Where explanation of apparent discrepancy between original and amended petition was attached to bill of exceptions, but based on the unsworn ex parte statement of counsel, such explanation could not be considered. Wade v. Boyd, 24 C. A. 492, 60 S. W. 360.

Recitals of fact in a bill of exceptions to admission of evidence, which are mere assertions of counsel in stating the grounds of objection to the evidence, must be verified by other parts of the bill in order to require consideration on appeal. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 144.

A statement in the bill of exceptions that an application for a continuance is a third application is binding on the court of appeals. Sullivan-Sanford Lumber Co. v. Hampton (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 637.

A bill of exceptions stating that testimony was objected to "because" of certain facts held no evidence of their existence. Rankin v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 392.

Art. 2060. [1362] [1360] May refer to statement of facts.—Where the statement of facts contains all the evidence requisite to explain the bill of exceptions, it shall not be necessary to set out such evidence in the bill of exceptions; but it shall be sufficient to refer to the same as it appears in the statement of facts.

Reference to statement of facts.—If the bill of exception does not contain the evidence requisite to explain the bill, nor refer to it as it appears in the statement of facts, it is fatally defective, and an assignment of error based on such a bill must be overruled. Jamison v. Dooley, 34 C. A. 428, 79 S. W. 93.

When the evidence in the statement of facts would explain or show the relevancy and materiality of the evidence embraced in the bill of exceptions, it would be sufficient for the bill to refer to such evidence as it appears in the statement of facts, without setting it out. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Yates, 39 C. A. 114, 88 S. W. 285.

The court of civil appeals is not required to look to the evidence contained in the statement of facts in aid of a bill of exceptions. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. v. Demsey, 40 C. A. 398, 89 S. W. 786.

A statement of facts agreed to and approved may be looked to to determine the reversibility of errors assigned and shown by bill of exceptions. Hawkins v. Western Nat. Bank of Hereford (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 722.

Art. 2061. [1363] [1361] Charges regarded as approved unless excepted to.—The ruling of the court in the giving, refusing or qualifying of instructions to the jury shall be regarded as approved unless excepted to as provided for in the foregoing articles. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 101. P. D. 217. Acts 1913, p. 113, sec. 3, amending Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 2061.]

Decisions under prior act.—See Byrd v. State (Cr. App.) 151 S. W. 1068.

—— Including ruling in motion for new trial.—Under this article, Art. 2062, providing that, where the ruling appears otherwise of record, no bill of exceptions shall be necessary to reserve an exception thereto, and court of civil appeals rule No. 24 (142 S. W. xii) providing that the assignment of error must distinctly specify the grounds of error relied on, and a ground of error not distinctly set forth in the motion for new trial shall be considered as waived, unless so fundamental that it would be acted upon without an assignment of error, held, that a ruling giving or refusing instructions need not be included in the motion for new trial. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Beasley (Sup.) 155 S. W. 183.

Rule 71a for district and county court (145 S. W. vii), requiring that a motion for a new trial be filed in all cases where parties desire to appeal, does not conflict with this article. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 748.

Exceptions in general.—See notes under Art. 1972.

Art. 2062. [1364] [1362] No bill of exceptions where ruling appears of record.—Where the ruling or other action of the court appears otherwise of record, no bill of exceptions shall be necessary to reserve an exception thereto.

Rulings shown by record.—See, also, Arts. 1607 and 1612, and notes.

A court on appeal will review fundamental error in a judgment apparent on the face of the record, though not assigned or presented in any way. Gibson v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 983.

Error in sustaining a general demurrer to a petition can be reviewed on appeal without any bill of exceptions or assignment of error, where the judgment recites the ruling, the exception thereto, and the notice of appeal. Harbinson v. Cottle Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 719.

Where the petition for a writ of mandamus to compel a justice of the peace to set up a transcript in order that an appeal to the county court might be perfected alleged the filing of a pauper's affidavit in lieu of a cost bond, but did not attack the subsequent action of the justice of the peace in setting aside such affidavit on the hearing of a contest, and the evidence failed to show that the justice erred in setting it aside, the granting of the writ was a fundamental error apparent upon the face of the record. Hart v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 520.

Rulings not shown by record.—Record held not to show error in failing to regive all instructions given in case when jury returns for instructions on some particular point. American Well Works v. De Aguayo (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 350.

Exceptions not shown from the record to have been presented to and ruled upon by the trial court will not be considered on appeal. Holmes v. Thomason, 25 C. A. 389, 61 S. W. 504.

Under district and county courts rule 55, an application for a continuance held not a part of the record, so that the ruling thereon cannot be considered. Houston Land & Loan Co. v. Danley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1143.

Necessity of motion for new trial.—See, also, notes under Art. 2019.

Under this article it was not necessary to file a motion for a new trial where the only error complained of was in the court's ruling on exceptions to plaintiff's supplemental petition. Cooper Grocery Co. v. Blume (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1157.

Rule 71a for district and county courts (145 S. W. vii), requiring that a motion for a new trial must be filed in all cases where a party desires to appeal, does not conflict with this article. El Paso Electric Ry. Co. v. Lee (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 748.

Art. 2063. [1365] [1363] Bill to be presented to the judge.—It shall be the duty of the party taking any bill of exceptions to reduce the same to writing, and present the same to the judge for his allowance and signature.

Preparation of bill by judge.—An exception having been taken at the time of a ruling, and counsel excepting having left the county before the bill was signed and filed, it was competent for the trial judge, when requested by telegram from the absent counsel, to prepare, certify, and file the bill of exceptions. Doll v. Mundine, 84 T. 315, 19 S. W. 394.

Necessity of presentation for approval.—A bill of exceptions is not sufficient, where it contains no order that it be filed and become part of the record, and does not show that it was presented or requested by appellant. Peugh v. Moody (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 296.

Sufficiency of presentation.—The fact that a bill of exceptions was read by counsel in prosecuting a motion for a new trial, and was placed among the files in the case, and delivered to the judge when he took the motion under consideration, is not a sufficient presentment for allowance. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Holden, 23 C. A. 144, 55 S. W. 603.

Necessity of allowance and signature of judge.—The appellate court cannot consider the grounds of a motion for a new trial when the bills of exception are not approved by the trial judge, and the record contains no statement of facts. Noble v. State (Cr. App.) 43 S. W. 978.

A bill of exceptions not approved by the presiding judge will not be considered. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Trice (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 770; Missouri, K. & T. Ty. Co. of Texas v. Cock, 51 S. W. 354; Ward v. Ward, 34 C. A. 104, 77 S. W. 829; Rabb v. E. H. Goodrich & Son, 46 C. A. 541, 102 S. W. 910; Ashmore v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 196; Galan v. Same, Id. 1171.

Approval by the trial judge is essential to the validity of a bill of exceptions. Gray v. Frontroy, 40 C. A. 302, 89 S. W. 1090; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Crump (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 1013.

The record on appeal must show the signing by the trial judge of the bill of exceptions. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Crump (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 1013.

Where a bill of exceptions upon which an objection to the admission of evidence is based is not approved by the trial court, an assignment complaining of the admission of such evidence cannot be considered. McGrew v. Norris (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1143.

A bill of exceptions must be authenticated by the signature of the trial judge, and a mere recital in the motion for new trial that accused had objected to evidence cannot be considered on appeal. Nelson v. State (Cr. App.) 142 S. W. 918.

A bill of exceptions is not sufficient, where it contains no order that it be filed or become part of the record, and where it does not clearly appear that it was presented or requested to be approved by the appellant. Peugh v. Moody (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 296.

Delegation of power of approval.—Approval of a bill of exceptions by the judge is a judicial act which he cannot delegate to another person. Gray v. Frontroy, 40 C. A. 302, 89 S. W. 1090.

Time for presentation and approval.—See, also, Art. 2073 and notes.

After the expiration of the time allowed by order of court to file a bill of exceptions, the trial judge cannot approve such bill. Gray v. Frontroy, 40 C. A. 302, 89 S. W. 1090.

—— Decisions under prior act.—The overruling of the motion for new trial is the "conclusion of the trial," from which the ten days for presentation to the judge are to be computed. Blum v. Schram, 58 T. 524. If no motion is filed the judgment becomes final upon the expiration of ten days from its rendition. Missouri P. R. Co. v. H. F. M. Co., 2 App. C. C. § 573. As to duty of judge in preparing bill, see Franklin v. Tiernan, 62 T. 92.

If the bill of exceptions is not presented to the judge within ten days after the case is finally disposed of, the party complaining is not entitled to have the bill considered on appeal, although it may be allowed by the judge. Railway Co. v. Holden, 23 C. A. 144, 55 S. W. 603.

The bill must be reduced to writing and presented to the judge for signature during the term and within ten days from the conclusion of the trial. It should be presented to opposing counsel, and, if found correct, signed by the judge and filed by the clerk during the term. Culver v. State, 42 Cr. R. 645, 62 S. W. 923.

Where a motion for new trial is filed, the trial is not concluded until the motion is overruled, and a bill of exceptions may be presented to the judge for allowance within ten days from that date. Palmo v. Slayden & Co., 100 T. 13, 92 S. W. 797.

Where bills of exception taken to the action of the court are not presented to and approved by the trial court within ten days after final trial, assignments of error as to such bills will not be considered. W. U. Tel. Co. v. Rowe, 44 C. A. 84, 98 S. W. 229.

—— Presumption regarding presentation.—When the record does not show when a bill of exceptions was presented to the judge, the presumption exists that it was presented in time. Heffron v. Pollard, 73 T. 96, 11 S. W. 165, 15 Am. St. Rep. 764.

Refusal to sign and delay in signing.—See Art. 2064 and notes.

Sufficiency of approval.—There is a bill of exceptions on which to base consideration of action of the trial court, the bill having been properly prepared and seasonably presented to the trial judge, who wrote thereon, "Refused, but accepted with the following qualification" (giving it); there being an approval with a qualification. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quilhot (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 200.

Conclusiveness of approved bill.—The verity of an approved bill of exceptions is not subject to attack or modification by affidavit, where the bill is regular on its face. Wade v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 84.

Striking out for alteration after approval.—A bill of exceptions which was stricken out by the trial court after an appeal was perfected, on the ground that it had been materially changed after signing and approval by the trial judge, held not entitled to consideration on appeal either in whole or in part. Harris v. Stark, 101 T. 587, 110 S. W. 737.

Art. 2064. [1366] [1364] Submitted to opposing counsel, etc.—It shall be the duty of the judge to submit such bill of exceptions to the adverse party or his counsel, if in attendance on the court, and if the same is found to be correct, it shall be signed by the judge without delay and filed with the clerk.

See Baum v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 984.

Delay of judge in signing bill.—See, also, Art. 2074 and notes.

When it appears that the judge negligently failed to perfect a bill of exceptions without fault of the party, the judgment will be reversed and cause remanded. Bradford v. Knowles, 11 C. A. 572, 33 S. W. 149; Williams v. Dean (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 1024.

When the judge fails to sign bill of exceptions, when the same is presented to him, until forty days after the expiration of the term, and the party presenting it neglects to compel the judge to file it in time by resorting to mandamus proceedings, the bill of exceptions will not be considered by the court. Maury v. Keller (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 59.

Necessity of filing with clerk.—Where the bill of exception was not filed by the clerk, an assignment of error based thereon could not be considered on appeal. Jordan v. James, 53 C. A. 408, 115 S. W. 872.

Art. 2065. [1367] [1365] If found incorrect.—Should the judge find such bill of exceptions to be incorrect, he shall suggest to the party, or his counsel who drew it, such corrections as he may deem necessary therein; and if they are agreed to, he shall make such corrections and sign the same and file it with the clerk. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 101. P. D. 217.]

See Baum v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 984; Kearse v. State (Cr. App.) 151 S. W. 827.

Duty to allow or qualify.—Duty of court as to allowance or qualification of bill of exceptions stated. Brunner Fire Co. v. Payne, 54 C. A. 501, 118 S. W. 602.

—— When bill would be of no avail.—It is not error for a trial judge to fail or refuse to approve and file bills of exceptions, where the bills, if allowed, would be of no avail. Secord v. Eller (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 933.

Necessity of consent of party.—The court is not authorized to take the appellant's bill and explain or modify it without his consent. Moore v. State, 47 Cr. R. 410, 83 S. W. 1118.

Under this article, and Arts. 2066 and 2067, the judge has no right to qualify a party's bill of exceptions without his consent. He should either sign, or if the bill is not correct, endorse his refusal to do so and then make out and file what he considers a proper bill, leaving the party his remedy of a bill by bystanders, under the statute, if he was not satisfied with the bill allowed by the judge. Brunner Fire Co. v. Payne, 54 C. A. 501, 118 S. W. 605.

Construction of judge's indorsement.—An indorsement over the signature of the judge on a proposed bill of exceptions held to show that the bill was rejected because incorrect, and not simply because the opposing counsel refused to agree to it. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Collins, 31 C. A. 70, 71 S. W. 560.

Effect of qualification by judge.—Statements of the trial judge, contained in his qualifications to a bill of exceptions, must be taken as true by the court on appeal. Payne & Joubert Machine & Foundry Co. v. Dilley (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 496.

A bill of exceptions, qualified by the trial judge, must be considered in the light of the qualification, in the absence of any exception to the action of the trial court. Gaines v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 199.

Where a bill of exceptions complaining of the admission of evidence was qualified by the trial court, showing that the party complaining and one of his counsel insisted on the admission of the evidence, while another counsel objected to it, error in admitting the evidence was not shown. Green v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 255.

—— Acceptance of qualification.—It has been held, if the bill which has been corrected by the judge is accepted and filed by the defendant's attorney, the latter is estopped from claiming it is unfair. Moore v. State, 47 Cr. R. 410, 83 S. W. 1118.

Where one accepts a bill of exceptions with a qualification by the court, he is bound and committed thereby, and the statements of the court as to the qualification must be accepted as true. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Settle, 104 T. 142, 135 S. W. 116.

An appellant who accepts a bill of exceptions, qualified by the court, is concluded by the qualification. Cyphers v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 187.

Where accused accepted a bill of exceptions as to the alleged admission of certain evidence, so qualified by the court as to show that the evidence was not admitted, he was bound by it. Stevens v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 944.

Statement of judge explaining bill.—An explanation appended to a bill of exceptions, but not signed by the judge, is of no force, and its statements cannot be considered by the appellate court. W. R. Morris & Co. v. Southern Shoe Co., 44 C. A. 488, 99 S. W. 178.

Under this article, and Art. 1727, which provides that the minutes of the proceedings of each preceding day shall be read in open court on the morning of the succeeding day, except on the last day of the session, on which day they shall be read, corrected, and signed in open court. Held, that a statement of the judge in an explanation to a bill of exceptions to the ruling on a demurrer that the demurrer was sustained will not take the place of such showing in the record. Sowers v. Yeoman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1153.

Striking out portions of bill.—Where a judge refuses to hear a motion to strike out portions of a bill of exceptions, he may be compelled to hear the motion by mandamus, but the court on appeal cannot review the nonaction of the court. Wade v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 84.

Amendment of approved bill.—The judge has the right to amend bill of exceptions signed by him so as to conform to the facts. Railway Co. v. Culberson, 72 T. 384, 10 S. W. 706, 3 L. R. A. 567, 13 Am. St. Rep. 805; St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 186.

Correcting or striking out after perfecting of appeal.—When a bill of exceptions has been obtained by undue practice, it is competent for the court in which the trial was had, upon a motion made for that purpose, to strike it from the record; and this may be done after the adjournment of the term and after an appeal has been perfected. Railway Co. v. Culberson, 72 T. 375, 10 S. W. 706, 3 L. R. A. 567, 13 Am. St. Rep. 805.

Statement as to correcting and striking out of bills of exceptions by the lower court after perfecting of appeal. Stark v. Harris (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 887.

Where the trial court was misled by one of the attorneys for the appellant in signing a bill of exceptions, the proper proceeding is to correct the record in the trial court, and not by motion to strike in the appellate court supported by affidavit of the trial judge. Beaumont & G. N. R. R. v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1125.

Art. 2066. [1368] [1366] On disagreement, judge to make out bill, etc.—Should the party not agree to such corrections, the judge shall return the bill of exceptions to him with his refusal indorsed thereon, and shall make out and sign and file with the clerk such a bill of exceptions as will, in his opinion, present the ruling of the court in that behalf as it actually occurred.

See Baum v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 984; Kearse v. State (Cr. App.) 151 S. W. 827.

Judge's bill—Scope and contents.—See, also, notes under Art. 2059.

The bill of exceptions prepared by the judge should show the substance of the bill originally tendered to him, the fact of its tender, and of his having presented it to the adverse party or his counsel, with his objections thereto, if any, of his having pointed out the desired corrections, that he had indorsed the fact of his refusal to sign on the rejected bill, together with such other facts as will enable the appellate court to fully understand the question reserved for decision. Lanier v. Perryman, 59 T. 104.

When a motion for a new trial on the ground that the verdict was influenced by the improper language in the argument has been overruled, the judge can appropriately state in the bill of exceptions any facts or views not otherwise disclosed by the record, supporting his conclusion that the complaining party has suffered no injury from the unauthorized remarks of counsel. Radford v. Lyon, 65 T. 471.

—— Time for preparation and filing.—See, also, Art. 2073 and notes.

The trial judge cannot make out a bill of exceptions after the expiration of the time allowed by order of court for the filing of the same. Gray v. Frontroy, 40 C. A. 302, 89 S. W. 1090.

—— Necessity of signature.—A bill of exceptions not signed by the judge or by bystanders is no part of the record. Land v. Klein, 21 C. A. 3, 50 S. W. 638.

—— Compelling preparation and filing.—Where a party fails to use proper diligence at the proper time to secure a bill of exceptions, the applicant is not entitled to the writ of mandamus to compel a county judge to prepare and sign such bill. Railway Co. v. Lockhart, 4 App. C. C. § 297, 18 S. W. 649.

—— Conclusiveness.—Appellant's attorney cannot impeach the judge's bill by his own affidavit. Moore v. State, 47 Cr. R. 410, 83 S. W. 1118.

In the absence of bystanders' bills prepared in the manner provided in Art. 2067, appellate courts will be compelled to accept bills of exception prepared by the courts. Ray v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 99, 88 S. W. 468.

A bill of exceptions presented and refused must be attested by bystanders to be entitled to consideration on appeal, and if not so attested that signed by the judge will be taken as correct. Washington v. State, 58 Cr. R. 345, 125 S. W. 917.

Where accused's bill of exceptions tendered as authorized by Code Cr. Proc. art. 744, was rejected by the court and the court, as authorized by this article, prepared a bill of exceptions which was defective, but accused, because of lapse of time since the trial, could not prove a bill by bystanders, the bill prepared by the court cannot be rejected on appeal. Hickey v. State, 62 Cr. R. 568, 138 S. W. 1051.

The court of civil appeals and the appellant are bound by the bill of exceptions, prepared and filed by the trial court, in the absence of a showing such as the law provides. Reed v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 306.

Under Code Cr. Proc. art. 744, authorizing a bill of exceptions, and these articles, the court may prepare a bill of exceptions where the bill presented is erroneous, and, where the bill as prepared by the judge is not questioned, the court on appeal is bound thereby. Kearse v. State (Cr. App.) 151 S. W. 827.

—— Substitutes.—See, also, notes under Art. 2058.

Even though the trial court wrongfully refused to give a bill of exceptions, ex parte affidavits improperly placed in the transcript cannot be considered on appeal in place of the bill of exceptions. Priddy v. O'Neal (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 35.

Art. 2067. [1369] [1367] Bystanders bill, how obtained.—Should the party be dissatisfied with the bill of exceptions filed by the judge, as provided in the preceding article, he may, upon procuring the signatures of three respectable bystanders, citizens of this state, attesting the correctness of the bill of exceptions as presented by him, have the same filed as part of the record of the cause; and the truth of the matter in reference thereto may be controverted and maintained by affidavits, not exceeding five in number on each side, to be filed with the papers of the cause, within ten days after the filing of such bill of exceptions, and to be considered as a part of the record relating thereto. When the court refuses to sign a correct bill of exceptions, such proceedings may be had in the court of civil appeals, as is prescribed in article 1607. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, secs. 101, 102. Acts of 1892, p. 25.]

See Kearse v. State (Cr. App.) 151 S. W. 827.

Bystanders' bill—When allowed.—Appellant can only take bill of exception from the by-standers after the bill presented by him to the judge has been disapproved. Moore v. State, 47 Cr. R. 410, 83 S. W. 1118.

When bill of exceptions is refused by the court it is open to the party to have same attested by three respectable bystanders by having them attest its correctness, the truth of the matter then to be controverted and maintained by affidavits not exceeding five in number on each side, the whole to be incorporated in the record on appeal. Rabb v. Goodrich & Son, 46 C. A. 541, 102 S. W. 910.

—— Appellee's right to file.—In view of Art. 2058, 2064, 2065, and 2066, held, that appellee could not, under this article, file bills of exceptions supported by affidavits relating to a matter excepted to by appellant alone, whose exceptions were approved by the court, nor would the judge's refusal to submit appellant's exceptions to appellee authorize such course, so that costs of such exceptions included in the transcript by appellee, and of the supporting affidavits, will be taxed against him. Baum v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 984.

—— Time of preparation, verification, and filing.—To meet the requirements of this statute the bill must be prepared and sworn to and filed at the time the occurrence of the matters to which it relates transpired. Dehougne v. Telegraph Co. (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 1068.

A bill of exceptions attested by bystanders as permitted by statute must be prepared, sworn to, and filed at the time of the occurrences of the matters to which it relates. Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 699.

—— Matters to be shown.—A bill of exceptions authenticated by bystanders should show on its face that the persons signing were bystanders, that they were present when the facts in dispute occurred, and that the certificate was given at the time of the occurrence. Houston v. Jones, 4 T. 170; Hardie v. Campbell, 63 T. 292.

In proving up a bill of exceptions by bystanders it is insufficient if it fails to show that it was presented to the judge and by him acted on in any way or refused. Weatherford v. State, 49 Cr. R. 293, 91 S. W. 591.

Bill of exceptions attested by bystanders must show that it was refused by trial judge. Shook v. Shook (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 699.

—— Signing and verifying.—A bill of exceptions, not signed by the judge or by bystanders, is no part of the record. Land v. Klein, 21 C. A. 3, 50 S. W. 638.

Under this article, bills which the court refused to sign, not accompanied by affidavits, will not be considered. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Holt, 30 C. A. 330, 70 S. W. 591.

When resort is made to bystanders to have bill of exceptions attested, the affidavit of one witness is not sufficient. The statute requires three. Taylor v. State (Cr. App.) 87 S. W. 1039.

Appellate court will not consider bill of exception refused by the court and authenticated only by the affidavit of counsel for appellant. Rabb v. Goodrich & Son, 46 C. A. 541, 102 S. W. 910.

In view of Art. 2066 and this article, held, that a bill of exceptions presented and refused must be attested by bystanders to be entitled to consideration on appeal, and if not so attested that signed by the judge will be taken as correct. Washington v. State, 58 Cr. R. 345, 125 S. W. 917.

Under this article it is necessary that a bystanders' bill of exceptions shall be sworn to by the bystanders or supported by the affidavits of others. Conger v. State, 63 Cr. R. 312, 140 S. W. 1112.

Art. 2068. [1379] [1377] Statement of facts, how prepared.—After the trial of any cause, either party may make out a written statement of the facts given in evidence on the trial, and submit the same to the opposite party, or his attorney, for inspection. If the parties, or their attorneys, agree upon such statement of facts, they shall sign the same; and it shall then be submitted to the judge, who shall, if he find it correct, approve and sign it; and the same shall be filed with the clerk.

Where it is agreed by the parties to the suit, or their attorneys of record, that the evidence adduced upon the trial of the cause is sufficient to establish a fact or facts alleged by either party, the testimony of the witnesses and the deeds, wills, records, or other written instruments, admitted as evidence relating thereto, shall not be stated or copied in detail into a statement of facts; but the facts thus established shall be stated as facts proved in the case; provided, an instrument, such as a note or other contract, mortgage or deed of trust, that constitutes the cause of action on which the petition, or answer, or cross-bill, or intervention, is founded may be copied once in the statement of facts. When there is any reasonable doubt of the sufficiency of the evidence to constitute proof of any one fact under the preceding rule, there may then be inserted such of the testimony of the witnesses and written instruments, or parts thereof, as relate to such facts. [Acts 1892, p. 42.]

See Mundine v. State, 50 Cr. R. 93, 97 S. W. 491; Serop v. Same, 154 S. W. 557.

73. Use of statement in subsequent trial.

1. Not repealed by act of 1905.—Act 29th Leg. c. 112, authorizing stenographic reports of the evidence, does not repeal these articles as to preparing statement of facts. If the statement of facts is not filed within 20 days from adjournment of court, it cannot be considered, except for good reason for not filing in time. Baker v. State, 50 Cr. R. 354, 97 S. W. 81, 82.

2. Statute merely directory.—Statutes regulating such procedure as the preparation of statements of facts on appeal are directory, and rights are not always to be lost by failing to follow them. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Waggoner, 102 T. 260, 115 S. W. 1172.

3. "After the trial."—Entry of judgment nunc pro tunc held part of the trial within the provision authorizing the making of a statement of facts "after the trial" for purpose of appeal. Palmo v. S. W. Slayden & Co., 100 T. 13, 92 S. W. 796.

4. Motion for new trial unnecessary to authorize statement.—No motion for new trial is necessary to authorize the attorneys and court to make up and sign statement of facts upon which judgment is based; and when the facts are thus stated the record is sufficiently complete to enable the appellate courts to decide whether under the most favorable view of the facts the successful party was entitled to the judgment entered. Greer v. Featherston, 95 T. 654, 69 S. W. 71.

5. Necessity of statement of facts—In general.—See, also, post, 8-25.

A party may appeal without a statement of facts in a case where the judge has stated his conclusion of facts, and call in question the correctness of the judgment on the facts, although the conclusions of the judge were not excepted to. Craxton v. Ryan, 3 App. C. C. § 368.

Where the bond involved in an action is excluded from the evidence, a statement of facts is not necessary to the record on appeal. State v. Wharton, 26 C. A. 262, 63 S. W. 915.

A judgment recital held not to contain all the evidence, so as to dispense with the necessity for a statement of facts, on appeal. De Garcia v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 275.

Where a liquor bond sued on was excluded when offered in evidence, it was not necessary for plaintiff to proceed and prove a cause of action and file a statement of facts on appeal to obtain a review of such ruling. Castellano v. Marks, 37 C. A. 273, 83 S. W. 729.

6. —— Where service by publication.—A statement of facts must be made in all cases where there is service by publication. Art. 2005; Hewitt v. Thomas, 46 T. 232; Burns v. Batey, 1 App. C. C. § 420; Chaffee v. Bryan, 1 App. C. C. § 772, citing McFadden v. Lockhart, 7 T. 575; Davis v. Davis, 24 T. 187.

7. —— Statement of facts or bill of exceptions.—See notes under Art. 2058.

8. Decisions not reviewable without statement—In general.—Where there is no statement of facts, an assignment that the court erred in a specified holding cannot be sustained. Pinkard v. Willis, 28 C. A. 198, 67 S. W. 135.

Certain assignment of error held not reviewable on appeal, in absence of statement of facts. Renfro v. Harris (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 237; Guyer v. Snow, 40 C. A. 407, 90 S. W. 71; Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Breeding, 45 C. A. 73, 100 S. W. 800.

Questions presented by assignments of error, based upon matters which should appear in a statement of facts or bill of exceptions, cannot be considered in the absence thereof. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Kinser (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 243.

Where there is no statement of fact, the only assignments of error which will be reviewed are those questioning the court's action on demurrers. Sowers v. Yeoman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1153.

There being no statement of facts in the record, and defendants not having been represented at the trial, they cannot complain on appeal, except for fundamental error. Dishman v. Frost (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 358.

Where an appeal in a proceeding for the probate of a will is without any statement of facts or conclusions of fact by the trial court, judgment will be affirmed. In re Ellis' Estate (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 398.

In the absence of any statement of facts or findings of facts or conclusions of law, and the judgment being warranted by the pleadings, so far as error is assigned, the assignments of error will be overruled. Buster v. Woody (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 689.

In the absence of a statement of facts, the appellate court can consider only such fundamental errors of law as are apparent upon the record. Albers v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1001.

9. —— Relating to venue.—Where a claim of privilege to be sued in the county of defendant's residence was raised by plea involving an issue of fact, the denial thereof could not be reviewed in the absence of a statement of facts or a finding by the court in the record. Lumpkin v. Blewitt (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1072.

A statement of facts is a prerequisite to review of a ruling sustaining a plea of privilege to be sued in another county, where the plea sufficiently meets the allegations of the petition. Burgess v. Young County Abstract & Title Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 643.

10. —— Relating to parties.—An objection that plaintiff was a foreign corporation not authorized to do business in the state could not be raised by assignment of error, where there was no statement of facts. Pratt v. Interstate Savings & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 921.

11. —— Rulings on pleadings.—In an absence of a statement of facts, and where the judgment is authorized by the pleadings, rulings upon special exceptions, in giving or refusing charges and in receiving or excluding evidence will not be reviewed. Smith v. Pecos Valley & N. E. Ry. Co., 43 C. A. 204, 95 S. W. 11.

In the absence of a statement of facts, exceptions to rulings on pleadings, evidence, or instructions will not be reviewed. Hines v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 289.

Assignments based upon the exclusion of evidence and in some cases upon the overruling of special exceptions will rarely be considered in the absence of a statement of facts. Drummond v. Allen Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 739.

Assignments of error, based on rulings upon the special exceptions to pleading, could not be reviewed in the absence of a statement of facts. Smyer v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 336.

12. —— Denial of continuance.—See, also, post, 68.

In the absence of a statement of facts, the denial of a continuance could not be reviewed; there being nothing in the record from which the court could determine the materiality of the alleged absent testimony. Love v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 183.

13. —— Interlocutory proceedings.—Order of a court charging costs against an estate in a proceeding determined adversely to the administratrix held not reversible, in the absence of a statement of facts. Pierson v. Blanton, 33 C. A. 620, 77 S. W. 433.

14. —— Admissibility of evidence.—Statement of facts necessary to show error in the admission (May v. Ferrell, 22 T. 340; Hardemyer v. Young, 1 App. C. C. § 150) or rejection of evidence (Fulgham v. Bendy, 23 T. 64; Cottrell v. Teagarden, 25 T. 317; Thompson v. Callison, 27 T. 438; Lockett v. Schurenberg, 60 T. 610), unless shown by bill of exceptions (Harvey v. Hill, 7 T. 591; King v. Gray, 17 T. 62; Galbreath v. Templeton, 20 T. 45; Fox v. Sturm, 21 T. 406; Jones v. Cavasos, 29 T. 428; McCarty v. Wood, 42 T. 38; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. McAllister, 59 T. 349), and its relevancy and materiality is apparent from the pleadings (Galbreath v. Templeton, 20 T. 45; Tarlton v. Daily, 55 T. 92; Lockett v. Schurenberg, 60 T. 610; Wade v. Buford, 1 App. C. C. § 1335; Torrey

v. Cameron, 74 T. 187, 11 S. W. 1088; Goodale v. Douglass, 24 S. W. 966, 5 C. A. 695; Stonebraker v. Friar, 70 T. 202, 7 S. W. 799; Railway Co. v. Edwards, 75 T. 334, 12 S. W. 853; Devore v. Crowder, 66 T. 204, 18 S. W. 501).

The general rule is that without a statement of facts the appellate court will not revise the rulings of the trial court in the admission or exclusion of evidence. Torrey v. Cameron, 74 T. 187, 11 S. W. 1088.

Where the statement of facts has been stricken from the record, the exclusion of testimony cannot be reviewed. Rosenfield Const. Co. v. Cooney (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 1004.

In the absence of a statement of facts, assignments of error relating to the admission of evidence cannot be considered. Greer v. First Nat. Bank of Marble Falls (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 1045; Smith v. Pecos Valley & N. E. Ry. Co., 43 C. A. 204, 95 S. W. 11; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hill (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 227; Hines v. Sparks, 146 S. W. 289; Albers v. Roberts, 155 S. W. 1001.

Rulings on evidence will not be reviewed if there is no statement of facts. Walker v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 602; Brown v. Vizcaya (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 191; Ivy v. Ivy, 51 C. A. 397, 112 S. W. 110.

In the absence of a statement of facts, alleged error cannot be considered on a bill of exceptions taken to the exclusion of certain testimony. State v. Scholl (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 205.

In the absence of a statement of facts, the exclusion of evidence cannot be made the basis of an assignment of error. Ackermann v. Ackermann (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 755.

In the absence of a statement of facts or bill of exceptions, rulings on evidence cannot be reviewed. Moore v. State (Cr. App.) 61 S. W. 487.

Exclusion of testimony will not be reviewed on appeal in the absence of a statement of facts, unless the bill of exceptions shows that the error was prejudicial. Gatlin v. Street, 40 C. A. 304, 90 S. W. 318.

Where there is no statement of facts legally in the record, assignments of error relating to matters of evidence will not be considered. Lee v. Hickson, 40 C. A. 632, 91 S. W. 636.

In the absence of a statement of facts, errors in rulings on evidence or the sufficiency thereof to support the findings cannot be reviewed, except where such errors can be discerned from the bill of exceptions alone, or in connection with the pleadings and findings of fact by the court. Garrison v. Richards (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 861.

Assignments of error relating to the admissibility of evidence will not be considered in the absence of a statement of facts. Royal Ins. Co. v. Texas & G. Ry. Co., 53 C. A. 154, 115 S. W. 117, 123.

Generally, the ruling of the trial court in admitting or rejecting evidence will not be revised when there is no statement of facts in the record. Daniel v. Daniel (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 469.

Assignments of error complaining of rulings on evidence will not be reviewed in the absence of a statement of facts and bill of exceptions. McKenzie & Ferguson v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1071.

The admission or exclusion of evidence is not reviewable, in the absence of a statement of facts. Bray v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 290.

Assignments based upon the exclusion of evidence will rarely be considered in the absence of a statement of facts. Drummond v. Allen Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 739.

Objections to the exclusion of testimony are not reviewable in the absence of a statement of facts showing that the objections were properly made and exception to the court's ruling saved. Albrecht v. Lignoski (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 354.

Where the statement of facts is stricken for failure to comply with supreme court rules 72 and 78, assignments of error relating to the admission of evidence and the court's charge cannot be reviewed. McWilliams v. Ft. Stockton Irrigated Lands Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 556.

In the absence of a statement of facts, it cannot be said that there was error in admitting evidence of reputation of plaintiff in a suit to reinstate his retail liquor license annulled by the comptroller, or if there was error that it did, with reasonable certainty, inflict substantial injury on defendant. Lane v. Hewgley (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 911.

15. —— Weight and sufficiency of evidence.—See also, post, 19-21, 68.

Where no statement of facts is filed, the sufficiency of evidence to identify lands in controversy cannot be questioned. Edling v. Burnett, 19 C. A. 287, 46 S. W. 907.

Assignments of error in failing to prove essentials overruled, because there was no statement of facts. Walker v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 602.

The sufficiency of evidence cannot be reviewed without a statement of facts. Walker v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 602; Ivy v. Ivy, 51 C. A. 397, 112 S. W. 110; Williams v. Robertson, 52 C. A. 599, 115 S. W. 887; Rawls v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 431.

Assignments of error relating to the sufficiency of the evidence, the admissibility of evidence, and the instructions will not be considered in the absence of a statement of facts. Royal Ins. Co. v. Texas & G. Ry. Co., 53 C. A. 154, 115 S. W. 117, 123.

In absence of a statement of facts, the court of civil appeals can only consider the pleadings, findings, and judgment, and cannot consider any error depending upon the sufficiency of the evidence. Elliott v. Waites & Wilkie (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 992.

The assignments of error complaining of the insufficiency of the evidence will not be reviewed in the absence of a statement of facts and bill of exceptions. McKenzie & Ferguson v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1071.

Absence of statement of facts from the record on appeal from a judgment enjoining an execution held to prevent the court from saying that a ground for injunction set up in the petition was not proved at the trial. Hillsman v. Cline (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 726.

In the absence of a statement of facts, assignments raising the insufficiency of the evidence must be overruled. McGaff v. Scrimshire (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 976.

16. —— Questions involving evidence.—Questions arising upon the evidence cannot be reviewed on appeal, in the absence of a statement of facts. Applebaum v. Bass (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 173.

In the absence of a statement of facts, an assignment of error involving the testimony cannot be considered. Hall & Tyson v. First Nat. Bank, 53 C. A. 101, 115 S. W. 293.

Where all questions raised for review depend on the evidence, the court cannot say that reversible error was committed where there is no statement of facts. Hunter v. Russell (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 696.

Assignments of error involving a consideration of the evidence cannot be considered on appeal, in the absence of a statement of facts. Boyette v. Glass (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 819.

Assignments of error, relating to a question of fact, involving review of the evidence, cannot be considered in the absence of a statement of facts. Boren-Stewart Co. v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 367.

In the absence of a statement of facts, a question depending upon the evidence cannot be reviewed; the court's charges and accused's special charges given having correctly presented the law applicable. Wood v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 194.

17. —— Questions depending on facts.—Where the record contains no statement of facts, such assignments as involve issues of fact cannot be considered. Beaumont Imp. Co. v. Carr, 32 C. A. 615, 75 S. W. 327.

Where there is no statement of facts in the record, and no finding that property involved was a homestead, the appellate court cannot consider that issue. Featherstone v. Brown (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 470.

Whether any consideration ever passed from plaintiff for the execution of the notes sued on cannot be determined on appeal in the absence of a statement of facts. Forty-Acre Spring Live Stock Co. v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 417.

Where the statement of facts has been stricken out, and all the appellants' assignments present only such alleged errors as arose upon the facts proved, the court must affirm the judgment. Stubbs v. Catrett (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 498.

An assignment of error depending on the facts cannot be considered, in absence of a statement of facts. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 327.

In the absence of a statement of facts, assignments of error depending on the facts must be overruled. S. K. McCall Co. v. Page (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 655.

18. —— Submission of issues.—See, also, post, 68.

An objection that there was no evidence to authorize the submission of an issue to the jury cannot be considered on appeal, in the absence of a statement of facts. Ennis Mercantile Co. v. Wathen (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 971.

19. —— Instructions.—Alleged errors in giving or refusing charges cannot be reviewed without a statement of facts (Ross v. McGowen, 58 T. 603; Holman v. Britton, 2 T. 297; Armstrong v. Lipscomb, 11 T. 649; McMahan v. Rice, 16 T. 335; Dalby v. Booth, 16 T. 563; Fulgham v. Bendy, 23 T. 64; Birge v. Wanhop, 23 T. 441; Raleigh v. Cook, 60 T. 438; Newby v. Morris [Civ. App.] 29 S. W. 914), except where under the pleadings they are necessarily erroneous (Bast v. Alford, 22 T. 399; Anding v. Perkins, 29 T. 348; Pfeuffer v. Maltby, 54 T. 454, 38 Am. Rep. 631; Hardemyer v. Young, 1 App. C. C. § 150). See, also, Devore v. Crowder, 66 T. 204, 18 S. W. 501; White v. Parks, 67 T. 605, 4 S. W. 245; Harris v. Spence, 70 T. 616, 8 S. W. 313.

An error in the charge will not be reviewed in the absence of a statement of facts. Rosenfield Const. Co. v. Cooney (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 1004; Von Boeckmann v. Loepp, 73 S. W. 849; Hines v. Sparks, 146 S. W. 289.

Assignments of error relating to instructions will not be considered when the record does not contain statement of facts. Scoggins v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 216; Brown v. Vizcaya, 55 S. W. 191; Royal Ins. Co. v. Texas & G. Ry. Co., 53 C. A. 154, 115 S. W. 117, 123.

Assignments of error as to instructions on evidence cannot be considered in the absence of a statement of facts. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Red Cross Stock Farm (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 741.

Assignments of error relating to refusal to give special instructions to admission of testimony cannot be considered in absence of statement of facts. Alvarado Water Supply & Light Co. v. Adoue (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 281.

Alleged errors as to the charge cannot be considered in the absence of a statement of facts. Moore v. State (Cr. App.) 61 S. W. 487; Smith v. Pecos Valley & N. E. Ry. Co., 43 C. A. 204, 95 S. W. 11; Mayo v. Goldman, 44 C. A. 80, 97 S. W. 1061; Oscar v. Oscar (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 554; Williams v. Brice, 108 S. W. 183; Rawls v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 431; McWilliams v. Ft. Stockton Irrigated Lands Co. (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 556.

Where the statement of facts has been stricken out, the charge based on evidence cannot be held erroneous. Green v. Tate (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 486.

Where record contains no statement of facts, appellate court will not pass on instructions, unless it appears that they are so palpably erroneous as to have controlled the verdict. Luna v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1061.

In the absence of a statement of facts on appeal, assignments of error, based on the existence of facts proved in the trial court, cannot be considered, except where the charge is obviously erroneous in the light of the pleadings and verdict. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1067.

Insufficiency of the evidence to warrant a peremptory charge cannot be considered, in the absence of a statement of facts. Colley v. Wood, 32 C. A. 306, 74 S. W. 602.

Where, on appeal, there is no statement of facts, alleged error in refusing to charge that there was no evidence of partnership was not reviewable. Avocato v. Dell 'Ara (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 47.

In the absence of the facts the court on appeal cannot review the requested charges and bills of exceptions. Patterson v. State, 48 Cr. R. 322, 88 S. W. 226.

In the absence of a statement of facts, the court of appeals could not determine whether there was error in the charge. Granberry v. Mussman (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 533; Pioneer Lumber Co. v. Smither, 135 S. W. 705.

The court on appeal cannot review, in the absence of a statement of facts, an instruction submitting a ground of recovery not alleged in the petition. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Elliott, 42 C. A. 519, 93 S. W. 706.

An objection that the charge erroneously placed the burden of proof on plaintiffs could not be reviewed, in the absence of a statement of facts or bill of exceptions. Aultman, Miller & Co. v. Moore & Bridgeman (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 17.

Assignment that the court erred in giving instructions could not be reviewed where the transcript on the writ of error failed to contain a statement of facts. Jenkins v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 46 C. A. 565, 102 S. W. 937.

Assignments relating to the charge and to the court's action in admitting certain testimony could not be reviewed, where the record contained merely a detached uncertified statement of certain of the testimony without a statement of facts. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hill (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 227.

Generally an appellate court will not review charges given or refused in the absence of a statement of facts, except where the error is so plainly apparent when considered in connection with the pleading and verdict as to leave no doubt but that the jury's finding was controlled by improper instructions. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Waggoner (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 971.

In the absence of a statement of facts errors in the giving and refusal of instructions cannot be considered. Ivy v. Ivy, 51 C. A. 397, 112 S. W. 110; Bray v. First. Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 290.

In the absence of a statement of facts, the appellate court will not review the sufficiency and correctness of the charge. Green v. State, 54 Cr. R. 381, 113 S. W. 15.

In the absence of a statement showing that the evidence authorized the giving of an instruction, the error complaining of the refusal to give the instruction cannot be considered. Hess v. Webb (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 618.

Assignments of error as to the sufficiency of the charge and evidence are unavailing, in the absence of a statement of facts. Williams v. Robertson, 52 C. A. 599, 115 S. W. 887.

In an action for false imprisonment, the court held not authorized to review instructions in the absence of a statement of facts. Petty v. Morgan, 53 C. A. 584, 116 S. W. 141.

Assignments of error complaining of the instructions will not be considered, in the absence of a statement of facts except in a specified case. Petty v. Morgan, 53 C. A. 584, 116 S. W. 141.

In the absence of a statement of facts, exceptions to the court's charge will not be considered. Rountree v. D. H. Bell & Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1080.

Error in refusing an instruction seeking to eliminate testimony could not be reviewed, where the statement of facts did not point out the particular evidence objected to. Gilmore v. Brown (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 964.

In the absence of a statement of facts, the refusal to give requested charges is not reviewable. Hughes v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 1173.

The giving or refusing of instructions is not reviewable, in the absence of a statement of facts, except where the error in the charge is so apparent as to leave no doubt, but that the jury's finding was controlled thereby. Smyer v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 339.

Assignments of error to instructions on the ground of insufficiency of the evidence to sustain them cannot be reviewed in the absence of a statement of facts. Albrecht v. Lignoski (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 354.

In the absence of a statement of facts, assignments of error based upon the refusal of special charges or error in the charge given cannot be considered. Albers v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1001.

20. —— Conclusions of law and fact.—See also, post, 67, 68.

When a cause is tried before the judge without a jury, in the absence of a statement of facts his conclusions of facts cannot be questioned. Chance v. Branch, 58 T. 490; Bailey v. Hearn, 1 App. C. C. § 969; Fire Ins. Ass'n v. Miller, 2 App. C. C. § 335.

In the absence of a statement of facts, the court's conclusion of facts cannot be reviewed. Yeiser v. Burdett, 10 C. A. 155, 29 S. W. 912; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Purcell, 91 T. 585, 44 S. W. 1058; Sweet v. Lowrey, 26 C. A. 306, 63 S. W. 166; Bean v. Bird (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 121; Witt v. Byrum, 135 S. W. 687; Cofield v. Supreme Camp of American Woodmen, 151 S. W. 341.

In an action to restrain a sale on execution, the finding that plaintiff was concluded by a former judgment will not be reversed in the absence of a statement of facts. Finlay v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 310.

Where a statement of facts is stricken out on motion of defendants in error, assignment of error complaining of conclusions of fact found by the trial court cannot be considered. First Nat. Bank v. Hodges (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 827.

A finding in reconvention that defendants sustained damage, from the wrongful suing out of an injunction, to a certain sum, in the absence of an exception to the plea and a statement of facts, cannot be disturbed. Cates v. McClure, 27 C. A. 459, 66 S. W. 224.

An assignment of error that the evidence does not support the findings of fact will not be considered, where there is no statement of facts. Tarrant County v. Reed, 28 C. A. 425, 67 S. W. 785.

The sufficiency of the evidence to support the findings will not be reviewed, in the absence of a statement of facts, except under specified circumstances. Garrison v. Richards (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 861.

In the absence of a statement of facts, the court cannot determine that a finding is unsupported by or contrary to the evidence. McComas v. Curtis (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 594.

An assignment of error to finding of insufficient damages is not reviewable, in the absence of a statement of facts. Williamson v. Ward (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1166.

Assignments of error that the findings of fact are not supported by the evidence, and that the conclusions of law are not warranted by the evidence, cannot be reviewed in the absence of a statement of facts. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Myers (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 762.

In the absence of a statement of facts, the trial court's findings of fact and the sufficiency of the evidence to sustain such findings could not be reviewed, where it did not appear that he committed any error in applying the law to his conclusion of fact. Edins v. Gunby (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 974.

21. —— Verdict or judgment.—See, also, post, 68.

Alleged errors in the verdict of the jury cannot be reviewed without a statement of facts. Walling v. Kinnard, 10 T. 508, 60 Am. Dec. 216; Gouhenant v. Anderson, 20 T. 459; Baldwin v. Dearborn, 21 T. 446; St. Clair v. McGehee, 22 T. 5; Smith v. Allen, 28 T. 497; Greenwade v. Walling, 30 T. 377; Phelps v. Zuschlag, 34 T. 371; Gammage v. Moore, 42 T. 170; Caldwell v. Brown, 43 T. 216; Johnson v. Blount, 48 T. 38; Raleigh v. Cook, 60 T. 438; Hayes v. Bass, 1 App. C. C. § 15; Greenwood v. Watts, 1 App. C. C. § 115; Wade v. Buford, 1 App. C. C. § 1337. And in this case, a bill of exceptions purporting to state all the evidence, will not be considered. Carolan v. Jefferson, 24 T. 229; Roundtree v. City of Galveston, 42 T. 612. But the court will, in the absence of a statement of facts, consider an assignment of error relating to the sufficiency of the petition to warrant a judgment. Id.; Neill v. Newton, 24 T. 202; Davis v. McGehee, 24 T. 209; City of Laredo v. Russell, 56 T. 398.

Where the statement of facts is not in the record, the question whether the judgment is supported by the testimony cannot be considered. Williams v. State (Cr. App.) 44 S. W. 520.

In suit by landlord against tenant for rent, the rent having been payable in part of the crops and a distress warrant having been levied, taxation of tenant with part of cost of gathering crops could not be regarded as error, in absence of statement of facts. Gore v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 520.

Where there is no statement of facts, the affidavit of a juror will not be permitted on appeal to impeach the verdict. Dennis v. Neal (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 387.

Assignments of error, challenging the sufficiency of the evidence to support the judgment, cannot be considered, in the absence of a statement of facts. Sloan v. Schumpert (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1005.

Where the record contains no statement of facts, an objection that the verdict is not supported by evidence and is against the weight of the evidence will not be considered on appeal. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Waggoner (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 971.

In absence of a statement of facts on appeal from a judgment awarding a materialman part of the amount claimed, held, that it could not be said that the judgment for plaintiff for only a part of his claim was contrary to the findings. Elliott v. Waites & Wilkie (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 992.

An assignment of error that the judgment is against the law and the evidence cannot be considered in absence of statement of facts. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 703.

Judgments on the merits will not be reversed on appeal, in absence of a statement of facts. Young v. Dudney (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 802.

In the absence of a statement of facts, it must be held the judgment for defendant in sequestration against plaintiff and the sureties on his replevy bond for the property, or its value, and for the rent thereof, and against plaintiff for exemplary damages, was properly rendered. Morris v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 677.

In the absence of a statement of facts, assignments raising the insufficiency of the evidence to support the judgment must be overruled. McGaff v. Scrimshire (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 976.

In the absence of a statement of facts, the sufficiency of the evidence to support the verdict cannot be passed on. Lane v. Hewgley (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 911.

22. —— Motions for new trial.—Where the record on appeal contains no statement of facts, the action of the trial court in overruling defendant's formal motion for a new trial, not sworn to, and based on the ground that the judgment was contrary to the law and evidence, cannot be considered. Kruegel v. Bolanz (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 435.

Without a statement of facts the appellate court cannot review the action of the trial court in refusing to grant a new trial. Green v. State (Cr. App.) 107 S. W. 840.

Where the only questions attempted to be raised on appeal from a conviction, without a statement of facts or bill of exceptions, are those presented by a motion for a new trial, which could not be considered without a statement of facts, the judgment will be affirmed. Landry v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 197.

Where the record on appeal shows no bills of exceptions or statements of facts, grounds of a motion for new trial relating to the admission of testimony cannot be reviewed. Marlow v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 610.

23. —— Questions arising after judgment.—Overruling motion to set aside judgment because no evidence was introduced cannot be reviewed in the absence of a statement of facts or certificate of judge. Salinas v. State, 39 Cr. R. 319, 45 S. W. 900.

24. —— Costs.—There being no statement of facts, held, that an apportionment of costs would not be disturbed. Crow v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 920.

25. Decisions reviewable without statement.—See, also, notes under Art. 1607.

In the absence of a statement of facts the appellate court will only pass on instructions when it appears they are so palpably erroneous as to have controlled the verdict. Luna v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1061.

Where the pleadings show that a charge is necessarily erroneous, held, that it could be reviewed without a statement of facts. P. B. Haight & Co. v. Turner & Pierce, 44 C. A. 595, 99 S. W. 196.

The rule that, in the absence of a statement of facts, the court will not consider errors in the admission or rejection of evidence, held inapplicable where the evidence was material and relevant under any probable state of the testimony. Ivy v. Ivy, 51 C. A. 397, 112 S. W. 110.

In the absence of a statement of facts, the court of civil appeals can only consider the pleadings, findings, and judgment. Elliott v. Waites & Wilkie (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 992.

Where there is no statement of facts, the only questions reviewable are the court's rulings on demurrers. Sowers v. Yeoman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1153.

A judgment for the shipper in an action for loss of goods held based on a certain ground so as to make applicable the rule that a judgment will be reversed even in absence of a statement of fact if the excluded evidence be relevant. Southern Pac. Co. v. C. H. Cox & Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 103.

Only fundamental errors apparent on the face of the record may be considered in the absence of a statement of facts. Dishman v. Frost (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 358; Albers v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1001.

Assignments based upon the exclusion of evidence and in some cases upon the overruling of special exceptions will rarely be considered in the absence of a statement of facts; but, where bills of exceptions are in the record sufficient to reveal the facts to the court, the rule does not apply. Drummond v. Allen Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 739.

26. Form and contents of statement—In general.—See, also, post, 37.

An instrument that constitutes the cause of action or defense may be copied once. Facts established by competent evidence should be stated and the testimony relating thereto should be omitted. When there is a reasonable doubt as to the sufficiency of the evidence, it may be stated at length. A deed or its record, a will or its probate, record of a court or any written instrument should be described and its legal effect stated when there is no question as to its validity or correctness in form. When questions are raised on such instruments, only so much shall be copied as may be necessary to present the question. Evidence contained in depositions must be stated in the same manner as if the witness had been on the stand, and the commissions, notices and interrogatories must not be copied in any case. Rules 71-75, 47 T. 629; Rules 72-76, 84 T. 718; Dreiss v. Friedrich, 57 T. 70. Papers and orders referred to in the statement of facts must be identified. Stephens v. Bowerman, 27 T. 18; Poag v. Williams, 31 T. 193; Taul v. Wright, 45 T. 388.

The statement of facts should be so prepared as that no doubt can arise as to the paper purporting to be such statement being an accurate and complete statement of all the facts proven upon the trial of the case. See this case for a statement of facts not so prepared. Walker & Sons v. Allen (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 586.

Where the refusal of a request to charge is complained of, it is the duty of the appellant to show in the statement that the evidence presented the issue and authorized the charge. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Stewart (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 282.

27. —— Setting forth errors.—Errors in an answer cannot be considered where the statement of facts mingles the answer with another answer. Barnett v. Houston, 18 C. A. 134, 44 S. W. 689.

The court need not consider admission of evidence, statement of facts failing to show admission, though it is stated in bill of exceptions. City of Dallas v. Jones (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 606.

Where statement of facts fails to show records were introduced in evidence, assignment of error in their admission will be overruled. Morgan v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 111.

Where statement of facts and bill of exceptions were agreed to, objection to exclusion of evidence, not shown to have been offered by statement of facts, cannot be reviewed. Krick v. Dow (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 245.

Appellant cannot base an assignment of error upon the alleged exclusion of evidence which is shown by the agreed statement of facts to have been admitted. Barstow Irr. Co. v. Black, 39 C. A. 80, 86 S. W. 1036.

The court of civil appeals cannot review an objection that defendant was required, as shown by a bill of exceptions, to give certain incompetent testimony, where the statement of facts approved by the trial judge does not show that defendant was required to give such testimony. Yates v. Bratton (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 416.

No error in the admission of testimony set out in a bill of exceptions is shown, when the statement of facts fails to show that such testimony was admitted. Morris v. Moon (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1063.

Where the statement of facts did not show that a witness testified to the facts set out in the bill of exceptions and complained of in an assignment of error, the court of review could not decide that error existed. Lind v. Reeves & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 262.

28. —— Setting forth objections.—An assignment to the admission of evidence cannot be considered where the grounds of objection were not disclosed in the statement of facts referred to in the brief. London v. Crow, 46 C. A. 190, 102 S. W. 177.

29. —— Showing prejudice.—An assignment of error will be overruled where the statement of facts is insufficient to show whether injury resulted from the matter complained of. Herring v. Herring (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 865.

30. —— Use of stenographer's report.—See, also, post, 61.

The full stenographic notes of the testimony and proceedings on the trial should not incumber the record as a substitute for the statement of facts. Dreiss v. Friedrich, 57 T. 70.

The use of the stenographer's report of testimony in a statement of facts condemned. Rains v. Wheeler, 76 T. 390, 13 S. W. 324.

The stenographer's uncondensed minutes cannot be considered as the statement of facts, under district court rule 78 (20 S. W. xvi). Wentworth v. King (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 696.

31. —— Setting forth evidence in general.—Testimony objected to in a bill of exceptions and admitted must appear in the statement of facts. Railway Co. v. Knippa (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 730; Yeiser v. Burdett, 10 C. A. 155, 29 S. W. 912. See Railway Co. v. Rowland (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 421.

The court on reviewing assignments of error cannot go beyond the statement of facts for the evidence. Rabb v. Texas Loan & Investment Co. (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 77.

Assignments of error to the giving of a charge, the propriety of which depends on the evidence, cannot be considered, where the statement does not set out the evidence. Nagle v. Simmank, 54 C. A. 432, 116 S. W. 862.

An assignment of error to the admission of evidence cannot be considered; the testimony, referred to in the bill of exceptions, not appearing in the agreed statement of facts. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Grenig (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 135.

An assignment to the refusal of an instruction as to the binding effect of evidence cannot be reviewed, where the statement of facts did not show what evidence was objected to. Gilmore v. Brown (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 964.

Where the statement of facts does not show the admission of testimony complained of, an assignment of error will be overruled. Lind v. Reeves & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 262.

Parties have the right to have all evidence which was admitted in a trial to the court embodied in a statement of facts or bill of exceptions. Ried v. Robertson (Sup.) 156 S. W. 196.

32. —— Questions and answers.—See, also, post, 61.

Questions and answers of a witness may be stated when necessary for the purpose of revealing the evasive and contradictory nature of the answers of the witness. Feist v. Booke (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 33.

A statement of facts must not consist of questions and answers. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quinn (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1038.

A statement of facts, which consists entirely of questions and answers, cannot be considered, where there is nothing in the record indicating that the trial judge deemed it necessary to an understanding of the case to so make up such statement of facts. Essary v. State, 53 Cr. R. 596, 111 S. W. 927.

33. —— Excluded evidence.—The statute makes no provision for embracing in the statement of facts evidence excluded by the court on the trial. This excluded evidence, if party excepts to ruling, can be presented to appellate court by bill of exceptions. Home Circle Society No. 2 v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 320.

It is not proper to incorporate in the statement of facts copies of instruments offered in evidence, but excluded. Howard v. McBee (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 450.

34. —— Agreement of parties as to evidence.—An agreement between opposing counsel incorporated in the transcript, to the effect that the evidence found in the statement of facts contained in the transcript of another cause on appeal may be used in the supreme court, contemplates a mode of procedure not recognized by law and will be disregarded. Johnson v. Railway Co., 69 T. 641, 7 S. W. 379.

An agreement of the parties as to the evidence which the judge directed to be incorporated in the statement of facts after it was signed by him cannot be considered, and it will be stricken out by the appellate court on motion. State v. Alcorn, 78 T. 387, 14 S. W. 663; Mason v. Rogers, 83 T. 389, 18 S. W. 811.

Where parties agree that the evidence introduced establishes certain facts, the evidence should not be given in detail in the statement of facts. T. C. R. Co. v. Flanary (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 214.

35. —— Copying written instruments, etc.—See also, post, 61, and Art. 2070 and notes.

A statement of facts setting out documentary evidence, etc., in full, held a flagrant violation of district court rules 72-78 (20 S. W. xvi), authorizing the court of civil appeals, under rule 53 (31 S. W. vii), to disregard the same. Heidenheimer v. Tannenbaum, 23 C. A. 567, 56 S. W. 776.

Under district court rules 74 and 86 (20 S. W. xvi, xvii), a judgment directed to be copied by the clerk held not in the record. Conner v. Williamson, 26 C. A. 285, 62 S. W. 961.

Under district court rule 74, where the statement of facts does not contain a copy of the bond sued on, but merely a direction to the clerk to insert a copy, the bond cannot be considered. Bowden v. Davis (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 47.

Where laws of another state, introduced in evidence and cited in the statement of facts on appeal, were not copied therein, the supreme court could not go outside the statement to ascertain the contents of such citations. National Bank of Commerce v. Kenney, 98 T. 293, 83 S. W. 368.

Only such part of the instrument as is material to the issue must be copied in the statement of facts. Runck v. Timon, 47 C. A. 435, 105 S. W. 225.

Error in instructions as to power to waive conditions in a contract of carriage held not reviewable where the contract was not set out in the statement of facts either in terms or in substance. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Burns, 101 T. 329, 107 S. W. 49.

Where no question is raised on appeal with reference to an affidavit, it need not be set out in the statement of facts. Hayes v. Groesbeck (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 327.

36. Reservation of exceptions in statement.—See, also, notes under Art. 2058.

Rule governing reservation in the statement of facts of an exception to the admission of testimony, stated. Dobson v. Zimmerman, 55 C. A. 394, 118 S. W. 236.

37. Sufficiency of statement in general.—See, also, ante, 26.

An instrument held not a statement of facts on appeal. Scott v. Cox, 30 C. A. 190, 70 S. W. 802.

A statement of facts not prepared in accordance with the law in force at the time of the trial of the case cannot be considered by the appellate court. Elliott v. Ferguson (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 518.

A statement of facts held such that questions relating to the facts could not be considered on appeal. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Whitfield (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 710.

A statement of facts in a record on appeal held to be correct. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Herring (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1155.

38. Execution and approval—In general.—A statement of facts may be signed after the death of a party. Wamble v. Graves, 1 App. C. C. § 481.

A statement of facts not properly signed and approved cannot be considered. Owen v. Cibolo Creek Mill & Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 297.

39. —— Signature of parties or attorneys.—A party who does not sign an agreed statement is not affected thereby. Blow v. Heirs of De La Garza, 42 T. 232. And the approval of the judge does not authenticate it. Renn v. Samos, 42 T. 104; Peet v. Hereford, 1 App. C. C. § 869; Henry v. Shain, 1 App. C. C. § 1074.

A statement of facts held binding on all parties retaining an attorney signing it, though he signed as attorney for one only. McMillan v. Hendricks' Estate (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 859.

On an appeal from a denial of an application for an order of sale to pay creditors, held, that the signature to a statement of facts of a certain creditor's attorneys was unnecessary. Id.

Paper styled "agreed facts," but not signed by attorneys for parties nor approved and signed by trial judge, will not be considered by appellate court. Maury v. Keller (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 59.

The court cannot consider a purported statement of facts, which is not signed by the attorneys, and there is no certificate of the judge that the parties disagreed and that he prepared the statement of facts or that it was ever presented to the attorneys of either party; the only attestation being the word "approved," signed by the judge. Bath v. Houston & T. Ry. Co., 34 C. A. 234, 78 S. W. 994.

A statement of facts must be signed by the parties or their attorneys. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quinn (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 1038.

A purported statement of facts not signed by any one, or approved by the trial court, cannot be considered on appeal. Elliott v. Waties & Wilkie (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 992.

Parties brought into the suit by appellant, but who did not sign the statement of facts, are not bound by it. Lupton v. Willmann (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 261.

40. —— Approval and signature of judge.—A statement must be approved and signed by the judge (Tardiff v. State, 23 T. 169; Witten v. Poindexter, 25 T. 378; Bell v. State, 29 T. 492; Johnson v. Blount, 48 T. 38; Farley v. Deslonde, 58 T. 588; Taylor v. Campbell, 59 T. 315; Western U. Tel. Co. v. Walker [Civ. App.] 26 S. W. 858; Railway Co. v. Calvert, 31 S. W. 679; Gibson v. Schoolcraft, 1 App. C. C. § 49; Tennille v. Morgan [Civ. App.] 35 S. W. 514), and filed within the time prescribed by law (Folts v. Ferguson [Civ. App.] 24 S. W. 657).

A statement of facts, though signed by the attorneys, cannot be considered, unless approved and signed by the judge. Pace v. Price (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 203; Graves v. George, 54 S. W. 262; Rawls v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 431.

Paper styled "agreed facts," but not signed by the attorneys nor approved and signed by trial judge, will not be considered by appellate court. Maury v. Keller (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 59.

Where the agreed statement of facts is not approved by the district judge, it cannot be considered on appeal. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1067; Smith v. Pecos Valley & N. E. Ry. Co., 43 C. A. 204, 95 S. W. 11.

An agreement as to facts, signed by the parties, but not signed or approved by the judge, nor introduced in evidence, cannot be considered as a statement of facts on appeal. Stone v. McClellan & Prince, 36 C. A. 364, 81 S. W. 751.

An instrument held not an approval of the statement of facts by the trial judge. Watkins v. Hale, 37 C. A. 243, 84 S. W. 386.

Under the statutes, approval by trial judge is essential to the validity of statement of facts and bill of exceptions. Gray v. Frontroy, 40 C. A. 302, 89 S. W. 1090.

A statement of facts not approved by the trial judge cannot be considered on appeal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Looney, 42 C. A. 234, 95 S. W. 691; Elliott v. Waites & Wilkie (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 992; Galan v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 1171.

Where a statement of facts was not approved by the trial judge, nor filed as required by law, it could not be considered on appeal. Mayo v. Goldman, 44 C. A. 80, 97 S. W. 1061.

Failure of a trial judge to examine and approve a statement of facts held not error where he had already made out and adopted another statement. Id.

An agreed statement of facts incorporated in the record, but not approved by the trial judge, cannot be considered on appeal. Watson v. H. L. Birdwell & Son (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 407.

A statement of facts signed by the attorneys for appellant and appellees, but not approved by the trial judge, held insufficient. Stephenville North & South Texas Ry. Co. v. Waco Mill & Elevator Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1160.

A statement of facts must be approved and signed by the trial judge in order to be part of the record. Ward v. State (Cr. App.) 146 S. W. 931.

A statement of facts must be approved and signed by the trial judge, or it cannot be considered on appeal. Williams v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 185.

Under Code Cr. Proc. art. 844, which provides that the same proceeding shall be had as to statements of fact as in civil cases, this article, and Art. 2069, held, that the trial judge need not in any case approve an incorrect statement of facts; and a purported statement of facts filed with the clerk, not approved by the trial judge, but filed without his approval by accused, who ignored the statement made and signed by the trial judge, cannot be considered on appeal. Simpson v. State (Cr. App.) 154 S. W. 999.

41. —— Waiver of approval.—The approval of statement of facts by the judge is required by statute and cannot be waived by the parties. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Keen (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1075.

42. —— Certiorari to secure approval.—Certiorari held not to lie to secure approval of statement of facts nunc pro tunc. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1067.

43. —— Mandamus to compel approval.—It is suggested that on the refusal of the district judge to approve a statement of facts, the proper practice of the aggrieved party is to apply to the appellate court without delay for a writ of mandamus. Reagan v. Copeland, 78 T. 551, 14 S. W. 1031; Telegraph Co. v. Richardson, 79 T. 649, 15 S. W. 689; Osborne v. Prather, 83 T. 208, 18 S. W. 613.

44. Filing with clerk.—See, also, post, 59.

Where a statement of facts was not approved by the trial judge, nor filed as required by law, it could not be considered on appeal. Mayo v. Goldman, 44 C. A. 80, 97 S. W. 1061.

Where the statement of facts contained in the record does not appear to have been filed by the district clerk, the appellate court will decline to consider it. Thomas v. Matthews, 51 C. A. 304, 112 S. W. 120.

A motion to strike a statement of facts not shown to have been filed with the clerk below may be met by a showing that the statement was deposited with the clerk in time. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Waggoner, 102 T. 260, 115 S. W. 1172.

A statement of facts, not bearing the file mark of the trial clerk, will not be considered. Belt v. Cetti, 53 C. A. 102, 118 S. W. 241.

45. Time for preparing and filing.—See Art. 2073 and notes.

46. Excuses for failure to file in time.—See Art. 2074 and notes.

47. Copying statement into transcript.—Error in copying the statement of facts into the record cannot be considered unless objected to by appellee. Henderson v. Midkiff (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 898.

Under the statute authorizing the court to grant 20 days after adjournment for filing statements of fact, a statement of facts in county court misdemeanor cases is not prepared by a stenographer in duplicate, but only one copy is made by the attorneys or the court, and must necessarily be copied into the record, and not sent up separately. Salinas v. State (Cr. App.) 142 S. W. 908.

48. —— Waiver.—Appellee from the county court to the court of civil appeals waived incorporation of a copy of the statement of facts in the record by failing to object before the case was submitted on appeal. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 393.

Where appellee failed to object, before the day of submission of the case to the court of civil appeals, that the original statement of facts in the county court had been transmitted on appeal, instead of being copied into the transcript, he waived the defect. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1053.

49. —— Sending up original statement.—See Art. 2070 and notes.

50. Operation and effect of statement—In general.—A statement of facts, properly signed and filed, is of higher authority than the conclusions of fact found by the judge. Fire Ins. Co. v. Miller, 2 App. C. C. § 335.

That a statement of facts contains no proof as to damages held not to justify a refusal to consider assignment of errors which deprived plaintiff of nominal damages. Davis v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 91 T. 505, 44 S. W. 822.

Where the charge is copied into the agreed statement, but it does not appear that the parties intended to admit the recitals of the charge, such recitals cannot be considered as part of the agreed statement. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Fisher (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 284.

Where the statement of facts in the case in review does not show that the evidence is the same as that in a former case, the court is not required to compare the statements to see if the evidence is the same. Speer v. Allen (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 231.

Where a motion for new trial admitted introduction in evidence of a notice of injury to defendant city, held, that such fact might be considered on appeal, though the statement of facts shows no testimony on the subject. City of San Antonio v. Ashton (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 757.

Findings of fact sustained by the statement of facts are not objectionable on the theory that the court in making the findings went beyond the stenographer's report; the statement of facts controlling. Deutschmann v. Ryan (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1140.

51. —— Conclusiveness.—The court will not strike from the record or refuse to consider, or in any way question a statement of facts bearing the agreement of both parties to the record approved by the court and filed within the time provided by law, on account of any matter precedent thereto, at least in the absence of actual fraud and manifest unfairness. Howard v. State, 53 Cr. R. 378, 111 S. W. 1039.

A certificate to a statement of facts held conclusive. Thouron v. Skirvin, 57 C. A. 105, 122 S. W. 55.

Statements of the trial judge, contained in his qualifications to a bill of exceptions, must be taken as true by the court on appeal. Payne & Joubert Machine & Foundry Co. v. Dilley (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 496.

The court of civil appeals is bound by the statement of facts, having no right to look to the court's findings for the evidence. Cain v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 834.

The statement of facts approved by the trial court is binding on the court on appeal. Lester v. State (Cr. App.) 153 S. W. 861.

Where the statement of facts is certified to as containing a full and correct statement of all of the evidence, the appellate court must accept it as such, though appellant's brief asserts the contrary. Jordan v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1194.

52. —— Impeaching and contradicting.—Statement of facts cannot be contradicted by an ex parte affidavit in appellate court. Albright v. Corley, 40 T. 105.

The appellate court cannot impeach the truth of a statement of facts agreed on by counsel and signed by the trial judge. Wiseman v. Baylor, 69 T. 63, 6 S. W. 743.

A written agreement, signed by the attorneys for each party, which adds to and contradicts the statement of facts on appeal, will not be considered on rehearing. Leland v. Chamberlain (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 969.

A certified and agreed transcript of the stenographer's notes cannot be used to contradict or supplement the statement of facts regularly agreed to and approved by the trial judge. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Word, 51 C. A. 206, 111 S. W. 753.

53. —— Conflict with bill of exceptions.—See, also, notes under "Conflict in Record" at end of Chapter 20 of this title.

The statement of facts in conflict with a bill of exceptions controls. McMichael v. Truehart, 48 T. 220; Wiseman v. Baylor, 69 T. 67, 6 S. W. 743; Ramsey v. Hurley, 72 T. 194, 12 S. W. 56; Railway Co. v. Parsley, 25 S. W. 64, 6 C. A. 150.

If any portion of the statement of facts fails to agree with a bill of exceptions which refers thereto, there is no means whereby the supreme court can tell which is correct, or whether error was committed in the matter to which the exception refers. Wiseman v. Baylor, 69 T. 63, 6 S. W. 743.

Where there is a conflict in the statement of facts and bill of exceptions, the statement will control. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Wedel (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1030; Swearingen v. Bray, 157 S. W. 953.

Where statement of facts and bill of exceptions conflict, held the latter will not prevail. Denison & P. S. Ry. Co. v. O'Maley, 18 C. A. 200, 45 S. W. 225.

Where the record shows a conflict between the bill of exceptions and the agreed statement of facts, which supports the judgment, the latter should prevail. Wright v. Solomon (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 58.

Where there was a conflict between testimony which was objected to as immaterial, as contained in an agreed statement of facts and in a bill of exceptions, the appellate court cannot decide that error exists. Sullivan v. City of San Antonio (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 556.

Where a bill of exceptions conflicts with the statement of facts as to whether evidence was admitted, it cannot be said there was error. Ellis v. Le Bow, 30 C. A. 449, 71 S. W. 576.

Where the bill of exceptions is not supported by the statement of facts, the statement controls. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Waller, 37 C. A. 515, 84 S. W. 695.

A statement of fact agreed to by the parties must control over a conflicting bill of exceptions. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. O'Donnell (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 886; Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Jones, 118 S. W. 759.

Where statements of a witness were repeated several times in the evidence as contained in a statement of facts agreed to as correct, it will not be held on appeal that the evidence was excluded, though assignments of error are based on such exclusion; the statement of facts and the statements in the bills of exceptions being of equal dignity. Mullen v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 1000.

Where a statement of facts is an agreed statement, it will govern in case of a variance between a statement in the bill of exceptions and the transcript. Bryan Press Co. v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 99.

Where the bill of exceptions and statement of facts were contradictory as to the admission or refusal of evidence, held, that an assignment of error to the exclusion of the evidence would not be considered. Helsley v. Moss, 52 C. A. 57, 113 S. W. 599.

Where the bill of exceptions does not affirmatively show that an objection to a question to a witness was made before the witness answered the question, the statement of facts, showing that the objection followed the answer, will control. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Roach, 52 C. A. 95, 114 S. W. 418.

Where the statements in a bill of exceptions are in conflict with the facts as set out in a statement of facts, they cannot be permitted to contradict the statement of facts. A. Cohen & Co. v. Rittimann (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 59.

In case of conflict as to the testimony of a witness, the agreed statement of facts controls the bill of exceptions. Eastern Ry. Co. of New Mexico v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 885.

Where the statement of facts did not show that a witness testified to the facts set out in the bill of exceptions and complained of in the assignment of error, the court of review could not decide that error existed; the statement and bill being of equal dignity. Lind v. Reeves & Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 262.

54. Documents considered in connection with statement.—A citation in the transcript or a bond attached as an exhibit to a petition and "read" on the trial will be considered in connection with the statement of facts. Thurman v. Blankenship, 79 T. 178, 15 S. W. 387; Jayne v. Herring (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 1090.

The court's conclusions of fact cannot be resorted to to supply an omission in statement of facts, where appellant assails the findings. Davis v. John V. Farwell Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 656.

The appellate court cannot consider affidavits in aid of the statement of facts, the question not being one relating to the jurisdiction of the court. Bath v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co., 34 C. A. 234, 78 S. W. 994.

Where, in a suit on a liquor dealer's bond, the statement of facts on appeal did not contain a copy of the bond offered in evidence, the appellate court could not regard the bond set out in the petition as supplying the omission. Hillman v. Gallagher (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 505.

Though the fact that a certain written notice was introduced in evidence was not stated in the statement of facts, held, that a certified copy of such notice sent up by the trial court could be considered as part of the record. City of San Antonio v. Ashton (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 757.

55. Violation of rules—In general.—Violation of rule requiring condensation of statement of facts is not cured by a compliance with the rule requiring material facts to be stated in brief. Caswell v. Hopson (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 547.

56. —— Striking from record.—Statement of facts violating the rule requiring the statement to be condensed will be stricken out. Caswell v. Hopson (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 547.

Statement of facts in a transcript will be stricken out where the rules prescribing the manner in which it should be made were not complied with. Texas Cent. R. Co. v. Flanary (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 214.

A statement of facts will not be stricken out because not strictly complying with rules 72 to 78. Williams v. House (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 960.

A statement of facts held not so gross a violation of rule 53 of the courts of civil appeals as will warrant such court in striking from the record. Oriental Inv. Co. v. Barclay, 93 T. 425, 55 S. W. 1111.

57. —— Assessment of costs.—See notes under Art. 2046.

58. Effect of defects in statement in general.—See, also, ante, 36-38, 54, 55, and post, 59, 61.

Where, on an appeal by defendants from a judgment recovered by plaintiff in a suit on a liquor bond, a copy of the bond is not inserted in the statement of facts, the judgment will be reversed. Bowden v. Davis (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 47.

The judgment below will be affirmed, where the only proposition urged by appellants is one which cannot be considered, in the absence of a statement of facts, because the statement in the record is defective. Kennedy v. Birch (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 593.

59. Amendment or correction of statement.—An agreement of the parties as to the evidence, which the judge directed to be incorporated in the statement of facts after it was signed by him, cannot be considered, and it will be stricken out by the appellate court on motion. State v. Alcorn, 78 T. 387, 14 S. W. 663; Mason v. Rogers, 83 T. 389, 18 S. W. 811.

An omitted fact cannot be supplied by a certificate of the judge (Dietz v. State, 43 T. 371) or agreement of the parties (Vaughan v. Bailey [Civ. App.] 31 S. W. 531).

The appellate court must act upon the statement of facts as found in the record, and the law provides no means for its amendment. Railway Co. v. Lane, 79 T. 643, 15 S. W. 477, 16 S. W. 18.

A court may at the term following trial correct a statement of facts by striking a bill of exceptions, which it inadvertently allowed to remain, having been filed out of time. Maxson v. Jennings, 19 C. A. 700, 48 S. W. 781.

The appellate court cannot, on a motion for certiorari, amend the statement of facts agreed to by the parties and approved by the trial court. Williams v. Young (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 940; Speer v. Louisiana & T. Lumber Co., Id. 943.

A statement of facts certified to by the trial judge is not the subject of amendment. Atascosa County v. Alderman (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 846.

Where a statement of facts does not show filing in the trial court, appellant should be permitted to correct the record. Belt v. Cetti, 53 C. A. 102, 118 S. W. 241.

Parties cannot add to the statement of facts on appeal by agreement. Rodriguez v. Priest (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1187.

60. Alterations of statement.—Interlineations, changes, and additions to a statement of facts should be verified as made before execution of the statement. Simpson v. Alexander & Wofford (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 748.

61. Striking from record—In general.—See, also, ante, 56.

Proceedings where a part of a statement of facts was struck out. Eikel v. Randolph, 25 S. W. 62, 6 C. A. 421.

Where a judgment is based on findings of fact to which there are no exceptions, a motion to strike out the statement of facts will be overruled, especially where the same result would follow whether the statement of facts is considered or not. McLendon v. Bumpass, 51 C. A. 586, 114 S. W. 462.

Where a judgment was reversed for an error of law, held unnecessary to pass upon a motion to strike out the statement of facts. Reeder v. Eidson, 56 C. A. 269, 120 S. W. 949.

All of the grounds for striking a statement of facts should be urged in one motion. Thos. Goggan & Bros. v. Synnott (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 1184.

Where original deeds, field notes, etc., were attached to a statement of facts on appeal without appellee's consent, they, but not the statement of facts, should be stricken. Cook v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 716.

62. —— Grounds in general.—A statement of facts made up of the stenographer's report of the evidence, and including questions and answers of the witnesses, objections and arguments of counsel, and rulings of the court thereon, will be stricken from the record. Brown v. Vizcaya (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 636.

The striking out of a statement of facts which was incorrect, and which the judge was misled into signing by misrepresentations of appellant's attorney, held not error. Corralitos Co. v. Mackay, 31 C. A. 316, 72 S. W. 624.

A certificate to a statement of facts held to justify the striking of statement. Thoma v. Galveston Dry Goods Co. (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 715.

63. —— Voluminous statements.—Costs, see notes under Art. 2046.

Appellee held not estopped to move to strike out an agreed statement of facts requiring condensation. Caswell v. Hopson (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 547.

The statement of facts, though too long, will not be stricken out, especially when the briefs remove the necessity of examining the record. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Eaten (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 562.

A statement of facts on appeal will not be stricken as unnecessarily voluminous, where the prevailing party refuses to agree to a shorter statement, which plaintiff in error tenders him. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Mitchell, 21 C. A. 463, 51 S. W. 662.

64. —— Effect of striking out.—See ante, 8, and post, 66.

65. —— Rescission of order.—When motion to rescind order striking from record defective statement of facts will be denied, as of course. Juergens v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co., 16 C. A. 452, 42 S. W. 230.

66. Effect of absence of statement—In general.—See, also, ante, 8.

When there is no statement of facts, but the conclusions of fact and law are found in the record, in order to reverse the judgment it must affirmatively appear to be wrong from the facts found by the judge. Ivey v. Harrell, 1 C. A. 226, 20 S. W. 775.

An erroneous instruction held harmless in the absence of a statement of facts. Blackburn v. Blackburn, 16 C. A. 564, 42 S. W. 132.

Where the record on appeal contains neither a statement of facts nor conclusions of law and fact, it must be disposed of on the questions of law arising on the petition. Stone v. McClellan & Prince, 36 C. A. 364, 81 S. W. 751.

Where defendant's statement of facts was stricken from the record, held, that the appellate court, in reviewing the propriety of sustaining a demurrer to defendant's answer, could not examine the evidence. Ellerd v. Randolph (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1171.

67. —— Conclusiveness of findings.—The findings of the facts by the court are conclusive when there is no statement of facts in the record. Paden v. Briscoe, 81 T. 563, 17 S. W. 42; Joseph v. Cannon, 32 S. W. 241, 11 C. A. 295; Conner v. Downs, 32 C. A. 588, 74 S. W. 781, 75 S. W. 335; East v. Houston & T. Cent. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 646; Altgelt v. Campbell, 78 S. W. 967; Mears v. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co., 89 S. W. 456; Kruegel v. Johnson, 112 S. W. 774; Connor v. Mangum, 127 S. W. 256; Holloway v. Hall, 151 S. W. 895.

Where there is no statement of facts, findings of the trial judge will be adopted on appeal. Presidio County v. City Nat. Bank, 20 C. A. 511, 44 S. W. 1069.

A finding of the trial court is conclusive, in the absence of a statement of facts, though the court, in its conclusions of fact, states the evidence introduced. City of San Antonio v. Berry, 92 T. 319, 48 S. W. 496.

Where the record contained no statement of facts, a motion that the appellate court make findings of fact will be denied. Neyland v. Ward, 22 C. A. 369, 54 S. W. 604.

Where, on appeal, there is no statement of facts, the findings will be accepted as established by the testimony. Lovejoy v. Townsend, 25 C. A. 385, 61 S. W. 331.

Findings of fact in defendant's favor in trespass to try title held conclusive on appeal, where the record contains no statement of facts and there is no pleading on part of plaintiff at variance with the deed under which defendant claims title. Speiglehauer v. Stuart (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 1073.

A special finding held conclusive on appeal, in the absence of a statement of facts. Dieter v. Bowers, 37 C. A. 615, 84 S. W. 847.

Where a record on appeal contains no statement of facts, the findings and conclusions of the trial court are conclusive on the appellate court. Wichita Falls & W. Ry. Co. v. Pigg (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 669.

Where there is no statement of facts on appeal, the trial court's conclusions of fact and law will be adopted by the court of civil appeals. Cotulla v. La Salle Water Storage Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 711.

68. —— Presumptions.—Without statement of facts, it will be presumed that everything which could have been proved under the pleadings of the successful party was actually proved on the trial. Houston v. Washington, 16 C. A. 504, 41 S. W. 135.

In the absence of a statement of facts, every presumption will be indulged in favor of the judgment. Brown v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 824.

A refusal to continue for absence of witnesses, and to quash depositions, is presumed to be proper, in the absence of the statement of facts. Long v. Behan, 19 C. A. 325, 48 S. W. 555.

Where there is no statement of facts, the presumption is conclusive that the testimony was sufficient to sustain the judgment. Billingsley v. Railroad Co. (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 407.

The court on appeal will assume that the judgment is supported by evidence, where the record contains no statement of facts nor bill of exceptions. Heil v. Martin (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 430.

In the absence of a statement of facts, it will be presumed on appeal that the evidence sustained the verdict and judgment. Dennis v. Neal (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 387.

In the absence of a statement of facts, it will be presumed that there was sufficient evidence to warrant findings of the trial court. Henning v. Wren, 32 C. A. 538, 75 S. W. 905.

In the absence of a statement of facts, the court, on appeal, cannot presume that the evidence raised any issue of fact on a point not submitted by the trial court to the jury. Water & Light Co. of El Campo v. El Campo Light, Ice & Water Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 259.

In the absence of a statement, it will be presumed, to sustain a judgment foreclosing a chattel mortgage, that defendant, who could, under the plea of bona fide purchase, introduce evidence of that fact, failed to establish it, and hence was not harmed by the erroneous sustaining of an exception to his plea attacking the validity of the chattel mortgage, which plea could be sustained only by proof of a bona fide purchase. Brown v. Gatewood (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 950.

In the absence of a statement of facts, it must be presumed on appeal that the findings of the trial court were sustained by the evidence. McCoy v. Pafford (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 968.

69. —— Affirmance of judgment.—Where there is no statement of facts, and no fundamental error in record, judgment must be affirmed. Juergens v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co., 16 C. A. 452, 42 S. W. 230.

A judgment will be affirmed where the court is unable to determine, in the absence of a statement of facts, whether error was committed. Watson v. H. L. Birdwell & Son (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 407.

On appeal, held, that the judgment must be affirmed because of the absence of an approved statement of facts. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Edwards, 45 C. A. 66, 99 S. W. 1049.

Where a judgment appealed from is one that the court could have rendered on uncontroverted findings, it will be sustained, in the absence of a statement of the facts. McLean v. Gulf & I. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 578.

Where the assignments of error cannot be considered in the absence of a statement of facts, the court on striking out the statement of facts must affirm the judgment. J. G. Murphy & Co. v. Dunman, 55 C. A. 587, 120 S. W. 240.

Where there are no assignments of error in appellant's brief which can be considered on appeal in absence of a statement of facts, the absence of the statement necessitates affirmance of the judgment. R. B. Godley Lumber Co. v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 630.

Where there is no assignment of error which does not depend on the facts proven, and no statement of facts which can be considered, the judgment will be affirmed. Frenzell v. Lexington Land, Abstract & Investment Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 907.

In the absence of findings of fact and conclusions of law, a judgment must be affirmed if sustainable on any ground. Farmers' State Bank of Quanah v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 283.

70. Substitutes for statement of facts.—See, also, ante, 30.

Affidavits of witnesses taken upon the trial and filed among the records of the case in an application to probate a will under Art. 3273, cannot be considered as a statement of facts, because they do not purport to contain all the facts adduced on the trial, nor are they agreed to by counsel, nor approved by the court, as a statement of facts must be in order to be considered by the court. Walker v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 602.

The statement in a bill of exceptions of all the facts proven on the trial cannot be treated as a statement of facts. Cates v. McClure, 27 C. A. 459, 66 S. W. 224.

71. Reversal because of inability to secure statement.—See, also, notes under Art. 2069.

Where a party has sought to perfect his appeal by a statement of facts and bill of exceptions, and has failed to do so through the act of the court without fault on his part, the court of civil appeals will reverse the judgment and remand the cause for a new trial. Bradford v. Knowles, 11 C. A. 572, 33 S. W. 149.

Where a statement of facts was signed and approved by the attorneys on both sides, and the trial judge certified that he read and approved the facts, but neglected to sign it, but filed it with the proper officer, accused was entitled to a reversal to enable him to have a properly certified statement of facts before the court on appeal. Rawls v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 431.

72. Scope of review on agreed statement.—See, also, notes under Art. 2112.

On appeal on agreed statement a question not raised in agreed case will not be considered. Eastland v. Williams' Estate (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 412.

73. Use of statement in subsequent trial.—The statement of facts made up by counsel on a former appeal cannot be used in evidence for the purpose of contradicting a witness on a subsequent trial. Sinclair v. Stanley, 69 T. 718, 7 S. W. 511.

Art. 2069. [1380] [1378] When the parties disagree.—If the parties do not agree upon such statement of facts, or if the judge do not approve or sign it, the parties may submit their respective statements to the judge, who shall, from his own knowledge, with the aid of such statements, make out and sign and file with the clerk a correct statement of the facts proven on the trial; and such statement shall constitute a part of the record. [Id.]

1. Statement of facts prepared by judge —In general.
2. —— Duty to prepare.
3. —— Waiver of duty to prepare.
4. —— Mandamus to compel preparation.
5. —— Presumption of disagreement.
6. —— Form of statement.
7. —— Matters included.
8. —— Control of appellate court over contents.
9. —— Adoption of party's statement.
10. —— Conferring with jurors in preparing.
11. —— Prolixity.
12. —— Interlineations and erasures.
13. —— Signature of accused's counsel unnecessary.
14. —— Violation of rules.
15. —— Correction.
16. —— As substitute for bill of exceptions.
17. —— Time for preparation and filing.
18. —— Filing.
19. —— Conclusiveness.
20. —— Conflict with bill of exceptions.
21. —— Reversal for failure to prepare and file.

1. Statement of facts prepared by judge —In general.—Where a case was tried before the present law, making the stenographer's report operate as a statement of the facts, went into effect, the statement of facts, where the attorneys could not agree on a statement, should have been prepared by the judge as required by this article, and it was not legal to adopt the stenographer's report as a statement of the facts. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Burnett (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 741, 742.

Where the trial court was not presented with a statement of facts, or with a certification that counsel were unable to agree with the district attorney, and requested him to prepare a statement of facts, an instrument sent up in the record could not be considered as a statement of facts; nor could the case be reversed for want of a statement of facts. Love v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 183.

2. —— Duty to prepare.—Acts 1905, p. 219 (stenographer's act), only applies to cases where a transcript is demanded, and where none is demanded and the parties do not agree upon a statement of facts, the judge should prepare and file one under this article; he having the right to refresh his memory from the stenographer's notes. If the judge does not do this, the aggrieved party should mandamus him. Middlehurst v. Collins-Gunther Co., 100 T. 349, 99 S. W. 1026; Id. (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 1027.

Where the trial judge was not notified of the disagreement of counsel upon a statement of facts, and appellant's statement was not presented to him in time to allow him to make a statement himself, the trial judge was not bound to make a statement of facts. Ferris Press Brick Co. v. Hawkins, 53 C. A. 578, 116 S. W. 80.

When the parties fail to agree on a statement of facts, and the appellant presents his statement to the trial judge, and requests him to prepare and file a statement of facts, it is the statutory duty of the judge to do so. Broderick & Bascom Rope Co. v. Waco Brick Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 600.

3. —— Waiver of duty to prepare.—It is not error for a trial judge to fail to make a statement of facts, where such statement is waived by counsel. Secord v. Eller (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 933.

4. —— Mandamus to compel preparation.—See, also, Art. 1592.

Where the record on appeal discloses a statement of facts apparently complete, mandamus will not lie to compel the judge to amend such statement, though he admits that the matter sought to be inserted was omitted by inadvertence, and he is willing to make the amendment. Strickland v. P. J. Willis & Bro. (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 578.

Mandamus to compel a trial judge to insert an exact copy of a written contract in the statement of facts denied, where he had set out the substance of the contract in such statement. Runck v. Timon, 47 C. A. 435, 105 S. W. 224.

After filing a statement of facts unsatisfactory to an appellant, it was held that the trial court could not be compelled by mandamus to file another corrected by the notes of his stenographer or otherwise. Perry v. Turner (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 194.

Where the judge has failed to make up and file statement of facts in time required by law, he can be compelled to do so by mandamus proceedings. Applebaum v. Bass (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 176.

Where it was the trial court's duty to approve a statement of facts presented by appellant, or to himself prepare a correct statement, on his refusal to do either, mandamus is the proper remedy. Ferris Press Brick Co. v. Hawkins, 53 C. A. 578, 116 S. W. 80.

5. —— Presumption of disagreement.—Where a statement is signed by the judge the presumption exists that the parties failed to agree. Kelso v. Townsend, 13 T. 140; Darcy v. Turner, 46 T. 30; McManus v. Wallis, 52 T. 534. But this presumption does not arise where no notice of appeal was given. Lacey v. Ashe, 21 T. 394.

Where statement of facts bears merely the approval and signature of the trial judge, but stated that it contained all the testimony, and was filed in due time, yet was not signed by the attorneys, it will be presumed that there was a disagreement of the attorneys authorizing the judge to make up the statement. Bath v. H. & T. C. Ry. Co., 34 C. A. 234, 78 S. W. 994.

Where a statement of facts on appeal is signed only by counsel for the appellant and the trial judge, it will be presumed that the parties failed to agree, and that the duty of preparing a statement of facts devolved on the trial judge, under this article. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Myers (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 762.

6. —— Form of statement.—The certificate of the judge must be in conformity with the statute. Withee v. May, 8 T. 160; Renn v. Samos, 42 T. 104; Barnhart v. Clark, 59 T. 552; Taylor v. Campbell, 59 T. 315.

Where the certificate of the trial judge stated that a statement of facts was already on file in the case, and that it was signed by the counsel for all the parties, and that the same is correct, and that this certificate is approved with a certain qualification, and none of the attorneys had signed the certificate, it will be considered as a valid certificate by the trial judge, for Acts 31st Leg., 1st Ex. Sess., c. 39, did not prescribe any form, and it is evident that the parties failed to agree on the certificate, and the trial court neglected to strike out the statement that it was signed by the attorneys. Rader v. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 718.

7. —— Matters included.—Where the parties fail to agree upon a statement of facts, and the duty of preparing such a statement devolves upon the trial judge under this article, it is his duty to make a statement of all the facts proved on the trial as it would have been the duty of the parties if they had agreed upon a statement. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Myers (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 762.

8. —— Control of appellate court over contents.—There is no power in the appellate court to control the action of a trial judge in making up a statement of facts as to what shall or shall not be embraced therein, except in case such statement is incomplete upon its face. Runck v. Timon, 47 C. A. 435, 105 S. W. 224.

9. —— Adoption of party's statement.—The judge may adopt a statement signed by one of the parties. Kelso v. Townsend, 13 T. 140.

10. —— Conferring with jurors in preparing.—Where the parties to an action could not agree on the facts, and submitted statements to the judge, who could not from his own knowledge determine the facts, but had conferences with jurors, and thus determined them, such statement was not prepared in accordance with this article. Toland & Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 852.

Where there is no record of the evidence, and the judge makes out the statement of facts by conferring with some of the jurors on the case, the party aggrieved by such statement of facts did not lose his right to complain thereof by failing to apply for a mandamus to compel a proper statement. Id.

11. —— Prolixity.—Motion to strike out a statement of facts on the ground of prolixity will be overruled where the statement is made by the judge. Triplett v. Morris, 18 C. A. 50, 44 S. W. 684.

12. —— Interlineations and erasures.—Where the statement of facts, prepared by the court on the parties failing to agree on a statement, discloses that the testimony of certain witnesses was stricken out by having pencil marks drawn entirely across the same, the statement will be treated as though such witnesses had never testified, though the indorsement, to the effect that the parties had failed to agree on a statement of facts, and the official signature of the county judge, and also some of the testimony of the witnesses, is written in ink; the court not being at liberty to assume that interlineations and erasures made with pencil were made improperly. St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. v. Wall, 56 C. A. 48, 121 S. W. 207.

13. —— Signature of accused's counsel unnecessary.—Under Code Cr. Proc. art. 844, providing for the filing of a statement of facts on a criminal appeal, as in civil cases, this article, and Art. 2069, providing for the signature of statements of facts in civil cases by the judge when the parties disagree, a statement on a criminal appeal, signed by the county attorney and approved by the district judge, is subject to consideration, though not signed by accused's counsel. Serop v. State (Cr. App.) 154 S. W. 557.

14. —— Violation of rules.—When the statement is made by the judge in violation of the rules, it is not a ground for dismissal. McManus v. Wallace, 52 T. 534.

15. —— Correction.—Refusal of court to consider appellant's motion to correct the court's statement of facts held error. Brunner Fire Co. v. Payne, 54 C. A. 501, 118 S. W. 602.

16. —— As substitute for bill of exceptions.—Where the statement of facts prepared by the trial judge shows the proceedings on the trial, etc., and is filed within the time allowed for filing bills of exceptions, held, that exceptions to the introduction of evidence so presented will be considered. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Couch (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 67.

17. —— Time for preparation and filing.—See, also, Art. 2073 and notes.

Where appellant files statement in time, and court prepares one after many months, it will be disregarded, and judgment reversed. Walton v. Prigmore (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 352.

18. —— Filing.—It is the duty of the judge, when the parties fail to agree upon a statement of facts, not only to prepare a correct statement but to file the same with the clerk. Mayo v. Goldman, 44 C. A. 80, 97 S. W. 1062.

19. —— Conclusiveness.—Held, that a case on appeal should be disposed of upon the statement of facts as corrected and approved by the judge. Motl v. Stephens, 49 C. A. 8, 108 S. W. 1018.

Statement of facts made and certified by the trial court held conclusive as to what was or was not introduced in evidence. Williams v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1158.

20. —— Conflict with bill of exceptions.—When a statement of facts prepared by the judge is inconsistent with a bill of exceptions touching matters excepted to, the bill of exceptions on appeal will be looked to. McClelland v. Fallon, 74 T. 236, 12 S. W. 60.

21. —— Reversal for failure to prepare and file.—When counsel, having failed to agree, have submitted their respective statements to the trial judge, the failure of the judge to prepare and file a statement is ground for a reversal of the judgment. Hodges v. Peacock, 2 App. C. C. § 824.

When the statement of facts contained in the record is struck out upon motion of appellee, because not properly authenticated by the trial judge, a motion of appellant to reverse and remand on that account is not maintainable. Railway Co. v. Bell, 4 App. C. C. § 119, 16 S. W. 908.

When the appellant has done everything required of him to have a statement of facts prepared and filed in time, and through no fault of his the statement has not been filed in time, the judgment will be reversed. Blount v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 405.

An appellant cannot have a reversal for failure of the trial judge to prepare a statement of facts, on failure of the parties to agree, where he did not apply for a mandamus to compel the judge to do so. Guerguin v. McGown (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 585.

Where the parties failed to agree on a statement of facts, failure of the trial judge to make out and file a statement within the time required, not occasioned by appellant's fault, held reversible error. Mayo v. Goldman, 44 C. A. 80, 97 S. W. 1061.

Plaintiff, not having brought mandamus against the judge to compel the making of a statement of facts, held not entitled to a reversal for the want of such statement. Houston v. Booth (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 887.

Appellant is entitled to a reversal of a conviction if, notwithstanding the use of diligence by him, he was unable to obtain filing of a statement of facts within the time fixed by Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, which authorizes the consideration of the statement of facts filed at any time before the transcript is filed or entitled to be filed in the court of criminal appeals. Edwards v. State (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 346.

Where accused s deprived of a statement of facts without neglect on his part and he has used due diligence to procure it, he is entitled to a reversal to enable him to have his case fairly tried on the facts adduced against him. Rawls v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 431.

When the parties fail to agree on a statement of facts, and the appellant presents his statement to the trial judge, and requests him to prepare and file a statement of facts, it is the statutory duty of the judge to do so, and, on his failure to file such statement, appellant is entitled to a reversal, and the granting of a new trial. The fact that the trial judge could not remember all the testimony at the time he was requested to prepare and file a statement of facts affords no reason why this court should not grant appellant relief. Broderick & Bascom Rope Co. v. Waco Brick Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 600.

Where a state's attorney lost one statement of facts submitted by counsel of one convicted of a misdemeanor, refused to agree to another, and failed to provide one when requested to do so by the court, on advice of the opposing counsel that they were unable to agree, and the court did not make such a statement of its own accord, but certified that the failure to include it in the record was through no fault of the counsel for the appellant, all due diligence in endeavoring to have such a statement filed is shown to have been exercised, and the appellant is entitled to have the cause reversed and remanded. Stewart v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 902.

Art. 2070. Statement of facts prepared from transcript of official reporter, when and how, etc.; in duplicate; original sent up; reporter to prepare on request, etc.; fees.—Upon the filing in the office of the clerk of the court by the official shorthand reporter of his transcript as provided in section 5 of this Act [Art. 1924], the party appealing shall prepare or cause to be prepared from the transcript filed by the official shorthand reporter, as provided in section 5 of this Act, a statement of facts, in duplicate, which shall consist of the evidence adduced upon the trial, both oral and by deposition, stated in succinct manner and without unnecessary repetition, together with copies of such documents, sketches, maps and other matters as were used in evidence. It shall not be necessary to copy said statement of facts in the transcript of the clerk, on appeal, but the same shall, when agreed to by the parties and approved by the judge, or in the event of a failure of the parties to agree and a statement of facts is prepared and certified by the judge trying the case be filed in duplicate with the clerk of the court, and the original thereof shall be sent up as a part of the record in the cause on appeal. Provided, however, that the official shorthand reporter shall, when requested by the party appealing, prepare from the transcript filed by the official shorthand reporter, as provided in section 5 of this Act, a statement of facts in narrative form, in duplicate, and deliver the same to the party appealing, for which said statement of facts he shall be paid by the party appealing the sum of fifteen cents per folio of 100 words for the original copy, and no charge should be made for the duplicate copy, and such amount shall not be taxed as costs in the case. [Acts 1907, 1 S. S., p. 509, sec. 5. Acts 1905, p. 219, sec. 5. Acts 1903, p. 84. Acts 1909, S. S., p. 374, sec. 6. Acts 1911, p. 264, sec. 6.]

Explanatory.—Acts 1911, p. 264, expressly repeals Acts 1909, c. 39, p. 374, and thus supersedes the articles of the Revised Statutes made up from sections of the repealed act. See Arts. 1920–1928, 1932, 1933, 2071–2073.

Cited, Mitchell v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 266; Redman v. State (Cr. App.) 149 S. W. 670; Heflin v. Eastern R. Co. of New Mexico (Sup.) 155 S. W. 188.

1. Constitutionality.—Where appellant has filed his bills of exception separately from the transcript of the evidence prepared by the stenographer under the terms of this law, he is in no position to raise the question of constitutionality of the law in regard to that matter. Routledge v. Rambler Automobile Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 750.

That part of this law which provides "that original documentary evidence, maps, plats or other matters introduced in evidence, if embraced in the stenographer's report," etc., is constitutional and valid. Newnom v. Williamson, 46 C. A. 615, 103 S. W. 657, 658.

The title of the act of 1907 does not contain more than one subject. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Stoker, 102 T. 60, 113 S. W. 3.

2. Does not repeal other articles.—This act does not repeal Arts. 2068, 2069, and 2074, relating to statements of fact, but is in addition to them. Mundine v. State, 50 Cr. R. 93, 97 S. W. 491.

3. Change in law.—Under this article the transcript of the evidence taken under the act of 1903, being the same as it would have been had the act of 1905 been in force, and the latter act being a continuation of the former, which provided for such transcript, might be considered as a statement of facts under the act of 1905. Elliott v. Ferguson, 100 T. 418, 100 S. W. 911.

Where a case is tried, judgment rendered and appeal perfected before this article went into effect, but the statement of facts was not approved by the court until after said act became effective, this article governs and not the former law. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Waggoner (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 971.

A statute as to preparing statement of facts, going into effect after the trial, but in time for such preparing, and before the filing of a statement as previously provided, held to apply to the case. Wallace v. Pecos & N. T. R. Co., 50 C. A. 296, 110 S. W. 162.

This law regulates the making of statements of facts only in appeals taken after it went into operation. Statements of facts should be governed by the rules existing when the appeals were perfected and treated as if they had been contemporaneously with the appeals themselves. In this case the appeal was perfected under act of 1905, and statement of facts was approved after law of 1907 took effect. M. K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Waggoner, 102 T. 260, 115 S. W. 1172.

4. Superior to rules of supreme court.—When a stenographer's report of the evidence is made and sent up on an appeal in a criminal case, the clerk is without authority to transcribe the evidence into the record made up by him, and he is not entitled to pay therefor. Acts 1905, p. 219, prevails over the rules of the supreme court, providing that the clerk shall transcribe the evidence. Johnson v. State, 49 Cr. R. 429, 93 S. W. 735.

Under the express terms of Const. art. 5, § 25, the provision of Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, § 6, that it shall not be necessary to copy the statement of facts in the transcript on appeal, but that on agreement of the parties and approval of the judge, and also in the event of a failure of the parties to agree and a filing of a statement of facts certified by the trial judge, the original thereof shall be sent up as a part of the record, is superior to and cannot be repealed by a rule of the supreme court. E. F. Rowson & Co. v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 603.

5. Applies to appeals from all courts.—This law applies to appeals from all courts, whether they have or have not an official stenographer. Peoples v. Evans, 50 C. A. 225, 111 S. W. 756.

6. Necessity of statement of facts.—See notes under Art. 2068.

7. Preparing statement from stenographer's report—In general.—The certificate need not show a disagreement of counsel before the facts are approved by the judge. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Pearce, 43 C. A. 387, 95 S. W. 1133.

Under this article and court rules 72 and 75 (67 S. W. xxv), providing that the testimony and written instruments admitted in evidence shall not be stated in detail in the statement of facts but the facts established shall be stated as facts proved, etc., appellant must exercise supervision to see that the statement of facts furnished by the stenographer is made up in accordance with the law and the rules, and he need not accept a statement of facts not so prepared, and, where the stenographer fails to correct the statement of facts at the request of appellant, the trial judge may require the stenographer to prepare a proper statement. Chaison v. McFaddin (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 524.

Where a statement of facts was copied into the transcript, it is not such as is required to be sent up with the transcript of the record on appeal by this article. Tyer v. Timpson Handle Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 250.

Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, prescribing the method of making up and filing statements of facts, contemplates that the original filed in the court of civil appeals shall be intelligible, and the statement of the evidence therein connected and complete. McIlroy v. Stone (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 944.

8. —— Caption.—The caption of the transcript of the evidence identifies the case in which it was prepared by style and number and by a statement of the cause in which it was tried and date of trial, and gives names of attorneys of each side. This identifies the case under the law of 1905. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Pearce, 43 C. A. 387, 95 S. W. 1133.

A statement of facts which has no caption or certificate declaring it to be a full and correct statement of the facts proved on the trial, and is not signed by both parties as provided by this article, cannot be considered on appeal. Bray v. First Nat. Bank of Wellington (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 290.

9. —— Preparing in duplicate.—Under Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, § 1, which provides that, "for the purpose of preserving a record in all cases for the information of the courts, jury, and parties, the judges of the district courts shall appoint official shorthand reporters for such courts," and sections 5, 6, which provide that the transcript of the evidence in question and answer form, as well as the statement of facts in narrative form, "shall be filed in duplicate," the statement of facts should be made out in duplicate, one of which should be filed in the district court. Witherspoon v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 633.

10. —— Interlineations and additions.—The original statement of facts, required to be sent up uncopied on appeal, held improperly prepared where it contained many pencil interlineations and additions. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 722.

No fraud or injury being alleged, it is no ground for striking out the original statement of facts when sent up as part of the record that a loose page is pinned in by way of completing the statement, after the rest had been securely fastened, and that there are erasures to prevent repetition. Holt v. Abbey (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 473.

11. —— Execution and approval.—Agreement of parties to a statement of facts prepared by a stenographer is not provided for in the law of 1905. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Pearce, 43 C. A. 387, 95 S. W. 1133.

Where there is no certificate or approval by the trial judge of the stenographer's report sent up as a statement of facts as required by this law, it cannot be considered. Citizens' Ry. Co. v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 443.

In every instance the statement of facts must be approved by the judge, and no statement of facts can be valid without that approval. Rivers v. Campbell, 51 C. A. 103, 111 S. W. 191.

A statement of facts which is not signed by both parties, as provided by Acts 1909, 1st Ex. Sess. c. 39, § 6, cannot be considered on appeal. Bray v. First Nat. Bank of Wellington (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 290.

A writing not approved by the trial judge, or accompanied by an agreement of the parties that it is correct, but merely by a certificate of the official stenographer that it contains a true transcript of the testimony on the trial, cannot be considered on appeal as a statement of facts. Liebovitz v. American Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1048.

12. —— Sufficiency.—A paper purporting to be a statement of facts held not open to consideration on appeal as not fulfilling the requirements of Acts 29th Leg. Reg. Sess, p. 219, c. 112. Pirtle v. Nell (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 707.

In order for the stenographer's report to be sufficient as a statement of facts, it must appear from the record that it was submitted to interested parties for their objections, and that the documentary evidence embraced was by direction of the court. In other words, the law must be complied with in making the stenographer's report the statement of facts. Id.

Copies of stenographic notes of the evidence and depositions can only be considered when incorporated in statement of facts prepared in accordance with this article. Dealy v. Shepherd, 54 C. A. 80, 116 S. W. 641.

Under Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, §§ 4, 6, a statement of facts, which merely recited that "the following facts were proven in the trial," giving a narrative statement of what purported to be some of the evidence, was insufficient for not showing that it contained all of the evidence at trial. Witherspoon v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 633.

13. —— Operation and effect.—Where the original statement of facts filed on appeal with the transcript failed to show that certain evidence was admitted, the case should not be reversed for error in its admission. Fletcher v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 936.

14. Condensation.—Affecting costs, see notes under Art. 2046.

A statement of facts held to violate the statute as not in narrative form, and will be stricken out. J. G. Murphy & Co. v. Dunman, 55 C. A. 587, 120 S. W. 240.

Under this article and Acts 1907, p. 509, the law formerly in force, which expressly required a statement of facts in narrative form, held that, in view of the fact that the law was new and remedial, it would not be construed too strictly; and hence a statement of facts consisting only of conclusions and answers of witnesses, comprising 40 pages, containing about 30 questions, would not be considered a flagrant departure from the statute, though usually a narrative form was the only proper method. Mitchell v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 266.

A statement of facts on appeal in a felony case, consisting of a verbatim stenographic report of the evidence, cannot be considered in the absence of a showing in the record that the trial judge deemed a statement in such form necessary; Acts 30th Leg. c. 24, § 5, prohibiting such form except when he deems it necessary. Felder v. State, 59 Cr. R. 144, 127 S. W. 1055.

A statement of facts held not subject to be stricken on appeal for noncompliance with rules requiring condensation. Holt v. Abbey (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 473.

Under Acts 31st Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 39, § 14, authorizing preparation of a statement of facts independent of the transcript of the notes of the official reporter, and under section 6, providing that in such transcript the statement of facts must be prepared in a succinct manner, the latter provision applies to statements of facts prepared without aid of the stenographer's notes. Campbell v. Prieto (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 807.

While it is the intention of this court to liberally construe the rules governing appeals, where a statement of facts, instead of stating the evidence in a succinct manner and without unnecessary repetition, as required by Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, and rules 72 to 78 for county courts (142 S. W. xxii, xxiii), contains 33 pages of questions and answers, apparently copied verbatim from the stenographer's notes, where the questions and answers could be reduced to narrative form without difficulty and without weakening the testimony, the statement will be stricken. Albers v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 596.

Where a statement of facts consisting of 59 pages, 6 of which contained documentary evidence, and of the remaining 53 over 30 contained questions and answers, and about 20 consisted entirely of questions and answers, objections and rulings, apparently copied from the stenographer's transcript, two pages being taken up by a single controversy between counsel with reference to the admissibility of certain evidence, interspersed with questions and remarks by the court, instead of the whole being reduced to a distinct statement in narrative form, it was a violation of district court rules 72–78 (142 S. W. xxii) and Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, § 6, and was subject to a motion to strike. Albrecht v. Lignoski (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 886.

15. —— Questions and answers.—The evidence must be stated in narrative form and not in the form of questions and answers. This requirement applies to the judge when making a statement of facts as well as to the stenographer. Oppermann v. Petri (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 1142.

A statement of facts which in part contains questions and answers is not in accordance with requirements of this law and will not be considered. Peoples v. Evans, 50 C. A. 225, 111 S. W. 756.

Where statement of facts contains stenographer's notes in full, giving questions and answers, instead of being in narrative form, it will be stricken out. Ivy v. Ivy, 51 C. A. 397, 112 S. W. 112.

A statement of facts on appeal, largely in the form of questions and answers, instead of in narrative form as required by the statute, will on appellee's motion be stricken from the record. Wharton v. Chunn, 53 C. A. 124, 115 S. W. 887.

The statement of facts must not be made up of the questions and answers written out in full. Poitevent v. Scarborough (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 446.

Under this article a statement of facts consisting of questions and answers will not be considered on appeal. Choate v. State, 59 Cr. R. 266, 128 S. W. 624.

Under Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, § 6, records containing the statement of facts in question and answer form will not be considered on review. Hart v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 188.

16. Documentary evidence.—Where there is no copy of the sales tickets offered in eidence made by the stenographer in his notes, nor in the record of any order of the court to send up the original documents as required by this article, and where the judge's certificate to the transcript of the proceedings contains no reference to or identification of the papers (sales tickets found among the papers in the case), they cannot be considered. Schweir v. State, 50 Cr. R. 119, 94 S. W. 1050.

Though the documentary evidence, maps, plats, etc., sent up without an order of court as Acts 1905, p. 220, § 5, requires, cannot be considered, yet the stenographic report, being prepared and sent up in accordance therewith, will be given effect as a statement of facts, for what it is worth. Newnom v. Williamson, 46 C. A. 615, 103 S. W. 660.

Under Gen. Laws 1911, c. 119, § 6, documents, sketches, or maps used in evidence must be copied in the statement of facts, and it is not permissible to send up the original instruments as a part of the statement, especially in view of Art. 2069. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Myers (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 762.

17. Power of judge in vacation.—The order directing that the original documentary evidence, plats, maps, etc., if embraced in the stenographer's report, be sent up with the record, etc., must be made by the court or at least by the judge during the term of court, and an order by the judge after court adjourns and in vacation given to the clerk though in writing and filed among the papers is void, and documentary evidence sent up under direction of such an order will be stricken from the record. Newnom v. Williamson, 46 C. A. 615, 103 S. W. 658, 659.

This act means that the stenographer's report, when taken and approved as required in the act, becomes the sole statement of the oral evidence on the trial, and when original documentary evidence is introduced, if embraced in the stenographer's report, the same is properly made part of the record on appeal when transcribed by the clerk (or in original form, if so requested), with other parts of the record when directed so to do by the court or judge. By the "written direction of the court," as used in section 5, is meant that the direction may be made by the judge either within term time or within 20 days thereafter. The term "court" and "judge" are often interchangeable, dependent upon their use, object and connection. Construing Arts. 2068, 2069, and 2112 with this article, the term "court" is synonymous with the term "judge," and the written direction need not be given in term time. Colorado & S. Ry. Co. v. Hamm, 47 C. A. 196, 103 S. W. 1126, 1127.

18. Certain rules of court inapplicable.—Rules for district and county courts Nos. 90, 94 (67 S. W. xxvi, xxvii), as to preparation of the transcript, do not apply to the original statement of facts when sent up as part of the record under the direction of Act May 1, 1909 (Acts 31st Leg. [1st. Ex. Sess.] c. 39) § 6. Holt v. Abbey (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 473.

Rules for district and county courts Nos. 90 and 94 (67 S. W. xxvi, xxvii), as to the preparation of the transcript, do not apply to the statement of facts when sent up as a part of the record, since Act May 1, 1909 (Acts 31st Leg. [1st Ex. Sess.] c. 39), taking the statement of facts out of the transcript; and, in the absence of a rule prescribed by the supreme court, making rules 90 and 94 applicable to the preparation of statements of fact, the court of civil appeals will not strike out a statement of facts, though negligently prepared. McIlroy v. Stone (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 944.

19. Filing and time for filing.—See, also, Art. 2073 and notes.

When stenographer's report is made statement of facts, and is approved by the judge, it must bear file mark of clerk so as to show that it was filed within required time. Cockrell v. Walkup, 44 C. A. 564, 99 S. W. 443.

A statement of facts, though agreed to by the parties and approved by the judge, yet not marked filed by the clerk, cannot be considered by the appellate court. M., K. & T. R. Co. v. Waggoner, 102 T. 260, 115 S. W. 1172.

Under these articles a statement of facts on appeal from criminal cases tried in the district court must be filed in duplicate, while in criminal cases tried in the county court the statement of facts need not be filed in duplicate. Morris v. State, 63 Cr. R. 375, 140 S. W. 775.

20. Excuses for failure to file in time.—See Art. 2074 and notes.

21. Costs of statement not legally filed.—See notes under Art. 2046.

22. Sending up original statement.—The original statement of facts must be sent up with the record, else it will not be considered, even though it has been copied in the transcript. Garrison v. Richards (Cr. R.) 107 S. W. 864.

The provision in reference to sending up original statement of facts is mandatory and is broad enough to cover every statement of facts made up by the parties or by the official stenographer or in case of disagreement by the court. No statement should be included in the transcript and the original must be sent up with the transcript. Garcia v. Cleary, 50 C. A. 465, 110 S. W. 177.

The original statement of facts and not a copy should accompany the record. If the original is not sent up, the question whether the court of civil appeals should consider the copy included in the transcript not decided. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Stoker, 102 T. 60, 113 S. W. 3.

The original statement of facts must be sent up with the record. A copy embraced in the transcript will not be considered. Redland Fruit Co. v. Sargeant, 51 C. A. 619, 113 S. W. 332.

This section requires the original statement of facts to be sent up with the transcript. Bean v. Bird (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 122; Royal Ins. Co. v. Texas & G. Ry. Co., 53 C. A. 154, 115 S. W. 124.

The original statement of facts must be sent up with the transcript whether the court had an official stenographer or not. Williams v. Robertson, 52 C. A. 599, 115 S. W. 887.

The original statement of facts must be sent up on an appeal from judgment of county court as well as from judgment of district court. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Rogers, 54 C. A. 165, 116 S. W. 625. (This decision directly conflicts with St. L. S. W. Ry. Co. v. Nelson, 108 S. W. 182, decided by the civil court of appeals of sixth district.)

The original statement of facts, and not a copy, must be filed in the appellate court. Wallace & Reed v. Reed Bros., 54 C. A. 457, 117 S. W. 1019.

The original statement of facts should be sent up in case of an appeal from judgment in county court as well as in case appealed from district court. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Wall, 102 T. 404, 118 S. W. 131.

The clerk is not authorized to certify to a copy (of a statement of facts), and unless the parties to the suit by agreement waive the original, and by agreement substitute a copy, the appellate court cannot assume that what purports to be a statement of the facts is a true copy of all the facts upon which the disposition of the case should be made to rest, or of the material facts involved. (Note.—On rehearing the court did consider the certified copy of statement of facts, p. 157.) Whitfield v. Burrill, 54 C. A. 567, 118 S. W. 156.

The original statement of facts must be sent up on appeal to the court of civil appeals, and the incorporation in the transcript of a copy thereof is not sufficient. Vickrey v. Burks, 56 C. A. 421, 121 S. W. 177.

Appellant failed to incorporate in the transcript the original statement of facts, but used a copy thereof, so that if appellee had presented a formal motion to strike out the statement it would have been sustained and the appeal disposed of as if there was no statement of facts, unless appellant subsequently caused the original statement of facts to be filed. Held, that where appellee, instead of formally moving to strike out the statement of facts, presented in his brief, three months before the case was submitted, a specific objection to a consideration of the statement of facts incorporated in the transcript, and appellant took no steps to bring up the original statement of facts, the appeal should be disposed of upon the theory that there was no statement of facts. Id.

Under Acts 30th Leg. pp. 509–513, c. 24, on appeal from the county court to the court of civil appeals, the original statement of facts must be sent up, and a statement copied in the transcript cannot be considered when objection is made thereto. Frenzell v. Lexington Land, Abstract & Investment Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 907.

Under Acts 31st Leg. (1st Called Sess.) c. 39, § 5, held that, where the original statement of facts was not sent up with the record, a purported statement of facts, copied into the record, will be stricken on motion. Hardgraves v. State, 61 Cr. R. 422, 135 S. W. 144.

Where a statement of facts was copied into the transcript, it is not such as is required to be sent up with the transcript of the record on appeal by Acts 31st Leg.

c. 39, § 6, and Acts 30th Leg. c. 24, § 6. Tyer v. Timpson Handle Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 250.

Under Acts 31st Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 39, §§ 5, 6, providing that the statement of facts shall be prepared in duplicate, and that the original shall be sent to the court of criminal appeals, the court cannot consider a statement of facts copied in the record. Slatter v. State, 61 Cr. R. 243, 136 S. W. 770.

Where the statement of facts is not shown to have been sent up by the trial court to the court of civil appeals in another district, from which the case has been transferred as provided by this article and Art. 2073, and where no excuse for a failure to do so is shown, the court to which the case is transferred cannot consider the statement as a part of the record. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Samuels (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 802.

The court of civil appeals cannot consider the copy of the original statement of facts filed in the district court, though filed with papers in the case. McIlroy v. Stone (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 944.

The original copy of the statement of facts may properly be considered a part of the transcript of the record on appeal. Herbert & Wight v. Coffee (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 346.

On an appeal from a county court in a civil case it is proper to bring the original statement of facts filed below to the appellate court instead of copying the statement in the transcript, even if this article, instead of the act of March 31, 1911 (Laws 1911, c. 119), applies. McMullen v. Green (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 762.

23. —— Appeals from county court.—The statement of facts on appeal from the county court should be copied into the transcript. St. L. S. W. R. Co. v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 182; Morris v. State, 63 Cr. R. 375, 140 S. W. 775.

The statement of facts on appeal from a judgment of the county court should be copied into and made part of the transcript. The original statement of facts must not be sent up in such a case. Butler v. Beard (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 115; Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Rogers, 116 S. W. 393.

In this case appealed from the county court the appellate court at first refused to consider the original statement of facts sent up, on the ground that it should have been copied into the record, but on rehearing considered the statement of facts because the appellee had waived copying into the record by failing to object to same before the day of submission of the case to the court. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 1053.

24. —— Failure to object.—Where the original statement of facts did not accompany, but was copied into the record on appeal, appellee waived his right to take advantage thereof by failing to object before submission. Royal Ins. Co. v. Texas & G. Ry. Co., 102 T. 306, 116 S. W. 46.

While the law requires the original statement of facts to be sent up with the record, yet when the statement of facts is copied in the record and no objection is made that the original statement is not sent up, the irregularity will be considered waived, and the statement of facts considered by the appellate court. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Hood, 55 C. A. 334, 118 S. W. 1120.

Under the express provision of rule 8 (142 S. W. xi), an objection that the statement of facts is incorporated into the transcript contrary to the rule is waived by failing to file a motion to dismiss (if that be a ground for dismissing an appeal) within 30 days after the transcript was filed in this court. Martin v. Rutherford (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 156.

A statement of facts copied into the transcript should be considered when there is no objection by the appellee. E. F. Rowson & Co. v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 603.

25. —— Certiorari to bring up.—Failure of the clerk to send up a statement of facts, which has not been discovered by counsel until after decision, is no reason for certiorari to perfect the record. Shaw v. Schuch (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 688.

An application by appellant to set aside an order striking the statement of facts and for certiorari to bring up the original statement of facts held made too late. R. B. Godley Lumber Co. v. Coleman (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 630.

26. Mandamus to compel stenographer to prepare and file report.—If the official stenographer does not typewrite his report of the evidence from his notes and file the same as the statement of facts, it is the duty of the counsel who wishes this done, to compel him to do so by mandamus, and if he fails to do this he is entitled to no relief Smith v. Pecos Valley & N. E. Ry. Co., 43 C. A. 204, 95 S. W. 11, 12.

27. Striking out statement.—Where a copy of the statement of facts in the record was struck out on motion and a writ of certiorari to bring up the original statement was granted, a motion to strike out the original statement, as having been filed after the briefs were prepared referring to the pages of the transcript containing the transcribed statement, will be overruled; it appearing that the transcribed statement is a true and correct copy. Hughes v. Smith (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1142.

Where original deeds, field notes, etc., were attached to a statement of facts on appeal without appellee's consent, they, but not the statement of facts, should be stricken. Cook v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 716.

28. Conclusiveness of statement.—Where trial judge corrects statement of facts by a sworn stenographer, his certificate is conclusive, and statement cannot be discredited by assignment of error. Nacogdoches Grocery Co. v. Rushing & Smith (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 659.

29. Expenses of record.—See notes under Arts. 2046, 2047.

Art. 2071. Statement of facts for party appealing without bond; affidavit; falsity; punishment.—In any civil case where the appellant or plaintiff in error has made the proof required to appeal his case without bond, such appellant or plaintiff in error may make affidavit of such fact, and upon the making and filing of such affidavit, the court shall order the stenographer to make a transcript as provided in section 5 of this Act [Art. 1924], and deliver same as herein provided in other cases, but the stenographer shall receive no pay for same; provided that should any such affidavit so made by such appellant or plaintiff in error be false he shall be prosecuted and punished as is now provided by law for making false affidavits. [Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 2071, superseded. Acts 1911, p. 264, sec. 8.]

Explanatory.—The above article is a part of section 8 of Acts 1911, p. 264. It corresponds to the subject-matter of and supersedes Art. 2071, Rev. Civ. St. 1911. See note under Art. 2070. See Art. 1933, as to transcript in criminal cases.

Sufficiency of affidavit.—Where accused declined to make an affidavit that he was not able to give security for a transcript, so as to entitle him to a free statement of facts, under Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, § 8, but merely made an affidavit that he was not able to pay for a transcript, he cannot assign error to a refusal to order a statement of facts to be made without cost. Kelly v. State (Cr. App.) 155 S. W. 225.

Effect of stenographer's neglect.—Where a defendant in a criminal prosecution complied with Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, § 8, that on filing pauper affidavit the court shall order the official stenographer to make transcript in duplicate, the neglect of the stenographer to comply with an order of the trial judge within the time extended to perfect the appeal will not preclude the defendant from having the court on appeal pass on his case, and it will upon showing of the stenographer's misconduct make an order for the preparation of the statement. Jones v. State (Cr. App.) 147 S. W. 587.

Reversal for failure to furnish statement—In general.—A conviction will not be reversed for failure of the official stenographer to furnish accused a statement of facts within 30 days from adjournment of the term, affidavit of appellant's inability to pay therefor having been filed, as required by this article, where, instead of presenting the statement for approval when received, within 90 days of adjournment, and attempting to procure an extension of time, affidavits seeking to show improper conduct by the trial judge were filed. Bazzanno v. State, 62 Cr. R. 47, 136 S. W. 257.

Where an application by accused under Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, that the stenographer be required to furnish a statement of facts without pay on the ground that he is too poor to pay for it was not presented to or acted on by the court, he did not tender the fees for a statement of facts, and no motion for an extension of time within which to file such statement was made until 50 days after the adjournment of the term, his conviction will not be reversed for failure to furnish him such statement. Negrete v. State (Cr. App.) 147 S. W. 587.

Where it did not appear that defendant ever filed an affidavit stating that he was unable to pay the stenographer to make out a statement of facts, or that, after refusal of his verbal application to the court to require the furnishing of such a statement and his failure to agree with the district attorney as to a statement prepared, he presented it to the trial judge, informing him of such disagreement and requesting him to prepare and file a statement, he was not entitled to have the judgment reversed for failure to secure a statement of facts. Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 224.

—— Conditions precedent.—In order to obtain a reversal of a conviction, on the ground that accused was deprived of a statement of facts, the record should affirmatively show that the court made an order on an affidavit that accused was unable to pay for a statement of facts, so as to require the stenographer to furnish such statement. Wood v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 194.

If the stenographer did not comply with the judge's order requiring him to furnish a statement of facts to an indigent accused upon affidavit, accused is required to sue out mandamus to compel the issuance of the statement by the stenographer, to enable accused to procure a reversal for failure to have a statement of facts. Id.

Art. 2072. Laws repealed; not to prevent preparation of statements of fact by parties.—That chapter 39, page 374, Acts of the First Called Session of the Thirty-first Legislature of the state of Texas, providing for the appointment of court stenographers, prescribing their duties and regulating their charges and compensation, and all other laws or parts of laws in conflict with this Act be, and the same are hereby expressly repealed; provided, however, that nothing in this Act [Arts. 1920–1928, 1932, 1933, 2070, 2071, 2073] shall be so construed as to prevent parties from preparing statements of facts on appeal independent of the transcript of the notes of the official shorthand reporter. [Acts 1911, p. 264, sec. 13.]

Cited, Young v. Pearman (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 360; Mitchell v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co., 127 S. W. 266; Coffey v. State, 60 Cr. R. 73, 131 S. W. 216.

Original practice not abolished.—This act contemplates no change in the original practice, save in those cases where one of the parties to the suit requests the stenographer to make a transcript of the oral evidence, and has such transcript signed and approved by the judge and filed among the papers of such cause. If neither party requests such transcript, the appellant would have the right to have prepared and filed a statement of facts under the rules of practice heretofore prescribed, and it would be the duty of the clerk to copy such statement of facts in the transcript of the proceedings, and mandamus will lie to compel him to do so. Ferguson v. Kelley, 41 C. A. 338, 91 S. W. 805.

Court having no stenographer.—Under Acts 31st Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 39, held, on appeal from a criminal case in a district court which was not shown to have any official stenographer, that a certified copy of the original statement of facts prepared by defendant's attorney and approved by the judge would not be stricken out. Conger v. State, 63 Cr. R. 312, 140 S. W. 1112.

Condensation.—See, also, notes under Art. 2070.

Under Acts 31st Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 39, § 14, authorizing preparation of a statement of facts independent of the transcript of the notes of the official reporter, and under section 6, providing that in such transcript the statement of facts must be prepared in a succinct manner, the latter provision applies to statements of facts prepared without aid of the stenographer's notes. Campbell v. Prieto (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 807.

Art. 2073. Time for preparing and filing statements of fact and bills of exceptions; judge may extend, provided, etc.; when parties fail to agree on statement, etc.; proviso.—When an appeal is taken from the judgment rendered in any cause in any district or county court, the parties to the suit shall be entitled to any [and] they are hereby granted thirty days after the day of adjournment of court in which to prepare or cause to be prepared, and to file a statement of facts and bills of exception; and upon good cause shown, the judge trying the cause may extend the time in which to file a statement of facts and bills of exception. Provided, that the court trying such cause shall have the power in term time or vacation, upon the application of either party, for good cause, to extend the several times as hereinbefore provided for the preparation and filing of the statement of facts and bills of exception, but the same shall not be so extended so as to delay the filing of the statement of facts, together with the transcript of record, in the appellate court within the time prescribed by law, and when the parties fail to agree upon a statement of facts, and that duty devolves upon the court, the court shall have such time in which to do so after the expiration of thirty days, as hereinbefore provided, as the court may deem necessary, but the court in such case shall not postpone the preparation and filing of same, together with the transcript of the record, in the appellate court within the time prescribed by law. Provided, if the term of said court may by law continue more than eight weeks, said statement of facts and bills of exception shall be filed within thirty days after final judgment shall be rendered, unless the court shall by order entered of record in said cause extend the time for filing such statement and bills of exception. Provided, further, that when the parties fail to agree upon a statement of facts, the judge shall not be required to prepare such statement of facts, unless the party appealing, by himself or attorney, within the time allowed for filing, shall present to the judge a statement of facts, and shall certify thereon, over his signature, that to the best of his knowledge and belief, it is a full and fair statement of all the facts proven on the trial. Provided that any statement of facts filed before the time for filing the transcript in the appellate court expires, shall be considered as having been filed within time allowed by law for filing same. [Id. sec. 7.]

Explanatory.—See note under Art. 2070.

33. —— Effect of failure to file in time.
34. Decisions under act of 1903—Other article not affected.
35. —— Separate bill of exceptions.

1. Repeals former law.—Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, giving 30 days in which to prepare and file a statement of facts, is in conflict with the old statute giving 20 days, and repeals the latter. Toland & Co. v. Turner (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 852.

2. To what courts applicable.—See, also, post, 38, 44.

This section applies to county courts, and hence a statement of facts on appeal from county court was not subject to be stricken because not filed until about 25 days after adjournment of such court. Gibson v. Singer Sewing Mach. Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 633.

Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, applies only to courts having official stenographers. Durham v. State (Cr. App.) 155 S. W. 122.

3. Applies to subsequent appeals.—Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, prescribing the time and method of making up and filing statements of facts and bills of exceptions, in force June 11, 1911, applies to an appeal subsequently perfected, though the motion for new trial was overruled prior to the taking effect of the act. Water & Light Co. of El Campo v. El Campo Light, Ice & Water Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 259.

4. Filing with clerk.—See, also, post, 16.

A bill of exceptions, not filed below, cannot be considered on appeal from a criminal conviction. Cyphers v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 187.

Bills of exception bearing no file marks, and not showing that they were ever filed with the clerk of the court, nor when they were delivered to the clerk, if at all, and not showing when they were presented to and approved by the judge, will not be considered. Roberts v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 627.

5. Time for filing—In general.—See, also, post, 12, 16, 36, 38, 44.

Under the trial court's order giving the appellant "until" a certain day to file a statement of facts, a statement filed on the day mentioned was in time. Harvey v. Provident Inv. Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 284.

6. —— Filing within time for filing transcript.—Under Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, § 7, a statement of facts filed more than 30 days after the adjournment of the term, but within the time for filing the transcript, is sufficiently filed. Cook v. Seay (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 676.

The provision of the official stenographers act of 1911 (Acts 32d Leg. c. 119) that statements of fact filed before the time for filing the transcript in the appellate court expires is filed in time allows 90 days in which to file such statements of facts in criminal cases. Gavinia v. State (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 594.

The provision of the official stenographers act of 1911 (Acts 32d Leg. c. 119) that a statement of fact filed before the time for filing the transcript in the appellate court expires shall be considered as filed in time does not apply to bills of exceptions. Id.

Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, § 7, authorizes the court of civil appeals to consider a statement filed within 90 days; but it does not impose on the trial judge the duty of making or approving within 90 days a statement not filed within the time limited by other provisions of that statute. Harris v. Camp (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 597.

Under Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, § 7, a statement of facts is filed in time when filed before the expiration of the time for filing the transcript in the appellate court, but the statute does not include bills of exceptions which are still under the law as to extension of time. Unknown Heirs of Criswell v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 210.

A statement of facts is filed within time if filed as required by Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, § 7, providing that, if the statement of facts is filed in the trial court before the time for filing the transcript in the appellate court, it is deemed to have been filed within time, though it was not in fact filed within 30 days after adjournment of the trial court. Witherspoon v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 633.

7. —— Authority of clerk.—The clerk of the trial court has no authority to receive and file a statement of facts after the time for filing has expired, and where he did so the statement will be treated as unfiled on a motion in the court of civil appeals to permit the filing of a statement of facts in that court. State v. Lincoln (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1195.

8. Extension of time.—See, also, post, 16, 44.

In a prosecution for murder, where the trial court at the next term after denial of a new trial and after an appeal was taken refused to conform the judgment to the verdict, time for filing bills of exception and a statement of facts cannot be granted by the appellate court; the statute requiring such instruments to be filed at the term in which the conviction occurs or within a specified time after adjournment. Robison v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 912.

Under the stenographers act (Acts 32d Leg. c. 119), the time for filing the statement of facts in a criminal case may, at most, not be extended more than 90 days beyond the adjournment of the term of the trial court; the law requiring the transcript in a civil case to be filed in the appellate court within 90 days from the adjournment of the term of the trial court, and while fixing no time for filing the transcript in a criminal case in the appellate court, providing that on adjournment of the court the clerk shall "immediately" make out, and forward to the appellate court, the transcript, and that transcripts in criminal cases shall be made out before those in civil cases. Maxwell v. State (Cr. App.) 153 S. W. 324.

9. —— Time of granting extension.—A statement of facts may be filed under an order in vacation extending the time previously ordered in counties in which the terms of court are limited to eight weeks. Nocona Nat. Bank v. Bolton (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 242.

The county court may, at a subsequent term, extend the time of filing of bills of exception and statements of fact. Shepherd & Davenport v. McEvoy (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 285.

Order to extend time for filing statement of facts held void when made in vacation after expiration of time previously allowed. Hines v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 289.

In absence of a recital to the contrary in an order extending the time for filing of bills of exception and statements of fact, it will be presumed, when such order was made in vacation, that it was made with consent, and did not violate the prohibition against the making of such orders in vacation. Brown v. Gatewood (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 950.

Where, by law, the term of court is authorized to continue for more than eight weeks, no order extending the time for filing statements of facts and bills of exceptions can be made in vacation, even though the term did not last the full eight weeks. Id.

An order extending the time for the filing of bills of exceptions and statements of facts, where the term of court may be by law continued more than eight weeks, is ineffectual if made during vacation and not during the term. Unknown Heirs of Criswell v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 210.

10. —— Order by judge of another court.—A judge of the district court while sitting in one county of his district is not sitting as a court as to other counties of his judicial district, and so he cannot, while holding court in one county, enter an order extending the time of filing statement of facts in an action tried in another county at a term which might by law continue more than eight weeks. National Bank of Commerce v. Lone Star Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 663.

11. —— Stipulations.—A stipulation of parties as to the time of filing the statement of facts cannot indefinitely delay its filing; and, hence, where a transcript of the record was originally filed in another court of civil appeals June 12, 1911, and after transfer was filed here August 3, 1911, and the statement of facts and duplicate received by the clerk of this court April 22, 1912, was not filed until after submission of the case and opinion rendered, it was tendered too late, notwithstanding a stipulation that it might be filed in the appellate court at any time before final submission of the case. Herbert & Wight v. Coffee (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 346.

Under Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, § 7, an appellant's time to file a statement of facts and bills of exception is not extended by a written agreement between counsel, approved by the trial judge, but not entered of record, that they may be filed after the prescribed time, nor by oral representations by appellee's counsel that he had 90 days in which to file. Harris v. Camp (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 597.

12. Excuses for failure to file in time.—See, also, Art. 2074 and notes.

Matters excusing a delay in filing a statement of facts cannot be first raised on appeal. Cook v. Seay (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 676.

13. Effect of failure to file in time—In general.—See, also, post, 16, 38, 44.

The court of civil appeals will notice failure to file the statement of facts in time, though appellee does not raise the question. McKenzie v. Beason (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 246.

That bills of exception and the statement of facts were not filed until more than 16 months after adjournment of the term at which appellant was convicted warrants dismissal of his appeal on motion by the attorney general. Brinson v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 776.

14. —— Not considered.—A statement of facts not filed within the time required by statute may not be considered on appeal. Connally & Shaw v. Saunders (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 975.

A statement of facts not legally filed may be disregarded although not objected to. Hines v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 289.

Matter contained in statements of facts and bills of exceptions, not filed within the time required by law, nor the assignments of error predicated thereon, need not be considered on appeal. Hayes v. Groesbeck (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 327.

Where an original copy of the statement of facts, not bearing the file mark of the clerk of the lower court, and a carbon copy bearing such file mark appeared in the record, but neither the original nor the copy was filed within the time prescribed by law, neither can be considered. Herbert & Wight v. Coffee (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 346.

Error in failing to file findings and conclusions held not reviewable, where bill of exceptions thereto was not filed for nearly 10 months after term at which case was tried. Hanks v. Holt (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 599.

The provision that, if the term of court may be continued more than 8 weeks, bills of exceptions shall be filed within 30 days after final judgment, unless further time is granted by an order entered of record, is mandatory, and where there is no order in the transcript extending the time, bills filed more than 30 days after the entry of final judgment cannot be considered. Gibson v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 1090.

The court, on review of a criminal cause, will not consider bills of exceptions filed more than 30 days from the date of the adjournment of court, in the absence of an order entered, permitting the bills to be filed after the expiration of the time, or a statement in the record why they were not filed within the time limited. Hart v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 188.

A bill of exceptions, not filed within 30 days allowed by law, cannot be considered, unless the record contains an order extending the time. Gaines v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 199.

A bill of exceptions, filed more than 30 days after the adjournment of the court, no extension beyond that time being shown, is too late, and cannot be considered. Giles v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 907.

Bills of exceptions not filed within the time prescribed by law nor within the time granted by the court cannot be considered. Johnson v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 1175.

Under Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, § 7, a statement filed more than 30 days after adjournment of court without any order having been entered authorizing the same to be so filed cannot be considered on appeal. Cofield v. Supreme Camp of American Woodmen (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 341.

Bills of exceptions incorporated in the statement of facts will not be considered on appeal unless the statement of facts is filed within the time prescribed for the filing of bills of exceptions. Unknown Heirs of Criswell v. Robbins (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 210.

15. —— Striking out.—A statement of facts, not filed within the time as extended, will be stricken out. Sebedra v. State, 63 Cr. R. 578, 140 S. W. 779.

Where the bill of exceptions is not filed until more than 90 days after adjournment of the trial court, it will be stricken from the record. Boyd v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 612.

A statement of facts and bills of exception filed more than 30 days after judgment, where the term lasted more than 8 weeks, without any order authorizing or permitting the same to be so filed, is invalid, and renders the statement and bills subject to a motion to strike. Yoakum v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 910.

16. Decisions under prior act—In general.—See, also, post, 34, 36, 38, 44.

Act May 25, 1907 (Acts 30th Leg. c. 24, § 14), requiring appellant to present the statement of facts to opposing counsel within 15 days after final adjournment, is directory, so that the statement will not be stricken for noncompliance therewith, where appellee was not injured thereby. Bargna v. Bargna (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1156.

17. —— Filing with clerk.—It is the duty of the party presenting the bill of exceptions to see that it is properly filed, and the presumption of negligence is against him if not explained by the record. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Holliday, 65 T. 512.

18. —— Authority of clerk.—A district clerk has no authority to file a statement of facts as of a date before he receives it. P. J. Willis & Bro. v. Smith, 17 C. A. 543, 43 S. W. 325.

19. —— File marks or indorsements.—When a bill of exceptions is signed by the judge and delivered to the clerk before the adjournment of the court for the term, the fact that the file-mark was indorsed thereafter is immaterial. Baker v. Milde (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 152.

If the file mark shows that the statement of facts was filed in time, though the contrary is proved by affidavits, the court of civil appeals cannot strike out the statement. Brown v. Durham (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 369.

The affidavit of the clerk to the effect that a statement of facts was not filed at the time shown by its indorsement is insufficient to contradict the record. But the certificate of the trial judge showing that a statement of facts was filed after the time allowed, will contradict the indorsement of the clerk showing when it was filed, and justify the court of civil appeals to strike it from the record. Blount v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 681.

Where a bill of exceptions appeared to have been filed in proper time, it will not be stricken, though there are affidavits showing that it was not in fact filed until long after adjournment of court. Keller v. Kettner (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 907.

20. —— Time for filing in general.—See, also, post, 42.

The bill must be filed during the term. Farrar v. Bates, 55 T. 193; Willis v. Donac, 61 T. 588; Lockett v. Schurenberg, 60 T. 610; Schaub v. Brewing Co., 80 T. 637, 16 S. W. 420; Niagara Stamping & Tool Co. v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 689.

When a statement of facts is filed after the term, an order permitting it must be shown. Beville v. Rush (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1022; Ross v. McGowan, 58 T. 603; Osborne v. Prather, 83 T. 211, 18 S. W. 613; White v. Parks, 67 T. 605, 4 S. W. 245.

A statement of facts cannot be made and filed at the term of court subsequent to the trial. Peoples v. Terry (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 846.

A bill of exceptions to remarks of counsel, filed within 20 days after adjournment, under an order of court allowing this to be done, requires the court to consider the bill as a part of the record of the case. Colorado Canal Co. v. Sims (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 532.

The meaning of the act is to provide an additional method for preparing statements of facts and under this act, if the statement is not filed during term of court, there must be an order of court allowing the filing of the statement within 20 days after the adjournment. Mundine v. State, 50 Cr. R. 93, 97 S. W. 491.

A previous order held required to authorize the filing of statements of fact and bills of exception within 10 days after adjournment of the court. Kimbell v. Powell, 57 C. A. 57, 121 S. W. 541.

Evidence held to show that a statement of facts was actually filed within time. Howard v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 707.

A statement of facts cannot be filed after the adjournment of the term, where there is no order of record as provided by statute. Misso v. State, 61 Cr. R. 241, 135 S. W. 1173.

21. —— After entry of judgment nunc pro tunc.—Verdict was rendered November 13, 1903, and the judge entered on his docket statement that judgment was for plaintiff and the amount, but no judgment was spread on the minutes and court adjourned November 19, 1903. On October 24, 1904, judgment nunc pro tunc was entered in accordance with the verdict. The entry of this judgment nunc pro tunc was a part of the trial of the case, and the parties had a right after the judgment was entered to have a statement of facts made up and filed upon which to prosecute their appeal. An appeal may be prosecuted from a judgment nunc pro tunc entered at a subsequent term. Palmo v. Slayden & Co., 100 T. 13, 92 S. W. 797.

22. —— Filing on last day.—Failure to file a statement of facts until a late hour of the last day allowed therefor held ground for not considering it, in the absence of showing diligence or excuse. Carter v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 92.

23. —— Amendment after time for filing.—Court, in the absence of fraud, held unauthorized to amend a statement of facts certified and filed within the time prescribed, after the time allowed in which to prepare and file a statement had expired. Dorsey v. Olive Sternenberg & Co., 42 C. A. 568, 94 S. W. 413.

24. —— Extension of time.—An agreement by counsel as to extension of time for approval of the statement of facts held not to contemplate approval after filing of the transcript on the appellate court. Watkins v. Hale, 37 C. A. 243, 84 S. W. 386.

The trial court held to have no power, after the adjournment of the term at which judgment was entered, to authorize or require the clerk to make an instrument a part of the record entitling it to be considered a part of the statement of facts. Haberzettle v. Trinity & B. V. Ry. Co., 46 C. A. 527, 103 S. W. 219.

Where the statute authorizes the district judge to extend the time for filing the bill of exceptions and statement of facts upon good cause shown, and an application for extension is made more than two months after adjournment of court, joined with a request to the judge to prepare a statement of facts, the application stating that the parties had not agreed upon and filed a statement of facts, and not that they could not so agree, it will be presumed that the judge exercised a sound discretion in denying the application. Kingsley v. Kerr (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 161.

25. —— Written motion.—It is only in cases where it is desired to have the refusal of the judge to grant such leave reviewed in the supreme court that it is necessary that a written motion asking leave to file, etc., should appear in the record of the cases. Ball v. Collins, 66 T. 467, 17 S. W. 371.

26. —— Entry of order.—If an order granting 20 days after adjournment to file statement of facts is entered in the minutes it is a sufficient entry of the order. Slaughter v. Cooper (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 898.

27. —— Authority of trial judge.—The power of a district judge to authorize a statement of facts to be signed and filed in vacation must be exercised by an order entered of record during the term, and the time allowed cannot exceed 10 days. The judge cannot authorize the clerk to receive a statement of facts not really signed within 10 days after the adjournment and to file it as of a date within the 10 days. Railway Co. v. Scott, 58 T. 187; McGuire v. Newbill, 58 T. 314.

The trial judge may not, after the expiration of the time allowed by order of court to file a statement of facts and bill of exceptions, make out or approve either such statement or bill. Gray v. Frontroy, 40 C. A. 302, 89 S. W. 1090.

28. —— Authority of court of civil appeals.—The court of civil appeals held not authorized to inquire whether the bill of exceptions was approved and filed during the term at which the cause was tried. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Christensen (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 744.

29. —— Duty of trial judge.—As a matter of law, a trial judge does not fail to perform his duty to file a statement of facts, upon disagreement of the parties, until expiration of the 30 days allowed for that purpose; and the duty continues until performed, notwithstanding lapse of that period. Applebaum v. Bass (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 173.

30. —— Excuses for failure to file in time.—See, also, Art. 2074 and notes.

Where there was a failure to perfect a statement of facts without fault upon the part of the appellant, on appeal a new trial was granted. Sullivan v. White, 4 App. C. C. § 56, 15 S. W. 126.

It is no excuse for failure to file a statement of facts on a writ of error that plaintiff's counsel prepared it and asked the approval of opposing counsel, and at his suggestion, untainted with intent to deceive or defraud, the matter was postponed for more than two years. Smithwick v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 690.

Bill of exceptions will not be stricken from the files because not filed in due time, where it was impossible to get signature of judge because of his absence from the state. Johnson v. Erado (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 139.

31. —— Presumption.—It will be presumed, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, that the trial judge did his duty and prepared and filed a statement of facts as soon as he could after it was presented to him. Guyer v. Snow, 40 C. A. 407, 90 S. W. 71.

32. —— Waiver.—Failure to file a properly allowed statement of facts within the time prescribed held not a jurisdictional defect, but one which appellee could waive. Brown v. Orange County, 48 C. A. 470, 107 S. W. 607.

33. —— Effect of failure to file in time.—A statement of facts, filed after the adjournment of court without an order allowing it, will not be considered. McGuire v. Newbill, 58 T. 314; Ross v. McGowen, 58 T. 603; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. McAllister, 59 T. 362; Trewitt v. Blundell, 59 T. 253; Lockett v. Schurenberg, 60 T. 610; Mathews v. Boydstun (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 814; White v. Holley (Civ. App.) 20 S. W. 859; Hardemyer v. Young, 1 App. C. C. § 151; Wade v. Buford, 1 App. C. C. § 1334. And so, when filed after expiration of period allowed by the order. Lanier v. Perryman, 59 T. 104; Northern Assurance Co. v. Samuels, 11 C. A. 417, 33 S. W. 239.

A bill of exceptions contained in a statement of facts approved and filed after the adjournment of court cannot be considered. Yoe v. Montgomery, 68 T. 338, 4 S. W. 622; Ivey v. Williams, 78 T. 685, 15 S. W. 163; Baxter v. Baker (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 258.

A statement of facts filed by order of the judge after ten days from adjournment will be struck out on motion. Thompson v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 236.

A statement of facts, by order of court to be filed within 10 days after adjournment, will not be considered if filed a month thereafter. Lowthers v. State (Cr. App.) 42 S. W. 998.

Where bills of exception are filed long after the adjournment of the court in which the cause was tried, assignments of error based thereon cannot be sustained. P. J. Willis & Bro. v. Smith, 17 C. A. 543, 43 S. W. 325.

Where bill of exceptions was not filed until two months after the adjournment of the court, the case cannot be considered on appeal. Gerstenkorn v. State, 38 Cr. R. 621, 44 S. W. 503.

Bills of exception taken at a term subsequent to that at which the alleged erroneous motions were made will not be considered. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Eaten (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 562.

Statement of facts shown by judge's certificate to have been filed after time allowed will be stricken from record. Blount v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 681.

A bill of exceptions to rulings on evidence embraced in a statement of facts which was not filed until after adjournment of court will be ignored. Siebert v. Lott, 20 C. A. 191, 49 S. W. 783.

Questions raised as to the admission of testimony will not be considered when there is no bill of exceptions reserved except by the statement of facts filed more than ten days after the trial. King v. Sassaman (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 304.

Where, on appeal, the statement of facts is not filed within the time allowed by law, which fact appears from the record, the assignments of error will not be considered. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Bedell (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 706.

Statement of facts filed after close of term, without authority of 10-day order, will not entitle appellant to consideration of assignments of error as to amount of judgment. Pinkard v. Willis, 24 C. A. 69, 57 S. W. 891.

The statement of facts in the record, filed after the 10 days prescribed by law, cannot be considered, and the judgment must be affirmed. Anderson v. Walker (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 432.

Where there is no bill of exceptions saving objections to the admission in evidence of certified copies of deeds, except in the body of the statement of facts, which was not filed until after the term, they stand as if admitted without objection. Everett v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co., 28 C. A. 528, 67 S. W. 453.

Where the statement of facts was filed after the adjournment of court, without an order allowing such filing, the statement cannot be considered. Hollywood v. Wellhausen, 28 C. A. 541, 68 S. W. 329.

Statement of facts filed after adjournment held not open to consideration on appeal. Dennis v. Neal (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 387.

A statement of facts filed two months after termination of the term at which the case was tried, cannot be considered on appeal. Wilcox v. League, 31 C. A. 109, 71 S. W. 414.

Under district court rule 56 (20 S. W. xv), exceptions to evidence embodied in the statement of facts, which was filed after the court had adjourned for the term, could not be considered. St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. McArthur, 31 C. A. 205, 72 S. W. 76.

A statement of facts, filed more than ten days after adjournment of the court, cannot be considered. Conner v. Downs, 32 C. A. 588, 75 S. W. 335.

On appeal, a motion to strike out the statement of facts on the ground that it was not filed during the term will be denied. Wilson v. Tyler Coffin Co. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 327.

A statement of facts filed in vacation, without an order allowing it, held no part of the record. Rapid Transit Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 439.

On appeal, a motion to strike the statement of facts, because not filed in the trial court within the time required, held good. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 61.

Statement of facts filed after the adjournment of the term without an order allowing the filing cannot be considered on appeal. Patterson v. State, 48 Cr. R. 322, 88 S. W. 226.

A statement of facts filed nearly three months after the time allowed will not be considered on appeal. Smith v. Pecos Valley & N. E. Ry. Co., 43 C. A. 204, 95 S. W. 11.

Unless there is an order entered on the judge's docket allowing 20 days after adjournment of court in which to file a statement of facts, such statement cannot be considered on appeal. Kilpatrick v. State (Cr. App.) 97 S. W. 1045.

A bill of exceptions not filed in time cannot be looked to to ascertain whether exceptions to the rulings objected to were properly preserved. London v. Crow, 46 C. A. 190, 102 S. W. 177.

Failure of court to file his conclusions held not reviewable where bill of exceptions was taken and filed after adjournment of term. Lumpkin v. Marress (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 1169.

A statement of facts not filed within the time allowed by the court held stricken from the file. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. v. Brittain (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 157.

A statement of facts, filed out of time without reasonable excuse held not subject to consideration. Dealy v. Shepherd, 54 C. A. 80, 116 S. W. 638.

Bills of exception filed more than 20 days after the adjournment of court cannot be considered. Dobson v. Zimmerman, 55 C. A. 394, 118 S. W. 236.

Where a statement of facts and bill of exceptions were not approved until nearly a year after the time allowed, and no excuse appeared, motion to strike out will be sustained. McKenzie & Ferguson v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1071.

A statement of facts stricken out of the record because of delay in filing. Rountree v. D. H. Bell & Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1080.

A bill of exceptions filed after the term will not be considered. Gentry v. State, 62 Cr. R. 497, 137 S. W. 696.

A statement of facts, filed after the adjournment of the term at which appellant was tried, cannot be considered on appeal; there being no order in the record authorizing its filing at that time. Squyres v. State (Cr. App.) 146 S. W. 932.

Bills of exception and a statement of facts not filed until more than 20 days had expired after the adjournment of the term at which accused was convicted would not be considered on appeal. Gibbs v. State (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 687.

34. Decisions under act of 1903—Other article not affected.—This act does not relate to or affect Code Cr. Proc. art. 634, regulating bills of exception on the action of the court overruling motion for change of venue. Wallace v. State, 46 Cr. R. 341, 81 S. W. 967.

35. —— Separate bill of exceptions.—This act does not contemplate only a separate bill of exception, but it is competent, as under the old law, to take a bill of exceptions in connection with the statement of facts, and file it within the 20 days after the term granted by order of court. Martin v. State, 47 Cr. R. 174, 82 S. W. 658.

36. Decisions under act of 1905—Other articles not repealed.—The act of 1905 did not repeal Arts. 2068 and 2074. Baker v. State, 50 Cr. R. 354, 97 S. W. 81, 82.

The act of 1905 with regard to the filing of the official stenographer's notes in lieu of a statement of facts as under the former law did not repeal the provisions of the statute with regard to the time of such filing. Brown v. Orange County, 48 C. A. 470, 107 S. W. 609.

37. —— Time for filing.—If the statement of facts is not filed within 20 days from the adjournment of court, it cannot be considered, except for good reason for not filing in time. Baker v. State, 50 Cr. R. 354, 97 S. W. 81, 82.

38. Decisions under acts of 1907—Change of law.—That part of this law (Acts 1907, p. 446) which is in conflict with the provisions of the act subsequently passed at the same session (Acts 1907, p. 509), is repealed by the subsequent act, and the provision allowing 20 days after adjournment in which to file statement of facts is in conflict with the later law. But no part of this act which is not in conflict with the subsequent act is repealed. Garrison v. Richards (Cr. App.) 107 S. W. 865.

Where the court entered an order allowing 20 days within which to file statement of facts and adjourned before this law went into effect, but during the 20 days this law became effective and the statement of facts was filed within 30 days, but not within 20 days from adjournment, the filing is in time, and statement can be considered if the original statement is sent up, but not if copied into the transcript. Act May 25, 1907 (Acts 1907, p. 512), giving the right to file a statement of facts within 30 days after adjournment of the court without providing for an order for that purpose, controls, instead of the prior act of March 14, 1907 (Acts 1907, p. 446), relating to the same subject. Baldwin v. G. M. Davidson & Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 562.

Acts 31st Leg. c. 39, providing for the appointment of official stenographers in certain district courts, and that upon such appointment the other provisions of the act shall apply, section 7 of which provides that, when appeal is taken from a judgment in a district or county court, the parties shall have 30 days after the adjournment of the term in which to prepare and file a statement of facts, repealed Acts 30th Leg. c. 24, providing for the appointment of official stenographers for district courts, but did not repeal chapter 7, providing that parties to a cause in the district or county court may, by having an order entered to that effect on the docket, be granted 20 days after adjournment of the term to present and have filed a statement of facts, which act remains in force as to county courts and to district courts not appointing official reporters under Acts 31st Leg. c. 39; and in a county court case, where the term adjourned October 11th and the statement of facts was not filed until November 9th, such statement cannot be considered on appeal. Mueller v. State, 61 Cr. R. 544, 135 S. W. 571.

Acts 1903, c. 25, following art. 2074, which permitted the courts of civil appeals, but not the court of criminal appeals, to consider statements of facts filed after 10 days from adjournment, and Rev. St. 1895, art. 1381, which empowered the court to extend the time for filing statements of facts, and authorizing county and district courts in civil and criminal cases to allow 20 days after adjournment for the filing of statements of facts, re-enacted without material change by Acts 1907 (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 7, with added authority to the court to take 10 days after adjournment to file findings of facts and conclusions of law when demanded, was not repealed by Acts 1907 (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 24, of the same session, which after repealing Acts 1903, c. 60, and Acts 1905, c. 112, relating to court stenographers, authorized statements of facts in the district courts only to be filed 30 days after adjournment of court, nor by Acts 1909 (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 39, relating to appointment of court stenographers, which, by section 7, allows 30 days after adjournment for filing statements of fact, that act applying only to such district courts as have appointed official shorthand reporters and to county courts at law in civil cases only having special court stenographers, and thereunder in all criminal cases in the county courts only 20 days after adjournment of court is allowed for filing the statement of facts and bill of exceptions, and, if filed after 20 days, they will be stricken from the record. Mosher v. State, 62 Cr. R. 42, 136 S. W. 467.

The act of 1907 (Acts 30th Leg. c. 7), which provides that 20 days shall be allowed after the adjournment of the term of the county court in which to file bills of exception and statements of fact, and not the act of 1909 (Acts 31st Leg. c. 39, §§ 6, 7), which provides for official stenographers in certain courts, other than the county courts, and for a greater allowance of time than 20 days after adjournment, and for extensions, fixes the time in which bills of exceptions and statements of fact must be filed, in appeals from the county court. Whitaker v. State, 62 Cr. R. 36, 136 S. W. 1072.

39. —— Merely directory.—The provisions of this section with reference to time are merely directory, and are intended to serve only as a regulation in the preparation of a statement of facts. If appellant tenders his statement within 20 days or 27 days after the adjournment of court and approved, it will be regarded as a statement of facts properly filed and approved. Ferris Press Brick Co. v. Hawkins, 53 C. A. 578, 116 S. W. 80.

40. —— To what courts applicable.—The rule authorizing statement of facts to be filed within thirty days after the adjournment of the term does not apply to cases tried in the county court, but is confined to the district court. Nichols v. State, 55 Cr. R. 211, 115 S. W. 1196.

Acts 1st Called Sess. 1907, c. 7, providing that statements of facts and bills of exceptions must be filed within 20 days after the close of the term at which accused was convicted, applies to all appeals from the county court, so that a statement and bills filed on January 21, 1911, after the adjournment of the term at which accused was convicted on November 28, 1910, was too late. Chaney v. State, 62 Cr. R. 67, 136 S. W. 482.

41. —— Time for filing.—A statement of facts filed within 30 days from adjournment of court is in time, although by an order of court 20 days was given in which to file said statement and it was not filed in 20 days. Dobbs v. State, 54 Cr. R. 579, 113 S. W. 922.

The statement of facts, whether agreed to by the parties, prepared by the judge or under his direction by the stenographer, must be filed within 30 days from the adjournment of the term. Knox v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1143.

Acts 30th Leg., 1st Extra Sess., c. 7, grants the right to judges to file their conclusions of fact and law at any time within 10 days after the adjournment of the term when demand is made therefor, and that bills of exceptions may be allowed within 20 days after adjournment. Under Art. 1989, the supreme court before the acts of 1907 could not consider the failure of the court to file its conclusions unless the point was preserved by a bill of exceptions. The statute as to bills of exceptions requires that they shall be presented to the judge during the term, and within 10 days after conclusion of trial. Held that, if the provision in the law of 1907 as to bills of exceptions applies to matters which might arise after trial, such as the conclusions of law made after adjournment, then the action of the judge in refusing to prepare conclusions on demand, made within 10 days after adjournment, must be preserved by bill of exceptions, and, if otherwise since it was the practice not to review without exceptions, that it would be considered that the court had inherent power to grant the bill of exceptions after adjournment, and a failure to file conclusions could not be reviewed in the absence of bill of exceptions. Kemp v. Everett (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 897.

42. —— Effect of failure to file in time.—Where a statement of facts is filed later than the 30 days after adjournment of the court at which the cause was tried, allowed by Acts 1907 (Ex. Sess.) c. 24, § 14, such statement cannot be considered on a writ of error. Henderson v. Midkiff (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 898.

Where the statement of facts incorporated in a record on appeal is not filed within the time allowed by Acts 30th Leg. (1st Called Sess.) c. 7, the statement will be stricken out on motion. Ikard v. State (Cr. App.) 135 S. W. 547.

The statement of facts, not being filed in the time allowed by Acts 30th Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 7, will be stricken on motion. Brogdon v. State, 63 Cr. R. 473, 140 S. W. 353.

43. —— Motion to require clerk to perfect record.—Where original statement of facts duly prepared and filed in court below is not sent up with the record within the 90 days, a motion can be made requiring the clerk to perfect the record by sending up the statement of facts, and the motion is in time if filed before submission, and if the statement is sent up the court must consider it. Wallace & Reed v. Reed Bros., 102 T. 314, 116 S. W. 35, 36.

44. Decisions under act of 1909—Mandatory.—This statute is mandatory. Couturie v. Crespi, 103 T. 554, 131 S. W. 403; Roberts v. State, 62 Cr. R. 7, 136 S. W. 483.

45. —— Retroactive operation.—Acts 31st Leg. 1909, c. 39, took effect July 10, 1909, and gave an appellant 30 days after adjournment in which to file a statement of the facts. Acts 1907, p. 509, in force before that time, gave only 20 days, and under that act appellant was erroneously granted 30 days from adjournment of court, which was on June 29, 1909. Held, that the act of 1909, being remedial, would be construed to be retroactive, and hence, since the 20 days allowed by the old law had not expired when the act of 1909 took effect, the time was thereby extended to 30 days, and the statement filed on July 27, 1909, was in time. Mitchell v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 266.

46. —— To what courts applicable.—The act of 1909 applies only to such district courts as have appointed official shorthand reporters, and to county courts at law having special court stenographers, in civil cases only. Mosher v. State, 62 Cr. R. 42, 136 S. W. 467.

Acts 31st Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 39, allowing 30 days after adjournment in which to file a statement of facts and bill of exceptions, does not apply to criminal cases in county courts, and a county court is without power to extend the time beyond the 20-day limit fixed by Acts 30th Leg. (1st. Ex. Sess.) c. 7, and a statement of facts and bill of exceptions filed more than 20 days after the adjournment of court are too late. Morris v. State, 63 Cr. R. 375, 140 S. W. 775.

The official Stenographers Act of 1909 (Acts 31st Leg. [1st Ex. Sess.] c. 39) § 7, providing that on an appeal from the district or county court the parties shall have 30 days after adjournment of court in which to prepare and file a statement of facts and bills of exception, by the express provisions of section 1 of that act only applies where official shorthand reporters have in fact been appointed. Hamilton v. State (Cr. App.) 145 S. W. 348.

47. —— Time for filing in general.—Under this act held that the court could extend the time of filing a statement of facts more than 30 days after judgment, though the term lasted more than 8 weeks, and that, even apart from such provision, appellant has 30 days after denial of a new trial to file the statement, there being no final judgment pending such motion, and he not being required to anticipate adverse action thereon, and, where the term does not last over 8 weeks, appellant has 30 days after adjournment, without any order, to file a statement. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Felts (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 155.

Acts 30th Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 7, which granted to parties to causes tried in the district and county courts 20 days after adjournment to file a statement of facts and bills of exception, was repealed, so far as it related to filing statements of facts in civil actions in the county court, by Acts 30th Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 24, which repealed all laws in conflict therewith. Acts 31st Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 39, repealed Acts 30th Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 24, and provided by section 7 that on appeal from the judgment in any cause in the district or county court the parties should have 30 days after adjournment to prepare and file a statement of facts and bills of exception, and which empowered the court to allow an additional time; and by section 13 declared that its provisions as to the time allowed for filing of the statement of facts and bills of exceptions should apply to all civil cases tried in the county court. An appeal was taken in a civil case in county court at a term which adjourned January 28th; plaintiff being given 30 days to file bills of exception and statement of facts. By a later order, the time was extended an additional 30 days, and the statement of facts and bill of exceptions was filed March 28th. Held, that the statement of facts and bills of exceptions were filed within the time prescribed by law. Sheppard's Home v. Wood (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 394.

Where an issue of fact is raised by the motion for new trial, bills of exception relating to testimony heard must be filed within term time, for, while Stenographers Act (Acts 31st Leg. [1st Ex. Sess.] c. 39) § 7, allows bills of exception and statements of fact to be filed after adjournment, such act refers exclusively to statements of fact adduced on the trial itself. Bailey v. State (Cr. App.) 144 S. W. 996.

On appeal in a misdemeanor case from a county court having no court stenographer, the statement of facts must be filed during the term unless an order of the court is made during the term authorizing it to be filed within 20 days after adjournment, in which case it must be filed within such 20 days, which time cannot be again extended, since the act of May 14, 1907 (Acts 30th Leg. [1st Ex. Sess.] c. 7), prescribing the time in which statements of fact and bills of exception must be filed so far as it relates to county courts having no court stenographer, was not repealed by Rev. Civ. St. 1911, or Code Cr. Proc. 1911, arts. 845, 846, re-enacting Acts 31st Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 39, §§ 7, 15, relative to the appointment of official stenographers and prescribing the time and method of making and filing statements of fact and bills of exception, nor by the act of March 31, 1911 (Acts 32d Leg. c. 119), with regard to the same matter, all of which apply only to courts having official stenographers. Durham v. State (Cr. App.) 155 S. W. 222.

48. —— Extension of time.—Under Acts 31st Leg. p. 376, c. 39, § 7, where the court adjourned on the 16th day of September, and an application to extend the time to file a statement of facts was granted by the judge to November 1st, a statement of facts which is filed before the expiration of the extended time should not be stricken out on motion for failure to file within the time required by law. Pace v. State, 58 Cr. R. 90, 124 S. W. 949.

Under this act the court could extend the time of filing a statement of facts more than 30 days after judgment, though the term lasted more than 8 weeks. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. v. Felts (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 155.

Where the term extends for more than 8 weeks, and the 30 days' time is not sufficient to prepare a statement of facts and bill of exceptions, the court may, after the 30 days, enter an order for the filing of a statement of facts and bill of exceptions. Couturie v. Crespi, 103 T. 554, 131 S. W. 403.

Under Acts 1909, c. 39, § 7, an order of the court, whose term extended for more than 8 weeks, extending the time to file a statement of facts, granted after the adjournment of the term, is ineffectual, and a statement of facts, filed as authorized by the order, cannot be considered. International Order of Twelve v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1195.

Acts 31st Leg. c. 39, § 7, must be construed as allowing an extension of time, in case of judgment rendered in a court, where the term may continue for more than eight weeks, by an order entered of record by the judge in vacation, for the first part of the act shows that "judge" and "court" are treated as synonymous, and, further, because another construction would work a hardship on the litigants in the second class, in that their rights of appeal might be lost through an impossibility of extending the time of filing the statement of facts and bills of exception after the end of the term. Wilkerson v. Ward (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 692.

Code Cr. Proc. art. 844, permits the statement of facts to be drawn up, certified, and placed in the record as in civil suits. Art. 910 requires an appeal from a judgment in a felony case to be prosecuted immediately, and requires the clerk upon application to make out and forward without delay to the court of criminal appeals a transcript. Held, that this article is mandatory, and, construed in view of the other statutes, does not authorize the trial court to grant extensions of time for filing a statement of facts beyond 90 days from the final judgment, which in criminal cases is the sentence, or from adjournment of the court. Roberts v. State, 62 Cr. R. 7, 136 S. W. 483.

If under this article and Art. 1608, requiring the appellant or plaintiff in error to file a transcript within 90 days after the appeal is perfected with the proviso that the court may permit the transcript to be thereafter filed, the court of civil appeals has any power to extend the time within which a statement of facts may be filed in that court, it has no such power to extend the time within which it may be filed in the trial court nor to permit its filing in the appellate court where it has not been filed in the trial court. State v. Lincoln (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1195.

49. —— Time of granting extension.—Under this act, held that, as to courts whose terms may continue more than 8 weeks, an order extending the time to file the statement of facts and bills of exceptions must be entered before the expiration of the 30 days, and that after the expiration of such period the judge has no power to grant an extension of such time. Freeman v. Vetter (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 909.

Under Acts 31st Leg. c. 39, § 7, an order extending the time must be made within the time originally fixed, and, after the expiration of time, the court may not extend the time. Sanders v. State, 60 Cr. R. 34, 129 S. W. 605.

The term of court at which accused was tried began October 1, 1909, and adjourned January 1, 1910. The trial was on October 4, 1909. Sentence was pronounced December 19, 1909, and the bill of exceptions was filed February 15, 1910, and the statement of facts on February 17, 1910. On February 10, 1910, an order was entered extending the time for filing bills of exception and statement of facts. Held, that the court did not have authority, after the expiration of the term, to order the extension of the time for filing bills of exception and statement of facts; and, even if it had such authority, it could only be exercised within 30 days after final judgment as prescribed by this act, and the order in question, having been entered thereafter was ineffectual. Armstrong v. State, 60 Cr. R. 59, 130 S. W. 1011.

Under Act May 1, 1909 (Acts 31st Leg. c. 39), the trial court cannot, after the term has expired, make an order in vacation extending the time for filing the statement of facts. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 703.

Appellant's motion for rehearing was overruled on January 1, 1910, and an order was entered allowing 30 days within which to file a statement of facts, and the court adjourned for the term on the same day. The appeal bond was filed and the appeal perfected on January 13th, and at the next term, on April 9th, an order was made approving the statement of facts. Held, that under Acts 31st Leg. c. 39, § 7, the statement of facts was filed within the time prescribed and was properly approved; it not being necessary that the order approving and ordering it to be filed be entered at the judgment term. Hamill v. Samuels, 104 T. 46, 133 S. W. 419.

Under Gen. Laws 1909 (1st Ex. Sess.) an order of the court whose term was over 8 weeks extending the time to file a statement of facts granted after adjournment and in vacation, even upon the agreement of parties, is ineffectual. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Cox (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 569.

Under Laws 1909 (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 39, a district judge cannot, during vacation, when the cause was tried at a term lasting more than eight weeks, extend the time for filing. Pecos & N. T. R. Co. v. Cox, 104 T. 556, 140 S. W. 1078.

Under Act May 1, 1909 (Laws 31st Leg. [1st Extra Sess.] c. 39), the trial court may not, after the expiration of the term, make an order in vacation extending the time for the filing of the statement of facts and bill of exceptions. Smyer v. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 683.

50. —— Time for judge to prepare statement.—Under Laws 31st Leg. c. 39, a trial judge preparing a statement after disagreement of counsel may use such time as he deems necessary, provided it does not delay the filing of the transcript beyond the statutory time. Lefevre v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 212.

51. —— Effect of failure to file in time.—Under Laws 31st Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.) c. 39, § 7, and Code Cr. Proc. art. 930, requiring transcripts in criminal cases to be prepared in preference to civil cases, held that courts are powerless to authorize filing of bills after expiration of the 90-day period. Crowell v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 570.

Art. 2074. [1382] [1379a] Statement of facts not filed in time, when considered by court.—Whenever a statement of facts shall have been filed after the time prescribed by law, and the party tendering or filing the same shall show to the satisfaction of the courts of civil appeals that he has used due diligence to obtain the approval and signature of the judge thereto, and to file the same within the time in this chapter prescribed for filing the same, and that his failure to file the same within said time is not due to the fault or laches of said party or his attorney, and that such failure was the result of causes beyond his control, the courts of civil appeals shall permit said statement of facts to remain as part of the record, and consider the same in the hearing and adjudication of said cause the same as if said statement of facts had been filed in time. [Acts 1887, p. 17.]

Cited.—Mundine v. State, 50 Cr. R. 93, 97 S. W. 49; Mosher v. Same, 62 Cr. R. 42, 136 S. W. 467.

When applicable.—This article does not apply when the statement of facts is prepared by the judge after failure of the parties to agree on such statement, and the judge fails to file it within the proper time through no fault of the appellant. Hilburn v. Preston (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 702.

This statute applies both to statement of facts made out and filed by the judge and that filed by a party to the suit with the approval of the judge. Anderson v. Walker, 95 T. 596, 68 S. W. 981.

The statutory provision permitting the court of civil appeals to consider a statement of facts filed more than 20 days after determination of the court, under certain conditions, does not extend to bills of exceptions. London v. Crow, 46 C. A. 190, 102 S. W. 177.

Under Art. 4643, authorizing appeal from an order granting, refusing, or dissolving a temporary injunction, provided the transcript be filed with clerk of the court of civil appeals within 15 days after entry of the order, section 3 declaring it unnecessary to brief the case, and that it may be heard on appeal on the bill and answer, and such affidavits and testimony as may have been admitted by the trial judge, and section 4, providing such a case may be advanced in the appellate court on motion of either party, it is intended that the entire record be filed within 15 days, that the case may be disposed of with dispatch, so that the general statute relating to making and filing statements of fact, giving 30 days after adjournment therefor, does not apply, but, if the statement is not filed in the 15 days, relief can be had only under this article. Hicks v. Murphy, (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 955.

Excuses for failure to file in time—In general.—Failure to file statement of facts in time held not to be excused. Owen v. Cibolo Creek Mill & Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 297.

See facts of this case, where it was held that a statement of facts filed two days after the ten days allowed for its filing, would not be considered. Moody v. First National Bank of Athens, 19 C. A. 278, 46 S. W. 660; Id. (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 523.

A showing that one of two attorneys representing appellant was engaged in the trial of a case during the time the bill of exceptions should have been presented for settlement held not a sufficient excuse for the failure to present it in time. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Holden, 23 C. A. 144, 55 S. W. 603.

Failure of opposing counsel to sign a statement of facts, and an agreement that the time of filing might be dated back, would not excuse failure to file such statement within the statutory time. Keller v. Kettner (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 907.

This article furnishes the only excuses for not filing statements of facts within term time, when no order is made granting 20 days after adjournment to file same or subsequent to the 20 days when it is granted. Mundine v. State, 50 Cr. R. 93, 97 S. W. 491, 492.

Affidavit of counsel for plaintiff in error held not to show sufficient excuse for failure of the record to contain a statement of facts. Hunter v. Russell (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 696.

On petition for rehearing a motion to strike statement of facts from the record, evidence held not to show sufficient excuse for delay in filing same. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 703.

An appellant who made no effort to procure and file a statement of facts after the expiration of the time fixed, and who offered no excuse for his failure to file the statement of facts within the time fixed, may not avail himself of Laws 32d Leg. c. 119, based on the negligence of the stenographer in failing to file the transcript of the evidence within the time fixed by order of court, since this article provides that, where an appellant shall have filed a statement of facts after the time prescribed by law, and shall show to the court that the failure to file the same within the time was not due to his fault, the court shall permit such statement to remain as a part of the record. Water & Light Co. of El Campo v. El Campo Light, Ice & Water Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 259.

Under Art. 1608, providing that the appellant shall file the transcript within 90 days from the performance of the appeal or service of the writ of error, but that for good cause the court may permit the transcript to be filed thereafter, and this article, and in view of Art. 2070, requiring the statement of facts to accompany the transcript as a part of the record, the statement of facts, being a part of the record whether in the transcript or not, may be filed with the transcript after the expiration of the 90-day period when the failure to file is excusable. Heflin v. Eastern R. Co. of New Mexico (Sup.) 155 S. W. 188.

—— Diligence.—A motion for new trial was overruled on the last day of the term, and an order entered allowing ten days for statement of facts, the defendant's counsel refusing to agree to a statement of facts presented by plaintiff, against whom judgment had been rendered. Three weeks elapsed from the time the judgment was rendered until the motion for a new trial was overruled. After five days had elapsed, plaintiff's counsel committed to the mail his statement of facts, directed to the judge, who was holding court in another county. The statement of facts was not signed by the judge until the expiration of the ten days. In an original action for a new trial, held: (1) Without deciding whether an original petition for new trial could be entertained in any case on the ground that a party against whom judgment was rendered had been deprived without fault on his part of an opportunity fairly to present his case on appeal or writ of error, no proper diligence to obtain a statement of facts in this case was shown. (2) The statement of facts should have been presented in person or by attorney or messenger, and should not have been intrusted to the mail. Proctor v. Wilcox, 68 T. 219, 4 S. W. 375. See Osborne v. Prather, 18 S. W. 613, 83 T. 208; Worley v. McIntire (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 996.

This article only dispenses with the limitation in the preparation of a statement of facts as to time when there has been no lack of diligence in preparing the statement of facts. Rans v. Wheeler, 76 T. 390, 13 S. W. 324.

It is not due diligence under this article to allow four days to elapse after notice of appeal before commencing the preparation of a statement of facts, no sufficient reason being shown for the delay. Ellis v. Cunningham, 16 C. A. 571, 41 S. W. 522.

See this case for facts held not to be sufficient diligence to excuse appellant from filing statement of facts within the time required by law. Blackburn v. Blackburn, 16 C. A. 564, 42 S. W. 132.

Evidence held insufficient to show diligence excusing failure to file statement of facts until two days after the statutory time. Moody v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 523.

A statement of facts filed after the adjournment of court, though tendered at a late hour on the last day under circumstances preventing its approval and filing on that day, will not be considered, there being no showing of diligence on the part of the party presenting it. Carter v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 92.

Plaintiff in error held to have failed to use due diligence to secure the filing of statement of facts in time. Guyer v. Snow, 40 C. A. 407, 90 S. W. 71.

When there is an excuse for not filing original statement of facts in the appellate court within the time required by law, but no excuse for not filing same until eight months after the time when it might have been filed, it will not be considered, although the statement was presented more than a month before the submission of the case. The delay was entirely too long. Dealy v. Shepherd, 54 C. A. 80, 116 S. W. 641.

The appellant failed to file his statement of facts and bills of exceptions within 30 days, as required by the statute, and it appeared that the case was tried by a judge from another district, and there were difficulties in obtaining his approval of these documents. The statement of facts and bills of exceptions were sent from San Antonio by express four days before the expiration of time of filing, and on the two last days for filing were presented during office hours by the agent of the express company to the district clerk's office, which was closed. It appeared that the clerk's office was opened only three hours in the morning and three in the afternoon. The actual filing was one day late. Held that, as there was a reasonable doubt whether appellants had failed to use proper diligence, the appeal should be allowed, under the direct provisions of Laws 31st Leg. c. 39, § 7, and this article. Salinas v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1194.

Under this article an appellant, whose attorneys, after being told by the official stenographer that he was going to be married and could not prepare the statement of facts within the time limited, made no effort to file a statement within the time prescribed, though it was short, and they had ample time to have prepared it, cannot excuse his failure upon that ground. Brown v. Gatewood (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 950.

—— Cause of delay.—The failure to file the statement of facts within the time prescribed held not due to causes beyond appellant's control. Blackburn v. Blackburn, 16 C. A. 564, 42 S. W. 132.

Where the absence of the presiding judge from his home prevents a party from filing his statement of facts in time, a motion to strike it from the files will be denied. P. J. Willis & Bro. v. Smith, 17 C. A. 543, 43 S. W. 325.

Judgment will be reversed when failure to prepare and file statement resulted from neglect of district judge, and not of appellant. Blount v. Lewis (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 405.

A statement of facts filed after the time fixed by law will not be stricken out, it being shown that the delay was caused by the failure of the trial judge to return it in time. Strickland v. Sandmeyer, 21 C. A. 351, 52 S. W. 87.

Evidence held to show that failure to file a statement of facts on appeal within required time did not arise from a cause beyond the control of appellant or counsel, and hence that such statement, when filed too late, should be stricken out. Continental Fire Ass'n v. Stillwell, 26 C. A. 338, 63 S. W. 950.

A statement of facts may be considered, though not filed until after the 10 days prescribed by law had elapsed, where there was no laches on the part of appellant; the delay being due solely to the acts of the opposing counsel and the court. Anderson v. Walker (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 1003.

Statement of facts will not be stricken out, where judge's delay in acting on it prevented it from being filed in time. Bull v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co., 33 C. A. 547, 78 S. W. 525.

Where a statement of facts was not filed in time, and appellant's attorney contributed to the default, appellant was not entitled to have the same considered, under this article. Wilson v. Tyler Coffin Co. (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 664.

Where the failure to file a statement of facts in time was due solely to the act of the trial judge, who was under a misapprehension of the date on which the time limit expired, the court on appeal will consider the statement. Texas & G. Ry. Co. v. First Nat. Bank of Carthage, 47 C. A. 283, 112 S. W. 589.

The overruling of a continuance on the ground of the absence of a witness cannot be considered on appeal, unless the ruling is excepted to and preserved by bill of exceptions filed within the time permitted by law; and the mere fact that the bill was presented to the trial court within the time, and that it did not approve it until after the time, does not authorize the court, on appeal to consider the bill. Gaines v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 199.

Where accused's statement of facts was approved by the attorneys on both sides and handed to the judge for his approval on the thirteenth day after court adjourned, and the judge promised to approve and file the statement within the time allowed, but did not do so owing to a misapprehension of the length of time within which the statement must be filed, and it appeared that the statement filed out of time was correct, it would be considered on appeal. Gibbs v. State (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 687.

—— Agreement of parties.—An oral agreement in violation of the statute requiring the statement of facts to be filed within a given time is no cause for failure to file it within the time required. Thornton v. Foster (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1027.

—— Burden of showing diligence, etc.—In any case where the statement of facts is not filed within the time prescribed the burden is on the party offering the same to show that he has not been guilty of negligence or delay in causing to be prepared and filed within the time required the statement of facts. Stubbs v. Landa Cotton Oil Co., 28 C. A. 56, 66 S. W. 214.

The burden is on him who seeks to have the statement of facts filed after the time fixed by the court has expired to show that he comes within the statute and that he was not in fault. Sisk v. Joyce (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 51.

—— Resort to mandamus.—Physical inability of the trial judge to prepare a statement of facts held sufficient to excuse an appellant for not resorting to mandamus to compel the preparation of such statement. Paddock-Hawley Iron Co. v. Gideur, 26 C. A. 211, 62 S. W. 1091.

Where appellant might have compelled the filing of a statement of facts within the time prescribed by mandamus, a statement filed after the time had expired should be stricken. Wilson v. Tyler Coffin Co. (Civ. App.) 82 S. W. 664.

—— Time for presenting excuse.—Where plaintiff did not oppose a motion to strike the statement of facts because filed too late, he could not, on the hearing on the merits, contend that the fault was that of the judge, and that he was entitled to a reversal. Guyer v. Snow, 40 C. A. 407, 90 S. W. 71.

Execution and approval not excused.—This article does not dispense with the approval and signature of the judge. Rains v. Wheeler, 76 T. 390, 13 S. W. 324.

This article does not authorize the court to consider a statement of facts not signed or approved at all. Owen v. Cibolo Creek Mill & Mining Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 297.

The signature of the presiding judge in such a way as to indicate his approval of the statement of facts is absolutely necessary. The approval by the presiding judge is imperatively demanded by the statute. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1067.

An agreed statement of facts, made for purpose of the trial, and not certified by the court as provided by Art. 1949, cannot be treated as a statement of facts within this article. Chickasha Milling Co. v. Crutcher (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 355.

Art. 2075. Time for judge to file conclusions, etc.—The judge of any district or county court shall have ten days after adjournment of the term at which a cause may be tried in such court in which to prepare his findings of fact and conclusions of law in cases tried before the court, when demand is made therefor. [Acts 1903, p. 32. Acts 1907, S. S., p. 446, sec. 1.]

Cited, Wandry v. Williams, 103 T. 91, 124 S. W. 85; Melvin v. A. J. Deer Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 681; Kemp v. Everett, Id. 897; Sutherland v. Kirkland, 134 S. W. 851; Sheppard's Home v. Wood, 140 S. W. 394; Holt v. Abbey, Id. 473.

Necessity of findings, bill of exceptions, or statement of facts.—See notes under Art. 2058.

Duty to file conclusions.—See notes under Art. 1989.

Sufficiency of demand.—See, also, notes under Art. 1989.

Under Acts 1907, p. 446, c. 7, a request for findings of fact and conclusions of law held sufficient. Wandry v. Williams, 103 T. 91, 124 S. W. 85.

Previous order not necessary.—This article authorizes a district judge to prepare and file conclusions of law and fact, when a demand is made therefor, at any time within 10 days after adjournment of the term, without a previous order to that effect. Kimbell v. Powell, 57 C. A. 57, 121 S. W. 541.

This article only requires that a request for findings of fact and conclusions of law shall be filed, and without any order the trial judge may file his conclusions in 10 days after the adjournment of the court. Wandry v. Williams, 103 T. 91, 124 S. W. 85.

Time for filing conclusions.—There is no rule prescribing the time within which a statement of the conclusions of the judge shall be filed during the term. Anderson v. Horn, 75 T. 675, 13 S. W. 24. See Morrison v. Faulkner, 80 T. 128, 15 S. W. 797.

The conclusions of law and fact must be filed before the adjournment of court. Maury v. Keller (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 60.

Where the trial court's conclusions are not filed until after an appeal from the judgment has reached the court of appeals, the conclusions are no part of the record. Brenton & McKay v. Peck, 39 C. A. 224, 87 S. W. 898.

Attaching to bill of exceptions.—Findings and conclusions not filed in time cannot be made a part of the record by attaching them to the bill of exceptions. Hanks v. Holt (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 599.

Evidence as to time of filing.—Declarations in judgment that conclusions of law and fact were then filed will control the file mark indorsed on the findings by the clerk. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Jackson, 19 C. A. 273, 46 S. W. 279.

Excuse for failure to file in time.—See post.

A party to a suit has a right to conclusions of law and fact which the trial judge cannot refuse on the ground that he did not have time to prepare them. Love v. Rempe (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 681.

Where it is made to appear that the refusal of the judge to file his conclusions of fact and of law is on account of want of time in which to do so, such refusal is not error. Jordan v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1058.

Mandamus to compel filing.—The remedy for the failure of the trial judge to file within 10 days, as required by this article, his conclusions of fact and law, is not by mandamus to compel the filing of the conclusions. Wandry v. Williams, 103 T. 91, 124 S. W. 85.

Filing after time allowed.—Findings of fact and law filed 24 days after the court adjourned are not properly in the record and cannot form the basis for assignment of error. Maverick v. Burney (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 566; King v. Baldwin (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 971.

Findings of fact, filed after the expiration of the term at which the cause was tried, cannot be considered for any purpose. Beaumont Imp. Co. v. Carr, 32 C. A. 615, 75 S. W. 327.

Where a county judge was unauthorized to make an order to file finding of fact and law, held, that they cannot be considered on appeal. Melvin v. A. J. Deer Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 681.

There is no authority for filing conclusions after the time allowed, except possibly in case it be shown that the same could not have been filed sooner. Sutherland v. Kirkland (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 851.

Conclusions of fact and law not filed until after the expiration of the 10 days allowed by law are a nullity. Velasco Fish & Oyster Co. v. Texas Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1184.

The district court has jurisdiction to correct on motion the record on appeal by striking therefrom conclusions of fact and law not signed and filed within the time allowed by law. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Powell (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 887.

The attempt of the trial judge to file findings of fact and conclusions of law after the time prescribed by this article, does not make the findings and conclusions a part of the record on appeal. Emery v. Barfield (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 311.

—— Additional findings.—Where the time for filing findings of fact had expired and the appeal was perfected, the trial court had no authority to file additional findings of fact; and the same could not be considered on appeal. State v. Pease (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 649.

Reversal for failure to file in time.—Trial court's failure to file conclusions of fact and law before end of term, where he had not time to do so, was not reversible error. Jordan v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1058.

Refusal of the judge to file on request conclusions of law and fact, under this article, is reversible error. Wandry v. Williams, 103 T. 91, 124 S. W. 85.

Where the trial court failed to file conclusions of law and fact within 10 days after the term, as required by this article and Art. 1989, appellant on bringing the cause to the appellate court without any statement of facts would be entitled to a reversal. Sutherland v. Kirkland (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 851.

Where the trial court failed to file conclusions of law and fact on request of appellant within the time specied under Art. 1989 and this article, but there was in the record a statement of facts prepared by appellant sufficient to warrant an examination of the assignments of error, the cause would not be reversed for want of conclusions. Id.

Where, prior to the adjournment of the term, defendant requested the judge to file conclusions of law and fact, which he failed to do within 10 days after the adjournment, it constituted reversible error, unless his failure to do so did not result in harm to the defendant. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. William Cameron Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 74.

Failure of the trial judge after due request to prepare and file conclusions of law and fact as required by this article is reversible error. Scroggins v. L. R. Neece Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 789.

Where appellant complained of the failure of the trial judge to file within the statutory time conclusions of fact and law and based his assignment of error thereon, the filing by appellee's counsel of a statement of facts made up by the trial judge did not prevent appellant from insisting on his assignment of error. Guadalupe County v. Poth (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 919.

The failure of the trial judge to file findings of fact and conclusions of law within ten days after the adjournment of the term, as required by this article, necessitates a reversal unless there is a statement of facts in the record from which it appears that appellant could not reasonably have been prejudiced by the failure. Emery v. Barfield (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 311.

Time for raising objections.—Where a party did not, in the trial court, object that a case tried at the January term was not decided until the following July term, he cannot object for the first time on appeal. Brown v. Boles (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 120.

Correction of record.—Plaintiff's remedy to correct the record as to the date of the filing of the court's conclusions of law and fact is by a proceeding in the trial court. Kimbell v. Powell, 57 C. A. 57, 121 S. W. 541.

Where the record on appeal conclusively shows that the conclusions of fact and law were not filed within the statutory time, and that the indorsement of filing within the time was pursuant to an order of the court made under the belief of the existence of an agreement of the parties, mandamus does not lie to compel the district court to correct the record by striking therefrom the conclusions of fact and law. Houston Oil Co. of Texas v. Powell (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 887.

Review.—Refusal of the trial judge to file, as required by this article, conclusions of fact and law when a demand is made therefor, is reviewable by the court of civil appeals. Wandry v. Williams, 103 T. 91, 124 S. W. 85.

Art. 2076. Where term of office expires before adjournment, etc.—Any judge of a district or county court whose term of office may expire before the adjournment of the term of such court at which a cause may be tried, or during the period prescribed for the filing of the statement of facts and bill of exceptions, or conclusions of fact and law, may approve such statement of facts and bill of exceptions, or file such findings of fact and conclusions of law, in such causes as provided in this chapter. [Acts 1903, p. 32. Acts 1907, S. S., 446.]

Explanatory.—This article, as it appeared in Rev. Civ. St. 1911, contained a notation to the effect that Acts 1907, S. S. p. 446, was modified by Acts 1909, S. S. p. 374. This seems to be an error, and hence the repeal of Acts 1909, S. S. p. 374, did not affect this article.

Filing conclusions after expiration of term of office.—A trial judge has authority, after the expiration of his term of office and during the term of court at which trial was had, to make and file conclusions of fact and law. Storrie v. Shaw, 96 T. 618, 75 S. W. 20.

A trial judge held authorized to file conclusions of fact and law at the term at which the trial was had, though after his term had expired. Storrie v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 596.

Art. 2077. Superseded by Acts 1911, p. 264, repealing Acts 1909, S. S. p. 378.

Explanatory.—The provision of Acts 1911, p. 264, corresponding to the subject-matter of this article, is contained in Art. 1932 of this compilation. For requirement as to statement of the evidence in case of judgment on service by publication, see Art. 1941 of this title.

Cited, Campbell v. Prieto (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 807.

Change of law.—Acts 32d Leg. c. 119, § 12, making the rules as to the filing of statements of fact in the district courts apply in the county courts, but only in cases where a stenographer has been appointed on the application of a party, and expressly repealing Acts 31st Leg. (1st Extra Sess.) c. 39, § 13, making the rules as to statements of fact the same in county courts as in district courts, was not intended to apply to other cases in the county courts, and hence it is not necessary to file a statement of facts separate from the clerk's transcript of the record in any case appealed from the county court, except a case in which the court has so appointed a stenographer. E. F. Rowson & Co. v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 603.

CHAPTER TWENTY

APPEAL AND WRIT OF ERROR

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on subject of record and proceedings not in record, at end of chapter.]

Article 2078. [1383] [1380] Appeals, etc., to the courts of civil appeals, allowed in what cases.—An appeal or writ of error may be taken to the court of civil appeals from every final judgment of the district court in civil cases, and from every final judgment in the county court in civil cases of which the county court has original jurisdiction, and from every final judgment of the county court in civil cases of which the court has appellate jurisdiction, where the judgment or amount in controversy exceeds one hundred dollars, exclusive of interest and costs.

46. Appeals from justices' courts.
47. Appeals from probate court.
48. Appeals in guardianship proceedings.
49. Appeals in injunction suits.
50. Costs on appeal.

1. Appeals and writs of error—Nature and origin.—An appeal is not a matter of right, and does not exist unless authorized by the Constitution or statute. Hudson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 486.

The right of appeal does not exist unless conferred by statute. Powdrill v. Powdrill (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 272.

A writ of error to obtain a review of a judgment held a direct attack. Gibbens v. Bourland (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 274.

2. —— Statutory provisions and remedies.—The legislature has the power to increase the jurisdiction of the county court over the subjects of litigation embraced in the jurisdiction of the justice courts, and also to regulate the right of appeal from the county court to the court of civil appeals, thereby conforming the jurisdiction of the two courts. G. W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Fromme, 98 T. 459, 84 S. W. 1056.

The regulation of appeals held to rest largely with the legislature. Thorne v. Moore, 101 T. 205, 105 S. W. 985.

Where a special and exclusive authority is conferred on a court of general jurisdiction, and no appeal is provided, the decision of such court is final, and no appeal lies therefrom. Naylor v. Naylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 475.

There are three methods provided by statute by which parties to litigation, in which the right of appeal has been perfected by giving the notice and filing the bond required, may bring the judgment before the court of civil appeals; one by the ordinary form of appeal, another by writ of error, and the third by motion to affirm on certificate, which is available only to the party in whose favor judgment has been rendered. But these methods are not concurrent, and not more than one of them is available for the purpose of an adjudication. Smith v. City Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 527.

Statutes relating to appeals should be liberally construed, so as to secure the right of appeal. Hamill v. Samuels (Sup.) 133 S. W. 419.

Under this article a party may at the same time proceed by both remedies up to the time that he obtains a review on the merits by one or the other remedy, provided he does so within the time limited by statute and rules, and not under such circumstances as will result in depriving the adversary of some right guaranteed him by statute or the rules. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 958.

An order overruling defendants' pleas of privilege to be sued in the county of their residence, not being specially mentioned in this article, or Arts. 2079 and 2080, was not appealable thereunder, nor was it appealable under Art. 1833, permitting an appeal from a judgment sustaining a plea of privilege; the last article being an exception to the statutes relating to appeals generally, and to be strictly construed. Holmes v. Coalson (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 661.

3. —— Proper mode of review.—A bill to revise errors apparent on the record is not recognized, the remedy being by appeal or error. Seguin v. Maverick, 24 T. 526, 76

Am. Dec. 117; Milam Co. v. Robertson, 47 T. 231; Moore v. Perry, 13 C. A. 204, 35 S. W. 838.

Where judgment is void for error appearing on the face of the record the remedy is by appeal or writ of error, and not by bill of review. Talbert v. Barbour, 16 C. A. 63, 40 S. W. 187.

Upon order overruling motion to correct judgment, complaining party may bring the case before the appellate court by writ of error. Gordon v. McCall (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 219.

The proper remedy for bringing to the court of civil appeals a record of the justice's court, where the case originated, is by certiorari. Wells v. Driskell, 105 T. 77, 145 S. W. 333.

4. —— Successive proceedings for review.—A party who has perfected an appeal under a supersedeas bond cannot abandon it and sue out a writ of error with a like bond returnable to a subsequent term. Perez v. Garza, 52 T. 571; Thomas v. Thomas, 57 T. 516; Eppstein v. Holmes, 64 T. 562; Thompson v. Anderson, 82 T. 237, 18 S. W. 153; Barber v. Railway Co., 9 C. A. 93, 28 S. W. 270.

As to the right of a party to abandon an appeal and prosecute a writ of error, see Thomas v. Thomas, 57 T. 516; Eppstein v. Holmes, 64 T. 560.

That plaintiff had appealed and filed a cost bond, but had not further prosecuted his appeal, did not preclude his right to a writ of error. Thompson v. Anderson, 82 T. 237, 18 S. W. 153.

Where an appeal is dismissed on motion of the appellee, a writ of error on supersedeas bond will be allowed. Railway Co. v. Hare, 23 S. W. 42, 4 C. A. 18.

Writ of error is cumulative remedy and cannot be sued out pending an appeal. Railway Co. v. Lacy, 26 S. W. 413, 7 C. A. 413.

The appellees, who are necessary parties to an appeal, must present their cross-assignments and have their rights, if any, adjudicated. Having had their day in court, they cannot afterwards sue out a writ of error. Harris v. Simmang (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 668; Southern Kansas Ry. Co. v. Loffoon (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 584.

A party to proceedings by a writ of error, who could have asserted objections to the judgment in those proceedings, cannot sue out a second writ for that purpose. Railway Co. v. Loffoon (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 584.

Right of party on abandonment of appeal perfected on a supersedeas bond to sue out a writ of error within 12 months determined. Scottish Union & National Ins. Co. v. Clancey, 91 T. 467, 44 S. W. 482.

Where an appeal has been voluntarily dismissed after the transcript was filed, and no affirmance has been asked on certificate, a writ of error may be sued out. Morris v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 667.

Appellant may abandon his appeal and then sue out a writ of error, subject to appellee's right to ask for affirmance on certificate. Hall v. La Salle County (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 863.

Proceedings held parts of one and the same effort to obtain a writ of error, and not the abandonment of one writ and the suing out of another. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Wofford, 32 C. A. 427, 72 S. W. 620.

The suing out of a writ of error pending an appeal, and within the time for the filing of the transcript on the appeal, held an abandonment thereof. Wandelohr v. Grayson County Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 180.

There may be more than one appeal in the same case where orders made at different times finally dispose of the subject-matter of each particular order. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State (Sup.) 106 S. W. 326.

Where judgment against several has been affirmed as to one, and she subsequently joins the others in a writ of error, the writ will be dismissed as to her. Wandelohr v. Grayson County Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 413.

Judgment of affirmance on appeal against one of the parties to an action held to preclude further inquiry as to such party's right, whether the inquiry be invoked by the party or by others attempting to assert her claims. Wandelohr v. Grayson County Nat. Bank, 102 T. 20, 108 S. W. 1154.

Dismissal of an appeal because of a defective appeal bond or affidavit does not prevent appellant from afterwards suing out a timely writ of error. Bargna v. Bargna (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1156.

Failure of plaintiffs in error to appeal from a final judgment held, under the circumstances, not to preclude them from suing out a writ of error to review a part of the judgment after reversal. McFaddin v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 634.

Defendant in error held deprived of no legal right by allowing plaintiff in error a hearing on the merits, after its appeal was dismissed for failure to file briefs in time. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 958.

A party may sue out a writ of error after abandoning an appeal theretofore taken. Chambers v. Grisham (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 959.

5. —— Joinder of proceedings.—An appeal can be taken in one proceeding from the general judgment and from special judgments rendered at the same term in favor of intervening creditors by making all parties adversely interested parties to the appeal. Metropolitan Trust Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 89 T. 329, 34 S. W. 736.

A single transcript containing the records of separate suits will be stricken out, although they were tried together by agreement in the lower court. Mohr v. Cochran, 20 C. A. 183, 49 S. W. 677.

Separate cases, brought by different plaintiffs, upon distinct causes of action, cannot, in the absence of agreement of parties, be presented on appeal in one record, though tried together in the court below. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Davison (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 188; Same v. Tryman, Id.

6. —— Separate appeals in related causes.—Where two parties each obtained a judgment fixing a lien upon defendant's chattels, he may appeal from one judgment alone. Constantine v. Fresche, 17 C. A. 444, 43 S. W. 1045.

Where two cases pending in the court of appeals are in fact the same, but were brought up, one by a writ of error, and the other by appeal on a separate record, they should be consolidated. Nixon v. Malone (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 577; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Same (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 585; Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.; Mutual Benefit Life Ins. Co. v. Same, Id.

7. Grounds of appellate jurisdiction—In general.—The court of civil appeals has no jurisdiction of a writ of error from a judgment sued out pending an appeal, where, before the hearing of the writ of error, the case has been finally disposed of on the appeal on its merits. Broocks v. Lee, 47 C. A. 424, 105 S. W. 1016.

8. —— Existence of actual controversy.—Where the question of the sufficiency of a guardian's bond is at issue, a motion by a creditor to dismiss the writ of error because his claim against the estate has since been paid will be overruled, as the claim against the estate was never in controversy. Less v. Ghio, 92 T. 651, 51 S. W. 502.

The court of appeals will not review mandamus to compel a reinstatement of appellant into a public office, where his term of office has expired, though a review is desired to settle a question of costs and right to salary of the office. McWhorter v. Northcut, 24 C. A. 22, 57 S. W. 904.

The subject-matter having been destroyed pending appeal, held, that appellate court would not entertain the appeal merely to determine costs. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. Galveston County (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 589.

An appeal dismissed where under the existing law the question had become a purely academic one. Johnson v. Scott (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 167.

An appeal from a judgment denying mandamus to compel the issue of a license will not be dismissed because more than a year has elapsed since the filing of the application, the duty to issue being a continuing one. Wichita Electric Co. v. Hinckley (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1192.

A court on appeal will not review the action of the lower court in sustaining an exception to a petition, where it was superseded by an amended petition upon which the cause was tried. Biggs v. Maulding (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 681.

When the subject-matter of the litigation has ceased to exist, an appeal may be dismissed. Matagorda Canal Co. v. Markham Irr. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1176.

9. —— Jurisdiction of lower court.—When the record fails to show affirmatively that the court below had jurisdiction, the appellate court will refuse to entertain jurisdiction. H. & T. C. R. R. Co. v. McGlasson, 1 App. C. C. § 1119; Chrisman v. Graham, 51 T. 454.

Record on appeal from a judgment of the county court on appeal from a justice, involving less than $200, must show that it was originally taken from a justice court. Merrick v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 370.

On appeal to the county court by defendants, where the record does not show that an appeal bond or an affidavit was executed as required, the county court not having jurisdiction, a subsequent appeal from the county court does not give the court of civil appeals jurisdiction. Maley v. Mundy, 47 C. A. 630, 107 S. W. 905.

The appellate court has jurisdiction over void proceedings of which the trial court was without jurisdiction to declare their invalidity and set them aside. Williams v. Steele, 101 T. 382, 108 S. W. 155.

Where no bond required on an appeal from justice court appeared in the transcript of the record on appeal from a judgment of the district court on the appeal from justice court, held, the appeal should be dismissed. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Warren Bros. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 1144.

Where the county court was without jurisdiction of a cross-action, the court of civil appeals had no jurisdiction to revise the trial court's action with reference thereto. Johnson v. W. H. Goolsby Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 883.

Where the district court was without jurisdiction, the court, on appeal from the judgment rendered, acquired none. Bush v. Young (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 110.

Under the constitution, limiting the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals to cases in which the district and county courts have original or appellate jurisdiction, one prosecuting an appeal from a judgment of the county court in a suit wherein the amount in controversy is less than $200, and therefore below the original jurisdiction of the county court, must show by the transcript a perfected appeal to the county court from a justice of the peace, and the mere fact that the petition and answer appear to have been filed in a justice's court is insufficient to show jurisdiction of the county court, and hence insufficient to show the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals. Needham v. Austin Electric Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 904.

For the court of civil appeals to assume jurisdiction of an appeal from the county court in an action to recover $200, the record must show the case was brought to the county court by appeal after disposition in a justice court; the county court having no original jurisdiction, but only such appellate jurisdiction, in an action for such a small amount. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. McLeroy (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 87.

If the justice had no jurisdiction, the county court can have none on appeal, nor does the court of civil appeals acquire jurisdiction on appeal from the county court. Wilder v. Texas Cent. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 607.

Where a suit was brought in the county court on an open account for $105.36, and defendant claimed $166.82 by cross-action on an open account, the amount sued for was below the original jurisdiction of the county court, and hence the court of civil appeals could not acquire jurisdiction on appeal. Goswick v. Templeton & Hightower (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 945.

Appellate court held to have jurisdiction to dismiss an appeal, though the trial court had no jurisdiction of the case. McNeill v. Casey (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1130.

Where a judgment is rendered on an insufficient pleading by a court having jurisdiction of the subject-matter, an appeal therefrom cannot be dismissed for want of jurisdiction in the trial court. Jirou v. Jirou (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 493.

Where the amount in controversy is below the original jurisdiction of the county court and the record on appeal does not show that the case was appealed from a justice's court, the record fails to show that the county court had jurisdiction, and the court on appeal is without jurisdiction. Collins & Jordan v. Kittrell (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 814.

Where a county court acquires no jurisdiction by reason of a failure to file an appeal bond in the justice's court, the court of civil appeals acquires no jurisdiction on writ of error from the judgment therein. Chillicothe Land Co. v. Ward (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1024.

Appeal will be dismissed where the record does not show jurisdiction of trial court. Gosden v. Hammock (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 931.

Where parties except to the jurisdiction of the court below and the court of civil appeals holds that it had no jurisdiction, the appellate court is thereby deprived of any further jurisdiction. Ferguson v. Fain (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1184.

The court of civil appeals has no jurisdiction of a case originating in the justice court and coming from the county court, where the record does not show how it reached the county court, and the amount involved is insufficient to confer original jurisdiction upon that court. Daugherty v. Daugherty (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 642.

Where a case is appealed from the county court, to which it was taken on appeal from a justice of the peace, the court of civil appeals can acquire no jurisdiction, in the absence of a record showing that the county court had jurisdiction to dispose of the cause on its merits. Simpson v. Alexander & Wofford (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 748.

10. —— Consent of parties.—The court having no jurisdiction of the appeal, the agreement of appellee, filed with the motion of the appellant to require the clerk to file the transcript, that the same should be granted, held to give no right to have it filed. Lodwick Lumber Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 788.

Where there has been a dismissal as to one of two parties defendant, and plaintiff has attempted to appeal from that judgment, this court can acquire no appellate jurisdiction on consent of the parties. Steinhardt & Co. v. Galveston Cotton Seed Meal Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 825.

11. —— Determination of jurisdiction.—See, also, Arts. 1525 and 1593.

On appeal from a judgment of the county court in a case of which it did not have jurisdiction, the court of civil appeals can determine the question of jurisdiction, but no other question. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Walter Hunt & Co., 38 C. A. 460, 85 S. W. 1168.

The court of civil appeals will of its own motion notice the fact of its want of jurisdiction. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Elliston (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 675.

12. Decisions reviewable—In general.—An appeal by affidavit of inability to pay costs should not be granted where the judgment appealed from is described in the affidavit as one for costs only. Demonet v. Jones (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1033.

No appeal lies from a judgment committing a witness for contempt in refusing to answer a question. Borrer v. State (Cr. App.) 63 S. W. 630.

A decree in a suit to enjoin defendant from entering on land held appealable. Clevenger v. Mayfield (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 1062.

Under this article, where the transcript contains no judgment, the appeal will be dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Parker (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 942.

A judgment for costs is reviewable by appeal or writ of error. Ward v. Powell (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1188.

13. —— Action of judge in vacation or at chambers.—See, also, Art. 1714.

The refusal of an injunction in chambers does not authorize an appeal. Gibson v. Templeton, 62 T. 555.

An appeal cannot be taken from an order made by district judge in vacation denying a peremptory writ of mandamus. Shepard v. Hubbard City (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 862.

Our statutes give right of appeal only from judgments of the district and county courts, and not from the judgment of a judge sitting in chambers. Pittman v. Byars, 100 T. 518, 101 S. W. 789.

There can be no "called term" of the county court other than for probate business. Therefore if the county judge had jurisdiction in a habeas corpus proceeding for the custody of a minor child, it must have been deemed a proceeding in vacation and a judgment in favor of petitioner for the custody of the minor is an order of the judge, and not a judgment of the county court, and under this article no appeal will lie from it. Ex parte Reeves, 100 T. 617, 103 S. W. 481.

The court of civil appeals held without jurisdiction on appeal from an order refusing permission to file an information in quo warranto made in vacation. State v. Wilkinson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 826.

No appeal lies from an order of a district judge granting a writ of mandamus in vacation. Dunnagan v. Wingfield (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 288.

14. —— Discretionary action.—Setting aside an interlocutory judgment by default during the term at which it is entered is a matter resting within the sound discretion of the trial court, and is not subject to review. Norton v. Maddox (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 319.

An order refusing to consolidate suits is not reviewable. Vernor v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 641.

15. —— Judgment on consent.—Where the court has jurisdiction of the subject-matter and parties a judgment by agreement is not reversible. Forty-Acre Spring Live Stock Co. v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 417.

An appeal lies from a consent judgment. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Whitfield (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 710.

16. Finality of judgment—In general.—A judgment is not final until the adjournment of the term at which it was rendered. Blum v. Wettermark, 58 T. 125; Garza v. Baker, 58 T. 483.

A judgment is final which disposes of all matters in controversy as to all the parties to a suit; hence a judgment dissolving an injunction which was once issued to restrain a railway company from constructing and operating its road, when to secure such restraint was the object of the suit, is a final judgment. From such a judgment an appeal may be taken, which will give jurisdiction to the court of civil appeals, though the case may have been dismissed by the court below on the plaintiff's request, after the entry of the order dissolving the injunction. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. F. W. & N. O. Ry. Co., 68 T. 98, 2 S. W. 199, 3 S. W. 564.

A judgment was rendered October 19, 1887, in favor of defendant for land and for costs of suit. A petition for a new trial was filed to the next term of the court, and a judgment was rendered for defendant. A writ of error from the judgment of October 19, 1887, was properly prosecuted. Ingle v. Bell, 84 T. 463, 19 S. W. 553.

An appeal will not lie from a judgment not final. Therriault v. Compere (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 750.

A judgment, in an action to establish plaintiff's rights under a will, fixing an allowance for his support during the pendency of the suit, is final, from which an appeal may be prosecuted. McCreary v. Robinson, 92 T. 408, 49 S. W. 212.

Judgment for a certain sum in action to recover land, personalty, and money held a final judgment, and appealable. Davies v. Thomson, 92 T. 391, 49 S. W. 215.

Judgment held not a final judgment from which an appeal would lie. Jackson v. Coombs (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 385.

The failure of a judgment to state the formula "that defendants go hence without delay" did not affect its finality. Staacke Bros. v. Walker & Chilcoat (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 408.

A judgment requiring a fund to be paid into court, declaring the priority of liens thereon to be afterwards established, and continuing the cause as to all the parties except the stakeholders, held not final. E. L. Wilson Hardware Co. v. F. J. & R. C. Duff, 98 T. 467, 85 S. W. 786.

A judgment held a final one from which an appeal would lie. Tison v. Gass, 46 C. A. 163, 102 S. W. 751; O'Brien v. Von Lienen (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 723.

A certain judgment held not a final judgment from which a writ of error would lie. Patton v. Bender (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 690.

Appeal held dismissable as not disclosing the rendition of final judgment in the trial court. Hill v. Peeler (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 1005.

A judgment of dismissal held final and appealable. Carrico v. Stevenson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 260.

Judgment in the county court on appeal from justice's court held not final, and hence not appealable. McKneeley v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1003.

An appeal from a judgment cannot be prosecuted until the judgment has been actually entered. Trotti v. Kinnear (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 326.

Where an appeal is taken from a judgment or decree which is not final, the appellate court is without jurisdiction for any purpose except to enter an order of dismissal. Bowen v. Grayum (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 472.

A judgment from which an appeal was taken during the term held a final judgment, and appealable, where the term ended without a change therein or the granting of a new trial. Robbie v. Upson (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 570.

The fact that a judgment was entered nunc pro tunc did not affect its finality. Snell v. Ham (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1077.

To be final, a judgment must contain the declaration of the court pronouncing the legal consequences of the facts found; and recitals therein of the verdict cannot take the place of the court's conclusion. Trammell v. Rosen (Sup.) 157 S. W. 1161.

17. —— Nature of action or proceeding.—An interlocutory order in a receivership proceeding is not reviewable on appeal until the case is finally disposed of by the trial court. United States & Mexican Trust Co. v. Texas Southern Ry. Co., 46 C. A. 116, 101 S. W. 1048.

An order refusing a writ of mandamus to compel placing in possession under replevin bond held interlocutory, and not appealable, in absence of statute. Simmers v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 910.

An appeal, in an action sounding in tort against a common carrier, can be had only from a final judgment. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. McMurray (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 478.

18. —— Nature and scope of decision.—An order appointing a receiver and granting an injunction against proceedings under attachments, made at suit of subsequent attaching creditors attacking the older attachments for fraud, is an interlocutory order, the main issue being the attack against the validity of the prior attachments. Appeal does not lie from such an order, it not being a final judgment. Lumber Co. v. Williams, 71 T. 444, 9 S. W. 436.

An order quashing an execution on the ground that the judgment on which it was based was void is a final order from which an appeal can be taken. Laclede Nat. Bank v. Betterton, 24 S. W. 326, 5 C. A. 355.

A judgment vacating a sale under execution is a final judgment from which an appeal can be taken. City of Vernon v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 606.

Refusal of a motion to set aside a voluntary nonsuit, based on error in overruling exceptions to a plea, held not reviewable. Boyd v. Kimbell, 21 C. A. 6, 50 S. W. 634.

An entry sustaining defendant's exceptions to plaintiff's petition being interlocutory, no appeal can be taken from the order on the exception. Texas Land & Loan Co. v. Winter, 93 T. 560, 57 S. W. 39.

An appeal does not lie from a judgment sustaining a demurrer to plaintiff's complaint which does not show anything more than that the demurrer was sustained, since it is merely an interlocutory order, and not a final judgment. State v. Trilling (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 311.

An order overruling a motion to dismiss a remanded cause, because the mandate was not taken out within 12 months, is not appealable. Gregory v. Thompson Sav. Bank, 31 C. A. 497, 71 S. W. 988.

An order sustaining a demurrer held not a final one, and not appealable. Boren v. Jack (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 1061.

An order in a divorce action retaining on the docket for future trial that part of the case wherein plaintiff sought the setting aside of certain alleged fraudulent conveyances by defendant held interlocutory and not appealable. Michael v. Michael (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 239.

This article does not authorize an appeal from an interlocutory order of the county court setting aside a default judgment. Hope v. Long (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 40.

An order sustaining demurrers to plaintiff's petition held not a final appealable judgment. State v. Petmecky (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 57.

An order in a partition suit denying a petition for the appointment of a guardian to receive the share of a minor heir under Art. 2169, held not a final order from which an appeal would lie under this article. Naylor v. Naylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 475.

An order determining an appeal bond on an appeal from a justice's court is sufficient and denying the dissolution of an injunction to restrain a sale under an execution on the judgment of the justice is not a final judgment and is not appealable. Le Baume v. Northern Texas Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 301.

An order sustaining demurrer or exceptions is not a final judgment and is not appealable. Hill v. Nolan (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 365.

A judgment which sets aside a former judgment without judgment on the merits is not a final appealable judgment. Lyon-Taylor Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 605.

Under this article no appeal lies from an order in a partition suit rejecting a report of commissioners and appointing new commissioners. Meyers v. Riley (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 479.

An order to preserve property under the control of the court in replevin is interlocutory, and not appealable. Keasler Lumber Co. v. Clark (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 345.

An order dismissing a temporary order restraining execution made merely on the pleadings, and without evidence as to the merits, is not a final, appealable judgment. McKenzie v. Withers (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 413.

A judgment sustaining a general demurrer to plaintiff's petition and dismissing the suit is final and appealable. State v. Orange & N. W. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 335.

An order dismissing a petition in intervention upon motion is not appealable. Moore v. Cobe (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1142.

19. —— Finality as to all parties.—The court has no jurisdiction of an appeal from a judgment which does not adjudicate the rights of two of the parties to the suit, as such judgment is not final. Davis v. Martin, 15 C. A. 62, 53 S. W. 599.

A judgment for plaintiff against one defendant, but not disposing of the case as to the other defendant, held not a final judgment, and therefore not appealable. Stewart v. Lenoir, 31 C. A. 470, 72 S. W. 619.

Where a judgment in trespass to try title does not dispose of all the parties, it is not final, and no appeal lies therefrom. Britt v. Sweeney (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 933.

A judgment, which does not dispose of the controversy as to all the parties is not a "final" appealable judgment. Texas Co. v. Beddingfield, 53 C. A. 10, 114 S. W. 894.

Where a judgment in an action against a surety and the heirs of another surety did not in terms mention the heirs of the deceased surety, but expressly provided that plaintiff should take nothing by his suit, it was a final judgment in favor of all the defendants, within the statute permitting appeals from final judgments. Carlton v. Krueger, 54 C. A. 48, 115 S. W. 619.

A judgment in an action against two defendants, one of whom pleaded over against the other, held not a final judgment and not appealable. Williams v. D. H. Bell & Co., 53 C. A. 474, 116 S. W. 837.

A judgment against one only of two defendants against whom judgment was rendered before a justice on appeal to the county court held not such a final judgment as would support an appeal to the court of civil appeals. Ingraham v. Rudolph, 55 C. A. 609, 119 S. W. 906.

A judgment is final although some of the parties sued were not served and did not answer and therefore the judgment in the case makes no mention of them. Porter v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co., 56 C. A. 479, 121 S. W. 897.

Where the petition complained of a corporation as a defendant and alleged that the individual defendants were the sole stockholders of the corporation, which had become defunct, and the judgment disposed of the individuals, the judgment was final as against the objection that it did not dispose of the corporation, and was appealable. Griffin v. Terry (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 115.

A judgment held not final because not disposing of the controversy between all the parties. Florence v. Choice (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 436; McKnight v. McKnight, 124 S. W. 734; Northern Texas Traction Co. v. McMurray, 140 S. W. 478.

A judgment against the firm held final as to copartners, so as to be appealable. Williams Land Co. v. Crull (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 339.

A partnership not being a legal entity and being empowered to sue and be sued only in the names of its individual members, a judgment in a suit in which a partnership is a party to be final must either expressly, or by fair implication, dispose of all the members of the plaintiff or defendant firm. Benze v. Sledge (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 873.

An appeal will be dismissed for want of a final judgment, where neither the verdict nor judgment disposed of the cross-action of one of the defendants. Cook v. Baldwin (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1154.

In trespass to try title, the defendant's warrantor, who set up a cross-action on being impleaded by the defendant, held to have abandoned his cross-action, thus making a judgment which did not dispose of it final. Williams v. Kuykendall (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1158.

A defendant, not served and who did not answer, held not such a party to a suit that a judgment taking no notice of him was insufficient to support a writ of error. Varrs v. Faulkner (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 789.

A judgment dismissing an action against one of two parties defendant is not a final judgment, from which an appeal will lie. Steinhardt & Co. v. Galveston Cotton Seed Meal Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 825.

A judgment making no disposition of the case against two garnishees held not final, and insufficient to support a writ of error. Bell v. First State Bank of Paducah (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 111.

To be appealable as being final, a judgment must dispose of all the parties, as well as the issues raised in the suit. McKneeley v. Armstrong (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1003.

A judgment which does not dispose of all the parties is not final, and cannot be appealed from. Bushong v. Alderson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 200.

Failure to amend an original judgment so as to show a disposition of the suit as to all the parties held a jurisdictional defect precluding appeal. Benge v. Panhandle Land Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 318.

A judgment is not final for the purpose of an appeal where no disposition is made as to one of several defendants sued, though such defendant be not cited. Hillsman v. Cline (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 726.

A judgment not determining an issue raised by the pleadings as to one of defendants and not binding him was not final so as to be appealable. Hamilton v. Joachim (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 288.

A judgment for plaintiff, in which no mention was made of one defendant, was not final and not appealable. Flow v. Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 679.

Judgment in partition, in which a purchaser was brought in as defendant, and his grantees intervened asking affirmative relief against him, and after his death against his heirs, who were later dismissed from the suit, held final and appealable, though no disposition was made of the rights of the deceased purchaser. Grieb v. Stahl (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 988.

20. —— Determination of controversy.—A judgment is not final where an issue as to one or more of the defendants is not determined. Whitaker v. Gee, 61 T. 217; Holek v. Verona, 63 T. 65; Warren v. Shuman, 5 T. 441; Scott v. Burton, 6 T. 321, 55 Am. Dec. 782; Hanks v. Thompson, 5 T. 6; Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald, 21 T. 415; Martin v. Wade, 22 T. 224; Holt v. Wood, 23 T. 474, 76 Am. Dec. 72; Gulf City Ry. Co. v. Becker (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 1015; City of Texarkana v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 447; Kirby v. Linn (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 169; Caldwell v. Bryan (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 335.

Pleadings involved issues against defendant individually and as the member of a firm. The judgment covered the former but not the latter. Held, that the judgment was not final, and will not support appeal. Frank v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 20 S. W. 869.

Where several cases are consolidated, on appeal it must appear that they all have been determined. Mills v. Cooney (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 207.

If the jury fails to pass upon all the facts controverted by the pleadings, no judgment can be rendered, and the appellate court will dismiss an appeal. First Nat. Bank of Mason v. Vander Stucken (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 170.

Where defendant pleads in reconvention, and a judgment for costs is rendered for him without referring to his plea in reconvention, the judgment is not final and appealable. American Road-Mach. Co. v. City of Crockett (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 251.

Where a counterclaim was filed, but not disposed of by the judgment, the judgment is not final, and hence will not support an appeal. Riddle v. Bearden, 36 C. A. 97, 80 S. W. 1061.

If a verdict and judgment fail to dispose of an issue made, appeal will be dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Jeter v. Gouhenour, 37 C. A. 643, 84 S. W. 1091.

A judgment in an action for an office and fees collected by defendant held to have disposed of the claim for fees, so as to render the judgment appealable. Id.

A judgment in an action accompanied by attachment not having disposed of all the issues and parties held not a final judgment, so as to support an appeal. Holley v. Duke, 43 C. A. 529, 96 S. W. 1090.

The appointment of a receiver (in this case) was a final decree because it finally disposed of the matter then before the court, which was the appointment of a receiver to take the property into his custody as a consequence of the complete determination of the controversy. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State (Sup.) 106 S. W. 329.

A judgment in trespass to try title, held not a final judgment, from which an appeal would lie. Oklahoma City & T. Ry. Co. v. Magee, 56 C. A. 552, 120 S. W. 1103.

Where the issues were whether plaintiff had a landlord's lien on goods and was entitled to have it foreclosed and to enjoin a special constable from selling the goods on execution issued against the alleged tenant, and the judgment determined that as against the constable plaintiff was entitled to an injunction, and that as against the constable "et al." plaintiff was entitled to have the lien foreclosed and to costs, it was not a final judgment and appealable because it did not dispose of the controversy between the parties. Florence v. Choice (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 436.

Plaintiff sued defendant B. and others upon a note, secured by a chattel mortgage, and writs of sequestration were levied upon the mortgaged property, and B. reconvened, alleging the wrongful issuance of the writs. Judgment was rendered for plaintiff, but it did not dispose of B.'s reconvention plea. Held, that the judgment, not disposing of the entire controversy, was not final and appealable. Beal v. First Nat. Bank of Portales (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 893.

A judgment not disposing of appellant's cross-plea for damages is not final, and hence is not appealable. Partridge v. Wooten (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 412.

An appeal must be dismissed for want of a final judgment, when neither the verdict nor the judgment disposed of the cross-action of the defendant. Harper v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 385.

A judgment which does not dispose of all the issues is not final. Bushong v. Alderson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 200; O'Brien v. Von Lienen, 149 S. W. 723; Chapman v. Warden, 153 S. W. 937.

Where the record shows that defendant filed a plea in reconvention in the trial court to recover damages against plaintiff, but fails to show that the issue presented thereby was disposed of, the appeal will be dismissed, since the judgment appealed from was not final. Daugherty v. Daugherty (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 642.

In trespass to try title, intervener claimed title by adverse possession as against all the parties, except defendant B., and prayed that, if his claim was not sustained as to all of the land, he be allowed to recover 160 acres. The judgment provided that B. and intervener should recover six acres from plaintiff, and that plaintiff recover against all the parties the balance of the land, and recited that, after plaintiff introduced his evidence, the defendant and intervener admitted in open court that plaintiff had the best title, and withdrew their defenses, except that defendant B. and intervener claimed 160 acres. Held, that the judgment did not dispose of the issues between intervener and defendant, so that it was not final and appealable. Mixon v. Wallis (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 651.

A judgment which does not dispose of a cross-action by one defendant against his codefendant is not a final judgment from which an appeal may be taken. Saenz v. Cohn (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 367; Hamilton v. D. S. Cage & Co., 151 S. W. 894.

Plaintiff having sued in his own behalf and as next friend for $880 for injuries to a minor and $70 for bills incurred by plaintiff in the minor's treatment, and the court having instructed against recovery for the expenditures, the jury having rendered a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $880, judgment that the minor do have and recover of defendant the sum of $880 did not dispose of the causes of action, and was not final and appealable. Posener v. Mash (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 600.

Where a demurrer to a petition was sustained, and plaintiffs refused to amend, and the court dismissed plaintiffs' cause of action without disposing of the defendant's cross-actions, the judgment was not final, and no appeal lay therefrom. Bowen v. Grayum (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 472.

An order setting aside a judgment entered at the same term under a verdict rendered in pursuance of an agreement of the parties that a verdict might be returned by a majority of the jurors on which judgment might be entered, and granting a new trial, is not appealable. Philadelphia Underwriters' Agency of Fire Ass'n v. Brown (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 899.

A judgment which found as to a cross-action by certain defendants that they should recover against another defendant a certain amount less a payment, the amount of which it failed to determine, was not a final judgment from which an appeal would lie, though it disposed of all the other issues. Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank of Ft. Worth v. First State Bank of Bangs (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 499.

A judgment granting relief in reconvention by a judgment creditor in a suit by the judgment debtor to restrain a sale under execution without determining the original suit is not reviewable on writ of error. McKenzie v. Withers (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 658.

A judgment is final though there is a cross-bill undisposed of, where the cross-bill is abandoned. Thompson v. Harmon (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1161.

Where a judgment against a husband on vendor's lien notes, and against the husband and wife foreclosing the lien, failed to dispose of the wife's cross-action wherein she set up a right of homestead and a claim for damages for wrongful sequestration, it was not a final judgment from which appeal would lie. Trammell v. Rosen (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 164.

A judgment in an action on a vendor's lien note, which failed to dispose of a cross-action filed by one defendant, which sought judgment against plaintiff's claim of title and for the purchase money paid, was not a final judgment from which an appeal would lie. Stockwell v. Angleton State Bank (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 1196.

A judgment sustaining a general demurrer to plaintiff's petition and dismissing the suit is final and appealable. State v. Orange & N. W. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 335.

In an action to recover possession of a diamond stud or its value, alleging a lien thereon and its conversion by defendant, with a plea in reconvention that plaintiff had in his possession personal property of greater value, to which defendant was entitled, a judgment entered only on plaintiff's claim for relief disposed of all the issues, even assuming the plea in intervention to have been sufficient. Clay v. Marmar (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1125.

21. —— Collateral matters and proceedings.—An order directing the issuance of an execution to enforce the collection of unpaid alimony is not appealable under this article. Williams v. Williams (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 937, 1199.

An order refusing to set aside an order for alimony and to quash an execution to enforce it, though issued after the dismissal of the suit, is not a "final judgment," within Art. 1997 and this article. Dawson v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 513.

An order in an action for divorce, where the main issues were divorce and the custody of children, made before final judgment, for the payment of alimony, for which defendant had been made liable, was not a "final judgment," from which an appeal would lie. Gardner v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1064.

22. Civil cases.—An appeal from a judgment against the sheriff to recover money collected on a forfeited recognizance lies to the court of civil appeals. Russell v. State (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 69.

This article does not apply to a contested election proceeding under the statute, as it is not a civil case. Buckler v. Turbeville, 17 C. A. 120, 43 S. W. 810.

In habeas corpus to determine custody of an infant, appeal lies from the county court to the court of civil appeals. Rice v. Rice, 24 C. A. 506, 59 S. W. 941.

The court of civil appeals has jurisdiction of an appeal by the state in a suit to recover penalties for violation of the anti-trust law of 1899; such a suit not being a criminal case within the constitutional provision denying the state the right to appeal in criminal cases. State v. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1057.

A writ of error will not lie to the court of civil appeals in a contested election case, and, as the costs of such case are part of the controversy and not severable therefrom, the writ will not lie to review the ruling of the trial court concerning the taxation of costs therein. Jackson v. Butler, 38 C. A. 613, 86 S. W. 772.

It is immaterial that Art. 7443, empowering one aggrieved by action of the comptroller in annulling a retail liquor license to bring suit against him in the district court to reinstate it, does not expressly provide for an appeal; such suit being a civil action, and this article providing that an appeal may be taken to the court of civil appeals from every final judgment of the district court in civil cases. Lane v. Hewgley (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 911.

23. Amount in controversy.—As to amount in controversy, see Fisher v. Bogarth, 2 App. C. C. § 121; H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Pressley, 2 App. C. C. § 504; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Haney, 2 App. C. C. § 709.

The court of civil appeals has jurisdiction of cases appealed from a county court only when the judgment appealed from exceeds $100, exclusive of interest and costs, though the case originated in a justice's court and was not tried de novo in the county court. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Rowley (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 182.

In a suit pending in the county court on appeal for the recovery of a debt for a sum less than $100 there was a prayer to foreclose a lien upon personal property of the value of $150. While the appeal was pending the personal property was destroyed. It was held that as the indebtedness was the only matter remaining in controversy the judgment of the county court was final. Tufts v. Hodges, 28 S. W. 110, 8 C. A. 240.

Judgment for $100 only, appealed from county court, cannot be affirmed on certificate without further showing as to jurisdiction. Ray v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co., 18 C. A. 665, 45 S. W. 479.

In no case in which the amount involved is less than $100, can an appeal be prosecuted to a court of civil appeals from a county court, whether the case was tried de novo or not. Allen v. Hall, 25 C. A. 178, 60 S. W. 586.

Where damages recovered for delay of a telegraph company in transmitting a message, together with interest, amounts to over $100, the cause is appealable to the court of civil appeals. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Noland (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 1031.

Judgment of a county court on appeal from a justice of the peace held not appealable, the case not involving more than $100, exclusive of interest. Potts v. Deyerle, 49 C. A. 281, 107 S. W. 928.

Where an appeal is from an order of the county court overruling a motion to tax the costs of that court, which amounted to over $200, against the other party, and not from the judgment rendered against appellant in the main suit, the court of civil appeals has jurisdiction, though the suit was to recover only $100. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Milliron, 53 C. A. 325, 115 S. W. 655.

The amount in controversy in an action held in excess of $100, so that the court of civil appeals has jurisdiction on appeal from a judgment of the county court. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hodge & Speer (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 350; McKneeley v. Armstrong, 141 S. W. 1003.

In an appellate court the amount in controversy determining its jurisdiction is the amount for which judgment could have been rendered in the judgment appealed from. J. F. Siensheimer & Co. v. Maryland Motor Car Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 228.

24. —— Amount claimed.—Where a claim sued on was for more than $100, though the judgment was for less, the court of appeals had jurisdiction to review the judgment. Mobley v. Porter (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 655.

Where an action in a justice court was based on an account, the amount alleged to be due as shown by the account is the measure of plaintiff's demand. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Garner (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 433.

Although the judgment in the county court appealed from is less than $100, yet the court of civil appeals has jurisdiction, provided judgment might have been rendered under the plaintiff's pleadings for a sum exceeding $100. G. W. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Fromme, 98 T. 459, 84 S. W. 1056.

Where it appears upon the pleadings that a portion of the items sued for could form no proper basis for suit, they should not be considered in determining the amount in controversy, and where without them it was less than $100, the court of civil appeals has no jurisdiction. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Burford (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 927.

The demand of either party in an action commenced in justice court and appealed to the county court must exceed $100 to give the court of civil appeals jurisdiction on appeal. Jackson v. Persons (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 639.

In the absence of a plea to the jurisdiction, averring that the sum claimed is fraudulently alleged to give the court jurisdiction, the amount well pleaded is the "amount in controversy" and fixes the jurisdiction. Barnes v. Bryce (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 240.

Where plaintiff sued for only $100 and waived a provision of the contract for attorney's fees, the amount in controversy was insufficient to sustain an appeal to the court of civil appeals. First Nat. Bank v. Beach (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 960.

25. —— Effect of set-off or counterclaim.—The fact that appellant pleaded a counterclaim for more than $100 in the county court, which had not been pleaded in the justice's court, cannot be considered in determining jurisdiction on appeal. The plea having been stricken out because it had not been pleaded in the justice's court, the amount stated in it did not constitute the amount in controversy in this suit. T. & P. Ry. Co. v. Haney, 2 App. C. C. § 709.

A plea in reconvention claiming an amount within the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals does not confer jurisdiction on said court if abandoned in the lower court. H. & E. W. T. R. Co. v. Perkins (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 547.

Where claim in attachment in favor of plaintiff and the judgment in favor of defendant together exceed $100, the appellate court has jurisdiction. Lister v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 876.

When there is a cross-action in the nature of a counterclaim, or plea in reconvention, the plaintiff's claim and the defendant's claim cannot be added together in order to give the appellate court jurisdiction over a matter where such jurisdiction depends on the amount in controversy, but the one or the other must itself reach the jurisdictional sum. Crosby v. Crosby, 92 T. 441, 49 S. W. 359.

Where plaintiff sued defendants for $42.85, and defendant filed a cross-action against his codefendant for $100 on an independent cause of action, the two claims cannot be added to bring the case within the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals. Kiel v. Campbell (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 659.

Abandonment of appeal by defendant held not abandonment of plea in reconvention, so as to reduce amount in controversy below jurisdiction of appellate court. Benchoff v. Stephenson (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 106.

Where a party sued an express company for a certain sum for damages to goods in shipment, and the express company sued in reconvention for its charges for transportation, the two amounts cannot be added to form the amount in controversy so as to give jurisdiction to the court of civil appeals. Wells Fargo & Co. v. Burford (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 927.

A claim in reconvention, though dismissed by the county court on appeal from a justice, not having been withdrawn, the amount thereof should be considered in determining whether the case involved an amount sufficient to confer appellate jurisdiction. Gilbert v. York (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 864.

26. —— Interest.—Where a suit in a justice court was based on an account, interest could not be added to the date of the judgment to bring the amount in controversy within the appellate jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Garner (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 433.

Interest as an element of damages recoverable for an injury, is treated in a sense different from that meant by the word "interest" in the provisions of the constitution and laws conferring jurisdiction on the courts of the state. Hence where a suit is brought in justice court for $98.65 for damages to shipment of stock, and judgment is rendered therefor, and appeal is taken to county court, where interest is added and judgment rendered for $100.45, the court of civil appeals has jurisdiction of an appeal from last-named judgment. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Faulkner (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 748.

Action was brought in a justice's court for injury to cattle on a demand for $99 without any specific demand for interest. On appeal to the county court, the demand was for $99 and interest to the date of the judgment, which was rendered for $99 principal and $8.08 interest. Held, that the amount involved was more than $100 so as to give the court of civil appeals jurisdiction on appeal. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. v. Hodge & Speer (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 350.

27. —— Attorney's fees.—An amount claimed by the answer as attorney's fees can have no effect to give jurisdiction on appeal; the answer showing no right thereto. Franklin Life Ins. Co. v. Blackwell (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 361.

28. —— Reduction or remission.—In a suit for unliquidated damages, it is not a fraud on the jurisdiction of any court to reduce the amount as first demanded to a sum that will make the judgment of the county court final on appeal. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Durham, 17 C. A. 310, 42 S. W. 792.

Where on appeal from a justice's judgment plaintiff by amendment reduced the amount in controversy to $91.25, for which he recovered judgment, defendant could not appeal to the court of civil appeals. Bishop v. Lawson, 47 C. A. 646, 105 S. W. 1008.

The act of plaintiff obtaining in the county court a judgment for $99 principal and $8.08 interest, in remitting the interest after judgment, does not affect the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals on appeal. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Hodge & Speer (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 350.

29. Persons entitled to right of review—In general.—A nominal party to a suit, having no interest in the subject-matter in controversy, cannot appeal from the judgment. Hawley v. Whitaker (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 688.

A writ of error, applied for in the name of a party not shown to be interested in the judgment, but alleged to be the same corporation as the plaintiff, without proof of such fact, will be dismissed. State Nat. Bank v. City of Dallas, 28 C. A. 299, 68 S. W. 334.

A receiver of a partnership in bankruptcy, without right to intervene in receivership proceedings in a state court, held not entitled to complain on appeal of supposed errors with reference to one of the partners. Southwell v. Church, 51 C. A. 547, 111 S. W. 969.

A person not a party below held not to show right to a hearing in the appellate court. Texas Land & Investment Co. v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 150.

30. —— Appeals between coparties.—Where the matters involved in a cross-action between defendants are not so connected with the original suit as to make it necessary that plaintiffs be made parties on appeal, an appeal may be taken from a judgment in the cross-action alone. Taylor v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1018.

31. —— Interest in subject-matter.—An appeal cannot be taken by a purchaser pendente lite (Ferris v. Streeper, 59 T. 312), unless he has intervened after judgment, when he may appeal from a judgment prejudicial to himself (Id.; Hughes v. Maddox, 6 T. 90).

Sureties on a replevin bond to secure possession of property in litigation held entitled to sue out a writ of error from a judgment against them. Wandelohr v. Rainey, 100 T. 471, 100 S. W. 1155; Same v. Grayson County Nat. Bank, Id.

One not a party to the suit in the trial court, and not appearing in any of the proceedings on the trial, may not have a hearing in the appellate court on its naked allegation, unsupported by affidavit, that the defendant was its trustee, and that it was the real party, and that he would not apply for a writ of error, and without even an allegation that it was not fully cognizant of the pendency of the suit and of the trial; it being the rule that only parties or privies, having an interest appearing from the record, can appeal, and that only persons who have by legal succession obtained an interest in the subject of the controversy can show an interest entitling them to appeal. Texas Land & Investment Co. v. Kennedy (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 150.

Where a judgment debtor answered in garnishment proceedings and denied that the garnishee was indebted in accordance with the garnishee's admission, the debtor could not appeal from a judgment against the garnishee. Baughn v. J. B. McKee Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 732.

32. —— Parties or persons injured or aggrieved.—Debtor's fraudulent assignee held not entitled to complain of court's action in vacating interlocutory order determining adversely the claim of another person. Norton v. Maddox (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 319.

An assignment of error by a party claiming ownership in the property involved, complaining of a decree in favor of another party to the record, will not be considered, when the court adjudges that the party complaining is not such owner. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485, rehearing denied (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 343, reversed 97 T. 31, 75 S. W. 7, 101 Am. St. Rep. 835.

In an action on a note by an indorsee thereof as collateral security, the maker held entitled to complain of an error in the judgment. Martin v. German American Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 131.

An intervener, having received the only judgment he asked against plaintiff, held not entitled to complain of the court's ruling sustaining plaintiff's demurrer to the intervening petition. Carder v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 944.

Where there was no issue between plaintiff and interveners or between interveners and defendant, who admitted his indebtedness to the interveners, plaintiff was not affected by the jury's failure to find for the interveners. Texas Irr. Co. v. Moore, Bryan & Perry (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 166.

33. —— Decisions of intermediate courts.—In an action on a contract in which defendant sought a recovery over against a third person, an appeal by such person to the county court held to entitle defendant to appeal from the judgment of that court. Woldert Grocery Co. v. Boonville Elevator Co., 99 T. 581, 91 S. W. 1082.

34. Waiver of right of review—In general.—Assignment of errors being expressly waived in the written agreement, held, they will not be considered. Gonzales v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 896.

A statement in a decree, purporting to be made by consent of defendants, held not to amount to a waiver of errors. Mundy v. Hart (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 236.

35. —— Recognition of or acquiescence in decision.—Where a general demurrer by one of two defendants is sustained, and the action is voluntarily dismissed as to him, error in sustaining the demurrer will not be considered. Anderson v. Walker (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 937.

That a corporation for which a receiver was appointed delivered the property to him on demand held not to affect its right to appeal from the appointment. People's Cemetery Ass'n v. Oakland Cemetery Co., 24 C. A. 668, 60 S. W. 679.

A defendant presenting an answer making a third person a party and asking judgment over against him in the event of plaintiff's recovery held entitled to require the court to consider the error complaining of the sustaining of the exceptions to the answer and dismissing the third person. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pigott, 54 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 841.

Where plaintiff takes a nonsuit because of a ruling which prevents recovery, he may have such ruling reviewed by an appeal from the judgment refusing to set aside the nonsuit. Ford v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 715.

Where plaintiff abandoned his action, he cannot appeal from the judgment dismissing his petition. Sorrell v. Stone (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 300.

A plaintiff acquiescing in the dismissal of his suit held to have no further interest in the suit thereafter prosecuted between his coplaintiff and defendant which warrant his appeal from the judgment. Sharp v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 837.

36. —— Compliance with judgment.—An intervener, paying a judgment enforcing a landlord's lien, claiming ownership of personal property on which the lien was sought to be established, held not entitled to appeal. Norris Implement Co. v. Ogden (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 279.

37. —— Acceptance of benefits.—A party accepting the benefits of a judgment voluntarily and knowing the facts is estopped to afterwards reverse the judgment on error. Dunham v. Randall, 11 C. A. 265, 32 S. W. 720.

Where judgment was in favor of plaintiffs for recovery of land, with permission to defendant to remove buildings, held, that he waived appeal by removing them. Harper v. Foster (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 40.

Where two distinct controversies, were decided by a judgment, the appellant's enforcement of one part of the judgment did not estop him from the prosecution of an appeal from the other part. Woeltz v. Woeltz, 93 T. 548, 57 S. W. 35.

Widow's acceptance of judgment setting aside her conveyance held not to preclude her appeal from balance of judgment dismissing her suit for want of jurisdiction, to which the relief granted was but ancillary. Milam v. Hill, 29 C. A. 573, 69 S. W. 447.

An appellant is not estopped to prosecute her appeal by accepting and receipting for the amount of the judgment, which appellee has conceded to be due her. Hodges v. Smith, 34 C. A. 635, 79 S. W. 328.

That defendant compromised with plaintiff for his half of a judgment held not to estop it from prosecuting an appeal as to the other half, which had been transferred to plaintiff's attorneys. Wells Fargo & Co. Express v. Boyle (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 441.

A plaintiff accepting satisfaction of a judgment on notes held not estopped to appeal from that part of the judgment denying recovery for stipulated attorney's fees. Haynes v. Halverton, 51 C. A. 228, 111 S. W. 166.

38. —— Pursuing other remedy.—Parties against whom an injunction has been granted by filing a motion to dissolve, which was overruled, did not lose their right to appeal from the order granting the injunction. Jeff Chaison Town Site Co. v. McFaddin, Wiess & Kyle Land Co., 56 C. A. 611, 121 S. W. 716.

The right to appeal from an order granting a temporary injunction becomes fixed by filing a transcript in 15 days, giving bond, etc., and cannot be defeated by any effort to have the injunction dissolved made in the court below. Houston Electric Co. v. Glen Park Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 965.

39. Persons entitled to allege error.—A plaintiff bringing a defendant into a case by imperfect service cannot complain of a judgment for costs in favor of such defendant, though he has failed to answer. Edinburgh American Land Mortg. Co. v. Briggs (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 1036.

An intervener in garnishment held entitled to raise question of legality of proceedings below. Raley v. Smith (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 54.

A defendant held not entitled to complain of an order dismissing the action as against a codefendant. Sexton Rice & Irrigation Co. v. Sexton, 48 C. A. 190, 106 S. W. 728.

40. —— Estoppel to allege error.—Subsequent continuances held not to operate as a waiver of exceptions to the jurisdiction of the court. Behrens Drug Co. v. Hamilton, 92 T. 284, 48 S. W. 5.

Failure to decide promptly on objection to jurisdiction held not to deprive the excepting party of the right to have it determined. Id.

The admission of a cause of action as alleged, in order to acquire the right to open and close, held not to waive the right to complain of a ruling on a demurrer to the petition. Johnson v. Clements, 23 C. A. 112, 54 S. W. 272.

Defendant's motion having been overruled, the fact that plaintiff thereafter offered to allow defendant a new trial, which he refused, did not operate as a waiver of the errors assigned in his motion. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Stephenson, 22 C. A. 220, 54 S. W. 1086.

Defendants who failed to deny an allegation of the petition on which the judgment was rendered, but only filed a cross-petition, held not in a position to question the sufficiency of evidence to support the judgment or the instructions based on such evidence. House v. Wells (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 196.

41. Effect of transfer to appellate court.—See notes under Art. 2099.

A temporary injunction restraining a defendant from selling intoxicating liquors on premises is not suspended by appeal. Ft. Worth Driving Club v. Ft. Worth Fair Ass'n, 56 C. A. 162, 121 S. W. 213.

42. Appeals and writs of error in certiorari cases.—See Arts. 741 and 761.
43. Appeals from corporation courts.—See Art. 921.
44. Appeals in proceedings for fixing rates of public utilities corporations.—See Art. 1029.
45. Writs of error from supreme court to court of civil appeals.—See Chapters 5 and 6 of Title 31.
46. Appeals from justices' courts.—See Chapter 17 of Title 41.
47. Appeals from probate court.—See Chapter 32 of Title 52.
48. Appeals in guardianship proceedings.—See Chapter 21 of Title 64.
49. Appeals in injunction suits.—See Art. 4644 et seq.
50. Costs on appeal.—See notes under Art. 2046.

Art. 2079. [1383] [1380] Appeal from interlocutory order appointing receiver, or trustee, etc.—An appeal shall lie from an interlocutory order of the district court appointing a receiver or trustee in any cause; provided, such appeal be taken within twenty days from the entry of such order. An appeal under such cases shall take precedence in the appellate court; but the proceedings in other respects in the court below shall not be stayed during the pendency of the appeal, unless otherwise ordered by the appellate court.

Order appointing receiver or trustee.—An appeal can be taken from an interlocutory order appointing a receiver to take charge of property involved in a suit for divorce and partition. Stone v. Stone, 18 C. A. 80, 43 S. W. 567.

Appeal can be properly taken when the order appointing the receiver is filed with the clerk, although it may not have been entered on the minutes of the court. Farwell v. Babcock, 27 C. A. 162, 65 S. W. 512.

An order appointing a receiver of a corporation, entered at the same term but subsequent to the rendition of a judgment against it, held reviewable either on the appeal from the judgment or on a separate appeal. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State (Sup.) 106 S. W. 326.

Without ruling on a motion to dismiss a receiver for insufficiency of the petition, the trial judge permitted a trial amendment and then overruled the motion. Held, that there was not a reappointment of the receiver, and hence an appeal would not lie from the order. Texas Rubber Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 710.

—— Assignee for creditors.—An order made in vacation, appointing an assignee for creditors under Art. 96, is appealable. Birmingham Drug Co. v. Freeman, 15 C. A. 451, 39 S. W. 626.

—— Setting aside appointment.—This statute does not authorize an appeal from an order overruling a motion to set aside and vacate an order appointing the receiver, but only authorizes an appeal from the order appointing the receiver and requires that right to be exercised within 20 days after the entry of such order. Fidelity Funding Co. v. Hirshfield, 41 C. A. 517, 91 S. W. 246.

Under this statute no right of appeal is given from an order of a judge made in vacation refusing to vacate a receivership. Texas & O. Lumber Co. v. Applegate, 53 C. A. 66, 114 S. W. 1160.

Under this article an appeal does not lie from an interlocutory order overruling a motion to vacate an order appointing a receiver. Maund v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 228.

An order held one refusing to dismiss a receiver and not appealable. Texas Rubber Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 710.

This article does not authorize appeal from an order setting aside an appointment, if it does not finally dispose of the main case. Cone v. Hudson (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1167.

Under this article an order overruling a motion to vacate an order appointing a receiver is not appealable. Moore v. Cobe (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1142.

Time for appeal.—The requirement of Art. 2084 that notice of appeal be given in open court within two days after final judgment does not apply to appeals coming under the provisions of this article. Farwell v. Babcock, 27 C. A. 162, 65 S. W. 512.

Under this article an appeal must be dismissed where the record does not affirmatively show that the appeal was perfected within 20 days from the entry of the order. Texas Rubber Co. v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 710.

Under this article an appeal from an order appointing a receiver, which was entered April 21, 1912, will be dismissed where the appeal bond was not filed until June 21, 1912. Moore v. Cobe (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1142.

Stay of proceedings.—An appeal from an order appointing a receiver, under a supersedeas bond in a sum fixed by order of the court, suspends the order pending the appeal. Carter v. Carter (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1030.

Where a receiver has been appointed by an interlocutory order in a pending suit and an appeal is taken therefrom, the court of civil appeals is of the opinion that it can suspend all further proceedings in the main cause until the question of receivership is determined on the appeal. People's Cemetery Ass'n v. Oakland Cemetery Co., 24 C. A. 668, 60 S. W. 679.

An order appointing a receiver of a corporation held nonenforceable pending an appeal. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State (Sup.) 106 S. W. 326.

Jurisdiction acquired by appellate court.—See, also, notes under Art. 2099.

There is no authority to review interlocutory orders relative to injunction granted on the appointment of a receiver. Webb v. Allen, 15 C. A. 605, 40 S. W. 342.

The court on an appeal from an interlocutory judgment appointing a receiver can only inquire into the merits of the action so far as the facts may bear on the question of the propriety of appointing a receiver. Cotton v. Rand (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 266.

An appeal from an order appointing a receiver made without notice to appellant of necessity must be presented in the appellate court upon the petition and the order appointing the receiver alone. Haywood v. Scarborough, 41 C. A. 443, 92 S. W. 816.

Art. 2080. Appeals from interlocutory orders granting or dissolving temporary injunctions.—Appeals shall also lie from the district and county courts to courts of civil appeals, from orders granting or dissolving temporary injunctions, in cases and the manner provided for in articles 4644 and 4645 of the Revised Civil Statutes. [Acts 1909, p. 354, secs. 2, 3.]

For jurisdiction of courts of civil appeals, see Chapter 3, Title 32.

See Galveston & W. Ry. Co. v. City of Galveston (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 724.

Construed.—This article must be construed as applying to interlocutory and not to final judgments granting or dissolving injunctions. Perry v. Turner (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 193.

This act is sufficient to authorize appeals in accordance with the evident intention of the legislature which passed it. Merrill v. Savage, 49 C. A. 292, 109 S. W. 409.

The statute provides only for an appeal from the final order of the judge wherein a temporary injunction may be granted or dissolved in the suit. Berger v. De Loach, 52 C. A. 242, 113 S. W. 558.

Appeals from orders granting or dissolving temporary injunctions.—See Art. 4644 et seq., and notes.

Art. 2081. [1384] [1384] "Appellant" and "appellee" defined.—The party taking an appeal is called the "appellant;" and the adverse party is called the "appellee."

Appellant.—In a suit by next friend of a minor the term "appellant" does not include the minor, but only the next friend who brings the suit. Biggins v. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 562.

Art. 2082. [1385] [1385] "Plaintiff in error" and "defendant in error" defined.—The party suing out a writ of error is called the "plaintiff in error;" and the adverse party is called the "defendant in error."

Plaintiff in error.—In a suit by next friend of a minor, the term "plaintiff in error" does not include the minor, but only the next friend who brings the suit. Biggins v. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 562.

Art. 2083. [1386] [1386] "Appellate court" and "court below" defined.—The term "appellate court" includes the supreme court or court of civil appeals having jurisdiction of a cause on appeal or writ of error. The term "court below" includes the district or county court from which such appeal or writ of error is taken.

Appellate court.—The use of the term "appellate court," instead of "supreme court" or "court of civil appeals," in a supersedeas bond, does not vitiate the bond. Prewitt v. Day, 23 S. W. 982, 86 T. 166.

Art. 2084. [1387] [1387] Appeal perfected, how.—An appeal may, in cases where an appeal is allowed, be taken during the term of the court at which the final judgment in the cause is rendered by the appellants giving notice of appeal in open court within two days after final judgment, or two days after judgment overruling a motion for a new trial, which shall be noted on the docket and entered of record, and by his filing with the clerk an appeal bond, where bond is required by law, or affidavit in lieu thereof, as hereinafter provided, within twenty days after the expiration of the term. If the term of the court may by law continue more than eight weeks, the bond or affidavit in lieu thereof shall be filed within twenty days after notice of appeal is given, if the party taking the appeal resides in the county, and within thirty days, if he resides out of the county.

See Estes v. Estes, 54 C. A. 561, 118 S. W. 174; Ward v. Powell (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 851; Savage v. State (Cr. App.) 148 S. W. 584; Allen v. Kitchen (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 331.

Time to appeal in general.—Notice must be given and bond filed within the time prescribed by law. Burr v. Lewis, 6 T. 76; Messner v. Lewis, 17 T. 519; Lyell v. Guadalupe Co., 28 T. 57; McLane v. Russell, 29 T. 127; Hughes v. State, 33 T. 683; Smith v. Parks, 55 T. 82.

The appellate courts have jurisdiction of an appeal perfected from a district court during the term of court at which the judgment was rendered. Ellis v. Harrison, 24 C. A. 13, 56 S. W. 592, 57 S. W. 984.

Where two orders are made by the court on the same motion, the time of perfecting an appeal will be counted from the date of the last one. Sass v. Hirschfeld, 23 C. A. 1, 56 S. W. 602.

A party has the right to prosecute an appeal within the statutory period after the entry of a judgment nunc pro tunc. S. W. Slayden & Co. v. Palmo (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 908; Partridge v. Wooten, 137 S. W. 412; Broderick & Bascom Rope Co. v. Waco Brick Co., 150 S. W. 600.

An appeal will be dismissed where not perfected within the time required by law. Hill v. Peeler (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 1005.

An appeal held to have been perfected within the prescribed time. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Texas Tram & Lumber Co., 50 C. A. 182, 110 S. W. 140.

An appeal from a judgment cannot be prosecuted until the judgment has been actually entered. Trotti v. Kinnear (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 326.

Interlocutory orders.—This article does not apply to interlocutory orders such as appointing receivers, etc., made upon ex parte hearings when the court is not in session. Farwell v. Babcock, 27 C. A. 162, 65 S. W. 512.

A notice of appeal from a temporary mandatory injunction order held not necessary. Young v. Dudney (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 802.

This article does not apply to appeals from interlocutory orders. Butts v. Davis (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1015.

Notice of appeal—Necessity.—One who can appeal without bond, as an executor, must give the notice. Lockart v. Lockart, 1 T. 199.

A party desiring a cross-appeal must give notice and bond. Railway Co. v. Skinner, 23 S. W. 1001, 4 C. A. 661.

The appellate court has no jurisdiction when notice of appeal is not given. Railway Co. v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 72; Bonner v. Ferrell, 3 C. A. 444, 22 S. W. 418; Luckey v. Warren (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 617; Wichita Valley Ry. Co. v. Peery (Civ. App.) 27 S. W 751; Lyell v. Guadaloupe County, 28 T. 58; McLane v. Russell, 29 T. 129.

It is essential to the right of appeal that the "appellant" give notice of appeal in open court. Wesley v. Kuteman, 26 C. A. 365, 62 S. W. 1074.

The appellate court held not to have jurisdiction; notice of appeal not having been given on the overruling of motion for new trial. Eclipse Paint & Mfg. Co. v. New Process Roofing & Supply Co., 55 C. A. 553, 120 S. W. 532.

Parties who did not give notice of appeal in the trial court cannot have judgment for costs against them reviewed. Wright v. Giles (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1163.

Due notice of appeal is essential to appellate jurisdiction. Goldman v. Broyles (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 283.

Though Art. 3631, permitting a person aggrieved by decision of the county court to appeal therefrom on compliance with provisions of that chapter, and Art. 3632 merely requiring filing of an appeal bond within 15 days, do not require a notice, the requirements of this article are general, and an appeal cannot be taken from the probate of a will by giving bond without notice. Beversdorff v. Dienger (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 533.

An appellate court cannot acquire jurisdiction where no notice of appeal was filed in the lower court. Beaumont v. Newsome (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 941.

—— Who may give.—A person not shown to be authorized to act for a railroad company held not entitled as amicus curiæ to give a notice of appeal from a judgment against it. Southern Ry. Co. v. Locke (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 1069.

—— Parties benefited.—Where judgment was rendered in the county court against the principal and sureties on the appeal bond from the justice's court, the notice of appeal given by the principal only will not give jurisdiction as to the sureties, and errors essential as to them will not be revised or considered. Lacy v. Williams, 8 T. 182; Chappell v. Brooks, 33 T. 275; Marx v. Carlisle, 1 App. C. C. § 95.

Notice of appeal given by plaintiff held not to inure to benefit of appealing defendants. Wesley v. Kuteman, 26 C. A. 365, 62 S. W. 1074.

Notice of appeal from a judgment given by a married woman held to inure to the benefit of her husband and the sureties on her replevin bond against whom the judgment was rendered. Wandelohr v. Grayson County Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 180.

—— Sufficiency.—Under this article it is not required that the notice specify the court to which the appeal is taken, and notice of an appeal designating an appellate court in a judicial district other than that in which the appeal lies is surplusage not affecting the notice. Martin v. Rutherford (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 156.

—— Entering of record.—When notice of appeal is not entered of record no action can be maintained on the appeal bond. Estado Land & Cattle Co. v. Ansley, 24 S. W. 933, 6 C. A. 185.

Appeal dismissed, where there was nothing in the record to show that notice of appeal was given. Evans v. Smith, 22 C. A. 472, 54 S. W. 1050; Beaumont v. Newsome (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 615; McMullen v. White House Lumber Co., 149 S. W. 734.

Under this article, that the record did not show that notice of appeal was given in the trial court was not ground for dismissal. Gulf States Brick Co. v. Beaumont Rice Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 931.

Giving of notice of appeal should appear from the record. Goldman v. Broyles (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 283.

The court of civil appeals of its own motion will notice failure of the record to show notice of appeal. Id.

—— Dismissal for failure to file or file in time.—Appeal dismissed because of failure to file notice in due time. Gordon v. McCall (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 219.

A motion to dismiss an appeal on the ground that notice was not given will be denied, where the evidence as to the notice was conflicting. Kimbell v. Powell, 57 C. A. 57, 121 S. W. 541.

Appeal bond.—See Art. 2097 and notes.

Affidavit in lieu of bond.—See Art. 2098 and notes.

Time for filing bond or affidavit.—The time within which the bond must be filed is computed from the date of the judgment. Waterhouse v. Love, 23 T. 559; Peabody v. Marks, 25 T. 19; Hart v. Mills, 31 T. 304.

When the last day falls on Sunday it is included in computing time. Hanover Fire Ins. Co. v. Shrader, 89 T. 35, 32 S. W. 872, 33 S. W. 112, 30 L. R. A. 498, 59 Am. St. Rep. 25.

Where the term under the law may continue 8 weeks an appeal bond must be filed within 20 days after rendition of judgment. National Bank v. Carper, 28 C. A. 334, 67 S. W. 192.

Filing of appeal bond held to be too late. Clements v. Buckner, 35 C. A. 497, 80 S. W. 235; Browne Grain Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 244.

Where the term of court may continue longer than 8 weeks the appeal bond must be filed within 20 days after notice of appeal is given. Hillman v. Galligher, 52 C. A. 41, 113 S. W. 321.

Where the term of court might have continued longer than 8 weeks the appeal bond must be filed within 30 days from time notice of appeal was given. W. U. Tel. Co. v. Parsley (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 156.

Under this article, where a notice of appeal from a judgment of the district court of Harris county, which might by law continue in session more than 8 weeks, was given February 3d, and the appeal bond was not filed until February 24th, the clerk properly refused to file the record. Merkel v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1195.

Under this article, where the bond or affidavit is not filed within the prescribed time after notice of appeal given on the day the judgment is entered, the appeal will be dismissed, though a motion for new trial was filed and overruled within the time prescribed preceding the filing of the bond or affidavit; no new notice of appeal being given. Smith v. Van Slyke (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 810.

—— Nonresident of county.—When the appellant is a nonresident of the county, this fact must be shown in order to give the court jurisdiction under an affidavit filed after 20 days. Dixon v. Southern Bldg. & L. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 58.

The 30 days allowed a nonresident in which to file his appeal bond applies only in cases where, the term continuing longer than 8 weeks, the time begins to run from the date of the judgment, and does not apply to cases where the time does not begin to run until adjournment. Nash v. Noble, 52 C. A. 425, 114 S. W. 848.

Under this article, a nonresident appellant does not have 30 days after notice of appeal within which to file his bond where the term could not continue longer than 8 weeks. Simpson v. Baker, 57 C. A. 460, 122 S. W. 959.

Under this article, the appeal bond of a nonresident appellant must be filed within 30 days after notice of appeal, where the court remained in session more than 8 weeks, otherwise within 20 days after notice of appeal. Brown v. Allen (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 601.

—— Effect of failure to file in time.—A bond substantially defective is not cured by a sufficient bond filed after the time allowed by law. Harvey v. Cummings, 62 T. 186.

Appeal will be dismissed where bond is not filed within the time prescribed by law. S. P. Co. v. Phillipson (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 55; Evertson v. Frier, 45 S. W. 201; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Elliston, 128 S. W. 675.

Where a bond of a county has not been filed within the statutory time allowed to a resident of the county, the appeal will be dismissed. Uvalde County v. City of Uvalde (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 327.

The court of civil appeals has no jurisdiction when an appeal bond is not filed within the time required by law. Sanger v. Burke (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 871; El Paso & N. E. R. Co. v. Whatley, 99 T. 128, 87 S. W. 819; Vineyard v. McCombs, 41 C. A. 106, 90 S. W. 720; St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. Hurst & Riley (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 599; Weil v. Cable Co., 135 S. W. 755; American Warehouse Co. v. Hamblen, 146 S. W. 1006.

A judgment of the court of appeals, where the appeal bond was not filed within the statutory time, but afterwards nunc pro tunc, is not void. Gilbough v. Stahl Bldg. Co., 91 T. 621, 45 S. W. 385.

Where a bond required as a condition to the granting of a writ of error is not given within the time prescribed, the grant has no effect. Mauldin v. Southern Pac. Co., 92 T. 267, 47 S. W. 964.

An appeal will be dismissed on failure of appellant, a resident of the county in which the judgment was rendered, to file an appeal bond within 20 days after the adjournment of the term. Farris v. Gilder, 48 C. A. 492, 106 S. W. 896.

Under this article the appellate court acquires no jurisdiction where the appeal bond was not filed within 20 days after the adjournment of the term. Simpson v. Baker, 57 C. A. 460, 122 S. W. 959; St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 720.

Where appellants failed to file bond within 20 days after giving notice of appeal, the appeal will be dismissed. Mara v. Branch (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1076; Bardon v. Alexander, 128 S. W. 925.

Where the term of court at which the case was tried continued more than eight weeks, and the appeal bond was not filed within 20 days after notice of the appeal was given, as required by this article, the appeal would be dismissed. Abe Block & Co. v. Largent (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1076.

Where a railroad corporation, having its principal office in the county in which the district court rendered a judgment against it, failed to comply with this article by filing its bond on appeal within 20 days after giving notice of appeal, while the term of the district court actually continued for more than 8 weeks, as authorized by law, the court of civil appeals acquired no jurisdiction, and the appeal must be dismissed. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Leach (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 399.

Where one appealing from a judgment rendered at a term, which continued more than eight weeks, failed to file the bond within the time required by this article, and sought to excuse his failure because the term at which judgment was rendered was not authorized by law, the appeal will be dismissed, for, if the term was unauthorized by law, the appeal must be dismissed, and, if authorized, the bond was not filed in time. Weil v. Cable Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 755.

Where a judgment was rendered during a term which ended March 5, 1910, and the appeal bond was not filed until April 22d following, the appellate court did not acquire jurisdiction, and the appeal will be dismissed, under this article. Brown v. Tucker (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 924.

Where an appeal was taken from the A. district court, the term of which was less than 8 weeks, and the record showed that appellant's residence was within the county, failure to file the bond until 24 days after adjournment was fatal. Moore v. Moore (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1084.

An appeal bond, not filed within 30 days from the notice of appeal, where the term of court at which the judgment was rendered was authorized to continue for more than 8 weeks, or not filed within 20 days after adjournment in case of a shorter term than 8 weeks, is not filed in time, and the court of civil appeals acquires no jurisdiction. Browne Grain Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 244.

Approval of bond.—See Art. 2097.

—— Time for approval.—Where an appeal bond is approved more than 20 days after the adjournment of court, the appeal will be dismissed. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 519.

An appeal will be dismissed if the appeal bond is not approved within the time required by law. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Elliston (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 675.

Parties on appeal in general.—When judgment is rendered against a principal and sureties, the sureties are, on an appeal by the principal, properly made parties. Lange v. Fritze (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 583.

Sureties on a cost bond against whom judgment had been rendered held not necessary parties to an appeal taken by their principal. Taylor v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 411.

Persons named in a cross-plea should be made parties on appeal from a judgment which they were interested in maintaining. Frazier v. Weinman (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 904.

Where there was no adverse interest between the defendants in the trial court, any one of them could appeal from an adverse judgment without making the other defendants parties. McDonald v. Denton (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 823.

Though one made a defendant both in his individual and representative capacities, and against whom judgment is rendered in both capacities, may not appeal in his individual capacity alone, yet his appeal, in form only in his individual capacity, will not be dismissed, his appeal bond being payable to himself in his representative capacity, as well as to the other parties. Pryor v. Krause (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 972.

