nearest county must be such as to authorize a change therefrom in the first instance, and the disqualification of both the county in which suit is pending and the nearest county may be controverted, or the latter only if it be conceded that the disqualification exists as to the former. Robertson & Co. v. Russell, 51 C. A. 257, 111 S. W. 208, 209.

Conclusiveness of order.—The decision of the judge who makes the order is conclusive upon the court to which the venue is changed. Shaw v. Cade, 54 T. 307. But see Rogers v. Watrous, 8 T. 63, 58 Am. Dec. 100; Taylor v. Williams, 26 T. 583; H. & T. C. R. Co. v. Ryan, 44 T. 426; Murray v. Broughton, 46 T. 351.

Art. 1915. [1274] [1274] In case of new counties.—Where a suit may be pending in the district or county court of any county, out of the territory of which a new county has been, or may be hereafter, made, in whole or in part, if the defendants, or any one of them, shall file a motion in the court where such suit is pending, to transfer the same to such new county, naming it, together with an affidavit stating that neither he nor any one of the defendants now resides in the territorial limits of the county where such suit is pending, and that neither he nor any one of the defendants resided in said territorial limit at the time of the institution of such suit, and shall further swear that at the date of the filing of such suit, said defendant was a resident citizen within the territorial limits of the new county, the court shall grant a change of venue to such new county, unless the suit could be properly brought in the county in which the same is pending under some provision of article 1830. [Act July 29, 1876, p. 74, sec. 1.]

Pending cases.—This article does not apply to cases pending and properly brought in a county to which another county was attached for judicial purposes, where such latter county was enlarged in its boundaries, but without alteration in the limits of the county where the suit was pending. Such alteration of the boundaries of the attached county affords no ground for change of venue to the county so enlarged, and from the county not affected in its boundaries. Dodson v. Bunton, 81 T. 655, 17 S. W. 507.

Art. 1916. [1275] [1275] Duty of clerk on change of venue.—When an order for a change of venue has been granted by the court, the clerk shall immediately make out a correct transcript of all the orders made in said cause, certifying thereto officially under the seal of the court, and transmit the same, with the original papers in the cause, to the clerk of the court to which the venue has been changed.

DECISIONS APPLICABLE TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Causes in which granted.—The same reasons for a change of venue apply with the same force to a cause appealed from the probate court to the district court as to any other on the docket of the court. Stone v. Byars, 32 C. A. 154, 73 S. W. 1088.

Abolition of court.—A case may be transferred from the county court of one county to the district court of another county, where the county court has been abolished. Wood v. Lenox, 23 S. W. 812, 5 C. A. 318.

Objections and waiver.—Irregularity in the mode of changing the venue of a case is waived where the party complaining afterwards appeared before the court to which the case was transferred and applied for a continuance and a new trial without objecting to the jurisdiction of the court. Tammen v. Schaeffer, 45 C. A. 522, 101 S. W. 469.

Removal of cause.—A case not depending on the citizenship of the parties, not otherwise specially provided for, cannot be removed from a state court into the circuit court of the United States as one arising under the constitution, laws or treaties of the United States, unless that appears by plaintiff's statement of his own claim; and if it does not so appear the want cannot be supplied by any statement in the petition for removal or in the subsequent pleadings. Railway Co. v. Hightower (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 541.

CHAPTER TEN

CONTINUANCE

Article 1917. [1276] [1276] Continuance not to be granted, except, etc.—No application for a continuance shall be heard before the defendant files his defense, nor shall any continuance be granted except for sufficient cause, supported by affidavit, or by consent of the parties, or by operation of law. [Act March 16, 1848, p. 106, sec. 15. P. D. 1509.]

See Bergman Produce Co. v. Browne (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 153.

In general.—A continuance to allow trial by jury held improperly refused. Burrows v. Rust (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1019.

A continuance should be granted where the application shows on its face a legal defense, and defendant exercised due diligence after service of citation in presenting the same. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Calvert (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 912.

The overruling of a motion to postpone a trial in order to obtain jurors from the regular venire held not error. Rice v. Dewberry (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 715.

A party's first motion for continuance, which is in full compliance with the statute, held not to entitle the moving party to a continuance as of right. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 95.

Amendment of pleadings.—When an affidavit controverting a sworn account is filed on the day of trial, the party claiming under such account has the right to continue the case until the next term of court. Act April 14, 1883; Acts 18th Leg. p. 110. See Art. 3712.

An amendment of the pleadings by the adverse party which renders necessary evidence not before required, and which can be procured, is ground for a continuance. Rule 16, 47 T. 619; Cummings v. Rice, 9 T. 527; Fisk v. Miller, 13 T. 224; Cowan v. Williams, 49 T. 380; Railroad Co. v. Henning, 52 T. 466; Blum v. Mays, 1 App. C. C. § 476.

An amendment of pleadings not a ground for a continuance in the absence of surprise, etc. Beham v. Ghio, 75 T. 89, 12 S. W. 996; Guy v. Metcalf, 83 T. 40, 18 S. W. 419; Railway Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 858.

Refusal of continuance because of an amendment of petition, by stating matters fully covered by previous deposition of plaintiff, held not error. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 16 C. A. 93, 40 S. W. 608.

Allowing an unnecessary trial amendment is not ground for continuance. Lindsley v. Parks, 17 C. A. 527, 43 S. W. 277.

It was not error to refuse defendant's motion for continuance because of additional nominal parties, where the necessity for such parties was not apparent until he filed his amended answer shortly before the trial. Hall v. Clountz (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 941.

The amendment of a petition at the close of the evidence held not ground for a continuance on account of the absence of witnesses. J. S. Mayfield Lumber Co. v. Carver, 27 C. A. 467, 66 S. W. 216.

In an action against a railway for injuries, an amendment to the complaint as to the nature of the injuries held not to warrant a continuance. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Partin, 33 C. A. 173, 76 S. W. 236.

In action for negligence in failing to deliver a message advising plaintiffs of an option, refusal of continuance, on filing amendment adding to petition the name of the person tendering the option, held not erroneous. Western Union Tel. Co. v. L. Hirsch (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 394.

An application for a continuance to procure witnesses to disprove an allegation made in the petition for the first time on the day of trial is properly overruled on plaintiff withdrawing the allegation. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Avis, 41 C. A. 72, 91 S. W. 877.

In an action against a carrier for injuries to plaintiff's wife from the alleged negligence of defendant in failing to keep a waiting room sufficiently warm, defendant held entitled to a continuance after an amendment of complaint by alleging death of wife after commencement of action. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Groner, 100 T. 414, 100 S. W. 137.

A defendant, in an action for negligent death, is not entitled as a matter of course to a continuance on the filing of an amended petition making other persons plaintiff. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Howell (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 560.

On amendment to a petition defendant's application for a continuance, held erroneously denied. Horwitz v. La Roche (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 1148.

Defendant is not entitled to a continuance as a matter of law because of a change in plaintiff's pleading by the addition of necessary parties, unless defendant shows a necessity therefor. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Howell, 101 T. 603, 111 S. W. 142.

In an action against a telegraph company for delay in delivering a telegram, the filing on the day of the trial of the addressee's amended original petition, making certain new allegations, held not ground for continuance. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Gilliland (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 212.

In an action on a note and to foreclose a vendor's lien, the supplemental petition held not to allege a cause of action different from that alleged in the original petition, so that it was not error to refuse a continuance. Cochrane v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 531.

Where the facts alleged in a trial amendment were admissible under the original pleading, a refusal of a continuance was not error. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Trout (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1137.

On amended petition and amended answer in an action to recover advances secured by cotton tickets, presenting the issue of damage to defendants from loss of the tickets, held, that defendants' motion for a continuance for testimony of absent witnesses as to their loss should have been granted. Carver Bros. v. Merrett (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 633.

Process.—An application for a continuance to perfect service of citation held properly denied for want of diligence. Patterson v. Walker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 612.

Absence of party.—Continuance in order to bring in a proper, but not necessary, party, defendant having been guilty of delay in issuing citations, held properly denied. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Yale, 27 C. A. 10, 65 S. W. 57.

Where, in an action for breach of contract, defendant applies for a continuance to show that the contractor was another than defendant, but shows no diligence, the application is properly refused. J. S. Mayfield Lumber Co. v. Carver, 27 C. A. 467, 66 S. W. 216.

An application for a continuance on the ground of the absence of the president and manager of the defendant corporation held properly denied on the showing made. City Loan & Trust Co. v. Sterner, 57 C. A. 517, 124 S. W. 207.

By requesting a short time to investigate to see if a threatened action of trespass to try title could not be settled, the defendant, when suit is filed, does not lose the right to a continuance on account of the insufficient time after the filing of the suit in which to join his warrantors as defendants. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Davis (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 808.

Where defendant in an action of trespass to try title had only 14 days after the suit was filed in which to file the proper pleading, and get service upon his warrantors living in different and distant counties to make them defendants, the time allowed was not sufficient, and he was entitled to a continuance. Id.

A motion to continue a case to make a joint tort-feasor a party held, under the facts, not well taken. Temple Electric Light Co. v. Halliburton (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 584.

It was not error to refuse a continuance sought in order to bring in two persons who clearly had no interest in the land in controversy and under whom defendant did not claim. Mortimer v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 341.

Absence of counsel.—The absence of the leading counsel, which might have been anticipated, not ground for a continuance. Rule 49, 47 T. 626; Davis v. Zumwalt, 1 App. C. C. § 596; Hagerty v. Scott, 10 T. 525.

A continuance for absence of leading counsel held properly denied. Watkins v. Atwell (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 404.

That one of defendant's attorneys did not feel well enough to try the case was no ground for continuance; his partner being present and conducting the case. Dignowity v. Sullivan, 49 C. A. 582, 109 S. W. 428.

A motion to continue a case on the ground of sickness of leading counsel held properly overruled. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. King (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 966.

Where continuing a case would have interfered with the business of the court and no reason was shown why one member of the firm of attorneys of a party could not attend, denial of a continuance on the ground of the absence of one of the attorneys, who was trying a case in another court, was not an abuse of the court's discretion. Thompson & Scott v. Hart (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 184.

Absence of witness or evidence.—If, pending trial, an unexpected event occurs which will prevent a fair trial, a party may apply for a continuance; as, the unauthorized absence of a witness. Cotton v. State, 4 T. 260. Or the inability of the witness to testify in consequence of intoxication. Land v. Miller, 7 T. 463; Kilgore v. Jordan, 17 T. 341. But not when he has been negligent. Linard v. Crossland, 10 T. 462, 60 Am. Dec. 213.

On a plea in reconvention in a suit by injunction to restrain the enforcement of a void judgment filed as the case is called for trial, the plaintiff is entitled to a continuance in order to procure material testimony. Railway Co. v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 260.

The absence from the state of a material witness in the employment and under the control of the party to a suit is not ground for a continuance on his application. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Gage, 63 T. 568.

That the fees were not tendered to the witness is not ground for refusing a continuance on account of his sickness. Dillingham v. Ellis, 25 S. W. 618, 86 T. 447.

Continuance will not be granted to obtain evidence of a witness who has testified at the instance of the opposite party. Railway Co. v. Briggs (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 933.

When a party fails to testify to facts within his knowledge, the refusal of a continuance on account of the absence of a witness who would testify to the same facts is not reversible error. Flanders v. Hord (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 1046.

Continuance for absence of witnesses held properly denied. Willis v. Sanger, 15 C. A. 655, 40 S. W. 229; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Henning, 90 T. 656, 40 S. W. 392; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Mitchell, 18 C. A. 380, 45 S. W. 819; Same v. Burroughs, 27 C. A. 422, 66 S. W. 83; Low, Hudson & Gray Water Co. v. Hickson, 32 C. A. 588, 74 S. W. 781; Earl v. State, 33 C. A. 161, 76 S. W. 207; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 228; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Robinson, 79 S. W. 827; Hicks v. Porter, 38 C. A. 334, 85 S. W. 437; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hays, 40 C. A. 162, 89 S. W. 29; Murph v. McCullough, 40 C. A. 403, 90 S. W. 69; Stith v. Moore, 42 C. A. 528, 95 S. W. 587; Berry v. Joiner, 45 C. A. 461, 101 S. W. 289; Witliff v. Spreen, 51 C. A. 544, 112 S. W. 98; Hyman v. Grant, 50 C. A. 37, 114 S. W. 853; Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. King (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 966.

Where, after refusal of defendant's application to continue for absence of a witness, counsel agreed, with the court's consent that the trial should proceed, and that, if the witness had not arrived when the testimony was all in, the trial might be postponed until her arrival, would not prevent the trial court from forcing defendant to close his case without the testimony. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Blair, 51 C. A. 427, 113 S. W. 164.

A party held entitled to continuance for absence of witness as to value of articles bought by him, though the other party has a copy of invoice. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quilhot (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 200.

Where, in an action on certain promissory notes, defendants' ex parte interrogatories signified that a certain defense would be made at the trial, and the plaintiff made no effort to meet such contention, he should not be allowed a continuance, because of the absence of witnesses to meet the issue. Downing v. Neeley & Stephens (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1192.

Where the amended petition in an action to recover advances secured by cotton tickets and the amended answer setting up a claim for damages for loss of such tickets involved the issue of their disappearance, charged to defendants' agent, defendants' motion for a continuance on the ground of absent witnesses who would testify as to their loss should have been granted. Carver Bros. v. Merrett (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 633.

—— Competency or materiality.—If the answer is immaterial and presents no defense, or consists of only a general denial, which simply puts plaintiff upon proof of his case, an application by the defendant will not be granted. Claiborne v. Yoeman, 15 T. 44; Trammell v. Pilgrim, 20 T. 158; Hardison v. Hooker, 25 T. 91. But if rebutting evidence is admissible under the plea of general denial the application may be granted. Texas Trans. Co. v. Hyatt, 54 T. 213.

When an application for continuance is made to disprove certain allegations in the petition, on the withdrawal of such allegations it should be overruled. Railway Co. v. Robinson, 73 T. 277, 11 S. W. 327.

An application for continuance in due form was properly overruled, the record showing that the absent witness was incompetent to testify. Tillman v. Fletcher, 78 T. 673, 15 S. W. 161.

In an action on a note, when the answer is a general denial only, the defendant is not entitled to a continuance. White v. Waco Bldg. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 58.

A continuance will not be granted to a defendant in an action for damages resulting from personal injuries until time may develop their effect. Railway Co. v. Huff (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 551.

An application for a continuance for the absence of a witness who will prove an immaterial fact is properly denied. Watkins v. Atwell (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 404; Horwitz v. La Roche, 107 S. W. 1148; Aldridge Lumber Co. v. Graves, 131 S. W. 846.

It is harmless error to refuse a continuance on account of the absence of witness upon the admission that he would testify to the evidence set forth in the application, where his evidence, if true, could not change the result. Maughmer v. Bering, 19 C. A. 299, 46 S. W. 917.

A refusal is not error where the evidence which the witness is expected to show is established without contradiction by other evidence. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Robinett (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 263.

That a witness was produced at a former trial, and failed to qualify himself to testify as to value of matter in suit, held not sufficient ground for overruling the statutory application for continuance. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Terry, 22 C. A. 176, 54 S. W. 431.

Where testimony expected of an absent witness was hearsay an application for a continuance was properly refused. Belknap v. Groover (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 249.

Where the testimony of an absent witness was, in view of the evidence produced on the trial, not probably true, an application for a continuance was properly refused. Id.

Denial of continuance to obtain two absent witnesses held not error, where the deposition of one of the witnesses was not taken and the evidence of the other was not material. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Long, 97 T. 69, 75 S. W. 483.

A continuance on the ground of absence of witnesses held properly denied, where it was not shown that the evidence could not be produced from some other source. Ley v. Hahn, 36 C. A. 208, 81 S. W. 354.

A judgment will not be disturbed for refusal of a continuance because of the absence of a witness, where the facts to which that witness would testify were shown by other witnesses. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Ollis, 37 C. A. 231, 83 S. W. 850.

In an action on liquor dealer's bond an application for a continuance because of the absence of witnesses held properly overruled, the desired evidence being immaterial. Brewster v. State, 40 C. A. 1, 88 S. W. 858.

It was not error to deny an application for a continuance on the ground of the absence of a witness whose testimony would not have changed the result. Smith v. Wofford (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 143.

In an action against a carrier for injuries to plaintiff's wife from alleged negligence of defendant in failing to keep a waiting room sufficiently warm, production of some evidence by defendant of same character as that for which continuance was sought held not to obviate objection to court's refusal to grant application therefor. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Groner, 100 T. 414, 100 S. W. 137.

The statement of testimony of witnesses as contained in the application for a continuance held properly excluded where the witnesses were in court at the trial. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Garber (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 742.

In trespass to try title, defendants held not entitled to a continuance to obtain the testimony of an absent witness claimed to hold an outstanding title with which defendants claimed no connection. Lacey v. Smith (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 965.

A continuance to obtain testimony of absent witnesses is properly denied, where it does not appear with reasonable certainty that they would testify to any fact material to any issue. Hyman v. Grant, 102 T. 50, 112 S. W. 1042.

A continuance held properly refused, because the proposed testimony would have shown no defense. Id.

A continuance to obtain testimony of an absent witness to explain a lease will not be granted, where the lease is not in evidence, since the testimony would not be admissible. Id.

There was no error in overruling a third application for a continuance on account of an absent witness, where it appeared that the diligence was not sufficient, and that his testimony was probably untrue, and, if true, was not of sufficient importance to require a reversal. Lamb v. State, 55 Cr. R. 323, 116 S. W. 588.

An application for continuance in quo warranto to oust defendant from his office as mayor, on the ground of absent witnesses who would testify as to election irregularities, held properly denied because such witnesses would throw no light on the material issue, which was whether defendant had gotten the most legal votes. Pease v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 657.

A continuance for the testimony of an absent witness to show that the debt sued on was not due was properly refused, where plaintiff's own testimony on that question was uncertain. Whitten v. Whitten (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 277.

—— Cumulative evidence.—That the testimony of a witness is in part cumulative is not ground for refusing a continuance. Dillingham v. Ellis, 25 S. W. 618, 86 T. 447.

It was error to refuse a first application for a continuance for the purpose of obtaining material evidence on the grounds that such evidence was cumulative only. Wise County Nat. Bank v. Knox (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 276.

Refusal of a continuance to procure witnesses whose testimony was merely cumulative held not erroneous. Freeman v. Griewe (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 730.

—— Contradictory evidence.—That plaintiff's witness had not testified on a prior trial to facts subsequently testified to by him did not entitle defendant to a continuance to obtain absent contradicting evidence. Ætna Ins. Co. of Hartford v. Brannon, 53 C. A. 242, 116 S. W. 116.

Defendant held not entitled to a continuance to obtain the presence of a witness who testified by deposition in order that he might make his contradictory testimony more specific. Id.

—— Diligence.—A continuance was refused where the witness had been summoned a year previously, it not appearing that he had obeyed the subpœna at a former term. City Nat. Bank v. Stout, 61 T. 567.

The fact that a party is poor is no reason why he should not be held to the same rule of diligence as other persons. Harn v. Phelps, 65 T. 592.

In order to determine the question of diligence where the subpœna has not been executed, the date of the service of the citation should be shown. G., C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Flake, 1 App. C. C. § 253.

In a suit commenced January 9th the plaintiff filed interrogatories to a witness on the 25th of August following. No sufficient excuse for the delay having been shown, the first application for a continuance was properly overruled. Poole v. Jackson, 66 T. 380, 1 S. W. 75. See Watson v. Blymer Mfg. Co., 66 T. 558, 2 S. W. 353.

When the witness resides out of the county, diligence is not shown by the issuance of a commission less than one month before the trial. Railway Co. v. Shuford, 72 T. 165, 10 S. W. 408; Berry v. Railway Co., 72 T. 620, 10 S. W. 726; Little v. State, 75 T. 616, 12 S. W. 765.

Due negligence requires a tender of witness fees. Railway Co. v. Hall, 83 T. 675, 19 S. W. 121.

It is not error to refuse continuance for absence of witnesses where due diligence is not shown. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Freedman, 18 C. A. 553, 46 S. W. 101.

Evidence held to show a want of diligence, precluding one from obtaining a continuance for the absence of a witness. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Robinett (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 263.

A motion by plaintiff for a continuance is properly denied, where it appears that he was notified, two months before the trial, that defendant would press a trial, and no diligence in preparing for trial of the issue to which the motion was directed is shown. St. Louis Brewing Ass'n v. Walker, 23 C. A. 6, 54 S. W. 360.

Where only diligence shown in attempting to secure testimony of a witness residing in other county than that of a trial was service on him of subpœna a motion for a continuance on ground of such witness' absence was properly denied. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Bancroft (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 606.

Where no sufficient reason is given in an application for continuance for not sooner discovering the testimony sought to be obtained the application is properly refused. Thompson v. Autry (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 47.

Under the facts in an action of trespass to try title, held, that it was no abuse of discretion to refuse to postpone the trial until a certain witness could be secured. Neyland v. Texas Yellow Pine Lumber Co., 26 C. A. 417, 64 S. W. 696.

Insurer held not to have shown diligence in securing evidence, so as to be entitled to continuance of suit on policy. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Heath, 29 C. A. 445, 69 S. W. 235.

Application for continuance held properly denied for lack of diligence. Collins v. Weiss, 32 C. A. 282, 74 S. W. 46; San Antonio Machine & Supply Co. v. Josey (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 598; Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Calvert, 41 C. A. 236, 91 S. W. 825; Hamilton v. Dismukes, 53 C. A. 129, 115 S. W. 1181; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Lawson, 55 C. A. 388, 119 S. W. 921; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quilhot (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 200.

Facts held insufficient to establish diligence, entitling defendant to a continuance in order to obtain the testimony of an absent witness. Ley v. Hahn, 36 C. A. 208, 81 S. W. 354.

Delay in taking steps to get deposition of witness in another state held fatal to right to continuance until the deposition could be procured. Hicks v. Porter, 38 C. A. 334, 85 S. W. 437.

Insufficient diligence to procure the attendance of an absent witness shown to entitle defendant to a continuance. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 554.

Absence of a female witness held not cause for continuance, considering the lack of diligence to procure her evidence. Dignowity v. Sullivan, 49 C. A. 582, 109 S. W. 428.

A motion for continuance on the ground of the absence of mercantile books is properly denied for want of diligence, where no showing is made that a subpœna duces tecum had been applied for. Galveston Shoe & Hat Co. v. Rowe, 49 C. A. 336, 109 S. W. 1101.

That defendant failed to take the deposition of a witness residing out of the county, relying on his attendance, is not ground for continuance. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Hampton (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 637.

Before the filing of an action of trespass to try title, there was correspondence between the claimants, and the defendant had requested a short time in which to see if the matter could not be settled, agreeing to appear without citation and answer to the return term. For this purpose, there was a delay of about two months in bringing the suit, defendant acting in good faith, and appearing and answering as agreed. Held, that the defendant by the request for delay and its allowance did not lose its right to a continuance, where there was insufficient time before the next term after suit was filed in which to bring in warrantors as defendants. Houston Oil Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 808.

Motion for continuance for absence of a witness held properly denied for lack of diligence. Mutual Life Ins. Ass'n of Texas, No. 1, v. Garvin (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 797.

Where the importance of an issue on which plaintiff's testimony was desired must have been known to defendant's counsel before announcing ready for trial, postponement to procure the witness was properly refused. Villareal v. Passmore (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1086.

A party is not entitled to continuance, as a matter of right, because of the absence of a material witness, unless he has availed himself of the means provided by law for securing his attendance. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Wells (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 645.

The trial court does not abuse its discretion in refusing a continuance on the ground that a material witness is disabled and unable to be present, where the moving party does not show how long the witness has been disabled, since, if this fact were shown, it might appear that diligence would have required the taking of a deposition. Id.

Where proper diligence is not shown, a party is not entitled to a continuance on the ground of absent witnesses. Rudolph v. Price (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1037.

There was no abuse of discretion in denying an application for a continuance because of failure to receive depositions, where counsel made no inquiry as to the return of the depositions from November 16, 1910, when they were returned to the clerk and filed, until the case was called for trial on April 8, 1911. Continental Lumber & Tie Co. v. Wilroy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 840.

If defendant's counsel were advised by the notary who took depositions that they had been forwarded to the clerk of court, there was no lack of diligence in failing to inquire before trial whether they were on file, so as to preclude them from moving for a continuance for their loss. Id.

A continuance for absence of a witness is properly denied where no diligence is shown to procure the testimony of the witness for the trial. Campbell v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1180.

Refusal of continuance held not error where the absent witness was present in the town of trial, and defendant failed to avail himself of the court's offer to procure the witness if he would tender the witness' fees. Hill County Cotton Oil Co. v. Gathings (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 664.

Surprise.—When the plaintiff is required to produce an instrument of writing on the trial by a notice given too late to enable him to do so, he may apply for a continuance on account of surprise. Hamilton v. Rice, 15 T. 382.

When notice of objections to depositions was given to defendant's attorneys two months before trial, and the depositions were suppressed, it was held that an application for a continuance on the ground of surprise was properly overruled. Allen v. Hoxey, 37 T. 320.

Where depositions had been on file for over two years, and no objection to them was filed, and on the trial they were excluded on objection made when offered in evidence, the court improperly overruled an application for a continuance on the ground of surprise, the materiality of the evidence being shown. Freeman v. Brundage, 57 T. 253. It is not a ground for a continuance on account of surprise that material testimony has been excluded, when its exclusion was required by the well-settled law of evidence. Read v. Allen, 63 T. 154.

A continuance on the ground of surprise in permitting an adverse party to file a supplemental account held properly denied. Shiner v. Shiner, 14 C. A. 489, 40 S. W. 439; Mattfield v. Cotton, 9 C. A. 595, 47 S. W. 549; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Cluck (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 852; Kretzschmar v. Peschel (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1021.

Refusal to allow defendants to withdraw their announcement of ready for trial, and continue the case on the ground of surprise by exclusion of evidence, held proper. Simpson v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1076.

Where, on eve of trial, defendants were allowed to amend plea by inserting dates in blank spaces and inserting numbers of certificates under which plaintiff claimed land in dispute, plaintiff's motion for continuance on the ground of surprise was properly denied. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Bancroft (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 606.

Defendant in trespass to try title held not entitled to a continuance, because of surprise at testimony, though erroneously believing that, in view of plaintiff's pleadings, certain evidence would be enough. Bemis v. Williams, 32 C. A. 393, 74 S. W. 332.

On trial of an action for personal injuries, defendant held not entitled to a continuance on ground of surprise, in that plaintiff, while testifying, was seized with convulsions, causing an adjournment. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Pina, 33 C. A. 680, 77 S. W. 979.

A denial of a continuance on the ground of surprise held not an abuse of discretion. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Groner, 43 C. A. 264, 95 S. W. 1118.

Defendant held not entitled to a continuance on the ground of ignorance of the existence of a deposition filed by plaintiff. El Paso & Southwestern R. Co. v. Barrett, 46 C. A. 14, 101 S. W. 1025.

A party who learns that a witness will not testify as was supposed must, to obtain a continuance, promptly apply therefor. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Crump, 102 T. 250, 115 S. W. 26.

Defendant held not entitled to a continuance for surprise because of defensive matter pleaded by plaintiff in reply to an allegation of contributory negligence in an amended answer. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lemair, 55 C. A. 237, 119 S. W. 1162.

An application for a continuance, based on the filing of an amended petition a few minutes prior to trial, merely stating a defendant was surprised, held not to state any ground for a continuance. Cleghon v. Boxley (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 438.

The filing of a supplemental petition which was substantially the same as the original petition held not to have surprised defendant so as to require a continuance on the ground of surprise. Berry v. Hindman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1181.

A defendant held not entitled to a continuance for surprise on the allowance of an amendment to the petition on the day of the trial. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cambron (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1130.

An application for a continuance on the ground of surprise at an amended petition filed the day before the trial must show that defendant has a meritorious defense, and that there is evidence which he may obtain by a postponement to negative the allegations of the amended petition, and it is not sufficient to merely allege that he is surprised. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Robertson Bros. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 454.

Surprise justifying a continuance held not predicable on the admission of evidence in shipper's action of particular acts of delay and rough handling, where the petition contained general allegations of delay and rough handling. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Cartwright (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 630.

Admissions.—An offer to admit a fact defeats a motion for a continuance to obtain testimony to prove it. Fisk v. Miller, 13 T. 224; Hyde v. State, 16 T. 445, 67 Am. Dec. 630; Page v. Arnim, 29 T. 53. But see McMahan v. Busby, 29 T. 191.

Where the evidence of an absent witness is admitted to prevent a continuance, it must be admitted as true. Maughmer v. Bering, 19 C. A. 299, 46 S. W. 917.

Where plaintiff, to avoid a continuance, stipulates that certain facts are true, defendant does not lose the benefit of such stipulation by failure to object to evidence contradictory thereof. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Lynes (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1119.

Where plaintiff, to avoid a continuance, stipulates that certain facts are true, the jury should be instructed that they should take such facts as true. Id.

A continuance for absence of witness held properly denied, where plaintiff admitted the facts sought to be proved by such witness were true. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Campbell, 32 C. A. 613, 75 S. W. 564.

An admission of certain facts to prevent a continuance held not conclusive against plaintiff, so as to prevent the introduction of other evidence relating thereto. Id.

In an action for personal injuries caused by frightening of team by locomotive, testimony that it was going fast held not admissible, after admission to the contrary, to prevent continuance. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hall (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1079.

An agreement that it might be assumed that the grantor of a deed executed in 1857 died in 1858 held a sufficient answer to an application for a continuance to obtain witnesses to prove the date of such grantor's death. Loring v. Jackson, 43 C. A. 306, 95 S. S. W. 19.

The offer to admit that, if a witness were present, he would testify to all the facts set out in the application for a continuance, held insufficient to defeat the continuance. Horwitz v. La Roche (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 1148.

Overruling of application for continuance held not error in view of plaintiff's admissions. Cumby Mercantile & Lumber Co. v. Long (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1072.

Where an application for continuance because of the absence of a material witness is otherwise sufficient, it should be granted, unless the facts expected to be proved by the witness, and as stated in the application, are admitted to be true. Consumers' Lignite Co. v. Hubner (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 249.

Where plaintiff made certain admissions, conditioned upon defendant's application for continuance being found statutory, and the application was not in fact statutory, the admission of evidence contradictory of such admissions was not error. Id.

It is not error to deny a continuance on the ground of the absence of a witness whose testimony is in the record of the trial of a companion case and available to the parties pursuant to a stipulation signed by them. Whitaker v. Browning (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1197.

Successive applications.—Continuances are counted as first, second or subsequent applications from the filing of the suit—not from the reversal of a case on appeal or error. McMichael v. Truehart, 48 T. 216.

In cases appealed to the county court, the previous continuances in the justice's court will be considered. Heidenheimer v. Bledsoe, 1 App. C. C. § 318.

Application for a second continuance held properly denied for lack of diligence and for immateriality of the evidence desired. Owen v. Cibolo Creek Mill & Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 297.

Where court has continued case twice because of party's sickness, held not error to refuse third application, made on same ground. Bond v. National Exch. Bank (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 71.

A second application for a continuance, not made in strict compliance with the statute, is addressed to the sound discretion of the court. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 807.

Where the grantor of a deed was not a necessary party to a suit to vacate the same, a second continuance, for the purpose of making him a party, held properly denied. Ley v. Hahn, 36 C. A. 208, 81 S. W. 354.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff, the court did not err in denying defendant's application for a continuance to procure evidence, which was both cumulative and impeaching. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 876.

A party's first motion for continuance, though in full compliance with the statute, does not entitle the moving party to a continuance as of right, the only effect being that the full compliance with the statute destroys the presumption, which otherwise an appellate court will entertain, that the trial court had not abused its discretion. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 95.

Denial of further continuance after permitting amendment of pleadings held not error. Gilliland v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 168.

It was within the sound discretion of the court to overrule a first application for a continuance, which failed to state that the applicant had used due diligence to procure the testimony of the absent witness. Consumers' Lignite Co. v. Hubner (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 249.

Application by attorney.—The court is not required to consider a motion for a continuance not called to its attention by the party or his attorney. Eddleman v. McGlathery, 74 T. 280, 11 S. W. 1100.

An attorney may make an application for a continuance. Where the subject-matter of the affidavit rests peculiarly within the conscience of the client, the attorney may be required to state his means of information. Doll v. Mundine, 84 T. 315, 19 S. W. 394.

An attorney can make affidavit for continuance for his absent client upon information, if he discloses the source and character of his information. Sullivan v. First Nat. Bank, 37 C. A. 228, 83 S. W. 422.

Continuance on failure of attorney to show authority.—See Attorney at Law.

Verification of application.—A verification to an application for a continuance held insufficient, within this article. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 807.

The verification to an affidavit for continuance by the attorney of the party, stating that the matters set forth are, to the best of his knowledge, information, and belief, true, is insufficient. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Harkey, 39 C. A. 523, 88 S. W. 506.

Conditions.—A party to a suit cannot reject a continuance offered on terms imposed by the court, and take the chances of a verdict in his favor, and then ask a revision of the rulings of the court on the merits of his motion if the judgment be against him. If, however, the judgment be in his favor, after a final hearing had after a continuance granted on terms, if the question be properly raised on appeal, the rule imposing costs as a condition of continuance may be reversed. Couts v. Neer, 70 T. 468, 9 S. W. 40.

Discretion of court.—It is within the discretion of the court to postpone the trial to give time for the preparation of an application for a continuance, which will not be revised on appeal unless it is shown that the appellant has suffered injury without fault on his part. Addington v. Bryson, 1 App. C. C. § 1292.

When the grounds of the application are not statutory, abuse of judicial discretion must be shown. Guy v. Metcalf, 83 T. 37, 18 S. W. 419.

A nonstatutory application is addressed to the discretion of the court. Clarke v. Faver (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1009.

The court has no discretion on application for a first statutory continuance. Wilborn v. Elmendorf (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1059.

Granting of continuance is in the discretion of the trial court. Dimmit County v. Oppenheimer (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1029; McGregor v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 398.

A continuance, where there was no controversy about the facts, is properly refused. Green v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 6.

An application for a postponement on account of absent witnesses is addressed to the court's discretion. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wright, 19 C. A. 47, 47 S. W. 56; Berry v. Burnett, 23 C. A. 570, 56 S. W. 769; Central Texas & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 537; St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Skaggs, 32 C. A. 363, 74 S. W. 783; Citizens' Ry. Co. v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 443; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Price, 48 C. A. 210, 106 S. W. 700; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 95; Freeman v. Griewe (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 730.

Motion based on unavoidable absence of counsel held to be addressed to court's discretion. Hoefling v. Courtney (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 686.

Postponement of a hearing after one party has closed, until the next day, to permit the other party to obtain the presence of his counsel, is within the court's discretion. Ostrom v. McCloskey (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1068.

The refusal of the court to grant a continuance, third application, where the motion fails to show that the fees were tendered the witnesses, is not an abuse by the court of its discretion. East Texas Land & Improvement Co. v. Texas Lumber Co., 21 C. A. 411, 52 S. W. 645.

Where an application for a continuance disclosed a right to the same, and the facts adduced on the trial showed the materiality of the absent evidence, it was error for the court to refuse to grant it. Lynch v. Munson (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 140.

The postponement of a trial to permit a party to procure authenticated copies of the laws of another state is within the court's discretion. Griffin v. McKinney, 25 C. A. 512, 62 S. W. 78.

In an action against a railroad for the negligent killing of plaintiff's intestate at a highway crossing, held that a continuance was properly refused the defendant. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brantley, 26 C. A. 11, 62 S. W. 94.

A motion for a third continuance is addressed to the discretion of the court. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Burroughs, 27 C. A. 422, 66 S. W. 83.

An application for continuance, made by defendant because of the filing of an amended petition when the case is called for trial, is addressed largely to the discretion of the trial court. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Henserlang, 38 C. A. 524, 86 S. W. 948.

Where a continuance was demanded to meet aspersions on the reputation of one of plaintiff's witnesses, it was not an abuse of discretion to deny the continuance on defendant's agreeing that such derogatory testimony might be disregarded by the court. Loring v. Jackson, 43 C. A. 306, 95 S. W. 19.

Refusal to permit withdrawal of an announcement of readiness for trial held not error. Pierce v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 979.

An application for a continuance which does not comply with the requirements of the statute is addressed to the sound discretion of the court. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Johnsey, 49 C. A. 487, 109 S. W. 251.

Under the facts, held refusal of postponement of trial could not be said to be an abuse of discretion. Continental Fruit Express v. Leas, 50 C. A. 584, 110 S. W. 129.

The overruling of an application for a continuance because of an amendment joining additional parties, in an action for wrongful death, held not an abuse of discretion. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Howell, 101 T. 603, 111 S. W. 142.

Under the facts, held, that refusal of a second application for continuance could not be an abuse of discretion or prejudicial. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 35.

Denial of a continuance for the appointment of an official surveyor, and to enable him to survey the block in controversy, held not error. Adams v. Burrell (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 581.

A motion for continuance for the absence of a party because of sickness rests largely in the trial court's discretion. Berry v. Hindman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1181.

An application for a first continuance on the ground of the absence of witnesses is insufficient where it fails to show why the witnesses are absent, or that the reason is unknown, and further shows that such witnesses were employés of the applicant, that the case had previously been set for trial for the day on which it was called, but not that the witnesses had been notified of that fact, so that a denial on such a showing is no abuse of discretion. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brooks (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 95.

An application for a continuance on the ground of surprise upon the filing of a supplemental petition is addressed to the sound discretion of the trial court. Cochrane v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 531.

The overruling of a motion for a continuance is within the trial court's discretion. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Demere & Coggin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 623.

Denial of defendant's motion for a continuance made after the plaintiff's amendment, held within the discretion of the trial court, where defendant did not show a defense to the amendment provable by absent witnesses. City of Texarkana v. Williams (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 333.

Refusal of continuance, because witness in employ of movant was disabled and unable to be present, was not abuse of discretion, where it did not appear how long he had been disabled. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Wells (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 645.

Refusal of continuance is not error; the motion, as a whole, failing to show any meritorious defense; besides not being legally sworn to, the swearing being by counsel before himself. Western Warehouse Co. v. Flynt (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 789.

It is within the sound discretion of the court to grant or refuse a second application for a continuance, which is not strictly a statutory application. Continental Lumber & Tie Co. v. Wilroy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 840.

Defendant caused depositions to be taken, which were duly returned to the district clerk on November 16, 1910, during the November term of court. About May 8, 1911, defendant's counsel discovered that the depositions could not be found in the district clerk's office, and wired to the notary taking them, who informed counsel that the depositions had been mailed to the clerk as instructed, whereupon defendant applied for a continuance for want of such depositions, stating the facts. A previous continuance had been granted for another cause. The depositions were merely cumulative of evidence given somewhat fully at trial. Held, in view of counsel's delay in not inquiring whether the depositions had been returned, that there was no abuse of discretion in overruling the application for a continuance. Id.

The trial judge has a large discretion in granting continuances to procure absent witnesses, etc. Montrose Lumber Co. v. Jefferson (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1187.

Where defendant's president, who was defendant's only witness, was at a hotel 75 yards from the courthouse when the case was called for trial, there was no abuse of discretion in denying a postponement to procure him as a witness, though he was unwell from la grippe. Id.

Denial of a continuance on account of absence of a witness detained by his wife's sickness held not an abuse of discretion, where defendant made no effort to procure the witness' deposition. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. McCune (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 237.

While this article authorizes the granting of a continuance by consent of the parties, it was not an abuse of discretion for the trial court to refuse to recognize an agreement of counsel for both parties to continue the case, where the case had been reset several times, and the only reason of the agreement was a groundless apprehension that an unreported decision in another case, as to the validity of summoning a jury by mail, as had been done, might have some bearing on the present case, and it appeared that such continuance would cause unnecessary expense and inconvenience the court. Miller v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 591.

Continuance for absent witnesses in quo warranto to oust defendant from office as mayor, where the issue was as to who had received the most legal votes, held properly denied, in view of the speedy trial contemplated on quo warranto, and that appellant had not used evidence given at a former trial or taken depositions of such witnesses, and sought a continuance for the term rather than a postponement. Pease v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 657.

Exception and review.—The refusal of an application for a continuance must be excepted to. Rule 55, 47 T. 627; 84 T. 716; T. & P. R. R. Co. v. McAlister 59 T. 349; Shaw v. Adams, 2 App. C. C. § 177; Philipowski v. Spencer, 63 T. 604; Contreras v. Haynes, 61 T. 103; Morris v. Files, 40 T. 374. And the bill must show whether it is the first or a subsequent application. Arnold v. Hockney, 51 T. 46.

The action of the court below upon a motion for continuance can be revised on appeal only when exception is reserved and presented in a bill of exceptions. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Mallon, 65 T. 115. The judgment refusing a continuance will not be reversed unless clearly erroneous. Allyn v. Willis, 65 T. 65.

The judge overruling an application for continuance made in conformity with the statute may in a bill of exceptions state the grounds of his action. Corsicana v. Kerr, 75 T. 207, 12 S. W. 982.

Without a bill of exceptions, an assignment of error, based upon the refusal of the court to grant a continuance, will not be considered. Railway Co. v. Cannon (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 689.

Refusal of application for continuance must be excepted to, and shown by a bill of exceptions or an order entered on the minutes. Lovelady v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 1124; Railway Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1023; Philipowski v. Spencer, 63 T. 604; Swearingen v. Wilson, 2 C. A. 157, 21 S. W. 74.

Refusal to grant a continuance is not subject to review. Dimmit County v. Oppenheimer (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1029; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Demere & Coggin, 145 S. W. 623.

Discretionary rulings are not reviewable except for abuse. Dimmitt County v. Oppenheimer (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1029; Hoefling v. Courtney, 47 S. W. 686; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Johnsey, 49 C. A. 487, 109 S. W. 251; Berry v. Hindman, 129 S. W. 1181.

In the absence of an exception to the denial of a continuance, an assignment of error based on it cannot be considered. McGregor v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 398.

Refusal to postpone trial for absent witness is not subject to review. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Manning, 20 C. A. 504, 50 S. W. 177.

Refusal of an application for continuance which is not statutory in form will not be reviewed. Lion Ins. Co. v. Wicker (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 294.

Assigning a wrong reason for denying a continuance to procure witness held not reversible error, where no diligence was used to procure the testimony. Home Forum Ben. Order v. Varnado (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 364.

Where a motion for a continuance is overruled, to which no exception is taken, it will not be reviewed on appeal. Orange Mill-Supply Co. v. Goodman (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 700.

Where witnesses appeared and testified before the trial was concluded, error in refusing continuance on the ground of their absence was harmless. J. S. Mayfield Lumber Co. v. Carver, 27 C. A. 467, 66 S. W. 216.

Where a cause is tried without a jury, and on motion for new trial defendant is permitted to amend a plea which the court had refused to allow on the trial, and to produce proof in support of it, and defendant does not claim he was not ready for trial, he cannot complain on appeal. Davis v. Jones (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 291.

On appeal, held that an order denying a continuance should be affirmed. Shannon v. Marchbanks, 35 C. A. 615, 80 S. W. 860.

Plaintiffs in error cannot complain of the refusal of a continuance, where they voluntarily dismissed their case thereafter, and did not except to such refusal until they sued out the writ of error. Degetau v. Mayer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1054.

Where the statutory averment of due diligence to procure absent witnesses is omitted from the affidavit, refusal to grant a continuance will not be reviewed except for abuse. Carver Bros. v. Merrett (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 633.

Art. 1918. [1278] [1278] Application for continuance, requisites of.—On applying for a continuance, if the ground of such application be the want of testimony, the party applying therefor shall make affidavit that such testimony is material, showing the materiality thereof, and that he has used due diligence to procure such testimony, stating such diligence, and the cause of failure, if known; that such testimony can not be procured from any other source; and, if it be for the absence of a witness, he shall state the name and residence of the witness, and what he expects to prove by him; and he shall also state that the continuance is not sought for delay only, but that justice may be done; provided, that, on a first application for continuance, it shall not be necessary to show that the absent testimony can not be procured from any other source. [Acts 1873, p. 58. Acts 1848, p. 109. Acts 1897, p. 117.]

Affidavits for continuance.—An affidavit for continuance made by the plaintiff on the 18th of the month, when the case was called for trial, set forth that on the 11th of the month the plaintiff caused a subpœna to be issued for an absent witness, which was served on the witness by the officer on the 17th; that the witness resided in the county where the suit was pending; that the testimony of the witness was material; that plaintiff had used due diligence to procure the testimony of the witness; that the witness had not obeyed the subpœna, and was not in attendance on court. On the first application, it was not necessary when the witnesses were served that the witnesses' fees should have been tendered, and this is not in conflict with Hensley v. Lytle, 5 T. 497, 55 Am. Dec. 741. A deputy sheriff may serve a subpœna issued in a cause wherein the principal sheriff is a party. That the affidavit was made by the agent of the plaintiff was immaterial, and this case distinguished from Robinson v. Martel, 11 T. 149. Blum v. Bassett, 67 T. 194, 3 S. W. 33. See Brown v. National Bank, 70 T. 750, 8 S. W. 599.

The name of the witness and his residence, and that the party expects to procure his testimony at the next term of the court, must be stated in the application (Hunter v. Waite, 11 T. 85; Parker v. McKelvain, 17 T. 157; Burditt v. Glasscock, 25 T. Sup. 45; Stachely v. Pierce, 28 T. 328; Stoddard v. Garnhart, 35 T. 300; Franks v. Williams, 37 T. 24), and that proper means had been used to procure the testimony, stating the acts done and dates, and accounting for any omissions of legal diligence (Hensley v. Lytle, 5 T. 497, 55 Am. Dec. 741; Hipp v. Robb, 7 T. 67; Robinson v. Martel, 11 T. 149; Williams v. Edwards, 15 T. 41; Hall v. York, 16 T. 18; Parker v. Campbell, 21 T. 763; Conner v. Sampson, 22 T. 20; Adair v. Cooper, 25 T. 548; Pulliam v. Webb, 26 T. 95; Stinnett v. Rice, 36 T. 106; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Hoskins, 2 App. C. C. § 66; Texas Express Co. v. Scott, 2 App. C. C. § 72; Hogan v. Railway Co., 88 T. 679, 32 S. W. 1035).

When an application is made on other than statutory grounds, it is within the provisions of this article, and must show the merits of the case—a reasonable probability of procuring the evidence; if ignorance or recent discovery of the testimony is stated, it must appear not to have resulted from want of due diligence. Lewis v. Williams, 15 T. 47; Pulliam v. Webb, 26 T. 95; Baldessore v. Stephanes, 27 T. 455; Jordan v. Robson, 27 T. 612; McMahon v. Busby, 29 T. 191; Hannah v. Chadwick, 2 App. C. C. § 517.

An application made after the overruling of a previous application at the same term is within this article. Hunt v. Makemson, 56 T. 9.

Continuance will be refused when the application is not in compliance with this article. Neeper v. Irons, 3 App. C. C. § 181.

The refusal of a statutory application for continuance is ground for reversal. Doll v. Mundine, 84 T. 315, 19 S. W. 394; Railway Co. v. Yates (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 291.

A motion by defendant for a continuance held properly denied for insufficiency of defendant's affidavit. Collins v. Ferguson, 22 C. A. 552, 56 S. W. 225.

An application for a continuance in a civil action for the absence of a witness must state his residence. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 554.

An application for continuance for absence of a material witness held insufficient. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Eddleman, 52 C. A. 181, 114 S. W. 425.

Stating on information and belief the facts on which a motion for a continuance is based is insufficient. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Biles & Ruby, 56 C. A. 193, 120 S. W. 952.

An application for a continuance on the ground of the absence of witnesses not supported by affidavit, as required by this article, as amended by Acts 25th Leg. c. 91, is properly denied, though it is sufficient in all other respects. Clay County Oil & Pipe Line v. Markowitz (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 924.

Verified application for a continuance for absence of material witnesses, held defective in failing to state the source of the affiant's knowledge and belief. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wells (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 670.

—— Absence of counsel.—Where a motion for continuance on the ground of sickness of leading counsel failed to indicate when he became sick, or what opportunity the counsel present had for preparation in the case, or whether his absence could have been anticipated, the motion was properly overruled. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. King (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 966.

—— Amendment.—An application based on an amendment of petition must show a material change therein. Tittle v. Vanleer (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 736.

—— Surprise.—Continuance was asked because of surprise by new matter alleged in a supplemental petition. Failing to point out the matter of surprise, the continuance was properly denied. Lamb v. B. T. H. Co., 21 S. W. 713, 2 C. A. 289; Cunningham v. State, 74 T. 511, 12 S. W. 217.

An application for a continuance, based on the filing of an amended petition a few minutes prior to the trial, stated that a defendant was surprised; but there was no showing that he did not have time to present his defense, or that evidence was not accessible and could not be produced, nor was it made to appear that he would suffer any injustice or be deprived of any right by being forced to trial at that time. Held not to state any ground for a continuance. Cleghon v. Boxley (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 438.

An application for a continuance on the ground of surprise at an amended petition held required to show a meritorious defense, and that defendant may, by a postponement, obtain evidence negativing the allegation of the amended petition. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Robertson Bros. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 454.

—— Materiality of evidence.—An application not showing the facts expected to be proved should be denied. Rubrecht v. Powers, 1 C. A. 282, 21 S. W. 318.

Application for continuance held not sufficiently definite as to the facts which absent witness would prove. Crawford v. Lozano (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 538.

The application must state affirmatively that the testimony of absent witness is material, and not evasively or by way of argument. It must also show the materiality of the desired evidence, and must state that the party "has used due diligence" although the facts stated may seem to show diligence. Patton v. Williams, 35 C. A. 129, 79 S. W. 357.

Application for a continuance for absence of witnesses held insufficient as not showing how or why the expected testimony was material. Raley v. State, 47 C. A. 426, 105 S. W. 342.

A motion for continuance on the ground of absence of witness which does not affirmatively allege that the evidence sought is in fact material is fatally defective. Hamilton v. Dismukes, 53 C. A. 129, 115 S. W. 1182.

An application for a continuance for absent testimony was properly denied, where there was no statement as to what the expected evidence would be. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Lawson, 55 C. A. 388, 119 S. W. 921.

Continuance for absence of a witness, who bought the articles lost, valued by plaintiff at $300, by whom defendant expected to show that their value was only $175, was improperly refused on the ground of plaintiff having the original invoice, which defendant could use; it being only a copy, and defendant not being bound to accept it as correct. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Quilhot (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 200.

—— Diligence.—Where there has been failure to obtain the evidence of a witness by deposition, an application for a continuance on that ground should show the diligence used to obtain the testimony of the witness or the cause of failure, the materiality of the testimony and an expectation to have it at the next term of the court. Trammell v. Pilgrim, 20 T. 160; McMahan v. Busby, 29 T. 195; Baldessore v. Stephanes, 27 T. 455; Byne v. Jackson, 25 T. 96; Townsend v. State, 41 T. 135; Chilson v. Reeves, 29 T. 279; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Hardin, 62 T. 367.

The affidavit for continuance should state the facts constituting the diligence used and not the mere legal conclusion that diligence had been used. Railway Co. v. Aiken, 71 T. 373, 9 S. W. 437; Land Co. v. Chisholm, 71 T. 523, 9 S. W. 479; Railway Co. v. Woolum, 84 T. 570, 19 S. W. 782; Telegraph Co. v. Rosentreter, 80 T. 406, 16 S. W. 25; East Dallas v. Barksdale, 83 T. 117, 18 S. W. 329.

Statement showing diligence. Railway Co. v. Hogan (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 686.

Application for continuance on account of absent witness held not to show reasonable diligence. Crawford v. Lozano (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 538; Houy v. Gamel, 26 C. A. 123, 62 S. W. 76; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Huff & Lemon (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 177.

An application for a continuance on account of the absence of a witness, showing no effort to take his deposition or sufficient excuse for his nonattendance, was properly refused. Belknap v. Groover (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 249.

Where an application for continuance for the absence of a witness fails to show efforts made to discover the witness, the application should be denied. Texas M. R. Co. v. Crowder, 25 C. A. 536, 64 S. W. 90.

On application for continuance, controverting affidavits held irrelevant on the issue of diligence. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Calvert (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 912.

An application for a continuance on account of the absence of a witness must allege that applicant used due diligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 228.

An application for first continuance is insufficient if it fails to state that appellant has used due diligence to obtain the testimony of the absent witness. Pacific Exp. Co. v. Needham, 37 C. A. 129, 83 S. W. 23.

An application for a continuance on the ground of the absence of witnesses held properly denied because of the failure to show diligence to procure their testimony. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Johnsey, 49 C. A. 487, 109 S. W. 251.

An application for a continuance to be sufficient must show diligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Biles & Ruby, 56 C. A. 193, 120 S. W. 952.

Issuing a summons the day before the trial for a witness who lived at the place of trial, and was there when the action was commenced two months before, was sufficient diligence to entitle the party to a continuance for absence of the witness. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quilhot (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 200.

A motion to postpone a trial to a later hour in the day, in order that witnesses might have time to reach the court, was properly overruled as being too indefinite; no statement having been made as to who the witnesses were, where they were, what means had been used to secure their attendance, nor that they were expected to be present at the hour to which the postponement was asked. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. King (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 966.

An application for a continuance for absence of witnesses held defective in failing to show due diligence. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wells (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 670.

An application for a continuance on the ground of the absence of material witnesses, which fails to state that the applicant used due diligence to obtain such testimony, or to set out facts showing that the applicant had used such diligence, is defective. Id.

It was within the sound discretion of the court to overrule a first application for a continuance, which failed to state that the applicant had used due diligence to procure the testimony of the absent witness. Consumers' Lignite Co. v. Hubuer (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 249.

