CUMULATIVE TABLE OF SESSION LAWS

1911—1921

(32d TO 37th LEGISLATURES INCLUSIVE)

Showing the disposition of the Session Laws since the revisions of 1911, as classified in Vernon's Civil and Criminal Statutes with their Supplements to 1922 inclusive.

The full history of each section is given, showing, by means of appropriate references, into what unit or units of the Vernon system of annotated statutes each section has been carried. Reference to the compilations listed in brackets after each section of an act will give the user information as to just where the text of the section may be found in its latest form, or will furnish indication of the repeal or supercession of such section.

Where particular sections of acts are not given in this table it indicates that such sections have been omitted for the reason that they are merely appropriations or consist of emergency or repeal provisions.

INDEX

Unless otherwise indicated the references are to articles of the 1914 Vernon's Sayles' Ann. Civil Statutes.

[16] refers to articles of the 1916 Vernon's Penal Code and Code of Criminal Procedure.

[18] and [22] refer to articles of the 1918 and 1922 Supplements of Civil and Criminal Statutes, respectively.

This index carries the searcher to the latest existing statute law on the subject in hand. Repealed and superseded laws are omitted. It is thus an index to the living statute law of Texas, both civil and criminal.

The references to annotations are indicated by page references, such as "p. 154 note." The annotation references in the former indexes of the 1914 edition of the Civil Statutes, the 1916 edition of the Criminal Statutes, and the 1918 Supplement are carried into this index along with new annotation references to the 1922 Supplement. The searcher for annotations, who has found a note reference to one of the editions or Supplements, should examine the annotations under the corresponding articles, chapters, or titles in the other units of Vernon's Annotated Statutes. The annotations are indexed only when the references to the text of the statute do not suggest the subject of the notes.