Effect of transfer to appellate court.—See, also, notes under Art. 2099.

After the appeal is perfected, as provided by this article, the trial court loses its power in respect to those things which might trench on the appellate functions and the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals attaches. Gordon v. Rhodes & Daniels (Cr. App.) 104 S. W. 787.

Art. 2085. [1388] [1388] By parties of whom no appeal bond is required.—In cases where the appellant is not required by law to give bond on appeal, the appeal is perfected by the notice provided for in the preceding article.

Appeal perfected by notice.—An appeal by a city under Art. 768, is perfected when notice is given; an appeal bond is not required. City of Hallettsville v. Long (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 573; City of Vernon v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 606.

When executors appeal in their capacity as such they are not required to give bond and their appeal becomes perfected on notice thereof in open court. Dew v. Weekes (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 706.

In cases where appellant is not required by law to give appeal bond the appeal is perfected by giving notice of appeal. City of San Antonio v. Smith, 27 C. A. 327, 65 S. W. 41.

Persons not required to give bond—City.—See Art. 768.

—— State, county, railroad commission, and heads of departments of state.—See Art. 2105.

—— Executors, administrators, and guardians.—See Art. 2106.

—— State board of health.—See Art. 4547.

Effect of transfer to appellate court.—See notes under Art. 2099.

Art. 2086. [1389] [1389] Writ of error sued out, when.—The writ of error may, in cases where the same is allowed, be sued out at any time within twelve months after the final judgment is rendered, and not thereafter.

Time for suing out writ of error.—The amendment of April 13, 1892, changing the time for suing out a writ of error from 2 years to 12 months, applied to judgments rendered before the passage of the act, the time being apportioned. Odum v. Garner, 86 T. 374, 25 S. W. 18; Compton v. Ashley (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 924.

In estimating the time within which writ of error should be sued out, the period should commence with the date of the judgment, and not with the date when motion for new trial was overruled. Cooper v. Yoakum, 91 T. 391, 43 S. W. 871.

A judgment was entered May 28, 1897. On July 9 it was reformed and another entered, dated May 28. The judgment of July 9 vacated that of May 28 and a writ of error issued July 8, 1898, was in time. Luck v. Hopkins, 92 T. 426, 49 S. W. 360.

An order, entered nunc pro tunc, perfecting a judgment, the right to review which had been lost by lapse of time, does not relate back to the date of the original judgment, so that error will not lie therefrom. Henry v. Boulter, 26 C. A. 387, 63 S. W. 1056.

Where a judgment has been corrected subsequently to its rendition, a writ of error may be sued out within a year from the date of the correction as the corrected judgment is the one to be enforced, if enforced at all. Hall v. Read, 28 C. A. 18, 66 S. W. 809.

Under this article, a writ, not sued out within 12 months from judgment, but within 12 months from the entry of the order overruling a motion for new trial, will be dismissed. Carpenter v. Carpenter (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 633.

The petition and bond for writ of error being filed in the trial court, and the bond approved by the clerk thereof, both within a year from rendition of judgment, jurisdiction is thereby given the appellate court, though citation in error is not issued till after lapse of the year. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 958.

Dismissal for failure to sue out writ in time.—A writ of error sued out after the expiration of the time allowed by law, a part of the plaintiffs being under disability, will be dismissed as to those not so protected. Fine v. Freeman, 83 T. 529, 17 S. W. 783, 19 S. W. 963.

A writ of error sued out too late will be dismissed by the court. Odum v. Garner, 25 S. W. 18, 86 T. 374; Garce v. Buffington (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 317; Carpenter v. Carpenter, 142 S. W. 633.

A writ of error will be dismissed by the appellate court of its own motion when it appears that the petition for writ of error was not filed within 12 months from the time of final judgment. Carlton v. Ashworth (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 203.

Art. 2087. [1390] [1390] By petition.—The party desiring to sue out a writ of error shall file with the clerk of the court in which the judgment was rendered a petition in writing signed by him or by his attorney, and addressed to such clerk. [Id. sec. 140. P. D. 1495.]

Petition for writ of error—In general.—See, also, Art. 2088.

Application for writ of error should be confined to a single case. The fact that there are several cases between the same parties and involving the same question does not authorize a single application for a writ in all of the cases. Cameron v. State, 28 S. W. 272, 87 T. 246.

An application for a writ of error may be made on Sunday. Hanover Ins. Co. v. Shrader, 89 T. 35, 32 S. W. 872, 33 S. W. 112, 30 L. R. A. 498, 59 Am. St. Rep. 25.

—— Address.—The address is a mere matter of form. Johnson v. McCutchings, 43 T. 553.

Art. 2088. [1391] [1391] Requisites of petition.—The petition shall state the names and residences of the parties adversely interested, shall describe the judgment with sufficient certainty to identify it, and shall state that he desires to remove the same to the court of civil appeals for revision and correction. Where the plaintiff in error desires the issuance of a supersedeas, he shall state the facts which entitle him thereto, and pray for the issuance thereof.

See San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Choate, 90 T. 81, 35 S. W. 472.

Requisites of petition—In general.—The application for a writ of error must distinctly state the several grounds on which a writ of error is applied for. Alliance Milling Co. v. Eaton (Sup.) 24 S. W. 392.

As to the necessary statement in a petition for writ of error, see Curlin v. Canadian and American Mortgage Co. (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 484.

Application for a writ of error held to state facts sufficient to make defendant's successor in interest a party to the proceedings in error. Proctor v. San Antonio St. Ry. Co., 26 C. A. 148, 62 S. W. 938, 939.

—— Names and residences of parties.—The residence of the adverse party should be stated. Roberts v. Sollibellus, 10 T. 352; Daugherty v. Cartwright, 31 T. 284; Jordan v. Terry, 33 T. 680; Covitt v. Anderson, 34 T. 262; Cassels v. Kinney, 39 T. 431. But the omission is cured on appeal, if his residence appears in the transcript of the record. Mills v. Howard, 12 T. 9. But not if citation is issued to another county. Laws v. Harris, 33 T. 700.

A petition which omits the name of a party is defective. The statute is mandatory. Weems v. Watson, 91 T. 35, 40 S. W. 722.

The petition for writ of error should state the names and residences of parties adversely interested. Yarnell v. Burnett, 25 C. A. 26, 61 S. W. 153.

Under Art. 1830, providing that a railroad company may be sued in any county through which it runs, and this article, a petition for a writ of error which alleges that defendant, a domestic railroad corporation, has a line of railroad extending through the county in which the action was brought with a designated local agent and an attorney of record residing in the county, sufficiently shows the residence of defendant to give the clerk of court the required information on which to issue the proper citation and to have the same served on the proper party. Padgitt v. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co., 104 T. 249, 136 S. W. 442.

The names "Refugia R." and "Refugio R." are idem sonans, and a writ of error to review a judgment obtained by "Refugia R." will not be dismissed because the petition and citation described her as "Refugio R." American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 654.

A petition for writ of error, naming three persons as defendants in error, could not be considered as the suing out of a writ of error as to the executrix of one of them, who had previously died. Simmang v. Cheney (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1198.

—— Description of judgment.—The judgment must be sufficiently described to identify it. Sufficient, when. Turner v. Hamilton, 6 T. 250; Forshey v. Railroad Co., 16 T. 516. Insufficient, when. Hollis v. Border, 10 T. 277; Wright v. Williams, 12 T. 35; Graham v. Sterns, 16 T. 153; Horton v. Bodine, 19 T. 280; Daugherty v. Cartwright, 31 T. 284; Hammond v. Mays, 45 T. 486. The defect is removed by proper description in citation. Hillibrant v. Brewer, 5 T. 566; Wright v. Williams, 12 T. 35; Summerlin v. Reeves, 29 T. 85.

A petition for a writ of error, describing the judgment as rendered by the county court of a county other than that where it was rendered, held fatally defective. Dixon v. Watson, 41 C. A. 266, 91 S. W. 618.

Misstatements of the date of a judgment in the petition for a writ of error from the district court to the court of civil appeals held immaterial. Murphy v. Williams, 103 T. 155, 124 S. W. 900.

Waiver of defects.—Plaintiff's acceptance of service of a petition for a writ of error sued out by defendant held not to cure a defect therein. Dixon v. Watson, 41 C. A. 266, 91 S. W. 618.

Misstatements of the date of a judgment in the petition for a writ of error from the district court to the court of civil appeals held waived by a failure to move to dismiss the writ in that court. Murphy v. Williams, 103 T. 155, 124 S. W. 900.

Amendment of petition.—A petition in error cannot be amended by adding the name of a party. Weems v. Watson, 91 T. 35, 40 S. W. 722.

Amendment of an application for writ of error after its refusal, so as to base it on a different ground, held not to be allowed. Hord v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 99 T. 247, 89 S. W. 404.

An amended petition for a writ of error filed after the time had expired for the suing out of the writ held insufficient to cure a fatal defect in the original petition. Dixon v. Watson, 41 C. A. 266, 91 S. W. 618.

Effect of petition.—A recitation in a petition for a writ of error will not be considered as proving the fact recited. Long v. Behan, 19 C. A. 325, 48 S. W. 555.

Parties to writ of error—In general.—Assignees of an interest in the cause of action, to whom the court has ordered the judgment shall be paid to the extent of their interest, held proper parties to a writ of error on the judgment. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Mitchell, 21 C. A. 463, 51 S. W. 662.

—— Necessary parties.—A party to the judgment in whose favor the same has been wholly or partially rendered, and who does not appeal from it, must be made a defendant in error. Young v. Russell, 60 T. 684.

In an appeal by the defendant in an action of trespass to try title, the plaintiff and an intervener claiming an adverse interest are necessary parties. Hayden v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 1085.

All parties to a judgment must be made parties to a writ of error. Pickitt v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 395.

Plaintiff in trespass to try title held not a necessary party to a proceeding in error by the defendant warrantor to review a judgment against him in favor of his codefendant grantee. Weems v. Watson, 91 T. 35, 40 S. W. 722.

Where assignee of an insurance policy recovers judgment against his assignor and the insurer, the latter is not a necessary party in error prosecuted by the assignor. Gooch v. Parker, 16 C. A. 256, 41 S. W. 662.

It is not necessary for a defendant bringing error to make a codefendant not adversely interested a party. Wood v. Cahill, 21 C. A. 38, 50 S. W. 1071.

Plaintiff bringing a writ of error against defendant in an action for the title and possession of personalty held required to make the sureties in defendant's replevy bond parties thereto. Clark v. Lowe (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 733.

Plaintiff, bringing error from a judgment in trespass to try title, held required to make a party affected by the judgment a party to the writ of error. McKnight v. McKnight (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 734.

The statute requiring all parties adversely interested to be made parties to a writ of error is not complied with, where, judgment in trespass to try title being for plaintiff against all the defendants, one only of the defendants petitions for writ of error, and makes his writ of error bond payable to the plaintiff only. Pryor v. Krause (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 972.

In an action on a note, partners against whom defendant demanded judgment over held necessary parties to a writ of error brought by him to review a judgment against him on the note and against the partners as indorsers. Ferguson v. Beaumont Land & Building Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 303.

Dismissal for failure to join necessary parties.—Where interveners, in suit to foreclose mortgage and for receiver, were not made parties to writ of error, it will be dismissed. Fleming & Slade v. Raywood Rice Canal & Milling Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 737.

A writ of error by one of several defendants adjudged a principal in a note, brought against codefendants adjudged sureties, to revise the judgment in favor of the sureties, must be dismissed for failure to make all the parties interested parties to the writ. Harlin v. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Snyder (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 844.

Motion to dismiss a writ of error for failure to join parties adversely interested is filed in time if filed before defendant in error waives the omission by appearance. Ferguson v. Beaumont Land & Building Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 303.

Art. 2089. [1392] [1392] Error bond.—The plaintiff shall also, at the time of filing such petition, file with the clerk a writ of error bond, or affidavit in lieu thereof, as hereinafter provided. [Id.]

Affidavit in lieu of bond.—See Art. 2098.

Time for filing bond or affidavit.—An affidavit filed within nine days after the filing of the petition was held sufficient. Thompson v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 236.

The filing of the bond must precede the issuance of citation. But the judgment will not be affirmed on certificate on account of an error in this particular. Thompson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 679.

Art. 2090. [1393] [1393] Citation in error.—Upon the filing of the petition and bond mentioned in the three preceding articles, it shall be the duty of the clerk forthwith to issue a citation for the defendant in error, and if there be several defendants residing in different counties, one citation shall issue to each of such counties. [Id.]

Citation in error—In general.—See, also, Art. 2091.

All the parties adversely interested must be cited. Summerlin v. Reeves, 29 T. 85; Clark v. Thompson, 42 T. 128; Crunk v. Crunk, 23 T. 604; Thompson v. Pine, 55 T. 427; Barnard v. Tarlton, 57 T. 402.

—— Issuance of citation.—The plaintiff in error has no authority to direct the clerk not to issue citation. Peters v. Willis, 44 T. 568.

Citation in error must be issued to parties adversely interested. Yarnell v. Burnett, 25 C. A. 26, 61 S. W. 153.

Clerks have a legal right to contest an affidavit of inability to give a writ of error bond, and, the contest being sustained, they are not liable for refusal to issue process. Kruegel v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 343.

—— Time of issuance.—The filing of the bond must precede the issuance of citation but the judgment will not be affirmed on certificate on account of an error in this particular. Thompson v. Thompson (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 679.

Proceedings by writ of error held sufficient to give the appellate court jurisdiction, though citation in error was not issued within a year of judgment. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 958.

There having been no intentional delay, but plaintiffs in error having failed to get into the court of civil appeals through failure to have proper citations issued, the case will not be dismissed, but merely stricken from the docket, with leave to again prosecute it on proper service. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Rodriquez (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 678.

Art. 2091. [1394] [1394] Form and requisites of citation.—The style of such citation shall be "The State of Texas;" and it shall be dated and tested by the clerk as other writs, and the date of its issuance shall be noted thereon. It shall be directed to the sheriff or any constable of the county where the defendant is alleged to reside or be, and shall command him forthwith to summon the defendant to appear and defend such writ before the court of civil appeals within sixty days from date of service of said citation, stating the place of holding the same, according to the provisions of the law regulating the returns of appeals and writs of error from the county in which the judgment was rendered. It shall state the date of the filing of the petition in error, the names of the parties according to such petition, and the description of the judgment as therein given. Such citation shall be made returnable within ten days from the issuance of the same, if defendant resides in the county, and within twenty days, if he resides out of the county.

See American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Rodriquez (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 678.

Form and requisites of citation.—Term must be stated. Hendley v. Baccus, 32 T. 328; Hunt v. Schrier, 37 T. 632.

Issuance and time of issuance.—See Art. 2090.

Waiver of defects.—Filing of briefs held waiver of defects in citation of error. Talbert v. Barbour, 16 C. A. 63, 40 S. W. 187.

Appearance of defendant in error to move to dismiss the writ is a waiver of defects in the citation in error, or the sheriff's return thereon. Hall v. La Salle County (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 863.

Art. 2092. [1395] [1395] Service and return of.—It shall be the duty of the sheriff or constable receiving such citation to indorse the day and hour on which he receives it, and to execute and return it forthwith. Service shall be made by delivering to the defendant in error, and, if more than one, then, to each of them, in person, a true copy of such citation. The return of such officer shall be indorsed on or attached to the original writ, and shall state when and how the same was served, and shall be signed by him officially. [Id].

Necessity of service.—A failure to serve citation is a ground for dismissal. Yarnell v. Burnett, 25 C. A. 26, 61 S. W. 153; Aspley v. Alcott (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 885.

Where one of the parties to a judgment sought to be reviewed by a writ of error is not served, the writ will be dismissed. Henry v. Boulter, 26 C. A. 387, 63 S. W. 1056.

The court of civil appeals does not acquire jurisdiction of a writ of error until service of the writ. Garney v. Menefee, 53 C. A. 490, 118 S. W. 1083.

Manner of service.—See, also, Arts. 2095 and 2896.

Service of a citation for a writ of error to a judgment against the members of a firm personally, on the firm, held not service on the members thereof. State Nat. Bank v. City of Dallas, 28 C. A. 299, 68 S. W. 334.

Where defendant in error dies after petition in error has been filed and bond for writ approved, but before service of citation, the citation in error can be served on surviving wife and children, when deceased left no debts and there has been no administration, nor necessity therefor. Binyon v. Smith, 50 C. A. 398, 112 S. W. 139.

Diligence in obtaining service.—See Art. 2093 and notes.

Effect of defective service.—Where the service of citation to defendant in error is defective, held, that the writ should not be dismissed by the appellate court, but the case should be struck from its docket. Vineyard v. McCombs, 100 T. 318, 99 S. W. 544.

A motion to dismiss a writ of error on grounds going to the manner of the service of the citation in error cannot be sustained further than to strike the case from the docket, with leave to again prosecute the case on proper service. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 654.

Waiver of defects in service.—An acceptance of service by the attorney of the defendant in error is an appearance in the appellate court and cures a defect in service of citation. Stephenson v. Chappell, 12 C. A. 296, 33 S. W. 880, 36 S. W. 482.

A receipt for briefs from plaintiff and a waiver of filing is an appearance and cures any defect in service of citation in error. Id.

Requisites of return.—See, also, Arts. 2093 and 2095.

The time of service must be shown. McGuire v. Newbill, 54 T. 317.

The omission of the words "in person" is a fatal error. Womack v. Slade (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 1002.

A return on a citation may be signed in the name of the sheriff, by deputy, without the official signature of the latter. Hays v. Byrd, 14 C. A. 24, 36 S. W. 777.

Art. 2093. [1396] [1396] Return and what shall show.—The citation shall be returned as prescribed in article 2091, and where the same has not been served, the return shall show the diligence used by the officer to execute the same, and a failure to execute it, and where the defendant is to be found, so far as he has been able to ascertain.

Sufficiency of return.—See, also, Arts. 2092 and 2095.

To lay the basis for a citation to the attorney of defendant in error, the return of the citation to such defendant must state the diligence used to find him. Vineyard v. McCombs, 100 T. 318, 99 S. W. 544.

A return on a citation showing no service because the party is not in the county held sufficient under this article. Morgan v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 156.

Diligence in obtaining service.—A writ of error will be dismissed where diligence is not used in obtaining service of citation. Roberts v. Sollibellus, 10 T. 352; Glævecke v. Delmas, 13 T. 495; Graham v. Sterns, 16 T. 156; Thompson v. Rice, 49 T. 769; Overton v. Terry, 49 T. 773; Hohenthal v. Turnure, 50 T. 1; Wilson v. Adams, 50 T. 5.

Under the circumstances, held, there was not such negligent failure to use proper diligence to procure service of citation as to deprive plaintiff in error of a hearing on the merits under the writ. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 958.

A writ of error will not be dismissed for delay in regard to citations, where a great part of the delay has been caused by defendant. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 654.

Art. 2094. [1397] [1397] Alias citation.—If the citation is returned not executed, the clerk shall forthwith issue an alias or pluris citation, as the case may be, which shall conform to the requisites prescribed for the issuance of citation in the first instance, and shall, in addition, indicate how many previous citations have been issued. [Id.]

Sufficiency of alias citation.—Under this article a citation reciting that the officer was commanded, as he had one time before been, to summon, etc., is sufficient as an alias citation, though not indorsed as such. Morgan v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 156.

This article, requiring that an alias or pluries citation on a writ of error shall indicate how many previous citations have issued, is mandatory; so that such a citation, not correctly stating the number of previous citations issued, is insufficient. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Rodriquez (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 678.

Art. 2095. [1398] [1398] Service on the attorney of record.—If it appears from the allegations in the papers of the cause that the party is a nonresident of the state, or if it appears from the return of the sheriff or constable that the party can not be found in the county of his residence, the citation shall direct the officer to summon the defendant by making service on his attorney of record, if there be one. [Id.]

Service on attorney of record.—As to service on an attorney, see James v. Gray, 3 T. 514; Adkins v. Forehand, 10 T. 270; Hughes v. Burleson, 10 T. 290; Forshey v. Railroad Co., 16 T. 516; Holloman v. Middleton, 23 T. 537.

When attorney may be served.—Where the record showed the residence of defendant in G. county, and citation was issued to H. county, and served on the attorney of record, the writ of error was dismissed. Beavers v. Butler, 30 T. 24; Laws v. Harris, 33 T. 700.

Service on the attorney of record is not sufficient where defendants in error all reside in the county where the judgment was rendered. Oge v. Frobose (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 654; Louisville & N. Ry. Co. v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 40 C. A. 296, 88 S. W. 413, 89 S. W. 276.

Service of citation in error on the attorney of record is not sufficient, if it affirmatively appears from the record that the defendant in error is a resident of the county, and the court of civil appeals has no jurisdiction if the defendant in error does not appear, or waives service. National Cereal Co. v. Earnest (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 1101.

Where the writ of error directs the sheriff to summon the defendant in error who is alleged to reside in the county, there is no service, if the writ is served on the attorney. McCloskey v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 450.

Right to serve attorneys of record with citation in writ of error exists only when the parties are nonresidents, or it appears from the officer's return that after diligent search the parties cannot be found. Aspley v. Alcott (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 886.

Service of citation in error cannot be had on an attorney of record when the citation is directed to be served on the party himself. M. & M. Printing Co. v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 1110; Pratt v. Interstate Savings & Trust Co., 57 C. A. 354, 122 S. W. 281.

It must appear that the defendant in error is a nonresident of the state, or it must appear from the officer's return that after diligent search he cannot be found in the county of his residence before service can be had on his attorney of record. Vineyard v. McCombs, 100 T. 318, 99 S. W. 546.

Sufficiency of return.—Under this article the return of the citation showing service on the attorney of record was insufficient, where no reason was given for not serving defendant in error. Houston v. Darnell Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1065.

A return on a pluries citation on writ of error, reciting delivery to the within named defendant of a true copy "as follows," followed by the name of a third person, date, and place, is insufficient, though the third person is one of the attorneys of defendant. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 654.

A sheriff's return on a writ of error, reciting that he executed the same by delivery to the attorney for the defendant in error, is fatally defective because failing to state that he delivered a true copy to the attorney in person. W. T. Gainer & Co. v. Roberts-Johnson & Rand Shoe Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 735.

Art. 2096. [1399] [1399] Service in other modes.—Service of the citation may be also made in either of the modes provided in chapter six of this title, so far the same are applicable.

Service on county.—Service of citation in error on defendant in error county would not be invalid because the county judge upon whom service was had was one of plaintiff in error's attorneys. Morgan v. Oliver (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 156.

Acceptance or waiver of service.—Service of citation may be accepted by defendant in error. Seybold v. Boyd, 14 T. 460; Chambers v. Shaw, 16 T. 143; Holloman v. Middleton, 23 T. 537; Cravens v. Wilson, 48 T. 321. See Peters v. Willis, 44 T. 568; Wilson v. Adams, 50 T. 5. When transcript is filed by plaintiff without service of citation, the defendant in error can enter an appearance in the appellate court. Id.; Chambers v. Shaw, 16 T. 145.

Service may be accepted by the attorney of the defendant in error. Holloman v. Middleton, 23 T. 537.

Acknowledgment of receipt of plaintiff in error's brief, and waiver of service of notice thereof, do not constitute a waiver of service of citation in error. Bird Canning Co. v. Cooper Grocery Co., 24 C. A. 412, 58 S. W. 1038, 61 S. W. 1103.

Facts held to show that a party was authorized to accept service of a writ of error. Henry v. Boulter, 26 C. A. 387, 63 S. W. 1056.

Art. 2097. [1400] [1400] Cost bond on appeal or writ of error.—The appellant or plaintiff in error, as the case may be, shall execute a bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the clerk, payable to the appellee or defendant in error, in a sum at least double the probable amount of the costs of the suit in the court of civil appeals, supreme court and the court below, to be fixed by the clerk, conditioned that such appellant or plaintiff in error shall prosecute his appeal or writ of error with effect, and shall pay all the costs which have accrued in the court below, and which may accrue in the court of civil appeals and the supreme court.

See Allen v. Kitchen (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 331.

28. —— Reinstatement of appeal.

1. Necessity of bond.—An assignee in bankruptcy cannot appeal without bond. Wooldridge v. Roller, 52 T. 447.

A party desiring a cross-appeal must give bond. Railway Co. v. Skinner, 23 S. W. 1001, 4 C. A. 661.

An interpleader, against whom judgment is rendered that he take nothing, but pay the costs, must, on appeal, file an appeal bond. Dickey v. Cox, 23 C. A. 67, 55 S. W. 360.

In the absence of proof of the inability of appellants to pay costs of an appeal or give security therefor, as required by the statute, they are not entitled to prosecute the appeal without giving a bond for costs. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Walker, 39 C. A. 53, 87 S. W. 194.

In an action against the sureties on a liquor dealer's bond, judgment having been for one of defendants and against the others who appealed, but plaintiff failed to perfect a cross-appeal by filing an appeal bond, judgment in favor of such defendant will not be reviewed on appeal on cross-assignments of error by plaintiff. Munoz v. Brassel (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 417.

A next friend of a minor is personally liable for costs of court and must give an appeal bond. Biggins v. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 563.

A county may not prosecute an appeal without first giving an appeal bond. Midland County v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 762. But see Art. 2105.

2. —— Bond on appeal by receiver.—See Art. 2144.

3. Exemptions—Cities.—See Art. 768.

4. —— State, counties, railroad commission, and heads of departments of state.—See Art. 2105.

5. —— Executors, administrators, and guardians.—See, also, Art. 2106.

Where a party applied to the probate court to have a will probated in which he was appointed executor, and after a contest the will was probated and an appeal was taken to the district court, where after a trial de novo resulting in a judgment denying the appellant's application to probate the will, and from this judgment the applicant appeals, he must give an appeal bond as required by this article. Cox v. Paschal (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 774.

The defendant not having appealed in his capacity of independent executor from the judgment of the district court is required by this article, and Arts. 2098, 2099, and 2106, to give bond or make affidavit in lieu thereof as other appellants. Tison v. Gass, 43 C. A. 178, 94 S. W. 377.

Where plaintiff sues both individually and as administratrix, the fact that as administratrix she need not give bond on appeal does not excuse the giving of such a bond on appeal in her individual capacity. McWhorter v. Eriksen (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 624.

6. —— State board of health.—See Art. 4547.

7. Parties to bond—Obligees.—The bond must be payable to every party to the judgment whose interest is adverse to that of the appellant, although the judgment may not, in whole or in part, be in favor of such party. Young v. Russell, 60 T. 684; citing Greenwade v. Smith, 57 T. 195; Harvey v. Cummings, 62 T. 186.

Appeal bond, to confer jurisdiction over a party to the judgment below, must be made payable to such party, even though the judgment was not in favor of that party, provided the appellant's interest was adverse to such party's interest. Young v. Russell, 60 T. 684. See, in illustration, Wright v. Bank, 20 S. W. 879, 2 C. A. 97.

Bond may be executed to a partnership in their firm name. Sullivan v. McFarland, 1 App. C. C. § 1198.

Judgment for costs was rendered against plaintiff and his surety on cost bond in favor of one of two defendants. The defendant prosecuted error and gave bond payable to plaintiff, and not including in its obligees the surety in the cost bond against whom the judgment had been rendered. The case was dismissed on account of defective error bond. Ricker v. Collins, 81 T. 662, 17 S. W. 378.

Appeal bond must be payable to all parties in adverse interest to appellant, and if the action was dismissed as to some defendants, with judgment against others, those as to whom the cause was dismissed must be included as obligees. Terry v. Cutler (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 726.

Appeal bond by one of several defendants should be payable to plaintiff and the other defendants. Grant v. Collins, 23 S. W. 994, 5 C. A. 45.

An appeal bond was made payable to appellees, "or to their certain attorney, executors or administrators, or assigns." Held, the bond is not void. Brazoria County v. Grand Rapids School Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 900.

Where an appeal bond is not made payable to all the parties interested adversely to appellant, though the party omitted was his codefendant, the appeal is properly dismissed. Snow v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 866.

On appeal by one defendant, held, that bond must be made payable to both plaintiff and codefendant. Kosminsky v. Hamburger, 20 C. A. 291, 48 S. W. 1107.

An appeal bond payable to defendant, without naming him, is valid, though defendant was misnamed in the proceeding, he being in fact the person sued. Masterson v. Young (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 1109.

It is not necessary for plaintiff in error to make his bond payable to the sureties on his bond, when they do not join in the writ or appeal from the judgment against them below as his sureties on appeal from justice. Carter v. Forbes Lithograph Mfg. Co., 22 C. A. 373, 54 S. W. 926.

A bond on writ of error held defective, as not payable to the person in whose favor the judgment was rendered. Prusiecki v. Ramzinski (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 549.

Appeal bond from judgment on the merits need not be made payable to parties who were dismissed from the case. Atascosa County v. Alderman (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 846.

An appeal bond naming as obligee the "Grayson County National Bank," instead of the "Grayson County National Bank of Sherman," is good where the obligee is otherwise sufficiently identified. Wandelohr v. Rainey, 100 T. 471, 100 S. W. 1155; Same v. Grayson County Nat. Bank, Id.

An appeal bond executed on appeal from a judgment in a cross-action between defendants, which ran to only one of plaintiffs in the original suit, did not perfect the appeal as to such plaintiffs. Taylor v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1018.

An appellant could not have a judgment reversed as to a codefendant without making him a party to the appeal bond. Ripley v. Ocean, etc., Corp. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 974.

While, perhaps, one made a defendant both in his individual and representative capacities, and against whom judgment is rendered in both capacities, may not appeal in his individual capacity alone, yet his appeal, in form only in his individual capacity, will not be dismissed, his appeal bond being made payable to himself in his representative capacity, as well as to the other parties, so that he is before the court in both capacities. Pryor v. Krause (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 972.

Where the obligee in a bond given for writ of error was dead when the bond was executed, it was a nullity, and could confer no jurisdiction on the appellate court. Simmang v. Cheney (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1198.

8. —— Obligors.—A bond may be executed by a partnership in the firm name. Sullivan v. McFarland, 1 App. C. C. § 1198.

Principals on appeal bond, as to whom judgment is reversed, are not liable for amount of judgment against their coprincipals. Landa v. Moody (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 51.

An appeal bond executed by joint principals held binding as to the principal, who is a party to the action. Parshall v. Clark (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 437.

9. Sureties—Necessity and number.—There must be two sureties. Hooper v. Brinson, 10 T. 296; Jourdan v. Chandler, 37 T. 55. See Hollis v. Border, 10 T. 277.

10. —— Competency.—The sureties for costs against whom judgment is rendered in the trial court cannot be sureties on the appeal bond. Daniels v. Larendon, 49 T. 216. But the objection is waived by failure to move to dismiss. Saylor v. Marx, 56 T. 90. A clerk of the court cannot become surety. Jourdan v. Chandler, 37 T. 55.

A writ of error bond signed by two sureties, one of whom appears to be a firm, is insufficient. Buchard v. Cairns, 77 T. 365, 14 S. W. 388; Donnelly v. Elser, 69 T. 287, 6 S. W. 563.

Sureties on a claimants' bond are competent to become sureties for the same parties on an appeal bond. McClelland v. Barnard, 36 C. A. 3, 80 S. W. 841.

A bond on a writ of error, signed by plaintiff's attorney as surety, held not defective, notwithstanding district court rule 50 (20 S. W. xv). Prusiecki v. Ramzinski (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 549.

Sureties on a cost bond in a suit were not ineligible as sureties on their principal's appeal bond, though judgment had been rendered against them for costs. Taylor v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 411.

A surety on a bond for costs merely is not incompetent as a surety on an appeal bond since such surety does not become a party to the action. McCall Co. v. Segal (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 913.

That a surety on an appeal bond was also bound by a judgment against him as surety on a replevy bond executed in the same suit held not to disqualify him as surety on the appeal bond. Oliver v. Lone Star Cotton Jammers' & Longshoremen's Ass'n (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 508.

11. —— Liability.—When an appeal or writ of error is not prosecuted, an independent suit may be brought upon the bond. Michael v. Ball, 8 C. A. 406, 27 S. W. 948; citing Trent v. Rhomberg, 66 T. 249, 18 S. W. 510; Blair v. Sanborn, 82 T. 686, 18 S. W. 159; Cattle Co. v. Ansley, 24 S. W. 933, 6 C. A. 185.

Liabilities of sureties on an appeal bond, stated, their obligation being several. McFarlane v. Howell, 91 T. 218, 42 S. W. 853.

12. Amount of bond.—On appeal by an intervener in an action against a garnishee, the bond required is for double the costs. Williams v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 850.

The appeal bond must be in double the amount of estimated costs. A new bond can be filed in appellate court, upon permission granted by the court. Stubbs v. Landa Cotton Oil Co., 28 C. A. 56, 66 S. W. 214.

The writ of error bond must be in a sum at least double the probable amount of costs in court of civil appeals, supreme court and court below. Court of civil appeals can grant time in which to file new bond in place of defective bond. Prusiecki v. Ramzinski (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 549.

The clerk is required to fix the probable amount of the costs. This is the means by which the amount of the bond to be given is ascertained. When this is done the party appealing should not have his appeal defeated by a miscalculation of the clerk. Horstman v. Little, 98 T. 342, 83 S. W. 680.

13. Conditions of bond.—"Or" equivalent to "and" in the condition of the bond. Robinson v. Brinson, 20 T. 438; Mills v. Hackett, 1 App. C. C. § 846; Worley v. Hudson, 2 App. C. C. § 26.

A bond conditioned to perform the judgment, sentence or decree of the court is not, of itself, sufficient under this article. Reid v. Fernandez, 52 T. 379.

The obligation of an appeal bond is in the alternative, and the bond should properly read that plaintiff shall prosecute his appeal or writ of error, as the case may be, with effect, or shall pay all costs, etc. Blair v. Sanborn, 82 T. 686, 18 S. W. 159.

An appeal bond held conditioned to pay all costs below and on appeal. Giddings v. Fischer, 97 T. 184, 77 S. W. 209.

An appeal bond obligating appellants to pay costs in the trial court "or" court of civil appeals and supreme court held insufficient as a cost appeal bond. Deaton v. Feazle (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1167.

A bond following the statute and conditioned that appellants shall prosecute their appeal with effect "and" pay all costs, etc., requires the appeal to be prosecuted with effect "or" the costs to be paid, etc. American Surety Co. of New York v. Koen, 49 C. A. 98, 107 S. W. 938.

14. Sufficiency of bond—In general.—An appeal bond substantially in compliance with the statute is sufficient. Doss v. Griswold, 1 T. 99; Young v. Russell, 60 T. 684.

The defects in an appeal bond which will defeat the jurisdiction of the court, where there is no motion to dismiss filed within the time prescribed by rules 8 and 9, must be substantial and vital. Zapp v. Michaelis, 56 T. 395. See amended rules 8 and 9 for courts of civil appeals, 84 T. 698.

A bond on appeal held defective. Crouch v. Crouch (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 515.

An appeal bond held sufficient, in the absence of a showing that alterations on its face were made after its execution. Parshall v. Clark (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 437.

15. —— Recital of judgment or order.—The mere omission in the bond of a particular matter does not invalidate it, when the judgment is otherwise identified. Hodde v. Susan, 63 T. 307; Dutton v. Norton, 1 App. C. C. § 358; Mills v. Hackett, 1 App. C. C. § 846; Nelson v. Baird, 1 App. C. C. § 1236; Trial v. Lepori, 1 App. C. C. § 1273; Green v. Sass, 2 App. C. C. § 733.

An appeal bond should describe the judgment, which must by its recitals appear to be final (Owens v. Levy, 1 App. C. C. § 407), by giving the number of the case, the names of the parties, date of the judgment, the nature of the recovery, and the names of the parties in favor of and against whom rendered (In re Estate of O'Hara, 60 T. 179; Hollis v. Border, 10 T. 277; Smith v. Cheatham, 12 T. 37; Herndon v. Bremond, 17 T. 432; Horton v. Bodine, 19 T. 280; Jenkins v. McNeese, 34 T. 189; Howard v. Malsch, 52 T. 60; I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Smith County, 58 T. 74; Damron v. Tex. & St. L. R. R. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 383; Martin v. Hartwell, 1 App. C. C. § 491; Morris v. Edwards, 1 App. C. C. § 525; Munzerheimer v. Merrill, 1 App. C. C. § 578; Kerr v. Stone, 1 App. C. C. § 811).

The date of the judgment, the number of the case, the names of the parties and the amount of the judgment sufficiently identify the judgment. Morgan v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 171.

An appeal bond, describing the judgment by its number, date, and style of the cause and the court, held not insufficient by the recital that the judgment was rendered against two defendants, whereas in fact it was only rendered against one. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Fields (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 653.

An appeal bond describing the judgment by the number and style of the case, date of judgment, and the court in which it was rendered, held to sufficiently describe the judgment appealed from. Frerie v. Cloudt (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 890.

A bond on appeal held defective for failure to mention or describe the judgment. Wilkes v. W. O. Brown & Co. (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 844.

Where a petition and bond for a writ of error correctly gave the style and number of the case, the parties, and set out the judgment verbatim, a misstatement of the date as April 4th, instead of April 1, 1908, was not a material defect. Murphy v. Williams, 103 T. 155, 124 S. W. 900.

Where an appeal bond given by an intervening creditor in receivership proceedings on an appeal intended to be an appeal from an order dismissing intervener's petition during the proceedings, and from a final order of distribution, does not refer to the order dismissing the petition, there is no appeal from such order. First Nat. Bank v. J. I. Campbell Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 311.

16. —— Recital of sureties.—The failure to insert names of sureties in the body of the bond does not affect its validity. Cooke v. Crawford, 1 T. 9, 46 Am. Dec. 93; San Roman v. Watson, 54 T. 254; Shelton v. Wade, 4 T. 148, 51 Am. Dec. 722; Lindsay v. Price, 33 T. 280; Bridges v. Cundiff, 45 T. 437; McKellar v. Peck, 39 T. 381.

It was objected to an appeal bond that the names of the sureties did not appear in the body of the bond, and that it did not appear in the face of the bond that the persons who signed as sureties so intended to be bound. The name of the principal appeared in the face of the bond, and a blank was left for the names of the sureties who did sign it, from which it appears that all the persons who signed it, except the named principal, signed as sureties. This was sufficient. Baldridge v. Penland, 68 T. 441, 4 S. W. 565.

17. Execution of bond.—A bond signed by the appellants only is a nullity. Labadie v. Dean, 47 T. 90.

Bond may be signed by the sureties only. Horton v. McKeehan, 1 App. C. C. § 469; International & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Grant, 1 App. C. C. § 783; Pryor v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 39.

Bond may be executed by obligors by making their marks without any subscribing witness. Boehl v. Hecker, 1 App. C. C. § 761.

It is no ground of objection to the jurisdiction of the appellate court that the bond in error proceedings, where a county is plaintiff, is signed by counsel. Karnes County v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 656.

18. Scope and effect of bond.—When bond is given in behalf of one of two or more defendants, the judgment is superseded as to him only. Friberg v. Embree, 1 App. C. C. § 1095.

Scope of a bond given on appeal from an order overruling a motion to vacate the appointment of a receiver stated. American Surety Co. of New York v. Koen, 49 C. A. 98, 107 S. W. 938.

19. Approval of bond.—When a bond is copied in the transcript with the proper file-mark, its approval will be presumed; otherwise, if there is neither filing nor approval. McLane v. Russell, 29 T. 127; Bridges v. Cundiff, 45 T. 437.

The bare approval of an appeal bond by the clerk of the trial court is not sufficient evidence of the solvency of the sureties. Evans v. Ashburn (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 998.

A judge of the district court has no power to question an appeal bond approved by the clerk, or entertain a motion to expunge the clerk's approval therefrom. Hill v. Halliburton, 32 C. A. 21, 73 S. W. 21.

A paper filed and purporting to be an appeal bond, before the approval of an appeal bond by the clerk and the fixing of the probable amount of costs by him, held not recognizable as a bond. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 519.

Approval of a bond on appeal or writ of error may be shown otherwise than by a written indorsement thereon. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 620.

20. —— Time for approval.—See, also, Art. 2084.

Since citations in error may not be properly issued until plaintiff in error has filed a satisfactory bond, where a bond was dated and filed before citations were issued by a deputy clerk, who failed to indorse his approval on the bond, it would be presumed, in the absence of any showing to the contrary, that the deputy clerk accepted the bond as sufficient, and such presumption would not be overcome by the clerk's affidavit that he himself did not approve the bond until after the time allowed for perfecting the writ. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 620.

21. Time of filing—Appeal bond.—See Art. 2084 and notes.

22. —— Error bond.—See Art. 2089 and notes.

23. Affidavit in lieu of bond.—See Art. 2098 and notes.

24. Amendment of bond.—See Arts. 1609, 2104.

25. Waiver of defects.—See, also, notes under Art. 1609.

The objection that the sureties on an appeal bond were incompetent because they were sureties for costs in the trial court and judgment was rendered against them is waived by failure to move to dismiss. Saylor v. Marx, 56 T. 90.

Errors in matter of description are not jurisdictional, and are waived if not objected to in proper time. Zapp v. Michaelis, 56 T. 395.

An objection to sufficiency of bond held waived. Howth v. Shumard (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1079.

An objection in the supreme court, to the sufficiency of an appeal bond on appeal to the court of civil appeals, held made too late. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State (Sup.) 106 S. W. 326.

That the petition and bond given for a writ of error from the district court to the court of civil appeals misdescribed the judgment by giving its date as April 4th, instead of April 1, 1908, was a mere irregularity which was waived by failure to move to dismiss the writ in the court of civil appeals. Murphy v. Williams, 103 T. 155, 124 S. W. 900.

An objection to an appeal bond for certain reasons held waived by appellee's failure to file his motion to dismiss the appeal for such reasons within the time prescribed by court of civil appeals rule 8 (67 S. W. xiv). Oliver v. Lone Star Cotton Jammers' & Longshoremen's Ass'n (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 508.

Failure of an appeal bond to be in double the amount of probable costs held not a jurisdictional defect, so that a motion to dismiss on that ground, under civil appeals rule 9 (142 S. W. xi), must be made within the time prescribed by court of civil appeals rules as amended by supreme court in 1902, rule 8 (142 S. W. xi), to prevent a waiver of the objection. Booker v. Coulter (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 219.

26. Supersedeas bond as appeal bond.—See, also, Art. 2101.

A bond designated as a supersedeas bond, but insufficient as such, if sufficient as a cost bond, will support the jurisdiction of the court. Zapp v. Michaelis, 56 T. 395.

A bond purporting to be a supersedeas appeal bond cannot be held valid as an appeal cost bond by the court of civil appeals; the court having no power to reform the instrument. Dillard v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 682.

27. Dismissal for failure to give proper bond.—Case dismissed on account of defective error bond. Ricker v. Collins, 81 T. 662, 17 S. W. 378.

An appeal will not be dismissed for insufficiency of the bond, where the judgment is sufficiently identified and the amount is sufficient. Harris v. Higden (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 412.

An appeal is properly dismissed when the bond is not made payable to all the parties adversely interested. Snow v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 866; Keel & Son v. Gribble-Carter Grain Co., 134 S. W. 801.

Appeal dismissed, because bond filed was not in double the amount of the probable costs. Black v. Claiborne, 32 C. A. 581, 75 S. W. 40.

When on motion for rehearing in supreme court it is made to appear that plaintiff in error in attempting to appeal from the judgment of the district court to the court of civil appeals gave no appeal bond, the judgments of the courts of civil appeals and supreme court will be set aside and the appeal dismissed. Logan v. Gay, 99 T. 603, 90 S. W. 861, 92 S. W. 255.

A writ of error held subject to dismissal, because the bond was not payable to all defendants. Harlin v. First State Bank & Trust Co. of Snyder (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 844.

28. —— Reinstatement of appeal.—Appeal dismissed for failure to make a defendant below a party to the appeal bond, reinstated. Finley v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 41.

Art. 2098. [1401] [1401] Appeal, etc., by party unable to give cost bond.—Where the appellant or plaintiff in error is unable to pay the costs of appeal, or give security therefor, he shall nevertheless be entitled to prosecute his appeal; but, in order to do so, he shall be required to make strict proof of his inability to pay the costs, or any part thereof. Such proof shall be made before the county judge of the county where such party resides, or before the court trying the case, and shall consist of the affidavit of said party, stating his inability to pay the costs; which affidavit may be contested by any officer of the court or party to the suit, whereupon it shall be the duty of the court trying the case, if in session, or the county judge of the county in which the suit is pending, to hear evidence and to determine the right of the party, under this article, to his appeal. [Act May 3, 1871, p. 74, sec. 1. Acts of 1879, ch. 81, p. 90. P. D. 6180.]

See Young v. Pearman (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 360; Allen v. Kitchen, 156 S. W. 331; Hart v. Wilson, Id. 520.

Does not apply to nonresident.—This article has no application to a transient person who is a nonresident of the county in which the action is tried. Fletcher v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 622.

Proof before county judge or court in session.—As to mode of proceeding where affidavit is made in a county other than that in which suit is pending, see Wooldridge v. Roller, 52 T. 447; Hearn v. Prendergast, 61 T. 627; Kirk v. Ivey, 2 App. C. C. § 38.

The proof must be made before the court if it is in session; that is, the affidavit must be presented to the judge on the bench while holding session. An affidavit made before the clerk and filed in his office is not proof before the court. Graves v. Horn, 89 T. 77, 33 S. W. 322.

An affidavit made before the district clerk in vacation is insufficient. Roberts v. Houston City St. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 66.

The affidavit cannot be made before the county judge of any county other than that of the affiant's residence; while the statute does not require the affidavit to show the county of affiant's residence, yet the fact must be made to appear in some legal way that it was made before the county judge of affiant's residence. Claiborne v. Railroad Co., 21 C. A. 648, 53 S. W. 837, 57 S. W. 336.

The affidavit of an appellant will be received to show this. Id.

An appeal without an appeal bond will not be dismissed because the proof of the appellant's inability to give such bond was taken before the trial judge at a term subsequent to that in which the judgment was rendered. Ostrom v. Arnold, 24 C. A. 192, 58 S. W. 630.

Affidavit filed in lieu of cost bond held made before court trying the case. Harwell v. Southern Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 888.

The filing of an affidavit of inability to give security for costs in the district court, and the judge's certificate that proof was made by such filing "within the term," sufficiently shows that proof on which certificate was issued was made while the court was in session. Emerson v. M., K. & T. Ry. Co., 37 C. A. 110, 82 S. W. 1060.

Where proof of inability to give security for costs is by affidavit, the affidavit itself and the evidence that it was made in open court are all that is required, if there be no contest. When the affidavit is made before some one not authorized to determine the facts, it must be presented to the court for further action. It can be made to appear that the affidavit was made in an open court by the paper itself or by a separate order. The appellate court can consider affidavits showing facts affecting its jurisdiction. Smith v. Buffalo Oil Co., 99 T. 77, 87 S. W. 660.

An affidavit in lieu of appeal bond, in case tried in district court, made before county judge who is attorney for the party, is not legal. Kalklosh v. Bunting, 40 C. A. 233, 88 S. W. 390.

The proof required under this article must be made before the county judge of the county where the party resides or before the court trying the case, and shall consist of the affidavit of the party stating his inability to pay the costs. Upon a contest filed the court shall hear evidence and determine the right of the party to his appeal. Wood v. St. L. S. W. Ry. Co., 43 C. A. 590, 97 S. W. 324.

It must affirmatively appear that the proof was made before the judge while the court is in session, when made before the judge trying the case to give appellate court jurisdiction. Sanders v. Benson, 51 C. A. 590, 114 S. W. 436.

An affidavit in lieu of an appeal bond made before an officer authorized to take the affidavit held sufficient if approved by the county judge. Green v. Hewett, 54 C. A. 534, 118 S. W. 170.

The statute authorizing an affidavit in lieu of an appeal bond to be made before the county judge of the county where appellant resides does not comprehend county judges of other states. Id.

The proof by appellant, attempting to appeal under this article must be made either before the county judge of the county where appellant resides or before the court trying the case, and an affidavit subscribed and sworn to before a notary public is insufficient to confer jurisdiction on the appellate court. Spell v. Wm. Cameron & Co., 56 C. A. 547, 121 S. W. 515.

An affidavit of inability to pay or give security for costs made before a notary, unaccompanied by a certificate of the county judge, or of the trial judge, showing that proof had been made before him, is insufficient under this article. Bargna v. Bargna (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1143; Smith v. Queen City Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1145.

Under this article the making of the affidavit before the clerk and filing it with him is not sufficient to give the appellate court jurisdiction. Washington v. Haverty Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 832.

Where an appeal is taken under this article, the record must show that the proof was made before the judge who tried the case while holding a session of the court, and that an affidavit showing that it was made before the county judge who tried the case was insufficient. Fletcher v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 622.

Under this article and the act creating a court in a county, to be called the county court of the county for civil causes, and conferring on such court jurisdiction in civil matters, and providing that the county judge of the county shall retain general jurisdiction of a probate court, etc., one appealing from a judgment of the district court of the county, who makes affidavit of inability to pay the costs on appeal, or give security therefor, before the judge of the county court of the county for civil cases, instead of the county judge, does not comply with the statute; and the court, on appeal, acquires no jurisdiction, and the appeal must be dismissed. Wilder v. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 492.

Under this article a judge of the district court had no power to swear an appellant to an affidavit in forma pauperis and place his jurat thereon after he had adjourned the term, on the same day, though the county judge, being counsel for appellant, was disqualified and appellant had no notice that the court was going to adjourn. Dixon v. Lynn (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 656.

Requisites and sufficiency of affidavit.—That affiant is unable to pay the costs, etc., without adding "or any part thereof," is sufficient. Stewart v. Heidenheimer, 55 T. 644, overruling Wooldridge v. Roller, 52 T. 447. See Williams v. Moody, 1 App. C. C. § 805; Sharp v. Arlige, 1 App. C. C. § 632; Kirk v. Ivey, 2 App. C. C. § 39.

An affidavit not in conformity with the statute will not perfect the appeal. Golightly v. Irvine, 4 App. C. C. § 181, 15 S. W. 48.

An affidavit of poverty, made for the purpose of appealing from a judgment of court, must identify the judgment appealed from with the same certainty required in an appeal bond. Perry v. Scott, 68 T. 208, 7 S. W. 384; Holmes v. McIntyre, 61 T. 9.

An affidavit that the appellant or plaintiff in error is unable to give the bond for the costs of the appeal, or any part thereof, is insufficient. Simon v. Blanchett (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 346.

In the absence of a contest, affidavit held sufficient. Thompson v. Hawkins (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 236.

Affidavit of poverty in lieu of appeal bond held insufficient for failing to describe the judgment below. McShirley v. Hoard (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 373.

Affidavit of inability to give bond in lieu of appeal bond held not sufficient. Wesley v. Kuteman, 26 C. A. 365, 62 S. W. 1074.

When a party can pay the costs or a part thereof, he must do so. An affidavit which states the inability of the party to pay the costs without the addition of the words "or any part thereof" is sufficient to perfect the appeal where there is no contest, but upon contest the party must show total inability to pay. Pendley v. Berry, 95 T. 72, 65 S. W. 33.

In a suit by next friend of a minor an affidavit that he is unable to secure or pay costs of appeal, is sufficient without also stating that the minor himself is unable to pay or give security for the costs. In such a suit the terms "appellant" and "plaintiff in error" do not include the minor, but only the next friend who brings the suit. Biggins v. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 562.

Effect of defects in an affidavit in lieu of an appeal bond stated. Green v. Hewett, 54 C. A. 534, 118 S. W. 170.

An affidavit for an appeal in forma pauperis held insufficient to confer jurisdiction on appeal. Wilkins v. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas, 56 C. A. 587, 120 S. W. 1104.

Under the statute allowing appeal on pauper affidavit, an affidavit not identifying the judgment appealed from held insufficient to confer jurisdiction on the appellate court. Bush v. Atwood (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 924.

Affidavit in forma pauperis held to identify the judgment appealed from. Walker v. Walker's Estate (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1145.

Proof of inability.—In order to entitle a party to appeal on a affidavit and nothing more, he must show that he can neither give bond nor pay any part of the costs and since the bond is intended only as security for the costs, if he cannot give such bond but can pay the costs or a part thereof he may by his affidavit show the extent of his inability and pay as much as he can. Pendley v. Berry, 95 T. 72, 65 S. W. 33.

It is proper to dismiss an appeal, where the pauper's oath filed in lieu of the statutory bond is shown to be untrue, and appellant is shown to be amply able to give the bond. Cook v. Burson & Gaines, 35 C. A. 595, 80 S. W. 871.

When an appeal has been taken on an affidavit of inability to pay costs or give security therefor, unless an order of court has been entered in the minutes of the court adjudging that sufficient proof has been made of such inability, the appeal will be dismissed. Smith v. Buffalo Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 482.

All that a party has to do under this article to entitle him to an appeal is to adduce strict proof that he is unable to pay the costs or any part thereof. He does not have to show that he cannot give security therefor. When he has made strict proof on a contest the county judge cannot deny his right to appeal. Murray v. Robuck (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 782.

Poverty affidavit in lieu of appeal bond, while uncontested, held sufficient proof of inability to pay or secure costs of appeal. Currie v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas, 101 T. 478, 108 S. W. 1167.

Under a statute authorizing a poverty affidavit in lieu of an appeal bond, a mere unverified general traverse of appellant's poverty held insufficient to require proof in addition to the affidavit. Id.

Under Stenographers Act (Gen. Laws 1909, p. 378) § 14, which provides that nothing in the act should be construed to prevent parties from preparing statements of fact on appeal independent of the transcript of the notes of the official shorthand reporter, where on mandamus to review an adverse order in a contest of the right to appeal without security, under this article, relator in no way undertook to account for his failure to immediately make up a statement of fact for approval by the county judge, an order to compel the stenographer to prepare a record for appeal would not be granted. Young v. Pearman (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 360.

That a litigant has a homestead and other property exempt by law from forced sale does not deprive him of his right to appeal without payment of costs or giving a bond therefor, if he has no money and can obtain none, and can get no one to go his security therefor. Black v. Snedecor (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 570.

Contest.—Where there is no contest, the affidavit if in the terms of the statute, is sufficient to authorize an appeal; but when a contest is filed the court should hear it and make an order either allowing or not allowing the appeal. Majors v. Goodrich (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 291.

In case of a contest either the trial court, if in session, or the county judge can hear the same and determine the right of appeal. If the trial court is not in session, the county judge alone can try the contest. In the absence of a contest the affidavit is sufficient to entitle the party to an appeal or writ of error without bond. Acconsi v. Stowers Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 861, 862.

Clerks have a legal right to contest an affidavit of inability to give a writ of error bond, and the contest being sustained, they are not liable for refusal to issue process. Kruegel v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 343.

Amendment of affidavit.—The appellate court cannot allow amendment of a pauper affidavit on which appeal is attempted, but which is insufficient because not identifying the judgment appealed from. Bush v. Atwood (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 924.

The statute allowing new appeal bonds to be filed is not applicable to affidavits in lieu of bond. Washington v. Haverty Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 832.

Notice of filing unnecessary.—This article does not require notice of the filing of an affidavit made in lieu of an appeal or writ of error bond. Proctor v. S. A. St. Ry. Co., 26 C. A. 148, 62 S. W. 938, 939.

Time of filing affidavit.—See, also, Art. 2084.

It is as essential that an affidavit in lieu of an appeal bond should be filed in time as it is that an appeal bond should be filed in time. Dixon v. Southern Bldg. & L. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 58.

The affidavit must be filed with the clerk during the term and called to the attention of the court. In the absence of contest the affidavit of the party is sufficient. Graves v. Horn (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 303.

Review by court of civil appeals.—Under this article the court of civil appeals may review on mandamus the action of the county judge in determining a contest over the right to appeal without security. Young v. Pearman (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 360.

Where on mandamus to review an adverse order in a contest under this article, the litigant should plainly show by the evidence submitted to the court trying the issue that its judicial discretion was abused, hence, where relator's reply stated that on the trial before the county judge he was the only witness, and detailed his testimony, but the statement was not supported by affidavit, agreement of parties, or otherwise, the court of civil appeals could not accept as established the recitations in the reply. Id.

Under this article an order of the trial court permitting the appeal is conclusive only as to the facts found by the judge, and the judgment as to whether such facts entitle the applicant to appeal without bond or payment of costs is not binding on the appellate court, which has jurisdiction to determine the correctness of such legal conclusion. Black v. Snedecor (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 570.

Art. 2099. [1402] [1402] Appeal or writ of error, perfected, when.—When the bond, or affidavit in lieu thereof, provided for in the two preceding articles, has been filed and the previous requirements of this chapter have been complied with, the appeal or writ of error, as the case may be, shall be held to be perfected.

See Allen v. Kitchen (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 331.

Appeal perfected when.—The jurisdiction of the appellate court does not attach where the appeal is not perfected within the time prescribed by law. Holt v. Riddle, 1 App. C. C. § 340.

The appellate court does not acquire jurisdiction until all of the defendants have been served. Crunk v. Crunk, 23 T. 605; Pierce v. Cross, 36 T. 187; Wampler v. Walker, 28 T. 598; Thompson v. Pine, 55 T. 427; Barnard v. Tarlton, 57 T. 402; Young v. Russell, 60 T. 684.

An appeal is not perfected in any case, so as to divest the jurisdiction of the trial court, until the close of the term at which the judgment was rendered. Blum v. Wettermark, 58 T. 125.

A writ of error is "sued out" when the petition and bond or affidavit in lieu of bond are filed, and if this is within one year it is sufficient, though service is not obtained until after one year has expired. Leavitt v. Brazelton, 28 C. A. 3, 66 S. W. 466.

Appeal in error is perfected when plaintiff in error files petition and error bond. Binyon v. Smith, 50 C. A. 398, 112 S. W. 139.

Notice of appeal held not to suspend the jurisdiction of the trial court so as to prevent a judgment by default. Santa Fé, L., E. & P. Land & Trust Co. v. Cumley (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 889.

An appeal is perfected when the appeal bond is filed. Hamill v. Samuels, 104 T. 46, 133 S. W. 419.

Under this article, and Art. 2108, the court on appeal acquires jurisdiction on the filing and approval of the appeal bond which may not be defeated by proving an agreement with appellant to obtain an additional surety on the appeal bond, which he failed to perform. Dillard v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 152.

Since, under this article, appeals generally are perfected when the bond is filed, the court of civil appeals for the seventh district, creation of which became operative June 9, 1911, under Act April 3, 1911 (Acts 32d Leg. c. 120), has no jurisdiction of an appeal, where the bond was filed May 25, 1911, and no order of the supreme court transferring the cause to the new court is shown. Keator v. Whittaker (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 120.

Where the appeal bond was not filed within the time prescribed by law, the court on appeal acquired no jurisdiction. American Warehouse Co. v. Hamblen (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1006.

Where one of the appellees was never served with citation on appeal, but a motion of another appellee to affirm on certificate, or, in the alternative, to dismiss the appeal, was filed before he entered his appearance by waiver of citation filed in the cause, the appeal was not perfected until the filing of such waiver; and hence the court of civil appeals had no jurisdiction to affirm on certificate. Morris v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 367.

Effect of transfer to appellate court—In general.—When an appeal from the county court has been perfected, it is not defeated by a subsequent act of the legislature transferring jurisdiction to the district court. Pfeuffer v. Wilderman, 1 App. C. C. § 188.

When an appeal from a judgment of the district court is perfected during the term at which the judgment is entered, the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals attaches on the adjournment of the term; if, at the time of the appeal, an injunction in the case exists on perfecting the appeal and the attaching of jurisdiction in the court of civil appeals, the injunction follows the jurisdiction and becomes the injunction of the court of civil appeals. A judgment is final which disposes of all matters in controversy as to all the parties to a suit; hence, a judgment dissolving an injunction which was once issued to restrain a railway company from constructing and operating its road, when to secure such restraint was the object of the suit, is a final judgment. From such a judgment an appeal may be taken, which will give jurisdiction to the court of civil appeals over the case; and this though the case may have been dismissed by the court below on the plaintiff's request, after the entry of the order dissolving the injunction. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. F. W. & N. O. Ry. Co., 68 T. 98, 2 S. W. 199, 3 S. W. 564.

—— Powers and proceedings of lower court.—See, also, Arts. 2100 to 2103.

A trial court held to have power to correct a judgment prior to action thereon by the appellate court. Blain v. Park Bank & Trust Co., 43 C. A. 359, 94 S. W. 1091.

After the appeal is perfected the trial court loses its power in respect to those things which might trench in the appellate functions and the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals attaches. Gordon v. Rhodes & Daniels (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 787. See Art. 2097.

Statement as to striking out of statement of facts by lower court after perfecting of appeal. Stark v. Harris (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 887.

Upon the filing of a writ of error bond the county court at law lost jurisdiction of the cause and could not thereafter make a nunc pro tunc order requiring a statement of the evidence to be filed as a part of the record, as required by Art. 1941. McLane v. Kirby & Smith, 54 C. A. 113, 116 S. W. 118.

The trial court decreeing a conveyance of land may in vacation, even after the perfecting of an appeal, correct the description in the decree so as to identify the land. King v. Murray (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 255.

Trial court held to have jurisdiction, pending an appeal from an ex parte order appointing a receiver, to reappoint the same receiver after proper notice. Butts v. Davis (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 741.

—— Jurisdiction acquired by appellate court.—An appeal cannot confer upon the appellate court a jurisdiction which the court a quo did not possess. Baker v. Chisholm, 3 T. 157; Davis v. Stewart, 4 T. 223; Able v. Bloomfield, 6 T. 263; Horan v. Wahrenberger, 9 T. 313, 58 Am. Dec. 145; Wadsworth v. Chick, 55 T. 241; Wise v. O'Malley, 60 T. 588; Marx v. Carlisle, 1 App. C. C. § 92; Griffin v. Brown, 1 App. C. C. § 1099.

On appeal from an interlocutory order appointing a receiver there is no jurisdiction to review an interlocutory order refusing to dissolve an injunction granted when the receiver was appointed. Webb v. Allen, 15 C. A. 605, 40 S. W. 342.

Where two of several defendants in a suit to try title to land appeal, held, that the whole case was carried up, and all the parties brought before the court for any judgment to which the appellants or defendants not appealing might be entitled. Thompson v. Kelley, 100 T. 536, 101 S. W. 1074.

Where an appeal was properly taken from a judgment of the county court which adjourned without modifying it the jurisdiction of the whole matter vested in the court of civil appeals. Houston, B. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hornberger (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 311, affirmed in (Sup.) 157 S. W. 744.

Where an appeal is taken from a nonfinal judgment, the appellate court's jurisdiction extends only to the entry of an order of dismissal. Bowen v. Grayum (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 472.

Abandonment of appeal.—See, also, notes under Arts. 1610, 2078, § 4.

An appeal which has been perfected cannot be abandoned so as to cause unreasonable delay in the enforcement of the judgment. Perez v. Garza, 52 T. 571. But where the writ of error is prosecuted to the same term, quære. Thomas v. Thomas, 57 T. 516.

An abandonment of an appeal with the consent of the appellee without the knowledge of the sureties on the appeal bond will discharge them. Michael v. Ball (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 238.

Art. 2100. [1403] [1403] Appeal, etc., on cost bond or affidavit does not suspend execution.—The bond, or affidavit in lieu thereof, provided in the three preceding articles, shall not have the effect to suspend the judgment, but execution shall issue thereon as if no such appeal or writ of error had been taken.

Execution not suspended.—Refusal of a motion to require a successful party to give bond before taking the fund in controversy pending appeal held proper. Polk v. King, 19 C. A. 666, 48 S. W. 601.

A judgment on appeal without supersedeas, reversing the judgment below unless a certain amount is remitted, but affirming the balance of the judgment after such remittitur, held not to invalidate an execution sale made pending the appeal. Wade v. Flanary (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 506.

Under the general rule of law, as well as the direct provisions of this article, a writ of error, prosecuted only on a bond for costs, did not suspend the judgment pending appeal. Jameson v. O'Neall (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 680.

Execution may be issued upon a judgment, where no supersedeas bond is given, notwithstanding the perfecting of an appeal by the filing of an appeal bond or affidavit in lieu thereof, in accordance with Arts. 2084, 2097, 2098, 2099, and 2100, providing for the perfection of appeals. Allen v. Kitchen (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 331.

Art. 2101. [1404] [1404] Supersedeas bond.—Should the appellant or plaintiff in error, as the case may be, desire to suspend the execution of the judgment, he may do so by giving, instead of the bond or affidavit in lieu thereof mentioned in the four preceding articles, or in addition to such bond, a bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the clerk, payable to appellee or defendant in error, in a sum at least double the amount of the judgment, interest and costs, conditioned that such appellant or plaintiff in error shall prosecute his appeal or writ of error with effect; and in case the judgment of the supreme court or the court of civil appeals shall be against him, he shall perform its judgment, sentence or decree, and pay all such damages as said court may award against him.

Right to supersedeas.—This article is not applicable to an appeal prosecuted from the judgment of a justice's court, such appeal being governed by Art. 2393. Batsel v. Blaine, 4 App. C. C. § 195, 15 S. W. 283.

That a corporation delivered its property to a receiver appointed, on demand for it, held not to affect the corporation's right to have the property returned on giving a supersedeas bond on appeal. People's Cemetery Ass'n v. Oakland Cemetery Co., 24 C. A. 668, 60 S. W. 679.

Where a receiver was appointed for a corporation, on appeal from the order, a contention by respondent that the corporation might waste the property, if returned to it by receiver, held without merit. Id.

Where a receiver was appointed for a corporation, and its property delivered to him, that an injunction restraining the corporation from using its property was in force held no ground for denying the corporation's right, pending an appeal, to have the property redelivered. Id.

Sureties on bond. Sureties on an appeal bond from a justice to the county court may become sureties for the same party on a supersedeas bond for writ of error to the court of appeals. Carter v. Forbes Lithograph Mfg. Co., 22 C. A. 373, 54 S. W. 926.

Amount of bond.—A supersedeas bond in condemnation proceedings is sufficient if for double the amount of probable costs as fixed by the clerk. The statute does not require such bond to be for an amount double the value of right of way. Crary v. Port Arthur Channel & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 842.

Supersedeas bonds held not defective because insufficient in amount. International & G. N. R. Co. v. McGehee (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 804.

Conditions of bond.—A bond under this article need not contain the stipulation in regard to payment of costs required in Art. 2097. Zapp v. Michaelis, 56 T. 395.

The bond must be conditioned as required by law. White v. Harris, 85 T. 42, 19 S. W. 1077.

A supersedeas bond should be conditioned that plaintiff in error shall perform, not only the judgment of the court of civil appeals, but also that of the supreme court. Qualls v. Sayles, 18 C. A. 400, 45 S. W. 839.

A writ of error bond must contain the condition that the plaintiff in error "will pay all such damages as the court may award against him." Carter v. Forbes Lithograph Mfg. Co., 22 C. A. 373, 54 S. W. 926.

Form and contents of bond.—The appeal bond, on appeal to the supreme court, must be sufficient to support an action by the appellee; it must identify the judgment, be sufficient in amount and conditioned as required by law. Unless such bond is filed an appeal does not operate as a supersedeas. See misdescription in date of judgment, and in amount such as to render it void. White v. Harris, 85 T. 42, 19 S. W. 1077.

The use of the term "appellate court" instead of "supreme court" or "court of civil appeals" does not vitiate the bond. Prewitt v. Day, 23 S. W. 982, 86 T. 166.

Supersedeas bonds executed by several railway companies in actions against them held not defective, because not properly describing the judgment, and because they were insufficient in amount. International & G. N. R. Co. v. McGehee (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 804.

Time of giving bond.—When an appeal bond is filed within time, a supersedeas bond in lieu thereof may be filed before the execution has been issued and before the transcript has been delivered. Patrick v. Laprelle (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 872.

Where a supersedeas bond was filed after the time during which it was required to be filed, and the record fails to show any order of court authorizing it to be filed and considered as an appeal bond, the bond is invalid as an appeal or supersedeas appeal bond. Dillard v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 682.

Where an appeal has been perfected by the giving of an appeal bond or the making of a proper affidavit in lieu thereof, the supersedeas bond may be given at any time thereafter pending the appeal; but if no bond, other than the supersedeas bond, be given, it must be filed within the time fixed for perfecting appeals. Allen v. Kitchen (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 331.

Execution of bond.—A supersedeas bond must be executed in substantial compliance with the statute. Reid v. Fernandez, 52 T. 379.

An appeal bond executed by a married woman as surety is void. Cruger v. McCracken, 30 S. W. 537, 87 T. 584.

Approval of bond.—A bond filed as such cannot serve as a supersedeas bond, where it was not approved by the clerk of the trial court as a bond in the case. Dillard v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 682.

Amendment of bond.—See Arts. 1609, 2104.

Quashing supersedeas bond.—Where appellee joined in a motion by sureties to quash a supersedeas bond, which was granted, a rehearing of the motion will not be granted on appellee's application. Dillard v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 682.

Scope and effect as stay.—See Art. 2103 and notes.

Stay in injunction suits.—See notes under Art. 2103. See, also, Art. 4644.

Stay on appeal from appointment of receiver or trustee.—See notes under Art. 2103. See, also, Art. 2080.

Violation of supersedeas.—See note under Art. 2103.

Accrual of liability on bond.—A supersedeas becomes inoperative if the transcript is not filed in the appellate court within the time prescribed by law. Roberts v. Landrum, 3 T. 16; Weathered v. Lee, 3 T. 189; Walea v. McLean, 14 T. 18; Cunningham v. Perkins, 28 T. 488.

If an appeal is dismissed in the appellate court for want of prosecution, the obligees in the bond may by suit thereon recover of the sureties the amount of the judgment appealed from, with interest and costs of the suit, on the bond. Trent v. Rhomberg, 66 T. 249, 18 S. W. 510.

A supersedeas bond will support an action as against the obligors in case of breach of its conditions. Trent v. Rhomberg, 66 T. 249, 18 S. W. 510; Railway Co. v. Lacy, 35 S. W. 505, 13 C. A. 391.

Defendant in error held entitled to pursue any remedy he may have on supersedeas bond after dismissal of proceeding in error involving judgment affirmed on appeal. Scheffel v. Scheffel, 38 C. A. 76, 84 S. W. 862.

Where a valid supersedeas bond has been given and filed within the time required by law, and the appeal has not been prosecuted to effect, the appellee may sue on such bond as a common-law obligation, but if the supersedeas bond did not also amount to an appeal bond, so as to perfect the appeal, it is without consideration, and will not support an action; for, unless the appeal is duly perfected and a valid supersedeas bond is given, execution may issue, notwithstanding an attempted appeal. Allen v. Kitchen (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 331.

Extent of liability.—Where plaintiff sues for a debt and to foreclose a mortgage, and makes a third person (who is not liable for the debt) a party to the foreclosure suit and recovers judgment for the debt and for foreclosure, and the third person gives the supersedeas bond required by this article, he is not liable on such bond for the whole judgment (the amount of the debt), but only for value of mortgaged property or whatever damages have been caused by the appeal. Adoue v. Wettermark, 68 S. W. 555, 28 C. A. 593.

Supersedeas bond as appeal bond.—See notes under Art. 2097.

Art. 2102. [1405] [1405] Supersedeas bond, where judgment is for land or other property.—Where the judgment is for the recovery of land or other property, the bond shall be further conditioned that the appellant or plaintiff in error shall, in case the judgment is affirmed, pay to the appellee or defendant in error the value of the rent or hire of such property in any suit which may be brought therefor. [Id. sec. 137. P. D. 1492.]

Amount of bond.—A supersedeas bond in condemnation proceedings need not be for double the value of the right of way sought to be condemned. Crary v. Port Arthur Channel & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 842.

Condition of bond.—When the judgment is for damages as well as for land, a bond must be given conditioned as required in Art. 2101 as well as in this article, in order to suspend the entire judgment. P. D. 1491, 1492; Britt v. Lowry, 50 T. 75; Franklin v. Tiernan, 56 T. 618.

The law does not require the supersedeas bond in condemnation proceedings to be conditioned to pay the rental value of the land. Crary v. Port Arthur Channel and Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 842.

Revival of judgment of lower court.—The 90 days' time in which a party is allowed to pay money as a condition to the recovery of land does not begin to elapse until the supreme court has refused a writ of error to the court of civil appeals. Then the judgment of the district court begins to have effect. It was suspended until then by appeal upon supersedeas bond. Fenton v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 27 C. A. 231, 65 S. W. 201.

Liability on bond.—In an action to recover rents under an appeal bond, the sureties are liable therefor from the date of the bond. Killfoil v. Moore (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 1024.

The liability of sureties on supersedeas bond, in an action of trespass to try title, not having been enforced in the original suit, an independent suit may be maintained on the bond. Wilson v. Dickey (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 437.

No action can be maintained upon a supersedeas bond, where the appeal was not perfected; for, unless duly perfected, execution may be issued, and the bond is consequently without consideration. Allen v. Kitchen (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 331.

Art. 2103. [1406] [1406] Judgment stayed and execution superseded.—Upon the filing of the bonds mentioned in the two preceding articles, the appeal or writ of error shall be held to be perfected, and the execution of the judgment shall be stayed, and should execution have been issued thereon, the clerk shall forthwith issue a supersedeas. [Id. sec. 140. P. D. 1495.]

See Ft. Worth Driving Club v. Ft. Worth Fair Ass'n, 56 C. A. 162, 121 S. W. 213.

Scope and effect as stay.—An appeal from an order appointing a receiver, under a supersedeas bond in a sum fixed by order of the court, suspends the order pending the appeal. Carter v. Carter (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1030.

An appeal by a corporation from an interlocutory order appointing a receiver supersedes the appointment, and the corporation is entitled to restoration of property delivered to the receiver. People's Cemetery Ass'n v. Oakland Cemetery Co., 24 C. A. 668, 60 S. W. 679.

Where a judgment awards the lands in controversy to plaintiff, provided he pay a specified sum within 90 days after judgment, otherwise to defendant free of all claim of plaintiff thereto, payment into court made within 90 days after final determination by the Supreme Court of appellant's application for writ of error is within time. Fenton v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 27 C. A. 231, 65 S. W. 199.

Where defendants appeal within 20 days executing a supersedeas bond, plaintiffs need not pay into court the purchase money within the 20 days provided by the judgment for specific performance. Southern Oil Co. v. Scales (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1033.

Stay in injunction suits.—See, also, Art. 4644.

Where an injunction has been granted and dissolved in the absence of a supersedeas bond, the injunction is not kept alive. Griffin v. State (Cr. App.) 87 S. W. 156.

The language is so plain that it cannot be construed, because it is as definite as can be expressed to the effect that during the pendency of the appeal the judgment cannot be enforced. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State (Sup.) 106 S. W. 330.

An injunction in full force when a judgment dissolving it is entered remains in force while the judgment is suspended by an appeal under a supersedeas bond, but not pending an appeal under a cost bond. Lee v. Broocks, 51 C. A. 344, 111 S. W. 778.

A temporary injunction restraining a defendant from selling intoxicating liquors on premises is not suspended by appeal under Gen. Laws 1907 p. 206, c. 107, with supersedeas bond required by this article. Ft. Worth Driving Club v. Ft. Worth Fair Ass'n, 56 C. A. 162, 121 S. W. 213.

A perpetual injunction, granted on final hearing of the merits, which was in part mandatory and in part prohibitive, was stayed by the giving of a supersedeas bond on appeal under this article. Haley v. Walker (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 166.

Stay on appeal from appointment of receiver or trustee.—See, also, Art. 2080.

An appeal, under a supersedeas bond in a sum fixed by court, from an order appointing a receiver, suspends the order pending the appeal. Carter v. Carter (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1030.

An order appointing a receiver of a corporation held nonenforceable pending an appeal. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State (Sup.) 106 S. W. 326.

Violation of supersedeas.—Where a receiver of a corporation, after an appeal from his appointment, refused to deliver to the corporation its property to which it was entitled by reason of the appeal, it appearing that he acted in good faith, he would not be held in contempt. People's Cemetery Ass'n v. Oakland Cemetery Co., 24 C. A. 668, 60 S. W. 679.

Art. 2104. Amendment of appeal bond.—When an appeal has been or shall be taken from the judgment of any of the courts of this state by filing a bond or entering into a recognizance within the time prescribed by law in such cases, and it shall be determined by the court to which appeal is taken that such bond or recognizance is defective in form or substance, such appellate court may allow the appellant to amend such bond or recognizance by filing a new bond on such terms as the court may prescribe. [Acts 1905, p. 224.]

See notes to Arts. 1608, 1609, and 2395.

See, also, Dillard v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 152.

Amendment or substitution of bond—In general.—See, also, Art. 1609 and notes.

The court of civil appeals can grant time in which to file a new bond in place of a defective one. Prusiecki v. Ramzinski (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 549.

Where the appellant filed a defective bond within 20 days after judgment and thereafter substituted a valid one, the appeal will not be dismissed for failure to file a bond within the time limited, for the filing of a defective bond within the time limited perfects the appeal, and this article gives appellant the right to amend a defective bond or to substitute a new one. Eaton v. Klein (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 828.

Where no valid and binding appeal bond or supersedeas bond was filed within the time allowed by law or under any order of court, the appeal would not be dismissed if the appellant, within 30 days after order to do so by the court of civil appeals, filed and caused to be approved a new appeal or supersedeas appeal bond and paid all costs accrued to the date of the approval. Dillard v. First Nat. Bank of Canyon (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 682.

—— Applies to civil appeals.—Since Acts 1905, c. 115, effective immediately, authorizing amendments to appeal bonds, apply to appeals from the judgment of "any of the courts of this state," the fact that the emergency requiring the act to become effective immediately is stated to be the want of authority under existing law to amend defective appeal bonds and recognizances in criminal cases does not prevent it from applying to all appeals. Oliver v. Lone Star Cotton Jammers' & Longshoremen's Ass'n (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 508.

—— Does not apply to pauper affidavits.—The statute allowing new appeal bonds to be filed is not applicable to affidavits in lieu of bond, and there can be no postponement of proceedings until a new affidavit of inability to pay costs in lieu of appeal bond can be prepared, if the first affidavit was insufficient. Washington v. Haverty Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 832.

—— Defects that may be cured.—Defects in amount and number of sureties may be cured by filing a new bond. Shelton v. Wade, 4 T. 148, 51 Am. Dec. 722; King v. Hopkins, 42 T. 48; Tynberg Case, 76 T. 418, 13 S. W. 315; Ricker v. Collins, 81 T. 662, 17 S. W. 378; Davis v. Estes, 23 S. W. 411, 4 C. A. 207.

When an appeal bond is insufficient in amount, a new bond may be filed in the appellate court with the court's permission. Stubbs v. Landa Cotton Oil Co., 28 C. A. 56, 66 S. W. 214.

Failure to give an appeal bond in a sufficient amount does not make the appeal void, because the bond, on objection in the court of civil appeals, may be amended. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State (Sup.) 106 S. W. 326.

This article permits the amendment of any bond, however defective, provided it purports to be an obligation to indemnify appellee against loss by the appeal, and attempts to comply with the statute, and an instrument purporting to be an appeal bond, but being defective because plaintiff's name and the style of the cause is different from that contained in the judgment and pleadings, because the number of the case is different from the number given in the bond, because the judgment was against additional defendants than those named in the bond, and because it is not payable to a party to the judgment, could be amended so as to cure such defects. Oliver v. Lone Star Cotton Jammers' & Longshoremen's Ass'n (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 508.

—— Jurisdiction to decide question.—Under Art. 1609 and this article the court of civil appeals alone has jurisdiction to determine whether appellant procured the filing and approval of his appeal bond on his agreement to procure an additional surety, which he failed to do, and the clerk of the trial court may not refuse to make out a transcript of the case on the ground that appellant failed to procure such surety. Dillard v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 152.

—— Refusal to amend.—Refusal to amend an appeal bond to prevent dismissal of a prior appeal held not ground for dismissing a subsequent writ of error. Keel & Son v. Gribble-Carter Grain Co. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 235.

Art. 2105. [1407] [1407] State, county, etc., not to give bond.—Neither the state of Texas, nor any county in the state of Texas, nor the railroad commission of Texas, nor the head of any department of the state of Texas, prosecuting or defending in any action in their official capacity, shall be required to give bond on any appeal or writ of error taken by it, or either of them, in any civil case. [Acts 1897, p. 27. Acts 1909, S. S., p. 284.]

State.—Where the state instituted suit against a railroad company to recover a penalty for its failure to construct proper toilets at a certain station, that the statute provides that the district attorney shall receive one-fourth of the recovery, and that the remainder shall be paid into the road and bridge fund of the county in which the suit is brought, did not make the district attorney and the county parties to the suit in such a sense as to require an appeal bond on an appeal by the state. State v. Orange & N. W. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 335.

Head of department.—Under this article the comptroller of public accounts was not required to file a bond or affidavit in lieu thereof on an appeal by him from judgment reinstating a retail liquor license canceled by him. Lane v. Hewgley (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 348.

Art. 2106. [1408] [1408] Of executors, etc.—Executors, administrators and guardians appointed by the courts of this state shall not be required to give bond on any appeal or writ of error taken by them in their fiduciary capacity. [Act March 16, 1848, p. 106, sec. 4. P. D. 1503.]

Persons exempted.—An independent executor is within this article. Buttlar v. Davis, 52 T. 74; White v. Smith, 2 App. C. C. § 311. See Sherwood v. G. R. E. & L. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 694, contra.

The filing of a petition in error by an executrix and its service by an officer operates as a supersedeas. McFarland v. Mooring, 56 T. 118.

Guardians ad litem are included in the provisions of the above article and are not required to give bond on appeal. Tutt's Heirs v. Morgan, 18 C. A. 627, 42 S. W. 578, 46 S. W. 122.

A nonresident guardian applying for guardianship of the estate of his ward may appeal without bond from an order refusing it. Orr v. Wright (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 629.

A temporary administrator, suing to recover personalty of the estate, is not required to give bond on appeal from the judgment. Anglin v. Barlow (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 827.

That estate is insolvent, and the whole thereof may be set aside as an allowance to the widow, held not to deprive the administrator of right to appeal without giving bond. Id.

When executors appeal in their character as such they are not required to give bond. Dew v. Weeks (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 706.

That creditors of an estate gave notice of an appeal from a probate order, but filed no bond, was no reason for dismissing an appeal by the executrix. Erwin v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 159.

Under a statute authorizing an executor to appeal without bond, unless the appeal personally concerns him, the appeal of an executrix in the interest of the estate, though she was sole devisee and legatee, should not be dismissed for lack of bond. Id.

This article exempting guardians from giving appeal bonds applies also to guardians ad litem. Duke v. Wheeler, 28 C. A. 391, 67 S. W. 439.

A judgment setting aside the probate of a will held not to terminate the executor's official duties, so as to require him to execute an appeal bond on appeal by him from that judgment. Marshall v. Stubbs, 48 C. A. 158, 106 S. W. 435.

If one brings action in her individual capacity and as administratrix, while she cannot appeal in her individual capacity without giving a bond, she by express provision of this article does not have to give bond on appeal in her capacity as administratrix. Casey v. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 856.

Persons not exempted.—Where an administrator is personally aggrieved by the judgment of the court below and desires to appeal in his own right, he must give bond. Battle v. Howard, 13 T. 345; Guest v. Guest, 48 T. 210; Peabody v. Marks, 25 T. 19.

When an administrator and another are appellants, and no appeal bond has been given, the appeal will be dismissed except as to the administrator. Dawson v. Hardy, 33 T. 198.

This article does not apply to a writ of error from the court of civil appeals to the supreme court. Daniel v. Mason, 90 T. 162, 37 S. W. 1061.

An attorney appointed to represent unknown nonresident minor heirs held not exempt from giving bond on appeal as a guardian ad litem. Tutt's Heirs v. Morgan, 18 C. A. 627, 42 S. W. 578, 46 S. W. 122.

This article does not apply in a case where a party seeks to have a will probated in which he is appointed executor, and the application is refused and he wishes to appeal. Cox v. Paschal (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 774.

On appeal from order of probate court dismissing as void proceedings for the administration of an estate which had never had any creditors, the administrator must give bond, his interest in the appeal being a personal one. Holman v. Klatt, 34 C. A. 506, 78 S. W. 1088.

The defendant, not having appealed in his capacity of independent executor from the judgment of the district court, is required to give bond or make affidavits in lieu thereof as other appellants. Tison v. Gass, 43 C. A. 178, 94 S. W. 377.

A next friend of a minor is personally liable for costs of court, and is required to give an appeal bond and when he makes an affidavit in lieu of a bond he need only state that he is unable to pay or secure the costs and need not state that the minor is unable to pay or secure such costs. Biggins v. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 563.

Where plaintiff sues both individually and as administratrix, the fact that as administratrix she need not give bond on appeal does not excuse the giving of such a bond on appeal in her individual capacity. McWhorter v. Eriksen (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 624.

Effect of unnecessary bond.—An appeal bond, when not required by law, imposes no obligation upon the sureties. Buttlar v. Davis, 52 T. 74.

Art. 2107. [1409] [1409] Executor, etc., may take appeal or writ of error.—In case of the death of any party entitled to an appeal or writ of error, the same may be taken by his executor, administrator or heir.

Appeal by executor, etc.—An administrator, etc., who prosecutes a writ of error from a judgment against a decedent should allege in his petition his appointment, that the property in controversy would be assets in his hands, or such other facts as show his interest. Thomas v. Jones, 10 T. 52; Cochrane v. Day, 27 T. 385; Simmons v. Fisher, 46 T. 126.

This article provides for a case in which the party dies after judgment in the district court and authorizes the executor, administrator or heir to prosecute an appeal or writ of error to court of civil appeals. Conn v. Hagan, 93 T. 334, 55 S. W. 324.

Art. 2108. [1410] [1410] Transcript to be made out and delivered.—When an appeal or writ of error has been perfected, the clerk of the court shall, upon the application of either party, make out, and deliver to him, a transcript of the record of the cause. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 139. P. D. 1494.]

See Dillard v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 152.

Mandamus to compel clerk.—The appellate court in a proper case will by mandamus compel the clerk to make out and deliver a transcript. Rodgers v. Alexander, 35 T. 116.

Where a judgment complained of is for costs only, mandamus will not issue to compel the clerk to deliver a transcript, the plaintiff having made affidavit of his inability to secure costs. Demonet v. Jones (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1033.

District and county court rule 100 (142 S. W. xxiv) provides that the acceptance of the transcript from the clerk without objection amounts to an assumption by the party of all responsibility for any deficiencies therein. Art. 1608 provides that the appellant shall file the transcript with the clerk of the court of civil appeals. Held, that the duty of the clerk of the county court is clearly only to deliver the transcript to the person applying for it, and it is the applicant's duty to file the transcript in the appellate court, so that mandamus will not lie to compel the clerk of a county court to prepare "and transmit" a transcript to the clerk of an appellate court. In re Lawrence Estate (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 701.

Mandamus, and not certiorari, is the proper remedy to compel the clerk to perform his ministerial duty of preparing the transcript on appeal. Martin v. Irvin (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1164.

Excuse for refusal to comply.—Clerk held not entitled to refuse to prepare and deliver a transcript on appeal because the appeal bond was not in a sum equal to twice the amount of the costs. Taylor v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 411.

Appellee may procure transcript.—See, also, Art. 2109.

If an appellee be not satisfied with the transcript filed by the appellant, it is his privilege to procure and file a more perfect record for the presentation of the questions involved. His transcript should be filed with appellant's transcript, and have the same number, so that the appeal may be treated as one case. Cassin v. Zavalla County, 71 T. 203, 9 S. W. 105.

The appellee cannot file a transcript and obtain a hearing of the case within the time allowed appellant for filing the transcript. Crary v. Port Arthur Channel & Dock Co. (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 842.

Duty of appellant.—See, also, Art. 2109.

The statute provides for the delivery of the transcript to the party so desiring, and it is the duty of an appellant to see that the transcript is correct before the case is submitted. Brewster v. State, 40 C. A. 1, 88 S. W. 860.

It is the duty of the appellant, not the clerk, to file the transcript in the court of civil appeals. In re Lawrence's Estate (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 701.

Form, contents, conclusiveness, and other matters relating to transcript.—See Art. 2109 et seq.

Art. 2109. [1411] [1411] Transcript to contain all proceedings, except, etc.—The transcript shall, except in the cases hereinafter provided, contain a full and correct copy of all the proceedings had in the cause. [Id.]

See Glasscock v. Barnard (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 615; Bilby v. Rodgers, Id. 616; Gulf States Brick Co. v. Beaumont Rice Mills Co., 128 S. W. 931.

1. Duty of appellant as to transcript.—See, also, notes under Art. 1608.

It is the duty of an appellant to see that the transcript is correct and complete before the case is submitted. Ross v. McGowen, 58 T. 603; Railway Co. v. Scott, 78 T. 360, 14 S. W. 791; McMickle v. Bank, 23 S. W. 428, 4 C. A. 210; Caswell v. Greer, 23 S. W. 331, 1002, 4 C. A. 659; Hayslip v. Pomeroy, 32 S. W. 124, 7 C. A. 629.

A litigant prosecuting an appeal must present a transcript which affirmatively shows jurisdiction. Needham v. Austin Electric Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 904.

2. Appellee's transcript.—See, also, Art. 1608.

Where the appellee prepares a separate or supplemental transcript, it should be filed, together with the appellant's transcript, so as to combine the matter as one case. Lefevre v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 212.

Where the transcript filed by appellee on moving to dismiss for want of a final judgment was a complete transcript of all that occurred below and was so certified by the clerk of court, and showed an appeal from an interlocutory judgment, the appeal would be dismissed, though the time within which appellant could file a transcript had not expired. Bowen v. Grayum (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 472.

3. Matters to be shown by transcript—In general.—See Hubby v. Harris, 59 T. 14. Charges should be copied with all indorsements. Longino v. Ward, 1 App. C. C. § 522.

When a case is remanded for a new trial and is again appealed, it should contain the mandate. McAlpin v. Bennett, 21 T. 535.

The transcript on a second appeal need not include the mandate of the appellate court on the first appeal. Warren v. Frederichs, 83 T. 380, 18 S. W. 750.

To take advantage of questions arising out of an alleged outstanding title, applicant for a writ of error must make it appear from the transcript that the instrument in question was executed before the suit was instituted. Mealy v. Lipp, 91 T. 182, 42 S. W. 544.

Where plaintiff and defendant pleaded in abatement to petitions in intervention, and the court sustained plaintiff's plea and dismissed the intervention, it was not necessary to a review of such ruling that the transcript should also contain defendant's plea. Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. City of Houston, 102 T. 317, 116 S. W. 36.

If there is no agreement, as is provided for in Art. 2111, then the clerk must include in the transcript all the proceedings in the case. Baum v. McAfee (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 883.

4. —— Jurisdiction of lower court.—To sustain the jurisdiction of the appellate court it must appear from the transcript filed therein that the trial court had jurisdiction. Royal Fraternal Union v. Bedford (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 523.

Where the statement of facts shows that a transcript of proceedings had and judgment rendered in the action in justice court was filed in the county court on appeal, the jurisdiction of the county court, is sufficiently shown, and it is not necessary that the justice's transcript should be otherwise embodied in the transcript to the court of civil appeals. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Milliron, 53 C. A. 325, 115 S. W. 655.

The jurisdiction of a trial court must affirmatively appear from the transcript on appeal, and, where it does not, the defect, being jurisdictional, is fundamental in its nature, and must be noticed without an assignment of error. Ware v. Clark (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 618.

Where the record on appeal contained no citation to defendant, it failed to show that the trial court had jurisdiction, and the judgment rendered would be reversed, notwithstanding the recitation in the judgment that defendant had been duly cited. Daugherty v. Powell (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 625.

The transcript in the court of civil appeals, in a case originating in justice's court, must contain a transcript of the justice's record, showing final judgment by him, to affirmatively show jurisdiction in the appellate courts, unless it is not possible to procure such transcript, in which case appellant may show by other means that the justice had original jurisdiction and rendered final judgment. Wells v. Driskell, 105 T. 77, 145 S. W. 333.

To give the court of civil appeals jurisdiction of an appeal, the transcript must affirmatively show that the trial court had jurisdiction, and, where it does not so show, the appeal will be dismissed. John E. Morrison Co. v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 702.

The transfer of record of a case appealed from the county court after trial therein on appeal from a justice's court must contain the transcript from the justice's court and the appeal bond from that court to show the jurisdiction of the county court. Powell v. Hill (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 181.

5. —— Jurisdiction of appellate court.—One prosecuting an appeal from the judgment of the county court in a suit not within the original jurisdiction of the county court held required to show by the transcript a perfected appeal to the county court from a justice of the peace. Needham v. Austin Electric Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 904.

A litigant prosecuting an appeal must present a transcript which shows affirmatively that the appellate court has jurisdiction of the appeal. Id.

6. —— Proceedings of intermediate courts.—The transcript filed in the court of civil appeals in a case originating in justice's court must contain a transcript of the justice's record, showing final judgment by him, unless impracticable, when that fact may be shown otherwise. Wells v. Driskell, 105 T. 77, 145 S. W. 333.

7. Scope and contents of transcript.—Papers which neither constitute part of the pleading, statement of facts, or bill of exceptions, when incorporated in the transcript, will be disregarded. Stark v. Ellis, 69 T. 543, 7 S. W. 76.

Where papers brought up on certiorari as omitted from the transcript, though prepared after the trial, were substituted for the original papers, which had been lost, they were properly before the appellate court. Blalock v. State (Cr. App.) 62 S. W. 571.

Where, on certiorari to bring up papers alleged to have been omitted from the transcript, it appears that such papers were prepared after adjournment of the term, they cannot be considered as a part of the transcript. Id.

Where transcript on appeal contains improper papers, it will not be stricken, but extra costs caused thereby will be taxed against appellant. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Phillips, 35 C. A. 337, 80 S. W. 107.

On appeal from the granting of an ex parte injunction it was error to include in the transcript defendant's answer and application for fixing the amount of the appeal bond, which were not filed until after the injunction was granted. Wynn v. R. E. Edmonson Land & Cattle Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 310.

8. Incorporating statement of facts in transcript.—See, also, Arts. 2068, 2070.

Where the statement of facts in the action is not made a part of a motion to correct the judgment, it need not be included in the transcript on appeal from the decision on the motion. Hedgecoxe v. Conner (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 322.

A copy of a statement of facts in the transcript cannot be considered on appeal, in the absence of an agreement. Hall & Tyson v. Frst Nat. Bank, 53 C. A. 101, 115 S. W. 293.

On error from a county court judgment, the statement of facts must be copied into and make a part of the transcript. Farris v. Gilder (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 645.

A copy of the statement of facts in the transcript instead of the original may be considered on appeal, where no objection was made before submission of the cause. Hall & Tyson v. First Nat. Bank, 102 T. 308, 116 S. W. 47.

The original copy of the statement of facts may properly be considered a part of the transcript of the record on appeal. Herbert & Wight v. Coffee (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 346.

A statement of facts copied into the transcript should be considered when there is no objection by the appellee. E. F. Rowson & Co. v. McKinney (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 603.

9. Requisites and sufficiency of transcript.—A transcript of appeal which does not conform to court rules as to sealing, writing, etc., is subject to dismissal. City of San Antonio v. Smith, 27 C. A. 327, 65 S. W. 41.

A transcript on appeal held obnoxious to rule 90. Aspley v. Wheat, 45 C. A. 13, 99 S. W. 1135.

10. Clerk's certificate and indorsement.—See, also, Art. 2114.

Under this article, and Art. 2114, requiring the clerk to certify to the correctness of the transcript and providing that such certificate shall state whether it be a transcript of all the proceedings or not, a clerk's certificate that a transcript is a true and correct copy of all the proceedings had is sufficient, and is not objectionable because failing to state that the same is a full copy. Harper v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 385.

11. Effect of omissions.—A motion to dismiss an appeal cannot be considered where the facts upon which it is based are not disclosed by the transcript. Glasscock v. Price (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 415.

Under court of civil appeals rule 1 (67 S. W. xiii), that court could not dismiss an appeal, because the transcript did not contain the justice's record or other necessary matter, without giving appellant an opportunity to supply the missing part. Wells v. Driskell, 105 T. 77, 145 S. W. 333.

12. Effect of failure to file proper transcript.—Appeal dismissed for insufficient transcript. Montgomery v. State, 26 C. A. 476, 64 S. W. 826.

13. Correction of transcript.—See, also, "Certiorari to Bring up Record" under Art. 1592.

A probable clerical error in the transcript cannot be corrected by the appellate court. Resort must be had to certiorari. Smith v. Bunch, 31 C. A. 541, 73 S. W. 559.

Where the appellant has filed an insufficient transcript, he should be permitted to withdraw the same on request. Paris & G. N. R. Co. v. Armstrong & Brown (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 28.

Where the transcript does not contain any transcript from the justice's court and a copy of the appeal bond filed therein, on appeal to the county court the court of civil appeals will hold the case on its docket a reasonable time to have the record amended to show such jurisdictional facts. Powell v. Hill (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 181.

14. Filing new transcript.—Appellant may file a new transcript of the record, where the first one is defective. Nail v. First Nat. Bank, 55 C. A. 455, 118 S. W. 1084.

15. Questions presented for review.—In a case appealed from a justice to the county court there was nothing in the transcript showing what were the pleadings, oral or written, or the issues tried in either the justice or county court; the appellate court refused to pass upon errors assigned to charges given or refused, or to the admission or rejection of evidence, at the trial had in the county court. Railway Co. v. Shipman, 1 C. A. 407, 20 S. W. 952.

Where the bill of exceptions in an action for title and possession of public lands failed to set out a certain land commissioner's certificate, which was the ground for the objection to certain evidence, the question of admissibility of such evidence was not before the court on appeal. Clark v. McKnight, 25 C. A. 60, 61 S. W. 349.

Assignments of error in the refusal to give certain special charges cannot be considered, where the transcript does not contain such requested charges. Ball v. Filba (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 685.

16. Conclusiveness and effect of transcript.—Where an assignment of error was to an instruction that the jury could not find for defendant, unless certain parties set in motion a car "with" defendant's consent, but the transcript contained the word "without," it is to be deemed correct, and the assignment will not be considered. Weeks v. Texas Midland R. R., 29 C. A. 148, 67 S. W. 1071.

Recital in a judgment to the effect that a party had been duly cited held out not to support a default judgment against him on appeal. Shook v. Laufer (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 277.

17. Matters not apparent from transcript—Matters improperly included in transcript.—Where depositions are not attached to or even referred to as a part of a motion to suppress them, they should not be copied at length in the transcript on appeal. Tucker Produce Co. v. Stringer (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1001.

Abandoned petitions superseded by amended petitions which are copied into the transcript on appeal in violation of rule 13 of the district and county courts (142 S. W. xviii) will not be considered. Home Inv. Co. v. Strange (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 510.

18. —— Matters appearing otherwise than by record.—See, also, Arts. 2111, 2112.

The parties cannot by agreement substitute their narrative of what orders or judgments were rendered and the exceptions reserved thereto for the authenticated copy required by law to be incorporated in the transcript to be sent up on appeal. The "excepted cases" referred to do not include agreements such as this, nor does Art. 2112 authorize the consideration of an agreement such as this. Carlton v. Krueger, 54 C. A. 48, 115 S. W. 621, 622.

The transcript on appeal cannot be contradicted or augmented by the agreement of the parties. Rogers v. McMillion, 55 C. A. 530, 121 S. W. 176.

A stipulation, attached to a motion for certiorari to the clerk of the trial court, that copies of instruments might be filed as a part of the transcript authorized the trial court on appeal to consider such copies. Amarillo Nat. Life Ins. Co. v. Brokaw (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 273.

19. —— Evidence relating to questions involved.—Purported testimony filed in the appellate court after the record was filed, upon affidavits of counsel filing it, and denied by opposing affidavits, which was not agreed to by the parties or approved by the trial judge, cannot be considered on appeal as a part of the transcript of the evidence. Rodriguez v. Priest (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 1187.

20. Presumption as to matters not shown.—In the absence from the record of the pleadings, the court on appeal will presume in support of the judgment that the pleadings on file authorized the judgment. Holloway v. Hall (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 895.

21. Striking out transcript.—A motion to strike a supplemental transcript in the court of appeals, on which proceedings were had after the perfection of the appeal, will be denied, though the court is of the opinion that the transcript should not be considered, as the supreme court may have a different opinion. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Davis, 93 T. 378, 54 S. W. 381, 55 S. W. 562.

Where a motion to strike out a part of the record is sustained, the part complained of is not physically cast out of court, but is merely ignored, and the same result can be accomplished by timely objection to anything incorporated in a transcript which has no place there, and such method of objection is not an acquiescence in the record as presented. Vickery v. Burks, 56 C. A. 421, 121 S. W. 177.

Where improper matter is copied in the record on appeal, held not proper to strike the transcript itself from the files. Tucker Produce Co. v. Stringer (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1001.

The court of civil appeals will of its own motion strike out a transcript for violation thereby of its rules. Pryor v. Krause (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 972.

22. Record, matters to be shown, scope and contents, filing, defects, conclusiveness, questions presented, and matters not apparent.—See notes at end of this chapter.

23. Expenses of record.—See notes under Arts. 2046, 2047.

Art. 2110. [1412] [1412] Citation and return omitted, when.—If the pleadings or the judgment show an appearance of the defendant, in person or by attorney, the citation and returns shall not be copied into the transcript.

See Harper v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 385.

Omission of citation and return.—Rule 85. They should be inserted when a question is made upon them. Osborn v. Barnett, 1 App. C. C. § 127.

In the absence of an appearance, shown by the pleadings and judgment, the citation and return must be contained in the transcript. McMickle v. Texarkana Nat. Bank, 23 S. W. 428, 4 C. A. 210.

Where no citation is brought up to the appellate court to see whether or not the defendant was ever served with process, and there is no pleading or recital in the judgment to show that it was served, the case will be reversed. Railroad Co. v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 648.

A citation issued for and served upon G. W. Shook, will not support a judgment by default against J. W. Shook, and a recital in the judgment that J. W. Shook has been duly cited, which the record shows is not true, will not render the judgment valid. Shook v. Laufer (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 278.

A default judgment entered on a cross-plea against codefendants would not be sustained on writ of error, in the absence of a showing in the record of an appearance of the codefendants, or of service on them aside from recitals in the judgment. Mayhew & Co. v. Harrell, 57 C. A. 509, 122 S. W. 957.

A default judgment entered against nonresident defendants cannot be sustained on a writ of error in the absence of a showing in the record of an appearance or waiver by the defendants, or of service on them aside from recitals in the judgment. Glasscock v. Barnard (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 615.

In an action where judgment by default was rendered against nonresident defendants, and the record failed to show an appearance or waiver by them or service on them, so as to give the trial court jurisdiction, the appellate court will take notice of the error, although not specially assigned. Id.

Under the express requirements of Art. 2109 and this article, in an action where judgment by default was rendered against a nonresident, and neither the proceedings nor the judgment show an appearance of the defendant, the citation must be copied in the transcript on appeal. Bilby v. Rodgers (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 616.

Where the record on appeal contained no citation to defendant, it failed to show that the trial court had jurisdiction, and the judgment rendered would be reversed, notwithstanding the recitation in the judgment that defendant had been duly cited. Daugherty v. Powell (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 625.

Where a party defendant appears, and his appearance is recited in the judgment, the failure of the record to show an appearance or answer filed is not ground for a reversal. Lester v. First State Bank (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 661.

A default judgment will be reversed on appeal by defendant, when the record fails to show service of citation or an appearance by defendant; and such judgment will also be reversed when the record, while showing service of citation, fails to show the date of such service. Id.

An order dissolving in part a restraining order, which recites that plaintiff then excepted and gave notice of appeal, sufficiently showed that plaintiff appeared on the motion for dissolution and under this article the record to sustain the ruling need not contain a copy of the notice served on him. Purdie v. Stephenville, N. & S. T. Ry. Co., 144 S. W. 364.

Art. 2111. [1413] [1413] Omission of unimportant proceedings, when.—The parties may, by an agreement in writing, with the approval of the judge, direct the clerk in making up the transcript for the appellate court to omit therefrom any designated portion of the proceedings not deemed material to the disposition of the cause in such appellate court; and, in such case, the transcript shall not embrace such portions of the proceedings. [Act Feb. 5, 1858, p. 110, sec. 12. P. D. 1516.]

See Harper v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 385; Dutton v. Norton, 1 App. C. C. § 359. See amended rule 85 for district and county courts.

Expenses of record.—See notes under Arts. 2046, 2047.

Art. 2112. [1414] [1414] Agreed statement of pleadings and proof.—The parties may, without the necessity of setting out all the proceedings at length, agree upon such a brief statement of the case and of the facts proven, with or without copies of any part of the proceedings as shall, in their opinion, enable the appellate court to determine whether there has been any error in the judgment; and, if the judge shall approve and sign such statement, the same shall be filed among the papers of the cause and shall constitute a part of the record, and, on appeal or writ of error, shall be copied into the transcript in lieu of such proceedings themselves. [Id.]

See Whitaker v. Gee, 61 T. 217; Peacock v. Morgan (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 1191; Clifton v. Creason, 145 S. W. 323; Goodwin v. Biddy, 149 S. W. 739; Pritchard v. Fox, 154 S. W. 1058.

Agreed case.—A statement of facts agreed upon before trial between the parties to a cause upon which the court below may render judgment according to the law arising upon the facts as agreed upon cannot on appeal, be considered, within the meaning of this article, an "agreed case." Fisher's Heirs v. Leiswitz, 1 U. C. 330.

A statement of facts held not an "agreed case," within this article. Graves v. George (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 262.

A statement in an agreed case on writ of error from a default judgment that defendant claims he has a meritorious defense held insufficient. Bartlett v. S. M. Jones Co. (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 705.

This article is not applicable to a case tried upon an agreed statement of facts which recited that, to obviate the necessity of the introduction of witnesses to prove the facts thereinafter shown, it was agreed that the following facts were true, enumerating certain facts and signed by the attorneys and to which attached a certificate by the judge, made after the term, stating that the cause was tried upon the agreed statement of facts attached and that no other evidence was introduced. Chickasha Milling Co. v. Crutcher (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 355.

Approval and signature of judge.—An agreement as to the question in issue not made out and signed as above required will not be considered on appeal. McDowell v. Fowler, 80 T. 587, 16 S. W. 431.

A statement unapproved and unsigned by the trial judge cannot be considered as an agreed case within the meaning of this article. Graves v. George (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 262.

Where the unapproved copy of the transcript is sent up, held, the mistake may be corrected. Gonzales v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 896.

Scope of review on agreed statement.—On an agreed statement under the above article only questions embraced will be considered. Eastland v. Williams (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 412.

Agreed statement of facts that only issue on appeal was one of law eliminated all questions of fact from the case. Hardman v. Crawford, 95 T. 193, 66 S. W. 206.

An agreement of the counsel and approved by the court which appears in the record immediately following the judgment, held not to limit the court on appeal in its consideration of the issue presented in the record. Stringer v. Franklin County (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1168.

A statement of facts on appeal contained the parties' agreement as to certain facts, and also contained a statement of the evidence offered to which objection was sustained. Held, that the court would confine itself to the evidence contained in the agreement of the parties. Hahl v. McPherson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 515.

Art. 2113. [1415] [1415] Transcript must contain what.—The transcript shall, in all cases, contain a copy of the final judgment, notice of appeal, petition for writ of error and citation in error, with return of service thereon, bond on appeal or writ of error, or affidavit in lieu thereof, and assignments of errors or such of them as there may be, and also a copy from the fee book of all the costs that have accrued in the cause. [Id.]

Scope and contents of transcript—In general.—See, also, Art. 2109 and notes at end of chapter.

The court of civil appeals will not revise the judgment rendered in a cause when the transcript filed on appeal contains nothing but the judgment appealed from and proceedings in the court below after its rendition. Watson v. Watson, 69 T. 105, 5 S. W. 377.

Entries on the motion docket of the trial court can form no part of the transcript on appeal, and mere copies thereof in the transcript will not be considered. Swearingen v. Wilson, 21 S. W. 74, 2 C. A. 157.

—— Copy of final judgment.—Where the transcript fails to show that judgment was rendered in the court below, and the appeal bond does not appear to have been filed within the prescribed time, the appeal will be dismissed. Evertson v. Frier (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 201.

A transcript filed in the court of civil appeals contained no judgment, and the appeal was dismissed for want of jurisdiction under this article and motions for rehearing and for certiorari to perfect the record were overruled. Held, in view of the later decisions and the generally understood practice, that the court had jurisdiction; but to prevent such questions in the future rule 22 of the court of civil appeals (67 S. W. xv) will be amended concurrently with this decision, to the effect that "a cause will be properly prepared for submission only when a transcript of the record exhibits a cause prepared for appeal in accordance with the rules prescribed for the government of the district court and county courts * * * and the mere failure to observe omissions or inaccuracies therein will not be admitted after submission as a reason for correcting the record or obtaining a rehearing." Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Parker, 104 T. 162, 135 S. W. 369.

Where the record does not show a final judgment it can only be corrected by timely motion in the court below. Steinhardt & Co. v. Galveston Cotton Seed Meal Co. (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 825.

Where a duly certified transcript filed by appellee in support of a motion to dismiss showed that no final judgment had been entered, the court will dismiss the appeal for that reason on the transcript so certified, though the time within which appellant could file a transcript had not elapsed. Bowen v. Grayum (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 472.

—— Notice of appeal.—The court has no jurisdiction when notice of appeal is not given and shown by the transcript. The omission may be supplied by motion accompanied by a certified copy of the entry. Railway Co. v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 72; Bonner v. Ferrell, 3 C. A. 444, 22 S. W. 418; Luckey v. Warren (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 617; Wichita Valley Ry. Co. v. Peery (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 751; Lyell v. Guadalupe Co., 28 T. 58; McLane v. Russell, 29 T. 129.

—— Citation in error.—The record in error proceedings must show service of a citation in error or waiver thereof. Bird Canning Co. v. Cooper Grocery Co., 24 C. A. 412, 58 S. W. 1038, 61 S. W. 1103.

—— Assignment of errors.—See, also, Arts. 1607, 1612.

An assignment of error based on an agreement and judgment claimed to create an estoppel, but which are not included in the transcript, cannot be considered. Watkins v. Hopkins County (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 872.

Under Art. 1612 and this article, where there is no assignment of errors in the transcript on appeal, assignments presented in appellant's brief cannot be considered, and in the absence of error apparent on the face of the record requiring a reversal, the judgment must be affirmed. Peacock v. Moore (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 943.

In the absence from the record of assignments of error required by Art. 1612 and this article and courts of civil appeals rules 22, 23 (67 S. W. xv), the court of appeals can only determine from the record whether the pleadings support the judgment and whether that court has acquired jurisdiction. Walker v. Hardin (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 640.

Where assignments of error were not in the transcript when delivered to the court of civil appeals, because of the fault of the clerk, the assignments will be considered on appeal, though not when the omission was due to appellant's attorney. Ginner's Mut. Underwriters v. Wiley & House (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 629.

Where only one assignment of error is briefed, and that is based upon a bill of exceptions not filed in time, and no assignments of error are found in the transcript, as required by this article, the judgment will be affirmed, in the absence of fundamental error. Sweeney v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 414.

Expenses of record.—See notes under Arts. 2046, 2047.

Art. 2114. [1416] [1416] Clerk's certificate and indorsement.—The clerk shall certify to the correctness of the transcript, and sign the same officially with the seal of the court attached. Such certificate shall state whether the same be a transcript of all the proceedings in the cause, or the transcript provided for in articles 2110, 2111 and 2112. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 139. P. D. 1494.]

See Gulf States Brick Co. v. Beaumont Rice Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 931.

Clerk's certificate and indorsement.—The certificate of the clerk must show that the transcript contains a full and correct copy of all the proceedings had in the case, and when it says that the transcript contains a true and correct copy of all the facts proven, it is not sufficient. Paris & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Armstrong & Brown (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 29.

Where the words required to be indorsed on a transcript by district court rule 98 (67 S. W. xxvii) were written on the same page after the clerk's certificate, it was not material that they were not written on the back. Smith v. Richardson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 426.

Under Art. 2109 and this article a clerk's certificate that a transcript is a true and correct copy of all the proceedings had is sufficient, and is not objectionable because failing to state that the same is a full copy. Harper v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 385.

Judgment was rendered by the county court of Bexar, and petition for a writ of error was filed and perfected by bond prior to the creation of the county court for civil cases. The act creating such latter court provides that the new court shall have exclusive jurisdiction of all civil matters and causes, and transfers all civil cases to such new court, and directs that all civil writs and processes heretofore issued out of the county court shall be returnable to the new court. Held, that citation issued out of the county court, after the creation of the county court for civil cases, to perfect the writ of error was properly returnable to the new court, which tribunal had jurisdiction to issue alias or pluries citations, if the first writ showed no service; and the certificate of the transcript was properly prepared and certified by the clerk of such court. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 317.

The clerk of a court should under no circumstances certify a transcript in a case without personal knowledge that it is a correct copy of the records in his office. Parrish v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 453.

Correction of certificate and indorsement.—The clerk of the trial court cannot legally be permitted to correct his certificate to the transcript, especially after the 90 days within which the transcript is required to be filed has elapsed. Paris & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Armstrong & Brown (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 29.

Where, on a motion to dismiss an appeal because the transcript was not properly certified, appellants asked for leave to file a properly certified transcript which they tendered, the court would grant such application. Elliott v. Elliott (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 1011.

Conclusiveness and effect of certificate.—The certificate of the clerk of the lower court that a transcript is complete will prevail against an unsworn statement in a motion to dismiss a writ of error for an alleged omission. Palmer v. Spandenberg, 49 C. A. 331, 108 S. W. 477.

Effect of defects in or lack of certificate and indorsement.—An appeal held subject to dismissal for failure of the transcript to contain the seal of the court required by district and county court rule 90. Conner v. Downes, 32 C. A. 588, 74 S. W. 781, 75 S. W. 335.

Though the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals of an appeal does not depend on the character of the clerk's certificate to the transcript, yet where the transcript is not certified, or the certificate is defective, on motion seasonably made, the court may dismiss the appeal. Freeman v. Collier Racket Co., 101 T. 60, 104 S. W. 1042.

That the indorsement by the clerk of the trial court on the transcript is misleading and contradictory is not ground for dismissing the appeal. Pryor v. Krause (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 972.

The failure of a clerk's certificate to state that the transcript was a true copy of all the proceedings would be a mere informality in bringing the case up, so that a motion to dismiss the appeal on that ground should have been made within 30 days after the filing of a transcript under courts of civil appeals rule 8 (142 S. W. xi), and the objection was waived if not made within that time. St. Louis, I. M. & S. Ry. Co. v. West Bros. (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 181.

Time to raise objections.—Motion to dismiss appeal for defects in certificate of transcript held to come too late. Atascosa County v. Alderman (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 846.

A motion to dismiss an appeal to the court of civil appeals, on the ground that the clerk's certificate to the transcript was defective, made after judgment, came too late. Freeman v. Collier Racket Co., 101 T. 60, 104 S. W. 1042.

Art. 2115. [1417] [1416a] Briefs filed in courts below and notice given.—Not less than five days before the time of filing of the transcript in the court of civil appeals the appellant or plaintiff in error shall file with the clerk of the district court a copy of his brief, which shall be by the clerk deposited with the papers of the cause, with the date of filing indorsed thereon; and the clerk shall forthwith give notice to the appellee or defendant in error, or his attorney of record, of the filing of such brief, and that in twenty days after such notice the appellee or defendant in error shall file a copy of his brief with the clerk of said court below, and with the clerk of the court of civil appeals four copies. [Acts of 1892, S. S.]

Briefs—Sufficiency, contents, and filing in appellate court.—See notes under Art. 1614.

Time for filing in lower court.—The copy of the brief should be filed with the clerk of the district court not less than five days before the time of actual filing of the transcript in the appellate court, and not five days before the time when by law he is allowed to file the transcript; but the law is not mandatory, and if a failure to so file the brief has not resulted in any prejudice to appellee the case will not be dismissed therefor. Railroad Co. v. Holden, 93 T. 211, 54 S. W. 751.

An appeal held properly taken where the briefs were filed by the appellant in the trial court on June 26th, and the record filed in the court of civil appeals on August 27th; the term of the court of civil appeals having expired on July 1st, and the next term not beginning until October. Lynch v. Munson (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 140.

The statute means that appellant or plaintiff in error shall file his brief five days before the transcript is actually filed in the court of civil appeals, so as to give the appellee or defendant in error sufficient time to prepare his brief. Hunt v. Glasscock, 27 C. A. 322, 65 S. W. 209.

The appellant should file with the clerk of the district court a copy of his brief not less than five days before he filed the transcript in the court of civil appeals. Appellee is entitled to twenty days to prepare and file his brief after notice of filing of appellant's brief in court below. Elkins v. Kempner (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 577.

The appellee has 20 full days after the day of notice, in which to file the brief; and where appellant's briefs were filed on November 4th and the case was set for submission in the appellate court on November 25th, as the 20 days would not have expired until the last moment of the 25th, the full 20 to which appellee was entitled had not expired, and the appeal will be dismissed. S. A. & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Brock (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 953.

A plaintiff in error who files his brief within 20 days of the date fixed for the submission of the case does not comply with this article, and the writ of error will be dismissed. Hernandez v. Pastran (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 508.

Notice of filing.—Where appellant fails to file his briefs in the trial court and give notice thereof to the appellee, the appeal will be dismissed. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Hall, 32 C. A. 476, 74 S. W. 778.

The failure of an appellee to receive from the clerk of the district court the statutory notice of the filing of the brief of appellant in the district court held not ground for the dismissal of the appeal. Moonshine Co. v. Dunman, 51 C. A. 159, 111 S. W. 161.

Excuse for failure.—Affidavit held insufficient to excuse appellants' delay in filing their brief with the clerk of the trial court. Harris v. Bryson & Hartgrove, 31 C. A. 514, 73 S. W. 548.

If good cause is shown for not filing brief in lower court five days before filing transcript in appellate court the appeal will not be dismissed for the failure. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Milliron, 53 C. A. 325, 115 S. W. 656.

When appellee by agreement in writing filed among the papers in the case waives filing of the brief by appellant in the trial court as required by the statute without stipulating in the agreement when the brief is to be filed if the brief of appellant is filed in the appellate court any time before the case is submitted the law is complied with in that respect and the motion to strike out the brief will not be granted. Connor v. Zachry, 54 C. A. 188, 115 S. W. 867, 117 S. W. 177.

The right of defendant in error to a dismissal of the writ of error under court of civil appeals rule 39 (67 S. W. xvi), making the failure of plaintiff in error to file his brief in the district court a ground for dismissal, or the right given by rule 42 (67 S. W. xvii), providing that, where plaintiff in error fails to prepare the case for submission, defendant in error may file a brief, shaped so as to show the correctness of the judgment which the court may regard as a correct presentation of the case, depends on whether defendant in error has been deprived of the right of replying to the brief of the plaintiff in error because of the failure to file it in the district court, and where a copy of the brief of plaintiff in error was delivered to counsel for defendant in error 12 days before the day set for the submission of the cause, defendant in error had ample time to prepare a brief in answer to that of plaintiff in error, and the court on appeal will consider the case on the merits. Crenshaw v Hempel (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 731.

In view of this article it cannot be said, as a matter of law, that appellant allowed appellee sufficient time to file his brief in pursuance of an oral stipulation to the effect that the statute was waived, if defendants were allowed sufficient time to reply, when appellant's brief was filed only 10 days before hearing; and therefore the appeal must be dismissed on the motion of the appellee. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Martin (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 834.

On December 20, 1910, the filing of appellant's brief below was waived by a stipulation permitting him to file his brief at any time before March 5, 1911, and the time was thereafter extended to April 5, 1911, and on April 8th appellant's counsel consented to another extension of the time, but stated that he "did not want to be crowded for time or have submission delayed." Appellant's brief was not filed in the court of civil appeals until September 27, 1911. On July 3, 1911, the cause had been set down for submission October 2d. Appellant had several counsel, but a nonresident attorney was given the duty of filing the brief, and in April, 1911, he was required by illness to take medical treatment at a resort, and his illness continued until September 1st during which time he was advised by his physicians that it would seriously injure his health to do any work. In May he communicated with the clerk of the court of civil appeals where the case was pending, and was informed that it would probably not be reached by that court until November or December, 1911; but he learned from the newspapers of the transfer on July 31st of the case to this court of appeals. His name did not appear in the record of either court as of counsel. Held, that the facts shown did not excuse the delay in filing appellant's brief. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 125.

Though this article and court of civil appeals rule 39 (67 S. W. xvi), require appellant to file his brief in the trial court five days before the filing of the transcript in the court of civil appeals, and said rule makes failure to so file cause for dismissal, dismissal is not required, and will not be granted, where good cause is shown for delay, as continued severe sickness of counsel, preventing compliance. American Nat. Bank v. Petry (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1040.

Where counsel for the parties agreed that counsel for plaintiff could file briefs at any time, and that defendant's counsel should be allowed all the time he wished in which to prepare his answer to the briefs, the failure to file briefs within the statutory time was excused. American Warehouse Co. v. Hamblen (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1006.

Waiver of filing or time of filing.—Acceptance by appellee of a copy of appellant's brief is a waiver of the filing of the brief in the court below. Brown v. Reed (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 73.

Where counsel treat briefs of appellants as properly filed until a few days before the submission of the cause, they waive a failure to file them in time. Gipson v. Morris, 28 C. A. 555, 67 S. W. 433.

The failure of appellant to file his brief in the court below within the time required by the statute held waived by appellee. San Antono & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Turnham (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 625.

Effect of failure to file or file in time.—When brief is not filed within the allotted time, and excuse not given therefor, the party has no right to file it in the appellate court. Werner v. Kaster (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 317.

When appellant's brief has not been filed within the time prescribed by law it will be disregarded. City of Vernon v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 606.

An appeal will be dismissed if appellant's brief is not filed as required by the above article. Paris, M. & S. P. R. Co. v. Killingsworth (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 1046.

The court of civil appeals should strike out on motion appellant's brief where he has failed to file copy in the district court five days before filing transcript in the court of civil appeals. Jones v. Erwin (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 39.

Where the appellants, on appeal from a judgment final on a forfeited bail bond, have not filed their briefs in the court below and had the certificate of the clerk to that effect attached, the appeal will be dismissed. Mack v. State (Cr. App.) 57 S. W. 811.

Failure of appellants to file briefs in the trial court and have them properly certified, as required by rule 102 as to district and county courts, and rule 39 as to courts of civil appeals, is cause for dismissal. Mack v. State (Cr. App.) 57 S. W. 950.

Where appellants' failure to file their briefs in the trial court in time deprived appellees of their right to 20 days to file their briefs before submission, the appeal will be dismissed. Harris v. Bryson & Hartgrove, 31 C. A. 514, 73 S. W. 548.

Appeal dismissed for failure to file briefs within the statutory time. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Brock (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 953.

An appeal will not be dismissed for appellant's failure to file briefs in the trial court in time, where the appeal could not be submitted until after appellee had had ample time to file briefs. Deaton v. Feazle (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1167.

If briefs are not filed in the trial court and in the court of civil appeals as required by this article and rule 29, adopted for government of courts of civil appeals, the appeal will be dismissed. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 190.

See Art. 1616.

The appellant must file his brief in compliance with this article, else the appeal will be dismissed unless excuse is shown for not doing so. Bowden v. Patterson (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 177.

The requirement that briefs shall be filed in the trial court within a specified time is only to be enforced when it appears that appellee will be injured by a failure to do so. Peoples v. Evans, 50 C. A. 225, 111 S. W. 756.

Where the failure of appellant to file briefs in a reasonable time before the day of submission is not accompanied by some reasonable excuse, the appeal will be dismissed on motion of appellee. Koisch v. Richter (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 935.

The rights of defendant in error given by court of civil appeals rules 39 and 42 (67 S. W. xvi, xvii), being dependent on whether he has been deprived of the right of replying to the brief of plaintiff in error because of his failure to file the same in the district court, held not be exercised where brief of plaintiff in error was filed 12 days before date for submission. Crenshaw v. Hempel (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 731.

The failure of appellant to file and serve briefs within the time prescribed by this article necessitates the dismissal of the appeal, in the absence of a valid excuse for such failure. Wiseman v. Maddox (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 756.

When no briefs were filed by either party, as required by this article the appeal must be dismissed. Amarillo Brick & Tile Co. v. First Trust & Savings Bank of Alton, Ill. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 364.

A defendant in error who does not file briefs in compliance with rules of court, is not entitled to an affirmance of the judgment upon the failure of plaintiff in error to file briefs within the statutory time, although the appeal will be dismissed. American Warehouse Co. v. Hamblen (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1006.

Where appellee only had 11 days to answer appellant's brief, which was filed after the time allowed by court of civil appeals rule 39 (142 S. W. xiii), held, that the appeal would be dismissed on motion. Hamilton v. McLane (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 284.

The court may dismiss an appeal for want of prosecution without looking into the record, where appellant's brief is not filed in time, and there is no agreement waiving the statutory requirement as to filing. Gordon v. State (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 867.

Appellant filed no brief in the court below or on appeal, and appellee filed a brief asking that the judgment be affirmed. Held that, in the absence of fundamental error, the judgment would be affirmed. Ray v. Olcott (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1123.

Art. 2116. [1418] [1417] Case appealed, etc., to remain on docket till, etc.—Where a cause shall be removed by appeal or writ of error to the appellate court, the cause shall remain or be replaced on the docket to await the mandate of the appellate court.

Art. 2117. [1419] [1418] Proceedings on return of mandate.—Upon the return of the mandate, if the judgment of the court below be reversed by the appellate court, the cause shall stand for trial in its order on the docket.

Proceedings after remand.—When a cause is reversed and remanded the district judge should look to the opinion of the court and the mandate to ascertain the issues involved, to be determined by a new trial. Wells v. Littlefield, 62 T. 28. When the district judge fails to obey the mandate the remedy of the injured party is by mandamus. Id.

A plea in abatement submitted with pleas to the merits, on a reversal of the judgment cannot be again tried, where the reversal was upon the merits. Tynberg v. Cohen, 76 T. 409, 13 S. W. 315.

Where a cause is reversed and remanded without instruction, the parties litigant are in the same position as before the trial. Ogden v. Bossee (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 730.

Where, on appeal by plaintiff, in an action against a principal and sureties, from a judgment against the principal for the full amount of the debt and against the sureties for such amount less the value of certain securities surrendered by plaintiff, the judgment is reversed and remanded, it is error, on the retrial, to treat the former judgment against the principal as in force. Roberts v. Coffin, 22 C. A. 127, 53 S. W. 597.

The former judgment against the principal having been reversed, it was no obstacle to his pleading at the second trial. Id.

A reversal in general terms of a judgment for plaintiff held to open up the entire case and permit the introduction of plaintiff's testimony on an issue which had been determined below in the defendant's favor, though it tended to strengthen plaintiff's contention on an issue determined in his favor. Miller v. Burgess (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 591.

—— Amendment of pleadings.—Where the court erred in overruling a demurrer to the complaint, permitting plaintiff to go to trial without amendment, held, that he was entitled to amend on reversal of a judgment in his favor. Scanlon v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 930.

Pleadings may be amended on remand after reversal. St. Louis, S. F. & T. Ry. Co. v. Alverson, Gober & Sparks, 52 C. A. 321, 114 S. W. 673.

In circumstances stated, plaintiff held properly permitted, on reversal of a judgment for him and remand, to amend his petition. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Farrington (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 609.

In an action for breaches of contract, held not error to permit defendants to amend their answer upon a second trial to set up a new defense. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Gammel-Statesman Pub. Co. (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1048.

—— Use of papers filed in appellate court.—Maps and documents, made part of the record on appeal, cannot, after reversal, be withdrawn for use on retrial, even by consent of all the parties. Jamison v. New York & T. Land Co. (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 482.

—— Reading opinion of appellate court to jury.—Where a case is reversed, the lower court, on retrial, should not permit the opinion on reversal to be read to the jury. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Eckles (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 651.

Notice of reinstatement.—Where cause was dropped from trial docket, plaintiff held entitled to notice of reinstatement thereof after return of mandate on appeal. Penniman v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 367.

Where the trial court's judgment is not a final judgment as to all parties, and an appeal therefrom is dismissed, the trial court should treat the cause as though never tried, and allow it to be reinstated after notice. Farmers' & Mechanics' Nat. Bank of Ft. Worth v. First State Bank of Bangs (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 499.

Proceedings on new trial in general.—See notes under Art. 2019.

RECORD AND PROCEEDINGS NOT IN RECORD

1. Matters to be shown by record—Jurisdiction of lower court.

28. —— Conflict in record.
29. —— Impeaching or contradicting.

1. Matters to be shown by record—Jurisdiction of lower court.—Where trial is by special judge, record should show that he was selected and qualified as required by law. Merrick v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 370.

The record on appeal from the county court in a case originating in justice court held required to affirmatively show how the county court got jurisdiction, in order to sustain the appeal. McCarthey v. North Texas Loan Co. (Civ. App.) 101 S. W. 267.

On appeal from a judgment of the district court sustaining a demurrer to an application to probate a will, the record held to sufficiently show jurisdiction in the district court. Lindemann v. Dobossy (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 111.

An appeal from a judgment of the county court, on appeal from a justice, will be dismissed, unless it affirmatively appears that the county court had jurisdiction. Joy v. Hatfield (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 569.

A default against nonresident defendants cannot be sustained, in the absence of a showing in the record of an appearance or waiver by the defendants, or by service on them, aside from recitals in the judgment. Glasscock v. Barnard (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 615.

The record on appeal from the county court, in an action for such a small amount that it could have jurisdiction only on appeal from a justice, held required to show that it so acquired it. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. McLeroy (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 87.

The record on appeal held not to show the jurisdiction of the court of civil appeals, requiring the appeal to be dismissed. Wilder v. Texas Cent. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 607.

Where the record on appeal contains no citation to defendant, the judgment will be reversed, though it recites that defendant has been duly cited. Daugherty v. Powell (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 625.

A default judgment will be reversed on appeal by defendant, when the record fails to show service of citation, or the date of such service where citation is shown, and also where it fails to show an appearance by defendant. Lester v. First State Bank of Bovina (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 661.

Where a party defendant appears, and his appearance is recited in the judgment, the failure of the record to show an appearance, or answer filed, is not ground for reversal. Id.

The record on appeal from a judgment of the county court must affirmatively show that the county court had jurisdiction, and how it was acquired. O'Bannon v. Pleasants (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 719.

2. —— Nature and form of decision.—Where the record does not show any order made upon an application for a continuance, alleged error in overruling the application will not be considered. Hedrick v. Kilgore, 57 C. A 47, 121 S. W. 892.

3. —— Grounds of review.—An exception to an allegation in a pleading not in the record will not be considered, although the allegation is contained in another pleading in the record. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v Eaten (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 562.

That a receiver had been discharged must appear by the record, and not by decisions in other cases cited in the brief. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Bath, 17 C. A. 697, 44 S. W. 595.

To revise a refusal to consolidate causes the record must show that such causes were in fact pending. Cochran v. Walker (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 403.

Where the record on appeal fails to show any action on a motion for a continuance, an assignment of error in overruling it will not be considered. Rahl v. Parlin & Orendorff Co., 27 C. A. 72, 64 S. W. 1007.

Where the appeal record failed to show objectionable argument embodied in appellant's requests to charge which were refused, it will be presumed that such argument was not made. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Pendleton, 30 C. A. 431, 70 S. W. 996.

The fact that before the taking of a voluntary nonsuit the court informed plaintiff's counsel that he intended to sustain a motion to direct a verdict should be made clear by the record. Sanchez v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 689.

On appeal from a judgment dividing the costs, the complaining party should show what items were taxed against him. Rudolph v. Snyder, 47 C. A. 438, 106 S. W. 763.

Where the appeal record fails to show that a special charge complained of was given, the instruction will not be considered. St. Louis, B. & M. Ry. Co. v. Yznaga (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 267.

If the court, as was contended on appeal, took up and tried a case out of its order on his docket during the absence of counsel, and after assuring the latter he would not do so, to enable the court of civil appeals to review his action, the fact shoud appear by a bill of exceptions or other authentic way in the record. Smith v. Smith (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 198.

A judgment by default will be reversed unless the record shows a service of citation, or an appearance by the defendant, even though the judgment contains a recital that defendant was duly served with citation. Bomar v. Morris (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 663.

Where defendant's objection to the use of an affidavit to prove the loss of an original instrument was not sustained, such affidavit will be considered on appeal in determining the correctness of the court's ruling. Freeman v. Wm. M. Rice Institute (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 629.

4. —— Presentation and reservation of grounds of review.—Exceptions to supplemental petition cannot be considered, where it does not appear that they were ever presented below. Phillips v. Texas Loan Agency, 26 C. A. 505, 63 S. W. 1080.

Where an assignment of error complains of the overruling of a special exception to the petition, but the record does not show any ruling thereon, the exception will be regarded as waived. City of Cooper v. Ward (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 297.

Allegations in a motion held not to dispense with the necessity of a showing in the record that the court acted on the matter complained of. M. L. Chambers & Co. v. Herring (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 371.

An assignment of error must be based on an alleged ruling of the trial court, and an exception must be overruled if the transcript fails to show that the trial court ever considered such exception. Crawford v. Hord, 40 C. A. 352, 89 S. W. 1097.

An assignment that the court erred in not sustaining defendant's demurrer to plaintiff's petition could not be reviewed where it did not appear that the demurrer was presented to or acted on by the trial court. Stockton v. Brown (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 423.

An assignment of error complaining of the overruling of special exceptions to the petition will not be considered where it does not appear from the record that they were called to the court's attention. Chicago, R. I. & P. Ry. Co. v. Clements, 53 C. A. 143, 115 S. W 664.

Rulings as to the admission of evidence will not be reviewed, where the record fails to show that the rulings were excepted to, or any bill of exceptions taken. Brunner Fire Co. v. Payne, 54 C. A. 501, 118 S. W. 602.

An assignment complaining of the overruling of a motion to bring in a new party cannot be considered when the record fails to show that it was presented to the court or was overruled. Dayton Lumber Co. v. Stockdale, 54 C. A. 611, 118 S. W. 805.

An assignment of error complaining of the admission of evidence will be overruled when no objection or exception appears in the record. Hogsett v. Northern Texas Traction Co., 55 C. A. 72, 118 S. W. 807.

Assignments of error complaining of the overruling of demurrers to pleadings will be disregarded where the record fails to show that demurrers were called to the attention of the trial court, or that it made any ruling thereon. Glen Rose Collegiate Institute v. Glen Rose Independent School Dist. No. 1 (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 379.

Where record fails to show court's action on demurrers, assignment of error held not to be considered further than to determine whether petition is subject to general demurrer. Sowers v. Yeoman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1153.

An assignment that the court erred in overruling a motion for a new trial on a certain ground will not be reviewed, where the record did not show that the motion was made on any such ground. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Faulkner (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 619.

Exceptions to the answer are not reviewable where the record does not show any ruling thereon below. Muse v. Chambers (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 1070.

An assignment of error, based on a special exception on which the record fails to show any ruling, will not be considered on appeal. Edmondson v. Coughran (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 435.

Where the brief did not show a ruling on exceptions to petition, and the record does not show the action of the court except in a motion for a new trial, stating as a ground that the court erred in overruling the exceptions, they are not reviewable. Texas Traction Co. v. Morrow (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1069.

Error in admitting evidence will not be reviewed, where the record does not show that the point was reserved by bill of exceptions or that appellants objected to its admission. Wolf v. Wilhelm (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 216.

Defendant's special exception to the plaintiff corporation's want of capacity to transact business in the state was not presented for review, where the record failed to show that it had been called to the attention of the trial court or the trial court had taken any action thereon. Arbuckle Bros. v. Everybody's Gin & Mill Co. (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1136.

Where the record fails to show what action, if any, was taken by the court as to a requested charge, nor whether the charge was given or refused, the court's action cannot be reviewed on appeal. Texas Machinery & Supply Co. v. Ayers Ice Cream Co. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 750.

Where there is no judgment or record entry showing any ruling on an exception to the petition, such ruling cannot be reviewed on appeal, although preserved by a bill of exceptions. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Cartwright (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 630.

Alleged errors in sustaining exceptions to a petition cannot be reviewed, where there is no order or judgment in the record showing that the trial court ever acted on such exceptions. Lehmann v. Medack (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 438.

The sustaining of a general demurrer, or of a special exception to a pleading, is not reviewable on appeal, where the transcript contains no judgment or record entry showing the ruling. Bishop v. Mount (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 442.

An assignment complaining of the admission of evidence will not be reviewed, where the record did not show that objections were made at the time or contain any bill of exceptions covering the points. Brasfield v. Young (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 180.

5. —— Exceptions.—Where there was no exception in the record raising the objection to a remark of the court, there was nothing on which to base an assignment of error. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. A. G. & J. C. Broom, 53 C. A. 78, 114 S. W. 655.

When it does not appear from the record that the rulings of the court complained of were excepted to, assignments of error based thereon will not be considered. Jackson v. Nona Mills Co. (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 928.

Where the judgment recited that the attorney for defendant informed the court that there was a general demurrer and special exceptions and that the attorney did not read them but said that the court could pass on the exceptions, whereupon the court overruled them, the record shows that the exceptions were presented and acted upon and could not be deemed waived. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Forest (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 204.

6. —— Motions for new trial.—In the absence of a showing in the record that a motion for new trial for newly discovered evidence was presented to or acted on by the court, denial of a new trial cannot be reviewed on appeal. Ginners' Mut. Underwriters of San Angelo, Tex., v. Wiley & House (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 629.

Under courts of civil appeals rule 24 (142 S. W. xii), an assignment of error complaining of the giving and refusal of instructions must be treated as waived where there is no motion for new trial in the record, and in the absence of fundamental error the judgment will be affirmed without inquiry into the merits. Murphy v. Earl (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 486.

7. —— Jurisdiction of appellate court.—The jurisdictional facts necessary to entitle the court of civil appeals to entertain a suit must appear from the record, and, if they do not, the court will dismiss for want of jurisdiction. Bomer v. Legg & Tindall, 46 C. A. 176, 101 S. W. 839.

8. —— Taking and perfecting of appeal or other proceeding for review.—The record held not to show the appeal bond was filed in time to give the appellate court jurisdiction. Sloan v. McMillin (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 587.

9. —— Proceedings of intermediate courts.—On appeal from a county court of a case appealed from a justice of the peace when the findings of the court show that the justice's transcript and appeal bond were filed, the record in the court of civil appeals need not contain either. Bledsoe v. Railway Co., 25 S. W. 314, 6 C. A. 280.

Appeal from the county court, in a case brought in justice court, dismissed. Roberson v. First State Bank (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 173.

Appeal from district court in probate matters will be dismissed for want of jurisdiction; the record not affirmatively showing jurisdiction of the district court by proper appeal from probate court. Goodwin v. Walker (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 462.

Where there is no affirmative showing in the record on appeal that the county court had jurisdiction to render the judgment appealed from it will be reversed. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 608.

The court on appeal from a county court, in an action involving an amount below the original jurisdiction of the county court, held without jurisdiction for failure of the record to show an appeal from a justice's court to the county court. Collins & Jordan v. Kittrell (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 814.

Court of civil appeals has no jurisdiction of case originating in justice court and coming from the county court, where the record fails to show that the latter court acquired jurisdiction. Daugherty v. Daugherty (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 642.

Where a case is taken from a justice to the county court and there appealed to the court of civil appeals, the latter acquires no jurisdiction, unless the record shows that the county court had jurisdiction to dispose of the case on its merits. Simpson v. Alexander & Wofford (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 748.

If defendant in the county court amended his pleadings so as to raise issues not raised by his pleadings in the justice's court, the record should in some way affirmatively show this. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. O. D. Havard Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 656.

10. —— Successive appeals or proceedings for review.—Where separate appeals are taken by the several defendants in a joint judgment, the original statement of facts filed on appeal by one of defendants may be used on the appeal of a codefendant. Badu v. Satterwhite (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 929.

Plaintiff, upon suing out a writ of error after his appeal was dismissed, could take the statement of facts from the files in the appeal and file it with the papers in the writ of error, and the statement will not be stricken because of his failure to obtain an order for that purpose. Bargna v. Bargna (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1156.

11. Scope and contents of record—In general.—On appeal from the judgment of a court in a garnishment proceeding the record must contain the affidavit, the bond for writ of garnishment and the writ of garnishment, or their absence must be accounted for. B. & B. Co. v. Moore Bros., 4 App. C. C. § 145, 16 S. W. 780; Insurance Co. v. Friedman, 74 T. 56, 11 S. W. 1046.

The original papers should not be sent up on appeal, except on the order of the trial court. Shirley & Holland v. Conner, 98 T. 63, 80 S. W. 984, 81 S. W. 284.

Affidavits filed after trial, and relating to the action of the trial judge on bills of exception, should not be incorporated in the record on appeal. Hamilton v. Saunders, 37 C. A. 141, 84 S. W. 253.

A party having the right to prosecute an appeal after the entry of a judgment nunc pro tunc held entitled to make and bring up to the appellate court an entire record of law and fact relating to the questions that arose on the original cause. S. W. Slayden & Co. v. Palmo (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 908.

Under the facts in an action to recover land, held unimportant that certain instruments are described in that part of the record made up by the stenographer as his report of the trial. Dignowity v. Lindheim (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 966.

A stenographer's notes, containing the detailed proceedings of the trial, are not properly a part of the appellate record, and cannot be considered by the court on appeal. Kell Milling Co. v. Bank of Miami (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 325.

12. —— Pleadings and proceedings relating thereto.—A motion to dismiss an appeal because the transcript fails to show that any order was made disposing of the motion for new trial will be denied, where the motion itself shows that such orders were in fact made. Ward v. Powell (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 851.

To show that special exceptions in pleadings were acted upon by the court, such action must be shown by final judgment or order, and cannot be shown by an entry on the pleadings containing such exceptions. Beaumont Irrigating Co. v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 545.

Where it is required that the record show notes declared on as the basis of plaintiff's action, the statement of facts, and not the transcript, is the proper place for such evidence. Lester v. First State Bank of Bovina (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 661.

Orders of the trial court on exceptions should be entered on the minutes with the exception to the ruling, and bills of exception to such orders should not be taken. Reasonover v. Riley Bros. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 220.

13. —— Interlocutory orders.—Record held to preclude review of order overruling motion for continuance. Stone v. Houghton (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1081.

14. —— Evidence.—Where the court, on a contested application for a change of venue, considers the evidence received on a prior application on the same grounds, such evidence may be included in the bill of exceptions. Freeman v. Ortiz (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 113.

15. —— Verdict, findings, or decision.—The attempt of the trial judge to file findings of fact and conclusions of law after the time prescribed by Art. 2075, does not make the findings and conclusions a part of the record on appeal. Emery v. Barfield (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 311.

Where the trial court in overruling a motion for a new trial made additional findings, such findings were not a part of the record and could not be considered for any purpose. Wagner v. Geiselman (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 524.

16. —— Proceedings on motion for new trial.—Under district and county courts rule 53, newly discovered evidence, presented to the trial court as a part of a motion for new trial, held properly before the court on appeal without a statement of facts or bill of exceptions. Thomason v. Mason (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1075.

17. Necessity of bill of exceptions or statement of facts.—See, also, Chapter 19 of this title.

18. —— Decisions not otherwise reviewable.—If the record contains no statement of facts, alleged errors in instructions, admission of testimony, and the insufficiency of the evidence to support the verdict cannot be considered on appeal, unless there is error so apparent, when considered in connection with the pleading and verdict, as to show that the verdict was rendered by improper instructions, or upon an issue not made by the pleadings. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Hood, 55 C. A. 334, 118 S. W. 1119.

19. Authentication and certification.—See, also, Art. 2114.

Where, on appeal from a district court judgment reversing a probate order, the record contains certain pleadings and proceedings purporting to be those of the probate court, but there is no approval of the trial judge, or certificate that such facts were produced by the trial, or any statement of facts, the appellate court cannot presume that proceedings referred to by the trial judge were those found in the record. Arthur v. Reed, 26 C. A. 574, 64 S. W. 831.

Assignments of error to the refusal of special instructions, having no file marks and not shown by the record or indorsement thereon to have been submitted to or acted upon by the trial court, will be overruled. Big Valley Irr. Co. v. Hughes (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 715.

20. Transmission and filing—Necessity and duty of filing in appellate court.—Failure of the clerk to send up a statement of facts is no excuse for a defect in the record. Shaw v. Schuch (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 688.

21. Defects, objections, amendment, and correction—Effect of defects in general.—The records on appeal should be brought into the court on appeal strictly in compliance with the rules of court. Ginners' Mut. Underwriters of San Angelo, Tex., v. Wiley & House (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 629.

22. —— Effect of omissions.—A motion not in the records filed in the appellate court cannot be considered. McAnally v. Haynie, 17 C. A. 521, 42 S. W. 1049.

An assignment of error in refusing a continuance on withdrawal of an agreement from the jury cannot be considered where the agreement is not in the record. Robbins v. Ginnochio (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 34.

An assignment of error based upon evidence not appearing in the record must be overruled. Seymour Opera House Co. v. Thurston, 18 C. A. 417, 45 S. W. 815.

An appeal from a refusal to retax costs will be dismissed, where the record contains nothing to show jurisdiction to entertain the appeal. Smith v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1177.

23. —— Time to amend or make objections.—A motion to correct an imperfect record on a writ of error held made too late. Vineyard v. McCombs (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 482.

A party applying for the correction of a record on a writ of error must make his application without delay after discovering the incorrectness, and show that its condition is not attributable to a want of diligence. Id.

Plaintiff in error held not entitled to a correction of the record after the dismissal of the writ of error. Aspley v. Alcott, 45 C. A. 10, 99 S. W. 1133.

A motion in the court of civil appeals to perfect the record is in time if filed before the submission of the case. Wallace & Reed v. Reed Bros., 102 T. 314, 116 S. W. 35.

It is too late after a case is decided on appeal to suggest a diminution of the record. Sanders v. Eastland Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 941.

Clerical error in copying document into the record on appeal may be corrected by the trial court. Ward v. Baker (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 620.

24. —— Amendment or correction in lower court.—Where appeal bond was duly filed and lost, and another filed by agreement, on motion to vacate judgment, held, the court should allow opportunity to substitute the lost bond in lower court, and bring it up by certiorari. Gilbough v. Stahl Bldg. Co., 91 T. 621, 45 S. W. 385.

On motion to strike statement of facts from the record on appeal, held, that the court would allow appellee a reasonable time to apply to the lower court for a correction of the record. City of Brenham v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 321.

Where a charge, after it had been given, was changed without authority of the court, it had authority to make correction in the record after adjournment of term and pending appeal. Johnston v. Arrendale (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 44.

Where appellee claimed that conclusions of law and fact had not been filed in the time stated by the record, the appellate court could delay a case until the record had been corrected in the trial court. Kimbell v. Powell, 57 C. A. 57, 121 S. W. 541.

Appellee held barred by laches from obtaining a stay of decision on appeal, pending proceedings in the trial court to correct the record, so as to show that conclusions of law and fact were filed too late. Id.

Where the record on appeal fails to show that the trial court had jurisdiction, the proper practice is to reverse the judgment, and, if the jurisdictional defect is one which can be remedied, to remand it to the trial court, with instructions to dismiss, unless the jurisdictional facts are made to appear. Ware v. Clark (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 618.

25. —— Amendment in appellate court.—The court of civil appeals cannot correct record on affidavits. Willis v. Smith, 90 T. 635, 40 S. W. 401.

The court of appeals cannot receive and consider affidavits and certificates of the clerk of the trial court that the record on appeal is incorrect. Southern Pac. Co. v. Winton, 27 C. A. 503, 66 S. W. 477.

The failure of an appellant to correct a record, as authorized by the appellate court, and the commencing of proceedings in error, held to authorize the grant of appellee's motion for affirmance, and the dismissal of the appeal and writ of error. Rio Grande & E. P. Ry. Co. v. Mendoza (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 578.

Where motion to affirm on certificate for absence of a transcript is overruled, but the court of its own motion strikes out the transcript for violations thereby of its rules, it will give leave to file a corrected transcript. Pryor v. Krause (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 972.

26. —— Certiorari or other proceedings to bring up record.—See notes under Art. 1592.

27. Conclusiveness and effect, impeaching and contradicting—Conclusiveness of record.—On an issue between counsel and the trial judge as to what was testified to by any witness, the certificate of a presiding judge is conclusive. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Hawes (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 325.

Under district court rules 13, 14 (20 S. W. xii), where, on appeal, the original petition was not sent up, allegation in the amended petition as to the date of filing the original held conclusive. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Speights, 94 T. 350, 60 S. W. 659.

The appellate court can only look to the transcript in determining the rights of parties, and must be governed thereby except in cases involving its jurisdiction. American Cent. Ins. Co. v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 956.

In the absence of a showing by the judgment record of the sustaining of a demurrer to the petition, it will be presumed on appeal that such was not the case. Robinson v. Chamberlain, 29 C. A. 170, 68 S. W. 209.

The court on appeal can pass on the case only as it is made by the record. Wright v. Deaver, 52 C. A. 130, 114 S. W. 165.

The court on appeal is bound by a charge as stated in the record and must assume that it is there correctly stated, where it differs from the statement thereof in the appellant's brief. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Bennett (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 151.

Whether the trial court had jurisdiction held required to be determined from the record. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hood (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 982.

Where the record shows that a special charge was requested by both parties, and the charge, although signed by defendant's attorney, alone, stated that a verbal request that it be given was made by plaintiff's attorney, plaintiff cannot complain of it. Settle v. San Antonio Traction Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 15.

Recital in the judgment that defendant was "duly served and cited" is not conclusive on appeal, the original petition showing service was sought on defendant's local agent, and the citation in the record showing it was served on such agent. American Nat. Ins. Co. v. Rodriguez (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 871.

28. —— Conflict in record.—See, also, notes under Art. 2068.

On appeal, the admission of testimony cannot be objected to as erroneous, where the bill of exceptions show that the testimony was admitted, but the contrary appears from the statement of facts agreed upon by the parties. Scott v. Childers, 24 C. A. 349, 60 S. W. 775.

Where there was a discrepancy as to evidence in the bill of exceptions and the agreed statement of facts, the latter should control in considering the evidence on appeal. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Moore, 28 C. A. 603, 68 S. W. 559.

An assignment of error complaining of the competency of a witness will be overruled, where he does not appear to have given the testimony stated in the bill of exceptions. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Anchonda, 33 C. A. 24, 75 S. W. 557.

A deputy official stenographer's certificate that a bill of exceptions contains all the evidence is overcome by the trial judge's certificate that other evidence was adduced. Smith v. Norton (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 733.

An assignment of error held not supported by the record. Frantz v. Masterson (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 740.

29. —— Impeaching or contradicting.—A certificate made by the district clerk to contradict the record as to the time when a case was tried is not permissible. Brown v. Boles (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 120.

The record showing the date of filing the trial court's conclusions of law and fact cannot be impeached on appeal by statement of the judge. Kimbell v. Powell, 57 C. A. 57, 121 S. W. 541.

The record showing the date of filing the trial court's conclusions of law and fact cannot be impeached on appeal by affidavit. Id.

30. Questions presented for review—Limitation by scope of record in general.—The court will not consider a question not presented by the record. Wilkinson v. Stanley (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 606.

An objection that administration is void because not begun until 15 years after decedent's death cannot be considered where the record does not show when administration was commenced. State v. Zanco's Heirs, 18 C. A. 127, 44 S. W. 527.

Where a cause was tried by the court, and there is no statement of facts in the record, the appellate court must look alone to the findings for its conclusions of fact. Peters Shoe Co. v. Murray, 31 C. A. 259, 71 S. W. 977.

In trespass to try title, agreements of parties filed in court will not be considered on appeal, when not referred to in trial court's conclusions, nor shown to have been presented to or acted on by trial judge in deciding the case. Zimpelman v. Power, 38 C. A. 263, 85 S. W. 69.

Assignments of error based on exceptions not contained in the record will not be considered on appeal. Lee v. Hickson, 40 C. A. 632, 91 S. W. 636.

Alleged error will not be considered on appeal, where the record does not show that the question was asked or relied upon in the trial court. Ben C. Jones & Co. v. Smith, 49 C. A. 637, 109 S. W. 1111.

A question not raised by the record will not be considered on appeal. State v. Adams (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 674.

Where appellees except to the court's ruling, and give notice of appeal, but fail to perfect their appeal, the question to which they excepted is not before the court on appeal. Oden v. Barber (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 676.

The appellate court can only consider the facts contained in the record in determining what the proceedings were below. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 890.

In order to review a judgment as to matters depending upon the facts, the appellate court should be placed in possession in the authorized manner of all the material facts upon which it was based. Chickasha Milling Co. v. Crutcher (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 355.

In determining whether an application for a continuance was properly overruled, the appellate court can only consider the facts stated in the application, as shown by the trial court's record. Continental Lumber & Tie Co. v. Wilroy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 840.

31. —— Errors on face of record.—See, also, Arts. 1607 and 1612.

In dealing with the record as to fundamental errors, matters depending on an examination of the evidence cannot be looked to. Thompson v. Cole (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 923.

32. —— Jurisdiction of lower court.—Where amount in controversy is below the original jurisdiction of the district court, the requisites necessary to confer jurisdiction by appeal from justice must appear, to enable the court of civil appeals to review. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Jordan (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 1105.

Where, on appeal from a district court judgment on appeal from a justice, the record failed to show any bond filed in the justice court, or how the district court acquired jurisdiction, the appeal will be dismissed. Penn Fire Ins. Co. v. Pounders (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 666.

33. —— Venue.—The action of the court in sustaining a plea as to change of venue will not be reviewed, where the record does not show the evidence. Chamberlain v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 624.

34. —— Pleading.—Where the record does not show that the exceptions to the petition were acted on, an assignment of error to rulings thereon will not be considered. Hornung v. Schramm, 22 C. A. 327, 54 S. W. 615.

Exceptions which do not appear from the record to have been presented to or acted on by the trial court will not be considered on appeal. Karnes County v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 656.

Rulings on demurrer cannot be reviewed, where the record does not contain the pleading embracing the demurrer, nor any judgment or order disposing of the same. United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Fossati (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 1038.

Where the record contains no ruling sustaining a special demurrer to the petition, an assignment complaining thereof is not reviewable on appeal. Calhoun v. Texas Quarry & Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 671.

An assignment that the court erred in overruling a special exception to plaintiff's supplemental petition held not reviewable where the record failed to indicate that such exception was called to the attention of the court. Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Co. v. James, 41 C. A. 560, 91 S. W. 654.

Where the terms of the original petition are stated in the record on appeal, but there is nothing to show what was set up in an amended petition, the court cannot pass on the question whether the amended petition alleges a new cause of action. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Pearce, 43 C. A. 387, 95 S. W. 1133.

Where there is material difference between a special charge as shown by the record on appeal and the one actually requested, an assignment of error in its refusal must be overruled. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Worcester, 45 C. A. 501, 100 S. W. 990.

Exceptions to plaintiff's petition not shown by the record to have been ruled on by the trial court cannot be reviewed on appeal. Pullman Co. v. Vanderhoeven, 48 C. A. 414, 107 S. W. 147.

Where it does not appear from the record that the general demurrer to the petition was acted on below, the question of the sufficiency of the petition is not presented. Poitevent v. Scarborough, 103 T. 111, 124 S. W. 87.

The record on appeal from a judgment of the county court rendered on appeal from justice's court held not to show error in overruling a demurrer to the written answer filed in the county court. Barnes v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 610.

The original petition not being in the record, held the question of whether the amended petition sets up a new and different cause of action cannot be considered. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 235.

An assignment of error, based on a special exception on which the record fails to show any ruling, will not be considered on appeal. Edmondson v. Coughran (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 435.

It cannot be said there was error in overruling the exception to an amended petition that it claimed damages to cattle not mentioned in the original petition, where the amended petition does not show such fact, and the original petition is not in the record. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Crews (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1049.

Where it does not affirmatively appear from the pleadings when the original petition in the action was filed, the court on appeal may not hold that the trial court erred in overruling a special exception to an amended petition based on the defense of limitations. Moss v. Slack (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1063.

Where a petition to which a demurrer was sustained is not in the record, and the supplemental petition merely replies to matters alleged in the answer the court, on appeal from a judgment for defendant, will not review rulings striking out the supplemental petition, sustaining the demurrer, and rendering judgment for defendant, though it is claimed that the judgment is not justified by the answer. Ingalls v. Orange Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 304.

The ruling of the court on exception to a petition on the ground that the approval of a receiver's contract was not shown was not reviewable, where contract itself did not appear in the record. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 348.

Exceptions to allegations of the original petition could not be reviewed, where such petition was not included in the record, and the allegations in question were not pleaded in the amended petition thereafter filed. Lehmann v. Medack (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 438.

35. —— Questions on interlocutory proceedings.—The appellate court will not consider, on exceptions, whether a juror, whom the appellant was compelled to challenge peremptorily, was disqualified and should have been excused for cause, when the record fails to reveal that the appellant had exhausted his challenges before the jury was complete. Railway Co. v. Terrell, 69 T. 650, 7 S. W. 670.

Where the petition and answer on which an interlocutory order is based are not before the court, the dissolution of the order will not be reviewed. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Baudat, 18 C. A. 595, 45 S. W. 939.

Where the evidence in a proceeding for reinstatement of a case is not in the record, the order reinstating the case cannot be reviewed, although the reasons given by the court may not seem sufficient. Ragsdale v. Groos (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 256.

Error in refusing continuance cannot be considered, where the record does not show application, and that it was called to the court's attention. Bumpass v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 1103.

Alleged error in granting motion to dismiss as to a certain defendant before the proof was heard held not open to review on appeal under the record. Scalfi v. Graves, 31 C. A. 667, 74 S. W. 795.

36. —— Conduct of trial or hearing.—Procedure in trial cannot be reviewed, there being nothing in the record to show the facts charged, except statements in defendant's motion for a new trial. Winerich v. State (Cr. App.) 40 S. W. 262.

Error in refusing a requested charge with reference to argument of counsel is not reviewable where the record does not show that such argument was made. Souther v. Hunt (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 359.

Where counsel's language in commenting on an issue as to which there was no evidence was not shown, and no suggestion as to its impropriety or request for an instruction was made, no error was shown. Southern Kansas Ry. Co. of Texas v. Shinn (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 636.

37. —— Admissibility of evidence.—Refusal to allow defendant to testify that certain letters had been lost will not be reviewed, where there is no statement that he would have testified to the loss, and the absence thereof is not shown. Ivey v. Bondies (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 916.

On appeal, the record held such that an assignment of error to the exclusion of certain testimony could not be considered. Ramm v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 426.

The erroneous admission of evidence to impeach the reputation of a witness for defendant was no ground for reversal, where it did not appear on appeal what the testimony of impeached witness was. Texarkana & Ft. S. Ry. Co. v. Frugia, 43 C. A. 48, 95 S. W. 563.

Alleged error in the admission of testimony will not be considered where the record does not disclose what objection was made thereto. Northern Texas Traction Co. v. Caldwell, 44 C. A. 374, 99 S. W. 869.

Where the record does not set out the evidence on a certain issue, the appellate court will not decide on the admissibility of evidence pertaining to such issue. Seago v. White, 45 C. A. 539, 100 S. W. 1015.

An appellate court cannot review alleged error in excluding testimony of one who attempted to qualify as an expert, where it does not appear what his testimony would have been. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Quinn (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 397.

An assignment of error to the sustaining objections to certain questions held not reviewable where the record did not show the expected answers. Pierce v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 979.

An objection to the admission in evidence of a settlement for taxes on the ground that it did not cover the taxes sued for could not be reviewed, where the record did not show that the settlement was limited to other taxes than those in controversy. State v. Quillen (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 660.

A ruling sustaining an objection to a question will not be reviewed on appeal where the expected answer is not given. Hill v. Hanan & Son (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 245.

Overruling of objection to deposition held not reviewable, where the record did not show that the facts on which the objection was based were properly presented. Houston E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Lacy (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 414.

Objection to the refusal to permit a witness to answer a question is not reviewable if the record does not show what the answer would have been. Albrecht v. Lignoski (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 354.

38. —— Sufficiency of evidence.—The record on appeal held not such that it can be said the conclusions of fact of the trial court were not sustained by what it had before. Scott v. Cox, 30 C. A. 190, 70 S. W. 802.

In trespass to try title, a certificate of acknowledgment in a deed could not be regarded as proven, where the petition was generally denied and there were no facts or findings of fact in the record. Beaumont Imp. Co. v. Carr, 32 C. A. 615, 75 S. W. 327.

In order to review an objection that the trial court's finding is against the great weight and preponderance of the evidence, the record should contain a brief summary of the evidence upon such issues. Lufkin Land & Lumber Co. v. Noble (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1093.

39. —— Instructions.—Where the record on appeal does not contain any requested instruction in writing, signed by the appellants or their attorneys, no error in refusal to give charges requested by appellants is shown. Wren v. Howland, 33 C. A. 87, 75 S. W. 894.

An assignment of error for failure to give a requested charge will not be considered where there is nothing to indicate that any action was taken on the request. Athens Cotton Oil Co. v. Harper (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 323.

An assignment of error to the giving of instructions will not be considered on appeal where the instructions or the part thereof claimed to be objectionable are not set out in the record. Rivers v. Rivers (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 524.

The refusal of a requested charge presenting the defense of limitations will not be considered, where the assignment does not show that there was evidence presenting such issue. Mitchell v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 501.

Where the record failed to show that a request was presented to the trial court, refusal of such a request cannot be reviewed on appeal against the appellee's objection. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Rogers (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1011.

Alleged error in denial of instruction held not reviewable, where record was not clear whether it was given or refused. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Gray (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 728.

Assignments of error in the refusal to give certain special charges cannot be considered, where the transcript does not contain such requested charges. Ball v. Filba (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 685.

Where the record does not indicate whether or not a charge was given, no indorsement signed by the trial judge appearing, an assignment complaining of its refusal cannot be considered on appeal. Hughes-Buie Co. v. Mendoza (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 328.

40. —— Verdict, findings, or decision.—Where the evidence is not in the record, on an appeal from an order denying the relief sought by a writ of habeas corpus, the decision of the trial court will be sustained. Ex parte Whitney (Cr. App.) 61 S. W. 714.

Where there are no specific findings in the record, and the judgment is a general one, assignments of error questioning the findings of fact of the court cannot be considered except as involved in other assignments. Lake v. Earnest, 53 C. A. 555, 116 S. W. 865.

Assignments of error complaining of the insufficiency of the evidence to sustain certain findings held not reviewable in view of the fact that the judgment might have been rendered on other findings. Mortimore v. Affleck (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 51.

In the absence of anything in the record to show that it reached and acted on such a conclusion, held an assignment of error that the court erred in a certain conclusion of law cannot be sustained. Arline v. Clough (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 634.

Where the record on appeal fails to show that defendant's motion for findings of fact and conclusions of law was called to the attention of the trial court and showed no bill of exceptions reserved to the failure of the court to file findings and conclusions, the error if any must be deemed waived. Farmers' State Bank of Quanah v. Farmer (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 283.

41. —— Grounds for new trial.—Refusal of new trial to permit a party to introduce the laws of another state, which he was unable to procure at the trial, will not be reviewed; the laws relied on not being in the record. Griffin v. McKinney, 25 C. A. 432, 62 S. W. 78.

42. —— Judgment.—Error to refusal of a default judgment against one defendant is not reviewable where the record does not show that plaintiff asked for such judgment. Williams v. Brice (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 183.

Where the contract sued on is not incorporated in the record on appeal, the court will not determine whether the proper measure of damages was applied by the trial court. Cowart v. Walter Connally & Co. (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 973.

In the state of the record, held, that a judgment refusing to foreclose decedent's deed of trust against those parts of a tract included in conveyances to his children could not be disturbed. Nelson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1106.

43. —— Questions arising after judgment.—On appeal from a judgment assessing a maximum statutory penalty against it, defendant is not precluded from having its motion for a reduction of the penalty reviewed because the record fails to show that it was acted upon by the trial court; the case having been tried without a jury. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. State (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 867.

44. —— Costs.—Costs cannot be apportioned on appeal, where claim was not presented to the trial court nor sufficiently raised by the record. Sun Insurance Office v. Beneke (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 98.

An assignment that the court erred in refusing to hear evidence in support of a motion to tax the costs, failing to set out the evidence, is insufficient. Unknown Owner v. State, 55 C. A. 300, 118 S. W. 803.

45. —— Questions in intermediate courts.—Record held insufficient to show notice of appeal from justice's court to authorize a default judgment in county court under Art. 2393. Cox v. Franz (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 695.

46. Matters not apparent of record—Matters not included or shown in general.—The record showing no ruling in the court below upon the exceptions of the appellant, they will be held to have been waived. Huddleston v. Kempner, 1 C. A. 211, 21 S. W. 946.

On appeal to the district court from an order of the probate court denying a petition for appointment as guardian of an infant, in view of the condition of the record of the district court, held, that it will be presumed that such a trial de novo was had as is contemplated by the statute. Arthur v. Reed, 26 C. A. 574, 64 S. W. 831.

Deeds held not to be considered as not being properly incorporated in the record on appeal. Kimmey v. Abney (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 885.

The record held to show affirmatively, as it must, error in exclusion of impeaching evidence. Biggins v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 102 T. 471, 118 S. W. 125.

In circumstances stated, an affidavit held not subject to consideration on review of an order refusing a new trial. Freeman v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 733.

A stenographer's notes, containing the detailed proceedings of the trial, are not properly a part of the appellate record and cannot be considered. Kell Milling Co. v. Bank of Miami (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 325.

47. —— Matters appearing otherwise than by record.—Where plaintiff, having obtained judgment, which was not appealed from, intervened in another suit where the priority of his claim was determined, such priority cannot be reviewed on a transcript of the former suit. Vollmer v. San Antonio & G. S. Ry. Co., 92 T. 444, 49 S. W. 579.

The admissions of counsel for defendant in error in their brief cannot change the record so as to show certain action of the trial court which the record fails to disclose. Sanchez v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 689.

On a second appeal held that the court could not consider an agreement made on the former appeal. Grayson County Nat. Bank v. Hall (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 807.

The appellate court cannot consider a contract which is not a part of any pleading and is copied into the record independent of any statement of facts. Griffith v. Reagan (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 1167.

A statement from appellee's argument not contradicted by appellant, but not sustained by the record, cannot be found by the appellate court as a fact. City of Houston v. Bammel, 53 C. A. 336, 115 S. W. 661.

Where the contents of an original petition in a suit are stated in the brief of one of the parties, and the statement is not disputed in the brief of the other, the court may refer to the contents of the petition in its opinion, although they do not appear in the transcript. Ball v. Belden (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 20.

Quotations from the statement of facts on former appeal to another court of civil appeals held not to be considered. Hubbard City Cotton Oil & Gin Co. v. Nickels (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 489.

48. —— Evidence relating to question involved.—Evidence dehors the record cannot be considered by the appellate court. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. McCray (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 275.

The sufficiency of the description of land in a judgment cannot be reviewed, the only evidence as to which, outside of the decree, is not properly made part of the record. Craighead v. Bruff (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 764.

Where an affidavit controverting the facts established by a motion for a new trial is presented for the first time on appeal, it will not be considered part of the record. Fitzgerald v. Wygal, 24 C. A. 372, 59 S. W. 621.

The court on appeal cannot consider ex parte affidavits and a certificate of the trial court in aid of the record. Sterling v. Self, 30 C. A. 284, 70 S. W. 238.

On appeal by defendant in an action on a liquor dealer's bond, the appellate court could not consider evidence outside of the record and ex parte affidavits showing that since the trial of the action local option had been adopted in the county. Brooks v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 936.

The appellate court will not consider ex parte affidavits as to the conduct of the trial court, in the absence of anything in the record. Griffith v. Reagan (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 1167.

Certified copies of field notes of surveys accompanying a motion for rehearing on appeal cannot be considered. Jett v. Kansas City, M. & O. Ry. Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1174.

49. Transcript, matters to be shown, scope and contents, conclusiveness, defects, and other matters relating to transcript.—See Arts. 2109 and 2113.

50. Bills of exceptions and statements of facts, necessity, requisites, contents, etc.—See Chapter 19 of this title.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

CERTAIN INTERLOCUTORY PROCEEDINGS, ETC.

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on subject of stipulations, at end of chapter.]

1. MOTIONS

Article 2118. [1456] [1452] Motion docket.—The clerk shall keep a motion docket, in which he shall enter every motion filed in his court, the number of the suit in which it is made, if it relates to a suit pending, the names of the parties and their attorneys, with a brief statement of the nature of the motion. [Id. sec. 53. P. D. 1453.]

Motion by amicus curiæ.—See notes at end of Chapter 5 of this title.
Against attorneys.—See notes under Art. 332.
Against officers of county court.—See Art. 1769.
Against officers of district court.—See Art. 1707.
For failure to return execution.—See Art. 5697.
For arrest of judgment.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 17.
For security for costs.—See notes under Art. 2050.
For new trial.—See notes under Title 37, Chapter 17, and Title 41, Chapter 14.
For dissolution of injunction.—See notes under Art. 4664.
For additional findings by courts of civil appeals.—See notes under Art. 1638.
For rehearing in courts of civil appeals.—See Arts. 1641–1644.
For rehearing in supreme court.—See Arts. 1561–1565.
As constituting appearance.—See notes under Art. 1883.
Requisites of motion attacking pleading.—A motion attacking a pleading filed as trial amendment should be in writing, so as to preserve the exceptions contained therein. Ray v. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co., 40 C. A. 99, 88 S. W. 466.

Art. 2119. [1457] [1453] Service of motion, how made.—Whenever, in the commencement or progress of any suit, it shall be necessary to serve any notice on any party to such suit, such notice may be served either by an officer authorized by law to serve original process of the court in which the suit is brought or may be pending, or by any person who would be a competent witness upon the trial of such suit; every such notice may be served in like manner as an original writ, either on the party or his attorney of record; and the return of such notice, when made by an officer, or when made by any other person, and verified by the affidavit of such person, shall be received as evidence of the fact of service, subject to be repelled by contrary proof. [Acts May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 96. P. D. 1463.]

Notice by newspaper.—This article is authority for the service of the notice by the publisher of the newspaper and of his affidavit being taken as evidence of his serving it in the manner prescribed by statute. The affidavit was not void because the officer did not affix his seal to the jurat; it could have been amended by leave of court by affixing the seal. Young v. Jackson, 50 C. A. 351, 110 S. W. 79.

Art. 2120. [1458] [1454] Notice of motion in pending suits.—Notice of motions in a suit pending is given by the filing of the motion and entry thereof in the motion docket during the term.

Notice.—When on appeal a case has been reversed and a new trial ordered, but the case has not been placed on the docket until five days after the return of the mandate, when the suit is revived by plaintiff's heirs, the action is not a pending action, and notice thereof must be given as required by Art. 2122, requiring notice to be given the adverse party of a motion not relating to a pending suit, and verbal notice to the attorneys of record for the adverse party of the filing of a motion is not sufficient. Beck v. Avondino, 20 C. A. 330, 50 S. W. 207.

Parties are required to take notice of a motion filed in a pending case to set aside a judgment and to permit amendment of petition, and do not have to be served with notice thereof. Tammen v. Schaefer, 45 C. A. 522, 101 S. W. 470.

The doctrine which charges all parties to a judicial proceeding with notice of orders and judgments rendered therein is distinct from the lis pendens doctrine. J. M. West Lumber Co. v. Lyon, 53 C. A. 648, 116 S. W. 652.

This article is controlled by Art. 2157, and a defendant personally appearing in a cause is not chargeable with constructive notice of a motion alleging the loss of the original petition and praying for a substituted petition, the notice contemplated referring to notice in some of the modes prescribed by law. Crosby v. Di Palma (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 321.

Art. 2121. [1459] [1455] Motions disposed of, when.—All motions relating to a suit pending which do not go to the merits of the case may be disposed of at any time before the trial of the cause. [Id. sec. 54. P. D. 1454.]

Hearing.—The facts relied on to support a motion should be supported by evidence presented in some of the forms appropriate to the proceedings. Connor v. Zachry, 54 C. A. 188, 115 S. W. 867, 117 S. W. 177.

Art. 2122. [1460] [1456] Notice of motion not in pending suit.—Where a motion does not relate to a pending suit, and where the time of service is not elsewhere prescribed, the adverse party shall be entitled to three days' notice of the motion. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 200, sec. 5. P. D. 1408.]

Necessity and sufficiency of notice.—Merely calling the attention of the attorneys of record for the adverse party to the filing of a motion is insufficient. Beck v. Avondino, 20 C. A. 330, 50 S. W. 207.

While mandamus may be granted by a judge in vacation under this article, it should not be granted without notice. Old River Rice Irr. Co. v. Stubbs (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 494.

Art. 2123. [1461] [1457] Disposed of, when.—All motions not relating to a suit pending shall be taken up and disposed of in their order as other suits are required to be. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 55. P. D. 1455.]

Verified motion.—A motion supported by the affidavit of the party, and not controverted, is sufficient to warrant the court in acting upon the allegations so verified, without further testimony. Paschall v. Penry, 82 T. 673, 18 S. W. 154.

2. AUDITORS

Art. 2124. [1494] [1471] Auditor appointed, when.—Whenever, in any suit, it shall appear that an investigation of accounts or examination of vouchers is necessary for the purposes of justice between the parties, the court shall appoint an auditor or auditors to state the accounts between the parties and to make report thereof to the court as soon as may be. [P. D. 3760.]

In general.—An auditor should be appointed in a suit involving numerous or unusual matters of account. Whitaker v. Bledsoe, 34 T. 401.

When the suit involves a settlement of mercantile accounts running through a long period of time, and the transactions of a mercantile business conducted first by the testator and then by his executor, against whose estate a recovery is sought, for an alleged maladministration of the assets, the appointment of an auditor is not only proper but necessary. The duties of the auditor should as nearly as possible be confined to a statement of the account, and as far as practicable disputed questions of fact should not be referred to him. Dwyer v. Kalteyer, 68 T. 554, 5 S. W. 75.

Where the court refused to consolidate two suits, the denial of a motion for the appointment of an auditor in the suits as consolidated was proper. Vernor v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 641.

Effect of appointment by consent.—Consent to the appointment of an auditor does not admit a cause of action. Hughes v. Christy, 26 T. 230.

Waiver of objections.—Right to object to auditors on the ground that they were disqualified held waived. Moore v. Waco Building Ass'n, 19 C. A. 68, 45 S. W. 974.

Authority of auditors.—The accounts between the parties were referred to auditors by consent of parties. As to the matter submitted to them by the court (which embraced the accounts of both plaintiff and defendant as set forth in their pleading), it was their duty to endeavor to arrive at a just solution and to report their conclusions to the court. In doing this it was incumbent upon them to hear and determine the evidence as a jury would. If a dispute arose as to the law applicable to any particular, and they were not instructed by the court upon it, it was not improper for them to state what they supposed the law to be, and their conclusion of fact upon the hpothesis that their opinion of the law was correct. Richie v. Levy, 69 T. 133, 6 S. W. 685.

Auditors appointed to examine the accounts of the secretary of an association might properly construe a contract of the association with the secretary for remuneration. Moore v. Waco Building Ass'n, 19 C. A. 68, 45 S. W. 974.

On a partnership accounting where there was a dispute as to the date when the partnership commenced, an auditor, having no power to pass upon this question, properly reported the amount due each of the partners on each of the different theories concerning such date. Hengy v. Hengy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1127.

Art. 2125. [1495] [1472] Report to be verified by affidavit.—The report of the auditor shall be verified by his affidavit, stating that he has examined carefully the state of the account between the parties, and that his report contains a true statement thereof, so far as the same has come to his knowledge.

Construction of report.—The auditor's report in a proceeding for an accounting held not to duplicate a charge against one of the partners. Gresham v. Harcourt (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1058.

Art. 2126. [1496] [1473] Shall be admitted in evidence, but, etc.—The report of the auditor shall be admitted in evidence, but may be contradicted by evidence from either party where exceptions to such report, or of any items thereof, shall have been filed before the trial. [Id.]

Operation and effect of report and findings.—An auditor's report cannot be referred to in order to supply an omission in a special verdict. Mussina v. Shepard, 44 T. 623.

The correct findings of fact of auditors are conclusive if not excepted to, but if not correct they should be disregarded by the court. Ritchie v. Levy, 69 T. 133, 6 S. W. 685.

An auditor's report is conclusive as to the items not excepted to, and as to items excepted to it is of no force. Hill v. Dons (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 638.

An auditor's report, when excepted to in the absence of any evidence contradicting it, is sufficient to support a judgment rendered in accordance with the facts contained in it. Eagle Manf. Co. v. Hanaway, 90 T. 581, 40 S. W. 13.

An auditor's report held conclusive as to all items not excepted to. Boggs v. State, 46 T. 10; Moore v. Waco Building Ass'n, 19 C. A. 68, 45 S. W. 974.

An instruction that an auditor's report given in evidence was conclusive as to all items not excepted to, but as to those excepted to it should not be considered, held not erroneous. Herring v. Herring (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 865.

Where, in an action by heirs against an administrator for devastavit, the amount due from the estate to the administrator was submitted to an auditor, the auditor's report as to such amount was conclusive. Herbert v. Harbert (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 594.

An instruction which directed the jury to the testimony regarding issues raised by exceptions to an auditor's report, and to determine therefrom their merits, was proper. Farmer v. Cloudt (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 614.

An auditor's report, which has not been excepted to, is conclusive, and cannot be contradicted on the trial. Harper v. Marion County, 33 C. A. 653, 77 S. W. 1044.

Where the purpose of a reference is to have an account so made up that the undisputed items on either side may be eliminated from the contest, and the issue thereby narrowed to the questions in dispute, the items of the account in the report not excepted to by either party are conclusive, but those to which exception is made are without effect. Lone Star Salt Co. v. Blount, 49 C. A. 138, 107 S. W. 1163.

An auditor's report, in so far as it is excepted to, is prima facie evidence of what it exhibits, and, where not excepted to, it is conclusive. Hutton v. Graham (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1185.

The correctness of an auditor's report to which no objection or exception was filed cannot be assailed on a trial by other evidence, and evidence contradicting the report, although admitted, cannot form the basis of a verdict or judgment. Dupuy v. Dawson (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 698.

—— Report as evidence.—The report of an auditor, to which no valid objections exist, may be used in evidence on the trial. Whitehead v. Perie, 15 T. 7.

An auditor's report with reference to matters not properly arising under the pleadings is inadmissible in evidence. Barkley v. Tarrant County, 53 T. 251.

Where defendant consented to appointment of auditor to take testimony at a certain place, he could not object to introduction of auditor's report in evidence, on ground that such place was beyond the territorial jurisdiction of the court issuing the order. Gulf & B. V. Ry. Co. v. Winder, 26 C. A. 263, 63 S. W. 1043.

Exceptions and hearing thereof.—The exceptions should specially state wherein the error consists, and the evidence must be limited thereto. Whitehead v. Perie, 15 T. 7; Barkley v. Tarrant Co., 53 T. 251.

This article is recognized in Barkley v. Tarrant County, 53 T. 251, as affirming the rule established by judicial construction, and not as changing it. When the report of an auditor is regularly made after a proper hearing and determination of the account, a party who desires to contest one or more of its items must do so by timely and specific exceptions to the several particulars of debit or credit which he claims to have been included or excluded from the account as reported, or which, being included, he claims to be incorrect as to amount. Dwyer v. Kalteyer, 68 T. 554, 5 S. W. 75; Richie v. Levy, 69 T. 133, 6 S. W. 685.

Exceptions need not be read as pleadings to admit evidence in their support. Kendall v. Hackworth, 66 T. 499, 18 S. W. 104.

In an action to recover money claimed to be due in reference to a partnership, an instruction held not to require defendant to disprove items of the account of the auditor excepted to by him, and therefore was not erroneous. Farmer v. Cloudt (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 614.

The exceptions filed to an auditor's report become part of the pleadings in the case and the issues raised thereby are the issues to be tried. All other parts of the report not excepted to are conclusively settled according to the report. Lumpkin v. Jaquess, 31 C. A. 10, 71 S. W. 618.

Plaintiff, who did not except to an auditor's report, but who introduced evidence to negative the report, held not entitled to object to the effect given to what the whole testimony developed. Hutton v. Graham (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 1185.

—— Waiver of exceptions.—Exception to auditor's report in action for partnership accounting held not waived. Gresham v. Harcourt, 33 C. A. 196, 75 S. W. 808.

Art. 2127. [1497] [1474] Compensation of.—The court shall award reasonable compensation to such auditor, which shall be allowed and taxed in the bill of costs, as in other cases.

3. RECEIVERS

Art. 2128. [1465] When receivers may be appointed.—Receivers may be appointed by any judge of a court of competent jurisdiction in this state, in the following cases:

1. In an action by a vendor to vacate a fraudulent purchase of property; or by a creditor to subject any property or fund to his claim; or between partners or others jointly owning or interested in any property or fund, on the application of the plaintiff or any party whose right to or interest in the property or fund or the proceeds thereof is probable, and where it is shown that the property or fund is in danger of being lost, removed or materially injured.

2. In an action by a mortgagee for the foreclosure of his mortgage and sale of the mortgaged property, when it appears that the mortgaged property is in danger of being lost, removed or materially injured, or that the condition of the mortgage has not been performed, and the property is probably insufficient to discharge the mortgage debt.

3. In cases where a corporation has been dissolved, or is insolvent, or in imminent danger of insolvency, or has forfeited its corporate rights.

4. In all other cases where receivers have heretofore been appointed by the usages of the court of equity. [Acts of 1887, p. 119.]

1. Applicability of statute in general.
2. Nature of remedy.
3. Remedy incidental to other relief.
4. Pendency and condition of cause.
5. Existence of other remedy.
6. Persons entitled to receiver.
7. Discretion of court and review.
8. Jurisdiction of court.
9. —— Waiver of want of jurisdiction.
10. Grounds of appointment.
11. Application for appointment, requisites of.
12. Notice of application.
13. —— Curing error in appointment without notice.
14. Proof, nature and sufficiency of.
15. Questions determined on hearing.
16. Order of appointment.
17. —— Description and inclusion of property.
18. —— Duration of receivership in general.
19. —— Retention of receiver by vacating order of discharge.
20. —— Validity and partial invalidity.
21. Operation and effect of appointment in general.
22. Right to object to or attack appointment.
23. Wrongful receiverships, liability for damages.

1. Applicability of statute in general.—The United States circuit court in and for a district in a state has no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver of a railroad no part of which is in the state. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Gay, 86 T. 571, 26 S. W. 599, 25 L. R. A. 52.

This act does not apply to receivers appointed by the courts of the United States. Fordyce v. Du Bose, 26 S. W. 1050, 87 T. 78. But the jurisdiction of a federal court over a receiver ceases on his discharge, and the state courts have jurisdiction to enforce the rights of parties by its judgment according to the laws of this state. Railway Co. v. Johnson, 76 T. 421, 13 S. W. 463, 18 Am. St. Rep. 60, 151 U. S. 81, 14 Sup. Ct. 250, 38 L. Ed. 81; Railway Co. v. Crawford, 88 T. 277, 31 S. W. 176, 28 L. R. A. 761, 53 Am. St. Rep. 752; Railway Co. v. Bowles, 88 T. 634, 32 S. W. 880.

A receiver will not be appointed in favor of general creditors, whose rights rest on contract and are not reduced to judgment and who have acquired no lien. Cahn v. Johnson, 12 C. A. 304, 33 S. W. 1000.

The statute authorizes the appointment of temporary receivers since all receivers are temporary. Lynn v. First Nat. Bank of McGregor (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 228.

The solvency of defendant has nothing to do with right of plaintiff to appointment of a receiver under subdivision 2 of this article when he presents a case covering the grounds specified in the statute. Cotulla v. Am. Freehold Mort. Co. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 340.

Under statute authorizing appointment of receiver for corporation, applicant held required to establish his interest in the premises. Brenton & McKay v. Peck, 39 C. A. 224, 87 S. W. 898.

Where the petition does not disclose that the property in question "is in danger of being lost, removed or materially injured," there is no necessity for the appointment of receiver. The injunction protects the rights of the appellee. Haywood v. Scarborough, 41 C. A. 443, 92 S. W. 816.

The court may place in a receiver's hands the property of a corporation which has failed to pay its franchise tax. Ripy v. Redwater Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 311, 106 S. W. 474.

Subdivision 4 of this article is not a limitation on the right given in the three preceding subdivisions, but an extension of such remedy to all cases in which the remedy was allowed under the rules and usages of courts of equity; and when the facts in a particular case justify the appointment of a receiver under subdivisions 1, 2, or 3, the right to a receivership is a legal right and is not dependent on the general rules of practice in courts of equity. Shaw v. Shaw, 51 C. A. 55, 112 S. W. 127.

In an action by general creditors of an insolvent corporation to subject land and other property on which a director had a lien to the payment of corporate debts, on the ground that its insolvency was caused by the director's negligence, the securities could be marshaled without the appointment of a receiver. Galvin v. McConnell, 53 C. A. 486, 117 S. W. 211.

A creditor, having a valid debt against an insolvent corporation, secured by lien, is entitled to collect it in the legal way without the appointment of a receiver, unless the statute or equitable principles authorize a receivership under the circumstances; it not being presumed that the property will be needlessly sacrificed in enforcing the lien. Id.

The appointment of a receiver of a corporation in a suit by a minority stockholder in behalf of the corporation against defaulting officers does not necessarily result in the dissolution of the corporation, and the mere possibility that a dissolution may result does not prevent the appointment when that is the only adequate remedy for the fraudulent acts of the officers and majority stockholders, the continuance of which will work irreparable injury to the minority stockholder. Falfurrias Immigration Co. v. Spielhagen (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 164.

The part of the statute which authorizes the appointment of receivers in mortgage foreclosure actions is but declaratory of the rule in equity. Ferguson v. Dickinson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 221.

2. Nature of remedy.—Receivers should not be appointed except on a clear showing that applicant's rights imperatively demand it, and that he has no other adequate remedy. People's Inv. Co. v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 738.

The remedy of a receivership is in all cases to be cautiously applied. Galvin v. McConnell, 53 C. A. 486, 117 S. W. 211.

3. Remedy incidental to other relief.—The right to appoint a receiver is a mere ancillary proceeding, and does not exist when it is the only relief sought by the plaintiff. Hermann v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 195.

In an action for the appointment of receiver, no such invasion of rights held to have been shown as would justify the appointment. Id.

Having enjoined a sale of cattle under a mortgage, it was proper for the court to place them in the hands of a receiver pending the trial. Citizens' State Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 56 C. A. 515, 120 S. W. 1141.

4. Pendency and condition of cause.—A receiver for a partnership cannot be appointed before petition filed. Webb v. Allen, 15 C. A. 605, 40 S. W. 342.

5. Existence of other remedy.—Right of mortgage creditor to sue for rents, where outstanding lease would not afford rents enough to pay his debt, was not an adequate legal remedy, and apointment of receiver was proper. De Barrera v. Frost, 33 C. A. 580, 77 S. W. 637.

In proceedings to foreclose a vendor's lien, the fact that plaintiff was entitled to institute sequestration proceedings against the vendor in possession held no defense to an application for the appointment of a receiver. Cotulla v. American Freehold Land Mortgage Co. of London (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 339.

In an action by a married woman against her husband to establish her separate interest in property in his possession, the remedies of sequestration and attachment are not so adequate and complete as to prevent the appointment of a receiver. Shaw v. Shaw, 50 C. A. 363, 111 S. W. 223.

6. Persons entitled to receiver.—See notes under Art. 2154.

A creditor having no lien on the credits sought to be reached cannot, through the equitable proceedings of an injunction and a receivership, subject choses in action to the payment of his debt. Carter v. Hightower, 79 T. 135, 15 S. W. 223.

A creditor without an express lien or a judgment may apply for a receiver. Railway Co. v. Davis (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 693.

Where the creditors of a corporation ratify the arrangement by which a partnership succeeded to the assets of the corporation and the creditors accept the partnership as payor of their debts, they are not entitled to have a receiver appointed for the corporation. Tenney v. Ballard, Webb & Burnette Hat Co., 17 C. A. 144, 43 S. W. 296.

A receiver may be appointed pending suit, at the instance of a mortgage creditor, who is entitled by the mortgage to the rents and profits of the mortgaged property after default. De Barrera v. Frost, 33 C. A. 580, 77 S. W. 640.

A mortgagee held to possess such interest in the mortgaged premises as to justify the appointment of a receiver thereof on his application. Cotton v. Rand (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 266.

Where the owner of land makes a contract with owner of sawmill to move the mill on the land to saw the timber, the former acquires no interest in the mill that will entitle him to a receiver in the matter of the running of the mill and carrying out the contract. Wotring & Son v. Indemnity Imp. Co., 45 C. A. 300, 100 S. W. 359.

The court may appoint a receiver of firm property on application of one partner who has been ousted from the partnership management and has been refused a settlement of partnership matters. Rische v. Rische, 46 C. A. 23, 101 S. W. 850.

A partner excluded from participation in the management of the partnership affairs held entitled to have a receiver appointed. Holder v. Shelby (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 590.

7. Discretion of court and review.—The appointment of a receiver rests largely within the discretion of the court. Childress v. State Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 330; Cahn v. Johnson, 12 C. A. 304, 33 S. W. 1000; Harris v. Hicks, 13 C. A. 134, 34 S. W. 983; Houston Cemetery Co. v. Drew, 13 C. A. 536, 36 S. W. 802.

Whether the power to appoint a receiver should be exercised is a question addressed primarily to his discretion to be exercised in view of the probability or improbability of the success of plaintiffs in the suit and many facts, which might bear upon the question the appellate court has no power to ascertain. West v. Herman, 47 C. A. 131, 104 S. W. 432.

8. Jurisdiction of court.—The district court has authority to appoint a receiver to take charge of property involved in a suit for divorce and partition. Stone v. Stone, 18 C. A. 80, 43 S. W. 567.

Allegations in a petition held to give the district court jurisdiction of the subject-matter, and to appoint a receiver for the defendant corporation. Ripy v. Redwater Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 311, 106 S. W. 474.

Appointment of a receiver for a corporation and an order directed against the assignee of the corporation under a former deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors held to be within the power of the court. American Bonding Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 652.

9. —— Waiver of want of jurisdiction.—In an action for the appointment of a receiver for a corporation whose principal place of business is in another county, the waiver of issuance of service and the appearance in the case by its officers and directors constitute a waiver of the corporation's right to have a receiver appointed for its property in the county where its principal office is located. Ripy v. Redwater Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 311, 106 S. W. 474.

10. Grounds of appointment.—In a suit between devisees under a will against parties claiming under a sheriff's sale, under a judgment against one of two executors, it is not the duty of the court to appoint a receiver or to call in the executor to protect the estate in the litigation. Bennett v. Kiber, 76 T. 385, 13 S. W. 220.

Facts held to justify the appointment of a receiver. Gassaway v. Heidenheimer (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 343.

An assignment for benefit of creditors by an insolvent corporation cannot prevent the appointment of a receiver. Milam County Co-operative Cotton & Mercantile Alliance v. Tennent-Stribling Shoe Co. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 331.

Creditors held to have waived the right to appointment of a receiver by ratifying the transfer of a corporation's property to a partnership composed of the officers of the corporation. Tenney v. Ballard, Webb & Burnette Hat Co., 17 C. A. 144, 43 S. W. 296.

Equity cannot appoint a receiver for a corporation in a stockholder's suit for fraud or collusion of corporate authorities or ultra vires acts of directors or the corporation, but may redress the specific wrongs charged, and enjoin such misconduct. People's Inv. Co. v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 738.

Mortgagee is not entitled to a receiver, where the value of the property is twice the amount of the debt. Rogers v. Southern Pine Lumber Co., 21 C. A. 48, 51 S. W. 26.

The court can appoint a receiver upon the forfeiture of the charter of a corporation, and without the application of any one interested in the property. A distinction is drawn between a dissolution and the forfeiture of a charter as is shown by the language used, "dissolution, insolvency or forfeiture." San Antonio Gas Co. v. State, 22 C. A. 118, 54 S. W. 289.

Where a creditor has bought the interest of his debtor in a partnership and has sued for an accounting and obtained judgment, a receiver can be appointed to carry out the provisions of the judgment, which directs the sale of the property and the payment of the proceeds to those entitled thereto under the judgment. Jones v. Meyer Bros. Drug Co., 25 C. A. 234, 61 S. W. 556.

Receiver to collect and sell waste oil held improperly appointed in suit to enforce by injunction regulations for the protection of a petroleum field from fire. Hardy v. Abbott, 32 C. A. 66, 73 S. W. 1079.

The fact that a lease of property is void is no answer to an application of a mortgage creditor for the appointment of a receiver to collect and apply to his debts the rents and profits thereof. De Barrera v. Frost, 33 C. A. 580, 77 S. W. 637.

Evidence in an action to foreclose a vendor's lien held not such as to require the court of civil appeals to set aside a finding that the property was probably insufficient to pay the indebtedness, on which an order appointing a receiver was based. Cotulla v. American Freehold Land Mortgage Co. of London (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 339.

Refusal of a corporation to pay its debts is not ground for appointment of a receiver. Brenton & McKay v. Peck, 39 C. A. 224, 87 S. W. 898.

In a suit by a wife to cancel a deed of trust given by her and her husband on her separate property to secure his debt, held, that the appointment of a receiver to collect the rents was proper. De Barrera v. Frost, 39 C. A. 544, 88 S. W. 476.

A receiver of real estate held properly appointed. Cotton v. Rand (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 266.

A partner, applying for a receiver of the partnership assets who shows that he has been wrongfully excluded from participation in the management of the property, is entitled to the appointment of a receiver, without proving the insolvency of the copartner. Rische v. Rische, 46 C. A. 23, 101 S. W. 849.

In trespass to try title, where the lands are chiefly valuable as oil lands, the court has the power to appoint a receiver to take charge of and conserve the per cent. of oil output which will fall to the claimants in case they ultimately succeed in the suit. West v. Herman, 47 C. A. 131, 104 S. W. 432.

The court held authorized to appoint a receiver to take charge of community property in danger of removal on the application of the wife. Merrell v. Moore, 47 C. A. 200, 104 S. W. 514.

When a judgment is rendered canceling and dissolving the permit of a corporation to do business in Texas, the court can appoint a receiver to take charge of the properties of the corporation in the state. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State, 47 C. A. 299, 105 S. W. 852.

The forfeiture of corporate rights, being designated by the statute a ground for receiver, is conclusive on this question. Ripy v. Redwater Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 311, 106 S. W. 477.

In a suit by a married woman against her husband to establish her separate interest to property in his possession and to enjoin him from disposing of her interest and converting the proceeds to his own use the court has authority to appoint a receiver to manage the property pending the suit if the wife's interest can be best protected by such appointment. Shaw v. Shaw, 50 C. A. 363, 111 S. W. 226.

A receiver may be appointed for a solvent partnership, where, by reason of disagreements between the partners, it is necessary to a successful continuance of the business. Southwell v. Church, 51 C. A. 547, 111 S. W. 969.

The appointment of a receiver to take charge of the property of a railroad company held proper. United States & Mexican Trust Co. v. Delaware Western Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 447.

In an action by the director of an insolvent corporation to foreclose a lien on land, in which corporate creditors intervened to have a receiver appointed, claiming that the corporation became insolvent because of the director's negligence and mismanagement, the circumstances held not to justify the appointment of a receiver for the corporation. Galvin v. McConnell, 53 C. A. 486, 117 S. W. 211.

Mere insolvency of a corporation in equity is no ground for the appointment of a receiver though by this article in general terms seems to have been made so. It is not available for a mere creditor of insolvent corporation without a specific lien. Id.

To authorize the appointment of a receiver in an action for the recovery of an interest in real estate before final hearing, the one seeking such relief must show that he will probably succeed in establishing his right. Hardy Oil Co. v. Burnham (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 221.

A receiver cannot be appointed when no advantage will be gained thereby. Grandfalls Mut. Irr. Co. v. White (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 233.

The court will not appoint a receiver of a public service irrigation corporation to supply the water needed to irrigate the lands of those who have purchased water rights where there has been no misappropriation of corporate funds, and, where the owners of the lands have refused to pay further water rents on the ground that the damages, the failure of the corporation to comply with the contracts to furnish water exceeded the amount claimed for water rents, and where the only source of revenue of the corporation is the collection of water rents from the purchasers of water rights, and where it is not shown that a receiver has facilities for collecting those rents superior to those possessed by the corporation, or that sufficient funds for the operation of the irrigation plant can be collected by any one. Id.

In a suit for specific performance of a contract to sell and convey real estate, held, that the appointment of a receiver to preserve the property and rents pending litigation was warranted. Leonard v. King (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 742.

The failure of the mortgagor to insure the property and pay taxes held not to authorize the appointment of a receiver. Ferguson v. Dickinson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 221.

11. Application for appointment, requisites of.—The directors of a corporation or trustees for stockholders and creditors are the proper parties to a proceeding for the appointment of a receiver. McIlhenny v. Binz, 80 T. 9, 13 S. W. 655, 26 Am. St. Rep. 705.

Bill for appointment of receiver held to state no ground therefor. City Nat. Bank v. Dunham, 18 C. A. 184, 44 S. W. 605.

Allegations held to justify a receivership for firm assets at the instance of simple contract creditors. Byrne v. First Nat. Bank, 20 C. A. 194, 49 S. W. 706.

Where a petition to wind up the affairs of a corporation states no cause of action, there is no right to the appointment of a receiver. Farwell v. Babcock, 27 C. A. 162, 65 S. W. 509.

If the petition does not make the showing required by this article, there is no necessity for the appointment of receiver. Haywood v. Scarborough, 41 C. A. 443, 92 S. W. 816.

Petition for appointment of a receiver of partnership property held to allege the existence of the partnership to warrant the appointment on a proper ground being shown therefor. Rische v. Rische, 46 C. A. 23, 101 S. W. 849.

A petition held to warrant the appointment of a receiver for the reason that defendant was in imminent danger of insolvency. Ripy v. Redwater Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 311, 106 S. W. 474.

A petition for the appointment of a receiver of a firm, states a good cause of action for a dissolution and an accounting justifying the appointment of a receiver. Smith v. Lamon (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 304.

12. Notice of application.—Receiver should not be appointed without notice except in emergency. Webb v. Allen, 15 C. A. 605, 40 S. W. 342.

Appointment of a receiver, without notice and before filing of petition, to take charge of property, held not ground for reversing judgment foreclosing lien thereon. Scott v. Cox (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 802.

In the absence of statutory provision, rules of equity governing proceedings for the appointment of a receiver require that notice of the application therefor shall be given except in certain cases. Cotton v. Rand (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 266.

A receiver held properly appointed without notice. Id.

To justify the ex parte appointment of a receiver, facts showing the necessity for such action should be disclosed. Haywood v. Scarborough, 41 C. A. 443, 92 S. W. 815.

In receivership proceedings, the notice required is only as to defendant, and an appearance by defendant without objection to the appointment is conclusive as to creditors, unless there is collusion or fraud. Ripy v. Redwater Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 311, 106 S. W. 474.

Where it was claimed that a receiver was appointed without notice, the court was entitled to take proof that the objecting party had agreed to the proceedings, and this without a trial amendment of the pleadings. Southwell v. Church, 51 C. A. 547, 111 S. W. 969.

Allegations not sufficient to warrant the appointment of a receiver without notice, because it was not shown that the property was in danger of being lost or materially injured. Sachs v. Goldberg (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 600.

To warrant appointment of a receiver on an ex parte hearing, the petition must not only state facts sufficient to authorize the appointment, but must further show that there is no other remedy to protect plaintiff, and that there is such pressing necessity for haste in the appointment that plaintiff would probably suffer irreparable loss if the appointment should be delayed until notice to defendant and full hearing. Security Land Co. v. South Texas Development Co. (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1191.

Where a defendant in a suit for the appointment of a receiver moved to revoke the appointment made without notice and filed an answer to the merits, the appointment cannot be attacked on appeal as made without notice. Smith v. Lamon (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 304.

Petition by parties subscribing fund for construction of railroad, asking that title be transferred to them or lien created by the contract of subscription foreclosed, held not to show such an emergency as justified the ex parte appointment of a receiver. Butts v. Davis (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1015.

13. —— Curing error in appointment without notice.—An appearance by the directors of a corporation held to cure any error as to the appointment of a receiver for the corporation without notice. Ripy v. Redwater Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 311, 106 S. W. 474.

14. Proof, nature and sufficiency of.—Affidavit on application for a receiver can only be used in support of the allegations of the petition. Webb v. Allen, 15 C. A. 605, 40 S. W. 342.

The district court held authorized under the evidence to appoint a receiver in vacation to preserve the property of an estate until an appeal from an order of the county court refusing to appoint a temporary administrator could be heard. Long v. Richardson, 26 C. A. 197, 62 S. W. 964.

An application filed by the state addressed to the court, stating facts under the statute which would authorize the appointment of a receiver and reasons why the appointment should be made, is in the nature of a pleading and upon which the action of the court may be predicated. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State, 47 C. A. 299, 105 S. W. 851.

In an action by a wife against her husband to establish her separate interest in property in his possession, and to prevent his disposing of her interest therein, and converting the proceeds to his own use, and for a divorce, a receiver of the property could be appointed solely upon plaintiff's affidavit therefor, notwithstanding defendant's denial by affidavit of all of the allegations of the petition. Shaw v. Shaw, 51 C. A. 55, 112 S. W. 124.

In trespass to try title, wherein plaintiffs sought the appointment of a receiver, evidence held not to show that plaintiffs would probably succeed on a final trial. Hardy Oil Co. v. Burnham (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 221.

A receiver should not be appointed on the allegations of a petition denied by the answer. Falfurrias Immigration Co. v. Spielhagen, 103 T. 339, 127 S. W. 164.

On an application for appointment of a receiver between partners in transactions concerning land and other deals, the showing of applicant in view of the counter affidavits held not to show that the property or funds were in danger of being lost, removed, or materially injured, as required by this article. Sanborn v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 855.

A sworn petition stating a cause of action and facts justifying the appointment of a receiver is sufficient proof to justify the appointment. Smith v. Lamon (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 304.

15. Questions determined on hearing.—The court, on an application by a partner for the appointment of a receiver of partnership assets, held not required to pass on the question of the rights between the partners, though it will not appoint a receiver unless the partner is entitled to a dissolution of the partnership. Rische v. Rische, 46 C. A. 23, 101 S. W. 849.

The court in a suit to establish a joint interest of the parties in alleged firm property will not in determining appointment of a receiver determine property rights of plaintiff based on the sufficiency of his pleading a tender; that being a question for the trial on the merits. Ramsey v. Bird (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 671.

16. Order of appointment.—Where plaintiff, after appealing to the district court from an order of the county court refusing to appoint a temporary administrator, filed a bill for the appointment of a receiver, and the district court in vacation appointed M. temporary administrator, M. will be treated as a receiver. Long v. Richardson, 26 C. A. 197, 62 S. W. 964.

An appointment of a receiver held in effect a reappointment after a hearing, and valid, though the original appointment was illegal because made without notice. Cotton v. Rand (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 266.

The court's refusal to set aside an original order appointing a receiver on a motion to vacate the same after a trial amendment alleging new facts was in effect a reappointment of the receiver. Southwell v. Church, 51 C. A. 547, 111 S. W. 969.

17. —— Description and inclusion of property.—An order appointing a receiver of real estate held to sufficiently describe the premises. Cotton v. Rand (Civ. App.) 92 S. W. 266.

In an action for a receiver, the inclusion in the receivership of certain property against which there was a judgment of sale held proper. Ripy v. Redwater Lumber Co., 48 C. A. 311, 106 S. W. 474.

18. —— Duration of receivership in general.—Where a wife sued to cancel a deed of trust given by her and her husband on her separate property to secure his debt, it was not error, in appointing a receiver, not to limit the receivership to the period during which the marriage relation might continue. De Barrera v. Frost, 39 C. A. 544, 88 S. W. 476.

19. —— Retention of receiver by vacating order of discharge.—Where an order discharging a receiver was entered in vacation, the court had jurisdiction at the following regular term to set aside the order and retain the receiver. Reardon v. White, 38 C. A. 636, 87 S. W. 365.

20. —— Validity and partial invalidity.—In an action against a railroad for injuries to a servant, defendant's answer held to sufficiently show a valid receivership. Adams v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co., 34 C. A. 413, 79 S. W. 79.

Where, under this article, an order is made appointing a receiver, that an inconsiderable portion of the property is personal property to which applicant had a right to a receiver would not sustain the order, the showing as to the real estate comprising the greater portion of the property involved being insufficient to sustain the order. Sanborn v. Nelson (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 855.

21. Operation and effect of appointment in general.—A pledgee with power of sale is not deprived of his rights by the appointment of a receiver. National Bank v. Benbrook S. F. Co. (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 297.

A judgment canceling a bill of sale was void where entered after the appointment of a receiver to take charge of all the property of the defendant, and the order of the appointment included in the receivership the property covered by the bill of sale. French v. McCready (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 894.

Appointment for indefinite time of receiver to collect rents and profits of married woman's property for mortgage creditor held not to deprive her of property without her consent and without process of law. De Barrera v. Frost, 33 C. A. 580, 77 S. W. 637.

Leases by a receiver held not determined by the dissolution of the receivership. Shaw v. Shaw, 51 C. A. 55, 112 S. W. 124.

The appointment of a receiver of a railroad company held not to oust the jurisdiction of the railroad commission granted by the stock and bond law. United States & Mexican Trust Co. v. Delaware Western Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 447.

The appointment of a receiver of a railroad company held not to dissolve the company nor to hinder the exercise of corporate functions except those involved in the management of the property by the receiver. Id.

The appointment of a receiver for an insolvent corporation on the intervention of creditors in a suit by a director thereof on notes owned by himself, secured by a lien, on the ground that the director had negligently permitted the corporation to become insolvent, would not destroy the director's lien. Galvin v. McConnell, 53 C. A. 486, 117 S. W. 211.

22. Right to object to or attack appointment.—Where plaintiff secured a receiver, a plea in reconvention for maliciously procuring the receivership held properly overruled, as being a collateral attack. Holland v. Preston (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 374.

The fact that a railroad company acquiesced in a void appointment of a receiver, who took charge of its property, held not to preclude it from showing a valid appointment in an action for personal injuries sustained while the receiver was operating the road. Trinity & S. Ry. Co. v. Brown (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 926.

A partner of a solvent firm who has agreed to the appointment of a receiver cannot thereafter object thereto. Southwell v. Church, 51 C. A. 547, 111 S. W. 969.

One intervening in receivership proceedings with knowledge of the application for the receivership and the answer cannot thereafter attack the receivership on the ground that the proceedings show upon their face fraud in appointing the receiver. Dilley v. Jasper Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 878.

23. Wrongful receiverships, liability for damages.—A receiver of a railway company collusively appointed will be held to be the agent of the company. Railway Co. v. Gay, 88 T. 111, 30 S. W. 543.

The appointment of a receiver, in a regular proceeding for that purpose upon hearing, cannot be made a basis for an action for damages against the applicant. Saunders v. Kempner (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 585.

Art. 2129. [1466] Who disqualified to act as receiver.—No party, attorney, or any person interested in any way in an action for the appointment of a receiver shall be appointed receiver therein, nor shall any person be appointed receiver in any case where the property lies within this state, unless the person appointed at the time of his appointment is a bona fide citizen of the state of Texas and qualified to vote; and, during the pendency of said receivership, the person or persons so appointed receiver shall keep and maintain actual residence within this state. And if in any action for the appointment of a receiver, the property sought to be placed in the hands of a receiver is situated partly in this state and partly without, then no person shall be appointed receiver of that part of the property situated in this state, unless such person at the time is a bona fide citizen of this state and qualified to vote; and, during the pendency of said receivership, the person or persons so appointed receiver shall keep and maintain actual residence within this state. [Acts 1889, p. 55.]

Disqualification of receiver.—Where the cashier of a bank, who was also a stockholder, was appointed receiver of a corporation which was indebted to the bank, the cashier's disqualification by reason of interest, as provided by this article, did not render the appointment void, but voidable. Roberts Telephone & Electric Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank of Abilene (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 629.

Validity of appointment of improper person.—An appointment of an improper person as a receiver is not void. Railway Co. v. Adams, 11 C. A. 198, 32 S. W. 733.

Art. 2130. [1467] When appointment void.—If any person should be appointed receiver of property situated in this state, or a part of which is situated in this state and a part without, who is not at the time a bona fide citizen of this state and entitled to vote, all such appointments shall be absolutely null and void in so far as the property situated within this state is concerned. [Id.]

Compensation under void appointment.—Where one appointed receiver of a corporation was not a citizen of the state, as required by this article, he was not entitled to compensation out of the fund for services rendered and expenses incurred as receiver, nor could the court lawfully compensate him for such services and expenses, by making an allowance therefor to his coreceiver. Roberts Telephone & Electric Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank of Abilene (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 629.

Art. 2131. [1468] Quo warranto to forfeit charter.—If any corporation owning property in this state and chartered by this state shall have a receiver of its property situated in this state appointed who is not at the time of appointment a bona fide citizen of this state and qualified to vote, said corporation shall thereby forfeit its charter; and it shall be the duty of the attorney general to at once prosecute a suit by quo warranto against said corporation so offending to forfeit its charter; and the court trying the cause shall forfeit the charter of said corporation upon proof that a person has been appointed receiver of its property situated in this state who is not qualified to act under the provisions of this article. [Id.]

See Alamo Club v. State (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 639.

Discretion of court.—Where there is a judgment forfeiting corporate rights, the court can, independent of the request of any one, exercise its judicial discretion whether it will or will not appoint a receiver. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State, 47 C. A. 299, 105 S. W. 851.

Parties in forfeiture actions.—A receiver appointed by federal court is not a necessary party to a suit in state court to forfeit a corporate franchise. Palestine Water & Power Co. v. City of Palestine, 91 T. 540, 44 S. W. 814, 40 L. R. A. 203.

Art. 2132. [1469] Oath and bond of receiver.—When a receiver is appointed, he shall, before he enters upon his duties, be sworn to perform them faithfully, and shall execute a bond, with three or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the court appointing him, in such sum as the court shall see proper to fix, conditioned that he will faithfully discharge all of the duties of receiver in the action [naming it] and obey the orders of the court therein. [Acts of 1887, p. 120.]

Actions on bonds, admissibility of evidence.—See notes under Art. 3687.
Questions for jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

Art. 2133. [1470] Receiver's power.—The receiver shall have power, under the control of the court, to bring and defend actions in his own name as receiver, to take charge and keep possession of the property, to receive rents, collect, compound for, compromise demands, make transfers, and generally to do such acts respecting the property as the court may authorize. [Id.]

31. Compensation for services of receiver and attorneys.

1. Property and rights vesting in receiver.—Property not named in the petition, though included in the order, is not in custodia legis. Railway Co. v. Whitaker, 68 T. 630, 5 S. W. 448.

When land is placed by the order of a court in the hands of a receiver, it is in custodia legis, and no assignment or conveyance by the owner is necessary to invest the receiver with title. Russell v. Railway Co., 68 T. 646, 5 S. W. 686.

The order appointing the receiver of a railroad conveying enumerated property, "and all other rights or property whatsoever," conveys only existing property or rights, and not those to be acquired thereafter. Gabert v. Olcott (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 286.

Money collected for remittance does not pass to a receiver. Hunt v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 310.

In administering the property of one person in the hands of a receiver, the court cannot draw to its possession the property of another person not a party. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Scott, 19 C. A. 22, 45 S. W. 26.

By retaining jurisdiction after a receiver's sale to compel the purchaser to pay certain claims, the court did not retain custody of the property sold. Id.

Existence of an attachment lien will not prevent a receiver taking possession of property, or make the receivership necessarily injurious to the attachment lienor. Byrne v. First Nat. Bank, 20 C. A. 194, 49 S. W. 706.

Where the receivership is ordered upon the ground of the insufficiency of the property to pay the mortgage, the order may require the rents to be received and held by the receiver to be applied as the court may thereafter direct, both by virtue of this article and independent of it. Cotulla v. Am. Freehold Land Mort. Co. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 340.

Title to property of an insolvent corporation is vested in the receiver or trustee in bankruptcy for the benefit of creditors, and, when interest requires it, he should compel delinquent subscribers to pay the balance due and pay the debts therewith. Herf & Frerichs Chemical Co. v. Brewster, 54 C. A. 217, 117 S. W. 880.

So long as the estate of an insolvent corporation is being administered by the courts, the receiver or the trustee in bankruptcy alone may pursue the remedy provided for collecting stock subscriptions, and a creditor cannot sue therefor. Id.

2. —— Directing delivery to receiver.—An order requiring a party to turn over property to a receiver who was appointed in the action held valid. Ex parte Tinsley, 37 Cr. R. 517, 40 S. W. 306, 66 Am. St. Rep. 818.

3. —— Protection of possession of receiver.—Funds in the hands of a receiver or other officer of a court, and subject to the control of that court, are not subject to the writ of garnishment. Taylor v. Gilliam, 23 T. 508; Pace v. Smith, 57 T. 557; Sweetzer v. Clanin, 74 T. 667, 12 S. W. 395; Curtis v. Ford, 78 T. 262, 14 S. W. 614, 10 L. R. A. 529; Kreisle v. Campbell, 89 T. 104, 33 S. W. 852.

Where a court of competent jurisdiction has property in its custody by a receiver, no right can be acquired by subsequent levy of an attachment. Railway Co. v. Lewis, 81 T. 1, 16 S. W. 647, 26 Am. St. Rep. 776. See Harrison v. Waterbury (Sup.) 27 S. W. 109; Hardware Co. v. Stove Mfg. Co., 27 S. W. 100, 88 T. 468.

When a court of competent jurisdiction has property in its custody by a receiver, no other court has the right to interfere with its power to control and dispose of it. Hammond v. Tarver, 11 C. A. 48, 31 S. W. 841; Mississippi Mills v. Bauman, 12 C. A. 312, 34 S. W. 681.

4. —— Effect of orders in proceedings.—An order in receivership proceedings, wherein parties claimed property, held to protect one in possession of and using the property. Smith v. Texas & N. O. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 866.

5. Authority of receiver in general.—A receiver cannot assume powers or risks not granted to him by the court. Railway Co. v. Wentworth, 8 C. A. 5, 27 S. W. 680.

In a suit by a wife to cancel a deed of trust given by her and her husband on her separate property to secure his debt, the authorizing of a receiver to rent the property and collect the rents held not erroneous. De Barrera v. Frost, 39 C. A. 544, 88 S. W. 476.

Power of a receiver after defendant appealed from the decree appointing him stated. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. State, 47 C. A. 162, 103 S. W. 836.

The rights and duties conferred on receivers of the property of insolvent corporations and trustees in bankruptcy in possession thereof are largely the same. Herf & Frerichs Chemical Co. v. Brewster, 54 C. A. 217, 117 S. W. 880.

On appointment of a receiver in an action to recover an interest in land, held not necessary to authorize the receiver to take charge of a certain portion of the output of oil from the land. Hardy Oil Co. v. Burnham (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 221.

The receiver of an insolvent bank acquires no greater rights to funds deposited with a third party for the bank's benefit than the bank had. McBride v. American Ry. & Lighting Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 229.

A receiver for a corporation held not a creditor of the corporation, and entitled to bring suit against its assignee without alleging conditions imposed upon a creditor. American Bonding Co. v. Williams (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 652.

6. Foreign receivers.—A receiver appointed in another state has no authority as such within this state, but may be treated as the agent of the company, and the company may be substituted in his stead. Railway Co. v. Gay (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 742.

Citizen of the republic of Mexico may sue in Texas for breach of contract to supply machinery to estate in that republic, although said estate is in hands of receiver appointed there. American Well Works v. De Aguayo (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 350.

A proceeding to have a final judgment set aside instituted after the term of court at which it was rendered had expired is an original suit, and cannot be maintained by a receiver appointed in another state, although he was a party to the suit in which the judgment was rendered. Malone v. Johnson, 45 C. A. 604, 101 S. W. 503.

7. —— Estoppel.—Parties to a proceeding in which a judgment was rendered held not estopped to question the capacity of a receiver appointed in another state to maintain a proceeding to have the judgment set aside. Malone v. Johnson, 45 C. A. 604, 101 S. W. 503.

8. Supervision of court in general.—The fact that the receiver has not qualified does not defeat the jurisdiction of the court over the property to which the receivership relates. Texas Trunk Co. v. Lewis, 81 T. 1, 16 S. W. 647, 26 Am. St. Rep. 776.

The control of property and of receivers in its management is vested in the court by which the appointment is made. Railway Co. v. Herndon, 11 C. A. 465, 33 S. W. 377.

9. Contracts, authorization or ratification.—Contracts of receivers must be authorized or subsequently approved by the court making the appointment. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Herndon, 11 C. A. 465, 33 S. W. 377.

A contract with a receiver of a railroad company to furnish cars at a particular time and place held within the scope of his authority. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 20.

10. Sales, authority and necessity of court to direct.—A decree ordering a sale may prescribe the terms of sale and the application of its proceeds. McIlhenny v. Binz, 80 T. 1, 13 S. W. 655, 26 Am. St. Rep. 705.

It is within the discretion of the court to deliver the possession of mortgaged property to the trustee named in the mortgage, to make sale under and in accordance with the deed of trust, or direct its receiver to sell it and pay the mortgage debt. This discretion, unless shown clearly to have resulted in an injury to the mortgagee, will not be revised on appeal. Cushing v. B. C. Evans Co. (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 703.

A mortgage sale of land in the hands of a receiver of an insolvent without an order of court held void. Scott v. Crawford, 16 C. A. 477, 41 S. W. 697.

Where mortgaged lands in the hands of a receiver are not worth enough to pay the debt, held, that the court should release them from the receivership and permit them to be sold under the mortgage. Id.

It is in discretion of court appointing receiver to refuse to permit sale on attachment from another court. Southwestern Inv. Co. v. Crawford, 16 C. A. 475, 41 S. W. 720.

In a receivership proceeding, held, that the court was justified in postponing the sale ordered under a foreclosure judgment until the litigation was settled. United States & Mexican Trust Co. v. Young, 46 C. A. 117, 101 S. W. 1045.

11. —— Place of sales.—A receiver's sale of land need not be made in the county wherein the land is situated. Stith v. Moore, 42 C. A. 528, 95 S. W. 587.

12. —— Validity of sales.—A sale under the orders of the court having jurisdiction of the estate will be presumed regular and will pass title to the property as against a sale under an attachment levied pending the suit. Texas Trunk Co. v. Lewis, 81 T. 1, 16 S. W. 647, 26 Am. St. Rep. 776.

An answer in an action to remove a cloud on property claimed by a railroad company, alleging title under receiver's sale, held sufficient against a demurrer. Harle v. Texas Southern Ry. Co., 39 C. A. 43, 86 S. W. 1048.

13. —— Forms of conveyance.—The description of land conveyed by the deed of a receiver must be as full and complete as in a sheriff's deed. Gallagher v. Rahm (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 327.

14. —— Vacation of sales.—Where one did not object to a receiver's sale before its approval and acquiesced therein thereafter by applying for the allowance of his claim out of the proceeds, a subsequent motion to set aside the sale was properly denied. Dilley v. Jasper Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 878.

Facts stated in a motion to vacate a receiver's sale on the ground of collusion, etc., held to require the vacation of the sale, so that it was error to refuse to hear evidence to support the motion. Dilley v. Jasper Lumber Co., 103 T. 22, 122 S. W. 255.

15. —— Rights and liabilities of purchasers.—As against a purchaser at a receiver's sale under order of court having jurisdiction of the estate, the regularity of the proceedings cannot be questioned by one not having a lien on the property prior to the sale. Texas Trunk Co. v. Lewis, 81 T. 1, 16 S. W. 647, 26 Am. St. Rep. 776.

In the absence of statute, a sale and conveyance of railroad property in the hands of a receiver transfers it to the purchaser free from all claims against the receiver. Howe v. St. Clair, 27 S. W. 800, 8 C. A. 101.

Liability of purchaser at a foreclosure sale for damages for injuries after such purchase, while the road still remains in the hands of receiver, determined. Ray v. Dillingham (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 188.

Where a decree for a receiver's sale expressly preserves rights of bona fide lienholders, not parties, a mortgagee not a party is protected. Bermea Land & Lumber Co. v. Adoue, 20 C. A. 655, 50 S. W. 131.

A sale by decree of court of property of a corporation in the hands of a receiver passes the title free of the claims of all parties to the proceeding, except the particular claims declared in the decree not to be prejudiced. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 97 T. 31, 75 S. W. 7, 104 Am. St. Rep. 835.

Purchasers of property at receivership sale held protected by the decree of sale from claims for damages which were allowed in the receivership proceedings, but were not collected for lack of funds. Settegast v. Houston, O. L. & M. P. Ry. Co., 38 C. A. 623, 87 S. W. 197.

A purchaser of certain machinery at receiver's sale held to have acquired the same subject to a judgment foreclosing the lien on certain property for unpaid purchase money. Wm. Cameron & Co. v. Jones, 41 C. A. 4, 90 S. W. 1129.

The right of an abutting owner to sue a railroad company for damages to such property by the construction of the road held barred by a sale of the railroad property by a receiver free of all claims. Hutchinson v. International & G. N. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 1101.

The time stated when title passes to the purchaser of property sold at a receiver's sale. Dilley v. Jasper Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 878.

Where defendant became the owner of a water company at a receiver's sale, and had no notice of the company's agreement with plaintiff to maintain a bridge, and did not agree to maintain it, it was not liable for plaintiff's expenses in repairing it. Abilene Light & Water Co. v. Clack (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 201.

16. —— Proceeds of sale.—Mortgagee of firm property sold by a receiver held entitled to the proceeds of only that part of the property covered by the mortgage. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Fuller, 26 C. A. 239, 63 S. W. 1048.

17. Allowance of demands.—Where one of several creditors of a mill company extended further credit to the mill, held, that such creditor was not entitled to interest. Atlanta Nat. Bank v. Four States Grocer Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1135.

That defendants did not object to the entry of a judgment including interest held not an admission that such interest was a proper charge. Id.

A holder of a note executed by a corporation in the hands of a receiver held entitled to judgment for interest to the date of the judgment, if the corporation is solvent; while, if insolvent, interest must be allowed only to the date of the receivership proceedings. Gaston & Ayres v. J. I. Campbell Co., 104 T. 576, 140 S. W. 770, 141 S. W. 515.

Allowance of interest to creditors on distribution of proceeds of foreclosure sale was improper, where fund was insufficient to pay all creditors. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 348.

Interest on demands in receivership held properly disallowed. White v. Young (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 956.

18. —— Objections to demands and proceedings thereon.—An objection to a demand filed before the master appointed in receivership proceedings held not sufficient to advise claimant that the correctness of his demand will be contested. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Texas Southern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 308.

An objection to the allowance in receivership proceedings of a railroad company of claims for car rentals does not include an objection to claims for damages growing out of freight shipments. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 346.

19. —— Conditions precedent.—As a condition to participation in assets of a receivership, held a creditor who has obtained assets of the insolvent corporation in receivership proceedings in another state, into which all creditors were not allowed to participate, may be required to pay them into court. Lake Charles Nat. Bank v. J. I. Campbell Co., 57 C. A. 362, 122 S. W. 601.

20. —— Estoppel.—Creditors of an insolvent corporation held not estopped to claim to be a creditor, because of their action in receivership proceedings in another state in excluding other creditors. Lake Charles Nat. Bank v. J. I. Campbell Co., 57 C. A. 362, 122 S. W. 601.

21. Liability of receiver in general.—Where the receiver continued to operate the road after foreclosure and conveyance, held he was liable to a shipper for loss sustained while so operating it. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. McFadden, 91 T. 194, 40 S. W. 216, 42 S. W. 593.

Where the receiver of a road operates it jointly with another road, paying the latter a proportion of the gross proceeds from traffic, the relation between the parties is that of lessor and lessee, and not that of partners. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. McFadden, 91 T. 194, 40 S. W. 216, 42 S. W. 593; Ft. Worth & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Same, 91 T. 194, 42 S. W. 593.

Receiver of a railroad held liable for damages for discontinuing depot in violation of contract with the railroad, though it was discontinued by order of the court. Levy v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 941.

A receiver held not responsible for loss of funds by a bank's failure if he used ordinary care in selecting banks for his deposits. Groesbeck Cotton Oil Gin & Compress Co. v. Oliver, 44 C. A. 303, 97 S. W. 1094.

22. —— Erroneous disbursements under order of court.—A receiver is not liable for an erroneous disbursement of moneys by him under orders of court. First Nat. Bank v. Cohen (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 530; Damon v. Adams, Id.

23. —— Acts of agent.—A receiver of a national bank is bound by the acts and knowledge of his agent within the scope of the agency. Watts v. Dubois (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 698.

24. —— Accounting by receiver.—An instruction that a receiver should account for all the property which came into his possession or was capable of being reduced to his possession by ordinary care held properly given. Hamm v. J. Stone & Sons Live-Stock Co., 18 C. A. 241, 45 S. W. 330.

On the trial of a motion to compel a receiver to account, held proper to admit in evidence the petition on which the receivership was granted. Id.

Petitioner having judgment, with lien on interest of judgment debtor in lands of syndicate, held entitled to have receiver of syndicate thereafter appointed account for such interest to extent of his claim. Eck v. Warner, 25 C. A. 338, 60 S. W. 799.

25. Liability of property or funds for payment of claims.—An attachment creditor was entitled to participate in general assets to an amount not satisfied out of the goods attached. Byrne v. First Nat. Bank, 20 C. A. 194, 49 S. W. 706.

Counsel fee for procuring a receiver for firm assets to protect plaintiff and all unsecured creditors was properly charged on the general assets of the firm. Id.

While creditors are entitled to interest under claims when an estate is solvent, the assets of a corporation are held by the receiver for the benefit of all the creditors, and interest on a mortgage debt may not be recovered from its maturity out of the general assets of an insolvent estate, in actions against receivers, since the receivership would stop the running of interest. Brazelton & Johnson v. J. I. Campbell Co., 49 C. A. 218, 108 S. W. 770.

Where defendant corporation mortgaged lumber which the receivers of the corporation sold in foreclosure against such receivers, the proceeds of the lumber were liable not only for the principal debt, but also for interest thereon from the time of its maturity. Id.

The expenses of a receivership which took over and operated an oil well during the action held chargeable against the lessee's share of the oil, and not against the property generally. O'Neil v. Sun Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 172.

Where the court made an order allowing the president of a railroad company in the hands of a receiver a certain sum monthly in payment of his services pending litigation involving the receivership property, a person employed by the president to assist in such work was not entitled to compensation out of the receivership fund, but must look to the president therefor. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Newcomb (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1196.

26. Liability of party for whom receiver has been appointed.—See notes under Art. 2135.

27. Actions by receivers.—See notes under Art. 2146.

28. Actions against receivers.—See notes under Arts. 2136, 2146.

In cases in which the act of March 16, 1889, embodied in this and other articles, does not apply, a judgment cannot be rendered against a receiver after he is discharged and the property returned to the owner. If the plaintiff desires such a judgment he must take the necessary steps to have the proper parties and allegations made before its rendition. Brown v. Gay, 76 T. 444, 13 S. W. 472; Railway Co. v. Comstock, 83 T. 540, 18 S. W. 946; Railway Co. v. Watson (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 952.

29. Order of distribution, conclusiveness of.—An order in receivership proceedings directing a general distribution of the assets and a classification of the claims of the creditors held final as to the parties. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 346.

30. —— Remedy of receiver against creditors.—Receiver held to have no remedy over against creditors to whom he had distributed fund in his hands. First Nat. Bank v. Cohen (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 530; Damon v. Adams, Id.

31. Compensation for services of receiver and attorneys.—Receiver removed by appellate court held entitled to compensation until mandate is filed. New Birmingham Iron & Land Co. v. Blevins (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 829.

An exreceiver of a railroad company held not entitled to recover against his successor, for services as an attorney in assisting his attorney in performing services for which such attorney was employed. Jones v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 826.

The court, in receivership proceedings, held authorized to modify interlocutory orders for the payment of its officers. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Texas Southern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 296.

The court ordering extra allowances for the attorney of the receiver for the master and for the receiver may direct that the payment shall be made as court costs. Id.

The rule respecting retention of counsel for one of the parties as attorney for a receiver stated. Kitchens v. Gassaway (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 679.

Art. 2134. [1471] Funds, how invested.—The funds in the hands of a receiver may be invested upon interest by order of the court, but no such order shall be made except upon consent of all the parties to the action. [Id.]

Art. 2135. [1472] Application of funds in hand of receiver and claims preferred.—All moneys that come into the hands of a receiver as such receiver shall be applied as follows: First, to the payment of all court costs of the suit; second, to the payment of all wages of employés due by the receiver; third, to the payment of all debts due by the receiver for materials and supplies purchased during the receivership by the receiver for the improvement of the property in his hands as receiver; fourth, to the payment of all debts due for betterments and improvements done during the receivership to the property in his hands as such receiver; fifth, to the payment of all claims and accounts against the receiver on contracts made by the receiver during the receivership, and for all claims for stock and personal injury claims against said receiver accruing during said receivership, and all judgments rendered against said receiver for personal injuries and for stock killed; sixth, all judgments recovered against the person or persons or corporations in suits brought before the appointment of a receiver in the action. And said claims shall have a preference lien on all of the moneys coming into the hands of the receiver which are the earnings of the property in his hands; and the court shall see that the money coming into the hands of the receiver as earnings of the property in his hands is paid out on the claims against said receiver in the order of their preference as named above; and it shall be the duty of the receiver to pay the funds in his hands which are the earnings of the property while in his hands as receiver on the claims against him in the order of preference named above. [Acts 1889, p. 55.]

Construction and validity in general.—The amendment of 1889 embodied in this and subsequent articles merely regulates the order in which claims shall be paid, but does not exempt receivers from liability for the value of property lost by negligence. Peoples v. Yoakum, 7 C. A. 85, 25 S. W. 1001.

This article and other provisions of the act of April 2, 1887, embodied in subsequent articles, considered in Farmer's L. & T. Co. v. Fidelity Ins. Trust & Safe Deposit Co. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 113.

This article has reference alone to the earnings which come into the hands of the receiver and gives no lien except as to the earnings of the property. Kampmann v. Sullivan, 26 C. A. 308, 63 S. W. 176.

Where the debt amounts to a personal claim against a railroad company, though unsecured, it is properly classified under this article and Art. 2152 under class A, as a demand against the receiver as such. U. S. & Mex. T. Co. v. Western Supply & Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 385.

A shareholder by whose dereliction the assets of an insolvent corporation have been depleted held not entitled in equity to share as a creditor equally with other creditors of the corporation. United States & Mexican Trust Co. v. Delaware Western Const. Co. (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 447.

General creditors of an insolvent corporation only have a lien on its assets, if any, after the payment of debts having priority. Galvin v. McConnell, 53 C. A. 486, 117 S. W. 211.

The legislature may provide that the claims of employés of railroads shall be liens prior in right to any mortgage or conveyance made subsequent to the passage of the statute. Hubbell v. Texas Southern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 313.

This article and following articles do not apply to a receivership in a federal court in so far as it provides rules of procedure, or limits the effect of judgments of such courts. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 288.

Priorities of liens and incumbrances.—See notes under Art. 2152.

Payment of interest by receiver of a railroad on a first mortgage on application of second mortgagees at whose instance he was appointed, held not a diversion of the funds, which the first mortgagees buying in the property should be required to restore, under this and subsequent articles, nor are they chargeable with taxes and insurance premiums. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co. v. Fidelity Insurance, Trust & Safe Deposit Co. (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 113.

Bondholders of a railroad held, under the facts, not entitled to preference to a prior mortgage debt. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. United States & Mexican Trust Co., 44 C. A. 397, 99 S. W. 212.

Statement of rights in distribution of assets of insolvent railroads as between mortgagee of railroad and chattel mortgagee of old rails. United States & Mexican Trust Co. v. Western Supply & Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 377.

A mortgage given by a corporation when involved held not void where it continued its business for seven months thereafter. General Electric Co. v. Canyon City Ice & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 78.

A mortgagee of a part only of a corporation's property should not on sale of its property by a receiver be given a preference in the proceeds of all its property. Id.

Claims not designated.—Where the claims are not within any class designated in this article the trial court is not controlled by its provisions, the court in passing upon the question of priority of payment of claims, can, under its equity powers, decide in accordance with what it deems equitable and just under the circumstances. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. U. S. & Mex. T. Co., 44 C. A. 397, 99 S. W. 215.

Preferences.—A corporation which has become insolvent and has ceased to carry on its business connot prefer its creditors. Lange v. Dougherty, 74 T. 226, 12 S. W. 29; Lyons-Thomas Hardware Co. v. Perry Stove Mfg. Co., 86 T. 143, 24 S. W. 16, 22 L. R. A. 802; Fowler v. Bell, 90 T. 150, 37 S. W. 1058.

The stockholders or directors of an insolvent corporation have no power to make a preferential deed of trust. Lyons-Thomas Hardware Co. v. Perry Stove Mfg. Co., 24 S. W. 16, 86 T. 143, 22 L. R. A. 802.

A preferential deed of trust by an insolvent corporation is void. Harrigan v. Quay (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 512; Hardware Co. v. Mfg. Co., 86 T. 143, 24 S. W. 17, 22 L. R. A. 802.

A director may, by attachment and levy, gain a preference over other creditors of his insolvent corporation while it is yet a going concern, for a debt incurred to him in good faith. A. B. Frank Co. v. Berwind (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 681.

A preference of creditors by a corporation will be set aside at the instance of a claimant of the property, though the result defeats the claims of all creditors. Rogers v. Southern Pine Lumber Co., 21 C. A. 48, 51 S. W. 26.

A creditor of an insolvent corporation may, by attachment, acquire a lien prior to other creditors on its property, where it continues to do business in the usual way. Malette v. Ft. Worth Pharmacy Co., 21 C. A. 267, 51 S. W. 859.

The fact that a petition for a receiver may show upon its face that defendant has an interest in the real property involved in the suit, and that he has been enjoined from disposing of sufficient of it to protect plaintiff, held not to defeat plaintiff's right to have a receiver to take charge of the personal property. Shaw v. Shaw, 51 C. A. 55, 112 S. W. 124.

Priority of claims in general.—A final judgment against the receiver of a railroad company for damages growing out of a freight shipment held sufficient proof of the correctness of the amount to authorize the court to pass and classify it in directing a general distribution of the assets. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Missouri Pac. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 346.

—— Expenses of receivership.—The expense of administering and preserving the property, including receiver's fees, which are a part of court costs, is to be charged upon the net income, and if that is insufficient then upon the property itself or its proceeds on sale. Railway Co. v. Johnson, 76 T. 421, 13 S. W. 463, 18 Am. St. Rep. 60; Ellis v. Vernon I., L. & W. Co., 23 S. W. 856, 4 C. A. 66; Id., 86 T. 113, 23 S. W. 858; Espuella L. & C. Co. v. Bindle, 32 S. W. 582, 11 C. A. 262; Railway Co. v. McFadden, 89 T. 138, 33 S. W. 853.

The court appointing a receiver may make the liabilities incurred a charge upon the corpus of the property and upon sale may direct their payment from its proceeds. Further than this the owner is in no manner responsible for the receiver's acts. Railway Co. v. McFadden, 89 T. 138, 33 S. W. 853.

Salary paid by corporation to its president during unauthorized receivership is no part of expenses of receivership. New Birmingham Iron & Land Co. v. Blevins (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 829.

Expenses of receivership of a partnership held not a superior lien to that of a firm mortgagee. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Fuller, 26 C. A. 239, 63 S. W. 1048.

A judgment against the receiver of a railroad held properly classed as a charge of the receivership. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Texas Southern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 296.

Where two firms of attorneys were employed to represent receivers of a telephone company and acted as such for four years, an allowance of $1,500 to each firm was not excessive. Roberts Telephone & Electric Co. v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank of Abilene (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 629.

—— Expense of continuation of business by receiver.—Claims for supplies sold a railroad company, and which were on hand where the receiver thereof took possession, were not such as to entitle them to be placed in the class with debts created by the receiver. Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. United States & Mexican Trust Co., 44 C. A. 397, 99 S. W. 212.

The court appointing a receiver of a railroad held entitled to direct the payment of necessary operating expenses out of the proceeds of a sale of the property before distribution is made to creditors and lienholders of the railroad. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Texas Southern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 296.

Certain liabilities incurred by the receiver of a railroad held legally classed as operating expenses. Id.

The rule that the expense of operating a railroad in the hands of a receiver is to be charged first on net income and, when that is not sufficient, on the property itself or its proceeds of sale, held to flow from an equitable situation, and not to arise by operation of law. Id.

In railroad receivership proceedings, a demand held properly classed as an obligation of the receivership. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Texas Southern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 306.

Where the title to railroad ties had already passed to the railroad company at the time of the receiver's appointment, no right of recovery exists against its receiver for the contract price. Freeman v. Barry (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 748.

Plaintiff, who furnished goods to keep a mill a going concern, held entitled to a first lien on money in the hands of the receiver of the mill company. Atlanta Nat. Bank v. Four States Grocer Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1135.

Claims of creditors incurred by the receiver of a railroad in operating may be determined separately at any time before final distribution and that such claims were not audited until the later date did not affect their preference over other creditors. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 348.

That the attorney for certain creditors having preferred claims incurred by the receiver as operating expenses had previously acted as receiver and as attorney for the receiver, when such claims were incurred did not affect their validity. Id.

Where the court made an order allowing the president of a railroad in the hands of a receiver a certain sum monthly for services pending litigation involving the receivership property, a person employed by the president to assist in doing such work was not entitled to compensation out of the receivership fund. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Newcomb (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1196.

—— Taxes.—Tax lien on lots owned by the railroad company, but not used in its business, on the insolvency thereof, held to extend only to such lots, and not to secure the payment of taxes due on other property of the insolvent, to the impairment of a traffic balance lien on said lots. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Coolidge, 26 C. A. 595, 62 S. W. 1097.

—— Debts incurred prior to receivership.—Confirmation of report of master that a judgment against the company is a lien of the sixth class, payable out of the earnings of the road in the hands of a receiver does not preclude payment of the claim from the proceeds of the sale of property on which it is adjudged a lien, if the earnings are insufficient to pay all claims of said class. Vollmer v. San Antonio & G. S. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 378.

Traffic lien on certain lots belonging to insolvent railroad company, but not used in its business, held superior to lien for claim for expenses incurred prior to the appointment of a receiver. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Coolidge, 26 C. A. 595, 62 S. W. 1097.

Where property subject to a lien is placed in the hands of a receiver, the creditors other than the lienholder have no interest therein until the secured debt is satisfied to the extent that it is a lien on the property. First Nat. Bank of Houston v. J. I. Campbell Co., 52 C. A. 445, 114 S. W. 887.

One who furnished coal to a corporation during the month prior to appointment of a receiver for it cannot be given a preference therefor over lienholders; there having been no net profits from the receiver's operation of the business. General Electric Co. v. Canyon City Ice & Light Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 78.

—— Receiver's certificates.—Receiver's certificates, issued to repair and operate a railroad and pay necessary expenses of receivership, held to be superior in lien on town lots owned by the road, but not used in the prosecution of its business. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Coolidge, 26 C. A. 595, 62 S. W. 1097.

Pay roll certificates issued by order of court held to be secured by the same lien as other receiver's certificates issued to pay receiver's and operating expenses. Id.

Certain pay-roll certificates issued by receiver held subordinate to traffic balance lien. Id.

Receiver's certificates issued by a railroad receiver and declared a first lien on the railroad property held entitled to preference over contracts subsequently made. Kampmann v. Sullivan, 26 C. A. 308, 63 S. W. 173.

Claim of the owner of receivers' certificates held superior to that of one having a mortgage lien on specific property sold; the latter having intervened in the proceedings for the allowance of the claim. Dilley v. Jasper Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 878.

Where the certificates of the receiver of a railroad are issued generally, the certificates stand in the same class as the receiver's general obligations. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Texas Southern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 296.

An order directing the receiver of a railroad to issue certificates to pay debts incurred before the receivership and fixing their priority held not modified by a subsequent order. Id.

An order directing the receiver of a railroad to issue certificates for repair and materials furnished prior to the receivership held not to make such certificates a lien superior to the payment of the operating expenses of the receiver. Id.

Receivers' certificates may be made subordinate to other claims against the receiver. Id.

Where receivers' certificates are issued with a limited liability and payable only in a certain way and rank the certificates are not payable in any other way. Id.

A vendor's lien for the price of a right of way conveyed to a railroad held inferior to receivers' certificates issued for labor performed before the receivership and superior to receivers' certificates for materials furnished before the receivership. Hubbell v. Texas Southern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 313.

A holder of a vendor's lien against a right of way of a railroad held entitled to judgment for attorney's fees rendered in proceedings enforcing his lien while the railroad was in the hands of the receiver. Id.

—— Parties entitled to contest priorities.—A creditor of a railroad not a party to receivership proceedings at the time of the issuance of receivers' certificates may contest the priority of payment of the certificates as against his lien. Hubbell v. Texas Southern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 313.

Establishment of claims as condition for enforcement of lien and security.—That the holder of a lien on certain machinery in the hands of a receiver of the buyer failed to assert the same in the receivership proceedings held not to preclude the holder of such lien from subsequently suing to enforce it. Wm. Cameron & Co. v. Jones, 41 C. A. 4, 90 S. W. 1129.

Under the terms of a bond executed on behalf of a foreign insurance company, conditioned for paying all of its lawful obligations to any citizen, a policy holder was not required to present his claim to the receiver of the insurance company before suing on the bond, on the company's failure to pay according to the policy. Southwestern Surety Ins. Co. v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 816.

Liability of parties for whom receivers have been appointed.—A railway company liable for damages while in the hands of a receiver, when. Railway Co. v. Johnson, 13 S. W. 463, 76 T. 421, 18 Am. St. Rep. 60; Railway Co. v. Boyd, 24 S. W. 1086, 6 C. A. 205; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Gay, 86 T. 571, 26 S. W. 599; Railway Co. v. Crawford, 88 T. 277, 31 S. W. 176, 28 L. R. A. 761, 53 Am. St. Rep. 752; Railway Co. v. Edmond (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 518.

Receiver of a railway company being discharged pending a suit for damages, the action against him may be discontinued and prosecuted against the company. Boggs v. Brown, 82 T. 41, 17 S. W. 830.

A railroad corporation is not liable for damages sustained by the negligence of a receiver, except when the road with improvements made by the receiver out of its earnings has been returned to the owner. Dillingham v. Kelley, 27 S. W. 806, 8 C. A. 113.

A railway company is responsible for damages which occurred while the road was in the hands of the receivers. Railway Co. v. Warner (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 503.

Where a receiver is appointed for a railroad through fraud and collusion, an action may be brought against the company for injuries to an employé occurring under his management. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Gay, 88 T. 111, 30 S. W. 543, affirming (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 742.

A judgment against a railway company for damages incurred during the receivership cannot in amount exceed the value of the property redelivered. Railway Co. v. Wylie (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 771.

Where a railroad is improved while in the hands of receivers by the expenditure of earnings, the road and its owners are liable for the obligations incurred by the receiver. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Lacy, 13 C. A. 391, 35 S. W. 505.

When a railroad is returned to the company without sale and betterments were made during the receivership, it is liable for negligence while it was in the hands of the receiver. Railway Co. v. Gaal, 14 C. A. 459, 37 S. W. 462.

A railroad company held not liable for damages while property is in hands of a receiver, unless alleged and proved that earnings were invested in improvements. Ray v. Dillingham (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 188.

Where, pending suit against a receiver for injuries received, he is discharged, and the road turned back to the company without sale, it is unnecessary to show that the receiver invested the earnings of the road in betterments. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Cook, 16 C. A. 386, 41 S. W. 665.

Complaint in action for personal injuries against railway company while it was in the hands of a receiver held to show no liability on the part of defendant. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Norris (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 708.

A railroad company held not liable for a personal injury which occurred on its road while it was in control of a receiver appointed by a federal court. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Wood (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 93.

Where receiver is rightfully appointed, no damages therefor can be recovered. Coverdill v. Seymour (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 221.

Defendants cannot recover as damages for the appointment of a receiver items consisting of loss from the acts of the receiver after his appointment or items of speculative profit. Coverdill v. Seymour, 94 T. 1, 57 S. W. 37.

A corporation will not be liable for injuries to an employé while the property was in the hands of a federal receiver, unless the receivership has been terminated and the property returned to the corporation with such liability imposed upon it by the decree as a condition to receiving it, or it has assumed such liability, or the revenues were expended by the receiver in betterments. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 288.

Art. 2136. [1473] Proceedings in suits where receiver is discharged.—If a receiver is discharged pending suits against him for causes of action growing out of, and arising during, the receivership, the cause of action shall not abate, but may be prosecuted to final judgment against the receiver; and the plaintiff in the action may, if he sees proper, make the party or corporation to whom the receiver has delivered the property that was in his hands as receiver a party to the suit; and, if judgment is finally rendered in favor of the plaintiff against the receiver, the court shall also enter up judgment in favor of the plaintiff against the party to whom the property was delivered by the receiver. [Id.]

Applicability of statute in general.—A decree of a federal court discharging receivers appointed by it bars any suit against them for liability incurred by virtue of their office, and is, when pleaded, a complete defense, for this article does not apply to judgments of federal courts discharging receivers appointed by them. Fordyce v. Beecher, 2 C. A. 29, 21 S. W. 179.

Actions against receivers.—A receiver who has been discharged after the return of the property to the company is a proper defendant in a cause of action accruing before his discharge. Railway Co. v. Neff (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 784.

In an action against a railroad company for breach of contract with a receiver, he is not a necessary party after the receivership has been closed. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Barnett (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 20.

Where a personal injury action was brought against a railroad receiver, he was not a necessary party after his discharge and a sale of the company's property to a new corporation subject to the receiver's liabilities, but a motion to direct a verdict in his favor held properly overruled. Freeman v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 428.

A suit cannot be maintained against receivers in their representative capacity after they have been discharged and the property redelivered according to the orders of the court. Kirby Lumber Co. v. Cunningham (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 288.

Art. 2137. [1474] When property in the hands of receiver subject to execution.—If any person should sue a receiver and obtain judgment against such receiver, and said receiver shall have in possession moneys subject to the payment of such judgment, and the plaintiff owning the judgment shall apply to the court appointing the receiver for an order to pay said judgment, and if the court appointing the receiver should refuse to order said judgment paid, when there is money in the hands of said receiver subject to the payment of the judgment, then, it shall be the duty of the court rendering the judgment to order an execution to issue on said judgment against said receiver upon the filing by the plaintiff in the court where the judgment was rendered an affidavit stating the facts that the plaintiff had applied to the court appointing the receiver for an order for said receiver to pay said judgment, and that it was proved to the court that there was money in the hands of the receiver at that time which was subject to the payment of the judgment, and that the court appointing the receiver refused to order the receiver to pay the judgment; said execution when so issued shall be levied upon any property in the hands of the receiver, and shall be sold as under ordinary executions; and a sale of the property will convey the title of the same to the purchaser. [Id.]

Issuance of execution.—Where expenses of receiver have been paid out of proceeds of property in his hands, judgment should not authorize execution therefor in plaintiff's favor. Coverdill v. Seymour (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 221.

Art. 2138. [1475] Judgments a first lien on property, and property charged with lien after receivership.—All judgments rendered against a receiver for causes of action arising during the receivership shall be a lien upon all of the property in the hands of the receiver superior to the mortgage lien; and if the property should be turned back into the possession of the party or corporation who were owning same at the time of the appointment of a receiver, or any one else for them, or as their assigns or purchasers, the party or corporation so receiving said property from said receiver shall take said property charged with all of the unpaid liabilities of the receiver occurring during the receivership, to the value of the property delivered by the receiver. [Id.]

Art. 2139. [1476] Persons to whom property delivered liable for debts.—If a receiver is discharged by the court before all of the liabilities of the receiver arising during the receivership are settled in full, then the person, persons, or corporation to whom the receiver delivers the property that was in his hands as receiver shall be liable to the persons having claims against said receiver for the full amount of the liabilities. [Id.]

Art. 2140. [1477] Effect of discharge of receiver.—The discharge of a receiver shall not work an abatement of the suit against a receiver, nor shall it in any way affect the right of the party to sue the receiver if he sees proper. [Id.]

Receiver agent of court.—A receiver is the agent of the court, and not the agent of the owner of the property which is placed in his charge, and as a general rule the owner is in no manner responsible for the receiver's acts. The court may charge liabilities upon the corpus of the property, but the charge proceeds from the order of court and is not by operation of law. Railway Co. v. McFadden, 89 T. 138, 33 S. W. 853. See Ellis v. Water Co., 86 T. 109, 23 S. W. 858.

Art. 2141. [1478] Property redelivered by receiver without sale still liable for debts; suits do not abate, but new party may be made.—All parties and corporations whose property has been placed in the hands of a receiver by order of the court, and which was not sold by the receiver, and which property has been delivered back to the original parties or corporation, without any sale of said property, shall be liable and held to pay all of the unpaid liabilities of the receiver in causes of action arising out of and during the receivership; and, if there are any suits pending against the receiver at the date of discharge, on causes of action arising during the receivership, the plaintiff shall have the right to make the party or corporation to whom the receiver delivered the property which was in his hands as receiver a party defendant along with the receiver; and, if any judgment is rendered against the receiver for causes of action arising out of and during the receivership, then, the court shall also, at the same time, (if the party or corporation receiving back the property have been made parties defendant) render judgment in favor of the plaintiff against defendants for the amount so found for plaintiff and all costs; and plaintiff shall have the right to foreclose his lien on the property delivered back by said receiver to said party or corporation. [Id.]

Redelivery on termination of receivership.—Where the purposes of the suit in which a receiver was appointed are attained without the sale of the property, the title reinvests in the owner without a reassignment by the receiver. Russell v. Railway Co., 68 T. 646, 5 S. W. 686.

When property has passed out of the receiver's hands to the corporation without a sale, all of its unpaid debts follow the property, whether they have been presented by intervention or not. Diamond State Iron Co. v. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co., 11 C. A. 587, 33 S. W. 987.

Liability for unpaid debts.—As to the liability of a corporation for negligence of a receiver of its property, see Holman v. Railway Co., 14 C. A. 499, 37 S. W. 464.

Art. 2142. [1479] Judgments and unsued claims have preference lien over mortgage.—If, at the date of the discharge of the receiver, there are any judgments or claims not sued on against a receiver arising during the receivership, and which judgments and claims not sued on are unpaid at the date of the discharge of said receiver, said unpaid judgments and unpaid claims not sued on shall be a preference lien on all of the property that was in the hands of the receiver superior to the mortgage lien; and the person or corporation to whom the receiver has delivered the property that was in his hands as receiver shall be liable for all unpaid judgments and unpaid claims not sued on to the value of the property that was delivered by the receiver to said person or corporation. [Id.]

Art. 2143. [1480] Receiver and person to whom property is delivered both liable and may be sued for unpaid claim.—Any person having a claim against a receiver not sued on at the date of the discharge of the receiver shall have the right to sue said receiver, either alone or jointly, with the person or corporation to whom the receiver delivered said property that was in his hands as such receiver; and, if any judgment is rendered against said receiver, a judgment shall also be rendered against the person or corporation for the same amount that is rendered against the receiver, not to exceed the value of the property so received by said person or corporation. [Id.]

Liability of purchaser on supersedeas bond.—Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Lacy, 13 C. A. 391, 35 S. W. 505.

Art. 2144. [1481] Receiver to give bond on appeal.—In any case in which any receiver is sued in any of the courts of this state, and such receiver desires to take an appeal from any judgment which may be rendered against him in any justice or county court, or to take an appeal or writ of error from any judgment which may be rendered against him in any district court, before such appeal or writ of error shall be perfected or allowed such receiver shall enter into bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the clerk of the court or justice of the peace, payable to the appellee or the defendant in error, in a sum at least double the amount of the judgment, interest, and cost, conditioned that such receiver shall prosecute his appeal or writ of error with effect; and, in case the judgment of the court to which such appeal or writ of error be taken shall be against him, that he will perform its judgment, sentence, or decree, and pay all such damages and costs as said court may award against him. In the event that the judgment of the court to which such appeal or [writ of] error is taken shall be against such receiver, judgment shall, at the same time, be entered against the sureties on his said bond, and execution thereon may issue against such sureties within twenty days after the rendition of such judgment. [Id.]

Constitutionality.—This article is not violative of Const. art. 3, § 35, relating to subjects and titles of acts, or of art. 3, § 56, as special legislation, but does violate art. 1, § 13, prohibiting discrimination as to legal remedies. Dillingham v. Putnam, 14 S. W. 303.

Art. 2145. [1482] Railroad funds, where deposited.—When a line of railroad operated by a receiver lies wholly within this state, all money which comes into the hands of the receiver, whether from operating the road or otherwise, shall be kept and deposited in such place within this state as the court may direct, until properly disbursed; but, if any portion of the road lies in another state the receiver shall be required to deposit in this state at least such share of the funds in his hands as is proportioned to the value of the property of the company within this state. [Acts of 1887, p. 122.]

Art. 2146. [1483] Receiver may sue or be sued without leave; effect of judgment against.—When any property of any kind within the limits of this state has been placed, by order of court, in the hands of a receiver, who has taken charge of such property, such receiver may, in his official capacity, sue or be sued in any court of this state having jurisdiction of the cause of action, without first having obtained leave of the court appointing such receiver to bring said suit; and, if a judgment is recovered against said receiver, it shall be the duty of the court to order said judgment paid out of any funds in the hands of said receiver as such receiver. [Id.]

Applicability in general.—This article only affects receiverships pending in the state court, and does not affect the common-law rule to the contrary applying to receivers appointed by a federal court. Morse v. Tackaberry (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 273.

Action by receivers.—Where the legal title to personal property is in a corporation and the property is converted, a receiver thereafter appointed may sue for the conversion. Smith v. Texas & N. O. R. Co., 101 T. 405, 108 S. W. 819.

—— By successor.—A judgment having been rendered against a receiver's successor for services of the original receiver's attorney, the successor was entitled to a judgment over against the original receiver for such amount. Jones v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 826.

Action against receivers.—See notes under Arts. 2136, 2146.

A contract exempting property of a corporation in the hands of a receiver from liability for any judgment that might be recovered against the receiver held not to prevent recovery of judgment against him. Reardon v. White, 38 C. A. 636, 87 S. W. 365.

Where ties purchased under a contract by a railroad company are used by its receiver in repairing the roadbed and preserving the property, the person furnishing them is not, for that reason, entitled to collect therefor from the receiver in an action at law, his only remedy being in the equitable action in which the receivership is pending. Freeman v. Barry (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 748.

Failure to prove claim as barring right of action.—The statute does not require creditors presenting claims against receivers to verify them by affidavit, and the failure to make such proof will not bar the right to sue. Arnold v. Penn, 11 C. A. 325, 32 S. W. 353.

Leave of court to sue receivers.—A receiver appointed by one court can be sued in another court with respect to the property without the consent of the court appointing him. But the court having jurisdiction of the original cause can by injunction prevent interference with or a diversion of the property in the hands of its receiver. Receivers v. Withers, 1 C. A. 540, 2 S. W. 766.

Suit against a receiver appointed by a federal court, brought by its permission, may be prosecuted against his successor without further leave. But if otherwise, the objection must be made in the proper time and manner. Fordyce v. Dixon, 70 T. 694, 8 S. W. 504.

The provision permitting suits against receivers without the consent of the court only authorizes a plaintiff to establish his demand, and judgment thereon can only be satisfied by order of court appointing the receiver. Harrison v. Waterberry (Sup.) 27 S. W. 109.

This article authorizes a suit against a receiver in all cases where there is a cause of action against him, without obtaining leave of court to file the suit. Paine v. Carpenter, 51 C. A. 191, 111 S. W. 431.

At common law a receiver could not be sued without the permission of the court appointing him. Galveston, H. & H. R. Co. v. Pennefather & Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 948.

Parties.—A receiver for a railroad company is not a necessary party to an action against it on a note. Dullnig v. Weekes, 16 C. A. 1, 40 S. W. 178.

A receiver of a water company held not a necessary party to an action to forfeit the franchise granted the company by a city. Palestine Water & Power Co. v. City of Palestine (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 659.

The receiver of a railroad company was a proper party to a passenger's suit for injuries arising prior to the receiver's appointment. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Ormond, 57 C. A. 79, 121 S. W. 899.

Jurisdiction.—A suit to enforce specific performance of a contract to convey property purchased at a receiver's sale was not a proceeding to set aside the receiver's sale, and it was not necessary to bring it in the court having such jurisdiction. Miller v. Drought (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 145.

Though a foreign court has jurisdiction of an action against a receiver it could not make any order or authorize the issuance of any process that would disturb or interfere with the receiver's possession of mortgaged property in the custody of the court appointing him. Paine v. Carpenter, 51 C. A. 191, 111 S. W. 430.

Venue.—See notes under Art. 2147.

Judgment and enforcement.—In a suit against a receiver appointed by the federal court for damage, it is error for the district court to prescribe the particular funds out of which judgment should be paid. The judgment should be against the receiver in his official capacity, leaving the matter of its enforcement to be determined by the court having jurisdiction of the receivership, in view of the rights of all persons interested in the proper application of the fund in the custody of that court. Brown v. Brown, 71 T. 355, 9 S. W. 261.

A judgment against the receiver of a railway company fixes the liability and its amount in his official capacity. Bonner v. Mayfield, 82 T. 234, 18 S. W. 305. See Turner v. Cross, 83 T. 218, 18 S. W. 578, 15 L. R. A. 262; Railway Co. v. Collins, 84 T. 121, 19 S. W. 365; Railway Co. v. Warner, 84 T. 122, 19 S. W. 449, 20 S. W. 823; Railway Co. v. Huffman, 83 T. 286, 18 S. W. 741; Howe v. Harding, 76 T. 17, 13 S. W. 41, 18 Am. St. Rep. 17; Brown v. Warner, 78 T. 543, 14 S. W. 1032, 11 L. R. A. 394, 22 Am. St. Rep. 67.

Effect of judgment against a receiver, see Abbey v. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. Receivers, 23 S. W. 934, 5 C. A. 261.

Judgment against a receiver conclusive. Garrison v. T. & P. Ry. Co., 10 C. A. 136, 30 S. W. 725.

In action against receiver of railroad on failure to perform a contract by which the company acquires its right of way for damages the judgment properly provides for sale of the right of way on nonpayment of the judgment. Levy v. Tatum (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 941.

Where a judgment is rendered in a state court against a receiver appointed by a federal court, it is proper to certify the judgment to the latter court, to be disposed of as that court may see fit. Reardon v. White, 38 C. A. 636, 87 S. W. 365.

Where judgment is rendered after rendition of judgment by a state court against a receiver appointed by a federal court, the question whether the receiver had in his hands sufficient assets to satisfy the judgment held to be for the federal court. Id.

In an action against receivers in their official capacity to recover the value of lumber converted by them, while plaintiffs may recover the proceeds of the lumber converted, they may not recover interest thereon out of the general estate. Brazelton & Johnson v. J. I. Campbell Co., 49 C. A. 218, 108 S. W. 770.

In an action against a receiver on a note and deed of trust, a judgment directing that an order of sale issue to the sheriff or constable of the county where the property was situated was improper; such property being in the custody of the law. Wharton v. Washington County State Bank (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 699.

Costs.—In a suit to recover the value of lumber claimed to have been converted by the receivers of defendant company, if the receivers converted plaintiff's lumber, the costs of its sale by the receivers, and the expenses of the receivership in connection therewith, cannot be charged against plaintiff. Brazelton & Johnson v. J. I. Campbell Co., 49 C. A. 218, 108 S. W. 770.

Art. 2147. [1484] Suits against receiver, where brought.—Actions may be brought against the receiver of the property of any person where said person resides. Actions may be brought against receivers of a corporation in the county where the principal office of said corporation may be located, and against receivers of railroad companies in any county through or into which the road is constructed, and service of summons may be had upon the receiver, or upon the general or division superintendent of the road, or upon any agent of said receiver who resides in the county in which the suit is brought. [Id.]

Venue.—A suit against a receiver may be brought in a county other than that of the court appointing him. Paine v. Carpenter, 51 C. A. 191, 111 S. W. 431.

The law of venue as applied to private corporations, other than railway corporations is essentially different from that applied to receivers of such private corporation. Kirby Lumber Co.'s Receivers v. McLendon, 56 C. A. 279, 120 S. W. 228.

Art. 2148. [1486] Inventory to be made and returned by receiver.—The receiver, as soon after his appointment as possible, shall return to the court appointing him a true and correct inventory of all property received by him as such receiver. [Id.]

Inventory, necessity of.—It is not necessary that the property covered by the receivership shall be inventoried to give the court jurisdiction to order sale thereof. French v. McCready (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 894, 896.

Art. 2149. [1487] Jurisdiction to appoint receiver confined to courts of this state in certain cases.—When a person resides in this state and a receiver is applied for, or if the property sought to be placed in the hands of a receiver is situated within the limits of this state, no court other than one within the limits of this state shall have power to appoint any receiver of said property. [Id.]

Art. 2150. [1488] Receiver of corporation, where applied for.—If the property sought to be placed in the hands of a receiver is a corporation whose property lies within this state, or partly within this state, then the action to have a receiver appointed shall be brought in this state in the county where the principal office of said corporation is located. [Id.]

Receivers of corporations.—The power of a court to appoint a receiver for a corporation is not limited to the court exercising jurisdiction over the territory in which the principal office of the corporation is located. Bonner v. Hearne, 75 T. 242, 12 S. W. 38. See New Birmingham I. & L. Co. v. Blevins, 12 C. A. 410, 34 S. W. 828.

A corporation by contracting to pay an indebtedness in a county other than that of its domicile, waives its privilege to be sued in the county of its domicile and in a suit to enforce the collection of the indebtedness the court can exercise all the powers granted to it under the constitution and laws. The appointment of a receiver falls within the scope of that power, and can be appointed in the county where the debt is payable instead of in the county of the corporation's domicile. Wills Paint Mer. Co. v. Southern R. I. Plow Co., 31 C. A. 94, 71 S. W. 294.

This article provides the venue of an action for the appointment of a receiver for a corporation that "has been dissolved or is insolvent or is in imminent danger of insolvency, or has forfeited its corporate rights," and has no application to an action for the appointment of a receiver to take charge of property embraced in a deed of trust or mortgage during pendency of a suit to foreclose such deed of trust or mortgage and to enforce the collection of a debt secured thereby. Commercial Telephone Co. v. Territorial Bank & Trust Co., 38 C. A. 192, 86 S. W. 69.

Art. 2151. [1489] Where there are betterments, general creditors have rights to be protected.—When a receiver of a corporation has, under the order of the court, made improvements upon the property of said corporation, and has also, under the order of the court appointing him, purchased rolling stock, machinery, and made other improvements whereby the value of the property of said corporation has been increased, or has extended such road, or acquired any property in connection with said road, and has paid for same out of the current receipts of the corporation that came into his hands as receiver, then, if there be any floating debts against said corporation, said corporation shall be made to contribute to the floating indebtedness to the full value of the money so spent by said receiver as aforesaid; and, if there are any liens of any kind upon the property of said corporation in the hands of such receiver, and said property is sold under the order of the court, and said liens foreclosed, then it shall be and is hereby made the duty of the court appointing such receiver, if there be any unpaid debts or judgments, or claims against the corporation itself, to detain in the hands of the clerk of the court money to the full value of the improvements made by said receiver of said property out of the proceeds of the sale of the property sold, and pay the same over to any person or persons who has or may have a claim, debt, or judgment against said corporation; and the court, in ordering the sale of the property, shall require sufficient cash money to be paid in at date of sale to cover the full value of the improvements so made by said receiver out of the current funds received by him from the property while receiver. [Id.]

In general.—An order of a federal court declaring claims barred if not presented within a limited time is void. Railway Co. v. Sims (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 634; Boggs v. Brown, 82 T. 41, 17 S. W. 830; Railway Co. v. Miller, 79 T. 81, 15 S. W. 264, 11 L. R. A. 395, 23 Am. St. Rep. 308; Railway Co. v. Geiger, 79 T. 13, 15 S. W. 214; Railway Co. v. Johnson, 76 T. 421, 13 S. W. 463, 18 Am. St. Rep. 60.

A creditor paying superior claims subrogated to the rights of the holders. Tarver v. Land Mortgage Bank, 27 S. W. 40, 7 C. A. 425.

Under the national banking act a creditor holding a preferred claim may claim a preference after presenting his claim as a general one, unless otherwise estopped. Hunt v. Smart, 28 S. W. 63, 8 C. A. 425.

As to the order of paying debts, see Phillips v. Wise (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 428.

As against the purchaser at a receiver's sale, a lien held not to exist on the road because of a judgment for personal injuries inflicted while the receiver alone was operating the same, where it does not appear whether betterments made by the receiver were made before or after the sale. Houston Electric St. Ry. Co. v. Bell (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 772.

Art. 2152. [1490] Judgments and other claims have preference over mortgage.—All judgments, claims, or causes of action when determined, existing against any corporation at the time of the appointment of a receiver, shall be paid out of the earnings of such corporation while in the hands of the receiver, to the exclusion of mortgage action; and the same shall be a lien on such earnings. [Id.]

Application in general.—This article extends to all corporations and to any creditor insisting on mortgage security. First Nat. Bank of Houston v. J. I. Campbell Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 311.

And it refers to any form of security which is in effect and substance a mortgage and includes a vendor's lien to secure notes given by the corporation. Id.

And it is not limited in its application to mortgages given by a railroad company, but applies to corporations generally. First Nat. Bank of Houston v. J. I. Campbell Co., 104 T. 457, 140 S. W. 430.

Definitions—"Mortgage action."—The term "mortgage action" does not merely mean a mortgage, but relates to the action whereby a mortgagee secures the appointment of a receiver; and hence a mortgagee, not having secured the appointment of a receiver, is entitled to share in the earnings of a receivership. First Nat. Bank of Houston v. J. I. Campbell Co., 104 T. 457, 140 S. W. 430.

Status of secured creditor.—The status of a secured creditor is fixed at the date of the receivership or when by intervention it resorts to mortgage action, and the fact that it holds an unsatisfied balance when the foreclosure is completed does not change its status. First Nat. Bank of Houston v. J. I. Campbell Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 311.