Where the statutory averment of due diligence to procure absent witnesses is omitted from the affidavit, the granting of the continuance is discretionary. Carver Bros. v. Merrett (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 633.

An application for a continuance, on the ground of the absence of witnesses, which fails to state in terms that due diligence was used, or to show what efforts had been made during two months prior to the illness of the applicant's attorney to procure the testimony of the witnesses, held properly denied for want of due diligence. Thompson & Scott v. Hart (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 184.

—— Absence of witness.—Application for continuance because of the absence of the applicant as a witness, failing to show cause of absence, is insufficient. Davis v. Foreman (Sup.) 20 S. W. 52.

An application for postponement on account of the absence of witnesses, to obtain whose attendance no diligence is shown, is addressed to the discretion of the court; and no abuse of this discretion is apparent where the applicant does not state what he expects to prove by the witnesses, nor show in a motion for a new trial that he has suffered injury from their non-attendance. Rubrecht v. Powers, 1 C. A. 282, 21 S. W. 318.

Application on account of absence of witness must show the time of service of subpœnas. Tittle v. Vanleer (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 736.

Where the application for continuance is made on the ground of the absence of witnesses it will not be good unless it states "that the continuance is not sought for delay only, but that justice may be done." Lion Ins. Co. of London v. Wicker (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 294.

An affidavit for a continuance because of absent witnesses held not sufficient, where it did not state that the affiant expected to procure their attendance at any time. Doxey v. Westbrook (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 787.

An application for a continuance on the ground of the absence of the president and manager of a defendant corporation who had testified by deposition was properly denied, where there was no affidavit to support the statement in a telegram that he was absent because of sickness in his family, and where it was not shown by affidavit that by reason of his absence during the trial counsel could not fully develop the defense. City Loan & Trust Co. v. Sterner, 57 C. A. 517, 124 S. W. 207.

A second application for continuance for want of testimony, failing to allege, as required by this article, that the testimony sought to be elicited from the absent witnesses "cannot be obtained from any source," ruling thereon rests in the sound discretion of the trial court. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 35.

An application for continuance for absence of witnesses must be considered a second application, which this article requires to allege that the testimony cannot be obtained from any other source, the record showing an application at a previous term with a judgment of the court and specific grounds for affirmatively overruling it, and there being no affirmative showing of abandonment or withdrawal thereof at the time. Id.

An application for continuance must state, as provided by this article, the residence of the witnesses for whom continuance is sought. City of San Antonio v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 666.

Application for a continuance for absence of witnesses held defective in failing to state that defendant expected to obtain the testimony of such absent witnesses. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wells (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 670.

An application for a continuance on the ground of absence of material witnesses, which failed to state that defendant expected to procure the testimony of the absent witnesses at the next term of court, or within a reasonable time, is defective. Id.

An application for a continuance on the ground of the absence of material witnesses, verified according to the affiant's knowledge and belief, is defective in failing to state the source of the affiant's knowledge and belief. Id.

Where an application for continuance because of the absence of a material witness is otherwise sufficient, it should be granted, unless the facts expected to be proved by the witness, and as stated in the application, are admitted to be true. Consumers' Lignite Co. v. Hubuer (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 249.

In view of this article an appellate court, in passing upon the overruling of an application for a continuance, may look to the evidence taken upon the trial to determine whether the testimony desired was in fact material, and whether in fact any injury resulted by reason of its absence. Pease v. State ex rel. Sutherland (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 657.

In an application for a continuance for the testimony of absent witnesses, the facts expected to be proved should be set out instead of the pleader's conclusions. Id.

An application for a continuance on the ground of absent witnesses, failing to state that the applicant expected to procure such testimony by the next term of the court, was defective. Carver Bros. v. Merrett (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 633.

—— Good faith.—Application must state that the continuance is not sought for delay only but that justice may be done. Ins. Co. of North America v. Wicker, 93 T. 390, 55 S. W. 740.

Reasons for denial of application.—The judge overruling an application for a continuance may state his reasons therefor. Corsicana v. Kerr, 75 T. 207, 12 S. W. 982.

Art. 1919. [1279] [1279] Business not disposed of continued by operation of law.—If from any cause the court shall not be held at the time prescribed by law, or if the business before the court be not determined before the adjournment thereof, such business, of whatsoever nature, remaining undetermined, shall stand continued until the next succeeding term of the court. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 95. P. D. 1462.]

Discontinuance.—A delay of 10 years in the prosecution of an action after the death of the attorneys of the parties, during which time nothing evidencing an intention to prosecute was done excepting the filing of a motion to substitute for a lost petition, and the issuance and service of process thereon on some of the defendants, operates as a discontinuance notwithstanding this article. Crosby v. Di Palma (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 321.

Art. 1919a. Death of judge not to adjourn term; recess; motions; bills of exceptions, etc.—That where any judge of any district or county court shall die during the session of court that has been duly convened for the term, and the time provided by statute for holding said court be not expired, the death of said judge shall not operate to adjourn said court for the term, but said court shall be deemed at recess for not exceeding six days, and if the successor to the deceased judge be not appointed or elected by proper authorities to fill said office during said recess, or if such person appointed or elected to such office does not qualify and assume the duties of office during said recess, then only the court shall be deemed to have adjourned.

If a successor to such judge shall qualify and assume office during said recess, he may continue to hold said court for the term as provided, and all motions undisposed of shall hold their status and shall be heard and determined by him, and statements of facts and bills of exception shall be approved by him. [Acts 1913, p. 260, sec. 1.]

Art. 1919b. Expiration of recess before successor qualifies, etc.; motions to stand continued, etc.; bills of exceptions, etc.—Be it further enacted, that should the time for holding any such court expire or the recess expire before any such person shall qualify to succeed such deceased judge, then all motions including those in arrest of judgment or for new trial pending shall stand as continued in force until such successor has qualified and assumed office, and he shall have power to act on them at the succeeding term of court, or on an earlier day in vacation on notice to all parties to the motion, and the same shall have same effect as rendered in term time, and the time of allowing statement of facts and bills of exception from such order shall date from the time the motion was decided. [Id. sec. 2.]

CHAPTER ELEVEN

STENOGRAPHIC REPORTERS

Article 1920. District judges shall appoint official reporters, when.—For the purpose of preserving a record in all cases for the information of the courts, jury and parties, the judges of the district courts in all judicial districts of this state composed of only one county, or only a portion of one county, and of all other district courts sitting in the same counties therewith, shall appoint official shorthand reporters for such courts, who shall be well skilled in their profession, who shall be sworn officers of the courts and shall hold their office during the pleasure of the court. In all other judicial districts the district judges thereof shall appoint official shorthand reporters, and the terms of this Act shall apply to such appointment. [Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 1920, superseded. Acts 1911, p. 264, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1911, p. 264, expressly repeals Acts 1909, S. S. p. 374, c. 39, and thus supersedes articles 1920–1928, 1932, 1933, 2070–2073, as they appeared in Rev. Civ. St. 1911.

Cited, Sheppard's Home v. Wood (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 394; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. McDonald, 105 T. 334, 148 S. W. 287; Witherspoon v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 633.

Constitutionality.—Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, providing for the appointment of stenographers, prescribing their qualifications and duties and the time and method of making up and filing the statements of facts and bills of exception, are not unconstitutional as containing more than one subject; the provisions all referring to the subject of the preparation of appellate records. Gibson v. Singer Sewing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 633.

Application.—The provision of Art. 2073 that on an appeal from the district or county court the parties shall have thirty days after adjournment of court in which to prepare and file a statement of facts and bills of exception, by the express provisions of this article, only applies where official shorthand reporters have in fact been appointed. Hamilton v. State (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 348.

How appointed.—Where there is no official stenographer in the district the court may appoint a competent stenographer to keep the record, and if he does so in accordance with the act of 1905, and the record is prepared as required by that law, it is sufficient. It is immaterial how the stenographer is appointed. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quinn, 100 T. 613, 102 S. W. 723.

Not an officer within the constitution.—The position of stenographer in the district court is not an office within the meaning of the constitution, section 30, article 16, regulating the duration of offices not fixed by the constitution. Robertson v. Ellis County, 38 C. A. 146, 84 S. W. 1098.

Art. 1921. Examination and certificate of reporters.—Before any person is appointed an official shorthand reporter under the provisions of this Act, he shall be examined as to his competency by a committee to be composed of at least three members of the bar practicing in said court, such committee to be appointed by the judge thereof. The test of competency of any applicant for the position of official shorthand reporter shall be as follows: The applicant shall write in the presence of such committee at the rate of at least one hundred and seventy-five words per minute for five consecutive minutes from questions and answers submitted to him, and in computing the number of words written the words "question" and "answer" appearing in the official shorthand reporter's transcript shall not be counted, and shall transcribe the same with accuracy. If the applicant passes this test satisfactorily, a majority of the committee shall furnish him with a certificate of that effect, which shall be filed among the records of the court, and shall be recorded by the clerk of the court in the minutes thereof. Upon the occasion of subsequent appointments the presentation of a certified transcript from the clerk of the court of the certificate above mentioned shall be taken as prima facie evidence of the applicant's competency; provided, however, that if the applicant shall have been official stenographer of any district court of this state for not less than two years prior to the filing of his application for said appointment, then such examination by said committee, as herein provided, shall not be necessary. [Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 1921, superseded. Acts 1911, p. 264, sec. 2.]

Explanatory.—See note under Art. 1920.

Art. 1922. Oath of reporters.—Before any person shall assume the duties of official shorthand reporter under the provisions of this Act he shall, in addition to the oath required of officers by the constitution, subscribe to an oath to be administered to him by the clerk of any district court, to the effect that he will well and truly, and in an impartial manner keep a correct record of all evidence offered in any case which may be reported by him, together with the objections and exceptions thereto which may be interposed by the parties to such suit, and the rulings and remarks of the court in passing on the admissibility of such testimony. [Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 1922, superseded. Acts 1911, p. 264, sec. 3.]

Explanatory.—See note under Art. 1920.

Art. 1923. Duties of reporter.—It shall be the duty of the official shorthand reporter to attend all sessions of the court; to take full shorthand notes of all the oral testimony offered in every case tried in said court, together with all objections to the admissibility of testimony, the rulings and remarks of the court thereon, and all exceptions to such rulings; to preserve all shorthand notes taken in said court for future use or reference for four years, and to furnish to any person a transcript in question and answer form of all such evidence or other proceedings or any portion thereof, upon the payment to him of the compensation hereinafter provided. [Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 1923, superseded. Acts 1911, p. 264, sec. 4.]

Explanatory.—See note under Art. 1920.

Duty to prepare and deliver transcript.—See Art. 1926 and notes.

Art. 1924. Same subject; preparation of transcript; compensation.—In case an appeal is perfected from the judgment rendered in any case, the official shorthand reporter shall transcribe the testimony and other proceedings recorded by him in said case in the form of questions and answers, certifying that such transcript is true and correct, and shall file the same in the office of the clerk of the court within such reasonable time as may be fixed by written order of the court. Said transcript shall be made in duplicate; for which said transcript the official shorthand reporter shall be paid the sum of fifteen cents per folio of one hundred words for the original copy and no charge shall be made for the duplicate copy, said transcript to be paid for by the party ordering the same on delivery, and the amount so paid shall be taxed as costs. [Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 1924, superseded. Acts 1911, p. 264, sec. 5.]

Explanatory.—See note under Art. 1920. For duties of reporter as to preparation of statements of facts, see Arts. 2071, 2072, and 2077, chapter 19 of this title. Sections 6 and 7, part of section 8, and all of section 13, of Acts 1911, p. 264, have been transferred to chapter 19, "Bills of Exceptions and Statements of Facts." See Arts. 2070–2073.

Cited, Sheppard's Home v. Wood (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 394.

Purpose of transcript.—Under this article the stenographer's transcript was never intended to be filed in the appellate court, but was to be used by the party ordering the transcript in preparing the statement of facts. Rader v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 718.

Certification, signing, and approval of transcript.—Where a transcript of the stenographer's notes, made as required by this article, is not signed by counsel for any of the parties nor signed or approved by the court, it cannot be considered as a statement of facts, though no objection is raised to it. Buster v. Woody (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 689.

A transcript, not certified by the official stenographer, not signed by the attorneys who tried the case, and not approved by the trial judge, cannot be considered on appeal for any purpose. Wright v. State (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 624.

Decisions under prior acts.—The act of twenty-ninth legislature (Acts 1905, p. 219) relating to making the stenographer's report of the evidence the statement of facts is to be construed with Acts 1907 (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 7, providing for an order of court allowing a statement of facts to be filed within 20 days after the adjournment of court. Mundine v. State, 50 Cr. R. 93, 97 S. W. 491.

The act of 1903 (Acts 1903, c. 25) relative to stenographers taking down the evidence, did not give to the stenographic report of the evidence the dignity of a statement of facts, as does the act of the twenty-ninth legislature (Acts 1905, c. 112). Elliott v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 518.

When a case was tried before the act of 1905 making the stenographic report of the evidence the statement of facts, went into effect, such report, even though intended by the attorneys for the parties and the judge, as a statement of facts cannot be considered by the appellate court because not prepared according to the law in force at time of trial of case. Id.

Under Acts 1905, p. 219, c. 112, the stenographer's report does not provide for bills of exceptions to be considered, as shown by the stenographer's report, on any other subject, except as to the admissibility of evidence. It does not provide that bills of exceptions as to pleadings and other matters shall be deemed bills of exceptions. Ex parte Denning, 50 Cr. R. 629, 100 S. W. 402.

Art. 1925. Compensation of reporter; salary in certain districts, etc.; when defendant on appeal in criminal case is unable to pay, etc.; appeal without bond in civil cases, etc.—The official shorthand reporter shall receive a per diem compensation of five dollars for each and every day he shall be in attendance upon the court for which he is appointed, in addition to the compensation for transcript fees as provided for in this Act, said compensation shall be paid monthly by the commissioners court of the county in which the court sits, out of the general fund of the county, upon the certificate of the district judge. Provided, however, in districts of two or more counties the official shorthand reporter shall receive a salary of $1500.00 per annum, in addition to the compensation for transcript fees as provided for in this Act to be paid monthly by the counties of the district in proportion to the number of weeks provided by law for holding court in the respective counties. Provided that in a district wherein in any county in the district the term may continue until the business is disposed of, each county shall pay in proportion to the time court is actually held in such county. Provided, that when any criminal case is appealed and the defendant is not able to pay for a transcript as provided for in section 5 of this Act [Art. 1924], or to give security therefor, he may make affidavit of such fact, and upon the making and filing of such affidavit, the court shall order the stenographer to make such transcript in duplicate, and deliver them as herein provided in civil cases, but the stenographer shall receive no pay for same; provided, that should any such affidavit so made by such defendant be false he shall be prosecuted and punished as is now provided by law for making false affidavits. [Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 1925, superseded. Acts 1911, p. 264, sec. 8.]

Explanatory.—The latter part of section 8 of Acts 1911, p. 267, is included in this compilation as Art. 2071. See note under Art. 1920.

Power and duty of judge.—This law does not require the judge or the state to pay the stenographer for the use of his notes and the judge can require him to furnish a transcript of such portions of his notes as he may need to refresh his memory, where neither party demands and pays the stenographer for a transcript of his notes, and the judge is compelled to make out a statement of facts under article 2069. Middlehurst v. Collins-Gunther (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 1027.

Compensation.—See, also, Art. 1927.

Where a stenographer has been appointed by the judge of the district court in a judicial district composed of more than one county he can only be paid the fees that have been collected and paid into the general fund by taxing $3.00 as costs in each case pending in the court for which he has been appointed, even though this would be less than $5.00 per day for the time served by him. Robertson v. Ellis County, 38 C. A. 146, 84 S. W. 1098.

Stenographers in districts composed of more than one county must be paid out of the fund collected by the county for that purpose and not out of the general fund of the county. The amount due the stenographer in such districts is a claim against the county for which he is appointed and must be paid in the order of registration, whether the money is paid into the stenographer's fund during his term or afterwards. Shock v. Colorado County, 52 C. A. 473, 115 S. W. 62.

Certificate of judge.—Acts 1909, 31st Leg. (1st Called Sess.) c. 39, § 8, means that, if the per diem received in any given period should not be commensurate with the services performed during that period, the district judge should certify such fact to the commissioners' court, stating the additional amount which should be paid, and that a certificate that the stenographer "rendered more services to the court" than the statute provided compensation for without stating the amount which in the court's judgment the reporter should receive was insufficient. Etter v. McLennan County (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 251.

Art. 1926. Reporters to make transcript for any person; compensation.—At the request of any party to the suit it shall be the duty of the official shorthand reporter to make a transcript in typewriting of all the evidence and other proceedings or any portion thereof, in question and answer form, as provided in section 5 of this Act [Art. 1924], which transcript shall be paid for at the rate of fifteen cents per folio of 100 words by and be the property of the person ordering the same. [Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 1926, superseded. Acts 1911, p. 264, sec. 9.]

Explanatory.—See note under Art. 1920.

Duty to prepare and deliver transcript.—Defects in an appeal bond held insufficient to warrant the clerk of the trial court in refusing to prepare and deliver a transcript to appellant. Taylor v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 411.

A court stenographer is bound to prepare a transcript of his notes in narrative form; and, if he refuses, he may be compelled to do so. Routledge v. Elmendorf, 54 C. A. 174, 116 S. W. 156.

Mandamus to compel clerk.—See notes under Art. 2108.

Compensation.—This act does not contemplate that the stenographer's fee for a transcript of the evidence shall be taxed as costs, but it is payable by the party demanding the transcript. Flory v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 279.

Under the statute regulating official stenographers, their duties and compensation, an official stenographer held entitled to fees for furnishing a transcript, notwithstanding custom and practice of courts as to the duties of appellant's attorney in preparing a statement of facts. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Smith, 49 C. A. 637, 109 S. W. 1111.

Art. 1927. Stenographer's fee to be taxed as costs, when; payable into general fund of county, etc.—Hereafter the clerk of all courts having official shorthand reporters, as provided for in this Act, shall tax as costs in each civil case, where an answer is field, except suits for the collection of delinquent taxes, a stenographer's fee of three dollars, which shall be paid as other costs in the case and which shall be paid by said clerk, when collected, into the general funds of the county in which said court sits. [Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 1927, superseded. Acts 1911, p. 264, sec. 10.]

Explanatory.—See note under Art. 1920.

Art. 1928. Appointment of deputies; oath; examination.—The official shorthand reporter may, with the consent of the court, appoint one or more deputies, when necessary, to assist him in the discharge of his duties; provided, however, that before any such deputy shall enter upon the discharge of his duties as official shorthand reporter he shall subscribe to the same oath hereinbefore provided for the official shorthand reporters, and shall also be required to stand such examination as to his proficiency as may be required by the court. [Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 1928, superseded. Acts 1911, p. 264, sec. 11.]

Explanatory.—See note under Art. 1920.

Art. 1929.—Superseded by Acts 1911, p. 264. See Arts. 1920–1928, 1932, 1933, 2070, 2071, 2073.

Art. 1930. [1295] [1295] Special stenographer appointed, when.—Where there shall be no official stenographer, the court may, and upon application of either party shall, employ a competent stenographer or other person to take down the testimony in a cause, for the purpose of preserving a statement of the evidence given on the trial.

Application.—A refusal to make such appointment would not be reversible error, unless the complaining party was injured thereby. Hines v. Holland, 3 App. C. C. § 99.

Under this article a stenographer may be appointed to take down the evidence in any certain cause. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quinn (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1037.

This article merely provides that the court may, and upon the demand of either party, shall appoint a stenographer or some competent person to take down the evidence, but it provides nothing further to be done with the record kept by such person, and gives no effect to it. Evidently it was intended merely for reference in further proceedings. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quinn, 100 T. 613, 102 S. W. 723.

Exception.—The court is not required to appoint a stenographer when a competent person cannot be had, or the trial will be unreasonably delayed to obtain such a person. Hines v. Holland, 3 App. C. C. § 99.

Report of unofficial stenographer.—A stenographic report of a case by one who is not the official stenographer, but is appointed only for one case, cannot be considered in the appellate court. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quinn (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1037.

Art. 1931. [1296] [1296] Compensation of special stenographer.—In such case, reasonable compensation, not to exceed twenty cents per hundred words, shall be allowed such stenographer, to be fixed by the court and taxed in the bill of costs.

Compensation.—The court must fix the amount of the stenographer's fee and allow it and it must be entered in the bill of costs before the adverse party can be compelled to pay it. Mansfield v. Hogsett, 25 C. A. 66, 60 S. W. 785.

Court may appoint stenographer to take down and transcribe the testimony and allow compensation to be taxed as costs not exceeding 20 cents for each 200 words. Cox v. Patten, 66 S. W. (Civ. App.) 67, 68.

—— Taxable to losing party.—The compensation allowed the stenographer should be taxed against the losing party. Killfoil v. Moore (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 1024.

Art. 1932. Stenographer in civil case in county court; appointment; oath; compensation; other provisions applicable.—Whenever either party to a civil case pending in the county court shall apply therefor, the judge of the court shall appoint a competent stenographer to report the oral testimony given in such case, provided there is a competent stenographer present. Such stenographer shall take the oath herein prescribed, and shall receive compensation of to be not less than $5.00 per day, which shall be taxed and collected as costs; in such cases the provisions of this Act with respect to the preparation of the statement of facts, the time to be allowed therefor, and for the presentation to the opposite party, and the approving and filing thereof by the court, shall apply to all statements of facts in civil causes tried in the county court, and all provisions of law governing statements of facts and bills of exception to be filed in district courts and the use of same on appeal, shall apply to civil causes tried in the county courts. [Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 1932, repealed. Acts 1911, p. 264, sec. 12.]

Explanatory.—See note under Art. 1920.

Cited.—Gibson v. Singer Sewing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 633.

Application.—The provisions of this law apply to both county and district courts whether they do or do not have official stenographers. This act repeals all laws in conflict with its provisions. Garrison v. Richards (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 865.

The provisions of this act relative to incorporating the statement of facts in the transcript do not apply to criminal cases in the county court. Brogdon v. State, 63 Cr. R. 475, 140 S. W. 352.

Use of original statement of facts.—On an appeal from a county court in a civil case it is proper to bring the original statement of facts filed below to the appellate court instead of copying the statement in the transcript, even if the act of 1909 (Acts 1909, c. 39), instead of the act of March 31, 1911 (Acts 1911, c. 119), applies. McMullen v. Green (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 762.

Art. 1933. In felony cases reporter to keep stenographic record, to be made when and how; transcript for appointed attorney, when, and compensation for same.—In the trial of all criminal cases in the district court in which the defendant is charged with a felony, the official shorthand reporter shall keep an accurate stenographic record of all the proceedings of such trial in like manner as is provided for in civil cases, and should an appeal be prosecuted in any judgment of conviction, whenever the state and defendant can not agree as to the testimony of any witness, then and in such event, so much of the transcript of the official shorthand reporter's report with reference to such disputed fact or facts shall be inserted in the statement of facts as is necessary to show what the witness testified to in regard to the same, and constitute a part of the statement of facts, and the same shall apply to the preparation of bills of exception; provided, that such stenographer's report when carried into the statement of facts or bills of exception, shall be condensed so as not to contain the questions and answers, except where, in the opinion of the judge, such questions and answers may be necessary in order to elucidate the fact or question involved. Provided, that in all cases where the court is required to and does appoint an attorney to represent the defendant in a criminal action, that the official shorthand reporter shall be required to furnish the attorney for said defendant, if convicted, and where an appeal is prosecuted, with a transcript of his notes as provided in section 5 of this Act [Art. 1924], for which said service he shall be paid by the state of Texas, upon the certificate of the district judge, one-half of the rate provided for herein in civil cases. [Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 1933, repealed. Acts 1911, p. 264, sec. 14.]

Explanatory.—See note under Art. 1920. See art. 2071, as to statement of facts prepared by stenographer.

Furnishing transcript to poor defendant.—This article does not authorize the furnishing of a transcript of the evidence at the expense of the state to an accused who was represented by employed counsel. Jackson v. State (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1183.

Under Code Cr. Proc. art. 558, requiring the court in capital felony cases to appoint counsel for accused too poor to employ counsel, and this article, the court, in a capital felony case, must, where it appoints an attorney for accused because he is too poor to employ counsel, require the official stenographer when an appeal is perfected to furnish a transcript, and where the court orders the stenographer so to do it must see that the order is complied with. Burden v. State (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1196.

CHAPTER TWELVE

TRIAL OF CAUSES

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 1934. [1280] [1280] Appearance day.—The second day of each term of the district or county court is termed appearance day. [Acts of 1891, p. 94.]

See Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 715.

Premature trial on appearance day.—See notes under Art. 1944.

Default judgment.—See notes under Art. 1936.

Art. 1935. [1281] [1281] Call of the appearance docket.—It shall be the duty of the court on appearance day of each term, or as soon thereafter as may be practicable, to call, in their order, all the cases on the docket which are returnable to such term.

See Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 715.

Appearance as amicus curiæ.—See note under Art. 1881.

Appeal from justice's court.—An appeal from a justice's court cannot be called before appearance day. Hadden v. Smith (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 458.

Premature trial on appearance day.—See notes under Art. 1944.

Art. 1936. [1282] [1282] Judgment by default.—Upon the call of the appearance docket, or at any time after appearance day, the plaintiff may take judgment by default against any defendant who has been duly served with process and who has not previously filed an answer. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 12. P. D. 1508.]

See Breed v. Higginbotham Bros. & Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 164; Alamo Club v. State, 147 S. W. 639.

Pleading to sustain judgment.—A petition subject to general demurrer will not sustain a judgment by default on appeal or error. Seastrunk v. Pioneer Savings & Loan Co. (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 466.

A judgment by default will be set aside when the petition shows no cause of action. Shaw v. Lobitz (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 877.

Affidavit verifying an account sued on examined, and held not sufficient to warrant judgment by default. Brin v. Washusetts Shirt Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 295.

Where, in action against married woman, there was nothing in the pleadings to apprise the court of such fact, and she did not appear, a judgment against her was not void. Focke v. Sterling, 18 C. A. 8, 44 S. W. 611.

A default judgment cannot be rendered against a defendant as to whom a cause of action is not stated. Andrews v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co., 92 T. 584, 50 S. W. 572.

A petition held to allege facts showing a novation, and therefore insufficient to sustain a judgment against the original debtor. Palmer v. Spandenberg, 50 C. A. 565, 110 S. W. 760.

Answer in a suit to recover land held insufficient to authorize affirmative judgment for defendant on plaintiff's failure to appear. Wood v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1150.

—— Amendments.—It is error to enter judgment by default upon an amended petition, where the defendant was not cited to answer it, and did not waive citation, accept service, nor enter an appearance. Pena v. Pena (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1027.

Where an amended petition states a new cause of action, judgment by default cannot be rendered for the additional relief, when defendants are not cited to answer thereto. Franklin v. City of Houston, 22 C. A. 455, 54 S. W. 913.

Withdrawal of appearance or answer.—In a suit against an administrator on a rejected claim for money, the withdrawal of an answer will authorize a judgment by default as in other cases. Heath v. Garrett, 46 T. 23.

The withdrawal of defendant's answer is equivalent to a judgment nil dicit. Graves v. Cameron, 77 T. 273, 14 S. W. 59.

It is within the discretion of the trial court to permit the plaintiff to withdraw his announcement of "ready for trial," and amend his pleadings. This discretion should be used to attain the ends of justice, and is not arbitrary and absolute. Greely-Burnham Grocery Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 487; citing Whitehead v. Foley, 28 T. 1; Obert v. Landa, 59 T. 475; Railway Co. v. Goldberg, 68 T. 685, 5 S. W. 824.

A defendant against whom a default judgment was entered held guilty of neglect. Milam v. Gordon, 29 C. A. 415, 68 S. W. 1003.

Default in pleading.—It is reversible error to render a judgment by default where an answer is on file. McKaugham v. Harrison, 25 T. Sup. 462; Kinnard v. Herlock, 20 T. 48; Bedwell v. Thompson, 25 T. Sup. 246; Cain v. Thomas, 26 T. 581; Hepburn v. Danville Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 988.

An answer not called to the attention of the court will not prevent a judgment by default. Lytle v. Custead, 23 S. W. 451, 4 C. A. 490.

When an answer is on file in a case, a judgment by default will be set aside on motion of the defendant. In this case it appeared that the parties had entered into a written agreement staying the proceedings in the cause in order to effect a compromise, but it did not appear that the fact of the answer being filed was called to the attention of the court. Sevier v. Turner (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 294.

To defeat a default judgment for want of an answer in the district court, defendant must file an answer consisting of a written pleading. State v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 224.

By Art. 1934 the second day of the term is made appearance day, at which, by the terms of the succeeding article all cases returnable to that term must be called. The absence of an answer justifies a judgment by default. If an answer is filed the case is passed for trial in its order upon the docket, subject to such setting as may be made, either by agreement or proper order of the court. Gardell v. Gardell, 42 C. A. 202, 94 S. W. 457.

In a suit to cancel deeds and remove cloud from title, where a defendant accepts service and enters appearance, but files no answer or other pleading, judgment by default may be entered and the defendant cannot assail the plaintiff's title in the Appellate Court. Wandelohr v. Grayson Co. Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 747.

An answer not brought to attention of the court will not prevent a judgment by default. Bartlett v. S. M. Jones Co. (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 705.

The error in entering a default judgment for plaintiff without disposing of the issues raised by defendant setting up a cross-action against codefendant is not excused by the fact that the court's attention was not called to the pleadings. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Epps & Matsler (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1012; Same v. Harlan (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1013.

Under Acts 1907, c. 166, § 5, which provides that no corporation shall employ or use its stock or other property for any purpose, other than to accomplish the legitimate objects of its creation, or that permitted by law, and that any corporation which violates those provisions shall, on proof thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction, forfeit its permit, license, or charter, and this article, it was held that, in a suit to forfeit the franchise of a corporate club because of its illegal sale of liquor, a default judgment could be taken; section 5 not withdrawing this class of cases from the operation of the general rule as to defaults, and merely requiring the facts to be judicially ascertained. Alamo Club v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 639.

An answer filed, but not called to the attention of the court, will not render the entry of a judgment by default error. Gillaspie v. Huntsville (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1114.

—— Time of answering or filing answer.—Under Art. 1905 default judgment on the first day of the term in an appearance case is erroneous. Cockrell v. State, 22 C. A. 568, 55 S. W. 579.

A default judgment will be reversed on appeal, where the record shows that it was rendered on the first day of the term. Gulf, B. & K. C. Ry. Co. v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 648.

A judgment, in view of the answer filed in the manner agreed to by the parties, held not a default judgment. McAnally v. Vickry (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 857.

The filing of an answer by defendant after judgment by default for failure to answer before the call of the appearance docket held unavailable. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 715.

Where, on hearing a motion for default judgment, on appearance day the trial court took it under advisement, with the understanding that on its sustention the order should relate back to that day, the right to enter judgment was not defeated by defendant filing an answer the day before the motion was sustained. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Neil P. Anderson & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 182.

—— Sufficiency of answer.—A general denial, or an answer bad on general exception, will prevent a judgment by default. Able v. Chandler, 12 T. 88, 62 Am. Dec. 518; Kinnard v. Herlock, 20 T. 48; Bedwell v. Thompson, 25 T. Sup. 245; Tally v. Thorn, 35 T. 727; Middleton v. McCamant, 39 T. 146.

The filing of a plea alleging only that the premises sued for were part of the homestead of defendant and his wife, and praying that she be made a party, was not the filing of such answer as would prevent the entry of a judgment by default under this article. Gillaspie v. Huntsville (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1114.

—— Presumptions.—All presumptions will be indulged in support of the judgment. Look v. Henderson, 4 T. 303; Pierson v. Burney, 15 T. 272; Townsend v. Ratcliff, 50 T. 148.

When an answer appears to have been filed in support of a judgment by default, it will be presumed that it was not in fact filed or was not called to the attention of the court. Hopkins v. Donaho, 4 T. 336; Pierson v. Burney, 15 T. 272. See Tally v. Thorn, 35 T. 727; London Assur. Corp. v. Lee, 66 T. 247, 18 S. W. 508.

Conformity to pleadings.—Judgment by default must conform to the allegations of the petition. Graves v. Farquhar, 20 T. 455; Storey v. Nichols, 22 T. 87; Pressley v. Testard, 29 T. 199; Hawkins v. Henry, 1 App. C. C. § 723; Johnson v. Dowling, 1 App. C. C. § 1091.

Jurisdictional matters.—A judgment by default without proper service of citation is void. Graves v. Robertson, 22 T. 130; Arnold v. Scott, 39 T. 378; Sloan v. Batte, 46 T. 215; Insurance Co. v. Milliken, 64 T. 46. And so where the return of the sheriff shows service before suit was filed. Texas State Fair & Dallas Exposition v. Lyon, 24 S. W. 328, 5 C. A. 382.

A judgment by default against a party cited by an erroneous name will be reversed. Southern Pac. Co. v. Block Bros., 84 T. 21, 19 S. W. 300; Same v. Burns (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 288.

A citation which did not state the nature of the demand against defendant therein, otherwise than by reciting that he had been impleaded as warrantor, was insufficient to support a default judgment against him. McCullar v. Murchison (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 545.

Failure of sheriff to note the hour of the day on which he received citation held not to render judgment by default thereon void. Harbolt v. State, 37 Cr. R. 639, 40 S. W. 998.

Judgment in plaintiff's favor against the original defendants in an action could not be affected by the fact that judgment over in defendants' favor against a third party, attempted to be brought in as a party defendant, was void for want of jurisdiction. Butler v. Holmes, 29 C. A. 48, 68 S. W. 52.

Findings as to the manner of service of a citation, made in a default judgment, may be considered in connection with the return in determining the sufficiency of the service. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 855.

Under the statute in regard to service of process on foreign corporations, a default judgment against such a corporation held not authorized. National Cereal Co. v. Earnest (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 734.

The petition, recital, and return held properly consulted to either support or destroy a default judgment reciting the particular kind of citation made on defendant. Lutcher v. Allen, 43 C. A. 102, 95 S. W. 572.

See, also, notes under Art. 1885.

Final judgment.—When a judgment by default is entered of record it should be made final if it is not set aside. Bateman v. Pool, 84 T. 405, 19 S. W. 552.

Record and recitals.—As to the effect of a recital of service of process in the judgment when it does not otherwise appear of record, see Miller v. Alexander, 8 T. 36; Chester v. Walters, 30 T. 53; Smith v. Wood, 37 T. 616; Caldwell v. Brown, 43 T. 216; Thompson v. Griffis, 19 T. 115; Burditt v. Howth, 45 T. 466.

Where there is judgment by default the record must show service of process. Hart v. Weatherford, 19 T. 57.

A judgment by default will be reversed unless the record shows a service of citation, or an appearance by the defendant, even though the judgment contains a recital that defendant was duly served with citation. Bomar v. Morris (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 663.

If a judgment rendered against defendant was in fact by default, it was not the less binding upon him because it recited that the parties appeared by their attorneys, etc. Anderson v. Zorn (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 835.

Construction and operation.—A judgment by default admits every allegation in the petition except as to the amount of damages. Long v. Wortham, 4 T. 381; Swift v. Faris, 11 T. 18; Clark v. Compton, 15 T. 32; Guest v. Rhine, 16 T. 549; Prince v. Thompson, 21 T. 480; Ricks v. Pinson, 21 T. 507; Morrison v. Van Bibber, 25 T. Sup. 153; Tarrant County v. Lively, 25 T. Sup. 399; Niblett v. Shelton, 28 T. 548; Mason v. Slevin, 1 App. C. C. § 11.

It does not operate as a waiver of error apparent on the record. Holland v. Cook, 10 T. 244. Or where the answer is withdrawn after demurrer is overruled. Frazier v. Todd, 4 T. 461.

A judgment by nil dicit operates as a waiver of errors, except such as involve the jurisdiction of the court. Goodlet v. Stamps, 29 T. 121; Rogers v. Harrison, 1 App. C. C. § 494.

While a judgment by default is in force, defendants should not be allowed to answer nor introduce evidence except such as might be proper without answer. State v. Quillen (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 660.

While a default judgment imports the truth of every material allegation of fact in the petition, inferences cannot be indulged beyond this. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Jasper, 56 C. A. 236, 120 S. W. 1145.

The effect of an interlocutory judgment by default is to deprive the defendant of the privilege of filing an answer; defendant being thereafter entitled only to demand a jury trial as to the damages. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 715.

Setting aside default.—See notes under Art. 2019.

Collateral attack.—See notes under Art. 1994.

Urging objections for first time on writ of error.—Where a judgment was rendered against a nonresident insurance company by default, it could not urge for the first time on a writ of error as ground for reversal that its default resulted from accident and that it had a good defense to the action. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Herbert, 48 C. A. 95, 106 S. W. 421.

Art. 1937. [1283] [1283] Where some defendants answer and others do not.—Where there are several defendants, some of whom have answered and others have made default, an interlocutory judgment by default may be entered against those who have not answered, and the cause may proceed against the others; but only one final judgment shall be given in the suit. [Id. sec. 47. P. D. 1450.]

Answer by part of defendants.—One of several defendants failed to answer. The others made a successful defense and judgment was rendered in favor of all. On appeal the judgment was affirmed as to those answering and reversed and remanded as to the other. Am. Salt Co. v. Heidenheimer, 80 T. 344, 15 S. W. 1038, 26 Am. St. Rep. 743.

Upon suit on a note and for foreclosure of a lien given to secure it, and judgment by default against one defendant, plaintiff was entitled as against that defendant to the full amount of the debt claimed and to foreclosure of the lien, and it was error to grant a credit in favor of the defendant. Brant v. Lane, 54 C. A. 425, 118 S. W. 229.

A judgment of the county court, reciting that at the regular term a cause was regularly called for trial, that plaintiff and defendant in person announced ready for trial, that codefendant defaulted, that a jury was waived and all matters of facts and law submitted to the court, who ordered a judgment for plaintiff against codefendant as principal and third persons as sureties, and against defendant and codefendant jointly and severally, and in favor of defendant against codefendant, held not a default judgment. Chapa v. Compton (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1175.

In an action against several defendants, where one did not appear, and the court in its instructions directed that as to him the jury should find for plaintiff because he had defaulted and judgment was rendered against all predicated only upon the verdict, there was no judgment adjudicating anything as against the defendant who had defaulted. Danner v. Walker-Smith Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 295.

Final judgment.—Under this article and Art. 1997, declaring that there shall be but one final judgment in a suit, a default judgment against a defendant duly cited, who fails to appear, and which does not dispose of the issue as to a codefendant appearing and obtaining a continuance, is not a "final judgment," and there is no warrant for abstracting it. Blankenship & Buchanan v. Herring (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 882.

Notice to codefendants.—Where service is complete as to one defendant but not as to others an interlocutory judgment may be taken against him, but no final judgment can be entered until service is perfected as to all, unless there is a dismissal as to those not served. Cockrell v. State (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 580.

Where a defendant appeared and answered plaintiff's petition for the recovery of money collected by defendant, and a codefendant answered setting up a cause of action against defendant for the same fund, and then procured the service of citation on defendant and obtained default judgment thereon, the default judgment was improperly entered, for the citation was unnecessary and of no effect. Vernor v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 641.

Where one of several defendants pleads over against a codefendant asserting against him rights in the subject-matter of the litigation not mentioned in the petition, notice must be served on the codefendant, unless he has answered in the main case. Id.

Art. 1938. [1284] [1284] Damages on liquidated demands, how assessed.—Where a judgment by default is rendered against the defendant, or all of several defendants, if the cause of action is liquidated and proved by an instrument in writing, the damages shall be assessed by the court, or under its direction, and judgment final shall be rendered therefor, unless the defendant shall demand and be entitled to a trial by jury. [Id.]

See Western Union Tel. Co. v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 715; Alamo Club v. State, 147 S. W. 639.

Liquidated damages.—Unless a contrary intention can be clearly ascertained from an inspection of a contract under which liquidated damages were claimed courts will not recognize an agreement to pay a sum, on its breach, largely in excess of actual damages sustained, as liquidated damages; yet in every case the intention of the parties must govern. When it can be clearly ascertained from the terms of a contract that liquidated damages were to be paid in a sum agreed on in the event of its breach it will be so enforced. In an executory contract for the sale and delivery of cattle, $50,000 was to be paid in instalments; the first was to be at sixty days for $8,000. The note for $8,000 contained this language: "It is agreed by me that the above amount ($8,000) shall act as a forfeiture in the event I shall abandon the trade." The contract provided as follows: "The first note for $8,000, due in sixty days from the date hereof, is to act as a forfeiture and be forfeited by the said (obligor) in the event that he abandon this trade." Held, that on a breach of the contract the vendor was entitled to recover the $8,000 as liquidated damages. Eakin v. Scott, 70 T. 442, 7 S. W. 777.

Liquidated damages defined. Fessman v. Seeley (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 268; Lindsey v. Rockwall County, 10 C. A. 225, 30 S. W. 380; Halff v. O'Connor, 14 C. A. 191, 37 S. W. 238.

Art. 1939. [1285] [1285] On unliquidated demands, etc.—If in such case the cause of action is unliquidated or be not proved by an instrument in writing, the court shall hear evidence as to the damages and shall render judgment therefor, unless the defendant shall demand and be entitled to a trial by jury. [Id.]

See Alamo Club v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 639.

Inquest of damages.—When it does not appear from the petition that the cause of action is proved by an instrument in writing, the damages must be assessed. Freeman v. Jordan, 33 T. 428.

In an action against the sureties of a sheriff for nonfeasance or malfeasance, the damages must be proven. Hurlock v. Reinhardt, 41 T. 580.

Where defendant filed an answer after the time therefor had expired and an interlocutory judgment by default had been rendered, plaintiff's attorney was under no obligation to seek defendant's counsel and notify him that testimony would be heard on the inquest of damages. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Skinner (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 715.

Evidence.—When the indorsements on a note show that the defendant is entitled to credits, they must be allowed. Houston v. Morrison, 10 T. 1; Holland v. Cook, 10 T. 244; Harland v. Hendricks, 19 T. 292.

A judgment for damages cannot be rendered on a sworn account without other evidence. H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. White, 1 App. C. C. § 164; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Looby, 1 App. C. C. § 577.

A verified account, the affidavit to which is defective, will not support a judgment by default. Duer v. Endres, 1 App. C. C. § 323.

A deputy United States marshal, who also was agent for a land company, levied upon cattle under an execution for costs against the parties under whom plaintiff claimed. There was some evidence tending to support a claim for exemplary damages against the deputy. There was no evidence that the land company either directed the levy or subsequently approved it. Held, that a judgment for exemplary damages against the land company was not supported by the evidence and was error. Rankin v. Bell, 85 T. 28, 19 S. W. 874.

A default judgment for plaintiff in an action against carriers for negligence in a shipment of cattle held erroneous because of want of evidence to sustain it. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Epps & Matsler (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1012; Same v. Harlan (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1013.

Measure of damages.—The measure of damages for the conversion of personal property purchased at a judicial sale is its market value at the time of delivery with legal interest. Huckens v. Leitner, 4 App. C. C. § 18, 14 S. W. 1016; Houghton v. Puryear, 10 C. A. 383, 30 S. W. 583.

On a claim for damages for work improperly done, the measure is the difference in its value as done and what its value would have been if properly done. Such damage is fully adjusted when the party doing the work is only allowed the actual value of his work. Fagan v. Whitcomb, 4 App. C. C. § 28, 14 S. W. 1018.

One of several joint owners of property cannot recover damages for injury thereto beyond his interest. Railway Co. v. Saunder, 4 App. C. C. § 304, 18 S. W. 793.

Measure of damages on sale of chattels not delivered is the difference between market value and price agreed on. Davenport v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 922. In sale of land the measure of damages is the difference in value between the land as it would have been if as represented and as it actually was at time of sale. Farmer v. Randel (Sup.) 28 S. W. 384.

The measure of damages for eviction from rented farming land is the difference in value of what the tenant agreed to pay for the use of the land and that which the use of the land was worth. If no difference existed, the tenant is entitled only to nominal damages. Loyd v. Capps (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 505; citing Haker v. Boedeker, 1 App. C. C. § 1034; Murphy v. Service, 2 App. C. C. § 748; Swasey v. Gay, 3 App. C. C. § 226; Hassell v. Nutt, 14 T. 261; De La Zerda v. Korn, 25 T. Sup. 188; Railway

Co. v. Shirley, 45 T. 372; Railway Co. v. Hill, 63 T. 385, 51 Am. Rep. 642; Hearne v. Garrett, 49 T. 625; Buck v. Morrow, 21 S. W. 398, 2 C. A. 361.

—— Punitive damages.—A tort committed by mistake in the assertion of a supposed right, or without such recklessness or negligence as evinces malice or conscious disregard of the rights of others, will not warrant the giving of punitive damages. Smith v. Holland, 4 App. C. C. § 253, 16 S. W. 424.

—— Profits.—The profits that may be considered in giving damages for a breach of contract are such as are the direct and immediate fruits of the contract between the parties. Railway Co. v. Shirley, 45 T. 355; O'Connor v. Smith, 84 T. 232, 19 S. W. 168.

Personal injury.—Damages recoverable for personal injuries are confined to the pecuniary loss sustained. Railway Co. v. Finley, 11 C. A. 64, 32 S. W. 51. See Driess v. Frederick, 73 T. 460, 11 S. W. 493.

Art. 1940. [1286] [1286] Jury to assess damages, when.—If the defendant shall demand and be entitled to a trial by jury, the judgment by default shall be noted and a writ of inquiry awarded, and the cause shall be entered on the jury docket. [Id.]

Demand.—When judgment by default is rendered, the defendant is not entitled to have the damages claimed in the petition assessed by a jury, if he has failed in proper time and manner to demand a jury and to deposit the proper fee. Bumpass v. Morrison, 70 T. 756, 8 S. W. 596.

A failure to demand a jury or pay the jury fee by agreement of parties does not defeat the right thereto. Scott v. Rowland, 14 C. A. 370, 37 S. W. 380.

Plaintiff's right to jury.—The plaintiff has the right to demand a jury on the same conditions as the defendant. Railway Co. v. Morris, 68 T. 49, 3 S. W. 457.

Art. 1941. [1346] [1212, 1345] Procedure in case of service by publication where no answer, etc.—Where service of process has been made by publication, and no answer has been filed nor appearance entered within the time prescribed by law, the court shall appoint an attorney to defend the suit in behalf of the defendant, and judgment shall be rendered as in other cases; but, in every such case, a statement of the evidence, approved and signed by the judge, shall be filed with the papers of the cause as part of the record thereof. The court shall allow such attorney a reasonable compensation for his services, to be taxed as part of the costs of the suit. [Acts 1846, p. 363, sec. 128. Acts 1866, p. 125, sec. 1. P. D. 1488, 26.]

For general provisions as to suits against nonresidents, see chapter 23 of this title, and especially Art. 2175.

See Cain v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 834; Hopkins v. Cain, 105 T. 591, 143 S. W. 1145; Alamo Club v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 639.

Appointment of attorney.—A failure to appoint an attorney for the defendant cannot affect the sale and is not a material circumstance in an inquiry into the validity of the sale. Crosby v. Bannowsky (Sup.) 68 S. W. 48.

Appointment of an attorney ad litem for defendant, unknown heirs, before the beginning of the term to which the citation is returnable, is, at most, only an irregularity. Steele's Unknown Heirs v. Belding (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 592.

See Art. 2035.

Conclusiveness of judgment.—A judgment upon service by publication is as conclusive as one rendered upon personal service. Every presumption is in favor of the jurisdiction of the court and the validity of the judgment. To attack the jurisdiction it must affirmatively appear that the facts essential to it did not in fact exist. Hardy v. Beaty, 84 T. 562, 19 S. W. 778, 31 Am. St. Rep. 80; Buse v. Bartlett, 1 C. A. 335, 21 S. W. 52.

A judgment decreeing title to land is conclusive upon a nonresident defendant cited by publication. A judgment for costs in personam against a nonresident in such a suit is without jurisdiction and a sale under it is void. Hardy v. Beaty, 84 T. 562, 19 S. W. 778, 31 Am. St. Rep. 80. See Taliaferro v. Butler, 77 T. 580, 14 S. W. 191; Foote v. Sewall, 81 T. 660, 17 S. W. 373; Gillon v. Wear, 9 C. A. 44, 28 S. W. 1014; Freeman v. Alderson, 119 U. S. 190, 7 S. Ct. 165, 30 L. Ed. 372; Arndt v. Griggs, 134 U. S. 316, 10 S. Ct. 557, 33 L. Ed. 918.

A recital in the judgment that nonresident defendants were duly cited by publication imports absolute verity. Gillon v. Wear, 9 C. A. 44, 28 S. W. 1014.

Collateral attack.—See notes under Art. 1994.

Time for filing statement.—The statute authorizing the filing, without an order, of statements of fact after adjournment of court, applies to statements of evidence required to be filed under this article, and hence a statement of the evidence not filed until two days after filing of the petition and bond for writ of error was not filed too late. Epley v. O'Donnell (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 741.

Sufficiency of abatement.—An approved statement of facts setting out the evidence and filed with the papers was a sufficient "statement of the evidence" under this article. Epley v. O'Donnell (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 741.

Review.—A plaintiff cannot on appeal have a reversal of the judgment on the ground that the requirements of this article were not complied with. Taliafero v. Carter, 74 T. 637, 12 S. W. 750.

The failure to file a statement of facts after the court has obtained jurisdiction by attachment and rendered judgment on service by publication does not render the judgment void. This provision of the statute was intended to secure to nonresident defendant the benefit of a review of the judgment in a direct proceeding. Buse v. Bartlett, 1 C. A. 335, 21 S. W. 52.

A failure to observe the requirements of this article as to the appointment of an attorney ad litem and filing a statement of the evidence approved and signed by the judge requires a reversal of the judgment. Garvey v. State (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 873.

Attorney's fee as part of costs.—Where an attorney is appointed by the court to represent an absent defendant cited by publication a reasonable fee should be taxed as part of the costs. Williams v. Sapieha, 94 T. 430, 61 S. W. 116.

Art. 1942. [1211] [1211] Guardian ad litem for minors, lunatics, etc.—In all cases when a minor, lunatic, idiot or a non compos mentis may be a defendant to a suit, and it shall be shown to the court that such minor, lunatic, idiot or person non compos mentis has no guardian within the state, it shall be the duty of the court to appoint a guardian ad litem for such minor, lunatic, idiot or person non compos mentis for the purpose of defending such suit, and to allow him a reasonable compensation for his services, to be taxed as a part of the costs of suit. [Acts 1846, p. 374. Acts 1895, p. 80. P. D. 1446.]

A guardian ad litem may be appointed for an infant plaintiff, where an intervener asks affirmative relief against him. Long v. Behan, 19 C. A. 325, 48 S. W. 555.

The statutes do not preclude the appointment of a guardian ad litem for an infant plaintiff. Id.

The rules of practice in courts of equity permit the representation by next friend of parties to suits who, though not non compos mentis, are, by reason of mental or bodily infirmity incapable of properly caring for their own interests in the litigation. Lindly v. Lindly, 102 T. 135, 113 S. W. 752.

Application and appointment in general.—The law only authorizes appointment of a guardian ad litem for minor when he is defendant in a suit. Duke v. Wheeler, 28 C. A. 391, 67 S. W. 439.

The fact that the court permitted one J. to act in behalf of an insane defendant, and recognized him throughout as a suitable representative, held tantamount to an appointment of J. for that purpose. Lindly v. Lindly (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 467.

Duty and power of court.—If minors have lawful guardians they should be made parties to suits in which minors are interested; if not, or the guardians are interested adversely to the minors, special guardians must be appointed. Pucket v. Johnson, 45 T. 550; Insurance Co. v. Ray, 50 T. 511; Bond v. Dillard, 50 T. 300; Hawkins v. Forrest, 1 U. C. 167.

A guardian cannot be appointed until the minor has been duly served with process. Wheeler v. Ahrenbeck, 54 T. 535; Kremer v. Haynie, 67 T. 450, 3 S. W. 676; Maury v. Keller (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 59.

Minors residing beyond the limits of the county in which the suit was pending, and served with copies of the writ only, and not with copies of the petition, are not properly served, and the court cannot appoint a guardian ad litem for them. Kremer v. Haynie, 67 T. 450, 3 S. W. 676.

Court may appoint a guardian ad litem to defend, whose fee may be taxed as costs. Glasscock v. Stringer (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 676.

A guardian ad litem held properly appointed, where the regular guardian was disqualified by interest. Shiner v. Shiner, 14 C. A. 489, 40 S. W. 439.

This article applies only where there is no controversy as to the defendant's lunacy, and hence it was not error to refuse to appoint a guardian ad litem in a suit against the alleged incompetent to foreclose a deed of trust securing a debt, where the question of incompetency was disputed and finally decided to the contrary. Koppe v. Groginsky (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 984.

Validity of judgment.—A judgment rendered without actual service of process on a minor defendant, represented by a guardian ad litem, is not void but voidable only. Alston v. Emmerson, 83 T. 231, 18 S. W. 566, 29 Am. St. Rep. 639; Kegans v. Allcorn, 9 T. 34; Wheeler v. Ahrenbeck, 54 T. 536; Kremer v. Haynie, 67 T. 451, 3 S. W. 676; Sprague v. Haynes, 68 T. 215, 4 S. W. 371. See Russell v. Railway Co., 68 T. 646, 5 S. W. 686; Ashe v. Young, 68 T. 123, 5 S. W. 454. But it will be reversed on appeal. Ashe v. Young, 68 T. 123, 5 S. W. 454.

The fact that one of the parties against whom judgment in partition was rendered was a minor, not represented by guardian, did not invalidate the judgment, where he transferred his interest to the party for whom judgment was rendered. Shelburn v. McCrocklin (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 329.

Judgment in action against minor sued by wrong name, but duly served, where counsel are employed by him and a guardian ad litem appointed, held binding until set aside by some direct attack. McGhee v. Romatka, 92 T. 38, 45 S. W. 552.

A judgment against a minor without the appointment of a guardian ad litem is erroneous, and may be set aside by a suit brought for that purpose. Wallis v. Stuart, 92 T. 468, 50 S. W. 567.

It is the duty of the court in case the infant defendant has no regular guardian to appoint a guardian ad litem to make his defense. It is reversible error to render judgment against a minor, without his being represented by a guardian. If the minor has been served with process such judgment is voidable but not void. Id.

Where judgment is based upon an agreed statement of facts made by the parties, which is not signed by the guardian ad litem of a minor defendant or by any person representing the guardian or the minor, it will not affect the rights of the minor. Samuel Cupples Wooden-Ware Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 318.

A judgment against minors, who do not appear to have a guardian, without a guardian ad litem having been appointed by the court, is erroneous. Butner v. Norwood (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 78.

A judgment or compromise by a guardian ad litem is not void, and to set it aside it must be shown that it was inequitable and unfair to the minor. Johnson v. Johnson, 38 C. A. 385, 85 S. W. 1023.

Failure of the court to appoint a guardian ad litem for an infant defendant, as required by this article, is an error for which the judgment against the infant will be reversed, but does not render the judgment void. Grogan v. Spaulding (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1014.

—— Setting aside judgment against minor.—See notes under Art. 2019.

Compensation for services.—Compensation to a special guardian appointed to represent minor defendants should be taxed upon the property of the minors for whom the services were rendered. So held in a suit to recover land and for partition. Holloway v. McIlhenny, 77 T. 657, 14 S. W. 240. See Alston v. Emmerson, 83 T. 231, 18 S. W. 566, 29 Am. St. Rep. 639; Glasscock v. Stringer (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 677.

Allowance of $50 not set aside as excessive in the absence of any evidence of the extent of the services. McCallon v. Cohen (Civ. App.) 39 S. W. 973.

Fees of a guardian ad litem are taxed as costs against the losing party. Tutt's Heirs v. Morgan, 18 C. A. 627, 46 S. W. 122.

The power of the legislature to authorize the taxing of attorney's fees as costs against the losing party has been uniformly upheld where the law imposed a like burden on all litigants. Williams v. Sapieha (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 949.

On motion to fix compensation of infant defendants' guardian ad litem, evidence as to the amount paid the attorneys for plaintiff, who sought relief of the same character as the infants and recovered less than they recovered, was admissible. Japhet v. Pullen (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1188.

The fixing of a guardian ad litem's compensation is not reviewable unless an abuse of discretion clearly appears. Id.

Where court deferred fixing an allowance to infant defendants' guardian ad litem after hearing evidence, it could, when it subsequently fixed the allowance, consider the testimony taken on the prior hearing. Id.

In determining the allowance to be made to an attorney acting as guardian ad litem for infant defendants, the importance of the case, the amount of work performed, the amount involved, the benefits to the infants from the litigation, and the character of the compensation, whether contingent or fixed, should be considered. Id.

The fixing of a guardian ad litem's compensation rests in the sound discretion of the trial court. Id.

Art. 1943. [1287] [1287] Suits called in their order, etc.—All suits in which final judgments shall not have been rendered by default, as hereinbefore provided, shall be called for trial in the order in which they stand on the docket to which they belong, unless otherwise ordered by the court. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 93. P. D. 1461.]

Call for trial.—A suit cannot be called for trial out of its regular order and before the causes having precedence on the docket have been tried, postponed, set or heeled. Kirkland v. Sullivan, 43 T. 233.

The requirements of this article are not complied with by trying each case when called up by one of the parties before its time. Bostwick v. Bostwick, 73 T. 182, 11 S. W. 178.

A party cannot complain at the second calling for trial of a cause upon the jury docket which has been passed to the end of the docket, when all cases preceding it at the time it was so passed had been tried or continued, although other cases placed upon the docket subsequent to the passing of the case were undisposed of. Express Co. v. Real Estate Association, 81 T. 81, 16 S. W. 792.

—— Practice.—An established practice to take up cases and dispose of them out of their consecutive order does not supply the absence of the order contemplated by the statute. Gardell v. Gardell, 42 C. A. 202, 94 S. W. 458.

Power of court.—The trial of the case out of its regular order is no ground for reversal unless it is shown that some injury resulted therefrom. Allyn v. Willis, 65 T. 65.

The court may require a case to be tried out of its order without reference to the consent of the parties. Railway Co. v. Shuford, 72 T. 165, 10 S. W. 408; Mayer v. Duke, 72 T. 445, 10 S. W. 565.

A case cannot be set for trial on a particular day without the consent of the judge. But if so set it may be a sufficient excuse for absence of counsel. Holliday v. Holliday, 72 T. 581, 10 S. W. 690.

The court can require a cause to be tried out of its regular order without reference to the consent of parties, and such a trial gives no ground for reversal unless it is shown that same injury to the party complaining resulted therefrom. Ranson v. Leggett (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 669.

The court can take up a case and try it out of its regular order without reference to consent of parties, and it will not be reversed therefor unless it is shown that some injury has resulted to the party complaining therefrom. Bartlett v. S. M. Jones & Co. (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 707.

Art. 1944. [1288] [1288] To be tried when called, unless, etc.—Every suit shall be tried when it is called, unless it be continued or postponed to a future day of the term, or be placed at the end of the docket to be called again for trial in its regular order. [Id.]

See Alamo Club v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 639.

Discretion of court in general.—The postponement of the trial of a cause when called to a later day in the term is within the discretion of the judge. Capt. v. Stubbs, 68 T. 222, 4 S. W. 467.

Exercise of a trial judge's discretion in enforcing rules and regulating the time for trials will be disturbed only for clear abuse. Smith v. Norton (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 733.

Withdrawal of announcement of ready.—See notes under Art. 1824.

Excuse.—Where parties to a suit set the case for trial in the district court for a day when by the orders of the court no jury will be in attendance, the absence of a jury will not be a reason for the continuance of the case. Litigants are chargeable with knowledge of the standing orders of the court. Cole v. Terrell, 71 T. 549, 9 S. W. 668.

Delay.—When delay results from the failure to comply with the statute a jury trial should be refused. Cabell v. Shoe Co., 81 T. 104, 16 S. W. 811.

Premature trial.—Where plaintiff filed a complaint during term time, and defendants waived their right to have the cause passed to another term by answering, plaintiff cannot complain because it was not passed. Lang v. Henke, 22 C. A. 490, 55 S. W. 374.

Action held not prematurely tried on appearance day; all previous cases on the docket having been regularly called and disposed of. Ellis v. Mabry, 25 C. A. 164, 60 S. W. 571.

Trial of a garnishment suit at the term at which the writ was issued returnable to the next term held error. Sanger Bros. v. Wise County Coal Co., 40 C. A. 610, 90 S. W. 518.

Postponement.—Where defendants showed a suit pending to set aside the judgment on which plaintiff sued, the court should have postponed the trial to await the result. Avocato v. Dell'Ara (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 444.

It is the duty of a party to be present in court when his case is called, and to ask a postponement of the same on the absence of his attorney. Harrison v. Oak Cliff Land Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 821.

Duty of defendant to force trial.—A defendant who does not present a cross-action with prayer for affirmative relief held not required to give any attention to the case with a view of forcing a trial. Crosby v. Di Palma (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 321.

Agreement to pass case.—An agreement between attorneys to pass a case until a certain date bars the plaintiff from taking judgment before such time. Travelers' Ins. Co. v. Arant (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 853.

Art. 1945. [1289] [1289] Day set for jury docket.—The court shall, by an order entered on the minutes, designate a day of the term for taking up for trial the causes on the jury civil docket at all subsequent terms, until changed by a like order; but, in case of change, it shall not take effect until the succeeding term of said court. In all cases in which juries have been demanded by either party, all questions of law, demurrers, exceptions to pleadings, etc., shall, as far as practicable, be heard and determined by the court before the day designated for the trial of said jury causes, and all jurors shall be summoned to appear on the day of the term so designated. [Acts 1881, p. 5.]

Demurrers and exceptions to pleadings.—After the case was called and the jury impaneled the court properly refused to hear exceptions to pleadings, no excuse being offered for failure to present them on the day set apart for that purpose. Briggs v. Rush, 20 S. W. 771, 1 C. A. 19.

In the proceedings on the trial an allegation in the petition, which was demurred to, was entirely ignored by the parties. Under these circumstances the court did not err in failing to act on the demurrer or to instruct the jury to disregard the allegation. Railway Co. v. Rather, 21 S. W. 951, 3 C. A. 72.

It is error to refuse to determine defendant's exceptions to special damages alleged in the complaint, before proceeding to trial on the facts. Jaeger v. Biering (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 50.

See, also, notes under Arts. 1909, 1910.

Art. 1946. [1290] [1290] Call of non-jury docket.—The docket of cases in which jury trials have not been granted shall be taken up at such times and in such manner as not unnecessarily to interfere with the dispatch of business on the jury docket.

Order of calling case.—There is no error in calling a case for trial before some other non-jury case. Rubrecht v. Powers, 1 C. A. 282, 21 S. W. 318.

Art. 1947. [1291] [1291] Issues of law and dilatory pleas, when tried.—When a case is called for trial, the issues of law arising on the pleadings, and all pleas in abatement, and other dilatory pleas remaining undisposed of, shall be determined; and it shall be no cause for the postponement of a trial of the issues of law that a party is not prepared to try the issues of fact. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 33. P. D. 3.]

See, also, notes under Arts. 1909, 1910.

Exceptions to pleadings.—Exceptions to pleadings should be made before trial on issues of fact; such defects cannot be taken advantage of by objections to testimony on the trial. Railway Co. v. Preston, 74 T. 181, 11 S. W. 1108; Erwin v. City of Austin, 1 App. C. C. § 1037; W. U. T. Co. v. McHenry, 3 App. C. C. § 9.

Motions and dilatory pleas.—Motions, dilatory pleas, etc., not presented before going to trial on the merits will be considered as waived. Erwin v. City of Austin, 1 App. C. C. § 1037; W. U. T. Co. v. McHenry, 3 App. C. C. § 9.

The submission of a plea in abatement with those to the merits is not reversible error. Blum v. Strong, 71 T. 321, 6 S. W. 167.

By proceeding to trial upon the merits of a case without specially invoking the action of the court upon a plea in abatement, it will be presumed that the plea was waived. Blum v. Strong, 71 T. 321, 6 S. W. 167; Chambers v. Ker, 24 S. W. 1118, 6 C. A. 373. See Railway Co. v. Lindsey, 11 C. A. 244, 32 S. W. 714.

Under Art. 1910, which requires pleas to the jurisdiction to be determined during the term at which they are filed, this article, providing that when a case is called for trial all dilatory pleas undisposed of shall be determined, etc., and district court rule 24 (67 S. W. xxii), providing that all dilatory pleas and all motions, etc., relating to a suit pending, which do not go to the merits, shall be tried at the first term at which the attention of the court is called to the same, unless passed by consent of the court, and shall be disposed of before the issue on the merits is tried, held that, where defendant presented his plea of privilege and demanded a ruling thereon before a trial on the merits, he did all he was required to do, and, the court having determined to hear the plea with the main case, that defendant, on applying for a necessary continuance, failed to again insist on a hearing of his plea, did not constitute a waiver thereof. Waldrep v. Roquemore (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 248.

Where a defendant while cited to answer an action in a county other than that of his domicile did not file an answer or a plea of privilege until a later term, and plaintiff did not take judgment by default, defendant's failure did not waive his privilege of being sued only in the county of his domicile, for district court rule 24 (67 S. W. xxii), providing that all motions not going to the merits shall be tried at the first term to which the attention of the court shall be called, and this article, do not make a failure to promptly plead matters in abatement a waiver thereof. Breed v. Higginbotham Bros. & Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 164.

Discretion of court.—The court having heard defendant's counsel on a demurrer to the petition refused to hear the plaintiff's counsel in reply and sustained the demurrer. Held error. Cooper v. Francis, 37 T. 445.

It rests in judicial discretion to permit a plea in abatement, which is to be determined after hearing evidence in support thereof, to be tried as a separate issue and before a trial on the merits. Tynberg v. Cohen, 67 T. 220, 2 S. W. 734; Id., 76 T. 409, 13 S. W. 315.

It is discretionary with the court to submit a plea of privilege to the jury along with the main case, instead of separately, before a trial on the merits. Caswell v. Hopson (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 54.

In an action for defendant's negligent delay in transporting cattle, the trial court's refusal to hear defendant's plea of privilege to be sued in another county before the trial on the merits held a matter of discretion, and not reviewable where defendant was not injured thereby. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Boshear (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1032.

Under this article a party is required to file his demurrers in due order of pleading, and present them to the court before the trial upon the merits has begun, and the court should rule upon them when presented; and hence it was improper to reserve ruling on a demurrer to the answer until the close of the evidence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Ashley (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1165.

Art. 1948. [1292] [1292] Trial by the court.—The rules hereinafter prescribed for the trial of causes before the jury shall govern in trials by the court so far as may be applicable.

Trial of special issues by jury.—On submitting issues in an equity case, only such matters of fact as in some way tend to establish or defeat a cause of action need be submitted. Henyan v. Trevino (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 458.

On request of plaintiffs a suit in equity was properly submitted to the jury on special issues. Id.

Reception of evidence.—Where cause is tried by the judge, the question of the admissibility of evidence can seldom be raised. Hensley v. B. S. F. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 718. And a judgment rendered on proper evidence will not be reversed because incompetent evidence was admitted. Beaty v. Whittaker, 23 T. 526; Smith v. Hughs, 23 T. 248; Melton v. Cobb, 21 T. 539; Clayton v. McKinnon, 54 T. 206; Lindsay v. Jaffray, 55 T. 626; Fowler v. Chapman, 1 App. C. C. § 963; Grace v. Koch, 1 App. C. C. § 1062; McGaughey v. Meek, 1 App. C. C. § 1195; Franklin v. Hardie, 1 App. C. C. § 1219; Wade v. Buford, 1 App. C. C. § 1336.

In a case tried by the court the judgment will be reversed and cause remanded where the finding of the judge has been influenced by evidence improperly admitted. D'Arrigo v. Tex. Produce Co. (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 713.

Evidence admitted in a trial by the court should not be disregarded in its judgment. Such action operates as a surprise upon the party offering it, as other evidence not subject to objection might have been offered. Goldstein v. Manney (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 686.

Upon a trial before the court, the same strictness in regard to the admission of evidence is not required as on a trial before a jury. Pease v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 657.

Rulings on weight and sufficiency of evidence.—Where a cause is tried by the judge, the judgment will not be disturbed unless clearly unsupported by or contrary to the evidence. Bailey v. White, 13 T. 114–118; Gilliard v. Chesney, 13 T. 337; McFarland v. Hall, 17 T. 676; Jordan v. Brophey, 41 T. 283; Mathis v. Oberthier, 50 T. 329; Flanagan v. Oberthier, 50 T. 379–382; Tarkinton v. Broussard, 51 T. 550; Stone v. Brown, 54 T. 330-335; Burris v. Lambeth, 1 App. C. C. § 25; Adkinson v. Garrett, 1 App. C. C. § 45; Mitchell v. Dallas C. G. L. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 133; Shaw v. Parvin, 1 App. C. C. § 367; Faulkner v. Warren, 1 App. C. C. § 661; Bailey v. Hearne, 1 App. C. C. § 969; McDonald v. Holt, 1 App. C. C. § 1015; Schneider v. Bullard, 1 App. C. C. § 1188; T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Hoskins, 2 App. C. C. § 67. But where there is an insufficiency of evidence, the judgment will be reversed. W. U. T. Co. v. Bertram, 1 App. C. C. § 1155.

A judge trying a case without a jury held to have all the powers of a jury in passing upon the credibility of witnesses and weight of their evidence. Roe v. Davis (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 950.

In an action tried to the court, he may discard the uncontradicted evidence of one witness if deeming it unworthy of belief. Jones v. Jones (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 265.

The court trying a case without a jury must weigh the conflicting evidence, and accept that which appears worthy of credit. Miller v. Himebaugh (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 338.

Arguments of counsel.—See notes at end of chapter.

Instructions.—See notes under Chapter 13.

Findings of fact and conclusions of law.—See Art. 1989.

Decision.—Where a cause is tried by the court without a jury, a party has the right to have every issue considered; and, where material issues are not considered, the judgment must be reversed. State v. Pease (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 649.

Art. 1949. [1293] [1293] Agreed case.—The parties may in any case submit the matter in controversy between them to the court upon an agreed statement of facts made out and signed by them or their counsel, and filed with the clerk, upon which judgment shall be rendered as in other cases; and, in such case, the statement so agreed to and signed and certified by the court to be correct, and the judgment rendered thereon, shall constitute the record of the cause. [Act Feb. 5, 1858, p. 110, sec. 12. P. D. 1516.]

See Patterson v. English (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 18.

Submission of controversy.—Under a submission on an agreed case of an action for specific performance, held, that a formal plea to the jurisdiction would be considered as having been filed in the trial court. Lucas v. Patton, 49 C. A. 62, 107 S. W. 1143.

Where a case is submitted under an agreed statement of facts under Art. 1949, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, the court is confined to the facts contained in the statement. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1170.

Where the transcript on appeal from the county court contains no statement of plaintiff's demand or the nature of the action, as required by Art. 2302 but only shows judgment in plaintiff's favor for a certain sum, and shows no written pleadings filed by the parties in the justice's court and transmitted to the county court, as required by Art. 2396, nor that it was submitted in the justice's court on an agreed statement of facts, signed by the parties, as provided by this article there is no affirmative showing that the county court had jurisdiction to render the judgment appealed from and it will be reversed. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 608.

Certification by court.—Construing this Art. in view of the prior statutes on the subject, and in view of Art. 5502, requiring the court to look for the legislative intention, keeping in view the old law, the evil and the remedy, this article does not authorize a statement of facts to be authenticated by the "judge," the term "court" as used therein not being equivalent to "judge," so that a certificate, by the trial judge attached to a purported agreed statement of facts long after the term and after the "court" had ceased by the expiration of the term, was not a compliance with the statute. Chickasha Milling Co. v. Crutcher (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 355.

An agreed statement of facts, made for purpose of the trial, and not certified by the court as provided by this article, cannot be treated as a statement of facts within Art. 2074, authorizing the Court of Civil Appeals for good cause shown to permit the filing of statements of fact after the expiration of the statutory time. Id.

Issues and variance.—In an agreed case issues in regard to the pleadings are immaterial. Thaison v. Sanchez, 13 C. A. 73, 35 S. W. 478.

In an action to foreclose vendor's lien, fatal variance held to exist between description of land in petition and citation and that in agreed statement of facts. Wagley v. Western Union Land Co. (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1065.

Where a case is submitted by the parties under an agreed statement of facts in accordance with this article, in the absence of some agreement to the contrary, the court is confined to the facts contained in the statement, and can only declare the law arising from such facts. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1170.

Setting aside agreement as to facts.—When a written agreement is made and filed as to the facts, for the purpose of facilitating a trial, it cannot be set aside and disregarded on a mere motion setting up a mistake in its execution and sustained by ex parte affidavits. Morgan v. Davenport, 60 T. 230.

Appeal.—An agreed statement of facts signed by counsel, together with findings of fact by the trial court, the judgment rendered, assignments of error and appeal bond are sufficient to authorize and require the court of civil appeals to consider the appeal and revise the judgment of the trial court. The pleadings and an agreement and statement as to what the issues were, need not be included in the transcript sent to the appellate court. Scott v. Slaughter, 97 T. 244, 77 S. W. 950.

Stipulations.—See notes at end of Chapter 21.

Art. 1950. [1294] [1294] Cases brought up from inferior courts, tried de novo.—In all cases brought up from inferior courts, whether by appeal or certiorari, the case shall be tried de novo. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, secs. 59, 60. P. D. 1459, 1460.]

In general.—District court held to have jurisdiction to try a case de novo on appeal from county court. Jirou v. Jirou, 104 T. 136, 135 S. W. 114.

Jurisdiction dependent on jurisdiction below.—If the court below has no jurisdiction it cannot be assumed by the appellate court on appeal. Baker v. Chisholm, 3 T. 157; Davis v. Stewart, 4 T. 223; Able v. Bloomfield, 6 T. 263; Horan v. Wahrenberger, 9 T. 317, 58 Am. Dec. 145; Neil v. State, 43 T. 91; Wadsworth v. Chick, 55 T. 241.

Effect of appeal as annulling judgment below.—See notes under Art. 2395.

Scope of inquiry.—Where defendant files an answer before a justice, and does not plead fraud, the question of fraud cannot be submitted to the jury on appeal. Jones v. Parker (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 646.

Amount of claim.—Where plaintiff, on recovery before a justice, remits a part of the judgment, on trial de novo in county court he can demand the whole of his claim. Ball v. Hines (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 332.

Parties.—See Bridges v. Wilson, 2 App. C. C. § 625. As the appeal annuls the judgment of the court below, there must be a trial de novo as to all the parties to the suit. Moore v. Jordan, 65 T. 395.

Appeal by one of several defendants.—An appeal by one of several defendants from a justice's judgment carries the entire case to the county court for trial de novo. Uher v. Cameron State Bank (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 321.

Pleading new matter.—See notes under Art. 2391.

Evidence and objections thereto.—When the record shows affirmatively that there were no pleadings made by the defendant before a justice of the peace, it is error on appeal to hear evidence of payment. It would seem that the record would be sufficient to show the pleadings in a justice's court if there appeared therein the brief statement required by the statute, or by entry upon the minutes of the appellate court, either independent of or in the judgment itself. Moore v. Jordan, 67 T. 394, 3 S. W. 317.

The suit was for the wrongful seizure of certain goods as the property of another, but claimed by plaintiff under a transfer. The defense in the justice court was simply denial of the transfer. Notwithstanding this fact the plaintiff, on trial de novo in the county court, was not precluded by the limitation on trials de novo from proving, if he could, that if there was a transfer it was fraudulent and void. Milam v. Filgo, 22 S. W. 538, 3 C. A. 343.

Defendant on appeal from judgment of justice held not prejudiced by variance between complaint and instrument sued on, so as to render the instrument inadmissible in evidence in a trial de novo in the county court. Neinast v. Bearden (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 885.

Objections to evidence made for the first time in the appellate court will not be considered, though the trial below was without a jury. Myers v. Menefee, 30 C. A. 28, 68 S. W. 540.

A "trial de novo" means one "from the beginning, once more, anew," so that under Art. 740, providing that on review by certiorari the cause shall be tried de novo in the district court, and the issues shall be confined to the grounds specified in the application for the writ, and this article on certiorari from the district court to review an order of the county court approving a settlement of a minor's injury claim, the case must be retried upon the merits, without reference to errors in procedure committed in the county court, provided the issues are confined to the grounds of error specified in the application, so that questions as to what evidence was considered by the county court to the effect of its order are immaterial. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lemons (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1189.

Instructions not requested.—On appeal from justice court the county court need not give a charge not asked. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Houx, 15 C. A. 502, 40 S. W. 327.

Motion to quash writ of sequestration.—On appeal to the county court from a justice of the peace, the trial being de novo, a motion to quash a writ of sequestration could be there presented for the first time. Butts v. Lucia (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 686.

Dismissal.—The want of proper citation or service in the inferior court will not authorize a dismissal of the suit. Sheldon v. City of San Antonio, 25 T. Sup. 177; Boaz v. Paddock, 1 App. C. C. § 39; G., H. & S. A. R. R. Co. v. McTiegue, 1 App. C. C. § 459; G., H. & S. A. R. R. Co. v. Oakes, 1 App. C. C. § 685.

Art. 1951. [1297] [1297] Order of proceedings on trial by jury.—In suits tried by a jury the trial shall proceed in the following order, unless the court should, for good cause, to be stated in the record, otherwise direct:

1. The plaintiff or his counsel shall read his petition to the jury.
2. The defendant or his counsel shall read his answer.
3. If there be any intervenor, he or his counsel shall read his pleadings.
4. The party, plaintiff or defendant, upon whom rests the burden of proof on the whole case under the pleadings, shall then be permitted to state to the jury briefly the nature of his claim or defense and facts relied on in support thereof.
5. Such party shall then introduce his evidence.
6. The adverse party shall then be permitted to state briefly the nature of his defense or claim and the facts relied on in support thereof.
7. He shall then introduce his evidence.
8. The intervenor, if any, shall, in like manner, be permitted to make his statement, and shall then introduce his evidence.
9. The parties shall then be confined to rebutting testimony on each side.

Reading pleadings to jury.—Where pleas have been filed among the papers in a cause, the mere failure to state or read them formally to the jury at the opening of the trial should not deprive the party of the right to prove his defenses. Allen v. Hogan, 4 App. C. C. § 93, 16 S. W. 176.

Burden of proof.—See notes under Art. 3687, rule 12.

—— Right to open and close.—Where a plea in reconvention negatives plaintiff's cause of action, he is entitled to open and conclude. Graham v. Gautier, 21 T. 111.

After the issues of fact are settled and before the trial commences, the defendant may, by an admission entered of record, admit that the plaintiff has a good cause of action, as set forth in the petition, except so far as it may be defeated, in whole or in part, by the facts of the answer constituting a good defense, which may be established on the trial, when he will be entitled to open and conclude, in adducing his evidence and in the argument. Rule 31, 47 T. 623; Jacobs v. Hawkins, 63 T. 1; Green v. Carlton, 1 App. C. C. § 834. See Wright v. Hardie (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 675.

When an important affirmative fact alleged by plaintiff is not admitted, the plaintiff has the right to open and conclude. Steed v. Petty, 65 T. 490.

In a proceeding against an administrator for an accounting, he has the burden of proof and the right of opening and concluding. Higgs v. Garrison (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 34.

When defendant files his admission of plaintiff's cause of action in accordance with supreme court rule 34, he is entitled to open and conclude the case. Clements v. McCain (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 122.

In an action on promissory notes, where defendants' liability was admitted unless the right to recover was defeated by the defense of payment, held not error to permit defendants to open and close the evidence and argument. Stone v. Pettus, 47 C. A. 14, 103 S. W. 413.

Under a rule stated, proponent of one of two wills held entitled to open and close in the proceeding. Green v. Hewett, 54 C. A. 534, 118 S. W. 170.

Under district court rule 31 (67 S. W. xxiii) which provides that plaintiff shall have a right to open and conclude, unless defendant admits that plaintiff has a good cause of action, as alleged, except as it may be defeated by the facts of the answer established at trial; and this article, it was held, in an action to recover an amount deposited with defendant banker, against which he refused to honor a check, in which defendant admitted giving a deposit slip for the sum alleged, but claimed that the credit was given in consideration of plaintiffs' agreement to drill wells to a certain depth, and that they falsely represented that the wells had been driven as agreed, that it was error to deny defendant the right to open and close. Cunningham v. M. W. & B. G. Daves (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 808.

See, also, notes under Art. 1953.

—— "Cumulative evidence."—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

Discretion of court as to order of proof.—When discretion of trial judge in regulating order of proof will not be reviewed. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pitts (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 255.

Evidence dependent on preliminary proof.—In an action on a note given for the price of corporate stock, defended on the ground of false representations as to the value of the stock, it is proper for the court to admit, in the first instance, evidence that third persons made false representations, and then admit evidence connecting plaintiff therewith. Wisegarver v. Yinger (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 925.

Scope of evidence in chief.—In an action for negligence, evidence of plaintiff's intoxication on occasions previous and subsequent to his injury is inadmissible as evidence in chief. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Young, 50 C. A. 610, 111 S. W. 764.

Evidence in rebuttal.—Any fact may be given in evidence which is a direct answer to that produced by the opposite party. Cooper v. Francis, 37 T. 4345.

Where defendant railroad company had produced a photograph of its track, with expert evidence that it was safe for use by employés, held, that testimony of railroad employés was admissible in rebuttal. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pitts (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 255.

Evidence of habits held admissible in rebuttal where they were shown in chief. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 584.

Certain evidence held admissible in rebuttal. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 686; Meyer Bros. Drug Co. v. Madden, Graham & Co., 45 C. A. 74, 99 S. W. 723.

Where defendant claimed under a lease, it was proper for plaintiff, in rebuttal of evidence of such lease, to introduce evidence to the contrary. Stevens v. Stoner (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 934.

Where defendant, to show title to land conveyed by him to plaintiff, offers in evidence a grant from the state in which the land lies, plaintiff, in rebuttal, may introduce a prior grant to show outstanding title. Paul v. Chenault (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 579.

Where plaintiff's physician, while testifying, exhibited plaintiff's eye, alleged to have been injured, and attempted to point out the injury, defendant's experts were entitled in like manner, in rebuttal, to examine the eye and give their opinion of the result of such examination. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smith, 38 C. A. 507, 86 S. W. 943.

In an action for the negligent death of an employé, certain evidence held not admissible as rebuttal to evidence supporting a claim for damages. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Chambers, 41 C. A. 632, 95 S. W. 607.

In an action for injuries through negligence, it was within the discretion of the court to permit plaintiffs, while introducing their evidence in rebuttal, to read from the stenographer's report the cross-examination and recross-examination of certain of defendant's witnesses. International & G. N. R. Co. v. McVey, 46 C. A. 181, 102 S. W. 172.

In an action for personal injuries, evidence of complaints of injury made by plaintiff seven or eight minutes after the accident held admissible as rebutting defendant's theory that the claim of injury was on feigned symptoms. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Garber (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 742.

Rule stated as to the introduction of rebuttal testimony, where plaintiff's witnesses have been impeached. Wade v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 84.

In an action for injuries to a passenger by derailment caused by a defective track, evidence of defective ties 100 yards from the place of the accident held admissible in rebuttal. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Cheatham, 52 C. A. 1, 113 S. W. 777.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, certain evidence held admissible in rebuttal of evidence showing that plaintiff did not appear for examination by defendant's physicians as per an arrangement made to that effect. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dalton, 56 C. A. 82, 120 S. W. 240.

Where defendant on cross-examination imputed an effort to bribe a witness to testify for plaintiff, plaintiff was entitled to show by his father, mother, and attorneys that they had not offered any one anything to testify. City of Ft. Worth v. Lopp (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 824.

In an action on a note, held proper to permit plaintiff to introduce a former judgment in rebuttal of evidence of want of consideration. Martin v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1009.

In an action for the price of goods, where defendant claimed the seller had agreed to a transfer of the goods to the C. Company, a copartnership, and offered testimony that the C. Company was a copartnership, plaintiff was entitled to show that such company was a corporation. Holt & Smith v. Texas Moline Plow Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 215.

In an action for the price of goods, where defendant claimed that plaintiff had agreed to allow a transfer of part of the goods to another dealer and to release him from liability, and put in evidence a conversation with the seller's agent to that effect, held, that a letter written by plaintiff to its agent was admissible in rebuttal as showing what had been agreed to. Id.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries to a female plaintiff, certain evidence held competent in rebuttal. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Fox (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 922.

Admission in rebuttal of evidence proper in chief.—The party holding the affirmative of the issue is only required to make a prima facie case in the opening, and may reserve confirmatory proof in support of the very points made in the opening till he finds on what point his opening case is attacked, and then fortify it upon those points. Markham v. Carothers, 47 T. 21; Mahan v. Wolf, 61 T. 488; Carrol v. Watson, 1 App. C. C. § 402.

When testimony is confirmatory of the prima facie case already made by the party offering it, and fortifies the case upon points where it has been attacked, a refusal to admit is error. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Holliday, 65 T. 512.

Plaintiff will not be permitted, in rebuttal, to introduce evidence to strengthen his testimony which has not been contradicted. The rule is otherwise where defendant has introduced evidence in opposition thereto. Ayers v. Harris, 77 T. 108, 13 S. W. 768; Railway Co. v. Robinson, 79 T. 608, 15 S. W. 584.

Where plaintiff's chain of title as introduced in the opening would authorize a verdict for him, and an omitted link only became manifest by the testimony introduced by the defendant, it may be introduced in rebuttal. Bounds v. Little, 79 T. 128, 15 S. W. 225.

Plaintiff may be permitted to introduce additional evidence after defendant has introduced opposing evidence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Parrish (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 191.

Admission in rebuttal of evidence of extent of plaintiff's injuries held not abuse of discretion, though defendant had introduced no evidence thereon. City of Corsicana v. Tobin, 23 C. A. 492, 57 S. W. 319.

It is discretionary with the trial judge whether he will permit original testimony to be introduced in rebuttal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 527.

Plaintiff's evidence in chief held inadmissible after the introduction of a defendant's testimony, in the absence of permission, within the discretion of the court. Bass v. Receivers of Kirby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 658.

Where plaintiff, in an action for personal injuries, admitted in his petition that there was an adjudication relating to the identical cause of action, he should have introduced evidence in chief, showing the invalidity of the judgment; and he was not entitled, as matter of right, to introduce such evidence in rebuttal. Id.

But where defendants were as well prepared to meet evidence as to the invalidity of the judgment, when offered in rebuttal, as they would have been if offered in chief, and the introduction in rebuttal did not consume additional time, the refusal to permit its introduction in rebuttal was improper. Id.

Art. 1952. [1298] [1298] Additional testimony allowed, when.—

The court may at its discretion, at any time before the conclusion of the argument, where it appears to be necessary to the due administration of justice, allow a party to supply an omission in testimony, on such terms and under such limitations as the court may prescribe.

Reopening case for further evidence.—In a trial by the court additional evidence may be admitted at any time before judgment. Meyers v. Maverick (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 716; Guy v. Metcalf, 18 S. W. 419, 83 T. 37; Prigden v. Hill, 12 T. 374; Cotton v. Jones, 37 T. 34; Railway Co. v. Johnson, 83 T. 628, 19 S. W. 151.

The refusal of the trial court to permit plaintiff to reopen a case for the admission of further evidence held not an abuse of discretion. Fisher v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 715.

Permitting the introduction of testimony not in rebuttal after the close of a defendant's case held not reversible when it does not appear that the court abused its discretion. Illinois Cent. Ry. Co. v. Morris (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1163.

—— After close of evidence.—Refusal of trial court to allow plaintiff to introduce evidence after close of case held not an abuse of discretion. Pontiac Buggy Co. v. Dupree, 23 C. A. 298, 56 S. W. 703.

An offer of competent evidence sufficient to establish plaintiff's case should not be excluded, because made after plaintiff has rested. Pittsburg Plate Glass Co. v. Roquemore (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 449.

In trespass to try title to certain land, it was no abuse of discretion for the court to permit the introduction of certain evidence by plaintiff after defendant had closed her case. Jones v. Wright (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1010.

In an action for injuries, the exclusion of a question as to whether plaintiff had not filed a pauper's affidavit when the suit was filed, not offered until the evidence had been closed, held not error. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 162.

Whether the plaintiff should be permitted, after the defendant has concluded its testimony, to introduce evidence not in rebuttal rests in the sound discretion of the trial judge. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Lowe (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 1088.

It was not an abuse of the sound discretion of the court, under this article, as to admission of evidence, to refuse admission of testimony, not in rebuttal, offered after the evidence had been closed, and as to an immaterial matter. Keahey v. Bryant (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 409.

Under this article it is not error to admit proper evidence for plaintiff after defendant has closed his case, unless defendant will be prejudiced thereby. Martin v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1009.

—— After argument begun or closed.—The court may, in its discretion, at any time before the conclusion of the argument, where it appears to be necessary to the due administration of justice, allow a party to supply an omission in the testimony on such terms and under such limitations as the court may prescribe. Art. 1952; Pridgen v. Sill, 12 T. 374; Cotton v. Jones, 37 T. 34.

Material evidence, in the discretion of the court, may be introduced during the argument. Phœnix Ins. Co. v. Swann (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 519.

It is not error to refuse to receive further testimony on an issue not raised by the pleadings, after argument has commenced. Hayes v. Gallaher, 21 C. A. 88, 51 S. W. 280.

Admission of a deed not sued on, after the testimony had closed and argument begun, held not abuse of discretion. Sun Insurance Office v. Beneke (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 98.

Refusal to reopen case for further testimony after argument, or to permit recall of witness, held not an abuse of discretion of trial court. Greer v. Bringhurst (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 947.

It is not abuse of discretion for court, after evidence was closed and arguments commenced, to allow plaintiff to recall defendant as a witness. Keller v. Alexander, 24 C. A. 186, 58 S. W. 637.

Opening of trial of action on county treasurer's bond, after argument begun, to let in evidence, held not an abuse of discretion. Harper v. Marion County, 33 C. A. 653, 77 S. W. 1044.

This article is merely directory, and after the argument is closed, the court can permit a party to introduce other testimony and permit the opposite party to discuss the same, and if it appears that no injury has resulted, such action of the court will not be ground for reversal. W. U. Tel. Co. v. Roberts, 34 C. A. 76, 78 S. W. 524.

Refusal to permit defendant's counsel to offer additional testimony and to be allowed to further argue the case held not an abuse of discretion. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 983.

The court held authorized in its discretion to admit evidence after argument commenced. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Cassidy Southwestern Commission Co., 48 C. A. 484, 107 S. W. 628.

Under this article it was not an abuse of discretion in trespass to try title to receive testimony after the argument was begun. Wright v. Giles (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1163.

Recalling witnesses.—The recall of a witness is within the discretion of the court. Haney v. Clark, 65 T. 93; Walker v. Taul, 1 App. C. C. § 32. Where the jury disagree as to the testimony of a witness, he may be recalled and required to restate his evidence. Art. 1963.

It is within the discretion of the trial judge to permit a witness to be recalled after he had been examined, cross-examined, re-examined and discharged. Railway Co. v. Johnson, 83 T. 628, 19 S. W. 151.

It is not error to allow witness recalled by jury to repeat former evidence. Clayton v. State (Cr. App.) 44 S. W. 165.

In a prosecution for murder, held not an abuse of discretion to recall a state's witness and ask him if he was armed on the occasion of the shooting. Upton v. State, 48 Cr. R. 289, 88 S. W. 212.

In a criminal trial, the recalling of a witness or the introduction of testimony before the argument has ceased held a matter largely within the trial court's discretion. Reyes v. State (Cr. App.) 102 S. W. 1156.

—— Explanation, correction, or restatement of former testimony.—It is not error to permit a witness to be recalled and testify that he forgot about a certain matter when he first testified, when it has been shown that he has made statements inconsistent with his testimony. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Goldman (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 275.

In criminal proceedings, it was not error to permit the state to recall witnesses to testify to facts other than those testified at first, and not in rebuttal of any of defendant's testimony. Norris v. State (Cr. App.) 64 S. W. 1044.

The court held not required to recall a witness for the purpose of eliminating a controversy between counsel as to his testimony. Scott v. State (Cr. App.) 81 S. W. 47.

Defendant could not procure original defensive testimony through a witness who had testified for the state and been impeached by defendant without offering such witness as his own. Williams v. State, 48 Cr. R. 325, 87 S. W. 1155.

Where a witness testified to the distances between the point where the homicide occurred and certain houses, it was not error to permit him, at his own request, the next day to correct his former testimony by stating such distances as determined by him from having stepped them off in the interval. Mims v. State (Cr. App.) 153 S. W. 321.

Art. 1953. [1299] [1299] Order of argument.—After the evidence is concluded, the parties may submit the case to the jury in argument; the party having under the pleadings the burden of proof on the whole case shall be entitled to open and conclude the argument; where there are several other parties having separate claims or defenses, and represented by different counsel, the court shall prescribe the order of argument between them.

Explanatory.—Acts 1913, p. 113, § 2, provides that the charge shall precede the argument, and hence impliedly repeals this article in so far as it fixes the time for argument.

Right to open and close.—See, also, notes under Art. 1952.

An erroneous ruling as to the order of argument will not be ground of reversal when it is apparent that no injury to the appellant has resulted therefrom. Belt v. Raguet, 27 T. 471; Gaines v. Ann, 26 T. 340; Latham v. Selkirk, 11 T. 314.

A verbal admission of plaintiff's cause of action, made by the defendant's counsel after the close of the evidence in the case, does not entitle defendant to open and conclude the argument. Alstin v. Cundiff, 52 T. 460; Dugey v. Hughs, 2 App. C. C. § 4. The admission must be entered of record. Ayers v. Lancaster, 64 T. 305.

Opening and closing of trial was a matter not concerning persons intervening in the action. Temple Nat. Bank v. Warner (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1025.

Where the petitioner, in a proceeding to condemn a telegraph right of way, is obliged to show the necessity of the undertaking, it is not prejudicial to the rights of the owner to allow it on trial to open and close. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Postal Telegraph Cable Co., 18 C. A. 502, 45 S. W. 179.

A defendant is not entitled to open and conclude where the burden of the proof of the whole case does not rest on him. Heath v. First Nat. Bank of Cleburne, 19 C. A. 63, 46 S. W. 123.

Right to open and close in action for land by one claiming through deed from his father against one claiming through execution on judgment against his father determined. Id.

A party on whom is cast the burden of proof held entitled to open and conclude the argument. Hillboldt v. Waugh (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 829.

Defendant admitting plaintiff's right to recover unless defeated by reason of facts set up in answer held entitled to open and close. Atkinson v. Reed (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 260.

Plaintiff, and not intervener, held entitled to open and close. Baum v. Sanger (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 650.

Where a petition asserts not only a cause of action on certain notes, but, in the alternative, on other notes, an admission that plaintiff has a good cause of action to recover on the certain notes sued on, except so far as he may be defeated in whole or in part by defenses set up in the answer, is not sufficient to give defendant the right to open and close the argument. Clarkson v. Graham, 21 C. A. 355, 52 S. W. 269.

Refusal to permit defendant to open and close argument held not error, where written admission required to secure such right had been withdrawn. Jones v. Smith, 21 C. A. 440, 52 S. W. 561.

Where defendant did not admit plaintiff's entire demand, plaintiff is entitled to open and close the argument. Harris v. Pinckney (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 38.

Defendant is not entitled to open and close unless he admits plaintiff's case in manner required by law. Halsell v. Neal, 23 C. A. 26, 56 S. W. 137.

Where defendant, in proceedings to condemn land, admitted that the land was necessary for the use of plaintiff, and that he had refused the amount offered therefor, he was entitled to open and close the case. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Brugger, 24 C. A. 367, 59 S. W. 556.

Held not error to deny defendant the privilege of opening and closing the argument to the jury. Farmer v. Cloudt (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 614.

Where, in an action on a note for the price of land, defendants claimed failure of consideration, if plaintiff had no title to the land when conveyed, defendants had the right to open and close. Blackwell v. Coleman County (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 572.

Where, on the trial of a landowner's appeal from an award, he admits the company's right to condemn the land, he is entitled to open and conclude the argument. Calvert, W. & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 68.

In garnishment proceedings, under the pleadings and admissions by garnishee, the court held to have erred in allowing the garnishee to open and close the argument. Ferguson-McKinney Dry Goods Co. v. City Nat. Bank, 31 C. A. 238, 71 S. W. 604.

In an action on a fire policy, defendant, on admission of plaintiff's cause of action subject to defense, held, under rule 31, to have been properly accorded the right to open and close. Joy v. Liverpool, London & Globe Ins. Co., 32 C. A. 433, 74 S. W. 822.

Right to open and close, in action on joint and several note, where the principal defaulted and the surety filed the statutory admission, held properly denied to the surety. Guerguin v. Boone, 33 C. A. 622, 77 S. W. 630.

Under county court rule 31 (67 S. W. xxiii), defendant held entitled to open and close, on admitting plaintiff's right to recover the amount sued for, although he did not admit facts in plaintiff's affidavit for attachment. Bell v. Fox, 37 C. A. 522, 84 S. W. 384.

A defendant in an action on a note, who has assumed the burden of proof, is entitled to the opening and conclusion in the argument. Berry v. Joiner, 45 C. A. 461, 101 S. W. 289.

In an action on promissory notes, where defendants' liability was admitted unless the right to recover was defeated by the defense of payment, held not error to permit defendants to open and close the evidence and argument. Stone v. Pettus, 47 C. A. 14, 103 S. W. 413.

Defendant having admitted plaintiff's cause of action in order to obtain the opening and closing argument under district and county court rule 31 (67 S. W. xx), etc., held not entitled to object that the tax alleged to constitute a breach of warranty had not been assessed at the time of the conveyance. Taylor v. Reynolds, 47 C. A. 344, 105 S. W. 65.

The right to open and close on the trial of a cause is a valuable right, and it is reversible error to wrongfully deprive one of its exercise. Meade v. Logan (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 188.

Where the admissions of defendant entered of record are not sufficient to relieve plaintiff from the necessity of showing any fact to recover, held erroneous to deprive plaintiff of his right to open and close. Id.

Where the issues, under an agreement, were reduced to the one of improvements in good faith, the burden of proof at the trial was on the defendant, it was proper for the court to allow him to open and conclude the argument. Fain v. Nelms (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 1005.

A party may acquire the right to open and close by admitting the facts alleged in the petition necessary for plaintiff to establish in the first instance under rule 31 of practice for the district court (67 S. W. xxiii). Blume v. Haney (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 440.

In an action against codefendants, where one of them admitted plaintiff's cause of action, it was error to accord such defendant the opening and closing as to it under rule 31 (67 S. W. xxiii). Cockrell v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 150.

Where a defendant confessed and avoided plaintiff's cause of action, and a demurrer was sustained to the answer of the second defendant who did not amend, the first-named defendant under district court rule 31 (67 S. W. xxiii), providing that plaintiff shall have the right to open and conclude unless the burden of proof of the whole case rests on defendant, or unless the defendant, or all of the defendants, shall admit plaintiff's cause of action, in which case the defendant or defendants shall have the right to open and conclude, and Art. 1953, providing that the party having the burden of proof shall be entitled to open and close, was entitled to open and close, though he did not admit the cause of action attempted to be set up by the second defendant. Bell v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 953.

In an action by materialmen against the owners of a building which had burned during construction, where the owners confessed the materialmen's cause of action, but set up that the materialmen were sureties on the bond of the contractor who had breached his agreement, and that they were liable under a certain award, the burden was upon the defendants, and they were, under district court rule 31 (67 S. W. xxiii) and this article, entitled to the opening and close. Id.

Where, in an action on a note, defendant admitted in his answer that plaintiff could recover unless defeated in whole or in part by matters alleged in the answer, defendant was entitled to open and close. Key v. Hickman (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 275.

In an action for breach of an employment contract for unpaid salary and delivery of stock contracted for or in lieu thereof for cash payment, it was not an abuse of discretion to refuse to permit defendants to open and close the argument, where the answer was not a confession and avoidance, but by general and special denial disputed plaintiff's right to recover. Albrecht v. Lignoski (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 354.

—— Demand therefor.—The right to open and conclude must be demanded by the party entitled thereto. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Tillman, 84 T. 31, 19 S. W. 294.

Defendant's request to open and close held to have been made in time. Clements v. McCain (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 122.

Defendants held not entitled to open and close, not having brought themselves within rule 31, requiring party making such demand to concede that plaintiff has a good case, except for the matters of defense relied on. Smith v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 218.

Arguments of counsel.—See notes at end of chapter.

Art. 1954. Charge and instructions before argument.—Before the beginning of the argument, the court shall read to the jury the charges and instructions, if any, under the provisions of this title relating thereto. [Acts 1913, p. 113, sec. 2. Act Feb. 6, 1853, p. 19, sec. 99. P. D. 1464.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1913, p. 113, §§ 1-3, amends Arts. 1954, 1971, 1973, 1974, and 2061, and adds Art. 1984a. Section 4 repeals all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the articles amended.

Instructions.—See Chapter 13.

Art. 1955. [1301] [1301] Nonsuit may be taken, when.—At any time before the jury have retired, the plaintiff may take a nonsuit, but he shall not thereby prejudice the right of an adverse party to be heard on his claim for affirmative relief; when the case is tried by the judge such nonsuit may be taken at any time before the decision is announced. [Act Feb. 6, 1853, p. 19. P. D. 1464.]

See Warren v. Kimmell (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 159; and see notes under Art. 1900.

Right to move.—A defendant in an action of trespass to try title cannot preclude plaintiff from taking a nonsuit by asking some specific recovery when equivalent relief would be given under the plea of not guilty. Hoodless v. Winter, 80 T. 638, 16 S. W. 427.

Where a verdict has been vacated as a whole, plaintiff may be allowed to take a nonsuit. Hume v. Schintz, 91 T. 204, 42 S. W. 543.

The allegations of an answer not entitling defendants to affirmative relief, a nonsuit was properly granted on motion of plaintiff. Peters v. Chandler (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 281.

A plea in reconvention that is subject to exception will not prevent plaintiff from taking a nonsuit. Id.

In trespass to try title defendant cannot prevent plaintiff from taking a nonsuit unless his allegations constitute such a petition for the removal of cloud from title as would support an affirmative action. Wetsell v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1077.

The fact that one of the members of the reorganization committee of a corporation refused to join with the rest in taking a nonsuit of a certain action held not to prevent the nonsuit. Bangs v. Sullivan, 33 C. A. 30, 73 S. W. 74.

Where plaintiff asks for a nonsuit, the fact that before permission is granted, the defendant asks permission to so amend his pleadings as to set up a claim for affirmative relief, does not deprive plaintiff of his right to a nonsuit. The case must be considered as consisting alone of the pleadings on file when plaintiff asks to take the nonsuit. Walker & Sons v. Hernandez, 42 C. A. 543, 92 S. W. 1068.

The petition alleged that plaintiff had theretofore instituted actions against defendant in Illinois in a court of competent jurisdiction on certain notes, that such court had jurisdiction over defendant's person and of the subject-matter and that defendant appeared therein and confessed judgment, and that executions were issued and returned unsatisfied, and that such judgments were in full force, making defendant indebted to plaintiff in the amount thereof. The answer denied that the Illinois court had jurisdiction over defendant's person, or that he appeared or confessed judgment, and alleged that neither of defendants had ever resided in Illinois and were not served with any kind of process, and had been for many years residents of another state, and the prayer was that plaintiff take nothing by the suit, for costs, and that plaintiff be restrained from suing defendants, and for such other and further relief, as defendants showed themselves entitled to. Held, that under this article the facts alleged in defendant's special plea merely amounted to a special denial, and did not constitute a claim for affirmative relief notwithstanding the prayer for injunction and general and special relief, etc., so that plaintiff was entitled to a voluntary nonsuit. Free v. Robert Burgess & Son, 104 T. 31, 133 S. W. 421.

Under this article the dismissal of an action for the price of land, in which defendant filed a plea in reconvention for the cancellation of the contract on the ground of fraud, and for damages for false representations, was prejudicial error. Leverette v. Rice (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 594.

As a general rule, plaintiff may dismiss or nonsuit his case any time before the filing of answer asking affirmative relief. Morris v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 677.

Where, in an action upon a note, defendant answered, setting up that the note had been given by him to plaintiffs to pay for alleged losses in foreign sales of cotton, but that it was a mere tentative settlement, and that plaintiffs denied him proper credits in excess of the note, and praying for the cancellation of the note and for costs, the answer was equivalent to a pleading demanding affirmative relief, and so precluded plaintiffs from dismissing in accordance with this article. Jackson v. Furst, Edwards & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 243.

See, also, notes under Art. 1900.

Time in general.—A plaintiff may take a nonsuit at any time before the decision is announced. Hoodless v. Winter, 80 T. 638, 16 S. W. 427. See Art. 1900.

A plaintiff can take a nonsuit where the verdict has been set aside. Hume v. Schintz, 91 T. 204, 42 S. W. 543.

Plaintiff, neglecting to offer evidence on issue involved, is not entitled, during argument, to take nonsuit as to such issue. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ennis-Calvert Compress Co., 23 C. A. 441, 56 S. W. 367.

Plaintiff can take nonsuit any time before the jury retires, and after nonsuit is taken court cannot by a refusal to enter judgment of nonsuit keep the case on the docket until defendant has filed a plea in reconvention. Clevenger v. Cariker, 50 C. A. 562, 110 S. W. 796.

Where in an action tried by a jury a motion for a directed verdict for defendant is made, and the court decides that the motion must be sustained, the question of when plaintiff may take a nonsuit must be determined by the clause of the statute governing a case tried before the court and not by the clause relating to a nonsuit in a case tried before a jury. Adams v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 437.

Announcement of decision.—Nonsuit is not available after the announcement of decision, yet if no injury results reversal will not follow. Masterson v. McKelvey (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 1005.

Under this article plaintiff cannot take a nonsuit after being informed by the judge of what his decision will be, though a judgment is not then actually rendered. Kidd v. McCracken (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 839.

The mere announcement of the trial judge of what his decision on a motion for a directed verdict for defendant will be, made in response to an inquiry of plaintiff's counsel, is not an announcemnt of a decision within the clause of this statute, permitting a nonsuit at any time before the decision is announced. Adams v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 437.

Under this article and, on trial by the judge, before decision is announced, the term "decision" is not equivalent to "opinion," and, though the court in a case tried without a jury expressed an opinion indicating that he intended to render a decision in favor of the defendants, the plaintiffs would not be precluded thereby from having a nonsuit (citing 2 Words and Phrases, p. 1901). Kidd v. McCracken, 105 T. 383, 150 S. W. 885.

Under this article, and Art. 2400, providing that the same mode of procedure shall apply to justice's courts, a party may take a nonsuit after the justice has announced what his decision will be and before formal judgment is rendered. Pye v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1086.