Payments out of earnings.—Earnings of a railroad operated by a receiver held not chargeable with money paid to discharge liens, or for permanent improvements, taxes, franchises, insurance premiums, or interest on mortgage bonds. Randolph v. Farmers' Loan & Trust Co., 91 T. 605, 44 S. W. 70.

Nor for money paid on receiver's certificates, the proceeds of which were paid for the benefit of mortgage creditors. Id.

Nor for the fee of the special commissioner who conducted a foreclosure sale. Id.

Proceeds of insurance taken out by the receiver are not earnings. Id.

The court, in railroad receivership proceedings, held authorized to order a sale of rolling stock previously acquired by the railroad subject to a chattel mortgage for the price, or it may treat the debt as a receivership obligation, turning the equipment into a receivership asset. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Texas Southern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 306.

A final adjudication in receivership proceedings, after provisions made for interest and attorney's fees, adjudged that the balance remaining due on the principal due an intervening creditor should be a charge on the general fund, and that the creditor should be entitled to share as an unsecured creditor in the remaining assets. There was then in the hands of the receiver a fund representing the net assets derived by him from his operation of the corporation's property which had come into his hands, and also a fund derived by him from the proceeds of the property of the company. Thereafter a final decree of distribution awarded to such creditor a share in the general fund and in the remaining assets, but denied to it any share in the net earnings fund. Held that, in view of this article the "remaining assets" did not include the net earnings fund. First Nat. Bank of Houston v. J. I. Campbell Co. (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 311.

Art. 2153. [1491] Receivership of corporations limited to three years.—No corporation shall be administered in any court for a longer period than three years from the date of such appointment; and within three years such court shall wind up the affairs of such corporation, unless prevented by appeal of litigation. [Id.]

Discharge by federal court.—Discharge by the federal court of a receiver appointed by it is a bar to suits against him as receiver, and, pleaded, is a complete defense to pending suits. This rule does not apply to proceedings in the federal court. Fordyce v. Beecher, 21 S. W. 179, 2 C. A. 29.

Presumption.—It is not necessary for a record to show affirmatively every special proceeding, and the presumption of regularity exists in support of the jurisdiction of the court. Guilford v. Love, 49 T. 715.

Art. 2154. [1492] Application for receiver, by whom made.—No receiver shall ever be appointed of any joint stock, incorporated company, or of any co-partnership or private person, on the petition of such joint stock, incorporated company, partnership or person; provided, that any stockholder or stockholders of such joint stock or incorporated company may have his or their action against such company, and may have a receiver appointed as in ordinary cases; and provided, further, that nothing herein shall prevent a member of any co-partnership from having a receiver appointed whenever a cause of action arises between the co-partners. [Id.]

Persons entitled to apply for appointment.—See notes under Art. 2128.

In the absence of statute, equity will not appoint a receiver of a corporation at the suit of a stockholder failing to show a cause of action against it, giving him the right, independent of any right he may have as a stockholder. People's Inv. Co. v. Crawford (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 738.

A stockholder cannot ask for the appointment of a receiver solely on the ground that the corporation is insolvent or in imminent danger thereof, but he should show that his interest requires the appointment. Id.

Art. 2155. [1493] Rules of equity shall govern in receivership proceedings.—In all matters relating to the appointment of receivers, and to their powers, duties and liabilities, and to the powers of the court in relation thereto, the rules of equity shall govern whenever the same are not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter and the general laws of the state. [Id.]

Proceedings for appointment of receiver.—In proceedings for appointment of receiver the pleading will be by petition and answer, and exceptions by plaintiff to defendant's answer may raise all questions as to its sufficiency, and when the court acts upon exceptions to the answer, if the answer lacks definiteness, the exception urging that objection should be sustained, so as to allow an opportunity for amendment, and it would be improper, after sustaining the denials as sufficiently full, to disregard them for insufficiency in that respect. Falfurrias Immigration Co. v. Spielhagen, 103 T. 339, 127 S. W. 164.

Costs on discharge.—Where an applicant for a receiver asks and obtains the receiver's discharge, all the costs of the receivership, including the receiver's compensation should be borne by the applicant. Shaw v. Shaw, 51 C. A. 55, 112 S. W. 124.

Settling status of claim.—It was held not error for the court to settle, in an action against a company which subsequently went into the hands of a receiver, the status of plaintiff's claim under the receivership proceedings. San Antonio & G. S. Ry. Co. v. Ryan (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 749.

Foreclosure of lien.—In a suit to foreclose a lien on property in which a receiver was appointed exclusion of evidence of value of personalty in hands of receivers to which defendant was entitled, so that he might have judgment for value if return was refused, held not error. Holland v. Preston (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 374.

4. MASTERS IN CHANCERY

Art. 2156. [1485] Master in chancery, qualifications, duties and appointments.—The court shall, in every case of the appointment of receiver, also after his qualifying, appoint a master in chancery, who shall be a citizen of this state, and not an attorney for either party to the action, nor related to either party, who shall perform all of the duties required of him by the court, and shall be under orders of the court, and have such power as a master of chancery has in a court of equity.

In general.—In every case of the appointment of a receiver, a master in chancery must be appointed, who shall be under the orders of the court and perform such duties as the court requires, and who shall have the power of a master in chancery in a court of equity. San Jacinto Oil Co. v. Culberson, 43 C. A. 401, 96 S. W. 111.

Proceedings before master.—The proceeding before the master is not a substitute for a jury trial on contested issues, and an appearance before the master and introduction of evidence in support of issues is not a waiver of a jury trial on contested issues. San Jacinto Oil Co. v. Culberson, 100 T. 462, 101 S. W. 199.

Report of master.—See notes under Arts. 2125, 2126.

Where the report of a master deciding that the receiver was not liable for rents, was not excepted to, held, that charging as to receiver's liability for such rents, on motion to confirm the report was reversible error. Hamm v. J. Stone & Sons Live Stock Co., 18 C. A. 241, 45 S. W. 330.

The same rule which applies to reports of auditors must be applied to reports of masters in chancery when appointed under the receivership statute. The reports are not evidence upon the contested issues. San Jacinto Oil Co. v. Culberson, 100 T. 462, 101 S. W. 199.

The report of the master appointed in receivership proceedings to make findings on claims filed held conclusive, unless objections are made to it. St. Louis Union Trust Co. v. Texas Southern Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 308.

5. SUBSTITUTION OF LOST RECORDS AND PAPERS

Art. 2157. [1498] [1475] Lost records and papers supplied, on motion.—Whenever the records and papers of a cause, or any part thereof, may be lost or destroyed, either before or after the trial, the same same be supplied by either party, on motion before the court, upon three days' notice to the adverse party or his attorney. [Act Feb. 11, 1850, p. 160, sec. 1. P. D. 4969.]

See notes under Art. 6778.

Cumulative remedy.—The remedy given by this statute is cumulative. Houston v. Blythe, 60 T. 506.

As to judgments the remedies under these articles are cumulative. Hayden v. Dunaway, 29 S. W. 529, 9 C. A. 315.

A party discovering the loss or destruction of papers should make affidavit of loss or destruction and seek to reproduce them. Strohmeyer v. Wing (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 977.

Records and papers that may be supplied.—Lost papers, such as the deposition of a witness, may be shown by competent evidence. Houston v. Blythe, 60 T. 506.

A lost pleading cannot be substituted by amendment. Newman v. Dotson, 61 T. 91.

Judgment and execution may be supplied. Hayden v. Dunaway, 29 S. W. 529, 9 C. A. 315.

A lost complaint in a criminal case may be substituted. Bradburn v. State, 43 Cr. R. 309, 65 S. W. 519.

Notice to adverse party.—No judgment by default can be entered in a case where the petition has been substituted, without notice to the defendant or to one authorized to represent him, and this without regard to whether the defendant has been injured by the judgment or not. Watson v. Miller, 69 T. 175, 5 S. W. 680.

An order supplying a lost bill of exceptions, made at a term subsequent to that at which final judgment was rendered, and without notice to the adverse party or his attorney, is of no effect, and will not be considered on appeal. Harvey v. Carroll, 72 T. 63, 10 S. W. 334.

Art. 2120 is controlled by this article, and a defendant personally appearing in a cause is not chargeable with constructive notice of a motion alleging the loss of the original petition and praying for a substituted petition, the notice contemplated referring to notice in some of the modes prescribed by law. Crosby v. Di Palma (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 321.

Requisites of substituted paper.—Permitting plaintiff to substitute for lost petition copy omitting items on which defendant's plea in reconvention was based held error. John Hamilton & Co. v. Western Union Tel. Co., 35 C. A. 602, 81 S. W. 58.

Art. 2158. [1499] [1476] Motion, requisites of.—Such motion shall be in writing and signed by the party or his attorney, and shall be verified by affidavit. It shall state the loss or destruction of such record or papers, and shall be accompanied by certified copies of the originals, if they can be had, and if not, then substantial copies thereof as near as may be. [Id. sec. 2. P. D. 4970.]

Requisites of motion.—When the motion itself contains all the information necessary, formal instruments, as copies of the records to be supplied, need not be attached. Hayden v. Dunaway, 29 S. W. 529, 9 C. A. 315.

—— Amendments.—Motion may be amended. Hayden v. Dunaway, 29 S. W. 529, 9 C. A. 315.

Authority of court.—In garnishment, held proper for court of its own motion to raise question as to the loss of the affidavit, bond, and writ. Strohmeyer v. Wing (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 977.

Art. 2159. [1500] [1477] If substitutes agreed to.—If the adverse party admit the correctness of such copies, and the court be satisfied that they are correct copies in substance of the originals, an order shall be made substituting such copies for the originals.

Granting relief.—A motion, in effect, to have the appellate court substitute a paper for the original assignment of errors, of which it is alleged to be a copy, and which is alleged to have been lost or misplaced, can be granted only on appellee agreeing that the paper may be considered as part of the record in the appellate court; otherwise, the substitution must be in the trial court, on the showing required by this and following articles. Lovett v. Zeiss (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 497.

Art. 2160. [1501] [1478] If not agreed to, court may hear proof, etc.—If their correctness be not admitted, or if the court do not find them to be correct, the parties shall submit their respective statements to the judge; and he shall hear proof as to the contents of such lost records and papers, and correct copies thereof shall be made up under the direction of the judge.

Admissibility and sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held not to show that an owner of land sold under a judgment had not been cited or had not appeared in the suit the records of which had been lost. East Texas Land & Improvement Co. v. Graham, 24 C. A. 521, 60 S. W. 472.

Where, in garnishment the affidavit bond and writ could not be found in the office of the county clerk, they could not be proved by that official. Strohmeyer v. Wing (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 977.

Conclusiveness of judgment.—The judgment of the court substituting papers for lost papers in a criminal case cannot be attacked by affidavits, although it may be shown that the substituted papers have been incorrectly copied in the record. Davis v. State, 52 Cr. R. 546, 107 S. W. 828; Id. (Cr. App.) 107 S. W. 829.

Art. 2161. [1502] [1479] Adverse party may supply.—The adverse party may, in the same proceedings, supply any other portions of such records and papers desired by him.

Art. 2162. [1503] [1480] Parties may agree on brief statement, etc.—The parties may, by consent in writing, with the approval of the judge, agree on a brief statement of the matters contained in such lost records and papers; and the court may, by an order, substitute such statement for the lost originals.

Art. 2163. [1504] [1481] Substituted copies constitute record.—Such substituted copies or brief statement of their contents, as the case may be, made up under the preceding articles of this subdivision, shall be filed with the clerk, and shall constitute a part of the record of the cause, and shall have all the force and effect of the originals. [Act to adopt and establish R. C. S. passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

6. DEPOSIT OF MONEY, ETC., IN COURT

Art. 2164. [1462] [1458] Custody of money and other articles deposited.—Whenever, during the progress of any cause, any money, debt, scrip, instrument of writing, or other article, shall be paid or deposited in court to abide the result of any legal proceedings, the officer having custody thereof shall seal up the identical money, or other article received by him, in a secure package and deposit it in some safe or bank vault, keeping it always accessible and subject to the control of the court; and he shall also keep in his office, and as a part of the records thereof, in a well-bound book, a correct statement showing each and every item of money and property so received by him, on what account received, and what disposition he has made of the same. [Act May 19, 1876, p. 7, sec. 1.]

Applicability in general.—This article has no reference to the funds coming into the hands of a receiver. It relates specially to money deposited in court to abide the result of legal proceedings. He is not responsible for loss of funds by a bank's failure if he used ordinary care in selecting bank for his deposits. Groesbeck Cotton Oil Gin & Compress Co. v. Oliver, 44 C. A. 303, 97 S. W. 1094.

Allowance of payment.—In trespass to try title, where plaintiff offered to pay into court the amount due on a note if the deed of trust by which it was secured should be found to be a lien, the court did not err in permitting such payment into court without any tender by plaintiff previous to the suit. Groesbeck v. Wiest (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 258.

Deposit not subject to replevin.—Money, etc., in the hands of the clerk cannot be replevied by a party pending the suit. Gallagher v. Goldfrank, 63 T. 473.

Not subject to garnishment.—Where money, the proceeds of property sold under attachment, is in the hands of the clerk, and the attachment is quashed and the clerk ordered to pay the money to the defendant, it is not subject to garnishment. Pace v. Smith, 57 T. 555.

Presumptions.—Where, in an action for rent involving the question whether the rent was $200 per month, as claimed by plaintiff, or $150 a month, as claimed by the tenant, a judgment fixing the rent at $150 per month and reciting that the tenant had tendered into court the amount of the rent, was rendered, the court on appeal must presume that the money had been deposited with the clerk of the court in the manner required by this article, though the judgment also granted execution. Sanborn v. E. R. Roach Drug Co. (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 182.

Tender, sufficiency and effect of.—Where one who had been injured while a passenger released the carrier from liability for a specified sum, and subsequently sued for the injuries, claiming that the release was procured by fraud, and in her petition she tendered the amount received, it was not necessary that she should have brought the money into court and actually tendered it to defendant. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Shuford, 36 C. A. 251, 81 S. W. 1189.

Where a vendor sued to rescind a sale for nonpayment of part of the purchase price, the purchaser's tender held in effect an offer to do equity and sufficient without money being paid into court. Moore v. Brown, 46 C. A. 523, 103 S. W. 242.

In a suit on a note, where defendants came into court and offered to pay it, this tender was sufficient, although no money was paid into court. Ball v. Belden (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 20.

In an action by a mortgagor to redeem from a mortgage which is due, held that he need not make actual deposit in court of the amount due. Burks v. Burks (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 337.

Withdrawal of deposit.—Defendant held properly permitted to withdraw a sum tendered by him as an offer of compromise. Coltrane v. Peacock (Civ. App.) 91 S. W. 841.

Jurisdiction to compel restoration.—Where it was within the court's knowledge that a fund had been wrongfully withdrawn from court by defendants under a reversed judgment, the court held authorized to require repayment of the fund. Sanger Bros. v. Corsicana Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 737.

Jurisdiction of court to direct payments.—A court held authorized to order taxes on property sold under decree to be paid out of proceeds within the court's jurisdiction. Kahler v. Betterton (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 289.

Art. 2165. [1463] [1459] Officer shall deliver funds, etc., to his successor.—On the expiration of his term of office, such officer shall turn over to his successor all such trust funds and other property, and the record aforesaid, and shall take his receipt therefor. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2166. [1464] [1460] Not to exempt officer and his sureties from liabilities, etc.—The provisions of articles 2164 and 2165 shall not exempt any officer or his sureties from liability on his official bond, for any neglect or other default, in regard to the funds therein mentioned. [Id. sec. 5.]

Liability of custodian.—Where money was deposited with a county clerk to abide the order of the court in a case pending in the court, and the clerk put the money in a safe supposed to be burglar proof, but the safe was blown open by burglars and the money taken, the sureties on his official bond are liable for the amount. A failure of the officer to turn over the money to his successor makes him and his sureties liable, no matter what may be the cause of the default. Lanham v. Dies (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 897.

STIPULATIONS

Necessity for writing in general.—Oral stipulation that a pending cause should be governed by result of another trial, not made in open court nor entered of record, held of no effect, under rule 47 of the district court. Willis & Bro. v. Sims' Heirs (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 55.

Under a court rule providing that no agreement between parties or attorneys will be enforced unless in writing, proof of an oral agreement of one sued on a forfeited bail bond to file another bond was properly excluded. Morse v. State, 39 Cr. R. 566, 50 S. W. 342.

A statement in a motion to dismiss a writ of error that the plaintiff in error has agreed to pay the costs of prosecuting the appeal and writ of error will not be considered, as the statement is ex parte, and not supported by an agreement in writing signed by the plaintiff in error. Less v. Ghio, 92 T. 651, 51 S. W. 502.

A stipulation for the admission of hearsay testimony, in consideration of the abandonment of proceedings to perpetuate testimony, held enforceable, though not in writing. Thompson v. Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co., 31 C. A. 583, 73 S. W. 29.

Under district court rule 47 (67 S. W. xviii), it was error to set aside a default judgment on an oral stipulation, not made in open court nor entered of record, over the objection of plaintiff's counsel. State v. Quillen (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 660.

An oral stipulation of counsel, if undisputed, will be enforced, despite the rule requiring stipulations to be in writing, but, if disputed, the court will not determine whether there was such a stipulation, but will disregard it. Manowitz v. Gaenslen (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 963.

Where an oral stipulation is disputed, the court on appeal will not determine its terms, but will disregard it. American Warehouse Co. v. Hamblen (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1006.

An agreement of counsel, to be enforceable, must be reduced to writing, signed, and filed, as required by district and county court rule 47 (142 S. W. xxi). Ingram v. McClure (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 339.

Construction and operation in general.—Where the parties stipulate that an abstract of title may be used as evidence, a mistake in the abstract may be corrected by introducing the record. Taffinder v. Merrell, 95 T. 95, 65 S. W. 177, 93 Am. St. Rep. 814.

An agreement in trespass to try title that plaintiff is the common source is merely an admission by the parties that defendant is claiming title from the plaintiff. Davidson v. Chandler, 27 C. A. 418, 65 S. W. 1080.

Stipulation, in action by licensee at railroad depot for assault by railway policeman, held not to constitute proof on issue of fact as to what capacity the assailant acted in. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Taylor, 31 C. A. 617, 73 S. W. 1081.

Stipulation in suit to establish boundary held to preclude the defense of innocent purchaser. Sloan v. King, 33 C. A. 537, 77 S. W. 48.

Stipulation in suit to establish boundary held not to preclude evidence of the real boundaries. Id.

Stipulation in action on mutual benefit insurance certificate held to eliminate issue as to notice of amendment to by-laws. Eversberg v. Supreme Tent Knights of Maccabees of the World, 33 C. A. 549, 77 S. W. 246.

A stipulation on an agreed statement of facts held not to prevent the introduction of further evidence on a second trial, nor authorize the court of civil appeals to render judgment for appellant on reversal of a judgment for appellee. Imhoff v. Whittle (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 243.

A stipulation of counsel held not to have affected the power of the court to enter a judgment on a special verdict and undisputed facts not in conflict therewith. Pinto v. Rintleman, 42 C. A. 344, 92 S. W. 1003.

In trespass to try title in which the location of a boundary line was in issue, an agreed statement of facts held not to require the ascertainment of the location of the line by the calls of the surveys set out in the statement but to admit of evidence of a line acquiesced in. Provident Nat. Bank v. Webb (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 716.

A stipulation as to reading from an abstract held not to allow reading from the deed record. Whittaker v. Thayer, 48 C. A. 508, 110 S. W. 787.

Under an agreement by plaintiff in trespass to try title, certain evidence held admissible, and not open to the objection that it was not the best evidence. Lewright v. Walls, 55 C. A. 643, 119 S. W. 721.

A stipulation of parties in an action of trespass to try title held not to preclude an inquiry as to plaintiff's good faith in settling upon public lands. Lefevre v. Jackson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 212.

An agreement of the parties as to plaintiff's acquisition of record title to the land in controversy held to admit such title only at the time of the suit. Combs v. Stringer (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 668.

Plaintiff sued on contract as executed by defendant alone, attaching a copy thereof to his petition, and the parties stipulated that such copy should be introduced in lieu of the original, and that the name of another was also signed to the original agreement, and that the time when it was so signed might be shown by parol. Held, that the admission of the copy showed prima facie that the contract was alleged in the petition. Demetri v. McCoy (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 293.

A written agreement between the parties, reciting facts not contained in the petition, not filed in the trial court, would at most be material only on a trial on the merits, and could not be regarded as a pleading, and could not be considered in the determination of the demurrer to the petition. State v. Jasper & E. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 331; Same v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 335.

Agreement of parties in trespass to try title that both claimed under a common source held intended to cover all that was put in issue by the pleadings to affirm K.'s title, and to relieve both parties from the necessity of connnecting themselves with prior title. Long v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 945.

Conclusiveness and effect.—A stipulation on the first trial held binding on the second trial. Combest v. Wall (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 354.

Where the parties agree in open court to submit certain issues to the jury, neither party can be heard to complain of the action of the court in submitting any of the issues. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. of Waco v. Wilderspin (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1131.

—— Matters concluded.—A stipulation that a party could not contradict testimony given on a former trial by his witnesses held not to preclude a witness from testifying differently as a result of investigations made since the first trial. Cable v. Jackson, 16 C. A. 579, 42 S. W. 136.

Where the parties stipulated that defendant is the common source of title, evidence as to how defendant procured title is inadmissible. Pinkston v. West (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1014.

A stipulation for the trial of a boundary dispute held not to preclude proof of title by limitation. Selkirk v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 1161.

Evidence of a map held properly received in view of an agreement of counsel relative to its condition and appearance. City of Victoria v. Victoria County (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 67.

In an action on an insurance policy, an objection that the evidence does not support a finding that the property destroyed was worth the amount alleged in the petition held not available after an agreement by the parties that certain issues should be the only ones submitted to the jury. Mecca Fire Ins. Co. of Waco v. Wilderspin (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 1131.

In an action between adjoining lot owners to recover a strip claimed as a part of plaintiff's lot, a stipulation made at trial held not to require a verdict for defendant. Beavers v. Baker (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 450.

Where the parties agree that there shall only be one issue, all the other issues made by the pleadings should be disregarded. Provident Nat. Bank v. Webb (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 426.

A judgment entered pursuant to a stipulation held not res judicata. Talley v. Lamar County, 104 T. 295, 137 S. W. 1125.

A stipulation in trespass to try title that both parties claimed from a common source held not to relieve the plaintiff of the necessity of proving a chain of title from such source. Hirschfield v. Ater (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 202.

In trespass to try title, where both parties agreed that they claimed under a common source of title, defendant could not impeach such title by showing a superior title from the sovereignty of the soil independent of his deed from the common source. Long v. Shelton (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 945.

Use and enforcement.—Where a stipulation of facts made for use in a trial was absolute, it could be used on subsequent trial for all purposes in the absence of any claim of fraud, accident, or mistake. Villareal v. Passmore (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1086.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

SUIT BY NEXT FRIEND

Article 2167. [3498u] When minor may sue by next friend.—Any minor, lunatic, idiot or non compos mentis, having a sufficient cause of action, and who has no legal guardian, can bring suit in any of the courts of this state by next friend; and such next friend shall have the same rights concerning such suit and the matter therein involved as if he were guardian of such minor, lunatic, idiot or non compos mentis; provided, he shall not be relieved from giving security for costs or affidavit in lieu thereof, and cannot collect the proceeds of any moneyed judgment he may recover, except as herein specified. [Acts 1893, p. 3. Acts 1909, p. 176.]

Cited, I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Sein, 11 C. A. 386, 33 S. W. 558; Naylor v. Naylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 475.

In general.—The law in force in 1875 provided for the appointment of a special guardian to take care of the interests of a minor in a suit pending or about to be commenced. Before the statute was passed and since its repeal minors could sue by next friend, and there is nothing in those provisions which would prevent a suit or an intervention being brought before the court by one acting as "next friend." Ivey v. Harrell, 1 C. A. 226, 20 S. W. 775.

The rules of practice in courts of equity permit the representation by next friend of parties to suits who, though not non compos mentis, are by reason of mental or bodily infirmity incapable of properly caring for their own interests in the litigation. Lindly v. Lindly, 102 T. 135, 113 S. W. 752.

Minors, who are.—See Arts. 4045, 4628.

Effect of suit.—The bringing of a suit by a next friend for a minor in no way changes the status of a minor. His disabilities are not removed or suspended by bringing such suit. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Washington, 25 C. A. 600, 63 S. W. 540.

Actions by next friend of minor.—A father may maintain an action as next friend to his son. Evansich v. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 57 T. 126, 44 Am. Rep. 586.

A suit for an idiot, lunatic or person non compos mentis may be brought by next friend, where he has not been adjudged insane and no guardian has been appointed. Holzheiser v. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co., 11 C. A. 677, 33 S. W. 887.

An action may be brought by next friend in the name and behalf of a person of a weak mind. Edwards v. Edwards, 14 C. A. 87, 36 S. W. 1080.

When a guardian's claims are antagonistic to his ward, a next friend of the minor can sue in his behalf. Mealy v. Lipp, 16 C. A. 163, 40 S. W. 824.

The mother of a minor child, who has not been appointed guardian of the child in Texas, though she has been so appointed in another state, may maintain an action for the benefit of the child, as its next friend, although she sues as guardian. Bonner v. Ogilvie, 24 C. A. 237, 58 S. W. 1027.

This article, coupled with Art. 4699, confers on the wife full power to institute and prosecute a suit for damages resulting from the death of her husband. Taylor v. San Antonio Gas & E. Co. (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 675.

It will not be presumed that a grandfather prosecuted a suit as next friend of an infant granddaughter, where he was not her legal guardian and did not pretend to represent her in the suit. Lutcher v. Allen, 43 C. A. 102, 95 S. W. 572.

By common law and statutes a father may act as the next friend of his minor child in prosecuting suits for the child's interest, and the courts will generally give effect to his acts in good faith as next friend. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Lemons (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1189.

—— Exceptions to petition.—See notes at end of Chapter 2 of this title.

—— Amendments during trial.—Where during progress of a trial it appears to the surprise of counsel for both parties that the plaintiff is a minor, the allowance of a motion to introduce another as next friend for plaintiff and guardian ad litem, and the amendment of the petition accordingly, were proper. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Conder, 23 C. A. 488, 58 S. W. 58.

—— Real party in interest.—When suit is instituted in behalf of minors by next friend, the minors are the real parties plaintiff, and it is the duty of the court when the necessity arises to appoint some capable person to represent them in the litigation, to the end that their rights may be fully protected. Long v. Behan, 19 C. A. 325, 48 S. W. 555.

—— Attainment of majority pending action.—An action begun by a next friend of an infant does not abate on the infant, pending the action, attaining his majority, but the action may proceed in his name if he so elects, but the record must show that the action is prosecuted by the infant himself. Spell v. William Cameron & Co. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 637.

A next friend of an infant cannot prosecute an appeal or writ of error after the infant has reached his majority, and a writ of error to review a judgment rendered during the minority of the infant sued out by the next friend after the infant attained full age will be dismissed.—Id.

—— Judgment.—A judgment rendered against a minor, in an action brought by one, as guardian, who is neither the natural guardian, guardian de jure, nor guardian de facto, cannot be upheld on the theory that the action was by next friend. Stephens v. Hewett, 22 C. A. 303, 54 S. W. 301.

In an action by a minor, by his next friend, for personal injuries, it was error to allow the jury, in estimating the damages, to consider medical bills; it not being shown that the minor's estate was liable therefor. Bering Mfg. Co. v. Peterson, 28 C. A. 194, 67 S. W. 133.

Where a next friend of a minor sued to set aside an execution sale of his property, and was recognized by the court as next friend, the minor is bound by the result of such suit. Day v. Johnson, 32 C. A. 107, 72 S. W. 426.

Where a mother sues for herself and as next friend of her minor children, and a plea of intervention is filed, it is not necessary that the judgment show that notice of intervention was served on plaintiffs, if the judgment recites that plaintiffs appeared by attorneys, to make the judgment valid. Hart v. Hunter, 52 C. A. 75, 114 S. W. 884.

—— Costs and fees.—See Art. 4699.

Where minor sues by next friend, if the minor cannot give appeal bond, then the next friend must give the bond or make the affidavit in lieu thereof. Lewis v. Texas & P. Ry. Co., 47 C. A. 425, 105 S. W. 334.

A minor prosecuting an appeal or writ of error by his next friend, though not required to give bond for costs is not thereby relieved from liability therefor, unless the litigation was instituted and prosecuted under conditions which would not be binding on the minor. Biggins v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 561.

A next friend of a minor under this article is personally liable for costs of suit, but he can make affidavit that he is unable to pay or secure the costs, without stating that the minor is unable to pay or secure the costs.—Id.

Actions by next friend of lunatic, idiot, or non compos mentis.—A suit for an idiot, lunatic, or person non compos mentis may be brought by next friend, where he has not been adjudged insane and no guardian has been appointed. Holzheiser v. Gulf, W. T. & P. Ry. Co., 11 C. A. 677, 33 S. W. 887.

A lunatic may sue by next friend. Hughey v. Mosby, 31 C. A. 76, 71 S. W. 395.

An insane person held not entitled to the dismissal of a suit brought in her behalf by her next friend by repudiating the action and filing a demand for dismissal. Holland v. Riggs, 53 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 167.

—— Actions maintainable.—Suit in county court in behalf of insane person to set aside will held properly brought by next friend. Holland v. Couts, 100 T. 232, 98 S. W. 236, affirming 42 C. A. 515, 98 S. W. 233.

A lunatic may sue by next friend for the annulment of his marriage contracted while mentally unsound. Schneider v. Rabb (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 163.

A suit to set aside an insane person's conveyance of real property because secured by the grantee's undue influence may be prosecuted in her behalf by another as her next friend. Holland v. Riggs, 53 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 167.

A contract by defendant with his parents to support his imbecile sister is subject to specific performance by defendant's brother as the sister's next friend, but not in the brother's individual right. Caruth v. Caruth (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 300.

—— Notice.—The fact that one of the plaintiffs in trespass to try title was a lunatic held not to render it necessary to serve notice on plaintiff of a cross-bill filed by defendant, where the lunatic was represented by a next friend. Harris v. Schlinke (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 72.

—— Trial.—Where plaintiff's incapacity to sue appears at the trial, the court should permit the suit to be conducted for plaintiff's benefit by some one as next friend. Mills v. Cook (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 81.

In a suit by plaintiff, an incompetent, by her next friend, the court did not err in bringing plaintiff into court by attachment, on the theory that plaintiff was thereby given an undue advantage, etc. Holland v. Riggs, 53 C. A. 367, 116 S. W. 167.

Where an insane person repudiated a suit by her next friend to set aside a conveyance, the court properly directed a verdict for defendant if plaintiff was of sound mind, either when the suit was brought or at the time of the trial.—Id.

Appearance by next friend on citation of guardian to make final report.—See notes under Art. 4276.

Guardian ad litem of minor or lunatic defendant.—See Art. 1942.

Art. 2168. [3498v] Next friend may compromise, etc.—Such next friend or the attorney of record of such minor, lunatic, idiot or non compos mentis may enter into such agreed judgment or compromise in such suit as the court may approve; and the decree entered upon such agreement or compromise, when approved by the court, shall be forever binding on said minor, lunatic, idiot or non compos mentis, and can divest title out of the minor, lunatic, idiot, or non compos mentis or vest it in such minor, lunatic, idiot or non compos mentis, when the court is satisfied such decree is for the best interest of the minor, lunatic, idiot or non compos mentis, under all circumstances; and the court may hear evidence touching upon such agreement or compromise before approving the same. [Id.]

See Naylor v. Naylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 475.

Application in general.—This article has no application in a case brought to partition an estate in which a minor is one of the owners. It refers only to compromise on agreed judgments rendered in suits brought by a minor through a next friend. Morris v. Morris, 45 C. A. 60, 99 S. W. 874.

Setting aside judgment as improvident.—A judgment entered against a minor, under an agreement made by his next friend, held properly set aside as improvident. Day v. Johnson, 32 C. A. 107, 72 S. W. 426.

Art. 2169. [3498w] May collect certain personal judgments, etc. —Whenever, in any suit in this state, any minor, lunatic, idiot or non compos mentis recovers a personal judgment for money or other personal property in which the interest of the said minor, lunatic, idiot, or non compos mentis does not exceed the value of five hundred dollars, and said minor, lunatic, idiot or non compos mentis has no guardian, such next friend, or any person authorized by the court to do so by an order entered upon record, may take charge of said money or property for the benefit of said minor, lunatic, idiot or non compos mentis, upon giving bond in such sum as shall be ordered by the court, which shall not be less than double the value of the property, conditioned that he will pay over said money and lawful interest thereon and deliver said property and its increase to the minor when he becomes of age, or to the lunatic, idiot, or non compos mentis when he is restored to sanity or to the legally qualified guardian of such persons when demanded, and that he will pay or deliver the same to such person appointed by the court when ordered by the court to do so, and that he will use such money or property for the benefit of the minor, lunatic, idiot or non compos mentis as ordered by the court. It is provided, further, that the terms of this article shall apply to all money or other personal property now in the hands of the clerks of the courts of this state belonging to such persons; provided, further, that in any such case without regard to the amount involved, the judge of the court in which the judgment is rendered shall have authority upon an application and hearing, in term time or vacation, to provide by decree for an investment of the funds accruing under such judgment as he may deem advisable and to the best interest of the beneficiary or beneficiaries. If such decree shall be made in vacation, it shall be recorded in the minutes of the succeeding term of the court. [Id.]

See Naylor v. Naylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 475.

Judgment, form and requisites of.—In a suit by a minor by next friend, judgment should be rendered in favor of the minor. Savings Bank v. Wales, 3 App. C. C. § 244.

Upon a recovery by a minor suing by his next friend in a suit instituted prior to the act above cited, it was held that the judgment should be entered in favor of the minor. The next friend cannot receive the money unless he becomes guardian, although he subjects himself to the payment of costs. Galveston Oil Mill v. Thompson, 76 T. 235, 13 S. W. 60.

In a proceeding for the benefit of minors begun and prosecuted by the mother as prochein ami, judgment was rendered in her name. It was held that she recovered in her representative character for the benefit of the minors, and the judgment was admissible in evidence in a suit afterwards brought by them, claiming rights under it. Wygal v. Myers, 76 T. 598, 13 S. W. 567.

Where a minor sues for damages by her next friend the proper form of judgment is to recite that the plaintiff, by her next friend, naming them, do have and recover the amount of the judgment for the sole use of the minor; and the judgment should also recite that the money, when collected, is to remain in court until the qualification of a regular guardian or the minor reaches her majority. Railway Co. v. Stuart, 1 C. A. 642, 20 S. W. 962.

The judgment in favor of a minor should direct the money to be deposited with the clerk of the court, to be paid by him to the minor's guardian. City of Austin v. Colgate (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 896, citing Railway Co. v. Styron, 66 T. 427, 1 S. W. 161.

A judgment for minors should not authorize the money to be paid their next friend without requiring him to give bond, as provided by this article. Parriss v. Jewell, 57 C. A. 199, 122 S. W. 399.

Collection of judgment.—A money judgment in favor of a minor will not authorize the next friend who prosecuted the suit to receive the money. It may be paid over only to some one who has qualified as guardian of the minor's estate, or must be retained in the custody of the court until the minor is 21 years of age. Railroad Co. v. Hewitt, 67 T. 473, 3 S. W. 705, 60 Am. Rep. 32.

The next friend of a minor has no right to collect a judgment that exceeds $500 without qualifying as guardian. G., C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Younger, 19 C. A. 242, 45 S. W. 1030.

Protection of proceeds.—The court, rendering a judgment in favor of an infant, must take steps to protect the money paid in satisfaction thereof, though on the application of one who has no interest therein. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Younger, 19 C. A. 242, 45 S. W. 1030.

Art. 2170. [3498x] Disposition of such collections; compensation, etc.—Such person who takes such money or property shall receive no fees or commissions for caring for or handling the same, but shall receive such compensation for caring for or handling the same as may be allowed by the court, and shall make such disposition thereof at all times as the court may order; and he may be required to return such money or property into court upon the order of the court, when the court may make such further disposition of the same as is deemed best for the minor, lunatic, idiot, or non compos mentis. [Id.]

See Naylor v. Naylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 475.

Art. 2171. [3498y] Claims against such judgments, how adjusted.—Whenever any attorney or other person has any interest in such recovery or judgment, the court may hear evidence as to such interest, and, if deemed just, shall order such claim, or such part as is deemed just, to be paid to such person who is entitled to receive the same. [Acts 1893, p. 3.]

See Naylor v. Naylor (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 475.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

SUITS AGAINST NON-RESIDENTS

Article 2172. [1504a] Actions maintainable against non-residents.—An action may be brought and prosecuted to final decree, judgment, or order, by any person claiming a right or interest in or to any property in this state, against any person or persons who are non-residents of this state, or whose place of residence is unknown, or who are transient persons, who claim an adverse estate, or interest in, or who claim any lien or incumbrance on said property, for the purpose of determining such estate, interest, lien, or incumbrance, and granting the title to said property, or settling the lien or incumbrance thereon. [Acts 1893, p. 77.]

Form of notice.—A state has control over property within its limits and can determine the title to real estate situated therein, and for the purpose of such determination may provide any reasonable methods of imparting notice. Hardy v. Beaty, 84 T. 562, 19 S. W. 778, 31 Am. St. Rep. 80.

Applicability in general.—These articles have reference to non-residents cited by publication and not by personal service. Wilson v. Nat. Bank, 27 C. A. 54, 63 S. W. 1068; Norvell v. Pye (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 666. And the decisions on service by publication are not applicable to service by personal notice on a non-resident defendant in another state. Norvell v. Pye (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 666.

Jurisdiction of actions by or against nonresidents in general.—See notes under Art. 1712.

A nonresident of Texas is not chargeable with notice of the laws of such state as to jurisdiction of its courts. Netzorg v. Green, 26 C. A. 119, 62 S. W. 789.

Proof of non-residence.—Where a petition alleged that defendant was a resident of the state, and petitioner's affidavit stated that the facts as to defendant's non-residence were true, it was held that the record did not show that defendant was a non-resident. Iiams v. Root, 22 C. A. 413, 55 S. W. 411.

Record in partition held to show that certain defendants were only before the court as unknown heirs, and that they were non-residents, and therefore personal judgment against them for the costs of the partition was void. Kilmer v. Brown, 28 C. A. 420, 67 S. W. 1090.

Art. 2173. [1504b] Actual possession not necessary; service, etc.—Such action may be maintained by any such person whether he is in actual possession of such property or not; and service on the defendant or defendants may be made by publication of the writ or notice of the same, as is now or hereafter may be provided by law for publication of citation against non-residents, or persons unknown, or transient persons. [Id.]

Right of action.—Action may be maintained though the plaintiff is not in actual possession of the property and service can be had by publication. Irion v. Bexar County, 26 C. A. 527, 63 S. W. 551.

Writ or notice.—By the language "service may be made by publication of the writ or notice of the same" it is not meant that the law has reference to a party cited by publication or cited by personal service, but two names—"writ" or "notice"—are simply given to the citation to be published. Wilson v. Nat'l Bank, 27 C. A. 54, 63 S. W. 1068.

Art. 2174. [1504c] Requisites of pleadings.—The pleadings in such case shall set forth the title of the complainant, as well as the claim of the defendant, if known; and such proceedings shall be had in such action as may be necessary to fully settle and determine the question of right or title in, and to, said property between the parties to said suit, and to decree the title or right of the party entitled thereto; and the court may issue the appropriate order to carry such decree, judgment, or order, into effect. [Id.]

Applicability in general.—See Art. 7733.

This article merely gives a more particular designation of the requisites of the petition in cases of trespass to try title and recover possession of land from unknown heirs. Cates v. Alston's Heirs, 25 C. A. 454, 61 S. W. 980.

Art. 2175. [1504d] Judgment by default can not be rendered.—No judgment by default shall be taken in such case by reason of the failure of the defendant to answer; but the facts entitling the plaintiff to judgment shall be exhibited to the court on the trial; and a statement of the facts shall be filed as may be provided by law in suits against non-residents of this state where no appearance has been made by them. [Id.]

Presumption of service of citation.—In an action against a nonresident, judgment by default was rendered. On appeal the citation set out in the transcript was fatally defective; the judgment reciting due service, but not identifying the citation on which it rested. The statement of facts required in default cases by this article did not set out the citation to which it referred, but merely gave the conclusion that it was "in due and legal form," together with the date of its issuance and a copy of the sheriff's return, both of which were identical with the citation and return in the transcript. Held, that the record was insufficient to raise the presumption that an additional sufficient citation beside that shown in the transcript was also served on defendant. Bilby v. Rodgers (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 616.

Personal judgment against non-resident.—A judgment in personam cannot be rendered against a non-resident corporation not personally served within the state. Bradley v. Burnett (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 170.

When judgment is rendered against a defendant cited by publication, the fee allowed the attorney appointed to defend the absent defendant may be taxed in a bill of costs, and satisfied out of the proceeds of the sale of the property on which the lien is enforced. Read v. Gillespie, 64 T. 42.

The court may render judgment against nonresidents affecting the title to land, but not a judgment for costs, or one in personam. Hardy v. Beaty, 84 T. 562, 19 S. W. 778, 31 Am. St. Rep. 80.

Where a non-resident makes no appearance, the court cannot render a personal judgment against him. Perry v. Bassett, 16 C. A. 288, 41 S. W. 523.

Where a non-resident is served in a foreign state with notice of suit and copy of petition, the court cannot, on failure to appear, render judgment against him. Andrews v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 610.

A personal judgment for costs, in partition against unknown heirs on citation by publication held valid only against residents. Watson v. McClane, 18 C. A. 212, 45 S. W. 176.

A personal judgment by default against a non-resident defendant on service by publication is void for want of jurisdiction. Evans v. Breneman (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 80.

Personal judgment for costs held void, the citation being void on its face, and the judgment being against M., if living, and his heirs if dead, and M. being dead when judgment was rendered, and his heirs non-residents. Bumpass v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 1103.

A personal judgment cannot be entered against a non-resident owning property within the state, personally served with summons outside the state; a judgment against the property only being authorized. Wilson v. National Bank of Cleburne, 27 C. A. 54, 63 S. W. 1067.

A personal judgment against a non-resident, based on service by publication, is void, and will not support a sale of property thereunder. Kilmer v. Brown, 28 C. A. 420, 67 S. W. 1090.

Refusal of judgment against a non-resident by default, and allowing him until the succeeding term to answer, held not error. Owen v. Kuhn, Loeb & Co. (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 432.

Personal judgment for deficiency against non-resident non-appearing defendants in foreclosure suit held void. Greenway v. De Young, 34 C. A. 583, 79 S. W. 603.

A personal judgment against a non-resident rendered by default on constructive service is void. Lutcher v. Allen, 43 C. A. 102, 95 S. W. 572.

No personal judgment can be rendered against a non-resident defendant, served without the state, upon his failure to appear and answer, unless he owns property within the state. Behrens v. Brice, 52 C. A. 221, 113 S. W. 782.

A judgment against a non-resident rendered on service by publication only held void for want of jurisdiction over the defendant. Horst v. Lightfoot, 103 T. 643, 132 S. W. 761.

Facts held not to show jurisdiction to render a personal judgment against one absent from the state. McDonald v. Mabee (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1089.

Where a default judgment in an action in which land was levied on and sold recited that the original citation to defendant, who was a non-resident, and the return thereof, accompanied with the affidavits of a publisher, showing the publication of the citation, had been lost, and that judgment was rendered on a substituted copy of the citation, the judgment was void. Turner v. Pope (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 420.

A court not impounding personal property within the territorial limits of its jurisdiction held not entitled to subject the same to the personal judgment against a foreign owner constructively served and not appearing. Banco Minero v. Ross & Masterson (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 224.

Art. 2176. [1504e] Procedure if suit be to extinguish lien.—In case said suit shall be for the extinguishment of any lien or claim for money on said property that may be held by the defendant, the amount thereof, with interest, shall be ascertained by the court; and the same shall be deposited in the registry of the court, subject to be drawn by the defendant or defendants entitled thereto; but in such case no decree shall be entered, until said sum is deposited; which fact shall be noted in said decree. [Id.]

Art. 2177. [1504f] Judgment in such cases receivable in evidence.—The judgment of the court in the cases mentioned shall be received in evidence, under the rules governing evidence that may be established by law; and said judgment shall be binding on the parties thereto concerning the matters determined therein. [Id.]

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

ATTORNEY'S FEES, RECOVERY OF

Article 2178. Attorney's fees recoverable in certain cases; procedure; costs.—Hereafter, any person in this state having a valid, bona fide claim against any person or corporation doing business in this state, for personal services rendered or for labor done, or for material furnished, or for overcharges on freight or express, or for any claim for lost or damaged freight, or for stock killed or injured by such person or corporation, its agents or employés, may present the same to such person or corporation or to any duly authorized agent thereof, in any county where suit may be instituted for the same; and if, at the expiration of thirty days after the presentation of such claim, the same has not been paid or satisfied, he may immediately institute suit thereon in the proper court; and if he shall finally establish his claim, and obtain judgment for the full amount thereof, as presented for payment to such person or corporation in such court, he shall be entitled to recover the amount of such claim and all costs of suit, and, in addition thereto, a reasonable amount as attorney's fees; provided, he has an attorney employed in the case, not to exceed twenty dollars, to be determined by the court or jury trying the case. [Acts 1909, p. 93.]

Parties entitled to.—Constable held not entitled to attorney's fees for filing suit on an indemnity bond. Moore v. Moore (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 565.

Officers and members of church, who take assignment of mortgage, and bid in in their own name on foreclosure, held entitled to attorney's fees. Fort v. First Baptist Church (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 402.

City held not entitled to recover attorney's fees against defendants sued for rendering it liable for damages for injuries from obstruction of street. City of Corsicana v. Tobin, 23 C. A. 492, 57 S. W. 319.

Where, in an action on a note bearing no interest, defendant pleaded and proved a counterclaim for more than the amount of the note, plaintiff could not recover attorney's fees. Couturie v. Roensch (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 413.

Party entitled to question allowance.—Appellee cannot question allowance of attorney fee to appellant to which he did not except. Moore v. Blum (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 511.

Actions in which recoverable.—Attorney's fees held recoverable on the amount of a note, notwithstanding a set-off. Wentworth v. King (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 696. But held not recoverable under a provision therefor, in the absence of pleading and proof that plaintiff has paid or contracted to pay such fees. Koppe v. Groginsky (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 984.

A stipulated attorney's fee may be collected in enforcing a mechanic's lien. Bosley v. Lease (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 516.

Attorney's fees are not recoverable as actual damages, in an action for conversion. Lee v. McDonnell, 31 C. A. 468, 72 S. W. 612.

Attorney's fees in prosecution of an action for damages are not recoverable in such action. Jackson v. Poteet (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 980.

Attorney's fees, as such, are not recoverable in a suit for damages for malicious prosecution. Beckham v. Collins, 54 C. A. 241, 117 S. W. 431. Nor for the malicious suing out of an attachment. Id. Nor for the malicious suing out of a distress warrant. Id.

An attorney's fee held to have been improperly awarded. Cain v. Hopkins (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 834.

Where a purchaser of lumber only assumed to pay his vendor's purchase-money notes, and did not undertake to pay attorney's fees stipulated for therein, he cannot be charged therewith. Continental State Bank of Beckville v. Trabue (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 209.

Attorney's fees are not recoverable as actual damages. McKay v. Wishert (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 508.

In personal injury actions attorney's fees form no part of the compensation. San Antonio Traction Co. v. Cassanova (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 1190.

Tender of attorney's fees.—Where plaintiff did not ask for attorney's fees, defendants on offering to pay the claim sued on need not tender them. Ball v. Belden (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 20.

Art. 2179. Remedy cumulative.—Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to repeal, or in any manner affect, any provision of the law now in force, giving a remedy to persons having claims of the character mentioned in this chapter, but the same shall be considered as cumulative of all other remedies given to such person or persons. [Id.]

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Article 2180. [1447] [1443] Process, requisites of.—The style of all writs and process shall be "The State of Texas;" and, unless otherwise specially provided by law, every such writ and process shall be directed to the sheriff or any constable of the proper county, shall be made returnable on the first day of the next term of the court after the issuance thereof, and shall be dated and attested by the clerk with the seal of the court impressed thereon; and the date of its issuance shall be noted on the same. [Const., art. 5, sec. 12; Acts Nov. 12, 1866, p. 199, sec. 1; May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 10. P. D. 1431.]

See Title 37, Chapter 6, and Title 123, Chapter 2.

Seal of court.—The citation of one court under the seal of another is invalid. Brewster v. Norfleet, 3 C. A. 103, 22 S. W. 226.

A citation upon which the seal of the court is not impressed is a nullity, and a judgment by default against the defendant will be reversed on error. Hale v. Gee (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 44. See Wells v. Ames Iron Works, 3 App. C. C. § 296.

A judgment in a case by default where the citation was not signed and attested by the clerk will be reversed on appeal. Caufield v. Jones, 18 C. A. 721, 45 S. W. 741.

A citation which has been served on defendant, but to which the clerk's seal has not been affixed, will not support a judgment by default. Robinson v. Horton, 36 C. A. 333, 81 S. W. 1044; Barnett v. Alamo Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 662.

A citation issued out of the district court, attested with a seal of the county court, was void, and insufficient to support a default judgment, though the office of county clerk and clerk of the district court was held by the same person, as authorized by Const. art. 5, § 20. Hardy Oil Co. v. Markham State Bank (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 440.

Under this article, and Code Cr. Proc. Arts. 671, 672, a writ commanding the sheriff to deliver to accused a certified copy of a special venire must bear the seal of the court, and file mark affixed thereto, and the court may not after motion to quash the venire on the ground that the writ did not bear the seal of court, permit the seal to be affixed to the writ and make it relate back to the time of its issuance, but it must postpone the case and direct the service of a copy of the venire properly attested. Ollora v. State, 60 Cr. R. 217, 131 S. W. 570.

Amendments of process.—A citation without a seal is amendable and the judgment is voidable only. Moore v. Perry, 13 C. A. 204, 35 S. W. 838.

Name of county.—When the name of the county is added to the style it may be stricken out as surplusage. Biesenbach v. Key, 63 T. 79; Porter v. Parker, 8 T. 23, 58 Am. Dec. 95.

Date of issuance.—The date of issuance stated in the body of the writ is not corrected by the attestation of the clerk. Irvin v. Ferguson, 83 T. 491, 18 S. W. 820.

Art. 2181. [1451] [1447] Vouchers, wager of battle, etc., repealed.—All vouchers, views, essoins, and also trials by wager of battle and wager of law shall stand repealed. [Act May 13, 1846, p. 363, sec. 107. P. D. 1468.]

Views.—In is reversible error to permit the jury to inspect and view the place or scene of the transaction. Riggins v. State, 42 Cr. R. 472, 60 S. W. 877.

A district court has no authority to make an order compelling plaintiff in an action for personal injuries to submit to an examination by physicians. Austin & N. W. Ry. Co. v. Cluck, 97 T. 172, 77 S. W. 403–407, 64 L. R. A. 494, 104 Am. St. Rep. 863, 1 Ann. Cas. 261.

Art. 2182. [1454] [1450] Suits consolidated, when.—Whenever several suits may be pending in the same court, by the same plaintiff, against the same defendant, for causes of action which may be joined, or where several suits are pending in the same court, by the same plaintiff, against several defendants, which may be joined, the court in which the same are pending may, in its discretion, order such suits to be consolidated. [Id. sec. 48.]

See Association v. Smith, 70 T. 171, 7 S. W. 793; Dreben v. Russeau (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 867; Mills v. Paul (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 242; Spencer v. James, 31 S. W. 540, 43 S. W. 556, 10 C. A. 327.

Actions which may be consolidated.—It is error to consolidate suits so that the amount in controversy exceeds the jurisdiction of the court. Mohrhardt v. S. P. & N. Ry. Co., 2 App. C. C. § 323.

When judgments have been rendered in a justice's court, in several suits between the same parties, they cannot be consolidated and removed to the county court by certiorari. G., H. & S. A. R. R. Co. v. Ware, 2 App. C. C. § 357.

When suits are brought by the same plaintiffs against the same principal defendant on separate obligations to secure the faithful performance of official duties by the principal defendant, and there are different sureties on the several bonds which were given for different terms of official service, and who are defendants in the suits brought on their respective bonds, the suits cannot be consolidated, though the plaintiff may be unable to state under which term of official service a misappropriation of funds by the principal defendant occurred. Screwmen v. Smith, 70 T. 168, 7 S. W. 793.

Two suits on claims due the plaintiff secured by the same deed of trust on the same property, one defendant being liable on each, and the other defendant being liable on one only, may be consolidated. Johnston v. Luling Mfg. Co. (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 996.

Suits for the recovery of land between the same parties may be consolidated, though one involves an express, and the other a resulting, trust. Mixon v. Farris, 20 C. A. 253, 48 S. W. 741.

The consolidation of certain actions held proper, as being intimately connected. Herring v. Herring (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 865.

Actions to foreclose trust deed and to set aside property as homestead held properly consolidated. Leslie v. Elliott, 26 C. A. 578, 64 S. W. 1037.

Clerk of court held to have had no authority to consolidate certain garnishment proceedings. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Seymour, 29 C. A. 542, 66 S. W. 686.

An action that has been dismissed may be consolidated with another action, where the order of consolidation sets aside the former order of dismissal. Hill v. Alexander (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 333.

Under this article a case involving purely matters of probate, pending on appeal in the district court from a judgment of the county court entered in matters probate, cannot be joined with suits of trespass to try title brought by the administrator, and originating and pending in such district court, even though the parties to all are the same. Hallam v. Moor (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 908.

An action in the district court held not to be consolidated with an appeal to the district court from an order of the county court probating a decedent's will. Buchner v. Wait (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 383.

Plaintiff sued H. L. and two others, who were partners in an automobile repair business under the name of H. L., to recover two automobiles left with defendants for repair, and for damages caused by refusal to redeliver them. H. L. afterwards sued plaintiff for a balance due on an open account and for the charges for repairing and storing the automobiles and to foreclose a lien thereon for payment of such balance due. Article 5664 gives proprietors of stables a special lien on vehicles placed with them for their charges, and Art. 5665 gives a mechanic a possessory lien for repairing any vehicle. Held, that the two actions were properly consolidated; the question of whether plaintiff was entitled to recover the automobiles depending on whether he owed L. for the charges claimed and refused to pay them, and the parties in effect being the same to each action. Lewis v. Reynolds (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1072.

An action for the recovery of cattle held properly consolidated with one for the recovery of a promissory note and the foreclosure of a chattel mortgage upon other cattle, where defendant's cross-complaint shows that it was all one transaction. Tiefel Bros. & Winn v. Maxwell (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 319.

Where in trespass to try title, because of disclaimers filed by the parties, the only issues involved were issues of boundary, the correct location of which depended on the same proof, a consolidation of the causes was not prejudicial. Whitaker v. Browning (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 1197.

Time to move for consolidation.—Motion for consolidation after trial comes too late. Needham Piano & Organ Co. v. Hollingsworth (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 750.

Discretion of court and review.—An order consolidating suits will not be reviewed unless there has been a manifest injury. Morris v. Wood, 1 App. C. C. § 1311; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hays, 2 App. C. C. § 390.

Where several parcels of land were assessed against defendants as separate tracts, it was not error to refuse to consolidate separate suits against each tract. Watkins v. State (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 532.

Whether suits should be consolidated or not is within the discretion of the trial court. Young v. Gray, 65 T. 99; Bolden v. Hughes, 48 C. A. 496, 107 S. W. 92.

Mandamus will not issue to compel district judge to vacate order consolidating causes when it does not appear that he has abused his discretion in making the order. Halliburton v. Martin, 28 C. A. 127, 66 S. W. 678.

It is within the discretion of the trial judge to consolidate two suits brought to contest a local option election. McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 278.

Refusal to consolidate actions under Arts. 7683–7700, for the collection of delinquent taxes on separate tracts assessed in separate assessments either to third persons as owners or to unknown owners, brought in the same court on the same day, against one claiming to own all the tracts at the time of the commencement of the actions, is not an abuse of discretion conferred by this article. McFaddin v. State (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 991.

Under this article the matter of consolidating causes of action being discretionary with the trial court, a refusal to consolidate causes could not be reviewed, in the absence of an abuse of discretion. Brasfield v. Young (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 180.

Setting aside order of consolidation, discretion and review.—The court in its discretion, having properly consolidated suits, should not set aside the order. Aycock v. Doty, 1 App. C. C. § 222. Setting an order aside is not reversible error, unless the party appealing has suffered injury therefrom. Young v. Gray, 65 T. 99.

—— Time to move to vacate order.—A motion to vacate an order consolidating actions, after acquiescing therein for seven months, held too late. Scott v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 485.

Adjudication after consolidation.—When suits are consolidated there must be an adjudication in all of the cases before an appeal can be taken. Simpson v. Bennett, 42 T. 241; Linn v. Arambould, 55 T. 611; Railway Co. v. Railway Co., 68 T. 98, 2 S. W. 199, 3 S. W. 564; Mills v. Paul, 23 S. W. 189, 1 C. A. 419; Id., 23 S. W. 395, 396, 4 C. A. 503.

Though certain garnishment proceedings were consolidated, judgment against one of the garnishees held proper. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Seymour, 29 C. A. 542, 66 S. W. 686.

Art. 2183. [1455] [1451] Officers failing, etc., punished for contempt and liable for damages.—Every clerk, sheriff, constable, or other officer, neglecting or refusing to perform any duty required of him under the provisions of this title shall, in addition to the punishment prescribed in the Penal Code, be punished as for a contempt of court, and shall also be liable to damages at the suit of any person injured. [Id. sec. 20. P. D. 1436.]

Acts constituting contempt.—Stated conduct concerning filing of papers by clerks of court held contempt. Howard v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 707.

A sheriff, who took a convict from jail pending his appeal and placed him at work on the county roads under the clerk's order of commitment, held not to be in willful contempt of court, so as to be subject to fine or punishment. Ex parte Brandenberg, 63 Cr. R. 577, 140 S. W. 780.

Failure and refusal of a clerk to issue an alias execution on a judgment in his office, providing for collection by execution, in the absence of legal excuse, constitutes a contempt. Kruegel v. Williams (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 903.

Defenses.—Contempt of a police officer in working accused on the highway, pending an appeal from an order dismissing the writ of habeas corpus, held purged. Ex parte Ryan, 62 Cr. R. 19, 136 S. W. 65.

Where a clerk of the district court refused to issue an alias execution without legal excuse, though he might be compelled to do so by mandamus, held no defense to contempt proceedings brought against him by the judgment creditor. Kruegel v. Williams (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 903.

Persons entitled to prosecute.—Where a clerk of the district court, in whose office a judgment was filed, refused to issue an alias execution without legal excuse, the judgment creditor held entitled to proceed against him by contempt proceedings. Kruegel v. Williams (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 903.

Hearing and determination.—The fact of complainant's ownership of a judgment could not be determined on demurrer to a petition in contempt proceedings against the clerk for refusal to issue an alias execution on the judgment. Kruegel v. Williams (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 903.

Validity of judgment.—A writ of scire facias and a judgment nisi, adjudging a sheriff guilty of constructive contempt of court for failure to serve process, are void where they do not show that the sheriff was able to execute the process. Goodfellow v. State, 53 Cr. R. 471, 110 S. W. 755.

Duty to receive money due on judgment.—Motion to require district court clerk to pay over money paid him on a judgment and appropriated by him to the payment of costs in other suits, held properly overruled, as it is not within his official duty to receive money due on a judgment. City of Whitesboro v. Diamond (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 540.

TITLE 38

COURTS—JUVENILE

DEPENDENT AND NEGLECTED CHILDREN

Article 2184. "Dependent child" or "neglected child" defined.—For the purposes of this chapter the words "dependent child" or "neglected child" shall mean any child under sixteen years of age who is dependent upon the public for support or who is destitute, homeless or abandoned; or who has not proper parental care or guardianship, or who habitually begs or receives alms, or who is found living in any house of ill fame or with any vicious or disreputable person, or whose home, by reason of neglect, cruelty or depravity on the part of its parents, guardian or other person in whose care it may be, is an unfit place for such child. Any child, within the provisions of this chapter whose parents or guardian permits it to use except for medicinal purposes or to become addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors, or whose parents or guardian rears, keeps or permits it in or about any saloon or place where intoxicating liquors are sold, or any gambling house or house of ill fame, shall be deemed to be without proper parental care or guardianship. [Acts 1907, p. 135, sec. 1.]

What constitutes dependency.—An agreement by a parent to emancipate his children under 16 years of age, so as to relieve himself from liability for their support for necessaries, is contrary to public policy and would render the children dependent or neglected. Snell v. Ham (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1077.

Art. 2185. County and district courts given jurisdiction over.—The county and district courts of the various counties of this state shall have original jurisdiction in all cases coming within the terms of this chapter, and shall, at all times, be deemed in session for the disposition of same, and when so sitting it may be known as the "juvenile court." In all trials under this chapter, any person interested therein may demand a jury as in other cases; or the judge of the court, of his own motion, may order a jury to try such cases. Unless such jury is demanded, it shall be deemed to be waived. Any person interested in any case under this chapter shall have the right to appear therein and be represented by counsel. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2186. Who may institute proceedings in interest of child, and how.—Any person who is a resident of the county having knowledge of a child in his county who appears to be a "dependent" or "neglected" child may file with the clerk of the county or district court of his county a petition in writing, setting forth the facts constituting the child "dependent" or "neglected;" which petition shall be verified by the affidavit of the petitioner. It shall be sufficient, if the affidavit shall be upon information and belief. Such petition shall set forth the name of the parent or parents of such child, if known, and their residence; and if such child has no parent living, then the name and residence of the guardian of such child, if it has one. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2187. Hearing; citation, etc.; service, etc.; representative; parents' rights forfeited, when.—Upon the filing of such petition, the judge of said court shall fix the day and time for the hearing of such petition. If it shall appear that one or both of such parents, or guardian, if there be no parents, reside in said county, the clerk of said court shall immediately issue citation; which citation shall include a copy of the petition, which shall be served on such parent, parents or guardian, if any, if either can be found in said county, not less than two days before the time fixed for said hearing, requiring them to appear on said day and hour to show cause, if any, why such child should not be declared by said court to be a "dependent" and "neglected" child; and such citation shall be served by the sheriff or any constable of the county. In case it shall appear from the petition that neither of said parents are living, or do not reside in said county, and that said child has no guardian residing in said county, or in case one or both of said parents, or the guardian in case there be no parents, shall indorse on said petition a request that the child be declared a "dependent child," then the citation herein provided for shall not be issued; and the court may thereupon proceed to a hearing of the case. In case neither of the parents or guardian is found, then the court shall appoint some suitable person to represent said child in said cause. In case any child is adjudged to be dependent or neglected under this chapter, then such parents or guardian shall hereafter have no right over or to the custody, services or earnings of said child except upon such conditions in the interest of such child as the court may impose, or where, upon proper proceedings, such child may lawfully be restored to the parents or guardian. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2188. Hearing; facts to be ascertained; witnesses; county attorney to appear for petition or file same, etc., when.—Upon such hearing of such case the child shall be brought before said court; whereupon, it shall be the duty of said court to investigate the facts, and to ascertain whether the child is a "dependent child," its residence, and, as far as possible, the whereabouts of its parents or near adult relatives, when and how long the child has been maintained, in whole or in part, by private or public charity, the occupation of the parents, if living, whether they are supported by the public or have abandoned the child, and to ascertain, as far as possible, if the child is found dependent, the cause thereof. The court may compel the attendance of witnesses on such examination; and it shall be the duty of the clerk to issue all process and the sheriff and other officers of the court to serve the same as in other cases. It shall be the duty of the county attorney, when requested by the court, to appear in any such examination in behalf of the petition. It shall be the duty of the county attorney of such county, upon the request of the court or any petitioner, to file a petition and to conduct any necessary proceedings in any case within the provisions of this chapter. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2189. Adjudication; order disposing of child as deemed best for its welfare.—Upon the hearing of such case, if the said child shall be found to come within any of the provisions of article 2184, it shall be adjudged a "dependent child;" and an order may be entered making disposition of said child as to the court seems best for its moral and physical welfare. It may be turned over to the care and custody of any suitable person or any suitable institution in the county or state organized for the purpose of caring for "dependent children," and which is able and willing to care for same. And when such child is so turned over to the custody of such person or institution, such person or institution shall have the right to the custody of said child, and shall be at all times responsible for its education and maintenance, subject at all times to the orders of the court. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 2190. Child to be ward of custodian; his authority; maintenance, etc.; visitation; reports; change of guardianship; child may remain with parents, etc., when, etc.—In any case where the court shall award any "dependent child" to the care of any individual or institution in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, the child, unless otherwise ordered, shall become a ward and be subject to the guardianship of the institution or individual to whose care it is committed. Such institution or individual shall, with the consent of the court, have authority to place such child in a suitable family home, the head of such family being responsible for the maintenance and education of said child. Any institution or individual receiving any such child under the order of the court shall be subject to visitation or inspection by any person appointed by the court for such purpose; and the court may, at any time, require from any institution or person a report containing such information as the court shall deem proper or necessary, to be fully advised as to the care, education, maintenance and moral and physical training of the child, as well as the standing and ability of such institution or individual to care for such child. The court may change the guardianship of such child, if, at any time, it is made to appear to the court such change is to the best interest of the child. If, in the opinion of the court, the causes of the dependency of any child may be removed under such conditions or supervisions for its care, protection and maintenance as may be imposed by the court, so long as it shall be for its best interests, the child may be permitted to remain in its own home and under the care and control of its own parent, parents or guardian, subject to the jurisdiction and direction of the court; and when it shall appear to the court that it is no longer to the best interests of such child to remain with such parents or guardian, the court may proceed to a final disposition of the case. [Id. sec. 7.]

DELINQUENT CHILDREN

Article 2191. "Delinquent child" defined.—For the purposes of this chapter, the words "delinquent child" shall include any child under sixteen years of age who violates any of the laws of this state, or any city ordinance, or who is incorrigible, or who knowingly associates with thieves, vicious or immoral persons, or who knowingly visits a house of ill repute, or who knowingly patronizes or visits any place where any gambling device is, or shall be operated, or who patronizes any saloon or place where any intoxicating liquors are sold, or who wanders about the streets in the night time without being on any business or occupation, or who habitually wanders about any railroad yards or tracks, or who habitually jumps on or off of any moving train, or enters any car or engine without lawful authority, or who habitually uses vile, obscene, vulgar, profane or indecent language, or who is guilty of immoral conduct in any public place. Any child committing any of the acts herein mentioned shall be deemed a "delinquent child," and shall be proceeded against as such in the manner hereinafter provided. A disposition of any child under this chapter or any evidence given in such case shall not in, any civil, criminal or other cause or proceeding whatever in any court, be lawful or proper evidence against such child for any purpose whatever, except in subsequent cases against the same child under this chapter. [Acts 1907, p. 137, sec. 1.]

Cited, Edmanson v. State, 64 Cr. R. 413, 142 S. W. 887.

Art. 2192. County and district courts given jurisdiction over; jury trial; records.—The county and district courts of the several counties of this state shall have jurisdiction in all cases coming within the terms and provisions of this chapter. In all trials under this chapter any person interested therein may demand a jury, or the judge, of his own motion, may order a jury to try the case. The findings of the court shall be entered in a book to be kept for that purpose, known as the "Juvenile Record;" and the court when disposing of cases under this chapter may, for convenience, be called the "Juvenile Court." [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2193. Proceedings; complaint, etc., filed by county attorney; requisites.—All proceedings under this chapter shall be begun by sworn complaint and information filed by the county attorney, as in other cases under the laws of this state. In any such complaint and information filed under this chapter, the act or acts claimed to have been committed by the child proceeded against shall, in a general way, be stated therein as constituting such child a "delinquent child." [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2194. Warrant, etc.; execution thereof; no incarceration unless; noting; verbal sureties; default; contempt; alias warrant, etc.; no incarceration with, when; bond.—Upon filing of complaint under this chapter, warrant or capias may issue as in other cases; but no incarceration of the child proceeded against thereunder shall be made or had unless, in the opinion of the judge of the court, or, in the absence of the judge, then in the opinion of the sheriff or officer executing the writ, it shall be necessary to insure the attendance of such child in court at such time as shall be required. In order to avoid such incarceration, it shall be the duty of the sheriff or officer executing the process, to serve notice of the proceedings upon the parent or parents of the child, if living and known, or upon the child's legal guardian, or upon any person with whom the child at the time may be living; and the sheriff or officer executing the process may accept the verbal or written promise of such person so notified, or of any other proper person, to be responsible for the presence of such child at the hearing of such case, or at any other time to which the same may be adjourned or continued by the court. In case such child shall fail to appear at such time or times as the court may require, the person or persons responsible for its appearance, as herein provided for, unless in the opinion of the court there shall be reasonable cause for such child to fail to appear as herein provided for, may be proceeded against as in cases in contempt of court, and punished accordingly; and where any such child shall have so failed to appear, any warrant, capias or alias capias issued in such case may be executed, as in other cases; provided, however, that no child, within the provisions of this chapter shall be incarcerated in any compartment of a jail or lock-up in which persons over sixteen years of age are being kept or detained. Any such child shall also have the right to give bond or other security for its appearance at such trial of such case; and the court may appoint counsel to appear and defend on behalf of such child. [Id. sec. 4.]

Incarceration pending delinquency proceedings.—This section has reference to confinement of the child during proceedings brought under the terms of the act, and not to confinement of persons under 16 years of age in jail to await trial in due season when such detention is necessary to secure their safety until trial. Ex parte Thomas, 56 Cr. R. 66, 118 S. W. 1054.

Art. 2195. County and district courts always in session for; child of sixteen or under if arrested to be taken before one of said courts; if taken before justice, etc., case transferred; hearing.—The county and district courts of the various counties of this state shall, at all times, be deemed in session for the purpose of disposing of cases under this chapter; and when any child sixteen years of age or under is arrested on any charge, with or without warrant, such child, instead of being taken before a justice of the peace or any police court, shall be taken directly before the county or district court; or, if the child should be taken before a justice of the peace or a police court upon a complaint sworn out in such court, or for any other reason, it shall be the duty of such justice of the peace or city judge to transfer the case to said county or district court; and, in any such case, the court may hear and proceed to dispose of the case in the same manner as if such child had been brought before the court upon information originally filed as herein provided. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2196. County judge may appoint probation officers, etc.; notice to; his authority and duties.—The county judges of the several counties of this state shall have authority to appoint one or more discreet persons of good moral character who are willing to perform the services as such to serve as probation officer during the pleasure of the court. Such probation officer or officers shall serve without compensation. If practicable, the court, or the clerk of the court, shall notify such probation officer or officers when any child is to be brought before the court; such probation officer shall have the authority, and it shall be his duty, to make investigation of all cases referred to him as such officer by the court, to be present in court and to represent the interests of the child when the case is heard, to furnish to the court such information and assistance as the court may require, and to take charge of any child before and after the trial, and to perform such other services for the child as may be required by the court. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 2197. Hearing may be continued; disposition of child; not to be committed beyond the age of twenty-one; order; requisites; change of order and custody or discharge.—In any case of "delinquent child," coming under the provisions of this chapter, the court may continue the hearing from time to time, and may commit the child to the care of a probation officer or to the care or custody of any other proper person, and may allow said child to remain in its own home subject to the visitation of the probation officer or other person designated by the court, or under any other conditions that may seem proper and be imposed by the court; or the court may cause the child to be placed in the home of a suitable family under such conditions as may be imposed by the court; or it may authorize the child to be boarded out in some suitable family in case provision is made by voluntary contribution or otherwise, for the payment of the board of such child, until suitable provision may be made in a home without such payment; or the court may commit it to any institution in the county that may care for children that is willing to receive it, or which may be provided for by the state or county, suitable for the care of such children willing to receive it, or of any state institution which may now or hereafter be established for boys or girls willing to receive such child, or to any other institution in the state of Texas for the care of such children willing to receive it. In no case shall a child proceeded against under the provisions of this chapter be committed beyond the age of twenty-one. The order of the court committing such child to the care and custody of any person hereinbefore set out shall prescribe the length of time and the conditions of such commitment; and such order shall be at all times subject to change by further orders of the court with reference to said child; and the court shall have the power to change the custody of such child or to entirely discharge it from custody, whenever, in the judgment of the court, it is to the best interest of the child so to do. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 2198. Custodian to report; give information; to be satisfactory to court.—The court or judge thereof may, at any time, require any institution, association or person to whose care any such child is committed to make a complete report of the care, condition and progress of such child. And such court may also require of any institution or association receiving or desiring to receive children under the provisions of this chapter, such reports, information and statements as the court shall deem proper for its action; and the court shall in no case commit a child or children to any association or institution whose standing, conduct or care of children or ability to care for children is not satisfactory to the court. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2199. Prosecution under criminal laws may be ordered; no child under sixteen to be prosecuted without order; after conviction may stay and release, etc.—The county or district court, when it deems it proper and necessary, may order a child coming under the definition of this chapter, and which is charged with the commission of a misdemeanor, to be prosecuted under the criminal laws of this state as other persons charged with misdemeanors are prosecuted; but no child under sixteen years of age shall be so prosecuted, without such order being first so entered. And, after conviction of such child so prosecuted for a misdemeanor, the court shall have full power to stay the execution of such judgment, and to release such child on good behavior or other such orders as the court may see fit to make. [Id. sec. 9.]

Power to dismiss criminal prosecution.—It was held, prior to the amendment by Acts 1909, p. 101, that it is within the discretion of the district judge to order the dismissal of the prosecution of a child for a felony and order his commitment to the juvenile court, but when the court has entertained a writ of habeas corpus and declined to release relator it is assumed that the court has exercised his discretion not to order a dismissal of the prosecution. Ex parte Thomas, 56 Cr. R. 66, 118 S. W. 1054.

Art. 2200. District court may order dismissal of felony prosecution of person under sixteen, and committed to juvenile court, etc., after conviction may suspend judgment and release, etc.—Whenever it shall appear to the district court of this state that any person being prosecuted in such court for a felony is a child under sixteen years of age, such court shall have authority to order such prosecution dismissed and to order such child to be committed to the juvenile court of the county in which such district court is being held, for such action and disposition as said juvenile court may think proper in the premises. Or the said district court may, after conviction on trial of such child, suspend judgment and order the defendant released on good behavior, or such other orders as, in the judgment of such district court, would be for the best interest of said child. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 2201. This chapter to be liberally construed in interest of child and its reformation.—This chapter shall be liberally construed, to the end that its purposes may be carried out; that is, that the interests of the child and its reformation shall, at all times, be the object in view of proceeding against it; provided, that no costs or expenses incurred in the enforcement of this chapter shall be paid by the state. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 2201a. Dependent or delinquent girls may be committed by juvenile court, etc.; mentally deficient or diseased girls; examination.—Whenever any girl between the ages of seven and eighteen years shall be brought before any juvenile court upon petition of any person in this state or the humane society or any institution of a similar purpose or character, charged with being a dependent or delinquent child as these terms are defined in the statutes of this state, the court may, if in the opinion of the judge, the girls' training school is the proper place for her, commit such girl to said girls' training school during her minority; provided, that no girl shall be committed to the girls' training school who is feeble-minded, epileptic or insane, and that any girl committed to said girls' training school who is afflicted with a venereal, tubercular or other communicable disease, shall be assigned to a distinct and separate building of the institution and shall not be allowed to associate with the other wards until cured of said disease or diseases.

No girl shall be admitted to the institution until she has been examined by the training school physician, and such physician issuing a certificate showing her exact state or condition in reference to said qualifications hereinabove enumerated. [Acts 1913, p. 289, sec. 5.]

Explanatory.—Sections 1–4, 7, 8, 10, 11, of this act, relate to the establishment of the girls' training school, and are inserted in this compilation as articles 5234a–5234h.

Art. 2201b. Duties of court; transcript; conveyance to school, etc.—It shall be the duty of the court committing any girl to the girls' training school, in addition to the commitment, to annex a carefully prepared transcript of the trial to aid the officials of the institution in better understanding and classifying the girl. The court shall also designate some reputable woman to convey the girl to the institution. The cost of conveying any girl committed to this institution shall be paid by the county from which she is committed, provided that no compensation shall be allowed beyond the actual and necessary expenses of the party conveying and the girl conveyed. [Id. sec. 6.]

CRIMINAL DISTRICT COURTS

THE CRIMINAL DISTRICT COURT OF HARRIS COUNTY

Article 2201c. Galveston and Harris counties criminal judicial district changed to include only Harris county; criminal district court of Harris county created; original jurisdiction.—That the territorial limits of the criminal judicial district composed of the counties of Galveston and Harris is hereby changed so as to hereafter include Harris county alone, and there is hereby created and established in the city of Houston, in the county of Harris, a criminal district court, which shall have original and exclusive jurisdiction over all criminal cases, both felony and misdemeanor, in the county of Harris, of which district and county courts under the Constitution and laws of this state, have original and exclusive jurisdiction, and shall be known as "The Criminal District Court of Harris County." [Acts 1911, p. 111, sec. 1, superseding article 2216, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Explanatory.—This act supersedes Arts. 2202–2205, 2207, 2208, 2212–2214, 2216–2228, Rev. Civ. St. 1911. For provision creating office of criminal district attorney, see Arts. 345a–345d.

Construction of former act.—The judge of a district court can sit as a judge of the criminal court of Galveston and Harris counties and try cases. Hull v. State, 50 Cr. R. 607, 100 S. W. 404.

Art. 2201d. Appellate jurisdiction.—The said court shall have exclusive appellate jurisdiction over all criminal cases tried and determined by justices of the peace, mayors and recorders in said county of Harris, under the same rules and regulations as are provided by law for appeals from justices of the peace, mayors and recorders to the county courts in criminal cases. [Id. sec. 2, superseding article 2217, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2201e. May grant habeas corpus, etc.—The judge of said court hereinafter provided for shall have power to grant writs of habeas corpus, mandamus and all writs necessary to enforce the jurisdiction of his court, under the same rules and regulations which govern district judges. [Id. sec. 3, superseding article 2218, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2201f. Jurisdiction over bail bonds, etc.—Said court shall have jurisdiction over all bail bonds and recognizances taken in proceedings had before said court, or that may be returned to said court from other courts, and may enter forfeitures thereof, and final judgments, and enforce the collection of the same by proper process in the same manner as is provided by law in district courts. [Id. sec. 4, superseding article 2220, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2201g. Jurisdiction over cases transferred.—Said court shall have jurisdiction over all criminal cases heretofore transferred from other courts to the criminal district court of Harris county as heretofore established, and over such criminal cases as may hereafter be transferred to the court created by this Act, as fully in all respects as if said cases had originated in said court. [Id. sec. 5, superseding article 2219, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2201h. Seal of court.—The said criminal district court of Harris county shall have a seal similar to the seal of the district court, with the words "Criminal District Court of Harris County" engraved thereon, an impression of which seal shall be attached to all writs and other process, except subpœneas issuing from said court, and shall be used in the authentication of all official acts of the clerk of the said court. [Id. sec. 6, superseding article 2221, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2201i. Rules of practice; pleading and evidence.—The practice in said court shall be conducted according to the laws governing the practice in the district court, and the rules of pleading and evidence in the district court shall govern in so far as the same may be applicable. [Id. sec. 7, superseding article 2223, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2201j. Selection, etc., of juries.—All laws regulating the selection, summoning, and impaneling of grand and petit jurors in the district court shall govern and apply in the criminal district court in so far as the same may be applicable; provided, that the clerk of the district court of Harris county shall assist in drawing the names of the jurors for said criminal court as is now provided by law. [Id. sec. 8, superseding article 2224, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2201k. Procedure.—All rules of the criminal procedure governing the district and county courts shall apply to and govern said criminal district court. [Id. sec. 9, superseding article 2225, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2201*l*. Six jurors in misdemeanor cases, except.—Said criminal district court of Harris county shall try all misdemeanor cases coming before it with six jurors instead of twelve jurors, unless a jury be waived by the defendant. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 2201m. Terms of court.—Said court shall hold four terms each year for the trial of causes and the disposition of business coming before it, one term beginning the first Monday in May, one term beginning the first Monday in August, one term beginning on the first Monday in November and one term beginning on the first Monday in February of each year. Each term shall continue until the business is disposed of. [Id. sec. 11, superseding article 2222, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Validity of former act.—A governor's proclamation convening a special legislative session provided that it was to enact adequate laws simplifying the procedure in both civil and criminal courts of the state, and amending and changing the existing laws governing "court procedure." Held, that the words "court procedure" should be held to apply generally to all laws governing the operation of courts, including those regulating the times within which sessions of courts may be held, and hence this article changing, extending, and rearranging the terms of the criminal district court for Harris and Galveston counties, was within such proclamation. Long v. State, 58 Cr. R. 209, 127 S. W. 208, 21 Ann. Cas. 405.

Art. 2201n. Extension of term.—Whenever the criminal district court of Harris county shall be engaged in the trial of any cause when the time for the expiration of the term of said court as fixed by law shall arrive, the judge presiding shall have the power and may, if he deems it expedient, continue the term of said court until the conclusion of such pending trial; in such case the extension of such term shall be shown on the minutes of the court before they are signed. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 2201o. Sheriff of Harris county shall attend, etc.—The sheriff of Harris county and his deputies shall attend upon said court and execute all the process issuing therefrom and perform all duties required by said court or the judge thereof, and shall perform all such services for said court as sheriffs and constables are authorized or required to perform in and for other district courts of this state and he shall receive the same fees for his services as are provided by law for the same services in the district court. [Id. sec. 13, superseding article 2226, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2201p. Same powers as district court.—In all matters over which said criminal district court has jurisdiction, it shall have the same power within said district as is conferred by law upon the district court, and shall be governed by the same rules in the exercise of such power. [Id. sec. 14, superseding article 2227, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2201q. Appeals and writs of error.—Appeals and writs of error may be prosecuted from the said criminal district court to the court of criminal appeals, in the same manner and form as from district courts in like cases. [Id. sec. 15, superseding article 2228, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2201r. Harris county separate criminal judicial district judge, clerk, and district attorney, how elected; duties and powers.—The county of Harris is hereby created a separate criminal judicial district and at the next general election after this Act shall take effect, there shall be elected in and for said district a criminal district judge, a criminal district clerk and a district attorney, each of whom shall have and exercise, respectively, the same duties, powers and authority within said county as are now possessed and exercised by the judge of the criminal district court, the clerk of the criminal district court, and the district attorney for the criminal district composed of Galveston and Harris counties, and such other duties as are prescribed herein. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 2201s. Abolished as to Galveston county; transfer of cases; jurisdiction of district and county courts, etc.; compensation of district clerk; special deputy clerks; duty of county attorney, etc.—From and after the taking effect of this Act, the criminal district now composed of Galveston and Harris counties shall cease to exist so far as it embraces Galveston county, and all cases of felony that are then pending on the docket of the criminal district court of Galveston county shall be at once transferred to the district courts in said county of the tenth and fifty-sixth judicial districts, the felony cases on said docket of even numbers shall be transferred to the district court for the tenth judicial district and the felony cases of said docket of odd numbers shall be transferred to the district court for the fifty-sixth judicial district, and the said district court for the tenth judicial district and the said court for the fifty-sixth judicial district are hereby vested with concurrent exclusive jurisdiction of all felony cases arising in the county of Galveston, and the judges of said courts are hereby vested with all powers, privileges, and authority given by the constitution and laws of this state in criminal matters, to the district courts of this state; and the judge of the district court for the tenth judicial district and the judge of the district court for the fifty-sixth judicial district shall alternately impanel grand juries in said county of Galveston in the same manner provided therefor by the judges of the district courts of this state; and from and after taking effect of this Act, all cases of misdemeanor pending on the docket of the criminal district court of Galveston county shall be transferred to the county court of Galveston county, Texas, unless there be a county court at law of said county, in which event they shall be transferred to the latter court; and said county court and the judge thereof is hereby vested with all the powers, privileges and authority in criminal cases that are conferred by the laws of this State on the county court; and the clerk of the district court of Galveston county is hereby vested with the powers, duties and authority in criminal matters in cases of felony that are now conferred by law on clerks of the district court in this state, and shall be the custodian of the records in felony cases transferred from said criminal district court and hereafter arising in the county of Galveston; and the clerk of the county court of Galveston county is hereby vested with the powers, duties and authority in criminal matters in cases of misdemeanor as are now conferred by law on the clerks of the county courts of this state, and such clerk shall be the custodian of the papers and records of misdemeanor cases arising in such county after such transfer, and the clerk of the criminal district court of Galveston county shall at once make the transfer of cases herein provided and turn over the papers and records of his office to the clerk of the district court and the clerk of the county court of Galveston county as herein provided. The clerk of the district court shall file and docket the even numbered felony cases in the court of the tenth judicial district and the odd numbered felony cases in the court of the fifty-sixth judicial district, but any case pending in either of said courts may, in the discretion of the judge thereof, be transferred by one of said district courts to the other, and in case of the disqualification of the judge of either of said courts and in any case, such case on his suggestion of disqualification shall stand transferred to the other of said courts and docketed by the clerk accordingly. All writs and process heretofore, or that may hereafter be issued, up to the time this Act shall take effect, which are made returnable to the criminal district court of Galveston and Harris counties, shall be returnable to the court to which the cause has been or may be transferred in like manner as if originally made returnable to said court and all writs and process are hereby validated.

The district clerk of Galveston county shall receive the sum of $600.00 per annum, to be paid by the county of Galveston for ex officio services, and receive the same fees in criminal cases as fixed by law in felony cases, and the county clerk shall receive the sum of $600.00 per annum for ex officio services and be entitled to such fees as are provided by law in misdemeanor cases.

The county commissioners court shall have authority to pay for the services of a special deputy district or county clerk, or both, if in their judgment such shall be required; such assistant to be appointed by the clerk of the court in which his services are needed. The county attorney and his assistant shall conduct all prosecutions in said district and county courts and county court at law and said county attorneys and the clerks of said court shall receive such fees as are now or may hereafter be provided for by law. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 2201t. Continuation in matters of jurisdiction, records and procedure of former court.—The criminal district court of Harris county herein provided for shall, from and after the time when this Act takes effect, be taken and deemed to be, in respect to all matters of jurisdiction, records and procedure a continuation of the criminal district court of Galveston and Harris counties as now organized for Harris county, it being the intention of this Act to reduce the territorial limits of the criminal judicial district of Galveston and Harris counties to Harris county alone. [Id. sec. 17a.]

Art. 2201u. Judge, how elected; term; qualifications; salary; powers and duties.—The judge of the criminal district court of Harris county shall be elected by the qualified voters of said county for a term of four years and shall hold his office until his successor is elected and qualified. He shall possess the same qualifications as are required of the judges of the district court and shall receive the salary and compensation as is now, or may hereafter be provided for district judges of this state, to be paid in the same manner as the salary and compensation of other district judges is paid. Said judge of said criminal district court shall have and exercise all the powers and duties which are now, or hereafter may be by law vested in and exercised by district judges of this state in criminal cases. The judge of said court may exchange with other district judges, as provided by law, and the said judge shall have all the power within said criminal district which is by the constitution and laws of this state vested in district judges of their respective judicial districts, except that the jurisdiction and authority of said criminal district judge shall be limited to criminal cases, and to the exercise of such powers and the granting of such writs and process as may be necessary or incidental to the exercise of such criminal jurisdiction. [Id. sec. 18. Superseding articles 2202–2207, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Explanatory.—Sections 19–22 of this act relate to the creation of the office of the criminal district attorney of Harris county and appear as Arts. 345a–345d of this compilation.

Arts. 2202–2205.—Superseded. See Art. 2201u.

Art. 2206. [1509] [1486] May be removed from office, how.—Said judge may be removed from office for the same causes and in the manner provided by law for the removal from office of a district judge. [Act July 23, 1870, p. 37, sec. 8. P. D. 6142.]

Explanatory.—This article and articles 2209–2211, 2215, appeared in the act creating the criminal district court of Galveston and Harris counties. These articles are included in this compilation for the reason that they are not inconsistent with any of the provisions of the new act and may not be repealed by the general repealing clause (Art. 2228b) of the new act.

Art. 2207.—Superseded. See Art. 2201u.

Art. 2207a. Clerk, how elected; term; fee; salary; powers and duties; deputies.—The clerk of the criminal district court of Harris county shall be elected by the qualified voters of Harris county, and shall hold his office for a term of two years, and until his successor is elected and qualified. Said clerk shall receive such fees as are now or may hereafter be prescribed by law to be paid to the clerk of the district courts of this state, and to be paid and collected in the same manner; and in addition thereto, he shall receive an annual salary of one thousand dollars, to be paid out of the treasury of Harris county monthly. Said clerk shall have the same power and authority, and shall perform the same duties with respect to said criminal district court of Harris county as are by law conferred upon the clerks of other district courts in criminal cases, and shall have authority to appoint one or more deputies as needed, whose salary shall be paid by said clerk. Said deputies shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution of this state, and said deputies are authorized to perform such services as may be authorized by said criminal district clerk, and shall be removable at the will of the clerk. [Acts 1911, p. 111, sec. 23, superseding articles 2208–2215.]

Art. 2208.—Superseded. See Art. 2207a.

Art. 2209. [1512] [1489] Clerk shall give bond.—The clerk so appointed shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, enter into bond in the sum of ten thousand dollars, payable to the state of Texas, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, conditioned as the bonds of the clerks of the district court, to be approved by the judge of said criminal district court. [Act July 23, 1870, p. 37, sec. 9. P. D. 6143.]

Explanatory.—See note under Art. 2206.

Art. 2210. [1513] [1490] Shall take oath of office.—The said clerk shall also take and subscribe the oath of office prescribed by the constitution of the state. [Id.]

Explanatory.—See note under Art. 2206.

Art. 2211. [1514] [1491] Bond and oath shall be recorded.—The bond and oath required by the two preceding articles shall be deposited and recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county for which the clerk of said criminal district court has been appointed. [Id.]

Arts. 2212–2214.—Superseded. See Art. 2207a.

Art. 2215. [1518] [1495] Vacancy in office of clerk, how filled.—When a vacancy occurs in the office of clerk of the criminal district court, the governor shall fill the same by appointment; and the person appointed shall hold the office for the unexpired term, and until his successor is qualified, and shall enter into bond and take the oath of office as heretofore prescribed in this chapter. [Act July 23, 1870, p. 37, sec. 9. P. D. 6143.]

Arts. 2216–2228.—Superseded. See Arts. 2201c–2201t.

Art. 2228a. Judge, attorney and clerk to continue in office until, etc.; clerk to be appointed.—The criminal district judge and the criminal district attorney of the criminal judicial district composed of Galveston and Harris counties, who shall be in office at the time when this Act goes into effect, shall continue in office, respectively, as the judge and the district attorney of the criminal district court of Harris county until the next general election, or until their successors shall be elected and qualified.

The clerk of the criminal district court of Harris county who shall be in office at the time when this Act goes into effect shall continue in office as clerk of the criminal district court of Harris county until January 1, A. D. 1912, and until his successor is appointed and qualified.

The governor shall, on January 1, 1912, or thereafter, appoint a clerk of the criminal district court of Harris county, who shall hold his office from January 1, A. D. 1912, until the next general election, or until his successor is elected and qualified. [Acts 1911, p. 111, sec. 24.]

Art. 2228b. Laws repealed.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act shall be, and the same are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 25.]

DALLAS CRIMINAL DISTRICT COURT

Article 2229. [1531a] Dallas criminal district court created; jurisdiction.—There is hereby created and established at the city of Dallas a criminal district court, which shall have and exercise all the criminal jurisdiction heretofore vested in and exercised by the district courts of Dallas county. All appeals from the judgments of said court shall be to the court of criminal appeals, under the same regulations as are now or may hereafter be provided by law for appeals in criminal cases from district courts. [Acts 1893, p. 118.]

Explanatory.—See Arts. 2235a, 2235b, conferring concurrent criminal jurisdiction on criminal district court No. 2 of Dallas county.

Art. 2230. [1531b] Dallas county district courts to have no criminal jurisdiction.—The district courts of Dallas county shall not have nor exercise any criminal jurisdiction. [Id.]

Art. 2231. [1531c] Judge; qualifications, election, etc.—The judge of said criminal district court shall be elected by the qualified voters of Dallas county for a term of four years, and shall hold his office until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. He shall possess the same qualifications as are required of a judge of the district court, and shall receive the same salary as is now, or may hereafter, be paid to the district judges, to be paid in like manner. He shall have and exercise all the powers and duties now or hereafter to be vested in and exercised by district judges in criminal cases. The judge of said court may exchange with any district judge, as provided by law in cases of district judges, and in case of disqualification or absence of the judge, a special judge may be selected, elected, or appointed, as provided by law in cases of district judges. [Id.]

Art. 2232. [1531d] Seal of the court and its use.—Said court shall have a seal of like design as the seal now provided by law for district courts, except that the words "Criminal District Court of Dallas County" shall be engraved around the margin thereof, which seal shall be used for all the purposes for which the seals of the district courts are required to be used; and certified copies of the orders, proceedings, judgments, and other official acts of said court, under the hand of the clerk and attested by the seal of said court, shall be admissible in evidence in all the courts of this state in like manner as similar certified copies from courts of record are now or may hereafter be admissible. [Id.]

Art. 2233. [1531e] Sheriff, clerk and county attorney to serve, etc.—The sheriff, the county attorney, and the clerk of the district court of Dallas county, as heretofore provided for by law, shall be the sheriff, county attorney, and clerk, respectively, of said criminal district court, under the same rules and regulations as are now, or may hereafter be, prescribed by law for the government of sheriffs, county attorneys, and clerks in the district courts of the state; and said sheriff, county attorney, and clerk shall respectively receive such fees as are now or may hereafter be prescribed by law for such officers in the district courts of the state, to be paid in the same manner. [Id.]

Amount of sheriff's fees.—The county is liable to the sheriff for only $2.00 for each day that he or his deputy may attend upon the criminal district court, though two deputies are necessary and required by the judge. Ledbetter v. Dallas County, 51 C. A. 140, 111 S. W. 194.

Art. 2234. [1531f] Terms of the court and grand juries.—Said court shall hold four terms each year for the trial of causes and the disposition of business coming before it, one term beginning the first Monday of January, one term beginning the first Monday of April, one term beginning the first Monday of July, and one term beginning the first Monday of October. A grand jury shall be impaneled in said court for each term thereof; and jury commissioners shall be appointed for drawing jurors for said court, as is now or may hereafter be required by law in district courts, and under like rules and regulations. [Id.]

Art. 2235. [1531g] Practice in.—The trials and proceedings in said court shall be conducted according to the laws governing the pleadings, practice, and proceedings in criminal cases in the district courts.

CHAPTER THREE

CRIMINAL DISTRICT COURT NO. 2 OF DALLAS COUNTY

Article 2235a. Court created; concurrent jurisdiction.—That there is hereby created and established at the city of Dallas a criminal district court to be known as the "Criminal District Court No. 2 of Dallas County," which court shall have and exercise concurrent jurisdiction with the criminal district court of Dallas county, Texas, as now given and exercised by the said criminal district court of Dallas county under the constitution and laws of the state of Texas. [Acts 1911, S. S., p. 106, sec. 1.]

Art. 2235b. Criminal district court of Dallas county and court No. 2 to exercise concurrent jurisdiction; transfer of causes, etc.—From and after the time this law shall take effect the criminal district court of Dallas county, and the criminal district court No. 2 of Dallas county shall have and exercise concurrent jurisdiction with each other in all felony causes and in all matters and proceedings of which the said criminal district court of Dallas county now has jurisdiction; and either of the judges of said criminal district court may in their discretion transfer any cause or causes that may at any time be pending in his court to the other criminal district court by an order or orders entered upon the minutes of his court; and where such transfer or transfers are made the clerk of such district court shall enter such cause or causes upon the docket to which such transfer or transfers are made, and, when so entered upon the docket, the judge shall try and dispose of said causes in the same manner as if such causes were originally instituted in said court. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2235c. Judge, how elected; term; qualifications; salary; powers and duties; exchange; special judge; etc.—The judge of said criminal district court No. 2 of Dallas county shall be elected by the qualified voters of Dallas county for a term of four years, and shall hold his office until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. He shall possess the same qualifications as are required of the judge of a district court, and shall receive the same salary as is now or may hereafter be paid to the district judges, to be paid in like manner. He shall have and exercise all the powers and duties now or hereafter to be vested in and exercised by district judges of the criminal district court of Dallas county. The judge of said court may exchange with any district judge, as provided by law in cases of district judges, and, in case of disqualification or absence of a judge, a special judge may be selected, elected or appointed as provided by law in cases of district judges; provided, that the governor, by and with the consent of the senate, if in session, shall appoint a judge of said court, who shall hold the office until the next general election, after the passage of this law, and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2235d. Seal of court, etc.—Said court shall have a seal of like design as the seal now provided by law for district courts, except that the words "Criminal District Court No. 2 of Dallas County" shall be engraved around the margin thereof, which seal shall be used for all the purposes for which the seals of the district courts are required to be used; and certified copies of the orders, proceedings, judgments and other official acts of said court, under the hand of the clerk and attested by the seal of said court, shall be admissible in evidence in all the courts of this state in like manner as similar certified copies from courts of record are now or may hereafter be admissible. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2235e. Sheriff, county attorney and clerk of Dallas county to act, etc.; fees.—The sheriff, county attorney and the clerk of the district court of Dallas county, as heretofore provided for by law, shall be the sheriff, county attorney and clerk, respectively, of said criminal district court under the same rules and regulations as are now or may hereafter be prescribed by law for the government of sheriffs, county attorneys and clerks of the district courts of the state; and said sheriff, county attorney and clerk shall respectively receive such fees as are now or may hereafter be prescribed by law for such officers in the district courts of the state, to be paid in the same manner. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2235f. Terms of court; grand jury; drawing jurors; pleading; practice and procedure.—Said court shall hold four terms each year for the trial of causes and the disposition of business coming before it, one term beginning the first Monday of April, one term beginning the first Monday of July, one term beginning the first Monday of October, and one term beginning the first Monday of January. The grand jury shall be impaneled in said court for each term thereof unless otherwise directed by the judge of said court, and the procedure for drawing jurors for said court shall be the same as is now or may hereafter be required by law in district courts, and under the same rules and regulations. The trials and proceedings in said court shall be conducted according to the laws governing the pleadings, practice and proceedings in criminal cases in the district courts. [Id. sec. 6.]

When court came into existence.—The court came into existence and had legal authority to acquire jurisdiction, so far as filing papers was concerned, by the 30th day of November, 1911; and hence an order made December 21, 1911, transferring an indictment and papers to that court, conferred jurisdiction, though it could not try the case until the succeeding January term. Johnson v. State (Cr. App.) 153 S. W. 849.

Art. 2235g. Laws repealed.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this Act are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 7.]

COURTS—COMMISSIONERS'

ORGANIZATION

Article 2236. [1532] [1509] Election and term of office of county commissioners.—Each county shall be divided into four commissioners precincts, in each of which precincts there shall be elected by the qualified voters thereof one county commissioner, who shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor is elected. [Const., art. 5, sec. 18. Act July 22, 1876, p. 51, sec. 3.]

Precinct as political subdivision.—A commissioner's precinct is a political subdivision of the county within the meaning of the constitution, art. 16, sec. 20. Cofield v. Britton, 50 C. A. 208, 109 S. W. 496.

Art. 2237. [1533] [1510] Court composed of whom and the presiding officer thereof.—The said commissioners, together with the county judge, shall compose the commissioners' court, and the county judge, when present, shall be the presiding officer of said court. [Const., art. 5, sec. 18. Act July 22, 1876, p. 51, sec. 2.]

What constitutes legal court.—In the absence of the county judge all the commissioners must be present to constitute a legal court. West v. Burke, 60 T. 51.

Art. 2238. [1534] [1511] Three members constitute a quorum, except, etc.—Any three members of the said court, including the county judge, shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of any business, except that of levying a county tax. [Id. sec. 12.]

Levy at called session.—See Cassin v. Zavalla County, 70 T. 419, 8 S. W. 97. A tax levied at a called session of the court, or without the presence of the full membership, is not in accordance with law. Free v. Scarborough, 70 T. 672, 8 S. W. 490.

Necessity of presence of county judge.—A commissioners' court is authorized to transact business when three members are present, as these constitute a quorum. That the county judge is absent is immaterial. Racer v. State (Cr. App.) 73 S. W. 968.

Art. 2239. [1535] [1512] Oath and bond of county commissioners.—Before entering upon the duties of his office, the county judge and each commissioner shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, and shall also take an oath that he will not be directly or indirectly interested in any contract with, or claim against, the county in which he resides, except such warrants as may issue to him as fees of office, which oath shall be in writing and taken before some officer authorized to administer oaths, and, together with the certificate of the officer who administered the same, shall be filed and recorded in the office of the clerk of the county court in a book to be provided for that purpose; and each commissioner shall execute a bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the judge of the county court of his county, in the sum of three thousand dollars, payable to the treasurer of his county, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office. [Acts 1887, p. 58.]

Time for qualifying.—Commissioners have 30 days after election within which to qualify. An organization prior to the expiration of that time is premature. Cassin v. Zavalla County, 70 T. 419, 8 S. W. 97.

Organization before qualification of part of commissioners.—Two commissioners, in connection with the county judge, cannot organize the court before the others have qualified and before the expiration of the time allowed by law for such qualification. Cassin v. Zavalla County, 70 T. 419, 8 S. W. 97.

Claims of commissioner against county.—County commissioner cannot accept assignment of claim against the county except such warrants as may be assigned to him as fees of office. Knippa v. Stewart Iron Works (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 324.

Art. 2240. [1536] [1513] Vacancy in office of commissioner, how filled.—In case of vacancy in the office of commissioner, the county judge shall appoint some suitable person living in the precinct where such vacancy occurs, to serve as commissioner for such precinct until the next general election. [Id. sec. 18.]

POWERS AND DUTIES

Article 2241. [1537] [1514] Certain powers of the court specified.—The said courts shall have power and it shall be their duty:

1. To lay off their respective counties into precincts, not less than four, nor more than eight, for the election of justices of the peace and constables, and shall fix the times and places of holding the various justices courts in their counties, and shall establish places in such precincts where elections shall be held; also shall establish justices precincts and justices courts for unorganized counties as provided by law.

2. To establish public ferries whenever the public interest may require.

3. To lay out and establish, change and discontinue public roads and highways.

4. To build bridges and keep the same in repair.

5. To appoint road overseers and apportion hands.

6. To exercise general control and superintendence over all roads, highways, ferries and bridges in their counties.

7. To provide and keep in repair court houses, jails and all necessary public buildings.

8. To audit and settle all accounts against the county and direct their payment.

9. To provide for the support of paupers and such idiots and lunatics as can not be admitted into the lunatic asylum, residents of their county, who are unable to support themselves. By the term resident as used herein, is meant a person who has been a bona fide inhabitant of the county not less than six months and of the State not less than one year.

10. To provide for the burial of paupers.

11. To punish contempts by fine not to exceed twenty-five dollars or by imprisonment not to exceed twenty-four hours, and in case of fine, the party may be held in custody until the fine is paid.

12. To issue all such notices, citations, writs and process as may be necessary for the proper execution of the powers and duties imposed upon such court and to enforce its jurisdiction. [Acts 1911, p. 236, sec. 1, amending Art. 1537, Rev. St. 1895, thus superseding Art. 2241, Rev. St. 1911.]

1. Limitation of jurisdiction to county business.—The jurisdiction of the court is limited to county business. Sun Vapor Electric L. Co. v. Keenan, 88 T. 197, 30 S. W. 868.

2. Establishment of county boundaries.—Article 5, section 22, of the constitution authorizes the legislature to confer jurisdiction on the county court to establish county boundaries. Kaufman County v. McGaughey, 11 C. A. 551, 33 S. W. 1020.

3. Change of boundaries of precinct.—The commissioners' court may change the boundaries of a justice's precinct, though its effect is to deprive a resident of his right to vote at an ensuing election. Hastings v. Townsend (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1143.

4. Construction of ferries.—The power to establish ferries carries with it the power to construct and operate them. Burrows v. Gonzales County, 23 S. W. 829, 5 C. A. 232.

5. Discontinuance of streets.—County commissioners could discontinue streets not acquired under nor subject to the Revised Statutes. Uvalde County v. Oppenheimer, 53 C. A. 137, 115 S. W. 904.

6. Contracts in general.—A contract between an individual and a county must be made through the agency of the commissioners' court, or it is not binding on either party. Presidio County v. Clarke, 38 C. A. 320, 85 S. W. 475.

A county may recover back money paid under an illegal contract. Edwards County v. Jennings (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 585.

Const. art. 3, § 53, prohibits a county from giving extra compensation to a public contractor after his contract has been performed in whole or in part. Shelby County v. Gibson, 18 C. A. 121, 44 S. W. 302.

A county has no authority to contract to pay cost of publication of notice to nonresidents to pay delinquent taxes, and cannot ratify such a contract when made by the county attorney. Baldwin v. Travis County, 40 C. A. 149, 88 S. W. 484.

7. Contract for public buildings.—Commissioners' court has power to contract for public buildings. Polly v. Hopkins, 74 T. 145, 11 S. W. 1084.

After rejection of plans for a county building for material alterations, the commissioners are not bound to receive further proposals from bidders. Clayton v. Galveston County, 20 C. A. 591, 50 S. W. 737.

8. Lease of town market square.—The commissioners' court of a county cannot lease a square dedicated for market purposes by a town which has not been legally dissolved. McReynolds v. Broussard, 18 C. A. 409, 45 S. W. 760.

9. Delegation of authority to construct court house.—A commissioners' court cannot delegate to an architect its authority to make a contract to construct a courthouse, but can authorize him to make a contract subject to its approval. Russell v. Cage, 66 T. 428, 1 S. W. 270.

10. Enforcement of award of contract.—Award of a contract to paint a county jail held unenforceable for want of available funds for payment. Bray v. Harris County (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 174.

11. Effect of order of court.—The effect of an order is a judgment with all its incidents, and is conclusive. Callaghan v. Salliway, 23 S. W. 837, 5 C. A. 239.

An order of the commissioners' court, rejecting a fence built for the county because of the pickets, held not to estop the county from other defenses in an action for the contract price. Smith v. Jefferson County, 16 C. A. 251, 41 S. W. 148.

12. What constitutes support of paupers.—The term "support," used in the ninth paragraph, means all that is necessary to bodily health and comfort, and especially does it include proper care, attention and treatment during sickness. Where adequate provision has not been made by the commissioners' court for this purpose, the county judge or any other member of the court can, by contract, bind the county in any reasonable sum necessary for the support of a pauper without a previous contract. If in case of sickness a physician should give his professional care and attention to a pauper, an implied contract to pay for such services a reasonable compensation would exist on the part of the county. Monghon v. Van Zandt County, 3 App. C. C. § 198.

13. Authority to contract for paupers' support.—Where adequate provision has not been made by the commissioners' court for this purpose, the county judge or any other member of the court can, by contract, bind the county in any reasonable sum necessary for the support of a pauper without a previous contract. Monghon v. Van Zandt County, 3 App. C. C. § 198.

14. Burial expenses of paupers.—The county is not liable for burial expenses incurred without its authority. McNorton v. Val Verde County (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 653.

15. Employment of counsel.—Commissioners have power to employ counsel to prosecute suits for and defend suits against them. City Nat. Bank v. Presidio Co. (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 775.

16. Authority to sell school lands.—While the constitution of 1876, article 7, section 4, vests title in the respective counties as to the county school lands, it declares that it is alone in trust for the benefit of the public schools in the counties respectively. As such they may sell or dispose of them in such manner as the county commissioners' court may determine. The county commissioners may select such agents as may be necessary to assist them in the discharge of their duties, such as subdividing and classifying the lands for sale, and such agents must necessarily exercise judgment and discretion in the performance of the work intrusted to them; but they have no authority to employ others to perform their duties. Palo Pinto County v. Gano, 60 T. 249; Gano v. Palo Pinto County, 71 T. 99, 8 S. W. 634. This section of the constitution was amended September 25, 1883.

17. Power to institute suit for county.—The court has exclusive jurisdiction to determine whether a suit shall be brought in the name and for the benefit of a county, except where such right is conferred on some other officer or tribunal. Looscan v. County of Harris, 58 T 511; Smith v. Wingate, 61 T. 54; Smith v. Moseley, 74 T. 632, 12 S. W. 748.

18. Presentation of claims before suit.—Claims against the county must be presented to the court for allowance before suit. Art. 1366; Norwood v. Gonzales County, 79 T. 218, 14 S. W. 1057.

19. Deposit of county funds.—The commissioners' court has no authority to direct the county treasurer to deposit the county funds in any named bank. McKinney v. Robinson, 84 T. 489, 19 S. W. 699.

20. Water contracts for private use.—A county may contract for a supply of water for public buildings, but not for private use. Edwards County v. Jennings (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 585.

21. Compromise of treasurer's default by receiving conveyance.—Before this article was amended by the act of 1897, it was held that it conferred no power to compromise the debt of a defaulting county treasurer by accepting a deed of land from a surety on his bond. Bland v. Orr, 90 T. 492, 39 S. W. 558.

22. Scope of power to establish ferries.—This article confers upon the commissioners' court of the several counties the right to establish ferries whenever the public interest may require. This grant of authority is as broad and full as it was in the power of the legislature to make, and this article is not restricted by Art. 1279. Alabama Ferry Co. v. Leathery, 30 C. A. 16, 69 S. W. 118.

23. Assignment of contractor's claim to commissioner—Validity.—Under subdivisions 7 and 8 of this article, a county commissioner is not permitted by law to take and enforce the assignment of claim of contractor against the county to accrue on completion of contract to build jail. Knippa v. Stewart Iron Works (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 324.

24. Employment of physician for inquest.—Under subdivision 9 of this article, the commissioners' court has authority to employ a county physician to give attention in a medical way to anyone confined within the jurisdiction of the county, but not to attend inquest. Galveston County v. Ducie, 91 T. 665, 45 S. W. 798.

25. Receipt of part of indebtedness to county as full payment.—The powers of the commissioners' court, given under this article, ought not to be construed as authorizing the county to receive a less sum than was actually due, for the constitution (article 3, § 55) in effect declares that the legislature has no power to authorize a release or extinguishment of indebtedness of an individual to any county. The order of the commissioners' court declaring that a settlement was made with the county clerk regarding the fees of his office, does not amount to an estoppel against the county nor preclude the county from the right to recover the full sum to which the county is entitled for the years comprehended within the order. Tarrant County v. Butler, 35 C. A. 421, 80 S. W. 659.

26. Implied liability based on invalid contract.—A county is not liable in an action upon an implied contract or quantum meruit, unless the commissioners' court was authorized to make the contract sought to be implied or on which the quantum meruit is based. Baldwin v. Travis County, 40 C. A. 149, 88 S. W. 484.

27. Necessity of requiring bids before contracting for court house.—The commissioners' court is not required to advertise for bids before adopting plans and specifications for and making a contract for the building of a court house. Commissioners' Court of Floyd County v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 37.

28. Validity of county court house obligations.—Where the commissioners' court, to avoid the necessity of submitting the question of the building of a court house to a vote, issued county obligations which were not bonds, such obligations were not invalid, and the taxpayers were not entitled to an injunction. Com'rs Court v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 37.

Under the statute, the commissioners' court of a county contracting for the construction of a court house may issue interest-bearing warrants to pay therefor. Allen v. Abernethy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 348.

29. Power to build court house and jail.—Authority of county commissioners to contract for construction of a court house cannot arise from estoppel, acceptance, or ratification, without legal authority. Stratton v. Commissioners' Court of Kinney County (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1170.

Under Const. art. 5, § 18, giving county commissioners such power over county business as is conferred by the constitution and general laws, under article 11, § 2, requiring court houses to be provided for by general law, and under subdivision 7 of this article, requiring county commissioners to provide and keep in repair court houses, county commissioners are empowered to construct such buildings. Id.

Whether a court house and jail are needed by a county is for sole determination by the commissioners. Id.

The power of county commissioners to provide for construction of a court house otherwise than from a sale of bonds was not abrogated by Act May 26, 1899 (Acts 26th Leg. c. 149), nor by Act April 28, 1903 (Acts 28th Leg. c. 4), authorizing issuance of county bonds. Id.

The question of the building of a court house rests in the discretion of the county commissioners, and hence, though the majority of the taxpaying voters are opposed, they are not entitled to an injunction to prevent the building of a court house according to plans selected by the court. Com'rs Court v. Nichols (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 37.

The commissioners' court of a county may contract for the construction of a court house and issue interest-bearing nonnegotiable warrants to pay therefor. Allen v. Abernethy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 348.

The determination of the commissioner's court is conclusive as to the necessity of the repair or building of a new court house or jail, in the absence of fraud. McWilliams v. Commissioners' Court of Pecos County (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 368.

30. Allowance of claims.—A warrant of a commissioners' court on the treasurer for the payment of county money does not bind the county, when the court had no authority to allow the amount so paid. McDonald v. Farmer, 23 C. A. 39, 56 S. W. 555.

31. —— Conclusiveness of order allowing claim.—Const. art. 5, § 1, provides that the judicial powers of the state shall be vested in certain courts, including the commissioners' court. Section 8 provides that the district court shall have appellate jurisdiction and general supervisory control of the county commissioners' court. Held that, where the commissioners' court allowed a claim and ordered it to be paid, its action was judicial, and could not be afterwards revoked at a subsequent term; the only remedy for erroneous action being by appeal. August A. Busch & Co. v. Caufield (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 244.

32. —— Collateral attack.—Claims improperly allowed by county commissioners' court held subject to collateral attack without setting aside the order of allowance. Bell County v. Felts (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1065.

33. Condemnation for highway alteration.—Under this article and Art. 4671, such commissioners had power to condemn a strip of land to alter a highway by widening it. Stewart v. El Paso County (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 590.

34. Designating place of holding sessions of district court.—Orders of the commissioners' court designating the place of holding the sessions of the district court were not void because not signed by the county judge and attested by the county clerk. Lane v. State, 59 Cr. R. 595, 129 S. W. 353.

35. Permitting connection with county sewer.—Verbal permission given to persons by members of a county commissioners' court to connect with a county sewer is not the act of such court. Fayette County v. Krause, 31 C. A. 569, 73 S. W. 51.

Permission given by a county commissioners' court to connect with a county sewer, being without consideration, is but a revocable license. Id.

36. Notice to court.—Notice to one member of the commissioner's court held not notice to the court. Clayton v. Galveston County, 20 C. A. 591, 50 S. W. 737.

Art. 2242. [1538] Power to levy taxes.—Said court shall have the power to levy and collect a tax for county purposes, not to exceed twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation, and a tax not to exceed fifteen cents on the one hundred dollars valuation to supplement the jury fund of the county, and not to exceed fifteen cents for roads and bridges on the one hundred dollars valuation, except for the payment of debts incurred prior to the adoption of the amendment to the constitution, September 25, A. D. 1883; and for the erection of public buildings, streets, sewers, water works and other permanent improvements, not to exceed twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation in any one year, and except as in the constitution otherwise provided; provided, however, the court may levy an additional tax for road purposes not to exceed fifteen cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of the property subject to taxation, under the limitations and in the manner provided for in article 8, section 9, of the constitution, and in pursuance of the laws relating thereto. [Const., art. 8, sec. 9. Amendment 1899. Acts 1907, p. 40.]

Validity of order for levy.—An order of a commissioners' court relied upon to show a levy of the general county tax read as follows: "It is ordered and decreed by the court that the assessor be, and he is hereby, instructed to assess all taxes that he is authorized to assess for the county, at one-half of the amount he assesses for the state; and the sheriff is hereby authorized to collect the same according to the roll of the assessor." It was held to be a nullity. Dawson v. Ward, 71 T. 72, 9 S. W. 106.

Where the order of the county court, imposing the tax within its authority, states the amount of the tax, and of the property upon which it is levied, such order is sufficient. Labadie v. Dean, 47 T. 90.

The commissioners' court of Galveston county, in February, 1879, levied a county tax of seven cents to create a sinking fund to pay registered county warrants issued for indebtedness subsequent to April 18, 1876, and for an indebtedness incurred before that date, and also to create a sinking fund to pay warrants issued since April 18, 1876. On application to enjoin the collection of the tax, held: (1) The county court having already exhausted the limit allowed to pay ordinary debts, the levy of seven cents, so far as it was made to pay ordinary debts, was unauthorized, and it being illegal for that purpose, the entire levy was thereby infected and was illegal. (2) An order of the commissioners' court made one year afterwards, declaring that so much of the levy was void as applied to warrants issued after the 18th day of April, 1879, did not cure the illegality of the levy, nor was it affected by the fact that the entire tax levied was needed to pay debts contracted before the adoption of the constitution. (3) The constitution requires the purpose for which such taxes are levied to be specified, and gives the taxpayer the privilege of paying the tax "in the coupons, bonds and other indebtedness for the payment of which such tax may have been levied." (4) The specification of the purpose of the tax was essential, for without such specification the tax was invalid, and to allow the subsequent order explaining the levy to cure its illegality would be to disregard the constitutional requirement that the purpose of the tax be specified. Dean v. Lufkin, 54 T. 265.

Discretion as to levy.—Under the constitution of 1876, the question as to how much tax should be levied to pay the former indebtedness of a county was left without limit to the discretion of the legislature and the county commissioners' court. Dean v. Lufkin, 54 T. 265.

Levy for public buildings without bond issuance.—The commissioners' court has power to levy a tax under this article for the erection or repair of a court house or jail without the issuance of bonds. Creswell R. & C. Co. v. Roberts County (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 737.

Limitation of levy in general.—The limitation imposed by the constitution of 1876, on the power of counties to levy taxes, applies only to the erection of public buildings. For the purpose of paying the interest and providing a sinking fund to satisfy an indebtedness existing at the adoption of the constitution of 1876, counties are authorized to levy, assess and collect taxes to the necessary amount. Const., art. 11, § 6; art. 13, § 9; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Harrison County, 54 T. 119.

The limitation of taxation to 50 cents on the $100 valuation, contained in section 9, art. 8, of the constitution of 1876, as applied to cities, counties and towns, has reference to taxation for the erection of public buildings, not to taxation to pay debts incurred prior to the adoption of the constitution. Dean v. Lufkin, 54 T. 265.

Limitation of levy for public buildings.—The power of county commissioners under Const. art. 8, § 9, as amended December 19, 1890, and under this article, to levy a tax of 25 cents on $100 valuation to construct buildings, sewers, and other permanent buildings, being limited to that levy for all such purposes, a levy can be made for a court house and jail only so far as the limit has not already been reached for the other purposes. Stratton v. Commissioners' Court of Kinney County (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1170.

A taxpayer may not complain of a tax levied by the commissioners' court for the construction of a court house, where the levy is for so much of 15 cents on $100 as may be necessary. Allen v. Abernethy (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 348.

Art. 2243. [1539] [1516] Certain tax shall not exceed, etc.—No tax levied for the purpose of paying debts incurred prior to the eighteenth day of April, A. D., 1876 shall exceed two and one-half mills on the dollar, and no tax levied for the erection or repair of public buildings shall exceed two and one-half mills on the dollar for any one year. [Const., art. 8, sec. 9. Amendment 1899.]

Cited, Stratton v. Commissioners' Court of Kinney County (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1170.

Art. 2244. [1540] [1517] Tax shall not be levied, except, etc.—No county tax shall be levied except at a regular term of the court, and when all the members of said court are present. [Id. sec. 12.]

Cited, Ware v. Welch (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 263.

Levy at regular term of court.—Under this article and Art. 2274, and the act of 1879 [Art. 7564] creating another term by requiring the court to convene as a board of equalization on the second Monday in June of each year, the term created by the act of 1879 became a regular and not a called term, so that a county tax could be levied at such term under this article. Staten v. State, 63 Cr. R. 592, 141 S. W. 525.

A tax cannot be levied at a called session of the county court or without the full membership of the court. Free v. Scarborough, 70 T. 672, 8 S. W. 490.

Under this article an order of the commissioners' court at a special session levying a county occupation tax for taking orders for intoxicating liquors was without effect, and would not support a conviction for pursuing such occupation, though objection was not made below. Edmanson v. State, 64 Cr. R. 413, 142 S. W. 887.

Art. 2245. [1541] [1518] Power to fill certain vacancies.—The said court shall have power to fill vacancies in the following named county offices, viz.: County judge, clerk of the county court, sheriff, county attorney, county treasurer, county surveyor, county hide inspector, assessor of taxes, collector of taxes, justices of the peace and constables.

Vacancy by failure to reside in county.—The constitution (sec. 14, art. 16) requires district and county officers to reside within their districts or counties. An office is vacated by noncompliance with this requirement, and when such vacancy exists in any office named in this article, it is the duty of the commissioners' court to fill it. Ehlinger v. Rankell, 29 S. W. 240, 9 C. A. 424.

Art. 2246. [1542] [1519] How vacancy shall be filled, etc.—Such vacancies shall be filled by a majority vote of the members of said court present and voting, and the person chosen to fill any vacancy shall hold the office until the next general election.

Art. 2247. [1543] [1520] Shall send indigent sick to hospital, when.—In case there is a regular established public hospital in the county, the commissioners' court shall provide for sending the indigent sick of the county to such hospital; and, if more than one such hospital exists in the county, the indigent patient shall have the right to select which one of them he shall be sent to. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 2248. [1544] Commissioners' court may designate health districts of unincorporated towns.—The commissioners' court of any county in which an unincorporated town or village may be situated shall have power to designate the lines of such town or village, and may appoint a board of health for such town, consisting of three persons, not less than two of whom shall be regular practicing physicians. Said court, when such appointments are made, shall immediately notify the state health officer. [Acts 1899, p. 306. Acts 1889, p. 139. Acts 1901, S. S., p. 29.]

Art. 2249. [1545] Proceedings after health districts designated.—After the appointment provided for in the foregoing article, said board shall elect one of their number as presiding officer; and it shall be the duty of such presiding officer, if the premises of any citizen residing within the prescribed limits of said town or village are in an unclean or unhealthy condition, to notify him of the fact, and that he must proceed at once to clean the same. [Id. Const., art. 8, sec. 9. Amendment 1889.]

Art. 2250. [1546] Failure to comply with notice provided for in preceding article unlawful.—Any person living in the prescribed limits of said town or village, having received the notice provided for in the foregoing article and failing to comply therewith, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and punished as provided for in the Penal Code. [Id.]

Art. 2251. [1547] May co-operate with cities and towns in sanitary regulations.—The municipal authorities of towns and cities, and commissioners' courts of the counties wherein such towns and cities are situated, may co-operate with each other in making such improvements connected with said towns, cities and counties as may be deemed by said authorities and courts necessary to improve the public health and to promote efficient sanitary regulations; and, by mutual arrangement, they may provide for the construction of said improvements and the payment therefor. [Acts 1879, p. 9.]

Art. 2252. [1547a] May construct bridges in corporate limits.—Whenever the commissioners' court of any county shall deem it to the interest of the county to erect any bridge or bridges within the corporate limits of any city or town, said court may make contracts therefor, and erect said bridges to the same extent and under the same conditions now prescribed by law for the construction of bridges outside of the limits of any city or town. [Acts 1895, p. 164.]

Art. 2253. [1547b] May co-operate with cities in such construction.—If said commissioners' court and the city council of any city or town desire to co-operate in the erection of a bridge within the corporate limits of any city or town, they may jointly erect such bridge upon such terms and conditions as may be mutually agreed upon; and either or both of the city and county may issue its bonds to pay for its proportional part of the debt; provided, that no such contract shall be made or entered into or bonds issued under the provisions of this law, unless a proposition therefor shall be submitted to the property taxpaying voters of the county at an election to be held by virtue of an order of the commissioners' court for the purpose, and a majority of such voters shall vote at such election in favor of such proposition; and the same laws governing other elections shall govern said election, canvass and return, and the county judge of said county shall declare by proclamation the result thereof by publication in some newspaper in said county. [Id.]

Art. 2254. [1547c] May issue bonds for such bridge purposes.—And, for the purposes herein mentioned, counties in this state may execute and issue its bonds, in the manner, under the conditions and to the same extent as they are now, or may be hereafter, authorized to issue for the erection of bridges outside of the corporate limits of cities and towns. [Id.]

Art. 2255. [1547d] Bridges in cities and towns, shall keep in repair.—It shall be the duty of the commissioners' courts of counties owning bridges, situated within the corporate limits of cities and towns, to keep the same in repair in the same manner as they are required by law to keep such bridges as are not so situated within the limits of a city or town; provided, that this article shall not be held to affect or diminish the liability of town and city corporations for injuries caused by the defective condition of such bridges situated within the city limits. [Acts 1897, p. 212.]

For power of commissioners in reference to condemnation for opening, etc., streets in unincorporated towns, etc., see Art. 1069.

Scope of article—Bridges within municipality.—The designation of Art. 2255 as article 1547d in Acts 25th Leg. c. 147, did not limit its scope and effect to bridges constructed under the three preceding articles after a city or town was incorporated, but that it applies to bridges within the corporate limits of cities and towns owned by the county, whenever constructed. City of Llano v. Wilbern (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 474.

Validity of article.—This article does not conflict with other provisions of the Revised Statutes conferring upon cities and towns the exclusive authority, and making it their exclusive duty to regulate, repair, and maintain streets. City of Llano v. Wilbern (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 474.

Power of legislature to shift duty to county.—The legislature may shift the duty of repairing and maintaining bridges from incorporated cities and towns to the county within which they are situated. City of Llano v. Wilbern (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 474.

Art. 2256. Stationery, etc., may contract for.—The commissioners' court of each and every county may, by an order entered of record, be authorized and empowered to contract, as hereafter prescribed, with some suitable person or persons to supply the county with all blank books, all legal blanks and all stationery of every kind and description, as may be required by law to be furnished the county officials. [Acts 1907, p. 252.]

Art. 2257. Bids to be advertised for, how.—It shall be the duty of the commissioners' court to advertise, at least once in every two years, for sealed proposals to furnish said blank books, legal blanks, all stationery and such other printing as may be required for the county for the term of such contract. Said advertisement shall be made by the county clerk, who shall notify, by registered letter, each newspaper published and each job printing house in the county, and at least three stationery and printing houses in the state, of the time said contract is to be awarded, and of the probable amount of supplies needed. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2258. Contract to be declared null and new bids advertised for, when.—Should supplies, when furnished by the successful bidder under this chapter, not be of the quality designated in the contract and bond hereafter provided for, then, and in any such event, the commissioners' court may declare such contract null and void, and at the next regular or call session of said court again advertise for sealed proposals as in the first instance; and the commissioners' court shall have the right to again advertise for proposals as often and whenever from any cause supplies are not received under the previous contract. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2259. May reject any and all bids.—The commissioners' court shall have the right to reject any and all bids. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2260. Preference to citizen, etc., of county, when.—All bids being equal and quality the same, every contract must be awarded to a citizen or taxpayer of the county in which the contract is let. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2261. May receive separate bids.—The commissioners' court may receive separate bids for the several classes herein mentioned. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2262. Stationery to be classified.—The stationery shall be divided into four classes: Class "A" shall embrace all blank books and all work requiring permanent and substantial binding. Class "B" shall embrace all legal blanks, letter heads and other printing, stationery and blank papers. Class "C" shall embrace typewriter ribbons, pens, ink, mucilage, pencils, penholders, ink stands and wares of like kind. Class "D," poll tax receipts and all election supplies of whatever nature and description, not furnished by the state. Each and every bid shall be upon some particular class, separate and apart from any other class. To the lowest bidder on class "A" shall be awarded the contract for all work of that class; to the lowest bidder on articles in class "B" shall be awarded the contract for supplying the articles embraced in that class; to the lowest bidder for articles in class "C" shall be awarded the contract for supplying articles in that class; and to the lowest bidder for articles in class "D" shall be awarded the contract for supplying articles in that class. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2263. Bond with bid, requisites of bond.—Each bid shall be accompanied by the bond of the bidder, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, conditioned that, should the contract be awarded to him, that he will, without delay, upon being notified of such award, enter into a written contract, according to the law and with his proposal, and will give bond as may be required, for the faithful performance of said contract. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2264. No commissioner or other officer to be interested in contract.—No member of the commissioners' court or any county officer shall be, either directly or indirectly, interested in any such contract. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2265. Contracts to be made in open court, with lowest bidder; bids to be spread on minutes.—All contracts shall be made in open court, with the lowest bidder, and all bids shall be spread in full on the minutes of the court. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2266. Contracts in writing, etc.; amount of bond, sureties, conditions, etc.—The successful bidder or bidders shall enter into a written contract with the court, and shall give bond in the sum of two hundred and fifty dollars, for each class or contract; said contract shall be signed by the successful bidder, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, and shall be conditioned for the faithful compliance with his bid and with the law, and shall be made payable to the county judge or his successors in office. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 2267. Suit on bond, venue of.—Any suit on the bond of any contractor or bidder for failure to comply with the conditions of his contract shall be brought in the court having lawful jurisdiction of the amount alleged, in the county which is a party to the contract. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 2268. Affidavit that bidder is not member of a trust, etc.—Attached to every bid made in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, shall be an affidavit by the manager, secretary or other agent or officer of the bidder, to the effect that affiant has knowledge of the relations of the bidder with the other firms in the same line of business and that the bidder is not a member of any trust, pool or combination of any kind and has not been, for the six months last past, directly or indirectly concerned in any pool or agreement or combination to control the price of supplies bid on, or to influence any person to bid or not to bid thereon. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 2269. Commissioners may repeal order, when.—The commissioners' court of each county may, by order of record after contracts have been in force for the time specified in such contract, repeal said order. [Id. sec. 7a.]

Art. 2270. [1548] [1521] May provide building, etc., for county court.—Said courts may, when necessary, provide buildings, rooms or apartments at the county seats, other than the court house, for holding the sessions of the county courts. [Act Aug. 19, 1876, p. 211.]

Art. 2271. [1550] [1523] Duty as to school lands.—It shall be the duty of the commissioners' court to provide for the protection, preservation and disposition of all lands heretofore granted, or that may hereafter be granted, to the county for education or schools. [Const., art. 7, sec. 6.]

Power to pay school land location expenses with land.—The donations of lands by the republic and state to counties for school purposes were coupled with the express provision that the counties should pay in money the expense of locating them. A county court has no power to give a part of the school lands to pay expenses of their location, and a deed for that purpose was properly canceled. Tomlinson v. Hopkins County, 57 T. 572; Cassin v. La Salle Co., 1 C. A. 127, 21 S. W. 122.

Validity of order lifting location certificate.—An order of the commissioners' court authorizing the lifting of a certificate of location of school land without locating and having surveyed another tract of equal area in lieu thereof is void. Talley v. Lamar County, 104 T. 295, 137 S. W. 1125.

Validity of sales by county judge.—Const. art. 7, § 6, as it existed in 1881, provided that lands granted to counties for school purposes might be sold by the counties as provided by the commissioners' court; the proceeds to be held for the benefit of the public schools. Const. 1876, art. 5, § 18, declared that the county commissioners' court should exercise such powers and jurisdiction over all county business as was conferred by the Constitution or laws of the state. Held that, while such provisions authorized a disposition of such lands, they could only be sold "in the manner" provided by the commissioners' court, which had no power to delegate to the county judge the power to make such sales as agent for the county, and sales so attempted to be made by him were invalid. Gallup v. Liberty County, 57 C. A. 175, 122 S. W. 291.

Art. 2272. [1551] [1524] Shall provide seals for the district and county courts.—Said court shall provide the seals required by law for the district and county courts of their respective counties.

Art. 2273. [1549] [1522] Other powers, etc., of the court.—Said courts shall have all such other powers and jurisdiction, and shall perform all such other duties, as are now or may hereafter be prescribed by law.

TERMS AND MINUTES OF THE COURT

Article 2274. [1552] [1525] Regular terms of the court; more than one session each quarter not mandatory; adjournment.—The regular terms of the commissioners' court shall commence and be held at the court house of their respective counties on the second Monday of each month throughout the year and may continue in session one week; provided, however, that the provision of this Act shall not be construed to be mandatory upon the court to hold more than one session of the court each quarter if the business of the court does not demand a session, and any session may adjourn at any time the business of the court is disposed of. [Acts 1911, p. 198, sec. 1, amending art. 1552, Rev. St. 1895, thus superseding art. 2274, Rev. St. 1911.]

Definition of "term" and "session."—When the court is organized and open for the regular term, the term continues until it is ended by order of final adjournment, or until the efflux of the time fixed by law for its continuance. The sessions or sittings of the court during term are entirely within the discretion and control of the court, and its orders in respect thereto are intended for its convenience and the convenience of parties interested in its proceedings; hence they may be altered, revoked or annulled from time to time as the exigencies of the business to be transacted may require. The orders of an adjournment of its session from day to day, or a particular hour of the day, a mere announcement of its proposed or intended order of transacting the business to come before it during the term, or failure of the court to meet at the hour or on the day to which it had taken a recess, cannot in any way affect or put an end to its term. Labadie v. Dean, 47 T. 90.

"Term" when used with reference to the court signifies a space of time during which the court may hold a session. "Session" signifies the time during the term in which the court sits for the transaction of business. And the session commences when the court convenes for a term and continues until final adjournment, either before or at the expiration of the term. Lipari v. State, 19 App. 431.

Regular term of court—What constitutes.—Under this article and Arts. 2244 and 7564 the term created by the act of 1879 [Art. 7564] became a regular and not a called term, so that a county tax could be levied at such term under Art. 2244. Staten v. State, 63 Cr. R. 592, 141 S. W. 525.

Illegal removal of county seat.—A county cannot defeat its courthouse bonds in the hands of bona fide holders by showing the illegal removal of the county seat, the fact being that court had been held at such place for a number of years. Presidio County v. City National Bank of Paducah, 20 C. A. 511, 44 S. W. 1069.

Art. 2275. [1553] [1526] Special terms of the court.—Special terms of said courts may be called by the county judge or any three of the county commissioners, and may continue in session until the business is completed. [Act July 22, 1876, p. 53, sec. 13.]

Jurisdiction at special term.—The fact that an order of the commissioners' court, changing the boundaries of precincts, was made at a special term, is no objection to it. State v. Rigsby, 17 C. A. 171, 43 S. W. 271.

Under this article, providing for special terms of the commissioners' court, the fact that a final order in condemnation proceedings to acquire land to widen a highway was not rendered at a regular term did not justify an injunction restraining the taking of the property condemned. Stewart v. El Paso County (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 590.

Art. 2276. [1554] [1527] Minutes of the court.—The court shall cause to be procured and kept in the clerk's office suitable books in which shall be recorded the proceedings of each term of the court; which record shall be read over and signed by the county judge, or the member of the court presiding, at the end of each term and attested by the clerk. [Id. sec. 11.]

In general.—Where there is sufficient evidence denying that an order was made by the commissioners the issue should be submitted to the jury to decide. Gordon v. Denton County (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 737.

Sufficiency of minute entry.—The proceedings of the commissioners' court must be recorded by the clerk and signed by the presiding judge, and at the end of each term must be attested by the clerk. Such a record is the best evidence of the proceedings of a court, and an indorsement upon a paper not required by law to be made is not admissible in the absence of record evidence. Brown v. Reese, 67 T. 318, 3 S. W. 292.

An entry in the judge's probate docket is sufficient although the order is not written up in the regular minute book. West v. Keeton, 17 C. A. 139, 42 S. W. 1034.

Effect of failure to attest minutes. The failure of the clerk to attest the minutes of the commissioners' court does not invalidate them. Watson v. De Witt County, 19 C. A. 150, 46 S. W. 1061.

Failure to enter order.—That an order not appearing on the minutes has been in fact made can be shown by parol evidence. Ewing v. Duncan, 81 T. 230, 16 S. W. 1000.

While the statute provides that a record shall be made of the proceedings of the court, the fact that no order appears upon the minutes of the court does not authorize the holding that an election was void for want of a proper order. Id.

An order of the commissioners' court that has been acted upon by the parties for several years is not void because not entered upon the minutes of said court. Waggoner v. Wise Co., 17 C. A. 220, 43 S. W. 836.

Varying effect of by parol.—See notes under Art. 3687.

Art. 2277. [1555] [1528] Minutes of proceedings in vacation.—The clerk shall also record all the proceedings of said court authorized to take place in the vacation between the terms; and such record, so made in vacation, shall be read over and signed on the first day of the term of said court next after such proceedings took place. [Id. R. S. 1879, 1528.]

CHAPTER FOUR

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Article 2278. [1556] [1529] Seal of the court.—Each commissioners' court shall have a seal, whereon shall be engraved a star with five points, the words, "Commissioners' Court, ——— County, Texas," [the blank to be filled with the name of the county], which seal shall be kept in the office of the clerk of said court, and shall be used in authentication of all official acts of said court, or of the presiding officer or clerk of said court, in all cases where a seal may be necessary for the authentication of any of said acts. [Act July 22, 1876, p. 53, sec. 7.]

Cited, Midland County v. Slaughter (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 612.

Art. 2279. [1557] [1530] The clerk of the court and his duties.—The clerk of the county court shall be ex officio clerk of the commissioners' court; and it shall be the duty of such clerk to attend upon each term of said commissioners' court; to preserve and keep in his possession all books, papers, records and effects belonging thereto, to issue all notices, writs and process necessary for the proper execution of the powers and duties imposed upon such commissioners' court, and to perform all such other duties as may be prescribed by law. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2280. [1558] [1531] Clerk shall issue process.—All notices, citations, writs and process issued from said court shall run in the name of "The State of Texas," and shall be directed to the sheriff or any constable of a county, and shall be dated and signed officially by the clerk, and shall have the seal of the court impressed thereon, except subpœnas, which need not be under seal. [Id. sec. 9.]

Application to stock law elections.—This article does not apply to elections under the stock laws, (Acts 1899, c. 128), as these are special proceedings. Graves v. Rudd, 26 C. A. 554, 65 S. W. 63.

Art. 2281. [1559] [1532] Process shall be executed when, etc.—All process of said court, when not otherwise directed by law, shall be executed at least five days before the return day thereof, which return day shall be specified in the process. Subpœnas for witnesses may be executed and returned forthwith when necessary. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 2282. Notices posted how instead of publication, when.—Whenever the commissioners' court of the county shall be unable to secure the publication of any notice or report required by law to be given or made by such court in the manner and for the fee or fees provided by law therefor, such notice or report may be made and published in the following manner: The court shall cause to be made four true copies of such notice or report containing the same subject matter as is required to be set out in such notice or report under the law providing for the issuance and publication. One of said copies shall be posted at the court house door of the county, and one of said copies shall be posted at some public place in each of the commissioners' precincts of said county for thirty days prior to the next succeeding term of the commissioners' court of said county, and no two of such copies shall be posted in the same town or city. [Acts 1899, p. 39.]

CHAPTER FOUR A

COMMISSIONERS' COURT OF HUNT COUNTY

Article 2282a. Additional powers of the court.—That in addition to the authority and duties now or hereafter conferred or imposed by the general law of the state upon county commissioners courts, that the commissioners' court of Hunt county, Texas, shall be further authorized and empowered to exercise a general supervision over the affairs of said county and to issue such orders not conflicting with the general laws of the state which the court may deem expedient and wise for the proper administration of the county affairs, and shall cause all laws and regulations governing the duties and conduct of the officers and offices of the said county to be faithfully observed and executed. [Acts 1911, p. 40, sec. 1.]

Art. 2282b. Special terms of court.—That in addition to the regular terms of the said commissioners court as prescribed by the general statutes, the court may hold as many special terms as they may deem proper. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2282c. Commissioners to devote entire time.—That the county commissioners of Hunt county shall devote their entire time to the discharge of the regular and ex officio duties and responsibilities of their office during their terms of office under the supervision and direction of the commissioners' court, and they shall faithfully execute and cause to be faithfully executed the orders of the said court. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2282d. Compensation of commissioners and county judge; traveling expenses.—That each commissioner shall receive as entire compensation for his services under the terms of this Act sixteen hundred dollars, and no more, for each year during his term of office, to be paid in monthly installments out of the county funds; and the county judge shall receive for his services as a member of the commissioners court the sum of three hundred dollars annually, to be paid in monthly installments out of the county funds. This salary shall be in addition to his salary and fees of office as county judge. That each commissioner shall be limited to the sum of two hundred dollars each year for actual expense of traveling within the county in the performance of his duties, to be paid out of the county funds on vouchers showing an itemized account of the expenditure and the purpose therefor. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2282e. Submission of act to voters; form of ballot, etc.—The terms of this Act shall apply and extend to the county of Hunt, when the commissioners court shall submit the question of the adoption or rejection hereof to the vote of the qualified voters of said county at a special election called for that purpose, and the said court is hereby empowered by resolution to order said election, and said election shall be held as nearly as possible in compliance with the law governing general elections; that in said election those in favor of the adoption of this Act shall have printed on their ballots, "For the County Commissioners Act," and those opposed to the adoption shall have printed on their ballots, "Against the County Commissioners Act." The commissioners court shall canvass the returns and determine the result as in a regular election, and if a majority of the voters voting upon the adoption of this Act at such election shall vote to adopt the same, the result of the election shall be entered upon the minutes of the said court, and thereupon all the terms hereof shall be applicable and govern said county. A certified copy of said minutes shall be prima facie evidence of the result of said election and the regularity thereof, and the facts therein recited shall in all courts be accepted as true. [Id. sec. 5.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO COMMISSIONERS' COURTS IN GENERAL

Appeal from action of court.—So in appeal from the action of the commissioners' court in the matter of assessing damages for laying out a public road through one's land, neither notice of appeal nor appeal bond need be given. Karnes County v. Ray (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 77.

TITLE 41

COURTS—JUSTICES'

ELECTION AND QUALIFICATION OF JUSTICES

Article 2283. [1560] [1533] Justices, election, bond and term of office.—There shall be elected by the qualified voters of each justice's precinct in the several counties of this state, at each biennial election, one justice of the peace, who shall hold his office for two years, and until his successor shall be elected and qualified. He shall enter into bond, payable to the county judge and his successors in office, in the sum of one thousand dollars, conditioned that he will faithfully and impartially discharge and perform all the duties required of him by law, and that he will promptly pay over to the party entitled to receive it all moneys that may come into his hand during his term of office. This law shall apply to all justices of the peace appointed by the county commissioners' court. [Acts 1885, p. 90.]

Removal of.—See Title 98.

Liability on bond—Unofficial acts.—The sureties on bond of justice of the peace are not liable for money collected by a constable on execution and paid by him to the justice who appropriates same to his own use, because it is not paid to him in his official capacity, the constable not being authorized by law to pay him the money. Polk v. Peterson (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 504.

Art. 2284. [1561] Appointed, how, in unorganized counties.—The county commissioners' courts of the several counties in this state to which unorganized counties are attached for judicial purposes shall have and are hereby given power to appoint a justice of the peace and a constable for each of the unorganized counties attached to said county for judicial purposes, in accordance with the provisions of the law now in force authorizing such appointments in organized counties. [Acts 1879, p. 89.]

Art. 2285. [1562] Additional justices of the peace for unorganized counties.—Whenever, in any unorganized county of the state of Texas, a necessity may exist for the appointment of more than one justice of the peace and constable for such county, and such fact is made known and set forth in a petition signed by one hundred qualified voters of said county, addressed to the county commissioners' court of the organized county to which such unorganized county is attached for judicial purposes, asking the appointment of such officers, it shall be the duty of such commissioners' court to lay off and designate as many justices' precincts in such unorganized county as may be necessary, not exceeding four, and such commissioners' court shall have and is hereby empowered to appoint one justice of the peace and one constable for each justice's precinct in such unorganized county, in accordance with the provisions of the law now in force authorizing such appointments in organized counties; and such justices' precincts shall be and they are hereby constituted election precincts in such unorganized county. [Acts 1885, p. 88.]

Precincts, authority to change boundaries of.—The commissioners' court has authority under article V, section 18 of the constitution to change the boundaries of one precinct without redistricting the whole county. State ex rel. Dowlen v. Rigsby, 17 C. A. 171, 43 S. W. 271.

Art. 2286. [1563] [1534] Two justices in certain precincts.—Where, in any justice's precinct, there may be a city of eight thousand or more inhabitants, there shall be elected two justices of the peace. [Id.]

Art. 2287. [1564] [1535] Commission and qualification.—Each justice of the peace shall be commissioned as justice of the peace of his precinct and ex officio notary public of his county, and shall take the oath of office prescribed in the constitution, and give the bond prescribed by law. [Const., art. 4, sec. 20. Act Aug. 17, 1876, p. 165, sec. 28.]

Authority as notary.—Under this article and arts. 9–14, 1748 and 3687–3713 where a county clerk testified that he had appointed another as deputy, but that the deputation had been mislaid, a record of such deputation, which was acknowledged before a justice of the peace, is admissible in evidence. Smith v. State (Cr. App.) 156 S. W. 645.

Seal to notarial act.—A justice must authenticate his notarial act by his seal. Daugherty v. Yates, 13 C. A. 646, 35 S. W. 937.

Art. 2288. [1565] [1536] Vacancy, how filled.—Where any vacancy shall occur in the office of a justice of the peace, the same shall be filled by some person appointed by the commissioners' court of the county, who shall hold his office until the next general election, and until his successor shall be elected and qualified. [Const., art. 6, sec. 28. Act Aug. 17, 1876, p. 165, sec. 2.]

Vacancy—What constitutes.—Absence, inability, or unwillingness to act does not constitute a vacancy. Crawford v. Saunders, 9 C. A. 225, 29 S. W. 102.

Art. 2289. [1566] [1537] Nearest justice to hold court, when.—During the period of such vacancy, or whenever the justice of the peace in any precinct shall be absent, or unable or unwilling to perform the duties of his office, the nearest justice of the peace in the county may perform the duties of the office until such vacancy shall be filled, or such absence, inability or unwillingness shall cease. [Act Aug. 17, 1876, p. 164, sec. 25.]

Territorial jurisdiction.—Except in the cases authorized by statute, a justice cannot, even by consent of parties, act in his official capacity out of the precinct for which he is elected. Wynns v. Underwood, 1 T. 48; Foster v. McAdams, 9 T. 542; Clements v. City of San Antonio, 34 T. 25.

This article does not confer power upon such nearest justice to go outside of his precinct, and to the office of such absent justice, and there perform such duties, but contemplates that the duties shall be performed in his own precinct, and when the justice outside of his precinct issued an attachment writ, he did so without authority of law, and he should have sustained the motion to quash the writ. Stewart v. Smallwood, 46 C. A. 467, 102 S. W. 159, 160.

One justice of the peace cannot go into another justice precinct when there is a justice and hold a court of inquiry for the purpose of ferreting out crimes, but he can go as a magistrate to hold an examining court. Brown v. State, 55 Cr. R. 572, 118 S. W. 140, 141.

Where the regular justice of the peace was sick, a justice of the peace in the same precinct could, as authorized by this article, perform the duties of the office, provided he was the nearest justice. Chance v. Pace (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 843.

—— Waiver of irregularities.—The irregularity of a justice acting outside of his precinct and in the precinct of an absent justice affects only the question of jurisdiction over the person, and may be and is waived by a general appearance. Stewart v. Smallwood, 46 C. A. 467, 102 S. W. 159.

Continuance of jurisdiction.—A justice trying the cause retains jurisdiction until the case is removed by appeal. Crawford v. Saunders, 29 S. W. 102, 9 C. A. 225.

Art. 2290. [1567] [1538] Justice disqualified, when.—No justice of the peace shall sit in any cause where he may be interested, or where he may be related to either party within the third degree of consanguinity or affinity. [Act Aug. 17, 1876, pp. 164, 165, sec. 24.]

Disqualification of justice—Interest.—See Arts. 1516, 1584, 1675.

By interest is meant a pecuniary or personal right or privilege in some way depending on the result of the cause. Taylor v. Williams, 26 T. 583. See Franco-Texan Land Co. v. Howe, 22 S. W. 766, 3 C. A. 315.

—— Relationship to party or person interested.—A surety upon a claimant's bond given for the trial of the right of property, if related to the justice, is so far a party to the suit as to disqualify the justice from trying it. Hodde v. Susan, 58 T. 389.

A brother-in-law of the justice is within the third degree. Morris v. Foreaker, 4 App. C. C. § 37, 15 S. W. 37.

—— Removal of disqualification.—When a justice is disqualified on account of relationship to a party, he cannot remove the disqualification by dismissing the suit as to such party. Gains v. Barr, 60 T. 676.

—— Effect of disqualification.—A suit may be brought before a justice who is disqualified to try the case, and in such case he must transfer the cause. Morris v. Foreaker, 4 App. C. C. § 37, 15 S. W. 37.

Liability of disqualified justice.—When a justice of the peace knowingly acts in a case not within his jurisdiction, he is responsible as any other trespasser. McVea v. Walker, 11 C. A. 46, 31 S. W. 839. See Chambers v. Hodges, 23 T. 104; Newcome v. Light, 58 T. 141, 44 Am. Rep. 604; Templeton v. Giddings (Sup.) 12 S. W. 851; Frieburg v. Isbell (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 988.

POWERS AND JURISDICTION

Article 2291. [1568] [1539] Jurisdiction in civil cases.—The courts of justices of the peace shall, in addition to the powers and duties elsewhere provided for, have and exercise original jurisdiction in civil matters of all cases where the amount in controversy is two hundred dollars or less, exclusive of interest, of which exclusive original jurisdiction is not given to the district or county courts, and of all cases of forcible entry and detainer. They shall also have power to foreclose mortgages and enforce liens on personal property, where the amount in controversy is within their jurisdiction, as above provided. [Const., art. 5, sec. 19. Act Aug. 17, 1876, p. 155, secs. 3, 4.]

1. In general.—Where land is sold under execution from a justice's court and the sale is voidable, it seems that proceedings to avoid the sale, after the deed has been made, for fraud, would have to be taken in the district court of the country where the land is situated. The justice court could have no jurisdiction by motion or on an original proceeding for that purpose after the execution of the deed. Smith v. Perkins, 81 T. 152, 16 S. W. 805, 26 Am. St. Rep. 794.

A justice of the peace takes his office subject to the power of the people to change the limits of his jurisdiction. State v. Rigsby, 17 C. A. 171, 43 S. W. 271.

A justice's court has no jurisdiction of an action by a county judge on a county convict bond. Heard v. Conly (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1047.

In an action in justice's court by an assignee of a note against the maker, a judgment in favor of the maker against the payee held within the jurisdiction of the justice. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Warbington (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 988.

If a justice of the peace had jurisdiction when the action was begun, the fact that the debt sued for was afterwards extinguished held not to deprive him of jurisdiction to render judgment. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Lunn (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 538.

2. Pleading jurisdictional facts.—Plea in an action in justice's court held to seek relief beyond the jurisdiction of the court. Cable Co. v. Rogers, 44 C. A. 620, 99 S. W. 736.

The latest pleading in a justice's court determines jurisdiction. Ford v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 361.

3. Actions involving title to real property—Forcible entry and detainer.—In a suit of forcible entry and detainer, a judgment for more than $200 damages is void for the excess, and that sum having been paid, an execution for the balance was enjoined. Boaz v. Graham, 1 App. C. C. § 159.

The value of the rights involved in forcible detainer proceedings will not oust the jurisdiction of the justice's court, if it otherwise has jurisdiction. Walther v. Anderson, 52 C. A. 360, 114 S. W. 414.

4. Partition.—As to jurisdiction in case of partition of personal property, see Schulz v. Schulz (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 107.

5. Amount or value in controversy.—A suit for the balance of an account not exceeding the amount within the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace may be brought in that court, notwithstanding the debit side of the account may amount to more than that sum. Davis v. Pinckney, 20 T. 340. And see Blankenship v. Adkins, 12 T. 536. See Hilderbrand v. Machine Co., 27 S. W. 826, 8 C. A. 132.

The justice's court cannot litigate a claim, however or whenever set up, that exceeds $200 in amount, and the county court cannot by appeal acquire jurisdiction in such matters. Cain v. Culbreath (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 809.

In an action for damages for the wrongful levy of a writ of sequestration in a suit in justice's court plaintiff cannot question the validity of the justice's judgment for want of jurisdiction because of the value of the property. Endel v. Norris, 93 T. 540, 57 S. W. 25.

A counterclaim before a justice of the peace for $199.10, containing an alternative claim for $200.10, held erroneously stricken out, as exceeding the jurisdictional amount. Rylie v. Elam (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 51.

The statutory penalty assessable against railroad companies in actions for damages is a part of the principal, and if, added to the damages claimed, penalty exceeds $200, a justice is without jurisdiction. Gulf & I. Ry. Co. v. Gregory (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 310.

The justice court, and not the district court, has jurisdiction of an action to recover taxes on unrendered personal property in the sum of $120.77 and the 10 per cent. statutory penalty thereon. State v. Trilling (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 788.

A complaint containing two counts for a barrel of whisky worth $141 held not to exceed the $200 jurisdiction of the justice court, though the counts were not in the alternative. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Edgewood Distilling Co. (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 1075.

A judgment for $390, in a suit on a note for "$200 and accrued interest," executed in 1874, held not beyond the jurisdiction limit of "$200 and lawful interest." Smith v. Ridley, 30 C. A. 158, 70 S. W. 235.

A justice acquires no jurisdiction, where the amount in the petition is in excess of its jurisdiction, though the petition prays for judgment for an amount within the jurisdiction. Times Pub. Co. v. Hill, 36 C. A. 389, 81 S. W. 806.

In an action before a justice of the peace, the answer held to present a claim beyond the jurisdiction of the justice. Williamson v. Bodan Lumber Co., 36 C. A. 446, 82 S. W. 340.

Where a county judge unlawfully collected fees for criminal cases which he dismissed without trial, the total amount of the fees being within the jurisdiction of the justice court, the county held entitled to sue the judge and his sureties on his official bond in such court for the amount collected. Lane v. Delta County (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 866.

Statement of the parts of petition determining whether the amount involved is within the jurisdiction of a justice. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hood (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 982.

A justice of the peace has no jurisdiction of an action to recover on an account aggregating $251. Maples v. MacNelly (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 893.

Under this article a justice's court has original jurisdiction of an action by a surviving wife on a note for less than $200 constituting community property, but payable to the deceased husband, there being no children, and the county court has appellate jurisdiction of the action. Graves v. Smith (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 487.

Under this article a justice's court has original jurisdiction of an action by a surviving wife on an open account for $130, payable to the deceased husband, and constituting community property of the wife and deceased husband; there being no children. Graves v. Smith (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 489.

A verdict, in an action for recovery of animals, begun in a justice's court, returned in the trial of the case in the county court after appeal from a judgment for plaintiff below, was equivalent to a special finding that the animals were of value not exceeding $200, as alleged, so that the subject-matter of the action was within the jurisdiction of the justice's court. Ford v. Mitchell (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 361.

A suit on an indemnifying bond for $200 damages for alleged wrongful levy on property and also asking cancellation of certain notes to the amount of $70 held to involve $270, which was beyond the jurisdiction of the justice. Smith Premier Sales Co. v. Connellee (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 1197.

In an action for rent, a cross-action pleading $487.05 damages through plaintiff's failure to repair, and asking judgment canceling the rent account "and for the further sum of $200 damages, the same being the jurisdictional amount of the justice court," states a cause of action beyond the jurisdiction of a justice court. John E. Morrison Co. v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1122.

6. —— Attachment and garnishment.—The garnishee was indebted on a judgment for $200 and interest. A judgment was rendered against him for $248. Held, that the justice had jurisdiction of the subject-matter, but could not render judgment for an amount exceeding $200. Erwin v. City of Austin, 1 App. C. C. § 1039.

A justice of the peace has jurisdiction where the indebtedness of the defendant is on a judgment of the county court for $200, with interest accrued since the judgment. City of Austin v. Erwin, 2 App. C. C. § 290.

In a suit by attachment the jurisdiction depends on the amount of the debt claimed, and not upon the value of the property attached. Barnett v. Rayburn, 4 App. C. C. § 84, 16 S. W. 537. See Lawson v. Lynch, 9 C. A. 582, 29 S. W. 1128.

It was not error to refuse to quash garnishment proceedings because the affidavit therefor stated that the justice's judgment on which they were based was for $211.38, besides interest and costs of suit. Brandt v. Moore (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 1124.

7. —— Enforcement of liens on personal property.—In suits to enforce a lien upon personal property the value of the property determines the jurisdiction of the court. Cotulla v. Goggen, 77 T. 32, 13 S. W. 742; Cox v. Wright (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 294.

The foreclosure of a landlord's lien for $125 in a justice court held not invalid, though the value of the property seized exceeded the justice's jurisdiction. Irion v. Bexar County, 26 C. A. 527, 63 S. W. 550.

In an action in justice's court to recover less than $100 for farm labor and to foreclose a laborer's lien a plea that the crop is worth $250 does not show want of jurisdiction. Allen v. Glover, 27 C. A. 483, 65 S. W. 379.

An agreement referred to in the judgment in an action to foreclose a lien on a chattel held not to show the value of the chattel was more than $200, so as to deprive the court of jurisdiction. Beaty v. Thos. Goggan & Bro. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 631.

A justice of the peace has no jurisdiction of an action to foreclose a lien on property valued over $200, although the debt was only $95.55, interest, etc. W. R. Kelley & Co. v. J. E. Stevens & Sons (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 94.

Where a suit in the justice's court having jurisdiction of the amount of $200 is for a debt for rent less than $200, the jurisdiction is not affected by the fact that the property upon which a foreclosure of landlord's lien is sought exceeds $200 in value. Ingraham v. Rich (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 549.

In suits in justice court to enforce liens upon personal property, the value of the property determines the jurisdiction. Brown v. March (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 353.

8. —— Mortgage foreclosure.—Justice of the peace has no power to foreclose mortgage on property exceeding $200 in value. Cox v. Wright (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 294.

A justice has no jurisdiction of an action for $170, and to foreclose a mortgage lien on property of the value of more than $200. Smith v. Carroll, 28 C. A. 330, 66 S. W. 863.

The pleadings in an action in justice's court for a certain claim, and to foreclose a mortgage, in which defendant sets up a counterclaim, held to show an amount in controversy not beyond the jurisdiction of the court. Rhodes Haverty Furniture Co. v. Henry (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 340.

Where mortgaged property was in excess of $200, a justice of the peace had no jurisdiction of an action to foreclose the lien, although the debt was only $95.55, interest, etc. W. R. Kelley & Co. v. J. E. Stevens & Sons (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 94.

Where a suit in a justice's court is for a debt of $200, the jurisdiction is not affected by the fact that the property upon which a foreclosure is sought exceeds $200 in value. Ingraham v. Rich (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 549.

9. —— Interest costs, and attorney's fees.—When an attorney's fee is stipulated for in the note, it is part of the amount in controversy. Waters v. Walker, 4 App. C. C. § 268, 17 S. W. 1085; McRae v. Robinson, 2 App. C. C. § 556; Roberts v. Palmore, 41 T. 617; Miner v. Bank, 53 T. 559.

Interest is excluded in computing amount in controversy. Loyd v. Capps (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 505.

Under limitation of the jurisdiction of a justice, a certain claim for interest held a part of the damages, so that, on appeal to the county court, interest could not be demanded, so as to increase the claim to more than $200. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Walter Hunt & Co., 38 C. A. 460, 85 S. W. 1168.

In an action in tort for conversion, the interest demanded is recoverable only as damages; and when the amount of damages and interest exceeds $200 a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction, under this article. Crowdus v. Kahn Tailoring Co. (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1136.

10. —— Right of property.—In a case of trial of the right of property, when the property in controversy exceeds in value $200, a justice of the peace has no jurisdiction. Marx v. Carlisle, 1 App. C. C. § 93.

11. —— Reduction of amount to give jurisdiction.—In reconvention in attachment in a justice's court, to recover damages for the attachment beyond the court's jurisdiction, defendant, without plaintiff's consent, could not credit on plaintiff's demand damages claimed, to reduce the same to an amount within the court's jurisdiction. Smith v. Dye, 21 C. A. 662, 52 S. W. 981.

Complaint in action before a justice held not to show a fictitious credit in order to give the court jurisdiction. Ball v. Hines (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 332.

Defendant cannot give justice jurisdiction of counterclaim of over $200 by setting off enough to make balance less than $200. Clark v. Smith, 29 C. A. 363, 68 S. W. 532.

In a suit before a justice of the peace on two notes for $100 each and 10 per cent. attorney's fees, plaintiff held entitled to orally amend by abandoning its claim for attorney's fees, so as to bring the case within the justice's jurisdiction. Peeples v. Slayden-Kirksey Woolen Mills (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 61.

Where the issues of an action on a note showed credits reducing the amount sued for to less than $200, and judgment was for less than that amount, a justice of the peace had jurisdiction. Watt v. Parlin & Orendorff Co., 44 C. A. 439, 98 S. W. 428.

The plaintiff in the county court on appeal from a justice's court cannot remit part of his claim, so as to bring it within the jurisdiction of the justice. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Canyon Coal Co., 102 T. 478, 119 S. W. 294.

Where, on appeal from a justice, plaintiff erroneously amended so as to state a cause of action for an amount beyond the justice's jurisdiction, and for this reason a judgment in his favor was reversed, he was entitled on remand to reduce his claim to the amount within the justice's jurisdiction. Taylor v. Lee (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 908.

The amount in controversy in a justice court held not to exceed $200 so that the court had jurisdiction of the entire claim, notwithstanding the filing of a supplementary complaint dismissing a part thereof. Crocker v. Mann (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 311.

Where plaintiff sued before a justice for breach of a contract of employment and to enforce a lien on property exceeding $200 in value, but dismissed the latter claim before trial, the court properly overruled the plea to the jurisdiction. Iowa Mfg. Co. v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 171.

12. —— Suretyship.—Plaintiff sued before a justice to recover $153.66; $100 of the amount growing out of his suretyship on a note for defendant and the balance on another claim. The entire debt on which plaintiff was surety was $250, and plaintiff claimed that his share of the debt amounted to $100. Held, that the amount plaintiff demanded, and not the whole amount of the note, was the amount in controversy before the justice; and, since this amount could in no event exceed $200, which was the limit of the justice's jurisdiction, the justice had jurisdiction of plaintiff's entire claim, regardless of the fact that, on objection made, plaintiff filed a supplementary complaint, dismissing the $100 claim, after which the case proceeded to recover the balance only. Crocker v. Mann (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 311.

13. —— Splitting demands to acquire jurisdiction.—A demand arising out of a single transaction, whether of contract or wrong, cannot be split up for the purpose of bringing separate actions upon it within the jurisdiction of the justice. Thus, when a sale is made of a large number of articles by single contract, one suit cannot be brought for a part and another for the remainder, and a judgment on one part of the demand will bar an action for the residue. Fuller v. Sparks, 39 T. 136. A case may be brought within the jurisdiction of the court by a remittitur of a part of the amount due. Id.; Odle v. Frost, 59 T. 684.

14. Recovery of possession of chattels.—The justice's jurisdiction in an action to recover chattels will be determined by the value placed on the chattels by plaintiff, unless fraudulently understated to give jurisdiction. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. North Galveston Imp. Co., 29 C. A. 40, 67 S. W. 1079.

If there is reasonable doubt as to the value of chattels in an action to recover their possession, jurisdiction should be entertained by the justice. Id.

14½. Trial of right of property.—See notes under Art. 7778.

15. Foreclosure of attachment lien.—A justice's court has jurisdiction to foreclose an attachment lien on land, and to issue an order for the sale of the same. Rule v. Richards (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1073.

16. Reconvention.—When the defendant pleads an account in set-off, he can recover against the plaintiff judgment for an excess over the plaintiff's demand not exceeding the amount within the justice's jurisdiction. Dalby v. Murphy, 25 T. 354. And see Duer v. Seydell, 20 T. 61; Davis v. Pinckney, 20 T. 340; Blankenship v. Adkins, 12 T. 536.

In a suit for $160 the defendant pleaded in reconvention a claim for damages amounting to $360 and asked judgment for $200. Held to be within the jurisdiction of the court. Mulhaul v. Feller, 1 App. C. C. § 1162.

A defendant cannot plead in reconvention a part of a debt not within the jurisdiction of the court as to amount. Pickett v. Edwards (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 32.

A justice's court held to have had no jurisdiction over a plea in reconvention. Rylie v. Elam (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 326.

In an action for rent, a cross-action pleading $487.05 damages through plaintiff's failure to repair, and asking judgment canceling the rent account "and for the further sum of $200 damages, the same being the jurisdictional amount of the justice court," states a cause of action beyond the jurisdiction of a justice. John E. Morrison Co. v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1122.

17. Equitable jurisdiction—Cancellation of notes.—Justice has jurisdiction to cancel a promissory note. Hilderbrand v. W. A. W. Mowing & Reaping Mach. Co., 27 S. W. 826, 8 C. A. 132.

18. —— Foreclosure of lien.—The grade or roadbed of a railroad being real estate, a lien upon it cannot be foreclosed in a justice's court. T. & P. R. R. Co. v. McMullen, 1 App. C. C. § 163.

A justice court has no jurisdiction to foreclose a laborer's lien on 18 miles of railroad, a locomotive, and other property. Lewis v. Warren & C. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 104.

A court has jurisdiction of an action for recovery of a debt and foreclosure of the lien thereof on personal property, the value of the property not exceeding its jurisdiction, though the amount of the debt does. Beaty v. Thos. Goggan & Bro. (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 631.

A justice's court has jurisdiction to foreclose an attachment lien on land, and to issue an order for the sale of the same. Rule v. Richards (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1073.

19. Judgment—Collateral attack.—Courts of justices of the peace exercise within their defined limits general exclusive jurisdiction and their judgments rendered apparently in the ordinary scope of their powers and jurisdiction cannot be collaterally attacked as void. Williams v. Ball, 52 T. 603, 36 Am. Rep. 730; Holmes v. Buckner, 67 T. 107, 2 S. W. 452; Williams v. Haynes, 77 T. 283, 13 S. W. 1029, 19 Am. St. Rep. 752; Long v. Brenneman, 59 T. 212; Wakefield v. King, 2 App. C. C. § 697; Clayton v. Hurt, 88 T. 595, 32 S. W. 876; Id. (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 376; Hambel v. Davis (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 251.

Judgment of a justice held not subject to collateral attack, for want of jurisdiction, because of the amount in controversy where it was possible on the trial to prove such jurisdictional fact, and the record did not show the jurisdictional amount had been exceeded. Endel v. Norris (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 687.

20. —— Presumption of jurisdiction.—Justices' courts acting within their defined limits are courts of general jurisdiction to the extent that, in the absence of recitals in the record to the contrary, every presumption in favor of the validity of their judgments will be indulged. Williams v. Ball, 52 T. 608, 36 Am. Rep. 730; Hance v. Wharf Co., 70 T. 115, 8 S. W. 76; Wilkerson v. Schoonmaker, 77 T. 617, 14 S. W. 223, 19 Am. St. Rep. 803; Anderson v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 416.

In considering, in a collateral proceeding, the validity of a judgment rendered by a justice of the peace, it is not necessary that the transcript should show everything prerequisite to the attaching of jurisdiction. In this case it did not expressly appear from the transcript that both defendants, against whom judgment was rendered, had been cited, but there was evidence to justify a finding to that effect. Hance v. Wharf Co., 70 T. 115, 8 S. W. 76.

The presumption exists that a judgment rendered by a justice of the peace is within its jurisdiction unless the contrary is shown by the record. Koehler v. Earl, 77 T. 188, 14 S. W. 28.

21. —— Vacating for fraud.—There is no difference between district and county courts and justices of the peace in matters within their jurisdictions, in their powers to set aside a judgment on a petition in the nature of a bill of review, when the complaining party has been prevented by fraud on the part of the one obtaining the judgment from making his defense. Alvord Nat. Bank v. Waples-Platter Grocer Co., 54 C. A. 225, 118 S. W. 234.

22. —— Certiorari.—See Title 21, Chapter 2.

Art. 2292. [1569] [1540] To enter forfeitures of bail bonds.—Justices of the peace shall also have power to enter forfeitures of bail bonds given for the appearance of parties or witnesses in their courts, and to render judgments thereon without regard to the amount of such bond. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2293. [1570] [1541] To punish for contempts.—They shall have power to punish any party guilty of a contempt of court by fine not to exceed twenty-five dollars and by imprisonment not exceeding one day. [Id.]

Art. 2294. [1571] [1542] To issue writs of garnishment, etc.—They shall have the same power in cases within their jurisdiction as judges and clerks of the district and county courts have to issue writs of attachment, garnishment and sequestration. [Id. sec. 26.]

Garnishment.—Where writ of garnishment is not served 10 days before judgment, justice of the peace has no jurisdiction. McFarland v. Wilder (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 267.

Art. 2295. [1572] [1543] Other jurisdiction conferred by law.—They shall also have and exercise jurisdiction over all other matters not hereinbefore enumerated that are, or may be, cognizable before a justice of the peace under any law of this state. [Act Aug. 17, 1876, p. 155, sec. 3.]

Abstract of judgment.—See Title 86, Chapter 1.

Art. 2296. [1573] [1544] No jurisdiction in certain cases.—Justices' courts have no jurisdiction of suits in behalf of the state to recover penalties, forfeitures and escheats, of suits for divorce, of suits to recover damages for slander or defamation of character, suits for the trial of title to land, or of suits for the enforcement of liens on land. [Const., art. 5, sec. 8.]

Art. 2297. [1574] [1545] To proceed with unfinished business.—Every justice of the peace shall have power, and it shall be his duty, to proceed with all unfinished business of his office in like manner as if such business had been originally commenced before him. [Act Aug. 17, 1876, p. 157, sec. 6.]

TERMS OF THE COURT

Article 2298. [1575] [1546] Monthly terms.—Each justice of the peace shall hold a term of his court for civil business once in each month, and may transact such business out of term time as is, or may be, authorized by law. [Id. sec. 25. Act Aug. 14, 1870, p. 87, sec. 13. P. D. 6357.]

Cited, Brown v. McClendon, 56 C. A. 551, 121 S. W. 903.

Art. 2299. [1576] [1547] Times and places of holding.—Justices of the peace shall hold the regular terms of their courts at their respective offices at such times as may be prescribed by the commissioners' court of the county. [Const., art. 5, sec. 19. Acts 1881, p. 10.]

In general.—A motion in a justice's court to quash a citation on the ground that it was not made returnable at the next regular term was overruled. On appeal it was held that the court could not take judicial notice of the orders of the commissioners' court and the motion was overruled. Swinborn v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 567.

Statutory power to change time.—The act of February 17, 1881 (Acts 17th Leg., p. 10), merely conferred power upon the commissioners' court to change the time for holding court. It did not suspend justices' courts until the county commissioners should fix their days of sitting. Stone v. Hill, 72 T. 540, 10 S. W. 665.

Judicial notice.—The court of civil appeals cannot take judicial notice of the commissioners' court's order fixing the terms of justices' courts in the county. Swinborn v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 567.

Art. 2300. [1577] [1548] May hold from day to day, etc.—The justices may hold the courts from day to day until all business shall be disposed of, or they may adjourn the court or the trial of any case to a particular day. [Acts of 1870, p. 87.]

Art. 2301. [1578] [1549] Failure of term.—If from any cause the regular term of a justice's court shall not be opened on the day fixed therefor by law, the court shall be considered as adjourned until the next regular term thereof. [Id. sec. 25.]

CHAPTER FOUR

DOCKETS, BOOKS AND PAPERS

Article 2302. [1579] [1550] Justice's docket.—It shall be the duty of every justice of the peace to keep a civil docket, in which he shall enter—

1. The title of all suits commenced before him.
2. The time when the first process was issued against the defendant, when returnable, and the nature thereof.
3. The time when the parties, or either of them, appeared before him, either with or without citation.
4. A brief statement of the nature of the plaintiff's demand or claim, and the amount claimed, and a brief statement of the nature of the defense made by the defendant, if any.
5. Every adjournment, stating at whose request and to what time.
6. The time when the trial was had, stating whether the same was by a jury or by the justice.
7. The verdict of the jury, if any.
8. The judgment rendered by the justice, and the time of rendering the same.
9. All applications for setting aside judgment or granting new trials, and the order of the justice thereon, with the date thereof.
10. The time of issuing execution, to whom directed and delivered, and the amount of debt, damages and costs; and, when any execution is returned, he shall note such return on said docket, with the manner in which it was executed.
11. All stays and appeals that may be taken, and the time when taken, the amount of the bond and the name of the sureties. [Act Aug. 17, 1876, p. 156, sec. 5.]

In general.—This article specifically enumerates the entries which it is the duty of the justice to make upon his docket in addition to the judgment and among them is the time of issuance and return of execution. First Nat. Bank v. Brown, 42 C. A. 584, 92 S. W. 1054.

Effect of docket entries.—It is proper to consider the entries upon the docket as a part of the affidavit for the purpose of determining whether the affidavit for garnishment in fact shows upon its face that the judgment was dormant. First Nat. Bank v. Brown, 42 C. A. 584, 92 S. W. 1054.

Failure to enter pleadings.—When the pleadings in a suit for damages less than $20 are in writing, the failure of the justice to make the entries of the pleadings in reconvention, being more than $20, in his docket, is immaterial. Railway Co. v. Hayes, 23 S. W. 443, 4 C. A. 88.

Final adjournment.—Subdivision 5 has no application to the final adjournment of the court for the term, but relates only to adjournment of the court on trial of any case to a particular day of the term. G. H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 870.

Sufficiency of jurisdictional showing.—Where the transcript on appeal from the county court contains no statement of plaintiff's demand or the nature of the action, as required by this article, but only shows judgment in plaintiff's favor for a certain sum, and shows no written pleading filed by the parties in the justice's court and transmitted to the county court, as required by Art. 2396, nor that it was submitted in the justice's court on an agreed statement of facts, signed by the parties, as provided by Art. 1949, there is no affirmative showing that the county court had jurisdiction to render the judgment appealed from and it will be reversed. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 608.

Art. 2303. [1580] [1551] Fee book.—He shall also keep a fee book in which shall be taxed all costs accruing in every suit commenced before him. [Id. sec. 27.]

Fees.—See Title 58, Chapter 3.
Report of fines, etc., to county.—See Title 29, Chapter 1.
Fees in corporation courts.—See Title 22, Chap. 5.

Art. 2304. [1581] [1552] Other books.—He shall also keep such other dockets, books and records as may be required by law.

Art. 2305. [1582] [1553] Custody of books, papers, etc.—Each justice of the peace shall arrange and safely keep the dockets, books and papers transmitted to him by his predecessors, and all papers filed in any case in his court, subject at all reasonable times to the inspection of any party interested therein.

Art. 2306. [1583] [1554] Books and papers to be delivered to successor.—When a justice of the peace shall vacate his office, it shall be his duty to deliver up to his successor all dockets, books and papers pertaining to his said office; and it shall be the duty of any person having possession of dockets, books or papers belonging to the office of any justice of the peace, to deliver the same over to such justice on demand. [Act Aug. 17, 1876, p. 156, sec. 6.]

Art. 2307. [1584] [1555] Delivery of, may be enforced.—Should any person, having such dockets, books or papers, refuse to deliver the same on such demand, he may, upon motion, be attached and imprisoned by order of the county judge in term time or in vacation, until he shall make such delivery; but such motion shall be supported by affidavit, and three days' notice thereof shall be given to the party against whom such motion is made. [Id.]

CHAPTER FIVE

VENUE

[See "Venue of Suits" in Art. 1830.]

Article 2308. [1585] [1556] Suits to be brought in the county of defendant's residence, except, etc.—Every suit in the court of a justice of the peace shall be commenced in the county and precinct in which the defendant, or one or more of the several defendants, resides, except in the following cases and such other cases as are or may be provided by law:

1. Cases of forcible entry and detainer must be brought in the precinct where the premises, or a part thereof, are situated.

2. Suits against executors, administrators and guardians as such must be brought in the county in which such administration or guardianship is pending, and in the precinct in which the county seat is situated.

3. Suits against counties must be brought in such county and in the precinct in which the county seat is situated.

In the following cases the suit may, at the plaintiff's option, be brought either in the county and precinct of the defendant's residence, or in that provided in each exception:

4. Suits upon a contract in writing promising performance at any particular place, may be brought in the county and precinct in which such contract was to be performed.

5. Suits for the recovery of rents may be brought in the county and precinct in which the rented premises, or a part thereof, are situated.

6. Suits for damages for torts may be brought in the county and precinct in which the injury was inflicted.

7. Suits against transient persons may be brought in any county and precinct where such defendant is to be found.

8. Suits against non-residents of the state, or persons whose residence is unknown, may be brought in the county and precinct where the plaintiff resides.

9. Suits for the recovery of personal property may be brought in any county and precinct in which the property may be.

10. Suits against private corporations, associations and joint stock companies may be brought in any county and precinct in which the cause of action or a part thereof arose, or in which such corporation, association or company has an agency or representative, or in which its principal office is situated.

11. Suits against railroad and canal companies, or the owners of any line of mail stages or coaches, for any injury to person or property upon the road, canal or line of stages or coaches of the defendant, or upon any liability as a carrier, may be brought in any precinct through which the road, canal or line of stages or coaches may pass, or in any precinct where the route of such railroad, canal, stages or coaches may begin or terminate.

12. Suits against fire, marine or inland insurance companies may also be brought in any county and precinct in which any part of the insured property was situated; and suits against life and accident insurance companies or associations may also be brought in the county and precinct in which the persons insured, or any of them, resided at the time of such death or injury.

13. Suits against the owners of a steamboat or other vessel may be brought in any county or precinct where such steamboat or vessel may be found, or where the cause of action arose or the liability was contracted or accrued. [Id. sec. 8.]

Cited, Cannel Coal Co. v. Lune (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 721.

In general.—The exceptions enumerated in clauses 4–13 are for the benefit of the plaintiff, and confer on him the right to determine where the suit shall be brought, in the exercise of which the courts will not control him, unless it is alleged and shown that a fraud upon the jurisdiction of the court is attempted by the plaintiff. Carro v. Carro, 60 T. 395; Cahn v. Bonnett, 62 T. 674; Carothers v. McIlhenny, 63 T. 138.

A sale of land in satisfaction of a justice's judgment, rendered by default, held not invalid because defendant was sued in a court of another county than that where he resided. Valdez v. Cohen, 23 C. A. 475, 56 S. W. 375.

Jurisdiction of defendants against whom no cause of action exists will not give jurisdiction of nonresident defendants. Landa v. Moody (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 51.

An action against a sublessee for removing timber from the leased land is in tort and is properly brought in county where the land is situated. Brown v. Pope, 27 C. A. 225, 65 S. W. 42.

Person brought in before a justice as additional party defendant by the original defendant held entitled to be sued in the precinct and county of his residence. Scott v. Fitch (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 841.

The privilege of being sued in one's own county and precinct is a valuable right, and before one may be sued elsewhere, the case must be within one of the exceptions in the statute. Johnson v. Lanford, 52 C. A. 397, 114 S. W. 693.

Two defendants were sued in precinct No. 1, Comanche county. One lived in precinct No. 2, Comanche county, and the other in Tom Green county and had not promised in writing to pay the debt in precinct No. 1, Comanche county. There was no justice of the peace in precinct No. 2, Comanche county. The court had jurisdiction over the resident of Comanche county, but not over the resident of Tom Green county, because neither defendant resided in precinct 1, Comanche county. Id.

A nonappealable judgment of a justice of the peace held conclusive between the parties, though the justice erred in overruling defendant's plea of privilege to be sued in another county. Hudson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 486.

A justice of the peace acquired jurisdiction of defendant's person where he appeared and answered by filing his plea of privilege to be sued in another county, which was overruled. Id.

Bills and notes—Actions against maker and endorser.—The makers of a promissory note are subject to the jurisdiction of a justice of the peace within the precinct of the payee, who indorsed such note, in a suit against him as indorser and the makers of the note; so, also, if the note is payable to bearer. Graves v. First Nat. Bank, 77 T. 555, 14 S. W. 163.

Contracts.—Where personal property is purchased to be delivered to a railway company for transportation, "f. o. b.," the contract is complete and the cause of action accrued where the articles purchased are loaded on the cars. Oil Co. v. Seeligson, 4 App. C. C. § 206, 15 S. W. 712.

Corporations.—The suit was brought against appellant defendant, who resides in justice precinct No. 1 of H. county, and a private corporation, which had its plants in precinct 5 or 7 of W. county, though several of its directors resided in precinct No. 1 thereof and it occasionally held directors' meetings there. Held, that the suit could not be maintained in precinct No. 1 of W. county as against appellant's objection; he being entitled to be sued in precinct No. 1 of H. county. Wilkerson v. City Nat. Bank of Decatur (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 360.

Executors.—The provision as to suits against executors, etc., is imperative. Bondies v. Buford, 58 T. 266.

Fraudulent conspiracy.—Where the fraud arises out of a conspiracy, suit may be brought in any precinct where any act in pursuance of the common design was performed by any one of the conspirators or by any other person at their instigation. Raleigh v. Cook, 60 T. 438; Bracken v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 1101.

Insurance companies.—The right accorded to a plaintiff under subdivision 12 of this article is a substantial right of fundamental importance, of which he cannot be deprived, except by the legislature; and a by-law of such an association, seeking to deprive a policy holder of such right, is void, and cannot be made binding by his contract to abide by it. Eaton v. International Travelers' Ass'n of Dallas (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 817.

Non-residents.—A suit on contract in justice court for debt against a non-resident, where no place of payment is specified, must be brought in precinct of plaintiff's residence. Subdivision 4 of this article does not apply. Kramer v. Lilley, 55 C. A. 339, 118 S. W. 735, 736.

Personal injuries.—When an act is transitory and is based upon personal injuries recognized as such by universal law, the suit may be brought where the aggressor is found, irrespective of the provisions of the local law, or whether there be any law at all in force at the place where the wrong was inflicted. When the right of action exists only by reason of a statute, it can be enforced only in the state where the statute has an existence, and where the injury occurred a cause of action must have arisen, and the remedy must be pursued in the state where the law was enacted and has effect. Willis v. Missouri P. Ry. Co., 61 T. 432, 48 Am. Rep. 301.

Rents.—Suit for the recovery of rents against a defendant residing in G. county was properly brought in R. county, where the rented premises were situated. Heidenheimer v. Allen, 1 App. C. C. § 1281.

Usury.—The receiving of usury is not such a tort as requires an action for to be brought in the county where the injury is inflicted, but creates a debt and an action for must be brought in the county of defendant's residence. Wartman v. Empire Loan Co., 45 C. A. 469, 101 S. W. 501.

Joint liability.—In a suit against parties jointly liable, if the residence of one is known and the other is unknown, suit must be brought in the county of the former's residence. Claiborne v. Pickens, 4 App. C. C. § 117, 16 S. W. 867.

Jurisdiction—Waiver of objections to.—Failure of one defendant to object where suit is brought in precinct in which neither defendant lives held not to affect the rights of the other defendant. Eastham v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 389.

That one of defendants did not object to being sued in a certain justice's precinct, in which another defendant did not reside, would not prevent such other from objecting to being sued there. Wilkerson v. City Nat. Bank of Decatur (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 360.

Plea of privilege.—See notes under Arts. 1903, 1909.

—— Waiver of plea of.—See notes under Art. 1830.

Art. 2309. [1586] [1557] Residence of a single man.—The residence of a single man is where he boards. [Id.]

Art. 2310. [1587] [1558] Where two justices in one precinct.—Where, in any precinct, there may be more than one justice of the peace, the suit may be brought before either of them. [Id.]

Art. 2311. [1588] [1559] Where two or more justices in one city or town.—Where, in any incorporated city or town, there may be more than one justice of the peace, suit may be brought before either of them. [Id.]

Art. 2312. [1589] [1560] Where justice is disqualified.—If there be no justice of the peace qualified to try the suit in the proper precinct, the suit may be commenced before the nearest justice of the peace of the county who is not disqualified to try the same. [Id.]

In general.—This article does not apply to cases not falling within one of the 13 exceptions stated in Art. 2308. Aspermont Drug Co. v. Crowdus Drug Co. (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 258.

Definitions—"Proper precinct."—"Proper precinct" means that in which suit by the general law is required to be commenced or may be commenced under some one of the 13 exceptions. If none of these exceptions is applicable, then the proper precinct is the one in which the defendant or one or more of several defendants resides in the county, not in a county in which they do not reside. Aspermont Drug Co. v. Crowdus Drug Co. (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 259.

Art. 2313. [1590] [1561] Change of venue on affidavit.—If any party to a suit before any justice of the peace shall make an affidavit, supported by the affidavit of two other credible persons, citizens of the county, to the effect that they have good reason to believe, and do believe, that such party cannot have a fair and impartial trial before such justice or in such justice's precinct, it shall be the duty of such justice to transfer such suit to the court of the nearest justice of the peace within the county not subject to the same or some other disqualification. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 2314. [1591] [1562] By consent.—The venue may also be changed to the court of any other justice of the peace of the county, upon the written consent of the parties or their attorneys, filed with the papers of the cause.

Art. 2315. [1592] [1563] When justice is disqualified.—If any justice of the peace shall be disqualified from sitting in any civil case pending, or which may hereafter be brought before him, or should such justice of the peace be sick or absent from the precinct, the parties to said suit may agree upon some person who is qualified to try said case; and, in the event said parties fail to agree upon some person to try said cause at the first term of the court after service is perfect, it shall be the duty of the county judge in whose county said case is pending, upon the application of the justice of the peace in whose court said cause is pending, or upon the application of either party to said suit, to appoint some person who is qualified to try said cause; and the fact of the disqualification of the justice of the peace and the selection by agreement or appointment of some other person to try said cause shall be noted on the docket of said justice in said cause. [Amend. 1895, p. 26.]

Art. 2316. [1593] [1563a] The term "nearest justice" defined.—By the term "nearest justice," as used in this chapter, is meant the justice whose place of holding his court is nearest to that of the justice before whom the proceeding is pending or should have been brought.

Art. 2317. [1594] [1564] Order of transfer.—The order of transfer in such cases shall state the cause of the transfer, and the name of the court to which the transfer is made, and shall require the parties and witnesses to appear before such court in its next ensuing term.

Art. 2318. [1595] [1565] Duty of justice in case of transfer.—When such order of transfer is made, it shall be the duty of the justice who made the order immediately to make out a true and correct transcript of all the entries made on his docket in the cause, and certify thereto officially, and to transmit the same, with a certified copy of the bill of costs taken from his fee book, and the original papers in the cause, to the justice of the precinct to which the same has been transferred.

CHAPTER SIX

SECURITY FOR COSTS

Article 2319. [1596] [1566] Rules of district courts, etc., apply as to security for costs.—The rules governing the district and county courts in reference to requiring security for costs, and the effect of the rule for costs, and the penalty for non-compliance therewith shall also govern the justices' courts, in so far as they can be applied to proceedings therein. [Id. sec. 27.]

Security for costs on defendant's appeal.—Where defendant appeals from a justice's court to the county court, plaintiff cannot be required to give security for costs. Wells Fargo & Co. Express v. Bilkiss (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 798.

Liabilities on bond.—Judgment can be rendered in the county court on appeal, on the cost bond filed in the justice court, for all costs accrued at the termination of the suit. Glameyer v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 471.

Under the facts, a judgment against plaintiff on his cost bond in an action on a note in justice court held unauthorized. Stanley v. King, 45 C. A. 415, 101 S. W. 524.

CHAPTER SEVEN

PARTIES

Article 2320. [1597] [1567] Same rules as to parties as in district courts, etc.—The rules relating to parties in the district and county courts shall also govern the justices' courts, in so far as they can be applied thereto.

Misjoinder—Waiver thereof.—Misjoinder of the wife in a suit on an account due a community held waived by failure to except thereto in justice court. Gentry v. McCarty (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 152.

CHAPTER EIGHT

PROCESS AND SERVICE

Article 2321. [1598] [1568] Process of justice's court, requisites of.—Every writ or process from the courts of justices of the peace shall be issued by the justice, and shall be in writing and signed by him officially. The style thereof shall be "The State of Texas." It shall, except where otherwise specially provided by law, be directed to the sheriff or any constable of the proper county, and shall be made returnable to some regular term of such court; and the date of its issuance shall be noted thereon. [Act Aug. 17, 1876, p. 158, sec. 10.]

Art. 2322. [1599] [1569] Citation to be issued, when.—When a claim or demand is lodged with a justice of the peace for suit, it shall be his duty to issue forthwith a writ or citation for the defendant; and, if there be several defendants residing in different counties one citation shall be issued to each of such counties. [Id.]

Citation, nature of.—The nature of the citation in a justice's court stated, and the county court held not entitled to look to the justice's citation to determine what was plaintiff's cause of action. Wooley v. Corley, 57 C. A. 229, 121 S. W. 1139.

Limitation of actions—Effect of issuance of citation.—The statute of limitation is stopped when citation is issued on the claim by the justice of the peace and not when it is lodged with a justice for suit. Brown v. Been (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 779.

—— Commencement of actions.—The lodging of the claim with a justice of the peace is not the commencement of the suit, but the suit is commenced by the issuance of citation. Moore v. G., C. & S. F. R. Co. (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 388.

Art. 2323. [1600] [1570] Citation shall contain what.—The citation shall be directed to the sheriff or any constable of the county where the defendant is represented to be and shall, in addition to the requirements of article 2321, require the officer to summon the defendant to appear and answer the plaintiff's suit at some regular term of the court, stating the time and place of holding the same. It shall state the names of all the parties to the suit, and the nature of the plaintiff's demand. [Id.]

Requisites and sufficiency of citation.—A citation which directs the officer to summon the agent of the corporation is bad. T. P. Ry. Co. v. Florence, 4 App. C. C. § 38, 14 S. W. 1070; Railway Co. v. Rawlins, 80 T. 579, 16 S. W. 430.

A citation commanding the officer to summon one described as agent of a railway company will not sustain a judgment by default against the company. Railway Co. v. Rawlins, 80 T. 579, 16 S. W. 430.

Where the citation served upon the defendant requires him to appear at a time not designated by law, a judgment by default for want of appearance is void. Whitney v. Kropf, 27 S. W. 843, 8 C. A. 304.

A citation from justice's court, commanding the officer to summon H., president of the M. P. Oil Co., was not a citation to the company itself, and service thereof on its president did not bring it into court. Butler v. Holmes, 29 C. A. 48, 68 S. W. 52.

In an action on a note in a justice court, where the citation issued to defendant described the note as being dated January 20, 1904, while the true date was January 27, 1904, the variance was immaterial, and not sufficient ground for excluding the note as evidence. Williams v. Manix (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 520.

In an action in a justice's court on a note by the assignee against the maker, a citation served on the payee held sufficient to support a default judgment against the payee. Kansas City Life Ins. Co. v. Warbington (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 988.

Use of notice instead.—The attempted use by a justice of the peace of a notice, instead of a citation, to commence an action, is wholly without force or effect. Carpenter v. Anderson, 33 C. A. 484, 77 S. W. 291.

Art. 2324. [1601] [1571] Justice may depute person to serve process.—The justice of the peace may, in case of an emergency, depute any person of good character to serve any process; and the person so deputed shall, for such purpose, have all the authority of a sheriff or constable; but in every such case the justice shall indorse on the process a statement in writing, signed by him officially, to the effect that he has deputed such person to serve such process; and such person shall also take and subscribe an affidavit, to be indorsed on or attached to the process, to the effect that he will, to the best of his ability, execute the same according to law. [Id.]

Art. 2325. [1602] [1572] Rules of district courts, etc., govern as to issuance and service of process.—All the rules governing the issuance and service and the return of citations, issued out of the district and county courts, and providing for acceptance of service, and entering appearance, shall, except where otherwise provided by law, govern also the justices' courts, in so far as they can be applied to the proceedings of said court. [Id.]

Appearance.—An appearance by an attorney is insufficient to support a personal judgment against a non-resident served with process without the state. Schneider v. Gray, 26 S. W. 640, 7 C. A. 25.

That a justice's citation to a defendant was insufficient or improperly served was immaterial where he appeared and pleaded. Hillsman v. Cline (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 726.

Service of citation—Publication.—Under this article and Arts. 240, 2308, 2370, service may be obtained by publication in suits instituted in the court of a justice of the peace, under the same rules and restrictions that apply in district courts. Davis v. Robinson, 70 T. 394, 7 S. W. 749.

Under this article justices of the peace are authorized to issue citation to be served by publication. Brown v. Dutton, 38 C. A. 294, 85 S. W. 456.

—— Time of publication.—To effect service by publication the citation must be published and should be made for full 28 days, once in each week for four successive weeks. Davis v. Robinson, 70 T. 394, 7 S. W. 749.

Non-residents, service on.—The notice provided for in Art. 1869 for service on non-residents in district and county courts is not a citation, and service on non-residents cannot be gotten by serving such notices on them in cases in the justice court. Carpenter v, Anderson, 33 C. A. 484, 77 S. W. 293.

CHAPTER NINE

PLEADINGS

Article 2326. [1603] [1573] Pleadings oral but entered on docket.—The pleadings in the justices' courts shall be oral, except where otherwise specially provided; but a brief statement thereof may be noted on the docket. [Id. secs. 5, 12.]

Pleading, in general.—The rules applicable to formal written pleadings in the district and county courts have no application in proceedings in the justice's court. Formal pleadings are dispensed with. Where there is no exception to the claim or account of the plaintiff, evidence will not be excluded on account of the generality of the statements therein. I. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Philips, 63 T. 590.

The fullness and particularity required in written pleadings are not necessary in the oral statements in the justice's court. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Donalson, 2 App. C. C. § 239; T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Wright, 2 App. C. C. § 339; T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Miller, 1 App. C. C. § 262; Whitley v. Jackson, 1 App. C. C. § 576; Henry v. Blasco, 1 App. C. C. § 765; Kerr v. Murrell, 1 App. C. C. § 891; Mensing v. Ayres, 2 App. C. C. § 562; Brunswig v. Kramer, 2 App. C. C. § 804.

Pleadings in justice's court and on appeal may be oral. Mensing v. Ayres, 2 App. C. C. § 562.

Technical rules of pleading do not apply to the manner of forming issues in the justice court in ordinary suits. Railway Co. v. Anderson, 85 T. 88, 19 S. W. 1025.

The form of an account will not prejudice the rights of the plaintiff as disclosed by the evidence. Sanger v. Noonan (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 1056.

Where plaintiff undertakes to plead, and states issues on which he relies, he is confined to his pleading. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Red Cross Stock Farm, 22 C. A. 114, 53 S. W. 834.

A statement in justice court held to sufficiently charge that the services rendered by plaintiff were for the benefit of the separate property of defendant, a married woman. Evans v. Gray, 38 C. A. 442, 86 S. W. 375.

A pleading in justice's court, though in writing, need not be more specific than if the case had been tried on oral statements of the cause of action. Howard v. Fabj, 42 C. A. 42, 93 S. W. 225.

In an action in justice's court, the omission of an allegation from an oral statement of the cause of action held not to necessarily make the statement subject to demurrer. Postal Telegraph Co. of Texas v. L. W. Levy & Co. (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 134.

The effect of this article is that no rule is prescribed except that the statement which may be made by the parties shall be oral and may be entered on the docket by the justice of the peace. The form in which the cause of action or ground of defense is stated is of no importance. If from all that is stated oral or written, the court can ascertain what right the plaintiff asserts, or what defense the defendant interposes, the pleading is sufficient. Rector v. Orange Rice Mill Co., 100 T. 591, 102 S. W. 403.

In an action before a justice against a carrier for injury to goods in transit, the oral pleadings held not to present the question as to delay or improper handling of the car. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Welbourne (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 780.

A statement filed in justice's court held to sufficiently show that defendant obstructed the waters in a water course. Batla v. Goodell, 53 C. A. 178, 115 S. W. 622.

If from all that is stated, written and oral, the court can ascertain what right the plaintiff asserts, or what defense the defendant interposes, the pleading will be held sufficient. Id.

A pleading in justice's court which asks a specific and definite relief, held not to support a judgment granting different relief. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Eastern Texas Ry. Co., 57 C. A. 488, 122 S. W. 972.

The rules of pleading applicable to cases originating in district and county courts do not apply to cases in justices' courts, and, though the parties may replead in the county court on appeal, the pleadings may be oral and need not be as specific as when the case originates in the county court. Barnes v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 610.

In an action in justice court, allegations of special damages held sufficient. Wichita Falls & W. Ry. Co. v. Pigg (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 669.

Technical rules of pleading do not apply to causes originating in and appealed from the justice's court. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 294.

—— Petition or complaint.—In a suit against a railroad company it is not necessary that the plaintiff should allege that defendant "was a corporation duly incorporated." T. & P. R. R. Co. v. Miller, 1 App. C. C. § 262.

In a suit by attachment it is not necessary that the pleadings of the plaintiff should be in writing. Henry v. Blasco, 1 App. C. C. § 765.

In a suit against an indorser upon a note it is not necessary that the citation should state that the principal maker of the note was dead, insolvent or a nonresident of the state. Kerr v. Murrell, 1 App. C. C. § 891.

If the language of a written complaint filed in justice's court is insufficient, it may be supplemented by oral pleadings. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Funk, 42 C. A. 490, 92 S. W. 1032.

A pleading in a justice's court, which asks a specific and definite relief without any prayer for general relief, does not support a judgment granting different relief from that asked, though a pleading in justice's court need not be as definite and specific as in courts in which written pleadings are required. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Eastern Texas Ry. Co., 57 C. A. 488, 122 S. W. 972.

A petition, in an action begun in a justice's court on a building contractor's bond, held to state a cause of action as against specified objections. Caldwell v. Concho Building & Loan Ass'n (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 625.

Under this article a statement of a cause of action in justice's court for damages resulting during the construction of a railroad by defendant on plaintiff's premises, which states the items of damages in the form of an account, is sufficient to state a cause of action. Wichita Falls & W. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hamman (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 942.

—— Plea or answer.—Payment or settlement of account sued on may be pleaded orally. Whitley v. Jackson, 1 App. C. C. § 576.

Defendant may offer evidence that the account sued on is not due without pleading such defense in writing. Low v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 73.

An answer in a justice court which states facts needing nothing more than a formal statement is good as against a general demurrer. Harris v. Pinckney (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 38.

In an action before a justice a plea in reconvention for breach of guaranty held to sufficiently state a cause of action. Times Pub. Co. v. Hill, 36 C. A. 389, 81 S. W. 806.

The answer of a carrier sued in justice's court for injury to a shipment of stock held not to support a judgment in its favor against another carrier. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Eastern Texas Ry. Co., 57 C. A. 488, 122 S. W. 972.

Even in a justice court, defendant, relying on a special defense, as waiver of a provision of the contract sued on, must in some way raise it by his pleadings. Southwestern Portland Cement Co. v. O. D. Havard Co. (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 656.

—— Conclusiveness of written plea.—A defendant in justice's court need not file a written pleading; but, where he does, he is bound by the allegations thereof. Houston, E. & W. T. Ry. Co. v. Eastern Texas Ry. Co., 57 C. A. 488, 122 S. W. 972.

Docket entry of pleadings—Necessity and sufficiency.—This article does not dispense with the necessity of forming, in some way, the issue to be tried, a brief statement of which should be noted on the magistrate's docket; therefore, when the record shows affirmatively that there were no pleadings made by the defendant in a suit for a debt before a justice of the peace, it was error on appeal to hear evidence of payment. It seems that the record would be sufficient to show the pleadings, if there appear therein the brief statement required by the statute, either from the transcript of the justice's docket or that of the county court, or by entry on the minutes of the latter court, either independent of or in the judgment itself. Moore v. Jordan, 67 T. 394, 3 S. W. 317.

The docket entry of pleadings in a justice court need only state sufficient facts to inform the opposite party what issues will be raised. Melton v. Katzenstein (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 173.

—— Noting written pleadings.—When the pleadings are in writing, it is not necessary that a statement of the same should be noted on the docket. Whittington v. Eppstein, 3 App. C. C. § 369; Railway Co. v. Hays, 23 S. W. 443, 4 C. A. 88.

—— Presumptions.—Where an account is filed and an entry of the nature of the claim is made upon the docket, it will not be presumed that sufficient oral pleadings were not made. Railway Co. v. Anderson, 85 T. 88, 19 S. W. 1025.

—— Written answer.—When the entries on the docket do not show the defense, the written answer will be looked to. Silberberg v. Trilling, 82 T. 523, 18 S. W. 591.

Art. 2327. [1604] [1574] Pleadings to be in writing and under oath.—An answer or other pleading setting up any of the following matters shall be in writing and signed by the party or his attorney and verified by affidavit:

1. That the suit is not commenced in the proper county or precinct.
2. That the plaintiff has not legal capacity to sue.
3. That the plaintiff is not entitled to recover in the capacity in which he sues.
4. That there is another suit pending in this state between the same parties for the same cause of action or counter claim.
5. That there is a defect of parties plaintiff or defendant.
6. That the plaintiffs or defendants suing or sued as partners or receiver are not partners or receiver as alleged.
7. That the plaintiff or defendant suing or sued as a corporation is not a corporation as alleged.
8. That a written instrument purporting to be signed by him and relied on by the other party was not executed by him or by his authority.

9. That the indorsement or assignment of a written instrument pleaded by the adverse party was not executed by the party by whom it purports to have been executed, or by his authority.

10. That a written instrument pleaded by the adverse party is without consideration, or that the consideration of the same has failed, in whole or in part.

11. That an account pleaded by the adverse party, and duly verified by affidavit, as provided in article 3712, is not just; and, in such case, the answer shall set forth the items and particulars which are unjust.

12. That the contract sued upon is usurious. [Acts 1891, p. 85.]

Agency—Want of agent's authority.—The want of authority of an agent to execute the instrument sued on must be presented by a sworn plea. Railway Co. v. Wilson, 4 App. C. C. § 323, 19 S. W. 910.

Failure of consideration.—Evidence is not admissible under the plea of failure of consideration not verified. Machine Co. v. Slover, 4 App. C. C. § 236, 16 S. W. 105.

Denial of execution.—Evidence of alteration is admissible only under plea of non est factum. Bogarth v. Breedlove, 39 T. 561.

A receipt for money is only prima facie evidence of payment, and may be explained or contradicted by parol evidence, without a verified plea of non est factum. Hendricks v. Leopold, 4 App. C. C. § 301, 18 S. W. 638.

Defenses and waiver thereof.—Defenses which must be pleaded under oath are waived, if not pleaded in the justice's court. Engel v. Brown, 1 App. C. C. § 803.

Defendant need not plead in writing that an account was not due, to enable him to make such defense. Low v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 73.

Verification.—Action of justice of the peace in refusing to strike out a plea, which was verified after it was filed, held not error. Landa v. Mack (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 540.

A complaint in an action of forcible entry and detainer in a justice court held not insufficient to give the court jurisdiction by reason that no seal was attached to the jurat. Stacks v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 958.

Art. 2328. [1605] [1575] Pleadings amendable.—The pleadings may be amended in accordance with the rules governing amendments of pleadings in the district and county courts, so far as the same are applicable.

Amendments to pleadings—In general.—See Arts. 757–759.

Pleadings may be amended in the justice's court or in the county court on appeal. Cullers v. Wilson, 2 App. C. C. § 81; Railway Co. v. Wright, 2 App. C. C. § 339; Green v. Malone, 2 App. C. C. § 466; Hodges v. Peacock, 2 App. C. C. § 824. See Arts. 356–358.

Where a justice did not have jurisdiction of a claim, the filing of an amendment bringing the claim within his jurisdiction is the institution of a new suit. Ball v. Hagy (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 915.

In justice's court it was proper to permit plaintiff to file an amended account by which a sum was added to the original account. Davidson v. McCall Co. (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 32.

Amendment of the statement of a cause of action sued on by a partnership to correct error in suing in the firm name does not set up a new cause of action. Amarillo Commercial Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 377.

Amendment on appeal.—See notes under Chapter 17.

CHAPTER TEN

CONTINUANCE

Article 2329. [1606] [1576] Cause may be continued, etc.—Any justice of the peace may, for good cause shown, supported by affidavit, continue any suit pending before him to the next regular term of his court, or postpone the same to some other day of the term. [Id. sec. 11.]

Effect of agreement to continue.—A plea in abatement filed in the justice's court and sustained is not waived in the county court by an agreement to continue. Howeth v. Clark, 4 App. C. C. § 315, 19 S. W. 433.

That the court ignoring an agreement of counsel to postpone the hearing of a case rendered judgment in contravention thereof held not sufficient reason for setting aside the judgment. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Shields, 56 C. A. 7, 120 S. W. 222.

Effect of previous continuances.—On appeal to the county court, previous continuances had in the justice's court before appeal will be considered in determining its sufficiency. Heidenheimer v. Bledsoe, 1 App. C. C. § 318.

Waiver of citation.—An appearance by defendant in justice's court to obtain a continuance, and actually obtaining a continuance, is a waiver of the issuance and service of citation. Chance v. Pace (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 843.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

APPEARANCE AND TRIAL

Article 2330. [1607] [1577] Appearance day.—The first day of each term of the justice's court after the return of process duly served in any cause shall be appearance day; but where the service was made by publication the first day of the second term after such publication shall be appearance day. [Id. sec. 18.]

Appearance day.—Where service is by publication, the first day of the second term thereafter is appearance day. Irion v. Bexar County, 26 C. A. 527, 63 S. W. 551.

Art. 2331. [1608] [1578] Proceedings where defendant fails to appear.—If the defendant who has been duly served with a citation shall fail to appear at, or before, ten o'clock a. m., on appearance day, the justice shall proceed in the following manner:

1. If the plaintiff's cause of action be liquidated and proved by an instrument of writing purporting to have been executed by the defendant, or be upon an open account duly verified by affidavit, the justice shall, whether the plaintiff appear or not, render judgment in his favor against the defendant for the amount of such written obligation or sworn account, after deducting all credits indorsed thereon.

2. If the plaintiff's cause of action is not so liquidated, and the plaintiff appears in person or by agent or attorney, the justice shall proceed to hear the testimony; and, if it shall appear therefrom that the plaintiff is entitled to recover, judgment shall be rendered against the defendant for such amount as the testimony shows the plaintiff entitled to; otherwise, judgment shall be rendered for the defendant. [Id. sec. 18.]

General denial by operation of law.—The law interposes a general denial for the defendant when he does not appear in person. White v. Johnson, 24 S. W. 568, 5 C. A. 480.

Appearance of counsel.—Certain facts held to constitute an appearance of counsel and to be tantamount to an acceptance of service or waiver thereof. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Shields, 56 C. A. 7, 120 S. W. 222.

Art. 2332. [1609] [1579] Appearance noted.—If the defendant appear, the same shall be noted on the docket, and the cause shall stand for trial in its order.

Art. 2333. [1610] [1580] Jury trial may be demanded.—Either party may demand a jury as hereinafter provided. [Const., art. 1, sec. 15.]

Constitution of jury.—See Title 75, Chapter 12.

Art. 2334. [1611] [1581] Court shall try case, when.—If neither party shall demand, and be entitled to, a jury trial, the cause shall be tried by the justice without a jury. [Id.]

Art. 2335. [1612] [1582] Call of the non-jury docket.—The docket of cases to be tried by the justice shall be called regularly; and the cases shall be tried when called, unless the same should be continued or postponed to some later period in the term. [Id. sec. 41. R. S. 1879, 1582.]

Art. 2336. [1613] [1583] Plaintiff failing to appear may be non-suited.—If the plaintiff shall fail to appear when the cause is called in its order for trial, the justice may, on motion of the defendant, dismiss the suit. [Id. sec. 18.]

Failure to appear—Restraining default judgment.—To an action on a note defendant interposed the statute of limitation. Failing to appear at the trial, execution of a default judgment will not be restrained. Ivey v. McConnel (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 403.

—— Misleading plaintiff as to time for return of service.—Justice's judgment will not be sustained where he misled plaintiff as to the time when service was returnable and disposed of the case in his absence. Odom v. Carmona (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 1100.

Art. 2337. [1614] [1584] Proceedings, evidence, etc., to conform to rules governing district courts, etc.—Upon a trial before the justice, the proceedings shall conform as near as may be to the rules governing the district and county courts; and all the rules of evidence and the provisions for procuring the attendance of witnesses, for taking the depositions of witnesses and parties, and for taking and determining the exceptions thereto, prescribed for the government of the district and county courts, shall, when not in conflict with the provisions of this title, govern the proceedings in justices' courts, so far as the same may be applicable. [Id. secs. 14, 16.]

Remedy of defendant.—The purpose in bringing separate suits for damages against a railway was to deprive the company of appeal by suing in each case for an amount under the appellate jurisdiction. Such fact did not authorize injunction against such suits, as the company had the right to consolidate the cases and appeal from an adverse judgment. Railway Co. v. Bacon, 21 S. W. 783, 3 C. A. 55.

Stipulations of parties.—Oral agreements by parties made with consent of the court are binding upon them. Their violation by one party and the court, injuring the other party, is a wrong of which courts will take notice on his complaint. Railway Co. v. King, 80 T. 681, 16 S. W. 641.

Art. 2338. [1615] [1585] Judgment on trial without jury.—After hearing the evidence, the justice trying the case without a jury shall give judgment for the party who may appear to be justly entitled thereto. [Id. sec. 11.]

CHAPTER TWELVE

TRIAL BY JURY

Article 2339. [1616] [1586] Jury trial may be demanded.—Either party to any suit in the justice's court shall be entitled to a trial by jury, upon making demand therefor and complying with the provisions of this chapter relating thereto. [Act Aug. 17, 1876, p. 159, sec. 11.]

Right to jury trial.—A defendant who has filed a plea in abatement is entitled to a jury when demanded. Howeth v. Clark, 4 App. C. C. § 315, 19 S. W. 433.

Constitution of jury.—See Title 75, Chapter 12.

Art. 2340. [1617] [1587] Time of demand and deposit of jury fee.—Either party desiring a jury shall, on or before the first day of the term at which the case is to be tried, make a demand for a jury, which shall be noted by the justice in his docket; and shall also deposit a jury fee of three dollars, which shall also be noted on the docket; and the case shall be set down as a jury case.

Art. 2341. [1618] [1588] Jury trial day to be fixed.—The justice shall, on the first day of the term, fix a day for taking up the jury cases, if any, pending for trial at such term, and he may fix said first day of the term for that purpose.

Art. 2342. [1619] [1589] Summons for jury to be issued, when, etc.—Whenever at any term of a justice's court there may be any jury cases pending for trial, it shall be the duty of the justice to issue a writ directed to the sheriff or any constable of the county, commanding him to summon six legally qualified jurors, or a greater number, should the justice deem it necessary, to attend as a jury before such justice at a day and place to be named in the writ.

Art. 2343. [1620] [1590] Oath to sheriff, etc., summoning jury.—The justice, on delivering such writ to the officer, shall administer to him the following oath: "You do solemnly swear that you will, to the best of your skill and ability, and without bias or favor toward any party, summon such jurors as may be ordered by the court; that you will select none but impartial, sensible and sober men, having the qualifications of jurors under the law; that you will not, directly or indirectly, converse or communicate with any juryman touching any case pending for trial; and that you will not, by any means, attempt to influence, advise or control any juryman in his opinion in any case which may be tried by him. So help you God." [Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 80, sec. 12.]

Art. 2344. [1621] [1591] Duty of the officer.—The officer receiving such writ shall immediately proceed to execute the command thereof by summoning the required number of jurors to appear before the justice at the day and place named in the writ.

Art. 2345. [1622] [1592] Summons to juror, how served.—Such summons shall be by an oral notice by the officer to the juror that he is required to appear as a juror before such justice at the day and place named.

Art. 2346. [1623] [1593] Venire of jurors to be called.—At the time fixed for taking up the jury cases, the justice shall proceed to call the names of the jurors so summoned.

Art. 2347. [1624] [1594] Excuses for juror.—The court may hear any reasonable excuse of a juror, supported by oath or affirmation, and may excuse him for the trial of any particular case, or for one or more days of the term.

Art. 2348. [1625] [1595] Defaulting jurors to be fined.—When any person, so summoned as a juror, shall fail or refuse to attend, it shall be the duty of the justice to enter a fine nisi against him for an amount not exceeding five dollars, to the use of the county, to be made final, with costs, unless such person shall, after being cited to do so, show some good and sufficient excuse for such failure, to be judged of by the justice.

Art. 2349. [1626] [1596] Other jurors to be summoned when necessary.—If the number of jurors present and not excused be less than six, or less than the justice shall deem necessary, he shall order the sheriff or constable to summon a sufficient number of others, having like qualifications, to make up the required number.

Art. 2350. [1627] [1597] Call of jury docket.—When the required number of jurors is present, the jury cases shall be called in their order on the docket.

Art. 2351. [1628] [1598] Challenge to the array, when.—When the parties to a jury case have announced themselves ready for trial, either party may challenge the array of jurors.

Art. 2352. [1629] [1599] Challenge to the array, how made, and proceedings therein.—The cause of such challenge and the manner of making it, and the decision thereof, and the proceedings, when such challenge is sustained, shall be as provided for similar proceedings in the district and county courts in the title "Juries."

Art. 2353. [1630] [1600] Drawing jury.—If no challenge to the array is made, the justice shall write the name of all the jurors present on separate slips of paper, as nearly alike as may be, and shall place them in a box and mix them well, and shall then draw the names one by one from the box, and write them down as they are drawn, upon several slips of paper, and deliver one slip to each of the parties, or their attorneys. [Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 82, sec. 22.]

Art. 2354. [1631] [1601] Challenge for cause.—If either party desires to challenge any juror for cause, such challenge shall now be made. [Id.]

Art. 2355. [1632] [1602] Challenge for cause, proceedings on, same as in district court, etc.—The causes of such challenge, and the manner of making it, and the decision thereof, and the proceedings, when such challenge is sustained, shall be as provided for similar proceedings in the district and county courts.

Art. 2356. [1633] [1603] Peremptory challenges, when and how made.—When a juror has been challenged for cause, his name shall be erased from the slips furnished to the parties; and, if there be remaining on such slips as many as six names, the parties shall proceed to make their peremptory challenges, if they desire to make any, which shall be governed by the same rules as are prescribed for the district and county courts.

Art. 2357. [1634] [1604] The jury.—When the parties have made their peremptory challenges, or when they decline to make any, they shall deliver their slips to the justice, who shall call off the first six names on the slips that have not been erased, who shall constitute the jury to try the case. The jurors not called shall retire.

Art. 2358. [1635] [1605] When jury is left incomplete.—Where, by peremptory challenges, the jury is left incomplete, the justice shall direct the sheriff or constable to summon others to complete the jury; and the same proceedings shall be had in selecting and impaneling such jurors as are had in the first instance. [Act Aug. 1, 1876, p. 82, sec. 22.]

Art. 2359. [1636] [1606] Jurors to be sworn.—When the jury has been selected, such of them as have not been previously sworn for the trial of civil cases shall be sworn by the justice.

Art. 2360. [1637] [1607] Oath of jurors.—The form of the oath shall be in substance as follows: "You and each of you do solemnly swear that, in all cases between parties which shall be to you submitted, you will a true verdict render, according to the law and the evidence. So help you God." [P. D. 3984.]

Art. 2361. [1638] [1608] Mode of proceeding on trial before jury same as in district courts, etc.—The mode of proceeding on the trial before the jury shall be the same, so far as applicable, as is prescribed for the district and county courts in the chapters relating thereto, except that the justice shall not deliver any charge to the jury.

Art. 2362. [1639] [1609] Verdict for specific articles, to assess their value separately.—Where the suit is for the recovery of specific articles, the jury shall, if they find for the plaintiff, assess the value of each of such articles separately, according to the proof. [Act Aug. 17, 1876, p. 163, sec. 19.]

Art. 2363. [1640] [1610] Pay of jurors.—Before the verdict is rendered, the justice shall pay to each juror fifty cents out of the jury fee deposited in the case.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

THE JUDGMENT

Article 2364. [1641] [1611] Judgment upon verdict of jury.—Where the case has been tried by a jury and a verdict has been returned by them, the justice shall announce the same in open court and note it in his docket, and shall proceed to render judgment thereon.

Time of entering judgment.—The justice has power to enter a judgment disposing of the case after the lapse of one or more terms. Young v. Pfeiffer (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 94.

Necessity of judgment to appeal.—In a suit in the justice's court, where the jury returned a verdict and no judgment was rendered thereon, the record reciting that the plaintiff appealed from said verdict, the appeal must be dismissed for lack of a judgment, for this article and Arts. 2366 and 2373 necessitate the rendition of a judgment as a condition precedent to an appeal. Hollinger v. Hancock (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 238.

Art. 2365. [1642] [1612] Case tried without a jury, decision in open court.—When the case has been tried by the justice without a jury, he shall announce his decision in open court and note the same in his docket, and shall proceed to render judgment thereon. [Id. sec. 17.]

Cited, Lewis v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1197.

Art. 2366. [1643] [1613] Judgment.—The judgment shall be recorded at length in the justice's docket, and shall be signed by such justice. It shall clearly state the determination of the rights of the parties in the subject matter of controversy and the party who shall pay the costs, and shall direct the issuance of such process as may be necessary to carry the judgment into execution.

Time of rendition.—A judgment rendered at a time other than when by law a regular term of the court could be held is void. Braidfoot v. Taylor, 1 App. C. C. § 174.

Failure to enter judgment—Remedy.—When a final judgment in a justice's court is in fact rendered, but the proper entry is not made, the case is within the appellate jurisdiction of the county court, and the district court is without jurisdiction to compel the justice to enter judgment. Winstead v. Evans (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 580.

Amendment of judgment.—A defective judgment, not disposing of the case as to all parties, may be amended at a subsequent term. Young v. Pfeiffer (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 94. Railway Co. v. Gill, 9 C. A. 139, 28 S. W. 911.

A justice cannot correct a judgment for costs after 10 days from its rendition. Parker v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1031.

—— Correction of clerical errors.—Clerical errors in the judgment entry may be corrected. Railway Co. v. Gill, 9 C. A. 139, 28 S. W. 911.

Execution as part of judgment.—Under the statutes in force in 1875 it was not necessary that a justice of the peace should award execution as a part of the judgment for debt in order to authorize the issuance of execution. The writ issued on the judgment without reference being made thereto, and when the judgment was against an independent executor, the fact that by its terms it required the amount to be recovered paid in due course of administration was immaterial. Its payment could be enforced by execution issuing after the adoption of the Revised Statutes, if the judgment was rendered prior to that time. Roberts v. Connellee, 71 T. 11, 8 S. W. 626. See Vogt v. Dorsey, 85 T. 90, 19 S. W. 1033.

—— Failure to direct execution.—The provision of this article requiring the judgment to direct the issuance of execution is merely directory, and the judgment is not void merely because it fails to direct the issuance of process. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Garrett, 42 C. A. 258, 92 S. W. 1040.

Final judgment—requisites of.—See Arts. 1994–2011, 2373.

To constitute a final judgment it must clearly state that the plaintiff should take nothing by his suit against the defendant, and that the defendant should have and recover of the plaintiff the costs of the suit. Giersa v. Yocum, 1 App. C. C. § 310. See Horton v. McKeehan, 1 App. C. C. § 467.

A final judgment must dispose of the case as to all of the parties and the whole matter in controversy. Wheeler v. Davis, 3 App. C. C. § 13; Taylor v. Pridgen, 3 App. C. C. § 89; Lay v. Bellinger, 1 App. C. C. § 23; Martin v. Coon, 28 T. 614; Simpson v. Bennett, 42 T. 241; Bradford v. Taylor, 64 T. 171; Railway Co. v. Railway Co., 68 T. 99, 3 S. W. 564; Rodrigues v. Trevino, 54 T. 201; Linn v. Armbould, 55 T. 618; Whitaker v. Gee, 61 T. 217; White v. Smith, 4 App. C. C. § 225, 15 S. W. 1111; Railway Co. v. Stephenson (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 236; Winstead v. Evans (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 580.

A judgment of a justice dismissing a suit for failure to give security for costs is a final judgment. Fuerman v. Ruchle, 4 App. C. C. § 81, 16 S. W. 536.

A judgment is not final when a cross-demand for affirmative relief is not disposed of. Clopton v. Herring (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 1104.

Judgment entered by a justice of the peace in an action where a plea in reconvention is filed, examined, and held to be final as to both parties. Lewis v. Smith (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 294.

Void judgments—What are.—Where a judgment failed to dispose of two of the co-defendants, the case should be redocketed on its merits, treating the judgment as a nullity. Uher et al. v. Cameron State Bank (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 321.

The fact that the law did not authorize a recovery of a sum as attorney's fees held not to deprive a justice's court of jurisdiction so as to make its judgment, awarding attorney's fees, void. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Lunn (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 538.

—— Remedy for.—When a judgment is void and the time has elapsed for appeal or certiorari, the proper remedy of the party affected by the judgment is to move, in the justice's court that rendered it, to set aside any execution that may have been issued on it, and from the judgment of the justice upon that motion an appeal would lie. Lackie v. Bramlett, 1 App. C. C. § 1130.

Justice's liability for enforcing void judgment.—Where a justice of the peace renders a void judgment in a forcible entry and detainer case and issues writ of restitution, he is liable for damages that accrue in enforcing the writ. Stacks v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 961.

Transcript or abstract of judgment.—See, also, Title 86, Chapter 1.

In considering the validity of a judgment rendered by a justice of the peace, it is not necessary that the transcript should show everything prerequisite to the attaching of jurisdiction. Williams v. Ball, 52 T. 608, 36 Am. Rep. 730, followed. Hance v. Galveston Wharf Co., 70 T. 115, 8 S. W. 76.

Nonsuit as a bar.—A mere judgment of nonsuit will not constitute a bar to a further proceeding by a plaintiff who has suffered it. Keller v. J. M. Radford Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 888.

Art. 2367. [1644] [1614] Costs.—The successful party in the suit shall recover his costs, except in cases where it is otherwise expressly provided. [Id. secs. 11, 14.]

Art. 2368. [1645] [1615] Judgment for specific articles.—Where judgment is for the recovery of specific articles, their value shall be separately assessed, and the judgment shall be that the plaintiff recover such specific articles, if they can be found, and if not, then their value as assessed, with interest thereon at the rate of six per cent from the date of the judgment. [Id. sec. 19.]

In general.—Where one sues for recovery of property, and in the alternative for its value if property is not returned, the measure of damages is its value at time of trial, or where there is a writ of restitution at time of refusal to comply with the writ. Nolan v. Sevine, 36 C. A. 489, 81 S. W. 991.

Art. 2369. [1646] [1616] Court may, in certain cases, enforce judgment by attachment, fine, etc.—The court shall cause its judgments to be carried into execution, and where the judgment is for personal property, and the verdict, if any, that such property has an especial value to the plaintiff, the court may award a special writ for the seizure and delivery of such property to the plaintiff, and may, in addition to the other relief granted in such case, enforce its judgment by attachment, fine and imprisonment. [Act May 11, 1846, p. 200, sec. 17. P. D. 1420.]

Art. 2370. [1647] [1617] No judgment without citation, unless.—No judgment, other than judgment by confession, shall be rendered by the justice of the peace against any party who has not entered an appearance or accepted service, unless such party has been cited either personally or by publication, or been served by the notice to serve a non-resident provided for in article 1869 of these statutes; which said article 1869 is now made applicable to the justices courts. [Acts 1876, p. 163. Acts 1870, p. 87. Acts 1909, p. 89. P. D. 6341.]

Service of citation—Presumption of service.—When a judgment contains no recital or notice, valid service will be presumed. Hambel v. Davis (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 251.

—— Admissibility of parol evidence of want of service.—When a judgment contains no recital or notice, parol evidence is inadmissible to show want of service. Hambel v. Davis (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 251. See, also, notes under Art. 3687.

—— Non-resident—Judgment against on substituted service.—This article not only prescribes, but limits, the cases in which a justice may render judgment. He cannot render judgment against a non-resident where service has been had by notice as provided in Art. 1869, for district and county courts. Carpenter v. Anderson, 33 C. A. 484, 77 S. W. 293.

—— Judgment without service.—A justice's judgment rendered without jurisdiction over the person of the judgment debtor is void. Withers v. Linden (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 1117.

A judgment by a justice of the peace without service of citation was void, and the defendant was entitled to have it annulled. Board v. Adams (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 685.

Default judgment on service by publication.—Failure of a justice's judgment, which was rendered by default upon citation by publication, to show that no attorney was appointed to represent defendant does not warrant a finding that no appointment was made. Rule v. Richards (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1073.

Collateral attack.—A default judgment of a justice of the peace cannot be collaterally attacked because it does not recite that defendant had been cited.—Tucker v. Pennington (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 313.

A justice's judgment, reciting that defendant had been legally cited and that he appeared by attorney under appointment of the court, held not subject to collateral attack on the ground of fraud in the service of citation and in defendant's appearance. Scudder v. Cox, 35 C. A. 416, 80 S. W. 872.

Where, in a suit in justice court on an account against a minor, plaintiff fails to appear, and the justice hears the case on the merits and determines that minority is a defense and that plaintiff take nothing, the defense of minority was established and could be pleaded in bar of another suit, whether the judge was in error in not dismissing the suit on plaintiff's failure to appear or not, since a judgment of a court on the merits having jurisdiction of the parties and subject-matter is conclusive in a collateral attack. Keller v. J. M. Radford Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 888.

Judgment rendered in justice's court by default on citation by publication is not void and subject to collateral attack for nonappointment of an attorney to represent defendant. Rule v. Richards (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 1073.

Art. 2371. [1648] [1618] Confession of judgment.—Any party may appear in person, or by an agent or attorney, before any justice of the peace, without the issuance or service of process, and confess judgment for any amount within the jurisdiction of the justice's courts; and such judgment shall be entered on the justice's docket, as in other cases; but, in such cases, the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, shall make and file an affidavit in writing, signed by him, to the justness of his claim. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 2372. [1649] [1619] Warrant of attorney to be filed.—Where such judgment is confessed by an agent or attorney, the warrant of attorney shall be filed with the justice and noted in the judgment. [P. D. 1477.]

Art. 2373. [1650] [1620] Same rules as govern district courts, etc.—The rules governing the district and county courts in relation to judgments shall apply also to the justices' courts, in so far as they may not conflict with some provisions of this title. [R. S. 1879, 1620.]

In general.—Great liberality and indulgence has been extended to judgments of justices of the peace. Clay v. Clay, 7 T. 251; Wahrenberger v. Horan, 18 T. 57; Roberts v. Connellee, 71 T. 11, 8 S. W. 626; Davis v. Rankin, 50 T. 279; Williams v. Ball, 52 T. 603, 36 Am. Rep. 730; Davis v. Bargas, 12 C. A. 59, 33 S. W. 548.

Presumption of jurisdictional allegations.—In the absence of anything to show what was pleaded in an action in justice's court, it will be presumed in a collateral action that proper allegations were made to give the court jurisdiction. Slaughter v. American Baptist Publication Society (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 224.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

NEW TRIALS, ETC.

Article 2374. [1651] [1621] Judgments by default, etc., may be set aside.—Any justice of the peace shall have power, at any time within ten days after the rendition of a judgment by default or of dismissal, to set aside such judgment, on motion in writing, for good cause shown, supported by affidavit. Notice of such motion shall be given to the opposite party at least one full day prior to the hearing thereof. [Id. sec. 19.]

See, Carter v. Grigsby, 1 App. C. C. § 347.

In general.—Circumstances held such that a default judgment against a defendant in justice court should be set aside. Mistrot Bros. & Co. v. Wilson, 41 C. A. 160, 91 S. W. 870.

A justice of the peace who rendered judgment by default for plaintiff held to have power on one the same day, without notice to plaintiff and on defendant's verbal motion, to set aside the default. Cohen v. Moore, 101 T. 45, 104 S. W. 1053.

Injunction in lieu of motion for new trial.—Where a party fails to pursue his remedy in the justice court, he is not entitled to an injunction to restrain the execution of a judgment obtained in said court. Sherman Steam Laundry Co. v. Carter, 24 C. A. 533, 60 S. W. 329.

Inherent powers of courts to control judgments during term.—This article and Arts. 2376, 2377 have no reference to the exercise of the power inherent in courts generally to control their judgments during the term. This power exists in justices' courts in this state, and there is no restriction by statute on its exercise, except, probably, it must take place within 10 days. Raley v. Sweeney, 24 C. A. 620, 60 S. W. 573.

Failure to give notice as irregularity.—The action of a justice of the peace in setting aside a judgment by default upon motion, while the attorney of opposite party is in court and has actual notice of the motion, and retrying the case at same term, while irregular, is not a nullity. F. H. Lummus Sons Co. v. Wade, 43 C. A. 302, 95 S. W. 18.

Vacating judgments for fraud.—A justice of the peace held to have jurisdiction of a petition in the nature of a bill of review to set aside a former judgment by default and hear the case on the merits, where the judgment debtor was prevented by fraud from defending; this article not applying to a proceeding in the nature of a new suit. Alvord Nat. Bank v. Waples-Platter Grocer Co., 54 C. A. 225, 118 S. W. 232.

A justice court has power as to matters within its jurisdiction, when seasonably presented to determine petitions in the nature of bills of review alleging sufficient cause to set aside judgments for fraud after the time has elapsed for making motion for new trial. Id.

Art. 2375. [1652] [1622] New trials may be granted.—Any justice of the peace may, at any time within ten days after the rendition of any other judgment in any suit tried before him, grant a new trial therein on motion in writing, showing that justice has not been done him in the trial of the cause. [Id. sec. 17.]

Authority to set aside judgment.—After the expiration of the term prescribed by the statute, the justice has no authority to set aside the judgment. Jones v. Collins, 70 T. 752, 8 S. W. 681; Carter v. Van Zandt Co., 75 T. 286, 12 S. W. 985; Odle v. Davis (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 721.

—— To correct judgment.—A justice of the peace cannot correct a judgment for costs after ten days from the date of its rendition. Parker v. Boyd (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1031.

—— To grant new trial.—A justice of the peace cannot grant a motion for a new trial after the term at which the case was tried has adjourned. This article does not mean that he may grant such motion after the term, but the motion must be granted during the term. First Nat. Bank v. Rowland, 45 C. A. 3, 99 S. W. 1044.

In garnishment proceedings before a justice, held, that new trial should have been granted on motion of the garnishee. Davis v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 393.

A justice held to have had power to set aside an order granting a new trial and to render judgment without again hearing the evidence. Jones v. Curtis, 56 C. A. 181, 120 S. W. 530.

Motion and notice.—Justice of the peace can grant new trial only on written motion and after notice to the opposite party. Smith v. Carroll, 28 C. A. 330, 66 S. W. 863.

A motion for a new trial, not filed in a justice's court until after adjournment of the term at which the case was tried, could not be acted on. Gulf, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 870.

Relief on granting new trial.—On granting a motion for a new trial in a case tried by the judge, he may set aside an erroneous judgment without rehearing the evidence and render a proper judgment. Taylor v. Gribble (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 765.

Art. 2376. [1653] [1623] Motion to be sworn to, except, etc.—If the grounds of the motion be other than that the verdict or judgment is contrary to the law or the evidence, or that the justice erred in some matter of law, the motion shall be supported by affidavit. [Id.]

Verification of motion.—A motion on the ground that the judgment is contrary to the law and evidence need not be sworn to. I. & G. N. R. R. Co. v. Pape, 1 App. C. C. § 241; Mills v. Hackett, 1 App. C. C. § 845.

Art. 2377. [1654] [1624] Notice.—All motions to set aside a judgment, or to grant a new trial, under the two preceding articles, shall be made within five days after the rendition of the judgment, and one day's notice thereof shall be given to the opposite party or his attorney. [Id. secs. 19, 17.]

Time of filing motion.—This article is controlled by Art. 2375 as to the time within which the motion shall be filed. Railway Co. v. Gill, 9 C. A. 139, 28 S. W. 911.

Written motion for new trial, placed with justice of the peace to be acted on, will be regarded as filed as of that time. Brooks v. Acker (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 800.

Time for consideration of motion for new trial.—Action of court overruling motion for new trial after expiration of term is unauthorized. Bond v. Rintleman, 24 C. A. 298, 59 S. W. 48.

A motion for new trial may be considered by a justice of the peace which is filed at any time within ten days after rendition of judgment. Davis v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 394.

Art. 2378. [1655] [1625] Where motion granted, cause continued, unless, etc.—Where a judgment is set aside, or a new trial is granted, the cause shall be continued to the next regular term of the court, unless otherwise agreed by the parties with the consent of the justice. [Id. sec. 17.]

Setting aside continuance.—A continuance can be set aside and the cause tried at the same term without notice, but such a proceeding is grossly irregular, and often unjust in its results, but it is within the jurisdiction and therefore not void. Cohen v. Moore, 101 T. 45, 104 S. W. 1054.

Art. 2379. [1656] [1626] But one new trial to either party.—But one such new trial shall be granted to either party. [Id.]

Number of new trials.—Justice of the peace can grant but one new trial to a party in one suit. Smith v. Carroll, 28 C. A. 330, 66 S. W. 863, 864.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

EXECUTION

Article 2380. [1657] [1627] Judgments enforced by execution, etc.—The judgments of the courts of justices of the peace shall be enforced by execution or other appropriate process.

Judgment supporting execution.—A judgment entered by a justice of the peace held sufficient to support an execution. Jones v. Curtis, 56 C. A. 181, 120 S. W. 530.

Execution—Validity after lapse of time for return.—Under this article and Arts. 2381, 2382, a writ of execution, after the lapse of time in which it is made returnable by law, is of no force; and the right of an officer, by virtue of the writ, to take and sell property ceases from the date the writ is returnable. Chance v. Pace (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 843.

Effect of absence of name of plaintiff.—The fact that an execution issued out of a justice court does not contain the name of plaintiff is a mere irregularity, which does not make it void. Collins v. Hines (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 360.

Execution after appeal.—See notes under Chapter 17.

Art. 2381. [1658] [1628] Execution.—Such execution or other process shall conform to the requirements of article 2321. It shall describe the judgment and shall require the sheriff or constable of the proper county to execute the same, according to its terms, whether the same be to make a sum of money, or to deliver personal property, or to deliver possession of real estate, or to do some other thing; and, if for money, it shall state the rate of interest; and it shall also require the officer to make the costs which may have been adjudged against the defendant in execution, and the further costs of executing the writ. A certified copy of the costs, taxed against the defendant in execution according to the fee book up to the issuance of the execution, shall be attached to the writ.

Execution—Validity after lapse of time for return.—Under this article and Arts. 2380, 2382, a writ of execution, after the lapse of time in which it is made returnable by law, is of no force; and the right of an officer, by virtue of the writ, to take and sell property ceases from the date the writ is returnable. Chance v. Pace (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 843.

Powers of constable.—The act of December 22, 1840, concerning executions, limited the power of a constable to act in civil cases except in cases of attachment to the beat to which he belongs, and a sale in 1841 by a constable, of land not lying in his beat, was void. Leland v. Wilson, 34 T. 79.

Art. 2382. [1659] [1629] Returnable in sixty days.—Such execution or other process shall be returnable in sixty days. [Id. sec. 22.]

Execution—Validity after lapse of time for return.—Under this article and Arts. 2380, 2381, a writ of execution, after the lapse of time in which it is made returnable by law, is of no force; and the right of an officer, by virtue of the writ, to take and sell property ceases from the date the writ is returnable. Chance v. Pace (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 843.

Art. 2383. [1660] [1630] Taxation of costs.—Within ten days after the rendition of any final judgment of the justice's court, it shall be the duty of the justice to tax up the costs in such suit, and to enter the same in his fee book.

Art. 2384. [1661] [1631] Execution to issue after ten days.—On the eleventh day after the rendition of any final judgment, if the case has not been appealed, and no stay of execution has been granted, it shall be the duty of the justice to issue an execution for the enforcement of such judgment and the collection of the costs. [Id. sec. 23.]

Execution—Time of issuance.—Where a judgment has been rendered, but not entered, an execution may be issued and the entry of the judgment made, perhaps, after the lapse of years by an order nunc pro tunc. But if no execution has been issued, and no entry of judgment made for more than ten years from date of rendition, it is not only dormant, but dead, and cannot be revived. Burns v. Skelton, 29 C. A. 453, 68 S. W. 527.

Art. 2385. [1662] [1632] Within the ten days, when.—Such execution may be issued at any time before the eleventh day, upon the filing of an affidavit by the plaintiff in the judgment, or his agent or attorney, to the effect that the defendant is about to remove his property out of the county, or is about to transfer or secrete his property for the purpose of defrauding his creditors. [Id.]

Execution—Requisites.—Where an execution is issued when the defendant is about "to remove his property out of the county," it is not necessary to state that it was for the purpose of defrauding his creditors. Clifford v. Lee (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 843.

Art. 2386. [1663] [1633] Issued to another county to be attested by clerk.—Where an execution from a justice's court is sent to a county other than that in which the judgment was rendered, it shall be accompanied by a certificate of the county clerk, and attested by his official signature and seal of office that the officer issuing the same is an acting justice of the peace in said county; and the cost of procuring such certificate shall be collected as a part of the costs of executing the writ. [Act Jan. 27, 1842, p. 51, sec. 13. P. D. 3784.]

Execution—Essentials of.—An execution issued by a justice of the peace to another county regular and valid was levied on property, but had to be returned before the property was sold. A venditioni exponas was issued by the same justice, but without the attestation of the county clerk of his official capacity. This was a substantial compliance with the statute. Dillard v. Stringfellow, 50 C. A. 410, 111 S. W. 769.

—— Issuance without certificate.—An execution issued without a certificate is not void. Earle v. Thomas, 14 T. 583; Hodde v. Susan, 58 T. 389.

—— Party entitled to object.—The objection to an execution because issued without a certificate can only be made by a party thereto. Earle v. Thomas, 14 T. 583; Hodde v. Susan, 58 T. 389.

Art. 2387. [1664] [1634] Dormant judgments, etc.—If no execution is issued within twelve months after the rendition of the judgment, the judgment shall become dormant, and no execution shall issue thereon, unless such judgment be revived; but where the first execution has issued within the twelve months, the judgment shall not become dormant unless ten years shall have elapsed between the issuance of executions thereon, and execution may issue at any time within ten years after the issuance of the preceding execution. [Act Nov. 9, 1866, p. 118, secs. 1, 3. P. D. 7005, 7007.]

Execution on dormant judgment.—Under this article and Art. 3717, the cause of action on a judgment on which execution had been issued within the 12 months would not accrue until 10 years after the issuance of the last valid execution, and the four-year limitations will start to run at that time, under Art. 5690, rather than under Art. 5696. Gale Mfg. Co. v. Dupree (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1048.

Under this article and Art. 3717, a dormant judgment is one on which execution was not issued within 12 months or one which has not been satisfied nor extinguished by lapse of time, but which has remained so long unexecuted that execution cannot now be issued upon it without first reviving the judgment, and a judgment upon which judgment was first issued within 12 months after its rendition still subsists after the lapse of 10 years from execution, being the same sort of judgment as one on which execution was not issued within 12 months, and no time being prescribed in which it can be revived, it is within Art. 5690, and so such dormant judgment is a cause of action within Art. 5702. Spiller v. Hollinger (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 338.

Art. 2388. [1665] [1635] The rules governing executions generally apply, except, etc.—The rules prescribed for the issuance, levy and return of executions shall apply to the justices' courts where not in conflict with some provision of this chapter. [Act Aug. 17, 1876, sec. 22.]

See Arts. 3714-3718.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

STAY OF EXECUTION

Article 2389. [1666] [1636] Stay of execution.—At any time within ten days after the rendition of any judgment in a court of a justice of the peace, such justice may grant a stay of execution thereon for three months from the date of such judgment, if the person against whom such judgment was rendered shall, with one or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the justice, appear before him and acknowledge themselves and each of them bound to the successful party in such judgment for the full amount thereof, with interest and costs, which acknowledgment shall be entered in writing on the docket, and signed by the persons binding themselves as sureties; provided, no such stay of execution shall be granted, unless the party applying therefor shall first file with the justice an affidavit in writing that he has not the money with which to pay such judgment, and that the enforcement of same by execution prior to three months would be a hardship upon him, and would cause a sacrifice of his property which would not likely be caused should said execution be stayed. [Acts 1887, p. 10.]

Art. 2390. [1667] [1637] Judgment and execution on.—Such acknowledgment shall be entered by the justice in his docket, and shall constitute a judgment against the defendant and such sureties, upon which execution shall issue in case the same is not paid on or before the expiration of such day. [Id.]

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

APPEAL

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes of decisions relating to appeal in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 2391. [1668] [1638] Appeal may be taken.—Any party to a final judgment in the justice's court may appeal therefrom to the county court where such judgment, or the amount in controversy, shall exceed twenty dollars exclusive of costs, and in such other cases as may be expressly provided by law. [Id. sec. 21.]

In general.—Appeals from justices' courts are governed by this article and Art. 2393. Art. 2097 is applicable only to appeals from the district and county courts. Allison v. Gregory, 4 App. C. C. § 62, 15 S. W. 416.

Appeal from amended judgment of justice held proper, though time for appealing from judgment as originally entered had expired. Gray v. Chapman (Cr. App.) 74 S. W. 564.

The county court on appeal from a justice's judgment held to acquire jurisdiction to render judgment against defendants. Rains v. Reasonover, 46 C. A. 290, 102 S. W. 176.

Appellate jurisdiction in general.—The statement in the body of the petition filed in the county court on appeal from a justice, and not the prayer for judgment, is the test by which the appellate jurisdiction is determined. Pecos & N. T. Ry. Co. v. Canyon Coal Co., 102 T. 478, 119 S. W. 294.

A judgment of a justice of the peace held to have the effect of a judgment rendered in an action, so that the county court on appeal had jurisdiction of the subject-matter. Moore v. Vogt (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 234.

Final judgments.—The original judgment disposing of a case becomes final on the expiration of ten days after its rendition, if a motion for a new trial has not been made. When a motion for a new trial is made, the judgment becomes final when such motion has been overruled. Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Houston Flour Mills, 2 App. C. C. § 573.

A judgment dismissing a suit is a final judgment from which an appeal may be taken. Howeth v. Clarke, 4 App. C. C. § 72, 16 S. W. 175.

In a justice court, where, after verdict against plaintiff, the justice adjudged that he pay costs, and awarded execution, held a final judgment, from which he might appeal. Dillard v. Allison (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1023.

A justice of the peace has jurisdiction to finally determine a plea of privilege, and his determination on conflicting evidence will not be reviewed. Jennings v. Shiner (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 276.

The action of a justice in granting a motion to set aside a part of the judgment held to set the entire judgment aside, so that there was no final judgment to support an appeal. Walker v. Mears, 28 C. A. 210, 67 S. W. 167.

A judgment of a justice held final and appealable, notwithstanding that it fails to pass upon a counterclaim exceeding its jurisdictional amount. Clark v. Smith, 29 C. A. 363, 68 S. W. 532.

A justice's judgment, sustaining a demurrer to plaintiff's evidence and rendering judgment for defendant for costs, without determining a cross-action filed by defendant, held not a final judgment, so as to sustain an appeal to the county court. Carothers v. Holloman, 33 C. A. 131, 75 S. W. 1084.

Where an appeal was taken to the county court from a justice's judgment, which was not final, the determination of the county court will be reversed on appeal to the court of civil appeals, without objection raised in the county court. Id.

Justice's judgment of dismissal and for costs held a final one, from which plaintiff was entitled to appeal to county court. Moore Mayfield Co. v. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co., 35 C. A. 607, 80 S. W. 881.

Where an appeal from a justice's court interlocutory judgment was entertained by the county court under the mistaken view that it was a final judgment, the county court's judgment was not void but merely irregular. Jennings v. Munden, 46 C. A. 520, 102 S. W. 945.

A justice's court judgment held to finally dispose of the controversy authorizing an appeal to the county court. Hightower v. Bennight, 53 C. A. 120, 115 S. W. 875.

The county court held not to get jurisdiction on appeal from a justice's court, which entered no final judgment. Brown v. McClendon, 56 C. A. 551, 121 S. W. 903.

A judgment in justice's court for plaintiff without disposing of defendant's plea in reconvention is not a final judgment within this article; a final judgment disposing of the entire matter in controversy. Sapp v. Anderson (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1068.

—— Record showing final judgment.—The record must show a final judgment. Carswell v. Crowther, 4 App. C. C. § 153, 16 S. W. 172; White v. Smith, 4 App. C. C. § 225, 15 S. W. 1111.

A transcript on appeal from a judgment of a justice court held to sufficiently show a final adjudication of the issues. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 566.

The record must affirmatively show a final judgment in justice's court before the county court has jurisdiction of an appeal, so that it should contain the transcript from the justice's court. Powell v. Hill (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 181.

Amount or value in controversy.—The county court has jurisdiction of an appeal by defendant against whom judgment has been rendered on a counterclaim for an amount above $20, though the amount sued for by the plaintiff was less than $20. Roberts v. McCamant, 70 T. 743, 8 S. W. 543.

Judgment of a justice's court was rendered against a garnishee for $19.65 and $3.40 costs, aggregating $23.05. This is within the appellate jurisdiction of the district court. Hubbard v. Vacher (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 921.

A plaintiff seeking to recover less than $20 may appeal from a judgment that he take nothing, and defendant go hence, where defendant's plea in reconvention was for $90. Schneider v. Luckie (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 685.

Where a replevy bond, made a part of the statement of a cause of action thereon, shows the value of the property replevied to be $110, such statement is sufficient to give the county court jurisdiction on appeal from a justice of the peace. Hail v. Tunstall, 21 C. A. 593, 54 S. W. 323.

The value of property replevied, as set out in a replevy bond, fixes the jurisdiction of the county court on appeal from a justice of the peace, and not the penalty of the bond on which the action is brought. Id.

In determining the jurisdiction of the county court on appeal from a justice, the amount of plaintiff's demand and defendant's counterclaim cannot be added together, but either must of itself exceed $20. Tucker v. Williams (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 585.

Action in justice court to recover $19.95 for the negligent killing of a dog held not appealable, though defendant pleaded in reconvention $125 damages; no evidence having been offered in support of the plea. Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Hooks, 30 C. A. 325, 70 S. W. 233.

Defendant, on appeal from justice's court, cannot increase sum demanded in reconvention to more than $20, so as to confer appellate jurisdiction on county court. Barnes v. Feagon (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 329.

A county court has no jurisdiction of an appeal by defendant from a justice's court, where the sum demanded by defendant in reconvention is less than $20. Id.

Amount in controversy at time of judgment in justice's court held to fix status of case as to appellate jurisdiction of county court. Id.

Where a party sued in the justice court for $180, and all the evidence showed that if entitled to recover at all he was entitled to recover the amount sued for, yet if he asked the court to render judgment for $110, which was done, he could appeal from this judgment. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Wheeler, 99 T. 428, 90 S. W. 482.

That a party claimed $24.95, but sued for only $19.70 in the justice court, held not a fraud on appellate jurisdiction of higher courts. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 746.

Where defendant in a suit in a justice court by a counterclaim increases the amount in controversy to a sum within the jurisdiction of the county court on appeal, but permits judgment against him by default, he abandons his counterclaim, and leaves in controversy only the original amount, and no appeal lies to the county court. McQueen v. McDaniel (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 219.

Though the amount in controversy when action was commenced in justice court did not exceed $200, and so was within the justice's jurisdiction, yet, if thereafter, before trial in the county court on appeal, the original petition was altered by plaintiff, with defendant's consent, by increasing the amount of the items of damages therein set out, so as to make the aggregate more than $200, jurisdiction of the county court would thereby be defeated. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hood (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 982.

Neither the constitution nor the statutes authorize an appeal from judgments of justices of the peace where the amount in controversy is not more than $20, exclusive of costs. Hudson v. Smith (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 486.

Jurisdiction dependent on jurisdiction of justice court.—Where a justice tried a cause on a plea of counterclaim over which he had no jurisdiction, on appeal to the county court it has no jurisdiction of the matters contained in such counterclaim. Brigman v. Aultman, Miller & Co. (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 509.

The county court did not acquire jurisdiction of an appeal from a justice's judgment, where the justice had no jurisdiction of the action. Maples v. MacNelly (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 893.

Motion for new trial as essential to appellate jurisdiction.—A motion for new trial in justice court is not essential to confer jurisdiction on county court on appeal. Howard v. Jenkins, 1 App. C. C. § 68; Griffin v. Brown, 1 App. C. C. § 1097; Masterton v. Conrad, 2 App. C. C. § 753; Davis v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 394.

Application for new trial in justice's court held not required to be sworn to to permit appeal from judgment, nor that notice of the application be given the opposite party. Gottlich v. Gregory & Walton (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 843.

Right of appeal—Persons entitled.—From a joint recovery against two or more defendants in an action of debt in the justice's court, either of them may appeal to the county court. Railway Co. v. Mosty, 27 S. W. 1057, 8 C. A. 330; Ayers v. Smith (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 835; Martin v. Lapowski, 11 C. A. 690, 33 S. W. 300. See Baldwin v. White (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 455.

One of several defendants may appeal from a judgment so far as it affects him. Johnson v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 677.

Irregularity in entering a judgment does not affect the right of either party to appeal if the justice had jurisdiction of the case. American Cotton Bale Improvement Co. v. Forsgard (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 475.

A garnishee held authorized to appeal from a judgment in garnishment proceedings before a justice of the peace. Davis v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 393.

Art. 2392. [1669] Taken to district court, when.—In all counties in which the civil and criminal jurisdiction, or either, of the county courts has been transferred to the district courts, appeals and writs of certiorari may be prosecuted to remove a case tried before a justice of the peace to the district court, in the same manner and under the same circumstances under which appeals and writs of certiorari are allowed by general law to remove causes to the county court.

Transfer to district court of cause appealed to county court.—County court held without error in refusing to transfer to district court cause appealed to it from justice's court. Moore v. Powers, 16 C. A. 436, 41 S. W. 707.

Power and jurisdiction.—The district court held to have no jurisdiction of an appeal from justice court where the amount demanded was $190, and there was no bond on appeal. St. Louis Southwestern Ry. Co. of Texas v. Warren Bros. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 1144.

Under the constitution, the district court has no power to revise the judgments of justices' courts except where it is given appellate jurisdiction and where the amount in controversy exceeds $20 exclusive of costs. Gulf, T. & W. Ry. Co. v. Lunn (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 538.

—— Effect of claim in reconvention.—In action in justice's court, claim in reconvention for expenses of investigating plaintiff's claim held not to give district court jurisdiction of appeal from judgment in favor of plaintiff. Texas & N. O. Ry. Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 95 S. W. 746.

—— Reduction of amount in controversy.—The district court's jurisdiction of an appeal, once acquired, is not defeated by the reduction of the amount in controversy to less than $20 by defendant's withdrawal of his plea in reconvention. Schneider v. Luckie (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 685.

—— Jurisdiction dependent on jurisdiction of justice court.—See, also, notes under Art. 1950.

The district court cannot by appeal from a justice acquire jurisdiction of an action, where the justice had none. Heard v. Conly (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 1047.

Justice's assumption of jurisdiction of foreclosure of mechanic's lien, in connection with the cause of action for breach of building contract, held not to oust district court's jurisdiction of the latter cause of action on appeal. Herry v. Benoit (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 359.

Art. 2393. [1670] [1639] Notice, bond and other proceedings on appeal.—The party appealing, his agent or attorney, shall within ten days from the date of the judgment, file with the justice a bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the justice, in double the amount of the judgment, payable to the appellee, conditioned that the appellant shall prosecute his appeal to effect, and shall pay off and satisfy the judgment which may be rendered against him on such appeal. When such bond has been filed with the justice, the appeal shall be held to be thereby perfected; but if, upon the call of the docket upon appearance day in the court to which the appeal is taken, the appellee fails to appear in person, or by attorney, the case shall be continued, unless it is shown to the court that notice of the appeal has been given as hereinafter provided; and no judgment by default shall, at any time, be rendered against an appellee whose appearance has not been entered in the case, unless and until it is made to appear to the court that notice in writing of such appeal has been served upon the appellee, his agent or attorney, at least five days before the first day of the term at which such judgment by default is sought to be taken. Such notice may be signed by the clerk of the court, or by the appellant, his agent or attorney, and may be served by the sheriff or any constable of the county, or by any other person competent to make oath of the fact; and the service shall be made by the delivery of a copy thereof to the appellee, his agent or attorney; and such service shall be evidenced by the return thereon of the officer executing the same, or by the oath of such other competent person indorsed thereon and filed with the papers in the case. [Acts 1883, p. 91.]

See Houston, E. & W. T. R. Co. v. Carroll, 14 C. A. 393, 37 S. W. 875.

Bond on appeal—Necessity.—A void bond does not confer jurisdiction. Smith v. Parks, 55 T. 82; Dial v. Rector, 12 T. 99.

Executors, administrators, and guardians are not required to give bond on appeal. Arts. 2106, 2400. Kerr v. Stone, 1 App. C. C. § 810; Masterton v. Conrad, 2 App. C. C. § 754.

See Art. 768; City of Victoria v. Jessel, 27 S. W. 159, 7 C. A. 520; Friedman v. Dockery (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 766.

From a joint recovery against two or more defendants in an action of debt, either of them may appeal the case to the county court, and that, too, where they are not adversely interested, without making the appeal bond payable to the defendant not so appealing. Martin v. Lapowski, 11 C. A. 690, 33 S. W. 300; Railway Co. v. Mosty, 27 S. W. 1057, 8 C. A. 330; Ayers v. Smith (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 835. Contra, Baldwin v. White (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 455.

Where justice renders judgment that plaintiff recover nothing, he is entitled to appeal without filing appeal bond. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Red Cross Stock Farm, 91 T. 628, 45 S. W. 375.

Where plaintiff brought suit before a justice for $146, but recovered only $60, he was entitled to an appeal to the county court without filing an appeal bond, under this article. Edwards v. Morton, 92 T. 152, 46 S. W. 792.

The plaintiff may appeal from a judgment in his favor without filing a bond. American Cotton Bale Improvement Co. v. Forsgard (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 475.

On appeal from a judgment against him for costs, and that he take nothing, plaintiff need not give a bond. J. A. Kemp Grocer Co. v. Keith (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 743.

An appeal bond is not required as a prerequisite to jurisdiction of county court of an appeal by plaintiff from an adverse judgment of a justice of the peace. Thomas v. Hogan (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 300.

An appeal bond is not required in order that a plaintiff may appeal from a judgment in a justice court, allowing him nothing or only a part of his claim. Clifford v. Kohr (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 424.

On appeal from a justice to the district court, it is not necessary for appellant to give a bond, where no judgment against him except for costs is rendered, and defects in the bond are immaterial. Voges v. Dittlinger (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 875.

Where plaintiff in justice court recovered nothing, and no judgment was rendered against him, except for costs, he was entitled to appeal without filing bond. Brown v. Dutton, 38 C. A. 294, 85 S. W. 454.

Where no judgment is rendered against one in justice court except for costs, he is not required to give a bond on appeal. Feagan v. Barton-Parker Mfg. Co., 42 C. A. 373, 93 S. W. 1076.

Where one gives a claimant's bond and in the trial of right of property judgment is rendered against him and his sureties on the bond, if he and the sureties appeal from the judgment in the justice court to the county court, they must give an appeal bond. Carter v. Wyrick (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 645.

Where a judgment is rendered against a plaintiff in a justice court, it is not required to give a bond on appeal. Johnson County Sav. Bank v. Midkiff & Caudle (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 1131.

Where plaintiff recovered a money judgment in a justice court, defendants can appeal only by executing an appeal bond or an affidavit in lieu thereof. Maley v. Mundy, 47 C. A. 630, 107 S. W. 905.

To confer jurisdiction of a case appealed from a justice's court wherein a money judgment was recovered, it must affirmatively appear that an appeal bond or the affidavit required by statute was filed. Harris v. Robinson & Martin, 49 C. A. 437, 109 S. W. 400.

Where judgment is rendered against plaintiff, that he take nothing and that defendant recover costs, plaintiff need not file an appeal bond. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Milliron, 53 C. A. 325, 115 S. W. 655.

Where plaintiff in justice court appeals to the county court, he need not give notice of appeal in the justice court, nor file an appeal bond, but need only request the justice to furnish and transmit his transcript, as required by Art. 2396. Id.

In suit by one plaintiff against two or more parties, and some of the parties are dismissed and judgment is rendered against one defendant only and he appeals the appeal bond must be made payable to all the parties who had an interest in the controversy. Those dismissed as well as the plaintiff were adversely interested in sustaining the judgment and were entitled to the security in such cases provided by law. Hall Music Co. v. Hall, 55 C. A. 610, 120 S. W. 904.

In an action in a justice's court to recover a sum alleged to be due as commissions, defendant, by interplea and process issued thereon, made another person, who was also a claimant of the same commissions, a party to the suit, and the result was a verdict and judgment for the interpleader, and that the plaintiff take nothing. Plaintiff appealed to the county court, but filed no appeal bond or affidavit in forma pauperis in the justice's court. Held, since an appeal from a judgment in a justice's court annuls the judgment and transfers the whole cause to the county court for a trial de novo, the interpleader was entitled under this article to a supersedeas bond or an affidavit in forma pauperis to secure him for being forced to forego the collection of his judgment and abide the new trial in the county court, and in default thereof the appeal was ineffective. Chillicothe Land Co. v. Ward (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 1024.

Defendant cannot appeal from a money judgment in the justice court without filing an appeal bond or an affidavit of inability to give one. John E. Morrison Co. v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 702.

An appeal from a judgment in a justice's court must be perfected to the county court by giving an appeal bond. Powell v. Hill (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 181.

—— Obligors.—A bond with but one surety is insufficient. Bradway v. Clipper, 1 App. C. C. § 306.

A bond signed by the sureties only is sufficient. Easton v. Wash, 4 App. C. C. § 129; Horton v. McKeehan, 1 App. C. C. § 469; Railway Co. v. Grant, 1 App. C. C. § 783; Shelton v. Wash, 4 T. 148, 51 Am. Dec. 722; Lindsay v. Price, 33 T. 280.

An appeal bond of plaintiff signed by one of the defendants and another as sureties is sufficient. Voss v. Feurmann (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 936.

—— Obligees.—A bond payable to a party who is dead is a nullity. Smith v. Parks, 55 T. 82; Dial v. Rector, 12 T. 99; Futch v. Palmer, 11 C. A. 191, 32 S. W. 566.

Where the plaintiff appeals from the part of the judgment which is adverse to him, and the bond is payable to only one of the several defendants, a dismissal on that ground must be promptly asked. A distinction appears to have been made between such appeals and those in which a revision of the judgment is sought. Johnson v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 677.

A bond payable to appellee "or his attorney" is void. Nones v. McGregor (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 1083.

A nonresident preferred creditor in a deed of trust, who had not been summoned in garnishment proceedings against the trustee, is not a party to the suit, and hence the appeal bond of defendant need not be made payable to him. Hamblen v. Tuck (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 175.

Where action for conversion against sheriff and others was dismissed as to sheriff, defendants, on appeal to county court, did not have to give bond payable to the sheriff. Jackson v. Owen (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 664.

An appeal bond need not be made payable to a joint judgment debtor, having no adverse interests, who does not unite in the appeal. Ballard v. Coker (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 921.

A person not permitted by justice to intervene does not become party to the cause, and appeal bond of defendant made payable to plaintiffs only is sufficient. Nabors v. McQuigg (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 637.

Where defendants have no adverse interests, an appeal bond by one defendant need not be made payable to codefendants, in whose favor judgment was rendered. Cross v. Moores (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 373.

A bond made payable to appellee "or his certain executors or administrators," etc., is not defective. But one made payable to appellees or their certain attorneys is fatally defective, and cannot be amended. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Addison, 26 C. A. 628, 65 S. W. 38.

Judgment between plaintiff and one defendant in justice's court held shown by transcript to have been rendered, so as to make such defendant proper obligee in appeal bond. Girvin v. Wood, 32 C. A. 536, 75 S. W. 49.

One of several defendants in justice court, where such defendants are not adversely interested, can appeal without naming his codefendants in the judgment obligees in the bond. By "appellee" is meant the party against whom the appeal is taken; that is to say, the party who has an interest adverse to setting aside the judgment. Slayton & Co. v. Horsey, 97 T. 341, 78 S. W. 920.

Where a judgment is rendered by a justice against two or more defendants not having adverse interests, one of them may appeal without making his codefendant a party to the appeal bond. C. E. Slayton & Co. v. Horsey (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 1086.

On appeal to the county court from a judgment of a justice for plaintiff aginst defendant H., on trial after the suit had been dismissed against defendant I., held, that I. need not be made a payee in the appeal bond. Houston & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Ivy, 36 C. A. 452, 82 S. W. 195.

On appeal by two of three defendants against whom judgment was awarded, it was not necessary that the bond should be made payable to the third defendant. Lewellyn v. Ellis, 50 C. A. 453, 115 S. W. 84.

—— Sureties.—The sureties in a replevin bond against whom judgment is rendered are competent sureties on the appeal bond. Trammell v. Trammell, 15 T. 291; Witten v. Caspary, 4 App. C. C. § 190, 15 S. W. 47.

Sureties for costs are competent sureties on appeal bond. Saylor v. Marx, 56 T. 90; Sampson v. Solinsky, 75 T. 663, 13 S. W. 67.

It is not necessary that a surety on a bond should be a resident of the county in which judgment is rendered. Fuerman v. Ruchle, 4 App. C. C. § 81, 16 S. W. 536.

The fact that judgment was entered by the justice against sureties on defendant's replevin bond does not disqualify them from becoming sureties on defendant's appeal bond. Nabors v. McQuigg (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 637.

—— Justification of sureties.—Solvency of the sureties need not be shown otherwise than by the approval of the justice. Fuerman v. Ruchle, 4 App. C. C. § 81, 16 S. W. 536.

—— Amount of bond.—When the judgment of the justice's court is for costs only, the bond must be in double the amount of such costs. Owens v. Levy, 1 App. C. C. § 409; Bell v. Brown, 11 C. A. 526, 33 S. W. 303.

In a suit for the trial of the right of property, when the defendant recovers, a bond in double the amount of costs is sufficient. Ross v. Williams, 78 T. 371, 14 S. W. 796.

The transcript from the justice's court may be looked to in aid of the description of the amount. Landa v. Heerman, 85 T. 1, 19 S. W. 885; Knight v. Grigsby, 4 App. C. C. § 124, 16 S. W. 866.

A bond on appeal from a justice to the district court held sufficient if for double the amount of the judgment exclusive of costs. Yarbrough v. Collins, 91 T. 306, 42 S. W. 1052.

An appeal bond, in a justice's court case, is sufficient if it is for double the amount of the judgment exclusive of costs. Blanks v. Stamps (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 18.

The appeal bond of defendant in garnishment against him as trustee of a deed of trust need not be twice the amount of the aggregate of the various sums adjudged against the garnishee as due to plaintiffs and interveners. Hamblen v. Tuck (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 175.

Plaintiff who recovers less in a justice's court than he sued for is entitled to an appeal without giving bond in "double the amount of the judgment." Edwards v. Morton, 92 T. 152, 46 S. W. 792.

A bond, on appeal from a justice's judgment, not obligating appellants or their sureties to pay any sum, is insufficient. Lewellyn v. Ellis, 50 C. A. 453, 115 S. W. 84.

—— Conditions.—A bond was held sufficient when it was conditioned: That the said M. & H. shall prosecute their said appeal to effect, and shall pay and satisfy any judgment that may be rendered against them in said suit. Miller v. Sappington, 1 App. C. C. § 176. That appellant shall prosecute his appeal to effect, and shall pay off and satisfy the judgment which may be rendered against him on such appeal in the county court. Heidenheimer v. Bledsoe, 1 App. C. C. § 316. That the said G. H. shall prosecute his appeal to effect, and satisfy the judgment or decree that may be rendered against the obligors in this bond. Haby v. Haby, 1 App. C. C. § 157. That appellant shall prosecute said appeal with effect, and shall pay and satisfy the judgment or decree that may be rendered against the obligors in this bond on the trial of this case in the county court aforesaid. Kerr v. Clegg, 1 App. C. C. § 791. That appellant "shall prosecute his appeal to effect," or (instead of "and") shall pay off and satisfy the judgment or (instead of "and") decree that may be rendered. Mills v. Hackett, 1 App. C. C. § 846, citing Robinson v. Brinson, 20 T. 438. That said W. shall prosecute his appeal to effect or shall pay off and satisfy any judgment or decree that may be rendered against W., the appellant in this suit. Held, that the use of the word "or" instead of the word "and" did not vitiate the bond, that the words "satisfied any judgment" are used instead of the words "satisfy any judgment," and that the words "in this suit" are used instead of "on such appeal," and the variance is immaterial. Worley v. Hudson, 2 App. C. C. § 26. That appellant shall prosecute his appeal "with effect," instead of "to effect," held sufficient. Laird v. Frieberg, 2 App. C. C. § 112.

A bond is sufficient if it appears prima facie to be given to secure an appeal from the judgment certified by the justice, and is conditioned as required by the statute. It is not vitiated by a failure to describe fully the terms of the judgment, or because it did not show that an appeal had been taken. Moses v. Clements, 3 App. C. C. § 171.

When the judgment is for money only, the omission in the appeal bond of the word "satisfy" is an immaterial error; otherwise, when the judgment requires something more than the payment of money. Clifford v. Clark, 3 App. C. C. § 238.

A bond conditioned for the payment of costs only is insufficient. Allison v. Gregory, 4 App. C. C. § 62, 15 S. W. 416.

Where judgment is that plaintiffs take nothing and against them for costs, and the bond is conditioned that appellants shall prosecute their appeal with effect and shall pay all costs which have accrued in this court, together with that which may accrue in the county court, should they be cast in this suit, the bond is sufficient; the condition being equivalent to that described by the statute. Moore v. Alston, 4 App. C. C. § 191, 15 S. W. 47.

An appeal bond which fails to provide that the appellant shall prosecute his appeal to effect is fatally defective. Figures v. Dunklen, 68 T. 644, 5 S. W. 503.

An appeal bond from judgment in justice court in substantial compliance with the statute, and on which judgment can be entered, is not invalid because more onerous conditions are added. Such conditions will be treated as surplusage. Landa v. Heerman, 85 T. 1, 19 S. W. 885.

The condition in an appeal bond "that the said Sadie Coman shall prosecute her appeal with effect and in case the judgment of the county court of Harris county, Texas, shall be against her that she shall perform its judgment, sentence or decree and pay all such damages as said court may award against her," while not in the exact language of the statute, is the same in legal effect. Coman v. Lincoln, 25 C. A. 276, 61 S. W. 444.

If the obligation to pay damages makes it more onerous than required by law, this part may be treated as surplusage, and the bond will not be vitiated thereby. Id.

A bond is good if conditioned to pay "any judgment," etc. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Addison, 26 C. A. 628, 65 S. W. 38.

—— Approval and filing.—If the bond has been filed by the justice, a formal approval would be unnecessary or would be presumed from the filing and return of it to the proper court. Whitman Agric. Co. v. Voss, 2 App. C. C. § 550; Dyches v. State, 24 T. 266; Doughty v. State, 33 T. 1; Cundiff v. State, 38 T. 641; E. L. & R. R. R. Co. v. Davis, 1 App. C. C. § 563.

An appellate court will permit the justice to indorse his approval of a bond nunc pro tunc as of the proper date. Whitman Agric. Co. v. Voss, 2 App. C. C. § 553; G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hodge, 2 App. C. C. § 620; Slocumb v. State, 11 T. 15; Holman v. Chevallier, 14 T. 337.

The statute does not in terms require the approval of the appeal bond by the justice. Jones v. Spann, 3 App. C. C. § 283; Williams v. Hilburn, 3 App. C. C. § 287.

An appeal bond is not void by the failure of a justice of the peace to mark "filed" and his approval thereon. The omission may be supplied in the county court. Muller v. Humphreys, 4 App. C. C. § 10, 14 S. W. 1068. See Patty v. Miller, 24 S. W. 330, 5 C. A. 308.

Clerical error in date of approval of the bond not ground for dismissal. Bass v. James, 83 T. 110, 18 S. W. 336.

Where an appeal bond is approved and filed within the proper time after the rendition of the judgment, its date is immaterial. Carlton v. Miller, 2 C. A. 619, 21 S. W. 697; Railway Co. v. Stanley, 76 T. 418, 13 S. W. 480; Peoples v. Rodgers, 11 C. A. 447, 32 S. W. 798.

Where a justice approves an appeal bond, his failure to place a filing mark thereon does not affect its validity. Lewis v. Warren & C. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 104.

—— Form, requisites, and sufficiency.—Misdescription was held to be material, and the bond fatally defective, in the following cases: A judgment rendered on the 20th of April, 1882, was described as rendered on the 15th of April, 1881. Damron v. Texas & St. L. R. R. Co., 1 App. C. C. § 383; Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Raines, 2 App. C. C. § 753. The bond omitted the name of one of the parties, and also gave an erroneous date to the judgment. Kerr v. Stone, 1 App. C. C. § 811. The bond misstated the names of the parties to the judgment. Morris v. Edwards, 1 App. C. C. § 525.

The bond described the judgment as for $61.90, when in fact it was for $61.91. Held, that the discrepancy did not vitiate the bond. Nelson v. Baird, 1 App. C. C. § 1236; Carpenter v. Knapp, 1 App. C. C. § 1111.

Where there was a discrepancy of $4 between the judgment and its description in the bond, the variance held to be immaterial. Nelson v. Baird, 1 App. C. C. § 1236. See Porter v. Ruisek (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 72. But a discrepancy of $25 was held to be material. Martin v. Hartwell, 1 App. C. C. § 491.

An appeal bond is not defective because it fails to show the number of the cause or the date of the judgment when the judgment is otherwise sufficiently identified by its recitals. Knight v. Old, 2 App. C. C. § 77.

Judgment was recovered for a mare or for her value, $75, and also for $34 damages. The bond described the judgment as for $109, saying nothing about the recovery of the mare. Held, that the error was immaterial. Austin v. McMahon, 2 App. C. C. § 429.

An appeal bond bearing date April 13th recited that judgment was rendered on April 14th. The date of the execution being evidently a clerical mistake, held, that the bond was sufficient. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Hodge, 2 App. C. C. § 619.

The bond stated the amount and nature of plaintiff's demand, the names of the parties, the date of the judgment and the court in which it was rendered. It did not state the amount of the judgment. Held, that the bond was sufficient. Parsons v. Crawford, 2 App. C. C. § 669.

In determining upon the sufficiency of a bond it is proper for the court to look to the entire record. Anderson v. Beaty, 3 App. C. C. § 260, citing Owens v. Levy, 1 App. C. C. §§ 407, 408; Nelson v. Baird, 1 App. C. C. § 1236; Laird v. Frieberg, 2 App. C. C. § 111; Whitman Agric. Co. v. Voss, 2 App. C. C. § 548; Parsons v. Crawford, 2 App. C. C. § 669.

The variance between the judgment, described in the bond as against "Texas Pacific Railway Company," and the signature, "Texas Pacific Ry. Co.," is immaterial. Texas & P. R. R. Co. v. McCumsey, 3 App. C. C. § 264. See Knight v. Grigsby, 4 App. C. C. § 124, 16 S. W. 866; Railway Co. v. Vanden, 7 C. A. 258, 26 S. W. 767.

An appeal bond is not vitiated by a clerical error manifest from the record. Batsel v. Blaine, 4 App. C. C. § 196, 15 S. W. 283; Edwards v. Allen, 4 App. C. C. § 262, 17 S. W. 1074; Railway Co. v. Stanley, 76 T. 418, 13 S. W. 480.

An appeal bond is not vitiated by a clerical error which does not mislead. James v. Malloy, 4 App. C. C. § 198, 15 S. W. 198. See Allison v. Gregory, 4 App. C. C. § 62, 15 S. W. 416.

Bond must describe the judgment. McMichael v. Jarvis, 78 T. 671, 15 S. W. 111; Binion v. Seals, 82 T. 397, 18 S. W. 705. But need not set it out in full. Witten v. Caspary, 4 App. C. C. § 190, 15 S. W. 47.

Appeal bond from a justice described judgment by number of case, names of parties, amount and court rendering, and gave date as 28th instead of 30th of month. Held sufficient. Alderman v. Jones, 21 S. W. 298, 2 C. A. 336.

See this case for appeal bond held sufficient as to description of judgment to defeat motion to dismiss. Bauer v. Fields (Civ. App.) 22 S. W. 180.

An appeal bond must be construed in connection with the judgment. Porter v. Rusek (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 72.

A bond sufficiently identifies the case by its number, style of cause, court in which pending and date of rendition of judgment. Perry v. Cullen, 25 S. W. 1043, 6 C. A. 178; Christian v. Crawford, 60 T. 45; Owens v. Levy, 1 App. C. C. § 408; Kerr v. Nutten, id. 410; Nelson v. Baird, id. 1236; Worley v. Hudson, 2 App. C. C. § 26; Zapp v. Michaelis, 56 T. 395; Warren v. Marberry, 85 T. 193, 19 S. W. 994; Miller v. Sappington, 1 App. C. C. § 176; Heidenheimer v. Bledsoe, 1 App. C. C. § 316; Haby v. Haby, 1 App. C. C. § 157; Kerr v. Kleg, 1 App. C. C. § 791; Mills v. Hackett, 1 App. C. C. § 846; Worley v. Hudson, 2 App. C. C. § 26; Laird v. Frieberg, 2 App. C. C. § 112; T. & P. Ry. Co. v. McCumsey, 3 App. C. C. § 264.

The omission of the number of the case, and of the names of some of the parties, does not vitiate the bond. Farror v. Dowd (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 919. Citing Sampson v. Solinsky, 75 T. 663, 13 S. W. 67; Warren v. Marberry, 85 T. 193, 19 S. W. 994; Landa v. Heermann, 85 T. 1, 19 S. W. 885. See Cason v. Laney, 82 T. 318, 18 S. W. 667; Edwards v. Allen, 4 App. C. C. § 262, 17 S. W. 1074; Moore v. Alston, 4 App. C. C. § 191, 15 S. W. 47.

An appeal will not be dismissed on account of clerical errors in the names of the parties if judgment is otherwise identified. Mo., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Vowell (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 354.

A bond on appeal from a justice held sufficient, though it erroneously described the amount of the judgment. Dillard v. Allison (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1023; Burger v. Weatherby, 41 C. A. 462, 91 S. W. 250.

A bond reciting an appeal to the Texarkana civil court held not to support an appeal to the county court. Turner v. Southern Pine Lumber Co., 16 C. A. 545, 40 S. W. 1078.

A bond on appeal from a justice is not void because made payable to appellee, "or to their certain attorneys, executors, or administrators, or assigns." Brazoria County v. Grand Rapids School-Furniture Co. (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 900.

On appeal from a justice, a bond signed by the sureties only is sufficient. Pryor v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 39.

It was immaterial that bond on appeal from a justice of the peace obligated appellant to "pay off" such judgment as might be rendered against him on appeal, instead of using the words "pay off and satisfy." Hamblen v. Tuck (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 175.

Bond on removal of case from justice to district court held sufficient. Harris v. Parker (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 844.

An appeal bond conditioned that the obligors will satisfy the judgment rendered "against them," appellant not being an obligor, is invalid. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Geyer (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 251.

An appeal bond is sufficient if it appears prima facie to be given to secure an appeal from the judgment set out in the transcript from the justice's docket. Fussell v. Insall (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 475.

Where appeal bond filed in justice's court sufficiently described proceedings to identify them, slight mistake in amount of the judgment held immaterial. Nabors v. McQuigg (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 637.

That a bond on appeal from justice court described the judgment as for $51.25, instead of for $51.23, did not invalidate the appeal. Niblo v. Dyer (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 216.

A bond on appeal from justice court held not invalidated by the misspelling of the surname of the plaintiff. Id.

That the number of a cause appealed from justice court did not appear on the face of the appeal bond held not to have invalidated the appeal. Id.

That a bond on appeal from justice court gave the date of the judgment on the 11th of month, instead of 12th, did not invalidate the appeal. Id.

Where a judgment before a justice was recovered by T. J. H., and a bond on appeal to J. T. H. was given, a denial of a motion to dismiss the appeal for lack of a proper appeal bond was erroneous. Hubbert v. Texas Cent. R. Co., 24 C. A. 432, 59 S. W. 292.

Where a justice's judgment, dated October 13, 1899, was rendered against C. for $69.78, and against appellant for costs, and the appeal bond recited the judgment as dated October 16, 1899, and as being rendered against appellant for $49.15, the appeal should be dismissed for the misdescription. Lok Wing v. Sam Chung (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 598.

Where the bond on appeal from a justice was more onerous than required by law, the bond was not vitiated by such condition. Coman v. Lincoln, 25 C. A. 276, 61 S. W. 443.

On appeal from justice, a bond payable to the "Edgeworth" Distilling Company, instead of the "Edgewood" Distilling Company, held insufficient to confer jurisdiction. Houston Ice & Brewing Co. v. Edgewood Distilling Co. (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 1075.

Appeal bond from justice's court held conditioned substantially in compliance with the statute. Girvin v. Wood, 32 C. A. 536, 75 S. W. 49.

Description of the judgment appealed from in bond held not insufficient. Condon v. Robertson, 33 C. A. 441, 76 S. W. 934.

Appeal bond held to sufficiently identify the judgment from which the appeal was taken. Kusmierz v. Mahula (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 966.

Appeal bond held to sufficiently identify the court in which the judgment was rendered. Id.

Where a second appeal bond filed to perfect an appeal from a justice's judgment misdescribed the judgment in a material matter, the appeal was properly dismissed. East Liverpool Potters' Co. v. Hill (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 568.

The bond on appeal from a justice's court, otherwise regular, is not rendered invalid by omitting the word "company" from the name of a corporation defendant. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Mears, 37 C. A. 179, 83 S. W. 401.

An appeal bond from a justice, reciting that appellant has appealed to the county court, is insufficient to confer jurisdiction on the district court. Gulf, B. & G. N. Ry. Co. v. Lyons (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 44.

A bond reciting a justice's judgment, and stating that defendant desires to appeal therefrom to the county court, is insufficient to confer jurisdiction of the appeal on the district court. Ft. Worth & D. C. Ry. Co. v. Henry (Civ. App.) 88 S. W. 399.

Where an action was brought against "Wells, Fargo & Co. Express," a bond given on appeal from a justice to the county court in favor of "Wells, Fargo & Co., by Atty.," was sufficient. Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Hanson, 41 C. A. 174, 91 S. W. 321.

Appeal bond from a justice court held not invalidated by a failure to set out that the judgment included the foreclosure of a laborer's lien. Lewis v. Warren & C. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 104.

A bond on an appeal from a justice court held insufficient to confer jurisdiction on the county court, and a judgment thereon was a nullity. Wood Grocery Co. v. S. A. Pace Grocery Co. (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 180.

A bond on appeal from a justice to the county court held insufficient to confer jurisdiction on the county court. S. A. Pace Grocery Co. v. Savage (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 866.

—— Time of filing.—Under the original article, which required the appeal bond to be filed within ten days from the date of the judgment, it has been held that the appeal bond must be filed within ten days after the rendition of the judgment, or the appeal will be dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Conally v. Gambull, 1 App. C. C. § 90; Mather v. Crozier, 50 T. 154; Lane v. Doak, 48 T. 228; Bach v. Ginacchio, 1 App. C. C. § 1310.

In later cases it has been held where on appeal bond was filed more than ten days after the rendition of the judgment in the justice's court, but within ten days from the date of the judgment overruling the motion for a new trial, that the bond was filed in time. Kyle v. Becton, 2 App. C. C. § 49; Laird v. Frieberg, 2 App. C. C. § 110; Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Houston Flour Mills Co., 2 App. C. C. § 571; McIver v. McIntosh, 10 C. A. 581, 30 S. W. 1086.

Where judgment was rendered October 13, 1888, an appeal bond approved October 23, 1888, was within the time required by law. Easton v. Wash, 4 App. C. C. § 129, 16 S. W. 788.

A bond may be filed within ten days after the last day on which a motion for a new trial could have been acted upon. In this case judgment was rendered September 28th, motion for new trial filed October 1st, but not acted on. Bond filed October 18th was in time. West v. White, 4 App. C. C. § 130, 16 S. W. 788.

Judgment in a justice's court was rendered August 26, 1889, motion for a new trial was made and overruled September 3, 1889, appeal bond was filed September 13, 1889; the appeal bond was filed in time. Williams v. Sims, 4 App. C. C. § 151, 16 S. W. 786.

If a motion for a new trial is filed within five days after the rendition of judgment, but no action is had within ten days after the rendition of the judgment, such motion is considered as overruled on the tenth day after the date of the judgment, and the appeal bond can be filed within ten days thereafter. Jones v. Collins, 70 T. 752, 8 S. W. 681.

The 10 days for filing bond on appeal from a justice runs from date of overruling motion for new trial when determined within 10 days after entry of judgment. Jackson v. J. A. Coates & Sons (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 24.

An appeal from a justice's judgment held properly dismissed where the bond was not filed within 10 days from the date of the justice's entry reciting that judgment had been entered for plaintiff, etc. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Thigpen (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 66.

Judgment was rendered in justice court November 17th. Motion for new trial was filed. Term of court ended by operation of law November 26th. November 28th, motion for new trial was overruled. Appeal bond filed December 7th was too late. Action of court overruling motion for new trial after expiration of term was unauthorized. Bond v. Rintleman, 24 C. A. 298, 59 S. W. 48.

An appeal bond must be filed within the required time, and antedating the bond, so as to make it appear to be in time, will not give appellate court jurisdiction. McMahon v. City Bank of Sherman (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 952.

The filing of a motion for a new trial before a justice of the peace after adjournment of the term at which the case was tried did not extend the time for filing the appeal bond. Gulf, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 870.

Under this article the 10-day period runs from the date of overruling a motion for a new trial, and not from the date of the entry of the judgment. Gottlich v. Gregory & Walton (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 843; Conner v. Lowey, 149 S. W. 199.

—— Amendment or new bond.—When the appeal bond in justice court is defective only in being signed by one surety or in the amount, a new bond may be filed in the district or county court and be approved by the clerk. Landa v. Heerman, 85 T. 1, 19 S. W. 885.

The county court, after the time allowed by law for filing a bond has passed, has no authority to permit one appealing from a judgment rendered by a justice of the peace to file a bond curing a defect in the original bond which failed to state the condition required by the statute. H. & T. C. R. Co. v. Red Cross Stock Farm (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 795.

A county court cannot permit appellant, after the filing of a defective appeal bond from judgment of a justice court, to file a new bond after the time for filing has elapsed. Snow v. Eastham (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 866.

An appeal bond from a justice's court can be corrected in the appellate court only in respect to the amount of the bond or the number of the sureties. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Geyer (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 251.

A bond made payable to appellees or their certain attorneys is fatally defective and cannot be amended. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Addison, 26 C. A. 628, 65 S. W. 38.

Where an appeal of all three defendants in a justice action was dismissed because of a defective appeal bond, held, that two of them could perfect their appeal by filing a new bond though the other defendant did not join them. Lewellyn v. Ellis, 102 T. 297, 116 S. W. 42.

—— Waiver of defects.—An informal or defective bond, not objected to, may confer jurisdiction. Tynberg v. Cohen, 76 T. 418, 13 S. W. 315; Ricker v. Collins, 17 S. W. 378, 81 T. 662.

Irregularities in a bond are waived by an appearance and amendment of pleadings and delay in making the motion to dismiss. Cason v. Laney, 82 T. 317, 18 S. W. 667; Cason v. Connor, 83 T. 26, 18 S. W. 668.

Defects in bonds are waived by continuance by consent. Futch v. Palmer, 11 C. A. 191, 32 S. W. 566.

Defect in a bond on appeal from a justice court held not waived. Lewellyn v. Ellis, 50 C. A. 453, 115 S. W. 84.

Taking and perfecting appeal when bond is not required.—Proper procedure in order to take and perfect an appeal to the county court in cases where no appeal bond is required, laid down. Edwards v. Morton, 92 T. 152, 46 S. W. 792.

Notice of appeal—Necessity of.—Notice of appeal need not be given in the justice's court. Harris v. Credille, 1 App. C. C. § 562.

The party prosecuting the appeal must give the notice required by the statute. Curtis v. Bernstein, 2 App. C. C. § 673.

In the absence of a statute requiring notice in the justice court to the adverse party of appeal to the county court, such notice need not be given. Edwards v. Morton, 92 T. 152, 46 S. W. 792.

Notice of appeal is not required in order that a plaintiff may appeal from a judgment in a justice court allowing him nothing or only a part of his claim. Clifford v. Kohr (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 424.

Where judgment is rendered against plaintiff that he take nothing and that defendant recover costs, plaintiff need not give notice of appeal. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Milliron, 53 C. A. 325, 115 S. W. 655.

Waiver of want of notice.—Consenting to a continuance in the county court is such an appearance as will waive the want of notice as required by statute. Tex. & Pac. Ry. Co. v. Netherland, 2 App. C. C. § 237.

Appearance on appeal.—The appearance of appellant to resist the substitution of papers does not operate as an appearance on the merits. Wren v. Kirsey (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 252.

The giving of an appeal bond on appeal from a justice to the county court held an appearance in the county court. Hairston & Peters v. Southern Pac. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 1078.

Transcript on appeal.—The bond becomes an original paper and should be transmitted to the county court, and if it appears that the approval and filing is indorsed on the bond, it is not necessary that the transcript should show that the bond had been approved and filed. Stitt v. Barefoot, 2 App. C. C. §§ 791–92; Trial v. Lepori, 1 App. C. C. § 1272.

Where a transcript filed in county court on appeal from a justice in a criminal fails to show the giving of notice of appeal, the record cannot be corrected by a nunc pro tunc order of the justice, and the appeal will be dismissed. Truss v. State, 38 Cr. R. 291, 43 S. W. 92.

Under this article and Arts. 2395–2397, whether or not a transmission of the transcript, which the party appealing must see is done, is necessary "to perfect an appeal" technically, it is necessary properly to present the cause in the county court, so that dismissal of the appeal for want of jurisdiction because of nonfiling of the transcript, after lapse of three terms of the county court, was proper. Cariker v. Dill (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 843.

The dismissal of an appeal from a judgment of a justice of the peace on the ground that the justice did not file the transcript within the time required by law, and that therefore the county court had no jurisdiction, is improper; the county court under this article acquiring jurisdiction when the appeal bond was filed. Tevebaugh v. Smith Land Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 647.

Liabilities on bonds.—The sureties on an appeal bond executed by two defendants jointly are liable on the bond if judgment in the county court is rendered against one of the defendants alone. Moore v. Gore, 2 App. C. C. § 75.

The sureties on an appeal bond are liable for any judgment rendered against appellant, although the judgment may have been reduced on appeal. Cotulla v. Goggan, 77 T. 32, 13 S. W. 742.

Appeal being dismissed at the instance of plaintiff because of defective bond, he cannot, on failing to collect his judgment, maintain a suit on the bond. Gregory v. Goldthwaite, 21 S. W. 413, 2 C. A. 287.

When plaintiff recovers judgment against the defendant, who appealed, he should also have judgment against the sureties on the bond. Franks v. Ware (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 349.

On judgment for appellee, on appeal from a justice, judgment may be rendered against the sureties on the appeal bond without citation or notice. Hensel v. Kaufmann (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 819.

An intervener is not liable on the appeal bond for anything more than for costs, and his liability is not increased by giving a bond for a larger amount than the law requires. Williams v. Vaughan (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 850.

A bond on appeal from a justice to the county court held not enforceable as a common-law obligation. S. A. Pace Grocery Co. v. Savage (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 866.

The sureties on an appeal bond from a justice's court are only bound by the terms of the bond, and they are not liable in an amount exceeding the amount specified therein, and the appellate court rendering judgment against the sureties must limit it to the penalty stipulated in the bond. Edwards v. Adams (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 898.

Under this article the sureties, on affirmance of the judgment, are liable not only therefor, but for the costs of the justice court, only, however, to the amount of the bond, with which limitation the agreement of the bond, that the sureties shall pay off and satisfy any judgment rendered against their principal, is to be construed. Keahey v. Bryant (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 409.

Judgment on appeal—Default judgment.—Where the record on appeal from the county court of a case arising in the justice's court showed a judgment in the county court, which recited that defendant was duly and legally cited to appear in answer, but failed to recite that any notice of the appeal from the justice's court was served, such record was insufficient to show that the county court was authorized to render a default judgment under this article. Cox v. Franz (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 695.

Art. 2394. [1671] [1639a] Affidavit of inability to give bond.—Where the appellant is unable to pay the costs of appeal, or to give security therefor, he shall nevertheless be entitled to prosecute his appeal; but, in order to do so, he shall be required to make strict proof of his inability to pay the costs, or any part thereof. Such proof shall be made before the county judge of the county where such party resides, or before the court trying the same, at any time within ten days from and after the date of the judgment rendered therein, and shall consist of the affidavit of said party stating his inability to pay the costs; which affidavit may be contested by any officer of the court or party to the suit; whereupon, it shall be the duty of the court trying the case, or the justice of the peace of the precinct in which said case was tried, or the county judge of the county in which the suit is pending, to hear evidence and to determine the right of the party to his appeal. [Acts 1887, p. 113.]

In general.—An appeal is not perfected by an affidavit not in conformity with the statute. Golightly v. Irvine, 4 App. C. C. § 181, 15 S. W. 48.

The appellant is not responsible for the failure of the justice to comply with the requirements of this article, and should not be deprived of his right to a trial de novo, merits being shown. Patty v. Miller, 24 S. W. 330, 5 C. A. 308.

Appellant from justice's judgment whose pauper's oath was disproven, could not complain of action of county court in giving him until the next term to file bond, and then dismissing his appeal on his failure to do so. Cook v. Burson & Gaines, 35 C. A. 595, 80 S. W. 871.

Sufficiency of affidavit.—An affidavit is not vitiated by a clerical error which is manifest from the entire record (Batsel v. Blaine, 4 App. C. C. § 196, 15 S. W. 283; Edwards v. Allen, 4 App. C. C. § 262, 17 S. W. 1074; Railway Co. v. Stanley, 76 T. 418, 13 S. W. 480), or which does not mislead (Jones v. Malloy, 4 App. C. C. § 198, 15 S. W. 198). See Allison v. Gregory, 4 App. C. C. § 62, 15 S. W. 416.

An affidavit in forma pauperis on appeal from the justice court held to sufficiently describe the judgment appealed from. Thames v. Chitwood, 24 C. A. 389, 60 S. W. 345.

—— Correction of errors.—Where the affidavit of appellant desiring to appeal from a justice's court in forma pauperis complied with this article and was signed by him and actually sworn to before the justice who failed to sign his name to the jurat, the county court should permit the justice to supply the omission by signing his name. Strickland v. Wofford (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 916.

Authority to take affidavit.—This article does not undertake to say before what officer the affidavit may be made; that matter having been disposed of in article 10. Thames v. Chitwood, 24 C. A. 389, 60 S. W. 345.

Affidavit before notary public is sufficient. Id.

Right to appeal in forma pauperis.—Under this article an appellant, who with his wife owned as community property two cows and a yearling heifer which were not shown to have been the proceeds of a homestead or to be milch cows or cows intended to be used as milch cows and which were worth $105, was not entitled to appeal without giving security for costs. Hart v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 520.

Hearing of contest.—The contest can be heard and determined after the expiration of the ten days. Brock v. Abercrombie, 3 C. A. 342, 24 S. W. 667.

Evidence—Admissibility.—A party who files his affidavit of inability to give appeal bond in a justice court can prove by parol that when he filed his affidavit and the same was sworn to the court was in session. Hutcherson v. Blewett (Civ. App.) 58 S. W. 150.

Review.—Under this article a justice of the peace, who upon a contest set aside an affidavit in lieu of a cost bond, could not be compelled by mandamus to send up the transcript in order that the appellant might perfect his appeal where the record showed the ability of appellant to pay the costs or at least a part thereof. Hart v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 520.

Art. 2395. [1672] [1639b] When appeal perfected on affidavit.—When the bond, or the affidavit in lieu thereof, provided for in the two preceding articles, has been filed, and the previous requirements of this chapter have been complied with, the appeal shall be held to be perfected. [Id.]

Cited, Hart v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 520.

Effect of perfecting appeal—Annulling judgment.—The judgment is annulled by the appeal. Railway Co. v. Mosty, 27 S. W. 1057, 8 C. A. 330; Ayers v. Smith (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 835.

Under the constitutional provision that in all appeals from justice's court there shall be a trial de novo held that, where an appeal was perfected from the justice's court to the county court, the judgment of the justice of the peace was in effect set aside and annulled. Harter v. Curry (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 445.

An appeal from a justice's judgment held to annul the judgment. Martin v. Butner, 54 C. A. 223, 117 S. W. 442.

An appeal to the county court from a justice of the peace annuls the justice's judgment; the trial being de novo. Ingraham v. Rudolph, 55 C. A. 609, 119 S. W. 906.

An appeal by one party to a suit in a justice's court operates as an appeal of the entire case, and nullifies the judgment in its entirety, though another party fails to perfect his appeal by filing bond. Lasater v. Streetman (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 657.

Defects in perfecting appeal—Curing by waiver or consent of parties.—Where an appeal has not been perfected in conformity with the statute the want of jurisdiction is fatal at any time, and cannot be cured by waiver or consent of parties. Golightly v. Irvine, 4 App. C. C. § 181, 15 S. W. 48.

Transcript, filing of.—Under this article and Arts. 2393, 2396, 2397, whether or not a transmission of the transcript, which the party appealing must see is done, is necessary "to perfect an appeal" technically, it is necessary properly to present the cause in the county court, so that dismissal of the appeal for want of jurisdiction, because of nonfiling of the transcript, after lapse of three terms of the county court, was proper. Cariker v. Dill (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 843.

Art. 2396. [1673] [1640] Duty of justice in case of appeal.—Whenever an appeal has been granted from the justice's court to the county court, it shall be the duty of the justice who made the order immediately to make out a true and correct copy of all the entries made on his docket in the cause, and certify thereto officially, and transmit the same, together with a certified copy of the bill of costs taken from his fee book, and the original papers in the cause, to the clerk of the county court of his county. [Id.]

As to amendment of appeal bond, etc., see Art. 2104.

Acquisition of jurisdiction by appellate court.—The county court acquired jurisdiction when the appeal bond was filed, though no transcript was filed as required by law. Tevebaugh v. Smith Land Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 647.

Appeal by requesting transmission of transcript.—Where judgment is rendered against plaintiff in the justice court that he take nothing and that defendant recover his costs, plaintiff does not have to give notice of appeal in the justice court nor file an appeal bond, but can appeal simply by requesting the justice to make out the transcript required by this article and transmit it with the original papers to the county court. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Milliron, 53 C. A. 325, 115 S. W. 657.

Proceedings for transfer of cause on appeal—Time for taking proceedings.—An appeal was taken from the justice to the county court, and an appeal bond was approved on the day judgment was rendered. All the papers filed in the case were entered on the docket of the county court. The transcript, showing the entries made in the cause upon the docket, was not transmitted to the county court until during the third term following. The justice had been requested to and promised to make the transcript. Held, under this and the following articles, that it was error to dismiss the appeal for want of jurisdiction of the county court, since, when the appeal bond was filed in justice court, the county court had jurisdiction of which it could not be deprived by the failure of the justice to prepare and transmit the transcript. Clark & Donaldson v. Harris & Locke (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 202.

Transcript—Necessity, sufficiency, and requisites.—The transcript should contain the statement of the cause of action as shown by the justice's docket. On appeal from the county court the transcript should disclose the pleadings in the trial courts as well as all other proceedings. Maass v. Solinsky, 67 T. 290, 3 S. W. 289; Moore v. Hazelwood, 67 T. 624, 4 S. W. 215; Railway Co. v. Shipman, 1 C. A. 407, 20 S. W. 952; Patty v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 392.

Transcript held to show cause of action pleaded by plaintiff, and entered on justice docket. Low v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 73.

Action of justice in making out and certifying transcript on appeal to county court held sufficient to show filing and approval of unindorsed appeal bond. W. G. Ragley & Son v. Hobbs, 32 C. A. 408, 74 S. W. 813.

On appeal from a justice's judgment, the justice is only required by this article to certify a copy of his docket entries, including adjournments of the trial to a particular day of the term. Gulf, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Scott (Civ. App.) 115 S. W. 870.

Under this article the disclosure in the record of an appeal bond from the justice to the county court is insufficient to confer jurisdiction, but the record must also disclose a transcript in accordance with such article. Wells v. Driskell (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 87.

Where the transcript on appeal from the county court contains no statement of plaintiff's demand or the nature of the action, as required by Art. 2302, but only shows judgment in plaintiff's favor for a certain sum, and shows no written pleadings filed by the parties in the justice's court and transmitted to the county court, as required by Art. 2396, nor that it was submitted in the justice's court on an agreed statement of facts, signed by the parties, as provided by Art. 1949, there is no affirmative showing that the county court had jurisdiction to render the judgment appealed from and it will be reversed. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Moore (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 608.

Under this article and Arts. 2393, 2395, 2397, whether or not a transmission of the transcript, which the party appealing must see is done is necessary "to perfect the appeal" technically, it is necessary properly to present the cause in the county court, so that dismissal of the appeal for want of jurisdiction, because of nonfiling of the transcript, after lapse of three terms of the county court, was proper. Cariker v. Dill (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 843.

Where the record, on an appeal from a judgment of the county court, in a case appealed to that court from the justice's court, did not show that the justice had made a transcript of the record as required by this article, the judgment must be reversed; it not being apparent that the county court had jurisdiction. King Collie & Co. v. Dunn (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1007.

—— Transmission—Request for.—When no appeal bond is required the party appealing should request the justice of the peace to transmit the original papers to the clerk of the county court. Edwards v. Morton, 92 T. 152, 46 S. W. 792.

Where plaintiff in justice court appeals to the county court, he need not give notice of appeal in the justice court nor file an appeal bond, but need only request the justice to furnish and transmit his transcript, as required by this article. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Milliron, 53 C. A. 325, 115 S. W. 655.

—— Compelling transmission or perfecting of record.—When a justice fails to send up the papers, as required by statute, he can be compelled to do so by a mandamus from the appellate court. Tex. & Pac. Ry. Co. v. Dyer, 2 App. C. C. § 312.

Where an imperfect transcript is sent up, the appellate court will award certiorari to secure a perfect record. Brown v. Grinnan, 2 App. C. C. § 413.

Where the justice fails to comply with the writ of certiorari, another writ should issue. Shepard v. Duke (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 567.

On appeal from justice of peace who has failed to certify the transcript, appellants held entitled to a reasonable time to have transcript perfected. J. A. Coates & Son v. Bryan (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 748.

A petition to compel a justice of the peace to certify appeal papers to a county court held insufficient. White v. Meyers (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 476.

Where, on appeal from a justice judgment, the transcript is imperfect, either party may procure a perfect transcript by certiorari from the county court to the justice of the peace. Brown v. Dutton, 38 C. A. 294, 85 S. W. 454.

A county court can, under the constitution, compel a justice of the peace by mandamus to send up a transcript in order that an appellant may perfect his appeal, as "necessary to the enforcement of that court's jurisdiction." Hart v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 520.

—— Pleading authorizing evidence for correction.—Statement as to pleading authorizing evidence for correction of the transcript on appeal from a justice to the county court. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1002.

—— Conclusiveness of.—The transcript is a necessary proceeding to fully have the case before county court, and is binding on the county court as to the entries and pleadings made in the justice court, and is conclusive, in absence of proof of fraud, accident, or mistake. M., K. & T. Ry. Co. v. Hamilton (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 1004.

The original pleadings being under this article as much a part of the record to be sent up to the county court on appeal from a justice as are the entries on the docket of the justice, the petition showing that the amount of plaintiff's claim was in excess of the justice's jurisdiction cannot be ignored in favor of the transcript of the justice's docket, in which the claim is entered as an amount within his jurisdiction. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hood (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 982.

—— Who may make.—In case of the resignation of the justice of the peace who made the order the transcript for appellate court can be made by his successor. Tedford v. Shell, 45 C. A. 468, 100 S. W. 971.

Dismissal of appeal—Want of prosecution.—Though a party appealing from a justice to a county court is negligent in failing to take proper steps to have the justice perform the duty imposed by this and the following articles, which would furnish a sufficient reason to dismiss the appeal, it would be for want of prosecution of the appeal with proper diligence, and not on the ground that the county court was without jurisdiction. Clarke & Donaldson v. Harris & Locke (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 202.

Art. 2397. [1674] [1641] Transcript, etc., to be transmitted to county court.—Such transcript and papers shall, if practicable, be transmitted to the clerk of the county court on or before the first day of the next term of such court; but, if there be not time to make out and transmit the same to the first term, they may be so transmitted on or before the first day of the second term of the court. [Id.]

Proceedings for transfer—Time for taking.—An appeal was taken from the justice to the county court, and an appeal bond was approved on the day judgment was rendered. All the papers filed in the case were entered on the docket of the county court. The transcript, showing the entries made in the cause upon the docket, was not transmitted to the county court until during the third term following. The justice had been requested to and promised to make the transcript. Held, under this and preceding article, that it was error to dismiss the appeal for want of jurisdiction of the county court, since, when the appeal bond was filed in justice court, the county court had jurisdiction, of which it could not be deprived by the failure of the justice to prepare and transmit the transcript. Clark & Donaldson v. Harris & Locke (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 202.

Transcript—Necessity of.—The case was tried in justice court and appealed to county court, but no transcript of the record was sent to county court, nothing but pleadings in justice court and appeal bond. Judgment in county court for less than $200. Appeal from county court to court of civil appeals dismissed because there is nothing in record to show that county court had jurisdiction. American Soda Fountain Co. v. Mason, 55 C. A. 532, 119 S. W. 714.

Under this article and Arts. 2393, 2395, 2396, whether or not a transmission of the transcript, which the party appealing must see is done is necessary "to perfect the appeal" technically, it is necessary properly to present the cause in the county court, so that dismissal of the appeal for want of jurisdiction, because of nonfiling of the transcript, after lapse of three terms of the county court, was proper. Cariker v. Dill (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 843.

—— Time of filing.—On appeal to the county court from the justice's court, the transcript not having been filed by the first day of the second term of the county court after the appeal was perfected, the county court had no jurisdiction. Railway Co. v. Connerty, 4 App. C. C. § 207, 15 S. W. 504; King v. Lacey, 4 App. C. C. § 255, 17 S. W. 143.

Appeal will not be dismissed where transcript is filed on the second day of the term. Campbell v. Bechsenschutz (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 971.

—— Objections based on delay in filing.—The failure to file the transcript by the first day of the second term of the county court after the perfecting of the appeal is mere irregularity, and to be available must be taken advantage of at the first opportunity. Railway Co. v. Connerty, 4 App. C. C. § 207, 15 S. W. 504; King v. Lacey, 4 App. C. C. § 255, 17 S. W. 143.

Dismissal of appeal, grounds for—Failure to file transcript in time.—A motion to dismiss an appeal from the justice's court upon the ground of failure to file a transcript, etc., in time is not maintainable unless the transcript, etc., has not been filed on the first day of the next term of the county court after the return term of the appeal. Foos Mfg. Co. v. Prather, 4 App. C. C. § 131, 16 S. W. 865.

Dismissal of appeal from judgment of justice of the peace, on ground that appellant and his counsel were negligent in failing to secure transcript to be filed within time required by law, held error; the duty of filing transcripts devolving on the justice. Tevebaugh v. Smith Land Co. (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 647.

—— Want of prosecution.—Though a party appealing from a justice to a county court is negligent in failing to take proper steps to have the justice perform the duty imposed by this and preceding articles, which would furnish a sufficient reason to dismiss the appeal, it would be for want of prosecution of the appeal with proper diligence, and not on the ground that the county court was without jurisdiction. Clark & Donaldson v. Harris & Locke (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 202.

—— Reinstatement of appeal.—An appeal having been dismissed on the ground that no transcript or original papers could be found, it was held that the cause should be reinstated on evidence that the transcript, etc., had been transmitted to the clerk as required by this article. Klein v. Shield, 3 App. C. C. § 207. See, also, post, §§ 15–20.

1. Parties.—On appeal from a joint judgment all parties interested in the result must be made parties to the appeal. Baldwin v. White (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 455.

Service of notice of appeal from a justice's judgment on a person not properly before the justice could not make such person a party in the county court. Butler v. Holmes, 29 C. A. 48, 68 S. W. 52.

One of several defendants in a justice's court may appeal therefrom without joining the codefendant. Jesse French Piano & Organ Co. v. Mears, 37 C. A. 179, 83 S. W. 401.

Where an appeal is taken from a justice's court to the county court, none but the parties to the case tried in the justice's court are parties in the county court. St. Louis & S. F. Ry. Co. v. English (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 424.

An appeal by one of several defendants from a justice's judgment carries the entire case to the county court for trial de novo. Uher v. Cameron State Bank (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 321.

An appeal by one party to a suit in a justice's court operates as an appeal of the entire case and nullifies the judgment in its entirety though another party fails to perfect his appeal by filing bond. Lasater v. Streetman (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 657.

2. Pleadings in justice's court—Evidence of.—On appeal to the county court the pleadings in the justice's court may be shown by parol evidence. Howard v. Faggard (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 188.

3. —— Presumptions.—On appeal from the justice's court it is presumed that a general denial was entered by the defendant, although it is not shown by the transcript. Fessman v. Seeley (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 268.

4. Pleadings on appeal.—Where an appeal is taken from a justice court to the county court, it is not necessary to allege that the defendant was negligent, though such allegation would have been necessary, had the case been commenced in the county court. International & G. N. R. Co. v. Pool, 24 C. A. 575, 59 S. W. 911.

The rule that a pleading in justice's court, though in writing, need not be more specific than if the case had been tried on oral pleadings, is applicable on appeal. Howard v. Fabj, 42 C. A. 42, 93 S. W. 225.

Where pleadings filed in county court on appeal from a justice court referred to the itemized account covering dates from October 3d to November 10th, but by mistake the pleadings used the date "October 10th" held, that the error was clerical, and judgment for the items included in the account was authorized. Houston Rice Milling Co. v. Wilcox & Swinney, 45 C. A. 303, 100 S. W. 204.

A second supplemental petition, which is, in fact, a reply to defendant's answer and not an amendment, and does not set up a new cause of action, may be filed on appeal from a justice's court to the county court, although such pleading is erroneously denominated "plaintiffs' amended supplemental petition." Clayton v. Ingram (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 880.

The pleadings on appeal from a justice to the county court are governed by the rules applicable in justice courts. Threadgill v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 707.

Parties to an action originating in justice's court held entitled to replead in the county court without complying with the rules of pleading applicable to cases originating in the county court. Barnes v. Sparks (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 610.

The parties in an action originating in justice's court may orally replead in the county court. Loomis v. Broaddus & Leavell (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 743.

Pleadings on appeal from justice's court need not be in writing, and oral amendments can be made. Daniel v. Brewton (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 815.

The designation of an action in a justice's transcript as a "suit upon contract for $185.00" was broad enough to permit written pleadings to be filed declaring on any kind of a contract. Thompson v. Baird (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 354.

5. —— Amendments in general.—On appeal defendant can only set up matters of defense which go to the merits of the action. Fulton v. Thomas, 2 App. C. C. § 244.

On appeal from a justice's court, pleading may be amended. G., H. & S. A. Ry. Co. v. Herring (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 580; Railway Co. v. Want, 4 App. C. C. § 167, 15 S. W. 40.

Party can amend his pleadings in county court on appeal from justice court. Clements v. McCain (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 122.

One who intervened in a suit in justice's court to foreclose a lien, but who failed to ask for judgment against defendant, could amend in the county court. Douglas v. Robertson (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 868.

Where plaintiff sued in the justice's court for special salary, it was error to permit him to amend in the county court, claiming an additional item as guaranteed salary. Sun Life Ins. Co. v. Murff, 31 C. A. 593, 72 S. W. 1040.

On appeal to the county court, plaintiff has a right to amend and increase his claim for damages by the insertion of an item involved in the same transaction, though such increase has the effect of giving the court of civil appeals jurisdiction. Von Boeckmann v. Loepp (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 849.

In an action for breach of contract, plaintiff may, on appeal from a justice, amend his pleadings. City of Van Alstyne v. Morrison, 33 C. A. 670, 77 S. W. 655.

On appeal from a justice to the county court, either party may amend his pleadings. Fowler v. Michael (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 321.

On appeal from a justice, leave to amend having been obtained while defendant was in court, he was entitled to no other notice. Id.

Error in allowing increase on appeal to county court of amount sued for beyond jurisdiction of justice is not cured by omission of county court to charge as to items increasing amount. Missouri, K. & T. Ry. Co. of Texas v. Hughes, 44 C. A. 436, 98 S. W. 415; Same v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 416.

A landlord suing for rent in justice's court is entitled, on the case being called for trial in the county court, to amend his petition by claiming a recovery of the rent becoming due since the commencement of the action. Blackwell v. Speer (Civ. App.) 98 S. W. 903.

On appeal from a justice's judgment, plaintiff held authorized, under district and county court rule 12 (67 S. W. xxi), to amend a demand for judgment by leave of court so as to conform to the proof before the justice. Bishop v. Lawson, 47 C. A. 646, 105 S. W. 1008.

A trial amendment on appeal from a justice's court is not subject to a motion to strike because it pleaded matter not pleaded in the justice court. Landa v. Mechler (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 752.

On appeal by a garnishee from a judgment of the justice, held, that an amendment to the garnishee's answer setting up other claimants to the fund besides the judgment debtor should be allowed. Davis v. West Texas Bank & Trust Co. (Civ. App.) 116 S. W. 393.

Amendment of petition after appeal from justice court to county court but before trial, so as to make the amount in controversy more than $200, held to defeat jurisdiction of county court. Texas & P. Ry. Co. v. Hood (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 982.

Under Const. art. 5, § 19, fixing the jurisdiction of justices in civil matters at not to exceed $200, exclusive of interest, and providing for appeals in cases where the judgment is for more than $20, exclusive of costs, and Art. 1950, an appeal from a justice of the peace cannot confer on the appellate court a jurisdiction which the justice did not possess, and hence it was error on an appeal by plaintiff to permit him to amend so as to state a cause of action for an amount beyond the jurisdiction of the justice. Taylor v. Lee (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 908.

On appeal from justice's court in a suit by a partnership in the firm name, amendment held properly permitted. Amarillo Commercial Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 377.

The allowance of an amended petition in the county court on appeal from a justice's judgment held not erroneous. Brown Grain Co. v. Tuggle (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 821.

Where the original cross-action filed by defendant in the justice court did not involve more than $200, the county court, had, on appeal, jurisdiction to entertain an amended pleading asserting the cross-action. Miller v. Burrow (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 958.

6. —— New cause of action or defense.—New matter cannot be pleaded in the county court. Curry v. Terrell, 1 App. C. C. § 239; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. R. Co. v. McTiegue, 1 App. C. C. § 460. But a plea may be amended so as to amplify the original statement of the cause of action. Mosler S. & L. Co. v. Campbell, 2 App. C. C. § 16; Durham v. Flannagan, 2 App. C. C. § 23; Fulton v. Thomas, 2 App. C. C. § 245; Cullers v. Wilson, 2 App. C. C. § 818; Hodges v. Peacock, 2 App. C. C. §§ 824, 825; Blanton v. Langston, 60 T. 149.

Art. 759 authorizes either party to plead new matter in cases removed to the county court by certiorari, but prohibits setting up a new cause of action. This rule applies to appeals. Curry v. Terrill, 1 App. C. C. § 240; St. Louis S. W. Ry. Co. v. Denson (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 265; Gholson v. Ramey (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 713.

A cause of action not pleaded in justice's court cannot by amendment be pleaded in the county court. Railway Co. v. Melear, 2 App. C. C. § 457.

A new or different cause of action cannot be pleaded in county court in cause appealed from justice's court. Bridges v. Wilson, 2 App. C. C. § 625; Laing v. Foundry Co., 3 App. C. C. § 463.

An amendment was allowed in the appellate court where no material change was made in the cause of action. Railway Co. v. Ivy, 79 T. 444, 15 S. W. 692.

On appeal to the county court the pleadings may be amended, but a new cause of action cannot be introduced into the case. Fergus v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 33 S. W. 273. Art. 759 is said to apply to appeals.

On plaintiff's appeal from justice's court petition may aver matters in reply to facts set up by defendant in bar, without being objectionable as setting up new cause of action. Moore v. Powers, 16 C. A. 436, 41 S. W. 707.

A statement filed on appeal from a justice court held not to have stated a new cause of action. Wright v. Dotson (Civ. App.) 93 S. W. 1075.

In an action on a contract, an amendment to a petition on appeal from a justice of the peace alleging a separate and distinct cause of action held properly stricken out. Wall v. Melton (Civ. App.) 94 S. W. 358.

Plaintiff, in an action in justice's court, could amend his petition on appeal to the county court so as to conform it to the details of the evidence developed at trial, without violating the rules against pleading a new cause of action by amendment. Wooley v. Corley, 57 C. A. 229, 121 S. W. 1139.

An amended petition filed in the county court, in an action in trover, begun in justice's court, held not to set up a cause of action different from that shown by the citation issued in the justice's court. Id.

Amendment of the statement of a cause of action sued on before a justice by a partnership to correct error in suing in the firm name does not set up a new cause of action. Amarillo Commercial Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 377.

7. —— Names of parties.—The citation and judgment described plaintiffs by their firm name. On appeal it is not error to permit the names of the individuals composing the plaintiff firm to be entered on the docket. Fulton v. Thomas, 2 App. C. C. § 245.

On appeal from a judgment of a justice the amended answer of a receiver of the defendant corporation held not to bring in as party to the suit another corporation having the same receiver. Lewis v. Warren & C. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 104.

8. —— General denial or want of consideration.—On appeal to the county court the defendant may plead the general denial or want of consideration, but cannot ask for affirmative relief. Swinborn v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 567; White v. Johnson, 24 S. W. 568, 5 C. A. 480.

9. —— New defenses.—Defenses not made in the justice's court will not be permitted in the appellate court. Harrison v. Railway Co., 4 App. C. C. §§ 69, 70, 15 S. W. 643; Curry v. Terrell, 1 App. C. C. § 239; Durham v. Flanagan, 2 App. C. C. § 23; Rush v. Lester, 2 App. C. C. § 442; Bridges v. Wilson, 2 App. C. C. § 625; Matula v. Fitzgerald, 4 App. C. C. § 70, 15 S. W. 644.

A defense not made in the justice's court may be made on the trial in the county court. Milan v. Filgo, 3 C. A. 344, 22 S. W. 538; Railway Co. v. Jones (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 424; Railway Co. v. Crossman, 11 C. A. 622, 33 S. W. 290.

On appeal from a justice's judgment, defendant may plead a defense in the county court for the first time. Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Lefevre (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 340.

Failure of consideration may be pleaded for the first time on appeal from a justice. McDonald v. Young (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 885.

Defendant is not required to plead in writing in the justice's court, but having filed an answer it is not error on appeal to refuse to permit the defendant to prove a defense not set up in the answer. Jones v. Parker (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 646.

New defenses may be set up in trial, on appeal from justice's court. Burns v. Staacke (Civ. App.) 53 S. W. 354.

Making a tender in a suit in justice court held not to prevent defendant from subsequently pleading res judicata. Mallory v. Dawson Cotton Oil Co., 32 C. A. 294, 74 S. W. 953.

10. —— Counterclaim, set-off, or reconvention.—A counterclaim cannot be set up on appeal which was not set up in the justice's court. If the counterclaim exceeded the jurisdiction of the justice of the peace, that fact affords no ground for entertaining it, when urged for the first time in the district court, in a case originating before a justice of the peace. The defendant must resort to a suit before some court having jurisdiction of the amount claimed for the enforcement of his rights. Boudon v. Gilbert, 67 T. 689, 4 S. W. 578.

An amendment to defendant's pleading on appeal from a justice court held not to plead a set-off or counterclaim different from that set up below. Clements v. McCain (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 122.

On appeal from a justice, defendant can plead as new matter that plaintiff's claim is on contract in restraint of trade. S. S. White Dental Mfg. Co. v. Hertzberg (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 355.

Motion to strike out plea in reconvention, entered after appeal from justice, held not too late, after plaintiff's failure to controvert defendant's statement that he relied thereon. Clements v. Carpenter, 34 C. A. 283, 78 S. W. 369.

That action of justice rendered it unnecessary for defendant to plead counterclaim held not to authorize him to plead it on appeal to county court. Id.

It is not error to permit a defendant appealing from a judgment of a justice to increase in the county court the amount of an account claimed as a set-off. Lewis v. Warren & C. P. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 104.

Where an action of debt was brought in justice court and a writ of attachment was issued and levied, and the defendant filed a plea of reconvention claiming that the attachment was wrongful and asking damages therefor, it was error for the county court upon appeal to permit the plea of reconvention to be amended so as to claim a recovery in excess of $200. Barnett v. Ward (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 697.

11. —— Abandoned pleadings.—A pleading which is abandoned in justice's court cannot be entertained on appeal. Rush v. Lester, 2 App. C. C. § 442.

Defendant does not abandon his plea in reconvention by failure to appeal from a judgment that plaintiff take nothing, even where the plea exceeds plaintiff's demand. Schneider v. Luckie (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 685.

12. —— Demurrers or exceptions on appeal.—An erroneous order sustaining exceptions to an answer on an appeal from a justice's court is harmless, if defendant is permitted to prove all that he desires to plead. Staples v. Word (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 751.

A pleading construed to be in the nature of a demurrer, and not to raise an issue of fact. Alvord Nat. Bank v. Waples-Platter Grocer Co., 54 C. A. 225, 118 S. W. 232.

A general demurrer to a petition filed in the county court on appeal from a justice does not reach the defect arising from the failure of the petition to aver when the account sued on was done. Threadgill v. Shaw (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 707.

13. Evidence.—See notes under Art. 1950.

14. Trial de novo.—See notes under Art. 1950.

15. Dismissal on appeal.—See, also, notes under Art. 1950.

Dismissal of action by county court on appeal from justice's court held error, notwithstanding dismissal of plea in reconvention, by which commencement of suit on Sunday had been waived. Benchoff v. Stephenson (Civ. App.) 72 S. W. 106.

Dismissal by the county court of a cause from a justice's court held not to reinstate the judgment appealed from. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McKee Bros. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 658.

Where an action is brought in justice court against two defendants as individuals, or against them jointly and severally, the plaintiff, on appeal in the county court, may dismiss as to one and seek recovery against the other alone. Grayson v. Hollingsworth (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1135.

16. Dismissal of appeal—Motion for.—On a motion in a county court to dismiss an appeal for want of jurisdiction, appearing from the judgment recited in the bond, the court will look to the transcript of the justice to determine the merits of the motion. Owens v. Levy, 1 App. C. C. § 408, citing Kirk v. Graham, 14 T. 316; Aycock v. Williams, 18 T. 392; Jones v. Nold, 22 T. 379; Darby v. Davidson, 27 T. 432; Seeligson v. Wilson, 58 T. 369; Kerr v. Nutten, 1 App. C. C. § 410.

A motion made in the county court to dismiss an appeal pending therein from the justice's court should be in writing. Tadlock v. Walden, 4 App. C. C. § 309, 19 S. W. 330.

17. —— Voluntary dismissal when jurisdiction attached.—When the jurisdiction of the county court properly attaches in an appeal from the judgment of a justice of the peace, the voluntary dismissal of the appeal operates to avoid the judgment of the justice of the peace. If, however, no appeal from the original judgment lies, or if the law regulating appeals has not been complied with, the judgment of the justice of the peace remains in force after an entry dismissing the appeal. Roberts v. McCamant, 70 T. 743, 8 S. W. 543.

18. —— Grounds for dismissal.—See, also, notes under Arts. 2393, 2396, and 2397.

When a judgment of the county court dismissing an appeal recites that it was because of want of jurisdiction, the judgment is conclusive until set aside, and estops the party complaining from attacking its validity collaterally. Roberts v. McCamant, 70 T. 743, 8 S. W. 543.

Where the record on plaintiff's appeal from a justice was materially falsified as to the bond and the amount of the judgment in favor of plaintiff, who declined to correct it, the appeal was properly dismissed. Landa v. Harris (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 551.

An appeal from a justice to the county court will be dismissed, if the record shows that the amount in controversy is not sufficient to give jurisdiction. Spencer v. Nugent (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 729.

On defendant's appeal from a judgment of a justice's court and trial de novo by the county court, held, that the county court could not properly dismiss the appeal for want of appearance at the trial. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McKee Bros. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 658.

19. —— Effect of dismissal.—Where an appeal from a judgment of a justice's court is perfected by defendant, so as to remove the cause into the county court for trial de novo, the appeal vacates the justice's judgment, so that a dismissal of the appeal does not reinstate or revive the judgment appealed from, and in respect to the result there is no difference whether there is a dismissal of the appeal or of the cause. Western Union Tel. Co. v. McKee Bros. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 658.

20. —— Reinstatement.—When a suit has been dismissed upon mistake as to facts, upon motion supported by affidavit showing the error, the judgment of dismissal should be set aside and the cause reinstated and tried on its merits. Klein v. Shields, 3 App. C. C. § 207.

On appeal from justice on appellant's motion to dismiss, the district court, on erroneously concluding that the judgment is not final, does not affect the judgment, which, by dismissal of the appeal, remains in full force. Jameson v. Smith, 19 C. A. 90, 46 S. W. 864.

Dismissal by the county court of an appeal from a justice's court held not to reinstate the judgment appealed from. Western Union Telegraph Co. v. McKee Bros. (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 658.

Dismissal for want of jurisdiction of appeal from justice to county court held to revive the judgment of the justice. Cariker v. Dill (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 843.

Where defendant's appeal from a justice's judgment for plaintiff was voluntarily dismissed by both parties, plaintiff held entitled to reinstatement of his cause of action. Williams v. Connell (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 291.

21. Review of proceedings in general.—The sureties on a bond are not entitled to have their motion to quash the sequestration proceedings considered on their appeal to the county court, where the property sequestered had been sold, and the proceeds deposited with them, to be applied to the judgment. White v. Lawson (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 842.

Where defendant replevies the property sequestered, and fails to appeal from a judgment against him on the merits in justice court, the sureties on his bond on appeal to the county court cannot have defendant's plea of privilege considered. Id.

Where a plea in abatement to a suit before a justice because of the pendency of another suit is sustained, and after appeal, but before trial in county court, such other suit is dismissed, held error for the county court to sustain the plea. Lackey v. Campbell, 25 C. A. 512, 62 S. W. 78.

Proceedings before a justice of the peace should be liberally construed. Amarillo Commercial Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & G. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 377.

22. Presumptions on appeal.—The appellate court cannot assume that a justice of the peace would deny a right because of an imputed disinclination to deal justly with railway corporations. Railway Co. v. Bacon, 21 S. W. 783, 3 C. A. 55.

23. Harmless or immaterial error.—The error of the justice's and county courts in assuming jurisdiction over a plea in reconvention held immaterial, when jury in the county court refused to allow anything on the plea. Rylie v. Elam (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 326.

24. Execution—Issuance after appeal.—A justice had no jurisdiction, after appeal, to issue execution on a judgment entered by him. Raley v. Sweeney, 24 C. A. 620, 60 S. W. 573.

25. —— Authority to issue after dismissal of appeal.—Unless a judgment of the county court dismissing an appeal for want of jurisdiction is set aside, the justice may issue execution on the judgment of his court, but not for costs of the appeal. Roberts v. McCamant, 70 T. 743, 8 S. W. 543.

26. Determination of cause on appeal—Dismissal for want of citation.—On appeal to the county court the want of proper citation and service in the justice's court will not authorize the dismissal of the suit. Boaz v. Paddock, 1 App. C. C. § 39; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. McTiegue, 1 App. C. C. § 459.

27. —— Reversal.—On reversal of a judgment on appeal from a justice because of an amendment stating a cause of action beyond the justice's jurisdiction, plaintiff on remand may reduce the claim to an amount within such jurisdiction. Taylor v. Lee (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 908.

Where it is not made to appear that the value of the chattels upon which a mortgage is being foreclosed in justice court does not exceed the justice's jurisdiction, the judgment will be reversed and the cause remanded. Brown v. March (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 353.

28. Equitable relief.—When a judgment is for less than $20 it cannot be set aside on appeal or certiorari, but the district court may, when the judgment is void, restrain its execution by injunction. Railway Co. v. Rawlins, 80 T. 579, 16 S. W. 430.

Where a judgment rendered for the plaintiff in justice's court is not final, and the justice of the peace refuses on request to correct it, and the defendant is thereby, under this article, deprived of his right of appeal, he may perpetually enjoin a sale of property seized under an execution issued upon such judgment. Lewis v. Kelley (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 1197.

29. Entry of judgment nunc pro tunc on appeal.—Judgment of county court, on appeal from a justice's judgment was properly entered nunc pro tunc on oral evidence, though no entry or memorandum had been made of record. Bradford v. Malone, 49 C. A. 440, 130 S. W. 1013.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Article 2398. [1675] [1642] Certiorari to remove cause to county court.—Any cause tried before a justice of the peace, wherein the amount in controversy, or the judgment, exceeds twenty dollars, exclusive of costs, may be removed from such justice's court to the county court by certiorari, under the rules prescribed in the title and chapter relating thereto.

See, also, notes under Arts. 742–761.

Discretion of court.—The writ of certiorari is not granted as a matter of right. The application for it is addressed to the discretionary power of the court, and should show that the applicant has rights or a valid defense of which he has been deprived by the erroneous action of the inferior court; or that, without fault or want of diligence on his part, he has been unable to present his rights or defenses. Railway Co. v. Odom, 4 App. C. C. § 106, 16 S. W. 541. See Arts. 742–761.

Time to move to dismiss certiorari.—A motion to dismiss a certiorari made after the return term is too late. Brown v. Spharr, 4 App. C. C. § 132, 16 S. W. 866.

Validity of justice's judgment.—Great liberality and indulgence is extended to judgments of justices of the peace. The test of their validity is their intelligibility. Clay v. Clay, 7 T. 251; Wahrenberger v. Horan, 18 T. 57; Roberts v. Connellee, 71 T. 11, 8 S. W. 626; Davis v. Rankin, 50 T. 279; Williams v. Ball, 52 T. 603, 36 Am. Rep. 730; Davis v. Bargas, 12 C. A. 59, 33 S. W. 548.

Art. 2399. [1676] [1643] Duty of justice on service of writ of certiorari.—Whenever a writ of certiorari to remove any cause from the justice's court to the county court shall be served on any justice of the peace, it shall be his duty immediately to make out a certified copy of the entries made on his docket, and of the bill of costs, as provided in case of appeals in article 2396, and transmit the same, together with the original papers in the cause, to the clerk of the county court in the manner and within the time prescribed in that and the succeeding article.

Art. 2400. [1677] [1644] Rules governing district courts, etc., to apply, except, etc.—Whenever the mode of proceeding in any particular case or matter is not prescribed by the provisions of this title, or of some other law or title specially relating thereto, the same shall be governed by the provisions of the title relating to the mode of proceeding in the district and county court in civil cases, in so far as the same are applicable.

In general.—This article does not apply the modes of procedure in the district and county courts to appeals from justices' courts. Pace v. Webb, 79 T. 314, 15 S. W. 269.

This article authorizes an action in justice court to set aside a judgment based on citation served by publication. Brown v. Dutton, 38 C. A. 294, 85 S. W. 456.

By virtue of this article, the provisions of Arts. 1831–1833 apply to justices' courts as well as to county and district courts. Kramer v. Lilley, 55 C. A. 339, 118 S. W. 736.

Nonsuit.—Under this article, and Art. 1955, a party may take a nonsuit after the justice has announced what his decision will be and before formal judgment is rendered. Pye v. Wyatt (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1086.

Stipulations of parties.—The rules requiring agreements touching suits pending to be in writing do not apply to a justice's court. Railway Co. v. King, 80 T. 681, 16 S. W. 641.

DEBT—PUBLIC

Article 2401. [3835a] [3677] Bonds and obligations declared valid.—All outstanding bonds or other obligations issued under the provisions of either of the following acts of the legislature are hereby recognized as valid and binding obligations upon the state; and the principal and interest thereof shall be paid in accordance with the terms of the laws under which they were respectively issued:

1. An act entitled An act providing for the issuance and sale of the bonds of the state for the purpose of meeting the appropriations made for maintaining ranging companies on the frontier, approved August 5, 1870.

2. An act entitled An act to provide money to pay the floating indebtedness of the state, approved March 4, 1874; an act supplementary and amendatory thereof, entitled An act to further provide for the sale of bonds to pay the public debt, approved April 13, 1874; and an act supplemental to the last named act, entitled An act supplemental to an act to further provide for the sale of bonds to pay the public debt, approved April 13, 1874, approved April 27, 1874.

3. An act entitled An act to provide for the payment of the bonds of the state of Texas that will become due and that are retireable in the years 1876 and 1877, and to make adequate provision for the floating indebtedness of the state, and to make an appropriation to carry into effect the provisions of the same, approved July 6, 1876.

4. An act to provide for the issuance and sale of bonds for the purpose of retiring the outstanding bonds of the state, and to supply deficiencies in the revenue, and to provide the mode and manner of the sale of said bonds, approved April 21, 1879.

5. An act to provide for the payment of the bonds of the state, carry into effect the provisions of the same, approved July 6, 1876, which was approved April 5, 1889.

6. An act to provide for the retirement of the past due bonds of the state of Texas, for the payment of interest thereon, and the issuance of other bonds at a lower rate of interest in lieu thereof, approved May 2, 1893. [Sen. Jour. 1895, p. 480.]

Art. 2402. [3835b] [3678] Laws to remain in force until obligations are discharged.—All the provisions of the several acts mentioned in the preceding article, in so far as the same may affect the public credit, the rights of the public creditors thereunder, the payment of the principal and interest due or hereafter accruing on any bonds or obligations issued thereunder, or the creation and disposition of any sinking fund provided for therein shall remain in full force and effect as laws of this state until the principal and interest of all bonds or obligations issued or accrued under such acts are fully paid off and discharged. [Id. 481.]

Art. 2402a. Officers of educational or eleemosynary institutions not to contract certain debts or divert funds.—That it shall hereafter be unlawful for any regent, or regents, director or directors, officer or officers, member or members, of any educational or eleemosynary institution of the state of Texas, to contract or provide for the erection or repair of any building, or other improvement or the purchase of equipment or supplies of any kind whatsoever for any such institution, not authorized by specific legislative enactment, or by written direction of the governor of this state acting under and consistent with the authority of existing laws, or to contract or create any indebtedness or deficiency in the name of or against this state, not specifically authorized by legislative enactment, or to divert any part of any fund provided by law to any other fund or purpose than that specifically named and designated in the legislative enactment creating such fund, or provided for in any appropriation bill. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 32, sec. 1.]

Art. 2402b. Debts and contracts invalid.—That any and all contracts, debts or deficiences created contrary to the provisions of this act shall be wholly and totally void, and shall not be enforceable against this state. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2402c. Penalty for violation; removal; misdemeanor.—That any regent, director, officer or member of any governing board of any educational or eleemosynary institution, who shall violate this act shall be at once thereafter removed from his position with such institution, and shall not thereafter be eligible to hold said position, and in addition thereto shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not less than ten days, nor more than six months, the venue of such case to be in the county in which may be located the institution affected by such acts of such offender. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2402d. Laws repealed.—That all laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith be, and the same are in all things repealed. [Id. sec. 4.]

DENTISTRY

Article 2403. Unlawful to practice without certificate; provided, etc.—It shall be unlawful for any person to practice, or attempt to practice, dentistry or dental surgery in the state of Texas, without first having obtained a certificate from the state board of dental examiners; provided, that physicians and surgeons may, in the regular practice of their profession, extract teeth or make application for the relief of pain; and provided, further, that nothing in this title shall apply to any person legally engaged in the practice of dentistry or dental surgery in this state at the time of the passage of this law. [Acts 1897, p. 123. Acts 1889, p. 91. Acts 1905, p. 143.]

Regulation as within police power.—The regulation of the practice of dentistry is within the police power of the state. Pistole v. State (Cr. App.) 150 S. W. 618.

Information.—In a prosecution under this article it was not necessary that the information allege that accused was not legally engaged in such practice at the passage of the act. Doyle v. State (Cr. App.) 143 S. W. 630.

Art. 2404. Same subject.—It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to extract teeth, or perform any other operation pertaining to dentistry, for pay or for the purpose of advertising, exhibiting or selling any medicine or instrument or business of any kind or description whatsoever, unless such person or persons shall first have complied with the provisions of this title. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2405. Board of examiners created, powers.—A board of examiners consisting of six practicing dentists of acknowledged ability as such is hereby created, who shall have authority to issue certificates to persons in the practice of dentistry or dental surgery in the state of Texas who are legally practicing the same at the time of the passage of this law, and issue certificates to all applicants who may hereafter apply to said board and pass a satisfactory examination. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2406. Members of board appointed how; term, etc.; vacancies how filled.—The members of said board shall be appointed by the governor and shall serve for two years. In case of vacancy occurring in said board by resignation, removal from the state, or by death such vacancy may be filled for its unexpired term by the governor. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2407. Oath of members; to be filed for record, etc.; fee of county clerk.—Before entering upon the duties of his office, each and every member of this board shall make oath before any officer authorized to administer an obligation who shall be empowered to use a seal of office that he will faithfully discharge the duties incumbent upon him to the best of his ability. The same shall be filed for record with the county clerk of the county in which affiant resides. The county clerk shall receive for recording the same fifty cents. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2408. Officers of board; meetings; quorum, etc.—Said board shall elect one of its members president and one secretary thereof; and it shall meet at least once in each year, and as much oftener and at such times and places as it may deem necessary. A majority of the members of said board shall constitute a quorum; and the proceedings thereof shall be open to the public. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 2409. Certificate to be obtained before commencing practice; examination, etc.—Any person desiring to commence the practice of dentistry or dental surgery within this state after the passage of this law shall, before commencing such practice, make application to said board, and, upon undergoing a satisfactory examination before said board, shall be entitled to a certificate from said board granting such person the right to practice dentistry or dental surgery within this state. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 2410. Examination fee.—To provide for the proper and effective enforcement of this title, said board of examiners shall be entitled to a fee of twenty-five dollars from each applicant examined; which said sum shall accompany the application, and which sum shall in no event be refunded to the person examined. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 2411. Board to keep record of persons authorized to practice dentistry, requisites.—Said board shall keep a record in which shall be registered the names and residences or places of business of all persons authorized under this title to practice dentistry or dental surgery in this state. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 2412. Member of board may grant license, valid only till next meeting of board; report of; inhibition.—Any member of said board may, when the board is not in session, grant a license to practice dentistry to any person whom such member finds on examination to be qualified, on the payment of two dollars by such person. A license so granted shall be valid until the next meeting of the board, but no longer. Each member shall make a report of license so granted by him at the meeting of the board following the granting of the license. A member shall not grant a license under the provisions of this article to one who has been rejected by the board as disqualified. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2413. Certificate to be filed with county clerk for record; fee.—Every person to whom a certificate is issued by said board of examiners, shall, within thirty days from the date thereof, present the same to the clerk of the county in which he or she resides, or expects to practice, who shall officially record said license in his office book provided for that purpose, and shall be entitled to a fee of fifty cents for his services. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 2414. Certificate may be revoked in what cases; procedure for.—Said board shall have power, when it shall be made to appear to said board by satisfactory evidence from credible witnesses, that any person who has been granted a certificate to practice dentistry or dental surgery has been convicted of a felony, or who has been guilty of any fraudulent or dishonorable conduct or malpractice, or such conduct involving fraudulent or dishonorable conduct or malpractice, to revoke his or her license to practice dentistry or dental surgery in this state; provided, that the license of no person shall be so revoked by said board without first notifying such person of the charges preferred against him or her, and citing him or her to appear before said board upon some day certain at a regular meeting of said board; and provided, further, that no charge shall be considered against any person unless the same shall have first been made in writing and subscribed and sworn to by some credible person and filed with the secretary of said board, who shall furnish a copy of the same to the party so accused at least ten days before the meeting of the board at which the same is to be considered. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 2415. Compensation of members of board and expenses; paid how, etc.—The members of said examining board shall receive the compensation of five dollars per day for each day actually engaged in the duty of their office, which, together with all other legitimate expenses incurred in the performance of such duties, shall be paid from the fees received by the board under the provisions of this title; and no part of the expenses of said board shall at any time be paid out of the state treasury. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 2416. Special fund for meeting expenses; bond of secretary; annual report and account.—All moneys in excess of said per diem allowance and other expenses shall be held by the secretary of the said board as a special fund for meeting the expenses of said board, he giving such bond as the board may from time to time direct; and said board shall make an annual report of its proceedings to the governor by the fifteenth day of December of each year, together with an account of all moneys received and disbursed by them in the pursuance of this title. [Id. sec. 12.]

DEPOSITORIES

STATE DEPOSITORIES

Article 2417. State treasurer to designate depository; bank may become bidder, etc.; other depository may be selected; "senatorial district" construed "congressional district."—It shall be the duty of the state treasurer, at the time and in the manner provided in this Act, to designate a bank or banking institution in each congressional district in the state of Texas, which shall be known as a state depository. Said bank or banking institution must be a national bank or an incorporated company authorized to do business in the state of Texas, and must have a paid up capital stock of not less than $25,000, and any such bank or banking institution may become a bidder under the provisions of any section of this Act; but each such depository shall be established and conducted in accordance with and subject to the provisions of this Act, and in no instance shall there be made to any such bank or banking institution any award of said funds greater than the amount of its paid up capital stock. Other depositories may be selected in lieu of those not selected from and for congressional districts and provided for herein. The term "senatorial district," wherever used herein, shall hereafter read and be construed to mean "congressional district." [Acts 1905, p. 387. Acts 1907, p. 183. Acts 1911, p. 2, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—Section 1 of Acts 1911, p. 2, amends sections 1, 3a, 6, and 9 of Acts 1905, c. 164 (p. 387), as amended by Acts 1907, c. 90 (p. 183). Section 2 of Acts 1911, p. 2, repeals all laws and parts of laws in conflict. Parts of Acts 1905, p. 387, and Acts 1907, p. 183, were incorporated in Rev. Civ. St. 1911, arts. 2417–2419, which are superseded by the above article. See Arts. 2422, 2425, 2428.

Cited, Horton v. Rockwall County (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 297.

Arts. 2418, 2419. Superseded. See Art. 2417.

Art. 2420. Treasurer to call for bids, etc.—Immediately upon the qualification of each state treasurer elected at a general election, it shall be his duty to cause to be printed a circular letter soliciting bids for keeping the public funds of the state for a term of two years next after the succeeding March 1, upon the conditions prescribed in this chapter. Said circular letter shall state the conditions to be complied with by the bidders, as hereinafter provided, and what each bid shall set forth, and shall require such bids to be forwarded to the state treasurer on or before twelve o'clock noon of the first Monday in February thereafter, and shall require that each bid shall be accompanied by a certified check for the sum of five hundred dollars, payable to the order of the state treasurer, which shall become forfeited to the state in case said bid shall be accepted, and the bidder shall fail to comply with the requirements as provided by this chapter, for the qualification of depositories; otherwise, such check shall be returned to the bidder. The treasurer shall mail a copy of such circular letter to each of the banks or banking institutions in the state, of the class before mentioned, and shall immediately deposit with the comptroller and attorney general a copy of such circular letter, and attach thereto a list of those to whom it has been mailed, as above provided; such copy and list so filed to be certified by the state treasurer under his seal of office. The state treasurer shall also keep a copy of such letter, and a list of those to whom it has been sent, on file in his office for the inspection of any person desiring to examine the same. [Acts 1905, p. 387, sec. 2.]

Art. 2421. Bids how presented, etc.; shall state what; opening of bids; selection of depository, etc.; no award in excess of paid up capital stock.—Bids sent to the state treasurer shall be sealed up in a strong envelope and marked, "Bid for the safe-keeping and payment of the deposits of the state funds;" and the state treasurer shall indorse thereon the time of the receipt of such bid. Such bid shall state the interest such bank will pay on the average daily balances to the credit of the state treasury in such bank. Said bids shall be directed to the state treasurer, and by him opened on the first Monday in February thereafter, in the presence of the comptroller and attorney general, and thereupon the treasurer shall select and designate, with the approval of the comptroller and attorney general, one of such banks or banking institutions as the depository of the state for each senatorial district. The treasurer may, with the approval of the comptroller and attorney general, reject any and all bids; and, in any case, the bank or banking institution offering the highest interest from each senatorial district shall be selected, if any. No award of state money shall be made upon any bid therefor greater than the paid up capital stock of the bank making such bid. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2422. New bids to be taken, how; requirements; award.—If for any one or more congressional districts no bids shall be submitted, or none shall be accepted, or the successful bidder shall fail to qualify, as provided herein, it shall be the duty of the state treasurer immediately after the date fixed herein for the opening of bids to advertise for bids in such daily newspaper or newspapers, of general circulation in the state as they shall deem adviseable [advisable] for proposals from any bank or banks of the class and character before mentioned in the state to keep, as a state depository as many equal portions according to the number of congressional districts of the state funds, not exceeding fifty thousand dollars as there are such congressional districts for which no depository has been selected not exceeding equal portions as herein before referred to, to be awarded to any one bidder; such bids to be submitted upon a date named in such notice not less than twenty nor more than thirty days subsequent to the first publication of said notice last above named upon the date named in such notice. The state treasurer shall open all bids received in the presence of the comptroller and attorney general, and shall, with their approval and consent, award the keeping of the number of equal portions, as herein before referred to, of the state funds, for which proposals have been advertised for to the highest and best bidders therefor, at the discretion of the state treasurer, comptroller and attorney general, one bidder makeing [making] a proposal under the provisions of this section, may be awarded the keeping of two equal portions or not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars of the state funds, and in such case such bidder shall deposit securities of double the value of the same class and character and give double the indemnity bond required by this Act for depositories selected from congressional districts and shall be governed by all the restrictions and regulations imposed upon them by this Act. All depositories selected under this section shall be required to file with their bids the same certified check to be forfeited under the same conditions, and their tenure shall terminate at the same time as depositories selected from congressional districts. No award shall in any case be made to any bidder under this section who shall propose to pay less than two per cent per annum on daily balances. For the purposes of this Act the term "equal portions" shall be construed to mean "as near as may be." [Acts 1905, p. 387, sec. 2. Acts 1911, p. 2, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—See note under Art. 2417.

Art. 2423. Bank complying to receive deposit, etc.—When said bank or banking institution of any senatorial district so designated by the state treasurer has complied with the conditions of this chapter, it shall be authorized to receive on deposit from the state treasurer, or under his direction, state funds not exceeding fifty thousand dollars for any one bank; and it shall be the duty of said state treasurer to cause the funds of the state to be deposited in said state depositories subject to the conditions and limitations of this chapter. [Acts 1905, p. 388, sec. 4.]

Art. 2424. Bank to be solvent, and shall give bond, etc.—Before the state treasurer is authorized to deposit any state funds in any state depository herein provided for, or to cause the same to be so deposited, he shall satisfy himself as to the solvency of said institution; and, in addition thereto, he shall require a bond in the amount of twenty-five thousand dollars; which bond shall be payable to the governor and to his successors in office; and said bond shall be conditioned for the safekeeping of said funds deposited and to meet the requirements of this chapter, in such form as the attorney general shall prescribe; and the same restrictions and requirements as to sureties thereon shall apply as are now or may be hereafter required in the bond of the state treasurer. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2425. Bonds to be deposited as collateral security, etc.—The state treasurer shall also require the deposit as collateral security for such deposit of state funds, of United States, state, county, independent school district, irrigation, public road, drainage and levy [levee] bonds or municipal bonds in the sum of fifty thousand dollars; but before any state, county, irrigation, public road, drainage and levy [levee] bonds, or municipal bonds shall be received as collateral security in such cases, they must be registered with the comptroller and approved by the attorney general of the state of Texas, under the same rules and regulations as are now required for bonds in which the permanent school funds of the state are to be invested; provided, such county municipal, independent school district, irrigation, public road or drainage and levy [levee] bonds must be worth not less than par. [Acts 1905, p. 388, sec. 4. Acts 1913, p. 330, sec. 1, amending Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 2425.]

Explanatory.—Section 2 of this act repeals all laws and parts of laws in conflict.

Art. 2426. Bonds to be delivered to treasurer; additional security when; inspection; recourse on; indorsement, etc.—The bonds above mentioned shall be delivered to the state treasurer and receipted for by him, and retained by him, in the vaults of the state treasury of this state; and if, in any case or at any time, such bonds are not satisfactory security to the comptroller and attorney general and treasurer, for the deposits made under this chapter, they may require such additional security to be given as will be satisfactory to them; and the comptroller, attorney general and treasurer, shall, from time to time, inspect such bonds and see that the same are actually kept in the vaults of the state treasury; and, in the event that said bank or banks or banking institutions selected as state depositories shall fail to pay such deposits, or any part thereof, on the check or checks of the state treasurer, he shall have power to forthwith convert such bonds into money, and disburse the same according to law upon the warrants drawn by the state comptroller, upon the funds for which said bonds are security. Any bank making deposit of bonds with the state treasurer under the provisions of this chapter may cause such bonds to be indorsed or stamped, as they may deem proper, so as to show that they are deposited as collateral, and are not transferable, except upon the conditions of this chapter. [Acts 1905, p. 388, sec. 7.]

Art. 2427. Depository to pay interest on average daily balance, etc.—Any state depository receiving state funds under the provisions of this chapter, shall pay to the state treasurer, at the end of each month, interest on the average daily balance for said month at the rate of interest agreed upon, which shall, in no event, be less than at the rate of two per cent per annum. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2428. Collectors, etc., to remit to state treasurer, etc.; duty of treasurer; accounts.—All tax collectors in the state of Texas, and all officers charged with the duty of remitting to the state treasurer state funds shall, after the passage of this Act, be required to remit all state funds to the state treasurer as required by law prior to the enactment of chapter 164 of the general laws of the state of Texas, passed at the regular session of the twenty-ninth legislature; and it shall be the duty of the treasurer of the state of Texas to keep with each state depository in Texas a correct account showing a true and correct statement of the account of said depository with the state of Texas, and the balance on hand in each at the close of each day's business. [Acts 1905, p. 388, sec. 9. Acts 1911, p. 2, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—See note under Art. 2417.

Art. 2429. Deposits in excess of $50,000 to be remitted to state treasurer, etc., forfeiture for failure, etc., notice, suit.—If any state depository shall receive, or have on hand, state funds in excess of fifty thousand dollars, said state depository shall remit forthwith, on the first of the next month, said excess to the treasurer of the state of Texas; and, in case any state depository shall fail or refuse to remit this excess, it shall forfeit its right to act as a state depository; and the state treasurer shall, at once, close his account with said depository, notify all tax collectors and others charged with the duty of collecting public funds for the state of Texas; and the attorney general of the state shall cause such action to be taken, if any, as may be necessary to protect the state's interest in the premises. [Acts 1905, p. 388, sec. 10.]

Art. 2430. Books, etc., of depository open to inspection, etc.—The books and accounts of any bank or banking institution designated as a state depository pertaining to public funds, shall, at all times, be open and subject to the inspection of the treasurer of the state of Texas, the attorney general or any district or county attorney of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 2431. Deposit or remittance made with or to whom, and how.—Any person whose duty it is to pay over to the state of Texas any money belonging thereto, or to any funds of said state, may pay the same to the state treasurer, or he may remit the same to, or deposit the same in any state depository which is then authorized to act as a state depository under this chapter, but, in case the party is a non-resident of the state of Texas, said money so due, or to become due, shall be remitted direct to the state treasurer at Austin. In any event said money, or any money due the state or any of its funds may be sent by registered letter in due course of mail, by postoffice money order, express money order of any company authorized to do business in Texas, or by personal check, or bank draft on any incorporated state or national bank authorized to do business in Texas; but, in such cases, the liability of the person sending the same shall not cease until said money is actually received by the state treasurer or state depository, in due course of business. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 2432. Treasurer, comptroller and attorney general to make rules, etc.—The treasurer, comptroller, and attorney general of the state of Texas shall have the right to make such rules and regulations governing the establishment and conduct of state depositories and state funds therein, as the public interest may require, not inconsistent with this chapter, which said rules and regulations shall be in writing. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 2433. State fund to be deposited in depositories, etc.; provided, etc.—All state funds shall be deposited in state depositories designated under this chapter, subject to the limitations of this chapter; provided, that the state treasurer is authorized to keep and retain in the state treasury at Austin sufficient funds to meet the current expenses of the government in case he finds it advisable so to do. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 2434. Penalty for refusal to deposit state funds, etc.—If any officer charged with the duty of depositing state funds shall refuse to so deposit the same in a depository authorized to receive the same he shall be liable on his official bond therefor, and for interest on said amount which he has failed to so deposit, at the rate of five per cent per month, at the suit of the state or county, as the case may be; and this shall be a cause for removal from office. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 2435. Depository shall act how long; forfeiture for what causes, etc.; new depository, etc.—Any banking institution designated as a state depository shall continue to act as such until March first succeeding the next general election held after its designation, and until the undertaking of its successors has been accepted by the proper authority; provided, however, that in case any such institution shall fail and refuse to qualify as such depository within thirty days next after its bid for state or county funds has been accepted, in the manner provided for in this chapter, or, in case it shall fail and refuse to comply with any of the conditions of this chapter, or fail to discharge any of the duties thereunder, it shall be considered a just cause for forfeiting its rights to act as said state or county depository; and, in such case, the proper authorities shall be authorized to withdraw all state or county funds from such institution at any time after five days' notice of such intention; and, in such cases, a new state or county depository shall be established under the same rules and regulations as herein provided for the establishment thereof in the first instance. The same rules and regulations shall apply in establishing new depositories after the tenure of depositories provided for in this chapter has expired; that is, the money shall again be let to the highest bidder, as in the first instance, and all other regulations with reference thereto before provided herein shall apply; but, in any case arising under this chapter, where two or more of the highest bids are the same, another competitive bidding for said funds shall be ordered as in the first instance. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 2436. Balances in depositories to be equalized.—It shall be the duty of the state treasurer to keep, and maintain, as nearly as possible, a fair and equal balance of moneys on hand in each state depository established by this chapter, in proportion to the amount each is entitled to receive, by drawing warrants alternately thereon or by apportioning the warrants so drawn. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 2437. Depository to issue to treasurer on demand, draft, etc., on U. S. reserve bank, etc.—On demand of the state treasurer, any state depository shall issue to him or his order, free of charge, a draft or exchange on any bank in this state, designated by the United States authorities as a "Reserve Bank;" which draft may be in any sum stated by the state treasurer not exceeding the amount of the state deposit in said depository. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 2438. Interest on deposits to become part of general revenue.—All interest upon deposits which shall come into the state treasury from state depositories shall become a part of the general revenue. [Acts 1907, p. 184, sec. 18a.]

Art. 2439. Other new bids to be taken when, how, etc.; award; collateral securities; bonds, regulations, etc.—If, for any one or more senatorial districts, no bids shall be submitted, or none shall be accepted, or the successful bidder shall fail to qualify as provided in this chapter, it shall thereupon become the duty of the state treasurer immediately after the date of opening of the bids provided for in article 2422, or upon the failure of the successful bidder to qualify, as the case may be, to advertise for bids in such daily newspaper or newspapers of general circulation in the state as said state treasurer, comptroller and attorney general, or a majority of them, shall deem advisable, for proposals from banks or banking institutions of the class and character mentioned in preceding articles of this chapter, in this state, to keep a state depository; and as many thirty-firsts of the state funds as there shall then be such senatorial districts for which no depository shall have been selected, not exceeding, however, two such thirty-firsts to be awarded to any one bidder, but in no instance shall there be awarded to any one bidder any amount in excess of its paid up capital stock; all such bids to be delivered to the state treasurer upon a day to be named in such advertisement, which shall not be less than twenty, nor more than thirty, days subsequent to the first publication of such advertisement. Upon the date named in such advertisement, the state treasurer shall, in the presence of the comptroller and the attorney general, open all bids so received, and shall, with their approval and consent, award to the highest and best bidder therefor, respectively, the keeping of the number of such thirty-firsts of the state funds for which proposals have been so invited, and for which such bids have been so made; provided, that said state treasurer, comptroller and attorney general may, should they deem it to the best interests of the state, limit such award to only one such thirty-first of the state funds; at the discretion of the state treasurer, comptroller and attorney general, any one or more bidders making a proposal under the provisions of this section [article] may, respectively, be awarded the keeping of two thirty-firsts of such state funds, not exceeding, however, in any instance more than one hundred thousand dollars, and not exceeding in any instance the amount of paid-up capital stock of the bank or banking institution making such bid; and, in any and all such cases, such bidder shall deposit securities with the state treasurer of the same class and character and of double the value, and shall give indemnity bonds of similar character and in double the amount required by this chapter for depositories selected under the provisions of this chapter from senatorial districts, and shall be governed by all the restrictions and regulations imposed upon them by this chapter; provided, that any and all depositories selected and qualifying under this article shall, on the first day of each month (or if such first day be Sunday or a holiday, then on the next succeeding day) remit to the state treasurer all state funds in excess of one hundred thousand dollars, then on hand, but subject to the provisions of article 2433. All depositories selected and qualifying under this article shall, at all times, during such term be permitted to keep on deposit such amount of state funds as may have been awarded to them, respectively, under the provisions of this section [article]. All provisions concerning certified checks in article 2420 shall apply to advertisements, bids and bidders under this article, and the terms to be embraced in bids and awards under this article shall be the same as under article 2435. No award shall, in any instance, be made under this article to any bidder whose bid shall be for less than two per cent per annum on daily balances in such depositories. [Acts 1907, p. 183, sec. 19.]

COUNTY DEPOSITORIES

Article 2440. Commissioners' court to call for bids for county depositories, when and how.—The commissioners' court of each county in this state is authorized and required at the February term thereof, next following each general election, to receive proposals from any banking corporation, association, or individual banker in such county that may desire to be selected as the depository of the funds of such county. Notice that such bids will be received shall be published by and over the name of the county judge, once each week for at least twenty days before commencement of such term, in some newspaper published in said county; and, if no newspaper be published therein, then, in any newspaper published in the nearest county; and, in addition thereto, notice shall be published by posting same at the courthouse door of said county. [Acts 1905, p. 392. Acts 1907, p. 208, sec. 20.]

Art. 2441. Bids when and how presented; to state what; other requirements.—Any banking corporation, association, or individual banker, in such county, desiring to bid, shall deliver to the county judge, on or before the first day of the term of the commissioners' court at which the selection of a depository is to be made, a sealed proposal, stating the rate of interest that said banking corporation, association, or individual banker, offers to pay on the funds of the county for the term between the date of such bid and the next regular time for the selection of a depository. Said bid shall be accompanied by a certified check for not less than one-half of one per cent of the county revenue of the preceding year as a guarantee of the good faith on the part of the bidder, and that, if his bid should be accepted, he will enter into the bond hereinafter provided; and upon the failure of the banking corporation, association, or individual banker, that may be selected as such depository, to give the bond required by law, the amount of such certified check shall go to the county as liquidated damages, and the county judge shall readvertise for bids. [Acts 1905, p. 392, sec. 21.]

Art. 2442. Bids to be opened when, etc.; award; interest how computed and paid; credited how, etc.—It shall be the duty of the commissioners' court at ten o'clock a. m., on the first day of each term, at which, by article 2440, bids are required to be received, to publicly open such bids and cause each bid to be entered upon the minutes of the court, and to select as the depository of all the funds of the county the banking corporation, association, or individual banker, offering to pay the largest rate of interest per annum for said funds; provided, the commissioners' court may reject any and all bids. The interest upon such county funds shall be computed upon the daily balances to the credit of such county with such depository, and shall be payable to the county treasurer monthly, and shall be placed to the credit of the jury fund or to such funds as the commissioners' court may direct. When selection of a depository has been made, the checks of bidders whose bids have been rejected shall be immediately returned. The check of the bidder whose bid is accepted shall be returned when his bond is filed and approved by the commissioners' court, and not until such bond is filed and approved. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 2443. Bond of depository.—Within five days after the selection of such depository, it shall be the duty of the banking corporation, association, or individual banker, so selected to execute a bond or bonds, payable to the county judge and his successors in office, to be approved by the commissioners' court of said county, and filed in the office of the county clerk of said county, with not less than five solvent sureties, who shall own unencumbered real estate in this state not exempt from execution under the laws of this state, of as great value as the amount of said bond (or of as great value as the amount of all of said bonds when more than one bond); and said bond or bonds shall in no event be for less than the total amount of revenue of such county for the entire two years for which the same are made; provided, that nothing herein shall prevent the making of such bond or bonds by a surety company or companies, as provided by law, and payable as herein provided. And provided, further, that the commissioners' court may accept in lieu of such real estate or surety company security, bonds of the United States, or of the state of Texas, or of any county, city, town or independent school district in the state, which shall be deposited as the commissioners' court may direct, the penalty of said bond or bonds not to be less than the total annual revenue of the county for the years for which said bond or bonds are given, and shall be conditioned for the faithful performance of all the duties and obligations devolving by law upon such depository, and for the payment upon presentation of all checks drawn upon said depository by the county treasurer of the county and that said county funds shall be faithfully kept by said depository and accounted for according to law. Any suits arising thereon shall be tried in the county for which such depository is selected. [Acts 1905, p. 393. Acts 1909, p. 165, sec. 23.]

Indemnity bond in general.—An indemnity bond, executed in order to induce a county treasurer to deposit the funds of the county with a certain banker, is valid and enforceable in case of the failure of the bank. Weddington v. Jones, 41 C. A. 463, 91 S. W. 818.

Art. 2444. Order designating depository; period; transfer of funds; penalty.—As soon as said bond be given and approved by the commissioners' court, an order shall be made and entered upon the minutes of said court designating such banking corporation, association, or individual banker, as a depository of the funds of said county until sixty days after the time fixed for the next selection of a depository; and, thereupon, it shall be the duty of the county treasurer of said county, immediately upon the making of such order, to transfer to said depository all the funds belonging to said county, and immediately upon the receipt of any money thereafter, to deposit the same with said depository to the credit of said county; and, for each and every failure to make such deposit, the county treasurer shall be liable to said depository for ten per cent upon the amount not so deposited, to be recovered by civil action against such treasurer and the sureties on his official bond in any court of competent jurisdiction in the county. [Acts 1905, p. 393, sec. 24.]

Art. 2445. If no bids, etc., funds deposited, where; interest; bond.—If for any reason there shall be submitted no proposals by any banking corporation, association, or individual banker, to act as county depository, or in case no bid for the entire amount of the county funds shall be made, or in case all proposals made shall be declined, then in any such case the commissioners' court shall have the power, and it shall be their duty, to deposit the funds of the county with any one or more banking corporations, associations, or individual bankers, in the county or in adjoining counties, in such sums and amounts and for such periods of time as may be deemed advisable by the court, and at such rate of interest, not less than one and one-half per cent per annum, as may be agreed upon by the commissioners' court and the banker or banking concern receiving the deposit, interest to be computed upon daily balances due the county treasurer; and any banker or banking concern receiving deposits under this section [article] shall execute a bond in the manner and form provided for depositories of all the funds of the county, with all the conditions provided for same, the penalty of said bonds to be not less than the total amount of county funds to be deposited with such banker or banking concern. [Id. sec. 25.]

Commissioners' power to award.—There being but one bid before the court, and that being for part only of the funds, the commissioners' court had full power, and it was their official duty if they deemed it advisable, to award to the bank making the bid the sum of money bid for, upon the rate of interest bid, which was in excess of the minimum prescribed by this act. Worsham v. Dyer, 43 C. A. 43, 94 S. W. 1081.

Art. 2446. If two or more depositories; clearing house to be selected.—When the funds of any county shall be deposited with two or more depositories, the commissioners' court shall select and name by order one of said depositories to act as a clearing house for the others, at which all county warrants shall be finally paid. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 2447. Treasurer's checks payable at county seat, etc., penalty.—It shall be the duty of the depository to provide for the payment, upon presentment at the county seat of the county, of all checks drawn by the county treasurer upon the funds of said county, as long as funds of said county treasurer shall be in the possession of the depository subject to such checks; and, for every failure to pay such check or checks at the county seat of such county upon presentment, said depository shall forfeit and pay to the holder of such check ten per cent of the amount thereof; and the commissioners' court shall revoke the order creating such depository; provided, however, the amount of its bid shall not be returned, but shall be forfeited to the county. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 2448. If depository not located at county seat, requirements.—If any depository selected by the commissioners' court be not located at the county seat of such county, said depository shall file with the county treasurer of such county a statement designating the place at said county seat where, and the person by whom, all deposits may be received from the treasurer for such depository, and where and by whom all checks will be paid; and such depository shall cause every check to be paid upon presentation at the place so designated so long as the said depository has sufficient funds to the credit of said county applicable to its payment. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 2449. Warrants, how paid, etc., and charged; statement; bonds, etc.—It shall be the duty of the county treasurer, upon the presentation to him of any warrant drawn by the proper authority, if there shall be money enough in the depository belonging to the funds upon which said warrant is drawn and out of which the same is payable, to draw his check as county treasurer upon the county depository in favor of the legal holder of said warrant, and to take up said warrant and to charge same to the fund upon which it is drawn; but no county treasurer shall draw any check upon the funds with said depository, unless there is sufficient money belonging to the fund upon which said warrant is drawn to pay the same; and no money belonging to said county shall be paid by said depository, except upon check of the county treasurer; and it shall be the duty of such depository to make a detailed statement to the county commissioners' court at each regular term of said court, showing the daily balances of the preceding quarter. In case any bonds, coupons, or other indebtedness of any county, by the terms thereof, are payable at any particular place other than the treasury of the county, nothing herein contained shall prevent the commissioners' court of any such county from causing the treasurer to place a sufficient sum at the place where such debts shall be payable at the time and place of their maturity. [Id. sec. 29.]

Art. 2450. If no depository selected, etc., may select at subsequent term, etc.; period.—If for any reason, no selection of a depository be made at the time provided by law, the commissioners' court may, at any subsequent time after twenty days' notice, select a depository in the manner provided for such selection at the regular time; and the depository so selected shall remain the depository until the next regular time for selecting a depository, unless the order selecting and naming such depository be revoked for lawful reasons. [Id. sec. 30.]

Art. 2451. New bond may be required; penalty, if not given.—If the commissioners' court shall at any time deem it necessary for the protection of the county, it may require any depository to execute a new bond; and, if said new bond be not filed within five days from the time of the service of a copy of said order upon said depository, the commissioners' court may proceed to the selection of another depository in the manner provided for the selection of a depository at the regular time for such selection. [Id. sec. 31.]

Art. 2452. Treasurer not responsible for negligence of depository; but, etc.—The county treasurer shall not be responsible for any loss of the county funds through the failure or negligence of any depository; but nothing in this chapter shall release any county treasurer for any loss resulting from any official misconduct or negligence on his part, or from any responsibility for the funds of the county, until a depository shall be selected and the funds deposited therein, or for any misappropriation of such funds by him. [Id. sec. 32.]

Art. 2453. Bids from adjoining county, when; requirements.—If there be no bank situated within the county that seeks to select a county depository, then the county commissioners' court shall advertise for bids in the adjoining counties in the manner hereinbefore provided in article 2450; provided, that when a depository has been selected by the county commissioners' court in the manner set forth in this act, said county depository shall, within five days after notice of such selection has been given to said depository, file with the county treasurer of such county a statement designating the place at said county seat where, and the person by whom, all deposits may be received from the treasurer for such depository, and where and by whom all checks will be paid. [Id. sec. 33.]

CITY, ETC., DEPOSITORIES

Article 2454. Council to take bids for depository, when and how; bids to state what; not to be opened until.—The city council of every city in the state of Texas incorporated under the general laws thereof, or incorporated under special charter, at its regular meeting in July of each year, is authorized to receive sealed proposals for the custody of the city funds, from any banking corporation, association, or individual banker, doing business within the city, that may desire to be selected as the depository of the funds of the city. The school funds, from whatsoever source derived, of incorporated cities is part of the city funds and is subject to the provisions of this chapter. Notice that such bids will be received shall be published by the city secretary not less than one nor more than four weeks before such meeting, in some newspaper published in the city. Any banking corporation, association, or individual banker, doing business in the city desiring to bid, shall deliver to the city secretary, on or before the day of such meeting designated by said published notice, a sealed proposal, stating the rate per cent upon daily balances that such banking corporation, association, or individual banker, offers to pay to the city for the privilege of being made the depository of the funds of the city for the year next following the date of such meeting; or, in the event that such selection shall be made for a less term than one year, as hereinafter provided, then for the time between the date of such bid and the next regular time for the selection of a depository as aforesaid. All such proposals shall be securely kept by the secretary, and shall not be opened until the meeting of the council for the purpose of passing upon same; nor shall any other proposals be received after they shall have been opened. [Acts 1905, pp. 260, 395. Acts 1907, p. 132, sec. 34.]

Cited, Capps v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Longview (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 808; Manhattan Life Ins. Co. v. Cohen, 139 S. W. 51.

Art. 2455. Award; bond.—Upon the opening of the sealed proposals submitted, the city council shall select as the depository of the funds of the city the banking corporation, association, or individual banker, offering to pay to the city the largest amount for such privileges; provided, however, the council shall have the right to reject any and all bids, and readvertise for new proposals. Within five days after the selection of such depository, it shall be the duty of the banking corporation, association, or individual banker, so selected, to execute a bond, payable to the city, to be approved by the mayor with the concurrence of the city council, and filed with the city secretary, with not less than three solvent sureties, who shall own unencumbered real estate in the county in which said city is located, of as great value as the amount of said bond; or said depository may make said bond in some approved fidelity and surety company, the penalty of said bond to be at least double the total revenues of the city for the preceding fiscal year, and conditioned for the faithful performance of all duties and obligations devolving by law or ordinance upon said depository, and for the payment upon presentation of all checks drawn upon said depository by the city treasurer, whenever any funds shall be in said depository applicable to the payment of said check, and that all funds of the city shall be faithfully kept by said depository, and with the interest thereon accounted for according to law; and for a breach of said bond, the city may maintain an action in its name. [Acts 1905, pp. 260, 396, sec. 35.]

See Capps v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Longview (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 808.

Art. 2456. Order designating depository; transfer of funds; penalty; penalty for failure to give bond; new bids, etc.—As soon as said bond shall be given and approved, an order shall be made by the council designating said banking corporation, association, or individual banker, as the depository of the funds of the city until the time fixed by this chapter for another selection, and such order shall be entered upon the minutes. It shall be the duty of the city treasurer, immediately upon the making of said order, to transfer to said depository all the funds in his hands belonging to the city, and, immediately upon the receipt of any money thereafter, he shall deposit the same with said depository to the credit of the city; and, for each and every failure to make such deposit, the treasurer and his bondsmen shall be liable to said depository for ten per cent per month upon the amount not so deposited, to be recovered by civil action in any court of competent jurisdiction. If any banking corporation, association, or individual banker, after having been selected as such depository, shall fail to give bond within the time provided by this chapter, then the selection of such banking corporation, association, or individual banker, as the depository of the city funds shall be set aside and be null and void, and the city council shall, after notice published in the manner hereinbefore provided, proceed to receive new bids and select other depository. [Acts 1905, p. 261. Id. sec. 36.]

See Capps v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Longview (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 808.

Art. 2457. Warrants how paid, etc., and charged; checks payable where; bonds, etc., payment of.—It shall be the duty of the city treasurer, upon presentation to him of any warrant drawn by the proper authority, if there shall be enough money in the depository belonging to the fund upon which said warrant is drawn and out of which the same is payable, to draw his check as city treasurer upon the city depository in favor of the legal holder of said warrant, and to take up said warrant and charge the same to the fund upon which it is drawn; but in no case shall the city treasurer draw any check upon any fund in the city depository, unless there is sufficient money belonging to the fund upon which said warrant is drawn to pay the same. No money belonging to the city shall be paid out of the city depository, except upon the checks of the city treasurer; and all such checks shall be payable by said depository at its place of business in the city. In case any bonds or coupons or other indebtedness of the city are payable, by the terms of such bonds, coupons or other indebtedness, at any particular place other than the city treasury, nothing herein contained shall prevent the city council from causing the treasurer to withdraw from the depository and to place at the place where such bonds, coupons or other indebtedness shall be payable at the time of their maturity, a sufficient sum to meet the same. [Acts 1905, p. 261. Id. sec. 37.]

See Capps v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Longview (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 808.

Art. 2458. If no depository selected, etc., may select at subsequent meeting, etc., period; new bond; penalty if not given; treasurer not responsible, except.—If, for any reason, no selection of a depository is made at the time fixed by this chapter, the city council may, at any subsequent meeting, after notice published as hereinbefore provided, receive bids and select a depository in the manner herein set out, and the banking corporation, association, or individual banker, so selected shall remain the depository until the next regular term for the selection of a depository, unless the order selecting it be revoked for the causes specified in this chapter. If the city council shall at any time deem it necessary for the protection of the city, it may, by resolution, require the depository to execute a new bond; and, upon failure to do so within five days after the service of a copy of the resolution on said depository, the city council may proceed to select another depository in the manner hereinbefore provided. The city treasurer shall not be responsible for any loss of the city funds through the negligence, failure or wrongful act of such depository, but nothing in this chapter shall release said treasurer from responsibility for any loss resulting from any official misconduct on his part or from responsibility for the funds of city at any time when, for any reason, there shall be no city depository, or until a depository shall be selected and the funds deposited therein, or for any misappropriation of such funds in any manner by him. [Acts 1905, p. 261. Id. sec. 38.]

See Capps v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Longview (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 808.

Art. 2459. Restrictions upon drawing, etc., of checks and payment of checks; treasurer's reports.—No check shall be drawn upon the city depository by the treasurer, except upon a warrant signed by the mayor and attested by the secretary. No warrant shall be drawn by the mayor and secretary upon any of the special funds created for the purpose of paying the bonded indebtedness of said city, in the hands of the city treasurer, or in the depository, for any purpose whatsoever other than to pay the principal or interest of said indebtedness, or for the purpose of investing said special fund according to law. No city treasurer shall pay or issue a check to pay any money out of any special fund created for the purpose of paying any bonded indebtedness of said city other than for the purpose of paying interest due on said bonds, the principal of said bonds, or for the purpose of making an investment of said fund according to law. The treasurer shall report to the council, on or before its first regular meeting of July in each year, the amount of receipts and expenditures of the treasury, the amount of money on hand in each fund, and the amount of bonds falling due for the redemption of which provision must be made; also the amount of interest to be paid during the next fiscal year, and such other reports as the existing law requires of him. [Acts 1905, p. 262. Id. sec. 39.]

See Capps v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Longview (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 808.

Art. 2460. Application of provisions of this chapter; definition of terms.—All provisions of this chapter shall apply to towns and villages incorporated under the general laws of Texas, as well as to cities so incorporated, and the term, "city council," as herein used, shall be construed to include the board of aldermen of such towns and villages; the terms, "city secretary" and "secretary," shall be construed to include the clerk or secretary of such towns and villages; the term, "city treasurer," shall be construed to include the treasurer of such towns and villages, and the term, "city," shall be construed to include towns and villages. [Acts 1905, p. 262. Id. sec. 40.]

See Capps v. Citizens' Nat. Bank of Longview (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 808.

Garnishment of funds.—See notes under Art. 1835.

TITLE 45

DESCENT AND DISTRIBUTION

[For Descent of Homestead, see title "Estates of Decedents," chapter 18.]

Article 2461. [1688] [1645] Where intestate leaves no husband or wife.—Where any person, having title to any estate of inheritance, real, personal or mixed, shall die intestate, as to such estate, and shall leave no surviving husband or wife, it shall descend and pass in parcenary to his kindred, male and female, in the following course, that is to say:

1. To his children and their descendants.

2. If there be no children nor their descendants, then to his father and mother, in equal portions. But if only the father or mother survive the intestate, then his estate shall be divided into two equal portions, one of which shall pass to such survivor, and the other half shall pass to the brothers and sisters of the deceased, and to their descendants; but, if there be none such, then the whole estate shall be inherited by the surviving father or mother.

3. If there be neither father nor mother, then the whole of such estate shall pass to the brothers and sisters of the intestate, and to their descendants.

4. If there be none of the kindred aforesaid, then the inheritance shall be divided into two moieties, one of which shall go to the paternal and the other to the maternal kindred, in the following course, that is to say: To the grandfather and grandmother in equal portions, but, if only one of these be living, then the estate shall be divided into two equal parts, one of which shall go to such survivor, and the other shall go to the descendant or descendants of such deceased grandfather or grandmother. If there be no such descendants, then the whole estate shall be inherited by the surviving grandfather or grandmother. If there be no surviving grandfather or grandmother, then the whole of such estate shall go to their descendants, and so on without end, passing in like manner to the nearest lineal ancestors and their descendants. [Act March 18, 1848. P. D. 3419.]

For the law relating to the distribution of the homestead and other exempt property, see Arts. 3421–3425.

Descent or hereditary succession defined.—Descent or hereditary succession is the title whereby a person on the death of his ancestor acquires his estate as his heir at law. Parrish v. Mills, 101 T. 276, 106 S. W. 882.

Former law.—By the laws of Mexico, in force in Texas at the date of the revolution, the ascendants and descendants of a person dying were his forced heirs. A parent having a legitimate child living could not, except for just cause of disinherison, dispose of more than one-fifth of his estate in his lifetime by voluntary donation to a stranger, by excessive donations to one or more of his children, or by his last will, and could not adopt a stranger as coheir with his legitimate child. And when a person died leaving forced heirs other than children, he could in the same manner dispose of only one-third of his estate.

By the act of December 18, 1837 (2d Cong., p. 106), legitimate descendants alone were thereafter considered forced heirs, and all persons having no legitimate descendants were authorized to dispose of their estates by will or otherwise.

By the act of January 28, 1840 (4th Cong., p. 167), a father or mother could not disinherit a child except for cause defined by statute, and could dispose of only one-fourth of his or her property by will or by donation in last sickness.

All laws of forced heirship were repealed by the act of July 24, 1856 (6th Leg., S. S., p. 6); and all persons were thereafter authorized to dispose of their own estate, real and personal, by will or otherwise. See Parker v. Parker, 10 T. 83; Charle v. Saffold, 13 T. 94; Crain v. Crain, 17 T. 80; Id., 21 T. 790; Epperson v. Mills, 19 T. 65; Teal v. Sevier, 26 T. 516; Becton v. Alexander, 27 T. 659; Escriche, Dic. Leg. and Juris., verb. Heredero.

Under the act of January 28, 1840, when only the father or mother survived the intestate, one moiety of the estate passed to such surviving parent and the other to the brothers and sisters of the deceased. Under the act of January 17, 1842, the surviving parent inherited the whole of the estate. Under the act of March 18, 1848, the estate descended as provided in section 2 of this article. Prendergast v. Anthony, 11 T. 165.

Under the Spanish law, in force until March 16, 1840, the parents inherited the estate of a child dying without descendants, share and share alike, without regard to the source from which the property may have been derived. Reese v. Hicks, 13 T. 162.

A. died intestate in 1865, without wife, issue or lineal ancestors surviving. He left surviving uncles, aunts and nephews of the maternal kindred, and aunts and an uncle of the paternal kindred. Held, that the estate was divisible into moieties, one of which went to the paternal kindred and the other to the maternal, to be divided as independent estates, share and share alike, between those of the same degree in each line, the nephews and nieces taking, as joint representatives of their immediate ancestors, the share to which they would have been entitled if living. Jones v. Barnett, 30 T. 637; McKinney v. Abbott, 49 T. 371; Young v. Gray, 60 T. 541.

Under the Spanish law, when the common law took effect, a parent was entitled to the administration and usufruct of all adventitious property (or property derived from other sources than the estate of the father) belonging to his child during its minority. The increase of cattle during the minority of the child became the separate property of the surviving father. Sparks v. Spence, 40 T. 693; Cartwright v. Cartwright, 18 T. 626; Belcher v. Fox, 60 T. 527.

Under an act of the legislature passed in 1856, land certificates were granted "to the heirs" of one who died in March, 1836. Held, that those who would have been entitled to inherit as heirs under the laws in force in 1836 were entitled to the legislative grant, and not those who were made heirs under the laws of descent and distribution in force in 1856, when the act was passed. Goodrich v. O'Conner, 52 T. 375.

Under the civil law, in force in Texas in 1836, the brothers and sisters of the full blood and children of brothers or sisters of a deceased brother or sister of the full blood inherited the estate to the exclusion of brothers or sisters of the half blood. Wardlow v. Miller, 69 T. 395, 6 S. W. 292.

A grant of land by the republic of Texas to the heirs of one who fell at the Fannin massacre inured to the benefit of such only as were heirs under the laws in force at the time of the death. Id.

Where the father died in 1877 and the mother in 1883, the title to an estate of inheritance, real, personal and mixed, when the owner dies intestate as to such estate and leaves no surviving husband or wife, but children, and also grandchildren whose parents are dead, descends and passes in parcenary to such children and grandchildren. McKenzie v. Ross, 74 T. 600, 12 S. W. 317.

In 1835 the wife did not inherit title to land from her deceased husband. Van Sickle v. Catlett, 75 T. 404, 13 S. W. 31.

A child died in 1847 leaving neither parent surviving, but leaving a grandmother and uncles and aunts. The descent was cast by the law one-half upon the grandmother and one-half upon the uncles and aunts and their descendants. Pease v. Stone, 77 T. 551, 14 S. W. 161.

The mother inherited land of her bastard son, who died in 1836 leaving no wife or child. Pettus v. Dawson, 82 T. 18, 17 S. W. 714.

In 1836, upon the death of an intestate leaving neither wife, child nor mother, descent was cast upon the father. Hardy v. Hanson, 82 T. 101, 17 S. W. 924.

Heir.—While the word "heir" means one entitled to the estate of his ancestor by succession (Brooks v. Evetts, 33 T. 732), it is also sometimes used as a word of designation. Under the laws granting land to the heirs of those who fell under Fannin, Grant and others, a certificate and patent issued to the heirs of such designated person will inure to the benefit of an alien, who could not claim the land by descent. Warnell v. Finch, 15 T. 163.

Descendant.—As a general rule, and when used in its accurate legal sense, the word "descendant" signifies the issue of a deceased person. Parrish v. Mills (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 184.

When status fixed.—The status of heirship is fixed by the law in force at the death of the ancestor without reference to the status at any other period. Lee v. Smith, 18 T. 141.

Domicile.—The descent of personal property is governed by the law of the domicile of the intestate. Wheeler v. Hollis, 19 T. 522, 70 Am. Dec. 363; Trammell v. Trammell, 20 T. 406.

The rule of inheritance of the state governs as to lands situated in the state, regardless of the law of the domicile of the deceased owner. Montgomery v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 1145.

A citizen of Virginia who entered the military service of Texas in her war for independence, and who died in her service, was at the time of his death, a citizen of Texas, and his estate descended in accordance with the laws of Texas. Waterman v. Charlton (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 779.

Persons entitled under a certificate and patent to the heirs of a citizen of Virginia, who entered the military service of Texas in her war for independence and died in such service, held to be determined by the laws of Texas in force when he died. Waterman v. Charlton, 102 T. 510, 120 S. W. 171.

Hearsay evidence of heirship.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

Will containing no devise.—Heirship cannot be established by the probate of a will as to property not devised. First Nat. Bank v. Sharpe, 12 C. A. 223, 33 S. W. 676.

Where a will contained no devise or bequest, but only defined the duties of the executor and guardian of the children of testatrix, the property descended under the statute of distribution. Buckley v. Herder (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 703.

Inheritable estates in general.—A vested remainder in fee is an estate of inheritance, which will pass to the heirs of the remainderman on his death. Arnold v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1162.

While the possibility of reverter limited to take effect on the happening of the condition provided against is not an estate which may be conveyed, it is nevertheless one capable of being inherited. Diamond v. Rotan (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 196.

Conveyance reserving vendor's lien.—Where a lien is reserved in a deed for the purchase price, the rights under such lien descend to the heirs of the grantor. Smith v. Pate (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 312.

The legal title, which remains in the vendor where a lien is reserved in his deed to secure the purchase money, descends to the heirs of the vendor. McCord v. Hames, 38 C. A. 239, 85 S. W. 504.

A conveyance of real estate reserving title in the grantor to secure the price held not an executory contract in the sense that on the death of the grantor the real estate descends to his heirs. Bledsoe v. Fitts, 47 C. A. 578, 105 S. W. 1142.

Debt due from heir as part of estate.—A debt due by an heir to the estate is a part of the estate, and is subject to partition and distribution. The heir owing the debt must either pay it, or take his share in the debt or the debt as a part of his share, as the case may be. Oxsheer v. Nave, 90 T. 568, 40 S. W. 7, 37 L. R. A. 98.

A creditor of an heir who owes the estate can acquire no better right in the estate than that held by the heir himself. When the heir owes the estate more than the value of his share, and does not pay the debt, he has no interest in the property of the estate, and his creditors by a sale and purchase of his nominal interest under judicial process, acquire no right in the property. Id.

Children.—The only class of persons who primarily inherit, on the death of a person, every species of property of which he may die seized, whether it be separate or community, are his children; the wife can take no interest in his community estate if they survive him, and if they or their descendants survive, no collateral or person in the ascending line can inherit any portion of his estate. Eckford v. Knox, 67 T. 200, 2 S. W. 372.

Under the facts, a child held to have inherited an interest in land from her deceased mother. Meurin v. Kopplin (Civ. App.) 100 S. W. 984.

Father or mother.—The mother was held to be sole heir of her minor son, who died intestate leaving neither brothers, sisters, wife, children, nor father. Spencer v. Milliken, 31 T. 65.

Other kindred.—On the death of a grandfather a distributive share of his estate passed to his two grandchildren, A. and B., born of a deceased daughter. On the death of A. his interest in the estate passed in equal proportions to B. and to his father, and on the death of B. the father inherited the remainder of the estate derived from the grandfather. Chandler v. Copeland, 31 T. 151.

On the death of the husband and wife, the estate being insolvent, it descends and vests in the heirs, subject to the homestead claim of the constituent members of the family surviving. Zwernemann v. Von Rosenberg, 76 T. 522, 13 S. W. 485; Childers v. Henderson, 13 S. W. 481, 76 T. 664; Hall v. Fields, 81 T. 553, 17 S. W. 82; Stephenson v. Marsalis, 11 C. A. 162, 33 S. W. 383.

When one dies leaving surviving him only one aunt and the descendants of two other aunts on the maternal side, and the children or descendants of three aunts on the paternal side, the estate should be divided into moieties and the basis of the partition of the moiety to which the paternal kindred are entitled is the number of the paternal aunts from whom the surviving kindred are descended, and the descendants of each aunt are entitled to one-third of this moiety, and should divide this one-third among themselves per stirpes. Jernigan v. Lauderdale (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 40, 41.

Where an estate comes within terms of subdivision 4, it should be divided into two equal parts, each of which for the purposes of distribution becomes a separate estate, one to go to the maternal and the other to the paternal kindred. Witherspoon v. Jernigan, 97 T. 98, 76 S. W. 445.

Where a will gave land to testator's wife, and then gave it at her death to her child, not yet born, but which was born alive after testator's death, one born of the wife's marriage after the death of the remainderman, though before that of the life tenant, does not inherit from the remainderman. Kesterson v. Bailey, 35 C. A. 235, 80 S. W. 97.

Adoption.—See notes under Art. 2.

Insolvent estate.—As to descent and distribution of exempt property of an insolvent estate. West v. West, 29 S. W. 242, 9 C. A. 475.

Insolvency of a deceased purchaser's estate held not to affect his heirs' right to recover land as against the vendor. Wiseman v. Cottingham (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 817.

Actions by heirs.—See notes under Art. 3235.

Art. 2462. [1689] [1646] Where intestate leaves husband or wife.—Where any person having title to any estate of inheritance, real, personal or mixed, shall die intestate as to such estate, and shall leave a surviving husband or wife, the estate of such intestate shall descend and pass as follows:

1. If the deceased have a child or children, or their descendants, the surviving husband or wife shall take one-third of the personal estate, and the balance of such personal estate shall go to the child or children of the deceased and their descendants. The surviving husband or wife shall also be entitled to an estate for life, in one-third of the land of the intestate, with remainder to the child or children of the intestate and their descendants.

2. If the deceased have no child or children, or their descendants, then the surviving husband or wife shall be entitled to all the personal estate, and to one-half of the lands of the intestate, without remainder to any person, and the other half shall pass and be inherited according to the rules of descent and distribution; provided, however, that if the deceased have neither surviving father nor mother, nor surviving brothers and sisters, or their descendants, then the surviving husband or wife shall be entitled to the whole of the estate of such intestate. [P. D. 3422.]

Former law.—As to the Spanish law of descent, see Boone v. Hulsey, 71 T. 176, 9 S. W. 531.

Surviving husband or wife.—The wife is entitled to a life estate in one-third of the real estate owned by her deceased husband at the time of his death. Scales v. Marshall (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 338.

Where a wife dies leaving separate estate, and the husband remarries, the second wife acquires no interest therein on the death of the husband. Dyer v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 441.

A husband has a life estate in the separate property of his deceased wife which is acquired by another by foreclosure of deed of trust on the land given by the husband. Stratton v. Robinson, 28 C. A. 285, 67 S. W. 539.

A life interest in the lands, including the minerals, the life tenants have had since the inception of the estate. They are entitled to judgment therefor. They might also have judgment for the damages they may have suffered because of this wrongful exclusion from the use of their share of the land. Lone Acre Oil Co. v. Swayne (Civ. App.) 78 S. W. 382, 383.

When the owner of a tract of land died leaving a widow and two children, the children each inherited one-half of the land subject to the widow's life estate in one-third thereof. Broom v. Pearson, 98 T. 469, 85 S. W. 790.

Where oil has been discovered in a tract of land in which the surviving spouse is entitled to a life estate, the owner of the life estate is entitled to one-third of the net proceeds of the sale of the oil after deducting all expenses of producing and marketing, the corpus to go to the remainderman. Swayne v. Lone Acre Oil Co., 98 T. 597, 86 S. W. 741, 743, 69 L. R. A. 986, 8 Ann. Cas. 1117.

On the death of a wife leaving a husband and brothers and sisters surviving, held, that one half of her land went to the husband and the other to the brothers and sisters. Keith v. Keith, 39 C. A. 363, 87 S. W. 384.

Where a plaintiff dies after he has obtained a judgment and after petition in error filed and bond for writ approved, the adjudged right passes to the surviving wife and children and they are proper parties to be made to further proceedings in the case. Binyon v. Smith, 50 C. A. 398, 112 S. W. 139.

Whether property was the separate estate of defendant's deceased wife, or was conveyed to her in trust for her eldest child, defendant in either event would take some interest therein upon the death of his wife and five of their six children. Irvin v. Johnson, 56 C. A. 492, 120 S. W. 1085.

On the death of a husband owning land as separate property, the land goes by inheritance to his children, subject to a life estate of the surviving widow, mother of the children, in one-third thereof. Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 739.

Testator bequeathed the residue of his estate to his executors in trust for his brother to pay to him the net revenues monthly, and, after five years, to convey the remainder to the brother in fee, if, in the executors' opinion, he should then be capable of managing the property prudently, of which the executors should be the sole judges; that, in case of the brother's marriage, he should have the right to occupy certain premises free of rent, and, at his death, before a delivery of the property to him, a part of the estate should be given to the pastors of certain churches, and the balance held subject to the order of testator's heirs at law, according to the laws of descent and distribution. Held that, testator's brother having died before the property was delivered to him, he did not take a vested estate therein; and hence, though he was testator's sole heir at law, and left neither father or mother, brother or sister, nor other descendants surviving, his widow acquired no interest in the property, under this article. The descent having been cast on the brother, the testator's heirs at law, on the brother's death, should be determined through him. Farrell v. Cogley (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 315.

Adopted child.—Under subdivision 2 of this article an adopted child of a person having no children or descendants but leaving a surviving wife, inherits one-half of the real estate which is the community property of the husband and wife. White v. Holman (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 438.

Abandonment of homestead rights.—Homestead rights in the husband's separate estate are lost by the wife by her abandonment of him. Such abandonment does not affect her life estate in his separate property. Cockrell v. Curtis, 83 T. 105, 18 S. W. 436.

Domicile.—Land in Texas, title to which was acquired by decedent's widow, also administratrix, held to descend one-half to her and one-half to his collateral descendants, notwithstanding the statutes of Georgia, where the parties resided and the estate was administered. Montgomery v. Montgomery, 101 T. 118, 105 S. W. 38.

Art. 2463. [1690] [1647] No distinction on account of source of property, except in cases of adoption.—There shall be no distinction in regulating the descent and distribution of the estate of a person dying intestate between property which may have been derived by gift, devise or descent from the father, and that which may have been derived by gift, devise or descent from the mother; and all the estate to which such intestate may have had title at the time of death shall descend and vest in the heirs of such person in the same manner as if he had been the original purchaser thereof; provided, however, that if such intestate was the legally adopted heir of another, and dies, leaving no surviving husband or wife, and no children, then so much of his estate as was obtained by gift, devise or descent, from the person adopting him, shall descend to the person and his heirs who adopted such intestate. [Act March 20, 1861. P. D. 3420. Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.

Descent from adopted child.—When an adopted heir receives, by gift, devise or descent, property from the person adopting him, and dies intestate, leaving no surviving husband, wife or child, then such estate will descend to the person, or his heirs, who adopted such intestate. Act March 18, 1848, 2d Leg., p. 29; Act March 20, 1861, 8th Leg., S. S., p. 25; P. D. art. 3420; Art. 2463.

Land descending to decedent from father's estate.—Where N.'s brother and sister survived their father and died seised of certain land descending to them from their father's estate, N.'s interest in the land which descended to the brother and sister descended to her as their heir, and not as the heir of her father. West v. Hermann, 47 C. A. 131, 104 S. W. 428.

Art. 2464. [1691] [1648] Rule as to whole and half blood.—In cases before mentioned, where the inheritance is directed to pass to the collateral kindred of the intestate, if part of such collateral be of the whole blood, and the other part of the half blood only of the intestate, those of half blood shall inherit only half so much as those of the whole blood; but if all be of the half blood they shall have whole portion. [Act March 18, 1848. P. D. 3424.]

Former law.—Where a Texas land certificate holder died prior to 1840, the land descended to his brothers and sisters of the full blood, to the exclusion of his brothers and sisters of the half blood under the Spanish law. Kirby v. Hayden, 44 C. A. 207, 99 S. W. 746.

Art. 2465. [1692] [1649] No corruption of blood, forfeiture of estate, etc.—No conviction shall work corruption of blood or forfeiture of estate, nor shall there be any forfeiture by reason of death by casualty; and the estate of those who destroy their own lives shall descend or vest as in the case of natural death. [Const., Bill of Rights, sec. 21; Act March 18, 1848. P. D. 3418.]

Sentence for life.—The conviction and sentence for life in the penitentiary does not operate a devolution of the property of the convict to persons who would be his heirs at law in case of his death. As affecting property rights, the conviction works no forfeiture of the rights of the accused. Davis v. Laning, 85 T. 39, 19 S. W. 846, 18 L. R. A. 82, 34 Am. St. Rep. 784.

Art. 2466. [1693] [1650] Persons not in being.—No right of inheritance shall accrue to any person whatsoever other than to children or lineal descendants of the intestate, unless they be in being and capable in law to take as heirs at the time of the death of the intestate. [Act March 18, 1848. P. D. 3423.]

Art. 2467. [1694] [1651] Advancements brought into hotchpotch.—Where any of the children of a person dying intestate, or their issue, shall have received from such intestate in his lifetime any real, personal or mixed estate by way of advancement, and shall choose to come into the partition and distribution of the estate with the other distributees, such advancement shall be brought into hotchpotch with the whole estate, and such party returning such advancement shall thereupon be entitled to his proper portion of the whole estate; provided, that it shall be sufficient to account for the value of the property so brought into hotchpotch at the time it was advanced. [P. D. 3426.]

Advancement.—An advancement is a payment, or an appropriation of money or property, or a settlement of real estate, made by a parent to or for a child, in advance or anticipation of the distributive share to which such child would be entitled after the death of the parent, and with a view to a portion or settlement in life. Holliday v. White, 33 T. 447; Woesner v. Wells (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 247; Ruiz v. Campbell, 26 S. W. 295, 6 C. A. 714; Wipff v. Heder, 26 S. W. 118, 6 C. A. 685.

A gift of money by intestate to her son exceeding his distributive share in her estate held an advancement. Morrison v. Morrison, 43 C. A. 339, 96 S. W. 100.

A conveyance from parent to child held presumably a gift to the child by way of advancement. Landrum v. Landrum (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 907.

Accounting.—Advancements made from the community estate to the children of the marriage during the life-time of the parents create no liability on the part of such children to account therefor to the father out of their interests inherited from the mother. If they receive from the father any part of the community estate (otherwise than by purchase), after the death of the mother, they must account therefor on partition. Wilson v. Helms, 59 T. 680.

This statute, it seems, was inserted out of abundance of caution. The position taken in this case, that the rule which requires a debtor distributee to account for his debt does not apply to real estate, is held not tenable. Oxsheer v. Nave, 90 T. 568, 40 S. W. 7, 37 L. R. A. 98.

Heirs held not bound to account on final distribution or partition for property received from the intestate in his lifetime, in the absence of proof that such transfers were not gifts. Smart v. Panther, 42 C. A. 262, 95 S. W. 679.

If the clause providing that the land should be accepted by the son as a portion of the father's estate at its estimated value "whenever my estate shall be divided among my heirs after my death as one of my heirs" was intended to evidence a contract between the son and his father that the son should account for the land at its valuation at the time of the division of the father's estate, it would be violative of this article. Burgess v. McCommas (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 382.

Intention.—Property conveyed by the father to the children of himself and of a deceased wife is, if a part of the community estate, presumed to have been conveyed in discharge of the interest of the children in such community estate to the extent of the value of the property so conveyed. Nor is this rule varied by the fact that the conveyance to the child purports to be a gift, unless it appears that it was the intention of the father to make a gift in addition to, and not in satisfaction of, the child's interest in the community; and such intention may be shown, though not expressed in the conveyance. Sparks v. Spence, 40 T. 693.

When advancements are made of other than community estate, the question of the intention with which they are made is for the jury. Id.

Sale of community property by surviving parent.—Where a land certificate is community property, and after the death of the mother is conveyed by the father, in the absence of some fact giving him power to convey, the children must be entitled to one-half of the land, less the value of such property as they have received from their father or his estate. The rule as to the determination of the value of the community property, sold without authority by the surviving parent, is that the property should be valued as at the time it is received from the surviving parent or his estate. Belcher v. Fox, 60 T. 527.

Value.—In a contest between heirs each must account for whatever was received by way of advancement out of the community estate, unless it is shown that it was given with a different intention. In either case the advancement is to be estimated at its value when made, and is to be deducted from the interest of the child receiving it in the community property, which is to be considered with reference to its value at the same time. Sparks v. Spence, 40 T. 693.

Art. 2468. [1695] [1652] Per capita and per stirpes.—When the intestate's children, or brothers and sisters, uncles and aunts, or any other relations of the deceased standing in the first and same degree alone come into the partition, they shall take per capita—that is to say, by persons; and, when a part of them being dead and a part living, the descendants of those dead have right to partition, such descendants shall inherit only such portion of said property as the parent through whom they inherit would be entitled to if alive. [Acts 1887, p. 49.]

Application.—This article does not apply where the surviving kindred are aunts and their descendants on the maternal side and cousins and their descendants on the paternal side, but the partition must be made under Art. 2461. Jernigan v. Lauderdale (Civ. App.) 73 S. W. 40, 41.

In the first or same degree.—A literal construction of the following phrase embraced in this article, "or any other relations of the deceased standing in the first and same degree" would produce an absurdity, for "same" as there used with the copulative conjunction "and" refers back to "first" and means the same as first degree, which would be equivalent to saying "in the first and first degree." This can be easily avoided by giving to the word "and" the meaning of "or" and reading the phrase "in the first or same degree." Witherspoon v. Jernigan, 97 T. 98, 76 S. W. 447.

Per capita.—The grandchildren of an intestate take by substitution, not through, but paramount to, their parent. The property so descending is not charged with the debts of such parent. Powers v. Morrison, 30 S. W. 851, 88 T. 133, 28 L. R. A. 521, 53 Am. St. Rep. 738.

Art. 2469. [1696] [1653] Rule as to community estate.—Upon the dissolution of the marriage relation by death, all property belonging to the community estate of the husband and wife shall go to the survivor, if there be no child or children of the deceased or their descendants; but if there be a child or children of the deceased, or descendants of such child or children, then the survivor shall be entitled to one-half of said property, and the other half shall pass to such child or children, or their descendants. But such descendants shall inherit only such portion of said property as the parent through whom they inherit would be entitled to if alive. [Acts 1887, p. 76.]

See, also, notes under Arts. 3426, 3556, 3559, 3592–3614.

Rights of children or heirs.—In construing this article it has been held that the term "child or children" refers to descendants in the first degree only, and if a husband or wife dies leaving grandchildren, but no children, the entire community estate passes to the surviving spouse. Burgess v. Hargrove, 64 T. 110; Cartwright v. Moore, 66 T. 55, 1 S. W. 263.

Heirs having on the death of their mother received more than one-half of the community estate on hand at the death of the father cannot recover their community interest in property conveyed by her. Brown v. Elmendorf, 26 S. W. 1043, 87 T. 56.

On death of husband of surviving second wife, his children by the first wife held entitled to one-half of the community property, and, together with his children by the second wife, the other half subject to the life estate of the widow in such half. Clemons v. Clemons (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 199.

Where husband and wife lived on 240 acres of community land as their homestead, on their mother's death one-half becomes the property of the children, subject to homestead right of father in 200 acres. Crocker v. Crocker, 19 C. A. 296, 46 S. W. 870.

On the death of a child having an interest in the community estate of his deceased father and his surviving mother, his interest in the estate of his father vested directly in his lawful heirs. McAnulty v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 670.

On the death of a husband, his one-half interest in the community property vests directly in his heirs. Id.

In an action by an executor to determine the adverse claims of the heirs of deceased, evidence held sufficient to sustain the finding that the wife of deceased left no children surviving her, and that upon her death her interest in the community estate vested in plaintiff's testator. Stein v. Mentz, 42 C. A. 38, 94 S. W. 447.

A sale of community property under a chattel mortgage given by the husband of the deceased owner's daughter vests in the purchaser whatever title the mortgagor had. American Nat. Bank of Paris v. First Nat. Bank, 52 C. A. 519, 114 S. W. 176.

In view of conveyances of land to a married man, a child on the death of the wife inherited an undivided one-half of the property conveyed. Colville v. Colville (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 870.

The descent of the interest of a child in his mother's estate under the law in force in 1835, determined. Hardy Oil Co. v. Burnham (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 221.

Children of a first marriage become the owners of their mother's undivided one-half of the community property belonging to that marriage. Lynch v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 461.

Grandchildren are not children, within this article. Ross v. Martin, 104 T. 558, 140 S. W. 432.

The interest of a deceased wife in community property held to vest in her children, subject to the homestead rights of her husband, and charged with the unpaid purchase price. Richmond v. Sims (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1142.

A charge created by a payment of community funds held community property and subject to rules of descent of personalty. Id.

Rights and liabilities of survivor.—A surviving husband takes a life estate in one-third of lands which were the separate property of his deceased wife, but not in her moiety of the community lands. Walker v. Young, 37 T. 519.

Advancements from the community estate to the children during the life-time of the parents are not to be accounted for to the father out of the interests inherited from the mother. That given out of the community estate after the death of the mother must be accounted for on partition. Wilson v. Helms, 59 T. 680; Art. 3593. See Ashe v. Yungst, 65 T. 631.

Where the wife leaves no children surviving her, her interest in the community, upon her death, vests in her husband. Stein v. Metz, 42 C. A. 38, 94 S. W. 449.

A surviving second wife held not entitled to judgment for more than her proportionate share of personal property owned as community property by her deceased husband and a deceased first wife. Cox v. Oliver, 43 C. A. 110, 95 S. W. 596.

A wife's interest in community property descends to her heirs. Mitchell v. Schofield (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 254.

Where husband and wife obtain title to land by adverse possession, it is community property, and upon the death of the husband before his wife, they having no children, title vests in the wife under this article and upon her death passed to her heirs and not to the heirs, of the husband. Adels v. Joseph (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1154.

—— Sale, mortgage, or conveyance by survivor.—Facts held not to show that the heirs of a deceased wife were tenants in common with those claiming under an unauthorized conveyance of community property by the surviving husband. Hardy Oil Co. v. Burnham (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 221.

Under Const. 1876, art. 16, § 52, providing that, on the death of the husband, the homestead shall descend as other real property, but it shall not be partitioned among the heirs during the lifetime of the surviving wife, this article, and Arts. 3424, 3429, providing that, on the death of a husband or wife, one half of the community property shall pass to the survivor and the other half to the children of the marriage, and that the homestead shall not be partitioned among the heirs during the lifetime of the widow, etc., the prohibition against a partition is as to the children, and not as to those claiming an interest through titles otherwise acquired than by descent from the deceased husband, and, where the widow mortgages her undivided interest in the community homestead, on a foreclosure sale the purchaser may bring partition against the children. Savings & Loan Co. v. Bristoll (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 641.

See, also, notes under Art. 3592 et seq.

—— Testamentary disposition.—Under this article, upon a wife's death leaving children, one-half of the community property would go to the children subject to community debts, so that the husband could not dispose of such half by will. Tomlinson v. H. P. Drought & Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 262. See, also, notes under Title 135.

—— Election.—After the death of the husband the widow must elect whether she will claim her interest in the community estate or take under the will. Lee v. McFarland, 19 C. A. 292, 46 S. W. 291. See, also, notes under Title 135.

—— Forfeiture.—Under this article, held, that the fact that the wife had murdered her husband or procured him to be murdered for the sole purpose of investing herself with the title of his property did not forfeit her right thereto. Hill v. Noland (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 288.

Administration.—On the death of the wife without children the community property belongs to the surviving husband, and neither the county court nor the administrator of the wife can exercise any control over it; and it would seem that the husband is not required to file an inventory and appraisement, under Title 52, Chapter 29. Wall v. Clark, 19 T. 321.

Community property may be administered by the administrator of the husband in paying community debts. Halbert v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1102.

Without administration, or qualification as survivor, the husband has no power over the interest of the children, except that which would arise by reason of the analogy to a partnership estate or as tenant in common. Whatever may be the character of the title of the husband in community property while the wife lives, he has not the legal title with the powers incident thereto after her death. Wiess v. Goodhue, 98 T. 274, 83 S. W. 179.

The husband on the death of the wife, when there is a community estate, has the choice to administer regularly on his wife's estate or to take charge of the estate as community administrator and survivor of the community, but in either case the property vests in the children at the death of their mother. Belt v. Cetti, 100 T. 92, 93 S. W. 1002.

See, also, notes under Arts. 3592-3614.

Rights of creditors of heirs.—Where a son surrendered his interest in community property to his mother in consideration of an advancement, such interest was not subject to execution for his debts. Everett v. Kemp (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 534.

Art. 2470. [1697] [1654] Passes charged with debts.—In every case, the community estate passes charged with the debts against it. [P. D. 5498.]

See notes under Art. 3592.

Art. 2471. [1698] [1655] Jus accrescendi abolished.—Where two or more persons hold an estate, real, personal or mixed, jointly, and one joint owner dies before severance, his interest in said joint estate shall not survive to the remaining joint owner or joint owners, but shall descend to, and be vested in, the heirs or legal representatives of such deceased joint owner in the same manner as if his interest had been severed and ascertained. [Act March 18, 1848. P. D. 3429.]

Estate in general—Effect of provision.—The effect of this provision is to destroy the numerous and important distinctions between the several kinds of estates at common law, and for all practical purposes reduce them to an estate in common, with the rights and remedies that appertained to tenants in coparcenary at common law. Ross v. Armstrong, 25 T. Sup. 354, 78 Am. Dec. 574; Pilcher v. Kirk, 55 T. 208; Id., 60 T. 162; Hancock v. Tram Lumber Co., 65 T. 225.

Art. 2472. [1699] [1656] Illegitimate children and issue of void marriages.—Where a man, having by a woman a child or children, shall afterward intermarry with such woman, such child or children, if recognized by him, shall thereby be legitimated and made capable of inheriting his estate. The issue also of marriages deemed null in law shall nevertheless be legitimate. [P. D. 3427.]

Former law.—A similar provision is found in the act of January 28, 1840. The section was repealed in 1842, and was re-enacted by the act of March 18, 1848 (2d Leg., p. 129). Hartwell v. Jackson, 7 T. 576.

Common-law rule.—A bastard could not inherit. Berry v. Powell, 47 C. A. 599, 105 S. W. 345. See Conrad v. Herring, 36 C. A. 616, 83 S. W. 427; Lee v. Bolden (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1027.

The common law governs the relation of illegitimate children to their fathers, and it does not recognize any right in them to any interest in their father's estate. Hayworth v. Williams, 102 T. 308, 116 S. W. 43.

Marriage adjudged null.—The issue of marriages deemed null in law, without regard to the grounds of nullity, are legitimated and are consequently endowed with all the rights of the legitimate issue. Hayworth v. Williams, 56 C. A. 179, 120 S. W. 1139.

Art. 2473. [1700] [1657] Bastards inherit from mother.—Bastards shall be capable of inheriting from and through their mother, and of transmitting estates, and shall also be entitled to distributive shares of the personal estates of any of their kindred, on the part of their mother, in like manner as if they had been lawfully begotten of such mother. [P. D. 3428.]

Inheritance from legitimate uterine brother.—An illegitimate sister of legitimate half-brother, both being children of same mother, can inherit from said half-brother. Berry v. Powell, 47 C. A. 599, 105 S. W. 345.

Estate descending to wife and sister.—Upon the death of a childless intestate bastard without children's descendants his wife is entitled to all the personal estate and one half of his lands, and his bastard only sister to the other half of his real property. Berry v. Powell, 47 C. A. 599, 105 S. W. 345.

Death of mother before descent cast on her.—Bastard children of the same mother may inherit from each other through their mother, notwithstanding her mother died before descent was cast upon her. Berry v. Tullis (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 348.

Right of bastard to sue for causing death of his mother.—See notes under Art. 4694.

Art. 2474. [1701] [1658] Alienage no bar to inheritance.—In taking title to land by descent, it shall be no bar to a party that any ancestor through whom he derives his descent from the intestate, is or hath been an alien. [P. D. 44, 45, 46.]

In general.—An alien may inherit land in Texas. Hanrick v. Gurley, 93 T. 458, 54 S. W. 347.

Prior law.—Under the laws of Mexico in force in Texas prior to the revolution, the heirs of an alien residing in the United States could not maintain an action for the recovery of land belonging to their ancestor. Holliman v. Peebles, 1 T. 673; Yates v. Iams, 10 T. 168; Hornsby v. Bacon, 20 T. 556; Blythe v. Easterling, 20 T. 565; McGahan v. Baylor, 32 T. 789.

The provision of the constitution of the republic of Texas, that, if any citizen of the republic should die intestate or otherwise, his children or heirs should inherit his estate, and that aliens should have a reasonable time to take possession of and dispose of the same, etc., was prospective in its operation and did not include alien heirs of persons who had previously died. Hornsby v. Bacon, 20 T. 556; Blythe v. Easterling, 20 T. 565; Warnell v. Finch, 15 T. 163.

An heir domiciled outside the republic of Texas could acquire no right to land belonging to one dying therein. Douthit v. Southern (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 315.

What law governs.—When at the time of an ancestor's death the government of an alien heir did not permit a citizen of the United States to inherit an estate in fee simple, but before the expiration of nine years accorded that right, the defeasible title to Texas land inherited by the alien heir was, upon the enactment of the law granting the right of inheritance by the former government, converted into an indefeasible title. Hanrick v. Hanrick, 61 T. 596.

Citizenship.—A foreigner who has declared his intention to become a citizen can acquire real estate by purchase and on his death transmit it by descent to his children born abroad, who came to Texas with the father before attaining the age of seventeen, years, and became citizens on attaining the age of twenty-one years. Settegast v. Schrimpf, 35 T. 323; Id., 38 T. 96.

A colonist who in 1831 received a grant of land became a citizen with all the rights of a native. His minor daughter, though never in Texas, inherited from him as any other child. Franks v. Hancock, 1 U. C. 554.

Escheat.—An alien on the death of the ancestor acquires a defeasible estate by descent. On his failing to comply with the conditions of the law before the expiration of the period prescribed, no other kin are entitled to the land, although they have within the prescribed period become citizens, but it becomes liable to be declared forfeited or to escheat to the government. Barclay v. Cameron, 25 T. 232; Sabriego v. White, 30 T. 576; Hanrick v. Hanrick, 54 T. 101; Id., 61 T. 596; Id., 63 T. 618.

The legislature has provided no method for escheating lands which have descended to alien heirs, and the courts have no jurisdiction to declare escheats. Wilderanders v. State, 64 T. 133. But see Arts. 20, 3189–3205.

TITLE 46

DETECTIVES

EMPLOYMENT OF ARMED FORCES OF DETECTIVES, OR OTHER NON-RESIDENT PERSONS PROHIBITED

Article 2475. [1701a] Employment of non-resident detectives prohibited.—No person, corporation, or firm shall be permitted to employ any armed force of detectives, or other persons not residents of this state, in the state of Texas. [Acts 1893, p. 159.]

Art. 2476. [1701b] Penalty.—Any person, firm, or corporation employing such forces contrary to the provisions of preceding article shall be liable to pay to the state of Texas, as a penalty, not less than twenty-five nor more than one thousand dollars, to be recovered before any court of competent jurisdiction in this state; provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to deprive any person, firm, or corporation of the right of self-defense, or in defense of the property of said person, firm, or corporation by such lawful means as may be necessary to such defense. [Id.]

DRAINAGE

DRAINAGE BY COUNTIES, SEPARATELY, OR CO-OPERATING, ASSESSMENTS

Article 2477. Commissioners' court authorized to construct drains, etc.—The commissioners' court of any county in this state, at any regular or called session thereof, may, in the manner hereinafter provided, and shall have power, whenever the same shall be conducive to the public health, convenience or welfare, or where and whenever the same will be of public benefit or utility, to cause to be straightened, widened, altered, deepened, any creek, bayou or other stream or water course, and shall cause to be constructed and maintained, as hereinafter provided, any ditch, drain or water course within any of the said counties, and shall have power to make the said improvement, if necessary, by removing from any adjacent lands or any stream or water course, any timber, bush, tree or other substance liable to or causing the obstruction thereof, and shall also have power to construct in connection with any such ditch or drain, any side, lateral, spur, or branch ditch or water course necessary to the accomplishment of the purposes of this chapter; provided, however, that no ditch, drain, outlet or water course shall be deepened, widened, constructed or maintained, without a sufficient outlet being provided for all water that may collect therein; provided, further, that the word "ditch," in this chapter, hereafter shall be construed to embrace any ditch, drain or water course that may be constructed under the provisions of this chapter. [Acts 1895, p. 151. Acts 1897, p. 95.]

Art. 2478. Prerequisites to construction; petition; bond.—Before the commissioners' court of such county shall establish any ditch, drain or water course, there shall be filed with the clerk of the county court of said county, a petition signed by at least five persons who are land owners and whose land will be liable to be affected by, or assessed for, the expense of the construction of the same, setting forth the necessity thereof, with a general description of the proposed starting point, route and terminus of the said ditch; and said petitioners shall give a bond, not to exceed one hundred dollars, with good and sufficient sureties, payable to the said county, to be approved by the clerk of the said court, conditioned to pay all expenses in case the commissioners' court shall fail to establish said proposed ditch, drain or water course. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2479. Jury of view, appointment of.—As soon as said petition is filed, said court shall, if in regular session, or at their next regular session, appoint a jury of three freeholders and householders of the county, not interested in the construction of the proposed work, and not of kin to any of the parties interested therein, who shall constitute a jury of viewers, who shall meet at a time and place specified by the said court in the order making said appointment, preparatory to commencing their duties as hereinafter specified; and it shall be the duty of the said clerk of the said county court thereupon to issue to the said viewers a certified copy of the petition and order of said court; and said viewers shall proceed at the time set in said order, with a surveyor, who shall be a civil engineer and surveyor, to make an accurate survey of the line of said ditch, drain or water course, from its source to its outlet; and they shall cause stakes or monuments to be set along said line at intervals of one hundred feet, together with such intermediate stakes as may be necessary, and numbered progressively at each one hundred feet; and they shall establish permanent bench marks along said line, at intervals of one mile or less, as may be necessary. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2480. Oath of viewers.—The said viewers, before proceeding to act as such, shall take the following oath, before any officer authorized to administer oaths, to-wit: "I do solemnly swear that I will lay out the ditch or drain now directed to be laid out by the order to us directed by the commissioners' court, according to law, without favor or affection, malice, or hatred, to the best of my ability, skill and knowledge. So help me God." [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2481. Duties and powers of jury of viewers, with surveyor; survey; map; profile; table; estimate; specifications.—The viewers shall prepare a map showing the location of said ditch, drain or water course, together with the position of stakes or monuments, with numbers corresponding with those on the ground, and the position of bench marks, with their elevation referred to on assumed or previously determined datum. The map should also show the lines and boundaries of adjacent property, and the position of county roads and railroads which may be affected by said ditch or drain, and such information should be obtained as will lead to the determination of the benefits or damages which will accrue from the construction of the same; and they shall prepare a profile of the line of said ditch, drain or water course, which shall show the assumed datum and the grade line of the bottom of the same, and the elevation of each stake or monument and other important features along the line, such as top of bank and bottom of all ditches or water course and surface of water, top of rail and bottom of tie, foot of embankment, bottom of borrow pits of all railroads, and center of road and bottom and top of ditches of highways. And they shall, in tabular form, give the depth of cut, width at bottom, and width at the source, outlet, and at each one hundred feet stake or monument of said ditch, drain or water course; and they shall make a computation of the total number of cubic yards of earth to be excavated and removed from said ditch, drain or water course, and an estimate of the total cost of construction of the whole work, and they shall prepare specifications in detail for the execution of the same; and they shall have power, when they find it necessary, to provide for running said ditch under ground through drain tiles or other materials as they may deem best, by specifying size of tile or other kind of material to be used in such underground work, and shall include the cost of same in the estimate of the total cost of the work. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2482. Estimate to be made by viewers, in special case.—Whenever a public ditch, drain, or water course is located wholly or in part of the bed of a private ditch, already or partially constructed, the viewers shall make an estimate of the number of cubic yards of earth already excavated, and the cost of the same on each tract of land, and deduct the same from the assessment thereon. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2483. To report whether proposed ditch or drain will be of public utility.—The jury of viewers shall report whether or not the proposed ditch or drain will be of public utility. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2484. Assessment of benefits by viewers.—The jury of viewers shall set apart and apportion to each parcel of land and to each corporation, road or railroad, and to the county when public highways are benefited, a share of said work in proportion to the benefits which will result to each from such improvement and the cost of the construction of each share or allotment separately. And they shall describe each parcel of land to be assessed in the construction of said ditch, giving the number of acres in each tract assessed and an estimate of the number of acres benefited, the amount that each tract will be benefited by the construction of said work, and the amount of each tract as assessed therefor; and they shall also ascertain and give the names of the owners of the lands that are assessed in the construction of said ditch, drain or water course, as far as they may be able to ascertain by reasonable inquiry and search of the public records. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2485. Notice by viewers to land owners as to time when they will lay out ditch, etc., and when they will assess damages.—The said jury of viewers, as provided for in this chapter, shall issue a notice in writing to the land owner through those lands such proposed ditch or drain may run, or to his or their agent or attorney, of the time when they shall proceed to lay out such ditch, or when they will assess the damage incidental to the construction of same, which notice shall be served upon such owner, his agent or attorney, at least five days before the day named therein; if such owner is a non-resident of the county, the notice shall be given by publication in a newspaper published in the county as notices are required to be given to non-resident defendants as to actions in the district or county court. And such ditch or drain may be constructed four weeks after such publication, the cost of publishing the same to be paid as directed by the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2486. Land owners may appear before viewers and oppose.—All persons whose land may be affected by such ditch, drain or water course shall have the right to appear before said viewers and freely express their opinions on all matters pertaining thereto; and the owner of any such lands may, at the time stated in said notice, or previously thereto, present to the jury a statement in writing of any objections thereto or dissatisfaction therewith, and any claim for damages which he may have by reason of the making of said ditch or drain; and a failure to make such claim in writing, as herein specified, for damages or compensation, shall be deemed and held a waiver of all right thereto; which said claim or objection shall be returned to the commissioners' court, in connection with the report of the said viewers. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 2487. Assessment of benefits by viewers, how made.—All lands benefited by public ditch, drain or water course shall be assessed in proportion to the benefit to the said lands by the construction thereof, whether it passed through said lands or not; and the viewers, in estimating the benefit to lands in controversy by said ditch, shall not consider what benefit such lands will receive after some other ditch or ditches shall be constructed, but only the benefits that may be received by reason of the construction of the public ditch as it affords an outlet for the drainage of such lands; and, in the making of the said assessment, should the viewers find that the construction of said ditch or drain would, to any extent, construct or constitute a public road of utility to the county in that section, or be a material benefit in the drainage of any public road then constructed, they will assess as against the county such sum as will represent the benefit so accruing to the public; provided, that all assessments for benefits accruing to counties or county roads shall be approved by the commissioners' courts of such counties. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2488. Benefits to public roads or railroads.—When any ditch established under this chapter drains either in whole or in part any public road or railroad, or benefits any such road or railroad, so that the roadbed or travel or track of any such road will be made better by the construction of any such ditch, then the jury of viewers shall apportion to any such county, if the same be a public road, or to such railroad, if the same be a railroad, such portion of the costs and expenses thereof as herein provided for to private individuals. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 2489. Reports signed by majority of viewers, sufficient.—In all reports made by any jury of viewers, the same shall be sufficient if signed by a majority of said viewers. [Same as R. S. art. 1701q. Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 2490. Report to be accompanied by what; public record, etc. —They shall submit with their report a copy of the map and profile of the line of said ditch, drain or water course, and a copy of the specifications for the construction of the same, which, together with the report, shall become a public record, and shall be placed in the custody of the county clerk, to be preserved as such. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2491. Compensation of viewers.—The said jury of viewers shall each receive the sum of three dollars per day as compensation for said work for each day so actually engaged. The said surveyor and engineer shall receive such compensation as shall be fixed by the commissioners' court. [This sec. same as R. S. art. 1701r. Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 2492. Hearing before commissioners; their duties.—The commissioners' court, at the time set for the hearing of said petition, shall hear and determine the same in connection with all remonstrances or objections thereto; and, if they find that the said viewers' report is made in accordance with the provisions of this title, and it be in favor of the proposed work, and if they find the proposed ditch or drain to be of public utility, or conducive to public health, or of public benefit or convenience, they shall enter an order on the minutes establishing the same, as specified in the said report, and order the same to be constructed according to the said report, and shall then or thereafter take such further action and make such other and further orders and decrees in the premises as may be proper or necessary to secure the execution of said work. But should said viewers report adversely to the said work, the board shall dismiss the petition and tax the costs as against the said petitioners. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 2493. Assessment, etc., of benefits less damages, by commissioners' court; lien; separate roll.—When any drain or ditch shall have been established by order of the commissioners' court, under this chapter, they shall proceed to levy and assess against the person or persons, company or corporation, shown by the report of the jury of viewers to be beneficially affected by the proposed improvement, and against each separate tract of land shown to be beneficially affected, the cost of such improvement, in proportion to the benefits to be derived, less the amount of damages to such person, company or corporation by reason of the construction of such proposed drain, ditch or water course, as shown by the report of said appraisers or adjudged by decree of court; which said assessment shall constitute a lien respectively upon the lands affected, and a separate roll of said assessments shall be made by the state and county tax assessor for the said county; and the same shall at all times be open to the inspection of the public. [Acts 1897, p. 100. Acts 1895, p. 151. Acts 1899, p. 242, sec. 18.]

Art. 2494. Assessment divided into installments.—The assessments aforesaid shall be divided into five equal annual installments, each installment to be one-fifth of the amount assessed against each person, company or corporation or owners, respectively, of the lands affected by said assessment; and the first installment shall be payable within the same periods as provided by law for the payment of the state and county ad valorem taxes, the other four equal annual installments to be collected annually thereafter in the same manner; provided, that, upon failure to pay any two of said assessments, the whole sum shall become due and payable. [Acts 1897, p. 100. Acts 1895, p. 151. Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 2495. Appeal from commissioners' court to county court, conditions of.—Any person or corporation aggrieved thereby may appeal from the final order of the commissioners' court made in said proceedings and entered upon their record to the county court of that county within ten days thereafter, by filing within ten days thereafter a transcript of said proceedings in said county court, and also filing within the said ten days, with the clerk of the said court, an appeal bond, with at least two good sureties, to be approved by the said county clerk, conditioned that he will prosecute such appeal to effect and pay all costs that may be adjudged against him in said court; and the said appeal shall be heard and determined upon the following issues, to-wit:

1. Whether said ditch shall be conducive to the public health, convenience or welfare.
2. Whether the route thereof is practicable.
3. Whether the assessments made for the construction of such ditch are in proportion to the benefits to be derived therefrom.
4. The amount of damages, if any, to be allowed to any person or persons, or corporation; and, if more than one person appeal, the judge of the said court shall order the said cases to be consolidated and tried together, and the rights of each party shall be separately determined by the said court and jury, if any, in its verdict and final determination; and the cause so appealed and conducted in said county court shall have precedence over all other causes on the docket of a different nature, and shall be tried and determined as other civil cases in said court. Either party to such action may appeal to such appellate court as has jurisdiction of said cause; and said action shall be returnable at once to said appellate court at either of its terms, and said action so filed shall have precedence in said appellate court of all cases of a different character therein pending. [Acts 1897, p. 98, sec. 9. Acts 1895, p. 151.]

Art. 2496. Burden of proof on such appeal.—In the trial of all cases so appealed from the order of the commissioners' court, the burden of proof shall rest upon the complainant. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 2497. Collection of assessments.—The state and county tax collector shall proceed to collect said assessments in the same manner provided for the collection of state and county ad valorem taxes, and shall enforce the same, either by advertisement and sale, or by suit, as now provided by law. [Acts 1897, p. 100. Acts 1895, p. 151. Acts 1899, p. 243, sec. 18.]

Art. 2498. Lien, remedies, etc., for collecting assessments.—All liens, remedies, and modes of procedure by the laws of the state of Texas, now provided for the collection of ad valorem taxes and taxes upon real estate, shall obtain and be in force and apply for the collection for the assessments herein provided for the construction of the said drains. [Acts 1895, p. 151. Acts 1897, p. 101, sec. 22.]

Art. 2499. A special fund, how disbursed.—All funds arising from such assessments shall be a special fund for the construction of such drain, ditch or water course, and, by order of the commissioners' court, shall be set apart for the same, and placed in the county treasury as a special fund for said purpose, to be paid to the contractor or contractors, person, company or corporation performing said work, upon the order of the commissioners' court, as provided in this chapter. [Acts 1897, p. 100. Acts 1895, p. 151. Acts 1899, p. 243, sec. 18.]

Art. 2500. Damages paid out of county treasury.—All damages that the said jury of viewers or commissioners' court shall assess, or which may be found to have been suffered by judgment or decree of court, shall be paid out of the county treasury upon the order of said commissioners' court. [Acts 1897, p. 100. Acts 1895, p. 151. Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 2501. Damages assessed against county, paid by same, how.—Any sum assessed against any county on account of any public drain shall be paid by said county on the order of the commissioners' court. [Acts 1897, p. 100. Acts 1895, p. 151. Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 2502. Construction let to lowest responsible bidder, etc.—When the commissioners' court of any county shall have, by proper order, established any drain or ditch, the construction of the same shall be let by the said commissioners' court to the lowest responsible bidder, after suitable advertising, as a whole, or in such sections or subdivisions as the board may deem most advantageous. [Acts 1895, p. 151. Acts 1897, p. 100, sec. 20.]

Art. 2503. Contractor to give bond.—The said contractor or contractors shall be required to give a good and sufficient bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the said commissioners' court in an amount to be fixed by the said court, as in their judgment may be best for the faithful construction of the said work. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 2504. Land owner may do what part of work, conditions.—Any persons through whose lands the proposed work shall pass, upon application to the commissioners' court, before the contract is let, shall be entitled to do so much of the proposed work as is upon, or passes through, his lands; provided, such application shall be made twenty days before the advertisement for the said contract; and provided, he shall undertake to do such work upon equally favorable terms with those offered by any one else; and provided, further, that he shall execute such a bond as is required of the said contractor. And if such person should fail to construct such work as hereinbefore provided by the said contractor, within the time required by the commissioners' court, then all right to construct the same shall be forfeited and cease and determine; and the commissioners' court shall let the construction of the same as in this act provided. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 2505. Work done under direction of engineer; report.—Such work to be done under the direction and supervision of the said engineer, who shall report the same to the commissioners' court for their final action. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 2506. Engineer to give estimates.—The engineer employed by the said county to superintend the construction of the said drains and ditches shall, upon the completion of each and every two hundred feet of any ditch, give to the contractor or contractors his certificate as such engineer, the said certificate showing the amount of work done and an estimate of the amount due for the construction of the same, less ten per cent thereof; which said certificate shall be delivered to the said contractor as an evidence of the amount of work constructed, and of the amount due therefor. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 2507. Contractor paid out of road and bridge fund; how returned from assessment collected, etc.—The commissioners' court shall pay the said contractor or contractors, or persons constructing the said drain, out of any funds in the county treasury not otherwise appropriated and belonging to the road and bridge fund of the said county, upon the report of the said engineer, by said court approved, from time to time as the said contract progresses, and according to such terms as they may agree upon with such contractor. The said money so drawn from the road and bridge fund of the said county shall be returned from the assessment collected upon the said drain when the same shall be put into the county treasury. Said reimbursement to be made to the said fund by order of the commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 2508. Where drain extends into two or more counties, procedure.—Whenever the route of the proposed ditch, drain or water course extends into two or more counties, then a petition shall be signed by at least five freeholders, one or more of whom are land owners in the county other than that of the filing of the petition, and whose lands will be liable to be assessed for the construction of such ditch, and file the same with the clerk of the commissioners' court, the said petition to be filed in the county containing the head or source of the proposed ditch, at least ten days before any regular meeting of the commissioners' court of that county; and thereupon the clerk of such court shall transmit to the clerk of the court of such other county or counties interested therein a certified copy of such petition; and it shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of each county interested in the proposed work, at their first regular session after such petition is filed, to appoint three disinterested freeholders and householders of their respective counties as viewers, in like manner as is provided for the appointment of viewers on a ditch in but one county, to meet and act jointly at such time and place as the board of commissioners of the county where the petition is filed may designate; and such joint viewers shall have the same power and perform the same duties as is provided in this title for the viewers on a ditch in one county; and they shall file a report of their proceedings with the clerk of each of said counties so interested at least two weeks before the next regular session of the board of commissioners, whereupon the clerk of each county shall give notice in the manner provided for as to ditches in one county; and the time for the hearing thereof shall be set by the respective courts of each county; provided, further, that, in an action of a joint board of viewers, the approval and report of a majority of the whole board shall be necessary to constitute a valid report of said board. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 2509. Joint viewers to co-operate under orders, etc.—The joint board of viewers, as herein provided for of the counties interested in said joint ditch, shall proceed to establish the same in the manner specified for ditches in but one county; and in all matters pertaining to such joint ditch, the board of commissioners shall act in the same manner, so far as is practicable, as is required by this title for ditches in but one county, and they shall act jointly, and the same shall be determined by the respective orders of the said respective commissioners' courts, and such further proceedings had thereon, as herein provided for in but one county. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 2510. Ditch to be kept open by land owner.—Every person or corporation through whose lands any public ditch is constructed shall be required to keep the same open, free and clear from all obstructions upon his or its premises, by him or it placed therein, and, in case of failure to do so, shall be liable to pay all reasonable and necessary expenses of removing such obstructions. [Id. sec. 11.]

For the provisions in regard to incorporation for drainage purposes, outside of cities and towns, see Arts. 1261–1267, Title 25, Chapter 18.

DRAINAGE BY COUNTIES, SEPARATELY—TAXATION

Article 2511. Commissioners' court authorized to construct drains, etc., within any of the counties of the state.—The commissioners' court of any county in this state, at any regular or called session thereof, may in the manner hereinafter provided, and shall have power whenever the same shall be conducive to the public health, convenience or welfare, or where and whenever the same will be of public benefit and utility, to cause to be straightened, widened, altered, deepened, any creek, bayou or other stream or water course, and shall cause to be constructed and maintained, as hereinafter provided, any ditch, drain or water course within any of the said counties, and shall have power to make the said improvement, if necessary, by removing from any adjacent lands, or any stream or water course, any timber, bush, tree or other substance liable to or causing the obstruction thereof, and shall also have power to construct, in connection with any such ditch or drain, any side, lateral, spur or branch ditch or water course necessary to the accomplishment of the purposes of this chapter; provided, however, that no ditch, drain, outlet or water course shall be deepened, widened, constructed or maintained without a sufficient outlet being provided for all water that may collect therein; provided, further, that the word "ditch" in this chapter hereafter shall be construed to embrace any ditch, drain or water course that may be constructed under the provisions of this act. [Acts 1899, p. 95, sec. 1.]

Art. 2512. Prerequisites to construction; petition; bond.—Before the commissioners' court of said county shall cause to be straightened, widened, altered or deepened, any creek, bayou or other stream, or water course, there shall be filed with the county court of said county a petition, signed by at least fifteen qualified voters, freeholders and property taxpaying citizens of the county, setting forth the necessity thereof, with a general description of the creek, bayou or other stream or water course proposed to be straightened, widened, altered, deepened or improved, also the starting point, route and terminus of said ditch, drain or water course; and the said petitioners shall enter into a bond not to exceed the sum of five hundred dollars, with five good and sufficient sureties, payable to the said county, to be approved by said commissioners' court, conditioned to pay all the expenses of preliminary surveys, jury of view, setting of stakes and monuments, bench marks, preparation of maps, plats, profiles, estimates and specifications for said work and the filing of the same, in the event the election to be held for the purpose of determining whether a tax shall be levied to cover the cost of such improvement, as hereinafter provided, shall be against the levy of such tax. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2513. Jury of view, appointment of.—As soon as said petition and bond is filed, said court shall, if in regular session or at their next regular session, appoint a jury of three freeholders and householders of the county, who shall constitute a jury of view, who shall meet at a time and place specified by said court in the order making said appointment, preparatory to the commencement of their duties as hereinafter specified; and it shall be the duty of said clerk of the said court thereupon to issue to said viewers a notice of the filing of said petition, and of the order of the court appointing them. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2514. Duties and powers of jury of view, with county surveyor; estimates; surveys; map; table; specifications.—They shall proceed at the time set in said order, with the county surveyor, to make an estimate of the work necessary to straighten, alter, widen or deepen any ditch, drain or water course, and to make an accurate survey of the line of said ditch, drain or water course from its source to its outlet; and they shall establish permanent bench marks along said line, at intervals of one mile or less, as may be necessary; and they shall prepare a map showing the location of said ditch, drain or water course, together with the position of stakes or monuments with numbers corresponding with those on the ground; and they shall, in tabulated form, give the depth of cut, width at bottom and width at top and at the source and outlet of said ditch, drain or water course; and they shall make a computation of the total number of cubic yards of earth to be excavated and removed from said ditch, drain or water course, and an estimate of the total cost of construction of the whole work; and they shall prepare specifications in detail for the execution of the same; and they shall have power, when they find it necessary, to provide for running said ditch under ground through drain tiles or other materials as they may deem best, by specifying the size of tile or other kind of materials to be used in such underground work and shall include the cost of the same in the estimate of the total cost of the work. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2515. Right to enter on land for preliminary survey, etc., may condemn, how.—The commissioners' court and jury of view, acting under its orders, are hereby authorized to enter upon, for the purposes of preliminary surveys, setting of stakes, etc., the property of any person, company or corporation through which such ditch, drain or water course runs, and they (the commissioners' court) shall have power to condemn property for said purposes in same manner as prescribed for condemnations for right of way for railroad companies. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2516. Notice by viewers to land owner of time when they will lay out ditch, etc., or when commissioners' court will assess damages.—The said jury of viewers, as provided for in this chapter, shall issue a notice in writing to the land owner through whose land such proposed ditch or drain may run, or to his or their agents or attorneys, of the time when they shall proceed to lay out such ditch or drain, or when the commissioners' court will assess the damages incidental to the construction of the same; which notice shall be served upon such owner, his agent or attorney, at least five days before the day named therein; if such owner is a non-resident of the county, the notice shall be given by publication in a newspaper published in the county as notices are required to be given to non-resident defendants in actions in the district or county court. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2517. Report to be accompanied by what; public record, etc.—They shall submit with their report a copy of the map and profile of the line of said ditch, drain or water course, and copy of the specifications for the construction of the same, which, together with the report, shall become a public record and shall be placed in the custody of the county clerk to be preserved as such. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2518. Appeal to county court from commissioners' judgment estimating damages; bond.—Any person, company or corporation dissatisfied with the judgment of the commissioners' court estimating the amount of damages to accrue to them by reason of the proposed ditch or drain, by filing exceptions to said judgment in writing ten days after rendition, which exceptions shall be entered upon the records of the county court of the county, and also filing within said ten days and with the clerk of said court an appeal bond, with at least two good sureties to be approved by the said county clerk, conditioned that he or they will prosecute such appeal to effect and pay all costs that may be adjudged against them, may appeal from said judgment to the county court. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2519. Hearing on appeal suspended until election approving construction.—Said appeal shall not be heard in the county court until after the matter of the establishment and construction of such ditch or drain shall have been determined upon by the election to be held as hereinafter provided, and the result of said election shall be in favor of the construction of such ditch or drain. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2520. Only damages determined on appeal.—Upon such appeal there shall be heard and determined only the question of damage. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2521. Consolidation of cases on appeal; precedence.—If more than one person shall appeal, the judge of said court shall order the said cases to be consolidated and tried together; and the rights of each party shall be separately determined by the said court and jury, if any, in its verdict and final determination; and the cause so appealed and conducted in said county court shall have precedence over all other causes on the docket of different nature and shall be tried and determined as other civil cases in said court. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2522. Burden of proof on appeal to county court.—In the trial of all cases appealed from the commissioners' court, the burden of proof shall rest upon the complainant. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2523. Appeal from county court when, etc., precedence.—Either party to such action may appeal to such appellate court as has jurisdiction of said cause, provided the amount of the judgment appealed from shall exceed one hundred dollars; and said actions shall be returnable at once to said appellate court at either of its terms; and said action so filed shall have precedence in said appellate court of all cases of different character therein pending. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2524. Election to be ordered, in what case, to authorize tax, etc.; regulations as to.—When the said commissioners' court shall have concluded that said ditch or drain is a public necessity and conducive to the public health, convenience or welfare, or that the straightening, cleaning, widening, altering and deepening any stream, creek, bayou or other water course, shall be a public necessity, and conducive to the public health, convenience or welfare, they shall proceed to order an election for the whole county, or any subdivision thereof, to be defined in their order, to determine whether there shall be levied upon the property within said county or such subdivision, by the said commissioners' court, a drainage tax not to exceed fifteen cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of the property within the county or such subdivision, which said order shall fix the amount to be levied; said election to be held at a time to be fixed by order of the court, not less than twenty or more than ninety days from the date of the order therefor.

It shall not be necessary to give any formal notice of such election, except the county judge shall issue his election proclamation, and the fact that such election is to be held shall be published in some newspaper of the county as fully as practicable, and tickets for the election shall be printed by the county, and sent to each voting precinct by the county judge before the election opens, and as long before such time as practicable. The expenses of the election shall be paid by the county. If the election be ordered within ninety days of a general election, it shall be held on the day of the general election, and in the manner of holding such general election; but otherwise, the commissioners' court shall order a special election to determine whether said tax shall be levied, which shall be conducted as other elections, and the officers to conduct the same shall be appointed as in other cases. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 2525. Election, further regulations as to.—Only qualified voters who pay a property tax in the county and who live in the county, shall be permitted to vote at such election. The tickets printed and to be voted shall have written or printed on them the words, "For the tax," and, "Against the tax," and those who favor the tax shall vote the ticket, for the tax, and those opposed to the tax shall vote the ticket, against the tax. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 2526. If election carried, result announced, levy of drainage tax authorized, requirements.—If at any such election a majority of the qualified voters, voting therefor, shall vote for such tax, it shall not be necessary to make further proclamation of that fact than to count the votes, as in other cases, and officially announce the result; and the commissioners' court shall thereby be authorized and required to levy a drainage tax, in the same manner that other taxes are levied, in the amounts specified in said order for such election, never to exceed fifteen cents on the one hundred dollars worth of property; the levy shall be made at the same time other county taxes are levied, if such election is held in time therefor, but otherwise, it may be made at any time before the rolls are made out and settlement effected. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2527. If election carried no petition for repeal in less than five years.—If at the election the proposition for said tax shall carry, no petition for its repeal shall be granted in less than five years following. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2528. If election defeated another petition may be granted in one year.—If it fails to carry, another petition may be granted in one year, but no sooner. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2529. Order granting second, etc., petition may fix what rate. —The order granting the second or any subsequent petition may fix a greater or less rate of levy, not to exceed fifteen cents on the one hundred dollars worth of property. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2530. Commissioners may lower rate without petition, when, etc.—If no greater rate is levied for any one year than mentioned in the preceding article, the commissioners' court may lower the rate for the next year without a petition therefor. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2531. Election to repeal, levy to be ordered upon proof of what. —An election to repeal the levy may be ordered and held as in other cases, but there must be satisfactory proof presented to said commissioners' court that there is great dissatisfaction with such tax, and that it is probable that a majority of the citizens of the county who are authorized to vote will vote for the repeal of the law, and unless such proof be made, the petition to repeal shall not be granted. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2532. Repeal not to affect contract.—Whenever a contract for the construction of ditches shall have been entered into, no repeal shall affect or annul such contract; and the taxes necessary to pay the amount due and to become due on such contracts shall be levied and collected and disbursed as if there had been no repeal of the tax. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 2533. Assessment and collection of tax; report, accounting and disbursement, etc.—It shall be the duty of the tax assessor and tax collector of each county to assess and collect the taxes herein provided as in other cases; and the tax collector shall report to the county treasurer the amount of taxes collected under the provisions of this chapter; and it shall be the duty of the county treasurer to keep a separate account of all taxes paid over to him by the collector under the provisions of this chapter and it shall also be the duty of the county treasurer to pay all warrants drawn by the clerk of the county court under an order directed by the commissioners' court of the county drawn upon said funds, and make his report of said funds as in other cases. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 2534. Liens, remedies, etc., for collecting assessments.—All liens, remedies and modes of procedure, by the laws of the state of Texas now provided for the collection of ad valorem taxes and taxes upon real estate, shall obtain and be in force and apply for the collection for the assessments provided in this chapter for the construction of said drains. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 2535. Taxes collected to be known as drainage fund.—All taxes and money collected under the provisions of this chapter shall be known as the drainage fund. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 2536. Construction to be let to lowest responsible bidder, when. —When the commissioners' court of any county shall have, by proper order, established any drain or ditch, the construction of the same shall be let by the said commissioners' court to the lowest responsible bidder, after suitable advertising, as a whole, or in such sections or subdivisions as the board may deem most advantageous. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 2537. Contractor's bond.—The said contractor or contractors shall be required to give a good and sufficient bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the said commissioners' court, in an amount to be fixed by the said court, as in their judgment may be best, for the faithful construction of said work. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 2538. Work to be done under direction, etc., of engineer, report, etc.—Such work to be done under the direction and supervision of the said engineer, who shall report the same to the commissioners' court for their final action. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 2539. Landowner may do what part of work; conditions.—Any person through whose lands the proposed work shall pass, upon application to the commissioners' court before the contract is let, shall be entitled to do so much of the proposed work as is upon or passes through his lands. Such application shall be made twenty days before the advertisement for the said contract; and provided, he shall undertake to do such work upon equally favorable terms with those offered by any one else; and provided, further, that he shall execute such a bond as required by the said contractor. And if such person should fail to construct such work, as hereinbefore provided by the said contractor, within the time required by the commissioners' court, then all right to construct the same shall be forfeited and cease and determine; and the commissioners' court shall let the construction of the same as in this chapter provided. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 2540. Contractor, etc., paid out of fund so collected, how, etc.—The commissioners' court shall pay the said contractor or contractors or persons constructing the said drain out of any funds in the county treasury collected as aforesaid, upon the report of the said engineer, by said court approved, from time to time as the said contract progresses, and according to such terms as they may agree upon with such contractor. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 2541. Commissioners to audit claims and order payment.—It shall be the duty of the commissioners' court to audit all claims against the county for work and expenses under the provisions of this chapter; and for all claims allowed, said commissioners' court shall, by an order duly entered upon the minutes of said court, direct the clerk of the county court to issue a warrant payable out of the drainage fund and directed to the county treasurer for the amount allowed by said court. [Id. sec. 13.]

CHAPTER THREE

DRAINAGE BY DISTRICTS, INCLUDED IN ONE OR MORE COUNTIES—BONDS

Art. 2542. County commissioners' court may establish drainage districts, to be included in one or more counties; incidental powers; election for bonds.—The county commissioners' courts of the several counties of this state may hereafter establish drainage districts in their respective counties; and such districts may be included in any county, or in any number of adjoining counties, and may or may not include, within their boundaries and limits, villages, towns and municipal corporations, or portions thereof. Such districts when so established may, under the direction of the commissioners' court or the district trustees, construct and maintain canals, drains and waterways for the purpose of drainage, or in aid thereof, to hold elections for the purpose of voting bonds and to issue bonds in payment therefor, which shall never be in amount greater than that of one-fourth of the assessed value of the real property of said district; and generally to do such things as shall be necessary to the completion and maintaining of a good and efficient drainage system in such district or districts, as authorized by the constitution of the state of Texas and the provisions of this chapter. This chapter shall be cumulative of, and additional to, all other general laws upon the subject of drainage not in conflict herewith. [Acts 1905, p. 212, sec. 1.]

Art. 2543. On petition, etc., district may be created when, etc.—Upon the petition of fifty or a majority of the resident property taxpayers of any county in this state, whose land shall be affected thereby, to the county commissioners' court of any county, the commissioners' court shall thereafter have power, at any regular or special session, to create a drainage district within such county; and, when the same shall appear to be for the public health, benefit or utility of such proposed drainage district, may authorize the said district or districts to construct and maintain drainage canals and ditches with laterals, spurs, branches, inlets and outlets within such proposed district or districts; provided, that in all cases of such proposed improvements, provisions shall be made for the disposal, final discharge and outlet of all waters that may be collected within such canal, streams, ditches and drains to be so made, constructed or improved. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2544. Petition, requirements as to; jury of view; surveyor, etc.; survey; report with profile and map, showing benefits, etc., to be filed, etc.—Such petition shall be filed with the clerk of the county court of such county and shall set forth the necessity of such proposed drainage district, including the proposed boundaries thereof, the initial point, route and terminus of such drains and the probable cost thereof. The commissioners' court shall, at its first session, either regular or special, after the filing thereof, or, if the same be filed during the session, at once appoint a jury of three freeholders of the county, not kin to any of the petitioners therein, who shall constitute a jury of view. Such jury of view shall meet at a time and place specified by said court, and shall, at such time as directed, proceed with the county surveyor, or any other civil engineer appointed by the said court, to make an accurate survey of the proposed district and drain course for the purpose of ascertaining the advisability of such improvements and estimating the cost thereof. And said jury of view and engineers shall make report thereof to the said commissioners' court with a profile and map of the territory included, showing each parcel of land benefited and to be affected by such improvements within such proposed district, except that when a town, village or municipal corporation, or a part thereof, be included, any recognized map thereof may be filed, giving the number of estimated acres in each tract and the names of the owners thereof as far as they be able to ascertain by reasonable inquiry and search of the public records; and to further report as to the public utility and advisability of such proposed improvements. Such report, together with the maps and records thereof, shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the county court and become a public record therein and shall be preserved as such. [Id. sec. 3.]

Description in petition.—The petition for the establishment of a drainage district need only contain a sufficiently definite description of the boundaries of the proposed district to notify landowners therein that their lands are included. Parker v. Harris County Drainage Dist. No. 2 (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 351.

Art. 2545. Oath of viewers and engineer.—Before said viewers and engineer shall proceed to act as such, they shall take and sign the following oath before any officer authorized to administer oaths, to-wit: "I do solemnly swear that I will view the proposed drainage district now directed by the order of the commissioners' court without favor or affection, malice or hatred, to the best of my knowledge, skill and ability. So help me God." And said oath shall be filed with the records of said case. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2546. Compensation of viewers and engineer.—The jury of viewers shall each receive the sum of three dollars per day, and the engineer not less than five dollars per day, compensation, as may be fixed by the commissioners' court, while actually engaged on said work. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 2547. Landowners, etc., resident, notified; hearing; remonstrances, etc.; order establishing district and directing improvements; objections thereto.—All resident land owners of such proposed district shall be notified by the clerk of said court in writing or otherwise, as may be directed by the county commissioners' court, of the substance of the report of said jury of view, and shall be notified ten days in advance of the time and place when the same shall be acted upon by said commissioners' court, except that when a town or municipal corporation, or a portion thereof, is included in such district, publication for five days prior to the ten days of notice herein required, in any newspaper published therein, shall be deemed sufficient notice thereof to all persons residing in said town, village or municipal corporation, of such action. And all persons and corporations, whose lands may be affected by such improvements, shall have the right to appear before said commissioners' court, and to be heard upon all matters pertaining thereto, and, if dissatisfied with the action taken by said commissioners' court, shall file objections thereto in writing, which shall become a part of the records in such case; and a failure to make such objections, or a failure to make a claim in writing for damages or compensation, shall be deemed and held as a waiver of right and of all objections thereto. At the time set for the hearing of said petition and report of jury of view, the commissioners' court shall hear and determine all remonstrances and objections thereto; and, if it be found that such proposed improvements shall be for the public health, convenience, benefit or utility of such proposed district, they shall enter an order on the minutes establishing the same, either as specified in the petition or in the report, and shall order said district to be established and the improvements to be constructed according thereto, or according to a further and more fully particularized report and survey to be made thereafter under the direction of said court; or the board may dismiss the petition and tax the costs already accrued against the said petitioners, in whole or in part, as the justice of the case may require; and the collection thereof may be enforced as hereafter provided for as to other and additional costs. [Id. sec. 4.]

Due process of law.—A statute, which authorized the creation of a drainage district without notice to the property owners affected, or, at most, with notice by posting at five public places in the district, did not violate the due process of law provisions of the state and federal constitutions. Parker v. Harris County Drainage Dist. No. 2 (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 351.

Art. 2548. Name or number for such district.—Each district shall be named or numbered or both by the county commissioners' court, and shall be so designated upon the public record of such county or counties, and the name or number or both thereof shall be designated upon the bonds of such district when issued. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 2549. District may sue and be sued; judicial knowledge of.—Such district may, through its trustees, sue and be sued; and all courts in this state shall take judicial notice of any and all drainage districts established under this chapter. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 2550. Appeal to county court; procedure and issues on.—Any persons or corporation aggrieved by the final order of the commissioners' court, made in said proceedings and entered upon the record thereof, may appeal to county court of such county by filing written notice of said appeal stating fully the reasons for such appeal, and filing therewith an appeal bond with two or more good sureties within ten days thereafter, to be approved by the county clerk, conditioned that he will prosecute such appeal to effect and will pay all costs that may be adjudged against him in said court. Such appeal shall be heard and determined upon the following issues, towit:

1. Whether said proposed drainage improvement district will be conducive to the public health, utility or benefit of said district.
2. Whether such proposed improvements are practicable.
3. The question of the sufficiency of damages, if any, allowed to such appellant by the commissioners' court. If more than one person appeal to the county court, all of said cases may be consolidated and tried together, and the right of each party separately determined; and the verdict and judgment therein shall be a final determination thereof, except as to the damages. All appeals in such cases shall have precedence in the right to trial, and shall be tried and determined as all other civil cases in said court, and may be tried in vacation or term time. In the trial of such cases so appealed from the order of the commissioners' court, the burden of proof shall rest upon the complainant. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 2551. Election to be held in what case; if carried, improvements made and bonds issued.—When it shall have been determined by the commissioners' court, after all appeals and protests have been finally disposed of, except as to damages, that such drainage districts shall be established and such proposed improvements made, the proposition shall be submitted to a vote of the property taxpayers who are qualified electors and actual residents within the limits of such proposed district; and, if such proposition shall receive a two-thirds vote in favor thereof all such drainage improvements according to such proposition shall be made and the bonds thereof issued as authorized by this chapter, under the further direction of the county commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 2552. Time and place of election, state election law applies.—The commissioners' court shall determine the time and place of holding the elections: and the manner of holding the same shall be governed by the laws of the state regulating general or special elections. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2553. Proposition and ballots, requirements as to.—The proposition to be submitted for the issuance of bonds for such improvements shall specify the purpose for which the same are to be issued, the amount thereof, the time payable and rate of interest. All ballots to be voted in said election shall have written or printed thereon the words, "For the drainage and bonds" and "Against the drainage and bonds." [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 2554. Bonds, period, terms and requirements as to.—Any and all bonds issued under the provisions of this chapter shall not extend in point of time beyond forty years, shall not draw a rate of interest greater than five and one-half per cent, shall not be sold for less than par, and shall be registered by the comptroller and approved by the attorney general of the state of Texas. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 2555. Expenses of jury of viewers, election, etc., how paid.—All just sums, charges, costs and expenses of the jury of viewers, engineer, election and the proceedings generally, not otherwise herein provided for, shall be paid in the following manner: If the proposition be carried at the election, the same shall be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of the bonds so voted; if the proposition be lost at the election, then, by an order of the commissioners' court, the total amount of such costs and expenses shall be paid by the county out of the road and bridge fund, or, if there be no road and bridge fund, out of the general funds of said county. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 2556. Tax, improvement, for interest and sinking fund.—Whenever any such district drainage bonds shall have been issued, the commissioners' court shall levy and cause to be assessed and collected improvement taxes upon all property, whether real, personal, mixed or otherwise, subject to taxation, within the limits of such district, and sufficient in amount to pay the interest on such bonds as it shall fall due, together with an additional amount to be annually placed in a sinking fund, sufficient to discharge and redeem said bonds at their maturity. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 2557. Sinking fund, investment of; attorney general's approval.—If advisable, the sinking fund shall, from time to time, be invested in such bonds of the state, counties, municipalities and districts of the state as shall be approved by the attorney general. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 2558. Trustees, elected when; duties.—Whenever a drainage district shall have been created and the bonds voted, under the provisions of this chapter, there may be elected by the resident electors of such district, a board of trustees, consisting of three qualified electors who are property owners therein; and such board shall thereafter be elected biennially so long as may be required, and shall serve without compensation. The duties of such board of trustees shall be to look after the drainage interests of such district generally, and to aid and to advise the commissioners' court in regard thereto. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 2559. Trustees, commissioners may act as, if, etc.—If the property holders, or a majority thereof, of any such district shall express their desire that the county commissioners of such county shall perform the duties and services above provided to be performed by the trustees, then the county commissioners' court of such county shall do and perform all the things in connection therewith necessary to be performed for the purpose or purposes of carrying into effect the object and intent of this chapter. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 2560. Money and bonds in keeping of county treasurer.—All moneys and bonds of such district or districts shall be in the keeping of, and handled by, the county treasurer of such county or counties wherein such district or districts shall be located. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 2561. Specifications for bids; advertisement; contract.—Whenever a drainage district shall have been created, and the bonds thereof voted for proposed drainage improvements therein as hereinbefore provided, the district trustees shall, if the same has not then already been done, cause to be prepared by a competent civil engineer a complete tabulated statement, schedule and specifications of the kind, character and amount of construction, excavation and other work to be done, and all such other matters as shall be necessary for full and intelligent estimates and bids thereon by contractors or others desiring to bid for the work and construction thereof; and, thereafter, the district trustees shall advertise for bids upon the whole of said work or any part thereof, and shall let contracts therefor in the manner required by general laws, subject, however, to the approval of the county judge of said county. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 2562. Payments for construction, how made.—No money shall be paid out of the county treasury for such construction work nor for any other purpose in connection therewith, except upon warrants drawn by the district trustees and countersigned by the county judge of such county. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 2563. Eminent domain, right of conferred.—The right of eminent domain is hereby conferred upon the drainage district, acting through its trustees or commissioners' court, as the case may be, for the purposes herein indicated; and condemnation and all proceedings in relation thereto shall be had and conducted as provided by the railroad laws of this state. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 2564. Road, public, assessment against county for benefits to, etc.—Whenever any such improvements shall drain a public road, or in any way improve, better or benefit the same, the jury of viewers shall estimate the value of such proposed improvements to such public road, in a stated sum or amount, and such sum or sums, when approved and allowed by the county commissioners' court, shall be paid by the county, and such amount shall not be included in the estimated total cost of such work for which bonds are to be issued by such district. Any estimated sum properly chargeable against a public road shall be paid out of the road fund, or any other fund of such county available for road purposes. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 2565. Obstructions in drains prohibited; provisions as to removing.—It shall be the duty of every person or corporation whose lands are benefited and through whose lands any such drainage ditch, canal or improvements are constructed, to keep same reasonably free upon such lands, and are hereby strictly prohibited from, in any manner, obstructing the same or causing the obstructing of the same, so as to prevent free flow of waters therein. For the purpose of preventing and removing obstructions therein, a special fund may be created by said district, to be expended for such purposes under the direction of the trustees of said district, or the county commissioners' court; and such fund may be created in such manner as the residents of said districts may lawfully direct. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 2566. Where course of improvements extend into, etc., two or more counties, procedure, rights, etc.—Whenever the course or route of such drainage improvements properly extend into or through two or more counties, the commissioners' courts of the several counties shall act in harmony, each furnishing the other with copies of reports, petitions, estimates and other data, and may arrange for a joint jury of view, survey, etc., but in all such cases the final consummation of the proposition shall be determined by the respective orders, proceedings and results of each county interested; provided, that whenever the natural and most practical course for a final outlet and discharge of any such drainage district lies within or passes through one or more adjoining counties, the commissioners' court of the county or counties making such drainage improvements shall have the power, and they are hereby authorized to purchase or condemn the right of drainage way into or through such adjoining county or counties by the usual mode of condemnation proceedings authorized by the general laws of the state, and shall construct and complete the drainage outlet and discharge contemplated by this chapter; provided, however, that the lands and territories in such adjoining county or counties and adjacent to such drainage improvements so constructed and made by the initial counties shall never be made to artificially drain thereinto, unless they shall pay to said initial county its just and rightful proposition [proportion] of the cost and maintenance thereof. [Id. sec. 12.]

CHAPTER FOUR

DRAINAGE BY DISTRICTS, ONE OR MORE IN EACH COUNTY—BONDS

Article 2567. Drainage districts established, how; scope; may make improvements; bonds for.—The county commissioners courts of the several counties of this state may hereafter establish one or more drainage districts in their respective counties in the manner hereinafter provided, and may or may not include within the boundaries and limits of such districts, villages, towns and municipal corporations, or any portion thereof, but no land shall at the same time be included within the boundaries of more than one drainage district created under this Act. Such drainage district, when so established, may make drainage improvements therein and issue bonds in payment therefor as hereinafter provided. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 1, superseding Art. 2567, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Police power.—It is peculiarly within the general police powers of the state to authorize the organization of a drainage district to be conducive to the public health or for a public benefit or utility. Wharton County Drainage Dist. No. 1 v. Higbee (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 381.

District as public corporation.—The drainage district organized under these articles is a public or quasi public corporation. Parker v. Harris County Drainage Dist. No. 2 (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 351.

A drainage district created under authority of these articles enacted under Const. Amend. art. 3, § 52, expressly authorizing the creation of drainage districts and the levying and collection of taxes therein, stands upon exactly the same footing as a county or precinct or any other such political and established subdivisions. Wharton County Drainage Dist. v. Higbee (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 381.

A drainage district organized under these articles, enacted under express authority of Const. Amend. art. 3, § 52, belongs to a class different from a city or town and is a part of the county, and hence such statute, by imposing upon the commissioners' court certain powers and duties with reference to drainage districts, is not unconstitutional under Const. art. 5, § 18, providing that the commissioners' court shall exercise such powers and jurisdiction over all "county business" as is or may be conferred by law; the business of the drainage district being county business. Id.

Collateral attack on validity of district.—The validity of a drainage district cannot be collaterally attacked upon the ground that it was not legally created and organized. Wharton County Drainage Dist. No. 1 v. Higbee (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 381.

Art. 2568. Petition for drainage district; requisites; notice; fees.—Upon the presentation to the county commissioners court of any county in this state of a petition (accompanied by the deposit provided for in section 30 of this Act [Art. 2602]), signed by twenty-five of the freehold resident taxpayers, or in the event there are less than seventy-five freehold resident citizen taxpayers in the proposed district, then by one-third of such freehold resident citizen taxpayers of any proposed drainage district, whose lands may be affected thereby, praying for the establishment of a drainage district, and setting forth the necessity, public utility and feasibility and proposed boundaries thereof, and designating a name for such drainage district, which name shall include the name of the county. The said commissioners court shall at the same session when said petition is presented, set said petition down for hearing at some regular or special session of said court, called for the purpose, not less than thirty nor more than sixty days from the presentation of said petition, and shall order the clerk of said court to give notice of the date and place of said hearing by posting a copy of said petition, and the order of the court thereon, in five public places in said county, one of which shall be at the court house door of said county, and four of which shall be within the limits of said proposed drainage district. The said clerk shall receive as compensation for such service one dollar for each such notice and five cents per mile for each mile necessarily traveled in posting such notices. Such notices shall be posted for twenty days prior to the date of said public hearing. Provided, however, that in all cases wherein drainage districts have heretofore been established, or wherein a hearing has been heretofore had on the petition and action thereon has been taken by the county commissioners court, or wherein a public hearing is now pending upon a petition for a drainage district, and the notices thereof and therefor have been so posted for twenty days, in either or all of such cases, the notices for such public hearing as well as the notices for the hearing upon the engineer's report provided for in section 10 of this law [Art. 2576], shall be and they are hereby held, deemed and declared to be and to have been due and legal and valid notices of such public hearing or hearings under the full meaning, intent and purpose of this law. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 2, superseding Art. 2568, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

District as public corporation.—See notes under Art. 2567.

Due process of law.—A statute, which authorized the creation of a drainage district without notice to the property owners affected, or, at most, with notice by posting at five public places in the district, did not violate the due process of law provisions of the state and federal constitutions. Parker v. Harris County Drainage Dist. No. 2 (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 351.

The notices provided for under Acts 30th Leg. c. 40, as amended by Acts 31st Leg. c. 13, authorizing the creation of drainage districts, issuance of bonds, and the levy of taxes to pay them, being sufficient to afford to all persons affected all the notice and opportunity to be heard reasonably necessary for the protection of their rights, are sufficient to comply with the due process of law requirements of the constitution of the state (Const. art. 1, § 19) and of the United States (Const. U. S. Amend. 14). Wharton County Drainage Dist. v. Higbee (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 381.

Sufficiency of notice.—Pursuant to this article notices were posted at the post office, the schoolhouse, and also at the depot, at the village of A., and one was posted at the schoolhouse and also at the depot at E. The town of A. is not incorporated, and about the time the district was organized there were only 4 residents within a mile of the town in every direction, but within a radius of two miles in every direction there were from 12,000 to 15,000. The schoolhouse and depot were about a half mile apart. The depot at E. is an old box car set up on the side of the railroad track, and the schoolhouse is about 150 yards west thereof, and the post office is about 200 yards east of the railroad track and depot. There is a store near the railroad, and five or six houses within a mile of the railroad station, and five or six more within a radius of two miles thereof; the town being merely a small country settlement. Held, that it could not be said that the notices were not posted so as to give reasonable notice to persons interested in the organization of the drainage district. Parker v. Harris County Drainage Dist. No. 2 (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 351.

A description in a petition for a drainage district held to insufficiently describe the boundaries of the proposed district and give notice to a landowner that his lands were included therein. Id.

The petition need only contain a sufficiently definite description of the boundaries of the proposed district to notify landowners therein that their lands are included. Id.

Curative statute.—Under Acts 1909, c. 13, entitled "An act to amend certain sections named of chapter 40 of the General Laws of the Thirtieth Legislature, validating certain proceedings and bonds heretofore issued and registered, providing for additional elections and issuance of bonds, election of drainage commissioners," etc., and this article, held that, if the statute were constitutional, it cured all irregularities in posting notices of the organization of a drainage district under the statute amended by the curative act. Parker v. Harris County Drainage Dist. No. 2 (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 351.

Art. 2569. Hearing of petition; contest; exclusive and final jurisdiction of commissioners' court over subject matter, except, etc.—Upon the day set by said county commissioners court for the hearing of said petition any person whose land would be affected by the creation of said district may appear before said court and contest the creation of such district or contend for the creation of said district, and may offer testimony to show that said district is or is not necessary, and would or would not be of any public utility either sanitary, agricultural or otherwise, and that the creation of such drainage district would or would not be feasible or practicable. Said county commissioners court shall have exclusive jurisdiction to hear and determine all contests and objections to the creation of such district, and all matters pertaining to the same, and said court shall have exclusive jurisdiction in all subsequent proceedings of the district when organized, except as hereinafter provided, and may adjourn hearing on any matter connected therewith from day to day, and all judgments rendered by said court in relation

Jurisdiction.—This article gave the court exclusive jurisdiction to determine whether the petition for the district was void for not defining its boundaries, whether it was signed by the requisite number of qualified persons, whether notices of the proceedings had been properly published, and whether the boundaries of the district conformed to those described in the petition. Parker v. Harris County Drainage Dist. No. 2 (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 351.

Art. 2570. Findings of commissioners' court and record of same.—If at the hearing of such petition it shall appear to the court that the drainage of such district is feasible and practicable, and that it is needed, that the drainage would be conducive to the public health or would be a public benefit or a public utility, then the court shall so find and cause its findings to be entered of record. But if the court should find that the drainage of such district is not feasible and practicable, or that the drainage of such district is not needed, and that it would not be conducive to health or a public benefit, or would not be a public utility, then the court shall enter such finding of record and dismiss the petition at the cost of the petitioners. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 4, superseding Art. 2570, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2571. If finding for petitioners, civil engineer appointed; assistants; pay.—After the hearing of the petition as provided in sections 3 and 4 of this Act [Arts. 2569, 2570], if the court should find in favor of the petitioners for the establishment of a district according to the boundaries as set out in said petition or as modified by said court, then the court shall appoint a competent civil engineer, who shall receive a sum of not more than ten ($10) dollars per day for his services for the time he is actually engaged in the work for which he is appointed, together with necessary team hire, and said engineer is authorized to employ two assistants who shall each receive the sum of not more than two ($2) dollars per day for the time they are actually engaged in the work. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 5, superseding Art. 2571, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2572. Bond of civil engineer.—Before entering upon his official duties the civil engineer shall enter into a bond in the sum of five hundred ($500) dollars, with two or more sureties, to be approved by the commissioners court and payable to the county judge, for the use and benefit of the drainage district, conditioned on the faithful discharge of his official duties under the provisions of this Act. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 6, superseding Art. 2572, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2573. Survey and location of canals, drains, etc.; designation of streams, etc.; report.—The engineer shall within such time as may be prescribed by the commissioners' court, go upon the land proposed to be drained and protected by levees, and make a careful survey thereof, and from such survey make preliminary plans, locating approximately the necessary canals, drains, ditches, laterals and levees, and shall designate the stream or streams and bayous necessary to be cleaned, deepened and straightened, and estimate the costs thereof in detail as to each improvement contemplated, and shall also estimate the probable cost of maintaining same per year, and shall at once make a detailed report of his work to the commissioners' court. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 89, sec. 1, amending Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 7, which superseded Art. 2573, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2574. Outlets; procuring information; co-operation with levee and drainage board.—The engineer is authorized and empowered to go upon lands and premises located outside of such drainage district, and into another and different county, if necessary, for all purposes of the survey, and to ascertain and procure proper and necessary outlets for the proposed canals, drains, and ditches necessary to the drainage of the proposed district. It shall be the duty of the engineer to obtain all possible information regarding the lands within the proposed district, and the outlets therefrom from the office of the state levee and drainage commission and from other sources, and to co-operate with the state levee and drainage board in the discharge of his duties. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 89, sec. 1, amending Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 8, which superseded Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 2574.]

Art. 2575. Report to be accompanied by map, showing what.—Such report of the engineer shall be accompanied by a map showing the initial or beginning point, as well as the outlets, of all canals, drains, ditches and laterals, and shall show the length, width, depth and slopes of the banks of the cut or excavation, and the estimated number of cubic yards of earth to be removed from each, and shall show the location and size of all levees and the estimated number of cubic yards of earth necessary to construct the same; a copy of the official land office map of the county, with the boundaries of the drainage district, and the beginning points and outlets of all canals, drains, ditches and laterals, and other data required by this section shown thereon shall be deemed a sufficient compliance with this section. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 9, superseding Art. 2575, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2576. Hearing before county commissioners; notice; objections.—When such report of the engineer shall have been filed with the clerk of the county commissioners court it shall be the duty of said court at its next regular or special session to set such report down for hearing at some subsequent regular or special sessions not less than twenty nor more than thirty days from the date of such sitting, and to instruct the clerk of said court to give notice of said hearing by posting notices in the same manner and for the same compensation as provided for in section 2 of this Act [Art. 2568] in regard to the original notices of the filing of the petition. At the hearing on said engineer's report, any freehold taxpayer of said district, whose lands may be affected by said drainage improvements, whether he be a resident of such district or not, may appear and object to any and all of said canals, drains, ditches and levees, for the reason that they are not located at the proper places, or that they are not sufficient in number or capacity to properly drain said territory. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 10, superseding Art. 2576, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2577. Action of court on report.—If there should be no objection to said report, or if there should be objection thereto, and the court should find that the objections are not well taken, the report shall be approved and the fact of such approval entered of record on the minutes of said court; but the commissioners court shall not be confined to the number of drains, ditches, canals or levees, or to the initial point or outlets of same, as located and shown by said report of the engineer, and may change the location of any of said improvements, or may add to the number of the same or reduce the number of same and order the engineer to locate any additional canals, drains, ditches or levees which may be constructed for the purpose of conducting waters from the lands of said district, or to prevent the overflow of waters from streams or otherwise onto the lands of said district proposed to be drained, or otherwise in aid of said purpose, as directed by the court, and the commissioners court, if it deem it necessary, may refer the entire report back to the engineer for a compliance with the orders of the court and require a further report, (provided, that notices shall be given as provided in section 10 of this law [Art. 2576], and shall state that the public hearing shall be upon such report of the engineer and also upon any changes or modifications that may be made by the county commissioners court. Provided, further, that in all such public hearings heretofore had under sections 10 and 11 of this law [Arts. 2576, 2577], wherein twenty days or more notice was given, such notices and hearings shall be, and the same are hereby held, deemed and declared to be and to have been legal, regular and valid notices and headings in all respects under the full intent, meaning and purpose of the law). [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 11, superseding Art. 2577, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2578. Election to be ordered after approval of engineer's report.—After the approval of the report of the engineer as presented, or as modified by the county commissioners court, as provided for in the preceding section of this Act [Art. 2577], the county commissioners court shall order an election to be held within such proposed drainage district at the earliest possible legal time, at which election there shall be submitted the following propositions, and none other: "For the drainage district and the issuance of bonds and levy of tax in payment therefor." "Against the drainage district and the issuance of bonds and levy of tax in payment therefor." [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 12, superseding Art. 2578, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2579. Notice of election; requisites.—Notice of such election, reciting the establishment of the drainage district, stating the amount of bonds, which shall not exceed the engineer's estimate and the cost of any additional work which may become necessary by any change or modification made by the commissioners court, as provided for in section 11 of this Act [Art. 2577], stating the time and place or places of holding the election, shall be given by the county clerk by posting notices thereof in four public places in such proposed drainage district and one at the court house door of the county in which such proposed drainage district is situated. Such notices shall be posted for twenty days previous to the date of the election, and shall contain the proposition to be voted upon as set forth in section 12 of this Act [Art. 2578], and shall also specify the purposes for which said bonds are to be issued. Provided, that the said notices of election in all drainage districts wherein such elections have heretofore been held or are now pending, and wherein twenty days notice was had, shall be and the same are hereby held, deemed and declared to be and to have been legal and valid notices of such elections, under the full meaning, intent and purpose of this law. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 13, superseding Art. 2579, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2580. Regulations for holding elections.—The manner of conducting said election shall be governed by the election laws of the state of Texas, except as herein otherwise provided. None but resident property taxpayers who are qualified voters of said proposed district shall be entitled to vote at any election on any question submitted to the voters thereof by the county commissioners court at such election. The county commissioners court shall name a polling place for such election at each voting precinct or part of a precinct embraced in said drainage district, each of which shall be in the proposed drainage district, and shall also select and appoint the judges and other necessary officers of the election, and shall provide one and a half times as many ballots for said election as there are qualified resident taxpaying voters within such drainage district, as shown by the tax rolls of said county. Said ballot shall have printed thereon the words, and no others: "For the drainage district and issuance of bonds and levy of tax in payment therefor." "Against the drainage district and issuance of bonds and levy of tax in payment therefor." [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 14, superseding Art. 2580, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Equal protection of the laws.—Since, in the determination of the vital question of the creation of a drainage district and the issuance of bonds and levy of taxes for payment thereof, the owners of personal property have the same power to vote as the owners of realty, this article does not discriminate against those who own only personal property so as to deprive them of that equal protection of law guaranteed by Const. U. S. Amend. 14, although the only parties who may legally sign the initial petition to contest the creation of the district or contend for its creation, or to appear and object to the location of the canal, ditches, etc., are "freehold resident citizens taxpayers." Wharton County Drainage Dist. v. Higbee (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 381.

Art. 2581. Same subject.—Every person who offers to vote in any election held under the provisions of this Act shall first take the following oath before the presiding judge of the polling place wherein he offers to vote, and the presiding judge is hereby authorized to administer same: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I am a qualified voter of ..... county, and that I am a resident property taxpayer of the proposed drainage district voted on at this election, and I have not voted before at this election." [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 15, superseding Art. 2581, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2582. Returns; canvass; order establishing drainage district; name and number of district.—Immediately after the election the presiding judge at each polling place shall make return of the result in the same manner as provided for in general elections for state and county officers, and return the ballot boxes to the county clerk, who shall keep same in a safe place and deliver them together with the returns from the several polling places to the commissioners court at its next regular session or special session called for the purpose of canvassing the vote, and the county commissioners court shall at such session canvass the vote, and if it be found that two-thirds majority of the resident property taxpayers voting thereon shall have been cast in favor of the drainage district and the issuance of bonds and levy of tax, then the court shall declare the result of said election to be in favor of said drainage district, the levy of tax, issuance of bonds, and shall enter the same in the minutes of the court substantially as follows:

"In the matter of the petition of ..... and ..... others, praying for the establishment of a drainage district in said petition described and designated as ..... County Drainage District No. ....., be it known that an election called for that purpose in said district, held on the ..... day of ....., A. D. 19.., a two-thirds majority of the resident property taxpayers voting thereon, voted in favor of the creation of said drainage district, and the issuance of bonds and the levy of tax, now, therefore, it is considered and ordered by the court that said drainage district be, and the same is hereby established by the name of ..... County Drainage District No. ....., within the following metes and bounds," (which field notes shall be copied into the record).

All drainage districts hereafter created shall bear the name of the county in which they may be located, as a part of their names, and shall be numbered consecutively as created and established by order of the commissioners court. Provided, however, that all districts heretofore established and otherwise named, but which have not, so far, issued bonds, may by an order of the county commissioners court of such county, have such district or districts renamed and numbered in accordance with the requirements of this Act. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 16, superseding Arts. 2582, 2583, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2583.—Superseded. See Art. 2582.

Art. 2584. Drainage districts may sue and be sued; judicial notice.—All drainage districts established under this Act may, by and through the drain commissioners, sue and be sued in all courts of this state, in the name of such drainage district, and all courts of this state shall take judicial notice of the establishment of all such districts. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 64, superseding Art. 2584, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Sufficiency of citation.—Under this article, held that, where a suit was brought against the district in its corporate name, and process was served on each of the commissioners, the citation being directed to the district as a municipal corporation, it was sufficient without making the commissioners parties. Matagorda County Drainage Dist. No. 1 v. Gaines & Corbett (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 370.

Art. 2585. Drainage commissioners appointed; qualifications; pay; term; elected when.—After the establishment of any drainage district as herein provided, the commissioners court shall appoint three drainage commissioners, all of whom shall be residents of the proposed drainage district, who shall be freehold taxpayers and legal voters of the county, whose duty shall be as hereinafter provided, and who shall each receive for their services a sum of not more than two dollars and fifty cents ($2.50) per day for the time actually engaged in the work of said district; provided, the compensation (if any), shall have been definitely fixed in the order of the court; and before any amount shall be paid said commissioners, or either of them, they shall make a detailed report to the commissioners court of the time actually consumed in the work for said district, and of the work done, and such report shall be audited and approved by the commissioners court. Said drainage commissioners shall hold office for the term of two years and until their successors have qualified, unless sooner removed by a majority vote of the county commissioners for malfeasance or nonfeasance in office. Upon expiration of the term of office of said drainage commissioners or in case of the resignation of any of such commissioners the commissioners court shall appoint their successors by a majority vote; provided, that after the election establishing a drainage district, if a majority of the real property taxpayers of such district residing in such county, present a petition to the county commissioners court, praying for an election in said district for the purpose of electing three drainage commissioners therefor, the county commissioners court shall immediately order an election to be held in said district for said purpose at the earliest legal time, and an election shall be held and the returns thereof made as hereinbefore provided for other elections, and the same qualifications hereinbefore provided for voting at other elections shall apply in said election. The commissioners court shall canvass said returns and declare the result at their next regular or special session, and the three persons receiving the highest number of votes shall be declared elected. In the event the third highest vote be tied, the commissioners court shall elect the third drainage commissioner from among those receiving the third highest vote.

Such commissioners so elected, when duly qualified as required by this Act, shall be the legal and rightful drainage commissioners for such district within the full meaning, intent and purpose of this law. All drainage district commissioners elected as herein provided shall hold their offices until the next regular election for state and county officers, and shall then and thereafter be elected every two years at such general election. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 17, superseding Art. 2585, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2586. Oath of drainage commissioners.—Before entering upon their duties each drainage commissioner shall take and subscribe before the county judge an oath to faithfully discharge the duties of their office without favor or partiality, and to render a true account of their doings to the court by which they are appointed whenever requested to do so, which oath shall be filed by the clerk of the commissioners court and preserved as a part of the records of said drainage district. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 18, superseding Art. 2586, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2587. Bond of drainage commissioners.—Before entering upon their duties each of the drainage commissioners shall make an enter into a good and sufficient bond in the sum of one thousand dollars, payable to the county judge, for the use and benefit of said drainage district, conditioned upon the faithful performance of their duties. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 19, superseding Art. 2587, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2588. Organization of drainage commissioners; quorum, etc.—The drainage commissioners shall organize by electing one of their number chairman and one secretary, and two of whom shall constitute a quorum, and a concurrence of two shall be sufficient in all matters pertaining to the business of said district, except the letting of contracts and the drawing of warrants on the treasury, which shall require the concurrence of all of said commissioners. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 20, superseding Art. 2588, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2589. Drainage commissioners may employ counsel, etc.—The drainage commissioners are hereby empowered and authorized to employ counsel to represent such district in the preparation of any contract or the conducting of any proceedings in or out of court, and to be the legal adviser of such drainage commissioners upon such terms and for such fees as may be agreed upon by them and approved by the county judge, and such commissioners shall draw a warrant or warrants in payment for such legal services. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 62, superseding Art. 2589, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Application.—Arts. 2612-2614 refer exclusively to contracts for the construction of drains and levees, and have no application to a contract by the drainage commissioners with attorneys for legal services, which is governed by this article. Matagorda County Drainage Dist. No. 1 v. Gaines & Corbett (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 370.

Oral contract.—Art. 2612 does not apply to a contract with an attorney for legal services, but it is governed by this article, and an oral contract for legal services is enforceable. Swearingen v. Hidalgo County Drainage Dist. No. 1 (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1006.

Future services.—Under this article the commissioners are authorized to employ a legal adviser to perform services in the future. Matagorda County Drainage Dist. No. 1 v. Gaines & Corbett (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 370.

Approval by county judge.—Under this article there could be no recovery for attorney's services rendered the district under a contract between plaintiffs and drainage commissioners, which the county judge expressly refused to approve. Matagorda County Drainage Dist. No. 1 v. Gaines & Corbett (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 370.

Art. 2590. Right of eminent domain; outlets beyond boundary, etc.—The right of eminent domain is hereby conferred upon all drainage districts, established under the provisions of this Act, for the purpose of condemning and acquiring the right of way over and through any and all lands, private or public, except property used for cemetery purposes, necessary for making the canals, drains and levees, and all improvements necessary to the drainage of the district, and the authority hereby conferred shall authorize and empower such drainage district to condemn all lands, private or public, necessary for making the necessary outlets to any such canals, drains or ditches beyond the boundary of such drainage district, and in any county or counties within the state of Texas, with the exception set forth in this section. All such condemnation proceedings shall be instituted under the direction of the drainage commissioners, and in the name of the drainage district, and the assessing of damages shall be in conformity to the statutes of the state of Texas for condemning and acquiring the right of way by railroads, and all such compensation and damages for the right of way by condemnation proceedings as provided in this section shall be paid by said district out of the "Construction and Maintenance Fund" of said district. Provided, that, no appeal from the finding and assessment of damage by the commissioners appointed for that purpose shall have the effect of causing the suspension of work by the drainage commissioners in prosecuting the work of drainage in all of its details; provided, that no right of way can be condemned through any part of an incorporated city or town without the consent of the lawful authorities of such city or town. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 37, superseding Art. 2590, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2591. May acquire right of way, how, etc.—The drainage commissioners of any district are hereby empowered to acquire the necessary right of way for all canals, drains, ditches and levees and other necessary improvements contemplated by this Act, by gift, grant, purchase or condemnation proceedings, and if acquired by purchase shall be subject to approval by the county commissioners court. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 38, superseding Art. 2591, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2592. Civil engineer; term; to make map and profiles; requisites.—After the establishment of any such district the drainage commissioners shall employ a competent civil engineer upon a salary not to exceed ten dollars per day for the time actually engaged in work, together with necessary team hire, and whose term of office shall be at the will of said drainage commissioners, which civil engineer shall proceed to make a map of such district, showing the boundary lines thereof, with the original surveys therein, and also to make maps and profiles of the several canals, drains, ditches and levees located in such district, which said maps and profiles shall also show any part of any such canals, drains or ditches extending beyond the limits of such district made necessary in order to procure necessary outlets for any such canals, drain or ditches; but a copy of the land office map of the county, as it applies to such district, showing the name and number of each survey, and showing the area or number of acres contained in such district, shall be a sufficient compliance with such order in so far as making a map of the district is required, and any recognized map of any city or town which may be embraced within the boundaries of said district shall be sufficient as to such city or town. Provided, however, that where boundary lines of such drainage district or any of them crosses an original survey the map shall show how many acres of such original survey are included within such drainage district. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 21, superseding Art. 2592, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2593. Further requisites of maps and profiles.—The map and profiles of each drain, ditch and levee required by the provisions of this Act to be made shall show the relation that each canal, drain, ditch or levee bears to each tract of land through which it passes and the shape into which it divides each tract, and where the canal, drain, ditch or levee cuts off any tract less than twenty acres of land, the map shall show the number of acres so divided therefrom, and the number of acres in the whole tract, showing the shape of such small tract and its relation to the canal, ditch, drain or levee. And such profile map shall also show the number of cubic yards necessary to be excavated in order to make each canal, drain or ditch, and to build any levee located in such district, and give the estimated cost of each, and when said map, profile and estimates shall have been completed by the engineer as herein provided, he shall sign the same in his official capacity and file them with the clerk of said county commissioners court. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 22, superseding Art. 2593, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2594. No trespass to go upon land for examination and location, etc.; preventing entry, etc., misdemeanor.—The drainage commissioners of any district and the civil engineer from the time of their appointment, are hereby authorized to go upon any lands lying within said district for the purpose of examining the same, locating the canals, drains, ditches and levees, making plans, surveys, maps and profiles, and are hereby authorized to go upon any lands beyond the boundaries of such district and in any county for the purpose of examining the same, and locating the necessary outlets for any of the canals, drains or ditches of such district, together with all necessary teams, help, tools and instruments, without subjecting themselves to action of trespass, and any person who shall wilfully prevent or prohibit any of such officers from entering any land for such purposes shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction may be fined in any sum not exceeding twenty-five dollars for each day he shall so prevent or hinder such officer from entering upon any land, and any justice of the peace in the county shall have jurisdiction of all such offenses. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 41, superseding Art. 2594, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2595. Drainage bonds; order for issuance; amount.—After the establishment of any such drainage district and after the making and filing of such maps, profiles and estimates as provided for in section 22 of this Act [Art. 2593], the commissioners' court shall make an order directing the issuance of drainage bonds for such district, sufficient in amount to pay for such proposed improvements, together with all necessary actual and incidental expenses connected therewith; provided, however, that said bonds shall not exceed in amount one-fourth of the assessed valuation of the real property in such district, as shown by the last annual assessment thereof made for said drainage district, nor exceeding the amounts specified in said order and notice of election. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 89, sec. 1, amending Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 23, which superseded Art. 2595, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Creation of debt, limitation.—Articles 627 and 2595 do not authorize each district to create a debt for their respective purposes equal to one-fourth of the assessed value of the real property in such district, contrary to Const. art. 3, § 52, as amended in 1904, but permit the first district formed for either purpose to create a debt in any amount not exceeding such one-fourth. Simmons v. Lightfoot, 105 T. 212, 146 S. W. 871.

Due process of law.—The levy of assessments and collection of taxes under this article is not violative of the due process of law clauses of the constitution of the state (Const. art. 1, § 19) or of the United States (Const. U. S. Amend. 14). Wharton County Drainage Dist. v. Higbee (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 381.

Art. 2595a. Change in district or improvement after election; notice.—When, after an election has been held establishing the district, a tax has been authorized or levied and bonds authorized to be issued or have been issued, as provided in this Act, the drainage commissioners shall consider it necessary to make any changes of said drainage district or in any of the improvements therein which shall be of advantage to the district, and which changes will not increase the cost of such proposed system of work in said district beyond the amount of bonds authorized when said district was established, such changes or additions may be made by the drainage commissioners by entering in their minutes a notation of such changes made, together with the maps and profiles provided by the engineer of the district showing such changes; and notice of such changes shall be given by causing a copy of such notation, showing the book and page of the minute of such drainage commissioners in which same has been recorded, to be published once in each week for two successive weeks in some newspaper of general circulation, published in the English language, within the county in which such drainage district is situated. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 89, sec. 1, amending Acts 1911, p. 245.]

Art. 2595b. Additional bonds; election; order for issuance.—When it shall appear to the drainage commissioners that changes or additions may be made in the preliminary survey of the engineer, which shall be of advantage to the district but which shall make necessary the issuance of more bonds of the district, the drainage commissioners shall certify to the county commissioners' court of the county in which the drainage district has been established the fact that such changes are by the drainage commissioners deemed advisable, accompanying, such certificate by maps and profiles prepared by the engineer of the district, showing such proposed changes and the estimated cost thereof, and at the first regular session of the commissioners court after the filing of such certificate with the maps and profiles, such commissioners' court shall give notice of an election to determine whether or not such changes in such district and improvements shall be made, and shall order such election to be held within such time and the returns of the election made as heretofore provided for in case of an original election, and if a two-thirds majority of the property tax paying voters of the district voting thereon favor such change in such district, or improvements, and the issuance of bonds, the court shall enter the same of record and order such bonds to be issued as in the manner otherwise provided in this act. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 89, sec. 1.]

Art. 2596. Bonds; requirements as to validating provisions.—All bonds issued under the provisions of this Act shall be issued in the name of the drainage district, signed by the county judge and attested by the clerk of the county court, with the seal of the county commissioners court affixed thereto, and such bonds shall be issued in denominations of not less than one hundred nor more than one thousand dollars each, and such bonds shall bear interest at the rate not to exceed 5 per cent per annum, payable annually or semi-annually. Such bonds shall by their terms, provide the time, place or places, manner and conditions of their payment, and the interest thereon, as may be determined and ordered by the county commissioners court, but none of such bonds shall be made payable more than forty years after the date thereof. Provided, however, in all drainage districts heretofore created, and which have issued and registered bonds with the comptroller, and under chapter 40 of the Acts of the Thirtieth Legislature of Texas, approved March 23, 1907, and by Acts of Thirty-First Legislature, chapter 13, House Bill No. 89, that all proceedings had and done in connection with and leading up to the creation of such districts and the issuance of such bonds so registered except such bonds that were issued and registered with the comptroller under chapter 40 of the Acts of the Thirtieth Legislature of Texas in excess of the estimate before the commissioners court, when the election was ordered and held, be and the same are hereby held, deemed and declared to be, and to have been regular, valid and legal proceedings under the full intent, purpose and meaning of this law; and all such bonds so issued thereunder are hereby held, deemed and declared to be valid and binding obligations upon such drainage districts. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 24, superseding Art. 2596, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2597. Submission of validity of bonds to attorney general; data; examination; certificate.—Any drainage district in the state of Texas desiring to issue bonds in accordance with this Act shall, before such bonds are offered for sale, forward to the attorney general a copy of the bonds to be issued, a certified copy of the order of the commissioners court levying the tax to pay interest and provide a sinking fund, and a statement of the total bonded indebtedness of such drainage district as such, including the series of bonds proposed and the assessed value of property for the purpose of taxation, as shown by the last official assessment by the county, together with such other information as the attorney general may require, whereupon it shall be the duty of the attorney general to carefully examine said bonds in connection with the facts and the constitution and laws on the subject of the execution of said bonds, and if as the result of such examination the attorney general shall find that such bonds were issued in conformity with the constitution and laws, and that they are valid and binding obligations upon such drainage district by which they are issued, he shall so officially certify. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 25, superseding Art. 2597, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2597a. No suit contesting validity of district or bonds, except, etc.; invalidity of this not to affect other provisions.—No suit shall be permitted to be brought in any court of this state contesting or enjoining the validity of the formation of any drainage district created under the provisions of this Act or bonds issued hereunder except in the name of the state of Texas by the attorney general upon his own motion, or upon the motion of any party affected thereby upon good cause shown. If for any reason the provisions of this section shall be held invalid, the same shall not in any manner affect the other provisions of this Act. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 24a.]

Art. 2598. Registration of bonds, etc.; certificate preserved of record; effect as evidence, etc.—When said bonds have been examined by the attorney general and his certificate attached thereto they shall be registered by the state comptroller in a book to be kept for that purpose, and the certificate of the attorney general to the validity of such bonds shall be preserved of record for use in the event of litigations. Such bonds, after receiving the certificate of the attorney general, and having been registered in the comptroller's office as herein provided, shall thereafter be held in every action, suit or proceeding in which their validity is or may be brought in question, prima facie, valid and binding obligations. And in every action brought to enforce collection of said bonds the certificate of the attorney general or a duly certified copy thereof shall be admitted and received in evidence of the validity of such bonds, together with the coupons thereto attached; provided, that the only defense that can be offered against the validity of such bonds shall be forgery or fraud. But this article shall not be construed to give validity to any such bonds as may be issued in excess of the limit fixed by the constitution, or contrary to its provisions, but all such bonds shall, to the extent of such excess, be held void. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 26, superseding Art. 2598, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2599. Record of bonds; to be open to inspection.—Before issuing any bonds under the provisions of this Act the county commissioners court shall provide a well bound book, in which a record shall be kept by the county clerk of all bonds issued, with their numbers, amount, rate of interest and date of issue, when due, where payable and amount received for the same, and the annual rate per cent assessment made each year to pay the interest on said bonds and provide a sinking fund for their payment. And said book shall at all times be open to inspection of all parties interested in said districts either as tax payers or bond holders, and upon the payment of any bond an entry thereof shall be made in said book. The county clerk shall receive for his services in recording all bonds and other instruments of the drainage district the same fees as are provided by law for other like records. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 27, superseding Art. 2599, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2600. Sale of bonds, and disposition of proceeds.—When such bonds have been registered, as provided for in the preceding section of this Act [Art. 2599], the county judge shall, with the additional assistance that the county commissioners court may direct and authorize, offer for sale and sell said bonds on the best terms and for the best price possible, but none of said bonds shall be sold for less than the face par value thereof and accrued interest thereon, and as fast as said bonds are sold, all moneys received therefor shall be paid by the county judge to the county treasurer, and shall by him be placed to the credit of such drainage district. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 28, superseding Art. 2600, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Cited, Wharton County Drainage Dist. v. Higbee (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 381.

Art. 2601. Bond of county judge before sale; compensation.—Before the county judge shall be authorized to sell any of the drainage bonds, he shall execute a good and sufficient bond, payable to the commissioners of such drainage district, to be approved by such drainage commissioners, for an amount not less than the amount of the bonds issued, conditioned upon the faithful discharge of his duties; and the county judge shall be allowed one-half of one per cent of the amount received on the sale of any bonds sold by him in full payment of his services in that behalf. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 89, sec. 1, amending Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 29, which superseded Art. 2601, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2602. Construction and maintenance fund; expenses paid out of, unless proposition defeated; deposit to meet expense in such case.—All expenses (debts and obligations) after the filing of the original petition, necessarily incurred in connection with the creation, establishment and maintenance of any drainage district organized under the provisions of this Act shall be paid out of the "Construction and Maintenance Fund" of such drainage district, which fund shall consist of all money received by said district from the sale of the bonds of such district. Provided, that should the proposition of the creation of such drainage district and the issuance of bonds be defeated, at the election called to vote upon the same, then all expenses up to and including said election shall be paid in the following manner: When the original petition praying for the establishment of a drainage district is filed with the county commissioners court, it shall be accompanied by two hundred dollars in cash, which shall be deposited with the clerk of said commissioners court, and by him held until after the result of the election for the creation of said drainage district has been declared and entered of record by the commissioners court, as hereinbefore provided, and should the result of said election be in favor of the establishment of said district, then the said two hundred dollars shall be by said clerk returned to the signers of said original petition or their agent or attorney; but should the result of said election be against the establishment of said drainage district, then the said clerk shall pay out of the said two hundred dollars, upon vouchers signed by the county judge, all costs and expenses pertaining to the said proposed drainage district up to and including the said election, and shall return the balance, if any, of said two hundred dollars to the signers of said original petition or their agent or attorney. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 30, superseding Art. 2602, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2603. Tax for interest, sinking fund and expenses; refundment to construction and maintenance fund; investment of sinking fund; powers of assessor and collector; equalization; lien, etc.—Whenever any such district drainage bonds shall have been voted, the commissioners court shall levy and cause to be assessed and collected taxes upon all property within said drainage district, whether real, personal, mixed or otherwise, and sufficient in amount annually to pay the interest on such bonds as it shall fall due, together with an additional amount to be annually placed in a sinking fund sufficient to discharge and redeem said bonds at their maturity; and the commissioners court shall annually levy and cause to be assessed and collected taxes upon all property within said district, whether real, personal, mixed or otherwise, sufficient in amount to pay for the expenses of assessing and collecting such taxes from year to year until said bonds, together with all interest thereon, are fully paid and discharged. Provided, that in any district heretofore established, and that issued bonds under this Act and in which taxes have been for any year levied, assessed and collected for the purpose of paying the expenses of assessing and collecting taxes with which to pay the interest and provide a sinking fund to redeem the bonds of such district, and the amount so collected has been placed to the credit of the interest and sinking fund of such district, and such expenses have been paid out of the maintenance and construction fund of said district, the commissioners court of said county shall cause the said amount so collected to pay expenses of assessing and collecting said interest and sinking fund, as aforesaid, to be refunded to said "Construction and Maintenance Fund," and shall cause the county treasurer of said county to make proper transfer of said amount in the accounts of said district. If advisable, the sinking fund shall, from time to time, be [in]vested in such county, municipal, district or other bonds as shall be approved by the attorney general of the state for the benefit of such drainage district. Provided, that in the assessment and collection of the taxes authorized by this Act, and in all matters pertaining thereto or connected therewith, said assessor and collector shall have the same powers and shall be governed by the same rules, regulations and proceedings as are provided by the laws of this state for the assessment and collection of taxes for state and county purposes, unless otherwise provided for in this Act. And the commissioners court of said county shall constitute a board of equalization for such drainage district, and all laws governing boards of equalization for county and state taxation shall govern such board for drainage districts.

The taxes levied or authorized to be levied by this Act, shall be a lien upon the property for which said taxes are assessed, and it shall be the duty of the commissioners court, and the said court shall have authority to fix and determine when said taxes shall mature, and upon the failure to pay said taxes when due the penalty provided by the laws of Texas for the failure to pay state and county taxes at maturity shall in every respect apply to taxes herein authorized to be assessed and levied. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 31, superseding Art. 2603, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Special assessment doctrine inapplicable.—The doctrine that special assessment for local improvements cannot be made without regard to special benefits or in excess of such benefits, or without providing a hearing as to question of benefits, has no application to a general ad valorem tax on all property of a drainage district created and organized for the purpose of public improvements. Wharton County Drainage Dist. No. 1 v. Higbee (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 381.

Art. 2604. Additional tax books; assessment of property in drainage district; penalty; forfeiture.—The county commissioners court [shall] provide all necessary additional books for the uses of the assessor and collector of taxes and the county clerk of such drainage district, and charge the cost of same to the said drainage district. It shall be the duty of the county tax assessor, when ordered to do so by the county commissioners court, to assess all property within such drainage districts, and list the same for taxation in the books or rolls furnished him by said commissioners court for that purpose, and return said books or rolls at the same time when he returns the other books or rolls of the state and county taxes for correction and approval; and if the said commissioners court shall find said books or rolls correct, they shall approve the same and order the county clerk to issue a warrant against the county treasurer in favor of said tax assessor to be paid from the funds of said drainage district. The tax assessor shall receive for said services such compensation as the said county commissioners court shall deem proper to compensate him for the amount of work done. Should the tax assessor fail or refuse to comply with the order of the commissioners court requiring him to assess and list for taxation all the property in such drainage districts as herein provided, he shall be suspended from the further discharge of his duties by the commissioners court of his county, and he shall be removed from office in the mode prescribed by the law for the removal of any county officers. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 32, superseding Art. 2604, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Equalization of assessments.—The fact that such statute does not specifically provide for the equalization of tax assessments does not affect the validity of a tax levied in a drainage district, since not only does such statute contemplate that the valuation fixed upon property by the board of equalization as the regular assessment shall fix its value for the drainage tax, but Acts 32d Leg. c. 118, § 31, provides for the equalization of tax assessments and affords full protection to the taxpayer. Wharton County Drainage Dist. No. 1 v. Higbee (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 381.

Art. 2605. Collector charged with assessment rolls; compensation; bond required; penalty for failure to give.—The tax collector of the county shall be charged by the county commissioners court with the assessment rolls of the drainage district, and he shall be allowed such compensation for the collection of said taxes as he is now allowed for the collection of other taxes. The county commissioners court shall require the tax collector of the county to give an additional bond or security in such a sum as they may deem proper and safe to secure the collection of said taxes; and should any collector of taxes fail or refuse to give such additional bond or security as herein provided, when requested by the commissioners court within the time provided by law for such purposes, he shall be suspended from office by the commissioners court of his county, and immediately thereafter be removed from office in the mode prescribed by law. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 33, superseding Art. 2605, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2606. Collector to report delinquents to commissioners' court; duty of court.—It shall be the duty of the tax collector to make a certified list of all delinquent property upon which the drainage tax has not been paid and return the same to the county commissioners court, which shall proceed to have the same collected by the sale of such delinquent property in the same manner as is now provided for the sale of property for the collection of state, county taxes, and at the sale of any property for any delinquent drainage tax the drainage commissioners may become the purchasers of the same for the benefit of the drainage district. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 34, superseding Art. 2606, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2607. Treasurer to keep accounts with drainage district, rendered when; payments on vouchers.—It shall be the duty of the county treasurer to open an account with the drainage district and to keep an accurate account of all moneys received by him belonging to such district and of all amounts paid out by him. He shall pay out no money except upon a voucher signed by the drainage commissioners and countersigned by the county judge, and he shall carefully preserve on file all orders for the payment of money, and as often as required by the said drainage commissioners or the county commissioners court he shall render a correct account to them of all matters pertaining to the financial condition of such district. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 35, superseding Art. 2607, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2608. Treasurer's bonds; depository; bonds of depository and treasurer; compensation; surety company bonds; powers of drainage commissioners.—The county treasurer shall be the treasurer of such district, and shall execute a good and sufficient bond, payable to the drainage commissioners of such district, in a sum equal to the amount of bonds issued, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duty as treasurer of such district, which bond shall be approved by said drainage commissioners; provided, however, that such drainage commissioners, in their discretion, may provide for a district depository for the funds of such district, by complying in all respects with the laws of the designation of county depositories, and in case such depository shall be designated by the drainage commissioners and shall give a good and sufficient bond, approved by the drainage commissioners as is provided by law for depositories of county funds, then the county treasurer, as treasurer of such drainage district, shall be required to give bond for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office in accordance with the provisions of the general statute relating to such county treasurers in counties where county depositories have been provided for county funds.

The treasurer shall be allowed as compensation for his services as treasurer one fourth of one per cent upon all money received by him for the account of such drainage district and one eighth of one per cent upon all moneys by him paid out upon the order of said district, but he shall not be entitled to any commissions on any moneys received by him from his predecessor in office belonging to such drainage district; provided, that the county judge, county treasurer, county depository, contractor and all bonded officers of such district or districts may be officially bonded in some surety company approved by said drainage commissioners.

All powers vested in the commissioners' court as to the designation of county depositories are hereby vested in the drainage commissioners as to the funds of drainage districts. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 89, sec. 1, amending Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 36, which superseded Arts. 2608, 2609, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2608a. Separate tax assessor and board of equalization; election; appointment; powers and duties.—After any drainage district shall have been created and established, as in this Act provided, the commissioners' court of the county in which such district is established may, upon petition of twenty-five resident freeholders of such drainage district, order an election to be held within the boundaries of such district, giving notice thereof as provided for other elections under the provisions of this Act, to determine whether or not such district shall have a separate tax assessor, separate tax collector and separate board of equalization for the assessment and collection of taxes for district purposes; and if at said election two-thirds of the property taxpayers of such district participating in such election, shall vote in favor of such change, then the commissioners' court of the county shall appoint a suitable person as tax assessor of such district, and a suitable person for tax collector of such district, each of whom shall give bond as otherwise provided for such officers and shall exercise all the powers and duties conferred upon county tax assessors and county tax collectors under the provisions of this Act, and the drainage commissioners of such district shall exercise all of the powers conferred upon the commissioners' court of the county by this Act, with relation to the equalization of taxes, and the general laws of this state, relating to the assessment, collection and equalization of taxes shall apply to the assessment, collection and equalization of taxes, for such drainage district, in so far as such general laws are applicable to such taxation. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 89, sec. 1, amending Acts 1911, p. 245.]

Art. 2608b. Levy of annual tax for maintenance of improvements; limitation of amount.—In all such improvement districts which have heretofore been created under any law of this state or that may hereafter be created, the commissioners' courts of the respective counties, or the commissioners of said districts where said districts have voted to take charge of the assessing, collecting and equalizing of taxes of said district, shall be and are hereby authorized to levy and cause to be assessed and collected for the maintenance and keep-up of the levees and improvement districts an annual tax not to exceed five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation upon all property within said improvement district, whether real, personal or mixed, and said tax shall be used for the purpose of maintenance, repairs and keep ups of said levees and improvements within the district. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 89, sec. 1.]

Art. 2609.—Superseded. See Art. 2608.

Art. 2610. Contract let to lowest bidder, etc., how, etc.; proviso.—Contracts for making and constructing canals, drains, ditches and levees, straightening and cleaning water courses and other necessary work in connection with any drainage district shall be let by the drainage commissioners to the lowest bidder after giving notice by advertising the same in one or more newspapers of general circulation in the State of Texas, once a week for four consecutive weeks, and by posting notices for at least twenty days, in five public places in the county, one of which shall be at the court house door, and at least two of which shall be within said drainage district, and the contract for each drain, canal, ditch or levee, may be let separately or all together; provided, that all the improvements included in the report of the drainage engineer and adopted by the county commissioners court, as provided for in sections 21 and 22 of this Act [Arts. 2592, 2593] shall be constructed. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 43, superseding Art. 2610, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2611. Bids, how presented, etc.—Any person or corporation or firm desiring to bid on the construction of any work advertised for as provided for in the preceding section of this Act [Art. 2610] shall, upon application to the drainage commissioners, be furnished with a copy of the engineer's report showing the location, profiles and estimates of such work as provided for in this Act, and all bids or offers to do any of such work shall be in writing and sealed and delivered to the chairman of the drainage commissioners, together with a certified check for at least five per cent of the total amount bid, which shall be forfeited to the district in case the bidder refuses to enter into a proper contract if his bid is accepted. Any and all bids may be rejected if deemed too high. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 44, superseding Art. 2611, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2612. Contracts, how made.—All contracts made by the drainage commissioners shall be reduced to writing and signed by the contractors and drainage commissioners and approved by the county judge, and a copy of same filed with the county clerk for reference [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 45, superseding Art. 2612, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Oral contract.—See notes under Art. 2589.

Art. 2613. Bond of contractor.—The party, firm or corporation to whom any such contract is let shall give bond, payable to the drainage commissioner of said district, in the amount of the contract price, conditioned that he, they or it, will faithfully perform the obligations, agreements and covenants of their contracts, and that in default thereof will pay to said district all damages sustained by reason thereof. Said bond shall be approved by such drainage commissioners and the county judge. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 46, superseding Art. 2613, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Application.—See notes under Art. 2589.

Art. 2614. Engineer to furnish profile, etc., to contractor, supervise work, etc.; report.—The drainage engineer shall furnish the contractor with a sectionized profile of the work contracted for, showing the depth, width and slope of all canals, drains, ditches and levees, and the number of cubic yards to be removed and other work to be done by the contractor, and such work shall be done by the contractor under the supervision of the drainage engineer, who shall indicate to the said contractor the points at which the laterals shall intersect the main canal, and no earth shall be deposited by the contractor so as to interfere with the construction of such laterals or other contemplated work in said drainage district, or the building of bridges or other work on the public roads, and when the work is completed according to contract the engineer shall make a detailed report of the same to the drainage commissioners showing whether the contract has been fully complied with according to its terms, and if not, in what particular it has not been so complied with. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 47, superseding Art. 2614, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Application.—See notes under Art. 2589.

Art. 2615. Inspection of work by drainage commissioners; payment of contract price.—The drainage commissioners shall have the right, and it is hereby made their duty at all times during the progress of the work being done under contract to inspect the same, and upon the completion of any contract they shall draw a warrant on the county treasurer for the amount of the contract price in favor of the contractor or his assignee, which warrant shall, when approved by the county judge, be paid out of the drainage fund of such district. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 57, superseding Art. 2615, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2616. Payment as work progresses.—If the drainage commissioners shall deem it advisable in order to obtain more favorable contracts, they may advertise and contract for work to be paid for in partial payments as the work progresses, but such partial payments shall not exceed in the aggregate seventy-five per cent of the total amount to be paid under the contract, the amount of work completed to be shown by a certified report by the engineer and no payment to be made for work not completed. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 58, superseding Art. 2616, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2617. Bridges and culverts across, etc., railways, etc.—The drainage commissioners are hereby authorized and empowered to make all necessary bridges and culverts across or under any railroad track and right of way of such railway to enable them to construct and maintain any canal, drain or ditch necessary to be constructed as a part of the drainage system of such district, such bridges or culverts to be paid for by the drainage district; provided, however, that notice shall first be given by such drainage commissioners to railway authorities authorized to build or construct bridges and culverts, and the railway company shall be allowed thirty days to build such bridges or culverts at their own expense, if it should so desire, according to its own plans, provided such bridge or culvert shall be constructed as to not interfere with the free and unobstructed flow of the water passing through the canal or drain, and shall be placed at such points as are designated by the drainage engineer. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 48, superseding Art. 2617, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2618. Bridges and culverts over canals, drains, etc.—The drainage commissioners are hereby authorized and required to build all necessary bridges and culverts across and over all canals, drains, ditches, laterals and levees made and constructed under the provisions of this Act whenever the same crosses a county or a public road, and shall pay for the same out of the drainage fund; and they are hereby authorized to draw warrants on the county treasurer therefor, which warrant must be approved by the county judge. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 49, superseding Art. 2618, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2618a. Surplus after completion; additional or supplemental improvements, etc.; report of engineer.—After the full and final completion of all the improvements contracted for, including all bridges, culverts, etc., and after the payment of all expenses incurred under the provisions of this Act, and there is left remaining a surplus of money or bonds to the credit of such drainage district, the drainage commissioners of such district may cause the engineer of said district to make a detailed report of any additional or supplemental drains, ditches or levees or other character of surface drainage improvements, including tile drainage, that may be needed in such district, and make report thereof to the commissioners court of such county, as is provided in sections 7, 8 and 9 of this Act [Arts. 2573, 2574, as amended, and 2575]; but the estimated costs of such additional improvements shall in no event exceed the amount of surplus money or bonds to the credit of such districts; and when such report of the engineer shall have been filed with the clerk of the county commissioners court, said report shall be acted upon as provided in sections 10 and 11 of this Act [Arts. 2576, 2577]. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 50.]

Art. 2618b. Election for submission of proposition of additional improvements.—After the approval of the report of the engineer or as modified by the court, the county commissioners court shall order an election to be held within such drainage district at the earliest possible legal time, at which election there shall be submitted the following proposition, and none other: "For the additional improvements and payment therefor out of the moneys on hand," and "Against the additional improvements and payment therefor out of the moneys on hand." [Id. sec. 51.]

Art. 2618c. Notice of election.—Notice of such election briefly reciting the character and scope of such proposed additional improvements, stating the estimated cost of same, and stating the time and places of holding such election, shall be given by the county clerk in the same manner and for the length of time prescribed in section 13 of this Act [Art. 2579]. [Id. sec. 52.]

Art. 2618d. Conduct of election, etc.—The manner of conducting said election shall be governed by the election laws of Texas, except as herein otherwise provided, and none but resident property tax payers, who are qualified voters shall participate in said election. The county commissioners court shall name the polling places for such election, and shall appoint the judges and other necessary election officers, and shall provide sufficient ballots for said election, which shall have printed thereon the proposition to be voted upon, and every person who offers to vote at such election shall first take the oath prescribed in section 15 of this Act [Art. 2581]. [Id. sec. 53.]

Art. 2618e. Return, canvass, etc.—Due return of such election shall be made as is provided in section 16 of this Act [Art. 2582], and the commissioners court, at its next regular or special session shall canvass the vote, and if it be found that a majority of the resident property tax payers voting thereon shall have been cast in favor of such additional improvements, then the court shall declare the result of said election to be in favor of such additional improvements, and enter its order in accordance therewith. [Id. sec. 54.]

Art. 2618f. Contracts for additional improvements, etc.—Contracts for making and constructing such additional improvements shall be made and let as is provided in sections 43 and 44 of this Act [Arts. 2610, 2611], and any person, firm or corporation desiring to bid on such work shall be governed by section 44 of this Act [Art. 2611], and such contract shall be made and bond entered into by contractor as is provided in sections 45 and 46 of this Act [Arts. 2612, 2613]. [Id. sec. 55.]

Art. 2618g. Provisions applicable to additional improvements.—The provisions of this Act relative to the construction of the improvements under the original contract and the authority of the commissioners court and drainage commissioners, shall apply to the construction of such additional improvements and the authority of the court and drainage commissioners in connection therewith, in so far as applicable, and payment therefor. [Id. sec. 56.]

Art. 2619. Canals, drains, etc., public property of district; rights of land owners, etc.—All canals, drains, ditches and levees made and water courses cleaned or constructed by any district shall be the public property of such district, and every person owning land within said district shall have the right to drain into one or more of such public drains, and for such purpose shall be permitted at his own expense to make drains according to the natural slope of the land through such other lands as intervene between his land and the nearest public drain or water-course, or along a public highway; provided, that no such drain through another's property or along a public highway shall be made until authorized by the drainage commissioners, who shall, after notice by the party desiring to make such drain, go upon the premises and act as a jury of view and determine the place where such drain may be made. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 39, superseding Art. 2619, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Natural flow of water, liability for obstructing.—One held liable for obstructing the natural flow of the water in a well-defined drainage way. Batla v. Goodell, 53 C. A. 178, 115 S. W. 622.

Art. 2620. No drainage into canal, etc., without acquiring right; how, etc.—Whenever a drainage district has been established under the provisions of this Act, no private individual, company or corporation or adjoining drainage district shall have the right to artificially drain adjacent lands located outside of such drainage district into any canals, drains or ditches until they have acquired the legal right to do so as herein provided. Whenever any private individual, company or corporation or adjoining drainage district shall desire to secure an outlet for drainage by making a connection with any canal, drain or ditch already constructed by an established drainage district, he, they or it shall make written application to the drainage commissioners of such established district for permission to make such connection, which application shall show the width, depth and length of such connecting drains or ditches, and when such application has been filed with the drainage commissioners of the established district, the civil engineer shall make an estimate of the quantity of water which such connecting drains or ditches would probably empty into such established canals or drains, and whether such established drains or canals have sufficient capacity to carry such excess of water without risk of damage thereto or the adjacent territory. And the engineer shall make a report showing the result of his examination and estimate, and the drainage commissioners of the established district may, if they deem advisable, authorize such connection, on condition, however, that such private individual, company or corporation or adjoining drainage district shall first pay into the county treasury for the benefit of the construction and maintenance fund of such established drainage district a sum of money which bears the same ratio to the cost of the original canal or drain from the point of connection to its outlet, that the water to be emptied therein by the connecting drain or canal bears to the water then tributary to and being carried by the original canal or drain as estimated by the drainage engineer, unless the drainage commissioners for the established district shall otherwise agree with such parties making application for such connection. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 59, superseding Art. 2620, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2621. Permitting on condition of enlargement, when necessary.—Whenever it becomes necessary or advantageous for an individual, corporation or drainage district, established or to be established under this Act, to secure drainage outlets through one or more drainage districts already established as provided in the preceding sections of this Act, and when it shall appear from the report of the engineer of such established district that the canals, drains or outlets of such established district are not of sufficient capacity to carry the excess of water that would be discharged therein by reason of such connection, or that such additional discharge of water would danger the initial canals and drains or the lands and property adjacent thereto; then and in that case the county court in which the initial district is situated, shall nevertheless authorize such individual, corporation, company or drainage district, as the case may be, to make such connection and secure the desired outlet only on condition, however, that he, they or it, shall first at their own cost and expense make the necessary enlargement of the canals and drains, with which it is proposed to make connections, and such increased capacity shall be amply sufficient to carry any increase of water that may be caused by such connections without danger to said canals and drains or to lands adjacent thereto. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 60, superseding Art. 2621, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2622. Enlargement of canals, drains, etc., how done, etc.—The work of enlarging such canals and drains shall be done under the supervision and direction of the engineer of the initial district, whose salary shall by order of the county court be paid by the person, company, corporation or district doing such work to secure connection, as aforesaid. When the work of enlarging the initial canals and drains is fully completed to the satisfaction of the said engineer, he shall make a report to the county court, under his official certificate, showing the kind and character of work done and to what extent any of the canals and drains have been enlarged, and shall show that the increased capacity of the same is sufficient to carry any excess of water that may be added thereto by reason of such connection, and the engineer shall as a part of his report show the number of days he was actually employed in supervising said work, and also show the amount due him for such services, and on the approval of such report the court shall make an order authorizing the connections desired with such canals and drains, on payment of the amount shown to be due the engineer by said report. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 60, superseding Art. 2622, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2623. Drainage commissioners to keep canals, drains, etc., in repair.—It shall be the duty of the drainage commissioners to keep the canals, drains, ditches and levees and other improvements made under the provisions of this Act in repair, and they shall have general authority to supervise and control the construction and maintenance of same. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 42, superseding Art. 2623, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2624. Semi-annual report of drainage commissioners; publication.—The drainage commissioners shall make semi-annual reports of their acts and doings as such commissioners, including a financial statement showing with accuracy of date and amount, and detail, the receipts and disbursements of all funds subject to their orders as such commissioners, and shall file same with the clerk of the county court of the county in which such drainage district is established, on or before the first days of January and July of each year; which report shall further show in detail the kind, character and amount of work done by the district, the cost of same and the amounts paid out in orders and for what purposes, and to whom paid and other data necessary to show the condition of the improvements made under the provisions of this Act. Such drainage commissioners shall further cause the publication of a true copy of their report as filed with the clerk of the county court, in some newspaper published in the county in which such drainage district is situated, once in each week for two successive weeks immediately following the first day of January and July of each year. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 89, sec. 1, amending Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 61, which superseded Art. 2624, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Art. 2625. Officers not to be interested in contracts, etc.; violation misdemeanor.—Neither the county judge or any county commissioner or drainage commissioner nor the drainage engineer shall be directly or indirectly, interested for themselves or as agents for any one else in the contract for the construction of any work to be performed by such drainage district, and if said officers or either of them shall directly or indirectly, become interested in any contract for such work, or in any fee paid by such drainage district whereby he shall receive any money consideration or other thing of value, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than six months nor more than one year. [Acts 1911, p. 245, sec. 63, superseding Art. 2625, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Note.—Section 65 of Acts 1911, p. 245, repeals all laws or parts of laws in conflict.

Section 40 of Acts 1911, p. 245, makes it a misdemeanor to obstruct or interfere with a drain, and is omitted as inappropriate to the Civil Statutes.

CHAPTER FIVE

DISSOLUTION OF DRAINAGE DISTRICTS

Article 2625a. Drainage district may dissolve.—Any drainage district heretofore organized or that may hereafter be organized, under the general laws of this state, may voluntarily abolish its corporate existence in the manner hereinafter provided. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 41, sec. 1.]

Art. 2625b. Petition for election; form of submission.—Upon the presentation to the county commissioners court of any county in this state, at a regular session thereof, of a petition accompanied by the deposit provided for in section 7 of this Act [Art. 2625g], signed by fifty of the freehold resident citizen taxpayers in any drainage district organized, or that may hereafter be organized, under the general laws of this state, or in the event there are less than one hundred freehold resident citizen taxpayers in said district, then by one-third of such freehold citizen taxpayers in said district, praying for the abolition of such drainage district, the county commissioners court shall order an election to be held within such drainage district at the earliest possible legal time, at which election there shall be submitted the following propositions, and none other: "For the abolition of the drainage district," "Against the abolition of the drainage district." [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2625c. Notice of election; posting.—Notice of such election, stating the time and place or places of holding the election, shall be given by the county clerk by posting notices thereof in four public places in such drainage district and one at the court house door of the county in which such drainage district is situated. Such notices shall be posted for twenty days previous to the date of the election, and shall contain the proposition to be voted on, as set forth in section 2 of this Act [Art. 2625b]. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2625d. Conduct of election; qualification of voters; polling places; officers of election; ballots.—The manner of conducting of said election shall be governed by the election laws of the state of Texas, except as herein otherwise provided. None but resident property taxpayers who are qualified voters of said drainage district shall be entitled to vote at any election on any question submitted to the voters thereof by the commissioners court at such election.

The county commissioners court shall name a polling place for such election at each voting precinct, or part of a precinct, embraced in said drainage district, each of which shall be in said drainage district, and shall also select and appoint the judges and other necessary officers of the election and shall provide one and a half times as many ballots for said election as there are qualified resident taxpaying voters within such drainage district, as shown by the tax rolls of said county. Such ballot shall have printed thereon the words, and no others: "For the abolition of the drainage district." "Against the abolition of the drainage district." [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2625e. Oath to voters.—Every person who offers to vote in any election held under the provisions of this act, shall first take the following oath before the presiding judge of the polling place wherein he offers to vote, and the presiding judge is hereby authorized to administer same: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I am a qualified voter of ..... county and that I am a resident property taxpayer of the drainage district, the abolition of which is voted on at this election, and I have not voted before at this election." [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2625f. Returns and canvass; declaration of result; form.—Immediately after the election the presiding judge at each polling place shall make return of the result in the same manner as provided for in general elections for state and county officers, and return the ballot box to the county clerk, who shall keep same in a safe place and deliver them, together with the returns from the several polling places, to the commissioners court at its next regular session or special session called for the purpose of canvassing the vote and the county commissioners court shall at such session canvass the vote, and if it be found that two-thirds majority of the resident property taxpayers voting thereon shall have cast their vote in favor of abolishing the said drainage district, then the court shall declare the result of said election to be in favor of abolishing said district, and shall enter the same in the minutes of the court, substantially as follows:

"In the matter of the petition of .....and..... others, praying for the abolition of the drainage district in said petition described and designated as ..... County Drainage District No. ....., be it known that at an election called for that purpose in said district, held on the ..... day of ....., A. D. 191.... a two-thirds majority of the resident property taxpayers voting thereon voted in favor of the abolition of said drainage district now, therefore, it is considered and ordered by the court that said drainage district be, and the same is hereby abolished. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 2625g. Cash deposit accompanying petition; disposition; expenses of election.—When the original petition praying for the abolition of a drainage district is filed with the county commissioners court, it shall be accompanied by two hundred dollars in cash, which shall be deposited with the clerk of said court, and by him held until after the result of the election for the abolition of said drainage district has been declared and entered of record by the commissioners court, as hereinbefore provided, and should the result of said election be in favor of the abolition of said district, then the said two hundred dollars shall be by said clerk returned to the signers of said original petition, or their agent or attorney, and the costs and expenses of holding said election shall be a charge against said drainage district to be collected as other debts in the manner hereinafter stated in this act, but should the result of said election be against the abolition of said drainage district, then the said clerk shall pay out of the said two hundred dollars upon vouchers signed by the county judge all costs and expenses of said election and shall return the balance, if any, of said two hundred dollars to the signers of said original petition, or their agent or attorney. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 2625h. Sale of property; payment of debts; levy of tax; amount; effect as to outstanding bonds; retirement by tax levy.—When any drainage district is abolished as provided in the preceding sections of this Act, all the property belonging thereto shall be turned over to the county treasurer, and the commissioners court of the county shall provide for the sale and disposition of the same; the commissioners court shall also provide for the settlement of the debts due by the said drainage district, including the costs and expenses of holding said election, and for this purpose shall have the power to levy and cause to be assessed and collected a tax against the real and personal property within said drainage district, in the same manner as now provided by law for the levy and collection of taxes for the payment of the annual interest and providing a sinking fund for the payment of bonds issued by such drainage districts, under chapter 118 of the General Laws of the state of Texas, passed at the regular session of the thirty-second legislature [Art. 2603], and the method provided in said Act for the levy, assessment and collection of taxes for said districts shall be applicable in the levy, assessment and collection of taxes under this Act; provided that the levy of said tax shall be for such an amount only as will be necessary for the payment of all valid debts and obligations of every character existing against said district, except bonds issued and held by purchasers, which bonds shall be paid in accordance with the terms thereof, by levy and collection of an annual tax as provided by the said drainage Act; and nothing in this Act shall be construed as in any manner affecting or impairing the rights of the holders of bonds issued by any drainage district in this state; and, provided further, that in case of the abolition of any drainage district under the provisions of this Act against which there exists outstanding bonds in the hands of purchasers, the commissioners court of said county shall immediately enter into negotiations with the holders of said bonds, and if, according to the terms thereof, or by agreement between said court and the holders of said bonds, the said bonds can be retired at an earlier date than stipulated on their face, and such retirement is considered by said commissioners court as feasible and practicable, then said court shall have the power to levy and cause to be assessed and collected, in the manner above provided, such a tax, either annually, or all at once (not exceeding the constitutional limit) as will pay off as speedily as possible all indebtedness, both bonded and otherwise, of said drainage district. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2625i. Property turned over to county treasurer as trustee; bond; superseding former bond.—Upon the dissolution of any drainage district in this state as provided by this Act, all the property of said district of every kind and description shall, immediately upon the filing and approval of his bond as hereinafter provided, be turned over to the county treasurer, who shall virtute officii, become trustee for such defunct organization. Said treasurer shall execute a good and sufficient bond, payable to the county judge and his successors in office, in a sum not less than double the value of the property belonging to said district and the amount of the bonds outstanding, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duty as treasurer and trustee of such district, and for the paying over and delivering of all money and other property coming into his hands is such treasurer and trustee, to the party or parties entitled thereto, such bond to be approved by the county judge, and same to be recorded in the minutes of the commissioners court; and when so approved said bond shall supersede the bond theretofore given by said treasurer, as treasurer of said district provided that said treasurer may be officially bonded in some surety company approved by said county commissioners court. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 2625j. Treasurer to sue for and recover property or indebtedness.—The said treasurer, as ex-officio trustee of said defunct drainage district, after having given the required bond as herein provided, shall take charge of all the property of said district, including the money in his hands as treasurer, said money to be held by him as treasurer of such district, and all books, notes, accounts and choses in action of every kind and as such trustee he may bring suit or suits against any person or persons in possession of such property, or indebted to such drainage district, the same as such drainage district could if still organized. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 2625k. Presentation and allowance of claims; notice; approval by commissioners court; payment.—Any person, firm, or corporation having any claim against such district shall within six months after the approval of the bond of the trustee, present to him such claim, duly verified and if the trustee find the same correct, he shall allow such claim and thereupon the claimant shall file the same with the clerk of the commissioners court not less than twenty days before the beginning of the next regular session of said court, and said clerk shall immediately issue a notice to all persons interested in said district of the filing of said claim, which notice shall be posted in three public places in said district, and also one at the court house door of said county, not less than twenty days before the next regular session of said court.

The commissioners court in regular session shall pass upon said claim, and if it be found correct they shall approve the same, which order of approval shall be entered upon the minutes of said court, and thereupon said claim shall become a valid and subsisting claim against said district, and upon filing same with said treasurer shall be paid by him, in order of its filing, out of the money in his hands as treasurer of said district. Provided, however, that all outstanding bonds against said district before its dissolution and all claims which have been allowed by the drainage commissioners and countersigned by the county judge as required by chapter 118 of the Acts of the Legislature of 1911 [Arts. 2595, 2607], shall not be required to be allowed and approved as herein provided, but shall be considered as valid and subsisting claims against said district without approval, but subject to be contested in accordance with the provisions of section 14 of this act [Art. 2625n]. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 2625*l*. Disallowance of claims by trustee; suit thereon; disallowance in part; waiver.—In case the trustee finds any claim presented to him unjust in whole or in part, he shall indorse thereon his refusal to allow same, and if it be refused in whole the owner thereof may institute suit against said trustee for said claim in any court of competent jurisdiction in said county, and if established by judgment as in other cases, said judgment shall be filed with the said treasurer and shall be paid in its order as other claims.

If said claim be refused by the trustee in part and allowed in part, and the owner thereof sees fit to waive his claim to the part so refused, he shall file said claim in the commissioners court as provided in section 11 hereof [Art. 2625k]. But if he does not waive his right to the portion of said claim so refused, he shall withdraw said claim from the trustee and may bring suit thereon as hereinabove provided. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 2625m. Appeal from disallowance of claim by commissioners court.—If the owner of any claim acted upon by the commissioners court as provided by section 11 of this Act [Art. 2625k] is not satisfied with the judgment of said court thereon, he may appeal therefrom as in cases of appeal from judgment of justice's court. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 2625n. Protest by taxpayers against claims; bond; suit thereon; filing judgment with treasurer; defenses.—In case any protest by any taxpayer of said drainage district be filed with the trustee against any claim which was allowed by the former drainage commissioners before the dissolution of said district, and which was unpaid at the time of dissolution, together with a bond with sufficient sureties, to be approved by said trustee and made payable to him, conditioned that such contestant will pay all costs of suit in case said claimant establishes his claim in full in any state court in which he may sue thereon, which bond shall be in double the amount of said claim; and upon the filing of said bond, the treasurer shall refuse to pay said claim and the owner thereof may bring suit therefor against the trustee in any court of competent jurisdiction, as in other suits of a civil nature as now provided by law. In all such suits the contestant and his bondsmen shall be made parties thereto, and in case of recovery by the claimant judgment shall be rendered against said contestant and his bondsmen for all costs incurred in said suit.

Upon the recovery of the judgment herein mentioned the owner thereof shall file the same with the said treasurer and same shall be paid by him in its due order as other claims established against said district.

In case of all suits as herein provided the trustee shall make all defenses that may be or may have been urged against said claim by the contestant. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 2625o. Trustee may employ counsel; expenses of management to be charged against trust estate; allowance; preference; action and appeal.—The trustee shall have the right to employ legal counsel in prosecuting and defending all suits brought by or against him in his capacity as trustee, or in the care and management of the business of said defunct district, and all reasonable expenses incurred by him in the care, control and conduct of the business of such drainage district, and employment of counsel therefor, or in conducting or defending suits in his capacity as such trustee shall be charged by him against said trust estate and shall be presented to the commissioners court of said county annually at a regular term thereof, and upon due notice posted as required in case of claims against said drainage district; and upon approval by said court the same shall become a valid and subsisting claim against said drainage district and shall be a preferred claim, and may be retained by said trustee out of the funds in his hands as treasurer of said district.

If the commissioners court reject said claim in whole or in part, and the trustee is dissatisfied with said ruling he may appeal therefrom, as in cases of appeal from judgments of justice's court. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 2625p. Compensation of trustee; of county assessor and collector; provision for.—The trustee and treasurer named in this Act shall receive only one compensation for services in both capacities; he shall be allowed one per cent upon all moneys received by him for the account of such drainage district, and one per cent upon all moneys paid out as provided in this Act; but he shall not be entitled to such commission on money in his hands as treasurer of said drainage district at the time of the dissolution thereof, as of money coming into his hands, nor on money turned over by him at the expiration of his trusteeship. And the county assessor and the county collector of taxes shall receive the same compensation for the assessing and collecting of taxes under this Act as is now provided by chapter 118, Acts of the Legislature of 1911 [Art. 2605], and their compensation for such service shall be provided for in the order of the commissioners court assessing such taxes. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 2625q. Pro rata payment on claims; not applicable to bonds.—The money collected by taxation under the provisions of this Act, including the money in the hands of the treasurer at the time of the dissolution of said drainage district, shall be paid pro rata upon all claims according to their priorities, except outstanding bonds, the payment of which shall be made as provided for by the law under which they were issued, unless they can be sooner retired as provided for in this Act. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 2625r. Final settlement by trustee; approval by commissioners court; distribution of surplus; discharge of trustee.—When all claims established against such drainage district have been paid and all costs and expenses incurred in the control and management thereof have been satisfied, the trustee shall file his account for final settlement with the commissioners court of said county, which shall contain a full and complete account of all moneys received and paid out, all property of every kind that has come into his hands as trustee, and the disposition thereof, and all other matters pertaining to the management of the affairs of said district; and upon approval thereof, the commissioners court shall direct the trustee to turn over any property or money remaining in his hands to the person or persons entitled thereto as found by said commissioners, and on his compliance with said order he shall so report to the court and thereupon the court shall enter an order discharging said treasurer and trustee and his bondsmen and closing said trust estate. [Id. sec. 18.]

Note.—Section 19 of Acts 1913, SS., p. 46, repeals all laws or parts of laws in conflict with the foregoing act.

TITLE 48

EDUCATION—PUBLIC

"A"—STATE INSTITUTIONS

"B"—THE PUBLIC FREE SCHOOLS

CHAPTER ONE

UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS

Article 2626. [3836] University funds.—The following shall constitute a permanent fund for the university of Texas, to be used for the benefit of said university:

1. All lands and other property heretofore set apart and appropriated for the establishment and maintenance of the university of Texas under any previous law.

2. One million acres of the unappropriated public domain of the state set apart for that purpose by the present constitution, and one million acres of land set apart by act of April 10, 1883.

3. All bonds that have heretofore or that may hereafter be purchased with the proceeds of the sales of the university lands.

4. All proceeds of the sales of university lands that are now, or may hereafter be, placed in the treasury of the state.

5. In addition to the foregoing, all grants, donations and appropriations that may be hereafter made, or that may be received from any other source. [Const. art. 5, secs. 10–15. Act Feb. 11, 1858, p. 148. P. D. 3573. See Acts 1879, extra session, ch. 18.]

Art. 2627. [3837] Shall be held in trust and invested.—Such portions of the funds specified in the preceding article as are now in the possession of the state, or that may hereafter be received, shall be held in trust by the state for the use and maintenance of said university; and all such funds as are susceptible of investment, and that have not heretofore been invested, shall be invested for the benefit of such university in the manner provided in the constitution and laws on that subject. [Id.]

Art. 2628. [3838] Title by donation may be vested, how.—Any person, association of persons or body corporate making a donation of property for the purposes of establishing or assisting in the establishment of a professorship or scholarship in the university or any of its branches, either temporarily or permanently, may vest the legal title to the property in any person or persons, body corporate, or the state of Texas, to be held in trust for said purpose, under such directions, limitations and provisions as may be declared in writing in the donation which are not inconsistent with the objects and proper management of said institution or its branches. [Acts of 1889, p. 143, sec. 1.]

Art. 2629. [3839] Donor may direct transmission of title.—It shall be lawful for the person or persons or body corporate to declare and direct the manner in which said title to said property shall thereafter pass or be transmitted from the person or persons or body corporate receiving it to others in continued succession, to be held and appropriated to the use aforesaid, and it shall be lawful for the donor or donors to declare and direct the person or class of persons who shall receive the benefit of said donation, together with the manner in which the person or persons who shall receive said benefits shall be from time to time selected, as it may become necessary to carry out the objects of the donation; provided, said declarations and directions are not inconsistent with the objects and proper management of said institution or its branches. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2630. [3840] Shall vest in the state in trust, when.—In the event there is a failure to transmit the title to the property or to bestow its use in the manner as declared and directed in the donation, or in the event they, or either of them, should become impracticable from the change of circumstances, the title to the property, unless otherwise directed expressly by the donor, shall vest in the state of Texas, to be held in trust to carry into effect the purposes of the donation as nearly as may be practicable by such agencies as may be provided therefor. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2631. [3841] Must be subject to laws, etc.—The title to said property donated shall be received, and the trust conferred in the donation shall be assumed, subject to laws that may be passed and carried into effect from time to time which may be necessary to prevent the loss of, or damage to, the property donated, or an abuse or neglect of the trust so as to defeat, materially change, or prevent the objects of the donation. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2632. [3842] Copies to be filed with board, etc.—Copies of said donation shall be procured and filed with the board which may have control of the university or any of its branches to which the donation applies, which board shall report the condition and management of the property and the manner in which the trust is being administered, as part of the matters reported pertaining to said institution. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2633. [4263a] Control of university lands confided to regents.—The board of regents of the university of Texas are invested with the sole and exclusive management and control of the lands which have heretofore been, or which may hereafter be, set aside and appropriated to, or acquired by, the university of Texas, with the right to sell, lease and otherwise manage, control and use the same in any manner, and at such prices and under such terms and conditions as may to them seem best for the interest of the university, not in conflict with the constitution of this state; provided, that such land shall not be sold at a less price per acre than the same class of land of other funds may be sold at under the statutes. [Acts 1895, p. 19.]

Art. 2634. Control of mineral lands confided to regents.—Said board of regents are invested with the sole and exclusive management and control of all mineral lands within the domain which has been, or may hereafter be, appropriated, set aside or acquired by the university of Texas; and said board of regents are hereby empowered and authorized to sell, lease, manage and control said mineral lands belonging to said university as may seem best to them for the interest of the university; and they are further empowered with authority to explore and have explored and develop said mineral lands and to make any contract with any persons whomsoever for the exploration and development of said mineral lands, and pay the expenses for such exploration or development out of the proceeds of the lease or sale of said land. [Acts 1901, p. 266, sec. 1.]

Art. 2635. [4263b] Duty of commissioner of land office.—The commissioner of the general land office is hereby directed to furnish to the said board of regents complete and accurate maps, and all other data necessary, to show the location and condition of every tract of said university lands, and shall at all times furnish to said board such additional information as they may require, and shall at all times render to said board such assistance as may be possible and as they shall request in the discharge of the duties hereby imposed on said board. [Acts 1895, p. 19.]