Objection and waiver thereof.—An objection to a voluntary nonsuit must be made at the time or it will be waived. Brown v. Pfouts, 53 T. 221.

Operation and effect in general.—A voluntary nonsuit avoids the effect of any interlocutory orders made in the case. Scherff v. Railway Co., 81 T. 471, 17 S. W. 39, 26 Am. St. Rep. 828.

One of several plaintiffs taking a nonsuit cannot appear and assign error. Levinski v. Williamson, 15 C. A. 67, 38 S. W. 376.

After granting nonsuit, the court should not proceed with the trial, where defendant does not seek relief by counterclaim. Wilborn v. Elmendorf (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1059.

On the foreclosure of vendor's lien, and intervention by prior mortgagee, and nonsuit by plaintiff, surplus after sale on foreclosure should be paid to the owner. Norris v. Graham (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 575.

Where plaintiff sues to cancel life policy, and assignee of life policy files answer and cross-bill, stating that plaintiff was entitled to cancellation, and asking judgment against plaintiff for premiums paid, the court cannot, on plaintiff taking a nonsuit, cancel the policy, and give judgment for premiums. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Jeffers, 22 C. A. 477, 55 S. W. 43.

In an action for defamation, the court, after plaintiff taking a nonsuit, and after sustaining an exception to the answer, held without jurisdiction. Bush v. Young (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 110.

A voluntary nonsuit has no effect upon proper pleadings filed against the parties taking it. Blunt v. Houston Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 248.

Relief to defendant.—It cannot operate to the prejudice of the right of the adverse party to be heard on a counterclaim. Thomas v. Hill, 3 T. 270; Egery v. Power, 5 T. 501; Bradford v. Hamilton, 7 T. 55; McCoy v. Jones, 9 T. 363; Cunningham v. Wheatly, 21 T. 184; Slaughter v. Hailey, 21 T. 537; McKie v. Simpkins, 1 App. C. C. § 278.

Where the defendant in the action of trespass to try title asks affirmative relief he may have judgment after plaintiff has taken a nonsuit. French v. Groesbeck, 27 S. W. 43, 8 C. A. 19; Akard v. W. Mortg. & Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 139.

Where plaintiff in partition takes a nonsuit defendant may have the case retained to have title quieted in him as prayed by cross-bill. Burford v. Burford (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 602.

After a voluntary nonsuit taken by interveners, the court cannot dispose of their rights upon a plea thereafter filed, asking for affirmative relief against them, except upon prior citation to them. Blunt v. Houston Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 248.

Bar to another action.—See notes under Art. 1994.

Setting aside and reinstatement.—Where the court, after a voluntary nonsuit, made a conditional order reinstating the case, on a motion to dismiss the case the court may amend such order, so as to make the reinstatement absolute, and deny the motion to dismiss. Wilcoxson v. Howard, 26 C. A. 281, 62 S. W. 802.

Where a nonsuit is entered, an order setting aside such nonsuit reinstates the cause, and leaves it pending in the court making such orders, notwithstanding an intermediate void order transferring the cause to another court has been entered. Southern Pac. Co. v. Winton, 27 C. A. 503, 66 S. W. 477.

Court held to have discretion to set aside order of nonsuit and permit stockholder incorporation to intervene in action by reorganization committee, where there is collusion between such committee and the defendant in the action. Bangs v. Sullivan, 33 C. A. 30, 73 S. W. 74.

Statement of grounds for a motion to reinstate a cause after voluntary nonsuit held not sufficient to require the granting of the motion. Sanchez v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 689.

Art. 1956. [1302] [1302] Foreman of jury.—The court may appoint one of the jury to be the foreman thereof; and, in case no foreman is appointed by the court, the jury may elect a foreman from their number, who shall preside at their deliberations and see that the same are conducted with regularity and in order.

Art. 1957. [1303] [1303] Jury may take papers with them, except, etc.—The jury may take with them in their retirement the charges and instructions in the cause, the pleadings and any written evidence, except the depositions of witnesses. But, when part only of a paper has been read in evidence, the jury shall not take the same with them, unless the part so read to them is detached from that which was excluded. [Id. P. D. 1464.]

See Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Aycock (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 198.

Pleadings.—Where an original petition in an action was not used as evidence in the trial, it was not entitled to be taken by the jury upon retirement. Hall v. Cook (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 449.

Depositions and papers connected therewith.—The fact that copies of "account sales," which had been attached as exhibits to a deposition, were taken by the jury to their room, is not ground for reversal of a judgment, where no objection was made at the time, and the facts shown by the exhibits were conclusively established by other evidence. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 505.

The jury can take to the jury room a paper admitted in evidence independent of its connection with the deposition. Sargent v. Lawrence, 16 C. A. 540, 40 S. W. 1075.

Documents attached to the deposition may be detached and taken by the jury. Davis v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 17 C. A. 199, 43 S. W. 44.

Error in delivery of deposition to jury held waived. Davis v. McCabe (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 837.

An affidavit read in evidence is within the meaning of the statute a deposition, and cannot be taken by the jury with them in their retirement. Green v. Gresham, 21 C. A. 601, 53 S. W. 382.

Where an abstract is introduced in evidence independently of an attached deposition, the jury can take it with them in their retirement. Frugia v. Trueheart, 48 C. A. 513, 106 S. W. 740.

Documentary evidence.—The jury may take with them papers read in evidence. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Barnett, 12 C. A. 321, 34 S. W. 139.

Where the court excludes part of a certificate, the jury can take it to the jury room with something pasted over the excluded portion. Sargent v. Lawrence, 16 C. A. 540, 40 S. W. 1075.

Permitting the jury, on their request, after retirement, to take into the jury room a book not offered in evidence, held prejudicial error. Goar v. Thompson, 19 C. A. 330, 47 S. W. 61.

The jury should be allowed to take with them in retirement, the sworn statement of the plaintiff concerning his claim against the railway company—a paper which had been admitted in evidence. H., E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 275.

Where the opposite party agreed in writing that expected testimony of an absent witness was true, and a paper containing a statement thereof was admitted in evidence, the paper also containing a statement of what another person would testify to, the other person having been a witness at the trial, the court did not err in refusing to permit the jury to take the paper with them in their retirement. Hall v. Cook (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 449.

For the jury to take with them on retiring an instrument, part of which had been excluded, held not ground for reversal, in the absence of a showing that they read it. West v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas, 56 C. A. 341, 120 S. W. 228.

Where letters and telegrams in relation to the transaction in issue were received in evidence, it was error to refuse to permit the jury, when they retired to consider the verdict, to take with them the letters and telegrams. Biard & Scales v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1168.

Under the express provisions of this article it was proper for the court to permit the jury to take with them on retiring such copies of letters as had been properly introduced in evidence. Curtsinger v. McGown (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 303.

—— Map or report of surveyor.—A jury should not take with them in retirement a map made by a witness intended to illustrate his testimony. Snow v. Starr, 75 T. 411, 12 S. W. 673.

In an action to establish a boundary, it is proper to permit the jury to take with it, on retiring, the report of a surveyor who ran the boundary, and a map of the premises, attached thereto. Wardlow v. Harmon (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 828.

Memorandum used by witness to refresh memory.—A verdict of a jury was set aside when a memorandum used by a witness to refresh his memory was taken out by the jury. Faver v. Bowers (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 131.

Memoranda consisting of words and figures on tickets by telephone operative relating to a long distance call, and used by witness to refresh his memory are not written evidence contemplated by the statute and it was not error to refuse to allow the jury to take them on retirement. They were not intelligible without explanation. Wiggs v. S. W. Tel. & Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 180.

Art. 1958. [1304] [1304] Jury to be kept together.—The jury may either decide the case in court or retire for deliberation. If they retire, they shall be kept together in some convenient place, under the charge of an officer, until they agree upon a verdict, or are discharged by the court; but the court may, in its discretion, permit them to separate temporarily for the night and at their meals, and for other proper causes.

Officer in charge of jury.—That the sheriff, who was a material witness for the state, was in charge of the jury during the trial was not ground for reversal, in the absence of a showing of some act of his which influenced or tended to influence the jury in their verdict. Galan v. State (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1171.

Separation.—The dispersion of a jury over night without permission of the court is not sufficient ground for a new trial. Railway Co. v. Lockhart, 4 App. C. C. § 297, 18 S. W. 649.

—— Discretion of court.—The exercise of the discretion of the court in permitting a jury to separate as authorized by the statute will not be revised on appeal unless it is clearly shown that the party complaining has been injured thereby. Noel v. Denman, 76 T. 306, 13 S. W. 318; Railway Co. v. Bennett, 76 T. 151, 13 S. W. 319.

Postponement of consideration of a case for several days, and permitting the jury to disperse under instructions, held not an abuse of discretion. Kothman v. Faseler (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 390.

There is no statute requiring juries in civil cases to be kept together from the time the trial begins until its close; the matter lying within the sound discretion of the court. International & G. N. R. Co. v. McVey, 46 C. A. 181, 102 S. W. 172.

There was no error in permitting jurors, accepted and sworn, to separate in the courtroom, where each juror was constantly within the hearing and sight of the officer and in the immediate view of the court, and where it was not shown that they had any talk with others, or that anybody spoke to them. Galan v. State (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 1171.

Art. 1959. [1305] [1305] Duty of officer in charge of jury.—The officer having the jury under his charge shall not suffer any communication to be made to them, or make any himself, except to ask them if they have agreed upon a verdict, unless by order of the court; and he shall not, before their verdict is rendered, communicate to any person the state of their deliberations or the verdict agreed upon.

See, also, notes under Arts. 1958, 1960.

Improper remark by officer.—Where a juror left his seat and started to leave the courtroom, and was recalled by the court and told that if he wanted anything the sheriff would wait on him, but that the jury could not separate, and the sheriff remarked that they must all remain together, according to San Antonio rules, which remark the jury were instructed not to consider, the sheriff's remark, though improper, was not reversible error. Galan v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 1171.

Art. 1960. [1306] [1306] Caution to the jury.—If the jury are permitted to separate, either during the trial or after the case is submitted to them, they shall be admonished by the court that it is their duty not to converse with, or suffer themselves to be addressed by, any other person, on any subject connected with the trial.

See, also, notes under Art. 1958.

Communication with jury.—Conviviality and conversation between juror and brother of one of the parties to the action held sufficient cause for setting aside a verdict. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Matthews, 28 C. A. 92, 66 S. W. 588.

Alleged misconduct of jurors held ground for new trial. Palm v. Chernowsky, 28 C. A. 405, 67 S. W. 165.

Any communication by any person with the jury or any member thereof, during their deliberation upon the case on trial, without the consent of the parties to the suit, is illegal and constitutes reversible error. Holliday v. Sampson, 42 C. A. 364, 95 S. W. 644.

Act of jurors in inviting a detective engaged to watch them during the trial to drink liquor with them in a saloon, and engaging him in conversation about the case, held improper. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Tweed (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1155.

Art. 1961. [1307] [1307] Jury may communicate with the court.—When the jury wish to communicate with the court, they shall make their wish known to the officer having them in charge, who shall inform the court thereof, and they may be brought into open court, and through their foreman shall state to the court, either verbally or in writing, what they desire to communicate.

Misconduct of court.—It is reversible error for the trial judge to go alone into the jury room and confer with the jury at their request, but without the consent of the parties to the suit. Lester v. Hays, 14 C. A. 643, 38 S. W. 52.

It is not error for the court to enter the jury room and withdraw an improper instruction. Martin, Moodie & Co. v. Petty (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 878.

It is misconduct of the court for which the judgment will be reversed if the judge has a conference with the foreman after the case has been given to the jury, which was not in open court with all the jury present. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Byrd, 102 T. 263, 115 S. W. 1164, 20 L. R. A (N. S.) 429, 20 Ann. Cas. 137.

Communication in open court.—Written communications between the foreman of the jury and the judge while the jury were in retirement in a room opening from the courtroom, the door of which was in view of the court, held a substantial compliance with the statute, providing that communications between the judge and the jury shall be in open court. Wichita Falls Compress Co. v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1032.

Art. 1962. [1308] [1308] May ask further instruction.—The jury may, after having retired, ask further instruction of the court touching any matter of law. For this purpose, they shall appear before the judge in open court in a body and, through their foreman, state to the court, either verbally or in writing, the particular question of law upon which they desire further instruction, and the court shall give such instruction in writing; but no instruction shall be given except upon the particular question on which it is asked. [Id. P. D. 1464.]

Unrequested instructions.—Where the jury had been considering their verdict for several hours, the refusal of the court to then give certain special charges was proper. Luke v. City of El Paso (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 363.

Where, in an action by a servant for injuries, the main charge has limited the right of recovery on the negligence of one shown to be a vice principal, the court's refusal to recall the jury after they had retired and instruct on the issue of fellow servant was a proper exercise of discretion. Young v. Hahn (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 203.

Where a jury fails to consider one of the issues of a case in its verdict, the court may give a charge as to this issue and remand them. Cockrell v. Egger (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 568.

Refusal to consider requested special charges presented after the jury had retired held not error. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Walters, 49 C. A. 71, 107 S. W. 369.

The act of the court in calling the jury back, after they had retired to their room to consider the verdict, but before they had done anything toward considering the case, and then giving them a requested charge, is not an abuse of discretion. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Harrison, 56 C. A. 17, 120 S. W. 254.

Action of court in orally instructing the jury after submission of the cause held not reversible error. Hunt v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1060.

Action of a judge in recalling a jury and charging as to their duty to return a verdict, without request on their part and in the absence of plaintiff or counsel, held erroneous. Quigley v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 633.

This article does not prevent the court from giving such further instructions without request by the jury. Cheek v. W. H. Nicholson & Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 595.

Withdrawal of improper instruction.—See notes under Art. 1961.

Art. 1963. [1309] [1309] May have witness recalled.—If the jury disagree as to the statement of any particular witness, they may, upon applying to the court, have such witness again brought upon the stand:

and he shall be directed by the judge to detail his testimony to the particular point of disagreement, and no other, and as nearly as he can in the language used upon his examination.

What witness may state.—When a witness is recalled, in case the jury disagree as to his testimony he can state what his testimony was upon the point in dispute, and nothing else. Griffin v. Bartell, 29 C. A. 325, 68 S. W. 699.

Recalling witnesses in general.—See notes under Art. 1952.

Art. 1964. [1310] [1310] May have deposition, etc., re-read.—If the jury disagree as to any portion of a deposition or other paper not carried with them in their retirement, the court may, in like manner, permit such portion of the deposition or paper to be again read to the jury.

Art. 1965. [1311] [1311] Disagreement of jury.—The jury may, after the cause is submitted to them, be discharged by the court when they can not agree and both parties consent to their discharge, or when they have been kept together for such time as to render it altogether improbable that they can agree.

Urging or coercing agreement.—Remarks of court to jury on failure to agree held error. Sargent v. Lawrence, 16 C. A. 540, 40 S. W. 1075.

The jury should not be coerced to render a verdict by threat to keep them an unreasonable time. Railway Co. v. McCue (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 1080.

Directing the jury to agree on a verdict held error. Wootan v. Partridge, 39 C. A. 346, 87 S. W. 356.

An instruction to jurors after they had stated to the court a belief in their inability to agree held erroneous. Texas Midland R. Co. v. Byrd, 41 C. A. 164, 90 S. W. 185.

The court held required to set aside a verdict on the ground that the same was coerced. Cornelison v. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co., 46 C. A. 509, 103 S. W. 1186.

Statement of court to jury after having considered the cause for a time held not objectionable, as calculated to coerce an agreement or as intimating the opinion of the court. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Darwin, 47 C. A. 219, 105 S. W. 825.

Certain remarks of judge to the jury held not to have unduly influenced them and caused their subsequent return of a verdict for plaintiff. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Brigance (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 919.

The jury took the case at 6 p. m. Wednesday and held it until Friday, when they reported that they were hopelessly divided on the question of liability, upon which the court said that it was an important case and that he would hold them together a few days longer, that jurors must discuss the evidence earnestly and arrive at a verdict if possible, and that they should be willing to make some concessions, and on the same day they returned a verdict for plaintiff. Held, that the court's statement as to the importance of the case and his advice to make concessions were reasonably calculated to injuriously affect the rights of defendant. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Finklea (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 612.

Art. 1966. [1312] [1312] May be discharged by the court.—They may also be discharged by the court when any calamity or accident may, in the opinion of the court, require it; and they shall be so discharged when, by sickness or other cause, their number is reduced below the number constituting a jury in such court. [Const., art. 5, sec. 13.]

Art. 1967. [1313] [1313] Final adjournment of court discharges.—The final adjournment of the court before the jury have agreed upon a verdict discharges them.

Art. 1968. [1314] [1314] Case to be tried again.—Where a jury has been discharged as herein provided, without having rendered a verdict, the cause may be again tried at the same or another term.

Art. 1969. [1315] [1315] Court may proceed with other business.—The court may, during the retirement of the jury, proceed to any other business and adjourn from time to time, but shall be deemed open for all purposes connected with the case before the jury.

42. —— Withdrawal or correction of objectionable matter.
43. —— Action of court.

1. Severance.—Refusal of a severance held matter of discretion not reviewable; injury not being shown. Smith v. Bunch, 31 C. A. 541, 73 S. W. 559.

2. Preliminary question.—The matter of first trying a preliminary question as to the ownership or interest of a third person in the cause of action is within the court's discretion. Nixon v. Jacobs, 22 C. A. 97, 53 S. W. 595.

3. Remarks and conduct of judge in general.—Remarks of the judge commenting on the evidence held ground for reversal. Hynes v. Winston (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1025.

Statement of court that it did not think defendant's counsel were treating the court fairly in introducing more witnesses, when it had promised to close the case, held not prejudicial error. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co. v. Broadhurst, 28 C. A. 630, 68 S. W. 315.

Refusal to permit witness to explain why he told another witness that the latter could get a certain sum for not testifying, and accusing witness in jury's presence of admitting an attempt to bribe, held error. McBane v. Angle, 29 C. A. 594, 69 S. W. 433.

Whether or not one is an habitual drunkard is a question of fact to be submitted to the jury, and a remark of the judge to the witness who is alleged to be an "habitual drunkard" in a suit on liquor dealer's bond, that if he did not keep sober during the trial he would put him in jail and keep him there until he became sober, is error for which the case will be reversed, because it tended to make the jury believe that the judge considered him to be an habitual drunkard. Wilson v. White, 29 C. A. 588, 69 S. W. 989.

In an action against carriers for injuries to a shipment of cotton, remarks of court in excluding certain testimony held error. Bath v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co., 34 C. A. 234, 78 S. W. 993.

In an action for injuries, a statement by the court in the presence of the jury, in ruling on an objection to the examination of a juror as to his qualifications in the presence of the entire panel, held not error. Alexander v. McGaffey, 39 C. A. 8, 88 S. W. 462.

Action of court in commenting on evidence in admitting the same held error. Lewter v. Lindley (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 784.

Remarks of court to counsel in presence of jury held prejudicial error. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co. v. McAllister, 41 C. A. 131, 90 S. W. 933.

For the judge to inform counsel what he considers proper evidence on an issue held proper. D. H. Fleming & Son v. Pullen (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 109.

Certain remarks made by the court in the presence of the jury as to his opinion in regard to evidence held error. Thomson v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 326.

In an action for damages for defendant's refusal to accept lumber ordered by it of plaintiff, certain remarks of the court in the presence of the jury held improper. Texas & Louisiana Lumber Co. v. Rose (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 444.

Alleged misconduct affecting a jury held not to warrant reversal where the statement to the jury in question was made and understood as a joke. Texas Midland R. R. v. Byrd (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 199.

In an action against a railroad for injury to plaintiff's cattle while in transit, a statement by the court that certain evidence would not control in determining the measure of damages held erroneous. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Lane, 49 C. A. 541, 110 S. W. 530.

A trial judge's remark, on objection to a witness' qualification, held not erroneous as an expression of opinion as to whether the witness could determine as to plaintiff's sanity. Kaack v. Stanton, 51 C. A. 495, 112 S. W. 702.

A remark by the court, after evidence had been received without objection that the question was not proper, related only to the admissibility and not to the weight of the testimony. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Shapard, 54 C. A. 596, 118 S. W. 596.

The remark of the trial judge, in response to an objection to counsel and his statement that he reserved a bill of exceptions, that he would give counsel two bills if he desired them, is not ground for reversal. First State Bank of Teague v. Hare (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 501.

4. Absence of judge from court room.—Absence of the judge from the court room during the trial, by consent of parties, held not reversible error. Dehougne v. Western Union Tel. Co. (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 1066.

5. Absence of party.—In stated circumstances held not an abuse of discretion to proceed with a trial in defendants' absence. Smith v. Norton (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 733.

6. Presence of jury during proceedings.—It was not an abuse of discretion for the court to remove the jury while defendant's attorney was endeavoring as a part of his argument of the law to bring before the jury the facts in another case, with the comments of the supreme court thereon. Gulf, B. & K. C. Ry. Co. v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 399.

7. —— Argument on motion.—A statement of plaintiff's counsel held no sufficient reason for permitting the jury to remain in the room while decisions were read in argument on a motion. Rice v. Dewberry (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 715.

8. Exclusion of witnesses under the rule.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 1.

9. Examination of witnesses.—See notes under Art. 3687, Rule 1.

10. Cumulative evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687, Introductory.

11. Misconduct of jurors.—See, also, notes under Art. 1960.

In suit to restrain erection of combustible building in established fire limits, verdict for plaintiffs would not be disturbed because of certain statements by juror after termination of the trial. Chimene v. Baker, 32 C. A. 520, 75 S. W. 330.

Conduct of a juror held improper. Albers v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co., 36 C. A. 186, 81 S. W. 828.

It was improper for the foreman of the jury to endeavor to find out how the jury stood upon a former trial of the case. Prewitt v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co., 46 C. A. 123, 101 S. W. 812.

In an action for personal injuries, the fact that newspapers published during the trial certain statements as to the similarity of the case to other cases wherein large damages were given, which articles some of the jurymen read, held, under the circumstances, not to have so influenced the verdict as to cause a reversal. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Barwick, 50 C. A. 544, 110 S. W. 953.

That a juror, pending the trial, told a person not on the jury that he thought plaintiff ought to recover held not ground for reversal. Freeman v. Vetter (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 190.

That during trial of a personal injury case jurors read a newspaper item showing the amount of a former verdict held not reversible error. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hays (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 416.

12. —— Waiver.—Misconduct of jury brought to the knowledge of plaintiff's attorney before verdict held waived. Olivares v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co., 37 C. A. 278, 84 S. W. 248.

Misconduct of a juror held waived by defendant's consent to an order excusing him, and to proceed with 11 jurors. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Toliver, 37 C. A. 437, 84 S. W. 375.

13. Misconduct of others affecting jurors.—See notes under Art. 1960.

14. Deliberations of jury in general.—That a jury remained in retirement only ten minutes before returning their verdict was insufficient to impeach or weaken it. Gulf, B. & K. C. Ry. Co. v. Harrison (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 399.

The jury, in determining whether a foreman acted with ordinary care, could judge of the testimony as it appeared to them, and were not confined to a view of the facts as they would have appeared to a man of ordinary prudence under the circumstances surrounding him at the time. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Johnson, 103 T. 320, 127 S. W. 539.

15. Taking papers or articles to jury room.—See notes under Art. 1957.

16. Application of personal knowledge of jurors.—Though in a suit for injuries to a wife there is no evidence of the value of her services in money, held, that the jury could infer diminished capacity and ascertain the nature and value of her services from common knowledge and circumstances stated. Texas Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 587.

In a personal injury action, the jury may not assess the damages on their experience, without reference to the facts in evidence. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 160.

17. Instructions after submission of cause.—See notes under Art. 1962.

18. Communications between judge and jury.—See notes under Art. 1961.

19. Urging or coercing agreement.—See notes under Art. 1965.

20. Manner of arriving at verdict.—See notes under Art. 5217.

21. Arguments and conduct of counsel—Right to address jury.—The plaintiff's counsel, after opening the case and after defendant's counsel had addressed the court on the law of the case and declined to address the jury, was permitted, over defendant's objection, again to address the jury on the facts. It not appearing that any injury resulted from the course pursued, the error, if any, was held to be immaterial. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Scott, 64 T. 549.

Held not error to permit only one argument for plaintiff; defendant's counsel declining to argue the case. Collins v. Clark, 30 C. A. 341, 72 S. W. 97.

Notwithstanding Art. 1953, and Art. 1948, providing that the rules prescribed for jury trials shall govern in trials by the court so far as applicable, the right to be heard in argument in a trial by the court is largely in the trial court's discretion, and judgment will not be reversed for refusal to permit argument, unless the complaining party has been prejudiced thereby. Rodriguez v. Priest (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1187.

22. —— Proceedings for impaneling jury.—See notes under Title 75.

23. —— Scope and effect of opening statement by counsel.—While it is the duty of counsel to present the whole case, both of law and fact, in his opening argument, yet it must not be understood by this that counsel must notice every particle of evidence tending to establish a fact, or otherwise be denied the right to refer to it. Wills Point Bank v. Bates, 72 T. 137, 10 S. W. 348.

A material issue was not discussed in the opening; if raised in the closing argument, and the argument is directed to the court with a view to have a charge upon the point, such conduct of the case is not sufficient ground for reversal. Id.

Opening argument of counsel for plaintiff in an action against a carrier for injuries resulting from a collision, held not improper. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Poore, 49 C. A. 191, 108 S. W. 504.

24. —— Presentation of evidence.—Certain improper remarks made by counsel held not sufficient to warrant a reversal. Texas Brewing Co. v. Walters (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 548.

Statements of counsel as to what he could prove in answer to questions propounded to witnesses held not improper. North Texas Const. Co. v. Crawford, 39 C. A. 56, 87 S. W. 223.

Remarks of counsel during the progress of a trial held not ground for reversal. J. M. Guffy Petroleum Co. v. Hamill, 42 C. A. 196, 94 S. W. 458.

Statements of counsel in response to inquiries of court as to object of evidence, that it was to show that the defense was entirely fictitious, held not error. Walker v. Dickey, 44 C. A. 110, 98 S. W. 658.

It was improper for counsel to ask the same question of defendant's witnesses, after the court ruled against its admissibility. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Knowles, 44 C. A. 172, 99 S. W. 867.

Certain conduct of counsel in propounding a question held not improper. Paris & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Calvin (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 428.

A question by which plaintiff sought to prove that defendant had taken insurance against liability held prejudicial error, though not answered. Levinski v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 959.

25. —— Limiting scope or time of argument.—Liberality in limiting time of argument should be extended, that the jury may not think the court considers plaintiff's claim of little consequence. May v. Hahn, 22 C. A. 365, 54 S. W. 416.

Where no objection was made to the allowance of time for argument, and plaintiff's counsel argued for 35 minutes of the hour allowed him, he cannot complain that the time was not equally distributed. Ray v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 99, 88 S. W. 466.

In a servant's action for injuries, where 18 witnesses, including plaintiff, were examined, and where the evidence upon material issues was conflicting, held, that the action of the trial court in limiting the time of plaintiff's counsel for opening and closing to 30 minutes and stopping him at the end of 40 minutes was such an abuse of discretion as to be reversible error. Cooper v. Robischung Bros. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1050.

26. —— Statements as to facts, comments, and arguments in general.—Improper remarks of counsel ground of reversal, when. Railway Co. v. Irvine, 64 T. 529; Railway Co. v. Bowles (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 727.

Reversal will not be had merely because of sophistry in argument or fallacious reasoning upon the facts when it does not appear that the jury were prejudiced thereby. Railway Co. v. White, 80 T. 202, 15 S. W. 808.

Argument by plaintiff's counsel held justified by the evidence. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. v. Brown, 16 C. A. 93, 40 S. W. 608.

Conduct of counsel in not divulging contents of a telegram from his client, and in not putting her on the stand on her arrival, held not ground for complaint. Ft. Worth & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Enos (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 595.

Where plaintiff was not allowed to testify as to the contract she alleged, because disqualified by statute, it was error for her counsel to argue that defendant had taken advantage of a technicality. Carvajal v. Casanova (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 428.

The indulgence of counsel in additional argument, or permitting the introduction of further testimony, when requested, during the argument of counsel, is a matter resting within the sound discretion of the court. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 983.

Improper statements of counsel held not reversible error in the absence of a special request for an instruction that the statement was not proper for the consideration of the jury. Jones v. Wright (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1010.

It was improper for defendant's counsel in his argument to refer to the fact that upon a former trial plaintiff had been unable to get a verdict. Prewitt v. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co., 46 C. A. 123, 101 S. W. 812.

The fact that one of plaintiff's attorneys wrote the charge given in a certain case and told the jury he was willing they should find for defendant if the charge did not contain a certain word will not warrant a reversal. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Grych, 46 C. A. 439, 103 S. W. 703.

An attorney may draw a conclusion from the evidence and discuss what he thinks would be the proper amount of damages. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hibbitts, 49 C. A. 419, 109 S. W. 228.

Certain argument of counsel held legitimate in view of the evidence. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Parsons (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 240.

Argument of counsel held to constitute reversible error. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell, 50 C. A. 92, 109 S. W. 435.

In an action for injuries to a passenger on a mixed train, plaintiff's counsel was not guilty of misconduct in arguing that defendant was negligent in inviting passengers to ride on freight trains, and that this was sufficient to entitle plaintiff to recover. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Cheatham, 52 C. A. 1, 113 S. W. 777.

Remarks of counsel for the successful party held not to require a reversal of the judgment. City of Ft. Worth v. Williams, 55 C. A. 289, 119 S. W. 137.

Scope of argument allowed to attorney stated. Pitts v. Wood (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 954.

In a suit to recover land, plaintiff's counsel held entitled in their argument to comment on the legal effect of the possession of a former holder of the land. Crane v. Woods (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 444.

The argument of counsel informing the jury as to the legal effect of their finding a fact is improper, and the court on objection must direct the jury to disregard it. Fain v. Nelms (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 281.

27. —— Stating or reading and commenting on proceedings in cause.—It is not error to permit counsel to state to the jury the substance of instruments offered in evidence. Gonzales v. Batts, 20 C. A. 421, 50 S. W. 403.

Counsel cannot read and comment to the jury on alleged admissions in an original pleading which has not been put in evidence. Johnston v. Johnston (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 123.

Misconstruction of appellate court's opinion in former appeal, in arguing to jury, held error. Somes v. Ainsworth, 33 C. A. 7, 75 S. W. 839.

Permitting the reading to the jury of parts of pleading to which special exceptions were sustained held erroneous. Simpson v. Thompson, 43 C. A. 273, 95 S. W. 94.

28. —— Authorities on subject involved.—In a personal injury action, held not reversible error to refuse to permit defendant's counsel to read to its witness an extract from a textbook on nervous diseases resulting from accident and injury. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Barnes, 50 C. A. 46, 111 S. W. 447.

29. —— Arguing or reading law to jury.—What shall or shall not be read in argument is left to the discretion of the court. Britton v. Thrash, 1 App. C. C. § 1239.

Permitting counsel to read opinions of the supreme court, as part of his argument, to show that large verdicts had been sustained against railroad companies for personal injuries, held reversible error. Railway Co. v. Wesch (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 62.

Reading authorities to the court in the hearing of the jury is a matter of practice largely confided to the discretion of the trial court. Telegraph Co. v. Wingate, 25 S. W. 439, 6 C. A. 394.

In an action for damages it is error to permit plaintiff to read to the jury decisions of the supreme court affirming judgments therefor. W. U. Tel. Co. v. Teague, 27 S. W. 958, 8 C. A. 304; Railway Co. v. Wesch, 85 T. 600, 22 S. W. 957.

Misconduct of counsel in discussing reported cases to the jury, and drawing comparisons between them and the case at bar on the question of contributory negligence, which was a sharply contested issue, held prejudicial error. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 658.

In an action by a passenger against a railroad company for injuries, held not error to permit counsel to read in the presence of the jury a similar case against a railroad company. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bell, 24 C. A. 579, 58 S. W. 614.

Permitting the reading of opinions to the court in the presence of the jury, and afterwards commenting on the same, held an abuse of discretion. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Gee, 27 C. A. 414, 66 S. W. 78.

In a suit to determine a boundary, counsel's reference to a Supreme Court decision in another case, containing a statement with reference to ripping up old land titles, held improper. Matthews v. Thatcher, 33 C. A. 133, 76 S. W. 61.

Permitting counsel for plaintiff to read from opinion of Court of Civil Appeals in the case, and to comment thereon, in the presence of the jury, held error. Lewter v. Lindley (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 784.

It was improper for the court to permit counsel for plaintiff to read from decisions in similar cases in the presence of the jury, ostensibly for the purpose of arguing the law to the court. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Lambkin (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 574.

It is somewhat within the discretion of the trial court in a civil trial whether it will permit authorities to be read in argument to the jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smith (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 453.

Allowing counsel to read from authorities and comment on them to the jury held, in view of the facts of the case, not an abuse of discretion of the trial court. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ross, 55 C. A. 622, 119 S. W. 725.

Counsel may present to the jury their theory of the law applicable, so that, where plaintiff alleged in an action for injuries caused by being struck by a projection from a passing train that the train was running at a high speed, plaintiff's counsel could argue that such excessive speed was negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wilcox, 57 C. A. 3, 121 S. W. 588.

It was error to permit plaintiff's counsel to read to the jury, in an action for damages for the nondelivery of a telegram, another case wherein a judgment for $2,500 was affirmed. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Ray (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1194.

30. —— Matters not within issues.—The argument of counsel should be confined to the evidence and the argument of the opposing counsel. Willis v. McNeill, 57 T. 465; T. & St. L. R. R. Co. v. Jarrell, 60 T. 267; G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Marsden, 1 App. C. C. § 1001; H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Newman, 2 App. C. C. § 350.

Counsel should be confined by the court to the discussion of those issues made by the pleadings in regard to which some evidence has been introduced. Taylor v. McNutt, 58 T. 71; Clark v. Bohms (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 347.

Counsel, in reply to matters outside the record introduced by his adversary, may discuss such matters. Paschal v. Owen, 77 T. 583, 14 S. W. 203.

Statements of counsel unauthorized by the evidence are harmless where they relate to matter not in issue. Kohman v. Baldwin (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 396.

Comments of defendant's counsel held sufficiently improper to require a reversal in an action by an execution purchaser of an undivided half interest in a certain lot of cattle for partition thereof. Hunstock v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 675.

In an action against a railway company and a commission company held error to allow the plaintiff's attorney to refer before the jury to the matter of the plea of privilege filed by the commission company, and the action of the court in sustaining that plea. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Moore, 47 C. A. 531, 105 S. W. 532.

In a servant's injury action, statements by plaintiff's counsel in argument that plaintiff would suffer mental anguish whenever he went into a public place, etc., because of his injuries, held error. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dickens, 54 C. A. 637, 118 S. W. 612, 618.

Comment by counsel in argument on an issue not before the jury held improper. Evart v. Dalrymple (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 223.

Under the answer, held, that defendant's counsel was not entitled to argue certain matters to the jury. Quinn v. Dickinson (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 993.

31. —— Matters not sustained by evidence.—It is reversible error for counsel in the argument to the jury to state facts pertinent to the issue and not in evidence, or to assume arguendo such facts to be in the case when they are not. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Marsden, 1 App. C. C. § 1001.

Remark of counsel contrary to the undisputed evidence held improper. The Oriental v. Barclay, 16 C. A. 193, 41 S. W. 117.

Counsel have no right to comment on a fact not in evidence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Walden (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 87.

Counsel cannot state facts in their argument not in evidence. Trinity & S. Ry. Co. v. O'Brien, 18 C. A. 690, 46 S. W. 389.

Argument to jury, going outside of the evidence, in an accident case where large damages were awarded, held prejudicial error. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Langston, 19 C. A. 568, 48 S. W. 610.

Argument of counsel not based on any evidence held ground for reversal. Baum v. Sanger (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 650.

Where the inference from the evidence is legitimate that a certain statement was designed to assist the defendant in its defense, it is not error to permit the opposing attorney to so argue to the jury. Southern Cotton-Oil Co. v. Wallace, 23 C. A. 12, 54 S. W. 638.

Failure to instruct the jury to disregard prejudicial remarks by counsel in his argument to the jury held reversible error. Rotan v. Maedgen, 24 C. A. 558, 59 S. W. 585.

Expressions of opinion by the counsel in his argument reflecting upon the honesty of the adverse party, and which have no support in the evidence, may constitute reversible error. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Huggins (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 976.

Where, in an action on fire policy, defense was that insured had set the fire, and there was evidence of a prosecution for arson, but no evidence of an acquittal, it was error for counsel to state to the jury that the insured had been tried and acquitted. Phœnix Assur. Co. of London v. Stenson (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 542.

In an action against a railroad company for personal injuries, argument of plaintiff's attorney held in violation of rule 39 (67 S. W. xxiii), requiring argument to be confined strictly to the evidence and opposing arguments. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 60.

Rules for the district courts 39 (67 S. W. xxiii) held violated by an argument of plaintiff's counsel which appealed to the self-interest of the jury. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Boyd, 40 C. A. 93, 88 S. W. 509.

In an action for damages from overflow of land by the negligent maintenance of an embankment, permitting certain argument by plaintiff's counsel held error. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. McClerran (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 653.

Statement of counsel in final argument relative to matters shown by paper not in evidence held error. Whittaker v. Thayer, 48 C. A. 508, 110 S. W. 787.

Counsel should not state in his argument his knowledge of the facts, unless he has testified thereto as a witness. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 188.

In an action for personal injuries, counsel for plaintiff held entitled to base his argument on any evidence admissible to show defendant's negligence. Producers' Oil Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1023.

In an action for injury to a child, improper argument of counsel in violation of district court rule No. 39 (67 S. W. xxiii) held to necessitate a reversal. Galveston Electric Co. v. Dickey, 56 C. A. 490, 120 S. W. 1134.

A letter offered in evidence was properly excluded from the argument, where failure to read it to the jury at the proper time was not excused. Foster v. Prichard (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1187.

Counsel should not take advantage of their privilege in making argument to put before the jury facts not admissible in evidence. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Goodrich (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 81.

Argument of counsel held ground for reversal in the absence of evidence justifying it. Moss v. Slack (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1063.

In an action for personal injuries, argument of counsel held justified by the evidence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Coker (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 218.

Counsel should not in their argument make a statement of facts not warranted by the evidence. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Ray (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1194.

While counsel may draw from the facts and evidence every legitimate inference deducible therefrom, an inference upon an issue pleaded, but not supported by the evidence, is not a legitimate inference, and is improper. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Shinn (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 636.

A comment by a party's counsel on evidence introduced on the trial does not justify an argument by the counsel of the adverse party as to facts he was not permitted to prove by reason of an objection sustained by the court. First Nat. Bank v. Harkrider (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 290.

32. —— Comments on evidence or witnesses.—Statement of counsel to the jury that testimony of employés of defendant railroad must be considered, in connection with the fact that testimony unfavorable to the employers would result in dismissal, held not misconduct. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Rhoades, 21 C. A. 459, 52 S. W. 979.

It is error to allow plaintiff's counsel, in an action against a railroad company, to state that in his experience employés never swore against the company. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dickens (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 124.

It is reversible error to allow counsel to comment in argument to jury upon evidence improperly admitted. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 675.

In an action against a railroad company for personal injuries, remarks of plaintiff's counsel as to the company's having brought up a witness held not ground for the reversal of a judgment for plaintiff. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Follin, 29 C. A. 512, 68 S. W. 810.

The language of counsel in his argument to the jury, attacking a witness, held not reversible error. Houston Electric Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 209.

Reference by counsel for defendant to witnesses for plaintiff as "gentle cutthroats" held not unjustified. Sterling v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co., 38 C. A. 451, 86 S. W. 655.

Argument of counsel, which the jury were directed to disregard, held presumptively not to have influenced the jury. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Dilworth (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 352.

It is legitimate for counsel to argue to the jury that the testimony of a witness indicates that he has been coached in advance as to what testimony to give, but it was improper to make such a statement as a fact. Id.

Argument of counsel in a personal injury action held not an unfair inference from the evidence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Worth (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 958.

That defendant had applied for a continuance on account of the absence of witnesses, and then refused to use them when they appeared in court, held not a legitimate subject of argument. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Garber (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 742.

The statement by counsel that, since a first deposition was taken, the records were examined and the witness was forced to testify differently, cannot be held improper argument, in the absence of a showing that it was unwarranted by the facts or circumstances in evidence. Maffi v. Stephens, 49 C. A. 354, 108 S. W. 1008.

In an action for injuries to a railroad employé, certain of defendant's witnesses having testified that they had been furnished free transportation to the place of trial, the court did not err in permitting plaintiff's attorney to argue that this was a violation of Gen. Laws 1907, p. 93, c. 72. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Adams (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 876.

On a trial for injuries to an engineer in a railroad collision certain argument held proper. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Brice (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 613.

In a personal injury action certain remarks of plaintiff's attorney held prejudicial to defendant. Galveston Electric Co. v. Dobbert (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 838.

Argument of counsel held improper. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Lane (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1066.

Conduct of attorney in asking objectionable questions and obtaining answers thereto held reversible error notwithstanding objections were sustained. Jordan v. Massey (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 804.

Where certain evidence was brought out by counsel for the defendant on cross-examination, it was before the jury and plaintiff's attorney could comment thereon. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Davison (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1162.

Since parties have a right to be represented by counsel the courts cannot control their argument if it presents to the jury conclusions supported by facts, either direct or circumstantial, tending to support counsel's theory. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Suitor (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 185.

33. —— Comments on failure to produce evidence or call witness.—In an action for breach of marriage promise, where plaintiff on trial demanded the production by defendant of letters from plaintiff to defendant, and he refused to produce them, though notice was sufficient, they being readily accessible, plaintiff's counsel had the right in his closing argument to refer to the failure to produce. Hill v. Houser, 51 C. A. 359, 115 S. W. 112.

In a servant's injury action, held prejudicial error for plaintiff's counsel to state in argument that defendant could have required an examination of plaintiff by physicians. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rogers, 55 C. A. 93, 117 S. W. 939.

Allusions of counsel in argument held not improper. Kettler Brass Mfg. Co. v. O'Neil, 57 C. A. 568, 122 S. W. 900.

In an action against a railroad for personal injuries, counsel for plaintiff had the right to call the attention, in their argument, to the fact that the surgeon of the railroad was hired and paid a salary, and could be brought into court to testify for the company. Freeman v. Vetter (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 190.

Defendant having placed certain of its employés under the rule, and then not having called them, plaintiff's counsel could argue that defendant had used all means to prevent light being shed on the circumstances of decedent's death. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Boone (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 616.

Argument of counsel respecting plaintiff's failure to call certain witnesses held proper. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dooley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 831.

Statement of plaintiffs' counsel to the jury concerning defendant's failure to produce available witnesses held improper. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 44.

In action against railroad company for death of switchman, defendant having its switching crew present and placing them under the rule, and failing to call them as witnesses, remarks by plaintiff's counsel that defendant had used all means to close the light against the manner in which deceased was killed, because they knew plaintiff would get help from such witnesses, was not improper. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Boone (Sup.) 146 S. W. 533.

Error, if any, in the argument of plaintiff's counsel asking why defendants had not produced certain witnesses, was waived by defendant's counsel answering the question and stating the reason. Vesper v. Lavender (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 377.

Where defendant testified that he saw his codefendant the morning of the trial, it was not error for plaintiff's counsel to comment upon his failure to call his codefendant to the witness stand, instead of using his deposition. Miller v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 591.

34. —— Comments on character or conduct of party.—Remarks of counsel reflecting on the personal appearance of one not a witness held improper. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Copeland, 17 C. A. 55, 42 S. W. 239.

In an action against a railroad for damages for operating its road on a village street, remarks of counsel, denouncing plaintiffs and contrasting their conduct with other citizens, held ground for reversal. Hanna v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 27 C. A. 492, 65 S. W. 493.

Argument of counsel in a personal injury action held reversible error. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Harrington, 44 C. A. 386, 98 S. W. 653.

In an action for injuries to a railroad brakeman, argument of counsel that a rule alleged to have been violated was only made by the railroad company for the purpose of defending law suits held not error. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Conway, 44 C. A. 68, 98 S. W. 1070.

In an action for conversion, it was improper for plaintiff's attorney, in referring to defendant, to state that he had not the least semblance of moral sense, but would steal plaintiff's property. Crow v. Ball (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 583.

Remarks of counsel in argument held highly improper. Freeman v. Griewe (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 730.

35. —— Appeals to sympathy or prejudice.—When language calculated to arouse the prejudice of the jury has been used in the closing argument, and injury has probably resulted to the appellant, the judgment will be reversed. Willis v. McNeill, 57 T. 474; T. & St. L. R. R. Co. v. Jarrell, 60 T. 260; T. & P. R. Co. v. Garcia, 62 T. 285; Heidenheimer v. Thomas, 63 T. 287; Delk v. Punchard, 64 T. 360; H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Larkin, 64 T. 454; H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. O'Hare, 64 T. 600. See I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Irvin, 64 T. 529; Railway Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 998. But not otherwise. Barber v. Hutchins, 66 T. 319, 1 S. W. 275; Willis v. Lowery, 66 T. 540, 2 S. W. 449; T. & P. R. Co. v. Pollard, 2 App. C. C. § 488; T. & P. R. Co. v. Wills, 2 App. C. C. § 796; Railway Co. v. Johnson, 23 S. W. 827, 5 C. A. 24. Improper remarks of the successful counsel are presumed to have influenced the minds of the jury, and are ground for reversal, if the verdict was against the great preponderance of evidence; the fact that the opposite counsel had an opportunity to reply does not affect the question. Blum v. Simpson, 66 T. 84, 17 S. W. 403.

When language is used relating to matters not in evidence and of a character calculated to inflame and prejudice the minds of the jurors against the adverse party, the judgment will be reversed, especially in a case where the verdict seems excessive Railway Co. v. Cooper, 70 T. 67, 8 S. W. 68; Dillingham v. Scales, 78 T. 208, 14 S. W. 566; Railway Co. v. Norfleet, 78 T. 321, 14 S. W. 703; Railway Co. v. Jones, 73 T. 232, 11 S. W. 185; Beville v. Jones, 74 T. 148, 11 S. W. 1128; Railway Co. v. McLendon (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 307.

It is only when remarks of counsel are reprehensible, not provoked by the other side and in answer thereto, called to the attention of the court and not by the court checked and some probability existing that the verdict was influenced thereby, that they will be ground for reversal. Moore v. Moore, 73 T. 382, 11 S. W. 396; Waterworks Co. v. Harris, 23 S. W. 46, 3 C. A. 475.

Where on trial two issues are presented, upon either of which the verdict could have been rendered, upon one of which there was a preponderance in testimony against the verdict, and the counsel of the successful party in argument to the jury used abusive language not warranted by the testimony and calculated to excite prejudice and influence hostile feelings against his adversary, such line of argument is ground for reversal. Moss v. Sanger Bros., 75 T. 321, 12 S. W. 619.

Improper remarks of counsel ground for reversal, when. Railway Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 998; Railway Co. v. Jones, 73 T. 232, 11 S. W. 185; Railway Co. v. Bowles (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 727.

Judgment will not be reversed for improper remarks of counsel, where there is no indication that they exercised improper influence on the jury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 821.

Remarks by counsel, in argument, that some of the parties on the opposite side are Jews, held improper, as tending to prejudice the jury. Garritty v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 367.

In an action on a note, held, that plaintiff's attorney's remarks were improper and prejudicial to the defendant. Halsey v. Bell (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 1088.

Remarks of counsel, appealing to a juror's prejudice, held error. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Rea, 27 C. A. 549, 65 S. W. 1115.

In an action against a carrier for injuries to live stock, a statement of plaintiff's counsel in argument, held improper and prejudicial. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Lock, 30 C. A. 426, 70 S. W. 456.

In garnishment proceedings, certain argument of counsel held improper. Ferguson-McKinney Dry Goods Co. v. City Nat. Bank, 31 C. A. 238, 71 S. W. 604.

An instruction that the jury should not consider certain remarks of plaintiff's counsel held error. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Parker, 33 C. A. 514, 77 S. W. 42.

In an action for injuries, remarks of counsel held prejudicial to defendant and cause for reversal. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Pledger, 36 C. A. 248, 81 S. W. 755.

Argument of counsel that the jury should err, if at all, in giving excessive damages for personal injuries, as this could be cured on appeal, held improper. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Nesbit, 40 C. A. 209, 88 S. W. 891.

In an action for injuries, held error for counsel for plaintiff to argue to the jury that plaintiff was a poor girl, and defendant a rich corporation. Dallas Consolidated Electric St. Ry. Co. v. Black, 40 C. A. 415, 89 S. W. 1087.

In an action against a corporation and for personal injuries, remarks of plaintiff's counsel in opening the case held not objectionable. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 184.

In an action for insults offered certain lady passengers by a street car conductor, it was error for plaintiff's attorney to argue that the conductor was a Northern man and that the ladies were from the South. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Lambkin (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 574.

In an action for damages, it was error for plaintiff's counsel to state to the jury that a member of the court of civil appeals would approve a verdict in double the amount sued for because he was a Confederate soldier. Id.

In an action for injuries, it was not error for plaintiff's counsel in his address to the jury to refer to his client as "this honest German girl." G. A. Duerler Mfg. Co. v. Eichhorn, 44 C. A. 638, 99 S. W. 715.

Misconduct of counsel in argument held ground for reversal. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hays, 51 C. A. 114, 111 S. W. 446.

It is improper for counsel for a party to refer in his argument in a disparaging way to the fact that the adverse party made use of his unquestioned right to object to certain testimony. Ivy v. Ivy, 51 C. A. 397, 112 S. W. 110.

In an action for delay of a telegram, argument of plaintiff's counsel that the jury should punish the telegraph company held prejudicial error. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Smith, 52 C. A. 107, 113 S. W. 766.

The argument of counsel for a negro suing for a personal injury made to a jury of white men held not objectionable as appealing to their prejudice. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. McCoy, 54 C. A. 278, 117 S. W. 446.

In an action for the death of a railroad telegraph lineman, argument of counsel held not improper as tending to excite sympathy of jury. Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 657.

The closing argument of plaintiff's counsel in an action against a railroad for injuries to passenger held improper as a comparison of the financial condition of the parties, in the absence of evidence thereof. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Swann (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1164.

In a railroad fireman's action for injuries, statements by his counsel in argument held merely an argument that plaintiff was not negligent under the circumstances, and not improper, even though fallacious. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Gilbert (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1037.

Rule governing arguments to juries stated. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dooley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 831.

Certain language in the closing argument of plaintiff's counsel in an action against a telegraph company held prejudicial error. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas v. Smith (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1146.

In an action on a note, argument of plaintiff's counsel held inflammatory and prejudicial. Miller v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1174.

Comments of plaintiff's counsel to the jury on objections to his previous argument held improper. Metropolitan St. Ry. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 44.

In an action for a balance due on hay sold, an improper reference by counsel to the relative wealth of the parties held reversible error. Campbell v. Prieto (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 668.

In an action against a railroad company for wrongful death argument of counsel held not improper as calculated to arouse the passions and inflame the minds of the jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Fesmire (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 201.

In an action for injuries to a child, remarks by plaintiff's counsel that defendants "make me tired in talking about sympathy for this little girl (plaintiff); I wonder how about the bondholders and coupon clippers that own this road," were improper. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Wininger (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 586.

36. —— Abusive language.—Improper remarks of counsel ground for reversal, when. Willis v. Lowry, 66 Tex. 540, 2 S. W. 449.

The defendant in his testimony had testified that he had caused title to the lot in controversy to be made to his mother-in-law to put it out of reach of his creditors. Adverse counsel denounced it as colossal rascality. The use of such epithet upon such state of facts was no ground for reversal. Hickey v. Behrens, 75 T. 488, 12 S. W. 679.

Argument of counsel in an action against a railroad company for injuries at a crossing held reversible error. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Washington, 42 C. A. 380, 92 S. W. 1054.

In a personal injury suit by a railway employé, it was error for her attorney to intimate that defendant company should be punished by an assessment of damages, for introducing witnesses, referred to as liars. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dooley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 831.

37. —— Reference to protection of defendant by insurance or other indemnity.—In an action for injuries to a servant, conduct of plaintiff's counsel in stating to the jury in argument that defendant was insured in an employer's liability company constitutes reversible error. Lone Star Brewing Co. v. Voith (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 1100.

In a personal injury action it is reversible error for plaintiff's attorney to attempt to show over objection that because of indemnity insurance defendant will not be required to pay any judgment rendered against him, as by asking if a certain person who procured statements from witnesses was not a representative of an indemnity insurance company. Fell v. Kimble (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1070.

38. —— Retaliatory statements and remarks.—Counsel who had used improper language in his argument cannot complain of the language used by the opposing counsel in reply. Heidenheimer v. Thomas, 63 T. 287; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Garcia, 62 T. 285.

Improper remarks of counsel ground for reversal, when. Railway Co. v. Witte, 68 T. 294, 4 S. W. 490.

Objectionable words and phrases used in argument, when in reply to objectionable remarks by the adversary, and where it does not appear that the remarks were injurious, are no grounds for reversal. Willis v. McNatt, 75 T. 69, 12 S. W. 478.

Though a party is estopped to complain of another party going out of the record, such estoppel does not serve as a license to avoid the record entirely. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dickens (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 124.

Remarks of counsel in reference to an immaterial matter, called forth by remarks of opposing counsel, held not ground for reversal on appeal. Belknap v. Groover (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 249.

Defendant's counsel, having indulged in improper argument, held not entitled to object to an improper reply thereto by plaintiff's counsel. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Goswick (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 423.

Argument of counsel held not improper. Adams v. Hamilton, 53 C. A. 405, 116 S. W. 1169.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, the railroad held not entitled to complain of the improper argument of plaintiff's counsel made in reply to remarks of counsel for the defense. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Sandlin, 57 C. A. 151, 122 S. W. 60.

In an action for the death of a railroad telegraph lineman, argument of counsel in reply to argument of opposing counsel held not improper. Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 657.

Interruption of argument of counsel respecting plaintiff's failure to call certain witnesses by offers to take such witnesses' testimony held improper. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dooley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 831.

Improper argument invited by equally improper argument on the part of the other party is not reversible error. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Davison (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1162.

39. —— Objections and exceptions in general.—When objectionable language is used by counsel in argument, which it is believed may improperly affect the jury, objection should be made by the opposing counsel at the time; failing in that, he cannot ask a reversal of the judgment for that cause, unless the language was plainly prejudicial to an impartial trial. Railway Co. v. Greenlee, 70 T. 553, 8 S. W. 129; Moore v. Rogers, 84 T. 1, 19 S. W. 283; Belo v. Fuller, 84 T. 450, 19 S. W. 616, 31 Am. St. Rep. 75; Moore v. Moore, 73 T. 382, 11 S. W. 396.

While the objection should, in general, be made at the time, it is not absolutely necessary in all cases. Prather v. McClelland (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 657; Willis v. McNeill, 57 T. 465. See Moore v. Moore, 73 T. 382, 11 S. W. 396; Railway Co. v. Jones, 73 T. 235, 11 S. W. 185; Beville v. Jones, 74 T. 154, 11 S. W. 1128; Railway Co. v. Garcia, 62 T. 289; Railway Co. v. Jarrell, 60 T. 270; Railway Co. v. Butcher, 83 T. 309, 18 S. W. 583.

Where plaintiffs' counsel stated to the jury what in his judgment plaintiffs should receive from defendant railroad company for death of intestate, a general exception to such statement did not preserve in a bill of exceptions a question as to prejudice to the jury therefrom. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 702.

Statement of plaintiff's counsel in argument, which he immediately withdrew on objection, held not prejudicial error. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Perry, 30 C. A. 243, 70 S. W. 439.

If one does not at the time except to the court's ruling on improper remarks of counsel, he is not entitled to review of court's action. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Mercer (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 563.

Where counsel indulges in improper argument, it is sufficient diligence that the objection is made to the judge, and exception taken to the ruling, without interrupting the argument. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Pledger, 36 C. A. 248, 81 S. W. 755.

Where remarks of plaintiff's counsel were replied to in kind by defendant's counsel, and defendant's exceptions thereto were taken quietly, without knowledge of plaintiff, they did not constitute ground for new trial. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Granger (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 987.

Held not error to refuse to charge the jury to disregard an improper argument, where the specific objection is untenable. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. J. C. Wooldridge & Son (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 845.

A ground of objection to argument of counsel which is not raised on the trial cannot be considered on appeal. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Worth (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 958.

A remark of defendant's counsel in his argument held one that should have been excepted to when made, or at least during the trial. Fordtran v. Stowers, 52 C. A. 226, 113 S. W. 631.

Under district court rule 41 (67 S. W. xxiii), the court on an attorney making improper remarks to the jury must take proper action, and the adverse party need only make his objection to the court. Galveston Electric Co. v. Dickey, 56 C. A. 490, 120 S. W. 1134.

The objection of a defendant telegraph company to improper argument held sufficiently presented in the court below. Postal Telegraph Cable Co. of Texas v. Smith (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1146.

Where it appeared that plaintiff's counsel commented on an issue as to which there was no evidence, but it did not appear what language was used, or that any suggestion as to its impropriety or request for an instruction to disregard was made to the court, no error was shown. Southern Kansas R. Co. of Texas v. Shinn (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 636.

40. —— Bill of exceptions.—See notes under Art. 2058.

41. —— Request for instruction to disregard improper argument.—See notes under Art. 1973.

42. —— Withdrawal or correction of objectionable matter.—When counsel uses improper argument and objection is made and sustained by the court, upon which the counsel retracts the statements, it will rarely be ground for reversal. T. S. Oil Co. v. Hanlon, 79 T. 678, 15 S. W. 703; Railway Co. v. Johnson, 83 T. 628, 19 S. W. 151.

Railroad company held not entitled to complain of court's ruling on argument of opposing counsel. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Mercer (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 562.

In action against railroad for servant's injuries, remark of attorney in closing held not reversible error. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Reeves, 35 C. A. 162, 79 S. W. 1099.

Improper argument held, under the circumstances, not ground for reversal. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 493.

Error in improper remarks of counsel held cured. Cane Belt R. Co. v. Crosson, 39 C. A. 369, 87 S. W. 867.

Where objections to remarks of counsel were sustained and the remarks withdrawn, they do not constitute ground for reversal. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Brice (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 660.

Objectionable language used in argument held not to warrant reversal when it was withdrawn by counsel and the jury were instructed to disregard it. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Martin, 49 C. A. 197, 108 S. W. 981.

Reversals are not to be granted for improper argument of counsel where it appears that the remarks were withdrawn, and the jury instructed to ignore them, and the jury understood and heeded the instruction. Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 657.

A remark made by an attorney to the court indicating the purpose for which evidence was offered, and immediately withdrawn on objection, held not reversible error. Cahoon v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 790.

43. —— Action of court.—It is improper for counsel to state to the jury "that he had drawn the petition under facts in cases not so bad as this, and had put the amount claimed as low as he thought he could." He was in effect testifying before the jury, and the language called for more from the court than a mere direction to the jury not to regard it. Receivers v. Withers, 1 C. A. 540, 20 S. W. 766.

It is the duty of the court, when appealed to by counsel, to reprimand the opposing counsel for using improper language in his argument to the jury and to instruct the jury to disregard it. A., T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bryan (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 98.

Instruction of court to disregard improper remarks of counsel held to correct any error therein. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Weaver (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 846.

Remarks of plaintiff's counsel held not to entitle defendant to a charge that the jury should ignore such remarks. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Nordell, 20 C. A. 362, 50 S. W. 601.

When remarks made by counsel are improper, it is not error for the court to cause him to desist therefrom. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. White, 23 C. A. 280, 56 S. W. 204.

In an action by a passenger for injuries, it was not error to refuse a new trial because of improper remarks of counsel, where the jury were instructed to pay no attention to them. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bell, 24 C. A. 579, 58 S. W. 614.

Refusal of court to restrain counsel in his address held error. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wood, 26 C. A. 500, 63 S. W. 654.

Improper remarks of counsel in his closing argument held not ground for reversal, when the court instructed the jury to disregard them. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Kingston, 30 C. A. 24, 68 S. W. 518.

Remarks of plaintiff's counsel as to the attendance of a witness held not prejudicial to defendant, where the jury were instructed not to consider anything as to witness' absence or presence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Anchonda, 33 C. A. 24, 75 S. W. 557.

In an action for injuries to a servant, failure to rebuke plaintiff's counsel for erroneous argument, and instruct the jury to disregard the same, held prejudicial error. Chicago, R. I. & T. Ry. Co. v. Musick, 33 C. A. 177, 76 S. W. 219.

A statement in the opening argument of counsel for plaintiff in an action on a life insurance policy held improper, but not calling for a reversal of the judgment. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Bradley (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 367.

Misconduct of counsel in arguing to jury held cured by instructions given by the court. Robertson v. Trammell, 37 C. A. 53, 83 S. W. 258; Id., 98 T. 364, 83 S. W. 1098.

The asking of a question, though objection to it was sustained, held reversible error. Harry Bros. Co. v. Brady (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 615.

Certain remarks of counsel in argument to the jury as to defendant's ability to pay damages held highly improper. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. McCarty, 40 C. A. 364, 89 S. W. 805.

Misconduct of counsel in argument held not prejudicial to defendant, the trial court having promptly sustained an objection thereto and directed him to desist, which he did. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Craige, 44 C. A. 214, 90 S. W. 681.

In an action by children for negligence causing the death of their father, certain argument of plaintiff's counsel, which the jury were directed to disregard, held not cause for reversal. Beaumont Traction Co. v. Dilworth (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 352.

The propriety of reprimanding counsel for asking a witness a question to which an objection had previously been sustained, was a matter solely within the discretion of the trial court. Collins v. Chipman, 41 C. A. 563, 95 S. W. 666.

Improper argument of counsel which the jury are expressly instructed by the charge to disregard is not cause for reversal. Id.

In an action against a carrier for injuries to horses shipped, argument of plaintiff's attorney held reversible error. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Terry, 43 C. A. 591, 97 S. W. 325.

Where misconduct of counsel in argument received the prompt reprimand of the trial court, and counsel withdrew the objectionable statement, after which the court distinctly instructed the jury not to consider it or be influenced by it, the error was cured. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Conway, 44 C. A. 68, 98 S. W. 1070.

Remark of plaintiff's counsel in opening argument, that he did not think that one of two defendants was liable, held not to entitle that defendant to be dismissed from the suit. Consolidated Kansas City Smelting & Refining Co. v. Binkley, 45 C. A. 100, 99 S. W. 181.

Error of plaintiff's counsel in referring to his client as "a penniless girl" held cured by an instruction and by a request by plaintiff's counsel that the jury should not consider the remark. G. A. Duerler Mfg. Co. v. Eichhorn, 44 C. A. 638, 99 S. W. 715.

An instruction that the jury should not consider certain erroneous side-bar remarks by the attorney of one of the defendants held to cure the error. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Knowles, 44 C. A. 172, 99 S. W. 867.

Improper remarks of counsel held not ground for reversal in view of action of court. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Sloss, 45 C. A. 153, 100 S. W. 354.

Argument of counsel based on excluded testimony held not ground for reversal. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Davis, 45 C. A. 212, 100 S. W. 1013.

Argument of plaintiff's counsel held not ground for reversal as inflaming the jury, where the court directed the jury not to consider it. Studebaker Bros. Co. v. Kitts (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 464.

Error in improper argument of counsel held cured, where the court checked counsel and orally instructed the jury not to consider the argument, and defendant did not request any written instruction on the matter. Consumers' Lignite Co. v. Hubner (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 249.

Remark of counsel that woman whose injuries were sued for would probably not have accepted all the money in the world to submit to such injuries, while objectionable, was cured by a withdrawal and an instruction to disregard it. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. West (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 343.

Error in a statement by defendant's counsel in argument held cured by an instruction that the jury should not consider it. Gutzman v. City of Ft. Worth (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1182.

Statements by plaintiff's counsel in an action for injuries indicating a belief that an insurance company was the real party in interest in defending the case held reversible error in spite of the action of the court in directing the jury to disregard it. City of Austin v. Gress (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 535.

The misconduct of counsel of the successful party in making an improper argument is not ground for reversal where the argument was withdrawn and the court instructed the jury to disregard it. Houston Chronicle Pub. Co. v. McDavid (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 224.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

CHARGES AND INSTRUCTIONS TO THE JURY

Article 1970. [1316] [1316] Unless waived court shall charge jury or submit issues of fact; failure to give time for examination, etc.—In all civil cases the judge shall, unless the same be expressly waived by the parties to the suit, prepare and in open court, deliver a written charge to the jury on the law of the case, or submit issues of fact to the jury if said cause is submitted to the jury on special issue of fact at the time, in the manner and subject to the restrictions hereafter provided, provided that failure of the court to give reasonable time to the parties or their attorneys for examination of the charge shall be reviewable upon repeal [appeal] upon proper exception. [Acts 1853, p. 19. Acts 1903, p. 55. R. S. 1879, 1316, P. D. 1464. Acts 1913, p. 113, sec. 3, amending Art. 1970, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

1. Necessity and propriety of instructions in general.
2. Issues and theories of case in general.
3. Duty to submit all the issues.
4. Affirmative and negative of issue.

13. Credibility of witnesses.
14. Preponderance of evidence.
15. Matters of law in general.
16. Law applicable to particular issues or theories.
17. —— Negligence.
18. —— Agency and respondeat superior.
19. —— Contributory negligence and assumption of risk.
20. —— Discovered peril.
21. —— Negligence of fellow servant.
22. —— Proximate cause.
23. —— Fraud.
24. Submission to jury for special findings.
25. Determination of amount of recovery.
26. Instructions as to duties of jury.
27. Influence of arguments of counsel.
28. Definition or explanation of terms.
29. General or special charge.
30. "Law of the case."
31. Requisites and sufficiency of charge.
32. Weight of evidence.
33. Requests for instructions.
34. Questions of law or fact.
35. Objections and exceptions.

1. Necessity and propriety of instructions in general.—When the jury have been misled in their duty, for the want of a charge by the court other than such as counsel submitted, the case will be reversed. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Philips, 63 T. 590. Improper evidence should not be admitted with a view of controlling its effect by a charge. Tucker v. Hamlin, 60 T. 171.

A charge should not be given unless it is required for the information of the jury in dealing with the testimony upon the issue. Railway Co. v. McGowan, 73 T. 355, 11 S. W. 336.

It is not reversible error for the court, after charging on two defenses, to require jury, if they found for defendant, to state on which defense they found. Phœnix Assur. Co. v. Munger Improved Cotton-Mach. Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 271.

Where no other judgment could have been rendered on the facts, the failure of the court to give any charge, when there is no express waiver is immaterial. Wallace v. Shapard, 42 C. A. 594, 94 S. W. 152.

Office of an instruction defined. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cleland, 50 C. A. 499, 110 S. W. 122.

Error in refusing defendant's request to submit an issue to the jury is available, though a peremptory instruction might have been awarded for defendant. Lantry-Sharpe Contracting Co. v. McCracken, 53 C. A. 627, 117 S. W. 453.

A party is entitled, when he requests it by a correct instruction, to have the facts establishing his cause of action or ground of defense and the law applicable thereto affirmatively stated by the court to the jury. Lyon v. Bedgood, 54 C. A. 19, 117 S. W. 897.

Where it appeared from defendant's pleading as well as the evidence that an account in question showed a balance in favor of plaintiff, held not error to refuse a charge that defendants could not recover on the account. Stark v. Burkitt (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 939.

2. Issues and theories of case in general.—The court may instruct the jury in accordance with the interpretation of the pleadings acted upon by the parties. Blum v. Whitworth, 66 T. 350, 1 S. W. 108.

Court should instruct the jury to disregard items of an account as to which there is no competent testimony. Maverick v. Maury, 79 T. 435, 15 S. W. 686.

Where the evidence is conflicting the defendant is entitled to a charge pertinently submitting his theory of the case to the jury. Smith v. Bank, 1 C. A. 115, 20 S. W. 1119.

Instruction should have confined the acts of negligence to those alleged in the petition. Fordyce v. Moore (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 235.

Where there was evidence that a husband bought property with money belonging to his wife, held, that a failure to charge was erroneous, as negativing the wife's right to recover pro tanto if any of the price was paid from her separate means. Johnson v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 334.

Failure to instruct that plaintiff's recovery was restricted by his petition held not error. Knittel v. Schmidt, 16 C. A. 7, 40 S. W. 507.

It is reversible error to refuse a special charge presenting an issue not embraced in the original charge. Jones v. Parker (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 123; Hoefling v. Dobbin, 91 T. 210, 42 S. W. 541.

A party has the right, on a proper request, to have submitted the particular theory on which he relies, if there is pleading and evidence to support it. Smith v. Frio County (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 958; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cardena, 22 C. A. 300, 54 S. W. 312; Halff v. Wangemann (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 937; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Short, 58 S. W. 56; Dabney v. Conley, 65 S. W. 1124; Bering Mfg. Co. v. Femelat, 35 C. A. 36, 79 S. W. 869; Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Wilkins (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 870; Crowder v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 39 C. A. 314, 87 S. W. 166; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Demsey, 40 C. A. 398, 89 S. W. 786; Kramer v. Wolf Cigar Stores Co., 99 T. 597, 91 S. W. 775; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Oram (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1029; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Huber, 95 S. W. 568; San Antonio Brewing Ass'n v. Magoffin, 99 S. W. 187; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smith, 101 S. W. 453; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Jackson, 47 C. A. 26, 103 S. W. 709; Earnest v. Waggoner, 49 C. A. 298, 108 S. W. 495; Parrish v. Adwell (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 441; Texas Traction Co. v. Hanson, Id. 494; Dibrell v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 905; Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Moyer, 128 S. W. 1135; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Matthews, 129 S. W. 843; Cariker & Wintz v. W. J. Vawters & Son, 134 S. W. 780; Grigsby v. Reib, 139 S. W. 1027.

In an action by a servant for injuries from defective machinery, a charge that defendant was bound to use ordinary care to have machine in actually safe condition held not necessary. Lancaster Cotton Oil Co. v. White, 32 C. A. 608, 75 S. W. 339.

In an action for injuries to a servant, a certain special charge held properly refused. Cane Belt R. Co. v. Crosson, 39 C. A. 369, 87 S. W. 867; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 375.

Where certain letters between the parties contained conflicting phrases, it was not error to refuse to treat the same as embodying a written contract, and to instruct as to the meaning thereof. Cohn v. Sherman Refining Co., 39 C. A. 296, 87 S. W. 1170.

Where the complaint in an action for injury to a child at a railroad crossing did not charge as negligence failure to give signals, held, an instruction that evidence thereof should not be considered should have been given. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Nesbit, 40 C. A. 209, 88 S. W. 891.

Where there was evidence tending to show defendant guilty of all acts of negligence alleged, and that they were the proximate cause of the damages, held not error to submit to jury all acts of negligence charged in petition. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 1167.

In an action against a carrier to recover for personal injuries to a passenger, a refusal to give an instruction submitting defendant's theory of the case and grouping the facts on which it might be based held error. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Bolgiano, 49 C. A. 297, 109 S. W. 388.

An issue raised by the petition and supported by evidence is properly submitted to the jury. Galveston, H. &. S. A. Ry. Co. v. Schuessler, 56 C. A. 410, 120 S. W. 1147; Lefkovitz v. Sherwood (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 850.

There being evidence on issues, special charges covering them, being asked should be given. Watkins Land Co. v. Temple (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1063.

In an action for negligence it is not error to fail to expressly limit the negligence to that alleged in the petition. Passons v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 435; Pullman Co. v. Schober, 149 S. W. 236.

It was unnecessary to submit to the jury as to when the petitions were filed, where there was no issue on that question. D. Sullivan & Co. v. Ramsey (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 580.

3. Duty to submit all the issues.—An instruction on assumed risks, in an action for damages for personal injury, should be given where that question arises from the pleadings or the testimony. Planters' Oil Co. v. Mansell (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 913.

It is reversible error for the court to fail to submit all the issues raised by the pleadings and supported by the evidence. Eppstein v. Thomas, 16 C. A. 619, 44 S. W. 893.

The court is required to submit to the jury each ground of recovery made by the pleading and supported by the evidence. McCarty v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 21 C. A. 568, 54 S. W. 421.

In an action for injuries to a servant, refusal to give a requested instruction on one phase of the issue of contributory negligence held error. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Helm (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 697.

Defendant held entitled to an instruction presenting a single issue raised by evidence, disconnected with others. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Green, 42 C. A. 216, 95 S. W. 694.

Where plaintiff alleged two grounds of negligence as the proximate cause of the injuries to his wife, he was entitled to have both submitted to the jury. Ft. Worth & R. H. St. Ry. Co. v. Hawes, 48 C. A. 487, 107 S. W. 556.

In view of rule 4 for district and county courts (67 S. W. xx), held, that it was the duty of the court to submit both of two issues of negligence. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Matkins (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 604.

It is the duty of the trial court to submit all issues raised by the pleadings and the evidence, and not merely such as are supported by a preponderance of the evidence. Parks v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 704.

4. Affirmative and negative of issue.—It is ordinarily sufficient to inform the jury what the issues for their determination are, without attempting to explain what are not issues. Flannagan v. Nasworthy, 1 C. A. 470, 20 S. W. 839.

A charge in an action for death of railroad employé held not bad as stating negatively the circumstances under which verdict should be for defendant. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Karrer (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 328.

In action against railroad for injuries to servant, an instruction given at plaintiff's request on question whether plaintiff, in the exercise of ordinary care, should have had a surgical operation performed, held proper. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Schilling, 32 C. A. 417, 75 S. W. 64.

In action against carrier for damages to cattle, defendant held entitled to have the issue as to whether the damage was due to the condition of the cattle presented in the affirmative. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Dawson, 34 C. A. 240, 78 S. W. 235.

Defendant has a right to have his theory of the case affirmatively presented by the instructions. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. of Texas v. Renfro (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 21; San Antonio Machine & Supply Co. v. Campbell, 110 S. W. 770; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Williams, 129 S. W. 847; Bangle v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 140 S. W. 374; Warren v. Kimmell, 141 S. W. 159; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stone-De Lane, 156 S. W. 906.

In a suit to set aside a judgment rendered against plaintiff, canceling a deed to him, one of the defenses being that the grantor did not as a matter of fact intend to have delivered the deed, defendant was entitled to an affirmative presentation of such defense as shown by the evidence. Johnson v. Johnson, 38 C. A. 385, 85 S. W. 1023.

Where plaintiff sued street railway company for injuries alleged to have been received in collision with a car, held, that the court should have instructed affirmatively upon the negative side of the issue as to whether plaintiff was injured. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co. v. Conn. (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1019.

A defendant held entitled to a charge submitting each theory in reference to contributory negligence in connection with the evidence relied on to support it, and the giving of one requested instruction will not preclude him from complaining of the refusal of others including different matter. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Worth (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 958.

The giving of an affirmative charge on the opposite side of the issue held not to impair defendant's right to a requested charge, even though the charge given would have been sufficient in the absence of a request. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Moberly (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 483.

The jury in an action for death should not only be instructed to allow a recovery as authorized by the statute, but should also be told for what elements no recovery can be allowed. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Farmer, 102 T. 235, 115 S. W. 261.

It is the duty of the court to affirmatively present the law of every issue raised by the evidence. Epperson v. International & G. N. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 117.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff's wife in a collision, in which defendant claimed that her condition resulted from prior disease and not from the injuries, defendant held entitled to an affirmative special charge submitting that issue to the jury. Posener v. Harvey (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 356.

A charge in an action for injuries to a servant, which presents affirmatively the servant's theory of the case, should not also require the jury to find for plaintiff that he was not guilty of contributory negligence and had not assumed the risk. Farmers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 369.

In an action against a railroad for personal injuries at a crossing, held, that it was the duty of the court to present to the jury affirmatively the negative side of an issue as to whether defendant's train was running at a speed prohibited by ordinance; the evidence conflicting on that issue. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Burk (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 600.

Defendant's requested charge merely presenting the negative side of plaintiff's case is properly refused. Wichita Falls & W. Ry. Co. v. Wyrick (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 694.

Where the evidence was conflicting, held error not to give a requested instruction presenting the negative of the issue of negligence in running the train at an excessive speed proximately causing the injury from defendant's standpoint. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Burk (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 748.

In an action for the death of a brakeman, the main charge having submitted defendant's negligence as to safe place to work and in not placing a brakeman on the rear car of the train which deceased had flagged, and evidence of deceased being outside scope of his employment in going on a car to signal being conflicting, held, that requested affirmative charges on the negative side of the issues should have been given. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Finklea (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 612.

In an action for damages to cattle shipped over defendant's road, defendant held entitled to an affirmative instruction presenting the issue that it was not liable for losses due to their inherent nature or propensities or their condition at the time of shipment. Saunders v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1055.

In an action against a beneficial association for injuries alleged to have been received during plaintiff's initiation, where defendant pleaded a general denial, and that the injury was caused by the act of some third person in a spirit of play, held that, on evidence that the injury was so caused, defendant's affirmative charge covering that theory of its case should have been given. Grand Temple and Tabernacle in State of Texas of Knights and Daughters of Tabor of International Order of Twelve v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 532.

5. Improper issues.—Where improper allegations in a petition were allowed to remain notwithstanding special exceptions thereto, the improper allegations should not be read to the jury, and the jury must be instructed not to consider them. Riensch v. Naylon, 51 C. A. 45, 110 S. W. 781.

6. Independent issues.—In a suit to ingraft a trust on an absolute deed and to cancel the same, and to recover the rents and revenues from a 200-acre tract reserved to one of the grantors, plaintiff had the right to have the issues as to the rents and revenues passed on by the jury, irrespective of what might be their findings as to the conveyance. Leland v. Chamberlin, 56 C. A. 256, 120 S. W. 1040.

The question whether failure to heed a warning given by a passenger's brother to her not to get off the train after it had started to move was contributory negligence should have been submitted as an independent issue to the jury. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 355.

7. Statement and review of evidence in general.—See, also, notes under Art. 1971.

Where a collateral note disclosed the date of its maturity, it was not incumbent on the court to inform the jury when it became due. C. H. Larkin Co. v. Dawson, 37 C. A. 345, 83 S. W. 882.

In a death action, an instruction as to evidence of defendant's negligence held properly refused. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Walker, 48 C. A. 52, 106 S. W. 705.

The court is not required to make any preliminary statement in charging the jury. Hamilton v. State (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1117.

8. Presumptions and burden of proof.—Form and sufficiency of charge, see notes under Art. 1971.

Where the defendants pleaded limitation, and there was testimony tending to support it, the court having charged the jury that the burden of proof was upon the plaintiffs, it was error to refuse a charge asked by plaintiff that as to the defense of limitation the burden was upon the defendants pleading it. Beall v. Evans, 1 C. A. 443, 20 S. W. 945.

It is error for the court to give any instruction as to the burden of proof of forgery of an ancient instrument. Stooksberry v. Swan (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 694.

When both parties introduce evidence sufficient to maintain the issue in favor of either, it is improper to give any charge as to the burden of proof. Telegraph Co. v. Bennett, 1 C. A. 558, 21 S. W. 699; Railway Co. v. Taylor, 79 T. 104, 14 S. W. 918.

In action for wrongful levy on wife's separate goods, refusal of instruction that plaintiff must show how much of the goods were the wife's held error. Potter v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 711.

The court charged that a certain fact must be found before a verdict could be rendered for plaintiff. Held not necessary to charge that the burden was on plaintiff to prove such fact. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Syfan (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 551.

Where defendants pleaded an abandonment of the homestead at the time of the loan in dispute, and plaintiffs were not living on it at such time, it was not necessary to charge in express terms that the burden of proving abandonment was on defendants. White v. Dabney (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 653.

On an issue as to the quantity of estate taken by a wife, an instruction that a gift to her was presumed from taking a deed in her name held reversible error. Caffey's Ex'rs v. Cooksey, 19 C. A. 145, 47 S. W. 65.

Where the burden of proof rested on railway company to establish contributory negligence, held not error to so instruct the jury in an action for injuries at a street crossing. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Dalwigh (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 527.

A charge on the burden of proof may be properly refused. Davis v. Davis, 20 C. A. 310, 49 S. W. 726; City of Victoria v. Victoria County (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 67.

Where the evidence was practically uncontradicted, a charge on the burden of proof is properly refused. Milmo Nat. Bank v. Convery (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 926.

In an action involving the title to state school lands, refusal to charge as to the burden of proof of the facts necessary to show a valid title in a prior purchaser was error. Thomson v. Hubbard, 22 C. A. 101, 53 S. W. 841.

Where the owner of land filed his exceptions to the damage assessed by the commissioners in condemnation proceedings, it is not reversible error to impose on him the burden of establishing his averments of a greater damage. Gregory v. Gulf & I. Ry. Co., 21 C. A. 598, 54 S. W. 617.

An instruction placing the burden of proof as to contributory negligence on defendant was proper, where there was nothing in plaintiff's testimony tending to show contributory negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. White, 22 C. A. 424, 55 S. W. 593.

Where the testimony on an issue as to whether or not a contract alleged by defendant has been entered into is conflicting, the court may properly instruct that the burden of proof is on defendant. Chittim v. Martinez, 94 T. 141, 58 S. W. 948.

In an action for injuries received while coupling cars, held proper to refuse to charge that the fact of injury raised no presumption of negligence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Baker (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 964.

An instruction that fraud cannot be presumed held erroneous. Granrud v. Rea, 24 C. A. 299, 59 S. W. 841.

In action on note, held not error under the evidence to refuse to charge that the burden was on plaintiff to show itself a bona fide holder for value. Gill v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 146.

Plaintiff's evidence in action against a railroad for injuries at crossing held to show contributory negligence, so that an instruction that the burden of showing it was on defendant was erroneous. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 1091.

Where plaintiff's own evidence indicates contributory negligence and assumption of risk, though not to such an extent as to require an instructed verdict for defendant, it is improper to instruct that the burden of proving such defense is on defendant. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Hill, 95 T. 629, 69 S. W. 136.

In an action to recover land claimed by defendant as community property of a husband and his second wife, an instruction as to burden of proof held proper. Blackwell v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 659.

In an action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance, an instruction that the burden of proof of fraud was on the plaintiff held proper. Edwards v. Anderson, 31 C. A. 131, 71 S. W. 555.

It is proper, in an action by a servant for injuries, to refuse to charge that the burden of proof was on plaintiff to relieve himself from contributory negligence, where contributory negligence as a matter of law was not shown. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cooper, 33 C. A. 319, 77 S. W. 263.

Refusal of an instruction that the burden was on plaintiff to prove that at the time of his injury he was not guilty of contributory negligence held not error. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Tisdale, 39 C. A. 372, 87 S. W. 1063.

In an action for false imprisonment in which there was evidence that plaintiff had been illegally imprisoned, an instruction that it was incumbent upon plaintiff to prove that he had sustained damages was improper. Roberts v. Brown, 43 C. A. 206, 94 S. W. 388.

In a suit involving the issue whether a deed is a mortgage, the court held required to charge that the party alleging that the deed is a mortgage has the burden of proving the same. Irvin v. Johnson, 44 C. A. 436, 98 S. W. 405.

Evidence in trespass to try title held not to require instruction on whom the burden of proof rested. Walker v. Dickey, 44 C. A. 110, 98 S. W. 658.

In a suit for injuries to a switchman who was struck by cars which ran back into a switch which failed to lock, no error can be predicated on the refusal to inform the jury that negligence was not to be inferred from the mere happening of the event. Southern Pac. Co. v. Hart, 53 C. A. 536, 116 S. W. 415.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, caused by the unsanitary condition of the car and misconduct of fellow passengers, it is error to refuse defendant's request to charge that the burden is upon the plaintiff to show by a preponderance of the evidence, that the injuries were the proximate result of some negligent act or omission of the defendant. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Duncan, 55 C. A. 440, 121 S. W. 362.

In an action for the price of goods sold and delivered, the failure to charge that defendant had the burden of proving failure of consideration as pleaded held erroneous. Western Mfg. Co. v. Freeman (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 924.

As between the connecting and initial carriers, held error to charge, in an action for loss of goods, that the burden was upon the initial carrier to show delivery to the connecting carrier. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Bush & Witherspoon Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 102.

A requested charge as to the presumptions in case of carriage by other railroad companies held unnecessary under the evidence in an action for injuries to horses en route. Southern Pac. R. Co. v. W. T. Meadors & Co., 104 T. 469, 140 S. W. 427.

The court should charge on the issues involved including the burden of proof, though the case is submitted on special issues. Texas Baptist University v. Patton (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1063.

9. Determination of weight and sufficiency of evidence in general.—The court is not bound to instruct as to inferences of fact necessarily arising from proof of other facts, but may submit the same to the jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Oslin, 26 C. A. 370, 63 S. W. 1039.

10. Purpose and effect of evidence.—Since evidence of a dog's general vicious reputation is competent only on the question of scienter, it was error for the court to refuse an instruction so limiting it. Triolo v. Foster (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 698.

Where, in an action against a street railway and a steam railway for personal injuries, evidence of negligence of one defendant was admitted under the pleadings of the other, evidence should be limited to the issue between the defendants. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Holt, 30 C. A. 330, 70 S. W. 591.

In proceedings to have a deed absolute declared a mortgage, held error for the court to limit by instruction the effect of certain evidence as to conversations relating to the nature of the instrument. Grier v. Casares (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 451.

On an issue whether defendant had given land to plaintiffs, an instruction limiting the effect of certain testimony held properly refused. Shannon v. Marchbanks, 35 C. A. 615, 80 S. W. 860.

The purpose of admitting impeaching testimony held not so obvious as to render unnecessary an instruction limiting its effect. Texas Loan & Trust Co. v. Angel, 39 C. A. 166, 86 S. W. 1056.

In an action for materials for a building, the refusal to charge so as to limit the effect of certain evidence held not reversible error. Bartley v. Comer (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 82.

In an action for procuring the illegal arrest and imprisonment of plaintiff, held error to refuse a charge limiting the evidence to the special purpose for which it was introduced. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Cherry, 44 C. A. 232, 97 S. W. 712.

The court's action in limiting to one purpose abandoned pleadings offered as evidence was not error in the absence of a showing that they should have been considered for any other purpose. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Morris (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 433.

Where evidence is admissible only for a particular purpose, it is proper for the court to limit consideration of it to that purpose. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Worcester, 45 C. A. 501, 100 S. W. 990.

Where the declarations of an agent are admitted after prima facie proof of agency, the court should instruct the jury to consider the declarations only on finding the existence of the agency by other evidence. Sullivan v. Fant, 51 C. A. 6, 110 S. W. 507.

In an action for breach of marriage promise, a charge limiting the consideration of certain testimony held properly refused. Hill v. Houser, 51 C. A. 359, 115 S. W. 112.

Where, in an action against connecting carriers for delay in a shipment of wheat, a bill of lading was introduced in evidence without objection, and without a request that it be limited to a particular defendant, there was no error in refusing an instruction that it was not binding on another defendant as to the amount of wheat shipped. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Stark Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1146.

The rule making it proper for the court to limit the effect of testimony admitted is usually confined to instances where the testimony may be used by the jury for an illegitimate purpose, and such limitation is intended as a protection to the opposing party. Texarkana Gas & Electric Co. v. Lanier (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 67.

Where plaintiff's declarations at the time of his injury were properly admitted as res gestæ, the court erred in limiting them to their effect on plaintiff's credibility as a witness. Receivers of Kirby Lumber Co. v. Lloyd (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 319.

The admission of evidence limited by the court in its charge held not prejudicial to codefendant. Lefkovitz v. Sherwood (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 850.

A charge as to the purpose and effect of evidence given in an action by an executor to set aside a deed of his deceased on the ground of the deceased's insanity held proper. Armstrong v. Burt (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 172.

In an action for slander, where defendant did not deny making statements concerning plaintiff which were not pleaded, the court properly limited consideration thereof to the question of malice, instead of permitting it to be considered as tending to impeach defendant. Lehmann v. Medack (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 438.

Where, in a broker's action for commissions, a receipt admitted for one purpose did not tend to show that plaintiff was employed by defendant as claimed, the court properly instructed that it could not be considered for that purpose. Carl v. Wolcott (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 334.

11. Exclusion of evidence from consideration.—The court may instruct the jury not to consider evidence as to matters not in issue. Willis v. Hudson, 72 T. 598, 10 S. W. 713.

On a trial of right of property alleged to have been fraudulently conveyed, held error to instruct the jury not to consider certain letters written by defendants. City Nat. Bank of Quanah v. Martin-Brown Co., 20 C. A. 52, 48 S. W. 617.

In an action against a railroad company for actual damages for unlawfully locking plaintiff in a box car and causing his arrest and imprisonment, an instruction not to consider evidence as to whether or not he rightfully or wrongfully entered the car, or had been guilty of unlawfully riding on a train, was not error. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Parker, 29 C. A. 264, 68 S. W. 831; Same v. Cope, Id.

On the issue of an insurance agent's knowledge as to the ownership of property, conflicting testimony as to whether the ownership was known to general reputation held to preclude an instruction to disregard the testimony as to general ownership. Continental Ins. Co. v. Cummings (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 48.

In an action against a railroad for damages caused by setting out fires, a refusal of an instruction not to consider items of damage caused by the last fire held erroneous. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Kemper (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 813.

Instruction held the proper method of limiting consideration of matter if the jury might mistake its purpose. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Farmer, 102 T. 235, 115 S. W. 260.

Where a passenger claimed damages for 20 days' loss of time, but his testimony showed 60 days' loss of time, held error to refuse an instruction limiting recovery to 20 days. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Willis (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 170.

In a servant's action for injuries, it was not essential that the charge should confine the jury to a consideration of the specific act of negligence charged. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Neaves (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1090.

In an action by a husband and wife, held, that an instruction requested by defendant charging the jury not to consider the husband's arrest, nor any damage suffered by him, etc., should have been given in view of the allegations of the petition and other instructions given. Taylor Bros. v. Hearn (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 301.

An instruction that defendant carrier was not bound to send a physician to treat an injured passenger, and that the jury could not consider testimony that the carrier's agent agreed to send its local physician, but failed to do so, was properly refused; the testimony being admissible on an issue of the passenger's contributory negligence in failing to procure treatment. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. of Texas v. Aycock (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 198.

A rough map, made by a witness, of land sought to be condemned, which was admitted to be only an estimate, though admitted in evidence without objection, should have been excluded on a request to charge that the jury should not consider it. Byrd Irr. Co. v. Smyth (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 260.

12. Circumstantial evidence.—One relying on circumstantial evidence held entitled to a charge thereon. Jones v. Hess (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 46.

It is not error for the court to refuse to charge on circumstantial evidence. Johnson v. State (Cr. App.) 55 S. W. 968.

Evidence held to contain circumstances showing negligence in sounding whistle at crossing, so that a charge directing the jury to consider circumstantial evidence was proper. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Blan (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 552.

13. Credibility of witnesses.—Error cannot be predicated on an instruction that if there is a conflict in the testimony the jury must reconcile it, if they can, and, if not, may believe or disbelieve any witness, where the evidence has disclosed an irreconcilable conflict. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 56.

14. Preponderance of evidence.—Defendant in an action on a book account held entitled to an instruction that plaintiff must establish his case by a preponderance of the evidence. Keating Implement & Machine Co. v. Erie City Iron Works (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 546.

15. Matters of law in general.—It is the duty of the court to charge upon the legal effect of documentary evidence. Ivey v. Williams, 78 T. 685, 15 S. W. 163; Allen v. Koepsel, 77 T. 505, 14 S. W. 151.

Where pleadings assert unfounded liability, defendant held entitled to instruction that such liability did not exist, though court took such view in ruling on admission of evidence. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Gotcher, 93 T. 114, 53 S. W. 686.

Refusal to instruct that it was the duty of a railroad company to sound the whistle at a crossing in the city of Dallas held error. Curtis v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 26 C. A. 304, 63 S. W. 149.

It was error for the trial court to refuse to instruct as to the law of the case; counsel having requested an instruction on an issue raised by the evidence. Butler v. Holmes, 29 C. A. 48, 68 S. W. 52.

It is the duty of the court to charge on the facts pleaded and proved as a basis of recovery, and to charge on the law arising on facts pleaded and proved as a defense. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Connally (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 206.

16. Law applicable to particular issues or theories.—In action for wrongful levy on wife's goods, an instruction that goods bought on husband's credit, and not paid for, were not the wife's property, held necessary. Potter v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 711.

Where a general instruction was given as to what constitutes a partnership, parties who denied the partnership, and introduced evidence to support their issue, held entitled to an instruction submitting their issues to the jury. Oliver v. Moore (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 812.

Where a conspiracy was alleged, and there was evidence tending to support the same, held error to refuse to submit such issue to the jury. Cranfill v. Hayden, 22 C. A. 656, 55 S. W. 805.

In an action by servant for compensation, held not error to refuse to submit issues raised by master's plea in reconvention for damages. Shute & Limont v. McVitie (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 433.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries caused by the frightening of plaintiff's team at a crossing, defendant held entitled to a certain instruction. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hall, 98 T. 480, 85 S. W. 786.

In an action for injuries where a release was pleaded in defense, certain charge on the issue of execution of the release should have been given. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Demsey, 40 C. A. 398, 89 S. W. 786.

Under the evidence, held an instruction as to the meeting of the minds of the parties to a contract should have been given. Hubbard City Cotton Oil & Gin Co. v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 795.

In an action for injuries by an obstruction in a highway, refusal of the court to grant an instruction submitting to the jury the issue as to whether the road in question was a public highway held not error. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Wood, 41 C. A. 226, 92 S. W. 259.

In an action for injuries to an employé while assisting in carrying a rail, the refusal to charge that in carrying the rail no skill or science was involved other than that which is supposed to be possessed by any ordinary laborer held proper. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Bonn, 44 C. A. 631, 99 S. W. 413.

Where defendant was sued upon written contracts for the sale of cotton, and pleaded their illegality as transactions in futures, a certain instruction held unnecessary. Smith v. Bowen, 45 C. A. 222, 100 S. W. 796.

In an action for the death of one run over by a railroad train, the refusal of a requested instruction held error. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hunt, 45 C. A. 401, 100 S. W. 968.

Instructions held to improperly submit only the issue of failure of consideration of sale, and not that of partial failure. Gutta Percha & Rubber Mfg. Co. v. City of Cleburne, 102 T. 36, 112 S. W. 1047.

In an action for injuries to plaintiffs' business, the refusal of instructions that there could be no recovery for loss other than that resulting from acts of defendant, held not error. American Freehold Land Mortgage Co. of London v. Brown, 54 C. A. 448, 118 S. W. 1106.

In an action by a national bank to collect a note, where it was shown that the note sued on was the last of successive renewals of a note made nearly five years before, and that the transaction to the date of the execution of the note in suit was usurious, and that the note sued on was merely a substitute for others covering the transaction, the court was justified in refusing to peremptorily instruct the jury on the admissions of defendant which eliminated all questions from the action except one of usury and its effect on the note to find for plaintiff the interest as stipulated for in the note. Trabue v. Cook (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 455.

In an action for brokers' commissions, an instruction that payment of commissions to H. was no defense should have been granted. Stephenson v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1196.

The case should be submitted to the jury where, in an action on a note for price of articles sold, the pleadings raise the issue of, and the evidence tends to show, breach of warranty and partial failure of consideration. Heyer v. F. Y. Doke & Son (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1026.

Where the evidence in an employé's injury action tended to show that the injuries were caused otherwise than as alleged, held error to refuse a requested instruction that, unless the injuries were caused as claimed, the jury should find for defendant. Dallas Oil & Refining Co. v. Carter (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 418.

In action by insurer against railroad company to recover fire loss paid, defendant held entitled to instruction as to effect of explanation of settlement with insured. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Commercial Union Assur. Co. of London, Eng. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 401.

In an action for compensation for services rendered by a physician living in a foreign state, if the facts as to his authorization to practice in that state are in dispute, the court should charge the jury as to the requirements of the laws of that state. Feingold v. Lefkovitz (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 346.

17. —— Negligence.—The charge should give the law applicable to the different degrees of negligence. Railway Co. v. Brown, 75 T. 267, 12 S. W. 1117.

A request for an instruction in an action by an employé for injuries held erroneously refused. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Smith (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 1064.

In an action for personal injuries caused by the collision of a wagon with a buggy, refusal of an instruction predicating liability on violation of city ordinances held error. May v. Hahn (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 262.

In an action for injuries to a servant, held proper to refuse an instruction which submitted the question whether defendant's foreman knew of plaintiff's dangerous position. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Pelfrey, 35 C. A. 501, 80 S. W. 1036.

In an action against railroad for injuries, refusal of special charge on issue of negligence of defendant's servants held error. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sisson (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 371.

In an action against a railroad for injuries to a traveler caused by his horse becoming frightened by the approach of a train, an instruction defining the liability of the railroad for failure of the engineer to keep a lookout held required. Johnson v. Texas & G. Ry. Co., 45 C. A. 146, 100 S. W. 206.

In an action by the consignor for the price of fruit, in which defendant cross-complained against it and the carriers, a charge requested by a connecting carrier should have been given to the effect that a connecting carrier was only required to use ordinary care to transport, after the fruit was received by it, within a reasonable time, and, if the carrier did so, it would not be liable for damage resulting while the cars were in its possession. Kemendo v. Fruit Dispatch Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 73.

In an action for injuries to a horse shipped, the evidence failed to show that the horse was injured when it left defendant's custody at destination. The instructions charged that, if the alleged injuries were caused by defendant's negligence not contributed to by plaintiff, the jury should find for plaintiff, but did not instruct upon the limit of defendant's obligation on its contract to transport, or that the jury should find for defendant if they did not find that the injuries were caused by its negligence. Defendant requested a charge that a carrier was not an insurer of stock transported, but was only bound to transport with ordinary care, and, if plaintiff's horse was transported with ordinary care, the jury should find for defendant though the horse was injured as alleged. Held, that it was error to refuse the requested charge. Freeman v. Cain (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 894.

In an action for the negligent burning of a hay-making outfit by a fire started in the grass, where the evidence raised an issue whether the plaintiff was trespassing on the land, it was error not to instruct that defendant would not be liable if plaintiff was a trespasser, except for the consequences of a willful or malicious burning of the grass, or a burning in a reckless disregard of the consequences. Thomas v. Saunders (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 768.

Where it is relevant to the evidence instructions as to the defendant's anticipation of the injury resulting from its act in leaving wires on the highway should be given. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 1185.

18. —— Agency and respondeat superior.—Where there was evidence that an agent of plaintiff building association had no authority to make certain statements to defendant, held error to refuse to instruct as to the effect of such want of authority. Texas Building & Loan Ass'n v. Norwood (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 404.

In an action against a railroad on an oral contract for transportation of stock executed by a station agent, a refusal to charge on defendant's plea, setting up want of authority in the agent to make oral contracts held not erroneous. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 883.

In an action for personal injury, the refusal to charge on the question of independent contractor held reversible error. Texas Short Line Ry. Co. v. Waymire (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 452.

In an action against a firm on a contract signed in its name, the refusal to submit the issue as to whether the firm became bound solely by reason of the execution of the contract held error. S. W. Slayden & Co. v. Palmo (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 908.

19. —— Contributory negligence and assumption of risk.—Defendant held entitled to a requested instruction on contributory negligence. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Parrish (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 191; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Milam, 58 S. W. 735; St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Ball, 28 C. A. 287, 66 S. W. 879; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Mangham, 95 T. 413, 67 S. W. 765; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. McKenzie, 30 C. A. 293, 70 S. W. 237; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Huber, 33 C. A. 75, 75 S. W. 547; Consumers' Cotton Oil Co. v. Gentry, 35 C. A. 445, 80 S. W. 394; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 98 T. 76, 81 S. W. 4; Texas Loan & Trust Co. v. Angel, 39 C. A. 166, 86 S. W. 1056; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Arnold, 39 C. A. 161, 87 S. W. 173; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Everett, 40 C. A. 285, 89 S. W. 457; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Parrott (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 601; St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Kern, 100 S. W. 971; Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Moberly, 109 S. W. 483; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Johnson, 55 C. A. 495, 118 S. W. 1117; Receivers of Kirby Lumber Co. v. Lloyd (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 319; Athens Cotton Oil Co. v. Clark, Id. 322; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Barrow, 153 S. W. 665; Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Finklea, 155 S. W. 612.

Where contributory negligence is pleaded by the city as a defense to an action for injury from want of repairs of a sidewalk, a charge requested on that issue should have been given, unless the evidence was such as justified its exclusion. City of Dallas v. Meyers (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 742.

In action for injuries held not necessary to require a finding as to the effect of contributory negligence, such as assumed in a requested charge; the one injured being necessarily guilty of such negligence, if it existed as propounded. Citizens' Ry. Co. v. Ford, 25 C. A. 328, 60 S. W. 680.

In an action for injuries sustained by a minor employé, the court held required to instruct that plaintiff's minority did not relieve him from the duty of using reasonable care. Bering Mfg. Co. v. Femelat, 35 C. A. 36, 79 S. W. 869.

In an action for injuries, held error to refuse a requested charge as to contributory negligence, where the general charge did not sufficiently define it as applied to the facts. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. De Castillo (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 25.

In an action by a tenant for injuries to his crop by the landlord's cattle, held not necessary to charge as to tenant's duty to fence. L. M. Gloor & Co. v. West (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 783.

In an action against a railroad company for death of a person while crossing the track, refusal of a request on the subject of decedent's voluntary intoxication with reference to the issue of contributory negligence held error. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Jackson, 41 C. A. 51, 90 S. W. 918.

In an action for death of plaintiff's decedent by being struck by defendant's train, refusal of a request on the subject of decedent's failure to look and listen held error. Id.

In an action for injuries to a car inspector, the refusal to charge on contributory negligence held proper. El Paso & S. R. Co. v. Darr (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 166.

Where plaintiff alleged that he was a minor, and not aware of the danger incident to his employment, it was not error to instruct as to the law applicable to an inexperienced employé. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Waldie (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 517.

In an action for injuries to a servant, held proper to have charged the Texas rule as to assumed risk, instead of any other rule of the federal courts. Southern Pac. Co. v. Godfrey, 48 C. A. 616, 107 S. W. 1135.

Plaintiff gathered a shipment of cattle together about 100 miles from P., the station from which they were to be shipped. There was evidence in an action for damages for delay in furnishing cars, that all parties knew that it was uncertain when cars ordered could be had; that the plaintiff who personally conducted the shipment knew that the grass near P. was salt grass and the water alkali; that he arranged with the railroad agent to wire him if the cars had not arrived when he was ready to start with his cattle to P.; that about 50 miles from P. the cattle could have been held without damage; that, when plaintiff was ready to start with his cattle, he wired the agent but received no answer; that he drove the cattle to within 20 miles of P. where there was a pasture which contained no salt grass or alkali water; that from that point plaintiff rode to P. in advance and found the cars had not arrived; that he then wired the manager of the railroad company saying that there was neither grass nor water at P., and that he would suffer loss, and that he received in reply a message to the effect that the company had so many orders for cars ahead of his that the manager could not estimate when the cattle could be loaded, and that plaintiff had better get them back on the range where they could be held until cars were furnished. Held, that a requested instruction by defendant, that if the jury find that the cattle were injured by being allowed to eat salt grass and drink the alkali water, yet if they further believe that said plaintiffs or either of them were negligent in not providing better pasturage or better water while awaiting the cars and the cattle were injured thereby, then plaintiffs could not recover, should have been given. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Bivins (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 210.

In an action for the negligent burning of a hay-making outfit, where the evidence raised an issue whether plaintiff was a trespasser, it was error not to instruct as to the liability of defendant under such circumstances. Thomas v. Saunders (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 768.

20. —— Discovered peril.—Evidence in an action for injuries at a railroad crossing held not to require a charge on discovered negligence. Shetter v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 30 C. A. 536, 71 S. W. 31.

Where defendant driving an automobile saw plaintiff in a position of danger in the street, and failed to take measures to prevent injuring him, the court properly submitted the issue of discovered peril. Vesper v. Lavender (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 377.

21. —— Negligence of fellow servant.—In an action for injuries to a servant, the refusal to charge as to negligence of a fellow servant held erroneous. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Dominguez (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 681.

22. —— Proximate cause.—Action held not to require an instruction on proximate cause. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hines (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 152.

In action for injury received through a train striking a horse and hurling it against a boy, court should give instruction defining proximate cause and applying law to facts. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Short (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 56.

Where, in an action against a railroad company for injuries, theory of complaint was that switch foreman was negligent in not repeating to engineer signal given by plaintiff, held error to refuse instruction that plaintiff could not recover if the alleged negligence could not have prevented the injury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Baker (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 964.

Where plaintiff claimed that defendant unnecessarily let off steam from its engine, and frightened his horse, while defendant claimed that the noise was caused in stopping the engine to avoid collision with plaintiff's buggy, it was improper to refuse to submit defendant's issue to the jury; there being evidence in support thereof. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Belt, 24 C. A. 281, 59 S. W. 607.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff in a crossing accident, held error to refuse an instruction on proximate cause. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 406.

In an action for the destruction of plaintiff's crops by the flooding of his land by defendant held, that the court should have instructed that, if there was a subsequent extraordinary rainfall, for which defendant would not have been responsible, and which would have destroyed the crop a short time subsequent to the first flood, defendant was not liable. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Jackson, 47 C. A. 26, 103 S. W. 709.

Defendant held entitled to an instruction that, if plaintiff stepped into a hole and was injured after she had alighted with safety, defendant was not liable, and also to an instruction that the jury should disregard the issues made by the pleadings as to the conductor's duty to assist her to alight. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Hauskins (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1100.

23. —— Fraud.—Where there is evidence of agreement by grantee to take care of grantor's family, jury should be instructed that any secret advantage retained by grantor and agreed to by grantee would render conveyance fraudulent. Cooper v. Friedman, 23 C. A. 585, 57 S. W. 581.

In an action on drafts by a transferee, held improper to refuse to submit issues as to whether the drafts were procured through fraud. Johnson County Savings Bank v. Kemp Mercantile Co. (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 402.

In an action to rescind a sale of land on the ground of fraudulent representations as to title, the refusal of the court to instruct on the issue as to whether the representations were mere expressions of opinion held error. Lee v. Haile, 51 C. A. 632, 114 S. W. 403.

24. Submission to jury for special findings.—See notes under Art. 1985.

25. Determination of amount of recovery.—The court should instruct as to the measure of damages (Texas Trunk R. R. Co. v. Elam, 1 App. C. C. § 446; G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Schrader, 1 App. C. C. § 1148), and furnish the rule for discriminating between actual and exemplary damages (G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Dunlavy, 56 T. 256); but the omission is not error where a proper charge has not been asked (T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Casey, 52 T. 112).

No exemplary damages can be recovered for injury to a plaintiff's business or reputation as keeper of a gambling house; and where he carries on other business in connection with his gambling house, the jury should be so charged as to prevent them from considering the damages to the latter. Kauffman v. Babcock, 67 T. 241, 2 S. W. 878.