Art. 2636. [3843] Government of university, how vested.—The government of the university shall be vested in a board of [eight] regents, [selected from different portions of the state, who shall be nominated by the governor and appointed by and with the advice and consent of the senate]. [Acts 1881, p. 94; amend. 1895, p. 169.]

Explanatory.—The bracketed parts of this article have been superseded by Arts. 4042a-4042c.

Art. 2637.—Superseded. See Arts. 4042a–4042c.

Art. 2638. [3845] Shall have right to use seal.—The regents and their successors in office shall have the right of making and using a common seal and altering the same at pleasure. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 2639. [3846] How organized.—The regents shall elect a chairman of the board of regents from their own number, who shall hold his office during the pleasure of the board. They shall establish the departments of a first-class university, determine the offices and professorships, appoint a president, who shall, if they think it advisable, also discharge the duties of a professor, appoint the professors and other officers, fix their respective salaries, and they shall enact such by-laws, rules and regulations as may be necessary for the successful management and government of the university; they shall have power to regulate the course of instruction and prescribe, by and with the advice of the professors, the books and authorities used in the several departments, and to confer such degrees and to grant such diplomas as are usually conferred and granted by universities. [Id. sec. 8; amend. 1895, p. 169.]

Art. 2640. [3848] May remove officers.—The regents shall have power to remove any professor, tutor or other officer connected with the institution, when, in their judgment, the interest of the university shall require it. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 2641. [3849] Admission fee limited.—The fee of admission to the university shall never exceed thirty dollars, and it shall be open to all persons in the state who may wish to avail themselves of its advantages, and to male and female on equal terms, without charge for tuition, under the regulations prescribed by the regents, and all others under such regulations as the board of regents may prescribe. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 2642. [3850] Treasurer.—The treasurer of the state shall be the treasurer of the university. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 2643. [3851] Available fund.—The regents shall have authority to expend the interest which has heretofore accrued, and may hereafter accrue, on the permanent university fund, for the purposes herein specified, and for the maintenance of the branches of the university. [Id. sec. 18.]

Note.—See Arts. 2402a-2402d for limitations on power of regents to make contracts or expenditures.

Art. 2644. [3852] Expenditures, how made.—All expenditures may be made by the order of the board of regents, and the same shall be paid on warrants from the comptroller based on vouchers approved by the chairman of the board or by some officer or officers of the university designated by him in writing to the comptroller, and countersigned by the secretary of the board, or by some other officer or officers of the university designated by said secretary in writing to the comptroller. [Acts 1911, p. 99, sec. 1, amending Art. 3852, Rev. Civ. St. 1895.]

Note.—See note under Art. 2643.

Art. 2645. [3853] No religious qualification required for admission.—No religious qualification shall be required for admission to any office or privilege in the university; nor shall any course of instruction of a sectarian character be taught therein. [Acts 1881, p. 80, sec. 20.]

Art. 2646. Elementary agriculture to be taught.—The board of regents shall require the teaching of elementary agriculture in the summer session of the university, as provided in chapter 10 of this title. [Acts 1909, p. 221, sec. 2.]

Art. 2647. Shall confer teachers' diplomas, when.—The university shall also confer teachers' diplomas and certificates in such cases and under such circumstances and conditions as are prescribed in chapter 14 of this title. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 394.]

Art. 2648. Law licenses to issue on diplomas.—Law licenses shall be granted upon the diplomas of the law department of the university, as prescribed by article 317. [Acts 1905, p. 150.]

Art. 2649. [3854] Annual report to board of education.—The board of regents shall report to the board of education annually, and to each regular session of the legislature, the condition of the university, setting forth the receipts and disbursements, the number and salary of the faculty, the number of students, classified in grades and departments, the expenses of each year, itemized, and the proceedings of the board and faculty fully stated. [Acts 1881, p. 80, sec. 21.]

Art. 2650. [3855] Board of visitors.—There shall be appointed by the legislature at each regular session a board of visitors, who shall attend the annual examinations of the university and its branches and report to the legislature thereon. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 2651. [3856] Expenses of regents and visitors to be paid.—The reasonable expenses incurred by the board of regency and visitation in the discharge of their duties shall be paid from the available university fund.

Art. 2652. [3857] Governor to have issued manuscript bonds.—The governor is authorized and directed to have issued manuscript bonds of the state of Texas to be sold or exchanged at par for the permanent university fund at any time when there is on hand in cash any reasonable amount of such funds not less than five thousand dollars. [Acts 1889, p. 81.]

Art. 2653. [3858] Character of bonds.—Said bonds shall be of such denomination as the governor may direct, and shall be redeemable at the pleasure of the state, and shall bear interest at the rate of five per centum per annum, payable annually at the state treasury on the first day of March of each year. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2654. [3859] Form of bonds.—The bonds issued under this chapter shall recite the title and date of passage of the act of 1889, page 81, shall be signed by the governor and treasurer and countersigned by the comptroller, and shall be registered in the office of the state treasurer; and, after said bonds have been registered, the governor shall offer said bonds to the board of education as an investment for the permanent university fund then on hand in cash which are by law authorized to be invested; and, if the board of education take said bonds, the treasurer and comptroller shall make the proper entry, showing the facts of the transaction and the necessary transfer of such fund on their books; and, if the board of education shall not take said bonds thus offered, the same shall be destroyed and canceled and of no effect whatever. [Id. sec. 3.]

The title and date of approval of the act of 1889, above referred to, are as follows: "An Act to provide for the issuance of bonds of this state to supply deficiencies in the revenue, and to provide the manner of the sale of such bonds to the board of education for the permanent university fund." Approved April 2, 1889.

AGRICULTURAL AND MECHANICAL COLLEGE

Article 2655. [3860] Agricultural and mechanical college made a branch of the university of Texas.—The agricultural and mechanical college of Texas, established by an act of the legislature passed April 17, 1871, located in the county of Brazos, and by the constitution made and constituted a branch of the university of Texas, for instruction in agriculture, the mechanical arts and the natural science connected therewith, shall be managed and controlled as herein provided. [Const., art. 7, sec. 13; 12 U. S. Stat., p. 503; 14 Id. p. 203; Act March 9, 1875, p. 72, P. D. 5693 et seq.]

Art. 2656. [3861] Leading object of the college.—The leading object of this college shall be, without excluding other scientific and classical studies, and including military tactics, to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanical arts, in such manner as the legislature may prescribe, in order to promote the liberal and practical education of the industrial classes in the several pursuits and professions in life. [12 U. S. Stat., p. 503; Act Cong. July 2, 1862, sec. 4.]

Art. 2657. [3862] Board of directors.—The government of the agricultural and mechanical college of Texas shall be vested in a board of [eight] directors, one of whom shall be the commissioner of agriculture, [who shall reside in different portions of the state, who shall be appointed by the governor, by and with the advice and consent of the senate.] [Acts 1881, p. 75; amended Acts 1899, p. 21.]

Explanatory.—The bracketed parts of this article have been superseded by Arts. 4042a-4042c.

Note.—See Arts. 2402a-2402d for limitation on power to contract debts.

Art. 2658 [3863] Directors how appointed, term of office.—[The board of directors shall be divided into classes, numbered one, two, three and four, as determined by the governor, shall hold their office two, four, six and eight years, respectively, from the date of their appointment] and until their successors are appointed and qualified. [Two members shall be appointed at each session of the legislature to supply the vacancies made by the provisions of this article, and in the manner provided for in the preceding article, who shall hold their office for eight years respectively.] [Amended Acts 1899, p. 21.]

Explanatory.—The bracketed parts of this article have been superseded by Arts. 4042a-4042c.

Art. 2659.—Superseded. See Art. 4042b.

Art. 2660. [3865] Quorum, what constitutes.—Said board shall elect from their number a president of the board, who shall call said board together for the transaction of business whenever he deems it expedient, and a majority of said board shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. [Acts 1881, p. 75.]

Art. 2661. [3866] Expenses of directors, how paid.—Said directors shall serve without compensation, but shall receive their actual expenses incurred in attending the meetings of the board or in the transaction of any business of the college imposed by said board [Id. Amended Acts 1899, p. 21.]

Art. 2662. [3867] Certificate of appointment to be sent.—The secretary of state shall forward a certificate to each director within ten days after his appointment, notifying him of the fact of such appointment, and, should any director so appointed and notified fail for ten days to give notice to the governor of his acceptance, his appointment shall be deemed void, and his place filled as in case of vacancy. [Acts 1881, p. 75.]

Art. 2663. [3868] Number of students to receive instruction free of charge.—There shall be maintained and instructed at said college annually, free of charge to them, three students from each senatorial district in this state, one of whom shall be appointed by the senator of such district, and the other two by the representatives thereof. One-half of said students so appointed shall be compelled to take an agricultural, and the other half a mechanical, course of study, to be assigned thereto by the president of said college; and, in order to pay their expenses, the comptroller, on proper vouchers being filed in his office by the directors, is authorized to draw his warrant on the state treasurer against any appropriation made for that purpose. [Id.]

Art. 2664. [3869] Board shall appoint president, professors, etc., of the college, etc.—The board of directors shall, when necessary, appoint the president and professors of the college and such other officers as, from time to time, they may think proper to keep the college in successful operation, and may, from time to time, abolish any office that is in their judgment unnecessary. [Acts of 1875, p. 74.]

Art. 2665. Board to employ expert entomologist.—The president and board of directors of the college shall employ an expert entomologist, one or more, as may be deemed necessary, whose duty it shall be to devise, if possible, means of destroying the Mexican boll weevil, boll worm, caterpillar, sharp-shooter, chinch bug, peach bug, fly and worm and other insect pests, and to perform the duties of professor of entomology in the college. [Acts 1899, p. 9, sec. 1.]

Art. 2666. To establish department of instruction in valuing, etc., cotton.—Said board shall establish at and in connection with the said college a school or department for the instruction in the theory and practical arts of grading, classing and determining the spinable value of cotton, whose main purpose shall be to train students in the theory and practical art of cotton classing in all its branches from the field to the factory. [Acts 1909, p. 220, sec. 1.]

Art. 2667. To provide summer school for said department.—In addition to the regular school provided for above, said board shall provide for a special summer school of at least two months each year for the training of special students, and there shall be no entrance examination for said special summer schools. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2668. Power to make necessary provisions.—The board of directors is invested with full power and authority to make provisions for said school or department, and to purchase the necessary equipment, and generally to do and perform all acts necessary to establish and maintain said school or department. [Id. sec. 3.]

Note.—See Arts. 2402a-2402d for limitation on power to contract and incur debts.

Art. 2669. To establish department for instruction in manufacture of cotton.—Said board shall establish at and in connection with the said college a school or department for instruction in the theory and practical art of textile and kindred branches of industry, whose main purpose shall be to train students in the theory and practice of cotton manufacturing, in all its branches, from the raw cotton to the finished fabric, and said board shall do and perform all acts necessary to establish and maintain said school or department. [Acts 1903, p. 74, sec. 1.]

Arts. 2670–2673.—Repealed. See Arts. 14a–14ii.

Art. 2674. [3870] May make by-laws, etc.—Said board of directors of said college shall also, from time to time, make such by-laws, rules and regulations for the government of said college as they may deem meet and proper for that purpose, and shall regulate the course of study, the rates of tuition, the manner of performing labor, and the kind of labor to be performed by the students of said college, and shall also prescribe the course of discipline necessary to enforce the faithful discharge of the duties of the professors, officers and students. [Acts 1875, p. 74.]

Art. 2675. [3871] By-laws, etc., shall be printed.—It shall be the duty of the board to have printed, for the benefit of the people of the state and officers and students of the said college, such by-laws, rules and regulations as they are authorized by the preceding article to prescribe. [Id.]

Art. 2676. Elementary agriculture to be taught.—The board of directors shall require the teaching of elementary agriculture for teachers in the summer sessions of the college as provided in chapter 10 of this title. [Acts 1909, p. 221, sec. 3.]

Art. 2676a. To employ civil engineer who understands terracing farm land, etc.—That the board of directors of the agricultural and mechanical college of the state of Texas be, and they are hereby authorized and empowered, to employ a civil engineer, having a practical and scientific knowledge of the conservation of moisture and soil fertility, who understands the practical art of terracing farm land to preserve the moisture and soil fertility and to prevent the washing away and the destruction of the properties of the soil. [Acts 1911, p. 155, sec. 1.]

Art. 2676b. Qualifications of engineer; salary; duties; equipment.—The board of directors of the agricultural and mechanical college shall, when this law takes effect, or as soon thereafter as practicable, employ a man possessing the qualifications mentioned in section 1 of this Act [Art. 2676a], who shall be a graduate of the agricultural and mechanical college of the state of Texas, and if such graduate can not be secured, such person to be employed must possess the requisite qualifications mentioned in section 1 of this Act, and must have had five years actual experience in terracing farm lands in some southern state. Such person so employed shall receive a salary not exceeding two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars per annum, and shall make his headquarters and be located at the agricultural and mechanical college of Texas, where he shall instruct the students of said institution by lecture and practical demonstration, in the best method of conservation of moisture and soil fertility, and the practical art of terracing farm lands to prevent erosion of the soil and the washing away of the lands, and he shall devote one-half of his time, as near as may be, to such instruction, and the other half of his time shall be spent in field work, giving practical demonstrations in terracing, to farmers' institutes and other farmers' organizations, and the president of the agricultural and mechanical college shall require him to go over the state upon the application of farmers desiring expert instruction in terracing farm lands, and in conserving the moisture and soil fertility. He shall be furnished with necessary instruments and equipment to demonstrate to the farmers and students the best methods of terracing and conserving moisture and soil fertility, and shall actually teach and instruct them in such manner as will enable them to do the work successfully. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2676c. Appropriation.—The sum of two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars is hereby appropriated out of the general revenue, not otherwise appropriated, to pay the salary of an expert terracer for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1912, and two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars to pay said salary for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1913. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2677. [3872] Perpetual fund.—The money arising from the sale of the one hundred and eighty thousand acres of land donated to this state by the United States under the provisions of an act of congress passed on the second day of July, 1862, and an amended act of congress of July 23, 1866, shall constitute a perpetual fund, under the conditions and restrictions imposed by the above recited acts, for the benefit of said college; and the investment of the same, heretofore made in the bonds of the state, shall continue until the legislature shall, by law, direct it to be invested otherwise in furtherance of the interests of said college and in accordance with the terms on which it was received. [12 U. S. Stat., p. 503; 14 U. S. Stat., p. 203. Act March 9, 1875, p. 73, sec. 8. P. D. 5793.]

Art. 2678. [3873] Accrued interest on bonds, how invested.—The interest heretofore collected by the state board of education in accordance with the provisions of the act of August 21, 1876, due at the end of the fiscal year of 1876, on the bonds belonging to said agricultural and mechanical college and invested in six per cent state bonds, shall also constitute a part of the perpetual fund of said college until the legislature shall otherwise provide. [Act Aug. 21, 1876, p. 283, sec. 1.]

Art. 2679. [3874] Duty of state board of education.—It shall be the duty of the state board of education to collect the semi-annual interest on the bonds mentioned in the two preceding articles as the same becomes due, and place the same in the treasury of the state to the credit of said college fund. [Const., art. 7, sec. 8. Act Aug. 21, 1876, p. 283, sec. 2. Act March 9, 1875.]

Art. 2680. [3875] Money, how drawn from the treasury, and for what purpose.—The interest on the bonds which were purchased with the proceeds of the said land scrip, and also the interest on the bonds in which the accrued interest of the said bonds was invested, as heretofore set out in this chapter, is set apart exclusively for the use of said college, and shall be drawn from the treasury by the board of directors on vouchers audited by said board, or approved by the governor and attested by the secretary of the board. [Act March 9, 1875, p. 73, sec. 8. See Acts 1879, Extra Session, ch. 18.]

Art. 2681. [3876] Duty of comptroller to issue warrant, when.—On such vouchers being filed with the comptroller, it shall be his duty to draw his warrant on the state treasurer for the same, from time to time, as the same may be needed to pay the directors, professors and officers of the college. [Id.]

CHAPTER TWO A

SCHOOL OF MINES AND METALLURGY

Article 2681a. School created; location; to be under supervision of board of regents of university; faculty, etc.—A school of miners [mines] and metallurgy is hereby created for the state of Texas; said to be located and established in or near the city of El Paso provided citizens of the city of El Paso shall make and execute unto the state of Texas a deed to the tract of land comprising twenty-one acres of land, more or less, now comprised in the reservation of the El Paso military institute, adjacent to the Fort Bliss military reservation, together with the buildings and improvements thereon situated, to be used for the site and exclusive occupancy of said school. Said school shall be under the supervision of the board of regents of the university of the state of Texas and the faculty of said school shall be appointed by the board of regents of the university of Texas within ninety days after this act shall take effect, and such appointees shall hold their positions for a term of two years and until their successors are appointed and qualified. [Acts 1913, p. 427, sec. 1.]

Art. 2681b. Purpose of school.—The principal purpose of said school of miners [mines] shall be to teach such branches in mining and metallurgy as will give a thorough technical knowledge of miners [mines] and mining, and all subjects pertaining thereto, including physics and mining, engineering, mathematics, chemistry, geology, minerology, metallurgy, the subject of shop work and draining, [drawing] the technical knowledge and properties of mine gases, assaying, surveying, drafting of maps and plans, and such other subjects pertaining to mining engineering as may add to the safety and economical operation of miners [mines] within this state. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2681c. Shall have separate faculty, etc.—The school of miners [mines] and metallurgy herein provided for, shall have a separate and distinct faculty. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2681d. Powers of faculty.—The faculty of the school of miners [mines] and metallurgy shall have the power, under the direction of the board of regents herein provided, to confer degrees and issue diplomas and fix a standard of grades for all students attending said school of miners [mines], and the faculty will also have the power to make such rules and regulations for the proper control and management of the school as they may deem necessary. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2681e. Shall have what courses.—The school of miners [mines] and metallurgy shall have regular courses leading to degrees, and such other special courses as the faculty may deem necessary. The regular course shall extend over a period of two years. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2681f. Annual reports.—At the close of each school year the board of regents shall require the faculty of said school to make a report to them of the workings and progress of said school, and the board of regents in turn shall make a report to the governor in detail, exhibiting the progress, condition, and wants of the several departments of instruction in said school. The course of study in each and the number and names of the officers and students, the amount of receipts and disbursements, together with the nature, cost and results of all important experiments and investigations, and such other matters, including special industrial and economical statistics as may be thought useful. The board of regents shall cause the same to be printed for the use of the legislature and the people of the state, and shall cause one copy of same to be transmitted by mail to the secretary of the interior and one copy to the commissioner of labor at Washington City, and one copy to the commissioner of labor and chief mine inspector of the state. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 2681g. Terms of tuition; moneys, how disposed of.—The board of regents as herein provided shall fix the terms and tuition to be charged students in this school, and all moneys received from said tuition as [or] in any way from said school, over and above that necessary for the actual maintenance and carrying on of said school shall be returned to the state treasury to reimburse the state for the appropriation now made. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2681h. Appropriation.—For the purpose of putting this school in operation there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury, not otherwise appropriated, the sum of fifteen thousand dollars for the use and benefit of said school of miners [mines] and metallurgy, and the state comptroller is hereby empowered, authorized and directed to issue warrants upon the state treasury to the state treasurer for the payment of the sum herein appropriated to the said board of regents, herein created, for the location, support, and maintenance of said school of miners [mines] and metallurgy. [Id. sec. 9.]

CHAPTER THREE

TEXAS INDUSTRIAL INSTITUTE AND COLLEGE FOR THE EDUCATION OF WHITE GIRLS OF THE STATE OF TEXAS IN THE ARTS AND SCIENCES

Article 2682. Name of institute.—The industrial institute and college located at Denton, in Denton county, Texas, for the education of white girls in the arts and sciences shall be known as the Texas industrial institute and college for the education of white girls of the state of Texas in the arts and sciences. [Acts 1901, p. 306, sec. 1.]

Art. 2683. Board of regents, how appointed.—[The governor shall nominate and appoint, by and with the consent of the senate, seven persons to serve as a board of regents for said college, who shall serve as such for two years,] and until their successors are appointed and qualified. [In all cases of vacancy, the appointment to fill such vacancy and the reappointment to fill the position shall, from time to time, be made by the governor, as hereinbefore provided, but, if the legislature be not in session, the governor may fill such vacancy by appointment until the next session of the legislature, when, if the senate shall not confirm the appointment, the appointment of some other person shall be made as hereinbefore provided.] [Id. secs. 2 and 3.]

See Arts. 4042a-4042c, constituting the governing board, etc., of the "College of Industrial Arts for Women." These articles seem to supersede the bracketed parts of this article.

Art. 2684. Board to elect president; meetings; how called; duties of secretary, etc.—The board of regents shall have the power incident to their position, and in the same and to the same extent, so far as may be applicable, as is conferred by law on the regents of the university of Texas. Said board of regents shall elect a president, a secretary and a treasurer, whose terms of office shall be two years. The president so elected shall convene the board of regents of said industrial institute and college to consider any business connected with the same, whenever he shall deem it expedient to do so; it shall be the duty of the secretary to record in a well bound book all of the proceedings had by said board, and he shall be paid such salary as the board may prescribe; it shall be the duty of the treasurer to receive and disburse all moneys under the direction of the board. He shall be required to give bond in such sum as may be prescribed by the board. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2685. What shall be taught in the institute.—The board of regents shall possess all the powers necessary to accomplish and carry out the provisions of this chapter, the establishment and maintenance of a first-class industrial institute and college for the education of white girls in this state in the arts and sciences, at which such girls may acquire a literary education, together with a knowledge of kindergarten instruction; also a knowledge of telegraphy, stenography and photography; also a knowledge of drawing, painting, designing and engraving, in their industrial application; also a knowledge of general needle-work, including dressmaking; also a knowledge of bookkeeping; also a thorough knowledge of scientific and practical cooking, including a chemical study of food; also a knowledge of practical housekeeping; also a knowledge of trained nursing, caring for the sick; also a knowledge of the care and culture of children; with such other practical industries as, from time to time, may be suggested by experience, or tend to promote the general object of said institute and college, to wit: Fitting and preparing such girls for the practical industries of the age. [Id. sec. 5.]

Note.—See Arts. 2402a-2402d for limitation on power of regents to contract and incur debts.

Art. 2686. General duties of regents.—The board of regents herein mentioned shall appoint a president and professor of the said industrial institute and college, and such other officers as they may think proper to continue the same in successful operation, and to make such rules and regulations for the government of said officers as they may deem advisable. They shall regulate rates of tuition, together with course of discipline necessary to enforce the faithful discharge of the duties of all officers, professors and students. They shall divide the course of instruction into departments, so as to secure a thorough education and the best possible instruction in all of said industrial studies, selecting careful and efficient professors in each department, and shall adopt all such rules, by-laws and regulations as they may deem necessary to carry out all the purposes and objects of said institution. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 2687. Compensation of regents.—The board of regents shall receive such compensation as is now allowed to the board of regents for the university of Texas, to be paid out of the appropriation for this industrial institute and college. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 2688. Number of students apportioned to counties.—The board of regents shall apportion to each county its quota of pupils or students, on the basis of the number of the educatable white girls in the state and several counties; and the several superintendents of education of the several counties shall, after having given notice in some newspaper of the county, and three weeks after such publication, under such regulations as the board of regents may adopt, appoint such number of white girls to such industrial institute and college as such county may be entitled to. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 2689. Board of regents to fix salaries.—The board of regents shall determine and fix the salary of each officer, employé and professor, in said industrial institute and college; provided, that the salaries of professors in any one department shall not exceed that which is now fixed for the professors of the agricultural and mechanical college. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 2690. Elementary agriculture to be taught.—The board of regents shall require the teaching of elementary agriculture for teachers in the summer sessions of the college as provided in chapter 10 of this title. [Acts 1909, p. 221.]

Art. 2690a. Teachers' diplomas conferred.—The college shall also confer teachers' diplomas in such cases and under such circumstances and conditions as are prescribed in chapter 14 of this title. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 394.]

CHAPTER THREE A

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL BOARD OF REGENTS

Article 2690aa. Board how known and composed.—That immediately after the passage of this Act there shall be appointed a board to be known as the state normal school board of regents [said board to be composed of the state superintendent of public instruction and five other members to be selected as provided in section 2 of this Act (Art. 2690b)]. [Acts 1911, S. S., p. 74, sec. 1.]

Explanatory.—The bracketed part of this article is superseded by Arts. 4042a-4042c.

Art. 2690b. Members to be appointed, etc.—Immediately after this Act shall go into effect, the governor shall, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint four persons of good education and of high moral character, known to be friendly to the normal schools of Texas, who, together with the state superintendent of public instruction, shall constitute the state normal school board of regents for the control and management of the state normal schools for white teachers in Texas. [Id. sec. 2.]

Explanatory.—This article is superseded by Arts. 4042a-4042c, but is retained on account of reference made to it in Art. 2690d.

Art. 2690c. State superintendent of public instruction ex officio president; chief clerk of state department of education ex officio secretary, etc.—The state superintendent of public instruction shall be ex-officio president of the state normal school board of regents, and the chief clerk of the state department of education shall be ex-officio secretary of the said board of regents; and it shall be his duty to make and keep a record of the proceedings of all the meetings of the board, and to perform such other clerical duties as said board may impose upon him, but it is specifically provided that the said chief clerk shall not be entitled to a vote in the transaction of the business of the board. [Id. sec. 3.]

Explanatory.—This article is partly or wholly superseded by Arts. 4042a-4042c.

Art. 2690d. Terms of appointive members, etc.—[All appointive members of the board of regents shall be appointed for a term of two years,] and shall hold office until their successors are appointed and qualified, [and all vacancies on the board of regents caused by death, resignation or otherwise, shall be filled by appointment as provided in section 2 of this Act (Art. 2690b); provided, that if such vacancies occur when the legislature is not in session the governor shall fill such vacancies by appointment subject to ratification by the senate at the next session of the legislature]. [Id. sec. 4.]

Explanatory.—The bracketed part of this article is superseded by Arts. 4042a-4042c.

Art. 2690e. Duties of board; nomination of professors, teachers, etc.; obligations to be incurred.—The board of regents shall be charged with the responsibility of the general control and management of all state normal schools for white teachers now established or that may be established in the future in Texas, and shall have authority to erect, equip and repair buildings; to purchase libraries, furniture, apparatus, fuel and other necessary supplies; to employ and discharge presidents or principals, teachers, treasurers and other employés; and to fix the salaries of the persons so employed, it being made the duty of the principal of each of the state normal schools to nominate annually to the board of regents such professors, teachers, officials and assistants as in his opinion will promote the best interests of the institution; provided, that no obligations may at any time be incurred that can not be discharged by the amount of money appropriated by the legislature for such purposes, except as provided in section 7 [Art. 2690g] of this Act. [Id. sec. 5.]

Note.—See Arts. 2402a-2402d for limitations on power to incur indebtedness.

Art. 2690f. To visit normal schools, etc.—It shall be the duty of the board of regents to visit each state normal school under its control and management at least once during each scholastic year for the purpose of making an inspection of its work and gathering such information as will enable said board to perform its duties intelligently and effectively. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 2690g. Powers of board.—The board of regents herein provided for shall have authority to determine what departments of instruction shall be maintained in the state normal schools for white teachers, and what subjects of study shall be pursued in each department; providing that said board shall not change departments of instruction provided by law; provided, that no department shall be established for the support of which no provision has been made by the legislature. The board shall also have authority to fix the rate of incidental fees to be paid by students attending the state normal schools for white teachers, and to prescribe rules for the collection of such fees and for the disbursement of such funds. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 2690h. Annual report, etc.—The board of regents shall make an annual report to the governor of Texas, showing the general condition of the affairs of each state normal school for white teachers, and making such recommendations as the board may deem best for the future management and welfare of the state normal schools for white teachers. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2690i. Admission of students; certificates and diplomas.—The board of regents shall have authority to determine the conditions on which students may be admitted to the state normal schools, and what grades of certificates may be issued to students attending said schools, and on what conditions certificates and diplomas may be issued to students, and by what authority said certificates and diplomas shall be signed. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 2690j. Meetings of board; salaries; expenses.—The board of regents shall meet each year in the office of the state superintendent of public instruction, at Austin, Texas, on the first Monday in May, or as soon thereafter as practicable, for the transaction of business pertaining to the affairs of the state normal schools, and at such other times and places as may in the opinion of a majority of the members of the board be deemed necessary for the welfare of the state normal schools. The appointed members of the board of regents shall receive a salary of five dollars per day for the time spent attending the meetings provided for in this Act, and in addition thereto the amount of their traveling expenses, said compensation to be paid to the several members of the board out of the appropriation for the support and maintenance of the state normal schools as the board may direct. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 2690k. Appropriations, how disbursed; rules for control and management, etc.; statement to legislature.—All appropriations made by the legislature for the support and maintenance of state normal schools for white teachers, for the purchase of land or buildings for the use of such schools, for the erection or repair of buildings, for the purchase of apparatus, libraries or equipment of any kind or for any other improvement of any kind, shall be disbursed under the direction and authority of the board of regents; and said board shall have power to formulate and establish such rules for the general control and management of the state normal schools for white teachers, for the auditing and approving of accounts, and for the issuance of vouchers and warrants as in their opinion may be necessary for the efficient administration of such schools. Provided, that such board shall file in each house of the legislature, at each of its regular biennial sessions, a statement of the receipts and expenditures of each of said normal schools, showing the amount of salaries paid to the various teachers, contingent expenses, expenditures for improvements, etc., together with such recommendations as the board may see proper to submit relative to the appropriation for said schools to be made by the legislature. [Id. sec. 11.]

Note.—See Arts. 2402a-2402d.

Art. 2690*l*. Laws repealed.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict with any of the provisions of this Act shall be and are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 2690m. Powers to purchase or condemn land for sites.—Power and authority is hereby conferred upon the state normal school board of regents of the state of Texas, to acquire by purchase or condemnation for the use and benefit of any of the state normal schools which now are or may hereafter be, under the control and management of said board, such lands within the counties where any of such schools are now, or may hereafter be located, as said board of regents may deem expedient for sites on which to erect buildings for the use of any of said state normal schools, and for the extension of the campus, and for other purposes necessary in the conduct of any of said normal schools of the state of Texas. [Acts 1913, p. 347, sec. 1.]

Note.—See Arts. 2402a-2402d.

Art. 2690n. May request attorney general to file petition for condemnation.—If the said board of regents, in seeking to acquire any lands for any of the purposes aforesaid, and the owner or owners of said land cannot agree for the sale and purchase thereof, the said board of regents shall request the attorney general to file a petition in the district court of the county in which the land sought to be condemned is situated, describing the land and stating the purposes for which it is desired by said board of regents, and praying that the value of such land be ascertained judicially and a decree be entered vesting title thereto in the state of Texas for the use and benefit of said state normal school, for whose benefit the land is sought to be acquired, upon the payment of the value so ascertained. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2690*o*. Citation; how served and returned, etc.—Upon the filing of any such petition by the attorney-general, the clerk of the court shall issue a citation to the owner or owners of the land as in other civil cases, which citation shall be served and returned as in civil cases, and the cause shall be entered on the civil docket in the name of the state normal school board of regents of the state of Texas as plaintiff, and the owner or owners of the land, as defendant. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2690p. Trial by jury; appeal, etc.—At the first term of court after service of situation [citation] upon the owner, as provided in the preceding section, the cause, unless continued on motion thereof, shall be tried by a jury upon a single issue as to the value of the land, and the decision of such jury shall in all cases be final; provided the parties to said proceeding shall have the right to appeal as in other civil cases. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2690q. May waive jury; trial by court or appraisers, etc.—Nothing in the preceding section contained shall be construed to prevent the parties from waiving a jury and submitting to the court the issue as to the value of the land in question, or from selecting by agreement three persons to ascertain the value of such land, under their oaths and the direction of the court; and the finding and decision of the court or of such persons shall be in all cases be final; provided the parties to said proceedings shall have the right to appeal as in civil cases. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2690r. Decree vesting title; payment of value of land, costs, etc.—When the value of the land has been ascertained in either of the modes above prescribed, and the court is satisfied with such valuation it shall enter a decree vesting the title of such lands in the state of Texas for the use and benefit of the state normal school for whose benefit the land is sought to be acquired, to be held, owned, possessed and enjoyed by the state of Texas, for the purposes hereinbefore stated. No such decree shall be entered until the value of the land so ascertained, together with all reasonable cost and expense of the owner in attending such proceeding, shall be paid to him or into court for his benefit and subject to his order, such costs and expenses to be assessed by the court in which such proceeding is had including reasonable attorneys fee to be fixed by the court. [Id. sec. 6.]

Terms of members of board; subsequent appointments; vacancies.—The members of the first board of regents provided for in sections 2 [1] and 3 [2] of this Act [Arts. 2724a, 2724b] shall be appointed for, and shall serve for, the following terms: Two of them until December 1, 1914, or until their successors are appointed and qualified; two of them until December 1, 1916, or until their successors are appointed and qualified; and two of them until December 1, 1918, or until their successors are appointed and qualified. And regularly every two years thereafter, beginning December 1, 1914, or as soon thereafter as practicable, there shall be appointed two members of said board, as provided for in sections 2 and 3 hereof, who shall hold their office for a period of six years, and until their successors are appointed and duly qualified. All vacancies in said board, caused by death, resignation, removal from state, county, or otherwise, shall be filled by appointment as provided for in section 2 [Art. 2724b] hereof, which special appointment shall continue only until the expiration of the regular term for which the predecessor of such special appointee would have held. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2724d. Duties and powers of board.—Said board of regents shall be charged with the responsibility of the general control and management of said institution, its educational interests, funds, endowments and properties of every description whatsoever, that have heretofore been vested in and controlled and managed by the original board provided for in said will; and shall have authority to erect, equip and repair buildings, purchase libraries, apparatus, fuel and all other necessary supplies incident to the conduct of said institution; to employ and discharge presidents or principals, teachers and other employees, and to fix the salaries of all persons employed and to do any and all other acts necessary to the conduct and promotion of said institution as provided for by the terms of said will. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2724e. Further powers.—Said board of regents herein provided for shall have authority to determine what curriculum of instruction shall be maintained in said institution and what subjects of study shall be pursued therein, and shall have authority to fix the rate of tuition and all incidental fees to be paid by the students; and to prescribe and create all rules governing beneficiaries attending said institution; and shall have authority to determine the conditions on which students may be admitted to the same, the grade and character of certificates or diplomas that may be issued to students, and on what conditions they may be issued and by what authority they may be signed. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2724f. Funds and property; president; secretary and treasurer; bond; seal; other powers, etc.—The said board of regents herein provided for, shall be charged with the control, management and investment of the funds, endowments and properties of said institution now held by it, or that may hereinafter be acquired by it; and it is hereby authorized to select one of its number president, and another of its number secretary and treasurer; said secretary and treasurer to have immediate custody and control of the books, records, moneys, notes, bonds and funds of said institution, and shall be required to give bond payable to the governor of the state of Texas, in such amount as may be fixed by said governor, for the faithful discharge of his duties and the safe keeping of said funds. Said board shall be authorized and is hereby invested with the power to adopt a seal and receive and accept title to all properties hereafter coming into the possession of said institution, by conveyance, foreclosure, gift, devise or otherwise, and over said seal and the signature of the president and secretary and treasurer, shall be authorized to contract and make all conveyances of real estate for said institution. Said board of regents shall be clothed with power to sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, and to maintain all actions at law and in equity in the interest of and in the name of said institution; and to defend all suits and actions brought against the same; and shall have power further, to make all contracts incident and pertaining to said institutions, its properties or its funds, and the investment hereof. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 2724g. Meetings of board; compensation; expenses, etc.—The said board of regents herein provided for shall meet at such times and places at Stephenville, Texas, in said city as may be determined upon by its president, who shall preside over its deliberations. The appointed members of said board shall serve without salary or remuneration, but shall be paid their actual and necessary traveling expenses when on business for said institution away from their respective homes. All of which expenses shall be paid upon the order of the president of the board attested by the secretary and treasurer. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 2724h. Reports, etc.—Said board of regents shall make an annual report on the first Monday in July of each and every year to the governor of the state of Texas, the superintendent of public instruction of the state of Texas, and the county judge of Erath county, Texas, and at such other times as said officers may require, showing the general condition of the affairs of said institution, an accurate statement of the conditions of the permanent fund of said institution and the available fund of said institution, and a statement of all expenses, collections and disbursements of every character whatever, which annual report shall be in writing and subscribed and sworn to by the president and the secretary and treasurer of said board. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2724i. Authority, management, control and title vested in board, etc.—All authority, management, control and title vested by the will of the said John Tarleton, deceased, in said governor of the state of Texas, the superintendent of public instruction of the state of Texas, and the county judge of Erath county Texas, and their successors in office, to the moneys, funds and properties of the John Tarleton college and the management and control of the said institution is hereby divested out of the said original board, composed of the governor of the state of Texas, the superintendent of public instruction of the state of Texas, and the county judge of Erath county, Texas, and is hereby vested in the board of regents herein provided for and said board of regents is hereby clothed with all powers that were originally by said will under the laws of this state vested in said officers of this state, and their successors, and said board of regents is hereby authorized and empowered to hold the title to the properties of said institution which now belong to it, or which may be hereafter acquired by it, as fully and as completely as said original board could have done under the terms and powers conferred by said will and the laws of this state. [Id. sec. 9.]

CHAPTER NINE

AVAILABLE PUBLIC FREE SCHOOL FUND

Article 2725. What shall constitute school fund.—Besides other available school funds provided by law, one-fourth of all occupation taxes and one dollar poll tax levied and collected for the use of public free schools, exclusive of the delinquencies and cost of collection, the interest arising from any bonds or funds belonging to the permanent school fund, and all the interest derivable from the proceeds of sales of land heretofore set apart for the permanent school fund, which have hitherto, or may hereafter, come into the state treasury, all moneys arising from the lease of school lands, and such an amount of state tax, not to exceed twenty cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of property, as may be, from time to time, levied by the legislature, shall constitute the available school fund, which fund shall be apportioned annually to the several counties of this state, according to the scholastic population of each, for the support and maintenance of the public free schools. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 10.]

Land reservations.—See Title 79, Chapter 7.

Fees of state's attorneys in school land litigation.—See Title 58, Chapter 4.

Counties as trustees of funds.—The school fund of one year cannot be used to pay off the debt of another year. Collier v. Peacock (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 756.

By this article and constitutional provisions the intention of the people in granting lands to counties for educational purposes was to impose upon the several counties the duties of trustees as to such lands, the proceeds of sale, interest on such proceeds invested and rents arising from lease of such lands for the purpose of carrying out the trust created. The counties are bound to accept the trust and administer it in the manner prescribed by law. Board of School Trustees v. Webb County (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 488.

Art. 2726. County school fund; income from lease of land.—Besides other available school funds provided by law, the proceeds of any leasing or renting of lands heretofore granted by the state of Texas to the several counties thereof for educational purposes, shall be appropriated by the commissioners' courts of said counties in the same manner as is provided by law for the appropriation of the interest on bonds purchased with the proceeds of the sale of such lands; and the proceeds arising from the sale of timber on said lands, or any part thereof, shall be invested in like manner as the constitution and law requires of proceeds of sales of such lands; and it shall be unlawful for the commissioners' court of any county to apply said proceeds, or any part thereof, to any other purpose, or to loan the same, except as above required. [Id. sec. 12.]

CHAPTER TEN

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Article 2727. Members.—The governor, secretary of state and comptroller shall constitute a state board of education, which shall hold its sessions at the seat of government. The governor shall be ex officio president of the board, and a majority of the members shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 21.]

Art. 2728. Secretary.—The state superintendent shall be ex officio secretary of the state board of education, and shall keep a complete record of all its proceedings, which shall be signed by the president of the board and attested by the superintendent. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 2729. Shall make apportionment.—The state board of education shall, on or before the first day of August in each year, based on the estimate theretofore furnished said board by the comptroller, make an apportionment for the succeeding scholastic year of the available state school fund among the several counties of the state, and the several cities and towns and school districts constituting separate school organizations, according to the scholastic population of each; and, thereupon, the state superintendent of public instruction, as secretary of such board, shall certify to the treasurer of each county, city or town, and of each school district constituting a separate school organization, the total amount of available school fund so apportioned to each such county, city or town or school district, which certificate shall be signed by the governor, as president of such board, countersigned by the comptroller, and attested by the state superintendent of public instruction, as secretary of such board. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 432, sec. 4.]

Art. 2730. Authority over state normal schools.—The state board of education shall require the teaching of manual training, domestic science and agriculture in the state normal schools at Huntsville, Denton, San Marcos and Canyon City, and in such other normal schools for white teachers as may hereafter be established by law, respectively, as a part of the regular curricula of said normal schools. The state board of education is hereby empowered and required to provide rooms, appliances and teachers for giving instruction in the subjects of manual training, domestic science and agriculture in said state normal schools. The state board of education is further empowered and instructed to employ a teacher or teachers that have been trained and equipped to give instruction in these subjects in the said state normal schools; provided, that the state board of education is hereby authorized to fix the salaries of the presidents, principals, professors, instructors, teachers and other employés in said normal schools. [Acts 1909, p. 221, sec. 1.]

Note.—See Arts. 2690aa–2690m, transferring the control of the normal schools for white teachers to state normal school board of regents.

Art. 2731. Summer sessions of schools.—The state board of education shall require the teaching of elementary agriculture for teachers in the summer sessions of the state normal schools at Huntsville, Denton and San Marcos, and the boards of directors of the agricultural and mechanical college at Bryan, of the college of industrial arts for girls at Denton, and of the state university at Austin, shall require the teaching of elementary agriculture for teachers in the summer sessions of these several institutions. [Id. sec. 3.]

See note under Art. 2730.

Art. 2732. Shall duplicate appropriations of school districts.—It shall be the duty of the state board of education to duplicate by an appropriation out of money provided by the Acts of the Thirty-First Legislature, chapter 113, any amount not less than five hundred dollars and not more than two thousand dollars, that shall have been appropriated and set apart by the trustees of any common school district or independent school district, for the purpose of establishing, equipping and maintaining departments in their respective schools for giving instruction in agriculture, including such courses in manual training and domestic economy as are subsidiary to agriculture; provided, such appropriation or donation shall not be made more than twice to the same school; and provided, that in granting such appropriations to high schools the state board of education shall consider the geographical location of the school applying, with a view of locating, if possible, one school in each of the senatorial districts of the state. The board of trustees of a school seeking aid in establishing, equipping and maintaining in their high schools a department for the teaching of agriculture, including such courses in manual training and domestic economy as are subsidiary to agriculture, shall provide ample room and laboratories for instructions in botany, zoology and such other elementary sciences as are necessary to instruction in secondary agriculture, and shall provide a tract of land conveniently located which shall be sufficiently large and well adapted to the production of farm and garden plants, and shall employ a teacher who has received special training in agriculture and allied branches. The state superintendent of public instruction shall make accurate and full investigation of the school property, appliances and ground possessed by any board of trustees that may seek aid under the provisions of this chapter, and he shall also inquire into the qualifications of the teacher or teachers who are to give instruction in agriculture, manual training and domestic economy in the school or schools seeking aid under the provisions of this chapter, and shall make a report of the result of his investigation to the state board of education, together with his conclusions and recommendations touching the same. The state board of education shall grant aid to those high schools that have complied with the provisions of this chapter and that have been recommended by the state superintendent of public instruction and that shall give evidence that, after the state aid is withdrawn, the district will continue to maintain the department for instruction in agriculture out of its own funds. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2733. Board may create school districts at eleemosynary institutions.—The state board of education is hereby authorized and empowered to create new school districts at such of the several eleemosynary institutions of this state, including the state orphan asylum, or at any and all orphan homes or like institutions now existing, or that may hereafter be established by the Odd Fellows, Masons, Knights of Pythias and other fraternal organizations; provided only, that the number of children within the scholastic age in each instance be sufficient to justify such action. The territorial limits in each case shall be co-extensive with the property line of the institution. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 176.]

Art. 2734. Trustees for such districts.—Upon the exercise of the power here granted, the state superintendent of public instruction shall appoint a board of three trustees for each district so created; and such trustees need not be residents of such district, and the fact shall be duly certified to local authorities for information and observance; and upon the creation of such districts the trustees shall take and certify the census of the children within the scholastic age, and the funds shall thereafter be apportioned directly to such district; and the law pertaining to independent districts shall govern so far as applicable, though the state board of education may make special regulations and orders for the government of such districts as they may deem expedient. [Id. sec. 177.]

Art. 2735. Transfer of funds.—Upon the creation of a district as above provided, it shall be the duty of the county school superintendent to transfer to such district whatever amount of money may have been apportioned for the current school year to the old district, for and in behalf of the children included in the new district; provided only, such children may not have had the advantage of such fund in the old district. [Id. sec. 178.]

BOARD AUTHORIZED TO INVEST SCHOOL FUND

Art. 2736. Authorized to invest state permanent school fund.—The board of education is authorized and empowered to invest the permanent public free school funds of the state in bonds of the United States, the state of Texas, the bonds of the counties of the state, and the independent or common school districts, road precinct, drainage, irrigation, navigation, and levee districts of said state, and the bonds of incorporated cities and towns, and the bonds of road precincts of any county of Texas, and the bonds of drainage, irrigation, navigation, and levee districts of any county or counties of Texas. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 2. Amended 1909, p. 216.]

Art. 2737. Duties of parties offering bonds for sale.—Hereafter when any county bonds, or the bonds of any incorporated city, independent or common school district, road precinct, drainage, irrigation, navigation and levee districts are offered for sale, the party offering, or proposing to sell, such bonds shall first submit them to the attorney general of the state, who shall carefully inspect and examine the same in connection with the law under which they were issued, and shall diligently inquire into the facts and circumstances so far as may be necessary to determine the validity thereof; and, upon being satisfied that such bonds were issued in conformity with law, and that they are valid and binding obligations upon the county or incorporated city, or common school district, road precinct, drainage, irrigation, navigation and levee districts, by which they were issued, he shall thereupon certify to their validity; and his certificate to that effect, so procured by the party offering such bonds for sale, shall be submitted to the comptroller or board of education, with the bonds so offered for sale; and, should the same be purchased as an investment for the permanent public free school fund from the county or incorporated city or common school district, road precinct, drainage, irrigation, navigation and levee districts issuing the same, or from any person authorized by said county or incorporated city or common school district, road precinct, drainage, irrigation, navigation and levee districts to act for it in the negotiations or sale of such bonds, they shall thereafter be held in every action or proceeding in which their validity is, or may be, called in question, to be valid and binding obligations of the county, or incorporated city, or common school district, road precinct, drainage, irrigation, navigation and levee districts issuing the same, unless fraudulently issued, or issued in violation of the constitutional limitation; and, in every such action, a certificate of the attorney general as aforesaid (which shall be carefully preserved by the comptroller), shall be admitted and received as prima facie evidence of the validity of the bonds and coupons thereto, which may have been so purchased; and it is further provided, that the commissioners' courts of the counties of this state are hereby authorized to invest the permanent school fund belonging to their counties in the manner provided in this article for the investment of the state fund. [Id. sec. 3.]

Investment and administration.—As to the investment of school funds in county bonds, see Boydston v. Rockwall County, 24 S. W. 272, 86 T. 234.

There is no law permitting a school district to extend over and include part of another county, and no part of the school fund apportioned to one district or county can be transferred to another district or county, except where districts lying in two or more counties on the line may be consolidated for the support of one or more schools in such consolidated district, in which event the fund is to go to county in which the building of the consolidated district is located. Pontotoc Ind. School Corp. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 54.

Art. 2738. Board must examine bonds.—Nothing in the preceding article shall be so construed as to relieve the comptroller or board of education from the duty of a careful examination of the bonds offered as an investment for the permanent public free school fund of the state, an investigation of the facts tending to show the validity thereof; and such board of education may decline to purchase same, unless satisfied that they are a safe and proper investment for such fund; and no bonds shall be purchased as an investment for the permanent public free school fund that do not bear as great a rate of interest as at least three per cent per annum; and no county bond or bonds of any incorporated city, independent or common school district, road precinct, drainage, irrigation, navigation and levee districts shall be purchased as an investment for the permanent public free school fund when the indebtedness of such county, incorporated city, independent or common school district, road precinct, drainage, irrigation, navigation and levee districts, inclusive of the bonds so offered, shall exceed seven per cent of the assessed value of the real estate in such county or incorporated city, independent or common school district, road precinct, drainage, irrigation, navigation and levee districts; and, if any default be made in the payment of interest due upon such bonds, the board of education may at any time prior to the payment of such overdue interest, elect to treat the principal as also due, and the same shall thereupon, at the option of the board of education, become due and payable; and the payment of both such principal and interest shall in all such cases be enforced in such manner as is or may be provided by law, and the right to enforce such collection shall never be barred by any law or limitation whatever. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2739. Estoppel.—In all cases where the proceeds of the sales of any bonds have been received by the proper officers of the county, or incorporated city, independent or common school district, road precinct, drainage, irrigation, navigation and levee districts, or by the party acting for it in negotiating the sale thereof, such county or incorporated city, independent or common school district, road precinct, drainage, irrigation, navigation and levee districts shall thereafter be estopped from denying the validity of such bonds so issued, and the same shall be held to be valid and binding obligations of the county or incorporated city, independent or common school district, road precinct, drainage, irrigation, navigation and levee districts for the amount of bonds sued on and interest thereon, at the rate mentioned therein, deducting such amounts, if any, as have been previously paid thereon. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 5. Amended Acts 1909, p. 216.]

Art. 2740. Bonds must be offered to state board.—Whenever any county, or incorporated city, independent or common school district, road precinct, drainage, irrigation, navigation and levee districts of this state issues any bonds, and they have been approved by the attorney general, as is required by the previous articles of this chapter, the county judge of the county, or the mayor of the incorporated city, or the president of the board of trustees of the independent or common school district, or the county judge or party authorized by law to sell the bonds of road precincts, or drainage, irrigation, navigation, or levee districts, as the case may be, shall notify the state board of education of all bids received for such bonds; and the county judge, or mayor, or president of the board of trustees, as the case may be, shall give the state board of education an option of ten days in which to purchase such bonds; provided, that the board of education will pay the price offered for such bonds by the best bona fide bidder; and, if the board of education shall fail to purchase such bonds within the prescribed time, then the county judge, or mayor, or president of the board of trustees, as the case may be, shall sell the bonds to the best bona fide bidder. In the event the state board of education shall pay a premium out of the permanent school fund on any bonds purchased as an investment for the permanent school fund, then the principal of such bonds and an amount of the interest first accruing on such bonds equal to the premium so paid, shall be and be treated as the principal in such investment, and, when such first interest is collected, such sum of the same shall be returned to the permanent school fund, and, if they purchase said bonds for less than par, the discount they receive in the purchase of said bonds shall be paid to the available school fund when the bonds are paid off and discharged. The price paid for bonds shall be endorsed thereon at the time the same are purchased; provided, that where said board shall refuse to purchase bonds from the county, city, or independent or common school district, road precinct, drainage, irrigation, navigation and levee districts, or the parties to whom said bonds were issued, then in no event shall said board purchase said bonds from any subsequent owner or holder of the same. [Id. sec. 6.]

See Stringer v. Franklin County, 123 S. W. 1168.

Art. 2741. Payment of interest on bonds to be waiver.—The payment of any interest upon any bonds heretofore purchased with public school funds, or belonging thereto, shall be deemed and held a waiver of any supposed error, irregularity or want of authority affecting, or tending to affect, the validity of any such bonds, and the same shall thereafter be held to be valid and binding obligations upon the county by which they appear or purport to have been issued, notwithstanding any such supposed error, irregularity or want of authority as aforesaid. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 7.]

Art. 2742. Jurisdiction in district court of Travis county.—The district court of Travis county shall have jurisdiction of any suit upon bonds or obligations belonging to the permanent public school funds, or purchased therewith, concurrent with that of any other court having jurisdiction in said case. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2743. Extent of these provisions.—The provisions of this chapter shall extend to any bonds or securities other than the bonds of the state or of the United States, in which the public school funds are, or may hereafter be, invested, as now or hereafter authorized or prescribed by law, and also to any bonds or securities purchased with any of the permanent funds set apart for the support, maintenance and improvement of any of the asylums or other institutions of this state. [Id. sec. 9.]

CHAPTER ELEVEN

DUTIES OF COMPTROLLER AND TREASURER AS TO SCHOOL FUNDS

Article 2744. Shall keep separate account of school fund.—The comptroller shall keep a separate account of the available state school fund arising from every source, and shall, on or before the meeting of the state board of education on or before the first day of August of each year, make an estimate of the amount of available school fund to be received from every source, and to be available for the succeeding scholastic year, and report the same to the state board of education. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 432, sec. 1.]

State treasurer as custodian of school funds.—See Title 65, Chapter 3.

Art. 2745. Shall draw warrants.—The comptroller shall, on the first working day of each month, certify to the state superintendent of public instruction the total amount of money collected from every source during the preceding month and on hand to the credit of the available school fund, and shall draw his warrant on the state treasurer, and in favor of the treasurer of the available school fund of each county, city or town, and each school district having control of its public schools, for the amount stated in, and upon receipt of, the certificate therefor issued to him on the first day of each month by the state superintendent of public instruction, and shall register such warrants and transmit them to the state treasurer. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2746. Report.—The comptroller shall, on or before the meeting of each regular session of the legislature, report to the legislature an estimate of the amount of the available school fund to be received for the succeeding two years, and the several sources from which the same accrues, and which may be subject to appropriation for the establishment and support of public schools. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 15.]

Art. 2747. Shall keep account of school funds.—The state treasurer shall receive and hold as a special deposit all money belonging to the available school fund, and keep an account of the same. He shall register every warrant drawn by the comptroller on such fund in favor of the treasurer of the available school fund of any county, city, or town, or school district having control of its public schools, and transmit such warrants to the superintendent of public instruction. On presentation to him for payment properly endorsed, he shall pay such warrants each in the order in which presented. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S. 432, sec. 3.]

Art. 2748. Shall report condition of funds.—The state treasurer shall, thirty days before each regular session of the legislature, and ten days before any special session, at which any legislation can be had respecting the public schools, report to the governor the condition of the permanent and available school funds, the amount of each, and the manner of its disbursement; and he shall also make any additional report required by the board of education. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 19.]

Art. 2749. Shall not use school funds for other purposes.—The treasurer shall not, under any circumstances, use any portion of the permanent or available school funds in payment of any warrant drawn against any other fund whatever. [Id. sec. 20.]

CHAPTER TWELVE

COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT AND OTHER OFFICERS

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 2750. Office established.—The office of county superintendent of public instruction is hereby created; and the commissioners' court of every county in the state, having three thousand scholastic population as shown by the preceding scholastic census, shall provide for the election of a county superintendent of public instruction at each general election, who shall be a person of educational attainments, good moral character, and executive ability, and who shall be provided by the commissioners' court with an office in the court house, and with necessary office furniture and fixtures. He shall be the holder of a teacher's first grade certificate, or teacher's permanent certificate, and he shall hold his office for the term of two years, and until his successor is elected and qualified. In every county that shall attain three thousand scholastic population or more, the commissioners' court shall appoint a county superintendent of public instruction, with qualifications above described, who shall perform the duties of such office until a county superintendent shall have been elected as hereinbefore provided, and shall have qualified; provided, that in counties having less than three thousand scholastic population, whenever more than twenty-five per cent of the qualified voters of said county, as shown by the vote for governor at the last preceding general election, shall petition the commissioners' court therefor, the commissioners' court shall order an election for said county to determine whether or not the office of county superintendent shall be created in said county; and, if a majority of the qualified property taxpaying voters, voting at said election, shall vote for the creation of the office of county superintendent in said county, the commissioners' court, at its next regular term, after the holding of said election, shall create the office of county superintendent, and name a county superintendent, who shall qualify under this chapter, and hold such office until the next general election, and until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 36. Amended Acts 1907, p. 210.]

See Lander v. Victoria County (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 821.

Duties of county board as to school lands.—See Title 40, Chapter 2.

Art. 2751. Shall give bond.—The county superintendent of public instruction, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, shall take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution, and shall enter into a bond in the sum of one thousand dollars, with good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the county commissioners' court, and to be filed with the county clerk of his county. Said bond shall be made payable to the county commissioners' court and their successors in office, in trust for the available school fund of the county, and be conditioned upon the faithful performance of the duties of his office. In case said bond should be forfeited and collected, the sum so collected shall become a part of the available school fund of the county. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 38.]

Art. 2752. Shall have immediate supervision of schools.—The county superintendent of public instruction shall have, under the direction of the state superintendent of public instruction, the immediate supervision of all matters pertaining to public education in his county. He shall confer with the teachers and trustees and give them advice when needed, visit and examine schools, and deliver lectures that shall tend to create an interest in public education. He shall spend as much as four days in each week visiting the schools while they are in session, when it is possible for him to do. He shall have authority over all of the public schools within his county, except such of the independent school districts as have a scholastic population of five hundred or more. In such independent school districts as have less than five hundred scholastic population, the reports of the principals and treasurers to the state department of education shall be approved by the county superintendent before they are forwarded to the state superintendent; and all appeals in such independent school districts shall lie to the county superintendent, and from the decisions of the county superintendent to the state superintendent of public instruction, and to the state board of education. [Id. sec. 37. Amended Acts 1907, p. 210.]

Appeal.—Appeal lies from the action of the school trustees first to the superintendent of public education, and from his decision to the state board of education. Caswell v. Fundenberger, 47 C. A. 456, 105 S. W. 1018.

State superintendent of public instruction.—See Title 65, Chapter 8.

Art. 2753. Shall conduct county teachers' institute.—The county superintendent shall organize and hold, with such assistance as may be necessary, within the first four months of the scholastic year, one institute of five consecutive days for white and for colored teachers, respectively, and he shall require the attendance of white teachers upon the institute for white teachers and the attendance of colored teachers upon the institute for colored teachers; provided, that a failure to comply with these requirements shall be a sufficient cause for his removal from office; provided, further, that the county superintendent of public instruction shall be authorized to cancel the certificate of any teacher who wilfully and persistently absents himself from attendance upon the county teachers' institute; provided, that the board of school trustees in any independent school district, having five hundred or more scholastic population, may authorize the superintendent or principal to organize and hold institutes for the teachers of such district, in lieu of the county institute; and the work of the teachers in said city institutes shall be counted toward the extension of their certificates; provided, that the plan, scope and quality of the work of said city institutes shall be approved by the state superintendent of public instruction. [Id.]

Art. 2754.—Repealed. See note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2755. Shall apportion funds among school districts.—The county superintendent, or county judge who is ex officio county superintendent, upon the receipt of the certificate issued by the board of education for the state fund belonging to his county, shall apportion the same to the several school districts, not including the independent school districts of the county, making a pro rata distribution as per the scholastic census, and shall at the same time apportion the income arising from the county school fund to all the school districts, including the independent school districts of the county, making a pro rata distribution as per scholastic census. Within thirty days after such apportionment by the county superintendent of education, or county judge who is ex officio county superintendent of education, the trustees of each district shall, if possible, agree upon a division of the funds of the district among the schools thereof, and shall fix the term for which the schools of the district shall be maintained for the year. Should they agree upon a division of the funds of the district or upon the length of the term for which the schools of the district shall be maintained, they shall at once certify their agreement to the county superintendent, or county judge who is ex officio county superintendent, who shall not approve any contracts with teachers of the district until such agreement is received. Should the trustees fail to agree upon a division of the funds of the district, or upon the length of the term for which the schools of the district shall be maintained, they shall at once certify their disagreement to the county superintendent, or the county judge who is ex officio county superintendent, who shall preceed to fix the school term of such school district and declare the division of the school fund of the district among the schools thereof, endeavoring as far as practicable to provide, for the schools of such district, school terms of the same length. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 94. Amended Acts 1907, p. 204.]

Requirement mandatory.—The law is mandatory that the county superintendent is to apportion the fund belonging to his county to the several districts no discretion being allowed. Lawhon v. Haas (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 49.

The county school superintendent in the performance of his duty to apportion the school fund is not subject to the control of the commissioner's court, but to the state superintendent. Webb County v. Board of School Trustees, 95 T. 131, 65 S. W. 879.

Liability and duty of county.—It is the duty of the school superintendent to make apportionment of the school fund among the school districts and communities of the county, and the county cannot be held liable for his failure to do so. Webb County v. Board of School Trustees, 95 T. 131, 65 S. W. 880.

The county school superintendent must apportion the state school fund to the several school districts, not including the independent school districts and at the same time apportion the income arising from the county school funds to all the districts including the independent, making a pro rata distribution as per scholastic census. The county treasurer has nothing to do with the apportionment, but must pay warrants or vouchers on the approval of the superintendent. Oge v. Froebese (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 689; Wester v. Oge, 29 C. A. 615, 68 S. W. 1005.

Art. 2756. Shall approve contracts and vouchers.—The county superintendent shall approve all vouchers legally drawn against the school fund of his county. He shall examine all the contracts between the trustees and teachers of his county, and if, in his judgment, such contracts are proper, he shall approve the same; provided, that in considering any contract between a teacher and trustees he shall be authorized to consider the amount of salary promised to the teacher. He shall distribute all school blanks and books to the officers and teachers of the public schools, and shall make such reports to the state superintendent as may be required by that officer. Immediately after qualifying, he shall appoint a county board of examiners, consisting of three resident white teachers holding first grade certificates, who shall serve during the pleasure of the county superintendent of public instruction, subject to the provisions hereafter made. He shall discharge such other duties as may be prescribed by the state superintendent. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 39.]

Approval of vouchers.—A school teacher must exhaust all remedies provided by law before resorting to mandamus to compel the county superintendent to approve a voucher for his salary. Plummer v. Gholson (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1.

The county treasurer may be compelled to pay a voucher drawn on the school funds for a liability created in a previous year, where approved by the county superintendent. Culberson v. Gilmer Bank, 20 C. A. 565, 50 S. W. 195.

Art. 2757. Authorized to administer oaths.—The county superintendents are hereby empowered to administer oaths necessary in transacting any business relating to school affairs; provided, that they shall receive no compensation for administering said oaths. [Id. sec. 41.]

Art. 2758. Salary.—The county superintendent of public instruction herein provided for shall receive from the available school fund of their respective counties annual salaries, as follows: In every county in Texas that has a scholastic population of two thousand or less, in which the office of county superintendent has been created or may be created hereafter, the county school superintendent shall receive an annual salary of nine hundred dollars; in every county in the state of Texas that has a scholastic population of not less than two thousand nor more than three thousand, the county school superintendent shall receive an annual salary of eleven hundred dollars; in every county that has a scholastic population of not less than three thousand nor more than four thousand, the county school superintendent shall receive an annual salary of thirteen hundred dollars; in every county that has a scholastic population of not less than four thousand nor more than five thousand, the county school superintendent shall receive an annual salary of fourteen hundred dollars; in every county that has a scholastic population greater than five thousand, the county school superintendent shall receive an annual salary of fifteen hundred dollars; provided, that the county superintendent shall be allowed any sum not to exceed one hundred dollars per year for stamps, stationery, expressage and printing, to be paid by the commissioner's court out of the county general fund. The compensation herein provided for shall be paid quarterly by the county treasurer on the order of the commissioners' court; provided, that the salary for the quarter ending on the second Monday in November shall not be paid until the county superintendent presents a receipt from the state superintendent of public instruction showing that he has made all reports required of him. [Id. sec. 40. Amended Acts 1907, p. 210.]

Art. 2759. Authority of county superintendent as to transfers.—Each year after the scholastic census of the county is completed, the county superintendent shall, if any district has fewer than twenty pupils of scholastic age, either white or colored, have authority to consolidate said district as to said white or colored schools with other adjoining districts, and to designate the board of trustees which shall control the white or colored school of such consolidated district. But this shall be done before the apportionment is made, and the apportionment shall be made with respect to such consolidation. [Id. sec. 54.]

Art. 2760. Application of parent or guardian.—Any child lawfully enrolled in any district, or independent district, may be transferred to the enrollment of any other district, or independent district, in the same county, upon the written application of the parent or guardian or person having the lawful control of such child, filed with the county superintendent; but no child shall be transferred more than once; provided, the party making application for transfer shall state in said application that it is the bona fide intention of applicant to send child to the school to which transfer is asked. Upon the transfer of any child, its portion of the school funds shall follow and be paid over to the district, or independent district, to which such child is transferred; provided, no transfer shall be made after August first, after the enrollment was made. [Id. sec. 91.]

Cited, Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

Art. 2761. To district in adjoining county.—Any child specified in the preceding article, and its portion of the school fund, may be transferred to an adjacent district in another county, in the same manner as is provided in said article for the transfer of such child or children from one district to another in the same county; provided, that it must be shown to the county superintendent that the school in the district in which such child or children resides on account of distance or some uncontrollable and dangerous obstacle is inaccessible to such child or children. [Acts 1907, p. 242, sec. 91a.]

Art. 2762. By agreement of trustees.—Except as herein provided, no part of the school fund apportioned to any district or county shall be transferred to any other district or county; provided, that districts lying in two or more counties, and situated on the county line, may be consolidated for the support of one or more schools in such consolidated district; and, in such case, the school funds shall be transferred to the county in which the principal school building for such consolidated district is located; and provided, further, that all the children residing in a school district may be transferred to another district, or to an independent district, upon such terms as may be agreed upon by the trustees of said districts interested. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 92.]

COUNTY JUDGE EX OFFICIO COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT

Art. 2763. County judge shall be, when.—In each county in this state having no school superintendent, the county judge shall be ex officio county superintendent of public instruction, and shall perform all the duties required of the county superintendent in this chapter. [Id. sec. 42.]

See Art. 2849f.

Appeal to state board.—Under this and subsequent articles appeal to the state superintendent and state board of education is contemplated, when the action of the county superintendent is sought to be questioned, but the appeal must be taken within a reasonable time and without unnecessary delay. Watkins v. Huff (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 923.

Art. 2764. Shall give bond.—The county judge shall give a bond in the sum of one thousand dollars, to be approved by the county commissioners' court, and filed with the county clerk, said bond made payable to the commissioners' court and their successors in office, and conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties. He shall also take the oath of office prescribed by the constitution. [Id. sec. 43.]

Liability of sureties.—Where a county judge is appointed by the commissioners' court to sell school lands and fails to account for the money received, his sureties are not liable under this article, nor under Art. 1427. Henderson County v. Richardson, 15 C. A. 699, 40 S. W. 38.

Art. 2765. Compensation.—In a county where the county judge acts as superintendent of public instruction, he shall receive for his services as superintendent such salary as may be provided by the commissioners' court, not to exceed the sum of six hundred dollars per annum. [Id. sec. 44.]

Change in law.—This article in so far as it affects the salaries of county judges when acting as county superintendents of public instruction is repealed by the act of 1897, regulating the fees of county officers. Stephens v. Campbell, 26 C. A. 213, 63 S. W. 161.

Art. 2766. Shall take constitutional oath.—County superintendents, county judges, and all school officers, shall take the oath prescribed by the constitution to faithfully and impartially discharge the duties of their respective offices. [Id. sec. 45.]

TREASURERS OF SCHOOL FUNDS

Art. 2767. Funds must be kept in depositories.—The terms, county treasurer, and county treasury, as used in all provisions of law relating to school funds, shall be construed to mean the county depository; and the state department of education shall be notified of the treasurer of the school funds in a given county by the commissioners' court filing in said department a copy of the bond of said depository to cover school funds; provided, that no commission shall be paid for receiving and disbursing school funds. [Acts 1905, p. 263. Added Acts 1909, p. 17, sec. 154a.]

See Itasca Independent School Dist. v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 1011.

Constitutionality.—The provision is not invalid on the ground that it allows national banks to become depositories, and that the assumption of the duties of the position are beyond the powers of a national bank. Charlton v. Cousins, 103 T. 116, 124 S. W. 422.

This article is not invalid on the ground that in substituting the depository for the treasurer in the exercise of the powers and performance of the duties in relation to school funds, the statute constitutes the depository an officer, which cannot be done consistently with the constitution inasmuch as a county depository may be a corporation incompetent to hold office, there being nothing in Const. art. 7, §§ 1, 5, and article 16, § 44, requiring the school fund to be kept in the custody of the county treasurer or other officer. Id.

This article is not subject to the objection that it is not within the title of the act entitled, "An act putting into effect the constitutional amendment adopted by the people at the last general election, relating to public schools, by amending sections 50, 57, 58, 60, 61, 63, 65, 66, 76, 77, 78, 80, 81, and 154, and adding 154a, of chapter 124 of the Acts of the Regular Session of the Twenty-Ninth Legislature, relating to school districts and school funds." Id.

Under Const. art. 16, §§ 44, providing that the legislature shall prescribe the duties of the county treasurer, who shall have such compensation as may be provided by law, the legislature, notwithstanding this article, had power to pass Acts 31st Leg. c. 12, tranferring the custody of such funds to the county depositories, thus relieving the county treasurers of any liability for such funds so deposited, and providing that no commissions shall thereafter be paid for receiving or disbursing the same. Horton v. Rockwall County (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 297.

Acts 31st Leg. c. 12, is entitled, "An act putting into effect the constitutional amendment adopted by the people at the last general election relating to public schools by amending" specified sections and adding another section "of chapter 124 of the Acts of the Regular Session of the 29th Legislature, relating to school funds, repealing all laws and parts of laws in conflict therewith, and declaring an emergency." The amendment consists of an entire provision which, among other things, provides for the raising of funds for the support of the public schools, and for the safe-keeping and application thereof. Held, that this article was within the title of the act. Id.

Liability of county.—The sureties on the bond are liable for misappropriation of funds of every description. Simons v. County of Jackson, 63 T. 428. See post, Arts. 2750, 2763; Kempner v. County of Galveston, 73 T. 216, 11 S. W. 188; Burk v. County of Galveston, 76 T. 267, 13 S. W. 455.

When the commissioners' court has paid the income of the school fund to the county treasurer, they have discharged the liability of the county to that fund. Webb County v. Board of School Trustees, 95 T. 135, 65 S. W. 879.

Art. 2768. Bond.—Within twenty days after the receipt of a certificate of its selection, it shall be the duty of the county depository to execute a bond, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to the county judge and his successors in office, for the faithful performance of his duties under this title; said bond shall be in an amount equal to the probable amount of available school fund and of the permanent county fund, which may come into his hands, to be estimated by the county superintendent, or county commissioners' court in a county having no superintendent, and shall be conditioned that the depository will safely keep and faithfully disburse the school fund according to law, and pay such warrants as may be drawn on said fund by competent authority. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 31. Art. 921, R. S. 1895.]

See Jernigan v. Finley, 90 T. 205, 38 S. W. 24.

Filing and approval.—On issue whether a bond had been filed and approved, the evidence reviewed, and held sufficient to sustain finding of jury. McFarlane v. Howell, 16 C. A. 246, 43 S. W. 315.

Duty of county treasurer.—The county treasurer does not have to inquire into the legality or validity of a school warrant or voucher approved by the school superintendent, but must pay them on such approval. Oge v. Froboese (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 689.

Parol evidence as to bond.—See notes under Title 53, Chapter 4.

Breach of bond and suit.—The county treasurer is the custodian of the securities belonging to the school fund of the county, and his general official bond is violated when such securities are used by the officer. Kempner v. County of Galveston, 73 T. 216, 11 S. W. 188.

A suit on the treasurer's bond may be brought by the county, city, or town for conversion of school funds. Burk v. County of Galveston, 76 T. 267, 13 S. W. 455.

Where a county treasurer has paid out the county school funds as apportioned by the county superintendent, and on his warrants, there is no liability on the treaurer's bond to a school district to which the superintendent erroneously failed to make an apportionment. Oge v. Froboese (Civ. App.) 66 S. W. 688.

Liability of counties.—See notes under Art. 2767.

Art. 2769. Depository shall keep accounts.—The county treasurer, upon receiving notice from the state superintendent of the amount apportioned to the county, shall report the same to the county superintendent, who shall immediately apportion the same to the several districts, according to the scholastic census; and the county superintendent shall immediately notify the county treasurer of the amount apportioned to each district. It shall also be the duty of the county treasurer to keep a separate account with each district, showing the amount apportioned, according to the certificate of apportionment, and the amount paid out to each school and district; provided, in no case shall the county treasurer pay out any part of the school fund without the approval of the county superintendent. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 34.]

Payment.—It is the duty of the treasurer upon receiving notice from the state superintendent of the amount apportioned to his county to report the same to the county superintendent who shall immediately apportion the same to the several districts and who shall notify the treasurer of the amount apportioned to each district. Lawhon v. Haas (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 49.

Art. 2770. Balances.—All balances of the general school fund not appropriated for the current year shall be carried over by the treasurer as part of the general school fund for the county for the succeeding year, and unexpended balances to the credit of any district shall be carried over for the benefit of such school district; provided, that, if any such balance shall exceed five dollars per capita, according to the last scholastic census, then such excess over five dollars per capita shall be re-apportioned to the school districts of the county. [Id. sec. 35.]

Art. 2771. Treasurer of independent district.—In an independent district of more than one hundred and fifty scholastics, whether it be a city which has assumed control of the schools within its limits, or a corporation for school purposes only, the treasurer of the school fund shall be that person or corporation who offers satisfactory bond and the best bid of interest on the average daily balances for the privilege of acting as such treasurer. The treasurer shall be required to give bond in double the estimated amount of the receipts coming annually into his hands. Said bond shall be made payable to the president of the board and his successors in office, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the treasurer's duties and the payment of the funds received by him upon the draft of the president, drawn upon order, duly entered, of the board of trustees. It shall be approved by the school board, and the state department of education shall be notified of the treasurer by the president of the school board filing a copy of said bond in said department. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 165. Added Acts 1909, p. 17, sec. 154a.]

See Hill County v. Sauls (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 267; Horton v. Rockwall County (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 297.

Art. 2772. Purposes for which funds may be expended.—The public school funds hereafter shall not be expended except for the following purposes:

1. The state and county available school funds shall be used exclusively for the payment of teachers' and superintendents' salaries and fees for taking scholastic census.

2. Local school funds from district taxes, tuition fees of pupils not entitled to free tuition, and other local sources, may be used for the purposes enumerated for state and county funds and for purchasing appliances and supplies, for the payment of insurance premiums, janitors and other employés, for buying school sites, buying, building and repairing and renting school houses, and for other purposes necessary in the conduct of the public schools, to be determined by the board of trustees, the accounts and vouchers for county districts and communities to be approved by the county superintendent; provided, that, when the state available school fund in any city or district is sufficient to maintain the schools thereof in any year for at least eight months and leave a surplus, such surplus may be expended for the purposes mentioned herein. [Id. sec. 83.]

Payment of debt of previous year.—A school fund of one year cannot be used to pay off a debt of a previous year. Collier v. Peacock (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 756.

Art. 2773. Treasurers shall make reports.—Each treasurer receiving or having control of any school funds shall keep a full and separate itemized account with each of the different classes of school funds coming into his hands, and shall, on or before the first day of October of each year, file with the state superintendent of public instruction an itemized report in duplicate of the receipts and disbursements of the school funds for the preceding school year ending August 31; which report and duplicate shall be on the prescribed form furnished by the department of education; and the duplicate report, after examination by the state superintendent, shall be returned to the commissioners' court of the proper county for approval, and shall be accompanied by such objections or recommendations as the state superintendent may make in regard to the same. The state superintendent in examining any report may call for vouchers and make such investigation of the correctness and legality of the different items as he may deem necessary; and. when the duplicate is sent to the commissioners' court, all vouchers shall be presented to the court. [Id. sec. 49.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Actions for funds.—Where a school district is established out of two counties, trustees of the district cannot sue for the proportion of the school fund retained by one of the counties; but the suit must be brought by the county treasurer. Trustees of Lytle School Dist. v. Haas, 24 C. A. 433, 59 S. W. 830.

In an action by school district to recover its proportion of the public school funds from a county, the averments of the complaint held to charge the default complained of upon the county superintendent. Webb County v. Board of School Trustees of Laredo, 95 T. 131, 65 S. W. 878.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

SCHOLASTIC CENSUS

Article 2774. Manner of taking census.—The county superintendent of public instruction shall, on the first day of January of each year, or as soon as practicable thereafter, appoint one of the trustees of each school district, or some other qualified person, to take the scholastic census, who shall be known as the census trustee of the district. It shall be the duty of the census trustee to take, between the first day of May and the first day of June after his appointment, a census of all the children that will be over seven and under seventeen years of age on the first day of the following September, and who are residents of the school district on said first day of May, and to make report under oath to the county superintendent on or before the first day of June next thereafter. In taking the said census he shall visit each home, residence, habitation and place of abode, and shall, by actual observation and interrogation, enumerate the children thereof in the following manner: He shall use for each parent, guardian or person having control of any such children, a prescribed form showing the name, color, and nationality of the person rendering such children, the name and number of the school district in which the children reside, and the name, sex and date of birth of each child of which he is the parent or guardian, or of which he has control, and which child will be over seven and under seventeen years of age on the first day of September next following. The census trustee shall require such form to be subscribed and sworn to by the person rendering the children, and he is hereby authorized to administer oaths for this purpose. When the census trustee visits any home or house or place of abode of a family, and fails to find either the parent or any person having legal control, it shall be the duty of the census trustee to leave the prescribed census blank for the use of parents at such home or place of abode, with a note to the parent or guardian having legal control of child or children, requiring that the form be filled out, sworn and subscribed to before the census trustee, or any officer authorized to administer oaths, and that the blank, when so filled out, shall be delivered by the parent or person having legal control of the child or children to the census trustee. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 89.]

Mandamus.—Under this article the appointment of a census trustee by the superintendent is a ministerial duty, and may be enforced by mandamus. Crow v. Fails, 57 C. A. 331, 122 S. W. 933.

Authority of school trustees.—School trustees are not authorized to take the school census, there being no proof that such trustees were census trustees. Burrell v. Blanchard (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 46.

Art. 2775. Duty of census trustee.—Only children of the same family shall be listed on one form; and, if one person has under his control children of different family name, he should use a separate form for each family name. The census trustee shall arrange the forms for white and colored children separately, in alphabetical order, according to the family name of the children reported thereon. He shall also make, on a prescribed form, separate census rolls for the white and colored children of his district, showing the name, age, sex and color of each child, and the name of the parent, guardian or person having control of said child, by whom it is reported. He shall also make a summary of his rolls showing the number of children of each race that will be of the different ages over seven and under seventeen on the first day of next September, which shall continue to be the scholastic age, as is now provided by law, he shall make oath to his rolls and summaries, and to the faithful and accurate discharge of his duties, deliver the rolls, together with the forms arranged in alphabetical order, to the county superintendent on or before June first next after his appointment. [Id.]

Art. 2776. Duty of county superintendent as to.—The rolls and summaries of the census trustee shall be preserved by the county superintendent in his office for three years after they are filed. The county superintendent shall make, on prescribed forms, separate consolidated rolls for the white and colored children of his county, showing the name, age and sex of each, together with the number of the district in which it lives, and the name of the parent or guardian, arranging the names of the children according to the alphabetical order of their family names. In making these consolidated rolls, he shall scrutinize carefully the work of the census trustees, and shall have power to summon witnesses, take affidavits and correct any errors he may find in any census trustee's roll, and he shall carefully exclude all duplicates. If he deems it necessary, he may reject any roll, and appoint another census trustee to take the census of the district, in which case he shall not approve the warrant to pay the census trustee, whose work has been rejected, for his services. When the county superintendent has prepared his consolidated census rolls, one for each race, he shall make a duplicate of each, and he shall make affidavit to the correctness of both originals and duplicates. The originals he shall, on or before July first, forward to the state superintendent of public instruction at Austin, and the duplicates shall be filed with the county clerk and become permanent records of his office. The county superintendent shall forward with his consolidated rolls and abstract on the prescribed form, under oath, showing the number of children of each race, of the different years of the school age, and the total number of children of each race and the total of both races in his county. In making his consolidated rolls and in investigating the work of any census trustee, the county superintendent shall refer to the forms and rolls of previous years, when necessary, and they shall be carefully preserved for this purpose. [Id.]

Art. 2776a. Scholastic census in common county line districts; duplicates to county superintendent and treasurer; duty of superintendent in district where special tax; warrants, etc.—The scholastic census of all common county line school districts in the state of Texas shall be taken under the supervision of the authorities of the county having control of such school district and reported by such county to the state department of education, as is provided by law governing the taking of the scholastic census of the state, except that the census trustee taking the census of a common county line school district shall make a separate roll of the scholastic population contained in the territory of each county having territory in such common county line school district which shall be separate and distinct from the general census roll of such a district and be returned together with the general census roll, as provided by law, to be made by the census trustees, and the county superintendent of public instruction of the county having control of the school of such a district, shall make up a duplicate of the copy containing separately the scholastic population of each county having territory in such a district and send such duplicate to the county superintendent and county treasurer of the county where such scholastic population reside, to be by them used for the purpose apportioning the county available school funds, and in case such a district has voted a special tax for the purpose of school maintenance or the payment of interest and sinking fund on school bonds, the county superintendent of each of the said counties shall, from time to time, as such taxes have been collected by his county, draw his warrant against the county treasurer or county depository of such county for such amount of available county school funds or special tax, or either or both, as the case may be, as shall be on hand in the hands of the treasurer or depository, as the case may be, in favor of the county treasurer or depository of the county having control and management of the schools of such district, and upon the presentation of such warrant it shall become the duty of the treasurer or depository of the county against whom the warrant was drawn to pay over to the treasurer or depository of the county having control of the schools of the district such amount of money as is called for in such warrant. The said warrant shall be drawn in favor of the school district embracing the territory in the counties involved and in favor of the county treasurer or depository of the county having control of the schools of the districts and be credited to such school district, and the funds of such school district shall be used as is provided by law for the use of the different kinds of school funds. [Acts 1911, p. 200, sec. 3.]

See note under Art. 2815a.

Art. 2777. Duty and powers of state superintendent as to.—The state superintendent shall have authority to investigate the census of any county, to correct errors, and, in extreme cases when he believes gross errors have occurred, or that fraud has been practiced, he may, with the approval of the state board of education, reject any county's roll and require the census of the county to be retaken. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 89.]

Art. 2778. Compensation of census trustees.—For their services, the census trustees shall receive four cents per capita of the children of scholastic age taken by them in county districts, and three cents per capita in towns of twenty-five hundred inhabitants and upwards to five thousand inhabitants, and two cents per capita in cities of more than five thousand inhabitants; and the county superintendent shall receive one cent per capita of the scholastic population reported by him; but these amounts shall not be paid until the census of the county is accepted by the state superintendent, and shall be forfeited as follows: The trustee's compensation, if his work is rejected by the county superintendent, and the census of his district ordered retaken, and both the county superintendent's and the trustee's compensation, if the census of the county is rejected and ordered by the state superintendent and the state board of education to be retaken. [Id.]

Art. 2779. Above articles apply to cities and towns, except, etc.—The provisions of this chapter shall apply to the taking of the scholastic census in cities and towns constituting independent districts, except as specially provided herein below, to-wit: The census trustee shall be appointed by the president of the board of trustees, and a census trustee may be appointed for each ward or school subdistrict, at the discretion of the president of the school board making such appointment. The forms for the parent and the rolls shall show the street and house number, or location of the house or place in which each child resides. [Id.]

Review.—Contracts made to trustees with teachers must be approved by the county superintendent. The action of the superintendent is not a matter of discretion on his part but is a matter which can be reviewed by the state superintendent and the state board of education. Watkins v. Huff (Civ. App.) 63 S. W. 923.

Article 2780. Shall present valid certificate.—Any teacher desiring to teach in any city, town or district in this state shall, before contracting with any board of trustees, or with any city school board, exhibit a teacher's certificate, valid in the city, town or school district; and any teacher who shall teach in any public school in this state without having a valid certificate shall not receive from the free school funds any compensation for such services. [Acts 1905, p. 262, sec. 101.]

See Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353; Horton v. Rockwall County (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 297.

Validity of contract.—A contract with a board of trustees without having such a certificate as is required by this article would be void. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Partlow, 30 C. A. 599, 71 S. W. 586.

Art. 2781. Salaries of teachers.—Trustees in making a contract with a teacher shall determine the salary to be allowed, or wages to be paid, upon the following rates of tuition: to a teacher holding a first grade certificate not more than two dollars and fifty cents; to one holding a second grade certificate, not more than two dollars; and to one holding a third grade certificate, not more than one dollar and fifty cents per month per capita shall be allowed for pupils within the scholastic age; and it shall not be lawful for trustees or teachers to demand, as a condition of admittance into school, the payment of extra tuition of pupils of scholastic age; provided, that in no event shall a teacher holding a permanent certificate receive from the public free school fund more than eighty-five dollars per month, or one holding a first grade certificate receive from the public free school fund more than seventy-five dollars per month, or one holding a second grade certificate more than sixty dollars per month, or one holding a third grade certificate, more than forty dollars per month; provided, that this restriction shall not apply to salaries of teachers in a district which levies a local tax for school purposes. [Id. sec. 73.]

Art. 2782. Instructions must be given in English.—It shall be the duty of every teacher in the public free schools of this state to use the English language exclusively, and to conduct all recitations and school exercises exclusively in the English language; provided, that this provision shall not prevent the teaching of any other language as a branch of study, but, when any other language is so taught, the use of said language shall be limited to the recitations and exercises devoted to the teaching of said language as such branch of study. [Id. sec. 102.]

Application.—This section applies to schools of every character, whether communities, common school districts, or independent districts. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

Art. 2783. Prescribed studies.—All public schools in this state shall be required to have taught in them spelling, reading in English, writing, arithmetic, English grammar, modern geography, composition, physiology and hygiene, including the effects of alcoholic stimulants and narcotics on the human system, mental arithmetic, Texas history, United States history, civil government, elementary agriculture, and other branches as may be agreed upon by the trustees, or directed by the state superintendent of public education; provided, that the subject of elementary agriculture shall not be required to be taught in independent school districts having a scholastic population of three hundred or more, unless so ordered by the school boards; provided, further, that suitable instruction shall be given in the primary grades once each week regarding kindness to animals of the brute creation and the protection of birds and their nests and eggs. [Id. sec. 100, as amended Acts 1907, p. 316.]

Art. 2784. Shall keep records and make reports.—Teachers shall keep daily registers, in which the attendance, names, ages and studies of the pupils shall be recorded, and such other matters as may be prescribed by the state superintendent. Said registers shall be open to the inspection of all parents, school officers and all other persons who may be interested. All teachers shall make monthly reports on such subjects as may be designated by the state superintendent or county superintendent, to be approved by a majority of the trustees of the district, and shall file the same with the county superintendent when they present their vouchers for their month's salaries. They shall make such reports at the end of the school term as may be prescribed by the state superintendent, and, until such term reports are made, the trustees shall not approve vouchers for last month's salaries, nor shall the county treasurers pay the same. All monthly and term reports shall be made under oath, and county superintendents are hereby empowered to administer oaths for such purposes. County superintendents and county judges shall receive no compensation for administering oaths necessary in transacting any business relating to school affairs. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 103.]

Art. 2785. Shall attend summer normals and county institutes.—It shall be the duty of all teachers in the public schools of this state to attend the summer normal and county institutes as far as possible. [Id. sec. 104.]

Art. 2786. County board of examiners; appointment, etc.; county superintendent to forward examination papers, etc.; fees; county board may issue second-grade certificates; examinations; duties of state superintendent.—There shall be in each organized county in this state, a county board of examiners composed of two persons to be appointed by the county superintendent or the ex officio county superintendent. A person to be eligible to appointment on the county board of examiners must be the holder of a teachers' first-grade certificate, or a certificate of higher grade. The members of the county board of examiners shall serve during the pleasure of the county superintendent and shall meet at the call of the county superintendent. The county superintendent shall forward to the state superintendent, to be submitted to the state board of examiners, the examination papers of applicants for certificates together with the reports of the county board of examiners on a prescribed form furnished by the state department of education, with a fee of $1 paid to him by each of the applicants.

The passage of this law shall not be construed to prohibit the county board of examiners from issuing county second-grade certificates, provided the examination shall meet the requirements for second-grade certificates, but not more than one county second-grade certificate shall ever issue to the same individual.

The state board of examiners shall, at their next meeting after the receipt of said papers and reports together with the fees, examine the papers and shall make a report to the state superintendent recommending that certificates be issued or be not issued, according to the grades made.

The county board of examiners of each county shall, if necessary, hold an examination on the first Friday and Saturday following in the months of June, July, August, September and December of each year, and in case of emergency the state superintendent of public instruction may authorize a special examination, at which applicants for certificates may be examined. Said board of examiners shall use the questions prescribed by the state department of education, and shall conduct the examinations in accordance with the rules and regulations prescribed by the state department of education and the county superintendent of public instruction.

To each applicant who has made the required grades, the state superintendent shall forward the report, together with the certificate recommended by the state board of examiners; and to each applicant who has failed to make the required grades, the state superintendent shall forward the report of the state board of examiners without a certificate. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (122).]

Note.—Acts 1911, p. 189, amends sections 114–121 of chapter 124, Acts 29th Leg. (Acts 1905, p. 263, Rev. Civ. St. 1911, Arts. 2787, 2788, 2797–2805), and sections 122–124 of the same act, as amended by chapter 7 of the 2d Called Session of the 31st Legislature (Acts 1909, p. 394; Rev. Civ. St. 1911, Arts. 2806, 2808–2810), and repeals sections 105–110, 125, 126, of such chapter 124 (Rev. Civ. St. 1911, Arts, 2786, 2789–2793), and chapters 68 and 149 of Acts 30th Leg. (Acts 1907, p. 144. Rev. Civ. St. 1911, Art. 2807; Acts 1907, p. 289, Rev. Civ. St. 1911, Arts. 2811, 2812). The amended sections are numbered from 105 to 125, inclusive, and are included in this compilation as Arts. 2786–2788, 2788a, 2797–2799, 2802, 2804, 2804a, 2804b, 2805, 2805a, 2806–2811, 2811a.

Art. 2787. Applicant for certificate; examinations in writing and English language.—Any person desiring to be examined for a teachers' certificate authorizing him or her to contract to teach in the public free schools of Texas, shall make application to the county superintendent, stating the class of certificate desired, and shall present to the county superintendent a statement of three good and well known citizens, or such proof as he may require of his qualifications, except the examination grades required for the class of certificate desired. After investigation, the county superintendent shall give the applicant a written recommendation to the county board of examiners requiring them to examine the applicant for a certificate of the class mentioned; but no person shall receive such recommendation without first depositing with the county superintendent the sum of two dollars ($2.00) as an examination fee, and the recommendation given by the county superintendent shall show the receipt of said fee. The county board of examiners shall not permit any person to enter the examination who does not first present the written recommendation of the county superintendent; provided that all examinations provided for herein and elsewhere in the Texas school laws shall be conducted in writing and in the English language. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (105).]

See note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2788. Applicant must show good moral character and knowledge of English.—No person shall receive a certificate authorizing his employment in the public free schools of Texas without showing to the satisfaction of the county superintendent that he is a person of good moral character, and has ability to speak and understand the English language sufficiently to use it easily and readily in conversation and in giving instruction in all subjects prescribed for the class of certificate for which he applies. The county superintendent, unless he knows the fact personally, shall require satisfactory proof of the applicant as herein required before issuing his recommendation to the county board of examiners. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (106).]

See note under Art. 2786.

Mandamus.—The superintendent may be compelled by mandamus to issue a certificate when the requirements of the statutes have been complied with. Caviel v. Coleman, 72 T. 550, 10 S. W. 679.

Art. 2788a. No certificate to person under sixteen.—No certificate shall be granted to a person under sixteen years of age. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (124).]

See note under Art. 2786.

Arts. 2789–2793.—Repealed. See note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2794. State board of examiners.—The state superintendent of public instruction shall be authorized to appoint a state board of examiners, consisting of not less than three competent teachers, living in the state, to serve during his pleasure, and he may increase or decrease the number, as varying conditions may make necessary. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 111.]

Art. 2795. When papers shall be forwarded.—The county superintendent, shall, upon the request of any applicant for a second grade, first grade or permanent certificate, made in writing before the adjournment of the board of examiners, forward to the state superintendent, to be submitted to the state board of examiners herein provided, such applicant's papers, and the report of the county board of examiners thereon, together with a fee of one dollar paid him by the applicant; provided, that this shall not in any manner interfere with the issuance of the proper county certificate to said applicant. [Id. sec. 112.]

Note.—This article and the following article, though not expressly mentioned in the repealing clause of Acts 1911, p. 189, seem to be wholly or partly superseded by section 122 of that act (Art. 2786).

Art. 2796. Examination of papers.—The state board of examiners shall, at their next meeting after the receipt of said papers and report, together with said fee of one dollar, examine said papers, and report thereon; and, if they believe that the papers are fairly and accurately graded, they shall make a report to the state superintendent, and shall recommend that the county certificate issued upon said examination be made valid in all the counties of the state, and they shall notify said applicant of their action, who may forward his county certificate to the state superintendent of public instruction, who may issue in lieu thereof another certificate of equal rank, valid in all the counties of the state; and the state superintendent shall preserve a record of certificates thus issued by him. [Id. sec. 113.]

Note.—See note under Art. 2795.

Art. 2797. Kinds of certificates.—Teachers' certificates authorizing the holders thereof to contract to teach in the public free schools of this state shall be of two kinds, as follows: (1) Temporary certificate; (2) permanent certificate.

Temporary certificates shall be of the following classes: (1) A second-grade certificate; and (2) a first-grade certificate.

Permanent certificates shall be of the following classes: (1) A state permanent certificate; and (2) a state permanent primary certificate. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (107).]

See note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2798. County superintendent to keep record of certificates, etc. —The county superintendent shall keep a record of all certificates held by persons teaching in the public free schools of the common school districts and of the independent school districts of his county. Any person who desires to teach in a public free school of a common school district shall present his certificate for record before the approval of his contract. Any person who desires to teach in the public schools of an independent school district shall present his certificate to the county superintendent for record before his contract with the board of trustees of the independent school district shall become valid. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (123).]

See note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2799. Examinations for first and second grade certificates; certificates, how long valid.—An applicant for a second-grade certificate shall be examined in spelling, reading, writing, arithmetic, English grammar, geography, Texas history, elementary physiology and hygiene with special reference to narcotics, school management and methods of teaching, United States history and elementary agriculture. An applicant for a first-grade certificate shall be examined in the subjects prescribed for a second-grade certificate, and in addition thereto, in English composition, civil government, algebra, physical geography, elements of geometry and general history.

Second and first-grade certificates shall be valid, unless canceled by lawful authority, until the fourth anniversary of the thirty-first day of August of the calendar year in which the examination was held, and to receive such certificates applicants shall make on examination on the prescribed subjects an average grade of not less than seventy-five per cent, and on each subject a grade of not less than fifty per cent; provided, that if the applicant makes a general average on the prescribed subjects of not less than eighty-five per cent and on each subject a grade of not less than fifty per cent, such certificates shall be valid unless canceled by lawful authority until the sixth anniversary of the thirty-first day of August of the calender year in which the examination was held. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (108).]

Arts. 2800, 2801.—Superseded. See Art. 2799 and note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2802. Examination for state permanent primary certificate; holder may build to permanent certificate; holder of state first-grade may build to state permanent primary; examination, etc.—An applicant for a state permanent primary certificate shall be examined in the subjects prescribed for a second-grade certificate and in addition thereto, the subjects of civil government, English composition, physical geography, the history of education, elementary psychology applied to teaching, and English and American literature.

The holder of a state permanent primary certificate may build to a state permanent certificate during the first six years of the validity of said certificate by taking the examination in the following additional subjects: Algebra, physics, elementary geometry, general history, chemistry, solid geometry, plane trigonometry, elementary double-entry bookkeeping; provided, that a person holding a state permanent primary certificate secured by building on a state first-grade certificate shall not be required to be re-examined in the subjects of algebra, physics, elementary geometry and general history in building to a state permanent certificate.

The holder of a state first-grade certificate may build to a state permanent primary certificate by taking the examination in the following additional subjects: History of education, elementary psychology applied to teaching, English and American literature. The applicant in building from a state first-grade certificate to a state permanent primary certificate shall take the examination in one or more of the additional subjects at the same examination. The applicant, in order to be entitled to receive such certificate, shall make a general average of eighty-five per cent on the prescribed subjects and a grade of not less than fifty per cent on each subject. An applicant for a state permanent certificate shall be examined on the subjects prescribed for second and first-grade certificates, and in addition thereto in the history of education, psychology, English and American literature, chemistry, solid geometry, physics, plane trigonometry, and elementary double-entry bookkeeping. The applicant, in order to be entitled to receive such certificate, shall make on the prescribed subjects an average grade of not less than eighty-five per cent and a grade of not less than fifty per cent on each subject. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (109).]

See note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2803.—Superseded. See Art. 2802 and note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2804. Building to higher grade certificates.—A person holding a second-grade certificate may build to a first-grade certificate or to a permanent primary certificate during the validity of the said second-grade certificate by taking the examination in the prescribed additional subjects and making the required grades, said person having the privilege of being examined in one or more subjects at any one examination in building on his second-grade certificate. A permanent record of his examination shall be made in the state department of education, and upon the surrender of the lower class certificate the higher class of certificate shall be issued.

The holder of a first-grade certificate may build to a state permanent primary certificate or to a state permanent certificate during the validity of the said first-grade certificate by taking the examinations in the prescribed additional subjects, said person having the privilege of being examined in one or more subjects at any one examination in building on a first-grade certificate. A permanent record of his examination shall be made in the state department of education, and upon the surrender of the first-grade certificate, the state permanent primary certificate or the state permanent certificate, as the case may be, shall be issued.

The holder of a state permanent primary certificate may build to a state permanent certificate during the first six years of the validity of said state permanent primary certificate by taking the examination in the additional prescribed subjects, and making the required grades, said person shall have the privilege of being examined in one or more subjects at any one examination in building on his state permanent primary certificate. A permanent record of his examination shall be made in the state department of education, and upon the surrender of the lower class certificate, the higher class certificate shall be issued. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (110).]

See note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2804a. Certificate holders eligible to teach in what grades, etc.—The holder of a second-grade certificate or of a permanent primary certificate shall be eligible to contract to teach in only the elementary grades of the public schools of Texas; that is, the grades below the high school. The holder of a state first-grade certificate, or a state permanent certificate shall be eligible to contract to teach in any public free school of Texas. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (110a).]

See note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2804b. Certificates valid, how long.—A state permanent primary certificate, or a state permanent certificate shall be valid during the life of the holder, unless canceled by lawful authority. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (110b).]

See note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2805. Normal college certificates.—A teacher holding a diploma from a Texas state normal college may teach in the public schools of this state during good behavior and such diploma shall rank as a state permanent certificate. A teacher holding a first-grade certificate from a Texas state normal college may teach in the public schools of this state until the sixth anniversary of the thirty-first day of August of the calendar year in which the certificate was issued, and a teacher holding a second-grade certificate from a Texas state normal college may teach in the public schools of this state until the fourth anniversary of the thirty-first day of August of the calendar year in which the certificate was issued. A teacher holding a diploma from the Peabody normal college, at Nashville, Tennessee, shall be entitled upon recording the diploma in the state department of education, to receive therefrom a state permanent certificate valid during the life of the holder, unless canceled by lawful authority. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (114).]

See note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2805a. Summer normal institutes; certificates, etc.—The state superintendent of public instruction is authorized to provide for the organization and work of summer normal institutes in Texas, in which examinations may be held for the certification of teachers, and the certificates obtained through these examinations shall be of the same class and governed by the same laws as to the length of time of their validity as are other state certificates obtained through the regular examinations prescribed by the state department of education. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (115).]

See note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2806. Teachers' diplomas of university of Texas; certificates based on courses in certain colleges, etc.—A teachers' diploma conferred by the university of Texas upon a student who has satisfactorily completed at least four full courses in the department of education and who has satisfied the requirements for the degree of bachelor of arts, when presented to the state department of education with satisfactory evidence of having done the required work in education, shall entitle the holder to receive a state permanent certificate valid for life, unless canceled by lawful authority.

A person who has satisfactorily completed four full courses in the college of arts and one full course in the department of education of the university of Texas, or in any college or university ranked as first-class by the state superintendent of public instruction, upon the recommendation of the state board of examiners, shall upon presentation of satisfactory evidence of having done the required work, be entitled to receive from the state department of education a state first-grade certificate valid until the fourth anniversary of the thirty-first day of August of the calendar year in which the certificate was issued, unless canceled by lawful authority. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (116).]

See note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2807. Certificates based on course in college of industrial arts, etc.—Any person who has completed a regular course leading to graduation in the college of industrial arts, at Denton, and who has completed two full courses in education; may on furnishing satisfactory evidence of having done the required work, receive from the state department of education a state first-grade certificate valid until the sixth anniversary of the thirty-first day of August of the calendar year in which the certificate was issued, unless canceled by lawful authority; provided, that when the holder of said first-grade certificate has taught successfully in the public schools of Texas for a period of three years and has furnished satisfactory evidence thereof to the state department of education, she may receive, upon the surrender of the said first-grade certificate, a state permanent certificate valid for life, unless canceled by lawful authority. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (119).]

Note.—Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 2, repeals chapter 68 of Acts 30th Leg. (Acts 1907, p. 144), and thus supersedes Art. 2807, as it appeared in Rev. Civ. St. 1911. See note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2808. Certificates based on college degrees, etc.—Any person who holds a diploma conferring on him the degree of bachelor of arts, or any equivalent bachelor's degree, or any higher academic degree, from any college or university of the first-class, and who has completed four full courses in education and pedagogy, may receive from the state superintendent of public instruction a permanent state certificate, which shall be valid anywhere in this state during good behavior; provided, that any person who holds a diploma conferring on him the degree of bachelor of arts, or any equivalent bachelor's degree, or any higher academic degree, from any college or university of the first class, who has not had four full courses in education, but who has taught three years in the state, may receive from the state superintendent of public instruction, a permanent state certificate, which shall be valid anywhere in this state during good behavior. The institutions to be recognized as colleges or universities of the first-class shall be determined by the state superintendent of public instruction upon the recommendation of the state board of examiners. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (117).]

See note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2809. Certificates based on diploma from state normal college or life certificate in another state.—The holder of diploma from a state normal college, or of a life certificate, in another state, upon becoming a citizen of Texas, may receive from the state department of education, a state permanent certificate; provided, the state board of examiners recommends to the state superintendent of public instruction that the requirements for the diploma or life certificate are equal in all respects to the requirements for a state normal college diploma or life certificate in Texas. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (120).]

See note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2810. City certificates.—A city or town which has a scholastic population of five hundred or more, and has become an independent school district, and which levies a local tax for educational purposes or maintains a system of free schools for nine months in each year, and which has employed a superintendent of city schools, may have a city board of examiners. Said board of examiners shall in all cases consist of a city superintendent of the city schools, together with two other persons who shall be appointed by him, and who shall be teachers, and the superintendent shall not be subject to examination. The city board of examiners is hereby authorized to issue certificates valid only in the city in which they are issued. Such certificates shall be of two kinds, as follows: temporary, permanent, certificates.

Temporary and permanent certificates shall be of three classes for each kind as follows: Temporary certificates shall be second grade, first grade, and high school. Permanent certificates shall be primary, first grade and high school. A temporary city certificate shall be good for any period not exceeding four years, to be determined by the board of trustees of such city or town. A permanent city certificate shall be good during good behavior, and shall not be issued to any person who has not been engaged successfully in teaching in the schools of Texas for a period of at least three years. The further regulation of the issuance of such certificate shall be provided for by the board of trustees of such cities or towns; provided, that no city or town shall make the requirements for its temporary certificates inferior to the requirements prescribed by law for county or state certificates of the corresponding grades, or the requirements for its permanent certificates less than those prescribed by law for permanent county or state certificates of corresponding grades. Nothing in this chapter shall interfere with the validity of outstanding certificates in such cities or towns, or prevent the extension of such certificates upon such conditions as may be prescribed by the board of trustees regarding professional reading, attendance upon city institutes, or other means of professional growth. Cities and towns authorized by the provisions of this chapter to have a city board of examiners, may, at the discretion of the superintendent of the city schools, employ a teacher of any special branch not included in the requirements for a state certificate without requiring an examination or a teachers' certificate; and nothing in this chapter shall prevent the board of trustees of any city or town [from recognizing the certificates] issued in any other such city or town in this state, and validating the same in the city or town so recognizing. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (118).]

See note under Art. 2786.

Constitutionality.—This section is not invalid on the ground that the caption does not embrace the offense in question. The matter is covered by the caption of the act. Felder v. State, 50 Cr. R. 388, 97 S. W. 702.

Art. 2811. State kindergarten certificates; state permanent kindergarten certificates.—A diploma of graduation from a state educational institution in Texas which maintains, or may hereafter establish and maintain, a department for training kindergarten teachers, such diploma certifying that the holder thereof has, in addition to the regular course, completed the kindergarten course, consisting of not less than two years training with daily practice in the kindergarten, shall, upon being presented with satisfactory evidence of having done the required work to the state department of education, entitled the holder to receive a state kindergarten certificate authorizing its holder to contract to teach in any public kindergarten school of Texas, valid until the fourth anniversary of the thirty-first day of August of the calendar year in which the certificate was issued, unless canceled by lawful authority. The state superintendent of public instruction is hereby authorized to issue to graduates of approved kindergarten training schools and departments state kindergarten certificates valid for the time mentioned in this section; provided, that no kindergarten training school or department be approved by the state superintendent of public instruction unless the standard indicated above has been fully met, and it shall be the duty of the authorities of such schools and departments to furnish satisfactory evidence with respect to this matter to the state department of education. The holder of a state kindergarten certificate, after having successfully taught in the kindergarten schools of this state for a term of three years, may upon presentation of satisfactory evidence thereof to the state department of education, receive a state permanent kindergarten certificate valid for life, unless canceled by lawful authority. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (121).]

See note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2811a. Outstanding certificates; teachers in special branches.—Nothing in this Act shall be construed to impair the validity of outstanding city, county or state certificates. Cities and towns may, at the discretion of the superintendent, employ a teacher of any special branch not included in the requirements for a state certificate without requiring a teachers' certificate. [Acts 1911, p. 189, sec. 1 (125).]

Arts. 2812, 2813.—Repealed. See Art. 2811 and note under Art. 2786.

Art. 2814. Cancellation of certificate.—Any certificate may be canceled for cause by the authority issuing it; and the state superintendent of public instruction shall have power to cancel any certificate upon satisfactory evidence that the holder thereof is conducting his school in violation of the laws of the state, or is a person unworthy to instruct the youth of this state; provided, if any teacher holding a certificate to teach in the public schools of this state, shall enter into a written contract with any board of trustees to teach in any public school in this state, and shall, after making such contract and without the consent of the trustees, abandon said contract, except for good cause, such abandonment shall be considered sufficient grounds for the cancellation of said teacher's certificate, and the same may be canceled upon the complaint of said trustees, or either of them; provided, that, before any certificate shall be canceled, the holder thereof shall be notified, and shall have an opportunity to be heard, and he shall have the right of appeal from such decision to the state superintendent, and the state board of education; provided, that, when the state superintendent shall have canceled the certificate, the appeal shall be to the state board of education. [Acts 1905, p. 297, sec. 127.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Teachers, rendition of services.—A teacher held to have rendered services, within the meaning of an ordinance requiring their rendition before warrants should issue to pay therefor, where she held herself ready to teach during a temporary suspension of city schools during an epidemic. Randolph v. Sanders, 22 C. A. 331, 54 S. W. 621.

Where an assistant teacher, duly employed by school trustees, reported for duty under her contract, but was told that the daily attendance was under the statutory number permitting an assistant, but to hold herself in readiness, which she did, she was entitled to payment, though she never taught in the school. Singleton v. Austin, 27 C. A. 88, 65 S. W. 686.

COMMON SCHOOL DISTRICTS

Article 2815. Establishment of districts.—It shall be the duty of the county commissioners courts of all organized counties not already subdivided, to subdivide their respective counties into convenient school districts; and any county hereafter organized shall be so subdivided before the beginning of the next ensuing school year after its organization; provided, the county commissioners' court may reduce the area of any common school district and create such additional school districts as may be necessary for the best interests of the school children; provided, that no school district shall be reduced to contain less than nine square miles of territory; and no new district shall hereafter be created, having a less area than nine square miles; and provided, further, that the area of a school district having an outstanding bonded indebtedness shall never be reduced until after such bonded indebtedness shall have been fully discharged. The commissioners' court shall designate said school districts by number; provided, that all school districts in this state heretofore laid out and attempted to be established by the proper officers of any county, and heretofore recognized by said county authorities as school districts of said county, are hereby validated in all respects, as though they had been duly and legally established in the first instance.

Provided, further, that in counties containing a population of less than ten thousand, no common school district shall be organized or surveyed in such a manner that the geographical center of the same will be more than four miles from the farthest line of said common school district. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 50. Amended Acts 1909, p. 17. Acts 1913, p. 259, sec. 1, amending Art. 2815, Rev. Civ. St. 1911.]

Provision directory.—This article is merely directory. Swenson v. McLaren, 2 C. A. 331, 21 S. W. 300.

Under this article held, that the word "may," as so used, did not confer a mere discretion, but imported an imperative obligation, and hence a division of a county in such a manner as to place in the district containing the county seat 200 sections of land, making that district 20 miles long, and including the best of the lands in the county, when the territory did not exceed 60 scholastics in number, and giving to no other district more than 35 sections of land, constituted an illegal exercise of power which was subject to review by the courts. McLaughlin v. Smith, 105 T. 330, 148 S. W. 288.

Application.—The restriction contained in this article applies only to changes made by the commissioners' court. The exercise of the power granted the inhabitants is as unrestricted in such inhabitants when exercised in the manner prescribed by the legislature, as if exercised by the legislature itself. State v. Buchanan, 37 C. A. 325, 83 S. W. 725.

This decision was rendered before the amendment of 1905.

This article applies to changes made in districts created by the commissioners' court and not to changes resulting from incorporating independent school districts. Brewer v. Hall (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 789.

"Subdivided."—The word "subdivided" is used with reference to the existing subdivisions of the state into counties. Reynolds L. & C. Co. v. McCabe, 72 T. 57, 12 S. W. 165; Porter v. State, 78 T. 591, 14 S. W. 794.

Change of lines.—When a school district is established by the commissioners' court it cannot be changed except by the court with the consent of a majority of legal voters of districts affected thereby. Lawhon v. Haas (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 49.

Where a commissioners' court changed the line of a school district upon a petition of persons living in adjoining districts, it did not have the power to revoke this order at a subsequent term. The court could only change the lines again upon petition as provided in this article. Gabbart v. Johnson, 55 C. A. 181, 118 S. W. 884.

Under this article the change of a legally established district by the county commissioners' court without the consent of such voters, was void. Crow v. Fails, 57 C. A. 331, 122 S. W. 933.

The statutes regulating school districts confer on the commissioners' court exclusive jurisdiction to fix the boundaries of such districts without conferring on the district court any power to revise or control the commissioner's action. Wier v. Hill (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 366.

Under this article the commissioners' court may change a district without the consent of the legal voters in the districts affected. Tomlinson v. Hunnicutt (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 612.

Recognition of districts.—Under this article the commissioners' court was bound to recognize a district duly organized, and accord it all the rights and privileges of a district in district counties, and such duty was ministerial and could be enforced by mandamus. Crow v. Fails, 57 C. A. 331, 122 S. W. 933.

A school district, having no legal existence, cannot be created by a simple recognition of its existence by the commissioners' court; and the court giving such recognition is not thereby estopped from subsequently asserting the nonexistence of such district. Tomlinson v. Hunnicutt (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 612.

Review of action.—A petition to review the action of a commissioners' court fixing boundaries of school districts, failing to show how plaintiff will be "damaged and inconvenienced," held insufficient. Stephens v. Buie, 23 C. A. 491, 57 S. W. 312.

Art. 2815a. Common county line districts.—The commissioners courts of the several counties of the state of Texas shall have full power and authority to create common school districts, to contain territory within two or more counties of this state. In creating a common county line school district the commissioners courts of each county having territory in the school district sought to be created, before such district shall be created, shall each pass an order describing the territory desired to be created into such school district by metes and bounds, giving the course and direction with the exact length of each line contained in such description and locating each corner called for upon the ground, and shall also give the acres of each survey and parts of survey of lands contained in such district, together with a map showing the conditions upon the ground as described in the field notes, giving the number of acres of land contained in each survey and parts of survey contained in each county; also, showing the exact position and location of the county line in the territory created into a common county line school district. The said order of each commissioners court shall also designate and name some one of the counties having territory included in the description of such common county line school district to manage and have control of the public school in such common county line school district. The said common county line school district shall have no authority or power until the said order of the commissioners court has been passed by each commissioners court of each county having territory included in such common county line school district; provided, that no common county line school district shall be created with a less area than sixteen square miles, and shall be laid out in as near the shape of a square as is possible, and in no event shall the length of such district be greater than the width plus one-third of the width of such districts. [Acts 1909, ch. 12, amend. Acts 1911, p. 200, sec. 1.]

Note.—Acts 1911, p. 200, amends chapter 12 of Acts 31st Leg. (Acts 1909, p. 17, Rev. Civ. St. 1911, art. 2815), by adding thereto sections 50a, 50b, 50c, 154b, 154c, 154d (Arts. 2776a, 2815a, 2815b, 2856a, 2856c, 2864a, in this compilation). See Art. 2849f.

Art. 2815b. Rights, powers and privileges of common county line districts; management; taxes; bonds, etc.—Common county line school districts, as provided for in section 50a [Art. 2815a], shall have all the rights, powers and privileges of common school districts within the counties of this state, and for all school purposes, shall be managed and controlled by the county named in the order creating such district, and should such common county line school district desire to levy the special tax authorized by law to be levied for the purpose of the maintenance of its schools, or should such common county line school district desire to issue bonds in accordance with the limitations for such purpose provided by law for common school districts to obtain the power to levy such tax or issue such bonds, or both, as the case may be, except that in the event an election has been held in such common county line school district as provided by law and it has been determined by a majority vote, as required by law, that such district shall levy such special tax or issue such bonds, the commissioners court of the county placed in charge and control of such district shall pass an order levying such tax or issuing such bonds, or both, as the case may be, against the territory included within such county where the commissioners court in control of the school is located, and such order levying said tax or issuing said bonds and levying a tax to pay the interest and sinking fund, shall be passed by the commissioners court of each county having territory in such district, and the said commissioners court of each of such counties shall continue to levy the said tax at such rate as is determined and certified by the county superintendent of the county having control of said schools until such tax be diminished or abrogated, as provided by law, or such bonds, if such a district has outstanding bonds, have been fully and finally paid and discharged. The tax assessor shall assess the taxes levied by the commissioners court of his county against the territory included in such county line school district for each and every year that such tax is levied, and it shall be the duty of the tax assessor to make up a separate tax roll covering the special tax on territory in his county included in the county line school district, and deliver together with the general tax rolls of his county, which shall guide the tax collector in collecting the local taxes for such school district, and it shall be the duty of the tax collector to collect such special tax for such county line school district in his county for every year that such tax has been levied in such districts and keep a separate account covering the territory of his county included in county line school districts, for the purpose of determining how much tax has been collected, and shall be paid by his county to the county line school district, shall not be changed or abolished, except by the consent of the commissioners court of each county having territory contained in such a district, and then, shall not be changed so that such a district will contain less than sixteen square miles of area, and in the case such a district has outstanding bonds, the same shall not be changed or abolished in any way until after such bonds are finally paid and discharged. [Acts 1911, p. 200, sec. 2.]

See note under Art. 2815a. See, also, Art. 2849f.

Art. 2816. Commissioners' court may change district lines.—It shall be the duty of the commissioners' court, at any time they deem necessary, to redistrict a part or all of said county; and they may at any time consolidate two or more adjacent school districts, or may subdivide any school district or districts. The commissioners' court of any organized county, to which any unorganized county is attached for judicial purposes, may, and, upon the written petition of not less than ten resident citizens of such unorganized county, shall create such unorganized county into one or more school districts, and shall cause an order to that effect to be entered upon the minutes of said court. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 51.]

See Art. 2849f.

Power of commissioners.—Power to fix boundaries of school districts is within the exclusive jurisdiction of the commissioners' court. Wier v. Hill (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 366.

Consolidation.—An order of the commissioners' court, consolidating a part of a school district with another district, if legal, will not be disturbed, merely because the commissioners gave wrong reasons for their action. Tomlinson v. Hunnicutt (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 612.

Irregularities in proceedings.—A certain irregularity in proceedings to change the boundaries of a school district held not available to invalidate the proceedings, in a collateral proceeding to contest an election of trustee for the district. Gabbart v. Johnson, 55 C. A. 181, 118 S. W. 883.

Art. 2817. Court shall give metes and bounds of each district.—School districts shall be so made as to be as convenient as possible to the scholastic population; and said courts shall give the metes and bounds of each district, and shall designate the same carefully by giving the whole surveys and parts of surveys with acreage of whole surveys and approximate acreage of parts of surveys in each district, and the county clerk shall carefully record the same; and each district shall be given a number, which number shall be painted in large letters or figures over the doors of the schoolhouses, said signs to be provided by the district trustees of each district. [Id. sec. 53.]

See Art. 2849f.

TRUSTEES

Art. 2818. Election and qualification.—On the first Saturday in April of each year, the qualified voters of each school district, at a school district meeting for that purpose, shall elect three trustees for said district, who shall enter upon the discharge of their duties on the first of May next following. They shall immediately thereafter organize by electing one of their number president and one secretary of the board of trustees. The term of office of said trustees shall be divided into two classes, and they shall draw for the different classes; the one drawing number one shall serve for one year, and those drawing numbers two and three shall serve for two years, and until their successors shall have been elected or appointed, and shall have qualified. On the first Saturday in April of each year thereafter, there shall be an election in each school district for the election of a trustee or trustees, as the case may be, and the trustee or trustees so elected shall serve for two years and until his or their successor or successors shall have been elected or appointed and shall have been qualified. The trustees so elected or appointed shall, before entering upon the discharge of their duties, qualify by taking the oath as provided by the constitution, and shall, as soon as practicable, file said oath with the county superintendent or county judge; provided, that nothing herein shall interfere with the term of office of trustees already chosen in accordance with the provisions of the law. [Id. sec. 67.]

Oath of office.—School trustees held officers, within Const. art. 16, § 1, prescribing and requiring an oath of office. Buchanan v. Graham, 36 C. A. 468, 81 S. W. 1237.

Appointment by county superintendent.—The county superintendent has no power to appoint school trustee for towns and villages incorporated for school purposes, where the duly elected trustees hold over after the expiration of their term of office in consequence of a failure to hold an election at the appointed time to choose their successors. Stewart v. Purvis, 20 C. A. 647, 50 S. W. 204.

Informal election.—Where a newly elected school trustee attempted to qualify on the day he was required to enter upon the discharge of his duties, but did not do so because the county judge was of the opinion that the election was illegal, the failure to qualify cannot under the circumstances preclude his right to recover the office from one illegally appointed by the county judge. The reason the county judge regarded the election illegal was because it was held without any call therefor, or posting of notices, or appointment of officers therefor, but was held by the qualified voters getting together and informally electing trustees for the term. The election was fairly held. Every one entitled to vote was allowed to do so, and effect was given to the will of the voters. This constituted an election. Buchanan v. Graham, 36 C. A. 468, 81 S. W. 1239.

Term of office.—Terms of office of colored trustees under the act of 1895 should be determined by lot, in same manner as white trustees. Brown v. Oakes, 16 C. A. 39, 40 S. W. 165.

Colored trustee held entitled to hold office for two years, though commissioned for but one. Id.

Art. 2819. Election officers; how appointed; returns, etc.—The commissioners' court shall appoint three persons, qualified voters of the district, to hold such election, who shall make returns thereof to the county clerk within five days after such election shall have been held. If, at the time and place for holding such election, any or all of the persons so appointed to hold such election are absent or refuse to act, then the electors present may select of their number a person or persons to act in the place of those absent or refusing to act. No person shall be eligible to serve as a school trustee who can not read and write, and has not been a resident of the school district for six months prior to election held for trustees. [Id. sec. 68.]

See Art. 2849f.

Appointment or selection of officers.—An election of school trustees held valid, though no statutory notice was given and election officers were not appointed or formally selected. Buchanan v. Graham, 36 C. A. 468, 81 S. W. 1237.

Ratification.—Where the polls are opened and the election is held, and the electors who were present and desired to vote, participated in the election, they by the act of voting ratified the act of those holding the election and made it good, no matter how those holding the election were appointed or elected. Deaver v. State ex rel. Tripp, 27 C. A. 453, 66 S W. 258.

Returns to county judge.—The returns of an election for school trustees are properly made to the county judge when he is ex-officio school superintendent. Deaver v. State ex rel. Tripp, 27 C. A. 453, 66 S. W. 258.

Art. 2820. Returns of election.—The returns of the election of the trustees to be elected, as hereinbefore provided for the control and management of the schools of the district, shall be made to the county clerk of the county where such election is held, who shall deliver the same to the commissioners' court, to be canvassed and the result declared as in cases of other elections, which commissioners' court shall issue to the persons so elected their commissions as such trustees. [Id. sec. 93. Amended Acts 1907, p. 204.]

Schools to which applicable.—This section applies to schools of every character, whether communities, common school districts, or independent districts. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

Art. 2821. Suit for removal of trustee.—The trustees elected must be able to read and write intelligently the English language, and read, comprehend and interpret the laws of the state of Texas relating to the public school system; and, in the event a trustee elected, in the opinion of the county superintendent or the county judge, who is ex officio county superintendent, is not qualified to serve under the provisions of this article, it shall be the duty of the county superintendent, or such county judge who is ex officio county superintendent, to refuse to recognize such person who has been so elected as such school trustee, and to make written request, within twenty days after such election, of the county attorney, or district attorney in case there be no county attorney, to institute and prosecute with dispatch such suit, in the name of the state of Texas, for the removal of such trustee, in the district court of the county where such trustee resides, at the option of the county attorney, or district attorney in case there be no county attorney; provided, it shall be lawful under the provisions of this article, upon good cause shown within the discretion of the court where such suit is pending, to enjoin and restrain such person from acting as such trustee during the pendency of such suit for his removal. It shall be lawful under the provisions of this article to summon such trustee so elected before the court in the trial of such cause, and there make examination of him as to his qualifications to serve as such trustee as defined by this article, and, in case such trustee, after having been duly cited to answer in said cause and summoned as herein above provided to appear for examination, shall fail, neglect or refuse to obey said summons and fail to appear for the purpose of examination, and fail or refuse to submit to such examination, such failure, neglect or refusal shall be prima facie evidence of his disqualification under the terms of this article, and because thereof the court trying such cause shall be authorized to render thereupon judgment by default against such trustee so defaulting removing him from his said office of school trustee, and declaring the same vacant. It shall be the duty of the commissioners' court of the county where such trustee has been elected to appoint some suitable person, who is qualified as herein defined, to act as such trustee during the pendency of such suit to remove such trustee so elected, if he shall be enjoined from so acting, and, in case such trustee so elected shall be so removed by such suit brought by the county attorney, or district attorney in case there be no county attorney, then such trustee, so appointed by the commissioners' court of said county, shall continue to serve until the next regular election of school trustees for such district; provided, however, that such trustee so appointed may be removed for the causes and in the manner provided by this article. In case of vacancy in said office of trustee, by resignation or otherwise, the commissioners' court of the county shall appoint a suitable person qualified under the provisions of this article to so act as such trustee until the next regular election of school trustees for such district; and, in case such commissioners' court, under the provisions hereof, should appoint some person not qualified, suit for his removal shall be brought by the county attorney, or district attorney in case there be no county attorney, of the state, in the name of the state of Texas, in the manner and upon the same terms and conditions as has been herein provided for in case of the election of persons who are not qualified to act as such trustees. [Id. sec. 93. Amended Acts 1907, p. 204.]

See Art. 2849f.

Art. 2822. District trustees a body corporate.—The trustees of school districts provided for in the preceding articles of this chapter, and their successors in office, shall be a body politic and corporate in law, and shall be known by and under the title and name of district trustees of district number —, and county of ———, state of Texas; and as such may contract and be contracted with, sue and be sued, plead or be impleaded, in any court of this state of proper jurisdiction, and may receive any gift, grant, donation or devise made for the use of the public schools of the district. All reports and other official papers shall be headed with the number of district and name of county. [Id. sec. 69.]

See Horton v. Rockwall County (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 297.

Mandamus.—Trustees of school districts legally organized may be compelled by writ of mandamus to perform plain ministerial duties. Harkness v. Hutchenson, 90 T. 383, 38 S. W. 1120.

Art. 2823. Shall have management and control of schools.—The trustees of school districts shall have the management and control of the public schools and public school grounds. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to loiter or loaf upon any public school grounds in this state during the session of such school, after being warned by the person in charge of such school to leave such grounds; and such person or persons so found shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction therefor, shall be fined in any sum not less than five and not to exceed twenty-five dollars. They shall have the power to employ and dismiss teachers, but in case of dismissal, teachers shall have the right of appeal to the county and state superintendents. [Id. sec. 70.]

Appeal.—The appeal provided by this statute must be perfected within a reasonable time, no time being fixed. Trustees of Chillicothe Independent School Dist. v. Dudney (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 1007.

Injunction.—An injunction does not lie to restrain the trustees of an independent school district empowered by this article, and Art. 2853, to manage and control the schools and to employ and dismiss teachers, from proceeding to try the superintendent of the district on charges preferred committed subsequent to a decision that such superintendent had been legally employed, and render judgment on the charges. Young v. Dudney (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 116.

Art. 2824. Make contracts for the district.—School trustees shall determine how many schools shall be maintained in their school district, and at what points they shall be located; provided, that not more than one school for white children and one school for colored children shall be established for each sixteen square miles of territory or major fraction thereof, within such district; they shall determine when the schools shall be opened and when closed; they shall contract with teachers and manage and supervise the schools, subject to the rules, and regulations of the county and state superintendents; they shall approve all teachers vouchers, and all other claims against the school fund of their district; provided, that trustees, in making contracts with teachers, shall not create a deficiency debt against the district. [Id. sec. 71.]

See Horton v. Rockwall County (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 297.

Indebtedness.—School trustees cannot contract debts in the employment of teachers to an amount greater than the school fund apportioned the district for each particular year. Any debt contracted greater than that is a violation of the law, and constitutes no claim against the district. The trustees can expend the sum set apart to the district but cannot contract a debt against the funds of future years. Collier v. Peacock, 93 T. 255, 54 S. W. 1025.

The school fund of one year cannot be used to pay off the debt of another year. Collier v. Peacock (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 756.

Mandamus.—Where warrants were issued for school furniture payable yearly and funds set aside to redeem them but they were not presented promptly and the funds were paid out for other legal purposes, mandamus will not lie to compel the superintendent or treasurer to appropriate other funds for the payment of the warrants. Perhaps the remedy is a suit against such officers as wrongfully disposed of the funds which had been appropriated for the payment of the warrants. Stephenson v. Union Seating Co., 26 C. A. 16, 62 S. W. 128.

Art. 2825. Contracts with teachers.—Trustees of a district shall make contracts with teachers to teach the public schools of their district, but the compensation to a teacher, under written contract with the trustees, shall be approved by the county superintendent before the school is taught, stating that the teacher will teach such school for the time and money specified in the contract; and the board of trustees shall have authority, whenever the average daily attendance exceeds thirty-five pupils, to employ one competent assistant to every thirty-five pupils of such excess and fractional part thereof exceeding fifteen pupils; and all children within the scholastic age residing in such district, though they may have settled in such district since the scholastic census was taken, shall be entitled to receive all the benefits of the schools of such district; and in a district that levies a special school tax, the trustees shall have the right to increase the salaries of teachers and the scholastic age, and may also have the schools taught longer than six months, if it is deemed advisable. [Id. sec. 72.]

Former law.—Construing Rev. St. 1895, arts. 3946, 3959, 3959a, and 3961, trustees are empowered to ascertain the existence of the facts rendering the employment of assistants necessary; and the exercise of this power is judicial, not ministerial, rests solely with them and is a matter with which teachers have nothing to do. The exercise of this power cannot be inquired into by a proceeding to compel the superintendent to approve a teacher's voucher. Singleton v. Austin, 27 C. A. 88, 65 S. W. 688.

Damages for breach of contract.—A teacher discharged without proper cause, and who has taken no steps by appeal to reinstate himself, cannot recover damages for breach of contract. Harkness v. Hutchenson, 90 T. 383, 38 S. W. 1120.

Modification of contract.—When the community system is in force, a contract between the teacher and trustees, approved by the county judge, cannot afterwards be modified or reformed by the county judge alone without the consent of the trustees. Caviel v. Coleman, 72 T. 550, 10 S. W. 679; Bell v. Kuykendall, 3 C. A. 209, 22 S. W. 112.

Art. 2826. Check for payment of teacher.—The amount contracted by trustees to be paid a teacher shall be paid on a check, drawn by a majority of the trustees, on the county treasurer, and approved by the county superintendent. The check shall in all instances be accompanied by the affidavit of the teacher that he is entitled to the amount specified in the check, as compensation under his contract as a teacher. [Id. sec. 74.]

Payment.—Duties of trustees in paying teachers. See Bell v. Kuykendall, 22 S. W. 112, 3 C. A. 209.

Where funds for payment of teachers' salaries have been wrongfully disbursed by school trustees, judgment against school districts for the unpaid portion held error. Stephenson v. Camp (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 816.

LOCAL TAX

Art. 2827. Special tax authorized.—The commissioners' court of any county in this state shall have power to levy a special tax for the further maintenance of public free schools, and the erection within each school district of a schoolhouse or schoolhouses; provided, a majority of the qualified property taxpaying voters of the district, voting at an election to be held for the purpose, shall vote such tax, not to exceed in any year fifty cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of the property subject to taxation in such district; provided, that all property assessed for school purposes shall be assessed at the rate of value of property as said property is assessed for state and county purpose. [Id. sec. 57. Amended Acts 1909, p. 17.]

See Art. 2849f.

Implied repeal by other sections of school law.—School Law, §§ 160, 161 [Arts. 2852, 2853], held not to impliedly repeal section 57 [Art. 2827]. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

Limitation or control of other sections of school law.—School Law, § 57 [Art. 2827], held to control section 165 [Arts. 2862, 2881, 2891]. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

School Law, § 57 [Art. 2827], under the heading, "Common Schools," held to limit section 161 [Art. 2853]. Id.

Assessment of property.—Under School Law, § 57 [Art. 2827], the trustees of an independent school district cannot assess property for taxation for school purposes at a higher valuation than assessments for state and county purposes. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

Void tax.—When the election has been held illegally the tax is void. Swenson v. McLaren, 21 S. W. 300, 2 C. A. 331.

Determination of signature by majority.—The decision of the county judge, ordering an election in a school district to determine whether a special school tax shall be levied, as authorized by this article, and Art. 2828, that a majority of the legal voters of the district had signed the petition therefor is conclusive; and the validity of the election cannot be contested on the ground that he erred in his decision. Wilbern v. Cone (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 818.

Amount of tax.—School Law (Acts 29th Leg. c. 124) consists of five distinct headings, and this article, providing that, in all assessments for taxing purposes under the bill, the property shall be assessed at the valuation fixed for state and county purposes, is found under the heading "Common Schools," while Art. 2853 found under the heading of "Towns and Villages Incorporated for School Purposes Only," provides that the trustees shall be vested with all the powers, rights, and duties in regard to the establishing and maintaining of free schools, including the power of taxation for free school purposes, as are conferred on the councils of incorporated cities and towns. Held, that this article applies to all taxes levied under the bill, which means the entire act, and so limits Art. 2853. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

Under this article, providing that "all property assessed for school purposes shall be assessed at the rate of value of property as said property is assessed for state and county purposes; provided that in all assessments for taxing purposes under this bill, all property shall be assessed at the valuation fixed for said property for state and county purposes"—the trustees of an independent school district cannot assess property for taxation for school purposes at a higher valuation than assessments for state and county purposes. Id.

This article controls Art. 2891, which inferentially indicates that trustees of independent school districts may fix their own valuation for assessments. Id.

Under this article, and Arts. 2828, 2836, authorizing a special tax, not exceeding 50 cents on the $100 valuation of the property in a school district, and authorizing the commissioners to levy a tax within the limit as determined by the trustees of the district and the county superintendent, a district may, at an election, vote for a special tax, not exceeding 25 cents on the $100 valuation of the property; and the commissioners' court may levy the tax within the limit of 25 cents on the $100 valuation, as fixed by the trustees and the county superintendent having discretion as to the amount of the tax. Wilbern v. Cone (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 818.

Art. 2828. Petition for tax election.—Whenever twenty or more, or a majority of the property taxpaying voters of a district, wish to tax themselves for the purpose of supplementing the state school fund appropriated to said district, they shall make application to the county judge, who shall issue an order for an election to be held in said district, to determine whether such tax shall be levied. Said application shall designate either the specific rate of tax to be levied, or a rate of tax not exceeding fifty cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of property, and the order of said judge shall state:

1. When said election shall be held.
2. At what point or points the polls shall be opened.
3. The rate of tax to be voted on; provided, that no election shall be held to determine the levy of a tax exceeding fifty cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of property, but the proposition may be for a specific tax rate within this limit or for a school tax not exceeding fifty cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of taxable property in the district.

The county judge shall order the sheriff to give notice of such election, by posting three notices in the district for three weeks before the election, and the sheriff shall obey such order. Not more than one such election shall be held in the same scholastic year. [Id. sec. 38. Amended Acts 1909, p. 17.]

See Art. 2849f.

Petitioners.—The names of the petitioners need not appear on the last assessment roll. Rhomberg v. McLaren, 24 S. W. 571, 2 C. A. 391.

Form of notice.—The notices should show that they are posted by the sheriff under the order of the commissioners' court. Swenson v. McLaren, 21 S. W. 300, 2 C. A. 331.

Art. 2829. Presiding officer; ballots.—The county judge shall appoint a presiding officer for each voting place to hold said election, who shall make due return thereof as is required by law for holding a general election; and each person, who favors taxation for school purposes, shall have written or printed on his ticket, "For School Tax," and each person opposed to such taxation shall have written or printed on his ticket, "Against School Tax." The ballots shall be prepared by the county judge, and the county shall bear the expense of having them printed. [Id. sec. 59. Amended Acts 1909, p. 17.]

See Art. 2849f.

Signing ballots.—Under this article, and General Election Law (Acts 29th Leg. [1st Ex. Sess.] c. 11) § 194, which provides that the act is cumulative as to elections and penalties for violating the election laws, except that it shall repeal the election act, approved by the governor April 1, 1903 (Acts 28th Leg. c. 101), provided that the act shall not interfere with or repeal any laws, except as herein provided. Held, that an election to determine whether to levy a school tax was governed by this article, and not by the general election law (Acts 29th Leg. [1st Ex. Sess.] c. 11) §§ 72, 78, so that the ballots need not be signed by the presiding judge of the election; that not being required by this article. Clark v. Willrich (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 947.

Art. 2830. Hours of election.—All polls for school district elections shall be opened at eight o'clock a. m., and shall be closed at six o'clock

p. m., and none of the officers holding such election shall be entitled to compensation therefor. [Id. sec. 60. Amended Acts 1909, p. 17.]

Art. 2831. Who entitled to vote.—All persons who are legally qualified voters of this state, and of the county of their residence, and who are resident property taxpayers in said district, shall be entitled to vote in such school district election; and, if at such election a majority shall vote for the tax, it shall be declared by the commissioners' court to have carried in said district, and entered upon the records of said court to have been carried; and in all cases the returning officer shall make a full and complete return, as in other elections, to said court, within five days after said election is held, and said return shall be opened and counted at the first meeting of said court and the result declared. [Id. sec. 61. Amended Acts 1909, p. 17.]

See Art. 2849f.

Ownership of property.—The election officer properly refused to permit one to vote at an election on the question of levying a school tax who stated that he did not own property in the district subject to taxation, even though the voter was mistaken as to his ownership of property. Clark v. Willrich (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 947.

Assessment.—No additional qualification is required to entitle a person to vote at an election on the question of levying a school tax to those prescribed by the constitution, sec. 3, art. 7, and to entitle a man to vote it is not necessary that he should have been assessed the year before, nor that his assessment should appear on the county rolls. Hillsman v. Falson, 23 C. A. 398, 57 S. W. 921.

The fact that an elector had not assessed his property for taxes did not disqualify him as a voter at an election to determine whether a tax should be levied for school purposes. Clark v. Willrich (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 947.

Art. 2832. Challenge of voters.—Any one person may challenge a voter; but if the challenged party takes an oath that he is a qualified voter of the state and county, and that he is a resident property taxpayer in said district, he shall be entitled to vote. [Id. sec. 62.]

Art. 2833. Election to abrogate, increase or diminish tax.—At any time after the expiration of two years after any district has levied a school tax on itself, twenty property taxpaying qualified voters, or a majority of such voters of the district, may have an election held, upon the proper petition to the county judge, to determine whether such tax shall be abrogated, increased or diminished. Such election shall be held and conducted as elections provided for in article 2829, and persons entitled to vote at such elections shall possess the qualifications prescribed in article 2831. [Id. sec. 63.]

Rate of tax.—Where, prior to the addition of territory to a school district, it had voted a tax of 20 cents on the $100 of property situated in the district, for school purposes, which rate had been levied and collected for several years, without any further election to determine the rate of assessment, such rate ipso facto became applicable to territory added to the district; the owners of the property annexed having taken no steps to bring about an election to vote off the tax, as authorized by this article and Arts. 2834, 2835. Crabb v. Celeste Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 890.

Art. 2834. Form of ballot.—If the election be to abrogate or diminish the school tax, each voter favoring the abrogation or diminution shall have written or printed upon his ticket, "For abrogating school tax," or, "For diminishing school tax to — cents," as the case may be; and each voter opposing the abrogation or diminution shall have written or printed on his ballot, "Against abrogating school tax," or, "Against diminishing school tax to — cents," as the case may be; and a majority vote shall be necessary to abrogate or diminish the school tax. [Id. sec. 64.]

Art. 2835. Form of ballot for increase.—If the election be to determine whether the tax shall be increased, each voter favoring the increase of the school tax shall have written or printed on his ballot, "For increase of school tax;" and each voter opposing such increase shall have written or printed on his ballot, "Against increase of school tax;" and, if a majority of the votes cast be in favor of increasing the tax, it shall be increased. [Id. sec. 65. Amended Acts 1909, p. 17.]

Art. 2836. Levy of tax.—The county commissioners' court shall, at the time of levying the taxes for county purposes, also levy upon such school district the rate of tax said district has voted upon itself, or, if the proposition shall have been, "for a school tax not exceeding fifty cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of taxable property in the district," the commissioners' court shall levy such a rate within that limit as shall have been determined by the board of trustees of said district and the county superintendent, and certified to said court by the county superintendent. It shall be the duty of the tax assessor to assess said tax as other taxes are assessed, and to make an abstract showing the amount of special taxes assessed against each school district in his county, and to furnish the same to the county superintendent, on or before the first day of September of the year for which such taxes are assessed; and the taxes levied upon the real property in said districts shall be a lien thereon, and the same shall be sold for unpaid taxes in the manner and at the time of sales for state and county taxes. A special tax voted in any district after the levy of county taxes shall be levied at any meeting of the commissioners' court prior to the delivery of the assessment rolls by the assessor. The tax assessor shall assess, and the tax collector shall collect, said district taxes as other taxes are assessed and collected. The tax assessor shall receive a commission of one-half of one per cent for assessing such tax, and the tax collector a commission of one-half of one per cent for collecting the same. The tax collector shall pay all such taxes to the county treasurer; and said treasurer shall credit each school district with the amount belonging to it, and pay out the same in accordance with the law. [Id. sec. 66. Amended Acts 1909, p. 17.]

See Art. 2849f.

Amount of tax.—See note under Art. 2827.

Suit to recover special tax.—A petition in a suit to recover a special school tax held insufficient, as not alleging that the voters at the election authorizing the tax were taxpayers within the district. Miller v. Crawford Independent School Dist., 26 C. A. 495, 63 S. W. 894.

SCHOOLHOUSE BONDS

Art. 2837. Election for issuance of bonds.—When twenty or more, or a majority, of the qualified taxpaying voters of a school district shall petition the county judge, he shall order an election in the school district from which the petition came, to determine whether or not a majority of the legally qualified property taxpaying voters of that district desire the issuance of bonds as indicated in the petition, and the annual levy of a tax sufficient to pay the current interest on said bonds and provide a sinking fund sufficient to pay the principal at maturity. Said election shall be ordered, held, and the returns counted and published as in other school elections in accordance with the laws of this state, and it shall not be necessary to vote upon a specific rate of tax, but the rate shall be determined as provided in article [2841]. [Id. sec. 76. Amended Acts 1909, p. 17.]

See Art. 2849f.

School bonds.—See Title 48.

Art. 2838. Ballots.—Whenever the county judge in any county in the state of Texas shall have found it lawful and necessary to order an election for schoolhouse bonds, as provided herein, said county judge shall prepare proper ballots for use in said school district election, and the county shall bear the expense of having such ballots printed; and each person who favors the issuance of bonds and the levy of a tax therefor, shall have written or printed on his ballot, "For the Bonds," and each person opposed to such taxation shall have written or printed on his ballot, "Against the Bonds." [Id. sec. 80. Amended Acts 1909, p. 17.]

See Art. 2849f.

Art. 2839. Issuance and sale of bonds.—If, after the results of said election are known, it shall appear that a majority of the votes therein have been cast in favor of the issuing of schoolhouse bonds, the commissioners' court of the county in which said school district is located shall issue said bonds on the faith and credit of said school district, which bonds shall bear not more than five per cent interest per annum, and shall run not more than forty years; provided, that when the houses are to be built of wood the time of the bonds herein provided for shall not be more than twenty years. The said bonds shall be examined by the attorney general of the state of Texas, and registered by the comptroller of public accounts of the state of Texas. They shall be sold to the highest bidder, and the purchase money shall be placed in the county treasury to the credit of said school district, and the money shall be disbursed upon warrants issued by the trustees of said district, approved by the county superintendent, in payment of accounts legally contracted in buying, building, equipping or repairing the schoolhouse or schoolhouses for such district, or in the purchase of sites therefor; provided, that the commissioners' court may invest the county permanent school fund in such school district schoolhouse bonds, and the state board of education shall have the right to purchase such bonds on the same conditions as it may purchase other bonds. [Id. sec. 77. Amended Acts 1909, p. 17.]

See Art. 2849f.

Art. 2840. Form of bond.—The said school district schoolhouse bonds shall express on their face: The state of Texas, the name of the county, and the number or corporation name of the district issuing said bonds; provided, the bonds shall not run more than forty years, and shall bear not more than five per cent interest per annum, and shall never be sold below par. [Id. sec. 81. Amended Acts 1909, p. 17.]

Art. 2841. Levy of bond tax.—When the commissioners' court shall provide for the issuance of such bonds, and each year thereafter so long as the bonds or any of them are outstanding, said court shall levy a tax not to exceed twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of taxable property of said school district, sufficient to pay the interest on the bonds and to produce a sinking fund, which, together with the interest thereon when placed at interest, shall be sufficient to pay the principal of said bonds at maturity. The rate of such tax shall be determined by the trustees of the district and the county superintendent, and certified by the county superintendent to the commissioners' court; provided, that the rate of the bond tax, together with the rate of special local tax of the district for the maintenance of schools therein, shall never exceed fifty cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of taxable property of said school district; but, if the rate of bond tax certified by the county superintendent to the commissioners' court, together with the rate of maintenance tax previously voted in the district, shall at any time exceed fifty cents on the one hundred dollars, such bond tax shall operate to reduce the maintenance tax to the difference between the rate of the bond tax and fifty cents. Said school district bond tax shall be assessed and collected in the manner provided by law for the assessment and collection of the special local tax for the maintenance of public free schools; provided, that the rate of school tax certified to the commissioners' court by the county superintendent shall be the rate to be levied by the commissioners' court in the school district, until a change in such rate shall be recommended by the county superintendent and board of trustees of the district within the limits prescribed by law. [Id. sec. 78. Amended Acts 1909, p. 17.]

See Art. 2849f.

Art. 2842. Tax must be levied until bonds are paid.—After said bonds shall have been issued and sold, and said tax shall have been levied sufficient to pay said bonds and the interest thereon as provided above, it shall not be lawful to hold an election in said district to determine whether or not said tax shall be discontinued or lowered until said bonds, together with the interest thereon, shall have been fully paid; nor shall the limits and boundaries of said common school district ever be decreased until after said bonds and the accrued interest thereon shall have been fully paid. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 79.]

Art. 2843. Expenditure of proceeds of bonds.—The funds arising from the sale of said common school district bonds of any district, and placed to the credit of said district in the treasury of said county, shall be apportioned to the use of the public free schools of said district for the purpose of building and equipping schoolhouses, in accordance with the method and manner provided by law for the division of the funds for the maintenance of public free schools therein. [Id., p. 263, sec. 82.]

SCHOOL PROPERTY

Art. 2844. Trustees to contract for building.—The trustees of a school district shall contract for the erection of the buildings and superintend the construction of the same; and the county superintendent shall draw his warrant or warrants upon the school fund so appropriated only upon the accounts first approved by them. [Id. sec. 84.]

Sale and leasing of public free school lands.—See Title 79, Chapter 9.

Contracts.—School district held not to have become liable to a subcontractor by reason of a promise of the president of the board of trustees. Moore v. Leonard Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 324.

—— Committees.—The board can appoint necessary committees, who may let contracts for buildings previously authorized for school purposes and who may take bonds for faithful performance of duties of contractors and other duties incidental to completion of the buildings. Wright v. Jones, 55 C. A. 616, 120 S. W. 1140.

Bonded debt.—Towns are not authorized to create a bonded indebtedness for the purpose of buying a building site and erecting a schoolhouse. Waxahachie v. Brown, 67 T. 519, 4 S. W. 207. See Art. 4034.

Art. 2845. Lien may not be acquired.—No mechanic, contractor, material man, or other person, can contract for, or in any other manner have or acquire, any lien upon the house so erected or the land upon which the same is situated; and all contracts with such parties shall expressly stipulate for a waiver of such lien. [Id. sec. 85.]

See A. A. Fielder Lumber Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 605.

Surety on bond of contractor.—A surety on a bond of a contractor to erect a school building for a district, which recites that the contractor and surety are bound unto the trustees of the district and to persons who may become entitled to liens under the contract, and which declares that the condition of the obligation is such that, if the contractor shall perform the contract and discharge all indebtedness that may be incurred by him, the obligation shall be void, and that the bond is made for the benefit of all persons who may become entitled to liens under the contract, is not liable to one who furnished labor and materials for the construction of the building, since, under this article, no lien can attach against the building. Campbell-Root Lumber Co. v. Smith (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1195.

Art. 2846. Sale of school property.—The trustees of any school district, upon the order of the commissioners' court, prescribing the terms thereof, when deemed advisable, may make sale of any property belonging to said school district, and apply the proceeds to the purchase of necessary grounds, or to the building or repairing of schoolhouses, or place the proceeds to the credit of the available school fund of the district. [Id. sec. 86.]

See Art. 2849f.

Art. 2847. Control of school property.—All schoolhouses erected, grounds purchased or leased for a school district, and all other property belonging thereto, shall be under the control of the district trustees of such district. [Id. sec. 87.]

Control and disposition.—School district trustees are charged with responsibility as to the maintenance and conduct of the schools, and they have standing as complainants against persons attempting to injure the school property and to interfere with the operation of the school. Thompson v. Kimbrough, 23 C. A. 350, 57 S. W. 329.

A sale by the trustees of school district made without an order of the commissioners' court passes no title. Crouch v. Posey (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 1004.

Facts held not to bar a community's right to use the lower story of a building for school purposes. Rhodes v. Maret (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 433.

A free school district held entitled to the use of the lower story of a building as a schoolhouse. Rhodes v. Maret, 102 T. 519, 119 S. W. 1139.

—— Building erected before establishment of district.—When the people of a community have erected a building for school purposes and afterwards the community has been constituted a school district the trustees succeed to the control and management of the building for school purposes. Rhodes v. Maret (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 436.

—— Removal of schoolhouse.—Acts of two of the trustees of a school district, in consenting and assisting in removing a schoolhouse to another tract, held a perversion of their trust and a confiscation of public property. Sanders v. Cauley, 52 C. A. 261, 113 S. W. 560.

Land having been dedicated for school and other purposes, complainants, though with the consent of the trustees of the school district and of the original owner's heirs, held not authorized to remove the schoolhouse from the tract to other land held by complainants, though in trust for school purposes. Id.

Art. 2848. Protection of houses of respective races.—A schoolhouse constructed in part by voluntary subscription by colored parents or guardians, and for a school for colored children, shall not be used for white children without the consent of the trustees of the district, and a like rule shall protect the use of schoolhouses erected in part by voluntary subscription of white parents or guardians for the benefit of white children. [Id. sec. 88.]

Art. 2849. Title to property.—All conveyances, devises and bequests of property for the benefit of the public schools made by any one for any county, city or town, or district, shall, when not otherwise directed by the grantor or devisor, vest said property in the county judge of the county, or the board of school trustees of the city or town, or the trustees of the school district, or their successors in office, as the trustees for those to be benefited thereby, and the same, when not otherwise directed, shall be administered by said officers under such rules as may be established by the state superintendent. [Id. sec. 132.]

See Art. 2849f.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN A

PUBLIC HIGH SCHOOLS IN COMMON SCHOOL DISTRICTS

Article 2849a. Schools authorized.—That public high schools are hereby authorized to be established in the common school districts of Texas, said high schools to be an integral part of the public free school system of the state. [Acts 1911, p. 34, sec. 1.]

Art. 2849b. Subjects taught; schools of first, second and third class defined; certificate of approval or classification.—That there may be taught in each high school, the establishment of which is herein authorized, all the subjects prescribed by law to be taught in the public schools of Texas, including primary, intermediate and high school subjects, and such of the additional subjects of agriculture, domestic economy and manual training as may be provided for according to the conditions hereinafter prescribed. In the meaning of this statute, there shall be high schools of the first class, high schools of the second class, and high schools of the third class. A high school of the first class shall be a high school which maintains at least four years or grades of work above the sixth grade or year, may include in its curriculum the first six grades or years of work, shall employ at least two teachers to teach high school subjects, who shall each hold a state first-grade certificate or certificate of higher grade, and shall be maintained for not less than eight scholastic months during each school year. A high school of the second class shall be a high school which maintains at least three years or grades of work above the sixth grade or year, may include in its curriculum the first six years or grades of work, shall employ at least two teachers to teach high school subjects, who shall each hold a state first-grade certificate or certificate of higher grade, and shall be maintained for not less than eight scholastic months during each school year. A high school of the third class shall be a high school which maintains at least two years or grades of work above the sixth grade or year, may include in its curriculum the first six years or grades of work, shall employ at least one teacher to teach high school subjects, who shall hold a state first-grade certificate or certificate of higher grade, and shall be maintained for not less than seven scholastic months during each school year. Each class of high schools herein defined shall be entitled to receive a certificate of approval or classification from the state department of education. High schools which fail to come up to the standard herein prescribed as to teachers, number of grades or years of work, and length of annual session, shall not be prohibited by this Act, but such high schools shall not be entitled to receive a certificate of approval or classification from the state department of education. A grade or year of work as herein mentioned shall consist of not less than thirty-two weeks of five days each. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2849c. Duty of state board of education as to appropriations; departments of domestic economy, manual training and agriculture; duties of board of trustees of high school and state superintendent of public instruction, etc.—It shall be the duty of the state board of education to duplicate by an appropriation out of money provided for by this Act an amount not less than five hundred ($500.00) dollars, nor more than fifteen hundred ($1,500.00) dollars, that shall have been set apart by the trustees of a public high school of the first class or of the second class, the establishment of which is herein authorized, or any such high school that has already been established in either a common school district or an independent district, for establishing, equipping and maintaining a department of agriculture; an amount of not less than five hundred ($500.00) dollars, nor more than one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars, that shall have been set apart by the trustees of any such high school for establishing, equipping and maintaining a department of domestic economy; and an amount of not less than five hundred ($500.00) dollars, nor more than one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars that shall have been set apart by the trustees of any such high school for establishing, equipping and maintaining a department of manual training; an amount of not less than five hundred ($500.00) dollars, nor more than one thousand ($1,000.00) dollars that shall have been set apart by the trustees of a public high school of the third class in a common school district for establishing, equipping and maintaining a department of agriculture; provided, that not more than two thousand ($2,000.00) dollars shall be appropriated by the state board of education for the purpose mentioned to any one high school during the same scholastic year; and provided further, that such appropriation shall not be made more than twice to the same school. The board of trustees of the high school, applying for state aid for establishing, equipping and maintaining a department of agriculture, domestic economy or manual training, shall provide ample room and laboratories for the teaching of each subject or subjects, and in connection with the department of agriculture in the high school, shall provide a tract of land, conveniently located, which shall be sufficiently large and well adapted to the production of farm and garden plants, and shall employ a teacher who has received special training for giving efficient instruction in the subject. The state superintendent of public instruction shall make accurate and full investigation of the school property, appliances and ground possessed by any board of trustees that may apply for state aid under the provisions of this Act, and shall make a report of the result of his investigation to the state board of education, together with his recommendations touching the same. The state board of education shall grant aid to those high schools that have complied with the provisions of this Act, that shall give evidence that, after the state aid is withdrawn, the high schools will continue to maintain the department for instruction in agriculture, domestic economy or manual training, and that have been recommended by the state superintendent of public instruction. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2849d. County school trustees to manage; how elected; terms, etc.—The general management and control of the high schools in each county of the state, provided for in this Act, shall be vested in five county school trustees, elected from the county at large, at the time the trustees of the common school districts are elected, the first Saturday in April of each year, the order for their election to be made at the same time and by the same authority that orders the election of the trustees of the common school districts. The first election under this Act shall be held on the first Saturday in April subsequent to the taking effect of this Act, at which election five county school trustees shall be chosen, who shall decide by lot at their first meeting which two shall hold office for one year, and which three shall hold office for two years, and two of whom shall hold office for one year, or until their successors are elected and qualified, and three of whom shall hold office for two years, or until their successors are elected and qualified; and regularly thereafter on the first Saturday in April of each year an election shall be held for such county school trustees, two being elected at the expiration of the term of those first holding for one year, and three being elected at the expiration of [the term of] those first holding for two years; provided, if this Act does not take effect prior to the first Saturday of April, 1911, the county school trustees, herein provided for, shall be appointed by the commissioners court of each county, to serve until the election and qualification of their successors in 1912. [Id., sec. 4.]

Art. 2849e. To classify into primary, intermediate and high schools, etc.; course of study, etc.—It shall be the duty of the county school trustees to classify the schools of the county into primary schools, intermediate schools and high schools, for the purpose of promoting the efficiency of the primary and intermediate school and of establishing high schools wherever practicable. In classifying the schools and in establishing high schools, the county school trustees shall confer and advise with the county superintendent of public instruction and the district school trustees of the county, and shall give due regard to schools already located, to the distribution of the population and to the advancement of the children in their studies. The said county school trustees shall, in co-operation with the county superintendent of public instruction, prescribe a course of study for the public schools of the county conforming to the law and the requirements of the state department of education. [Id., sec. 5.]

Art. 2849f. Rights and powers formerly in commissioners' court vested in county school trustees.—All rights and powers pertaining to the public free schools of the county that have heretofore been vested in the commissioners court and that are not prescribed by this Act, shall hereafter be vested in the county school trustees. In determining the location of high schools, the county school trustees shall, by and with the consent of the majority of the trustees of each district affected, effect the consolidation of as many common school districts as practicable, and shall negotiate with the school trustees of such common school districts as have no high schools for the free tuition of eligible children in the high schools, thereby giving high school privileges and opportunities, so far as possible, to all children of scholastic age residing in the rural districts. The county school trustees are also empowered to negotiate with the trustees of independent school districts that have high schools for the free tuition of eligible children who reside in adjacent or convenient common school districts not maintaining high schools. [Id., sec. 6.]

Art. 2849g. County school trustees body corporate; powers; title of school property.—The county school trustees of each county shall constitute a body corporate, by the name of the County School Trustees of ..... County, State of Texas, and in that name may acquire and hold real and personal property, and sue and be sued, and may receive bequests and donations or other moneys or funds coming legally into their hands, and may perform other acts for the promotion of education in the county. The title to any school property belonging to the county, the title of which has heretofore been vested in the county judge and his successors in office, or any school property that may be acquired, shall vest in the county school trustees and their successors in office for public free school purposes. [Id., sec. 7.]

Art. 2849h. County school superintendent as secretary and executive officer; record of proceedings.—The county school trustees shall designate the county superintendent as their secretary and executive officer; and it shall be the duty of the county superintendent to keep a true and correct record of all the proceedings of said county school trustees in a well bound book, which shall be furnished him by the commissioners court, and such record shall be open to public inspection. [Id., sec. 8.]

Art. 2849i. To apportion funds.—Upon receiving notice from the state superintendent of public instruction, of the amount of state available school funds apportioned to the county, exclusive of all independent districts, having each more than 150 scholastics, it shall be the duty of the county school trustees, acting with the county superintendent, to apportion all available state and county funds to the school districts as prescribed by law. [Id., sec. 9.]

Art. 2849j. Appeals.—All appeals from the decisions of the county superintendent of public instruction shall lie to the county school trustees, and from the said county school trustees to the state superintendent of public instruction, and thence to the state board of education. [Id., sec. 10.]

Art. 2849k. Meetings; expenses of trustees.—The county school trustees shall hold meetings once each quarter on the first Monday in August, in November, in February and in May, or as soon thereafter as practicable, and at other times when called by the president of the board of trustees. Each county school trustee shall be paid his actual expenses incurred in attending the meetings provided for in this section, such payments to be made from the general fund of the county, by warrants drawn on order of the commissioners court after approval of itemized accounts, properly sworn to; provided, that no member shall receive more than three ($3.00) dollars per day, nor more than twenty-four ($24.00) dollars during any scholastic year. [Id., sec. 11.]

Art. 2849*l*. Qualifications of trustees; organization; president.—The county school trustees shall be qualified voters and freeholders of the precinct or county from which they are elected. They shall be of good moral character, able to read and speak the English language, shall be persons of good education and shall be in sympathy with public free schools. Four of the county school trustees shall each reside in different commissioners precincts, and a majority of them shall reside in common school districts. Within twenty days after their election and qualification, the county school trustees shall meet and organize by electing one of their number president. The county school trustees shall be elected and shall qualify in the same manner as other county officers are elected and qualified. [Id., sec. 12.]

Art. 2849m. Vacancies; quorum.—All vacancies in the office of county school trustees shall be filled by election by the remaining county school trustees. Three of the county school trustees shall constitute a quorum, and all questions shall be decided by a majority vote. [Id., sec. 13.]

Art. 2849n. Appropriation; expenditures, etc., to be itemized and reported, etc.—The sum of fifty thousand ($50,000.00) dollars, or such part thereof as is necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any money in the state treasury, not otherwise appropriated, for the year ending August 31, 1912, and fifty thousand ($50,000.00) dollars, or such part thereof as is necessary, for the year ending August 31, 1913, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of section 3 of this Act [Art. 2849c]. The expenditure of all money granted under the provisions of this Act, together with the sum furnished by the board of trustees of the high school for the same purpose, shall be itemized and reported under oath to the state superintendent of public instruction by the treasurers, or depositories, of the board of trustees of the high schools receiving aid under the provisions of this Act. [Id., sec. 14.]

Art. 2849*o*. Laws repealed.—All laws and parts of laws in conflict with this Act are hereby repealed. [Id., sec. 15.]

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

INDEPENDENT DISTRICTS

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 2850. Application to county judge for elections.—At any time hereafter, it shall be lawful for any town or village which may desire to incorporate for school purposes only, to make application to the county judge for the organization of an independent school district, as provided for by the general statutes governing such cases, and for the election of a board of trustees, as provided in this title, and on receipt of such application it shall be the duty of the county judge to proceed as required in articles .... and .... of this chapter. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 172.]

See Art. 2849f.

Election.—This law was passed for the purpose of providing a uniform method for the election of school trustees subject to the exceptions therein named. In order to make the application of the law general, it was necessary to provide for all elections, including first elections when independent school districts are to be formed. This section (10) makes such provision and requires the county judge to order an election to be conducted in accordance with section 3 upon application of the inhabitants of the proposed district for the purpose of determining the proposed incorporation and the election of a board of trustees. Only one application and one order is contemplated by the law. It is the usual method to submit the questions of organization and the election of officers at the same time. Hillebrandt v. Devine, 31 C. A. 402, 72 S. W. 267.

Art. 2851. Incorporation.—A town or village authorized to incorporate under this chapter, or having two hundred inhabitants or over, may form an incorporation for free school purposes only, which may include within its bounds a town or village incorporated for municipal purposes, the same not having assumed control of the public schools within its limits; provided, that the territory so incorporated for free school purposes shall not exceed an area of twenty-five square miles; provided, that said corporation shall be laid out in a square as near as is practicable with reference to the location of the school building; and, when so desiring an election may be held under the provisions of this title and chapter; and if, at such election, a majority of the votes cast be in favor of the incorporation, it shall be the duty of the county judge to make return thereof, and cause a record of the result of such election to be made, the same as provided for by articles 1040 and 1041, Revised Statutes of Texas, upon which entry being made, such town or village shall be regarded as duly incorporated for the purpose of establishing and maintaining free schools therein, and shall, upon notice to the state board of education by the board of trustees hereinafter provided for, receive such pro rata share of the available school fund as its scholastic population may entitle it to. And provided also that all school incorporations hereafter formed under the provisions of this chapter shall have the right to levy and collect taxes and issue bonds for school purposes, the same as school incorporations heretofore formed. When a town or village is included in a corporation for free school purposes, and such town or village shall afterwards be incorporated for municipal purposes, it shall not thereby acquire a right to take the control of the schools within its limits out of the hands of the school corporation. [Id. sec. 149.]

See Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

Conclusiveness of finding of county judge.—Under the statute for the creation of a school district, requiring satisfactory proof to be made to the county judge before ordering an election on the question of incorporating territory as such a district, of the presence in such territory of a town of 200 inhabitants, his finding thereof, for review of which no provision is made, is conclusive, especially in the absence of allegation of fraud on his part. Wilson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 639.

Election.—That a judge of an independent school district election was disqualified by reason of being a candidate for trustee held not to render his subsequent election, nor the acts of the board of trustees in which he participated, void. State v. Buchanan, 37 C. A. 325, 83 S. W. 723.

The constitutional provision requiring an elector to vote in the precinct of his residence held not to forbid an elector residing in one county to vote in another on the question of the incorporation of an independent school district, and, if incorporated, on all questions affecting the interests of the school. Parks v. West (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 466.

The use of the word "bond" instead of "coupon bond," in an order for a school district election, held not to invalidate the election, the issuance of bonds providing for the payment of interest on their face being a substantial compliance with the statute authorizing the trustees to issue "coupon bonds." Id.

Educational corporations.—See Title 25, Chapter 12.

Management on dissolution of city or town.—See Title 22, Chapter 16.

School purposes.—This exercise of the power granted the inhabitants of such territory is unrestricted when exercised in the manner prescribed by the legislature. State v. Norwood, 24 C. A. 24, 57 S. W. 876.

This article was amended by the act of 1897, and the incorporation of a town or village with 200 or more inhabitants is authorized by said act for school purposes only, and provides that the area shall not exceed 25 square miles. State v. Buchanan, 37 C. A. 325, 83 S. W. 725.

Boundaries.—This article contains no inhibition against including within the territory of the corporation portions of school districts established under the general school law in force at the time of incorporation for school purposes only. State v. Norwood, 24 C. A. 24, 57 S. W. 876.

An attempt to incorporate territory 75 or 80 per cent. of which is agricultural and pastoral land adjacent to the town is clearly illegal and renders the attempt to incorporate the town invalid. Judd v. State, 25 C. A. 418, 62 S. W. 545.

Section 2 of the Act of 1901 (Supp. 1904, p. 92), confers upon such towns and villages as are mentioned in this article the power to incorporate for school purposes without regard to county lines not exceeding an area of twenty-five square miles. Parks v. West (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 469.

A court of equity will not interfere to prevent an independent school district from encroaching upon the territory of a public school district where the amount taken is less than one and one-half square miles and the number of school children in the territory taken is not stated. Brewer v. Hall (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 789.

On the abandonment of an independent high school district formed from territory in different counties, the commissioners' courts of the various counties were not authorized to distribute the territory in their counties into common school districts, and that a town included in an independent high school district has not the power to take itself out of the district and resume control of its own schools. Gillespie v. Lightfoot, 103 T. 359, 127 S. W. 799.

The authority to incorporate for school purposes does not confer the privilege of extending boundaries so as to absorb and include remote rural school districts that are no part of the original town. Whether the incorporated territory is excessive and unreasonable in its limits is to be determined upon the facts in each particular case. School Incorporation v. School District, 81 T. 148, 16 S. W. 742; Ewing v. State, 81 T. 172, 16 S. W. 872; State v. Eidson, 76 T. 302, 13 S. W. 263, 7 L. R. A. 733.

The petition for incorporation failing to give the boundaries, the proceeding is void. Furrh v. State, 6 C. A. 221, 24 S. W. 1126.

A village incorporated under the free school law, which lies wholly in one county, has no power to include within its corporate limits territory lying in another county. Pontotoc Independent School Corp. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 53.

The constitution of the state does not expressly or by implication inhibit the legislature to authorize the incorporation of independent school districts having territory in more than one county. Parks v. West (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 466.

An independent school district is not exempted from change by the legislature. Davis v. Parks (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 449.

Where there was no law authorizing the change of boundaries of an independent district, the fact that the president of the school board of the district was notified and heard in proceedings to detach a part of the district and place it in the district of another county would not validate the change; it being invalid for want of authority. Id.

Survey.—Inaccuracy in field notes of a survey for the creation of a school district, and in the map arising from the surveyor's misunderstanding what the point was to which he had surveyed, and which may be cured by rejecting as surplusage the words "to the S. E. corner of R.'s survey," does not render void the incorporation. Wilson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 639.

A call for the H. survey No. 250 in the field notes of a school district as actually entered on the minutes of the commissioners' court, which would exclude from the district the H. survey No. 251, described and called for in the petition for formation of the district, as situated in the southwestern corner of the desired district, and necessary to the district in order to conform to the calls for distance along its west line, and with the rectangular outline of the district as prayed for and as required by law, will be considered as evidently a clerical mistake. Camp v. Hawley Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 486.

Collateral attack on organization.—Where a school district is organized under authority of this statute, its corporate existence and the rights of its trustees to exercise their functions cannot be collaterally attacked on allegations of mere irregularity in its organization. Wilson v. Brown (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 639.

If the organization of an independent school district was not wholly invalid, it could be attacked for irregularities in its organization only in a direct proceeding brought for that purpose and not in a collateral proceeding. Davis v. Parks (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 449.

Estoppel.—One who executed his note to a municipal corporation organized for school purposes is estopped from denying its right to maintain an action thereon. Scheusler v. Town of Mason (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 42.

Action against taxpayer.—Under this law (Arts. 2851–2861) in a suit by the trustees against a delinquent taxpayer, it is no defense that the defendant as treasurer of the district, had paid out on vouchers issued by the board of trustees more than he had received. Massie v. Palo Pinto Ind. School Dist., 47 C. A. 349, 105 S. W. 821, 822.

Valuation for assessment.—The trustees of an independent school district organized under this section cannot assess property for taxation for school purposes at a higher valuation than assessments for state and county purposes. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

Former law.—The act of 1893 was divided by the revisers of 1895 into articles 616a and 616b. It purported by its title to amend article 541a of the Revised Statutes, which was adopted by act of 1881, and amended in 1891. The act of 1891 is improperly retained as article 3994, Rev. St. 1895. The act of 1897 amends such article 616a, without noticing that 616a and 616b were enacted as one article.

It is held under the act of April 10, 1891, that the town or village need not be in the center of the proposed district. State v. Allegree, 22 S. W. 289, 3 C. A. 437.

Articles 3994 and 3999, Rev. St. 1895, were superseded by the act of the first called session of 1900 providing for a uniform method of selecting school trustees in independent school districts. Hillebrandt v. Devine, 31 C. A. 402, 72 S. W. 267.

Art. 2852. Board of trustees.—It shall be the duty of the county judge to order an election of seven school trustees for such town or village so incorporated for school purposes, who shall be elected in the same manner and at the same time, and whose term of office shall be the same as that of trustees of districts. [Id. sec. 160.]

See Art. 2849f.

Repeal of other provisions.—School Law, § 160 [Art. 2852], held not to impliedly repeal section 57 [Art. 2827]. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

Art. 2853. Powers of the board.—The trustees elected in accordance with the preceding article shall be vested with the full management and control of the free schools of such incorporated town or village, and shall in general be vested with all the powers, rights and duties in regard to the establishment and maintaining of free schools, including the powers and manner of taxation for free school purposes that are conferred by the laws of this state upon the council or board of aldermen of incorporated cities and towns. [Id. sec. 161.]

See Hamilton v. Bowers (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 629.

Repeal or limitation of other provisions.—School Law, § 161 [Art. 2853], held not to impliedly repeal section 57 [Art. 2827]. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

School Law, § 57 [Art. 2827], under the heading "Common Schools," held to limit section 161 [Art. 2853]. Id.

Employment of teachers.—The employment of a teacher by majority of a school board is valid, though the minority opposes it. Town of Pearsall v. Woolls (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 959.

A school board may employ teachers for the school term succeeding their term of office. Id.

Authority of committee to sue.—A building committee appointed by the trustees of an independent school district held authorized to sue on the bond given by the contractor. Wright v. Jones, 55 C. A. 616, 120 S. W. 1139.

Injunction.—See notes under Art. 2823.

Amount of tax.—See notes under Art. 2827.

Art. 2854. Exclusive control.—All such towns and villages shall have exclusive control of the public free schools within their limits. [Id. sec. 152.]

Art. 2855. Districts validated.—Independent school districts heretofore organized which have not the required population in the town proper, but have such population in the whole independent district, shall be validated by this chapter. [Id. sec. 150].

General validating statute.—If for any reason an independent school district was not legally incorporated, its incorporation was made valid by this section which is a general statute. Parks v. West (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 469.

Validation by constitutional amendment.—Const. Amend. 1909, § 3a, validating school districts theretofore formed as from their formation as well as bonds issued by such districts, held to have validated school districts theretofore formed which were invalid because of want of constitutional authority to organize them, though the supreme court had theretofore declared such a district invalid for want of such authority. Davis v. Parks (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 449.

Valuation for assessment.—The trustees of an independent school district organized under this section cannot assess property for taxation for school purposes at a higher valuation than assessments for state and county purposes. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

Art. 2856. General laws apply to all districts.—All school districts, heretofore provided for by special act of the legislature, are placed under the general laws relating to incorporated school districts, and all provisions of any and all such special acts in conflict with the general laws are hereby specifically repealed, except in so far as those acts relate to the boundaries established by the acts incorporating such districts. All incorporated districts, having each fewer than one hundred and fifty scholastics according to the latest census, shall be governed in the general administration of their schools by the laws which apply to common school districts; and all funds of such districts shall be kept in the county depositories and paid out on order of the trustees approved by the county superintendent. [Id. sec. 154a. Added Acts 1909, p. 17.]

Art. 2856a. County line districts.—Independent school districts may be created, containing territory within two or more counties of the state of Texas, in the same way and manner that towns and villages are created under title 18 of the Revised Statutes of 1895 [title 22, Rev. St. 1911]; provided, that the map required by said title 18 shall show the correct location and position of the county line or county lines involved in such incorporation proceedings. Said incorporated free school district containing territory in two or more counties shall have all the rights, powers, and privileges granted under the general laws of the state to incorporations for the free school purposes only. The same modes, manners, and methods of government and procedure provided by the general law for independent school districts incorporated for free school purposes only shall govern the management and control of the incorporated school districts for free school purposes containing territory within two or more counties. [Acts 1911, p. 200, sec. 4.]

See note under Art. 2815a.

Art. 2856b. Change or abolishment of district.—All independent school districts incorporated for free school purposes within the state of Texas may be changed or abolished in the same way that is provided for the change or abolishment of a town and village or city and town, as provided in title 18 of the Revised Statutes of 1895; provided that no such district shall be diminished, changed, or abolished while it has an outstanding debt, either of bonds or otherwise, as authorized by law, against it. [Id., sec. 6.]

See note under Art. 2815a.

TAXES AND BONDS

Art. 2857. Local taxes; bonds.—Trustees of a district that has been, or may hereafter be, incorporated under general or special laws, for school purposes only, shall have power to levy and collect an annual ad valorem tax not to exceed fifty cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of taxable property of the district, for the maintenance of schools therein, and a tax not to exceed twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollars for the purchase of sites and the purchasing, construction, repairing or equipping public free school buildings within the limits of such incorporated districts; provided that the amount of maintenance tax, together with the amount of bond tax of the district, shall never exceed fifty cents on the one hundred dollars valuation of taxable property. Said trustees shall have power to issue coupon bonds of the district for building purposes, to be made payable not exceeding forty years from date, in such sums as they shall deem expedient, to bear interest not to exceed five per cent per annum; provided, that when such buildings are to be wooden the bonds herein provided for shall not run for a longer period than twenty years; provided, that the aggregate amount of bonds issued for the above named purpose shall never reach such an amount that the tax of twenty-five cents on the hundred dollars valuation of property in the district will not pay current interest and provide a sinking fund sufficient to pay the principal at maturity; and provided, further, that no such tax shall be levied and no such bonds issued until after an election shall have been held, wherein a majority of the taxpaying voters voting at said election shall have voted in favor of the levying of said tax, of the issuance of said bonds, or both, as the case may be; provided, that the specific rate of tax need not be determined in the election. [Id. sec. 154. Amended Acts 1909, p. 17.]

See Hamilton v. Bowers (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 629.

Agricultural lands.—Agricultural lands may be included, and it is immaterial that the town or village is not in or near the center of the incorporated territory. State v. Allegree, 3 C. A. 437, 22 S. W. 289.

Territory not exceeding four miles square may be included in the incorporation, regardless of whether it includes agricultural lands or not. Id.

Boundaries to be designated by petition.—To constitute a public school the provisions of the statute must be pursued. Ussery v. City of Laredo, 65 T. 406.

The boundaries of the proposed incorporation should be designated in the petition. The boundary cannot be changed in the order of the judge. Furrh v. State, 6 C. A. 221, 24 S. W. 1126.

Rate of tax.—Under this article, held, that the purpose of the election is to determine whether a district tax shall be levied for maintaining such schools, and the payment of the bonds proposed to be issued for that purpose, not to exceed the constitutional and statutory limit, and the specific rate for maintenance and bond purposes is to be fixed by the trustees within such limit. Itasca Independent School Dist. v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 1011.

Under this article, as authorized by Const. art. 7, § 3, adopted in 1908, the taxpaying voters of an independent school district may, by a majority vote, authorize the issuance of school district bonds for building purposes, and at the same election authorize a maintenance tax, the aggregate tax for both purposes not being in excess of 50 cents on the $100 valuation, and it is not necessary at such elections that the rate of tax be determined. Id.

Under this article and Art. 2841, providing that, when bonds are voted, the maintenance tax shall be reduced to the difference between the rate of the bond tax and 50 cents, it is not material to the validity of a maintenance tax and bond issue that they were voted at different times, though the tax is apportioned 25 cents on the $100 to the maintenance of schools and 25 cents to the payment of the bonds. Chambers v. Cook (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 865.

Validity of tax.—Under this article, an election to authorize such tax is not void because the order and notice of such election failed to state that the rate would be 50 cents on the $100 property valuation, or less than that amount. Itasca Independent School Dist. v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 1011.

The levy of a tax by a school district of 75 cents on the $100 valuation of property held void as in excess of the 20 cents on the $100 authorized by Const. art. 7, § 3. Hutchinson v. Patching, 103 T. 497, 129 S. W. 603.

Where the board of trustees of an independent school district in levying a tax for the maintenance of schools and for the payment of bonds fails to appoint a board of equalization or to make a separate tax roll for the benefit of the school district as required by law, the tax is invalid; the fact that each individual's name was placed on the county tax rolls, and that the county commissioners had theretofore passed on the rolls as a board of equalization, not meeting the requirements of the law. Chambers v. Cook (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 865.

Amount of tax.—See note under Art. 2827.

Validity of bonds.—Where the act authorizing a school tax is void, valid bonds cannot be issued in anticipation of a levy of taxes under the act. Patching v. Hutchison (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 878.

Art. 2858. Election to be ordered by trustees.—The election provided for in the preceding article may be ordered by the trustees on the written petition of at least twenty taxpaying voters of said town or village, at any time not less than thirty days from the date of the order; which order shall state the date and place when said election shall be held, the amount of tax to be levied, or the amount of bonds to be issued, as the case may be; and the trustees shall also name and appoint therein the manager or managers of said election, which shall be held as nearly as may be possible in conformity with the general election law of the state; provided, that, when a proposition to levy such a tax shall be defeated, no election for that purpose shall be ordered until after the expiration of one year. [Id. sec. 157.]

Requisites of petition.—The boundaries of the proposed corporation should be designated in the petition of the voters. Furrh v. State, 6 C. A. 221, 24 S. W. 1126.

There is no material difference in the requisites of the petition and order for the election. In the one the amount of the tax to be voted on must be stated; in the other the amount of the tax to be levied or the amount of the bonds to be issued. Parks v. West (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 466.

Order for election.—In independent school districts elections to determine the questions of issuing bonds and special taxation should be ordered by the school trustees. Itasca Independent School Dist. v. McElroy (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 1011.

Validity of elections.—An election by a school district to determine whether a tax should be levied and bonds issued held valid. Boesch v. Byrom, 37 C. A. 35, 83 S. W. 18.

Art. 2859. Notice of election.—Public notice of said election shall be given by the said trustees, by placing notices of the same in three different portions of such incorporated district at least twenty days before said election; which notice shall state the time and place of the election, and the amount of the tax to be levied, or the amount of bonds to be issued, or both, as the case may be. [Id. sec. 158.]

Art. 2860. Who may vote; ballots.—No person shall vote at said election unless he be a qualified voter under the constitution and laws of this state, and a taxpayer in such incorporated district; and those in favor of the levying of such tax, or the issuance of such bonds, shall write or print upon their ballots, "For the Tax," and those against the levying of such tax, or the issuance of such bonds, shall write or print on their ballot, "Against the Tax;" and due returns thereof shall be made to said trustees within ten days, and the result thereof shall be recorded by said trustees in a well bound book to be kept for that purpose. [Id. sec. 159.]

Art. 2861. Collection of taxes.—The assessor and collector of taxes of the district shall have the same power and shall perform the same duties with reference to the assessment and collection of taxes for free school purposes that are conferred by law upon the city marshal of an incorporated town or village, and he shall receive such compensation for his services as the board of trustees may allow, except in cities and towns otherwise provided for, not to exceed four per cent of the whole amount of taxes received by him; and he shall give bond in double the estimated amount of taxes coming annually into his hands, payable to the president of the board or his successors in office, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties, and that he will pay over to the treasurer of the board all the funds coming into his hands by virtue of his office as such assessor and collector; provided, that, in the enforced collection of taxes, the board of trustees shall perform the duties which now devolve in such a case upon the city council of an incorporated city or town; the president of the board of trustees shall perform the duties which devolve in such a case upon the mayor of an incorporated city or town; and the county attorney of the county in which the independent school district is located shall perform the duties which in such a case devolve upon the city attorney of an incorporated city or town under the provisions of chapter 103, General Laws, regular session, twenty-fifth legislature. [Id. sec. 166.]

Art. 2862. Assessment and collection of taxes by county officers.—When a majority of the board of trustees of an independent school district prefer to have the taxes of their district assessed and collected by the county assessor and collector, same shall be assessed and collected by said county officers, and turned over to the treasurer of the independent school district for which such taxes have been collected; provided, that the property of such districts having their taxes assessed and collected by the county assessor and collector, shall not be assessed at a greater value than that assessed for county and state purposes: provided, further, that when the county assessor and county collector are required to assess and collect the taxes of independent school districts, they shall, respectively, receive one per cent for assessing and collecting same. [Id. sec. 165.]

Controlled by Art. 2827—School Law, § 57 [Art. 2827], held to control section 165 [Arts. 2862, 2881, 2891]. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

Valuation.—Art. 2827, expressly declaring that all assessments of property for taxes under the bill shall be made at the valuation fixed for state and county purposes, being an express declaration, controls this article. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

Under this article, held that, where an assessor appointed by the school board thereunder served two years, and, upon his declining to serve longer, the board provided for the assessment by the county assessor, the appointment of the county assessor had the effect of declaring vacant the office of the assessor regularly appointed so as to make the effect of the appointment the same as if it had been made in the first instance, and render invalid assessments not based on the same valuation as that for county and state purposes. Underwood v. Childress Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 773.

Under Art. 2827, which authorizes the levying of a special tax for school purposes, with the proviso "that in all assessments of property for taxing purposes * * * the property shall be assessed at the valuation fixed for said property for state and county purposes," as amended, and this article, held, that the amendment of the act did not remove the right to have the valuation of property limited to that fixed for county and state purposes where the assessment was made by the county assessor. Id.

Change of assessment.—The right given under this article to have property assessed for school purposes by a county assessor assessed at the same valuation as that for state and county purposes, is fixed by the act of assessment which is judicial and cannot thereafter be removed by the fact that the ministerial act of collection was by other than the county collector. Underwood v. Childress Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 773.

Art. 2863. Trustees authorized to invest sinking funds.—Trustees of towns and villages that have been, or may hereafter be, incorporated for school purposes only, that have issued, or may hereafter issue, bonds under the provisions of this chapter, may, as it accumulates, invest the sinking funds in bonds of the United States, of the state of Texas, of counties of this state, or in bonds of cities and towns and independent school districts of this state, that have been approved by the attorney general. [Id. sec. 155.]

Art. 2864. Refunding bonds.—Where bonds have been legally issued, or may be hereafter issued, by any town or village incorporated for free school purposes only, new bonds, bearing the same or a less rate of interest, may be issued in conformity with this chapter in lieu thereof; provided, no election shall be necessary to authorize the issuance of such new bonds; and provided, further, that the state treasurer shall, upon order of the state board of education, exchange bonds not matured held by him for the permanent school fund for the new refunding bonds issued by the same incorporation under the provisions of this chapter, in case the rate of interest on the new bonds is not less than the rate of interest on the bonds for which they are exchanged. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 156.]

Art. 2864a. Second election to reduce tax, etc.—All incorporated school districts for free school purposes only, within the state of Texas, which have heretofore held elections wherein it has been determined by a majority vote at such elections that a tax of not exceeding 50c on the $100.00 valuation of all property within such districts shall be levied for the maintenance of public schools within such districts and subsequent to such election another election is held in such school district for the purpose of determining whether or not bonds shall be issued for school building purposes, or the equipment of school buildings and the levy of a tax sufficient to pay interest and sinking fund on such bonds, such second election shall reduce the tax authorized to be levied in the first election not to exceed 50c on the $100.00 valuation to such an amount not exceeding 25c tax on the $100.00 valuation of all property within said district as may be necessary to raise funds to pay interest and sinking fund on such bonds so long as such bonds are an outstanding obligation against such district; provided that in no event the total tax authorized for such districts shall exceed 50c on the $100.00 valuation of property contained in such district, and in no event shall the tax of 25c on the $100.00 valuation for the purpose of paying interest and sinking fund on outstanding bonds of such a district be reduced because of the maintenance tax blow [below] such an amount as is necessary to raise a sufficient sum to pay interest and sinking fund on such outstanding bonds. [Acts 1911, p. 200, sec. 5.]

See note under Art. 2815a.

CHANGE OF BOUNDARIES

Art. 2865. Extension of boundaries.—Whenever the territory heretofore incorporated, or which may hereafter be incorporated, for free school purposes, shall contain less than twenty-five square miles, and thereafter the majority of the inhabitants, qualified to vote for members of the legislature, of any territory adjoining the limits of the town or village so incorporated, shall desire such territory to be added to and become a part of such incorporated town or village for free school purposes only, and a majority of such qualified voters sign a petition to that effect, any three of such qualified voters may file with the board of trustees of such incorporated town or village the said petition, making affidavit of the facts set forth in said petition, fully describing by metes and bounds the territory proposed to be annexed and showing its location with reference to the existing territory of the town or village already incorporated; provided, that said territory proposed to be added must be contiguous to one line of said corporation, and upon filing of said petition, affidavits and descriptions, with the president of the board of trustees, it shall be his duty to submit the same to the board, and, if upon investigation by the board it is found that the proposed addition will not increase the corporate limits so that the whole, when so increased, will exceed twenty-five square miles, then the said board of trustees, by resolution duly entered upon its minutes, may receive such proposed territory as an addition to, and become a part of, the corporate limits of such town or village; a copy of which resolution, containing a description of the added territory, shall be filed for record in the county clerk's office of the county in which said town or village is situated, after which the territory so received shall be a part of said incorporated town or village; and the inhabitants thereof shall thenceforth be entitled to all the rights and privileges, and subject to the same liabilities of taxation as other citizens, and all property within said limits shall thenceforth be subject to such taxation as may have been, or may hereafter be, provided by said incorporation for free school purposes only. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 153.]

See Crabb v. Celeste Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 890; Id., 105 T. 194, 146 S. W. 528, 39 L. R. A. (N. S.) 601.

Enlargement.—An election held to decide whether the school district should be enlarged before the law authorizing enlargement went into effect is void. Boesch v. Byrom, 37 C. A. 35, 83 S. W. 19.

But the election of a board of seven trustees, held under the old law and on the day also prescribed in the new law and in the enlarged district, was not invalid, though held before the law enlarging the district went into effect. Id.

Certain proceedings to add territory to a school district, though irregular, held a de facto annexation which could only be questioned by the state in a direct proceeding. Crabb v. Celeste Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 890.

The determination of a school board that a petition to add territory to the district was signed by a majority of the persons qualified to vote for members of the legislature, within the territory sought to be added, held not subject to collateral attack. Id.

A petition to add property to a school district purported to have been sworn to the day after the board acted thereon, and that a copy of the resolution granting the petition was not filed in the county clerk's office, held not to render the proceeding void. Id.

Failure of a board of school trustees to file a resolution containing a description of added territory, for record with the county clerk, may be cured by a nunc pro tunc order. Id.

Where a petition to annex territory to a school district described the territroy to be annexed by metes and bounds, the proceedings were not void, because the resolution granting the petition did not give the boundaries of the annexed territory. Id.

Property annexed to a school district held not exempted from school taxes levied therein, by reason of defects, curable nunc pro tunc, remaining uncorrected. Id.

Additional territory may be taken in by an independent school district by a petition signed by a bare majority of those inhabitants of the new territory who are qualified to vote for members of the legislature. Crabb v. Celeste Independent School Dist., 105 T. 194, 146 S. W. 528, 39 L. R. A. (N. S.) 601.

Clerical mistake.—A call for the H. survey No. 250 in the field notes of a school district as actually entered on the minutes of the commissioners' court, which would exclude from the district the H. survey No. 251, described and called for in the petition for formation of the district, as situated in the southwestern corner of the desired district, and necessary to the district in order to conform to the calls for distance along its west line and with the rectangular outline of the district as prayed for and as required by law, will be considered as evidently a clerical mistake. Camp v. Hawley Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 486.

Art. 2866. Change in boundaries by commissioners' court.—The commissioners' court of any county shall have the authority to change the boundaries of any independent district situated in said county, when in the judgment of said court the public good demands such change; provided, that, before any change is made in the boundary lines of any independent district, the president of the board of trustees of the independent district to be affected by the proposed change shall be notified, and said board of trustees shall have the right to be heard in case there is opposition to the change; provided, further, that this provision shall apply only to school districts incorporated for school purposes only; and, provided, further, that no change shall be made that would reduce the total value of taxable property in any independent district against which there are outstanding bonds legally issued. [Id. sec. 52.]

See Art. 2849f.

Boundaries.—See notes under Art. 2851.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Validation of invalid district.—An independent high school district the formation of which was invalid under a supreme court decision, but which was validated by a subsequent amendment to the constitution, held to be valid from its formation. Gillespie v. Lightfoot, 103 T. 359, 127 S. W. 799.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

EXCLUSIVE CONTROL BY CITIES AND TOWNS—INDEPENDENT DISTRICTS

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 2867. City or town may assume control of schools.—Any city or town in this state may acquire the exclusive control of the public free schools within its limits. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 134.]

Effect of dissolution of municipal corporations.—See Title 22, Chapter 16.

Application to cities.—The provisions of this chapter apply as well to cities of ten thousand inhabitants and over as to others. Werner v. Galveston, 72 T. 22, 7 S. W. 726; 12 S. W. 59. See Graham v. City of Greenville, 67 T. 62, 2 S. W. 742; Junction City v. Trustees, 81 T. 146, 16 S. W. 742.

Art. 2868. Same.—Any city or town which has heretofore, under the act of March 15, 1875, or any subsequent law, assumed control of the public free schools within its limits, and has continued to exercise the same until the present time, or may hereafter determine so to do by a majority vote of the property taxpayers of said city or town voting at an election held for that purpose, may have exclusive control of the public free schools within its limits. [Id. sec. 133.]

Control of fund from bonds.—Under this article, Art. 2872, which provides that in such cities the title to property held for the benefit of the public free schools shall be vested in the board of trustees, and it shall have the exclusive control of such property, Art. 2873, providing that any houses or lands held in trust by any city for public free school purposes may be sold for investment in more desirable property by the board of trustees, with the consent of the state board of education, Art. 2874, providing that cities which have control of their public free schools may provide for buildings therefor, and Art. 2882, which provides that all funds arising from the collection of special taxes in such city or town for public free school purposes shall be by the assessor and collector turned over directly to the treasurer of the board of trustees, held, that these statutes did not give a board of trustees the exclusive right to the possession and disposition of funds arising from bonds authorized by a city for the erection and repair of schoolhouses. Hamilton v. Bowers (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 629.

Conflict with charter.—Special charter of the city of Palestine, article 2, § 3, provides that all realty, including public school buildings acquired by the city, shall vest in the city. Article 4, § 7, required the superintendent of public buildings to superintend the erection and repair of all public buildings, and have charge of the public schoolhouses; and article 13, § 19, provides that all laws in conflict with this act are repealed. Held, that the charter conflicted with, so as to repeal, these articles, in effect placing the title of all public school property in the board of school trustees, notwithstanding article 11, § 6, of the charter, providing that all laws now in force pertaining to the public free schools are retained in full force, and that the schools shall be maintained and controlled as heretofore, since that provision relates only to the laws relating to the "management and control" of public schools. Hamilton v. Bowers (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 629.

Art. 2869. Election to determine question.—The mayor of said city or town shall, upon the written application of not less than fifty of the qualified electors of such city or town, order, within twenty days of such application, an election by the qualified electors of such city or town, to be conducted as other municipal elections, to decide, by a majority of the votes cast by the qualified electors of such city or town at such election, whether such city or town shall acquire the exclusive control of the public free schools and institutions of learning within its limits; provided, that one election, and no more, shall be held hereafter in any one calendar year to determine whether such city shall acquire the exclusive control of the public free schools within its limits. [Id. sec. 135.]

Art. 2870. Shall receive pro rata of school funds.—Such city or town, after notice to the state board of education that it has determined to assume control of the public free schools within its limits, shall receive such pro rata of the available school fund as its scholastic population may entitle it to. [Id. sec. 139.]

Art. 2871. General laws shall govern.—Schools thus organized and provided for by incorporated cities and towns shall be subject to the general laws, so far as the same are applicable; but each city or town having control of schools within its limits shall constitute a separate school district, and may provide for the organization of schools and the appropriation of its school funds in such manner as may be best suited to its population and condition. [Id. sec. 144.]

Art. 2872. Property vested in trustees.—In every city or town in this state which has assumed, or may hereafter assume, the exclusive control and management of public free schools within its limits, and which has determined, or may hereafter determine, that such exclusive control and management of the public free schools within its limits shall be in a board of trustees, and organized under an act of the sixteenth legislature, approved April 3, 1879, and acts amendatory thereto, the title to all houses, lands and other property owned, held, set apart, or in any way dedicated to the use and benefit of the public free schools of such city or town, including property heretofore acquired, as well as that which may hereafter be acquired, shall be vested in the board of trustees and their successors in office, in trust for the use and benefit of the public free schools in such city or town; and such board of trustees shall have and exercise the exclusive control and management of such school property, and shall have and exercise the exclusive possession thereof for the purposes aforesaid; provided, that where trustees are named other than the municipal corporation itself, in any instrument conveying, donating, bequeathing or devising any money or other property, real or personal, for the benefit of any city or town, this law shall not interfere, in any manner, with the title or authority of such trustees to or over such money or other property. And such board of trustees shall constitute a body corporate, and shall have full power to protect the title, possession and use of all such property within the limits of such city or town, and may bring and maintain such suit or suits in law or in equity in any court of competent jurisdiction when necessary to recover the title or possession of any such property that may be adversely held or seized, or to prevent any trespass upon or injury to such property; provided, that the provisions of this article shall not apply to lands belonging to the state upon which houses for school purposes have been built without authority from the state. [Id. sec. 136.]

Former law.—Construing this article in the light of the public policy evinced by constitutional and statutory provisions referred to in the opinion, the conclusion announced that it was not intended by it to give to such towns as should assume control of their public schools the right not only to buy building sites and erect schoolhouses, but also to create a bonded indebtedness in furtherance of that object. If such towns should be regarded as possessing the power to create a bonded indebtedness in order to buy land and build educational structures thereon, no limitation could be found in the statutes upon the amount of debt they might contract for such a purpose. This would contravene the policy of the state, as shown in legislation regarding cities organized under general laws, whose power to impose taxes is carefully restricted. The power to borrow money or to create a debt without limit is not a necessary incident of the power conferred on a town corporation to buy grounds and build schoolhouses, and cannot be implied when its exercise by larger municipal corporations is only authorized under express limitations by organic and statute law. The special charter granted the town of Waxahachie on the 28th of April, 1871, conferred no greater power regarding the creation of debt to purchase ground and build schoolhouses than did the general law on towns incorporated under it. Hitchcock v. Galveston, 96 U. S. 341, and Galveston v. Loonie, 54 T. 517, reviewed and distinguished from this case. The proviso in Art. 879, limiting the amount of the bonded debt of cities, includes every character of bonded indebtedness. Waxahachie v. Brown, 67 T. 519, 4 S. W. 207.

Where a city, prior to act of 1879, had decided to assume control of schools, the mayor after such act has no power to call an election to determine whether such schools shall be under control of a board of trustees or of the city council. State v. Callaghan, 91 T. 313, 43 S. W. 12.

Towns and cities are excepted from the provisions of the act of 1900, which have chosen their school trustees under the provisions of this article. Hillebrandt v. Devine, 31 C. A. 402, 72 S. W. 267.

Application.—This statute evidently refers to property set apart to the free schools and not to property out of which the net proceeds of a sale have been set apart to the schools. Board of School Trustees v. Galveston, H. & S. A. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 150.

Control of fund from bonds.—See notes under Art. 2868.
Conflict with charter.—See notes under Art. 2868.

Art. 2873. Sale of school property.—Any houses or lands held in trust by any city or town for public free school purposes may be sold for the purpose of investing in more convenient and desirable school property, with the consent of the state board of education, by the board of trustees of such city or town; and, in such case, the president of the school board shall execute his deed to the purchaser for the same, reciting the resolution of the state board of education giving consent thereto and the resolution of the board of trustees authorizing such sale. [Id. sec. 146.]

Control of fund from bonds.—See notes under Art. 2868
Conflict with charter.—See notes under Art. 2868.

Art. 2874. Schoolhouse bonds to be issued by city council.—Towns or cities which have assumed, or may hereafter assume control and management of the public free schools within their limits may also provide for building sites and buildings for such public free schools and institutions of learning, in the manner, and under the restrictions and limitations provided in article [925] Revised Statutes, relating to cities and towns. [Id. sec. 147.]

Conflict with charter.—See notes under Art. 2868.
Control of fund from bonds.—See notes under Art. 2868.

CITY SCHOOL TAXES

Article 2875. Local maintenance tax.—After a city or town has assumed control of the public free schools within its limits, the council or board of aldermen shall also submit the question to the property taxpayers as to whether or not the additional amount as provided for hereinafter shall be raised by taxation. [Id. sec. 140.]

Art. 2876. Two-thirds majority necessary.—If, at an election held for that purpose at which none but property taxpayers, as shown by the last assessment rolls, who are qualified voters of such city or town, shall vote, two-thirds of those voting shall vote in favor thereof, such an amount shall be raised by taxation not to exceed one-half of one per cent, in addition to the pro rata of the available school fund received from the state, as may be necessary to conduct the schools for ten months in the year. [Id. sec. 141.]

Art. 2877. Election for local tax.—The city or town council, or board of aldermen of any city, town or village, whether incorporated under any act of the congress of the republic, or the legislature of the state of Texas, or under any act of incorporation whatever, shall have power by ordinance to annually levy and collect not exceeding one-half of one per cent ad valorem taxes for the support and maintenance of public free schools in the city or town where such city or town is a separate and independent school district; provided, that no such tax shall be levied until an election shall have been held at which none but property taxpayers, as shown by the last assessment rolls, who are qualified voters of such city or town, shall vote, and two-thirds of those voting shall vote in favor thereof. The proposition submitted may be for a tax not exceeding one-half of one per cent, or may be for a specific per cent. One election, and no more, shall be held hereafter in any one calendar year to ascertain whether a school tax shall be levied. If the proposition is carried, the school tax shall be continued to be annually levied and collected for at least two years, and thereafter, unless it be discontinued at an election held to determine whether the tax shall be continued or discontinued, at the request of fifty property taxpayers of such city or town. When the tax is continued, no election to discontinue it shall be held for two years; when the tax is discontinued, no election to levy a tax shall be held during the same year. [Id. sec. 142.]

Redemption of bonds out of tax levy.—Charter of municipal corporation held not to require city council to make provisions for the redemption of bonds issued for purchasing grounds and building schools out of the tax of one-half of 1 per cent. authorized to be levied for the support of the schools. Kennedy v. Birch (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 593.

Art. 2878. Levy of tax.—If the vote of the taxpayers is in favor of said tax, then it shall be the duty of the council or board of aldermen, annually thereafter, to levy upon the taxable property in the limits of such city or town, in accordance with the usual assessment of taxes for municipal purposes, such additional tax as may be necessary for the support of the schools for ten months in the year, not to exceed one-half of one per cent. [Id. sec. 143.]

Art. 2879. Same.—In a city or town that has assumed the exclusive control of the public free schools within its limits and has decided, under the laws providing therefor, that a special tax shall be levied for the support of such public free schools, the mayor and council or board of aldermen of such city or town shall annually assess and levy such tax by ordinance duly passed and approved in the same manner as is required in the assessment and levy of taxes for general purposes in such city or town. In a city or town which has voted upon, and directed, the levy of a special tax not exceeding one-half of one per cent, the mayor or council or board of aldermen of such city or town shall annually levy such rate of tax for public school purposes, not exceeding one-half of one per cent, as shall be sufficient for the support of the public free schools for the term as required by law; but in a city or town that has voted upon, and decided, at an election held for that purpose, that a specified rate of tax shall be assessed and levied in such city or town for the support of its public free schools, the mayor and council or board of aldermen of such city or town shall have no discretion in fixing the rate at which such tax shall be levied, but shall assess and levy the same at the rate fixed in the proposition as submitted and adopted by the qualified voters of such city or town at the election held for that purpose. [Id. sec. 138.]

Legislative authority.—A city must have authority from the legislature to control its public schools before an election can be held to determine whether a tax can be levied for the support of the schools. City of El Paso v. Conklin, 91 T. 531, 44 S. W. 988.

Ordinance.—In the levy of a tax by virtue of an election it must be done under an ordinance duly passed for that purpose. Where a mode is prescribed by which the city is authorized to do a certain thing that mode must be pursued. Miller v. State, 44 Cr. R. 99, 69 S. W. 525.

Validity of tax.—A city having assumed control of its public free schools, a tax levied for their support was valid. Nalle v. City of Austin (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 780.

Art. 2880. Trustees determine annual rate.—In a city or town that may now or hereafter constitute independent school districts, and where a special tax for school purposes has been voted by the people, or provided by special charter, not exceeding one-half of one per cent, it shall be the duty of said board of trustees to determine what amount of said tax, within the limit voted by the people or fixed by special charter, will be necessary for the maintenance of the schools for each current year; and it shall become the duty of the city council, upon the requisition of the said board of trustees, to annually levy and collect said tax, as other taxes are levied and collected; and said tax, when collected, shall be placed at the disposal of the said school board, by paying over monthly to the treasurer of said board the amount collected for the support of the schools of such district, to be used for the maintenance and support of the public free schools of such independent district. [Id. sec. 168.]

Duty of city council.—Where a city's schools are under the control of a board of trustees, and the board determines in its discretion the amount of taxes which should be levied, within the authorized limit, for the ensuing year, the city council has no discretion but to levy the amount so fixed by the board. City Council of Crockett v. Board of Trustees, 44 C. A. 428, 98 S. W. 890, 891.

Art. 2881. Assessment and collection.—In an independent school district constituted of a city or town having a city assessor and collector of taxes, such assessor and collector of taxes shall assess and collect the taxes for school purposes; provided, that in a city or town having an assessor and collector of taxes, the levy of taxes for school purposes shall be based upon the same assessment of property upon which the levy for other city purposes is based. It is further provided, that, in such a city or town, the assessor and collector of taxes shall receive no other compensation for collecting school taxes than the compensation paid him for assessing and collecting city taxes; and taxes for school purposes in such a city or town shall be assessed and collected as other city taxes are assessed and collected. [Id. sec. 165.]

Controlled by Art. 2827.—School Law, § 57 [Art. 2827] held to control section 165 [Arts. 2862, 2881, 2891]. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

Valuation.—Under Art. 2827, which authorizes the levying of a special tax for school purposes, with the proviso "that in all assessments of property for taxing purposes * * * the property shall be assessed at the valuation fixed for said property for state and county purposes," as amended, and this article, held, that the amendment of the act did not remove the right to have the valuation of property limited to that fixed for county and state purposes where the assessment was made by the county assessor. Underwood v. Childress Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 773.

Art. 2882. Funds to be turned over to school treasurer.—The pro rata of the available school fund of the state appropriated and set apart to such city or town shall be, by the proper officer or department of the state, paid over directly to such treasurer of the board of trustees, who shall execute the proper receipts therefor; and all moneys and funds arising from the assessment and collection of any special tax in such city or town for public free school purposes shall be by the assessor and collector, or other proper officer of such city or town whose duty it is to collect the taxes, turned over directly to the treasurer of the board of trustees of such city or town, who shall execute and deliver his receipt to such collector; and the mayor and council or board of aldermen of such city or town shall have no power or control of such funds. [Id. sec. 137.]

Fund apportioned by state.—County school superintendent has nothing to do with the state school fund apportioned to independent school districts because they receive it directly from the state. Wester v. Oge, 29 C. A. 615, 68 S. W. 1005, 1006.

Control of fund from bonds.—See note under Art. 2868.

Art. 2883. Extension of city limits for school purposes.—Any city or town that has taken charge of the public free schools within its limits, or that shall hereafter take charge of the same, may, by ordinance, extend its corporation lines for school purposes only, on a petition signed by a majority of the resident qualified voters of the territory, which is to be taken into said city or town for school purposes only, and recommended by a majority vote of the trustees of the public free schools of said city or town; provided, that the proposed change shall not deprive the scholastic children of the remaining part of the common school district or districts which may be affected by the proposed change, of the opportunity of attendance upon school. The added territory shall bear its pro rata part according to taxable values of any school debt or debts that may be owed or contracted by said city or town to which it shall have been added, and shall not bear any part of any other debt that may be owed or contracted by such city or town. The property of the added territory shall bear its pro rata part of all school taxes, but of no other taxes. The added territory shall not affect the city's debts or business relations in any manner whatever, except for school purposes as provided above. The officers whose duty it is to assess and collect school taxes within the city limits shall also assess and collect school taxes within the territory added for school purposes as herein provided. [Id. sec. 148.]

Suit.—Under this article the city is authorized to collect the taxes therein by suit. City of Eagle Lake v. Lakeside Sugar Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 709.

Constitutionality.—This article is not in conflict with Const. art. 11, § 10, which provides that the legislature may constitute any city or town a separate and independent school district. City of Eagle Lake v. Lakeside Sugar Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 709.

Extension.—Under this article, which provides that whenever a majority of the inhabitants of any territory adjoining a city to the extent of one-half mile in width shall vote in favor of becoming a part of the city the city may annex such territory, any extension of a city's limits for school purposes, though it embraces land more than one-half mile in width, is authorized, if it complies with the condition preserving the right of attendance at school. City of Eagle Lake v. Lakeside Sugar Refining Co. (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 709.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Special act creating district.—Irregularities in special act creating independent school district enacted within legislature's power held subject to attack only upon suit by the state itself in quo warranto proceedings. Snyder v. Baird Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 472.

Collateral inquiry as to corporate existence.—The corporate existence of an independent school district, recognized under statute, cannot be inquired into in a collateral proceeding. City of El Paso v. Ruckman, 92 T. 86, 46 S. W. 25.

City superintendent, suit for possession of office.—The position of superintendent of public schools of the city of Houston is an office, and the lawful incumbent thereof may sue to recover the office or its emoluments. Kimbrough v. Barnett, 93 T. 301, 55 S. W. 120.

It was not necessary that a claimant of the office of the superintendent of public schools of a city present his claim to the state superintendent of public instruction before bringing suit for possession of the office. Id.

Powers of trustees under special charter.—Under the special charter of 1895 of the city of Sherman, the board of school trustees, when organized, became vested with exclusive control of the city schools, including the power to fix the superintendent's salary. Board of Trustees v. City of Sherman, 91 T. 188, 42 S. W. 546.

Charter of city construed, and held, that the board of school trustees had power to fix salary of superintendent of schools, and order payment thereof. Board of School Trustees v. City of Sherman (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 615.

Office of member of board as property.—The office of member of board of education of a city held not property, within the state and federal constitutions. Bonner v. Belsterling (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1154.

Election to issue bonds for school purposes.—A representation by the board of education of Dallas after the ordering of an election for the issuance of bonds for school purposes held not to control its action in disbursing the funds obtained by the issuance of the bonds approved at the election. Ardrey v. Zang (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1114.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

INDEPENDENT DISTRICT SCHOOL TRUSTEES

Article 2884. Acts of certain boards validated.—The official acts and proceedings of, and contracts, bonds issued and authorized to be issued by boards of trustees in independent school districts heretofore elected and appointed and operating under former acts of the legislature of this state, and particularly under an act approved March 30, 1899, entitled "An act to provide a uniform method of electing school trustees in independent districts," are hereby validated, ratified and confirmed. The provisions of this title concerning trustees shall not apply to the city of Fort Worth, nor to the city of Dallas. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 173.]

Art. 2885. Change from appointment to election in cities.—Towns and cities which have heretofore chosen their trustees by appointment of the city council or board of aldermen, under the provisions of article 4018, Revised Statutes, [1895,] shall be authorized to continue to choose their trustees in this manner; that is, by the appointment of the board of aldermen of said city or town; provided, that seven trustees shall be appointed at first, four of whom shall serve for one year, and three for two years; and, at regular intervals of one year thereafter, four trustees and three trustees, alternately, shall be appointed each year for a term of two years; and, further provided, that on a petition of twenty-five per cent of the voters of any such city or town, to be ascertained by the ballots cast at the last regular city election in said city or town, the mayor of such city or town shall order an election to determine whether or not the school affairs of such city or town shall be directed by a school board elected in accordance with the provisions of this chapter; and, in case of an affirmative vote, an election shall at once be ordered by the said mayor, for the purpose of choosing a school board consisting of seven trustees, as provided in article [2886]. [Id. sec. 171.]

Art. 2886. Board of seven trustees.—In each independent district that shall be hereafter organized, the county judge of the county in which said independent district is situated shall order an election for seven trustees, who shall constitute the school board of such independent district, and all of whom shall serve without compensation. [Id. sec. 162.]

Art. 2887. Board of school trustees shall order elections.—All elections shall be ordered by the board of trustees of each independent school district; and such order shall be made at least ten days before the date of election; and a notice of the order shall be posted at three different places in the district. The board of school trustees, at the time of ordering such election, shall appoint persons to hold the election, and shall designate the places where the polls shall be open.

All such elections shall be held in accordance with the state law governing elections; and returns of such elections shall be made to the board of school trustees in the same manner as election returns are made under such state law.

The board of school trustees shall canvass such returns, declare the result of such election, and issue certificates of election to the persons shown by such returns to be elected. [Id. sec. 164.]

Art. 2888. Who shall be declared elected.—All the qualified voters of each independent district shall be entitled to vote at a trustees' election; and the seven candidates receiving the largest number of votes at the first election held hereunder shall be entitled to serve as trustees as hereinbefore provided; and, at all subsequent trustees' elections, the three or four candidates, as the case may be, receiving the largest number of votes shall be entitled to serve as trustees for the full term for which they are elected. [Id. sec. 169.]

Art. 2889. Terms of office.—The terms of office of the seven trustees chosen at the first election shall be divided into two classes, and the members shall draw for the different classes, the four members drawing the numbers one, two, three, and four shall serve for one year or part thereof; that is, until the first May thereafter, and until their successors are elected and qualified; and the three members drawing the numbers five, six, and seven shall serve for two years; that is, until the second May thereafter, and until their successors are elected and qualified; and regularly thereafter, on the first Saturday in May of each year, four trustees and three trustees, alternately, shall be elected for a term of two years, to succeed the trustees whose term shall at that time expire. [Id. sec. 163.]

Art. 2890. Oath of office.—Before any trustee enters upon the discharge of the duties of his office, he shall swear that he will faithfully and impartially discharge the duties of such office; and his affidavit to that effect shall be filed after the first election with the county judge, and after all subsequent elections with the president or chairman of the school board. [Id. sec. 167.]

Art. 2891. Organization of board.—The trustees chosen under this chapter shall meet within twenty days after the election, or as soon thereafter as possible, for the purpose of organizing. A majority of said board shall constitute a quorum to do business; and they shall choose from their number a president; and they shall choose a secretary, a treasurer, assessor and collector of taxes, and other necessary officers and committees. [Id. sec. 165.]

Controlled by Art. 2827.—School Law § 57 [Art. 2827], held to control section 165 [Arts. 2862, 2881, 2891]. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

Art. 2892. Board shall adopt rules and regulations.—Said board of trustees shall adopt such rules, regulations and by-laws as they may deem proper; and the public free schools of such independent district shall be under their control; and they shall have the exclusive power to manage and govern said schools, and all rights and titles to property for school purposes heretofore vested in the mayor, city councils or school trustees by articles [3995, 4013 and 4032,] Revised Statutes, [1895,] or other statutes, general and special, except such cities as are exempted by this title, shall be vested in said board of trustees and their successors in office; and their claims shall apply to any action or suit now pending, or which may hereafter arise, to which said board are parties. [Id. sec. 168.]

See Young v. Dudney (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 802.

Art. 2893. Vacancies.—When a vacancy occurs in the board of school trustees in any independent school district, the remaining members of such board shall fill the vacancy by electing a person to fill the office for the unexpired portion of the term of the prior incumbent thereof. [Id. sec. 170.]

Art. 2894. Cities, towns, independent or common school districts may prescribe other studies, etc.; age of admission, etc.—Any city, or town, or independent, or common school district having voted a tax, in addition to the pro rata of the available school fund received from the state, may prescribe such other studies as the board of school trustees may deem proper, and the board of school trustees of any city, or town, or independent or common school district shall admit any person, who, themselves, or whose parents or legal guardians reside within said city, or town, or independent, or common school district to the benefits of the public school who are over seven and not over twenty-one years of age at the beginning of the scholastic year. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 145. Acts 1913, p. 175, sec. 1, amending Art. 2894, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 2895. May elect superintendent or principal for two years.—The board of trustees of any city or town or of any independent district provided for in this chapter, may elect a superintendent or principal of schools of such city or town, or of such independent district, for a term not to exceed two years. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 174.]

CHAPTER NINETEEN

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Article 2896. School shall not be sectarian.—No part of the public school fund shall be appropriated to or used for the support of any sectarian school. [Acts 1905, p. 263, sec. 130.]

Drainage.—See Title 47.

General provisions as to revised statutes.—See Final Title.

Art. 2897. Provisions to be made for both races.—All available public school funds of this state shall be appropriated in each county for the education alike of white and colored children, and impartial provisions shall be made for both races. [Id. sec. 95.]

Art. 2898. Who are "colored."—The terms "colored race" and "colored children," as used in the preceding articles, and elsewhere in this title, include all persons of mixed blood descended from negro ancestry. [Id. sec. 96.]

Schools to which applicable.—This section applies to schools of every character, whether communities, common school districts, or independent districts. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

Art. 2899. Where children may attend school.—Every child in this state of scholastic age shall be permitted to attend the public free schools of the district or independent district in which it resides at the time it applies for admission, notwithstanding that it may have been enumerated elsewhere, or may have attended school elsewhere part of the year; provided, that white children shall not attend the schools supported for colored children, nor shall colored children attend the schools supported for white children. [Id. sec. 128.]

Art. 2900. Scholastic age.—All children, without regard to color, over seven years of age and under seventeen years of age at the beginning of any scholastic year, shall be entitled to the benefit of the public school fund for that year. [Id. sec. 129.]

Counties as trustees.—The duty is imposed upon the counties to act as trustees as to the county school lands. Board of School Trustees v. Webb County (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 488.

Art. 2901. Scholastic year.—The scholastic year shall commence on the first day of September of each year and end on the thirty-first day of August thereafter. [Id. sec. 97.]

Schools to which applicable.—This section applies to schools of every character, whether communities, common school districts, or independent districts. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Blum Independent School Dist. (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 353.

Art. 2902. Admission of overs and unders; suspension of pupils.—The trustees of schools shall have the power to admit pupils over and under scholastic age, either in or out of the district, on such terms as they may deem proper and just; provided, that in admitting pupils over and under the scholastic age, the school shall not be overcrowded to the neglect and injury of pupils within the scholastic age; and they may suspend from the privileges of schools any pupil found guilty of incorrigible conduct, but such suspension shall not extend beyond the current term of the school. [Id. sec. 75.]

Art. 2903. When schools shall be opened.—Public schools shall be taught for five days in each week. Schools shall not be closed on legal holidays unless so ordered by the trustees. A school month shall consist of not less than twenty school days, inclusive of holidays, and shall be taught for not less than seven hours each day, including intermissions and recesses. [Id. sec. 98.]

Art. 2904. Trustees and teachers shall not handle books.—No member of the board of trustees of any public school, nor teacher in any of the public schools of this state, nor county or city superintendent of public schools shall, during the term of his office as trustee or superintendent, or during the time of his employment as teacher, act as agent or attorney for any text-book publishing company selling text-books in this state. Nor shall any person interested in the publication of text-books, or of selling the same to be used in the public schools of this state, be eligible to serve as school trustee, county or city superintendent of schools, or as teacher in any of the public schools of this state. If, after election as trustee, county or city superintendent or employment as teacher, any person filling such position accepts the agency or attorneyship of any text-book publishing company, the acceptance of such agency or attorneyship shall work a forfeiture of the office or place in the public schools held at the time of the acceptance of such agency or attorneyship. [Id. sec. 175.]

Art. 2904a. Hazing by teacher, etc.; misdemeanor, etc.; removal; ineligibility to reappointment.—Any teacher, instructor, or member of any faculty, or officer or director of any such educational institution who shall commit the offense of hazing shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars or not more than five hundred dollars, or shall be imprisoned in the county jail for a period of not less than thirty days or not more than six months or by both such fine and imprisonment, and in addition thereto, shall be immediately discharged and removed from his then position or office in such institution, and shall thereafter be ineligible to reinstatement or re-employment as teacher, instructor, member of faculty, officer, or director in any such state educational institution for a period of three years. [Acts 1913, p. 239, sec. 4.]

Note.—Sections 1-3, 5, 6, of Acts 1913, p. 239, dealing with the offense of hazing, are omitted, as inappropriate to the Civil Statutes.

CHAPTER NINETEEN A

PUBLIC SCHOOL BUILDINGS

Article 2904b. Windows not to face pupils.—That in the public school buildings of Texas no window admitting light shall be so placed in a class room or study hall that it must be faced by pupils when seated at their desks. [Acts 1913, p. 244, sec. 1.]

Art. 2904c. Height of windows, etc.—That all window openings admitting light into class rooms or study halls shall not come lower than a point three and a half feet from the floor, and shall extend to a point within six inches of the ceiling. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2904d. Area of window surface; distance of windows.—That the area of clear window surface for the admission of light into any class room or study hall shall not be less than one-sixth of the area of the floor space in said class room or study hall, and no part of the said class room or study hall in which pupils are seated or required to study shall be at a greater distance from the window than twice the height of the top of the window above the floor, except in cases in which adequate skylights are provided. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2904e. Light to come from left, etc.—That the main light in all one room schools shall come from the left of the pupils as they sit at their desks, and in all larger buildings this condition shall be approximated as nearly as architectural demands and the demands of ventilation will permit. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2904f. Sufficient heating apparatus.—That all school houses shall be provided with sufficient heating apparatus. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2904g. Stoves, radiators, etc., to be protected, etc.—That all stoves, radiators or other sources of direct heat located within the class rooms or study halls shall be so jacketed, ventilated or otherwise protected that the desks upon the side next to the stove, radiator or other source of heat shall not be more than five degrees Fahrenheit hotter than the desks upon the opposite side of the room. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 2904h. Automatic temperature regulator.—That all stoves, radiators, or other sources of direct or indirect heat supplying heat for a class room or study hall shall be equipped with an automatic temperature regulator that will regulate the temperature of said class room or study hall automatically to within two degrees of any set standard. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 2904i. Ventilation.—That every class room or study hall shall be provided with an efficient apparatus whereby in cold weather a supply of thirty cubic feet per minute of fresh, warm air shall be supplied to each pupil in such manner as not to place any pupil in a disagreeable draft, and shall be provided with exhaust flue or flues, with inlets at or near the floor line, so arranged as to effectively carry out of the room the cold and impure air without placing any pupil in a disagreeable draft. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2904j. Interior wood work; sanitation.—That all interior wood work in school buildings shall be without such unnecessary fluting, turning or carvings as catch dust and microbes, and all floors shall have their surfaces made impervious to water and germs by a coat of boiling paraffine oil or other floor dressing having similar effect, applied immediately after the floor is laid. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 2904k. Flights of stairs.—That all school buildings of two or more stories shall be provided with not less than two widely separated flights of stairs, and no stair shall have winding treads, but every tread shall be full width and turns be made flat landings not less than four feet wide. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 2904*l*. Hand rails; landings.—That all stairs shall have a hand rail on each side and of such size and so placed that it can be held easily by the pupils using these stairs, and all stairs shall have at least one landing not less than four feet wide between floors. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 2904m. Doors to open outward.—That all outside doors and all doors leading from class rooms or study halls shall be so hung as to open outward. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 2904n. Building permits.—That no public school building shall be constructed in the state of Texas at an expense of more than four hundred dollars, until the board of school trustees of the district or city or town in which the work is to be done shall have first secured a school building permit from the officer legally authorized to grant such permit, certifying that the plans and specifications of said proposed building conform to the hygienic, sanitary and protective regulations established by this Act for public school buildings in Texas. The petition for said permit shall be made in writing, and shall set forth such details of the plans and specifications as are necessary to pass upon the legality of the lighting, hearing, [heating] ventilation, sanitation and fire protection in such proposed building. For buildings in a common school district the county superintendent of public instruction of the county in which the school is to be located, and for buildings of an independent school district, or in a city or town that has assumed control of its schools, the superintendent of public schools in that district or city or town is hereby authorized, empowered and required to examine all plans for all proposed public school buildings, costing over four hundred dollars, and to grant permits only for such buildings, as conform to the requirements of this Act, and to make a report to the state department of education of all such permits granted, transmitting all evidence. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 2904*o*. Payments before permit unauthorized.—That no person charged with the duty of disbursing school funds or of authorizing disbursement of school funds in the state of Texas shall pay or authorize the payment of any vouchers, or in any other manner pay out any sum of public money for the construction of any school building at an expense of more than four hundred dollars until the board of school trustees of said district or city or town has secured from the properly constituted authority a legal permit for such work, and that any disbursing officer failing to observe the provisions of this Act shall be held liable for such amount as is paid out on account of such building, as is not legally permitted. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 2904p. Duty of state department of education; bulletin.—That the state department of education shall immediately upon the passage of this Act, have prepared and sent to every county superintendent of public instruction, to every superintendent of schools in an independent school district, or city or town, and to every board of school trustees in Texas a bulletin setting forth this law, indicating the reasons for each of the regulations, and indicating ways in which the provisions of this Act can be easily, effectively and economically met in the construction of school buildings. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 2904q. To what buildings applicable.—The provisions of this Act shall apply only to buildings constructed after this Act takes effect. [Id. sec. 16.]

CHAPTER TWENTY

STATE TEXT-BOOK BOARD

Articles 2905–2909.—Superseded.

The act comprised in these articles was temporary, but is incorporated in the Revised Civil Statutes for the reason that it was the law under which text-books were then furnished to the schools. These articles are superseded by Arts. 2909a–2909o.

Art. 2909a. State text book board, how appointed and constituted; duty of board; terms and qualifications of members; vacancies; meetings; rules, etc.—The president of the college of industrial arts, the president of the university of Texas, and the state superintendent of public instruction, acting together as a committee, and in case of the failure or refusal to act of any person herein named as a member of said committee, the remaining members of said committee, as herein designated, shall have authority to act, and, in case of the failure or refusal to act of two or more members of said committee, the vacancy shall be filled by the governor, and shall, at such time after this Act takes effect as will in their opinion best insure the proper accomplishment of its purposes, and not later than August 1, 1912, submit under seal and cover the names of thirty teachers of recognized scholarship and professional standing, five of whom shall be primary teachers of recognized ability, who have been actively engaged in the school work of this state for the past three years, to the governor of the state of Texas; from which list the governor shall, not later than August 15, 1912, appoint nine teachers, one of whom shall be a primary teacher, and they, together with the governor and the state superintendent of public instruction, shall constitute the state text book board, of which the governor shall be chairman and the superintendent of public instruction shall be secretary. It shall be the duty of said board, when called together by the governor for that purpose, to select and adopt text books not later than November 1, 1912, under the provisions of this Act, for the use of the public schools of this state for a period of six years beginning September 1, 1913. The members of said board shall hold their office for two years from the date of their appointment. No person who has acted as a text book agent for any author or publishing house, or who has been an author or associate author of any book published by any house, or who has directly or indirectly been concerned in the authorship of any text book, shall be eligible to appointment on the text book board; and, before entering upon the discharge of their duties, each member of such board shall make an affidavit in writing to be kept by the secretary of state that he is not financially interested in the sale or selection, either directly or indirectly, of any text book, and that he has no relative who is so interested in the sale or selection of the same. Any vacancy occurring upon said board from any cause at any time shall be filled by appointment by the governor from a list containing five times as many names as there are vacancies to be filled, said list being composed of persons possessing the qualifications above described, and being submitted to the governor under seal and cover, by the president of the college of industrial arts, the president of the university of Texas, and the state superintendent of public instruction, acting together as a committee, on a date to be named by the governor. The board shall meet at such times and places as may be designated by the governor, and it shall adopt such rules and regulations for the transaction of its business as it may deem proper, not contrary to the provisions of this Act; provided, that no legal representative or temporary employé or other special agent employed by any author or publisher shall be allowed to present the merits of a book to the members of this board, individually or collectively, and any contract entered into by said board when so represented shall be void; but the board may allow the authors of books or publishers or any regular or permanent employé to appear before the board and represent the merits of books when said board is in session and not otherwise, and under such restrictions and regulations as are provided by the state text book board and are in accord with the provisions of this Act. [Acts 1911, S. S., p. 88, sec. 1.]

Art. 2909aa. Persons submitting bids or books to file affidavit with secretary of state; members of board not to be interested, etc.; disqualification.—Each individual, firm or corporation submitting bids to the board for its consideration, or presenting books for adoption under the provisions of this Act, shall file with the secretary of state an affidavit giving the names of all people employed to aid in any way whatsoever in securing the contract, and that no member of the board is in any manner interested, directly or indirectly, in such individual, firm or corporation. If the fact should be disclosed that any member of the board is so interested, it shall work a disqualification of such member of the board, and he shall not be permitted to serve on the board; or if it should further be disclosed that any member of the board is or has been interested in any book or series of books as the author or associate author, or that any such member of the board is related, directly or indirectly, to any person who is author, or associate author or in any way pecuniarily interested in any book or series of books published by any house bidding for this contract, or offered for use in the public schools of this state, or that any member of the board is interested in any such book or series of books in any manner, such fact shall likewise work as a disqualification of such member, and he shall not be permitted to serve upon the board. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2909b. Affidavit of member.—Each member of the board, before entering upon his duties as a member of the board, shall make out and file with the secretary of state an affidavit that he is not and has not been directly or indirectly interested in, or connected with or employed by, any publishing house, persons, firm or corporation submitting any books for adoption or in any books offered for adoption, or in any books adopted, nor is he related to or connected in business with any person or agent representing such house, person, firm or corporation, and that he will not become so interested and will not accept any position as agent or representative of any person, firm or corporation to whom any contract may be awarded by said board during the term and duration of said contract, and that he is not related to or connected in any business with any person or agent representing such house, firm or corporation. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2909bb. Uniform system of text books; to include what subjects.—The board hereby created is authorized and required to select and adopt a uniform system of text books to be used in the public free schools of Texas, and the books so selected and adopted shall be printed in the English language and shall include and be limited to text books on the following subjects: Spelling, a graded series of reading books, a course in language lessons, English grammar, English composition, geography, arithmetic, mental arithmetic, physiology and hygiene, civil government, algebra, physical geography, history of the United States (in which the construction placed on the federal constitution by the fathers of the Confederacy shall be fairly represented), history of Texas, agriculture, a graded system of writing books, plane geometry, physics and general history; provided, that the series of readers adopted by the board shall have a full page cut of the manual alphabet as used by the Texas school for the deaf; provided, that none of said text books shall contain anything of a partisan or sectarian character, and that nothing in this Act shall be construed to prevent the teaching of German, Bohemian, Spanish, French, Latin or Greek in any of the public schools as a branch of study, but the teaching of one or more of these languages shall not interfere with the use of the text books herein prescribed; and the study of a language known as a dead language, such as Latin or Greek, shall never be made compulsory as a requirement for the completion of any regular course of study in use in any public school in this state, without providing an equivalent course for graduation, equal in all other respects to such course containing such dead language or languages, which shall include the same; provided, however, that nothing herein shall be construed to prevent the use of supplementary books as hereinafter provided. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2909c. Supplementary reading books.—The text book board shall also select and adopt a set of supplementary reading books for the primary and intermediate grades, and each bidder presenting such reading books shall state at what price the readers are offered as supplementary readers. No supplementary books, however, shall be purchased and used to the exclusion of the books prescribed under the provisions of section 4 of this Act [Art. 2909bb] but full use must be made in good faith of the books selected by said board under section 4 [Art. 2909bb] before any of the supplementary books provided for in this section shall be required to be purchased and used; and no other supplementary readers shall be required to be purchased and used in the schools until the readers provided for in this section shall be used in good faith. [Id. sec 5.]

Art. 2909cc. Notices of books adopted; bids, how submitted.—When books are to be selected and adopted under the provisions of this Act, the governor shall for thirty days, by notices in the public press and by written notices mailed to all persons, firms or corporations, in whose behalf such notices may be requested, in which notices the time and place of such selection shall be set out and thus advertise that sealed bids will be received at the time and place fixed in said notice and not later than November 1, 1912. Each bid shall state specifically at what price each book will be furnished, and shall be accompanied by specimen of copies of each book offered, and it shall be required that each bidder deposit with the treasurer of the state of Texas such sum of money as the board may require, to be not less than five hundred dollars nor more than twenty-five hundred dollars, according to the value of the books each bidder may propose to supply. Such deposits shall be forfeited to the state absolutely if such bidder so depositing shall fail to make and execute such contract and bond as are herein required within such time as the board may require, which time shall be specified in the notice advertised. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 2909d. Bids, how delivered and opened, etc.—All bids submitted under section 6 of this Act [Art. 2909cc] shall be sealed and deposited with the governor of the state, to be delivered by him to the board in session and for the purpose of considering the same, and shall be opened in the presence of the board; provided, that the board shall not consider a bid of any publisher of school books, who has failed to pay the tax due and payable the state of Texas under chapter 148 of the Acts of the Twenty-Ninth Legislature [Arts. 7369–7392], and who has failed to make the affidavit required in section 2 of this Act [Art. 2909aa]. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 2909dd. Board to investigate books and bids; selection and adoption of books, etc.—It shall be the duty of the board to meet at the time and place mentioned in the notice and advertisement, and it shall then and there open and examine the sealed proposals received; and it shall be the duty of the board to make a full and complete investigation of all the books and bids accompanying the same. The text books shall be selected and adopted after a careful examination and consideration of all books presented, and the books selected and adopted shall be those which in the opinion of the board are most acceptable for use in the schools, quality, mechanical construction, paper, print, price, authorship, literary merit and other relevant matter being given such weight in making its decision as the board may deem advisable. The board shall proceed without delay to adopt for use in the public schools of this state text books on all the branches hereinbefore mentioned; provided, that if the bid submitted to said board should not be satisfactory to said board, they may postpone the selection of such books or a part thereof to such time as they may select, and after the same is readvertised new bids may be received and acted on by such board as provided for in this Act; provided, that no text book shall be adopted until it has been read and carefully examined by at least a majority of the board. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2909e. Contract to provide for exchange of old books, etc.—The board shall stipulate in the contract where a change shall be made from the books in use that the contractor or contractors shall take in exchange the respective books adopted by the state then in use in part payment for the new books; and all bidders under this Act shall specify what allowance they will make for the said respective books adopted by the state, and then in the hands of the patrons of the public schools, when offered in exchange for the new books adopted under this Act; provided, that said allowance and condition for the exchange of the old books shall be enforced only during the two scholastic years following a change in books, and no book shall be taken in exchange which was not in use in the public schools during the scholastic year next preceding such change, or which was not so purchased by book dealers for the session next preceding such exchange; and provided, that the state text book board shall prescribe and promulgate the conditions of exchange, and upon failure to comply with such conditions by any contractor suit shall be instituted against such contractor in accordance with section 26 of this Act [Art. 2909n] and that said conditions of exchange shall be made a part of each contract authorized under this Act. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 2909ee. Contract to provide for changes in books, etc.—Every contract entered into with a publisher for the adoption of any book or books shall contain a provision that the board of revision hereinafter provided for may, during the life of the contract, upon giving one year's previous notice to the publisher of such book or books, order such changes, amendments and additions to the book or books so selected and adopted as shall keep them up-to-date and abreast of the times; provided, that such revisions shall not be made oftener than once in two years. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 2909f. Contractors' bonds; attorney general to prepare contract and bonds, etc.—The bidder to whom any contract may have been awarded shall make and execute a good and sufficient bond payable to the state of Texas in the sum of not less than twenty thousand dollars for each book adopted under the provisions of this Act; provided further, that the governor is hereby given authority to require bond in such further and additional sum as he may deem advisable, said bond to be approved by the governor, such bond to be conditioned that the contractor shall faithfully perform all the conditions of the contract. The contract and bond shall be prepared by the attorney general and shall be payable in Travis county, Texas, and be deposited in the office of the secretary of state. The bond shall not be exhausted by a single recovery thereon, but may be sued upon from time to time until the full amount thereof is recovered; and the state board of education may at any time upon twenty days' notice require a new bond to be given, and in the event the contractor shall fail to furnish such new bond the contract of such contractor may at the option of the state board of education be forfeited. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 2909ff. Price of books; excessive price; duty of attorney general; lower price when granted to others.—The board shall not in any case contract with the publisher for any book or books to be used in the public schools of this state at a price in excess of the lowest price at which said publisher or publishers furnish or have offered to furnish and distribute the same book or books under contract with any other state, county or school district in the United States; provided, that in the event any such contract is made, it shall be the duty of the attorney general to institute suit upon the bond hereinabove provided for, for a recovery on behalf of the state of the liquidated damages due under, and as provided for, in section 26 of this Act [Art. 2909n], and proof of a violation of this provision in any particular shall be prima facie evidence of liability in any such suit brought hereunder; and in case that any contractor who has a contract to furnish a book or books for the state under the provisions of this Act shall at any time during the period of this adoption contract with any other state, county, or school district in the United States to furnish the same book or books at a lower price than fixed in accordance with the provisions of this Act, under similar conditions of sale and distribution as may be decided by the state board of education, such lower price shall immediately be given to the state of Texas; and it shall be the duty of the attorney general to bring suit on the bond of such contractor upon refusal to reduce such price. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 2909g. No book to be purchased from trust; duty of attorney general on violation; sworn statements of bidders, etc.—No book or books shall be purchased from any person, firm or corporation who is a member of or connected with any trust; and in the event it be established that this provision has been violated, such violation shall be held to be fraud and collusion as contemplated under section 26 of this Act [Art. 2909n], and the attorney general shall bring suit upon the bond of such person, firm or corporation and upon proof of such violation shall recover the liquidated damages provided for in said section 26 [Art. 2909n] hereof, as defined by the laws of this state, and a sworn affidavit that said person or corporation is not connected, either directly or indirectly, with a trust, shall be required, and said affidavit shall be filed with said board. Before proceeding to adopt books as provided for under the provisions of this Act, the board shall require all persons, firms or corporations bidding for a contract to file with the governor a sworn statement on or before the date selected by the board for receiving sealed bids, stating whether said person, firm or corporation is interested, or whether said person, firm or any member thereof or any individual stockholder of such corporation is interested or acting as a director, trustee or stockholder, either directly or indirectly or through a third party, in any manner whatsoever, in any other publishing house, and this statement shall be sworn to by such person, a member of such firm or the president, secretary and each one of the directors of said corporation. All firms of persons bidding for a contract for supplying books shall present a sworn statement signed by all its members showing the names of all members of said firm, and whether any other person, firm or corporation has any financial interest in said firm, and also whether any individual member or members of said firm have any financial interest in any other publisher, publishing firm or corporation of publishers; provided further, that the board shall require all corporations, or persons or firms, to file with the governor attested copies of all written agreements entered into and existing between them and others engaged in the publishing business, and, if in the opinion of the board such written agreements or other facts adduced are violations of the anti-trust law of the state of Texas [Arts. 7796–7818] or opposed to public policy, the bids of such houses shall not be considered by the board. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 2909gg. Contractors to receive compensation solely from proceeds of sale.—It shall be a part of the terms and conditions of every contract made in pursuance of this Act that the state of Texas shall not be liable to any contractor thereunder for any sum whatever, but all such contractors shall receive compensation solely and exclusively from the proceeds of the sale of school books as provided in this Act. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 2909h. Contract, how signed; to be in duplicate, etc.—Each contract shall be duly signed by the publishing house or its authorized officers and agents; and, if it is found to be in accordance with the award and all the provisions of this Act, and if the bond herein required is presented and duly approved, the board shall approve said contract and order it to be signed on behalf of the state by the governor in his capacity as chairman. All contracts shall be made in duplicate, one copy to remain in custody of the secretary of state and be copied in full in the minutes of the meeting of the board in a well bound book, and the other copy to be delivered to the company or its agent. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 2909hh. Deposit of bidder, how disposed of, etc.—When any person has been awarded a contract and he has filed his bond and ..... contract with the board and the same has been approved, it shall make an order on the treasurer of the state reciting such fact, and thereupon the treasurer shall return the deposit of such bidder to him; but if any successful bidder shall fail to make and execute the contract and bond as hereinbefore provided, the treasurer shall place the deposit of such bidder in the state treasury to the credit of the available school fund, and the board shall re-advertise for other bids to supply such books which the said bidder may have failed to supply. All unsuccessful bidders shall have their deposits returned to them by the state treasurer as soon as the board has decided not to accept their bids. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 2909i. When contract entered into, governor to issue proclamation; duty of state superintendent of public instruction; copies of books to be filed, etc.—As soon as the state shall have entered into the contract for the furnishing of books for use of the public schools of this state under the provisions of this Act, it shall be the duty of the governor to issue his proclamation of such facts to the people of the state; and the state superintendent of public instruction shall carefully label and file away the copies of the books adopted as furnished for examination to the board; and such copies of such books shall be securely kept and the standard of quality and mechanical excellence of the book or books so furnished under this Act shall be maintained in said books so furnished under contract authorized by this Act during the continuance of the contract. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 2909ii. Superintendent to issue circular containing list, etc.—As soon as practicable after the adoption of the text books provided for in this Act, the superintendent of public instruction shall address a circular letter to the county superintendents and to the presidents of the school boards in independent school districts, which circular letters shall contain a list of all the books adopted, with their respective prices, together with such other information as he may deem advisable. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 2909j. Contractors to establish depositories, etc.; county judge to report failure to furnish books; duty of attorney general; amount recoverable, etc.—All parties with whom the contracts have been made shall establish and maintain in some city in this state a depository where a stock of their goods to supply all immediate demands shall be kept; all contractors not maintaining their own individual or separate state agencies or depositories shall maintain a joint agency or depository to be located at some convenient and suitable distributing point, at which general depository each contractor joining in said agency shall keep on hand a sufficient stock of books to supply sub-depositories, and every contractor shall establish and maintain in every county in the state having an enrollment of five hundred pupils or more in the public schools as shown in the last preceding report of the county superintendent on file in the office of the state superintendent of public instruction, one or more agencies, one of which shall be at the county seat. At each county seat as above provided, and in every city in this state containing five hundred inhabitants or over shall be maintained an agency by each contractor carrying a sufficient stock of all books contracted for, to supply all immediate demands; provided, that in all the counties not entitled to a depository under the conditions as provided for in this Act, contractors shall supply such adopted books under such rules and regulations as may be approved by the state board of education. Any person, dealer or school board in any county in the state may order from the central agency, and the books so ordered shall be furnished at the same rate and discount as are granted to agents at the county seat; provided, that the price of books so ordered shall be paid in advance. Upon the failure of any contractor to furnish the books as provided in the contract and in this Act, the county judge in the county wherein such books have not been so furnished shall report the fact to the attorney general, and he shall bring suit on account of such failure in the name of the state of Texas, in the district court of Travis county, and shall recover on the bond given by such contractor for the full value of the books not furnished as required, and in addition thereto the sum of one hundred dollars, and each day of failure to furnish the books shall constitute a separate offense, and the amounts so recovered shall be placed to the credit of the available school fund of the state. Any unorganized county shall be furnished from the same agency as the county to which said unorganized county is attached for judicial purposes in the same manner as such organized county. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 2909jj. Price to be printed on book, etc.—The contract price of each book shall be plainly printed on the back of each book, together with the following notice: "The price marked hereon is fixed by the state, and any deviation therefrom should be reported to the state superintendent of public instruction." First two years of the contract for new books the exchange price of each book shall be printed thereon also. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 2909k. Books adopted to be used, how long; books may be procured from other sources when.—The books adopted by the board under the provisions of this Act shall be introduced and used as text books to the exclusion of all others in public free schools of this state for a period covering six scholastic years, beginning September 1, 1913; provided, nothing in this Act shall be construed to prevent or prohibit the patrons of the public schools throughout the state from procuring books in the usual way in the event that no contracts are made. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 2909kk. Board of revision, how constituted; powers; contracts shall provide for changes, etc.—The president of the college of industrial arts, the president of the university of Texas and the state superintendent of public instruction shall constitute a board of revision for the entire time of the adoption authorized under the provisions of this Act, and may require such changes, amendments or additions to the book or books adopted as in their judgment will be for the best interest of the public schools of this state; and contracts for books under the provisions of this Act shall be made upon the distinct condition that the board of revision provided for in this section may, during the time for which books are adopted under this Act, upon giving one year's previous notice to the publishers thereof, order such changes, amendments and additions to the book or books so adopted as shall keep them up-to-date and abreast of the times; provided, that such changes and revisions shall not be made oftener than once in two years; provided, also, that if in the judgment of the board provided for in this section, such changes or revisions make it impracticable for the revised books to be used in the same class with the old books, the publishers will be required to give the same exchange terms as were given when the books were first adopted, and such exchange period shall extend two years from the time the revised books are first put into use in the schools; provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed so as to give such board of revision power or authority to abandon or substitute any book or books originally contracted for. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 2909*l*. School trustee preventing use or teacher failing to use, etc., guilty of misdemeanor.—Any school trustee who shall prevent or aid in preventing the use in any public school in this state of the books or any of them as adopted under the provisions of this Act, or any teacher in any public school in this state who shall wilfully fail or refuse to use the said books, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in a sum of not less than five dollars nor more than fifty dollars for each offense, and each day of such wilful failure or refusal by said teacher or wilful prevention of the use of the books by said trustee shall constitute a separate offense. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 2909*ll*. Receiving commission or rebate misdemeanor.—No trustee or teacher shall ever receive any commission or rebate on any books used in the schools with which he is concerned as such trustee or teacher, and if any such trustee or teacher shall receive or accept any such commission or rebate he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction he shall be fined not less than fifty dollars and not more than one hundred dollars. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 2909m. Author or publisher, etc., influencing selection, etc., guilty of misdemeanor.—Any person not the author or publisher or the bona fide permanent and regular employé of such publisher who shall appear before such text book board in behalf of any book submitted to the text book board for adoption, or seek to influence the members thereof, or any author, publisher, bona fide permanent and regular employé of such publisher who seeks to influence the said text book board in the selection or adoption of any text book by appealing to the members of said board separately, or at any other time than when the board is in regular session, or in any way violating section 1 of this Act [Art. 2909a] shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not less than five hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars, and shall be confined in the county jail for not less than thirty days and not more than ninety days. [Id. sec. 24a.]

Art. 2909mm. Supplementary books in certain cases; teacher or trustee receiving greater price guilty of misdemeanor.—When the supplementary books other than those selected by the text book board are used, they shall be furnished at prices fixed by the trustees of the school in which they are used and approved by the state superintendent of public instruction; and, if any teacher or trustee shall knowingly and directly or indirectly receive from any pupil a greater price therefor than the price fixed, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 2909n. State may cancel contract for fraud, etc.; power of attorney general; damages, etc.—The state may at its election cancel any contract entered into by virtue of the provisions of this Act for fraud or collusion or material breach of contract upon part of either party to the contract, or any member of the board, or any person, firm, corporation or their agents making said bond or contract; and for the cancellation of any such contract the attorney general is hereby authorized to bring suit in the proper court in Travis county, and in case of the cancellation of any contract as provided for, the damages are fixed at not less than the amount of said bond, to be recovered as liquidated damages in the same suit cancelling said contract; and on account of the difficulty of determining the damages that might accrue by reason of such fraud and cancellation of such contract, the full amount of the bond given by any contractor shall be considered as liquidated damages to be recovered out of said bond by the state at the suit of the attorney general, and every contract shall contain a clause to this effect. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 2909nn. Process to be served on secretary of state.—Any person, firm or corporation with whom a contract has been entered into under the provisions of this Act shall designate the secretary of state of Texas as its or their agent, upon whom citation and all other writs and processes may be served in the event any suit shall be brought against such person, firm or corporation. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 2909*o*. Compensation of teachers on board; appropriation; stenographer.—The teachers selected upon said board under the provisions of this Act shall receive as compensation for their services the sum of five dollars per day each while on active duty and actual traveling expenses in going to and from the place of meeting, to be paid upon warrants drawn by the comptroller under the direction and approval of the governor; and the sum of three thousand five hundred dollars, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of the general revenue of this state, not otherwise appropriated, for the purpose of paying the same and the cost and expense of putting into effect the provisions of this Act; provided, that the superintendent of public instruction be and is hereby authorized to employ one stenographer to assist in the clerical work of the state text book board, the pay of said stenographer to be paid out of the appropriation herein made. [Id. sec. 28.]

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

TEACHING OF COTTON CLASSIFICATION

Article 2909p. State board of education to require teaching in what schools, etc.—That the state board of education is authorized and instructed to require the teaching of cotton classification in all the state normal schools, industrial schools, summer normal schools, teachers' institutes, and in all public schools; provided, that the subject of cotton classification shall not be required to be taught in independent school districts having a scholastic population of three hundred or more, or in districts where the cotton acreage is less than 10 per cent of the total acreage planted to farm products, unless so ordered by the school board or trustees. [Acts 1913, p. 129, sec. 1.]

Art. 2909q. What grades shall be taught; standards.—The grades of cotton taught in all the schools as required in section 1 of this Act [Art. 2909p], shall be those established and provided for by the United States department of agriculture and known as official types or "standards." [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 2909r. State superintendent of public instruction to furnish information.—It shall be the duty of the state superintendent of public instruction to furnish full information to all schools required to teach the classification of cotton, as to how to obtain the types or "standards" provided for in this Act. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2909s. Duty of commissioners' court.—The county commissioners' court of all counties coming under the provisions of this Act shall provide for at least one set of the official types or "standards" to be placed in charge of the county superintendent of public instruction, or ex-officio county superintendent of public instruction, whose duty it shall be to use them for the purposes of instruction in classification of cotton; to lend them to summer normal schools and teachers' institutes held in his county, and to have types of same made for the various schools in his county applying for same, provided, that such schools shall pay the cost of making said types. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2909t. School boards and trustees shall furnish samples, etc.; duty of county superintendent of public instruction.—The school board or trustees of every school district required by the provision of this Act to teach cotton grading, shall furnish the county superintendent of public instruction with samples of the different grades of cotton from which a set of types or "standards" shall be made by comparing them with the official types or "standards" and the county superintendent of public instruction shall certify that the same has been carefully compared with the official types or standards in his office, and shall correctly label same, showing the grade thereof; provided, that nothing in this section shall prevent school boards or trustees from purchasing the official types or standards direct from the United States department of agriculture. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 2909u. Duty of state normal school and industrial schools.—The state normal school and the state industrial schools shall procure the official types or standards from the United States department of agriculture and pay for same out of the appropriation made by the legislature for their support and maintenance. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 2909v. Same subject; competent instructor.—The state schools named in section 6 of this Act [Art. 2909u], shall employ a competent instructor to teach the practical art of grading and classing cotton, and the handling of cotton in all of its branches from the field to the factory. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 2909w. Summer normals and county institutes to employ instructors.—Summer normals and county institutes shall make provision for the employment of instructors in cotton classification in the same way that they employ instructors in other required branches. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 2909x. Certificates for proficiency; examinations, etc.—Students of any school in this state where cotton grading or classing is required to be taught shall be entitled to a certificate of proficiency after passing such examination as may be prescribed by the faculty of the school or by the county superintendent of public instruction of the county in which he proposes to teach, provided, that the applicant must be able to class 60 per cent or more of the samples presented compared with the types or standards of the department of agriculture. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 2909y. Act when operative.—This Act shall become operative on and after September first, nineteen hundred and fourteen (1914). [Id. sec. 10.]

TITLE 49

ELECTIONS

TIME AND PLACE OF HOLDING ELECTIONS

Article 2910. Elections, general, time for holding.—A general election shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, A. D. 1912, and every two years thereafter, at such places as may be prescribed by law, after notice given as prescribed by law. [Acts 1905, 1st S. S. p. 535.]

See Cartledge v. Wortham, 105 T. 585, 153 S. W. 297.

Constitutionality.—This act is designed to establish a system safeguarding elections, punishing fraud, avoiding corruption, and guaranteeing a pure ballot and a fair count; and does not embrace more than one subject. Watts v. State, 61 Cr. R. 364, 135 S. W. 585.

Time as substance of election.—Time is of the substance of an election, and, if it is held at a time not authorized by law, the election is not valid. Cartledge v. Wortham, 105 T. 585, 153 S. W. 297.

Art. 2911. Elections, special, time for holding.—Special elections shall be held at such times and places as may be fixed by law providing therefor. [Id. sec. 62.]

Art. 2912. Polls, hours of opening and closing.—In all elections, general, special or primary, the polls shall be open from eight o'clock in the morning until seven o'clock in the evening; and the election shall be held for one day only. [Id. sec. 64.]

Provision directory.—The provision of a statute as to the time of opening and closing the polls is so far directory that an irregularity in this respect, which does not deprive a legal voter of his vote or admit a disqualified person to vote, will not vitiate the election. Savage v. Umphries (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 893.

Polls open from eight until seven.—One allegation in contestant's petition was that the polls in one precinct were not open until 11 a. m. and that they were closed at 4 p. m. and that there were twenty legally qualified voters entitled to vote therein and only ten voted and that a large majority would have voted against prohibition if the polls had been kept open as required by law. Exception to this allegation should not have been sustained. It was sufficient to admit proof that the result might have been different if the polls had been kept open as required by law. Savage v. Umphries (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 900.

Art. 2913. Precincts, election, formed how and when, publication.—The county commissioners' court of each county may, if they deem it proper, at each August term of the court, divide their respective counties, and counties attached thereto for judicial purposes, into convenient election precincts, each of which shall be differently numbered and described by natural or artificial boundaries or survey lines by an order to be entered upon the minutes of the court. They shall immediately thereafter publish such order in some newspaper in the county for three consecutive weeks. If there be no newspaper in the county, then such copy of such order shall be posted in some public place in each precinct in the county. No election precinct shall be formed out of two or more justice precincts, nor out of the parts of two or more justice precincts. [Id. sec. 7.]

Voting place.—If the commissioner's court fail to designate a voting place in a precinct when they establish voting precincts, but an election is held at the usual voting place, said election is not illegal on that account. May v. State, 43 Cr. R. 54, 63 S. W. 132.

Where a county line had been in dispute for years and it was not shown that any one voting at a voting place situated within the disputed tract was disfranchised at the election, the count of the votes cast at such polling place held not to violate the spirit of the constitution, though the voting place was situated without the county. Ralls v. Parish (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1089.

Art. 2914. Precincts in cities and towns, how formed.—The county commissioners' court, in establishing new election precincts, shall divide any city or town into as many election precincts as they see proper, none of which shall have resident therein more than three hundred and fifty voters, as ascertained by the vote of the last preceding general city or town election. Every ward in every incorporated city, town or village shall constitute an election precinct, unless there shall have been cast in the said ward, at the last general city or town election held therein, more than three hundred and fifty votes. Cities and towns, and towns and villages incorporated under the general laws shall not necessarily constitute election precincts; and no precinct shall be made out of parts of two wards. Provided, that this section [article] shall not apply to cities, towns and villages of less than ten thousand inhabitants; and, in such cities, towns and villages, the justice precincts in which said cities, town and villages are situated may be divided into election precincts without regard to the wards of such cities, towns and villages, and without reference to the number of votes to be cast. [Id. sec. 8.]

Voting precincts.—Where voting precincts are not laid off in conformity with the statute, the elections fairly held in such precincts are not invalid, unless it is shown that the court had acted with a fraudulent purpose. Ex parte White, 33 Cr. R. 594, 28 S. W. 542.

Art. 2915. [1709] Unorganized counties, precincts and voting in.—Each unorganized county of the state of Texas which is attached, for judicial purposes, to an organized county shall be attached, for election purposes, to some one of the commissioners' precincts of such organized county, and voters in such unorganized county shall be authorized to vote in any election for commissioner of such commissioners' precinct; provided, when more than one election precinct has been established by law in such unorganized county of the state, each election precinct therein shall be attached, for election purposes, severally to one of the commissioners' precincts of such organized county; and voters in such election precincts shall be authorized to vote in any election for commissioner of the commissioners' precinct to which such election precinct has been attached. [Acts 1885, p. 89.]

Art. 2916. [1732] [1689] Voters shall vote in precinct where they reside.—All voters in any county shall vote in the election precinct in which they reside. [Act Aug. 23, 1876, p. 308, sec. 14. Acts 1881, p. 97.]

Art. 2917. Collector, order fixing precincts to be served on.—The county commissioners' court shall cause to be made out and delivered to the county collector of taxes, before the first day of September, annually, a certified copy of the last order fixing the limits and designating the number or name of each precinct for the year following. [Acts 1905, 1 S. S., p. 535.]

Art. 2918. Polling places and poll tax lists in towns, etc., under general law.—In towns or cities incorporated under the general laws, the city council may provide for city or town elections that there shall be one or more polling places; and, in such case, the certified list of poll taxpaying voters for all election precincts in which voters reside who are to vote at any such polling place shall be used therefor. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 2919. But one election poll in certain cities and towns.—In all cities and towns in this state in which the number of electors at the last municipal election does not exceed four hundred in number, but one election poll shall be opened at any municipal election; and all officers of such towns and cities to be elected shall be voted for at such poll. [Acts 1897, p. 10.]

CHAPTER TWO

OFFICERS OF ELECTION

Article 2920. Judges and clerks of election; presiding judges; appointment, qualification and duties.—The county commissioners' court shall, at the February term, appoint from among the citizens of each voting precinct in which there are less than one hundred voters who have paid their poll tax and received their certificates of exemption two reputable men who are qualified voters as judges of the election. They shall be selected from different political parties, if practicable, and shall continue to act until their successors are appointed. When the bounds of the precinct are changed so that one or more judges reside outside of the precinct for which they were appointed, the court shall appoint others to fill such vacancy or vacancies. One of the judges, who shall, in all cases, belong to the party that, at the last general election, cast the largest vote for governor throughout the state shall be designated as the presiding judge at elections; he shall appoint two competent and reputable clerks of different political parties, if practicable, who are qualified voters, to act as clerks of the election. The order appointing all judges shall be entered of record. The presiding judge shall act in receiving and depositing the votes in the ballot boxes, and the other judge shall act in counting the votes cast; one of the clerks shall keep the poll list and list of qualified voters, and, upon the poll list he shall write at the time of voting the name and number of each voter; the other clerk shall act as canvassing clerk, and shall keep the tally list of votes counted; said officers shall perform such other duties as the presiding judge may direct. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 533, sec. 57.]

Poll list.—Ballots having duplicate numbers are entitled to be counted where it does not appear that their numbers did not correspond to the same numbers on the poll list. Gray v. State, 19 C. A. 521, 49 S. W. 699.

Art. 2921. Judges and clerks of election in precincts of over 100 poll tax receipts, appointment and duties.—For every precinct in which there are one hundred male citizens or more who have paid their poll tax or received their certificates of exemption, the commissioners' court shall appoint four judges of election, who shall be chosen when practicable from opposing political parties, one of whom shall be designated as presiding judge. The presiding and one associate judge shall act in receiving and depositing the votes in the ballot box, and the other two judges shall act in counting the vote cast. The presiding judge shall appoint four competent and reputable clerks who have paid their poll tax, and of different political parties, when practicable; two of said clerks shall assist in keeping poll lists and the list of qualified voters; upon the poll lists they shall write the name and number of each voter, and at the time voted. Two clerks shall be canvassing clerks, who shall keep tally lists of votes counted and perform such other duties as the presiding judge may direct. At the close of the canvassing, and during its progress, the tally clerks shall compare their tally lists and certify officially to their correctness. Provided, that in all elections held under the provisions of this title, other than general elections, local option elections and primary elections, the officers to be appointed by the commissioners' court to hold said elections shall be a presiding judge, and assistant judge and two clerks, whose compensation shall be two dollars per day, and two dollars to the presiding judge extra for making return of the election. [Id. sec. 58.]

For appointment of judges and clerks by voters, see Art. 2994.

De facto officer.—A minor acting as a clerk of an election may be considered a de facto officer. Bell v. Faulkner, 84 T. 187, 19 S. W. 480.

Art. 2922. Disqualifications for being judges, etc., or members of executive committees of parties.—No one who holds an office of profit or trust under the United States or this state, or in any city or town in this state or within thirty days after resigning or being dismissed from any such office, except a notary public, or who is a candidate for office, or who has not paid his poll tax, shall act as judge, clerk or supervisor of any election, nor shall any one act as chairman or as member of any executive committee of a political party, either for the state or any district, county or city, who has not paid his poll tax, or who is a candidate for office, or who holds any office of profit or trust under either the United States or this state, or in any city or town in this state; or any one who may be enjoying gratituitous passage on street cars or on other public service corporations, by reason of his appointment as a special policeman, or any one who has any connection, whatever, with the city, whereby the city is justified in issuing to any such person free transportation on the street cars, or franks entitling him to the free use of public service corporations, or any person who is regularly employed in any capacity by the city, for whose services a salary or wages is paid, except a notary public. [Acts 1905, S. S. p. 533, sec. 60; Acts 1911, p. 18, sec. 1.]

Note.—Acts 1911, p. 18, is entitled "An act to amend sections 60 and 128a, chapter 11, of the Laws of the Special Session of 1905," etc. Sections 1 and 2 amend, respectively, sections 60 and 128a.

Disqualified judge.—The chairman of the executive committee of a political party is not disqualified to act as judge of election under the Terrell election law (Sayles' Ann. Civ. St. Supp. 1906, p. 183). Walker v. Mobley (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 61.

Where the law required the appointment of two judges in a precinct if one was disqualified to act and there is nothing to show that the other did not act, and nothing to show that the election was not fairly held in that precinct the election in that precinct will not be held to be void because one judge had no right to act. Savage v. Umphries (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 902.

Art. 2923. Supervisors of elections, appointment, etc., powers and duties.—The chairman of the county executive committee, for each political party that has candidates on the official ballot, or if he fails to act, any three members of such committee, may, not less than five days before the general election, nominate one supervisor of election for each voting precinct, who has paid his poll tax, by presenting his name to the county judge, who shall indorse his approval on the certificate of his nomination if he is a reputable citizen, but not otherwise. And thereupon, on his presenting such nomination and its approval to the presiding judge of the precinct, he shall be permitted to sit conveniently near the judges, so that he can observe the conduct of the election, including the counting of the votes, the locking and sealing of the ballot boxes, their custody and safe return. He shall not be permitted to enter into any conversation with the judges or clerks regarding the election while it is progressing, except to call the attention of the judges or clerks to any irregularity or violation of the law that he may observe. Before he shall be permitted to act as supervisor, he shall take an oath, to be administered by the presiding judge, that he will mention and note any errors he may see in testing or counting the votes, and that he will well and truly discharge his duties as supervisor impartially, and will report in writing all violations of the law and irregularities that he may observe to the next grand jury. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 533, sec. 59.]

Mandatory.—The requirement that application for appointment of supervisors must be made not less than five days before the general election is mandatory, in order to authorize their appointment. Garcia v. Cleary, 50 C. A. 465, 110 S. W. 177, 178.

Art. 2924. Supervisors, appointed, how, etc.; duties.—Any one-fifth of the candidates whose names appear on the official ballot may, on the day preceding the election or prior thereto, agree in writing signed by them upon two supervisors who, when selected, shall be sworn as election officers. Said supervisors shall be qualified voters of the county in which they may serve as such supervisors. Said supervisors, while the election is being held, shall remain in view of the ballot boxes until the count is concluded. It shall be their duty to be present at the marking of the ballot of any voter, by the judge of said election, not able to make his own ballot, to see that said ballot is marked in accordance with the wishes of the voter; and it shall further be their duty to see that each and every ballot is correctly called. The said supervisors shall note any and all fraud or irregularity occurring, and report same to the next grand jury. [Acts 1905, 1 S. S., p. 552. Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 451, sec. 12.]

For appointment of officers and supervisors of election in cities, towns, etc., see Arts. 2934 and 785.

Art. 2925. Compensation of judges and clerks.—Judges and clerks of general and special elections shall be paid two dollars a day each; and the judge who delivers the returns of election, immediately after the votes have been counted, shall be paid two dollars for that service; provided, the polling place of his precinct is at least two miles from the court house, and provided, also, he shall make returns of all election supplies not used when he makes return of the election. [Acts 1905, 1 S. S., p. 557, sec. 146.]

Art. 2926. [1752] Payment of compensation; working day.—The compensation of judges and clerks of general and special elections shall be paid by the county treasurer of the county where such services are rendered, upon the order of the commissioners' court of such county; provided, twelve working hours shall be considered a day within the meaning of this article.

Art. 2927. Precincts, order defining to be served on precinct judges.—Precinct judges for all general elections shall be served with copies of the order of the county commissioners' court, properly certified to by the clerk of the said court, designating the number, name and bounds of the election precinct and of their appointment as judges. Such service shall be made by the sheriff or a constable within ten days after the entry of such order, and return shall be made thereof on a copy showing when, where and how he executed the same. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 2928. [1708] [1665b] Presiding officers in unorganized counties.—It shall be the duty of the commissioners' court to which any unorganized county is attached for judicial purposes to appoint some suitable person in each of such unorganized counties to serve as a presiding officer of elections in said unorganized county; which appointment shall be made in the same manner as in the appointment of presiding officers in election precincts in organized counties. [Acts 1881, p. 97.]

Art. 2928a. Submission of proposed constitutional amendment; judges, clerks and supervisors, how selected, etc.—Whenever any proposed amendment to the constitution of this state is to be voted upon by the qualified voters of this state, either at an election held for that purpose or at any election for the state officers, the county chairman of any organization advocating, and the county chairman of any organization opposing the adoption of such amendment, or if such county chairman fails to act, then three members of the county executive committee of any organization advocating, or three members of the county executive committee opposing the adoption of such constitutional amendment may at any time not less than five days before the election at which such proposed amendment is to be voted upon, nominate one judge, one clerk and one supervisor to serve as judge, clerk and supervisor, respectively, for the voting box for which they are so selected, who shall be qualified voters of the voting precinct or box for which they are chosen, by presenting in writing to the county judge of the county the names of such judges, clerks and supervisors so selected, and such county judge shall appoint the parties nominated to act in such capacities at the respective voting precincts and boxes for which they are respectively selected. Should the county judge fail or refuse to appoint such officers, they shall apply to the officers and judges of the voting precinct or box for which they were respectively nominated, and the manager and judges of such precinct or box shall permit such persons so selected to act in the capacities named. [Acts 1911, p. 144, sec. 1.]

Note.—Sections 2, 5–7, relate to purely criminal matters, and are omitted. Contest of election, see Arts. 3078a–3078h.

Submission of constitutional amendments—Prior law.—An amendment of the constitution does not become operative until forty days have elapsed since the election at which it was adopted. The amendment of August 14, 1883, section 9, article 8, became operative September 25, 1883. Water & Gas Co. v. Cleburne, 1 C. A. 580, 21 S. W. 393.

Const. art. 17, § 1, authorizes the legislature to propose amendments to the constitution to be voted upon by the electors which shall be published once a week for four weeks commencing at least three months before the election, "the time of which shall be specified by the legislature." By a joint resolution, Acts 32d Leg. p. 284, which adjourned March 11, 1911, was proposed an amendment relative to the adoption or amendment of city charters, and provided that it should be submitted to the qualified voters of the state at the next general election, or, if any previous election should be held in the state for other purposes, that it should be submitted at such election. The legislature had previously authorized a special election for the purpose of voting upon another amendment which was held on July 22, 1911, but the amendment in question was not submitted. After due proclamation and notice, the amendment was submitted at the general election in November 1912; that being the next general election following the passage of the joint resolution. Held that such submission was legal, since the provision for its submission previous to the general election was contingent and conditional, and did not satisfy the constitutional requirement, and, even if sufficient by itself, could not overcome the definite provision for its submission at the next general election. Cartledge v. Wortham (Sup.) 153 S. W. 299.

Art. 2928b. Judges, clerks and supervisors additional; compensation; duties and powers.—Such judges, clerks and supervisors shall serve in addition to the election officers provided for by the general election laws, and they shall receive the same compensation. Said judges and clerks shall assist in holding and conducting said election, and in receiving and counting the votes cast. Said supervisor shall have the right to watch the conduct of the election, including the counting of the votes, locking and sealing the ballot boxes, their custody and safe return. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2928c. Supervisor to report fraud, etc.; duty of clerk of county court.—Any supervisor who shall discover any fraud or irregularity in the conduct of an election or in counting the votes or in making returns thereof, within five days after said election, shall file a written report under oath with the county clerk of the county in which he resides, setting out fully any irregularity or fraud or semblance thereof occurring in said voting precinct or box that would in any manner affect the true result of said election in said voting precinct. The clerk of the county court of said county shall keep said report on file in his office and shall permit the same to be inspected upon application by any citizen of this state. It shall be the duty of such supervisor to call the attention of the officers holding such election to any fraud, irregularity or mistake, illegal voting attempted, or legal voting prevented, or other failure to comply with the law governing such election at the time it occurs, if practicable, and if he has knowledge thereof at the time; and he shall not report any matter to which he should have called attention at the time, to which he did not call attention at the time, unless he shows some good and sufficient reason why the same was not called to the attention of such election officers. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 2928d. Certain offenses of officers and supervisors.—Any election officer or supervisor who shall intimidate or attempt to intimidate any voter, or knowingly refuse to allow any qualified voter to vote, or any person who, within one hundred feet of the voting box on election day, shall intimidate or attempt to intimidate any qualified voter from voting, or in any manner by word or act attempt to influence any voter to cast his vote for or against any question provided under this Act to be voted upon, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction, shall be fined in any sum not less than $50.00 nor more than $500.00. Provided, further, that the provisions of this section shall not be construed to prevent the officers of the election from assisting any qualified voter in making out his ticket as is provided for under the general election laws. [Id. sec. 5a.]

Art. 2928e. Existing statutes not repealed.—This law shall not repeal any existing statute with reference to the conducting of elections, but shall be cumulative thereof. [Id. sec. 16.]

CHAPTER THREE

ORDERING ELECTIONS, ETC.

Article 2929. Proclamation of election by governor.—Notice shall be given to the people of all elections for state and district officers, electors for president and vice president of the United States, members of congress, members of the legislature and all officers who are elective every two years. Such notices shall be by proclamation by the governor ordering the election, not less than thirty days before the election, issued and mailed to the several county judges. [Acts 1905, 1 S. S., p. 528, sec. 30.]

Art. 2930. Order for election by county judge, etc.; writs of election, etc.—The county judge, or if his office is vacant, or if he fails to act, then two of the county commissioners shall order an election for county and precinct officers, and all other elections which under the law the county judge may be authorized to order. The county judge, or county commissioners, as the case may be, shall issue writs of election ordered by him or them, in which shall be stated the office or offices to be filled by the election or the question to be voted on, or both, as the case may be, and the day of election. [Id. sec. 31.]