It is not error for the court in its charge to give two modes for estimating the damage where they are consistent with each other and produce the same result. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Andrews (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 920.

It is the duty of the court to instruct the jury as to the proper rule by which to estimate damages in the case. Beeman St. Clair Co. v. Caradine (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 980. It is error to instruct to "find for plaintiff actual damages in any amount you think proper." Railway Co. v. Head, 4 App. C. C. § 209, 15 S. W. 504.

An instruction should be given, when requested, as to measure of damages for wrongful death of plaintiff's intestate. De Palacios v. Rio Grande & E. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 612.

Where plaintiff did not claim damages for the construction of a bridge in front of his premises by defendant railroad company, defendant was not entitled to an instruction that no damages should be allowed therefor, in an action for damages for the construction of the road. Denison & P. Suburban Ry. Co. v. Evans (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 280.

In action by parent for killing of a minor son, defendant is entitled to have submitted to jury questions of value of present payment of son's contributions to parent's support in a lump sum. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Morrison, 93 T. 527, 56 S. W. 745.

Where a physician's charges are an element of damages in an action against a carrier, it is error for the court, in his charge, to fail to limit the assessment therefor to a reasonable amount. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Nail, 24 C. A. 114, 58 S. W. 165.

Where the question of exemplary damages was not in issue in an action against a carrier, the fact that counsel for plaintiff stated in his argument to the jury that the object of a verdict was not only to compensate, but to give defendant notice that such things must not happen, does not necessitate a charge that exemplary damages cannot be allowed. Id.

Instructions which do not limit the jury, in assessing damages, to the specific items and amounts alleged in the complaint, where there is proof of other items and greater amounts, are erroneous. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Durrett, 24 C. A. 103, 58 S. W. 187; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Pawkett, 28 C. A. 583, 68 S. W. 323; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Shaughnessy (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1026.

Refusal to charge that no damages could be recovered as solace or for grief in an action for death held error, though such damages were not specially demanded in the petition. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Boykin, 32 C. A. 72, 74 S. W. 93.

A city, in an action for personal injuries from a fall on a defective street, held entitled to a charge that it was liable only for such injuries as were the direct and proximate result of the fall. City of Dallas v. Moore, 32 C. A. 230, 74 S. W. 95.

An instruction that plaintiff, in an action to recover for injury to his land from obstruction of certain waterways, could not recover for injury from overflow from a certain creek, not alleged to have been obstructed, held proper. Taylor v. San Antonio & A. P. R. Co., 36 C. A. 658, 83 S. W. 738.

Where the petition for overflowing plaintiff's land based recovery on the overflow from a certain stream, the court erred in refusing to instruct the jury that plaintiff could not recover for injury caused by the overflow of another stream. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Gurley, 37 C. A. 283, 83 S. W. 842.

In an action for unliquidated damages, a failure to instruct the jury as to the measure of damages is reversible error. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Buchanan, 38 C. A. 165, 84 S. W. 1073.

In an action for injuries, charge held not erroneous in not limiting the recovery to damages sustained by the injuries sued for, in contradistinction to prior injuries. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hay, 39 C. A. 51, 86 S. W. 954.

In an action for injuries to plaintiff's wife, the refusal to caution the jury not to allow more than the amount claimed in the petition for medical expenses held not error. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Menk, 39 C. A. 617, 88 S. W. 290.

Under evidence in action for personal injuries, instruction that plaintiff is not entitled to recover for pain or disability resulting from Bright's disease held improperly refused. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hall (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1079.

In an action for personal injuries, an instruction with respect to damages held erroneous for not limiting the recovery to the injuries claimed in the petition. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co. v. English, 42 C. A. 393, 93 S. W. 1096.

In an action for damages to plaintiff's land from surface water collected by defendant, an instruction that the jury could not find for plaintiff a sum exceeding the amount claimed in the petition held proper. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Slusher, 42 C. A. 631, 95 S. W. 717.

In an action for damages, it was proper to refuse to instruct that the jury should not find for exemplary damages, where they were not claimed, and the question of actual damages alone was submitted. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 554.

Where, in action for damages, there is no evidence tending to establish an item of expense for which plaintiff might recover, it is error to refuse an instruction, when requested by defendant, that no recovery can be had as to such item. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Lightfoot, 48 C. A. 120, 106 S. W. 395.

An instruction in action for personal injuries held erroneous as not limiting the amount of recovery for medical attention to the sum asked in the petition. Houston Electric Co. v. Green, 48 C. A. 242, 106 S. W. 463.

In an action for personal injuries, a charge is not erroneous, though it fails to limit plaintiff's recovery to such injuries as are supported by proof. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hawkins, 49 C. A. 545, 108 S. W. 736.

In an action for the negligent death of a child, the refusal to give a certain charge on the measure of damages held reversible error. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co. v. Olds (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 787.

The carrier was not entitled to a charge that it was not liable for a decline in the live stock market, if, owing to a financial panic, there was no readier sale for a shipment on the day on which it would have arrived had cars been furnished within a reasonable time. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Word (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 478.

A carrier, sued for delay in the transportation of cattle, is entitled to a charge that the jury should allow nothing for loss caused by an alleged decline in the market, where the evidence shows that there was no such decline. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Barron (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 996.

Where, in an action for damages to a farm by the overflow of water, it is shown that the crop is also damaged by insects, the court, if requested, must instruct that defendant would not be liable for any injury caused by such insects. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Fickey (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 327.

The court, in condemnation proceedings, must direct the jury what they are to consider upon the issue of damages. Crystal City & U. R. Co. v. Boothe (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 700.

In a railroad passenger's action for personal injuries, a charge on the measure of damages was not erroneous for not limiting the amount recoverable for expenses of plaintiff's sickness to the highest sum named in the testimony. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Dodgin (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 847.

An instruction as to negligence of plaintiff aggravating the injury held required by the evidence. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. McCrummen (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 899.

Where plaintiff specified the amount of each element of damage, an instruction on damages was not erroneous, because it did not limit the amount of recovery on each element specified to the amount claimed. Sumner v. Kinney (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1192.

In action for damages, where the pleadings authorize it, it is not error to instruct the jury as a matter of law to award interest in case they find for plaintiff. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. West (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 206.

26. Instructions as to duties of jury.—Refusal to grant instruction calling the jury's attention to their duties and responsibilities held not error, where no abuse of discretion was shown. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 517.

In an action for collision with a man at a public crossing, the court should, when requested charge that, in the absence of a statute or ordinance prescribing the rate of speed at which a train may be run, it is a question for the jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Melugin (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 338.

An instruction as to concessions which might be made by the jury in reaching a verdict held erroneous. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Johnson (Sup.) 90 S. W. 164.

An instruction relating to the duty of the jury held not prejudicial. International Harvester Co. v. Campbell, 43 C. A. 421, 96 S. W. 93.

The mere act of the court in directing a form of verdict is not improper. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lemair, 55 C. A. 237, 119 S. W. 1162.

A requested instruction as to the consideration to be given by the jury to special charges requested by the parties held properly refused. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Langston (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 334.

27. Influence of arguments of counsel.—The court held entitled to state to the jury that counsel's argument was not correct. Norton v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1044.

28. Definition or explanation of terms.—It is not error to refuse to instruct the jury as to the meaning of words in common use. Schunior v. Russell, 83 T. 83, 18 S. W. 484.

Where the part of conflicting evidence which the jury must have believed, to hold a chattel mortgage fraudulent, showed a participation in the fraud, an instruction not giving the distinction between knowledge of and participation in fraud is not erroneous. Frost v. Mason, 17 C. A. 465, 44 S. W. 53.

Refusal to instruct as to what constitutes a fence or inclosure of land held error. Cox v. Sherman Hotel Co. (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 808.

The omission to define the word "material" as used in a contract to drill a well, held not error. Schulz v. Tessman (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 207.

The meaning of the words "actual and exemplary damages" should be explained to the jury, where an issue as to whether a party is entitled thereto is submitted to it. King v. Sassaman (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 304.

Negligence should be defined in an action therefor. May v. Hahn, 22 C. A. 365, 54 S. W. 416.

It is not error to refuse to define "substantial compliance" with the terms of a contract. A. J. Anderson Electric Co. v. Cleburne Water, Ice & Lighting Co., 23 C. A. 328, 57 S. W. 575.

Failure to define negligence in an action by a servant for injuries was not ground for reversal. American Cotton Co. v. Smith, 29 C. A. 425, 69 S. W. 443.

In an action on a liquor dealer's bond for alleged illegal sales, where the evidence showed that the sales complained of were without doubt made by persons for whose acts defendants were liable, it was not necessary to give instructions defining the terms "agency" and "employé." Geo. Scalfi & Co. v. State, 31 C. A. 671, 73 S. W. 441.

In an action on a policy, a requested instruction defining the term "attached additions" held properly refused. Connecticut Fire Ins. Co. v. Hilbrant (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 558.

Special instruction, in action against railroad for damage to plaintiff's grass land from fire originating from sparks from defendant's engine, as to the meaning of the word "originate," used in the court's charge, held proper. Jackson v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 724.

In an action for the death of a servant held not error to fail to define proximate cause. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Oram (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1029.

Where terms in the charge embody conclusions of law, and when a failure to explain or properly apply terms used in the charge is calculated to mislead a jury, or to induce a verdict predicated upon a misunderstanding of the proper application to be given to such terms, the court will reverse. Davis v. Hardwick, 43 C. A. 71, 94 S. W. 361.

The giving of a charge explaining an expression used in another charge held not erroneous. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Cruseturner, 44 C. A. 181, 98 S. W. 423.

In an action for damages for a conspiracy to injure plaintiffs' business the omission of the court to define malice held not fatal to the charge. American Freehold Land Mortgage Co. of London v. Brown (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 856.

Where the phrase "contributory negligence" was not used in the court's main charge nor in any special charge, it was not error to refuse a charge giving a definition of it. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Alberti, 47 C. A. 32, 103 S. W. 699.

Rule stated for judicial definition of words in common use, not having a technical meaning. Raley v. State, 47 C. A. 426, 105 S. W. 342.

The words "reasonable diligence" have no such technical meaning as to call for their definition when used in a charge. Texas Midland R. R. v. Ritchey, 49 C. A. 409, 108 S. W. 732.

An instruction defining "reasonable time" held not erroneous. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Roberts, 50 C. A. 69, 109 S. W. 982.

A clause, in an instruction in an action for death of plaintiff's decedent by being struck by defendant's train which was a mere definition of what the court meant by "peril," held not objectionable. Parham v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 154.

In an action for the death of a brakeman while attempting to stop a train to prevent injury to it, the refusal to give a charge defining the term "sudden impulse" held not erroneous. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Elgin, 56 C. A. 573, 121 S. W. 577.

The court is not required to define a term of ordinary use when used in its popular sense. Johnson v. W. H. Goolsby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 883.

In an action for failure to deliver a telegram, failure to define "reasonable time" held not error. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McDavid (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 893.

The court using in its charge the words "net to" a party need not define the meaning of the word "net." Schramm v. Wolff (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1185.

Failure to define what would be a defective crossing in an instruction given in an action against a railroad company for injuries by being jolted from a wagon at a railroad highway crossing held not affirmative error. Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Bradford (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1046.

In an action for the death of a switchman, the refusal to define an automatic coupler under the federal liability law held not erroneous. Paris & G. N. R. Co. v. Boston (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 944.

An instruction on contributory negligence in an action for injury to M. which, after stating it was his duty to use ordinary care, tells the jury, without defining ordinary care, "as to what ordinary care was under the circumstances is for you to determine" is objectionable. Cleburne Electric & Gas Co. v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 534.

Where the alleged defamatory language is ambiguous or of doubtful import, the court must define a libel. Guisti v. Galveston Tribune, 105 T. 497, 150 S. W. 874.

Where, in a will contest for undue influence, the court did not define such term in its general charge, it was error to refuse a request that persuasion, entreaty, cajolery, etc., did not amount to undue influence unless sufficient to overthrow testator's will. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 918.

29. General or special charge.—When the issues require explanation, the court should give a general charge. Redus v. Burnett, 59 T. 576; H. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Parker, 50 T. 330.

A general charge is unnecessary when a cause is submitted to the jury on special issues. Cole v. Crawford, 69 T. 124, 5 S. W. 646; Moore v. Pierson (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 1007; Pacific Express Co. v. Rudman (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 268.

The submission to the jury as a special issue the question whether a place was a business homestead, and a charge at the same time as to what constituted such homestead, held proper. Kahler v. Carruthers, 18 C. A. 216, 45 S. W. 160.

A long charge general in its application to all issues in the case and requiring general findings of the jury is wholly inapplicable to a case submitted upon special issues, and it is not error to refuse it. Moore v. Pierson (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 1009.

Where the evidence was conflicting on a point submitted to jury in general charge, held reversible error to give a special charge thereon. Ætna Ins. Co. of Hartford, Conn., v. Brannon (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 1020.

Instructions are proper in a case submitted on special issues. Kalteyer v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 462.

Where a cause was submitted on special issues, none of which embodied the issue of fraudulent conveyance, and no such issue was requested, the refusal to give a charge on the issue of fraudulent conveyance was proper. Sullivan v. Fant, 51 C. A. 6, 110 S. W. 507.

Submitting a large number of special issues together with a general charge covering the entire case is not a practice to be commended. Heintz v. Heintz, 56 C. A. 403, 120 S. W. 941.

Under this article it is immaterial whether the instructions be embodied in a general charge or in one specially presented to and adopted by him. Steiner v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 261.

In trespass to try title, where the construction of an entire block of surveys is involved, and also the determination and relative importance of conflicting calls, the case should be submitted to the jury upon a general charge. Haile v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1088.

30. "Law of the case."—The law of the case means the substantial issues of the case. Gibson & Cunningham v. Purifoy, 56 C. A. 379, 120 S. W. 1047.

35. Objections and exceptions.—See notes under next article.

Art. 1971. [1317] [1317] Requisites of charge; submission to parties; objections, etc.— The charge shall be in writing and signed by the judge; after the evidence has been concluded the charge shall be submitted to the respective parties or their attorneys for inspection and a reasonable time given them in which to examine it and present objections thereto, which objections shall in every instance be presented to the court before the charge is read to the jury, and all objections not so made and presented shall be considered as waived; before the argument is begun, the judge shall read his charge, and all special charges given by him to the jury in the precise words in which they were written; he shall not charge or comment on the weight of evidence; he shall so frame the charge as to distinctly separate the questions of law from the questions of fact; he shall decide on and instruct the jury as to the law arising on the facts, and shall submit all controverted questions of fact only to the decision of the jury. [Acts 1853, p. 19. Acts 1903, p. 55. R. S. 1879, 1316. P. D. 1464. Acts 1913, p. 113, sec. 3, amending Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 1971.]

I. PROVINCE OF COURT AND JURY

(A) Questions of Law or Fact

1. Questions of law or fact in general.—Evidence as to whether the council authorized a railroad company to change the grade of a street held for the jury. Denison & P. Suburban Ry. Co. v. James, 20 C. A. 358, 49 S. W. 660.

Issues of fact should be determined by the jury. Linney v. Wood, 66 T. 22, 17 S. W. 244; Mynatt v. Hudson, 66 T. 66, 17 S. W. 396; Railway Co. v. Folliard, 66 T. 603, 1 S. W. 624, 59 Am. Rep. 632; Chatham v. Jones, 69 T. 744, 7 S. W. 600.

Where the evidence raised an issue of fact, the direction of a verdict was error. Sorrells v. Goldberg, 34 C. A. 265, 78 S. W. 711.

The construction of the powers of an executor or administrator is for the court. Altgelt v. Oliver Bros. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 28.

In an action for injuries to a brakeman while attempting to board a moving freight train, the petition and proof held to raise a certain issue. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sullivan, 53 C. A. 394, 115 S. W. 615.

What are proper and improper charges in an account in issue is ordinarily a question of law, and not for the jury. Stark v. Burkitt (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 939.

Where a case made by the evidence is one purely of fact, it is for the jury. Taft v. Ward (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 437.

2. Mixed questions of law and fact.—Mixed questions of law and fact should be submitted together under proper instructions. Kaufman & Runge v. Wicks, 62 T. 234; Hurt v. Cooper, 63 T. 362.

Whether a seller in a contract for the sale complied with the contract held a mixed question of fact and law. Berry Bros. v. Fairbanks, Morse & Co., 51 C. A. 558, 112 S. W. 427.

As to what constitutes doing business in a state by a corporation is a mixed question of law and fact. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Neil P. Anderson & Co. (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 182.

In an action to recover land, question whether all of the land sued for was embraced in the boundaries of plaintiff's chain of title held at least a mixed question of law and fact. Davis v. Mills (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1064.

While negligence is usually a jury question, where the facts have been found, it then becomes a question of law as to whether they are sufficient to constitute negligence. San Antonio Brewing Ass'n v. Wolfshohl (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 644.

3. Preliminary or introductory questions of fact.—Where defendant asserts that a third person has an interest in the cause of action, and such question is first tried, plaintiff is entitled to have it submitted to a jury. Nixon v. Jacobs, 22 C. A. 97, 53 S. W. 595.

The evidence upon which a written instrument is offered as an ancient document is addressed to the judge, who should admit the instrument, if, upon the preliminary proof made by the party offering it, a verdict in favor of its genuineness would be sustained in the absence of any opposing testimony. If the instrument is admitted, the court should instruct the jury as to the conditions upon which the law dispenses with the ordinary methods of proving the execution of private writings, and the jury should, after hearing all the testimony on both sides, determine the issue as to the antiquity and genuineness of an instrument, like any other fact submitted for their decision. Beaumont Pasture Co. v. Preston & Smith, 65 T. 448; Williams v. Conger, 49 T. 594; Gainer v. Cotton, 49 T. 118.

The question of the identity of the person telephoning to a witness testifying to a telephone communication held for the jury. American Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 41 C. A. 392, 92 S. W. 439.

Where an instrument is offered in evidence as an ancient document, the question whether the circumstances are sufficient to corroborate the genuineness of the instrument is one for the jury. Woodward v. Keck (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 852.

The admissibility of an ancient document is for the determination of the trial court. Flores v. Hovel (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 606.

If there is a reasonable probability that the paper offered as an ancient instrument is what it purports to be, the question is one for the jury. Jackson v. Nona Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 928.

Admissibility of plaintiff's deed, as against an objection that it showed alterations on its face, held a question for the court. Wadsworth v. Vinyard (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1171. See San Antonio Brewing Ass'n v. J. M. Abbott Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 373.

A question whether the innuendo charged in a petition is a reasonable inference from the statement complained of and the facts alleged held for the court. Galveston Tribune v. Guisti (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 239.

It was error for the court to submit to the jury the question whether evidence given by a witness by deposition was hearsay. Oltmanns Bros. v. Poland (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 653.

Whether there is any evidence from which the jury might properly find negligence, or any issuable fact, is a question of law for the court. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Boone, 105 T. 188, 146 S. W. 533.

Where a husband answered that he did not remember to an interrogatory whether, at the death of his wife, money on hand and due him amounted to $2,000, the court properly charged that the answer was evasive and submitted to the jury the question whether the evasion was willful and to be taken as a confession that such amount was on hand or due. Wood v. Dean (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 363.

4. Sufficiency of evidence to take case to jury.—When the evidence is not sufficient in law to authorize a finding for the plaintiff by the jury the court may instruct the jury to find for the defendant. Railway Co. v. Faber, 77 T. 153, 8 S. W. 64; Washington v. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 36 S. W. 778; Sullivan v. Thurmond (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 393; Murphy v. Galveston, H. & N. Ry. Co., 96 S. W. 940; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cunningham, 51 C. A. 368, 113 S. W. 767; Honaker v. Jones (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 649; Radley v. Knepfly, 104 T. 130, 135 S. W. 111.

Where there is testimony, although meager, tending to support a material issue, the issue should not be withdrawn from the jury. McGown v. I. & G. N. Ry. Co., 85 T. 289, 20 S. W. 80.

It is only where there is an entire absence of testimony as to some allegation in plaintiff's petition necessary to a recovery, or where the facts proven leave no room for ordinary minds to differ as to the conclusion to be drawn therefrom, that the court should peremptorily instruct the jury. Johnston v. Drought (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 295; Wells Fargo Express Co. v. Samuels, 11 C. A. 15, 31 S. W. 305; Bowman v. Texas Brewing Co., 17 C. A. 446, 43 S. W. 808; Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State, 19 C. A. 1, 44 S. W.

936; Smith v. T. M. Richardson Lumber Co., 92 T. 448, 49 S. W. 574; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Harris, 22 C. A. 16, 53 S. W. 599; Campbell v. Crowley (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 373; Ney v. Ladd, 68 S. W. 1014; Texas Portland Cement Co. v. Poe, 32 C. A. 469, 74 S. W. 563; Long v. Red River, T. & S. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1048; Hutchens v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 245, 89 S. W. 24; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Demsey (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 786; Lamberida v. Barnum, 90 S. W. 698; Maffi v. Stephens (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 158; Titterington v. Harry, 97 S. W. 840; Walker v. Erwin, 47 C. A. 637, 106 S. W. 164; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 453; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Jackson, 49 C. A. 573, 109 S. W. 478; Citizens' Ry. Co. v. Griffin, 49 C. A. 569, 109 S. W. 999; Texas Brokerage Co. v. John Barkley & Co., 49 C. A. 632, 109 S. W. 1001; Walker v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 51 C. A. 391, 112 S. W. 430; Trimble v. Burroughs, 52 C. A. 266, 113 S. W. 551; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 106; First Nat. Bank v. Thomas, 118 S. W. 221; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bratcher, 54 C. A. 10, 118 S. W. 1091; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Parsley, 57 C. A. 8, 121 S. W. 226; Alexander v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 57 C. A. 407, 122 S. W. 572; Avant v. Watson, 57 C. A. 304, 122 S. W. 586; Cone v. Belcher, 57 C. A. 493, 124 S. W. 149; Muse v. Abeel (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 430; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bryan, 125 S. W. 82; Scott v. Texas Cent. R. Co., 127 S. W. 849; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Maxwell, 128 S. W. 160; Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Bivins, 130 S. W. 210; Hampshire v. Greeves, Id. 665; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wafer, Id. 712; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Bounds, 136 S. W. 269; Equitable Life Assur. Society of United States v. Ellis, 137 S. W. 184; Warren v. Same, Id. 1182; Sovereign Camp of Woodmen of the World v. Jackson, 138 S. W. 1137; Mitchell v. Stanton, 139 S. W. 1033; Estes v. Bryant-Fort-Daniel Co., 140 S. W. 1177; Martin v. Taylor, 141 S. W. 1009; Rudolph v. Tinsley, 143 S. W. 209; Wall v. Wilson, 145 S. W. 655; Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. West, 149 S. W. 206; Rotan Grocery Co. v. Tatum, Id. 342; Huggins v. Carey, Id. 390; Freeman v. Kennerly, 151 S. W. 580; Walker v. Finney, 157 S. W. 948.

Though the evidence in support of an issue is slight, it must be submitted to the jury. Heatherly v. Little (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 445.

A refusal to submit an issue raised by the pleadings with evidence to sustain it, held error. Harris v. Higden (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 412.

Matters as to which there is no evidence held not to be submitted to the jury as controverted issues. Morris v. Travelers' Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 898; Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Cannon, 19 C. A. 305, 46 S. W. 851; International Order of Twelve of the Knights and Daughters of Tabor v. Boswell (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1108; Chicago, R. I. & M. R. Co. v. Harton, 36 C. A. 475, 81 S. W. 1236; Lone Star Brewing Co. v. Willie, 52 C. A. 550, 114 S. W. 186; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Moses (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1037; McCoy v. Pafford, 150 S. W. 968.

Where the evidence in an action for personal injuries did not make plaintiff clearly guilty of contributory negligence, the question was for the jury. Houston City St. Ry. Co. v. Medlenka, 17 C. A. 621, 43 S. W. 1028.

It is not error to direct a verdict for plaintiff, where defendant's evidence is so weak that it raises only a surmise or suspicion of the existence of facts sought to be established in support of his offset. Joske v. Irvine, 91 T. 574, 44 S. W. 1059; Wills v. Central Ice & Cold Storage Co., 39 C. A. 483, 88 S. W. 265; Dayton Lumber Co. v. Stockdale, 54 C. A. 611, 118 S. W. 805.

In a proceeding to remove county officers, held, that where evidence for the state was sufficient to sustain allegations of misconduct, but was not conclusive, the court should not peremptorily direct a verdict against the defendants, after overruling a motion to direct in their favor at the close of the state's evidence. Eberstadt v. State, 92 T. 94, 45 S. W. 1007.

A peremptory instruction against recovery held error, there being circumstances in evidence supporting plaintiff's contention. Willis v. Thacker, 20 C. A. 233, 49 S. W. 128.

Where evidence is such that men of ordinary intelligence will not differ about its effect, direction of verdict conforming to result established thereby is proper. McCartney v. McCartney (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 388.

A submission of a question to the jury as to whether a railroad brakeman was killed by an overhanging bridge may be proper, though the evidence is wholly circumstantial and far from conclusive. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Kime, 94 T. 649, 54 S. W. 240.

Evidence held such that it was not certain that defects in one or both tracks were not instrumental in causing a brakeman's death, though the prime cause was an open switch, into which his train ran and was wrecked. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Johnson, 23 C. A. 160, 55 S. W. 772.

Where the evidence was doubtful as to whether or not the fire which destroyed plaintiff's property originated from defendant's engine, the court did not err in failing to submit whether or not the engine was skillfully handled. Scott v. Texas & P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 97.

Where, in an action against a railroad company for injuries resulting from negligence, it is not clearly established that a fact essential to plaintiff's recovery has not been proven, or that one which is a complete defense is shown, the court should not direct a verdict for defendant. Southern Pac. Co. v. Winton, 27 C. A. 503, 66 S. W. 477.

Where the evidence in support of issues by one having the burden of proof thereon is so slight that reasonable minds could not arrive at different conclusions in reference thereto, there is no error in instructing a verdict for the other party. Flores v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 24 C. A. 328, 66 S. W. 709; W. T. Rickards & Co. v. J. H. Bemis & Co. (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 239; Gilbreath v. State, 82 S. W. 807; Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Poore, 49 C. A. 191, 108 S. W. 504; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 1002; Small v. Rush, 132 S. W. 874; Carlton v. Texas Banking & Investment Co., 152 S. W. 698; Royal Casualty Co. v. Nelson, 153 S. W. 674.

Where a judgment was reversed for directing verdict for defendant, and on a second trial the evidence is more favorable to plaintiff, the judgment will not be reversed because the court refused to instruct for defendant. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Shoemaker (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1019.

The court cannot direct a verdict, unless as a matter of law no recovery can be had on any view of the evidence. Bonn v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 808; Sanders v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 91 S. W. 245; Roth v. Travelers' Protective Ass'n of America, 102 T. 241, 115 S. W. 31, 132 Am. St. Rep. 871, 20 Ann. Cas. 97; Boardman v. Woodward (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 550; Hicks v. Armstrong, 142 S. W. 1195.

A party who introduces sufficient evidence to support a verdict in his favor is entitled to a submission of the case to the jury. Eastham v. Hunter, 98 T. 560, 86 S. W. 323.

Where the evidence was sufficient to create more than a surmise or suspicion of plaintiff's right to recover, it was proper to submit the issue to the jury. Clark v. Wilson, 41 C. A. 450, 91 S. W. 627.

The court should submit an issue raised by the evidence, although the evidence would not warrant a verdict thereon in favor of the party at whose instance it is submitted. Waggoner v. Wyatt, 43 C. A. 75, 94 S. W. 1076.

Where there was no evidence that plaintiff's decedent was asleep when he approached defendant's railroad track, it was not error to refuse to submit such issue to the jury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Willard (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 220.

Whether there is any evidence to support an issue is a question for the trial judge, and where there is evidence its sufficiency is a question for the jury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Murray (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 144.

Evidence of mere possibility held not enough on which to submit question of contributory negligence. Smith v. Humphreyville, 47 C. A. 140, 104 S. W. 495.

In an action for the death of a person, where it is not conclusively shown that decedent was guilty of contributory negligence, or that the cause of his injury was a risk assumed by him, those facts are questions for the jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Carter, 47 C. A. 309, 104 S. W. 910.

Statement as to condition of evidence authorizing direction of verdict or requiring submission to jury. Red River Nat. Bank v. De Berry, 47 C. A. 96, 105 S. W. 998.

A directed verdict for defendant is not erroneous, although there may be sufficient evidence to go to the jury on certain issues if evidence on the issue of plaintiff's estoppel to assert his claim is so conclusive in favor of defendant that ordinary minds could not differ. Walker v. Erwin, 47 C. A. 637, 106 S. W. 164.

That a judge or appellate court on the same evidence might reach a conclusion contrary to the one contended for is not a reason for withdrawing the issue from the jury. Id.

Evidence, no matter how weak its probative force, if it has the dignity of evidence at all, is sufficient to go to the jury. Gray v. Fussell, 48 C. A. 261, 106 S. W. 454.

Instructing a verdict for defendants in a negligence action held not error, where there was a failure of proof as to which one or more of several defendants was negligent. Pierce v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 979.

Where a servant is injured by the failure of another servant to give a proper warning, if the insufficiency of the warning is not shown as a matter of law by the evidence, it is a question for the jury. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 50 C. A. 10, 108 S. W. 988.

In an action against a railroad company for the death of one struck by a switching engine, the court did not err in submitting an issue raised by the petition and sustained by the evidence. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Murtle, 49 C. A. 273, 108 S. W. 998.

Issues must be found by the jury where the existence of the ultimate facts depend solely on the truth of the statements made by the witnesses or other evidence offered, or are to be found from weighing and estimating the value of facts stated as warranting a particular finding which can only be proved indirectly by circumstances. Craver v. Ragon (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 489.

The court cannot declare that it was a physical impossibility for a sliver to fly from the head of a chisel on its being struck by a hammer so as to strike the eye of a person standing four or five feet away; there being evidence to the contrary. Texas Mexican Ry. Co. v. Trijerina, 51 C. A. 100, 111 S. W. 239.

It is the duty of the court to direct a verdict for defendant only when a fact essential to plaintiff's cause of action has not been proved under any reasonable hypothesis, or one which is a complete defense has been established. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Levyson, 52 C. A. 122, 113 S. W. 569.

In an action against a railroad company for killing an animal, evidence held sufficient to go to the jury, though wholly circumstantial. Texas & G. Ry. Co. v. Pate (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 994.

It does not necessarily follow that, because plaintiff has made a prima facie case, it must be submitted to the jury, as it may be so destroyed by defendant's uncontradicted evidence as to make it appear as a matter of law that plaintiff is not entitled to recover. Keith v. Guedry (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 392.

Where the evidence presented an issue under the pleadings, the court must submit it to the jury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pigott, 54 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 841.

The trial court is not justified in taking from the jury a question of fact, unless the evidence is such that there is no issue to be determined. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Williams (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1043.

Where there is sufficient evidence to raise an issue, it is the duty of the court to submit the same to the jury. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Downs, 49 C. A. 255, 119 S. W. 119.

Whether there is any evidence on an essential issue is for the trial judge, and where he decides there is evidence he must submit it to the jury, but where he decides there is no evidence he must direct a verdict. Producers' Oil Co. v. Barnes (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1023.

When a court is warranted in giving a peremptory instruction stated. Ward v. Powell (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 851.

It is not necessary, in order to take a case to the jury, that the evidence which tends to prove an essential fact should be direct; circumstantial evidence may tend to the same end, and may be as cogent as direct and positive. Id.

If there is evidence which has a tendency to establish an issue, it should be submitted to the jury. Texas Brokerage Co. v. John Barkley & Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 431.

Where the evidence most favorable to plaintiff is sufficient to raise a question for the jury, it is error to direct a verdict for the defendant. Howard v. Waterman Lumber & Supply Co. (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 387.

Issues raised by a defendant need not be submitted to the jury, when disproven by his own witnesses. Ft. Stockton Irrigated Lands Co. v. Graef (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 186.

Whether there is sufficient evidence to go to the jury is a question for the court, but whether the evidence preponderates in favor of one party or the other is for the jury. Friedrich v. Geisler (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1079.

Where there is any evidence, circumstantial or otherwise, fairly tending to support a material issue, it should be submitted to the jury. Bolt v. State Savings Bank of Manchester, Iowa (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 707.

The court may only direct a verdict for defendant where there is no testimony to support the claim of plaintiff. Crowley v. Finch (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 648.

Where plaintiff pleaded estoppel, and the testimony of two witnesses tended to support the plea, it was error to refuse a request to charge thereon. Evants v. Erdman (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 929.

Where the evidence bearing upon a railroad's negligence in setting fire to plaintiff's property favorable to plaintiff, discarding all the evidence favorable to the railroad, is sufficient to support a verdict for plaintiff, the issue of defendant's liability is for the jury. Progressive Lumber Co. v. Marshall & E. T. Ry. Co. (Sup.) 155 S. W. 175.

In order to require an issue to be submitted to the jury, there must be something more than a mere scintilla of evidence. United States Express Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.). 156 S. W. 617.

5. —— Evidence erroneously admitted.—A peremptory charge to find for plaintiff in amount shown to be due by report of auditor, which had been admitted in evidence without objection, is not erroneous. Kalteyer v. Wipff, 92 T. 673, 52 S. W. 63.

Failure of defendant to plead unavoidable accident in an action for injuries received by being run over by its train does not defeat its right to an instruction thereon, where there is evidence tending to show that the injury was the result of such accident. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Washington, 94 T. 510, 63 S. W. 534; Id., 25 C. A. 600, 63 S. W. 538.

There was no error in refusing a requested instruction as to a defense shown by the evidence, but not pleaded by the answer. Smith v. F. W. Heitman Co., 44 C. A. 358, 98 S. W. 1074.

Where, in an action on a retail liquor dealer's bond, the answer did not present the defense of good faith, held, that a charge thereon could not be sustained, even if evidence of a sale in good faith was admitted without objection. Farenthold v. Tell, 52 C. A. 110, 113 S. W. 635.

Where, in an action for expenses incurred by failure of a carrier to furnish stock cars, the evidence shows more expenses incurred than those alleged in the petition, an instruction which fails to limit the expenses that may be recovered to those alleged is erroneous. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Noelke (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 969.

Testimony not constituting proof of an issue held not to make a question for the jury. Seguin Milling & Power Co. v. Guinn (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 456.

It was error to submit an issue of negligence where such negligence was not pleaded, though in evidence. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brown (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1177.

An issue raised by the evidence but not by the pleadings should not be submitted. Miller v. Layne & Bowler Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 341.

6. Weight and probative force of evidence.—The sufficiency or effect of evidence is a question for the jury, and a verdict will not be set aside by the appellate court unless it certainly appears to be wrong. Briscoe v. Bronaugh, 1 T. 326, 46 Am. Dec. 108; Legg v. McNeill, 2 T. 428; Perry v. Robinson, 2 T. 490; Hall v. Hodge, 2 T. 323; Davidson v. Edgar, 5 T. 492; Clark v. Davis, 7 T. 556; Wells v. Barnett, 7 T. 584; Ables v. Donley, 8 T. 331; Chevaillier v. Denison, 8 T. 439; Long v. Steiger, 8 T. 460; Oliver v. Chapman, 15 T. 400; Alley v. Booth, 16 T. 94; Stewart v. Hamilton, 19 T. 96; Baldridge v. Gordon, 24 T. 288; Howard v. Ray, 25 T. 88; Adams v. George, 25 T. Sup. 374; Linney v. Peloquin, 35 T. 29; H. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Parker, 50 T. 330; Flanagan v. Oberthier, 50 T. 379; Jordan v. Imthurn, 51 T. 276; H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Marcelles, 59 T. 334; Adkinson v. Garrett, 1 App. C. C. § 46; Wilson v. Green, 1 App. C. C. § 99; Viviola v. Kuezek, 1 App. C. C. § 634; Faulkner v. Warren, 1 App. C. C. § 663; Wisson v. Baird, 1 App. C. C. § 712; G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Holt, 1 App. C. C. § 839; Wood v. Samuels, 1 App. C. C. § 924; Fowler v. Chapman, 1 App. C. C. § 967; Booth v. Case, 1 App. C. C. § 1029; Dugey v. Hughs, 2 App. C. C. § 7; Duffard v. Herbert, 2 App. C. C. § 612; Paris Gaslight Co. v. McHam, 2 App. C. C. § 652. And the same rule applies when the trial is by the court. Gilliard & Chessney v. Gilliard, 13 T. 337; Bailey v. White, 13 T. 114; McFarland v. Hall, 17 T. 690; Jordan v. Brophy, 41 T. 283; Adkinson v. Garrett, 1 App. C. C. § 45; Coffield v. Harris, 2 App. C. C. § 317. But when there is a deficiency of proof, and the evidence is not sufficient to establish the allegation, the verdict will be set aside. Chandler v. Meckling, 22 T. 36; Willis v. Lewis, 28 T. 185; Stroud v. Springfield, 28 T. 649; Edmundson v. Silliman, 50 T. 112; G., H. & S. A. R. R. Co. v. Bracken, 59 T. 71; H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Schmidt, 61 T. 285; Jacobs v. Crum, 62 T. 401; Block v. Sweeney, 63 T. 419; Newcomb v. Babb, 2 App. C. C. § 761.

The weight to be given the testimony was for the jury. Domenico v. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 60; Hall v. Cook, 117 S. W. 449; Buchanan v. Rollings, 122 S. W. 962; San Antonio Traction Co. v. Young, 141 S. W. 572; Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wallace, 152 S. W. 873; Wood v. Dean, 155 S. W. 363.

Only after verdict can the court consider the probative force of evidence, and then only to determine whether the verdict is so clearly against its preponderance as to show passion or prejudice. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 106.

The probative force of evidence is for the jury. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Eichel & Weikel (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 922.

7. Credibility of witnesses.—Inconsistencies between the testimony of a witness and that which he gave in a former trial are matters exclusively for the jury to consider. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Butshek, 34 C. A. 194, 78 S. W. 740.

The credibility of a witness is a question for the jury. Wills Point Bank v. Bates, 72 T. 137, 10 S. W. 348.

In action on vendor's lien note deposited as collateral, evidence held to justify jury in disbelieving statement of person depositing it, as to manner in which he obtained it from purchaser. Bond v. National Exch. Bank (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 71.

Where there is sharp conflict in evidence, it is the jury's province to give credence to those witnesses regarded as the more credible. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Davis, 45 C. A. 212, 100 S. W. 1013.

The credibility of a witness and the weight to be given his testimony was for the jury. Walker v. Erwin, 47 C. A. 637, 106 S. W. 164; Mitchell v. Boyce (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1016; Buchanan v. Rollings, 122 S. W. 962; Texas Midland R. Co. v. Geraldon, 103 T. 402, 128 S. W. 611, 29 L. R. A. (N. S.) 799, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 45; Huggins v. Carey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 390; Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wallace, 152 S. W. 873; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Beezley, 153 S. W. 651; Wood v. Dean, 155 S. W. 363; Ferrell v. Millican, 156 S. W. 230.

Though witness's testimony is contradictory and inconsistent, held, it is all for the jury to give it such weight as they deem proper. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Butler (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 240.

Contradiction of a witness on cross-examination presents an issue for the jury, and not for the court. Gosch v. Vrana (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 253.

In a slander case, as in all others, the jury are the exclusive judges of the credibility of witnesses and the weight to be given their evidence. Lehmann v. Medack (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 438.

8. —— Parties and persons interested.—In an action for damages to cattle during transportation, it was not error to refuse to direct a verdict for defendant on account of a statement by plaintiff that the cattle were in good condition when they arrived at their destination. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Fambrough (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 188.

Where, in an action against a railway company for the value of cotton destroyed by fire while being transported, there was no evidence as to how the fire originated, and all engineers and conductors of all trains which had carried the car testified to due care, the question of negligence was for the jury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Richmond, 94 T. 571, 63 S. W. 619.

Where, in an action for rent, which plaintiff claimed was a share of a crop, defendant testified as to a contract for $40, it was error to refuse to submit the issue as to whether there was such a contract. Robbins v. Voss (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 313.

Testimony of a railway employé in an action to recover for personal injuries held not so incredible as to cause the verdict to be set aside. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sanchez (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 893.

Where, in an action by a real estate agent to recover commissions, he testified that the owner agreed to the prices at which he sold the different tracts, held error to instruct to find for defendant as to any of the tracts. McLane v. Goode (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 707.

In action for injuries to servant, question as to which portion of plaintiff's contradictory testimony was true was a question for the jury. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Lee, 32 C. A. 23, 74 S. W. 345.

Whether plaintiff in an action for personal injuries contradicted his testimony given on a former trial held question for the jury. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Ives, 34 C. A. 49, 78 S. W. 36.

In an action on life insurance policy, court held to have properly refused to allow an issue of fact to be raised by a deposition of the soliciting agent, which he had subsequently corrected. Cowen v. Equitable Life Assur. Soc., 37 C. A. 430, 84 S. W. 404.

It is not error to refuse a requested charge withdrawing from the jury an essential element of an oral contract supported by the evidence of a party. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 499.

The testimony of a party held not required to be accepted as establishing the facts stated by him, though he is unimpeached and uncontradicted. Burleson v. Tinnin (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 350.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, the fact that plaintiff testified differently on a former trial in reference to his physical or mental status at the time, or as to making any statements as to the manner of receiving his injury, did not affect the competency of his testimony though it might raise a question for the jury as to his credibility. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Hugen, 45 C. A. 326, 100 S. W. 1000.

In an action on a life insurance policy, whether declarations of the father of insured as to the time and place of insured's birth were true held to be for the jury. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co. v. Jay, 50 C. A. 165, 109 S. W. 1116.

The credibility of interested witnesses held to be for the jury. McCormick v. Kampmann, 102 T. 215, 115 S. W. 24.

The jury may not, in general, discredit an uncontradicted witness merely because he is interested, or is in the employ of an interested party, so that the opposing party is not entitled as of right to go to the jury on the issue of his credibility. City of San Antonio v. E. H. Rollins & Sons (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1166, 1199.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, evidence of two members of the train crew held insufficient to establish as a matter of law that warning of the sudden starting of the train had been given. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Keeling (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 108.

9. Uncontroverted facts or evidence.—A charge submitting as an issue of fact a matter upon which the testimony was undisputed is properly refused. Roddy v. Kingsbury, 5 T. 152; Reid v. Reid, 11 T. 593; Bond v. Mallow, 17 T. 636; Hedgepeth v. Robertson, 18 T. 871; Andrews v. Smithwick, 20 T. 118; Austin v. Talk, Id. 164; Mitchell v. De Witt, Id. 294; Rogers v. Brodnax, 24 T. 542; Teal v. Terrell, 58 T. 261; Eason v. Eason, 61 T. 225; Supreme Council of A. L. of H. v. Anderson, Id. 296; Grinnan v. Dean, 62 T. 218; Frankland v. Cassaday, Id. 418; Railway Co. v. Lewine, 4 App. C.

C. § 125, 16 S. W. 909; Hunnicutt v. State, 75 T. 233, 12 S. W. 106; Irvin v. Bevil, 80 T. 332, 16 S. W. 21; Anderson v. Nuckes (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 680; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Kimbell, 43 S. W. 1049; Illg v. De la Luz Garcia, 45 S. W. 857; Bailey v. Mickle, Id. 949; McMonigal v. State, Id. 1038; Morrow v. Terrell, 21 C. A. 28, 50 S. W. 734; Maupin v. McCall (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 623; Banks v. McQuatters, 57 S. W. 334; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Burgess, 60 S. W. 1023; American Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Kersh, 27 C. A. 127, 66 S. W. 74; Laufer v. Powell, 30 C. A. 604, 71 S. W. 549; Byers Bros. v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 437; Brockenbrow v. Stafford & Boynton, 76 S. W. 576; Hettich v. Hillje, 33 C. A. 571, 77 S. W. 641; D. Sullivan & Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 373; Martin, Moodie & Co. v. Petty, 79 S. W. 878; Thomson Bros. v. Lynn, 36 C. A. 79, 81 S. W. 330; El Paso Northeastern R. Co. v. Ryan (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 563; Security Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Calvert, 39 C. A. 382, 87 S. W. 889; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Box (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 134; Collins v. Kelsey, 97 S. W. 122; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Groves, Id. 1084; Kampmann v. McCormick, 99 S. W. 1147; Gaw v. Bingham, 107 S. W. 931; Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Poteet, 53 C. A. 44, 115 S. W. 883; James v. Ft. Worth Telegram Co. (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1028; Kirby Lumber Co. v. C. R. Cummings & Co., 57 C. A. 291, 122 S. W. 273; Buchanan & Gilder v. Murayda (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 973; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Taylor, 103 T. 367, 126 S. W. 1117; Jackson v. Rollins (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 681; Snouffer v. Heisig, 130 S. W. 912; Pullman Co. v. Custer, 140 S. W. 847; Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Meyer, 155 S. W. 309.

When plaintiff's title is established by undisputed evidence, the court may instruct the jury to return a verdict for plaintiff. Pasture Co. v. Cleveland (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 93; Capp v. Terry, 75 T. 391, 13 S. W. 52; Benson v. Cahill (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 1088.

An instruction which left to the jury to determine whether the insured made certain representations in his written application, held not error, though it was not denied that he made the application. Georgia Home Ins. Co. v. Brady (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 513.

Where defendant desisted from ejecting plaintiff after he became ill, held error to charge on the duty to desist in such case. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Ritter, 16 C. A. 482, 41 S. W. 753.

In an action for not transmitting a message, where the only conflict was as to delivery of the message to the company for transmission, the question as to the company's liability for failing to deliver a message to one who resides outside the company's free delivery limits should not be submitted. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Lyles (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 636.

Where it was admitted that the accident was due to a missing bolt, that should have held the switch rods together, it was proper to refuse to instruct that, if the accident was the result of causes incident to the business of railroading, plaintiff could not recover. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Gaither (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 266.

Where an issue is established by evidence prima facie sufficient, which is not attempted to be rebutted, held error to submit the issue to the jury. Herndon v. Vick, 18 C. A. 583, 45 S. W. 852.

In action to foreclose, where undisputed evidence showed it was not a homestead, it was not error to fail to charge in reference thereto. Bowman v. Rutter (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 52.

It was error to submit an issue whether a collision would not have occurred if a train had not attempted to go over a crossing at the time it did, since the collision could not have occurred otherwise. Ft. Worth & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Enos (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 595.

An officer agreed with a combination of persons not to exercise the duties of his office. Subsequently the combination was dissolved and one of the parties assumed the contract which was continued under the same conditions. In an action to recover for services under the contract, the court refused to submit to the jury whether the contract was void as against public policy. Held error, as it was not undisputed that the contract after the dissolution was independent of the original. Burck v. Abbott, 22 C. A. 216, 54 S. W. 314.

In a suit on a deed, where defendant had failed to perform the conditions thereof for repurchase, it was proper to direct a verdict for plaintiff. Kirby v. National Loan & Investment Co., 22 C. A. 257, 54 S. W. 1081.

Where the only testimony was that a certain amount was a reasonable attorney's fee, it was error to submit to the jury what a reasonable fee would be. Herndon v. Lammers (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 414.

Where plaintiff's evidence that his attorney had no authority to act was uncontroverted, it was error to submit the question of the attorney's authority to the jury. Fayssoux v. Kendall County (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 583.

Where plaintiff sought to subject lands to which debtor's wife had legal title to judgment against debtor on the ground that it was purchased with debtor's funds, or community funds of debtor and his wife, but there was no evidence to such effect, a verdict was properly directed for defendant. Pontiac Buggy Co. v. Dupree, 23 C. A. 298, 56 S. W. 703.

In action by passenger for damages for ejection from train, an expression in the general charge that, if he had no money, he might recover, where the fact is undisputed, is not irrelevant or misleading. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cuniffe (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 692.

Contributory negligence, clearly established by undisputed testimony, so as to admit of no other reasonable conclusion than that of its existence, held to warrant an instruction for a railroad company, when sued for the death of a person killed by a train when crossing its tracks. Haass v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 24 C. A. 135, 57 S. W. 855.

Where the evidence as to the nature of two suits is undisputed, it is not error to direct a verdict on the issue of res judicata. Birdseye v. Shaeffer (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 987.

Where a contract was made to deliver a telegram by special means, and no effort was made to deliver, nor excuse shown, the question whether there was negligence in delivery need not be submitted to the jury. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Carter, 24 C. A. 80, 58 S. W. 198.

It is not proper to charge, in an action brought by a feme sole, that, if her husband is living, she cannot recover, where the proof shows that she is authorized to prosecute the action, though he is living. Kingsley v. Schmicker (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 331.

Where, in an action on a policy, it was not disputed that 10 per cent. would be a reasonable attorney's fee, it was not error to instruct the jury to allow such sum. New York Life Ins. Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 440.

Where, in replevin, the only evidence of value was that of one of the parties, a peremptory instruction that the value was in accordance with such testimony was erroneous. Dysart v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 986.

Where the evidence failed to show that plaintiff's duty required any more skill or knowledge than he possessed, it was error to submit that issue to the jury. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Austin (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 212.

An instruction which did not limit the amount of recovery of expenses to such as were reasonable held not erroneous, there being no conflict of evidence and no request for the limitation. Texas & Pac. Ry. Co. v. Ball (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 420.

Where plaintiff's evidence in an action for injuries at a railroad crossing showed that he was guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law, it was not necessary that such issue should be submitted to the jury. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Branom (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1064.

Where all the evidence tends to prove a fact, so that but one finding could be made by the jury, it is proper for the court to withdraw the issue from them, and decide the matter itself. New York & Texas Land Co. v. Dooley, 33 C. A. 636, 77 S. W. 1030.

In action on insurance policy, held unnecessary to submit question of plaintiff's compliance with conditions, where there was no proof that he did not comply. Woodall v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1090.

In an action for injuries to a railroad brakeman, charge submitting the issue of the brakeman's negligence as proximate cause held erroneous, where the negligent act specified necessarily contributed to the injury. El Paso & S. W. Ry. Co. v. Vizard, 39 C. A. 534, 88 S. W. 457.

Where plaintiff was injured while operating a drilling machine, and it was shown that he had had several years' experience in the work, it was error to submit the issue of his inexperience to the jury. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Denton (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 452.

In an action against a railway company for personal injuries sustained in falling through a stock gap, the question as to whether plaintiff knew of the location of the gap held not a question for the jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Plunkett (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 663.

In an action for damages caused by a fire set by sparks from defendant's locomotive, though the evidence of defendant's employés that the spark-arresting appliances on the locomotive were in good repair was uncontroverted, the question was properly submitted to the jury, since they were interested witnesses. Ross v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 47 C. A. 24, 103 S. W. 708.

The question, on undisputed oral testimony, of whether one was an independent contractor, held for the court. Smith v. Humphreyville, 47 C. A. 140, 104 S. W. 495.

Where an injured servant assumed the risk from which his injury resulted, his employer in an action for the injury was entitled to a peremptory instruction. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Mathis, 101 T. 342, 107 S. W. 530.

Where, in an action for injuries to a servant, plaintiff assumed the risk of injury, requested instruction that he was guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law held properly refused. Id.

Where defendant, in trespass to try title, files his admission of plaintiff's cause of action, the court held required to direct a verdict for plaintiff, unless the pleadings of defendant show a right in him to the possession notwithstanding the ownership of plaintiff. Meade v. Logan (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 188.

Where the undisputed evidence in an action for malicious prosecution showed that the prosecution of plaintiff was not malicious, a verdict was properly directed for defendants. Kruegel v. Lemmon (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 608.

Where the only defense pleaded was res judicata which was not proved, the court should have directed a verdict for plaintiffs. Kerr v. Blair, 55 C. A. 349, 118 S. W. 791.

Where plaintiffs both testify that one of the defendants had agreed to pay the debt of the other defendant, and that the latter had been discharged from liability on that account, the jury were properly directed to find in his favor. Bowman v. Saigling, 102 T. 485, 119 S. W. 295.

The truth or credibility of evidence given by plaintiffs in favor of one of the defendants could not be submitted to the jury as an issue. Id.

Where, in an action for breach of a contract of sale, the facts as to the contract and its breach are established by undisputed evidence, there is no question for the jury except the amount of damages. Kirby Lumber Co. v. C. R. Cummings & Co., 57 C. A. 291, 122 S. W. 273.

In an action for injuries to a section hand while operating a defective hand car, a charge held properly refused because submitting as an issue a fact not disputed. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Swearingen (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1192.

A requested instruction, that in the event of a finding that the cars in which the horses were transported were negligently jerked, there could be no recovery by plaintiff, in the absence of a further finding that the horses were thereby injured, was properly refused, where there was no evidence in the record tending to prove that such negligent handling of the animals did not harm them, and where plaintiff's uncontroverted evidence shows that the horses were thereby injured, and where the issue was fairly presented in the charge given by the court. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1155.

Where, in an action for damage to live stock en route, the shipper denied the existence and validity of written contracts set up by the company as a defense, a requested charge as to the legal effect of such contracts was properly refused; their legal effect not being in dispute. Southern Pac. R. Co. v. W. T. Meadors & Co., 104 T. 469, 140 S. W. 427.

In an action by an injured brakeman, held, that the court was authorized to charge the jury as a matter of law that the engineer was bound to obey signals. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Matlock (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1067.

Where there is no controversy as to the facts, or the inference to be drawn therefrom, the court may instruct the jury how to find, notwithstanding this article. Leonard v. Continental Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 990.

In an action for injuries to a fireman on a switch engine in a collision with a train, the refusal to submit the issue of contributory negligence based on the failure to maintain a lookout was not erroneous, where the undisputed evidence showed that a fog excluded the view. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Sample (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1057.