Art. 2931. [1725] [1682] Writs of election, how served, etc.—The writs of election and copies of the form of returns shall be delivered to the sheriff of the county, who shall, previous to the day of election, deliver the same to the presiding officer of each election precinct in which the election is ordered to be held, and in case there be no presiding officer in any such election precinct, the writ and form shall be delivered to the qualified voter of such election precinct who resides at or nearest to the voting place in such precinct.

Art. 2932. Invalidated—election not; how.—A failure, from any cause, on the part of the governor or the county judge or commissioners' court, or of both to order or give notice of any general election shall not invalidate the same if otherwise legal and regular. [Id.]

Art. 2933. Notice of election; by whom given; requirements as to.—The county judge, or if he fails to act, then two county commissioners, shall cause notice of a general election or any special election to be published by posting notice of election at each precinct thirty days before the election; which notice shall state the time of holding the election, the office to be filled, or the question to be voted on, as the case may be; provided, that in local option, stock law, and road tax elections, the notices of elections, or any other special election specially provided for by the laws of this state, shall be given in compliance with the requirements of laws heretofore or hereafter enacted governing said elections respectively; and provided, also, that if a vacancy occurs in the state senate or house of representatives during the session of the legislature, or within ten days before it convenes, then twenty days notice of a special election to fill such vacancy shall be sufficient. Posting of notice of an election shall be made by the sheriff or a constable, who shall make return on a copy of the writ, how and when he executed the same. [Id. sec. 33.]

See Ex parte Keith, 83 S. W. 685; Ex parte Neal, Id. 831.

Local option law.—It is not necessary to give the 20 days' notice required by this article in a local option election, but 12 days' notice is sufficient as required by Art. 5718. Roper v. Scurlock, 29 C. A. 464, 69 S. W. 458.

This law [Act of 1903] does not in any of its provisions repeal the provisions of the local option law relating to the period of notice to be given of an election. McHam v. Love, 39 C. A. 512, 87 S. W. 876, 877.

Special election.—This law does not apply to elections held to determine the location of a county seat, because it is a special election provided for by special laws. Wallis v. Williams, 101 T. 395, 108 S. W. 153.

Posting.—Failure to post notice of election held not to render it void, in the absence of showing that such failure affected the result. Wallis v. Williams, 50 C. A. 623, 110 S. W. 785.

Notices posted with knowledge and consent of county clerk is in compliance with the law, though not posted nor caused to be posted by him. McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 285.

Art. 2934. In cities, towns, etc., ordering elections, notice, officers, supervisors.—In all city, town and village elections, the mayor, or if he fails to, then the board of aldermen or the officials in whom authority is vested by law, shall order elections pertaining alone to municipal affairs, give notice and appoint election officers to hold the election, unless a different method be prescribed by the charter of such city, town or village; but, in all cases, supervisors may be selected as in general elections, and the judges and clerks shall each be selected from different political parties when practicable. [Id. sec. 34.]

Art. 2935. Vacancy, order for election to fill, etc.—In all cases of vacancy in a civil office in the state, caused by death or resignation or otherwise, the vacancy of which is to be filled by election, the officer or officers authorized by this title to order elections shall immediately make such order, fixing the day, not exceeding thirty days after the first public notice of such order to fill the unexpired term, and cause like notice to be given and issue writs as provided for in general elections. [Id. sec. 35.]

Art. 2936. [1805] [1754] In case of a tie another election shall be held.—Whenever, at any election, there shall be an equal number of votes given to two or more persons for the same office, except executive offices as provided in the constitution, and no one elected thereto, the officer to whom the returns are made shall declare such election void as to such office only, and shall immediately order another election to fill such office; and notice shall be given, and such other election shall be held in the same manner as is provided in other elections. [Act Aug. 23, 1876, p. 310, sec. 24. P. D. 3606.]

New election in case of tie.—See notes under Art. 3063.

Art. 2937. Forms of blanks furnished by secretary of state.—The secretary of state shall, at least thirty days before the general election, prescribe to the county judge of each county forms of all blanks necessary under this title. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 528, sec. 32.]

CHAPTER FOUR

SUFFRAGE

Article 2938. Qualifications for voting; who not qualified.—The following classes of persons shall not be allowed to vote in this state:

1. Persons under twenty-one years of age.
2. Idiots and lunatics.
3. All paupers supported by the county.
4. All persons convicted of any felony, except those restored to full citizenship and right of suffrage, or pardoned.
5. All soldiers, marines and seamen employed in the service of the army or navy of the United States. [Acts 1905, 1 S. S., p. 520, sec. 1.]

Nature of right to vote.—The right to vote is not an incident to citizenship, but is a right which may be conferred, modified, or withdrawn by the people in the exercise of their sovereign will. Solon v. State, 54 Cr. R. 261, 114 S. W. 349.

The exercise of the elective franchise held a right conferred by the state or body politic. Savage v. Umphries (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 893.

Illiteracy.—Illiteracy is not a cause for disqualification of voters; but there must be an honest compliance with the statute in marking their ballots, so as to give effect to their desires. State v. Pease (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 649.

Members of national guard.—A member of the national guard employed in the service of the army of the United States, is not, under the state constitution, entitled to vote. Savage v. Umphries (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 893.

Art. 2939. [1731] Qualifications for voting; who qualified.—Every male person subject to none of the foregoing disqualifications who shall have attained the age of twenty-one years, and who shall be a citizen of the United States, and who shall have resided in this state one year next preceding an election, and the last six months within the district or county in which he offers to vote, shall be deemed a qualified elector; and every male person of foreign birth, subject to none of the foregoing disqualifications, who has, not less than six months before an election in which he offers to vote, declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States, in accordance with the federal naturalization laws, and shall have resided in this state one year next preceding such election and the last six months in the county in which he offers to vote, shall also be deemed a qualified voter; and all electors shall vote in the voting precinct of their residence; provided, that the electors living in an unorganized county may vote at an election precinct in the county to which such county is attached for judicial purposes; and provided, further, that any voter who is subject to pay his poll tax under the laws of the state of Texas or ordinances of any city or town in this state, shall have paid said tax before he offers to vote at any election in this state, and hold a receipt showing the payment of his poll tax before the first day of February next preceding such election; and, if he is exempt from paying a poll tax and resides in a city of ten thousand inhabitants or more, he must procure a certificate showing his exemption, as required by this title. Or, if such voter shall have lost or misplaced said tax receipt, he shall be entitled to vote, upon making affidavit before any officer authorized to administer oaths that such tax was actually paid by him before said first day of February next preceding such election at which he offers to vote, and that said receipt has been lost. Such affidavit shall be made in writing and left with the judge of the election. Provided, that in any election held only in a subdivision of a county for the purpose of determining any local question or proposition affecting only such subdivision of the county, then, in addition to the foregoing qualifications, the voter must have resided in said subdivision of the county for six months next preceding such election. [Id. sec. 2.]

Adding to qualifications—Powers of legislature.—The legislature, while not entitled to add to the qualifications of voters, may nevertheless make such regulations as shall detect and punish fraud and preserve the purity of the ballot. Solon v. State, 54 Cr. R. 261, 114 S. W. 349.

Payment of poll tax.—Where one paid his state poll tax within the time required by law, it was immaterial, so far as it affected his qualification as an elector in P. county, whether he paid the tax there or in another county. Savage v. Umphries (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 893.

A resident was disqualified to vote at a general election November 8, 1910, where he failed to pay his poll tax for 1909 in the county of his former residence; he not having left there until March, 1909, though he paid the poll tax in the county where he voted—it being a voluntary payment, not due. Linger v. Balfour (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 795.

Residence.—Intention of voter to retain residence where he had been living held to entitle him to vote there, though he slept and ate elsewhere. Rathgen v. French, 22 C. A. 439, 55 S. W. 578.

The day of a voter's arrival or the day of election should be excluded in determining the length of his residence in the county. McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 278.

A citizen of the United States, who had actually resided in the state 12 months and in the county 6 months prior to casting his vote, held qualified. Savage v. Umphries (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 893.

A minor, residing for 12 months in the state with his father's consent, became a resident and entitled to vote on attaining his majority, though the father was absent from the state part of the time. Id.

A person was disqualified to vote at a general election November 8, 1910, where he resided in another county January 1, 1909, was subject to payment of a poll tax to that county for that year, which he did not pay, and did not reside in the particular county, in good faith, for six months next preceding the election. Linger v. Balfour (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 795.

That an unmarried university student during a vacation went to a particular town and declared his intention of becoming a resident thereof, and went from the university to that place to vote, sufficiently shows that he resided therein, rendering his vote legal. Id.

County election.—In order to vote for county officers a voter must have resided twelve months in the state and six months in the county and must be a resident of the election precinct in which he votes. Little v. State, 75 T. 616, 12 S. W. 965.

Art. 2940. Qualifications for voting in city elections.—All qualified electors of this state, as described in articles 2938 and 2939, who shall have resided for six months immediately preceding an election within the limits of any city or incorporated town shall have a right to vote for mayor and all other elective officers; but, in all elections to determine the expenditure of money or assumption of debt, or issuance of bonds, only those shall be qualified to vote who pay taxes on property in such city or incorporated town; provided, that no poll tax for the payment of debts thus incurred shall be levied upon the person debarred from voting in relation thereto. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 2941. "Residence" defined.—The "residence" of a single man is where he usually sleeps at night; that of a married man is where his wife resides, or if he be permanently separated from his wife, his residence is where he sleeps at night; provided, that the residence of one who is an inmate or officer of a public asylum or eleemosynary institute, or who is employed as a clerk in one of the departments of government at the capital of this state, or who is a student of a college or university, unless such officer, clerk, inmate or student has become a bona fide resident citizen in the county where he is employed, or is such student, shall be construed to be where his home was before he became such inmate or officer in such eleemosynary institution or asylum or was employed as such clerk or became such student; and, if on payment of his poll tax he would be a qualified voter, he shall be permitted to return during the month of January in each year to his home to pay his poll tax or obtain his certificate of exemption, and shall be permitted to return again to his home to vote at any general or primary election. The inmates of the Confederate home situate within the limits of the city of Austin shall, after obtaining their certificates of exemption, be entitled to vote for state, district, municipal and county officers. [Id. sec. 4.]

See Davis v. Riley (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 314.

Application.—A married man living with his wife may be an actual settler on school lands, though his wife does not actually reside with him thereon, if the separation is merely temporary, and both intend at the earliest practicable moment permanently to reside thereon as their home. Chesser v. Baughman, 22 C. A. 435, 55 S. W. 134.

Under this article, if an unmarried man has a room or habitation to which he usually returns, and where he usually sleeps at such times when he is not actively engaged in work elsewhere, his voting residence is in the precinct where such room or habitation is located. Linger v. Balfour (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 795.

Art. 2942. Poll tax collected from whom; when paid; receipt.—The poll tax required by the constitution and laws in force shall be collected from every male person between the ages of twenty-one and sixty who resided in this state on the first day of January preceding its levy, Indians not taxed, persons insane, blind, deaf or dumb and those who have lost a hand or foot, or permanently disabled, excepted; which tax shall be collected and accounted for by the tax collector each year and appropriated as required by law. It shall be paid at any time between the first day of October and the first day of February following; and the person, when he pays it, shall be entitled to his poll tax receipt, even if his other taxes are unpaid. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 2943. Poll tax, who not required to pay.—Every male person who is more than sixty years old or who is blind or deaf and dumb, or is permanently disabled, or has lost one hand or foot, shall be entitled to vote without being required to pay a poll tax, if he has obtained his certificate of exemption from the county collector when the same is required by the provisions of this title. [Id. sec. 6.]

Blind or permanently disabled.—One who kept a cold drink stand waited on his customers, could put soda water bottles in his ice box, assort them, get the right article called for and give the right change, is not blind or permanently disabled within the meaning of the election law. McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 283.

Art. 2944. Mode of paying poll tax.—If the taxpayer does not reside in a city of ten thousand inhabitants or more, his poll tax must either be paid by him in person or by some one duly authorized by him in writing to pay the same, and to furnish the collector the information necessary to fill out the blanks in the poll tax receipt. Such authority and information must be signed by the party who owes the poll tax, and must be deposited with the tax collector and filed and preserved by him. [Id. sec. 16.]

Payment of tax.—Failure of voter to pay poll tax in person held not to disfranchise him. Wallis v. Williams, 50 C. A. 623, 110 S. W. 785.

Unauthorized payment of another's poll tax by a volunteer with the latter's own money does not authorize the former to vote. Linger v. Balfour (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 795.

Since payment by a citizen of his poll tax at any other place than the office of the collector does not in law constitute a payment of the tax, so as to entitle the taxpayer to a receipt on which he can vote, unless made to a deputy in a town of 10,000 inhabitants other than the county seat, payment of poll taxes by citizens not residing in such a town, on January 30, 1912, to a private agent authorized to pay the same to the tax collector and receive the receipts, which did not reach the tax collector until the 1st and 2d days of February, 1912, did not entitle the taxpayers to receipts dated as of January 31, 1912, so as to enable them to vote thereon. Davis v. Riley (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 314.

Art. 2945. Same subject.—In all cases where the taxpayer resides in a city of ten thousand inhabitants or more, the tax must be paid in person by the taxpayer entitled to the receipt, except as provided by this article. If a person residing in a city of ten thousand inhabitants who is subject to pay a poll tax, intends to leave the precinct of his residence before the first day of October, with the intention not to return until after the first day of the following February, and does not return before that time, he shall be entitled to vote, if possessing all other legal qualifications, by paying his poll tax or obtaining his certificate of exemption through an agent authorized by him in writing, which shall state truly his intention to depart from the precinct, the expected period of his absence, and every fact necessary to enable the tax collector to fill the blanks in his receipt. Such authority, in fact, must be sworn to by the citizen and certified to by some officer authorized to administer oaths. It shall be deposited with the tax collector and kept in his office. [Id. secs. 16 and 25.]

Art. 2945a. Tax receipt not to be delivered to agent, etc.—When, in cases permitted by this title, the tax is paid by an agent, the tax receipt shall not be delivered to such agent, but shall be sent by mail to the taxpayer or kept and delivered to him in person by the tax collector. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 2946. Candidate, etc., not to pay poll tax of another; provided, etc.—In no event shall any candidate for office pay the poll tax for another. And no person shall for, or on behalf of, any candidate for office or person interested in any question to be voted on, pay the poll tax for another; provided, that any person who has bought the property of another, which property is legally bound for the payment of any poll tax, may pay the poll tax of such former owner; but the collector in such case shall not issue a poll tax receipt authorizing any person to vote, but shall give the party paying the same an ordinary memorandum receipt therefor; but such memorandum receipts shall not state either the race, occupation or residence of the taxpayer. [Id. sec. 16.]

Election illegal.—When a sufficient number of voters, whose poll taxes have been bought for them, vote at an election and thus make the verdict at the polls a false verdict, the election is illegal and fraudulent and should be set aside. Whaley v. Thomason, 41 C. A. 405, 93 S. W. 213.

Art. 2947. No one to give money to another to pay poll tax.—No one shall knowingly give money to a citizen to pay his poll tax. [Id. sec. 27.]

Constitutionality.—In view of Const. art. 16, § 2, and article 6, § 4, the provision making it a misdemeanor to lend or advance money to be used to pay poll tax, is not unconstitutional as an unreasonable abridgment of the right to contract nor of the privileges and immunities guaranteed by Const. U. S. Amend. 14, § 1, nor as infringing the right to freely dispose of property, nor as being unreasonable, arbitrary, and in violation of Bill of Rights of Texas, § 19, as disfranchising without due process of law nor as violating Bill of Rights of Texas, § 3, by denying to persons of a class public privileges conferred upon others citizens, nor as a deprivation of equal protection of the laws, nor as abridging the qualifications of voters, and placing a burden not authorized by the state constitution. Watts v. State, 61 Cr. R. 364, 135 S. W. 585.

Art. 2948. No one to keep poll tax of another, except.—No one shall keep the poll tax receipt of another person in his possession or under his control, except in cases specially authorized by law. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 2949. Poll tax receipt shall show what.—Each poll tax receipt and its duplicate shall show the name of the party for whom it was issued, the payment of the tax, age, his race, the length of time he has resided in the state, the length of time he has resided in the county, the voting precinct in which he lives, except when he lives in an unorganized county, his occupation, his postoffice address, or, if he lives in an incorporated city, ward, street and number of his residence, if numbered, and the length of time he has resided in such city or town. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 2950. Poll tax receipt, form of.—The poll tax receipt shall be in the following form, and numbered consecutively in each book provided for in this title:

Poll Tax Receipt

No.....

State of Texas, county of.....

Received of ..... on the ..... day of ..... A. D. 19...., the sum of ..... dollars, in payment of poll tax for the year A. D. 19.....

The said taxpayer being duly sworn by me, says that he is ..... years old, that he resides in voting precinct No. ..... in ..... county, that his race is ....., that he has resided in Texas ..... years, and in ..... county ..... years, that he is by occupation ....., that his postoffice address is .....

(If in an incorporated city or town, a blank must be provided for the ward, street and number of residence in lieu of his postoffice address, and length of time he has resided in such city or town.)

All of which I certify.

Tax Collector .....County, Texas.

[Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 2951. Poll tax receipt, etc., in case of removal to another ward of city over 10,000.—If a citizen in a city of ten thousand inhabitants, after receiving his poll tax receipt or certificate of exemption, removes to another ward in the same city before the next election, he may vote at any general election in the ward of his new residence by presenting his poll tax receipt or certificate of exemption to the precinct election judges, or by making affidavit that it has been lost or misplaced; which affidavit shall be left with the judges and be forwarded with the election returns. But, in all such cases, if the removal was to the ward of his new residence in the same city before the certified list of voters was delivered to the precinct judges, he shall appear before the collector of taxes not less than five days before such election or primary election, and obtain a corrected receipt or certificate; and his name shall be added to the list of voters for the precinct of his new residence; and he shall not vote in that event, unless his name appears on the certified list of voters. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 2952. Poll tax receipt in case of removal to another county or precinct; proviso.—If a citizen, after receiving his poll tax receipt or certificate of exemption, removes to another county or to another precinct in the same county, he may vote at an election in the precinct of his new residence in such other county or precinct by presenting his poll tax receipt or his certificate of exemption or his written affidavit of its loss to the precinct judges of election, and stating in such affidavit where he paid such poll tax or received such certificate of exemption, and by making oath that he is the identical person described in such poll tax receipt or certificate of exemption, and that he then resides in the precinct where he offers to vote and has resided for the last six months in the district or county in which he offers to vote and twelve months in the state. But no such person shall be permitted to vote in a city of ten thousand inhabitants or more, unless he has first presented to the tax collector of his residence a tax receipt or certificate, not less than four days prior to such election or primary election or made affidavit of its loss and stating in such affidavit where he paid such poll tax or received such certificate of exemption; and the collector shall thereupon add his name to the list of qualified voters of the precinct of his new residence; and, unless such voter has done this and his name appears in the certified list of voters of the precinct of his new residence, he shall not vote. [Id. sec. 22.]

Length of residence.—Under this article, no particular length of residence is required in the new precinct, where the voter moves from one precinct to another in the same county. Linger v. Balfour (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 795.

Art. 2953. Exemption certificate in cities over 10,000; requisites, etc.; form.—Every person who is exempted by law from the payment of a poll tax and who is in other respects a qualified voter, who resides in a city of ten thousand inhabitants or more, shall, after the first day of October and before the first day of February following, before he offers to vote, obtain from the tax collector of the county of his residence a certificate showing his exemption from the payment of a poll tax. Such exempt person shall, on oath, state his name, county of his residence, occupation, race, age, the length of time he has resided in Texas, the length of time he has resided in the county and the length of time he has resided in the city, and the ward and voting precinct in which his residence is located, the street and number of his residence, if numbered. He shall also state the grounds on which he claims exemption from the payment of a poll tax. Such certificate shall be detached from said book, leaving thereunder a duplicate carbon or other copy thereof which shall contain the same description; and the original shall be delivered, bearing its proper number, to the citizen in person to identify him in voting. Certificates of exemption for each precinct shall be numbered consecutively, beginning at one. They shall be in the following form:

Certificate of Exemption from Poll Tax

No. .....

State of Texas, county of .....

I ....., tax collector for said county, Texas, do hereby certify that ..... personally appeared before me on the ..... day of ..... A. D. ....., and being sworn, said his name is ....., that his race is ....., that he is ..... years old, that his occupation is ....., that he has resided in Texas for ..... years, in the county of ..... for ..... years, and in the city of ..... for ..... years, that he now resides in precinct No. ....., in ward No. .....; and on ..... street, and in house No. ..... (if numbered); that he is exempt from the payment of the poll tax by reason of ..... and that he is a qualified voter under the constitution and laws of Texas.

Tax Collector.....County, Texas.

[Id. sec. 19.]

Certificate of exemption.—School Law, § 103 [Art. 3093], seems to apply only to special elections, and does not attempt to prescribe how the population is to be ascertained in procuring the certificate of exemption as required by section 19 of this law [Art. 2953]. McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 287.

Art. 2954. Minor reaching majority between Feb. 1, and election day, certificate.—Every male person who will reach the age of twenty-one years after the first day of February and before the day of a following election at which he wishes to vote, and who possesses all the other qualifications of a voter shall be entitled to vote at such election, if he has obtained a certificate of exemption from the county collector before the first day of February, which shall specify the day when he will be twenty-one years old, and contain all the other requisites of a certificate of exemption. Before the certificate of exemption shall issue, the applicant therefor shall make written affidavit of his age, to be administered and certified to by the county collector, who shall file and preserve the same. [Id. sec. 23.]

Certificates of exemption.—It was error to sustain exception to an allegation in petition contesting an election that certain voters named arrived at twenty-one years of age after January 1st of the year in which election was held and had failed to secure certificates of exemption as required by this section, because the contestants had a right to show this fact. Savage v. Umphries (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 900, 901.

A citizen, who became of age June 29, 1909, was disqualified to vote at an election held November 8, 1910, where he failed to appear before the tax collector before February 1, 1910, to make the affidavit and secure the certificate of exemption required by this article, though he paid the poll tax after the year 1910, to which he was not subject, and which had not been assessed against him. Linger v. Balfour (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 795.

A person, who became of age June 11, 1909, was disqualified to vote November 8, 1910, where he did not make affidavit and secure the certificate of exemption from poll tax, required by this article. Id.

A person, who became of age July 20, 1909, was disqualified to vote November 8, 1910, where he failed to make affidavit and secure a certificate of exemption from poll tax, as required by this article. Id.

Art. 2955. Poll tax in unorganized counties.—The poll tax due from citizens of unorganized counties shall be paid in the county to which the unorganized county is attached for judicial purposes. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 2956. Poll tax receipt, etc., books, furnished by commissioners to collector; requisites.—The commissioners' court of each county shall, before the first day of October every year, furnish to the county tax collector a blank book for each voting precinct, which shall be marked with the name and number of the precinct for which it is intended. Each book shall contain a sufficient number of blank poll tax receipts for each voting precinct not in a city of ten thousand inhabitants or more, and not exceeding three hundred and fifty blank poll tax receipts and certificates of exemptions for each precinct in a city of ten thousand inhabitants or more, of which not more than sixty shall be certificates of exemptions, and a greater or less number of each in the same proportion when sufficient for the voters of the precinct. Each receipt and certificate shall, in each such book, be bound immediately over a duplicate copy thereof; which duplicate copy, when filled out, shall correspond with the receipt or certificate in its number, the name, length of residence in the state or county, the voting precinct, race, occupation and postoffice address of the citizen to whom the tax receipt or certificate of exemption is given. If the voting is in a city, the receipt or certificate and duplicate must show the ward, street and number, if numbered, of the citizen's residence (in lieu of postoffice address); and the length of time he has resided in such city. The receipts and certificates shall be numbered in consecutive order. Similar blank books of poll tax receipts shall be furnished to each unorganized county attached to such county for judicial purposes, except that the voting precinct need not appear therein. When the tax receipt or certificate is delivered to the citizen, it shall be detached from the book and retained by him for his future use and identification in voting. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 2957. Poll tax deputy to be appointed, etc., in certain counties.—In all counties containing a city of ten thousand inhabitants or more, other than the county seat of such county, it shall be the duty of such collector to have a duly authorized and sworn deputy to represent him for the purpose of accepting poll taxes and giving receipts therefor, who shall keep his office for such purpose at some convenient place in such city during the entire month of January of each year, and he shall publish four weeks notice of the authority of such deputy and the location of the office. [Id. sec. 17.]

Payment of tax.—See notes under Art. 2944.

Art. 2958. Collector may administer oaths, etc.—The county collector is authorized to administer oaths and certify thereto under the seal of his office in every case where an oath is required in complying with any portion of this title connected with his official duties. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 2959. Residence, proof of, when; false statement reported to grand jury.—If the county collector does not personally know one who applies to pay his poll tax or secure his certificate of exemption from its payment, as being a resident in the precinct which such person claims as that of his residence, it shall be the duty of such collector to require proof of such residence; and, if he has reason to believe such person has falsely stated his age, occupation, precinct of his residence, or the length of his residence in the state, county and city, he shall require proof of such statement; and, if on inquiry, he is satisfied that said person has sworn falsely, he shall make a memorandum of the words used in such statement, and present the same to the foreman of the next grand jury. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 2960. False swearing to be reported to grand jury.—Whenever the county collector shall have reason to believe that a citizen who has paid his poll tax or received a certificate of exemption has sworn falsely to obtain the same, he shall report the facts upon which such belief is founded to the next grand jury organized in the county. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 2961. Lists of poll taxpayers, etc., furnished by collector to board, and by board to judges; requisites.—Before the first day of April every year, the county collector of taxes shall deliver to the board that is charged with the duty of furnishing election supplies separate certified lists of the citizens in each precinct who have paid their poll tax or received their certificates of exemption, the names being arranged in alphabetical order, and to each name its appropriate number, as shown by the duplicates retained in his office, with a description of the voter as to his residence, his voting precinct, length of his residence in the state and county, his race, occupation and postoffice address if not in a city of more than ten thousand inhabitants. If the county has any unorganized county or counties attached to it for judicial purposes, the collector of taxes shall also deliver to said board, before the first day of April of each year, as many certified lists of the electors resident in such unorganized county or counties who have paid their poll tax or received the certificate of exemption as there are election precincts in his county; which lists shall be identical with those of poll taxpayers in his own county, except that the voting precinct shall not be stated. The tax collector of any county containing a town or city of more than ten thousand inhabitants shall also furnish to said board, not less than four days prior to any primary or general election, supplemental lists in the form herein prescribed, of all poll taxpaying voters who have, since paying their poll tax, removed to each voting precinct in each such city or town in the county from another county or in another precinct in the same county. Said board shall furnish each presiding judge of a precinct the certified list and supplemental list of the voters of his precinct at the time when he furnishes other election supplies. Such certified lists of qualified voters shall be in the following form:

Voters in Election Precinct

No. .....
Name .....
Precinct .....
Age .....
Length of residence in state.....
Length of residence in county.....
Occupation .....
Race .....
Length of residence in city and ward.....
Street and No. of residence.....
Postoffice address.....
[Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 2962. Poll tax receipts, duplicates to be securely kept, etc.—The county collector shall keep securely in a safe place the duplicates for each precinct from which such poll tax receipts and certificates of exemption have been detached; and they must remain there except when taken out for examination, which must always be done in his presence, but they shall be burned by the county judge at the expiration of three years. [Id. sec. 29.]

Art. 2963. Poll tax receipts, statement of, by collector.—On or before the tenth day of March of each year, the collector of taxes shall make statement to the county clerk showing how many poll tax receipts he has issued; said statement shall show how many poll tax receipts have been issued and to whom issued in each voting precinct in the county; and such statement shall become a record of the county commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 28.]

OFFICIAL BALLOT

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 2964. Ballot, vote shall be by; numbering; safeguards, etc.; no registration; cities included.—In all elections by the people, the vote shall be by official ballot, which shall be numbered, and elections so guarded and conducted as to detect fraud and preserve the purity of the ballot. No registration in cities with a population of ten thousand or more shall be hereafter required as a qualification to vote, but all the provisions of this title which prescribe qualifications for voting and which regulate the holding of elections, shall apply to elections in cities. [Acts 1905, 1 S. S., p. 521, sec. 5.]

Art. 2965. Ballot, official, required; to contain what.—No ballot shall be used in voting at any general, primary or special election held to elect public officers, select candidates for office or determine questions submitted to a vote of the people, except the official ballot, unless otherwise authorized by law. At the top of the official ballot shall be printed in large letters the words "Official Ballot." It shall contain the printed names of all candidates whose nominations for an elective office have been duly made and properly certified. The names shall appear on the ballot under the title of the party that nominates them, except as otherwise provided by this title. [Id. sec. 46.]

Does not apply to special election under special law.—This law does not apply in the case of a special election held under a special law. The law itself contains this provision. Orrick v. City of Ft. Worth, 52 C. A. 308, 114 S. W. 684.

Does not apply to local option.—This section does not control in case of local option election. Hash v. Ely, 45 C. A. 259, 100 S. W. 981.

This law does not control in local option elections, and therefore in such elections the presiding judge need not write his name on the back of the ballots. Even if the Terrell election law controlled in such elections, the failure of the judge to so write his name could not vitiate an election if in all other respects it was a fair election. Ex parte Anderson, 51 Cr. R. 239, 102 S. W. 728.

This (Terrell election) law does not apply to local option elections where there is a conflict, but the local option law prevails. Walker v. Mobley, 101 T. 28, 103 S. W. 491.

This case was certified to the supreme court, and it was there held that the general election law does not apply to local option elections as to matters in which there is a conflict, and that so far as a conflict exists, the local option statute will prevail and its provisions be applied to the conduct and management of local option elections. Hence the presiding judge need not write his name on the ballot, and it is of no consequence who may write it thereon. Walker v. Mobley (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 63, 64.

Effect of noncompliance.—A failure to comply with this article, prohibiting the use of any ballot except the official ballot, containing the words "Official Ballot," does not invalidate an election. Altgelt v. Callaghan (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1166.

Art. 2966. No candidate on ballot, except, etc.—No name shall appear on the official ballot except that of a candidate who was actually nominated (either as a party nominee or as a non-partisan or independent candidate) in accordance with the provisions of this title. [Id. sec. 118.]

Name of candidate—Mistake in initial.—A person named J. R. Harper held elected where he was the only candidate of the same surname, though some of the ballots bore the name of J. H. Harper, who was a brother of the nominee. Davis v. Harper, 17 C. A. 88, 42 S. W. 788.

—— Failure to disclose office.—Where defendant was running for an office, and there was no one with a similar name running at the election, a ballot having his name on it will be counted for him, though it did not disclose the office. State v. Mahncke, 16 C. A. 560, 41 S. W. 185.

Art. 2967. Candidates of certain parties not on ballot unless, etc.—The name of no candidate of any political party that cast one hundred thousand votes or more at the last preceding general election shall be printed on any official ballot for a general election, unless nominated by primary election, on primary election day, except as herein otherwise provided. [Id. sec. 52.]

Art. 2968. Vacancy, where nominee declines or dies, etc., substitution on ballot, etc.—Where a nominee shall have declined his nomination, or shall have died, and the vacancy so created shall have been filled, and such facts shall have been certified in accordance with the provisions of article 3172, thereupon the secretary of state or county judge, as the case may be, shall promptly notify the official board created by this act to furnish election supplies that such vacancy has occurred, and the name of the new nominee shall then be printed upon the official ballot, if the ballots are not already printed. If such declination or death of the nominee occurs after the ballots are printed, or due notice of the name of the new nominee is received after such printing, the official board charged with the duty of furnishing election supplies shall prepare as many pasters bearing the name of the new nominee as there are official ballots, which shall be pasted over the name of the former nominee on the official ballot before the presiding judge of the precinct indorses his name on the ballot for identification.

No paster shall be used except as herein authorized, and if otherwise used the names pasted shall not be counted. [Id. sec. 50.]

Art. 2969. Ballots, how printed; form, etc.; manner of voting.—All ballots shall be printed with black ink on clear white paper of sufficient thickness to prevent the marks thereon to be seen through the paper, and of uniform style. The tickets of each political party shall be placed or printed on one ballot, arranged side by side in columns separated by parallel rule. The space which shall contain the title of the office and the name of the candidate (or candidates, if more than one is to be voted for for the same office) shall be of uniform style and type on said tickets. At the head of each ticket shall be printed the name of the party. When a party has not nominated a full ticket, the titles of those nominated shall be in position opposite to the same office in a full ticket, and the titles of the offices shall be printed in the corresponding positions in spaces where no nominations have been made. In the blank columns and independent columns, the titles of the offices shall be printed in all blank spaces to correspond with a full ticket. When presidential electors are to be voted on, their names shall appear at the heads of their respective tickets. When constitutional amendments or other propositions are to be voted on, the same shall appear once on each ballot in uniform style and type. When a voter desires to vote a ticket straight, he shall run a pencil or pen through all other tickets on the official ballot, making a distinct marked line through such ticket not intended to be voted; and when he shall desire to vote a mixed ticket he shall do so by running a line through the names of such candidates as he shall desire to vote against in the ticket he is voting, and by writing the name of the candidate for whom he desires to vote in the blank column and in the space provided for such office; same to be written with black ink or pencil, unless the names of the candidates for which he desires to vote appear on the ballot, in which event he shall leave the same not scratched. [Id. sec. 53.]

For provision prohibiting any symbol or device, etc., on ballot for primary or general election, see Arts. 3096 and 3097.

Application.—The election law of 1905, prescribing the kind of ballots to be used, does not apply to an election held to determine the location of a county seat. Wallis v. Williams, 50 C. A. 623, 110 S. W. 785.

Rule of construction.—All statutes tending to limit the exercise of the elective franchise by the citizen should be liberally construed in his favor, and unless the ticket comes within the law of prohibition against a particular kind of ticket, it should be counted if the party is entitled to vote. Owens v. Jennet, 64 T. 500; Millican v. Phillips, 63 T. 390, 51 Am. Rep. 646.

The statute regulating ballots that may be used at an election should be strictly construed. The printing of the name of the political party to which the candidate belongs will not vitiate the ticket. Nor is it vitiated by the fact that at a general election the names of more than one political party are found on the ticket above the names of the candidates who belong, respectively, to such parties. Williams v. State, 69 T. 368, 6 S. W. 845. See State v. Connor, 86 T. 133, 23 S. W. 1103; Id. (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 815.

Candidates for president.—The statute does not prohibit the printing of the names of popular candidates for president and vice president, and the counties in which presidential electors reside, upon the tickets voted at a general election at which presidential electors are chosen. Owens v. Jennet, 64 T. 500.

Shape.—A ballot printed on diamond-shaped paper is not by reason of the shape of the paper invalid. Millican v. Phillips, 63 T. 390, 51 Am. Rep. 646.

Separate ballots.—This and the following article, and Act Aug. 19, 1910 (Acts 31st Leg. [3d Ex. Sess.] c. 6), providing for an election in a city on a new charter, and declaring that the order of the council shall direct the printing of the ballots which shall read "for the new charter" and "against the new charter," do not prohibit separate ballots containing the words "for the new charter" and "against the new charter," so that the use of separate ballots will not invalidate the election. Altgelt v. Callaghan (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1166.

Effect of noncompliance.—Violation of statutory directions respecting official ballots held not to vitiate the votes. Short v. Gouger (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 267.

The failure to comply with this article does not render ballots invalid, and votes cast are properly counted. Altgelt v. Callaghan (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1166.

Art. 2970. Ballot, further regulations as to.—The name of no candidate shall appear more than once upon the official ballot, except as a candidate for two or more offices permitted by the constitution to be held by the same person. The name of the candidate nominated by any political party shall appear on the ballot, and under the head of the party making such nomination. [Id. sec. 49.]

Art. 2971. Constitutional amendment and other questions, how submitted.—When a constitutional amendment or other question submitted by the legislature is to be voted on, the form in which it is submitted shall be described by the governor in his proclamation in such terms as to give the voter a clear idea of the scope and character of the amendment, and printed once at the bottom of each ballot as described by this title, the words "for" and "against" under it; provided, the legislature has failed to prescribe a form. If a proposition or question is to be voted on by the people of any city, county or other subdivision of the state, the form in which such proposition shall be voted on shall be prescribed by the local or municipal authority submitting it. [Id. sec. 4.]

See Arts. 2928a–2928d, 3078a–3078g.

Separate ballots.—See notes under Art. 2969.

Art. 2972. Ballot, any, at school election, city, etc.—At the election of school district officers or school officers for a city, town or village, at which no officer is to be elected, or election of officers of fire departments, any ballot may be used prescribed by local authorities. [Id. sec. 51.]

Art. 2973. Ballots, how many furnished.—For each voting precinct, there shall be furnished one and a half times as many official ballots as there are qualified voters in the precinct, as shown by the list required to be furnished by the tax collector to precinct judges. [Id. sec. 48.]

Art. 2974. Ballots (counted) etc., delivered to judges.—The official ballots to be counted before delivery and sealed up and together with the instruction cards, with poll lists, tally sheets, distance markers, returning blanks and stationery, shall be delivered to the precinct judges, and the number of each indorsed on the package, and entered of record by the county clerk in the minutes of the commissioners' court. In like manner, shall be sent the list of qualified voters for the precinct, certified to by the collector, if the presiding judge has not already received it. [Id. sec. 44.]

Art. 2975. Ballots, voters may provide when.—If, from any cause, the official ballots furnished for an election precinct have been exhausted or not delivered to the precinct judges, the voters may provide their own ballot after the style of the official ballot described in this title. [Id. sec. 47.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Ballot and vote distinguished.—"Ballot" and "vote" distinguished. Clary v. Hurst, 104 T. 423, 138 S. W. 566.

CHAPTER SIX

SUPPLIES, ARRANGEMENTS, AND EXPENSES OF ELECTION

Article 2976. Booths, voting, required in cities of 10,000 and over.—Voting booths shall be furnished and used at elections at each voting precinct in towns or cities of ten thousand inhabitants or more. [Acts 1905, 1 S. S., p. 529, sec. 37.]

Art. 2977. Booths, voting, and guard rails.—There shall be one voting booth or place for every seventy citizens who, at the last general election paid their poll tax or obtained certificates of exemption from its payment, and who reside in the voting precinct; provided, the judges of the election may provide as many more booths and places as they shall deem necessary. Each polling place, whether provided with voting booths or not, shall be provided with a guard rail, so constructed and placed that only such persons as are inside of such guard rail can approach the ballot boxes or compartments, places or booths at which the voters are to prepare their votes, and that no person outside of the guard rail can approach nearer than six feet of the place where the voter prepares his ballot. The arrangement shall be such that neither the ballot boxes nor the voting booths nor the voters while preparing their ballots shall be hidden from view of those outside the guard rail, or from the judges, and yet the same shall be far enough removed and so arranged that the voter may conveniently prepare his ballot for voting in secrecy. There shall be provided in each voting place voting booths where voting booths are required, with three sides closed and the front side open. Each booth shall be twenty-two inches wide on the inside, thirty-two inches deep and six feet four inches high, and shall contain a shelf for convenience of the voter in preparing his ballot; and the booths shall be so constructed with hinges that they can be folded up for storage when not in use. [Id. sec. 38.]

Art. 2978. Same subject.—Every guard rail shall be provided with a place for entrance and exit. The arrangement of the polling place shall be such that the booths or places prepared for voting can only be reached by passing within the guard rail; and the booths, ballot boxes, election officers and every part of the polling place, except the inside of the booths, shall be in plain view of the election officers and persons outside the guard rail, among whom may be one challenger for each political party and no more. [Id. sec. 40.]

Art. 2979. Booths, voting.—The voting booths shall be so arranged that there shall be no access to them through any doors, window or opening except through the front of the booth; and the same care shall be observed in precincts where there are no booths in protecting the voter from intrusion while he is preparing his ballot. [Id. sec. 41.]

Art. 2980. Guard rails, and screened shelf, etc., when booth not required.—When voting booths are not required, a guard rail shall be so placed that no one not authorized can approach nearer than six feet of the voter while he is preparing his ballot; and a shelf for writing shall be prepared for him, with black lead pencil, and so screened that no other person can see how he prepares his ballot. All booths and voting places shall be properly lighted. [Id. sec. 42.]

Art. 2981. Ballot boxes.—For each election precinct, there shall be provided four ballot boxes to be marked as follows: "Ballot box No. 1 for election precinct No. ....." (giving name and number of precinct); "Ballot box No. 2 for election precinct No. .....;" "Ballot box No. 3 for election precinct No. .....;" "Ballot box No. 4 for election precinct No. ....." [Id. sec. 43.]

Ballot box defined.—"Ballot box" defined.—Clary v. Hurst, 104 T. 423, 138 S. W. 566.

Art. 2982. Ballot boxes, how made.—All ballot boxes shall be securely made of metal or wood, provided with a top, hinges, lock and key, and an opening shall be made at the top of each just large enough to receive a ballot when polled. [Id. sec. 62.]

Art. 2983. Board to provide election supplies.—The county judge, county clerk and sheriff shall constitute a board, a majority of whom may act, to provide the supplies necessary to hold and conduct the election, all of which shall be delivered to the presiding judges of the election by the sheriff or any constable of the county, when not called for and obtained in person by the precinct judges. [Id. sec. 38.]

Art. 2984. Ballot boxes, etc., presiding judge to procure, when.—If, from any cause, ballot boxes, voting booths, guard rails or other election supplies have not been received by the presiding judge, he shall procure them, and they shall be paid for as other election supplies; and, if the certified list of qualified voters is not in his possession at least three days before the election, he shall send for and procure them. [Id. sec. 45.]

Art. 2985. Supplies, report of to county commissioners.—For all supplies furnished by the county, the board to provide election supplies shall file with the county commissioners' court a written report of their action, giving detailed statement of the expenses incurred in procuring such supplies. [Id. sec. 39.]

Art. 2986. Collector's fees and how paid.—The collector of taxes shall be paid fifteen cents for each poll tax receipt and certificate of exemption issued by him, to be paid pro rata by the state and county in proportion to the amount of poll tax received by each; and this shall include his compensation for administering oaths, furnishing certified lists of qualified voters in election precincts for use in all general elections and primary conventions, when desired, and for all duties required of him under this title; provided, that collectors, whose salaries are fixed by what is known as the fee bill, shall receive ten cents for each poll tax receipt and certificate of exemption issued by him; and such fees shall be ex officio and not accountable under said fee bill. [Id. sec. 144.]

Art. 2987. Sheriff's and constable's fees.—The sheriff or any constable, for serving copies of the order designating the bounds of election precincts, or the election judges, posting notices, and for serving all other writs or notices prescribed by this title, shall be paid the amounts allowed by statutes for serving civil process. For delivering election supplies to precinct judges, when they are not obtained by such judges in person, the sheriff or constable shall be paid such amount as may be allowed by the commissioners' court, not to exceed two dollars for each election precinct. [Id. sec. 145.]

Art. 2988. Expenses for election supplies, how paid.—All expenses incurred in providing voting booths, stationery, official ballots, wooden or rubber stamps, tally sheets, polling lists, instruction cards, ballot boxes, envelopes, sealing wax and all other supplies required for conducting a general or special election shall be paid for by the county, except the cost of supplying booths for cities, which shall be provided for as required by former laws; provided, that all accounts for supplies furnished or services rendered shall first be approved by the county commissioner's court, except the accounts for voting booths for cities. [Id. sec. 147.]

Art. 2989. Expense of city election paid by city.—The expenses of all city elections shall be paid by the city in which same are held. [Id. sec. 45.]

Art. 2990. Mayor, etc., to perform duties required of county judge, etc.—In all elections in incorporated cities, towns and villages, the mayor, the city clerk, the board of commissioners or aldermen, shall do and perform each and every act in other elections required to be done and performed respectively by the county judge, the county clerk or the county commissioners' court. [Id. sec. 45.]

CHAPTER SEVEN

MANNER OF CONDUCTING ELECTIONS AND MAKING RETURNS THEREOF

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 2991. Oaths of officers of election; instruction cards.—Before opening the polls, the presiding judge of election shall, in an audible voice, take the following oath or affirmation, which shall be uttered slowly and distinctly, and each of the other judges and clerks shall repeat the same after him: "I solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will not in any manner request or seek to persuade or induce any voter to vote for or against any particular candidate or candidates, or for or against any proposition to be voted on; that I will not keep or make any memoranda or entry of anything occurring within the booths or polling places, as the case may be, nor disclose how any one whom I am permitted to assist in voting has voted, except I be called on to testify in a judicial proceeding; and that I will faithfully perform this day my duty as officer of the election, and guard, as far as I am able, the purity of the ballot box. So help me, God." [Acts 1905, 1 S. S., p. 533, sec. 56.]

Art. 2992. Polls, preliminary arrangement of and examination; regulations as to ballots, instruction cards, distance markers; notices as to electioneering, loitering, etc.—The judges and clerks of election for each precinct (and supervisors, if any have been selected) shall meet at the polling place at least half an hour before the time for opening the polls, and shall proceed to arrange the guard rail, the space within the guard rail, the voting booths, (if any), and the furniture for the orderly and legal conduct of the election. The judges of election shall then examine the ballot boxes required for the reception of the ballots and the blank official ballots, and shall deposit such ballots as are found to be defective in printing in ballot box No. 4 for mutilated or returned ballots. They shall also examine the sample ballots, instruction cards, distance markers, tally sheets, return sheets, certified list of voters, rubber or wooden stamps, and all things required for the election; but the package containing the official ballots shall not be opened until the morning of the election and at the polling place. One instruction card shall be posted near each distance marker, where it can be read by citizens before voting. The package of official ballots shall remain in the custody of the judges and the polling clerks. The judges shall cause to be placed at the distance of one hundred feet from the entrance of the room at which the election is held visible distance markers in each direction of approaches to the polls, on each of which shall be printed in large letters the words: "Distance markers. No electioneering or loitering between this point and the entrance to the polls." The judges shall examine the ballot boxes and then relock them, after all present can see they are empty. The instruction cards and distance markers shall be posted up and shall not be defaced or removed during the progress of the election. The ballot clerks with official ballots, the presiding officer of the election, the poll clerk, the election supplies and the certified lists of qualified voters for the precinct, and the supervisors, if there are any, shall be as conveniently near each other as practicable within the polling place. [Id. sec. 55.]

Art. 2993. Instruction card posted in booth.—Before the election begins, one instruction card shall be posted up in each voting booth where it can be read; and, when there are no voting booths, one shall be posted up in plain view at the place prepared for the voter to make out his ballot. [Id. sec. 56.]

Art. 2994. Judges, appointment by voters, when; certificate; presiding judge to appoint assistant, when.—If a presiding judge fails to attend on election day, or fails to act, or none shall have been appointed, the voters present may appoint their own presiding officer, who has paid his poll tax, and such voters may also appoint the necessary assistant judges of election. When a presiding officer, who has been appointed by a commissioners' court, fails to act in conducting an election, and one is selected by the voters present, the judges and clerks at such election shall, in making their returns of election, certify to that fact, and state that the acting judges were appointed by the voters present. When an assistant judge or clerk has not been appointed, or, having been theretofore appointed, fails to act at the opening of the polls or during the election, the presiding judge shall appoint in his place another with the same qualifications, and return a certificate of such appointment with each election return. [Id. sec. 83.]

Provision directory.—The statutory rules prescribing the manner in which the qualified electors shall hold the election, and the mode in which their acts shall be so authenticated as to import verity on its face, are directory, and irregularities in their observance will not vitiate an election unless they be such that the true result of the ballot cannot be ascertained with reasonable certainty. McKinney v. O'Connor, 26 T. 5.

Appointment by voters—Presumption.—Where a qualified voter presided as officer of the election and everybody voted who was qualified and desired to do so, it will be presumed that the conditions existed which authorized the voters present to select the presiding officer and that they did select him. Roper v. Scurlock, 29 C. A. 464, 69 S. W. 458.

Return.—When the person who signs the return as presiding officer is a different person from the one appointed by the county court, and there is no certificate, as required by statute, of the appointment of such person, the return does not of itself import verity. McKinney v. O'Connor, 26 T. 5.

Art. 2995. Judges may administer oaths; powers of presiding judge.—Judges of elections are authorized to administer oaths to ascertain all facts necessary to a fair and impartial election. The presiding judge of election, while in the discharge of his duties as such, shall have the power of the district judge to enforce order and keep the peace. He may appoint special peace officers to act as such during the election, and may issue warrants of arrest for felony, misdemeanor or breach of peace committed at such election, directed to the sheriff or any constable of the county, or such special peace officer, who shall forthwith execute any such warrants, and, if so ordered by the presiding judge, confine the party arrested in jail during the election or until the day after the election, when his case may be examined into before some magistrate, to whom the presiding judge shall report it; but the party arrested shall first be permitted to vote, if entitled to do so; provided, that, if said party is drunk from the use of intoxicating liquor, he shall not be permitted to vote until he is sober. [Id. sec. 67.]

Powers of presiding judge.—This section does not authorize the presiding judge to act in cases of misdemeanor and issue warrants, but authorizes him to only act and issue warrants for felony and breach of the peace committed at such election. There is no inhibition in the law of 1903 against carrying memorandum into the booth by the voter. Section 65 provides that a judge may demand of a voter to answer under oath whether he has a paper with names of those on it for whom he has promised or proposes to vote, and require him to deliver it to the judge, but there is no provision in the law of 1903 as in the law of 1905 (section 70, Terrell Act), providing for the punishment as for a misdemeanor, of one who takes names of persons written thereon into the booth for whom he intends to vote. Smyth v. State, 51 Cr. R. 408, 103 S. W. 903.

Art. 2996. Ballot boxes, preliminary inspection.—Before the balloting begins, the presiding judge shall unlock ballot box No. 1, and after all the officers of the election and supervisors have inspected the same to see that it is empty, relock it and place it within view, where it shall remain until removed to make room for ballot box No. 2. A like examination shall be made of ballot box No. 2. [Id. sec. 68.]

Art. 2997. Poll tax receipt, etc.—No citizen shall be permitted to vote, unless he first presents to the judge of election his poll tax receipt or certificate of exemption issued to him before the first day of February of the year in which he offers to vote, except as otherwise permitted in this title, unless the same has been lost or mislaid, or left at home, in which event he shall make an affidavit of that fact, which shall be left with the judges and sent by them with the returns of the election; provided, that, if since he obtained his receipt or certificate he removes from the precinct or county of his residence, he may vote on complying with other provisions of this title. [Id. sec. 66.]

Construed.—The failure of voters to exhibit their poll-tax receipts at time of voting does not render the election illegal, nor authorize the exclusion of their votes from the count. The voter must hold his receipt; that is he shall have procured and have possession of the receipt, and if it has been lost, then in order to vote he must make the affidavit which the law requires. Stinson v. Gardner, 97 T. 287, 78 S. W. 493.

Law of 1903, providing for extension of time of payment of taxes of 1902 until October 1, 1903, which took effect March 30, 1903, did not extend time of payment of poll taxes, so as to allow persons who had not paid poll taxes prior to February 1, 1903, to vote at a local option election held on May 30, 1903. Ex parte Wood (Cr. App.) 81 S. W. 530.

Necessity of exhibiting receipt or filing affidavit of loss.—It is not necessary that a voter, subject to a poll tax, exhibit his poll tax receipt to the managers of the election, or file an affidavit that the receipt is lost. Stinson v. Gardner (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 354.

Art. 2998. Poll tax receipt, etc., receiving; testing voter, etc.—One of the election judges shall receive from the voter his poll tax receipt or certificate of exemption, when he presents himself to vote; the voter shall announce his name, and the judge, after comparing the appearance of the party with the description given in the certified list of qualified voters of the precinct made out by the county collector, and being satisfied that it accords therewith, shall pronounce in an audible voice the name of the voter and his number, as given in the list of qualified voters. If the voter has lost, mislaid or left at home his receipt or certificate, and shall present his written affidavit of that fact, and if his appearance tallies with that given for the same number and name on the list of qualified voters, or if the voter presents his written affidavit of removal from some other precinct or county, in cases where the same is permitted by this title, together with his receipt or certificate or affidavit of the loss thereof, and the judges of election shall be satisfied that he paid his poll tax or received his certificate of exemption before the first day of the preceding February, the judge shall in like manner pronounce in an audible voice the name and number of the elector on the certified list of qualified voters with the word, "correct." [Id. sec. 71.]

Art. 2999. Examination of challenged voter on oath; noted on poll list.—When a person offering to vote shall be objected to by an election judge or a supervisor or challenger, the presiding judge shall examine him upon an oath touching the points of such objection, and, if such person fails to establish his right to vote to the satisfaction of the majority of the judges, he shall not vote. If his vote be received, the word, "sworn," shall be written upon the poll list opposite the name of the voter. [Id. sec. 73.]

Election contest—Pleading.—An allegation in a petition in an election contest that the election officers in certain precincts refused to entertain challenges of voters is too general to admit proof of a violation of the election law of 1905 (Acts 29th Leg. [1st Ex. Sess.] c. 11) § 73, relating to challenges. Altgelt v. Callaghan (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1166.

Art. 3000. [1736] Challenged vote in certain cities, proceedings on.—In any election, state, county or municipal, being held in any city or town of ten thousand inhabitants or more, according to the last preceding United States census, when the right to vote of any elector offering to vote is challenged, proceedings shall be had as prescribed in article 790. [Acts 1891, p. 47.]

Art. 3001. Poll tax receipt stamping; delivery of ballot with signature of presiding judge; preparing ballot.—When the judges are satisfied as to the right of the citizen to vote, and one has pronounced in an audible voice his name and number as shown on the list of qualified voters of the precinct, and the word, "correct," the judge shall stamp in legible characters with a stamp of wood or rubber the poll tax receipt or certificate of exemption with the words: "Voted ——— day of ———, A. D. 19—," or write the same words in ink and then return said receipt or certificate to the voter, and shall at the same time deliver to him one official ballot on the blank side of which the presiding judge shall have previously written his signature. The voter shall then immediately repair to one of the voting booths, or places prepared for voting by the election officers, and there prepare his ballot, in the manner provided by article 2969. [Id. sec. 72.]

Mandatory.—This section is mandatory that the judge's personal signature must appear on the ballot else it cannot be counted. The judge cannot delegate another to write his signature. This section is applicable to a local option election. Arnold v. Anderson, 41 C. A. 508, 93 S. W. 697.

Ballots rejected, when.—If the election has been fairly held, a voter cannot be disfranchised, by not having his vote counted, because of some informality in the preparation of the official ballot, or misconduct of the officers whose duty it is to furnish the voter with a legal official ballot. Kulp v. Railey, 99 T. 310, 89 S. W. 958.

When a voter tears the national ticket of one political party from the official ballot and attaches it to the state ticket of another political party, his vote should be rejected by the officers of the election. Bigham v. Clubb, 42 C. A. 312, 95 S. W. 676.

Election—School tax.—Held, that an election to determine whether to levy a school tax was governed by Art. 2829, and not by this article or Art. 3011 so that the ballots need not be signed by the presiding judge of the election; that not being required by Art. 2829. Clark v. Willrich (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 947.

Art. 3002. Marked ballot or memorandum; powers and duties of judge.—Any judge may require a citizen to answer under oath before he secures an official ballot whether he has been furnished with any paper or ballot on which is marked the names of any one for whom he has agreed or promised to vote or for whom he has been requested to vote, or has such paper or marked ballot in his possession, and he shall not be furnished with an official ballot until he has delivered to the judge such marked ballot or paper, if he has one. [Id. sec. 70.]

Construed.—This section makes it a misdemeanor for a voter while he is making out his ticket to have in his possession the names of persons for whom he has agreed or proposes to vote. The presiding judge is authorized to issue a warrant of arrest in cases of a misdemeanor, but he has no authority to verbally order the arrest of one for a misdemeanor. Smyth v. State, 51 Cr. R. 408, 103 S. W. 902.

Art. 3003. One voter at a time in booth; assistance to illiterates; regulations as to interpreter; supervisors may be present, etc.—Not more than one person at the same time shall be permitted to occupy any one compartment, voting booth or place prepared for a voter, except, when a voter is unable to prepare his ballot from inability to read or write, or physical disability, two judges or an interpreter, if he can not both read and speak the English language, shall assist him, they having been first sworn that they will not suggest, by word or sign or gesture, how the voter shall vote; that they will confine their assistance to answering his questions, to naming candidates, and the political parties to which they belong, and that they will prepare his ballot as the voter himself shall direct. The judges who assist the voter in preparing his ballot shall be of different political parties, if there be such judges present, and an election supervisor or supervisors may be present, but must remain silent, except in case of irregularity or violation of the law. [Id. sec. 82.]

Failure to use booths.—A failure of election officers to require voters to prepare their ballots in a voting booth does not invalidate the votes of those not using the booths. Altgelt v. Callaghan (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1166.

Assisting illiterate voters.—Ballots directed by illiterate voters to be marked for one candidate and which were in fact fraudulently marked for another could not be counted for the candidate for whom they were marked. Pease v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 657.

Art. 3004. Judge, etc., shall not electioneer, etc.—No election judge, clerk or other person connected with the holding of an election shall, on election day, indicate by words, sign, symbol or writing to any citizen, how he shall or should not vote; provided, nothing herein shall interfere with the operation of article 3003. [Id. sec. 65.]

Art. 3005. Ballot delivery by voter, deposit, and requirements connected therewith.—When a citizen shall have prepared his ballot, he shall fold the same so as to conceal the printing thereon, and so as to expose the signature of the presiding judge on the blank side, which shall always be indorsed by the judge before the ballot is delivered, and shall, after leaving the booth, hand to the numbering judge his ballot, who shall number the same. If the judges are satisfied that the ballot returned is the one delivered to the voter, the numbering judge shall number the ballot, writing on the blank side the number opposite the voter's name on the voting list, and shall stamp or write the same with the word, "voted," and deposit the ballot in the ballot box. The letter, "v," shall, at the same time, be marked by one of the clerks on the certified list or supplemental list of qualified voters opposite the voter's name thereon, and the voter shall thereupon immediately leave the polling place. [Id. sec. 74.]

Directory.—The requirement as to the placing of the word "voted" is directory only, and if the other requirements are complied with, the omission of that word does not invalidate the ballot. Gallagher v. Church (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 671.

Taking ballot from box to remark.—Allowing a voter to take his ticket from the ballot box and mark it and again deposit it held error. McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 278.

Art. 3006. Mutilated, etc., ballots, rule as to.—No voter shall be entitled to receive a new ballot in lieu of one mutilated and defaced, until he first returns such ballot and it is deposited in box No. 4; nor shall any one be supplied with more than three ballots in succession, when they are mutilated or defaced. A register shall be kept by the clerks as the voting progresses of the mutilated or defaced ballots, which shall be deposited in box No. 4, in which shall also be deposited and returned all official ballots not used. [Id. sec. 75.]

Art. 3007. Ballot boxes and ballots, custody; admission to polls, information.—From the time of opening the polls until the announcement of the results of the canvass of votes cast and the signing of the official returns, the boxes and official ballots shall be kept at the polling place in the presence of one or more of the judges and supervisors, if there are any. No person shall be admitted within the room where the election is being held, except the judges, clerks, persons admitted by the presiding judge to preserve order, supervisors of election, and persons admitted for the purpose of voting; provided, that the officers of the election shall permit an interpreter to assist any voter who can not both speak and read the English language. [Id. sec. 76.]

Art. 3008. Defective, etc., ballots in box 4; return, statement, opening, etc.—In ballot box No. 4 shall be deposited, in addition to ballots defectively printed, all defaced and mutilated ballots, and, when the polls are closed, all the ballots that have not been voted. The box shall be locked and so returned sealed to the county clerk, with a statement which shall be placed therein signed by the presiding judge of the number of ballots received by him, the number of mutilated or defaced ballots that the box contained, and also the number of ballots not given to voters, as well as those defectively printed, so that, after adding such numbers, all ballots delivered to the election officers may be accounted for. Such ballot box shall, when the returns of votes cast are canvassed by the commissioners' court, be opened, the ballots counted and a record made of what they have found to be its contents. [Id. sec. 69.]

Art. 3009. Deposit and count, using Boxes 1 and 2 alternately; voted ballots put in box 3; return, etc.—At the expiration of one hour after voting has begun, the receiving judges shall deliver ballot box No. 1 to the counting judges, who shall at once deliver in its place ballot box No. 2, which shall again be opened and examined in the presence of all the judges and securely closed and locked; and, until the ballots in ballot box No. 1 have been counted, the receiving judge shall receive and deposit ballots in ballot box No. 2. Ballot box No. 1 shall, on its receipt by the counting judges, be immediately opened and the tickets taken out by one of them, one by one, when he shall read and distinctly announce, while the ticket remains in his hand, the name of each candidate voted for thereon, which shall be noted on the tally sheets, and shall then deliver the ballot to the other counting judge, who shall place the same in box No. 3, which shall remain locked and in view until the counting is finished, when said box shall be returned with the other boxes, locked and sealed, to the county clerk. Ballot boxes Nos. 1 and 2 shall be used by the receiving judge and the counting judge alternately, as above provided, as often as the counting judge has counted and exhausted the ballots in either box. [Id. sec. 80.]

Art. 3010. Unfolding ballots, etc., forbidden.—No officer of election shall unfold or examine the face of a ballot when received from an elector, nor the indorsement on the ballot, except the signature of the judge, or the words stamped thereon, nor compare it with the clerk's list of voters, when the ballots are counted, nor shall he permit the same to be done, nor shall he examine, nor permit to be examined, the ballots after they are deposited in a ballot box, except as herein provided for in canvassing the votes, or in cases specially provided by law. [Id. sec. 77.]

Name of voter.—The name of the voter on the ballot does not require its rejection. Hanscom v. State, 10 C. A. 638, 31 S. W. 547.

Art. 3011. Signature of judge on ballots, no ballot without, counted.—The counting judges and clerks shall familiarize themselves with the signature of the judge who writes his name on each ballot that is voted, and shall count no ballots that do not bear his signature or are unnumbered, or if, on examination by the judges, such signature is found to be a forgery. [Id. sec. 78.]

See Gallagher v. Church (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 671.

Mandatory.—The provision contained in this section is mandatory, and the officers whose duty it is to count the votes should not count ballots not so indorsed by the presiding judge. Clark v. Hardison, 40 C. A. 611, 90 S. W. 343.

But said provision is not mandatory as to not counting ballots not indorsed by the judge before handing them to the voter, but indorsed after being returned by the voter and placed in the ballot-box by such judge. Id.

The provisions of the statute requiring the presiding judge to write his name on the blank side of the official ballot before delivering the same to the voter, and prohibiting the counting of any ballot which does not have this signature, are mandatory. Brigance v. Horlock, 44 C. A. 277, 97 S. W. 1060, 1061.

Presumption.—The court, in the absence of a contrary showing, will presume that this article was complied with. Altgelt v. Callaghan (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1166.

Signature of presiding judge.—No ballots can be properly counted unless the signature of the presiding judge written by himself, appears thereon. This section applies to local option elections. Arnold v. Anderson, 41 C. A. 508, 93 S. W. 696, 697.

Where the signature of the presiding judge is written by someone else on the back of the ballot even though by his direction and in his presence, the ballot is illegal and void. This section applies in a local option election. Walker v. Mobley (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 61, 63.

Local option.—There is no conflict between the provisions of this statute with regard to the conduct of elections and any of the provisions of the law specially dealing with the subject of local option elections. Brigance v. Horlock, 44 C. A. 277, 97 S. W. 1061.

Does not apply to local option.—See notes under Art. 2965.

Election—School tax.—See notes under Art. 3001.

Art. 3012. [1741] [1697] Ballots which shall not be counted.—No ballot which is not numbered as provided in article 3005 shall be counted, nor shall either of two or more ballots folded together be counted, and where the names of two or more persons are upon a ballot for the same office, when but one person is to be elected to that office, such ballot shall not be counted for either of such persons. [Acts 1876, p. 308, sec. 16. R. S. 1879, 1697.]

In general.—Where a voter casts a ballot which he did not intend to vote, and the election officers open the ballot box and return the ballot to him, a second ballot cast should not be counted. Roach v. Malotte, 23 C. A. 400, 56 S. W. 701.

A ballot with a cross after the names against which the voter wished to vote could not be counted. Pease v. State (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 657.

Ballots with same number.—If two ballots have the same number, they cannot be thrown out, if they are still capable of identification. Gray v. State ex rel. Langham, 92 T. 396, 49 S. W. 217.

Ballots failing to disclose intention of voter.—Where two candidates are named for the same office, and a pencil mark is drawn under one, but the name is untouched and unmarked, the vote should not be counted for either, because the ballot does not disclose the intention of the voter. Bailey v. Fly, 35 C. A. 410, 80 S. W. 676.

Art. 3013. Nominee dying before election, etc., vote counted, etc.—If a nominee dies or declines the nomination before the election, and no one is nominated to take his place, the votes cast for him shall be counted and return made thereof; and, if he shall have received a plurality of the votes cast for the office, the vacancy shall be filled as in case of a vacancy occurring after the election. [Id. sec. 50.]

Art. 3014. Supervisors may be present.—The election supervisors may be present when the ballots are being examined and the votes called off and noted on the tally sheets. [Acts 1905, S. S. p. 538, sec. 80.]

Art. 3015. Announcement of vote at each exchange of boxes.—At each change of the boxes, one of the judges shall announce at the outer door of the voting place the number of votes already cast. [Id. sec. 81.]

Art. 3016. Status of count announced, when, etc.; memorandum public.—Immediately upon the closing of the polls, and at intervals of two hours thereafter, the presiding judge or an associate judge shall make a correct but unofficial memorandum of the total number of votes counted for each candidate at that time, such memorandum being in the order in which the names of the candidates appear upon the ballot; and thereupon he shall publicly announce from such memorandum the status of the count at the door of the building where the counting is in progress. This memorandum shall thereafter be accessible to the public, and especially newspaper reporters, who may call for information; and the presiding judge or an associate judge may furnish reporters information concerning the status of the count at other times after the polls have closed. The announcement of the status of the count shall continue as aforesaid until the count has been completed, when a correct but unofficial announcement of the total number of votes received by each candidate shall be announced in the manner above provided. This section [article] shall also apply so as to require the same reports from judges of primary elections. [Id. sec. 88.]

Art. 3017. No information except as herein permitted.—No judge or clerk shall make any statement, nor give information in any manner, of the number of votes nor any other fact regarding their opinion of the state of the polls, after the closing thereof, except as herein permitted. [Id. sec. 76.]

Art. 3018. [1807] Arrest, privilege from.—In all cases, except treason, felony or breach of peace, voters shall be privileged from arrest during their attendance at elections, and in going to and returning therefrom. [Id. sec. 63. R. S. 1879, art. 1755. P. D. 3625.]

Art. 3019. Loitering and electioneering within 100 feet of booths; special constable.—The election judges shall prevent loitering and electioneering while the polls are open, within one hundred feet of the door through which voters enter to vote, and within one hundred feet of the place where the voter is required to prepare his ballot; and, for this purpose, they shall appoint a special constable to enforce this authority. [Id. sec. 84.]

Art. 3020. Carriages, etc., forbidden, unless, etc.—No carriage or other vehicle shall be used by any person to convey voters to the voting places, unless the voter is physically unable to go to or to enter the polling place without assistance, in which event two of the judges of different political parties, if there are such, may deliver an official ballot to him at the entrance to the polling place and permit him to make out his ballot and deliver it there. [Id. sec. 85.]

Art. 3021. Barroom, etc., not to be opened on election day, nor intoxicating liquor sold, etc.—No person shall open or keep open any barroom, drinking saloon or wholesale beer or liquor house, where vinous, malt, spirituous and intoxicating liquors are sold during any portion of the day on which an election, either general, special or primary, is held for any purpose, in the voting precinct where such an election is held; nor shall any one, in such voting precinct, sell, barter or give away any vinous, spirituous or intoxicating liquor during the day of such election, nor shall any one carry, or cause to be carried, to the polling place on the day of election, any intoxicating liquor for the purpose of sale, gift or to be drunk; and if any one shall find any intoxicating liquor on election day he shall refrain from taking possession of it and shall not inform another of its whereabouts. [Id. sec. 86.]

See Watts v. State, 61 Cr. R. 364, 135 S. W. 585.

Art. 3022. Intoxicating liquor sold on election day, how.—Intoxicating liquor may be sold on election day by a druggist only to fill prescriptions by a physician, but who at the time must certify in writing, on his honor, that it is needed by his sick patient. [Id. sec. 87.]

Art. 3023. Refreshments.—If the officers of election need refreshments during the voting and before the canvass of votes, they shall be taken at the polling places, and in view of the ballot boxes; provided, that the refreshments shall contain no alcoholic, vinous, malt or intoxicating liquors. [Id. sec. 79.]

Art. 3024. [1743] [1698] Return of elections, how and to whom made.—When the ballots have all been counted, the managers of the election in person shall make out triplicate returns of the same, certified to be correct, and signed by them officially, showing: First, the total number of votes polled at such box; second, the number polled for each candidate; one of which returns, together with poll lists and tally lists, shall be sealed up in an envelope and delivered by one of the precinct judges to the county judge of the county; another of said returns, together with poll lists and tally lists, shall be delivered by one of the managers of election to the clerk of the county court of the county, to be kept by him in his office open to inspection by the public for twelve months from the day of the election; and the other of said returns, poll and tally lists shall be kept by the presiding officer of the election for twelve months from the day of election. [Acts 1883, p. 50, as modified by Acts 1905, S. S., p. 541, sec. 91.]

See Clary v. Hurst, 104 T. 423, 138 S. W. 566.

Failure to make return.—When election officers fail to make any return at all as required by this article, they cannot be convicted under article 212 of the Penal Code for making a false return. Banner v. State, 44 Cr. R. 42, 68 S. W. 270.

Not applicable to cities.—The provisions of Title 49, Chapter 8, do not apply to elections for officers of incorporated cities, towns and villages. Compton v. Holmes, 94 T. 578, 63 S. W. 622.

Returns as evidence.—See notes under Art. 3056.

Ballots best evidence.—See notes under Art. 3056.

Art. 3025. [1744] [1699] Same subject.—In case of vacancy in the office of county judge, or the absence, failure or inability of that officer to act, the election returns shall be delivered to the clerk of the county court of the county, who shall safely keep the same in his office, and he, or the county judge, as the case may be, shall deliver the same to the county commissioners' court on the day appointed by law to open and compare the polls. [R. S. 1879, 1699.]

Art. 3026. Returns, with election supplies; voting booths stored, etc.—One of the precinct judges shall deliver the returns of election, with certified lists of qualified voters, with all stationery, rubber stamps and blank forms and other election supplies not used, to the county judge, immediately after the votes have been counted. He shall provide for the safe storage of the voting booths in some place in the precinct, and notify the county judge. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 541, sec. 91.]

Art. 3027. [1747] [1702] Ballots, etc., to be placed in a box and delivered to county clerk.—Immediately after counting the votes by the managers of election, the presiding officer shall place all the ballots voted, together with one poll list and one tally list, into a wooden or metallic box, and shall securely fasten the box with nails, screws or locks, and he shall, within ten days after the election, Sundays and the days of election excluded, deliver said box to the clerk of the county court of his county, or to the county to which the unorganized county is attached for judicial purposes, whose duty it shall be to keep the same securely; and, in the event of any contest growing out of elections within one year thereafter, he shall deliver said ballot box to any competent officer having a process therefor, from any tribunal or authority authorized by law to demand such ballot box; provided, that all questions arising at any election board shall be settled and determined by the presiding officer and the judges, anything in any law to the contrary notwithstanding. [Acts 1881, p. 97. R. S. 1879, 1702.]

See Clary v. Hurst, 104 T. 423, 138 S. W. 566.

Clerk to safely keep.—This article does not prevent the county clerk from complying with an order of the commissioners' court requiring him to open the boxes, to enable the court to count the votes. Clarey v. Hurst (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 840.

Art. 3028. [1748] 1703] Ballots, etc., shall be burned, when.—In the event that no contest grows out of the election within one year after the day of such election, the said clerk shall destroy the contents of said ballot box by burning the same. [Id. R. S. 1879, 1703.]

Purpose of article.—It was intended by providing that the ballots should be burned at the end of one year to prevent a court from declaring the result of an election that had been legally held, where there had been a mere failure to do so on the part of the court, after the lapse of one year from the date thereof. Oxley v. Allen, 49 C. A. 90, 107 S. W. 948.

Art. 3029. [1749] [1704] Presiding officer shall retain one poll and tally list.—The presiding officer of election shall retain in his custody one of the poll lists and one of the tally lists of the election, and shall keep the same for one year after election, subject to the inspection of any one interested in such election. [R. S. 1879, 1704.]

Art. 3030. [1753] [1705] County commissioners shall open returns, when.—On the Monday next following the day of election, and not before, the county commissioners' court shall open the election returns and estimate the result, recording the state of the polls in each precinct in a book to be kept for that purpose; provided, that, in the event of a failure from any cause of the commissioners' court to convene on the Monday following the election to compute the votes, then said court shall be convened for that purpose upon the earliest day practicable thereafter. [Acts 1883, p. 50.]

See Clary v. Hurst, 104 T. 423, 138 S. W. 566.

Local option election.—Arts. 5720 and 5721, in the local option law, are complete within themselves, so far as they undertake to prescribe the duty of the commissioners' court, and this article does not apply to a local option election. Clarey v. Hurst (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 840.

Art. 3031. [1754] [1706] Returns shall not be estimated, unless, etc.—No election returns shall be opened or estimated, unless the same have been returned in accordance with the provisions of this title.

Art. 3032. [1755] [1707] Certificates of election to county and precinct officers.—After an estimate of the result of an election has been made, as provided for in this title, the county judge shall deliver to the candidate or candidates for whom the greatest number of votes have been polled for county and precinct officers a certificate of election, naming therein the office to which such candidate has been elected, the number of votes polled for him and the day on which such election was held and shall sign the same and cause the seal of the county court to be thereon impressed.

Art. 3033. [1792] Additional regulations by certain cities.—Cities containing a population of ten thousand inhabitants or more may, through their city council, adopt such methods to protect the purity of the ballot in elections held at their municipal elections, not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter, as may be deemed advisable. [Acts 1892, S. S., p. 18, sec. 30.]

Art. 3034. [1756] [1708] When a county is a representative or senatorial district.—If the county constitutes a senatorial or representative district of itself, the county commissioners' court shall at the same time make an estimate of the votes polled for members of the legislature; and the county judge shall give a like certificate of election, as provided in the preceding article, to the person receiving the highest number of votes for senator or representative, and shall also transmit a duplicate of such certificate to the secretary of state. [Acts 1883, p. 50.]

Art. 3035. [1757] Returns of election for certain state and district officers.—In all elections for comptroller of public accounts, treasurer of the state, commissioner of the general land office, attorney general, state superintendent of public instruction, commissioner of agriculture, railroad commissioners, judges of the supreme court, court of criminal appeals, courts of civil appeals, and district courts, district attorneys, representatives in the congress of the United States, and for the adoption or rejection of proposed constitutional amendments, the county judge shall, on the Monday next following the day of election, or as soon thereafter as the commissioners' court shall have opened the returns and estimated the result, as provided in article 3030, make out duplicate returns of the election; one of which he shall immediately transmit to the seat of government of the state, sealed in an envelope, directed to the secretary of state, and endorsed, "Election Returns for ..... county, for ....." [filling the first blank with the name of the county and the other blank with the name of the office for which the election was held, or a designation of the proposed amendments to the constitution voted upon, as the case may be]; and the other of such returns shall be deposited in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county where such election was held. [Acts 1897, p. 31.]

Art. 3036. [1758] [1710] Such returns shall be counted, when and by whom.—On the fortieth day after the election, the day of election excluded, and not before, the secretary of state, in the presence of the governor and attorney general, or in case of vacancy in either of said offices, or of inability or failure of either of said officers to act, then in the presence of either one of them, shall open and count the returns of the election. [Acts 1883, p. 50.]

Art. 3037. [1759] [1711] Governor shall give certificate of election, when.—When the returns have been counted, the governor shall immediately make out, sign and deliver a certificate of election, with the seal of the state thereto affixed, to the person or persons who shall have received the highest number of votes for each or any of said offices. [Id.]

Art. 3038. [1760] [1712] Returns for governor and lieutenant-governor.—The county judges of the several counties shall promptly make duplicate returns of the election for governor and lieutenant-governor, carefully sealed in an envelope, one of which shall be transmitted to the seat of government in this state, directed to the speaker of the house of representatives, and indorsed as provided in article 3035, and the other of said returns shall be deposited in the office of the clerk of the county court of said county. [Id.]

Art. 3039. [1761] [1713] Secretary of state shall keep returns, etc.—The transmitted returns provided for in the preceding article, directed to the secretary of state, shall be taken charge of by him, and preserved in his office, the package and seal thereon to remain unbroken until the organization of the next legislature, when he shall, on the first day thereof, deliver the said return to the speaker of the house of representatives. [Id.]

Art. 3040. [1762] [1714] Returns for members of the legislature.—When an election shall have been held for members of the legislature in a district composed of more counties than one, the county judge to whom the returns in each county are made, and who is not authorized to give certificates of election to such members of the legislature, shall make out and send complete returns of such election for members of the legislature in his county immediately after examining and recording the same, to the county judge of the county, who may by law be authorized to give certificates of election to members of the legislature for such district. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 3041. [1763] [1715] Returns shall be transmitted how, and to whom.—The returns provided for in the preceding article shall be sealed in an envelope, and the name of the officer forwarding them shall be written across the seal, and the envelope shall be indorsed, "Election returns," and directed to the county judge of the proper county and transmitted by mail or other safe and expeditious conveyance. [Id.]

Art. 3042. [1764] [1716] Duty of county judge.—The county judge to whom the returns named in the two preceding articles are forwarded, or in case of a vacancy in that office, or of inability or failure to act on the part of such officer, then the clerk of the county court of such county, or his deputy, shall, upon the thirtieth day after the election, Sunday excluded if Sunday be the thirtieth day, open and count said returns in the presence of at least two qualified voters of said district, and, after recording the same, shall give a certificate or certificates of election to the person or persons receiving the highest number of votes for senator or representative in that district; which certificate shall be under the seal of the county court of the county from whence it issues, and shall state the number of votes received by the person to whom the same is given; and the officer giving such certificate shall immediately forward a duplicate of the same to the secretary of state. [Id.]

Art. 3043. [1765] [1717] Count may be made before 30th day, when.—If all the election returns of the district shall have been received by the returning officer of the district before the said thirtieth day, then he may count said returns and issue the certificate of election as provided for in the preceding article at any time before said thirtieth day. [Id.]

Art. 3044. [1766] [1718] County judge shall certify to secretary of state the officers elected and qualified.—At the expiration of thirty days from an election, and from time to time thereafter as the officers may qualify, the county judge of each county shall make out and certify to the secretary of state a tabular statement showing who were elected, and to what office, and the date of qualification, giving the number of the precinct, (if precinct officers), and he shall also certify the result of the vote for members of the legislature; and he shall in like manner report to the secretary of state all special elections to fill a vacancy in any county [or] precinct office, certifying when and how the vacancy occurred. [Act March 6, 1863. P. D. 3604.]

Art. 3045. [1809] [1758] Governor shall commission officers, except, etc.—The governor shall commission all officers, except governor, members of congress, electors for president and vice-president of the United States, members of the legislature and municipal officers. [Act Aug. 23, 1876, p. 310, sec. 22.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Mutilated ballots—Construction.—A mutilated ballot must be construed so as to give effect to the voter's intent, if it can be ascertained from the face of the ballot. Savage v. Umphries (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 893.

—— Validity.—A torn ballot, which can be so placed together as to show beyond doubt its number and for what it was voted, is valid. Savage v. Umphries (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 893.

CHAPTER EIGHT

CONTESTING ELECTIONS

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 3046. [1793] Contest of election for district attorney.—Contested elections for the office of district attorney shall be tried by the district judge of the district in the county where the candidate who shall have received the certificate of election shall reside and, if there are two district judges in said county, then to be tried before either of said judges. [Acts 1895, p. 58.]

Explanatory.—This chapter comprised the Act of April 6, 1895, p. 58. It repealed and superseded the same chapter of the codification of 1893, being articles 1793 to 1804, inclusive, or old articles 1724 to 1726, inclusive, and 1746 to 1751, inclusive, and repealed all other conflicting laws.

Jurisdiction of district court.—It was the object of the framers of the constitution to make out a complete judicial system, defining generally the province of each of the courts by reference to the objects confided to the action of each and the relation of each to the others. Such a system cannot be changed by action of the legislative department except when the power to make the change is conferred by the constitution itself. The district court is a tribunal for the trial of cases or suits in which there are usually contesting parties; some valuable right recovered or adjudged; a judgment of record, and execution to enforce it. The district court had, therefore, no jurisdiction to try the contest of an election as provided for in the act of 1875. Ex parte Towles, 48 T. 413; Williamson v. Lane, 52 T. 335; Ex parte Whitlow, 59 T. 273. The amendment to the constitution vests jurisdiction of contested elections in the district court. Art. 5, § 8. See Art. 1705.

The district court has jurisdiction to try the right to an office in a suit brought for its recovery by a party claiming the right to it as against one who has usurped the office and holds possession of it wrongfully, provided its value is within the jurisdiction of the court. The right to try the title to the office carries with it the right to establish that title by evidence of the means through which it was acquired. If acquired by reason of having received the requisite number of votes, and an incorrect return of these votes is charged to have been made, the ballots placed in the ballot-box may be received to show the incorrectness of the returns. Jennet v. Owens, 63 T. 261.

Quo warranto.—The proper proceeding to determine disputed questions of title to public offices, and for deciding the proper person entitled to hold the office and exercise its functions, is by an information in the nature of quo warranto. Jennet v. Owens, 63 T. 261; Watts v. State, 61 T. 184; Wright v. Allen, 2 T. 158.

Test of validity.—The ultimate test of the validity of an election is determined by the question: Did the qualified electors acting in concert hold an election at the time and place designated and in a manner so far in conformity to the law that the true result can be arrived at with reasonable certainty? McKinney v. O'Connor, 26 T. 5.

Testimony of voter.—A party to a suit involving the right to an office may, under proper allegations, show by the testimony of the voter that the ballot, as credited to him, does not record the truth as to his votes, but that he voted for one whose name did not appear on his ticket. Owens v. Jennet, 64 T. 500.

Certificate prima facie evidence.—Presupposing the proper transmission to the chief justice of the county of the return of an election, if it bears upon its face the name of the presiding officer regularly appointed by the county court, the certificate is prima facie evidence that he acted in that capacity, and that the facts stated in and implied by the return were true. A contestant seeking to controvert the facts so evidenced must disprove them by extrinsic evidence. But a return bearing the name of a person as presiding officer who is not known in that capacity to the court, and which does not contain the certificate of the managers as required by law, is no evidence of the authority of such person, or of the other facts stated in or implied by such return. A contestant claiming the benefit of such a return must sustain it by extrinsic evidence, establishing a substantial compliance with the requirements of the law in the holding of the election, and identifying the return in question as the act of the persons recognized by the qualified electors as the officers of the election. McKinney v. O'Connor, 26 T. 5.

Causes for setting aside.—The result of an election, as shown by the tickets deposited by the legal electors, will not be set aside except for causes plainly within the purview of the law. Millican v. Phillips, 63 T. 390, 51 Am. Rep. 646.

Art. 3047. [1794] Contest of election for district judge.—Contested elections for the office of district judge shall be tried in the county of the adjoining district, the county seat of which is nearest to the residence of the candidate who shall have received the certificate of election, and by the district court of such adjoining district, and in counties having two or more district courts, then to be tried by the district court of the adjoining district in said county. [Id.]

Art. 3048. [1795] Contest of election for appellate judges.—Contested elections for the office of chief justice or associate justice of the supreme court and judges of the court of criminal appeals shall be tried in the county and by the district court of the district, or one of them, in which the seat of government is located. And contested elections for the office of chief justice of the court of civil appeals, or associate justice of any supreme judicial district in the state, shall be tried by the district court, or either of them if there are more than one, in the county where said court of civil appeals has its sittings. [Id.]

Art. 3049. [1796] Contest of election for any county office.—Contested elections for any county office shall be tried by the district court in the county where the election was held. If there are two such courts, then to be tried by either of them. [Id.]

In county where election held.—No provision has been made for the trial of an election contest for a county office by change of venue or otherwise, outside of the county in which the election was held. Calverley v. Shank, 28 C. A. 473, 67 S. W. 436.

Art. 3050. [1797] Other contested elections than for officers.—Contested elections for other purposes than the election of officers shall be tried by the district court in the county where the election was held, or either of them, if there is more than one such court. [Id.]

Jurisdiction of district court.—The district court of the county in which local option election is held has jurisdiction of contest of such election. Kidd v. Truett, 28 C. A. 618, 68 S. W. 310.

Contested elections must be tried by the district court. A commissioners' court has no authority to refuse to count the vote and declare the result in a local option election, and thus, in effect, try a contested election case. Burks v. State, 51 Cr. R. 637, 103 S. W. 851.

In view of Art. 5728 and Const. art. 5, § 11, held, that a district judge of a district not embracing the county in which the contested election was held, sitting in exchange with the judge of that district, could try the case; jurisdiction being conferred on the district court and not its judge. Savage v. Umphres (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 291.

Contested stock election.—This article applies to a contested stock law election, and the condition must be complied with to give the district court jurisdiction. Cauthron v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 671.

Under this article and Art. 3051 the fact that in proceedings brought to contest a stock law election a writ of injunction issued and a copy of it was served on the county judge and the county attorney, who were contestees, as well as a copy of the citation, all of which were served within 30 days, is not a compliance with the statute. Id.

Art. 3051. [1798] Notice of contest.—Any person intending to contest the election of any one holding a certificate of election as a member of the legislature, or for any office mentioned in this law, shall, within thirty days after the return day of election, give him a notice thereof in writing and deliver to him, his agent or attorney, a written statement of the ground on which such contestant relies to sustain such contest. By the "return day" is meant the day on which the votes cast in said election are counted and the official result thereof declared. [Id.]

See Cauthron v. Murphy (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 671.

Within thirty days.—Where election was held June 15th and the votes counted June 22d, and result declared, and suit was filed and citation served on July 22d, it was in time, i. e., within 30 days provided by law. McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 285.

Statement or notice of grounds.—The notices and statements of the grounds upon which a party intends to contest the election of any one holding a certificate of election to a county office, which are required to be served on the latter within 10 days after return day, are the predicate upon which the power of the county court is set in motion, and without which, within the time prescribed, that court has no jurisdiction to investigate the validity or event of such election. Lindsey v. Luckett, 20 T. 516; Wright v. Fawcett, 42 T. 203.

Notice of the ground of contesting an election held sufficient within Arts. 3051, 3077, 3078, 5728. McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 278.

Contest—Local option.—Filing suit contesting a local option election and serving defendants with citation and certified copy of petition is a sufficient compliance with this article. Messer v. Cross, 26 C. A. 34, 63 S. W. 170, 171.

One cannot contest local option election without giving notice within 30 days after the announcement of the result. Norton v. Alexander, 28 C. A. 466, 67 S. W. 787.

Art. 3052. [1799] Reply to notice of contest.—The person holding such certificate shall, within ten days after receiving such notice and statement, deliver, or cause to be delivered, to said contestant, his agent or attorney, a reply thereto in writing. [Id.]

New ground of contest.—Matter alleged in reply in election contest held not a new ground of contest so as to require its filing within time stipulated for contest. Calverley v. Shank, 28 C. A. 473, 67 S. W. 434.

Art. 3053. [1800] Service of notice, etc.—The notice, statement and reply required by the two preceding articles may be served by any person competent to testify, and shall be served by delivering the same to the party for whom they are intended in person, if he can be found in the county, if not found, then upon the agent or attorney of such person, or by leaving the same with some person over the age of sixteen years at the usual place of abode or business of such person. [Id.]

Art. 3054. [1801] Copy of notice and reply to be filed, etc.—If the contest be for the validity of an election for any state office, except the office of governor and lieutenant-governor, or for any district office, except members of the legislature, or for any county office, a copy of the notice and statement of the contestant and of the reply thereto of the contestee served on the parties shall be filed with the clerk of the court having jurisdiction of the case. [Id.]

No time for filing with clerk.—The only limitation as to time is that relating to time within which notice of contest and statement of grounds is to be served on the contestee. Art. 3051. There is no time prescribed in which copies are to be filed with the clerk of the court having jurisdiction. Swenson v. McKay, 47 C. A. 483, 106 S. W. 935.

Art. 3055. [1802] Cause to have precedence; procedure if contest be for district clerk.—When the notice, statement and reply have been filed with the clerk of the court, he shall docket the same as in other causes, and the said contest shall have precedence over all other causes. Should the office contested for be that of clerk of the district court, then a clerk pro tem. shall be appointed as is provided now by law in suits where the clerk is a party to the suit. [Id.]

Art. 3056. [1803] Rules of evidence and procedure on trial.—In trials of all contests of election, the evidence shall be confined to the issues made by the statement and reply thereto, which statement and reply may be amended as in civil cases; and, as to the admission and exclusion of evidence, the trial shall be conducted under the rules governing proceedings in civil causes. [Id.]

Procedure in general.—It is not error in an election contest to refuse to open the ballot boxes from a precinct in which none of the votes were challenged. McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 278.

The court in an election contest held not required to determine the qualifications of certain voters whose votes did not affect the result. Altgelt v. Callaghan (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1166.

Declarations of voter.—Declarations of a voter, made after an election at which he voted, are incompetent to show that he was not a qualified voter. Davis v. State, 75 T. 420, 12 S. W. 957.

Amendments and exceptions thereto.—Amendments to pleadings in election contest cases are now allowed "as in civil cases." At the time of the adoption of this article it was well settled that the right to amend pleadings included the right to set up new matter—new grounds of recovery or of defense—subject to same regulations to be observed by the court. The rule governing the amendment of pleadings in civil cases are to be applied. Bailey v. Fly, 97 T. 425, 79 S. W. 300.

In election contest, contestant held not to have shown surprise resulting from the allowance of an amendment so as to make the action of the court in allowing the amendment erroneous. Bailey v. Fly, 35 C. A. 410, 80 S. W. 675.

The allowance of amendments introducing new matter, to an answer in an election contest, held to be in the discretion of the court. Lipscomb v. Perry, 100 T. 122, 96 S. W. 1069.

In an election contest, a reference to a particular law in an exception to amendments to an answer held not to preclude the contestant or the court from relying on other rules of law. Id.

The sustaining of exceptions to new matter contained in an amended answer in an election contest held not an abuse of the court's discretion. Id.

A reference to the statute regulating election contests, contained in an exception to amendments to an answer in an election contest, could only have invoked the ordinary rules for civil cases made applicable by such statute. Id.

Evidence.—See, also, notes under Art. 3697.

When it appears that the ballots have been preserved by the proper officers, as required by law, and have not been exposed to the reach of unauthorized persons, so as to afford reasonable probability of having been changed or tampered with, they are better evidence of the will of the voters than the official returns; but otherwise, if there is evidence that ballot box has been tampered with after the official count. Owens v. Jennet, 64 T. 500; State v. Owens, 63 T. 261.

The original returns of election are admissible in a case of contested election as prima facie evidence of the truth of what they contain, when produced from the custody of the county clerk in whose office they were deposited by the managers of the election. Williams v. State, 69 T. 368, 6 S. W. 845.

The names of both candidates were printed upon a ticket. Across the ticket and above the upper name a pencil mark was drawn, erasing or crossing the first initial of the name and touching the next. Evidence was admissible to show the name intended to be erased. In the absence of explanation it was properly held as erasing the first name. Davis v. State, 75 T. 420, 12 S. W. 957.

It was proper to refuse to allow the poll list to be introduced so as to identify the voters, since contestant should have specified the names of the alleged illegal voters, so that the evidence might be confined to them. Davis v. Harper, 17 C. A. 88, 42 S. W. 788.

The statute not providing for the preservation of the ballots, in an election contest they are admissible when shown to have been kept intact, though not in legal custody. Gray v. State, 92 T. 396, 49 S. W. 217.

The ballots are admissible under an allegation that illegal votes sufficient to change the result were cast without alleging the returns to be fraudulent. Gray v. State, 19 C. A. 521, 49 S. W. 699.

The ballots of a village election are admissible if preserved inviolate in some safe custody. Id.

Alleged intimidations held not sufficient to justify the throwing out of an entire box. Bailey v. Fly, 35 C. A. 410, 80 S. W. 675.

Held, that the petition did not authorize the court to inquire into the matter of the age of a voter. Bigham v. Clubb, 42 C. A. 312, 95 S. W. 675.

The fact that the right of a duly qualified voter to vote has been denied may be shown on contest. McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 278.

Evidence held sufficient to show that a contested vote was illegal under Const. art. 6, § 2. Id.

It was not essential to prove that a voter owed a poll tax to both the state and the county, and failed to pay the same, in order to render his vote illegal; proof that he owed it to the state, and failed to pay it, sufficing. Savage v. Umphries (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 893.

Where the ballots have been tampered with, and the identical ballots voted are not before the court, parol evidence of the contents is not admissible. Id.

Testimony of voters that they voted for a certain candidate or measure, and that their ballots have been changed, is admissible. Id.

On an issue as to the qualification of a voter, evidence held to sustain a finding that he was a resident of the county in which he voted. Linger v. Balfour (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 795.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that a voter had been a resident of the state for the required time. Id.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that absence of certain voters from their residences established in the county was temporary, rendering their votes valid. Id.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that a voter had not resided in the state for 12 months next preceding the election, thus invalidating his vote. Id.

Evidence, in a contest under a general election held November 8, 1910, held to sustain a finding of delinquency in the payment of a poll tax for the preceding year, invalidating a vote. Id.

On an issue as to the qualification of a voter, evidence held to show that he usually slept in a county other than that where he voted, precluding his right to vote. Id.

Evidence held to sustain a finding that a voter had resided in the county for six months next preceding the election. Id.

Evidence held to show that a voter did not reside in the county during the six months next preceding an election, invalidating his vote. Id.

Evidence held to show that a voter was not a resident of the county, and that hence his vote was illegal. Id.

Petition.—In a suit for an office it is not necessary to allege in the petition that the relator had offered to qualify. The value of the office can be alleged in general terms. Little v. State, 75 T. 616, 12 S. W. 965.

An averment held sufficient, in the absence of a special exception, to authorize the controverting of the return of the canvassers. Gray v. State, 19 C. A. 521, 49 S. W. 699.

A petition in an election contest need not aver that the ballots had been preserved in a custody provided by law. Id.

Where the petition in an election contest attacked certain votes as illegal on the ground that voters did not reside in the precinct and had not paid a poll tax, the plaintiff was not entitled to have the votes counted for him. Bigham v. Clubb, 42 C. A. 312, 95 S. W. 675.

The facts relied upon by a contestant to impeach the validity of an election should be set forth specifically and definitely. Oxley v. Allen, 49 C. A. 90, 107 S. W. 945.

A petition in an election contest which alleged that election officers refused to entertain challenges held too general to admit proof of a violation of Election Law 1905, § 73. Altgelt v. Callaghan (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1166.

A petition in an election contest which did not allege that voters assisted were not physically incapacitated held not to sufficiently allege a violation of the law by the election officers in assisting voters to prepare their ballots. Id.

A petition in an election contest alleging, generally, fraud in the election held insufficient to require the court to recount the ballots cast. Id.

Issues and proof.—An objection that a voter who voted in C. had failed to pay his poll tax could not be made under an allegation that he resided in B. and had there failed to pay his poll tax. McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 278.

In an election contest, a refusal to allow contestants to examine affidavits of persons who voted without producing their poll tax receipts held not erroneous, there being no pleading attacking the affidavits as defective or illegal. Id.

Art. 3057. [1804] Contestee in certain cases to execute bond.—Whenever the validity of an election for an officer other than for members of the legislature is contested, the contestee shall, within twenty days after the service of the notice and statement of such contest upon him, as provided in this law, file with the clerk of the court in which such contest is pending a bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to the contestant, to be approved by said clerk, in an amount to be fixed by said clerk, and not less than double the probable amount of salary or fees or both, as the case may be, to be realized from the office being contested for a period of two years. Said bond to be conditioned that, in the event the decision of the contest shall be against such contestee and in favor of the contestant, such contestee will pay over to such contestant whatever sum may be adjudged against him by a court having jurisdiction of the subject matter of such bond. [Id.]

Art. 3058. [1804a] On failure of contestee in such cases, contestant to execute bond.—Should the contestee fail to file the bond as required in the preceding article, and within the time therein prescribed, it shall be the duty of said clerk to notify the contestant immediately of such failure; and such contestant shall have the right, within ten days after such notice, to file a like bond payable to the contestee, conditioned that, in the event the decision of the contest is against him and in favor of the contestee, he will pay over to such contestee whatever sum may be adjudged against him, the said contestant, by a court having jurisdiction of the subject matter of such bond. [Id.]

Art. 3059. [1804b] Execution of bond by contestant to be certified to governor.—Immediately upon the filing of said bond by the contestant, the clerk shall certify in writing, and under his official seal, to the governor that the contestee failed to give the required bond, and that the contestant has given such bond in accordance with law. [Id.]

Art. 3060. [1804c] Governor to commission contestant to perform duties of office pending determination of contest.—Upon receiving such certificate from the clerk, it shall be the duty of the governor to issue a commission to the said contestant for the office in controversy pending such contest; and thereupon the contestant, upon qualifying in said office as required by law, shall exercise all the rights and powers and perform all the duties of said office for the full term thereof, unless it shall be otherwise determined and ordered by the court upon the trial of such contest. [Id.]

Art. 3061. [1804d] On failure of contestant to execute bond governor to commission contestee.—It shall be the duty of the governor to issue the commission to the contestee at the time provided by law as in other cases, unless he has been notified of the failure of such contestee to file the bond required by article 3057, in which event the governor shall withhold the issuance of such commission until after the time allowed the contestant to file such bond has elapsed; but, if the said contestant shall also fail to file bond as provided in article 3058, and within the time therein required, it shall be the duty of the clerk to certify all the facts in the case under his official seal to the governor, who shall thereupon issue the commission to the contestee. [Id.]

Art. 3062. [1804e] Fraudulent votes not to be counted.—If, upon the trial of any contested election case, any vote or votes be found to be illegal or fraudulent, the court trying the same shall subtract such vote or votes from the poll of the candidate who received the same, and after a full and fair investigation of the evidence shall decide to which of the contesting parties the office belongs. [Id.]

Title to office.—Under articles of the Revised Statutes of 1895, corresponding to this and the succeeding article, it was held that a contestee should be declared entitled to office, in an election contest, though contestant have more votes; another not contesting having more than either. Calverley v. Shank, 28 C. A. 473, 67 S. W. 434.

Where one receives the certificate of election and holds the office, and the candidate who received the plurality vote after all illegal votes are excluded does not contest, he is entitled to the office over one who received more votes than he did, but did not receive either a majority or plurality. Possession gives title to an office unless a superior right is shown in the adverse claimant. Id.

Art. 3063. [1804f] Election to be declared void, when.—Should it appear on the trial of any contest provided for in article 3054 that it is impossible to ascertain the true result of the election as to the office about which the contest is made, either from the returns of the election or from any evidence within reach, or from the returns considered in connection with other evidence, or should it appear from the evidence that such a number of legal voters were, by the officers or managers of the election, denied the privilege of voting as, had they been allowed to vote, would have materially changed the result, the court shall adjudge such election void, and direct the proper officers to order another election to fill said office; which election shall be ordered and held and returns thereof made in all respects as required by the general election laws of the state. [Id.]

Conclusiveness of returns.—The returns from an election precinct should not be disregarded in an election contest on the ground of any fraudulent conspiracy to carry the election, where it does not appear that the conspiracy was executed, if any existed, or that any fraudulent acts influenced any illegal voting. Linger v. Balfour (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 795.

Elections void.—Where, by reason of disturbance and intimidation, so large a number of voters were prevented from voting that what would have been the result if they had been allowed to vote cannot be ascertained, the election will be set aside. Hodge v. Jones, 17 C. A. 511, 43 S. W. 41.

Where the appellant had 74 legal votes and the appellee had 73, and one legal voter who would have voted for appellee was not allowed to vote, the election is void and a new election should be ordered. Rathgen v. French, 22 C. A. 439, 55 S. W. 578.

Failure to observe the directory provisions of the election law will not nullify an election, where it shows a fair and honest expression of the electors' will. Clark v. Hardison, 40 C. A. 611, 90 S. W. 342.

Improper influences exerted upon 35 voters in county seat election held not to render entire election void. Wallis v. Williams, 50 C. A. 623, 110 S. W. 785.

If qualified voters in sufficient number to materially affect the result are denied the right to vote, the election may be avoided. McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 278.

The general rule is that statutory provisions as to elections, if not made expressly mandatory, will be construed as so far directory that the election will not be nullified by mere irregularities, not fraudulently brought about, when the departure from the prescribed method throws a substantial doubt on the result. Savage v. Umphries (Civ. App.) 118 S. W. 893.

The failure of election officers to perform statutory duties held not to invalidate an election. Altgelt v. Callaghan (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 1166.

New election in case of tie.—Under the statute requiring the court to order a new election in case the result of an election contest is a tie, a new election cannot be ordered unless there is a tie, even though one of the parties is declared elected by a majority of but one vote. Bailey v. Fly, 35 C. A. 410, 80 S. W. 675.

Art. 3064. [1804g] Bonds subject to suit.—The bonds required to be filed by the contestant and contestee under the provisions of this chapter shall remain on file in the office of the clerk where filed, and may be sued upon as other bonds. [Id.]

Art. 3065. [1804h] Appeal available, and to have precedence of hearing.—Either the contestant or contestee may appeal from the judgment of the district court to the court of civil appeals, under the same rules and regulations as are provided for appeals in civil cases; and such cases shall have precedence in the court of civil appeals over all other cases. [Id.]

Writ of error.—A writ of error cannot be sued out from a judgment rendered in a contested election proceeding. Buckler v. Turbeville, 17 C. A. 320, 43 S. W. 810.

Assignments of error considered on appeal.—In election contest, assignment of error to refusal to reject single vote held not entitled to consideration on appeal where rejection of vote could have affected result. Wallis v. Williams, 50 C. A. 623, 110 S. W. 785.

Review of findings on appeal.—Findings of the trial court will not be set aside on appeal, where there is evidence tending to sustain them. McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 278.

Harmless error.—The error in refusing to order ballot boxes delivered into court pending an election contest held not prejudicial. Altgelt v. Callaghan (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1166.

Art. 3066. [1804i] Transcript on appeal.—In case of appeal as provided for in the preceding article, the clerk shall, without delay, make up the transcript and forward the same to the clerk of the court of civil appeals for that district. [Id.]

Effect of statute as extending time for filing transcript.—This article does not extend the time for filing the transcript beyond the 90 days provided in civil action. Thornton v. Foster (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 1027.

Art. 3067. [1804] Costs, how taxed.—The costs in all contested election cases shall be taxed according to the laws governing costs in civil cases, except when otherwise specially provided, and bond for costs may be required as in civil suits. [Id.]

Costs.—Under the statute relating to costs in contested election cases held, that successful contestants in a county seat election should be required to pay only the costs created by them. Durham v. Rogers, 48 C. A. 232, 106 S. W. 906.

Under Art. 2035, authorizing the successful party to recover of the defeated party costs incurred, and this article and Arts. 3077 and 3078, citizens of a city instituting a contest of an election on the adoption of a new charter are, when unsuccessful, liable for the legal costs, but, where they allege fraud in accumulating the costs, the court must determine the facts and relieve them from costs fraudulently incurred. Altgelt v. Callaghan (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1166.

Security for costs.—The filing of a pauper's oath by contestant in an election contest held to relieve him from the obligation to furnish security for costs. Bailey v. Fly, 97 T. 425, 79 S. W. 299.

Art. 3068. [1804k] Measure of damages.—Where the contest shall have been decided against one of the parties and the other party shall have filed a bond and performed the duties of the office under the provisions of this chapter, the bond so filed shall inure to the benefit of the successful party in any suit thereon in a court having jurisdiction of the amount in controversy; and the measure of damages recoverable, besides cost of suit, shall be the salary, fees, and emoluments of office of which he has been deprived, less such reasonable expenses as the party holding the office shall have incurred in executing the duties of the office; provided, that he shall have acted in good faith in receiving the certificate of election or commission for the office.

Art. 3069. [1804*l*] Record, copies of, how sent up.—If the contest be for the validity of an election for members of the legislature, a copy of the notice, the statement, and the reply served upon the parties as required by this chapter, shall, within twenty days after the service thereof, be filed with the district returning officer to whom the returns of such election were made, who shall envelop the same, together with a certified copy of the poll book or register of the votes of each precinct and county returned to him in said election, and shall seal the said envelope and write his name across the seals, and address the package to the president of the senate or speaker of the house of representatives, as the case may be, to the care of the secretary of state, and shall forward the same by mail or other safe conveyance to the seat of government, so as to reach there if possible before the convening of the legislature. [Id.]

Art. 3070. [1804m] Depositions may be taken in such case.—At any time after filing said papers with said returning officer, either party to said contest may proceed, at his own expense, to take such written testimony as he may deem proper, having first served the opposite party, his agent or attorney, with a copy of the interrogatories he intends to propound to each witness, and the name of the officer before whom such interrogatories will be answered, as well as the time and place of taking such testimony. [Id.]

Art. 3071. [1804n] Who may take such depositions.—Any officer authorized by the law of this state to administer oaths, upon being satisfied as to any costs, including his own fees, that may accrue in the taking of such testimony, shall proceed, upon the application of the party desiring it, to summon the witness or witnesses named in the interrogatories and take his or their answers in writing and under oath to such interrogatories and cross-interrogatories as may be propounded in writing.

Local option.—Where a case was brought and went to trial as a special proceeding to contest a local option election, in which, under this article, appeal may be had without bond, though no evidence was given in support of allegations on which the election could be contested under the statute, the judgment giving contestants therein relief, on evidence of equitable grounds may be reviewed on appeal without bond. Martin v. Mitchell, 32 C. A. 385, 74 S. W. 566.

Art. 3072. [1804o] How depositions may be returned.—The answers of each witness shall be reduced to writing and signed by such witness, and sworn to by such witness before the officer taking the same, and shall be certified to by such officer and sealed in an envelope; and the name of the said officer shall be written by him across the seals; and he shall forward the same without delay by mail or other safe conveyance to the president of the senate or the speaker of the house of representatives, as the case may be, to the care of the secretary of state, at the seat of government.

Art. 3073. [1804p] Procedure in the house in which the contest is pending.—The notice and statement of contest and the other papers pertaining thereto shall immediately after the organization of the legislature be opened by the president of the senate or the speaker of the house of representatives, as the case may be; and the same shall be referred to the committee on privileges and elections of the house in which the contest is pending, which committee shall proceed without delay to fix a time for the hearing of said case, and, after due notice to the parties thereto shall investigate the issues between said parties, hearing all the legal evidence that may be presented to said committee, and shall as soon thereafter as practicable report their conclusions of law and fact in respect to said case to the house by which said committee was appointed, accompanied by all the papers in the cause, and the evidence taken therein, with such recommendations as may to them seem proper. Any one or more of the committee dissenting from the views of the majority may present a minority report. [Id.]

Art. 3074. [1804q] Hearing of evidence by committee on privileges and election; powers and duties of committee.—The rules of evidence and the laws in force respecting the admissibility of evidence, the taking of depositions and the issuance and service of process in the district courts of this state shall be observed by said committee, so far as the same may be applicable. Said committee shall have the power to send for persons and papers, and the chairmen of said committees shall have the power to issue all process necessary to secure the attendance of witnesses and the production of papers, ballot boxes and other documents before said committee, and such process shall be executed by the sergeant-at-arms of the house in which the contest is pending, or by such other person as may be designated by the presiding officer of said house. [Id.]

Art. 3075. [1804r] Procedure on final trial by the body; fees, etc.—The house in which the contest is pending shall, as soon as practicable after the report of the committee has been received, fix a day for the trial of the contest, and shall proceed to determine whether the contestant or contestee, or either of them, is entitled to the contestant's seat; provided, the said house may hold the election void after full consideration of all the evidence and for the reasons prescribed in article 3063, and in such case the governor shall be at once notified of the vacancy. Such fees shall be paid to the witnesses and the officers serving the process as shall be prescribed by the rules of the house in which said contest is pending, and no mileage or per diem shall be paid to either of the parties to said contest until said case is determined, and in no case shall any mileage or per diem be paid to any party against whom any contest is decided. [Id.]

Art. 3076. [1804s] Contest for governor; lieutenant-governor, etc.—If the contest be for the validity of an election for governor, lieutenant-governor, comptroller of public accounts, treasurer, commissioner of the general land office or attorney general, the same shall be tried and determined by both houses of the legislature in joint session, and the provisions of this chapter governing in the case of a contest for the validity of an election for members of the legislature shall apply to and govern in a contest for the offices above named, as far as the same may be applicable. [Id. Const., art. 4, sec. 3.]

Art. 3077. [1804t] Other contested elections.—If the contest be for the validity of an election held for any other purpose than the election of an officer or officers in any county or part of a county or precinct of a county, or in any incorporated city, town or village, any resident of such county, precinct, city, town or village, or any number of such residents, may contest such election in the district court of such county in the same manner and under the same rules, as far as applicable, as are prescribed in this chapter for contesting the validity of an election for a county office.

Notice of grounds.—Notice of the ground of contesting an election held sufficient within Arts. 3051, 3077, 3078, and 5728. McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 278.

Judgment—Local option.—In contests for local option elections, as in contests of elections for officers, the judgment to be entered depends on the nature of the grounds of the contest and the proof made thereon. Kidd v. Truett, 28 C. A. 618, 68 S. W. 311.

Costs.—See notes under Art. 3067.

Art. 3078. [1804u] Parties defendant under preceding article.—In any case provided for in the preceding article, the county attorney of the county, or where there is no county attorney the district attorney of the district, or the mayor of the city, town or village, or the officer who declared the official result of said election, or one of them, as the case may be, shall be made the contestee, and shall be served with notice and statement, and shall file his reply thereto as in the case of a contest for office; but in no case shall the costs of such contest be adjudged against such contestee, or against the county, city, town or village which they may represent, nor shall such contestee be required to give any bond upon an appeal. [Id.]

See Hartford Fire Ins. Co. v. Wright (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 363.

Notice of grounds.—Notice of the ground of contesting an election held sufficient within Arts. 3051, 3077, 3078, and 5728. McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 278.

Retirement of county attorney.—Upon the retirement of a county attorney, there was no abatement of a proceeding in which he was the contestee, and that his successor was rightly substituted as such party in the conduct of the proceeding. Savage v. Umphres (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 291.

Costs.—See notes under Art. 3067.

Art. 3078a. Contesting elections on proposed amendments to constitution; petition; injunction; citation; pleadings; bond.—Within sixty days from the date of any such election upon any proposed amendment to the constitution, and not thereafter, any citizen of this state who is a qualified voter shall have the right to contest said election by filing his petition in one of the district courts of Travis county, Texas, setting forth fully his grounds for contest, naming the secretary of state as contestee; and thereupon the district judge, in whose court the contest is filed, shall make an order for the issuance, and the clerk of said court or the judge thereof, shall issue a writ of injunction enjoining the secretary of state from tabulating, estimating or canvassing the returns of said election and from ascertaining or declaring the result of said election until said contest is finally determined. Citation shall be issued and served upon the secretary of state as in other civil cases. At the time of filing such petition, contestant shall cause to be published in some daily newspaper published in the state, for not less than ten days before appearance day, a brief notice to all parties interested that such suit has been filed. The secretary of state shall within twenty days from service of citation file a formal answer, but shall not be liable for any costs. Any qualified citizen or citizens adversely interested in such contest may appear by counsel of their own choosing upon either side of the contest, but opponents of the contest shall have the right to direct and control the pleadings of the secretary of state and the conduct of the contest upon the part of the contestees; and contestants shall jointly and not severally plead in the cause. The said court shall cause the party contesting the result of said election and the parties adversely interested to form issues and shall as near as may be conform the hearing and determination of such contest to the proceedings usual in courts in contested election cases. The court shall permit contestants to amend their petition, include therein allegations charging fraud, irregularity or mistakes, upon such terms as to the court may seem just, and likewise the contestees shall have the right both to contest the charges made by the contestant and to make counter charges, but the court shall bring the parties to issue with all possible dispatch. Provided, however, that should any contest be filed as herein provided for, that the contestant shall be required to give a good and sufficient bond to be approved by the clerk of the court wherein said contest is filed, conditioned that the said contestant will pay, in the event he is defeated in said contest, all the costs that may be incurred in the trial of said contest, and that he shall not be permitted to file any such contest and give in lieu of the bond herein provided for any affidavit of inability to pay the costs as provided for under the general statutes. [Acts 1911, p. 144, sec. 8.]

Note.—See Arts. 2928a–2928e.

Art. 3078b. Same subject; powers of court.—The said court shall have the power to appoint commissioners to sit at such places as the court may designate for the purpose of hearing testimony, reducing same to writing and reporting same to said court, said court shall also have the power to issue all orders that may be necessary or proper to compel the production before said court or any commissioner appointed by said court, of all ballot boxes and instrumentalities used in connection with said election that may be necessary or proper to the determination of the issue raised by such contest, and to send by proper process to any county in the state, for the officers of the election or the custodians of ballot boxes for the purpose of aiding in, ascertaining and determining any matter or thing necessary or proper in connection with the trial of said contest. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 3078c. Same subject; trial; court may adjourn, make orders, etc.—The said court may proceed to the trial of said issue raised by said contest after having given the contestants and the contestees full and fair opportunity to produce before said court the evidence pro and con upon such issues. The court may adjourn said hearing from time to time and may, before the final determination of said cause, make such orders and decrees as to the court may seem just and proper, requiring any election officers to make such certificates of the result of such election as in the judgment of the court such officers should have been made in making the returns of such election. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 3078d. Same subject; may hear and determine, etc.—Upon the trial of said cause, the court shall have full power and authority to hear and determine all matters and things necessary or proper to the determination of the question whether a majority of the legal votes cast in said election, either in favor or against said proposed amendment, including the manner of holding the election, any frauds or irregularities in the conduct thereof, or in the making of the returns thereof illegal votes cast at said election or legal votes prevented from being cast, false calculations, certificates or returns, and to exercise all powers of the court, both in law or in equity, in order to fully inquire into and ascertain the true and correct result of such election, free from any fraud, irregularity or mistake. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 3078e. Same subject; may compel correct returns.—The said court shall have full power and authority when the result of such election in any voting precinct box shall have been ascertained and determined, to order and compel the proper officers thereof to make true and correct returns of such election in such voting box as finally determined by said court, to the proper officers of such county; and when the result in any county shall have been ascertained and determined by said court, to order and compel the proper returning officers of such county to make true and correct returns of the result of said election in said county as to said amendment as ascertained by said court to the secretary of state, and to order the secretary of state to make his returns, tabulations, canvassings, countings and certificates in accordance with the result of such election as finally ascertained and determined by the court. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 3078f. Same subject; provisions cumulative.—The provisions of this Act are cumulative and not exclusive of the powers, rights and authority vested in the district courts of Texas. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 3078g. Same subject; contest to have precedence; appeals, etc.—The said contest shall have precedence in said court over all causes pending therein, and upon final disposition thereof an appeal may be taken by either party as in other civil cases; and such appeal or writ of error or motion for rehearing shall have precedence over all other causes pending in the appellate courts to which the appeal or writ of error is taken, except such cases as may be entitled to precedence over said cause by virtue of some provision of the constitution of this state. Upon final judgement [judgment] in said appellate court, it shall be the duty of said appellate court to enter a decree ordering and directing the secretary of state to declare the true result of said election as judicially determined and ascertained by said court, and the secretary of state shall make his tabulations, canvassings and certificates of the results of such election in accordance with the final judgement [judgment] of said court, and said amendment shall be adopted or rejected in accordance with the final result of said election as finally determined by the judgement [judgment] of said court. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 3078h. Same subject; result final, etc.—The result of said contest shall finally settle all questions relating to the validity of said election, and it shall not be permissible to again call the legality of said election in question in any other suit or proceeding, and if no contest of said election is filed and prosecuted in the manner and within the time herein provided for, it shall be conclusively presumed that said election as held and the result thereof as declared are in all respects valid and binding upon all courts, provided, that pending such contest the enforcement of all laws in relation to the subject matter of such contest shall not be suspended, but shall remain in full force and effect, and all laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. [Id. sec. 15.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Contest as proceeding in rem.—An election contest is in rem, and not in personam. Evans v. State, 55 Cr. R. 450, 117 S. W. 167.

An election contest is a proceeding in rem, and a judgment therein is binding and conclusive on all the world. Bickers v. Lacy (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 763; Savage v. State, 138 S. W. 211.

Contest as collateral attack on legal existence of town.—An election contest, the issue being the boundaries of an incorporated town, held not open to the objection that the proceedings constituted a collateral attack on the legal existence of the town. Foster v. Hare, 26 C. A. 177, 62 S. W. 541.

CHAPTER NINE

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Article 3079. [1806] [1755] County commissioners shall act, when.—Whenever, by this title, any duty is devolved upon a county judge, and that office is vacant, or such officer from any cause fails to perform such duty, any two or more of the county commissioners of the county may perform such duty; and it shall be the duty of said commissioners to perform such duty in such case. [Act Feb. 11, 1850. P. D. 3625.]

Art. 3080. [1808] [1757] County judge shall certify death of certain officers to secretary of state.—When any state or district officer, member of congress, member of the legislature or notary public, shall depart this life, the county judge of the county where such death occurs or of the county where such officer resided, shall immediately certify the fact of the death of such officer to the secretary of state. [Act March 6, 1863. P. D. 3604.]

Art. 3081. [1810] [1759] Provisions of title apply to all elections, except, etc.—The provisions of this title shall apply to all elections held in this state, except as otherwise herein provided. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 520, sec. 93.]

Local option or special laws.—The Terrell election law does not interfere with or repeal any local option or special laws except as may be specially provided and set forth therein. In case of conflict between local option or special laws with the Terrell law, the latter gives way. Hash v. Ely, 45 C. A. 259, 100 S. W. 981.

Art. 3082. [1810a] Persons not eligible to hold office.—No person shall be eligible to any county or state office in the state of Texas, unless he shall have resided in this state for the period of twelve months, and six months in the county in which he offers himself as a candidate next preceding any general or special election, and shall have been an actual bona fide citizen in said county for more than six months. [Acts 1895, p. 81.]

Art. 3083. [1810b] Certificate of election shall not issue, unless, etc.—There shall not be issued by the county judge of any county in this state to any person elected or appointed to any office in this state a certificate of election, unless he shall have resided in this state for the period of twelve months, and having been an actual bona fide citizen of said county for more than six months in the county or district in which he offers himself for election next preceding any general or special election. [Id.]

CHAPTER TEN

NOMINATIONS—BY PRIMARY ELECTIONS AND OTHERWISE

1. NOMINATIONS BY PARTIES OF ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND VOTES AND OVER

Article 3084. Candidates of parties of 100,000 votes and over to be nominated by primary election.—On primary election day in 1912, and every two years thereafter, candidates for governor and for all other state offices to be chosen by a vote of the entire state, and candidates for congress and all district offices to be chosen by the vote of any district comprising more than one county, to be nominated by each organized political party that cast one hundred thousand votes or more at the last general election, shall, together with all candidates for offices to be filled by the voters of a county, or of a portion of a county, be nominated in primary elections by the qualified voters of such party. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 549, sec. 117.]

Art. 3085. Primary election defined.—The term, "primary election," as used in this chapter, means an election held by the members of an organized political party for the purpose of nominating the candidates of such party to be voted for at a general or special election, or to nominate the county executive officers of a party. [Id. sec. 102.]

Art. 3086. Primary election day and second primary; special primaries; city, etc., primaries.—The fourth Saturday in July in the year 1912, and every two years thereafter, shall be the legal primary election day, and primary elections to nominate candidates for a general election shall be held on no other day, except when specially authorized. Any political party may hold a second primary election on the second Saturday in August to nominate candidates for a county or precinct office, where a majority vote is required to make a nomination; but, at such second primary, only the two candidates who received the two highest votes at the first primary for the same office shall be voted for. Nominations of candidates to be voted for at any special election shall be made at a primary election at such time as the party executive committee shall determine, but no such committee shall ever have the power to make such nominations; provided, that all precincts in the same county and all counties in the same district, shall vote on the same day. Nominations of party candidates for offices to be filled in a city or town shall be made not less than ten days prior to the city or town election at which they are to be chosen, in such manner as the party executive committee for such city or town shall direct, and all laws prescribing the method of conducting county primary elections shall apply to them. [Id. sec. 105.]

Art. 3087. Places of holding primaries.—The places of holding primary elections of political parties in the various precincts of the state shall not be within one hundred yards of the place at which such elections or conventions are held by a different political party. When the chairman of the executive committees of the different parties can not agree on the places where precinct primary elections to be held on the same day shall be held, such places in each precinct shall be designated by the county judge, who shall cause public notice thereof to be given at once in some newspaper in the county, or if there be none, by posting notices in some public place in the precinct. [Id. sec. 122.]

Art. 3088. Polls, primary, hours for opening and closing, etc.—The polls at primary elections shall be open at eight o'clock in the morning and closed at seven o'clock in the evening of the same day, and the election shall be held for one day only. [Id. sec. 125.]

Art. 3089. Officers, etc., of primary election; appointment and qualifications.—All the precinct primary elections of a party shall be conducted by a presiding judge, to be appointed by a chairman of the county executive committee of the party, with the assistance and approval of at least a majority of the members of the county executive committee. Such presiding judge shall select an associate judge and two clerks to assist in conducting the election; two supervisors may be chosen by any one-fourth of the party candidates, who, with the judges and clerks, shall take the oath required of such officers in general elections. Two additional clerks may be appointed, but only when, in the opinion of the presiding judge, there will be more than one hundred votes polled at the primary election in the precinct. No one shall serve as judge, clerk or supervisor at a primary election, unless he has paid his poll tax. [Id. sec. 123.]

Art. 3090. Judges of primary election, powers and duties.—Judges of primary elections have the authority, and it shall be their duty, to administer oaths, to preserve order at the election, to appoint special officers to enforce the observance of order and to make arrests, as judges of general elections are authorized and required to do. Such judges and officers shall compel the observance of the law that prohibits loitering or electioneering within one hundred feet of the entrance of the polling place, and shall arrest, or cause to be arrested, anyone engaged in the work of conveying voters to the polls in carriages or other mode of conveyance, except as permitted by this title. [Id. secs. 134 and 104.]

Art. 3091. Majority or plurality vote, question of determined how; second election.—The county executive committee shall decide whether the nomination of county officers shall be by majority or plurality vote, and, if by majority vote, the committee shall call as many such elections as may be necessary to make such nomination, and, in case the committee fails to so decide, then the nomination of all such officers shall be by a plurality of the votes cast at such election. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 546, sec. 111.]

Art. 3092. Majority or plurality vote, question of determined how.—The county executive committee may determine whether the nomination of county officers shall be by a majority or plurality vote in such county, and, if by a majority vote, then the committee may call as many such elections as may be necessary to make such nomination. [Id. sec. 117.]

Art. 3093. Qualifications for voting; poll tax in cities of 10,000 and over; additional qualifications, etc.—No one shall vote in any primary election, unless he has paid his poll tax or obtained his certificate of exemption from its payment, in cases where such certificate is required, before the first of February next preceding, which fact must be ascertained by the officers conducting the primary election by an inspection of the certified lists of qualified voters of the precinct, and of the poll tax receipts or certificates of exemption; nor shall he vote in any primary election except in the voting precinct of his residence; provided, that, if this receipt or certificate be lost or misplaced, or inadvertently left at home, that fact must be sworn to by the party offering to vote; and provided, further, that the requirements as to presentation of the poll tax receipt, certificate of exemption or affidavit shall apply only to cities of ten thousand population or over as shown by the last United States census; provided, that the executive committee of any party for any county may prescribe additional qualifications for voters in such primaries, not inconsistent with this title. [Id. sec. 103.]

Applies to special elections only.—This section [Art. 3093] seems to apply only to special elections and does not attempt to prescribe how the population is to be ascertained in procuring the certificate of exemption as required by section 19 of this law [Art. 2953]. McCormick v. Jester, 53 C. A. 306, 115 S. W. 287.

Art. 3094. Expenses of primary election how met.—At the meeting of the county executive committee provided for in article 3106, the county committee shall also carefully estimate the cost of printing the official ballots, renting polling places where same may be found necessary, providing and distributing all necessary poll books, blank stationery and voting booths required, compensation of election officers and clerks and messengers, to report the result in each precinct to the county chairman, as provided for herein, and all other necessary expenses of holding such primaries in such counties, and shall apportion such cost among the various candidates for nomination for county and precinct offices only as herein defined, and offices to be filled by the voters of such county, or precinct only, (candidates for state offices excepted), in such manner as in their judgment is just and equitable, giving due consideration to the importance and emoluments of each such office for which a nomination is to be made, and shall, by resolution, direct the chairman to immediately mail to each person whose name has been requested to be placed on the official ballot a statement of the amount of such expenses so apportioned to him, with the request that he pay the same to the county chairman on or before the fourth Monday in June thereafter. [Id. sec. 111.]

Art. 3095. Ballot, official, at primaries, form, etc., of, and manner of voting.—The vote at all general primaries shall be by official ballot, which shall have printed at the head the name of the party, and under such head the names of all candidates, those for each nomination being arranged in the order determined by the various committees as herein provided for, beneath the title of the office for which the nomination is sought. The voter shall erase or mark out all the names he does not wish to vote for. The official ballot shall be printed in black ink upon white paper, and beneath the name of each candidate thereof for state and district offices, there shall be printed the county of his residence. The official ballot shall be printed by the county committee in each county, which shall furnish to the presiding officer of the general primary for each voting precinct at least one and one-half times as many of such official ballots as there are poll taxes paid for such precinct, as shown by the tax collector's list. Where two or more candidates are to be nominated for the same office, to be voted for by the qualified voters of the same district, county or justice precinct, such candidates shall be voted for and nominations made separately, and all nominations shall be separately designated on the official ballots by numbering the same, "1," "2," "3," etc., printing the abbreviation "No.," and the designating number after the title of the office for which such nominations are to be made. Each candidate for such nominations shall designate in the announcement of his candidacy, and in his request to have his name placed on the official ballot, the number of the nomination for which he desires to become a candidate, and the names of all candidates so requesting shall have their names printed beneath title of the office and the number so designated. Each voter shall vote for only one candidate for each such nomination. [Id. sec. 107.]

Art. 3096. Ballot, primary, no symbol, etc., on, except, etc., ballot without test not counted, etc.—No official ballot for primary election shall have on it any symbol or device or any printed matter, except a primary test, to be uniform throughout the state, which shall read as follows: "I am a ———— (inserting the name of the political party or organization of which the voter is a member) and pledge myself to support the nominees of this primary;" and any ballot which shall not contain such test printed above the names of the candidates thereon, shall be void and shall not be counted. Such ballot shall also contain the names and residences of the candidates.

Art. 3097. Ballot, primary or general, no symbol, etc., on, etc.; referendum on U. S. senator.—No official ballot, either for a primary or general election, shall have on it any symbol or device or any printed matter, except that which is authorized by law; and no ballot cast in violation of this article shall be counted for any candidate. Provided, that the executive committee of the party for any county shall print on the primary ticket the names of all persons whose names, not less than thirty days prior to the day of the primary, shall be requested to be printed thereon as candidates for United States senator; and the executive committee shall forward to each nominee of the party for state senator and representative voted for by the voters of such county, a certified statement of the vote cast in the county for each such candidate. [Id. sec. 124.]

For analysis of this article, see Jones v. U. S. & Mex. Trust Co., 47 C. A. 430, 105 S. W. 330.

Art. 3098. Ballot, primary, candidate for state office, placed on, how.—Any person affiliating with any party who desires his name to appear on the official ballot for a general primary, as a candidate for the nomination of such party for any state office, shall file with the state chairman not later than the first Monday in June preceding such primary, his written request that his name be placed upon such official ballot as a candidate for the nomination named therein, giving his age and occupation, the county of his residence and his postoffice address, which shall be signed by him and acknowledged by him before some officer. Any twenty-five qualified voters may likewise join in the request that the name of any person affiliating with such party be placed upon the official ballot as a candidate for any state nomination, giving the occupation, county of residence and postoffice address of such person signing and acknowledging the same as above provided, and may file the same with the state chairman on, or prior to, the date above mentioned, with the same effect as if such request had been filed by the party named therein as a candidate for such nomination. All such requests shall be considered filed with the state chairman when they are sent from any point in this state by registered mail, addressed to the state chairman at his postoffice address. [Id. sec. 108.]

Art. 3099. State executive committee to meet when and certify names of candidates in primary to county chairman.—On the second Monday in June preceding each general primary, the state committee shall meet at some place to be designated by its chairman, of which designation it shall be the duty of such chairman to notify by mail all members of said committee, and all persons whose names have been requested to be placed upon the official ballot, not less than three days prior to such meeting. Such committee at this meeting shall, by resolution, direct their chairman to certify to each county chairman in the state the names of such candidates and county of residence of each as shown by the requests filed with the state chairman. Copies of such certificates shall be immediately furnished to each newspaper in the state desiring to publish the same, and one copy shall be immediately mailed to the chairman of the executive committee of each county. [Id. sec. 109.]

Art. 3100. Ballot, primary, candidate for district office placed on how; certification.—Any person desiring his name to appear on the official ballot as a candidate for the nomination for chief justice or associate justice of the court of civil appeals, or for representative in congress, or for state senator, or for representative, or district judge, or district attorney, in representative or judicial districts composed of more than one county, shall file with the chairman of the executive committee of the party for the district, the request prescribed in this chapter, with reference to the candidate for state nominations, or, if there be no chairman of such district executive committee, then with the chairman of each county composing such district, not later than the first Monday in June preceding the general primary. Such requests may likewise be filed not later than said date by any twenty-five qualified voters resident within such district, signed and acknowledged by such voters in the manner prescribed respecting such request signed by a candidate named therein. Immediately after said date it shall be the duty of each such district chairman to certify the names of all persons for whom such requests have been filed to the county chairman of each county composing such district; and each county committee shall determine by lot the order in which the names of all candidates for each such district office shall be printed upon the official ballot. [Id. sec. 110].

Art. 3101. Ballot, primary, candidate for county, etc., office placed on, how.—Any person desiring his name to appear on the official ballot for the general primary, as a candidate for the nomination for any office to be filled by the qualified voters of a county, or a portion thereof, or for county chairman, shall file with the county chairman of the county of his residence, not later than the Saturday before the third Monday in June preceding such primary, a written request for his name to be printed on such official ballot as a candidate for the nomination or position named therein, giving his occupation and postoffice address, giving the street and number of his residence, if within a city or town, such request to be signed and acknowledged by him before some officer authorized to take acknowledgment to deeds. Such request similarly signed and acknowledged by any twenty-five qualified voters resident in the county may be filed on or before said date, requesting that the name of any person named therein may be placed on the official ballot as a candidate for any county or precinct office or chairmanship, with like effect as if such request was filed by the person named as a candidate therein; which request shall be endorsed by the candidate named therein, showing his consent to such candidacy, if nominated. [Id. sec. 111.]

Art. 3102. Candidates before primary, certificates of presented to county committee by chairman.—At the meeting of the county executive committee provided for in article 3106, the county chairman shall present to the committee the certificates of the chairman of the state and the various district executive committees, showing the names of all persons whose names are to appear on the official ballot as candidates for state and district offices. [Id. sec. 111.]

Art. 3103. Primary committee; appointment; to make up official ballot.—The county chairman shall appoint, subject to the approval of the committee, a subcommittee of five members to be known as the primary committee, of which he shall be ex officio chairman, which subcommittee shall meet on the second Monday in July and make up the official ballot for such general primary in such county, in accordance with the certificates of the state and district chairman, and the requests filed with the county chairman and placing [place] the name of candidates for nomination for state, district, county and precinct officers thereon in the order determined by the county executive committee as herein provided. [Id. sec. 111.]

Art. 3104. No candidate placed on ballot who has not paid pro rata expenses.—The name of no person shall be placed on the ballot for a county or precinct office who has not paid to the county executive committee the amount of the estimated expenses of holding such primary, apportioned to him by the county executive committee, as hereinbefore provided. No candidate for a state or district office, unless such district is composed of one county only, shall be required to pay any portion of such cost, unless the executive committee of the county shall so direct; but in no event shall more than one dollar apiece be assessed against any such candidate for a state or district office, unless such district is composed of one county only. [Id. sec. 111.]

Art. 3105. Order of names on ballot, determined how, and when.—It shall be the duty of the various county committees of any political party, on the day and date set apart by this chapter for arranging for primary elections, to determine the order in which the names of the various candidates for state or district or county and precinct offices shall appear on the ticket, and said order shall be determined by lot, so no preference shall be given to any candidate. [Id. sec. 113.]

Art. 3106. Order of names on ballot determined how, and when.—On the third Monday in June preceding such general primary, the county executive committee of each county shall meet at the county seat and determine by lot the order in which the names of all candidates for each nomination or position requested to be printed on the official ballot shall be printed thereon. [Id. sec. 111.]

Art. 3107. County executive committees, county, and precinct chairmen, elected at primary, etc.—There shall be, for each political party required by this law to hold primary elections for nomination of its candidates, a county executive committee, to be composed of one member from each voting or justice precinct in such county, as the party executive committee may direct, the members of which county executive committee as well as the county chairman and a precinct chairman for each voting or justice precinct, as the case may be, shall be elected by the qualified voters of the county on primary election day; provided, that, in case of a vacancy occurring in the office of chairman, county or precinct, or any member of such committee, such vacancy shall be filled by a majority vote of said executive committee. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 544. Acts 1907, p. 331, sec. 106.]

Art. 3108. County chairman, voted for; member of district committee, etc., term.—On primary election day, when candidates for state, district, county and precinct offices are nominated, the voters of each organized political party shall vote for a chairman of the county executive committee, and the result shall be reported to the county clerk, and the county chairman thus elected shall at once enter upon the discharge of the duties of such position; the said county chairman shall be ex officio a member of the executive committee of all districts of which his county is a part; and the district committee thus formed shall elect its own chairman. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 551, sec. 121.]

Art. 3109. Chairman, county or precinct, where no candidates for, blanks.—If there are no requests filed for candidates for county or precinct chairman, a blank space shall be left on the ticket beneath the designation of such position. [Id. sec. 111.]

Art. 3110. Referendum on platform demands, and submission of same, upon.—Any political party in this state, in convention assembled, shall never place in the platform or resolutions of the party they represent any demand for specific legislation on any subject, unless the demand for such specific legislation shall have been submitted to a direct vote of the people, and shall have been endorsed by a majority vote of all the votes cast in the primary election of such party; provided, that the state executive committee shall, on petition of ten per cent of the voters of any party, as shown by the last primary election vote, submit any such question or questions to the voters at the general primary next preceding the state convention. [Acts 1907, p. 328, sec. 120.]

Art. 3111. Referendum instruction of delegates by, method, etc.—Whenever delegates are to be selected by any political party to any state or county convention, by primary election or primary convention, or candidates are instructed or nominated, it shall be the duty of the chairman of the county or precinct executive committee of said political party, upon the application of ten per cent of the members of said party, who are legally qualified voters in said county or precinct, to submit, at the time and place of selecting said delegates, any proposition desired to be voted upon by said voters; and the delegates selected at that time shall be considered instructed for whichever proposition for which a majority of the votes are cast; provided, that the number of voters belonging to said political party shall be determined by the votes cast for the party nominee for governor at the preceding election; and provided, further, that said application is filed with the county or precinct chairman at least five days before the tickets are to be printed, and the chairman may require a sworn statement that the names of said applicants are genuine. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 556, sec. 140.]

For provision for referendum on United States senator, see Art. 3097.

Art. 3112. Supplies, executive committee to supervise and distribute.—The executive committee shall have general supervision of the primary in such county, and shall be charged with the full responsibility for the distribution of all supplies necessary for holding same in each precinct, to the presiding judge thereof. [Id. sec. 123.]

Art. 3113. If presiding officer fail to obtain supplies, to whom delivered.—If the duly appointed presiding officer shall fail to obtain from the executive committee the supplies for holding such election, such committee shall deliver the same to the precinct chairman for such precinct, and, if unable to deliver the same to such presiding officer or precinct chairman not less than twenty-four hours prior to the time of opening the polls for such primary, such committee shall deliver the same to any qualified voter of the party residing in such precinct, taking his receipt therefor and appointing him to hold such election in case such presiding officer or precinct chairman shall fail to appear at the time prescribed for opening the polls. [Id. sec. 123.]

Art. 3114. Booths, etc., for general election, used for primary.—The voting booths, ballot boxes and guard rails, prepared for a general election, may be used by the organized political party nominating by primary election that cast over one hundred thousand votes at the last preceding general election. [Id. sec. 128.]

Art. 3115. Safeguards against fraud; list of voters; stamping, etc.—To guard against fraud, a certified list and supplemental list of the qualified voters of the voting precinct, furnished by the collector of taxes, shall be in the possession of the officers conducting the primary election for reference and comparison, and opposite the name of every voter on said list shall be stamped, when his vote is cast, with a rubber or wooden stamp, or written with pen and ink the words, "primary—voted," with the date of such primary under the same. [Id. sec. 104.]

Art. 3116. List of voters furnished, to be used in primary, etc.—The county tax collector shall deliver to the chairman of the county executive committee of each political party, for its use in primary elections, at least five days before election day, certified lists of the qualified voters of each precinct in the county, arranged alphabetically and by precincts, who have paid their poll tax or received certificates of exemption; and it shall be the duty of such chairman to place the same in the hands of the election officers of each election precinct before the polls are open; and no primary election shall be legal, unless such list is obtained and used for reference during the election. For each list of all the qualified voters of the county who have paid their poll taxes and received their certificates of exemption, the collector shall be permitted to charge not more than five dollars, the same to be paid by the party or its chairman so ordering said lists; provided, that the charge of five dollars shall be in full for the certified lists of all the voters of the county arranged by precincts, as above provided. [Id. sec. 129.]

Art. 3117. Same subject.—It shall be the duty of the tax collector of each county, upon application by the county chairman of the various political parties, to furnish to the presiding judges of the election in the several precincts certified copies of the list of qualified voters of the several precincts, which said copies shall be furnished at least four days prior to said primary election. [Id. sec. 104.]

Art. 3118. Precaution to secure purity of ballot.—The same precautions required by law to secure the purity of the ballot box in general elections, in regard to the ballot boxes, locking the ballot boxes, sealing the same, watchful care of them, the secrecy in preparing the ballot in the booth or places prepared for voting shall be observed in all primary elections. [Id. sec. 135.]

Art. 3119. Ballots, others, furnished where mutilated, etc.—No more than three ballots in succession shall be furnished a voter who mutilates or otherwise spoils his ballot; and the judges may, as in general election, require a voter, before he receives an official ballot, to surrender to them any ballot or paper on which is written or printed any names for which the voter has agreed to vote or been requested to vote. [Id. sec. 138.]

Art. 3120. Intoxicating liquors, sale of prohibited; officers not to partake.—The law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor on election day applies to primary elections with all its prohibitions; and the officers of primary elections shall not, on primary election day, partake of spirituous, vinous, malt or intoxicating liquors after the polls are open. [Id. sec. 127.]

Art. 3121. Returns of primary elections, ballot boxes, etc.—Returns shall be made within four days to the chairman of the executive committee by the precinct judges, of the ballot boxes containing the ballots voted, locked and sealed, tally sheets, return sheets, ballots mutilated and defaced, and ballots not voted, for which he shall account to the executive committee of the county. [Id. sec. 136.]

Art. 3122. Returns to county chairman; canvass by executive committee, when.—All returns of precinct primary elections, properly signed and certified as correct by the judges and clerks thereof, showing the vote cast for each candidate, shall be sealed and immediately delivered, after such primary election, to the chairman of the county executive committee of the party. Such party chairman shall give notice to the members of the county executive committee to assemble at the county seat of the county on the first Saturday after the first primary election; and said returns shall then be opened under the direction of such executive committee and canvassed by them. [Id. sec. 131.]

Art. 3123. Canvass of result of primary election by county executive committee, when.—All county executive committees of organized political parties shall meet the first Saturday after each primary election to canvass the result of such election. [Id. sec. 112.]

Art. 3124. Tie in primary election, as to county or precinct office, determined by lot, etc.—If, on counting the vote in a primary election, it shall appear that, for a county or precinct office, the largest vote has been cast for two candidates for the same office, and that they have each received the same number of votes, the chairman of the executive committee shall, in the presence of the executive committee or the county convention, as the case may be, cast lots for the nomination in such manner as they may direct and in the presence of rival candidates, if they desire to be present, and declare and certify the result of that candidate who is successful by lot. [Id. sec. 133.]

Art. 3125. List of nominees made by committee, and certified by chairman to county clerk.—The county executive committee shall make a list of the candidates who have received the highest vote for office, and the chairman of the executive committee shall certify to the same and deliver it to the county clerk of the county. [Id. sec. 131.]

Unconditional certificate.—Where the certificate filed with the county clerk showed that a certain person received a plurality of the votes cast for county commissioner, he was entitled to have an unconditional certificate of that fact from the chairman of the executive committee of the political party to which he belonged. Dewees v. Stevens, 105 T. 356, 150 S. W. 589.

Art. 3126. County chairman to prepare statement of vote, etc., mail to state and district chairman, presented to committees.—The chairman of the executive committee in each county shall, as soon as the vote cast in the primary election has been counted and canvassed as herein provided for, prepare a tabulated statement of the votes cast in his county for each candidate for each nomination for a state, district, county or precinct office, and of that cast for county chairman, as shown by the canvass made by the county executive committee, and shall immediately mail such statement as to a state or district office, in a sealed envelope by registered letter, to the chairman of the state executive committee, and district executive committee, respectively, who shall present the same to the state and district committee at its meeting to be held as herein provided. [Id. sec. 117.]

Art. 3127. Nominees for state, etc., offices, published and certified, to whom.—As to candidates for governor, or for an office to be filled by all the voters of the state, or of any district composed of more than one county, the chairman of the county executive committee and its secretary shall certify the number of votes cast for each of such candidates, and cause the same to be published in some newspaper of the county, if there be one, and deliver his certificate of the vote cast for each candidate for such office to the president of the next state convention of the party in the manner required in this title, and certify the vote cast for each district office to the chairman of the district committee. [Id. sec. 131.]

Art. 3128. Ballots accounted for.—All ballots given to the election judges of the precinct by the executive chairman, or some member of the executive committee, shall be used and accounted for as in general elections. [Id. sec. 130.]

Art. 3129. Boxes, and ballots, disposition of.—Ballot boxes after being used in primary elections shall be returned with the ballots cast, or contained in each box as they were deposited by the election judges, locked and sealed, to the county clerk, and, unless there be a contest for a nomination in which fraud or illegality is charged, they shall be unlocked and unsealed by the county clerk and their contents destroyed by the county clerk and the county judge without examination of any ballot, at the expiration of sixty days after such primary election. [Id. sec. 143.]

Art. 3130. County clerk to publish, etc., nominees.—The county clerk shall cause the names of the candidates who have received the necessary vote to nominate, as directed by the county executive committee, for each office, to be printed in some newspaper published in the county, and, if no newspaper be published in a county, then he shall post a list of such names in at least five public places in the county, one of which shall be upon the door of the court house in said county. [Id. sec. 131.]

Art. 3131. Objections to nomination to be made within five days.—All objections to the regularity or validity of the nomination of any person, whose name appears in said list, shall be made within five days after such printing or posting, by a notice in writing filed with the county clerk, setting forth the grounds of objections. In case no such objection is filed within the time prescribed, the regularity or validity of the nomination of no person whose name is so printed or posted, shall be thereafter contested. [Id. sec. 131.]

Art. 3132. Names printed on ballot, when and how.—After said names have been so printed or posted for the period above required, the said clerk shall cause said names to be printed on the official ballot in the column for the ticket of that party. [Id. sec. 131.]

Art. 3133. County clerk to post names of candidates ten days before printing on ballot, etc.—It shall be the duty of the county clerk of each county to post in a conspicuous place in his office, for the inspection and information of the public, the names of all candidates that have been lawfully certified to him to be printed on the official ballot, for at least ten days before he orders the same to be printed on said ballot; and he shall order all the names of the candidates so certified printed on the official ballot as otherwise provided in this title. [Id. sec. 132.]

Art. 3134. County conventions; and precinct conventions.—On the first Saturday after primary election day for 1912, and each two years thereafter, there shall be held in each county a county convention of each party, to be composed of one delegate from each precinct in such county for each twenty-five votes, or a major fraction thereof, cast for the party's candidate for governor at the last preceding election, which delegates shall be elected by the voters of each precinct on primary election day, in such manner as may be prescribed by the county executive committee at their meeting on the second Monday in June, which convention shall elect one delegate to the state and several district conventions for each three hundred votes, or a major fraction thereof, cast for the party's candidate for governor in such county at the last preceding general election; and the delegates to the said conventions so elected, or such of them as may attend the said conventions, shall cast the vote of the county in such conventions. Immediately upon the adjournment of each such county convention, the president thereof shall make out a certified list of the delegates to each of said conventions chosen by such county convention and shall sign the same, the secretary of such convention attesting his signature, and shall forward such certified list by sealed registered letter to the chairman of the state and district executive committees, who shall present the same to the respective committees at its meeting prior to the convention; and, from such certified list, the respective committees shall prepare a temporary roll of those selected as delegates to such convention; provided, that no proxies shall be allowed to, or recognized in, any convention held by authority of this title, where a delegate from the county is present in the convention. [Id. sec. 115.]

Art. 3135. County convention may be held at time for meeting of executive committee.—Nothing in this chapter shall prevent the holding of the county convention at the time named in article 3122, for the meeting of the executive committee for the purpose of counting and declaring the result; but the chairman of the executive committee shall certify the result as required by this chapter. [Id. sec. 131.]

Art. 3136. District conventions.—On the fourth Saturday in August succeeding each general primary, there shall be held in each district within the state in which any candidate or candidates for any district office are to be elected at the succeeding regular election, a district convention, which shall be composed of delegates from the county or counties composing such district, selected in the manner herein provided; notice of the time and place of holding such convention shall be given by the executive committee of such district at least ten days prior to such meeting. Before such convention assembles, the executive committee of such district shall meet and elect one of its number chairman of such committee, shall prepare a list of delegates from the various counties composing such district which have been certified to the district committee by the chairmen of the various county committees, shall tabulate the vote cast in the various counties for each candidate for district office, which has been certified to such committee as provided in this chapter, and shall also prepare a statement, showing the number of convention votes which each county in such district is entitled to cast in said convention upon the basis set forth in article 3142, and shall present such list of delegates, tabulated vote and convention vote to the convention when it assembles. The district convention shall then canvass the returns of the votes cast in all of the counties of the district for each candidate as presented to them by the district committee, and shall declare the person found to have received the largest number of votes at the primary in the district for such office the nominee of the party for such office; and the chairman and secretary of the convention shall forthwith certify such nomination to the secretary of state. But, in the event there is only one name on the ballot for a district office without an opponent, the district chairman shall, as soon as practicable after the primary election, certify that the person on the ballot is the nominee of the party and that there shall be no convention held for the purpose of declaring the result. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 547. Acts 1907, p. 329.]

Conclusiveness of certificate of result.—It is the duty of the convention called for that purpose to determine the nominee of a district convention, and when the chairman of the convention has certified the result, the matter is ended. The executive committee of the district has no power to review the action of the convention. Mays v. Cobb, 100 T. 131, 96 S. W. 1079.

Art. 3137. Place for state convention, fixed how.—At the meeting of the state executive committee held on the second Monday in June preceding each general primary election, the said committee shall decide upon and publish the place where the state convention of the party shall be held on the second Tuesday in August thereafter. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 545, sec. 109.]

Art. 3138. State executive committee to canvass returns as to nominations for state offices; statement of vote; list of delegates, presented to chairman of state convention, etc.—On the Monday preceding the second Tuesday in August, 1912, and every two years thereafter, the state executive committee shall meet at the place selected for the meeting of the state convention, and shall open and canvass the returns of the primary election as to nominations for state officers, as certified by the various county chairmen to the state chairman for each county, and shall prepare a tabulated statement showing the number of votes received by each such candidate in each county, which statement shall be approved by the state committee and certified by its chairman. At this meeting the state committee shall also prepare a complete list of the delegates elected to the state convention from each county, as certified to the state chairman by each county chairman. The state chairman shall present said tabulated statement and said list of delegates to the chairman of the state convention immediately after its temporary organization on the following day, for its approval or disapproval. [Id. sec. 119.]

Art. 3139. State convention to canvass vote for candidates for state offices and declare result, according to plurality in primary; certified by chairman and secretary of convention to secretary of state.—The state convention shall canvass the vote cast in the entire state for each candidate for each state office, as shown by the statement thereof presented to it by the state committee, and shall declare the candidate for each state office who has received the largest number of votes in the primary election for such state office the nominee of the party for such office; and the chairman and secretary of the state convention shall forthwith certify all such nominations to the secretary of state. [Acts 1905, 2 S. S., p. 4. Acts 1905, S. S., p. 550. Acts 1907, p. 329, sec. 120.]

Art. 3140. State convention; time of meeting; further duties.—All party state conventions to announce a platform of principles and announce nominations for governor and state offices shall, except as otherwise provided, meet at such places as may be determined by the parties respectively on the second Tuesday in August, A. D., 1912, and every two years thereafter, and they shall remain in session from day to day until all nominations are announced and the work of the convention is finished. Provided, that said convention shall, among other things, elect a chairman of the executive committee and thirty-one members thereof, one from each senatorial district of the state, the members of said committee to be recommended by the delegates representing the counties composing the senatorial districts respectively, each county voting its convention strength, each of whom shall hold said office until his successor is elected; and, in case of a vacancy, a majority of the members of said committee shall fill the same by electing some eligible person thereto. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 549, sec. 116.]

Art. 3141. Every certificate of nomination to state what.—Every certificate of nomination made by the president of the state convention, or by the chairman of any executive committee, must state when, where, by whom, and how the nomination was made. [Id. sec. 118.]

For requirement of referendum on platform demands and of submission of such questions, see Art. 3110.

Art. 3142. Convention vote of each county, in state or district convention.—Each county in the state or district convention shall be entitled to one vote for each five hundred votes, or major fraction thereof, cast for the candidate for governor of the political party holding the convention, at the last preceding primary election. In case, at such primary election, there were cast for such candidate for governor less than five hundred votes in any county, then all such counties shall have one vote. [Acts 1907, p. 329, sec. 120.]

Art. 3143. Mandamus to compel performance of duties.—Any executive committee or committeeman or primary election officer, or other person herein charged with any duty relative to the holding of the primary election, or the canvassing, determination or declaration of the result thereof, may be compelled by mandamus to perform the same in accordance with the provisions of this title. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 557, sec. 142.]

Mandamus.—K. filed a petition for mandamus against the chairman of the Democratic executive committee of Wilson county to compel the chairman to certify to the county clerk K.'s name as the regular Democratic nominee for county commissioner, and it appeared that the chairman's certificate to the county clerk stated that the following named candidates for the respective offices received the highest number of votes, showing under the heading "For County Commissioner, Precinct No. 3," which was relator's precinct, that C. received 87 votes, and further certified that the above correctly showed the names of the candidates for precinct offices receiving the highest number of votes, and the certificate was signed by the chairman and attested by the secretary, but another certificate which was added thereto recited that the chairman "further" certified in addition to the facts certified in the foregoing certificate that K. as candidate for county commissioner of precinct No. 3 received 102 votes, which was the highest number of votes received by any candidate, but that the Democratic executive committee refused to declare K. to be the nominee because K. was a Republican and not a Democrat. The judge of the district court entered an order granting the relief prayed. Held, that since the separate part of the certificate was a part of the legal certificate to the county clerk, and showed that K. received a plurality of the votes, the trial judge's action involved the determination of a legal question calling for the exercise of a judicial discretion, and hence mandamus will not lie at the suit of the chairman of the county committee to compel such judge to set aside the order so made by him. Dewees v. Stevens, 105 T. 356, 150 S. W. 589.

Art. 3144. Errors and violations of law, immaterial, not to vitiate election, etc.—No immaterial error made by any officer of a primary election, or any immaterial violation of the primary election laws by an elector shall vitiate any election held under this title, nor be the cause of throwing out the vote of any election precinct. [Id. sec. 137.]

Art. 3145. Expenses of candidates, statement of.—Within ten days after a primary and also after a final election, all candidates for office at such election shall file a written itemized statement, under oath, with the county judge of the county of their residence, of all the expenses incurred during the canvass for the office, and for the nomination, including amounts paid to newspapers, hotel and traveling expenses, and such statement shall be sworn to and filed, whether the candidate was elected or defeated, which shall at all times be subject to inspection of the public. [Id. sec. 90.]

Art. 3146. Expenses of manager of political headquarters, etc., statement of required, etc.—Every person who manages any political headquarters for any political party, or for any candidate before any election, and every clerk or agent of such manager for such headquarters or candidate, and every other person whomsoever who expends money, gives any property or thing of value, or promises to use influence, or give a future reward to promote or defeat the election of any candidate, or to promote or defeat the success of any political party at any election, shall, within ten days after such election, file with the county judge of the county in which the political headquarters was located, and with the county judge of the county where such manager, clerk, or other person, as the case may be, reside, an itemized statement of all moneys or things of value thus given or promised, for what purpose, by whom supplied, in what amount and how expended, and what reward was given or promised, by whom and to whom, and what influence was promised, by whom promised and to whom said promise was given. He shall also state whether he had been informed, or has reason to believe, that the person thus aiding or attempting to defeat a party or candidate was an officer, stockholder, agent or employé of, or was acting for or in the interest of, any corporation, giving his name, and, if so, of what corporation; and he shall if he has no positive knowledge, state the source of his information or the reasons for his belief, as the case may be; all of which shall be sworn to and subscribed before the county judge, who shall file and preserve the same, which shall at all times be subject to inspection of the public. [Id. sec. 89.]

Art. 3147. Contests of primary elections, decided by executive committees or district court.—In all contests for a primary election or nomination of a convention, based on charges of fraud or illegality in the method of conducting the elections, or fraud or illegality in selecting the delegates to the convention, or in certifying to the convention, or in nominating candidates in state, district, county, precinct or municipal conventions, or in issuing certificates of nomination from such conventions, the same shall be decided by the executive committee of the state, district, or county, as the nature of the office may require, each executive committee having control, in its own jurisdiction, or by the district court, or judge of said court in vacation, of the district where the contestee resides, said executive committee and the district courts having concurrent jurisdiction. [Acts 1909, 2 S. S., p. 452, sec. 141.]

See Jefferson v. Scott (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 705.

Constitutionality.—Even if the determination of a contested primary election is the exercise of political authority, the people may by constitutional amendment authorize the legislature to confer such power upon the district court. Ashford v. Goodwin, 103 T. 491, 131 S. W. 535, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 699.

Const. art. 5, as amended in 1891 by section 8 providing that "the district court shall have original jurisdiction of contested elections," authorized the legislature to enact this article. Id.

Act not void for failure to provide procedure.—This act is not void as providing no adequate procedure for the trial; the act fixing the venue, and the time for commencing the proceedings, prescribing the essentials of contestant's pleading, and providing for service on contestee of notice of the filing of the contest, and a statement of the grounds of the contest, and of notice of the time set for the hearing, all to be prepared and issued by the clerk of the district court, and served five days before the hearing, also, providing that witnesses may be summoned, and by necessary implication sworn and examined, and that, if deemed necessary, the court may unlock the ballot boxes and examine their contents, the omission to prescribe rules of evidence being immaterial in view of Art. 3687, and no rights of contestees being invaded by the failure to expressly authorize him to file an answer and amend it, it being probable that he can do both, and a default judgment not being permissible, but contestant being required to show a disregard or violation of the law, but for which the result of the election would have been different. Anderson v. Ashe (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1044.

This act when supplemented by such rules of procedure as the district court has inherent authority to prescribe for the hearing of such cases, is valid, and is sufficient to give the court jurisdiction of the parties and subject-matter so as to enable it to determine the questions arising in contested primary elections. Ashford v. Goodwin, 103 T. 491, 131 S. W. 535, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 699.

Art. 3148. Place for hearing contests of primary elections by committee.—In all contests between candidates for state office, the committee shall hold its hearing in the city of Austin, Travis county, unless some other place is agreed upon by the parties; and in all contests between candidates for any district, county, municipal or precinct office, the committee may hold its hearing, at its election, either in the county of the residence of the contestee or in any county where the fraud or illegality complained of is alleged to have occurred, or at such other place as the parties may agree upon. [Id. sec. 141.]

Art. 3149. Contest before executive committee; procedure, etc.—The complaining candidate, if he desires to file a contest with the executive committee, shall, within five days after the result has been declared by the committee or convention, cause a notice to be served on the chairman or some member of the executive committee, in which he shall state specifically the ground of his contest; also shall serve, or cause to be served, on the opposing candidate a copy of such notice, at least five days prior to the date set for hearing by the committee. If special charges of fraud or illegality in the conduct of the election, or in the manner of holding the convention, or in the manner of making nominations, are made, and not otherwise, the chairman, or, in case he fails or refuses, any member of the committee, shall within twenty days after the primary election, or the convention, convene the executive committee, who shall then examine the charges, hear evidence and decide in favor of the party who in their opinion was nominated in the primary election, or in the convention; provided, that, before any advantage can be taken of the disregard or violation of any directory provision of the law, it must appear that, but for such disregard or violation, the result would have been different. [Id. sec. 141.]

Art. 3150. Ballot boxes may be opened by committee, when.—The executive committee may, if in its opinion the ends of justice require it, unlock and unseal the ballot boxes used in the precinct where fraud or illegality is charged to have been used, and examine their contents, after which they shall be sealed and delivered to the county clerk. [Id. sec. 141.]

Art. 3151. Certificate and printing name on ballot, on decision by committee, unless appeal.—When the committee has decided the contest, unless notice of appeal to the district court is given, the executive chairman shall certify its findings to the officers charged with the duty of providing the official ballot; and the name of the candidate in whose favor the executive committee shall find shall be printed on the official ballot for the general election. [Id. sec. 141.]

Art. 3152. Same, where such appeal not perfected.—In case such appeal is not perfected in the manner and time as herein provided, the chairman of the executive committee trying such contest shall certify the name of the party held by the executive committee to have been nominated to the proper office, to be placed on the official ballot. [Id. sec. 141.]

Art. 3153. Appeal from executive committee to district court; procedure.—Where contests are originally filed with the executive committee, either party shall have the right to appeal from the final decision of the executive committee to the district court having jurisdiction; and said contest shall there be tried de novo by said court. The party taking such appeal shall, within three days from final decision of the executive committee, file written notice of such appeal with the chairman or secretary of such executive committee. Upon the filing of such notice of appeal, the secretary of said executive committee shall prepare a certificate showing that such contest had been tried and determined by such executive committee, the decision of such committee, and that notice of appeal had been given, and shall file same, together with all papers filed in such contest, in the district court, or with the district judge, in vacation, of the district having jurisdiction of such appeal, within ten days after the decision of the executive committee is rendered; and the filing of such certificate and papers in said court, or with said judge in vacation, shall be held to perfect such appeal. And if for any cause the secretary of said executive committee shall fail or refuse to file said certificate and other papers pertaining to such appeal, in the district court of such district, or with the judge of said district, within ten days after such decision has been rendered by said committee, then in such event the contestant may prepare a brief statement of the action of said committee in such contest, and perfect his appeal by filing same with said district court, or with the judge of said district, within fifteen days after such decision by the executive committee. [Id. sec. 141.]

Trial by jury.—A contested primary election for the office of sheriff of which the district court is given final jurisdiction is not a "cause" within Const. art. 5, § 10, providing that, in the trial of all causes in the district court, the plaintiff or defendant shall have the right to trial by jury, and hence the right to trial by jury does not obtain as to such contest. Hammond v. Ashe, 103 T. 503, 131 S. W. 539.

Mandamus.—See notes under Art. 3143.

Art. 3154. Review of certificates of nomination by district court; procedure.—In state, district, county, precinct or municipal offices, the certificate of nomination issued by the president or chairman of the nominating convention, or chairman of the county executive committee, shall be subject to review, upon allegations of fraud or illegality, by the district court of the county in which the contestee resides, or the judge of said court in vacation; provided, that such allegations are filed in said court within ten days after the issuance of said certificate; and when said allegations are so filed, or the appeal from the decision of the executive committee is perfected, the judge of the district court shall set same down for hearing, either in term time or vacation, at the earliest practical time; and a copy of said grounds of contest, together with the notice of the date set for said hearing, shall be prepared and issued by the clerk of the district court and be served upon the contestee five days before the hearing before said court or judge, and the parties to said contest shall have the right to summon witnesses. [Id. sec. 141.]

Constitutionality.—Const. art. 5, as amended in 1891 by the adoption of section 8, giving the district court original jurisdiction of contested elections, did not authorize that part of this article making the certificate of nomination issued by the president or chairman of the nominating convention, etc., subject to review by a judge of a district court in vacation; the granting of the power to the district court only contemplating the court in session. Ashford v. Goodwin, 103 T. 491, 131 S. W. 535, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 699.

Art. 3155. Ballot boxes may be opened by court, when; disposition of.—The court or judge may, if in his opinion the ends of justice require it, unlock and unseal the ballot boxes used in the precinct where fraud or illegality is charged to have been used, and examine their contents, after which they shall be sealed and delivered to the county clerk. [Id. sec. 141.]

Art. 3156. Judgment of court final in what cases.—The said court or judge shall determine said contest; and the decision of said court or judge shall be final as to all district, county, precinct, or municipal offices. [Id. sec. 141.]

Art. 3157. Certifying judgment, and printing names on ballot.—A certified copy of the judgment of said court or judge shall be transmitted by the clerk thereof to the officers charged with the duty of providing the official ballot, and the name of the candidate in whose favor said judgment shall be rendered shall be printed in the official ballot for the general election. [Id. sec. 141.]

Art. 3158. Appeal to court of civil appeals in what cases; advanced.—In all contests for state offices before the district court, exercising either its original or appellate jurisdiction, either party may appeal to the court of civil appeals, and such appeal shall be advanced on the docket of said appellate court and have precedence of all other cases. [Id. sec. 141.]

2. NOMINATIONS BY PARTIES OF TEN THOUSAND AND LESS THAN ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND VOTES

Art. 3159. May nominate, how.—Each political party, whose nominee for governor in the last preceding general election received as many as ten thousand and less than one hundred thousand votes, may nominate candidates for state, district and county offices under the provisions of this law by primary election, and they may nominate candidates for state offices at a state convention, which shall be held the second Tuesday in August, and which shall be composed of delegates elected in the various counties and county conventions held on the first Saturday after primary election day, which shall be composed of delegates from the general election precinct in such counties elected therein at primary conventions, held in such precincts on the fourth Saturday in July. [Acts 1905, S. S. p. 542, sec. 99.]

Art. 3160. Nominations of such parties, state committee to determine mode.—The state committee of all such parties shall meet at some place in the state to be designated by the chairman thereof on the second Tuesday in May, and shall decide, and by resolution declare, whether they will nominate state, district and county officers by convention or by primary elections, and shall certify their decision to the secretary of state. [Id. sec. 99.]

Art. 3161. Nominations of such parties for district offices.—Nominations for district offices made by such parties shall be made by conventions held on the same days as herein prescribed for district conventions of other parties, composed of delegates elected thereto at county conventions held on the same day herein prescribed for such county conventions of other parties, all of which county conventions shall nominate candidates for county offices of such party of such county. [Id. sec. 99.]

Art. 3162. Nominations of such parties to be certified by whom.—All nominations so made by a state or district convention shall be certified by the chairman of the state or district committee of such party to the secretary of state, and a nomination made by a county convention, by the chairman of the county committee. [Id. sec. 99.]

Art. 3163. Poll tax requirement in such primary convention.—No person shall be allowed to vote or participate in any such primary convention, unless he shall have first produced evidence that he has paid his poll tax or is exempt; and no person shall be allowed to participate in any such convention who has participated in the convention or primary of any other party held on the same day. [Id. sec. 99.]

3. NON-PARTISAN AND INDEPENDENT CANDIDATES

Art. 3164. Non-partisan and independent candidates' names placed on ballot, how.—The name of a non-partisan or independent candidate may be printed on the official ballot in the column for independent candidates, after a written application signed by qualified voters addressed to the secretary of state and delivered to him within thirty days after primary election day as follows: If for a state office to be voted for throughout the state, one per cent of the entire vote of the state cast at the last preceding general election; if for a congressional, supreme judicial, senatorial, representative, flotorial or judicial district office, three per cent of the entire vote cast in any such district at the last preceding general election; provided, that the number of signatures need not exceed five hundred for any congressional, senatorial or judicial office, nor for any other office that is not filled by all the voters of the state. [Id. sec. 94.]

Art. 3165. Same subject.—No application to the secretary of state shall contain the name of more than one candidate, and no citizen shall sign such application, unless he has paid his poll tax or received his certificate of exemption; provided, that, if the office is one to which two or more persons are to be elected, his application may be for as many candidates as there are persons to be elected to that office; and provided, also, that no person who has voted at a primary election shall sign an application in favor of any one for an office for which a nomination was made at such primary election. [Id. sec. 95.]

Art. 3166. Same subject.—To every citizen who signs such application, shall be administered the following oath, which shall be reduced to writing and attached to such application, viz: "I know the contents of the foregoing application; I have participated in no primary election which has nominated a candidate for the office for which I desire (here insert the name) to be a candidate; I am a qualified voter at the next general election under the constitution and laws in force, and have signed the above application of my own free will." One certificate of the officer before whom the oath is taken may be so made as to apply to all to whom it was administered. [Id. sec. 96.]

Art. 3167. Same subject.—The secretary of state shall, on the receipt of the application which conforms to the above requirements, issue his instruction to the county clerks of this state, or of the district, as the case may require, directing that the name of the citizen, in whose favor the application is made, shall be printed on the official ballot in the independent column under the title of the office for which he is a candidate; provided, that the citizen, in whose favor the application is made, shall first file his written consent with the secretary of state to become a candidate, within thirty days after primary election day. [Id. sec. 97.]

Art. 3168. Same subject, in county, city or town elections.—Independent candidates for office at a county, city or town election may have their names printed upon the official ballot on application to the county judge, if for a county office, or to the mayor, if for a city or town office, such application being in the same form and subject to the same requirements herein prescribed for applications to be made to the secretary of state in case of state or district independent nomination; provided, that a petition of five per cent of the entire vote cast in such county, city or town at the last general election shall be required for such nomination. [Id. sec. 98.]

4. LOCAL NOMINATIONS OF PARTIES HAVING NO STATE ORGANIZATION

Art. 3169. Nominations, local, of parties having no state organization.—Any political party, not having a state organization, but desiring to nominate candidates for county and precinct offices only, may nominate such candidates therefor under the provisions of this title, by primary elections or by a county convention held on the legal primary election day, as herein defined, which county convention shall be composed of delegates from various election precincts in said county, elected therein at primary conventions held in such precincts between the hours of eight a. m. and ten p. m. of the preceding Saturday. All nominations made by any such parties shall be certified to the county clerk by the chairman of the county committee of such party, and, after taking the same course as nominations of other parties certified to the clerk, shall be printed on the official ballot in a separate column, headed by the name of the party; provided, a written application for such printing shall have been made to the county judge, signed and sworn to by three per cent of the entire vote cast in such county at the last general election. [Id. sec. 100.]

5. PARTY NOMINATIONS FOR CITY AND TOWN ELECTIONS

Art. 3170. Cities and towns; elections; nominations for, how made; executive committee; powers and duties of committee, etc.—Each and every incorporated city or town in the state of Texas, whether incorporated under the general or special laws, may make nominations for office in the following manner: In each of said cities and towns there shall be an executive committee for each political party, consisting of a city chairman and one member for each ward in such city or town, and in case such city or town is not divided into wards, for either political or election purposes, then there shall be selected four members of said committee, in addition to the city chairman. If any city or town shall be divided into wards, for either political or election purposes, or both, then such party executive committee shall consist of one member from each ward and a city chairman of such executive committee. Provided, however, that no city or town in this state shall have a smaller number than four executive committeemen and a chairman of such executive committee. In all cities and towns which now have no executive committee, the county chairman of the party desiring to make nominations in such cities and towns shall appoint an executive committee to serve until the next city election shall be held, and in each city and town in this state in which a political party may desire to make nominations, there shall be held, at least thirty days prior to the regular city election, an election at which there may be nominated by such political party, officers to be elected at the next city election, and at which election there shall be selected the executive committee for such party in said city and town herein provided for, and in all such city primary elections, the provisions of the law relating to primary elections and general elections shall be observed. The executive committee herein provided for may decide whether or not nominations shall be made by such political party in such city or town; provided, that upon petition being made to said city or county chairman, signed by twenty-five per cent of the voters of the party in such city, as shown by the last general state election, requesting that party nominations be made for city officers, then said city executive committee, through an order of its chairman, shall order a primary election or mass convention of the qualified voters of the party, as may be petitioned for by the voters presenting said petition, and it shall thereupon be the duty of said city executive committee to grant such request as shall be contained in such petition, and such primary election or mass convention shall be ordered, and it shall be mandatory upon such city or county chairman to order such election or mass convention to be held within ten days from the time such petition is presented. At such primary election or mass convention a new executive committee shall be selected to serve during the ensuing term; provided that this Act shall not be construed so as to prevent independent candidates for city offices from having their names upon the official ballot, as provided for in section 99 of this Act [Arts. 3159–3163]. Provided, further, that this Act shall not repeal the provisions of any charter heretofore or hereafter specially granted to any city in this state. [Acts 1911, p. 18, sec. 2, amending Acts 1905, p. 552, sec. 128a, and superseding Arts. 3170, 3171, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 3171. [Superseded. See Art. 3170.]

6. MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Art. 3172. Nomination declined, how; vacancy how filled, etc.; posters used when, etc.—A nominee may decline and annul his nomination by delivering to the officer with whom the certificate of his nomination is filed, ten days before the election, if it be for a city office, and twenty days in other cases, a declaration in writing, signed by him before some officer authorized to take acknowledgments. Upon such declination (or in case of death of a nominee), the executive committee of a party, or a majority of them for the state, district or county, as the office to be nominated may require, may nominate a candidate to supply the vacancy by filing with the secretary of state in the case of state or district officers, or with the county judge in the case of county or precinct officers, a certificate duly signed and acknowledged by them, setting forth the cause of the vacancy, the name of the new nominee, the office for which he was nominated, and when and how he was nominated. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 542, sec. 50.]

Art. 3173. No executive committee to nominate, except.—No executive committee shall ever have any power of nomination, except where a nominee has died or declined the nomination as provided in article 3172. [Id. sec. 118.]

Art. 3174. Parties, new, etc., name of, regulated.—No new political party shall assume the name of any pre-existing party; and the party name printed on the official ballot shall not consist of more than three words. [Id. sec. 101.]

CHAPTER TEN A

ELECTION OF UNITED STATES SENATORS BY DIRECT VOTE

Article 3174a. Election of United States senators; time of holding; qualification of voters.—An election for the election of a senator from Texas to the congress of the United States shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November of each and every year immediately preceding the 4th day of March when the term of any United States senator from the state of Texas to the congress of the United States is to expire. That at such election no person shall be qualified to vote for any candidate for United States senator unless he is a qualified elector in any election held to elect members of the most numerous branch of the legislature of this state. [Acts 1913, S. S., p. 101, sec. 1.]

Art. 3174b. Filling vacancy; calling election; temporary appointment by governor.—When any vacancy happens or occurs in the representation of this state in the United States senate, the governor of this state shall within ten days issue writs of election to fill such vacancy, which election shall be held not less than sixty days nor more than ninety days after such vacancy occurs.

Provided if the congress or senate is in session at the time of such vacancy or should convene before such election or before the result of the same can be officially ascertained under the law, the governor shall make temporary appointment of a suitable and qualified person to represent the state in the United States senate, until the election and qualification of a senator can be made. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 3174c. Application of primary laws; returns.—Every law regulating or in any manner governing elections or the holding of primaries in this state shall be held to apply to each and every election or nomination of a candidate for a United States senator so long as they are not in conflict with the constitution of the United States or of any law or statute enacted by the congress of the United States regulating the election of United States senators or the provisions of this Act.

The returns from any election held for United States senator shall be made, the result ascertained and declared, a certificate of election issued, as is provided for the election of representatives in congress, by chapter 7, title 49, Revised Civil Statutes of 1911. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 3174d. Candidates must be nominated how.—The name of no candidate for United States senator shall be placed upon the official ballot of any party or of any organization as the nominee of said party or organization for said office unless said candidate has been duly nominated and selected as herein provided. [Id. sec. 4.]

Art. 3174e. Nominations by parties at primary election.—Each and every party desiring to nominate a candidate for United States senator shall, if such election is to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November of any year, nominate or select such candidate or candidates for United States senator at a general primary election to be held throughout the state on the 4th Saturday in July next preceding such election for United States senator. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 3174f. Application of general election laws; violations of election laws.—At each and every primary election held in this state for the nomination of a candidate for United States senator, each and every provision of the laws of this state which has for its object the protection of the ballot and the safe guarding of the public against fraudulent voting, illegal methods, undue influence, corrupt practices, and in fact each and every restriction of whatever kind or character or nature as applied to any election held in this state whether general, special or primary shall be held to apply to a primary election held for or when a candidate for United States senator is to be nominated when not in conflict with the provisions of this Act. And the violation of any such provisions or restrictions at any such primary election shall be punished in the same manner as prescribed by law for the violation of any election law whether general, special or primary. [Id. sec. 6.]

Art. 3174g. Application of general election laws as to matters not embraced in this Act.—When the law with reference to holding senatorial primaries is silent the election officers in securing supplies, in conducting the election and in making returns and in canvassing the votes shall in every particular follow the methods provided by law covering primary elections or general elections held for the purpose of electing or nominating state, district, county, and precinct offices. [Id. sec. 7.]

Art. 3174h. Written request for insertion of names of candidates on primary ballot.—Any person affiliating with any political party who desires his name to appear on the general official primary ballot of said party as a candidate for the nomination of such party for United States senator shall file with the state chairman of said party not later than the first Monday in June preceding such general primary his written request that his name shall be placed on the official ballot of said party as a candidate at the aforesaid general primary for the nomination as a candidate for United States senator before the party with which he affiliates. [Id. sec. 8.]

Art. 3174i. Application of candidate to state chairman of party; contents; requisites of application; request by voters; acceptance by nominee; filing.—Any person who is thirty years of age or over, and who has been for nine years a citizen of the United States and is a bona fide inhabitant of the state who desires his name to appear on the official ballot at any primary election as a candidate for the nomination of said party as a candidate for United States senator shall address his application to the state chairman of the party with which he affiliates and shall set forth in said application: (1) That he is a candidate for the nomination of his party as a candidate for United States senator. (2) His age. (3) His occupation. (4) The county of his residence. (5) His post office address. (6) That he is a member in good faith of the political party upon whose ballot he wishes his name to appear and that if he voted at the preceding election he voted for the nominees of said party. (7) That he will, during his term of office, if elected, endeavor to truly respect the wishes of his constituency and to abide by and support such measures as may be endorsed by the primary voters of his party in this state as declared by their vote at a primary election.

Said application to be signed by the candidate and properly acknowledged before some person authorized to take acknowledgments. And also twenty-five (25) qualified voters may likewise join in a request that the name of any person affiliating with such party be placed upon the official ballot as a candidate for United States senator, giving the occupation, county of residence and post office address of such person, signing and acknowledging same as above provided, and may file the same with the state chairman on or prior to the date above mentioned with the same effect as if such request had been filed by the party named therein as a candidate for such nomination. All petitions or requests filed by twenty-five voters, as provided herein, shall be endorsed by the person, in whose favor the request is made, showing his willingness to qualify for the position, if elected. All requests, whether made by the candidate or by petition, shall be considered filed with the state chairman when they are sent from any point within the United States by registered mail, on or before the date mentioned, addressed to the state chairman at his post office address. [Id. sec. 9.]

Art. 3174j. Compliance with requirements; majority vote; second primary election; time of holding.—No person shall be declared the nominee of any political party for United States senator unless he has complied with every requirement of this Act and all other laws applicable hereto and has received a majority of all the votes cast at said primary election for all the candidates of that party for United States senator. If at the first primary election no candidate receives a majority of the vote polled by his party for all the candidates for United States senator before said party, the state executive committee or state chairman thereof shall call a second primary election for the purpose of determining the choice of the party as between the two candidates receiving the largest number of votes at the first primary election. Said second primary shall be held on the 4th Saturday in August, immediately after the first primary is held. At such second primary, only the two candidates in each party receiving the highest votes shall be voted upon. [Id. sec. 10.]

Art. 3174k. Election expenses; limitation of amount; contest; second primary.—No person shall be entitled to a position on the official ballot at any general or special election held to select a United States senator, who shall have spent in the campaign preceding the nomination, more than $5000, or who shall have failed or refused to comply with any provision of the law regulating the collection and disbursement of funds preceding election. Should the nomination of any candidate for United States senator be contested, the same shall be conducted under the provision of the law regulating contests before party election committees or the courts for state offices.

Provided that where there is a second primary, each candidate for United States senator may expend in his own behalf, under the regulations prescribed by this Act, an additional $1000.00. [Id. sec. 11.]

Art. 3174*l*. Provisions applicable to both special and general elections.—The following provisions shall be held to apply to all primaries and elections for United States senator whether special or general. [Id. sec. 12.]

Art. 3174m. Disbursements contrary to law.—No person shall receive or accept any money, property or other thing of value, or any promise or pledge thereof, constituting a disbursement made for political purposes contrary to law. [Id. sec. 13.]

Art. 3174n. Want of knowledge of character of disbursements no defense.—In any prosecution for the violation of this provision it shall be a defense if the accused person shall prove that he had neither knowledge that such disbursements constituted a disbursement made for political purposes contrary to law, nor any reasonable cause to believe that it constituted such disbursement. [Id. sec. 14.]

Art. 3174nn. Disbursements through agents or others prohibited; filing authorization.—No candidate for United States senator shall make any disbursement for political purposes except under his personal direction, which for every purpose shall be considered his act, through a party committee, or through a personal committee, whose authority to act shall be filed, as provided by this Act. [Id. sec. 15.]

Art. 3174*o*. Personal campaign committee; filing written authorization to make disbursements; secretary of committee; revocation of authority; filling vacancy; presumptions.—Any candidate for United States senator may select a personal campaign committee to consist of one or more persons, but before any personal campaign committee shall make any disbursement in behalf of any candidate, or shall incur any obligation, express or implied, to make any disbursement in his behalf, it shall file with the secretary of state a written statement, signed by such candidate for United States senator setting forth that such personal campaign committee has been appointed and giving the name and address of each member thereof, and the name and address of the secretary thereof. If such campaign committee consists of only one person, such person shall be deemed the secretary thereof. Any candidate for United States senator may revoke the selection of any member of such personal campaign committee by a revocation in writing which, with proof of personal service on the member whose selection is so revoked, shall be filed with the officer with whom the appointment was filed. Such candidate may fill the vacancy thus created in the manner in which an original appointment is made. The acts of every member of such personal campaign committee will be presumed to be with the knowledge and approval of the candidate until it has been clearly proved that the candidate did not have knowledge of and approved the same, and that in the exercise of reasonable care and diligence, he could not have had knowledge of or any opportunity to disapprove the same. [Id. sec. 16.]

Art. 3174*oo*. Disbursements by persons other than candidates and their authorized committees prohibited; exceptions.—No person or group of persons, other than a candidate or his personal campaign committee or a party committee, shall in an election for a United States senator or nomination of a candidate for United States senator make any disbursement for political purposes otherwise than through a personal campaign committee or a party committee, except that expenses incurred for rent of hall or other room for public speaking, for printing, for postage, for advertising, for distributing printed matter, for clerical assistance and for hotel and traveling expenses solely in connection with a public speaking engagement, may be contributed and paid by a person or group of persons residing within the county where such expenses are incurred, but not otherwise. [Id. sec. 17.]

Art. 3174p. Disbursements by candidates; what authorized and what prohibited.—No candidate for the nomination or election for United States senator shall make any disbursements for political purposes except:

(1) For his personal hotel and traveling expenses and for postage, telegraph and telephone expenses.

(2) For payments which he may make to the state pursuant to law.

(3) For contributions to his duly registered campaign committee.
(4) For contribution to his party committee.
(5) For other purposes enumerated by law when such candidate has no personal campaign committee, but not otherwise.
(6) After the primary, no candidate for United States senator for election shall make any disbursement in behalf of his candidacy, except contributions to his party committee, for his own actual necessary personal traveling expenses, and for postage, telegraph and telephone expenses. [Id. sec. 18.]

Art. 3174pp. Disbursements by party or personal committee; what authorized and what prohibited.—No party committee nor personal campaign committee shall make any disbursements except:
(1) For maintenance of headquarters and for hall rentals, incident to the holding of public meetings.
(2) For necessary stationery, postage and clerical assistance to be employed for the candidate at his headquarters or at the headquarters of the personal campaign committee, or party committee incident to the writing, addressing and mailing of letters and campaign literature.
(3) For necessary expenses incident to the furnishing and printing of badges, banners and other insignia, to the printing and posting of hand bills, posters, lithographs and other campaign literature and the distribution thereof through the mails or otherwise.
(4) For campaign advertising in newspapers, periodicals or magazines, as provided by law.
(5) For actual and necessary personal expenses of public speaking.
(6) For traveling expenses of members of party committees or personal campaign committees. Nothing herein shall be construed as authorizing the employment on a salary or any other reward, any campaign manager, booster or political organizer. [Id. sec. 19.]

Art. 3174q. Rendition of bills for disbursements; time for; payment of bills not presented within time prohibited.—Every person who shall have any bill, charge or claim upon or against any personal campaign committee, any party committee or any candidate for United States senator for any disbursement made, services rendered, or thing of value furnished, for political purposes or incurred in any manner in relation to any primary or election for United States senator, shall render in writing to such committee or candidate, such bill, charge or claim within ten days after the day of election or primary in connection with which such bills, charge or claim was incurred. No candidate for United States senator and no personal campaign or party committee shall pay any bill, charge or claim so incurred prior to any primary or election which is not so presented within ten days after such primary or election. [Id. sec. 20.]

Art. 3174qq. Filing statement of disbursements; contents of statement; final statement.—Every candidate for United States senator and the secretary of every party committee shall on the second Saturday occurring after such candidate for United States senator or committee has first made a disbursment or first incurred any obligation, express or implied, to make a disbursement for political purposes, and thereafter, on the second Saturday of each calendar month, until all disbursements shall have been accounted for, and also on the Saturday preceding any election or primary, file a financial statement verified upon the oath of such candidate for United States senator or upon the oath of the secretary of such committee, as the case may be, which statement shall cover all transactions not accounted for and reported upon in statements theretofore filed. Each statement after the first shall contain a summary of all preceding statements, and summarize all items theretofore reported under the provisions of each subdivision of this Act in a separate total, and shall state the sum and total of all disbursements up to date of the report. On or before the second Saturday after the election, a final statement shall be filed by said candidate for United States senator and the secretary of every personal campaign committee, and the secretary of every party committee, which said statement shall include all former statements and be as full and complete as that required for the statements required to be made on the last Saturday before the election and required by this Act. [Id. sec. 21.]

Art. 3174r. Statements filed with county clerk and secretary of state.—The statement of every candidate for United States senator and the statement of his personal campaign committee shall be filed with the county clerk of the county where such candidate resides and with the secretary of state. [Id. sec. 22.]

Art. 3174rr. Contents of statements.—Each statement shall give in full detail:

(1) Every sum of money and all property, and every other thing of value received by such candidate or committee during such period from any source whatsoever which he uses or has used, or is at liberty to use for political purposes, together with the name of every person from which same was received, the specific purposes for which it was received, and the date when each was received, together with the total amount received from all sources in any amounts or manner whatsoever.

(2) Every promise or pledge of money, property or other thing of value received by such candidate or committee during such period, the proceeds of which he uses or has used or is at liberty to use for political purposes, together with the names of the person by whom each was promised or pledged, and the date when each was so promised or pledged together with the total amounts promised or pledged from all sources in any amount or manner whatsoever.

(3) Every disbursement made by such candidate or committee for political purposes during such period, together with the name of every person to whom the disbursement is made, the specific purpose for which each was made, and the date when each was made, together with the total amount of disbursements made in any amounts or manner whatsoever.

(4) Every obligation, express or implied, to make any disbursement incurred by such candidate or committee for political purposes during such period, together with the names of the person or persons to or with whom each such obligation has been incurred, the specific purpose for which each was made, and the date when each was incurred, together with the total amount of such obligations made in any amounts or manner whatsoever. [Id. sec. 23.]

Art. 3174s. Persons receiving payments to file statements with secretary of state; penalty for violation.—Each and every person who shall receive any payment directly or indirectly, for political purposes in a campaign before a primary or a general election for United States senator whether as salary or as expenses, shall within thirty days after such payment has been made, or such payment has been promised, make a sworn statement showing in detail said payment or promised payments, by who made, what services were rendered for same. This statement shall be filed with the secretary of state. Any person who comes within the provisions of this section and fails to make the statements herein, shall upon conviction be confined in the county jail for not less than ten nor more than thirty days. [Id. sec. 24.]

Art. 3174ss. Blanks for statements; distribution.—Blanks for all statements required by law shall be prepared by the secretary of state and copies thereof, together with a copy of this Act, shall be furnished by the secretary of state to the secretary of every personal campaign committee and to the secretary of every party committee, and to every candidate for United States senator upon the filing of nomination papers, and all other persons required by law to file such statements who may apply therefor. [Id. sec. 25.]

Art. 3174t. Name of candidate not to be printed on ballot if statements not filed.—The name of no candidate for United States senator chosen at a primary election or otherwise, shall be printed on the official ballot for the ensuing election, unless there has been filed by or on behalf of said candidate and by his personal campaign committee, if any, the statements of accounts and expenses relating to the nominations of candidates for United States senator required by this Act. [Id. sec. 26.]

Art. 3174tt. Persons other than candidates or committees to file statements of disbursements; contents of statement.—Every person other than a candidate or a personal campaign committee or party committee, who shall within any twelve months before or after any election for United States senator make any disbursements for any political purposes relating to the election or nomination of a candidate for United States senator exceeding in the aggregate, twenty-five ($25) dollars in amount and value, shall file within forty-eight hours after making any disbursements, causing the aggregate of such disbursements to reach such amount, a sworn statement thereof with the clerk of the county wherein he resides. (2) Such statements shall give in full detail, with date, every item of money, property, or other thing of value constituting any part of such disbursement, the exact means by which and the manner in which each such disbursement is made, and the name and address of every person to whom each was made, and the specific purpose for which each was made. [Id. sec. 27.]

Art. 3174u. Limitation of amount of disbursements; proviso.—No disbursement shall be made and no obligation, express or implied, to make such disbursement or payment, shall be incurred by or on behalf of any candidate for the nomination for United States senator which shall be in the aggregate in excess of $5,000.00, and $1,000.00 additional when a second primary is necessary. Provided that the expenditures allowed in section 17 [Art. 3174*oo*] shall not be included in estimating the $5,000.00, or the additional $1,000.00 for the second primary. [Id. sec. 28.]

Art. 3174uu. Delegation of authority to make disbursements; limitation on amount.—Any candidate for United States senator may delegate to his personal campaign committee, or to any party committee or his party, in writing duly subscribed by him, the expenditure of any portion of the total disbursements which are authorized to be incurred by him or on his behalf, by the provisions of this Act, but the total of all disbursements, by himself, by his personal campaign committee in his behalf, by all party committees in his behalf, or otherwise made in his behalf, shall not exceed in the aggregate the amounts in this section, except as provided by law. Provided that the expenditures allowed in section 17 [Art. 3174*oo*] hereof shall not be included in estimating the total amount. [Id. sec. 29.]

Note.—Sections 30 and 31 are purely criminal provisions, and are omitted.

Art. 3174v. Violation of act; penalty; disqualification to hold office; name not to be placed on official ballot.—Any candidate for United States senators who shall fail to do and perform any of the things or acts required of him under the provision of this Act relating to the disbursement or collection of money or anything of value for political purposes, shall upon conviction be confined in the county jail for not less than thirty nor more than one hundred days, and in addition thereto, may be fined not less than two hundred, nor more than five hundred dollars, nor shall he be entitled to hold the office for which he may be elected, or if nominated, his name shall not be placed upon the official ballot for the ensuing election. [Id. sec. 32.]

Art. 3174vv. Same subject.—If any candidate for United States senator shall do any of the things or acts forbidden by the provisions of this Act with reference to the disbursement or collection of money, or anything or things of value, for political purposes as defined by this Act, he shall upon conviction, be confined in the county jail not less than thirty nor more than one hundred days, and in addition thereto may be fined in any sum not less than two hundred, nor more than five hundred dollars, nor shall he be entitled to hold the office for which he may be elected, or if nominated, his name shall not be placed upon the official ballot for the ensuing election. [Id. sec. 33.]

Art. 3174w. Officers at primary elections; compensation.—At each and every primary held for the nomination of a candidate for United States senator, the election shall be conducted by the duly appointed and constituted election officers of the several polling places and voting precincts throughout the state who shall be paid as provided by law for holding elections in other cases. [Id. sec. 34.]

Art. 3174ww. Qualifications of voters at primary; challenge; affidavit as to affiliation.—At each and every primary held for the purpose of nominating a candidate for United States senator no person not a qualified elector to vote for United States senator under the constitution of the United States shall be permitted to vote and no person shall vote for any candidate for the nomination for United States senator who does not belong to the same political party with which the voter affiliates and when any voter attempts to vote for any person as a candidate for the nomination for United States senator, and is challenged, he shall, before being permitted to vote, make an affidavit that he is a bona fide member of said party and if he voted in the preceding general election held for the election of state officials, he voted for the nominees of the party whose ticket he desires to vote. Upon making such an affidavit he shall be permitted to vote. [Id. sec. 35.]

Art. 3174x. Any other candidate may have his name placed on ballot by petition; application of general laws.—Any person who has not been defeated at the primary election preceding the general or special election for United States senators, desiring to have his name appear upon the official ballot at any general election as a candidate for United States senator who is not the nominee of any political party or political organization may do so only upon presenting a petition to the secretary of state signed by at least ten per cent of the qualified voters in the state of Texas as measured by the total vote for governor at the preceding general election. Said petitioner shall conform in every particular to the requirements of the laws of this state with reference to placing the name of any candidate, other than the nominee of any party upon the official ballot, provided, further, that in no case shall the name of any person be placed upon the official ballot at any general election as a candidate for United States senator as the nominee of any party unless he has been nominated under the provisions of this Act and has complied with every provision of the laws of this state with reference to the nomination of candidates for United States senators. [Id. sec. 36.]

Art. 3174xx. Placing names on ballot when primary not held; application; contents; requisites; instructions to county clerks.—Any person desiring to have his name appear upon the official ballot as a candidate for United States senator at any special election held for the purpose of filling a vacancy in the United States senate, when no party primary is held, may do so by presenting his application to the secretary of state which shall set forth (1) that he is a candidate for United States senator. (2) His age. (3) His occupation. (4) The county of his residence. (5) His post office address, (6) that he is a member in good faith of the political party upon whose ballot he wishes his name to appear that if a voter at the preceding election he voted for the nominees of said party, (7) that he will during the term of his office, if elected, endeavor to truly respect the wishes of his constituency and to abide by and support such measures as may be endorsed by the primary voters of his party in this state, and that he will use all honorable means at his command to secure the appointment for such applicants for positions in the federal service as receive a majority of the votes at any primary held by the members of his party to determine their wishes with reference thereto. Said application to be signed by the candidate and properly acknowledged before some person authorized to take acknowledgments. The secretary of state shall upon receipt of the application which conforms to the above requirements, issue his instruction to the county clerks of this state directing that the name of the applicant shall be printed on the official ballot in the column under the title of the office for which he is a candidate. [Id., sec. 37.]

Art. 3174y. Placing names on ballot for special primary; written request; requisites; filing with state chairman of party; instructions to county committees; canvass of returns; second primary.—Any candidate who desires his name to appear on the official ballot for a special primary as a candidate for the nomination of such party for the office of United States senator shall file with the state chairman of his party, not later than fifteen (15) days prior to the date of such primary, his written request that his name be placed upon such official ballot as a candidate for the nomination of United States senator, giving his age and occupation, the county of his residence and post office address, which shall be signed by him and acknowledged by him before some officer, and also twenty-five (25) qualified voters may likewise join in a request that the name of any person affiliating with such party be placed upon the official ballot as a candidate for United States senator, giving the occupation, county of residence and post office address of such person, signing and acknowledging same as above provided, and may file the same with the state chairman within the time above mentioned with the same effect as if such request had been filed by the party named therein as a candidate for such nomination. And the chairman and secretary of the state committee shall forwith cause to be mailed to the chairman and secretary of every county committee of the party in the state the name of such candidate for United States senator, with instructions that it be placed on the official ballot of such county. All requests shall be considered filed with the state chairman when they are sent from any point within the United States by registered mail, or by telegraph, addressed to the state chairman at his post office address. On the first Saturday following such special primary election, the county executive committee of each county in the state, shall meet and canvass the returns of such election, and shall immediately thereafter certify by its chairman and secretary the result of said election and forward same to the state chairman. The state executive committee shall meet at a time not later than fifteen (15) days after the date of said special primary and canvass and tabulate the returns of said election as certified by the county chairman, and the candidate receiving the majority of the number of votes cast at such primary shall be the nominee of the party for such office; and the state chairman shall order the name of such candidate placed upon the official ballot of said party. Provided, however, if at the first primary election no candidate receives a majority of the votes polled by his party for all the candidates for United States senator before said party, the state executive committee or state chairman thereof shall call a second primary election for the purpose of determining the choice of the party as between the two candidates receiving the largest number of votes at the first primary election. Said second primary shall be held on the third Saturday following the first primary, and at such second primary, only the two candidates in each party receiving the two highest votes shall be voted upon. [Id., sec. 38.]

Art. 3174z. Two senators to be elected; designation of term desired.—When there are two senators to be elected from Texas to the congress of the United States, each candidate offering his name for election shall designate in his application for a position on the ticket whether in a general or special election or primary, whether he is a candidate for the short term or long term. [Id., sec. 39.]

CHAPTER ELEVEN

NATIONAL CONVENTION, STATE CONVENTION TO SELECT DELEGATES TO

Article 3175. National convention, state convention to select delegates to.—Any political party, desiring to elect delegates to a national convention, shall hold a state convention at such place as may be designated by the state executive committee of said party, on the fourth Tuesday of May, 1912, and every four years thereafter. Said convention shall be composed of delegates duly elected by the voters of said political party in the several counties of the state at primary conventions to be held on the first Saturday in May, 1912, and every four years thereafter. Said primary conventions shall be held between the hours of ten o'clock a. m. and eight o'clock p. m. These primary conventions shall elect delegates to the county convention of the several counties, which shall be held on the first Tuesday after the first Saturday in May, 1912, and every four years thereafter. The qualified voters of each voting precinct of the county shall assemble on the date named, and shall be presided over by a chairman who shall have been previously appointed by the county executive committee of the party, and shall be a qualified voter in said election precinct; and said convention may elect from among their number a secretary and such other officers as may be necessary to conduct the business of the convention. The chairman of said convention shall possess all the power and authority that is given to election judges under the provisions of this title. Before transacting any business, the chairman shall make, or cause to be made, a list of all qualified voters present; and the name of no person shall be entered upon said list, nor shall he be permitted to vote or to participate in the business of such convention, until it is made to appear that he is a qualified voter in said precinct, from a certified list of qualified voters, the same as is required in conducting a general election. After the convention is organized as above provided, it shall elect its delegates to the county convention and transact such other business as may properly come before it. The officers of said convention shall keep a written record of its proceedings, including a list of the delegates elected to the county convention, which record shall constitute the returns from said convention. The same shall be signed officially, sealed up and safely transmitted by the officers thereof to the chairman of the county executive committee of the party, and to be used by the executive committee in making up a roll of the delegates to the county convention. [Acts 1905, S. S., p. 555, sec. 139.]

Art. 3175a. Nomination of candidates for president and vice-president and party presidential electors, and election of party delegates to national conventions.—Provided, that on the fourth Tuesday in May, A. D. 1916, and every four years thereafter, in addition to the candidates heretofore required to be nominated at the regular nominating election, the qualified electors of the political parties of this state shall have the opportunity to vote their first and second preference on their party nominating ballots for their choice of those aspiring to be the candidates of their respective parties for president and vice-president of the United States, and for the nomination of their party presidential electors and the election of their party delegates to the national convention of the respective political parties of this state. The names of the aspirants in each such party for its nomination to be its nominees for president and vice-president of the United States; and for presidential electors and the election of said delegates to said national conventions shall be printed on the party nominating ballot and the ballots shall be marked and the votes shall be counted, canvassed and returned under the same regulation of law as the names of the party aspirants for the party nominations for the offices of governor and lieutenant governor of this state. That said candidates for the nomination of president and vice-president of the United States shall have their names placed upon said primary ballot at two separate places under the headlines "First Choice" and "Second Choice" to enable the electors participating in said election to vote for their first and second choice for said officers; provided, that aspirants for such presidential nominations need not file any personal petition for placing their names on said political ballot, but that the state chairman of the respective political parties of this state shall certify to each county chairman of the respective political parties of said state, the names and addresses of all candidates of said respective political parties for said offices of president and vice-president of the United States, such names to be placed upon said official ballot as candidates for said offices.

Every qualified voter participating in said primary shall have the right at such nominating election to vote for two candidates from his respective congressional district for delegates to said national convention and for as many delegates at large to said national convention as may be directed by the state executive committee of said political party, and for the nomination of one presidential elector from his respective congressional district. The candidates for president and vice-president of the United States receiving the highest number of votes cast in said primary election shall be considered the first choice of the adherents of said political party in this state for said office, and the candidates for president and vice-president of the United States securing the second highest number of votes cast in said primary election shall be considered the second choice of the adherents of such party for said offices. The number of said candidates for delegate equal to the number of said delegates to be elected, and the number of presidential electors to be nominated, receiving respectively each for himself the highest number of votes for such office or nomination, shall be elected or nominated as the case may be.

Provided the provisions of this Act shall be optional with the political parties polling less than 50,000 votes for their candidate for governor at the last preceding general election. Provided that the expense incurred in holding said precinct primaries shall be paid out of the county treasury of each county in which said primaries are held upon a warrant drawn upon the county treasury by the commissioners court of said county, or said court shall authorize the county clerk of said county to draw said warrant, and said fees shall correspond to the amount now paid election officers for holding general elections in this state, and this shall only apply to primaries for political parties when the candidate for governor at the last preceding general election polled 50,000 or more votes. [Acts 1913, p. 88, sec. 1.]

Note.—Acts 1913, p. 88, is "An act to amend the Revised Civil Statutes * * * so as to add thereto after article 3175, and [an] article 3175a," etc. Section 2 repeals all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of the act.

Decisions Relating to Subject in General

Constitutionality of law.—Terrell election law held not unconstitutional as containing matter not embraced in its title or as containing more than one subject. Watts v. State, 61 Cr. R. 364, 135 S. W. 585.

Validity of former constitution without vote of people.—The ordinances adopted by the convention which framed the constitution of 1866 were valid without a vote of the people; the president's proclamation calling such convention not requiring a submission of its work to the people. Cox v. Robison, 105 T. 426, 150 S. W. 1149.

ELECTORS OF PRESIDENT AND VICE-PRESIDENT

Article 3176. [1811] [1760] Time of election of electors and who are qualified to be electors and to vote for electors.—On the Tuesday next after the first Monday in November, A. D. 1912, and on the first Tuesday next after the first Monday in November every four years thereafter, the qualified voters for members of the house of representatives of the state legislature shall elect from among the resident citizens, over twenty-one years of age, and not members of either house of congress of the United States, as many electors of president and vice-president of the United States as the state of Texas may at the time be entitled to elect. [Act March 15, 1848. P. D. 3644.]

Art. 3177. [1812] [1761] Mode, places, etc., of election for electors.—Such election shall be held in the same manner, at the same places, under the same regulations, and by officers and managers appointed in the same way as elections for members of the house of representatives of this state may be; except that such qualified voter shall be authorized to vote for the whole number of electors that the state will then be empowered to elect. [Id. P. D. 3645.]

Art. 3178. [1813] [1762] Returns of election by precinct officers.—The officers conducting said elections, or the managers thereof at each precinct, shall, within three days after holding said election, add up and compare the number of votes given for each person there voted for as an elector, and shall make out in writing, seal up, certify and transmit the result of said election to the county judge or other proper officer of their county, in the same manner prescribed by the laws regulating elections for members of the state legislature. [Id. P. D. 3646.]

Art. 3179. Returns of elections by counties.—On the Monday next following the day of election, or as soon thereafter as the commissioners' court shall have opened the election returns, and estimated the result, in accordance with article 3030, the county judge shall make duplicate returns of the election, one of which he shall immediately transmit to the seat of government in this state, sealed in an envelope, directed to the secretary of state, and endorsed "Election Returns for ..... County for Presidential Electors," [filling the blank with the name of the county] and the other of such returns shall be deposited in the office of the clerk of the county court of the county where such election was held. [Id. P. D. 3647.]

Art. 3180. [1815] Secretary of state shall count returns, when, etc.—It shall be the duty of the secretary of state, in the presence of the governor and attorney general, or either of them on the fourth Monday in November next after said election, to open all the election returns received by him, and correctly add up all the votes cast in the several counties for each of the said electors, and cause the result thereof, with the names of the persons elected, to be forthwith published in some newspaper printed at the seat of government, and shall issue certificates of election to the persons so elected. [Id. P. D. 3648.]

Art. 3181. [1851a] Contests; filed when; how tried.—Any person or persons intending to contest the election of any or all of the persons declared elected, as provided in article 3180, as electors of president and vice-president, shall, within fifteen days from the said fourth Monday in November, file with the secretary of state a written statement of the ground on which such contestant relies to sustain such contest, and shall, within such time, notify the contestee thereof in writing, and deliver to him, his agent or attorney, a copy of said statement. The contestee shall, within ten days after receiving such notice, file with the secretary of state his reply thereto in writing. The contest shall, as soon thereafter as possible, be tried and determined by the state board of canvassers, consisting of the governor, attorney general and secretary of state, or any two of them; and their decision shall be rendered at least six days before the time fixed by law for the meeting of the electors. Such decision, in which two at least of such board shall join, shall be final, and certificates of election, in accordance therewith, shall at once be issued by the secretary of state to the proper parties. Where not otherwise herein provided, the provisions of chapter 8 of title 49, relating to contests for the validity of an election for members of the legislature, shall apply to such contests for presidential electors. [Id.]

Art. 3182. [1816–1817] [1765–1766] Electors shall convene, when and where.—The electors so chosen shall convene in the capitol at the seat of government of the state, on the second Monday in January next after their election, and vote for president and vice-president of the United States, and make returns thereof as is, or hereafter may be, required by the laws of the United States. [Acts 1897, p. 25. P. D. 3649. U. S. Rev. Stat., p. 21.]

Art. 3182a. Place of absent or disqualified electors, how supplied.—If any person so chosen elector shall, by death or other disabling cause, fail to attend by the hour of two o'clock in the afternoon of the day fixed by law, and vote as required by law, or if any such person shall be legally disqualified to serve as elector, a majority of the qualified electors present, after having convened, may appoint some other person to act as elector in the place of any such absent or disqualified person, and shall immediately report their action to the secretary of state aforesaid. [Id. P. D. 3650. Acts 1848, p. 104.]

Art. 3183. [1818] [1767] Governor shall cause list of electors to be made, etc.—The governor shall, on or before the meeting of the electors, cause three lists of the names of such electors to be made out and delivered to them, as required by act of congress. [Id. P. D. 3651.]

Art. 3184. [1819] [1768] Governor shall issue proclamation, etc.—It shall be the duty of the governor, or in case of his inability, then of the lieutenant-governor, to issue a proclamation under the seal of the state, and have the same published for at least forty days before an election for electors, in some newspaper printed at the seat of government, requiring the county judge, or other proper officer or officers, of each county in the state to cause an election to be held at each precinct in the county at the time and for the purpose prescribed in this title. [Id. P. D. 3652.]

Art. 3185. [1820] [1769] Compensation of electors.—Electors for president and vice-president of the United States shall receive the same pay for mileage in traveling to and from the seat of government of the state, and the same pay daily while engaged there in the duties required of them by law, as that allowed by law to the members of the legislature of this state. [Act Dec. 1, 1849. P. D. 3653.]

ESCHEAT

[See Estates of Decedents. See Aliens.]

Article 3186. [1821] [1770] When estates shall escheat; evidence; service of process.—If any person die seized of any real or possessed of any personal estate, without any devise thereof, and having no heirs, or where the owner of any real or personal estate shall be absent for the term of seven years, and is not known to exist, leaving no heirs, or devise of his estate, such estate shall escheat to and vest in the state; provided, that, where no will is recorded or probated in the county where such property is situated, within seven years after the death of the owner, it shall be prima facie evidence that there was no will, and where no lawful claim is asserted to, or lawful acts of ownership exercised in, such property for the period of seven years, and this has been proved to the satisfaction of the court, it shall be deemed prima facie evidence of the death of the owner, and of the failure of heirs; and the court trying the cause may, if such evidence is not rebutted, find therefrom in favor of the state; provided, further, that any one paying taxes to the state on such property, either personally or through an agent, shall be held to be exercising lawful acts of ownership in such property within the meaning of this title, and shall not be concluded by any judgment, unless he be made a party to such escheat proceedings, and a personal service of citation be had upon him, if a resident of this state, and his address can be secured by reasonable diligence, but, if he be a non-resident of the state and can not be found, the personal service of citation shall be made upon any agent of such claimant, if such agent, by the use of reasonable diligence, can be found; such reasonable diligence to include an investigation of the records of the office and inquiry of the state and county tax collector and the state and county tax assessor of the county in which the property sought to be escheated is situated. [Acts 1885, p. 35. Acts 1907, p. 111.]

When title tests in state.—Under the operation of the first clause of this article, escheat occurs and vests title in the state immediately upon the death of the intestate without heirs. The succeeding clauses merely prescribe the manner in which the state establishes title. Ellis v. State, 21 S. W. 66, 3 C. A. 170.

Sale for taxes.—The sale of land for taxes does not defeat the right of the state to have the escheat declared. Hanna v. State, 84 T. 664, 19 S. W. 1008.

Improvements.—The plea of improvements made in good faith will not, in a case of this character, prevail against the state. Ellis v. State, 21 S. W. 66, 3 C. A. 170. And see Brown v. State, 36 T. 282.

Adverse possession.—Adverse possession will not prevail against the state though entered into immediately upon the death of the intestate. Ellis v. State, 21 S. W. 66, 3 C. A. 170.

Presumption of death.—This article and Art. 5707 mean that the person referred to must absent himself from his home; and proof of change of residence from one state to another and the party not having been heard of in the former state for a period of seven years does not make a case within the purview of the statute. It must be shown that he absented himself from his home for seven years successively. Latham v. Tombs, 32 C. A. 270, 73 S. W. 1060.

Administration pending.—This article does not authorize an action to escheat an estate where an administration is pending. State v. Black's Estate, 21 C. A. 242, 51 S. W. 555.

Art. 3187. [1822] [1771] District attorney to file petition for escheat, when; venue; requisites of petition.—When the district or county attorney shall be informed, or have reason to believe, that an executor or executors, if more than one, has been named under the will of any person who has died without heirs and without having devised his estate, has not accepted the trust, that no administrator with the will annexed, has been appointed, or where such attorney shall discover that no letters of administration on the estate of an intestate who has died without heirs have been granted, or where such attorney finds any estate, real or personal, in the condition specified in the next preceding article, he shall file a petition in behalf of the state in the district or the county where such property, or any part thereof, lies; which petition shall set forth a description of the estate, the name of the person last lawfully seized or possessed of same, the name of the tenants or persons in actual possession, if any, and the names of the persons claiming the estate, if any such are known to claim or whose claim may be discovered by the exercise of reasonable diligence, and the facts or circumstances in consequence of which such estate is claimed to have escheated, and the diligence exercised to discover the claimants of same, praying that such property be escheated and for a writ of possession for the same in behalf of the state. Such petition shall be sworn to by such attorney. [Id.]

Does not prohibit administration.—This act does not prohibit administration upon the estate of a decedent, unless proceedings for escheat have been instituted before the jurisdiction of the county court has attached. And when proceedings have been instituted and dismissed, the jurisdiction of the court will attach. Hall v. Claiborne, 27 T. 217.

Art. 3188. [1823] [1772] Clerk to issue citation to those alleged to be in possession, etc.—The clerk of the court shall issue citation, as in other civil causes, for such of the defendants as shall be alleged in the petition to hold possession of or claim such estate and for such other persons as this title provides shall be cited, requiring them to appear and answer at the next term of court. [Id.]

Art. 3189. [1824] [1773] Citation published and its requisites.—The clerk shall also issue a citation, setting forth briefly the contents of the petition, for all persons interested in the estate to appear and answer at the next term of court, which citation shall be published as required in other civil suits. [Acts 1885, p. 35.]

Publication essential.—The original article reads as follows: Such scire facias shall be served ten days before the return day thereof; and the court shall make an order, setting forth briefly the contents of such petition, and requiring all persons interested in the estate to appear and show cause why the same should not be vested in the state, which order shall be published as required by Art. 1875. Under this article it has been held that the publication of the notice as required by the statute was essential to support the jurisdiction of the court. Wiederanders v. State, 64 T. 133. See Hanna v. State, 84 T. 667, 19 S. W. 1008; Caplen v. Compton, 5 C. A. 410, 27 S. W. 24.

No appearance.—Where there is no appearance the record must show a citation as required by the statute. Hanna v. State, 84 T. 664, 19 S. W. 1008.

Art. 3190. [1825] [1774] Claimants may appear and plead.—All persons named in such petition as tenants or persons in actual possession or claimants of the estate may appear and plead to such proceedings, and may traverse the facts stated in the petition, or the title of the state to the lands and tenements therein mentioned, as in civil cases, and any other person claiming an interest in such estate may appear and be made a defendant and plead as in other cases. [P. D. 3661.]

Art. 3191. [1826] [1775] If no person appears.—If no person, after notice as aforesaid, shall appear and plead within the time prescribed by law then judgment shall be rendered by default in behalf of the state. [P. D. 3662.]

Art. 3192. [1827] [1776] If any person appears, issue and trial.—If any person appear and deny the title set up by the state, or traverse any material fact in the petition, issue shall be made up and tried as other issues of fact; and a survey may be ordered, as in other cases where the titles or boundaries of land are drawn in question. [P. D. 3663.]

See Wiener v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 699.

Art. 3193. [1828] [1777] Judgment for the state, when.—If, after the issue and trial, it appears from the facts found or admitted that the state has good title to the estate, real or personal, in the petition mentioned, or any part thereof, judgment shall be rendered that the state shall be seized or possessed thereof, and at the discretion of the court recover costs against the defendants; provided, that whenever judgment is rendered in favor of the state, whether by default or after trial upon the merits, a writ of possession shall be awarded as in other civil suits. [Acts 1885, p. 35.]

Art. 3194. [1829] [1778] Costs against the state, how paid.—If it appears that the state has no title in such estate, the defendant shall recover his costs, to be taxed and certified by the clerk; and the comptroller of public accounts shall, on such certificate being filed in his office, issue a warrant therefor on the treasury, which shall be paid as other demands on the treasury. [P. D. 3665.]

Art. 3195. [1830] [1779] Judgment to contain description, vest title in state and stay writ of possession.—When any judgment shall be rendered that the state be seized or possessed of any estate, such judgment shall contain a description thereof, and shall vest title in the state; such judgment, when rendered for real estate, shall further provide that no writ of possession for such property shall issue within two years from the date when such judgment becomes final, and no sale thereof be made within such time. [Acts 1907, p. 112].

Art. 3196. [1830] [1779] Claimant not personally served may sue to divest title, etc.—Such title to such real property, or any part thereof, so adjudged to the state, shall be subject to divestiture at the suit of any claimant not personally served with citation in such escheat proceedings, who shall institute suit therefor against the state in any court having jurisdiction, within two years after the date when such judgment in the escheat proceedings has become final, and who shall finally be adjudged owner of the property, for the recovery of which the suit is brought, or any part thereof. [Id.]

Art. 3197. [1831] [1780] Writ of seizure and proceedings thereunder.—A writ shall be issued to the sheriff or any constable of the proper county commanding him to seize such estate vested in the state; and, if the same be personal property or real estate, he shall dispose of the same at public auction in the manner provided by law for the sale of property under execution; and the proceeds, less the costs of court and attorneys' commissions, shall be paid into the treasury of the state; provided, that no real estate shall be sold by the sheriff or constable at less than the minimum price to be fixed by the judge before whom the cause was tried, said minimum valuation to be distinctly stated in the advertisement, and, should there be on the day of sale no bona fide bid for as high an amount as the valuation fixed by the judge before whom the cause was tried, there shall be no sale, and the writ shall be immediately returned to the court issuing the same; and thereafter said real estate may be sold by the attorney general in the same manner as lands bid in by the state under authority of article 358 are now sold by that officer. [Acts 1885, p. 35.]

Art. 3198. [1832] [1781] Appeal or writ of error.—Any party who shall have appeared to any such proceedings, and the district or county attorney, on behalf of the state, shall have the right to prosecute an appeal or writ of error upon such judgment. [P. D. 3669.]

Art. 3199. [1833] [1782] Comptroller to keep accounts.—The comptroller shall keep just accounts of all moneys paid into the treasury, and of all lands vested in the state under the provisions of this chapter. [P. D. 3670.]

Art. 3200. [1834] [1783] Heir, etc., afterward appearing, may bring suit.—If any person appear after the death of the testator or intestate and claim any money paid into the treasury under this chapter, as heir, or devisee, or legatee thereof, he may file a petition in the district court for the county where the estate was sold, stating the nature of his claim and praying that such money be paid to him; a copy of which petition shall be served on the district or county attorney at least twenty days previous to the return day of the process, who shall put in an answer to the same. [P. D. 3671.]

Art. 3201. [1835] [1784] Order of court in favor of claimant.—The court shall examine the claim and the allegations and proofs; and, if it shall find that such person is an heir, devisee, legatee or legal representative, whether citizen or foreigner, such court shall make an order directing the comptroller to issue his warrant on the treasury for the payment of the same, but without interests or costs; a copy of which order under the seal of the court shall be a sufficient voucher for issuing such warrant; and the same proceedings shall be instituted for the recovery of any money or property heretofore deposited with the treasurer or comptroller in accordance with the laws heretofore existing; provided, that, if such heir, devisee, legatee or legal representative or their assigns shall sue for and recover such estate, real or personal, in any court of competent jurisdiction in this state from any purchaser at sheriff's sale, as hereinbefore provided, or from his heirs, devisees, legatees, legal representatives or assigns, then, and in any such event, a certified copy of such judgment of recovery, together with the affidavit of the party cast in the suit that he is the owner of, and entitled to, the money theretofore paid into the state treasury as the proceeds of such escheated estate, shall be sufficient authority for the issuance by the comptroller of a warrant on the state treasury for the payment to such purchaser, his heirs, legal representatives or assigns, such net amount of money as was paid into the state treasury by reason of said sheriff's sale of such estate. [P. D. 3672. Amend. 1895, p. 189.]

Art. 3202. [1836] [1785] Proceeds of escheated property subject to disposition by the state.—The proceeds of all property escheated in accordance with the provisions of this chapter shall remain subject to the disposition of the state, as may hereafter be prescribed by law. [P. D. 3674.]

Art. 3203. [1837] [1786] Final decree of probate court may be revised, when.—Any decree of the probate court finally closing any estate may be revised and corrected in the district court of the county in which the letters were granted to such executor or administrator, upon the ground that there was error, fraud or mistake of law or fact, in such final account, and settlement, upon the application of the state, by bill of review, in the same manner as is now provided by law for the revision and correction of any such account and settlement by any individual interested in an estate. [Act Nov. 13, 1866, p. 236, sec. 1.]

Bill of review.—The statutes do not provide for a bill of review except in probate matters, where any person interested may file such bill in the court in which the proceedings were had for the revision or correction of final accounts in estates, as authorized by this article, and in certain other specified cases. Robbie v. Upson (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 406.

Art. 3204. [1838] [1787] Governor may cause proceedings to be instituted, when.—In any case in which the governor has reason to believe that there has been fraud, error or mistake of law or fact, in any such final account and settlement, he is authorized to retain counsel and have proceedings instituted, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter and the laws, to have such final account and settlement revised and corrected for the protection of the rights of the state; and for such services the counsel so retained shall be allowed a reasonable compensation. [Act Nov. 13, 1866, p. 236, sec. 2.]

Art. 3205. [1839] [1788] Suit must be in name of state.—All suits brought for the collection of the assets turned over to the treasurer, under this chapter, shall be brought in the name of, "The State of Texas." [Id. sec. 3.]

JURISDICTION

Article 3206. [1840] [1789] Probate jurisdiction of the county court.—The county court shall have the general jurisdiction of a probate court. It shall probate wills, grant letters testamentary or of administration, settle the accounts of executors and administrators, and transact all business appertaining to the estates of deceased persons, including the settlement, partition and distribution of such estates. [Const. art. 5, sec. 16.]

Cited, Berry v. Hindman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1181; Moss v. Slack, 141 S. W. 1063; Drought v. Story, 143 S. W. 361.

Historical.—By ordinance of the consultation, January 22, 1836, proceedings relative to successions, matters of probate, etc., were governed by the principles and laws in similar cases in the state of Louisiana; but in all cases of intestacy, the next of kin and other principles of the common law prevailed in the appointment of administrators and guardians. Hart. Dig. art. 983.

By the act of May 18, 1838 (2d Cong., p. 7), no sale of any of the effects of any deceased soldier or officer could be made, except by order of the court granting letters of administration, approved by the secretary of war, and published in some newspaper sixty days, and all sales otherwise made, except by heirs of full age, were utterly null and void. This was afterwards limited to the estates of soldiers, not citizens of Texas at the time of their deaths. Act Dec. 24, 1838, 3d Cong., p. 20.

By the act of February, 1840 (4th Cong., p. 110), a probate system was established, and all laws in conflict therewith repealed. Various amendments and supplemental laws were passed as follows: Jan. 14, 1841, 5th Cong., p. 53; Jan. 21, 1841, 5th Cong., p. 66; Feb. 4, 1841, 5th Cong., p. 179; Feb. 5, 1841, 5th Cong., p. 121; Jan. 9, 1843, 7th Cong., p. 12; Jan. 13, 1843, 7th Cong., p. 18; Jan. 16, 1843, 7th Cong., p. 25; Jan. 18, Feb. 2 and 3, 1844, 8th Cong., pp. 23, 65, 67 and 78.

By the act of May 11, 1846 (1st Leg., p. 308), a new system was established, and all former laws relative to probate courts repealed. A new and complete system was again established by the act of March 20, 1848 (2d Leg., p. 235), and the act of May 11, 1846, was repealed.

The act of 1848 has been amended at various times as follows: December 15, 1851 (4th Leg., p. 16); January 1, 1862 (9th Leg., p. 23); February 25, 1863 (9th Leg., S. S., p. 6); December 14–16, 1863 (10th Leg., pp. 9–12); November 5–13, 1866 (11th Leg., pp. 89–96).

By the act of August 15, 1870 (12th Leg., S. S., p. 141), conforming to the requirements of the constitution of 1869, probate jurisdiction was vested in the district court, and important changes made in the conduct of an administration. This act was amended May 9 and 23, 1871 (12th Leg., pp. 83, 125); November 6 and 23, 1871 (12th Leg., S. S., pp. 22, 40); May 27, 1873 (13th Leg., p. 108); June 2, 1873 (13th Leg., p. 175).

The jurisdiction of probate matters was restored to the county courts by the constitution of 1876, and the act of August 9, 1876 (15th Leg.), was passed. This act is the basis of the provisions relating to estates of deceased persons in the Revised Statutes. The subsequent changes are noted in connection with the articles affected thereby.

The jurisdiction of the courts in probate matters was conferred by the constitution of 1845 and those subsequently adopted, and the decisions cited in the notes are based on the law as it heretofore existed.

By the act of January 14, 1841 (5th Cong., p. 53), it was provided that no administration shall be granted on the estate of any person who served in the Georgia battalion, or any other volunteer from a foreign country, who may have fallen in the battles of the republic, or otherwise died in the limits of the same, to any person who shall not show himself entitled to the same as next of kin, or shall not produce an authority from the heirs or next of kin of such deceased soldiers, authorizing him to take administration of the same. It was further provided, that when administration has heretofore been granted on the estates of deceased soldiers to other than the heirs or next of kin of such soldiers, it shall not be lawful for such administrator to sell the lands of such deceased, without the consent or approbation of the heirs of such deceased soldier; the document relied on as evidence of such consent of said heirs to be recorded by the probate judge, he being satisfied of the same before granting a decree of sale to the administrator. See Duncan v. Veal, 49 T. 603.

The jurisdiction conferred by the constitution of 1866 upon the probate court, over a particular subject-matter, was exclusive. Messner v. Giddings, 65 T. 301.

Jurisdiction of probate courts from 1836 to 1844 reviewed. Houston v. Killough, 80 T. 296, 16 S. W. 56. See Early Laws, art. 1341.

Jurisdiction—In general.—A county court sitting in probate is a court of general jurisdiction and entitled to all the rights of such a court, having the same judicial discretion in regard to matters coming before it that the district court has with reference to matters within its jurisdiction.—Crawford v. McDonald, 33 S. W. 325, 88 T. 626; Edwards v. Gates (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 585; Farmer v. Saunders, 128 S. W. 941; Moss v. Slack, 141 S. W. 1063; Rivera v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co., 149 S. W. 223; Shook v. Journeay, 149 S. W. 406.

A county court held to have no jurisdiction to adjudge one guilty of contempt because after appeal to the district court from the order of the county court appointing him permanent administrator he in the district court signed an agreement as administrator to change the venue to another county. Ex parte Robertson, 44 Cr. R. 566, 72 S. W. 859.

Under the provisions of a will, the county court held without jurisdiction of a widow's application for the annulment of a legacy to another, and for the allowance of a year's support from the property so bequeathed. Nelson v. Lyster, 32 C. A. 356, 74 S. W. 54.

The probate court is the tribunal in which all issues as to incapacity of testator, revocation, destruction, of the will, etc., and all issues affecting the validity of the preferred will must be contested. Locust v. Randle, 46 C. A. 544, 102 S. W. 947.

The county court having appointed an administrator had jurisdiction to appoint his successor, where he had not administered the estate, and that there were other reasons for the appointment. Kuck v. Dixon (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 910.

—— Exclusive.—A proceeding to contest a will must be commenced in the probate court. Franks v. Chapman, 61 T. 576; Id., 60 T. 46; Heath v. Layne, 62 T. 686.

Probate court held to have exclusive jurisdiction of an issue involving the priority between a tax lien on property belonging to a widow's deceased husband and the widow's homestead claim thereto. State v. Jordan, 25 C. A. 17, 59 S. W. 826.

The district court held not authorized to compel one having a claim against an estate to allow an amount due him from the estate as a credit against it, until such claim was presented to and rejected wholly or in part by the executor; the county court only having authority to determine and allow credits, pending administration, if the claim is allowed by the executor. Berry v. Hindman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1181.

When properly invoked, the jurisdiction of the county court to make the settlement, distribution, and partition of the estates of deceased persons is exclusive. Buchner v. Wait (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 383.

—— Cannot determine ownership of property.—See Art. 3343.

—— Not subject to collateral attack.—Proceedings in the probate court are not subject to collateral attack on the ground of a want of jurisdiction, unless it sufficiently appears from the record itself that its jurisdiction did not attach in the particular case. The question must be tried by the recitals of the record itself and the presumptions arising therefrom. Poor v. Boyce, 12 T. 449; Dancy v. Stricklinge, 15 T. 564, 65 Am. Dec. 179; Alexander v. Maverick, 18 T. 194, 67 Am. Dec. 693; George v. Watson, 19 T. 354; Withers v. Patterson, 27 T. 491, 86 Am. Dec. 643; Giddings v. Steele, 28 T. 732, 91 Am. Dec. 336; Homuth v. Zapp, 33 T. 130; McGowen v. Zimpleman, 53 T. 479; Hudson v. Jernigan, 39 T. 579; Pleasants v. Dunkin, 47 T. 342; Guilford v. Love, 49 T. 715; Murchison v. White, 54 T. 78; Brockenborough v. Melton, 55 T. 493; Mills v. Herndon, 60 T. 353; Bradley v. Love, 60 T. 472; Pelham v. Murray, 64 T. 477; Mills v. Herndon, 77 T. 89, 13 S. W. 854; Martin v. Robinson, 67 T. 368, 3 S. W. 550; Weems v. Masterton, 80 T. 45, 15 S. W. 590; Ross v. Martin (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 718; Farmer v. Saunders, Id. 941.

When from the uncertainty in the construction and execution of the laws and the facts pertaining thereto, the venue where jurisdiction should have been exercised over the estate of decedent was, in 1843, rendered uncertain, and all the parties interested in the estate acted upon and acquiesced in the assumption of jurisdiction by the county court, which had jurisdiction of the subject-matter of estates, and jurisdiction over the particular estate was assumed by no other court at that time, such jurisdiction cannot now be called in question collaterally. Lewis v. Ames, 44 T. 319.

In 1844 administration was granted on the estate of A. in G. county. In 1845 letters de bonis non were granted on the same estate in B. county, where decedent once lived and owned property. Nothing was done under the administration in G. county. Under the letters last granted an inventory was filed showing a large estate, and the estate was administered. In a collateral proceeding it was conclusively presumed that the grant of administration in B. county was valid; the presumption being strengthened by the acquiescence of parties interested in the estate for thirty years, and by the fact that it did not appear clearly that deceased had a fixed residence in G. county, and that the inventory filed in G. county was partial, and the administratrix appointed in G. county, who survived twenty-four years, made no complaint. Brockenborough v. Melton, 55 T. 493.

When it appears upon the record that the court had no jurisdiction of the person or subject-matter, an objection may be raised to the record when it is offered in evidence, being a nullity on its face. Bradley v. Love, 60 T. 473.

—— Presumptions as to.—All presumptions are in favor of the regularity of the proceedings, which cannot be impeached, dehors the record, except for fraud or want of jurisdiction. Alexander v. Maverick, 18 T. 179, 67 Am. Dec. 693; Guilford v. Love, 49 T. 715; Williams v. Ball, 52 T. 608, 36 Am. Rep. 730; Murchison v. White, 54 T. 83; Heath v. Layne, 62 T. 686; Saul v. Frame, 22 S. W. 984, 3 C. A. 596.

When the court makes an order which it has the power to make under certain circumstances, the presumption is that the circumstances existed which conferred the power to make the order, and that the court acted within the limitations of its authority. Withers v. Patterson, 27 T. 491, 86 Am. Dec. 643.

Presumptions will be liberally indulged in support of probate proceedings which occurred under the republic. Delk v. Punchard, 64 T. 360; Robertson v. Johnson, 57 T. 62.

When a court of record of general jurisdiction for all matters pertaining to the estates of deceased persons has assumed to exercise jurisdiction in a given case, all presumptions are in favor of the validity of its proceedings, and if the record of such a court shows that the steps necessary to clothe it with power and act in the given case were taken or if the record be silent upon this subject, then its judgment, order or decree will be held conclusive in any other court of the same sovereignty when collaterally attacked. Martin v. Robinson, 67 T. 368, 3 S. W. 550, reviewing Blair v. Cisneros, 10 T. 35; Fisk v. Norvel, 9 T. 15, 58 Am. Dec. 128; Boyle v. Forbes, 9 T. 36; Wardup v. Jones, 23 T. 489; Cochran v. Thompson, 18 T. 652; Merriweather v. Kennard, 41 T. 273; Duncan v. Veal, 49 T. 604; Martin v. Robinson, 67 T. 368, 3 S. W. 550; Lyne v. Sanford, 82 T. 58, 19 S. W. 847, 27 Am. St. Rep. 852; Crawford v. McDonald, 33 S. W. 325, 88 T. 626; Brown v. Christie, 27 T. 78, 84 Am. Dec. 607; Williams v. Ball, 52 T. 603, 36 Am. Rep. 730; Heck v. Martin, 75 T. 469, 13 S. W. 51, 16 Am. St. Rep. 915; Fowler v. Simpson, 79 T. 611, 15 S. W. 682, 23 Am. St. Rep. 370; Martin v. Burns, 80 T. 677, 16 S. W. 1072; Hardy v. Beatty, 84 T. 562, 19 S. W. 778, 31 Am. St. Rep. 80.

Since the act of August 15, 1870, no presumption is admissible which is contrary to the record. Branch v. Hanrick, 70 T. 731, 8 S. W. 539.

Where a probate court has administered an estate for a long time—30 years or more—it will be presumed that facts existed which gave jurisdiction, although the will provided for an independent administration. Wood v. Mistretta, 20 C. A. 236, 49 S. W. 236.

"Direct" and "collateral" attack.—Probate courts are courts of general jurisdiction in matters pertaining to estates of decedents, and their judgments are not subject to collateral attack. A direct attack is by a proceeding to amend, correct, reform, vacate or enjoin a judgment by a direct proceeding, as a motion for a rehearing, an appeal or writ of error, bill of review or injunction. A collateral attack is an attempt to avoid its binding effect in a proceeding not instituted for one of the purposes aforesaid. Crawford v. McDonald, 33 S. W. 325, 88 T. 626.

Can set aside orders after term, when.—The county court sitting in probate has no power over its decisions by bills of review and the like. But it has power upon proper grounds to set aside its orders and judgments after the term. Forston v. Alford, 62 T. 576; Edwards v. Halbert, 64 T. 669; Alford v. Halbert, 74 T. 346, 12 S. W. 75; Hicks v. Oliver, 78 T. 233, 14 S. W. 575; Ruenbuhl v. Heffron (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 1028.

An order of court cannot be set aside in a proceeding commenced after the term, unless it is shown that the order was obtained by fraud, or that through accident, mistake, fraud or other unavoidable circumstances the parties interested adversely were prevented from opposing the making of said order or moving to have the same set aside at the term at which it was rendered. Hirshfeld v. Brown (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 962.

Terms of county court for probate business.—See Art. 1776 et seq.

Art. 3207. [1841] [1790] Probate jurisdiction of district court.—The district court shall have appellate jurisdiction and general control in probate matters over the county court established in each county for the probating of wills, granting letters testamentary or of administration, settling the accounts of executors and administrators, and for the transaction of business appertaining to estates, and original jurisdiction and general control over executors and administrators under such regulations as may be prescribed by law. [Const. art. 5, sec. 8.]

Jurisdiction of district court.—See, also, notes under Arts. 1706 and 1709.

When a county judge was disqualified by reason of his interest in the probate of a will from sitting as a judge, the district court exercised jurisdiction under article 5, section 16, of the constitution before the amendment of 1891. Prendergass v. Beale, 59 T. 446; Burks v. Bennett, 55 T. 237. Under the amendment a proper person is appointed. See Arts. 1737, 1738, and 1739. As to transfer of administration from the district court to the county court, see Arts. 1709, 1710.

Suit may be brought in the district court upon the bond of an executor or an administrator without having first established a devastavit in the county court. Brown v. Seaman, 65 T. 628; Francis v. Northcote, 6 T. 185; Martel v. Martel, 17 T. 392.

Though an estate be in course of administration by an executrix acting without bond under will, the district court, if the amount in controversy be sufficient, will have jurisdiction in a suit brought against the executrix by one of the legatees joined by her husband to set aside for fraud a deed made by such a legatee to the executrix. Hickman v. Stewart, 69 T. 255, 5 S. W. 833.

The district court has jurisdiction to enforce payment by survivor of the shares of parties entitled to the deceased's share of community after twelve months from the filing of bond by survivor. Guy v. Metcalf, 83 T. 37, 18 S. W. 419.

While an estate is being administered in the county (probate) court the district court has no jurisdiction to entertain proceedings by the widow and children for the selling the homestead and other interests. McCorkle v. McCorkle (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 435.

Under Const. art. 5, § 8, Art. 1706 and this article, prescribing the jurisdiction of district courts, a suit by heirs against an independent executrix to recover property, both real and personal, alleged to be of the estate of the testator and withheld from the assets of the estate under the claim that it belonged to her and her codefendants, was not within the exclusive jurisdiction of the county court, but was within the jurisdiction of the district court, to determine in whom the equitable title to the property was, and to decree a partition thereof, as well as the other property of the estate, among the owners. Japhet v. Pullen (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 441.

In view of Art. 1706, the words "control" and "general control," in this article, did not enlarge the district court's jurisdiction, which was limited to appellate jurisdiction over courts sitting in probate, to be exercised only by appeal or certiorari, and hence the district court cannot issue mandamus requiring the county court to perform a duty not merely ministerial but involving judicial discretion. Shook v. Journeay (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 406.

Art. 3208 [1842] [1791] Proceedings of probate of will, etc., void, when, etc.—If a will be probated before the death of the testator, or if administration be granted upon the estate of a living person, the proceedings shall be void; but the bond or bonds of the executor or administrator shall not be void, but may be recovered upon as other bonds.

Cited, Burdett v. Silsbee, 15 T. 617; Alexander v. Maverick, 18 T. 195, 67 Am. Dec. 693.

Death a jurisdictional fact.—A grant of administration on the estate of a living person is void. Fisk v. Norvel, 9 T. 13, 58 Am. Dec. 128; Withers v. Patterson, 27 T. 491, 86 Am. Dec. 643; Steele's Unknown Heirs v. Belding (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 592.

An administration on the estate of a person, as one who had lived and died in a certain county, and title depending on the administration, cannot be overthrown, after the lapse of 70 years, on the theory that he was the same person living, at the time of the administration, in another county, on evidence merely that a person of the same name was so living. Steele's Unknown Heirs v. Belding (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 592.

Art. 3209. [1843] [1792] In what counties wills shall be probated and letters granted.—Wills shall be admitted to probate, and letters testamentary or of administration shall be granted:

1. In the county where the deceased resided, if he had a domicile or fixed place of residence in the state.

2. If the deceased had no domicile or fixed place of residence in the state, but died in the state, then either in the county where his principal property was at the time of his death, or in the county where he died.

3. If he had no domicile or fixed place of residence in the state, and died without the limits of the state, then in any county in this state where his nearest kin may reside.

4. But if he has no kindred in this state, then in the county where his principal estate was situated at the time of his death. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 93, sec. 1.]

See Farmer v. Saunders (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 941.

Code of Louisiana.—The civil code of Louisiana in relation to the estate of a deceased person was in force in Texas in 1838. Under that code an administration of the estate of a decedent was properly granted in the county where the deceased resided at the time of his death. Delk v. Punchard, 64 T. 360.

Non-residents.—The probate courts of Texas have jurisdiction over the assets of a non-resident who, dying at his domicile, leaves credits in this state. Jones v. Jones, 15 T. 465, 65 Am. Dec. 174; Green v. Rugely, 23 T. 539; Neal v. Bartelson, 65 T. 478; Simpson v. Knox, 1 U. C. 569. The laws of the domicile direct and control the distribution of the movable property of the intestate; but when the jurisdiction of a court other than that of the domicile has been invoked in the administration, such administration is governed in its proceedings, in its beginning, progress, and close, by the laws of the country granting such letters; and administration in Texas cannot be controlled in its mode of collecting the assets of an estate by the courts of the domicile of the deceased. Simpson v. Knox, 1 U. C. 569.

Act Jan. 14, 1841, p. 53, providing that no administrator shall be appointed on the estate of any volunteer from a foreign country who may have fallen in the battles of the republic, construed. Hill v. Grant (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1016.

Mansf. Dig. § 5223, in force in Indian Territory, held ineffective to confer jurisdiction on the courts of Texas to grant letters of administration on the estate of a person injured in Indian Territory, to enable such personal representative to sue the person alleged to be liable in Texas. Cooper v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 41 C. A. 596, 93 S. W. 201.

Where, through negligence of his employer, a railroad employé was killed in New Mexico leaving a wife and children resident in Texas, and the federal employers' liability act (Act April 22, 1908, c. 149, 35 Stat. 65 [U. S. Comp. St. Supp. 1911, p. 1322]), as well as Comp. Laws N. M. 1897, § 3214, and Acts 31st Leg. (1st Ex. Sess.), c. 10, give a right of action for wrongful death to the personal representative of such deceased person for the benefit of the surviving widow or husband and children of such employé, held, that a right of action which was controlled by the federal statute was transitory, and administration might be had in Texas, although the deceased left no property subject to administration save the cause of action. Rivera v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 223.

Residence of deceased.—Where one dies in M. county and the only property which he owned at the time of his death is a judgment obtained in the district court of W. county, the probate court of the former county has jurisdiction, because the situs of a judgment follows the residence of the owner and cannot in law be regarded as situate elsewhere, and the deceased cannot be said to have owned property in W. county at the time of his death. Angier v. Jones, 28 C. A. 402, 67 S. W. 450, 451.

As this article confers on the county court of the county of decedent's residence at his death jurisdiction to probate his will, and Art. 3251, prescribing the requisites of an application, does not require that it shall state where his property is situated, an application alleging that deceased had his residence in a certain county at the time of death was sufficient to show jurisdiction in the county court of such county, and it was unnecessary to allege that he owned property in the state. White v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 874.

Determination of jurisdiction.—The court granting administration upon an estate determines the question as to its jurisdiction over the decedent's estate, and its judgment in this respect cannot be impeached in a collateral proceeding. Burdett v. Silsbee. 15 T. 604; Grande v. Chaves, 15 T. 550; Dancy v. Stricklinge, 15 T. 557, 65 Am. Dec. 179; Soye v. McCallister, 18 T. 80, 67 Am. Dec. 689; Brockenborough v. Melton, 55 T. 493; Lindsay v. Jaffray, 55 T. 626.

Erroneous conclusion of the county court as to its jurisdiction to grant administration on a decedent's estate renders the decree founded thereon voidable only. Sales v. Mundy (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 633.

Collateral attack.—See notes under Art. 3206.

Art. 3210. [1844] [1793] In case of concurrent jurisdiction of several courts.—When two or more courts have concurrent jurisdiction of an estate, the court in which application for letters testamentary or of administration thereon is first filed shall have and retain jurisdiction of such estate, to the exclusion of such other court or courts.

CHAPTER TWO

RECORD BOOKS

Article 3211. [1845] [1794] Judge's probate docket.—There shall be kept by the clerk of the county court a record book to be styled, "Judge's Probate Docket," in which shall be entered:

1. The name of each deceased person upon whose estate proceedings are had or sought to be had.

2. The name of the executor or administrator of such estate, or of the applicant for letters, as the case may be.

3. The date of the filing of the original application for the probate of a will, or for letters testamentary or of administration.

4. A minute of all orders, judgments, decrees and proceedings had in the estate, with the date thereof.

5. Each estate shall be numbered upon such docket in the order in which the proceedings therein have been commenced, and each paper filed in an estate shall be numbered with the docket number of such estate.

See United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Buhrer (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 505.

Art. 3212. [1846] [1795] Probate minutes.—Said clerk shall also keep a record book to be styled, "Probate Minutes," in which he shall enter in full all the orders, judgments, decrees and proceedings of the court, and in which shall be recorded all papers of estates required by law to be recorded.

See United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Buhrer (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 505.

Time for entry.—See Art. 3219 and notes.

All orders and decrees in probate and guardianship proceedings must be entered upon the records at the term at which they are made, and unless so entered they are nullities. Teague v. Swasey (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 460.

Art. 3213. [1847] [1796] Claim docket.—Said clerk shall also keep a record book to be styled, "Claim Docket," in which shall be entered all claims presented against an estate for approval by the court. This docket shall be ruled at proper intervals from top to bottom, with a short note of the contents at the top of each column. One or more pages shall be assigned to each estate. In the first or marginal column shall be entered the names of the claimants in the order in which their claims are filed; in the second, the amount of the claim; in the third, its date; in the fourth, when due; in the fifth, the date from which it bears interest; in the sixth, the rate of interest; in the seventh, when allowed in whole or in part by the executor or administrator; in the eighth, the amount allowed; in the ninth, the date of rejection; in the tenth, the date of filing; in the eleventh, when approved; in the twelfth, the amount approved; in the thirteenth, when disapproved; in the fourteenth, the class to which the claim belongs; in the fifteenth, when established by judgment of a court; in the sixteenth, the amount of such judgment. [Act Aug. 15, 1870, p. 169. P. D. 5673.]

Record of claims.—When a claim has been presented and entered on the claim docket, together with its approval, as required by this article, all the information in reference thereto is made of record as fully as if the order of approval had been spread on the minutes in the form of an ordinary judgment. De Cordova v. Rogers, 97 T. 60, 75 S. W. 18.

Art. 3214. [1848] [1797] Probate fee book.—Said clerk shall also keep a record book, to be styled, "Probate Fee Book," in which shall be entered each item of costs which accrue to the officers of the court, together with witness fees, if any, showing the party to whom such costs or fees are due, the date of the accrual of the same and the estate or party liable therefor.

Art. 3215. [1849] [1798] Record books shall be indexed, etc.—Each record book shall be provided by the clerk with a convenient index, and shall be open to the inspection of any person desiring to examine the same, but shall not be taken from the office of the clerk.

Art. 3216. [1850] [1799] Shall be evidence.—Said record books, or certified copies therefrom, shall be evidence in any of the courts of this state.

In general.—Probate minutes of a county held to show a sale of headright certificate of decedent. Grant v. Hill (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 1027.

Parol evidence inadmissible.—Under a statute (Early Laws, art. 3484) requiring that official oaths of executors and administrators and all inventories of estate should be copied at length in the records of the court, and which gave the same effect to certified copies of such record entries as original copies would have, the loss of the original inventory will not authorize parol evidence of its former existence and return, nor will such evidence be admitted to show that an executor qualified as such. Neither will the custodian of the records be permitted to testify that a will has been duly recorded, and that the executor returned an inventory of all property belonging to the estate. Roberts v. Connellee, 71 T. 11, 8 S. W. 626.

Art. 3217. [1851] [1800] What papers shall be recorded in probate minutes.—The following papers of an estate shall be recorded in the probate minutes:

1. All applications for the probate of wills when the probate has been granted.
2. The citation and return thereon in such cases.
3. The will and the testimony upon which the same was admitted to probate.

4. All bonds and the oaths of executors and administrators.
5. The notice to persons holding claims against an estate.
6. All inventories and appraisements and lists of claims.
7. All exhibits and accounts.
8. All reports of hiring, renting or sale.
9. All applications for the sale of real estate.
10. All reports of commissioners of partition.

Papers which have been disapproved by the court, and vouchers and all other papers not above enumerated, shall not be recorded. [P. D. 5772.]

CHAPTER THREE

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Article 3218. [1852] [1801] Decisions, etc., of court shall be rendered in open court, etc.—All decisions, orders, decrees and judgments of the county court in probate matters shall be rendered in open court, and at a regular term of such court for civil and probate business, unless in cases where it is otherwise specially provided.

Order of sale in vacation void.—An order of sale and an order of confirmation of sale in vacation, with directions to the administrator to make title, are void. Hunton v. Nichols, 55 T. 217. After the court has obtained jurisdiction its proceedings are in rem, and the orders of court are not void for want of notice. McLane v. Paschal, 47 T. 365; McGowen v. Zimpelman, 53 T. 479; Hicks v. Oliver, 78 T. 233, 14 S. W. 575; Heath v. Layne, 62 T. 686; Pelham v. Murray, 64 T. 477; Ruhl v. Kauffman, 65 T. 723; Fossett v. McMahan, 74 T. 546, 12 S. W. 324.

Terms of county court for probate business.—See Art. 1776 et seq.

Can set aside orders after term, when.—See notes under Art. 3206.

Art. 3219. [1853] [1802] And shall be entered of record.—All such decisions, orders, decrees and judgments shall be entered on the records of the court, during the term at which the same are rendered; and any such decision, order, decree or judgment shall be a nullity unless entered of record.

See, also. Art. 3212 and notes.

Applies to guardianship.—This article applies as well to guardianships as to estates of decedents. Blackwood v. Blackwood's Estate, 92 T. 478, 49 S. W. 1045.

This article applies as well to proceedings in the county court in guardianship matters as to those relating to estates of deceased persons. De Cordova v. Rogers, 97 T. 60, 75 S. W. 17.

Nullity unless recorded.—All decisions, orders, decrees and judgments not entered on the records of the court, as required by this article, are nullities. Kelsey v. Trisler, 32 C. A. 177, 74 S. W. 66. See West v. Keeton, 17 C. A. 139, 42 S. W. 1034.

In view of Arts. 4091–4096, the power to appoint a temporary guardian is conferred on the judge, while the power to pass on a contest and make a permanent appointment is vested in the court; and an order of the court appointing a permanent guardian must be made in term time and entered in the minutes, as required by Arts. 4050, 4083, and under this article and Art. 4050, the appointment is a nullity, unless so entered. Threatt v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1137.

Nunc pro tunc.—If an order sought to be entered nunc pro tunc was void for any reason no validity could be given it by having it entered nunc pro tunc in the minutes of the court. Wheeler v. Duke, 29 C. A. 20, 67 S. W. 909, 911.

Art. 3220. [1854] [1802a] Probate docket disposed of promptly.—When the probate docket is taken up, it shall be disposed of with dispatch, without an adjournment of the court for more than three days at any time; and, in case of such adjournment, the reason therefor must appear upon the minutes. [Acts 1881, p. 31.]

Art. 3221. [1855] [1803] No trial by jury in probate matters.—There shall be no trial by jury in probate matters, except when expressly provided by law. [P. D. 5481.]

Entitled to jury in district court.—There is no constitutional objection to the refusal of the jury in a trial in the probate court, but when a contestation arising upon an application for the probate of a will begun in the county court has been transferred to the district court because of the disqualification of the judge of the county court, a party thereto on request in the district court is entitled to a trial by jury. Cockrill v. Cox, 65 T. 669.

In the county court in probate matters no jury trial is allowed except when expressly provided by law. But after a matter has been transferred to the district court by appeal or otherwise the parties become entitled to trial by jury. Stone v. Byars, 73 S. W. 1088, 32 C. A. 154.

A jury trial in a contest over the granting of letters of administration must be allowed in the district court upon demand of a party under Const. art. 5, § 10. Tolle v. Tolle, 101 T. 33, 104 S. W. 1049.

Art. 3222. [1856] [1804] Duty of clerk to file papers, etc.—The clerk of the county court shall receive and file all applications, complaints, petitions and all other papers permitted or required by law to be filed in said court in estates of decedents, and shall indorse on each paper the date when it was filed, and sign his name officially to such indorsement, and shall also place thereon the docket number of the estate to which it belongs.

Art. 3223. [1857] [1805] Clerk shall issue all notices, etc.—Said clerk shall issue all necessary notices, citations, writs and process from said court in probate matters without any order from the county judge, unless such order is required by some provision of this title. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 129, sec. 138.]

Art. 3224. [1858] [1806] Power of court to attach and imprison executor, etc.—The county judge shall have power to enforce obedience to all his lawful orders against executors and administrators, by attachment and imprisonment, but no such imprisonment shall exceed three days for any one offense, except in the case provided for in the succeeding article. [Id. p. 129, sec. 135.]

Art. 3225. [1859] [1807] Person having will, etc., may be attached, etc.—When complaint shall be made in writing to any county judge that any person has the last will of any testator or testatrix, or any papers belonging to the estate of a testator or intestate, said county judge shall cause said person to be cited to appear before him, either in term time or vacation, and show cause why he should not deliver such will to the court for probate, or why he should not deliver such papers to the executor or administrator; and upon the return of such citation served, unless such will or papers are so delivered or good cause be shown to the court for not delivering the same, the county judge, if satisfied that such person had such will or papers at the time of the complaint being filed, may cause him to be arrested and imprisoned until he shall so deliver them. [Id. p. 128, sec. 126.]

May issue to any county.—A person residing in any county within the state can be attached and compelled to appear under this article. Pierpont v. Threlkeld, 13 T. 244.

Art. 3226. [1860] [1808] Executions in probate matters.—Executions issued from the county court in probate matters shall be directed to the sheriff or any constable of a county, shall be made returnable in sixty days, and shall be tested and signed by the clerk officially and sealed with the seal of the court; and all proceedings under such executions shall be governed by the laws regulating proceedings under executions issued from the district court in so far as the same may be applicable. [Id. p. 129, sec. 135.]

Art. 3227. [1861] [1809] County judge may enforce orders, etc., of previous court.—The county judge shall have the same power to enforce all orders, decrees and judgments heretofore made and rendered in the probate court of his county, as if such orders, decrees or judgments had been made and rendered under the provisions of this title. [Id. p. 130, sec. 140.]

Art. 3228. [1862] [1810] Requisites of citation in probate matters.—All citations in probate matters shall be in writing, dated and signed by the clerk officially, and sealed with the seal of the court, and shall state substantially the nature of the proceeding which the party to be cited is called upon to answer, and the time when, and place where, such party is required to appear.

Sufficiency of citation.—See Art. 1852 and notes.

A citation is sufficient which advises the party to whom it is directed of the nature of the proceeding against him. It is not required that it shall state fully the grounds on which relief is sought. Perkins v. Wood, 63 T. 396.

Art. 3229. [1863] [1811] Service of citation.—A citation is served either by posting, by delivery in person, or by publication, and, when the mode of service is not expressly provided by law, it must be served upon the party to be cited in person, by delivering to him a true copy of such citation at least ten days, exclusive of the day of service, before the day upon which he is required to appear and answer.

Art. 3230. [1864] [1812] Service by posting.—When citation is required to be posted, it means for ten days, exclusive of the day of posting, before the day upon which the party is required to appear and answer, at three of the most public places in the county, one of which shall be at the court house door, and no two of which shall be in the same city or town, unless the contrary be expressed by the law which provides for such citation. [P. D. 5475.]

Art. 3231. [1865] [1813] Mode of posting citation and return of same.—When a citation is required to be posted, the clerk shall place the original citation, together with three copies thereof, in the hands of the sheriff or any constable of the proper county, who shall post such copies as required by the preceding article, and shall return the original to the clerk, stating in a written return thereon the time when, and the place where, he posted such copies. [Id.]

Art. 3232. [1866] [1814] Citation by publication.—In all cases where it is necessary to cite any person by publication, and the manner of citing such person is not otherwise provided for, the citation by publication shall be made in like manner as in suits in the district court. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 129, sec. 137.]

Art. 3233. [1867] [1815] Rights, etc., of executors, etc., regulated by common law.—The rights, powers and duties of executors and administrators shall be governed by the principles of the common law, when the same do not conflict with any of the provisions of the statutes of this state. [Id. p. 130, sec. 141.]

Powers—Construction for court.—See note under Art. 1971-1.

—— To mortgage.—The common-law rule that the power of an executor to sell includes the power to mortgage is not changed by this article. Stevenson v. Roberts, 25 C. A. 577, 64 S. W. 234, 235.

See Art. 3235.

—— Compromise debts.—See Art. 3354.

At common law executors and administrators could without an order of court compromise or compound debts due to the estate and execute releases therefor, which if valid between individuals would be binding upon the estate. But this right is taken away by

Art. 3354, and in order to bind the estate by a compromise or release an order of court must first be obtained. Browne v. Fidelity & Deposit Co., 98 T. 55, 80 S. W. 594.

—— Cannot continue partnership.—In the absence of any provision in the partnership agreement for the continuance of the business (in which the deceased was a partner) after the death of one of the partners, and in the absence of any provision in the will of the deceased partner empowering his executor to continue the business after his death, the executor has no authority to carry on the business and thereby bind the estate by his acts in carrying on the business. Art. 3351 does not give him this right, and there is no other statute that contravenes the common law on this subject. Altgelt v. Alamo Nat. Bank, 98 T. 252, 83 S. W. 9.

—— Non-delegable.—An administrator held not authorized to delegate to an agent matters of discretion. Rice v. Conwill, 35 C. A. 341, 80 S. W. 393.

—— Cannot ratify.—An administrator cannot ratify an act done by his agent which the administrator himself had no authority to do. Rice v. Conwill, 35 C. A. 341, 80 S. W. 393.

Purchase of property.—A trustee or executor who purchases the estate from the cestui que trust or heir must pay therefor a full, fair and adequate consideration, and if there be any concealment as to the real value of the property, or a false or fraudulent representation as to the value thereof, the sale will be set aside. Hickman v. Stewart, 69 T. 255, 5 S. W. 833.

An administrator of a deceased vendor may purchase from the vendee the land conveyed to him. Davis v. Ragland, 42 C. A. 400, 93 S. W. 1099.

Acts of one co-executor, etc., valid.—See Art. 3356.

Powers of independent executors.—See Art. 3362.

Art. 3234. [1868] [1816] Depositions and rules of evidence.—In all proceedings in the county court, arising under the provisions of this title, the depositions of witnesses may be taken and read in evidence under the same regulations and rules as in the district court; and all laws in relation to witnesses and evidence which govern in the district court shall apply to proceedings in the county court, in so far as the same are applicable. [Id. p. 129, sec. 136.]

Art. 3235. [1869] [1817] In whom property vests upon death of testator or intestate.—When a person dies, leaving a lawful will, all of his estate devised or bequeathed by such will shall vest immediately in the devisees or legatees; and all the estate of such person, not devised or bequeathed, shall vest immediately in his heirs at law; but all of such estate, whether devised or bequeathed or not, except such as may be exempted by law from the payment of debts, shall still be liable and subject in their hands to the payment of the debts of such testator or intestate; and, whenever a person dies intestate, all of his estate shall vest immediately in his heirs at law, but with the exceptions aforesaid shall still be liable and subject in their hands to the payment of the debts of the intestate; but, upon the issuance of letters testamentary or of administration upon any such estate, the executor or administrator shall have the right to the possession of the estate as it existed at the death of the testator or intestate, with the exception aforesaid; and it shall be the duty of such executor or administrator to recover possession of and hold such estate in trust to be disposed of in accordance with law. [Id. p. 127, sec. 125.]

See Hughes v. Mulanax, 105 T. 576, 153 S. W. 299; Gibson v. Oppenheimer (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 694.

Title vests in devisees, etc., and heirs.—On the death of a mother, one-half of the community property of herself and husband vested in the children, irrespective of whether the husband administered regularly on his wife's estate or took charge as community administrator and survivor. Belt v. Cetti, 100 T. 92, 93 S. W. 1000.

Where there was nothing in a will bequeathing a note to indicate that the executor, who was the guardian of a legatee, was to do more than pay the debts and make a distribution among the beneficiaries and control the portion bequeathed to the legatee until he became of age, a written acknowledgment by the maker of the note that the debt was just, due, and unpaid, made after the death of testator, was not a promise to the executor or guardian vesting in him the title to the debt, but was a revival of the old obligation and inured to the legatee, since, under this article, property left by a testator vests immediately in the legatees, and an action by the legatee brought within two years after he attained full age was not barred by limitations, though more than four years had elapsed since the acknowledgment. Melton v. Beasley, 56 C. A. 537, 121 S. W. 574.

A vendor's executor suing to cancel a deed for fraud need show no title other than that conveyed. Rankin v. Rankin (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 392.

Right of possession.—Under the statutes of this state the administrator is entitled to the possession of the entire estate, real as well as personal.

An administrator is not entitled to the possession of property of which the decedent was not in possession and not entitled to possession at time of his death. Where one holds property of deceased as a pledge, the administrator must discharge the lien before he can recover possession of the property pledged. Fulton v. National Bank of Denison, 26 C. A. 115, 62 S. W. 86.

When a decedent during his lifetime purchased and paid for land and had the deed made to his son, who afterwards became the administrator of his estate and inventoried the land as property of the estate, the son may, in his capacity of administrator, maintain trespass to try title for its recovery, under a petition stating the facts and alleging a resulting trust in favor of the deceased father. Such a petition sets up an equitable cause of action good on demurrer. Burdett v. Haley, 51 T. 540.

The administrator is the proper person to sue for and recover land from those adversely holding it, there being unpaid creditors. McCelvey v. McCelvey, 15 C. A. 105, 38 S. W. 473.

While it is true that upon the death of a party the title to his property vests in his heirs or devisees under his will, yet this title is subject to the rights of the administrator or executor to subject the property to payment of debts of deceased and expenses of administration. Lass v. Seidel, 95 T. 442, 66 S. W. 872.

A will is not such a muniment of title as is required by the law of registration to be recorded in the record of deeds. The title does not vest in the executor, but the possession held by him is in trust for the devisees under the will and his possession cannot be considered by a break in the possession for it is the possession of the devisee and in no sense adverse. McLavy v. Jones, 31 C. A. 354, 72 S. W. 407.

An administrator can recover from an heir money belonging to the estate. Manchester v. Bursey, 41 C. A. 271, 91 S. W. 817.

The appointment of a guardian of minor heirs did not ipso facto oust the administrator of decedent's estate in view of this article; the appointment of the guardian, who was an aunt of the heirs, being advisable so that they could reside with her at the homestead. Wilkin v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1145.

—— Before issuance of letters.—One named as executor in the will has no title to or authority over the estate until the will is probated and he qualifies as directed by the statute. He is therefore not responsible for property stolen before his appointment. Roberts v. Stuart, 80 T. 379, 15 S. W. 1108.

Surviving partner has right of possession.—By the common law the death of one partner dissolves the partnership and terminates the powers of the survivors as partners; but the law imposes upon the survivors the duty to close up the business and pay the debts of the partnership, accounting to the personal representatives or heirs of the deceased partner for their interest in what shall remain after paying the debts, for which purpose the surviving partner holds the assets as a trustee, and to enable him to perform the trust imposed, and gives him the right and makes it his duty to take exclusive possession of the assets and administer them for the purposes before stated. Altgelt v. Alamo Nat. Bank, 98 T. 252, 83 S. W. 9.

For the purpose of closing up the firm business, the surviving partner has the right of possession as against the heirs or representatives of the deceased partner. Shivel & Stewart v. Greer Bros. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 207.

Tenants in common.—One holding the title of one of the heirs of a deceased ancestor is a tenant in common with the other heirs, and is not a mere trespasser so as to authorize some of the heirs to recover from him. Hess v. Webb (Civ. App.) 113 S. W. 618.

Upon the death of one of a firm, the other member became tenant in common of firm land with the heirs of the deceased partner. Isbell v. Southworth (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 689.

Where the owner of a tract of 127 acres conveyed a lot therein, his daughter, who inherited the part not conveyed, was not a tenant in common with the grantee, and hence a paramount title acquired by her did not inure to the benefit of the grantee. Wagner v. Geiselman (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 524.

"Executor" includes "independent executor."—Except in those articles which relate to acts to be done in the settlement of an estate the term "executors" as used in our statutes includes independent as well as other executors. Hence when the property involved passes into the hands of an independent executor he receives it in trust for the benefit of creditors and devisees; and when the estate is insolvent one creditor cannot by force of Art. 3363 defeat the rights of other beneficiaries in the trust by having the entire property sold under execution and applied to the payment of his debt. The right of a creditor under Art. 3363 to have property which by this article is declared a trust fund subjected to the payment of his debt to the exclusion of other creditors is inconsistent with and subversive of the rights of other beneficiaries in the trust. And when the estate is insolvent Art. 3363 must yield and the judgment creditor denied the right to sell the property under execution and apply it to his own debt to the exclusion of other creditors. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Bell, 31 C. A. 124, 71 S. W. 572.

Liability of devisees, heirs, etc., for debts—Extent of.—An estate vests in the heir incumbered with the debts and obligations of the ancestor. The heir may before partition and distribution sell to another an interest in the estate, and a purchaser from him will be protected, unless the part so sold is required to pay the debts of the ancestor. Chubb v. Johnson, 11 T. 469; Jones v. Jones, 15 T. 143; Burleson v. Burleson, 28 T. 383; Morris v. Halbert, 36 T. 19; Wyatt v. McLane, 37 T. 311; Wilson v. Helms, 59 T. 680. And the rule is the same as to grants of land made after the death of the ancestor in discharge of an obligation created prior to his death. But if a grant from the state to the heir is a mere gratuity, although based upon the meritorious services of the ancestor, it is not subject to his debts. Warnell v. Finch, 15 T. 163; Soye v. Maverick, 18 T. 101; Fishback v. Young, 19 T. 515; Allen v. Clark, 21 T. 406; Babb v. Carroll, 21 T. 765; Goldsmith v. Herndon, 33 T. 707; Marks v. Hill, 46 T. 345; Johnson v. Newman, 43 T. 628; Neal v. Bartleson, 65 T. 478.

The responsibility of an heir for the debt or covenant of his ancestor is measured by the ancestor's estate actually received by him. Yancy v. Batte, 48 T. 46; Webster v. Willis, 56 T. 468.

In a suit against an heir on a debt of the ancestor, the judgment is limited to the value of the assets received by him from such ancestor. Webster v. Willis, 56 T. 468.

A judgment against an heir is in personam to the extent of the property received by him. But the creditor has no lien upon the property of the ancestor in the possession of the heir, and it is an error to order the sale of specific property inherited from an ancestor to satisfy such a judgment. Mayes v. Jones, 62 T. 365; State v. Llewellyn, 25 T. 799; Webster v. Willis, 56 T. 468; Wyatt v. McLane, 37 T. 311; Giddings v. Steele, 28 T. 732, 91 Am. Dec. 336. See Evans v. Oakley, 2 T. 182; Moore v. Morse, 2 T. 400; McIntyre v. Chappell, 4 T. 187; Lacy v. Williams, 8 T. 182; Fisk v. Norvel, 9 T. 13, 58 Am. Dec. 128; Finch v. Edmonson, 9 T. 504; Hurt v. Horton, 12 T. 285; McMahan v. Rice, 16 T. 335; Cochran v. Thomson, 18 T. 652; Sanders v. Deverieux, 25 T. Sup. 1; Rogers v. Kennard, 54 T. 30.

A devisee and legatee is liable to the creditors of the decedent to the extent of assets received. Kauffman v. Wooters, 79 T. 205, 13 S. W. 549.

A sole devisee and legatee of property is liable to the creditors of the testator to the extent of the value of the assets so received. Kauffman v. Wooters, 79 T. 205, 13 S. W. 549. See Webster v. Willis, 56 T. 468; Mayes v. Jones, 62 T. 365; Schmidtke v. Miller, 71 T. 103, 8 S. W. 638; Lee v. Turner, 71 T. 266, 9 S. W. 149.

As to the liability of an heir for the debts of his ancestor, see Low v. Felton, 84 T. 378, 19 S. W. 693.

It was held that the heirs of a deceased copurchaser could not claim the land without recognizing the equity the surviving purchaser had acquired by having paid the price. Culmore v. Medlenka (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 676.

A creditor cannot have personal judgment against heirs and devisees but the property in their hands shall be liable for decedent's debts. Blinn v. McDonald, 92 T. 604, 46 S. W. 787.

On death of one who has converted property, recovery can be had of his heirs, if his property passed without administration and is liable for his debts, or is the property converted. Middleton v. Pipkin (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 240.

Attorney's fees paid by a wife in resisting the contest of her husband's will cannot be charged against intestate's real estate passing to the heirs of the husband. Gilroy v. Richards, 26 C. A. 355, 63 S. W. 664.

Next of kin, on recovering an interest in land, held properly chargeable with the payment of a sum with which the same was burdened. Montgomery v. Montgomery (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 1145.

Distributees of the estate of a warrantor of title held liable for the payment of a judgment for breach of such warranty in an amount less than the sum distributed. Young v. Moore (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 548.

An heir who, pending a suit for partition, conveys all his interest in the real estate of the ancestor to another heir who holds a vendor's lien note executed by the ancestor is thereby relieved from liability by reason of the lien on his pro rata share in the premises. Thomas v. Thomas (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1164.

An heir who paid all he owed on a vendor's lien note executed by his ancestor, by virtue of his assumption to pay a half thereof on the ancestor's conveying to him a part of the premises subject to the lien, is not personally liable on a claim of the creditor of the ancestor for services rendered the ancestor. Id.

On the death of one of three joint mortgagors, the indebtedness remained a claim against decedent's estate; his property descending to his heirs burdened with that debt and the mortgage given to secure its payment. Newton v. Easterwood (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 646.

—— What law governs.—Liability of heirs and devisees for debts of decedent should be governed by the law in force at the time they actually receive the property. Blinn v. McDonald, 92 T. 604, 46 S. W. 787.

—— "Exempt property" not liable.—See Art. 3413 et seq.

Under this article and Arts. 3413, 3422, 3427 and 3428, the homestead in insolvent estates descends as other property, subject to use by surviving widow or minor children as provided, and is not liable for the debts of the deceased head of the family. Zwerneman v. Von Rosenberg, 76 T. 522, 13 S. W. 485. And note discussion of the effect of the several statutes of descent of exempt property.

It is only that portion of the estate which the court is required to set aside for the widow and minor children and unmarried daughters remaining with the family of deceased, which is to be considered as exempt within the provisions of this article. Wilkins v. Briggs, 48 C. A. 596, 107 S. W. 139.

Where an ancestor and his widow both died leaving an insolvent estate, and a homestead, and at the time of the widow's death a divorced daughter was residing on the homestead with the widow as a member of the family, together with certain grandchildren, such divorced daughter was an "unmarried daughter" within the statute, so that the homestead was not subject to the debts of the widow's general creditors. Anderson v. McGee (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1040.

Heirs may sue to recover property, when.—See Art. 1886 and notes.

In the following cases it has been held that the heirs may sue: Evans v. Oakley, 2 T. 182; Moore v. Morse, 2 T. 400; McIntyre v. Chappell, 4 T. 187; Easterling v. Blythe, 7 T. 210, 56 Am. Dec. 45; Lacy v. Williams, 8 T. 182; Bufford v. Holliman, 10 T. 560, 60 Am. Dec. 223; Patton v. Gregory, 21 T. 513; Sossaman v. Powell, 21 T. 664; Giddings v. Steele, 28 T. 732, 91 Am. Dec. 336; Boggess v. Brownson, 59 T. 417.

When there is no administration on the estate of a deceased person, and but one debt against the estate, and the heirs of such deceased person, by an agreement amongst themselves, partition and distribute the estate without satisfying the debt, the party in whose favor such debt is due, and which is a lien upon land sold to the ancestor of such heirs, may sue for the debt and to foreclose the lien, making the heirs defendants, without administration on the estate of their ancestor. Patterson v. Allen, 50 T. 23.

The general rule is that while administration is pending on an estate a suit for the recovery of the property of the estate should be brought by the administrator. To this rule are the following exceptions: First, when the administrator cannot or will not act for the protection of those beneficially interested. Second, when land adversely possessed by those claiming under the administrator through deeds made in his individual and representative capacity is sued for by heirs of those claiming under them. Rogers v. Kennard, 54 T. 30.

The heirs of an intestate in order to sue for a claim for money due their ancestor must prove some fact bringing them within one of the exceptions to the rule; as, lapse of more than four years since the intestate's death and no administration, or when administration has been closed and there are no debts against the estate. Similar proofs must be made concerning the estate, when it is proposed to bring suit against the heirs on the grounds of assets received. Webster v. Willis, 56 T. 468.

Plaintiffs alleging that they are all the heirs of decedent, that there was no administration granted and none necessary, and that there was no property other than the notes sued on, and no debts, are entitled to maintain the action. Hynes v. Winston (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1069.

One heir, who claimed to have acquired the title of another to certain land at sheriff's sale, and whose claim was disputed, could maintain an action in the district court to quiet title, though administration was still pending. Altgelt v. McManus, 30 C. A. 382, 70 S. W. 460.

Where a policy is payable to the executors, administrators and assigns of the insured, in the absence of administration and necessity therefor, the heirs of the insured are the proper parties to bring suit upon the policy when the insurance company refuses payment. Sun Life Ins. Co. of America v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 603.

Heir held warranted in bringing suit to recover land of an estate in danger of loss by adverse possession. Baker v. Hamblen (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 362.

The general rule that a suit to recover property of the estate of a decedent must be brought by the administrator is subject to the exception that, where there is no administrator and no necessity therefor, suit may be brought by the heirs. Rylie v. Stammire (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 626; Goldstein v. Susholtz, 46 C. A. 582, 105 S. W. 219.

—— Widow, when.—Where three years had elapsed since the death of an intestate, although the estate was alleged to have been insolvent, and during which time no one had applied for administration thereof, the surviving widow was authorized to bring an action of debt on a judgment, the community property of herself and husband, rendered nearly seven years before his death. Independent of the special facts of the case, the wife as the survivor of the community could bring suit in her own name to preserve a judgment rendered in the lifetime of her deceased husband, against which limitation was nearly complete. Walker v. Abercrombie, 61 T. 69.

The widow and children of an insured can maintain action on his life insurance policy; the petition averring that there were no debts and no administration. Sun Life Ins. Co. v. Phillips (Civ. App.) 70 S. W. 603.

—— May be sued, when.—When an administration cannot be granted the remedy of a creditor is by suit against the heirs. Loyd v. Mason, 38 T. 212; Murchison v. Warren, 50 T. 27.

Where four years have not elapsed, and where there is only one debt against the estate, and no necessity for administration, and the property has been divided amongst the heirs, the creditor can bring suit directly against them, and each heir is liable to the extent of the estate received by him. Buchanan v. Thompson, 4 C. A. 236, 23 S. W. 328.

Where there were no other debts of deceased's estate, court held to have jurisdiction to foreclose mortgage against heirs, though will had been proved. Floyd v. Watkins, 34 C. A. 3, 79 S. W. 612.

Art. 3236. [1870] [1818] Any person interested in an estate may file opposition, etc.—Any person interested in an estate may, at any time before any application, petition, exhibit, account, claim or other proceeding is decided upon by the court, file opposition thereto in writing, and shall be entitled to process for witnesses and evidence, and to be heard upon such opposition as in other suits.

See Shook v. Journeay (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 406.

"Person interested."—The expression "person interested" in this article includes only one entitled to share in the estate or its proceeds, as husband, wife, legatee, next of kin, heir, devisee, assignee, grantee or otherwise, except as a creditor, and would not include one who claimed to have purchased all of testatrix's interest in the land sought to be bequeathed by her, so that such person could not contest testatrix's will. Pena Y Vidaurri's Estate v. Bruni (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 315.

Distributees.—Persons who are distributees of an estate are parties to the administration, and are bound by the orders of the probate court in the administration. Cooper v. Loughlin, 75 T. 524, 13 S. W. 37.

Art. 3237. [1871] [1819] Duty of county judge to call dockets, etc.—It shall be the duty of the county judge, at each regular term of his court for probate business, to call the estates in their regular order upon his docket, and also to call the claim docket, and to make such orders as may be necessary. It shall also be his duty to see that executors, administrators and officers perform the duties enjoined upon them by law in all matters pertaining to such estates.

Art. 3238. [1872] [1820] Meaning of "term of court," "docket," and "minutes."—When a term of the county court is mentioned in this title, a regular term of said court for probate business is meant, and when the word, "docket," is used, the probate docket is meant, and when the word, "minutes," is used, the probate minutes are meant.

Art. 3239. [1873] [1821] Duty of the judge to sign the minutes, etc.—It shall be the duty of the county judge, whenever he enters an order upon the minutes in vacation, to date and sign the same officially; and, at the close of each term of his court, he shall in open court sign the minutes of such term officially, after ascertaining that all orders, judgments, decrees and proceedings of the term have been properly entered, and that all papers required to be recorded therein have been so recorded.

Art. 3240. [1874] [1822] Attachment for property of estate may be issued, when.—Whenever complaint in writing, under oath, shall be made to the county judge, by any person interested in the estate of a decedent, that the executor or administrator of such estate is about to remove said estate, or any part thereof, beyond the limits of this state, such judge shall have power to order a writ to issue, directed to the sheriff or any constable of any county in the state, commanding him to seize such estate, or any part thereof, and hold the same subject to such further orders as such judge may make on such complaint; provided, that no such writ shall issue, unless the complainant shall give bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, in such sum as the said judge may require, payable to the executor or administrator of such estate, conditioned for the payment of all damages and costs that may be recovered for the wrongful suing out of such writ. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 129, sec. 139.]

Art. 3241. [1875] [1822a] Annual exhibits required; final settlement, when.—Executors and administrators shall be required to make annual exhibits under oath, fully showing the condition of the estate; they shall be required to make final settlement of the estates they represent within three years from the grant of letters, unless the time be extended by the court after satisfactory showing being made under oath; and, upon failure in either case, shall be removed as provided in article 3394. [Acts 1881, p. 31.]

Art. 3242. [1876] [1823] Twenty days notice of filing exhibit shall be given, etc.—All exhibits made by executors or administrators, showing a list of claims allowed and approved, or established against the estate they represent, or showing the condition of said estate, and an account of the moneys received and of the moneys paid out on account of said estate, returned to the court before the filing of the account for final settlement of said estate, shall be filed with the clerk, unless otherwise specially provided in this title. Notice of such filing shall be posted on the court house door of the county for which such court is held; and no other action shall be had thereon until the expiration of at least twenty days from the posting of said notice, after which time the county judge shall, in term time, examine said exhibit, and, if the same be found to be correct, render judgment of approval thereon and order said exhibit to be recorded. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 109, sec. 68.]

"Exhibit" or "final account."—Where an account is indorsed "final account," but it is not made up as a final account is required to be, and the order approving the same is that required in approving an annual exhibit, it will be held that the court did not treat the account as a final account and the order approving same is not res adjudicata. Thomas v. Hawpe, 35 C. A. 311, 80 S. W. 131.

Art. 3243. [1877] [1824] When an executor or administrator shall be deemed to have qualified.—An executor or administrator shall be deemed to have duly qualified when he shall have taken the oath required by law, and when he shall have given the bond required by law, and when said bond has been approved and filed. In case of an executor where no bond is required, he shall be deemed to have been duly qualified when he shall have taken the oath required by law.

See Journeay v. Shook, 105 T. 551, 152 S. W. 809.

Art. 3244. [1887] [1825] Depositions and rules of evidence.—In all proceedings in the county court arising under the provisions of this title, the depositions of witnesses may be taken and read in evidence, under the same rules and regulations as in the district court, and all laws in relation to witnesses and evidence which govern the district court shall apply to all proceedings in the county court, under the provisions of this title so far as they are applicable.

Art. 3245. [1879] [1826] Titles made by executor, etc., valid although, etc.—When an executor or administrator, legally qualified as such, has performed any acts as such executor or administrator in conformity with his authority and with law, such acts shall continue to be valid to all intents and purposes, so far as regards the rights of innocent purchasers of any of the property of the estate from such executor or administrator, for a valuable consideration, in good faith, and without notice of any illegality in the title to the same, notwithstanding such acts or the authority under which they were performed may afterward be set aside, annulled and declared invalid.

Deed valid, though proceedings illegal.—The illegality in the proceedings in the administration of a community estate by the survivor in community does not affect the deed of the administratrix made to a purchaser for value who had no notice of the illegality in the proceedings. Green v. White, 18 C. A. 509, 45 S. W. 389.

Rights and liabilities of purchasers.—A purchaser of land sold under an order enforcing a lien takes title as against a purchaser of such property at a sheriff's sale under a personal judgment against the distributee, and in favor of the creditor who might have enforced his lien against such property but did not do so. Bradshaw v. House, 43 T. 143.

The burden is on purchaser of land from independent executor to show a debt authorizing the sale of the land. Freeman v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 835.

A purchaser of a trustee having power to sell need not see that the price is properly applied. Whatley v. Oglesby (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 44.

The failure of a record to show the appointment of an administrator held not sufficient, under the evidence, to defeat a title under a sale by the administrator. Moseley v. Vander Stucken, 26 C. A. 290, 62 S. W. 1103.

Where a will does not authorize the independent executrix to sell real estate, a purchaser from her has the burden of proving that at the time of the sale such conditions existed as would authorize the probate court to order a sale. Haring v. Shelton, 103 T. 10, 122 S. W. 13.

Where the will gave the executors power to mortgage, sell, or otherwise dispose of any or all of the property, and prescribed the use to be made of the proceeds, the executors could mortgage or sell the land of the estate, irrespective of the existence of debts or the necessities of the heirs, so that the mortgagee would not be bound to see that the executors appropriated the loan, as provided in the will, if he acted in good faith. Tomlinson v. H. P. Drought & Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 262.

Bona fide purchasers.—In matters that do not go to the jurisdiction, a purchaser at an administrator's sale is not bound to look beyond the decree of the court. George v. Watson, 19 T. 354. When a record of the proceedings of the probate court discloses that the court in ordering the sale of land of an estate has transcended its powers under the statute, the purchaser is chargeable with notice thereof; but he is not bound to look beyond the application for the sale, the sale and exhibits, and the order of sale. McNally v. Haynes, 59 T. 583.

A purchaser at administration sale is charged with notice of the application for the sale, the order of sale and the regularity of the proceedings at the sale. Beyond this he is not bound to look. If the application for the sale discloses that the purposes and objects for which the sale is asked are wholly foreign to that for which the court is authorized to make the order, then the purchaser is chargeable with notice of the vice in the sale and would acquire no title under it. McNally v. Haynes, 59 T. 583.

In this connection see Fisher v. Wood, 65 T. 199. Where a purchase has been made fraudulently by a nominal purchaser for the benefit of the administrator, subsequent purchasers for value and without notice are not affected by the fraud; and the record of the conveyance between the administrator and the nominal purchaser is not sufficient to constitute a notice of the fraud. Wells v. Polk, 36 T. 120.

Where the order of sale, report of sale and deed purport to sell and convey "all the right, title and interest in and to" certain land, the purchaser does not take a mere chance of title; he is not charged with notice that he is buying a doubtful title, and that he cannot rely upon the apparent title as disclosed by conveyances on record. White v. Frank, 91 T. 66, 40 S. W. 962.

A purchaser from an executor is charged with absolute notice of any want of power in the executor to make the sale. Coy v. Gaye (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 441.

A purchaser of land, the record title to which was in a married woman, who predeceased her husband, from the husband's administrator, held not a purchaser in good faith. Vivion v. Nicholson, 54 C. A. 43, 116 S. W. 386.

A purchaser at an executor's sale of land held to be a purchaser for value. Jackson v. Berliner (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1160.

A person may be an innocent purchaser at an administrator's or executor's sale. Id.

Possession of relatives of a decedent held not to be notice to a purchaser at administration sale to pay debts of a deed to them of land made just before his death. Id.

Where the court, on an application by an executor, made an order of sale and confirmed it, a purchaser could assume that the order was properly made. Daimwood v. Driscoll (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 621.

Caveat emptor.—The rule of caveat emptor applies to purchasers at administrators' sales, and extends to every matter, including title, in reference to which the purchaser reasonably has the means of exercising his judgment. Walton v. Reager, 20 T. 103; Ward v. Williams, 45 T. 617; Medlin v. Wilkins, 60 T. 409. This rule does not apply where one party to the contract enters into it by reason of the false and fraudulent representations of the other, who is supposed to possess superior means of information. Mitchell v. Zimmerman, 4 T. 75, 51 Am. Dec. 717; Crayton v. Munger, 9 T. 285; Able v. Chandler, 12 T. 88, 62 Am. Dec. 518; Coombs v. Lane, 17 T. 280. The doctrine of caveat emptor does not apply in favor of a secret trust which, by the use of ordinary diligence, could not have been ascertained. Cheveral v. Bowman, 2 App. C. C. § 114; Love v. Berry, 22 T. 371; Taylor v. Harrison, 47 T. 459, 26 Am. Rep. 304; Holmes v. Johns, 56 T. 41.

The rule of caveat emptor applies to administrators' sales, and an agreement of the administrator to make good to purchaser any loss he may sustain by reason of defect in title is not fraudulent because the purchaser is bound to know that the administrator has no power to bind the estate so to do. Club Land & Cattle Co. v. Dallas County, 26 C. A. 449, 64 S. W. 875.

The rule of caveat emptor applies to a purchaser from an independent executor as well as from an ordinary executor. Roberts v. Holland (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 810.

Rights of purchaser on avoidance of sale.—As to the equities resulting from the purchase of land illegally sold, see Halsey v. Jones, 25 S. W. 696, 86 T. 488.

Where lands of a decedent are illegally sold, his heirs will not be required to pay before recovering the lands, where it is not shown that the estate ever had the benefit from the price of the lands. Fishback v. Page, 17 C. A. 183, 43 S. W. 317.

A purported conveyance by an administrator by order of court and receipt of money under intestate's bond for a deed held to raise an equity in the grantee, though the administrator lacked authority and the contract to convey was prohibited. Maxson v. Jennings, 19 C. A. 700, 48 S. W. 781.

Where an administrator's deed was annulled, and an heir was adjudged his share of the property, held that he had a lien on the rest for the amount due him for rents. Kalteyer v. Wipff (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1055.

Where land belonging to an estate is sold under a void order of court, and the money received has been used to pay charges against the estate, on recovery of the land by the heirs, they will be obliged to pay the amount received, which is chargeable against their portion with interest thereon from the time at which the amount was applied in payment of charges. Millican v. McNeill, 102 T. 189, 114 S. W. 106, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 60, 132 Am. St. Rep. 863, 20 Ann. Cas. 74; Schnabel v. McNeill, 102 T. 196, 114 S. W. 108.

Land belonging to minor heirs, though benefited by an illegal sale of other property in which they were interested, held not subject to an equitable lien in favor of the purchaser for the price, on the sale being vacated. Vivion v. Nicholson, 54 C. A. 43, 116 S. W. 386.

Art. 3246. [1879a] Sales by foreign executors validated.—All sales of real estate within this state, which have been heretofore made by executors of wills, which, prior to such sales, had been probated according to the laws of another state of the United States, having jurisdiction, and which wills possessed the requisites to pass title to real estate required by the statutes of this state, where such wills conferred upon the executors the power to sell the real estate so sold, independent of the probate court, and where such sales would have been valid and effectual to pass the title to such real estate had the wills been probated in this state, be and the same are hereby validated; provided, however, that the validation of such sales shall not defeat the rights of creditors of the testators of such wills, nor affect the title of purchasers for value from the heirs or devisees of the testators of such wills, where such purchases were made prior to the enactment hereof. [Acts 1893, p. 102.]

Construed.—This article does not in the absence of proof of administration and order of sale by a probate court, validate a deed made by an executor under such a will, when the will contains no provision exempting testator's estate from administration by the probate court and grants no power to the executor to sell the property described therein. League v. Williamson, 33 C. A. 647, 77 S. W. 436.

CHAPTER FOUR

APPLICATIONS FOR THE PROBATE OF WILLS AND FOR LETTERS

Article 3247. [1880] [1827] Application for letters must be filed within four years after death of testator, or intestate, exception.—All applications for the grant of letters testamentary or of administration upon an estate must be filed within four years after the death of the testator or intestate; and, if four years have elapsed between the death of such testator or intestate and the filing of such application, such application shall be refused and dismissed; provided, that this article shall not apply to citizens of this state who have suffered losses by Indian depredations, or by the occupation or taking of their property by troops enlisted in, or belonging to, the United States army, and have died since such loss, and make the application for the purpose of recovering compensation for such loss. In all such cases, the proper courts of this state are authorized to grant letters of administration upon the estate of any citizen, without regard to the date of his death, when the applicant for letters alleges in his application that the testator or intestate suffered losses by Indian depredations or by the occupation or taking of their property by troops enlisted in, or belonging to, the United States army, and that letters are sought for the purpose of enabling him or her to bring suit in the United States court of claims to recover compensation for such loss. [Acts 1893, p. 6. Acts 1876, p. 94. Acts 1899, p. 244. P. D. 5505.]

See Wiener v. Zwieb, 105 T. 262, 141 S. W. 771.

Historical.—In 1852 the then existing probate law did not fix a time within which administration should commence after the death of the intestate. Administration which commenced in 1852, the intestate having died in 1841, was sustained. Lyne v. Sanford, 82 T. 58, 19 S. W. 847, 27 Am. St. Rep. 852.

We find in the probate law provisions expressly relating to jurisdiction, and among them a declaration that specified administrations shall be void. There is nowhere an affirmative declaration that the court shall not have jurisdiction after four years, nor that an administration granted after that time shall be void. All that the theory of nullity rests upon is the positive and mandatory language of the statute, and this is addressed to the probate court to control its action in the exercise of its jurisdiction, and is not a denial of its jurisdiction. Nelson v. Bridge, 98 T. 523, 86 S. W. 9, 10.

Application—De bonis non.—This article does not apply to an administration de bonis non. Adams v. Richardson's Estate, 27 S. W. 29, 5 C. A. 439.

—— Non-residents.—The probate law expressly includes among the estates for the administration of which provision is made, those of non-residents who died out of this state, and this excludes the supposition that in fixing the time limit (for probating wills, and applying for letters of administration) the legislature did not have in mind such estates. Nelson v. Bridge, 98 T. 523, 86 S. W. 8, 9.

Limitations not jurisdictional.—The provision relating to limitation contained in this article and Art. 3248 is not jurisdictional, and where administration was granted more than four years after the death of the testator or intestate the proceeding is not void, and cannot be collaterally attacked. Nelson v. Bridge, 98 T. 523, 86 S. W. 7.

The specifications of jurisdictional requirements, and express provisions (in the statutes relating to probate law) making void certain proceedings, are powerful indications that other commands and inhibitions such as those contained in this article and Art. 3248 were meant merely to control the court and control its action upon the subjects treated, and not to remove those subjects beyond its power to act upon them at all. This article by its very language implies that judicial power is to be exercised by requiring the application to be "refused and dismissed." Statutes of limitations are of binding force upon courts in their proceedings, but they are rarely if ever made jurisdictional. Nelson v. Bridge, 98 T. 523, 86 S. W. 10.

Art. 3248. [1881] [1828] Will shall not be probated after a lapse of four years, unless, etc.—No will shall be admitted to probate after the lapse of four years from the death of the testator, unless it be shown by proof that the party applying for such probate was not in default in failing to present the same for probate within the four years aforesaid; and in no case shall letters testamentary be issued where a will is admitted to probate after the lapse of four years from the death of the testator.

In general.—The applicants in question being entitled to probate, it would be immaterial that other applicants were in default and hence not entitled to its probate. St. Mary's Orphan Asylum of Texas v. Masterson, 57 C. A. 646, 122 S. W. 587.

Applicants being entitled to the probate of the will under such statute, they could not be deprived thereof, especially after they had instituted proceedings to that end, by the offer of warranty deeds from the devisees of their grantor as a substitute mode of perfecting their title. Id.

"Default."—Under this article the "default" within the statute is the applicant's default, so that the right of a purchaser of a devisee will not be lost by any default of his grantor. St. Mary's Orphan Asylum of Texas v. Masterson, 57 C. A. 646, 122 S. W. 587.

Applicants held in default.—The policy of the law being to enforce the timely probate of wills, a person who has custody of a will and refrains for the statutory period from presenting it for probate for mere personal reasons, or under the assumption that his title to property is safe without it, is in default within this article. St. Mary's Orphan Asylum of Texas v. Masterson, 57 C. A. 646, 122 S. W. 587.

Applicants held not in default.—In Ochoa v. Miller, 59 T. 460, it is said where the will appears to be ancient and comes from the proper custody, and possession has been had consistent with its terms for a long period of time, and its probate was impossible or impracticable, the court may in such a case uphold and favor such a long and undisputed possession, and, to protect a right, perhaps be justified in recognizing its validity and genuineness. As to circumstances which will excuse the failure to probate a will within the time prescribed by law, see Ryan v. T. & P. R. R. Co., 64 T. 239.

Limitation does not apply when will is not under control of the party who seeks probate, nor in its proper place, etc. Elwell v. Universalist General Convention, 76 T. 514, 13 S. W. 552; Ochoa v. Miller, 59 T. 462; Ryan v. Railway Co., 64 T. 239.

Applicants for probate of a will as a muniment of title were purchasers from persons who, by the laws of descent, were to all appearances the very persons who would have taken had their ancestor died intestate. The ancestor has been dead many years, and so far as the public knew, or had reason to know, had died intestate. His wife and children were the apparent and recognized owners of the property as heirs. Applicants, as well as the ancestor's closest relatives, had no knowledge that he had at a remote time adopted a stepdaughter who had not shared in the property, nor had the applicants knowledge that those who had suppressed a will of the ancestor which mentioned only them as beneficiaries. Held, that applicants were not in default within this article. St. Mary's Orphan Asylum of Texas v. Masterson, 57 C. A. 646, 122 S. W. 587.

Probate as muniment of title.—Notwithstanding the expiration of four years from the death of a testator, a will may be probated for the purpose of establishing a link in a chain of title, although no letters testamentary can issue. Art. 3293; Ryan v. Texas P. R. R. Co., 64 T. 239; Pena y Vidaurris Estate v. Bruni (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 315.

Under this article a will may be probated as a muniment of title if the applicant has not been in default. St. Mary's Orphan Asylum of Texas v. Masterson, 57 C. A. 646, 122 S. W. 587.

Where persons in good faith acquire the right to apply for the probate of a will as a muniment of their title under this article, their motives are immaterial. Id.

Probate after four years held not void.—Under the facts of this case the probate of the will after four years from the death of the testator was not void, and could not be brought in question in a collateral proceeding. Henry v. Roe, 83 T. 446, 18 S. W. 806. See Moursund v. Priess, 84 T. 554, 19 S. W. 775.

An administration granted more than four years after the death of the testator or intestate is not void and open to collateral attack. Nelson v. Bridge, 98 T. 523, 86 S. W. 10, 11.

Art. 3249. [1882] [1829] Administration not barred, when.—Where letters testamentary or of administration shall have once been granted, any person interested in the administration may proceed, after any lapse of time, to compel a settlement of the estate when it does not appear from the record that the administration thereof has been closed. [P. D. 5507.]

See McLain v. Pate (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 718.

Where administration not closed.—See Adams v. Richardson's Estate, 5 C. A. 439, 27 S. W. 29, as to proceedings where administration has not been closed.

Application.—That this article recognizes the validity of administrations to which it applies is evident, for upon no other theory could there be a settlement in the probate court; and that it applies to administrations opened after the time fixed (in Arts. 3247 and 3248) is equally apparent from its history and connection. Nelson v. Bridge, 98 T. 523, 86 S. W. 10, 11.

May proceed after any lapse of time, etc.—An action against an administrator in default for moneys of the estate, the administration not being closed when suit is filed, is not barred by limitation. McKinney v. Nunn, 32 T. 44, 17 S. W. 516; Parish v. Alston, 65 T. 124; Main v. Brown, 72 T. 505, 10 S. W. 571, 13 Am. St. Rep. 823; Hunter v. Hubbard, 26 T. 537.

The administration not having been closed the heirs are not barred (in a suit against the administrator to compel a settlement) by limitation or by reason of their action being a stale demand. Thomas v. Hawpe, 35 C. A. 311, 80 S. W. 131.

Parties having an interest in an estate pending in the probate court can compel a settlement, and upon settlement it is the duty of the county judge to order the estate remaining in the hands of the administrator partitioned among the heirs, upon proof that they are entitled to the property, and a suit cannot be brought in another court to compel such partition. Wilkinson v. McCart, 53 C. A. 507, 116 S. W. 400.

Administration closed, when.—Under this article, the administration is not closed until the discharge of the administrator.—Blackwell v. Blackwell, 24 S. W. 389, 86 T. 207; McLain v. Pate (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 718.

—— Parol evidence admissible.—The forty-sixth section of the probate act of August 15, 1870, and this article, abrogated the rule announced in Murphy v. Menard, 14 T. 61; Portis v. Cummings, 14 T. 140, and Marks v. Hill, 46 T. 345, which conclusively presumed the close of administration after the periods fixed in those cases. When the records of a probate court have been destroyed, it is competent to show by parol that an order of court was entered before the destruction of the record closing the administration. The entry upon the record must be shown; an order requiring such entry would not be admissible. Branch v. Hanrick, 70 T. 731, 8 S. W. 539.

Limitation of action on bond of executor.—See Art. 5689.

Art. 3250. [1883] [1830] Applications shall be in writing and filed.—All applications for probate of wills, or for letters testamentary or of administration, shall be in writing and filed with the clerk of the county court of the proper county. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 94, sec. 2.]

Art. 3251. [1884] [1831] Application for probate of written will produced in court shall state what.—An application for the probate of a written will produced in court shall state:

1. The name of the testator and that he is dead, and the time and place of his death.
2. The facts necessary to show that the court has jurisdiction of the estate.
3. The nature and probable value of the estate.
4. The name and residence of the executor named in the will, if any, and if none be named in the will, then the name and residence of the applicant.
5. That such executor or applicant, as the case may be, is not disqualified by law from accepting letters, if letters be desired.

Application, requisites, etc.—An application for probate is sufficient if it inferentially alleges the testator's death.—Bradshaw v. Roberts (Civ. App.) 52 S. W. 574.

Although "mental soundness" is not among the allegations prescribed by this article that the application for probate of will shall contain, yet the Court is not disposed to hold that it is not necessary. This point is left undecided as the case is reversed on another question. Moore v. Boothe, 39 C. A. 339, 87 S. W. 882.

On application for the probate of an instrument purporting to be a will, it is unnecessary to allege that testator was of sound mind when he executed it, that it is wholly in his handwriting, or that it was executed in the presence of attesting witnesses. Lindemann v. Dobossy (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 111.

As Art. 3209 confers on the county court of the county of decedent's residence at his death jurisdiction to probate his will, and this article does not require that the application shall state where his property is situated, an application alleging that deceased had his residence in a certain county at the time of death was sufficient to show jurisdiction in the county court of such county, and it was unnecessary to allege that he owned property in the state. White v. Holmes (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 874.

Necessity of administration.—Where testatrix made a valid will appointing executrices, the fact that no debts exist against the estate, and there is no necessity for any administration, does not affect the power of the county court to probate the will, grant letters testamentary, etc., its jurisdiction having been invoked by a valid will, as Art. 3358 expressly requires that the provisions of such a will shall be executed, and neither this article nor Art. 3293, enumerating the facts to be shown before letters testamentary can be granted, requires that there shall be a necessity for an administration. Buchner v. Wait (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 383.

Art. 3252. [1885] [1832] Will shall be filed with the application, etc.—The written will shall be filed with the application for the probate thereof, and shall thereafter remain in the office of the clerk with whom it is filed, unless removed therefrom by order of the county or district court.

See Dean v. Furrh (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 431.

Art. 3253. [1886] [1833] What the application shall state where the will cannot be produced in court.—An application for the probate of a written will which cannot be produced in court, in addition to the requirements of article 3197, shall state:

1. The reason why such will cannot be produced.
2. The contents of such will as far as known.
3. The date of such will and the executor appointed therein, if any, and the names of the subscribing witnesses thereto, if any.
4. The names and residences, if known, of all the heirs at law of the testator, and if not known, that fact shall be stated.

Such application shall be sworn to by the applicant or some credible person.

Art. 3254. [1887] [1834] Application for nuncupative will shall state, what.—An application for the probate of a nuncupative will, in addition to the requirements of article 3251, shall state:

1. The substance of the testamentary words spoken.
2. The names and residence of the witnesses thereto.
3. The names and residence, if known, of the heirs at law of the testator, and, if not known, that fact shall be stated.

Such application shall be sworn to by the applicant or some credible person.

Must allege what.—Application for probate of nuncupative will must allege that the words were uttered during the last sickness of decedent. Martinez v. de Martinez, 19 C. A. 661, 48 S. W. 532.

Art. 3255. [1888] [1835] Application for letters of administration shall state, what.—An application for letters of administration shall state:

1. The name of the deceased; that he is dead, and the time and place of his death, and that he died intestate.
2. The facts necessary to show that the court has jurisdiction of the estate.
3. The nature and probable value of the estate.
4. That a necessity exists for an administration upon such estate, setting forth the facts which show such necessity.
5. That the applicant is not disqualified by law to act as administrator.

Application, requisites—Name of deceased.—A grant of letters of administration upon the estates of two persons whose names are included in a single application is valid. Saul v. Frame, 22 S. W. 984, 3 C. A. 596.

An application for letters of administration for "Thomas J. Roberson" and the order granting the administration of the estate of "Thomas J. Robinson," which name was used in all subsequent orders of the court, held not to show that it was the estate of Thomas J. Roberson. Bailie v. Western Live Stock & Land Co., 55 C. A. 473, 119 S. W. 325.

—— Time of death.—The statement in a petition, dated and sworn to March 26, 1838, for letters of administration on the estate of S., that S. "died * * * on or about the month of April, 1838," does not show S. was living at the time of the petition, but is clearly a clerical error. Steele's Unknown Heirs v. Belding (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 592.

—— Nature of estate.—Failure to show in application for letters of administration that decedent died possessed of an estate held not fatal. Odell v. Kennedy, 26 C. A. 439, 64 S. W. 802.

—— Necessity for administration.—An application for administration of a decedent's estate by one not interested, showing that there are debts due the estate, and not showing any creditors or heirs under disability, should be denied. Angier v. Jones, 28 C. A. 402, 67 S. W. 449.

"Debts."—Taxes due at the death of a testator and those subsequently accruing constitute debts. Blanton v. Mayes, 72 T. 417, 10 S. W. 452.

—— Presumption as to debts.—When letters are granted within two years after the death of intestate, the existence of debts will be presumed. McCamant v. Roberts, 80 T. 316, 15 S. W. 580, 1054.

The fact that the record of probate proceedings did not show that there were debts against the estate did not create a presumption that there were no debts, and will not sustain a finding that there was no necessity for administration. Harris v. Shafer (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 110.

Art. 3256. [1889] [1836] Citation to issue, and shall state, what.—When an application for the probate of a written will, together with such will, is filed with the clerk, or when an application for letters of administration is filed, the clerk shall issue a citation to all parties interested in such estate, which citation shall state:

1. That such application has been filed, and the nature of it.
2. The name of the deceased and of the applicant.
3. The time when, and the court by which, the application will be acted upon.
4. It shall cite all persons interested in the estate to appear at the time therein named and contest said application, should they desire to do so.

Persons who may contest will.—A party contesting an application for letters may be required to state his interest in the estate. This is done by an exception to his right to appear as a contestant. When the contestant propounds his interest, the applicant may join issue on the facts; this proceeding is in limine and determined before an issue is made on the merits. Newton v. Newton, 61 T. 511.

An allegation in contest of a will that contestant was the surviving widow, and entitled to the community property, was sufficient as an allegation of interest. Perry v. Moss (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 871.

—— Estoppel or waiver.—Children held not precluded from setting aside their mother's will for fraud of her husband, by reason of the fact that the children might enforce a trust against the husband. Morrison v. Thoman, 99 T. 248, 89 S. W. 409.

Acceptance by children of testatrix of deeds from devisee held an election, barring their right to set aside the will. Holland v. Couts, 42 C. A. 515, 98 S. W. 233.

Husband not necessary party in contest by married woman.—Under this article a married woman who is interested as an heir in the estate of a decedent may contest the probate of the will, whether she is or is not joined by her husband, since a contest to probate a will by the heirs is not a "suit," within the statute, in which a wife must be joined by her husband. Pierce v. Farrar (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 932.

Heirs charged with notice of application, when.—Heirs of a decedent are charged with notice of an application by a creditor for letters of administration, where the required notice has been given. Salas v. Mundy (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 633.

Art. 3257. [1890] [1837] Service of such citation, how made.—The citation provided for in the preceding article shall be served by posting for at least ten days, exclusive of the day of posting, before the first day of the term of the court to which such citation is returnable.

Sheriff's return as evidence.—See Art. 1864 and notes.

The sheriff's return is not of itself evidence of the sufficiency of the service and where it does not negative a complete compliance with the law, the law in favor of presumption as to judgment of court of general jurisdiction prevails, and the judgment will be upheld. Martin v. Smith (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 300.

Art. 3258. [1891] [1838] Citation when will can not be produced, or where it is nuncupative.—When the application is for the probate of a written will which can not be produced in court, or for the probate of a nuncupative will, the citation shall contain substantially the statements made in the application, and the time when, place where, and the court before which such application will be acted upon.

Requisites of citation.—See Art. 1852 and notes.

The citation under this article should be directed to the officer under the seal of the court, and should contain the names of the parties upon whom service is to be had, etc., and is served by delivering a copy of the writ to each party named in the citation. Perez v. Perez, 59 T. 322.

Art. 3259. [1892] [1839] Service of such citation, how made.—If the heirs of the testator be residents of this state and their residence be known, the citation provided for in the preceding article shall be served upon them by delivering to each of them in person a true copy of such citation, at least ten days, exclusive of the day of service, before the first day of the term of the court to which such citation is returnable.

Art. 3260. [1893] [1840] Service of such citation by publication.—Service of such citation may be made by publication thereof in a newspaper published in the county in which such citation is issued, if there be one, and, if there be none, then in the newspaper which is published nearest to the court house of such county, for four successive weeks previous to the first day of the term of the court to which such citation is returnable, in the following cases:

1. When the heirs are non-residents of this state.
2. When their names or their residences are unknown.
3. When they are transient persons.

Art. 3261. [1894] [1841] No action shall be had until service of citation.—No application shall be acted upon until the service of citation has been made in the manner and for the length of time in such case required by the preceding articles of this chapter.

Art. 3262. [1895] [1842] Application may be made by whom.—Applications for the probate of a will may be made by the testamentary executor, or by any person interested in the estate of the testator, and application for letters of administration upon an estate may be made by any person. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 95, sec. 6.]

By any person interested, when.—Where an executor declines to present a will for probate, any one claiming an interest under the will may present it. Ryan v. Texas & P. R. Co., 64 T. 239.

Effect of use, by mistake, of "administrator" for "executor."—Where one is mentioned in a will as administrator for certain purposes connected with the property, the use of the word "administrator" instead of "executor" is immaterial in an application by him for the probate of the will. Lindemann v. Dobossy (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 112.

Art. 3263. [1896] [1843] Administration may be prevented, how.—When application is made for letters of administration upon an estate by a creditor, and those interested in the estate do not desire an administration thereupon, they can defeat such application:

1. By the payment of the claim of such creditor.
2. By proof to the satisfaction of the court that such claim is fictitious, fraudulent, illegal or barred by limitation.
3. By executing a bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to, and to be approved by, the county judge, in double the amount of such creditor's debt, conditioned that the obligors will pay the debt of such applicant upon the establishment thereof by suit in any court having jurisdiction of the amount in the county having jurisdiction of such estate. [P. D. 5558.]

Who may contest administration.—A creditor held to have no interest in the estate entitling him to contest an application for administration. Angier v. Jones, 28 C. A. 402, 67 S. W. 449.

Does not exclude other ways.—This statute does not mean that the application for letters by a creditor may not be defeated in other ways than those pointed out in the statute, and where a wife contests application of creditor for letters on her deceased husband's estate, and the court decides that there is necessity for administration, she has the first right to letters. Truesdale v. Putegnat (Civ. App.) 59 S. W. 308.

Art. 3264. [1897] [1844] One creditor may apply in behalf of several, etc.—Several creditors may authorize one of their number to apply for letters in behalf of them all; and, in such case, the grant of letters can not be defeated without complying with the requirements of the preceding article as to all the claims so represented. [P. D. 5559.]

Art. 3265. [1898] [1845] Bond shall be filed, etc.—The bond provided for in article 3263, when given and approved, shall be filed with the clerk of the county court and recorded in the minutes, and any creditor, to secure the payment of whose debt the same was executed, may sue thereon in his own name for the recovery of his debt.

Art. 3266. [1899] [1846] Lien upon estate to secure bond.—A lien shall exist on all of the estate in the hands of the distributees of such estate, and those claiming under them with notice of such lien, to secure the ultimate payment of the bond provided for in article 3263.

CHAPTER FIVE

PROBATE OF WILLS

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 3267. [1900] [1847] How a written will which is produced in court may be proved.—A written will produced in court may be proved:

1. By the written affidavit of one of the subscribing witnesses thereto, taken in open court and subscribed by such witness.

2. If all the witnesses are non-residents of the county, or those resident of the county are unable to attend court, it may be proved by the testimony of any one or more of them taken by deposition.

3. If none of the witnesses are living, it may be probated on proof by two witnesses of the handwriting of the subscribing witnesses thereto, and also of the testator, if he was able to write, which proof may be either by affidavit taken in open court and subscribed by the witnesses, or by deposition.

4. If the will was wholly written by the testator it may be probated on proof by two witnesses of his handwriting, which proof may also be made by affidavit taken in open court and subscribed to by the witnesses, or by deposition. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 94, sec. 3.]

Effect of subdivision 1.—The effect of this article, subd. 1 is merely to require the preservation in written form of the evidence which was adduced upon the probate hearing. Golden v. Walker (Civ App.) 153 S. W. 683.

Subscribing witnesses—Can be corroborated.—The testimony of a subscribing witness may be corroborated by other evidence. Stephenson v. Stephenson, 25 S. W. 649, 6 C. A. 529.

—— Effect of subsequent incompetency of.—If witnesses to a will are competent, credible persons when signing, the validity of the will is not affected by subsequent incompetency, though other means of proving the will might become necessary. Hopf v. State, 72 T. 281, 10 S. W. 589; Elwell v. Universalist General Convention, 76 T. 514, 13 S. W. 552.

—— Bequests to, effect.—See Art. 7870.

Secondary evidence—Admissible, when.—A will may be probated by other witnesses than those who subscribe as such, when the latter are dead, beyond the jurisdiction of the court, or unwilling from corrupt motives to give evidence; but the failure to call the subscribing witnesses must be accounted for. When the subscribing witnesses have testified, other evidence secondary in its character may be admitted. Elwell v Universalist General Convention, 76 T. 514, 13 S. W. 552; Hopf v. State, 72 T. 281, 10 S. W. 589. Evidence other than the statutory proof is admissible. Id.

Seal to affidavit unnecessary.—It is not necessary that the affidavit of a witness should be authenticated by the seal of the clerk swearing the witness. Russell v. Oliver, 78 T. 11, 14 S W. 264.

Where the affidavit of a subscribing witness to a will was taken in open court, it was admissible in evidence, though the clerk's certificate thereto was not authenticated by seal. Hymer v. Holyfield (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 722.

Art. 3268. [1901] [1848] How written will not produced may be proved.—A written will which can not be produced in court, upon proof of that fact, may be proved in the same manner as provided in the preceding article, and the same amount and character of testimony shall be required to prove such will as is required to prove a written will produced in court.

Proof of lost will.—See, also, notes under Art. 3272.

A will which has been lost or destroyed previous to the death of the testator may be proved under this article. In such a case it is incumbent on the party seeking to establish the will to show all the constituent facts prescribed by statute as necessary to its due execution, and also to rebut the presumption of cancellation which arises from the fact that it cannot be found at the testator's death. Tynan v. Paschal, 27 T. 286, 84 Am. Dec. 619.

Art. 3269. [1902] [1849] Nuncupative will shall not be proved, when, etc.—No nuncupative will shall be proved within fourteen days after the death of the testator; nor shall any such will be probated after six months have elapsed from the time of speaking the pretended testamentary words, unless the same, or the substance thereof, shall have been committed to writing within six days after making such will; nor shall any such will be probated, unless it be made in the time of the last sickness of the deceased, at his habitation, or where he has resided for ten days next preceding, except when the deceased is taken sick away from home and dies before he returns to such habitation. [Id. p. 95, sec. 4. P. D. 1264.]

Provisions mandatory.—A nuncupative will must be proven in the manner prescribed by the statute. Jones v. Norton, 10 T. 121; Mitchell v. Vickers, 20 T. 384.

The statute is mandatory and cannot be construed away by the court. It does not allow any excuse to prevail for a failure to probate in six months, and unless a nuncupative will is probated within six months from the time of speaking the pretended testamentary words, it cannot be probated at all. Martinez v. de Martinez, 19 C. A. 661, 49 S. W. 532.

Witnesses.—A legatee under a nuncupative will is incompetent to prove its execution. Lewis v. Aylott, 45 T. 190.

One named as executor by a nuncupative will cannot be a witness to establish it. Watts v. Holland, 56 T. 54.

Art. 3270. [1903] [1850] Nuncupative will must be proved, how.—No nuncupative will shall be probated, unless it be proved by three credible witnesses that the testator called on some person to take notice or bear testimony that such is his will, or words of like import, and if the testimony of such witnesses differs materially as to the testamentary words spoken, or as to the testator's calling upon some one to witness the same, the will shall not be admitted to probate. [P. D. 1264.]

Cited, Jones v. Norton, 10 T. 121; Mitchell v. Vickers, 20 T. 384.

May demand rule in proceedings for probate.—See notes under following article.

In a proceeding to establish a nuncupative will between the party claiming to be executor under it and the heirs, as contestants, in which a fraudulent combination was charged as existing between the party claiming to be executor, who was himself a witness, and the other witness to the will, it is the right of the contestants to have the witnesses placed under the rule so that they should not hear the testimony of each other. A refusal to place the witnesses under the rule in such a case, if requested, is cause for reversal. The discretion ordinarily confided to the judge is subordinate to the law which confers the right to have the rule enforced. Watts v. Holland, 56 T. 54.

Art. 3271. [1904] [1851] Facts which must be proved.—Before admitting a will to probate, it must be proved to the satisfaction of the court:

1. That the testator, at the time of executing the will, was at least twenty-one years of age, or was married, that he was of sound mind, and that he is dead.
2. That the court has jurisdiction of his estate.
3. That citation has been served and returned in the manner and for the length of time required by law.
4. That the testator executed the will with the formalities and solemnities and under the circumstances required by law to make it a valid will.
5. That such will has not been revoked by the testator. [Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

Waiver of requirements.—Requirements of this article held not subject to waiver. Green v. Hewett, 54 C. A. 534, 118 S. W. 170.

Duty of court.—It is the duty of the court, if thought necessary, to draw out all the facts bearing upon the execution of a paper offered for probate. Hopf v. State, 72 T. 281, 10 S. W. 589.

Presumptions and burden of proof.—In a will contest, the burden of proof is on the proponent. Prather v. McClelland (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 657; Locust v. Randle, 46 C. A. 544, 102 S. W. 947; Green v. Hewett, 54 C. A. 534, 118 S. W. 171.

—— Testamentary capacity.—Mental soundness of testator must be proved. Moore v. Boothe, 39 C. A. 339, 87 S. W. 882.

The proponent of a will has the burden of establishing the absence of an insane delusion, where such a delusion is in issue; it not being sufficient for him to merely prove general sanity, leaving the contestant to establish the delusion. Lanham v. Lanham (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 635.

—— Fraud and undue influence.—The burden of proof, rests upon a party, attacking a will on the ground of undue influence. In re Burns' Estate, 21 C. A. 512, 52 S. W. 98; Patterson v. Lamb, 21 C. A. 512, 52 S. W. 98; Hart v. Hart (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 91; Salinas v. Garcia, 135 S. W. 588; Berry v. Brown, 148 S. W. 1117.

Extent of the burden of proof upon contestants of a will as executed under undue influence, stated. Simon v. Middleton, 51 C. A. 531, 112 S. W. 441.

—— Revocation.—See, also, notes under Arts. 3268, 3272.

Where the will is last seen in the possession of a person other than the testator, to whom its provisions are adverse, there is no presumption that it was revoked, notwithstanding subdivision 5 of this article provides that before admitting a will to probate it must be proved that it has not been revoked. McElroy v. Phink, 97 T. 147, 76 S. W. 753.

Admissibility of evidence.—Rules of evidence in general, see notes under Art. 3687.

Declarations of a testator as to his testamentary intention, whether made before, after, or at the time of the execution of the will, are admissible on the issue of undue influence, not as primary proof thereof, but to establish the effect of external acts, if any are shown, on the mind of the testator. In re Burns' Estate, 21 C. A. 512, 52 S. W. 98; Patterson v. Lamb, Id.

Evidence in proceedings to probate a will, contested on the ground that it is a forgery, held admissible to show that fact. Dolan v. Meehan (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 99.

Admission of evidence of personal appearance of person charged with scheme to probate forged will held not ground for reversal. Id.

Declarations of a testator are not admissible as evidence of undue influence or of the truth of the facts stated by him. Wetz v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 59.

In proceedings for the contest of a will on the ground of undue influence, evidence of declarations of the testatrix not tending to show a weak mind held inadmissible. Id.

Evidence as to a testator's disposition, temperament, and susceptibility to influence held admissible in an action to set aside a will. Hart v. Hart (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 91.

On the question of undue influence affecting the execution of a will, evidence that testator, about the time of making the will, had told a road superintendent, under whom testator's disinherited son was working, to turn him loose, and testator would pay the fine, held entitled to little probative force. Simon v. Middleton, 51 C. A. 531, 112 S. W. 441.

If a beneficiary, to influence testator's mind, fabricates false and slanderous charges against one who would ordinarily have been a recipient of favors under a will, and his slanders have induced the making of a will cutting off the slandered person from benefits, evidence of the slander would be important as bearing on the question of fraud and undue influence. Id.

The financial condition of legatees may be shown as bearing on the question whether a will was the product of a mind not unduly influenced by beneficiaries. Id.

In a will contest, evidence of the execution of prior wills concerning which no undue influence is shown, which disposed of the property substantially as in the last will, held admissible to prove the absence of undue influence. Id.

Evidence that a disinherited son heard two of his brothers, who were beneficiaries, say after testator's funeral that there were three wills, and that the children disinherited by the last will knew nothing about it, and "we will give them $5 and let them go to hell," held improperly admitted, since their knowledge of the existence of other wills was not relevant to the issue of undue influence. Id.

Evidence that a son of a disinherited daughter had taken notes to testator from the daughter, in which she sought to obtain money, and of the suggestion of testator that she should wash and iron, held improperly admitted as immaterial on the question of undue influence. Id.

Evidence of altercations between a disinherited daughter and a son who was a beneficiary, three years before the will was made, held improperly admitted as immaterial on the question of undue influence. Id.

On the question of undue influence affecting the execution of a will, evidence as to the financial condition of a disinherited daughter of testator 14 or 15 years before the will was made held immaterial. Id.

On the question of undue influence affecting the execution of a will, testimony of a witness that he had never seen any immorality on the part of one of testator's disinherited children held immaterial. Id.

Evidence of the reasons testator had for withdrawing an allowance to a disinherited daughter, contained in a letter written to her two years after the execution of the will held inadmissible to establish undue influence affecting the will. Id.

In an action to annul a will for mental incapacity and undue influence, testimony held properly excluded as not within the issues. Helsley v. Moss, 52 C. A. 57, 113 S. W. 599.

In an action to set aside a will for mental incompetency and undue influence on the part of the husband of testatrix, statements made by him nine years before the execution of the will held too remote to be admissible. Id.

In an action to set aside a will, testimony that the husband of testatrix was a very determined man held immaterial, in the absence of evidence tending to show that he had exercised undue influence on testatrix. Id.

In an action to set aside a will, testimony as to a transaction between plaintiff and testatrix 15 years before the will was executed and 18 years before the death of testatrix held inadmissible as being too remote. Id.

In an action to set aside a will, evidence that testatrix said that, if she ever made a will, each of her children should share alike, and that she would never leave out one of her children, was properly excluded. Id.

Testator's declarations bearing on the question as to whether he was unduly influenced, held admissible where there is independent evidence of undue influence. Stubbs v. Marshall, 54 C. A. 526, 117 S. W. 1030.

Evidence of hardships endured by wife held competent on issue as to insane delusion that she did not care for him. Lanham v. Lanham (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 635.

Testimony that a testator would spit into his drinking goblet, and that at one time he spat on his handkerchief and threw it on the floor, was admissible, as bearing on the issue of testamentary capacity. Id.

On an issue as to reasonableness of testator's disposition, a conversation between his father and brother, not in his presence, in which the father stated that he did not want his property to go to testator's wife's family, held incompetent. Id.

In proceedings to probate a will contested by testator's widow on the ground of fraud and undue influence, testimony that two of the beneficiaries under the will were in good financial circumstances was inadmissible, in the absence of evidence that testator knew of that fact. McDonald's Estate v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 593.

It was proper to admit testimony as to conversations with testator to the effect that he did not say anything about the disposition of his property, except that proponent, his nephew, should have charge of things, and had promised to take care of testator's widow. Id.

Where the probate of a will is contested on the ground of fraud and undue influence, an answer of contestant that decedent had told her that she should have all his property if she outlived him was properly admitted. Id.

In a proceeding to probate a will contested on the ground of mental incapacity, it was proper to admit the testimony of a witness as to conversations with testator to the effect that he did not say anything about the disposition of his property, except that proponent, his nephew, should have charge of things, and had promised to take care of testator's widow. Id.

Where the probate of a will is contested on the ground of mental incapability, an answer of contestant that decedent had told her that she should have all his property if she outlived him was properly admitted, but evidence that decedent's physical system had given way and his mental capacity had been decreased until he was unable to attend to his usual business affairs was improper as establishing a false test of testamentary capacity. Id.

In a suit for the probate of a will disinheriting an insane son of testatrix, on the ground of undue influence and mental incapacity, evidence that about five years before the making of the will the husband gave directions for the disposition of the property showing that he did not wish to disinherit the son was admissible. Holt v. Guerguin (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 581.

The existence of undue influence may be established by circumstantial testimony as to the condition of testator's mind, surroundings attending the execution of the will, the opportunity for the exertion of undue influence, the confidential relations between testator and beneficiary, and the unnatural character of the will. Id.

—— Revocation of will.—See notes under Arts. 3268, 3272.

Statements of the testator, made three days after the alleged execution of a codicil, to the effect that he had made no change in the disposition of his property, and intended to make none, were inadmissible, since they formed no part of the res gestæ, and there was no question as to the mental condition of the testator. The conduct and declarations of a testator before and after the making of a will are admissible where the issue is upon the sanity of the testator, but not where it is upon the execution of the instrument. Kennedy v. Upshaw, 64 T. 411.

Verbal declarations on the part of a testatrix are not admissible to prove any revocation of her will. McElroy v. Phink (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 61.

In proceedings to probate a will, evidence of the character of the husband of testatrix, since deceased, held inadmissible on the question of revocation. McElroy v. Phink, 97 T. 147, 76 S. W. 753.

Evidence that proponent had access to the papers of testatrix during her last sickness was immaterial on the question of revocation of her will. Id.

Evidence of declarations of a testatrix concerning her will, seven or eight years before her death, is inadmissible on the question of revocation. Id.

Sufficiency of evidence—Execution and genuineness.—The fact that a person has executed a testamentary paper in the mode prescribed by law is ordinarily deemed sufficient evidence that the instrument reflects his wishes in regard to all matters of which it speaks. Ordinarily a will should be admitted to probate without further proof that the testator knew its contents, if free from suspicion regarding facts connected with its execution. But when a paper purporting to be a will was copied from another writing made by one who by its terms was to receive a large portion of the estate (all of the natural heirs being disinherited), and the testator was aged, infirm and unable to read, the mere formal proof of the execution of the paper will not entitle it to probate. In such a case it should be shown that the testator correctly understood the contents of the paper signed by him. Kelly v. Settegast, 68 T. 13, 2 S. W. 870.

Evidence held to show that one of two wills executed on the same day was testator's last will. St. Mary's Orphan Asylum of Texas v. Masterson, 57 C. A. 646, 122 S. W. 587.

In proceedings to probate an alleged will which was not produced in court, evidence held to sustain a finding that testatrix executed the will probated. Buchanan v. Rollings (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 962.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that the draft of a will was read over to testatrix in Spanish before she signed it. Salinas v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 588.

In a proceeding for the probate of a will, evidence held to show that the testator observed the formalities prescribed by this article and Art. 7857, which require a will to be in writing signed by the testator, and, if not wholly written by himself, to be attested by two witnesses. Warren v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1182.

Evidence held to show that the testator had knowledge of its contents. Id.

—— Testamentary capacity.—Evidence held to support a finding that testator was mentally incompetent to make a will. Mason v. Rodriguez, 53 C. A. 445, 115 S. W. 868; Gallagher v. Neilon (Civ. App.) 121 S. W. 564; Holt v. Guerguin, 156 S. W. 581.

Evidence held to warrant a finding that testatrix when she made her will had testamentary capacity. Salinas v. Garcia (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 588.

—— Fraud and undue influence.—Fraud and undue influence, how shown. Chaddick v. Haley, 81 T. 617, 17 S. W. 233.

Where in a will contest undue influence and lack of testamentary capacity are charged, any issue arising under any phase of the case may be established or disproved by direct or circumstantial evidence. Campbell v. Barrera (Civ. App.) 32 S. W. 724; Gallagher v. Neilon, 121 S. W. 564.

Evidence held not to show that a will was executed as a result of undue influence. In re Burns' Estate, 52 S. W. 98, 21 C. A. 512; Patterson v. Lamb, 52 S. W. 98, 21 C. A. 512; Wetz v. Schneider, 34 C. A. 201, 78 S. W. 394; Wetz v. Schneider (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 59; Simon v. Middleton, 51 C. A. 531, 112 S. W. 441; Berry v. Brown (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 1117.

Evidence held to show that a will was procured by undue influence. Goodloe v. Goodloe, 47 C. A. 493, 105 S. W. 533; Bradshaw v. Seaton (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 943; Holt v. Guerguin, 156 S. W. 581.

Instructions and questions for jury.—See notes under Art. 1971.

Art. 3272. [1905] [1852] Further proof in case of will which can not be produced in court.—If the will be a written will which can not be produced in court, the cause of its non-production must be proved; and such cause must be sufficient to satisfy the court that it can not by any reasonable diligence be produced, and the contents of such will must be substantially proved by the testimony of a credible witness who has read the same, or who has heard it read.

Evidence.—See, also, Art. 3268.

One seeking to establish a will destroyed by a deceased, on grounds of incapacity of deceased to revoke the will, has the burden of proving such incapacity. McIntosh v. Moore, 22 C. A. 22, 53 S. W. 611.

On the question of mental capacity to revoke a will, declarations by the testator, made during a time he was claimed to have destroyed his will and concerning dispositions of his property, are admissible. Id.

Where a lost will, when last seen, was in possession of the testator, and there is no evidence of its destruction by any one else, the jury should be instructed that the presumption is that it was destroyed by the testator. Id.

One seeking to establish a lost or destroyed will has the burden of proving that the will was not destroyed by the testator with intention to revoke it. Id.

On the probate of a will which had been lost and was being established by parol, evidence of one witness that she had heard of two wills being executed after the execution of the first, but that she had never seen them, was insufficient to present the issue of a later will. Lindsey v. White (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 438.

In proceedings to probate a lost will, held proper to exclude evidence that testatrix had complained of the conduct of the one who was given the principal portion of the estate under the will. McElroy v. Phink (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 61.

On proceedings for the probate of a lost will, evidence of the destruction of a similar will, several years prior to the execution of the will sought to be probated, held properly excluded. Id.

On proceedings to probate a lost will, held proper to refuse to permit proof that testatrix's husband, who had shortly before her death obtained the will from the one who had the custody thereof, was an honorable man. Id.

On proceedings to probate a lost will, evidence held to raise no presumption that the will, given by testatrix to her attorney for safe-keeping, had come into her control, and that she destroyed it. Id.

In proceedings to probate a will, not produced in court, the evidence held insufficient to overcome the presumption that it had been revoked during testator's lifetime. Buchanan v. Rollings (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 785.

Where an alleged will was not produced in court in probate proceedings, and was last seen several months before testator died, it is presumed to have been revoked during her lifetime, and the burden was on proponent to show the contrary. Id.

In proceedings to probate a will not produced in court, testatrix's declarations, tending to show the execution of the will, its contents, and that it was in existence until about 10 days before her death, were admissible to prove the execution. Buchanan v. Rollings (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 785; Id., 122 S. W. 962.

In proceedings to probate a holographic will not produced in court, and which the proof showed gave most of testatrix's property to an adopted child of her deceased sister, a mutilated draft of a purported will by testatrix, prepared some time before her death, while she was married to another than her surviving husband, the untorn part of which recited the gift of her sister's child to testatrix, and contained a blank appointment of a guardian for such child, and instructions as to the management of his property, etc., was immaterial and irrelevant. Buchanan v. Rollings (Civ. App.) 122 S. W. 962.

In proceedings to probate an alleged holographic will which was not produced in court, evidence held to sustain a finding that the will, as probated, was not destroyed by testatrix during her lifetime to revoke it. Id.

In proceedings to probate an alleged will which was not produced in court, a torn draft of the will to be executed by testatrix, containing certain recitals, held irrelevant and immaterial. Id.

In proceedings to probate a will not produced in court, testatrix's declarations tending to show the execution of the will, etc., were admissible to prove the execution. Id.

Evidence that testator directed witness during his last illness to procure his will when he cut out a clause therein and burned the part cut out, and afterwards told others of cutting it out, was admissible to prove revocation of such clause. Schnable v. Henderson (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 231.

Art. 3273. [1906] [1853] All testimony shall be committed to writing, etc.—All testimony taken in open court upon the hearing of an application to probate a will shall be committed to writing at the time it is taken, and subscribed in open court by the witness or witnesses, and filed by the clerk. [Id. p. 95, sec. 7.]

Art. 3274. [1907] [1854] Order shall be entered, will, etc., shall be recorded, when.—Upon the hearing of an application for the probate of a will, if the court be satisfied from the evidence that such will should be admitted to probate, an order to that effect shall be entered upon the minutes; and such will, together with the application for the probate thereof, and all the testimony in the case, shall be recorded in the minutes; provided, that the substance only of depositions shall be so recorded.

Order—In general.—A recital in a judgment admitting a will to probate and appointing an executor held not an adjudication of the right of the executor to dispose of the land without an order of court. Gray v. Russell, 41 C. A. 526, 91 S. W. 235.

In an action by an executor the order of the court probating the will and appointing an executor held prima facie proof of testator's death. Fischer v. Giddings, 43 C. A. 393, 95 S. W. 33.

—— Is a judgment.—The order of a probate court admitting a will to probate is a judgment. Locust v. Randle, 46 C. A. 544, 102 S. W. 946.

—— Is in rem.—Judgment probating a will operates in rem, and binds the heirs of the deceased and all other persons until set aside. Glover v. Coit, 36 C. A. 104, 81 S. W. 136.

—— Held not res adjudicata.—The probate of the will of a deceased father disposing of community property held not res adjudicata as to the interests of the heirs of the deceased wife of testator, though they contested the probate on the ground that the will attempted to dispose of their interests, especially since such heirs did not claim under testator. Clements v. Maury, 50 C. A. 158, 110 S. W. 185.

—— Errors in, effect of.—Any error in failing to incorporate a will in a judgment establishing the same held not of such materiality as to warrant a reversal. Glover v. Coit, 36 C. A. 104, 81 S. W. 136.

An error in a judgment of probate in declaring an executrix an independent one does not destroy the effect of the judgment, in so far as it operates as a probate of the will and establishes the rights of the devisees. Id.

—— Not subject to collateral attack.—Order of probate court admitting a will to probate cannot be collaterally attacked. Laufer v. Powell, 30 C. A. 604, 71 S. W. 549; Locust v. Randle, 46 C. A. 544, 102 S. W. 947.

The mere fact that the statement of testimony taken in an application to probate a will, and filed under Art. 3273, requiring that "all testimony in open court upon the hearing of an application to probate a will shall be committed to writing when taken and subscribed and filed," and that the recitals in the decree of probate do not refer to the sanity of the testator, which this article provides must be proven before a will is probated, does not render the judgment void or subject to collateral attack, since a judgment rendered by a court, whose jurisdiction over the subject-matter is not questioned, is not opened to collateral attack by a showing that the evidence on which it was based was illegal, improperly received, or insufficient, nor do the facts in themselves show that no evidence of sanity was received. Golden v. Walker (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 683.

—— Actions to set aside.—In a suit to set aside a judgment admitting a will to probate, the burden is upon plaintiffs to establish the invalidity of the will. Franklin v. Boone, 39 C. A. 597, 88 S. W. 262.

Evidence of probate.—Evidence held to show that a will under which plaintiffs claimed title had been duly probated. Hymer v. Holyfield (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 722.

Judgment of district court on appeal.—See notes under Art. 3639.

Art. 3275. [1908] [1855] Certified copy of record may be read in evidence.—A certified copy of such record of testimony may be read in evidence on the trial of the same matter in any other court when taken there by appeal or otherwise. [Id. p. 95, sec. 7.]

Written testimony as evidence in district court.—When the testimony is taken in the probate court, in the trial of a case, upon appeal, it will not take the place of a statement of facts under the statute on appeal. Barnhart v. Clark, 59 T. 552.

On appeal the original written testimony can be read in evidence. Beeks v. Odom, 70 T. 183, 7 S. W. 702.

If one interested in the probate of a will after due notice fails to attend and cross-examine a witness thereto when the will is probated in the county court, and the testimony of the witness is reduced to writing, he cannot on appeal object to the written evidence of the witness on the ground that he had not been cross-examined. Id.

In a contest as to the probate of a will removed to the district court, the testimony taken in the probate court is competent evidence, and the right to have the witness placed on the stand is not conceded. Prather v. McClelland, 76 T. 574, 13 S. W. 543.

The testimony taken in the probate court is competent evidence in the district court. Witnesses who testified in the probate court cannot be called for cross-examination. Id.

Conclusive in collateral proceedings.—A certified copy of a will and of the probate thereof is conclusive evidence in a collateral proceeding. Box v. Lawrence, 14 T. 545; Paschal v. Acklin, 27 T. 173; Lewis v. Ames, 44 T. 319.

Art. 3276. [1909] [1856] Will probated in another state or country may be filed and recorded in this state.—When application is made for the probate of a will which has been probated according to the laws of any of the United States or territories, or of any country out of the limits of the United States, a copy of such will and the probate thereof attested by the clerk of the court in which such will was admitted to probate, and the seal of the court annexed, if there be a seal, together with a certificate from the judge or presiding magistrate of such court, that the said attestation is in due form, may be filed and recorded in the court, and shall have the same force and effect as the original will, if probated in said court; provided, that the validity of such will may be contested in the same manner as the original might have been. [Id. sec. 5.]

Necessity of filing and recording.—An executor acting under authority of a will probated in another state can perform no act as such in Texas until he has complied with the statute in filing and recording such will. Until then his conveyance of real property of the estate situated in Texas cannot pass the title. Nor can his subsequent compliance with the statute in filing and recording the will relate back and validate a conveyance made without authority. Paschal v. Acklin, 27 T. 173; Brundige v. Rutherford, 57 T. 22; Ochoa v. Miller, 59 T. 460; Holman v. Hopkins, 27 T. 38; Henry v. Roe, 83 T. 446, 18 S. W. 806. But this rule does not apply when the executor is a devisee under the will, and his conveyance as executor would be validated by the subsequent filing and recording of the will. Mills v. Herndon, 60 T. 353.

A will probated in another state or territory and recorded in Texas under Art. 7875 serves only to constitute it a muniment of title to land in Texas, and gives the executor no authority to act under it as such in Texas. It must be probated in accordance with the provisions of this article to give him such authority. Mason v. Rodriguez, 53 C. A. 445, 115 S. W. 869.

See Art. 7875.

Necessity of attestation.—A will duly attested according to the laws of the foreign country where it was probated should be admitted to probate under the Texas statute, though not attested by the clerk of the court, with the certificate of the judge that the attestation is in due form, as required by this article. Pena y Vidaurri's Estate v. Bruni (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 315.

Placed on equality with domestic will.—A foreign will duly probated in another state by being filed and recorded in Texas is placed on the same footing for all purposes with a will duly probated in this State. Dew v. Dew (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 928.

May be contested.—Under this article the validity of the foreign will, after it has been recorded may be contested as the original will might have been, though the statute does not seem to contemplate a contest of the probate of a foreign will. Pena y Vidaurri's Estate v. Bruni (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 315.

Decisions Relating to Subject in General

Construction of will in probate proceedings.—On application for the probate of a will, the question whether certain language therein created a conditional bequest, held immaterial. Ainsworth v. Briggs, 49 C. A. 344, 108 S. W. 753.

When a sane person who has reached majority, voluntarily and without undue influence, makes a will in the manner prescribed by law, the will is entitled to probate regardless of its terms, and what property it applies to and how the same shall be disposed of are questions which cannot be adjudicated in a proceeding to probate the will. Clements v. Maury, 50 C. A. 158, 110 S. W. 185.

In a proceeding to probate a will, that a contract purporting to be incorporated is contradictory of its terms or otherwise void held not entitled to be raised. Allday v. Cage (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 838.

The court in proceedings to probate a will contested on the ground of mental incapacity may construe the will, and charge that the jury has nothing to do with the disposition of the property under the will, except so far as the same may throw light on testator's mental capacity. McDonald's Estate v. McDonald (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 593.

Sale by devisee before probate.—A sale by the devisee of an interest held under a will, and before it is probated, passes the estate. A subsequent probate by relation would give validity to such conveyance except as against an innocent purchaser from the heir. March v. Huyter, 50 T. 243; Ryan v. T. & P. R. R. Co., 64 T. 239.

Admissible as muniment of title, when.—A will when probated is evidence of the previous investiture of title according to its terms. March v. Huyter, 50 T. 243; Ochoa v. Miller, 59 T. 460; Ryan v. T. & P. R. R. Co., 64 T. 239; Mills v. Herndon, 60 T. 353; Welder v. McComb, 10 C. A. 85, 30 S. W. 822.

A will duly probated is admissible as a muniment of the title of one purchasing the land from the devisee named therein, while the judgment probating the same was in force, although it was erroneously probated as an independent will. Glover v. Coit, 36 C. A. 104, 81 S. W. 136.

CHAPTER SIX

GRANTING LETTERS

Article 3277. [1910] [1857] Who are disqualified from being executors or administrators.—Letters testamentary or of administration shall not be granted to any person who is under twenty-one years of age, or of unsound mind; provided, however, that such letters may be granted to a surviving husband or wife who may be under twenty-one years of age. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 96, sec. 10.]

See Journeay v. Shook, 105 T. 551, 152 S. W. 809.

Non-resident qualified.—Letters of administration may be granted to a non-resident. Stevens v. Cameron, 100 T. 515, 101 S. W. 792.

Does not exclude other grounds.—It does not follow that other legal obstacles may not exist to an appointment as administrator than that mentioned in this article. Stevens v. Cameron, 100 T. 515, 101 S. W. 792.

This article does not prescribe the only grounds which may be considered by the county judge to disqualify. Shook v. Journeay (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 406.

Where creditors objected to the appointment of testator's widow as independent executrix on the ground that she was not a proper person, in that trust funds had been embezzled by testator, out of which many of the creditors' claims arose, and had been used to place property in the name of petitioner's son, part of which had been transferred to her, and alleging that among the papers of the deceased could be found evidence showing such investment, by which a resulting trust could be established, and that petitioner was particeps criminis in the embezzlement, the county court was not bound to appoint her, but was entitled to hear evidence supporting such charges, and, if sustained, to refuse such appointment. Id.

Art. 3278. [1911] [1858] When a will has been probated letters testamentary shall be granted.—When a will shall have been probated, it shall be the duty of the court to grant letters testamentary to the executor or executors appointed by such will, if any there be, or to such of them as are not disqualified, and are willing to accept the trust and qualify according to law within twenty days after such probate, except in the case provided for in article 3248. [Id. p. 95, sec. 8.]

Failure to qualify and act.—The failure of executors to qualify or to act will not affect the rights of a devisee which are fixed by the probate of the will. Bennett v. Keber, 76 T. 385, 13 S. W. 220; Robertson v. Du Bose, 76 T. 1, 13 S. W. 300.

May postpone appointment.—A county court on sufficient grounds being shown, may continue the appointment of an executor for the term, but is not authorized to grant an indefinite postponement. Shook v. Journeay (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 406.

Art. 3279. [1912] [1859] When administration shall be granted.—When any person shall die intestate, or where no executor is named in a will, or where the executor renounces, dies, becomes of unsound mind, or is removed, or is disqualified, or shall neglect to accept and qualify within twenty days after the probate of the will, or shall neglect for a period of thirty days after the death of the testator to present the will for probate, then administration of the estate of such intestate, or administration with the will annexed of the estate of such testator shall be granted, should administration appear to be necessary. [Id. sec. 9.]

Necessity of administration proceedings.—No administrator of an intestate can be appointed in the absence of administration proceedings. Rivera v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 223.

Provisions of will.—An executor held not disqualified for failure to qualify within the three months provided for by the will where he acted with reasonable diligence. Von Rosenburg v. Wickes, 50 C. A. 455, 109 S. W. 968.

Art. 3280. [1913] [1860] Administration shall not be granted unless, etc.—No administration upon any estate shall be granted, unless it be made to appear to the satisfaction of the court that there exists a necessity therefor, such necessity to be determined by the court hearing the application.

No necessity.—Facts held to show that there was no necessity for the appointment of a permanent administratrix. Goldstein v. Susholtz, 46 C. A. 582, 105 S. W. 219.

—— When only property exempt.—Where the only property of an intestate is exempt, no necessity for administration exists. Rivera v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 223.

Ancillary administration can be granted, when.—Ancillary administration can only be granted when there are assets to be administered or some right or purpose to be subserved thereby within a jurisdiction where such administration is sought. Cooper v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 41 C. A. 596, 93 S. W. 201.

Art. 3281. [1914] [1861] Order in which letters shall be granted.—Letters testamentary or of administration shall be granted to persons who are qualified to act, in the following order:

1. To the person named as executor in the will of the deceased.
2. To the surviving husband or wife.
3. To the principal devisee or legatee of the testator.
4. To any devisee or legatee of the testator.
5. To the next of kin of the deceased, the nearest in the order of descent first, and so on.
6. To a creditor of the deceased.
7. To any person of good character residing in the county. [Id. P. D. 5508.]

See Journeay v. Shook, 105 T. 551, 152 S. W. 809.

Putative wife.—A putative wife held not entitled to be appointed administratrix of her deceased husband. Walker v. Walker's Estate (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1145.

Waiver by delay.—See notes under Art. 3283.

Art. 3282. [1915] [1862] Where applicants are equally entitled.—When applicants are equally entitled, the letters shall be granted to the applicant who, in the judgment of the court, is most likely to administer the estate advantageously, or they may be granted to any two or three of such applicants. [P. D. 5512.]

Art. 3283. [1916] [1863] Certain persons entitled to letters may waive right in favor of another, how.—The surviving husband or wife, or, if there be no such survivor, the heirs, or any one of the heirs, of the deceased, to the exclusion of any person not equally entitled, may, in open court, or by power of attorney, duly authenticated and filed with the clerk of the county court of the county having jurisdiction of the estate, renounce his right to the administration in favor of some other qualified person, and thereupon the court may grant letters to such other person.

Non-resident can designate.—A non-resident who has the right to be appointed administrator of an estate in Texas can renounce that privilege and designate some one to be appointed in his stead. Stevens v. Cameron, 100 T. 515, 101 S. W. 792, reversing (Civ. App.) 96 S. W. 1086.

Waiver by delay.—A prior right to letters is waived by the acquiescence for the period of two years in the appointment of another as administrator. Mayes v. Houston, 61 T. 690; Kahn v. Israelson, 62 T. 221.

Art. 3284. [1917] [1864] Letters revoked and granted to person having prior right.—Where letters have been granted to one, and another whose right thereto is prior and who has not waived such right and who is not disqualified, makes application for letters, the letters previously granted shall be revoked and other letters shall be granted to the person thus entitled. [Id. p. 96, secs. 13, 14. P. D. 5518.]

Applies to guardianship proceedings.—The waiver of the right by the mother clothed the guardian in whose favor the waiver was made with the right to act as such guardian until removed for statutory cause; and the mother having parted with such right during her life, the grandmother had no right upon which she could insist during the pendency of the guardianship thus created except by a proceeding to remove the guardian for some cause named in the statute. Polasek v. Janecek, 22 C. A. 411, 55 S. W. 522.

While this article is embodied in the statute regulating the estates of decedents still it is made to apply to guardianship proceedings by Art. 4051. The stepmother has no preference right of guardianship over blood relatives of minors and those who were entitled in the first instance, and who have not waived their right, can have her letters revoked. Heinemier v. Arlitt, 29 C. A. 140, 67 S. W. 1039, 1040.

Art. 3285. [1918] [1865] Letters revoked and granted to executor upon attaining lawful age.—Whenever any person named as executor in a will is under age, and letters of administration with the will annexed have been granted to any other person, such executor shall, upon proof that he has attained the age of twenty-one years and is not disqualified otherwise, be entitled to have such letters of administration revoked and letters testamentary granted to himself. And when two or more persons are named executors in a will, any one or more of whom are minors when such will is admitted to probate, the letters testamentary have been issued to such only as are of full age, such minor or minors, upon attaining the age of twenty-one years, if not disqualified, shall be permitted to qualify and receive letters. [Id. p. 96, sec. 11.]

Art. 3286. [1919] [1866] Executor absent from the state, etc., may qualify within what time, etc.—Whenever any person named as executor in a will shall have been absent from the state when the testator died or when the will was proved, whereby he was prevented from presenting the will for probate within thirty days after the death of the testator, or from accepting and qualifying as executor within twenty days after the probate of the will, or whenever he shall have been prevented by sickness from so presenting the will or from so accepting and qualifying, he shall be allowed to accept and qualify as executor at any time within sixty days after his return to the state or his recovery from sickness, upon making proof to the court that he was so absent or prevented by sickness; and, if in the meantime letters of administration have been granted, such letters shall be revoked. [Id. p. 96, sec. 12.]

Art. 3287. [1920] [1867] Letters shall not be revoked except upon application and citation.—Letters shall not be revoked and other letters granted under the provisions of either of the four preceding articles, unless application therefor has been filed and the executor or administrator has been cited to appear at a regular term of the court and show cause why such application should not be granted; but in such cases, when the letters are revoked, other letters may be granted without the posting of citation as in other cases.

Art. 3288. [1921] [1868] When will is discovered after grant of administration.—Whenever letters of administration shall have been granted upon an estate, and it shall afterward be discovered that the deceased left a lawful will, such will may be proved in the manner provided for the proof of wills; and, if an executor is named in such will, and he is not disqualified, he shall be allowed to qualify and accept as such executor, and the letters previously granted shall be revoked; but if no such executor be named in the will, or if the executor named be disqualified, or shall renounce the executorship, or shall neglect to accept and qualify within twenty days after the date of the probate of the will, or shall neglect for a period of thirty days after the discovery of such will to present it for probate, then administration with the will annexed of the estate of such testator shall be granted as in other cases. All acts done by the first administrator, previous to the qualification of the executor or administrator with the will annexed, shall be as valid as if no such will had been discovered. [Id. p. 97, sec. 15.]

Art. 3289. [1922] [1869] Executor of will proved in another state entitled to letters within this state, when.—When a will has been admitted to probate in any of the United States or territories thereof, or in the District of Columbia, or in any country out of the limits of the United States, and the executor named in such will has qualified, and a copy of such will and the probate thereof has been filed and recorded in any county court of this state having jurisdiction of the estate, and letters of administration have been granted by such court to any person other than such executor, upon the application of such executor, and after citation served upon the person to whom such letters have been granted, such letters shall be revoked, and letters testamentary shall be granted to such applicant. [Id. p. 97, sec. 16. P. D. 5517.]

Letters may issue to non-resident executor.—By this statute it was intended by the legislature that letters might issue to a non-resident executor. Stevens v. Cameron, 100 T. 515, 101 S. W. 792.

See Art. 3283.

Art. 3290. [1923] [1870] Bond shall be required as in other cases.—In the case provided for in the preceding article, the executor shall be required to give bond as in other cases, notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in the will, and the order revoking the former letters shall not take effect until such executor has qualified in accordance with law. [P. D. 5517.]

Art. 3291. [1924] [1871] Further administration shall be granted, when.—Whenever an estate is unrepresented by reason of the death, removal or resignation of the executor or administrator, the court shall grant further administration upon such estate when necessary, and with the will annexed, where there is a will, in the same manner and under the same regulations provided for the appointment of original executors or administrators. [Id. p. 97, sec. 18.]

Rights, powers and duties of administrator de bonis non.—See Art. 3379 et seq., and notes.

Administrators de bonis non—Appointment—In general.—If an administration was legal in its inception, it was immaterial that property was lost or squandered in the course of administration; that an administration was not formally extended did not affect its validity (Poor v. Boyce, 12 T. 447); nor that a long time elapsed between the death of the intestate and the grant of the letters de bonis non (Howard v. Bennett, 13 T. 314); nor that there was an interval of several years between entries or evidence of acts as such (Burdett v. Silsbee, 15 T. 610-616); nor that an estate was consumed by costs and expenses to the loss or want of benefit to the heirs. (Kleinecke v. Woodward, 42 T. 311).

An application for letters of administration which alleges that a former administrator had been appointed who qualified as administrator and had died before winding up the estate is sufficient. Williams v. Verne, 68 T. 414, 4 S. W. 548.

An administrator de bonis non may be appointed on the administrator's death without closing up the estate or accounting for funds belonging to it, though there be no claims against the estate. Strickland v. Sandmeyer, 21 C. A. 351, 52 S. W. 87.

Where a will created a spendthrift trust, and the executor, who was also appointed trustee, died after fully administering the estate so far as his duties as executor were concerned, the county court had no jurisdiction to appoint an administrator with the will annexed, but a new trustee should be appointed by the district court to complete the trust. McClelland v. McClelland, 46 C. A. 26, 101 S. W. 1171.

—— Within discretion of court.—When an estate has not been fully administered, it is within the jurisdiction of the probate court to determine whether an administrator de bonis non should be appointed. Whether it has discretion in ordering an appointment and it was wisely exercised or not cannot affect the validity of the order. Frost v. Frost, 45 T. 324. See San Roman v. Watson, 54 T. 254.

—— Cannot appoint after administration has been closed.—When an administration has once been closed, the effects are by operation of law restored to the heirs, with all the rights belonging to full ownership, and the probate court has no authority to reopen the succession. Fisk v. Norvel, 9 T. 13, 58 Am. Dec. 128; Chandler v. Hudson, 11 T. 32; Hurt v. Horton, 12 T. 285; Francis v. Hall, 13 T. 189; Wardrup v. Jones, 23 T. 489; Withers v. Patterson, 27 T. 491, 86 Am. Dec. 643; McGreal v. Jones, 36 T. 673; San Roman v. Watson, 54 T. 254; Lindsay v. Jaffray, 55 T. 626.

After the lapse of a certain time administrations must be considered as closed, whether ever administered in point of fact or not. Thus, when the ancestor died in 1833, owing no debts, and the heirs accepted the succession and the widow administered in 1849, held, that the grant of administration was a nullity. Blair v. Cisneros, 10 T. 34.

Administrator de bonis non was appointed fifteen years after the revocation of the letters of the last administrator and nearly that time after his term would have expired by limitation. The administration having terminated, such administration de bonis non was a nullity. Dodge v. Phelan, 21 S. W. 309, 2 C. A. 441.

County court held without jurisdiction to appoint another administrator de bonus non after the term at which a former administrator was discharged and the estate ordered closed. Wallace v. Turner (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 432.

Where estate was administered, and final settlement made in 1895, appointment of administrator de bonis non in 1901 held not authorized. Turner v. Wallace, 99 T. 543, 92 S. W. 31.

—— When independent executrix refuses to act.—When an independent executrix under a will renounces her appointment, refuses to return an inventory and requests the appointment of another as administrator, such administrator was properly appointed. Willis v. Ferguson, 59 T. 172.

—— To execute deed.—An administrator de bonis non may be appointed to execute a deed to convey land under a previous order of the court. Adams v. Richardson's Estate, 27 S. W. 29, 5 C. A. 439. The limitation under Art. 3247 does not apply to the appointment under this article. Id. But see Dodge v. Phelan, 21 S. W. 309, 2 C. A. 441. As to presumption that debts existed, see Corley v. Goll, 27 S. W. 819, 8 C. A. 184.

Art. 3292. [1925] [1872] Executor, etc., who has been removed, shall not afterward be appointed, etc.—Whenever any person has been removed from the executorship or administration of an estate, he shall not afterward be appointed administrator thereof. [Id. p. 100, sec. 28.]

Art. 3293. [1926] [1873] What facts must appear before granting letters testamentary.—Before granting letters testamentary, it must appear to the court:

1. That the person is dead.

2. That four years have not elapsed since his decease prior to the application.

3. That the court has jurisdiction of the estate.

4. That the will has been proved as prescribed by law.

5. That the person to whom the letters are to be granted is named as executor in the will.

6. That the person named as executor is not disqualified by law.

The first three subdivisions of this article have no application where letters of administration upon such estate have been previously granted in said court. [Id. p. 94, sec. 2.]

Must issue to person named in will.—This article excludes the selection of an executor by the judge and commands the issuing of letters to the person named. Journeay v. Shook, 105 T. 551, 152 S. W. 809.

Need not show necessity for administration.—Where testatrix made a valid will appointing executrices, the fact that no debts exist against the estate, and there is no necessity for any administration, does not affect the power of the county court to probate the will, grant letters testamentary, etc., its jurisdiction having been invoked by a valid will, as Art. 3358 expressly requires that the provisions of scuh a will shall be executed, and neither Art. 3251, as to the application to probate a will, nor this article, requires that there shall be a necessity for an administration. Buchner v. Wait (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 383.

Art. 3294. [1927] [1874] What facts must appear before granting letters of administration.—Before granting letters of administration, it must appear to the court:

1. That the person is dead.

2. That four years have not elapsed since his decease prior to the application.

3. That the court has jurisdiction of the estate.

4. That there is a necessity for an administration upon such estate.

5. That the person to whom the letters are about to be granted is entitled thereto by law and is not disqualified.

The first three subdivisions of this article have no application when letters testamentary or of administration have been previously granted upon such estate by said court. [Id. p. 94, sec. 2.]

Necessity of proceedings.—No administrator of an intestate can be appointed in the absence of administration proceedings. Rivera v. Atchison, T. & S. F. Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 223.

That indebtedness is small is immaterial.—The jurisdiction of the probate court to appoint an administrator of a decedent is not defeated because decedent's indebtedness is small. Rye v. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co., 42 C. A. 185, 95 S. W. 622.

Setting aside appointment.—Where administration was granted to permit the administrator to sue a railroad company for injuries to and death of the administrator's intestate, the railroad company was entitled to maintain a suit to set aside such administration for want of jurisdiction. Cooper v. Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co., 41 C. A. 596, 93 S. W. 201.

Art. 3295. [1928] [1875] Order of court granting letters.—When letters testamentary or of administration are granted by the court, an order to that effect shall be entered upon the minutes, which order shall state:

1. The name of the testator or intestate.

2. The name of the person to whom the grant of letters is made.

3. If bond is required, the amount thereof.

4. The order shall require the clerk of the court to issue letters in accordance with such order, when the person to whom such letters are granted shall have qualified according to law.

Order—In general.—Orders and decrees of county court in probate proceedings and letters of administration granted by it held conclusive of an administrator's right to sue. Rogers v. Tompkins (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 379.

After the appointment of an administrator within the time allowed and his qualification, a trustee under a deed of trust executed by decedent had no power to sell property on foreclosure. Kuck v. Dixon (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 910.

A decree appointing an administrator held not conclusive as to existence of marriage. Berger v. Kirby (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 1122.

—— Not subject to collateral attack.—A judgment of the probate court granting letters of administration held not subject to collateral attack. Willis v. Ferguson, 46 T. 496; Id., 59 T. 172; Mills v. Herndon, 77 T. 89, 13 S. W. 854; Strickland v. Sandmeyer, 21 C. A. 351, 52 S. W. 87; Farmer v. Saunders (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 941; Gulf, C. & S. F. Ry. Co. v. Beezley, 153 S. W. 651.

Proceedings changing an executrix's appointment from independent executrix to administratrix with the will annexed cannot be collaterally attacked in proceedings by a creditor to establish a claim against the estate. King v. Battaglia, 38 C. A. 28, 84 S. W. 839.

—— Presumption.—When an order appointing an administrator does not on its face disclose a want of jurisdiction in a collateral proceeding, it will be presumed that facts existed authorizing the administration, and that jurisdiction had properly attached. Mills v. Herndon, 77 T. 89, 13 S. W. 854.

Art. 3296. [1929] [1876] Grant of letters may be opposed, etc.—When application is made for letters of administration, any person may at any time before the said application is granted, file his opposition thereto in writing, and may apply for the grant of letters to himself or to any other person; and, upon the trial, the court shall grant letters to the person that may seem best entitled to them, having regard to the provisions of this title, without further notice than that of the original application.

CHAPTER SEVEN

TEMPORARY ADMINISTRATION

Article 3297. [1930] [1877] County judge may appoint temporary administrator, when.—Whenever it may appear to the county judge that the interest of an estate requires the immediate appointment of an administrator, he shall, either in open court or in vacation, by writing under his hand and the seal of the court, attested by the clerk, appoint some suitable person temporary administrator with such limited powers as the circumstances of the case may require. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 98, sec. 20.]

Art. 3298. [1931] [1878] Appointment may be made without application, etc.—Such appointment may be made either upon written application or without such application, and without citation. It shall define the powers conferred, and before being delivered to the person appointed shall be recorded in the minutes of the court, and the clerk shall indorse thereon a certificate that it has been so recorded, and until such record and certificate are made such appointment shall not take effect. [Id. p. 98, sec. 20.]

To bring suit.—A temporary administrator can be appointed to bring suit in behalf of estate of deceased and by order of court at succeeding term can be continued as long as may be necessary. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. v. Gibbs, 34 C. A. 131, 78 S. W. 399.

Art. 3299. [1932] [1879] Oath and bond required.—Such appointment shall not be delivered or take effect until the person appointed has taken the oath and has given bond as required by law. [Id. p. 98, sec. 22.]

Art. 3300. [1933] [1880] Appointment shall cease to be of force, when.—Such appointment shall cease to be of force on the day designated for taking up probate business at the first term of the court held next after the date thereof, unless at such term it be continued in force by an order entered upon the minutes in open court; and in no case shall such appointment continue in force beyond the day designated. [Id. p. 98, sec. 20.]

Art. 3301. [1934] [1881] Pending contest the county judge may appoint temporary administrator.—Pending any contest relative to the probate of a will, or the granting of letters of administration, whether such contest be in the county court or in the district court, it shall be the duty of the county judge, should he deem it necessary, to appoint a temporary administrator in the manner prescribed in the preceding articles in this chapter, with such limited powers as the circumstances of the case may require; and such appointment may continue in force until the termination of the contest and the appointment of an executor or administrator with full powers. [Id. p. 98, sec. 21.]

Appointment of permanent administrator.—The court cannot refuse to appoint a permanent representative of an estate merely because a contest regarding the will may arise in the future. An administrator being once appointed, the court cannot revoke his appointment because a contest regarding the will is afterwards begun and place the estate in the hands of a temporary administrator pending the contest. Elwell v. Universalist Church, 63 T. 220.

Art. 3302. [1935] [1882] Rights and powers of temporary administrator.—Temporary administrators shall have and exercise only such rights and powers with regard to the estate, or such portions thereof as may be committed to their charge, as are specifically and clearly expressed in the order of the court appointing them, and any acts performed by them as such administrators that are not so expressly authorized shall be void.

In general.—Temporary administrator held not authorized to compromise claim on insurance policy. Germania Life Ins. Co. v. Peetz (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 687.

Orders of the district court on appeal from orders of the probate court held to terminate the authority of the temporary administratrix, though no appeal was taken from the order appointing the temporary administratrix. Goldstein v. Susholtz, 46 C. A. 582, 105 S. W. 219.

Power to sell lands is not one of the powers conferred by law on a temporary administrator. Cruse v. O'Gwin, 48 C. A. 48, 106 S. W. 757.

Powers dependent upon order appointing.—A temporary administrator appointed to prosecute a suit for damages causing death recovers judgment for the parties entitled under Art. 4698, and such judgment does not become assets of the estate. H. & T. C. Ry. Co. v. Hook, 60 T. 403.

An action of trespass to try title brought by a plaintiff since deceased may be prosecuted by a temporary administrator when such power is given in his appointment. Callahan v. Houston, 78 T. 494, 14 S. W. 1027.

Under an appointment of a temporary administrator "to take charge of and care for" the estate, he is not authorized to file claimant's oath and bond and enter into litigation in behalf of the estate. Willis v. Pinkard, 21 C. A. 423, 52 S. W. 626.

Not required to give bond on appeal.—A temporary administrator specially authorized to sue for personalty is not required to give bond on appeal from the judgment in such suit. Anglin v. Barlow (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 827.

Duty as to property.—A temporary administrator is charged with the duty of using reasonable care for the preservation of the property of the intestate. Roberts v. Stuart, 80 T. 379, 15 S. W. 1108.

Surviving partner entitled to possession.—The probate court held without authority to appoint a temporary administratrix and authorize her to take possession of partnership assets in possession of the surviving partner. Goldstein v. Susholtz, 46 C. A. 582, 105 S. W. 219.

Art. 3303. [1936] [1883] List, return of sales, exhibit and account shall be made.—At the expiration of the time for which a temporary administrator has been appointed, he shall file with the clerk of the court a list of all the property of the estate which has come to his hands, a return of all sales made by him, and a full exhibit and account of all his acts as such administrator, all of which shall be verified by his affidavit. [P. D. 5531.]

Art. 3304. [1937] [1884] List, etc., shall be acted upon by the court.—The list, return, exhibit and account required to be made by the temporary administrator under the preceding article shall be acted upon by the court at the same or a subsequent term, and whenever temporary letters shall expire, or cease to be of effect from any cause, the court shall immediately, either in term time or in vacation, enter an order upon the probate minutes requiring such temporary administrator to forthwith deliver the estate remaining in his possession to the person legally entitled to the possession of the same.

Errors in order discharging.—Errors in a judgment discharging temporary administrator cannot be corrected in the permanent administration. Ball v. Ball's Estate (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 605.

CHAPTER EIGHT

OATH AND BOND OF EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS

Article 3305. [1938] [1885] Oath of executor or administrator with will annexed.—Before the issuance of letters testamentary or of administration with the will annexed, the person named executor or appointed administrator with the will annexed shall take and subscribe an oath in form as follows: "I do solemnly swear that the writing which has been offered for probate is the last will of ———, so far as I know or believe, and that I will well and truly perform all the duties of executor of said will (or of administrator with the will annexed, as the case may be) of the estate of said ————." [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 100, sec. 30.]

Necessity of oath under act of 1870.—It was not essential to the qualification of an independent executor under the act of 1870 (Pasch. Dig. art. 5574) that any oath as such should be taken by him. Connellee v. Roberts, 1 C. A. 363, 23 S. W. 187.

Art. 3306. [1939] [1886] Oath of administrator.—Before the issuance of letters of administration, the person appointed administrator shall take and subscribe an oath in form as follows: "I do solemnly swear that ———, deceased, died without leaving any lawful will, so far as I know or believe, and that I will well and truly perform all the duties of administrator of the estate of said deceased." [Id. p. 100, sec. 31.]

Effect of omission in oath.—It is no valid objection to the oath of an administrator de bonis non that it omits the words "died without leaving any lawful will." Williams v. Verne, 68 T. 414, 4 S. W. 548.

Art. 3307. [1940] [1887] Oath of temporary administrator.—Before the issuance of temporary letters of administration, the person appointed temporary administrator shall take and subscribe an oath in form as follows: "I do solemnly swear that I will well and truly perform the duties of temporary administrator of the estate of ———, deceased, in accordance with law, and with the order of the court appointing me such administrator." [Id. p. 98, sec. 22.]

Art. 3308. [1941] [1888] Oath may be taken before any officer authorized to administer oaths, etc.—The oaths prescribed by the three preceding articles may be taken before any officer authorized to administer oaths, and shall be filed with the clerk of the court granting the letters, and shall be recorded in the minutes of such court.

Art. 3309. [1942] [1889] Bond of executors and administrators.—Before the issuance of letters testamentary or of administration, the person to whom letters are granted shall enter into bond, with at least two good and sufficient sureties, who shall be bona fide residents of this state, to be approved by, and payable to, the county judge of the county, in such penalty as he may direct, not less than double the estimated value of the estate of the testator or intestate, except in the case of temporary administrator, when the bond shall be in such sum as the county judge may direct; provided, that such bond may be made by any corporation or corporations organized or created under the laws of this state, or foreign corporations permitted to do business in this state, for the purpose of issuing surety, guaranty or indemnity bonds, guaranteeing the fidelity of executors, administrators and guardians, and may be accepted by the county judge. [Acts 1876, p. 100. Acts 1897, p. 58.]

Not authorized to act until qualified.—An executor is not authorized to act under a will until he has qualified as required by law, and is not liable for failure to deliver legacies before he has qualified. Roberts v. Stuart, 80 T. 379, 15 S. W. 1108.

An executor appointed under a will authorizing him to sell land cannot act until the will is probated and he has qualified. Coy v. Gaye (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 441.

Amount of penalty.—The amount of the penalty which should be fixed in the bond of an administrator must be determined, not from the estimated value of the estate as set forth in the application for letters, but by the order of the court. Once fixed by the court granting administration, the presumption must obtain that the penalty specified in the bond was twice the value of the estate as estimated by the court. Williams v. Verne, 68 T. 414, 4 S. W. 548.

Contract for bond held void.—A party desiring to be appointed an administrator de bonis non was unable to give the requisite bond. He contracted with a firm of lawyers to pay them a certain sum if they would secure his appointment and obtain for him sufficient bond, the heirs agreeing to relinquish the administration in his favor. Held, that the contract was against public policy, and the inability of the applicant to procure a bond disqualified him to act. Aycock v. Braun, 66 T. 201, 18 S. W. 500.

Effect of record failing to show execution of bond.—When an acting executor has been recognized as such by the probate court, the fact that the records of the court do not affirmatively show that he had given bond as executor will not avoid his acts or those of the court, or render them subject to collateral attack. Moody v. Butler, 63 T. 210.

Presumption as to execution.—See note under Art. 3687.

Liability on bond.—In a suit by creditors of an estate against an executor and his sureties after his removal, the sureties are liable for all the assets that came into the hands of the executor and not accounted for, except that such rule may be varied by the sureties taking up a claim or claims against the estate, which entitles them to its pro rata share. Batsell v. Richards, 80 T. 505, 16 S. W. 313.

An administrator held properly chargeable with interest on funds of the estate misappropriated, at the highest legal rate. Thomas v. Hawpe, 35 C. A. 311, 80 S. W. 129.

An administrator's sureties held liable on his official bond for the administrator's conversion of a bank deposit given by intestate to plaintiff. Hill v. Escort, 38 C. A. 487, 86 S. W. 367.

A surety on the bond of an administratrix held liable for rents collected by her while in possession by virtue of her having executed a replevy bond. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Texas Land & Mortgage Co., 40 C. A. 489, 90 S. W. 197.

The liability of an administrator or executor carries with it necessarily the liability of his surety on his bond for the faithful performance of his duty. Wiseman v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 145.

An administrator and the sureties on his official bond held liable for the administrator converting property belonging to another. Id.

—— Surviving administrator.—A joint and several bond was executed in 1867. In 1869 a new bond was given. In 1879 one of the sureties on the last bond deposited with other sureties a large amount of property, and afterwards died. In 1872 one of the administrators died, largely indebted to the estate, and the administration was continued by the remaining administrator under the same bond, no steps having been taken to collect the debt. Held, that the surviving administrator and his sureties on the second bond were liable for any deficit existing before as well as after the execution of such bonds. Held, further, that an assignee of one of the heirs was the proper party plaintiff, and that the surviving sureties on the two bonds were properly made defendants. Keowne v. Love, 65 T. 152.

Conclusiveness of adjudication as to amount due.—Sureties of an administrator when sued for the failure of their principal to pay over as ordered by the court upon approval of final account are concluded by the orders of the court fixing the amount due the distributees. His failure to pay authorizes suit on the bond. Stewart v. Morrison, 81 T. 397, 17 S. W. 15, 26 Am. St. Rep. 821.

Action on bond.—In a suit on the bond by a creditor for maladministration, the district court has no power to set aside the orders of the probate court in approving claims. Sabrinos v. Chamberlain, 76 T. 624, 13 S. W. 634.

—— Who must institute.—Pending an administration the suit upon an administrator's bond should be brought by the administrator de bonis non; and if the estate has not been closed, the appointment of an administrator de bonis non is necessary in order to maintain the action. The heirs cannot prima facie maintain the suit. Peveler v. Peveler, 54 T. 53.

—— Can be brought, when.—An action on a bond cannot be brought until the close of the administration. Pending administration the remedy of parties is through the probate court. Hall v. McGehee, 34 T. 386; Buchanan v. Bilger, 64 T. 539.

Before suit can be brought against an administrator, the amount of his indebtedness must be ascertained and fixed by the county court. Houston v. Mayes, 77 T. 265, 13 S. W. 1036.

A creditor of an estate cannot sue on the bond of the executor while the administration is pending. Wiren v. Nesbitt, 85 T. 286, 20 S. W. 128. See Wilson v. Kyle, 35 T. 559.

—— Offset.—When suit is brought on a bond by the distributees of an estate, the defendants are entitled to credit for necessary outlays by the administrator in the maintenance of the distributees during their minority, and for expenses of administration including reasonable attorney's fees. The amount of the estate coming to the distributees, as well as their social condition, may furnish a guide in estimating such outlays. Johnson v. Hogan, 37 T. 77.

—— Limitation.—See Art. 5689.

—— Pleading and practice.—See Title 37.

Art. 3310. [1943] [1890] Form of bond.—The following form, or the same in substance, may be used for the bonds of executors and administrators:

"The State of Texas,

"County of ———

"Know all men by these presents, that we, A B as principal, and C D and E F as sureties, are held and firmly bound unto the county judge of the county of ———, and his successors in office, in the sum of ——— dollars; conditioned that the above bound A B, who has been appointed executor of the last will and testament of J C, deceased, (or has been appointed by the county judge of ——— county, administrator with the will annexed of the estate of J C, deceased, or, has been appointed by the county judge of ——— county, administrator of the estate of J C, deceased, or has been appointed by the county judge of ——— county, temporary administrator of the estate of J C, deceased, as the case may be), shall well and truly perform all the duties required of him under said appointment.

"A B,
"C D,
"E F."

[Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 101, sec. 34.]

Art. 3311. [1944] [1891] Oath and bond within what time.—The oath of an executor or administrator may be taken and subscribed, or his bond may be given and approved, either in term time or vacation, at any time before the expiration of twenty days from the probate of the will or the order granting the letters, or before his letters shall have been revoked for a failure to qualify within the time allowed. [Id. p. 101, sec. 33.]

Failure to file within time immaterial in collateral proceedings.—An administrator appointed in 1852 failed to give bond within twenty days after his appointment, but in giving bond thereafter his appointment was confirmed without objection. Held, that in a collateral proceeding the mere irregularity of his appointment cannot be held to vitiate his acts otherwise legal. Lewis v. Ames, 44 T. 319.

The failure to file the bond within the time prescribed by the statute is immaterial in a collateral proceeding, the appointment having been confirmed on the filing of the bond thereafter. Id.

Art. 3312. [1945] [1892] Bond shall be filed and recorded.—All bonds of executors and administrators when approved shall be filed with the clerk of the court and shall be recorded in the minutes of the court. [Id. p. 101, sec. 33.]

Art. 3313. [1946] [1893] When will provides that no bond shall be required.—When any testator shall direct in his will that no security shall be required of the person named therein as the executor, letters testamentary shall be issued to such person without any bond being required, except in the case provided for in article 3290 in which case bond is required, notwithstanding the will may provide to the contrary. [Id. p. 101, sec. 32.]

Effect on jurisdiction.—A provision in a will exempting the executor from giving bond does not withdraw the estate from the jurisdiction of the probate court. Lewis v. Nichols, 38 T. 54.

Unnecessary bond.—When a will directs that no bond shall be required, a bond voluntarily executed is without authority of law. A suit cannot be maintained on it as a common-law bond. Pierce v. Wallace, 48 T. 399.

Art. 3314. [1947] [1894] Bond of married woman.—When a married woman may be appointed executrix or administratrix, she may, jointly with her husband, or without her husband, if he be absent from the state, or insane, or refuses to join with her, execute such bond as the law requires and acknowledge the same before the county judge, county clerk or any notary public of the county where the will was proved or letters were granted; and such bond shall bind her separate estate in the same manner as if she were unmarried, but shall not bind her husband as surety unless he sign and be approved as such. [Id. p. 101, sec. 35. P. D. 5571.]

Art. 3315. [1948] [1895] Bond of a husband or wife who is a minor.—When a surviving husband or wife under twenty-one years of age shall wish to accept and qualify as executor or executrix, or administrator or administratrix, he or she may execute such bonds as the law requires and acknowledge the same before the county judge, county clerk or any notary public of the county in which the will was proved or letters of administration were granted, and such bonds shall be as valid as if he or she were of lawful age. [Id. p. 101, sec. 36.]

Art. 3316. [1949] [1896] When new bond may be required.—An executor or administrator may be required to give a new bond in the following cases:

1. When the sureties upon the bond or any one of them shall die, remove beyond the limits of the state, or become insolvent.
2. When, in the opinion of the county judge, the sureties upon any such bond are insufficient.
3. When, in the opinion of the county judge, any such bond is defective.
4. When the amount of any such bond is insufficient.
5. When the sureties or any one of them petition the court to be discharged from future liability upon such bond.
6. When the bond and the record thereof have been lost or destroyed. [Id. pp. 101, 102, secs. 37, 39.]

Construed.—The insufficiency in the amount of first bond being alleged formed a basis for the action of the court in requiring a new bond. That there is no order of record showing any prior proceedings to the approving of the second bond and entering an order releasing the sureties on the first bond does not affect the presumption in favor of the regularity of such order. Whether the facts existed which would justify the court to require a new bond cannot be inquired into in a collateral proceeding. Hines v. Givens, 29 C. A. 517, 68 S. W. 295.

The circumstances under which a new bond may be required of executors and administrators are fully prescribed in this article, and the same rules are made to apply to guardians by Art. 4107. The cases are when a surety or any of them die, remove from the State or become insolvent, when the judge thinks the sureties insufficient or the bond defective and when a surety petitions to be relieved from future liability. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 671.

Discretion of court.—A broad discretion is given the county judge over the subject of requiring or permitting new bonds to be given by a guardian or administrator. If one of the conditions in this article exists the judge is authorized to take a new bond. Moore v. Hanscom, 101 T. 293, 106 S. W. 878, 108 S. W. 150.

See Art. 4107.

Art. 3317. [1950] [1897] Duty of county judge to require new bond, when.—When it shall come to the knowledge of the county judge that any such bond is in any respect insufficient or that it has, together with the record thereof, been lost or destroyed, it shall be his duty without delay to cause the executor or administrator to be cited to show cause why he should not give a new bond.

Cannot decrease bond.—A county judge cannot decrease amount of bond of executors, administrators and guardians under any circumstances. The sole policy of the law in permitting changes to remedy defects and strengthen bonds is to protect estates rather than to accede to wishes of executors, etc. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S. W. 671.

Art. 3318. [1951] [1898] Any person interested in estate may demand new bond.—Any person interested in an estate may, upon application in writing filed with the county clerk of the county where the administration is pending, alleging that the bond of the executor or administrator is insufficient or defective, or has been, together with the record thereof, lost or destroyed, cause such executor or administrator to be cited to appear and show cause why he should not give a new bond. [Id. p. 102, sec. 38.]

Art. 3319. [1952] [1899] Sureties may ask to be discharged, and for new bond.—The sureties upon the bond of an executor or administrator, or any one of these, may, at any time, present a petition to the county judge praying that such executor or administrator may be required to give a new bond, and that he or they may be discharged from all liability for the future acts of such executor or administrator, whereupon such executor or administrator shall be cited to appear and give a new bond. [Id. sec. 39.]

Art. 3320. [1953] [1900] Citation to executor or administrator.—The citations required in the three preceding articles may be issued either in term time or in vacation, and shall require the party cited to appear before the county judge on some day named therein, not later than ten days from the date of such citation, either in term time or in vacation, and five days service thereof, exclusive of the day of service, shall be sufficient.

Art. 3321. [1954] [1901] Order requiring new bond.—Upon the return of any such citation served, the county judge shall, on the day named in such citation for the hearing of the matter, whether it be in term time or in vacation, proceed to inquire into the sufficiency of the reasons for requiring a new bond, and if satisfied that a new bond should be required he shall enter an order to that effect upon the minutes, stating in such order the amount of such new bond, and the time within which it shall be given, which shall not be later than twenty days from the date of such order. [Id. p. 102.]

Entry in vacation.—An entry, made by the judge in vacation, requiring the administratrix, survivor in community, to give additional security, does not affect her power to sell land afterwards; it being shown that the order was never entered on the minutes of the court. Green v. White, 18 C. A. 509, 45 S. W. 389.

Art. 3322. [1955] [1902] After order requiring new bond, functions of executor, etc., suspended.—Whenever an executor or administrator has been required to give a new bond, the order requiring such bond shall have the effect to suspend the powers of such executor or administrator, and he shall not thereafter pay out any money of said estate or do any other official act, except to preserve the property of the estate, until such new bond has been given and approved. [Id. p. 102, sec. 40.]

Art. 3323. [1956] [1903] Sureties discharged when new bond is approved.—When a new bond has been given and approved, the sureties upon the former bond of such executor or administrator are thereby discharged from all liability for the future acts of such executor or administrator, and an order to that effect shall be entered upon the minutes of the court. [Id. sec. 39.]

No discharge until approval.—The court cannot discharge the sureties on the original bond until the new bond has been filed and approved by the court. Miller v. Miller, 21 C. A. 382, 53 S. W. 362.

Art. 3324. [1957] [1904] Bond shall not be void on first recovery, etc.—The bonds of executors and administrators shall not become void upon the first recovery, but may be put in suit and prosecuted from time to time until the whole amount thereof shall have been recovered.

CHAPTER NINE

ISSUANCE OF LETTERS

Article 3325. [1958] [1905] Clerk shall issue letters, when.—Whenever an executor or administrator has been qualified in the manner required by law, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the court granting the letters testamentary or of administration to forthwith issue and deliver the letters to such executor or administrator. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 97, sec. 19.]

Duty ministerial to issue.—Upon the probate of a will it becomes the ministerial duty of the clerk of the court to issue letters testamentary to the person therein named as executor; and the judge has no discretionary power, upon objection by creditors, to refuse to issue letters to such person, unless such person is a minor or insane. Journeay v. Shook, 105 T. 551, 152 S. W. 809.

Art. 3326. [1959] [1906] What constitutes letters.—Letters testamentary or of administration shall be a certificate of the clerk of the court granting the same, attested by the seal of such court, and stating that such executor or administrator, as the case may be, has duly qualified as such as the law requires, the date of such qualification and the name of the deceased. [Id.]

Art. 3327. [1960] [1907] Letters and certificate of letters made evidence.—Such letters, or a certificate of the clerk of the court which granted the same, under the seal of such court, that such letters have been issued, shall be sufficient evidence of the appointment and qualification of an executor or administrator and of the date of such qualification. [Id. P. D. 1286.]

Letters prima facie evidence of death, when.—While, on an inquiry collateral to grant of administration on the estate of a person, such grant is not admissible to prove his death, it is prima facie evidence thereof, on an inquiry as to validity of the administration, depending on his death. Steele's Unknown Heirs v. Belding (Civ. App.) 148 S. W. 592.

Appointment, how proved.—See Art. 3711.

The appointment of an administrator may be shown by the records of the court recognizing him as such. Halbert v. Carroll (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1102.

Letters of one admissible against all.—See notes under Art. 3356.

Art. 3328. [1961] [1908] Letters shall issue to each one qualifying.—When two or more persons qualify as executors or administrators, letters shall be issued to each one of them so qualifying.

Art. 3329. [1962] [1909] Other letters may be issued, when.—When letters have been lost or destroyed, the clerk may issue other letters in their stead, which shall have the same force and effect as the original letters.

CHAPTER TEN

INVENTORY, APPRAISEMENT AND LIST OF CLAIMS

Article 3330. [1963] [1910] Appointment of appraisers.—Whenever letters testamentary or of administration shall be granted, the county judge shall, by an order entered on the minutes of the court, appoint three or more disinterested persons, citizens of the county, any two of whom may act, to appraise the estate of the deceased. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 103, sec. 43.]

Art. 3331. [1964] [1911] Same subject.—If from any cause such appointment be not made, or if the appraisers, or any of them so appointed, fail to act, or if from any other cause a new appointment is required, the county judge shall by a like order, either in term time or vacation, appoint another appraiser or appraisers, as the case may require.

Art. 3332. [1965] [1912] Inventory and appraisement.—Every executor or administrator shall, immediately after he has qualified as such, with the assistance of any two or more of the appraisers appointed by the county judge, make, or cause to be made, a full inventory and appraisement of all the estate of the testator or intestate, both real and personal, specifying in such inventory what portion of said estate is the separate property of the deceased, and what portion, if any, is represented as common property. [Id. p. 103, sec. 44.]

Time for inventory.—Sale held valid where an inventory was filed and approved more than seven years after the administrator qualified. Harris v. Shafer (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 110.

Effect of failure to file.—The failure to file an inventory does not discontinue an administration. Harris v. Shafer (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 110.

Property constituting assets—In general.—Where a surviving partner, with knowledge of a creditor, turned over partnership property to the deceased partner's administrator, it was held not a waiver of the right to compel an application of the property to firm debts. Levy's Estate v. Archenhold (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 46.

A deed conveying property to "the estate of E., deceased, his heirs and assigns," makes the land assets of E.'s estate. McKee v. Ellis (Civ. App.) 83 S. W. 880.

Administrator of deceased vendee held not entitled to treat proceeds of crops raised on the vendee's homestead subsequent to vendee's death as assets of the estate; and, as against donee of vendor's lien notes after maturity, the widow was entitled to a credit thereon for the amount realized by the administrator from the sale of the crops so turned over to him. McCord v. Hames, 38 C. A. 239, 85 S. W. 504.

An administrator of a donor held not entitled to a gift as against the donee, where there was neither allegation nor proof of the insolvency of the estate. Hill v. Escort, 38 C. A. 487, 86 S. W. 367.

An administrator or executor, coming into possession of property by virtue of his position, is estopped, while he holds possession, from disputing the title of his intestate or testator. Wiseman v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 145.

An executor or administrator, keeping money and treating it as funds of the estate, is estopped to deny the capacity in which they are held, where no other person has a better claim thereto, but as against one whom deceased defrauded, the proceeds of the property fraudulently obtained cannot be held for distribution among general creditors. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Wiseman, 103 T. 286, 124 S. W. 621, 126 S. W. 1109.

Securities held by a pledgee as collateral constitute no part of the pledgor's estate until the debts which they secure are paid, until which time it is not necessary for the pledgee to institute suit against the pledgor's representative to foreclose the lien. Clarke v. First State Bank of Dallas (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 203.

A wife's administrator was entitled to administer separate property left by her under the supervision of the probate court. Lanza v. Roe (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 571.

—— Homestead not assets though proper to include.—The rent of a homestead which falls due after the death of the father constitutes no part of the estate, and cannot be used for the payment of debts. Porter v. Sweeney, 61 T. 213.

If a constituent of a family survives, the homestead descends and vests absolutely in the heirs, and is not assets in the hands of the administrator subject to the payment of debts. Zwernemann v. Von Rosenberg, 76 T. 522, 13 S. W. 485; Stephenson v. Marsalis, 11 C. A. 162, 33 S. W. 383.

The homestead set apart to the widow and children does not become assets of the estate on its abandonment as a homestead. McAlister v. Godbold (Civ. App.) 29 S. W. 417.

It is proper to include the homestead in the inventory. The fact that it is included does not adjudicate or determine that the property is not the homestead of the lunatic's family. Griffin v. Harris, 39 C. A. 586, 88 S. W. 495.

—— Insurance policy.—An ordinary life insurance policy payable to the heirs of the assured forms no part of his estate for the payment of his debts, but vests absolutely in his heirs upon his death. Mullins v. Thomson, 51 T. 7; Splawn v. Chew, 60 T. 532. But it is otherwise in a life policy payable to the decedent or his order. White v. Smith, 2 App. C. C. § 401.

A life policy held to become, on death of assured, a part of his estate, to be administered according to the terms of his will. Schumacher v. Schumacher, 32 C. A. 497, 75 S. W. 50.

—— Land certificate.—A. was entitled under the colonization laws of Texas to a certificate for a league and labor of land, but died before the certificate was issued. Held, that the certificate subsequently issued under the special act of the legislature was an asset belonging to his estate and subject to administration. Neal v. Bartleson, 65 T. 478.

Certificate for headright issued under Act Feb. 9, 1850, became assets in hands of administrator. State v. Zanco's Heirs, 18 C. A. 127, 44 S. W. 527.

Land granted by the state to a party and his heirs inures to the grantee's estate as assets. Pendleton v. Shaw, 18 C. A. 439, 44 S. W. 1002.

In a suit to try title between grantees of a woman's heirs and grantees of her administrator, a certificate granted by the board of land commissioners held a part of her estate, and subject to administration, and not a donation to her heirs. Fields v. Burnett, 49 C. A. 446, 108 S. W. 1048.

Where, under an act of the legislature, the inchoate right to land certificates is in the estate of a certain person, a special act authorizing the issuance of land certificates to the heirs of such person will not take away the property from the estate and make a donation of it to the heir, but such special act was merely a renewal of the state's obligation, and the certificate was the property of the estate Bailie v. Western Live Stock & Land Co., 55 C. A. 473, 119 S. W. 325.

—— Land.—The fact that a deed for land sold under a decree in favor of an executor was taken in name of the heirs of his testator did not divest the land of its character as an asset of the estate in the hands of an executor. It simply took the place of the debt in satisfaction of which it was acquired. Bennett v. Kiber, 76 T. 385, 13 S. W. 220.

—— Property conveyed in fraud of creditors.—Property conveyed by a decedent in fraud of his creditors constitutes no part of his estate. It passes to his grantee, subject only to the right of his prior creditors, and no title descends to his heirs or vests in his executor or administrator. Willis v. Smith, 65 T. 656.

Sale of land not inventoried.—As to the authority of the probate court to order the sale of land not inventoried, query. Schmelz v. Garey, 49 T. 49.

An administrator's sale of land which has been sold by an intestate, and paid for, and which had not been inventoried, the vendee not being a party to the proceeding ordering the sale, conveys no title as against said vendee. Miller v. Rogers, 49 T. 398.

When an inventory has been returned which includes all the property in controversy, a sale thereof cannot be collaterally attacked because such inventory may not have been complete as to other property. Connellee v. Roberts, 1 C. A. 363, 23 S. W. 187.

Creditors can sue to set aside fraudulent conveyance.—Creditors must within the period prescribed by limitation in favor of the person in possession of land under deed, duly recorded, etc., institute their suit to set aside the conveyance made by the decedent in fraud of creditors. Calhoun v. Burton, 64 T. 510.

A creditor, after having established his claim in the probate court, may bring suit in the district court to subject property fraudulently conveyed by decedent to payment of the debt. Willis v. Smith, 65 T. 656.

—— Administrator cannot.—An administrator cannot maintain a suit to set aside a deed made by his intestate upon the ground that such deed was fraudulent as to creditors. Wilson v. Demander, 71 T. 603, 9 S. W. 678.

Conclusiveness and effect.—The inventory and appraisement of certain land as part of the estate of testator is prima facie evidence that the land was not his homestead. Hamm v. Hutchins, 19 C. A. 209, 46 S. W. 873.

An inventory is admissible to show the assets of an estate. Devine v. United States Mortg. Co. of Scotland (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 585.

Where a husband, as administrator of his deceased wife's estate, included in the inventory his own real estate, he was not thereby devested of title or estopped to deny the correctness of the inventory. Koppelmann v. Koppelmann, 94 T. 40, 57 S. W. 570.

An administrator is not bound by an inventory made by a former administrator, nor by one made by himself under a mistake as to the status of the property. Routledge v. Elmendorf, 54 C. A. 174, 116 S. W. 156.

Art. 3333. [1966] [1913] Appraisement shall be sworn to.—The appraised value of each article of property shall be stated opposite such article in the inventory; and such appraisement shall be sworn to and subscribed by the appraisers making the same before some officer of the county where the same is made authorized by law to administer oaths. [Id. p. 103, sec. 44.]

Art. 3334. [1967] [1914] List of claims.—Such executor or administrator shall also make and attach to said inventory a full and complete list of all claims due or owing to the testator or intestate, stating the nature of such claims, the names of the parties owing the same, the date thereof and the date when due, and the rate of interest each one bears, and shall also specify what portion of such claims is the separate property of the deceased, and what portion, if any, is represented as common property. [Id. p. 103, sec. 44.]

Art. 3335. [1968] [1915] Inventory and list shall be sworn to.—Such executor or administrator shall also attach to such inventory and list his affidavit in writing, subscribed and sworn to by him, before some officer of the county authorized by law to administer oaths, that the said inventory and list is a full and complete inventory and list of the property and claims of his testator or intestate that have come to his knowledge. [Id. p. 103, sec. 44.]

Art. 3336. [1969] [1916] Shall be returned within sixty days.—The inventory, appraisement and list required to be made by the preceding articles of this chapter shall be returned to the court granting the letters, either in term time or in vacation, within sixty days from the date of granting such letters. [Id. p. 103, sec. 45.]

Art. 3337. [1970] [1917] Court shall approve or disapprove same.—Upon the return of any such inventory, appraisement and list, it shall be the duty of the judge, either in term time or in vacation, to examine the same, and to either approve or disapprove the same. [Id.]

Art. 3338. [1971] [1918] Order of approval.—Should the inventory, appraisement and list be approved by the judge, he shall cause an order to that effect to be entered upon the minutes, either in term time or in vacation, and shall cause such inventory and list to be recorded upon said minutes.

Art. 3339. [1972] [1919] Order of disapproval.—Should the inventory, appraisement and list, or either of them, be disapproved, an order to that effect shall be entered upon the minutes, either in term time or in vacation, and such order shall further require the executor or administrator to return another inventory, appraisement and list, or either of them, within a time which shall be specified in such order, not to exceed ten days from the date of such order; and the judge may also, if he deems it necessary, appoint new appraisers.

Art. 3340. [1973] [1920] Duty of executor, etc., to make additional inventory.—Whenever property or claims of the testator or intestate other than such as may be included in the inventory and list, which have been returned, shall come to the knowledge of the executor or administrator, he shall make and return an additional inventory or list, or both, of such newly discovered property or claims, or both, without delay; and, upon the return of any such additional inventory, the county judge shall, either in term time or in vacation, appoint appraisers and cause the property named in such additional inventory to be appraised as in the case of original appraisements. [Id. p. 103, sec. 46.]

Jurisdiction.—The county court has no jurisdiction of issue of title raised by defendants on motion to compel administratrix to place certain land on inventory of estate. Miers v. Betterton, 18 C. A. 430, 45 S. W. 430.

Where land has been inventoried and appraised as property belonging to the estate of deceased, the county court has no jurisdiction to pass on the question of title raised by one claiming to own the land. Hamm v. Hutchins, 19 C. A. 209, 46 S. W. 873.

Newly discovered property.—This article expressly authorizes the return of an additional inventory of newly discovered property not included in the original inventory. Texas Loan Agency v. Dingee, 33 C. A. 118, 75 S. W. 868.

Art. 3341. [1974] [1921] May be cited to make, etc.—Any executor or administrator, on the complaint in writing of any person interested in the estate, shall be cited to appear before the court in which the administration was granted, at a regular term thereof, and show cause why he should not be required to make and return an additional inventory or list of claims, or both. [Id. p. 103, sec. 46.]

Jurisdiction.—In a proceeding the object of which is not to seek a moneyed judgment against the executor, but to require him to correct the inventory and appraisement so as to include property alleged to be in his possession, belonging to the estate, which he has failed to include therein, the county (probate) court has jurisdiction of the matter. Moore v. Mertz, 38 C. A. 283, 85 S. W. 314.

Petition—Description of property.—Where a petition to require an executor to present an additional inventory and appraisement of property of the estate, fails to specially describe the property alleged to be in the possession of the executor which he has failed to include in his inventory, and alleges the inability of the legatees to do so, it is a sufficient excuse for their failure to specifically describe the property. Moore v. Mertz, 38 C. A. 283, 85 S. W. 313.

Art. 3342. [1975] [1922] Order requiring additional inventory.—Upon the hearing of such complaint, the court shall, on sufficient proof being made that any property or claims of the estate have not been included in the inventory and list returned, require an additional inventory or list, or both, as the case may be, to be made and returned, including such property or claims, in like manner as original inventories and lists, and within such time as may be fixed by the court by an order to that effect entered upon the minutes. [Id. p. 103, sec. 46.]

Should order additional inventory, when.—If the proof shows that the executor has not included all the property of the estate in his inventory, on a petition of the legatees to require him to do so, it is the duty of the court to order him to correct the inventory and appraisement and include the property therein. Moore v. Mertz, 38 C. A. 283, 85 S. W. 313.

Art. 3343. [1976] [1923] Erroneous inventory or list may be corrected.—Any executor or administrator, on complaint in writing of any person interested in the estate, setting forth that an error has been made in the inventory or list of claims returned, and pointing out such error, shall be cited to appear at a regular term of the court and show cause why such alleged error should not be corrected; and, if upon the hearing of such complaint it appear to the satisfaction of the court that such inventory or list is in any particular erroneous, such error shall be corrected and an order to that effect shall be entered upon the minutes, specifying such error and the correction thereof.

Court cannot determine ownership of property.—Nor where there are conflicting claims between the estate and some other person to specific property. Wise v. O'Malley, 60 T. 588; Wadsworth v. Chick, 55 T. 241.

The probate court has no jurisdiction to determine, as between an administrator and the heirs, the ownership of property claimed by the heirs adversely to the administrator. Edwards v. Mounts, 61 T. 398; Timmins v. Bonner, 58 T. 555.

The fact that the court ordered the guardian to include the homestead in the inventory does not adjudicate or determine that the property is not the homestead of the lunatic's family. Griffin v. Harris, 39 C. A. 586, 88 S. W. 495.

Art. 3344. [1977] [1924] New appraisement may be required.—Any person interested in the estate who may deem any appraisement returned therein unjust or erroneous, may, upon complaint in writing, cause the executor or administrator to appear at a regular term of the court and show cause why a new appraisement should not be made. [Id. p. 104, sec. 48.]

Art. 3345. [1978] [1925] Order for same.—Upon the hearing of such complaint, if the court be satisfied that such appraisement was manifestly unjust or erroneous, an order shall be entered upon the minutes appointing appraisers and requiring a new appraisement to be made and returned in like manner as original appraisements. [Id.]

Art. 3346. [1979] [1926] New appraisement stands in place of original.—When any such new appraisement is made, returned and approved by the court, it shall stand in the place of the original appraisement of the same property. [Id. p. 104, sec. 48.]

Art. 3347. [1980] [1927] Not more than one reappraisement.—Not more than one reappraisement shall be made, but any person interested in the estate may contest the approval of any appraisement by filing his objections thereto in writing at any time before such appraisement has been approved by the court. [Id.]

Presumption.—Under this article and articles 4117–4119, held, to uphold the county judge in reducing a guardian's bond, it cannot be presumed that another inventory was taken, reducing the value of the estate. Moore v. Hanscom (Civ. App.) 103 S W. 665.

Art. 3348. [1981] [1928] Shall be evidence to what extent.—All inventories and appraisements and lists of claims which have been taken, returned and approved in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, or the record thereof, or certified copies of either the originals or the record thereof, may be given in evidence in any of the courts of this state in any suit, by or against the executor or administrator, but shall not be conclusive for or against him, if it be shown—

1. That there is other property belonging to the estate not inventoried; or,
2. That there are other claims belonging to the estate other than those named in the list; or,
3. That certain property or claims named in the list did not belong to the estate; or,
4. That the property was not separate or common property as specified in such inventory or list; or,
5. That the property or any part thereof was sold legally and in good faith for less than the appraised value thereof. [Id. p. 104, sec. 47.]

See White v. Sheppard, 16 T. 167; Little v. Birdwell, 21 T. 607, 73 Am. Dec. 242; Carroll v. Carroll, 20 T. 45; Bradshaw v. Mayfield, 18 T. 27; Willis v. Furguson, 46 T. 496; Campbell v. Cox, 1 App. C. C. § 526.

Necessity of approval of minor.—The admissibility in evidence of an inventory and appraisement in the probate court, relating to the estate of a minor does not depend on the approval of the proceedings by the minor. Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 739.

Art. 3349. [1982] [1929] Where more than one executor or administrator qualifies and some neglect to return inventory, etc.—If there be more than one executor or administrator qualified as such, any one or more of them, on the neglect of the others, may return an inventory and appraisement and list of claims as required by the provisions of this chapter; and the executor or administrator so neglecting shall not thereafter interfere with the estate or have any power over the same; but the executor or administrator so returning shall have thereafter the whole administration, unless within sixty days after the return the delinquent or delinquents shall assign to the court in writing and under oath some reasonable excuse which the court may deem satisfactory; and, if no such sufficient excuse shall be assigned within said time, an order shall be entered upon the minutes removing such delinquent or delinquents and revoking his or their letters. [Id. p. 98, sec. 23.]

CHAPTER ELEVEN

CERTAIN RIGHTS, DUTIES AND POWERS OF EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 3350. [1983] [1930] What care to take of property of estate.—It shall be the duty of the executor or administrator to take such care of the property of the estate of his testator or intestate as a prudent man would take of his own property, and if there be any buildings belonging to the estate it shall be his duty to keep the same in tenable repair, extraordinary casualties excepted, unless directed not to do so by an order of the court. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 104, sec. 49.]

See Jones v. Lee, 22 S. W. 386, 86 T. 25.

Reasonable care required.—An administrator or executor is charged with the duty of using reasonable care for the preservation of the property of the estate. Roberts v. Stuart, 80 T. 379, 15 S. W. 1108.

A surviving partner is not liable to his deceased partner's administratrix for the loss caused by depreciation of the assets administered by him with reasonable diligence. Gresham v. Harcourt, 93 T. 149, 53 S. W. 1019.

Expenses for repairs.—Where the surviving member of a firm owning a steam-mill, under order of the probate court, made certain repairs, an administrator de bonis non cannot repudiate the action of his predecessor without compensating the party injured for the loss incurred thereby. Cock v. Carson, 38 T. 284.

Not authorized to erect and improve.—In the absence of an order of court, administrator had no authority to contract in person, much less through an agent, for the digging of ditches, pools, for lumber, paint, selling land, hauling and building barns and sheds, and other such improvements. The contract for the improvements being clearly beyond the power of the administrator to make, there could be no ratification of it by the administrator when made by an agent. Rice v. Conwill, 35 C. A. 341, 80 S. W. 394.

Art. 3351. [1984] [1931] Duty in regard to plantation, manufactory or business.—If there be a plantation, manufactory or business belonging to the estate, and the disposition thereof is not specially directed by will, and, if the same be not required to be at once sold for the payment of debts, it shall be the duty of the executor or administrator to carry on the plantation, manufactory or business, or cause the same to be done, or to rent the same, as shall appear to him to be most for the interest of the estate. In coming to a determination, he shall take into consideration the condition of the estate and the necessity that may exist for future sale of such property for the payment of claims or legacies and shall not extend the time of renting any of the property beyond what may consist with the speedy settlement of the estate. [Id. sec. 104, p. 50.]

In general.—An estate held liable for debts incurred in the continuation of a testator's business. McMillan v. Hendrick's Estate (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 859.

An order of the county court for use of the "live stock" by the administrators in operating the plantation of the estate held not a postponement of a creditor's right to enforce her lien on a portion thereof. R. E. Stafford & Co. v. Dunovant's Estate (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 65.

Executors, who did not participate in the conduct of a business held not personally liable for any debt not incurred by testator. Eisenstadt Mfg. Co. v. Copeland (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 713.

Can carry on business.—If the deceased owned a business at the time of his death, the executor can carry on the business. Altgelt v. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 339, 340.

An independent executor may carry on the business of the testator, where there is no direction in the will for either carrying on or discontinuing the business, and he may borrow money for purpose of carrying on the business, and execute notes therefor and the estate of the testator will be liable therefor. Altgelt v. Alamo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 587.

In carrying on farming operations on plantation belonging to estate of deceased, the administrator can be granted by the court permission to use the live stock of the estate for that purpose. In granting such order the enforcement of a creditor's lien on the live stock is not thereby postponed. Stafford & Co. v. Dunovant's Estate (Civ. App.) 81 S. W. 66.

—— But not partnership business.—Executor cannot carry on the business of a partnership in which another owns an interest. Altgelt v. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 339, 340.

The word "business" in this article does not include partnership business. In the absence of any provision in the partnership agreement for the continuance of the business (in which the deceased was a partner), after the death of one of the partners, and in the absence of any provision in the will of the deceased partner empowering his executor to continue the business after his death, the executor has no authority to carry on the business, and thereby bind the estate by his acts in carrying on the business. Altgelt v. Alamo Nat. Bank, 98 T. 252, 83 S. W. 9.

Estate liable for expenses in carrying on.—An administrator who has carried on a plantation and paid out for that purpose sums of money and furnished articles is entitled to reimbursement therefor (Primm v. Mensing, 14 C. A. 395, 38 S. W. 382); and those having furnished the administrator with money or goods upon the credit of the estate to be used for such a purpose may establish their claims therefor against the estate, or, in the event they are rejected, suit may be instituted thereon in any court having jurisdiction (Reinstein v. Smith, 65 T. 247, distinguished from McMahan v. Harbert, 35 T. 452).

A claim incurred in the continuance of the business of a deceased party, though the estate by the will is taken out of the control of the court, the estate is liable therefor, the will providing for a continuance of the business. McMillan v. Hendrick's Estate (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 859.

Art. 3352. [1985] [1932] Action of executor, etc., in regard to plantation, etc., may be controlled by court.—Any person interested in the estate may, upon complaint in writing, after citation of the executor or administrator, at a regular term of the court upon good cause shown, obtain an order of the court, which shall be entered upon the minutes, controlling the action of such executor or administrator in regard to such plantation, manufactory or business. [Id. p. 104, sec. 50.]

Art. 3353. [1986] [1933] Ordinary diligence shall be used to collect claims and recover property of estate.—Every executor or administrator shall use ordinary diligence to collect every claim due to the estate he represents, and to recover possession of all property to which the estate has a right; provided, there is a reasonable prospect that such claim can be collected or such property recovered; and, if any executor or administrator shall neglect to use such diligence, he and the sureties on his bond shall be liable, at the suit of any person interested in the estate, for the use of the estate, for the amount of such claims or the value of such property as may have been lost by his neglect to use such diligence. [Id. p. 104, sec. 52.]

In general.—The personal estate of a testator is the primary source to which resort must be had to raise funds for the payment of legacies and debts, and such legacies and debts cannot be made a charge upon the real estate first, unless the evidence of such being the intention of the testator is clear. Arnold v. Dean, 61 T. 249.

An administrator is entitled to recover from an heir money in his hands belonging to the estate. Manchester v. Bursey, 41 C. A. 271, 91 S. W. 817.

An administrator, who placed a part of the estate in the hands of a surety on his bond, may recover the same, to enable him to pay claims against the estate. Downey v. Dennis (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 667.

The right of an administrator to prosecute a suit for personal injury to his decedent held not subject to collateral attack. Waggoner v. Sneed (Civ. App.) 138 S. W. 219.

Degree of diligence.—An administrator is not required to exercise any higher diligence than he could have exercised in his own business. Noble v. Jones, 35 T. 692.

Liability of executors and administrators.—If an executor acts strictly within the line of his duty, and does not exceed the limits of the discretion intrusted to him and is guilty of no fraud, he cannot be held responsible for any losses which may occur to the trust estate by his acts. Kennedy v. Briere, 45 T. 305; Finlay v. Merriman, 39 T. 56.

The rule of liability of all general executors and administrators is for all assets that have come into possession, or that might have been reduced to possession by the use of ordinary care; but they are not liable for negligence before they qualify except as to property in possession. Roberts v. Stuart, 80 T. 379, 15 S. W. 1108.

Allowance of credit on claim.—An administrator may properly allow without suit a credit on a claim due the estate which he knows to be just, and that it could be established as a credit if suit were brought on the claim. Stonebraker v. Friar, 70 T. 202, 7 S. W. 799.

Devastavit, what constitutes.—The sureties of an administrator are liable for his failure to deliver over to his successor on demand property shown to be in his possession and not accounted for after the date of his bond as administrator. Baldwin v. Dearborn, 21 T. 446; Grant v. McKinney, 36 T. 62; Johnson v. Morris, 45 T. 463. Overruling Murphey v. Menard, 11 T. 673; Johnson v. Hogan, 37 T. 77. Citing Boulware v. Hendricks, 23 T. 667; Grant v. McKinney, 36 T. 62. See, also, Mott v. Ruhenbuhl, 1 App. C. C. § 600.

To establish a devastavit it must be shown that the administrator either collected or could have collected the funds and has failed to account for same if collected. Mason v. Rodgers, 83 T. 389, 18 S. W. 811.

When money received by an administrator has been paid out in costs of administration and to the purchaser to pay whose claims the sale was made, he cannot be held for a devastavit.—Id.

An administrator substituting a note in place of one belonging to the estate is liable for a devastavit. Chapman v. Brite, 23 S. W. 514, 4 C. A. 506.

An administrator paying to a distributee more than his pro rata share of the estate is chargeable with the excess only. Walker v. Kerr, 27 S. W. 299, 7 C. A. 498.

Limitations on claims due runs from when.—See Art. 5708.

Art. 3354. [1987] [1934] Property may be purchased, compromises made, etc., under order of the court.—Whenever an executor or administrator may deem it for the interest of the estate he represents to purchase any property, or to exchange any property, or take any claims or property for the use and benefit of the estate in payment of any debt due the estate, or to compound bad or doubtful debts due the estate, or to make compromises or settlements in relation to property or claims in dispute or litigation, it shall be his duty to present an application in writing to the county court, at a regular term thereof, representing the facts; and, if the court upon the hearing of such application shall be satisfied that it will be for the interest of the estate to grant the same, an order to that effect shall be entered upon the minutes, setting forth fully the authority granted. [Id. p. 105, sec. 54. P. D. 5622.]

See, also, note under Art. 3233.

Executor compromising with own property.—When an executor makes a valid compromise of a debt against the estate of his testator by giving property belonging to him in his individual right, he is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the creditors against the estate. Lewis v. Nichols, 38 T. 54.

Unauthorized sale by administrator.—When an administrator without authority has sold notes and accounts belonging to the estate, for which the purchaser executed his note, that fact would constitute no defense to an action on the note, unless the defendant should return or offer to return the notes and accounts sold to him or otherwise account for them. Perry v. Booth, 7 T. 493; Claiborne v. Yeoman, 15 T. 44.

Locative contract.—An administrator under proper orders, and with the approval of the court, can make a valid locative contract, giving the locator a part of the land for his services. Murrell v. Wright, 78 T. 519, 15 S. W. 156; Wren v. Harris, 78 T. 349, 14 S. W. 696; Halbert v. De Bode (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 58.

Unauthorized novation.—The liability of one indebted to an estate is not discharged by an unauthorized novation of the contract by the administrator. Scott v. Atchinson, 36 T. 76. Without authority from the probate court an administrator has no power to accept an obligation of third parties in satisfaction of a debt due the estate. Edmonson v. Garnett, 33 T. 250.

Order not collaterally attackable.—Regularity of probate proceedings under which an administrator was authorized to purchase land in controversy held not subject to attack in trespass to try title by him. Spikes v. Howard, 51 C. A. 389, 111 S. W. 792.

Release of vendor's lien.—Executors held not empowered to surrender a note and release a vendor's lien securing it. Dealy v. Shepherd, 54 C. A. 80, 116 S. W. 638.

Foreign administrator.—See note at end of this chapter.

Art. 3355. [1988] [1935] Power to release mortgage.—When a mortgagee dies, his executor or administrator, on receipt of the amount due on the mortgage, is authorized to release such mortgage. [Id. p. 105, sec. 55. P. D. 5638.]

Art. 3356. [1989] [1936] Acts of one co-executor or co-administrator valid.—Should there be more than one executor or administrator of the same estate at the same time, the acts of one of them as such executor or administrator shall be as valid as if all had acted jointly; and, in case of the death, resignation or removal of an executor or administrator, if there be a co-executor or co-administrator of such estate, he shall proceed with the administration as if no such death, resignation or removal had occurred.

Applies to independent executors.—Sale of land, see notes under Art. 3374.

When one of two executors of an independent will refuses to qualify or act as such, the other one is authorized to act as if he was the sole appointed executor. Johnson v. Bowden, 43 T. 670; Anderson v. Stockdale, 62 T. 54; Mayes v. Blanton, 67 T. 245, 3 S. W. 40; Bennett v. Kiber, 76 T. 385, 13 S. W. 220.

When a testator bequeathed in trust to several executors and the survivor of them, as independent executors, and but one qualified, the others being still alive, the independent feature of the will must be disregarded, and the executor qualifying must administer the estate as in other cases under the orders of the probate court. The death of the coexecutor named is the sole event which can authorize the one qualified under such a will to administer the estate and execute the trust of the will free from the control of the probate court. Blanton v. Mayes, 58 T. 422.

This article also applies to executors who are charged with the execution of a will independent of the control of the probate court, and is not affected by the fact that the testator designated the executors named as joint executors, or that one of the executors died before testatrix. One being dead, the survivor could execute the trust alone. Anderson v. Stockdale, 62 T. 54.

Surviving administrator.—A will executed in 1866 appointed two joint executors with authority to manage and control the estate. One of the executors died during the life of the testatrix. Held, the general rule which required joint trustees to act together in the execution of a power has no application to executors appointed by will. Johnson v. Bowden, 43 T. 670; Blanton v. Mayes, 58 T. 422. And this rule applies to executors who are charged with the execution of a will independent of the control of the probate court. One being dead, the survivor can execute the trust alone. Anderson v. Stockdale, 62 T. 54.

A surviving administrator has authority to act. Saul v. Frame, 22 S. W. 984, 3 C. A. 596.

A surviving administrator may act alone. Saul v. Frame, 26 S. W. 984, 3 C. A. 596.

Power under a will given to two executors held to authorize a sale by the survivor of them. McCown v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 54.

A discretionary power of sale to two executors held to survive on the death of one of them. Terrel v. McCown, 91 T. 231, 43 S. W. 2.

Letters of one admissible against all.—The letters of one of several executors in regard to the business of the estate are admissible in evidence against all. Armstrong v. O'Brien, 83 T. 635, 19 S. W. 268. See Johnson v. Bowden, 43 T. 671; Blanton v. Mayes, 58 T. 426; Anderson v. Stockdale, 62 T. 60; Mayes v. Blanton, 67 T. 245, 3 S. W. 40; Roberts v. Connellee, 71 T. 11, 8 S. W. 626; Blanton v. Mayes, 72 T. 418, 10 S. W. 452; Bennett v. Kiber, 76 T. 385, 13 S. W. 220; McDonald v. Hamblen, 78 T. 628, 14 S. W. 1042; Eskridge v. Patterson, 78 T. 417, 14 S. W. 1000.

Art. 3357. [1990] [1937] Preceding article does not apply, when.—The preceding article shall not be construed to authorize one of several executors to convey real estate, but in such case all the executors who have qualified as such and who are acting as such shall join in such conveyance.

All must join in deed.—A less number than all of the executors who have qualified cannot by deed convey title to testator's land. Dean v. Furrh (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 431.

Decisions Relating to Subject in General

Foreign executors and administrators.—A foreign administrator may assign by indorsement a negotiable promissory note, the property of the estate, and the indorsee may maintain suit in the state in his own name upon such note. Abercrombie v. Stillman, 77 T. 589, 14 S. W. 196; Solinsky v. National Bank, 82 T. 244, 17 S. W. 1050.

A foreign administrator has no authority to compromise a debt due his decedent, secured by a vendor's lien retained on land, without an order of the probate court giving him permission. Smith v. Pate (Civ. App.) 43 S. W. 312.

An administrator, alleging appointment by court of another state, cannot maintain an action on notes belonging to decedent's estate. Hynes v. Winston (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 1069.

Sales by foreign executors validated.—See Art. 3246.

CHAPTER TWELVE

ADMINISTRATION UNDER A WILL

Article 3358. [1991] [1938] Directions in will to be executed, unless, etc.—When a will has been probated, its provisions and directions shall be executed, unless the same are annulled or suspended by order of the court probating the same in a proceeding instituted for that purpose by some person interested in the estate. [P. D. 5623.]

See Berry v. Hindman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1181; Hughes v. Mulanax, 105 T. 576, 153 S. W. 299.

In general.—Failure to provide, in judgment enforcing trust for maintenance, out of net revenue of devised lands, that, if revenue become insufficient in future to discharge trust, devisee may on motion recall execution, held erroneous. McCreary v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 682.

In suit to enforce trust for maintenance out of net income of devised lands, expense of manager for lands held proper item to be deducted in arriving at net income. Id.

Authority conferred on an executor by will held sufficient to authorize him to make an agreement for the partition of a land certificate belonging to the testator. Hall v. Reese's Heirs, 24 C. A. 221, 58 S. W. 974.

Executors held to take a legal title to an estate in trust for devisees. Matthews v. Darnell, 27 C. A. 181, 65 S. W. 890.

Testamentary trust held not defeated by incompetency of trustee. Willis v. Alvey, 30 C. A. 96, 69 S. W. 1035.

An executor held empowered by will to bind estate by note given for money borrowed to pay debts, and to hypothecate note of estate as security. Prieto v. Leonards, 32 C. A. 205, 74 S. W. 41.

Executrix held to have authority to incur reasonable and proper expense in the management and disposition of the estate in accordance with terms of the will. Dyer v. Winston, 33 C. A. 412, 77 S. W. 227.

A provision in a will held not to authorize the executor of a testator to continue a partnership in which the testator was a partner. Altgelt v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 333.

A provision in a will relieving the executor from executing a bond held not to devest the county court of the control of the estate. Gray v. Russell, 41 C. A. 526, 91 S. W. 235.

A will held to impliedly authorize the executors to execute all necessary releases of liens against the real estate held for the beneficiaries. Thomas v. Matthews, 51 C. A. 304, 112 S. W. 120.

Where property was devised in trust to be equally divided by trustees on the death of testator's widow, testimony of the trustee to his willingness to make partition did not present a finding of unreasonable delay by him in making partition; there being nothing to prevent partition after the widow's death. Davis v. Davis, 51 C. A. 491, 112 S. W. 948.

A single testamentary trustee held authorized to partition land among devisees in accordance with the provisions of the will, though he himself would take under the division.—Id.

In addition to the powers given by the probate court, executors have only such powers as are conferred by the will. Wisdom v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1128.

A child married at her father's death cannot complain of any nonperformance of a trust for the education and support of unmarried children, attached to a bequest to the widow of revenues during her life. Autrey v. Stubenrauch (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 531.

An executor who carries on a testator's business under authority of the will and uses the profits in payment of rightful charges is not personally liable to a creditor of the business for misappropriation. Eisenstadt Mfg. Co. v. Copeland (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 713.

Complainant was not barred by laches from maintaining suit to enforce a resulting trust as to land obtained by complainant's brother while acting as administrator of their father's estate, where defendant had continually recognized complainant's right in the land and until a short time before suit had repeatedly promised to adjust the same. Nuckols v. Stanger (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 931.

No relation to title.—The provisions of this article and of Art. 3361 have no relation to questions of title to property devised or bequeathed. They necessarily presuppose that the title to the estate covered by the will was in the testator at the time it was executed or at his death—the time from which the will speaks. They can only relate to such analogous provisions and directions of the will as are referred to in Arts. 3369, 3371, and 3374. Allardyce v. Hambleton (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 835.

Nature of proceedings to annul.—The proceedings to annul a will under this and succeeding articles are separate and distinct proceedings after the will has been probated. Prather v. McClelland, 76 T. 574, 13 S. W. 543.

Under this article contestants of a will cannot attack specific provisions as invalid in the proceeding for probate, but must institute separate proceedings for that purpose. Thornton v. McReynolds (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 1144.

Appointment of executor by will.—A will appointed executors and contained a request that they should serve until the testator's son and heir became twenty-one years of age. Held, that such clause cannot be construed into an appointment of the son as executor when he should become twenty-one years old. Frisby v. Withers, 61 T. 134.

Refusal to appoint executor named not annulment.—The refusal of the county court to appoint the person named as executor was not an annulment of the provision of the will, within this article, for which a special proceeding was required; such provision being limited to provisions and directions of the will, which are to be "executed" as distinct from the provisions appointing the person to execute them. Shook v. Journeay (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 406.

Persons entitled to contest will.—See notes under Art. 3256.

Art. 3359. [1992] [1939] Proceedings to annul directions in will.—Such proceeding shall be by application in writing, filed with the clerk of the court, setting forth the provisions and directions in the will that are objected to and the grounds of objection.

Applies to independent will.—An independent will can be annulled under this article. Prather v. McClelland, 76 T. 574, 13 S. W. 543.

Title not involved.—Title to property, real or personal, cannot be determined in proceedings to annul. Allardyce v. Hambleton (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 835.

Art. 3360. [1993] [1940] Citation to executor, etc., in such case.—Upon the filing of such application, the clerk shall issue a citation for the executor or administrator with the will annexed to appear at a regular term of such court and answer such application, the substance of which application shall be set forth in the citation; and such citation shall further direct such executor or administrator to refrain from executing the provisions and directions in the will that are objected to, until such application has been heard and decided by the court.

Executor only party who must be cited.—In proceedings under the provisions of Arts. 3358–3361, the executor or administrator with the will annexed is the only party required to be cited to answer the application to have clause in will annulled. Allardyce v. Hambleton (Civ. App.) 68 S. W. 835.

Art. 3361. [1994] [1941] Order of the court in such case.—If it appear upon the hearing of such application that no material injury to the interests of the applicant will be occasioned by executing the provisions and directions of the will, and that such provisions and directions are legal, the objections shall be overruled, and the provisions and directions objected to shall be confirmed and executed, and an order to that effect shall be entered upon the minutes; otherwise an order shall be entered upon the minutes of the court annulling the provisions and directions in the will to which objections are sustained, or suspending the execution of the same until the further order of the court.

Art. 3362. [1995] [1942] Testator may provide that no action be had in the court, except probate of will, etc.—Any person capable of making a will may so provide in his will that no other action shall be had in the county court in relation to the settlement of his estate than the probating and recording of his will, and the return of an inventory, appraisement and lists of claims of his estate. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 124, sec. 117.]

Notice of acts of independent executor.—The possession of executrix under an independent will is notice to the creditor of the heir of acts done by her in the management of the estate. Wimberly v. Bailey, 58 T. 222.

Words necessary and sufficient to withdraw.—In a will the words, "I wish my estate to be kept out of the probate court," are in substantial compliance with this article. Pierce v. Wallace, 48 T. 399.

A simple direction in a will that no bond should be required of the executors does not withdraw the estate from the probate court. Smithwick v. Kelly, 79 T. 564, 15 S. W. 486; Lewis v. Nichols, 38 T. 54.

A will dispensing with the requirements of the statute relating to the return of inventory, etc., will have effect as to other provisions not in conflict with the statute. Patten v. Cox, 29 S. W. 182, 9 C. A. 299.

A will that provides that the executors shall not be required to give any security, nor required to procure any orders from the county court or any other court for the management of the estate, but shall manage same without interference of any court except that they shall have the will probated and shall file an inventory of the property and from year to year a report showing the condition of the property which may be seen by creditors and heirs, brings the will within the provisions of this article, although it does not say that no other action shall be taken in the county court than the probating of the will and filing an inventory, appraisement and list of claims. The direction in the will that the executors file a report from year to year showing the condition of the estate was not intended as any restriction on the exercise of the powers granted the executors, nor was it intended to give the court supervision over the acts of the executors in the administration of the estate. The will provided for what is known as an independent administration. Epperson v. Reeves, 35 C. A. 167, 79 S. W. 846, 847.

A will failing to provide that no other action shall be taken in the county court than the return of an inventory and appraisement is not an independent will. Glover v. Coit, 36 C. A. 104, 81 S. W. 136.

A will provided that testatrix's husband should be executor without bond and should have power to do all things necessary in settling the estate, as provided in the will. Testatrix owned seven separate tracts in the state aggregating 7,313 acres, 4,418 acres of which, worth $36,000, were in H. county and the rest in another county. Part of the H. county land was mortgaged to secure a community indebtedness. Held that, construing the will most favorably to the executor, it was very doubtful whether testatrix desired her estate to be administered independent of the county court, and the doubt must be resolved in favor of its supervisory jurisdiction, and hence the executor could not sell without an order of the court any part of testatrix's land to discharge the mortgage indebtedness. Berry v. Hindman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1181.

Though an executor was authorized by will to sell and convey certain land, he cannot as such executor be authorized to administer the estate independent of the probate court. Allen v. Reilly (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1152.

A will containing a clause directing the executrix to take immediate possession of the estate, without any action of the probate court other than to probate the will, provides that the estate shall be administered under this article. Journeay v. Shook, 105 T. 551, 152 S. W. 809.

A will directed the executor unequivocally to pay all the testator's just debts, and provided that after he should have qualified in the manner prescribed by law, and under the provisions of the will, he should in all things act as to him might seem best for the interest of the estate, independent of the control of any probate court, except as to making reports, thus showing an intention to remove the estate in most respects from the jurisdiction and control of the probate court. Other provisions also tended to show this intention; but the will also provided that the executor should make annual reports, as such, to the proper probate court, which should be acted on by the court in the same manner as the reports of other executors, and provided for the giving of a bond in a specified amount, and that the executor should continue to act under a good and sufficient bond in such sum during the pendency of the executorship. Held, that the will did not remove the estate from the jurisdiction and control of the probate court, since the will contained conflicts in its provisions, which should be resolved in favor of the court's jurisdiction; and hence the court had power to authorize the executor to sell the real estate to pay debts. Hughes v. Mulanax, 105 T. 576, 153 S. W. 299.

Does not deprive court of power to annul.—This article does not deprive the court of power to annul a will under Arts. 3358–3361. Prather v. McClellan, 76 T. 574, 13 S. W. 543.

Insolvency of testator.—Insolvency, it seems, does not disable a testator from exercising the power conferred by this article. Shackleford v. Administratrix of Gates, 35 T. 781.

"Independent executor."—Though not so designated by the statute, an executor acting under a will providing that no action shall be taken by the county court, other than probating and recording the will, is in legal phraseology termed an independent executor, and a probate court has no jurisdiction over the estate so long as he executes his trust. Ellis v. Mabry, 25 C. A. 164, 60 S. W. 572.

Jurisdiction—Ceases upon qualification and return of inventory.—After the executor, or one of two executors, has qualified, filed an inventory, etc., the probate court has no jurisdiction over him so long as he continues to discharge the trust. Holmes v. Johns, 56 T. 41; Bennett v. Kiber, 76 T. 385, 13 S. W. 220.

The qualification and return of inventory by one of the executors named in a will which provides for independent action under it, after return of inventory, has the effect of withdrawing the administration of the estate and the execution of the will from the control of the probate court. Roberts v. Connellee, 71 T. 11, 8 S. W. 626.

—— Allowance of claim void.—The allowance by the probate court of a claim against an estate in the hands of executors with power under the will to administer, etc., is without jurisdiction and void as against the estate. McLane v. Belvin, 47 T. 493; Evans v. Taylor, 60 T. 422.

—— Effect of failure to file inventory.—The mere failure to file an inventory will not affect the title to property acquired in good faith from one acting as executor. Campbell v. Cox, 1 App. C. C. § 526; Willis v. Ferguson, 46 T. 496; Cooper v. Horner, 62 T. 356.

Probate cannot be dispensed with.—The probate of the will cannot be dispensed with, but a will containing such a provision is valid in all other respects. Patten v. Cox, 29 S. W. 182, 9 C. A. 299.

The statute does not restrict the matters pertaining to the estate that may be left in the hands of the county court by the terms of the will, but merely designates those matters that cannot be dispensed with by a will. Epperson v. Reeves, 35 C. A. 167, 79 S. W. 846, 847.

Management under independent will is "an administration."—The management of the estate of a deceased person, and the disposition of property by executors acting under a will, withdrawing the estate from the control of the probate court, is, within the meaning of the law, "an administration." Todd v. Willis, 66 T. 704, 1 S. W. 803.

Powers of independent executor.—An independent executor is entitled to the custody of the estate for the purpose of paying debts, although the sole devise has lapsed by the death of the devisee. Moore v. Bryant, 10 C. A. 131, 31 S. W. 223.

An independent executor can do whatever the court could authorize to be done if the estate were under its entire control. Roy v. Whitaker, 92 T. 346, 48 S. W. 892, 49 S. W. 367.

One furnishing money to an independent executor of a decedent for the purpose of carrying on decedent's business held not required to see that the executor appropriated the same to the business, or to inquire whether the business is carried on at a loss or profit. Altgelt v. Alamo Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 582.

An independent executor, who borrows money to carry on the decedent's business and executes notes therefor, may give renewal notes in lieu of the originals.—Id.

A note executed by an independent executor before he qualified held valid, where he subsequently paid interest thereon and recognized its validity.—Id.

An independent executor has authority to carry on a mercantile business of the estate of the testator. Altgelt v. Oliver Bros. (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 29.

If, when a tender of payment of a note is made to an independent executrix, the administration of the estate is pending, she may receive the payment and execute all necessary instruments thereto without reference to her husband; but otherwise if the estate has been settled. Stevens v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 102 S. W. 791.

An independent executrix, making an advancement in part payment of a claim, held entitled to a credit therefor. Mattingly v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 483.

Where executors are empowered to act independently of the probate court, they may close the administration, or surrender all or any portion of the property to the heirs or devisees, without formality of judicial sanction, and the same legal consequences follow. Parks v. Knox (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 203.

Regulated by common law, when.—See Art. 3233.

—— Discretionary powers.—As to the discretionary powers of an independent executor, see Dwyer v. Kalteyer, 68 T. 554, 5 S. W. 75.

—— To mortgage.—An independent executor has the common-law power to mortgage, where in the exercise of a sound discretion such is for the best interest of the estate. Stevenson v. Roberts, 25 C. A. 577, 64 S. W. 235.

—— To sell property.—See Art. 3374.

—— To employ attorney, when.—An independent executor may employ an attorney to assist in the settlement of the estate, paying him a reasonable compensation for services rendered. The claim for such services must be paid as part of the expenses of administration, and is entitled to a preference over debts contracted by the deceased, and such claim remains as a like charge against the estate in the hands of an administrator de bonis non. Callaghan v. Grenet, 66 T. 236, 18 S. W. 507.

Effect of delivery of property to distributees.—When representatives empowered to act independently of the probate court distribute any portion of the estate to heirs or devisees, they cannot thereafter administer it for benefit of creditors. Parks v. Knox (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 203.

On death of independent executor, court resumes control.—When the testator bequeaths in trust to several executors and the survivor of them as independent executors, but one only of them qualifies, the others being still alive, the independent feature of the will must be disregarded, and the executor qualified must administer the estate as in other cases under the orders of the probate court. The death of coexecutors named is the sole event which can authorize the one who qualifies under such a will to administer the estate and execute the trust of the will free from the control of the probate court. Blanton v. Mayes, 58 T. 422; Johnson v. Bowden, 43 T. 670; Hart v. Rust, 46 T. 556; McLane v. Belvin, 47 T. 493.

Where a will takes the estate from the management of the probate court, the court cannot appoint an independent administrator with the will annexed, though the will so provides, as successor of the executors named in the will. The law requires the court in case of a vacancy in such an estate to resume entire control of the administration. In re Grant's Estate, 93 T. 68, 53 S. W. 372.

Art. 3363. [1996] [1943] Creditor may sue executor in such case.—In the cases mentioned in the preceding article, any person having a debt or claim against said estate may enforce the payment of the same by suit against the executor of such will; and, when judgment is recovered against the executor, the execution shall run against the estate of the testator in the hands of the executor that may be subject to such debt; but no such executor shall be required to plead to any suit brought against him for money until the expiration of twelve months from the date of the probate of such will. [Id. p. 124, sec. 117.]

Constitutionality.—This article is not repugnant to the constitution because it allows the property of an estate to be disposed of through proceedings of other courts than those having probate jurisdiction. Epperson v. Reeves, 35 C. A. 167, 79 S. W. 847.

Application.—Property in the hands of the executor is subject to execution in the same manner as any other property administered under a power. Lemmel v. Pauska, 54 T. 505. When an estate has been delivered to the devisees a creditor of the testator may bring suit against the devisees. Reynolds v. McFadden, 36 T. 129.

It is not necessary before suit to present a claim for allowance, or in a suit thereon, to allege that the executor has assets. Smyth v. Caswell, 65 T. 379; Pleasants v. Davidson, 34 T. 459; Black v. Rockmore, 50 T. 88.

When the estate is insolvent this article must yield to Art. 3235, by which the property of the testator is declared a trust fund, and the judgment creditor must be denied the right to sell the property of the testator under execution and apply it to his own debt to the exclusion of other creditors. To allow one creditor to subject the property to the payment of his debt to the exclusion of other creditors is inconsistent with and subversive of the rights of other beneficiaries in the trust. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank v. Bell, 31 C. A. 124, 71 S. W. 570.

This statute does not apply to suits pending at time of the death of the testator, but to suits on claims that are instituted against the estate, where by the terms of the will the estate is taken out of the control of the county court. Altgelt v. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 339.

This article applies where the estate is insolvent as well as where it is solvent, so far as the establishment of a claim by judgment is concerned. Hartz v. Hausser (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 65.

Twelve months' privilege.—An independent executor appointed under a will is not required to plead in any suit brought against him for money until the expiration of twelve months from the date of the probate of the will.

If an executor appears and pleads before the expiration of the twelve months he waives his statutory privilege. Lemmel v. Pauska, 54 T. 505.

A judgment rendered against an executor on a moneyed demand before the year had expired is voidable only. Woolley v. Sullivan, 92 T. 28, 45 S. W. 377, 46 S. W. 629.

An executor, sued before the expiration of 12 months after his testator's death, held to have waived the right given by this article, relating to the time an executor shall be required to answer. Altgelt v. D. Sullivan & Co. (Civ. App.) 79 S. W. 333.

The right of executors to a year from their appointment within which to plead is in the nature of a personal privilege, and the entry of a judgment within the year does not render it void. Ross v. Drouilhet, 34 C. A. 327, 80 S. W. 241.

By pleading to the merits, an executrix, as defendant, waived her statutory right to not plead until after 12 months from the probate of the will. Hagelstein v. Blaschke (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 718.

Actions to set aside fraudulent conveyance.—A creditor of the decedent in an action against the executors of his will to set aside a fraudulent conveyance of property by the testator must show that he has a valid claim against the estate, and that as to his debt the conveyance was fraudulent and constituted a substantial impediment to the collection of his debt. The facts entitling such party to recover being established, judgment should be against the executrix for the amount of the debt; and against the claimant under the fraudulent mortgage canceling it for so much of the property as might be necessary when levied on and sold to satisfy the plaintiff's judgment. Kerr v. Hutchins, 46 T. 384.

A legatee may maintain an action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance to one with notice. Thomson v. Shackelford, 24 S. W. 980, 6 C. A. 121.

Suit by guardian.—The guardian of a minor may bring suit in the district court to recover the estate of the ancestor, alleging that all the debts had been paid, and that the executor had for years been using the money belonging to said estate for his own benefit. Jerrard v. McKenzie, 61 T. 40.

Judgments against independent executors.—See Art. 2005.

Art. 3364. [1997] [1944] Executor without bond may be required to give bond, when.—In cases where no bond has been required of an executor, any person having a debt, claim or demand against the estate, to the justice of which oath has been made by himself, his agent or attorney, or any person interested in such estate, whether in person or as the representative of another, may, by complaint in writing filed in the court where such will was probated, cause such executor to appear before such court at some regular term and show cause why he should not be required to give bond as such executor. [Id. p. 124, sec. 117.]

See Journeay v. Shook, 105 T. 551, 152 S. W. 809.

Sufficiency of citation.—A citation under this article is sufficient if it advises the party to whom it is directed of the nature of the proceedings against him. It is not required that it shall state fully the grounds on which relief is sought. Perkins v. Wood, 63 T. 396.

Art. 3365. [1998] [1945] Order requiring bond.—Upon the hearing of such complaint, if it be made to appear by proof to the satisfaction of the court that such executor is wasting, mismanaging or misapplying such estate, and that thereby said creditor may probably lose his debt, or such person his interest in the estate, it shall be the duty of the court to enter an order upon the minutes requiring such executor to give bond within ten days from the date of such order. [Id. p. 124, sec. 117.]

See Journeay v. Shook, 105 T. 551, 152 S. W. 809.

Art. 3366. [1999] [1946] Bond in such case.—Such bond shall be signed by the executor with two or more good and sufficient sureties for an amount equal to double the full value of the estate, to be approved by, and payable to, the county judge of the county, conditioned that said executor will well and truly administer such estate, and that he will not waste, mismanage or misapply the same; which bond shall be filed, and, when approved by the county judge, shall be recorded in the minutes, and may be recovered upon as other bonds given by executors and administrators. [Id. p. 125, sec. 117.]

See Journeay v. Shook, 105 T. 551, 152 S. W. 809.

Art. 3367. [2000] [1947] Should executor fail to give required bond.—Should such executor fail to give such bond within ten days after the order requiring him to do so, then it shall be the duty of the county judge, without citation, and either in term time or in vacation, to remove such executor and appoint some competent person in his stead, whose duty it shall be to administer said estate according to the provisions of such will, and who, before he enters upon the administration of said estate, shall take the oath required of executors and shall give the bond required in the preceding article. [Id. p. 125, sec. 117.]

Failure to give bond.—See Art. 3393 et seq.

An executor cannot be removed in the first instance, nor until he has failed to give bond as required in Art. 3366. Perkins v. Wood, 63 T. 396.

In default of bond, creditors may force an administration. Kauffman v. Wooters, 79 T. 205, 13 S. W. 549.

Art. 3368. [2001] [1948] Estate may be partitioned and divided by court, when.—If such will does not distribute the entire estate of the testator, or provide a means for partition of said estate, the executor shall have the right to file his final account in the court in which the will was probated, and ask partition and distribution of the estate; and the same shall be partitioned and distributed in the manner provided for the partition and distribution of estates administered under the direction of the court. [Id. p. 125, sec. 117.]

See Shiner v. Shiner, 90 T. 414, 38 S. W. 1126.

In general.—When a will provides for the distribution of an estate and the means for its partition, the county court has no power to pass on the propriety of its administration by the executor, to allow him extra compensation for his services, or to discharge him from further liability. Lumpkin v. Smith, 62 T. 249.

Executors with power to act independently of the probate court may legally, independent of judicial decree, relinquish authority over the estate, and a consent decree for distribution embodies an agreement as binding as a judgment to the same effect, in passing their possessory rights, and must be regarded as having received their full assent as entered. Parks v. Knox (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 203.

Being authorized by will to administer an estate independently of the probate court, executors could determine for themselves when they would surrender their rights and powers over the estate to the distributees.—Id.

Art. 3369. [2002] [1949] Heirs, etc., may be required to give bond, when.—When it is provided in a will that no action shall be had in the county court, except to probate and record the will and return an inventory of the estate, any person having a debt against such estate may, by complaint in writing filed in the court where such will was probated, cause all the persons entitled to any portion of such estate under the will or as heirs at law to be cited to appear before such court at some regular term and execute an obligation, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, for an amount equal to the full value of such estate as shown by the inventory and list of claims, such obligation to be payable to the county judge, and to be approved by him, and conditioned that the obligors shall pay all debts that may be established against such estate in the manner provided by law. [Id. p. 126, sec. 123.]

Remedy not exclusive.—Creditors may require the devisees, legatees or heirs to give bond, but this remedy is not exclusive. The devisee or legatee becomes liable for debts to the extent of the value of the debt-paying assets received by him, but a creditor's lien does not follow the property in the hands of another. Kauffman v. Wooters, 79 T. 205, 13 S. W. 549.

Art. 3370. [2003] [1950] Upon failure to give bond estate shall be administered under direction of the court.—Upon the return of the citation served unless such persons so entitled to any portion of the estate, or some of them, or some other person for them, shall execute such obligation to the satisfaction of the county judge, such estate shall thereafter be administered and settled under the direction of the court as other estates are required to be settled. [Id. p. 126, sec. 123.]

See Hughes v. Mulanax, 105 T. 576, 153 S. W. 299.

Art. 3371. [2004] [1951] Bond shall be filed and recorded.—If the obligation, provided for in article 3369 is executed and approved, it shall be filed and recorded in the minutes of the court, and no further action shall be had in said court in relation to said estate, except in the case mentioned in article 3368, in which case the action therein provided for may be had. [Id.]

See Hughes v. Mulanax, 105 T. 576, 153 S. W. 299.

Art. 3372. [2005] [1952] Creditor may sue on bond, etc.—Every creditor of such estate shall have the right to sue on such obligation in any court having jurisdiction of the debt, and shall be entitled to judgment thereon for such debt as he may establish against the estate, or such creditors may have their action against those in possession of the estate. [Id.]

See Hughes v. Mulanax, 105 T. 576, 153 S. W. 299.

Art. 3373. [2006] [1953] Costs of such proceeding to be paid by whom.—All costs of the proceedings, provided for in the four last preceding articles, shall be paid by the persons entitled to such estate, according to their respective interests in such estate. [Id.]

Art. 3374. [2007] [1954] Executor may sell property without order of court, when, etc.—Whenever in a will power is given to an executor to sell any property of the testator, no order of the county judge shall be necessary to authorize the executor to make such sale, and, when any particular directions are given by a testator in his will respecting the sale of any property belonging to his estate, the same shall be followed, unless such directions have been annulled or suspended by order of the court as hereinafter provided. [Id. p. 113, sec. 82.]

In general.—The executors may in the exercise of their powers sell property for the payment of debts of an estate or the discharge of any trust directly or exclusively committed to them by the will. They may determine when to surrender the estate to the heirs or devisees free from any claim thereto for the purpose of administration. And upon such delivery of the estate to the devisees it ceases to be assets in the hands of the executors, but passes to the devisees subject to the debts of the estate. Under the judgment against such executors subsequent to the delivery of the estate to the devisees, the estate so delivered is not subject to execution; and a sale under such judgment of such estate would pass no title. But the purchaser at such sale, the purchase-money having been applied to the discharge of a valid judgment, is entitled to be subrogated to the rights of the creditor, and may pursue the assets in the hands of the devisees. McDonough v. Cross, 40 T. 251; Jones v. Smith, 55 T. 383; Burns v. Ledbetter, 54 T. 374.

An executor free from the control of the county court may sell any property of the estate without an order of court when necessary for the payment of debts. Howard v. Johnson, 69 T. 655, 7 S. W. 522.

It is the duty of an independent executor, when necessary to pay debts which can only be paid by sale of personal property, to sell and liquidate them. As a trustee it is his duty to exercise good faith and deal fairly towards the devisees, and to preserve to them their land as far as duty to creditors would permit. See the opinion for facts pleaded with reference to which the above doctrine is announced. Fortune v. Killebrew, 70 T. 437, 7 S. W. 759.

An executor can sell and convey land when so authorized by the will. De Zbranikov v. Burnett, 10 C. A. 442, 31 S. W. 71.

The claim of an independent executor against an estate held insufficient to authorize a sale of the land. Freeman v. Tinsley (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 835.

Where a will provides that an estate shall be administered outside the court, and gives the executor power to sell land to pay debts, the burden is on the heirs to show that there was no debt when the executor made certain deeds. Terrell v. McCown, 91 T. 231, 43 S. W. 2.

This article simply relieves the executor of the necessity of applying to the court for leave to sell and applies only to sales where the power to sell is given by will. It does not confer a power to sell. Stevenson v. Roberts, 25 C. A. 577, 64 S. W. 234.

See Art. 3358.

In the absence of a power contained in the will, the executor has no power to sell real estate except to pay debts. Coy v. Gaye (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 441.

Where a will does not authorize the independent executrix to sell real estate, a purchaser from her has the burden of proving that at the time of the sale such conditions existed as would authorize the probate court to order a sale. Haring v. Shelton, 103 T. 10, 122 S. W. 13.

Where a testator desired that the county court assume no other control over his estate than to probate his will and record an inventory of the property, and expressly exempted the executors from giving bonds, and authorized them to sell at their discretion any of testator's land, the executors might sell without qualifying as such by giving bonds, and without being directed by the probate court to sell. Dean v. Furrh (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 431.

A trustee has no inherent power to sell the trust property, having only such powers as are given by the instrument either expressly or by clear implication. Wisdom v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1128.

Where the wife was appointed executrix with another, and the other died, her remarriage held not to terminate a power of sale to pay debts of the estate, given by the will. Holman v. Houston Oil Co. of Texas (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 885.

Rule of construction.—The language of a will giving authority to trustees will be strictly construed so as to keep the powers to be exercised clearly within the limits intended to be prescribed. Kennedy v. Pearson (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 280.

A more liberal rule obtains in construing wills in determining the powers of testamentary trustees than in construing powers of attorney. Wisdom v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1128.

Wills construed and held to empower or not to empower executors or trustees to sell realty.—The power conferred to manage and control an estate until the majority of the heirs, and then to divide the estate with its accumulations between them, does not confer on the executors the power to convey land. Blanton v. Mayes, 58 T. 422; Id., 67 T. 245, 3 S. W. 40.

A will executed in 1875 bequeathed to executors named therein all the personal estate, in trust for the payment of the debts of the testator, and provided that no bond should be required of them. It gave to named legatees all the residue of the estate, real, personal and mixed; required the filing of an inventory of the estate by the executors; and provided that neither the probate nor any other court should have any jurisdiction over the estate, except to probate and register the will. The will, after providing for the education and support of the minor heirs out of the personal property, gave to the executors power, in terms, "to take possession of all of said estate and manage and control and dispose of the same for the interest and benefit of the legatees under this will, and the payment of debts as hereinbefore specified." Held: (1) The existence of debts authorized a sale of the real estate to pay them, the personal property being insufficient for that purpose, and the purchaser of land from the executors was not bound to follow the money paid by him to see that it was applied to the payment of debts. (2) The desire expressed, that in no event should the estate be subjected to the jurisdiction of the courts in its administration, required a construction of its provisions which would invest the executors with power to sell land to pay debts when such sale was necessary, and when a resort to the courts would result in ordering such sale. (3) Where the general intent of the testator is clear, and it is impracticable to give effect to all the language of the will expressive of some particular or special intent, the latter must yield to the former, but every expressed intent of the testator must be carried out when it can be. (4) The general intent of a will overrules all mere technical and grammatical rules of construction. (5) The purchaser of real estate from the executors, acting under a power to sell for the payment of debts, is not bound, for his protection, to see that there are debts. (6) If the suit be brought to recover back the property, a general allegation that debts existed to authorize the sale, without specifying them, is good on general demurrer. Cooper v. Horner, 62 T. 356. And see Baldridge v. Scott, 48 T. 178.

A trustee held to have authority to convey land. Whatley v. Oglesby (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 44.

A will authorizing an independent executor to take charge of an estate and manage it for the benefit of creditors held to empower him to pay debts, and sell the property of the estate therefor. Carleton v. Hausler, 20 C. A. 275, 49 S. W. 118.

A will held to empower the executor to sell all of the estate not specifically devised during the lifetime of testator's widow. Holmes v. Sanders (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 333.

Where will declared that executor should manage estate to best advantage for benefit of creditors, executor held to have power to sell the property for benefit of creditors. Carlton v. Goebler, 94 T. 93, 58 S. W. 829.

An executor held to have power under the will, without an order of court, to transfer land belonging to the estate in payment for services rendered to him as executor. Baker v. Hamblen (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 467.

The right given to trustees under a will to control and manage property for a limited time does not carry with it the power of alienation. Kennedy v. Pearson (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 280.

A will held to give the executrix power to sell land of the estate for the purpose of keeping, maintaining, and educating testator's children. Connely v. Putnam, 51 C. A. 233, 111 S. W. 164.

A will construed and held to authorize the trustees to sell real estate to pay debts, taxes, and expenses of administration. Haldeman v. Openheimer (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1158.

Under a will the executors held authorized to sell without giving bonds and being directed by the probate court to sell. Dean v. Furrh (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 431.

Testamentary trustees held not to have power to sell the trust property to pay debts and legacies. Haldeman v. Openheimer, 103 T. 275, 126 S. W. 566.

Executors held authorized by the will to mortgage land, irrespective of the existence of debts or the necessities of the heirs, so that the mortgagee was not bound to see that the loan was appropriated as provided in the will. Tomlinson v. H. P. Drought & Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 262.

Under the provisions of a will, held that executors as testamentary trustees were authorized to sell any realty for five years after their appointment, whether or not such sales were necessary to pay indebtedness against the estate. Wisdom v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1128.

Provisions of a will creating a testamentary trust held not to authorize the trustees to sell realty on credit. Id.

A will, construed in view of the circumstances, held not to make an executor an independent executor, so as to authorize him to sell any part of the estate to pay an indebtedness without an order of court. Berry v. Hindman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1181.

Power of executor to delegate power to sell.—Power given to executor by will to sell land cannot be delegated. McCown v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 54; Terrell v. McCown, 91 T. 231, 43 S. W. 2.

An executor having discretionary power of sale cannot ratify sales made by his attorney in fact. McCown v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 54.

Where an executor has discretionary power of sale he may authorize conditional sales by agent. Id.

A power of attorney given by an executor, having discretionary power to sell land, held valid. Terrell v. McCown, 91 T. 231, 43 S. W. 2.

Executrix held to have power to specially authorize an agent to contract for payment of a commission for the sale of land for an amount fixed by her. Dyer v. Winston, 33 C. A. 412, 77 S. W. 227.

Executrix held to have power to ratify and adopt as her own agreement one made by a person assuming to act for her in the sale of real estate. Id.

Executrix held not to have power to delegate to an agent authority to agree, at his discretion, with a subagent on the amount of commission the latter should receive for sale of land. Id.

Power of one of two or more joint executors.—See Art. 3356.

When a trust is executed by one of several joint executors with the consent and approbation of the others, or when the other subsequently ratify a sale made by one under the trust, the act of the single executor will be binding upon the estate. Giddings v. Butler, 47 T. 535.

Blanton v. Mayes, 58 T. 426, Johnson v. Bowden, 43 T. 670, and Anderson v. Stockdale, 62 T. 54, reviewed, and the doctrine adhered to that if only one of two independent executors named in a will qualifies, and debts against the estate exist, he may make a valid sale of the assets of the estate to pay them; if no debts exist, the executor would have no authority to sell under a will which only authorizes a sale to pay debts. Roberts v. Connellee, 71 T. 11, 8 S. W. 626. See Mayes v. Blanton, 67 T. 245, 3 S. W. 40.

When on the death or resignation of the executors named in a will an administrator de bonis non with the will annexed is appointed, he may administer the estate in accordance with the will under orders of the proper court; but he cannot exercise any of the discretionary powers conferred by the will on the administrators. Frisby v. Withers, 61 T. 134; Tippett v. Mize, 30 T. 361, 94 Am. Dec. 313; Vardeman v. Ross, 36 T. 111.

The general rule requiring joint trustees to act together in the execution of a power has no application to executors appointed under this article. It is immaterial that the executors are named in the will as joint executors, or that one of the executors dies before the testatrix; one being dead the survivor can execute the trust alone. Anderson v. Stockdale, 62 T. 54.

A discretionary power of sale to two executors held to survive on the death of one of them. Terrell v. McCown, 91 T. 231, 43 S. W. 2.

Execution of power.—Conveyances made by executors to pay debts need no approval by the court and derive no validity therefrom. Holmes v. Johns, 56 T. 41.

When an executrix is authorized by a will to convey property only when advised so to do by other persons named in the will and for the payment of debts, it is not necessary that the consent of the executory advisers appear on the face of the deed. It may be proved by parol, and when, with their consent, the sale was made to pay debts, the equitable title vests in the purchaser. The homestead may be sold by the executrix under such authority. Brown v. McConnell, 56 T. 229.

Where a will authorizes a sale of land to pay debts, the executors must follow the law governing the sales under order of courts. McCown v. Terrell (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 54.

Evidence held to show execution by executor of his power to sell testator's land. Terrell v. McCown, 91 T. 231, 43 S. W. 2.

An executor, appointed under a will authorizing him to sell real estate, cannot act until the will is probated and he has qualified. Coy v. Gaye (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 441.

A beneficiary having only a contingent interest under a will creating a trust held not entitled to complain of a sale by the trustees of the property when authorized by the will. Haldeman v. Openheimer (Civ. App.) 119 S. W. 1158.

A sale of property by testamentary trustees on credit was invalid, where the will did not authorize a sale on credit. Wisdom v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 1128.

Rights and liabilities of purchasers.—See Art. 3245.

Art. 3375. [2008] [1955] Personal property reserved from sale by will.—If a testator in his will directs his personal estate, or any part thereof, not to be sold, the same shall be reserved from sale, unless such sale be necessary for the payment of debts. [Id. p. 130, sec. 146.]

Art. 3376. [2009] [1956] Administration under will same as intestates' estates, except, etc.—The administration of an estate under a will shall in all respects be governed by the provisions of the law respecting the administration of intestates' estates, except where it is otherwise provided by law or by the provisions and directions of the will.

In general.—It is doubtful if this article was intended to apply to independent executors. It rather applies to a judicial administration by an administrator under the will or by an executor without independent powers. Stevenson v. Roberts, 25 C. A. 577, 64 S. W. 234.

An independent executrix has the power to do, without an order of the county court, every act which an executor administering an estate under control of the court could do with such order. Ellis v. Howard Smith Co., 35 C. A. 566, 80 S. W. 633.

Art. 3377. [2010] [1957] Legatee or devisee may obtain order for delivery of legacy or bequest, when and how.—Any devisee or legatee may obtain from the county judge of the county where the will was proved an order for the executor or administrator, with the will annexed, to deliver to him the property devised or bequeathed, whenever it shall appear to such county judge that there will remain in the hands of such executor or administrator, with the will annexed, after such delivery, a sufficient amount of the estate for the payment of all debts against said estate; provided, such devisee shall have first caused the executor or administrator, and the other devisees or legatees, if any, and the heirs, if any, of the estate is coming to them, to be cited to appear and show cause why such order should not be made. [Id. p. 110, sec. 70.]

Order for delivery of legacy.—An order for the delivery of a legacy from which no appeal is prosecuted vests title thereto in the legatee, and his heirs take the same by inheritance. Hudgins v. Leggett, 84 T. 207, 19 S. W. 387.

In action by heirs against independent executrix, allowance to heirs of shares of stock in corporation carrying on business of estate held proper. Japhet v. Pullen (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 441.

Art. 3378. [2011] [1958] Naming an executor in a will does not release him from a debt, etc.—The naming an executor in a will shall not operate to extinguish any just claim which the deceased had against him; and, in all cases where an executor or administrator may be indebted to his testator or intestate, he shall account for the debt in the same manner as if it were so much money in his hands; provided, however, that if said debt was not due at the time of receiving letters, he shall only be required to account for it from the date when it shall become due. [Id. p. 105, sec. 53.]

Construed.—In view of this article, an obligation due the estate from an executor, pending administration, stands on the same basis as one accruing before he was appointed, and hence devisees cannot recover it pending the administration. Berry v. Hindman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1181.

CHAPTER THIRTEEN

SUBSEQUENT EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS

Article 3379. [2012] [1959] Subsequent administrator under a will shall succeed to rights of executor, etc.—When an administrator of the estate not administered has been, or shall be hereafter, appointed, he shall succeed to all the rights, powers and duties of the former executor or administrator, except such rights and powers conferred on the former executor by the will of the testator as are different from those conferred by this title on executors generally. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 98, sec. 24.]

Appointment.—See notes under Art. 3291.

Collateral attack.—The validity of an appointment under this article cannot be questioned in a collateral proceeding, unless it appears affirmatively to be illegal. Chapman v. Brite, 23 S. W. 514, 4 C. A. 506; Saul v. Frame, 22 S. W. 984, 3 C. A. 596.

Effect of conveyance.—A distributee under a will was appointed administrator de bonis non with the will annexed, and with the widow of the testator conveyed lands belonging to the estate of one of the heirs in satisfaction of a debt due from the administrator. The deed recites that it was made by virtue of authority contained in the will; no order of court was shown. Held, that the deed was sufficient to pass the interest of the widow and devisee who executed the conveyance. Frisby v. Withers, 61 T. 134.

Neither estate nor administrator held estopped to claim, as against the purchasers, land sold by former executor to carry out a compromise of a will contest. Coy v. Gaye (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 441.

Neither an estate nor its executor can be held a constructive trustee of the legal title for purchasers from an executor who had no authority to sell; but, if necessary, the purchasers may be held as trustees in invitum for the benefit of the estate. Id.

Art. 3380. [2013] [1960] Powers of subsequent administrator.—Such administrator shall have power to make himself party to all suits prosecuted by the former executor or administrator of the estate, and may be made a party to all suits prosecuted against the former executor or administrator of the estate. He shall have power to settle with the former executor or administrator of the estate, and to receive and receipt for all such portion of the estate as remains in his hands. He shall have power to bring suit on the bond or bonds of the former executor or administrator, in his own name as administrator, for all the estate that has not been accounted for by such former executor or administrator. [Id.]

Duties extend only to unadministered portion.—The duties of an administrator de bonis non extend only to the estate not administered. Todd v. Willis, 66 T. 704, 1 S. W. 803.

—— Property fraudulently conveyed is unadministered.—When in the ordinary administration of an estate by an administrator or executor, or in an independent administration under Art. 3362, property has been disposed of in a manner and upon terms which operated as a fraud upon creditors as well as distributees, such property, as against any person participating in the transaction or cognizant of it, as unadministered, and an administrator de bonis non can institute proper proceedings to set aside the sale and to recover the property for the benefit of the estate. Todd v. Willis, 66 T. 704, 1 S. W. 803, citing and reviewing De Witt v. Miller, 9 T. 248; Cochran v. Thompson, 18 T. 652; Parson v. Burditt, 26 T. 157, 80 Am. Dec. 649; Giddings v. Steele, 28 T. 748, 91 Am. Dec. 336; McDonald v. Alford, 32 T. 36; Brown v. Franklin, 44 T. 564.

An administrator de bonis non may maintain an action to recover the proceeds of a note which has been fraudulently disposed of by a former administrator. Williams v. Verne, 68 T. 414, 4 S. W. 548.

May maintain action on bond—In district court.—See notes under Art. 3207.

Devastavit.—See notes under Art. 3353.

—— Pleadings.—See Art. 1827 (144).

Limitation of action on bond of executor. See Art. 5689.

Art. 3381. [2014] [1961] How subsequent administration shall proceed.—Such administrator shall proceed to administer such estate in like manner as if his administration was a continuation of the administration of the former executor or administrator, with the exceptions hereinbefore named. [Id.]

Continuance of former administration.—Construing this chapter, it was held that it was the purpose of the legislature to make a subsequent administration but the continuance of the former one, and to enable the administrator de bonis non to recover of his predecessor, whether he was an administrator or an independent executor, such property and funds as remained in his hands, and also any loss resulting to the estate from his maladministration. Dwyer v. Kalteyer, 68 T. 554, 5 S. W. 75.

Art. 3382. [2015] [1962] Same as to executor after administration.—Whenever an executor shall accept and qualify as such after letters of administration shall have been granted upon the estate, such executor shall, in like manner, succeed to the previous administrator, and he shall proceed to administer the estate in like manner as if his administration was a continuation of the former one, subject, however, to any legal directions of the testator contained in his will, in relation to the estate. [Id.]

Art. 3383. [2016] [1963] Inventories, etc., to be returned in one month.—An executor or administrator who has been qualified as such to succeed a prior administrator or executor shall make and return to the court an inventory and appraisement and list of claims of the estate, within one month after being qualified, in like manner as is required of original executors and administrators; and they shall also in like manner return additional inventories and lists of claims. [Id. p. 98, sec. 24.]

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

WITHDRAWING ESTATES FROM ADMINISTRATION

Article 3384. [2017] [1964] Persons entitled to estate may cause executor or administrator to be cited, etc.—At any time after the return of inventory, appraisement and list of claims of a deceased person, any one entitled to a portion of said estate, as heir, devisee or legatee, or his guardian, if he be a minor, may, by a complaint in writing, filed in the court where such inventory, appraisement and list of claims have been returned, cause the executor or administrator of the estate to be cited to appear at some regular term of the court and render an exhibit under oath of the condition of such estate. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 126, sec. 124.]

Exhibit should show what.—The exhibit should show the exact condition of the estate, and all claims of the administrator should be then ascertained by exceptions to the exhibit, by evidence, or restatement of the account if necessary. Houston v. Mayes, 77 T. 265, 13 S. W. 1036.

Persons claiming adversely to administrator.—A person claiming an estate adversely to the administrator cannot contest his right by an application to deliver the estate under this article. Wadsworth v. Chick, 55 T. 241.

Art. 3385. [2018] [1965] May give bond to pay debts of estate, etc.—Upon the return of such citation served, the persons so entitled to such estate, or any of them, or any persons for them, may execute and deliver to the county judge an obligation payable to him, with two or more good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by such county judge, for an amount equal to at least double the appraised value of the estate as ascertained by the appraisement and list of claims returned, conditioned that the persons who execute such obligation shall pay all the debts against the estate not paid that have been allowed by the executor or administrator and approved by the county judge, or that have been established by suit, or that may be established by suit against said estate, and will pay to the executor or administrator any balance that may be found to be due him by the judgment of the court on his exhibit. [Id.]

Art. 3386. [2019] [1966] Bond shall be filed and recorded and order of court thereon.—When the bond provided for in the preceding article has been given and approved, it shall be filed and recorded in the minutes of the court; and the court shall thereupon enter an order upon the minutes directing and requiring the executor or administrator to deliver forthwith to such person or persons the portion or portions of such estate to which he or they are entitled. [Id.]

Delivery to whom.—It is not clear from this article whether the delivery is to be made only to such persons as apply, or to each of the distributees of the portion to which he is entitled. If the whole of the estate is disposed of to the party giving the bond with the concurrence of the other heirs, and the creditors were secured by the statutory bond and lien, the administrator had no right to complain. Objections by the heirs must be made at the time and in the manner provided by statute. Houston v. Mayes, 66 T. 297, 17 S. W. 729.

Duty to discharge administrator.—On the withdrawal of the estate from the court, it is the duty of the judge to discharge the administrator without a prayer to that effect. Houston v. Mayes, 66 T. 297, 17 S. W. 729.

Art. 3387. [2020] [1967] Partition may be had of estate.—Any of the persons so entitled to any portion of the estate may, on application in writing to the court, cause a partition and distribution of such estate to be made among the persons entitled thereto, in accordance with the provisions of this title respecting the partition and distribution of estates. [Id.]

Art. 3388. [2021] [1968] Lien on property in hands of distributees.—A lien shall exist on all of said estate in the hands of the distributees, and those claiming under them, with notice of such lien, to secure the ultimate payment of the aforesaid obligation. [Id.]

Art. 3389. [2022] [1969] Creditor whose claim has been allowed, etc., may sue on bond.—Any creditor of such estate whose claim is yet unpaid, and which claim has been allowed by the executor or administrator previous to the filing of such obligation, and approved by the county judge or established by suit against the executor or administrator previous to the filing of such obligation, shall have the right to sue on such obligation in his own name, and shall be entitled to judgment thereon for the amount of his claim. [Id.]

May sue upon bond of distributee.—A creditor remaining unpaid may sue upon the bond given under Art. 3386, and, in that event, the obligees are liable for all the unpaid debts of the estate, or he may sue any or all of the distributees who have taken any of the estate; but in this case the recovery against any distributee will be proportioned according to the estate he may have received in the distribution. One who, claiming as heir, has received a part of the estate cannot deny his liability. Thomas v. Bonnie, 66 T. 635, 2 S. W. 724; Art. 3391.

Art. 3390. [2023] [1970] Other creditor may sue and recover, to what extent.—Any other creditor of such estate whose claim is not barred by the laws of limitation shall have the right to sue on such obligation, and shall be entitled to judgment thereon for such debt as he may establish against the estate. [Id.]

Art. 3391. [2024] [1971] Creditor may also sue distributee.—Any creditor may sue any distributee, or he may sue all the distributees together, who have received any of the estate; but no one of such distributees shall be liable beyond his just proportion according to the estate he may have received in the distribution. [Id.]

In general.—See notes under Arts. 3235, 3389, 3456.

The liability of an heir, devisee or legatee is commensurate with the amount received, and extends as well to debts allowed and approved as to those which have not been recognized as debts of the succession, all of which may be sued for and collected in the district court. Montgomery v. Culton, 18 T. 736; State v. Lewellyn, 25 T. 799; Yancey v. Batte, 48 T. 46; Webster v. Willis, 56 T. 468.

When the claim is barred by failure to present it to the administrator or to bring suit upon it if rejected, it is barred against the heirs as well as the administrator notwithstanding its payment was secured by a lien on lands. Gaston v. Boyd, 52 T. 282.

In a suit against heirs, a judgment is in personam to the extent of property received by them from the estate of their ancestors. But no lien can be established upon land received by them from their ancestor, nor can an order be made for its sale in satisfaction of the judgment. Webster v. Willis, 56 T. 468; Mayes v. Jones, 62 T. 365.

A creditor of a solvent estate of the decedent upon which no administration has been had may maintain an action against the heirs, each being liable to the extent of his proportionate share of the estate. Buchanan v. Thompson's Heirs, 23 S. W. 328, 4 C. A. 236, citing Patterson v. Allen, 50 T. 26; McCampbell v. Henderson, 50 T. 601; Webster v. Willis, 56 T. 468; Mayes v. Jones, 62 T. 365; Schmidtke v. Miller, 71 T. 103, 8 S. W. 638; Low v. Felton, 84 T. 378, 19 S. W. 693. See Frost v. Smith's Heirs (Civ. App.) 24 S. W. 40.

A creditor of a decedent may assert a lien on his land after it has passed into the hands of distributees. Devine v. United States Mortg. Co. of Scotland (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 585.

Where administration had been closed on the estate of a deceased joint bondsman prior to the institution of a suit for a breach of the bond, the heirs of the deceased bondsman were liable for the breach. Allen v. Stovall, 94 T. 618, 63 S. W. 863, 64 S. W. 777; Stovall v. Allen, Id.

In an action on an account for pasturage allotted to plaintiff on the partition of the estate of her deceased husband, plaintiff held liable for the husband's breach of contract of pasturage. Hill v. Herndon (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 813.

Must show proportion received by distributee.—In an action against a distributee who has received a part of the estate, the plaintiff must show what proportion of the estate he received. Thomas v. Bonnie, 66 T. 635, 2 S. W. 724.

Art. 3392. [2025] [1972] Order discharging executor or administrator and closing estate.—When an estate has been withdrawn from further administration under the provisions of this chapter, an order shall be entered upon the minutes discharging the executor or administrator and declaring the administration closed.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

REMOVAL OF EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS

Article 3393. [2026] [1973] In what cases may be removed without notice.—Executors and administrators may be removed by the county judge without notice, at a regular term of the court, by an order entered on the minutes of the court, in the following cases:

1. When they neglect to qualify in the manner and within the time required in this title.

2. When they neglect to return to the court an inventory and appraisement and list of claims of the estate, in the manner and within the time required in this title.

3. When they have been required to give a new bond and neglect to do so within the time prescribed by the court.

4. When they absent themselves from the state for a period of three months at one time, without permission of the court.

5. In such other cases as are specially provided for in this title. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 99, sec. 26.]

Art. 3394. [2027] [1974] In what cases may be removed with notice.—Executors and administrators may be removed by the county judge on his own motion, or on the complaint of any person interested in the estate, after being cited to answer such motion or complaint at a regular term of the court, in the following cases:

1. When there shall appear sufficient grounds to believe that they have misapplied, embezzled or removed from the state the property, or any part thereof, committed to their charge, or that they are about to misapply, embezzle or remove from the state any of such property.

2. When it is proved that they have been guilty of gross neglect, or mismanagement in the performance of their duties as such executors or administrators.

3. When they fail to obey any order of the court consistent with this title, made in relation to the estate committed to their charge.

4. When an executor or administrator becomes of unsound mind, or from any other cause is incapable of performing the duties of his trust.

5. When they fail to make an annual exhibit fully showing the condition of the estate they represent, or fail to make to the court any exhibit they are required to make by law.

6. When they fail to make a final settlement for three years after the grant of letters, unless the time be extended by the court, after satisfactory showing being made under oath. [Acts 1881, p. 31.]

Cited, Shook v. Journeay (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 406; Journeay v. Shook, 105 T. 551, 152 S. W. 809.

On court's own motion.—This article authorized the county court, of its own motion, to remove one administrator and appoint another in his place. Kuck v. Dixon (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 910.

Legality of order disobeyed cannot be questioned.—The legality of an order cannot be tested by the administrator resisting an order removing him for disregarding such previous order. The remedy as to the disputed order is by appeal or certiorari. Wright v. McNatt, 49 T. 425.

Causes for removal.—A nonresident may be appointed administrator of estate, but he must come to Texas and attend to the settlement of the estate, and if he absent himself from the state for three months he may be removed. Stevens v. Cameron, 100 T. 515, 101 S. W. 792.

Where an administrator after appointment and qualification did no further act for a series of years, the court, on application showing that the estate was unadministered, that there were claims against it, and that real estate belonging to it was claimed by others, was authorized to remove the original administrator and appoint a successor. Kuck v. Dixon (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 910.

Art. 3395. [2028] [1975] Citation need not be served, when.—In the cases enumerated in the preceding article, when proof is made that the executor or administrator has removed from the state, or is eluding the process of the court, the motion or complaint may be heard, though the citation be not served. [Id. p. 99, sec. 27.]

Art. 3396. [2029] [1976] Order of removal shall set forth cause.—In all cases when an executor or administrator is removed, an order to that effect shall be entered upon the minutes of the court, which order shall set forth the cause of such removal. [Id. P. D. 5734.]

Collateral attack.—Where an order removing an administrator and appointing his successor recited that there was a necessity for further administration, defendants, in a subsequent suit to set aside a foreclosure sale of real estate under a deed of trust pending the former administration, could not collaterally attack the order appointing plaintiff, for the alleged reason that it was to enable the widow, her children and attorney to obtain benefits which could only be obtained by them through the medium of an administrator. Kuck v. Dixon (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 910.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

RESIGNATION OF EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS

Article 3397. [2030] [1977] Application to resign must be accompanied by exhibit and account.—If at any time an executor or administrator shall wish to resign the administration of the estate that has been committed to his charge, he shall present to the court in which the administration is pending an application in writing, stating such wish, and shall accompany said application with a full and complete exhibit of the condition of the estate, together with his administration account; which exhibit and account shall both be verified by affidavit. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 100, sec. 29.]

Application to independent executors.—This article authorizes an independent executor to resign. Roy v. Whitaker, 92 T. 346, 48 S. W. 892, 49 S. W. 367.

Failure to file proper account.—Where an administrator, on resigning, failed to file a proper account, and the one filed was rejected, he was not entitled to be allowed an attorney's fee for services in filing a new account and in representing him on a contest thereof. James v. Craighead (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 241.

Art. 3398. [2031] [1978] Citation in such cases.—Upon the filing of such application, exhibit and account, it shall be the duty of the clerk to make out a citation returnable to some regular term of the court; which citation shall state the presentation of such application, exhibit and account, the term of the court at which the same will be acted upon, and shall require all those interested in the estate to appear and contest the said exhibit and account if they see proper. [Id.]

Art. 3399. [2032] [1979] How served.—Such citation shall be published for at least twenty days in some newspaper printed in the county, if there be one; if not, then by posting copies thereof for a like period in the manner required for posting other citations. [Id.]

Art. 3400. [2033] [1980] Exhibit and account shall be examined, etc., by the court.—At the return term of such citation, or at some other term to which it may have been continued, upon the county judge being satisfied that such citation has been published or posted, as the case may be, he shall proceed to examine such exhibit and account, and to hear all proof that may be offered in support of the same, and all objections, exceptions and proof offered against the same, and shall, if necessary, restate such exhibit and account, and shall audit and settle the same. [Id.]

Art. 3401. [2034] [1981] Order approving exhibit and account.—If, upon such examination and settlement, it shall appear that such executor or administrator has accounted for all said estate according to law, the county judge shall enter an order upon the minutes, approving such exhibit and account, and requiring such executor or administrator to deliver the estate, if there be any remaining in his possession, to some person qualified by law to receive it. [Id.]

Art. 3402. [2035] [1982] Order of discharge.—When such executor or administrator has delivered the estate in accordance with the order of the court to some person qualified to receive it, and has produced to the court satisfactory evidence of that fact, the court shall enter an order upon the minutes, either in term time or in vacation, accepting the resignation of such executor or administrator and discharging him from such trust. [Id.]

Art. 3403. [2036] [1983] Shall not be discharged until, etc.—No executor or administrator shall be discharged until the exhibit and account required have been made, returned, settled and approved as provided in this chapter, nor until he has delivered the estate, if there be any remaining in his possession, as hereinbefore required.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

ALLOWANCE TO WIDOW AND MINOR CHILDREN

Article 3404. [2037] [1984] Allowance to widow and minor children to be made, when.—At the first regular term of the court after the original grant of letters testamentary or of administration, or at any subsequent term thereafter, within twelve months after the grant of such original letters, it shall be the duty of the court to fix the amount of an allowance for the support of the widow and minor children of the deceased. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 105, sec. 56.]

See Hughes v. Mulanax, 105 T. 576, 153 S. W. 299.

Jurisdiction.—See notes under Art. 3206.

Formal application unnecessary.—It would seem that it is the duty of the court, without formal application, to fix the amount of the year's allowance, and to set apart the property exempt from forced sale at a time specified in the statute; but it is proper that applications be made, although they need not appear of record, and the requisite information must be afforded to enable the court to perform the duty according to the requirements of the law. At all events, where the court has acted, and the widow or children complain of the amount, it cannot be objected to the application for certiorari that no application was made to the court in the premises. Connell v. Chandler, 11 T. 249.

Set-off against allowance.—The indebtedness of the widow to the estate cannot be set off against the allowance to which she is entitled. Leaverton v. Leaverton, 40 T. 218.

Art. 3405. [2038] [1985] Amount of allowance, and with reference to what time.—Such allowance shall be of an amount sufficient for the maintenance of such widow and minor children for the term of one year from the time of the death of the testator or intestate, and such allowance to be fixed with regard to the facts existing during the first year after the death of such testator or intestate; provided, that in no case shall such allowance exceed one thousand dollars. [Acts 1887, p. 73.]

Amount of allowance.—Where wife and children use property to live on for a year before administration, additional allowance for another year should not be granted. Crocker v. Crocker, 19 C. A. 296, 46 S. W. 870.

In an action by heirs against a widow as independent executrix, to recover property alleged to have been withdrawn from the estate, where, during the first year after testator's death, the widow was permitted to withdraw $4,793.42 from the estate for the support of herself and minor children, a credit of $1,000 as an allowance for such support was properly refused. Japhet v. Pullen (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 441.

Art. 3406. [2039] [1986] Allowance shall not be made, when.—No such allowance shall be made for the widow when she has separate property adequate to her maintenance; nor shall such allowance be made for the minor children when they have property in their own right adequate to their maintenance. [Id. Acts 1876, p. 105, sec. 56.]

Provision in will in lieu of allowance.—A widow is not entitled to have a year's allowance assigned to her out of an estate when an adequate provision in lieu thereof has been made by the will of the testator. Trousdale v. Trousdale, 35 T. 756; Little v. Birdwell, 27 T. 688.

A widow held not entitled to accept a devise of real estate in a will, and obtain an additional allowance for a year's support from notes bequeathed to another. Nelson v. Lyster, 32 C. A. 356, 74 S. W. 54.

Wages of minor.—The fact that a minor, with the consent of his mother, receives and uses wages for his personal services adequate to his support, will not deprive him of the allowance under this article. Cooper v. Pierce, 74 T. 526, 12 S. W. 211.

Art. 3407. [2040] [1987] Order fixing allowance.—When an allowance has been fixed, an order shall be entered upon the minutes stating the amount thereof, and directing the executor or administrator to pay the same in accordance with law.

Order held res adjudicata.—Orders making a year's allowance to a widow and children, after widow's appointment as independent executrix had been changed to an appointment as administratrix with the will annexed, held res judicata in a creditors' contest over the classification of claims. King v. Battaglia, 38 C. A. 28, 84 S. W. 839.

Art. 3408. [2041] [1988] To whom allowance shall be paid.—The executor or administrator shall pay such allowance—

1. To the widow, if there be one, for the use of herself and the minor children, if such children be hers.

2. If the widow is not the mother of such minor children, or of some of them, the portion of such allowance necessary for the support of such minor child or children of which she is not the mother, shall be paid to the guardian or guardians of such minor child or children.

3. If there be no widow, the allowance to the minor child or children shall be paid to the guardian or guardians of such minor child or children.

Art. 3409. [2042] [1989] Widow or guardian may take property for allowance.—The widow, or the guardian of the minor children, as the case may be, shall have the right to take in payment of such allowance, or any part thereof, any of the personal property of the estate at its appraised value as shown by the appraisement returns. [Id.]

Art. 3410. [2043] [1990] Sale shall be ordered to raise allowance, when.—If there be no personal effects of the deceased that the widow or guardian is willing to take for such allowance, or not a sufficiency of them, and if there be no funds or not sufficient funds in the hands of such executor or administrator to pay such allowance, or any part thereof, then it shall be the duty of the county judge, so soon as the inventory and appraisement and list of claims are returned and approved, to order a sale of so much of the estate for cash as will be sufficient to raise the amount of such allowance, or a part thereof, as the case may require. [Id.]

Necessity for sale.—The court can under certain conditions order a sale of so much of the estate as is necessary to raise the amount of allowance for support of widow and minor children. Johnson v. Weatherford, 31 C. A. 180, 71 S. W. 791.

The existence of orders by the probate court fixing the allowance for the year's support of minor children and the amount of the allowance in lieu of exempt property would not be necessary to give the court jurisdiction to order the sale of land of the estate for the support of such children as heirs. Wilkin v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1145.

—— Collateral attack.—The question whether a sale of the land was necessary for the support of minor heirs, on an administrator's application for a sale for that purpose, was for the determination of the probate court, and its judgment thereon cannot be collaterally attacked. Wilkin v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1145.

—— Presumption as to.—It will be presumed that conditions existed which authorized the court to order the sale. Johnson v. Weatherford, 31 C. A. 180, 71 S. W. 791.

Art. 3411. [2044] [1991] Allowance to be paid in preference to other debts or charges, except, etc.—The allowance made for the support of the widow and minor children of deceased shall be paid in preference to all other debts or charges against the estate, except the funeral expenses and expenses of last sickness of deceased, which claims shall be first paid, if presented within the time prescribed by law entitling them to such preference.

Priority—In general.—A widow is the preferred creditor of the estate to the extent of a year's maintenance and such other allowances as the law gives her; and one who furnishes her with necessaries, and thus becomes her bona fide creditor, will on her death be substituted to her right against the estate of her deceased husband. Baker v. Rust, 37 T. 242.

Where a life policy is payable to a creditor, the fact that the probate court set aside a certain portion of its proceeds to the widow confers no right on her, superior to that of the creditor. Andrews v. Union Cent. Life Ins. Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 610.

The right of minor children to have an allowance set apart for their support is not affected by an attempt of deceased to devise all his property to his widow. Woolley v. Sullivan, 92 T. 28, 45 S. W. 377, 46 S. W. 629.

A judgment of foreclosure against decedent's property does not cut off the interest of the minors in the right of the allowance for year's support. Id.

The statute makes the allowance payable in preference to all other debts or charges against the estate, except funeral expenses and expenses of last sickness, if these are presented within 60 days. In re Laurence Estate, 32 C. A. 465, 74 S. W. 779.

A landlord's lien for supplies and advances held superior to the claim for allowance for support of tenant's widow and children. Walker v. Patterson's Estate (Civ. App.) 77 S. W. 437.

The widow's and minor's allowance create a claim on an estate next in priority to those of the first class, and are superior and prior to all other claims save that of a vendor (or one who is subrogated to his rights) who expressly reserves a vendor's lien upon land to secure the payment of purchase money due therefor. Zieschang v. Helmke (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 438.

See Art. 3408.

Acknowledgment by a married woman of a deed of trust given by her husband held not to deprive her of the right to the payment of an allowance for her year's support from the proceeds of the property after her husband's death, leaving an insolvent estate. King v. Battaglia, 38 C. A. 28, 84 S. W. 839.

A widow's right to a yearly allowance, and in lieu of a homestead, is inferior to the claim of a bank on a life policy, delivered to it by decedent to secure a debt. Clark v. Southwestern Life Ins. Co., 52 C. A. 38, 113 S. W. 335.

Estoppel.—See notes under Art. 3687.

Art. 3412. [2045] [1992] Allowance apportioned, how.—The allowance provided for in this chapter shall be paid as follows:

1. If there be both widow and minor child or children, the widow shall be entitled to one-half and the minor child or children to the other half.

2. If there be a widow and no minor child or children, the widow shall receive the whole.

3. If there be a minor child or children and no widow, such minor child or children shall receive the whole.

Apportionment.—The widow is entitled to one-half and the minor children to the other half of the yearly allowance made by the court. Wooley v. Sullivan, 92 T. 28, 45 S. W. 377, 46 S. W. 629.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

SETTING APART THE HOMESTEAD AND OTHER EXEMPT PROPERTY TO WIDOW AND CHILDREN

Article 3413. [2046] [1993] Court shall set apart exempt property, etc.—At the first term of the court after an inventory, appraisement and list of claims have been returned, it shall be the duty of the court, by an order entered upon the minutes, to set apart for the use and benefit of the widow and minor children and unmarried daughters remaining with the family of the deceased, all such property of the estate as may be exempt from execution or forced sale by the constitution and laws of the state, with the exception of any exemption of one year's supply of provisions. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 106, sec. 57.]

See Pressley's Heirs v. Robinson, 57 T. 453; Gilliam v. Null, 58 T. 298.

20. —— Effect of.
21. May mortgage.
22. Homestead not assets of estate.
23. Conveyance by heirs.
24. Rights of creditors of heirs.

1. Construction.—This article is to be construed in connection with Art. 3420. Fossett v. McMahan, 86 T. 652, 26 S. W. 979.

2. Right in general.—The exemption from forced sale depends upon the status of those claiming it. Givens v. Hudson, 64 T. 471.

When on the death of the owner of the homestead no constituent of the family survives, the exemption ceases, and the homestead becomes subject, like other real estate, to be sold to pay debts. Zwernemann v. Von Rosenberg, 76 T. 522, 13 S. W. 485; Childers v. Henderson, 76 T. 664, 13 S. W. 481; Cameron v. Morris, 83 T. 14, 18 S. W. 422. See Foreman v. Meroney, 62 T. 723.

Where there was no person, surviving, entitled to claim homestead in land, it becomes subject to administration. Craddock v. Burleson, 21 C. A. 250, 52 S. W. 644.

Plaintiff, a widow entitled to homestead, held to control as executrix entire estate until homestead was set apart to her; and plea in abatement to suit by her as executrix held properly overruled. Cammack v. Rogers, 32 C. A. 125, 74 S. W. 945.

Heirs to whom a homestead descends on the death of their ancestor may undertake to pay the debts of the ancestor, and may give a lien on the property to secure them. Adams v. Bartell, 46 C. A. 349, 102 S. W. 779.

Where the husband or wife dies, the survivor retains the status as head of the family and as such is entitled to the homestead exemption then existing, regardless of whether or not there are other constituents of the family remaining with the survivor. Sykes v. Speer (Civ. App.) 112 S. W. 422.

Homestead rights of a widow are not to be taken into account in the valuation of the life interest which she is entitled to have set apart to her in the separate estate of her deceased husband. Haley v. Hail (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 663.

A complaint to enjoin a sale of property claimed by a widow as her homestead, held to show that she was entitled to equitable relief, and the petition was not subject to a general demurrer. Bailey v. Arnold (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 531.

3. Property exempt in general.—See Art. 3785 et seq.

4. Property which may be set apart.—A San Jacinto bounty warrant and a pension warrant issued to a veteran soldier under the pension law of 1874 do not constitute exempt property to be set apart to the widow. Heard v. Northington, 49 T. 439.

5. Homestead.—See, also, Art. 3786.

The rural homestead may be set aside out of a larger tract, even before the purchase money has been paid. The excess of the tract over the allotted homestead will be first subjected to sale, and, if insufficient to pay the purchase money, so much as may be necessary may be sold. Harrison v. Oberthier, 40 T. 385.

An order of the probate court setting apart a lot not the property of decedent as a homestead to the widow and minor children cannot affect the rights of the parties owning it. This rule applied to an order setting apart as homestead community property of a former marriage, part of which was inherited by the children of that marriage upon the death of the mother. McDougal v. Bradford, 80 T. 558, 16 S. W. 619.

The rural homestead must be set apart as a whole. A partition cannot be directed by will. Hall v. Fields, 81 T. 553, 17 S. W. 82.

Where the right of a widow to a homestead terminated prior to the constitution of 1876, the adoption of this constitution did not revive her right. Clemons v. Clemons, 92 T. 66, 45 S. W. 996.

A widow's homestead may be in land, or money in lieu of it, but not partly in both. Crocker v. Crocker, 19 C. A. 296, 46 S. W. 870.

On death of husband the homestead of wife must come out of the estate owned absolutely by husband, there being no community property. Id.

A widow held entitled to select any 200 acres as her homestead out of land occupied by herself and husband. Shippey v. Hough, 19 C. A. 596, 47 S. W. 672.

A widow held not entitled to have a house and lot assigned to her as a homestead, under this article. Linares v. De Linares, 93 T. 84, 53 S. W. 579.

Business property held not part of a widow's homestead, not having been used by her as a place of business, but having been rented since her husband's death. Morris v. Morris, 45 C. A. 60, 99 S. W. 872.

6. Effect of testamentary provisions.—The husband cannot, by withdrawing an administration from the control of the probate court, deprive his widow and children of a homestead and other property exempt from forced sale, or a substituted allowance therefor. Runnels v. Runnels, 27 T. 515.

The owner of a homestead, in consideration of marriage, executed a note to his intended wife and secured it by a mortgage on the homestead. The husband by will bequeathed the homestead to his grandchildren; he died, leaving the wife surviving as the only constituent of the family, and by his will recognized the mortgage lien and charged the homestead property with its payment. Held: 1. That the widow could elect to retain the homestead or accept the provisions of the will. 2. That the note was a charge upon the property mortgaged after it ceased to be a homestead. 3. In a suit to enforce her rights she could pray for the sale of the property to satisfy the note, or, in the alternative, for the possession and title of the property as a homestead. 4. Had the note been paid without sale of the property, the widow would not have been entitled to retain possession of the homestead as against others to whom the husband had by will bequeathed it. McCormick v. McNeel, 53 T. 15.

The rights of the surviving husband or wife or of the minor children in exempt property cannot be defeated by the will of the husband or wife. The fact that the minor children awarded to the mother in a decree for divorce were residing with her at the time of his death is immaterial so long as their guardian may, under the order of the proper court, be permitted to use and occupy the same. Hall v. Fields, 81 T. 553, 17 S. W. 82; Hensel v. Int. B. & L. Ass'n, 85 T. 215, 20 S. W. 116.

Neither the husband nor wife, who is the owner of the homestead, can by will dispose of it so as to deprive the survivor of the right to occupy it during life. Reed v. Talley, 13 C. A. 286, 35 S. W. 805.

Minor children are entitled to one-half of the yearly allowance set apart by the court, notwithstanding the attempt of the testator to devise the whole of his estate to his widow. Woolley v. Sullivan, 92 T. 28, 45 S. W. 377, 46 S. W. 629.

7. "Widow"—Rights of.—See, also, notes under Art. 3416.

"Widow" as used in this article refers to the surviving lawful wife of the deceased, and not to a woman who lived with deceased as his wife, but who was not his wife, and the children to get the benefit of the article must be legitimate. The common law governs in regard to the relation of bastards to their fathers and does not recognize any right in the bastard to any interest in the father's estate. Hayworth v. Williams, 102 T. 308, 116 S. W. 43, 45, 132 Am. St. Rep. 879.

8. Residence immaterial.—The surviving widow is entitled to an exemption and allowance without reference to her domicile, and is not affected by the fact that she did not reside in the state at her husband's death, or that she abandoned or intended to abandon the state as soon as such property is set aside. Green v. Crow, 17 T. 180.

9. Effect of divorce or abandonment of husband.—A wife abandoning her husband and their homestead, which was his separate property, thereby forfeits her right to the homestead upon his death. Newland v. Holland, 45 T. 589; Hall v. Fields, 81 T. 553, 17 S. W. 82; Cockrell v. Curtis, 83 T. 105, 18 S. W. 436. Such abandonment does not affect her interest in his separate property in which she takes one-third life estate. Cockrell v. Curtis, 83 T. 105, 18 S. W. 436.

An abandonment of a husband by the wife without cause, and continuing until his death, will cause her to forfeit all claim to the homestead which the husband owned at the time of his death. Duke v. Reed, 64 T. 705, citing Trawick v. Harris, 8 T. 312; Earle v. Earle, 9 T. 630; Sears v. Sears, 45 T. 557.

A wife who was forced by her husband's cruelty to abandon him is entitled after his death to have set aside to her as a homestead exemption, property acquired by him afterwards in Texas and which he was living on at the time of his death. Linares v. Linares (Civ. App.) 51 S. W. 510.

Where a wife has by agreement separated from her husband, and he during the separation acquired a homestead and lives in it until his death, the wife is not entitled to have it set aside to her as the homestead of the family. Linares v. De Linares, 93 T. 84, 53 S. W. 579.

10. Conveyance or abandonment of homestead.—The temporary renting of the homestead does not defeat the exemption. Iken v. Olenick, 42 T. 195; Foreman v. Meroney, 62 T. 723; Hall v. Fields, 81 T. 558, 17 S. W. 82; Axer v. Bassett, 63 T. 545; Blum v. Whitworth, 66 T. 350, 1 S. W. 108; Medlenka v. Downing, 59 T. 32; Bowman v. Watson, 66 T. 295, 1 S. W. 273; Bailey v. Banknight (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 56.

Occupancy of the homestead is required only as against the right of the descendants of the deceased to have partition of the property. Schneider v. Bray, 59 T. 668.

Widow may exchange original homestead for another which will receive like protection. Also, if the old homestead is sold with the intention of reinvesting the purchase money in another, the purchase money is exempt from debts. Watkins v. Davis, 61 T. 414.

It is not necessary to the existence of the homestead right that the family should remain on the land. To use and occupy does not require a residence upon it. When left, either from necessity or convenience by the family, no matter for how long a time, so long as it contributes to the support of the family, it remains the homestead until title is acquired to another home, used and occupied as such. Foreman v. Meroney, 62 T. 723.

The court has discretion to refuse to set homestead aside to minors, on the widow selling her interest therein, where it is impracticable for the minors to live together, and the income from their shares on partition will support them. Garrison v. Ferguson's Estate (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 247.

Where a surviving wife, appointed to administer the community property, mortgages the community homestead, a sale thereunder devests her of the right to occupy it. Ostrom v. Arnold, 24 C. A. 192, 58 S. W. 630.

The fact that plaintiff allowed her grown daughters to live with her on the homestead, and to share in the general income, held not sufficient to show an abandonment of her homestead rights, or to vest any rights in the daughter to the income of the property as against the mother. Salmons v. Thomas, 25 C. A. 422, 62 S. W. 102.

A widow and minor children held not to have lost right of homestead by removal. Powell v. Naylor, 32 C. A. 340, 74 S. W. 338.

Widow, after abandoning her homestead in the land of her deceased husband, held entitled only to her undivided one-third interest for life in such lands. McCaskey v. Morris, 40 C. A. 390, 89 S. W. 1085.

Where a surviving wife executes a deed of the homestead under an agreement allowing her to return and use the property as her home, such agreement is not a substitute for the homestead user after it becomes evident that she will not return. Vickers v. Peddy, 55 C. A. 259, 118 S. W. 1110.

A conveyance by a widow, not the guardian of the estate of the minor child of the marriage, held not to affect the rights of the child. Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 739.

Const. 1876, art. 16, § 52, and Arts. 3421, 3422, relate only to the rights as between heirs, and not to the rights of creditors, and operate to remove the homestead from the assets of the estate and set it apart to the surviving wife and children, and though abandoned as a homestead, it can never be subjected to the debts of creditors, whether the estate was solvent or insolvent. Hoefling v. Thulemeyer (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 102.

Surviving wife, entitled to homestead, held to have abandoned it by removal from the state with no fixed intention of returning. Id.

11. Subsequent marriage.—A widow does not forfeit her exemptions in her deceased husband's estate by her remarriage. Bente v. Sullivan, 52 C. A. 454, 115 S. W. 350.

12. "Minor children."—See, also, notes under Art. 3416.

The term "minor children," as used in Const. art. 16, § 52, declaring that the homestead shall not be apportioned among the heirs of the decedent, so long as the guardian of minor children may be permitted to occupy the same, and this article, does not include minor grandchildren living as members of the grandmother's family, and on her death, her property may be sold to pay debts. Ross v. Martin, 104 T. 558, 140 S. W. 432, 141 S. W. 518.

13. "Unmarried daughter."—The unmarried or widowed daughter of a decedent living with him at the time of his death is a constituent of the family. Krueger v. Wolf, 12 C. A. 167, 33 S. W. 663; Lacy v. Lockett, 82 T. 192, 17 S. W. 916; Zwernemann v. Von Rosenberg, 76 T. 523, 13 S. W. 485.

Where an ancestor and his widow both died leaving an insolvent estate, and a homestead, and at the time of the widow's death a divorced daughter was residing on the homestead with the widow as a member of the family, together with certain grandchildren, such divorced daughter was an "unmarried daughter" within the statute, so that the homestead was not subject to the debts of the widow's general creditors. Anderson v. McGee (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 1040.

14. Priority.—See, also, notes under Art. 3411.

The claim of the children of a deceased tenant under this article is postponed in favor of the landlord's lien. Shumate v. Champion, 90 T. 597, 39 S. W. 128, affirmed Champion v. Shumate, 90 T. 597, 39 S. W. 362, rehearing denied 90 T. 597, 40 S. W. 394. Art. 7627 has no bearing upon the question. Id.

15. Time for setting apart.—More than eighteen months after the death of the husband and sixteen months after the grant of administration on his estate the widow brought suit to recover personal property sold by the administrator, claiming the same in lieu of exempt property. Held, that the order of the court directing its sale was conclusive against her right to recover. McGowen v. Zimpleman, 53 T. 479.

Right of widow to designate homestead after partition by heirs begun, determined. Hough v. Shippey, 16 C. A. 88, 40 S. W. 332.

A widow held entitled to designate her homestead after partition by heirs was commenced. Shippey v. Hough, 19 C. A. 596, 47 S. W. 672.

Judgment in partition held not to estop a widow from afterwards asserting homestead rights in a portion of the land. Penn v. Case, 36 C. A. 4, 81 S. W. 349.

That the property was not set aside as the homestead at first term of court after inventory and appraisement were filed does not have the effect of waiving the homestead exemption and making the property liable for debts of estate. Griffin v. Harris, 39 C. A. 586, 88 S. W. 495.

See Art. 3418.

16. Contest by creditors.—An interested creditor may contest the application to set property aside as a homestead when it is not so in fact. McLane v. Paschal, 62 T. 102.

17. Necessity of application.—Though it is proper that application be made to the court to set aside exempt property, it is unnecessary. Connell v. Chandler, 11 T. 249.

18. Necessity of order of court.—Right of minor heirs to possession of homestead can only be based on order of probate court. Modisett v. National Bank, 23 C. A. 589, 56 S. W. 1007.

The minor children have no homestead rights in any particular portion of the property of their deceased father until it is set aside to them by an order of court. The business homestead upon the death of the husband may be set aside to the wife to the exclusion of the minor children, and the children cannot force partition and recover their interest until such homestead is abandoned. White v. Yates (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 48.

19. Order setting apart—Conclusiveness.—Order setting apart homestead to widow and minor children held not to estop children of deceased by a former wife, where made without their consent and not in terms devesting their title. Clemons v. Clemons (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 199.

An order of a probate court setting aside property to a guardian as a homestead for a minor held not binding on the owner of an interest in the property. Williams v. Jones (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 755.

20. —— Effect of.—The homestead having been set apart to the family is no longer subject to administration, and a sale of it made under the order of the probate court for the support of the widow and minor children is a nullity and confers no title. Harrison v. Oberthier, 40 T. 385; Sossaman v. Powell, 21 T. 664; Cummins v. Denton, 1 U. C. 181.

Exempt property of the deceased vests absolutely in the beneficiaries pointed out by law (Scott v. Cunningham, 60 T. 566), subject to pre-existing liens (Hensel v. B. & L. Ass'n, 85 T. 215, 20 S. W. 116).

An order made in 1862 setting apart real property as an allowance for the widow and children simply withdrew the property from administration and did not confer upon the widow the power to sell the interests of the children. Nanny v. Allen, 77 T. 240, 13 S. W. 989.

Upon the death of one who was the head of a family, leaving a widow and minor children, it is made the duty of the county court to set aside the homestead and other exempt property to such widow and minor children, who would be entitled to the use of the homestead under the limitations of sec. 52, art. 16, of the constitution; but the title to the property would vest in all the heirs—not, however, subject to the debts of the deceased, because being set apart by the court it is withdrawn from the administration of his estate and would not afterwards become subject to the payment of debts if not used as a homestead because the exemption by law attaches after death in favor of the persons named. The mother and married sister of deceased who lived with him up to his death are not named in the law and have no homestead right in the property and cannot take it under the will of deceased free from his debts. Roots v. Robertson, 93 T. 365, 55 S. W. 308.

The effect of the order setting apart the homestead and exempt property to the widow and minor children is to withdraw the property from administration and does not affect the right of those owning the property. Simms v. Hixon (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 37.

21. May mortgage.—A widow may mortgage her homestead. Adams v. Bartell, 46 C. A. 349, 102 S. W. 779.

22. Homestead not assets of estate.—See notes under Art. 3332.

23. Conveyance by heirs.—Where a minor daughter is in possession of the homestead of deceased parents, this will not prevent a sale of the interest of other adult heirs. Bell v. Read, 23 C. A. 95, 56 S. W. 584.

An heir having a vested interest in the title to a homestead may dispose of such interest. Simms v. Hixon (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 36.

24. Rights of creditors of heirs.—The interest of an heir inherited in the homestead property of his father is subject to judicial sale for the payment of the debt of the heir, and a judgment lien attaches to such an interest from the date of its proper registry, if the situation of the heir is not such as to exempt his interest from forced sale. A purchaser of such interest would acquire no right to possession so long as the surviving mother retained homestead rights in it. Harris v. Seinsheimer, 67 T. 356, 3 S. W. 307.

The interests of surviving adult children in the homestead of deceased parents can be sold on execution. Bell v. Read, 23 C. A. 95, 56 S. W. 584.

Art. 3414. [2047] [1994] Allowance in lieu of exempt articles.—In case there should not be among the effects of the deceased all or any of the specific articles so exempted it shall be the duty of the court to make a reasonable allowance in lieu thereof, to be paid to such widow and children, or such of them as there may be as hereinafter directed. [Id.]

See Hughes v. Mulanax, 105 T. 576, 153 S. W. 299.

In general.—It was held that under the probate law of 1848 a widow and children are entitled to an allowance in lieu of property exempt from forced sale when no such property exists, and their right is not affected by their owning separate estate which may be sufficient for their support. Mabry v. Ward, 50 T. 404.

The surviving widow has a right to take in lieu of a year's provisions allowed for herself and minor children, when the same cannot be found in kind, its equivalent, and, having received it, the creditors cannot call her to account for the manner in which she expended it. Green v. Raymond, 58 T. 80, 44 Am. Rep. 601.

A widow and children held entitled to exempt property and an allowance in lieu of exemptions not on hand where they have used the personal property to obtain the necessaries of life. Crocker v. Crocker, 19 C. A. 296, 46 S. W. 870.

Allowance in lieu of homestead.—Where the husband with consent and approval of the wife, who joins in the deed, disposes of the homestead to their minor children, and soon thereafter dies insolvent, the widow cannot appropriate other property as the homestead; nor will the court set apart a homestead to her as against the creditors of the estate. Woodall v. Rudd, 41 T. 375.

The widow cannot after the death of the husband abandon the homestead occupied by him at the time of his death and select from the estate another as against the rights of creditors. Rogers v. Ragland, 42 T. 422, overruling Ragland v. Rogers, 34 T. 617. See, also, Hendrix v. Hendrix, 46 T. 6.

When the homestead of a family is established on the separate property of the wife, and the husband dies, no allowance is to be made in lieu of the homestead. Ball v. Lowell, 56 T. 579.

When the husband dies leaving the homestead established on property held by him jointly with the children of a former marriage, and partition on the same is impracticable, an allowance in lieu of the homestead should be granted the surviving widow and children of the last marriage. Clift v. Kaufman, 60 T. 64.

The fact that a stepchild, ward or niece, who, for the time being, is a member of the widow's family, owns a home in which all live, is no answer to her demand for an allowance in lieu of homestead. Id.

Widow may have an allowance in lieu of homestead out of any property belonging to estate of her husband where she would otherwise be compelled to take an incomplete homestead. Crocker v. Crocker, 19 C. A. 296, 46 S. W. 870.

A widow cannot be compelled to take an incomplete homestead or one subject to partition between her and the children of the deceased. Id.

Though a wife may not be entitled on account of having separated from her husband, to have a house and lot which the husband afterwards acquired, and in which he lived as his homestead at the time of his death, set apart to her as a homestead, yet where the house and lot were the only assets of any considerable value, and were worth less than $500, she was entitled to have it awarded to her to make up an allowance in lieu of a homestead. Linares v. De Linares, 93 T. 84, 53 S. W. 579.

A wife on surviving her husband held not entitled to an allowance out of his property in lieu of homestead, where they had a homestead on her property. Melcher v. Super, 56 C. A. 276, 120 S. W. 569.

In lieu of personal property converted.—An allowance in lieu of exempt personal property will not be made when such property existed in kind and was wrongfully converted by another after the death of the husband. Hoffman v. Hoffman, 79 T. 189, 14 S. W. 915, 15 S. W. 471.

Property subject to allowance.—The allowance must be paid out of the estate of the decedent, and the interest of the children of the first marriage in the community estate of their parents cannot be applied to payment of the allowance in favor of the wife of the second marriage. Redding v. Boyd, 64 T. 498; Clift v. Kaufman, 60 T. 64. The homestead allowance must be taken alone from the estate of the deceased husband or wife. Clift v. Kaufman, 60 T. 64.

Where a wife has possession of partnership property misapplied by the husband and delivered to her without consideration, she cannot claim that because she has no homestead or other exemption she should be permitted to retain such property. Gloor v. Allen, 47 C. A. 519, 105 S. W. 539.

Minor children of former marriage.—The law does not exclude minor children of a former marriage from sharing in an allowance made in lieu of exemptions, but on the other hand distinctly provides for their so sharing. Wilson v. Brinker (Civ. App.) 76 S. W. 213.

Delay in making application for allowance.—When an estate is solvent and is ready for partition and distribution it is too late for the widow and children to apply for an alowance in lieu of property exempt from execution. Little v. Birdwell, 27 T. 688.

Landlord's lien superior.—See Arts. 3420, 5477.

The landlord's lien has priority over the claim of the widow and children of the tenant. Shumate v. Champion (Civ. App.) 39 S. W. 128, affirmed Champion v. Shumate, 90 T. 597, 39 S. W. 362, rehearing denied 90 T. 597, 40 S. W. 394.

Sale or other disposition of homestead.—Where a homestead was sold, one-half of the proceeds held properly ordered invested for life to the widow of the deceased owner in lieu of her homestead right. Hays v. Moore (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1054.

Where a homestead of a widow and her deceased husband was condemned, and the value paid into court, the money held not subject to partition between the widow and heirs of her husband; she being entitled to have it reinvested in another homestead. Lucas v. Lucas (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 310.

Art. 3415. [2048] [1995] Such allowance shall not exceed, what.—The allowance in lieu of a homestead shall in no case exceed five thousand dollars, and the allowance for other exempted property shall in no case exceed five hundred dollars, exclusive of the allowance provided in the preceding chapter. [Id.]

Art. 3416. [2049] [1996] To whom the exempt property shall be delivered.—The exempted property set apart to the widow and children shall be delivered by the executor or administrator without delay as follows:

1. If there be a widow and no children, or if the children be the children of the widow, the whole of such property shall be delivered to the widow.

2. If there be children and no widow, such property shall be delivered to such children if they be of lawful age, or to their guardian if they be minors, or the same may be equally divided among them, except the homestead.

3. If there be children of the deceased of whom the widow is not the mother, the share of such children in such exempted property, except the homestead, shall be delivered to such children if they be of lawful age, or to their guardian if they be minors, or may be equally divided between them.

4. In all cases, the homestead shall be delivered to the widow, if there be one, and if there be no widow, to the guardian of the minor children and unmarried daughters, if any, living with the family.

In general.—The surviving wife, though without children, is entitled to the protection afforded the homestead from forced sale after the husband's death, so long as she uses it as a homestead. She may exchange the original homestead for another homestead which will receive like protection. And it would seem that if the old homestead is sold with the intention of reinvesting the money in another, the unpaid purchase-money cannot be reached by garnishment or subjected by other processes to the payment of debts. Watkins v. Davis, 61 T. 414.

The effect of the order setting aside the exempt property is to withdraw the same from administration. It does not affect the rights of those who own the property. Simms v. Hixon (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 37.

Necessity of guardianship.—To protect minor children in the use of the homestead against a partition at suit of the adult children, the agency of a guardian must be had, acting under authority of the probate court. Osborn v. Osborn, 76 T. 494, 13 S. W. 538.

Minor children must assert homestead rights through a lawfully appointed guardian. Hall v. Fields, 81 T. 553, 17 S. W. 82; Hensel v. Int. B. & L. Ass'n, 85 T. 215, 20 S. W. 116.

Occupancy by guardian.—The constitution is imperative in its command that the homestead shall not be taken from the minor children so long as their guardian "may be permitted, under the order of the proper court having jurisdiction, to use and occupy the same." The guardian should be required to report annually to the county court the condition of the estate of the minors, and, whenever the use and occupation is no longer necessary, an order will be entered requiring it to be surrendered to the owners of the fee. Hall v. Fields, 81 T. 553, 17 S. W. 82.

It is left to the discretion of the probate court whether or not he will set aside the homestead to the guardian of the minor children for their use and occupancy, and such discretion will not be interfered with unless it is abused. Garrison v. Ferguson Estate (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 247.

Guardian of minor children of a deceased first wife held, when authorized by probate court, to have a right of occupancy of an undivided homestead jointly with decedent's surviving second wife. Cox v. Oliver, 43 C. A. 110, 95 S. W. 596.

Validity of marriage.—A homestead donation granted to a man as the head of a family held to descend to his common-law wife, though he was not living with her at any time during his residence on the land. Chapman v. Chapman, 16 C. A. 382, 41 S. W. 533.

Only a lawful surviving wife is entitled to the homestead and allowances out of her deceased husband's estate. Walker v. Walker's Estate (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1145.

Effect of subsequent marriage.—When the husband dies possessed of a homestead, the community property of himself and his wife by a former marriage, the children of the first marriage are entitled to the community interest of their mother in the same. The widow of the second marriage is entitled to the enjoyment of her deceased husband's half interest in the old homestead existing at the date of the death of the first wife, and which was still continued at his death subject to such a partition, and the equities growing out of the interest therein of the children of the first marriage. The surviving widow is not liable on partition for the use and occupation of the homestead so long as she did not hold it adversely to the children of the first marriage. Putnam v. Young, 57 T. 461; Pressley's Heirs v. Robinson, 57 T. 453.

When a homestead is established on the separate property of the wife, upon her death and the death of her husband his widow and children by a second marriage are not entitled to a homestead right in such property against the heirs of the first wife. Gilliam v. Null, 58 T. 298; Pressley v. Robinson, 57 T. 453; King v. Gilleland, 60 T. 271.

A surviving second wife held entitled to recover half of the rental value of a homestead and the value of the use and enjoyment of her proportionate share of exempt personal property of her deceased husband during the time she was deprived of them by defendants. Cox v. Oliver, 43 C. A. 110, 95 S. W. 596.

A second wife and her children held entitled to a homestead in property owned by husband as tenant in common with children of a former marriage. Richmond v. Sims (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1142.

Children entitled to take.—A grandchild, the surviving constituent of a family, is entitled to continue the use of the homestead. Clark v. Goins (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 703.

A boy not legally adopted held not entitled to succeed to a homestead as a constituent of the family. McMillan v. Hendricks' Estate (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 859.

Childrens' rights derived from parent.—The election of a widow of a husband operating two separate businesses at different places at the time of his death to hold one as a business homestead held binding on the widow and children. Wingfield v. Hackney, 30 C. A. 39, 69 S. W. 446.

During the life of the surviving parent, the homestead rights of a minor child can only be asserted through such parent. Williams v. Jones (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 755.

Interference with homestead.—Where one has the right of occupancy of the homestead, he has a right not only to be reinstated in his right to occupy the homestead, but to recover the possession thereof from one who interferes with his homestead rights. Cox v. Oliver, 43 C. A. 110, 95 S. W. 599.

Art. 3417. [2050] [1997] Allowance shall be paid, how.—The allowances made in lieu of any of the exempted property shall be paid either in money out of the funds of the estate that may come to the hands of the executor or administrator, or in any property of the deceased that such widow or children if they be of lawful age, or their guardian if they be minors, may choose to take at the appraisement, or a part thereof, or both, as they may select. [Id.]

In general.—The interests of the widow and children of a deceased party in real property set apart by order of the probate court in 1862 as "an allowance made for her and her children," if the allowance was in lieu of exempt property or homestead, was not affected by such action of the court. The only effect of such an order was to withdraw the property from administration, and it conferred on the widow no power to sell the interests of the children. Nanny v. Allen, 77 T. 240, 13 S. W. 989.

Art. 3418. [2051] [1998] To whom allowance shall be paid.—Such allowance shall be paid by the executor or administrator in the following manner:

1. If there be a widow and no children, the whole to be paid to such widow.

2. If there be children and no widow, the whole to be paid to such children if they be of lawful age, or to their guardian if they be minors, or to be equally divided among them.

3. If there be both widow and children, the whole to be paid to such widow if she be the mother of such children, but, if she be not the mother of such children, one-half to be paid to such widow and the other half to such children if they be of lawful age, or to their guardian if they be minors, or to be equally divided among them. [Id.]

Art. 3419. [2052] [1999] Sale to raise allowance, when.—If there be no property of the deceased that such widow or children are willing to take for such allowance, or not a sufficiency, and there be no funds, or not sufficient funds of the estate in the hands of such executor or administrator to pay such allowance, or any part thereof, it shall be the duty of the county judge, on the application in writing of such widow and children, to order a sale of so much of the estate for cash as will be sufficient to raise the amount of such allowance, or a part thereof, as the case may require. [Id.]

In general.—Where there has been a failure to set apart property exempt from forced sale, and the property has been sold by order of the court, it is not error, in a certiorari from the district court to revise and correct the proceedings in the probate court, to join the purchaser of the property at the probate sale with the administrator. Connell v. Chandler, 11 T. 249.

Widow not bound by agreement with heirs to accept less than her share of the proceeds of sale of homestead. Winn v. Winn, 23 C. A. 617, 57 S. W. 80.

Art. 3420. [2053] [2000] Property upon which liens exist shall not be set aside, etc.—No property upon which liens have been given by the husband and wife, acknowledged in a manner legally binding upon the wife to secure creditors, or upon which a vendor's lien exists, shall be set aside to the widow or children as exempted property or appropriated to make up the allowances made in lieu of exempted property, until the debts secured by such liens are first discharged. [Id.]

Property upon which liens exist shall not be set aside.—A deed of trust was executed by two persons to secure a debt for which both were bound, upon land owned jointly by the debtors. Afterwards one purchased the interest of the other and died, and his widow claimed homestead rights in the entire property. Held: First, that such rights attached only to the interest owned by her deceased husband at the time when the trust deed was executed; second, improvements made by the deceased party with the separate funds of his wife upon the property entitled her to protection pro tanto; third, all the children of the deceased party were necessary parties to the action by the creditors seeking an enforcement of the trust on the property; fourth, in effecting partition between the creditors and the wife of the deceased party claiming homestead rights, the property should be divided into two equal parts, if it can be done without reference to increased value created by improvements made with the wife's separate money; if this cannot be done, then that part on which her dwelling-house stands should be set aside to her and the children of the deceased husband, without prejudice to the rights of herself and children thereafter to adjust their respective rights therein, and the other half should be subject to sale through the probate court to satisfy the debt. Griffie v. Maxey, 58 T. 210.

A contract lien for improvement on homestead held superior to right of surviving wife and children. Heatherly v. Little (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 79.

The terms of this article embrace land upon which a mortgage has been given and the probate court cannot set it aside to the minor children or to the surviving wife in her lifetime as a homestead free from the mortgage debt. Ford v. Sims, 93 T. 586, 57 S. W. 21.

A lien of the character of a vendor's lien being for the consideration of purchase money is superior to any allowance to the widow for a year's support, or in lieu of exempt property. Fulton v. Nat. Bank, 26 C. A. 115, 62 S. W. 86.

The county court has no authority to set aside land of a deceased person to the widow as against the holder of a valid lien thereon. Wade v. Freese (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 69.

This article applies to insolvent estates as well as to those which are solvent. Parlin & Orendorff Co. v. Davis' Estate (Civ. App.) 74 S. W. 952.

Where a lien on land which was the separate property of a husband and wife antedated and was superior to any homestead rights of minor heirs of the husband, the county court had no jurisdiction to impair the efficacy of such lien by setting the land apart as the minor's homestead. King v. Summerville (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1050.

Widow and children of mortgagor held not entitled to defeat validity of mortgage by claim of homestead. Pickett v. Gleed, 39 C. A. 71, 86 S. W. 946.

The homestead claim of the surviving wife is not superior to a valid lien on the property. Munroe v. Munroe, 54 C. A. 320, 116 S. W. 878.

Where a trust deed was executed on the homestead of the mortgagor, and both the mortgagor and his wife died before a sale was made, leaving children surviving, the power of sale might be exercised before administration was had under Acts 12th Leg. c. 81, § 26, providing that property reserved from forced sale does not form any part of the estate of a deceased person, where a constituent of the family survives. Wiener v. Zweib, 105 T. 262, 141 S. W. 771, 147 S. W. 867.

A pledgee of shares of stock as collateral security has a superior right therein, and is entitled to receive any benefits arising therefrom over and in advance of the claim of the pledgor's surviving widow for a year's allowance and in lieu of homestead, as well as the expenses of his last illness, including all benefits attached thereto, which include any money accruing to the pledgor's stock upon a sale of the corporation's property. Clarke v. First State Bank (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 203.

Const. art. 16, sec. 52—Inapplicable.—Sec. 52, art. 16, of the constitution, has no reference to the rights of creditors and heirs. It merely abrogates the statute which gave the homestead absolutely to the widow and minor children and to secure to the adult heirs their rights in the property after the use of it as a homestead had ceased. Ford v. Sims, 93 T. 586, 57 S. W. 21.

Subsequent occupation of mortgaged property as a homestead.—Though a lien given upon real estate by trust deed for a debt which could not be enforced by sale of the homestead cannot be divested during the life of the debtor by subsequent occupancy of the property as a homestead, yet upon his death during such occupancy, the property to extent of the interest owned when the deed was executed is discharged from the lien and exempt from forced sale under it. Griffie v. Maxey, 58 T. 210.

Lien must be given in manner prescribed.—Property subject to lien may be sold unless the lien has been given in the manner prescribed by this article. Griffie v. Maxey, 58 T. 210; McLane v. Paschal, 47 T. 365; Reeves v. Petty, 44 T. 249; Horn v. Arnold, 52 T. 161.

Lien may be lost, how.—Where the holder of a deed of trust, on the death of the grantor, did not file a claim for the debt against the grantor's estate, and the land was set apart to the grantor's children as their homestead, in such proceedings, the holder of the deed thereby lost his lien on the land. Tiboldi v. Palms, 34 C. A. 318, 78 S. W. 726.

The holder of a deed of trust held to have lost his lien on lands which had been set aside to deceased grantor's children as a homestead. Tiboldi v. Palms, 97 T. 414, 79 S. W. 23.

Order setting aside property subject to lien—Effect of.—An allowance to the widow and children in lieu of a homestead and other exempt property of $4,000 out of her husband's insurance policy will not affect the rights of a creditor to whom the policy is made payable as his interest may appear. Andrews v. Union Central Life Insurance Co. (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 610.

The children by a former marriage are entitled to an interest in community property of the first marriage notwithstanding the fact that the court has set it aside to the widow and minor children of the decedent as a homestead. Clemmons v. Clemmons (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 199.

An order of the probate court setting apart a portion of decedent's homestead to his children does not operate to relieve such portion from mortgage liens covering the whole. Ford v. Sims, 93 T. 586, 57 S. W. 20.

That a court set apart to a widow property subject to a valid lien created by decedent did not divest the court of authority to subsequently charge the property with such lien. Wade v. Freese (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 69.

An administrator's failure to publish notice of his appointment held not to affect the conclusiveness of an order awarding certain property to intestate's children as their homestead, as against the holder of a deed of trust thereon. Tiboldi v. Palm, 34 C. A. 318, 78 S. W. 726.

—— May be set aside.—Where land of decedent is erroneously set off to a widow, a lienholder may apply to the court where the administration is pending to set aside such order and enforce his lien. Wade v. Freese (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 69.

Art. 3421. [2054] [2001] When estate proves to be solvent.—If, upon a final settlement of such estate, it shall appear that the same is solvent, the exempted property, except the homestead, which has been set apart to the widow or children, or both, together with any allowance that has been received by them in lieu thereof, shall be subject to partition and distribution among the heirs and distributees of such estate in like manner as the other property of the estate. [Id.]

Art. 3422. [2055] [2002] When estate proves to be insolvent.—Should the estate, upon final settlement, prove to be insolvent, the title of the widow and children to all the property and allowances set apart or paid to them, under the provisions of this and of the preceding chapter, shall be absolute, and shall not be taken for any of the debts of the estate, except as hereinafter provided. [Id.]

Constitutionality.—So much of this article as confers upon the beneficiaries the absolute title to exempt personal property is not in conflict with the constitution, and the widow and children take absolute title thereto. Cameron v. Morris, 83 T. 14, 18 S. W. 422. See Childers v. Henderson, 76 T. 664, 13 S. W. 481; McDougal v. Bradford, 80 T. 558, 16 S. W. 619; Lacy v. Lockett, 82 T. 190, 17 S. W. 916.

This article, in so far as it provides that where a decedent is insolvent his widow and minor children take absolute title to the homestead, is unconstitutional, and the title vests in the heirs under the statutes of descent and distribution, subject only to the homestead rights of the constituent members of the family of the deceased. Dorman v. Grace, 57 C. A. 386, 122 S. W. 401; Hays v. Moore (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1054.

Construction and application.—When a husband was insolvent at his death, his undivided title and interest in the property occupied by him as a homestead, and in which children of a former marriage had an interest, passed at once to, and vested in, his rightful heirs at his death. Clift v. Kaufman, 60 T. 64.

When an estate is insolvent the property of the deceased exempt from forced sale vests absolutely in the beneficiaries appointed by law. Scott v. Cunningham, 60 T. 566; Clift v. Kaufman, 60 T. 64, citing Miller v. Menke, 56 T. 540; Pryor v. Stone, 19 T. 371, 70 Am. Dec. 341; Henderson v. Ford, 46 T. 628; Mabry v. Ward, 50 T. 411; McDonald v. Campbell, 57 T. 615. A sale of the homestead under a trust deed executed in 1872, after the death of the owner, is void as against his children claiming the homestead as exempt property. Abney v. Pope, 52 T. 288, citing Robertson v. Paul, 16 T. 472; Terry v. Terry, 39 T. 313; Mayman v. Reviere, 47 T. 357; McLane v. Paschal, 47 T. 370; Zwernemann v. Von Rosenberg, 76 T. 522, 13 S. W. 485.

Under the law as it existed in 1863, title to a homestead vested absolutely in the widow of the deceased husband, he dying insolvent, freed from all claim by his heirs, or liability to pay debts against his estate. Watson v. Rainey, 69 T. 319, 6 S. W. 840.

Upon the death of an insolvent husband the homestead and exempt property of the community are not liable for his debts when a constituent of the family survives. Zwernemann v. Von Rosenberg, 76 T. 522, 13 S. W. 485; Childers v. Henderson, 76 T. 664, 13 S. W. 481; Cameron v. Morris, 83 T. 14, 18 S. W. 422.

Under this article and Arts. 3428, 7528, and 7637, the homestead of the widow is exempt from forced sale for the payment of all debts except taxes due thereon, and certain other named claims. State v. Jordan, 25 C. A. 17, 59 S. W. 826, 60 S. W. 1009.

Under this article, and Arts. 3413, 3427, a homestead which, on the death of a husband, was set apart to the widow and was occupied by her as the only remaining constituent of the family, cannot, on her death, be taken as assets by the administrator, though the estate proves insolvent. Dorman v. Grace, 57 C. A. 386, 122 S. W. 401.

The homestead of an insolvent estate, where constituent members of the family survive, descends to those entitled to inherit free from claims of creditors. Ross v. Martin (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 718.

A homestead held to pass absolutely to the wife on the death of the husband, though his estate is insolvent and the homestead is not subject to the husband's debts. Davie v. Green (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 874.

Widow may sell or exchange homestead.—The widow and children to whom a homestead was set apart, under the probate law of 1848, out of an insolvent estate, took an estate in fee discharged from the liens of creditors except for purchase money or for improvements on the property. Horn v. Arnold, 52 T. 161, citing Green v. Crow, 17 T. 188; Reeves v. Petty, 44 T. 249. See, also, Rainey v. Chambers, 56 T. 17; Putnam v. Young, 57 T. 461.

Art. 3423. [2056] [2003] Exempt property, etc., not to be considered in ascertaining solvency, etc.—In ascertaining whether an estate is solvent or insolvent, the exempt property set apart to the widow or children, or the allowance in lieu thereof, and the allowance provided for in the preceding chapter, shall not be estimated or considered as assets of the estate.

See Wiener v. Zweib, 105 T. 262, 141 S. W. 771, 147 S. W. 867.

Claims barred.—Claim barred by limitation will not be considered. Haby v. Fuos (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1121.

Art. 3424. [2057] [2004] When homestead shall not be partitioned.—The homestead shall not be partitioned among the heirs of the deceased during the lifetime of the widow, or so long as she may elect to use or occupy the same as a homestead, or so long as the guardian of the minor children of the deceased may be permitted, under the order of the proper court having the jurisdiction, to use and occupy the same. [Const., art. 16, sec. 52.]

In general.—A homestead cannot be partitioned among the heirs of the deceased during the life of the widow or so long as she may elect to use or occupy the homestead as such. McAnulty v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 670; Flynn v. Hancock, 35 C. A. 395, 80 S. W. 245; Hoefling v. Thulemeyer (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 102.

Occupancy by widow.—The children of the father by the first marriage, who, after his death, ceased to be members of the family of his wife by a second marriage, cannot enforce partition of a homestead acquired by the separate means of their father, and which was set aside as a homestead for the widow and children of the second marriage. And this, notwithstanding that the widow and the second husband had left the homestead and removed to another county with the intention never to return unless compelled by poverty or unavoidable circumstances, a title to no other home having been acquired. Foreman v. Meroney, 62 T. 723.

After the death of the husband the widow can use and occupy the homestead and it is not subject to partition. The detention of the widow in the lunatic asylum does not affect the homestead character of the premises. The detention was not voluntary, and without a voluntary abandonment by the survivor the status of the homestead would not be disturbed. Flynn v. Hancock, 35 C. A. 395, 80 S. W. 246.

Titles acquired otherwise than by descent from ancestor.—The widow, who during the life of her husband, and at his death, occupied with him a homestead on a tract of land which belonged as community property to the deceased and the wife of a former marriage, is entitled on partition with the heirs of the first marriage to have her husband's interest set aside, and to retain on it a homestead so long as she may choose to occupy as such. The heirs of the wife by a former marriage are entitled to so have the land partitioned that their interest inherited from her may be set aside to them in severalty. In such cases, there being no heirs by the second marriage, the fee of the land descends to the children of the first marriage, subject to the homestead rights of the widow of the second marriage in the interest owned by her husband. The homestead right of the widow does not attach to an undivided interest of the children of the deceased husband, inherited from his wife by a former marriage. The prohibition against partition is against those who claim as heirs of the estate of the decedent, not to those claiming an interest in the land through other titles. Gilliam v. Null, 58 T. 298; Clements v. Lacy, 51 T. 150; Heirs of Pressley v. Robinson, 57 T. 453.

The prohibition against a partition is as to the children, and not as to those claiming an interest through titles otherwise acquired than by descent from the deceased husband, and, where the widow mortgages her undivided interest in the community homestead, on a foreclosure sale the purchaser may bring partition against the children. Savings & Loan Co. v. Bristoll (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 641.

Proceeds of homestead.—The compensation received for homestead property condemned by a city while occupied by the widow could not be partitioned between the widow and decedent's heirs over her objection, but should be ordered by the court to be reinvested in another homestead; the widow and heirs having the same proportionate interest in the proceeds as in the homestead property before its condemnation. Lucas v. Lucas, 104 T. 636, 143 S. W. 1153.

Art. 3425. [2058] [2005] When homestead may be partitioned.—When the widow dies or sells her interest in the homestead, or elects to no longer use or occupy the same as a homestead, and when the proper court no longer permits the guardian of the minor children to use and occupy the same as a homestead, it may be partitioned among the respective owners thereof in like manner as other property held in common.

In general.—When the parents die, and leave no one at the homestead except an unmarried daughter who is an adult, the homestead can be partitioned among their heirs, there being no administration and no necessity for one upon the estates of her deceased parents, and there being no minor children. White v. Small, 22 C. A. 318, 54 S. W. 915.

Statement of right, under Const. art. 16, § 52, of a homestead entering into a partition. Higgins v. Higgins (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 162.

Abandonment of homestead.—A surviving widow may abandon her right to the use of the homestead, and in such a case it becomes subject to partition as other property. Moore v. Moore, 89 T. 29, 33 S. W. 217.

Where the petition for partition alleges that the surviving spouse abandoned his homestead rights by conveying his interest therein and giving possession, it is error to sustain a general demurrer and dismiss the case. Ord v. Waller (Civ. App.) 107 S. W. 1166.

Sale of interest by widow.—Separate property of a husband and wife, incumbered with a community debt, on being conveyed by the wife after the husband's death in payment of such debt, might be partitioned, though the heirs of the husband were entitled to homestead in his share. King v. Summerville (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1050.

When a surviving wife sells her interest in a community homestead, the homestead right terminates, and the heirs of the deceased husband are entitled to possession of their interest in the property. York v. Hutcheson, 37 C. A. 367, 83 S. W. 895.

A homestead can be partitioned when a survivor has conveyed her interest and the guardian of minor children has not been permitted to use the same under the order of court. Williams v. Jones (Civ. App.) 106 S. W. 755.

Where there are no children.—Where, on the death of a widow, there are no minor children, the homestead is subject to partition. Simms v. Hixon (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 36.

Laches.—Failure of child to sue for partition of homestead while occupied by surviving wife held not to be laches. McAnulty v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 670.

Art. 3426. [2059] [2006] No distinction between separate and community homestead.—The homestead rights of the widow and children of deceased are the same whether the homestead be the separate property of the deceased or community property between the widow and the deceased, and the respective interests of such widow and children shall be the same in one case as in the other.

In general.—The children have no interest in the homestead as such, as against the surviving parent, by virtue of the homestead rights of the deceased parent. If debts exist the survivor has power to sell the community homestead for the purpose of paying them. In this respect there is no difference between adult and minor heirs, except that the latter may indirectly receive a benefit through the possessory right given the surviving parent or guardian on account of the family of which they may be constituents. Ashe v. Yungst, 65 T. 631; Fagan v. McWhirter, 71 T. 567, 9 S. W. 677; Watts v. Miller, 76 T. 13, 13 S. W. 16.

Upon the death of an insolvent husband the homestead and exempt property of the community are not liable for his debts, provided there survives a constituent member of the family of the deceased. Zwernemann v. Von Rosenberg, 76 T. 522, 13 S. W. 485; Childers v. Henderson, 76 T. 664, 13 S. W. 481; Cameron v. Morris, 83 T. 14, 18 S. W. 422.

A husband can, after the death of his wife, sell the homestead to pay community debts, notwithstanding the fact that there was other community property left. Burkitt v. Key (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 231.

On death of wife, husband occupying farm held entitled to hold 200 acres thereof, whether the farm belonged to him or the wife, or part to one and part to the other, or whether it was community property. Beall v. Hollingsworth (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 881.

A surviving husband has power to sell land occupied by himself and wife as a homestead at the time of the wife's death to pay community debts owing at the time of her death. Linson v. Poindexter, 35 C. A. 358, 80 S. W. 237.

Purchaser of homestead from surviving husband need not see that purchase money is applied to community debts. Id.

Where land was owned by a husband and wife in severalty, and was incumbered by improvements erected by community debts, the heirs of the husband are only entitled to homestead in his share of the land. King v. Summerville (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1050.

On the death of a wife, the homestead right is held by the husband and the children inheriting the community interest of the wife as any other community property, subject to an incumbrance created by the husband and wife. Wiener v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 699.

A widow owning a life estate in one-third of the land constituting the separate estate of her deceased husband may sell her interest, and do what she pleases with the price received. Smalley v. Paine (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 739.

A widow's sale of her interest in a community homestead held not to render her liable for a note executed during coverture, not for necessaries. J. B. Newton & Sons v. Puente (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1161.

After a sale of community property, subject to a homestead, under a deed of trust executed by the husband without the wife's consent, held, that the surviving children retained no interest in the property. Wiener v. Zwieb, 105 T. 262, 141 S. W. 771, 147 S. W. 867.

A surviving husband has the power to sell or mortgage a homestead in community property to pay a community debt. Id.

The surviving spouse may sell the community homestead to pay community debts, though the estate is insolvent. Morse v. Nibbs (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 766.

Children have no interest in the community homestead as such as against the surviving parent. Id.

Art. 3427. [2060] [2007] Homestead not liable for debts, except, etc.—The homestead shall not be liable for the payment of any of the debts of the estate, except for the purchase money thereof, the taxes due thereon or for work and material used in constructing improvements thereon; and in this last case only when the work and material are contracted for in writing, with the consent of the wife, given in the same manner as required in making a sale and conveyance of the homestead. [Const., art. 16, sec. 50.]

In general.—Where the land of a decedent constituted a homestead, the county court had no jurisdiction of proceedings to sell the same for the payment of debts of the estate. Dignowity v. Baumblatt, 38 C. A. 363, 85 S. W. 834.

A homestead which, on the death of a husband, was set apart to the widow and was occupied by her as the only remaining constituent of the family, cannot, on her death, be taken as assets by the administrator, though the estate proves insolvent. Dorman v. Grace, 57 C. A. 386, 122 S. W. 401.

A homestead held not subject to the husband's debts after death of wife subsequent to that of the husband. Davie v. Green (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 874.

A homestead of a decedent held to vest on his death in his heirs, freed from claims of creditors. Wade v. Scott (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 675.

Persons entitled to benefit of exemption.—A contention that, inasmuch as the collateral heirs of the husband were claiming the property on the death of the wife, it would be inequitable to allow them to defeat creditors of the estate, was of no avail, since if the property would be exempt in the hands of lineal descendants of the husband, collateral heirs would also be protected. Dorman v. Grace, 57 C. A. 386, 122 S. W. 401.

Art. 3428. [2061] [2008] Other exempt property, liable for what debts.—The exempted property, other than the homestead, or any allowance made in lieu thereof, shall be liable for the payment of the funeral expenses and the expenses of last sickness of deceased, when presented within the time prescribed therefor; but such property shall not be liable for any other debts of the estate.

Art. 3429. [2062] [2009] Homestead rights of surviving husband.—On the death of the wife, leaving a husband surviving, the homestead shall descend and vest in like manner as other real property of the deceased, and shall be governed by the same laws of descent and distribution, but it shall not be partitioned among the heirs of the deceased during the lifetime of such surviving husband, or so long as he may elect to use or occupy the same as a homestead. [Const., art. 16, sec. 51.]

In general.—While the husband, the sole surviving constituent of the family, could not acquire a new homestead, his rights in the old homestead of the family are protected. Kessler v. Draub, 52 T. 575, 36 Am. Rep. 727; Blum v. Gaines, 57 T. 119; Schneider v. Bray, 59 T. 668.

A surviving husband is not entitled, as against the surviving children, to absolute title to the homestead and other exempt property because of his having paid community debts from the proceeds of a policy issued during the marriage on the life of the wife in his favor. Martin v. McAllister (Civ. App.) 61 S. W. 522.

The fact that defendant applied the proceeds of a homestead to discharge a mortgage on another tract of land, on which he resided after the death of his wife, held not to entitle him to a homestead in the latter tract. Chamberlin v. Leland, 94 T. 502, 62 S. W. 740.

Where the surviving husband collected rents from real estate after the same ceased to be his homestead, the only child of the marriage was entitled to a half thereof. Mattingly v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 483.

A surviving husband, using the rents from the homestead in paying a community debt and taxes, held entitled to reimbursement therefor out of the community estate. Id.

Payment by the surviving husband of water rents on the homestead in the possession of tenants paying him rent is for his personal benefit and the community estate is not chargeable therefor. Id.

Death of the wife does not subject the homestead to sale under a judgment on an ordinary debt while the surviving husband continues to occupy it as such. Strong v. H. T. Elder & Sons (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 374.

On the death of a wife, the homestead is held by the husband and the children inheriting the community interest of the wife as other community property. Wiener v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 699.

A homestead acquired during marriage continues during the life of the survivor, but one acquired by survivor continues only while he is head of a family. First Nat. Bank v. Sokolski (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 818.

Necessity of order of court.—On the death of the wife it is not necessary to set apart to the surviving husband and children the community or homestead property, for it is presumed that the husband will continue to occupy the property and protect the same from a forced sale. Wiener v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 699.

Divorce or separation.—When the husband has abandoned the wife he forfeits his interest in the homestead on separate property of the deceased wife. Hector v. Knox, 63 T. 613.

A homestead right inures to the benefit of a surviving husband, though the family be dissolved and the survivor no longer the head thereof. Leland v. Chamberlin (Civ. App.) 60 S. W. 435.

The homestead interest of a divorced husband in land, the possession of which was given the wife by decree of divorce, held to revive on her death. Stone v. McClellan & Prince, 36 C. A. 364, 81 S. W. 751.

Abandonment of homestead.—The husband after the death of his wife abandoned their homestead and his interest therein was sold under execution. It was held that the heirs of the wife could not defeat the right of the purchaser by showing that the parties were insolvent at the time of the wife's death. Holloway v. McIlhenny Co., 77 T. 657, 14 S. W. 240.

Where a surviving husband rents out the former homestead and moves upon other land, he loses the homestead rights under Const. art. 16, § 52. Moss v. Smith, 29 C. A. 458, 68 S. W. 533.

Where a surviving husband, by abandoning the former homestead, loses the homestead rights, he cannot revive them to the prejudice of the rights of his wife's heirs. Id.

Certain testimony held to show an abandonment of the homestead by a husband after the death of the wife. Wiener v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 699.

Conveyance or mortgage by husband.—A surviving husband having power to create a valid lien on his interest in the homestead by a deed of trust, a purchaser under such deed will acquire the right to the use and possession thereof. Lee v. British & American Mortg. Co., 25 C. A. 481, 61 S. W. 134.

The amount paid by the surviving husband for permanent street improvements in front of the homestead, after the death of the wife, held properly deducted from proceeds of a sale of the premises in determining the amount the only child of the surviving husband and deceased wife is entitled to. Mattingly v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 483.

The validity of a sale of the homestead under a deed of trust executed by the husband alone to secure a community debt, made after the death of the wife, is not affected by the husband's insolvency. Wiener v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 699.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

PRESENTMENT, ETC., OF CLAIMS AGAINST AN ESTATE

Article 3430. [2063] [2010] Notice of issuance of letters shall be given.—It shall be the duty of an executor or administrator, within one month after receiving letters, to publish in some newspaper printed in the county where the letters were issued, if there be one, a notice requiring all persons having claims against the estate of the testator or intestate to present the same within the time prescribed by law; which notice shall state the time of the original grant of letters testamentary or of administration, and the residence and postoffice address of such executor or administrator, and shall be published once a week for four successive weeks. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 106, sec. 58.]

Implied contract.—Estate of decedent held liable under implied promise for services performed in nursing him. Flannery v. Chidgey, 33 C. A. 638, 77 S. W. 1034.

Debts are lien on property.—The debts against a decedent constitute a lien upon all the property of his estate, subject to the payment of debts. Gibson v. Oppenheimer (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 694.

Art. 3431. [2064] [2011] Copy of notice, etc., to be filed and recorded.—A copy of such printed notice, together with the affidavit of the publisher, sworn to and subscribed before some officer authorized to administer oaths, that it was published once a week for four successive weeks, shall be filed and recorded in the court from which the letters were issued, and a certified copy thereof, or of such record, may be given in evidence in any court in any action by or against the executor or administrator. [Id.]

Art. 3432. [2065] [2012] Same subject.—When no newspaper is printed in the county, the notice required shall be posted at the court house door of the county where the letters were issued, for four successive weeks, and a copy of such notice, with the return that such notice has been posted according to law, shall be filed and recorded, and shall be evidence as provided in the preceding article in the case of a printed notice. [Id.]

Art. 3432a. Notice to holders of recorded claims; contents of notice; mode of giving.—It shall be the duty of an executor or administrator within four months after receiving letters to give notice of the issuance of such letters, to each and all persons having a claim for money against the testator or intestate at the time of death, provided:

1. That such claim is secured by a deed of trust, mortgage, or vendors, mechanics or other contracts lien upon real estate belonging to such testator or intestate.

2. That the instrument creating extending or transferring such lien is duly recorded prior to the death of such testator or intestate in the county in which the real estate covered by such lien is situated, and,

3. That the instrument creating extending or transferring such lien shall contain a statement of the residence and post office address of the holder of such claim (whether original payee or transferee). Said notice stating the original grant of letters testamentary or of administration shall be given by mailing same as a registered letter addressed to the record holder of such indebtedness or claim at the post office address given in the said instrument creating such lien, or in the last recorded extension or transfer of said lien in case same has been transferred of record. [Acts 1913, p. 253, sec. 1, amending ch. 19, title 52, Rev. St. 1911.]

Art. 3432b. Copy of notice, etc., to be filed and recorded.—A copy of such notice together with return receipt and accompanied by the affidavit of the executor or administrator, sworn to and subscribed before some officer authorized to administer oaths, stating that said notice had been mailed as required by law, and giving the name of the person to whom sent, shall be filed and recorded in the court from which the letters issued, and a certified copy thereof, of such record, may be given in evidence in any court in any action by or against the executor or administrator. [Id.]

Art. 3433. [2066] [2013] One notice sufficient.—If such notices have been given by a former executor or administrator, a subsequent executor or administrator need not give it; and such notices given by one executor or administrator where several are acting as such shall be sufficient for all. [Id.]

Art. 3434. [2067] [2014] Penalty for neglect to give notice.—If the executor or administrator fails to give such notices or causes the same to be given, he and his sureties upon his bond shall be liable for any damage which any person may sustain by reason of such neglect unless it appears that such person had such notice otherwise; and such executor or administrator shall be removed by the county judge at any regular term of the court on the complaint of any person interested in the estate after being cited to answer such complaint. [Id.]

Effect of failure to give notice.—The failure of the administrator to publish the notice of his appointment as required by statute in no way affects the conclusiveness of the orders of the county court made in the administration of the estate. All parties interested in the estate are required to take notice of the pendency of the administration which had been regularly begun, and the only effect of the failure of the administrator to publish notice of his appointment would be to render him liable for any damages thereby occasioned a creditor and would not render invalid the orders of the court. Tiboldi v. Palms, 34 C. A. 318, 78 S. W. 727.