In an action for compensation for services rendered by a physician, registered in a foreign state, the question of his authorization to practice should not be submitted to the jury, when the facts are not in dispute. Feingold v. Lefkovitz (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 346.

Where the evidence was undisputed that plaintiff had been in possession through tenants for about 14 years, during which time the land was inclosed, the court properly instructed a verdict for plaintiff in trespass to try title upon the issue of prior possession. Adels v. Joseph (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1154.

In an action by a servant for personal injuries, a verdict should be directed for the master where the uncontroverted evidence fails to establish the master's negligence, or that it was the proximate cause of the injury. Freeman v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 413.

Where the uncontroverted evidence showed that plaintiff assumed the risk and was guilty of contributory negligence, a verdict should have been directed for defendant. Id.

Submission of question whether railway brakeman's failure to give signals contributed to his injuries held improper under the evidence; it being self-evident that it did so contribute. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hall (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 445.

Where testimony that the architect certified to defendant that plaintiff failed to prosecute the work with promptness was not disputed and defendant pleaded that such certificate was made, the court properly refused to submit the question whether it was made. Woodruff v. Taub (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1193.

Where the facts alleged to render an ordinance invalid for unreasonableness are controverted, they must be determined by the jury, but whether such facts show the ordinance to be unreasonable is for the court. City of Brenham v. Holle & Seelhorst (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 345.

Burden held to have been on shipper and initial carrier to show that bales of cotton delivered to a connecting carrier were a part of the shipment in question, and, having offered no proof to that effect, a verdict for the connecting carrier was properly directed. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Davies (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 916.

It is proper to refuse an instruction on a question conceded both by pleadings and evidence on the trial. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Meyer (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 309.

It is for the jury not only to draw inferences and conclusions from the testimony, but to pass on the credibility of the witnesses; and when witnesses testify by deposition, and are uncontradicted, and nothing is disclosed which tends to impeach their credibility, and but one inference can be drawn from their testimony, the court may assume its truth. Long v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 945.

Where the undisputed evidence showed that the injuries to plaintiff's team hired to defendant were due either to lack of proper care, fast driving, or a deviation from the route specified in the contract of hiring, for which plaintiff's driver was responsible, a verdict for defendant should have been directed. Sells-Floto Shows v. Broussard (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 275.

10. Inferences from evidence.—The defendant in an action of trespass to try title relied upon the presumption of a grant from the following facts: On the 26th of July, 1838, a certificate for one-third of a league of land was issued to R., which was never recommended by the traveling board of land commissioners. The records of the county surveyor showed a survey under the certificate November 5, 1839. The certificate and survey were returned to the general land office February 7, 1841, and the survey is delineated on the maps of the proper county in the general land office. The papers cannot be found, and are on the list of missing files. The defendant showed twenty-five years' possession under a warranty deed from G., the payment of taxes, and the making of valuable improvements. The court excluded the foregoing evidence and properly refused to submit to the jury the question as to the presumption of a grant. Miller v. Brownson, 50 T. 583.

In an action of trespass to try title the defendant claimed as follows: 1. Bounty land warrant issued November 20, 1838, to G. W. Lernoyn. The warrant contained the following clause: "And the said G. W. Lernoyn, by his attorney, T. D. Tompkins, is entitled to hold said land, or to sell, alienate, convey and donate the same, and to exercise all rights of ownership over it." 2. Transfer of the same, January 8, 1839, by Tompkins to Holbrook, and by Holbrook to Wright, April 29, 1847. 3. Location by Mitchell for Wright in 1853. 4. Patent to Lernoyn. It was held that Tompkins had prima facie the right to convey; and that the court should have submitted to the jury the question of limitation and stale demand and also the presumption of acquiescence by Lernoyn in the sale of the certificate, by reason of the lapse of time and other circumstances in the case. Smith v. Shinn, 58 T. 1.

Similarity of name ordinarily is sufficient evidence of identity of the person in a chain of title. In absence of any other testimony, it is error to submit to the jury the question of such identity. Holstein v. Adams, 72 T. 485, 10 S. W. 560; Robertson v. Du Bose, 76 T. 1, 13 S. W. 300; Chamblee v. Tarbox, 27 T. 144, 84 Am. Dec. 614; Cox v. Cock, 59 T. 524; McCamant v. Roberts, 80 T. 316, 15 S. W. 580, 1054; Smith v. Gillum, 80 T. 120, 15 S. W. 794; Ansaldua v. Schwing, 81 T. 198, 16 S. W. 989.

In an action for injuries on a railroad track facts held not to give rise to a conclusive presumption of contributory negligence, but to require a submission of the question to the jury. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Laskowski (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 59.

It is proper to refuse to submit an issue to the jury where only one reasonable deduction can be drawn from the evidence. Smith v. Richardson Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 386.

In an action for injuries to a brakeman by reason of a defective ladder, facts held insufficient to justify an inference that he assumed the risk as a matter of law. El Paso Northeastern R. Co. v. Ryan, 36 C. A. 190, 81 S. W. 563.

Where the matter of attachment costs was but inferentially raised in the trial court, refusal to submit the issue of wrongful attachment in the absence of evidence of other damages held not to warrant a reversal. Seal v. Holcomb, 48 C. A. 330, 107 S. W. 916.

Evidence from which a fact is inferable held to authorize its submission. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Keith (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 695.

When the evidence, though slight, raises an inference of contributory negligence, that issue should be submitted to the jury. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. McCrummen (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 899.

Whether circumstances support a presumption of a lost grant held for the jury. Masterson v. Harrington (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 626.

11. Conflicting evidence.—On an issue as to whether a locomotive was ringing its bell, evidence examined, and held, that there was not enough conflict to require the submission of the question to the jury. Texas-Mexican Ry. Co. v. Baldez (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 564.

Direction of a verdict for plaintiff held not error where the evidence, though conflicting, would not justify a different verdict. Lancaster Gin & Compress Co. v. Murray Ginning-System Co., 19 C. A. 110, 47 S. W. 387.

A question of fact is for the jury, where the evidence is conflicting. Jaeger v. Biering (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 50; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Simon, 54 S. W. 309; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Harvin, Id. 629; Daggett v. Webb, 30 C. A. 415, 70 S. W. 457; Alexander & Kneeland v. Von Koehring (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 629; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. McAdams, 37 C. A. 575, 84 S. W. 1076; Parker v. Stroud, 39 C. A. 448, 87 S. W. 734; Seiber v. Johnson Mercantile Co., 40 C. A. 600, 90 S. W. 516; Merritt v. State, 42 C. A. 495, 94 S. W. 372; Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Frugia, 43 C. A. 48, 95 S. W. 563; Cantelou v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 1017; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Taylor, 54 C. A. 419, 118 S. W. 1097; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Wynne, 57 C. A. 68, 122 S. W. 50; Morgan's L. & T. R. & S. S. Co. v. Street, 57 C. A. 194, 122 S. W. 270; Pitman v. Self (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 907; Hardin v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 134 S. W. 408; Precker v. Slayton, 138 S. W. 1160; Mitchell v. Crossett, 143 S. W. 965; Reid Auto Co. v. Gorsczya, 144 S. W. 688; Merchants' Nat. Bank of Houston v. Townsend, 147 S. W. 617; Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. v. Stewart, 148 S. W. 1193; Kirby Lumber Co. v. Cunningham, 154 S. W. 288; Kirby v. Conn, 156 S. W. 232.

When the evidence tends to contradictory conclusions, though without any conflict among witnesses, a verdict should not be directed. Mitchell v. McLaren (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 269.

Where the evidence is conflicting, the fact that it preponderates in favor of one side does not authorize the court to direct a verdict. Berry v. Osborn (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 623.

An instruction authorizing a finding for defendant because of insufficiency of evidence to show that a release executed by plaintiff was not binding on him held properly refused. Williams v. Emberson, 22 C. A. 522, 55 S. W. 595.

Issue as to whether note was assigned, or merely deposited for safe-keeping, held question for jury on conflicting evidence. Ft. Dearborn Nat. Bank v. Berrott, 23 C. A. 662, 57 S. W. 340.

In an action for injuries sustained by plaintiff's intestate, where testimony as to the cause of death was conflicting, it was proper not to direct verdict. Klatt v. Houston Electric St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 1112.

Where evidence is conflicting as to fellow servant's competency, the question should be submitted to the jury. B. Lantry Sons v. Lowrie (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 837.

Where there was conflicting evidence as to fraud alleged, inducing a conveyance of land, in an action for its recovery direction of a verdict for plaintiff was error. Taylor v. Flint, 24 C. A. 394, 59 S. W. 1126.

Where evidence was conflicting as to whether it had been agreed that payments by defendant should be applied on his note or on a general account, held error to instruct that the moneys received by plaintiff became his property. Reed v. Corry (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 157.

Where a plaintiff testified by deposition that she was married in 1879, and another witness by later deposition testified that the plaintiff was married December 24, 1880, it was for the jury to determine when the marriage occurred. Halliday v. Lambright, 29 C. A. 226, 68 S. W. 712.

There being a presumption of fact with evidence tending to rebut it, held the case is for the jury. Opet v. Denzer, Goodhart & Schener (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 527.

Where, in an action involving a boundary line, there was a conflict of evidence on a material issue, the trial court invaded the province of the jury by directing a verdict on that issue. Logan v. Meads, 43 C. A. 477, 98 S. W. 210.

Where the evidence upon the issue as to whether certain deeds were intended as mortgages or were absolute deeds was conflicting, it was error for the trial court to withdraw the issue from the jury. Openshaw v. Rickmeyer, 45 C. A. 508, 102 S. W. 467.

The question whether an agreement was made as testified to by a party, not directly contradicted by the adverse party, held for the jury. Williams v. Burke (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 160.

A party, having introduced sufficient evidence to support a verdict in his favor, is entitled to have the issue submitted to the jury, however strong the contradictory evidence may be; and, in determining the propriety of directing a verdict, the evidence must be considered most favorably to plaintiff in error, disregarding conflicts and contradictions. Harpold v. Moss, 101 T. 540, 109 S. W. 928.

A party introducing sufficient evidence to support a verdict in his favor is entitled to go to the jury, however strong the contradictory evidence may be. Cone v. Belcher, 57 C. A. 493, 124 S. W. 149.

Evidence as to occupancy of the premises at the time of the fire held not contradictory, so as to raise an issue of the breach of a warranty relating thereto. Agricultural Ins. Co. of Watertown, N. Y., v. Owens (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 828.

An equivocal statement insufficient to raise more than a surmise held not to prevent direction of verdict, as on unconflicting evidence. Paschall v. Brown (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 509.

In an action against a railroad company for so constructing its tracks that water injured plaintiff's land, the evidence being conflicting, the question was one for the jury. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Davison (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1162.

Where the only issue on which the evidence is conflicting is an immaterial one, a verdict may properly be directed. Tompkins v. Creighton-McShane Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 306.

Where plaintiff denied the truth of defendant's testimony, an issue of fact is raised. Presley v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 669.

Where plaintiff's direct testimony tended to show a right to recover, if there was a conflict between it and his cross-examination, it was for the jury to determine which was correct, and a verdict for defendant was improperly directed. Threadgill v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 825.

It is the province of the jury to pass upon facts, where there is the slightest controversy. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Sadler (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1188.

Where, in trespass to try title, the evidence was conflicting as to whether defendant was entitled to one-half of the land it was error to direct a verdict for plaintiff. Weatherford v. Weatherford (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 353.

Where the evidence is conflicting, but not so decidedly one way as to be susceptible of but one just opinion, the court may not withdraw the question from the jury. Texas Midland R. R. v. Cummins (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 542.

12. Withdrawal of particular counts or issues.—Where a conspiracy to defraud an insurance company was charged, withdrawal from the jury's consideration of the acts of the alleged confederate in furtherance of such conspiracy, subsequent to the fire, was error. Fire Ass'n of Philadelphia v. McNerney (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1053.

Submission of suit to enforce trust for maintenance out of the income of devised lands on single issue as to sufficiency of allowance held special, so as to authorize court to determine adequacy of net income to pay allowance directly from the testimony. McCreary v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 682.

Where interveners in an action of trespass to try title are entitled to judgment if defendant's debt to plaintiff is paid, a charge withdrawing such issue from the jury was properly refused. Schneider v. Sanders, 26 C. A. 169, 61 S. W. 727.

In an action for injuries to an employé while grinding a planer tool on an emery wheel, the issue as to the looseness of the wheel on its axis held sufficiently withdrawn from the jury. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Archambault (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1108.

13. Effect of failure to question sufficiency of evidence.—Where, in an action for injuries resulting from riding against a barbed wire fence built by defendant across a road, evidence that defendant left the fence unguarded and without warning is admitted without objection, defendant cannot object to the question of his negligence in that respect being submitted to the jury, on the ground that such negligence is not pleaded. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. v. Briscoe, 27 C. A. 157, 66 S. W. 315.

It is not error to omit to direct a verdict for defendant, when he does not request it. Cook Bros. Carriage Co. v. National Bank of Cleburne, 38 C. A. 441, 85 S. W. 1169; Emery v. Barfield (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 419.

14. Demurrer to evidence.—In a proceeding to remove county officers, held, that a motion to peremptorily instruct to find for defendants after the state had introduced its evidence was not a demurrer to the evidence, and, if the motion was overruled, the trial must proceed as if not made. Eberstadt v. State, 92 T. 94, 45 S. W. 1007.

A motion to withdraw from the jury all evidence bearing on a certain issue on grounds stated, and not because there was no sufficient evidence relating to the issue, does not amount to a technical demurrer to the evidence. Thompson v. Autry (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 47.

Statement of counsel as to insufficiency of plaintiff's evidence held not a technical demurrer to the evidence. Morrow v. Fleming, 29 C. A. 547, 69 S. W. 244.

Motion made by defendant at close of plaintiff's testimony held not a demurrer to the evidence, but a motion for a directed verdict, the interposition of which did not preclude defendant from afterwards introducing defensive testimony. Woldert Grocery Co. v. Veltman (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 224.

15. —— Operation and effect.—Where there is a joinder in a demurrer to the evidence the case must be withdrawn from the jury and decided by the court. When the damages awarded are unliquidated, the question must be submitted to the jury to ascertain the amount. Umscheid v. Scholz, 84 T. 265, 16 S. W. 1065; Railway Co. v. Templeton (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 135; Railway Co. v. Templeton, 87 T. 42, 26 S. W. 1066.

A demurrer to evidence waives all objections to the admissibility of such evidence. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Davis, 17 C. A. 340, 43 S. W. 540.

Where the evidence fully establishes plaintiff's cause of action, it is not error to overrule defendant's demurrer to the evidence. Id.

Defendant may not introduce evidence after a demurrer to the evidence interposed by him has been overruled. Woldert Grocery Co. v. Veltman (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 224.

Where defendant demurs to the evidence and plaintiff joins issue thereon, every fact and conclusion which the evidence tends to prove will be taken as admitted by the defendant. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Cleaver, 48 C. A. 294, 106 S. W. 721; Hanna v. Atchison (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 190.

16. Direction of verdict.—A verdict directed, not justified by the pleading or proof, will be set aside. Perkins v. Garner, 20 C. A. 519, 50 S. W. 166.

Circumstances in which a verdict may be directed stated. Harpold v. Moss (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 1131.

Where a general demurrer to the complaint is either abandoned or overruled, the trial court may not instruct a verdict for defendants on the ground of any imperfection in the complaint, thus cutting off plaintiff's right to amend. Cheek v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 707.

A motion for a directed verdict held to amount to only a demurrer to the petition. Ferrell v. City of Haskell (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 784.

Where there was no evidence of C.'s liability on an alleged joint account for goods sold, and defendant B. did not pray for a judgment over, the court properly directed a verdict for C. Broussard v. Blanchette (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 438.

In an action on rent notes, the court properly directed a verdict for plaintiff, where defendant offered no valid defense thereto. Pressler v. Barreda (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 435.

17. —— Operation and effect of motion or request.—A judgment for plaintiff on the second trial of an action against a railroad company to recover for injuries received at a crossing will not be reversed because the court, in refusing to direct a verdict for defendant, indorsed on the motion thereafter that he did so in deference to the former opinion of the appellate court, but that he still believed the evidence did not present the issue of probable cause. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Marchand, 24 C. A. 47, 57 S. W. 860.

Evidence held to show defendant's motion for verdict before it offered any testimony properly overruled. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Yale, 27 C. A. 10, 65 S. W. 57.

It is peculiarly the province of the jury to determine the credibility of witnesses and the weight to be given to the testimony, and for the court to decide that the testimony is entitled to no credit because overborne by contradictory testimony or so contrary to circumstances in proof as to render it improbable, is to improperly assume the functions of the jury, and is reversible error. Harphold v. Moss, 101 T. 540, 109 S. W. 928.

In determining the propriety of directing a verdict for defendant, the evidence must be considered in its aspect most favorable to plaintiff, disregarding conflicts and contradictions. Cone v. Belcher, 57 C. A. 493, 124 S. W. 149.

Where, under plaintiff's pleadings, a certain person was its agent, so that it could not recover if such person was negligent, held, proof of facts making such person defendant's agent, so that plaintiff would not be liable for his negligence, could not be considered on the question of negligence vel non in directing verdict for plaintiff. Farmers' Nat. Bank of Center v. Merchants' Nat. Bank of Houston (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1120.

Where defendant was not entitled on the evidence to a directed verdict on defendant's cross-action, a requested charge "to return a verdict for the defendant" was properly refused as covering the cross-action, as well as the principal action. Thos. Goggan & Bro. v. Goggan (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 968.

A defendant who requests a charge directing a verdict, and at the same time requests charges presenting issues arising from the evidence, admits the existence of testimony that should be passed on by the jury. Freeman v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 413.

A peremptory instruction to find in favor of a defendant and against plaintiff would not operate the same as a discontinuance or dismissal as to such defendant. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 816.

The giving of a peremptory instruction, without assigning reasons therefor, is not reversible error. Baty v. McGinty (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 914.

(B) Particular Questions or Issues

18. In general.—In an action against a city for destroying property to prevent disease, whether it was necessary so to do held a question for the jury. City of Dallas v. Allen (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 324.

The question whether a judgment originally failed to recite that defendants were cited, so as to admit evidence that plaintiff was not served held properly submitted to jury. McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Wesson (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 725.

An issue as to adoption of by-laws by a trade union held a question for the jury. Cotton Jammers' & Longshoremen's Ass'n No. 2 v. Taylor, 23 C. A. 367, 56 S. W. 553.

In an action to cancel a building association loan, the question of whether plaintiff was a bona fide stockholder held properly submitted to the jury. Southern Home Building & Loan Ass'n v. Thomson, 24 C. A. 76, 58 S. W. 202.

In a contest between factions of a Baptist church, each claiming to be the regular organization, the questions whether a certain meeting was a legal conference and which branch had a majority of the members adhering to it were for the jury. Gibson v. Morris, 28 C. A. 555, 67 S. W. 433.

In an action for the death of a section foreman, struck by a train, what deceased meant by a remark that the train was coming held a question for the jury. International & G. N. Ry. Co. v. McVey, 99 T. 28, 87 S. W. 328.

In an action on a guardian's bond to recover funds of her ward deposited in a bank and lost through its failure, the question whether the guardian's management was prudent held one for the jury. Murph v. McCullough, 40 C. A. 403, 90 S. W. 69.

In an action on a liquor dealer's bond, evidence examined, and held sufficient to present a question for the jury on the issue as to the date of the filing of the bond. Allen v. Houck & Dieter Co. (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 993.

In proceedings to restrain defendant from re-engaging in the photograph business, whether defendant made a statement to plaintiff's partner held for the jury. Parrish v. Adwell (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 441.

Evidence held insufficient to justify submission to the jury of the question whether a sheriff's failure to serve notice of sale on the judgment debtor resulted in a sale for an inadequate price. Snouffer v. Heisig (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 912.

19. Account and accounting.—Evidence in an action on a book account held conflicting, so that the direction of a verdict was erroneous. Keating Implement & Machine Co. v. Erie City Iron Works (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 546.

Whether a sum paid for the benefit of a cestui que trust was subject to credit on the trust fund, or against an amount collected on certain notes belonging to her by the trustee, held for the jury. Watson v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 329.

On evidence in an action on a verified open account, held, that the question of plaintiff's right to recover against part of the defendants was for the jury. Rotan Grocery Co. v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 342.

20. Acknowledgment.—Certain facts held not to raise the issue whether a married woman's acknowledgment of an instrument was taken in the manner prescribed by law. Taylor v. Silliman, 49 C. A. 285, 108 S. W. 1011.

21. Adverse possession.—Evidence held to warrant submission of presumption of grant of land to the jury. Herndon v. Burnett, 21 C. A. 25, 50 S. W. 581.

In an action to establish a disputed boundary line, there being no evidence that plaintiff had occupied it for 10 years, it was error to submit question of limitation for 3, 5, and 10 years against plaintiff's right of action. Wiley v. Lindley (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 1001.

In an action to recover a street claimed adversely, evidence held sufficient to require submission to the jury of the issue whether defendants had held peaceable adverse possession of the premises for more than 10 years. Williams v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 551.

Where there is no evidence that the land in controversy in trespass to try title has been in actual and continuous possession for even five years before the filing of the suit, it is error to submit the issue of ten-years' limitation. Lackey v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 651.

Where there is evidence that the defendant in trespass to try title acquired possession through predecessors whose possession, with defendant's, amounts to more than 10 years, the question of limitations should be submitted to the jury. Thompson v. Dutton (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 641.

Refusal to submit question of adverse possession in trespass to try title held error, where the evidence tended to show such possession of a portion of the lot in controversy. Haigler v. Pope, 34 C. A. 124, 77 S. W. 1039.

In trespass to try title, the possession of defendants from the time of the judgment until they obtain a lease from the plaintiffs held not, as a matter of law, the possession of plaintiffs; such possession being a question of fact. Logan v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 395.

Where the undisputed evidence shows continuous adverse possession during the statutory period, it is proper for the court to direct a verdict in accordance with such evidence. York v. Hutcheson, 37 C. A. 367, 83 S. W. 895.

In trespass to try title, the question of adverse possession held for the jury. Barrett v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 240; City of San Antonio v. Rowley, 48 C. A. 376, 106 S. W. 753; Craver v. Ragon (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 489; Rushing v. Lanier, 51 C. A. 278, 111 S. W. 1089; Ragon v. Craver (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1087.

The presumption of a grant arising from possession and other circumstances held one of fact. Carlisle v. Gibbs, 44 C. A. 189, 98 S. W. 192.

In an action to recover land of which defendant claimed adverse possession, defendant held entitled to have the question of an alleged agreement under which plaintiff claimed defendant held possession submitted to a jury. Crosby v. First Presbyterian Church of El Paso, 45 C. A. 111, 99 S. W. 584.

In trespass to try title, evidence held to require submission to the jury of the questions whether S. and wife, under whom plaintiff claimed, had acquired title by 10 years' adverse possession, and whether plaintiff's deed connected him with the land described in the petition. Romine v. Littlejohn (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 439.

Under a given state of facts, the question whether one's possession of land was such as would give him title by limitations was one of law. Holland v. Ferris (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 102.

Where the inclosure of land is partly by a natural obstruction such as a river, it is a question for the jury whether the inclosure is sufficient to give notice of an adverse holding. Dunn v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 952.

In trespass to try title, evidence of the cutting of timber and other acts of ownership by defendants and of nonclaim and nonassertion of ownership by grantor and those under whom she claims any interest in the land for over 30 years should have been submitted to the jury. Hirsch v. Patton, 49 C. A. 499, 108 S. W. 1015.

Question of adverse possession held to be submitted to the jury, though the land was not described in the plea of adverse possession. Williams v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 52 C. A. 217, 114 S. W. 877.

Evidence as to adverse possession held insufficient to support an instruction to render a verdict for defendant. Bennette v. Collins, 54 C. A. 16, 116 S. W. 618.

Evidence held insufficient to raise the issue of adverse possession. Ryle v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 823.

The refusal to submit the issues of a person's right to recover land under the five and ten years' statutes of limitation held proper under the evidence. Watkins v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 145.

In trespass to try title, held that there was no issue as to defendant's right to the land by limitations. Taylor v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1018.

Where the evidence on an issue of adverse possession was contradictory, the court should have submitted it to the jury. Thacker v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 938; Pullman v. City of Houston (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 69.

Evidence held not to raise the issue of title by limitation of 10 years. Pratt v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 111.

Facts stated held sufficient to go to the jury on the issue whether an inclosure of a tract was sufficient to establish adverse possession under the 10-year limitations. Frazer v. Seureau (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 649.

In trespass to try title, evidence held insufficient to go to the jury on the issue of continuous actual possession by defendant's grantors of any part of the land claimed for even five years. Allen v. Clearman (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1140.

The court held not authorized to rule, as a matter of law, that a possession of real estate was too deceptive to support the defense of limitations. Smith v. Jones, 103 T. 632, 132 S. W. 469, 31 L. R. A. (N. S.) 153.

In trespass to try title, the issue of title by adverse possession under the five and ten years statutes of limitation held under the evidence for the jury. Chaison v. McFaddin (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 524.

In trespass to try title, evidence held insufficient to require a submission to the jury of the issue of defendant's title under the ten-year statutes of limitation. Hankins v. Flynt (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1171.

Evidence held not to warrant submission of question of a tenant in common obtaining title by limitations or verbal partition against his cotenant. Gurley v. Hanrick's Heirs (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 721.

In an action to recover a tract of land which defendant claimed by adverse possession, held, that the question of re-entry and actual possession by plaintiff was for the jury. Rosborough v. Cook (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1120.

Evidence in trespass to try title held to make issue of defendant's claim and adverse possession of the land described in his answer for more than 10 years before the commencement of the suit a question for the jury. Griffin v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 567.

22. Agency and respondeat superior.—Whether defendant carrier was negligent because of failure of a servant to perform duties he was required to observe, held a question for the jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Dill (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 347.

Pleadings and proof held to authorize submission to jury of plaintiff's right to recover if he was a trespasser, and the negligence of the fireman, acting within his employment, caused plaintiff to jump from the train. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Williams (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 350.

Whether a person in employ of defendant was an independent contractor, so as to relieve defendant from liability for his negligence, held a question for the jury. Wallace v. Southern Cotton-Oil Co., 91 T. 18, 40 S. W. 399.

Under the evidence the question of plaintiff's compliance with the terms of a power of sale of personalty held one for the jury. Heierman v. Robinson, 26 C. A. 491, 63 S. W. 657.

In an action for negligence in transmitting telegram, held, that the court erred in submitting to the jury the question whether the person who directed the route was agent for defendant. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Simms, 30 C. A. 32, 69 S. W. 464.

Evidence in action against railroad company for assault by employé held to warrant submitting to the jury the question as to scope of employé's duties. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 56.

In an action by a servant for personal injuries, evidence considered, and held to require submission to the jury of the issue as to whether the person in charge of the work was an independent contractor. Jernigan v. Houston Ice & Brewing Co., 33 C. A. 501, 77 S. W. 260.

Whether an act of a servant can be implied from his authority is a question of fact, dependent upon the nature of the service and the circumstances. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. of Texas v. Mayfield, 35 C. A. 82, 79 S. W. 365.

In an action for wrongful death of deceased while being ejected from a freight train, whether the brakeman was attempting to eject deceased at the time of the killing, and had authority to do so, held for the jury. Houston & T. Cent. R. Co. v. Bowen, 36 C. A. 165, 81 S. W. 80.

In an action against a telegraph company for failure to deliver a message, evidence considered, and held a question for the jury as to whether the one who received the message was the agent of defendant. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Craven (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 633.

Whether it was within the scope of the apparent authority of an agent to employ one for his principal, held for the jury. International Harvester Co. v. Campbell, 43 C. A. 421, 96 S. W. 93.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries to a boy forced by a brakeman to leave a freight car on which he was stealing a ride, the question of the authority of the brakeman to eject the boy held for the jury. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Buch (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 124.

In an action involving the validity of a deed, evidence held not sufficient to take to the jury the question of the notary's being an agent of plaintiff at the time of procuring the deed. Stoker v. Fugitt (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 743.

Refusal to submit, in an action on a note, the issue as to an agent's authority to receive property in payment held error. Maloney Mercantile Co. v. Dublin Quarry Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 904.

In a suit to partition lands, in which plaintiffs claim an undivided half interest through a conveyance by an attorney in fact, evidence held to make it a jury question whether plaintiffs had notice that the power of attorney was procured by such attorney by misrepresentation. Merrill v. Bradley, 52 C. A. 527, 121 S. W. 561.

In an action for injury to plaintiff's wife from fright and humiliation caused by defendant's agents going upon plaintiff's premises in the nighttime, where the evidence showed that defendant's agents were guilty of trespass, held, that whether defendant's agents were acting within the line of their duty should have been submitted to the jury. Alexander v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 57 C. A. 407, 122 S. W. 572.

In an action for injuries to a boy alleged to have been driven from a moving car by defendant's switchman, evidence held sufficient to take the questions whether it was the practice of the switchmen to eject trespassers from trains and whether the switchman was authorized to expel plaintiff were for the jury. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Buch (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 316.

In an action for the destruction of bees from a fire alleged to have been set on defendant's property by his sons, whether the sons were agents of defendant acting in the scope of their employment, and were negligent in setting the fire held, under the evidence, for the jury. Ward v. Powell (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 851.

In an action for injuries to a third person by the movement of certain railroad cars on a switch, whether the cars were being moved by defendant railroad company using the servants of a compress company, or whether they were being moved by such servants acting independent of the railroad held for the jury. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Gaskill, 103 T. 441, 129 S. W. 345.

In an action for injuries by being struck by defendant's train after plaintiff had escaped from another of defendant's trains upon which he had been accepted as a passenger by the brakeman and porter, while he was of unsound mind, whether such employés had authority to accept plaintiff as a passenger in his condition and to promise to care for him held for the jury. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Sears (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1019.

In an action against defendant railroad company for the conversion of a car load of onions which plaintiff claimed to have purchased from the owner's agent when it was found that they were not in condition to be forwarded to final destination by defendant's resale of the onions before their delivery to plaintiff, evidence held to raise the issue of whether the person selling the onions to plaintiff had authority to do so, and did in fact make the sale, and of whether such fact was known to defendant before it had them sold. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. W. J. Hughes & Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 719.

Whether a wrongful arrest was by one as officer or as agent of defendant is ordinarily a question for the jury. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. Reitzer (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 237.

A servant's contributory negligence was for the jury, where it could not be said, as matter of law, that he assumed the risk. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Elkins (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 931.

Evidence in an action against a railroad company for injuries sustained by a section hand held sufficient to justify the submission of the issue of obvious danger to the jury. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Hicks, 24 C. A. 400, 59 S. W. 1125.

The failure of a master to furnish lights in the place where a servant was injured held, under the evidence in an action therefor, not to show as a matter of law that the servant had not assumed the risk, but to raise such question for the jury. Hilje v. Hettich, 95 T. 321, 67 S. W. 90.

In action by servant for injuries, the evidence held not to raise the issue of assumed risk. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Lee, 32 C. A. 23, 74 S. W. 345.

In an action for injuries to a servant, the issue of assumed risk held properly withdrawn, where plaintiff did not know of the danger. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Brown, 33 C. A. 589, 77 S. W. 832.

In an action for injuries resulting from an insufficient number of men provided for the work, plaintiff held not to have assumed the risk thereof as a matter of law. Bonn v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 808.

Even though a servant knows that he may expect to find an obstacle in his path, it is a question for the jury as to whether he assumes the risk of danger resulting from contact with such obstacle. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Manns, 37 C. A. 356, 84 S. W. 254.

In action against railroad for injury to engineer in collision with forward section of his train, assumption of risk held properly submitted to jury. Quinn v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 395.

Whether the defective condition of a tool used by a servant is so obvious that he necessarily assumes the risk of using it is, in doubtful cases, a question for the jury. Drake v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co., 99 T. 240, 89 S. W. 407.

In a suit for injuries to a railroad fireman by the broken or disconnected condition of a chain attached to a tank spout, plaintiff held not to have assumed the risk as a matter of law. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Dickson, 40 C. A. 550, 90 S. W. 507.

In an action for injuries to a railroad fireman, plaintiff held not chargeable as a matter of law with knowledge that the apron between the engine and tender was in a dangerous condition. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Udalle (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 330.

A servant obeying orders to lift a piece of iron held not to assume the risk of injury as a matter of law in consequence of its being too heavy. Sherman v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 99 T. 571, 91 S. W. 561.

A servant injured while using a ladder instead of a stairway to reach the second floor of a mill held not to have assumed the risk as a matter of law. Pipkin v. Hayward Lumber Co., 43 C. A. 304, 94 S. W. 1068.

In an action for injuries to a servant held, that the question whether plaintiff was so lacking in ordinary care as to remove him from the provision of Gen. Laws 1905, p. 386, c. 163, in relation to the plea of assumption of risk, was for the jury. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Foth, 45 C. A. 275, 100 S. W. 171.

In an action for injuries to a servant held error to have refused to submit to the jury the question whether plaintiff remained in the employment in reliance on a promise by the master to repair defects. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Kern (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 971.

In an action for injuries to a railroad brakeman whose foot was caught in a guard rail in attempting to couple a car having a defective coupler, plaintiff held not to have assumed the risk as a matter of law in attempting to couple the car and in being caught by the guard rail. Hynson v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 625.

Whether a servant by choosing the more dangerous way of doing work assumed the risk held a question for the jury. Kansas City Southern Ry. Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 196.

In an action for personal injuries while engaged in feeding slabs to a lath machine by a piece of slab being thrown back and striking plaintiff, evidence held to make it a jury question whether plaintiff assumed the risk of the injury. Orange Lumber Co. v. Ellis, 105 T. 363, 150 S. W. 582.

Whether a car inspector, who, after cars had been pushed against others to make a coupling, went between those first there to inspect them, assumed the risk of the switching crew repeating this without notice to him, the first attempt having been unsuccessful, held a question for the jury. Casey v. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 856.

On evidence in a servant's action against a telephone company and a city for injuries from the city's electric light wire while engaged in repair work upon the telephone wires, held, that the question of his assumption of risk was for the jury. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Luckie (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1158.

In an action for personal injuries caused by a slab flying back from a lath machine, the question whether the plaintiff assumed the risk of injury from certain defects in the machine held, under the evidence, for the jury. Orange Lumber Co. v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1180.

Evidence in an action for injuries to an employé by the derailment of a logging train by striking a wooden stake, caused by a defect in the car so as to let down a part of it far enough to strike the stake, held not to raise the issue of assumed risk. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 288.

On the evidence in a servant's action for injuries, held that the question whether the master had promised to repair defective lights near plaintiff's place of work was for the jury. Brown Cracker & Candy Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 684.

In a personal injury action by a servant, when there is any doubt as to the sufficiency of the evidence of the servants' assumption of risk, it should be submitted to the jury. Taylor v. White (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 349.

26. Attorney and client.—In an action by client to recover moneys collected by attorney, held a question for the jury whether he had the claims under a written or verbal contract. Sanborn v. Plowman, 20 C. A. 484, 49 S. W. 639.

Where there is evidence tending to show, but not conclusively showing, the continued relation of attorney and client between parties, the question of such relationship is for the jury. Jinks v. Moppin (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 390.

In an action by an attorney against a husband and wife to recover attorney fees incurred by the wife in a divorce suit, evidence held to present a question for the jury as to whether the divorce suit was brought in good faith. McLean v. Randell (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1116.

In trespass to try title against an attorney, evidence held to justify submission of question as to whether he was employed as an attorney. Home Inv. Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 510.

27. Bills and notes.—The issue of the maker's insolvency must be submitted to the jury, unless the evidence is so conclusive upon that question as to exclude any reasonable ground for a difference of opinion on the subject. Smith v. T. M. Richardson Lumber Co., 92 T. 448, 49 S. W. 574.

Whether a note is placed in the hands of an attorney for collection, so as to entitle the holder to attorney's fees, as a question of fact for the jury. Rogers v. O'Barr & Dinwiddie (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 593.

Under the evidence, in an action on notes, held proper to direct a verdict for plaintiff. Harpold v. Moss (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 1131.

Evidence held insufficient to raise an issue whether an indorser signed in his individual or in his representative capacity. Abney v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Hillsboro (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 734.

28. Bona fide purchase.—A verdict that mortgagee had no notice of a claim of homestead to the mortgaged premises held properly directed. Scripture v. Scottish-American Mortg. Co., 20 C. A. 153, 49 S. W. 644.

In an action on notes by a purchaser, evidence held to authorize submission to the jury of the question of notice, bona fides, and date of purchase. Masterson v. Mansfield, 25 C. A. 262, 61 S. W. 505.

Facts under which held, that mortgagee of property afterwards claimed to be a homestead might rely on such statements, and under which their right to rely thereon was not a question for the jury. Parrish v. Hawes, 95 T. 185, 66 S. W. 209.

Evidence held to justify submission of an issue as to a party being an innocent purchaser of land. Stipe v. Shirley, 33 C. A. 223, 76 S. W. 307; Downs v. Stevenson, 56 C. A. 211, 119 S. W. 315.

In an action to foreclose a mortgage, the evidence held sufficient to take the issue as to whether a defendant other than the mortgagor had been an innocent purchaser of the land involved to the jury. Hamilton v. Green (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 280.

In an action on notes the question whether they were due when transferred to plaintiff is for the jury. McCormick v. Kampmann (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 492.

Refusal to charge that a senior unrecorded deed passed the superior title was not error. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Kimball (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 662.

Under the evidence the question whether a note was bought after maturity held one for the jury. McCormick v. Kampmann, 102 T. 215, 115 S. W. 24.

Whether a purchaser of land purchased without notice of a prior conveyance thereof to a third person held under the evidence to be for the jury. La Brie v. Cartwright, 55 C. A. 144, 118 S. W. 785.

That a party claiming land may have had notice of a claim against it accruing prior to the deed to the common source does not as a matter of law determine his attitude as an innocent purchaser so far as the adverse claimant is concerned. Downs v. Stevenson, 56 C. A. 211, 119 S. W. 315.

If the consideration of land is so inadequate as to shock the conscience, the court might so declare, but usually the adequacy thereof is a question for the jury on the issue of good faith. Id.

If there be any fact or circumstance tending to show that a purchase of land is not in good faith, it is a question for the jury. Id.

Whether a purchaser purchased for value and without notice of an express lien evidenced by his grantor's purchase-money note reserving an express lien held for the jury. Buckley v. Runge, 57 C. A. 322, 122 S. W. 596.

In foreclosure, where another claimed title under a purchase from the mortgagor, whether claimant was a bona fide purchaser held a jury question. Thos. Goggan & Bros. v. Synnott (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 1184.

Evidence held to require submission to the jury of the question whether a subsequent purchaser of certain land had notice of a prior unrecorded deed by his vendor to another. Miller v. Linguist (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 170.

Evidence held to present question for jury whether plaintiff was an innocent purchaser of notes sued on. Bolt v. State Savings Bank of Manchester, Iowa (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 707.

28½. Boundaries.—The location of a boundary held for the jury. Wiley v. Lindley (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 1001; Giddings v. Thompson, 92 S. W. 1043; Thacker v. Wilson, 122 S. W. 938; Davis v. Mills, 133 S. W. 1064; Paschall v. Brown, 147 S. W. 561; Rosenthal v. Sun Co., 156 S. W. 513.

Where the pleadings and evidence in trespass to try title develop no issue except as to the location of a disputed boundary, it is not error to submit such issue to the jury. Donley v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 77.

In a boundary suit, evidence held to present a question for the jury whether the intent of locator of an elder survey was to include all the unappropriated land between two systems of surveys, or to stop with the calls for distance from the east line of the elder survey. Taylor v. Lewis, 36 C. A. 305, 81 S. W. 534.

In a controversy as to the location of a street dedicated by an owner platting his land into lots, blocks, and streets, the action of the court in submitting the issue as to whether plaintiff procured a lot abutting on the street before the city had worked the street held erroneous. Haynes v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 434.

An instruction, in an action to determine a boundary line, leaving to the jury to determine what parts of surveyor's report undertook to determine the questions of fact or to include evidence, was properly refused. McDonald v. McCrabb, 47 C. A. 259, 105 S. W. 238.

In an action to recover land, where a survey called for certain corners of other tracts as a common point, which corners did not coincide, the issue as to which call should govern held for the jury. Titterington v. Kirby, 47 C. A. 595, 106 S. W. 899.

Where the laying out and platting of lands into subdivisions is one piece of work, but there is uncertainty as to the location, the question is for the jury. Rosenthal v. Sun Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 513.

29. Breach of marriage promise.—Construction of writings, see post.

In an action for breach of marriage promise, issue of defendant's failure to perform within a reasonable time held properly submitted to the jury. Hill v. Houser, 51 C. A. 359, 115 S. W. 112.

Submission of issue as to an implied contract to marry held proper, in an action for breach of marriage promise. Id.

Under the evidence held a jury question whether the engagement was bona fide or for immoral purposes. Huggins v. Carey (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 390.

30. Brokers' commissions.—Whether a broker had secured a purchaser for property, so as to entitle him to a commission, held a question for the jury. Smye v. Groesbeck (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 972.

Evidence in an action by a broker for commission earned in procuring a purchaser of land held to require the submission to the jury of the issue of the right of the broker to recover, though the sale was not completed. Clark v. Wilson, 41 C. A. 450, 91 S. W. 627.

In an action by a real estate broker for his commission for securing a purchaser, evidence examined and held to require the submission to the jury of the question whether the broker did not act merely as a subagent of other brokers. J. B. Watkins Land Mortgage Co. v. Thetford, 43 C. A. 536, 96 S. W. 72.

In an action to recover a real estate broker's commission, a verdict held properly directed for defendants. Evants v. Fuqua, 50 C. A. 201, 111 S. W. 675.

In a suit for commissions on a sale of real estate, it was held to be for the jury whether defendant agreed to give plaintiff until a certain time to perfect a sale, and, whether, if such contract had been observed, it would have been consummated, and whether defendant withdrew plaintiff's authority to defeat his right to a commission. Hancock v. Stacy (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 177.

In an action by a land broker for commissions, evidence held to warrant submitting to the jury the question whether plaintiff was a joint purchaser. Smith v. Fears (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 433.

In an action for broker's commissions for making an exchange of land, whether there ever was a meeting of minds with reference to the exchange, and whether defendant B. was justified in refusing to complete it, and also as to the amount agreed to be paid plaintiff as commissions, held for the jury. Stockton v. Crow (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 952.

In an action by a real estate broker to recover commissions which he claimed were due him in furthering a sale, evidence held insufficient to go to the jury. Hall v. Ware (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1197.

Evidence held not to justify peremptory instruction for a broker suing for commissions, where there was evidence that he was to have no commissions unless a sale was consummated, and it did not undisputably appear that the failure to consummate the sale was due to the owner's fault. Heath v. Huffhines (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 176.

Where, in a broker's action for commission, the evidence raises a clear issue of fact as to whether an actual sale has been consummated, such issue is for the jury. Parks v. Sullivan (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 704.

31. Cancellation, rescission, and abandonment of contracts.—Where it could not be determined as a matter of law from an inspection of the record in a suit to recover installments on a contract that plaintiff had elected to rescind the contract, such question was properly submitted to the jury, in a subsequent action to recover further installments. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Gammel-Statesman Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 191.

Evidence in an action to cancel a loan contract and trust deed considered, and held sufficient to take the case to the jury. Guarantee Sav., Loan & Investment Co. v. Mitchell, 44 C. A. 165, 99 S. W. 156.

Whether there had been an informal cancellation of a school land lease to defendant, when plaintiff applied to purchase the land, held a jury question under the evidence in trespass to try title. Trimble v. Burroughs, 52 C. A. 266, 113 S. W. 551.

Whether buyers discovered an alleged variance between the goods delivered and the contract of sale and repudiated the transaction in a reasonable time, under the circumstances, held a question for the jury. Plotner & Stoddard v. Markham Warehouse & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 443.

In an action for specific performance of a contract for the sale of land, evidence held to present questions for the jury whether the withdrawal of a deed by the grantor from a depositary was authorized, or grantee consented to the return of the deed, or had deferred payment beyond a reasonable time for the examination or correction of the title. Bott v. Wright (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 960.

The cancellation of a contract by mutual agreement does not as a matter of law abrogate the right of either party to recover damages resulting from breaches before the cancellation; the intent being a question of fact. Garrett v. Danner (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 678.

In an attorney's action for services rendered, evidence held to make it a jury question whether the parties did not mutually rescind the contract of employment. Nunn v. Veale (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 604.

In an attorney's action for services, held, on the evidence, that whether the parties did not mutually rescind the contract of employment was a jury question. Id.

32. Carriage of goods and live stock.—Refusal of the court, in an action against a railroad company for damages to cattle received during carriage, to instruct the jury to find a verdict for defendant, held proper. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Barnett, 27 C. A. 498, 66 S. W. 474.

Where, in an action against a carrier for injuries to cattle en route, there was evidence that the inherent condition of the cattle produced the injury which resulted in their death, there was no error in presenting that phase of the defense to the jury. Baker v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 57 C. A. 25, 121 S. W. 907.

As the law does not require absolutely that the carrier unload, rest, feed, and water cattle en route on an intrastate shipment the federal statute imposing such requirements not applying to intrastate shipments, it is for the jury to determine whether the carrier should have taken such precautions in such shipments, where liability is grounded on the carrier's failure to do so. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 737, judgment reversed (Sup.) 134 S. W. 328.

Evidence of injury from rough handling of a car of horses is insufficient to go to the jury, plaintiff merely testifying that in certain yards they switched the car for several hours, jolting and jarring them around, that it does not do horses any good to switch with the car they are in; and that it usually does them harm; and also that it hurts horses more to be in a standing car than in a moving car. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1160.

Evidence in an action against a carrier is insufficient to go to the jury on the question of unreasonable or negligent delay in transportation of a car of horses, the delay of three hours at a certain station being such as occurs there in all such shipments, while the train goes out on a branch, the train being on schedule time, and it not being the duty of the carrier to delay a passenger train to pick up and transport the car. Id.

Whether the fact that a carrier does not run freight trains on Sunday between certain points in the route of transportation excuses delay in a shipment of live stock is a question for the jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Howell (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 899.

Evidence held to present a question for the jury as to negligence in the transportation of cattle. Scott v. Texas Cent. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 849.

Where a contract for shipment of cattle was silent as to whether the transportation should be by a through freight train, whether under the circumstances the transportation should have been by such a train is a question for consideration of the jury as entering into a determination of the ultimate question of negligent delay in transportation. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 597.

In the absence of a statute requiring a carrier to water stock at stated intervals or places, the question whether its failure to do so is negligence held for the jury. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Broad-Davis Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 514.

What constitutes due diligence in notifying consignee of freight of its arrival, so as to change carrier's liability to that of a warehouseman, is a question for the jury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Gilmore (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1102.

Evidence held to make a question for the jury whether railroad company's agent notified consignee of arrival of freight. Id.

In an action by shippers of live stock, evidence on the issue of the undue delay of the defendant carrier held sufficient to go to the jury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Blocker (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 955.

In an action for damages to a shipment of cattle by carrying them beyond a certain point after notice of the owner's direction to hold them, where the carrier knew that plaintiff was the owner, and that his agent accompanying the cattle did not claim to be acting for the consignee, and showed that it acted at the request of the agent, an affirmative charge for defendant was properly refused. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Caruthers (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 238.

In an action by the owner of cattle for wrongfully taking and shipping them beyond a certain point without his consent, held, on the evidence, that a verdict was properly directed for defendant stockyard company. Id.

33. —— Limitation of liability.—Question for the jury as to the reasonableness of a contract with reference to the agent to whom notice of loss was to be given. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Childers, 21 S. W. 76, 1 C. A. 302; Railway Co. v. Garrett, 24 S. W. 354, 5 C. A. 540.

Whether stipulations in a bill of lading are reasonable or not is a question for the jury. Railway Co. v. Barber (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 500.

In an action by a passenger for loss of baggage, the questions of defendant's negligence and the reasonableness of the stipulation limiting its liability are for the jury, and its right to limit its liability is for the court. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Seale, 28 C. A. 364, 67 S. W. 437.

Evidence in an action for injury to cattle through delay in transportation held insufficient to raise an issue as to the contract, requiring notice of claim of injury to the cattle to be given before their removal from the place of destination, not having been entered into fairly, or not having had a consideration of a reduced freight rate. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 597.

34. —— Connecting carriers.—In an action against a delivering carrier for damages to fruit received from a connecting carrier, evidence held to require the submission to the jury, whether any of the damage occurred on the line of the initial carrier. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Mazzie, 29 C. A. 295, 68 S. W. 56.

In an action for delay in the delivery of live stock, whether a connecting carrier could have delivered the same at the time agreed on held a question for the jury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hall, 31 C. A. 464, 72 S. W. 1052.

In an action by the consignor for the price of fruit, in which the consignee cross-complained against it and the carriers, it appeared that the fruit was delivered to the initial carrier in good condition, and was damaged when delivered to the consignee, and there was evidence of some delay and of negligent handling on the line of the final carrier, the vents and plugs in the car having been closed on the arrival of one car during hot weather and opened on the arrival of another during very cold weather. Held, that the question of the final carrier's negligence was for the jury, so that a peremptory instruction for it was properly refused. Kemendo v. Fruit Dispatch Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 73.

As a shipper could rely upon the initial carrier's custom to permit through shipments to go to destination over another carrier's line in its own cars, as well as upon the statements of such initial carrier's agent that the shipment would go through without unloading, it cannot be said as a matter of law that its refusal to permit the shipment to go through in its cars, whereby cattle were injured by unloading, was not a breach of its duty to carry safely and promptly. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 737, judgment reversed (Sup.) 134 S. W. 328.

A peremptory instruction in favor of a transit company made a party to an action for damages to peaches delivered to a carrier for shipment held improper. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Woldert Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1194.

A connecting carrier made a party to an action against a carrier for damages to a fruit shipment held properly relieved of liability. Id.

In an action against the initial and connecting carriers for injuries to a shipment of live stock, evidence held to justify submission to the jury of the issue of the negligence of the connecting carrier. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Demere & Coggin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 623.

Evidence, in an action against the final carrier of live stock for damages for delay, held to require a peremptory instruction for defendant. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Dunford (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1129.

35. Carriage of passengers—Who are passengers.—In an action for the death of a person thrown off a railroad train by a porter, evidence held sufficient to make a question for the jury as to whether deceased was a passenger or a trespasser. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Brown (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 519.

36. —— Performance of contract of carriage.—There being evidence that a train was stopped not more than 300 feet beyond a station, and a passenger there assisted to alight, that the porter accompanied her back, and carried her suit case, which, instead of checking, she had taken into her car with her, to a point less than 200 feet from the waiting room, and the damages claimed being for injury to her from her carriyng back her infant and the suit case, the question of the carrier's negligence is for the jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 722.

37. —— Ejection.—Evidence held to present a question for the jury as to whether a carrier failed to allow a passenger an opportunity to procure a ticket, giving him a right to enter its train without a ticket. Mills v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 94 T. 242, 59 S. W. 874, 55 L. R. A. 497.

Whether a place at which a passenger was ejected was a proper place held for the jury. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Green (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 341.

In an action against a carrier, evidence held sufficient to take to the jury the question whether defendant ejected plaintiff's wife. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 873.

38. Champerty.—Whether the promise of attorneys to pay the expenses incident to the collection of their client's claim was made to induce their employment by him held, under the evidence, to be for the jury. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Carlock & Gillespie, 33 C. A. 202, 75 S. W. 931.

39. Community property.—In a suit by a wife for divorce, evidence held to require submission to the jury of the question whether certain of defendant's property in question was purchased in whole or in part with his separate funds, and, if in part, what amount of the purchase money was his separate property. Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 937.

In an action for divorce, whether certain property of the husband was community property, or purchased with his separate funds, held for the jury. Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 937, 1199.

Whether community debts, for which a husband was sought to be held liable, were contracted on his authority, held for the jury. Jones v. O. W. Lyman Millinery Co. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 864.

Under the evidence, held improper to instruct that all increase of the wife's separate live stock became community property. Jordan v. Marcantell (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 357.

40. Consideration and want or failure thereof.—Evidence held sufficient to warrant the submission to the jury of whether a purchaser of land assumed as a part of the consideration the payment of a note owing by the vendor. Mitchell v. National Railway Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 624.

Where there was evidence of want of consideration for a written contract limiting a carrier's liability for damages to stock, held not error to submit the question of failure of consideration to the jury. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Botts (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 853.

The question whether there is any valid consideration to support a settlement of a life policy for less than the face thereof held to be for the jury. Franklin Ins. Co. v. Villeneuve, 25 C. A. 356, 60 S. W. 1014.

Where defendant executed a chattel mortgage securing an indebtedness to plaintiff and stating that it was to be an additional security for the payment of certain notes of a third person, which defendant assumed the payment of, the evidence considered, and held, that whether there was any consideration for the promise to pay such debt was for the jury. Bluff Springs Mercantile Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 710.

In an action for the price of machinery, where defendant pleaded breach of warranty, held error, under the evidence, to refuse to submit the issue of partial failure of consideration. Heisig Rice Co. v. Fairbanks, Morse & Co., 45 C. A. 383, 100 S. W. 959.

Evidence held sufficient to go to the jury on the question of amount of partial failure of consideration. Gutta Percha & Rubber Mfg. Co. v. City of Cleburne, 102 T. 36, 112 S. W. 1047.

The pleadings and evidence raising the issue that the consideration of the note sued on had to a certain extent failed, it was error to instruct a verdict for its full amount. Heyer v. F. Y. Doke & Son (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1026.