Art. 3435. [2068] [2015] Claims shall be postponed, if not presented within twelve months; proviso.—Every claim for money against a testator or intestate shall be presented to the executor or administrator within twelve months after the original grant of letters testamentary or of administration of the claimant thereof shall be postponed until the claims which have been presented within said twelve months by the executor or administrator and approved by the county judge have been first entirely paid; providing, however, that if the notice required in article 3432a be not given by the executor or administrator to the holder of any recorded claim and therein specified, then the failure upon the part of such holder to present such claim within twelve months shall not postpone the claimant thereof until the claims which have been presented within twelve months and allowed by the executors or administrators and approved by the county judge shall have been first entirely paid, nor shall any of the provisions of this article apply to such claim in any manner whatever. [Id.]

Presentation.—The presentation of a claim against a decedent's estate to the executor for allowance is the beginning of a legal prosecution to judgment. Hume v. Perry (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 594.

—— Necessity.—All claims, whether secured by lien or not, must be presented to the administrator within the time prescribed by law or they will suffer the penalty of delay imposed by the statute. Graham v. Vining, 1 T. 669; Id., 2 T. 443; Danzey v. Swinney, 7 T. 625; Crosby v. McWillie, 11 T. 94; Robertson v. Paul, 16 T. 472; McLane v. Paschal, 47 T. 365.

Unless the claim is presented to the executor or administrator verified as the statute requires he cannot allow, nor can the county judge approve the same. Whitmire v. Powell (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 436.

—— Sufficiency of.—Where suit was pending at the date of the defendant's death, and was continued by his administrator, the proceedings are such an exhibition of the claim as will warrant the grading of it in the judgment rendered thereon. Simpson v. Knox, 1 U. C. 569.

Where suit is brought against maker of note in his lifetime, on his death it is not necessary to show presentment as claimed against his estate. Beissner v. Weekes, 21 C. A. 14, 50 S. W. 138.

A claim for attorney's fees, presented to the administrator of the deceased client, held a claim for services rendered the deceased, and not to include services rendered the administrator. Stark v. Hart, 22 C. A. 543, 55 S. W. 378.

On presentation of a claim against an estate to the administrator for allowance, it is not necessary to present the agreement on which the claim was founded. Altgelt v. Elmendorf (Civ. App.) 86 S. W. 41.

—— One presentation sufficient.—Where, pending an action against an executrix, the defendant dies, the claim need not be presented to her successor in administration. Parks v. Lubbock (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 466.

Time for presentation.—Where a claim was mailed to an executor before the twelve months had expired but was not received by him until after the time had expired, it is not in time and must be postponed. Adoue v. Gonzales, 22 C. A. 73, 54 S. W. 367.

Claims which must be presented.—See, also, notes under Art. 3449.

A claim for damages for breach of trust to convey land need not be presented. Robinson v. McDonald, 11 T. 385, 62 Am. Dec. 480.

A claim for damages for violation of a contract which are unliquidated and uncertain need not be presented. Evans v. Hardeman, 15 T. 480; Bullion v. Campbell, 27 T. 653.

Judgments against the defendant since his decease must be enforced through the county court. Chandler v. Burdett, 20 T. 42; McMiller v. Butler, 20 T. 402; Cannon v. McDaniel, 46 T. 303; Giddings v. Crosby, 24 T. 295.

A claim by the heirs of their deceased mother against the estate of their deceased father for half the rents of community property during the interval between the death of their mother and father, and their claim for half the proceeds of community property sold by their father during the same interval, were claims for money and should have been authenticated and established as prescribed by statute. Rose v. England, 51 T. 617.

A judgment foreclosing a vendor's lien after the death of the defendant, and assigned to a third party, must be presented. Jenkins v. Cain, 72 T. 88, 10 S. W. 391.

It is only money claims that the statute requires should be presented to an administrator and be rejected before suit can be filed. Barlow v. Anglin (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 857.

A vendor's lien may be foreclosed, though a subsequent purchaser is dead, the judgment not being one which must be certified to the probate court to be paid in administration. Ferguson v. McCrary, 20 C. A. 529, 50 S. W. 472.

A lien to secure a debt barred by limitations on a decedent's property, can only be set up in the proceeding for the settlement of his estate in the county court. Gresham v. Harcourt, 93 T. 149, 53 S. W. 1019.

An indorsement on a note held an absolute guaranty, and not a contingent liability, and a claim against the guarantor's estate based thereon should have been presented for allowance. National Guaranty Loan & Trust Co. v. Fly, 29 C. A. 533, 69 S. W. 231.

This statute applies to those claims in which the amount claimed is liquidated, or is susceptible, at the time of presentation of being reduced to a definite and specific sum which the administrator would be justified in allowing and it has no reference to any other claims. National Guaranty Loan & Trust Co. v. Fly, 29 C. A. 533, 69 S. W. 232.

Sale under a deed of trust held valid, though the claim secured by the deed had not been presented to the administrator of the estate of the grantor. Miles v. Coleman Nat. Bank, 37 C. A. 73, 84 S. W. 284.

A vendor's claim for rents in possession of an administratrix of the deceased purchaser under her replevy bond need not be presented to the administratrix for allowance. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Texas Land & Mortgage Co., 40 C. A. 489, 90 S. W. 197.

This article and following only applies to claims, the amount of which is fixed and definite, and susceptible of being verified by affidavit. Hume v. Perry (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 594.

The holder of shares of stock of a corporation, pledged as collateral security, is not a mere mortgagee or lien holder, who must prove up his debt against the pledgor's estate in the probate court. Clarke v. First State Bank of Dallas, 150 S. W. 203.

Failure to present—effect in general.—A judgment rendered against the intestate, and not authenticated and presented for allowance under the statute, is postponed in favor of a judgment rendered in a suit pending at the time of his death and prosecuted against the administrator to judgment. Converse v. Sorley, 39 T. 515.

Claims not presented within a year will not be entitled to satisfaction out of the property incumbered or other property until all claims properly presented within the year have been fully paid. Buchanan v. Wagnon, 62 T. 375.

A postponed claim may be enforced against property subject to a lien. I. B. Watkins Land Mortgage Co. v. Phillips, 38 S. W. 270.

Where a creditor failed to present his claim against the estate of his deceased grantor debtor, it was barred, and though it was secured by trust deed, a sale thereunder was void. Harris v. Wilson (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 868.

A deed of trust was executed in 1841. The maker died in 1843. The deed of trust and debt were not presented to the administrator for allowance within one year as required by the act of 1840: Held, the purchaser at the trustee's sale subsequently made took no title and the heirs of the grantor are not liable for the debt. Wilson v. Harris, 91 T. 427, 44 S. W. 65.

Where the maker of notes providing for attorney's fees died before maturity, and the holder presented the notes against his estate without claiming attorney's fees, and they were allowed to the extent of principal and interest, attorney's fees cannot subsequently be recovered. Wicks-Nease v. James, 31 C. A. 151, 72 S. W. 87.

Cestui que trust under deed of trust held to have lost debt and lien by failing to file claim during administration of grantor's estate. Texas Loan Agency v. Dingee, 33 C. A. 118, 75 S. W. 866.

—— Excuses.—Determination of propriety of levy under deficiency judgment held to render delay in presenting claim to administrator reasonable. Bell's Estate v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 33 C. A. 408, 76 S. W. 798.

Does not apply to administration by independent executor.—It is not necessary, before suing an executor administering an estate independently of the county court, to present the claim for allowance. Smyth v. Caswell, 65 T. 379.

A claim against a testator need not be presented before his independent executrix is sued thereon. Parks v. Lubbock (Civ. App.) 50 S. W. 466.

This article does not apply where the estate is being administered by an independent executor during which administration a final judgment was rendered against the executor establishing a claim secured by a mortgage lien which on the resignation of the independent executor was exhibited in his report. Bell's Estate v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 33 C. A. 408, 76 S. W. 799.

Where an estate was administered by an independent executor so that the county court had no authority over it, the presentation by a creditor of his claim to the executor, and the latter's approval of it, did not give it any priority over claims of other creditors not presented. Taylor v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 1018.

Art. 3436. [2069] [2016] Claims for funeral expenses and of last sickness to be presented in sixty days, or, etc.—Claims for funeral expenses and expenses of last sickness of the deceased shall be presented within sixty days after the original grant of letters testamentary or of administration, or the exempted property set apart to the widow and children, or allowances made them under the provisions of chapters seventeen and eighteen of this title, shall no longer be liable to the payment of such claims, or any part thereof.

Art. 3437. [2070] [2017] Time of absence of executor, etc., not to be computed.—If the executor or administrator absent himself from the state, the time of such absence shall not be computed in estimating the twelve months or sixty days' time mentioned in the two preceding articles. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 107, sec. 59.]

Where there are two executors.—Where there are two executors, as provided for in Art. 3356, only the joint absence of both will be included in computing the time of absence from the state to determine whether or not the 12 months has expired. Adoue v. Gonzales, 22 C. A. 73, 54 S. W. 367.

Art. 3438. [2071] Estate charged with joint obligation.—When two or more persons are jointly bound for the payment of a debt or for any other purpose, upon the death of either of said persons so bound, his estate may be charged by virtue of such obligation in the same manner as if the obligors had been bound severally as well as jointly. [Acts 1887, p. 17.]

Art. 3439. [2072] [2018] Affidavit to claim.—No executor or administrator shall allow any claim for money against his testator or intestate, nor shall any county judge approve the same, unless such claim is accompanied by an affidavit in writing that the claim is just and that all legal offsets, payments and credits known to affiant have been allowed. Such affidavit, if made by any other person than the owner of the claim, shall state further that the affiant is cognizant of the facts contained in his affidavit. [Acts 1876, p. 106, sec. 61.]

Does not apply to receiver.—This article does not apply to the verification of claims against a receiver. Ballard v. McMillan, 25 S. W. 327, 5 C. A. 679.

Affidavit—Necessity.—Where notes presented as a claim against an estate were rejected by the administrator and were sued upon in the county court, the suit must fail, unless the required supporting affidavit appears. Whitmire v. Powell, 103 T. 232, 125 S. W. 889.

—— Allowance without, void.—See Art. 3442 and notes.

—— Requisites.—When an affidavit is made by an agent without disclosing his agency, the objection is waived if not specified as the ground for rejection. Walters v. Prestidge, 30 T. 65, citing Hansell v. Gregg, 7 T. 228; McIntosh v. Greenwood, 15 T. 116; Dunn v. Sublett, 14 T. 521; Shelton v. Berry, 19 T. 154, 70 Am. Dec. 326; Alford v. Cochrane, 7 T. 488.

An affidavit that fails to state any one of the facts required to be stated by this article is fatally defective; as, when the words "offsets and payments" are omitted. Walters v. Prestidge, 30 T. 65. But equivalent words are sufficient. Crosby v. McWillie, 11 T. 94; Gaston v. McKnight, 43 T. 619.

The verification of a claim against an estate owned by the administrator is insufficient, his affidavit failing to show that the account is just and that the facts stated in the affidavit are known to him. Strickland v. Sandmeyer, 21 C. A. 351, 52 S. W. 87.

If any one of its essential requisites is omitted the affidavit is fatally defective, and the administrator cannot allow the claim, or if the claim is allowed and approved, it will be of no force or effect. See Art. 3442. Whitmire v. Powell (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 438.

An affidavit attached to a claim against a decedent's estate held a substantial compliance with the statute. Dowell v. Collin County Nat. Bank of McKinney (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 29.

Burden of proof.—The burden is on those asserting claims against estates of deceased persons to show that all legal offsets, payments and credits, have been allowed, and this burden continues if the claim is rejected by the administrator or executor and the creditor seeks to enforce them through the courts. Granberry v. Granberry, 40 C. A. 420, 90 S. W. 712.

Art. 3440. [2073] [2019] Claim lost or destroyed may be presented, how.—If the claim has been lost or destroyed, the claimant, or some one for him, may make an affidavit to the fact of such loss or destruction, stating the amount, date and nature of such claim and when due, and that the same is just, and that all legal offsets, payments and credits known to affiant have been allowed, and that the claimant is still the owner of the same; but, in such case, before such claim shall be approved, it must be proved by disinterested testimony taken in open court, or by deposition.

Art. 3441. [2074] [2020] Affidavit made before whom.—The affidavit may be made before any officer authorized to administer oaths and give certificates thereof. [Act to adopt and establish R. C. S., passed Feb. 21, 1879.]

Art. 3442. [2075] [2021] Allowance or approval without affidavit, void.—If any such claim is allowed or approved without such affidavit as is required by the preceding articles of this chapter, such allowance or approval shall be of no force or effect. [Id. sec. 61.]

Allowance without affidavit void.—The presentation of a claim, with an affidavit which is not signed by the claimant, is a nullity, and the period of limitation cannot be computed from that date. Lanier v. Taylor (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 516.

Unless the affidavit is signed the allowance of the claim is a nullity. Anderson v. Cochran, 93 T. 583, 57 S. W. 29.

In none of the statutes relating to the probate law is there any suggestion that action taken contrary to them shall be void except in this article in which the approval and allowance of claims without an affidavit are prohibited; and in this instance the statute expressly declares—what would not otherwise follow—that such an allowance by the court would be of no effect. Nelson v. Bridge, 98 T. 523, 86 S. W. 10.

Art. 3443. [2076] [2022] Memorandum of allowance or rejection.—When any claim for money against an estate shall be presented to the executor or administrator, if the same be properly authenticated in the manner required by this chapter, he shall indorse thereon or annex thereto a memorandum in writing signed by him, stating the time of its presentation, and that he allows or rejects the claim, or what portion thereof he allows or rejects, as the case may be. [Id. sec. 63.]

Sufficiency of memorandum.—A memorandum of rejection signed by one alleged to be administrator without words of description is sufficient unless his authority is denied under oath. Tolbert v. McBride, 75 T. 95, 12 S. W. 752.

Cannot withdraw allowance.—Where the administrator has allowed in full a claim against the estate, his filing objection to the claim before it is acted on by the county court does not so nullify his allowance of it as to oust the county court of jurisdiction to pass on it. Hensel v. B. & L. Ass'n, 85 T. 215, 20 S. W. 116.

When an administrator has allowed a claim against the estate he cannot withdraw such allowance by protesting against the approval by the county judge. Id.

Allowance of claim barred by limitation.—As to the effect of the allowance of a claim barred by limitation, see Suhre v. Benton (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 822; Park v. Prendergast, 4 C. A. 566, 23 S. W. 535.

An executrix who is the sole devisee and legatee of the decedent may approve a claim barred by limitation. Suhre v. Benton (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 822.

Art. 3444. [2077] [2023] Failure to indorse or annex memorandum.—When a claim for money against the estate of a deceased person shall be presented to the executor or administrator for his action, and he shall fail to indorse thereon, or annex thereto, a memorandum in writing as required by the last preceding article, such failure shall be deemed equivalent to a rejection of the claim, and shall authorize the claimant to bring a suit for the establishment thereof in like manner as if such claim had been so rejected; and such executor or administrator shall be removed on the complaint of any person interested in such claim, after being cited to appear and answer such complaint, and upon proof being made of such failure. [Id. p. 108, sec. 64.]

Art. 3445. [2078] [2024] When claim is allowed, shall be presented for approval.—If a claim, or a part thereof, be allowed by an executor or administrator, it shall be presented within twelve months after the issuance of original letters testamentary or of administration to the clerk of the county court of the proper county, who shall enter the same in its proper place upon the claim docket, and unless such claim is so presented within said time, the payment thereof, should it be approved either in whole or in part, shall be postponed until all other claims which have been allowed and approved within the time prescribed have been first entirely paid.

Does not apply to independent executor.—This article does not apply where the estate is being administered by an independent executor, during which administration a final judgment was rendered against the executor establishing a claim secured by a mortgage lien, which on the resignation of the independent executor was exhibited in his report. Bell's Estate v. Farmers' & Merchants' Nat. Bank, 33 C. A. 408, 76 S. W. 799.

Effect of docket failing to show claims.—The fact that the claim docket fails to show that any claim against the estate had been presented to and approved by the judge does not of itself show that deceased did not owe any debts or that the court did not have jurisdiction over the estate. Johnson v. Weatherford, 31 C. A. 180, 71 S. W. 791.

Art. 3446. [2079] [2025] Claim shall be acted upon by the court.—All claims that have been allowed by the executor or administrator and entered upon the claim docket for the period of ten days shall be acted upon by the court at a regular term, and either approved in whole or in part or rejected, as to the court may seem right, and they shall also at the same time be classified by the court.

Art. 3447. [2080] [2026] Action of the court upon claims.—When the court has acted upon a claim its action shall be entered upon the claim docket and the date thereof, and the county judge shall also indorse upon such claim or annex thereto a memorandum in writing, signed by him officially and dated, stating the action of the court upon such claim, whether approved or disapproved, or if approved in part and rejected in part, stating the amount approved, and also stating the classification of such claim.

Nature of entry.—Entry of a claim against a ward's estate on the claim docket, which Art. 3213 expressly makes a record book of the court, is an entry on the "records of the court" as required by this article. De Cordova v. Rogers, 97 T. 60, 75 S. W. 18.

Effect of judgment.—A judgment of the court establishing a claim is conclusive with reference to the debits and credits therein stated, and cannot be impeached in a collateral proceeding. Williams v. Robinson, 63 T. 576.

The approval by the county court of a claim against an estate conclusively establishes its validity until the judgment is set aside by a direct proceeding. Bloom v. Oliver, 56 C. A. 391, 120 S. W. 1101.

Approval of claim barred by limitations.—Though neither an executor nor administrator can rightfully allow a claim against an estate which is barred by limitation, yet if a claim apparently barred be thus allowed, its approval by the county court cannot be treated as a nullity by the heir. If it has been improperly allowed and approved, the remedy of the heir is by a direct proceeding to set the same aside. In such a proceeding every presumption will be indulged in favor of the allowance of the claim thus made, and it must be shown that no fact existed that would have suspended the statute of limitations during the period of its apparent operation. If the allowance be made by an independent executor, the approval of the county court is a nullity. Howard v. Johnson, 69 T. 655, 7 S. W. 522.

When a claim, apparently barred by limitations, is allowed and approved, it is presumed to have been within an exception preventing the bar, and beneficiaries can only set aside the order of approval by a direct showing that the claim was barred when allowed. Bloom v. Oliver, 56 C. A. 391, 120 S. W. 1101.

Disqualification of judge.—See notes under Art. 1736.

Art. 3448. [2081] [2027] Any person interested in estate may oppose the approval of a claim.—Any person interested in an estate may, at any time before the court has acted upon a claim, appear and object to the approval of the same, or any part thereof, in writing, and in such case the court shall hear proof and render such judgment as the facts and the law may require.

Creditors.—A general creditor sued the administrator upon a rejected claim, impleading a third party as defendant, alleging that he had obtained an allowance against the estate of a demand paid by the decedent in his lifetime, but which, by a fraudulent arrangement between decedent and such creditor, was kept outstanding for the purpose of defrauding the creditors of the decedent. Held, that in the absence of allegations that the estate was insolvent or its assets insufficient to pay the demands against it, the petition was insufficient. Kerr v. Hutchins, 36 T. 452.

Heirs may oppose.—Heirs of a decedent may object to the allowance of a claim against the estate. Farmer v. Saunders (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 941.

Art. 3449. [2082] [2028] When claim has been rejected the owner may bring suit.—When a claim for money against an estate has been rejected by the executor or administrator, either in whole or in part, the owner of such claim may, within ninety days after such rejection, and not thereafter, bring a suit against the executor or administrator for the establishment thereof in any court having jurisdiction of the same; and, on the trial of such suit, the memorandum in writing of the executor or administrator indorsed on, or annexed to, such claim may be given in evidence to prove the facts therein stated, without proof of the handwriting of such executor or administrator, unless the same be denied under oath. [Id. sec. 63.]

Jurisdiction.—County court as probate court has no jurisdiction of action for payment of rejected claim. Marx v. Freeman, 21 C. A. 429, 52 S. W. 647.

Presentation and rejection condition precedent to suit.—See, also, notes under Art. 3435.

A claim against the deceased agent for moneys collected by him, the plaintiff not having access to the books and papers of the deceased, and having no means of knowing how much money, if any, was collected, need not be presented before suit. Merle v. Anderson, 4 T. 200.

A claim which is not liquidated and which cannot be so reduced to a definite sum may be sued without previous presentation to the administrator. Garrett v. Gaines, 6 T. 435; King v. Cassiday, 36 T. 531.

The presentation and rejection of a claim is a condition precedent to suit upon it against the administrator. Thompson v. Branch, 35 T. 21, citing Danzey v. Swinney, 7 T. 626; Millican v. Millican, 15 T. 460. Suit must be brought within the time prescribed. Cotton v. Jones, 37 T. 34; Crosby v. McWillie, 11 T. 94; Cobb v. Norwood, 11 T. 556; Black v. Rockmore, 50 T. 88.

A claim against one, who, as sheriff, is sued for damages resulting from the wrongful levy of an attachment need not be presented before suit. Blum v. Welborne, 58 T. 157. A claim for damages for the killing of cattle by a trespasser need not be presented. Ferrill v. Mooney, 33 T. 219.

An action against an administrator for rent will not lie unless the claim has been presented and rejected. Roddy v. Harrell (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 1064.

Where a vendor's lien is retained in a trust deed and the purchase-money notes, and the vendee dies insolvent, an action to recover the property may be maintained on the default in payment of interest, without first filing a claim therefor against the vendee's estate. Curran v. Texas Land & Mortgage Co., 24 C. A. 499, 60 S. W. 466.

The remedy of the holder of purchase-money notes secured by vendor's lien and a deed of trust held to consist of the presentation of his claim, properly authenticated, to the administrator of the party liable for allowance, and to establish the claim by suit, on the administrator rejecting it. Whitmire v. Powell (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 433.

Suit on a claim against an estate cannot be maintained unless it has been presented to the executor or administrator and rejected. Id.

Plaintiff held not required to present her claim on vendor's lien notes against administrators and others to the administrators before bringing suit in the district court. Stewart v. Webb (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 537.

Time for suit.—When an executor took possession of a claim against his decedent's estate, not barred by limitation, promising to allow and pay it, but, after holding it until he believed it barred, returned it disallowed, held, that suit within three months after such rejection was in time. Kyle v. House, 38 T. 155.

When a claim has been indorsed as rejected by the administratrix, the erasure of the indorsement more than three months thereafter does not reinstate it so as to authorize suit thereon. Burks v. Bennett, 62 T. 277.

The day of rejection is excluded in reckoning the time within which suit shall be brought. Hunter v. Lanius, 82 T. 677, 18 S. W. 201.

The rejection of a claim presented by a person without authority is void, and does not put into operation the law of limitation under this article. Henry v. Roe, 83 T. 446, 18 S. W. 806.

Statement of limitation of action against an executrix on a debt of testator. Lang v. Light, 54 C. A. 497, 117 S. W. 1038.

—— Not a statute of limitations.—This article is not a general statute of limitation which must be pleaded in order to avail one's self of it, but by its very terms is a prohibitive statute and extinguishes a claim which has been rejected by an administrator and for the establishment of which suit has not been brought within the time therein prescribed. The bar created cannot be waived by the representative of the estate either by failure to plead the bar or by agreement with the creditor. Whitmire v. Powell (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 439.

—— Objection can be raised by demurrer.—See notes at end of Chapter 2, Title 37.

Effect of failure to sue in time.—If the claim sued on is one which is required to be presented to the administrator for allowance or rejection, the failure to sue within 90 days after its rejection is a bar to recovery thereon. National Guaranty Loan & Trust Co., 29 C. A. 533, 69 S. W. 232.

Rejection in part.—When a claim has been allowed in part and rejected in part, suit cannot be brought to establish the claim simply as to the items rejected. Gibson v. Hale, 57 T. 405.

The rejection of a claim in part authorizes the holder to bring suit on the claim in the court having jurisdiction of the entire amount. Simmons v. Terrel, 75 T. 275, 12 S. W. 854; Gibson v. Hale, 57 T. 406.

Administrator to allow or reject.—The power of an administrator upon claims presented to him is to allow or reject. He does not pass upon the validity of a lien to secure its payment, which must be enforced under Art. 3488. Mortgage Co. v. Jackman, 77 T. 622, 14 S. W. 305.

Rejection in general terms.—When the rejection of a claim by the administrator is in general terms, specifying no reason, the administrator in a suit to establish it can make no objection to the form or manner of presentation. Gaston v. McKnight, 43 T. 619; Heath v. Garrett, 46 T. 23; Cannon v. McDaniel, 46 T. 303.

Unliquidated claim need not be presented.—See, also, notes under Art. 3435.

This article does not require a claim for an unliquidated amount for services to testator, to be presented and rejected before suing the executor thereon. Wells v. Hobbs, 57 C. A. 375, 122 S. W. 451.

Art. 3450. [2083] [2029] Judgment establishing claim shall be filed, etc.—No execution shall be issued on a judgment obtained in any such suit, but a certified copy of such judgment shall be filed with the clerk of the county court where the estate is pending within thirty days after the rendition of such judgment, and entered upon the claim docket, and shall be classified by the county judge, and have the same force and effect as if the amount thereof had been allowed by the executor or administrator, and approved by the county judge. [Id.]

In general.—The court rendering a judgment establishing a claim against an estate has no authority to direct how it shall be paid. On a copy of the judgment being certified to the probate court, it would there be classified and paid in due course of administration according to its classification. Porter v. Sweeney, 61 T. 213.

A judgment established against an estate should direct its payment in due course of administration. Mott v. Ruenbuhl, 1 App. C. C., § 602.

A judgment in the district court against an administrator for a debt and foreclosure of a lien must be certified to the county court for enforcement. A sale under execution upon the judgment is void. Meyers v. Evans, 68 T. 466, 5 S. W. 66.

Probate acts of 1870 and 1873 construed. Wygal v. Heirs of Woodlief, 76 T. 604, 13 S. W. 569.

This article applies only to claims rejected by the administrator and subsequently established by suit. It does not apply to a judgment in the district court for costs against the administrator in a suit affecting the property of the estate. Manning v. Mayes, 79 T. 653, 15 S. W. 638.

An execution on a judgment against a decedent cannot be issued, but a certified copy thereof must be filed with the clerk of the county court, where the administration of the estate is pending, for classification as a claim against the estate. Allen v. Reilly (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1152.

Limitation does not run against.—The statute of limitation does not affect an established claim while the estate is in process of administration. Wygal v. Myers, 76 T. 598, 13 S. W. 567.

An execution for costs cannot be issued against the administrator of an estate. Schmidt v. Huff, 28 S. W. 1053, 7 C. A. 593.

Judgments against executors.—See Art. 2004.

—— Against independent executors.—See Art. 2005.

Art. 3451. [2084] [2030] Cost of suit to be adjudged against claimant, when.—In any suit that may be brought by the holder of a claim to establish the same after rejection, if he fails to recover judgment thereon for a greater amount than was allowed by the executor or administrator, he shall be adjudged to pay all costs of such suit. [Id. p. 107, sec. 62.]

Art. 3452. [2085] [2031] Action of court on claim a judgment, etc.—The action of the court in approving or disapproving a claim shall have the force and effect of a final judgment, and when the claimant, or any person interested in the estate, shall be dissatisfied with such action, he may appeal therefrom to the district court, as from other judgments of the county court rendered in probate matters.

In general.—Quære, as to the effect of a judgment annulling an administration fraudulently obtained, upon established claims of third parties not participants in the fraud. Ramirez v. McClane, 50 T. 598.

Does not apply to claims growing out of administration.—This article does not apply to claims growing out of the administration, which are governed by Arts. 3623, 3624. Richardson v. Kennedy, 74 T. 507, 12 S. W. 219.

Debt from decedent a charge upon estate.—A claim against an undistributed estate for a debt due from the decedent is a charge upon the estate, and not merely a claim against the heirs. Moore v. Moore, 89 T. 29, 33 S. W. 217.

Claim merged in judgment.—When a claim is approved and allowed it is merged in a judgment, which is conclusive until annulled or set aside by a decree of a court having jurisdiction to make such order. Williams v. Robinson, 63 T. 576; Swan v. House, 50 T. 650; Moore v. Moore, 59 T. 54; Swenson v. Walker, 3 T. 93; Neill v. Hodge, 5 T. 490; Toliver v. Hubbell, 6 T. 166; Finley v. Carothers, 9 T. 517, 60 Am. Dec. 179; Jones v. Underwood, 11 T. 116; Moore v. Hillebrant, 14 T. 312, 65 Am. Dec. 118; Eccles v. Daniels, 16 T. 136; Hillebrant v. Burton, 17 T. 138; Lott v. Cloud, 23 T. 254; Mosely v. Gray, 23 T. 496; Giddings v. Steele, 28 T. 732, 91 Am. Dec. 336; Baker v. Rust, 37 T. 242; Cannon v. Bonner, 38 T. 487; Swan v. House, 50 T. 650; Cone v. Crum, 52 T. 348.

Heir may appeal without notice.—Any heir to an estate being administered may appeal from the action of the probate judge allowing a claim against the estate without notice of appeal, and this without regard to whether he had appeared and objected to the approval of the claim. The extent of the heir's interest is immaterial, and, if the judgment of the court is reversed, it inures to the benefit of all the heirs in interest.

See Arts. 3632, 3633. The law requiring a denial under oath of the correctness of an account, properly sworn to, has no application in proceedings in the probate court. Glenn v. Kimbrough, 70 T. 147, 8 S. W. 81.

Approval cannot be set aside after close of term.—After the close of the term an approval of a claim cannot be set aside by the court, unless it was obtained by fraud or the court was without jurisdiction. Hicks v. Oliver, 78 T. 233, 14 S. W. 575.

Judgment—Fees of guardian.—The judgment of the county court in relation to fees of the guardian is conclusive. Eastland v. Williams, 92 T. 113, 46 S. W. 32.

Jurisdiction of district court in probate matters.—See Arts. 1706, 3206.

Art. 3453. [2086] [2032] Claim of executor or administrator.—The provisions of this chapter respecting the presentation of claims against an estate shall not be construed to apply to any claim of the executor or administrator against his testator or intestate; but any such executor or administrator holding any such claim shall file the same in the court granting his letters, verified by affidavit as required in other cases, within six months after he has qualified as such executor or administrator, or such claim shall be barred. [Id. p. 110, sec. 71.]

Art. 3454. [2087] [2033] Action of the court thereon, etc.—When such claim has been entered upon the claim docket, and acted upon by the court as in other cases of claims, an appeal from the judgment of the court may be taken as in other cases.

Art. 3455. [2088] [2034] Provisions of this chapter do not apply to certain claims.—The provisions of this chapter respecting the presentation of claims shall not be so construed as to apply to the claim of any heir, devisee or legatee when claiming as such, nor to any claim that accrues against the estate after the granting of letters testamentary or of administration for which the executor or administrator has contracted. [Id. sec. 70.]

Presentation of claims.—Where the owner of property wrongfully sold by an administrator as part of the estate brought action to recover its value, he was not required to show a presentation and rejection of the claim to entitle him to sue. Schmitt v. Jacques, 26 C. A. 125, 62 S. W. 956.

A claim against decedent's estate, arising under contract with an independent executrix, held not required to be presented to the administratrix with the will annexed for allowance. King v. Battaglia, 38 C. A. 28, 84 S. W. 839.

Art. 3456. [2089] [2035] Claim shall not be allowed after order for partition.—No claim for money against his testator or intestate shall be allowed by an executor or administrator, nor shall any suit be instituted against him on any such claim after an order for partition and distribution has been made; but the owner of any such claim not barred by the laws of limitation shall have his action thereon against the heirs, devisees or legatees of the estate, but they shall not be bound beyond the value of the property they may receive in such partition and distribution. [Id. sec. 69.]

In general.—In Murchison v. Payne, 37 T. 305, it was held that this article had no application when, after close of administration, suit was brought against the heirs subject to the laws of limitation.

Claims against an estate may be presented at any time before an order for partition and distribution is made. Art. 3456, Bledsoe v. Beiler, 66 T. 437, 1 S. W. 164. The administrator, on the 6th of June, 1885, filed his final account, representing, among other matters, that there were no assets of the estate on hand, and therefore there was no property to distribute. After the filing of such application a creditor presented his claim on the 7th of July, 1885, for allowance, which the administrator refused to make, on the ground that he had previously filed his final account showing all claims against the estate paid, and no property in his possession. On August 1st, following, the account of the administrator was approved, and an order made discharging him and closing the administration. On the 3d of August, 1885, the claim was again presented with the same result, and the claimant thereupon filed a motion to set aside the order, which was granted during the term. Held, that no order of partition having been made in this case when the claim was presented, the estate was still open for the benefit of all creditors. Bledsoe v. Beiler, 66 T. 437, 1 S. W. 164.

Estate closed after order of distribution.—After an order for partition and distribution the estate is as effectually closed, so far as it concerns creditors not previously made parties to the administration, as if it had been so declared by an order of the court. Bledsoe v. Beiler, 66 T. 437, 1 S. W. 164.

Liability of heirs and distributees.—See notes under Art. 3391.

Art. 3457. [2090] [2036] Judgment shall not be rendered in favor of claim which has not been presented and rejected.—No judgment shall be rendered in favor of a claimant upon any claim for money which has not been legally presented to the executor or administrator, and rejected by such executor or administrator, either in whole or in part. [P. D. 5683.]

In general.—See, also, notes under Arts. 3435, 3449.

A claimant suing on a claim against an estate must not merely allege the presentation and rejection of the claim, but must also allege the proper authentication of the claim when presented. Whitmire v. Powell (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 433.

What constitutes presentation.—To constitute a legal presentation of a claim within the meaning of this statute, it is essential that it be verified by an affidavit stating all the facts required to be stated by Art. 3439. Whitmire v. Powell (Civ. App.) 117 S. W. 438.

CHAPTER TWENTY

CLASSIFICATION AND PAYMENT OF CLAIMS

Article 3458. [2091] [2037] Classification of claims.—The claims against an estate shall be classed and have priority of payment as follows:

1. Funeral expenses and expenses of last sickness.

2. Expenses of administration and the expenses incurred in the preservation, safe-keeping and management of the estate.

3. Claims secured by mortgage or other liens so far as the same can be paid out of the proceeds of the property subject to such mortgage or other lien, and, when more than one mortgage or lien shall exist upon the same property, the oldest shall be first paid; but no preference shall be given to such claims secured by mortgage or lien further than regards the property subject to such mortgage or other lien.

4. All claims legally exhibited within one year after the original grant of letters testamentary or of administration.

5. All claims legally exhibited after the lapse of one year from the original grant of letters testamentary or of administration. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 115, sec. 88. P. D. 5674.]

See Minter v. Barnett, 90 T. 245, 38 S. W. 350.

Court must classify.—Claims allowed by the administrator or established by suit must be classified by the court. Mortgage Co. v. Jackman, 77 T. 622, 14 S. W. 305.

The duty of the county judge to classify claims cannot be dispensed with by consent of the executor. Allen v. Reilly (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1152.

Expenses of administration.—A judgment against the administrator directing a claim to be paid in preference to all other debts is not entitled to priority over the expense of the administration. Williams v. Robinson, 56 T. 347.

Reasonable attorney's fees in defending a suit against an estate are included in expenses of administration. Id.

The proper and reasonable expenses incurred by the administrator in the preservation, safe-keeping and management of the estate, or in carrying on a plantation belonging to it, constitute proper claims which, if not allowed and approved, may be established by suit. Reinstein v. Smith, 65 T. 247; Portis v. Cole, 11 T. 157; Jones v. Lewis, 11 T. 360; Caldwell v. Young, 21 T. 801; Price v. McIvre, 25 T. 771, 78 Am. Dec. 558; McMahan v. Harbert, 35 T. 452; Adriance v. Crews, 45 T. 181.

As between secured and unsecured creditors of a decedent's estate, the expenses incurred in the management of the estate must be paid out of the unincumbered assets, though the estate is insolvent. Rodgers v. Sturgis Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1176.

Compensation to an administrator for the care and management of mortgaged chattels of the estate is not "court costs" within the rule that court costs are entitled to priority over the claim of a creditor. Id.

In the administration of a decedent's estate, court costs are allowed priority over secured creditors only where the administrator entitled to the costs does not have in his possession other sufficient unincumbered assets to pay the costs. Id.

Mortgages and lien creditors.—An administrator has no right without order of court to apply the general assets of the estate to the discharge of a debt secured by vendor's lien upon the homestead set apart to the family of the deceased. Mullins v. Yarborough, 44 T. 14.

A claim against an estate may be a claim of the third class as to a portion of the property because secured by lien thereon, and of the fourth class as to the remainder of the estate. Kiolbassa v. Raley, 23 S. W. 253, 1 C. A. 165.

This article places all mortgage and other lien creditors upon the same footing and in the same class without distinction except that it gives to each mortgage or lien creditor preference in respect to the very property mortgaged to him. Barnes v. Scottish-America Mortg. Co., 29 C. A. 443, 68 S. W. 530.

Can determine priority of liens.—Under the authority to classify claims, the court has jurisdiction to inquire and determine which of several claims secured by lien on the same land is entitled to priority of payment. Eastham v. Sallis, 60 T. 576.

Effect of order of approval and classification.—In approving a recorded judgment presented as a claim against an estate, and ordering it paid as a third-class claim, the legal effect of such action is that, if there was any property of the estate to which the lien would attach, then, as to such property, the order would apply. It would not apply to property (the homestead) to which a lien could not attach. Kiolbassa v. Raley, 1 C. A. 165, 23 S. W. 253.

Orders approving and classifying claims in favor of administrators for expenses of administration have not the effect of final judgments but are subject to objection and revision as long as the administration remains open. Hardcastle's Estate v. Archer, 36 C. A. 112, 81 S. W. 369.

Appeal to district court.—See Chapter 32 of this title.

Art. 3459. [2092] [2038] Claims to be paid pro rata, when.—Where there is a deficiency of assets to pay all claims of the same class, they shall be paid pro rata; and no executor or administrator shall be allowed to pay any claims, whether the estate is solvent or insolvent, except with their pro rata amount of the funds of the estate that have come to hand. [Id. P. D. 5674.]

Application of payments.—As to the application of payments due for the purchase of land, see Walker v. Kerr, 27 S. W. 299, 7 C. A. 498.

Liability of administrator—Wrongful payment.—C., a creditor of the third class, held an approved claim secured by a lien on the only property known to belong to the estate. A portion of the proceeds of the sale of this property was, under the order of the court in pursuance of an agreement between the administrator and C., applied to the discharge of claims of the first and second class, and the remainder to the payment of C.'s claim, leaving a balance due thereon. Afterwards other property was discovered and sold by the administrator under the order of the court and its proceeds distributed pro rata amongst the holders of claims of the fourth class and C. Held, that the claim of C. was entitled to priority of payment out of the proceeds of the property last mentioned; and the administrator having improperly applied a part of the proceeds to the payment of claims of the fourth class, there not remaining in his hands an amount sufficient to satisfy C.'s claim, was responsible for any deficiency that might exist. Clifford v. Campbell, 65 T. 243.

—— Overpayment.—When the administrator pays claims without order of the court more than the pro rata amount due on claims of the same class, he is entitled to credit for such amount only as shall be found due and payable on the claim so paid by him; but he is not thereby personally liable for the balance of the debts unpaid. Lockhart v. White, 18 T. 102.

General legacies must be first exhausted.—If in the settlement of an estate there is a deficiency of assets, it must be supplied, first, from the general legacies, and the special legacies will not abate in favor of creditors until the general legacies are exhausted. But if special legacies cannot be supplied from the particular fund designated, the legatee cannot be compensated out of other effects of the estate. Moss v. Helsley, 60 T. 426.

Art. 3460. [2093] [2039] Order of payment of claims.—Executors and administrators, whenever they have funds in their hands belonging to the estate they represent, shall pay—

1. Funeral expenses and expenses of last sickness, if the claims therefor have been presented within sixty days from the original grant of letters testamentary or of administration, but if not presented within such time their payment shall be postponed until the allowances made to the widow and children, or either, are paid.

2. Allowances made to the widow and children, or either.

3. Expenses of administration and the expenses incurred in the preservation, safe-keeping and management of the estate.

4. Other claims against the estate in the order of their classification. [Id. sec. 89.]

In general.—See Art. 3458.

Judgment approving payment by temporary administrator without authority of a second-class claim as a first-claim held not void, but irregular only. Ball v. Ball's Estate (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 605.

It is not error to apply proceeds of property of an estate to a lien on it, and include the costs in the costs of administration, to the prejudice of other lien creditors. Greer v. Riley's Estate, 92 T. 699, 53 S. W. 578.

Compensation to an administrator for the care and management of mortgaged chattels of the estate is not "court costs" within the rule that court costs are entitled to priority over the claim of a creditor. Rodgers v. Sturgis Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 152 S. W. 1176.

Art. 3461. [2094] [2040] Claim shall not be paid, unless, etc.—No claim for money, or any part thereof, shall be paid until it has been approved by the county judge or established by the judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction.

Art. 3462. [2095] [2041] Owner of claim may obtain order for payment, when.—Whenever an executor or administrator has funds of the estate in his hands sufficient to pay a claim, or any part thereof, against the estate, and fails to make such payment when required to do so by the owner of such claim, such owner may obtain an order of the county court, at a regular term thereof, directing such payment to be made, upon making proof that such executor or administrator has funds of the estate in his hands which should be paid upon such claim, and that he fails to make such payment; provided, such executor or administrator shall have first been cited on the complaint in writing of such claimant, filed with the clerk, to appear and show cause why such order should not be made. [Id.]

Art. 3463. [2096] [2042] Proceeds of sale of property on which there is a mortgage or other lien.—Whenever any executor or administrator shall have in his hands the proceeds of a sale that has been made for the satisfaction of a mortgage or other lien, and such proceeds, or any part thereof, are not required for the payment of any debts against the estate that have a preference over such mortgage or other lien, it shall be the duty of such executor or administrator, within twelve months after the grant of letters testamentary or of administration, to pay over such proceeds, or so much thereof as may not be required for the payment of any debts against the estate that have a preference over such mortgage or other lien, to the creditor or creditors having a right thereto; and, if any executor or administrator shall fail so to do, such creditor or creditors, upon proof thereof, may obtain an order from the county court, in like manner as is provided in the preceding article, directing such payment to be made. [Id. p. 116, sec. 90.]

Art. 3464. [2097] [2043] Exhibit of condition of estate after twelve months.—At the first term of the court after the expiration of twelve months from the original grant of letters testamentary or of administration, it shall be the duty of the executor or administrator to return to the court an exhibit in writing, sworn to and subscribed by him, setting forth a list of all claims against the estate that were presented to him within twelve months after the said original grant of letters testamentary or of administration, specifying which have been allowed by him, which have been rejected and the date when rejected, which have been sued upon and the condition of the suit, also setting forth fully the condition of the estate. [Id. p. 109, sec. 66.]

Object of article.—The object of this article is to enforce the prompt settlement of estates; and claims filed within the time prescribed are entitled to priority of payment. Burks v. Bennett, 62 T. 277.

Art. 3465. [2098] [2044] Penalty for failure to return exhibit.—Should such executor or administrator fail to return the exhibit as required by the preceding article, any person interested in the estate may, upon complaint in writing, filed with the clerk, cause such executor or administrator to be cited to appear at a regular term of the court and show cause why his letters should not be revoked and why he should not be fined for such failure; and, upon the hearing of such complaint, unless good cause be shown for such failure, the court shall revoke the letters of such executor or administrator and shall fine him in a sum not to exceed one hundred dollars. [Id.]

Art. 3466. [2099] [2045] Order for the payment of claims in full.—Upon the return of such exhibit, if it shall appear therefrom, or from any other evidence, that the estate is solvent, taking into consideration as well the claims presented before the expiration of twelve months from said granting of letters testamentary or of administration on which suit has been, or can yet be, instituted, as those so presented, allowed and approved, or established by judgment, and that the executor or administrator has in his hands sufficient funds for the payment of all the aforesaid claims, it shall be the duty of the county judge to order immediate payment to be made of all claims allowed and approved or established by judgment. [Id. p. 116, sec. 91.]

Grounds for order.—That there is property in the hands of the administrator is not sufficient to authorize a peremptory order of payment. Ray v. Parsons, 14 T. 370.

Art. 3467. [2100] [2046] Order for payment of claims pro rata.—If it appear that the funds on hand are not sufficient for the payment of all the said claims, or if the estate be insolvent and the executor or administrator has any funds in his hands, it shall be the duty of the county judge to order such funds to be applied to the payment of all claims having a preference in the order of their priority, if they, or any of them, be still unpaid, and then to the payment pro rata of the other claims allowed and approved or established, taking into consideration also the claims that were presented within the twelve months, and in suit or on which suit may yet be instituted. [Id.]

Art. 3468. [2101] [2047] Claims presented after twelve months, paid when.—Claims for money against the estate of a deceased person, which may be presented to the executor or administrator after the expiration of twelve months from the original grant of letters testamentary or of administration, and allowed and approved or established by judgment, shall be paid by the executor or administrator at any time before the estate is finally closed, when he has funds of the estate in his hands over and above what may be sufficient to pay all debts of every kind against the estate that were presented within the twelve months and allowed and approved or established by judgment, or that may be so established; and an order for the payment of any such claim, upon proof that the executor or administrator has such funds, may be obtained from the county judge in like manner as is provided in this chapter for creditors to obtain payment. [Id. p. 116, sec. 92.]

Secured claim presented after twelve months.—When a claim evidenced by a note secured on real estate is not persented to the administrator within a year after the issuance of letters, it is not entitled to satisfaction out of the property incumbered or other property of the decedent until all claims properly presented within the year have been fully paid. Buchanan v. Wagnon, 62 T. 375.

Art. 3469. [2102] [2048] Exhibit may be required, when, etc.—At the third regular term after the expiration of twelve months from the original grant of letters testamentary or of administration, or at any term of the court thereafter, any person interested in the estate may, by a complaint in writing filed in the county court, cause the executor or administrator to be cited to appear at a regular term of the court and make an exhibit in writing, under oath, to the court, setting forth fully, in connection with the previous exhibits, the condition of the estate he represents; and, if it shall appear to the court by said exhibit, or by other evidence, that said executor or administrator has any funds of the estate in his hands subject to distribution among the creditors of the estate, it shall be the duty of the county judge to order the same to be paid out to them according to the provisions of this chapter; or any executor or administrator may voluntarily present such exhibit to the court, and, if he has any of the funds of the estate in his hands subject to distribution among the creditors of the estate a like order shall be made. [Id. sec. 93.]

See Dulaney v. Walsh (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 615.

Complaint—Sufficiency.—A complaint need not state more specifically the character of the indebtedness than such facts as show that the complainant is a person interested in the estate. Langley v. Harris, 23 T. 564. See Runnels v. Kownslar, 27 T. 528.

Art. 3470. [2103] [2049] Liability of executor, etc., for failure to pay money, etc.—In all cases where an order shall be made by any county judge, under the provisions of this title, for an executor or administrator to pay over money to any person other than the treasurer of the state, and such executor or administrator shall neglect to make such payment when it is demanded by the person entitled thereto, his agent or attorney, such executor or administrator shall be liable on his official bond to the person in whose favor such order of payment was made, for damages upon the amount he shall so neglect to pay at the rate of five per cent per month for each and every month he shall so neglect to make such payment after the same was so demanded, such damages to be recovered by suit against such executor or administrator and the sureties upon his bond before any court having jurisdiction of the amount claimed, exclusive of interest and such damages. [Id. p. 119, sec. 101.]

Order of court conclusive.—The order of the county court is conclusive and binding upon the parties and their privies as to all points directly involved and necessarily determined by it. And the failure of the administrator to pay according to the order renders him immediately and primarily liable for the amount of damages sustained by the creditors. Gray v. McFarland, 29 T. 163; Leaverton v. Leaverton, 40 T. 218; Pitner v. Flanagan, 17 T. 8.

Action on bond, when.—While an administration is pending suit cannot be brought in another court on the bond of the administrator; but after a final exhibit and account has been approved by the probate court, the right to sue exists if the administrator refuses to pay as ordered. Stewart v. Morrison, 81 T. 396, 17 S. W. 15, 26 Am. St. Rep. 821.

Art. 3471. [2104] [2050] Executor or administrator shall not purchase claim against estate.—It shall not be lawful for any executor or administrator to purchase for his own use, either directly or indirectly, any claim against the estate he represents; and, should he do so, any person interested in the estate may, upon complaint in writing, cause him to be cited to appear before the court; and, upon proof of such complaint, the court shall enter an order upon the minutes cancelling the claim so purchased; and such executor or administrator shall not be allowed to receive from the estate any portion of such claim. [Id. p. 114, sec. 86.]

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

HIRING AND RENTING

Article 3472. [2105] [2051] Executor, etc., may hire out or rent property of estate.—When an executor or administrator thinks it would be to the interest of the estate to hire out any of the personal property of the estate, or to rent any of the real estate, he shall do so either at public auction or privately, for cash or on credit, as he may deem most advantageous to the estate. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 104, sec. 51.]

Art. 3473. [2106] [2052] May obtain order of the court to hire out or rent same.—Should such executor or administrator prefer not to act without an order of the court, he may file an application in writing with the clerk of the county court, setting forth the property which he thinks should be hired or rented; and, should the county judge be of the opinion that it would be to the interest of the estate to grant the application, he shall do so by an order entered upon the minutes, either in term time or in vacation, which order shall name the property to be hired or rented, and state whether such hiring or renting shall be at public auction or privately, and whether for cash or on credit, and, if on credit, the length of such credit, and shall also state the period of time for which such property shall be hired or rented.

Art. 3474. [2107] [2053] When, without order of court, responsible, etc.—When an executor or administrator hires or rents property belonging to an estate without an order of the court authorizing him to do so, he shall be held responsible to the estate for the reasonable value of the hire or rent of such property, to be ascertained by the court by satisfactory evidence.

Liable for rent.—An administrator leasing a farm without the authority of the probate court is liable for the reasonable value of the rent. Oglesby v. Forman, 77 T. 647, 14 S. W. 244.

Art. 3475. [2108] [2054] Note with security for hire or rent shall be taken.—When property is hired or rented on a credit, possession thereof shall not be delivered to the person hiring or renting the same until such person has executed and delivered to the executor or administrator a note with good personal security for the amount of such hire or rent; and any executor or administrator, who shall deliver possession of any property so hired or rented on a credit without first receiving such note with good personal security, shall be responsible upon his bond as such executor or administrator for the full amount of such hire or rent.

Art. 3476. [2109] [2055] Report of hiring or renting.—When any property of the estate has been hired or rented, the executor or administrator shall, within thirty days after such hiring or renting, return to the court a report in writing, signed by him and sworn to before some officer authorized to administer oaths, stating—

1. The property hired or rented.
2. When the same was so hired or rented, and whether at public auction or privately.
3. Whether for cash or on a credit, and, if on a credit, the length of such credit.
4. The name of the person hiring or renting the same.
5. The amount for which the same was hired or rented.

Art. 3477. [2110] [2056] Action of court on report.—When any such report of hiring or renting is returned to the court, it shall be filed, and, at a regular term of the court thereafter, it shall be examined, and, if found to be just and reasonable, it shall be approved and confirmed by order of the court entered upon the minutes, and shall be recorded in the minutes; but, if disapproved by the court, an order to that effect shall be entered, and also adjudging against such executor or administrator the reasonable value of the hire or rent of such property, where it appears that, by reason of any fault of such executor or administrator, such property has not been hired or rented for its reasonable value.

Art. 3478. [2111] [2057] Person interested in estate may file complaint to have property hired or rented.—Any person interested in an estate may, upon complaint in writing filed in the county court, cause an executor to be cited to appear at a regular term of such court and show cause why he should not hire or rent any of the property belonging to the estate, and upon the hearing of such complaint the court shall make such order as may seem most for the interest of the estate.

SALES

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 3479. [2112] [2058] Advantage of estate to be considered in ordering sale.—All sales for the payment of the debts owing by the estate shall be ordered to be made of such property as may be deemed most advantageous to such estate to be sold. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 112, sec. 76.]

Art. 3480. [2113] [2059] No sale without order of court.—No sale of any property belonging to an estate shall be made by an executor or administrator without an order of the court authorizing the same.

Necessity of order.—An order of sale is requisite to the power of an administrator to sell lands of an estate. Collins v. Ball, 82 T. 259, 17 S. W. 614, 27 Am. St. Rep. 877.

Fact that will was not an independent one, and that sale by executrix was without an order of the county court, held not to affect the title of purchasers. Glover v. Coit, 36 C. A. 104, 81 S. W. 136.

Where a will makes one an executor subject to the control of the probate court, he has no right to convey title to the property unauthorized by the court. Matula v. Freytag, 101 T. 357, 107 S. W. 536.

Under Paschal's Dig. arts. 5612, 5613, 5629–5631, 5633, 5698, 5771, relating to settlement of estates of decedents and the sale of property of the estate, which do not specifically require that an order of court be had for the sale of personalty, the transfer of a land certificate by an administratrix before her discharge is valid without an order of court, though made 18 years after letters were taken out. McLain v. Pate (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 718.

Under this article a sale of land belonging to the estate without an order of court, by one not an independent executor, was void, and conveyed no rights to the grantee or his subsequent grantees. Berry v. Hindman (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 1181.

Art. 3481. [2114] [2060] Sale may be on what terms.—The court may order a sale of property, to be made for cash or on a credit, at public auction or privately, as it may consider most to the advantage of the estate, except when herein otherwise specially provided.

Terms changed by statute.—After an order of sale was made, the terms upon which sales were made were changed by statute. It was held that a sale made upon the terms prescribed by the statute under which the order was made was not void. Halbert v. Martin (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 388.

Art. 3482. [2115] [2061] Sales at public auction same as under execution.—All sales of personal property at public auction shall be governed by the rules governing sales of personal property under execution, unless herein otherwise provided. [Id. p. 130, sec. 148.]

See Pate v. McLain (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 538.

Art. 3483. [2116] [2062] Purchaser shall give note and security, when.—When personal property is sold on a credit, it shall not be for a longer time than six months from the date of such sale, and the purchaser shall be required to give his note for the amount of such purchase, with good and solvent personal security, before such property shall be delivered to him.

Art. 3484. [2117] [2063] Property liable to perish or be wasted shall be sold.—Whenever there is property belonging to the estate of a deceased person that is perishable or liable to waste, upon the application in writing of the executor or administrator, or any heir, devisee or legatee of the deceased, or any creditor of the estate whose claim has been allowed and approved or established by suit, the county judge, by an order entered on the minutes of the court, either in term time or in vacation, may direct the sale of such property, or any part thereof. [Id. p. 111, sec. 74.]

Art. 3485. [2118] [2064] Sale of crops.—The county judge may, either in term time or in vacation, by an order entered on the minutes of the court, direct the crops belonging to the estate of a deceased person, or any part thereof, to be sold at private sale, upon the application in writing of the executor or administrator, or any heir, devisee or legatee of the deceased, or any creditor of the estate whose claim has been allowed and approved or established by suit; provided, that no crops shall be sold under any such order at a less price than their fair market value. [Id. p. 112, sec. 75.]

Art. 3486. [2119] [2065] Duty of executor, etc., to sell personal property.—The executor or administrator, as soon as practicable after his qualification as such, shall sell, at public or private sale, as the court may order, all personal property belonging to the estate, except such bonds, securities or other personal property as may, in the opinion of the county judge, be of a character not liable to waste or loss, and except property exempt from forced sale, specific legacies and personal property necessary to carry on a plantation, manufactory or business, which it may be thought best to carry on, giving such credit as such executor or administrator or county judge may deem most advantageous to the estate, not exceeding six months, and taking notes with one or more sufficient sureties for the purchase money. [Id. p. 130, sec. 145.]

Art. 3487. [2120] [2066] Sale of stock.—If the executor or administrator shall represent to the court on oath in writing that there is stock belonging to the estate which he is unable to collect or command, the court may order that the same be sold at public auction, on such credit as the court may deem reasonable, not exceeding twelve months, taking notes with good and sufficient sureties for the purchase money; and such sale shall be advertised, made, returned and confirmed in the same manner as the sale of real property. [Id. p. 131, sec. 150.]

Art. 3488. [2121] [2067] Order for sale of property mortgaged, etc.—Any creditor of a deceased person holding a claim secured by mortgage or other lien, which claim has been allowed and approved or established by suit, may obtain at a regular term of the court, from the county court of the county where the letters testamentary or of administration were granted, an order for the sale of the property upon which he has such mortgage or other lien, or so much of said property as may be required to satisfy such claim, by making his application in writing and having such executor or administrator cited to appear and answer the same. And, in case the mortgage or other lien shall be upon real property, the same notice shall be given of said application as is required to obtain an order for the sale of such property. [Id. p. 112, sec. 77.]

In general.—The probate court cannot foreclose a mortgage, where the mortgagor conveyed the land before he died. Hanrick v. Gurley (Civ. App.) 48 S. W. 994.

A grantee of a mortgagor, not a party to probate proceedings to foreclose the mortgage after the mortgagor's death, held not bound thereby. Id.

The equity of redemption of purchasers from a mortgagor could not be foreclosed by an order of the probate court to her administrator to sell the same to satisfy the mortgage, and the purchaser at such sale acquires no title. Hanrick v. Gurley, 93 T. 458, 54 S. W. 347, 55 S. W. 119, 56 S. W. 330.

Must be asserted through probate court.—On the death of the grantor in a deed of trust with power of sale, the creditor must enforce his claim through administration. McLane v. Paschal, 47 T. 369; Smithwick v. Kelly, 79 T. 576, 15 S. W. 486; Linberg v. Finks, 7 C. A. 398, 25 S. W. 789; Thaxton v. Smith (Civ. App.) 38 S. W. 820.

Where an action against an executor to recover taxes was removed to the United States court and judgment was rendered for plaintiff with the consent of the executor, such court had no authority to issue an order requiring the marshal to sell said lot and other property to satisfy the same, while the estate was pending for administration in the county court, as it alone, under this article, had authority to order the sale to satisfy the judgment. Allen v. Reilly (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1152.

Under this article all claims against a decedent's estate must be asserted in the probate court, whether secured or not, and though the lien be for the purchase price, so that one purchasing land from an administrator, acting under the approval of the probate court, would have a good title as against one claiming under a deed of trust, executed by decedent, where the trust deed claimant had never presented his claim to the probate court. Degetau v. Mayer (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 1054.

Need not be enforced through probate court.—Where the district court has jurisdiction of an action to foreclose a vendor's lien on lands which belonged to a decedent, it may enforce its judgment by a sale of the property, instead of leaving the enforcement to the county court under the probate statutes. Stewart v. Webb (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 537.

Judgments against executors.—See Art. 2004.

—— Against independent executors.—See Art. 2005.

Art. 3489. [2122] [2068] Duty of executor, etc., to apply for sale of real estate, when.—It shall be the duty of the executor or administrator, so soon as he shall ascertain that it is necessary, to apply to the county judge, at some regular term of the court, for an order to sell so much of the real estate belonging to the estate he represents as he shall think to be sufficient to pay the local charges and claims against the estate. [Id. p. 111, sec. 72.]

Executor can sell, though will prohibits.—As to effect of irregularities in the sale, see Perry v. Blakey, 23 S. W. 805, 5 C. A. 331.

A will which at the beginning directed the executor to pay debts held not to prohibit the executor, under order of court, to sell the testator's land for that purpose, even though subsequent clauses directed the executor not to sell the same. Hughes v. Mulanax (Civ. App.) 157 S. W. 217.

Art. 3490. [2123] [2069] Requisites of such application.—Such application shall be in writing and shall describe the real estate sought to be sold, and shall be accompanied by an exhibit in writing, verified by the affidavit of such executor or administrator, showing fully and particularly the charges and claims against said estate that have been approved or established by suit, or that have been rejected and may yet be established, and the amount due, or claimed to be due, on each, and the estimated expenses of administration, and the property of said estate remaining on hand liable for the payment of such charges and claims. [Id.]

Provisions directory.—An application for order of sale, will support an order of sale made upon sufficient evidence of facts to authorize it, if not excepted to at the proper time. The statutes relating to applications for orders of sale, etc., are directory and their non-observance can only be taken advantage of by exceptions made at proper time. Texas Land & Loan Co. v. Dunovant's Estate, 38 C. A. 560, 87 S. W. 210.

Sufficiency of application.—An application to the probate court to sell land of the estate which states no other reason for the sale thereof than that it could, on account of its condition, be sold with advantage to the estate, without stating any statutory ground, affords no reason for ordering such a sale. When a sale of land was made on such application under the act of August 15, 1870, which was silent as to stating in the application the necessity for the sale, and it appeared that at the time debts against the estate existed which the purchase money realized did not satisfy, and that the estate was honestly administered, such a sale was not void. And its confirmation by the court under existing facts which authorized it passed with the administrator's deed the title to the purchaser. Gillenwaters v. Scott, 62 T. 670.

An application for sale that states the character of the indebtedness and that it has been allowed is sufficient. Henry v. Drought, 10 C. A. 379, 30 S. W. 584.

The failure to show the expenses and claims of the executor, in an application for sale of land, as required by this article rendered the sale only voidable, even though there were no debts due to any one; and it could not be collaterally attacked. Daimwood v. Driscoll (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 621.

Purchaser charged with notice of application, etc.—See Arts 3245, 3514.

Sale for indebtedness not presented.—That an indebtedness of the estate for which sale is ordered had not been presented to the administrator at the making of the order of sale will not vitiate such order. Lyne v. Sanford, 82 T. 58, 19 S. W. 847, 27 Am. St. Rep. 852.

Collateral attack.—See, also, notes under Art. 3512.

An application by an executor, in form one to sell lands to pay debts, which alleged that there were no debts against the estate, except that due the executor, that the estate was not capable of partition among the heirs in a manner just and profitable to them, or any of them, and that, in order to partition said estate with any degree of accuracy, a sale was necessary, is not one for partition, but one for the payment of debts; and, although it does not comply with this article, it is not void, and cannot be attacked collaterally. Daimwood v. Driscoll (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 621.

Though, in order to sell lands to pay debts, there must be a citation as directed by this article, on collateral attack it will be presumed that due service had been obtained. Id.

Art. 3491. [2124] [2070] Citation in such case.—Upon the filing of such application and exhibit, it shall be the duty of the clerk to issue a general citation to all persons interested in the estate, describing the land sought to be sold, and requiring such persons to appear at the term named in such citation, and show cause why such sale should not be made should they choose to do so. [Id.]

In general.—Under the statute requiring notice of an application by administrators for an order authorizing the sale of lands to be publicly given, appearance in such a proceeding does not waive failure to give notice. Texas Land & Loan Co. v. Dunovant's Estate, 38 C. A. 560, 87 S. W. 208.

Collateral attack.—See Art. 3512.

Art. 3492. [2125] [2071] Posting and return of citation.—Such citation shall be posted in the manner required for other citations for at least twenty days before the first day of the term of the court at which such application is to be heard, and shall be returned, and the citation and return recorded, in like manner as other citations and returns thereon. [Acts 1876, p. 112. Acts 1909, S. S., p. 336.]

Art. 3493. [2126] [2072] Action of the court on application.—Upon the return of such citation served, it shall be the duty of the court at a regular term thereof to hear such application and to hear evidence in favor of or against the same, and, if satisfied that a necessity exists for such sale, to order the same to be made; but if not satisfied that a necessity exists for such sale, or if satisfied that there is other property of the estate that it would be more to the interest of the estate to have sold than the property sought to be sold, the application shall be refused by an order to that effect entered upon the minutes. [Act Aug. 1876, p. 112, sec. 76.]

In general.—The probate court has no authority to order a sale of land for the purpose of enabling the administrator to settle up the estate. Flanagan v. Pierce, 27 T. 78.

A sale is not void on the ground merely that directory provisions had been disregarded. Davis v. Touchstone 45 T. 490; Hurley v. Barnard, 48 T. 83; Robertson v. Johnson, 57 T. 62; Butler v. Stephens, 77 T. 599, 14 S. W. 202. See Collins v. Ball, 82 T. 259, 17 S. W. 614, 27 Am. St. Rep. 877.

An administrator has no power to convey land of his intestate in satisfaction of a claim against the estate and the approval of such a conveyance by the probate court will not give it any validity. Teal v. Terrell, 48 T. 491.

When a sale of land has been made under a valid order, the power of the court is exhausted and a subsequent sale is void. Lindsay v. Jaffray, 55 T. 626; Brockenborough v. Melton, 55 T. 493. The legality of an order of sale cannot be tested by the administrator by resisting an order removing him for disregarding the order of sale. The remedy is by appeal or certiorari. Wright v. McNatt, 49 T. 425.

Where one heir is adjudged a share of realty claimed by other heirs, and a lien on their shares for an amount due him, their interests alone should be sold to satisfy the lien. Kalteyer v. Wipff (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 1055.

Certain facts held not to authorize the court to direct a sale of trust property. Kennedy v. Pearson (Civ. App.) 109 S. W. 280.

Equity held authorized in the exercise of its inherent powers to order the sale of trust property to preserve the trust fund or to prevent failure of the purpose of the trust. Id.

Mode of sale.—A sale when ordered must be made by the administrator. The appointment of a commissioner to make sales is unauthorized and a sale so made is void and conveys no title to the purchaser. Rose v. Newman 26 T. 131, 80 Am. Dec. 646.

Dispute as to title.—The fact that there are conflicting claims to the land sold by an administrator under order of court at the time of sale does not affect the right of the administrator to sell. Evans v. Ashe, 50 C. A. 54, 108 S. W. 398, 1190.

Limitation under prior law.—An administrator's sale of land to pay debts ordered and made 15 years after the first administrator had qualified held not void under the probate law of 1840, which removed the five-year limitation on the duration of the estate. Moody v. Looscan (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 621.

Evidence on application.—On an application for order of sale, the claim with the affidavit, notes, allowance and approval are admissible. Henry v. Drought, 10 C. A. 379, 30 S. W. 584.

Presumptions.—See notes under Art. 3687.

Bona fide purchasers.—See notes under Art. 3245.

Art. 3494. [2127] [2073] Real estate shall be sold on twelve months' credit, except, etc.—All sales of real estate for the payment of debts shall be made at public auction to the highest bidder on a credit of twelve months, except when otherwise specially provided by law. [Id. p. 112, sec. 80.]

Taking mortgage.—Failure of an administrator to take a mortgage to secure deferred payments on sale of land will not operate to retain superior title in the estate, where the statutes in effect at the time of the transaction do not so provide. Miller v. Anders, 21 C. A. 72, 51 S. W. 897.

Taking judgment for purchase price of sale and foreclosure of lien is equivalent to taking mortgage in first instance. Id.

Waiver of taking of mortgage and election to enforce vendor's lien by administrator is binding on estate and heirs. Id.

Disregard of statute as ground for collateral attack.—See notes under Art. 3512.

Art. 3495. [2128] [2074] May be sold for cash, etc., when.—Sales of real estate may be made at public auction for cash or on such credit as the county judge may direct not exceeding twelve months, in the following cases:

1. When the sale is made for the purpose of raising the amount, or any part of the amount, of any allowance made to the widow and children, or either, under the provisions of this title.

2. When the sale is made for the satisfaction of a mortgage or other lien upon such real estate.

3. When such sale is made in accordance with directions contained in a will. [Id.]

Sale for cash.—Evidence held insufficient to sustain a finding that a sale by an executor was made for cash. Wipff v. Heder (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 164.

Art. 3496. [2129] [2075] Sale of real estate may be private, when.—When it shall appear to be for the interest of the estate, the county judge may order a sale of real estate to be made for cash or on a credit of not more than twelve months, as he may direct, at private sale; but, in all such cases, before the county judge shall order a confirmation of the sale, it must be shown, in addition to the other requirements of this chapter, that the sale was made for a fair price. [Id. p. 112, sec. 81.]

Art. 3497. [2130] [2076] Twenty days' notice of sale to be given.—All public sales of real estate shall be advertised at least twenty days before the day of sale. The manner of advertising shall be by posting a notice of such sale at the court house of the county where the land is to be sold, and at two other public places in the county where the sale is to be made, but not in the same city or town. [Id. p. 113, sec. 83.]

Sale without notice voidable.—A sale of land by an executor by order of court, without notice, is not void, but voidable. Daimwood v. Driscoll (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 621.

—— Effect on purchaser.—See Art. 3245.

Art. 3498. [2131] [2077] What notice of sale shall state.—Such notice shall state the time and place of sale, the terms of sale, shall describe the property to be sold, and shall be signed by the executor or administrator.

Art. 3499. [2132] [2078] Time and place of sale.—All public sales of real estate should be made in the county where the letters testamentary or of administration were granted, at the court house door of such county, or at the place in such county where sales of real estate are specially authorized by law to be made; and all such sales shall be made on the first Tuesday of the month, between the hours of ten a. m. and four p. m.

Place of sale.—It is an irregularity to make a sale of real estate at a place other than the court-house door of the county, and it is proper ground for disapproving the sale; but the irregularity is immaterial when the sale has been properly confirmed. Peters v. Caton, 6 T. 554; Brown v. Christie, 27 T. 73, 84 Am. Dec. 607; Tippett v. Mise, 30 T. 361, 94 Am. Dec. 313.

Art. 3500. [2133] [2079] Sale may be ordered to be made in county where land is situated.—When the county judge shall deem it for the advantage of the estate, he may order the sale of real estate to be made in the county where it is situated; and, in all cases where such public sale is ordered to be made in any other county than that in which the letters testamentary or of administration were granted, such sale shall be advertised in both counties. [Id. p. 113, sec. 83.]

Art. 3501. [2134] [2080] Order of court for sale of property.—Whenever any property of an estate is ordered to be sold by the county judge, such order shall be entered on the minutes of the court, shall describe the property to be sold, the time and place of sale, and the terms of such sale. [Id. p. 112, sec. 79.]

Requisites in general.—As to the necessity of showing or stating the statutory grounds for ordering the sale, see Gillenwaters v. Scott, 62 T. 670.

Conformity to application.—A petition and order for the sale of town lots in the town of P. held to confer no authority for the sale of a parcel lying outside of but adjoining the town of P. Wilkin v. Geo. W. Owens & Bros. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 552.

Construction of order.—An order granting a temporary administrator power to sell land held not to authorize such sale after his appointment as permanent administrator. Cruse v. O'Gwin, 48 C. A. 48, 106 S. W. 757.

An order for an administrator's sale held subject to a specified construction. Millwee v. Phelps, 53 C. A. 195, 115 S. W. 891.

Description of property.—The order must describe the property to be sold with reasonable certainty. Graham v. Hawkins, 38 T. 628. The failure to describe property with sufficient certainty in the order does not necessarily render the sale void. At most it is an irregularity which can be corrected by an order of confirmation. Davis v. Touchstone, 45 T. 490; Wells v. Polk, 36 T. 120. The vagueness of description in the order of sale may be cured by reference to the inventory and other matters of record pertaining to the administration. Hurley v. Barnard, 48 T. 83; Gains v. Barr, 60 T. 676; Robertson v. Johnson, 57 T. 62.

Order to sell all the interest of C., deceased, in about 6 or 7 leagues of land, more or less, situated partly in W. county and partly in M. county, being part of an 11-league tract of land originally granted to G., held to sufficiently identify the land. Macmanus v. Orkney, 91 T. 27, 40 S. W. 715.

Minutes of a probate court relating to a sale of the property of an estate, and an administrator's deed pursuant thereto, held to show that certain land, and not the certificate by virtue of which a patent thereto was issued, was sold. Lubbock v. Binns, 20 C. A. 407, 50 S. W. 584.

Description of decedent's realty in probate sale thereof held sufficient to pass title. Boslet v. Thomas, 35 C. A. 144, 80 S. W. 115.

A description of certain land sold by an administrator in the order of sale and in the administrator's report held sufficient to identify the land. Evans v. Ashe, 50 C. A. 54, 108 S. W. 398, 1190.

Certain court proceedings and field notes held to sufficiently show that a bounty claim belonging to an estate which had been located was sold by the administrator, and that the sale was not merely of the land certificate which had merged with the land and was not subject to sale. Whittaker v. Thayer, 101 T. 456, 108 S. W. 1157.

Conclusiveness.—A judgment of the probate court ordering the sale of land to pay the debts of decedent is not binding on one owning the equitable title thereto. Stacy v. Henke & Pillot, 32 C. A. 462, 74 S. W. 925.

Execution of order.—The authority of an administrator to sell lands of his decedent sufficient to realize a specific sum of money is exhausted when that object has been accomplished, and he cannot proceed under such order to sell other lands after the sales have produced the required amount. Wells v. Mills, 22 T. 302.

An order of sale may be executed after an amendment of the statute, the right to sell being continued. Halbert v. Martin (Civ. App.) 30 S. W. 388.

Administrator's sale of land without consideration, to free it from creditors, held fraudulent as to devisees. McCampbell v. Durst (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 315.

An administrator's sale held to pass the interest of the heirs. Halbert v. De Bode, 15 C. A. 615, 40 S. W. 1011.

An administrator's sale of a headright certificate, as well as of the land on which it seemed to have been located, construed as to what it passed to the purchaser. Moody v. Looscan (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 621.

Rights of purchaser at administrator's sale, as affected by liens on the property sold, determined. American Freehold Land & Mortgage Co. v. Macdonell (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 259.

Effect of a sale by an administrator of more land than he was authorized to sell stated. Millwee v. Phelps, 53 C. A. 195, 115 S. W. 891.

Collateral attack.—See notes under Art. 3512.

Setting aside sale.—See notes under Art. 3512.

Art. 3502. [2135] [2081] Any person interested in estate may apply for an order of sale.—When any executor or administrator shall neglect to apply for an order to sell sufficient property of the estate he represents to pay the charges and claims against the estate that have been allowed and approved or established by suit, any person interested in the estate may, upon application in writing, cause such executor or administrator to be cited to appear at a regular term of the court and make a full exhibit of the condition of such estate as required in article 3464, and show cause why a sale of the property of the estate should not be ordered; and, upon the hearing of such application, if the court is satisfied from the proof that a necessity exists for the sale, the same shall be ordered as in other cases. [Id. p. 111, sec. 73.]

Art. 3503. [2136] [2082] Any person interested in estate may oppose the application for sale.—When an application is made to the county judge for an order to sell any property belonging to the estate of a deceased person, any person interested in such estate may, at any time before an order is made thereon, file his opposition in writing to such sale, or may make application in writing for sale of other property of the estate; and, upon hearing of the matter in controversy, the county judge shall make such order thereon as the circumstances of the case may require, having due regard to the provisions of this title. [Id. p. 112, sec. 78.]

May object on appeal.—See Chapter 32 of this title.

Mortgagee.—A mortgagee of land belonging to a decedent's estate held entitled to require that the sale of other lands for payment of debts should be regularly and properly ordered. Texas Land & Loan Co. v. Dunovant's Estate, 38 C. A. 560, 87 S. W. 208.

Art. 3504. [2137] [2083] Executor or administrator shall not purchase property of the estate.—It shall not be lawful for any executor or administrator to take the estate of his testator or intestate, or any part thereof, at its appraised value, or to become the purchaser, either directly or indirectly, of any property of the estate sold by him; and, if any executor or administrator should either, directly or indirectly, become the purchaser of any of the property of his testator or intestate, at a sale made by him or his co-executor or co-administrator, upon the complaint in writing of any person interested in such estate, and service of citation upon such executor or administrator, and, upon proof of such complaint, such sale shall be declared void by the county judge, and such executor or administrator decreed to hold the property so purchased in trust as assets of the estate, and an order to that effect shall be entered upon the minutes of the court. [Id. p. 114, sec. 86.]

Purchase void.—A purchase by the administrator for himself is void. Hamblin v. Warnecke, 31 T. 91.

It appearing that a conveyance to an ostensible purchaser was for the benefit of the wife of the administrator, it was held void. Wipff v. Heder, 26 S. W. 118, 6 C. A. 685.

The interest of an estate in certain land sold by an administrator held divested thereby, and no interest revived by a subsequent conveyance to the administrator in his individual capacity as agent of the estate's creditors, to whom the original purchase note had been transferred. Berryman v. Biddle, 48 C. A. 624, 107 S. W. 922.

—— Will be set aside.—See Art. 3512.

Only persons interested can complain.—Only persons interested in the estate can complain of the purchase by the administrator of property belonging to it, and that must be done by a direct proceeding. Byars v. Thompson, 80 T. 468, 15 S. W. 1087.

Collateral attack.—See notes under Art. 3512.

Subsequent purchasers for value.—See Art. 3245.

Assets of partnership.—A surviving partner administering upon the estate of a deceased partner and paying firm indebtedness to an amount equal to the value of firm assets does not become the sole owner of partnership assets. Insurance Co. v. Camp, 71 T. 503, 9 S. W. 473.

Jurisdiction of district court.—See Arts. 1706, 3206.

While the district court will not set aside a sale obtained by fraud, when the fraud does not go to the jurisdiction of the court making the orders, yet it will charge the property in the hands of the fraudulent purchasers with a trust, and will constitute them trustees for those entitled to the estate. Fisher v. Wood, 65 T. 199; Franks v. Chapman, 60 T. 46; Rutherford v. Stamper, 60 T. 447. To do this it is not necessary to set aside the decrees of the probate court ordering and confirming the sale, and it is immaterial whether the fraud which calls this equity power of the court into operation occurred in procuring the orders in probate by which the sale was ordered to be made, or in the sale itself, or in the making of deeds in violation of the order of confirmation. And the court, where the rights of bona fide purchasers have not intervened, will cancel a conveyance made by the executor in violation of the order of the probate court confirming a sale of land, when necessary for the protection of devisees, heirs or creditors of the estate. Fisher v. Wood, 65 T. 199.

Evidence.—Evidence of the administrator that the land was conveyed by the purchaser at such sale at the administrator's request, he claiming the same as his property, is admissible under the plea of defendant that the plaintiff's title is derived through an administrator's sale which is void because made to a third person for the benefit of the administrator. Bauman v. Chambers, 17 C. A. 242, 42 S. W. 564.

That a purchaser of land from an administrator on the same day reconveyed it to the administrator an an individual, though not sufficient to set aside the sale in a collateral proceeding, was competent to explain the absence of an order confirming the sale. Cruse v. O'Gwin, 48 C. A. 48, 106 S. W. 757.

Art. 3505. [2138] [2084] Bidder failing to comply with his bid shall be liable, etc.—When any person shall bid off property offered for sale, rent or hire, at public auction, by an executor or administrator, and shall fail to comply with the terms of sale, renting or hiring, such property shall be readvertised and sold, rented or hired without any further order of the court for that purpose; and the person so failing to comply shall be liable to pay such executor or administrator for the use of the estate ten per cent on the amount of his bid, and also the deficiency in price on the second sale, renting or hiring, if any such deficiency there be; to be recovered by such executor or administrator by suit in any court of the county where such sale, hiring or renting was made, having jurisdiction of the amount claimed. [Id. p. 113, sec. 84.]

Time for resale.—In order to hold the first purchaser responsible for the deficiency in price, the second sale must be made within a reasonable time. Sypert v. McCowen, 28 T. 635.

Not in default until confirmation.—A bidder cannot be put in default for failing to comply with the terms of sale until the probate court has by its decree confirmed the sale and ordered a conveyance to be made to the purchaser. Bradbury v. Reed, 23 T. 258.

Art. 3506. [2139] [2085] Public sale may be continued from day to day.—Public sales may be continued from day to day, in case the day set apart for such sale shall be insufficient to complete the same, by giving public notice of such continuance at the conclusion of the sale of each day, and the continued sale shall commence and close within the same hours. [Id. sec. 83.]

Art. 3507. [2140] [2086] Notice of private sale need not be given, unless, etc.—When property is ordered by the court to be sold at private sale, no notice of such sale shall be required, unless the court ordering such sale shall direct otherwise.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Agreements by administrator.—A contract by an administrator giving to another the preferred right to purchase land of the estate at a named price is against public policy and void. Specht v. Collins, 81 T. 213, 16 S. W. 934.

An oral agreement by the administrator to indemnify the purchaser of lands of the estate for any loss sustained through a defect of title of which both parties were aware does not entitle the purchaser to equitable relief against the estate in case loss is sustained. Club Land & Cattle Co. v. Dallas County, 26 C. A. 449, 64 S. W. 872.

What law governs.—Where 18 years after letters of administration are granted, but before final settlement, the administratrix sells a land certificate belonging to the estate, her rights and duties as to the sale are governed by the law in force at the time of sale. McLain v. Pate (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 718.

Sale by widow and heirs.—A sale of assets of a solvent estate by the widow held valid as against the executor. Matulla v. Freytag (Civ. App.) 104 S. W. 492.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

REPORT OF SALES, ETC.

Article 3508. [2141] [2087] Sales shall be reported in thirty days.—All sales of property of an estate shall be reported to the court ordering the same within thirty days after the same are made. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 113, sec. 85.]

Necessity of report.—Title to a land certificate will not pass by an administrator's sale under order of the probate court, in absence of a report of sale, a confirming order, and an administrator's deed. Douthit v. Southern (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 315.

Delay not ground for setting aside.—See Art. 3512.

Art. 3509. [2142] [2088] Requisites of report of sale.—The report of sale shall be in writing, and shall be subscribed and sworn to by the executor or administrator before some officer authorized to administer oaths, and shall show—

1. The time and place of the sale.
2. The property sold, describing the same.
3. The name of the purchaser of such property.
4. The amount for which each article of property sold.
5. The date of the order of the court authorizing the sale.
6. The terms of the sale, and whether at public auction or made privately.

Affidavit of administrator.—A provision that the administrator shall swear to the report of sale is a directory and not a jurisdictional requirement. No presumption that he did not swear to his report will arise from the fact that his affidavit is not indorsed thereon. Hurley v. Barnard, 48 T. 83.

Description of property.—A description in an administrator's report of a sale of land as the south half of the league belonging to the estate held sufficient. Pendleton v. Shaw, 18 C. A. 439, 44 S. W. 1002.

Defects ground for collateral attack.—See Art. 3512.

Art. 3510. [2143] [2089] Report may be made, when, etc.—The report of sale may be made in term time or in vacation, and, when returned, shall be filed by the clerk, and the filing thereof noted upon the judge's docket.

Failure to note report.—A failure to note the report of sale is merely an irregularity, not rendering the sale void. Heath v. Layne, 62 T. 686.

Art. 3511. [2144] [2090] Action of court on report of sale.—At any time after the expiration of five days from the filing of a report of sale, it shall be the duty of the county judge, at a regular term of his court, to inquire into the manner in which the sale was made, and to hear evidence in support of or against such report; and, if satisfied that such sale was fairly made, and in conformity with law, he shall enter upon the minutes of the court a decree confirming such sale, and order the report of sale to be recorded by the clerk, and the proper conveyance of the property to be made by the executor or administrator to the purchaser upon compliance by such purchaser with the terms of sale. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 113, sec. 85.]

In general.—The authority of an administrator under the order of the county court to sell sufficient lands of his decedent to realize a specific sum of money is exhausted when that object has been accomplished, and the court may properly refuse to confirm the sale of a larger amount than was necessary. Wells v. Mills, 22 T. 302.

Confirmation of an unauthorized sale of real estate by an administrator will not pass title, unless it is clear that the court had the unauthorized act called to its attention. Fishback v. Page, 17 C. A. 183, 43 S. W. 317.

The court's approval of the report of an administrator's sale is a sufficient confirmation thereof. Pendleton v. Shaw, 18 C. A. 439, 44 S. W. 1002.

The fact that the order of confirmation of an administrator's sale referred to "the sale made in pursuance to an order of this court," and referred also to a date subsequent to its own date as the date when the sale was ordered, does not make void the order of confirmation. Barton v. Davidson (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 400.

The inquiry required of the judge includes the fairness and adequacy of the price at which the land is sold as well as its conformity to law, and the absence of fraud or any unfairness in manner of making the sale. James v. Nease (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 111.

A sale in proceedings to partition the estate of a decedent held confirmed by the court. Rye v. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co., 42 C. A. 185, 95 S. W. 622.

An administrator's sale of realty in 1841 without confirmation did not pass title, in the absence of proof that the requirements of the statute were met. Cruse v. O'Gwin, 48 C. A. 48, 106 S. W. 757.

Confirmation of a sale of land by an administrator under order of the court held not necessary in 1841, but certain facts held to show a sufficient approval in any event as against a collateral attack postponed for over 60 years. Berryman v. Biddle, 48 C. A. 624, 107 S. W. 922.

An order confirming a sale of land belonging to an estate held insufficient to support a sale of land not described in the order of sale. Wilkin v. Geo. W. Owens & Bros. (Civ. App.) 110 S. W. 552.

Where an order approving an administrator's sale of land contained no description of the land, the sale was invalid. Wilkin v. Geo. W. Owens & Bros., 102 T. 197, 114 S. W. 104, 115 S. W. 1174, 117 S. W. 425, 132 Am. St. Rep. 867

Record in trespass to try title held to show a sufficient confirmation of an administrator's deed. Turner v. Pope (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 420.

Confirmation relates back.—A confirmation of a sale relates back to the date of sale if it is made to appear, and carries title from that date. Edwards v. Gill, 23 S. W. 742, 5 C. A. 203.

Changing order of confirmation.—After confirmation of the administrator's sale to one purchaser, it is competent for the court to change the order and confirm the sale in the name of a different purchaser, with the consent of him to whom the sale was first confirmed, and such consent will be presumed in the absence of evidence to the contrary. Davis v. Touchstone, 45 T. 490.

No title passes until confirmation.—An administrator's deed, prematurely issued, held to take effect on confirmation of the sale. City of El Paso v. Ft. Dearborn Nat. Bank, 96 T. 496, 74 S. W. 21.

Until the sale by a temporary administrator is approved by the probate court, no title to the property passes, even if the sale has been authorized. Goldstein v. Susholtz, 46 C. A. 582, 105 S. W. 221.

Judge as purchaser.—See Art. 1736.

Evidence on hearing of report.—When after the return of sale the administrator, finding that the lands were of much greater value than the sum bid, asked the court to set aside the sale, held, that evidence as to value should be heard and the sale set aside if the price was inadequate. Hardin v. Smith, 49 T. 420.

Collateral attack.—See notes under Art. 3512.

Appeal.—See Chapter 32 of this title.

Art. 3512. [2145] [2091] Sale shall be set aside, when.—If the court is not satisfied that the sale was fairly made and in conformity with law, an order shall be entered upon the minutes setting the same aside and ordering a new sale to be made if necessary. [Id.]

In general.—Where the sale was made on a credit of twelve months, and the purchaser and administrator, in consideration of an agreement by which the amount bid was appropriated to the payment of the debt secured by lien on the property and other considerations, agreed to make an absolute conveyance acknowledging the receipt of payment, and such agreement was confirmed by the court, and deed accordingly made, the administrator would not afterwards be heard to object thereto on the ground that his commissions were diminished by the arrangement. James v. Corker, 30 T. 617.

A sale may be set aside in a direct proceeding for irregularities. Linch v. Broad, 70 T. 94, 6 S. W. 751; Wipff v. Heder, 6 C. A. 685, 26 S. W. 118.

Where suit was brought by one of the heirs of an estate to impress a trust on property sold by the administrator to pay debts and later acquired by him in his own right, it was not necessary to such relief that the orders of the probate court for the sale of the land and the administrator's deed be set aside. Nuckols v. Stanger (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 931.

Grounds for setting aside.—The mere failure to report a sale within thirty days, unaccompanied by circumstances showing that the delay has occasioned an injury or disadvantage to the estate or purchaser, is not a good ground for setting aside the sale. Brown v. Hobbs, 19 T. 167.

A purchase by an administrator, or for his use, or for the administrator and another, will be set aside by the probate court upon the application of persons interested in the estate. Fisher v. Wood, 65 T. 199.

The orders of the county court in probate proceedings are adjudications, and for errors or irregularities in the proceedings probate sales should not be set aside, unless it appears that some injury or injustice has been done the estate. Lomax v. Comstock, 50 C. A. 340, 110 S. W. 762.

Discretion not subject to review.—It seems that the exercise of discretion by the court in this article is not a subject of revision. Wells v. Mills, 22 T. 302; Duer v. Police Court of Austin County, 34 T. 283. An appeal will lie from an order of the court disapproving a sale made by the administrator in favor of a purchaser at such sale under the probate act of 1870. Hirshfield v. Davis, 43 T. 155; Hardin v. Smith, 49 T. 420.

Effect of setting aside.—A judgment vacating orders directing the sale of lands of an estate and the confirmation of sale cannot affect a purchaser under the order who was not made a party to the proceedings. Burks v. Bennett, 62 T. 277. As to mode of proceeding, see Arts. 733–741; Wipff v. Heder, 6 C. A. 685, 26 S. W. 118.

The effect of a judgment of the probate court setting aside a sale on the ground that the administrator was interested in the purchase would be to set aside the order of confirmation, and revest the title, legal and equitable, in the persons in whom it vested as devisees or heirs, subject to administration. Fisher v. Wood, 65 T. 199.

When a sale is set aside, the administrator should be credited with the amount of claims paid, with interest, etc. Wipff v. Heder, 26 S. W. 118, 6 C. A. 685.

Laches.—Cause of action to set aside an administrator's sale and enforce a constructive trust held a stale demand. McCampbell v. Durst (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 315.

Collateral attack.—The orders of a court having jurisdiction of an estate, made in 1871, directing a sale of certain property, and confirming the same as reported, cannot be attacked collaterally on the ground that there was no necessity for the sale, and no debts of the estate unpaid, nor because the order of confirmation was made at the same term of court at which the report was made, without a continuance thereof for one term as required by law. The law then in force did not prescribe what the application for sale should contain, as it now does. Storer v. Lave, 1 C. A. 252, 20 S. W. 852.

An administrator's sale is not subject to collateral attack where it is not void. Flenner v. Walker, 23 S. W. 1029, 5 C. A. 145.

Fraudulent administrator's sale held voidable only. McCampbell v. Durst (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 315.

The fact that 10 years elapsed, during which no order was made by a probate court in the administration of a decedent's estate, cannot avail, on a collateral attack, to defeat a subsequent sale of decedent's realty under the court's order. Boslet v. Thomas, 35 C. A. 144, 80 S. W. 115.

The proceedings for the sale of a decedent's land for the payment of debts cannot be attacked collaterally by heirs. Dignowity v. Baumblatt, 38 C. A. 363, 85 S. W. 834.

Orders of the county court for an administrator's sale cannot be attacked collateral-ly, where the court has jurisdiction to grant letters of administration to order the sale. Holland v. Nance, 102 T. 177, 114 S. W. 346; Same v. Ferris, Id.

Where a sale of a land certificate by an administratrix is collaterally attacked, it devolves on the attacking parties to show the absence of some essential element, or the existence of some fact that would destroy the validity of the transaction. McLain v. Pate (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 718.

A finding of the county court that debts existed for which a decedent's real estate should be sold is conclusive in a collateral proceeding unless the administration record establishes the contrary. Salas v. Mundy (Civ. App.) 125 S. W. 633.

Jurisdiction of a county court in administration proceedings to sell decedent's real estate to pay debts must be upheld in a collateral proceeding, unless its record affirmatively shows that jurisdiction to grant administration or to authorize the sale ordered did not in fact exist. Id.

Proceedings of the probate court directing a sale of homestead property held not immune from collateral attack. Ross v. Martin (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 718.

An order of the probate court, directing a sale of the homestead of decedent to pay debts barred by limitations, held void, and will be set aside in a collateral proceeding. Wade v. Scott (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 675.

Where the application to sell lands showed that debts were due the executor, it will be presumed, on collateral attack, that the law in regard to claims of an executor was fully complied with. Daimwood v. Driscoll (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 621.

If the probate court acquires jurisdiction of the property of an estate and of the persons interested therein, it has complete jurisdiction, so that its order of sale cannot be collaterally attacked. Wilkin v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1145.

A sale of land upon an administrator's application for its sale on the ground of the necessity for the support of minor heirs, and that it is for the best interest of the estate, is merely erroneous, and not absolutely void so as to allow collateral attack on the ground that it was for an unauthorized purpose. Id.

—— Purchase by administrator.—An issue cannot be raised by heirs in a collateral proceeding that property of the estate had been purchased indirectly by the administrator in violation of the statute. The remedy is by a direct proceeding instituted by some one interested in the estate in a reasonable time. Rutherford v. Stamper, 60 T. 447.

—— Defects in proceedings in general.—An order directing a sale without the notice required by law is voidable only, and not void, and can be set aside only by those interested in the estate by a direct proceeding in the probate court within the time prescribed by law. Heath v. Layne, 62 T. 686.

Where the record fails to show the order of confirmation, that fact will not prejudice the purchaser in a collateral attack upon his title, where there is any evidence of confirmation, or facts entitling the purchaser to have the sale confirmed. Moody v. Butler, 63 T. 210.

In a collateral proceeding every presumption exists to support the validity of the order directing the sale. Tom v. Sayes, 64 T. 339; Alexander v. Maverick, 18 T. 179, 67 Am. Dec. 693; Guilford v. Love, 49 T. 715; Corley v. Goll, 8 C. A. 184, 27 S. W. 819.

Objections to an order of sale, when offered to support a deed, for want of notice, are only available in a direct proceeding, and cannot be urged when the sale is collaterally attacked. Lyne v. Sanford, 82 T. 58, 19 S. W. 847, 27 Am. St. Rep. 852.

A sale cannot be collaterally impeached on the ground that a general order confirming the sale to several purchasers did not identify the land sold to each. Perry v. Blakey, 23 S. W. 804, 5 C. A. 331.

In a collateral proceeding it is not necessary to prove the appointment of the administrator. Evans v. Martin, 25 S. W. 688, 6 C. A. 331. Nor is a sale vitiated by irregularities in the proceedings. Rindge v. Oliphint, 62 T. 682; Poor v. Boyce, 12 T. 440; Peterson v. Lowery, 48 T. 408; Dancy v. Stricklinge, 15 T. 557, 65 Am. Dec. 179. Bartlett v. Cocke, 15 T. 471; Harris v. Shafer (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 110; Day L. & C. Co. v. N. Y. & T. Land Co. (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 1089; Lyne v. Sanford, 82 T. 58, 19 S. W. 847, 27 Am. St. Rep. 852; Flenner v. Walker, 23 S. W. 1029, 5 C. A. 145; Saul v. Frame, 22 S. W. 984, 3 C. A. 596; Perry v. Blakey, 23 S. W. 804, 5 C. A. 331.

Statutory requirements as to the manner of making sales are not jurisdictional, and a sale not in conformity therewith is not subject to collateral attack after confirmation. Cassels v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 725.

An administrator's sale will be sustained as against collateral attack, though there was no proof of the entry of an order of sale, if there is anything of record intimating that the sale was approved by the probate court. Cruse v. O'Gwin, 48 C. A. 48, 106 S. W. 757.

Where the application to sell lands showed that debts were due the executor, it will be presumed, on collateral attack, that the law in regard to claims of an executor was fully complied with. Daimwood v. Driscoll (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 621.

Lands sold on an administrator's application for an order of sale held sufficiently described in the application, as against collateral attack on the order of sale. Wilkin v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1145.

—— Execution of order of sale.—A sale for cash when the law requires a sale on credit is not subject to collateral attack. Hurley v. Barnard, 48 T. 83; Guilford v. Love, 49 T. 715; Lyne v. Sanford, 82 T. 58, 19 S. W. 847, 27 Am. St. Rep. 852; Cassels v. Gibson (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 725.

On the application for an order to sell a certificate for land the administrator reported a sale of land located by virtue of the certificate. The sale having been approved by the court, the title of the purchaser cannot be brought in question in a collateral proceeding. Farris v. Gilbert, 50 T. 350.

When under an order to sell land for cash the administrator receives from the purchaser not cash, but a receipt against his own individual debt and other lands in payment, and reported to the court that he had sold for cash, the sale was not void, but voidable only at the suit of those interested, in the proper court, and within the time limited by law. Heath v. Layne, 62 T. 686.

Sale and report by one as agent of the administrator cannot be collaterally attacked after confirmation. Harris v. Shafer (Civ. App.) 21 S. W. 110.

A sale made by one of two executors and confirmed by the court cannot be impeached in a collateral proceeding. Corley v. Anderson, 23 S. W. 839, 5 C. A. 213.

Recitals, in an order and judgment authorizing administrators to sell land to pay debts, that notice was given as required by statute, is evidence of such notice only when the attack upon the judgment is collateral. Texas Land & Loan Co. v. Dunovant's Estate, 38 C. A. 560, 87 S. W. 208.

An administrator's sale held not necessarily void because the administrator violated the terms of the law and the order of the court as to the terms of credit. Cruse v. O'Gwin, 48 C. A. 48, 106 S. W. 757.

Although under the statute in force in 1842, all sales of land by an administrator were required to be on credit, that the deed recites a cash consideration will not subject the sale to a collateral attack. Berryman v. McDonald, 49 C. A. 81, 107 S. W. 944.

Art. 3513. [2146] [2091a] Conveyance of property sold.—After a sale has been confirmed by a decree of the court, upon the purchaser complying with the terms of the sale, the executor or administrator shall execute and deliver to the purchaser a proper conveyance of the property purchased by him. In the case of personal property, no conveyance shall be necessary, but the decree of the court confirming the sale shall vest the right and title of the testator or intestate to the property sold in the purchaser, and shall be prima facie evidence that all the requirements of the law have been complied with in making the sale. [Id. p. 113, sec. 85.]

What passes by assignment.—An assignment of claims belonging to an estate pursuant to an administrator's sale of claims, accounts, etc., in "his hands" held not to pass the estate's interest in a trust fund remaining unadministered, and which the administrator had not reduced to possession. Routledge v. Elmendorf, 54 C. A. 174, 116 S. W. 156.

Art. 3514. [2147] [2092] Conveyance of real estate.—If the property sold be real estate, the conveyance shall be by deed, and shall recite the decree of the court confirming the sale and ordering the conveyance to be made; and such conveyance shall vest the right and title that the testator or intestate had in such real estate in the purchaser, and shall be prima facie evidence that all the requirements of the law have been complied with in making such sale. [Id.]

Conveyance.—A deed by an attorney in fact of an executor, ratified by an executor, held valid. Terrell v. McCown, 91 T. 231, 43 S. W. 2.

An administrator's deed conveying property sold by order of court held sufficient, without stating that it was made in his representative capacity. Odell v. Kennedy, 26 C. A. 439, 64 S. W. 802.

An administrator's deed, not containing a recital of a decree of confirmation, held not to be a nullity. City of El Paso v. Ft. Dearborn Nat. Bank, 96 T. 496, 74 S. W. 21.

Held no objection to an administrator's deed that the original inventory of his intestate's estate did not contain the land conveyed. Jamison v. Dooley, 34 C. A. 428, 79 S. W. 91.

An executor held to have had power to execute a certain deed. Sydnor v. Texas Savings & Real Estate Inv. Ass'n, 42 C. A. 138, 94 S. W. 451.

A deed of an executor conveying real estate held invalid. Johnson v. Short, 43 C. A. 128, 94 S. W. 1082.

—— Description of land.—As to the effect of an administrator's deed containing a defective description of the land sold, see Akin v. Horn, 2 App. C. C. § 8, and cases cited.

A deed not identifying the land is void. Harris v. Shafer, 86 T. 314, 23 S. W. 979.

An administrator's deed and a reference to the description therein in an order of confirmation held to show that the property sold was that described in the deed, and not that described in the administrator's report and the court's order of confirmation. City of El Paso v. Ft. Dearborn Nat. Bank, 96 T. 496, 74 S. W. 21.

A description in a conveyance of land by an administrator held sufficient. Berryman v. Biddle, 48 C. A. 624, 107 S. W. 922.

Deed by executor held not void for uncertainty of description, and that the land need not be identified by extrinsic evidence as the same land ordered sold by probate court. Golden v. Walker (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 683.

—— Effect of recitals.—The recitals in the administrator's deed are not prima facie evidence that the proceedings which gave the power to sell occurred. The deed is only prima facie evidence of the act of sale, including time, place, manner of selling and notice of sale. Terrel v. Martin, 64 T. 121.

The language of this article only makes the deed prima facie evidence of the act of sale including time, place, manner of selling and notice of sale, while the language used in Art. 3520 is sufficiently comprehensive to embrace all the requirements of the law necessary to be complied with in order to obtain a legal conveyance of the land. Hughes v. Wright & Vaughan (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 526.

Recitals in an administrator's deed held insufficient to raise a presumption that an order had been granted authorizing the grantor as permanent administrator to sell land. Cruse v. O'Gwin, 48 C. A. 48, 106 S. W. 757.

—— Covenants of warranty.—An administrator cannot be held personally liable on a covenant of warranty which recited that it was made in his capacity as administrator. Dallas County v. Club Land & Cattle Co., 95 T. 200, 66 S. W. 294.

—— Title and interest conveyed.—A deed for land duly executed by an administrator conveys the legal title. Flenner v. Walker, 23 S. W. 1029, 5 C. A. 145; Saunders v. Isbell, 24 S. W. 307, 5 C. A. 513.

Where a grantor has a vendor's lien, his estate has no right in the land itself which is the subject of sale to pay debts. O'Connor v. Vineyard, 91 T. 488, 44 S. W. 485.

The deed of a lot by an administrator as such conveys his individual life estate in the lot. Millican v. McNeill, 102 T. 189, 114 S. W. 106, 21 L. R. A. (N. S.) 60, 132 Am. St. Rep. 863, 20 Ann. Cas. 74; Schnabel v. McNeill, 102 T. 196, 114 S. W. 108.

A deed on a sale ordered by the county court conveys only such interest as the decedent had. Arnold v. Southern Pine Lumber Co. (Civ. App.) 123 S. W. 1162.

While an executrix, as such, may not be able to transfer any title, her deed of land of which she is a joint owner invests her grantees with such interest as she owns in her individual right. Parks v. Knox (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 203.

Where a widow conveyed land which she owned jointly with her husband's estate of which she was administratrix, that the deed was invalid as to the estate did not affect its validity as a conveyance of her individual interest. Pate v. McLain (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 538.

A purchaser at an administrator's sale acquires only such interest as the estate owned. Newton v. Easterwood (Civ. App.) 154 S. W. 646.

Title and rights acquired irrespective of deed.—A deed cannot be executed by the administrator until the terms of the sale have been complied with. Akin v. Horn, 2 App. C. C. § 10. A purchaser, upon compliance with the terms of the sale as confirmed by the county court, would have in the land an equitable interest sufficient to maintain a suit against a stranger to the estate. Sypert v. McCowen, 28 T. 635.

An administrator's sale of land is effective, without any deed, where the administrator receives the purchase money. Whitaker v. Thayer, 38 C. A. 537, 86 S. W. 364.

The purchaser of land at an administrator's sale who complies with the terms of sale acquires an equitable title, though he does not obtain a deed from the administrator. Edwards v. Gates (Civ. App.) 120 S. W. 585.

An order of sale of the land of an estate, report thereof, and confirmation, are sufficient to give the purchaser title without the execution of a deed, so that it is immaterial that a deed was made before the order of confirmation. Wilkin v. Simmons (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 1145.

Evidence.—In an action of trespass to try title, the plaintiff, as evidence of title to the land in controversy, offered in evidence the transcript of proceedings in the probate court, showing, first, a valid administration; second, an order to sell land at public or private sale; third, a return of sale which did not disclose whether the sale was public or private, and the order of confirmation of the sale; fourth, evidence of payment of the purchase-money, and that no deed was made. Held, sufficient to show title in the plaintiff. Erhart v. Bass, 54 T. 97.

Improvements pending administration.—One who purchased land from an heir pending administration on the estate of an ancestor, and improved the same while it yet remained in contemplation of law assets of the estate, has no equitable claim on account of his improvements against a purchaser of a legal title at administrator's sale. Heath v. Layne, 62 T. 686.

Caveat emptor applies.—See notes under Art. 3245.

Notice to purchaser of defects.—See notes under Art. 3245.

Collateral attack.—See notes under Art. 3512.

Presumption.—See notes under Art. 3687.

Art. 3515. [2148] [2093] Conveyance of real estate shall not be delivered until, etc.—No conveyance of real estate sold shall be executed and delivered by the executor or administrator to the purchaser until the terms of sale have been complied with by such purchaser; and, when such sale has been made on a credit, it shall be the duty of the executor or administrator, before delivering a conveyance of the property to the purchaser, to take from such purchaser a note with good personal security, together with a mortgage containing power of sale upon the property sold to secure the payment of the purchase money, and to file such mortgage for record in the county where such real estate is situated. [Id. p. 114, sec. 87.]

Reservation of lien.—Lien may be reserved in the purchase-money note. Cundiff v. Corley (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 167.

Administrator's commissions.—A creditor of an insolvent decedent who buys the land sold by the administrator to pay a debt for the purchase money of said land must pay the administrator's commissions, and may retain an amount sufficient to pay the debt due him. Claridge v. Lavenburg, 7 C. A. 155, 26 S. W. 324.

Art. 3516. [2149] [2094] Penalty for neglect to take note and mortgage.—Should the executor or administrator neglect to take such note, security and mortgage, and file such mortgage for record in the proper county before delivery of such deed, he and the sureties on his bond shall be liable at the suit of any person interested in the estate, for the use of the estate, for the full amount of such sale. [Id.]

Liability for proceeds.—The administrator is liable for the proceeds of property sold on credit, if he make a conveyance without taking note and security as required by law. Giddings v. Steele, 28 T. 732, 91 Am. Dec. 336.

Art. 3517. [2150] [2095] Note holds vendor's lien.—All notes executed for the purchase money of real estate purchased under the provisions of this chapter shall hold the vendor's lien on the real estate for which they were given against all persons having notice, express or implied, in favor of the estate, whether the mortgage be recorded or not, and such lien shall in no case be waived. [Id.]

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

ENFORCING SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE OF CONTRACTS

Article 3518. [2151] [2096] Proceeding to enforce specific performance of bond, etc.—When any person shall sell property and enter into bond or other written agreement to make title thereto, and shall depart this life without having made such title, the owner of such bond or written agreement, or his legal representatives, may file a complaint in writing in the county court of the county where the letters testamentary or of administration were granted, and cause the executor or administrator to be cited to appear at a regular term of the court, and show cause why a specific performance of such bond or other written agreement should not be decreed; and such bond or other written agreement shall be filed with such complaint, or good cause shown under oath why the same can not be so filed; and, in case it can not be so filed, the same or the substance thereof shall be set forth in the complaint. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 108, sec. 65.]

Historical.—The probate court had in 1839 no jurisdiction to decree specific performance of a contract to convey land. Wm. Cameron & Co. v. Cuffie (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1024.

Under this article the probate court had authority to make partition in an administration in 1856. Stephenson v. Wiess (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 287.

Only applies to executory contracts.—This article does not confer upon the probate court jurisdiction over contracts which are not executory in their character. When there are conflicting claims between the estate and some other person to specific property, they must be settled in some other than the probate court. Wise v. O'Malley, 60 T. 588.

Parol agreement.—A parol agreement for the conveyance of land cannot be specifically enforced after the death of the obligor. Masterton's Heirs v. Stevens (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 364.

Illegal contract.—A deed by an administratrix, executed under order of the probate court, is invalid where made in execution of a contract between the decedent, who was a colonist, to transfer half of his land under a headright certificate if the grantee would furnish the money to enter the land and survey it, as such contract was in contravention of an express statute forbidding a colonist to alienate his land before the final title was extended, and the county court at the time that the order was issued had no authority to decree specific performance of a contract for the conveyance of land. Broocks v. Payne (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 463.

Art. 3519. [2152] [2097] Action of the court on complaint.—When the citation has been returned served, the court shall hear such complaint and the evidence in support thereof, or against the same, and, if satisfied from the proof that such bond or written agreement was legally executed by the testator or intestate, and that the complainant has a right to demand a specific performance thereof, a decree shall be entered upon the minutes ordering the executor or administrator to make title to the property so sold by his testator or intestate according to the tenor of the bond or other written agreement; and such property shall be fully described in such decree. [Id.]

Art. 3520. [2153] [2098] Conveyance under provisions of this chapter.—When a conveyance is made under the provisions of this chapter, it shall recite the decree of the court authorizing it, and, when delivered, shall have the effect to vest in the person to whom made all the right and title which the testator or intestate had to the property conveyed; and such conveyance shall be prima facie evidence that all the requirements of the law have been complied with in obtaining the same.

Embraces all requirements.—The language used in this article is sufficiently comprehensive to embrace all the requirements of the law necessary to be complied with in order to obtain a legal conveyance of the land, but that embraced in Art. 3514 is restricted to those requirements relating to the sale. Hughes v. Wright & Vaughan (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 526.

Prima facie evidence.—An administrator's deed must recite the decree of court authorizing it. It is prima facie evidence of the title it conveys. The probate court had jurisdiction to render such judgment as was recited in the deed. Being a court of general jurisdiction, its judgments cannot be attacked collaterally. The deed being over 30 years old proves itself and the recitals therein. Dutton & Rutherford v. Wright & Vaugh, 38 C. A. 372, 85 S. W. 1026, 1027.

When an administrator's deed is made under this statute it is properly admissible in evidence without additional proof. Hughes v. Wright & Vaughan (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 526.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

HEIRSHIP, ETC.—ADJUDICATION OF

Article 3521. County court may determine and declare heirship, etc., when; venue.—Whenever any person has died, or shall hereafter die, intestate, owning or being entitled to any real or personal property in this state, or any share or interest therein, and there shall have been no administration in this state upon the estate of such decedent, and whenever there has been a will probated in this state or elsewhere, or an administration in this state upon the estate of such decedent, and any real or personal property in this state has been omitted from such will or from such administration, or no final disposition thereof has been made in such administration, the county court of the county of this state in which such proceedings were last pending, or, in the event no will of such decedent has been admitted to probate in this state, and no administration has been granted in this state upon the estate of such decedent, then the county court of the county in which any of the real property belonging to such estate is situated, or, if there be no such real property, then of the county in which any personal property belonging to such estate may be found, may determine and declare in the manner hereinafter provided in this chapter, who are the heirs and only heirs of such decedent, and their respective shares and interests, under the laws of this state, in the estate of such decedent, and actions therefor shall be known as actions to declare heirship. [Acts 1907, p. 230, sec. 1.]

Art. 3522. Who may maintain action, and how; requisites of petitions; parties.—Such action may be instituted and maintained in any of the instances enumerated in article 3521 by any person or persons claiming to be the owner or owners of the estates of such decedent, or of any share or interest therein. Such action shall be instituted by the filing in the proper court of a petition which shall give the name and also the time and place of the death and the names and places of residence of the heirs of such decedent, if known to the petitioners or any of them, and, if the time and place of the death or the names and places of residence of all the heirs of such decedent be not definitely known to such petitioners or any of them, then such petition shall set forth, in at least general terms, any and all of such material facts and circumstances within the knowledge or information of such petitioners, or any of them, as may reasonably tend to show the time and place of the death and the names and places of residence of the heirs of such decedent, and the true share and interest of each such petitioner, and of each such heir, in the estate of such decedent. Such petition shall, so far as is known to any of the petitioners, also contain such a description of all the real property of such decedent as would be sufficient in a conveyance thereof, and also a description, in at least general terms of all the personal property belonging to the estate of such decedent. Such petition shall be supported by the written personal affidavit of each such petitioners to the effect that, in so far as is known to such petitioner, all the allegations of such petition are true in substance and in fact and that no such material fact or circumstance has, within such affiant's knowledge, been omitted from such petition. The unknown heirs of such decedent, and, excepting only the plaintiffs, all persons who may be named in such petition as heirs of such decedent, and all persons who may, at the date of the filing of such petition, be shown by the deed records of the county in which any of the real property described in such petition may be situated, to own any share or interest in any such real property, shall be made parties defendant in such action. [Id. sec. 2.]

Art. 3523. Notice, citation, etc., cause to be transferred when, and to what court.—Due notice of the filing of such petition shall be given in the manner and for the length of time and in accordance with the provisions of law now in force in this state concerning the issuance and service of citations upon resident defendants, and notice to non-resident defendants, and citation by publication for unknown heirs, respectively; and, in so far as they are applicable thereto, all provisions of laws now in force in this state, relative to or concerning suits wherein citation by publication is provided for by law, shall apply to and govern in all suits provided for in this chapter. In the event an administration upon the estate of any such decedent shall be granted in any county in this state, after the institution of any such action, and in the event the will of such decedent shall be admitted to probate in any county in this state after the institution of such action, then, and in either such event, the court in which such action may then be pending, shall, by an order to be entered of record therein, transfer such cause to the county court of the county in which such administration shall have been granted or such will shall have been probated, and, thereupon, the clerk of the court in which such action was originally filed shall transmit to the clerk of the court named in such order, a certified transcript of all docket entries and orders of the court in such cause. The clerk of the court to which such cause shall be so transferred shall file such transcript, and record the same in the minutes of the court, and shall duly docket such cause, and same shall thereafter proceed as though originally filed in that court. [Id. sec. 3.]

Art. 3524. Hearing and procedure on; judgment to declare and contain what; effect of.—Upon the hearing of such cause, the trial court may require the issues involved to be duly framed and submitted, and shall confine the proof to such issues; and all the evidence shall be reduced to writing, and shall be subscribed and sworn to by the witnesses, respectively, and filed in the cause, and recorded in the minutes of the court. The judgment of the court in such cause shall declare the names and places of residence of the heirs of such decedent, and their respective shares and interests in the real and personal property of such decedent, in so far as such facts shall be ascertainable from the evidence under the laws of this state and the rules of evidence, and shall state in what respects, if any, the evidence presented upon such hearing fails to develop such issues, or any of them; and all issues in the cause which may be framed by the court, or under its direction, shall be embodied in the judgment of the court. As between and as among all parties to such cause who may have been personally so duly served with citation or notice, as to a non-resident in such cause, and as between any and all of them, and any and all bona fide purchasers for value from them, or any of them, of any of the real or personal property of such decedent, which is described in such judgment, or any interest therein, such judgment shall be conclusive, and as to any and all other persons such judgment shall be prima facie evidence that the heirs of such decedent and that their respective interests in the real and personal property described in such judgment are as therein stated; but such judgment shall not preclude any suit or suits against the persons therein named as heirs of such decedent, or any one or more of them, based upon the allegation that such heir or heirs have received more than his or their proper and just share of the property of such decedent. Such judgment shall have the force and effect of a final judgment of such court; and any party or parties to such cause may appeal from such judgment in like manner and under the same conditions as is now, or may hereafter be, provided by law in other cases arising under the probate laws of this state. [Id. sec. 4.]

Admissibility.—See Art. 3687.

Sufficiency of evidence.—In an action by an executor to determine the adverse claims of defendants as heirs of deceased, evidence held sufficient to show that appellees were the nephew and niece of deceased. Stein v. Mentz, 42 C. A. 38, 94 S. W. 447.

In an action involving the title to land, evidence held insufficient to show that defendant was an heir of one alleged to have had a community interest in the land in question. Berryman v. Biddle, 48 C. A. 624, 107 S. W. 922.

Art. 3525. Certified copy of judgment to be filed for record, etc., where, etc., constructive notice.—A certified copy of such judgment may be filed for record in the office of the county clerk of the county in which any of the real property described in such judgment may be situated, and recorded in the deed records of such county, and indexed in the name of such decedent as grantor and of the heirs named in such judgment as grantees; and, from and after such filing, such judgment shall constitute constructive notice of the facts set forth in such judgment. [Id. sec. 5.]

Art. 3526. Provisions of chapter cumulative.—The provisions of this chapter shall be deemed and held to be cumulative of all existing laws, and shall not be held to repeal any existing law. [Id. sec. 6.]

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

PARTITION AND DISTRIBUTION

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 3527. [2154] [2099] Application for partition and distribution.—All applications for the partition and distribution of an estate shall be in writing, and shall be filed with the clerk of the court in which the administration of the estate is pending. Such application shall state:

1. The name of the person whose estate is sought to be partitioned and distributed.

2. The names and residences of all persons entitled to a share of such estate, and whether such persons are adults or minors, and if these facts be unknown to the applicant, it shall be so stated in the application, such application may be filed by any person interested in the estate. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 120, sec. 102.]

Jurisdiction.—See, also, notes under Art. 3206.

A decree of partition of probate court in 1838, and deed pursuant thereto, held ineffectual to devest an estate of its legal title to the realty partitioned, as that court was then without jurisdiction. McCarty v. Merry (Civ App.) 59 S. W. 304.

The probate court has jurisdiction, in the administration of an estate, to partition the same among the heirs and wife of a deceased person. Case v. Penn (Civ. App.) 62 S. W. 801.

A ward held, under the facts, not equitably entitled to object that the probate court had no jurisdiction to partition land. Greer v. Ford, 31 C. A. 389, 72 S. W. 73; Same v. Morrison, Id.

On the death of a son owning property in which his mother had a joint interest, the probate court could partition the land between the mother and the son's widow. Penn v. Case, 36 C. A. 4, 81 S. W. 349.

Under the statute the probate court held to possess general jurisdiction over the partition of estates of decedents, and an order within the court's jurisdiction is not void. Rye v. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co., 42 C. A. 185, 95 S. W. 622.

When properly invoked, jurisdiction of the county court to make a settlement, distribution, and partition of the estates of deceased persons is exclusive. Buchner v. Wait (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 383.

Where the district court had no jurisdiction of an original proceeding to partition real estate of a decedent, and for other relief by way of enjoining the probate of decedent's will, such a proceeding could not be consolidated with an appeal from an order of the county court allowing the probate of the same will. Id.

Art. 3528. [2155] [2100] Citation in such cases.—Upon the filing of any such application, it shall be the duty of the clerk to issue a citation returnable to some regular term of the court; which citation shall state the name of the person whose estate is sought to be partitioned and distributed, the term of the court to which such citation is returnable, and shall require all persons interested in the estate to appear and show cause why such partition and distribution should not be made. [Id.]

Presumptions on collateral attack.—This article and Art. 3529 require that in applications for partition and distribution citation be issued and served personally on each person entitled to a share. The application for partition was sworn to before the clerk, in January, 1884, and was acted on the following month. The heirs of decedent were residents of Texas. The papers and docket were destroyed. On a collateral attack it will be presumed that the citation was personally served on the heirs including a minor. Rye v. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co., 42 C. A. 185, 95 S. W. 622, 626.

Art. 3529. [2156] [2101] Service of citation.—Such citation shall be personally served by leaving a copy thereof with each person entitled to a share of the estate, who is known and is a resident of this state; and, if there be any persons so entitled who are not known, or who are not residents of this state, such citation shall be published for at least four successive weeks in some newspaper printed in the county, if there be one, if not, then it shall be published in like manner in one of the nearest newspapers published in the state. A copy of such publication, and the affidavit of the publisher or printer attached thereto, shall accompany the report of the officer serving such citation. [Id.]

Art. 3530. [2157] [2102] Executor, etc., shall also be cited, etc.—When the application is made by any other person than the executor or administrator of the estate, such executor or administrator shall be cited to appear and answer such application, and to file in court a full and complete exhibit and account of the condition of the estate, verified by affidavit, as in case of final settlement of such estate.

Art. 3531. [2158] [2103] Application may be made, when.—At any time after the first term of the court after the expiration of twelve months from the original grant of letters testamentary or of administration, the heirs, devisees or legatees of the estate, or any of them, may, by their application in writing, filed in the county court, cause the executor or administrator, and the heirs, devisees and legatees of the estate, to be cited to appear at a regular term of the court and show cause why a partition and distribution of the residue of such estate should not be made. [Id. p. 117, sec. 94.]

In general.—One claiming under a devisee in a will held not entitled to maintain partition. McComas v. Curtis (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 594.

Time for application.—To authorize the partition of an estate before the expiration of twelve months, it should be shown that there are no debts not provided for. Moore v. Moore (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 532.

After the administration has been pending twelve months the heirs, devisees, or legatees have the right to a distribution of all the estate that can be distributed and when once distributed the administrator cannot resume control of it. Routledge v. Elmendorf, 54 C. A. 174, 116 S. W. 156, 163.

Effect of a provision in a will deferring partition, stated. Autrey v. Stubenrauch (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 531.

Art. 3532. [2159] [2104] Upon return of citation served, court shall proceed, etc.—Upon the return of any such citation, served at the return term thereof, or at some succeeding term, to which the application may be continued, if it shall appear that such citation has been served or published as required by law, the court shall ascertain whether the whole, or any part, of such property is susceptible of partition, also the value of the property, and that there is a residue of the estate on hand subject to partition and distribution, the court shall proceed to have such residue partitioned and distributed among the persons entitled thereto in the manner hereinafter provided. [Acts 1876, p. 120. Acts 1905, p. 108.]

Art. 3533. [2160] [2105] Court shall ascertain what facts.—In the proceeding to partition an estate, the court shall ascertain:

1. The residue of the estate subject to partition and distribution, which shall be ascertained by deducting from the entire assets of such estate remaining on hand the amount of all debts and expenses of every kind which have been approved or established by judgment, or which may yet be established by judgment, and also the probable future expenses of administration.

2. The persons who are by law entitled to partition and distribution, and their respective shares.

3. Whether advancements have been made to any of the persons so entitled, their nature and value, and shall require the same to be placed in hotchpotch as required by the law governing descents and distributions. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 120, sec. 102.]

Children of former marriage.—To settle on just and equitable principles the rights of the children of a former marriage claimed in right of their mother against the children of a second marriage, and some of the children claiming under the will of a surviving husband, an account should be taken between the estate and heirs of the first wife and that belonging to such heirs partitioned among them. As to the residue, the legatees should have the privilege of electing whether they will take as heirs or legatees. Lumpkin v. Murrell, 46 T. 51.

Sufficiency of evidence.—Evidence held not to warrant a decree for the partition of an estate. Wells v. Houston (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 233.

Art. 3534. [2161] [2106] Shall appoint guardians for minors, etc.—If there are any persons entitled to any portion of the estate who are known, and are minors, and have no guardian in this state, or whose guardians are also entitled to a portion of such estate, the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem to represent such minors in the partition of the estate; and, if there be any persons so entitled who are not known or are not residents of the state, and no person appears who is authorized to represent them, the court shall appoint an attorney to represent such persons in the partition. [Id.]

Effect of failure to appoint guardian ad litem.—The failure to appoint a guardian ad litem does not render the judgment void, and it is not subject to a collateral attack on that ground. Montgomery v. Carlton, 56 T. 361; Laughter v. Seela, 59 T. 177; Rye v. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co., 42 C. A. 185, 95 S. W. 622.

Art. 3535. [2162] [2107] Decree of partition.—The court shall then proceed to enter a decree, which shall state:

1. The name and residence, if known, of each person entitled to a share of the estate, specifying those who are known to be minors and the name of their guardian, or guardian ad litem, and the name of the attorney appointed to represent those who are unknown or are not residents of the state.

2. The proportional part of the estate to which each is entitled.

3. It shall contain a full description of all the estate to be distributed.

4. It shall direct the executor or administrator to retain in his hands for the payment of debts and expenses of administration a sufficient amount of money or property for that purpose, specifying the amount of money or the property to be so retained. [Id.]

Description of property.—Where deceased for many years owned two lots, known as her lots, a description of them in the proceedings for the probate and partition of her estate as "two lots in" such town is sufficient. Taffinder v. Merrell, 95 T. 95, 65 S. W. 177, 93 Am. St. Rep. 814.

Provision for payment of debts and costs of administration.—In a suit for partition of a decedent's estate provision may be made for the payment of debts chargeable on such estate. Moore v. Moore, 89 T. 29, 33 S. W. 217.

County court held to have jurisdiction to set aside a proportionate part of the shares allotted on partition to pay the expenses of administration. Shiner v. Shiner, 14 C. A. 489, 40 S. W. 439.

Adjustment of advancements and expenditures.—The county court had no jurisdiction on partition to charge the shares of devisees with advancements made to them by executors as trustees under the will. Shiner v. Shiner, 14 C. A. 489, 40 S. W. 439.

In partition between heirs, one who has paid taxes and costs of litigation to establish title in the estate is entitled to contribution from the others, though he ousted them from possession on an unfounded claim that he was the sole heir entitled. Hanrick v. Gurley, 93 T. 458, 54 S. W. 347, 55 S. W. 119, 56 S. W. 330.

It is no objection, in partition between heirs, to the right of one to compel contribution for his payments of taxes and costs of litigation, that they were made while he was administrator or that they did not all relate to the particular land in question, if all the heirs were proportionately benefited, and he has not been reimbursed. Id.

In partition of the interests of heirs, grantees of any of them cannot complain of an adjustment of an heir's expenditures for the benefit of the estate, just as between him and their grantors. Id.

Operation and effect of partition.—After order of partition is made the property of the estate then in the hands of the administrator can be appropriated, so far as creditors are concerned, only to the payment of debts already allowed and the expenses of administration. Bledsoe v. Beiler, 66 T. 437, 1 S. W. 164.

By a partial partition under the act of 1876, the property so partitioned was placed beyond the jurisdiction of the court and was no longer subject to partition. Henderson v. Lindley, 75 T. 185, 12 S. W. 979. But a mere order for partition does not have that effect. Lee v. Henderson, 75 T. 190, 12 S. W. 981.

Administrator entitled to interest in the estate, after distribution of the same by decree providing that it should be without prejudice to his rights, held not estopped to recover against the heirs the amount he was entitled to from the estate not given him by the distribution. Gray v. Cockrell, 20 C. A. 324, 49 S. W. 247.

Where an estate has been once distributed, the administrator cannot resume control over it. Routledge v. Elmendorf, 54 C. A. 174, 116 S. W. 156.

Collateral attack.—The judgment of a probate court within the scope of its jurisdiction cannot be questioned in a collateral action. Guilford v. Love, 49 T. 715; Heath v. Garrett, 50 T. 264; Fitch v. Boyer, 51 T. 336; Gunter v. Fox, 51 T. 383; Murchison v. White, 54 T. 78; Martin v. Burns, 80 T. 676, 16 S. W. 1072.

Recitals in decree.—The recital in a proceeding and decree making partition of an estate, that all the heirs were present or represented and consented thereto, must be taken as true until the contrary is shown. Millican v. Millican, 24 T. 426.

Remainder to heirs after life estate.—Property delivered to a devisee for life, with remainder to heirs, does not revert to the estate for partition after the death of the devisee. Blackwell v. Blackwell (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 31.

Art. 3536. [2163] [2108] Where estate consists of money or debts only.—If the estate to be distributed shall consist only of money or debts due the estate, or both, the court shall fix the amount to which each distributee is entitled, and order the payment and delivery thereof by the executor or administrator. [Id.]

Interest on funds.—Under the statute a speedy partition of an estate that has been administered is contemplated after the payment of debts, and, since the law does not require the administrator to loan money remaining in his hands, interest cannot be exacted by him unless actually received. When the record fails to disclose any injury resulting from alleged errors, the judgment will be affirmed. Stonebraker v. Friar, 70 T. 202, 7 S. W. 799.

Art. 3537. [2164] [2109] Court shall appoint commissioners, when.—If the estate does not consist entirely of money or debts due the estate, or both, the court shall appoint three or more discreet and disinterested persons as commissioners, to make a partition and distribution of the estate, unless the court has already determined that the estate is incapable of partition. [Acts 1876, p. 120. Acts 1905, p. 108.]

Record of appointment.—The record in proceedings to partition a decedent's estate held to show the regular appointment of commissioners to divide the same. Rye v. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co., 42 C. A. 185, 95 S. W. 622.

Art. 3538. [2165] [2110] Writ of partition shall issue.—When commissioners are appointed, the clerk shall issue a writ of partition directed to the commissioners appointed, commanding them to proceed forthwith to make such partition and distribution in accordance with the decree of the court, a copy of which decree shall accompany the writ, and also commanding them to make due return of said writ, with their proceedings under it, at some term of the court to be named in the writ. [Act August 9, 1876, p. 120, sec. 102.]

See dissenting opinion in Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Robertson, 103 T. 504, 121 S. W. 202, 131 S. W. 400, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 231.

Art. 3539. [2166] [2111] Service of writ.—Such writ shall be served by delivering the same and the accompanying copy of the decree of partition to any one of the commissioners appointed, and by notifying the other commissioners, verbally or otherwise, of their appointment, and such service may be made by any person.

Art. 3540. [2167] [2112] Manner of making partition by commissioners.—It shall be the duty of the commissioners of partition under this chapter to make a fair, just and impartial partition and distribution of the estate in the following order:

1. Of the land or other property by allotment to each distributee of a part in each parcel or of parts in one or more parcels, or of one or more parcels, either with or without the addition of a part or parts of other parcels, as shall be most for the interest of the distributees; provided, the said real estate is capable of being so divided without manifest injury to all or any of the distributees.

2. If the real estate is not capable of a fair, just and equal division in kind, but may be made so by allotting to one or more of the distributees a proportion of money or other personal property to supply the deficiency or deficiencies, the commissioners shall have power to make, as near as may be, an equal division of the real estate and supply the deficiency of any share or shares from the money or other property.

3. The commissioners shall proceed to make a like division in kind, as near as may be, of the money and other personal property, and shall determine by lot among equal shares to whom each particular share shall belong. [Id. p. 121, sec. 104.]

See dissenting opinion in Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Robertson, 103 T. 504, 121 S. W. 202, 131 S. W. 400, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 231.

Personal property.—Personalty of decedent held subject to partition. Sims v. Hixon (Sup.) 65 S. W. 35.

Art. 3541. [2168] [2113] Report of commissioners when division is made.—Said commissioners having divided the whole, or any part of the estate, shall make to the court a report in writing, subscribed and sworn to by them, containing a statement of the property divided by them, and also a particular description of the property allotted to each distributee and its value. And, if it be real estate that has been divided, said report shall contain a general plat of said land with the division lines plainly set down and the number of acres in each share. [Id. p. 122, sec. 106.]

Effect of report.—A provision in a report of partition commissioners held not to prevent heirs from claiming a reimbursement for the entire loss of a survey supposed to be included in said lands. Harris v. Hicks (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 110.

Art. 3542. [2169] [2114] Action of court upon report of commissioners.—Upon the return of such report, it shall be the duty of the court, at some regular term, to examine the same carefully and to hear all exceptions and objections made thereto, and to hear evidence in favor of or against the same, and, if it be merely informal, to cause said informality to be corrected; and, if such division shall appear to have been fairly made according to law, and no valid exceptions are taken to it, the court shall approve it and order it to be recorded, and shall enter a decree vesting title in the distributees of their respective shares or portions of the property as set apart to them by the commissioners; but, if said division shall not appear to have been fairly made according to law, or any valid exceptions are taken to it, the court shall set aside said report and division and order a new partition to be made. [Id.]

Estate created.—The confirmation of a report of commissioners who partitioned land in obedience to decree of the county court held not to give a widow more than a life estate in the lands of her deceased husband. Lovenberg v. Mellen (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 317.

Conclusiveness of judgment.—Where, in an administration upon the estate of defendant's intestate, one of the two tracts of land located under a headright certificate was partitioned among other heirs to exclusion of defendant, such judgment is conclusive upon defendant, and he cannot claim any rights in other lands taken by the parceners after floating the certificate as to that tract and obtaining and locating a new certificate for the unlocated balance. Reed v. Robertson (Sup.) 156 S. W. 196.

Collateral attack.—A county court having partitioned the estate of a decedent, its judgment could not be collaterally attacked for failure to show that it had jurisdiction to partition the particular estate. Caruthers v. Hadley (Civ. App.) 134 S. W. 757.

Art. 3543. [2170] [2115] Court to make special finding as to property incapable of division, and value of same.—When, in the opinion of the court, the whole or any portion of the estate is not capable of fair and equal division among the distributees, the court shall make a special finding in writing, specifying therein the property that is so incapable of division and the value of the same as found by it. [Acts 1876, p. 120. Acts 1905, p. 109.]

Art. 3544. [2171] [2116] Distributees may pay appraised value and take property incapable of division, when.—Upon such special finding of the court, and not less than twenty days after such finding, and before any exception thereto is filed, or after such exception is acted upon by the court, any one or more of the distributees, at a regular term of the court, by the payment to the executor or the administrator of the value of the property found by the court, that is incapable of division, shall have the right to take such property. [Id.]

Art. 3545. [2172] [2117] May take it on credit, when.—Should the court think it for the interest of the distributees to allow a credit, any one or more of such distributees shall have the right to take said property by executing his or their obligations with two or more good and sufficient sureties in favor of each of the other distributees for their share of the appraised value of such property, payable at such time, not exceeding twelve months from the date thereof, as the court may designate; and, when such obligations are executed, a lien shall exist upon such property by operation of law to secure the payment of the same. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 120, sec. 102.]

Art. 3546. [2173] [2118] Decree of court in such cases vesting title.—Should any one or more of the distributees take the said property as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the court to enter upon the minutes a decree stating the facts; and, on the entry of such decree, the property shall vest as fully and absolutely in the person or persons taking the same as the deceased was vested therewith, subject to the lien for the purchase money thereof, as provided in the preceding article. [Id.]

Decree a link in title.—A decree under this article is a regular chain in the title to the subdivisions allotted to those taking in the partition. Its regularity is not affected by equitable ownership in the lands of others. Grigsby v. May, 84 T. 240, 19 S. W. 343.

Art. 3547. [2174] [2119] New appraisement of property, when.—Any distributee shall have the right to file his exception to said finding within twenty days after the finding of the court. The court shall hear proof of same; and, if satisfied that its finding is erroneous, it may make such additional or amendatory finding so as to conform to the proof. [Acts 1876, p. 120. Acts 1905, p. 109.]

Art. 3548. [2175] [2120] If no distributee take property, it shall be sold, etc.—If no distributee take the said property as aforesaid, the court shall order the sale of the same, either for cash or on a credit, as may be most for the interest of the distributees, and the proceeds of sale when collected shall be distributed by the court among those entitled thereto. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 120, sec. 102.]

Sale by commissioner.—A sale by a commissioner appointed for that purpose conveys no title to the purchaser. Rose v. Newman, 26 T. 131, 80 Am. Dec. 646.

Art. 3549. [2176] [2121] Distributee purchasing at sale shall pay only the excess of his share.—At any such sale, if any distributee shall bid off any of the said property, he shall be required to pay, or secure, as the case may be, only such amount of his bid as may exceed the amount of his share of such property. [Id.]

Jurisdiction not exclusive.—The jurisdiction given under this article and Arts. 3550 and 3551 is not exclusive, and a creditor may sue a survivor of the community and his sureties in any court having jurisdiction of the subject-matter. Wiseman v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 145, 148.

Art. 3550. [2177] [2122] Court may order sale, when.—When any portion of the estate to be partitioned lies in another county and can not be fairly partitioned without prejudice to the interests of the distributees, the commissioners may report such facts to the county judge in writing; whereupon he may, at some regular term of the court, if satisfied that the said property cannot be fairly and advantageously divided, or that its sale would be more advantageous to the distributees, order a sale thereof for cash, or on a credit of not more than twelve months, at his discretion; and, when the proceeds of such sale have been collected, they shall be distributed by him among those entitled thereto. [Id. p. 122, sec. 107.]

Sale void.—A sale for partition in 1859 made through a trustee or commissioner is void. Stafford v. Harris, 82 T. 178, 17 S. W. 530; Rose v. Newman, 26 T. 132, 80 Am. Dec. 646.

A judgment of the probate court, ordering a sale of land of a decedent for partition, held not void. Stephenson v. Wiess (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 287.

Notice to heirs.—The statute regulating proceedings for the partition of a decedent's estate does not require notice to the heirs of the proceeding to sell because the estate is not capable of division. Rye v. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co., 42 C. A. 185, 95 S. W. 622.

Estoppel.—See Art. 3687.

Art. 3551. [2178] [2123] If property is not sold, commissioners in county where it is situated shall be appointed, etc.—If the court is not satisfied that such property can not be fairly and advantageously divided, or that its sale would be more advantageous to the distributees, three or more commissioners may be appointed in each county where any portion of the estate so reported is situated, and the same proceedings shall be had thereon as is provided in this chapter for commissioners to make partition. [Id.]

Heir purchasing.—The limitation as to the price at which land may be taken by an heir under this article has no application to a purchaser at a sale. The only restriction upon a sale is that it requires confirmation by the court. Rye v. J. M. Guffey Petroleum Co., 42 C. A. 185, 95 S. W. 622, 626.

Art. 3552. [2179] [2124] Majority of commissioners may act.—In all cases where commissioners to make partition are appointed under this chapter, the report of a majority of them shall be sufficient. [Id. p. 123, sec. 109.]

Art. 3553. [2180] [2125] Court shall order executor or administrator to deliver property, when.—When the report of any commissioners to make partition shall have been approved and ordered to be recorded, the court shall order the executor or administrator to deliver to the distributees their respective shares of the estate on demand, including all the title deeds and papers belonging to the same. [Id. sec. 113.]

Art. 3554. [2181] [2126] To whom property shall be delivered.—If any distributee be a minor, his share shall be delivered to his guardian, and, if such minor has no guardian, and is a resident of this state, the executor or administrator shall retain his share until a guardian of such minor shall be appointed and qualified; and, if any distributee be a minor and reside in any other than this state, and the guardianship of such minor or minors may be, or has been, granted in the state where such minor or minors reside, it shall be lawful for the executor or administrator in this state to settle with, and pay or deliver over to, such guardian any and all estate in his hands, which shall be as good and valid as if the guardianship had been granted in this state; provided, said guardian, before he receives such estate, shall make and enter into a bond as guardian in the matter of the guardianship so pending, conditioned and for the amount prescribed by the court having jurisdiction of such guardianship; and provided, further, that he shall produce to the court of the county wherein administration has been, or may be, granted in this state a certified copy of the bond so given and of the record of his appointment as guardian, with certificates from the clerk and judge of the court in which said guardianship is pending that said appointment and bond are in due and legal form under the laws of the said state; also a copy of his bond as guardian; and, if the court shall be satisfied that said guardian has been legally appointed and otherwise complied with the requirements herein, such court shall order to be recorded in the clerk's office of the county court, which, when recorded, shall entitle the guardian to settle for the amount due his ward. [Id. Amend. 1895, p. 150.]

See dissenting opinion in Ft. Worth & R. G. Ry. Co. v. Robertson, 103 T. 504, 121 S. W. 202, 131 S. W. 400, Ann. Cas. 1913A, 231.

Nonresident minors and guardian.—Art. 4051 provides that the rules governing estates of decedents shall govern guardianships, whenever applicable and not inconsistent with title 64. Arts. 4256–4260 relate specially to nonresident guardians, prescribing the conditions on which they may be appointed guardians in the state, and declares that the property of no ward shall be removed, unless the debts are paid or secured by bond, and provides that the benefit of the provision shall not be extended to residents of any state in which a similar law does not exist. A clerk of the probate court held money paid him in a damage suit which belonged to nonresident minors, and their guardian filed a certified copy of his bond and appointment pursuant to this article. Held, that the guardian could not remove the money, unless he complied with the conditions of title 64 by giving bond to secure debts, since this article was not applicable because the provisions relating to payment of debts were inconsistent with the provisions of this article, and hence Art. 4051 was not controlling. Hoffman v. Watkins (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 625.

Art. 3555. [2182] [2127] Damages for neglect to deliver property, etc.—If any executor or administrator shall neglect to deliver to the person entitled thereto, his agent or attorney, when demanded, any portion of an estate so ordered to be delivered, such executor or administrator shall be liable to pay out of his own estate to the person so entitled damages on the amount or value of the share so withheld, at the rate of ten per cent per month for each and every month he shall so neglect to deliver such share after such demand, which damages may be recovered by suit before any court having competent jurisdiction. [Id.]

Amount of share may be included.—The amount or share ordered to be paid or delivered may be embraced in the same suit. Stewart v. Morrison, 81 T. 396, 17 S. W. 15, 26 Am. St. Rep. 821.

Venue.—See Art. 1830.

Art. 3556. [2183] [2128] Surviving husband or wife may have partition of common property.—When any husband or wife shall die leaving any common property, the survivor may, at any time after letters testamentary or of administration have been granted, and an inventory, appraisement and list of the claims of the estate have been returned, make application in writing to the court which granted such letters for a partition of such common property, which application shall be acted upon at some regular term of the court. [Id. p. 122, sec. 108.]

Agreement for partition.—The survivor of a community estate may agree with the heirs of the deceased husband or wife to a partition of the estate. Cheek v. Hart (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 775.

Conveyance operating as partition.—Conveyance by surviving wife to daughter of portion of community estate in satisfaction of daughter's interest held not to have operated as a partition. McAnulty v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 670.

Collateral attack.—The separate property of an intestate was inventoried as community property of the deceased and his surviving wife; and in a partition between the wife and children it was allotted to the wife, who sold it in good faith to another. Held, that the order could not be called in question in a collateral proceeding, and was conclusive until set aside by a proper proceeding. Davis v. Wells, 37 T. 606.

Effect of partition.—Where certain community property left by a deceased husband was properly partitioned between the surviving wife and his heirs, such partition could not be affected by errors occurring 10 years thereafter in partitioning the separate property of deceased. Barrett v. Spence, 28 C. A. 344, 67 S. W. 921.

The property thus partitioned and allotted is effectually withdrawn from the administration and the survivor's bond has taken its place and the administrator no longer has dominion over it. The applicant having complied with the statutory requirements has the absolute right to its immediate possession. There is no need to wait until administration has been closed. If upon demand to turn over the administrator fails to do so he and his sureties are liable on his bond under Art. 3470 for 5 per cent per month damages and on failure to turn over after ordered by the court to do so, they are liable for 10 per cent per month damages under Art. 3555. Yates v. Yates, 29 C. A. 333, 68 S. W. 708, 709.

Postnuptial contract.—As to postnuptial contracts between husband and wife relating to community property, see Proetzel v. Schroeder, 83 T. 684, 19 S. W. 292; Johnson v. Harrison, 48 T. 261; Edwards v. Brown, 68 T. 335, 4 S. W. 380, 5 S. W. 87.

Reimbursement for improvements.—Statement as to allowance on partition for expenses and services of one of the owners in caring for community estate. Higgins v. Higgins (Civ. App.) 129 S. W. 162.

On partition of a community estate, a widow was entitled to reimbursement for money expended by her in improving it. Burns v. Parker (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 705.

Art. 3557. [2184] [2129] Action of court and bond in such case.—If, upon the hearing of such application, there appear to be any such common property, and such surviving husband or wife shall execute and deliver to the county judge an obligation with two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to and approved by the said county judge, for an amount equal to the value of his or her interest in such common property, conditioned for the payment of one-half of all debts existing against such common property, then the county judge shall proceed to make a partition of said common property into two equal moieties, one to be delivered to the survivor and the other to the executor or administrator of the deceased; and all the provisions of this chapter respecting the partition and distribution of estates shall apply to any partition made under the provisions of this article, so far as the same may be applicable. [Id.]

Property which may be set apart to survivor.—In partition of community property, held not necessary to describe or set apart the tract which was the homestead of the surviving spouse. Griffin v. McKinney, 25 C. A. 432, 62 S. W. 78.

Where a husband gave to his wife the proceeds of her dairy, it is not error to set apart to her property purchased from such proceeds. Dority v. Dority, 30 C. A. 216, 70 S. W. 338.

Art. 3558. [2185] [2130] Lien upon property delivered, etc.—Whenever any such partition shall be made, a lien shall exist upon the property delivered to such survivor to secure the payment of the aforesaid obligation; and such obligation shall be filed with the clerk and recorded in the minutes of the court; and any creditor of said common property may sue in his own name on such obligation, and shall have judgment thereon for one-half of such debt as he may establish, and for the other half he shall be entitled to be paid by the executor or administrator of the deceased. [Id.]

Art. 3559. [2186] [2131] Common property shall be held by executor, etc., until, etc.—Until any such partition of common property is applied for and made as herein provided, the executor or administrator of the deceased shall have the right, and it shall be his duty, to recover possession of all such common property and hold the same in trust for the benefit of the creditors and others entitled thereto under the provisions of this title. [Id.]

Right to sue—Effect of judgment.—Executors of an estate had full authority to prosecute a suit for damages to community property regardless of who might be entitled to part of it, and a surviving wife suing as an executrix was bound by the judgment, not only as executrix, but as an individual. San Antonio & A. P. Ry. Co. v. Miller (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 1194.

Art. 3560. [2187] [2132] Joint owners with estate may have partition.—Any person having a joint interest with the estate of a decedent in any property, real or personal, may make application to the county court from which letters testamentary or of administration have been granted on said estate, to have a partition thereof; whereupon the court shall proceed to make a partition of said property between the applicant and the estate of the deceased; and all the rules and regulations contained herein in relation to the partition and distribution of estates shall govern partitions under this article so far as the same are applicable. [Id. p. 123, sec. 112.]

Partnership not included.—The failure to prescribe some procedure by which the interest of third parties in partnership property might be separated from the interest of deceased indicates that the legislature did not understand that partnership business was included in the terms of the law. Altgelt v. Alamo Nat. Bank, 98 T. 252, 83 S. W. 12.

Art. 3561. [2188] [2133] Expenses of partition to be paid by whom.—All expenses incurred in the partition of estates shall be paid by the parties interested in the partition, each party paying in proportion to the share he may receive. The portion of the estate allotted to each distributee shall be liable for his portion of such expenses, and if not paid the court may order execution therefor in the names of the persons entitled thereto. [Id. sec. 111.]

Execution sale of minor's interest.—A sheriff's sale and deed executed in pursuance thereto, under a judgment in partition awarding execution for costs against a minor distributee, vested title in the purchaser of the minor's interest. Laughter v. Seela, 59 T. 177.

Art. 3562. [2189] [2134] Court may appoint another guardian, etc., when.—In any case where the county judge shall appoint a guardian ad litem for minors, or an attorney to represent a distributee who is absent from the state or unknown, under the provisions of this title, if such guardian ad litem, or attorney, shall neglect to attend to the duties of such appointment, the county judge shall appoint others in their places by an order entered on the minutes of the court; and such guardian ad litem and attorney shall be allowed by the county judge a reasonable compensation for their services, to be paid out of the estate of the person they represent, and an order to that effect shall be entered upon the minutes, and if such allowance is not paid an execution may issue therefor in the name of the person entitled thereto. [Id. sec. 110.]

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Executor de son tort.—An heir taking possession of personalty of the ancestor and distributing the same among the heirs held not an executor de son tort. Manchester v. Bursey, 41 C. A. 271, 91 S. W. 817.

Agreements and stipulations.—Where an estate is divided by heirs, so as to give minor heir less than his share, he is not obliged to account for what he received before suing for conversion. Middleton v. Pipkin (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 240.

Where a certificate for lands issued to the administrators of a married volunteer was located in two tracts, the larger of which was appropriated by and sold by his heirs, and the smaller tract appropriated by the surviving wife, and such division was acquiesced in for over 50 years, a finding that the certificate and land were so divided or partitioned was justified. Barrett v. Spence, 28 C. A. 344, 67 S. W. 921.

An executor held not authorized to enter into an oral contract with a beneficiary under the will, whereby the latter agreed to take certain property as his share. Johnson v. Short, 43 C. A. 128, 94 S. W. 1082.

An agreement between an executor and a beneficiary under a will held not a partition of the estate among the devisees. Id.

A consent judgment in a suit by children of a first marriage of a decedent against executors held to finally distribute all the property subject to administration in the state. Parks v. Knox (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 203.

The undivided interest in lands vested in minors by death of their father held not affected by an attempted partition of the lands by their mother, aunt, and grandmother by an exchange of deeds. Schmittou v. Dunham (Civ. App.) 142 S. W. 941.

Rights of creditors of distributees.—Rights of a judgment creditor to recover the interest of his debtor on the distribution of an estate to which the debtor is an heir. Franke v. Lone Star Brewing Co., 17 C. A. 9, 42 S. W. 861.

A judgment creditor, seeking to garnish money belonging to the debtor as heir, must allege and prove that there is no administration on the estate and that it is unnecessary. Trueheart v. Savings & Loan Co. (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1003.

Where a judgment creditor sought to garnish money belonging to the debtor as heir, evidence that the ancestor owed no debts at the time of his death held not sufficient to sustain a judgment for the creditor. Id.

Conveyance by heirs.—A conveyance by the heirs of an estate pending administration vests in the purchaser whatever interest is left at the close of the administration. Rutherford v. Stamper, 60 T. 447.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

FINAL SETTLEMENT, ETC.

[See Art. 3241.]

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes on the subject in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 3563. [2190] [2135] Duty of executor, etc., to present account for final settlement, when.—When all the debts known to exist of every kind against the estate of a deceased person have been paid, or when they have been paid so far as the assets of the estate in the hands of the executor or administrator will permit, it shall be the duty of the executor or administrator of such estate to present to the court his account for final settlement of such estate verified by affidavit. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 117, sec. 95.]

Art. 3564. [2191] [2136] What the account shall show.—Such accounts shall show:

1. The property that has come into the hands of such executor or administrator belonging to the estate.
2. The disposition that has been made of any such property.
3. The debts that have been paid.
4. The debts and expenses, if any, still owing by the estate.
5. The property of the estate, if any, still remaining on hand.
6. The persons entitled to receive any portion of such estate, and their residence, if known, and whether adults or minors, and if minors, the names of their guardians.
7. Any advancements or payments that may have been made by the executor or administrator from such estate to any such person.
8. Said account shall be accompanied by proper vouchers in support of each item thereof, and such account and vouchers shall be filed with the clerk, either in term time or in vacation.

Account.—An administrator's account, filed and allowed, held an intermediate, and not a final, account. Thomas v. Hawpe, 35 C. A. 311, 80 S. W. 129.

—— Credits.—Where a sum with which it is sought to charge executors, if received at all, was received in the manner found by the court, a contention that the court erred in reference to such sum is without merit. Kearney v. Nicholson (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 361.

Where an administrator by mistake charged himself with items which he did not owe, the court should correct the mistake on the settlement of the account. James v. Craighead (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 241.

Where a special administrator was directed to sell certain property and deposit the money in court, and he deposited such money with the county judge, instead of with the clerk, he could not receive credit in his account therefor. Id.

A special administrator, directed to continue the management of a farm belonging to the estate, held entitled to certain credits on his account. Id.

Art. 3565. [2192] [2137] What shall be sufficient under the preceding article.—It shall be sufficient, under the preceding article, to refer to the inventory without giving each item in detail; also to refer to and adopt report of sales, exhibits and accounts of the executor or administrator, including vouchers which had previously been approved and filed according to law, without re-stating the items thereof.

Art. 3566. [2193] [2138] Executor, etc., may be cited to present such account.—Should the executor or administrator neglect to present such account, it shall be the duty of the county judge, either of his own motion or upon the complaint of any person interested in the estate, to cause such executor or administrator to be cited to present such account within a time specified in such citation. [Id.]

After administration is closed, court has no jurisdiction.—After an administrator has filed his final exhibit and report of his administration, which is approved, and the estate is partitioned among those entitled, after being withdrawn from administration, no power exists in the probate court to require the administrator to file an additional inventory, and an order requiring this is void. If the administrator is indebted to the heirs after such final report and close of the administration, and for assets not formerly reported or not accounted for by him, their remedy is by direct proceeding against him. Davis v. Harwood, 70 T. 71, 8 S. W. 58.

Any person interested may apply.—The executor can be compelled to make final settlement by the (probate) court upon the application of any person interested in the estate. The district court cannot take such jurisdiction when the probate court is open and qualified to act. McCorkle v. McCorkle, 25 C. A. 149, 60 S. W. 435.

Effect of delay.—Mere lapse of time without action by the court in an administration will not relieve the administrator from being called to account in the probate court. Main v. Brown, 72 T. 505, 10 S. W. 571, 13 Am. St. Rep. 823.

Art. 3567. [2194] [2139] Citation shall issue.—Upon the presentation of an account for final settlement, it shall be the duty of the clerk to issue a citation, which shall state the presentation of said account, the term of the court when it will be acted on, and shall require all persons interested to appear and contest the same if they see proper. [Id.]

Art. 3568. [2195] [2140] Service and return of citation.—Such citation shall be published for at least twenty days in a newspaper printed in the county, if there be one, if not then by posting such notice at the court house and at two other public places in the county, not in the same town or city, for at least twenty days. When the citation has been published, the affidavit of the publisher or printer attached to a copy thereof, that the same has been published for at least twenty days, shall accompany the return of the officer who executes such citation. When the citation has been posted, the original citation, with the return of the officer posting the same indorsed thereon or attached thereto, shall be filed.

Art. 3569. [2196] [2141] County judge may order other notice to be given.—In addition to the citation required in the two preceding articles, the county judge may order such other notice to be given as he shall deem expedient, by an order entered upon the minutes of the court. [Id.]

Art. 3570. [2197] [2142] Action of court upon account.—At the term of court named in such citation, or at some subsequent term to which the same has been continued, upon return being made that citation has been served in the manner required, it shall be the duty of the court to examine said account and the vouchers accompanying the same, and after hearing all exceptions and objections thereto, and the evidence that may be offered in support of or against such account, to re-state said account, if necessary, and audit and settle the same. [Id.]

Duty of court.—The only matter to be determined is the correctness of the final account of the executor and if not correct to restate it and to prove and settle the same. Cobb v. Speers (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 666.

When a final account of an estate is filed, it is the duty of the court to "audit and settle" the same. Where the court does not do this, but approves the account and orders it of record, the action shows that the court did not consider and adjudicate the account as a final account, and it is not a final account so as to bar further inquiry into matters not set out in the account and therein specified. Thomas v. Hawpe, 35 C. A. 311, 80 S. W. 129, 131.

Legality of claim may be contested.—The legality of the payment of a claim may be contested by one interested in the estate on final settlement, where previous reports and exhibits did not show that the estate was insolvent. Walker v. Kerr, 7 C. A. 498, 27 S. W. 299.

Opening account.—The approval of the annual exhibits by the probate judge does not prevent a re-examination of the administrator's account. McShan v. Lewis, 33 C. A. 253, 76 S. W. 616.

The allowance of an administrator's final account is not a bar to further inquiry as to matters omitted therefrom, either by accident or fraud. Thomas v. Hawpe, 35 C. A. 311, 80 S. W. 129.

Evidence.—In settling the account of an administrator, it is not error to exclude evidence as to disbursements which do not appear on his account. James v. Craighead (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 241.

Art. 3571. [2198] [2143] Partition of estate on hand shall be made.—Upon a settlement of an estate, if there is any of the estate remaining in the hands of the executor and administrator, and the heirs, devisees or legatees of the estate, or their assignee, or either of them, are present or represented in court, it shall be the duty of the county judge to order a partition and distribution of the estate to be made among them, upon satisfactory proof being made that they are entitled to receive it. [Id.]

Duty of court to order distribution.—If the estate has been fully settled it is the duty of the court to order a partition and distribution of such estate remaining in the hands of the executor among the persons entitled to receive the same. If the executor refuse to pay over to a legatee, that part of the estate set apart to him, suit can be instituted by the legatee on the bond of the executor. Cobb v. Speers (Civ. App.) 49 S. W. 666.

Upon certiorari restatement may be ordered.—See Title 21.

Art. 3572. [2199] [2144] Executor, etc., shall be discharged, when.—If, upon such settlement, there be none of the estate remaining in the hands of the executor or administrator, he shall be discharged from his trust by an order of the court entered upon the minutes, and such order shall declare said estate closed. [Id.]

Art. 3573. [2200] [2145] Order for discharge of executor, etc., when, etc.—Whenever in any case the executor or administrator has fully administered the estate in accordance with the provisions of this title, and in accordance with the order of the court, and has filed proper vouchers, it shall be the duty of the court to enter upon the minutes an order discharging said executor or administrator from his trust and declaring said estate to be closed.

In general.—An order of probate court held to show conclusively that the estate had been fully administered and the administratrix discharged. Long v. Wooters, 18 C. A. 35, 45 S. W. 165.

In the absence of an affirmative finding that an executor charged with a personal trust was no longer able to act, and that his successor appointed in the will would not act, a decree by the district court discharging the executor held error. Wells v. Houston (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 233.

Heirs of a deceased person cannot object to discharge of an administrator on ground that he did not sell all of decedent's real estate to pay indebtedness due himself, since the title vests in the heirs on closing of estate. De Berry v. Wootters (Civ. App.) 57 S. W. 885.

An administrator held to have recognized the administration as still pending by the filing of a supplemental account after his alleged final account had been allowed. Thomas v. Hawpe, 35 C. A. 311, 80 S. W. 129.

Operation and effect of discharge.—After the close of administration the probate court does not have jurisdiction of a proceeding to set aside sales of real estate on account of fraud in the proceedings. Nicholson v. Harvey (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 458; Timmins v. Bonner, 58 T. 559.

After an estate has been settled and the administratrix discharged, jurisdiction of the probate court is exhausted, and an action for improper administration cannot be brought therein. Long v. Wooters, 18 C. A. 35, 45 S. W. 165.

An administrator, having been discharged, except as to two claims exclusive of the estate's interest in a trust fund, held not entitled to have such interest paid to him for distribution. Routledge v. Elmendorf, 54 C. A. 174, 116 S. W. 156.

Effect of appeal.—See Chapter 32.

Order not subject to collateral attack.—An order of the county court discharging an administrator de bonis non, and closing the estate, held not subject to collateral attack for error in granting the same without proof of service of citations and before all the debts and expenses had been paid. Wallace v. Turner (Civ. App.) 89 S. W. 432.

DECISIONS RELATING TO SUBJECT IN GENERAL

Private settlement and accounting.—Where bona fide settlement has been had between heirs and administrator, and claims allowed which had not been probated, in action for an accounting, the same claims may be allowed. Hanlon v. Wheeler (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 821.

Action for accounting.—In action by heirs against administrator for an accounting, he may set up a settlement and receipt in full and a copy of his final account. Hanlon v. Wheeler (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 821.

In an action to require an executor to account for notes executed by him to his decedent, held that the question of value of the notes was immaterial, and the court did not err in assuming them to be worth face value. Crawford v. Hord, 40 C. A. 352, 89 S. W. 1097.

Laches of creditors.—Where creditors of an alleged insolvent estate acquiesced for 25 years in the settlement thereof by the administrator, and did not intervene in a suit by heirs to recover funds not included in the administrator's accounts, a judgment directing payment thereof to the heirs held proper. Thomas v. Hawpe, 35 C. A. 311, 80 S. W. 129.

Trustee.—That a trustee omitted from an account rendered an advancement of money to purchase land for his cestui que trust, whether by mistake or otherwise, did not preclude him from credit in a subsequent accounting, for the amount so advanced. Watson v. Dodson (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 329.

Where a trustee rendered an account to his cestui que trust, an instruction that he would not be allowed any payment or credit not shown on the statement, unless omitted by mutual mistake, was erroneous. Id.

It was error to refuse to charge that if the cestui que trust had received from the trustee enough to pay for her share in the estate of her deceased husband, the jury should find for defendant. Id.

Such statement held not to be construed as stating the balance of the account, nor to preclude the trustee from claiming a credit for payment not shown therein. Id.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

PAYMENT OF ESTATES INTO THE TREASURY

Article 3574. [2201] [2146] If distributee does not demand his portion in six months after partition, same shall be paid to state treasurer.—If any person entitled to a portion of an estate, except a minor who resides in this state and has no guardian, shall not demand the portion to which he is entitled from the executor or administrator within six months after an order approving the report of commissioners of partition, the county judge, by an order entered upon the minutes, shall require the executor or administrator to pay so much of said portion as may be in money to the state treasurer; and such portion as may be in other property he shall order the executor or administrator to sell on such terms as the court may think best, and, when the proceeds of such sale are collected, he shall order the same to be paid to the treasurer of the state, in all such cases allowing to the executor or administrator reasonable compensation for his services. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 124, sec. 114.]

Art. 3575. [2202] [2147] When those entitled to estate do not appear and claim, shall be paid to state treasurer.—Upon the settlement of the final account of any executor or administrator, if the heirs, devisees or legatees of the estate, or assignees, or any of them, do not appear or are not represented in the court, and there are any funds of such estate remaining in the hands of the executor or administrator, it shall be the duty of the county judge to enter an order upon the minutes requiring such executor or administrator to pay such funds to the treasurer of the state. [Id. sec. 96.]

Art. 3576. [2203] [2148] Property uncalled for shall be sold, etc.—If in such case there shall be any property of the estate that has not been sold, or any debts due the estate that may be collected, it shall be the duty of the county judge, by an order entered upon the minutes, to require the executor or administrator to sell such property on such terms as the county judge may think best, and to collect such debts and to pay the proceeds of such sale and amount collected of such debts to the state treasurer as soon as received, in all such cases allowing to the executor or administrator reasonable compensation for his services. [Id. p. 118, sec. 96.]

Art. 3577. [2204] [2149] Executor, etc., shall make report, etc.—The executor or administrator, while he has any of such estate under his control, shall from time to time, as he receives money, report the same to the court in writing under oath, and, should he neglect to report to the court the condition of the estate at reasonable periods of time, it shall be the duty of the court to cause him to be cited to appear and make such report either in term time or in vacation, and the court shall thereupon make such order as the circumstances of the case may require.

Art. 3578. [2205] [2150] While the property remains under control of executor, etc., distributees may have partition.—While such estate, or any portion thereof, remains under the control of the executor or administrator, the heirs, devisees, legatees or their assignees, or any of them, may obtain from the county judge, at a regular term of the court, an order to have the same partitioned and distributed among them, according to their respective interests in the same, upon causing the executor or administrator to be cited, and upon making satisfactory proof of their right to the same. [Id.]

Art. 3579. [2206] [2151] Certified copy of order for payment to treasurer shall be sent by the clerk to treasurer.—Whenever an order shall be made by the county judge for an executor or administrator to pay over any funds to the treasurer of the state, under the provisions of this chapter, it shall be the duty of the clerk of the court, in which such order may be made, to transmit to said treasurer, by mail, a certified copy of such order within thirty days after said order shall have been made. [Id. p. 118, sec. 97.]

Art. 3580. [2207] [2152] Clerk shall take certificate of postmaster, etc.—Whenever the clerk mails such copy, he shall take from the postmaster with whom it is mailed a certificate stating that such certified copy was mailed in his office, directed to the treasurer of the state, at the seat of government, and the date when it was mailed, which certificate shall be recorded in the minutes of the court. [Id.]

Art. 3581. [2208] [2153] Penalty for neglect of such duty.—Any clerk who shall neglect to transmit a certified copy of such order within the time prescribed, and to take such certificate and have it so recorded, as required in the preceding article, shall be liable in a penalty of one hundred dollars, to be recovered by an action in the name of the state, before any court of the county having jurisdiction of the amount, on the information of any citizen of the county, one-half of which penalty shall be paid to the informer and the other half to the state. [Id.]

Art. 3582. [2209] [2154] Executor, etc., shall take receipt of treasurer, etc.—Whenever an executor or administrator shall pay over to the treasurer of the state any funds of the estate he represents, under the provisions of this chapter, he shall take from such treasurer a receipt for such payment, with his official seal attached, and file the same with the clerk of the court ordering such payment; and such receipt shall be recorded on the minutes of such court, and a certified copy of the same, or of such record, shall be evidence of such payment. [Id. p. 119, sec. 98.]

Art. 3583. [2210] [2155] Distributees may recover funds paid into the treasury.—Whenever any funds of an estate shall have been paid to the treasurer of the state, under the provisions of this chapter, any heir, devisee or legatee of such estate, or their assignees, or any of them, may recover the portion of such funds to which he or they would have been entitled, as if the same had not been so paid to the treasurer. [Id. sec. 99.]

Art. 3584. [2211] [2156] Mode of recovery.—In such case, the person claiming such funds, or any portion thereof, shall institute his suit therefor, by petition filed in the county court of the county in which the estate was administered, against the treasurer of the state, setting forth the petitioner's right to such funds, and the amount claimed by him. [Id.]

Constitutionality.—An act providing for a change of venue of a pending suit under this article is constitutional. Treasurer v. Wygall, 46 T. 447.

County court has exclusive jurisdiction.—The county court where an administration is pending upon an estate has exclusive jurisdiction to try a suit, no matter what the amount, for unclaimed funds of the decedent paid to the state treasurer. Dodson v. Wortham, 18 C. A. 666, 45 S. W. 858.

Art. 3585. [2212] [2157] Citation to county or district attorney.—Upon the filing of such petition, the clerk shall issue a citation for the county attorney of the county, or the district attorney of the district, to appear and represent the interest of the state in such suit, and it shall be the duty of such county or district attorney to do so.

Art. 3586. [2213] [2158] Proceedings in suit to recover funds.—The proceedings in such suit shall be governed by the same rules as are provided for civil suits in the county court; and, should the plaintiff establish his right to the funds claimed, he shall have a judgment therefor, which shall specify the amount to which he is entitled; and a certified copy of such judgment shall be sufficient authority for the treasurer to pay the same.

Art. 3587. [2214] [2159] Costs shall be paid by plaintiff.—The costs of any such suit shall in all cases be adjudged against the plaintiff, and he may be required, as in other cases, to secure the costs. [Id.]

Art. 3588. [2215] [2160] Penalty when executor, etc., fails to pay funds to treasurer.—Whenever any executor or administrator shall fail to pay to the treasurer of the state any funds of the estate that he represents which he has been ordered by the county judge so to pay, within three months after such order has been made, such executor or administrator shall be liable to pay out of his own estate to the state treasurer damages thereon at the rate of five per cent per month for each month he may neglect to make such payment after the three months from such order. [Id. sec. 100.]

Art. 3589. [2216] [2161] Treasurer may apply to county court to enforce payment, and duty of court in such case.—The treasurer of the state shall have the right in the name of the state to apply to the court in which the order for payment was made, by application in writing, to enforce the payment of such funds, together with the payment of any damages that may have accrued under the provisions of the preceding article; and it shall be the duty of the court to enforce such payment in like manner as other orders of payment are required to be enforced. [Id.]

Art. 3590. [2217] [2162] Treasurer may also sue upon bond.—The treasurer shall also have the right to institute suit in the name of the state against such executor or administrator and the sureties on his bond for the recovery of the funds so ordered to be paid and damages, if any have accrued, which suit may be instituted in any court of competent jurisdiction in the county where the order of payment was made. [Id.]

Art. 3591. [2218] [2163] Duty of county or district attorney to represent state.—It shall be the duty of the county or district attorney, as the case may be, to attend to and represent the interests of the state in all matters arising under any of the provisions of this chapter, and for which services he shall receive such compensation as may be provided by law.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

ADMINISTRATION OF COMMUNITY PROPERTY

Article 3592. [2219] [2164] Community property liable for community debts, etc.—The community property of the husband and wife, except such as is exempt from forced sale, shall be liable for all the debts contracted during marriage. And, in the settlement of such community estates, it shall be the duty of the survivor, executor or administrator to keep a separate and distinct account of all the community debts allowed or paid in the settlement of such estates. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 124, sec. 115.]

Cited, Simpson v. Gregg, 1 U. C. 380; Drought v. Story (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 361.

1. Rights of survivor in general.—Either the husband or the wife, the survivor of the community, may administer the estate free of control by the county court and as an independent executor. Woodley v. Adams, 55 T. 530; Carter v. Conner, 60 T. 59, 60; Evans v. Taylor, 60 T. 425; Huppman v. Schmidt, 65 T. 585; Frank v. De Lopez, 2 C. A. 245, 21 S. W. 279; Osborne & Co. v. Robinson (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 327.

After the death of the wife the husband occupies the relation of surviving partner and has the right to administer the community property for the payment of community debts without interference on part of her legal representatives. Those interested in the wife's estate can restrain him from applying community property to other uses than the payment of community debts. Moody v. Smoot, 78 T. 119, 14 S. W. 285.

On the death of the husband or wife the survivor may manage and control the community estate, may pay community debts, and for that purpose may sell community property, including the homestead and other exempt property. But this power does not exist after the close of an administration. Corzine's Heirs v. Williams, 85 T. 499, 22 S. W. 399. The survivor who pays debts out of his separate property may reimburse himself out of the community property. The payment of a community debt can be enforced by suit and judgment against the survivor, and by the sale of community property by execution under such judgment. The survivor becomes tenant in common with the heirs of the decedent of the community property, and is not responsible to them for its use or hire so long as he does no act preventing the other tenants in common from like occupation and use. The right of occupancy and control of the entire estate by the survivor may be terminated at any time by the grant of administration thereon, or by proceedings for partition and distribution. The heir of the decedent is entitled to recover the interest of the ancestor in the community property as it existed at the time of descent cast, unless it has been sold in payment of community debts, the burden of proof resting upon the party claiming under such sale to show the existence of the facts giving the power to sell, or such an acquiescence in an adverse claim by purchase from the survivor as will support a presumption of authority to sell. Akin v. Jefferson, 65 T. 137; Ashe v. Yungst, 65 T. 635; Frank v. De Lopez, 2 C. A. 245, 21 S. W. 279; Fagan v. McWhirter, 71 T. 567, 9 S. W. 677; Moody v. Smoot, 78 T. 119, 14 S. W. 285; James v. Turner, 78 T. 241, 14 S. W. 574; Watts v. Miller, 76 T. 13, 13 S. W. 16. See Zwerneman v. Von Rosenberg, 76 T. 522, 13 S. W. 485; Leatherwood v. Arnold, 66 T. 414, 1 S. W. 173; Davis v. McCartney, 64 T. 584; Sanger v. Moody's Heirs, 60 T. 96; Carter v. Conner, 60 T. 52; Hollingsworth v. Davis, 62 T. 438; Porter v. Chronister, 58 T. 53; Hair v. Wood, 58 T. 777; Wilson v. Helms, 59 T. 680; Pressley's Heirs v. Robinson, 57 T. 453; Watkins v. Hall, 57 T. 1; Veramendi v. Hutchins, 56 T. 414; Woodley v. Adams, 55 T. 530; Johnson v. Harrison, 48 T. 257; Wenar v. Stenzel, 48 T. 484; Littleton v. Giddings, 47 T. 109; Magee v. Rice, 37 T. 500; Walker v. Howard, 34 T. 478; Wright v. McGinty, 37 T. 733; Hill v. Parker, 36 T. 650; Burleson v. Burleson, 28 T. 418; Tucker v. Brackett, 28 T. 336; Good v. Combs, 28 T. 50; Allison v. Shilling, 27 T. 454, 86 Am. Dec. 622; Mitchell v. Marr, 26 T. 329; Brewer v. Wall, 23 T. 585, 76 Am. Dec. 76; Thompson v. Craggs, 24 T. 582; Primm v. Barton, 18 T. 227; Duncan v. Rawls, 16 T. 478; Stramler v. Coe, 15 T. 211; Jones' Adm'r v. Jones, 15 T. 143; Robinson v. McDonald's Widow & Heirs, 11 T. 385, 62 Am. Dec. 480; Kirkland v. Little, 41 T. 456; Dickerson v. Abernathy, 1 U. C. 107.

As to the power of the husband over community property after the death of the wife under articles 4642, 4652, Paschal's Digest, see Withrow v. Adams, 4 C. A. 438, 23 S. W. 437.

The survivor of the community may apply community money to payment of community debts within a reasonable time. Albrecht v. Albrecht (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 1076.

Where a man and a woman live together as husband and wife and acquire personal property, on the death of the husband the woman held entitled to one-half of the personal property accumulated by their united labor. Chapman v. Chapman, 16 C. A. 382, 41 S. W. 533.

On the death of the wife the husband has the right to administer the community property for the payment of community debts, without any supervision of the probate court. Levy v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 205.

The survivor has the same control over the community property as if he or she qualified as survivor. Wiseman v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 145.

On the death of the husband the wife gets one-half of the community estate and the heirs of the husband the other half subject to community debts. The wife as survivor can dispose of the property or a portion thereof to pay the debts or she can qualify as survivor under the statute and assume exclusive control and management of the property. American Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 52 C. A. 519, 114 S. W. 176.

Testator could not partition by will undivided community property of his first marriage, nor devise his deceased wife's share thereof so as to bind her heirs. Perry v. Rogers, 52 C. A. 594, 114 S. W. 897.

The right to plead the statute is a legal right; and a surviving husband administering community estate, without the aid of the probate court, may not waive the right for the heirs of the deceased wife. Jackson v. Stone (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 960.

2. Effect of abandonment of wife by husband.—The abandonment which invests the wife with authority to act without being joined by her husband while she lives does not carry with it authority to administer the community property after her death and while the husband is living. Cullers v. May, 81 T. 110, 16 S. W. 813.

3. Effect of qualification as administrator of community.—Probate court, issuing letters to executor, held to have no jurisdiction of action by widow to declare certain assets community property. Milam v. Hill, 29 C. A. 573, 69 S. W. 447.

Debts incurred by surviving wife, after qualifying as administrator of the community property, held not a lien on the whole estate. Faris v. Simpson, 30 C. A. 103, 69 S. W. 1029.

A survivor in a community, having filed his bond, inventory, and appraisement, and the same having been approved, has no authority to procure a decree of the county court settling the same. Cheek v. Hart (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 775.

4. Title vesting in survivor.—Where there was no evidence that an owner had any children entitled to share with him in the community property on the death of his wife, it could not be urged that he owned only a half interest, so that his mortgage only incumbered the property to that extent. Melton v. Beasley, 56 C. A. 537, 121 S. W. 574.

Where the survivor holds the community estate, and does no act in repudiation of the interests of the heirs of the deceased spouse, the holding is as a tenant in common. Wingo v. Rudder, 103 T. 150, 124 S. W. 899.

On the death of the wife, the community estate becomes the property of the survivor and of the children, subject to such title as vests in the survivor for the purpose of closing the business of the community. Wiener v. Zweib (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 699.

A surviving husband held a life tenant of his deceased wife's share in the community property. Richmond v. Sims (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1142.

5. Subsequent marriages.—See Art. 3611.

The right of one in her deceased mother's community held not affected by inventory of her father's estate prepared by his second wife. McCord v. Holloman (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 114.

A second community cannot acquire an interest in land of which the wife is a tenant for life as survivor of the first community, or create a charge against it by placing improvements thereon. Oar v. Davis (Civ. App.) 135 S. W. 710.

A charge against a community estate in favor of community created by remarriage of survivor held proper to be considered in partition by reversioners. Richmond v. Sims (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1142.

A widow held chargeable with rents from community property to which the children by a former marriage were entitled as reversioners. Id.

In partition of community property by children of a first marriage as reversioners, the homestead and improvements should be set apart to surviving widow and children. Id.

6. Sale and conveyance of property.—The survivor of the community has power to sell community property to pay debts or to reimburse for sums paid on such debts out of his or her separate estate. Jones' Adm'r v. Jones, 15 T. 143; Primm v. Barton, 18 T. 222; Good v. Coombs, 28 T. 51; Dawson v. Holt, 44 T. 174; Wenar v. Stenzel, 48 T. 488; Johnson v. Harrison, 48 T. 257; Veramendi v. Hutchins, 48 T. 531; Sanger v. Heirs of Moody, 60 T. 97; Wilson v. Helms, 59 T. 680; Ashe v. Yungst, 65 T. 631; Watts v. Miller, 76 T. 13, 13 S. W. 16. This power was not withdrawn by the act of 1856. Dawson v. Holt, 44 T. 178; Lumpkin v. Murrell, 46 T. 52; Sanger v. Moody's Heirs, 60 T. 98. The survivor who qualified under that act had the power to sell the community homestead, and such right was not affected by the fact that the estate was insolvent. Johnson v. Taylor, 43 T. 122; Dawson v. Holt, 44 T. 174; Cordier v. Cage, 44 T. 535; Watkins v. Hall, 57 T. 1; Shannon v. Gray, 59 T. 252.

The survivor of a marital relation has authority, without administration on the estate of the deceased spouse in any of the statutory modes to sell community property to pay community debts contracted during the marriage. The purchaser of community property under such circumstances is not bound to see that the purchase money is applied to the payment of the community debts. It is essential, however, to the protection of the purchaser that the consideration paid be not grossly inadequate, that there be no collusion or fraud to which he is a party, and that they have no knowledge of any intention to misapply the proceeds. Sanger v. Heirs of Moody, 60 T. 96; Walker v. Abercrombie, 61 T. 69; Moody v. Butler, 63 T. 210; Ashe v. Yungst, 65 T. 631. And the same power exists to sell a community homestead, and is not affected by the fact that the estate is insolvent. Ashe v. Yungst, 65 T. 631; Johnson v. Taylor, 43 T. 121; Tadlock v. Eccles, 20 T. 782, 73 Am. Dec. 213; Brewer v. Wall, 23 T. 585, 76 Am. Dec. 76; Grothaus v. De Lopez, 57 T. 670; Shannon v. Gray, 59 T. 252. The survivor of a community can sell community property to reimburse her for separate means used in the discharge of a community debt. Wilson v. Helms, 59 T. 680; Burleson v. Burleson, 28 T. 383; Johnson v. Harrison, 48 T. 257; Leatherwood v. Arnold, 66 T. 414, 1 S. W. 173.

The surviving husband or wife may sell community property for the payment of community debts, and the purchaser is not required to see that the proceeds are properly applied. Sanger v. Moody's Heirs, 60 T. 96; Ashe v. Yungst, 65 T. 631; Fagan v. McWhirter, 71 T. 567, 19 S. W. 677; Watts v. Miller, 76 T. 13, 13 S. W. 16; Cage v. Tucker's Heirs, 14 C. A. 316, 37 S. W. 180.

As to the conveyance of community property by the husband after the death of his wife, see Davis v. Harmon, 29 S. W. 492, 9 C. A. 356; McBride v. Moore (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 450.

A surviving husband or wife may convey community property for the payment of community debts without regard to its being exempt. Nelms v. Nagle (Civ. App.) 35 S. W. 60.

Where, at the wife's death, a community debt on account exceeded the value of the community property, and afterwards the husband continued the account, and made payments thereon that reduced it to less than the value of said property, but subsequently the account was increased to exceed that value, the husband might convey the property in payment of the account. Burkitt v. Key (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 231.

Where community land had a community debt against it, held that the husband might sell it, on the wife's death, to extinguish the debt; there being no other community estate. McDaniel v. Harley (Civ. App.) 42 S. W. 323.

A sale of community lands by a surviving wife to pay community debts concludes the right of a minor child. Wolf v. Gibbons (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 238.

A surviving wife is not authorized to sell the community real estate of her deceased husband except to pay community debts. McAnulty v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 670.

Repudiation by husband and wife of reciprocal obligations held not to affect the validity of the husband's deed after the wife's death to community property. Dever v. Selz, 39 C. A. 558, 87 S. W. 891.

Surviving husband as survivor of community may adjust community debts by conveyance of community property. Id.

A surviving husband has power to sell community property to pay community debts, though they are not due at the time of the sale. Rippy v. Harlow, 46 C. A. 52, 101 S. W. 851.

On the death of a husband, the wife may, in the absence of fraud, discharge an equitable incumbrance on community property by a conveyance thereof. Henry v. Vaughan, 46 C. A. 531, 103 S. W. 192.

Evidence examined, and held insufficient to show that the survivor of a community estate acted fraudulentiy in selling property of the estate to pay community debts. Morris v. Morris, 47 C. A. 244, 105 S. W. 242.

A widow held to have no power to sell community property to pay community debts. Matula v. Freytag, 101 T. 357, 107 S. W. 536.

The surviving wife held authorized to dispose of community property to settle debts. Hames v. Stroud, 51 C. A. 562, 112 S. W. 775.

Power of surviving husband to sell community property for payment of community debts defined. Davis v. Carter, 55 C. A. 423, 119 S. W. 724.

A wife as survivor of the community has no power to transfer community property by deed for the purpose of carrying out an unenforceable contract between her deceased husband and another. Broocks v. Payne (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 463.

A fact held to show that a sale by a surviving husband of community real estate was made to pay community debts. Jones v. Harris (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 69.

A surviving husband may in good faith sell community real estate to pay community debts without administration of the estate. Id.

A father cannot sell his children's interest in community property descended to them from their mother. Mitchell v. Schofield (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 254.

The surviving spouse held entitled to sell the community property to pay community debts, especially a debt against the homestead. Horan v. O'Connell (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1048.

A deed by heirs to their mother upon the father's death held not to prevent her from selling community property to pay a community debt. Id.

A community survivor held entitled to pay an indebtedness by sale of community property or appropriation on payment from separate estate. Richmond v. Sims (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1142.

The surviving spouse may without administration sell community property to pay community debts, and the purchaser need not see to the application of the purchase money; the consideration not being grossly inadequate and there being no collusion or fraud, Morse v. Nibbs (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 766.

Where land conveyed to a wife in consideration of the payment of a note became community property, the note was a community debt, and the husband surviving the wife could convey the land in settlement thereof. Cockburn v. Cherry (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 161.

A purchaser of community property, sold by the surviving spouse, need only show that there are community debts, not being required to show that the community debts were sufficient to necessitate the sale; and the burden is on one disputing the purchaser's title to show that fact. Norwood v. King (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 366.

The authority of the surviving spouse to sell the interest of the deceased spouse in the community property to pay community debts is restricted to the payment of enforceable community debts. Jackson v. Stone (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 960.

7. —— Homestead.—See Art. 3426.

8. —— Validity of conveyance.—That deed of surviving husband of community property to pay community debts contained untrue recitals as to his authority as guardian to make the sale held not to affect the validity of the deed for the purpose intended. Rippy v. Harlow, 46 C. A. 52, 101 S. W. 851.

The release of a debt barred by limitations is a sufficient consideration for the conveyance by a surviving husband of his interest in the community property, but passes no title to the half interest in the land inherited by the children of the deceased wife. Jackson v. Stone (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 960.

9. —— Conveyances to children.—A conveyance by a surviving husband to his child in discharge of his indebtedness accruing from the conversion of its interest in community property is not fraudulent. Randolph v. Junker, 1 C. A. 517, 21 S. W. 551.

Conveyance by surviving wife to daughter of portion of community estate in satisfaction of daughter's interest held to have vested title. McAnulty v. Ellison (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 670.

Prima facie a deed from a father to a son based on a nominal consideration and conveying an interest in community lands is in discharge in whole or in part of the son's community claim. Locust v. Randle, 46 C. A. 544, 102 S. W. 946.

A conveyance, made by one after the death of his wife to an heir of the community property, of property which belonged to him separately, and made without reference to the community estate, did not extinguish the heir's interest; the rule that a conveyance by the survivor of the community to an heir of property approximating in value the interest of the heir, and made and accepted in settlement of the heir's interest, will extinguish the heir's claim in the remaining property, having no application. Burnham v. Hardy Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 330.

10. —— Joinder or acquiescence of children in conveyance.—Where a deed by the survivor of a community contained an indorsement by which the heir of the wife's interest quitclaimed to the grantee, the deed and the indorsement should be construed as the joint deed of the parties; the vendor's lien reserved being applicable to the entire premises. Evans v. Ashe, 50 C. A. 54, 108 S. W. 398, 1190.

The fact that the probate of a will attempting to dispose of community property was resisted by the heirs of testator's deceased wife, who asserted title adverse to the will, held not to make such heirs parties to subsequent probate proceedings setting the property aside for the use of the devisees named in the will. Clements v. Maury, 50 C. A. 158, 110 S. W. 185.

A deed made by heirs to their mother upon the death of their father, conveying to her a life estate for the purpose of enabling her to take possession without the aid of the court and to prevent partition during her lifetime, did not prevent her from selling community property to pay community debts. Horan v. O'Connell (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1048.

11. —— Construction and operation of conveyance in general.—A deed of community property, signed only by the survivor of the community, and reserving a vendor's lien, held not a mere quitclaim, but a conveyance of the land. Evans v. Ashe, 50 C. A. 54, 108 S. W. 398, 1190.

A conveyance by heirs to their agent held to convey a half interest in community property owned by their deceased father and mother. Merrill v. Bradley, 102 T. 481, 119 S. W. 297.

12. —— Operation as partition.—Conveyances by a father to his children in severalty of lands owned by him and wife as community property, made after the wife's death, held as between them as heirs of the wife, a partition of her estate. White v. Simonton (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1073.

As between a surviving husband, who sells a part of the community property, and his children, who are entitled to the community interest of their mother, a conveyance by him is a partition. Eddy v. Bosley, 34 C. A. 116, 78 S. W. 565.

13. —— Title and interests conveyed.—A deed, made by the surviving husband after the death of his wife, to land which the husband had by parol contract bargained in exchange for other land during the life-time of the wife (each party having entered into possession under the parol contract, and made permanent and valuable improvements), passes title when executed in pursuance of such contract, either to the contracting party or to his heirs at his request. Against the title thus conveyed, the heirs of the deceased wife can enforce no claim of right. Garnett v. Jobe, 70 T. 696, 8 S. W. 505.

When purchaser of community land from husband after death of wife takes it free of the community title. Mangum v. White, 16 C. A. 254, 41 S. W. 80.

A conveyance by a father of land owned by him and his wife as community property, made after the wife's death, held not to devest the child's title to one-half thereof as heir of the wife. White v. Simonton (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 1073.

Sale of community property by the survivor held to convey only the interest which the survivor had as an individual. Eddy v. Bosley, 34 C. A. 116, 78 S. W. 565.

Where land was conveyed to a husband and wife, the deed of the wife, after the husband's death, did not convey the undivided one-half interest which the children inherited. Summerville v. King, 98 T. 332, 83 S. W. 680.

A sale by a surviving husband of community real estate held to convey the entire community interest of the surviving husband and the deceased wife. Jones v. Harris (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 69.

A conveyance by a surviving spouse of community property in payment of a debt not shown to be community debt, does not pass title to the one-half interest inherited by the children of the deceased spouse. Jackson v. Stone (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 960.

A conveyance by a surviving husband of community property in consideration of a debt barred by limitations passes his interest, but passes no title to the half interest in the land inherited by the children of the deceased wife. Id.

14. —— Rights and liabilities of purchasers in general.—Where a surviving husband sells a league and labor of land, the vendee is chargeable, from the size of the grant, with notice of the death of the wife, and the consequent rights of her heirs. Randolph v. Junker, 1 C. A. 517, 21 S. W. 551.

Rights of a purchaser from the surviving wife of land conveyed to the husband, where the latter dies without issue, and there is no administration on his estate. See Sanburn v. Schuler, 22 S. W. 119, 3 C. A. 629.

A purchaser of community property sold by a surviving widow for the payment of subsisting community debts acquires good title, whether a real necessity for the sale exists or not, if the sale is made in good faith and without fraud or collusion. Cage v. Tucker's Heirs, 25 C. A. 48, 60 S. W. 579.

Where, at the death of a wife, there are community debts, the husband may sell the community property, and the purchaser acquires a good title, even if the husband misappropriates the proceeds. Oaks v. West (Civ. App.) 64 S. W. 1033.

Where, on the death of a wife, the husband sells the community property to an innocent purchaser, such purchaser acquires a good title, regardless of the use made by the husband of the purchase money. Id.

Where there are community debts, and the surviving husband sells the community lands, the purchaser is not obliged to see that the proceeds of the sale are applied to the payment. Cruse v. Barclay, 30 C. A. 211, 70 S. W. 358.

A purchaser from a surviving husband, of community real estate to pay debts, held not required to see that the purchase money is appropriated to the payment of such debts. Jones v. Harris (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 69.

The surviving spouse may without administration on the estate of the deceased spouse sell community property to pay community debts, and the purchaser is not bound to see that the purchase money is applied to the payment of such debts, but it is essential to his protection that the consideration paid is not grossly inadequate, that there is no collusion or fraud to which he is a party, and that he has no knowledge of any intention of the survivor to misapply the proceeds. Morse v. Nibbs (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 766.

15. —— Bona fide purchasers.—Property conveyed to the wife by deed, without a recital that it is her separate property, is presumptively community property, and a purchaser under the husband in good faith acquires a valid title. Cooke v. Bremond, 27 T. 457, 86 Am. Dec. 626; Oppenheimer v. Robinson, 27 S. W. 95, 87 T. 174.

Land purchased by the husband was paid for with his separate property. After his death the equitable title conferred upon the widow by statute is presumed to exist whenever the deed of the husband does not on its face show the contrary. A purchaser for value without notice from the surviving wife will acquire a one-half beneficial interest in the land as against the heir of the deceased husband. Kirby v. Moody, 84 T. 201, 19 S. W. 453.

Burden is on holder of community right to show that purchaser from husband after death of wife had notice of such right. Mangum v. White, 16 C. A. 254, 41 S. W. 80.

Purchaser of vendor's lien note, secured by community land sold by husband after wife's death, held charged with constructive notice of rights of heirs of the wife, two of whom were in possession at the time of the transfer of the note. Davidson v. Green, 27 C. A. 394, 65 S. W. 1110.

Purchaser of community property from surviving wife held to be innocent purchaser as to one-half only. Burleson v. Alvis, 28 C. A. 51, 66 S. W. 235.

Where defendants in trespass to try title had bought from a surviving wife with knowledge thereof, they were chargeable with notice that deceased had left children surviving him. Id.

A purchaser of land suing the administrator of a nonresident testator, held not charged with notice that the land was community property, and of the rights of testator's children therein by the recitals of the will. Nelson v. Bridge, 39 C. A. 283, 87 S. W. 885.

Bona fide purchasers claiming through the surviving member of a community held to have acquired title to the entire property as against the heirs of the deceased member of such community. Wallis, Landes & Co. v. Dehart (Civ. App.) 108 S. W. 180.

Where the president of an insurance company obtained stock by fraud, and his wife, as survivor of the community estate, before discovery of the fraud, received new shares and sold them for cash, held that the purchaser took a good title, and only the amount received by her remained subject to make good what the company lost in the transaction. Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland v. Wiseman, 103 T. 286, 124 S. W. 621, 126 S. W. 1109.

A sale by the survivor of the community, in whom the legal title is vested, to a purchaser for value, without notice, actual or constructive, of the equity of the heirs of the deceased member of the community, vests a good title in the purchaser. Ruedas v. O'Shea (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 891.

A purchaser from the survivor of a community without notice of the community takes good title. Mitchell v. Schofield (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 254.

A purchaser of land held innocent as to claims of children of the grantor's former community. Id.

Where the legal owner of land dies, leaving three children and a wife, who remarries and has a child, and after the death of the mother one of the three children of the legal owner dies, a purchaser must take notice of the child of the second marriage, who is an heir to the child who died, and is also charged with notice of the right of such child to share in the equitable interest held by the mother. Woodburn v. Texas Town Lot & Improvement Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 365.

It is immaterial that a surviving husband had sufficient money to pay a community debt, so that the sale of community land was not necessary, if the purchaser thereof had no knowledge of the facts making the sale improper. Norwood v. King (Civ. App.) 155 S. W. 366.

16. —— Termination of power to convey.—The husband had been dead fifteen years when the widow assumed to convey a land certificate, community property, in discharge of an obligation against the common estate. In the meantime she had taken out letters of administration upon the estate, it had been partitioned either in whole or in part, and the administration had been closed. Held: 1. That her power over the community as survivor had ceased. 2. Any presumption which should be indulged by reason of lapse of time as to her power to make a conveyance would be met by the counter-presumption that she had fully administered the estate and had exhausted her power over the community property. 3. The deed of the widow did not affect the rights of the heirs of the husband. Corzine's Heirs v. Williams, 85 T. 499, 22 S. W. 399.

The power of a wife to act as survivor of the community in transferring community property independent of the probate court ceases when she qualifies as administratrix of the estate of her deceased husband. Broocks v. Payne (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 463.

17. —— Avoidance of conveyance.—A wife who, as community survivor, disposed of land in settlement of an incumbrance thereon, held not entitled to recover the land without first offering to pay the amount acknowledged to be due thereon. Hames v. Stroud, 51 C. A. 562, 112 S. W. 775.

18. Legal title in husband.—Where a husband held the legal title of community property, a mortgage thereof by him after the wife's death held void as against the children of the marriage. American Freehold Land Mortg. Co. v. Dulock (Civ. App.) 67 S. W. 172.

Where land is conveyed to a husband, no beneficial interest of the wife appearing upon the face of the deed, her interest by virtue of the marital community is equitable, the entire legal title being in the husband; and upon her death her heirs take no such interest as would defeat the rights of an innocent purchaser from the husband. Woodburn v. Texas Town Lot & Improvement Co. (Civ. App.) 153 S. W. 365.

19. Rights of children.—The child who sues for his share in the community property of a deceased parent is not asserting an equity, but a legal title. Johnson v. Harrison, 48 T. 268; Dickerson v. Abernathy, 1 U. C. 107.

An administration was granted upon the estate of the husband, and the wife died afterwards; a partition was made as of the deceased husband's estate, the existence of the community interest of the wife not being recognized. The heir of the wife was not concluded by the proceedings and judgment from asserting his claim to an interest in the estate inherited from his mother; and a third party who had purchased and was not in privity with him could not set up the judgment in partition as an estoppel against the heir. Caruth v. Grigsby, 57 T. 259; Grigsby v. Caruth, 57 T. 269.

Where the survivor holds the community estate, and does not act in repudiation of the interests of the heirs of the deceased spouse, the holding is as a tenant in common. Wingo v. Rudder, 103 T. 150, 124 S. W. 899.

While the father could have set off gifts made to his children against their interest in the community estate, he could not authorize his executors to do so by disposing of the part of the community estate which would go to the children. Tomlinson v. H. P. Drought & Co. (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 262.

A father cannot sell his children's interest in the community property descended to them from their mother. Mitchell v. Schofield (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 254.

20. —— Rents and profits.—The survivor of a community estate held not liable for rents to the heirs of the deceased spouse. Morris v. Morris, 47 C. A. 244, 105 S. W. 242.

The liability of the survivor of a community to the heirs of the deceased spouse in respect to the rents of the community property is not that of a trustee, but of a tenant in common. Id.

21. Payments to children.—If a claim belonged to the community estate, the payment of a part of the proceeds thereof by the husband after the wife's death to a child, in excess of his interest therein as his mother's heir would prima facie be a pro tanto satisfaction of his interest in other property of the estate. Lynch v. Lynch (Civ. App.) 130 S. W. 461.

A conveyance by survivor of community to an heir of the community estate of property belonging to him separately and made without any reference to the community estate held not to extinguish the interest of the heir. Burnham v. Hardy Oil Co. (Civ. App.) 147 S. W. 330.

22. Lien in favor of children.—The heirs of a deceased wife held entitled to a lien on community lands for moneys appropriated by her husband. Tison v. Gass, 46 C. A. 163, 102 S. W. 751.

23. Contracts of survivor.—A surviving husband cannot by contract bind the interest of the heirs of his deceased wife in the community estate in the absence of facts giving him sole control of the entire estate. Specht v. Collins, 81 T. 213, 16 S. W. 934.

Surviving husband can compromise an outstanding claim to community real estate. Allen v. Bright (Civ. App.) 23 S. W. 712.

The community interest of the wife cannot be charged with debts contracted after her death by the surviving husband. Cochran v. Sonner (Civ. App.) 26 S. W. 521.

24. Conversion by survivor.—Where a husband as community survivor converted the proceeds of the homestead to his own use, the children might recover one-half of the proceeds, with interest from date of sale. Richardson v. Overleese, 17 C. A. 376, 44 S. W. 308.

Use by widow of community property in purchase of land held not a conversion, so as to prevent children claiming benefit of the investment. Worst v. Sgitcovich (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 72.

A sale of a homestead held not to constitute a conversion of community property by a married woman so as to render her liable after her husband's death for a note executed during coverture, for a consideration other than necessaries. J. B. Newton & Sons v. Puente (Civ. App.) 131 S. W. 1161.

25. Suits by or against survivor.—A judgment against a surviving husband in a suit filed after the wife's death for the recovery of the community debt is binding upon the community property, although the heirs of the wife are not made parties to the suit and it is not alleged that the claim is for the community debt. A sale under such judgment passes to the purchaser the right and title which had vested in the community. Carter v. Conner, 60 T. 52; Jones' Adm'r v. Jones, 15 T. 143; Stramler v. Coe, 15 T. 211; Brewer v. Wall, 23 T. 585, 76 Am. Dec. 76; Allison v. Shilling, 27 T. 454, 86 Am. Dec. 622; Tucker v. Brackett, 28 T. 336; Burleson v. Burleson, 28 T. 418; Good v. Coombs, 28 T. 50; Woodley v. Adams, 55 T. 530.

The wife, as survivor of a community estate, without qualifying under the statute, could bring an action in her own name to recover a judgment against which limitation was nearly complete. Walker v. Abercrombie, 61 T. 69.

The surviving wife, without joining the children of the husband, may without administration maintain an action to recover community property or its value. Walker v Abercrombie, 61 T. 69; Chambers v. Ker, 6 C. A. 373, 24 S. W. 1118.

A creditor is entitled to have a judgment obtained against a survivor in community established against the community estate in the hands of a subsequent administrator Hollingsworth v. Dans, 62 T. 438.

A surviving wife may, before administration on the husband's estate, sue on a cause of action accruing to the husband during his life, and which, surviving to the community estate, is subject to administration for the payment of his debts. Western Union Tel. Co. v. Kerr, 23 S. W. 564, 4 C. A. 280.

Community property may be sold under a judgment against the survivor of the community. White v. Waco Bldg. Ass'n (Civ. App.) 31 S. W. 58.

An action will not lie against a surviving widow, who has taken possession of the community property, to recover a debt of her husband, without allegations showing that there was no necessity for an administration. Whitmire v. Farmers' Nat. Bank of Hillsboro (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 512.

26. What are community assets.—A debt evidenced by a note constituting the community property of the payee and his wife does not become a trust fund in the hands of the maker for the payment of debts due from the community estate, on the death of the payee, leaving a wife surviving, but no children, and the existence of debts due from the community estate does not deprive the surviving wife of her right to sue on the note. Graves v. Smith (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 487.

27. Community and separate debts.—A bond executed by a husband as surety for another during his wife's life is a community obligation, which continues after the wife's death. Hinzie v. Robinson, 21 C. A. 9, 50 S. W. 635.

A conditional sale to a married man, though not recorded, held valid between the parties, so that on his death his widow, as survivor of the community, could not appropriate the property without satisfying the seller's lien. Embree-McLean Carriage Co. v. Johnson (Civ. App.) 85 S. W. 1021.

Where notes sued on evidenced a community debt, a judgment for plaintiff was a lien on the community property without an adjudication against the widow. Dashiell v. W. L. Moody & Co., 44 C. A. 87, 97 S. W. 843.

A man, during his first marriage, acquired slaves constituting his separate property. After the death of his second wife, he executed an instrument, disclosing that during his second marriage he was, on a designated date, indebted to his children for the amount of the proceeds of a sale of the slaves, as their guardian, and executed a note to a daughter for the amount of her share, with interest from the designated date, and executed a deed of trust to secure such note, reciting that it was given for the daughter's portion of the slaves. Held, to show that he had given the slaves to his children, and that the obligation evidenced by the note was a community debt created during marriage, and the deed of trust was enforceable against the community property owned by himself and his second wife. Word v. Colley (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 257.

28. Settlement.—The survivor cannot settle his account in the probate court. His remedy is that of an ordinary trustee under the equity powers of a court having jurisdiction of the amount in controversy. Pressler v. Wilke, 84 T. 344, 19 S. W. 436.

29. Insolvency of estate.—Evidence examined, and held to show that a community estate was insolvent at the time of the wife's death. Morris v. Morris, 47 C. A. 244, 105 S. W. 242.

30. Reimbursement of expenditures and adjustment of equities.—See Art. 3612 and Title 101, Chapter 1.

Where a husband improves his separate property with funds of the community estate, the wife or her heirs will be entitled to reimbursement out of his separate property to the extent of their share of the community, and their demand for such reimbursement is in the nature of a charge or an equitable lien on the property so improved. Robinson v. Moore, 1 C. A. 93, 20 S. W. 994.

Where a husband after the death of his wife mixes his separate property with the community estate, he cannot charge the community estate therewith. Robb v. Robb (Civ. App.) 41 S. W. 92.

Grantee of widow's interest in land which was her husband's separate property held not entitled to one-half the value of improvements made thereon with community property. Bullock v. Sprowls (Civ. App.) 54 S. W. 657.

The community estate has an equitable interest in lands purchased by a husband before his marriage, and enhanced by improvements placed thereon by community funds, and if they are set apart to his widow as a homestead, and exchanged by her, the equitable interest should be measured at the time of the exchange. Hillen v. Williams, 25 C. A. 268, 60 S. W. 997.

Surviving husband held entitled to sell the homestead to reimburse himself for the payment of community debts out of his separate funds. Martin v. McAllister, 94 T. 567, 63 S. W. 624.

Where a house which is community property is situated on lots owned by the husband, the wife is entitled to be reimbursed from the heirs to whom the property descends. Gilroy v. Richards, 26 C. A. 355, 63 S. W. 664.

A wife is not entitled to be reimbursed for street improvements, which are not a lien on the property of the husband descending to his heirs, though they were made with community money. Id.

A surviving wife who paid from her separate estate debts of the community held to have had a right to appropriate that much in value of the community estate to reimburse herself. Jennings v. Borton, 44 C. A. 280, 98 S. W. 445.

Wife held entitled, on death of husband, to have community property charged with lien in her favor for repayment of separate money expended by her in improvement of community property. Allen v. Allen (Civ. App.) 105 S. W. 53.

Where a husband after the death of his wife appropriated community property, the heirs of the wife were entitled in partition to a sufficient amount of the father's interest in the land remaining after his death to recompense them for their interest in the other property. Clements v. Maury, 50 C. A. 158, 110 S. W. 185.

The payment by the surviving husband of water rents on the homestead, in the possession of tenants paying him rent, is for his personal benefit, and the community estate is not chargeable therefor. Mattingly v. Kelly (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 483.

31. Administration on death of both spouses.—Administration may be granted on the community estate of husband and wife in one proceeding. Grande v. Herrera, 15 T. 538; Brockenborough v. Melton, 55 T. 502; Stephenson v. Marsalis, 11 C. A. 162, 33 S. W. 383.

The husband and wife having died about the same time, it not appearing which died first, an administration was taken upon the estate of the husband. Held, that there was no necessity for two administrations to pay community debts, and that a sale in an administration upon the estate of the husband would pass the community interest of the wife. Soye v. McCallister, 18 T. 80, 67 Am. Dec. 689; Simmons v. Blanchard, 46 T. 266; Caruth v. Grigsby, 57 T. 259; Carter v. Conner, 60 T. 52.

Where two years have intervened between the date of the mother's death and that of the father, an administration was granted alone upon the estate of the father. The community interest of the mother in property sold under an order of the court did not pass to the purchaser. Moody v. Butler, 63 T. 210.

Administration upon the estate of the husband was had in the life-time of the widow. Her subsequent death does not divest such administration of jurisdiction over community property. Lawson v. Kelley, 82 T. 457, 17 S. W. 717.

Joint administration can be granted on the community estate of the deceased husband and wife. Stephenson v. Marsalis, 11 C. A. 162, 33 S. W. 383.

The administrator of a wife was entitled to the control of her separate property for administration under supervision of a probate court. Lanza v. Roe (Civ. App.) 151 S. W. 571.

32. Presumptions as to character of property.—See Art. 4623.

33. Effect of marriage of widow.—See Art. 3611.

34. Estoppel to assert invalidity.—See Art. 3687, Estoppel.

35. Descent of community property.—See Art. 2469.

36. Testamentary disposition. See notes under Title 135.

Art. 3593. [2220] [2165] When there is no child, administration not required.—Where the husband or wife dies intestate, or becomes insane, having no child or children, and no separate property, the common property passes to the survivor, charged with the debts of the community; and no administration thereon or guardianship of the estate of the insane wife or husband shall be necessary. [Amend. 1893, p. 89. P. D. 5498.]

See Walker v. Walker's Estate (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1145.

Survivor owner of property.—On the death of the wife without children, the community property belongs to the surviving husband, and neither the county court nor the administrator of the wife can exercise any control over it; and it would seem that, in such case, the husband is not required to file an inventory and appraisement under Art. 3595. Wall v. Clark, 19 T. 321.

Where one dies intestate, leaving no children, his surviving wife becomes seised by survivorship of land held as community property, and on her death intestate the land passes by inheritance to her children by former husband. Myrack v. Volentine (Civ. App.) 65 S. W. 674.

The insanity of the wife does not deprive the husband of his control and right of disposition of the community property, but the insanity of the husband would give the sane wife the same right and authority over the community that the law conferred upon husbands generally. The intention of this article is merely to dispense with an administration or guardianship of the community of the insane spouse when there are no children, and such property passes to what the statute terms the "survivor" charged with the debts of the community. Schwartz v. West, 37 C. A. 136, 84 S. W. 284.

Title to community property held to vest in the surviving wife; there being no children living at the time of the husband's death. Ross v. Martin, 104 T. 558, 140 S. W. 432, 141 S. W. 518.

Under this article a wife surviving her husband dying leaving no children is the owner of a note on an open account payable to the husband and constituting community property, so that she may sue thereon without administration. Graves v. Smith (Civ. App.) 140 S. W. 487.

Insanity of husband.—The insanity of the husband does not authorize the wife to sell community property. Cason v. Laney (Civ. App.) 27 S. W. 420.

Suit for community debt—Parties.—It would seem that under this statute a suit to enforce the payment of a community debt could be properly brought directly against the surviving widow of the deceased husband only in the event no child or children survived and the deceased left no separate estate. Whitmire v. Farmers' Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 97 S. W. 513.

Art. 3594. [2221] [2166] Where there is child, survivor holds subject, etc.—Where the wife dies or becomes insane, leaving a surviving husband and child, or children, the husband shall have the exclusive management, control and disposition of the community property in the same manner as during her lifetime, or sanity; and it shall not be necessary that the insane wife shall join in conveyances of such property, or her privy examination and acknowledgment be taken to such conveyances, subject, however, to the provisions of this chapter. [Amend. 1893, p. 89. Id. p. 127, sec. 116.]

In general.—See Simpson v. Gregg, 1 U. C. 380, as to the rights of the survivor of a marital partnership.

Such property as would have been set aside to the widow and child as exempt, or as a yearly allowance, in the administration in the probate court, does not constitute assets of the estate when the administration is by the survivor of the community. Nichols v. Oliver, 64 T. 647; Leatherwood v. Arnold, 66 T. 414, 1 S. W. 173.

Community estate of the surviving wife held subject to administration, so that the title to the wife's one-half passed at administrator's sale. Moody v. Looscan (Civ. App.) 44 S. W. 621.

Where, in partition, plaintiffs introduced a release executed by a husband and as administrator of the community estate of his wife, one of the heirs of the common source of title, whose interest was not otherwise represented by any party to the action, such release indicated that the deceased heir left one or more children, who inherited her interest in her father's estate, because, under this article, a husband could not administer on his wife's community estate unless the wife left a surviving child or children. Melde v. Melde (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 980.

This act, which re-enacts the provisions concerning the community survivor, including the requirement of bonds, and which by section 116 [Art. 3594] formerly provided that where the wife died, the husband surviving, administration was unnecessary, except as to any separate estate of the wife, and the husband continued to have the same power of disposition over the community property which he possessed during the continuance of the marriage, but should return an inventory and to file a bond, etc., was prospective, dealing with procedure as to community estates, where death of one of the parties occurred after the act went into effect, or where one had previously died and no administration had been taken out, and hence did not affect the right of a surviving husband to manage, control, and dispose of such community property nor his administration for which he had qualified by filing an inventory under Act Aug. 26, 1856 (Acts 1856, c. 123), but without giving bond, which rights had been expressly saved by Act June 2, 1873 (Acts 1873, c. 97). Drought v. Story (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 361.

This act, which re-enacted the requirement that a community survivor should give bond, and repealed all laws in conflict therewith, was not inconsistent with or repugnant to Act Aug. 26, 1856 (Acts 1856, c. 123), under which a surviving husband qualified as a community survivor by filing an inventory without giving bond, and thereby became entitled to the right to control and dispose of such community property, and which rights were expressly saved by Act June 2, 1873 (Acts 1873, c. 97), and hence did not affect the rights of such surviving husband, or the continuance of his administration. Id.

Effect of failure of survivor to qualify.—If the community survivor fails to qualify under this statute, the heirs of the decedent are immediately invested by inheritance with the legal title of their ancestor, and may immediately bring suit for partition. The part of the estate allotted to them from the common property would remain charged in equity with its portion of the common debt. And if from their insolvency or other cause there is danger that the property in their possession would escape its proper burden, the court has equitable power to acquire an account, and in its decree protect the rights of the creditor and the survivor. If partition is not demanded the survivor remains in possession of the common property as co-tenant of the heirs, and ordinarily is not liable for the use of the property or the value of its hire. The reasonable use is an incident of his possession as owner in common. After the institution of a suit for partition the survivor becomes liable for the value of the use of the property; and so, if without such demand for partition, he lets the entire estate, he may be held to account to his co-owners for the rent. Akin v. Jefferson, 65 T. 137.

A husband, upon the insanity of his wife and her commitment to an insane asylum, mortgaged and conveyed their community property without filing the application, etc., required by statute. Held, that the conveyance was void as to the interest of the wife for her failure to join. Gibson v. Pierce (Civ. App.) 146 S. W. 983.

Sale and conveyance.—See notes under Art. 3592.

Art. 3595. [2222] [2167] Application for community administration.—The husband shall, within four years after the death of the wife, or her being declared insane, as provided by law, when there is a child, or children, file a written application in the county court of the proper county, stating:

1. The death of his wife, or that she has been declared insane by a court of competent jurisdiction, and the time and place of her death or of such declaration.

2. That she left a child or children, giving the names, sex, residence, and age of each child.

3. That there is a community estate between the deceased or insane wife and himself.

4. Such facts as show the jurisdiction of the court over the estate.

5. Asking for the appointment of appraisers, to appraise such estate. [Id.]

See Walker v. Walker's Estate (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1145.

Time for application.—Under the probate law of 1876, the time within which a surviving husband could qualify as survivor of the community estate was not limited to four years from the death of his wife. Alexander v. Barton (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 71.

If the application of the husband to take the control of the property out of the county court is not made within the four years, the court has no power to grant the same. Williams v. Steele, 101 T. 382, 108 S. W. 155, 157.

This case, distinguished from Nelson v. Bridge, 98 T. 523, 86 S. W. 7, wherein it is held that an administration is not void if the application is made more than four years after the death of the decedent. Id.

Administration not divested on death of wife.—An administration of the estate on the death of the husband is not divested of jurisdiction over the community property by the subsequent death of the wife. Lawson v. Kelley, 82 T. 457, 17 S. W. 717.

Insanity of husband.—See notes under Art. 3593.

Art. 3596. [2223] [2168] Court shall appoint appraisers.—Upon the filing of such application, the county judge shall, without citation, and either in term time or in vacation, by an order entered upon the minutes of the court, appoint appraisers to appraise such estate as in other administrations. [Act 1876, p. 124.]

Art. 3597. [2224] [2169] Inventory, appraisement, and list of indebtedness, sworn to and returned, etc.—It shall be the duty of the surviving husband or wife (of community estates) with the assistance of any two of the appraisers, to make out a full, fair and complete inventory and appraisement of such community estate; and the survivor shall attach thereto a list of all community debts due the estate, and shall also attach thereto a list of all indebtedness due by said community estate to other parties, giving the amount of each debt and the name of the party or parties to whom it is due, and his or their postoffice address; and such inventory, list of claims, and list of indebtedness, of said community estate, shall be sworn to by said survivor; and the inventory, appraisement and list of claims due said community estate shall be sworn to by said appraisers; and said inventory, appraisement, list of claims due said estate, and list of indebtedness due by said estate, shall be returned to the court within twenty days from the date of the order appointing appraisers in like manner as other administrations. [Acts 1876, p. 124. Acts 1905, p. 336.]

Historical.—Gen. Laws 1876, c. 84, which re-enacted the provisions concerning the community survivor, including the requirement of bonds, and which by section 116 [Art. 3594] provided that where the wife died, the husband surviving, administration was unnecessary, except as to any separate estate of the wife, and the husband continued to have the same power of disposition over the community property which he possessed during the continuance of the marriage, but should return an inventory and to file a bond, etc., was prospective, dealing with procedure as to community estates, where death of one of the parties occurred after the act went into effect, or where one had previously died and no administration had been taken out, and hence did not affect the right of a surviving husband to manage, control, and dispose of such community property nor his administration for which he had qualified by filing an inventory under Act Aug. 26, 1856 (Acts 1856, c. 123), but without giving bond, which rights had been expressly saved by Act June 2, 1873 (Acts 1873, c. 97). Drought v. Story (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 361.

Failure of inventory to include all the property—Effect.—The inventory and appraisement are for the protection of the heirs and creditors, but, if they are not full and true, they do not restrict the liability of the survivor. Huppman v. Schmidt, 65 T. 583.

While an inventory and list of claims must be filed before the county judge has jurisdiction to make an order authorizing a surviving wife to control and dispose of the estate, his jurisdiction is not dependent on the correctness of the inventory and list, and hence all the search which a purchaser of land of the estate must make to ascertain the survivor's power to sell was that necessary to determine that she filed an approved inventory and list, and that thereupon the court made the order, and he was not required to critically examine the inventory and list as to the particular items, and hence he was not charged with knowledge of the omission of a purchase-money note held by a bank as collateral, and affecting his title if he knew thereof. Thomas v. First Nat. Bank (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 844.

When the order is made, the power of the survivor is not, in view of Arts. 3599, 3600, limited to the property mentioned in the inventory and list of claims, but includes all belonging to the estate and all claims owing it, and a surviving wife has as much power to cancel a note held by a bank as collateral security and release the vendor's lien securing it as her husband had prior to his death. Id.

Powers of survivor terminate, when.—Where a husband qualified as community survivor by filing an inventory and appraisement of the common property under Act Aug. 26, 1856 (Acts 1856, c. 123), he acquired the right to exercise all the powers conferred until final partition, or until the heirs of the deceased wife proceeded, as authorized by statute, to terminate his powers, and his remarriage or the death of the only issue of the deceased wife would not terminate his rights; and all of such rights were expressly saved by Act June 2, 1873 (Acts 1873, c. 97), relating to the rights of a survivor in community property. Drought v. Story (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 361.

Inventory as evidence.—List of claims against a community estate held not admissible to show the existence of claims. Richardson v. Overleese, 17 C. A. 376, 44 S. W. 308.

Art. 3598. [2225] [2170] Bond of survivor.—The surviving husband shall, at the same time he returns the inventory, appraisement and list of claims, present to the court his bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to and to be approved by the county judge, in a sum equal to the whole of the value of such community estate as shown by the appraisement, conditioned that he will faithfully administer such community estate, and pay over one-half the surplus thereof after the payment of the debts with which the whole of such property is properly chargeable, to such person or persons as shall be entitled to receive the same. [Acts 1876, p. 124.]

See Thomas v. First Nat. Bank of Hico (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 844.

In general.—The right of the survivor in community to the absolute management of the common estate is acquired only in case the statutory bond is filed in the county court of the proper county; unless this is done the property is open to administration as in other cases. Brown v. Seaman, 65 T. 628.

A bond with one surety is valid. Linskie v. Kerr (Civ. App.) 34 S. W. 765.

This act, which re-enacts the requirement that a community survivor should give bond, and repeals all laws in conflict therewith, was not inconsistent with or repugnant to Act Aug. 26, 1856 (Acts 1856, c. 123), under which a surviving husband qualified as a community survivor by filing an inventory without giving bond, and thereby became entitled to the right to control and dispose of such community property, and which rights were expressly saved by Act June 2, 1873 (Acts 1873, c. 97), and hence did not affect the rights of such surviving husband, or the continuance of his administration. Drought v. Story (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 361.

Effect of failure to file sufficient bond.—If the bond is not accepted or is set aside and the survivor fails to file one that is sufficient, he is in effect removed from the management of the estate. An order removing him may be rendered and an administrator appointed. If the survivor acts under an accepted bond, but, failing to give a new bond when required, is removed from the administration, the administrator appointed to succeed him may sue his sureties on the bond for the value of the assets wasted. Brown v. Seaman, 65 T. 628.

Liability on bond.—Sureties on bond given by widow for community property held liable for money used by her to pay for improvements on her separate property prior to the execution of the bond. Neaves v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 420.

The surety on the bond of a widow qualifying as survivor held not relieved from liability to a creditor by certain facts. Wiseman v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 145

The obligation of a surety of a community survivor qualifying as such, determined. Houston Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 149.

Where the assets of a decedent were insufficient to satisfy all claims, and the survivor qualifying as such was guilty of maladministration in distributing the estate within the year without paying the debts, the claims must be prorated, and the surety was liable only to the amount of the claims as prorated. Id.

The existence of valid claims against a community estate does not bar recovery by the heirs on a bond given by the deceased husband as administrator. Belt v. Cetti, 53 C. A. 102, 118 S. W. 241.

A circumstance held no defense to liability on the bond of a deceased husband as administrator of the community estate. Id.

Action upon bond.—The court in which the suit should be brought is the one having jurisdiction of the suit for the amount claimed upon the bond, and it is not necessary for the devastavit to be first established in the county court. Brown v. Seaman, 65 T. 628.

Where but a small portion of the proceeds of community property passed into the hands of the widow's second husband, the acceptance of this amount by the heirs, on the widow's death, was not an election, preventing them from thereafter suing on the widow's bond. Neaves v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 420.

The bond inures to the benefit of the creditors and the children of the deceased wife, and the husband having committed devastavit and died, the right of action on the bond accrued at once to the creditors and children. Belt v. Cetti, 100 T. 92, 93 S. W. 1000, 1002.

Art. 3599. [2226] [2171] Action of court upon inventory, etc.—When any such inventory, appraisement, list of claims and bond are returned to the county judge, he shall, either in term time or in vacation, examine the same and approve or disapprove them by an order to that effect entered upon the minutes of the court, and, when approved, the same shall be recorded upon the minutes of the court, and the order approving the same shall also authorize such survivor to control, manage and dispose of such community property in accordance with the provisions of this chapter.

Effect of irregularity upon sale.—Mere irregularity in the mode and manner of making the inventory and appraisement of a community estate will not vitiate a sale of the same, as when no appraisers are appointed, or the bond is insufficient in amount. Pratt v. Godwin, 61 T. 331; Cordier v. Cage, 44 T. 533; Lumpkin v. Murrell, 46 T. 52; Jordan's Ex'rs v. Imthurn, 51 T. 276.

Effect of order approving bond, etc.—An order by the county judge approving bond, inventory and appraisement of survivor in community of a deceased husband's estate has the legal effect to give the survivor the right "to control, manage and sell said estate." Green v. White, 18 C. A. 509, 45 S. W. 389.

Power not limited to property included in inventory.—When the order is made, the power of the survivor was not limited to the property mentioned in the inventory and list of claims, but includes all belonging to the estate and all claims owing it, and a surviving wife had as much power to cancel a note held by a bank as collateral security and release the vendor's lien securing it as her husband had prior to his death. Thomas v. First Nat. Bank of Hico (Civ. App.) 127 S. W. 844.

Conclusiveness of record.—The effect of the record of a probate court concerning the administration of community property considered, and held conclusive, as to jurisdiction and facts necessarily decided, as against collateral attack. Alexander v. Barton (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 71.

Art. 3600. [2227] [2172] After order of court, survivor has control, etc—When the order mentioned in the preceding article has been entered, such survivor, without any further action in the county court, shall have the right to control, manage and dispose of such community property, real or personal, in such manner as may seem best for the interest of the estate and of suing and being sued with regard to the same, in the same manner as during the lifetime of the deceased; and a certified copy of the order of the court mentioned in the preceding article shall be evidence of the qualification and right of such survivor. [P. D. 4648.]

Control and management of estate.—See notes under Art. 3592.

The surviving husband or wife qualifying under the statute to administer the community estate has much broader power than that possessed by an ordinary administrator. James v. Turner, 78 T. 241, 14 S. W. 574. See Carter v. Conner, 60 T. 52; Hollingsworth v. Davis, 62 T. 438; Huppman v. Schmidt, 65 T. 583; Moody v. Smoot, 78 T. 119, 14 S. W. 285.

Where a wife has qualified as community survivor, she is so far as control, management, lease, or sale, the sole owner of the estate, and no one, not even the heirs of the deceased husband can control or affect her acts of ownership over the property. Pate v. State, 54 Cr. R. 491, 113 S. W. 758.

Rev. St. 1895, in view of the general provisions found at the conclusion of the revision, contain no provisions that affect the rights of a surviving husband in community property after he has qualified by inventory, etc., and acquired administration under Act Aug. 26, 1856 (Acts 1856, c. 123). Drought v. Story (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 361.

Survivor trustee, not administrator.—The survivor under this article is a trustee and not an administrator, and acts independently of the orders of the probate court, and the exercise of his discretion is under no judicial warrant or control as in cases of ordinary administration. Huppman v. Schmidt, 65 T. 583. But in respect to the creditor is not a trustee in the sense that he may be required to account. Id.

Sale and conveyance of property.—See notes under Art. 3592.

A valid sale of community land, made under administration on the estate of a decedent, to pay community debts, passes both the title of the deceased and of a wife who survived him, but who died before the grant of letters of administration. Murchison v. White, 54 T. 78.

The surviving husband may sell property of greater value than the amount of the indebtedness. The right of the heir of the deceased wife in the excess is secured by the bond of the survivor. Watkins v. Hall, 57 T. 1.

Where the survivor of the community qualifies under the statute, it will not give validity to the sale made before such qualification. Griffin v. Ford, 60 T. 501. A sale made by the survivor after qualifying is not affected by the fact that the preliminaries regarding such sale were agreed to prior to thus qualifying. Ford v. Cowan, 64 T. 129.

Irregularities in proceedings had by husband or wife to qualify the surviving spouse to dispose of the community estate, such as pertain to making out an inventory and appraisement, cannot vitiate a sale of community property. Pratt v. Godwin, 61 T. 331.

A purchaser of community property under a trust deed given by the wife, who has qualified under the statute as administratrix of such property, has a lien thereon superior to the claims of the heirs of the deceased parent. Ostrom v. Arnold, 24 C. A. 192, 58 S. W. 630.

Where, on qualifying as a survivor of the community estate, the surviving husband inventoried land purchased by the wife with her own funds as community property, a purchaser from him held to have acquired title thereto as against her heirs. Alexander v. Barton (Civ. App.) 71 S. W. 71.

An administrator's deed, though a quitclaim, held sufficient to sustain a plea of innocent purchaser without notice of the interest of third persons in the land. Nelson v. Bridge, 39 C. A. 283, 87 S. W. 885.

A conveyance by a widow who was also administratrix of a league and labor land certificate held sufficient to convey her community interest therein. McLain v. Pate (Civ. App.) 124 S. W. 718.

A surviving spouse, who qualifies, has the right to sell the community property, though it is community homestead, independently of the existence of community debts, provided such a course seems for the best interest of the estate. Morse v. Nibbs (Civ. App.) 150 S. W. 766.

Termination of right.—Where a husband qualified as community survivor by filing an inventory and appraisement of the common property under Act Aug. 26, 1856 (Acts 1856, c. 123), he acquired the right to exercise all the powers conferred until final partition, or until the heirs of the deceased wife proceeded, as authorized by statute, to terminate his powers, and his remarriage or the death of the only issue of the deceased wife would not terminate his rights; and all of such rights were expressly saved by Act June 2, 1873 (Acts 1873, c. 97), relating to the rights of a survivor in community property. Drought v. Story (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 361.

Actions by or against survivor.—See, also, notes under Art. 3592.

A judgment for community debt against the survivor in community can be enforced by execution against the community estate; and this whether the execution be so directed or not. Hollingsworth v. Davis, 62 T. 438, citing Carter v. Conner, 60 T. 52.

When administration is afterwards granted upon a community estate, a creditor is entitled to have the judgment obtained against the survivor in community established. To do this the judgment should be presented for approval and allowance to the administrator, and to the county court to be paid out of the community estate. Hollingsworth v. Davis, 62 T. 438.

Judgment against a survivor in a community estate held erroneous where the evidence failed to show that the debt sued on was a community debt. Brown v. Adams (Civ. App.) 55 S. W. 761.

A creditor of a community after the death of the wife may sue the husband, and on establishing his debt the creditor may subject the community property to its payment, notwithstanding that administration may be pending, the husband acting as administrator of the wife's estate. Levy v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 205.

The survivor of a community estate may be sued, in courts having jurisdiction of the subject-matter, before or after taking out letters of survivorship. Wiseman v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 145.

The statutory proceedings in the county court allowed a creditor held not to interfere with his right to sue the community survivor on his claim, in a court having jurisdiction of the amount in controversy. Houston Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 149.

Art. 3601. [2228] [2173] Survivor shall keep an account, etc.—The survivor shall keep a fair and full account and statement of all community debts and expenses paid by him, and of the disposition made of such community property; and, upon final partition of said estate, shall account to the legal heirs of the deceased for their interest in such estate, and the increase and profits of the same, after deducting therefrom all community debts, unavoidable losses, necessary and reasonable expenses, and a reasonable commission for the management of the same. [P. D. 4648.]

Distribution within year.—The statute does not permit, as due course of administration, the final distribution of property in the hands of a community survivor until one year after the filing of the bond. Houston Fire & Marine Ins. Co. v. Swain (Civ. App.) 114 S. W. 149.

Confusion of accounts.—The mingling of a surviving husband's accounts with community accounts held not to authorize, as to the heirs of the wife, the forfeiture of the husband's right to dispose of the estate for the payment of community debts Morris v. Morris, 47 C. A. 244, 105 S. W. 242.

Evidence of payments.—Evidence held insufficient to sustain a finding that an administrator paid specified sums for releases of specified vendor's lien notes. Belt v. Cetti, 53 C. A. 102, 118 S. W. 241.

Art. 3602. [2229] [2174] New appraisement and bond may be required.—Any person interested in such community estate may cause a new appraisement to be made of the same, or a new bond may be required of the survivor for the same causes and in like manner as provided in other administrations.

Effect of failure to give new bond.—If the survivor fails to give a new bond when required, he is in effect removed from administration, and the administrator appointed to succeed him may sue his sureties on the original bond for the value of assets wasted. The bond takes the place of the wasted property, and whatever extent the sureties are debtors to the estate, the court in which the suit is brought is the one having jurisdiction of a suit for the amount claimed upon the bond, and it is not necessary for the devastavit to be first established in the county court. Brown v. Seaman, 65 T. 628.

Effect on sureties of first bond.—An additional bond given by a survivor in community who had filed an additional inventory, the additional bond not being required by the court, did not release the sureties on the first bond. Richardson v. Overleese, 17 C. A. 376, 44 S. W. 308.

Unnecessary bond—Validity.—Where a community survivor who had given bond filed an additional inventory, and no new bond was required, an additional bond given by him was void, and did not release the sureties on the first bond. Richardson v. Overleese, 17 C. A. 376, 44 S. W. 308.

Art. 3603. [2230] [2175] Duty of survivor to pay debts.—It shall be the duty of the survivor to pay all just and legal community debts as soon as practicable, and according to the classification and in the order prescribed for the payment of debts in other administrations.

In general.—The surviving wife occupies a relation to the estate similar to that of an independent executor, and her allowance and approval of a claim against the estate gives it no right to payment superior to other claims of the same class. If the claim is not presented to the survivor, and before such survivor knows of the claim the estate is exhausted, no right of action exists against the survivor or the sureties on the bond. Green v. Raymond, 58 T. 80, 44 Am. Rep. 601. But if, with knowledge of the existence of the claim from having approved it, the survivor exhausts the estate in discharging debts of the same class, the creditor has a right of action against the survivor and sureties for pro rata payment on the claim to which he was entitled. Id.; Evans v. Taylor, 60 T. 422; Clifford v. Campbell, 65 T. 243.

A widow and executrix is liable for the debts of her husband, and of the community, to the extent of his separate property and community property coming into her hands. Flannery v. Chidgey, 33 C. A. 638, 77 S. W. 1034.

Renewal or extension of time of payment of indebtedness.—A surviving husband may renew a community debt and secure the same by mortgage on the community homestead. Echols v. Jacobs Mercantile Co., 38 C. A. 65, 84 S. W. 1082.

It is within the power of the survivor of a community estate to agree with creditor of the estate that in consideration of an extension of notes given for community debts he will pay interest on the whole amount then due on the notes. Morris v. Morris, 47 C. A. 244, 105 S. W. 242.

A husband surviving his wife may renew a community debt and make it a charge on community property. Word v. Colley (Civ. App.) 143 S. W. 257.

Art. 3604. [2231] [2176] Creditor may have survivor to make exhibit, when.—Any creditor of the estate whose claim has not been paid in full may, after the lapse of one year from the filing of the inventory, appraisement, list of claims and bond by the survivor, cause such survivor to be cited to appear at a regular term of the court in which such bond has been filed, and make an exhibit to the court in writing and under oath, showing fully and specifically—

1. The debts that have been presented to him against such community estate and their class.
2. The debts that have been paid by him and those that remain unpaid, and the class of each.
3. The property that has been disposed of by him and the amount received therefor.
4. The property remaining on hand.
5. An account of losses, expenses and commissions.

In general.—Where a widow is made independent executrix of her husband's estate, it is improper for a creditor to proceed against her as survivor of the community. Hartz v. Hausser (Civ. App.) 90 S. W. 63.

Jurisdiction not exclusive.—The jurisdiction given the probate court at the instance of a creditor to cite the survivor of a community and the sureties on the bond is not exclusive; the creditor may sue in any other court on the bond. Frank v. De Lopez, 2 C. A. 245, 21 S. W. 279.

Remedies of creditors—Action on bond, etc.—See Art. 3607.

Time for proceeding.—After the expiration of one year a creditor may require the community survivor to file an account in the probate court, and after the lapse of twelve months the heir of the decedent may, under Art. 3612, have him distribute the estate under the same tribunal. Whether such a statement is required or not, the remedy for the creditor and heir is by suit in the county court or district court, as the amount in controversy may require. Hupmann v. Schmidt, 65 T. 583.

The proceeding under this article must be instituted while the survivor is administering the estate, but not till after the lapse of a year from the filing of the bond. After the partition of the estate under Art. 3612, the remedy of the creditor is by suit for devastavit in the proper court. Brown v. Seaman, 65 T. 628.

Art. 3605. [2232] [2177] Action of court upon exhibit.—When such exhibit has been returned to the court and filed, the court shall, at a regular term, examine the same and hear exceptions and objections thereto, and evidence in support of or against the same; and, if satisfied that the estate has been fairly administered and in conformity to law, and that there remains no further property of such estate for the payment of debts, the court shall enter an order upon the minutes approving such exhibit and directing the same to be recorded in the minutes, and shall also in such order declare such administration closed.

Art. 3606. [2233] [2178] Sureties on survivor's bond shall be cited, when.—But should it appear to the court from such exhibit or from other evidence that such estate has been improperly administered, or that there are still assets of said estate that are liable for the payment of the applicant's debt, or any part thereof, and if said debt be for the amount of one thousand dollars or less, exclusive of interest, the court shall order citation to issue for the sureties upon the bond of such survivor, citing them to appear before such court at a regular term thereof, and show cause why judgment should not be rendered against them for such debt and costs, which citation shall be returnable as in other civil suits; and the proceedings in such case shall be the same as in other civil suits in said court.

Must be transferred to county court.—When, under this article, the right of a creditor to sue has been established, the creditor's proceeding must be transferred to the civil docket of the county court, when, after the sureties have been cited, such a judgment may be rendered on the bond as the facts justify, but the probate court has no jurisdiction to render such judgment. Nichols v. Oliver, 64 T. 647; Brown v. Seaman, 65 T. 628. See Art. 3604.

Art. 3607. [2234] [2179] Creditor may sue upon bond, when.—Should the amount due and payable to such creditor exceed one thousand dollars, exclusive of interest, the court shall enter an order upon the minutes requiring the survivor to pay such debt, or a part thereof, as the evidence may show to be proper; and, should he neglect to pay the same for thirty days after the date of such order, the creditor may have his action in the district court of the county where the survivor's bond is filed, against such survivor and the sureties upon his bond; and, in such case, a certified copy of such bond or the record thereof, and of the proceedings and orders of the county court in the estate, shall be evidence in any other court.

Construction in general.—The intention of this article and Arts. 3605 and 3606, is to authorize an action against the qualified survivor and heir, and sureties on the approved claim, after twelve months from the filing of the inventory, etc., if a devastavit be shown, or the survivor still has assets subject to the payment of debts. The probate court is to decide in the first instance whether the existing facts authorize an action, and its decision may be reviewed by the district court, without regard to the amount in controversy. The decision of the probate court fixes the right of the creditor to sue, and it may order the survivor to pay the claim when it exceeds $1,000; but in case the survivor decline to pay the claim the creditor can enforce payment only by action in the district court. Nichols v. Oliver, 64 T. 647. In an action on bond the plaintiff can recover only upon proof of the facts alleged as constituting a devastavit. Bergstroem v. State, 58 T. 92.

The remedy of the creditor is on the bond by a proceeding under the statute, or he may enforce his right by judgment and execution. The surviving husband is personally liable for community debts, and it is immaterial whether the community property in his hands is more or less than the indebtedness. The surviving wife does not owe the community debts. When her allowances and exemptions exceed the value of the community property received by her she may appropriate the property to her own use. If, after satisfying her exemptions and allowances, she applies any excess to the discharge of general debts, the property becomes hers discharged to the trust. Although she retains every item of property originally belonging to the trust estate, the creditors can reach nothing if what she received did not exceed in value the disbursements or credits shown by her of equal or superior dignity to the claim asserted against her. Leatherwood v. Arnold, 66 T. 414, 1 S. W. 173.

Procedure.—Sufficiency of pleading and proof in suit to recover claims which have been allowed and approved. Frank v. De Lopez, 2 C. A. 245, 21 S. W. 279.

In an action on a bond given by a widow for community property, where defendant sureties claimed that the proceeds of the property had been used by the widow to support the children, certain evidence held inadmissible on that issue. Neaves v. Griffin (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 420.

In an action on a bond given by a widow for community property, an instruction relative to the use of proceeds of the property before the date of the bond held error. Id.

Art. 3608. [2235] [2180] Action of court when survivor fails to make exhibit.—Should the survivor, after being duly cited, fail to file an exhibit as required, the court shall proceed, in accordance with the provisions of the two preceding articles, as if the creditor's right to the payment of his claim had been fully established.

Art. 3609. [2236] [2181] Surviving wife shall have same rights, etc.—The wife may retain the exclusive management, control and disposition of the community property of herself and deceased or insane husband in the same manner, and subject to the same rights, rules and regulations as provided in the case of the husband, and until she shall, in the event of the death of the husband, marry again. [Id.; amend. 1893, p. 89. P. D. 4652.]

See Walker v. Walker's Estate (Civ. App.) 136 S. W. 1145. And see notes under preceding articles of this chapter.

Application in general.—It is this control and amenability to suit which has been construed to enable creditors of the community to obtain judgment against the survivor and levy executions upon the property of such estates without administration; and these are the rights, powers and capacities given by this article to the wife until she marries again. Wingfield v. Hackney, 95 T. 490, 68 S. W. 264.

Grant of letters to third party.—On the granting of letters of administration to a third party, the wife's control over the community estate ceases, and the estate passes under the jurisdiction of the county court. Hollingsworth v. Davis, 62 T. 438.

Art. 3610. [2236a] "Survivor," etc., applies alike to sane and insane persons.—The use of the words, "survivor," or, "surviving," in the above and foregoing articles of this chapter, where no other designation is given, shall be held to apply as well to a sane person representing an insane person. [Acts 1893, p. 89.]

Art. 3611. [2237] [2182] Rights of wife cease when she marries again.—Upon the marriage of the surviving wife, she shall cease to have such control and management of said estate or the right to dispose of the same; and said estate shall be subject to administration as in other cases of deceased persons' estates.

Remarriage of widow.—A widow upon her marriage ceases to be the legal representative of the community estate, and can neither sue nor be sued as such. Llano Imp. Co. v. Cross, 5 C. A. 175, 24 S. W. 77.

The power of a surviving wife to sell community property to pay debts without administration of a deceased husband's estate ceases upon her remarriage. Hasseldenz v. Dofflemyre (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 830.

A widow investing community funds in lands cannot after marriage give good title, but holds it in trust for the children to the extent of their interest in the fund. Worst v. Sgitcovich (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 72.

The marriage is made of itself to put an end to those powers and capacities, the existence of which enables the creditor without other administration to sue and subject the community property to his debt. Until the marriage takes place the estate is under administration of peculiar sort, differing from ordinary administration—one difference being that creditors may sue the representative and sell the property under execution. Wingfield v. Hackney, 95 T. 490, 68 S. W. 263.

On the marriage of a widow, she could no longer exercise the powers of surviving wife as to the community property. Summerville v. King, 98 T. 332, 83 S. W. 680.

Equitable as well as legal title divested by marriage.—The power of the surviving wife ceases with her widowhood as well with reference to the equitable as the legal title to the community property. Her deed for community property, executed after her marriage only affects her own interest; it is void as to her first husband's heirs. Auerbach v. Wylie, 84 T. 615, 19 S. W. 856, 20 S. W. 776; Davis v. McCartney, 64 T. 588; Pucket v. Johnson, 45 T. 550.

Effect of divorce from second husband.—Where a surviving wife married, but was subsequently divorced, after the termination of the second marriage her authority as surviving wife of the first marriage was restored as to the community property thereof. Summerville v. King, 98 T. 332, 83 S. W. 680 reversing King v. Summerville (Civ. App.) 80 S. W. 1053.

Grant of letters to third party.—See notes under Art. 3609.

Art. 3612. [2238] [2183] Persons entitled to estate may have partition, when.—After the lapse of twelve months from the filing of the bond by the survivor, the persons entitled to the deceased's share of such community estate, or any portion thereof, shall be entitled to demand and have a partition and distribution thereof in the same manner as in other administrations.

See, also, Arts. 3368, 3425, 3556-3561, and Title 101.

Right to partition.—Where there are no debts the title of the children in the estate of their dead parent is subject only to the surviving spouse to administer the property under the statute. By qualifying as survivor one acquires the right to manage and control the estate, but the title of the children is not thereby divested. After the lapse of one year they are entitled to have the estate partitioned and distributed. Upon the remarriage of the wife her right to manage and control the estate as survivor ceases. Faris v. Simpson, 30 C. A. 103, 69 S. W. 1030.

The children of a deceased wife are entitled to have the community property partitioned on the death of the husband. Richmond v. Sims (Civ. App.) 144 S. W. 1142.

District court—Jurisdiction.—See Art. 3207.

Peaceful suit of partition.—Where a survivor of the community and the heirs of his deceased wife had a complete settlement of the community estate, and the heirs executed releases of liability to the survivor and the latter went into the county court and procured a decree ratifying the transaction it amounted to a peaceful suit of partition as authorized by this article. Cheek v. Hart (Civ. App.) 111 S. W. 775.

Partition by county court.—An estate administered by the survivor may be partitioned by the county court as in other cases. McGillivray v. Eggleston, 11 C. A. 35, 31 S. W. 539.

Art. 3613. [2238a] Recovery of insane spouse stops action hereunder.—Whenever such insane husband or wife shall have recovered sanity, then all action hereunder shall cease, and a report shall be made under oath of all transactions had and done under said proceedings; and said report shall be filed and recorded in the court where such proceedings were had, and with the other papers of the case. [Acts 1893, p. 89.]

Art. 3614. [2238b] Duty of guardians in such cases.—Persons now acting as guardians of the estate of persons of unsound mind shall turn over the estates of their wards, where the wards shall be married persons, upon the qualification of the sane spouse, as provided in this chapter. [Id.]

CHAPTER THIRTY

TRANSFER OF ADMINISTRATION

Article 3615. [2239] [2184] Court shall transfer administration on application, when.—It shall be the duty of the county judge of any county from which any county, or part thereof, has been taken, upon the written application of the executor, administrator, or the majority of the heirs of an estate, to transmit all original papers relating to the settlement of a deceased person's estate who was at the time of his decease a resident of that part of the territory of the county which has been, or may hereafter be, taken to form any new county, or that may be added to any other county, to the county court of such new county, or county to which such territory has been added; and he shall also transmit with such original papers a transcript, certified by the clerk under the seal of the court, of the records of all orders, judgments and decrees of the court had in relation to such estate. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 125, sec. 118.]

Transfer—Jurisdiction.—The probate court of Newton county had jurisdiction of an administration opened in Jasper county, the records of which were required by this statute to be transferred to Newton county. Stephenson v. Wiess (Civ. App.) 145 S. W. 287.

Art. 3616. [2240] [2185] Applicant shall pay fees due.—At the time of filing such application, the applicant shall pay all fees due on account of such estate; and the order for the transfer of such estate shall not be made until such fees have been paid. [Id.]

Art. 3617. [2241] [2186] Order of court for transfer.—When the fees due have been paid, the county judge shall, either in term time or in vacation, hear such application; and, if satisfied that the facts exist which authorize the transfer of such estate, he shall enter an order upon the minutes directing such transfer, and ordering all original papers of the estate that have not been recorded to be recorded previous to such transfer.

Art. 3618. [2242] [2187] Duty of clerk to record all papers not recorded.—Upon the entry of such order, it shall be the duty of the clerk to record all original papers belonging to the estate that have not been previously recorded, for which the same fee shall be allowed him as is allowed for other recording; which fees shall be paid by the applicant before any such transfer shall be made. [Id. p. 125, sec. 119.]

Art. 3619. [2243] [2188] Administration of estate shall be proceeded with as if commenced originally in the county to which transfer is made.—In all cases where papers and proceedings relating to the settlement of an estate shall be transmitted to any court in the manner provided for in this chapter, such papers and proceedings shall be filed in such court; and such estate shall be proceeded with and settled in such court in like manner as if the settlement of such estate had been originally commenced in such county; and the transcript of the record transmitted in the manner provided herein shall have the same force and effect in evidence as the record itself might or could have. [Id. sec. 120.]

Art. 3620. [2244] [2189] Administration in district court shall be transferred to county court.—All proceedings in relation to the settlement, partition and distribution of estates of deceased persons, remaining unsettled in the district courts of this state, shall be transferred to the county court of the county having jurisdiction thereof, and shall be conducted and concluded in such county court under the provisions of this title. [Id. p. 130, sec. 144.]

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

COSTS

Article 3621. [2245] [2190] Commission allowed executors and administrators.—Executors and administrators shall be entitled to receive and may retain in their hands five per cent on all sums they may actually receive in cash, and the same per cent on all sums they may pay away in cash in the course of their administration. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 126, sec. 121.]

Commissions—On what allowed.—Where the amount bid upon the sale of property is paid by a credit on the debt for the satisfaction of which it was sold, the administrator is entitled to such allowance only as the county court may order. James v. Corker, 30 T. 617; Watt v. Downs, 36 T. 116.

An administrator who is a creditor of the estate cannot charge commissions on payment of his own debt. Brown v. Walker's Heirs, 38 T. 109.

An administrator is entitled to commissions where the sale is made to a creditor who is required to pay to the administrator the amount of his bid in excess of the indebtedness to himself. Claridge v. Lavenberg, 7 C. A. 155, 26 S. W. 324.

Commissions are allowed on amount bid at a sale of land to a creditor under a judgment in his favor. Huddleston v. Kempner, 87 T. 372, 28 S. W. 936.

Where an administrator wrongfully and knowingly failed to account for moneys in his hands belonging to the estate, he was not entitled to commissions thereon. Thomas v. Hawpe, 35 C. A. 311, 80 S. W. 129.

An administrator, selling land and receiving outstanding notes of decedent therefor, held entitled to commissions for the amount of the notes as on money paid out. Wolf's Estate v. Wolf, 36 C. A. 168, 81 S. W. 90.

Allowance to independent executrix for supervision of estate, in addition to one-half of commissions prescribed by law, held ample. Japhet v. Pullen (Civ. App.) 133 S. W. 441.

Continuation of business.—The statute allowing commissions to executors and administrators is not applicable in the conduct of a mercantile business when conducted by them, and cannot be construed to extend to money expended in the purchase of goods as well as money received for their sale. Dwyer v. Kalteyer, 68 T. 554, 5 S. W. 75.

Extra services.—An administrator may be allowed compensation for extra personal services rendered the estate when shown to have been performed and necessary. Such a claim may be properly presented to the probate court in an exhibit made by the administrator under oath. Stonebraker v. Friar, 70 T. 202, 7 S. W. 799.

On the settlement of an administrator's account, he should not receive credit for extra services not shown to be necessary or to have been performed. James v. Craighead (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 241.

Charges for extra services and interest which are not properly itemized will be disallowed. McShan v. Lewis, 33 C. A. 253, 76 S. W. 616.

Extra commissions.—Extra commissions should not be allowed an administrator when attorney's fees have been paid for transacting the same business. Trammel v. Philleo, 33 T. 395.

Offset on judgment.—Commissions are not allowed as an offset to a judgment against an administrator for money not accounted for. Chapman v. Brite, 4 C. A. 506, 23 S. W. 514.

Temporary administrator.—The compensation of a temporary administrator held in the discretion of the court appointing him. Bell v. Goss, 33 C. A. 158, 76 S. W. 315.

Art. 3622. [2246] [2191] Commissions not allowed on certain moneys.—The commission allowed by the preceding article shall not be allowed or received for receiving any cash which was on hand at the time of the death of the testator or intestate, nor for paying out money to the heirs or legatees as such. [Id.]

Legatee.—The term "legatee" embraces any person who is entitled under the will to receive money from the administrator or executor. Spofford v. Minor, 13 C. A. 534, 36 S. W. 771.

Art. 3623. [2247] [2192] Shall be allowed expenses, etc.—Executors and administrators shall also be allowed all reasonable expenses necessarily incurred by them in the preservation, safe keeping and management of the estate, and all reasonable attorney's fees that may be necessarily incurred by them in the course of the administration. [Id.]

Expenses.—The court may fix the expenses of sale of land to a lienholder in order to properly credit his claim. Huddleston v. Kempner (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 236.

Administrator may include his expenses as items in his account. Hanlon v. Wheeler (Civ. App.) 45 S. W. 821.

Attorney's fees.—In an action against the administrator for services rendered by an attorney, the petition must allege that the employment of the plaintiff was reasonable and proper, and that the claim is a reasonable charge. Portis v. Cole, 11 T. 159; Jones v. Lewis, 11 T. 359; Price v. McIver, 25 T. 769, 78 Am. Dec. 558; Caldwell v. Young, 21 T. 800; Andrus v. Pettus, 36 T. 108.

Reasonable attorney's fees incurred in defending suit are included in expenses of administration, and entitled to priority of payment. Williams v. Robinson, 56 T. 347.

An executor was entitled in his account to charge a reasonable fee paid to attorneys for defending an action brought for the purpose of attacking testator's title to the land devised, and for damages. Ackermann v. Ackermann (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 889.

Temporary administrators.—The temporary administrator held not entitled to an allowance for his attorney representing him on appeal by the heirs to the district court from an order fixing his compensation. Bell v. Goss, 33 C. A. 158, 76 S. W. 315.

Art. 3624. [2248] [2193] Account for expenses shall be filed and acted upon by the court.—All such charges as are provided for in the preceding article shall be made in writing, showing specifically each item of expense and the date thereof, and shall be verified by the affidavit of the executor or administrator, and filed with the clerk and entered upon the claim docket, and shall be acted upon by the court in like manner as other claims against the estate.

Extra services.—See notes under Art. 3623.

Art. 3625. [2249] [2194] Costs of appraisers.—Appraisers appointed under the provisions of this title shall be entitled to receive two dollars per day each for every day that they may be necessarily engaged in the performance of their duties as such appraisers.

Art. 3626. [2250] [2195] Costs of commissioners.—Commissioners appointed under the provisions of this title to partition and distribute an estate, or any part thereof, shall be entitled to receive two dollars each for every day that they may be necessarily engaged in the performance of their duties as such commissioners, to be taxed and paid as other costs in cases of partition.

Art. 3627. [2251] [2196] When costs shall be adjudged against executor, etc.—In all cases where an executor or administrator shall neglect the performance of any duty required by this title, and any costs are incurred on account thereof, he and his sureties on his bond shall be liable for all such costs, and the same shall be adjudged against him and his sureties, and execution issue therefor as in other cases. [Id. p. 129, sec. 133.]

In general.—Where executor's sale confirmed by the county judge is set aside on appeal for inadequacy of price, costs should be taxed against the estate. James v. Nease (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 110.

Where, by reason of an administrator's failure to file a proper account, it becomes necessary to cite him to account, it is within the discretion of the district court to tax the costs of his appeal from the order of the county court on such accounting against him, though the amount with which he is charged is reduced on the appeal. James v. Craighead (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 241.

Where costs of an action by heirs against an administrator were directed to be paid by the heirs as a condition to setting aside a dismissal of the case, which order was not set aside or appealed from, the court had no power, after the term, to adjudge such costs against the administrator. Thomas v. Hawpe, 35 C. A. 311, 80 S. W. 129.

In a case contesting the final account of the administrator the district court has the power to adjudge costs that had accrued up to time of rendering judgment, but no power to adjudge costs that might accrue in the appellate courts in anticipation of an appeal from its judgment. Id.

In a suit by the beneficiary in a testamentary trust for the protection of the trust and for partition, held erroneous to allow costs and attorney's fees against her. Nagle v. Von Rosenberg, 55 C. A. 354, 119 S. W. 706.

Art. 3628. [2252] [2197] Same subject.—Whenever an executor or administrator shall be removed for any of the causes set forth in this title, the costs of such proceeding shall likewise be adjudged against him and the sureties upon his bond. [Id.]

Cumulative and restricted.—This statute is cumulative and restricted. It does not affect the rule or right as to the admissibility of the originals. Manning v. State, 46 Cr. R. 326, 81 S. W. 957, 960, 3 Ann. Cas. 867.

Art. 3629. [2253] [2198] When application, etc., is defeated costs shall be adjudged against applicant, etc.—In all cases where a party shall file any application, complaint or opposition in the court, under the provisions of this title, and on the trial thereof he shall be defeated, or fail in the object for which his application, complaint or opposition was filed, all costs occasioned by the filing of the same shall be adjudged against him. [Id. p. 129, sec. 134.]

Costs in contest by creditor against homestead.—Costs incurred in a contest by a creditor against the setting apart to the widow and children the homestead, when resulting against the creditor making such contest, are properly adjudged against him. McLane v. Paschal, 74 T. 20, 11 S. W. 837.

Suit against executor to terminate trust in will.—Where suit is brought by a beneficiary to terminate a trust provision in a will against an executor and judgment is rendered for plaintiff, the costs should be taxed against the executor personally and not against the estate. Lanius v. Fletcher (Civ. App.) 99 S. W. 169-171.

Art. 3630. [2254] [2199] Security for costs may be required, when.—When any person, except the executor or administrator of an estate, files any application, complaint or opposition in relation to the estate, the clerk may require him to give security for the probable costs of such proceeding before filing the same; or any one interested in the estate, or any officer of the court may, at any time before the trial of such application, complaint or opposition, obtain from the court, upon written motion, an order requiring such party to give security for the costs of such proceedings, and the rules governing the proceedings in civil suits in the county court respecting this subject shall govern in such case.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

APPEALS TO THE DISTRICT COURT

[In addition to the notes under the particular articles, see also notes of decisions relating to appeal in general, at end of chapter.]

Article 3631. [2255] [2200] Right of appeal.—Any person who may consider himself aggrieved by any decision, order, decree or judgment, of the county court shall have the right to appeal therefrom to the district court of the county, upon complying with the provisions of this chapter. [Act Aug. 9, 1876, p. 128, sec. 130.]

See United States Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Buhrer (Civ. App.) 132 S. W. 505.

Mode of review.—The district court can only exercise its appellate jurisdiction over probate courts on appeal or certiorari. Franks v. Chapman, 60 T. 46; Heath v. Layne, 62 T. 686. As to proceedings by certiorari, see Title 21, Chapter 1.

Appealable judgments and orders.—An appeal may be taken from an interlocutory order rejecting the report on account of an administrator, and directing him to file another report on a designated basis. Halbert v. Alford, 82 T. 297, 17 S. W. 595.

An order overruling demurrer to exceptions filed to administrator's account, is interlocutory in its nature, and not such an order, judgment or decree as may be appealed from. The order does not adjudicate any matter between the parties. Thomas v. Hawpe, 25 C. A. 534, 62 S. W. 786.

The refusal to appoint a temporary administrator, and dismissing an application therefor, held appealable to the district court. Long v. Richardson, 26 C. A. 197, 62 S. W. 964.

This article applies to any judgment, decision, decree, or order which at the end of the term will be conclusive of the controverted right, unless set aside by appeal or other revisory proceeding. Shook v. Journeay (Civ. App.) 149 S. W. 406.

An order admitting a will to probate, but continuing for further hearing the application to appoint relator independent executrix, held not appealable. Id.

Necessity of notice.—Though this article and Art. 3632, merely requiring filing of an appeal bond within 15 days, do not require a notice, the requirements of Art. 2084, relating to appeals for both district and county courts and requiring notice of appeal, are general, and an appeal cannot be taken from the probate of a will by giving bond without notice. Beversdorff v. Dienger (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 533.

Who may appeal.—The minor children of an intestate decedent may appeal from an order allowing a claim against the estate. Tanner v. Ames' Estate (Civ. App.) 37 S. W. 373.

A guardian, who feels himself aggrieved by order of probate court can appeal therefrom without bond, even though he has a personal interest in the subject-matter. Arthur v. Reed, 26 C. A. 574, 64 S. W. 832.

Any person interested in the administration of an estate may appeal to the district court from any order of the court made in the administration. Levy v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 205.

No appeal after certiorari.—Where a guardian has sued out a writ of certiorari and had a probate order tried de novo in the district court and been unsuccessful, he cannot take the case again before the district court on appeal from the probate order and have another trial de novo. In re Pearce, 43 C. A. 398, 96 S. W. 1094.

Art. 3632. [2256] [2201] Appeal bond; requisites of.—He shall, within fifteen days after such decision, order, judgment or decree shall have been rendered, file with the county clerk a bond with two or more good and sufficient sureties, payable to the county judge, in any amount to be fixed by the county judge, and to be approved by the clerk, conditioned that the appellant shall prosecute said appeal to effect and perform the decision, order, decree or judgment which the district court shall make thereon, in case the cause shall be decided against him. [Acts 1876, p. 128. Acts 1909, S. S. p. 282.]

Necessity of bond or affidavit.—Appeal must be perfected by bond, or affidavit of inability to give bond, within 15 days after the entry of the order. Smithwick v. Kelly, 79 T. 564, 15 S. W. 486.

Where neither decedent's widow nor the guardian of his minor children gave a bond or affidavit on an appeal to the district court from the county court's approval of the administrator's final account, the appeal should have been dismissed. Kleinsmith v. Northcut (Civ. App.) 56 S. W. 557.

Requisites of bond.—The bond, when it identifies the order appealed from, if in other respects formal, is sufficient. Hicks v. Oliver, 71 T. 776, 10 S. W. 97.

A bond is not invalid because it fixes a specific sum to be recovered if the appellant fails to prosecute his appeal. If insufficient in amount a new bond may be required. It is said that the word "payable," as used in the statute, indicates that a sum should be named to be paid, as the word "conditioned" indicates there was to be an obligation to pay a specified sum, defeasible on condition. In Munzesheimer v. Wickham, 74 T. 638, 12 S. W. 751, it is held that the bond should bind the parties to pay a specific sum, or to pay such sum as may be necessary to satisfy the judgment, etc., rendered in the appellate tribunal. Id.

Bond on appeal from the county to the district court held not defective. Bell v. Goss, 33 C. A. 158, 76 S. W. 315.

Time for filing.—The time within which appeal bond or affidavit can be filed runs from date of order to be appealed from and not from the order overruling motion for new trial. Milo v. Nuske, 95 T. 241, 66 S. W. 545.

Notice.—Though Art. 3631, permitting a person aggrieved by decision of the county court to appeal therefrom on compliance with provisions of that chapter, and this article, do not require a notice, the requirements of Art. 2084, relating to appeals for both district and county courts and requiring notice of appeal, are general, and an appeal cannot be taken from the probate of a will by giving bond without notice. Beversdorff v. Dienger (Civ. App.) 141 S. W. 533.

Appeal and writ of error.—See Title 37, Chapter 20.

Art. 3633. [2257] [2202] Bond not required of executor, etc., unless, etc.—When an appeal is taken by an executor or administrator, no bond shall be required, unless such appeal personally concern him, in which case he must give the bond.

Construed.—An executor is not required to give an appeal bond unless such appeal personally interests him. Executors appealing as such should give notice of appeal during the term in which the order is entered. Smithwick v. Kelly, 79 T. 564, 15 S. W. 486. See Hudgins v. Leggett, 84 T. 207, 19 S. W. 387.

Designation of party throughout pleadings and record as "administrator" held not descriptio personæ, and an appeal by him would not be dismissed as one taken in his own right. Altgelt v. Elmendorf (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 412.

Does not apply to guardians.—This article does not apply to guardians, and they can appeal without bond from an order of the probate court. Arthur v. Reed, 26 C. A. 574, 64 S. W. 831, 832.

Art. 3634. [2258] [2203] Affidavit that party is too poor to give bond.—Where the party who desires to appeal is unable to give the appeal bond, it shall be sufficient if he file with the county clerk, within the time prescribed for giving such bond, an affidavit in writing that he has made diligent efforts to give such bond and is unable to do so by reason of his poverty, and such affidavit shall operate a perfection of the appeal in respect to the matter of costs. [P. D. 6180.]

Art. 3635. [2259] [2204] Duty of county clerk to make and transmit transcript, etc.—Upon such appeal bond or affidavit being filed in the county clerk's office, it shall be his duty immediately to make out a certified transcript of the papers and proceedings relating to the decision, order, judgment or decree appealed from, together with such decision, order, judgment or decree, and transmit the same to the clerk of the district court, together with the appeal bond or affidavit that has been made in lieu of such bond, on or before the first day of the next term of such court. [Id. sec. 131.]

Art. 3636. [2260] [2205] Transcript to be transmitted, when, etc.—In case the county clerk shall be unable for want of time to make out such transcript before the first day of the next term of the district court of the county, after such appeal is taken, then such transcript shall be transmitted to the next succeeding term of such district court. [Id. sec. 132.]

Time for filing.—A transcript may be filed later than the second term, but the excuse must show appellant to be without fault, and the proof must show that appellant used due diligence. Hoefling v. Esser's Estate (Civ. App.) 46 S. W. 294.

Effect of failure of clerk to file in time.—The appellant will not be prejudiced by the failure of the clerk to file the transcript within the time prescribed by law, although the excuse for delay is not altogether satisfactory. Ball v. Lowell, 56 T. 579.

Art. 3637. [2261] [2206] Duty of district clerk who receives transcript, etc.—When the transcript and appeal bond or affidavit have been received by the clerk of the district court, he shall file and number the same, and enter the case upon the civil docket of such court, to be called and disposed of in its regular order.

Art. 3638. [2262] [2207] Appeals shall be tried de novo in regular order upon the docket.—All causes removed by appeal to the district court shall be tried anew, as if originally brought in such court; and, if no appearance is entered upon the docket for the appellee, the cause shall proceed to trial in its regular order upon the docket as if both parties were present. [P. D. 480.]

Proceeding in district court—Nature.—Trials in the district court on appeals from a county court are had de novo, and in an appeal from a judgment admitting a will to probate, all evidence will be heard in the district court which could have been admissible in the county court. Kelly v. Settegast, 68 T. 13, 2 S. W. 870. The district court may dismiss the party who originally made application for probate and proceed in the case at the instance of a legatee under the will, or of any one interested in the estate. Elwell v. Universalist Gen. Con., 76 T. 514, 13 S. W. 552.

The district court, trying a probate case appealed from the county court, has no jurisdiction to try a question of title founded on an alleged contract for adoption made with deceased by an orphans' home society. McColpin v. McColpin's Estate (Civ. App.) 75 S. W. 824.

On an appeal to the district court from an order of the county court made in administration proceedings, the issue involved will be tried de novo. Levy v. W. L. Moody & Co. (Civ. App.) 87 S. W. 205.

On appeal to the district court from an order confirming sale of temporary administrator and appointing a permanent administrator, the court acts de novo with the same power as that possessed originally by the probate court. Goldstein v. Susholtz, 46 C. A. 582, 105 S. W. 222.

Neither the parties themselves nor the district court could, after appeal to such court from a judgment of the county court in a suit involving matters purely of probate, convert such suit into one of trespass to try title; the district court's jurisdiction being only appellate, and not extensible beyond that of the county court. Hallam v. Moore (Civ. App.) 126 S. W. 908.

—— Amendments.—The parties occupy the same position and are governed by the same rules as to pleadings and amendments as in the court a quo. In a contest for letters of administration on appeal, the original applicant may, as in the court below, except to the right of the contestant to oppose the application for letters and require a statement of his interest before going to trial; and on this issue of evidence may be heard. And upon proper pleading, regardless of the action of the court below, or the proceedings there, or what the transcript may disclose as to the contest there, on the statement of interest in the district court by the contestant, the original applicant may except to the want of certainty in the statement; or by requiring proof have the issue of interest settled before going to trial on the merits, but cannot on motion dismiss the appeal. Newton v. Newton, 61 T. 511; McLane v. Paschal, 62 T. 102.

The district court may grant leave to amend the petition. Arredondo v. Arredondo (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 336.

New parties and intervention.—The district court held to have the power, where a will contest is appealed to it from the county court, to require new parties to be joined. Marshall v. Stubbs, 48 C. A. 158, 106 S. W. 435.

Under this article the district court held without authority to remand a cause, wherein it was sought to set aside the probate of a will, because a certain party had not been joined, since though she may have been a necessary party, yet the judgment, as to the executor, was not void. Id.

Any one interested in the estate can intervene in the district court and present any matter which he could have urged in the county court, after the case has been appealed to the district court. Harrell v. Traweek, 49 C. A. 417, 108 S. W. 1022.

Rendering judgment.—When a case involving the validity of a will has been tried de novo in the district court, and the will is sustained, the judgment should declare its probate. Delgado v. Gonzales (Civ. App.) 28 S. W. 459.

On overruling exceptions to an application for the sale of land the district court has jurisdiction to render such judgment as should have been rendered in the county court. Henry v. Drought, 30 S. W. 584, citing Arredondo v. Arredondo (Civ. App.) 25 S. W. 336.

The district court, on appeal from the county court in proceedings for the probate of a will, tries the case de novo, and may probate the will or declare it void. Holt v. Guerguin (Civ. App.) 156 S. W. 581.

Effect of judgment.—Where items in the settlement account of an executor are objected to by a creditor and an appeal is taken and the judgment affirmed, the action of the court on appeal is final; no other creditor can be heard upon such objection. Wiren v. Nesbitt, 85 T. 286, 20 S. W. 128.

Evidence.—See notes under Art. 3275.

Both the county court sitting in probate and the district court on appeal may, in classifying claims, hear evidence of mistake in the terms of a written contract entered into by decedent, and grant appropriate relief. Zieschang v. Helmke (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 436.

Certified copy of deed of adoption used in trial of will contest in county court held not subject to objection in district court that it had not been filed as required by statute. Bradshaw v. Seaton (Civ. App.) 128 S. W. 943.

Art. 3639. [2263] [2208] Certified copy of judgment of district court to be transmitted to county court.—When the judgment of the district court has been rendered, a certified copy thereof shall forthwith be transmitted by the clerk of the district court to the clerk of the county court from which the case was appealed for the observance of such court; and the clerk of the county court, upon receiving such certified copy of judgment, shall file the same and record it upon the minutes of the court and note it upon the docket; and the county judge shall make such order as may be necessary to the enforcement of such judgment.

DECISIONS RELATING TO APPEAL IN GENERAL

Bill of review.—The county court cannot, by bill of review, revise all orders which it may make in matters of probate within two years after the order complained of is entered; but it has the power, whenever its action has been without jurisdiction, or when its orders or judgments have been obtained by fraud, or by any other means which would render them void, to so declare them at any time. Heath v. Layne, 62 T. 686; Franks v. Chapman, 60 T. 46; Id., 61 T. 46; Edwards v. Halbert, 64 T. 667.

Effect of appeal.—Executors filed a settlement account, and with it an exhibit showing expense account claimed. Objections made to some items upon the exhibit by a creditor were docketed separately in the probate court. The court overruled the objections to the expense account, and on another day at the same term approved the settlement account. Held, an appeal from the order overruling the exceptions to the expense account carried the entire case to the district court. A suit brought on the bond by a creditor while such appeal was pending in the district court and in the supreme court was properly dismissed. Wiren v. Nesbitt, 85 T. 286, 20 S. W. 128.

By an appeal from the admission of a will to probate and the appointment of an executor, held, that the judgment was annulled, and that the executor could not act nor be sued pending the appeal. Garrett v. Garrett (Civ. App.) 47 S. W. 76.

In a suit between contesting creditors to determine priority of claims against the estate of a decedent, an appeal by one unsuccessful claimant held to bring up the entire case and all the contesting parties. Zieschang v. Helmke (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 436.

An appeal from orders denying applications to withdraw an estate from administration and for an allowance in lieu of exempt property held not to raise for review an order denying an application to annul probate. Grigsby v. Reib (Civ. App.) 139 S. W. 1027.

A judgment of probate held not vacated by the dismissal of an appeal from orders denying applications to withdraw the estate from administration and for an allowance in lieu of exempt property. Id.

Presentation of questions in county court.—On application by administrators for an order for the sale of land to pay debts, the fact that creditors having liens on part of the land did not object to sale in bulk held not to prevent them from urging on appeal that there was no evidence authorizing such sale. Texas Land & Loan Co. v. Dunovant's Estate, 38 C. A. 560, 87 S. W. 208.

Objections to the probate of a decedent's will should be raised first in the county court, and the district court should not entertain original proceedings to determine whether such a will may be probated. Buchner v. Wait (Civ. App.) 137 S. W. 383.

Disposition of cause.—Case pending on appeal from district court at passage of act transferring jurisdiction to county court is triable in the county court after a reversal. Cahill v. Texas-Mexican Ry. Co. (Civ. App.) 40 S. W. 871.

The appellate court, on reversing confirmation of executor's sale for inadequacy of price, will set aside sale, and not remand the cause for new trial, there being nothing to indicate that stronger evidence of adequacy could be produced. James v. Nease (Civ. App.) 69 S. W. 110.

Failure of district court, on appeal from county court in proceedings to determine priority of claims of creditors of a decedent, to pass upon the claim of one creditor, held not ground for reversal. Zieschang v. Helmke (Civ. App.) 84 S. W. 436.

Costs on appeal.—See notes under Art. 3627.