It would have been preposterous to have submitted an issue to the jury whether $138 was a fair and reasonable price for $20,000 worth of property sold at an execution sale, even though there were claims against it for $1,700 or $1,800. Moore v. Miller (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 573.

41. Conspiracy.—Whether a contract employing a broker was canceled pursuant to a conspiracy held for the jury. Longworth v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 257.

42. Construction and effect of writings.—An error in matter of description causing a latent ambiguity may be corrected by parol proof. Early v. Sterrett, 18 T. 113; Steinbeck v. Stone, 53 T. 382; Rogers v. McLaren, 53 T. 423; Knowles v. Torbitt, 53 T. 557. And the question should be submitted to the jury with appropriate instructions as a mixed question of law and fact. Brown v. Chambers, 63 T. 131. See Art. 1110.

Considering the whole description held that whether the sheriff's return and writ of venditioni exponas described the land sued for was a question for the jury. Freman v. Brundage, 57 T. 253.

When the effect of a writing does not depend entirely upon the construction and meaning of its terms, but upon extrinsic facts and circumstances, the court should submit to the jury the instrument, together with the attending facts and circumstances in evidence, with such instruction upon the legal effect of the instrument as will meet the various phases presented by the extrinsic evidence. This constitutes an exception to the rule which requires the court to pass upon the legal effect of written instruments. Taylor v. McNut, 58 T. 71.

The rule which requires the court to submit for the consideration of the jury a written instrument, with all the attendant facts connected with its execution, when its effect does not depend entirely on the meaning of its terms, but on extrinsic facts and circumstances, applies to wills. Moss v. Helsley, 60 T. 426.

The true construction and intent of a decree of court should be determined by the court. Harvey v. Cummings, 68 T. 599, 5 S. W. 513.

While the contract provided a mode for ascertaining the number of cattle for which pasture fees should be paid, although resort to that mode was prevented by the voluntary act of the owner of the cattle, still the determination of the number was for the jury upon all the testimony. It was error in the court to charge that the largest number proven to have been put in should be found. McAuley v. Harris, 71 T. 632, 9 S. W. 679.

Receipts for taxes on land, which identify the land by the proper abstract number and the name of the grantee, the terminal letter of the grantee's name being omitted, are admissible in evidence, leaving the question of the payment of taxes to the jury. Seemuller v. Thornton, 77 T. 156, 13 S. W. 846.

Written obligations when not ambiguous in their terms must be construed by the court and not by the jury. Railway Co. v. Malone (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1077; Howell v. Hanrick (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 823.

The court should construe the written evidence of title to land. Beaumont P. Co. v. Cleveland (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 93.

Question whether an instrument was a bill of sale or a mortgage held one for the jury. Anglin v. Barlow (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 827.

In action on policy providing that insured should keep a set of books, held proper to refuse to direct verdict for defendant on the ground that there was not a sufficient compliance with such provision. German Ins. Co. v. Pearlstone, 18 C. A. 706, 45 S. W. 832.

Issue of plaintiff's right to possession by reason of defendant's written renouncement thereof held improperly submitted, where only the validity of the renouncement is in dispute. Graham v. Billings (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 645.

In an action to recover the penalty for failure to feed and water cattle, the written statement as to the condition of the cattle, signed by the person who had charge of them on behalf of the owner, not being contractual in its nature, was not to be construed by the court. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Peters, 31 C. A. 6, 71 S. W. 70.

The construction of correspondence claimed to contain a promise of marriage is not for the court; some of the letters being lost, and oral testimony thereof being given. Barber v. Geer, 31 C. A. 176, 71 S. W. 792.

In action to correct deed and for possession, etc., submission to jury of issue as to conditional sale held error. Bradford v. Malone, 33 C. A. 349, 77 S. W. 22.

Where the issue is whether a certain deed was intended to be a deed absolute or to operate as a mortgage, it is the duty of the court to submit the instrument, with attending circumstances, to the jury, with such instructions on the effect of the instrument as will meet the phases of the case. Id.

In an action for personal injuries, construction of a written release introduced by defendant held for the court. Quebe v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 442.

Conceding that the term "right of way" in a deed was not employed in its statutory sense, its meaning held a question for the jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Anderson, 36 C. A. 121, 81 S. W. 781.

A special charge requested which authorized the jury to construe the legal effect of a letter was properly refused. Ellis v. Littlefield, 41 C. A. 318, 93 S. W. 171.

Where there is no ambiguity in an instrument and the parties' intentions may be ascertained from its terms without explanation, it is the duty of the court to construe it and instruct the jury as to the rights of the parties. Reagan v. Bruff, 49 C. A. 226, 108 S. W. 185.

In view of a certain relinquishment and the evidence as to the understanding of the parties, a verdict for defendant held properly directed, notwithstanding the relinquishment described a different tract of land than that in controversy. Motl v. Stephens, 49 C. A. 8, 108 S. W. 1018.

Whether a letter written by plaintiff was a violation of plaintiff's obligation to the laws of a society held a question for the court. St. Louis & S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thompson, 102 T. 89, 113 S. W. 144, 19 Ann. Cas. 1250.

Where an administrator sold certain assets "in his hands" at the time of the sale, whether the intestate's interest in a trust fund was in his hands so as to pass by the transfer was a question of fact for the jury, in an accounting by the trustee of the fund. Routledge v. Elmendorf, 54 C. A. 174, 116 S. W. 156.

Construction of a contract of employment held for the jury. Texas Life Ins. Co. v. Roberts, 55 C. A. 217, 119 S. W. 926.

It is for the court to determine the legal effect of written instruments introduced in evidence. Empire Timber & Lumber Co. v. Mooney (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 907.

Under Art. 5714, providing that no stipulation in a contract requiring the giving of notice of any claim for damages as a condition to the right to sue thereon shall be valid, unless it is reasonable, and any stipulation fixing the time within which the notice shall be given at less than 90 days, shall be void, a stipulation in a contract requiring notice of a claim for damages within less than 90 days, as a condition to the right to sue therefor, is void as a matter of law, and whether a stipulation is unreasonable, when the time provided for is not less than 90 days, is a question of fact to be determined by the evidence in the particular case. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 622.

The construction of a written contract containing no ambiguity is for the court. El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Eichel & Weikel (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 922.

A written lease held to be an unambiguous contract, to be construed by the court, in an action for conversion of timber. Beard v. A. A. Gooch & Son (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1022.

In an action on an insurance policy, held, under the evidence a question for the jury which of two inventories of stock was the "last preceding inventory" required by the iron-safe clause of the policy. Queen City Ins. Co. v. Long (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 82.

An instruction containing a correct statement as to the meaning of a contract is not erroneous. Loomis v. Broaddus & Leavell (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 743.

Construction of a deed to determine whether it contained a sufficient description held a question for the court. Mitchell v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 501.

A requested charge as to the legal effect of a lease held properly refused in an action for destroying a warehouse by fire. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. McCall (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 188.

It is the duty of the court to tell the jury the legal effect of an unambiguous written instrument. Marsh v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1160.

In trespass to try title, evidence as to whether a conveyance of a certain 50 acres was made in satisfaction of the grantee's claim in land purchased by him and another out of the tract in controversy held for the jury. Gosch v. Vrana (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 253.

The court in proceedings to probate a will, contested on the ground of fraud and undue influence, may construe the will, and charge that the jury has nothing to do with the disposition of the property under the will, except so far as the same may throw light on the question whether undue influence was used on him. McDonald's Estate v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 593.

Evidence held to require submission to the jury of question whether a clause in an agreement to procure an extension of an option to purchase land obligated defendants to obtain proper agreements or releases from the holders of superior liens. McPherson v. C. W. Hahl & Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 323.

Where, in an action against a carrier for wrongful ejection, plaintiff's ticket as well as the rules of the railroad company affecting it were in evidence, the legal effect of such written testimony and whether plaintiff was entitled to ride on a given train was for the court. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1116.

A contract providing for a sale of mine props and for the payment of freight thereon held not subject to construction as a matter of law as an agreement that the buyer should charge the seller with a fixed amount for freight, regardless of what amount was paid. Texas Lumber Mfg. Co. v. Prince (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 231.

43. Contracts—Legality.—In an action on a contract, a refusal to submit to the jury whether it was void, as against public policy, held error. Burck v. Abbott, 22 C. A. 216, 54 S. W. 314.

Whether the parties to a purchase and sale of cotton for future delivery intended to make an actual delivery, or whether the transaction was a mere speculation in futures, held for the jury. Appling v. Watts (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 935.

In an action by a water company for water rents, whether the contract with the consumer was unreasonable held to be a question for the jury. Colorado Canal Co. v. McFarland & Southwell, 50 C. A. 92, 109 S. W. 435.

44. —— Making and terms of contract.—Evidence held sufficient to warrant a submission to the jury whether an order employing an architect was ever made. Gordon v. Denton County (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 737.

Where a patron of a school testifies in an action to recover tuition that there was to be no charge for the tuition of a certain child, the question whether he is chargeable therefor is for the jury. Roach v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 803.

Question whether owner of real estate, in order to induce broker to accept stipulated sum for commissions, agreed to pay him more if deal proved satisfactory, held properly submitted to jury. Blair v. Slosson, 27 C. A. 403, 66 S. W. 112.

Question whether there was a contract and whether it was broken by plaintiff, in an action by a prospective vendee to recover money deposited with persons negotiating the transaction, to bind the sale, held for the jury. Alexander & Kneeland v. Von Koehring (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 629.

Evidence held insufficient to warrant submitting issue of sale of land to jury. New York & Texas Land Co. v. Dooley, 33 C. A. 636, 77 S. W. 1030.

In an action by landlord against purchaser of crops burdened with landlord's lien, evidence held to raise the issue whether rental contract permitted tenant to sell the crop. Planters' Compress Co. v. Howard, 35 C. A. 300, 80 S. W. 119.

In an action to cancel a deed given defendant by plaintiff in payment for defendant's supposed interest in property which the parties had agreed to purchase jointly, evidence held to require submission to the jury of the question whether the parties in fact purchased jointly. Paddock v. Bray, 40 C. A. 226, 88 S. W. 419.

In an action for breach of an oral pasturage contract, whether defendant's statement that he would not overstock the pasture was a part of the contract held for the jury. J. B. Wallis & Co. v. Wallace (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 43.

The question of the terms of a contract between a landlord and a tenant, on the tenant holding over after the expiration of his lease, held, where the evidence is conflicting, for the jury. Puckett v. Scott, 45 C. A. 392, 100 S. W. 969.

In an action to recover on a lease of lands, held, under the evidence, a question for the jury whether the parties' minds met on the terms of the lease. T. A. Robertson & Co. v. Russell, 51 C. A. 257, 111 S. W. 205.

The existence of a parol contract, its extent and limitations are questions of fact. Amber Petroleum Co. v. Breech (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 668.

Where, in an action on a contract of employment, the terms of the contract were in issue, the submission to the jury to find the terms of the contract was proper. Harrison v. Bergmann (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 359.

In an action for breach of a contract made by correspondence, held that the question whether a certain letter was a part of the contract should have been submitted to the jury. Nalle v. McKnight (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 902.

In an action to recover a deposit made pursuant to a bond purchase, whether the minds of the parties met as to the term the bonds would run held for the jury. City of San Antonio v. E. H. Rollins & Sons (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1166, 1199.

In an action to recover the value of plaintiff's equity in property which defendant had contracted to convey to plaintiff, evidence held sufficient to take the case to the jury. Knowles v. Snyder (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1152.

In an action by physicians to recover for their services, evidence held to present a question for the jury as to the existence of a contract on the part of defendant to pay for the services. Cheek v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 252.

Whether defendant B. contracted to pay for certain feed furnished by plaintiff to C. held for the jury. Broussard v. Blanchette (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 438.

In an action against defendant and other railroad companies for damages to horses en route, whether there was an oral or implied contract by defendant to carry the horses held a question for the jury. Southern Pac. R. Co. v. W. T. Meadors & Co., 104 T. 469, 140 S. W. 427.

In an action for compensation for preparing an article for a railroad company for advertising purposes, held, under the evidence, the issue of employment was for the jury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Affleck (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 288.

Where plaintiff's complaint did not allege whether the contract sued on was oral or in writing, and a written contract pleaded by defendant was not proved nor introduced in evidence, the court erred in directing a verdict for defendant on the ground that, the contract having been reduced to writing, plaintiff was limited to it. Granger v. Kishi (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1161.

In an action to compel the execution of a deed to land which plaintiff claimed to have purchased orally and paid for, evidence as to the purchase and payment held insufficient to make a question for the jury; and hence a verdict for defendant was properly directed. Boiders v. Dooley (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 614.

45. —— Construction and effect.—Whether a commissioner's court was authorized to reject specifications for a building after acceptance, for material alterations made without their knowledge, held for the jury. Clayton v. Galveston County, 20 C. A. 591, 50 S. W. 737.

75. —— Mitigation of damages and reduction of loss.—The question of what care and means are to be used to supply water to a drove of cattle by the owner, so as to reduce injury, on failure of a water company to do so as per contract, is for the jury. Waco Artesian Water Co. v. Cauble, 19 C. A. 417, 47 S. W. 538.

In an action for injuries to a servant, certain evidence held not to present the issue of negligence on plaintiff's part in caring for his injuries. Cane Belt R. Co. v. Crosson, 39 C. A. 369, 87 S. W. 867.

Whether plaintiff, in an action for breach of an employment contract, exercised reasonable efforts to obtain other employment after his discharge, was for the jury. San Antonio Light Pub. Co. v. Moore, 46 C. A. 259, 101 S. W. 867.

Plaintiff, who called up a doctor over the line of defendant telephone company, and talked with defendant's operator who claimed to be the doctor, held not guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law in not sooner thereafter trying to get medical aid. Texas Central Telephone Co. v. Owens (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 926.

76. Dedication.—On an issue, in a proceeding to open a road, as to dedication of a public easement, the question is for the jury, where the evidence is only circumstantial. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Baudat, 18 C. A. 595, 45 S. W. 939.

Evidence held sufficient to go to the jury on the defenses of limitations and implied dedication or ratification of a dedication. City of Ft. Worth v. Cetti, 38 C. A. 117, 85 S. W. 826.

The legal effect of a deed dedicating to the public streets and alleys on land platted as a townsite and of a deed granting a railroad a right of way over a street held a question of law for the court. Oklahoma City & T. R. Co. v. Dunham, 39 C. A. 575, 88 S. W. 849.

Evidence held not to authorize the submission of the issue to the jury of dedication of land for a street. Cockrell v. City of Dallas (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 977.

It cannot be said as a matter of law that the dedication of a site for county buildings erected at different times consisted of separate dedications. City of Victoria v. Victoria County (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 67.

The extent of grounds dedicated by a town to a county as a site for county buildings held to be a question of fact. Id.

In an action to enjoin a railway company from constructing a fence on the line of plaintiff's lot, whether a street existed between the company's right of way and the lot by dedication held, under the evidence, a jury question. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Ayers (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1068.

77. Diligence of seller in resale of goods.—Whether a seller exercises reasonable diligence in reselling goods after breach of contract by buyer held for the jury. Carver, Frierson & Co. v. Graves, 47 C. A. 481, 106 S. W. 903.

77½. Divorce.—It is a question for the jury whether defendant's treatment of plaintiff is such as to render their living together insupportable. Dawson v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 379.

In an action against a husband for attorneys' fees for services for wife in a divorce suit, held a question for the jury whether the attorneys acted in good faith in bringing the divorce suit. McLean v. Randell (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1116.

78. Duress, undue influence and mental capacity.—In a will contest, the questions of testamentary capacity and of undue influence or fraud exerted over testator in procuring a will are questions of fact, to be determined by the jury from all the facts and circumstances of the case. Gallagher v. Neilon (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 564.

Evidence as to the testamentary capacity held for the jury. Warren v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1182.

In a will contest, undue influence is for the jury. Id.

Certain circumstances held to be for the jury in determining whether a will was valid. Id.

What constitutes duress is a question for the court. The Oriental v. Barclay, 16 C. A. 193, 41 S. W. 117.

In an action to foreclose a note and mortgage, when the defense is that maker was, by reason of age and mental infirmity, induced to execute the instrument sued on by threats to prosecute his sons for an alleged felony, it is error not to submit the question of duress to the jury. Perkins v. Adams, 17 C. A. 331, 43 S. W. 529.

In a will contest, evidence held insufficient to authorize the submission of the issue of undue influence to the jury. Morrison v. Thoman, 99 T. 248, 89 S. W. 409.

What constitutes duress, invalidating a contract, is a question of law for the court; and whether facts sufficient to constitute it exist is for the jury. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. v. Graham & Price (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 632.

79. Easement.—When the evidence is circumstantial, the existence of an easement is for the jury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Baudat, 18 C. A. 595, 45 S. W. 939.

Question whether public acquired easement in road held to be for jury. Hall v. City of Austin. 20 C. A. 59, 48 S. W. 53.

80. Estoppel.—The question whether prejudice resulted to a bank from plaintiff's silence, so as to estop plaintiff from denying that his cashier had authority to appropriate a deposit, held for the jury. Fifth Nat. Bank v. Iron City Nat. Bank, 92 T. 436, 49 S. W. 368.

The refusal to submit the question of estoppel of plaintiff to claim a homestead right held proper under the evidence. Salmons v. Thomas, 25 C. A. 422, 62 S. W. 102.

Evidence as to estoppel examined, and held not so conclusive as to warrant a directed verdict. Walker v. Erwin, 47 C. A. 637, 106 S. W. 164.

Whether a holder of a mutual benefit certificate agreeing with his wife that if she would pay the assessments the money due on the certificate should belong to her, could show that she made default in the performance of the agreement, held for the jury. Eatman v. Eatman (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1208.

Whether a mortgagee of certain crops was estopped to deny the right of the mortgagor or his agent to sell the crops in the face of the mortgage held for the jury. Martin Co. v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 280.

Evidence held to present question for jury whether mortgagee, a fire insurance company, agreed to attend to the insurance on the premises, and did attend to it for a time, so as to justify the mortgagor in believing that it would continue to do so. Commonwealth Fire Ins. Co. v. Obenchain (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 611.

81. Execution and delivery of written instruments.—No more weight could be given to a deed, as matter of law, which was admissible and admitted as an ancient instrument, than ought to be to one proved by a subscribing witness. So far as admissibility is concerned, this must be determined by the court; but the ultimate weight to be given to a deed, admissible because proved in the one way or the other, so far as the question of genuineness goes, when there is a conflict of evidence as to this must be determined by the jury. Stooksbury v. Swan, 85 T. 563, 22 S. W. 963.

Question for the jury whether the proper seal was used. Stooksberry v. Swan (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 694.

Where the only evidence of a deed is a transcript of the record, party effaced by fire, the question of the delivery of the deed is for the jury. Baumann v. Chambers, 17 C. A. 242, 42 S. W. 564.

Question of the execution of a deed held for the jury, under the evidence. Baylor v. Tillebach, 20 C. A. 490, 49 S. W. 720.

Evidence held to authorize the submission to the jury whether a conveyance was made. Texas Tram & Lumber Co. v. Gwin (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 110.

Where plaintiff claimed land under a certificate of purchase on a certain date, and defendant, an adverse claimant, contended that the date was a forgery, it was error to direct a verdict for defendant. Bowerman v. Pope, 25 C. A. 79, 61 S. W. 330.

In trespass to try title, in which plaintiffs claimed by descent from their ancestor, who was claimed to be a patentee of the land, evidence considered, and held sufficient to justify submission to the jury of the issue as to whether the patent was issued to another person of the same name as plaintiffs' ancestor. Ellis v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1034.

In trespass to try title, evidence held to raise the issue as to whether the original owner had conveyed the premises to a third person under whom a party claimed. Carlisle v. Gibbs, 44 C. A. 189, 98 S. W. 192.

In an action to try title to land, evidence examined, and held sufficient to warrant submitting to the jury the question of the genuineness of a deed. West v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas, 46 C. A. 102, 102 S. W. 927.

In an action of trespass to try title, evidence held sufficient to take the question of the execution of a certain deed to the jury. Taliaferro v. Rice, 47 C. A. 3, 103 S. W. 464.

In trespass to try title, whether a deed was executed to plaintiff's husband held for the jury. Gray v. Fussell, 48 C. A. 261, 106 S. W. 454.

In an action on a note, evidence held to require submission of the issue of execution to the jury. Memphis Coffin Co. v. Patton (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 697.

Whether land involved in trespass to try title was deeded to one under whom defendants claim held, under the evidence, a jury question. McMahon v. McDonald, 51 C. A. 613, 113 S. W. 322.

Evidence, in trespass to try title, held to warrant the court in submitting to the jury the question whether one to whom the owner of the property had conveyed it had subsequently reconveyed the property. McCollum v. Buckner's Orphans' Home, 54 C. A. 348, 117 S. W. 886.

The issue of the execution of a lost deed held, on the evidence, for the jury. Pratt v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 111.

Evidence held insufficient to require submission to the jury of the question of forgery of an assignment of an original headright certificate. Crosby v. Ardoin (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 709.

What constitutes a delivery essential to pass title is one of law, but whether there has been in fact a delivery is for the jury. Henry v. Phillips (Sup.) 151 S. W. 533, reversing judgment (Civ. App.) Phillips v. Henry, 135 S. W. 382.

In an action against guarantors, where one of them defaulted, but testified on the trial that he signed the contract of guaranty, the court did not err in directing the jury to find that he signed the contract. Danner v. Walker-Smith Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 295.

82. Exemption.—Where two properties have been occupied at different times by the owner, it is a question for the jury which was occupied as his homestead. Hawes v. Parrish, 16 C. A. 497, 41 S. W. 132.

It was error to direct verdict for plaintiff on the ground that two horses seized by defendant were exempt, where there were four horses belonging to his family, and it was doubtful whether the others belonged to his children. Pardue v. Recer (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 112.

Whether a contract to improve homestead was a subterfuge to escape the law prohibiting mortgaging the homestead is for the jury. First Nat. Bank v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 845.

Where plaintiff claims under foreclosure of a trust deed, and there is evidence that the land was a homestead, the question of homestead must be submitted to the jury. Silverman v. Landrum, 19 C. A. 402, 47 S. W. 404.

Where the character of land as a homestead, in an injunction suit to prevent its sale under an execution, is dependent on whether another adjacent tract belonging to the owner was included in a village when he acquired the latter tract, and such land was not shown on the village plat, held error to direct a verdict for defendant. Saunders v. Lanham (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 70.

Where there was evidence that the prior designation of a homestead was colorable only, and the evidence as to the use of property claimed to be homestead was meager, it was not error to submit the issue of homestead to the jury. Gleed v. Pickett, 29 C. A. 101, 68 S. W. 192.

Whether a tract of land on which the grantor in a deed of trust resides constituted a rural homestead, or together with a town lot constituted an urban homestead, are questions for a jury. Dignowity v. Baumblatt, 38 C. A. 363, 85 S. W. 834.

In a suit to enjoin the sale of a homestead under execution, an instruction as to occupancy held properly refused. Holland v. Zilliox, 38 C. A. 416, 86 S. W. 36.

Whether lots had been dedicated as a homestead at the time they were conveyed by the husband held for the jury. Gray v. Fussell, 48 C. A. 261, 106 S. W. 454.

Whether a homestead has been abandoned is a question of fact ascertainable from the circumstances. Sykes v. Speer (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 422.

On an application by a widow for an allowance in lieu of homestead out of her husband's property, whether she and her husband had a homestead in her separate property unabandoned held, under the evidence, for the jury. Melcher v. Super, 56 C. A. 276, 120 S. W. 569.

Whether a homestead has been abandoned held for the jury. Wiener v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 699.

Whether plaintiffs intended to occupy certain land as a homestead when they executed a deed of trust thereon held for the jury. Morris v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 800.

In an action where foreclosure was sought upon property claimed as a homestead, held, that under the evidence it was improper for the court to direct a foreclosure. Worthington v. Whitefield (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 34.

83. False imprisonment and malicious prosecution.—The fact that the prosecutor acted, after a full statement of all the facts, on the advice of counsel that an offense had been committed, though admissible in evidence for the defendant, is not conclusive of the question of malice. Whether there was malice, and the want of probable cause, must be determined by the jury from a consideration of all the facts. Glasgow v. Owen, 69 T. 167, 6 S. W. 527.

Evidence that defendant had directed an arrest held so weak as not to authorize a submission of a case to the jury. Joske v. Irvine, 91 T. 574, 44 S. W. 1059.

Whether a railroad passenger conductor carrying school children in charge of a government Indian agent, at night, in the exercise of the care required, was authorized to lock the doors of the car containing such children, so that such act would not render the carrier liable for false imprisonment, held properly submitted to the jury. Peck v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 323.

Evidence in an action for the malicious suing out of a writ of sequestration considered, and held, that the giving of a peremptory instruction for defendant was error. Martin v. Butner, 54 C. A. 223, 117 S. W. 442.

Under the circumstances stated, held, that a peremptory instruction was properly given for plaintiff in an action for false imprisonment. Taylor Bros. v. Hearn (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 301.

84. Foreign laws.—What construction the courts of another state have given a statute thereof held a question for the jury, where the only evidence thereof is the testimony of an attorney thereof. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Conrad (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 209.

85. Fraud.—When the genuineness of an original deed was admitted by the party to the suit, who made the original and was charged with its custody, the deed being afterwards substituted by a judgment of the court, and the issue being one of fraud and collusion as to the true date of the substituted deed, the fact that a correct copy thereof had been taken by some one, whether it was duly recorded and acknowledged or not, was proper to go to the jury. Lanier v. Perryman, 59 T. 104.

An assignment of error that the court erred in not holding that certain testimony showed fraud held unavailable where the cause was tried by a jury. Hillboldt v. Waugh (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 829.

The evidence of fraud held sufficient to render the granting of a nonsuit erroneous. Lindsay v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 531.

It was for the jury to determine whether representations made by one selling hogs were intended as an affirmation of the soundness of the hogs, or as a mere expression of opinion. Cole v. Carter, 22 C. A. 457, 54 S. W. 914.

In a suit to rescind a note given in part payment for land, the grantee could not complain that the question of his misrepresentations in the transaction was submitted to the jury. Swope v. Missouri Trust Co., 26 C. A. 133, 62 S. W. 947.

In an action to recover money paid on a sale consummated after the examination of the goods, it was error for the court to exclude from the jury the question of defendant's fraud in packing the goods for examination. Fay Fruit Co. v. Talerico, 26 C. A. 345, 63 S. W. 656.

The question of the sufficiency of circumstantial evidence to establish fraud is for the jury. Brin v. McGregor (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 78.

Evidence, in an action against a carrier for loss of goods, held not to raise the issue of fraud or concealment on the part of the shippers of the value of the goods. Southern Pac. Co. v. D'Arcais, 27 C. A. 57, 64 S. W. 813.

In an action by a railroad employé for injuries, evidence held sufficient to have warranted a submission to the jury of the issue of fraud in the procurement of an alleged release, and to sustain a finding of fraud. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 885; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Smith, 28 C. A. 565, 68 S. W. 543.

Whether an agent of a life insurance company was acting in good faith in making representations by which a settlement of a death claim was procured held for the jury in an action for the balance due on the policy. Franklin Life Ins. Co. v. Villeneuve, 29 C. A. 128, 68 S. W. 203.

Whether there was an obligation on defendant, in action to cancel lease of land for oil and gas development, to prosecute development, and a fraudulent purpose to delay notwithstanding agreement for settlement of title, held question for the jury. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co. v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 884.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, evidence held to warrant the submission of the issue as to whether defendant's agent concealed the nature of the transaction from plaintiff at the time he induced her to execute a release. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Cain, 37 C. A. 531, 84 S. W. 682.

In an action for injuries to an employé, the refusal to withdraw from the jury issues as to whether plaintiff signed the release pleaded on defendant's agreement to pay him for his time lost, etc., held proper. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Winter, 38 C. A. 8, 85 S. W. 477.

In an action to recover plaintiff's homestead for fraud in the character of the consideration, evidence considered, and held that plaintiff's knowledge was a question for the jury. Dashiell v. Johnson, 99 T. 546, 91 S. W. 1085.

In an action for injuries to a servant who had released defendant from liability for future suffering and disability held a question for the jury whether plaintiff was induced to sign the release through fraudulent representation of defendant's surgeon. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Cade (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 124.

In an action on a cross-bill to recover an attorney's fee paid plaintiffs under the terms of the note originally sued on, evidence examined and held insufficient to take to the jury the question of misrepresentations by plaintiffs' attorney as to an extension of the note. Collins v. Kelsey (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 122.

In an action by a seller to rescind the sale and recover the goods, evidence held to require submission to the jury of the question of the buyer's fraudulent concealment of his insolvency and of his intent at the time he purchased the goods not to pay for them. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mills v. Weber, 46 C. A. 433, 102 S. W. 471.

Whether an order for goods was procured by the fraud of the agent of the seller, authorizing the buyer to refuse to accept the goods, held for the jury. United States Gypsum Co. v. Shields, 101 T. 473, 108 S. W. 1165.

In an action to set aside a settlement as having been fraudulently obtained, the issue of the bad faith of defendant's physician in expressing an opinion as to the extent of plaintiff's injuries held properly submitted to the jury. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Jowers (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 946.

In a suit to partition land in which plaintiffs claim an undivided one-half interest through a conveyance by an attorney in fact of defendants, evidence held to make it a jury question whether defendants were induced by misrepresentations to execute the power of attorney under which such attorney acted. Merrill v. Bradley, 52 C. A. 527, 121 S. W. 561.

Evidence held sufficient to go to the jury on the defense of fraudulent representations inducing purchase from a corporation of its stock. Cherry v. First Texas Chemical Mfg. Co., 103 T. 82, 123 S. W. 689.

In an action to recover insurance, the court should have submitted the issue of fraud as shown by the evidence of transactions which occurred after the fire. Home Ins. Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 625.

Fraud in fact is peculiarly within the province of the jury. Stringfellow v. Brazelton (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 937.

In an action against a real estate broker for fraud inducing plaintiff to exchange his land for a stock of merchandise, a requested instruction, submitting the issue of the broker's good faith in the matter of selecting a third person to hold the deed of the land, held improperly refused. Biard & Scales v. Tyler Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1168.

Art. 4834, which provides that benefit certificates in mutual benefit associations shall be noncontestable for misrepresentations by the applicant, unless material to the risk, but does not state that the question of materiality is for the jury, leaves the question one of law for the court upon the jury's findings or upon the uncontroverted facts. Supreme Ruling of Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Hansen (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 351.

Whether insured, after a fire, altered his books and records so as to show a greater loss than he had in fact suffered, was for the jury. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 398.

Evidence, in a brakeman's action for personal injuries, held to make it a jury question whether, when a release was brought to plaintiff for his execution at the hospital, the hospital physician and the claim agent did not tell him that he was practically well, and would be well in a few days. Gregory v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 648.

In an action for breach of a verbal contract to furnish water to mature crops, held error to submit any question of fraud as affecting the damages incurred. Weeks v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 667.

86. Fraudulent conveyances.—Where there was no evidence that an attaching creditor had notice that would render the attachment invalid as a preference, held not reversible error, against the debtor's assignee for benefit of creditors, to submit the question of notice to the jury. Taylor v. Evans, 16 C. A. 409, 41 S. W. 877.

Where the mortgagors remained in possession of the property after giving a deed of trust and transacted business as usual, and there was evidence, in explanation of that fact, to the effect that the trustee had employed them as clerks, held, that the question of fraud as against creditors was for the jury. Boltz v. Engelke (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 47.

Whether giving by one after making fraudulent conveyance of his note for a debt existing before conveyance extinguishes the old debt is a question of fact. Heath v. First Nat. Bank, 19 C. A. 63, 46 S. W. 123.

Where a conveyance by an insolvent is attacked for fraud, a charge requiring proof of the debtor's insolvency as a condition to a verdict for plaintiff held properly refused. Halff v. Goldfrank (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1095.

Evidence considered, and held sufficient to go to the jury, on the question of the bona fides of a wife's claim to property. Shields v. Ord (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 298.

Where a debtor's deed is attacked as executed with intent to defraud creditors, the question of intent should be submitted to the jury. Schuster v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 23 C A. 206, 54 S. W. 777.

Where there was evidence tending to show that land had been conveyed by a husband to his wife without consideration to defraud creditors, the direction of a verdict for the wife, in an action by such creditors to recover the land under an execution sale, was erroneous. Matula v. Lane (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 112.

In an action by an execution purchaser of an undivided interest in a certain lot of cattle, evidence as to whether a "loan" of the same had been made to the debtor within Art. 3969 held sufficient to require the submission of such issue to the jury. Hunstock v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 675.

In an action to set aside the alleged fraudulent transfer of a judgment, evidence considered, and held, that the issues should have been submitted to the jury. Lindsey v. State, 27 C. A. 540, 66 S. W. 332.

On issue of fraudulent conveyance, case held sufficient to go to the jury. Moore v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 890.

Certain special issues held improperly left to the jury in an action to set aside a conveyance as fraudulent. Riske v. Rotan Grocery Co., 37 C. A. 494, 84 S. W. 243.

Whether a gift by the husband to his wife was void as against creditors under the statute held for the jury. Cone v. Belcher, 57 C. A. 493, 124 S. W. 149.

86½. Heirship.—In trespass to try title, evidence held to present question for jury whether interveners were the heirs of the last surviving owner of the land. Gorham v. Settegast, 44 C. A. 254, 98 S. W. 665.

In trespass to try title, held, under the evidence, a jury question whether a certain person was dead when his wife and daughter conveyed land belonging to him as his heirs. Villalva v. Brown (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1124.

In trespass to try title to an undivided one-half interest in land, where plaintiff as a half-brother claimed as heir of his father's children by his first wife, but did not show that the wife, after a divorce, did not remarry and have other children, a verdict for defendant was properly directed for his failure to show a defined interest. Steddum v. Kirby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 273.

87. Insurance and beneficial associations.—In an action on a life policy, evidence held sufficient to warrant the submission of plaintiff's case to the jury. McCarthy v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n, 32 C. A. 548, 74 S. W. 921.

Whether the payment of premiums by a member of a beneficial association, after notice of repudiation of the contract by association, showed an election by member to treat contract as still in force, was a question of fact. Supreme Council A. L. H. v. Batte, 34 C. A. 456, 79 S. W. 629.

In an action against a fraternal association for expelling a member, the question of the association's good faith and of the rightfulness of the expulsion held one for the jury. Thompson v. Grand International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, 41 C. A. 176, 91 S. W. 834.

In an action for the wrongful expulsion of plaintiff from a beneficial order, evidence tending to show that the expulsion was instigated by defendant held sufficient to justify submission to the jury. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 453.

On the evidence, held, that whether insured took a purported inventory prior to the dates of the policies sued on was for the jury. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Walker (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 398.

88. —— Representations and warranties.—Evidence held not to raise an issue of the violation of a clause prohibiting false swearing. Sun Mut. Ins. Co. v. Tufts, 20 C. A. 147, 50 S. W. 180.

Evidence whether insured has been in continuous good health for the year prior to reinstatement, within a condition requiring it, held for the jury. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n v. Bozeman, 21 C. A. 490, 52 S. W. 94.

Statements in an application for life insurance being warranties, an issue of their materiality is immaterial in an action for the insurance. Kansas Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Coalson, 22 C. A. 64, 54 S. W. 388.

Materiality of untrue statements on which the validity of a life policy depended held a proper question for the jury, where not clearly apparent. Fidelity Mut. Life Ass'n v. Harris, 94 T. 25, 57 S. W. 635, 86 Am. St. Rep. 813.

Evidence in an action on a life policy held to authorize the submission to the jury of the issue whether insured was sick on the day he received the policy. Woodmen of the World v. Locklin, 28 C. A. 486, 67 S. W. 331.

Misrepresentation by insured as to his health held not to have avoided life policy as matter of law. Northwestern Life Ass'n v. Findley, 29 C. A. 494, 68 S. W. 695.

In an action on an accident policy, whether plaintiff's failure to disclose the fact that he had suffered from a mashed foot or injured finger constituted a breach of warranty held for the jury. Trenton v. North American Acc. Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 276.

In an action on a policy, the court held to have properly submitted the issue whether certain injuries which insured had sustained prior to signing the application, and not disclosed, increased the risk. North American Accident Ins. Co. v. Trenton (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 740.

In an action on an accident policy, whether certain undisclosed injuries increased the risk held for the jury. Id.

Evidence in an action on an insurance policy held to make it a question for the jury whether a forfeiture had been waived. Couch & Gilliland v. Home Protection Fire Ins. Co., 32 C. A. 44, 73 S. W. 1077.

In an action on a life insurance policy, evidence examined, and held sufficient to warrant the submission to the jury of the question whether defendant, by demanding additional proofs of death, had waived its right to claim a forfeiture of the policy by reason of false statements by insured on her application, and of the further fact that insured was not in good health when the policy was delivered. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Calvert (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1033.

In an action on a life insurance policy, evidence held insufficient to take to the jury the question of the company's waiver of its right to forfeit the policy for false statements in the application. Security Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Calvert, 101 T. 128, 105 S. W. 320.

In an action to recover the balance due on a life insurance policy, evidence held insufficient to raise a question for the jury as to whether defendant waived a condition of its policy, limiting its liability if the age of insured was misstated. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Lennox, 103 T. 133, 124 S. W. 623.

Whether an agent of an insurer procuring a fire policy knew at the time of the issuance of the policy a certain fact held for the jury. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Chancey (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 577.

Whether an insurer on default in payment of a note given to extend the policy after premium was due and unpaid exercises its option to forfeit the policy for nonpayment of the note or waives its right is a question of fact for the jury. Security Life & Annuity Co. of America v. Underwood (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 293.

92. Judgment.—When the evidence tends to show the identity of the issue in two cases, that issue should be submitted to the jury. Monks v. McGrady, 71 T. 135, 8 S. W. 617.

In an action by a wife to set aside a judgment and cancel deeds and vendor's lien notes forming the basis thereof, an instruction that plaintiff was not a party to the former action, as matter of law, and that the judgment against her was void, held erroneous. Owens v. Cage & Crow, 101 T. 286, 106 S. W. 880.

93. Jurisdictional question.—The question of jurisdiction based on the amount in controversy may be submitted to the jury in an action for damages sounding in tort. Sozaya v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 745.

The question whether certain items of expense in executing a power of sale of personalty were fraudulently placed in plaintiff's petition in order to bring the case within the jurisdiction of the court held one for the jury. Heierman v. Robinson, 26 C. A. 491, 63 S. W. 657.

In an action in the county court, defendant having pleaded to the jurisdiction, that plaintiff's allegation of amount involved was false and fraudulent, to give the county court jurisdiction, the question held for the jury. Wanhscaffe v. Pontoja (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 663.

Whether an alleged libelous publication was privileged is a question for the court. A. H. Belo & Co. v. Lacy (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 215.

In libel, a peremptory instruction for defendant held proper, in view of the evidence. Wheless v. W. Y. Davis & Son (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 929.

Whether the explanation given by the innuendo is a legitimate conclusion from the premises stated is within the exclusive province of the court to determine. Harris v. Santa Fé Townsite Co. (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 77.

Where the alleged defamatory language is ambiguous or of doubtful import, the court must leave to the jury the question as to whether the language is libelous, but, where the publication admits of no ambiguity, the court may dispose of the question by determining the reasonable and natural meaning of the publication. Guisti v. Galveston Tribune, 105 T. 497, 150 S. W. 874.

Question whether article referring to person as a negress was directed at plaintiff held a question for the jury, when considered in connection with another article apparently relating to the same matter and naming plaintiff. Express Pub. Co. v. Orsborn (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 574.

Whether a libel was directed at plaintiff is a question of fact for the jury. Id.

96. Limitations and laches.—Question whether suit for the collection of taxes was brought within a reasonable time held one of fact for the court. Link v. City of Houston, 94 T. 378, 59 S. W. 566.

Where laches is set up as a defense in a suit by a corporation to vacate a judgment for fraud in the service of process, the questions of when the corporation had knowledge of the fraud and whether the suit was begun in a reasonable time thereafter are for the jury. Fox v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 815.

Evidence in an action for land used as a street held sufficient to go to the jury on the defense of limitations. City of Ft. Worth v. Cetti, 38 C. A. 117, 85 S. W. 826.

97. Misconduct by physician.—In an action to revoke a license to practice medicine, evidence held to present a question for the jury whether the defendant was guilty of grossly unprofessional and dishonorable conduct of a character likely to deceive or defraud the public, so as to authorize the revocation of his license. Berry v. State (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 631.

98. Mistake.—Evidence held to entitle a plaintiff to have the issue of mistake in the execution of a release submitted to the jury. McCarty v. Houston & T. C. R. Co., 21 C. A. 568, 54 S. W. 421.

In an action to recover money paid by mistake on a draft, evidence held to present an issue as to whether collection was made by the plaintiff's correspondent. First Nat. Bank v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 541.

Evidence in a suit to try title examined, and held sufficient to raise the issue of mistake of the scrivener who wrote the instrument of conveyance in describing the property conveyed. Rankin v. Moore, 46 C. A. 44, 101 S. W. 1049.

99. Negligence in general.—Negligence held primarily a question of fact for the jury. Railway Co. v. Wilson, 60 T. 143; Same v. Lowry, 61 T. 149; Same v. Carson, 66 T. 345, 1 S. W. 107; Same v. Lee, 70 T. 496, 7 S. W. 857; Same v. Cooper, 70 T. 67, 8 S. W. 68; Same v. Robinson, 73 T. 277, 11 S. W. 327; Campbell v. Trimble, 75 T. 270, 12 S. W. 863; Railway Co. v. Anderson, 76 T. 244, 13 S. W. 196; Same v. Tomlison, 4 App. C. C. § 114, 16 S. W. 866; Same v. Box, 81 T. 670, 17 S. W. 375; Calhoun v. Railway Co., 84 T. 226, 19 S. W. 341; Railway Co. v. Kuehn, 21 S. W. 58, 2 C. A. 210; Bonner v. Grumbach, 21 S. W. 1010, 2 C. A. 482; Railway Co. v. Daniels (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 337; Same v. Finley, 11 C. A. 64, 32 S. W. 51; Same v. Gaither (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 179; Same v. Eason, 35 S. W. 208; Belt v. Railway Co., 37 S. W. 362; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Thompson, 116 S. W. 106; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Krenek, 138 S. W. 1154; Wininger v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co., 105 T. 56, 143 S. W. 1150.

It is error for the court to instruct the jury that certain facts in evidence do or do not constitute negligence. Calhoun v. Railway Co., 84 T. 226, 19 S. W. 341; Railway Co. v.

Lee, 70 T. 501, 7 S. W. 857; Railway Co. v. Anderson, 76 T. 249, 13 S. W. 196; Railway Co. v. Dyer, 76 T. 160, 13 S. W. 377; Railway Co. v. Wilson, 60 T. 142; Hargis v. Railway Co., 75 T. 19, 12 S. W. 953.

Negligence is generally a fact to be found by the jury. When a duty is required by law, the omission of which causes damages for which an action is maintainable, the omission is negligence; but as to whether there is negligence in a particular case causing injury should generally be left to the jury. Contributory negligence is no exception to the rule. Houston & Texas Cent. Ry. Co. v. Wilson, 60 T. 143; Texas & Pacific Ry. Co. v. Levi, 59 T. 675; Railway Co. v. Moore, 69 T. 157, 6 S. W. 631; Railway Co. v. Eckford, 71 T. 274, 8 S. W. 679; Railway Co. v. Murphy, 46 T. 356, 26 Am. Rep. 272; Railway Co. v. Randall, 50 T. 254; Railway Co. v. Graves, 59 T. 330; Railway Co. v. Richards, 59 T. 376; Railway Co. v. Simpson, 60 T. 103; Railway Co. v. Lee, 70 T. 496, 7 S. W. 857; Railway Co. v. Hill, 71 T. 459, 9 S. W. 351; Railway Co. v. Wallace, 74 T. 581, 12 S. W. 227; Railway Co. v. Porfert, 72 T. 344, 10 S. W. 207; Campbell v. Goodwin (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 864; McDonald v. Railway Co., 22 S. W. 939, 86 T. 1, 40 Am. St. Rep. 803; Campbell v. Trimble, 75 T. 271, 12 S. W. 863; Railway Co. v. Cunningham, 26 S. W. 474, 7 C. A. 65; Railway Co. v. Harvey (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 423; Railway Co. v. Dyer, 76 T. 161, 13 S. W. 377; Railway Co. v. Anderson, 76 T. 244, 13 S. W. 196; Dillingham v. Harden, 26 S. W. 914, 6 C. A. 474; Collins v. Dillingham, 26 S. W. 87, 7 C. A. 93; Railway Co. v. Wylie (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 85; Railway Co. v. Hanks, 73 T. 323, 11 S. W. 377; Railway Co. v. Chambers, 73 T. 296, 11 S. W. 279; Railway Co. v. Robertson, 82 T. 657, 17 S. W. 1041; Calhoun v. Railway Co., 84 T. 226, 19 S. W. 341; Mexican Nat. Ry. Co. v. Crum, 25 S. W. 1126, 6 C. A. 702; Railway Co. v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 873; Railway Co. v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 455; Railway Co. v. Southwick (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 592; Railway Co. v. Downman (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 922; Railway Co. v. Johnson, 83 T. 628, 19 S. W. 151; Railway Co. v. Ormond, 64 T. 489; Railway Co. v. McClaine, 80 T. 96, 15 S. W. 789; Railway Co. v. Danshank, 25 S. W. 295, 6 C. A. 385; Turner v. Railway Co. (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 253; Cumpston v. Railway Co. (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 737; Western Union Tel. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 742.

Negligence, except in the failure to perform a statutory duty, is rarely a question of law. Being generally a question of fact, it is not proper to direct the jury what specific facts would constitute contributory negligence. Contributory negligence on the part of a defendant must, like negligence (when it does not arise from violation of a statutory duty), depend upon the facts of the particular case, of which the jury should judge under general instruction. Railway Co. v. Greenlee, 70 T. 553, 8 S. W. 129.

Negligence is a question of fact to be determined by the jury. Railway Co. v. Eckford, 71 T. 274, 8 S. W. 679.

Negligence is for the jury, unless it consists in the violation of a statute. Telegraph Co. v. Lydon, 82 T. 364, 18 S. W. 701; Calhoun v. Ry. Co., 84 T. 226, 19 S. W. 341.

Rule respecting submission of issues of negligence cases stated. Irvin v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 661; Behrens v. Brice, 52 C. A. 221, 113 S. W. 782; St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Bolen (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 860; Adams v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 137 S. W. 437.

Where there is any evidence to establish allegations of negligence in a complaint for personal injuries, a verdict for defendant should not be directed. Lindsey v. Storrie (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 370.

Where there is evidence, in an action against a railroad for damages from the explosion of a car of explosives, that the company allowed the car to be delayed, the question of negligence is for the jury. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Beauchamp, 95 T. 496, 68 S. W. 502, 58 L. R. A. 716, 93 Am. St. Rep. 864.

In an action for injuries to one who fell down stairs in defendant's store held that the question of defendant's negligence was one for the jury. Accousi v. G. A. Stowers Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 861.

The question of negligence depending on evidence should not be withdrawn from the jury except where there is no material conflict and where there is no room for different minds to form different conclusions. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Matthews (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 983; Texas Mexican R. Co. v. Higgins, 44 C. A. 523, 99 S. W. 200; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Summers, 51 C. A. 133, 111 S. W. 211; San Antonio Traction Co. v. Levyson, 52 C. A. 122, 113 S. W. 569; Lone Star Brewing Co. v. Willie, 52 C. A. 550, 114 S. W. 186; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Tinon (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 936; Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hanson, 125 S. W. 63; Riley v. Fisher, 146 S. W. 581.

Negligence becomes a question of law only when the act complained of is in violation of the statute or when the undisputed evidence admits of the inference only that the commission of the act in question was negligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Wray, 43 C. A. 380, 96 S. W. 74; Thompson v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 48 C. A. 284, 106 S. W. 910; Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Moberly (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 483; Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Wall, 110 S. W. 453; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Gerald, 128 S. W. 166; Boldt v. San Antonio Traction Co., 148 S. W. 831.

In an action by creditors against the debtor's receiver and the sureties on his bond, held, that the question whether the receiver exercised ordinary care was one for the jury. Groesbeck Cotton Oil Gin & Compress Co. v. Oliver, 44 C. A. 303, 97 S. W. 1092.

An act cannot be deemed negligent per se, unless it can be said without hesitation that no careful person would have committed it. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hawkins, 49 C. A. 545, 108 S. W. 736.

What course of conduct ought to be pursued by one to meet the requirement of ordinary care and prudence in a certain situation is a jury question; and courts will rarely assume to say that the conduct is or is not negligence. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Vallejo (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1187.

The question of negligence is peculiarly one of fact for the jury, and they necessarily have a large discretion in determining the question. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Briscoe (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 453.

Acts of negligence need not be characterized as such in order to raise a question for the jury. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Garcia, 54 C. A. 59, 117 S. W. 206.

The question of negligence should be submitted to the jury, where the thing causing the injury is under defendant's management, and the accident is such as in the ordinary course of things does not happen if proper care is used. Texas & Pacific Coal Co. v. Kowsikowski (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 829.

In an action against a railroad company for injuries sustained through its negligence in permitting a section house to become infected with smallpox, which was communicated to plaintiff, evidence held not to raise an issue of negligence. Mellody v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 702.

Where there was no issue of fact, in a personal injury action, upon which liability of defendant could have been predicated, the trial court held to have properly directed a verdict for defendant. Id.

Negligence is always a question for the jury, to be judged by the standard of ordinary care, unless the undisputed evidence establishes the issue, in which case the court must determine it. Rice & Lyon v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 961.

In an action by a liveryman against the hirer of a horse and rig for injuries to the animal and rig, evidence held sufficient to require submission to the jury of the question whether the horse was vicious and skittish, which fact was known to plaintiff and not to defendant, and that the horse ran away without negligence on the part of defendant. Johnson v. Hyltin (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 293.

In an action to set aside an execution sale, the question of the owners' negligence in failing to attend the sale held a question for the jury. Guy v. Edmundson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 615.

In an action for injuries to a third person while repairing the roof of a building, plaintiff held not negligent as a matter of law. Panhandle Telephone & Telegraph Co. v. Harris (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1129.

As a rule, negligence is a question of fact and not of law, though in some cases the court may instruct that certain facts constitute negligence and take the case from the jury. Boldt v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 831.

A peremptory instruction for the defendant in an action for injuries to an employé held warranted where from the evidence ordinary minds could not differ as to the relation of the parties. Edmundson v. Coca-Cola Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 273.

Barker v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 609.

100. Violation of statute or ordinance.—The neglect by a railway company of a statutory duty, whereby injury results to another, is negligence as matter of law, and it is proper that a court should so charge; but it is improper to charge upon the effect of isolated facts in evidence as constituting negligence or not. Concerning these the jury determine from a consideration of all the surrounding circumstances in evidence before them. Railway Co. v. Kuehn, 70 T. 582, 8 S. W. 484.

Where plaintiff's minor son was injured by a fire while employed in defendant's store, in an action for loss of services, held proper to refuse to submit the issue as to whether the building was a factory requiring fire escapes, under city ordinances. Hernischel v. Texas Drug Co., 26 C. A. 1, 61 S. W. 419.

In an action by a pedestrian stumbling over a truck left on a sidewalk, the court properly submitted the violation by defendant of a municipal ordinance as a ground of recovery. Sandeguard Grocery Co. v. Conley, 47 C. A. 87, 104 S. W. 1073.

Where duties are prescribed by statute, whether the question of negligence is one of law or of fact, stated. Dallas Consol. Electric St. Ry. Co. v. Chambers, 55 C. A. 331, 118 S. W. 851.

101. Injuries to passengers.—In an action for injuries to a passenger, held error to submit question whether defendant's failure to provide proper platform was the proximate cause of the injury. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Caseday (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 198.

Held a question for the jury whether a passenger train delayed by a washout should have been pushed back to the last station passed. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Rogers, 16 C. A. 19, 40 S. W. 201.

Where a passenger was injured by attempting to board a moving train, whether the carrier was guilty of negligence proximately causing the injury held for the jury. Mills v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 94 T. 242, 59 S. W. 874, 55 L. R. A. 497.

In an action for injuries sustained by falling from an overcrowded passenger and mail train on the day of an excursion, the question whether defendant rested under a duty not to delay the mail train in order to place a less crowded train in front, or whether defendant was negligent in not making such delay, was for the jury. Williams v. International & G. N. R. Co., 28 C. A. 503, 67 S. W. 1085.

In an action for injuries sustained by falling from an overcrowded excursion train, plaintiff held entitled to a submission of the question as to whether defendant was negligent in keeping its most crowded train in front, so that it was boarded by waiting passengers. Id.

Evidence held sufficient to require the submission to the jury of the question of negligence. Lewis v. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 1006.

If it can be reasonably inferred from the evidence that passengers might first load their freight into an express car at a station, in accordance with the custom at such place, which did not have an express office, and that the train would be held for them, it is for the jury to say whether, under all the circumstances, the starting of a train before a passenger, loading freight, could get on is negligence. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 628.

Where it appeared that plaintiff, a cripple, while attempting to alight, handed one of his crutches to defendant's conductor, it could not be said as a matter of law that the conductor in giving the starting signal, might not, as a person of ordinary prudence, have believed that in the interval elapsing between the giving of the signal and the starting of the car, plaintiff would have time to steady himself on the ground, and that the conductor would have had time to pass the crutch to him. Galveston Electric Co. v. Dobbert (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 838.

In an action for injuries to a passenger, who, while standing on the platform of a car waiting to alight, was injured by a sudden jerk of the car, whether defendant's servants were negligent held for the jury.
